Junior Editors Quiz on THE BIBLE

QUESTION: What was Esau's birthright and why did he sell it?

ANSWER: Esau (see Genesis, chapter 25) was the son of Isaac and Rebecca. He was born just before his twin brother Jacob, and since this made him the eldest son, he was entitled to inherit the family fortune. This was his "birthright."

One day Esau came in from a hunting expedition weak and faint. Seeing that Jacob had prepared a pot of lentils (called "pottage") Esau asked for some. But Jacob replied that he could have it only if he would give his birthright in exchange. Esau was so exhausted that nothing seemed of any importance compared with that steaming bowl of lentils, so he "sold his inheritance for a mess of pottage." In other words agreed that Jacob was to have the inheritance. Later on, Jacob did Esau another ill turn. Isaac, blind by this time, had called for his son Esau to give him his blessing. Knowing Esau to be a hairy man, Jacob covered himself with a goat's skin, got his father to feel the hair and obtained the blessing. Learning about this trickery, Esau vowed vengeance, and for years the brothers remained apart as bitter enemies. In the end, however, they forgave each other and became friends.

FOR YOU TO DO: Look in your Bible for Genesis, chapter 25 and find where Esau and Jacob first appear. Read the story and look for the happy ending in the beautiful words of verse 4, chapter 33. It will show how forgiveness brings happiness.

Hit-Runner Rams Cars on S. Saginaw

A hit-run driver last night damaged three parked cars on S. Saginaw street, near Prospect.

According to witnesses who were driving on S. Saginaw, the car passed them on the right side at 9 p.m., lost control and hit a parked car which was rammed 20 feet into another parked which in turn hit the third car.

The driver then backed up and drove off at a high rate of speed, witnesses said.

Police later in the evening got a call from St. Joseph Hospital that a man had shown up there and asked treatment for a "gunshot wound." The doctors found the wound was not caused by a bullet and had bits of glass in it.

A check of the man's car disclosed it had heavy damage to the right side. He will be questioned further today.

Marble from Lee, Mass., was used in the Capitol at Washington, D.C., and in St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York.

Snowslide Swallows 3 Rescue Workers

OURAY, Colo., (AP) — Three men seeking to rescue a fourth entombed by a snowslide were swallowed up by a second slide yesterday and presumed dead.

The threat of further slides imperiled would-be rescuers who worked in snow, rock and shorn timber 60 feet deep in zero temperatures.

Sheriff Bud Slott of Ouray County said of the victims, "It would be impossible for any of them to be alive."

Oscar Franz, a county commissioner, said the last hope for the four vanished when searchers dug 18 feet to reach a bulldozer on which three of the missing men were standing when the second slide struck. It was hoped they might have crawled beneath the vehicle and gained safety in an air pocket. But none was there.

Where Boy's Body Was Found

DIVERS SEARCH RIVER — Divers are shown working in the Clinton River near Utica yesterday afternoon. The body was found about 150 yards from where they found the body of Gerald Thacker in the ice.

Body of Boy, 6, Found in River Near Utica

19-Hour Search Ends 150 Yards From Break in Clinton Ice

The body of 6-year-old Gerald Thacker of Shelby Township was pulled from beneath the Clinton River ice near Utica yesterday afternoon. Thus ended a 19-hour search for the youngster.

His body, still bearing his brown plaid jacket, hat and gloves, was removed at 2:25 about five feet under the ice and 150 yards from where he plunged in Thursday night while playing with a companion.

It was discovered by Asst. Fire Chief Jack Heimberger, 36, of 47475 Betty Ave., Utica, and Lt. Harold M. Spangler, 44, of 3195 Hessel St., Rochester. Both are members of the Brooklands Fire Dept.

SPOTTED JACKET

While they were chopping through layers of ice 10 to 12 inches thick in places, the pair spotted the boy's jacket. The body had been snagged by a log in about eight feet of water.

Some 100 searchers, including soldiers from a nearby Nike anti-aircraft base, had searched for Gerald since a friend, Raymond Cagle Jr., 6, told his mother he was playing with the Thacker boy on the river when the ice broke.

A hole in the ice, showing two tracks of small foot prints leading up to it but only one in the opposite direction, was soon found by volunteers. Pressed into the search were four members of the Utica Scuba Skin Diving Club.

They were still combing the chilly water when the body was discovered.

TOLD PARENTS

An uncle of the dead boy, Curtis Thacker, 44, of Detroit, told the boy's parents Mr. and Mrs. Ray Thacker of 6508 Parkdale St. of the discovery.

"My son, my son," cried the father. Mrs. Thacker was placed under a doctor's care.

It was Mrs. Thacker that phoned police Thursday night when Gerald had not returned home at 7:20 from sledding with his friend.

Plans to Enter Primary Race in Pennsylvania

Ike Accepts Resignation of Disarmament Aide With 'Regret'

THOMASVILLE, Ga. — Harold E. Stassen resigned from the Eisenhower administration today to run for governor of Pennsylvania.

President Eisenhower accepted his cabinet-rank disarmament assistant's resignation with "regret and best wishes."

Stassen's letter of resignation and Eisenhower's reply were made public by the President's vacation White House at Thomasville, Ga. Stassen, who scheduled a news conference in Philadelphia, told the President:

"It is my belief that I may now make a larger contribution to your objective of a durable peace, which I share, by re-entering the active political field in the Pennsylvania governorship campaign."

Eisenhower told the former Minnesota governor:

"Since the reasons you give for your decision are of a political nature and involve an intent to participate in a primary contest in Pennsylvania, I deem it inappropriate for me to comment here on them."

MUCH TO CONTRIBUTE However, the President's letter added:

"But I am free to express my deep conviction that because of your long and varied experience in state government and in military and civil posts in the federal government, you have much to contribute to the future of our country."

Eisenhower told Stassen that "certainly your sincerity and integrity will command the respect of all citizens, no matter in what activity you may engage."

Washington officialdom had been anticipating Stassen's resignation for some time, particularly since he lost a feud on disarmament policy with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Stassen met with Eisenhower at the White House nine days ago to discuss the former University of Pennsylvania President's future but Stassen said afterward that no decision had been reached.

White House News Secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters that Stassen advised Eisenhower of his decision to resign by telephone from Washington late yesterday afternoon.

About two weeks ago, there was a "leak" attributed to Chief Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams that the President had decided Stassen would have to leave the administration because of his conflict with Dulles.

Stassen, who twice has sought the GOP presidential nomination, told Eisenhower that he felt he could serve best now by "discussing with the people of our country the issues and problems of the world-wide competition of ways of life and the tasks of building peace and safeguarding against war."

Arctic Air Due to Follow Snow Into Michigan, Eastern States

A frigid mass of Arctic air moved into the Plains States last night dropping temperatures and pushing snow-laden, slightly warmer air into Michigan and other states east of the Mississippi River.

Michigan experienced a steady snowfall during the night and continuing this morning.

The snow, which will reach about 3 inches accumulation in the Pontiac area, is expected to diminish to flurries tonight, with temperatures dropping as the colder air moves south and east from Canada.

The snow blanketed Michigan highways making driving treacherous last night and this morning. In Detroit two men were killed in crashes on expressways last night.

Herman A. Davidson, 50, of Highland Park was killed when his car skidded off an exit ramp, throwing him out as it rolled down an embankment.

Emanuel Butler, 76, of Detroit, died when his brother's car struck a concrete pillar at an overpass.

ANOTHER VICTIM

A third state victim was Raymond Bauer, 45, of Saginaw, who was killed near Bay City last night when his car went out of control on a curve and hit a tree.

The cold air mass will drop Pontiac area temperatures from a predicted high today of 24 to a low of 10 tonight and a high tomorrow of 17. Winds will be moderate from the east and southeast, gradually changing to northerly tonight.

The frigid air that has moved south into the area blanketing the Rockies and the Mississippi Valley ended a brief respite of warmer temperatures.

The cold wave dropped temperatures more than 30 degrees from Friday's reading in the Plains area, with Grand Fork, N. D., reporting a reading of 20 below.

The air is moving south and east and is expected to lower the temperatures in Florida below freezing by tonight.

Heaviest snows fell across the northern Rockies, with 11 inches at Billings, Mont.

COLD SPREADING

The cold early today spread into northern Georgia, eastern Arkansas and northern Mississippi, with up to 3 inches of fresh snow.

In Downtown Pontiac, the lowest temperature preceding 8 a.m. today was 18 degrees. At 1 p.m. the mercury reached 24 degrees.

UAW Shows Willingness to Deal for Shorter Week

FROM OUR NEWS WIRES

DETROIT—The United Auto Workers Union left room on the bargaining table today for a shorter work week offer as a substitute for profit-sharing.

UAW Vice President Leonard Woodcock said the shorter week "would be given very serious consideration" if it is offered by General Motors instead of a share of the profits.

This was made clear in Detroit yesterday at the close of a three-day meeting of the UAW's National GM Conference. Woodcock said, however, he felt such an offer from GM was "highly unlikely."

The action was interpreted as a move to give the union more "elbow room and flexibility" at the bargaining table.

The GM Conference also called for allocation of the workers' share of the profits for full payment of hospital and medical insurance coverage — another maneuver aimed at broadening its bargaining field. It also gives the union more leeway in interpreting just what a share of the profits means.

The council also proposed setting up a joint labor-management committee to study the impact of automation and technological advances.

Woodcock said there was no speculation among union leaders at present on what company would be made the first target in contract negotiations. He said the contracts with GM, Ford and Chrysler run out only a few days apart around June 1.

"We hope we can bargain in a peaceful atmosphere," Woodcock said.

He set no date for formal serving of contract demands on GM. He said they should be in workable form by late March.

Pontiac Motor Pays Million for New Ideas

Employees of Pontiac Motor Division have been paid more than $1,000,000 since the inception of its Employee Suggestion Program in 1942, it was announced today.

Awards passed the one million mark this week when a check was handed to plating plant rack repairman William J. Shepherd, of 570 Lowell St., for a winning $1,036 suggestion.

Besides the check Shepherd received a bonus of a hi-fi record player for being the one to push the program over the million mark.

"This gratifying milestone figure reflects a tremendous amount of initiative on the part of Pontiac employees," said Semon E. Knudsen, division general manager and General Motors Corp. vice president.

"Their suggestions have contributed immensely to the company's progression to a position among the leaders of the automotive industry."

Last year alone General Motors employees received a record-breaking $3,414,073 for nearly 261,000 ideas submitted.

Among these was a unique suggestion of using a beer can opener to replace timecard metal tab numbers on racks, one how to keep plant roofs clean, and another of reducing the size of water pipes in the plating department resulting in saving 70 million gallons a year.

Knudsen revealed that Pontiac has paid awards on better than one out of every four suggestions submitted since 1942.

"During the last 16 years," he disclosed, "employees have entered more than 57,000 suggestions. This has resulted in more than 15,000 adoptions at a success rate of 26 per cent."

Holding the title as suggestion king is Paul R. Bennett, 41, of 212 E. Russell St., who has won $7,500 from 81 out of 139 proposed ideas over the last 12 years.

Following close behind Bennett is 30-year division veteran Glenn L. Knapp, of 136 Mt. Clemens St., who has earned $7,100 for being successful on 22 out of 64 suggestions. This includes two maximum $2,500 awards.

Company employees took home a total of $137,000 last year. This included eight maximum $2,500 awards, another new record.

Employees from all three GMC plants in Pontiac—the Pontiac division, Fisher Body and GMC Truck & Coach—were paid a total of $184,207 for submitting 2,422 acceptable suggestions.

The following received maximum awards of $2,500:

Eber Hurd, of Orion Township, and Roy Edgerton, of Royal Oak, co-suggesters; John Valley, of 137 Princeton Ave.; Alvin Monroe, of Lapeer; Percy Bitler, of Waterford Township; Janie Avant, of 194 Fisher Ave.; Walter Simmer, of Milford; Harry Sherman, of 14 Tregent St., and Clifford Vaughn, of 688 E. Mansfield Ave., co-sug-gesters; Jessie Blackmon, of Detroit; and Wayne Stricklin, of 102 Stout St.

Bids as Democratic State Representative for Pontiac

A former Pontiac mayor and city commissioner, Arthur J. Law, announced today that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination as Pontiac state representative.

Law, 52, of 27 Miami Rd., served as commissioner from 1942 to 1954, and served three terms as mayor—from 1944-1946 and 1950-1954. He represented District 4 in Pontiac.

Law made an unsuccessful bid for the U.S. House of Representatives in 1952 against Republican George Dondero, polling 83,000 votes.

In announcing his candidacy, Law said, "I feel that my experience in Pontiac city government and acquaintance with the problems of this area, will qualify me to capably serve in the state legislature the people who have honored me through the elective process in the past."

Married and the father of 4 children, Law operates a grocery at 206 Earlmoor Blvd.

U. S. Expected to Aid Poland

$95 Million to Boost Economy Part of $300 Million Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Communist Poland are expected to announce today or tomorrow a new 95-million-dollar U. S. economic aid program for Poland.

This would be in addition to a 95-million-dollar agreement signed last year.

It means Polish negotiators will have gotten almost two-thirds of the 300 million dollars in economic aid they sought when they first came to Washington in January 1957.

The new agreement, calls for 70 million dollars in surplus farm goods and a loan of 25 million dollars.

The surplus farm goods, according to officials, include 400,000 tons of wheat, cotton and other commodities.

The 25 million dollars will come from President Eisenhower's special aid fund. Interest on this loan was expected to be 4 1/2 per cent, with payments over 20 years. It will be administered by the Export-Import Bank.

The loan will pay for transportation costs, as well as for purchase of hides, skins and non-surplus farm goods. Officials said it does not call for purchase of mining machinery.

The 1957 aid agreement included four million dollars for mining gear, urgently needed in Poland. This was part of a 30-million-dollar credit, also at 4 1/2 per cent interest for 20 years. The 1957 program also included 65 million dollars worth of surplus wheat, cotton, fats and oils.

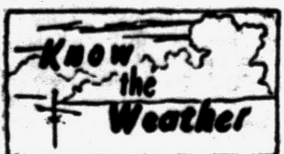

Muscovites Told to 'Be Gay' at Winter Carnival

MOSCOW (AP) — Muscovites were told tonight to "be gay."

Loudspeakers in the Soviet capital said the citizens should be happy and added, "Down with those who don't laugh."

The loudspeakers were installed in the vicinity of the Lenin sports stadium where tens of thousands of Muscovites flocked to the opening of the first winter carnival since Red guards stormed the gates of Leningrad 40 years ago.

It was the first officially sanctioned revival of the old traditional Russian festival.

What weather phenomenon must be understood by glider pilots if they are to stay aloft for long periods of time?

Glider pilots must understand the updraft and the rising thermal, or they cannot obtain maximum lift from the atmosphere. The updraft can often be caused by a range of mountains or hills near the seacoast.

The incoming seabreeze is deflected upward by the cliff or hills and that is why glider pilots often fly up and down a coast to stay aloft. Generally the Pacific is better than the Atlantic. Thermals are rising air masses, usually heated, which might occur inland.

A glider pilot, watching his altimeter, can detect it when he enters a thermal. Then he maneuvers back around, turning often, to stay in the rising column of air. Sometimes this enables him to stay aloft for hours.

Close to Tense Tunisian Frontier

French, Algerians Battle

ALGIERS (INS) — A fierce battle was reported today between French army forces and Algerian rebels at Duivier in eastern Algeria, close to the tense Tunisian frontier.

11 FRENCH KILLED

French authorities said 11 French soldiers were killed and 42 wounded in the clash with a strong insurgent band. Reports reaching Algiers put the rebel losses at 102 dead and three captured.

The battle area is about 30 miles west of the Algerian-Tunisian border, near the Tunisian village of Sakiet-Sidi-Youssef which was bombed by French planes last Saturday with heavy loss of life.

Tunisia announced last night it had received reports that French troops and tanks were concentrating on the Algerian side of the border near Sakiet-Sidi-Youssef. A Tunisian communique said the French forces included four tanks and six half-tracked vehicles, artillery, jeeps and 31 trucks loaded with troops.

REPORT DENIED

French officials in Algiers denied Tunisian reports that troops and tanks were massing on the Tunisian border. A spokesman said troop movements along the frontier had been planned for some time and there is only a "normal" number of units in the area.

In Paris, France took the first steps today toward paying compensation for civilian damage caused by last Saturday's air raid on a Tunisian village.

The decision to offer compensation was made at a special cabinet meeting today during which the government also decided to accept American help in negotiating a settlement of the explosive Franco-Tunisian dispute.

Following the cabinet meeting, a government spokesman announced the decision to accept U. S. help but he said that under no conditions would the government be willing to accept arbitration.

In the U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles returns to Washington Monday to take personal command of the American role in the mounting crisis between France and Tunisia.

Dulles decided to interrupt his vacation at Atlantic City, N. J., to canvass developments growing out of Tunisia's demand for United Nations censure of France in the bombing of a Tunisian village last Saturday.

The U. N. Security Council is scheduled to meet at 3 p.m. (EST) Tuesday to hear rival French and Tunisian charges.

Hart Kicks Off Drive for U. S. Senate Seat

administration ever given that they are thinking of that day after tomorrow?

"I'd welcome the chance to put the needle in the side of national legislation," Hart asserted.

FRANKE WIFE

Apparently recalling that Friday was Valentine's Day, the speaker, who announced his bid for Potter's seat this past week, praised his wife Janie for helping him up the political staircase.

Expected to arrive at 6:30, Hart and his wife, delayed by the weather, rushed into a waiting crowd at 7:15 to a standing ovation.

Decorative hearts, remembering the speaker and the day, were as dominant as Democrats.

SCORES DILEMMA

The speaker scored what he called the Republican dilemma of having to choose between "guns and butter."

"That's the 1938 edition of balancing the budget for the Republicans," he said.

While he rebuked certain GOP principles, he asked that his supporters remember "that the boat they're in is the same one we're in."

Former Birmingham Mayor James C. Allen, toastmaster for the night, sparked old rumors that the governor still was eyeing the top spot in the nation by saying he was "the nation's best man to put leadership back in the White House."

CAN'T WAIT

Hart said the present control there was a "stand pat" authority. "And we can't wait for Republicans to act," he said, "whether they are modern or McKinley."

Despite his comments, the speaker reserved his major anti-Potter political kick-off until later. "There's another time for that," he promised.

But he found time to defend his party and a former President Franklin Roosevelt as the "real conservators of this nation."

The huge crowd laughed when their honored guest continued about FDR. "It is what FDR said about them (Republicans) and not what he did for them that makes them so mad."

"And we are not bothered or confused about the same labels they are slapping on us now as they did on the 1936 New Deal Democrats," the speaker added.

The state of Michigan is not alone in its present financial crisis, the lieutenant governor insisted. "It is nationwide," he said.

Municipal Employees Ask for Civil Service

In a move to forestall efforts to kill civil service for Pontiac police and firemen, the Pontiac Municipal Employees Association has again asked for civil service benefits for its membership.

The immediate issue appeared to be whether a proposition to remove police and firemen from the state civil service act would be placed by the City Commission on the April 21 ballot.

City Commissioners have indicated they have no plans to do so.

Police Chief Herbert W. Straley hailed the association's move, "if it would take the police department out from under the special state act and put it under a local civil service ordinance."

The association's officers, however, indicated their bid for civil service was part of a long-range plan, not one that would have to be settled this spring.

"We have been asking for civil service for 10 years," said the association's past president and present treasurer, Clyde Townsend. "We want it known that we favor civil service for all municipal employees and would oppose any move to take civil service away from police and firemen right now."

As for the policemen, who fought hard last year to win civil service, they still favor the special state act number 78 under which voters placed them last year.

"Not one officer has told me that he wants Act 78 repealed," said Det. Orville Johnson, president of the Police Officers Association.

The municipal employees association is made up of about 100 "white collar" workers not otherwise organized under civil service or in unions. The association's new president, John Waldo, said as he understood it, the civil service bid was renewed at this time because of rumors of a move to kill Act 78.

These rumors have been referred to by City Manager Walter K. Willman. "Whenever anyone asks me about them," he told commissioners at an informal meeting, "I say frankly that there's nothing to it, as far as I know."

Commissioners agreed they would meet with employee representatives to discuss the proposal. They talked last night, however, at setting up a local civil service commission for some municipal employees while police and firemen remained under another commission set up under state law.

Townsend believed that a single civil service for all employees would be "ideal," but added that "it is not our intention to force the issue now but rather to work the matter out, if possible, through negotiations between employees, police and firemen, management and the Commission."

He added that the association's members had no particular grievances at this time, but were "merely continuing a move we began in 1948."

He said: "Just because Pontiac is having trouble right now with Act 78 is no reason to oppose civil service in general. I believe the merits of a locally-instituted civil service program have definitely been established. We do not want to go back to a spoils system. All government employees should have protection against this."

Johnson believed that police officers would fight any move to take Act 78 away from them. "It was adopted less than a year ago. We should give it a chance to work out," he said.

Both Willman and Straley, however, criticized the act, which applies only to police and firemen and which carries the force of state law when adopted by any city.

"There are too many loopholes in the act," Willman said. "The only big cities to adopt it are Pontiac, Saginaw and Highland Park, and both Saginaw and Pontiac are having a hard time making it work."

According to Straley, voters made a mistake last April 1 in adopting Act 78. "It is a very ambiguous statute that doesn't give the chief of police authority to run the police department properly," he said.

"Voters should rectify their mistake. A new civil service act, drawn up locally, would increase efficiency and morale in the department, I think."

Guilty of Trying to Kill His Wife

Pontiac Man Attempted to Destroy Her Home With Dynamite Stick

A circuit court jury of four men and eight women deliberated only 20 minutes yesterday before finding Terrance McGowan, 58, guilty of trying to kill his wife and destroy her home with a stick of dynamite.

McGowan, whose defense was that he had been drinking heavily before the explosion occurred Nov. 15 at his estranged wife's bungalow, 370 S. Edith St., will be sentenced Feb. 24 by Circuit Judge Frank L. Doty on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

McGowan's wife, Mae, 53, a waitress, witnessed the day-long trial without visible emotion. She narrowly escaped injury when the early morning blast ripped from the basement of her home through her bedroom, which she had left seconds before to investigate a noise in the front room.

As McGowan left the courtroom to return to Oakland County Jail until sentencing, he and his wife passed in the hall. They did not attempt to speak to each other.

Dismissing the jury, Judge Doty said he would recommend that McGowan be treated for alcoholism. "I will take his condition into consideration when I pass sentence," the judge said.

Conviction carries a sentence of imprisonment for any number of years up to life.

Study Your Math, Kids!

$500 Awards Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brush up on your math, kids—there may be gold in them 'thar equations and theorems.

Several Congress members have proposed $500 cash awards to any high school graduate who can pass a standard examination in mathematics.

Rep. Price (D-III), one sponsor of the legislation, said "everyone who has heard of this proposal likes it." He did not say whether this support has been voiced by Congress members, the general public, or both. The bill is pending before a House Commerce subcommittee.

Dr. Alan Waterman, chief of the National Science Foundation, said yesterday the proposal has "much to recommend it" as a means of helping increase the nation's future supply of scientists.

Waterman, testifying before a Senate-House Atomic subcommittee on Research and Development, said he felt the idea would be very effective in encouraging more students to study math and in preparing them to go on to higher studies in science, engineering and mathematics.

But Waterman also indicated a belief that more steps than that would be needed to increase the production of scientists and engineers, and to expand the nation's output of basic scientific research.

Price said the cash award proposal not only would provide an incentive for more boys and girls to become proficient in mathematics, but also might be a means of showing up any deficiencies in the teaching of the subject.

The Day in Birmingham

Bloomfield Hills Readies for Sewage Authority

BIRMINGHAM — Preparing for the day when the North Evergreen Sewage Disposal Authority is established and operating, Bloomfield Hills city commissioners have set up a "pilot" special assessment district.

This is the first step in getting engineering and cost information for the city's system of sewer laterals that will connect in the North Evergreen lines, commissioners said.

Elmer Kephart, city manager, and Commissioner Lyman Craig were named to study plans and financing of sewer development. The Woodward-Long Lake area, to the east and north, will serve as the basis for setting up other districts.

Kephart and Craig will engage Hubbell, Ross and Clark, Inc., to prepare engineering layouts and cost estimates.

On the basis of these reports, commissioners said they will seek advice on financing procedure. Kephart pointed out that the main trunk interceptor will be a city-at-large expense.

Despite slippery roads and bad driving conditions, traffic mishaps were at a minimum on Birmingham and Bloomfield streets.

Bloomfield Hills Police reported the only accident. It occurred when a bus slid into the rear of a car. No one was injured.

No accidents were reported in Birmingham.

6 Firefighters Die in New York

Manhattan Factory Fire Causes Cave-In Under Heavy Machinery

FROM OUR NEWS WIRES

NEW YORK — Firemen dug through the rubble of a six-story loft building today for the bodies of four of the six firefighters killed when the top floor caved in.

The six men were on the fifth floor of the old building in lower Manhattan when the top floor, containing heavy machinery, collapsed on them.

Two of them were members of the Fire Department. The others belonged to a fire patrol maintained by insurance underwriters to minimize smoke and water damage.

Firemen found their two departmental comrades about three hours after the cave-in. Both were rushed to a hospital where they were pronounced dead.

No hope was held out for the other trapped men. The entire building collapsed and officials said it may take three days to find their bodies.

The building was used by several twine and rope manufacturers.

The bodies of William G. Schmidt and Bernard Blumenthal were recovered.

Ten firemen were injured—but not seriously—battling the blaze in the twine and rope factory located at 137 Wooster St. in downtown Manhattan.

The five-alarm blaze raged for several hours before it was brought under control.

Seven workers in the building escaped unharmed.

Fire Commissioner Edward F. Cavanagh Jr. said 100 men would work at the scene around the clock to find the missing men.

After the fire started there was an explosion. A fire official said the fire started on the fifth floor by a careless smoker.

Probe Break-in at Walled Lake

Officers Report $7,700 in Cash, Bonds Taken From Home Safe

Walled Lake Police and Oakland County sheriff's detectives are investigating the break-in of a Walled Lake home which netted thieves an estimated $700 cash and $7,000 in U. S. Savings Bonds.

The break-in occurred sometime between Wednesday and Friday night, according to Walled Lake Police Chief Albert Decker. The thief or thieves entered the home of Ernest Campanaro, 471 W. Walled Lake Dr., who is in Florida vacationing with his family.

The money and bonds were taken from a wall safe in the basement.

According to Detective Leo Hazen, the amount of bonds stolen may reach as high as $9,000 and the cash as high as $1,000 when a final check is made.

Part of a cement wall was hacked away and the safe door pried open with a pick-axe, said Decker.

The home had been checked by Campanaro's sister, Mrs. Florence Mahar of 220 Windsor St., Walled Lake, on Wednesday. She discovered the theft at 5 p.m. Friday when she returned to check again.

Also taken was an undetermined amount of liquor and three wrist-watches.

Tired 'Moon' Traveler on Last Lap of Trip

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Airman Donald G. Farrell today faced only one more weary, lonely day and night in the sealed steel barrel where he is trying to prove that man can survive space travel.

Despite his growing signs of "real fatigue," space scientists at nearby Randolph Air Force Base were confident the 23-year-old native of the Bronx would finish his seven-day stint at 9:35 a.m. (CST) Sunday.

International recognition and glowing praise from Air Force military and scientific leaders await the blond, 6-foot volunteer if he successfully sweats out the last long 24 hours.

"He has never, at any time, given any indication that he wants to get out before the experiment is over," Lt. Col. George R. Steinkamp, chief of space medicine at Randolph, said yesterday.

"It has been amazing to us his cooperation and eagerness to continue the experiment."

"The space medicine chief disclosed that early yesterday, for the first time, Farrell showed signs of "real fatigue." The scientists had expected indications of serious weariness about Wednesday.

"However, he had a real sound sleep and this morning was much more alert than he was last night," Steinkamp reported.

"It does not change our optimism at all that he will finish out the seven days in good shape."

Steinkamp said the obvious fatigue caused Farrell to make mistakes while working a radar tracking problem presented as part of the make-believe ride in the space ship.

He also ignored or failed to notice warning lights that were flashed on his control panel inside the 3-by-5-foot sealed cabin, Steinkamp said.

"We are getting a good idea of what a normal person requires in sleep and rest to be proficient enough to operate a space ship," the space medicine chief said.

While in the experimental space cabin, Farrell has been observing a 14-hour sleeping and wakefulness cycle during which he sleeps 4 1/2 hours and works two 4-hour periods.

To Test New Barrier

Rose Bushes on Xway

LANSING (AP) — Michigan highway workers are going to plant rose bushes, but not because they're pretty.

It's an experiment in traffic safety on a 10-mile section of the Detroit-Chicago expressway recently completed near Jackson.

Workers will set out about 10,000 tough, thorny multi-flora rose bushes on the center strip of the four-lane divided highway, testing their effectiveness as a crash barrier.

Because of their density and spring quality, the bushes have been used successfully to combat highway accidents in Connecticut and other states. But there are shortcomings too.

Pair Wed in Episcopal Rite Today

Ellen Lewis and Milton Mallender Speak Vows

Married today in St. James Episcopal Church were Ellen Farwell Lewis and Milton Fred Mallender II. The Rev. Kenneth L. Gass performed the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are the John Stanton Lewises of Bloomfield Township and the Milton F. Mallenders, also of Bloomfield Township, are the bridegroom's parents.

IN PINK GOWN

The bride was gowned in a blush-pink taffeta gown fashioned in princess style with panels of draped Venice lace and a sweep train. Her matching fingertip length veil was held in place by a tiny cap of pearls. The bridal bouquet was of white roses and hyscynthins with ivy.

Margaret Berry of Detroit was the maid of honor. Margaret McCaul of Bloomfield Hills, Joan Westby of Tulsa, Okla., Susan Martin of Naples, Fla., and Mrs. Samuel H. Campbell III of Fort Smith, Ark., were the bridesmaids. All wore delphinium blue taffeta ankle-length gowns, with small pink hats, and carried pink carnations.

BROTHER ASSISTANTS

As his brother's best man was William H. Mallender, Donald H. Parsons, Frederick G. Behr, Robert A. Parr and Charles T. Hammond seated the guests.

To receive guests at Devon Gables, Mrs. Lewis had chosen a blue peau de sole and lace dress with jeweled hat and pink cymbidium orchids. The bridegroom's mother wore a gown of champagne Chantilly lace and a rose flowered hat. A green cymbidium orchid was pinned to her purse.

Paris Likes Tent Look

PARIS (INS) — The latest look in Paris fashions is not the "sack"—it is more of a "tent" affair.

Every salon has a different name for it—it is the basis for Dior's "trapeze" line, while Maggy Rouff calls it the "little girl" dress and Jacques Griffe terms it the "doll dress."

FLARED CHEMISE

Basically, it is a flared chemise silhouette, sloping gently outward from shoulder to hem in a triangular tent shape.

The flared chemise or tent dress hangs loose when the wearer stands still but the feminine form is revealed when the wearer moves.

Many of these dresses also manage to look alluring because they are transparent.

For example, a socialite recently turned up at a swank Paris party wearing the new style. It was a black lace affair, shaped like a tent and almost as wide.

Sleeveless, with boat-shaped neckline held up by two bows at the shoulder, baby fashion, it was worn over a slim black slip that burst at mid-thigh into four ruffled lace tiers to match the semi-transparent, figure-revealing lace tent.

THREE ADVANTAGES

The tent dress has three advantages—its wider skirts allow freedom of movement and have a graceful swing; the hint of a high waistline, slightly indented under the bosom, makes it feminine; and it is youthful.

Carmelina Ginell Speaks Vows in St. Michael Rite

Carmelina Ginell and Thomas McIsaac exchanged wedding vows this morning in St. Michael Catholic Church. The Rev. Norman Thomas performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Ginell of Sanderson avenue are the bride's parents, and the bridegroom is the son of the S. J. McIsaacs of Howe court.

The bride chose a full-length gown of Chantilly lace over bridal satin, featuring a scalloped square neckline, long tapered sleeves and basque waist. The skirt was of nylon tulle with sequin trim and lace tiers forming a chapel train.

Her fingertip veil of French silk illusion was held in place by a double crown of seed-pearls and tulle. The bridal bouquet was an arrangement of white roses and an orchid on a white prayer book.

Gloria Vizza was the maid of honor, and Mary Raymond, Judith Niedjelski, Sally Ginell and Judy McIsaac were bridesmaids. The honor attendant was gowned in a floor length French blue peau de crystal dress styled with a Sabrina neckline and tiny cap sleeves. Her headpiece held a nose veil and she carried an arrangement of blue and white carnations.

The bridesmaids wore similar blush pink gowns and carried pink and white carnations.

Flower girl, Lorrie McIsaac, wore a white taffeta and rayon gown with Peter Pan collar. Her headpiece was of seed pearls with a veil.

William Bookie served as best man and Daniel Drops, Edward Sutherland, Gerald McEachin, Dominic Ginell, Richard McIsaac and Joe Clark seated the guests.

For traveling to Niagara Falls the new Mrs. Isaac has selected a red wool dress with black accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet. The couple will live on East Sheffield avenue.

Twenty-three guests were present from Ann Arbor, South Lyon, Farmington, Detroit, Clarkston, Milford and Pontiac.

Consult Doctor, Pay Attention to Diet

Keep Health for Your Later Years

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Most people have to earn good health just as they do any other blessing. Some lucky folks are born with constitutions which seem to be able to take any amount of abuse. However, sooner or later even these show signs of wear and tear.

Today there is new emphasis on preventative medicine. However, physicians cannot do much for you unless you give them the opportunity to do so by having regular physical examinations.

Human beings are stoic, and this is all to the good unless it causes them to overlook symptoms they may have. It is neurotic to investigate any unusual symptoms you may have. These could be little warnings that your body is giving you. These warnings may occur long before any real trouble develops.

Treatment and a routine planned especially for you by a competent doctor often can protect you from future difficulty and certainly can make your later years healthier and more enjoyable.

Take stock of yourself. Have you any symptoms which are new to you even though they may not be extremely annoying? If so, check on them. Even better, do not wait for them. Have your yearly or semi-yearly examination.

Even in nutrition, the preventative idea prevails. It has been found that the average man and woman of 65 is iron - poor, calcium - poor and protein - poor. By giving special attention to diet and building up these foods before that age you can add a plus to your life.

Our life expectancy is increasing constantly. With the privilege of living longer comes the responsibility of taking good health with you into later years. We owe this first to ourselves and then to those who love us.

Dear Abby:

Husband for Sale:
Not Bred to Labor

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

"DEAR ABBY: Everyone knows that 99 out of 100 women marry because they do not want to go to work and support themselves. I see nothing wrong with this philosophy; neither do I see anything wrong with the reverse.

"I am a very desirable young gentleman with the finest of breeding but I do not care for common labor and there are no positions open at present for men of my qualifications. I dance well, can converse intelligently on religion, world politics and the arts. Frankly, Madame, I am for sale.

JEROME

DEAR JEROME: I am not buying any men today. And neither is any smart American woman. If you get hungry enough you'll go to work like a self-respecting man.

"DEAR ABBY: Do you think this is fair? My folks drag me over to my Grandmother's every Sunday and she doesn't have a TV set there. I miss all my favorite programs. This may seem like nothing to you but it is a very big problem to me. I am 12 years old."

DEAR DIANNE: TV will be here a long time after your grandmother is gone. "If youth but knew what age could tell" . . . Patience, Dear!

"DEAR ABBY: I am married to a 16-pound bowling ball. My husband thinks more of his bowling buddies than he does of me. It started out to be a hobby but now he spends every spare minute (and dime) at the bowling alley.

"He just lives to bowl and it is nothing but a pain in the neck to me. The worst part of it is —he's top man on his team. Please tell me how I can compete?"

BOWLING WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: If you can't lick him—join him. Go along and learn to bowl—or be a one-woman cheering section, or learn to keep score.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MARY ANN: It takes more than a wedding to make a marriage. Try a little harder — both of you!

If you have a problem, write to Abigail Van Buren in care of this paper. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Don't Offer
to Help Pay
Food Bills

Take Hosts Out to
Dine to Save Them
Some Expense

By EMILY POST

"Dear Mrs. Post: Some friends of ours who have moved to another city have asked my husband and me to spend a week with them. I would like very much to go but I feel that our visit will be a burden on them since they do not have a great deal of money, and with the cost of living being what it is today I know that our visit will add greatly to their expense.

"Do you suppose we could offer to pay something toward the food bill for that week, and is there some tactful way to go about this?"

Answer: You couldn't possibly offer them board without deeply hurting their feelings. On the other hand, there are many things you will probably find you can do, such as taking them out often to restaurants, or taking them to places of amusement. You can do this and other things whereby you can turn the tables and be hosts to them.

"Dear Mrs. Post: Has the custom of not using return addresses on the envelopes of wedding invitations and announcements changed? Or at least been modified? We feel it would be advisable to use a return address on all envelopes."

Answer: While the typical printed return address would be unconventional for wedding envelopes, an embossed address (without color) on the flap would not be out of the question.

It is still best taste, however, to leave such envelopes plain and write an occasional return address by hand when there is doubt about an address.

"Dear Mrs. Post: There is a young woman in my office who has an offensive odor. My work brings me in close contact with her often during the day, and this odor is really making me ill. This is a very ticklish subject I know but perhaps you can tell me how to handle this gracefully."

Answer: I am sorry but the only thing I can think of is to ask whoever is in charge of your office to assign you to other work that will keep you away from the young woman in question.
