

Builders End 2-Week Strike

Contract settlements reached yesterday afternoon between representatives of three labor locals in the Wayne-Oakland-Macomb county area and the Associated General Contractors brought an end to a two-week strike which has crippled construction.

Representatives of Pontiac Local 1076 and Detroit Locals 334 and 1181 of the Laborers International Union of North America agreed to a 63-cent package for two years.

Some 10,000 workers are affected by the settlement, which was reached pending a ratification vote to be taken Wednesday.

George Molnar, secretary-treasurer of the Pontiac local, said the agreement calls for a first-year 31-cent increase, effective on the first full pay after the ratification meeting.

Effective at the same time will be an additional two-cent increase in pension payments.

30-CENT RAISE

Another 30-cent raise is to be granted May 1, 1967, according to the agreement, Molnar said.

The strike, which began May 2, has nearly brought to a halt several million dollars worth of construction projects in southeastern Michigan.

Indicted JP Is Barred From Handling Duties

Royal Oak Township Justice of the Peace Lonnie C. Cash, indicted on five counts of perjury by the Grand Jury, was ordered yesterday by the Oakland County Circuit bench to refrain from performing his judicial duties.

The order is in effect until the final disposition of the case against Cash, or until it is lifted by the circuit judges.

Cash was charged yesterday by Grand Juror Circuit Judge Philip Pratt, with lying on five separate occasions when he appeared before Pratt to testify in the inquiry into crime and corruption in the South Oakland County community.

A justice of the peace since 1964, Cash demanded a preliminary court examination when he was arraigned before Circuit Judge Bristol E. Hunter.

Hunter scheduled the hearing for 10 a.m. June 3 in the Clawson Municipal Court, and set Cash's bond at $5,000, which was furnished.

The cease and desist order was approved by five members of the bench, with Judge Pratt abstaining. It was signed by Presiding Judge Frederick C. Ziem.

Representatives of the two sides are to contact the State Labor Mediation Board to arrange future negotiations.

The employees walked off the job Tuesday morning claiming the board had failed to negotiate in "good faith" on salaries and other benefits, and that Supl. of Schools T. C. Filipulas had failed to take their demands to the board of education.

Striking employees picketed the schools all week. The schoolchildren were forced to walk or have their parents drive them to school. They were also asked to carry their lunches from home.

Plane Losses in Viet Action Told by U.S.

104 Down in South;
243 in North; All
but 2 by Ground Fire

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The U.S. Command announced today that 243 American planes have been shot down over North Viet Nam since bombings north of the 17th Parallel began months ago.

An official spokesman also reported that 104 U.S. planes have been lost to enemy action in South Viet Nam since January 1961.

The total for losses over North Viet Nam was almost entirely from enemy ground fire. Only two U.S. planes have been shot down by Communist MIGs.

The spokesman said the figure covered losses since Feb. 7, 1965, when the United States began air attacks on North Viet Nam, up to last Wednesday.

The announcement of plane losses came as the war in Viet Nam slackened considerably both in the air and on the ground.

NO BREAKDOWN

While the official spokesman gave no breakdown of the figures, military observers said the losses for the first 90 days this year ran higher than the first 90 days when bombings in the north began last year.

One reason for the increase is that the United States is putting more planes over the north. Another is that the Communist anti-aircraft defenses have strengthened and their marksmanship has improved.

One Air Force officer commented: "The North Vietnamese are probably the best anti-aircraft gunners around just now because of all the experience they are getting."

In the fighting, U.S. Air Force B-52 bombers pounded a Viet Cong troop area 90 miles northwest of Saigon today near the Cambodian border.

IN SUPPORT

The attack by the eight-engine planes was made in support of paratroopers of the 1st Brigade of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division, who are currently making a sweep of the frontier area in Phouc Long Province.

The paratroopers, participating in Operation Austin Six, found an abandoned 50-bed enemy hospital yesterday while continuing their search-and-destroy operation.

Viet Cong casualties since the operation started May 1, a spokesman said, were 49 killed and four captured. Thirty-seven weapons have been seized. The spokesman described American casualties as light.

FROM WASHINGTON—Featured speaker at an Oakland University conference on federal aid to education yesterday was Francis Koppel (left), assistant secretary for education in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. With him here are Rep. Billie S. Farnum (center), D-19th District, one of the sponsors of the meeting, and Waterford Township Schools Supt. Dr. Don O. Tatro, who was among some 150 participants. The other sponsor of the conference, Rep. William S. Broomfield, R-18th District, was unable to attend.

'New, Creative Federalism' Hailed by U.S. School Chief

By PAT McCARTY

Use of federal funds in school districts across the nation is generating "a new and creative federalism" in the United States, the chief administrator of these funds said yesterday.

Francis Koppel, assistant secretary for education in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, addressed some 150 school officials from districts yesterday at a meeting at Oakland University.

With increased federal participation under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, education has gained a third major source of support to complement state and local sources, Koppel said.

Of these, the state is at the crux of the challenge, he said.

Griffin: Bungling on Aid to Viet Impairs U.S. Efforts

LANSING (AP) — Sen-designate Robert Griffin, R-Mich., charged today that "mismanagement and misuse of our foreign aid drastically impairs our efforts" to rebuild South Viet Nam. Griffin had left South Viet Nam only hours earlier in order to meet with Gov. Romney and officially accept his appointment to the U.S. Senate seat vacated by the death of Patrick McNamara, a Democrat.

Griffin, presented a framed certificate of appointment by Romney at a news conference in the Republican governor's office today, will be sworn into office Monday in Washington.

He said he was "deeply disturbed to report there has been mismanagement of our foreign aid program—or at least an important part of it—in South Viet Nam for a number of years."

He said information in a number of cases is for somewhat unclear reasons classified. He criticized the Aid for International Development agency for "tax procedures, inadequate personnel and failure to audit and oversee our program."

He promised a fuller report to be delivered in Michigan in about a week.

Griffin directed the bulk of his criticism at the $370 million commodity import portion of the fiscal year's $640 million over-all foreign aid program in South Viet Nam.

Private importers in Viet Nam, he said, apparently are responsible for "many instances of real abuse."

"Nothing that the citizen or educator can do, wherever he may be, can be more important than strengthening the capacity of the states to respond to the educational needs of our time," he said.

"PRACTICAL SOUNDNESS"

"In education, the nation looks to the states not merely as a matter of law or precedent, but as a matter of practical soundness and necessity."

Balancing the national goal of equal educational opportunity for all is the need to maintain America's decentralized system of public education, Koppel said.

Nothing that Michigan does not fall into the general pattern, Koppel said most states need a thorough overhaul of both the organization and policies.

He listed as requirements for the change better information to the condition of education within the states and among the states; stronger leadership and planning by state departments of education in relation to local districts; and innovation based on sound research throughout the educational enterprise.

Koppel commented that "fed-

Government and Industry Officials Agree

Spring Confab Aims
Drop in Auto Sales, Threat of Inflation

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—Top industry and Johnson administration officials have agreed that the galloping rate of business growth will slow down in the next few months.

This consensus emerged yesterday after more than 100 industrialists met with Cabinet officials and Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, at the spring meeting of the Business Council.

Other leading topics during the day-long closed sessions included the current auto sales lag and the sinking stock market.

But most talked about was the threat of inflation.

STILL UNCERTAIN

But it remains uncertain, he said, whether the production rise will be slowed to a rate that is sustainable without serious inflationary hazards and, he implied, without a tax increase.

William M. Batten, board chairman of J. C. Penney, Inc., and head of the council's economy, reported on behalf of the council's panel of more than 20 professional economists.

He said the nation's output will total $732 billion this year, exceeding by $10 billion the January forecast of the President's council. But the gains will average $11 to $12 billion a quarter in annual rate. Batten said, well below the $17 billion jump in the first quarter.

The climb of consumer prices also will be about one-third slower than the increase in the first quarter of this year. Batten said the economists reported. To year-end would come to about 2.8 per cent.

CLOSED MEETING

Henry Ford II, board chairman of Ford Motor Co., reported to a closed council meeting that the blame for the 15.4 per cent dip in auto sales in early May can be placed on the furor over auto safety and not on economic factors. A 9-million car sale year is still in prospect, Ford indicated.

His remarks were relayed to newsmen by W. B. Murphy, president of Campbell Soup Co., who used angry terms to describe the effect of what he called the "safety agitation" started by Ralph Nader, key witness at con-

Big Loss Story of Mart Week

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK—Where will the stock market decline find a bottom? That was the question on Wall Street today at the end of another big weekly loss.

The investment spokesmen were trying to cheer stocks on to a recovery.

"I think the market is at or near a turning point right now," said Robert H. Starn, vice president of E. F. Hutton & Co. "There are too many good values around to be ignored."

But the stock buyers weren't listening.

Bandits Rob Local Western Union Office

Two men knocked out a clerk in the Western Union Telegraph Co. office at 11 S. Perry last night and escaped with $1,800 in cash and some $1,000 in Pontiac Motor Division checks.

The clerk, David Detzler, 21, of 48 Sentinel told Pontiac police he was alone in the office at the time of the crime.

One of the men asked for a $50 money order to send to Boston, Detzler said, then turned and the clerk over the head with "an unknown object."

Detzler told police he fell nearly unconscious behind the counter and was only vaguely aware of the two men coming back of the counter and stifling the safe, desks and cash drawers.

Police said they were also investigating a third man who Detzler said sent a telegram to Almont and then left only minutes before Detzler was attacked.

While the federal government must remain the "final partner" and encourage diversity among school districts, it cannot play a passive role, Keppel said.

The government must, for example, recognize the social and economic differences between states.

"Educational needs can no longer be, if they ever could have been, considered apart from society's other needs — or from politics," he said.

DEEPLY AFFECTED

"Education may be as deeply affected by the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the income tax laws or the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965 as by the education bills of 1966," he said.

Looking to the future, Keppel placed top priority on development of administration for the programs now in effect.

Keppel is hopeful, he said, that a bill will be passed to national college participation in international programs.

He also cited the need for consideration of the federal relationship to other than major universities, to the small colleges that are handling a majority of the nation's students.

NEED ATTENTION

Finally, he said, attention should be given to the methods by which teachers are recruited and trained.

"The recruitment and training system" seems quite inadequate in comparison to its importance," he said.

Yesterday's conference on federal aid to education was sponsored by Rep. Billie S. Farnum, D-19th District, and Rep. William S. Broomfield, R-18th District.

A 23-year-old Pontiac secretary was killed by a car Friday when, police said, he ran into the street in front of his home.

In return for giving her the money to keep in a paper envelope, the woman said, the man asked that she place "security" money on $134 — also in the envelope.

The man then left and said he would return. Smith said, but upon opening the envelope a few minutes later she found only folded paper . . . and her money gone.

Police are investigating.

VOLUME HEAVY

Volume was heavy, 43,022,661 shares compared with 48 million the week before.

Production cutbacks and a drop in sales in the auto industry dominated stock market sentiment throughout the week.

In addition, there was some further talk of tax increases, more evidence of higher interest rates, some additional concern about corporate profits in the periods ahead.

The market fell every day except Tuesday when stocks rallied. Brokers called it a "technical recovery based on an oversold condition."

SAME DAY

On the same day, Harold L. Bache, head of Bache & Co., said, "Now is a good time to look for good values, as there are plenty available."

The values of Tuesday, however, were less than they were yesterday. A continuation of the recovery faded on Wednesday. Prices were pounded badly Thursday and Friday and became much cheaper.

Of 1,574 issues traded, 1,201 fell and 323 advanced.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 10.7 to 321.1.

AMONG SHARPEST

The losses in both the AP and Dow Jones averages were among the sharpest on record but were not quite as bad as the previous week's when the depressionary auto safety hearings that ended yesterday.

Murphy said the agitation was "unfair, badly distorted and harmful."

But Ackley noted that a downturn in auto sales this year had been forecast by many. Some decline in auto demand, he said, may have resulted from the higher tax withholding that took effect for many workers on May 1.

OTHER SIGNS

Other signs of economic slowdown, he told newsmen, include some drop in food prices, a dip in retail sales, and some curtailment of industry's plans for plant and equipment investment.

"Also, the current budget for defense spending will begin to level off before long," Ackley said. "These things all tend to slow down the increase in GNP (gross national product), or dollar value of all goods and services produced."

Eight persons yesterday announced they will seek positions on the Oakland County Board of Trustees, taking the total number of candidates to 14.

Yesterday was the deadline for filing nominating petitions for the June 13 elections. To be filled are two 2-year terms, two 4-year terms and two 6-year terms.

C. Ray Ballard, a Troy High School English and journalism teacher who lives at 1818 Kingston, Huntington Woods, is seeking a two-year term.

Ballard, 65, was elected to the board in 1963. However, that board was not activated because supporting millage was not approved.

Long active in the Oakland County Republican party, he was an unsuccessful candidate for the State House of Representatives in 1964.

HOLDS DEGREE

Ballard, who holds a bachelor's degree from Oklahoma Baptist University and master's from the University of Colorado, completed a resident requirement for a doctorate at the University of Colorado.

A teacher since 1961, he has been employed with commercial film companies and in advertising. He has been active in several community organizations.

Ballard and his wife have three children.

SIGNIFICANT CONCEPT

"The community college is one of the most significant concepts in education in our time, and I am tremendously interested in it and dedicated to it," he said.

Launch Is Set for Tuesday

Space Walk and Rendezvous Stated

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Gemini 9 astronauts Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene A. Cernan are keeping a four-hour appointment with doctors today to make certain they are physically and mentally fit for their rendezvous and space walk mission.

After Stafford, 35-year-old Air Force major, and Cernan, 32-year-old Navy lieutenant commander, finish with the medicals, they are scheduled to huddle with Gemini officials to discuss all phases of the planned three-day flight.

The Gemini 9 doubleheader launching is to start at 11 a.m. Tuesday when an Atlas rocket boosts an Agena satellite into orbit. A Titan 2 is to propel the astronaut aloft at 12:30 p.m. to begin pursuit of the Agena.

Stafford and Cernan are to catch and link up with the Agena after a four-hour chase, practicing many of the maneuvers Apollo astronauts will make in returning from the moon.

IMPORTANT

Cernan's health is especially important because he is to make a physically-demanding 2-hour, 25-minute space walk during which he is to determine just how well man can operate outside an orbiting ship.

For part of the excursion, he will zip about with a rocket-powered back pack on a 150-foot tether. The maneuvers could set guidelines for future space tasks such as assembling space stations in orbit, maintaining and repairing satellites and transferring from one craft to another.

Cernan will spend the first 50 minutes outside on a 25-foot umbilical line which provides oxygen from the spacecraft. During that time, medical monitors on the ground will watch his heart rate and respiration.

If there are no adverse readings, Cernan will be allowed to do the back pack, which has its own oxygen supply. The additional 125 feet of tether which he will attach has no life support systems nor will it relay medical data to the cabin for transmission to the ground.

SECOND DAY

The space stroll is scheduled the second day of the flight.

Judgeship Candidacy Announced

Pontiac Municipal Judge Cecil B. McCallum today announced his candidacy for one of three vacant judgeships on the Oakland County Circuit Bench.

McCallum, 65, of 266 Cherokee, was recently reelected to another term as municipal judge, a post he has held since 1964.

Schools to Get $26,945 in Federal Library Grant

BIRMINGHAM — Dr. John B. Smith, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday that the schools had been allocated a total of $26,945 under Title II of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Federal funds under this title are to be used to improve school library resources. A total of 15 per cent will be spent on text books.

Allocations made to each school were based on a per capita and need formula developed by the Michigan State Department of Education.

Purchasing is being planned at each school according to established criteria so that the needs of that building will be best served, according to Smith.

Furniture and equipment is not authorized to be purchased under this title of Public Act 89-10.

Dr. Henry Corbacho, coordinator of the instructional material center, directed the proposal and coordination of purchase of materials, assisted by local school librarians.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The Carillon Guild of Christ Church Cranbrook will present its first recital May 22 at 4 p.m. at the church.

The carillonists, all high school students, are Cindy Grissom, 16, of 1090 Westwood, Birmingham; Sherry Mattson, 17, of 7781 Wabek, Bloomfield Hills, and Debbie Rogers, 15, of 905 Eastover, Bloomfield Township.

Sherry and Debbie both attend Bloomfield Hills High School. Cindy is a student at Kingswood School, Cranbrook.

Highlighting the recital will be the first public performance of "A Tune for a Musical Clock" by Handel. The performance was arranged for two carillonists and several hymns by the display window.

Freder's courage stirred pedestrians into action against the robbers.

"One man broke the windshield of the gang's car," said Lionel Dessar, manager of the jewelry store.

"One woman attacked the robbers with an umbrella. Another tied to beat them over the head with a newspaper."

"The shouts, screams and sounds of breaking glass were ear-splitting," said Sonia Silver, who saw the raid from an upstairs window across the street.

Crowd Battles Jewel Thieves

Man, 79, and Woman Lead Landon Fight

LONDON (UPI) — Led by a doughty 79-year-old man with a cudgel and a woman with an umbrella, a phalanx of Saturday morning shoppers gave a battle to a band of ax-wielding jewel robbers off London's elegant new Bond Street.

An alert tourist recorded the battle on movie film as the thieves, much the worse for wear, escaped with $42,000 worth of jewelry.

The gang of four men drove into new Bond Street in the heart of Mayfair — London's fashionable shopping district — seconds before accomplices swung a pickup truck across the one-way street to block traffic.

The men jumped from the car carrying axes and hacked quickly through the protective grill of Kutchinsky's Jewel Store.

Mindful of a request by Scotland Yard officials to citizens who witness a crime in progress to "have a go," motorist Frank Freeder, 79, swung into action with a big stick as the thieves scooped a diamond necklace, rings and other jewelry by the display window.

Top Buddhist Warns of Strife

'People Will React if Promises Not Kept'

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Venerable Tri Quang, the most influential Buddhist monk in South Viet Nam, warned the government today to keep its promises or face crowd reaction.

Tri Quang, one of the key figures in the country's political turmoil, made the statement to the Buddhist newspaper Chanh Dao. It was his first reaction since Premier Nguyen Cao Ky said a week ago he intended to stay in power for another year.

The newspaper, in a heavily censored article, quoted Tri Quang as having said: "The present government will be judged by the people. If it does not keep its promises, then, I am afraid, the people will react."

The statement was seen as pressuring a speedy return to civil rule.

LONG PROCESS

Under pressure of the tightly knit Buddhist political apparatus, amidst rioting sweeping Saigon, the military junta ruling South Viet Nam promised in April that general elections for a civilian government would be held "in three to five months."

Last Saturday Ky outlined a long process involving two elections and the drafting of a constitution before the military would step down. This, he said, would take a year.

His statement was expected to have serious repercussions, but none have materialized so far. Tri Quang, often described as a neutralist and even accused of leaning to the left, told the newspaper that it "is too early to talk about negotiations and finishing the war."

"It is humiliating to talk about the negotiations now because nobody seems to care about the Saigon government. All they care about are the Americans and Hanoi (North Viet Nam)," he said. "Therefore," the newspaper quoted Tri Quang, "we should have an Assembly and a government elected by the people in order to create a face for this nation."

Labor Groups Call General Strike in Viet

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Two powerful South Vietnamese labor federations have ordered a general strike for Monday unless sanctions are taken against policemen accused of beating women workers.

The strike would cut the electricity, gas, water and other public services in the nerve center of the war effort against the Communist Viet Cong.

Tense negotiations began today between police officials and union representatives. The union leaders demanded the release of two arrested women workers, sanctions against policemen, and a public apology.

Orders have been issued to all affiliate unions to prepare for a general strike. In the past, however, strikes have been averted at the last minute in the city of 2 1/2 million inhabitants.

The two labor groups involved are Confederation of Vietnamese Workers (CTV) and the Confederation of Vietnamese Labor Unions (CSTV). Between the two, they control nearly every employed Vietnamese in Saigon.

The union grievances were sparked by the alleged beating and arrest of two factory women in the suburb of Gial Dinh. At angry meetings a labor leaders shouted that the city police are attacking innocent victims instead of fighting Viet Cong terrorists.

NY Police Press Hunt for Snipers

NEW YORK (AP) — Police pushed a search today for two snipers who shot at least 16 persons Thursday night with air gun pellets in Manhattan.

Police said they were without suspects, but a citywide alert was issued for two male whites with dark complexion in their early 20s.

Most of the victims were wounded superficially, but two men were hospitalized with serious eye injuries.

MILLIONAIRE COP — Chicago policeman Michael J. DeBella humbly given up his police uniform despite being named yesterday an heir to the property of an elderly lady which amounts to between $1 million and $10 million. DeBella, 34 and a father of five, befriended Miss Alice B. Atwood, who died at 85 last Dec. 11. She specifically disinherited two brothers and a sister, Mrs. Elsie Baldwin of 1065 Putney Drive, Birmingham.

Job Corps to Move Center for Women

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Claiming that "hostility has replaced hospitality," the Office of Economic Opportunity has decided to move the nation's first Job Corps center for women out of this city.

Sargent Shriver, director of the administration's antipoverty agency, said in Washington Friday that "the purpose of the Job Corps cannot be achieved in a hostile environment. The Pinellas County Board of Public Instruction originally invited the Job Corps to St. Petersburg, but hostility has replaced hospitality."

The school board's contract was to expire July 31, but the board said it would comply with the contract for another 90 days. The center — for women 18 through 21 — has been involved in controversy since it opened last year in a downtown hotel. Complaints from neighborhood residents ranged from accusations of excessive noise to charges of immorality.

NEW SPONSOR

Shriver's decision was made public only hours before a city delegation was to protest in Washington the plans of a new sponsor, the Delta Foundation, to move the center to another hotel six blocks away.

Mayor Herman Goldner said "our whole problem has been one of obtaining a proper site," observing the second hotel was in an area where private interests are considering a $45-million waterfront development program.

A spokesman for the federal agency indicated the center probably would be relocated somewhere in the middle Atlantic states.

'BEHAVED WELL'

"In the light of all circumstances, they have behaved well," he said. "Our job is to protect them from local situations not of their making."

Girls at the center heard the news in a meeting called by Michael A. Gauriero, chief project manager for women's centers.

Loose Freight Cars

2 Killed in Rail Crash

MOORE, England (UPI) — A string of runaway freight cars slammed head-on into an express train near here today with a crash that could be heard half a mile away.

The locomotive of the express exploded in flames, killing the engineer and fireman. At least four passengers and one rescuer were injured.

The first three coaches of the express telescoped and were pushed 300 feet into the air.

The express was traveling from London to Stranraer, Scotland, with 90 passengers.

A railway spokesman said the rear cars of a freight train became detached and ran backwards into the path of the express.

MADE ATTEMPT

Daniel Murphy, a brakeman on the runaway freight, said he tried to stop the cars but failed.

"I looked up and saw the express thundering towards me," he said. "It was a horrible moment."

"I jumped for it, and landed on the side of the track."

"I was lucky to get away with a few bruises. A second later, as I lay on the grass, there was a terrific crash and the crunching of metal."

"I looked up and saw the string of runaway freight cars (caboose) was just a matter of matchwood."

"The locomotive had burst into flames. I could hear someone shouting for help as I ran along the track."

Doctors aboard the train led stunned passengers to the side of the track and administered first aid.

The scene of the collision was off the main road. Rescue crews had to maneuver fire trucks and ambulances along muddy lanes to reach the area.

Cavanagh Says Europe Mission Helps Senate Bid

DETROIT (AP) — Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh returned to Detroit Friday and said his 16-day European travel and trade mission will help him "discuss issues with the people of Michigan" in his campaign for senator.

Cavanagh was in Europe when Gov. George Romney appointed Rep. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., to fill the U.S. Senate seat left vacant by the death of Democrat Patrick V. McNamara.

"I don't think there's any question that Bob Griffin needed the help," Cavanagh said, "but I don't think it's enough."

Boy Says He Set Fatal Fire

DETROIT (AP) — Police quoted a 12-year-old boy as saying Friday he set six fires this year, including one Jan. 5 in which two of his playmates died. Officers said the boy stated he didn't intend to kill Sharon Williams, 11, and her brother, Alfred, 9. The two died on the second floor of a two-story house when fire blocked the stairwell and destroyed their apartment.

Juvenile authorities withheld the boy's name.

The youngster was arrested by youth officers after his home was set afire, this week, the second time within two weeks.

Officers quoted the boy as saying he gets dizzy spells and doesn't know why the fires were set.

Police said the lad told them he cried when he heard of the deaths of the Williams children.

Truck Crash; 31 Hurt

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Thirty-one persons were injured Friday when a sight-seeing bus and a truck carrying pressurized helium bottles collided.

Most of the injured were treated at the Kennedy Space Center dispensary and released. The most serious injury was a broken leg.

The bus carried a driver, an escort officer for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and 33 visitors from the Clearwater (Fla.) Shrine Club.

A Junior Editors Quiz About WINDS

QUESTION: How strong is the wind?

ANSWER: As warm air rises, colder air rushes in below it to take its place. This flow of air is the wind.

Wind speeds are generally reckoned by a system worked out by British Admiral Beaufort called the Beaufort Scale, and slightly changed as we use it today.

In our first picture, Joe's boat, "Vixen" lies in a dead calm, with wind speed zero. Smoke goes straight up, the flag droops, the Vixen's sails hang in folds.

Then the wind begins to pick up. The second picture shows a moderate breeze, 13-18 miles per hour. Now the flag flies, smoke trails off, the Vixen piles along with full sails.

In the third picture, the wind is at strong breeze, 25-35 miles an hour. Joe has taken down his jib and furled his mainsail—he's heading for home.

Fourth picture: It's a roaring hurricane of 73 miles an hour or over. Big ships fight mountainous seas; ashore, trees are torn apart.

What about Joe? He made it to his mooring buoy; with luck and a spare anchor the Vixen will ride out the storm.

FOR YOU TO DO: Weathermen are always speaking of "high pressure area," "low pressure area," "cold front." Find out what these words mean. The weather forecasts in the papers and on radio and TV will make a lot more sense to you.

Mars Flight Like Prison Camp, Sub

By Science Service

FORT WORTH, Tex. — What is like a prisoner of war camp, a professional football team, a mental hospital and a submarine? Answer: a trip to Mars.

To evaluate the "unprecedented" psychological stresses of spending 500 days cooped up in a tiny, Mars-bound spaceship, Dr. S. B. Sells of Texas Christian University here first consulted 200 other social scientists.

He then chose 54 characteristics of life in a spaceship, including such things as who is in authority, the hazards of the journey, preliminary training and background of the crew.

He compared these influences with those of 11 other social systems that had already been studied—submarines, prison camps, exploration trips, etc.

A Mars flight would resemble a POW camp or a mental hospital primarily because of the continuous exposure to stress and forced association with others.

EARTHLY JOBS

Even the most maddening of ordinary earthly jobs offer some respite in the form of lunch hours and even simply going home at the end of the day.

Using a numerical comparison system in which a perfect score of 58 matching characteristics would give a top rating of 112, Dr. Sells found that submarine life came closest to a Mars trip with a score of 79. Next were exploration parties (68), naval ships (61), bomber crews (60) and remote duty stations (58).

Perhaps encouragingly, shipwrecks and disasters fell at the very bottom of the list with 11 points. Industrial work groups were only slightly higher (16).

The biggest lack of similarity among the major points of comparison was in personnel composition. Several of the social systems considered were all-male, but the amount of education and the selection procedures of space crews made the Mars voyagers virtually unique.

Despite his survey, however, with its itemized characteristics and numerical rating system, Dr. Sells called for "extreme caution" in making generalizations about spaceship life and its resultant stresses.

The Lincoln Tunnel under the Hudson River, joining New York and New Jersey was first opened to traffic in 1957.

Say Cuba Sugar to Fall Short of Commitments

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An analysis by an exile says Fidel Castro will be short 700,000 to 900,000 tons of sugar just to honor his 1966 commitments.

The report, prepared by Revolutionary Unity, noted Castro's announcement that this year's sugar, Cuba's dollar-earning crop, will fall below five million tons, as against six million last year.

3-Step Equalization Process Striving for Fair Taxation in State

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

LANSING — When the State Tax Commission announced its preliminary 1966 equalization figures this week many property owners shrugged and asked, "but what's that mean to me?"

Basically, the three-step equalization process means that you pay your fair share of property taxes—no equitable burden, no undeserved advantage.

Michigan's new Constitution requires all property to be assessed—that is, evaluated for taxing purposes—at one-half its true cash value.

But with 1800 taxing units involved and a history of varied assessing practices, Tax Commission Chairman Robert Purnell estimates it will be the mid-1970s before every piece of property is initially assessed at the one-half rate.

FAIR TAXATION

Meanwhile, equalization does the job of striving for fair taxation.

The process begins with a local assessor who periodically inspects your property. The law says he should do it annually, but few can maintain that schedule.

The history of varying assessments means that in some areas, the assessment may be as low as 10 or 15 per cent of the true cash value. In others, it's an up-to-date 50 per cent. The local assessor must use the same percentage throughout his district.

CHECK ASSESSMENTS

County supervisors then examine the assessments in each unit of the county and equalize the assessments.

Why?

Because taxes are collected on a basis of so many dollars in taxes for so many thousands of dollars of valuation. It wouldn't be fair if your $20,000 house was assessed at 50 per cent of value, or $10,000, and an identical house elsewhere in the county was assessed at only 25 per cent, or $5,000.

With a fixed county tax rate, that would mean the other fellow would be paying only half as much tax as you despite having property of equal real value.

Thus, the county applies so-called multipliers to the assessments for each local unit and equalizes them. They're supposed to be equalized at 50 per cent of true cash value, but here, too, the equalization process is slow and not all counties are at 50 per cent yet.

FOR EACH COUNTY

So the State Tax Commission must evaluate the assessments for each county as a whole and equalize them. This insures that persons in multicounty taxing districts, such as some school districts, are not penalized or given an unfair tax advantage.

Persons such as veterans and senior citizens who receive a state-run property tax relief also are assured of getting equitable relief.

Van Buren County, for example, equalized itself at 25 per cent of true cash value this year. If the State Tax Commission allowed those assessments to stand without equalization, Van Buren County residents claiming veterans or senior citizens property tax relief would get twice as much of a tax break as they're entitled to.

Counties and the state send their own assessors around to spot-check the work of the local assessor, thus determining the rate he's using and how his local unit should be equalized.

TAX BILL

This year your tax bill must show the multiplier factors used in arriving at the state-equalized valuation so you'll better know how your local assessment relates to the figure set by the state.

Purnell and some legislators would like to eliminate one of the three assessment steps by replacing local assessors with countywide assessing offices. But the House killed such a plan Wednesday after it had won Senate approval.

Even with equalization, however, equitable taxation still also depends on the local assessor looking at your house with the same fiscal eye he scans your next-door neighbor's house.

Equalization can't rectify a too-favorable assessment given by the assessor to his brother-in-law.

BRUSH WITH DEATH—George Novak, 45, narrowly escaped death when a truck overturned on his small foreign car on a viaduct in Seattle yesterday. Police said that if it weren't for the pillar and drainpipe (left), Nye likely would have been crushed to death. The two-ton truck overturned when the driver tried to avoid hitting the small car which cut in front of him to take an exit ramp.

Taking of LSD Out of Control

Drug Experimenter Cites College Use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The man whose name is most closely associated with LSD claims that use of the hallucinatory drug has gotten out of control, particularly among the nation's college students.

Dr. Timothy Leary, a 46-year-old psychologist who was dismissed from Harvard for his experiments with the drug, told a Senate hearing yesterday that by taking LSD "you definitely go out of your mind."

For this reason, he advocated legislation to prevent widespread use of the drug, but urged that it be made available to responsible adults for experimental purposes.

Leary told the hearing that one out of every three college students is experimenting with LSD now and as many as 65 per cent have used it on some campuses.

It will be larger next year. The growth has been staggering," Leary said.

CONFLICTING

Leary's estimates conflicted with those of Food and Drug Administration officials who have said that use of LSD is not nearly as widespread as generally believed.

They have characterized press reports on the drug as exaggerated.

Free on bond while appealing two convictions for possessing marijuana, Leary was called to testify by the Senate Juvenile Delinquency Subcommittee. The slender, gray-haired witness was sentenced to 30 years in prison by a Texas judge on the marijuana charges.

The nation's farms supply two-fifths to two-thirds of the raw materials for industry's needs.

Blood-Clotting Drug Developed

By RALPH DIGHTON
Associated Press Science Writer

LOS ANGELES — Two researchers — one of them dramatically saved by a drug he helped develop — announced today the development of a new blood-clotting agent which may eventually let chronic bleeders live normal lives.

Dr. Edward Shanbrom and G. M. Thelin of Hyland Laboratories said they had found a way of producing on a commercial scale a concentrate of anti-hemophilic factors — AHP — which is missing in hemophiliacs.

Hemophilia is a hereditary disorder in the body's blood-clotting mechanism. Its victims bleed internally without apparent cause, usually in the joints, and even minor cuts can be fatal because their blood is slow to clot in the wound.

Thelin, 39, is a hemophiliac. He suffered a brain hemorrhage a year ago and was treated experimentally with the AHP concentrate which he and Shanbrom were developing. Thelin recovered completely, and Shanbrom said it was one of the few cases of a hemophiliac recovering from a brain hemorrhage.

TREATED AGAIN

Six months later Thelin began hemorrhaging from peptic ulcers and was successfully treated again with AHP. Dr. Shelby Dietrich, director of the hemophilia rehabilitation project at Orthopedic Hospital, has been studying 200 hemophiliacs ranging in age from 6 months to 60 years. She said the new concentrate will improve the outlook for all hemophiliacs.

"Modern treatment and medicine have reduced the contrast between the lives of hemophiliacs and those of other people," she said. "When the new concentrate is available commercially, the contrast will be almost nonexistent."

"The demand probably will exceed the supply at first," Dr. Dietrich added, "but it is hoped that eventually there will be enough to let all hemophiliacs live normal lives."

FOR EMERGENCIES

Shanbrom said the concentrate would be released at first only for emergency treatment but that larger supplies would be available within a few months.

He also disclosed that Thelin is being given regular injections experimentally to see if they will prevent future bleeding. Shanbrom said he was not prepared to announce the results.

If the experiment is successful, the concentrate may do as much for people suffering from hemophilia as insulin does for diabetics — making it possible for them to live normally with the aid of regular shots.

Michigan Week Eyes Basic Values

Tomorrow is the opening day of Michigan Week, its theme: Michigan—Dynamic in World Progress. Under statewide direction of PAUL L. PENFIELD of Birmingham with CHARLES H. GORREL also of Birmingham serving as Oakland County Chairman, the Week has progressively grown in significance as an agency for dissemination of the State's attractions and advantages. Activities of the seven-day period follow the same general concept as that of past years, with Sunday designated Spiritual Foundation Day. Monday will be observed as Government Day, emphasized by the exchange of mayors among the State's municipalities. Pontiac's mayor, WILLIAM H. TAYLOR JR., will trade offices with Highland Park Mayor MICHAEL M. GLUSAC.

Our Heritage Day, with accent on historical lore, and Livelihood Day, stressing occupations and skills, are scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday. Knowledge and learning hold the stage of Education Day on Thursday, and Friday's Hospitality Day is the occasion for an open house and demonstration offered by the Pontiac Post of the Michigan State Police. The Week winds up Saturday, when Youth Day deals with interests and ambitions of Young America.

Communities will key their particular activities to the over-all concept, with school systems giving meaningful interpretation to its spiritual values.

The highlight of the 1966 celebration is the week-long flying tour of Michigan by Gov. ROMNEY and a party of 22 foreign dignitaries. The tour took off Wednesday morning from Pontiac Municipal Airport and is to some extent a reciprocal gesture for the hospitality extended the Governor and a party of government officials and businessmen who toured Europe last year.

The Press highly commends the continued interest and efforts of the dedicated many who have made Michigan Week worthy of the recognition and acclaim accorded it.

U.S. Moving Into Driver's Seat of Auto Industry

The Aopa Pilot may modestly take a bow for clairvoyance on a whimsical editorial it ran six years ago to project the chaos that would ensue were the auto industry regulated to the extent aviation then was.

But with the Administration's present plan to incorporate all forms of transportation into one gigantic Department of Transportation, encompassing almost everything that moves from airplanes to kiddie cars, the periodical's whimsy now becomes foreboding.

Are People Indifferent to Highway Deaths?

The tragic headlines which announce the loss of American lives in Viet Nam make us constantly aware of the senselessness of war. The only consolation — If, indeed, there is any — is that this fight in a steaming far-away land is being waged in the name of freedom and decency.

But there are other tragic headlines. Too many, in fact. And we manage to turn away from them without compassion.

These are the headlines dealing with the loss of life on U.S. highways.

In Viet Nam the losses are suffered in defense of a worthy cause.

Election Issues Still Unclear

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON — At this point, the politicians are rummaging in a bag of unimpaired hopes for talking points in this year's congressional elections.

What they are talking about as issues now may look different by election time next November.

President Johnson is betting — or hoping — that the record of this Democratic-run Congress will be his party's chief inducement to the voters.

That's the big bet he made in a speech Thursday night at a Democratic fund-raising dinner.

Naturally, the outnumbered Republicans are hoping for something a little more irritating to talk about. It's been clear for some time what they would fasten on, or like to.

Recently, some of the Republicans, like former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, figured their party can get yardage on two big issues: inflation and Viet Nam.

INFLATION MAY RETREAT

This is a press since inflation, or the danger of it, may have retreated into the background by November and, by then,

The POWER of FAITH By WOODI ISHMAEL

Jerome Eisenberg, antiquarian, numismatist and director of the Royal-Athena Galleries in New York City, has a faith that knows no national boundaries.

In June, 1961, Mr. Eisenberg established the Eisenberg Museum of Egyptian and Near Eastern Antiquities at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville. It was given in honor of his parents and dedicated to them because "I wanted to do something for them while they were still alive."

This all came about through Mr. Eisenberg having an earlier chance meeting with Dr. E. J. Vardaman of the Seminary over a case of ancient coins in a museum in Jerusalem. Both being interested in Judeo-Christian antiquities, they formed a firm and lasting friendship.

When Mr. Eisenberg decided to give the museum it was only natural that his friend Dr. Vardaman and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary would be the recipient. The archaeological materials in the museum are invaluable to students and the general public interested in the everyday life of the Bible period.

Raised in a devout Jewish home, Mr. Eisenberg bases the strength of his faith on the Golden Rule. From an early age his parents, who were teachers, stimulated his interest in ancient history. His collections of religious antiquities cover all ages and all religions as pictured above. At the top, a 14th century French Saint woodcarving. Center, a North Syrian idol from the Casanite period over 3,000 years old. And bottom, a Siamese bronze Buddha from the 13th Century. Dr. Vardaman in his praise of Mr. Eisenberg said, "He is the Renaissance man in the 20th Century."

Confident Living: Exercise Power Over Difficulty

By NORMAN VINCENT
PEALE
Recently in a Southern city a young man walked up to me asking, "Do you know me?" He was a fine looking fellow, around 30, with an easy manner bespeaking confidence and poise.

His face rang no bell in my memory. I answered, "I wish I could say 'I do.'"

"You should know me," he said, "because I once was quite a problem to you, to myself and to my father."

Perhaps it's no wonder I hadn't recognized him, for at the time of our encounter Ken Parker was in his teens. "He's been kicked out of six prep schools," his father told me. "What am I going to do about my son?"

"That surely must be something of a record."

"Yes, sir — six." And he asked anxiously, "Do you know any headmasters? Can you help get the boy into some school where he can have another chance? This boy's a big problem to me."

I scarcely realized the idea of approaching any headmaster about a boy with a record like that. There was, however, at the time a man in charge of a preparatory school who had a reputation for an admirable "way" with boys. I also knew he had a strong religious faith that disposed him to welcome unusual difficulties and give these his creative best.

Since school would soon start I lost no time in getting this headmaster on the phone. "Jim," I asked, "how's your enrollment?"

"We have them hanging on the rafters," he happily assured me.

"You wouldn't want to take one more, would you? I gather he hasn't done too well so far," I replied. "I believe the boy has potential, but . . ." And out I came with it: "Actually, he's been kicked out of six schools."

In a masterpiece of understatement my friend remarked, "I'm inclined to doubt he would satisfy our minimum standards here." But suddenly, he added, "Okay, send him along." Just like that. "If six schools have tried him," he said, "we may as well make it seven. Maybe the others didn't know how to get past his problems and connect with his potentialities. There's no such thing as a problem boy," he answered. "There are boys with problems, but there are no problem boys."

So the boy found himself once more at school and having (much) to his surprise at first) a private talk every few days with a headmaster who told him he had lots of ability deep within him and who act-

Recent Press Editorials Commended by Reader

The Pontiac Press exhibited wisdom, courage and patriotism in its recent editorials relative to United States Supreme Court decisions on prayers in school and apportionment of legislative representation in State government, and in regard to Senator Dirksen's stalwart support of Section 14-B of the Taft-Hartley Act.

This is the kind of editorial writing that will do much to restore constitutional government in the United States. As David Lawrence pointed out in a recent article, the present Court is substituting oligarchy for constitutional government.

Certainly this is the case with respect to its decision on legislative apportionment wherein the Court apparently overlooked Section 4 of Article IV of the Constitution which reads, "The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican Form of Government."

Four Express Views on Automobile Safety

It seems it takes only one little handful of people to weaken our own minds beyond sound thinking. Since the auto was first made, it was not the auto itself but the driver who was responsible for traffic fatalities. Now it seems that in the last few weeks it is the No. 1 menace of our civilization. I would say our only solution is to banish all cars from 1966 back, buy tanks and enforce a 10 m.p.h. limit. I wonder if our critics would be much more happy with this sort of motivation.

DUANE OLK

I get mad reading about safety in cars. Everyone knows the most important nut in a car is the one behind the wheel. It drives when drunk, sick, mad, half asleep, half blind and two-thirds off. It is the one nut in a car that GMC cannot make perfect.

Pontiac, Waterford and Oakland County vehicles are all covered by insurance. The fleet policy for Waterford Township General Fund and Water Department vehicles cost $5,120.46 this year. Waterford Township Schools paid $5,732 for their coverage.

One-Fourth of Mankind

(24) What Next for China?

by Don Oakley and John LaneThe Day of the "Agrarian Reformers"Great Leaps — Forward or Backward?One-Fourth of Mankind—

The spiritual atom bomb that the revolutionary people possess is a far more powerful and useful weapon than the physical atom bomb.—Marshal Lin Biao.

(This is the last of a 24-part series.)

"Courtesy," said the revered Confucius, "is not extended to the common people and punishment is not served up to the lords."

Therein lies one touchstone to 4,000 years of turbulent Chinese history.

Another is the fact that China has always had too many people and too little arable land.

A third is psychological. It is not yet clear whether the proud Chinese are yet willing to take their place as an equal among equals in the modern world community.

Beneath the surface changes wrought by the Communists, the Chinese remain Chinese—unaware (despite the hysterical rantings of their leaders, illogical, unrealistically egocentric).

Instead of Confucius, it is the writings of Mao that are diligently studied for the magic formulas which will solve all problems, from increasing factory production to overcoming the "dragon" of U.S. imperialism.

The present Communist regime is often compared to the Ch'in dynasty, which first unified the warring Chinese kingdoms in 221 B. C.

Just as the totalitarian Ch'in ruthlessly stamped out all opposition, standardized the language and regulated weights and measures, so the Communists when they came to power in 1949 set about standardizing the political thought and regulating the lives of 650 million human beings—now grown to 700 million.

But the Ch'in, for all their cruelty, left China the legacy of unity and centralized government.

It may be that the Communists, when they pass—as they will—will be viewed as a catalyst that finally rid China of its revolutions. The Chinese remember when they were the cultural and political overlord of less advanced peoples on their borders—Korea, Mongolia, Burma, Thailand, Viet Nam.

Eves Sun Yat-sen dreamed of the day when China would reassume this role. Ironically, the only nation that supported China in its 1962 border war with India was Chiang Kai-shek's Taiwan.

Ironically again, if the law is true, it is not America but Russia, holding vast lands once belonging to the Middle Kingdom, who has most to fear a clash with an aggressive China.

Traditionally, however, the Chinese have believed it is their superior virtue and culture, not arms, which is their strength. And this may be a hopeful thing as her former tribute-bearers go through their own struggles to enter the world as independent nations.

COMING YEARS

The coming years will demand great forbearance and wisdom, coupled with measured firmness, on the part of the West—a patience to match the fabled patience of the Chinese.

In recent months, China's subversive "diplomacy" has suffered reverses around the globe.

The old Communists realize they must soon pass from the stage and are afraid and disheartened of a new generation in the wings.

The last chapter in the story of China, this unique and most ancient of civilizations, is far from written.

OFFICIAL SUPPORT

Dinsdale claims official support for his belief in the monster.

A movie film he took at the remote Scottish lake in 1959 was studied by the Joint Air Reconnaissance Intelligence Center.

Experts reported that minute analysis of the film showed an "animate object" nearly 100 feet long, not less than six feet wide and five feet high. They estimated its speed at 10 miles an hour.

FIRST TIME

It was the first time that film or pictures of the "monster" had been subjected to such expert scrutiny.

Dinsdale, in an interview on a BBC television program, was asked if the Loch Ness monster was any more of a fact than the unicorn.

"I've seen the bally thing," he replied.

Italians disclaim that Marco Polo brought spaghetti to their country from China. They say Apicio Celio served it to Emperor Tiberius a thousand years before Marco Polo lived.

Even Blindfolded

Press Agent Knows the Way

By DICK WEST

United Press International
WASHINGTON—Jim Moran, the hatcher of ostrich eggs, the finder of needles in haystacks, the seller of ice-boxes to Eskimos—in short, Jim Moran, the press agent—is currently touring the country blindfolded.

When I saw Moran with a lavender velvet band over his eyes, I said, "Don't tell me. I can guess. You're plugging the 'See America' program." Moran said, "I retired from press agency several months ago. I am now associated with the New York Academy of Terrestrial Magnetism."

"We meet once a month in an abandoned subway. New York, as you may know, is honeycombed with abandoned subways."

"The purpose of this trip is to determine whether being blindfolded for a prolonged period will sharpen a person's sense of direction by making him more responsive to the earth's magnetic field."

"Isn't there a new movie called 'Blindfold'?" I asked. "You newspapermen are always searching for ulterior motives," Moran replied.

BY CHANGE

"There is such a movie, yes. In fact, the academy, being short of funds, obtained a research grant from the studio to finance my experiment. Nevertheless, my role is purely scientific."

"Certain birds and insects orient themselves by magnetic lines. The academy is seeking to establish to what extent this phenomenon exists in human beings."

"I have found that being blindfolded increases my directional perception. Even in strange cities I can unerringly sense true north. However, the blindfold has distorted my sense of time."

"Some creatures are provided by nature with built-in timing mechanisms. But mankind apparently lacks this characteristic."

"In British Honduras, there is a type of flower that only opens five minutes a day. Honeybees, with their natural time clocks, always know the exact moment to visit the plant."

"I recently produced the same results in New York artificially. Every afternoon at 3 o'clock, I would put a saucer of sugar water on my window sill and leave it there 5 minutes."

"Within a week, I had a swarm of bees at my window at that hour."

"Then I dissolved a thyroid tablet in the water to see what would happen. The bees began arriving 10 to 15 minutes early."

LATE ARRIVAL

"Next I dosed the water with quinine. The bees began arriving late."

"This finding may be helpful to people who have trouble adjusting to rapid time changes during international jet flights."

"When flying West, they should take thyroid pills. When flying East, they should take quinine."

New VA Hospital Ultramodern

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — finished a year behind schedule. The $30-million hospital that the Veterans Administration will unveil here Sunday is a medical engineering marvel where even x rays will be on television.

Surgical tools will be washed by sound waves. A patient emerging from an operating room can be wired so that a nurse can watch his heartbeat, breathing and blood pressure while sitting at a central console.

The 10-story hospital at the VA's Wood Center here will receive the first of its maximum 1,364 patients Monday. It is the newest, most expensive and largest single building to date in the VA program of modernizing the 164 hospitals it maintains.

There are 42 miles of corridors alone in the H-shaped, brick building. Construction was Doctors can dictate notes directly from the operating rooms to tape recorders in a stereographic pool.

HEART SURGERY
The hospital will have special facilities for open-heart surgery, work with artificial kidneys, and research and treatment concerning emphysema, a disease that robs lungs of their elasticity. On order is a six-million electron volt linear accelerator — a ray gun that shoots a beam of radiation at cancers deep in the body.

The hospital was planned originally as a $24.5-million project. Changes during construction and equipment pushed the cost to $30 million.

A scalpel may get its bath in soapy water stirred by ultrasonic waves well beyond the range of the human ear. The vibrations of sound create a suction that whisks away impure particles.

Injection Lowers Blood Pressure

ATLANTIC CITY — A sustained drop in blood pressure has been brought about in hypertensive rats by the injection of a purified substance from animal kidneys. The substance has not yet been used in humans.

Dr. Roger B. Hickler of Harvard Medical School and Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston, reported purification and characterization of the material at the 79th annual meeting of the association of American Physicians here.

He identified the hormone-like lipid found in the inner portion of the kidney as Prostaglandin E2-317. Prostaglandin is a naturally occurring substance first found in the semen of man and sheep.

South Africa Plans Oil Fleet

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A fleet of oil tankers and interests in foreign oil fields are being planned to make South Africa immune from any attempt to cripple it with oil sanctions.

African and Asian members of the United Nations have long advocated sanctions against South Africa as a means of forcing it to drop its apartheid race segregation — policies.

U.N. Secretary-General U Thant, during a recent visit to London, reportedly said sanctions are the next necessary step to make South Africa change its policies.

Cabinet ministers and papers attacked Thant. The Cape Town paper Die Burger, which often reflects Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's thinking, said Thant had abused his office.

Justice Minister Balthazar Vorster saw the next five years as an uphill struggle for South Africa. Among essentials he listed for a safe and strong country in the face of external threats was to become "self-supporting in every sense of the word to withstand the forces of destruction."

Economics Minister Nicolas Diederichs announced that companies "completely owned or controlled by wholly South African companies" have acquired a substantial tonnage of tankers "with government encouragement, approval and support."

OWN FLEET
The Republic Oil Tanker Corp. — Rotor — plans to establish its own tanker fleet. It also is considering seeking oil from Latin America and the Middle East.

Its managing director is Dr. Peter James le Riche, 39, a former medical practitioner who has been involved in recent years in diamond mining and oil concessions in South West Africa.

Le Riche said Rotor is negotiating for the control of newly developed oil fields in Venezuela and has been offered interests in oil fields in Bolivia and Iran. A Texas oil millionaire, in conjunction with a British bank, offered to assist in chartering enough oil tankers to carry 10,000 tons of crude oil daily under the South African flag, Le Riche said.

IRREVOCABLE CONTRACTS
Executives of major oil companies say existing refineries are bound by a system of intricate and irrevocable contracts which will keep them fully occupied for many years. Unless Rotor builds its own refinery and marketing outlets, it has little chance of entering the market, the executives claim.

The Johannesburg Star, while commending projects to make this country less dependent on overseas oil interests, warned editorially of what might happen if international oil sanctions were applied and the major world powers decided that the country was to be starved of supplies.

Then, said the paper, "the possession of our own tanker fleet would be of little or no avail — unless our warships were prepared to fight it out on the high seas."

Arbitration Bill Hearing Stirs Fireworks

LANSING (AP) — A bill to require compulsory arbitration of labor disputes involving police and firemen produced oral fireworks Friday.

During the day-long hearing before the Senate Labor Committee, senators were raising their voices at witnesses and witnesses were arguing back.

The hearing was interrupted three times as senators were required to go to the floor to vote. The location was changed once, but stubborn witnesses insisted in being heard until after 6 p.m.

The municipalities' representatives were against the idea of compulsory arbitration, as was Robert Howett, chairman of the State Labor Mediation Board.

ANOTHER OPPONENT

Another opponent was Charles Rehms, political science professor at the University of Michigan.

"It was tried for six years in New Jersey," Rehms said, "and then the Legislature there reversed itself and repealed the law."

But representatives of the rank-and-files—the working police patrolmen and firemen—were solidly for the bill.

Sen. Sander Levin, D-Berkley, committee chairman, said a vote probably would not be taken until next Tuesday or Thursday on reporting the bill out of committee.

The much-amended measure already has passed the House. "There were some 40 sponsors of this bill in the House," declared Simon Chapple, representing the Michigan State Fire Fighters Association. "It passed the House nicely and they can't all be wrong."

A Comic Mixup

What's What on Who's Who

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rowan smokes cigarettes, Martin chews swizzle sticks. Martin says he looks "like a small-town bank embezzler boy on his way to Buenos Aires."

Rowan: "I look like a corporation lawyer, hot on his trail." Despite these dissimilarities, people confuse comedy partners Dan Rowan and Dick Martin "constantly," says Dick.

MIXUP WITH WIFE "He answers to Dan and I to Dick," says Dan Rowan. There's also a mixup with Martin and Lewis — "My wife answers when she's called Mrs. Lewis."

To add to the confusion, Rowan and Martin are this summer's replacement on NBC television starting June 16 for the other Martin — Dean. There may be further puzzlement in California and Nevada, where Rowan and Martin will be appearing simultaneously in nightclubs. Their television shows are pretaped.

This, then, is a handy guide to Rowan and Martin—or, which is who. Green-eyed Dan Rowan, handsome and substantial-looking, says that in their act "I'm the authority, settled, steady,

Truck Causes $50,000 Damage, Hurts 2

LANSING (AP) — A runaway, double-trailer semi-truck wrecked a gasoline station shed and a house in Lansing Friday, injuring the driver and a station attendant and causing an estimated $50,000 damage.

The driver, Kenneth Reeves, 39, of St. Louis, Mich., suffered minor injuries and James Williams, 38, of Lansing, suffered an injured leg when the truck brushed him.

Clyde Haney, 27, was asleep in the one-story frame house, but was unhurt.

State Police Trooper Charles Wagner said damage to the house probably was more than $5,000, and total damage, including the truck, around $50,000. Cause of the crash was under investigation, he said.

About a million Churchill crowns, British coins valued at 70 cents, are being minted in London weekly to meet the demand.

Invitations Etiquette Today

Calling All Brides

(Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a series of articles on preparation for the wedding.)

By MADELEINE DOEREN

Unlike invitations to other social events, wedding invitations are sent as much as four weeks before the ceremony and never less than two.

Invitations being sent to distant cities could be mailed four weeks in advance and to relatives and friends in the area, at least three weeks before the wedding date.

ONE WHO KNOWS

In her New Complete Book of Etiquette, Amy Vanderbilt suggests using the best paper one can afford, the most distinguished being the traditional ivory or ecru. Pure white is now rarely used.

The engraving, needless to say, is always done in black and on the first page of the double sheet. "Where two envelopes are used" she writes, "the inside one is unsealed and must not be gummed. It is placed in the outer envelope so that it faces the flap."

"Tissue over the engraving is left in place to prevent smudging."

There is little variation in prices of wedding stationery from area printers and they all agree that it is advisable to order locally rather than from other sources.

This is not as much a matter of patronizing local firms as it is preventing last-minute mishaps at pickup time.

Out-of-town firms who advertise their services in women's magazines are sometimes careless about the envelope count. This sends the bride-to-be scurrying to the stationers trying to fit the invitations to stock envelopes. This is not easy when looking for out-size envelopes.

If the envelope count is correct, a name may be spelled incorrectly or the period omitted after Mr. and Mrs.

Raised printing prices begin with a minimum of $9.50 per hundred invitations and can cost $12.50. Basic panel in black print can be had for as little as $9.00 per hundred.

Photo-lettering, which closely resembles steel engraving, costs approximately $18 and up for 100 invitations.

Prices for engraved invitations vary from $23 to $34 per hundred depending on the number of lines and other factors.

Invitations printed on parchment-type paper or those with blind embossing in the corners are increasing in popularity.

'Informals' for thank-you notes cost about three dollars per hundred, whereas engraved 'informals' will cost about $7 per hundred.

Napkins embossed (usually in silver) with one line of imprinting, for the reception will cost from $2.50 to $4 per hundred.

Cocktail-size napkins are replacing the little white boxes of wedding-cake to be taken home by the guests. The same size napkin can be used on the bride's table.

Your 'stationer' carries wedding guest-books which sell for about $3.50.

The local stationers suggest placing wedding invitation orders at least two weeks before pickup.

Announcements, ordered along with the invitations, are not sent out until after the marriage has taken place.

Envelopes should be addressed in black ink, with first-class postage carefully placed.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I hope to marry a nice girl someday, one who doesn't drink or smoke, but while I'm still single, I prefer to date girls who do. Girls who drink and smoke are cheaper to date because they don't mind eating food in a low-class diner.

Take them to a cheap dive and give them some drinks and cigarettes and they are contented. Also girls who drink and smoke usually lack self respect, so they don't expect a fellow to respect them, and he can usually get away with anything he wants on the first date.

I am not a bum, I'm just an average guy, but so many people push the sweet, innocent-type girls, I thought someone should explain why so many men prefer the cheap kind. We don't want to MARRY them, just DATE them.

JOHN Q. PUBLIC
DEAR JOHN: Speak for yourself, John! The fellow who has dated nothing but willing women can have his choice of any tramp he's dated when selecting a wife. Men who do their shopping at a rummage sale are unlikely to find a jewel from Cartier.

DEAR ABBY: We are two girls, both 12, and we each have a different problem. One of us is overweight and the other one is flat. Every day one of us gets insulted about our looks. My girl friend has tried every diet in the book, and she can't lose a pound. And I would like to have a padded bra, but I'm afraid to ask my mother for one.

Please don't tell us we have plenty of time to have good figures. We want them NOW. Answer soon as we are desperate.

FATTY AND FLATTY
DEAR F AND F: Reading a diet won't lose your friend an ounce unless she substitutes READING for EATING. And as for the bra: a twelve-year-old girl's figure is usually adequate for her age.

However, if later on you've clearly been cheated, "what Nature's forgotten, stuff with cotton."

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if your husband bought you a large bottle of the very same cologne you discarded years ago because he told you he hated it so much? I took it back after Christmas, remembering what he had said about the first bottle.

I thought I was doing him a favor, but he said I had done an ungracious thing, and now I am in the doghouse.

HURT
DEAR HURT: You did what any sensible, considerate wife would have done. Your husband is an unreasonable man. Invite him into the doghouse and tell him you have a bone to pick with him.

DEAR ABBY: Your column about the amateur handwriting analyst interested me. This person, it seems, analyzed a co-worker's handwriting from an office memo, without his consent, and then went around telling everyone that his hand writing revealed that he had "criminal tendencies" and was "oversexed."

Abbey, I am a CERTIFIED GRAPHOANALYST, and as such, abide by a strict code of ethics as set down by that society. We NEVER analyze anyone's handwriting without his knowledge and consent, nor do we ever discuss our findings with anyone but the writer. And anyone who does otherwise, is a rank amateur and a very stupid one at that.

Sense Tells Woman How She Appears

By ELIZABETH L. POST

This is the prize-winning letter chosen this week. A copy of Emily Post's "Etiquette," revised by Elizabeth L. Post, has been sent to the questioner.

Dear Mrs. Post: At what age should women stop wearing bikinis? I say that longer suits look old-fashioned; my husband says they're more flattering to women any age.—M.B.

Dear M.B.: You're making a common mistake: sticking to a particular style because it's "in" regardless of how it looks on you. A more covered-up bathing suit may be a little old-fashioned, but that won't date you half as much as a broad display of middle-aged spread!

There is only one restriction: that the wearer have an excellent figure, and this implies that she be youthful. A young, reasonably slender girl has every reason to show off as much of her figure as society allows, and was nothing but admiration. But one chubby teen looks just as ridiculous bulging out of a bikini as the middle-aged matron.

Dressing-Up Trend Today

Despite the continuing trend to informality and casual attire — or perhaps because of it — this nation has never experienced a wave of dressing-up such as that seen during this past winter.

While New York is not exactly a criteria for the country-at-large, it might be mentioned that this metropolis underwent a near-metamorphosis in its social activities.

Because there were parties after most of the theatrical openings, audiences were practically 100 per cent formal — even including the press. The custom spread to nightclub openings, movie premieres — and even "just going out" evenings!

Rare Music Is Due Here

Summer programs of Oakland University's Meadow Brook Festival and school of music will make possible for this area six special chamber concerts.

James Hicks, OU public relations, reports the scheduled musical offerings are rare, even for New York audiences. Planned are three performances each by the ten-member New York Pro Musica, June 26, 28 and July 5, and three chamber concerts by an imposing piano trio whose members are Eugene Istomin, pianist; Isaac Stern, violinist; and Leonard Rose, cellist, on July 19, 26 and Aug. 2.

PRESENT INSTITUTE
The New York Pro Musica will be on the Oakland campus to present a two-week Institute for Medieval, Renaissance and Early Baroque Music open to singers, instrumentalists, conductors and scholars. The concerts are open to the public and will be presented in the university's new 600-seat Wilson Hall.

Each concert, directed by Lanoue Davenport who has been named protom director to replace the group's late founder Noah Greenberg, will explore a different facet of music written in the centuries.

The first event June 26 will be devoted to English music of the courts of Elizabeth and James. The June 28 concert will focus on Florentine Medieval and Renaissance music; and the final program will feature Renaissance music of Spain and Colonial Mexico.

Stern, Istomin and Rose, in addition to the slated performances with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at the festival, will conduct a three-week piano trio institute for performers, teachers and auditors as part of the Meadow Brook School of Music program.

PERFORM IN SHELL
Their public performances will be in the Baldwin Pavilion, using the acoustical shell in its chamber concert setting for the first time.

Piano trio selections will include works of Beethoven, Brahms, Schubert and Mendelssohn.

Tickets for all performances are available at the university's festival office.

destroy mission 30 miles northwest of Saigon. He was killed by fragments from a bomb dropped by a friendly aircraft supporting his mission.

NEW YORK (AP) — Three in the week, he received the Pulitzer Prize for his reporting of the Viet Nam war.

An Army spokesman in Saigon said Dailey was killed when he was hit by fragments from a bomb dropped by a friendly aircraft-supporting ground troops on a search and destroy operation about 30 miles northwest of Saigon.

The senior of the three, Lt. Col. George Eyster of Cocoa, Fla., caught a sniper's bullet. He died later.

The captain, George F. Dailey of Fort Atkinson, Wis., and the correspondent, Peter Arnett of the Associated Press, did what they could for him. Later, Arnett and Dailey went on other patrols together.

Friday, Dailey's wife, Wanda, got the news at Fort Atkinson that her husband was killed in action in Viet Nam on Thursday.

The same news reached Arnett in New York where, early not many Americans are dying there, but the type dying are like Dailey — the cream of the military, intelligent, well-educated with a military background.

Arnett said he last saw Dailey a little over 10 days ago.

"He was a highly respected company commander, quite fearless, but intelligently fearless. He didn't make any mistakes and always believed in being right up front with his people."

"He was an intellectual. He tried to talk over the war with his men, to tell them what it meant."

MAJOR ACTIONS

"George was involved in seven or eight major actions. He was noted for his coolness under fire, but he was cool and collected all the time. He had a tremendous facility for command."

Arnett was with Dailey on six operations of which the one in which Col. Eyster lost his life was typical.

IN DISPATCH

As Arnett told it in a dispatch he wrote at the time: "Suddenly, bullets cracked through the trees around us. I slid to the ground. Eyster slumped down three feet from me, his arms to his chest. He moaned in pain."

"George, I'm hit," he murmured to Dailey.

"Dailey jumped to his feet, heedless of the sniper."

"The colonel's hit, the colonel's hit!" he shouted. "Bring up a medic, bring up a medic."

EVACUATED

The medic came, and an evacuation helicopter.

"By God, I hope he makes it," said Dailey as the chopper took off. Then he and his men searched through a mile-long hell of mines but never found the sniper who hit the colonel.

"The colonel didn't make it." In Fort Atkinson, Dailey's moaned in pain.

The protest notes said statements by Mrs. Gandhi "can only result in a sharpening of the relations between India and Pakistan and creating anti-Pakistan feelings among the people of India."

The note referred to Mrs. Gandhi's warnings to her people earlier this month that danger still looms on India's borders and that the nation must keep its armed forces prepared.

These statements are contrary to "India's responsibility" under the Tashkent peace declaration signed in January by India and Pakistan, the note said.

There was no immediate comment by the Indian Foreign Ministry.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Red China, approached recently about a projected world disarmament conference, says such a meeting would not be appropriate "while present conditions prevail," diplomatic sources said Friday.

The informants said the war in Viet Nam was one of the reasons for China's coolness toward the meeting, delegates from more than 25 nonaligned countries held a private meeting to start preparations for the conference.

The meeting was a step toward the goal of a General Assembly resolution which called for consultations "with all countries" on setting up a preparatory committee to convene a world disarmament conference next year "to which all countries would be invited."

Rape Suspect Is Bound Over

Twenty-seven-year-old Thomas W. Tucker, charged with the rape of a Pontiac Township woman April 19, was bound over to Circuit Court yesterday for arraignment.

Tucker of 2860 Edna Jane, Pontiac Township, is accused of beating, cutting and sexually assaulting a 43-year-old single woman in her home.

The victim, hospitalized for shock and treatment of injuries, testified at yesterday's three-hour preliminary hearing before Pontiac Township Justice R. Grant Graham.

The woman was able only to say on Auburn when she had been attacked and beaten in her home, but was unable to identify her assailant.

Tucker, the witness said, stated the marks had come from an encounter with "a woman in the neighborhood."

Defense attorneys moved for dismissal near the end of the examination, but Graham turned down the motion, bound Tucker to Circuit Court, and ordered the defendant held in $5,000 bond.

So you're one of those guys with long hair, and you've been inducted into the Army.

That's okay, says Army Chief of Staff Gen. Harold K. Johnson.

"I don't have any worries about the young fellows with the long hair," he said in a commencement address.

"We get them in the Army, give them a close haircut, turn them over to a drill sergeant, and in eight weeks they're good soldiers."

GEN. JOHNSON Speaking to 445 graduates of the Army's Command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., Johnson even had praise for today's crop of young people. He called them better educated and more understanding. "The Army fights so that men can remain free," he said. "And that includes the freedom of protesters to protest."

Computer Misses on Age by Century

Anna Oberschulte of Detroit almost didn't get her Medicare information because a short-sighted computer thought she was only 4 years old.

Mrs. Oberschulte is 161.

In sending out information, the computer scans birth records and picks up only the last two digits of the year of birth. For Mrs. Oberschulte those digits were "62."

So the computer mechanically put her name aside on the mistaken assumption that it was 1962.

Humans went to work in the computer's place, and the error was corrected.

Prince Charles Almost 'Beamed'

The sky wasn't falling, but a big bean was, and it almost landed on Britain's Crown Prince Charles.

The one-pound tree bean fell from a branch 70 feet above the ground yesterday and missed the prince's head by inches as he watched a display of aboriginal dancing in Australia.

The 17-year-old prince had gone to the jungle fete from Timberport School where he is a student.

CHARLES — is a student.

... and the Walls Came Tumbling Down

Nora Poole told the Louisville, Ky., police that the city building department, but nobody would do anything about her problem. Her house was falling to pieces, brick by brick.

The police said it wasn't in their line. Her insurance man wasn't in. The city building inspector told her to call a contractor, but wouldn't supply a name.

Bricks kept falling.

Finally the Poole family just vacated the house, and none too soon.

Friday there was a strong wind, and the walls fell down.

Pakistan Protests India Chief's Talk

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Pakistan High Commission revealed today it has protested to the Indian government what it called "inflammatory statements" by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

The high commission also announced it charged Indian forces in the Himalayan state of Kashmir with firing on two unarmed Pakistani civilians and killing one on April 29.

The protest notes said statements by Mrs. Gandhi "can only result in a sharpening of the relations between India and Pakistan and creating anti-Pakistan feelings among the people of India."

The note referred to Mrs. Gandhi's warnings to her people earlier this month that danger still looms on India's borders and that the nation must keep its armed forces prepared.

These statements are contrary to "India's responsibility" under the Tashkent peace declaration signed in January by India and Pakistan, the note said.

There was no immediate comment by the Indian Foreign Ministry.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Red China, approached recently about a projected world disarmament conference, says such a meeting would not be appropriate "while present conditions prevail," diplomatic sources said Friday.

The informants said the war in Viet Nam was one of the reasons for China's coolness toward the meeting, delegates from more than 25 nonaligned countries held a private meeting to start preparations for the conference.

The meeting was a step toward the goal of a General Assembly resolution which called for consultations "with all countries" on setting up a preparatory committee to convene a world disarmament conference next year "to which all countries would be invited."

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's winter wheat crop is expected to exceed the average of the past five years — 25 million tons — but fall short of last year's record 31.9 million tons.

Qualified experts say the figure this year should be 27 to 28 million tons. They said good moisture conditions and better use of fertilizers have helped the total crop, despite a reduction in planted acreage due to a late cold season.

If the favorable trend carries over into the far larger crop of spring wheat, the experts said, the Soviet Union might get by without buying wheat in the West this year for the first time since 1962.

NICE, France (AP) — Prehistoric carvings used the French Riviera as a tourist haven 300,000 years ago, a French scientist has concluded.

After a lengthy study of an area unearthed by a bulldozer preparing a building site on the edge of Nice, Henry De Lumley, a researcher for the National Committee for Scientific Research, decided the area was used for a camp ground.

De Lumley said primitive travelers stopped for about 28 weeks among some boulders near the edge of the Mediterranean. The only humanlike sign was a footprint. From the date that De Lumley fixed, the creature must have been a Pliocene, a genus of primates intermediate between man and anthropoids apes. Ten cap sites, one on top of the other, indicated the tribe returned 10 times.

GUATEMALA (AP) — Terrorists attacked a police patrol car outside Guatemala City Friday, killing one officer and wounding two others.

Authorities said the country otherwise remained calm under the state of siege imposed last Tuesday.

The emergency move was taken as the result of the kidnapping of two officials by rebels last week. The insurgents said they would hold the officials until the government produces 28 rebels missing since last week among some boulders near the edge of the Mediterranean. The only humanlike sign was a footprint. From the date that De Lumley fixed, the creature must have been a Pliocene, a genus of primates intermediate between man and anthropoids apes. Ten cap sites, one on top of the other, indicated the tribe returned 10 times.

British Ship Strike Looms

LONDON (AP) — Cargoes began piling up at British ports today and hope was abandoned of averting the nation's first merchant marine strike in 50 years.

Leaders of the National Union of Seamen said there was nothing that could stop its 65,000 members from walking out Monday. The union said the next move was up to the ship-owners and the government.

The strike loomed just as Prime Minister Harold Wilson was embarking on a stepped-up program to bolster the nation's shaky economy by increasing production and exports.

Wilson reportedly appealed to the union leaders to "give us breathing space" and warned them: "We are with you now, but once the strike starts, you must understand we will be against you."

This marks the first test case of the government's "income policy" designed to keep wages and prices in line to prevent inflation.

British seamen are paid an average of $56 a week with overtime.

Mississippi May Get 'Wet' Law

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A liquor bill to end Mississippi's 57 years of statewide prohibition lands on the governor's desk Monday, along with much political pressure.

Bootleggers and ministers are united in hoping Gov. Paul Johnson will veto it. Restauranters were pressing him to sign.

The local option bill would permit counties to vote in legal liquor sales. Final legislative passage was obtained Friday. After receiving the bill, Johnson has five days in which to act. He hasn't said what he will do.

The issue stirs deep passions, especially in north Mississippi, where church groups always have been able to muster enough votes to beat repeal in referendums.

BOOTLEGGERS TAXED

For years, Mississippi operated under a system in which the dries had their law, the wets had their liquor and the state taxed bootleggers instead of arresting them.

"I've talked to lots and lots of people and many of them would rather see it just the way it is," said a bootlegger who operates a busy package store just across the Pearl River from this capital.

"They have a better situation like it is, and the state would get more money out of it the way it is right now."

"I am against the legalization of liquor by any means, whether it be court edict, legislative act or vote of the people," said Dr. Joe T. Odle, editor of the Mississippi Baptist Record.

However, if legalization is to come, it should be only by vote of the people in a statewide referendum. The bill does not provide for a statewide referendum, and Johnston has said he would veto any bill which does not include such a provision. However, the situation has become more complicated since he outlined his stand.

The complications resulted from a liquor raid on the ultra-swing Jackson Country Club. Liquor raids involving Mississippi social leaders are extremely rare. But in this one, deputies hauled off $10,000 worth of booze and took all the glitter off a Junior League reception.

LEGAL ATTACK The club angrily mounted a legal attack on the prohibition law, winning a ruling — now on appeal — that it was void because of discriminatory enforcement and state taxes on bootleggers which yield $4.5 million a year.

Legislators, fearing the state might have uncontrolled and untaxed liquor if the ruling were upheld, got together on a compromise liquor bill — providing county local option instead of a state referendum.

Predictions were that Johnson, under pressure from the court case, would sign it.

Senate Unit OKs Label Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Commerce Committee has approved by a 143 vote a truth-in-packaging bill calling for tightened federal regulation of labeling and packaging of some household supplies.

The legislation, sent to the Senate Friday for action, was requested by President Johnson. He said it would make it easier for shoppers to compare competing products.

The bill, applying to such household goods as foods, drugs and cosmetics, first would give industry an opportunity to draw up voluntary standards for weights and quantities in which products are marketed.

Industry failure to set and comply with standards approved by the secretary of commerce would permit the government to set up mandatory weight and quantity standards, enforceable through seizures and fines.

Legislators, fearing the state might have uncontrolled and untaxed liquor if the ruling were upheld, got together on a compromise liquor bill — providing county local option instead of a state referendum.

State Workers Get Conduct Standards

LANSING (AP) — Gov. George Romney yesterday issued an executive order establishing standards of conduct for state employees.

The executive order, developed in cooperation with the State Civil Service Commission, outlines a set of standards similar to codes of ethics adopted by other governmental agencies and jurisdictions.

The purpose of the order, Romney said, "is to reemphasize our ideals and maintain the standards of ethical behavior by those who conduct the public business."

"The problem of ethical standards," Romney said, "is not limited to bribery and corruption ... It involves a whole range of propriety and conflict of interest questions."

SET OF STANDARDS In the declaration of policy, the set of standards declared: "State employees must avoid all situations where prejudice, bias or opportunity for personal gain could influence their decisions. Employees must equally avoid that which suggests favoritism or personal gain as the motivating force in the conduct of state government."

In the section headed "Responsibility of Public Employment," the order said:

"Each employee shall place the welfare of the state and its citizens above loyalty to personal or group interests. Employees must faithfully discharge their duties to the best of their ability, without regard to race, creed, national origin or political belief."

CONFLICT OF INTEREST "In the section on 'Conflict of Interest,' the set of standards declared: 'No employee shall disclose confidential information to any unauthorized person or release such information in advance of the time prescribed for its authorized release.'"

After newsmen expressed some concern this section might be interpreted as a gag by some employees, the governor said he meant it only to apply to premature disclosure of information such as highway routings which could be used for personal profit.

He said he would attempt to clarify the language and declared: "I'm not trying to say you guys (newsmen) can't get special breaks by alert work."

The section dealing with "Gifts and Favors" said: "No employee shall accept loans, gifts, services or other preferred arrangements for personal benefits under any circumstances ..."

U. S. Envoy Says Cong Lack Respected Leaders

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Acting U.S. Ambassador William Porter says the Viet Cong are "faceless" — they lack an outstanding leader and can command obedience among South Vietnamese only at the point of a gun.

Porter compared the Viet Cong with the nationalist movements he watched as a diplomat in such trouble spots as Algeria, Morocco, Syria and Iraq, and found them wanting in all respects.

Four years ago I talked to him in his residence overlooking Algiers while machine guns rattled in the city below, and bombs planted by Moslem nationalists and European counterterrorists exploded. This week I interviewed him in the guarded U.S. Embassy in Saigon.

"What strikes me here is absolute lack of respected Viet Cong leadership as compared to Middle Eastern and North African movements," Porter said.

BEST INVOLVED

"There, in the Middle East and North Africa, the best known, most stable and respected elements were involved. Here there is no such leadership on the Viet Cong side. It is a collection of nonentities who never had any standing in the community."

"Another salient fact which emphasizes their facelessness is that no Vietnamese of standing has gone to their ranks."

The diplomat said the absence of respected leadership has resulted in a lack of Viet Cong control over South Viet Nam's urban population.

"They have tried the devices of Middle Eastern and North African movements and they failed completely to evoke any obedience from anybody they are not facing with a gun," he said.

STRIKES HAVE FAILED

Porter said that strikes inspired by the Viet Cong have failed, and despite the orders of the insurgents, the people continue to work for Americans.

"These are key areas which normally give allegiance to any valid nationalist movement," Porter said. "The so-called National Liberation Front Viet Cong simply cannot exercise control over the urban population. They can only do so in rural areas where they are present in some force."

He said the North Vietnamese in Hanoi, directing the Viet Cong effort in South Viet Nam, "copied the name from the National Liberation Front in Algeria."

But Porter said Hanoi has never given the Viet Cong the recognition of a government-in-exile such as the Algerian counterparts gave the Algerian nationalists.

"This makes the status of Viet Cong as a puppet of Hanoi absolutely clear," he said.

Gregory Convicted for Protest Actions

CHICAGO (AP) — Comedian Dick Gregory was convicted by a jury Friday night of disorderly conduct and obstructing traffic during a protest demonstration last summer.

Gregory was fined $1,400 May 3 and sentenced to five months in jail for resisting arrest and battery against police officers during the same demonstration on June 1.

Magistrate James Sullivan in jury court set June 8 for imposition of fines and a hearing on new trial motions by Gregory's attorneys in Gregory's latest conviction.

Bonn Aide Admits Arms Deal Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — West Germany's defense chief Kai Uwe von Hassel has acknowledged that his country is having "great difficulties" in fulfilling its commitment to purchase $1.35 billion worth of American arms.

Von Hassel conferred here with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Friday, and diplomatic sources said later the United States apparently will have to agree to cut the Germany outlay by $600 million.

The commitment, known as the offset agreement, is aimed at helping to defray the U.S. cost of maintaining the 7th Army in Germany for two years, estimated at around $2 billion.

Under the agreement, the West German government was to spend the $1.35 billion in the United States between June 1965 and June 1967.

The two defense chiefs issued a joint communique after their meeting in which they said "any relocations and adjustments" arising from the evictions ordered by French President Charles de Gaulle to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "should be effected as promptly and economically as possible."

They also discussed what Von Hassel called the streamlining of NATO's military structure. The two ministers are understood to agree that when NATO moves from France, some elements of the present command structure can be eliminated.

The controversial question of German access to NATO's nuclear arsenal was not discussed at the meeting, Von Hassel said. Although German desire to participate in a "hardware solution" of NATO's perennial nuclear problem remains unchanged, the Bonn government recognizes that because of the French break with the alliance's military structure, there are more urgent problems to solve.

The West German official, however, complained about the recent withdrawal of 15,000 American troops from Germany. They were pulled out to help train U.S. soldiers for the Viet Nam war.

Von Hassel said he was not consulted in time about the move, although McNamara had informed him last December that it might become necessary.

In Bank Strike

Coin Famine Hits Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Ireland faces a famine of small coins after more than a week with no banks.

Banks throughout the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland closed May 5 when 3,400 junior clerks went on strike for higher pay.

Big employers have been flying in cash to meet their payroll.

But for the man in the street and store owners, the biggest problem is finding the pence and shillings to carry out everyday transactions.

Sixpence is the equivalent of seven U.S. cents; a shilling is worth 14 cents.

IMPORTS COINS

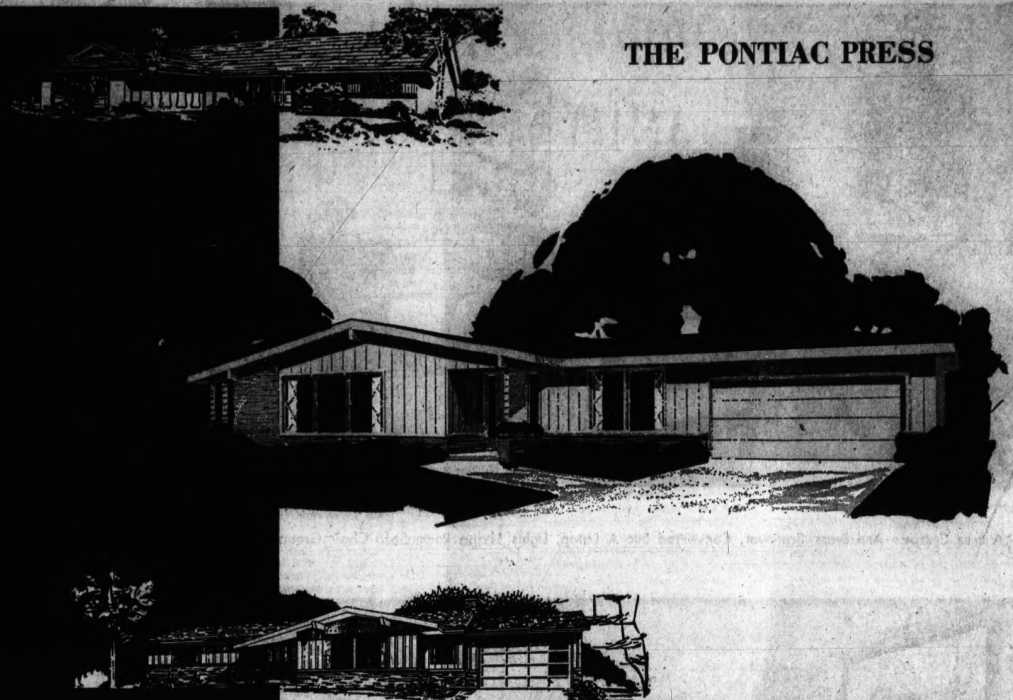

In Northern Ireland, the gas department of the Belfast City Corp., the municipal authority, imported one million shillings from England so that its customers could continue to put shillings in the slots of their gas meters.

The shillings can be obtained in change from the gas departments offices and showrooms in the city.

Companies with big cash turnovers — such as supermarkets and cinemas — siphoned off their surplus cash to big employers like factory owners in exchange for checks which can be cashed after the strike ends.

The big public utility companies, like the National Transport Company which collects about $60,000 fares on its Dublin buses each day, paid their employees without difficulty and had enough cash left over to pass on to others who had little coin coming in.

Trees, Lawn Create Setting

By JODY HEADLEE
Home Editor, The Pontiac Press

Wide expanses of green lawn punctuated by towering trees create an ideal setting for the Wendell Smiths' gracious farm colonial located on Carol Drive, Farmington.

Interesting antiques add decorator touches throughout the home's interior.

Serving as an end table to the gold chair before the living room fireplace is a brass trivet.

"The trivet," said Mrs. Smith, "was once used to keep foods warm. The back legs were set into the fireplace over the warm ashes and coals."

"Enough heat filtered through the trivet's top to keep the foods ready to serve."

Collector's items are displayed in the antiqued-red secretary.

TEA CADDY

A tin tea caddy, decorated in golf leaf on black, acts as the room's wood box.

Padded cornice boards and shades on the double glass doors match the fabric of the gold and black sofa.

Flanking the primitive oil over the small piano are crystal and brass candlesticks, heirlooms belonging to the Smith family.

In the nearby-dining room, wallpapered in a gold and white print above a white dado, are a collection of original Pennsylvania Dutch chairs.

The massive hutch, featuring turing tiger maple drawer faces, and the round tiger maple dining table are handmade reproductions of Early American pieces by Morris Reid.

Paneled in knotty pine, the home's library exudes an aura of warmth and charm. The whimsical black wrought iron rabbit holding a copper ash tray was forged by Mr. Smith.

Amber glass globes complement the wrought iron sconces above the room's black leather chairs.

Water Well Popularity Gains

Thousands of suburbanites throughout the United States have ordered water wells drilled on their property in recent months as the threat of water shortages in the years ahead continues to grow.

Those who acquired wells last summer enjoyed the advantages immediately.

While their neighbors' lawns withered and died, the well-owners' grounds were green and black of brown, burned out grass. Signs reading "Private Well" explained the green lawns to passers-by.

Real estate men have found that homes with water wells, installed at relatively low cost, are easier to sell — often at prices higher than could have been expected otherwise — because of the attractive lawns and the assurance of a reliable water supply.

The popularity of private water systems, particularly in suburban areas, is growing rapidly in this country.

SIMPLE ACT
Home owners have discovered that having a well of their own is a simple act of prudence, much like keeping a flashlight or first-aid kit handy, and makes possible many low-cost conveniences seldom enjoyed when metered water is the only source of supply.

According to William Barnes, vice president of the F. E. Myers and Bros. Co. of Ashland, O., the cost of an average well is about $225.

It can cost more, so the home owner should carefully check a number of factors before going into the project Barnes advises homeowners to:

- Get expert opinion on the kind of water he can expect to find under his land; its abundance; possible contamination, and the conditioning it will need. Water rights and laws should also be checked.

- Engage a skilled and reputable drilling contractor. There are 9,000 such firms in the United States.

- Review the drilling contract to make sure it is understood how deep the driller will go if he doesn't find water immediately; the equipment to be used; the tests to be conducted after finding water and the cost per foot of drilling.

Drilling costs range from $3 to $10 a foot, with $4 a common figure in many parts of the country.

TOTAL COST
How much will the total job cost? A good rule of thumb is double the cost of drilling, regardless of depth, Barnes says.

This covers such items as the pump, wiring, motor, wellscreen, seals and casing.

There are wide variations in equipment available, but the home owner is best advised to look for quality.

An inferior pump, for instance, could greatly lessen the value of the well by failing to produce enough water when it is needed.

FAMILY NEEDS

Most families need almost 50 gallons of water a day per person. To provide for future needs, most experts believe that the pump — the heart of the water system — should be capable of producing 50 per cent of more water than the amount being used when the pump is installed.

This insures that the pump need not be replaced for many years.

The suburban home owner will not of course, use his own water supply for all his family's needs, except in emergencies.

A good drilling contractor can match equipment to fit the needs of the owner, once it is explained just what the well will be used for and how often.

CONTRIBUTIONS

There are several reasons why a well contributes to the value of a home, and makes it more attractive to prospective buyers, Barnes says.

- It provides water to sprinkle lawns and shrubs at little or no cost, even though municipal water may be restricted during the summer months.

- The use of a well for all the family's needs only costs 2 to 4 cents a day, making it cheaper than municipal water in many cases.

- The home owner has guaranteed fire protection. Most home fires can be extinguished quickly in their early stages, but they get out of control if ample water is not available immediately.

- The owner has a low-cost, steady source of water for other jobs which might not be performed very often, if at all, with metered water.

- Delicious, cool deep-well water can do much to enliven the long summer months, as any farmer knows.

For the suburbanite, a well can provide a nostalgic glimpse of the time when life was a good deal less complex than it is today.

Factory Finish Reduces Cost

One of the reasons that nearly three out of four home builders are using prefabricated siding today is that the siding jobs cost less when the finish is applied in the factory.

The home owner also gets a better, longer-lasting exterior finish for his house in the bargain.

The additional cost of materials and labor for prefabricating mineral fiber shingles in the factory with an acrylic plastic coating is three to four cents per square foot.

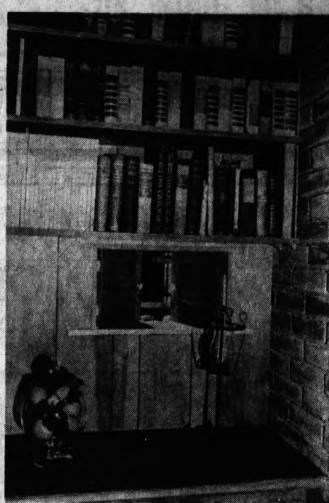

Painting the same shingles on the construction site would cost seven to eight cents per square foot and the finish would not be as good.

The result is that the owner saves three to four cents per square foot — or $40 to $60 for an average house — by using prefabricated mineral fiber shingles. In addition, he gets a material with a factory-cured acrylic plastic color coating that will last many years.

Fire Is Ranked First in Lumbering Output

Nearly one-fourth of all lumber produced in America is Douglas fir, reports the U.S. Bureau of Census.

Western pine species account for 14 per cent; southern pine, 17 per cent; hemlock, 7; other firs, 7; other softwood species, 11 per cent, and all hardwoods, 19 per cent.

Panels Help Accent Walls
Inexpensively

Glamor can be brought into your home with minor fuss or expense.

Does your living room need a focal point of interest? Are the walls a monotony of the same color paint or wallpaper?

A contrasting wall is the simple and effective way to brighten a room that needs something to give it character.

For example, choose a fireplace wall or one that can be a setting for a desk. A contrasting woodgrained panel will give you a beautiful accent wall. Hard boards are now available in teak, oak, pecan, birch, cherry and walnut.

From this selection of grains and colors, you can find one at your lumber yard that will give you a real conversation piece instead of a drab wall.

BOARDS CHEAP AND DURABLE

These woodgrained hardboards are inexpensive; yet they are top-notch reproductions on a dent and wear-resistant material that will last for many years. These panels are factory-finished and require no maintenance except damp-wiping.

Vinyl-clad wood molding to finish off the wall may be obtained, too. Use of adhesive instead of nails makes paneling a cinch for the do-it-yourselfer. Panels, moldings and the adhesive cartridges are available at lumber yards.

Mosquitoes Prefer Men, Tests Show

Mosquitoes prefer men to women, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Station at Gainesville, Fla.

Tests conducted with an insect repellent disclosed that the originally repelled skeeters returned to men who had been sprayed sooner than they did to women treated with the same repellent material.

The moral? Men need a man-sized aerosol can of insect repellent, while the ladies can afford to tote a smaller and daintier aerosol anti-insect spray.

All the wood in a house costs only 19 cents out of every dollar spent for construction, according to the U.S. Labor Department.

Texture in Carpets and Rugs Makes Unique Contribution

Texture in carpets and rugs makes a unique contribution to your home.

Although other floor coverings may simulate a textured appearance, only carpets and rugs offer the genuine comfort and safety of a soft pile surface underfoot.

Your choice of texture is largely a matter of personal preference.

Texture may help to establish the "mood" of a room—but there are no fixed rules in decorating to dictate your choice of loops, cut pile, twist yarns or variations of these styles.

As you shop for carpets, you may choose from these popular textures, among others:

Random-sheared texture is seen in many new carpets and rugs.

LOOPED PILE
This texture pattern is achieved when a carpet is constructed with looped pile, with some loops left purposely high.

These higher loops are then sheared, so that cut pile becomes part of the design—either in a "random" fashion or controlled for more precise design.

Random-shearing combines two basic textures—cut pile and looped pile.

Single-level cut pile is probably the most familiar of all carpet textures.

VELVETY APPEARANCE
It is often called "plush" or "velvet" because of its velvety appearance. (Technically, "velvet" refers to the particular type of carpet loom often used to achieve this texture.)

Looped pile is the opposite of cut pile—and there are many variations in this type of design.

Loops may be single-level, low and dense, for a hard-wearing carpet often used in "commercial" areas with heavy traffic.

Or, multi-level loops may be arranged to form texture patterns, such as geometric designs, swirls or circular motifs.

ANOTHER VARIATION
"Twist" or "fringe" textures offer still another variation.

Yarns are twisted or crimped for this shaggy effect. Shaggy textures are also seen in many new carpets and rugs.

Again, the pile yarns in shaggy textures may be cut or looped, twisted or left straight.

PREFERENCE IS KEY
You may choose long, shaggy textures of shorter yarns, depending on the appearance you prefer.

Sculptured designs are created in cut pile, in looped pile or in combinations of cut and uncut surface yarns.

In some sculptured or embossed textures, one level of looped yarn is pulled down tight, with another level of cut pile suggesting a pattern such as a leaf design or scrollwork.

Or designs may be carved into plush pile.

STONE EFFECT
A definite texture may give an interesting two-tone effect to a solid-color carpet.

Light is reflected in different ways from cut and looped pile, so that texture heightens color effects.

Texture is also related to the manner in which a carpet shows signs of use—although not to actual carpet quality.

It is a natural characteristic of "velvet" carpet to show shading, for example.

Shading is caused as tufts are bent and reflect light in different directions.

Bedrooms Can Serve as Private Worlds

Nowadays to get away from it, the "introverted bedroom" it all, the wise homemaker need for the person so utterly self-travel no farther than her bed—engrossed that surroundings are secondary to solitude, and the room, the private world into which she can retreat — and bedroom becomes a haven, not for its attractiveness, but because of the relative certainty of privacy.

With psychologists emphasizing the need for periods of solitude as a therapeutic antidote for our hectic lives, the bedroom has naturally been given top rating as that haven.

Individually — the "personal signature" — which marks bedroom decor more and more has been the natural result of the development of this room as an away-from-it-all nerve toric.

Study the average bedroom, and you have a pretty fair blueprint of the occupant. There is, as one decorator expressed pendant for a canopied bed, and the size of the room precludes this possibility, the wish can still be fulfilled with a simulated canopy, such as the one recently created by decorator Hugh Fettes for Berkshire-Hathaway company.

Using quantities of the firm's printed sheers, in a predominantly blue pattern called Verdante, Mr. Fettes enveloped a standard headboard in wall-drapes, fronted for the canopy effect with a valance extending from the ceiling.

As an accent for the blue floral print, he lined the draperies with a plain sheer, in a lime tone. The floral fabric was used for window draperies and bedspread.

Even the alcove bed has been revived as a sometime-island-of-seclusion. Tucked into draped wall niches, leaving floor space free for small desk or table and chair, the alcove bed allows the bedroom to once more become the boudoir where menus can be planned, bills paid — and general activities for the day mapped out.

The need for a personal sanctuary has not been confined to the adult world alone. More and more frequently, real attention is being given to the private world of the young, from the nursery to middle teen years.

Bright, wild colors, an abundance of cabinet space, an area for the phonograph and accompanying records and casually pillows for the teen-ager are the basic prerequisites.

A room recently planned with imagination for a six-year-old employed a red-and-white color scheme, a catch-eye choice for old and young alike.

Here, in the private world of the youthful occupant, naptime wasn't undertaken in full daylight: a ceiling-height screen covered with a red-and-white knight on horseback wallpaper, could be placed in front of the room's windows during naptime.

Red was used for a toy chest, a youth-sized bed, and as the inside color for a floor-to-ceiling shelf used to display favorite treasures.

In the belief that even an infant needs privacy, one ingenious homemaker created this for her baby — and for herself — right in her own and her husband's bedroom.

The crib — matched in wood to the adult furniture in the room — was placed against a free-standing wallboard, the latter painted to match the rest of the room's scheme.

An "awning" of a contrasting printed fabric, draped over a brass rod, and used likewise against the wallboard area, created an island of isolation — and privacy — within the room.

ANYTHING GOES

Almost anything goes in furnishing the bedroom today — as long as it isn't the old cut-and-dried bedroom suite of matched night tables, chests and beds.

Today, the bed may be a four poster, the chest an old semainier and the night stands coffee tables removed from their living room setting. If the room's occupant has a

ROCHESTER VILLAGE — A cooperative community of townhouses, Rochester Village is located on Patrick Henry Drive, two blocks west of the Mt. Clemens and Walton intersection in Pontiac Township. Each townhouse includes complete landscaping, storms and screens, copper plumbing, refrigerator, oven, range and garbage disposer, formica vanities, and face brick and aluminum siding exterior. One to four bedroom units are available. Model hours are noon to 8 p.m. Sunday through Wednesday and Friday. Saturday hours are from noon to 5 p.m. The townhouses are closed Thursday.

Leather Good for Upholstery

Leather upholstery can be rated as a good "buy" because it is comfortable, durable, and practical.

Leather cannot absorb stains, needs no slipcovers, and can be cleaned like new by wiping with soap or detergent suds, and should never be polished.

All these considerations are important when selecting home decor.

Courses Rewarding With Outside Help

Correspondence courses at Penn State are complete in themselves: purchase of supplemental textbooks isn't required.

However, outside reading in good texts, either purchased or borrowed from local libraries, makes the courses more rewarding.

Nearly 10,000 board feet of lumber goes into the average American home inspected by the Federal Housing Administration, states a recent FHA report.

Prefabricated Fireplaces a Success

An indoor fireplace can make you feel that it is good to be alive on a bitter cold day.

But some people buy houses when it is hot outdoors and they think about swimming pools and patios.

Along comes the cold weather, and they begin to think about the coziness of a hearth they don't have, as one woman points out.

"I told my husband we could do without a fireplace when we bought our new home. We both miss it."

"Is it safe to put in one of those standing fireplaces one sees in newspaper advertisements?"

'BLAMES ME'

"I don't want to mention it to my husband if it can't be done, as he blames me for the lack."

"Is one kind better than another? Some people tell me that such contraptions are dangerous."

"Is it terribly expensive to hook up to whatever you hook it to?"

Prefabricated fireplaces are being used successfully in a great many homes where the fireplace is an afterthought, even on the part of the builder. They cost so much less than a built-in hearth that some builders prefer them.

The most successful styles are those that look like invested funnels, often used in the corner of a room. The flue is attached to the wall or ceiling.

In one-story ranch houses fireplaces may be used in the center of a room. If the room is very large (the kind that combines everything—living, dining, den as in a modern house) the fireplace may be a full-scale brick deal in the room center, going straight up through the ceiling.

Many people lived with old-fashioned kerosene and oil burners that were far more risky than these fireplaces might be. And the small coal stove worked pretty much on the same principle as the present fireplace.

Shoe Polish Repairs Furniture Scratches

If your wood furniture has minor scratches, select a paste shoe polish to match the color of the wood.

A well-known company's wax consumer service advises applying the wax to the scratch with a cotton-tipped toothpick. Let it dry and rub to a shine.

Perhaps we are going back to that.

It's important when making an improvement of this sort to get professional help, someone who can read the builder's house plan, as there are some factors to be considered if the idea is to jell.

Some houses are tinder-boxes and a professional is needed to insure safety factors.

Good Screens Halt the Insect Invasion

Beware of the Anopheles quadrimaculatus, the Aedes aegypti or Aedes taeniorhynchus, and the Culex quinquefasciatus.

They are just as dangerous as the names sound, being respectively, the common malaria mosquito, the mosquitoes which carry yellow fever, and the southern house mosquito.

Mosquitoes as well as flies and other plague-to-man insects exist in every state of continental United States.

"These insects along with houseflies are prevented from entering the household through the use of screening," according to the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Public Health Service.

Screening with a mesh size 18x18, 16x16, 14x14, 12x12, 10x10 and 8x8 all exclude the domestic fly, the common malaria mosquito and the southern house mosquito.

SMALLER MESH

"However, in localities where small flying insects such as gnats, leaf-hoppers and sand flies are abundant, or where smaller mosquitoes (such as the yellow fever mosquito) are prevalent, the use of 18x18 mesh is recommended."

The Health Service also states, "It is essential that the screens be well-fitted and that screen doors open outward; that all screens, whether in doors, windows, ventilation ports, etc., should be kept in good repair."

For vents, the Service recommends, "If roof ventilator openings or sides are less than 36" above the roof, then window screening should be applied to keep out rodents as well as insects."

Thus, the importance of good screening for windows and doors as an insect control measure to safeguard public health cannot be taken lightly.

RIGHT TIME

With the approach of summer, it is time now to make certain your window and door screening is in good condition.

If your screening is rusty, floppy, torn at the frames, warped, full of large holes, etc. it should be replaced with new rust-proof aluminum screening to keep all the flying, crawling, creeping insects and rodents out of your home.

Or, this spring and summer is the right time to have aluminum combination windows and doors installed on your house.

The convenience, home beautification and fuel saving they offer is an investment you won't regret.

ECONOMICAL

Replacing old screening with new rust-proof aluminum screening is economically sound for aluminum won't rot, warp or fade and lasts as long as the material to which it is installed, according to the Insect Wire Screening Bureau.

It is not affected by the ultraviolet rays of the sun, the Bureau reports, and will not rust-stain siding or windows.

For these and many other reasons, seven out of eight homeowners prefer aluminum screening.

They like the low maintenance feature of aluminum screening and the fact that the material doesn't attract dust and dirt electrostatically.

This means the aluminum mesh doesn't fill up, but lets light and air pass through.

Cleaning aluminum screening is simple. The bureau recommends brushing the screening lightly with a mild detergent-water solution and rinsing with clear cold water.

ERA PASSES—Soon the Victorian mansion, overlooking Cass and Orchard Lakes, which was completed by Dr. David Ward in the mid-1890's, will pass into memory. The 15-acre wooded parcel and home on Orchard Lake, West Bloomfield Township; was purchased by area residents, Elmer Boch, Ernest Fuller, Kenneth Hedges, Albert Stanker and William Wottowa as a site for their new homes. Norman Rice, Realtor, of 7070 Commerce, West Bloomfield Township; handled the business transaction.

Elements Take Toll on Houses

Sunlight, moisture, wind and fire are the four deadly horsemen that prey on houses.

Each year thousands of homes are damaged or destroyed by the elements. In many cases, premature deterioration could have been averted in the design stage.

Roofs and sidings take the heaviest punishment from elemental home wreckers.

Here is how the elements do their deadly work:

• Sunlight causes paint to fade and dries out building materials.

Building products manufacturers devise many ways to defeat the sun's destructive rays. One method used successfully is to coat the material with mineral granules that absorb the rays.

Another method is to filter out harmful rays. An example of a filter-type finish is the acrylic plastic coatings used on mineral fiber sidings.

• Moisture from leaks and condensation can damage gypsum cardboard, plaster and woodwork and cause paint to peel.

You can prevent this type of damage by repairing leaks promptly and caulking joints where leaks are likely to occur, such as around windows, doors and sills.

Provision for adequate ventilation for the attic, insulation of water pipes, use of effective storm sash or insulating glass on windows and use of "breather-type" exterior materials are some ways to prevent damage by condensation or trapped moisture.

• Wind damages homes by hurling debris, knocking over trees, blowing off shingles and putting tremendous pressure on building materials.

The proper precautions can curtail this type of damage. Trim branches or cut down trees that threaten to damage your house. Batten down loose objects before a storm. Specify self-sealing asphalt shingles for your roof if you're building, expanding or reroofing. These shingles are certified as "wind-resistant" by the Underwriters Laboratories.

• Fire is a menace to both life and property. It can destroy in a few minutes what has taken a lifetime to build and accumulate.

MASTER BEDROOM—The spacious bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Engel of 1545 Lane Pine, Bloomfield Township, reflects a Mediterranean influence in its furnishings. A watercolor spread in shades of lavender stripes enhances the king-size bed's gold-leaf headboard. Serving an occasional chair, covered in a shade of lavender floral print, is a hand-wrought iron table. Figurine lamps on slate-topped hexagon tables help light the area.

Carpeting Belongs Throughout Home

Upstairs or down, carpet belongs in your home.

And in between—on the stairway—carpets are really at their best. It's one area of the house where they are almost indispensable.

For safety reasons alone, stairways should be securely carpeted. The carpet provides a safe, non-slip flooring and cushions any falls that do occur.

But just as important to many home owners is carpet's ability to muffle noise. The clatter of footsteps on stairs, the airborne noises that float up and down—both are effectively hushed by carpet.

Add the comfort of a carpeted stairway for busy homemakers who go up and down the steps many times a day—plus the decorative possibilities of carpet—and it's easy to see why carpet is nearly always installed in this important area.

The quality of carpet is an important consideration for stairways.

Although you may choose a lesser quality for light-traffic areas, stairways bear the heaviest traffic load in most homes and it would be foolish economy to install a carpet meant for light use.

Carpets of dense construction with tightly-packed surface yarns are essential for stairways.

Tight-loop textures are often chosen because of their ability to hide signs of daily use; however, cut-pile textures in dense constructions also hold up well.

PRACTICAL COLOR
It is important to pick a practical color for this area. Medium shades, color mixtures and patterns are best at concealing soil between cleanings.

The stairway carpet need match the carpet in adjoining areas. It can be chosen in a harmonizing color, texture or pattern.

Some carpet is made in a 27-inch width for use in "runner" form on stairways. More frequently, however, carpet is cut to fit stairways from broadloom rolls of any standard width.

Padding of good quality is especially important to protect against the pounding of footsteps on the stairs.

However, it's best to avoid padding that is too thick or too bouncy since a firm, taut installation is essential for stairway safety.

Nail 'Power' a Key Factor

Since most American homes are held together by structural frameworks of lumber, home security depends largely on the nail-holding power of the framing lumber.

Some species of lumber have greater natural nail-holding ability than others. These differentials should be carefully weighed in choice of species.

The lumber should be properly seasoned and preservative before being surfaced to final dimensions and other home handyman projects.

Secret arms stores have been found in Ireland.

Booklet Contains 'Handyman Hints'

"Hints to the Handyman" is a 16-page, free booklet containing 45 ideas on home improvement projects.

Included are professional tips on working with Masonite hardboard panels.

Projects for which plans are offered include children's playhouses, garage or carport storage room, roll-away cabinets, wall desk and remodeled attic.

Send a postcard for the booklet to the Home Service Bureau, Masonite Corporation, Box B, Chicago, Ill. 60680. It has a postage-free card on which to circle the plans of your selection.

DICKIE LUMBER

Mon. thru Fri., 8 to 8:30 — Sat. 8 to 1 P.M.

FROM CHAOS—In the stage of remodeling, the kitchen of the John Greenleys, 2803 Mackintosh, Bloomfield Township, was hardly an ideal work center. But Bloomfield Custom Kitchens of 4068 W. Maple, Bloomfield Township, would soon wave the wand of work and create an answer to a homemaker's dream.

TO CONVENIENCE — Plastic laminate in a mist white covers the work counter while red brick adds color spice to the splash panel. The floor is carpeted in a red on red. "And do I love the carpeting," said Mrs. Greenley. "If I would have known how much work it would save me, I'd have done it a long time ago. Spills wipe up with a whisk and the kitchen always looks nice."

Sew Center Hangs on Door

A "sew-door," for which Masonite Corp., has a free plan, offers an answer to a familiar dilemma — lack of space. This sewing center is hung on a closet door.

In its closed position, the "sew-door" disappears in the closet when the door is shut. When opened, the let-down table offers a smooth, splinter-free surface of tempered preswood two feet wide and 55 inches long. The sewing area is the space into which the door normally swings.

There's no more than a let-down table, however. This clever device includes a stage unit extending from the working table surface to the bottom of the door.

Accessible from one end is space for storing a portable sewing machine. With the seamsstress seated at the table, the other end of this cabinet offers a drawer and two peg-board surfaces for storage of spools, thread and other sewing accessories.

While using the sewing center, the homemaker has handy, on the upper part of the door, an dilemma — lack of space. This sewing center is hung on a closet door.

Operating the "sew-door" is a one-woman operation. From its secure position against the door, the homemaker simply unfastens a lock pin and lets the table swing down. Its leg is a framed panel of perforated hardboard.

This handy door can be built by the average home craftsman in an evening or two, using light lumber and hardboard specified in the plan.

The approximate cost of the materials is $30, or less than the cost of a sewing machine cabinet. Against a white-painted door, the table top and leg may be primed and painted white—and the balance of the "sew-door" finished in a color blending with other decor in the room.

For a copy of the free plan, send a postcard to Masonite, Box B, Chicago, Ill. 60690, requesting No. AE-204.

Congress established the strategic materials stockpiling program after World War II with the Strategic and Critical Stockpile Act of 1946.

Prospective Buyer Check List

A good resolution for persons who plan to buy or build homes this year is this:

- Do not become so engrossed with color schemes, conveniences and surface frills that you lose sight of the basic fundamentals of a sound investment. Be alert to all details—however obscure—that have vital bearing on the performance and ultimate worth of the dwelling.
- If you do, home buying is likely to be a highly rewarding experience as well as a fascinating adventure.
- Here is an outline of some important ground to cover before you build or buy:
 - Do zoning laws or building codes protect the neighborhood from invasion by undesirable commercial structures? Your dream house may become a nightmare if a glue factory moves next door!
 - Be on guard against hidden costs. If you are planning to build in a newly developed subdivision, will the community pay for offsite improvements, such as sewerage and paved streets, or will you have to pick up part of the tab?
 - Is the yard properly graded to drain water away from the house? A big yard is small comfort if you have to do your barbecuing in hip boots!
 - Attractive shade trees are size.

fine. But be sure they aren't of the nuisance variety that attract insects and otherwise make a mess of your yard.

- The fresh beauty of a newly built home may be deceptive. If the structural framework is unsound, the house grows old before its time.
- Squeaky floors, sagging ceilings, wrinkled wallpaper, pliance cracks, sticking windows and doors are some of the costly consequences of structural deficiencies. So, protect yourself here!
- While you do not see the framework in a completed home, it's easy to check its quality.
 - With a few discreet inquiries, you can ascertain the reputation and professional standing of the builder. Responsible builders are proud of hidden values they provide and welcome inquiries from informed buyers on the fine points of structural soundness.
 - The structural framework is formed with lumber. But not just any kind will do. In the case of a ready-built home, ask the builder to let you check the lumber specifications.
 - The "specs" should show a moisture content limitations, indicating that the lumber was properly seasoned and pre-bored before being surfaced to final size.

Nails will not loosen in pre-shrunk lumber as they do when unseasoned material dries in service.

- The number and quality of bathrooms always get close attention from home shoppers. But what about safety features? Are grab rails installed in the tub area? Are light switches out of reach of the bather?
- Are water pipes protected against freezing? Are hot water lines insulated to minimize heat loss? Are plumbing connections easily accessible in case they need repair?
- It's nice to have an abundance of appliances, lighting, TV and air conditioning—but only if the wiring is sufficient to handle the load.
- Of course, there are other important questions to ask and have answered. Additional information can be obtained by writing Southern Pine Association, P.O. Box 52669, New Orleans, Louisiana 70150, for a free copy of "Home Buyer's Guide."

Steam Iron for Marks

To remove crush marks on carpet, or pressure marks left by furniture, try a steam treatment.

Hold a steam iron just above the carpet, without pressing down on the iron.

When the spot has been steamed for a few seconds, a brush pile gently with your fingers to restore the carpet's original appearance.

When Buying a Home

Furnace, Humidifier Need Close Check

Be sure to include the furnace on your list of features to check if you're buying a home this spring and summer. And pay particular attention to the humidifier (or lack of one).

During the spring-through-fall home buying season, when the weather is warm, many shoppers tend to take the furnace for granted. But any deficiencies, especially in humidification, quickly become apparent when the heating season begins.

Without a humidifier to restore the air's moisture content, a furnace is only doing a half job, and in fact may be doing actual damage to the home, according to humidity engineer, Burton Shaffer.

Heating dries the air. Dry air acts like a sponge, and tries to regain moisture from everything it touches.

"This dry air literally draws moisture from walls, furniture, carpeting, draperies, and even from your skin, nose, and throat," he said.

MAIN SYMPTOMS

Symptoms of insufficient humidity are chapped skin; dry nose and throat; static electricity; furniture that becomes loose at the joints; nail popping through drywall; and a cold feeling even when the thermostat is set at 72 degrees.

The problem is especially apparent in new homes. The materials used in the home, such as concrete, wood, and paint, have a high moisture content at first. As these materials dry out, the relative humidity in the home drops. Doors begin to warp out of shape, windows stick, and moldings may pull loose.

A proper humidifier is the only way to remedy the problem in new and old homes. Humidifiers can be of the furnace or portable type. Furnace humidifiers are usually best because they add moisture at a point where it can be circulated evenly throughout the house through the duct system.

Since the humidifier has such an important role to play, Shaffer suggests you use these pointers in evaluating the humidifier on your furnace:

- Is the humidifier of sufficient capacity to maintain a desired 35 to 45 per cent relative humidity level? To do so, the humidifier should be able to evaporate up to 40 gallons of water per day.

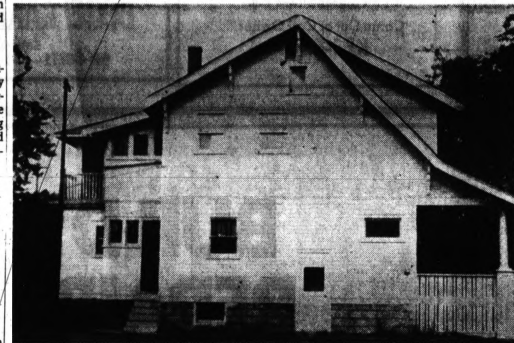

- Will the humidifier work with all kinds of water? In many hard water areas some humidifiers quickly "lime up" and quit entirely. Choose a humidifier that resists the effects of liming and corrosion.

- Is the humidifier easy to service? The best kind of humidifier is one that requires little or no service. A periodic draining of the water reservoir is suggested.

- Is the humidifier built to withstand rust? Stainless steel reservoirs, architectural bronze and polypropylene fittings resist corrosion and wear. Your humidifier should last as long as your furnace does.

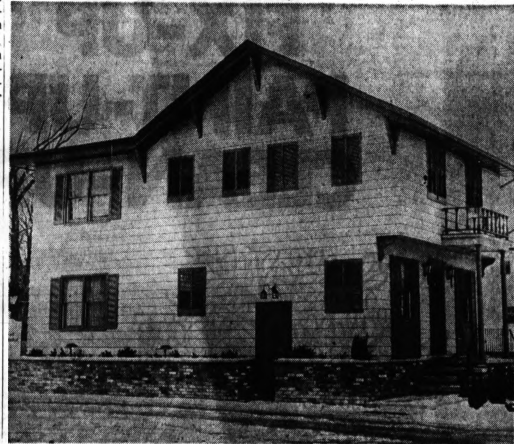

"Whether your house is new or old, make sure it has a good humidifier," Shaffer said. "Your plumbing or heating contractor can give you reliable help in choosing a model best for your home."

BEFORE AND AFTER — The transition from a conventional home (above) to a modern podiatry center (below) was completed in six weeks. Melvin Eller, general contractor, of 1067 James K handled the remodeling project at the H. H. Curson D. S. C. clinic, 536 W. Huron.

Painting Suggestions Listed

In the spring, a home owner's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of painting the outside of his house.

Sometimes he gets no farther than the thinking stage. Sometimes he decides to hire someone else to do the job. And sometimes (according to statistics, lots of times) he actually gets around to buying the paint and going to work on the old homestead.

It is for the gentleman who will be doing the latter that we have drawn up a list of 10 "things to remember" before and during the painting.

- You save hundreds of dollars by doing it yourself. Don't risk a poor result by trying to save a few dollars on inferior paint.

- If you paint directly over wrinkled, blistered and peeling surfaces, you are asking for trouble. When the exterior of a house is in poor condition, it often is necessary to spend more time scraping, brushing, caulking and cleaning than in the actual painting.

- Just as you protect your furniture when painting indoors, protect plants and shrubbery when painting outdoors. Large dropcloths can be used for this purpose, moving them around the house as you change your position.

- Whenever possible, work on the side of the house where the sun has already been. This prevents the rays of the sun from drying out the paint too rapidly.

DAMP SURFACE

- Don't paint over damp surfaces or during conditions of fog or high humidity. With certain types of latex paint, high humidity is less important — but first read the label on the container.

- The best time to paint is when the temperature is in the neighborhood of 70 degrees Fahrenheit, but since this isn't always practical, at least be sure that the temperature is not likely to drop below 40 degrees that night or the next morning.

- Professionals have various methods of painting a house, but since you don't have their equipment, it's best to start at an upper corner of the house, usually the left-hand corner, and work downward.

(You can get Andy Lang's booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, N. Y. 11431.)

- In placing the ladder against the house, the distance from the base to the foundation should be about one-fourth the height of the ladder.

- The brush should be dipped about halfway, with the excess patted off on the side of the container. Work in toward the wet paint, using wide, firm strokes. When using a roller, do not overload it and do not spin it at the end of a stroke.

- If you do not complete the job at one time and must stop over, try to halt at a corner or some place where lap marks will not show.

Some paints these days show little or no lap marks, but it's still wise to complete an entire section of the house before taking a break.

Mattress Law Is Designed to Protect Buyer

While it is probably not generally known, there is a state law, in effect for nearly 50 years, which is designed to protect the purchaser of a mattress or comforter.

Under this law, each mattress or comforter manufactured or sold in Michigan must have a brand or label attached to it describing the materials used in its manufacture, its total weight, and the percentage of each material used.

If the material used for stuffing mattresses or comforters is not new, it must be cleaned, sterilized, or renovated so as to become thoroughly safe and healthful.

Any manufacturer or retailer who sells or attempts to sell any mattress or comforter which is not branded or labeled in accordance with the present law or who falsely brands or labels any such mattress or comforter, or who knowingly mislabels such mattress or comforter, is subject to prosecution and, upon conviction, may be fined up to $500 or imprisoned in the county jail for up to 6 months, or both.

Any person who has reason to believe that this law has been violated should bring the matter to the attention of the prosecuting attorney of his county, or the attorney general.

FARMINGTON VILLAGE — A townhouse community, Farmington Village is located on Nine Mile and Gill roads in Farmington. Hub of the luxury development is the private clubhouse with its 2100-foot U-shaped swimming pool. One- to three-bedroom townhouses are available, each with a full basement. All have private entrances, front and rear, a back yard, fenced for privacy, and are air conditioned.

Wrought Iron Accessories in Tune With Latest Vogue

The current vogue of Mediterranean and other provincial furniture styles has focused new light on the decorating potential and versatility of wrought iron accessories.

In fact, the lightness and grace of a wrought iron accent — such as a lamp or tea cart — is often just what a room needs to balance massive case goods and upholstered pieces.

Accessories run the gamut from small planters, headboards for beds, including occasional furniture such as small chairs and tables. To further expand their adaptability, most wrought iron accessories are available in a rainbow of colors.

Styling consultant June Woodard notes that because they are so compatible with almost any type of decor, wrought iron accessories make excellent gifts for a variety of occasions from birthdays to housewarmings.

"For example, a wrought iron planter or candelabra might be given as a tasteful and yet inexpensive touch for a hall, living room, or dining room," she said.

MORE ELABORATE

Something a bit more elaborate in the gift category could be a bar cart that may be converted to a charcoal barbecue simply by sliding in the broiling unit. The cart thereby can be used year-round, inside the home and out.

Miss Woodard explained that many accessories were developed to go along with complete wrought iron ensembles.

"But idea-wise homemakers have been quick to grasp the possibilities of using these accessories with furniture of all types to give their rooms a fresh new look," she said.

Decorating with wrought iron isn't limited to rooms furnished in the Mediterranean and provincial styles, she said. Wrought iron can also be used tastefully with contemporary and traditional furniture.

QUITE AT HOME

"A pair of wrought iron lamps with white drum shades will look quite at home on a pair of Sheraton or Duncan Phyfe ensembles," she said. "And a wrought iron candelabra has a softening effect when used over a Danish Modern buffet or sideboard."

Some of the accessories can even be used in bedrooms. At minimum cost, a bed can be fitted with a wrought iron headboard and thus be given an "heirloom" appearance completely at home in modern surroundings.

The bedroom can further be accessorized in wrought iron with the addition of a lamp table to serve as a nightstand, a lamp, and an occasional chair with upholstered back and seat, perhaps with a matching ottoman for chaise longue comfort.

A small round table with two correlated chairs, scaled for a twosome breakfast, is the last word in master bedroom luxury.

RANGE OF COLORS

The range of colors in which wrought iron accessories are available plays a major part in their acceptance. In Woodard's own line, nine color finishes are offered: ciel blue, black, tropical green, antique lead, gardenia, pompeian green, sunflower and Tuscan blue and white. All are applied by a method

It's modern at its best thinks Mrs. Bluebird in the window. She likes the angles and wide perches. Her mate reminds her that they require a deep nest space. That is perfect too. The floor is faded. They use the window anyway. Pattern 481, which gives actual-size guides for this house, is 35c. It is also in the new Birdhouse and Feeder Packet No. 79 for $1.

Atrium Offers Setting

Many new homes are equipped with swimming pools for which the atrium offers an ideal setting.

The atrium home is built around a centrally located courtyard. With the house raising a stout buffer against busy streets and neighboring yards on all sides of the pool area, you can swim and sunbathe in complete privacy.

The arrangement also eliminates concern as to the safety of neighborhood urchins who might be tempted to hop less imposing barriers for an uninvited swim.

The outdoor living area is concentrated by the atrium plan and much larger than would be possible with separate front, side and back yards. This assures ample space for your pool and room around it for games and other recreation.

Most rooms of atrium homes have at least two outer walls. Those facing the street or neighboring abodes show inviting but discreet facades or rough sawn lumber under ceiling level clerestory windows. The latter let in light but maintain privacy for occupants.

WINDOW AREAS

Large window areas are concentrated on walls facing the inner courtyard toward which the rooms are oriented. Thus, each room shares the attractive view of pool and play areas. The outdoors blends with the interior design which makes rooms look larger and brighter.

A congenial, practical companion-piece for your atrium-centered pool is a wood sundeck. The latter can be as large or as small as you like—in effect an extension of the floors of your dwelling.

The wood surface is easy on your feet. And since wood does not reflect heat, you can sunbathe on warm summer days without blistering your skin.

Because of high resistance to wear and ease of treatment, seasoned wood is an ideal species for exposed sun decks.

Usage Varies on Partitions

Partitions can do more than divide rooms and living areas. They can also provide storage and artfully camouflaged enclosures for TV and hi-fi.

Storage dividers of lumber can be beautifully finished to blend with the room color scheme.

When the partitions are of less than floor-to-ceiling height, there's a tempting glimpse of what lies beyond.

The use of functional dividers generates additional space for family living. They are especially well adapted to wood plank-and-beam homes.

Heated Tubs Catching On

Heated bathtubs are catching on with home owners across the nation. Thousands of homeowners are adding this inexpensive, but luxurious touch to their modern bathrooms, and they have a good point.

Why put up with a chill when your back touches the part of the tub above the water level?

It is relatively simple to install a heated bathtub when remodeling the bathroom if you have a hydronic (modern hot water) heating system.

Before the new bathtub is put in place, have your plumbing-heating contractor place a piece of tubing or heating element to the heating system's piping. This will heat the tub and make it act as a radiator.

Here's another tip. Have your contractor install a modern baseboard heating unit in the bathroom, if you don't already have one.

L-SHAPED RANCH—Effective use of horizontal stretches of brick veneer gives contemporary tone to this three-bedroom ranch; white gravel asphalt roof provides desirable reflective value, but darker tones can be used if desired.

L-Shaped Ranch Has Cathedral Ceiling

This stylish L-shaped ranch house of contemporary design features a cathedral ceiling in the combination living room dining room area.

Exposed beams following the roof line increase the feeling of spaciousness.

The technique adds height to the rooms as well as setting an informal pace for interior decorating.

It is further enhanced by a floor-to-ceiling four-section window wall which takes up nearly the entire rear wall, more than 24' long.

SUBSTITUTES

Although other materials could be substituted for the exterior, the plans of architect William G. Chirgois call for a pleasing combination of brick veneer and random-width, V-joint, red cedar vertical siding.

A built-up white gravel asphalt roof is specified for its reflecting insulating value.

The free and uncluttered exterior is in perfect harmony with the open living pattern within a pattern characterized by maximum use of every square foot of floor space.

All parts of this latest House of the Week are immediately accessible from the main entrance foyer.

Straight ahead is the combination living room dining room; to the left is the bedroom wing; and to the right are the family room and the kitchen, each of which can be entered separately without crossing the other.

Because of its size and location, the family room tends to keep other areas of the house free from traffic, as it can easily accommodate a large table for informal family dining.

Its proximity to the kitchen makes it convenient for the person who does the serving.

STEP-SAVER

The step-saving kitchen arrangement has a full complement of appliances and is shielded from the dining room by a partition.

It provides a large countertop area and a maximum number of cabinets in a minimum amount of space.

The picture window in the dinette and the window over the kitchen sink assure plenty of light and air.

That window overlooks a 12'6" by 9' porch, which adjoins the rear service entry, mud room closet and laundry.

It is rare indeed when, as in this case, the lady of the house can move from the kitchen to the foyer, living room, dining room, bedroom wing or basement — and never once set foot in any other room!

The three bedrooms are nicely arranged, with excellent ventilation and just enough hall space to permit easy circulation.

The master bedroom has two closets and a full bath, including an oversized tiled shower stall. The main family bath is within a few steps of the other two bedrooms and the living section of the house.

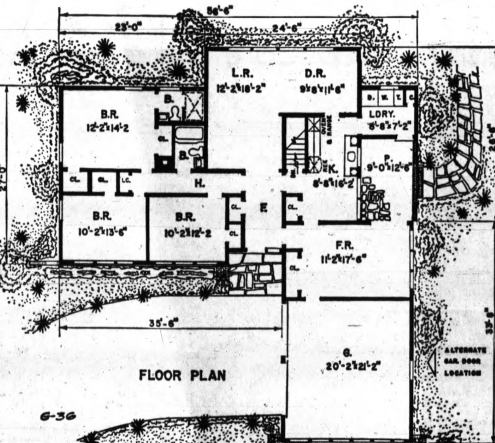

With a habitable area of 1686 square feet, this dwelling has a full basement that can add more living and storage space for the family that wishes it.

These days a large recreation room in the basement, with perhaps a billiard or table tennis setup, is becoming something of a status symbol.

G-36 STATISTICS

Design G-36 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, family room, three bedrooms, two baths, laundry, side porch and two-car garage. The living area, excluding the porch and garage, totals 1,686 square feet. The overall dimensions, including the garage, are 56'6" by 60'2". The plans include a full basement.

FLOOR PLANS—An excellent traffic pattern features room arrangement of Design G-36. Especially note how the kitchen is accessible to all other rooms, as well as to the laundry. Kitchen windows overlook a side porch, and separate entryway.

Measure Rollers if Replacing Shades

If you plan to replace your old window shades with new ones, and the former fit and hang satisfactorily, be sure to take the width measurement from the rollers, not from the shades themselves.

Use a wood or metal ruler and measure the old rollers from tip to tip, including the little metal pins on each end.

Do's, Don'ts for People in Path of Planned Road

Few people enjoy the prospect of a new road taking over the living room they love.

The traumatic experience throws people who are in a new highway's path into reverse gear.

Everyone lives in a state of suspended mental anguish.

The idea keeps creeping up, even though it is years away, and nothing seems to have been resolved.

Do you stay in the hope that the road will make a wrong turn and isolate your castle from the whole catastrophe? Or do you sell out, making tracks while you can escape the road digger?

BIG DECISION
It's a big decision to make.

As for selling a marked home — will anyone want to buy a house that is teetering on a bulldozer's blade?

It keeps home owners under wraps for years, and people flit with indecision over long periods due to the uncertainties. There are those who have invested savings in land with the hope of building a house.

"Do we build and enjoy a house for a few years in hopes of getting our investment out? Or do we keep our funds tied up in the land so that we can't build elsewhere until the road question is settled?" they ask.

There is the man who has worked hard to pay off the mortgage on the house of his dreams, wanting to settle back and enjoy retirement some day in the community.

"Do we gamble that perhaps like a bad dream, it'll go away? Or do we unload the house now?"

And what if we do and are punished by seeing the road take another direction and leave our house intact?"

IN SAFE AREA

People buy land in the same town in a safe area if they are financially secure.

They'll build if the road takes their present house and sell the land if it doesn't.

Others, like one couple, rent their house, buying a new one in the same town with the idea that "if the road doesn't take the house, we'll go back. If it is razed, we'll hope to get out our investment."

No one is harder hit than the do-it-yourselfer who has put much of himself into his home, and thinks of it as an artist thinks of his canvas.

He is reluctant to part with his brawn-child. He is long past his do-it-yourselfer prime and his solution is "buy some land nearby and move the house."

Even people with gypsy moving habits are affected, though their worries are more financial than sentimental.

Will they get their money out of the house? And how soon?

A man transferred by his employer to a new city is in a real squeeze.

CAN RENT

If he can afford to pony up another down payment for a new house, he can rent his present home until paid off by the road builders.

There are endless meetings with everyone trying to get the road mapped in another direction.

There are the surveyors moving in with little markers everywhere as people with throbs in their throats pull down the window shades to shut out the inevitable.

The road is five or more years away and the legislature hasn't even appropriated the money, but the road is coming, they know, and it is taking more from than it will give in return.

ANOTHER JAM

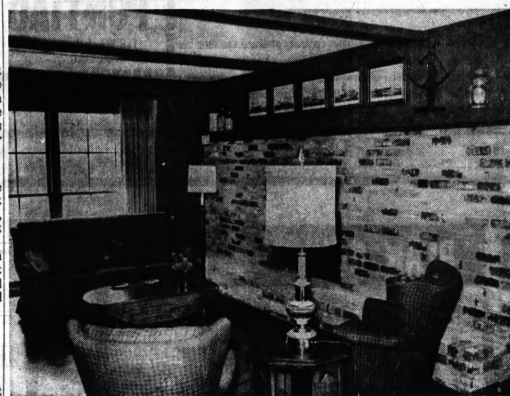

Nostalgia sets in 10 years too soon as the lady of the house becomes misty-eyed at the sight of her favorite bluebirds nesting near the house, watches the dogwood in bloom and puts up another year's jam, courtesy of her strawberry patch.

For most people, happiness has been out short. It is like hanging on to a cliff's edge with the keys to Utopia in your pocket.

"... Let's not spend money on that new patio ... we shouldn't add that extra room ... there's no point in repairing the roof ... let's not put any more money in that driveway."

Spring Cleaning Bed Care

High on your spring cleaning task list should be a thorough once-over for every mattress and box spring in the house.

That's the word from manufacturers of innerspring and foam rubber mattresses.

Even though they're protected by linens and blankets, beds may become soiled and dusty through the winter months.

So it's important to give each bed special attention at least once a year, ideally in the spring.

Here's the recommended procedure:

• Strip off all coverings, including the mattress pad, and open a window to let in plenty of fresh air.

• With the upholstery tool of your vacuum cleaner, go over all surfaces of both spring and mattress to pull out loose soil and fluff the "innards." If you don't have the necessary tool, use a whisk broom.

• If ticking is soiled, clean it with dry suds from a rich solution of mild soap or detergent and lukewarm water. Be careful to use only the suds, to avoid getting the mattress wet. Rinse suds away with a sponge wrung out in clear water. Let one side dry thoroughly before cleaning the other.

(You may be able to hasten drying by using a fan, the blower attachment of your vacuum cleaner, or even a hair dryer.)

• Be sure the mattress pad is clean before putting it back on the bed. It's a good idea to launder mattress pads every other month during the winter, and once a month during summer because of the perspiration the pad absorbs.

CLEANING WORRIES

Faithful use of a mattress pad can save you many mattress cleaning worries. The pad's main purpose is to absorb the half-pint of moisture the average person's body produces during a night's sleep. If there's no pad, this moisture goes directly into the mattress and ruins it.

Spring cleaning also offers a good opportunity to check on the general condition of each mattress and spring. If there are gaps in the stitching, missing tufts, or noticeable low spots in the surface, it may be time to think of replacements for greater sleeping comfort.

Paneling Improves Drab, Dingy Room

Striking depth and vitality can be given to drab, dingy room walls by applying modern patterns of wood paneling directly to existing surfaces.

With the new patterns, there is a slight spacing between panels so that thickness is visible as well as length and width. This creates a three-dimensional impression.

Floor Helps 'Big' Picture

Hard flooring helps give a spacious, uncluttered look to a room.

Crowded, small rooms can be made to appear larger using dense, durable materials.

A floor of ceramic tile will not only turn this trick but also will be resistant to moisture, heat, stains, and heavy wear and never need waxing.

Don't Put Bookshelves Near Heat, Sunlight

Never build bookshelves over radiators or near windows where books get strong sunlight. Heat and sun will warp and fade your books.

Age of Electronic Cooking Is Here!

The Electronic Age came zipping through the kitchen door today with the introduction here of a revolutionary electronic cooking center designed for the American home.

As a conventional kitchen appliance, it heralds a new revolution for the homemaker — as significant a step in the preparation of food as was the introduction of electricity in its day.

The culmination of a 15-year research program, the electronic cooking center was unveiled at a special press showing in Chicago by the Tappan Co. the world's largest independent manufacturer of cooking ranges and the pioneer in the development of electronic ovens.

The unit is identical in size, shape, and styling to free-standing conventional gas and electric ranges — but the resemblance ends there. In terms of speed, convenience, and versatility, the electronic range has no equal.

The electronic oven in the Tappan center is eye-level, operated by a set of simple controls. A lower conventional electric oven, and four cooking surface elements are incorporated into the unit.

The most wondrous aspect of electronic cooking is its phenomenal speed — only 50 minutes to cook a 14-pound turkey, six minutes for a two-layer cake and a mere 30 seconds for the traditional "three-minute breakfast egg."

Teaming speed with convenience, however, is the real "revolution" which the electronic range will trigger in the home — the incredibly-fast preparation of complete, nutritious meals for the family.

Here are four astonishing examples:

- Baked ham dinner with glazed pineapple, sweet potatoes, buttered spinach, and cream pie with graham cracker crust: 3 hours, 47 minutes conventionally, 1 hour, 20 minutes electronically. A savings of 2 hours, 27 minutes.

- Porterhouse steak dinner with baked potatoes, green bean casserole, baked apples and chocolate eclair: 1 hour, 30 minutes conventionally, 17 minutes electronically. A savings of 1 hour, 13 minutes.

- Baked stuffed fish dinner with scalloped potatoes, buttered beets, and lemon meringue pie: 1 hour, 30 minutes conventionally, 29 minutes electronically. A savings of 1 hour, 2 minutes.

- Roast turkey dinner with stuffing, mashed potatoes, brussels sprout, and steamed date pudding with lemon sauce: 5 hours, 45 minutes conventionally, 1 hour, 38 minutes electronically. A savings of 4 hours, 7 minutes.

Tappan's home service department has tested more than 1,000 electronic recipes, ranging from appetizers to vegetables, over the past few years to determine cooking times for various foods as well as nutritional value.

Independent tests also conducted by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have established that foods cooked by microwave energy retains more vitamins, thiamin, and riboflavin than those cooked by any other method.

Other unique characteristics of The Tappan electronic cooking center:

- Simplicity: After the unit is turned on, a time selector — calibrated in seconds — regulates the cooking time. There are no thermostats for temperature control as required in conventional ranges.

- Coolness: Microwave energy generates heat only in the food itself. The inside of the oven remains cool — and the kitchen, consequently, remains cool, too.

- Cleanliness: There are no pots or pans to scour because every food item can be cooked in the same dish in which it will be served. If something spills, the spatter can easily be wiped up because the oven is cool — and the particles are not "baked on."

- Versatility: The electronic range is ideal for the preparation of packaged convenience foods and gourmet dishes. Frozen foods can be taken directly from the freezer and placed in the oven — and then served only minutes later.

About 90 per cent of all present conventional cooking can be done better and faster with an Electronic Range.

- Safety: Whenever the door is opened, even during cooking time, the microwave energy automatically and instantaneously shuts off.

The Tappan Co., which has pioneered many innovations in gas and electric ranges since its founding in 1881, became interested in the microwave principle for heating foods in 1945.

Observations of radio frequency heating become commonplace with the perfection of radar during World War II.

Microwaves are actually high frequency radio energy broadcast by a magnetron into the oven cavity. This energy is reflected by metal, passes through substances such as glass and plastics, and is absorbed by food.

This is why no metal cooking utensils are used and why china, paper and glass utensils do not get hot. When the microwaves are absorbed by food, the reaction causes heat, which cooks the food.

DOLLAR VALUE

Last year, nearly 10 per cent of the dollar value of new cooking equipment purchased by the commercial food industry was for microwave ovens.

Another significant situation indicating the growing acceptance of electronic cooking is the listing by Stouffer's, a major frozen food processor, of electronic cooking instructions on a variety of its packaged items.

"There's simply no question that the era of electronic cooking is here," said W. R. Tappan, President of the Tappan Co.

"It is the same kind of recognition we accord now to color television over black and white, and the jet plane over the propeller-driven plane.

"It's simply a matter of progress — of learning how to do things better for the benefit of all of us."

Kindergarten Favors Floor

The children who attend kindergarten in one Chicago school just love the floor of their classroom. They like to play games, sit in circles for stories, and even take afternoon naps on their floor.

To the children it's a special place, says Nation's Schools, because even when the temperature outside is sub-zero their cement floor is toasty warm.

It's heated electrically and automatically with buried heating cables and sensing elements.

MODERN MAGIC — The most wondrous aspect of electronic cooking is its phenomenal speed. Here is a taste-tempting, golden brown, stuffed turkey ready to serve — after only 1 hour, 15 minutes of cooking time! Four simple controls operate the electronic range. Cooking time is regulated by a timer, calibrated in seconds. There are no thermostats for temperature control, as required in conventional ranges.

Dish Gardens Beautify Room

Little enchanting dish gardens of small green plants will help you add a touch of beauty to your home or apartment this spring.

These tiny foliage plants — inexpensive and long lasting — blend naturally into any decorative scheme and add beauty to every room in which they are displayed. In addition to decorating the top of a piece of furniture, they may be hung from the ceilings of studies and bedrooms.

Dish gardens available at your local florist shop consists of several types of plants — with compatible growing needs — arranged attractively in a planter. Separate but matching containers of various sizes can easily hold an assortment of plant varieties to supply a fascinating array of plant beauty.

Dish gardens — direct descendants of the magnificent gardens of Kublai Khan and the lesser Asian gardens of the 12th century — philodendron cordatum; dracaena godseffiana, neanthe bella palm, fatsiandra and buxus; crassula, echinaria and edum; and crassula, haworthia, aloe and echeveria.

These attractive dish gardens — singly or in groups — also make excellent little gifts for a birthday, a shut-in, a new neighbor, or just to remind someone you are thinking of them.

Get Sponges in 2 Colors

To avoid confusion while doing any 2-sponge washing job, use different colors or shapes to distinguish between the one used with suds from the one used with rinse water.

This suggestion also applies to cloths used for sudsing and rinsing.

All such "tools" should be washed out in clean soap or detergent suds after use.

Electrical Fire Precautions Given for Home Owners

The homeowner who wants electricity to light his house but not a fire, should pay attention to the same electrical fire precautions which are issued to industry.

Occupational Hazards magazine pinpoints these precautions in a special article after a five-year study found that nearly one-quarter of industrial fires are caused by electricity. The study was conducted by the Associated Factory Mutual Fire Insurance companies.

Magazine editors say their electrifying warnings apply to any user of electricity.

"Consider the dangers of the common electric light bulb," the article says. "If not properly installed, it's a definite fire hazard. Anyone who has tried to change a hot bulb knows it's the rough equivalent of a match if it's placed too close to combustibles."

Portable bulbs should be surrounded by wire guards to keep them from brushing combustibles and causing flash fires, the magazine observes.

A bulb in a dusty place should be encased in a dust-free enclosure because collected dust on the bulb can char and drop in the form of sparks after the bulb is turned on.

The two major causes of electrical fires are improper installation of electrical equipment and poor electrical maintenance, the magazine says.

Common dangerous installation practices, found in homes as well as industry are:

- Installing new electrical equipment on old wiring which can't safely carry the increased power load without overheating.
- Overheated wires eventually break down and dry out the insulation covering them. Finally, a short circuit occurs, high currents flow and heat builds up to a point where a fire flashes.

- Use of flexible cord, which just doesn't hold up over the long haul, as a substitute for permanent wiring.
- Insulation will wear through, repeated bending will cause wires to break and short circuit and dangerous overheating will result.

- Wiring systems without the proper automatic electrical protective devices (fuses, circuit breakers, etc.) to protect against the heavy electrical loads that cause wires to overheat.
- Wiring designed to carry 15 amperes of current must never be fused above that amount. As new, higher-powered equipment is installed, excessive electrical loads may be put on old wiring. The increased load will trip fuses and circuit breakers and interrupt operation.

It takes a qualified electrician to catch and correct electrical defects, the magazine says, recommending periodic examination of electrical systems.

ELECTRICAL FIRES

It observes that the Factory Mutual study found that 70 per cent of all electrical fires occur in wiring, motors, switches and lighting equipment.

Some common duties of electricians are assuring that electrical connections are tight and protected from damage, seeing that dust-tight cases for controls and switches are in good condition and tightly closed and replacing broken lighting fixtures, worn fixture wiring and such outdated devices as chain pulls and key sockets.

Because electrical protective devices are the "safety valves" of an electrical system, the article warns that they must be kept in perfect mechanical order.

English Furniture Designs Popular

English furniture designs from the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries are becoming increasingly popular.

Designers dress up the pieces with modern fabrics, and they in Communist China.

bring them up to modern comfort standards by replacing the horsehair stuffing with soft latex-foam seat cushions.

The reproductions are formal, "well-bred" pieces of furniture, but they are also comfortable and practical for today's homes.

Shanghai with 6,900,000 people remains the most populous city in Communist China.

CROWDED PLANTING — The overgrown foundation planting at the H. H. Penny home, 1445 W. Lincoln, Birmingham; did nothing to complement the brick ranch. Tall column evergreens spoiled the roof line while the branches of the mature shrubs looked unkempt and bare at the base.

COURTYARD CHARM — With the dark brick painted white and the addition of a dooryard garden, the H. H. Penny home took a new lease on beauty. Grouped inside the low splitrail fence are cotoneasters, climbing roses and moss phlox. Lawrence E. Smith and Grimes, landscape architects, of 824 Riker Building designed the new planting.

Trouble Spot Can Be Attractive

The shrubs shade it, it's too close to a walk, too near a tree, and the grass either won't grow well or can't be cut conveniently.

A problem area like this is really no problem at all, and can be the most striking area around the home with the help of pebbles and clay potted plants.

Once it is decided that the area is just too difficult to handle as a lawn, clear it of weeds and other debris. Shovel and hoe the soil one foot deep, and rake it level.

Next, border the area with old bricks, new bricks, Belgian blocks or aluminum garden edging. Then, add two inches of uniform size pebbles or crushed rock to cover the soil completely.

Set plants in porous clay pots on top of the pebble layer. But be certain that the plants you selected are those suitable for the prevailing light conditions in that spot.

DOUBLE POTTED

If the pebble garden gets a lot of open sunlight, then the plants should be double potted.

This involves placing them in clay pots one size larger and filling the space between the two pots with sphagnum or peat moss and keeping it damp.

When selecting plants for your pebble garden, it's wise to seek the advice of a local florist or garden center.

Wouldn't you like a pool of your own? Phone Birmingham 357-1111 TODAY!

Laminated Shades in Numerous Shops

Nowadays, laminated window shades may be ordered through most department and furniture stores, fine shade shops, wallpaper and paint stores, and of course, through decorators. Although almost any fabric can be laminated to shade cloth, tightly woven cottons, rayons and linens work best.

If there is any question as to the suitability of your fabric selection, take a sample of the material to your shade man for testing before placing a definite order for the required yardage. Appropriate fabrics, incidentally, may be laminated to either translucent or room-darkening shade cloths.

A 'Must' for Many

Foyer Now in Moderate Price Field

Time was when the common concept of a foyer stemmed from Hollywood's interpretation... with a room of staggering size featuring an overwhelming large staircase, with a very proper butler standing by.

Although homes with such features do exist, the foyer or entry hall definitely has moved into the moderately priced home category.

In fact, this particular feature of a new house is a must with many homemakers who have owned other homes prior to their current dwelling.

And such a room does make sense, too. Take the kids for example.

CHANNELS FLOW
It channels traffic, and in most cases, allows a direct pass-through from the front entryway to the kitchen, without pathlike wear on living room carpet or rug.

Such an area provides a "shakeout" room during bad weather for guests and permanent residents. Here, snowy boots can be placed and wet coats and hats shaken out before being hung up.

Actually, you can consider the foyer another room... a room where furniture can be placed.

Typical pieces for this type of application would be a credenza or drawered chest... not only providing a highly decorative effect, but also making extra, all-important storage space.

DISTINCT TYPES
What about flooring? Several distinct types are available. Many styles of vinyl or asbestos tile can be found.

However, if you have a choice in their selection, be sure to weigh carefully, the decorative effect of the lighter colors, particularly those without pattern, against the constant spectre of muddy footprints, that might otherwise be concealed by a darker, pattern design.

A semigloss ceramic tile, somewhat similar to patio tile is also available and makes an excellent entry floor. Slate, too, is popular and its slightly irregular shape and variations of color make it first class for flooring such a room.

Certain types of carpeting can also be used, but easy and frequent cleaning should be given prime consideration when you plan to use wood or fabric for entry hall floors.

WALL HELP
How about the walls? Can anything be done with them to heighten the decor?

The credenza mentioned previously helps to break up a bare wall, and gives you an excuse for a picture or mirror over it. These can sometimes be flanked with lighting fixtures, such as wall brackets.

The outdoor variety, such as those used alongside doorways, can be highly dramatic, particularly in white, brass or copper. Scenic wallpaper can tie the room together and, if used, should be placed on the longest wall. The scene selected should carpet or rug.

Ice Helps Lift Wax From Your Carpet

Candle wax on your carpet? Rub an ice cube quickly over the wax, blot with a clean towel or tissue.

The wax will become brittle and can be easily picked up. Be sure not to get the carpet too wet from melting ice.

Movable Storage Wall
Want plans for a movable storage wall containing space for desk, bookshelving, music system, plus handsomely designed cupboards and drawers?

Write for The Caravan, Dept 521-P, Western Wood Products Association, Yvon Building, Portland, Oregon 97204, enclosing 10 cents for handling.

be in keeping with the rest of the home and the taste of the homemaker.

IMPORTANCE
Certainly of substantial importance is the light that will greet your guests.

Will they come into a grim, dark, closet-like room, or will they be greeted by a bright, dramatically decorated area that sets the scene for the rest of the house?

The latter, of course, is the answer and can be easily attained.

According to decorating specialists, there are many lighting units that can be used for foyer to help create this hospitable effect.

NO 'CORNERS'
Most common of these are close to ceiling pieces. Many of these units are excellent, but make sure you don't cut corners... be positive the fixture is attractive and gives enough light.

Foyer lanterns have become very popular and can be used effectively in nearly every entry hall situation.

These fixtures are available in squares and circles, and usually feature clear or smoked glass panels with two to four smaller wattage lamps.

Many types of decorative pendants, too, can be used. A consideration here is height, and to be safe, make sure that the bottom of the fixture is at least six-and-one-half feet to six-foot-nine inches off the floor.

CHANDELIERS
Small chandeliers, to particularly crystal models, lend an air of elegance that cannot be duplicated in any other way.

Let gracious hospitality be the keynote when guests enter your home through a handsome and dramatic foyer that says a warm and enthusiastic "Welcome."

Bible Society Observes 150th Anniversary

Churches to Mark Year of the Bible

Three days of observances beginning Wednesday marked the 150th anniversary of the founding of the American Bible Society in New York City.

Wednesday also marked the beginning of "The Year of the Bible" in tens of thousands of churches honoring the society's sesquicentennial.

Governors of all 50 states have urged support of this observance.

Pontiac residents may well be proud of Robert Tripp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Tripp, 130 Illinois, who is translating the Amara dialect into English.

Working with Wycliff Bible Translators, Robert is stationed in Yarinacocha, Peru.

SERVE IN HOSPITALS
Pontiac area pastors, priests and rabbis will continue to follow the Scriptures as they visit the sick and comfort the dying in hospitals and prisons.

Chaplains serving at Pontiac General Hospital offer a service in the chapel daily from 10:45 to 11 a.m. Worship service each Sunday is at 2 p.m. with various Protestant pastors of the city officiating.

On special days as Good Friday services are held at designated hours. The pastor's work is voluntary.

Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital does not have a chapel for patients but church services will be available in rooms when the closed circuit television now being installed is completed.

Patients may choose services they wish to see and hear.

STATE HOSPITAL

Catholic priests conduct the 9:30 morning Mass at Pontiac State Hospital every Sunday, with confessions listened to, just before Mass.

Rabbis conduct a service there for Jewish patients at 9 a.m.

of the first Saturday of each month.

Protestant patients attend services at 2 p.m. every Sunday with Pontiac area pastors preaching and leading worship.

At 1:30 p.m. every Wednesday, Elizabeth Root serves as reader for patients of the Christian Science faith in the hospital. Under the leadership of a group of dedicated churchmen hymns are sung and worship conducted every Sunday afternoon at the Oakland County Jail.

Before 1816 there was no American Bible Society.

At this time, nation's all over the world were bursting at the seams and a deluge of bewildered humanity poured into America. For the vast majority life was very troubled.

Resentful of the past, weary of the present and fearful of the future, they were, nevertheless, willing to fight the cold, the heat, starvation and any human being who tried to kill that tiny spark they called hope.

There were those who knew that each man's greatest fight is within himself. They knew because they had fought and won the battle. And they never failed to remember that it was the Bible which had helped them win it.

These were the leaders of this new country, the men upon whose shoulders the destiny of America's Christian future would rest. And these men realized, according to the Bible Societly, that if America were to become and remain a nation of Christians then the people must have a Bible to read.

FOUNDED IN 1816

So it was on May 8, 1816, men from many denominations—both laymen and clergy—met in New York City to form the American Bible Society. The purpose was to provide the Scriptures to every person in the language or form he could best read and understand.

Since 1816 more than 750,000 people throughout 149 countries have received portions of the Bible, in addition to the United States.

To date at least one Book of the Bible has been translated and published in 1,250 languages of which about 900 are still in use.

According to records there are still more than 1,000 languages and dialects into which not even a portion of the Bible has been translated.

South was one of those self-taught geniuses who consider that they can win every duplicate game if only they can get to play all no-trump contracts. Hence, his jump to three no-trump over East's spade overcall. North wanted to get out of no-trump but passed unhappily because he knew by bitter experience that any bid he made would only elicit a further no-trump call from his partner. West opened the jack of spades. East covered with the queen and continued spades after South ducked. South won the third spade lead, meanwhile discarding a heart and diamond from dummy. Then he cashed three clubs and noted that East dropped the five of hearts. He tried diamonds next and discarded dummy's last club on the third diamond. East shed the eight of hearts. South had planned to throw East in with a spade at this point but his count of the hand showed that East was sitting with three spades and one heart.

Could East have blanked the king of hearts? Of course, he did, decided Genie South. He led a heart, went up with dummy's ace and ran off the rest of the tricks to make five no-trump. "Pretty good," chorused South. "I wonder," replied North, "if you had bid the hand like a bridge player I would have played in hearts and made a small slam with no trouble at all. I would win the spade because he knew by bitter experience that any bid he made

Computer Will Speed Answers Via Telephone

NEW YORK — Telephone a computer and it will answer. A new voice response system that can give verbal answers to questions, fed into a computer from as many as 100 remote points has been developed by the Radio Corporation of America.

The system is applicable to banks, stores, credit bureaus and other organizations that need to obtain routine information quickly. To check on items in stock, for example, a clerk would simply dial the number assigned to the voice system and, after receiving a signal to go ahead, make his inquiry by pushing buttons on a special telephone device.

The computer accepts the request, searches for the answer in its memory unit, prepares the proper return message and converts it to a response from a prerecorded magnetic drum. In seconds, the spoken answer is received directly by the caller over the telephone.

NO, SIR, I DON'T THINK I'D EVER PUT ANY MONEY IN STOCKS—IT'S TOO MUCH OF A GAMBLE!

'Sun Will Spin Half as Fast in Future'

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The sun will one day spin only half as fast as it is now — in about two to four billion years.

The estimate, made at the California Institute of Technology and based on measurements taken by space satellites, indicates the sun's rotation will slow from once every 27 days to once in 40 days.

The effects of the slower solar rotation were not calculated.

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Then I would ruff the second spade and make the rest of the tricks by running off the rest of my trumps and squeezing West out of his stopper in either clubs or diamonds.

Sure enough. When the game was over it turned out that South's brilliant five no-trump was a bottom score. At every other table North had played four or six hearts and made 12 tricks.

Planned Parenthood Tour Set

Contemporary and period architecture will be offered for public inspection Thursday on the Oakland County Planned Parenthood House Tour from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Among the homes opened for the tour are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Finn's at 5395 Kensington, Bloomfield Township.

A Georgian colonial, the house was built 50 years ago on a seven acre site of rolling land with a natural spring-fed pond. Its furnishings include Spanish, French and Italian Provincial.

Situated on a wooded site overlooking a small lake and island is the contemporary home of the William B. Bachman, Jr. of 201 Lakewood, Bloomfield Hills.

Visual baffles reveal in stages the beauty of the site.

MAX FRUHAUF HOME

Designed around a silo, the Norman-Tudor home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Fruhauf of 350 Lowell, Bloomfield Hills, displays a collection of oriental rugs, copper luster and heirloom portraits saved from the fire that destroyed the former Fruhauf home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford B. West's home was originally a typical square farmhouse.

Dominating a small hill, the home overlooks a swimming pool and the Rouge River. It is Bloomfield Hills.

Designed by its owner, Howard Preston, the Preston home at 4141 Echo, Bloomfield Township, is an example of modern architecture with a northwest United States influence.

The house is completely integrated with its natural rough wooded site of two acres.

The John A. Cooper home at 1660 Apple, Bloomfield Township, was built by George Gould Ross and his wife Victoria.

Described by its present owner as "a cave with a view," it has a lake on one side and a swamp on the other from which skunks, racoons and possums look in the windows at night.

FAMILY WATCHED

"We are in the zoo," said Mrs. Cooper, "and they are the free ones."

The bleached redwood ranch of Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Butzel of 2425 Lone Pine, West Bloomfield Township, features a view framed by an ancient oak and a walnut grove.

Its contemporary furnishings are complemented with accents of English, American and Spanish antiques.

The Wendell Smith's farm colonial on 26680 Carol, Franklin; is featured on this week's Pontiac Press Background for Living, page B-2.

Located at the corner of two ravines is the ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Vander Pyl, Jr. of 30153 Bristol, Bingham Farms.

The formal contemporary home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Taubman of 28755 Bell, Southfield; accents simple symmetrical lines.

LIGHT STREAMS

Large bay windows and overhead skylights provide streams of sunlight throughout the day.

This outside lighting technique enhances the beauty of the Taubmans' modern art and sculpture collection.

Tickets may be purchased at each of the homes listed the day of the tour.

General chairman of the event is Mrs. Robert McLean of 5655 Forman, Bloomfield Township.

Provide Canopies With Longer Wear

The canopies of lounges and swings give long wear if they are of double-laminated summer fabrics — fabrics designed for use with summer furniture.

Cushions should be vat-dyed, stain-resistant and mildew-proof cotton on one side and supported vinyl on the other.

Well-made cushions have uniform welts and are evenly sewed. Better cushion covers also zip off for easier cleaning.

It is wise to check on the filling. Cotton lumps quickly. Polyurethane foam is best for outdoor pieces exposed to sun and rain.

Latex foam rubber cushions are all right for indoor or protected porch use.

DINING ALCOVE — Informal meals are served in the glass bay adjoining the Wendell Smith's kitchen. Handwoven barn beams frame the entrance. Found at 26680 Carol, Franklin, the Smith home is one of 11 included on Thursday's Oakland County Planned Parenthood House Tour. Tickets will be available on the day of the tour at each of the homes shown.

Obscure Grave in Oklahoma Causes Rerouting of Road, Gets Special Treatment

WOODWARD, Okla. (AP) — An stumbled on the grave in 1952, while widening a curve at the intersection of U.S. 64 and 283. A gravestone, made of poured concrete, read, "Mary,"

A highway construction crew poured concrete, read, "Mary,"

Wife of Edward Kendrick, 1863-1912. Her memory shall ever be a guiding star to heaven."

The county attorney, asked to investigate, concluded that the Kendrick family might have been traveling through Oklahoma when the woman died.

Even then, the woman was given an adequate burial, for the gravestone was carefully made of poured concrete and inscribed.

The Oklahoma Highway Department allowed the contractor to change the angle of the curve to miss the grave.

A new headstone was erected around it. Highway workers clip around the mystery grave when a weed mower is sent to the area.

And now the wheat farmers and ranchers of the area see that flowers decorate the grave periodically.

Builders End 2-Week Strike

Contract settlements reached yesterday afternoon between representatives of three labor locals in the Wayne-Oakland-Macomb county area and the Associated General Contractors brought an end to a two-week strike which has crippled construction.

Representatives of Pontiac Local 1076 and Detroit Locals 334 and 1191 of the Laborers International Union of North America agreed to a 63-cent package for two years.

Some 18,000 workers are affected by the settlement, which was reached pending a ratification vote to be taken Wednesday.

George Molnar, secretary-treasurer of the Pontiac local, said the agreement calls for a first-year 31-cent increase, effective on the first full pay after the ratification meeting.

Effective at the same time will be an additional two-cent increase in pension payments.

30-CENT RAISE

Another 30-cent raise is to be granted May 1, 1967, according to the agreement, Molnar said.

The strike, which began May 2, has nearly brought to a halt several million dollars worth of construction projects in southeastern Michigan.

Indicted JP Is Barred From Handling Duties

Royal Oak Township Justice of the Peace Lonnie C. Cash, indicted on five counts of perjury by the Grand Jury, was ordered yesterday by the Oakland County Circuit bench to refrain from performing his judicial duties.

The order is in effect until the final disposition of the case against Cash, or until it is lifted by the circuit judges.

Cash was charged yesterday by Grand Juror Circuit Judge Philip Pratt, with lying on five separate occasions when he appeared before Pratt to testify in the inquiry into crime and corruption in the South Oakland County community.

A justice of the peace since 1959, Cash demanded a preliminary court examination when he was arraigned before Clawson Municipal Judge Bristol E. Hunter.

Hunter scheduled the hearing for 10 a.m. June 3 in the Clawson Municipal Court, and set Cash's bond at $5,000, which was furnished.

The cease and desist order was approved by five members of the bench, with Judge Pratt abstaining. It was signed by Presiding Judge Frederick C. Ziem.

FIRST TIME

Ziem said to his knowledge this is the first time in Oakland County that the circuit bench has used its constitutional powers of superintending controls in issuing an order against a justice of the peace.

Board to Eye Sewage Pact in Waterford

The Waterford Township Board Monday night will consider entering into a contract with the Oakland County Department of Public Works for participation in the proposed $16.5-million Clinton-Oakland Sewage Disposal System.

The project is slated to serve seven county municipalities and a portion of Pontiac. Waterford Township would pay approximately 40 per cent of the total cost.

Interest has been estimated at $12,127,500 on the 30-year bond issue for a total cost of $28,627,500.

Income over the 30-year period, mainly from connection charges, has been set at $33,340,900.

The Waterford Board, which is also considering a $22.9-million internal sanitary sewer system, previously approved the first draft of the proposed Clinton-Oakland agreement.

It is estimated that the township system will be completed in about five years, with the Clinton-Oakland expected to be in operation sooner.

Other municipalities which would be served by the Clinton-Oakland are the townships of Avon, Pontiac, Independence, West Bloomfield and Orion and the cities of Pontiac and Orchard Lake.

Plane Losses in Viet Action Told by U.S.

104 Down in South;
243 in North; All
but 2 by Ground Fire

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The U.S. Command announced today that 243 American planes have been shot down over North Viet Nam since bombings north of the 17th Parallel began months ago.

An official spokesman also reported that 104 U.S. planes have been lost to enemy action in South Viet Nam since January 1961.

The total for losses over North Viet Nam was almost entirely from enemy ground fire. Only two U.S. planes have been shot down by Communist MIGs.

The spokesman said the figure covered losses since Feb. 7, 1965, when the United States began air attacks on North Viet Nam, up to last Wednesday.

The announcement of plane losses came as the war in Viet Nam slackened considerably both in the air and on the ground.

NO BREAKDOWN

While the official spokesman gave no breakdown of the figures, military observers said the losses for the first 90 days this year ran higher than the first 90 days when bombings in the north began last year.

One reason for the increase is that the United States is putting more planes over the north. Another is that the Communist anti-aircraft defenses have strengthened and their marksmanship has improved.

One Air Force officer commented: "The North Vietnamese are probably the best anti-aircraft gunners around just now because of all the experience they are getting."

In the fighting, U.S. Air Force B52 bombers pummeled a Viet Cong troop area 90 miles northwest of Saigon today near the Cambodian border.

IN SUPPORT

The attack by the eight-engine planes was made in support of paratroopers of the 1st Brigade of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division, who are currently making a sweep of the frontier area in Phuoc Long Province.

The paratroopers, participating in Operation Austin Six, found an abandoned 50-bed enemy hospital yesterday while continuing their search-and-destroy operation.

Viet Cong casualties since the operation started May 1, a spokesman said, were 69 killed and four captured. Thirty-seven weapons have been seized. The spokesman described American casualties as light.

Interest has been estimated at $12,127,500 on the 30-year bond issue for a total cost of $28,627,500.

Income over the 30-year period, mainly from connection charges, has been set at $33,340,900.

It is estimated that the township system will be completed in about five years, with the Clinton-Oakland expected to be in operation sooner.

Other municipalities which would be served by the Clinton-Oakland are the townships of Avon, Pontiac, Independence, West Bloomfield and Orion and the cities of Pontiac and Orchard Lake.

The Air Force says it's cheaper to hire civilians. A 65-man civilian force will take over mess hall duties July 1.

'New, Creative Federalism' Hailed by U.S. School Chief

Use of federal funds in school generating "a new and creative federalism" in the United States, the chief administrator of these funds said yesterday.

Francis Keppel, assistant secretary for education in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, addressed some 150 school officials from districts yesterday at a meeting at Oakland University.

With increased federal participation in 1965, education has gained a third major source of support to complement state and local sources, Keppel said.

Of these, the state is at the crux of the challenge, he said.

"Nothing that the citizen or may be, can be more important than strengthening the capacity of the states to respond to the educational needs of our time," he said.

He listed as requirements for the change better information the condition of education within the states and among the states; stronger leadership and planning by state departments of education in relation to local districts; and innovation based on sound research throughout the educational enterprise.

Keppel commented that "federalism" is the key to the success of the states to respond to the educational needs of our time."

Keppel said the nation looks to the states not merely as a matter of law or precedent, but as a matter of practical soundness and necessity."

Noting that Michigan does not fall into the general pattern, Keppel said most states need a thorough overhaul of both the organization and policies.

Griffin Will Get Credentials as Senator at Ceremony

LANSING (AP)—The credentials for Michigan's first Republican U.S. senator since 1956 were to be handed today to Robert P. Griffin.

Gov. Romney scheduled a ceremony in the Capitol to deliver the credentials to the 42-year-old former five-term representative.

Griffin cut short a trip to South Viet Nam to return as a senator.

Romney named him to fill the vacancy caused by death of Democratic Sen. Patrick V. McNamara last month.

Griffin planned to meet privately with Romney after the ceremony and then fly to Washington.

WEEKEND TALKS

He scheduled weekend conferences in the nation's capital with Republican Senate leaders.

He is scheduled to be sworn into the Senate at noon Monday.

Griffin was in Saigon with a House subcommittee on foreign operation looking into programs of the Agency for International Development.

He is expected to run for a full six-year term for the Senate opposing whoever wins Democratic nomination.

G. Mennen Williams, former six-term governor, and Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh of Detroit are prime opponents in the Democratic race.

Visiting Mayor Here

Local observance of Michigan Week was launched today with an exchange of mayors between Pontiac and Highland Park.

Mayors' Exchange Day locally involves an exchange of visits by Pontiac Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. and Michael M. Glusac of Highland Park.

A practicing attorney, Glusac was appointed mayor of Highland Park in March 1965, filling a vacancy created by a death.

Prior to his appointment as mayor, Glusac served two years as a Highland Park councilman.

The 36-year-old Glusac arrived at City Hall at 10 a.m. Mayor Pro Tem Leslie H. Hudson and city administrators were on hand to greet him.

The day's scheduled events included a tour of the city, a plant tour and lunch sponsored by Pontiac Motor Division, a tour of the Oakland County Service Center and dinner at Kingsley Inn.

Government and Industry Officials Agree

Spring Confab Aims Drop in Auto Sales, Threat of Inflation

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)

—Top industry and Johnson administration officials have agreed that the galloping rate of business growth will slow down in the next seven months.

This consensus emerged yesterday after more than 100 industrialists met with Cabinet officials and Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, at the spring meeting of the Business Council.

Other leading topics during the day-long closed sessions included the current auto sales lag and the sinking stock market.

But most talked about was the threat of inflation.

STILL UNCERTAIN

But it remains uncertain, he said, whether the production rise will be slowed to a rate that is sustainable without serious inflationary hazards and, he implied, without a tax increase.

William M. Batten, board chairman of J. C. Penney, Inc., and head of the council's economy, reported on behalf of the council's panel of more than 20 professional economists.

He said the nation's output will total $732 billion this year, exceeding by $10 billion the January forecast of the President's council. But the gains will average $11 to $12 billion a quarter in annual rate. Batten said, well below the $17 billion jump in the first quarter.

The climb of consumer prices also will be about one-third slower than the increase in the first quarter of this year, Batten said. That was the President's forecast. The total rise from year-end to year-end would come to about 2.8 per cent.

CLOSED MEETING

Henry Ford II, board chairman of Ford Motor Co., reported to a closed council meeting that the blame for the 15.4 per cent dip in auto sales in early May can be placed on the furor over auto safety and not on economic factors. A 9-million car sale year is still in prospect, Ford indicated.

His remarks were relayed to newsmen by W. B. Murphy, president of Campbell Soup Co., who used angry terms to describe the effect of what he called the "safety agitation" started by Ralph Nader, key witness at con-

Big Loss Story of Mart Week

By ED MORSE

AP Business News Writer NEW YORK—Where will the stock market decline find a bottom? That was the question on Wall Street today at the end of another big weekly loss.

The investment spokesmen were trying to cheer stocks on to a recovery.

"I think the market is at or near a turning point right now," said Robert H. Stovall, vice president of E. F. Hutton & Co. "There are too many good values around to be ignored."

But the stock buyers weren't listening.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week tumbled 26.72 to

Invitations Etiquette Today

Calling All Brides

By MADELEINE DOEREN
Unlike invitations to other social events, wedding invitations are sent as much as four weeks before the ceremony and never less than two.

Invitations being sent to distant cities could be mailed four weeks in advance and to relatives and friends in the area, at least three weeks before the wedding date.

ONE WHO KNOWS

In her New Complete Book of Etiquette, Amy Vanderbilt suggests using the best paper one can afford, the most distinguished being the traditional ivory or ecru. Pure white is now rarely used.

The engraving, needless to say, is always done in black and on the first page of the double sheet. "Where two envelopes are used," she writes, "the inside one is unsealed and must not be gummed. It is placed in the outer envelope so that it faces the flap."

"Tissue over the engraving is left in place to prevent smudging."

There is little variation in prices of wedding stationery from area printers and they all agree that it is advisable to order locally rather than from other sources.

This is not as much a matter of patronizing local firms as it is preventing last-minute mishaps at pickup time.

Out-of-town firms who advertise their services in women's magazines are sometimes careless about the envelope count. This sends the bride-to-be scurrying to the stationers trying to fit the invitations to stock envelopes. This is not easy when looking for out-size envelopes.

If the envelope count is correct, a name may be spelled incorrectly or the period omitted after Mr. and Mrs. Raised printing prices begin with a minimum of $9.50 per hundred invitations and can cost $12.50. Basic panel in black print can be had for as little as $9.00 per hundred.

Photo-lettering, which closely resembles steel engraving, costs approximately $18 and up for 50 invitations.

Prices for engraved invitations vary from $23 to $34 per hundred depending on the number of lines and other factors.

Invitations printed on parchment-type paper or those with blind embossing in the corners are increasing in popularity.

"Informals" for thank-you notes cost about three dollars per hundred, whereas engraved "informals" will cost about $7 per hundred.

Napkins embossed (usually in silver) with one line of imprinting, for the reception will cost from $2.50 to $4 per hundred.

Cocktail-size napkins are replacing the little white boxes of wedding-cake to be taken home by the guests. The same size napkin can be used on the bride's table.

Your stationer carries wedding guest-books which sell for about $3.50.

The local stationers suggest placing wedding invitation orders at least two weeks before pickup.

Announcements, ordered along with the invitations, are not sent out until after the marriage has taken place.

Envelopes should be addressed in black ink, with first-class postage carefully placed.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I hope to marry a nice girl someday, one who doesn't drink or smoke, but while I'm still single, I prefer to date girls who do. Girls who drink and smoke are cheaper to date because they don't mind eating cheap food in a low-class diner.

Take them to a cheap dive and give them some drinks and cigarettes and they are contented. Also girls who drink and smoke usually lack self respect, so they don't expect a fellow to respect them, and he can usually get away with anything he wants on the first date.

I am not a bum, I'm just an average guy, but so many people push the sweet, innocent-type girls, I thought someone should explain why so many men prefer the cheap kind. We don't want to MARRY them, just DATE them.

JOHN Q. PUBLIC
DEAR JOHN: Speak for yourself, John! The fellow who has dated nothing but willing women can have his choice of any tramp he's dated when selecting a wife. Men who do their shopping at a rummage sale are unlikely to find a jewel from Carter.

DEAR ABBY: We are two girls, both 12, and we each have a different problem. One of us is overweight and the other one is flat. Every day one of us gets insulted about our looks. My girl friend has tried every diet in the book, and she can't lose a pound. And I would like to have a padded bra, but I'm afraid to ask my mother for one.

Please don't tell us we have plenty of time to have good figures. We want them NOW. Answer soon as we are desperate.

FATTY AND FLAT
DEAR F AND F: Reading a diet won't lose your friend an ounce unless she substitutes READING for EATING. And as for the bra: a twelve-year-old girl's figure is usually adequate for her age.

However, if later on you've clearly been cheated, "What Nature's forgotten, stuff with cotton."

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if your husband bought you a large bottle of the very same cologne you discarded years ago because he told you he hated it so much? I took it back after Christmas, remembering what he had said about the first bottle.

I thought I was doing him a favor, but he said I had done an ungracious thing, and now I am in the doghouse.

HURT
DEAR HURT: You did what any sensible, considerate wife would have done. Your husband is an unreasonable man. Invite him into the doghouse and tell him you have a bone to pick with him.

DEAR ABBY: Your column about the amateur handwriting analyst interested me. This person, it seems, analyzed a co-worker's handwriting from an office memo, without his consent, and then went around telling everyone that his handwriting revealed that he had "criminal tendencies" and was "oversexed."

ABBY, I AM A CERTIFIED GRAPHOANALYST, and as such abide by a strict code of ethics as set down by that society. We NEVER analyze anyone's handwriting without his knowledge and consent, nor do we ever discuss our findings with anyone but the writer. And anyone who does otherwise, is a rank amateur and a very stupid one at that.

Problems? Write to Abby, in care of The Pontiac Press. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By ELIZABETH L. POST

This is the prize-winning letter chosen this week. A copy of Emily Post's "Etiquette," revised by Elizabeth L. Post, has been sent to the questioner.

Dear Mrs. Post: At what age should women stop wearing bikinis? I say that longer suits look old-fashioned; my husband says they're more flattering to women my age.—M.B.

Dear M.B.: You're making a common mistake: sticking to a particular style because it's "in" regardless of how it looks on you. A more conservative bathing suit may be a little old-fashioned, but that won't date you half as much as a broad display of middle-aged spread!

There is only one restriction: that the wearer have an excellent figure, and this implies that she be youthful. A young, reasonably slender girl has every reason to show off as much of her figure as society allows, and wins nothing but admiration. But one chubby teen looks just as ridiculous bulging out of a bikini as the middle-aged matron.

The Crittenton Hospital Auxiliary, Rochester unit, observed its first meeting Friday in Rochester's municipal building. Rare Music Is Due Here

Summer programs of Oakland University's Meadow Brook Festival and school of music will make possible for this area six special chamber concerts.

James Hicks, OU public relations, reports the scheduled musical offerings are rare, even for New York audiences. Planned are three performances each by the ten-member New York Pro Musica, June 26, 28 and July 5, and three chamber concerts by an imposing piano trio whose members are Eugene Iomin, pianist; Isaac Stern, violinist; and Leonard Rose, cellist, on July 13, 26 and Aug. 2.

PRESENT INSTITUTE

The New York Pro Musica will be on the Oakland campus to present a two-week Institute for Medieval, Renaissance and Early Baroque Music, open to singers, instrumentalists, conductors and scholars. The concerts are open to the public and will be presented in the university's new 600-seat Wilson Hall.

Each concert, directed by Lanoue Davenport who has been named problem director to replace the group's late founder Noah Greenberg, will explore a different facet of music written in the centuries B.A.D.

The first event June 26 will be devoted to English music of the courts of Elizabeth and James. The June 28 concert will focus on Florentine Medici.

In her demonstration of the Ukrainian art of egg coloring, Mrs. Irwin Weiss of Birmingham traced the history of the egg and its symbolism from early pagan rites to its present-day religious significance in the Ukraine.

TREATED BY YANKS — A young North Vietnamese soldier, his right leg bandaged from a bullet wound, rests his head in hands of a medic of the U.S. 101st Airborne Brigade at Bu Gia Map, South Viet Nam, near the Cambodian border. Thanks to the kind treatment by the Americans, the enemy soldier stopped the U.S. patrol from walking into a deadly trap.

U. S. Envoy Says Cong Lack Respected Leaders

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Acting U.S. Ambassador William Porter says the Viet Cong are "faceless" they lack an outstanding leader and can command obedience among South Vietnamese only at the point of a gun.
Porter compared the Viet Cong with the nationalist movements he watched as a diplomat in such trouble spots as Algeria, Morocco, Syria and Iraq, and found them wanting in all respects.
Four years ago I talked to him in his residence overlooking Algiers while machine guns rattled the city below, and bombs planted by Moslem nationalists and European communist terrorists exploded. This week I interviewed him in the guarded U.S. Embassy in Saigon.
"What strikes me here is absolute lack of respected Viet Cong leadership as compared to Middle Eastern and North African movements," Porter said.
BEST INVOLVED
"There, in the Middle East and North Africa, the best known, most stable and respected elements were involved. Here there is no such leadership on the Viet Cong side. It is a collection of nonentities who never had any standing in the community..."

Bonn Aide Admits Arms Deal Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — West Germany defense chief Kai Uwe von Hassel has acknowledged that his country is having "great difficulties" in fulfilling its commitment to purchase $1.35 billion worth of American arms.
Von Hassel conferred here with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Friday, and diplomatic sources said later the United States apparently will have to agree to cut the Germany outlay by $600 million.
The commitment, known as the offset agreement, is aimed at helping to defray the U.S. cost of maintaining the 7th Army in Germany for two years, estimated at around $2 billion.
Under the agreement, the West German government was to spend the $1.35 billion in the United States between June 1965 and June 1967.
The two defense chiefs issued a joint communique after their meeting in which they said "any relocations and adjustments" arising from the evicting order issued by French President Charles de Gaulle to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "should be effected as promptly and economically as possible."
They also discussed what Von Hassel called the streamlining of NATO's military structure. The two ministers are understood to agree that when NATO moves from France, some elements of the present command structure can be eliminated.
The controversial question of German access to NATO's nuclear arsenal was not discussed at the meeting, Von Hassel said. Although German desire to participate in a "hardware solution" of NATO's perennial nuclear problem remains unchanged, the Bonn government recognizes that because of the French break with the alliance's military structure, there are more urgent problems to solve.
The West German official, however, complained about the recent withdrawal of 15,000 American troops from Germany. They were pulled out to help train U.S. soldiers for the Viet Nam war.
Von Hassel said he was not consulted in time about the move, although McNamara had informed him last December that it might become necessary.

In Bank Strike Coin Famine Hits Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Ireland faces a famine of small coins after more than a week with no banks.
Banks throughout the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland closed May 5 when 3,400 junior clerks went on strike for higher pay.
Big employers have been flying in cash to meet their payrolls.
But for the man in the street and store owners, the biggest problem is finding the sixpences and shillings to carry out everyday transactions.
Sixpence is the equivalent of seven U.S. cents; a shilling is worth 14 cents.
IMPORTS COINS
In Northern Ireland, the gas department of the Belfast City Corp., the municipal authority, imported one million shillings from England so that its customers could continue to put shillings in the slots of their gas meters.
The shillings can be obtained in change from the gas departments offices and showrooms in the city.
Companies with big cash turnovers — such as supermarkets and cinemas — siphoned off their surplus cash to big employers like factory owners in exchange for checks which can be cashed after the strike ends.
The big public utility companies, like the National Transport Company which collects about 600,000 fares on its Dublin buses each day, paid their employees without difficulty and had enough cash left over to pass on to others who had little coin coming in.
