

OAKLAND
UNIVERSITY
COMMENCEMENT

The motto of Oakland University, "Sequir Virtute E Canoscenza," which is incorporated in its seal, has a distinguished origin, Canto XXVI, l. 120, of Dante's Inferno.

These are the final words of Ulysses' great speech to his men urging them to sail on and on in pursuit of knowledge and experience of the world—even beyond the pillars of Hercules, traditionally the frontier and limit of legitimate exploration.

This is the three-line stanza:

*Considerate la vostra semenza
Fatti non foste a viver come bruti
Ma per seguir virtute e canoscenza*

*Consider your birth
You were not made to live like brutes
But to follow courage and knowledge*

Commencement Speaker: Dennis W. Archer

Dennis W. Archer was one of the nation's most respected attorneys because of his highly successful trial work and his presidencies of the National Bar Association, the State Bar of Michigan and the Wolverine Bar Association. In 1984, Dennis Archer was named one of the 100 Most Influential Black Americans by Ebony Magazine. In 1985, he was named one of the 100 Most Powerful Attorneys in the United States and in his final year was voted one of the 100 Most Influential Lawyers by the National Law Journal.

In 1985 after 15 years as a trial lawyer for several law firms, Governor James J. Blanchard appointed Archer to the Michigan Supreme Court, and one year later, he was elected to an eight-year term. He was the first African American to sit on that court in nearly 20 years and only the second in Michigan history.

Resigning from the Michigan Supreme Court in late 1990, Archer joined the law firm of Dickinson, Wright, Moon, Van Dusen & Freeman as a partner, and has since worked with hundreds of Detroit citizens and dozens of community organizations to search for solutions for Detroit.

In 1993, Dennis W. Archer was elected mayor for the City of Detroit. His vision for Detroit's journey to greatness is anchored in a deep understanding of the diligence and hard work necessary to overcome adversity.

ON ACADEMIC REGALIA

An edifying note contributed by a certain anonymous doctor of philosophy.

On at least two solemn occasions during the academic calendar-spring and fall commencement-the faculty of the university publicly displays its full academic regalia and participates in the liturgy of processional and recessional, that curious coming and going that symbolizes the ceremony of commencement. The purposes of commencement are well known, but the reasons for the peculiar garb of the celebrants and their odd order of march are often as obscure to the audience as they are, in fact, to the faculty itself. This note may serve to explain academic dress and the professional pecking order it costumes.

Contemporary academics are descendants of clerical schoolmen in the universities of medieval Europe. Like the clergy, members of the bench and bar, and other learned professions, the medieval scholar clothed himself in heavy robes to stay warm in unheated stone buildings. Like all members of a hierarchical society, the medieval faculties rejoiced in visible insignia of rank. These outward signs of accomplishment and authority were tailored into the robes. Although the need for such voluminous garments to keep the scholar from freezing is long past, the use of them as emblems of dignity remains. You will observe that all caps and gowns worn by our faculty are black, with certain disturbing exceptions. Black was the color adopted by mutual agreement among American universities at the end of the 19th century. In Europe each university has its own distinctive gown, varying in color and cut from all the others. A European academic assemblage is a far gaudier occasion than its counterpart in America. Recently, certain universities in this country rashly broke the agreement and authorized robes in their own colors: for example, the crimson of Harvard and the green of Dartmouth may be seen in our ranks. This unsuitable spontaneity has been frowned on by sister institutions, yet the mavericks not only persist in their madness, but gain adherents to their ranks with each passing year.

There are three basic academic degrees: the Baccalaureate or bachelor's degree, the master's degree, and the doctorate. A special style of robe is prescribed for each. The bachelor's gown is sparsely cut, neat, but a bit skimpy and unadorned, as befits apprentices. The master's gown is still simple, but fuller, sports a sleeve of extraordinary design impossible to describe, and has a hood draped from the shoulders down the back. Once used to keep the frost from the tonsured heads of medieval clerks, the hood is now solely a badge of a degree of scholarly achievement. The master's hood is small and narrow, but displays the colors of the institution that awarded the degree. If you knew the colors of the American universities, you could easily identify whence came our masters. The doctoral robe is the most handsome of academic raiment. Generous of cut, of fine aristocratic stuff, it is faced with velvet and emblazoned with velvet chevrons on the ample sleeves. You will note that most of the velvet facings and chevrons are black, but that some are of other colors. According to personal taste, the doctor may display the color of his doctoral degree on his sleeves and facings: light blue for education, pink for music, apricot for nursing, orange for engineering, and many more. The royal blue of the Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) is the most commonly seen in liberal arts institutions such as Oakland. The doctor's hood is the most elegant of all academic appurtenances. Large and graceful, it is lined in satin with the colors of the university that awarded the degree and is bordered with the color of the degree itself. Most academic costumes include the square cap called a mortarboard; the doctor's tassel may be either black or gold - tassels of all other degrees are black and stringy.

To instructed eyes, the order of march in the processional and recessional reveals the standing of individuals in the institution's formal hierarchy. In the processional the order of entrance into the hall is, quite fittingly, from most junior to most senior. The baccalaureate candidates enter first, followed successively by the masters and doctoral candidates with the whole separated from the faculty by a decent interval. In the faculty order, the instructors precede the assistant professors who in turn are followed by and associate professors. The august full professors bring up the rear. After a respectful distance come the deans who in turn are separated by a significant space from the awful majesty of the platform party, the president, the vice president, and the members of the board of trustees. All remain standing until the board is seated. After the ceremony, the order of recessional is the reverse of the processional. The greatest dignitaries stream out of the hall first, with the artfully organized ranks of priority wallowing in their wake.

It is hoped that these notes may make more intelligible the spectacle you are witnessing today. A discerning intelligence may detect in it many clues to an understanding to the academic profession as it confronts the ambiguities of the future with ancient wisdom and dignified confidence.

Oakland University

Oakland University was created in 1957 when the late Alfred G. and Matilda R. Wilson donated their 1,470-acre estate and $2 million to Michigan State University to begin a new college in Oakland County. Named Michigan State University-Oakland, the new campus enrolled its first students in 1959. In 1963, its name was changed to Oakland University, and in 1970 the Michigan Legislature recognized the maturity and stature of the university by granting it autonomy. The Governor appointed Oakland University's first board of trustees in 1970.

Today, Oakland University enrolls about 13,000 students each year, and offers more than 70 undergraduate programs and 31 graduate programs through the schools of Business Administration, Education and Human Services, Engineering and Computer Science, Health Sciences, Nursing, and the College of Arts and Sciences. All academic programs of the university are accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools. The university faculty of more than 350 scholars has distinguished itself in many areas of instruction, research and service.
