Editor's note: Elton C. Fay, Associated Press military affairs reporter, was aboard the atomic submarine Seawolf on a training cruise along the East Coast. But a report that a Russian submarine might be lurking in the area kept the Seawolf on a hunt through the ocean depths. This was the first time a reporter had taken part in such a venture. The entire story can't be told. What can be told is related here.

ABOARD NUCLEAR SUBMARINE SEAWOLF — Somewhere in the sea around this atom-powered submarine may be a Soviet sub, lurking in deep waters off the Atlantic Coast.

The Seawolf has been given the job of trying to find that Russian submarine if it is there.

It's the first time the Navy has ordered an atomic undersea craft to conduct what is very much like a war patrol.

When the Seawolf sailed out from port, it was ordered for a routine training cruise. But an order, radioed to the sub a few hours after it sailed, converted its mission into a hunt for an unidentified submarine—or submarines—believed sighted in this area.

There would be no great surprise if this search eventually should identify the reported unidentified submarine as Russian. The submarines of all major powers roam far. If they stay outside the territorial waters of a nation and commit no hostile act it would be difficult to drive them away or take action against them.

Since about 1950 there have been repeated reports of sightings of unidentified submarines off the East and West coasts of the United States.

In recent days, there was a fresh flurry of such reported sightings. At Washington, the Navy said, without elaboration, that naval vessels had been sent out to check on the reports.

The Seawolf isn't working alone. She is serving as command ship of the search force, directing ships and aircraft. Cmdr. Richard B. Laning, skipper of the Seawolf and a man who knows undersea warfare from Pacific campaigns of World War II, sits at the nerve center of the search.

In a bristling speech climaxing the campaign for Russia's one-party parliamentary elections tomorrow, the Communist party chief denounced as "insulting" President Eisenhower's proposal to include in a summit parley the issue of East Europe.

Khrushchev told 11,000 cheering followers in Moscow's Sports Palace that "in the event of any new attempt from abroad to change the status of the Socialist (Communist) countries by force, we will not remain ordinary onlookers and we will not leave our friends in the lurch."

Shortly before Khrushchev spoke, the Foreign Ministry proposed moving back the time of a summit parley from June to July. The ministry renewed proposals that a foreign ministers meeting be held next month to decide the agenda of a top level conference.

The West has rejected Soviet limitations on foreign ministers discussions and refused to set a date for any summit meeting until agreement can be reached on its topics.

Goff Attorneys Ask Dismissal

Argue Trial for Murder Pointless Since Judge to Deny Guilty Verdict

Attorneys for Ray Goff, 35, yesterday moved for dismissal of murder charges against him in preparation for a March 24 hearing before Circuit Judge Frank L. Doty.

Lewis R. Bebout and Edward Potere, the attorneys, in this motion argued that since the judge has already said he could not accept a verdict of guilty in the case, there was no point in a new trial.

Goff's first trial resulted in a hung jury early this month.

At the conclusion of the trial the judge said he would have to set aside a verdict of guilty and set March 24 as the date for hearing any motions.

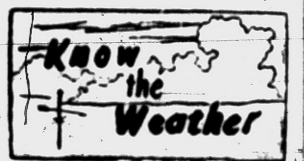

Potere said today that all psychiatrists had agreed that Goff was insane at the time he killed his former girl friend, Mrs. Rita Cummings, 27, of Flint, on Aug. 21, 1935. A new trial would only waste court money, he said.

He stressed that a sanity hearing before Judge George B. Hartwick after the killing had shown conclusively that Goff was insane.

Goff spent two years at Ionia State Hospital before being considered well enough to stand trial.

Artcraft Blueprint Co. to Be Closed Monday

What are nature's vocal recorders of temperature?

Two of the audible announcers of the temperature outside are the katydid and the black field cricket. The female katydid sings out the temperature between about 55 and 77 degrees according to Eric Sloane, famed weather expert. You must listen to the length of the call. It is longest at 77 degrees and is more brief until no call at all can be heard—at about 55 degrees.

The black field cricket is said to chirp away at the rate of about 129 times per minute at a temperature reading of 70 degrees. The number of cricket chirps per minute rises steadily until past 80 degrees.

The number falls as the temperature lowers, until 40 degrees is reached, at which temperature all insects are dormant.

2.2 Inches Falls in Catskills

Vicious Storm Pasting Snow on New England

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A wild northeast storm pasted with winds which gusted up to 70 New England with additional m.p.h. in sections of New England heavy snows today, tangling power lines and early today. Trembling, snarling traffic and general paralysis were around the freezing-belying the fact that spring level was less than a week away, by the calendar.

Heavy, wet snow measuring up to 22 inches covered Tannersville in the Catskill Mountains of New York. 17 1/2 inches blanketed sections of Connecticut and more than 13 inches was on the ground in northwestern New Jersey. The storm was given added ferocity by a cold front which moved up from the south.

Reuther Stole Whole Show, Wallace Says

DETROIT (INS)—Mike Wallace, the TV interviewer, admitted yesterday that Walter Reuther, United Auto Worker president, "ran away with the show" when he appeared on the Mike Wallace interview program several weeks ago.

Wallace spoke before nearly 400 members of the Adcraft Club, substituting for Oliver Treyz, president of the ABC-TV network.

He said, "Reuther told me in advance that he was going to take over the first 10 minutes." Wallace added, "He did more than that. He just ran away with the whole show."

Public Works Funds Sought

Extra $7.5 Million Asked for State in President's Request

WASHINGTON (AP)—Michigan is in line for an additional $7,541,000 this year for five public works projects.

Sen. Potter (R-Mich.) said yesterday the funds were included in a request by President Eisenhower for an extra 125 million dollars in public works spending to combat the recession.

Potter said the five Michigan projects were included in the President's request. The projects already have been authorized and work on them has begun.

The projects:
Great Lakes connecting channels: current request, $18,000,000; new request, $23,500,000.
Harrisville Harbor: current request $300,000; new request, $700,000.

Houghton-Hancock Bridge: current request, $700,000; new request, $1,300,000.
St. Marys south channel: current request, $1,200,000; new request, $2,000,000.

Whitefish Point Harbor: current request, $10,000; new request, $541,000.

Seawolf Searches for Russian Sub built-in, natural features needed in anti-submarine work. It has high speed underwater. It can dive far deeper than most conventional submarines; it can stay down for weeks; it is elaborately rigged with new detection gear; it is armed with target-seeking torpedoes.

For reasons of security, details on how the Seawolf's hunt has progressed to this point, or of the precise methods used, may not be disclosed.

For days, the search has been long and painstaking. There have been a few possible contacts, faint tracings on sonar screens which might or might not be a submarine. But the images were "soft"—they couldn't be classified in certainty.

Then there was a particular hour in that cycle of time which runs on in a submarine where there is no day or night.

The Seawolf had planned up near enough the surface to use her radio. From the air came a search plane's report that it had glimpsed something.

The Seawolf dropped down. The command came: "Flank speed!"

Atomic power poured in. The Seawolf was like a huge, swift fish, boring swiftly through the water.

The spot reported by the plane is reached.

The Seawolf had been running deep. Now a new command comes. Take her deeper, very deep—hundreds and hundreds of feet deep.

There is silence in the boat. Men speak softly. Stillness except for the electronic voice of the hunter, the pinging sound of sonar impulses questing into the black depths.

The high speed has been cut down. The Seawolf creeps, stalks stealthily, listens, looks with its electronic eyes.

Is that a contact? The echoing note bounces back, stronger and stronger. The blip of green light on the sonar screen seems to become firm.

It could be a submarine. The sonar indicates it may be one. But the machine might be wrong. It could be a fish or whale, even at these depths. Perhaps it's a track of temperature layers.

You can't be certain. This is the point where the story must stop.

Sen. Byrd to Fight for Paid-For Roads multiple problem, it was estimated that the additional funds would provide at least 88,000 jobs in a year.

Byrd, author of the "pay-as-you-go" section in the original 1936 highway act, said he will lead a fight for its retention when the bill reaches the floor.

As written, the measure adds 1.3 billion dollars to federal funds available to states this year for road-building.

It also grants one-half of 1 percent in federal money to states who agree to regulate billboards along the 41,000-mile system.

Of the new outlay, 600 million dollars would be turned over to the states immediately. This includes 200 million dollars for the superhighway program and 400 million for primary, secondary and urban roads.

The funds would be added to the $2,875,000,000 appropriated by Congress for fiscal 1939 for both programs.

Pastor King Speaks on Racial Problems

"The problem of race relations is not a political problem. It is rather a moral problem, and the duty of members of the Gospel of all races to conquer this problem."

This is what Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., pastor of the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church of Montgomery, Ala., told a standing-room crowd last night as he spoke at Trinity Baptist Church on the question, "Has There Been Any Real Progress in Race Relations?"

King, one of the leaders of the Montgomery bus boycott in 1955, and president of the Montgomery Improvement Assn., told the audience that there are three basic attitudes in the area of race relations.

"The first is that of extreme optimism," King said. "The extreme optimist contends that the race problem is just about solved. He says that it is inevitable."

"The second attitude is that of the extreme pessimist who believes solving the race problem is impossible. He contends that the violent incidents in the South prove this fact."

King pointed out that the attitudes of both agree on one point, to sit down and do nothing.

REALISTIC APPROACH
"But the third attitude, the realistic approach, seeks to combine truths in both arguments," King went on. "This attitude is that we have come a long way and we have a longer way to go."

"The Negro has come a long way since slavery. He has reevaluated himself. He is now aware of the fact that it is not the texture of the skin that matters, but the complexion of the soul."

King went on to say that in order to bring about complete harmony between the races, the federal government should use all its constitutional powers to enforce the law of the land; the public should consider all sides of the problem and take a stand for the right; the Christian church should stand on the principle of "love thy enemies," and the Negro himself should work for integration.

"There are three ways to deal with our oppression," King continued. "We can accept it and resign ourselves to freedom of exhaustion; we can rise up with physical violence; or we can resist with non-violence."

"We must use the method of non-violent resistance which will not only gain freedom, but will change the hearts of those who inflict the oppression, and we can live together as brothers."

Mrs. Max (Dorothy M.) Selle, elementary coordinator for Waterford Township Schools and former teacher and principal of the Lambert School, died yesterday in her home 5631 Old Orchard Trail, Orchard Lake. She had been ill more than a year.

A native of Oakland County, she was the daughter of James and Nellie Orr Walls.

Mrs. Selle, 47, was a graduate of Pontiac Central High School. She received her Bachelor of Science degree from Eastern Michigan College in 1933.

Coming to the Lambert School in 1930, she was made principal of the school in 1943. When she left in 1954 to become elementary coordinator for the Waterford Township Schools the Lambert PTA gave Mrs. Selle a life membership to the Michigan Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Surviving besides her husband and mother are a sister, Mrs. Hiram H. Smith of Pontiac, and two brothers, Fred J. Walls of Orchard Lake and Dr. Arch B. Walls of Detroit.

Service will be at 2 p.m. Monday from the Donelson-Johns Funeral Home with her pastor, the Rev. Edward D. Auchard, officiating. Burial will follow in White Chapel Memorial Cemetery.

The family suggests contributions be made for the Dorothy Selle Memorial Fund for Cancer Research to Mrs. Helen Reese, 2739 Watkins Lake Rd.

The Lambert School, Waterford Township, will be dismissed at noon Monday due to Mrs. Selle's death.

said "no" and pointed aloft as though to indicate that the orders "came from on high."

"My own opinion is that they thought —" Hoffman said, but Kennedy interrupted to ask who was meant by "they."

KNOW OF DEALS
"I think someone connected with the motor industry thought I knew about some crooked dealings on the sale of junk," Hoffman said. He added that he believes there was pressure "both Democratic and Republican," and continued:

"They didn't want any investigations of the union," he said.

Hoffman repeated that Smith had been called to a telephone. "I'm quite sure he didn't talk to the President," Hoffman said. "I know he didn't."

SWINGS BACK
With that, he swung back into his talk about Reuther. He dipped into a big cardboard box to produce photographs by the score of picket line fights and other violence to show, he said, that Reuther is wrong in denying that the UAW encouraged violence in strikes.

Sometimes he jumped the Meat Cutters, Steel Workers and UAW unions together in his broadsides. But he said it made no difference because "they're all in bed together."

"A perfect pattern has run through their strikes," Hoffman said, and added that it was a pattern of "mass violence," against which he never heard Reuther speak out until recently.

He displayed a picture he said showed five unionists beating up a timekeeper at the Ford Motor Co. in Detroit in 1941. He said one of them was Jess Ferrazza, who also has been named in connection with violence in the Kohler strike. Ferrazza is an administrative assistant to UAW Secretary-Treasurer Emil Mazey.

Hoffman said the picture proves that Reuther has kept in high union ranks a man who had been "in violence for 16 years."

Silver readily agreed to the date and time when queried at Detroit and added: "I further promise the scholar a courteous welcome."

Silver said he would invite all of the local's 2,400 members to attend the session, adding, "I would be happy to introduce the senator to our members because I always share our hall for free and open discussions."

The invitation and acceptance capped a running battle of words between Potter and the union over whether UAW chiefs would permit him to speak before union members. Potter is seeking re-election this year.

The biting invitation from Silver questioned "the sincerity of your (Potter's) professed desire to meet shop workers face to face." Dated last Tuesday, it was made public by Potter yesterday.

In a terse 30-word telegraphic reply to Silver, Potter thanked him, accepted, suggested the date and asked him to advise whether it would be convenient.

Opposes High Seaway Tolls

Lakes Official Warns of Economic Warfare, Little Traffic

WINDSOR (U) — High St. Lawrence Seaway tolls would discourage traffic and could result in 10 years of "economic warfare," said Dr. N. D. Danielian, president of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Seaway Assn. and chairman of the Users Committee of the St. Lawrence Seaway tolls.

He told the Canadian Bankers Night of the American Institute of Banking Men's Forum: "High toll rates might not justify companies shipping via the St. Lawrence Seaway—and it is essential that sensible charges are set, for once the agreements have been set up they will be difficult to change and could result in 10 years of economic warfare."

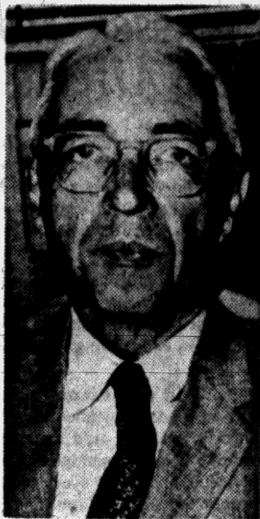

Some had said that the proposed tolls were small compared with the total cost of transportation of goods to Europe.

The suggested basic toll was 50 cents a ton. Other charges en route—such as the Welland Canal charge—could bring the cost to as much as 75 cents a ton.

"With rates like this only the head of the Great Lakes would be able to use the seaway profitably," he said.

The companies who could use the waterway from below the lakehead would not have to "haggle or haggle" over charges. They would merely wait and see if they made using the waterway profitable.

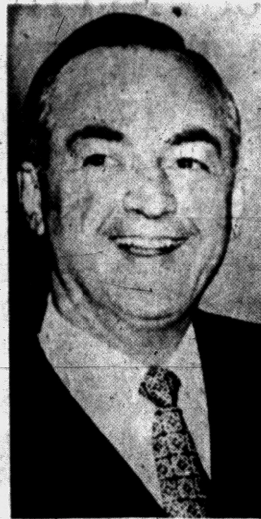

He said the Welland Canal possibly would be a "bottleneck" unless considerably improved. It is the neck of the hour glass of the waterway and only Canada can do something about it. I hope it will be given due thought."

Sir Winnie Has Ike, Mamie in Tizzy; Is Visit at White House On or Off?

By RUTH MONTGOMERY
WASHINGTON (U) — Sir Winston Churchill has Ike and Mamie Eisenhower in a bit of a tizzy. The grand old man of British politics is also having an identical effect on our State Department, and on the Smithsonian Institution where his paintings are scheduled to be shown six weeks hence.

Winnie, bless him, is committed to an unadorned breach of social etiquette by failing to let his host and hostess know whether he is still planning to visit them. And frankly, the Eisenhower would like to know.

The President and First Lady are in a delicate spot, because of the timing of Sir Winston's acceptance. Shortly before his near-fatal bout with pneumonia, the former British prime minister had told his old pal, Ike, that he would be delighted to stay with him at the White House during his one-man art show at the Smithsonian. The official wheels had consequently just begun to roll, in preparation for the distinguished house guest, when headlines proclaimed that Winnie was at death's door.

Fortunately, he bested the grim reaper and is now recuperating at Roquebrune on the French Riviera. Still and all, since Winnie is no spring chicken at 83, few American officials believe that his doctors will okay a transatlantic crossing next month, with the attendant excitement of a White House visit.

Smithsonian officials are meanwhile stymied in their plans for a swish opening of the Churchillian exhibit April 26. If Winnie is to be there in person, the event calls for a splash of pomp and protocol. If not, Dr. Leonard Carmichael can proceed with his tentative plans to invite members of Congress and the press to a mere sneak preview in advance of the public look-see.

The Eisenhower's problem is more perplexing than if Sir Winston had been coming as an official visitor. Were he still prime minister, he would have stayed at the President's guest house across the street, or at the British Embassy.

In that event, Ike and Mamie could simply block off an evening on their calendar for hosting a formal state dinner. If Winnie failed to show, they could always munch scrambled eggs in front of their television set upstairs.

Since, however, Winnie was arriving as a personal house guest, the Eisenhower's have had to reserve an entire week for catering to the comforts and entertainment of the grand old man.

To muddle matters still further, neither the White House nor the British Embassy seems to know whether Lady Churchill had planned to accompany her octogenarian husband to our Potomac shores.

Public Records Must Be Open

Atty. General Affirms Right of Newspapers to Obtain Facts

LANSING (U) — The right of newspapers to publish information from public records maintained by county register of deeds was affirmed anew Friday by Atty. Gen. Paul L. Adams.

Replying to a query from George D. Lutz, Lapeer County Prosecutor, Adams said refusal of the register of deeds to allow access to his public records would be in violation of the law.

Specifically, Lutz had asked whether a register of deeds could refuse to permit a newspaper to gather information for a weekly synopsis of deeds, mortgages and chattel mortgages, including the names of the parties and the consideration involved.

In his opinion, Adams advised that Michigan statutes make it a misdemeanor for any officer having custody of county records to fail or neglect to furnish facilities for inspection and examination of records in his office.

The law also provides that the officer must provide for the making of memoranda, of transcripts from records during usual business hours — at least four hours a day — by any person desiring to do this for any lawful purpose.

Soviet Scientist Says Americans Gay as Russians

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (U) — Americans, like Russians, are gay and hospitable, says Dr. George K. Skriabin, the first Soviet scientist to come here under the cultural and scientific exchange program.

The 40-year-old microbiologist was amiable and diplomatic at a news conference. He is studying at the Rutgers University Institute of Microbiology here under Russian-born Dr. Selman A. Waksman. Skriabin gave his opinions on a variety of topics.

He said the Soviet Union is ahead of the United States in some areas of microbiology, but lags in others. On the whole, he said, the two nations are on about the same level.

Skriabin said he hoped the limited exchange would help bring Soviet and American scientists closer together.

He diplomatically sidestepped the issue of politics. "I'm not a specialist in that field," he explained.

Skriabin did say he was not a card-carrying Communist, but added: "All Russians are Communists in their hearts."

Junior Editors Quiz on LEGENDS

QUESTION: Do elves and fairies really exist?

ANSWER: For centuries the youth of the world has thrilled to the antics of elves, fairies, pixies, leprechauns and goblins in fairy tales. These "little people" usually reward good human beings and punish the bad. But there are also bad fairies who have to be reckoned with. Almost all fairies, good or bad, are mischievous and like to play tricks on man and on each other.

These little people never really existed. They were invented long ago by storytellers who wanted to teach boys and girls. Most of the fairy tales involve forces of good and evil, with the good always coming out on top. Eventually, these tales were written down and translated into many languages. Many of the tales written hundreds of years ago have been passed down through the ages and still stir the imagination of youngsters today.

FOR YOU TO DO: Here are a couple of elves playing on a mushroom. Paste the picture on cardboard, color it and cut it out.

GIRLS FOLLOW LEADERS

4-H, Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls are celebrating this month. Each organization is doing exemplary work with youth, training them to take our places in a complex scheme of things.

Leaders in these organizations have a titanic responsibility. They must instill in the minds of these young ladies the ideals of their organization, ideals of their Country, ideals of their sex, then dramatize their place within that sphere. Only after many years can these leaders know the results of their efforts; the amazing records of these organizations speak for itself: 800 girls out of every 1,000 continue to adhere to the basic tenets of their organization as long as they live.

National 4-H Clubs claim March 1st to the 8th as their week:

Girl Scouts celebrate March 9th to 15th:

Camp Fire Girls will celebrate their Birthday Week March 23rd to March 30th.
