

Romney: GOP Would Tell Viet War Truth

ONE COLOR

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney says it will take election of a Republican president to guarantee that Americans will be told the truth about the Vietnam war.

The Republican governor said the Johnson administration is feeding the people "manipulated, inflated and distorted reports" about the war.

In a speech yesterday to the convention of the National Federation of Republican Women, Romney — considered a likely bidder for the 1968 GOP presidential nomination — predicted his party will win the presidency and control of the House in November 1968.

He did not document his charges about government distortion of war reports.

Romney generally has backed President Johnson's war policies.

But he scored administration policies on foreign aid, saying, "The people don't want a government that stumbles into international commitments that grow like Topsy."

"The people don't want a government that squanders American prestige, raising false fears and hopes by acting as a global policeman and global financier."

He urged instead "a better way — a government that establishes sound priorities and then commits its resources and prestige with respect for the interests and responsibilities of its allies."

Romney later was guest of honor at a federation-sponsored reception, where convention delegates lined up by the hundreds to shake his hand.

Republican Gov. John Love of Colorado told the convention, involved in a bitter floor battle for the federation's top office, that Democrats are adept at putting down intraparty disputes in time to assure unity at the polls.

But Republicans, Love said, have a tendency to magnify small conflicts — a failing he warned could cost the GOP the presidency in 1968.

Another House Vote Possible

Tax Fight May Go to Senate

LANSING (AP) — The next round in the legislative tax fight apparently will be in the Senate, although Republican leaders said yesterday they may try another vote in the House next week.

The House defeated the income tax section of their package 48-57 Thursday but yesterday reconsidered the vote and left the measure in position for another test of strength.

House Speaker Robert Waldron, R-

Grosse Pointe, said he may ask for a vote next week on the income tax proposal — which in its present form would be even less attractive to Democrats than the version defeated Thursday.

Meanwhile, Gov. George Romney said he was disappointed, but not discouraged, by the bill's defeat, and State AFL-CIO President August Scholle said he was pleased.

"There appears to be a genuine desire on the part of a majority of the members of the House for tax reform," Romney said yesterday. "I remain optimistic that a majority of our lawmakers share this goal and intend making it a reality."

'DESERVED SETBACK'

Scholle told the state AFL-CIO executive board the tax plan voted down in the House was unfair to individual taxpayers and deserved to be beaten.

Echoing the argument of House Democrats, he said the program "placed almost the entire extra tax burden on individuals" and added business has received several tax breaks recently and "should now be assessed its full share."

The House, meanwhile, removed from its tax bill yesterday three provisions added in attempts to overcome Democratic objections to the measure.

Those sections increased the corporate income tax rate from 5 to 6 per cent, raised the exemption allowed under the 2½ per cent personal tax from $600 to $1,000 and outlawed city nonresident income taxes.

The bill, in its present form, is a Republican-drafted package. Thursday's version, which Democrats said they liked better, drew only two Democratic votes.

The Senate went through a similar process in March, defeating an income tax bill, then reconsidering the vote and sending the entire tax package back to committee. Those bills could be returned to the Senate floor at any time.

View of Eclipse for N. Americans

NEW YORK (AP) — An eclipse of the sun next Tuesday — weather permitting — will be visible over nearly all of North America, reports Dr. Thomas D. Nicholson, an astronomer at the Hayden Planetarium.

He said yesterday the eclipse will begin at 9:21 a.m. EDT May 9, with maximum coverage at 9:49 a.m. and with the eclipse ending at 10:19 a.m.

In New York the moon will cover almost 7 per cent of the sun, and in Alaska the eclipse will reach 72 per cent, Nicholson said.

It will be visible from most of North America, he said, except in part of Newfoundland and the Florida peninsula. Parts of Europe also will see the phenomena, he added.

Teamster Chain of Command Move Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Harold Gibbons of the Teamsters Union disputes reports that union leaders are moving to reestablish a union chain of command long ignored during the rigid one-man rule of President James R. Hoffa.

Gibbons, president of St. Louis Joint Council 13, said yesterday the reports are inaccurate.

With Hoffa now serving a prison term, top Teamsters officials were reported earlier yesterday to have agreed in a secret Chicago session to bar bypassing of local, city and regional leadership levels by members with complaints.

Under Hoffa's decade at the Teamsters helm, sources said, members were encouraged to report problems directly to the top man.

This undermined the authority of officials at lower command levels — but kept Hoffa in personal contact with members throughout the 1.8-million-member union.

AGREEMENT THURSDAY

The new agreement reportedly was reached Thursday in Chicago, with the Teamsters general vice president, Frank Fitzsimmons, Hoffa's handpicked successor, reportedly taking part.

Hoffa still holds the title of president, but Fitzsimmons is occupying his office.

"Fitzsimmons feels the office of the general president can't deal with all problems," one high-placed Teamster source said.

The agreement is said to include the threat of disciplinary action against any member who tries to "short-circuit" the chain of command.

Decision Date Draws Near on Sports Complex at Fair

By DICK SAUNDERS

How about a domed stadium right across the street from Oakland County? And an indoor racetrack to boot?

There's been a lot of behind-the-scenes activity along these lines for two years. It's been a period of idea-hatching and careful study.

The time for action is near.

One of the major figures behind plans for a recreation complex on the Michigan State Fairgrounds just across the Wayne-Oakland county line on Woodward Avenue is Alfred Glancy Jr.

He feels that 1967 is the year of decision.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN

Glancy, a real estate developer and financier with offices in Detroit, is chairman of the Michigan State Fairgrounds stadium committee, one of several groups studying the feasibility of a new stadium for the Detroit area.

Another supporter of a sports complex at the fairgrounds is Democratic Rep. Arthur J. Law of Pontiac, who has worked with several legislative committees studying the matter for the past two years.

Both men agree that more than a new stadium is involved.

They envision a sports-recreation complex developed to draw year-round attendance to a vast array of activities ranging from a showplace for antique and new-model automobiles to major sports events.

While both have been working on the over-all concept of a recreation complex for several years, each has narrowed his sights to a pet project.

Record Dem Crowd Hears RFK Speech

By JIM LONG

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy told an audience of more than 3,000 in Detroit last night that the Democratic party must begin to shape a fresh set of goals and programs or it will be "discarded as an instrument of national leadership."

The warning of the junior senator from New York was met with little response, however, from the largest crowd ever to attend the party's fund raising Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner held at Cobo Hall.

Generally, the reaction from a number of persons who paid $30 a plate was, at best, polite.

The biggest ovation came when Kennedy preceded his prepared remarks by introducing and endorsing for the legislature James Hoffa Jr., the son of the Teamster president now serving a prison sentence for jury tampering.

The senior Hoffa's trouble with the government began when Kennedy was a member of the McClellan committee and later continued when Kennedy was U.S. attorney general.

LOOK FOR ANSWERS

Kennedy, who was introduced by Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan, said that, in his travels, he finds people are "groping for answers to problems they barely understand; searching for a purpose in the midst of baffling change, confusion and danger."

"We are losing the young to extreme movements or public indifference — for their fears and expectations have no answers in the politics of the past."

The older generation, said Kennedy, are turning away toward conservative movements because they lack confidence in their ability to protect the future and are "hoping at least to protect what they already have."

As countermeasure, Kennedy said, the party must find ways to liberate and enhance the importance of individual lives and action, "to protect ourselves against the giant organizations — sprawling government bureaucracies, huge impersonal corporations, and universities as big as cities — which threaten to overwhelm and obliterate the importance and value of individual man."

SLAP AT JOHNSON

At one point, Kennedy took a slap at President Johnson's Great Society.

"Our greatest failure toward those who have been denied American justice is not simply that our poverty programs are pitifully and shamefully inadequate; our greatest failures have been our refusal to recognize their rights as individuals."

"We have given welfare handouts to mothers and children — but we have refused to create jobs for husbands and fathers, and thus have forced families to break up in order to receive the bounty."

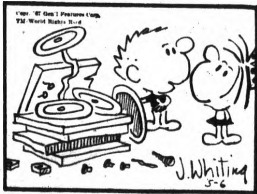

Public housing units have been built by the thousands, Kennedy continued, but nothing has been done to help poor people own their own homes "free of bureaucratic management, and control over their locations."

Marine Toll Heavy in Chain of Battles for Key S. Viet Hills

KHE SANH, Vietnam (AP) — U.S. Marines, their fatigues soaked with sweat, gazed wearily at the shell-torn hilltop they won Friday after 12 days of savage fighting.

Of the 1,400 Marines engaged in the chain of battles for three hills, 160 had been slain and 745 had been wounded. The Leathernecks had killed at least 577 North Vietnamese regulars. That many had been confirmed. Marine officers estimated 610 others may have died.

"Hill 881 North was secured by Hotel Company, 2nd Battalion, 3rd Marines at 1435 — 2:35 p.m. — today," a Marine announcement said Friday.

That hill, named on military maps like the others for height in meters, was the final objective.

OTHER SUMMITS

The Marines earlier had wrested from the North Vietnamese the summits of Hill 881 South and Hill 861. With 881 North, the three hills form an arrowhead pointed at Khe Sanh, a forward American command post four miles to the southeast.

The Battle of the Hilltops began April 24 when a Marine combat patrol approached Hill 861. A forward observation team came under fire and four of the five men in it were killed.

The outnumbered Marines pulled back and reinforcements — the 2nd and 3rd Battalions, 3rd Marines — were rushed in.

The North Vietnamese, also new in the area, dug their log-covered bunkers deeper and prepared for the attack.

RED REGIMENTS

Lt. Gen. Lewis Walt, the Marine commander in Vietnam, said prisoners identified the Communist units as two regiments of the 325th North Vietnamese Division and said they had begun infiltrating into South Vietnam three months ago.

Since the terrain along the far western section of the demilitarized zone is so rugged it is virtually impassable, it is assumed the division used the Ho Chi Minh trail that loops through Laos to approach Khe Sanh.

Khe Sanh is 12 miles south of the demilitarized zone and about 10 miles east of the Laotian border.

By the time Hill 881 North fell, heavy casualties had forced both sides to shift units.

Area Man Is Killed Fighting in Vietnam

A 21-year-old Macomb County man was killed in action Wednesday in Vietnam the Defense Department reported today.

The victim was Marine Lance Cpl. David B. Koenig, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Paul Koenig of 69100 Powell, Armada Township.

A 1964 graduate of St. Augustine High School in Richmond, Koenig joined the Marines in April 1965 and had been in Vietnam since last November.

He was one of four Michigan servicemen listed as killed in recent actions in Vietnam.

Laymen Head Notre Dame

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Laymen assume leadership of the University of Notre Dame today in an historic departure from the 125-year command by the Holy Cross fathers.

With the change, Notre Dame becomes the first major Roman Catholic institution of higher learning to entrust laymen with control — a move in keeping with the spirit of the Second Vatican Council.

The council called for vesting laymen with a greater voice in church activities.

The Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, university president, set the tone for the new administration about the first of the year.

He said, "The time has come for laymen to share with Holy Cross priests the responsibility of governing this internationally recognized Roman Catholic institution."

Father Hesburgh said it was unrealistic to expect the six-member board of priests to guide the university in the same manner as in the past.

He also said the shift would not mean Notre Dame would become a secular university. He said failure to change with time would prompt "organizational arteriosclerosis."

Brandon Twp. Auto Accident Injures Woman

An Ortonville woman is in satisfactory condition in Pontiac General Hospital with injuries received in an accident yesterday in Brandon Township.

Mrs. Oscar Reed, 34, of 71 Cedar, suffered a fractured leg when a car driven by her daughter, Judith Ann, 16, went out of control on Ortonville Road about 4:15 p.m.

Judith Ann reportedly told Oakland County sheriff's deputies she was traveling south when she passed a truck and went off the right side of the road after returning to her lane.

The car went out of control in soft dirt and apparently rolled over, stopping on its side, deputies said.

Judith Ann and two other passengers in the car escaped serious injury.

Agreement on Land-Fill Waterford Board Topic

The Waterford Township Board Monday night will consider entering into an agreement with Pontiac which would enable township residents to use the city's sanitary land-fill site on West Kennett.

Following a request by Township Supervisor Elmer R. Johnson, the City Commission passed a resolution to initiate a contract with the township late last month.

Under terms of the agreement, township residents would be allowed to use the land-fill on a fee basis.

In other business, the board will consider a cooperative street-lighting project on Telegraph with the city of Pontiac.

$2,650 Outlay OK'd for Airport Lighting

Expenditure of $2,650 in county funds for installation of strobe lights at Oakland-Pontiac airport was authorized yesterday by the ways and means committee of the County Board of Supervisors.

The total cost of the 12-light installation that will help aircraft locate the airport in inclement weather will be $3,600.

Half of this amount will be matched by the state, and $2,100 already had been budgeted by the airport for strobe lighting.

Two of the flashing lights will be installed at each end of the east-west runway and the other eight lights will form an arrow at the west approach of the runway.

Utica Burglar, Owner of Bar Trade Gunfire

The owner of a Utica bar and an intruder exchanged gunfire last night after the latter had attempted to break into a safe in the basement of the downtown establishment.

Neither man was injured in the incident which took place at 8:30 below the jam-packed Shamrock Bar, 7715 Auburn. The burglar escaped.

Robert White, owner of the business, told Utica police he had gone downstairs to get some liquor when he spotted the burglar trying to pry open the safe.

White said he pulled a revolver on the hoodlum and told him to stand against a wall.

But, as White turned his head to telephone the police, the man drew a gun. Both men fired, and missed. The burglar fled, and White took another shot at him.

Police Quell Melee Near Movie Theater

BOSTON (P) — An estimated 10,000 college-age youths responding to a movie theater promotion rioted for almost three hours early today in the congested honky-tonk district downtown.

Police Capt. Joseph Hanley, who made the crowd estimate, said the melee was "out of control for a while" until a hastily assembled group of more than 75 policemen could disperse the rioters.

More than 20 persons were arrested.

At least five persons were taken to hospitals. Three were treated for cuts and two for dog bites. Police said two dogs from the Canine Corps were at the scene, but it was not known whether those bitten were injured by these or by other dogs seen in the area.

Letter to Miss Furness Filled With 'Shop Talk'

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON — Betty Furness, President Johnson's new special assistant for consumer affairs, made her first appearance as a congressional witness this week.

I dropped by the Senate hearing room where she was testifying with the intention of asking Miss Furness whether she planned to maintain an open door policy. But she was pretty busy so I didn't bother her. Instead, I'm putting it all down in a letter:

Dear Miss Furness:
When your appointment was first announced, you told reporters you were not in the habit of doing your own shopping but would begin doing so at once. I feel sorry for you when you start.

The way shopping is done nowadays, only the fittest survive.

Your lack of experience in this hostile environment could be disastrous.

Since you have so graciously consented to represent our interests in Washington, it behooves us consumers to do all we can to help you.

CONSUMER PROBLEM

I am therefore writing to tell you about a consumer problem I ran into recently and what I did about it.

I was in this store trying to buy a cross-threaded ratchet with which to repair the clutch on my apple-coring machine.

The clutch had been slipping, causing the apple cores to come out sideways.

I stood around about 25 minutes but nothing happened, clerk-wise.

GOT YOUR NUMBER

Finally I elbowed my way up to the cashier's counter and said, "Who do you have to know to get waited on in this place?"

"Do you have a number, sir?" the cashier said.
"You mean a telephone number?"

"No, a sales number. Go over to that counter and pick up a card with a number on it. When your number is called, the clerk will take your order."

I did as instructed and after another 25 minutes of mercantile bingo I finally hit a winner. 25-DAY WAIT

Two weeks later, the store sent me a bill. I waited 25 days and then I sent the bill back with a little note reading: "Do you have a number?"

A couple of days after that, the store's credit manager called me up and asked what the note meant.

"All my creditors have to take a number and wait their turn," I explained. "When your number comes up, I'll pay the bill."

In other words, Miss Furness, shoppers never win.

The best you can hope for is revenge. Or, as they say in Boston political circles, don't get mad, get even.

N-Spread Pact Talks Resume

By Science Service
WASHINGTON—In an attempt to iron out problems that caused a postponement in the nonproliferation conference in Geneva, U.S. representatives are holding simultaneous discussions with Russia and with West European countries.

The aim is to come to the formal 18-nation conference, once set for May 9 and now postponed to May 18, with a draft treaty that is acceptable to all the members.

So informal talks, which the participants have agreed not to discuss in public, are under way to make sure that unanimity is the order of the day at Geneva.

The big stumbling block to the treaty, which is aimed at stopping the development of nuclear weapons in countries that don't have them now, is the inspection procedure necessary to make sure that fissionable material, produced in nuclear power reactors, isn't diverted to make atom bombs.

The basic principles of inspection are causing no trouble. The question revolves on who will carry out the inspections.

PLUTONIUM FLOW

The International Atomic Energy, based in Vienna, is now charged with tracking the flow of fissionable plutonium produced by nuclear reactors in a number of countries, including India and Canada.

The U.S. has supported the IAEA's safeguard activities by turning them over to that agency inspection duties in reactors built abroad by this country.

A single, worldwide inspection system is seen as the only logical way of handling a difficult task.

THE PONTIAC CREATIVE ARTS CENTER

PcAc

The Pontiac Jaycees feel that a center such as the Pontiac Creative Arts Center can become the hub of activity in the Pontiac area such as many other cities and villages have.

This is not only for the benefit of those interested in promoting art but also for every man, woman and child, young or old, to have the opportunity of pursuing a hobby of their choice.

Incorporated in the building will be several meeting rooms as well as a kitchen that can be used for meetings of the many clubs in this area.

Pontiac needs this type of center to go with the rebuilding of the city and the old library is ideally located and constructed for this activity.

The Pontiac Creative Arts Center can become a reality very soon through contributions by the citizens of greater Oakland County. All contributions are tax deductible and should be sent to the Pontiac Junior Chamber of Commerce at 33 W. Huron St. in Pontiac, with checks made payable to the Pontiac Creative Arts Center.

Teamsters Win 76-Cent-an-Hour Hike

CHICAGO (AP) — The Teamsters Union has won a 76.04-cent-an-hour increase for its drivers across the nation and ended a 12-day strike-lockout in Chicago. The labor dispute cost the Chicago area economy an estimated $300 million.

The pact must be voted on by union members. The strike loss estimates were made by John Coulter, associate director of research and statistics for the Chicago Association of Commerce. He said there is no way to estimate the permanent loss that will result from the failure of small companies to recover.

SIMILAR FEELINGS

W. Eugene McCarron, general manager of the Illinois Motor Truck Operations Association, voiced similar sentiments. "Many smaller trucking companies won't be able to survive," he said.

"For others, profit this year will be almost nil. And for many trucking companies, some freight will be lost forever," McCarron declared.

He said the dispute will increase basic freight rates at least 15 per cent and in some cases a 25 per cent increase may be necessary.

The national settlement was approved Friday while Chicago drivers were pressing for a 90-cent package. It was accepted with a conditional clause that the national terms would rise to meet any higher settlement won by the Chicago locals. An earlier national settlement was upset by the Chicago strike lock-out.

BACK IN JAIL — Edgar Labat, 44, who spent more years on death row than any other American, is led into parish prison in New Orleans yesterday after he was released and then rearrested at the Louisiana State Prison. Labat, who has spent the last 14 years on death row, was ordered released after the U.S. Supreme Court overturned his conviction in a rape case. He was told of his release and then rearrested on a new indictment returned in the case.

Ohio, Michigan to Talk on Land Tiff

LANSING (AP) — Michigan and Ohio authorities will confer at the Lansing Capitol Tuesday morning in an attempt to head off a dispute over Michigan's so-called Lost Peninsula.

The peninsula is a tiny point of land jutting out into Lake Erie.

Although it can be reached by land only through Ohio, it belongs to Erie Township, Monroe County.

Toledo had voted $114,820 to help acquire 108 acres of the Michigan land for development as a marina, park and recreation area. It planned to seek matching funds from the federal government to make up the rest of the cost.

ILLEGAL MOVE?

The Michigan attorney general's office immediately ventured an off-the-cuff, unofficial opinion that this would be illegal.

Dearborn, the attorney general's office noted, had tried to purchase land in Florida for a retirement village but found this was illegal.

Michigan already is involved in a court fight with Ohio over boundary rights in Lake Erie. "We don't want another boundary war over this," said Nicholas V. Olds, assistant attorney general with the State Conservation Department. "We can't have a Vietnam war started here."

TWIN USAGE

Olds said the meeting would be an attempt to work out a compact for the use of the land for recreation purposes by both states.

"We want to see if property in both Ohio and Michigan can be used together as a unit," he said. "We figure two friendly states can get together when mutual interests are involved."

Pontiac Motor Strikes at Pollution

Air pollution is not an easy problem to lick. It's usually an expensive proposition to begin with. But the fact that it's often caused by a major industry makes things much more difficult.

It's not easy for any community to slap costly restrictions on the industry which is its economic backbone.

We are fortunate in this respect to have Pontiac Motor Division as the backbone of our economy. The division announced plans this week to install new electric melting furnaces in its foundry to greatly reduce air pollution in Pontiac.

Pontiac Motor Division officials have long recognized the air pollution problems created by the foundry and have, in collaboration with City officials, spent many months studying other electric furnace systems to assure the best possible solution here in Pontiac.

Furthermore, the move shows a decided interest in community betterment on the part of General Motors Corporation.

The new furnaces will not only relieve the air pollution problem facing existing residents in the foundry area, but will ultimately make a major undeveloped portion of Pontiac more attractive to developers.

We applaud Pontiac Motor Division's decision to face the air pollution problem squarely and undertake this costly project.

Transit Authority Bill Rides Through State Senate

With adequate public transportation becoming one of the Nation's major concerns and Southeastern Michigan one of the Country's fastest developing areas, the State Senate bill to create a six-county transportation authority has much to recommend it. Oakland County is one of the six.

Population trends are no respecters of municipal boundary lines, and an area authority to integrate and coordinate present transit facilities and develop new transportation concepts seems imperative if the urgent need for effective mass movement of urban and suburban residents is to be met.

The bill which passed the Senate 35-3 and is now in the House would set up a seven-man board to administer the authority. Funds to implement the body would be drawn from a variety of sources — Federal, State, county, private, and from sale of self-liquidating bonds — but no taxing power is vested in it.

An escape hatch is provided for counties initially composing the authority. During the first year, a county could withdraw on a majority vote of its Board of Supervisors and by a two-thirds vote thereafter.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that the "authority" concept offers a practical solution to the growing problems of providing certain areawide public services. Transportation well fits into this category.

Red Dragon's Fangs Seen Behind Vietnam War

A general has sobering words for Americans.

The general is not WILLIAM C. WESTMORELAND, who recently came home from Vietnam to address a joint session of Congress. He is Brig. Gen. SAMUEL B. GRIFFITH (USMC, Ret.)

Like WESTMORELAND, however, GRIFFITH foresees no early end to the fighting in Vietnam. Holder of a Ph.D. from Oxford in Chinese history as well as the Distinguished Service Cross, GRIFFITH, now a research associate at the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace, believes the war will go on as long as Communist China wants it to.

In a recently published book, "The Chinese People's Liberation Army," he writes that Peking "will exert every pressure and take every measure short of direct intervention on the ground to prolong the fighting in South Vietnam and to prevent negotiation of a settlement."

China's regional foreign policy goals have not changed since the Korean War, says GRIFFITH. They are the elimination of American influence and presence from the Asian rimlands and the eventual breaking out of what she sees as an encirclement of her by hostile and menacing American power.

It has often been said that we must learn to live with an aggressive, militant China.

That is true, agrees the authority. "But it is equally true that China must learn to live with us and with the world community. At the present time she shows slight indication of wishing to do either."

The War Is There, but Noise Is Here

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — This has been an astonishing two weeks not so much for what was said as for what was illustrated — that the war is there, but the noise is here.

In the grimy war in Vietnam, Marines fought and died for a couple of hills and U.S. MARLOW planes bombed MIG bases and missile sites. But, in a sense, the war has been not only ghastly but ghostly.

The enemy operates almost silently, moving men, fighting, assassinating, melting into the jungle, reappearing, spreading death, dying, saying little, but determined to overcome.

U.S. forces there move quietly, too, although their deeds and daring are duly reported in the newspapers at home. But it's a war far away. Printer's ink is a bleak substitute for blood; a crinkling paper is now as impressive as guns.

Here at home, politicians made up in sound what they lacked in fury. Democrats wrangled with Democrats about the war, Republicans with Republicans, like a frustrated kettle that has to sit on a hot stove and can only bubble and boil.

NO PEP TALKS

President Johnson, who might have been expected in another kind of war to give pep talks to the nation with vast promises of retaliation and annihilation for the enemy, has been restrained.

The restraint was imposed on him by the nature of the war and the criticism at home.

With all the criticism heaped on him, Johnson could have chosen to go after his critics with angry attacks and talks to the nation on television. But he decided to play it in a low key, perhaps to avoid more criticism.

STILL CRITICAL

But the critics keep going. Yet, there is no evidence they have denied his determination to see the war through even a little. At times, he seems to operate as quietly as Hanoi.

Anyone who thinks Johnson can be deterred had better remember the promise he made two years ago when Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, wanted more than the 60,000 men he had then.

"We have met and taken action to meet the requests made by Gen. Westmoreland," Johnson said in 1965, "and as other needs appear we will promptly meet them." And he added:

"We do not intend to let up until the aggression ceases."

Now the U.S. forces in Vietnam number about 440,000. Just a week ago in this country, Westmoreland indicated he needed still more men but was vague on how many.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODY ISHMAEL

Monsignor James H. Fitzpatrick, one of the new breed of activist priests, is director of The Health and Hospital Division, Catholic Charities of Brooklyn. With the sanction of his superior, Bishop McEntegart, Father Fitzpatrick conceived and started up the monumental $60 million Catholic Medical Center of Brooklyn and Queens, and is a medical missionary to the sick and needy of every race and creed in one of the country's most populated urban areas.

Father Fitzpatrick believes that medicine should be taken to the people by the people. Less than 10 per cent of his undertaking is with government money.

His father, a New York fireman, died when he was 12. To get his education he worked as a detective at a race track and as a laborer on excavation projects for the Navy. His whole life as a priest has been in hospital work, which he feels is the forerunner of ecumenism.

Father Fitzpatrick says, "God created mankind for God, and God created man for man!" or as St. John said, "Little children love one another."

Confident Living:

Every Problem Can Be Solved

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Funny how things work out. I had a date to speak at a meeting in Columbus, Ohio.

My plane was scheduled to leave at 3:00 p.m. but, when I got to Kennedy International Airport, a freak combination of smog and fog had cancelled out the flight.

"Our next plane to Columbus leaves at 7:30," the agent said, "but tell you what, another airline has one leaving at 4:00. I'll check and see if by any chance you can put you on." So she called and told of my plight, but there was already a long stand-by passenger list and no chance of anyone else getting on.

I sat down to think. The people expecting me to talk that evening were planning to build a new church. I hated to let them down. The time was now 3:30. Could I drive to Columbus? A moment's calculating of time and distance told me that was out.

What else could I do? I asked myself, what's so important about this anyhow? There are ministers at Columbus who might give a better talk than I could. I could call one of them and ask him to pinch-hit for me. But somehow I kept feeling I ought to do something more about getting there.

I called my secretary — although for no special reason that she could do anything. She said, "Let me make a phone call. I'll call you back in a few minutes."

Then I decided to leave it up to the good Lord. If he really wanted me to go to Columbus he would have to provide a way. I put it in his hands.

Fifteen minutes later my secretary called back to say I had a seat on the four o'clock plane of the other airline. "But you'll have to get over there fast!" she warned.

I got there fast. The place was bedlam. Feeling embarrassed at the priority I was being given I hurried past a lot of waiting people and onto the plane. I hoped they were not bumping somebody whose presence in Columbus was more important than mine.

Anyway I got to the meeting. Despite a snowstorm so thick you could hardly see through it a big crowd had turned out in Columbus. I was so impressed by the help of God in getting me there that I told the people my experience.

"It makes me think there must be somebody present here," I said, "for whom God has a message He expects me to convey. Now I don't know what that person's problem may be, but I'll state my thoughts on handling a tough problem in general."

What I said was this in essence: Do all you can to solve your problem by thinking creatively. Think it through, work at it, struggle with it, give it all you've got. But if after trying every approach you can think of, the unsolved problem is still with you you're getting nowhere, then stop struggling and put it in God's hands.

A few days later I received a beautiful letter from a young woman. "I really had no intention of attending the meeting the other night," she wrote. "But I heard you would be in Columbus and something made me feel I ought to go."

Then while you were talking. Immediately I felt a sudden calm within me and now, after a few days have passed, an important part of the problem has resolved itself — and very happily."

Meet difficulties with your own mind as far as it will take you, but when a problem proves too much for your every human resource, be willing to leave the outcome to the Divine Mind. You will then be equal to any situation — able to change what you can change and able to live serenely with what you cannot, a complete person having inner peace.

Washington Notebook:

Percy Uses 'Odd-One' Tactics

By DAVE BURGIN

WASHINGTON (NEA) — House and Senate members are still marveling at the way Sen. Chuck Percy, R-Ill., lined up support for his recently introduced housing bill.

"First Percy went after opposite Republican poles," said a Senate aide close to the scene.

"Then, when he had John Tower (Texas) and Jacob Javits (N.Y.) in tow, the ones in-between on the political spectrum fell in easily." Tower is the conservative, Javits the liberal.

There were, however, a couple of Senate Republican holdouts.

"When it came time to deal with them," the aide told us, "all Percy had to do was say, 'Senator, you don't want to be the only Senate Republican not supporting the bill, do you?'"

We were discussing names the other day. The session began with some of the delightful names strippers use — Stormy Summers, Mah Belle, April March, Knott Cover,

'Investigation Should Clear Up Problems'

A new order was issued specifying areas for the Oakland County grand jury to investigate. The powers given to Judge Pratt should help him to clear up some of the problems that have been festering in Oakland County for some time. I hope he will receive the cooperation needed from both citizens and officials of Oakland County to get the job done. He is well qualified.

One way to protect children from molesters would be for parents in a block or neighborhood to form a "Parents' on Guard" (POG) plan to accompany the children to and from school. Perhaps the parent-teacher council could initiate the plan.

AN OLD MOTHER

Seeks Answers on Area Water Service

Several West Bloomfield Township home owners are interested in the acquisition of Detroit water. Why should we have to pay so much more than those now in the process of acquiring this service in a nearby area? The board in charge of this issue has failed to come up with any straight answers. Those involved can't wait much longer with existing well problems.

A little concern for the home owners on the part of the board would be appreciated. More time spent in working for the water could provide a larger "return" for those elected than the water issue itself can.

Discusses Police Department Manpower

It is a sad state of affairs when the Pontiac Police Department can "not afford" to hire even one more policeman to patrol the streets and help stop some of the muggings, rapes, robberies, etc. But they can afford to pay someone the same rate of pay to issue parking tickets to people visiting at the hospitals. It makes one wonder where their values are put.

Question and Answer

Can you tell me why in the last Stanley Cup game there was no goalie in the Montreal net in the last minute or so?

SALLY BOWYER

REPLY

In the Stanley Cup game, as in most hockey games during the season, the team which is behind in final moments (in this case Montreal), usually pulls the goalie off the ice to add an attacker, hoping to score. In this case Montreal was behind 2-1 and used another player instead of the goalie hoping to score in the last minute to tie the game. Instead, Toronto scored with the open net and won 3-1.

Rep. Henry Helstoski, D-N.J., was asked to contribute his favorite funny story for a Capitol Hill publication.

He thought a minute, chuckling to himself, then said, "I have several but this one I really like."

He went on to tell about the time he mailed his constituents a list of 150 pamphlets, dealing with practically every government program or service known. All the constituent had to do to get a pamphlet was put a check beside that pamphlet's name.

"We got back one list with none of the titles checked," Rep. Helstoski said, "just the constituent's name and address at the bottom."

Now for the punchline. "We could only assume he either wanted all 150 pamphlets or didn't like any of them and wanted another list."

Anybody want to hear Rep. Helstoski's second-favorite funny story?

7th Infantry Unhappy Over 'Benching'

CAMP CASEY, Korea (UPI) — The U.S. 7th Infantry Division is headquartered just eight miles south of "America's other hot war" but there is more excitement in Disneyland.

The "Bayonet Division" has been in corps reserve since the Korean War armistice was signed in the summer of 1953.

Unlike the U.S. 2nd Division, which has spilled enemy blood and its own in border skirmishes along the 18-mile stretch of the Korean Demilitarized Zone it mans, the 7th gets no headlines. It just keeps training and waiting.

"It gets kind of lonely here sometimes," said Pfc. Sava Kerkenides, 20, a draftee from Los Angeles who used to drive a fire truck for the California Division of Forestry.

But the young squad leader said the duty here is better than Vietnam.

"I'm not looking forward to going there but if I have to I'm ready," said Kerkenides, who would much prefer to get out of the Army and go back to driving that fire truck.

If the duty is lonely, there are some compensations. Kerkenides and his buddies in the 3rd Battalion of the 32nd Infantry live in a world of pea-green, aging quonset huts and roast beef, apple pie and ice cream.

But nobody seems to be expecting a war and some military men have said there is no valid tactical reason for two combat-ready U.S. infantry divisions to be in Korea.

Men Eat Sharks

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida fishing industry is studying ways of making shark meat palatable.

When extremely fresh, and properly handled, it is believed to be palatable as a fresh fish commodity. Shark meat has been smoked successfully.

Junior Editors Quiz on BEAVERS

QUESTION: Why is the beaver's tail flat?

ANSWER: To answer this question, we must show you something of the beaver's hard working but cozy life (see picture). Gnawing down trees, beavers cut them in pieces and dam small streams, building ponds.

Then they build a conical house by the edge of the pond. There is a dry room inside where the beavers live, with an opening which goes under the water to a storeroom where they keep young tree trunks for their winter food.

When danger threatens, the beavers swim under water and come up inside their house where they are safe from their enemies. A beaver thus must be an expert swimmer. He has webs on his hind feet and uses these to propel himself with. The flat tail serves as the beaver's rudder.

At upper left, one is diving down. He is holding his tail downward so the water pushing against it will turn him down.

The other beaver, coming to the surface, holds his tail in a position which directs him upward.

Beavers slap with their tails on the water to warn other beavers of danger.

Thinking Man's Show —'Star Trek'—to Return

By BOB THOMAS
Ap Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD — If there is such a thing as a thinking man, television series, it might well be "Star Trek."

Despite this stigma, "Star Trek" has managed to win a renewal for a second season.

The man behind "Star Trek," which takes a band of venturers to new vistas beyond the stars, is pipe-puffing Gene Roddenberry, a former airline pilot and former cop, the producer-writer.

"Star Trek" is the 'in' show with the college crowd, with the people who work at NASA, Caltech and the space plants," said Roddenberry. "We get letters from curators of museums and college presidents, all of whom appreciate our serious attempt to portray what space travel will be like."

Series that appeal to intellectuals are usually consigned to sudden death, and for a while it looked as if "Star Trek" would suffer the same fate. After fair ratings in the first weeks — new shows generally do well as viewers "shop" in the early season — ratings dropped.

"But then we started climbing," Roddenberry said. "I think the thing that convinced NBC to keep us on was the fact that 'Star Trek' ratings had the same profile as 'Bonanza.'"

Trade observers also believe the NBC decision was influenced by the fact that "Star Trek" was a prestige show in a season that was sadly lacking in prestige. And fortunately the series appealed not only to eggheads. It can apparently be enjoyed on a pure adventure level by less enlightened citizens, as well as children.

"I believe it's possible to produce a series that can titillate the college professor as well as the truck driver," Roddenberry said. "We do that by giving the audience adventure with a social comment."

"And besides, the truck driver is a lot smarter than the networks believe he is."

U.S. Is Stuck With Greek Military

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — After days of confusion and shock, the United States has concluded the only sensible thing to do is go along with the new military regime in Greece.

No official would confirm this or speak for quotation on how the Johnson administration feels about the April 21 military coup in Greece.

Complete silence is observed: Washington does not want to say anything that could hurt a country which — whatever its form of government — is an important ally guarding Eastern Europe's "soft underbelly."

OFF-THE-RECORD TALKS

But in off-the-record talks with administration officials the following picture emerges:

• The United States, while definitely not enthusiastically embracing the three military officers who now rule the country, will cooperate with their regime while fervently hoping Greece someday will return to a more palatable political system.

• Meanwhile the United States quietly but firmly will pressure Greece's rulers to speed up the process of return to parliamentary rule.

• In accordance with this decision and in recognition of Greece's important role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization military structure, U.S. military aid will continue, although probably limited to items thought necessary for NATO purposes.

The decision is understood to have been reached after considerable agonizing in highest circles and after consideration of a key point:

• The administration painfully is aware of growing criticism in this country charging, as Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., put it earlier this week, the United States with "sitting on its hands when a coup is staged by forces of the right."

Voting Begins Across India

NEW DELHI (AP) — Voting began today in the halls of Parliament and all state legislatures to select a new president and vice president of India.

Political observers predict that when the presidential returns are announced May 9, the winner will be the Congress party nominee, Dr. Zakir Husain, giving Hindu India its first Moslem president.

UAW Dissident to Talk in Area

Frank Petty, fired from his job in March after leading a wildcat strike at a Mansfield, Ohio, auto supply firm, will speak tomorrow night in Waterford Township at a meeting of the Oakland County Chapter of the International Society of Skilled Trades (ISST).

Petty now is employed as an organizer for the ISST which seeks to split with the UAW and form a separate labor organization.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. at Kettering High School.

The ISST will need a 30 per cent backing of skilled tradesmen to bring about an election and must get a majority election vote to become an independent union and leave the UAW.

Tool, and die makers and skilled maintenance workers are the principal ISST membership sources.

Glancy is working primarily on a new domed stadium designed for general sports.

Law, of 27 Miami, has confined much of his interest to a second stadium which would be designed specifically for indoor harness and thoroughbred horse racing.

One of the biggest problems is cost.

"We estimate it will cost between $30 and $40 million to build a stadium such as the one we're proposing," said Glancy. "That doesn't include parking facilities."

10,000 SPACES

"To provide parking for 20,000 cars as we propose, would cost another $26 to $30 million," he noted.

Glancy's proposal calls for 10,000 parking spaces on a deck which forms a collar around his stadium, and another 10,000 in surface lots around the stadium.

"As we see it now, financing construction would have to come through issuance of revenue-type bonds. In other words, the bond issue would have to stand on its own two feet."

NO POSSIBILITY

"We couldn't expect it to be paid through any general obligation tax levied at the state, county or city level."

While Glancy sees no possibility of financing through additional taxes, he is realistic. He doesn't claim his stadium alone will create enough revenue to pay off the bonds.

"It will obviously take a form of subsidy," he commented. "We're working closely on this with state legislators."

That's where Law's proposal for a horse racing stadium comes into the picture.

ENOUGH REVENUE

Although there is a gap between their respective cost estimates, Law feels a racing facility would be able to produce enough revenue to cover the cost of his and Glancy's proposed structures.

"If a sports stadium could pay for itself, we wouldn't have to think about anything else," said Law. "But it's just not feasible to expect a sports stadium would pay for itself."

"So our job is one of trying to raise monies for a recreational complex from other sources to supplement revenues generated by the stadium facility."

Law, who has previously proposed greyhound racing as a means to raise money to build a recreation complex, now feels horse racing is the best answer.

CURRENT LIMITATIONS

The thoroughbred and harness racing seasons in Michigan are currently limited, primarily to good-weather months.

Law proposes that the state construct an indoor track at the fairgrounds for both thoroughbred and harness racing, and then lift limits on the racing season to allow indoor racing at the new building.

Prior to this move, the ban on both horse racing and sale of alcoholic beverages at the fairgrounds would have to be eliminated, Law said.

He has introduced two House bills this year to do this. Both are still in committee.

LAW'S PLAN

Under Law's plan, racing at the new indoor track would commence when the season ends at the other area racetracks.

He figures this would give the indoor facility a potential of 142 days thoroughbred racing and 71 days for harness racing.

He states his fiscal case thusly:

"In 1965 the average daily revenue to the state from thoroughbred racing at Hazel Park Race Track was $80,354. At 142 days this would total $11,410,268."

"The same year, Wolverine Harness Raceway produced an average income of $21,484 per day to the state. At 71 days this would amount to $1,525,364," Law said.

SEEMS FEASIBLE

"Therefore, based on the actual revenue from other tracks, it would seem feasible to estimate that indoor thoroughbred and harness racing at the fairgrounds could clear at least $9 to $10 million annually for bond payments."

Law figures that an $80-million bond issue to cover construction of his indoor track and Glancy's stadium would require slightly over $5 million annually to retire the bonds.

"As you can see," he said, "the estimated revenue produced by indoor racing would easily cover the bond requirements with plenty to spare."

It might take more than $80 million if both Law's and Glancy's current cost estimates hold up. Law estimates his indoor track would cost $40 to $45 million.

$110 MILLION

Added to Glancy's cost figures, this would probably require a long-term bond issue in the neighborhood of $110 million.

If Law's estimates for revenue prove accurate, it is conceivable that the indoor racing would still produce enough to cover such a bond issue.

"After all, Law added, "my revenue estimates don't include any lease revenues which would be received from use of Mr. Glancy's stadium."

There are several loopholes in the financing.

SIMILAR FACILITIES

First, would other tracks in the area be content to keep operating a limited season, thus assuring business at the new indoor track?

Or, if the limits were lifted, would other outdoor tracks expand, build similar indoor racing facilities and become stiff competition for indoor racing at the fairgrounds?

"This is a possibility," Law said. "We know

Model Of Proposed Domed Stadium With Deck Parking

there's a market for winter racing. Look at the success of the new Windsor Raceway last winter."

"We estimate 75 to 90 per cent of the money wagered in Windsor was from Michigan residents. One of our biggest problems will be getting co-operation of the other tracks."

CONTROVERSIAL MATTER

Then there's the fact that betting on horses is a controversial matter, not to mention the sale of alcoholic beverages at the fairgrounds.

Would Law's proposal be too hot to handle politically?

Would it get Gov. Romney's signature even if it did pass the House and Senate?

"It's controversial, yes, but necessary," Law said. "Gov. Romney should not let personal convictions stand in the way of recreational development for the state."

'MUST BE REALISTIC'

"We must be realistic. This would be a great asset to Detroit and the entire state and an indoor race track will make the money to do the job without taking a penny from the taxpayers' pockets."

Behlen Manufacturing Co. of Columbus, Neb., has given Law plans and drawings for an arena-type stadium.

It would cost an estimated $32.7 million to build and another $10 to $13 million to equip for horse racing, according to Law.

The 128-by-1,640-foot structure would enclose a 5/8-mile track, with a 1/2-mile track built inside the larger track.

PRELIMINARY PLANS

Preliminary plans provide parking for at least 28,000 cars on ground level lots around the indoor track.

Glancy, on the other hand, is against excessive ground-level parking for his domed stadium.

"Parking is a major problem," Glancy noted. "We're proposing 10,000 spaces on a deck around the stadium and 10,000 on the flat."

"In Houston they put 21,000 on the flat and found some people wouldn't walk from peripheral parking spaces."

WALKING DISTANCE

"Therefore, especially in our climate, we feel it is important to limit the walking distance from car to stadium."

Glancy is sold on the 160-acre fairgrounds as the best site for any sport and recreation complex.

"There are very few cities with a tract of that sort inside the city limits. Its primary function is to house the state fair once a year."

"It's a crime it's sitting there largely unused the rest of the year. Our whole effort is toward seeing development to put it on a year-round basis."

Glancy describes 80 undeveloped acres of the fairgrounds as "a poor parking area at best . . . begging for development."

"I sincerely feel the fairgrounds is the place for a new stadium development," he said. "One advantage is that it's free."

"By that, I mean, there would be no land acquisition cost because it's already state-owned land."

"Another plus factor is its location. It's a central place for southeastern Michigan."

EASILY ACCESSIBLE

Glancy also pointed to the fairgrounds as easily accessible via freeways, Woodward Avenue and Grand Trunk Western Railroad.

What would Glancy's stadium be designed to accommodate?

"Pro football can't get enough people on the sidelines," said Glancy. "Baseball people, on the other hand, say they can't use a stadium much over 50,000 seats."

ROUGH IDEA

"Our rough proposal is for 63,000 seats for baseball, expanded to 67,000 for football. By putting seats on the field we could expand to about 88,000 for other types of entertainment."

Glancy feels a domed stadium is more feasible than an open stadium.

"If you were building any modern structure nowadays, unless it is air-conditioned and protected with the elements you're starting with an obsolete structure."

"In this climate there's no question you've got to consider a domed stadium. A dome also means we could afford to install really comfortable theater-style seats."

NOT THE ANSWER

However, he doesn't think a retractable dome is a good idea because even with it open, you don't have the equivalent of an open stadium and everytime the dome is retracted, it creates serious problems with the air-conditioning and heating.

"Controlling the air is where the costs are. Even with a domed stadium, controlling this huge expanse of air from a humidity standpoint is a big job."

Glancy said the stadium would be designed to handle the Olympic games, should Detroit ever land an Olympic bid.

Does he feel there is a need for such a stadium in the Detroit area?

NO NEGATIVE VOTES

"Definitely. Other big cities have built them and succeeded," he noted. "There's not a major urban area in the U.S. I know of that hasn't built a new, modern sports and recreation facility in recent years."

What about the people. Do they want a new stadium?

"We've made our presentation to many groups ranging from the Olympics to state legislative committees. We have yet to receive a negative vote," he said.

Glancy said his group had no firm commitments from any prospective users of a stadium facility, such as the Lions and Tigers, but that his group has had "friendly discussions with several interested groups."

HOW LONG?

How long would it take to build such a stadium if you started today?

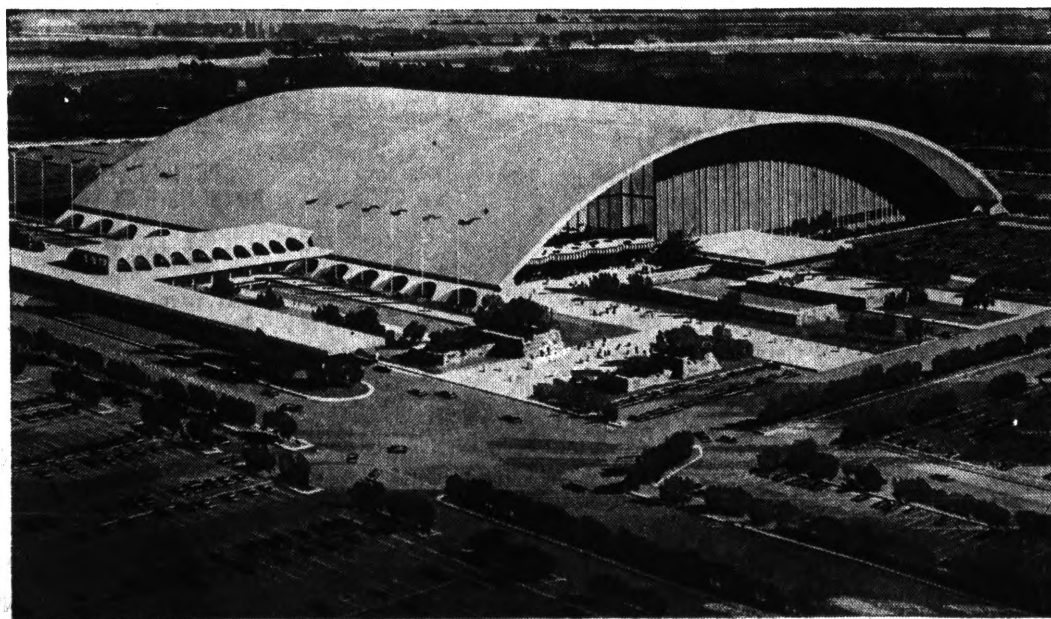

"We're probably talking about 24 to 30 months," he replied. "It would require about 12 months to develop plans, drawings, etc., and another six months to prepare for bids. Then, it would take approximately a year to build the stadium."

All the talking and planning is fine, but will it ever result in action?

"I don't know," Glancy said whimsically. "You tell me. How do you get everyone off center? That's my biggest problem right now. How do you get them to move?"

Drawing Of Indoor Track Facility Proposed By Rep. Arthur J. Law

'No Legal Grounds for Prosecuting Draft Foes'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has told irate congressmen it lacks legal grounds for prosecuting anti-draft campaigners like Stokely Carmichael.

Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., of the House Armed Services Committee charged Friday that the Justice Department seems reluctant to prosecute makers of "disgraceful, inflammatory speeches that hamper enforcement of the draft."

Asst. Atty. Gen. Fred Vinson told the panel, "No one has been prosecuted under the law because the department feels there have been no violations."

Vinson was responding to Rep. F. Edward Hebert's direct reference to Carmichael. The Louisiana Democrat wanted to know why Carmichael wasn't arrested for obstructing the military draft after he recently led students in chanting: "We aren't going. Hell no!"

IS PROTECTED

Vinson termed Carmichael's utterance outrageous, but said it was protected under First Amendment guarantees of free speech and dissent. Carmichael is national chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

The Justice Department official challenged Rivers' contention the government is not prosecuting draft dodgers. He said the department's batting average this year has been .975.

"But your batting average in prosecuting people for violating this law obstructing recruiting is .000," fired back Hebert.

Prodded by the committee, Vinson promised the department would attempt to toughen the Selective Service law to deter inflammatory antidraft statements.

He won the panel's praise when he said the government planned to appeal a lower court decision holding unconstitutional a law making draft card-burning illegal.

There are only about 150 Guarneri and 550 Stradivari violins still in existence, selling from $30,000 to $100,000.

HEAVY SMOKE — A cloud of smoke rises from a fire which has burned more than 3,000 acres of timber in Lincoln National Forest near Ruidoso, N.M. Teams worked 27 hours and finally controlled the blaze late last night. More than 600 men, from throughout New Mexico and Arizona, 20 bulldozers and five planes fought the blaze.

Birds Bug News Service Office

DETROIT (UPI) — A copyboy gave the Associated Press the bird yesterday. Two of them. Finches.

"They're a present for my wife," said copyboy Jerry Hall, 20, tenderly putting a stunned brown bird back in its cage.

"Damn. Almost got him," Arvid Freedlund of the Michigan Humane Society said as his net swished within an inch of a fluttering yellow creature.

It was noon when Hall accidentally kicked over a box containing the birds in the AP's Detroit bureau.

It was 3:43 p.m. when the last holdout, the fast yellow one, fell victim to Freedlund's net, caught between the net webbing and a piece of teletype machinery.

'HARD TO CATCH'

Meantime the birds fluttered around the bureau, inspecting employees and machines.

"Oh are they hard to catch!" Freedlund, a retired policeman, said.

"They were in a box and I knocked it over," said Hall, wondering whether to smile for the photographers or look humbled for his boss.

The brown bird, fleeing Freedlund's relentless net, flew head-on into a plate glass window and dropped unconscious to the floor. Hall picked him up. "I think he broke his leg," Hall said.

"He was exhausted," Freedlund said. "Put him in his cage and let him rest." The bird fluttered its eyes.

SCHOOL BREAKFAST — Pontiac school-children not only can get lunch at school but they can now get breakfast at five city schools for 10 cents a day under the federal Child Nutrition Act. Mrs. James Edwards of

At Five City Schools

Breakfast Bell Is Sounding!

Hundreds of Pontiac children are trudging off to school every morning on empty tummies.

They don't get breakfast at home anymore; they now get it at school.

It's all come true through the ingeniousness of B. C. VanKoughnett, director of Pontiac Community Action Programs, and through the generosity of the U.S. Congress.

Almost 600 students at Jefferson Junior High and at Bagley, Franklin, Whittier and Bethune elementary schools have breakfast waiting for them when they arrive at school.

After paying 10 cents, the hungry pupils consume fruit or juice, a half-pint of milk, hot or cold cereal, toast or bun and sometimes eggs or sausage before school starts.

NOT COMPLETE

"I would guess that half of the disadvantaged children who participate in the program didn't get a complete breakfast at home before," VanKoughnett estimated.

"At the same time, the breakfast program is not just for the deprived. Children with better economic backgrounds can participate, too."

Now, these children who are fed in the morning are better equipped to learn, and "they don't drink a lot of water now and run to the bathroom all day," Mrs. Jeanne Tillson, principal at Bagley School, said.

Just two weeks old, breakfast in school is already a smashing success with receptive pupils, surprised but grateful parents and proud school administrators.

NOT SO RUSHED

Mothers are finding they are not so rushed for time in the morning now because they have less hungry mouths to feed.

Food costs are reimbursed by the federal government under the Child Nutrition Act of 1966. A student price of 10 cents is charged to help finance local expenses, such as cooks' wages.

"Beginning in September, if this pilot program — the first ever in Pontiac — is successful and if Congress acts favorably on the bill, the program will be expanded to other buildings," VanKoughnett explained.

Everyone concerned with the program is now hopeful that Congress will appropriate more funds for next school year. Then it might be possible for the breakfast program to go into 13 other city schools, VanKoughnett said.

The 13 possible new schools, plus the current five in the program in Pontiac's 36-school system, are all earmarked for financial aid under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965. Included are Central and Northern Highs and Eastern Junior High.

Popularity is presently growing within the ranks at the five breakfast program schools. About 30 per cent of the enrollments are participating with more expected as the program spreads by word-of-mouth.

Mrs. Tillson said a child's needs are greater than the school's monetary wants. She said, "If a student doesn't have the money, he will not be turned away."

Breakfast in school had not been planned for this school year.

SOUGHT FUNDS

VanKoughnett heard about the program and hopefully applied for federal funds for next school year when Congress can allocate up to $15.5 million for schools across the country.

He commented that he was surprised when the authorities came back and asked him to start a pilot program right away. It is estimated that Pontiac will be reimbursed $7,000 out of $2 million available spread over 50 states this school year.

Barbara Wilson, coordinator of school food services, set the program up in a matter of weeks and school personnel and the National Teachers Corps representatives volunteered time to supervise the meal.

Now, as it turns out, community action programs are in effect before school opens as well as after.

Waterford Jaycees Eye Center for Handicapped

A sheltered workshop for the handicapped, vocationally limited individual is being eyed for northern Oakland County.

The move is being initiated by the Waterford Township Jaycees who seek to form a committee for establishment of the workshop.

The Jaycees invite interested persons to attend a meeting at 8 p.m. May 24 at the Community Activities, Inc., building, 5640 Williams Lake, Waterford Township, to further develop plans for the sheltered workshop and rehabilitation center.

In emphasizing the need for a workshop, Jaycees contend six of every 1,000 persons can be helped by sheltered work and vocational rehabilitation.

A spokesman said the population explosion in this area, coupled with the absence of any facility for the vocationally limited individual, has caused a serious problem and is of concern to many persons living and working in northern Oakland County.

WORKSHOP ROLE

Jaycees said the purpose of the workshop would be:

- To provide sheltered employment for those persons with physical or mental handicaps or a combination of both who cannot function in the general labor market.

- To provide testing, counseling and guidance for handicapped persons who need assistance to become remuneratively employed.

- To provide diagnostic work evaluation to assist in determining vocational and occupational objectives.

- To provide job placement opportunities for those persons affiliated with the workshop.

- To provide vocational and occupational training required for job placement.

A Jaycee spokesman said Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit has offered to staff and equip a building if sufficient area interest is demonstrated.

Persons interested in a workshop can contact James McIntosh, 290 Liberty, Apartment 11, or Earle Van Dyke, 3902 W. Walton, Waterford Township.

County's Road Budget About $2 Million Annually

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the fourth in a series on Oakland County roads.)

By DICK SAUNDERS
This series has thus far concentrated on state highway projects and problems. Now let's take a look at the county road program.

The Oakland County Road Commission gets about $2 million annually to build and maintain county roads.

About the only county road project now in progress is completion of a new entrance and traffic loop for Oakland University on Mount Clemens Road and Squirrel.

Total cost of this is about $225,000 with part being paid by the state. It should be done by July.

Pontiac area projects scheduled for construction this year are as follows. Estimated total costs are shown in parentheses and are shared on a 50-50 basis by the county and communities involved unless otherwise indicated.

• Widen Elizabeth Lake Road to five lanes westerly from Telegraph to Lynn in Waterford Township to handle traffic into the new addition to Pontiac Mall Shopping Center ($125,000). Cost is to be shared by the Mall developer.

• Paving Seymour Lake Road from M15 to Sashabaw in Brandon Township ($65,000). Cost is shared by federal government. Remaining portion westerly to Baldwin will be done in future years to provide uninterrupted paved road from M15 to Oxford.

• Rebuild, grade and new gravel base on Square Lake Road, Adams to Eastways in Bloomfield Township ($175,000); Sleeth, Bass Lake Road to Wixom Road in Commerce Township ($200,000); and Tienken, Livernois to Rochester Road in Avon Township ($100,000). All three projects are preparatory to paving which is scheduled for next year.

• Paving of Bass Lake Road, Benstein to Sleeth, Commerce Township ($25,000); Joslyn, Heights to Clarkston Road, Orion Township ($35,000); and Mageday Lake Road, Nelsey to Williams Lake Road in Waterford Township ($25,000).

• Paving Haggerty on the Farmington Township-Nov boundary from 12 to 14 Mile roads ($50,000). The total cost is paid by the county.

• Two-lane concrete pavement on Orchard Lake Road from 1-96 south to 8 Mile in Farmington Township ($250,000). Total cost borne by county.

In addition to road work listed, the county hopes to build a new maintenance garage on Dixie Highway at Rattalee Lake Road. The current cost estimate is $350,000.

The new facility would replace a garage in Davisburg which county officials say is too old and inadequate. Funds should be available this year for the road program outlined above plus several other prospective projects still under negotiation in West Bloomfield, Farmington, Bloomfield, Waterford, Independence and Oxford townships.

Like the State Highway Department, the county, too, has many projects which should be done, but can't be programmed this year due to a lack of funds.

Mark Unwanted Ones 'Refused' and Return to the Post Office

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: For the last two months our family has been receiving magazines, books, records, rugs, and even a hi-fi set in the mails. We did not order any of this stuff and have no idea who could be sending it to us and billing us for it. It is undoubtedly someone with a sick mind who thinks this is "funny." Each time one of these packages arrives, I mail it back to the company from which it came because I don't believe in keeping things that don't belong to me. This is getting to be a real chore and I am tired of making trips to the post office but what else can I do?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: When you receive a package you did not order, mark it "refused" and return it to the post office. They will assume the responsibility of returning it. If you open it, technically you have "accepted" it, and must then return it yourself.

Or you can write to the company from which it came, requesting the money for postage with which to return it. If they do not comply, hold the package for 30 to 40 days and then dispose of it.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend bought me a beautiful lace bikini and matching shorty beach coat to go with it. I saw it in a window and admired it so he knew I wanted it. Now my mother says I can't keep it because it is not a proper gift for a boy to give a girl. What's wrong with it? And if that's not a proper gift, please tell me what is?

UNHAPPY GIRL

DEAR UNHAPPY: Gifts of a personal nature (and I do mean bathing suits, lingerie, hosiery, and items of clothing other than a scarf or gloves) are considered "improper." A boy should not give a girl such gifts, and if he does, she should not accept them. (P.S. If you're engaged to be married, I take it all back.)

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Out But Not In" from a former mental patient reminded me of my own experience. I, too, was a mental patient. And if I could shout from the housetops one bit of advice to those who have a friend or relative in a mental hospital, it would be: Write to them! As often as you can.

Every day is like a year to them, and a letter from "home" is often carried around in a purse or pocket for months to be read and re-read. I was lucky. I had a devoted sister who wrote to me every day—even on her honeymoon. Best wishes.

Fashion models—but with none of the blasé attitudes of the adult counterparts—show off some of the clothes they will wear at the Sunday fashion show of the Pontiac Area Urban League Guild. Set for appearance at 3 p.m. in Bethune Elementary School are Lori Golden, 4, of West Boulevard (left) and Denese Barnes, 5, Center Street.

Mary Heck, George Land Wed in Afternoon Rite

A full chapel train veil from Italy was worn by Mrs. George Albert Land (Mary Kathleen Heck) with her gown of white Chantilly lace. The veil was a gift of the bridegroom's grandmother.

Her gown featured a bateau neckline and seed pearl trim. She carried carnations, lilies of the valley and an orchid.

Margie A. Heck was her sister's maid of honor for the afternoon rite in St. Michael's Catholic Church.

They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred F. Heck of North Perry Street.

Bridesmaids at the ceremony were Mrs. John Schlicht and Mrs. Jack Yost.

Nieces of the bride, Cathy and Connie Heck, were junior bridesmaid and flower girl respectively. The bridegroom's sister, Laura, was also a flower girl.

Richard Land was his brother's best man. They are the sons of the George Lands of South Genesee Avenue.

George Lavoie and Robert

Following a reception in the CAI Building, the couple will leave on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls.

Michigan Artists in BAA Show

Sunday marks the opening of Michigan Art '67 at the Bloomfield Art Association's Birmingham Art Center. The show is limited to 60 professional artists whose work was selected by the BAA exhibition committee.

The show combines the works of established Michigan artists with some who are new to the local scene. It represents a statement about what is happening in art in Michigan and reflects current interests.

The exhibition committee visited college campuses, galleries and private studios to make selections.

The exhibition opens at 3:00 p.m. and will continue through May 28. Gallery hours are 2:00 to 5:00 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday.

Organ Program Concludes Year

The final meeting of the season for the Pontiac Area Hammond Organ Society will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Grinnell's Downtown Store.

Herbert W. Alford of Detroit will present a request program, playing both organ and xylophone simultaneously. This will be his third appearance here.

Woody Martens, nationally known radio and television artist, will also be on the program. He performs on three organs in unison.

A social hour will follow the meeting.

Betty Furness Begins Job

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Betty Furness found her first appearance before a congressional committee just like taking an examination in school.

"They never ask you the questions you are most prepared to answer."

Miss Furness, who left the ranks of television saleswomen to become President Johnson's adviser on consumer problems, Friday recounted how she felt the previous day when she met with a Senate consumer subcommittee.

"I had a fund of information about that bill which they never asked me," she told a luncheon. "I guess if I were in school I might rate a C-plus for my performance."

Disagrees With Peers

LONDON (AP)—The lord chancellor of England stirred controversy today over the British divorce question by suggesting that the only ground for divorce should be the irretrievable breakdown of a marriage.

"I would suggest that, subject to safeguards, divorce should be available upon proof that the marriage has irretrievably broken down, and upon no other ground," said Lord Gardiner, who as chancellor is head of the judiciary.

Lord Gardiner made clear that this was a personal view. His suggestion clashed with a recent report made by his own law commission which said di-vorice should be allowed by consent after two years' separation.

Lord Gardiner's statement puts him in agreement with the Church of England.

The church recommended last July that the present grounds for divorce—desertion, adultery and cruelty—be replaced with "breakdown of marriage."

The church opposes divorce by consent.

The first reaction to Lord Gardiner's speech came from Leo Abse, a Laborite legislator who termed it "unfortunate."

Dr. John Wilson, bishop of Birmingham, called the chancellor's suggestion "sound."

Even boys get in the modeling act. Thad Watkins Jr., 6, Willard Street, wears a handsome green denim outfit. Being fazed him. With him are (from left) Karen Roach, 6, Willard Street, and Ursula Stephens, 4, Kuhn Street. The only male in the Press studio didn't

DEAR POLLY — To clean off the grease and dirt accumulated on rolled edges of pans or other hard-to-get-at places I warm them, spray with oven cleaner, wait the required time and then wash. It is wonderful. No more scraping and fighting.—JENNIE

GIRLS — Before using oven cleaner, be sure to read directions and see if the material used in your pan is one of those on which the cleaner should be used. The brand I use states it is not to be used on aluminum, only on iron, stainless steel, porcelain and chrome.—POLLY

POLLY'S PROBLEM — DEAR POLLY — I have quite a few strips of lovely new white carpet that were left over from a floor covering job. I wish to learn how these three-inch-wide strips can be sewed or fastened together to make a neat, flat throw rug.—TESS

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is to help us older baby sitters as well as the younger ones. The parents go off and leave the numbers of the doctor, police and fire departments but, if it is necessary to call for help when a child is hurt, a sick baby is crying or the house is burning, we often do not know the parents' full name or the address where they will be for the evening.

Parents, do put this on the phone where it is easily seen.

Urge Care in Installing Wood Floors

Careful observance of approved procedures pay off handsomely in the installation of hardwood floors and their supporting subfloors.

The big dividend is something every home owner appreciates — attractive, trouble-free floors.

Relatively few home owners have the skill or inclination to install floors themselves. But a little knowledge of correct procedures can be helpful in assuring that the contractor follows them.

Here are tips from the National Oak Flooring Manufacturers' Association, covering a few of the more important points in conventional joist construction:

- Recommended for subflooring are kiln-dried 1-inch thick square-edge boards. They may be of No. 1 or No. 2 Common grade of any coniferous species ordinarily employed for subfloors.
- Preferably they should be 4 or 6 inches wide, face nailed solidly at each bearing point with two 10d nails.
- If wider boards must be used, they should receive extra nailing.
- All plaster and cement work should be dry and the painting completed before the oak flooring is laid.
- The flooring should be delivered about five days before installation and piled loosely in the house, with a temperature of about 70 degrees maintained.
- Proper nailing is vital. The approved nailing schedule for the popular 2 1/4-inch wide oak strip flooring of 25 32-inch thickness calls for one 7d or 8d nail every 10 to 12 inches.

Save Work, Time, Money

Modernize Cabinets Easily

Poole Lumber and Hardware is now showing a new product for the do-it-yourself craftsman. Called "Cabinetpak," it's a revolutionary new idea in kitchen remodeling and consists of special laminated panels that have been developed by Homewood Industries in cooperation with Formica Corporation and Amerock Corporation. A patent application has been made.

Cabinetpak laminated panels are the first practical method developed for renovating existing kitchen cabinets. Previous methods available have been messy and time-consuming and the results were usually less than desirable.

The new product is a well designed complete kit of Formica laminated panels, engineered especially for application to existing steel or wood cabinets. These panels completely replace battered and worn cabinet doors and drawer fronts, and cover exposed side and end panels. The old doors are simply thrown away ... the old cabinets act as a frame for the new panels and need not be replaced.

Fredrick V. Poole says that prior to its development, the only answer to a beautiful new kitchen was new cabinets and the inconveniences that came with them ... weeks of dust and dirt and a torn-up kitchen. With the new product, only a weekend is required to create an entirely new kitchen at a considerable cost savings.

A completely restyled kitchen using the laminated panels costs only a fraction of that of new cabinets.

FILLS NEED

Poole feels that the new product fills a long time home improvement need ... an inexpensive, easy-to-install package that combines the beauty of custom cabinetry and the luxury of maintenance-free Formica laminated plastic.

Panels are available in a wide range of sizes to fit most ready-made and custom cabinet installations. The product has been engineered and designed for easy installation ... the panels simply screw onto the old cabinet frame. Hinges and screws are provided and holes are pre-drilled for perfect fit.

Four beautiful wood grain surfaces are available, including the exciting new Spanish Oak by Formica. Also available are custom design kits, including matching medallions, decorative moldings and designer knobs and pulls.

It is a complete restyling system for existing cabinets and is ideally suited to kitchen cabinets, bathroom vanities, built-ins ... and can even be used to close-in book shelves.

The product is so designed that it can be applied to a simple wood frame for creating storage space in void areas under sinks ... along walls ... or wherever added space is desired.

KITCHEN GLAMOR — A "before and after" combination photo demonstrates how Cabinetpak laminated panels. With this process, the number of cabinets shown here can be remodeled for under $100.

'Cool' Cows for Higher Production

Animals are just as susceptible to heat sickness as man and in some cases more so.

Recent tests by agricultural experts show that cattle, for example, become "functionally" sick when the weather is too hot, and that milk production is adversely affected.

In economic terms, this gain in milk production would mean $774 more in gross receipts from a herd of 43 cows during a three-month period.

Wiersma and Stott also discovered that cows suffer severe heat stress which lowers breeding efficiency. Breedings among cattle in cooled shade were 58 per cent confirmed, while among cows in conventional shade the rate was only 35 per cent.

Seeds Variable Large to Small

At the University of Arizona, Frank Wiersma and Gerald H. Stott found that dairy cows with access to shade equipped with evaporative coolers produced 4.01 pounds more milk per day than a similar group of cows who had only conventional shade.

Tree seed sizes vary, but not always by size of tree.

The sugar pine produces seeds as large as kernels of corn, while seeds of the giant Douglas fir are so tiny that 40,000 of them weigh only a pound.

Part of the problem the researchers pointed out, seems to result from the cow's physiological inability to maintain a stable body temperature in hot weather.

Cows sometimes run fevers five and six degrees above normal, and thus actually suffer from "heat illness."

Year-Round Greenhouse Beneficial

Gardening traditionally has been looked upon as a seasonal hobby, but there is no reason today why flower lovers need restrict their activities to the spring and summer months.

There's a growing trend toward the use of home greenhouses, in which lilies, tulips, carnations and even more exotic blossoms like orchids and African violets can be grown all year 'round, despite the whims of nature.

Greenhouse once were used only by commercial growers, botanic gardens or wealthy homeowners. Today, a working greenhouse, with heating and ventilation systems included, costs as little as $350.

All you need is a small plot of land near your home that is exposed to sunlight at least three hours a day.

Most greenhouses are made of glass with an aluminum framework. Aluminum is used because it needs no painting or maintenance, doesn't warp under moisture and helps keep heat inside.

TWO BASIC TYPES

Two basic types are available from greenhouse manufacturers. A free-standing greenhouse has a door at one or both ends and is normally made from six to 26 feet long.

It offers the advantages of maximum space and the ability to take on added space at relatively low cost.

An attached, or "lean-to" greenhouse, can be fitted against the long side of a house. This is a favorite with many gardeners because it is lower in price, easier to heat, and is accessible from indoors.

However, a lean-to greenhouse offers limited space and needs careful orientation to winter sun.

The aluminum frames of a greenhouse are lightweight enough to be assembled on a do-it-yourself basis, although it is recommended that the plumbing and electrical work be handled by professionals.

A plain dirt or gravel-covered floor is best for the inside.

Approximately 250,000 hand motions are required for all the nailing jobs that go into a new house.

The Importance of the Carpet Fiber

The Carpet Fiber is the basic ingredient which dictates the carpet strength, texture, styling and wearability. There are many fibers with certain advantages and some with disadvantages. Because of the ever changing and new developments in the fiber world, it is almost impossible to be aware of all the new fiber developments.

For this reason it is wise to purchase your carpeting from a dealer who knows all about carpeting fibers. Spencers keep up with the latest developments and the advantages of each new fiber. They will advise you wisely on the fiber best suited for your use.

Home Owners on the Move

Ready Second Home for the Summer

The early spring "fitting out time" is becoming as much a tradition with vacation homeowners as it long has been with boat-owners.

Where boatmen have to spend long weekends of back-breaking work to get ready for launching, second homeowners are able to complete their spring fitting-out chores quickly if their houses contain easy-maintenance materials.

Then they are ready for "smooth sailing" all through the vacation season.

If you are among the estimated 250,000 who will buy or build a vacation home this year, your smartest move could be to include as many of the new easy-maintenance products and materials as possible.

Or if you are one of the two million Americans who already own a second house, you can modernize it with these same materials during the early spring weekends.

SUMMERTIME

Once this summer rolls around you won't have to search the beaches or woods for volunteers to paint, wash the walls, repair the screens or do the numerous other chores.

Your vacation bungalow can be a retreat where mother and the children enjoy summers of relaxation and play, and where father can unwind from his business worries on weekends and vacation.

Since you bought a second home to get away from everyday cares why not use the early spring weekends to make it as work-free as possible.

A simple project to do yourself, which can save hours of housekeeping chores this summer, is the installation of hardboard walls.

You can choose from a wide range of wood-grained hardboard panelings, textures and colors for each room of your summer house.

Plastic-coated hardboard requires the least amount of care. One swipe of a damp sponge and all stains — from cooking grease to crayon drawings — are removed.

The moisture resistance of hardboard is especially useful in preserving the appearance of the walls in the moist seashore areas.

GRAIN EFFECTS

Different wood-grain effects can be achieved, from the rugged grooved panel cabin informality to the luxury of country estate decor.

Kitchens and bathrooms can be made more attractive and simple to keep clean with plastic-coated hardboard with the look of marble.

You can help the children keep their bedrooms and playroom neat by installing perforated hardboard where they can hang the treasures they collect all summer.

And if there is space in the basement or attic, perforated hardboard can be used for an equipment corner to store water skis, fishing gear, tennis rackets and other equipment.

Weatherproof hardboard sidings and panels also can be used on the exterior of the house and as a fence to protect your pool, keep your children from wandering or to let you sunbathe in privacy.

Installing hardboard directly over your present interior walls is an easy weekend do-it-yourself project.

It comes in lightweight four-by-eight-foot sheets that can be nailed or cemented directly to old walls or to furring strips.

They can be cut, hammered, or drilled without risk of splintering, cracking or denting. And since they are pre-finished there is no need for painting or staining.

Other work-saving projects for your care-free vacation house can include the following:

Cultivating a fine grass lawn is almost impossible if you aren't around all spring and fall to water, mow and weed it.

SAND LAWN

You can create an attractive pebble or sand lawn if you are near the beach — or plant an inexpensive green ground cover that thrives on neglect.

Paint as infrequently as possible, by using one of the expensive, but long-lasting paints now on the market.

The labor you save by painting every six or seven years, instead of every two or three years, will more than make up the difference in cost.

Tile floors are more practical for the rough treatment and the dirt or sand often tracked into vacation homes.

Rugs should only be used if they are small enough to be carried outside and shaken clean.

Hydronic System Uses Hot Water

Hydronics — now an accepted heating term — is the name given to a modern hot water heating system.

Such a system centers around a boiler that heats water. The water is forced through a network of tubing by a device called a circulator.

Heat emanating from the water is then evenly distributed in each room of the house by either baseboard units, convectors or recessed radiators.

It is relatively simple to heat, store and distribute water, and it is this fact that makes hydronics a flexible, quality system.

Boilers Fired
Electrically

A new wrinkle has been added to hydronic (hot water) heating.

Several kinds of electrically-fired boilers are now available for the homebuyer interested in using electricity as a fuel, but seeking the added comfort features of a hydronic heating system.

The new boiler operates in essentially the same way as a heating plant powered by oil, gas or coal. Many are smaller in size and are designed so as to hang on the wall, adds the Council.

The first log cabins in Colonial America were built by Swedish settlers in Delaware in the 1640s.

Spring is hand-and-knees time for gardeners.

A lightweight, comfortable kneeling pad made from a latex foam rubber cushion covered in washable, waterproof fabric can make spring seeding more pleasant.

Many Called,
Few Chosen

How true this is! Over the past 27 years many roses, probably more than 2,000, have been entered into the national trials in the 25 All-America Rose Selections Official Test Gardens scattered throughout the United States. Of that number, only 72 have emerged with an All-America award — just about 3½ per cent of those called were chosen.

The AARS, a very conservative organization, proud of the high regard in which it is held by rose authorities everywhere, will not allow its All-America award committee to accept the scores of any judge in its official test gardens who has not served as an apprentice judge for two years, during which time his scores of the roses in test are examined with meticulous care by the AARS Test Garden Committee.

A judge must turn in two complete sets of scores on each test rose each year for two consecutive years, exactly according to the rules laid down by the AARS Scoring Committee.

A further requirement is that all official judges, many of whom have held their judgeships for over 20 years, must attend a two-day judges' seminar for a refresher on the art of judging once every five years.

It is small wonder an AARS award is considered the highest honor that any rose can win, and a guarantee of superb quality.

Zoned Heating
Is Economical

Home owners can reduce annual fuel bills up to 25 per cent with zoned hydronic (modern hot water) heating systems, asserts the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

Individual thermostats in various areas of the house control the temperature in each zone.

Decorator Shares Hints

Make Tiny Room Look Larger

Good things can come in small packages, and that applies to your home, says interior designer John Hayden.

It's something to think about if you are decorating tiny rooms this fall. Face up to the smallness in your plan, advises Hayden, who furnished his own small duplex in a brownstone house with so much charm you'd never be aware of size.

Walls, doors and windows should be dramatized, if possible. Furniture should be light in scale.

Hayden's living room is a narrow 10 feet by 20. His bedroom is about 8 ft. by 12 feet. And he had every sort of architectural problem — beams, off-center windows.

A brick wall in the living room is charmingly treated with pictures, prints, a baby painting of his mother over the fireplace. The brick was there when he moved in but it is a great idea for a small room, he points out.

DRAMATIC APPROACH

For drama, he chose a beautiful fabric, brilliant green highlighted with bright yellow, blue and white flowers and used it on a French armchair, for a cushion on a putty-colored velvet sofa and in a laminated window shade.

The motif was also applied over a matching green shade used to cover a transom over doors leading to a little terrace. It was a great way to solve the problem of an off-center window and door.

The next step was to clutter a bit — it gives warmth to a small room, he points out.

"You need not clutter so that you cannot put anything down, but accessories lend charm to a home. If you are surrounded with things you love, you'll feel more at home."

A brass urn with greens is in front of the fireplace.

Wall-to-wall bookcases which bring symmetry to the narrow off-center windows and garden door, widen the room at the same time, and provide shelves for many of his little treasures and books.

By stopping the books just above the window frame, and introducing a shuttered door to match the cinnamon colored wall, he lowered the too-high ceiling and gave the entire room architectural unity.

DARK STAIN

Floors can be dramatized by staining them darker than fabrics in the room. He had his light floors stained dark walnut, a nice contrast to the soft, putty colors in the room.

You shouldn't clutter too much in a small bedroom, but you should have essentials for comfort. Everything chosen should be dramatic to offset the smallness of the room.

Hayden used a big furry Fortrel rug as a bedcover. The window wall is dramatically white with white curtains caught by bronze and white braided tie backs.

The curtain's frame is a shade laminated with an interesting stripe finished with a dentilated border.

This bold straited accent and the large Piranesi print that covers the wall at the head of the bed lead the eye away from the graceless shape of the room with beams on either side of the window wall. He painted the beam and another wall bronze.

A small built-in shelf doubles for end tables and a head board that gives the bed a wall-to-wall effect.

A brilliant green armchair sets on a small Persian rug and picks up the only color accent introduced, the green bedpillows.

Modern Boiler Means Savings

Simply replacing the boiler in an older steam or hot water heating system can result in a reduction of up to 25 per cent in annual fuel consumption.

Within ten years, a modern, efficient boiler can pay for itself in fuel savings.

Book Names Plant Scents

For the many gardeners who strive for fragrance comes a new book that will give the answer to what to plant outdoors and indoors.

The book, one of the finest we have seen on the subject, is "The Fragrant Years," (M. Barrows & Co.) by Helen Van Pelt Wilson and Leonie Bell, with 94 drawings by Mrs. Bell.

Ten years of collaboration by the authors is involved. They have raised all the plants they describe.

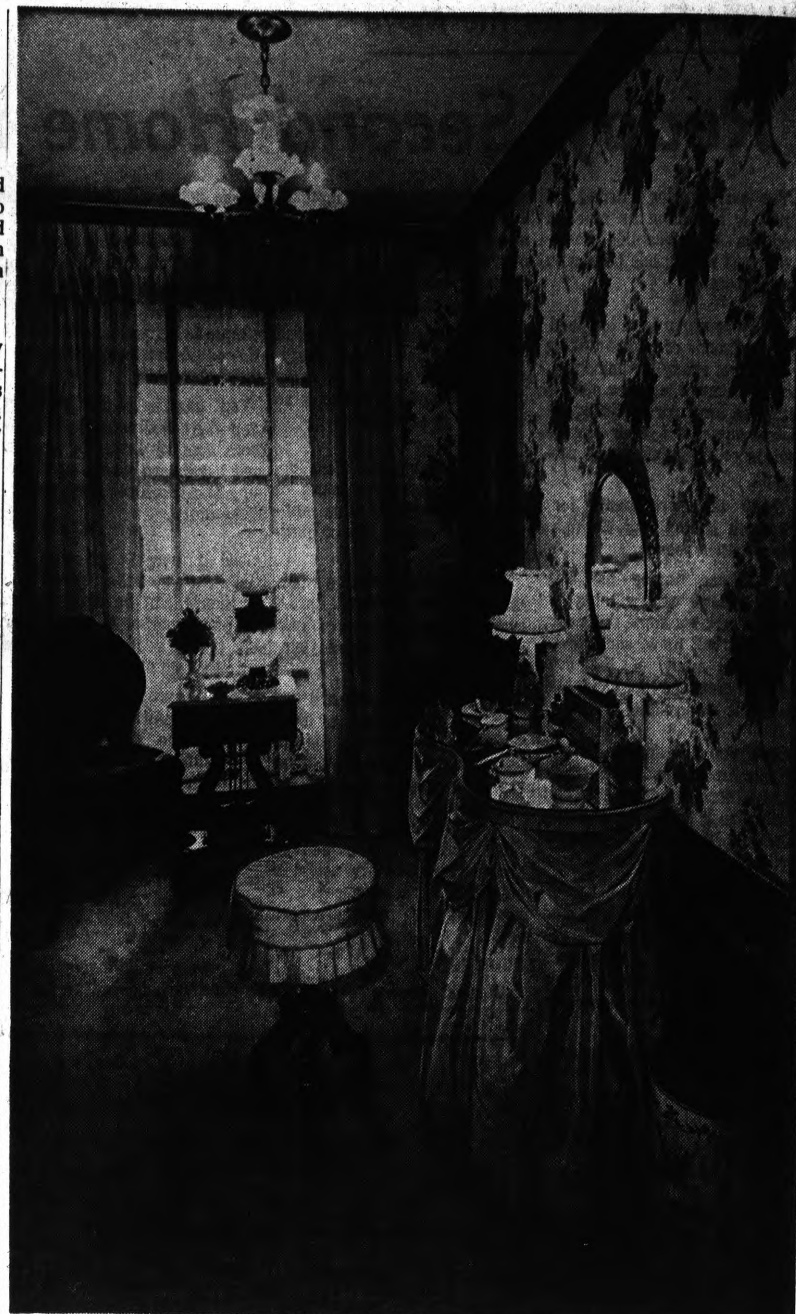

Their goal, they say, is to scent the garden and home, and they classify the scents in simple language known to the gardener, avoiding chemical terms.

The book includes a "Fragrant Fall-to-Summer Schedule for Your Living Room," lists of plants to try and, for those who want to know more, a bibliography of books on fragrant plants.

The authors agree (you may not) that even the most beautiful flowers lacked something for them if they were scentless.

But they disagreed (as you will), about some scents. Where a flower might smell of roses to one it would have a lemon aroma to another.

"The Fragrant Year" delves into the scents of shrubs and trees, early bulbs and small perennials, pinks, peonies, iris, lilies and roses; aromatic herbs, pleasures of potpourri, autumn aromas, cool window gardens.

Kitchen Features Glare-Free Lighting

If you're planning a dream-kitchen, look to the ceiling. For your new ceiling can combine many attributes... glare-free lighting, noise control and cleaning ease are combined in many modern suspended ceilings designed today.

Adaptable for both new construction and remodeling, one features a combination of incombustible acoustical lay-in panels and translucent light panels which are placed to provide a glare-free illumination in work areas.

Both can be easily removed from the hanging grid system for easy cleaning.

The acoustical lay-in panels absorb more than 70 per cent of the many kitchen noises striking their surfaces.

Another special feature you should keep in mind for your kitchen is a modern treatment which can be given the cabinets.

Translucent decorative polystyrene panels accenting cabinet doors can give the kitchen a tasteful touch.

Keep Bread Hot With Ceramic Tile

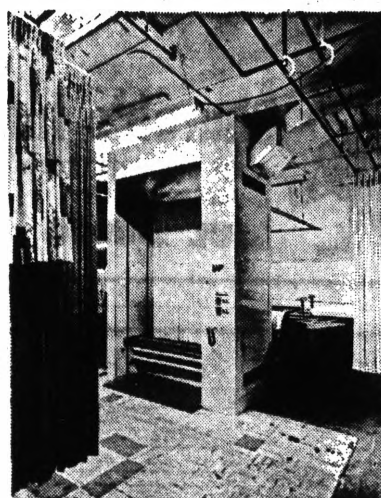

Many homemakers keep bread and rolls warm from oven to table by borrowing an idea that is as old as baking:

They place a warm ceramic tile-hot stones were once used for this purpose—in the bottom of the breadbasket.

Because real ceramic tile already has been baked at 2000 degrees during manufacture, warming it up in the oven won't hurt it or cause any other problems.

That's also why ceramic tile countertops are the best hot plates in modern kitchens.

Install Own Carefree Floor

To lay asphalt, vinyl or plastic tile on concrete only clay emulsion or the recommended adhesive is required.

For a wood floor you need 15-pound asphalt felt paper and linoleum paste in addition to the adhesive.

If a wood underfloor is warped and obviously uneven, put a layer of quarter-inch plywood over it, nailing the plywood every 6 inches.

Molding is removed from around the edge of the floor to allow tiles to go flush to the wall.

Laying the squares so that the pattern will come out even, and finishing at the walls is easy if you follow the makers' directions.

Center of walls are found by measuring and a chalk line is snapped down the middle of the room in each direction.

From this line a few tiles are laid in a dry run to see how much space is left.

Adjustments are then made to suit, end tiles are scored with an awl that comes with the kit.

A preventive spray program keeps plants protected from pests and disease at all times.

Two Identical Homes

Experiment Is Conducted

Tight storm windows will put money in the home owner's pocket, according to a recent test made by Weather-Seal Inc. of Barberton, Ohio in cooperation with the Ohio Edison Co.

Results of "The Effect of Tight vs. Loose Storm Windows and Doors on the Annual Heating Costs for Two Identical Homes," should prove of interest to thrifty-minded home owners.

The tests, which were conducted over a full year's period, took place in Suffield, Ohio on two identical, bi-level, electrically heated houses built by R. A. Schulz.

The two houses are located in the same area, subject to the same weather conditions, and since they were built by the same contractor, their constructions are identical. Each home has 1,782 square feet of floor area, 182 square feet of window and door area, plus 271 feet of crack area around the windows and doors.

The only major difference was the application of tight-fitting, storm windows on one house, as opposed to regular, loose-fitting storm windows on the second house.

METER CHECK

The Ohio Edison Company provided two electrical recording meters for each house, to monitor the tests. One measured and recorded all the electrical energy supplied for heating cooking and other appliances only. The difference between the readings of these two meters was the amount of electrical energy consumed for all other uses.

The weather data necessary to establish outdoor test conditions was furnished by the United States Weather Bureau Station at the Akron-Canton Airport.

Based on these meter readings, Test House Number One, with tight storm windows and doors, used $160.08 worth of electricity for lights, hot water, cooking and other appliances for the year.

Test House Number Two, with ordinary storm windows and doors, spent $164.04 for the same items, which would indicate that the general living pattern in each home was similar.

But here is where the surprising heating economy showed itself.

Test House Number One, with tight storm windows and doors had a heat expenditure of $168.57 for the year's period.

Test House Number Two, with ordinary storm windows and doors, had a heating cost of $252.65 over the same period of time... a savings of $87.08 over a one year period.

This kind of savings escalates to several thousands of dollars over the life-span of the home.

DOLLARS SAVED — Tight storm windows saved the home owner of this house $87.08. The home was one of two in an experiment carried on by Weather-Seal, Inc. of Barberton, Ohio with the cooperation of Ohio Edison Co. to test the effectiveness of window insulation.

New Design for Windows

Modern windows can give your old house a bright, new outlook.

Installing new units is not difficult, and the results are so effective that it's worth consideration as a home-remodeling project.

One thing you can do is create a new focal point for your house exterior by installing a stock bow or bay window of ponderosa pine.

These graceful units are particularly suited to colonial architecture, but add elegance to any house style.

They offer a large glass expanse for wide visibility, frame a view beautifully, and allow ventilation through operating panels at the top or bottom of the window.

LIVING ROOM

Bows and bays are especially effective in a living room, but many home owners are recognizing their possibilities as an interesting window treatment in second-floor studies or attics.

Ponderosa pine units are available with built-in window seats that make such placement particularly appropriate.

If the double-hung windows in your house are old and need replacement, combine beauty and function in the new units you choose.

Stock wood units can be fitted with attractive removable grilles that snap on to give a small-pane look and snap out to reveal a single pane of glass for easy cleaning.

Sliding windows in wood frames, which offer extensive visibility in an operating window, are a good choice for contemporary homes.

They can be combined with sliding doors to form a beautiful glass-wall entrance to the patio that opens the house interior to the outdoors.

A bonus feature of the wood frames is that they can be painted a different color on either side to match the exterior and interior decorating scheme.

INSULATING GLASS

When building walls of windows it pays to use insulating glass.

This consists of two panes of glass hermetically sealed together at the edges to form a layer of "dead" air that prevents heat loss.

Windows with insulating glass keep a room more comfortable year-round and represent a sizeable saving on heating bills.

Insulating glass is now available in all styles of stock wood windows.

Plants Thrive

Although natural light is better, electric light will help indoor plants thrive.

In Today's Society

Cool Comfort Is a Necessity

Twelve centuries ago a Baghdad caliph tried to beat the heat by building a new summer palace with double walls and having imported snow packed into the space between.

Today millions of Americans do a much better job of heat by merely flicking a switch that turns on an air conditioner.

This dramatic contrast says a great deal about the society we now live in. Air conditioning in the modern sense is one of the newer technological triumphs.

It dates from 1902, but in that relatively brief period science, industry and commerce have combined to make it widely available at moderate cost, thus putting into the hands of nearly all Americans comforts and privileges once unobtainable at any price.

Air conditioning is now so omnipresent in the United States, and so widely valued for its ability to make people comfortable in hot weather, that its true nature and benefits are in danger of being overlooked or misunderstood.

One out of every three new homes built in this country now has central air conditioning and countless thousands more of new and old homes have one or more room cooling units.

A former Federal Housing Administrator called home air conditioning the "newest necessity," and said that in a few years homes without it will be obsolete.

In other kinds of buildings — in offices, factories, and stores — air conditioning's dominion is even more complete.

People no longer notice that a store is air conditioned, but they will notice if it isn't.

But the advent and ready availability of air conditioning has done far more than offer men their first opportunity in history to stay cool in hot weather.

Public acceptance of the technological triumph has far outstripped public understanding of its effects on people and on our society.

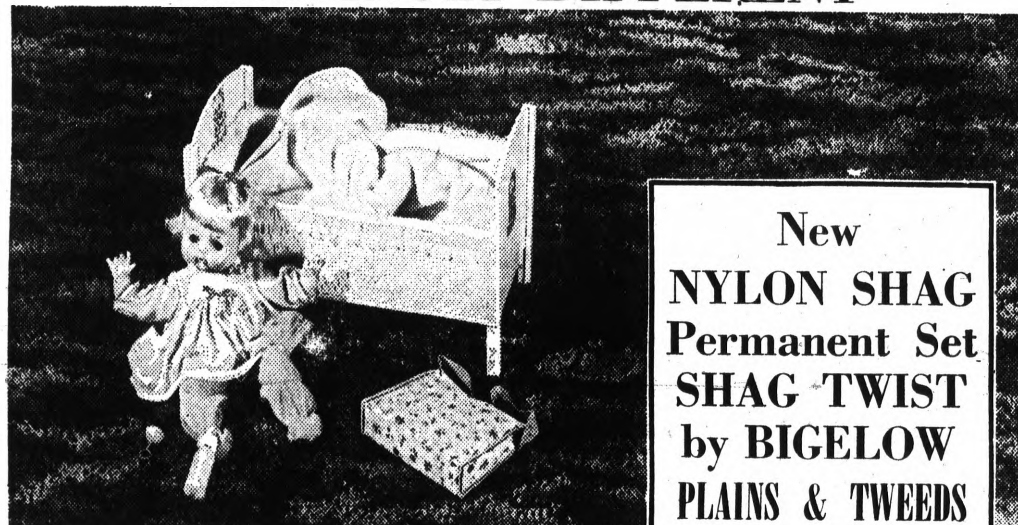

Even now, these effects are not completely explored, but we know enough about them — about the ability of air conditioning to make people work more efficiently and productively, to keep them healthier, to change our patterns of living, and even to change substantially the houses in which we live — to conclude that air conditioning is putting its imprint on our society.

Air conditioning is having a social effect in the home, and it is also providing a new means of selling goods and a more efficient means of manufacturing them.

Examples range from the huge air-conditioned shopping malls where roses bloom all year round, to the "clean rooms" of industry that permit closer production tolerances.

Appliance Failure? Check the Cord First

A prime suspect when an appliance fails to work is the cord. Some of the best-built lamps and electric appliances have the same flimsy cords and plugs that you find on their less-expensive counterparts.

Good or bad, however, the cord gets constant abuse. It is pulled on, stepped on, bent, twisted, pinched, cut, scraped and knotted. It's no wonder it breaks down.

Plugs are often molded affairs of flimsy material which crack and break easily. Some are not sturdy enough to hold the screws that hold the metal prongs in them.

What wears out a cord quickly is yanking on a wire to disconnect a plug. Neither the fine-stranded wire, thin insulation nor molded plug are made to take this kind of abuse.

For longer cord and plug life, grasp the plug itself when disconnecting.

HAZARD Floor lamps with bases that are flush to the floor are an other hazard to cords. Every time you move the lamp, you cut a little deeper into the cord.

Reinforce the insulation with a winding of tape and inspect the cord frequently.

Do not allow loose wires to spread out over the floor where they can be walked on or tripped over.

Clip them to the baseboard or shorten by wrapping around a nonmetallic object. Plastic devices are sold for this purpose.

Do not run cords under rugs. They are still being walked on and there is the increased danger of shorts going undetected and starting a fire in the rug.

Cords on appliances that heat up should be kept clear of the appliance. These include irons, electric fry pans, broilers, room heaters, hot plates.

The least that can happen is a charring of the insulation.

BUY NEW
When plugs crack and break, do not attempt to tape or glue them or repair them in any way. Buy and install new plugs. Even the best are inexpensive.

Get a plug big enough to get a grip on. Prongs should have broad heads so that you easily can use a screwdriver.

Don't unfasten the old plug. Cut off the wires behind it and start with fresh ends. The two separately insulated strands in a lamp cord are molded together.

Separate these for about 1 1/2 inches without damaging the insulation.

Next, strip off about a half-inch of insulation from each strand. Twist together the loose strands. Scrape the ends clean and bright with the dull edge of a knife.

Though not necessary, a thin coat of solder on the wires will stiffen them and make them easier to handle.

Poke the entire cord through the new plug. Pull it through a distance and apply electrical tape to cord where it passes through the plug to reinforce the insulation.

Use a pair of long-nose pliers and form U-shaped loops in the bare wires. This will help in attaching them to the terminal screws. The wire should bend in the direction in which you tighten the screw.

Do not allow loose strands of wires to stick out from under the screws. These can lead to shorts. Cover terminals with the fiberboard cover that came with the plug.

Installation Made Easier

The traditional way of setting ceramic tile in portland cement mortar is known in the trade as the "mud" method.

Though this method is still highly desirable for many uses, new "thin-set" materials developed since World War II have greatly facilitated tile installation work.

Among these are rubber-based adhesives, epoxy and dry-set mortars which require only a thin setting bed in comparison with the thicker "mud" method.

Local lumber dealers carrying hardboard paneling, also may have matching moldings.

Wall Niche for Telephone

Is your hallway too narrow to be convenient for a telephone stand? Build a little recessed shelf right into the wall between the studs.

First, locate the two studs and outline the recess on the wall. Carefully cut the opening, using keyhole saw and chisel.

Cut and assemble the shelf, sides, top and back facing before installing in the space you've cut. The recess provides about four inches of depth, so the shelf itself should be several inches wider to support the hone and pad and pencil.

Narrow facing on all four sides will hide any uneven cutting of plaster or wallboard, and enhance the job, too.

Panels Fixed

Handy hardboard panels come prefinished, with no painting or staining required, or as natural brown boards that you finish yourself.

VERSATILE PIECE—Good looking screen for room corner is made of Douglas fir solid panel doors sawn in half vertically, with halves hinged together. Cost is about $20 for two doors; fourth half can be used for a cabinet front.

Characteristic of hardboard paneling is a smooth, durable plastic finish.

Tight Money Doesn't Bar Fix-Up Loan

One solution to the new-home mortgage problem is to improve your present home. Many homeowners are doing just that.

"Tight money" is not a problem in home improvement financing, and there are many alternatives available for obtaining the money you need. Here are some:

FHA Property Improvement Loan (Title I). You may borrow up to $3,500 and take up to five years to pay.

Conventional bank installment loan. This is usually more flexible than FHA loans as to purpose, amount and terms.

FHA Section 203 (k) Loan (Title II). Under this plan, devised for homes over 10 years old, you may finance improvements up to $10,000 and take up to 20 years to pay.

ADD TO

Open-end mortgage loan. If you have an open-end mortgage, you may be able to finance improvements by borrowing on the same mortgage.

Mortgage refinancing. You may be able to convert your present mortgage for another in a larger amount to include the cost of your improvements.

New mortgage. If your home is unimproved, you can finance improvements with a new mortgage. Or if you plan to buy an older home requiring extensive repairs, get a mortgage that will include the cost of both the home and the improvements.

Some of these plans require that the improvements be "built-in," such as paneling a room with hardboard walls, and some are less promising in periods of "tight money."

The type of loan you seek should be determined by your own financial circumstances, the condition, value and location of your home, the type of improvement you plan to make, and the current condition of the money market.

In addition to banks and savings and loan associations, you may be able to get a home improvement loan on your life insurance policy, from your credit union or a commercial finance company.

One credit source you should not overlook is the building materials or lumber dealer from whom you buy your materials.

Tool-Converter Increases Power Tools Portability

Time was when a "home" was that cute little vine-covered cottage of your dreams.

Now home handy men are making it much more, by adding such "extras" as a garage for the second car, a tree house for the children and a charming fence for privacy.

Modern power tools have made it possible for the homeowner to become his own contractor.

But, in many instances, the outdoor jobs have posed special problems because the power tools could go only where there was power—and that means not far from an electrical outlet.

So, unhappy men have been cutting wood in the workshop and lugging the elements out for assembly.

SHORT CORD

Finishing tools like electric sanders and planes have been left behind in favor of hand equipment because the "cord just isn't long enough."

Now the home handyman has a way of taking his power tools with him when his projects take him away from the wall outlet.

The restrictions imposed by electric cords have been cut by a device called the "Power Tool Converter" developed by Dynamic Instrument Corp., of Plainville, N.Y.

This new unit steps up the power from a common 12-volt car or tractor battery to the 120 volts needed to run a power tool.

The "Tool Converter" provides a full thrust of power, avoiding the drawback of the standard battery operated tool—an inability to provide the starting surge necessary to get the tool spinning.

It will power any universal or DC motor, and comes in standard and heavy duty models.

The standard model will power any tool rated up to 4.5 amperes, while the heavy duty equipment powers tools rated up to 12 amperes.

In practice, the standard model will power drills, shears, hedge clippers and other common tools, while the heavy-duty version will run saws and other large tools.

If the capacity of the unit is exceeded or the tool stalls, an automatic circuit-breaker shuts off the power. It can be reset by the flip of a toggle.

The converter also offers assistance when the project is finishing an attic or repairing a roof.

The battery can be taken from the vehicle, moved to the task and restored when the job is completed.

Humidity Key Factor in Comfort

Humidity plays a sometimes under-rated role in our comfort and health. The control of humidity is, in fact, a key element of modern air conditioning.

The air-conditioning equipment that we are familiar with dates back to 1902 when Willis Carrier invented a machine that for the first time, simultaneously controlled temperature and humidity.

When he defined air conditioning, Carrier put this feature first.

Air conditioning he said, was "the control of humidity of air by either increasing or decreasing its moisture content," augmented by "control of temperature by either heating or cooling the air, purification of the air by washing or filtering, and the control of air motion and ventilation."

The modern definition of air conditioning, is that it is "the process of treating air so as to control simultaneously its temperature, humidity, cleanliness, and distribution to meet the requirements of the conditioned space."

"Relative humidity" is a term used to describe the temperature-humidity balance at given temperatures.

It is a statement of the moisture present in the air as a percentage of the maximum amount of moisture the air can hold at a particular temperature.

Better Spend Now to Save Later

If you're planning to build a new home this summer, make sure there's a cleanout plug and shutoff valve at all major plumbed-in equipment.

This advice comes from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, which points out that a cleanout plug makes it possible to remove obstructions in pipes without a lot of trouble and expense.

Such plugs are installed at the bottom of the U-trap, below a fixture. To remove an obstruction, all you have to do is unscrew the plug.

Shutoff valves at all main fixtures are handy because they enable you to shut off the water at one fixture, in case of an emergency, without having to shut off the water in the rest of the house.

Install Bins Under Stairs for Convenience

Don't waste the space under basement stairs. This can be a prime storage area.

The best way to handle it is with a series of pull-out storage files, of bins, which fit right in under the stairs.

Essentially the files are just boxes the width of one or two stair treads and as deep as the staircase they fit into.

Heights will vary, one being no more than a drawer and the tallest high enough to take skis and garden rakes.

The staircase storage files can be built of Douglas fir lumber and are most easily mounted on metal slides installed at the top and bottom of each.

It's the same type of hardware used for kitchen food files and drawers.

Demon Dust Enemy No. 1

Is dust Enemy Number One in your home? It is, in most. Sneakily it even seeps through closed doors of closets and cupboards, and since it comes with an oily base in most parts of the country, particularly in industrial areas, it sticks to everything it lights on.

When spring cleaning this season, why not take some preventive measures and do a little dust-proofing? It saves you time in the long run.

The china closet is a good place to begin. Dusty dishes... your good ones... which aren't used daily, will have to be washed each time company's coming before they're fit for the table.

You'll eliminate this time and work-consuming step when entertaining if you'll make use of "Hefty" double-wall see-through quilted plastic bags. Due to their side gussets and lack of static cling, dishes slip into them easily.

LARGE SIZE

You'll find the gallon size accommodates three dinner plates or a stack of saucers or cups.

The bag's quilting and extra strength and stiffness offer protection, too, against chipping. And they're so sparkly, they add a pleasing note.

You can likewise protect your good but seldom used sterling silver flatware and small sterling pieces against both dust and tarnish by encasing them in the bags.

Once sealed shut with a twist closure, they're safe from air, which is what causes discoloring. Result... no last-minute silver polishing. Great work-saver!

Then there are your small electrical appliances in the kitchen such as the coffee maker and blender which are real dust collectors.

Instead of investing in cozy little covers that have to be washed occasionally, simply tent them under double-wall quilted bags.

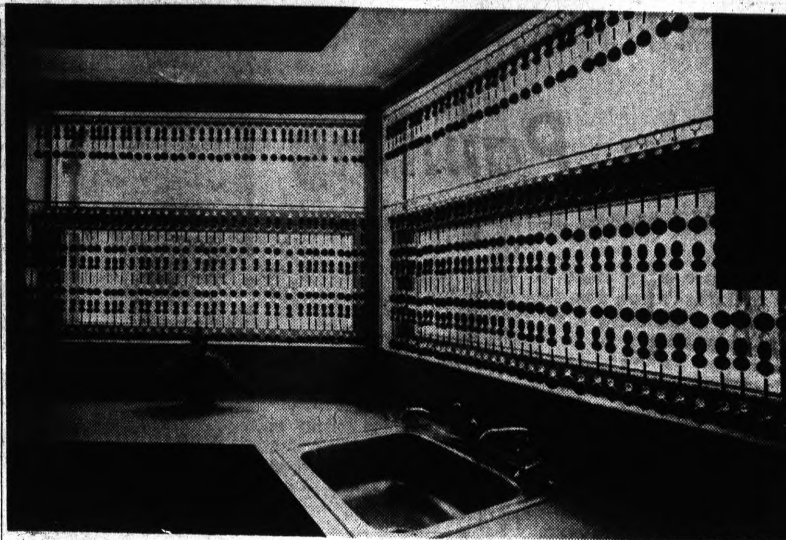

Here again it's the expanding side gussets that provide the play needed to accommodate the irregular shapes.

2-Bowl Sink is Big Help

If you're going to remodel your kitchen this year, consider the advantages of a two-compartment sink.

Even in the most elaborate kitchen, the sink remains the focal point of food preparation and cleanup. It should, therefore, incorporate every convenience.

One of the newest two-compartment sinks available has a large deep, general-purpose bowl at the right. The one at the left is shallower, so that an electric food waste disposer can be conveniently installed beneath it. It's intended for cleaning fruits and vegetables.

EASY TO CARE FOR — Would you like kitchen curtains that always look fresh? Mrs. Donald D. Foss of 800 Peach Tree, Avon Township, has found the answer to crisp kitchen cafes — beads. Using nylon fishing line, she strung aqua pineapple glass beads alternating with walnut and cork beads to make an interesting and attractive pattern. The threads are hung on brass rings and rods. The only catch (and it's quite a catch) is seeing that each bead falls in line with its next door neighbors.

Fashion Colors on Exteriors Are Latest

Home owners are increasingly turning to color for the exteriors of their homes.

White is still in first place but light greens, beige, light gray, yellow and coral are growing in popularity.

Charcoal and dark reds and greens trail in a recent survey conducted among leading manufacturers of low maintenance aluminum siding by the Exterior Decorators Institute.

The order of preference is white, light green, beige, light gray, yellow, coral, dark gray, barn red and dark green.

"The beautiful effects of color for home exteriors are just being appreciated," George Tsuruoka, AIA, and architectural consultant to the EDI, noted.

"We have more color for home interiors. Drapery, furniture, carpeting and accessories are no longer drab or stereotyped. Settling for white on the exterior is often a mistake.

"It is wrong, for example, to assume that homes in Colonial times were always painted white. Green, beiges and gray were often preferred.

"In Providence, R. I., for example, the faithfully restored Jabez Gorham house (1792) is a buff yellow and the Hatch home (1798) is a soft blue."

The swing to more color on home exteriors has created a new interest in selecting harmonious colors for roofs, windows, shutters, doors and trim, Tsuruoka commented.

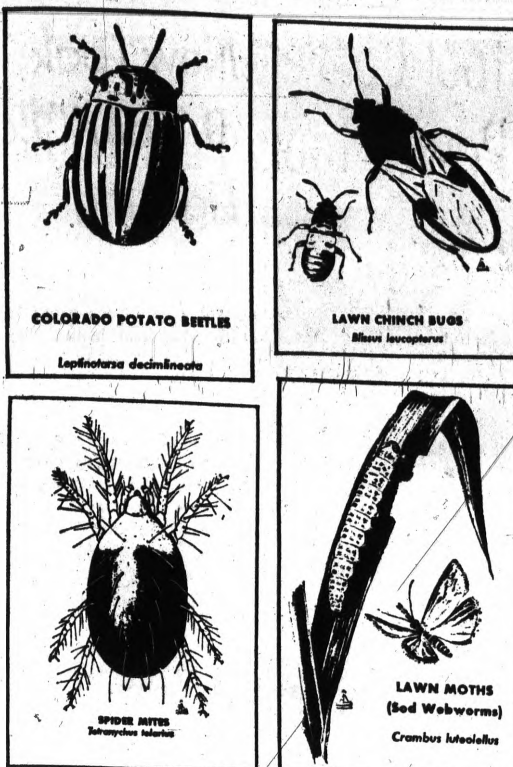

Catch Lint Before Damage

To forestall an accumulation of lint in plumbing and the resulting expensive repairs, an effective lint filter on the end of the washing machine hose can be fashioned very simply from aluminum screening.

A few cents spent at a hardware store now for the rust-proof aluminum screening is the insurance against bills.

Useful Machine

The dishwasher is one of the fastest growing appliances, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau reports. One out of every three new homes has one, and there's one installed in virtually every remodeled kitchen.

GET TO KNOW what the most common insect pests look like. Of the million-odd special discovered, only a few pose a problem to the average homeowner. Others are man's friends. In addition to the culprits shown above, the cutworm, serpentine leaf miner and fly are among the most common enemies, carrying destruction to growing things and disease harmful to man. Pictures, courtesy Geigy Chemical Corporation.

Will Bugs Pass the Home Screen Test?

The August, 1966, epidemic of sleeping sickness in Dallas, Texas, underscored the health value of rust-proof, fire-proof, aluminum screening for the home.

Rusty, damaged screens should be repaired before insect-time arrives in full force. In his instructions to Dallas citizens, the city health director, Dr. Hal J. Dewlett, noted, "We certainly would like to encourage the use of durable, rust-proof and fire-proof screening, like aluminum, because it doesn't require as much care to remain effective."

To insure mosquito protection a checklist of home precautions was outlined by the Insect Wire Screening Bureau, New York.

To avoid contact with the deadly Culex mosquito, carrier of sleeping sickness, and with other disease-bearing insects, the bureau suggested:

- Screen all windows and doors in some secure fashion whether with combination screen - storm windows, detachable screens or with raw screening stapled or tacked to the frame.

Rust Resister Guards Goods

Aluminum resists corrosion because its surface develops an invisible protective oxide upon contact with air.

That's why the metal is widely used for boats, home siding, trains and other places where low maintenance is an important factor.

- Repair or replace any rusted or torn screens at all insect access points to the home using aluminum screening or some rust - proof, fire - proof durable type. Repair ill-fitting frames that permit insect access.
- Repair with a screening patch kit, or replace, damaged screening on porches, patios and breezeways.
- Screen outside access of ventilating fans in kitchen or attic.

Decorate Bath Tub With Tile, Wood

One of the latest trends in bathroom fashions is decorating the sides of the tub with tile, wood or other materials.

The idea is to complement the vanity lavatory, which also is making strong gains as a bathroom fixture. It consists of one or more bowls installed in the countertop of a furniture-like cabinet that offers storage space.

Through this decorator means, the homemaker can give her bathroom a definite style, from Early American to French Provincial, Oriental or thoroughly modern.

Tubs are now available that can be installed free-standing or with one, two or three sides exposed, enabling the homemaker to indulge her decorating taste to the fullest. Don't End Up in Hospital

Safety First When Painting

More important than how well you paint the outside of your house is that you don't wind up in a hospital before you finish the job.

To get a good result involves a combination of proper preparation and adherence to certain fundamentals. To avoid an accident with a long ladder calls for a similar combination.

You have to see that the ladder is placed against the house so that you won't slip. And you have to observe safety precautions so that you won't fall off the ladder while doing the painting.

If the base of the ladder is the right distance from the foundation of the house, it will be properly balanced.

The "right distance" is one-fourth the length of the ladder. Thus, with a 16-foot ladder, the base should be four feet from the foundation.

CHECK GROUND

But this isn't enough to insure safety, especially on ground that is either too soft or too hard.

If the soil is soft, the ladder should rest on a wide, solid board and should be tested thoroughly by standing on the bottom rung and jumping up and down until you are convinced the board will stay put.

If the ladder is resting on concrete or a similar surface, its feet should be equipped with safety treads or one of the other devices which prevent slipping.

Where there is even the slightest doubt about the solidity of the setup, use roof ladder hooks, which fasten onto the high rungs of the ladder and hook over the roof ridge.

Also, it's a good idea to use sneakers or rubber-soled shoes, making certain they are not wet or muddy when you climb the ladder.

Now that you've made certain that the ladder will behave itself, make equally certain that you do the same. Don't stand on the top rung of the ladder.

Never go higher than the second step from the top; if possible, don't go higher than the third step from the top.

Trouble can be avoided here if the ladder is long enough. When you begin the actual painting, don't reach out too far on either side of the ladder.

TAKE TIME

Take the extra time to go down the ladder and move it over to the working area. (You can get Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, N.Y. 11431.)

Never turn your back on the ladder. If that sounds like superfluous advice, it isn't. Many accidents are caused when painters descend without fully facing the ladder.

When working in front of a door, wither keep it wide open or lock it, placing the precautionary sign on the inside of the door.

The wrong time to paint the outside of your house is when children are playing nearby. A running child can bump into the ladder base and cause disaster.

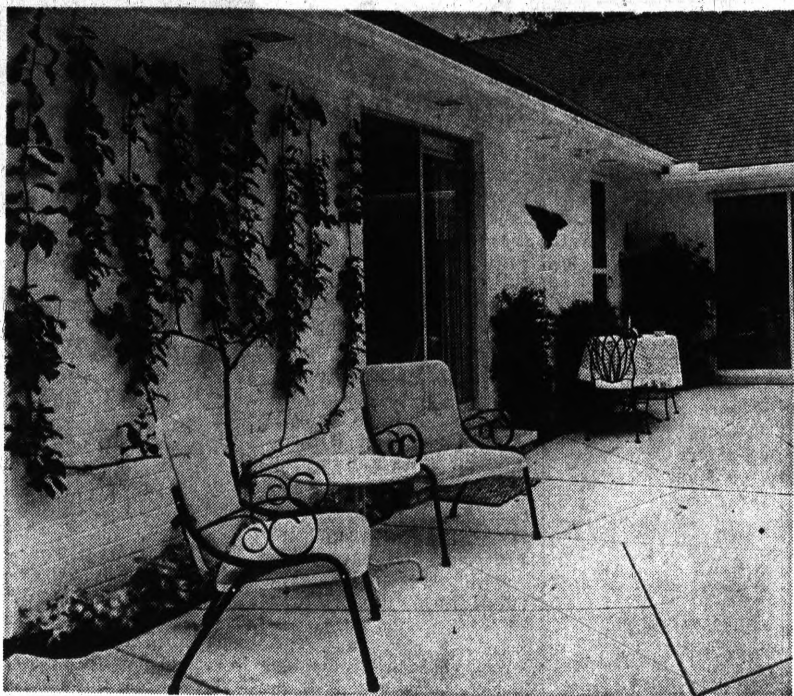

Another potential troublemaker is lack of time. As with so many other do-it-yourself projects, haste is an enemy.

With most tasks, you merely spoil the result. When working on a high ladder, you can spoil yourself.

Aluminum Foil as Grill Liner

For a quick lunch with no clean-up problems, line the inside of your skillet or electric grill with aluminum foil before making grilled cheese sandwiches.

When the cheese melts, it runs onto the foil instead of the skillet and can be easily disposed of.

BACK YARD ACCENT — If you have a blank wall on your house exterior and want to try something different, why not plant an espaliered apple tree. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mezey of 415 Nearbrook, Bloomfield Township; did and it's the conversation piece of the garden. From blossoms in spring to fruit in fall, it's a delight. Multicolored coleous plants are used as a low growing ground cover.

Do-It-Yourselfers Redecorate

Lower High Cost of Living

Many homeowners are currently beating inflationary prices by doing most home improvement work themselves.

No extra mortgage or bank loan is needed to paint a five-room house or apartment and today's modern do-it-yourself methods and materials make it a fun job for Saturday afternoons.

An economical all-latex system also helps any team of man and wife perform as well as a staff of professionals at the nominal cost of $10 for an average size room. This would be $50 for five rooms.

A leading paint manufacturer recommends the all-latex system which includes a corresponding enamel as a new adjunct to latex wall paint, the most popular house covering in recent years.

A two-bedroom home for example, with bath and kitchen running 10 x 10 feet, to 12 x 15 feet for a living-dining room, will use four gallons of latex wall paint and two gallons of enamel.

APPROXIMATE COST
Cost is approximately $45. Add $5 for roller, pan and brush, or save if you have them and a total of $50 completes the marvel of a new and lasting look.

The palette of fade-resistant colors at the paint dealer is wide and versatile, to suit any taste or decorating scheme.

Do-it-yourselfers are cautioned to make sure the surface to be painted is completely clean. Old soluble paints, grease and dirt should be washed off with soapy water and dried.

Cracks and nail holes may be repaired with a water-mix patching plaster and rough surfaces should be sanded.

The home team may alternate assignments; one can do the walls with a short nap roller while the other enamels the trim with a two-inch nylon brush.

Whoever feels better in high places may climb the ladder to complete the upper part of a room or ceiling.

Latex enamel enjoys all the benefits of its older sister with a special function of painting wooden trim, furniture and cabinets.

EASY TO APPLY
Odorless and easy to apply, it covers in one coat and dries in one hour.

Finally, the all-latex system is easy cleanup when the job is done.

No mess or sticky substances remain to plague the housewife. All tools can be washed in soapy water and splatters on the floor may be wiped up in a jiffy with a damp cloth.

Pipe Cleaner Has Many Other Talents

In November 1921, when pipe cleaners first were introduced, they were available at the local tobacconists only.

However, because of many innovations by women, pipe cleaners can now be bought in most novelty and gift stores in a variety of sizes and colors.

Because of their flexibility and versatility, pipe cleaners have become an important staple for most shopping lists.

The Pipe and Tobacco Council, an industry group which advocates pipe smoking for men only, offered a list of suggestions to women on the household uses for pipe cleaners.

Any scissor will cut a pipe cleaner and by halving a package the housewife will have many handy freezer bag ties for storing or freezing leftovers or tying the families' luncheon sandwich bags.

When airing the bedrooms or other rooms, pipe cleaners can hold curtain and drapes in place, preventing them from blowing.

Did you ever pour from a bottle and get the sticky drippings down the side of the bottle or onto a clean tablecloth?

Try wrapping a couple of pipe cleaners around the neck. They catch and absorb any slips.

Next time you want to hammer a small nail thumbtack into the wall, wrap a pipe cleaner around it.

You then will be able to hold the item in place and swing the hammer without hitting your finger or breaking your fingernails.

Dad can be taught a lesson or two when it comes to using the pipe cleaners.

Puttering around the work room or trying to mend an item sometimes results in cuts and bruises for the man of the house.

Suggest he wrap a couple of pipe cleaners around his fingers.

New Look at Your Old Lighting

According to a recent survey by illuminating engineers only 30 per cent of the more than 4,200 American homes visited and tested proved to have proper lighting, while 40 per cent rated badly lit and 30 per cent poorly lit.

This study, says the Construction Research Bureau, the national clearing house for building information, shows a general failure to apply the good lighting principles research has developed.

If you're wise, you'll take a new look now at your old lighting to assure your family the pleasures and protection of good light.

Perhaps you only need a rearrangement of furniture, portable lights or change in color to boost your home rating.

Or, you may be planning such changes as a renovation or a move to a new home where the very newest of architectural lighting techniques may be included in the plans.

OVER ALL REFLECTANCE

Check each room for the three essentials of good lighting:

• Adequate light for quick seeing in task areas — such as reading, sewing or desk work. Keep in mind, too, areas near the task should not be brighter than the task area nor less than 1/2 as bright.

• Freedom from glare which is definitely injurious to the eyes and unpleasant.

• Elimination of shadows which interfere with tasks and deep shadows which require too rapid adjustment of eyes to sharp contrasts between light and dark.

Colors used in major areas of an interior, such as floors, wall, ceiling and large window draperies are an integral part of lighting, too.

Reflectance (Reflection Factor — or the ratio of the light reflected by the surface to the lighting fall upon it) is affected by the lightness or darkness of the color and is a vital factor in the final atmosphere created. For example, dark colors have a low per cent reflectance—they absorb light.

Near white floors and ceilings have higher reflectances and economically increase over-all surface reflectance.

LIGHT ON COLOR

Start at the floor to study the reflectance ranges in your home. The recommended range is 15 per cent to 35 per cent. However, in interiors where downlighting is used, the higher reflectances of pale to white tints are effective.

The fast-growing popularity of vinyl flooring in white shades as indicative of a trend to paler floor coverings with their decorative flexibility and economical higher light reflectance.

For walls — colors are obtained by raising the reflectance light of the floor color through the addition of white, or by color mixture, to a range between 35 per cent and 60 per cent.

Lower than 35 per cent is not often desirable except on one wall or where only casual visual activity takes place.

In Home Fires

2,000 Boys and Girls Killed Annually

Home fires kill more than 2,000 children every year. Your child is far safer in school.

Safety authorities today estimate a child is 200 times more likely to be trapped by flames or suffocation during unguarded moments of parental supervision.

One reason that children in school escape safely when a fire breaks out is that they are drilled in the proper way to react to the emergency.

So fire prevention authorities advise parents to train their children on how to react if a fire breaks out in the home:

• Decide on two escape routes from each room. One will be the door and stairs and the other a window.

• A portable ladder of lightweight aluminum or a knotted rope should be available for escape from upper floors.

• Children should be impressed with the importance of getting out if the building without a second's loss of time. A delay to gather up their toys or other possessions may cost them their lives.

• They should be told that the smoke and fumes from a fire are as deadly as the flames themselves. Most persons are asphyxiated before they are touched by flames.

Equally important as deciding what to do if a fire breaks out in the home is taking every precaution to see that one does not occur.

Flammable curtains, for instance, should not be used in the kitchen where they might come in contact with the range or they should not be used in any room near an electric light bulb. Fiberglass curtains are advisable for such danger spots.

Fire resistant floors, such as vinyl asbestos tile are an important deterrent to fire's gain-

Design Bath for Flexibility

In many homes built 10 or more years ago, the bathrooms were small and the arrangement of the three basic fixtures — tub, lavatory and water closet — was standardized.

Today's bathroom is far different. The rooms are larger, more varied in shape, and there's greater flexibility in the arrangement of the furnishings.

A booklet containing 34 different bathroom layouts is available for 25 cents from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Tight Storage

Stumped for storage ideas? Write "Storage," Dept. 519-P, Western Wood Products Association, Yeon Building, Portland, Ore. 97204, for a full-color booklet illustrating 22 swinging storage ideas. Enclose 10c to cover handling and postage.

ing headway. Not only does this flooring material help to keep the flames from spreading but it is not damaged by the water used to put out the fire, even when rooms are completely flooded.

FAULTY WIRING

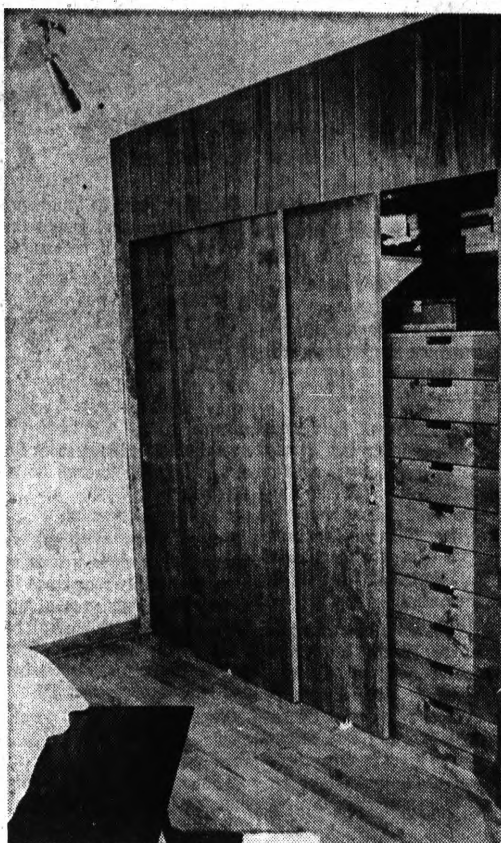

Faulty and inadequate wiring cause many fires. When a new electrical appliance such as an air conditioner or deep freeze unit, is to be added to the home the wiring system should be inspected by a competent electrician to see that it is in good shape and is adequate to support the additional load.

It is estimated that three out of five houses are inadequately wired. If a fuse blows out, it is a warning that there is an overload.

Matches should be kept out of reach of youngsters. Children and matches did a year's damage of $38,600,000. Smoking and matches brought a total of $80,400,000 and was the cause of most fires with heating and cooking being second.

Flammable liquids should not be kept in the home and greasy rags should not be allowed to accumulate as they can be the cause of spontaneous combustion.

Much can and should be done to prevent fires in the home. But if a fire does start, get out quickly the way you had planned in advance. Then leave the fire fighting to the professionals.

COMPACT CLOSET — The William McNeills of 60968 Waschull, Washington Township, wanted more wall space in their master bedroom so they built drawers into their Mr. and Mrs. three-doored closets. By doing this, they were able to eliminate dressers and chests and allow more freedom for furniture arrangements.

Divider Adds Storage Space

Space is where you find it. A counter divider between kitchen and family dining area offers superb storage space for glassware when shallow cupboards are built on the dining side, extending from the floor to the countertop.

Only a six-inch depth is needed for tumblers, juice glasses, sherbets, small fruit dishes, cups and saucers.

Sides, top and bottom of the new cupboard are made of 1x6-inch boards nailed directly to back and edges of the existing unit.

Fir, hemlock or pine may be used. Interior shelving of the same wood is most easily installed on metal strip fasteners.

For the doors, use inexpensive, good-looking louvered cupboard doors.

Finish the top and sides of the new cabinet to match existing woodwork, but finish the doors to contrast — with paint if cabinetwork is natural finished, or the reverse.

Keep house looking bright this winter by painting doors, shutters, trim now.

Add a Room Subtract Work

Planning to add a room to your home? Then be sure the outside of your room addition is as free of maintenance as you would like the inside to be.

Just as prefinished hardboard panels have made interior remodeling a snap, preprimed and prefinished hardboard siding has made it easier to surface the exterior of the home.

Factory-finished sidings will last for years with practically no maintenance.

Hardboard siding panels, with extra strength and weather resistance, are available in board-and-batten panels and in horizontal lap siding for installation as clapboard siding.

There are also different surface textures from which to choose, including smooth and roughsawn.

SAVE WORK

The advantage of installing preprimed siding is that the homeowner needn't rush to prime the siding after installation to protect it against the elements. If prefinished siding is used, finishing is eliminated.

The choice of hardboard siding styles makes it easy to match the siding of the new addition to the main house, thus avoiding that "added-on" look.

Or, if the exterior of the house is in poor condition, you may wish to re-side the house at the same time.

You can get add-a-room and other home remodeling ideas by sending ten cents to SR & A, Dept. HP, Box 3498, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Lotion Eases Muscle Pain

Oh, my aching back! Shifting furniture, hauling out trash and climbing ladders can make the sturdiest spine feel like spaghetti.

For you and all the other do-it-yourselfers in the family, try a soothing rubdown with a penetrating heat lotion, a creamy ouch-reliever that makes aches and pains disappear.

Cutting Container From Clay Pot

Make a plant cutting container from a large clay pot filled with sterilized potting soil and an empty two-inch clay pot with corked drainage hole, submerged in the center.

Place cuttings in the soil of the large pot and fill the small center pot with water. The moisture will seep slowly through the porous pot sides to keep the soil in the larger container evenly moist.

Mobile Home Dwellers Staying Put

A New Look for 'House Trailers'

A mobile home with a basement? A wood-burning fireplace? High-rise mobile homes? All this and more is happening to the once-scorned "house trailer," a survey by the Family Economics Bureau of North-western National Life Insurance Co. shows. As a result, a lot of people may be forced to recast their thinking about "trailers" and "trailer camps."

Further pressure on previously fixed attitudes will come from the rising proportion of the population who live in mobile homes — 10 per cent by 1972, say market researchers.

A major development in reconciling mobile-home with permanent-home owners is the growing "immobility" of mobile homes. More and more of them are being placed on permanent foundations. In fact, 85 per cent of all 12-foot-wide mobile homes move only once — from the factory to the mobile home park. Mobile home residents hardly move more often than residents of permanent homes. The mythical "average" mobile home dweller moves only once every 47 months, about four years. By comparison, half the residents of permanent homes move within five years.

FHA MORTGAGES
For the first time, the Federal Housing Administration decided in 1966 to insure mortgages on mobile homes — but only those on the permanent-foundation type. This FHA decision may signal a rush to permanent-foundation mobile homes by manufacturers.

It is becoming increasingly clear, the Family Economics Bureau study reveals, that today's mobile home is in reality a factory-produced "unrelocatable" house. One dealer describes them as "mass-produced permanent homes that can be moved if necessary."

About that mobile home with a basement: It was displayed, along with others with wood-burning fireplaces, at the annual industry trade show earlier this year in Louisville, Kentucky. The basement — actually a crawl space — is located beneath a raised living room floor and is reached through an outside panel.

Trade show visitors saw homes with three bedrooms, two baths and utility rooms and luxury appointments such as marble-top vanities, wall-to-wall carpeting on cushioned floors, stereo, intercoms, dishwashers, and built-in ovens and TV.

Other eye-popping developments seen at the Louisville show were:

• Four separate "modular" units, designed to be towed separately, joined into one integral unit. An "instant house."

• Telescoping mobile homes. Each end is pulled out after delivery.

• A mobile home with 1,440 square feet of floor space. It consists of two 12-foot-wide sections towed separately to a site, then bolted together. (The average new single-family home has 1,200 square feet of floor area.)

On hand at the trade show was Elmer J. Frey, a mobile home designer and builder from Marshfield, Wisconsin, who was predicting a 28-foot-wide home "in the not-too-distant future." It would consist of two 12-foot-wide sections set four feet apart on a foundation. Pre-fabricated floor, roof, and end-wall pieces to close the four-foot separation would be shipped with the two 12-foot-wide sections.

The high-rise mobile home isn't a reality yet, but the high-rising Frey thinks it's coming. The high-rise, he says, will enable mobile home park developers to circumvent skyrocketing land costs. Frey has formed a corporation, Skye-Rise Terrace, Inc., to research the practicality of twin 20-story circular towers with stalls in both for 500 mobile homes.

Mobile home subdivisions are being considered by city officials eager to save money. Sub-division developers would pay for all streets, storm sewers, sanitary sewers, water lines, parking lots and recreational facilities, as mobile home park developers do now.

MOBILE HOME CITY

At least one mobile home park has been incorporated as a city. Landfall Terrace, east of St. Paul, Minn., has a population of about 750.

Not all mobile homes are used as residences. Astronauts use them at Cape Kennedy. The Job Corps uses mobile homes at training camps in Appalachia. With crosses on top, they have become churches. They also are used as motel units and mobile banks.

Eight-hundred relocatable classrooms were credited with eliminating double sessions in Chicago public schools for the first time in this century. When Washburn University, Topeka, Kansas, was leveled by a tornado in June, 1966, the fall semester started on schedule with 4,200 students meeting in air-conditioned, gas-heated classrooms on wheels.

Despite the variety of uses for mobile facilities, the future of the industry lies with mobile homes used as residences. In 1972, 750,000 of an estimated 2.2 million housing starts will be mobile homes, according to a market research report prepared by MHMA.

Apparently, mobile home living appeals to an increasing number of people — mostly "young marrieds" and retired couples. They like instant housing. "Buy Today, Move In Tomorrow," sales lots advertise.

They like a completely furnished home for a single price, because they don't have to make payments for furniture and appliances. They like low cost. Average price is $5,600 for a furnished, two-bedroom mobile home 10 or 12 feet wide and 55 feet long, with a living room, kitchen and bath.

The way things are going, Mr. and Mrs. Vern Hall of Waterloo, Iowa, soon may be typical. They have one mobile home in Waterloo, another in Florida and a travel trailer besides.

NEW LOOK — While out antiquing, Mrs. Joseph Rivard of 49665 Valley, Shelby Township, discovered an ancient hat rack looking for a home. She bought it, painted it a hot pink and mounted it on the master bath wall. It's an ideal accent for her contemporary home and the spindle trim is perfect for hanging costume jewelry necklaces.

With Aluminum Siding

Remodel Exterior

Sparkling in the sun, the home renovated completely with low maintenance materials, such as aluminum, looks no different than its neighbors.

But the difference exists and promises blessed relief for millions of home owners tired of frequent painting and other maintenance.

The entire exterior now can be modernized with aluminum building products with finishes which can last for 15 years or more before repainting may be required.

They never blister, peel or rust, and being aluminum, the home owner is never faced with the problems of rot or warping, so common with many other building products.

Siding is just one of the many exterior products available for minimum upkeep.

Home owners can now cover or replace every exterior product now on their house with long-lasting aluminum nails and other fastening devices which are rustproof and never stain the exterior of your home.

ALUMINUM SHUTTERS — These attractive, authentically styled products have the same durable finishes as aluminum siding.

They lend a decorative touch to an otherwise plain exterior and are easily installed on any home.

ALUMINUM WINDOWS — When old windows require replacement or a modern picture window is to be installed the choice can be a modern aluminum window which requires little maintenance.

Aluminum windows never rot or decay; they move freely in damp weather.

Aluminum windows with factory applied finishes also are now available.

ALUMINUM SOFFIT — The underside of the roof overhand, called the soffit, has always been hard to paint and subject to blistering and peeling.

New factory finished soffit goes right over this trouble spot and offers a solution to the problem of constant repainting.

ALUMINUM SCREENING — Nonrusting aluminum screen stays trim and flat in windows and door frames.

Wall Is Covered by New Shutters

Here's an idea for "curtaining" a big glass wall.

Use floor-to-ceiling shutters made of lattice-work installed diagonally in a frame of 1x2s and 1x4s.

Set some to hinge to either side of the glass wall, and position a few in the center.

The center shutters can be permanently placed or hinged to fold to the middle.

Carpeting Needs Hidden Assets for Best Service

When home improvement is on one's mind the carpet looms as the outstanding device to pull a room together in one harmonious decorating scheme.

A good-looking, well-chosen rug can do wonders to perk up a nondescript room and give it a feeling of unity.

Carpets today are available in an array of colors, prices, weaves, designs, yarn content (wool, cotton and man-made fibers) and sizes to fit into any type of room or decorating scheme.

Even kitchens today are getting the rug treatment. Wall-to-wall carpeting is a new trend for bathrooms.

Area rugs; room-size rugs; wall-to-wall carpeting that sometimes climbs the walls to wainscoting height; all these are to be had and the choice is wide.

NEED CUSHIONING

Almost all carpets and rugs require some sort of cushioning for protection and comfort. The role of the underlay is purely functional but none the less important even if it isn't part of the decorating scheme and doesn't show.

Oriental Set Mood in Floor Styling Trend

Oriental rugs are tremendously popular today, so much so that demand is outstripping supply.

A leading importer says this renewed interest in Orientals goes hand in hand with the wider acceptance of area rugs generally, as opposed to carpeting.

The floors in this decorative plan usually are oak, a perennial favorite for American homes, or one of the other attractive hardwoods. Among these are hard maple, beech, birch, pecan, walnut, cherry, ash, hickory and teak.

Home Furnishings Daily, leading publication of the home furnishings field, quotes the importer, Fred Atiyeh, as saying:

"Anyone with distinction wants an Oriental. Consumers today are doing research on rugs for investment and esthetic reasons."

He added that decorators are envincing more and more interest in Orientals as a starting point in room planning.

Another importer, Ralph Nahigian pointed out that "the demand is great across the country."

Colored pipe cleaners are ideal for identification.

Latest and most practical of these "carpet cushions" is latex foam rubber in a waffle-type formation that hugs the floor, stays in place and keeps the rug from slipping.

The "hidden assets" of this new underlay are multifold: if the carpet is not a thickpile construction (and therefore not the most expensive kind) the latex foam rubber underlay gives it a bouncy spring and deep-pile feeling of opulence; household chores seem less onerous when one's step is light.

Another boon to the housewife is the noise stifling quality of latex foam rubber; it performs admirably as an acoustical device, absorbing sound where it starts.

Last but not least in the "hidden assets" of latex foam rubber is the preservation of the life of the carpet itself... a very important consideration indeed where so much expense and expanse are involved.

Bridge Painted for Protection

For a recent renovation of the George Washington Bridge in New York City, more than 17,800 gallons of aluminum paint were applied by a team of 50 painters

The 3,500-foot span was given an aluminum coat to protect it from rust.

INTERESTING FLOOR — Tree rounds set in concrete form the floor in the loom room of the Robert H. Diebbolls of 58031 Mound, Washington Township. A skylight floods the room with daylight to make it a delightful place for Mrs. Diebbolls to pursue her hobby of weaving. Naturally finished planking is used on the walls and ceiling of the room.

Indoors-Outdoors Can Bring on Colds

Sometimes, while working both indoors and outdoors around the house in varying degrees of weather, a person's resistance is lowered and a cold may result.

If a member of the family comes down with a cold, here are a number of excellent health rules to follow as recommended by the U.S. Public Health Service:

- Go to bed when you first feel a cold coming on.
- Drink plenty of liquids, water, soups, milk and fruit juices.
- Eat moderately of appetizing foods which agree with you.
- Keep your dishes and towels separate from those of the rest of the family.

• A doctor should be called if a member of the family develops a high fever, a severe headache, achiness, chest pains, hard coughing spells or an earache.

Although there is no known cure for a cold, there are medicines which will make a patient feel more comfortable while he is getting over his cold.

There is currently a trend toward prolonged-relief medications which provide long-lasting benefits of up to eight hours and more.

Bananas, No Batteries, Yes

Don't store bananas in refrigerators—store batteries.

Most homeowners keep one or more flashlights on hand for possible emergency use. However, all too often when the need does arise, the batteries are dead—or nearly so.

Keeping spare batteries on hand in a drawer or closet is not always the answer since batteries deteriorate with age, even when not used.

However, one way to prolong their life is by storing them in a refrigerator.

Colder temperatures slow up the aging process. They can be preserved almost indefinitely if stored in a freezer.

remodel your thinking about home improvement loans ...at your credit union

What's the first thing to do if you're thinking of remodeling? Remodel your thinking. A big part of the cost of home improvement is the interest on your loan. The more money you save on interest rates, the more you can spend on your home. Logical?

Think savings. Think lower interest. Think CREDIT UNIONS. A credit union is owned by its members. And there's no point in charging yourself high interest rates.

There are other advantages — too many to list here. But more than 1½ million members in Michigan can tell you why it pays to be a credit union family.

Before you call a contractor, call your credit union. You'll get more for your money, whether you're adding a bedroom, a bath, a garage, a recreation room, or a tree house.

If you are not a member and would like more information, contact the Credit Union where you work or one in your parish or call 332-9193.

A significant development is enthusiasm for covered kettle barbecue cooking. A trend setter in this area — likely to be the outdoor chef's 1967 status symbol — is a new all-aluminum covered kettle with a thermometer in the cover for accurate temperature control that brings the precision of indoor cooking into the patio barbecue area.

Aluminum's efficiency in radiating heat speeds up cooking time. There's a battery-operated cordless motor.

A convenient hook inside the cover holds the cover on the rim and acts as a windbreak.

This new model has a man-size grid — 31½ inches high. A large bottom vent with a handle control provides visible control of air to fire without bending down.

Equally significant in providing luxury cooking for the family on the move is the new fold-away rotisserie grill.

The foldaway rotisserie grill creates a new dimension of mobility and convenience for deluxe outdoor cookery.

This model folds and closes just like a suitcase, with a firebox, grid and spit all inside. There's even room inside for briquets, starter and tools in the first truly portable grill design. Set up in seconds, this model has aluminum legs.

These legs are of rust free aluminum snap-lock completely flat to form a handle for pushing, pulling or hanging grills for convenient storage when folded.

SPACE SAVER — In furnishing the bedroom of their teen-age sons, David, 14, and John, 16, the John A. Carruthers of 631 Butler, Orion Township, built bunk beds, drawer space and bookshelves into a corner unit. The compact built-in saves floor space in the Philippine mahogany paneled room. The owl was created by Mrs. Carruthers.

Put Heat Units in Your Pools

If you're among the growing number of families who are planning a backyard swimming pool this year, don't forget to include heating equipment. It will enable you to use your pool earlier in the spring and later into the fall, nearly doubling the swimming season.

Avoid Plugs in Drain Lines

Plumbing contractors get more calls to unplug drains and clogged water closets than for any other service. Yet most such stoppages can be avoided with just a little care.

For example, if you pour a kettle of boiling water down the kitchen sink every day, this will help to keep the drain clear. Large food particles, coffee grounds and grease should never be washed down the drain.

In the bathroom, stoppages in the water closet are the most frequent problem. The water closet never should be used to dispose of trash. And if the lid is kept closed, the chances of anything's falling in accidentally are lessened.

A booklet that contains dozens of tips on plumbing maintenance — including how to clear clogged pipes, what to do about noisy plumbing, how to prolong the life of your water heater, etc. — is available for 25 cents.

Write to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

White fir lumber has little grain pattern because the summerwood bands are exceptionally narrow, and both spring and summerwood are about the same color.

Need Space? Flick Switch

A revolutionary new indoor-outdoor patio and porch enclosure, permitting year-round use and enjoyment of areas formerly reserved only for the warmer months, has just been introduced for home owners seeking additional living space for their families.

The patented additional living space encloses an area with a roof and movable walls.

The glasslike walls disappear at the flick of a switch exposing the area to the cool breezes of spring and summer; then, again at the flick of a switch, the walls reappear to prevent cold or inclement weather from entering the room.

This material has all the advantages of glass, including heat gain, but is practically impossible to destroy, particularly important in homes containing youngsters.

It is crystal clear, completely shatterproof, and able to withstand 250 pounds of pressure, much more than that exerted by the average hurricane.

Horizontally paneled walls are driven by a heavy-duty motor ride on channeled aluminum upright studs.

WALLS ADJUSTABLE
The walls can be raised or lowered to the desired height within seconds, depending on the degree of fresh air required.

When in open position, there is almost nothing to block sight or sound.

The walls and room are prefabricated with the wiring already installed within the raceways, which have UL Approval as well as the motors themselves.

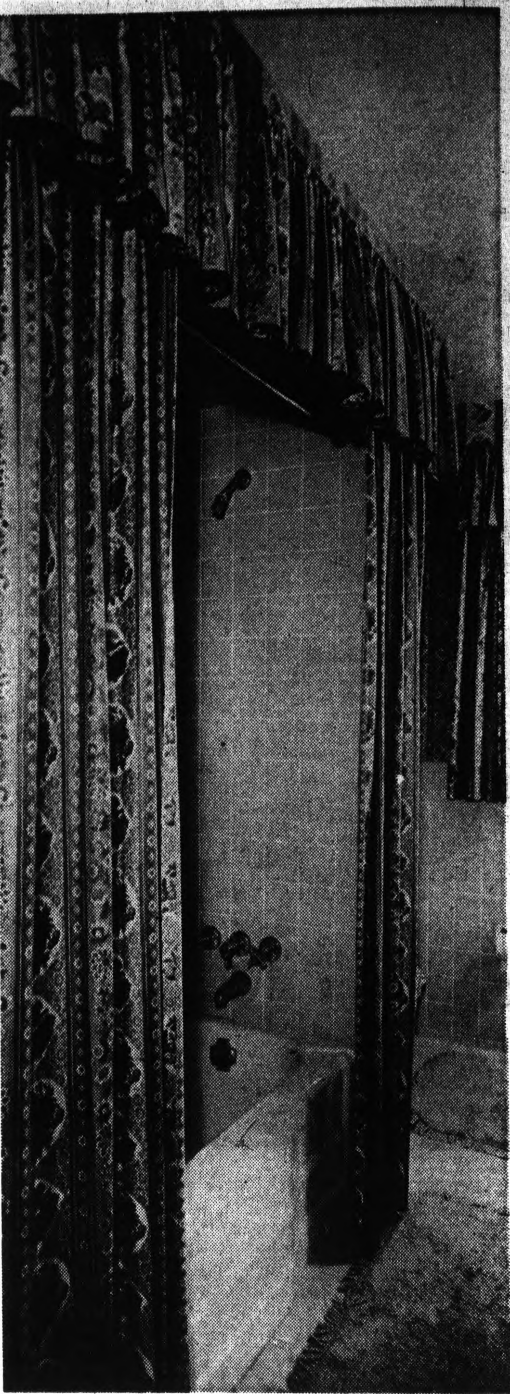

The new product accomplishes almost everything an additional room does, but at only a fraction of the cost for a room.

If the homeowner has an existing patio floor and cover that just need to be enclosed, the cost is reduced even further.

It has been tested in winds up to 85 miles an hour with no leaks or breakage during Florida hurricanes. The fiberglass roof covering the room is strong enough to hold a Volkswagen.

The new device is custom-built and can be fitted to almost any existing patio, or it can be built to the home-owner's exacting specifications.

The product is also perfectly suitable for enclosing porches; breezeways, and summer home.

Pontiac Press Photo

DECORATION IDEA — Mrs. Richard Jerome of 229 Wimberly, Avon Township didn't care for the decorating effect created by a standard shower curtain. Using fabric coordinated with the room's wallpaper, she made two wide panels topped by a matching valance. When closed, the panels and valance completely conceal the shower and tub fixtures, giving the impression of a draped window.

Carpet Fibers Guide

If you think that an olefin is an oil to put on your face at night and a mod-acrylic is the newest fashion creation from London's Carnaby Street, your head's in the clouds while you should be on the ground... or the carpet, to be exact.

The impartial findings are based on thousands of laboratory tests and field service inspections by experts.

The booklet covers such carpet characteristics as texture, resilience, soil resistance, cleanability, pilling and fuzzing, static buildup, allergenic properties and water resistance.

Fibers reviewed include olefins, mod-acrylics (so that's what they are), acrylics, nylon, polyesters, rayon, wool, and cotton.

The trade names of these new fibers are included, too, so a housewife will know exactly what she wants when she visits her carpet salesman.

The booklet explains, for instance, that new man-made carpet fibers have a number of common characteristics. They resist abrasion and take surface wear and rubbing well.

They have continuous filaments, or fibers of infinite length, which contribute added strength and durability while reducing the problem of "pilling".

Because most man-made fibers have a smooth, almost non-porous surface, they are easily cleaned; soil and spot substances do not easily penetrate.

Wishing For A REALLY Clean Carpet?

It will cost you a bit more than the customary penny to make this wish come true, but the results will be greater than magic.

Innovation in Electric Sweepers

A stitch in time saves nine as the old saying goes and as every good homemaker knows. And so does a little regular vacuum sweeping save a lot of heavy cleaning of floors later.

Making the job a lot easier and a little less of a chore is a new all-electric powered brush vacuum sweeper.

The sweeper wears mainly hats, or more appropriately, "handles." The new model performs the duties of carpet sweeper, broom, dust mop and light-duty vacuum cleaner.

To keep every floor in the house in apple pie order, the new vacuum sweeper is a jewel.

LIGHTWEIGHT

The lightweight, easy-to-handle sweeper does the same effective sweeping-vacuuming job on bare wood or tile floors as it does on carpeted floors.

The low four-inch silhouette goes under low furniture easily. A motor driven rotary brush gently works into carpet nap loosening the dirt as it vacuums it up.

Easy, snap-on reusable paper bags eliminate messy hand cleaning of the sweeper. A new toe-touch switches lower on or off.

When it comes to storage, the sweeper is a space saver. A small hole in the handle permits it to be hung on a hook in the closet.

A little daily sweeping with this new vacuum sweeper eases the work load, helps the homemaker keep ahead of the game.

A damp, soft cloth and a bar of facial soap clean the finger-marks from painted woodwork.

If you decide to paint, use a washable enamel finish and get away from the traditional white, pink or blue shades with interesting new combinations of browns, yellows or greens.

In addition to floor tiles, there are now many vinyl flooring materials that offer beauty and low-maintenance.

New fixtures make a big difference in bathroom remodeling. Don't choose them hastily.

Take a look at the wide variety available at local building supply dealers, many of whom feature full bathroom displays to give you sound and interesting remodeling ideas.

It pays to get good quality fixtures and facilities that can take daily use.

The trend now is towards wall-hung toilets because it's easier to clean under and around them, built-in vanities, and round or oval lavatories with adjacent countertop space.

Colored fixtures are popular, and single-handle faucets get the nod because of their convenience.

There are also a host of accessories that will update your bathroom.

These range from practical double medicine cabinets, which give you twice the storage space and mirror area, to pretty matched tissue holders and waste paper baskets.

Where cost is no problem, bathrooms can go exotic with murals, and built-in sun lamps.

The room can also serve double-duty if you add a second sink or install a new double-lavatory unit.

Since the bathroom takes hard, daily abuse, it should have facilities, walls and floors that are easy to clean.

This is no problem if you select the right materials. That resist heat and humidity is inexpensive, sponges clean, and gives the room a warm, unusually goodlooking decor.

Washable wallpaper that comes in a variety of colorful, attractive patterns is another practical way to relieve the

MEDIEVAL MODE — Red felt insets add a gay touch of color to the dark-stained paneling of the games' room at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Pastor of 1560 Lakewood, Bloomfield Township. To create interest and camouflage the corrugated metal of the deep window well enclosure, Mrs. Pastor planted plastic greens just outside the window. The greens remain bright and perky no matter what the weather. Outdoor lights brighten the miniature landscape at night.

Home Improvement Shows Increase

This year, the home improvement market has a retail sales potential of $14.5 billion, an 8 per cent increase over last year, according to the National Home Improvement Council and reported in a new presentation just published by the Bureau of Advertising, ANPA.

The presentation, "Raise The Roof On The Home Improvement Market," is designed to help retailers in this category make the most of their selling opportunities. Copies are available to merchants through the 1,000 member daily newspapers of the Bureau.

The folder points out home improvement has been expanding by almost the same ratio as the drop in new home construction. Although somewhat less critical in some areas, the tight money supply and high interest mortgage rates have continued into '67.

Therefore, this year, great sales opportunities are presented to home improvement retailers.

"Where Are Home Improvement Dollars Going?" asks the presentation. It goes on to show that the main areas of home improvement will be add-on porches, kitchen modernization, recreation rooms, garage additions and new bathrooms.

The do-it-yourself will be doing many major improvements himself: painting, wall-papering, flooring, roofing, lawn care and gardening. Consequently, all segments of the home improvement market deserve retailers' selling attention.

AVERAGE HOUSEHOLD
The average household will spend about $250 for home improvements this year, reports the folder. By multiplying $250 by the number of households in his market, a retailer can estimate the home improvement sales potential in his local market.

This estimate can be used as a starting point in setting a store's sales goal. The folder also contains per household average expenditures for 16 separate categories of maintenance, repairs, additions, alterations and replacements.

The presentation contains several retailers' personal outlooks for '67, along with a forecast by Edgar Hall, executive director, National Home Improvement Council.

Says Hall, "There should be no lack of money for good remodelers and good customer credit risks. The remodeling upswing in 1967 will not only enable dealers and contractors to increase their sales in this market, but aggressive efforts to encourage home owners to fix up could lead to an over-all increase in their sales volume, even if new home construction declines."

"Raise The Roof On The Home Improvement Market" features a tested 4-step advertising plan for merchants to use in setting up a successful promotion program.

New Trend in Exteriors

Screen Porches in Color

Since the introduction of color in aluminum screening less than two years ago, color porch screens has excited a significant jump in the use of color aluminum screening, according to the Insect Wire Screening Bureau, New York, based on a recent poll of its 10 national manufacturers.

Because screened areas regularly encompass as much as 50 per cent of the home's exterior surface, the availability of color in aluminum screening has created new departures in exterior decoration of the home.

"The fresh sparkle and warmth of charcoal or green screening coordinated with the color scheme of the house and window trim greatly enhances the eye appeal," noted George Tsuruoka, architectural consultant to the Exterior Decorators Institute of the Aluminum Association, in explanation of the trend.

Homeowner demand for color in aluminum screening in the first half of 1966 was running roughly equal to demand for the conventional satin.

However, professional exterior decorators generally agree that the screening should be color harmonized to the window and porch trim.

A number of suggested color harmonies in exterior trim and color aluminum screening were sketched by Tsuruoka.

The green best complements red brick, redwood siding and it harmonizes with yellow and blue home exteriors.

The charcoal, a comparatively neutral color, blends well with most pastels used on home exteriors and with white.

The recently introduced colors in aluminum screening currently are available throughout the nation at hardware and building materials dealers.

Roses need much water in times of drought, not a mere surface sprinkling which bring roots to the surface to suffer sun-scorch.

Update That Bathroom! Enjoy More Convenience

Bathrooms rank high on the list of most wanted — and needed — home improvement projects.

According to the trade publication, Building Supply News, 16.5 million bathrooms in the United States are badly outmoded, too small and inconvenient.

If cost is inhibiting your immediate plans for bathroom modernization, the editors remind you that the bathroom demands consideration because it can do so much to improve the home and increase the family's comfort.

What's more, says the magazine, a wide variety of new plumbing fixtures, accessories and materials that are both decorative and utilitarian, allow you to choose features that will suit your budget as well as your taste.

The three major disadvantages of older bathrooms are lack of privacy, space and modern convenience features.

ONE BATH
The tendency toward larger families means that one bathroom per house is simply not enough. Most families require at least an additional powder room.

If you can't manage a second bathroom yet, there are some things you can do to make present quarters more serviceable, comfortable and attractive.

Compartmentalization is one solution to the daily bathroom traffic tie-up. It can be achieved by closing off the lavatory area from the rest of the room with a partition, thus permitting two people to use the bathroom at the same time.

The room can also serve double-duty if you add a second sink or install a new double-lavatory unit.

Since the bathroom takes hard, daily abuse, it should have facilities, walls and floors that are easy to clean.

Family Room Steps Lead To Kitchen And Breakfast Area Featuring White Vinyl Brick

Kathy, 8 Rearranges Flowers In Wicker Cart, A Colorful Accent In Family Room

Homemaker Juggles Careers

By JODY HEADLEE
Home Editor, The Pontiac Press

Working full time as a fourth grade teacher and operating a home complete with a 2½-year-old son and an 8-year-old daughter presents a challenge that Mrs. Eugene McCurdy takes in her stride.

"I'll have to confess," she's quick to say, "I couldn't do it without my wonderful baby sitter and the cooperation of my family."

Built by Kampsen Realty and Building Co., furnishings in the Colonial follow a Mediterranean motif.

In the walnut paneled family room, found at the back of the house, a scarlet area rug centers the white marbleized floor.

White draperies trimmed in scarlet ball fringe open to reveal a large convenient patio. Scarlet candles in wrought iron table and two matching delcandelsticks, imported from Spain, balance the painting of a matador in the bull ring hung above the fireplace of white rough cut, unpolished marble.

On the step table serving the walnut framed sofa are hand crafted figurines of a matador and senorita.

Accents of blue are found in the artificial floral arrangement on the coffee table and scheme. A pair of walnut lamp in the wicker flower cart tables are used at either end, topped with scarlet awning.

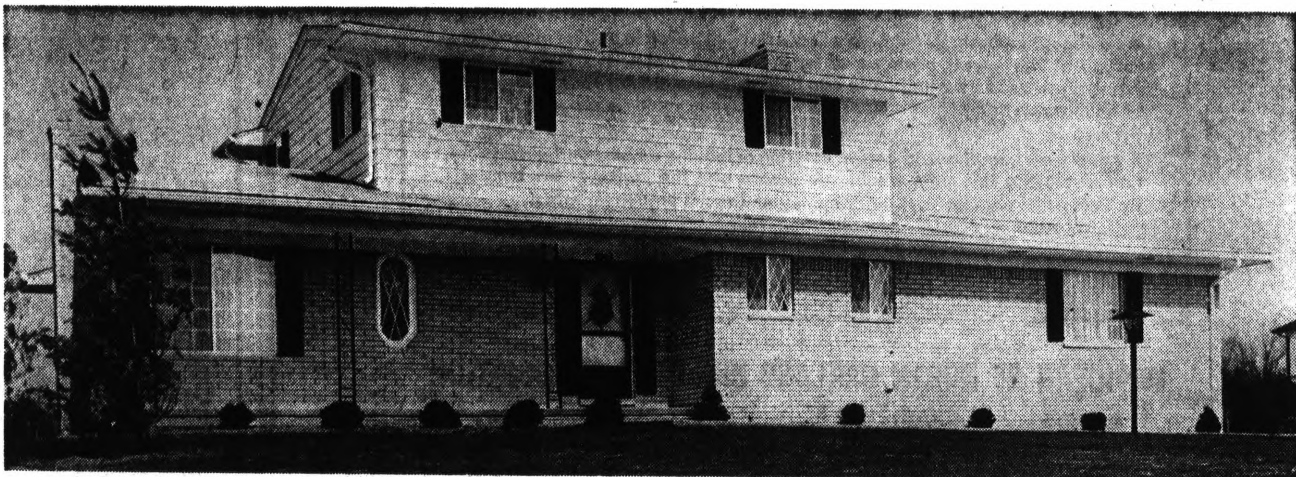

In the formal living room, Mrs. McCurdy selected white following the background theme walls, gold carpeting and white of gold carpeting and white antique satin draperies with walls, is furnished in pecan gold trim for the background. woods.

Forming a conversation group, ring at the room's entrance to the foyer are a round walnut table and two matching delcandelsticks, imported from phinium blue chairs.

The sofa features a gold background with cushions and alternating pillows covered in a fabric that duplicates the companion chair's abstract print of olive, light olive, brown and beige.

Bittersweet and gold throw pillows on the sofa emphasize and accent the room's color scheme. A pair of walnut lamp in the wicker flower cart tables are used at either end, topped with scarlet awning.

The adjoining dining room, Mrs. McCurdy selected white following the background theme walls, gold carpeting and white of gold carpeting and white antique satin draperies with walls, is furnished in pecan gold trim for the background. woods.

AN OPEN LETTER:

Over the years, thousands and thousands and thousands of dollars have been lost in the home building industry as a result of VANDALISM, THEFT AND MALICIOUS MISCHIEF by vandals, grown-ups and small children to homes under construction. These losses are reflected in higher construction costs to you, Mr. & Mrs. Home Buyer!

As competitive businessmen, we are constantly striving to deliver our product to you at the lowest price possible, but we are fighting a losing battle. Frankly, we need your help. You can help us by instructing your children not to trespass on new homes under construction. They could be seriously injured.

If you see an unauthorized person entering or leaving a home under construction displaying this sign, would you please call the police or the builder? By doing this we can save both money and much unpleasantness.

Housing Rallies After 1966 Slump

In the clearing but not yet out of the woods. That's where housing appears to be, following last year's dramatic slump.

The slump came as the demand for credit far outpaced the supply and savings and loan associations and other mortgage lenders fell behind in the competition for funds.

Here are some of the signs indicating a recovery has begun:

• Housing starts increased nearly 15 per cent in January for their third straight monthly gain. Nevertheless, starts remained 23 per cent below a year ago.

• Average interest rates on conventional home mortgages, those not backed by the federal government, declined for the first time in over a year. While the drop in rates was negligible, the federal home loan bank board noted that other mortgage terms also became more liberal in January.

• Savings and loans took in a record $8.2 billion in January. While withdrawals also rose to an all-time high of $7.9 million, the net gain of $300 million compares with a net loss of $50 million a year ago.

Despite the better savings flow, mortgage lending by S-and-L's continued sharply below a year ago, off nearly 50 per cent from January 1966.

This year's report of the Council of Economic Advisers gives a clue to what may be happening. Published in January, the Council's report said that housing had touched bottom but the recovery would take considerable time.

S-and-L's and other lenders can be expected to resume full-scale mortgage lending only after rebuilding depleted liquidity, the Council said. And even after a home loan is made, it takes a while for contracts to be let and construction to get underway.

"The effects of last year's monetary restraint (tight money) will still be felt for many months," the report said.

Flocked Paper Is the Latest

For lovers of the elegant in home decor, there is now a variety of flocked wall cloths which are both easy to apply and are soap-and-water washable.

The patterns of some of the wall cloths are inspired by 16th century ecclesiastical robes, others by Far Eastern designs, early American motifs and floral designs.

The color range in these cloths flocked with easy-care acrylic fiber is vast and varied, from such brilliant combinations as royal blue flock off an emerald green ground to an elegant and sophisticated white-on-white.

These flocked cloths are pre-pasted so that they can just be dipped in water and smoothed on the wall.

They are washable and will dry looking fresh and beautiful because the flock is of Creslan. Even stain-makers such as hair sprays, catsup, chocolate syrup, and coffee can be washed off without leaving a ring or marring the flocking.

Before Listing Look Around

Kitchen—your wife may have "made do" with an outdated kitchen, but homebuyers want a modern kitchen with the latest conveniences.

If it isn't feasible to buy new appliances, or install new cabinets and additional countertop space, at least give the cupboards a new coat of paint and attach some attractive new hardware.

Bathroom—don't expect to make a quick sale on a house with only one bathroom. Today homebuyers demand at least one-and-a-half, preferably two.

You may be able to install a power room off the kitchen under the stairs.

Closets—another asset homebuyers look for is lots of storage space. If your house is short of closets, build some in the attic, basement or even the garage.

SPANISH BILEVEL: This well-designed house, while possessing the characteristics of good Spanish styling, has one basic difference: it is a split entry, which pulls the basement windows above the ground and turns the lower level into a completely habitable area.

Split Entry Accents Spanish Architecture

Recent designs in the House of the Week series have included two highly popular features—the contemporary split entry or bilevel and the outdoor deck or balcony.

This week, the split entry is combined with the outdoor deck in traditional styling. Moreover, the traditional is Spanish architecture, once a favorite only in the Southwest and on the Pacific Coast, but now seen more and more in all parts of the country.

A balcony is nothing new in Spanish design, but the inclusion of the two in a split entry house is something of a departure.

Architect Rudolph A. Matern has done an excellent job of producing a distinctive, eye-catching exterior as well as an interesting, practical interior suitable for a large family.

UPPER LEVEL
In addition to three bedrooms on the upper level, there are two other bedrooms on the lower level.

This is one of the big advantages of a split entry, which pulls the basement partly out of the ground so that it becomes highly habitable.

Note, for instance, that the windows of both lower-level bedrooms are completely above ground, giving light and livability that would be absent if the basement were in its traditional underground position.

One of the two bedrooms on the lower level could be used as a den, study or sewing room if desired. Also on this floor is a large recreation room, nearly 25 feet long, as well as a full bath, a utility room, a laundry and space for two cars.

The architect has divided the garage area so that one side could be used for a studio, office or workshop. But even with both sides utilized for automobiles, there is still room for a large workbench and two storage cabinets.

The lower level can be reached from either the front or the rear of the house without going "her" clothes can be kept separately.

The second bath on this floor is of the split type, with a tub and a double lavatory.

The front entry foyer is strikingly attractive, with a curved-top closet, paneled doors, wrought iron stair and Spanish-type floor tiles.

The front entrance, being at a lower level than the main floor, allows the doors to snugly under the double gable roof for a most interesting effect.

The two front bedroom windows have wrought iron balconies, lower shutters and copper hoods.

There is even design interest in the chimney, with its two centrally-located chimney pots.

A captivating house, this.

G-87 STATISTICS

Design G-87, a split entry, has a living room, dining room, kitchen, foyer, three bedrooms and two baths on the upper level. Total habitable area there is 1586 square feet, which does not include the outdoor deck.

On the lower level are a recreation room, two bedrooms, a laundry and a bath, with 850 square feet of livable space. These figures do not include the utility room and two one-car garages. Over-all dimensions are 60' 4" by 29' 10", which includes everything.

FLOOR PLANS: While all the basic rooms for modern living are included on the main or upper level of this split entry, including an outdoor deck, the layout on the lower level adds livable space without any increase in the over-all dimensions of the house.

FNMA Assists Small Home Buyers

Purchasers of moderate-priced homes have been the principal beneficiaries of the financing assistance provided by the Federal National Mortgage Association, a recent study discloses.

According to Harry M. Gilbert, FNMA Executive Vice President, the study shows that the average amount of home mortgages purchased by the Association under its three operations since November 1954 has been $11,734. It was in 1954 that FNMA was reconstituted in its present operational arrangement.

Although the average mortgage amount of its purchases is modest, the Association buys mortgages in much larger amounts. In the case of FHA-insured mortgages, for instance, these amounts may be up to $30,000 on 1-family homes, $32,500 on 2- or 3-family homes; and $37,500 on 4-family homes.

Gilbert explained why the Association's purchases from mortgage originators of mortgages on 1- to 4-family homes have been specially beneficial to families of moderate incomes. Private long-term investors, he pointed out, generally prefer to invest in mortgages of larger amounts, and in mortgages covering properties in larger communities.

FNMA, he said, provides a market for FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages of varying amounts, including those in the lower range.

SMALLER COMMUNITIES

In addition, a substantial portion of the Association's purchases are mortgages covering properties in smaller communities where, generally speaking, prices of homes and mortgage amounts are smaller than those in larger communities.

Thus, the Association's transactions fill a need for moderate-priced home financing which might not otherwise be readily available.

The extent of the Association's assistance to home buyers, he pointed out, is reflected in its purchases of Federally-underwritten 1- to 4-family mortgages which, in the last 12 years, have averaged $11,734.

This average is based on acquisitions of 916,953 mortgages with unpaid principal balances of $10,759,443,000. Not included in the totals or average are FNMA purchases of multifamily mortgages.

In the 12-year period, the largest volume — $75,884 home mortgages for $8,157,206,000 — was purchased by the Association under its Secondary Market Operations in the average amount of $12,069.

Purchases of 139,496 mortgages under the Special Assistance Functions amounted to $1,614,191,000 for an average of $11,572, and 101,573 mortgages purchased under the Management and Liquidating Functions totaled $988,046,000 for an average of $9,727.

FNMA is a Congressionally-chartered corporation within the Department of Housing and Urban Development designed to assist home financing through the purchase, and sale, of FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages.

Paint Thinner Removes Wax

Wax can be removed with an odorless paint thinner, but be sure there is plenty of ventilation and no open flame—and don't smoke while doing the job.

Or you can use a special wax remover available at your hardware store, paint dealer or lumber yard.

Decorators Favor Blend of Periods

The word today in home decorating is eclectic. By definition, eclecticism is "selection from various sources," and in home furnishings that means combining furniture and accessories from different periods or decorating styles.

Introducing a new look or accent to any room is particularly easy with framed pictures or mirrors.

These versatile wall accessories make it possible to sample the latest trends without redecorating an entire room.

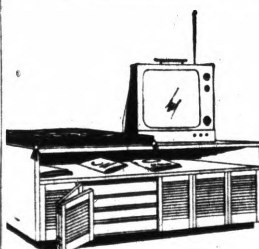

The charm of the English decorating style, for example, or the elegance of the Mediterranean trend, the informality of the contemporary look can be added to a room through careful selection of frames, pictures, and mirrors.

Handsome frames crafted in the style of British cabinetry or Mediterranean carvings can be used to surround and enhance traditional or contemporary pictures.

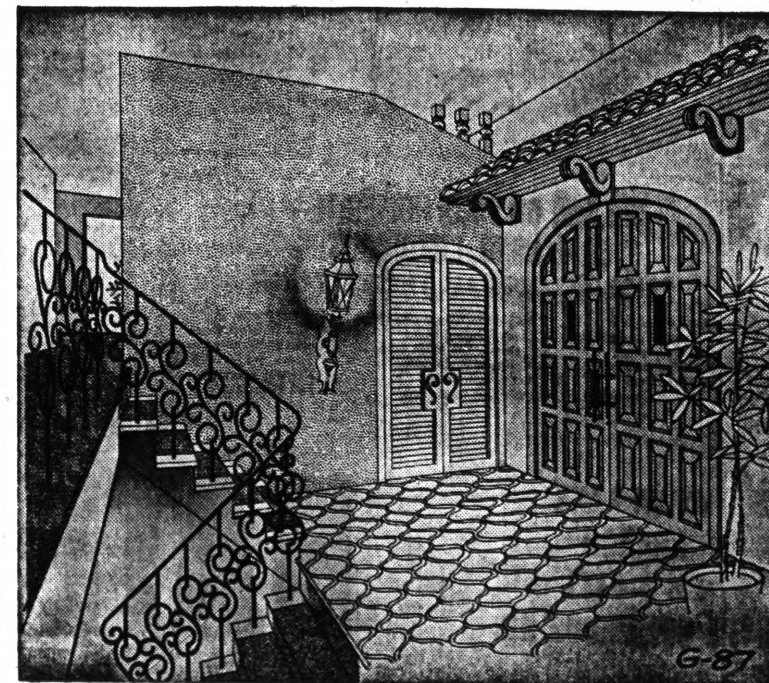

Pictures may be from the same period as furnishings or frames or represent a different trend.

To add a contemporary accent, Institute suggests wild patterns or geometric designs in brilliant colors, objective abstracts, or prints of works by twentieth-century artists, framed according to personal preference.

Whatever the decorating trend, whatever the combination of furniture and accessories in various styles, framed pictures and mirrors can introduce a new look.

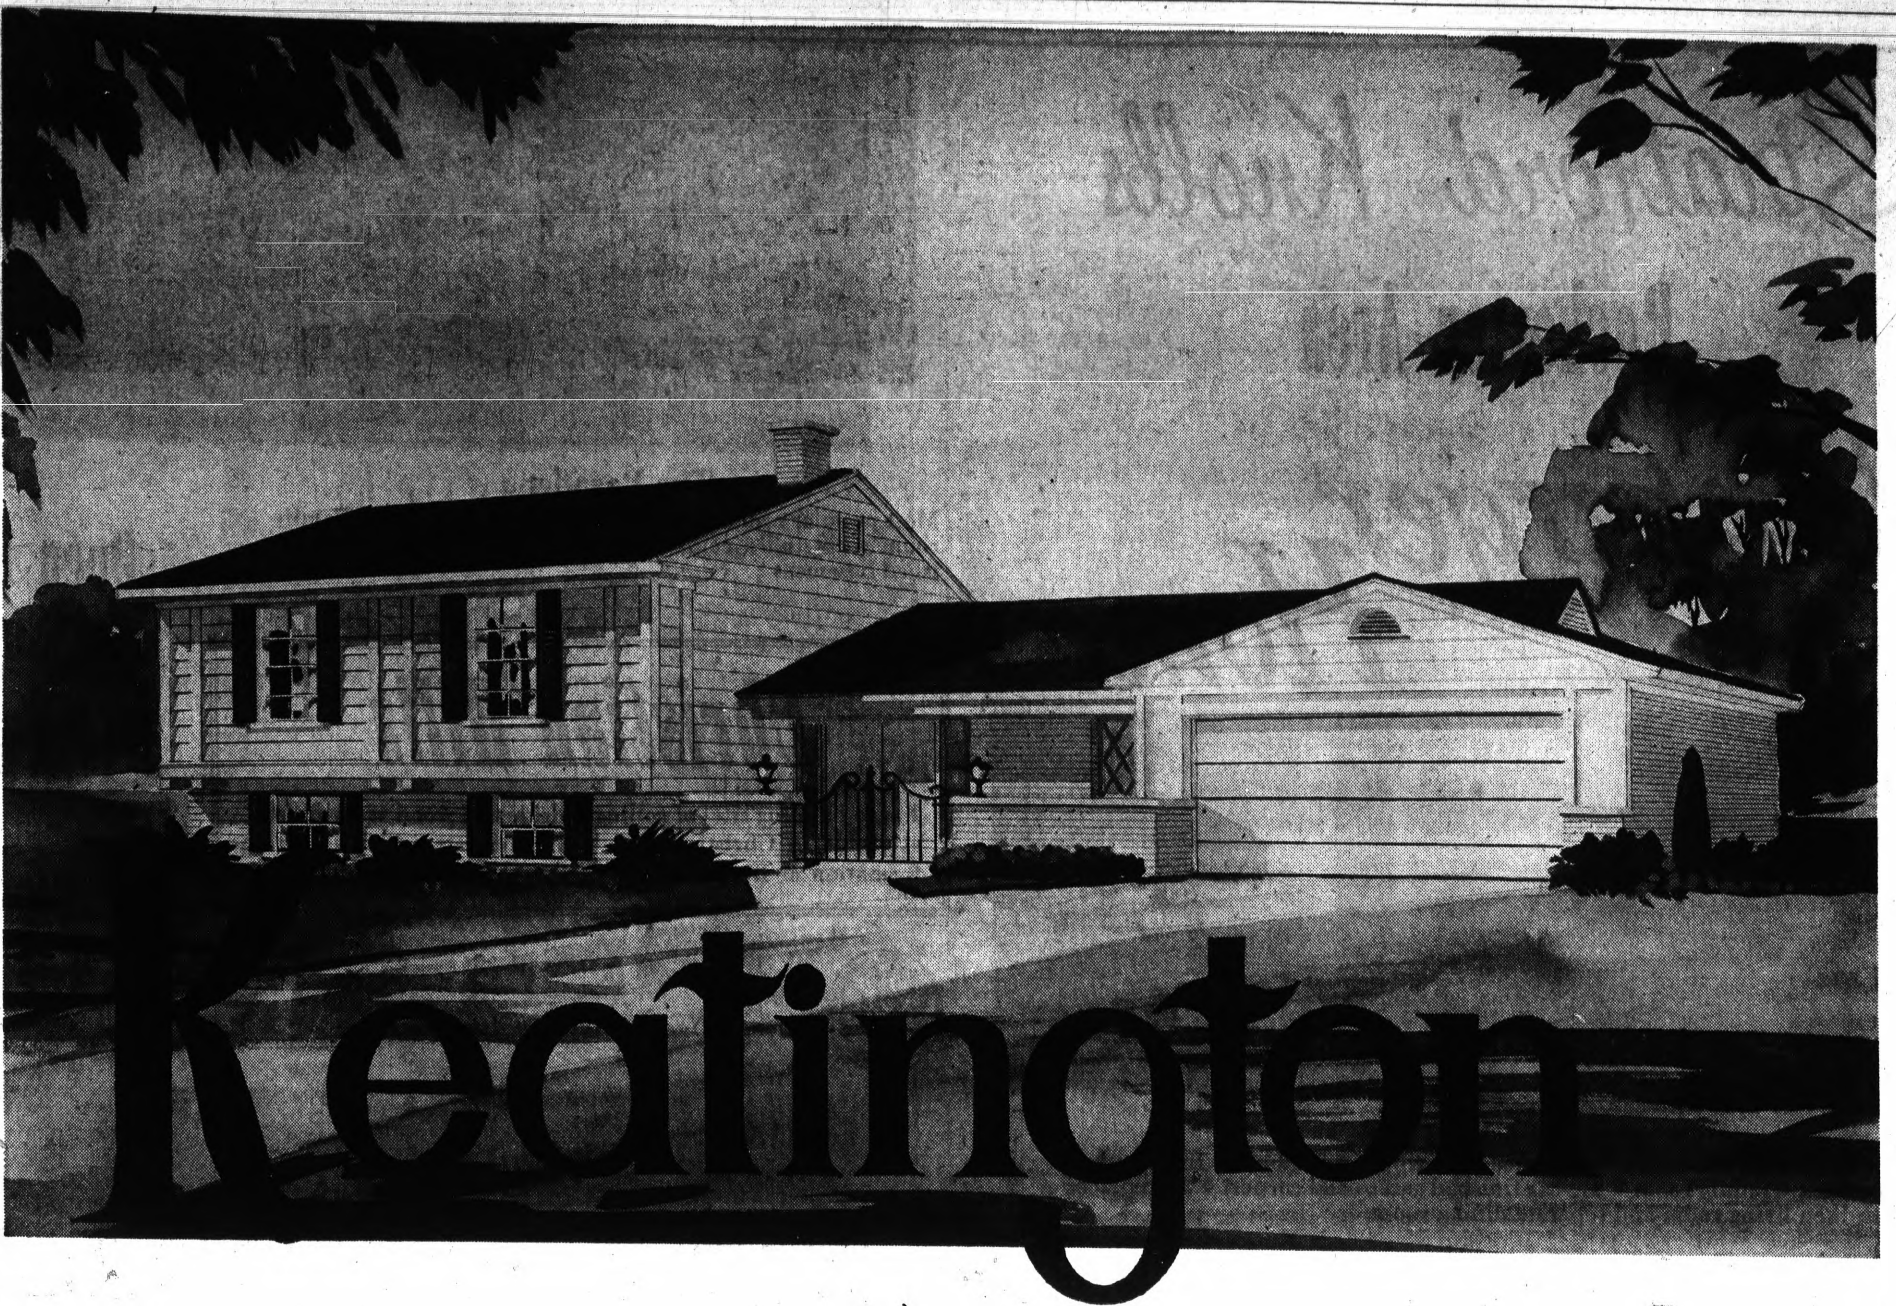

SPACE STRETCHED—Extra seating space, shelf for magazines and big art books, enclosed space for table leaves and pads are built into this stand for portable TV. Unit is just a box, can be made of ponderosa pine lumber with inexpensive louvered shutters for doors along base.

FRONT FOYER: For the home owner who likes something different as well as attractive, this Spanish-styled foyer fills the bill completely, with even the floor tiling of Old World design.

Nation Is on the Verge of a Big Boom

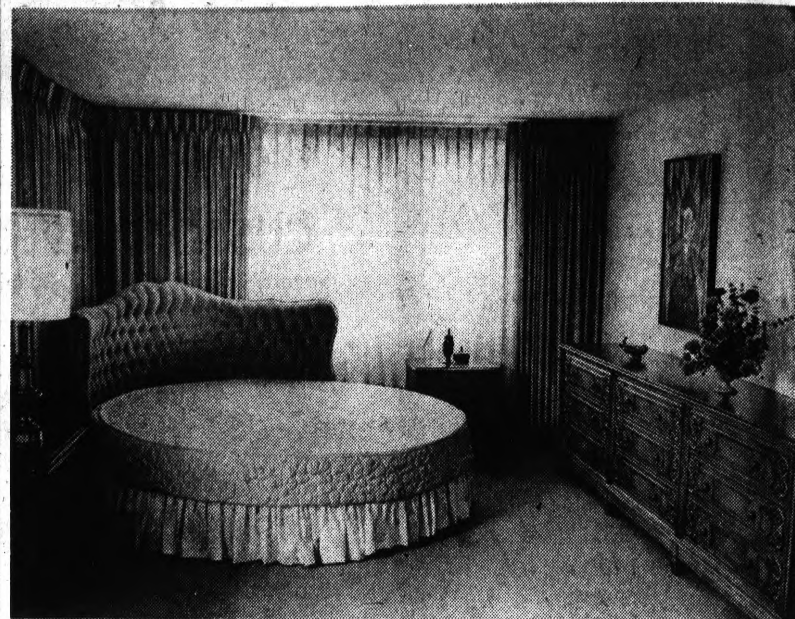

The nation is on the brink of a tremendous housing boom that will be dominated by the tastes, needs and interests of our burgeoning young-adult population. Half the population is now under 26, and it is these generations that will have a decisive influence on the gigantic rebuilding of America that must take place if we are to meet the housing needs of our expanding population.

Future demand for housing has been increased by the "tight money" slump in housing which now seems to be ending.

Even before the slump, however, we were far below the annual average rate needed to meet the requirements of our future population.

The country will need to average better than 2 million new starts a year for the rest of this century to take care of the population of 330 million they were running at an annual rate of only 1.5. Last year's starts were only 1.2. The coming boom will undoubtedly be more strongly influenced by young people than any housing surge in our history.

Extra Touches Make Furniture a Good Buy

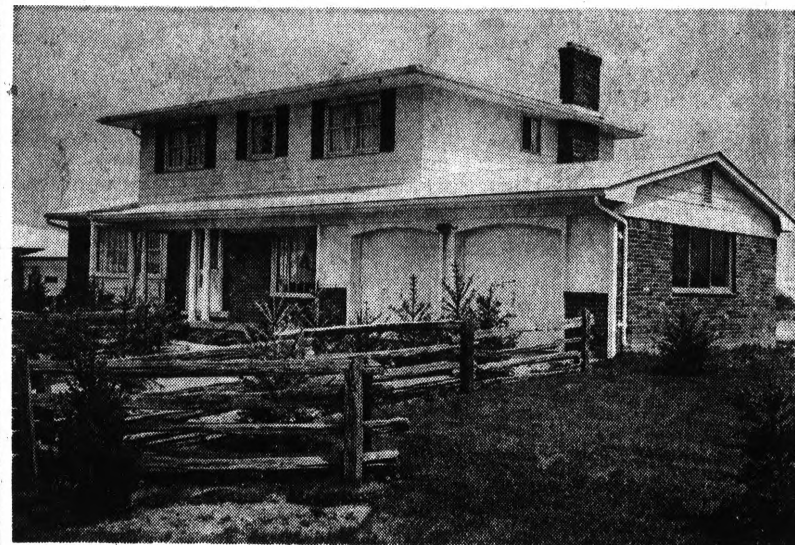

You can often get a furniture bargain by buying a sofa that includes "extras" as a package in the purchase price.

Such nice-to-have items as genuine latex foam rubber cushions, arm caps, self-decking (this means the upholstery fabric is used under the cushions, rather than inexpensive muslin), soil resistant fabric finishes (to prevent spots and staining), zippered cushions, and quality fabric often cost extra.

The latex foam cushions, for instance, will outlast any other type of cushion made. They do not lose their shape, and they are the most comfortable cushions made. Purchased as an "extra" they might add as much as $20 to the cost of a three-cushion sofa. Included in the "quality package" the latex foam cushions would probably cost only half as much.

While you may pay a little more for the package, you get a great deal for your money, making these sofas "best buys."

Electric Hand Drill a Handyman First

A portable electric hand drill is probably the first machine the average handyman acquires.

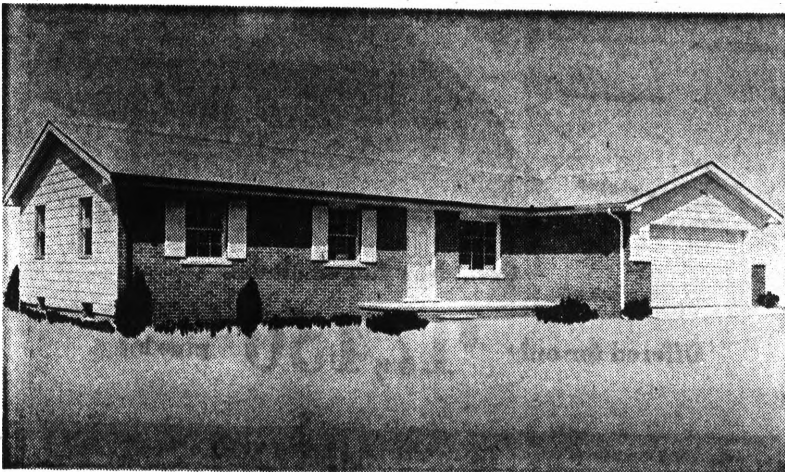

It's an excellent tool which can serve until you get a drill press and is especially valuable for all work that cannot be taken to your workbench.

If you're going to start making shelf molding or toys and ornaments, get a jig saw.

Urbanization Grows in the United States

The United States has rapidly become an "urbanized" nation—that is, most of its people now live in cities rather than in the country.

The tendency of people to move to cities will continue for some time, and it is resulting in some new forms of urban and suburban housing.

The basic problem, of course is land—its scarcity and cost. As the population of cities increases, it becomes necessary either to spread the city out farther and farther, or to house more people on smaller amounts of land.

Actually, both of these things have been happening. The suburbs have expanded mightily, and planners have devoted considerable effort to the devising of ways to "shape" suburbs and make them more attractive, comfortable, and efficient.

At the same time, architects have worked on ways to increase population density within the cities, without giving up the individual privileges of comfort and privacy.

MAJOR ROLE

In the development of these separate ideas, air conditioning has come to play a major role. Air conditioning makes it possible for dwellings to be built closer together, and without large openings to the outside.

This gives designers great flexibility in the planning of both suburban and urban housing.

In the countryside near our major cities, where designers are building new communities and "new towns," air conditioning helps make it possible for them to utilize a "mix" of housing.

Row houses, or town houses, are now common in the suburbs, and nearly all are air conditioned so that the lack of cross-ventilation is unimportant.

Suburban communities can also include highrise apartments, which are almost uniformly air conditioned. Reston, Va., a "new town" near Washington, D.C., has some single family housing, a great many "clusters" of town houses, and a high-rise apartment tower.

Inside our cities, air conditioning makes it possible for people to live comfortably and healthfully in dwelling units — both apartments and townhouses — that are largely closed in.

They can have few windows opening to the outside, and the result is that the occupants have a great deal of visual privacy.

The current trend toward

Yard Fountains Gain Popularity

A survey of families with small children revealed that 40 per cent of homemakers would like to have an outdoor drinking fountain.

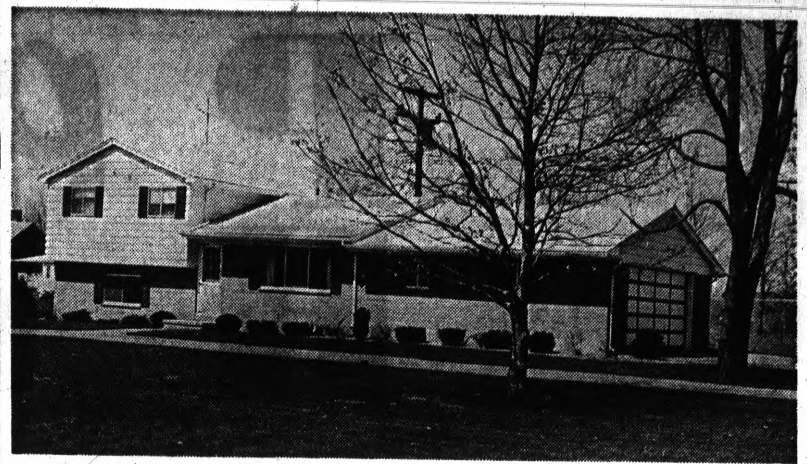

The reason most frequently given was that "it will keep children from running in and out of the house all summer."

"multi-family" housing — which includes row or town houses and apartments — is largely based on the need for new kinds of residences which answer the problem of land cost and human needs.

More than one-third of all new dwelling units built today in the United States are multi-family units, and in a few years this proportion may rise to almost half of all units built.

As multi-family housing increases, greater emphasis is likely to be placed on the design possibilities that air conditioning opens up.

It is certain that very few non-air-conditioned apartments are going to be built in the future.

Cleaning Needs Organization

Spring cleaning can be a lot more effective when it's turned into spring organizing, particularly in the kitchen.

Smart homemakers will give some attention to a utensil inventory, throwing out equipment which has lost its utility either through damage or obsolescence and organizing kitchen storage to keep cookware and small utensils where they're easy to reach.

Just a little organization will reap benefits of increased efficiency and lighter kitchen work loads throughout the year.

Utensils which have cracked, or have missing or broken handles should be discarded, for they can be accident and health hazards.

Old cookware can now be replaced with modern non-stick aluminum utensils, available in a wide range of attractive colors and finishes with the advancetages of even-heating aluminum and easy non-stick cleanup.

Small housewares items should be checked, too.

Just an extra set of measuring spoons or cups or range-top salt and pepper shakers can make recipe preparation simpler.

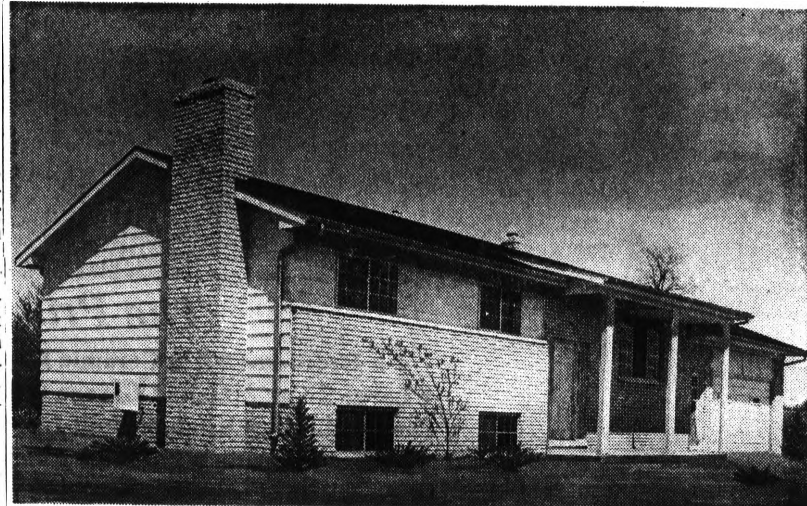

Pegboard storage is ideal for small aluminum items like molds, strainers, cups and spoons.

If spring starts in the kitchen in your home, the cook will have a happier summer, fall and winter.

Air Conditioning Real Necessity

Is home air conditioning a luxury or a necessity?

A poll conducted by Lou Harris for Newsweek showed that more than two out of three Americans consider it a necessity.

Minnesota Star Bids to Regain Glory of 1965

Versalles Swinging Less, Hitting More; Twins, Chisox Win

By the Associated Press

Zoilo Versalles is swinging less and hitting more these days, and he's off to a glittering start for the Minnesota Twins in a bid to recapture the glory of 1965.

Two years ago, Versalles was the toast of the pennant-winning Twins as he won the American League's Most Valuable Player award.

Last year, hampered by a sore arm and two leg injuries, he never got started and wound up hitting only .249 with seven home runs and 36 runs batted in. In 17 games this year, he's hitting .357, second high in the league. He leads the Twins with 11 runs batted in.

Friday night, Versalles collected four straight hits and drove in a pair of runs with a triple and a single to lead the Twins to a 5-2 victory over Boston.

It was Minnesota's third straight victory and lifted the Twins into a tie for eighth place with Cleveland after a miserable start.

NO RECORD

It wasn't a record for Versalles, who went 5-for-5 in 1961 against Washington and 4-for-4 in 1963 against Kansas City. But he thinks Friday night's 4-for-4 is more significant than those other two performances.

"Before, I would swing too hard," said the 26-year-old Cuban shortstop, now in his seventh full major league season. "This year, I'm waiting better, and I'm just meeting the ball—hitting it where it is pitched."

In other American League games, Chicago clung to a share of the league leadership by beating Cleveland 3-2 behind Tommy John's four-hit pitching. Detroit, tied with Chicago for first place, whipped Baltimore 4-0 and Washington stopped California 4-1. All were night games. New York at Kansas City was postponed because of rain.

Tommy Agee offered the key offensive support for John's four-hitter. John, a White Sox lefty, was in a 2-2 duel with the Indians' Steve Hargan when Agee started the winning rally with a one-out single in the ninth. He stole second and scored on Pete Ward's single. Agee also singled and scored the tying run in the fourth.

Camilo Pascual hurled a four-hitter and got home run support by Paul Casanova and Ken Harrelson in Washington's triumph over California.

Defending Champ Leading Tourney

ANN ARBOR (AP) — John Schroeder, with the feel of the home course, took a three-stroke lead at the halfway point in defense of his Northern Intercollegiate golf crown Friday.

He fired a par 70 in the opening round and held on for a 36-hole total of 149.

Purdue grabbed a one-stroke margin in the team division.

Schroeder blossomed to a 79 on the second 18 of the day, but most of the others at the top also had trouble with the pin placements the second time around.

Purdue's team score was 780, with the Schroeder-led Michigan squad a 781. Michigan State was next with 785, Ohio State had 786, Florida had 788 and Indiana 793.

Italy Advances in Davis Cup Zone Tourney

By United Press International The Soviet Union, Spain, France, South Africa, Denmark, Chile, Bulgaria and Poland today sought to join Italy in the second round of European Zone Davis Cup tennis competition.

Italy became the first nation to win its opening round series Friday when it took an unbeatable 3-0 lead over Austria.

Fifth-seeded South Africa held a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five series over the Netherlands and Russia, held a similar margin over West Germany while Spain, France, Denmark, Chile, Bulgaria and Poland held 2-0 advantages.

CASH 'FADES' AWAY — Detroit's Norm Cash (left) uses a well-executed fadeaway slide to evade the tag of Baltimore catcher Larry Haney to score the Tigers' initial run after a single by Mickey Lolich in the second inning Friday night. Right fielder Frank Robinson made the throw to Haney. The Bengals won, 4-0.

'Four Rs' Eye Golf Crown

Opponents are likely to get a lesson in the 'Four Rs' when Waterford's Skippers tee off in the 16th Annual Pontiac Press Invitational Golf Tournament.

The tourney is scheduled for May 22 at Pontiac Country Club.

Competing that day for team and individual honors will be 100 golfers representing 25 high schools.

Waterford has piled up a 14-2 golfing record to date, and it may just be that the Skippers will use the 'Four Rs' to wrest the title from Bloomfield Hills' Barons, who have won it four years straight.

The Skippers' 'Four Rs' are Randy Rieth, Randy Berry, Rod Skelton and Ray Tallerdar.

ALL NEAR PAR

They're all capable of shooting near par golf over the 6,305-yard PCC layout, and if they continue their present winning pace, they'll go into the tournament with the role of favorite.

Should the Skippers falter, there's another team in the township which could bag the title — Kettering.

Kettering owns a 9-1 record and has shown a lot of poise with Dan Larkin, Charles Patrick and Dave Moilanen leading the way.

Not to be counted out, however, is Bloomfield Hills.

The Barons will bring along one of the top golfers in the area in senior Bill Scott, who is among a handful of players likely to crack the tourney record of 70 held by Ron Holden (Hills '64) and Russ Streeter (Walled Lake '66).

Another player who'll probably be at the top or near the top is Russ Herron of Walled Lake.

CHANGE FORMAT

The Pontiac Press changed the format of the event slightly to accommodate more teams.

In previous years, the field was limited to 20, five-man squads. This year, that was changed to 25, four-man squads.

Joining the tournament for the first time this year will be Utica, Holly and Lake Orion. Royal Oak Dondoro and Royal Oak Kimball are returning after a year's absence, a year during which neither had a golf team.

Other teams in the tournament are:

Pontiac Northern, Waterford, Kettering, Rochester, Romeo, St. Frederick, Avondale, Clawson, Milford, Northville, Royal Oak Shrine, Clarkston, West Bloomfield, Pontiac Central, LaPeer, Oak Park, Bloomfield Hills, Southfield, Walled Lake and Orchard Lake St. Mary.

Captains Outlast Romeo in Tri-County Slugfest

Kettering and Romeo staged an 11-inning slugfest in their Tri-County League game yesterday and the Captains won the battle of home runs by scoring three runs in the 11th for a 9-6 verdict.

The Captains virtually assured themselves of at least a tie for the title with a 5-0 record, while Romeo now stands 2-3.

There were five home runs and a total of 10 extra-base hits in the game.

Dick Miceli was the big hitter for Kettering as he had 4 for 4 including a homer in the 5th inning and a double in the 10th.

In that big 11th frame, Pete Evans also homered to bring Miceli home.

In the third inning Jerry

Harkey hit a 3-run homer and in the second frame, Dan Giroux clouted a homer for one of his three hits.

For Romeo, Jim Micielli collected two hits including a homer in the third and Mike Semp had two hits including a first-inning home run.

Frank Perraino also had two Romeo hits.

NCAA Studies Grid Playoff

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association kicked around Friday the possibility of a collegiate football national championship playoff.

Study of such a plan was authorized by the NCAA's executive committee, which directed Marcus L. Plant, Michigan, to appoint a study committee to determine the merits of a post-season playoff.

Plant, president of the NCAA, said he would name a representative committee as soon as possible. However, the full NCAA convention must certify such a plan and, if approved, it could not go into operation until 1968.

Such a plan probably would involve eight teams in a three-week series ending in a nationally televised championship game.

Meanwhile, the policy-making council is expected to act upon code violations, including the case of the Illinois slush fund, before adjourning Sunday.

Lakers Continue to Rise

The Lakers continued to rise Friday while the Wolves finally had their run-making dampened in Wayne-Oakland League baseball action.

In a makeup of Thursday's rained out competition, Northville ended Clarkston's winning streak at seven with a 5-1 victory, Bloomfield Hills outlasted Holly, 10-8, and West Bloomfield rallied past Milford, 3-2.

The loss was the first for Clarkston and dropped it into a tie with Bloomfield Hills for first place at 6-1. Close behind are Northville and surprising West Bloomfield, both 5-2.

West Bloomfield's Lakers are enjoying their best season in several years as new coach Bill Mason continues to receive strong pitching from an inexperienced staff.

UPRISING

The Lakers trailed Milford, 2-0, entering the last of the fifth but two errors, a run-producing single by Bill Bullock, a walk and Jay Foukes' two-out, two-run basehit produced the tying and winning markers.

Mickey Ellwood held the Redskins (3-4), the perennial W-O leader, to three hits.

Northville's Bill Skelley limited Clarkston, playing with only three regulars because of its senior trip, to two hits. One of them was a solo homer by Jerry Ostrom that tied the score, 1-1, in the fifth.

But two key errors that led to three unearned runs, and the booming bat of catcher Doug Swiss (who had two doubles and a homer) provided the scoring punch that enabled the Mustangs to stay in the race.

Brian Parrott's bases-loaded triple in the fourth sparked Bloomfield Hills to a 10-3 lead at Holly and the Barons held on. Denny Walters had three of the losers' six hits. He was matched by Hills' Greg Walsh.

The Barons will entertain West Bloomfield in a key contest Monday.

Mike Lozano had two of the five St. Mike hits and had an RBI.

Goldstein was injured during a workout Thursday, Elbaum said, and doctors told him he would not be able to fight. He said Goldstein plans to fight Mathis sometime in June.

Unionville's well-balanced squad racked up 51 1-3 points in Class D. Flint St. Matthew had 42 and Posen 31.

Giants Knock Wills Out of Bucs' Lineup

By the Associated Press
Maury Wills was talking about his reunion with the Los Angeles Dodgers when someone asked him if he had any friends among the San Francisco Giants.

"No," replied one of the game's fiercest battlers. "Actually I don't believe I have any friends in this league. It's not any great hostility, but when I've got the uniform on it's every man for himself."

Less than 24 hours later, the Giants showed that Wills — in uniform at least — is no friend of theirs.

In the sixth inning of what turned out to be a 7-2 Pittsburgh victory Friday night, pitcher Ray Sadecki hit Wills on the right knee with a pitch and knocked him out of the front lines for at least several days and possibly a week.

"You can tell when a guy's trying to hit a man, and he was trying to hit Wills on the first pitch," Pirate Manager Harry Walker said after the game. "Wills has been hot. They know he's been hot so they were throwing at him."

DOOR CLOSED

The Giants' clubhouse door was closed so no one was available to give the San Francisco version of the sixth-inning incident that led to a seventh-inning incident.

South's two spade opening bid and he had shown up with four hearts.

East's double was all-purpose. He expected to set four spades but if West wanted to take out the double East could support any suit.

West left it in and opened the queen of hearts. East started by taking three heart tricks. When West discarded the deuce of clubs on the third heart East stopped to figure out the West and South hands.

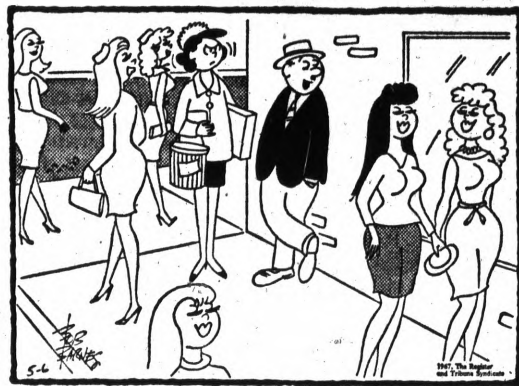

It wasn't hard to decide that South held exactly three cards in the minor suits. He needed six spades for his two spade of diamonds, enter dummy with a trump and lead a low club. If East rose with the ace, South would ruff, go back to dummy and lead a second club.

Where was the queen of diamonds? East knew. If West did not hold a diamond honor it would have been a cinch for West to discard a low diamond. Therefore, East led the eight of diamonds. West's queen forced dummy's ace and eventually East collected a trick in each minor suit.

South could play his queen

Ship Medical Supplies

Leaders Keep Members Informed

The Pontiac Missionaides are inaugurating a series of coffee hours and teas to bring members and friends up to date on the current events of the organization. The first of these affairs was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Allan Neville, 1093 Boston.

Mrs. William Bridge will open her home Tuesday.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Gertrude Anderson, executive secretary of the group, a shipment of 700 pounds of drugs and 300 pounds of medical supplies was shipped to St. Anne's in Chirala, India through Direct Relief Foundation in Santa Barbara, Calif.

The Missionaides will bear the expense (about $300 of the shipment).

FOUNDED IN 1960

Missionaides was founded in 1960 with five members. The group presently has a membership of 100. The first endeavor was rolling bandages and collecting medicine for shipment abroad.

The first real challenge, according to Mrs. Neville, came in the person of Greta Branker, a 14-year-old girl from Trinidad.

Through the help of her pastor, the Rev. Max Murphy, Greta was brought to the Missionaides in January 1961. She entered the Dominican Academy near Oxford where she finished high school in three years.

From there Greta went to Marygrove College for courses and is now finishing her junior year. After graduation she will return to Trinidad to teach school.

This was made possible through individual pledges, various projects and the assistance of Mother Lucille at the academy.

ORPHANAGE IN INDIA

The same year an orphanage was founded in Ongole, India and supported by Missionaides. At that time 30 boys ages 8 to 16 were housed at St. Anthony's. Now there are 100. All boys are eligible to enter regardless of their religion.

Funds to sustain the orphanage are realized through individual pledges of $5 for each boy, and various forms of fund raising.

The priest in charge of the orphanage was responsible for the founding of St. Anne's Hospital.

It all came about when several Swiss nuns were looking for a site to establish a dispensary for drugs and to administer aid to the needy in the area.

At that time only a shell of a building was standing. The nuns were encouraged to stay and the hospital progressed. Now the Sisters give medical attention to many each day — sometimes as many as 200.

Mrs. Neville said "This seems like a large order for so few of us but it is a labor of love and hence a happy one. The Missionaides is not a bustling group, just a steady one. Members are drawn from many parishes in the area, and from other communities."

The Missionaides House is located at 1030 Myrtle, Waterford Township. Mrs. Anderson, in residence there, would welcome a visit from anyone interested in the mission work.

ROLL BANDAGES—Mrs. Allan Neville of 1093 W. Boston and Mrs. Gertrude Anderson of 1130 Myrtle, both of Waterford Township, roll bandages during the tea this week of Pontiac Missionaides. The afternoon event was to bring members up to date on the current affairs of the organization. Bandages with other medical supplies will be sent to India.

Mrs. Faber's interest in church affairs began during a six-year stint as a Church School teacher in her parish, St. Michael's Episcopal Church, Grosse Pointe Woods.

'Place in Sun' Trial Finished

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Superior Court judge has taken under submission a $2-million damage suit filed by film director George Stevens against a television network for interrupting 33 commercial interruptions in his motion picture "A Place in the Sun."

Stevens contended the interruptions during the March 12, 1966, showing damaged his professional and personal reputation as a director.

During the eight-day trial which ended yesterday, Judge Ben Koenig viewed the film three times — as shown in theaters, on closed circuit television without commercials and as televised by the National Broadcasting Co.

NBC, Paramount Pictures Corp. and Paramount Television Productions Inc. are codefendants in the suit.

Stevens also sought a permanent injunction to prevent further "truncated" television showings of the film, which is based on the Theodore Dreiser novel "An American Tragedy."

The director won an Academy Award for the 1952 picture, which captured six Oscars. It starred the late Montgomery Clift and Elizabeth Taylor.

In Memoriam

IN LOVING MEMORY OF MY husband, Floyd L. Dauby, who passed away May 7, 1966. It broke my heart to lose you, but you did not go alone. For a part of me went with you. The day God called you home. God gave me strength to bear it. The courage to take the blow. But what if I meant to lose you. No one will ever know. When evening shadows are falling and I sit here all alone. To my heart there comes a longing. If you could just come home. Sadly missed by his wife, Minnie.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF MY mother, Jennie L. Nique, who passed away May 7, 1967. There's a sad but sweet remembrance. There is a memory fond and true; A love of affection Mother, And a heartache for you. Sadly missed by her daughter, Verna Miller.

Reflections

THINK NOT OF YOU

Think not of you but of your friend . . . Your neighbor and your kin . . . And asks to let him in . . . Seek not the opportunity, to murmur and complain . . . Nor feel compassion for yourself . . . When clouds unloose the rain. Remember Him who walked the earth . . . With mercy and with love.

Think not of you but of the world . . . And be divinely blest . . . With happiness and peace of soul . . . And true eternal rest.

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — Ralph Nader, the auto safety critic, has renewed his attack on the auto industry and urged professional engineers to become the "first line of defense" for the automotive buying public.

He called on the engineers to publicly evaluate safety features in cars because, he said, "The auto industry is obstinate as ever on improving safety despite their mouthings to the contrary."

In a news conference and speech Friday to 400 members of the New Jersey Society of Professional Engineers, Nader declared:

"The professional engineer is the primary custodian for the physical security of the American public because he understands what can be done for auto safety."

"It is time he got around to fulfilling that responsibility and becoming the first line of defense."

Nader offered the following assessments:

safe as American products."

—Volkswagen—"most dangerous car on the American road today."

—Rolls Royce—"one third car, one third publicity, one third oversold."

—Buick LeSabre—"atrocious braking deficiency."

—Declining auto sales—"the companies are now seriously considering the 'Nader factor' spotlighting safety defects as perhaps one reason for 20 per cent lower sales."

People in the News

By the Associated Press

Barry Sadler, the guitar-twanging singing sergeant who wrote "The Ballad of the Green Berets" and other songs which made him wealthy, leaves the Army at Ft. Bragg, N.C., for civilian life today.

Since his return to the United States three years ago after he stepped on an infected Vietnam spike in Vietnam, he has done recruiting work and other military-sponsored activity for which he received the Army Commendation Medal.

Staff Sgt. Sadler, 26; his wife, Lovona; and their 3-year-old son, Thor, are moving to California, where he will continue to write songs and oversee his New York-based music publishing corporation.

Sadler had been in the Air Force four years and in the Army since 1962.

Clubhouse Leaves Lawn of Governor's Mansion

It's Derby Day and young Ned Breathitt's clubhouse no longer graces the greensward in front of the executive mansion.

The clubhouse, a large rain-soaked wooden crate, had been placed on the neatly manicured grass by Gov. Edward T. Breathitt's 7-year-old son.

A state trooper, viewing the eyesore with its sign "Keep Out—Members Only," wondered what 1,000 Derby breakfast guests today would think.

Huddling with the lad he got permission to remove the structure temporarily, but had to promise it would be returned tomorrow.

First Mother's Day Present for Mrs. Humphrey

A paper flower basket from a retarded child is Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey's first Mother's Day present.

The wife of the vice president was given the basket yesterday by a young boy she stopped to play with while touring educational facilities for the retarded at Janesville, Wis.

"My first Mother's Day present," exclaimed Mrs. Humphrey, who is the grandmother of a 6-year-old retarded child.

MRS. HUMPHREY

Stowaway's First Day Is a Lonely One

Sandra Hilder spent her first full day in San Diego, Calif., yesterday—and she spent it alone.

Bernard (Bud) Brewer, 23, her American sailor sweetheart, had duty and was marching the cold decks of the Coast Guard icebreaker Glacier.

But Sandra, 20, the spunky Australian lass who tried to stow away in an admiral's cabin to get here, said she wasn't angry. "I'm tired," she said.

They met in March while Brewer's ship was in Sydney, Australia, and were reunited Thursday night.

Sympathetic Australian sailors provided her fare here after she was caught hiding aboard the U.S. Navy guided missile cruiser Long Beach when it was in Sydney.

President of Navy League Is Elected

Charles F. Duchain of Baton Rouge, La., had been elected president of the Navy League of the United States.

A major general in the Marine Corps Reserve, Duchain succeeds Morgan L. Fitch Jr., of Chicago.

The independent organization supporting the Navy and Marine Corps ended its 65th convention yesterday at Jacksonville, Fla.

Aircraft Model

Check Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Aviation Administration has ordered the inspection of the wing structure of all Beachcraft model 18 series aircraft with over 1,500 hours service.

The twin-engine, six-passenger plane is used mostly in private flying but some air taxi services also use it commercially. A Beachcraft model 18 crashed April 28 in Acworth, Ga., killing the pilot.

Advice for Husbands

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP)—Honored on her 100th birthday, Mrs. Jim Peters said husbands should "love your wife and whip her three times a day if she needs it."

The first iron factory in England was established in 1161.

Shock Voiced as NY Paper Folds

NEW YORK (AP) — The shutdown of the World Journal Tribune has brought expressions of shock and sorrow from members of the newspaper's staff and industry leaders.

The eight-month-old paper published its final editions Friday after announcing that union restrictions and harassment coupled with steady losses had forced it to quit.

us to this day is the intransigence of the unions," charged Matt Meyer, president of the afternoon and Sunday paper. He said losses were averaging $700,000 a month.

Union leaders — Bertram A. Powers, president of the Printers' Union local, and Thomas J. Murphy, executive vice president of the Newspaper Guild — suggested in turn that there might have been difficulties among the three owners.

Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, president and publisher of the New York Times, said the loss "filled me with shock and sorrow" and called it "a blow to our entire community, whose spirit and vitality need many voices, many opinions to reflect its own mixture."

Paul Miller, president of Gannett Newspapers and of the Associated Press, said he was "terribly saddened by the closing. I know they had many problems from the start and had hoped they could surmount them."

The newspaper was formed in a merger of three of the most famous names in American newspaper history — the New York Herald Tribune, the World-Telegram & the Sun and the Journal-American.

First published after a 140-day strike last year, the end came as a new round of New York newspaper contract negotiations was under way in which a pattern of a 21 per cent wage increase over three years had been set.

28 Cars Derail on GTW Freight

BELLEVUE (UPI) — Twenty-eight cars of a Grand Trunk Western freight train en route from Charlotte derailed here late yesterday, strewn wheels and other debris over a wide area and causing fear that a gas main had been ruptured in the accident.

After a two hour investigation, however, Consumers Power Co. officials said they found after the announcement was posted, there were some tears among the staff and some tense laughter.

Heart Surgery, Brain Ills Tied

DETROIT (UPI) — Northwestern University medical researchers said yesterday brain damage appears to be the cause of psychotic behavior in patients who have undergone major heart surgery.

In a paper read at the annual meeting of the Society of Biological Psychiatry here, the researchers said that there has been a puzzlingly high incidence of behavioral problems in such patients in the past several years.

Autopsies have revealed tiny areas of dead cells in the brains of patients who had shown bizarre behavior before death. Examinations showed that this behavior occurred only in the postoperative phase, the report said.

Studies that have been going on since 1954 indicate that 25 out of 40 patients suffered brain damage after open heart surgery in which the heart is exposed but not opened, the paper said.
