Wider Peace Talks Start Saturday

By The Associated Press

The United States and North Vietnam, with consent of their respective allies, announced in Paris today that expanded Vietnam peace talks will begin Saturday morning.

The long stall on expanded talks ends eight months after preliminary discussions got under way.

• The table will be flanked by two rectangular tables at opposite points 18 inches from the main table. The U.S. and South Vietnamese view the rectangular tables as a dividing line across the round table.

• There are to be no flags or name plates, a provision which avoids identification of the NLF as if its delegation represented a government instead of a revolutionary force.

• The speaking arrangements will be that each delegation on one side speaks in order and then each delegation on the other. If the United States speaks first, South Vietnam speaks second and then the two representatives on the other side speak.

FINAL LBJ ACHIEVEMENT

The three-point compromise which ended the deadlock is regarded in Washington as a final diplomatic achievement of the Johnson Administration in its efforts to end the Vietnam War.

A final effort by President Johnson to break the deadlock was revealed by government sources who said the new proposals have President-elect Nixon's personal support.

W. Averell Harriman, the U.S. ambassador retiring from the talks this weekend, said the solution represented no victory for any side.

'NOT A COMPROMISE'

"It was not suggested by any one person," he said. "It was not a compromise, but just a decision that all could agree to, and satisfactory to all the participants of the conference."

In Saigon today, Foreign Minister Tran Chanh Tranh insisted the talks will be in fact two-sided.

Johnson today hailed the agreement and said three lessons are to be learned from America's experience since he announced a cessation of the bombing of North Korea Oct. 31 and renounced another run for the presidency last March 31.

• "First," he said, "we must be clear and firm pursuing with our allies the limited but vital objectives we seek in Southeast Asia.

• "Second, we must be patient and face the hard fact that fighting is likely to continue as the negotiations are carried forward.

• "Third, we should be confident that an honorable peace is possible if we here at home remain steady."

But for some time it is expected the enlarged conference will deal with procedural matters before it gets down to talking about how to achieve peace in Vietnam.

The first meeting, at 10:30 a.m. — 4:30 a.m. EST — Saturday, will be held with four members of each delegation present, a total of 16, plus secretaries as needed.

The deputy heads of delegations will be present, since there are still procedural matters to be discussed. Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance will represent the United States, Col. Ha Van Lau the North Vietnamese, Nguyen Phong the South Vietnamese and Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh the NLF.

Vance and Lau reached the agreement after meetings of an hour and a half yesterday and one of a half-hour this morning.

The first session, at least, will be held in private. The United States said future meetings might be open to the press.

2 Red Spacemen Change Ships

The two space ships, Soyuz 4 and Soyuz 5, had linked up in orbit shortly before cosmonauts Yevgeny Khrunov and Alexei Yeliseyev made the transfer.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said they moved from Soyuz 5 to join Vladimir Shatalov in Soyuz 4, leaving Boris Volynov alone in Soyuz 5.

Radio Moscow said the two cosmonauts were outside the linked-up ships "about an hour."

NEW SUPPORT SYSTEM

Khrunov and Yeliseyev donned space suits just before the maneuver. Radio Moscow said the suits were equipped with a new life-support system.

Khrunov exited from Soyuz 5 and climbed aboard the companion ship above the territory of South America. Yeliseyev made his move over the Soviet Union.

★ ★ ★

"The condition of all cosmonauts is good," Radio Moscow said.

Moscow television showed a videotape of the two cosmonauts inside the orbiting ship preparing to make the transfer. Volynov helped Yeliseyev and Khrunov get into their suits.

'DON'T RUSH'

"Our condition is excellent," Volynov reported.

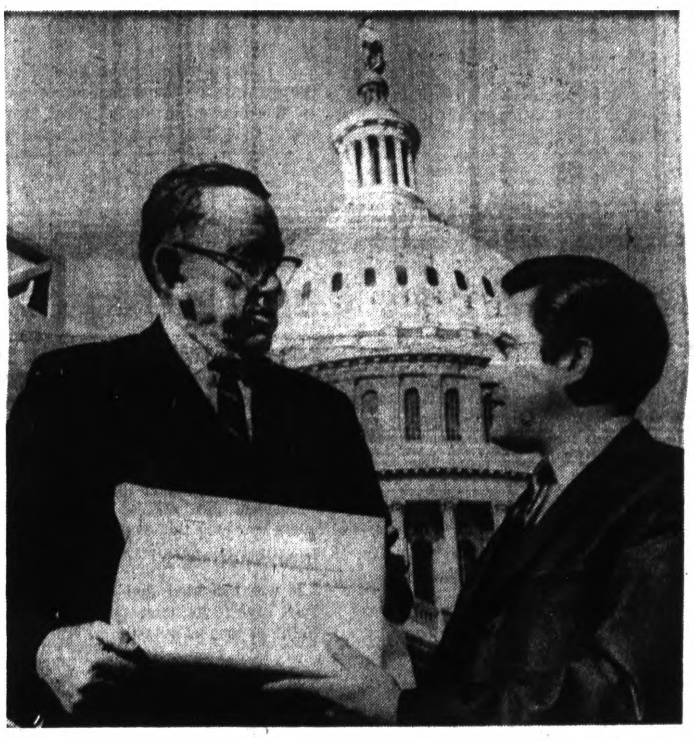
GOP Predicts Deficit in New Johnson Budget



AP Wirephoto

$195.3-BILLION PACKAGE — Presidential Secretary Ronald Geisler (right) delivers President Johnson's fiscal year 1970 budget to William M. Miller, doorkeeper of the House of Representatives. Delivery was yesterday, after Johnson signed the document.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans in Congress are complaining that the $195.3-billion spending budget submitted to Congress by President Johnson will produce a deficit instead of the surplus that Johnson claimed.

Democrats, meanwhile, indicated they will wait to see President-elect Nixon's legislative program before they act to put Johnson's proposals for full funding of welfare programs into effect.

Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said his fellow Republicans are waiting to "get the figuring straight" before pouncing on Johnson's contention that his budget would give Nixon a $3.4 billion surplus in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

But Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, a new member of the Senate Finance Committee, pinpointed the GOP's main objection. He said Johnson had counted as revenue surpluses being piled up in trust fund accounts for future Social Security and medicare benefits.

BORROWING NEED SEEN

"What really counts," Miller said, "is the regular operating accounts. If deficits occur in these, they must be covered by increased federal borrowing — the root cause of the inflation that has been sweeping the country.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., a Senate Armed Services Committee member, said the course of the Vietnam war will have a heavy influence on the ability of the new administration to operate in the black.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Johnson had taken "a courageous course" in recommending increased welfare spending, and "I hope that President Nixon will see the need for continuing programs to meet our domestic problems."

WAIT-AND-SEE

Kennedy, assistant Senate Democratic leader and a possible candidate for his party's 1972 presidential nomination, said he thinks most Democrats will want to see Nixon's program before drafting any alternative proposals.

"The responsibility lies with the President-elect to suggest action in a variety of fields," he said. "Hopefully there will be an early meeting of the Democratic Policy Committee to identify the areas in which the party ought to move to meet the needs."

★ ★ ★

"I am sure we will want to develop our own priorities but we must wait to see what Mr. Nixon proposes."

Junior Miss Activity Will Begin Tonight

Tomorrow the attractive and talented teen-agers will attend personal interviews and rehearsals for the talent performance scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. at Pontiac Northern High School auditorium.

Saturday at 8 p.m. the final judging will be held in the auditorium.

The girls will be judged on scholastic ability, individual interviews, poise and appearance, physical fitness and talent performance.

Judges are Fred McEvoy, associate director of admissions, University of Detroit; Caroline Roulier, executive secretary to the president of the University of Detroit; Frank Bollinger, director of public relations at Meadow Brook Theatre; Michael Pulte, buyer for the J. L. Hudson Co., Detroit; Patrice Gaunder, America's 1965 Junior Miss from Stevensville, Mich.; and Patrick J. Duggan, 1967-68 Michigan Jaycee president.

The winner of the state Junior Miss Pageant, sponsored by the Pontiac Area Jaycees, will receive a trip to the national finals in May in Mobile, Ala.

Other prizes include a $1,000 scholarship from the Coca-Cola Bottlers of Michigan, a $100 scholarship from the Community National Bank, a $500 savings bond from the Chevrolet Division and a $25 savings bond from the Pontiac State Bank.

Tickets for both evening performances may be purchased at the door or obtained in advance at Osmun's downtown and in the Tel-Huron Shopping Center and at the C. R. Haskill Studio, 1 University.

Report to LBJ Urges Action Plan

Postwar Recession Is Feared

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Cabinet-level report to President Johnson warns that the United States faces a possible recession when the Vietnam war ends, and urges that the government be ready with an action plan to stop it.

The report, sent to Congress today by the President, said the economy would be subjected to the same deflationary pressures that followed the Korean war.

While not predicting any date for an end to hostilities in Vietnam, the committee of top White House Advisers based estimates on an assumption that the transition to peace could be essentially completed by July 1, 1971 — in other words, the start of the 1972 fiscal year.

The report said that if the current 10 per cent income surtax is still in effect when the fighting ends, earlier phase-out of the tax could help offset any recession and promote healthy economic growth. It also urged that a detailed plan to speed up government spending on high priority projects be prepared now to cushion the impact of the transition from a war to peace economy.

SIGNATORIES

The report of the Cabinet committee, under preparation since March 1967, carried the signatures of Defense Secretary Clark Clifford, Treasury Secretary Joseph Barr, Commerce Secretary C. R. Smith, Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, Budget Director Charles J. Zwick and Chairman Arthur M. Okun of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Anticipating that the U.S. economy will be generating more than $1 trillion — one thousand billion — by 1972, the report said the cost of the Vietnam war has been a load for the U.S. economy to carry, and not a prop supporting it.

"Prosperity has not depended on the defense building and will not need high military spending to support it in peace time," the report said.

The amount available for federal "peace and growth" spending would amount to $22 billion by fiscal 1972 and would increase at the rate of $7 billion to $8 billion a year thereafter, once peace is restored, it estimated.

The report warned that peace could come in a number of ways. Hostilities might decline gradually, requiring reduced expenditures, or there could be a lengthy armed truce which would not permit a significant reduction of U.S. forces in Southeast Asia.

The United States now is spending $80 billion for defense. In the absence of peace, it was estimated that defense purchases would reach $86 billion after 18 months, and $90 billion after 30 months. But if a genuine peace is reached, the report estimated that defense purchases could be reduced to $73 billion by fiscal 1972.

Range of Prizes Wide at Cook School

Two gas ranges from Consumers Power Co. will be among the grand prizes at the 10th annual Pontiac Press Cooking School. The school begins Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Pontiac Central High School auditorium.

Consumers Power also is contributing a 40-gallon hot-water heater, a gas incinerator, a gas dryer and a gas outdoor barbecue.

★ ★ ★

Other grand prizes are a portable dishwasher from Coleman's Furniture Mart; a portable TV set from Hampton Electric Co.; a dinette set from House of Dinettes; a vacuum cleaner from Singer Sewing Center and a 14-cubic-foot refrigerator from Bill Petrusha & Sons.

One or more of these prizes will be given away at each of the six sessions, Monday through Thursday evening, and Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon.

Other prizes given daily include dinner tickets from Ted's Restaurant and Uncle John's Pancake House; cleaning certificates from Spencer's Floor Covering, Fox Cleaners and Gresham Cleaners; and a wig from Donnell's. Kmart store will give electric frypans and Peoples-Foodtown Stores will give Gold Bell gift stamps.

Atlas, L. S. and Tenuta Foodlands, Felice Quality Market and Richardson's Farm Dairy will provide food for bags of groceries to be given away daily.

Although there are no longer tickets available, any interested person may attend. All empty seats will be filled just before the sessions start. Everyone has an equal chance to win prizes, except for members of Pontiac Press employes' families.

LBJ Fiscal Report Stresses Advances, Warns of Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said today in his final economic report that he's leaving behind a solid foundation for continued prosperity, but he conceded that his successor will have to deal with major problems in the economy.

The President, in sending his report to Congress, said the United States has experienced an unprecedented period of prosperity in the last eight years, all under Democratic administrations. This has permitted, he said, major investments which should insure continued economic growth for the indefinite future.

★ ★ ★

To support Johnson's case, the economic report listed investments in:

● Industrial plant and equipment, which has grown by nearly a third in five years.

● Manpower, more than a million persons have acquired skills through government-aided programs.

● Education, which has seen a spectacular increase of 2.2 million in college enrollments since 1963.

● Urban centers which, the President said, are beginning to be restored "as decent places to live."

Johnson said, "The nation is now in its 95th month of continuous economic advance. Both in strength and length, this prosperity is without parallel in our history."

MAJOR PROBLEM

He insisted that this was caused in no small part by the failure of Congress to enact the 10 per cent income surtax in January 1967, when he first asked for it.

Johnson declared in his report that the job of combining national prosperity with price stability "is the biggest remaining over-all challenge facing the nation."

4 Bandits Rob City Drugstore

Four bandits escaped with an estimated $3,000 to $4,000 from cash registers and a safe of a Pontiac drugstore last night as they forced at gun point some of seven people in the store to lie on the floor.

After the four bandits entered Arrow Discount Pharmacy, 450 E. Pike, two stayed at the door and the others went to the back of the store where one of them reportedly pulled a pistol and ordered employe Robert Arnold, 42, to empty the cash registers and safe.

★ ★ ★

Arnold, another employe and a customer were then forced to lie on the floor behind a counter while the robbers ran out the door, Arnold told police.

The bandits prevented one customer from leaving the store and prevented a man from entering the store, witnesses told police.

7 IN STORE

There were four customers and three employes in the store at the time of the robbery at 6:30 p.m., police said.

Witnesses said one man escaped south on South Sanford and the other three went west on East Pike.

They said the robbers were Negroes about 19 to 21 years old.

One wore a black car coat and yellow or green head scarf and had pockmarks on his face, and another wore green slacks, a green jacket and a brown hat and sported a mustache.

The other two were only described as wearing dark clothing.

Divorce Is Granted to Mrs. DeLorean

The 14-year marriage of Pontiac Motor Division General Manager John Z. DeLorean, 44, ended yesterday with the granting of an uncontested divorce to his wife, Elizabeth, by Oakland County Circuit Judge Arthur E. Moore.

Mrs. DeLorean, charging cruelty in the suit filed March 7, 1968, will receive $375,000 over the next 15 years, whether she remarries or not. She also gets possession of the home at 31235 Bingham, Bingham Farms; title to 163 acres in Springfield Township; and $22,000 in attorney fees. There were no children.

Big Federal Pay Hikes Get Congress Rush

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is in the process of giving itself — and counterpart bigwigs in the executive branch — raises in pay.

Big raises. So big the guidelines of 5 per cent recommended by the White House for most workers look like peanuts.

★ ★ ★

Richard M. Nixon will get the biggest raise — a 100 per cent increase over the $100,000 Lyndon B. Johnson now makes.

The bill breezed through the House a few days ago and through the Senate yesterday.

LBJ DOES PART

★ ★ ★

There were five broad "levels" of increases. These included:

I. Cabinet officers, raised from $35,000 to $60,000. Persons affected—12.

II. Secretaries of the three branches of the armed forces, and head of the independent agencies, such as the Veterans Administration, raised from $30,000 to $42,500. Persons affected—41.

III. Undersecretaries, and chairmen of boards and commissions, such as the Civil Service Commission, raised from $29,500 to $40,000. Persons affected—60.

IV. Assistant secretaries, chief legal officers of the departments, under secretaries of the armed forces, and members of boards and commissions, raised from $28,750 to $38,000. Persons affected—225.

V. Heads of some major bureaus and the counsels for the armed forces, such as the Bureau of the Customs, from $28,000 to $36,000. Persons affected—178.

Bloomfield Twp. Executive Elected to CNB Board Post

Robert C. Fisher of 580 E. Long Lake, Bloomfield Township, has been elected to the board of directors of Community National Bank, A. C. Girard, chairman of the board of directors, announced today.

ROBERT C. FISHER

Girard also announced the promotion of eight other bank employes.

Gerald E. Zubalik of 781 Globe, Pontiac, was promoted to vice president. He has served in the installment loan and mortgage departments, and, since 1957, has been manager of the Perry Street office. He has been with the bank since 1947.

ZUBALIK

DONALSON

The following were promoted to assistant vice president:

● Daryl L. Donalson of 2275 Kohler, Waterford Township. He joined the bank in 1956 and was promoted to assistant building manager in 1964. Currently, he is assistant vice president in charge of bank properties and purchasing.

● L. Jay Clark of 4563 Kempf, Waterford Township. He has had various assignments in the installment loan department. He is now in charge of customer service at the main office.

● Harvey Gammage of 1938 Denby, Waterford Township. He joined the bank in 1960, and is currently assistant vice president, mortgage division.

CLARK

GAMMAGE

● Harry Richards of 36127 Suffolk, Clinton Township. He joined the bank staff in 1965 as personnel director. Formerly, he was the head of the personnel department for City National Bank in Detroit.

RICHARDS

BENNETT

Promoted to the position of assistant cashier were:

● Harry C. Bennett of 3036 Nanwich, Waterford Township. Currently he is the manager of the Woodward office. He has been with the bank since 1964.

● Mrs. Marion Craft of 94 Riviera, Pontiac. She has been with the bank since its establishment in 1933 and previously worked the loan and discount department. She was the supervisor of the bond department since 1942.

MRS. CRAFT

MRS. MOORE

● Mrs. Neulla Moore of 136 Randell, Pontiac. She joined the bank in 1943 as a teller and has held supervisory positions both in the bulk receiving and teller training departments. Currently, she is in the operations department.

Birmingham Area

Fire Dept.'s Aid Sought for 2 Subdivisions

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — This township's fire department has been asked by West Bloomfield Township officials to provide fire protection for the Sylvan Manor and Hammond Lake subdivisions in West Bloomfield. West Bloomfield recently sold a fire station serving that area to Keego Harbor for the new Tri-City Fire Department serving Sylvan Lake, Orchard Lake and Keego Harbor.

The Township Board has given the fire department authorization to secure estimates on the cost of fire protection for the two subdivisions.

The board also approved the low bid purchases of two GMC pickup trucks at $2,164 each from the General Motors Corp. branch sales office in Pontiac; a Ford station wagon at $2,835; two Ford patrol cars at $2,380 each and a Ford van at $2,650, all from John McAuliffe Ford Inc. of Pontiac. There were five bidders.

In other business, the first hearing on the proposed extension of Valley Spring Road was held. No objections were voiced at the hearing. Assessments will be established at the second hearing, March 10. The proposed extension of Valley Spring is between Inkster and Franklin on the south side of Maple.

A concert by the Contemporary Jazz Quintet has been scheduled for Sunday at 5 p.m. in the Galleries of Cranbrook Academy of Art. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students. Members will be admitted free.

BIRMINGHAM — A public hearing on the vacation of an alley between Redding and Quarton, behind businesses on the west side of Woodward, will be held Jan. 29. The city planning board scheduled the 8 p.m. meeting, which will be at city hall, last night.

Some businesses backing the alley have requested that the city vacate the alley and turn it back to private property for their use.

The board also discussed creating guidelines for an architectural review committee. This would include reviewing plans for new commercial and multiple buildings in an attempt to coordinate each building with those around it.

26th Sailor Missing

Navy Probes Carrier Tragedy

PEARL HARBOR (AP) — The U.S. Navy carried on with cleanup operations aboard the nuclear aircraft carrier Enterprise today as investigators sought to pin down the cause of explosions and fire which killed 25 crewmen and injured 85.

A 26th sailor was missing in the disaster which struck the 85,000-ton warship on a training exercise 75 miles southwest of Honolulu Tuesday.

Related Story, Pictures, Pages A-5, A-11

Adm. John J. Hyland, commander of the Pacific fleet, said he was "confident that we are going to be able to establish exactly what did happen and what caused it."

★ ★ ★

The explosions and fire put the Enterprise, world's largest combat vessel, out of action until repairs are completed. No official source would guess how long this would take.

HOMEWARD TRIP

It was indicated that the ship would start back to its home port of Alameda, Calif., as soon as possible.

★ ★ ★

In Honolulu's Tripler Army Hospital, 58 injured crewmen were still under treatment, four in serious condition. Another nine were flown to a special burns treatment center at Brooke Army Hospital in Texas.

★ ★ ★

Gutted aircraft and other debris littered the carrier's flight deck, but Cmdr. Samuel B. Lancaster, public affairs officer of the Enterprise, said a cleanup would be completed "in a couple more days."

Supervisors Get Alternative Plan

Republican county supervisors obtained the 14 votes needed to place an alternate plan for committee chairmanships before the Oakland County Board of Supervisors this morning, in an alliance with two dissident Democrats.

★ ★ ★

The plan would name five Republicans as chairmen in a 12-committee setup under a proposed Democratic party plan for the reorganized board.

★ ★ ★

Democrats dominate the new board which took office Jan. 1, by a 15-to-12 margin. In this morning's maneuvering, the 12 minority party members were joined by Democrats George Grba and Carl O'Brien, both of Pontiac.

O'Brien has taken the position that the southern part of the county, strongly Democratic, is dominating the new board.

★ ★ ★

The new proposal calls for Grba to get the finance committee chairmanship. The Democratic plan did not include this. O'Brien would get the legislative committee chairmanship and a finance committee seat.

At noon today the Republicans had not been able to win adoption of the plan.

been able to win adoption of the plan noon with debate on the makeup of the committees involved.

Romney: Biggest Mistake Was Speaking Out

LANSING (UPI) — Gov. George W. Romney says he considers the biggest mistake of his six years in office was speaking out on controversial issues when he should have kept quiet.

He gave this appraisal yesterday afternoon in his last news conference as governor of Michigan. He vowed not to make the same error as U. S. secretary of housing and urban developlent.

"I've been very accommodating with the people of the press, radio and television . . . and that's been my main problem all along," said Romney.

"I've answered questions as I've gotten off planes . . . I've gone for radio interviews when I didn't have time to gather my thoughts . . . I just went too far in that respect."

BRAINWASH REMARK

Romney did not say so directly but he obviously was thinking about perhaps the most political damaging extemporaneous remark of his career — that he'd been "brainwashed" on the Vietnam war.

The impromptu statement was made Sept. 2, 1967, during an interview on a Detroit television station. It has been credited with ruining Romney's chances for a shot at the presidency.

Romney told the 50 reporters attending his farewell news conference in the State Capitol that he'll be more careful in the future.

TO BE MORE CAUTIOUS

For one thing, he said, he won't be so quick to react when a Washington newsman asks for an "off-the-cuff" comment on federal developments.

"I'd be a foolish individual if I hadn't learned someting in my relationships with the press," Romney said.

★ ★ ★

"I've learned that every time someone runs up and sticks a microphone in my face and asks me a question that I ought to discuss with all the press, I'm not going to discuss it with an individual commentator—I'm going to wait until I have an opportunity to discuss it generally."

★ ★ ★

As HUD secretary, Romney said he views his biggest problem as shaping public attitudes to believe America's urban malaise can be solved.

'UNLIMITED CHALLENGES'

"What people think is much more important than what they do," he said.

He said the Cabinet post offers "unlimited challenges to meet the needs of this country." No other job in the new administration, he added, is more "exciting and meaningful."

Romney continued: "The deeper I get into my new responsibilities, the more my enthusiasm grows. I'm chafing at the bit to get going and get something done."

★ ★ ★

Romney said he had not had a chance to "properly scrutinize" the new HUD budget but that he's hopeful the Nixon administration can "make some meaningful advances," with the assistance of private industry, to ease unemployment and housing problems in the nation's ghettos.

Political Berth Dates From Birth

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Roy Chapman, Fannin County ordinary for more than 20 years, was testifying Wednesday before the Georgia House Rules Committee in connection with charges of election irregularities.

★ ★ ★

Attorney Freeman Leverett asked him if he were a Republican by "political persuasion."

Chapman replied solemnly, "By birth."

700-Acre Hunt Club in Addison Twp. Is Bought by County for a Sports Site

By JEAN SAILE

The 700-acre Tudor Hills Hunt Club, the former Buhl Estate in Addison Township has been acquired by the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission as a year-round sports site.

Kenneth L. Van Natta, commission director, said the property was purchased for $657,500 from owners Robert P. Sauer and Bernard Girard, Pontiac attorneys.

The estate figured prominently in the divorce settlement between Dr. Daniel J. Boucher of West Bloomfield Township and his slain wife, Blanche. Boucher reportedly had purchased the property, including a large Tudor home, from the Buhl estate in 1965. He ran it as a hunt club.

★ ★ ★

Boucher is accused of killing his wife and 7-year-old son on Oct. 16. He is being held without bond in the Oakland County Jail on a charge of first-degree murder. The property wound up in receivership and was purchased by the Pontiac legal firm at a court-appointed sale.

MANY ASSETS

Seven miles north of Rochester on West Romeo Road between Walker and Lake George roads, the estate includes a caretaker's home, a farm house, workshop, garage, kennels, outdoor swimming pool, skeet ranges and tennis courts.

The buildings are on rolling scenic land containing two small lakes and a number of artesian wells.

Purchase of the land is being accomplished with the quarter-mill tax voted by residents in November, 1966, for parks and recreation, Van Natta said.

★ ★ ★

He also had hopes of getting a matching federal grant for the purchase.

The Buhl Estate purchase brings to five the number of parks acquired with the voted millage. The chain involves 1,600 acres.

With the latest purchase, Van Natta noted that the commission's first five-year acquisition period or first phase of the program has now been compiled, some three years ahead of schedule.

"The 1,600 acres has cost slightly over $2 million," Van Natta said. He added that if the commission had adhered to its original schedule, the same land would have easily cost $5 million.

"This estimate," he said, "is based on the last two years of land price escalation and the unavailability of desirable property in the county."

Septic-System Leak Is Hunted in Pontiac Twp.

PONTIAC TOWNSHIP — Septic systems along Henrydale Street will be tested with dye soon in an effort to solve drainage problems in the area, according to Supervisor Roy Wahl.

Wahl said yesterday that all property owners in the problem area had given permission for the dye marking, which is being undertaken in the hopes of tracing the source of sewage entering the drainage system.

A combination of contamination and a clogged drain near Henrydale has resulted in effluent resting in an open ditch along the street.

However, the supervisor explained, the clogged drain cannot be cleaned without the sewage flowing into a main drain line running along South Boulevard.

PRACTICE NOW ILLEGAL

Some years ago, the standard practice in construction was to allow sewer and storm water to drain in the same lines. Today, however, the practice is illegal.

The emptying of a residential septic system into the drain did not become apparent until employes of the Oakland County Road Commission, in an attempt to improve drainage of a low spot near Henrydale and Squirrel, dug the new open ditch along Henrydale.

When the source of the contamination is found, Wahl said, township crews will clear the drain line.

The supervisor added, however, that he will continue to seek improvements to the Henrydale ditch, which he says is a hazard to traffic along the narrow street.

FOUR FEET DEEP

"That ditch is four feet deep down toward the end of the street, and on a morning when it's icy, it would be very easy for somebody to go over the edge," Wahl commented.

Birth Rate Down, Other Figures Up

Oakland County people married more, divorced more and died more, but had fewer babies, last year than they did in 1967.

Mrs. Leta Weir, supervisor of the vital statistics section of the County Clerk's office, listed 15,102 births, 5,966 deaths, 7,793 marriages and 2,792 divorces in the year just completed.

The figures compare to 15,307 births, 5,521 deaths, 6,895 marriages and 2,683 divorces in 1967.

"A growing population accounts for the increased marriages, deaths and divorces," Mrs. Weir says.

Insurance Benefits for Firemen Hiked

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — Changes in the township volunteer fireman accident policy have been authorized by the Township Board.

Now, families of volunteer firemen will receive $10,000 for accidential death or a weekly indemnity of $50 in event of disability due to an accident. Formerly, $3,000 was paid in an accidental death and the weekly indemnity in disability cases was $25. The annual premium, which was formerly $183, will now be $387.

A public hearing on road improvements in Kimberly subdivision has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Feb. 10 in the township hall.

Contracts for water mains in two special assessment districts were awarded to low bidder John Wyke Inc. The bid for work in Coventry subdivision was $14,647, while the bid for work in Fairgreen Hills and Golf Lake Hills subdivisions was $30,464.

A new section of a zoning ordinance allowing planned office service districts has also been adopted by the board. The district allows offices performing administrative, professional and personal services and businesses whose main operating hours do not generally coincide with those of a normal office.

In other recent action, the board has rezoned the south side of Shiawassee on Middle Belt and the west side of Farmington between Bostwick and Longwood from residential to office.

Lake Weed Control Hearing Set

WOLVERINE LAKE — Seaweed control in Wolverine Lake will be discussed at a public hearing Jan. 30. The Village Council's committee on weed control, an official from the State Department of Natural Resources and spokesmen from various weed control companies will speak at the 8 p.m. meeting at Walled Lake High School.

Two areas on the lake are to be made skating arenas, with sections for hockey and for figure skating, village council has decided.

A lake site near the public fishing grounds off Glengary and another by the intersection of Shankin and Newport Court, were designated for the skating rinks.

The council also authorized raising the minimum fee for an electrical permit from $4 to $5.

A snowmobile ordinance, conforming with state law, which lists regulations for the vehicles, was adopted by the village council. It becomes effective immediately.

Man on Probation for Cruelty to Child

A Troy man was placed on two years probation yesterday for child cruelty in connection with the scalding of his 6-year-old stepson.

The sentencing of Howard Daniels, 43, of 1153 E. Maple had been delayed for nearly a year so his behavior during that time could be reviewed by Circuit Judge William J. Beer.

★ ★ ★

Daniels was arrested by Troy police in August 1967 and accused of severely burning the youngster, Dougall McGorgoudale, by making him place his feet in hot bath water.

★ ★ ★

Vice President Quits Brandon School Board

BRANDON TOWNSHIP — Leslie Wright, 47, of 2600 Seymour Lake, a vice president and nine-year member of the township's board of education, has submitted his resignation to the board.

He will be replaced by Dr. Paul Schoen of 545 Jossman who will serve the balance of the school year. Dr. Schoen served a four-year term on the board from 1961 to 1967.

★ ★ ★

Wright is relocating to Mount Pleasant, where he will study at Central Michigan University.

Troy to Air Condemnation, Operation of Golf Course

TROY — The City Commission is planning to discuss possible condemnation of Sylvan Glen Golf Course, 5725 Rochester, and subsequent operation of the 18-hole facility as a municipal course.

Mayor Jule R. Famularo revealed the commission's thoughts as commissioners voted to split the cost of removal of a controversial embankment at the south end of the course with the Jim Robbins Co., which operates Sylvan Glen.

The Robbins Co., which owns and operates several other enterprises in the area, announced sale of the course to a pair of Detroit developers last month at a reported price of $3 million.

At that time commissioners discussed the sale and the possibility of condemnation by the city. Other city governments, notably that of Clawson, have been asked by residents to consider petitioning Oakland County to condemn and operate the course.

SUPPORTS PLAN

Famularo made his remarks in support of the plan to share cost of the embankment's removal, noting that if the golf course should be condemned, the city would have to pay the entire cost of removal anyway.

The dike, which city officials estimate contains about 20,000 cubic feet of earth, has been the focus of a running feud between the city and the Robbins Co. since 1965, when the company began excavation in the area.

★ ★ ★

After the excavation started, the city engineering department reported drainage troubles, and residents near the embankment complained that their yards were being flooded.

★ ★ ★

The commission submitted plans to the company for a proper drainage system, and subsequently, in April 1967, passed an ordinance requiring a permit for grading of private property.

FOLLOWED BY COURT CASE

The ordinance was followed by a court case against the company and negotiations resulting in the present settlement.

Under the agreement, work will begin on the project by Monday, with completion scheduled by April 15.

The commission approved the compromise by a 4-2 vote, with Commissioners Ben S. Jones and David E. Gratopp opposed.

In other business, the commission approved a ballot proposition on the question of commissioners' salaries.

To be voted on in the April 1 municipal election, the proposition would, if approved, amend the city's charter to establish a five-man committee to study salaries and expense allowances for the commission.

At present, commissioners receive $10 a meeting, with a maximum of $600 per year.

Orion Youth Gets U-M Writing Prize

Michael G. Roberts of 3738 Gregory, Orion Township, received a creative writing award yesterday at the University of Michigan.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Roberts, he is a sophomore in the university's residential college. He was given a $50 award for his poem, "Of My Inner Own."

Roberts graduated from Waterford Kettering High School.

The Hopwood Awards, in the categories of essay, fiction and poetry, were made possible by the late playwright Avery Hopwood, a U-M alumnus. Hopwood left the university money to recognize "the best creative work" in writing by students.

Edison Service Renewal Faces April Utica Vote

UTICA—Council has authorized a vote on a franchise renewal for Detroit Edison. The question will be placed on the ballot for the regular city election in April. The franchise is renewable every 30 years.

Council also authorized seeking a loan of $28,000 from the State Bank of Frazier for purchase of a fire truck. The loan will be repaid at a rate of four per cent over ten years.

Council has also:

- Adopted new plumbing permit fees, effective Feb. 1.
- Appointed Henry Steil, 45521 Custer, to the Municipal Building Authority. The term runs through May 1971. He replaces Joseph Francis, who is moving out of the area because of a job transfer.

'68 Road Deaths 2 Less in County

Oakland County registered two less traffic deaths last year than in 1967, reports the county's Traffic Improvement Association (TIA) The county ended 1968 with 161 traffic deaths, the lowest toll since 1963.

There was a sharp decrease in county fatalities in December when 13 died, as compared with 22 in the same month in 1967.

Oakland County's lower death toll in 1968 came in a year which saw an estimated 5 per cent increase in the number of vehicle miles traveled in the county.

REVERSAL

The improvement also was a reversal of strong statewide and national trends. Michigan's 2,351 traffic deaths last year were the highest in its history, up 10 per cent over 1967, while the nation had a 5½ per cent increase for the same period.

★ ★ ★

TIA officials attributed the Oakland County performance to no single cause but to the cumulative effort. The result of increased training for personnel having enforcement and engineering responsibilities, an increase in the number of driver safety schools, an improvement in high school driver education, and better coordination of all agencies engaged in traffic safety operations.

Device Reduces Injuries—GM

Two General Motors engineers today said that statistical samplings of 1,100 front-end impact automobile accident cases verified that the energy-absorbing steering column is reducing drivers' torso injuries.

Louis C. Lundstrom, director of GM automotive safety engineering, and William G. Cichowski, staff engineer of GM Proving Ground in Milford, also told the Society of Automotive Engineers annual meeting in Detroit that the probability of a driver in a car so equipped suffering a minor or nondangerous injury was reduced 26 per cent. The probability of receiving no injury was increased by 10 per cent.

"Thus," they reported, "the column design is successfully reducing the number of driver fatalities in forward impacts and is reducing injuries in less severe accidents."

"It should be emphasized," they concluded, "that the column is capable of absorbing only the forward component of the driver's kinetic energy. It cannot be expected to reduce injuries in those collisions in which the vehicle is struck in the side or rear.

SPECIFIC IMPACT

"The energy-absorbing steering column appears to be of benefit in reducing injuries in many oblique front collisions where a major portion of the impact is in the forward direction . . ."

The engineers reported their study was based on a GM-developed accident investigation system. The first element in the system was a group of Motors Insurance Corp. adjusters who recorded accidents throughout the United States, involving collision losses on a special accident report form.

This special form enables the second element of the system — computer storage and subsequent processing — to function. An analysis group at the GM Proving Ground codes data from the forms and places the information in the computer.

The analysis group also uses information from police and medical reports, together with color slides, to help obtain an accurate and fairly detailed account of each accident.

The GM survey of the steering column effectiveness contained information on about 3,000 randomly selected accident cases involving 1968 model year GM vehicles. Of these, 1,1000 involved frontal vehicle damage, 20 per cent — or 222 — included steering wheel damage, steering column collapse or driver injury.

The survey data were compared with cases from Cornell University's Aeronautical Laboratory's Automotive Crash Injury Research on accidents involving older cars without EA columns.

The GM survey also revealed that (1) seat belts decrease both probability and severity of driver torso injuries and (2) the design level chosen for the energy-absorbing column components is as close to optimum as could be expected.

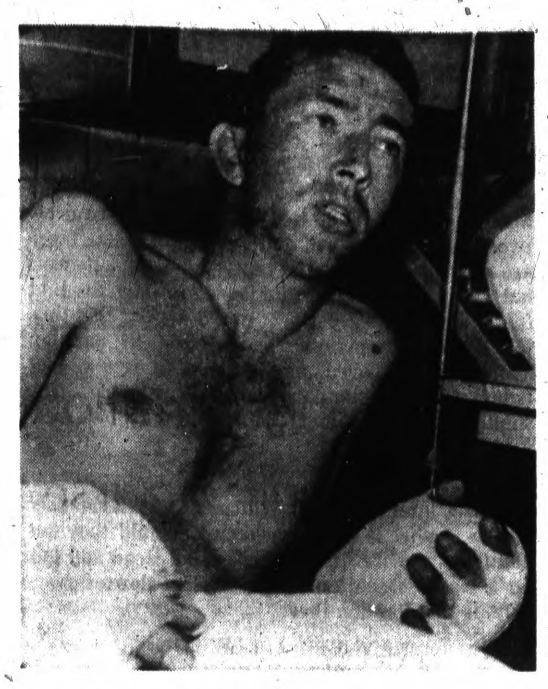
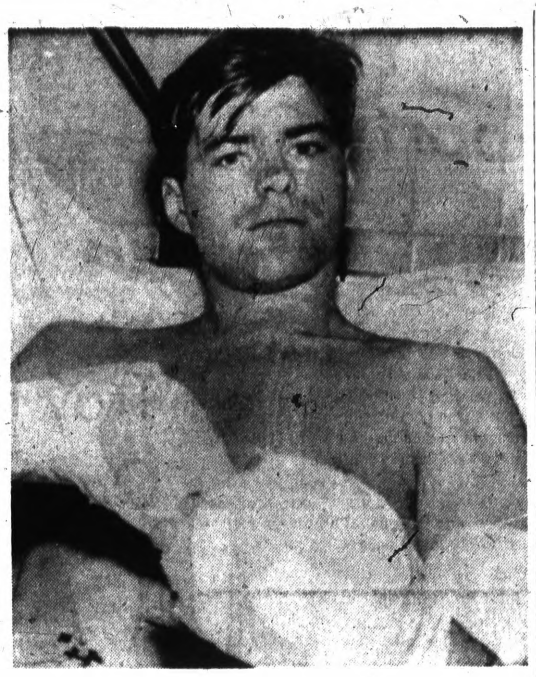
FUTURE LIBRARY—Construction is under way and scheduled for completion in July on Independence Township's new $100,000 library, located just outside the Clarkston village limits on Clarkston Road. Financed by a subscription drive and a federal grant, the facility will have space for 30,000 volumes.



FLIGHT DECK SURVIVOR—Enterprise crew member Thomas H. Parker, 30, of Green Spring Cove, Fla., tells what happened on the flight deck of the carrier as it was hit by fire and a series of explosions in the Pacific Tuesday. He is in an Army hospital in Honolulu.



'FIRE EVERYWHERE'—Airman Larry Henning of Britton was one of three Michigan sailors injured in the Enterprise fire. From his bed in a Honolulu Army hospital, he told newsmen, "My hands were on fire. There was fire everywhere.". The tragedy came during maneuvers.

Suggestion for New County Board

Now that we have a new County Board of Supervisors composed of 27 members rather than the old 87-member board, maybe we can look forward to some constructive changes in thinking, with resultant changes in the spending of taxpayers' dollars.

It seems a gross incongruity after a year of pouring money into the state income tax and seeing it returned to city and county governments for local use, that we are still surrounded by problems crying for a solution.

For example, the lack of funds to cope with our deteriorating county roads.

We hope the newly sworn-in board will take a longer look at the road situation than their predecessors. Oakland is one of Michigan's richest counties. The county budget annually seems to show a fat surplus, which likewise is annually spent largely on a new set of ivory towers.

It has long been the habit of our supervisors to treat the Oakland County Road Commission as a distant cousin—very distant.

We realize that some legislation at the state level would be necessary before the autonomy of the road commission could be overcome, but no such legislative act is necessary for the county to devote some tax revenues to county road problems.

Unfortunately, the new board has been stuck by the former board with spending some $2 million in budget surplus for more ivory towers.

Ten years ago we needed some new buildings for county government and our circuit courts, and we needed more county road improvements.

Today we have gone a long way toward satisfying those needs for new county facilities, but our road needs have tripled and quadrupled. We may well be in a position where we will NEVER be able to catch up with our road needs — but that should not deter us from trying.

The day has come when supervisors must recognize they are thriving amidst budget surpluses and new buildings, while many of our county roads are turning to dust. Hopefully, our new board will awaken to the needs of the public outside the Oakland County Service Center.

'. . . But Keep It Handy!'

Science Denies Reality of UFOs

Dreams are more real than reality, say philosophers.

ORVILLE WRIGHT, long years after he had seen airplanes become an everyday thing, when the Atlantic had been turned into a puddle that was flown across routinely, wrote that what he remembered best was simply lying in bed at night as a young man, trying to imagine what it would possibly be like to fly through the air.

Men no longer dream about flying, or even about what it would be like to soar into space beyond the earth to another celestial body. It has happened.

Yet "One night after I came back," said James Lovell of the Apollo 8 crew, "I stepped into my back yard, looked up at the moon and couldn't believe I'd been there."

We now know that the moon is not made of green cheese, or if it is cheese, that it is of a gray and unappetizing kind.

"The moon is so cold and lifeless," added LOVELL, "that I'm curious how all the songwriters could refer to it in such romantic terms."

Even the stars are unimpressive from the vantage point of space. They don't twinkle as they do when seen from the earth. "They're either there or they're not," said Astronaut WILLIAM ANDERS.

★ ★ ★

No one, of course, expected to find life on the moon. No one expects to find any on any of the other planets that men will eventually visit, except possibly some elementary forms on Mars. And you can't communicate with a lichen.

The Earth is indeed an oasis in space, as LOVELL described it, and the only one, at least in our solar system.

Nonetheless, UFOlogists have vehemently attacked the two-year University of Colorado study which found "no evidence supporting the claim that any UFOs represent spacecraft visiting Earth from another civilization."

David Lawrence Says:

Economic Policy Changes Due

WASHINGTON — Despite all the optimistic comments about the economic situation in America made by President Johnson in his valedictory to Congress, the nation is face to face with a realistic change in policy making as a contrast is presented between the theorists who have been counseling the chief executive for the last five years and the pragmatists who will advise the Nixon administration.

LAWRENCE

Johnson, in his economic report, described the situation as follows:

"We stand at a critical turning point for national policy. We can meet the challenge, or we can try to evade it.

"Price stability could be restored unwisely by an overdose of fiscal and monetary restraint. This has been done before, and it would work again.

"But such a course would mean stumbling into recession and slack, losing precious billions of dollars of output, suffering rising unemployment, with growing distress and unrest. It would be a prescription for social disaster as well as for unconscionable waste.

"Or we could conceivably travel the route to mandatory controls on prices and wages. But the vital guiding mechanism of a free economy is lost when the government fixes prices and wages.

"We did not impose such regulations on our businessmen and our workers during the recent years of military buildup and hostilities. We surely must not turn down this path — a dead end for economic freedom and progress."

Johnson overlooked the fact that in World War I, World War II, and during the Korean War, wage-and-price controls were imposed without any lasting effects.

The President repeated the argument he has often made in the past when he said that "Both in their own interest and in the public interest, business and labor should exercise the utmost restraint in price and wage decisions."

But this formula of "voluntary cooperation" hasn't worked heretofore because there are factors which are beyond the control of a particular industry or the labor unions with which it deals.

The outgoing administration speaks of the present condition of the economy as "prosperity," but inflation is something that looks like a boom but is really artificial and unsound.

The facts of life today are presented in a statement by Sen. Wallace F. Bennett of Utah, a Republican and former president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. He says:

"We should not forget that history will show the Johnson administration contributed some $45 billion to the country's national debt.

"The frightening thing to me about the budget is that it took the country almost 200 years to reach a $100-billion spending level, yet in the last five years alone we have gone from $100 billion to $200 billion.

Bob Considine Says:

Leaders, Not Pilots, Aim of the Air Force Academy

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — What an incredible place this is. But why was it anchored here?

CONSIDINE

Well, a presidential committee appointed by Dwight Eisenhower looked at sites in more than 20 states before yielding to this one. The academy's complex sits on a mesa that averages 7,200 feet above sea level. The altitudes of the vast campus range from 6,340 to 8,040 feet. The air, as Adolphe Menjou used to say, blowing a kiss at the sky, is "like May wine."

★ ★ ★

They are here for another purpose. "The Air Force Academy provides instruction, experience, and motivation to each cadet so that he will graduate with the knowledge, character, and qualities of leadership essential to his progressive development as a career officer in the United States Air Force," reads a portion of the academy's office "Mission."

CHOICE OF 18 'MAJORS'

They may elect to take Russian or Chinese. They have their selection of 18 "majors." They are exposed to such courses as fill the spectrums of the sciences, the social sciences and the humanities. They paint, measure the moon, visit foreign lands.

"In planning the Air Force Academy curriculum, we have been hampered by no established customs or tradition, no preconceived ideas, no vested interests," wrote the academy's first superintendent, Lt. Gen. H. R. Harmon. "All the armed services recognize that in the academic field an officer's education must include a broad coverage of both the social sciences and the technical sciences."

Being a cadet is far from a soft life. He rises at 5:50 a.m., arrives at classes at 7:40.

He must agree to serve at least five years in the Air Force after graduation.

If he chooses to go from the premed schooling obtainable here to aerospace medicine, he is expected to serve 12 years in preparation and practice within the Air Corps.

The physical training is arduous, and very much under the eye of the new boss of the cadet wing, Brig. Gen. Robin Olds, the top fighter pilot of the war in Vietnam. Nearly a quarter of a century later, the former West Point grid star remains at his fighting weight.

As is the case with West Point and Annapolis, about 30 per cent of the Air Force Academy graduates leave the service for civilian life after they have completed their pledged post-graduate service. The rest stay in, taking the places of the often rough-and-tumble and even unlettered veterans who have made our Air Force the best in the world.

The academy intends to keep it that way.

Russia Likely to Push Arms Talks

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The hard economic decisions the Soviet Union now faces likely will force Kremlin leaders to persist strongly in attempts to get arms control talks under way early in Richard Nixon's presidency.

CROMLEY

Hard-line Kremlin watchers this correspondent has talked to believe the Kremlin now may be deadly serious in its attempts to get talks under way.

The United States held off on entering into such discussions, despite repeated suggestions from Moscow, because of the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia and because considerable skepticism exists here as to Russian intent.

The analysis of Soviet objectives is now changing.

Growing conjecture is that the Moscow leaders — after rechecking the latest ruble requirements for armaments, space, industrial expansion and consumer goods — now have decided they must find some relief.

It appears that the Kremlin has decided that the most practical line of relief is to make some sort of arms deal with the United States.

HEAVY PRICE?

Data now becoming available to Soviet watchers indicates the Soviet Union may have paid a heavy economic price for her invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The Soviet Union mobilized so many men and so much transport from civilian life that the distribution of raw materials and goods was hampered. Industrial production was thereby also put under a strain.

★ ★ ★

This setback would not have been important by itself. But the Soviet economy is already under a strain because of Moscow's attempt to catch up with the United States in nuclear and conventional weapons and simultaneously try to outdo the United States in space.

Her military expenditures are believed to be roughly as great as U.S. spending, exclusive of Vietnam.

INDUSTRY OBSOLETE

Much of Soviet industry is obsolete or obsolescent, some unbelievably so. Russia is seriously short of capacity in the chemical-fertilizer, petroleum, construction and electronics industries.

★ ★ ★

Russia is not on the verge of an economic collapse. The country is expanding economically at a steady pace. But between the four forces — military, space, industrial buildup and consumer goods — something must give.

Voice of the People:

Has More Suggestions for M59 Improvements

Controversy over improvements needed on M59 is talked about in your newspaper but you make no mention of that section of the road between Cass Lake Road and Telegraph where there are only four lanes—the center lane for left turns not being there. Since the lanes are only 10 or 11 feet wide in this section, it would appear that this, too, needs correction. The section in question should be improved and widened to five 12-foot lanes, with a center lane for left turns only. This should be continued all the way to the I-96 freeway.

★ ★ ★

The intersection at Williams Lake Road west of the airport is a severe hazard. Could they not eliminate the "Y" in Williams Lake Road and put up a traffic signal and hopefully cut down the accidents that happen there?

'Police Should Be Good Driving Examples'

Recently, when driving on Dixie Highway in the second lane, a policeman was behind me, there were cars in front of me and a line of cars in the other lane. This policeman started blinking his lights for me to get over, seeing that I couldn't. I was going the speed limit, and just because he's a policeman doesn't give him the right to speed. He should obey the traffic laws and be an example to the people. If this is what our police are being taught, I don't know how they expect to cut down on traffic accidents.

'Organizations Offer Much-Needed Help'

Two wonderful organizations in the Pontiac area are badly needed by many people and should be widely publicized. I learned of them by chance, having been an emotionally sick person and very obese. Recovery Incorporated is a nonprofit organization for the self help of ex-mental and nervous people. You are taught methods to overcome your own problems by utilizing your own willpower. The second organization is TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly). Recovery meets Mondays at 8 p.m., and TOPS meets every Thursday at 7:30 p.m., at Bethany Baptist Church.

A FORMER FAT, SICK CITIZEN

'Stolen Coin Had Great Sentimental Value'

Two young men broke into my home Dec. 20 and took several valuable items including a V-nickel that belonged to my dead brother who fought through the Battle of the Bulge. The nickel was dated the year he was born—1911—and had a chain on it to be worn as a necklace. I wish they would return the nickel as it can never be replaced.

Question and Answer

Could you tell me whom to contact about getting a hearing aid for a daughter of a neighbor who can't afford one? She's in special education, and I understand the teacher has said she could join a regular class if she had a hearing aid.

CONCERNED

REPLY

State aid is available if the family can't afford it. Have the teacher or principal fill out an SE-1 Form or send the girl's name, birthdate, parents' name, address and phone number to Dr. Wm. Stephenson, Oakland Schools Speech and Hearing Clinic, Campus Drive, Oakland County Service Center, Pontiac, 48053. He will see that the case is investigated.

Question and Answer

How can I find the address of the firm in Detroit that refinishes porcelain? It's not listed in the phone book.

REPLY

We found it for you. It's the Appliance Refinishers, 16035 Plymouth Rd., 835-0534.

Support Challenge of FDA Rulings

By DICK SAUNDERS

Three cheers for Dr. Jeremiah Stamler.

The good doctor recently nailed the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for rulings that make it difficult to find out what kinds of fats you move through the grocery checkout counter.

SAUNDERS

Dr. Stamler, a noted Chicago heart specialist, swung from the floor with some well-aimed verbal punches at a federal agency which often seems more concerned with peanut butter, and cherry pies, than with health.

★ ★ ★

He pointed to a stand taken several years ago by the FDA that there was no solid evidence of a relationship between fats and cholesterol and atherosclerosis, the artery-clogging disease underlying most heart attacks.

Thus, an FDA ruling forbids manufacturers to give this information on the labels on their products, he said.

Dr. Stamler charged the FDA is being "unscientific, unrealistic, harsh and archaic."

This is the same FDA that in recent years has come through with such bone crushers as rulings specifying how many peanuts must go into a jar of peanut butter and how many cherries it takes to market a true cherry pie.

Obviously the FDA chooses to ignore findings such as the postmortem study several years back of 350 patients over the age of 20 who died of all kinds of diseases at the Massachusetts General Hospital. Not a single one showed wholly smooth interior of coronary arteries.

In contrast, a comparable group of the same size studied in southern Japan showed a good many with smooth arteries.

The obvious reason? Diet. The Japanese live on a diet almost devoid of saturated fats.

Since these studies, many others have been initiated. Many are still in progress. Much of the evidence points to a direct relationship between fats, cholesterol, atherosclerosis and heart attacks.

When a heart patient leaves the hospital, he is told by competent medical authorities that he has to, among other things, play it cool with any foods high in saturated and/or animal fats.

Then he walks out into a world where you have to darn near be clairvoyant to figure out what, if anything, the supermarket sells that just might help you keep alive.

★ ★ ★

I'm sure the FDA, is looking out for me as a consumer.

But what good is a dead consumer?

Firm Bankrupting Beatles—Lennon

LONDON (AP) — John Lennon said in an interview published today that he and his fellow Beatles will be broke in six months if their organization—Apple—goes on losing money at the present rate.

Lennon's statement immediately brought a denial that the company was in deep financial trouble but an admission that its management is undergoing change.

The interview with Lennon was published by a pop music weekly, Disc and Music Echo. In it the 28-year-old Beatle was quoted as saying:

"We haven't got half the money people think we have. It's been pie-in-the-sky from the start. Apple's losing money every week because it needs close running by a big businessman.

'WILL BE BROKE'

"It doesn't need to make vast profits but if it carries on like this, all of us will be broke in the next six months."

The $2.4-million company was set up with interest covering music publishing, television, shops, movies and electronics.

Its headquarters in London's Savile Row—bought for $1.2 million a year ago—has a staff of 30 to 40 persons.

* * *

"Apple needs a new broom and a lot of people there will have to go," Lennon said.

An official of the company commented: "Let the quote rest."

But later Apple issued a statement saying managerial changes were being made.

'FUTURE MAGNIFICENT'

"We have our businessman and we are doing our streamlining," the statement said. "Our records are hits. Our misses are magnified. Our future is magnificent."

A spolesman added: "What John said in the interview was true. What Apple says now is true. The times they are a-changing."

After a meeting at Apple headquarters Wednesday night, Beatle George Harrison weighed in with what he called a clarification of Lennon's remarks.

"Apple has plenty of money—we all have," Harrison told newsmen. "When John said we were losing money, he was talking about giving too much away to the wrong people. We have given too much to charity. We've just been too generous, and that's going to stop."

QUARREL RUMORED

Rumors circulated through London's pop music world that Harrison and Lennon had a fierce quarrel that broke up rehearsals for a Beatle television spectacular last weekend.

A colleague who did not wish to be named denied that the two stars came to blows and said it was "just a personal tiff." He added:

"Life among the Beatles has never been completely peaceful, but they have always managed to patch up differences."

Teens Pay 'High' Price for Marijuana Substitutes

DETROIT (UPI) — There's nothing worse than a crook. Especially one who is so dishonest that he'd substitute tea, catnip, oregano, celery and even common weeds to kids who think they're getting marijuana.

Detroit area police officials say that the sale of ersatz marijuana is common, with some teen-agers paying up to $20 an ounce for nothing more than common vegetables.

"Imagination is a wonderful thing," says Lt. Douglas Dill of the suburban Warren Police Department in explaining that some of the kids say they get a good trip, even from the fake stuff.

Gill said that in recent months, pushers have been putting tea into marijuana joints with the hallucinogenic drug making up less than one-fourth of the cigarette in many cases.

NOT MUCH 'GRASS'

Some teen-agers are not even getting that much marijuana in the cigarets they buy.

In another Detroit suburb, Sterling Heights, one 14-year-old boy reportedly stole more than $100 from his parents for repeated purchases of small packets of "marijuana." When police arrested the youth and the 17-year-old pusher, they found the packets contained nothing more than plain pipe tobacco.

King's Memory Receives Many Tributes on His Birthday

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Dr Martin Luther King Jr., received tribute in death that he was never given in life when the Georgia State Senate applauded some of those closest to him.

It was part of ceremonies commemorating what would have been King's 40th birthday Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

Sen. Horace Ward, who attended Northwestern University instead of the University of Georgia because he is a Negro was applauded when he extolled King as a great man of the time.

Ward quoted from King's speech at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington:

"I have a dream that one day on the red hills of Georgia the sons of former slaves and the sons of slave owners will be able to sit down together at the table of brotherhood. . ." Several African diplomats were in the senate chamber.

★ ★ ★

The visitors included King's father, the Rev. Martin Luther King Sr., and Mrs. Rosa Park, whose refusal to step to the rear of a city bus touched off the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycotts.

A four-hour memorial service at Ebenezer Baptist church, where King shared the pulpit with his father, was attended by more than 1,000 persons.

SCLC PLEA

The Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, who succeeded King as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, pleaded "I call upon the forces of good will throughout the land to exert their total influence in seeing to it that the life of James Earl Ray or whoever is proven to have pulled the trigger. . .is spared." Ray is charged with King's slaying.

Afterwards, 2,000 persons walked 2½ miles to a groundbreaking ceremony for the $2.5 million Martin Luther King Jr. village, a low-rent housing project.

Mrs. King earlier in the day announced two memorials to her slain husband—one near his church. The other, near Atlanta University Center where he attended Morehouse College, will include the Institute for Nonviolent Social Change, an Institute for Afro-American Studies, a library and archieves and a museum of Afro-American life and culture.

The library and the institute for Afro-American Studies will cost $25 million to $40 million at the outset. The money is coming from donations and foundation grants.

BROOKE PROPOSAL

Details of the memorial near the church were not announced. Sen. Edward M. Brooke, R-Mass., the only Negro in the U.S. Senate, offered a resolution to designate Jan. 15 as a day to recognize King's accomplishments.

Sen Leroy Johnson of Atlanta, a Negro, said he plans to sponsor a resolution in the Georgia Senate which would establish Jan. 15 as a state holiday, but he said he doubts that it will pass.

But not all of the birthday observances were peaceful.

A call for a moment of silence at the University of Illinois Chicago campus touched off a clash between about 75 Negro students and an equal number of whites, according to a university spokesman.

N.Y. PETITION

★ ★ ★

New York schools held memorial services and in Pittsburgh any student with written permission from his parents was excused from public school for the day.

Ex-Fascist Dies

ROME (AP) — Alberto de Stefani, 88, one-time Fascist minister of finance and treasury, and financial adviser to prewar China, died yesterday.

War Protesters Buy 100 Seats for Inauguration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam purchased 100 grandstand seats Wednesday for Monday's Inaugural Parade.

The seats cost the protest group $1,000.

Rennie Davis, mobilization coordinator, said the tickets were purchased on the parade route as part of its planned "peace presense" during the weekend inaugural ceremonies.

Davis said antiwar protesters also will stand in public areas along the parade route, principally near the two sites for which tickets were purchased.

Alaskan Reindeer Going to S. Korea

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Alaska reindeer—240 of them—will be flown this week in a Boeing 707 jet from Anchorage to their new home in the rice paddies of South Korea.

The animals have been flown to Anchorage from their barren Arctic home near Nome. Later this week, probably Saturday, they will be loaded on the jetliner for the trip across the Pacific.

South Korean businessmen are paying for the experiment, hoping the reindeer can adapt to the Korean climate and feed. They will be used for food and medicine.

Jung D. Wang, one of the shippers, said parts of the reindeer horns can be mixed with herbs as a tonic "something on the order of vitamins."

DEPEND ON ANIMALS

Laplanders and some Eskimos depend on the animals for meat, milk, clothing and hauling groceries.

John Zumstein of Redmond, Ore., known as king of the reindeer ranchers, was hired by the South Koreans to supervise the project.

★ ★ ★

Zumstein will fly with the reindeer to Seoul and is shipping three tons of special reindeer feed. That will last only two weeks, then Zumstein will ship a ton of his feed concentrate which can be mixed with native Korean feed.

★ ★ ★

Wang said he understood South Korean President Chung Hee Park would meet the reindeer at the Seoul airport.

★ ★ ★

Eight per cent of the herd are cows. If the experiment appears to be working, another 200 reindeer will be flown to Korea next month and 600 next year.

If the water in the rice paddies is deep enough, Wang said, the experiment probably will work.

House Building Cost Soars; Senate Silent

LANSING (UPI) — Although the estimated cost of a new office building for House members has almost doubled in the past three weeks from the original $250,000, the Michigan Senate has buttoned up on commenting on the hike.

"I've never made a statement on the principle of building the addition. My only concern right now is that the House consult us on their plans," said Senate Republican leader Emil Lockwood of St. Louis, who sponsored a resolution which would allow the upper house to vote on the two-story building.

Lockwood said he prefers building plans agreed on by one house be approved by the other chamber before a major project starts.

"I think the public fully has the right to know what's going on with their money. I would like to see these types of building plans come through in bill form so both the House and Senate could vote on them," he said.

RESOLUTION TO HOUSE

Lockwood's resolution was adopted by the Senate and sent to the House Policy Committee Wednesday where it most likely will die.

However, the Senate has not had its last say in the matter since the House will be requesting an appropriation for the building later in the session.

★ ★ ★

House Speaker William A. Ryan was optimistic the Senate would not turn down the money request.

"I think they are realistic enough to realize we have to have the space and we need this building. I don't anticipate any more problems with this thing," Ryan said.

TO BEGIN JULY 1

Ground breaking for the building, to be located adjacent to the Capitol, is slated to begin July 1 with a completion date of early 1970 set. The building would house 47 representatives and provide an extra 19,000 square feet of working space.

In the meantime, House committees have been moved over to the Stevens T. Mason Building across from the Capitol and representatives have moved into the old committee rooms.

The building will replace single-story prefabricated units behind the Capitol which now provide office space for 10 House members and their secretaries.

'Fat' Defense Pacts Cost $2 Billion Yearly—Rickover

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Hyman G. Rickover charged in testimony released today that defense contractors are collecting $2 billion a year on Pentagon contracts because of procurement regulations that are "toothless, loose and outmoded."

★ ★ ★

The admiral, observing that similar criticism over the years "has earned me disfavor among some of my superiors," called for a drastic overhaul by Congress of Defense Department procurement procedures. Neither the Pentagon, the Commerce Department nor the General Accounting Office will, or can, do it, he said.

★ ★ ★

The hearings, held last November, were called after a series of articles on defense spending by an Associated Press special assignment team revealed that there is no independent auditing of more than $10 billion a year spent by the Defense Department for goods and services. This is money allocated for contracts which are not subject, because of various exemptions to review by the Renegotiation Board.

PROXMIRE: 'SHOCKING'

"What is so shocking about it, sir?" replied the admiral. "It has been going on for many years."

★ ★ ★

Rickover, head of the program to develop nuclear propulsion plants for naval ships, told the subcommittee:

• A Defense Department official refused to approve one of his program's $50-million contracts "because he thought the contractor should get a higher profit than the latter had previously agreed to accept."

"Another Department of Defense procurement official told me I had no business negotiating a profit lower" than suggested by procurement regulations.

• In another case, "I found that one supplier was charging the government $8 an hour for design work while he charged commercial customers only $6 an hour for the same work."

$5 MILLION OVERCHARGE

While he said the Pentagon held that generally accepted accounting principles were followed in this case, the General Accounting Office concluded the Defense Department had been overcharged $5 million.

Defense Department officials, said Rickover, claim they have "no knowledge of excessive profits," yet "They have no knowledge of the profits being made on more than 50 per cent of their contracts."

He gave these other indictments:

• Supplies of propulsion turbines are insisting on 20 to 25 per cent profit, compared with 10 per cent a few years ago.

• Several nuclear equipment suppliers are requesting 15 to 20 per cent profit.

• "Profit percentages on shipbuilding contracts have doubled in the past two years.

• "One division of a large company recently priced equipment to a Navy shipbuilder at a 33 per cent profit.

Laws and regulations covering defense contracting cost are "toothless, loose and outmoded," and "riddled with loopholes," said Rickover.

"As industry becomes more sophisticated in finding and exploiting loopholes in the law, Congress must become more diligent in closing them," he said.

Michigan's Toll in Carrier Fire: 1 Dead, 3 Injured

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Michigan casualty list from the fire aboard the U.S.S. Enterprise stood at one dead and three injured today.

Another name was added to the injured list last Wednesday, that of Airman Larry Henning of Britton. The Navy earlier reported that Airman Jimmy Lee Hill of Hamtramck and Aviation Ordinanceman 2.c. William Schieber of Stevensville were injured in the blaze.

Mrs. Willie L. Hill of Hamtramck, mother of Airman Hill, said Wednesday she knew only that her son had received head injuries. She said the Navy told her the extent of those injuries was not known.

DISMAL OUTLOOK — The Pontiac area is in for above-average precipitation and below-average temperatures for the next 30 days, according to the U.S. Weather Bureau.

Detroit Church Unit Against Parochiaid

DETROIT (UPI) — Citing the possibility that state aid to parochial schools might "fragment and undermine the public school system," the executive committee of the Metropolitan Detroit Council of Churches yesterday announced opposition to parochiaid.

The churchmen said they took the stand "because we believe in quality education as an essential ingredient of any democracy and in the integrity and positive contribution of private schools, we oppose an increase of public funds to private elementary and secondary schools . . ."

State aid, the church group said, would lead other groups to set up their own private school systems which would lead to many school systems in a given locality competing for limited funds.

"The state has a primary responsibility to meet such educational needs to the public school system before it can think of using its funds elsewhere," the resolution stated.

MISSILE SITES

In another resolution, the council voiced opposition to the establishment of nuclear missile sites in the Detroit area.

Besides questioning the military value of the Sentinel antiballistic missile system, the churchmen said they opposed the plan on moral grounds.

"We question the morality of spending $5 billion for a system of questionable value, when the massive domestic needs of our society for more and better housing, for much more adequate schools, for a great reduction in the pollution of air and water, for improved mass transportation and law enforcement, are so largely unmet because we say we cannot afford to meet them," the resolution said.

Nixon Keeps Mum, Works on Address

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President-elect Nixon worked and relaxed in privacy and public silence today, as he has since coming to his Florida hideway two days ago.

Press aide Bruce Whelihan said Nixon was at work on his inaugural address, with the assistance of two newly arrived staff members, Miss Rose Mary Woods, his personal secretary, and Raymond K. Price, a special assistant and speechwriter, who arrived Wednesday.

Nixon had no comment on President Johnson's budget, sent to Congress Wednesday, and Whelihan said there would be none. The president-elect and the man he will succeed Monday talked on the telephone for about 40 minutes Tuesday night. Johnson placed the call to Nixon. The substance of their conversation was not disclosed.

Firearms Tested

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — South Africa will order reregistration of all firearms with each gun owner firing two test rounds in front of police, so that the bullets' markings can be identified and filed, the Evening Post said Wednesday.

Doctor Challenges Screening Tests for Babies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Recent studies challenge the PKU screening tests required by law in 36 states, says a University of Southern California official.

Dr. Samuel Bessman, head of the school's Department of Pharmacology, says the diet generally prescribed for "PKU babies" — those who may be retarded because of an inherited defect — has been found to cause damage and death in experimental animals.

Branding a child as a potential idiot on the basis of a chemical test is a "cruel act," he says, which could hinder him later in getting jobs or insurance.

PKU (phenylketonuria) is an inherited defect in metabolism which prevents the body from disposing of excess phenylalanine, one of about 20 food amino acids essential to health. Excess amounts of phenylalanine in infants is widely believed to cause mental retardation, and treatment usually consists of giving PKU babies a diet low in phenylalanine.

Some years ago Dr. Bessman, a medical doctor specializing in biochemical research, began questioning current PKU treatment because, he says, "the consequences of these laws could hardly have been considered seriously in the short time it took from their proposal to their implementation."

As part of his investigation, more than 100 pregnant rats were fed a diet low in phenylalanine.

★ ★ ★

"This was the same deprivation diet generally ordered for PKU babies," Dr. Bessman said in an interview after the study was reported at a technical meeting.

"More than a third of the infant rats died shortly after birth and the rest were severely damaged. The mothers themselves lost one-third their weight."

'WENT TOO FAST'

This and similar studies have shown, Dr. Bessman says "this nation went too fast in its desire to find an easy cure for mental retardation. We have taken a harder look and found the accepted treatment is dangerous. It is no longer a settled thing that a child can eat his way to mental health."

The studies, he says, "challenge the thinking which has led 36 states in the last five years to adopt laws requiring that all human babies be screened for phenylketonuria."

Dr. Bessman traces the spread of PKU-screening laws to the development in the early 1960s of a simple, rapid test of blood for phenylalanine.

"Every child who had a higher than normal concentration of this amino acid was arbitrarily designated as having PKU," he said, "and the dietary treatment was ordered.

INCIDENCE SPURTED

"The incidence of PKU now began to assume epidemic proportions. From one in 20,000 it jumped to one in 5,000 or even less.

"It must be kept in mind that this diagnosis of PKU and prognosis of mental retardation are based only upon the assumption that because some severely mentally retarded have excessive phenylalanine in their blood, all children who have this material in excess at birth will be mentally retarded."

★ ★ ★

One argument against such an assumption, Dr. Bessman said, is that research has turned up scores of children with a high concentration of phenylalanine in the blood who are not mentally retarded.

Another, he says, is that experiments with animals "show no significant effect of phenylalanine on intelligence."

PROPONENTS

"The majority of the laws' proponents were laymen who were highly motivated, usually as parents or relatives of mentally retarded children," Dr. Bessman said. "Their primary assumption was that phenylalanine or some product derived from it was toxic.

"The second assumption was that the developing brain suffered increasing damage with time because or the excess phenylalanine. The third assumption was that all children who had excess phenylalanine in their blood were imminently in danger of mental retardation.

"The scientific evidence in favor of any of these assumptions is at best inadequate."

In view of these doubts, Dr. Bessman says, "it seems a cruel act to brand a child from birth as a potential idiot or psychotic on the basis of a chemical test. It is highly questionable that a child erroneously diagnosed phenylketonuric could ever get certain jobs, or certain insurance."

CAN HURT CHILD

Maintenance of records about PKU cases can seriously affect the entire life of such a child, he said. "Information is passed from hand to hand by nonmedical and nonprofessional personnel who have no legal or moral responsibility to the child," he said. "This invasion of personal rights is undertaken without permission in a compulsory manner in almost every state which makes PKU a reportable disease."

With mandatory screening laws on the books in 36 states, what can parents in those states do?

"First of all," says Dr. Bessman, "the laws call only for blood tests. They do not prescribe treatment. Parents can obtain the advice of a competent physician to make sure whether a low phenylalanine diet is the proper treatment, if any is needed.

"Second, we are learning that early education of the retarded often is more helpful than diet. Many times the success with PKU child has been due more to the extra attention the child received than to any change in diet.

"Third, and this may be the most important lesson to be learned from the whole PKU incident, we all can question any future attempts by laymen to write medical laws. PKU therapy is a perfect example of what not to do in the future."

Labor Ruling's Flippancy Is Seen as Hair-Raising

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Last June a taxi company in Miami, Fla., filed an unfair labor practice charge against a union. The company claimed that a union official had threatened some of its employes.

WEST

This week the National Labor Relations Board, which reviewed the case, upheld a hearing examiner's recommendation that the complaint be dismissed.

★ ★ ★

In doing so, the board may have set a precedent that will create turmoil and havoc in labor-management relations.

My fears in this regard stem from one of the actions attributed to the union official.

WIG FLIP ALLEGED

It was alleged that while arguing with a company employe he flipped the employe's hair piece and asked "How do you hold that thing on?"

The board accepted the examiner's finding that "The flipping of the toupee, by itself, would not appear to be coercive."

★ ★ ★

In other words, it apparently has given a free hand to both sides in a labor dispute to flip each other's wigs.

One does not need a great amount of foresight to envision the impact this likely will have on future labor negotiations.

Bargaining sessions, as you know, are often highly emotional affairs. Everyone is uptight to begin with, and anger and frustration build rapidly when the talks hit a snag.

Under these circumstances, what union official, upon having his latest proposal rejected, will be able to resist leaning across the table and flipping the company president's toupee?

★ ★ ★

And what management representative, when stalking out of the room after breaking off negotiations, will be able to resist giving a parting flip to his union counterpart's hair piece?

In these days of rampant baldness and the ever-increasing use of cranial camouflage, an outbreak of wig-flipping could wreak disaster on the labor scene.

NOT RIGHT MOOD

A management or union official who has suffered the indignity of having his wig flipped is hardly going to be in the mood for compromise.

And don't forget that many union members nowadays are women. You can readily imagine how they would react.

★ ★ ★

The entire country is in danger of becoming strike-bound. Congress should move immediately to make wig-flipping a violation of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Write-In Sues for Presidency

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — President Johnson was accused of keeping a Colorado presidential candidate off write-in ballots in 25 states in a suit filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court here.

Roman G. Weninger, 58, Akron, Colo., said in a one-page complaint that the President was "negligent, defiant and indifferent to all attempts by me in asking for a recount in the Nov. 5 general election."

★ ★ ★

The complaint said the President, through trickery, deceit and falsehoods, kept Weninger's name off the various write-in ballots. Weninger was a candidate on the Realists party platform.

In the suit he is asking for a new election "to decide once and for all who should be president of the United States."

Legislature Plan

LANSING (AP) — Republican state Sen. Oscar E. Bouwsma says he plans to introduce a measure that would require the Legislature to meet five days a week with sessions starting in the morning. Bouwsma said if present legislative attendance practices were applied to a private business, "It would be bankrupt in no time."

Britons Yawn at Nude, Crude Theater

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Nudity and crudity have charged onto the London stage, rushing in where royal censors previously made producers fearful to tread. The theater, unfettered since the elimination of the official censor, the Lord Chamberlain, has gone the way of all flesh. But there's a lot more to English theater than shocks the eye and burns the ears.)

By DAVID LANCHASHIRE

LONDON (AP) — At the Royal Court Theater, Billy the Kid snarls obscenities at Jean Harlow.

At the Duke of York's, a homosexual has a baby.

At the Comedy, four young men stage a scene so nude that one actor's mother flew all the way from Canada to tell her son to put his pants on.

At the Ambiance, lunchtime audiences see an entire play performed in bed. And at the Shaftesbury, men and women leap naked from beneath a blanket.

Censorship was abolished from the London stage last September, and the curtain already has risen on at least half a dozen plays that would have been sliced up by the Lord Chamberlain's blue pencil.

PORNOGRAPHY?

Does the new freedom mean a pornographic revolution in London?

"I don't think so," says one agent. "There is no great rush of see a dirty play — none of them are doing very good business."

★ ★ ★

"Clearly no purveyor of filth is making a fortune," says The Sunday Times critic Alan Brien. Some of the postcensorship plays have already closed for lack of trade despite sensational publicity.

"Fortune and Men's Eyes" — the one with the male nude scene — ran six weeks.

LOST A LOT

"I have lost 5,000 pounds ($12,000) on the six-week run," says impresario Larry Barnes. "I'm going back to staging family entertainment."

Most of the new plays, such as "Hair" or "The Beard," are American. Most have been dismissed by the critics as boring, amateurish, sad, pessimistic or grotesque.

★ ★ ★

"It is difficult to imagine anyone emerging muttering 'Hot stuff' or 'Let's go to my place and have an orgy,'" Brien writes.

Commentators agree that once the novelty has worn off, the so-called "dirty plays" will have to offer something more if they are to survive.

THEATRICAL BOOM

But with or without sex, London's 40-odd theaters in the West End are enjoying a boom. With so much happening on so many stages, it's easy to forget that the pseudo-pornographic plays even exist.

★ ★ ★

"Hadrian VII," an unlikely hit about a fictitious pope, has been standing-room-only since it opened last winter. Musicals like "Fiddler on the Roof" are thriving, and Agatha Christie's "Mousetrap" just started its 17th year at the Ambassador.

"London is the center of the English-speaking theater at the moment," according to publicist Theo Cowan, and most others in the business.

WAITING TO GO

Cowan estimates that about five plays are lined up and waiting to get into every theater in the West End.

★ ★ ★

One reason for the healthy state of drama here is that with lower costs in Britain, a play can be financed for as little as $14,400. An ambitious musical might run to $353,000 to stage.

★ ★ ★

This is small money compared to New York, where "Her First Roman" collected half a million dollars in advance bookings but had to close after four performances.

Actors, even big name stars, are also prepared to work for less in London. One authority estimates that Paul Scofield, internationally famous since the film "A Man for All Seasons," earns perhaps $1,200 a week for playing in "Hotel In Amsterdam." He could get 10 times that for a screen role.

DIFFERENT ROLE

"Albert Finney might be willing to take a stage role for 60 pounds ($144) a week if he liked it," says an agent, speaking of the respect given by British actors in general for the theater. "For a film, he'd get 10,000 pounds ($24,000) a week for the same job."

And the English theater isn't confined to London. Provincial cities have healthy stage networks of their own, ambitious if less well-known than the Royal Shakespeare Company at Stratford-on-Avon.

"Everyone in Britain studies Shakespeare in school," says Cowan, "and for an actor here, a good Shakespearean role is like a university degree. You can still make a name for yourself with one good performance of Hamlet."

★ ★ ★

The Royal Shakespeare Company, like the National Theater at the Old Vic, is subsidized by the government. Numerous other ventures receive grants from various sources such as the Arts Council.

CHILDREN'S BENEFIT

To spread playgoing interest among children, an organization called the Theater Center has seven complete drama companies. These tour schools throughout the country, playing to more than 500,000 youngsters a year. Supported by grants and private finance, the venture is a noncommerical project that doesn't particularly aim at developing future box-office customers. It tries to develop the children's own creative talents.

Experimental theaters in London, such as the Roundhouse, a huge converted locomotive shed, rarely make money but they serve as seed-growing grounds for new talent. Occasionally they send a show to the West End.

A musical called "Charlie Girl" got only one good review when it opened. It's been running for nearly four years. A musical version of the "Canterbury Tales" got a tepid reception last winter but it's been a smash hit ever since.

Not all successes fare so well, though. "Caberet" and "Man of La Mancha," both major American musicals, were applauded when they opened, but both have posted closing notices after less than a year. "Beggars Opera" was hailed at the Edinburgh Festival and flopped in London.

With seats priced at about 75 cents to a top of about $4.80, London is the place to be a playgoer. You can see Sir Laurence Olivier or Sir Alec Guinness almost any night of the week for less than the cost of a downtown movie.

Baltimore House Has Near-Corner on Car Mishaps

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Dr. John Foley Jr. has a problem. His house keeps getting hit by cars.

When a 1955 auto slammed through Foley's iron-rope fence last Friday and smashed into a mimosa tree valued to $300, it was the fifth such incident in 18 years.

★ ★ ★

In 1950, a car slammed onto the porch. The house was hit again in 1958, again a few years later, then in 1967 three cars piled into the yard.

★ ★ ★

A police officer said Foley's house, on a corner in northeast Baltimore may be a target because it "is in a little hollow. When a car rolls, it's going to roll down there."

Multifaceted Films Seek Total Involvement

NEW YORK (AP) — The shape of films to come seems to be multifaced, split and splintered, surrounding and all-encompassing—and a device to emphasize the visual.

It is form over content, perhaps, but an exuberant celebration of film as film by young directors who are breaking away from the normal mold of one image filling the screen. Motion pictures now show perhaps five or six events going on at one time, by splitting the screen into different panels, often of different shapes. The aim is total involvement of the audience.

The split screen is not new, of course. The master of most movie techniques, D.W. Griffith, used variations on the split theme in such early films as "Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance." The World's Fair in New York in 1964 and Montreal's Expo '67, however, brought out the mod excitement.

"To Be Alive!," a 17-minute film at the World's Fair, used three separate screens, each with its own projector, and a number of industrial and educational films used multi-images in an effort to compress information into short periods.

OTHER TREATS

Other visual treats at the Fair included a trisected image on a vast 70mm screen and a 360-degree panorama.

But probably the most influential of the multi-image pictures was "A Place to Stand," a kaleidoscopic presentation of life in Ontario. It was produced for the Ontario Department of Economics and Development, with Christopher Chapman the imaginative creator, directing, filming and editing the 20-minute film. It was a hit at Expo and won an American Academy Award as best short subject.

★ ★ ★

Dividing the screen into panels of various shapes and sizes and making them move about, Chapman was able to "force" the audience to be more selective about what it sees and more "involved" in the film.

Now, Hollywood has picked up the technique for major productions, for pictorial excitement, compression of information and dramatic effect.

USE IS DISCUSSED

In a recent special section in "Action," the magazine of the Directors Guild of America, three top Hollywood directors discussed the use of the multi-image in their films. All three —Richard Fleischer, who did "The Boston Strangler," Norman Jewison, a Canadian who directed "The Thomas Crown Affair" and Ralph Nelson of "Charly"—noted the influence of "A Place to Stand."

"The Czechs were using a combination of photography and live actors, who walked among the screens and sometimes walked in and out of them, talking to their own images," he writes in "Action." He tried to use the multi-image screen in one of his own pictures, but couldn't sell anyone on it—until he convinced 20th-Century Fox studios for the "The Boston Strangler"—"thanks to its use at Expo '67."

Jewison, too, became intrigued with the multi-image screen after seeing it at Expo and Nelson says his use of the technique is "obviously derivative" of Expo '67.

WHAT ADVANTAGES?

Fleischer: "The multi-image screen should not be used for informational purposes. It should be used to get over a mood and atmosphere. The multi-image screen was ideal for 'The Boston Strangler.' I sought to build up anticipation and suspense rather than surprise."

Jewison: "You have the advantage of being able to show five stories simultaneously, without cutting back and forth. I used it in 'The Thomas Crown Affair' (1) to show the interrelationships of the characters, and (2) to dramatize the convergence of people coming from different directions."

Nelson: "The multi-image screen is a new advance in story-telling. It can be used to good effect in collapsing story points and generating excitement. It can also be used in conventional scenes. For instance, I had a sequence in 'Charley' where the boy and girl were talking together. I wanted to avoid the usual method of cutting back and forth between the two faces, so I put both of them on a split screen. Thus you could see both the action and the reaction; the audience itself does the cutting."

They all agree the technique has its limitations and loses its effect if overused.

Others in Hollywood have indicated they will be using the device in more films.

And the new Hemisphere being readied for the Osaka Expo 1970 reportedly will have the entire dome filled by a single image supplied by five projectors.

Perhaps it will be a forerunner of movie theaters of the future—and multi-images a hint of what's to come in our movies.

Chrysler Firm Takes Ohio Land Option

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. said Wednesday it has taken an option on a 600-acre site in Warren County, Ohio, for future development, but it declined to say what specific use would be made of the land.

R. S. Bright, Chrysler Corp. vice president for operations, said the site is located at the intersection of Interstate 75 and Ohio 63 about 20 miles north of Cincinnati.

"The move is part of Chrysler's long-range development program and no construction is contemplated on the site in the near future. Definite plans for the use of the site have not been made."

History Will Acclaim Johnson's Victories

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.
Executive Director
National Organ League

Lyndon Johnson leaves office this month, after five turbulent years as president. Those of us who watch him ride down Pennsylvania Avenue at his successor is inauguration may be examining our feelings about this controversial and enigmatic man.

YOUNG

My own thoughts move back five years, to the period just before he became president. In 1963, black people were denied the right to vote in some southern states. Restaurants and other public places were often closed to us. Landlords were able legally to discriminate in choosing their tenants on racial grounds alone.

America was a very different place then.

We looked to President Kennedy to end these indignities, and his last months were occupied with plans for needed civil rights laws. But, he was brutally struck down, and Lyndon became president.

LBJ MISTRUSTED

In November 1963, many black people were apprehensive about him. President Kennedy had been a charismatic figure whose concern for the black masses earned their admiration. His replacement by a southerner led many to believe that civil rights measures didn't have a chance.

But, we learned that the opposite was true. Among Johnson's first acts was to push for a sweeping civil rights bill that barred discrimination in public accomodations, desegregated public facilities and made equal employment opportunities the law of the land.

In 1965, he guided a voting rights bill through Congress that countered Dixie's restrictive Jim Crow practices. As a direct result of this bill, the number of black power voters in Alabama has doubled in the past four years, while nearly 10 times as many blacks are now registered in Mississippi.

And thanks to President Johnson's persistence, the open housing law has been enacted. Today it is illegal to discriminate in renting or selling most homes.

POVERTY CONFRONTED

But the real impact of the Johnson administration lies in the fact that he made America conscious of poverty.

The war on poverty may have promised more than it could deliever (it certainly never got a fraction of the funds it needed), but it focused national attention on the urban crisis, and a national effort was directed to fighting want and deprivation.

Medical aid for the aged, historically high education appropriations, model cities, and the 1968 housing act — all brought federal power to bear on the problems of the poor and the cities.

President Johnson also brought black men to the seat of power. He appointed Robert Weaver to the Cabinet and Thurgood Marshall to the Supreme Court — both historic firsts. More Negroes held high level appointments in the Johnson Administration than at any time before.

The Great Society may have been wounded in the jungles of Vietnam, and because of this the Johnson-haters and detractors are many, but history has a way of stripping away the controversies of the present and judging presidents by their lasting contributions. And history will be very kind to Lyndon Johnson.

★ ★ ★

I believe he will go down as a great president whose domestic accomplishments far outweighted the international policies that divided the nation and led to his party's loss of power. I think that many black people already rank Lyndon Johnson as the president who has done the most for the black men.

if you're going to buy a diamond, we'd prefer
you shop
somewhere else...first

Don't be surprised if the salesman at Rose suggests that you shop around before you buy a diamond. He knows several things. One, that you probably aren't as knowledgeable about diamonds as you'd like to be. Two, that you're not only looking for sound value, but for exciting styling and integral beauty as well. And three, that it's very hard to know how much you should pay for a diamond. Well, the best way we know of showing you how wise you are to buy a diamond at Rose is for you to do some good old fashioned comparison shopping (it doesn't sound romantic, to be sure, but a diamond is something you'll live with all your life, and it shouldn't be purchased unknowledgeably). We're quite sure that after you've seen all sorts of diamonds, and asked all sorts of questions, and compared all sorts of prices, that you'll like what you saw at Rose best. If you do, we can assure you one further thing: that your Rose diamond is so fairly priced we'll give you more than you paid for it if you ever want to trade it in on a larger Rose diamond—an increase in value at the rate of 3% a year, or a full 15% in just five years.

Not many stores do that. And the best way to find out why so many people buy diamonds at Rose, is to find out why they don't buy them somewhere else.

Dr. Oaks Says:

Vital Pap Test for Women Is Explained

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is another in a series of weekly articles issued by the Oakland County Medical Society. Dr. Oaks is the collective voice of the society.)

Dr. Oaks says:

Have you had your Pap test?

This is a womanly query that today is commonplace for some. The performance of this test has become routine, part of the annual physical examination as it pertains to women.

★ ★ ★

But, just what is the Pap test? What is its significance?

BRIEF EXPLANATION

The attempt here will be to explain it without undue clinical detail. For answers to further questions, women are urged to consult their physician.

The Pap test goes back over 40 years. It was back then that Dr. George N. Papanicolaou — speaking at the Third Race Betterment Conference in Battle Creek, described his "New Cancer Diagnosis" method.

Dr. Papanicolaou had been engaged in the study of the estrus (menstrual) cycle of animals. He noted specific cell changes in relation to changes in that cycle.

Subsequently, he was able to predict the nature of the cycle by the study of the isolated cells.

COMMON OCCURRENCE

Since shedding of cells is a common happening for surface covering body tissues, his thoughts suggested that the technique might be applied to the study of the human menstrual cycle.

Dr. Papanicolaou's observations indicated that cellular changes were diagnostic of the phases of the menstrual cycle as well as those of ovulation.

However, his most important finding was the observation of abnormal cells in the presence of disease.

Because this finding was incidental to his initial pure research, Dr. Papanicolaou referred to his findings as a happy accident.

BASIS FOR TEST

Thus, the shedding of cells from body surfaces is the basis for the test. By obtaining cells from the secretions, cells which reflect the condition of the organs from which they come, the physician is able to determine the presence or absence of disease.

The actual performance of the test is combined with the usual pelvic examination. The secretions are placed on a microscopic slide, which is then prepared so that the individual cells do not lose their characteristics.

The prepared slide is stained (dyed) and the nature of the cells are determined.

Because tumors, particularly cancer, tend to shed cells more quickly, their presence can be suspected earlier. Similarly, when cancer has started, the initial changes are not visible to the unaided vision.

MAY APPEAR NORMAL

That which is under examination may appear entirely normal to the examining physician. Should malignancy be present, certain changes in the cells will be evident — but only under the scrutiny of the microscope.

Thus, it is this fact that justifies and gives significance to the Pap test. The physician can diagnose cancer before it can damage the patient. Early treatment leads to a cure.

How effective is the test?

It has been said that the most common of the cancers [illegible] of women could be completely controlled if all women took a Pap test. The basis for this statement is that the test can detect cancer at such an early stage, which, in turn, almost assures its eradication.

Thus, once again early detection is the best preventive medicine!

(If you have a question for Dr. Oaks, send a card or letter to Oakland County Medical Society, 346 Park, Birmingham 48009.)

U.N. Stamp Artist Challenged Nazis

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A crippled artist who spent 30 months in Nazi concentration camps and won France's highest military honor, is becoming famous as a designer of U.N. stamps.

"The Germans tried to put me to death because of my art, and now it is making me a name," said Claude Bottiau, a twinkle-eyed man of 48 who stands about half the height of the average adult.

One of Bottiau's early creations, a souvenir sheet marking the 10th anniversary of the United Nations, appeared in 1955. The sheet bore three stamps — 3, 4, and 8-cent denominations — and had a face value of 15 cents. Recently dealers were quoting it at $375 per sheet.

Did Bottiau retain enough souvenir sheets to bring him fortune as well as fame? "Not a one," he said with a philosophical shrug.

EARLY TRAGEDY

Misfortune has never deterred Bottiau, who fell down some stairs at the age of 4 and emerged from the hospital four years later, a hunchback.

Rejected by the French army because of his disability, Bottiau worked as a designer for an electrical company. He joined the underground when the Germans overran France in 1940, and became a saboteur in his native Brittany which was under the collaborationist Vichy regime.

The young artist started his sabotage activities modestly, rigging up fake road signs that sent German occupation columns rumbling back toward their fatherland. But soon his imagination took over.

Bottiau knew that the German troops were getting their pay through the local bank, so he doctored up some franc notes and slipped them into a teller's cage through a confederate. On the back of each note he had etched in such provocative slogans an Vivre de Gaulle, then the Resistance leader, and Down with the Germans. On others, he recommended that Hitler be hanged.

"The Germans would not notice such bills sandwiched between valid notes," he said, "but sooner or later, they would pass one, usually in a local bar."

When the bartender saw one of the fake notes, he usually suspected it was a Gestapo trap to test his loyalty and tossed it hastily back at the soldier. The latter, alarmed at being caught with such infalmmatory material, would hasten to his commander and report it.

"At first, the Germans suspected the collaborationist French in the bank and interrogated them," said Bottiau. "Then they decided that someone in the Bank of France, the point of origin, was sending through the notes.

"Finally, after an exhaustive investigation, they concluded that the franc notes were being flown over from London and parachuted into Brittany. It was hilliarious."

THROWN INTO JAIL

Finally, the Germans located the printing press the underground was using and rounded up Bottiau and his comrades.

"We were thrown into a Vichy jail under sentence of death and 18 months later turned over to the Germans," said Bottiau.

★ ★ ★

For nearly three years, Bottiau was huttled from one German concentration camp to another, including Auschwitz and Sachenhausen.

He was finally condemned to the gas chamber, but Soviet troops freed him before sentence could be carried out. He weighed 45 pounds, as opposed to his usual weight of 110.

HIGH HONOR

For his services in the underground, Bottiau was decorated with the Medaille Militaire, equivalent to the Medal of Honor in the United States.

In 1946, Bottiau joined the United Nations as a cartographer and staff artist. Since then he has not only designed U.N. stamps, and created the emblem of the U.N. Correspondents' Association, but he has set up shop as a free-lance stamp designer.

★ ★ ★

To date, he has created stamps for 56 clients, including Togo, Surinam, Ghana, the Maldive Islands and for the Belgian World's Fair.

★ ★ ★

Ine stamp had an unusual history. In 1962, Togo's President, Sylvanus Olympio, visited President John F. Kennedy in Washington, and Bottiau was asked to design a stamp marking the occasion. It was the first stamp on which Kennedy appeared.

VALUABLE STAMP

One stamp had an unusual was slain in Lome, his native capital, while trying to gain refuge in the U.S. Embassy. Nine months after that, Kennedy was assassinated. The stamp has become a sought-after collector's item.

Completed in 1873, the Hoosac tunnel, in Massachusetts, was the first major tunnel in the nation — 4¾ miles long.

Tie One On, A New Scarf That Is

By JEANNE NELSON

★ ★ ★

Update a sheath by threading one of the oblong ones through the ends of a chain necklace and you have the new belted look. Tie an ascot at the throatline of an open neck blouse and the effect is at once dressier.

★ ★ ★

If you own an otherwise wearable dress but with the wrong kind of neckline for you, hide that section with one of the huge squares. This is especially dramatic when the scarf is of an unusual design and the dress a solid color.

★ ★ ★

A triangle tied at the back of the neck under lightweight suit jackets can take the place of a blouse. Finish it off with a gold or silver pin.

To add color interest to a plain sheath, secure a narrow, long scarf around the neck with a scarf pin and let the remainder fall to below the waist.

If you're in the teen crowd, slip a narrow band of scarf around the forehead and let the ends fall over the back hair for that popular Indian look.

★ ★ ★

Under-the-collar types can be dressed up and held in place by using a finger ring with a large or unusual stone. For those lucky enough to have small waists, wide, wide cummberbunds available in any choice of color and fabric, are perfect.

★ ★ ★

When purchasing scarfs, invest well. Remember that shape is just as important as color and pattern. A too bulky one could spoil the whole effect of an otherwise smart ensemble. Chosen with care, each should have a particular role to play with a given outfit.

Remember too, that pins will allow for even greater versatility so that these also should be considered when planning your scarf wardrobe.

Pontiac Press Photos by Edward R. Noble

Linda Stigall of Oak Park Street, Independence Township, makes her navy sheath come alive with a horizontally striped scarf of textured silk. The contrasts of apple and olive green, teamed with stark white, provide a touch of drama on the basic dress. A gold scarf pin holds the neckline high while a matching gold chain link belt secures the long panel.

Ripples of rainbow colors fashion a triangle for Sue Ball of Calvert Street. Worn over one shoulder and knotted at neckline, this pure silk scarf, as all others shown on this page, is from Alvin's of Pontiac.

Helen Cody of Rochester flatters her blonde tresses with a pink and white silk confection that pokes fun at drab winter days. She knots it in an uneven length and lets the short end jaunt out for a saucy look.

Schedule Annual Meeting Date

A variety of special events will highlight the annual meeting Tuesday of the Pontiac Area Council of Camp Fire Girls. There will be entertainment by Blue Bird and Camp Fire groups, brief business meeting, election of officers and a presentation of awards to adult volunteers.

The meeting takes place at 7:30 p.m. in First Federal Savings of Oakland Building.

Hostesses for the evening will be junior high Camp Fire groups and Horizon Club groups.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Howard Hissong is chairman of the event and leaders include Mrs. Harold Patterson, Mrs. E. A. Mathura, Mrs. J. Stanley Weaver and Mrs. Arlon Perry.

Hostess leaders are Mrs. La Verne Crooks, Mrs. Albert Krueger, Mrs. Richard Kraus, Mrs. Bernard Stickney and Mrs. Floyd Hahn.

A peppermint pink satin sheen cummerbund cinches the tiny waist of Karen Wilson of Foley Street. The effect is dramatized with a large pin and matching chiffon square scarf that holds her long hair in place.

Patient Wishes to Drop Formalities With Doctor

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A year ago I started seeing a lady psychiatrist about my problems (I am a man.) I have always had a "thing" about doctors, and if I am going to talk about my innermost thoughts, I would feel much more relaxed calling her "Emily."

I asked her last week if I could call her "Emily," and she said no, she wanted me to call her "Doctor." Why?

My cousin is also a psychiatrist, and he said if a patient wanted to call him "Sandor" (his name), he wouldn't object, because the most important thing is to make the patient feel comfortable. I think he is right and I would like your opinion.

ON THE COUCH

DEAR ON: You are not on your cousin's couch, so don't ask him for professional help. The reason you want to call your doctor "Emily" is obviously because you would like to be on a more personal basis with her. She prefers to keep the relationship strictly professional, for which I don't blame her.

The "most important thing" is for you to have confidence in your own therapist, and abide by her wishes.

DEAR ABBY: I met this guy about a month ago and we hit it off right from the start. He's good looking, very successful in his business, and he is great company. I flipped for him. So what's my problem?

He smells like my ex-husband, and this turns me off. I haven't got the nerve to tell him to use some other kind of cologne or after-shave, but so help me Abby, when he gets close to me, the smell of him brings back so many memories, both happy and painful, that I am turned off!

Am I crazy? And how can this problem be solved?

TURNED OFF

DEAR TURNED OFF: You are not crazy, and your problem can be easily solved. Buy the gentleman ANOTHER brand of cologne and after-shave and ask him to wear it just for you. If he's as great as you say he is, you won't mind paying through the nose.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: May I suggest how "HURT AGAIN" may help her forgetful husband to "remember" her birthday, anniversary, and other occasions?

Put little notes around where he will be sure to see them. "Only 10 more shopping days until my birthday," or "only five more shoppings days until our anniversary."

I also have a wonderful husband who has a lot on his mind and "forgets" occasions about which I am sentimental, but I have used this little trick—and it works.

NEVER HURT

DEAR ABBY: I have just two words to say to these switchboard operators who complain about the wives calling their husbands at work to talk about nothing: "SHUT UP!" It is none of their business. Besides, what are they doing listening in on personal calls, anyway?

MRS. M. F. McC.

Budgeting Vital to Life's Changes

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

Doing your bookkeeping in your head may work out well enough if you keep out of debt and life doesn't spring any surprises on you. But come any significant change, then it's time to buckle down and start keeping expense records.

Never mind whether you like the word "budget" or not. When change occurs you need one, if only for a few months. When, for instance, you move from one part of the country to another; when you change jobs; when income suddenly goes up or down; when housing shifts from room and board to apartment rent, or vice versa.

This is especially true in the case of young wage earners, who haven't had much experience with either money or change. Without a written record as a guide, it's just guesswork trying to re-direct the paycheck to new circumstances. Which is this young teacher's problem:

Dear Miss Feeley:

Since my daughter graduated from college a year ago and began to teach, she has shared an apartment with another new teacher. Now she has returned home to live.

I'm sure she has spent more than she should this past year for clothes. She has a nice selection now, but needs a clothes budget, as well as a savings budget. Her second-hand car will have to be replaced soon as it's starting to cost too much to operate. There's also a government college loan to be paid back—$110 a year.

Her net salary monthly is $366. She gets paid every two weeks. The fixed expenses she's sure of are: car payment, $64.34 a month; car insurance, $27.70 every three months; life insurance, $84 yearly.

Will you please set up a budget for her, including room and board?

Mrs. K.M., Borea, Ohio

Dear Mrs. M.:

Urge your daughter to record her spending—on the basis of the figures I'm going to suggest—for the next few months to see how this budget works out. It's not only the fixed expenses she needs to be sure of, since certain alterations may prove necessary. The following is a "payday" budget, rather than by the month or week:

Average net pay every two weeks: $180.

Room and board, $45; car payment, $33; allowance, including lunches and personal grooming, $15; clothing, including upkeep, $18; savings, including life insurance, $18; college loan, $5; medical, $5; recreation, $16; car operation, $25. Total, $180.

I sold a house and deposited $20,000 in a savings and loan association. Of this amount, only $15,000 is insured, I understand, by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

If I withdraw everything over $15,000 and deposit it in another account in the same association, or in a different association, will I be covered for the full $20,000.

J. W., Valley Stream, N.Y.

Dear J.W.:

If this present account is in your name only, you can leave $15,000 in it and put the remaining $5,000 in a joint account, if you like, in the same association. Provided, that is, that the net account is the only one there which is owned by the persons named.

Spanish Pieces Create Hacienda Aura

The Spanish spice of metal scrollwork combined with upholstered chair back ornamented in trapunto design in this new dining ensemble by Brody create exotic luxury even in the most limited area. Metal chair frames and table legs in smooth, black enamel simulate hand wrought iron. Laminated table top in Antique Oak pattern is a 42-inch round that extends to 42x60 inches with the addition of a single leaf.

Influence of the Far East is strongly evident here. Metal chairs are finished in durable black enamel with decorative guilloches in bright brass. Red and gold predominate in the fabric-backed vinyl upholstery. Alternate stripes of gold and black ornament the self-edge table top and accent the simulated Lido inlay of warm tortoise shell banded with brass inserts.

By SUSAN STEVENS

Furniture company representatives say the "si" for Spanish followed the "oles" for Mediterranean furniture, the top seller of the past two years.

Spanish furniture is dark, often nearly black, with massive lines for the most part.

"Lines run the gamut from the very ornate, rococo and baroque to the lighter, simple and classic," a spokesman for the American Furniture Mart says.

★ ★ ★

Mediterranean styling, which remains in second place, first awakened Americans' taste for Spanish, since Mediterranean is a blend of Spanish, country Italian, country French, Portuguese, and what-have-you.

"There is no such thing as original Mediterranean styling" according to a spokesman for the National Retail Furniture Association.

Generally, Mediterranean tends to be in lighter hues and not quite as heavy as the new Spanish look.

Just a few years ago, Spanish furnishings "tended to be limited to Moorish-type arches and detailing," the mart spokesman said.

Wrought iron scroll work has been adapted to the Spanish trend which has drawn heavily on Latin America and southern California. From the Southwest comes California Mission adapted from the Spanish.

EXCLUDES PRINTS

Spanish upholstering and accessories are largely velvets in red, green and amber. The Mediterranean look includes many prints, which Spanish excludes.

Third in fashion is early American, which has changed little recently.

American modern is becoming a forerunner in contemporary styling, the furniture association spokesman said. It is "no longer the sticks that Danish modern was. There are curves as well as clean, stright lines."

"There are so many good contemporary pieces," the furniture association spokesman said. "And some are at popular prices, although not many. Good modern has been very expensive."

★ ★ ★

Painted finishes are popular, with bright colors on many molded plastic pieces. Pecanwood is replacing walnut somewhat in natural finishes, bringing a lighter shade with less grain into the final products.

"Most people want at least one painted piece in their living rooms as accents," the association spokesman said. The accents usually are chests or wall pieces.

Rattan, bamboo, foam rubber and other newcomers to American homes are all "in."

"Eclectic" rooms are more fashionable than ever, according to the furniture association. Fewer people want an entire home decorated in a single period, so both rooms and homes share the eclectic look.

For those who welcome eclectic furnishings because of the parcticality in continuing to use pieces, the association spokesman noted, "The cost of furniture is up the last of any durable goods except appliances."

Antiques are still popular, both spokesmen said — "But they are not in a measurable market."

Antique reporductions are still readily available, especially as accessories in the eclectic look, they said. But genuine antiques are "very difficult to find" and the prices are "outlandish for most Americans—really just like the stock market."

Painted antique reproductions, mainly in yellow, green and white, are still popular, "especially in teen-age girls' bedrooms," said the association spokesman.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I had a very frustrating experience with some beaded trimming I bought and planned to use for a dress. When I started to work with it, I found it was so stiff it simply wouldn't bend to fit the neckline of my dress.

★ ★ ★

I had to go out and purchase some more which meant this was a very costly mistake. Perhaps if you can help me work with this it would also help others by keeping them from making the same mistake.

Mrs. C. E. R.

Dear Mrs. C. E. R.:

This is one of the little things we often tend to forget when we are purchasing trimmings of any kind. You will usually find a large variety of both the flexible as well as the rigid trimmings to choose from, but you must choose the right kind for your own particular application.

We have experimented with beaded trimmings to see if it was possible to use them on a scoop neckline since this kind of neckline would not involve quite such an extreme curve that you would find on a regular jewel neckline.

We dipped some trimmings in very hot water which removed the sizing from the backing used for the beading. It did soften up quite a bit and was much more adaptable than before.

Another solution was to use your zipper foot and stitch a line of machine stitching very close to the last row of beading. Carefully pull up the lower thread until you find a curved edge that eases in enough for some necklines.

Since beaded trimmings are carried over into the spring and summer collections, perhaps you can use the trimming you bought on another dress. If it is still too stiff, use it as a trim for welt pockets, edging sleeves, or a tab at the center front of your dress. It can also be used on a true mandarin neckline.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. Bernice Hyatt, Norfolk, Va., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

"I have found a fabulous use for the new invisible zipper foot. You can use it to stitch cording on dresses and jackets. You don't have to pin it in place or baste it, just run the cord through the same slot that you use when you place the teeth of the zipper in it. Keep the edge of your fabric on the seam guide line of your sewing machine and sew. The zipper foot will guide the cording just right."

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I just made a simple sheath style dress out of one of those brocaded taffeta materials and have discovered that after only wearing the dress one time, it seems to be pulling out at the seams. I have restitched them a little further in but am afraid that the next time I wear the dress the same thing will happen again. Can anything be done to eliminate this problem either now or in the future?

Mrs. L. McM.

Dear Mrs. L. McM.:

You gave me the clue to your problem when you mentioned that your dress was made of a taffeta fabric. Taffetas, silk shantungs, and similar fabrics which are very closely woven, have a tendency to pull at the seams since there is absolutely no "give" in these fabrics.

★ ★ ★

I would always recommend underlining this kind of fabric. With the two layers of fabric treated as one, there isn't as much of a chance for pulling out. If you are using this kind of fabric in a very fitted dress, it is advisable to attach an inside belt of grosgrain ribbon at the waist, making it slightly tighter than the dress thereby causing it to take the strain instead of your dress fabric.

Newlyweds Chose Aspen Honeymoon

MRS. THOMAS N. ROY

For candlelight nuptials in St. James Episcopal Church, Birmingham, the bride was attired in a linen gown accented with Venetian lace trim. She carried white roses encircling pink miniature rosebuds and baby's-breath.

★ ★ ★

Bridesmaids were Patricia Roy, sister of the bridegroom, and Shirley Herron.

Performing best man duties for the son of the Nelson J. Roys of St. Joseph Road, West Bloomfield Township, was Frank Stone, with Jack Failla and Michael Doty as ushers.

The newlyweds will make their home in Rochester where both attend Oakland University.

Instant Trees at New Home

SULIVAN, Ill. (AP) — The trees didn't go along in the moving van, but when Judge and Mrs. C. Munch moved to a new home they took some of their trees with them.

★ ★ ★

When Judge Munch sold his country home and property to the government as part of the Shelbyville dam and reservoir program, he brought to town 17 of the white pines that were part of the 15,000 he planted nine years ago, plus a large hard maple.

★ ★ ★

A machine operated by the landscapers lifted the trees and carried them to their new location without any extra handling. "We call it 'Instant trees,'" Munch said.

Pots and Pans Need Even Heat

The best way to keep a pan flat on the bottom is to avoid fast changes in temperature. Avoid excessive cooking heats and let a hot utensil cool before pouring in cold water for soaking.

★ ★ ★

Pressure pans are an exception. They are specially built so they can be cooled rapidly.

Mrs. Dean Takes Club Office

Mrs. Ralph Dean was installed as president of the Pontiac Metropolitan Club Auxiliary, spirit No. 6 at recent ceremonies.

Others assuming new duties are Mrs. John Wilson, vice president; Mrs. David Schroeder and Mrs. L. Park Nique, secretaries; Mrs. Harry Isenberg, treasurer.

More installed into new posts are Mrs. Gilber Brown, Mrs. Lester Dean, Mrs. Harold Wright, Mrs. Roy Hukka and Mrs. Henry St. John.

Why Grow Old?

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Those of you who have been following Bip have now weighed and measured yourselves and know which measurements are out of line and how much you should lose. You have become acquainted with calories and some of the secrets of successful reducing.

You have been urged to exercise and have been given instructions concerning it. You are off to a flying start, and eight weeks will zip past before you know it!

BREAKFAST

8-oz. orange juice
½ cup oatmeal
Artificial sweetener
6-oz. glass skim milk, use part on cereal
1 poached egg on
1 slice whole wheat toast with onion salt or grated parmesan cheese

LUNCH

BEAUTIFUL ART, Colored and Cameo Glass

Harry H. Whitlow, noted collector, author and authority on Art, Colored and Cameo Glass presents slides and comments on his beautiful collection, one of the best in the midwest, on Saturday January 18th, 7:30 at Mason Junior High, 3855 W. Walton, Drayton Plains. After the show he will date and identify one piece of glass per person.

Proceeds will be donated to North Oakland New Horizon's Workshop for Mentally Retarded. Waterford Community Schools is co-sponsor.

Tickets available for $2.00 at Cunninghams Prescription Counter at the Pontiac Mall, Osmuns Downtown, all Hudson's Stores; O.C.A.R.C. Office, 400 E. 9 Mile Rd. Ferndale or at the door.

Children's TV Star Sets Local Show

Television personality, "Sgt. Sacto" is coming to town! A special children's show, featuring the star of The Captain Detroit Show, will be presented at The Community House in Birmingham, on Saturday.

Two separate shows are scheduled: 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. and again from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Also included in the live stage show is magician, John Osborne, who has planned some unusual tricks and treats for the young audience. In addition, several "parent-approved" color cartoons are on the program.

★ ★ ★

Tickets for the show are available now at The Community House, Bates and Townsend streets in Birmingham.

To prevent a burned oven when fruit pies run over, place a large pan half full of water under the rack to catch the drippings.

Schiffli Sets Contest Date for Designs

The fashion spotlight focuses on schiffli embroidered fabrics for spring 1969. The ultra-feminine look which will be busting out all over in sheers, piques, eyelets, linens — even leather-like fabrics — in tones which range from ice-pop pales to flowerfresh pastels.

Pick the fashion winner, then enter the Schiffli Embroidery National Sewing Contest with an original design, or a garment made from a McCall's pattern.

Scheduled through March 30, winners will receive prizes of a Scandinavian trip for two, a color TV, or a sewing machine plus other prizes for honorable mention.

★ ★ ★

Entry blanks containing all the rules plus a full list of prizes are available at your local pattern counter. Or you can write for them to: National Schiffli Embroidery Sewing Contest, P.O. Box 1062, Bergenline Station, Union City, N.J. 07087.

Lisle Smiths to Celebrate Golden Year

The Lisle C. Smiths of Clifford, but for many years Pontiac residents, will celebrate their golden anniversary on Sunday.

★ ★ ★

Hosting the event will be one of their daughters, Mrs. Louis Norberg of Cole Road, Orion Township. An open house will be held from 3 to 7 p.m.

★ ★ ★

The honorees, wed Jan. 16, 1919 in Pontiac, have 13 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Don't throw away that old wooden outdoor clothes dryer. You can turn it into a good looking yard umbrella. Make a canvas cover for it, fastening the cover on with either drawstrings or tabs and snaps.

German Trip Follows Vows

A honeymoon in Germany, where the bridegroom is stationed, followed recent vows spoken in Holy Name Catholic Church, Birmingham, by Carol Jane Nichols and Spec. 4 Roger Neil Remondino, USA.

★ ★ ★

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Maxine Nichols of Birmingham, James R. Nichols of Littletell Street, West Bloomfield Township and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Remondino of Birmingham.

VELVET

For the morning nuptials, the bride selected a Victorian style gown in ivory velvet with a hand crocheted lace jabot and long full sleeves. The Empire waist was accented with a velvet ribbon. A matching ribbon bow secured her shoulder-length illusion veil, and she carried ivory roses.

Helping Leaders Is Volunteer Job

Adult leaders of organized programs for young girls in poverty areas are in need of encouragement and guidance in what is often a first-time leadership position for them. Many of these poverty area leaders have never been outside their neighborhoods and lack confidence in their leadership ability.

★ ★ ★

Women who can give constructive guidance and moral support to these leaders on a behind-the-scenes basis for a few hours a week are urgently needed to keep the program operating, according to the Oakland County Volunteer Bureau, a division of United Community Services. Orientation and on-the-job training will be provided.

★ ★ ★

If you like a challenge and can spare a few hours as a consultant, call the Oakland County Volunteer Bureau in Birmingham for futher information.

Use a Screw Eyelet

DEAR POLLY—One of the large, round, wooden buttons on my daughter's car coat came off. The small piece of metal holding the button had worked its way loose. The girl at my dry cleaners suggested that I get a small screw eyelet and insert it in the back of the button.

I did and was then able to sew the button back on the coat. This saved replacing all the buttons.—Mrs. H. G.

★ ★ ★

DEAR POLLY—If powders or pastes do not clean your dentures completely, scrub them with a piece of nylon net while they are wet. It works wonders and does no harm.—MRS. U.

★ ★ ★

DEAR POLLY—An easy way to reach the top shelf in the kitchen cabinet without getting out the step stool is to open the bottom cupboard door, then step on the ledge. This often raises one as much as six inches from the floor.

★ ★ ★

The sun in the south is very hot when one hangs clothes on the line to dry. I first put a large towel on parallel lines and pin it at all four corners. This makes shade over the basket and I can be out of the sun while picking up a piece of wash.

We use old nylon hose to tie up branches of bushes, especially those heavy with fruit.—LILLIAN.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY—I have tried many different kinds of dish towels but they all leave lint on the drinking glasses. Drip-drying leaves my glasses streaked. How does one get lint-free, clear drinking glasses?—DEBBIE

Hospital Visit 'Acted Out' for Children

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Kindergarten children at Orangedale Elementary School learned first hand what happens in a hospital when procedures were dramatized for them by hospital personnel.

Nurses from Good Samaritan Hospital visited the school and let the kids act out the parts of doctors, nurses and others they would meet in a hospital, let them play with surgical masks and other equipment, and perform make-believe operations with schoolmates playing the role of patients.

"By the time a child comes to the hospital," points out Mrs. Kathryn Healy, coordinator of surgical nursing care and director of in-hospital orientation, "he's too preoccupied or afraid to learn. If he can be acquainted in advance with the procedures and unfamiliar circumstances which will confront him when he's admitted, he'll be much better able to cope with the situation."

In the demonstrations, the children are made aware of what's ahead. "A shot might hurt," the nurses say, "but it's the fastest way to make you better."

Gift Hobby Is Original

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Using a needle for a paintbrush and a vest for a canvas, Mrs. John Allen produces picture garments that reflect the vocation and avocations of their wearer.

Worked into a jacket she made for her doctor-husband are designs that depict some of his favorite hobbies — such as an airplane, a boat and compass.

One of her productions is a vest she made for a stockbroker-friend, Tom Meyer. It is onamented with a bull chasing a bear, a briefcase, a telephone and other tools of the trade. Such "documentary" apparel takes as long as three months to make.

U.S. Viet Cutback Brewing, but Its Effect Is Now Unclear

(EDITOR'S NOTE—It is almost a year since the enemy's biggest blow struck in Vietnam, the Tet offensive that tore into cities, towns and military installations. Today the war goes on, but the feeling is far different from that of a year ago. This appraisal of the changes, and the prospects, is by an AP reporter who has covered the war for six years. To write it, he interviewed scores of officials and observers, visiting provinces from one end of South Vietnam to the other.)

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP) — This strangest of wars is moving toward another turning point. There is a general feeling that a cutback in U.S. forces is coming, but lack of agreement on what it will mean.

Many see the tide of war running in favor of the allies now. Others believe this view is valid only if the political eddies swirling about the war are ignored. And the enemy retains a potential to upset the best-laid plans.

On the surface, the time to begin leaving seems nearer than at any period since the first U.S. combat troops arrived nearly four years ago.

Enemy forces appear in disarray after a year of vast bloodletting. Land and population swallowed up in last February's Tet offensive are being recovered in huge slices by minimal forces. Allied casualties are down.

'WAITING IN WINGS'

Yet there is doubt that these things point toward an end to the fighting. Enemy forces are still massed on the borders, and a Frenchman who fought in the first Indochina war observes:

Many knowledgeable Americans and Vietnamese suggest the military picture reflects international political developments late in 1968, particularly those surrounding the halt of U.S. bombing against North Vietnam.

These people detect an obvious pattern of disengagement of major enemy units, a deliberate slackening in tempo. They feel this was less the result of allied military efforts on the ground than a direct response to the Johnson administration's eagerness to get the Vietnam talks started, an eagerness indicated by the November bombing halt and apparent American consent for the Vietcong to participate in Paris talks, one way or another.

PACKAGE PLAN?

There is recurring talk about some kind of package plan to be presented to the Nixon administration by the Vietnamese government, possibly involving the withdrawal of 20,000 - 50,000 U.S. troops. "It is no longer a question of pulling out troops," one U.S. official says. "The questions now are when and how many?"

One critic believes that the American troop commitment of more than 500,000 men could be cut by one-third, and yet increase the performance by 25 per cent. He asserts that the layering of headquarters elements, the comparatively soft living in rear areas, has led to a multiplicity of facilities.

He believes also that the U.S. commitment can be reduced without increasing pressure on the Vietnamese army.

NONPRODUCTIVE

Those who favor an American cutback believe Vietnam looks like an interminable, open-ended, nonproductive commitment to most Americans.

But once the initial cuts were made, the rest would come slow.

Most knowledgeable Americans say that if the United States decides to fight and not talk in Vietnam, U.S. troops can be thinned to a minimum of 200,000 within four years, and 100,000 within 10 years, with those 100,000 based here indefinitely.

And American dead, which in 1968 doubled the total of dead of all previous years in Vietnam to 30,551 by year's end, could be expected to continue but in diminished proportions.

Even with the best prospects, a complete peace with both sides agreeing to withdraw, and all terms okayed, it would take 12 to 18 months for all American units to move out of Vietnam in an orderly fashion, experts in the logistics field say.

That America can diminish her efforts in the war is a proposition based on two assumptions — that the Vietnamese army will improve, and that the Hanoi-led armies will disintegrate.

Many senior Americans have expressed belief that the Vietnamese armed forces are getting better, and observations in various sections bear this out. But it is the transformation of a once nearly defeated army to an improving army, not yet to a winning army, that seems to be taking place. Important visitors still have to be flown 400 miles to Hue to see a good Vietnamese division, the 1st, in action. And this division has fought all year with the help of three American divisions—the 101st and the 1st Cavalry divisions, and the 3rd Marine Division — using their massive firepower and air support.

The three most doubtful Vietnamese divisions in the country — the 5th, 18th and the 25th — still sleep at Saigon's doorstep, reluctant to participate in combined operations with American units, not particularly anxious to mix with the Vietcong or change the status quo.

NO MORE SIESTA

Countrywide, American advisers report three large areas of improvement in the Vietnamese armed forces. The 3 p.m. siesta is no longer standard in the field. Commanders seem imbued with a greater urge to make decisions, now that they have found that often they are usurped in operations by eager commanders of American units. This has improved staff work.

There is some improvement in night operations. The M16 rifle has improved morale. The Vietnamese soldier is now on equal footing with the Vietcong who carries an AK47.

Many obvious failings of the Vietnamese army could seemingly be easily rectified. The 7th Division regiment that guards the Kien Hoa province capital of Ben Tre has no regular barracks. The troops returning from operations bed down on doorsteps of private homes or in the branches of trees.

Uniforms are still often ragged, and the food allowance equal to 20 cents a day buys little meat. "The Vietcong we kill and capture are bigger and fatter than us because they eat more than we do," a thin junior officer told me during a recent Kien Hoa operation.

Desertions remain a chronic problem with an estimated net loss of 60,000 men in 1968 despite stiff penalties. The irregular leave, low pay and difficult transportation home outwits strenuous attempts to cut back desertion.

The apparent exodus of enemy main forces from all but the embattled Que Son Valley region south of Da Nang has elated senior Americans who have redirected American troops to the routing out of peasant courriers, sympathizers and others who aid the Vietcong in the hundreds of formerly contested hamlets now included in new pacification projects.

"This is the best opportunity we have had since 1961 to really clean up the VC," one American of long experience noted.

Vietnamese observers in and out of the government see the current situation as less an opportunity than a threat. They think the whole power base of the Saigon government is imperiled not by an enemy slashing down on the cities, as happened last February, but by a more compliant adversary offering a war-weary America a way out . . . through the Paris peace talks.

"We fear most what we desire most: peace," an elderly Vietnamese intellectual, once a confidant of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem, commented. "We fear peace because it will put us in an impossible situation. Or maybe we have just become too used to war."

The Vietnamese government has tried to make it clear it wants no part of peace talks that might risk political concessions and curtail American military and monetary protection.

The Vietnamese tend to look at the Vietcong as an enemy less interested in immediate military victory than in outlasting the American military challenge.

An undecided war that continued at an impasse as it does now, the Vietnamese believe, could only benefit the Vietcong and discredit the United States.

BIG BATTLE

They see the Tet offensive less as a massive bloodletting that killed 40,000 people in 10 days, than as the big battle, the attempted "new Dien Bien Phu" that crystallized American distaste for the war. A senior Communist defector told his captors, "With the Tet offensive, you lost the war in 128 countries around the world. You do not understand political and psychological warfare. It does not matter to the Communists whether a battalion is beaten in the field or taken out by a political decision. They will wait now for the political decision."

The Vietnamese government is well aware of Washington desires for an American disengagement. President Nguyen Van Thieu told a recent visitor he would accept without complaint an American pullout of 50,000 to 100,000 men immediately to cool the American political climate.

This figure has been suggested by other senior Americans as not only possible but beneficial, as already indicated. Only rear and support units would be included, not combat troops. But neither the Vietnamese nor the Americans can name anywhere in Vietnam, even now while the war is quiet, where Vietnamese forces could adequately replace Americans immediately.

"They can do much more," one senior American said. "To put it brutally, the Saigon government has been taking only one-tenth of the dead the Communists have been taking, yet they control one-third of the population when you lump the two Vietnams together. If the Communists can continue taking so many dead, maybe the Saigon government could put more into the fight."

MAY BE LESS

How many dead can the foe take? The question fascinates American commanders. By official Vietnamese tabulation, 191,307 of the enemy fell last year. The real body count may be less, but there is little doubt that more than 100,000 died in the streets of Saigon, the back alleys of Da Nang, in the grounds of the American Embassy, in fruitless attacks on American bases and under the B52 bomb.

★ ★ ★

"The NVA (North Vietnamese Army) have literally thrown themselves to their deaths," a brigade commander commented. "The war in 1968 became a much easier one for Americans and the Vietnamese to fight."

By emerging from jungles and swamps, the main forces gave up a military superiority that once promised survival. Attrition became effective, American analysts believe, with the constant loss of small-unit leadership to allied guns, lowering the general standard of fighting.

Even so, formidable enemy forces have again massed along the borders, possibly with a bigger order of battle than during last Tet, and certainly with newer equipment and well-trained recruits.

Oldest Circus in Europe Is Facing End

In two years' time, the lease of the Price — Spaniards pronounce it Pree-thay — will run out, and a bank already has laid claim to its site in the heart of Madrid.

* * *

The show, which has amused millions of young Madrilenians over the generations, was founded 109 years ago by an Englishman, Thomas Price.

The circus started as a roving performance under canvas. In the 1870s, British equestrian William Parish, who married Price's adopted daughter, built the theater which still houses the show.

SAVED BY DONOR

Legend has it that when the circus was in financial trouble soon after moving into its permanent home, an anonymous donor pressed a life-saving check into Parish's hand in gratitude for the happy afternoons he had spent watching the show during his childhood.

But there are no expectations that another donor will arrive to save the elegant old Price building in the Plaza del Rey, right in the center of Madrid's banking and commercial district.

* * *

Many are the stars of the big circuses in the United States, Latin America and Europe who got their start up the ladder of fame in the Price.

One such star is the trapeze artiste Pinito del Oro, a gypsy who learned her trade on a clothes line strung between two Madrid apartment buildings.

YANK ENTERTAINER

Internationally known clowns such as Grock, Ramper and Charlie Rivel have been featured over the years.

* * *

Like most circus folk, people working at the Price have formed a close-knit family. Some of them have been there all their working lives.

Pernando Candela, for example, has been an usher for more than 40 years.

DICTATOR IS TOLD

Primo de Rivera, who ruled in the 1920s liked circuses almost as much as he liked cigars. And a few days after Candela's rebuke, a law was passed making the Price the only theater in Madrid where it was permitted to smoke. It still is.

Ship of Mercy for Biafra Sails

Longshoremen Stop Strike to Load Cargo

NEW YORK (AP)—The snappy little mercy ship Forra sailed out of Brooklyn Monday night, crammed with a fluoroscope, vitamin pills, rice and all of the things the small people of a rich land donated for starving Biafrans.

One estimate put the value of the cargo at $250,000, but no one really was counting.

* * *

"There never has been such an outpouring," said Richard Weston, a Biafra Christmas Ship Committee aide.

The International Longshoremen's Association, on strike for three weeks, put its men to work loading the ship.

VOLUNTEERS WORKED

"The allowed volunteers on the pier to unload the trucks. The carpenters crated a fluoroscope donated by a doctor. Everybody on the waterfront has gone out of their way. It's the first time I've seen anything like this," said Edward F. Curley, vice president of the Kerr Steamship Co., which handled the Forra without charge.

Boy Scouts, teen-agers, old women on crutches and young people worked round the clock packing contributions so the ship could sail on time.

* * *

The International Rescue Committee collected $60,000 worth of drugs and equipment —antibiotics, vitamins, bandages, X-ray machines — and $90,000 worth of high-protein food—rice, cornmeal, beans, canned mean and fish.

Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, wife of the president-elect, appeared on the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral Saturday to take part in the appeal.

OBJECTED TO PAT

In Lagos, Nigeria, the government-owned paper, Nigerian Observer, objected that Mrs. Nixon's appearance "was an example of continuing American interference in the Nigerian civil war" with Biafra.

A spokesman for the Biafra Relief Services Foundation said that about $30,000 cash has been contributed "and the mail still is running heavy." The funds will be used to pay for additional loadings at Newport News, Va., and for the airlift between Sao Tome, an island off the coast of Africa, and Biafra. Each flight costs an estimated $1,500.

Churches Invest in Inner City

ROCHESTER, N.Y.—(UPI)—Increasing community support of the Rochester Business Opportunities Corp. (RBOC) was evidenced here with two commitments from two local churches to invest $110,000 towards assisting innercity residents in starting independent businesses.

The money represents investment funds from the endowments of Brick Presbyterian Church and St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

With this commitment, growth capital for Rochester's innercity businessmen will now be more readily available, said RBOC president William Maxion.

* * *

In announcing this support, he said: "This exciting new church investment broadens Rochester's commitment to the goals of RBOC and it leads the way to greater community involvement in helping our innercity residents towards self-realization and economic independence."

Maxion invited other churches, foundations and civic groups to invest in RBOC, a community assistance program originally proposed by Eastman Kodak.

"The more money available, the more we can do. Everyone has a stake in the future of the innercity."

Wrong Response to Turkey Call

WEST PLAINS, Mo. (AP) — A turkey hen call being sounded by Dan Sverdarsky while wild turkey hunting near here apparently failed to fool any wild turkeys.

But it proved fatal to a coyote. The animal heard the hunter's call and, apparently thinking he would soon have a wild turkey for his meal, answered the hunter's call, only to be shot and killed.

The 42-pound coyote brought a $15 bounty to Sverdarsky.

Inaugural Fixings Mostly Automatic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bill to taxpayers for the presidential inauguration of Richard M. Nixon on Jan. 20 may run nearly $400,000, and up to this point the star has had no say in the largely automatic arrangements for the nation's one hour of pomp and pageantry.

It all started the month before the election with self-propelled plans that go into effect every four years without anyone doing much about it.

Work on Capitol Hill is very nearly completed. A vast wooden platform 18 inches off the ground and half again as large as a football field has been built in front of the Capitol and rows of benches erected on it.

A false front has been built over the main steps, with the white-columned portico on which Nixon will be sworn in and flanked by more seats for important guests. A steel-girded, six-tiered tower for television and news cameramen faces it. The construction will provide seats for 18,300 people.

SAME FOR 40 YEARS

There has been little basic change in the construction of the inaugural stands and seating areas for 40 years. It's just bigger and more expensive . . . the ceremony itself has followed the same general course since Andrew Jackson was sworn in in 1928, the first president to take the oath on the east portico of the Capitol. The capital was New York City when George Washington began it all in 1789, and he remains the only president who traveled to his inargural by barge, a very fancy one built to carry him across the bay from New Jersey.

Thomas Jefferson was the first president inaugurated in Washington. A foe of ritual, he walked the block from his boarding house to the Capitol, delivered his address in the Sentate chamber, and walked home.

James Monroe's inauguration was the first to be held on a portico outside the Capitol, but the Capitol at that time, 1817, was a hastily built edifice substituting for the real one while damage inflicted to it by the British in 1814 was being repaired. And the reason Monroe went outside was because the House and Senate were feuding over the arrangements.

Nearly every president has contributed something to the inaugural ceremony, although sometimes the precedent-hunters have to look sharply to determine what it is.

HE WORE TROUSERS

John Quincy Adams' contribution was that he was the first president to be sworn in wearing trousers, rather than the tight breeches of the era.

Jackson attracted the first big crowd of spectators. From all parts of the country to his inauturation in 1829. He made them happy by walking with them all the way from the White House to the Capitol.

A crowd estimated at 20,000 pushed into the White House for a reception after Jackson's inaguration, breaking large amounts of china and glassware in an effort to share in the refreshments.

Jackson, besides starting the practice of holding the inaugural ceremony on the Capitol's east portico, was the first outgoing president to accompany his successor from the White House to the Capitol for the swearing-in.

ADAMS' ANIMOSITY

John Adams so disapproved of Jefferson he refused even to attend Jefferson's inaugural. Like father, like son — John Quincy Adams wouldn't go to Jackson's, either.

RICHARD M. NIXON

William Henry Harrison, in 1941, was the first president-elect to arrive in Washington by railroad for his inauguration. He stood for two hours, bareheaded in an icy rain, and delivered an 8,578-word inaugural address — George Washington had used 135 words in 1793. Later, Harrison reviewed a long parade in the rain and attended three inaugural balls. He caught cold, developed pneumonia, and died a month later.

★ ★ ★

The inauguration of James K. Polk in 1845 was the first to be covered by telegraph. Samuel F. B. Morse himself, the inventor of the telegraph, perched on the edge of the platform and tapped out Polk's words.

★ ★ ★

The contractor who built the platform for the Polk ceremony turned in a bill for $164.17 for the job. It included $76 for carpentry, $8.70 for nails, $2.50 for hauling and $2.25 for iron fastenings. The lumber was valued at half-price — $74.42 — because the contractor got to keep it for reuse. That same practice is still followed. By 1853, when Franklin Pierce was inaugurated, the same contractor had run his bill up to $647, and four years later it reached $887 for James Buchanan's swearing-in.

PROTEST TO PIERCE

Pierce's inauguration was marked by a protest demonstration worthy of today' most audacious militants. As the usual throng waited along Pennslyvania Avenue for the inaugural parade to pass, a band of poor, unemployed men streamed onto the avenue and began marching.

★ ★ ★

A contemporary newspaper account, describing them as "dressed in rags and tatters," reported that spectators ran out and drove them off the parade route.

★ ★ ★

The first big security scare arose at Abraham Lincoln's inauguration in 1861. The South having seceded and the Civil War imminent, an attack on the new president was feared, and soldiers surrounded his carriage so closely on the way to the Capitol few could see him. Armed men watched from the House and Senate wings as he spoke. There was another scare in 1877 when Rutherford B. Hayes won his contested electoral vote victory over Samuel Tilden, the Democratic candidate who had gotten the most popular votes. Congress didn't approve Hayes' one-vote victory until 4 a.m., March 2.

March 4, the Constitutionally fixed inaugural day at that time, came on a Sunday and the ceremony had been set for Monday, the 5th.

SWORN IN ON SLY

There had been threats from Tilden followeres that they would prevent Hayes from being sworn in, and the thought of waiting until the 5th made the Republicans nervous. So at a White House party Saturday night, March 3, President Ulysses S. Grant led Hayes into a side room and he was given the oath of office. The public ceremony was held March 5 without incident.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps because of the uncertainty over Hayes' election, nothing was done about building an inaugural platform until March 3. The bill later submitted shows it was built in one day and cost $140. The construction costs topped $1,000 for the first time in 1885 when Grover Cleveland's stands ran to $1,277.

★ ★ ★

In 1889, when Benjamin Harrison was inaugurated, another icy rain like the one that did in his grandfather was falling. But Cleveland stood beside him, holding a big umbrella over his head, and he didn't get wet.

The weather, which has been good about as often as bad on inauguration days, was at its worst when William H. Taft was inaugrated in 1909. A blizzard was raging and the ceremony was held in the Senate chamber.

FIRST AUTOMOBILE

Taft's inaugural was the first in which an automobile was used, although he didn't ride in it.

The first president to ride an automobile to and from his inauguration was Warren G. Harding in 1921. He also was the first to give his address over a loudspeaker.

★ ★ ★

Technological advances marked almost every inauguration after William McKinley's in 1897, which was the first of which a motion picture was made. Buchanan's was the first to be photographed.

★ ★ ★

Calvin Coolidge's in 1925 was the first to be broadcast nationally. Herbert Hoover's, in 1929, the first at which a talking newsreel was made. Television came along in 1949 at Harry S. Truman's inauguration, and color television in 1961 for John F. Kennedy's.

SINCE HARDING

The construction of the stands and seating areas along the lines now used began with Harding's inauguration. In fact, the steel beams and colums for the portico on which Nixon will be sworn in have been used since 1921.

★ ★ ★

The only basic change since then has been in the number of seats built. For Hoover's inauguration it was about 6,000, and it grew rapidly through Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration.

★ ★ ★

The costs of construction have gone up from about $20,000 at Hoover's and $80,000 at Truman's to the $289,000 at Nixon's.

CRITICISM OF COST

There has been criticism of the cost for years, but since the platform and seats now seem to materialize by themselves every four years there is no target for the criticism.

★ ★ ★

The resident who is to be inaugurated has the privilege of choosing where and how it is done. But an incoming president, like Nixon, now finds it all in place waiting for him when he is elected. And an outgoing president would be judged a sorehead if he scaled down the ceremony that had honored his taking of office.

★ ★ ★

So those concerned with the inauguration around the Capitol generally content themselves by saying that the peaceful transfer of authority from one administration to the next is the crown jewel of democracy and the richest nation on earth can afford whatever it costs to display it to the world.

Dental Board Denies Bias

DETROIT (AP)—Michigan's State Board of Dental Examiners Wednesday called charges of discrimination, made by a Negro dentists' group, "entirely false."

Dr. John Champagne, executive secretary of the board, denied charges by the Wolverine Dental Association that the board discriminated by turning down two black applicants for dental licenses.

★ ★ ★

The 85-member organization also accused the dental license examiners of discouraging Negroes from practicing in Michigan.

★ ★ ★

Wolverine had also charged Gov. George Romney with bias for appointing Dr. Richard Huffman to the dental board instead of a Negro dentist who was the first choice of the state dental association convention.

★ ★ ★

Huffman was reappointed to the board this year after completing the term of another member who died three years ago. He had been one of three persons recommended to the governor by the 1968 Michigan Dental Association convention.

Parochiaid Gets Boost

LANSING (AP) — A Senate-House study committee today recommended limited state aid for parochial and private schools, a proposal that could touch off the hottest legislative fight of the year.

The committee released its recommendation at a news conference today. One member estimated it would cost about $25 million per year.

★ ★ ★

The recommendation provides that intermediate school districts seek contractural agreements with nonpublic schools for instruction of secular subjects and other services including guidance and counselling.

The intermediate school districts would pay the money directly to the teachers and guidance counselors. However, the teachers would not be considered employes of the school district and would never receive all wages from the state.

HALF PUBLIC AID

Under the proposal, nonpublic schools would receive 50 per cent of the amount awarded to public schools in the same districts.

★ ★ ★

Public schools are awarded state aid according to the number of students enrolled. It varies from a high of $499.75 per pupil to a low of $326.75, less any millage deductions.

★ ★ ★

Certain schools in inner cities, however, would receive the full amount awarded to public schools, the committee said.

★ ★ ★

A bill implementing the committee's recommendation is being drafted and is expected to be introduced in the House of Representatives this year.

DEFEATED IN '68

Parochial and private schools already receive limited assistance from the state for auxiliary services such as transportation and scholarship grants.

★ ★ ★

The proposed funds could not be used for any religious instruction, and the State Board of Education would be required to annually test students to see that "instruction purchased is having the adequate secular effect."

★ ★ ★

Audits of the nonpublic schools also would be required.

The committee said it reached its decision partly because nonpublic school systems have "a good public effect on education." In addition, the committee said, it costs about $30 million each year to teach students who have dropped out of nonpublic schools and enrolled in public schools.

6-2 VOTE

The joint committee voted 6-2 to recommend to the Legislature that the plan be adopted.

The cost is expected to increase as more students enroll in public schools, the committee said.

Spokesmen for Catholic schools have warned that financial conditions would force some of them to close their doors unless they receive assistance.

Meanwhile, the Detroit Council of Churches adopted a resolution against any plan to give aid to nonpublic schools.

Parks Leaders Will Eye Bonds

Representatives from 16 of 17 state counties having parks programs will meet in Oakland County tomorrow to probe the projected allocation of the $100-million parks and recreations bond issue approved in the November elections.

★ ★ ★

Oakland County Parks Director Kenneth L. Van Natta stated that representatives at tomorrow's meeting will form a Michigan County Parks Forum. This body will study current state plans to divide the funds among cities, counties and state conservation programs.

★ ★ ★

GOP Support for McLaughlin

By JIM LONG
and JEAN SAILE

William McLaughlin of Northville, executive director of the Republican party in Michigan, last night won the support of delegates in the 19th Congressional District in his bid for the state chairmanship.

The endorsement came during the district convention in the supervisors' auditorium at the county courthouse.

In Southfield, where precinct delegates from the 18th District were holding their conventions, there were strong indications that they too would support McLaughlin to succeed Elly Peterson, who is resigning to become National Committeewoman. The matter did not come to the floor, officially however.

Both conventions undoubtedly were the quietest in recent years, particulary in the 18th District where internal power struggles have marked previous conventions.

NO INCIDENTS

Unlike past conventions, delegates to the state convention in Grand Rapids Feb. 14 and 15 were elected without incident.

One party member even remarked that things just didn't seem the same without the fireworks that have sparked conventions over the last three years.

★ ★ ★

The reference was in connection with the obvious absence of members of the party's conservative faction, usually led at the 18th District convention by Sen. Rober J. Huber of Troy.

Huber was not at the convention.

167 DELEGATES PICKED

In the 18th District, precinct delegates elected 110 delegates and an equal number of alternates to attend the state convention, while in the 19th District, 57 delegates and alternates were named.

Had conservatives wanted to increase their strength, it would have been an opportune time since only about one-third of the 264 precinct delegates in the 18th District, and half of the 147 delegates in the 19th showed up at the conventions.

★ ★ ★

The light turnout probably was due to the fact that state convention delegates were chosen at legislative district caucuses held earlier in the week and had only to be confirmed and that no leadership struggle was foreseen.

Jack Gibbs, chairman of the 18th District, and John Cartwright, 19th District chairman, were named to preside over their respective conventions.

Gibbs, who has held his post two years, will seek a second term when district officers are elected at caucuses during the state convention.

Cartwright, however, has announced he will not run for reelection. In line for his job is Sheldon Smith of Pontiac. Smith says, however, that he hasn't decided if he will seek the post.

Teen Is Given Jail Term for Car Damage

A 1½-to-4-year prison term was ordered yesterday for a West Bloomfield Township teenager for maliciously damaging a small foreign car by jumping on the roof and hood and kicking the doors.

Upon hearing his sentence, Pat Noskey shouted at Circuit Judge William J. Beer and had to be removed from the courtroom by Oakland County sheriff's deputies.

Noskey, 17, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Noskey of 1555 Lookout.

The youth pleaded guilty Dec. 18 to maliciously injuring personal property in connection with the incident in Waterford Township a month earlier.

★ ★ ★

Waterford Township police said that the only motive Noskey gave for his actions was that he was helping a friend who had a grudge against the owner of the car. The companion is a juvenile and has not yet appeared before authorities.

Damage to the car was so severe that for all practical purposes it was a "total loss," police said.

African Bees Imperil Brazil

Threat Seen in Decade to All South America

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Swarms of African bees are becoming a national menace in Brazil and soon will be a menace to the South American continent, experts predict.

Coroliano Francisco Caldas, an apiculturist, says that in five years Brazil will be completely taken over by them and that in the next 10 years all of South America may be overrun.

★ ★ ★

Frequently firemen are called in to disperse or exterminate them with special equipment.

162,000 ESCAPED

Bees were brought here in 1956 to be studied at a Sao Paulo university. Because of their ferocity the bees were kept in closed and secure places, but through negligence about 162,000 were allowed to escape.

Since their escape and because of their great reproduction capacities they have spread over almost all of Brazil. Swarms have been reported in Sao Paulo, Parana, Santa Catarina, Minas Gerais, Rio de Janeiro, Guanabara, Mato Grosso and Goias.

Farmers have reported damage to their honey production center, caused by the African bees during their attacks on other more useful bees. Cities are not free of them either, as the bees invade urban areas while searching for water and food.

Ohio Pair in Custody After Area Chase

Held in Oakland County Jail on charges of stealing a car and felonious assault with an auto, they were identified by police as Ronald Lee Hasty, 20, and Thomas Allan Hillary, 21.

They were apprehended in a residential district near Old Orchard and Noyle, about an hour after smashing their car into a utility pole at Voorheis and Edgefield.

The car went out of control after being bumped in the rear during a chase by State Police Trooper Roger Moore of the Pontiac post.

STOLEN CAR REPORT

Moore began following the car on Dixie near Silver Lake Road after receiving a broadcast of a description of a stolen car in the area.

Moore said he attempted to stop the car but the driver refused to pull over, leading him on a chase that covered about five miles through the east section of the township.

At one point the driver tried to run him off the road by smashing into the side of his patrol car, Moore said.

He fired one warning shot as the pair fled on foot after the accident, "but it didn't slow them down one bit," he said. No one was hurt in the accident.

FOUND IN SEARCH

The two were taken into custody by Waterford Township Police Sgt. Raymond Wilhelm and Pontiac patrolmen Thomas Patch and Robert Burns during a search of the area.

Police from White Lake Township, Sylvan Lake and the Oakland County Sheriff's Office also were involved in the manhunt.

State Police said Hasty has been sought by military officials since he escaped from custody at Ft. Meade, Md., Dec. 21.

The car they rode in had been reported stolen in Dayton, police said.

Journey Through West African Jungle Tests Patience, Humor

By BRIDGET BLOOM

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone (UPI) — If you learn one thing when traveling by road in West Africa, it is to expect the unexpected. And to be patient.

I was traveling on this occasion from Conakry, capital of the French-speaking republic of Guinea, to Freetown, capital of the former British colony of Sierra Leone. I had intended to fly.

★ ★ ★

But as luck would have it, the only connection had been by Mali Airways, and a couple of days earlier a coup d'etat in Mali had had the immediate result of grounding all the country's aircraft.

So I gratefully accepted a lift in a car — belonging as it happened, to the Nigerian Embassy in Conakry.

EARLY START

Journeys by road begin early and finish late. Up by 5:30 a.m. we were on the road by 7 a.m., though not out of Conakry. A diplomatic vehicle, undertaking such a journey, is a special prize, and our driver had arranged to pick up several passengers in Conakry's suburbs — the leader of the local Muslim community, a girl going to join her husband, a trader hoping to Freetown's freer market.

★ ★ ★

The Muslim leader, when we bumped to the end of a rutted track, had already left; the girl was perhaps still abed; and I never discovered what happened to the trader. Perhaps he knew what we were later to find out — that the ferry which cuts this particular journey down by several hours was out of order.

So it was quite a small party in the end, and we traveled in considerable comfort along the broad tarmac road that ends about 80 miles later, at the Guinea-Sierra Leone frontier.

My compaions were all Nigerians, two of them Ibos, as it turned out, who had resisted calls to go home in 1967 when Biafran secession was declared and had remained in the federation's diplomatic service.

BOUNDARIES EYED

The question of Nigeria led only naturally to the pros and cons of African unity and, as we neared the border, to the basic artificiality of Africa's frontiers. For here, as in so many parts of Africa, international boundaries cut straight through the middle of the same tribe.

The locals, however, usually know how to deal with such new-fangled problems — the thin ribbon of road which leads to the tiny customs posts is usually deserted. A vehicle will often cross such a frontier virtually empty, its passengers having gotten out and its goods carried on the head through bush paths, to be filled again 200 yards beyond the frontier.

But strangers are not so lucky. It availed me nothing to explain to the somewhat sleepy immigration officer that I had a special visa, actually an invitation from the president himself to visit his country.

Why was the visa on a separate sheet and not actually stamped in my passport? Where was the number of the visa? How could he possibly stamp my passport that I had left Guinea, if it did not show that I had ever arrived? I would have to go back to Conakry, to get a proper stamp.

The possibility that the ferry was not working receded into insignificance as I and my Nigerian companions battled to explain, to five officials now, that I really was a bona fide visitor and should be allowed through.

CUT THE TAPE

Happily there is a lot of good will in African officialdom if you can't get past red tape. An hour later, we were across the border, past the Sierra Leone customs man with his stamp at the ready, his smart new suit, and fashionable red "Mao" lapel button; and faced with the broken down ferry. Back to Conakry?

Our driver took a left-hand fork, careened through great cotton trees and there, suddenly was a new view of the quarter-mile stretch of water, dugout canoes gently rocking in the shallow water. The car had to go back to Conakry, but 40 willing hands outstretched in clamor for our luggage.

★ ★ ★

Canoe men, it seems, are highly competitive — my typewriter and cases hovered over four canoes before the burliest owner settled the whole matter by lifting me bodily into a fifth.

Gently, for half an hour, we paddled across baskets of oranges, sacks of cassava and loads of yams, vying with a goat,, a chicken or two and 23 passengers.

After that, picking up a vehicle on the other side to take us to Freetown was child's play. The drivers, too, were cashing in on the absence of the ferry and we chose the brightest and newest of the "mammy wagons" — small passenger wagons, ubiquitious in Africa, their painted mottos proclaiming "God Never Die;" "Better Luck Next Time" or simply "Mohammeds Welcome Bus."

Ours was a Japanese Toyota. It had room for three, including the driver, in the well-padded front seat; and a dozen or so ranged in much less comfort on narrow seats in the back.

By the time we had stopped for the 11th time, we were five in the front, and 15 in the back, not counting the cassava, chickens, and yams and the boxes piled on top.

But we made it. We pulled into Freetown's skyscraper Hotel Paramount at precisely 5 p.m., 10 hours and 250 miles after we started — and to the mild astonishment of the hotel's staff, accustomed to their clients arriving in a rather more elegant style.

JOHN WILLIAMS

Busy Senior Is Waterford Teen of Week

Kettering High School senior John Williams has been selected as this week's Waterford Teen of the Week.

John, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Williams of 3932 Clintonville, is an all-A student and president of the National Honor Society. He is organizing a student tutoring service as an activity of the society.

★ ★ ★

He has diversified interests, devoting a large amount of his time to playing bass in a rock band, "The Homogenized Chalkboard." John says he loves to read and write. He won first place last year in the 11th grade poetry division of the Waterford Friends of the Library Creative Writing Contest, with a poem entitled "The Sandman."

He is especially interested in the opening of the school radio station, WTSD, and hopes to be involved in its programming.

★ ★ ★

John has been accepted at the University of Michigan, where he plans to major in physics with an eye toward industrial management.

"To me, life's fullest meaning is found when man relates to his world totally, but first he must know himself . . . completely. That is the hard part," John says.

Milliken Names Chief Legal Aide

LANSING (AP) — Lt. Gov. William Milliken Wednesday named State Insurance Commissioner David Dykehouse as his chief legal adviser. Milliken said Dykehouse would be responsible for legislative liaison on nonfiscal affairs.

Dykehouse earned his law degree at the University of Michigan after graduating from Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N. J.

Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt Says:

Willpower Big Factor in Quitting Smoking

Q—How can one give up smoking? I have tried without success.

A—The drugs advertised to help you quit smoking are not very successful and are not 100 per cent safe. Strong motivation and strong willpower are needed.

BRANDSTADT

Many a man who was advised to stop smoking because of a heart attack or other condition aggravated by smoking has kicked the habit overnight.

Does it make any sense to wait until this happens to you?

Many ex-smokers have found that it helps to drink a glass of water or a soft drink slowly instead of lighting a cigarette.

FLUSHES SYSTEM

They may find themselves drinking eight or more glasses a day at first. This is fine, because it flushes the nicotine out of their system.

Q—Does chewing tobacco have any harmful effects?

A—Chewing tobacco has the same harmful effects as smoking, but to a lesser degree.

The effect varies with the individual and with how much he chews and how much tobacco juice he inadvertently swallows.

Q—I am very sensitive to tobacco smoke. Is there anything I can take for relief when I am around smokers?

★ ★ ★

A—Yes, take a seat near a window or door.

Q—A recent article warned about a little brown spider that may be found in shoes and clothing and whose bite is poisonous. How is it recognized and what are the symptoms?

★ ★ ★

A—The brown recluse spider, found in southern, midwestern and southwestern states, is giving all spiders a bad name.

It is about ½-inch long and ¼-inch wide. It has an oval body and its color varies from light to dark brown. There is a dark spot on its head, shaped like a violin.

Following a bite by this spider, there may be slight itching. After six to eight hours, the area becomes red and tender to touch. Within 12 to 24 hours, chills, fever, vomiting and restlessness may develop, especially if the victim is a child.

The victim should be given an injection of methylprednisolone at once, then admitted to a hospital.

Some doctors believe that surgical removal of the area surrounding the bite is the best way to prevent the area from becoming gangrenous.

The 90-voice mixed chorus has taken top ratings in festival participations in Oakland County during the past two years.

A scientist is trying to develop a self-disposing bottle that, when broken, turns soft and eventually melts away.

Venus Nice Spot to Visit, but...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Venus would be a fascinating place to visit — but you couldn't live there.

In a recent publication, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration NASA summarized information gleaned by U.S. and Soviet spacecraft about the beautiful bright planet which from time to time adorns our morning or evening skies.

The surface of Venus, earth's nearest planetary neighbor and almost its twin in size, appears to be hot enough to melt lead. Its atmosphere is many times denser — 22 times denser according to the Russian Venus 4 spacecraft — than earth's. It contains little or no free oxygen or water.

So you couldn't live there. But what a place it would be to visit if spaceships and spacesuits could be made that would keep holiday travelers alive while they drank in its glories!

'BEAUTIFUL SUNSETS'

As NASA said, "Sunset on Venus is truly out of this world." And where else in easy rocket travel frmo the earth could you stare into the distance and see the back of your own head?

The atmosphere of Venus has what the scientists call "critical refractivity." This means, said NASA, that it is so dense it would "act like a giant lens refracting, or bending, light and radio waves in such a path that they circle the planet and may even return to where they started."

★ ★ ★

Thus the visitor might be subjected to an "unbelievable sight . . . the back of his own ion would make the horizon appear to be head in the distance." Another optical illusabove the looker.

★ ★ ★

"The surface of Venus," NASA said, "would seem to rise on all sides of the explorer, giving him the impression he was on the bottom of a giant bowl-shaped depression."

NO NIGHT

"On Venus," NASA said, "there may truly be no night as such. Because the atmosphere routes sunlight around the planet, it is possible that the night sky is aglow."

First Black Woman in Congress Vows to Speak Out on Issues

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Shirley Chisolm is blazing new trails in national politics. She is the first black woman in Congress. The outspoken Democrat from Brooklyn, N.Y., got into politics through local volunteer work. Her defeat of James Farmer for the House seat surely is not the end of her political trail.)

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK — When Shirley Chisholm answered the door one Sunday morning last summer, a man standing on the stoop shoved a crumpled envelope at her and said, "Chisholm, this is the first."

Inside the envelope was $9.69, the first contribution to her congressional campaign, collected by a group of people on welfare. Shirley sat down, took off her glasses and cried a little bit. Then she said to her husband, Conrad, "If I ever had any doubts, I don't now."

* * *

She still has no doubts about what she wants to do as she begins her term as the first black woman in Congress.

"I'm a very outspoken person," she says, "and people say to me: 'Now, Shirley, you're in the limelight and every eye is focused on you. You be careful about anything you say.'

'MUST SPEAK OUT'

"I know this, but I'm not going to be quiet about issues. I got into politics because people brought me in, as the result of fighting for them on the local level in volunteer work. Now I must speak out on the national level for the people in my community."

Shirley Chisholm, a Democrat, is 44 years old and moves her slim 5-foot-4 frame with a lithe erectness that comes from dancing all her life.

* * *

"I do the limbo, I do everything," she says, swaying and snapping her fingers. "That's why people in the street take to me: 'You're so damned regular, Shirley!' I'm not a stuffed shirt even if I do have three degrees."

Her degrees: B.A., Brooklyn College, sociology major; M.A., Columbia University, in early childhood education, and a professional diploma in education administration. She speaks fluent Spanish.

'NEAR GENIUS'

The new representative from the 12th District in Brooklyn—she defeated James Farmer, former head of the Congress of Racial Equality—can discuss herself objectively, and redeem sometimes slightly immodest pronouncements with humor.

"I went through college all on scholarship. I'm a near-genius with an I.Q. of 150 or 151—probably drying up now."

She is never self-conscious, she says, and "my greatest strength is to articulate as well as I do and to think quickly on my feet."

Her weakest point: "I will do anything for children, white or black." She has none of her own, but has spent years teaching and working for better educational opportunities for them.

'NOT WORRIED'

"I'm not worried about my political career. I'm worried about doing things for the people. If you do things for the people they'll send you back to office."

"Many congressmen are captives of special interests," she says. "You can't operate as an independent agent that way."

One minute she speaks almost despairingly of how much she can achieve in Congress: "What can you do as a freshman?"

But the next she is enthusiastically explaining the two projects she wants to promote.

"I want to revamp the entire poverty program making it a real job-training project, preparing people to become part of the mainstream. Too much money is being used for administrative costs and it's is not filtering down to the poor."

SEEK PROGRAM

She also wants to institute a national SEEK—Search for Elevation, Education and Knowledge—program to help young people of black and Puerto Rican origin to go to college. She sponsored the bill that brought about a New York State SEEK program two years ago.

"It's not that these young people are dumber, but they're victims of bad education in the ghetto and when they're given remedial work and put in city colleges 70 per cent have a B average or above," she says.

* * *

When she walks around her district—400,000 population which is 30 per cent white and 70 per cent black and Puerto Rican and includes the black ghetto area of Bedford-Stuyvesant—she says: "I get discouraged when I see I'm just one person and can't cure the ills of 300 years. But I'm going to fight for my people. It's a tremendous challenge and I accept it."

She doesn't believe there is a place for white or black extremists. "America is still a multifaceted society and we have to live together.

REVOLUTION

"But there is a revolution going on here. If President-elect Nixon indicates in any way that he has no intention of furthering the dreams of black people, we may have some blood in this revolution. The black people in this country are not going to be turned back by anything or anybody.

"The revolution of blacks and the young people points up that the country needs change in certain areas, but those in control always want to maintain the status quo. How long will they silence the voices of change?"

* * *

Mrs. Chisholm believes she is representative of "a new breed of politician emerging on the scene." She began blazing her new Chisholm trail years ago when she became the first black Democratic National Committee member—man or woman.

"People say they don't know why I have to fight so hard. 'You've got a good education, three degrees and a good job. Why knock yourself out?' Well, I'm trying to prove to the world and to young people in particular that there are politicians that really belong to the people. The people in the street are constantly by my side.

'CAN'T LAST'

"People said, when I became the first black woman from Brooklyn in the New York Legislature four years ago, 'Shirley can't last!' They felt the political world would eat me up. But I'm a very determined woman.

* * *

"Politicians respect me for my intelligence but they don't like me for my independent spirit. On certain issues they are somewhat afraid of my mouth. I'm extremely talkative, and I know what I'm talking about."

* * *

Husband Conrad Chisholm, a former private detective who is now senior investigator for the Bureau of Medical Services, says he's very elated about what his wife of 19 years is doing. "She is a beacon light for her race."

Mrs. Chisholm's Barbados-born mother, Ruby St. Hill, a dressmaker, lives only a few blocks from her daughter's Brooklyn apartment.

ENCOURAGED BY FATHER

Her father, born in British Guiana and a laborer in a burlap bag factory, encouraged Shirley, oldest of four sisters, to make something of herself.

"He was my greatest idol," she recalls. "He believed in me. He said I'd be a great woman. When he died I almost went to pieces. 'I know you have it, Shirls, he said. 'The road will be tough, but you'll do it.' I'm going to do it to show my father!"

* * *

After her election, Vice President Hubert Humphrey called to congratulate her. "Shirley," she reported he said, "you're the bright light."

She commiserated with his loss of the presidency, told him "You're young, you're ebullient" and ended with "Keep the faith, baby."

Old Oakes' Tree Is Sent to Italy

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario (AP) — A huge, 170-year-old walnut tree, which grew on the former Sir Harry Oakes estate near Niagara Falls, finally had to be removed because it began showing signs of deterioration.

The tree, a mere seedling when William Lyon Mackenzie, a former Canadian prime minister, was a preschooler, grew on land now administered by the Niagara Parks Commission.

Its valuable dark wood is being exported to Italy, where it will be made into veneer.

Lindsay: U.S. Must Commit Itself to Quest for Stability

(EDITOR'S NOTE — John V. Lindsay, Republican mayor of New York City, outlines what he foresees for America over the next several decades and what he thinks will be necessary to solve its problems.)

By JOHN V. LINDSAY
Mayor, New York City

NEW YORK (AP) — Following the lead of America's intrepid astronauts who made their historic thrust into the future in the closing days of 1968, this country should stand ready in 1969 to undertake a similar mission of discovery into the future —and quality—of our own civilization.

With the example before us of the long, expensive, complex and finally successful planning that went into our moon-shot program, America should be inspired now to commit the same kind of intelligence and resources to its future stability as a nation.

I am hopeful.

Writing at the beginning of 1969, the last year in one of our nation's most troubled decades, I find myself inclined not simply to underline the present ills of our cities but to look into the next several decades and ask what they will bring to American society.

★ ★ ★

Ten years from now, Americans probably will see:

● The growth of enormous metropolitan areas, demanding of us that we no longer think of the city alone, but of urban and suburban regions and of regional planning.

★ ★ ★

● A new kind of federalism, in which national government will have to coordinate and finance the programs necessary to make our cities livable, but in which local initiative and control will become the ultimate sources of decision.

★ ★ ★

● A new economy in which the fruits of technology will provide men with better lives, but which also will create—unless we act now—a hopeless situation in which those who are rich will become richer and those who are poor will remain trapped at the bottom of our social scale, prisoners of poverty.

END OF WAR?

The major element which underlies these prospects for the future is the possibility that the war in Vietnam can be ended, and that with a return to peace, the United States can redirect its resources and abilities to facing the future I have described; that we will be able to turn our attention to the major unfinished business of this nation, which is how to preserve our cities as the centers of our civilization.

★ ★ ★

First, we must have a strong awareness of what experts have been warning us about for some time: that soon the majority of our population will live in three massive megalopolises—Boston through New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington to Norfolk; Milwaukee through Chicago to Detroit; and San Diego through Los Angeles to San Francisco.

★ ★ ★

Congested highways and air corridors, water shortages, uncoordinated and unequal plans for controlling dirty air and dirty water, the beginning signs of what will come to be known as the "suburban crisis"—all these are the troublesome forerunners of these "supercities of the future."

★ ★ ★

The new type of federalism which will have to cope with urban America is not—and should never be—an extension of federal authority to lay down plans of its own, appropriate new sums of money earmarked for specific programs, or create new bureaucracies which will impede the pace of progress.

MUTUAL PLANNING

But the federal government, and only the federal government, can mobilize regions, inform them of their common problems and bring them together for fruitful mutual planning conferences.

★ ★ ★

Arrangements must be made to expand airports and control the air traffic in our crowded skies; to build high speed rail systems between major centers; to coordinate laws governing air and water pollution; to preserve and create new park and recreation areas; to patrol arterial highways; to provide new sources of water and power; to achieve more and better housing; to provide proper police, fire, sanitation and health protection; to make uniform the uneven welfare standards that warp the patterns of migration in this country.

★ ★ ★

And not only must the federal government begin to bring our cities together for the purpose of regional planning, it must also be willing to supply the vast amounts of money necessary to relieve the core cities of their intolerable financial burdens. No meaningful work for the future can be done while city after city struggles desperately to meet its spiraling operating costs, unequipped to gird effectively for the future.

★ ★ ★

Then, we must imagine what kind of an economy we will find in these huge metropolitan regions.

NOT TRUE IN CITIES

In the coming decade, we will have to correct the popular assumption that somehow ours is a nation that primarily makes things or grow things, with a smaller class of individuals providing services to those who labor.

★ ★ ★

This picture of America may still be true in the small town or in large sections of the country with sparse population. But, it is not true in our cities where 70 per cent of this nation lives and works.

★ ★ ★

In these cities we are turning rapidly to what economist Victor Fuchs called "the first service economy," an economy in which more men and women are providing service to others than are laboring to make any product or to grow any commodity.

★ ★ ★

The conclusion to be drawn from this is a disturbing one: the premium on education and technical expertise, already so high, will go up. There will be fewer and fewer jobs available for those who possess no training or skills at all.

As was pointed out last year by the Kerner riot commission on which I served as vice chairman, America is moving toward two societies—one white and one black. Others have warned of further division—young against old, liberal against conservative, rich against poor.

★ ★ ★

These divisions do exist. But beneath them lies a profound change in our civilization. We now give our highest rewards to well-educated, the young, the wealthy, the skilled and the articulate.

★ ★ ★

Yet, by its very nature—the decrease in unskilled jobs, automation, institutionalized slums and prejudice—this same civilization makes it increasingly impossible for the have-nots to acquire those very attributes we so handsomely reward.

★ ★ ★

There is no doubt we have the resources—both financial and intellectual—to reverse this situation.

★ ★ ★

It was Lincoln who observed: "The legitimate object of government is to do for a community of people whatever they need to have done but cannot do at all, or cannot so well do, for themselves, in their separate and individual capacities. If all the people can individually do as well for themselves, government ought not to interfere."

WISE POLICY

This is a wise policy. For this reason, although I have emphasized the role the federal government must play, I firmly believe that final control must rest with the small units of government brought into cooperative action through national coordination. In this way, the people can have an effective voice in shaping the plans and action that will so directly affect their lives.

★ ★ ★

We shall also need a new respect for the rule of law, for the rights of others.

★ ★ ★

We must have an extension of education, a crash program for the immediate handicaps that keep so many Americans out of the mainstream of our economy and culture.

★ ★ ★

We will need experiments, financed by demonstration grants, to determine what avenues toward the future will be most beneficial.

And, we must be willing to reward those who do experiment and those who cooperate in what will certainly have to be—if it is to succeed—a joint venture of many parties bent on improving the quality of American life.

Girl on Toboggan Is Killed by Car

TRAVERSE CITY (AP) — Katerine Ann Gourley, 6, of Traverse City died in a car-toboggan accident Wednesday near her home.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City after being struck by a passing car.

The car's driver, a 26-year-old woman, told police the toboggan, carrying Katerine and her 9-year-old brother, shot out suddenly from a driveway. There was no report of injury to the boy.

Man Charged in Auto Death

HOLLAND (AP) — A Holland man, Thomas Gebben, 28, has been charged with negligent homicide and bound over to Ottawa County Circuit Court in connection with the death of a Holland woman last Nov. 30.

★ ★ ★

The woman, Agnes Schapp, 82, died in a car-truck accident.

Gebben's hearing is scheduled for Jan. 27.

Inspection Eyed for Fish Products

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to expand mandatory federal food inspection laws to include fish and fishery products was introduced Wednesday in the House by Reps. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., and John Dingell, D-Mich.

Federal inspectors would carry out the program in states that failed to do the job on their own. Inspections would be required for fishing boats and processing plants, and there would be controls on imports.

Star Has Turned TV Series Into Real Bonanza

AP Photo

THEY CAN AFFORD TO SMILE — Lorne Greene, seen here with his wife in Hollywood, has made success work for him. He shares in, or has originated, several enterprises based on his well-established TV series, "Bonanza," including steak houses, food products and resort-type "Ponderosa" ranch.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK — If you believe what you see most Sunday nights, the Ponderosa is a vast, fertile spread in the Lake Tahoe region. Ben Cartwright, the cattle baron, and his two stalwart lads spend their time mending fences, picking up strays and saving schoolmarms in distress and are awfully rich, although heaven knows how because they rarely seem to be tending the cows.

As it turns out, Lorne Greene, Dan Blocker and Michael Landon, who have been "Bonanza's" Cartwright family for the past 10 years, are developing the Ponderosa in a way that makes old Ben look like a primitive herdsman.

The acting trio, in partnership with NBC and some land-owning outsiders, are developing a huge tract at Lake Tahoe into a tourist attraction. A replica of the "Bonanza" ranch has been built, and there is an entertainment center. Last season it was visited by some 200,000 rubberneckers — and that's just the beginning.

"The three of us, realizing how much interest there was in the Ponderosa, started talking about constructing a replica of the ranch house," Greene explained. "Our original idea was to have a hand in booking tours to the United States from other countries — 'Bonanza' is very popular abroad — and after the tourists had a look at the rest of the country, take them to the Ponderosa, dress them in ranch clothes and give them a week in the old West."

SIDELINES

That is still in the future and so is a plan about running the place as a working dude ranch. But even now some sidelines are spinning out of the project, including merchandising food products using the magic name.

Greene, who may be as shrewd a businessman as he is a skilled performer, is also a partner in a traveling Ponderosa ranch — a collapsible ranch house that travels on two trailer trucks and can be set up, complete with reproductions of the show's furniture, at state fairs, rodeos and home shows.

Then there are the "Bonanza" steak houses, in which Greene is an officer and stockholder. This is a chain for franchised eating places that also parlays the show's name.

Thus, Greene, now in his early 50s, is a millionaire, all on the strength of one television series. And so are two other unknowns of 10 years ago, Blocker and Landon, although their investment interests move generally into different areas.

FICKLE NATURE

Such is the fickle nature of television fame, that most performers become security-conscious when they are lucky enough to be involved in a show in the hit category. By shrewd investment, partnerships and incorporation, stars whose incomes suddenly shoot into the six-figure category can avoid the big income tax bite and salt away enough for the future.

Greene, who became a TV favorite comparatively late, was not exactly a lean and hungry contender when "Bonanza" was born a decade ago. He was, in fact, Canada's most popular newscaster and chief announcer for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. during World War II.

★ ★ ★

He became interested in theater when he was studying chemical engineering in college and upon graduation won a fellowship at the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York.

He returned to Canada, but found acting jobs scarce, and he entered broadcasting.

ONE-SHOT ROLE

A chance encounter during a visit in New York led to a one-shot role in an old "Studio One" television drama with the result that Greene quite his excellent radio employment — and never looked back. Eleven years ago, after considerable TV and stage experience, he was cast in his first Western — a now forgotten film called "The Hard Man." This led in turn to a guest part in "Wagon Train," which so impressed producer David Dortort that he cast him as Ben Cartwright.

Greene does not worry about being permanently identified with the Cartwright role, although he believes the end is nowhere in sight for the series. His contract has two years to run with the series, but since "Bonanaza" seems to have a permanent niche in the Nielsen top 10 shows, the series could achieve the kind of longevity associated with daytime soap operas.

Presidential Aide Rostow Defends U.S. Vietnam Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has opened a "future of independence" for the nations of Asia and the possibility of some new relationship with Red China because of its role in Vietnam, says presidential assistant Walt T. Rostow.

Rostow puts Vietnam peacemaking and "building the new Asia" among the major problems of the incoming Nixon administration.

Other top foreign policy problems for the foreseeable future include, in his view, stabilizing the war-racked Middle East, negotiating nuclear weapons limitations with Russia and finding a solution for the racial conflict in Africa.

WAIT T. ROSTOW

An economist and former college professor, Rostow has worked in the top levels of government since the first days of the Kennedy administration eight years ago. For three years he has served President Johnson as special assistant for International Security affairs, earning the sobriquet of resident White House hawk. Before that he headed the State Department's policy-planning staff.

DETERMINED DEFENDER

He is leaving government as a determined defender of U.S. intervention in Vietnam, and an advocate of strong powers for a president to act as necessary in foreign crises, even without full or formal action by Congress.

"I want to say one thing I have learned from eight years of working under two presidents and from being a consultant in the Eisenhower administration," Rostow said in an interview.

★ ★ ★

"The American people need never fear that a president of the United States is out looking to engage our forces. It is the most reluctant decision a president can make."

Rostow argues that the United States would have been drawn into a bigger war in Asia, involving Communist China, if it had not chosen to fight in Vietnam. He contends that U.S. interests in Europe and the Middle East have not been damaged by the Johnson administration's concern with Asian affairs.

KEY QUESTIONS

Following are some of the key questions and Rostow responses:

Q. Suppose President Johnson had chosen to pull out of Vietnam in 1965 after deciding enlarged war would not be worth the cost. Why wouldn't that have been an acceptable course of action?

Rostow: I know it was President Kennedy's judgment in 1961 that the consequence of pulling out would mean stating to Asia and the world that our commitments under the SEATO treaty were not viable.

That would have meant a movement of the whole area under Communist control. It would have meant also that the flank of the Indian subcontinent would go. And when that result was fully revealed, the United States would not sit still for those consequences but would reengage, under worse circumstances, and we would have a bigger war . . . .

DIFFICULT CHOICE

I was in the State Department when President Johnson was going through his very difficult decision of 1965 to bomb the North and send in combat troops. It is my impression that his judgment was that the net consequences of our withdrawing and accepting disaster in Vietnam would be a later, bigger war and one with a nuclear China involved.

★ ★ ★

Q. Is it your feeling that four years later, and $100 billion later, and 30,000 lives later, this was well-justified decision?

Rostow: Yes.

Q. And you think that a larger war has been avoided?

Rostow: If we see it through, I believe so.

We have seen in the wake of President Johnson's decision of 1965 a most remarkable change in the contours of Asia. In terms of economic and social development we see great vitality in Korea, Japan, Taiwan, Thailand, Malaysia.

SENSE OF CONFIDENCE

But much more than that, Asians have a sense of confidence now that they have a future of their own to make. We see the beginnings for the first time in history of cooperation among Asian nations through such organizations as the Asian Pacific Council and the Southeast Asian associations, and the Asian Development Bank.

Formerly Asian leaders did not know whether their future would be one of independence or one under China's control, because there is no relevant power out there to cope with China except ourselves. . .

★ ★ ★

This has been an extraordinarily painful passage in our history which, I think, will be respected and proved as the right course, if we and the Asians follow through to consolidate and build the kind of Asia that now can be built.

★ ★ ★

Q. Has the Vietnam war crystallized the whole issue over what the proper U.S. world role should be?

Rostow: Vietnam, as an issue debated with such strong feeling in our country, has had many dimensions. One of them has been, of course, that Western European countries have not taken part as allies in the war in Vietnam even though some were members of SEATO.

The fact that our European allies did not engage their forces has tended to make some Americans feel that perhaps the war was not justified.

'PHASE OF HISTORY'

In my view the European detachment from the war was a product of the phase of Western European history in which some of the key nations were getting over the shock and strain of the end of colonialism, a period also when Western Europe has been frustrated in its movement toward unity. It has thus been incapable of projecting its influence effectively outside of Europe. . .

Q. The United States has sometimes been criticized in recent years for being "policeman of the world". Isn't there some truth in this?

Rostow: One basic point we should be clear on. Where we have acted with force, we have acted either under the United Nations or we have acted in terms of treaties. There are a great many areas of turbulence in the world in which the United States has not engaged itself except diplomatically, and sometimes not even that. . .

RELUCTANT DECISIONS

I have had the privilege and duty of being present when President Kennedy and President Johnson made decisions which have involved such grave matters. I know the extraordinary reluctance with which such decisions are made.

There is no impulse in the executive branch to go rushing around the world fixing things unless they are of vital interest to the United States and require action as a matter of last reort.

Q. Hasn't the United States lost ground in Europe while it was so heavily involved with Southeast Asia?

Rostow: I don't believe that to be true. I think the problems of Europe have been the result of frustration in these years of the movement toward European integration. I don't believe, for example, that President de Gaulle's decision to pull France out of the integrated arrangements of NATO had anything to do with Vietnam.

Q. Could the United States not take a more active role in trying to solve the European problem of integration?

Rostow: No. I don't believe that thoughtful Europeans honestly think that we have the capacity to change President de Gaulle's view of British entry into the Common Market which is the central issue.

MOMENTUM NEEDED

Until that issue is settled and the momentum toward Western European unity picks up again, we will have a problem of Europe not being able to play the part in the world that its resources, its interests, and its capacities would dictate that it should play.

★ ★ ★

Q. Isn't it true that there has been a relative decline in United States authority in the Middle East (and a growth of Soviet influence) as a result of the involvement in the Vietnamese war?

Rostow: I don't know of any firm evidence that would connect the war in Vietnam with our Middle East position. The problem of the Middle East is that it is an area with multiple schisms—the Arab-Israeli, the racial nationalists versus the more modern Arabs, the Arab countries and other Muslim countries.

HEART-BREAKING

It is a heartbreaking area for a man whose primary interest is growth and economic development. Because you have got the resources there—oil and others—which with just a reasonable effort of cooperation, could really move that area forward rapidly. . .

They (Arab states) have been caught up in an obsession with the problem of Israel. And the Soviets have manipulated that obsession. I don't see that the problem of Vietnam has altered any of that.

Michigan's Share

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson requested $5.3 million as Michigan's share of over $1.1 billion dollars for the Army Engineers. Michigan funds would be used for flood control on the River Rouge and navigational improvements on the Saginaw River.

Filipinos Want It Back

Army-Navy Club Stirs Row

(EDITOR'S NOTE—The Japanese tried to bomb it out of existence during World War II but the Army-Navy Club in Manila remained. But now it is facing destruction from another source. The city of Manila wants to buy it back and has gone into the courts to get it.)

By AMADIS Ma. GUERRERO

MANILA (AP)—The old U.S. Army and Navy Club, a rambling, elegant and almost legendary symbol of the American colonial era in the Philippines, is facing a cloudy future.

The courts may put an end to it, something the Japanese army tried but failed to do with explosives and flaming oil during World War II.

Many famous names are associated with the club, a landmark on the shores of picturesque Manila Bay for more than 60 years.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who served as the president in 1924-25, and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower highlight the list of distinguished members.

The aura of dignity surrounding the club is being threatened by controversy.

The city of Manila, which owned the club's land from 1905 to 1918, says it wants to buy it back. The Americans who own it now say they don't want to sell.

★ ★ ★

It has become a delicate issue in this developing Southeast Asian country where rising Filipino nationalism does not make headlines, but there is plenty of legal maneuvering under way.

It may take the Philippine Supreme Court to settle things.

RULING NULLIFIED

The issue came into focus several months ago with a Supreme Court decision which, in effect, nullified a lower court ruling that Manila was no longer entitled to the property.

A real estate lawyer close to the case, Manuel Montecillo, says it will go back to the lower courts, which will decide whether Manila has the right to repurchase the club. The final decision would rest with the Supreme Court.

The property was sold to the Army and Navy Club in 1918, subject to the condition that the city could buy it back for public purposes after 50 years.

In 1963, however, two years after then-Mayor Arsenio Lacson had served notice that Manila would exercise this right, the club's owners filed a petition for the cancellation of the repurchase clause.

PETITION CONTESTED

The petition was granted by a lower court, but later contested by the city. The case then was turned over to the Supreme Court which ruled that all the rights of the parties involved should be redefined at a date still undetermined.

The present mayor of Manila, Antonio Villegas, is silent on his plans for the club, but an aide has observed it would make a perfect museum for Manila.

The three-story, whitewashed building is surrounded by palm trees and gardens with a large swimming pool and tennis courts. There are richly appointed dining rooms and a theater where plays are regularly presented.

A former resident, retired U.S. Capt. T.C. Parker, has described the club as "without parallel in our service history."

'AIDED MORALE'

In an article for Naval Institute Proceedings, official organ of the U.S. Naval Institute, Parker said "It has contributed much to the morale and welfare of thousands of service officers, their families and its civilian members as well."

During the Japanese occupation in World War II, the building became the Japanese Army and Navy Club of Manila.

As the war drew to a close, the Japanese military, in an act of spite against the American liberation forces, blasted the building with mines and burning barrels of oil.

Offers Time for Sober Thought

'Farm' for Alcoholics Serene

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Somewhere between the drunk cells and Alcoholics Anonymous is a place called Serenity Farms. It's much of a Pennsylvania paradise for alcoholics who want to recover. They do a great deal of farm work there—and a great deal of unpressured thinking.)

HICKORY, Pa. (AP) — The gray farmhouse sits next to a lake in the hilly wooded countryside. Fat little ducks laze in the afternoon sun.

Three men are building a new chimney on one side of the house. They laugh and joke with each other as they mix cement, lift concrete blocks and hoist them up into place.

★ ★ ★

Their pace is leisurely and relaxed. They don't have to work. But they are not simply working to rebuild the chimney. They are working at rebuilding themselves.

★ ★ ★

This is Serenity Farms, a 101-acre home for recovering alcoholics. And it wasn't too long ago that these same men sat in jail cells or hospital wards or were sleeping off a drunk in an alley. Now they plow the fields, feed and slaughter livestock and handle the routine chores of farm life.

'REALISM'

"We don't refer to this as an institution, but as a home," says Frank Fagan Jr., a lean man in his 40s with a head of close-cropped white hair. "Institutions treat alcoholics like children. Here we stress reality. A lot of these men have led adventuresome lives. In life they aren't going to be making leather wallets or playing dominoes."

★ ★ ★

Fagan is a recovered alcoholic, and Serenity Farms, located 25 miles southwest of Pittsburgh, is his idea. He considers it a pioneer venture in alcoholic treatment and rehabilitation and, envisions places like it springing up all over the country—quiet retreats where lonely, shaky and confused alcoholics can come to think.

★ ★ ★

"A place where a man can make some valid decisions not based on panic," Fagan says. "Maybe the decision is 'I like being a drunk.' But at least it's a decision."

★ ★ ★

In a little over a year, Serenity Farms has blossomed from several rooms in an old red brick tenement house in one of Pittsburgh's worst ghetto areas into the 17-room farmhouse that can accommodate 30 men.

CONCRETE RESULTS

On their own initiative, the some 425 men who've stayed here for varying lengths of time have renovated the once run-down farmhouse and added a new wing to it. They've also built fences, animal pens and a cottage and have done considerable landscaping.

"The men who come here have been institutionalized 22 times apiece," Fagan says. "To me this says we're doing something wrong. Serenity Farms has to be made as real as possible. Otherwise we just become the 23rd institution on the list."

★ ★ ★

Fagan says the men who've been at the farm have come from all walks of life: lawyers, doctors, engineers, industrialists, laborers. "You name it," he rattles on, "soldiers of fortune and lumberjacks and we even had one guy who went to build railroads in the Orient."

★ ★

The men come to the farm voluntarily and have to want to keep sober. If they have any money, they pay. If they don't, the farm will provide them with clothing, medicine and cigarettes. The farm exists solely on contributions from donors including former alcoholics who recuperated at the farm.

HUMAN NEEDS

"The biggest problem for the indigent alcoholic," says Fagan, "is that when he gets out of the institution there is only one place he's accepted. That's back at the tavern. At least at Serenity Farms he gets companionship. People he can laugh and talk with."

★ ★ ★

He also gets medical attention, psychotherapy, legal advice and employment counseling from professionals who volunteer their services. And the farm attempts to get the men back into community life through contacts made in Alcoholics Anonymous groups, and links are forged with long-forgotten families.

★ ★ ★

Fagan says he concentrates on trying to alleviate many of the problems that stem from alcoholism.

"The standard treatment for alcoholics in society is confinement," Fagan says. "But if you take a drunk, divorced, unemployed, unskilled ex-convict and you sober him up, you just get a sober, divorced, unemployed, unskilled ex-convict."

MEANINGFUL LABOR

Fagan says for some of the men the farm work is a way to relearn lost skills. For others, for men who never before picked up a hammer or saw, the work is therapeutic.

George, a soft-spoken amiable man of 58 who made drinking a way of life for 30 years, is typical of the former professional man who has benefitted from a little manual labor. He came to the farm a year ago and decided to stay on. He is the resident manager. Once he was a specialist in transportation problems.

★ ★ ★

"I came here with a lot of misgivings," he says. "I'd never done much of this work. I helped a guy carry a few boards and I thought I'd pass out. But I actually began to enjoy it. When spring came I took over the landscaping.

"This was the time I did most of my thinking. I began to realize what I would have to do to accept the fact I was an alcoholic."

VOLUNTARY HELP

The men are sent to Alcoholics Anonymous meetings in nearby towns if they want to go. But Fagan says the farm fills a void that Alcoholics Anonymous cannot.

"Alcoholics Anonymous," he says, "has no hospitals or rehabilitation programs. It's a loose-knit organization that operates on peer group thereapy. It's a middle-class phenomenon. It's good for the guy in the suburbs."

★ ★ ★

Fagan, however, does not dismiss Alcoholics Anonymous. It was responsible for his own recovery.

SEEKING UNDERSTANDING — The Rev. John Beiseneir, standing by the fireplace, conducts a group therapy session at Serenity Farms, a peaceful, but this world-oriented community for recovering alcoholics. Those participating in the Serenity program spend varying lengths of time there and can do farm work or, if they choose, simply spend their time considering their problems and possible solutions. Psychologists, counselors, lawyers and clerics like Rev. Beiseneir are also available to the program's participants.

Ruler, Kin Live Well in Oil-Rich Qatar

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Once upon a time, there was a little sheikhdom on the Persian Gulf called Qatar. One day, they started pumping oil from the land. The ruler lived prosperously. His cousin lived prosperously. His brother lived prosperously. And Qatar lived happily ever after.)

By DENNIS NEELY

DOHA, Qatar (AP)—In the prospering Persian Gulf sheikhdom of Qatar—pronounced "gutter"—it pays to be an al-Thani.

The ruler is Sheikh Ahmad bin Ali al-Thani. His cousin, Sheikh Khalifa, is deputy ruler, heir apparent and minister of finance. Khalifa's brother, Sheikh Jassim bin Hamad al-Thani, is minister of education.

* * *

Their personal fortunes probably run into millions, but no male member of the al-Thani clan has cause for complaint.

* * *

There are nearly 500 al-Thanis, each of them a sheikh, and every man and boy gets a generous monthly handout from the national coffers simply for being one.

IT'S A SECRET

Just how much they get is an al-Thani secret. But Sheikh Ahmad's largesse is variously estimated to cost Qatar anything up to half its income, mainly from oil, of about $96 million a year.

* * *

The Qatar Petroleum Co., a consortium of American, British, Dutch and French interests, began pumping oil in 1949 and the al-Thanis never looked back.

* * *

For an al-Thani, Sheikh Ahmad's dole begins at birth and increases as the boy gets older. Close relatives of the ruler tend to get more than country cousins.

Women are out of luck. They get nothing.

PALACE PENCHANT

The al-Thanis have a penchant for palaces, and in the dry and dusty capital of Doha there are dozens of them.

* * *

Sheikh Ahmad has two on the outskirts of town, facing each other across the street. He keeps a wife in each.

* * *

Downtown he has a third, used as an office, and another which serves as a conference center. All are glittering, grandiose and air-conditioned, and at night blaze with colored lights.

* * *

The al-Thanis are Sunni Moslems of the strict Wahabi sect which demands absolute obedience to the tenets of the Koran. They wash and pray five times daily, fast during the month of Ramadhan and forbid alcohol to all Qataris.

SOME BETTER OFF

Some foreign residents are better off. On the first day of the month it is more than a courtesy call that brings the thirsty stream of visitors to the office of the British political agent.

They go to pick up liquor licenses permitting them to import 12 bottles of the hard stuff, 12 of wine and 12 crates of beer.

* * *

The privilege is confined to Europeans.

Britain is the only nation diplomatically represented in Qatar and by a 1916 treaty guarantees its defense and conducts its foreign relations.

OTHERWISE ABSOLUTE

Sheikh Ahmad and cousin Khalifa are otherwide absolute rulers in the 4,000-square-mile Qatar peninsula jutting northward for 100 miles into the Persian Gulf.

There is no parliament and no political party. The national budget, understandably, has never been made public. There never has been an election.

Nevertheless, there is a traditional form of tribal Arab democracy. Every Qatari with a grievance or a grudge has the right to put it personally before the ruler at his daily "majlis."

Every morning the great gates of Sheikh Ahmad's downtown palace swing open to allow petitioners to enter. Some wait days to be noticed and intermediaries do a thriving trade.

ENTRIES WHISPERED

Finally they are beckoned to the ruler's desk to whisper entreaties in the royal ear.

But if the al-Thanis have never had it so good, neither have the 80,000 more lowly people of Qatar, half of them immigrants from neighboring Arab lands, India, Pakistan and Iran, who came in with the oil rush.

* * *

There is virtually no taxation and schooling, and health services are free.

* * *

The first primary school for boys opened only 16 years ago, that for girls in 1955. Today there are more than 70 schools in Qatar and many students are sent abroad to universities at the state's expense.

GOOD HIGHWAYS

Four-lane highways, still almost bare of traffic, lace the capital. Soon, when Qatar's roads link up with neighboring Saudi Arabia's, it will be possible to drive on tarmac all the way to Europe.

* * *

Old mud-walled houses have been bulldozed to make way for modern homes and office blocks. A new harbor is being built and industries planned.

* * *

Qatar is a member of the fledgling Federation of Arab Gulf Emirates, linking it with the island of Bahrein and seven so-called Trucial States.

The new Gulf grouping hopes to help fill the power vacuum likely to be created by Britain's military withdrawal from the area promised by the end of 1971.

NOT FAR AWAY

Twentieth century politics and demands for popularly elected government cannot be far behind.

POWERS THAT BE—Sheikh Ahmad of Qatar chats with his British head of security forces, Mohammed Mahdi. A former Glasgow policeman, Mahdi was known as Ron Cochran until he became Moslem three years ago.

Army Helps Hippie to Draw a Bead on Life

By JOHN T. WHEELER

Once he considered fleeing the United States to avoid the draft. He hated the Vietnam war only slightly more than he despised "the Green Machine," as some GIs call the Army.

But in the crucible of combat, Taylor became as courageous a combat rifleman as any company commander could hope to lead. Out of the blood and fear of Vietnam, Taylor found a new, and by the standards of a society he once rejected, far better way of life.

Taylor earned his combat infantryman's badge the hard way. But he demanded, and got, army officialdom to ignore such soldierly failings as a refusal to wear rank or dog tags, hair and sideburns in excess of GI standards, letters addressed to "Mr." instead of "Sgt." Taylor and a strand of Mexican jade beads that never left his neck from induction until the end of his front line tour.

BROKEN VERTEBRAE

A year and a half ago, the Army and Taylor had no interest in each other. On St. Valentine's Day, 1965, Taylor suffered two broken vertebrae in a fall. He was classified as medically unfit for service.

Taylor, 23, of Laguna Beach, Calif., was sorry about the back but glad about the draft.

★ ★ ★

As the war got bigger, so did Taylor's pacifist indignation and the draft board's need for men. Lowered physical requirements set in motion machinery that put Taylor into jungle battles that left him scarred for life and very nearly cost him his life.

But when Taylor got his fourth notice to report for induction, he thought things would go the way they had before.

HAIR AT SHOULDERS

Taylor, hair at shoulder length, thought a bit of insurance might not hurt and took enough drugs that, in his words, "I was nearly incoherent."

Exasperated officials at the induction center took one look at Taylor, in a soiled T-shirt, bermuda shorts and beads, and sent him to the phychiatrist who recognized Taylor was high.

★ ★ ★

"He asked me, 'What about the Army?' I said, 'It's a bum trip, I'm not going to go.'" The psychiatrist asked Taylor if he were a drug addict. "No, the only thing I'm addicted to is freedom. And I'm not going any place where I have to fight and kill. I don't believe in it."

The psychiatrist—prophetically—shot back: "Son, you're going and you're going to make a good soldier.

A SYMBOLIC STEP

Taylor was ordered to join the other draftees for the swearing in ceremony and the symbolic step forward that would put him legally in the army.

Taylor refused to take either oath or step. He was threatened with jail. He still refused. Finally Taylor and the Army struck the first of many compromises.

Taylor was allowed to skip the oath and left the room without crossing the line, provided he got on the bus with the other recruits for Ft. Ord.

★ ★ ★

At Ft. Ord, Taylor was finally on Army turf where the Green Machine's chief business is to remake civilians into fighting men.

SHAVED HEADS

Shortly after dawn on the fourth day, Taylor, his friend and all the "straight" recruits were marched to the barbershop. Taylor and his friend emerged from the barbershop with something akin to a shave. Angry red welts covered their heads.

Life was not difficult for Taylor until it came time to draw a rifle. Taylor and his friend refused to carry what they called "death sticks."

★ ★ ★

Both were reviled as "duds," Army slang for misfits. Finally the drill sergeant pleaded that the pair simply fire someone's weapons down range, adding that the score already was rigged to insure points for that cup. Taylor rebelled. "I agreed to the firing range bit. It was a big mistake. They had me again." Taylor, who was a hunter during boyhood, demanded that the score be honest, fired and qualified as an expert. His friend rated a marksman qualification.

★ ★ ★

Taylor still figured he would get out of the Army and deliberately flunked the physical fitness tests. This would mean a discharge from the Amy, he had been told.

AUTOMATIC PASS

But a test was scheduled for all men who flunked the original exam and Taylor was told by those giving the test he would pass no matter what his score was.

"The machine had me again. I was determined to do my best rather than take a dishonest score." He did, and the machine racked up another point.

★ ★ ★

Taylor made what he thought at the time would be his last-ditch effort to get out of the Army. After being transferred to Ft. Polk for advanced infantry training, he reported daily on sick call complaining of hallucinations, which, because of drugs, was partly true.

★ ★ ★

Finally he was sent to a phychiatrist who spotted the bluff and the drugs. He said Taylor could have a Section 212 discharge, meaning he could not adapt to Army life.

HAUNTING DISCHARGE

Taylor recalls a surge of elation at the words. Then the doctor said such a discharge implied disgrace and would haunt Taylor for life.

Taylor made another long distance call to his girlfriend. He asked for advice. The girl said the scene had gone bad at home. The surfing life had been pushed out by a rougher crowd. "Don't come home. It won't be the same."

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

At last he completed advanced infantry training and was given 17 days leave before shipping out to Vietnam.

UNSURE OF DECISION

He left for Oakland, telling his parents he was still unsure whether he would go to Vietnam or refuse on moral grounds and take a jail sentence. Waiting at the sprawling Army terminal, one man in the crowd of GIs shouted his refusal to go and was hustled off. Taylor got on a second and far more fateful bus, this time to Travis Air Force Base and the jet that would take him to war.

★ ★ ★

Taylor arrived in the middle of the Communists' Tet offensive. He was hardly off the plane at Bien Hoa Air Base when he came under mortar attack. He was ordered to report to the 1st Infantry Division, the Big Red One, where he ultimately was placed in Delta Company, 1st Battalion, 2nd Infantry. His first night with his new unit was spent in a fighting bunker. The hippie had come to war.

★ ★ ★

"At the end of two weeks, I was sick, definitely sick. Our company started out with 94 men and we were down to 39. In my squad there were just two of us left of those who started out."

★ ★ ★

April 4, the day Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated, Taylor met his greatest test in Vietnam on a night ambush. The nine Americans were set up along a road with Taylor's spot dead on it. And that was the way the 15 enemy troops came as they walked into the trap.

GIS OUTNUMBERED

"My heart was racing. I knew we were badly outnumbered. Some of the men panicked and retreated. I stuck."

As the enemy troops drew near Taylor, it was not a pacificist's hand that fired the first Claymore mine. In the brilliant flash of the explosion, Taylor would see the torn bodies of enemy riflemen bent double and flying backwards from the force of the explosion. Taylor fired off two more mines with deadly effect. This time there was no question of personal involvement. It was kill or be killed.

★ ★ ★

One burst of automatic weapons fire hit Taylor in the leg. An enemy grenade exploded near his foot, ripping off his boot and sending shrapnel into an ankle and his arm. A second American was badly wounded in the face from another grenade explosion. The surviving three Americans decided to make a run for it. Taylor recalled thinking as he heard the enemy troops crashing through the underbrush in pursuit: "What the hell is a hippie doing getting killed out here?" Plowing on through the night, they made it back to American lines.

★ ★ ★

Taylor has finished his time in the field now and works in a rear area until his date to return to the United States. Along the way in Vietnam, Taylor swore off drugs and alcohol. "I don't condemn anyone who uses drugs. But living a life of illusion is no good. I can see that now. Drugs and alcohol are crutches. I found in Vietnam you need every ounce of intelligence and energy just to get out alive. And I don't need anything to decieve myself with anymore. Men need to know what's real and what's going on."

★ ★ ★

Fingering the Mexican jade beads of his necklace, Taylor said, "When I get home, I'm going to buff up the beads back to a good lustre and put a coat of lacquer on them. The I'll restring them and put them away.

"I don't need them anymore."

AP Wirephoto

HIPPIE TURNS SOLDIER — Brian Taylor shed enough of his hippie philosophy to meet the Army halfway and the Army met this by helping him earn respect and learn self-respect. Taylor wore the beads as a GI, but he'll put them away when he gets home.

British Actor's Career: From Pillar to Pope

(EDITOR'S NOTE — British actor Alec McCowen has been working pretty regularly for 25 years. Suddenly, he's a star, playing a fictitious pope — a smoking pope, no-less—in "Hadrian VII." The play was the hit of the London West End and now has been brought to Broadway.)

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK — Coming to Broadway in the great triumph of his theater career has special meaning for Alec McCowen.

"The first time I saw acting of real quality was in New York," says the English star, calmly contradicting the bromidic consensus which insists British players are best.

★ ★ ★

"I've been greatly influenced by American acting and directing, for which I'm very grateful," he goes on, "and I think the influence of that style back home has been much more than is generally acknowledged."

Any McCowen debt of creative impetus is being repaid with interest in "Hadrian VII," the London drama sensation which has just arrived at the Helen Hayes Theater.

'LITTLE HARDER'

"I think," he mused shortly before the premiere, "that this opening night is a little harder because we've got to live up to all that advance praise."

The play, about a man rejected for the priesthood who becomes pope, opened with a set of unanimous in-advance raves from the procession of New York critics who saw the piece abroad.

★ ★ ★

"I've never been knocked off balance by all the cheers," McCowen remarks, "because I've been working pretty steadily for 25 years."

★ ★ ★

Diffident, quietly droll in outlook, the slender man of 43 from Tunbridge Wells long since has gotten inured to being periodically "discovered" on stage, screen and TV.

IN ORIGINAL CAST

Luke based "Hadrian VII" on the works of Frederick William Rolfe, alias Baron Corvo, a minor early 20th century English exotic who used his own life for fictional fantasies.

★ ★ ★

"I was astonished with the London success," admits McCowen, who picked the project to flex his own creative range during a Birmingham run, but thought it would have "very limited appeal."

★ ★ ★

Now blessed with hindsight, he says: "What it really does is offer universal appeal. Cinderella goes to the ball; Hadrian goes to the Vatican—everyone can identify with that achieving of a dearest wish."

HOUR CUT

"I don't do a play to show off in a leading part," he asserts. "Basically, I do a play if it has a lot of nerve about it, if it makes me laugh. It doesn't have to be comedy, but a play has to say something, have a quality of outrage—that's what theater should always be, not life as most of us mundane creatures lead it.

★ ★ ★

"As far as this particul character is concerned, Hadrian suits me very well, because it comes closer to my own self than anything else I've done. I respect, too, in it the sense of humor that I'd like to have and the gift of language that I'd like to have."

He pauses, and a sudden twinkle dances in his eyes.

KISSING HAND

"What more could an actor want, than stage center, dressed in white, with everyone kissing his hand?"

En route to assuming the triple tiara, McCowen, a man "without strong religious leanings," has variously enacted a priest in "The Deputy," a bishop in "The Agony and the Ecstasy," an ambiguous deity in "After the Rain" and "just to give the other side a chance," a stern Protestant reformer in "Luther."

McCowen, from the time he was 16, knew that acting was his purpse in life, which he attributes partly to heredity—his mother had been a professional dancer and his grandsires were a preacher and a politician—and partly to the environmental influence of devoted moviegoing every Saturday.

"There's no other theater in the family. I have a sister, Jean, who concentrates on having lots of children."

APPRENTICESHIP

After what he maintains was a totally undistinguished stay at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts, he set off on the traditional English apprenticeship circuit of repertory companies in such spots as Macclesfiedl, Rhyl, Llanduno, Pengo, Bromley, High Wycombe—and finally St. John's, Newfoundland.

"My father told me I could go along for that 12-week visit with the Birmingham Rep if I saved all my salary for a visit to New York. "I'm very grateful for that 1948 experience because I did get to New York and the first play I saw was a matinee of 'A Streetcar Named Desire.'

★ ★ ★

"I immediately got standing room for the very next performance." The cast included Marlon Brando, Jessica Tandy and Karl Malden.

"It was the finest acting I'd ever seen, of a kind I'd never seen. I grew up in the theater at a time when English acting was very smug—brittle, clean, but with no depth. English actors are given more opportunity to have more training variety than Americans—because there are more companies at work—and to develop a perhaps enviable technique in clarity. But to combine that ability with the energy and reality of American actors is a very good thing."

ODD STAY IN '56

His current trip is McCowen's fourth working expedition to these shores. Previous visitations were with the Oliviers, the Royal Shakespeare Company "King Lear" tour headed by Paul Scofield, and just a year ago in "After the Rain."

His oddest stay was in 1956, following a hit run in London with Sam Levene and Ruth Gordon in "The Matchmaker," McCowen was dragooned into coming to New York to replace Robert Morse. But Equity intervened after just two road performances.

★ ★ ★

"When I saw Morse do the part, I thought he was better than I ever had been," he says, "and of course Morse was the only member of the stage cast who also made the movie."

Bachelor McCowen looks forward after his nine-month contract here in "Hadrian VII" is completed to a real change-of-pace role.

PART WITH APPEAL — Alec McCowen believes that "Hadrian VII," in which he is now starring in New York, offers universal appeal: "Everyone can identify with a desire to be Cinderella going to the ball — or, in this case, Hadrian going to the Vatican." The play also gives the 43-year-old English actor a character to play "which comes closer to my own self than anything else I've done."

Indian's Death Sentence Stirs South Dakota

The superintendent of the junior high school he attended said he had outstanding leadership ability. He is a graduate of the highly respected Shattuck School a military academy in Faribault, Minn.

★ ★ ★

He enrolled as a premedical student at the University of South Dakota, to fulfill his ambition of becoming a doctor.

Today Thomas James White Hawk is in death row at the South Dakota State Penitentiary.

HE AWAITS DEATH

He awaits death by electrocution on one of the first 14 days of February for the murder of a Vermillion, S.D., jeweler whose only previous contact with the young man had been to sell him an engagement ring.

Thomas White Hawk pleaded guilty to the charge of first-degree murder before Circuit Judge James R. Bandy.

★ ★ ★

Many who want both to save White Hawk's life and to abolish capital punishment in South Dakota feel the plea of guilty should have served as mitigation, that the death penalty should not have been imposed.

★ ★ ★

This is Judge Bandy's reply: "I did what was required of me under the law and the circumstances of the case. The case is now out of my hands. The Board of Pardons and Paroles and the governor must make their own judgments."

INDIAN LIFE HARD

There are about 40,000 Indians in South Dakota. Life, both socially and economically, is difficult for them. Many of them live in grinding poverty.

But Thomas White Hawk was taken out of that. His parents died less than one year apart when he was 10 years old. He went to live in the comparatively comfortable atmosphere, of the Bishop Hare Episcopal school at Mission, S.D., and attended Todd County junior high school.

★ ★ ★

He was a "B" student and an outstanding athlete.

He received a full scholarship to Shattuck School at Fairbault, Minn., one of the most respected military academies in the nation.

In the far more demanding scholastic climate of Shattuck, the Indian teen-ager still maintained a "C" average. Again he was an outstanding athlete. He set a Minnesota high-school pole-vaulting record in 1965.

PREMED STUDENT

Then, in the fall of 1966, Thomas James White Hawk enrolled as a premedical student at the University of South Dakota at Vermillion, where James Yeado had kept a small jewelry store for more than 20 years.

If Thomas White Hawk was an unlikely murderer, James Yeado was an equally unlikely victim.

James Yeado, 60, and his wife, Dorothea, had lived in the same modest house for 26 years. They had raised a son and daughter.

James Yeado was killed on March 24, 1967, two months after he had sold an engagement ring to his murderer.

COMPANION ABSOLVED

Before dawn that morning Thomas James White Hawk and a companion—who was later absolved of any connection with the murder—broke out a small piece of glass from the rear storm door of the Yeado house and entered. White Hawk said later they went to rob. They brought a 22-caliber rifle with them. Mr. and Mrs. Yeado were sleeping in separate upstairs bedrooms.

Twelve hours later law officers entered to find James Yeado's bloody, near-naked body in the basement beneath a pile of rugs and blankets. He had been shot once in the abdomen and again in the chest.

★ ★ ★

They found a cast-iron skillet with which Yeado had been struck so viciously that it had broken into three pieces.

Mrs. Yeado was wandering about in confusion, dressed in a salmon-colored housecoat. She said "the big one"—meaning White Hawk—had raped her twice.

HUDDLED IN CLOSET

Thomas James White Hawk, 19, was huddled beneath a pile of clothing in the closet of Mrs Yeado's bedroom.

Thomas White Hawk's original plea was not guilty by reason of insanity. He changed his plea to guilty—with no outside influence, he told the court. Judge Bandy sentenced him to die. If he does, he will be only the second person to be electrocuted in South Dakota's history.

White Hawk's chance of life depends on two things—the strength and effectiveness of those working for commutation of the sentence and the activities of his new attorney, Douglas Hall of Minneapolis.

There always has been sentiment in South Dakota for abolition of the death penalty, but it was the White Hawk case that formed it into an organized effort.

PETITIONS CIRCULATED

Several groups—white, Indian and multiracial — are circulating petitions. One set urged the Board of Pardons and Paroles and the governor to commute White Hawk's sentence to life imprisonment; the other seeks to put pressure on the state legislature to abolish capital punishment. The legislature convenes late in January.

Organizations as seemingly divergent as the monks of Blue Cloud Abbey at Marvin, S.D., and the South Dakota Young Democrats have adopted resolutions calling for commutation. The United Methodist Bishop of the Dakotas has written to all state legislators. The Episcopal Bishop of Sioux Falls has offered to coordinate fund-raising efforts to finance attorney Hall's activities.

Hall's work may be the most significant factor. South Dakota law allows him to apply for a postconviction hearing. He intends to do this, with the object of setting aside both the plea of guilty and the sentence. He feels the psychiatric elements of the case were not sufficiently explored.

Hall says there are factors that were not brought out at the trial—such as an athletic-field accident in which White Hawk was struck in the back of the head by a 12-pound shot while competing for Shattuck.

C. Burgess Ayres, Shattuck's headmaster, said he learned White Hawk had gone to the school infirmary 25 times after that accident, complaining of headaches and dizziness.

Hall has brought a team of psychiatrists from the Menninger Clinic to examine White Hawk. Their report will form the basis of his application for postconviction hearing.

Baleful Repose

He woke one morning recently to find that, during the night, someone had used his large hay baler, cut one of his fields, bundled the hay and carted it off.

TV Producer Leonard Likes Impossible Missions

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Television producer Sheldon Leonard pictures himself as a tilter of network windmills, a dreamer of impossible programming dreams. Judging from his past performance, other producers should try the Don Quixote bit.

THOMAS

The latest of the Leonard lances is aimed at the Sunday spot now being vacated by the Phyllis Diller show. Leonard's new series, "My Friend Tony," will be facing the formidable opposition of "Mission: Impossible" and ABC's Sunday night movie starting Jan. 5.

★ ★ ★

"I think we can make it," he says confidently.

★ ★ ★

Maybe so. After all, Leonard himself made it from playing gangsters in wide lapels and snap-brim hats to being mentor of a long string of television successes. With each show he had to battle the ossified thought patterns of the industry's programmers. He catalogued:

The Danny Thomas Show

"I was told that in the heartland of America, viewers would find no identification with a man who told jokes in a nightclub for a living. I solved that by placing the emphasis on him as husband and father."

The Andy Griffith Show

"Now I was told the reverse: that a rural comedian would not register in urban America. But I had my research department look up the huge sales of records by Eddy Arnold; a large percentage were sold in cities. That proved to me Andy would go over in the urban areas."

The Dick Van Dyke Show

"An inside show about television show couldn't possibly interest a mass audience, they told me. In fact, Jim Aubrey, then head of CBS, tried to convince me to change Dick from a comedy writer to an insurance man."

The Bill Dana Show

"This time they said I couldn't base a comedy show on a dialect comedian. The series failed — because I had tried to present a fantasy character against a realistic background.

Gomer Pyle

"An audience gravely concerned about the draft and the Vietnam war would not watch a show about soldiers, they argued. I solved that by placing Jim Nabors in a military environment that had nothing to do with fighting a war."

I Spy

"No show with foreign locations had ever succeeded, but I was willing to try." Leonard also poineered with a Negro costar, Bill Cosby.

LESS CHALLENGE

The producer's challenge in "My Friend Tony" seems less profound than those which went before, but he claims it is a real challenge: "No series has ever had a foreign-speaking leading man."

The new star is Enzo Cerusico, a handsome Italian whom Leonard chose for an "I Spy" segment in Rome. "I interviewed 50-60 actors for the part, and he was the only one who couldn't speak English," said Leonard. "I figured he must be good if the casting man would send him to me under those circumstances. And he was good.

★ ★ ★

"I put him under contract and brought him over here a year ago last June. Now his English is good. So good, in fact, that he is beginning to question why he does this and that in his scenes. I lose an hour or so a day because his English got good."

James Whitmore also stars in the hour show as a UCLA criminology professor who helps solve crimes by scientific methods.

U.S. and Russia Taking Divergent Space Paths

CAPE KENNEDY (UP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are taking divergent paths in the exploration of earth's planetary neighbors and the different priorities could help both nations.

★ ★ ★

With two Soviet spacecraft on the way to Venus, Russia appears to be concentrating on the mysterious, cloud-wrapped planet that orbits some 26 million miles closer to the sun than earth.

★ ★ ★

The United States, on the other hand, has placed top priority on exploring Mars and is now readying two mariner television probes for launch to the Red planet in February and March.

★ ★ ★

America has succeeded twice in flying instrument-laden spacecraft past Venus, but because of funding restrictions, the nation does not now have approved plans to further explore the planet.

EYES SET ON VENUS

The Soviet Union launched several unsuccessful Mars probes in the early 1960s and may be preparing new ones for this year's launch opportunity. But the launchings of Venus 5 and 6, Jan. 5 and 10, indicate that Soviet eyes are now set on Venus.

Russia's lone planetary success to date was a spectacular one. It was achieved in October 1967, when a parachute lowered an egg-shaped landing capsule named Venus 4 into the planet's atmosphere. It reported that Venus was blanketed by a dense, hot layer of gases made up mostly of carbon dioxide.

★ ★ ★

The Soviet news agency Tass said the new probes were designed to "improve the accuracy" of the information radioed back by their predecessor.

★ ★ ★

America has twice succeeded in studying Venus from spacecraft flying past the planet, and the last American spacecraft to study Venus, Mariner 5, confirmed in a far-more-distant examination what Venus 4 found.

HAUNTING POSSIBILITY

Although Mariner 4 showed a planet that appears hostile to earth-type life, the haunting possibility still exists that Mars may harbor some form of life. Because of that chance, the United States has placed Mars on the top of its planetary priorities.

Swede Plans to Circle Globe

Pendulum Will Power Boat

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Hans Dahlstroem, 37, a Swede, plans to "sail" around the world next March in a boat that will have neither sails nor conventional engine. The vessel will be powered by a pendulum contraption he invented.

When the waves rock the boat, the pendulum swings. When the pendulum swings, it turns the propellers and theoretically the 24-foot lifeboat will skim through the water on a voyage he hopes will outdo Sir Francis Chichester, who depended on sails for his lone voyage around the world.

★ ★ ★

"I will make use of the movement of the water," Dahlstroem said. "The waves will wash me around the globe."

He calls his contraption a pendulum engine and says the centerpiece is a 2,200-pound lead pendulum built into a box.

KEPT MOVING BY WAVES

"The bottom of the waves keeps the pendulum moving all the time," Dahlstroem said. "The movement is then transformed in a gearbox to power a normal propeller."

Dahlstroem rejects all suggestions that his engine might be just another attempt to construct a perpetual motion machine.

"This is no perpetum mobile," he smiles. "The movement of the waves is energy. I'm just transforming this energy to power the boat."

Dahlstroem will float around the earth alone, but he says he might bring his parrot to keep him company.

'PROPER ROUTE'

"There has been a lot of talk about round-the-earth sailings," says Dahlstroem. "But nobody has yet sailed the proper route, via the poles."

"That is what I'm going to do and that will break the records of Sir Francis Chichester and all the others."

★ ★ ★

He will then head south and sail down Africa's west coast, around the southern tip of the continent and then on to Australia.

★ ★ ★

From Australia he will sail for Cape Horn where he will turn south to get as close as possible to the South Pole. He will then turn homeward sailing north through the Atlantic and past Norway toward the North Pole, then to return to Goteborg.

The tire the experts asked for:

"Looking at our results, it is easy to see why radial ply tires are so appealing. But the more we look, the more we feel that all the advantages are a result of the belt, which stabilizes the tread, and not the radial plies themselves. In fact, the areas where the radial tires show signs of weakness can be related to the radial plies, not the belt. We can't help but think that a combination tire — a cross ply with a belt — would be an admirable solution!

Opening lead—♥ 9

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

We are indebted to the staff of the Bridge World magazine for today's hand. A page and a half was used for theoretical discussion of which spades East should play from his queen-jack-10-eight combination.

North's four-heart bid was invented by the Four Aces back in the '30s. It shows good trump support but denies any ace or king. South's jump to six hearts is based on the hope that his partner will hold the queen of spades.

West gets off to the inspired lead of his singleton trump. South wins in his hand. If he makes the equally inspired play of the spade king, he will make his slam easily because West won't be able to lead a second trump.

★ ★ ★

However, South leads a low spade and, according to the Bridge World experts, it will be a cinch for East to see that he must win with a spade honor, not an eight.

Then he leads a second trump. South will win and lead a second small spade. He will ruff in dummy and East must play another of his spade honors. South will enter his hand with a minor suit ace and will have a problem.

If he plays another low spade he will knock out West's ace and make the hand but if East has played the correct honors, South may decide that East started with queen-jack-10 and lead his king in the hope of bumping the ace and the last honor together.

The Bridge World consensus was that East's best chance to get South to make that play would be to play first the queen, then the 10. Our own opinion is that the whole discussion is pointless. No matter which cards East plays, South's best line is to hope that the ace will drop and to keep playing low spades.

CARD Sense

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
			1 ♠
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	4 ♥	Pass	?

You, South, hold: ♠ K J 6 5 4 ♥ A K Q 9 8 ♦ 5 4 ♣ 2

What do you do now?

A—Bid four no-trump. You will go to six hearts if your partner shows two aces.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You bid four no-trump and your partner bids five spades to show three aces. What do you do now?

Cataract Surgery for Congressman Is Set for March

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Rep. F. Edward Hebert of New Orleans will undergo surgery in March to remove a cataract from his right eye, the congressman's office said Wednesday.

Dr. George M. Halk, a close friend and eye doctor of the congressman for more than 25 years, will perform the operation.

According to a tentative schedule, Hebert will enter a hospital on March 1 or 2 and will undergo the operation on March 6.

CROQUETTE COOKERY

Crisp Croquettes Are Elegant Fare

By JANET ODELL
Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

Croquettes are something that should be served more often. They are a wonderful way of stretching a small amount of meat or fish to serve a number of persons

Croquette comes from a French word meaning to "crunch." Croquettes have a crisp exterior and creamy insides. The base is a thick white sauce with solid food added. The outside coating may be flour, dry bread crumbs or cracker crumbs.

★ ★ ★

Chilling the creamed mixture makes it easier to form into oblongs, cones or any wanted shape. A second chilling before cooking is desirable. Croquettes ready for frying may be frozen.

FRY OR BAKE

Most croquettes are deep fat fried. But they may be cooked in a small amount of fat in a skillet. Or they may be baked.

★ ★ ★

Placed on greased cookie sheets, they brown nicely in a 375-degree oven. This is good news for weight watchers or those who must restrict fat.

★ ★ ★

Mashed yams and ground cooked ham are an excellent foil for one another. In croquettes, they're spectacuar.

YAM AND HAM CROQUETTES

4 eggs
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
2 cups mashed cooked or canned yams
1 pound ground cooked ham
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
½ cup all-purpose flour
¼ cup water

★ ★ ★

Beat 2 of the eggs with lemon juice and seasonings in large bowl. Add onion, green pepper, parsley, yams, ham and ¼ cup bread crumbs; mix thoroughly.

Shape mixture into 16 croquettes using ¼ cup for each. Roll croquettes in flour, coating evenly. Beat remaining eggs with water. Dip croquettes into egg mixture allowing excess to drain off, then roll in remaining ¾ cup bread crumbs.

★ ★ ★

Fry croquettes about 4 at a time, in shortening heated to 375 degrees. Fry about 3 to 4 minutes, or until croquettes are crisp and browned. Drain on absorbent paper and serve with Mustard Sauce.

★ ★ ★

Mustard Sauce: Blend 1 cup dairy sour cream, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons lemon juice and a few drops Tabasco.

★ ★ ★

Egg croquettes make an excellent luncheon dish or meat substitute. Note that this recipe uses powdered creamer in the white sauce instead of milk.

EGG CROQUETTES

3 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons flour
½ cup non-dairy powdered creamer
1 cup boiling water
¼ cup grated American cheese
4 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped
3 tablespoons minced parsley
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon minced celery
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of white pepper
1 egg
1 tablespoon water
¾ cup fine bread crumbs

★ ★ ★

In a heavy-bottomed saucepan, melt butter over low heat until frothy. Blend in flour with wire whip; cook and stir 1 minute without coloring. Add creamer, then boiling water all at once; beat with wire whip to blend. Increase heat to moderately high; cook and stir until sauce becomes very thick. Add cheese; blend until cheese melts.

★ ★ ★

Combine eggs, parsley, onion, celery, salt and pepper; add to cheese sauce and mix well. Spoon into a shallow dish; cover with plastic wrap and chill at least two hours or overnight in the refrigerator.

CONES OR LOGS

Quickly shape into 10 cone or log shapes and chill again for several hours. Beat egg and water together. Dip croquettes into crumbs, then in egg mixture, and again in crumbs. Refrigerate again for at least one hour before cooking.

Heat fat in deep pan to 350 degrees. Cook croquettes 3 to 5 minutes or until golden brown; drain on paper towels. Makes 10 croquettes.

Add Protein to Basic Sauce

Like the mythical phoenix, turkey has a way of showing up a second time. And why not? No one tires of turkey, and getting another delicious meal out of it is a way of easing the strain on the family food budget.

The trick is to make the dinner table encore as exciting as the bird's first appearance. One way is making almond studded croquettes from turkey, mushrooms, and other ingredients blended with a can of well-seasoned giblet gravy. After shallow or deep-fat frying the croquettes to a golden brown, add a bit of dill to the remaining gravy and pour it, piping hot, over them.

★ ★ ★

Accompnay the croquettes with buttered acorn squash and a green crips salad. For dessert open a can of chilled lemon pudding and garnish with apricots.

TURKEY ALMOND CROQUETTES

1 can (2 ounces) stems and pieces mushrooms, drained and chopped
1 medium clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (10½ ounces) giblet gravy
1½ cups minced cooked turkey
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup finely chopped toasted almonds
Shortening
¼ teaspoon dried dill leaves

In saucepan, brown mushrooms and garlic in butter. Add ⅓ cup gravy, turkey, bread crumbs, and salt. Mix well; shape into 6 croquettes; dip in egg; roll in almonds.

In skillet, shallow fry or deep fat fry croquettes in shortening until thoroughly heated and lightly browned. Add dill to remaining gravy; heat; serve over croquettes. Makes 3 servings.

★ ★ ★

Combining beans with any dairy product, such as cream or milk, butter, etc., makes the vegetable protein of beans even more nutritious.

BEAN CROQUETTES

Melt over low heat 6 tablespoons butter or margarine. Remove from heat and stir in ½ cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Gradually stir in 2 cups milk. Return to heat, cook until smooth, stirring constantly.

Chill. Combine with 4 cups cold leftover baked beans, well drained.

Shape into pyramids and roll in fine dry bread crumbs. Dip in a mixture of: 1 egg slightly beaten and 2 tablespoons water. Again, roll in the bread crumbs. Let croquettes dry at least ½ hour before frying.

★ ★ ★

Fry in hot deep fat (385 degrees) till delicately browned Drain on absorbent paper and keep hot in oven till time to serve. Makes 8 good size croquettes.

★ ★ ★

Make a tomato sauce by combining:

1 can tomato soup, ¼ cup water and 1 teaspoon horseradish.

Heat and serve with croquettes.

Butter cake frostings are most elegant when moistened with Solera Sherry for easy spreading.

Japanese Croquettes Call for Tuna, Carrots

This recipe for tuna croquettes is an authentic Japanese one, but with two American conveniences, canned tuna in place of mincing fish fillets and peanut butter to save grinding your own peanuts.

The result is the same superb croquettes, crispy and golden on the outside and a marvelous blending of flavors. Serve them with this traditional pungent soy sauce on a bed of sliced scallions.

JAPANESE TUNA CROQUETTES

3 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tunar, drained and finely flaked
½ cup shredded carrot
¼ cup crunchy peanut butter
2 tablespoons thinly sliced scallion
1 talbespoon cornstarch
2 teaspoons Japanese soy sauce
1 egg, slightly beaten
Solid all-vegetable shortening for frying

Mix together until well-blended, tuna, carrot, peanut butter, scallion, cornstarch, soy sauce and egg. Firmly shape into 12 croquettes.

Deep fat fry at 380 degrees for 2 to 3 minutes or until lightly browned, turning as necessary. Serve with pungent Soy sauce on a bed of diagnnally sliced scallions, as desired.

PUNGENT SOY SAUCE: (Makes ¾ cup): Blend 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish with ¼ teaspoon dry mustard; stir in ⅔ cup Japanese soy sauce.

VIEUX CARRE SALAD — Old French quarter of New Orleans sends new salads and a new Creole French dressing to give them authentic Creole flavor. Vieux Carre Green Salad shows how to vary tossed salad with excitingly different ingredients.

New Orleans Salad a New Combination

Not nearly enough is being tossed into tossed salads to bring them to their exciting best.

Vieux Carre Green Salad, named for the old French quarter of New Orleans where so much magnificent Creole cookery originated, is a delightful new version of the tossed salad.

Cauliflowerettes, Chinese celery, spinach leaves, fresh mushrooms, anchovies and tomatoes are tossed with piquant Creole French Dressing in a salad symphony with a tune never experienced before.

Try, too, Creole Salada, an entirely different tossed salad that calls on the Spanish strain in Creole cooking.

Here strips of salami, stuffed olices, asparagus spears and other surprising ingredients come to their flavor peak with the addition of Creole French Dressing.

VIEUX CARRE GREEN SALAD

1 small head cauliflower, broken into bite-size flowerettes
2 cups chopped Chinese celery OR regular celery
1 quart torn spinach leaves
⅛ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced OR 1 can (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
1 can (2 ounces) anchovies, drained (optional)
1 cup halved cherry tomatoes
⅔ cup Creole French Dressing

Combine cauliflowerettes, celery, spinach, mushrooms, anchovies, and tomatoes in large bowl. Add Creole French Dressing; toss lightly. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CREOLE SALADA

1 package (10 ounces) frozen asparagus spears
2 cups torn romaine
4 cups torn spinach leaves
4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
¼ cup thinly sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
½ cup salami, cut into strips
¾ cup Creole French Dressing

Cook asparagus spears according to package directions; drain and chill. Cut spears into 1-inch pieces. Combine salad greens in large bowl. Add hard-cooked eggs, sliced olives, salami, and asparagus; mix well. Add Creole French Dressing; toss lightly. Makes 6 servings.

Press Raw Dough on Baking Pan

Here is a cooky baking short-cut which will save you rolling out the dough and using a cutter. Shape the dough into small balls with your fingers, and place each ball two inches apart on a greased cooky sheet.

★ ★ ★

If you like thick cookies, bake them, as the balls will flatten out somewhat as they bake.

★ ★ ★

If you like them thin, press each ball flat with the bottom of a glass dipped in flour, or use a fork that has been dipped in flour. The fork will make an attractive ridge design on the top of the cooky when baked.

Madeira Is Special Touch

Gourmet cooks have known for a long time that a spoonful of Madeira wine added to the soup just before serving brings out its full fragrance and delicious taste. In the tradition of the first-course soups (turtle, oxtail, bouillon . . .) flavored and sipped with Madeira, here is a brisk but light hot appetizer soup from the Paul Masson Vineyards in California:

Appetizer Soup Madeira

2 cans (about 10 ounces each) beef bouillon
2 tablespoons minced green onions with part of the green tops
4 thin orange slices
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
½ can (2¼-ounce size) sliced ripe olives, drained
⅛ teaspoon crumbled dried thyme (optional)
4 tablespoons Madeira

Combine undiluted bouillon, onions, orange slices, lemon juice, olives, and thyme in a saucepan and heat just to boiling. Ladle into 4 small soup bowls putting 1 orange slice in each; add 1 tablespoon Madeira to each. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

A Wine Expert? Try New Tests

The holiday season, of course, is time for entertaining. And one of the most popular "new" ways of doing this is to have a wine tasting. To make a tasting successful, Robert Scharff—Great Western's food and wine consultant — suggests that you try one or more of the following "expert" games:

★ ★ ★

The first could be called: Name the color. For this game, you need three glasses for each guest, blindfolds and three bottles of wine; one of each class of wine—red, white and rose. With the "expert" or "experts" blindfolded, pour the red wine, the white and the rose into glasses, and have him decide which is which.

This contest isn't always as simple as it sounds, especially if the host carefully selects the wines for their taste and if all are at the same temperature.

★ ★ ★

The second game is "pick the odd one." In this one, you again use three glasses. However, this time, two contain the same wine, while the third holds a different but similar one. The blindfolded guest must then select which is the different wine.

To lengthen the odds against a lucky guess, have each participant do this test twice.

The third contest in the wine tasting Olympics is "name the varietal." This is another three glass affair in which varietal wines are employed.

Varietal wines, of course, are named for the main grape variety from which they are made, such as Diamond, Delaware, Isabella, Baco Noir, Dutchess, Chelois, etc. The contestants can either be told nothing, and can be asked to identify the three different wines poured from masked bottles, strictly on their color, fragrance and taste.

When you need a crisp vegetable dish to serve with hamburger casseroles, pot roast and fish sticks, stir-fry slices of celery in hot oil and add salted nuts just before serving.

Rich Dough for Biscuits to Be Chilled

Folding Potato Biscuits are made with instant mashed potatoes which give the finished product a different and delicate flavor. The biscuits are made much like puff pastry. The dough is rolled, folded and chilled several times before the biscuit rounds are cut for baking.

The buttery layered dough is quite active as the biscuits rise to a golden, flaky perfection. Unusual? You bet! Good? Umm-m, yes!

★ ★ ★

These potato biscuits are so rich that you won't need to serve any additional butter with them, but some honey or sparkling fruit preserves are delicious partners.

★ ★ ★

The biscuits can star at brunch, with a pretty luncheon salad, or as a conversation-piece bread at your next dinner party. Make them any size you desire and bring them to the table piping hot.

FOLDING INSTANT POTATO BISCUITS

1 cup prepared instant mashed potatoes
2 cups all-purpose enriched flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter (2 sticks)
2 tablespoons dairy sour cream
3 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
Sesame or caraway seed

★ ★ ★

Prepare one cup (2 servings) instant mashed potatoes according to package directions. Refrigerate until cold. Sift together flour and salt; cut in butter. Add sour cream, chilled instant mashed potatoes and egg yolks; stir to mix.

Knead. Roll thin and fold in quarters; chill for 30 minutes. Roll again and fold. Repeat 3 times. Roll ¼-inch thick and cut with 2½-inch cutter.

★ ★ ★

Place on an ungreased cookie sheet, brush with egg yolk and sprinkle with sesame or caraway seed. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes.

FOLDING POTATO BISCUITS — Biscuits made like puff pastry rise to exciting heights as they bake. The secret of their good taste is the use of instant mashed potatoes in the dough.

Orange Liqueur Is Tempting Finale

Orange Sundae

2 oranges
2 bananas
1 pint orange sherbet
¼ cup orange-flavor liqueur

Peel oranges so they are membrane-free; cut sections away from dividing membranes. Peel and slice bananas and add to oranges; chill.

★ ★ ★

At serving time place scoops of sherbet in sherbet glasses; surround with orange mixture; spoon 1 tablespoon liqueur over each serving. Makes 4 servings.

TEMPTING BREAKFAST — Nourishing meat breakfasts are easy and quick to fix. For a good day, start it off with an ample meal. Fruit, eggs, meat and sweet rolls should get anyone out of bed.

Meat Breakfast Will Start Day Well

A good breakfast can be ready in minutes if you plan it around modern fast-fix foods, fully cooked meats that need only a quick heating, egg dishes that go together fast, rolls that heat in minutes and fruit or juice that can be prepared ahead and stored in the refrigerator until serving time.

★ ★ ★

Week days, when time is short, it's well to plan for a few "on the run" breakfasts each morning. Serve breakfast cafeteria style with extra easy-to-tote fruit on hand.

Then if time is short, the heated sausages or other meats can be popped between toast slices, a bit of fruit tucked in a pocket, and breakfast can be enjoyed on the way to school, bus or train.

EVER ON SUNDAY

When Sunday rolls around, make breakfast a special occasion. Arrange the foods attractively on a large platter or tray and serve it buffet style. Breakfast will take on a new and pleasant image.

When Sunday breakfast is a late morning affair, add elegant finale such as Bananas Flambe or Chilled Custard or Cheese Cake Squares with Raspberry Sauce.

SUNDAY BREAKFAST PLATTER

1 package (8-ounce) precooked pork sausage links
4 precooked smoked sausage links or wieners, sliced diagonally
¼ cup sliced celery
¼ cup sliced onion
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup catsup
¼ cup water
¼ cup chopped green pepper
Dash pepper
6 eggs
⅓ cup dairy sour cream
¾ teaspoon salt
2 to 3 oranges, sliced

★ ★ ★

Heat sausages together in frypan over moderate heat as directed on package label until hot and lightly browned.

While sausages are heating, saute' celery and onion in 1 tablespoon butter or margarine in small saucepan until onion is tender, not brown. Add catsup, water, green pepper and pepper; simmer to blend flavors, about 5 minutes.

EGGS

Prepare eggs. Combine eggs, sour cream and salt in mixing bowl. Beat lightly and scramble in remaining butter or margarine in frypan over low heat. Stir frequently while eggs are cooking.

★ ★ ★

Arrange sausages in rows on either side of eggs on serving platter and edge platter with orange slices. Serve with tomato sauce. Yield: 4 servings.

Delight Little Girls With Intriguing Cake

Give a "giggle party" and make all the neighborhood's little girls happy. As every mother knows, "sleeping over" is ecstacy to small fry, and the thrill lasts right into the teens.

Pajama parties call for refreshments just before going to bed. Be the hostess with the mostest. Surprise the giggle girls with a Pajama Cake that will bring cries of delight. It looks adorable, tastes wonderful, and it isn't at all hard on the cook.

Use a cake mix baked in a 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan. Cut it into the simple pieces that make the pajama shape, as shown in the photo. Set on foil-lined cardboard or a platter.

Butterscotch morsels make a marvelous frosting that is easy to make and to spread. Call on semi-sweet chocolate morsels for instant decorations to use "as is." And the flavor is as scrumptious as chocolate candy.

BUTTERSCOTCH PAJAMA CAKE

1 package yellow or white cake mix
1 6-ounce package (1 cup) butterscotch flavored morsels
⅓ cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 cups (approximately) sifted confectioners' sugar
semi-sweet chocolate morsels

★ ★ ★

Prepare and bake cake mix according to package directions, using 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan. Cool completely.

★ ★ ★

To cut cake to make pajama pieces, cut into three crosswise pieces, one 7 inches and two 2½ inches. Turn 7-inch piece sideways for top of pajamas. Cut each 2½-inch piece to make a sleeve 2½ inches long and a leg 5½ inches long.

★ ★ ★

Arrange pieces on tray. Following the photograph, cut out neck and shape shoulders and side of top. Cut small slanted pieces from tops of sleeves and legs to make them fit at an angle.

Frosting

To make frosting, melt butterscotch flavored morsels over hot (not boiling) water. Remove from water; stir in milk, butter and salt. Gradually beat in confectioners' sugar until thick enough to spread.

★ ★ ★

Use a little frosting to hold pajama pieces together. Brush off loose crumbs and lightly frost cut surfaces of cake. Frost entire cake with remaining frosting.

PAJAMA CAKE — Make a pajama cake for your little girls' next "sleep-over" party. The youngsters will squeal with surprise and delight. The cake is easy to make with cake mix, and butterscotch flavored and semi-sweet chocolate morsels.

Pontiac Northern, Central Plan to Travel

Waterford Has Plans to Upset I-L Title Picture

Will Waterford's upstart skippers show Pontiac Northern's Huskies that things will be different this year in the Inter-Lakes League?

Both teams can shoot and both like to run; a high-scoring battle seems inevitable Friday night at WTHS. They are similar in height: Waterford being perhaps a big stronger while the Huskies are quicker and jump better.

Of course, the 6-1 Skippers will have the home court edge over the 4-1 PNH quintet. The deciding factors will probably be the ability of both to battle the backboards and to handle a pressing defense.

Rebounds are vital to a team's getting second and third shots at its own basket and to starting a fast break attack out of the defensive zone.

Against a pressing defense, a good squad will often penetrate for easy baskets; conversly, the ability to apply a good press will force the opposition into turnovers.

★ ★ ★

Should either team gain a decisive superiority in either phase of play the other could have a hard time neutralizing the advantage.

BEST SUCCESS

Waterford coach Bob Taylor has brought the Skippers along the past two seasons to where they are now playing the most successful basketball in the school's history. The surge includes their most impressive win over arch-rival Kettering.

However, in Taylor's WTHS tour he can claim only one victory over Northern. Waterford has lost its last four meetings with PNH. Last year's two losses were by 30-point-plus margins.

★ ★ ★

The two teams are 3-0 in the I-L this season. Waterford's only defeat was at the hands of unbeaten Wayne-Oakland leader West Bloomfield by one point. It has won three straight since then and has league wins over Walled Lake, Farmington and Southfield Lathrup.

★ ★ ★

Northern's Huskies have downed Livonia Stevenson, Farmington and Walled Lake. The Walled Lake victory came last week and was a record-setting 110-83 romp that was their first outing following a tough loss to Pontiac Central.

FAVORITES

They will enter tomorrow night's game as the favorite, but it's a role coach Dick Hall doesn't relish.

The veteran PNH mentor has had to make some adjustments in the varsity roster since the holiday break, losing a starting center and adding some bench strength.

Going with a bare nine-man roster last week — the junior varsity only had 10 players — Hall saw the ball club display some of its best teamwork of the season and all nine players score well.

The Pontiac entry has dominated the I-L basketball scene sinec it joined the circuit 10 years ago. Waterford knows the only way it can expect any court glory is by beating Northern.

The other I-L contests tomorrow have Farmington going to Livonia Stevenson and Walled Lake entertaining winless Southfield Lathrup.

★ ★ ★

Farmington has been disappointing to date and hopes to get on the right track at Stevenson. The Spartans, meanwhile, have captured two in a row after losing to PNH in their I-L opener.

Walled Lake still is seeking its first loop victory and should shove Lathrup into the basement if the Vikings can improve upon their defense. The offense moved into high gear last week.

Detroit Wins 5th Straight

Red Wings Vacate East Cellar

MONTREAL (AP) — Rookie Paul Popiel's first National Hockey League goal and goalie Roy Edwards' first shutout sparked Detroit to a 4-0 rout of Montreal Wednesday night and enabled the surging Red Wings to vault out of the NHL's East Division cellar.

Popiel scored after 53 seconds of play and Frank Mahovlich, Alex Delvecchio and Nick Libett beat Montreal goalie Tony Esposito in the second period as the Wings won in Montreal for the first time in almost three years.

MOVE UP

It was their fifth consecutive triumph and moved them into fifth place, one point ahead of idle New York. The loss dropped second-place Montreal two points behind Boston, which tied Toronto.

The 31-year-old Edwards, a veteran minor leaguer who finally made the NHL last season, kicked out 36 shots in sending Montreal to its second straight setback.

Popiel's unassisted goal gave Detroit a 1-0 lead after one period. Mahovlich then notched his 26th goal at 2:25 of the second period with Montreal's Ted Harris in the penalty box.

Delvecchio got his 16th goal at 9:28 and Libett wrapped up the scoring with his eighth, also unassisted, at 12:06.

Elsewhere, Toronto rallied with two goals in the final 5½ minutes to tie Boston 5-5. Surprising Oakland edged Chicago 4-3, St. Louis held off Philadelphia, 4-3, and Pittsburgh downed Minnesota, 3-1.

LATE GOALS

Late goals by Murray Oliver and Tim Horton gave Toronto its tie with Boston and kept intact the Bruins' streak of not having won in Maple Leaf Gardens since Nov. 27, 1965. They have managed five ties in 21 games.

The goals came shortly after Phil Esposito and John McKenzie had given the Bruins a 5-3 lead by scoring less than 2½ minutes apart.

★ ★ ★

The one point for the tie increased Boston's East Division lead to two points over Montreal. The Bruins have lost only once in their last 15 games. Toronto moved into a third-place deadlock with Chicago, three points ahead of Detroit.

Defenseman Carol Vadnais scored unassisted goals in the second and third periods as Oakland outlasted Chicago. Gary Jarrett and Ted Hampson also tallied for the Seals.

Ron Schock's second goal of the night broke a 2-2 tie at 3:11 of the final period and Tim Ecclestone got the eventual winner five minutes later to extend St. Louis' string to 16 games without defeat against West Division rivals.

Pittsburg's triumph over Minnesota enabled the Penguins to break a tie with the North Stars for last place in the West Division. The losers' Claude Larose scored first but Earl Ingarfield, Billy Dea and Lou Angotti scored for Pittsburgh.

Chiefs Visiting BC Handy; Flint Central at Midland

Pontiac Central's Chiefs will be looking for a repeat dividend when they make their second trip of the basketball season to Bay City Friday.

While the Chiefs are trying to keep Handy winless in Saginaw Valley Conference play, they will be hoping for an upset 20 miles to the west.

★ ★ ★

Front-running Flint Central (4-0) plays at Midland (3-2). In other league games, Flint Northern (3-1) is at Flint Southwestern (0-4) and Bay City Central (1-3) travels to Saginaw Arthur Hill (3-2).

Saginaw (2-3) has a nonleague date at home against Flint Northwestern.

PCH is expected to make Handy its fifth SVC victim. Should this happen and Midland upset Flint Central, the Chiefs would move into first place. They are 4-1 in the league and 5-1 over-all.

EASY VICTORY

The Chiefs traveled to Bay City Central in mid-December and returned home with a 93-63 victory. They have been known to do well when playing at Bay City. But trouble has developed, on occasion, when least expected . . . particularly on visits to Handy.

★ ★ ★

Coach Ralph Grubb may have some difficulty keeping the Chiefs from looking past the Wildcats to next Tuesday's home date with Saginaw. A reminder of what happened to the Baltimore Colts last Sunday should take care of the situation.

★ ★ ★

Handy has dropped its four league starts and is 2-5 over-all. The Wildcats have lost to Flint Northern, 106-61; Midland, 81-54; and Arthur Hill, 81-66. The Chiefs defeated all three in relatively close skirmishes.

Top scorer for Handy is Tim Ottmeier, a 6-1 forward, who has an 18.1 average. Center Dave Kopec, 6-4, is the tallest starter.

TOUGH TO DEFENSE

A balanced attack has made it difficult for opponents to stop the Chiefs. When one player is defensed another takes over.

★ ★ ★

Campy Russell is the leader with an 18.5 average followed closely by Jerry Ratliff at 18. Monte Herring holds a 16.1 mark and Anthony Styles is 12.7. Although he has only a 6.6 average, playmaker Clayton Burch can't be left alone too much. He has been in double figures twice, including a key effort in the victory over Pontiac Northern.

★ ★ ★

Flint Central has been rolling merrily along since losing its opener to Muskegon and then surviving a scare against the Chiefs. Unfortunately for PCH, it was the only time the teams meet this season. So, the Chiefs will be looking for help in their drive to overtake the Indians.

Pontiac Press Photo

LONE SENIOR — Guard Clayton Burch is the only senior in Pontiac Central's starting lineup. He will direct the playmaking at Bay City Handy Friday night where the Chiefs will be seeking their fifth Saginaw Valley Conference win.

NY Booters May Quit

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Generals notified the North American Soccer League Wednesday that they would not operate this season unless there is regular play.

★ ★ ★

NASL owners have proposed discontinuing league play in favor of importing foreign teams for a five-week schedule in June and July.

Free Agent Draft on Baseball Slate

The clubs will make their selections in reverse order of their finish, with the four new expansion clubs bringing up the rear, according to the announcement by Commissioner William D. Eckert.

Some of the game's better players came up via the free agent draft such as Tom Seaver, Noland Ryan, and Ken Boswell of the New York Mets; Stan Bahnsen of the New York Yankees, the American League Rookie of the Year; Johnny Bench of Cincinnati, the National League Rookie of the Year; Rick Monday, Reggie Jackson, and Sal Bando of the Oakland A's; Joe Coleman of the Washington Senators: Ken Holtzman and Joe Niekro of the Chicago Cubs; and Jim Hardin of the Baltimore Orioles.

FOURTH DRAFT

This will be the fourth winter draft and the eighth since the rule went into effect in 1965. There is also a June draft.

In the regular phase of the draft last winter, 128 players were selected. In the last June draft, 437 out of 713 named were signed to contracts.

No player in a four-year college will be selected in the regular phase of the draft. Selections will be limited to junior colleges, high school graduates, and other non-college players.

The regular phase will be followed by a secondary phrase in which the clubs drew lots for places.

★ ★ ★

The order of selection in the regular phase is: 1—Houston Astros; 2—Washington Senators; 3—New York Mets; 4—California Angels; 5—Los Angeles Dodgers; 6—Chicago White Sox; 7—Philadelphia Phillies; 8—Minnesota Twins; 9—Pittsburgh Pirates; 10—Oakland Athletics; 11—Atlanta Braves; 12—New York Yankees; 13—Cincinnati Reds; 14—Boston Red Sox; 15—Chicago Cubs; 16—Cleveland Indians; 17—San Francisco Giants; 18—Baltimore Orioles; 19—St. Louis Cardinals; 20—Detroit Tigers; 21—Montreal Expos; 22—Kansas City Royals; 23—San Diego Padres; 24—Seattle Pilots.

Morrall Hopes for Pro Bowl Luck

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Earl Morrall, who led the Baltimore Colts to the National Football League championship but came up short in the Super Bowl, hopes for better luck Sunday.

The veteran quarterback will share action with the Los Angeles Rams' Roman Gabriel in the 19th annual East-West All-Star Pro Bowl.

Coach George Allen of the Rams, who pilots the West, indicated Thursday Morrall will start the game.

"Morrall is the league's Player of the Year and he certainly deserves to start," said Allen.

The East's coach, Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys, can choose between his own Don Meredith and Fran Tarkenton of the New York Giants.

Morrall will be working with two of his receivers from the Colts, John Mackey and Willie Richardson. He also will have Green Bay's Carroll Dale and the NFL's leading receiver, Clifton McNeil of the San Francisco 49'ers.

Stadium Vote in Texas City

IRVING, Tex. (AP) — Irving voters will decide the fate of a second dome-type stadium for the state in a special election Thursday on bonds for Texas Stadium. Irving is a small city 25 miles from Dallas and the cost is expected to be in the area of $15-20 million.

★ ★ ★

If plans are approved by Irving voters, the city will probably issue revenue bonds for a 65,000-seat stadium which will be the new home of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

In April, Irving citizens voted to build the stadium with revenue bonds. Today's election spells out more specific financial details.

RUNS INTO HEAVY TRAFFIC — Three Kellogg Community College players converge on Auburn Hills' Glen Lenhoff (22) as he sails toward the basket for one of his 15 field goals in his 31-point performance last night. The Oakland CC student's efforts were in vain, though, as the Nikes faded in the late going and dropped an 83-80 verdict. Charles Johnson (33), Steve Sleeman (arms raised) and an unidentified Kellogg player converge on Lenhoff.

Highlanders, Raiders Win; Nikes Downed by Kellogg

The three Oakland Community College basketball squads checked in with a 2-1 record in competition last night.

Highland Lakes (4-10) avenged an earlier defeat by downing Macomb, 97-79, Orchard Ridge (7-6) whipped Mercy College, 97-92, while Auburn Hills (8-7) went sour in the second half in dropping an 83-80 decision to Kellogg.

REVERSAL

Earlier in the season, Macomb whipped the Highlanders by 18 points, but it was different this time around. Frank Russell flipped in 36 points, his high for the season, and Walt Causey added 21 to pace the Highlanders. Jim Williams led all scorers with 40 for Macomb.

★ ★ ★

Auburn Hills looked well on the road to an upset by taking a 10-point lead at halftime over Kellogg (12-2) but the Nikes faded early in the second half and wound up with their seventh loss.

PACES NIKES

Harold Lowe and Fred Street provided the one-two punch for Orchard Ridge's Raiders. Lowe tossed in 28 points and picked up 15 rebounds, while Street checked in with 27 markers and 11 rebounds. Street hit on 12 of 17 shots from the field. Joe Serement led Mercy with 26 points.

'Frisco Moving to New Stadium for '69 Season

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49'ers will play football in Candlestick Park, perhaps as early as next season.

The announcement came after Mayor Joseph Aloito withdrew his efforts Wednesday to build a new stadium in downtown San Francisco. A committee of the board of supervisors promptly approved a plan to expand and remodel Candlestick Park.

★ ★ ★

Lou Spadia, president of the 49ers, was delighted. He said he prefers the fall weather at Candlestick to that at a proposed site south of Market street in the city.

The committee was informed the cost of increasing the Candlestick capacity from 42,500 to 66,300 and other improvements would be about $9 million.

2-Team Race in Rec Play

It's still a two team battle as both contenders won in Waterford Township's Continental Basketball League last night.

Glenn's Motor Sales (5-0) whipped Booth Homes (0-5), 95-80, and Spencer Floor (4-1) coasted past Sam Allen (1-4), 85-69.

Five players hit doubles figures for Glenn's to build a 42-36 half time lead. They were never in trouble in the last half.

Ron Waters and Tom Negoshin lead the scoring for the winners with 18 and 16 points. John Huebler had 22 for Booth's.

Bill Waun led his team with 18 as four men hit doubles in Spencer's easy victory over Sam Allen's. The winners had a 38-25 halftime lead. Ken Carpenter had 22 for the losers.

Glenn's and Spencer's will clash next Wednesday.

OLSM Hoping to Pad Streak

Titans Travel Friday, Play Home Saturday

The Northwest Catholic League teams plunge into the dangerous phase of their schedule beginning Friday night with all eight teams in action.

They will return to the courts Saturday night in the first of two straight busy weekends in which all but two teams will see action four times.

Unbeaten and highly ranked Orchard Lake St. Mary will open the frantic part of its push toward a second straight perfect league campaign with winless Detroit St. Rita on the OL campus tomorrow.

★ ★ ★

Then the Eaglets must visit dangerous Ferndale St. James Saturday and the following weekend they will encounter Pontiac Catholic's vengeful Titans before going to Royal Oak St. Mary who is the last league team to top OL St. Mary.

TITANS ACTIVE

Once-beaten PCHS is looking forward to its rematch with the Eaglets, but can anticipate trouble at Royal Oak St. Mary tomorrow. They will be host to struggling Farmington Our Lady of Sorrows Saturday night.

The next four games should be vital in determining the loop's champion and representative to the Catholic League playoffs.

★ ★ ★

Waterford Our Lady of Lakes, while not in contention, has a good opportunity Friday and Saturday to improve greatly upon its showing under new coach Dean Webster with a pair of wins.

A sudden upswing here for the Lakers would give them some much-needed momentum going into next Saturday's rematch with Pontiac Catholic.

STREAK GROWS

Defending champion OLSM has stretched its league winning streak to 24 in a row with a perfect 8-0 campaign this season. It is the No. 3-ranked quintet in the weekly Associated Press state Class C poll.

The Eaglets should have no trouble with St. Rita, but their visit to St. James Saturday will pit them against a Dales' squad that has captured four of its last five starts.

★ ★ ★

The one-two scoring punch of Sam Brady and Herb Larson with some good supporting efforts by Kellie Dean, Barry Burch Steve Hoffman has made PCHS' Titans one of the surprise quintets in the county this season. They only won four games last year.

They have a four-game winning streak — the longest in the brief PCHS court history — at the moment and are anxious to keep the surge going as they head for next week's showdown at OLSM.

Woman Bowler Surprising Field in Petersen Event

CHICAGO (AP) — For the first time in the 48 years of the Petersen Bowling Classic a woman has taken the lead.

Mrs. Mae Bolt, a 35-year-old Berwyn, Ill., housewife, rolled a 1,589 series Tuesday night on games of 220, 206, 202, 175, 169, 160, 235 and 222.

In second place of the marathon tourney, which carries $511,000 in prize money with a $35,000 winning jackpot, is Anthony Loiacano of Warren, Mich. He bowled 1,587 on Jan. 6.

The tourney started Nov. 30 and ends July 19. During this time 17,632 bowlers will compete.

Smooth-stroking Birmingham Groves outclassed Pontiac Northern Wednesday night for a 76-29 victory in the Huskies' pool.

The unbeaten Falcons ran their winning streak in dual meets to 17 straight and seven in a row this season.

Several strong performances marked the victory for Groves. The Falcons' 400-yard freestyle relay team capped the evening with a win in 3:34.3, their best effort of the season.

Bill Edwards' 100-yard breaststroke victory and Steve Tull's 200-yard individual medley triumph were personal lows, and PNH's Kevin Dushane bettered his best 100-yard backstroke time in claiming the Huskies' only first place finish in the meet.

No Javelins in Harvard's Big 'Bubble'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — There's no sign up yet but you can bet Harvard will shortly prohibit javelin throwing in its huge new $300,000 track facility.

That's because an errant javelin could wipe out what Harvard officials claim is the largest "bubble building" in the world, a huge 45,000 square foot structure made of inflated, vinyl-covered nylon.

★ ★ ★

The big bubble was used officially for a track meet for the first time this week and was promptly deemed a huge success both by the partcipants and officials of the Ivy League school.

The bubble, which from nearby Storrow Drive looks like a moored, white blump, is Harvard's answer to skyrocketing construction costs and the constantly changing needs in terms of collegiate athletic facilities.

Given to the university by the anonymous "Friends of Harvard Track," it has been under construction since last October and measures 300 feet in length, 150 feet wide and 60 feet high.

The bubble, which needs no daytime illumination, contains runways and pits for pole vaulting, high jumping and the long jump in the dirt-floored central area and a bright, red six-lane tartan track with white marking lines around the inside.

LSU Shooter Pads Average

Titans' Haywood 1st Among Rebounders

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pete Maravich of Louisiana State is leaving little to chance in his bid for a second consecutive major college basketball scoring championship.

Pistol Pete went into his two-week semester break with an average of 45.5 points per game, the highest ever at this stage of a season, according to official statistics released today by the National Collegiate Sports Services.

Maravich, who set an all-time major college record of 43.8 points last season, is 10.6 points per game ahead of runnerup Calvin Murphy of Niagara, and this is the biggest lead ever held this late in a season by an aspirant to the scoring title.

Should Maravich maintain his current average, Murphy, with a 34.9 mark, would have to average 55.3 points in his last 12 games to overtake the LSU sharpshooter.

There were three other 30-point scorers in the major ranks through games of Jan. 11—Rick Mount of Purdue 32.3, Spencer Haywood of Detroit 31.6 and Bob Tallent of George Washington 31.3.

Roeper Takes 73-64 Verdict

Roughriders Finish Gruelling Week

The Roughriders of Roeper School, feeling the effects of four games in six days, shook off some early sluggishness last night to gain a 73-64 decision over Immaculate Conception.

The triumph raised Roeper's record to 7-3. The squad is idle until Jan. 25 when Ashley pays a visit.

Greg Carter hauled down 18 rebounds and flipped in 26 points to spark the victory. Roeper led at halftime, 32-26. Curtis Blessing aided Carter in the scoring column with 18 markers.

English Ace Among Field in Golf Event

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Peter Townsend, an English sensation who hasn't done so well in the United States, led a field of 156 golfers off four tees on two courses to start the $135,000 Kaiser Open tournament today.

Because of rain-soaked—but not water-Logged—fairways and a threat of frost, the start was delayed until 10 a.m.—1 p.m., EST. The 156 players started from the first or 10th tees on the North and South courses of the Silverado Country Club.

Kermit Zarley won the first Kaiser over the 6,849-yard North course last year with 273, 15 under par. He played the 6,602-yard South course Wednesday and liked it. He needs to sharpen his game; he hasn't played a tournament in 2½ months.

Arnold Palmer, a flying millionaire who lands near golf courses often enough to keep in pocket change, shot a 69 over the South course in the pro-amateur.

Wayne Evens Mark With 93-65 Win

DETROIT (UPI) — Wayne State had four men in double figures, topped by Walt Studinger's 18 points and Tyrone Hemphill's 17, to take an easy 93-65 non-conference basketball victory over Windsor Wednesday night.

The win evened Wayne's season mark at 5-5 and left Windsor also holding a split record, 4-4.

Wayne took the lead with 12:30 left to go in the first half, built it to 38-24 at the half and then coasted to the victory.

Line Coach Resigns

Former Bosox Pilot Starting Jail Term

RUSTON, La. (AP)—Michael T. "Pinky" Higgins, former manager of the Boston Red Sox, is scheduled to leave today for the state penitentiary to begin a four-year sentence for negligent homicide.

Higgins, 59, pleaded guilty to the charge in connection with an auto accident in which one man was killed and several injured on Feb. 27, 1968.

★ ★ ★

Lincoln Parish Dist. Atty. Ragan Madden said the sheriff's office at Ruston is making arrangements to transfer Higgins to the state prison at Angola.

"He looks like he's in pretty good shape," Madden said. "He's been very cooperative, very penitent. He's a very likeable kind of individual."

Higgins, who played 13 seasons in the American League with Philadelphia, Boston, and Detroit, was a scout for the Houston Astros at the time of the accident.

OUT OF CONTROL

His auto went out of control and crashed into a state highway department crew which was working on the pavement. George Killen of Simsboro, La. was killed.

Madden said that Higgins was intoxicated at the time and that the negligent homicide charge included that accusation. "The greater offense includes the lesser," he said.

★ ★ ★

Sentencing was Monday in Lincoln Parish District Court. Higgins is lodged in the parish jail at Ruston awaiting transfer. The maximum penalty was five years.

Higgins pleaded guilty several months ago, but sentencing was delayed because he had a heart condition. "It looks to me like he has lost 30 or 40 pounds," the district attorney said.

"I know that he has a very enviable record," Madden said. "It's just one of those tragic cases."

★ ★ ★

Higgins' lifetime batting average was .292. He became manager of the Red Sox in 1955 and was replaced by Billy Jurges during the 1959 season.

He returned to the Red Sox later that year as a special assistant in the front office and became manager again in June 1960, succeeding Jurges. He served through 1962.

Higgins was later director of player personnel until he was fired in 1965.

Lutheran Five Romps

DETROIT (UPI) — Michigan Lutheran ran its Michigan Collegiate Conference record to 4-0 Wednesday night with an easy 97-66 win over Northwood Institute.

Ariens

TAKES THE LIFTING OUT OF DRIFTING ALL OVER PONTIAC

It's no secret. An Ariens Sno-Thro costs lots more than a snow shovel. It should. It does much more. For one thing, a 2-stage Ariens cuts through after-blizzard drifts quickly, dependably. Haywood Sharp but Titans Fall

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Spencer Haywood's 30-point effort wasn't enough to stop determined Notre Dame Wednesday night.

But the fighting Irish showed the University of Detroit star and Gold medal-winner a lot of respect as they pulled from behind to defeat U-D, 84-77.

The crowd of 10,501 gave Haywood a standing ovation before the game and Notre Dame captain Bob Arnzen gave him a trophy to honor his play in the Olympics.

But it was Arnzen's jump shot with 5:58 left in the game that put Notre Dame into the lead for good with a 70-68 edge. Arnzen paced the Irish with 23 points.

Haywood, the game's high scorer and currently the fourth highest pointmaker in major college basketball, fell slightly below his average 31.6 points per game.

The Irish trailed throughout the first half and were behind 44-40 at intermission.

But Haywood got into foul trouble with 8:28 left to play and the Titans went 5½ minutes without a basket to slip to their fourth straight loss.

The win boosted Notre Dame's record for the season to 12-2. Detroit now is 10-4.

MIDDIES' MENTOR — The U.S. Naval Academy Wednesday selected 40-year-old Rick Forzano, an assistant coach with the Cincinnati Bengals of the American Football League, to succeed the deposed Bill Elias as head coach of the Midshipmen's football squad.

Quakers Chill Villanova Five

By Associted Press

The Wildcats of Villanova ran afoul of the cool cats of Pennsylvania Wednesday night. The result was a Penn slowdown that left Villanova Coach Jack Kraft doing a slow burn after the unheralded Quakers upset the ninth-ranked Wildcats 32-30.

The only other team in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action was the fourth-ranked Davidson Wildcats, who scratched out a 90-82 triumph over stubborn Wake Forest.

A long jump shot by sophomore Steve Bilsky with three seconds left gave Penn its dramatic victory and saddled Villanova with its second loss in 12 starts.

The Quakers froze the ball after Villanova's high-scoring Howard Porter, who managed only three points all night, missed a free throw with 3:35 remaining. Villanova stayed in its zone and finally Penn called time out with 26 seconds left and again five seconds later.

★ ★ ★

"The play was set up for either me or Dave Wohl to take a jumper," Bilsky explained. "I looked at the clock and saw there were only seven seconds left. It was a little further out than I usually shoot from, but I knew there wouldn't be time to set up a better shot."

Coach Dic Harter, who resorted to the slow up several times in the past, was ecstatic.

★ ★ ★

"I can't believe it," he said. "Villanova's the best team we've played since I've been here."

Penn led 19-18 at halftime and the winning shot make Bilsky the game's high scorer with 10 points.

Davidson made 30 of 44 free throws to turn back Wake Forest. It was the Wildcats' 11th triumph in 12 games.

★ ★ ★

They built up six-point leads several times in the first half, but Wake Forest caught up each time. The Wildcats broke away from a 43-41 halftime lead to a nine-point margin midway through the second half behind Mike Maloy and Jerry Kroll, who scored 27 and 23 points, respectively.

Wake Forest closed to 80-76 with 2½ minutes left but Mike O'Neill scored six of his 12 points down the stretch to clinch the victory.

Twelfth-ranked Duquesne breezed past St. Francis, Pa. 79-55 in a game marred by a melee that saw two of the losers taken to a hospital for treament of facial cuts.

If Material Permits

New Navy Coach to Pass

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)— Rick Forzano, who has been chosen from a list of about 200 candidates for the head football coaching job at the U. S. Naval Academy, says he would like to build Navy's football machine around a pro attack.

And, in one word, that means passing.

"I like to throw the ball," said Forzano, who was appointed to Navy's grid helm after a one-year tenure as offensive backfield coach with the Cincinnati Bengals of the American Football league prior to a two-year stint with the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League.

Although Forzano, an assistant on Navy's staff from 1959 to 1963, knows what he would like to do in his new assignment, he adds that his choice of an air game as Navy's chief offensive weapon "depends on the material we have.

"Throwing the ball is the name of the game in pro and college, but what we do depends on the material we have here," he said Wednesday.

One major problem that plagued Bill Elias, Forzano's predecessor at Navy, was the lack of an experienced quarterback—a necessary ingredient for football success.

Elias, fired after logging a four-year record of 15-22-3 including a poor 2-8 showing in 1968, was forced to go with a sophomore signal caller in his final campaign at Navy.

Elias' sophomore, Mike McNallen, has had a year of combat under his belt and although Forzano hasn't really seen McNallen in action he expressed some feeling of confidence about the youngster's ability.

"From reports," explained Forzano, "I hear McNallen is a good quarterback.

"And, you have got to have that good fellow under the center to move you down the field."

Forzano, who said his only interest in a college coaching job is with Navy, is well aware that while Navy usually plays a 10-game schedule there is one above them all that really counts.

"We want to have a good record and beat Army. It

Coach Sparks Dallas Victory

Hagan Leaves Bench to Trigger Triumph

By The Associated Press

Cliff Hagan, 37-year-old player-coach of the Dallas Chaparrals, says he doesn't like to play any more than necessary.

The one-time St. Louis star in the National Basketball Association found it necessary Wednesday night, however, coming off the bench with 3:05 left in overtime and driving his team to a 127-120 American Basketball Association victory over Indiana.

He dropped in two free throws, then whipped three quick passes that Cincy Powell converted into goals and the Chaparrals had it in hand.

Powell pumped in 36 points and Ron Boone added 32 to ignite the Dallas attack.

In other ABA game the Los Angeles Stars made it six wins out of eight overtime games when they beat Miami 134-129.

U.S. Gals Clash in Net Semifinals

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Two American girls, Billie Jean King and Rosie Casals, coasted into the semifinals of the New South Wales Open Tennis Championship Thursday but only one can reach the final because they clash in a semifinal.

Mrs. King defeated her Wimbledon final opponent Judy Tegart 6-3, 6-2, and Miss Casals knocked out another Australian, Karren Krantzcke, 6-2, 6-4.

Top Prep Swimmer Again After Honor

Last year's winner of the Oakland County 'Outstanding Swimmer' award is making a bid to capture the honor for a second time.

★ ★ ★

Gary Gottschling, a junior at Royal Oak Kimball, checked in with some hot times this past week and now leads in two divisions among area swimmers.

COMPILES TIMES

★ ★ ★

Gottschling moved to the front in the 100-yard butterfly and 100-yard backstroke. He owns a clocking of 56.4 seconds in the fly and a time of 58.1 seconds in the backstroke.

TOUGH CHALLENGER

Pushing Gottschling for top honors is Southfield's Greg Ortega, who also holds the top spot in two divisions.

★ ★ ★

Ortega heads the 50-yard freestylers with a time of 22.7 seconds and he's setting the pace in the 100-yard freestyle with a :51.4 clocking.

TWO CHANGES

There were a couple other divisional changes in the past week.

★ ★ ★

Kurt Finney of Birmingham Seaholm posted a time of 4:07.1 in the 400-yard freestyle to slip ahead of Rick Watson of Royal Oak Kimball (4:08.5). Watson maintained his lead in the 200-yard freestyle at 1:55.6.

Utica S. Boys Victors

Wednesday's Eastern Division Prep Ski League races at Mt. Holly saw Utica Stevenson's boys defeat Detroit Benedictine, but the Stevenson girls were beaten by their Benedictine counterparts.

Stram Coaching West

Namath's Foes Impressive

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Hank Stram wouldn't dispute for a minute that Joe Namath is a great quarterback, but he doesn't think that gives any edge to the East team in Sunday's American Football League All-Star game.

"We think we have two great quarterbacks," said Stram, coach of the West All-Stars. His signal callers are San Diego's John Hadl and his own Kansas City chief, Len Dawson.

RECEIVERS

Just as Namath will have familiar pass receivers in his New York Jet teammates, George Sauer and Bon Maynard, Hadl will have San Diego compatriots.

★ ★ ★

"Add to that group Bob Trumpy of Cincinnati and Warren Wells of Oakland and you can see that we have super receivers for our great quarterbacks," Stram said.

Because none of his West players had seen action in at least three weeks, Stram worked them twice a day Monday through Wednesday and tapered off to once today.

★ ★ ★

"Our timing is coming along," he said, "and I think we've caught up with the East in conditioning."

The 11 members of the world champion Jets on the East team had the advantage, as Stram sees it, of playing in the Super Bowl last Sunday.

Wally Lemm, Houston Oilers coach guiding the East All-Stars, had a ragged session Wednesday when the Jets joined the team for the first time.

"We will put it together by Friday," Lemm said with an unworried look. "These are pros and they will be ready to play."

Winter Sports on Tap

Winter has arrived in all its glory.

For those unable to or nor interested in skiing or snowmobiling, the Pontiac and Waterford Township recreation departments are providing sledding, tobogganing and ice skating facilities.

★ ★ ★

Murphy Park on East Boulevard in town has facilities for all three activities. Various elementary and junior high school yards both in town and in the township have skating areas.

★ ★ ★

Waterford's nighttime skating is generally limited to the Drayton Plains softball park rink which is also available for outdoor hockey games if a reservation is obtained from the department office.

Limited sledding and tobogganing is permitted on the city municipal golf course.

Martin Facing Suit for 1960 Rhubarb

CHICAGO (UPI) — Minnesota Twins manager Billy Martin will defend himself in court Monday against a damage suit for assault and battery filed by former Chicago Cubs pitcher Jim Brewer. The suit was the after math of a 1960 rhubarb between Martin and Brewer in which Brewer suffered broken bones in his face.

Male Jockeys Thwart Ride of Barbara Jo

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — "I'm going to ride and ride and ride. And I'll make it someday," Barbara Jo Rubin said.

But she was disappointed Wednesday.

Male jockeys thwarted her effort to become the first girl rider in American thoroughbred racing history. Now the petite 19-year-old brunette says she's determined to carry on her fight, to take it to court if necessary.

★ ★ ★

Dressed in the gold and red slacks she had hoped to wear in the fourth race at Tropical Park Wednesday, Barbara Jo told newsmen: "I didn't expect this at all. I was all ready to go. The male jockeys were so nice to me this morning."

Fighting back tears, she added: "I think there were just a few of them who seemed to be against me. But I'm going to try and I hope I'll be the first woman to race some day."

About 100 male jockeys threatened a mass boycott at Tropical if the former exercise girl were allowed to ride a horse named Stoneland in the fourth race.

★ ★ ★

After a stormy meeting in the jockey room, the 11 jockeys in the third race refused to come out unless Barbara Jo was removed from her horse.

Trainer Bryan Webb bowed to the pressure and broke the news to Barbara Jo.

"Barbara, honey," he said. "You're stuck. You ain't gonna ride." Webb explained "it was a case of taking her off or calling the race off."

★ ★ ★

Attorney Robert H. Burns of the American Civil Liberties Union talked with Barbara Jo and her father, a Miami tavern owner, and said he would go to court charging interference with the right of contract.

SHADOWY APPARITION — Silhouetted against the sun and sky, a lone leaping skier embarks on a brief flight, creating an unnatural image above the powdery slopes of Alpine Valley. Skiers around the state have been flocking to the ski resorts this month as a prolonged spell of unbelievably good conditions has blessed Michigan hillsides. While Southeast Michigan resorts haven't had the abundance of daily natural accumulations of their northern counterparts, the snowmaking machines have been able to keep the local slopes well covered and another big weekend looms.

Ex-Orion Resident Ski Boss

By LOIS FRIEDLAND

HARBOR SPRINGS — "Over there in the business suit," the ticket puncher pointed.

Larry Middleton, manager of Boyne Highlands Inn wasn't difficult to spot amid the sweatered skiers clustered around the ski-lift ticket counter.

The former Lake Orion resident, who heads the hotel, day-lodge and ski shop operations at Boyne Highlands resort, doesn't have time to ski during the winter.

WEEKENDS BUSY

The young-looking, brown-haired manager keeps trim by frequent jogs between the day lodge and hotel — several hundred yards apart — overseeing operations. On weekends, he must direct his beefed-up staff, busy handling hundreds of skiers swarming on Highlands slopes.

Weekdays, he handles the more routine functions of running a hotel and deals with the numerous conventioners who flock to this luxury resort for meetings surrounded by pleasant scenery and service.

"If I did go skiing I'd be paged every 10 minutes," he pointed out.

Middleton, 26, has been working in Boyne Country for eight years. The organization incorporates the resorts of Boyne Highlands, Boyne Mountain, Thunder Mountain and Walloon Hills, which offer year-round resort activities.

★ ★ ★

ORION GRADUATE—Larry Middleton, a Lake Orion High School graduate, is one of the key administrative personnel during the day at the plush Boyne Highlands resort near Harbor Springs. While he went north to ski, he hasn't had much opportunity to do so due to his busy daily schedule accommodating skiers.

Middleton's love of skiing first brought him to Boyne Mountan seeking an evening job so he could ski during the day. He hired in as a desk clerk, dropping out of the winter session at Port Huron Junior College.

★ ★ ★

Since 1961 he has worked in every phase of the Boyne Country operations. After the first winter, he stayed on the summer payroll going to North Central Michigan University in the off-season.

Boyne Country also sent him to Ferris Institute during the slow periods to study business administration and hotel management.

Busy as he is, however, he periodically brings his wife Heidi and daughter Mia to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Middleton of 2610 Stoney Creek, Oakland Township.

When younger, he was very active in 4-H activities. A former member of the National 4-H Congress, he won several awards for general dairy management and soil conservation.

Speed Mark Set

FORT STOCKTON, Tex. (UPI) — Art Arforns, former holder of the world land speed record, Wednesday cracked his own quarter mile record, speeding to 267.85 miles per hour in his jet-powered Green Monster. The old record was 256.62 mph, set in 1965.

U.S. Gal Skiers Surprise Foes

Americans Showing Strength in Austria

SCHRUNS-TSCHAGGUNS, Austria (AP) — Although an American girl has yet to win one of the major ski races this season, their continued high team scores are surprising Europeans.

Erika Skinger, 19, of Stowe, Vt., paced her American teammates to three finishes among the top ten leaders in the Golden Key downhill race Wednesday.

Miss Skinger, who finished fifth, was clocked at two minutes 18.37 seconds.

TOP HONORS

Wiltrud Drexel, 18, of Austria skied off with top honors in the fast time of 2:16.7, more than two seconds ahead of the next best time. Two French girls, Florence Steurer, and Annie Famose finished second and third with times of 2:18.01 and 2:18.08.

Judy Nagel, 17, of Enumclaw, Wash., placed eighth in 2:19.22 and was followed immediately by 19-year-old Karen Budge, of Jackson, Wyo., in 2:19.58.

Mini-Winter Olympics Slated

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The vanguard of more than 300 of the world's top athletes will converge Saturday at this winter resort in the Adirondack mountains for the opening of the first annual John F. Kennedy International Memorial Winter Games.

★ ★ ★

A member of the late president's family was expected to take part in the torchlight ceremony at the Olmpic Arena, kicking off the eight weeks of international competition.

Nearly $2 million has been spent in improving facilities at the site of the 1932 winter Olympics, including a major facelifting of Mt. Van Hoevenberg's famed Olympic bobsled run.

The games are the outgrowth of a suggestion by Kennedy to the Amateur Athletic Union, that the United States might further international understanding by off-year, mini-Olympic competition.

Franz Keller of West Germany; Giacomo Aimoni, Italy's skiing mailman, and Ludwig Zajc of Yugoslavia are among those entered in the 70-meter ski jumping Saturday and Sunday.

Other events highlighting the games, which run through March 8, will be speed and figure skating, cross-country skiing, world two and four-man bobsled racing, hockey, luge racing and snowmobile competition.

The largest invasion of sports stars is expected in February for the bobsled championships.

★ ★ ★

Nations to be represented include Austria, Italy, Switzerland, West Germany, Great Britain, Canada, Japan, Sweden, Rumania, Belgium, France, British West Indies and the United States.

Lakeland Ice Units in Weekend Tilts

The Lakeland Hawks bantam team, fresh from an impressive opening win, will return to action Sunday morning at Flint's new ice arena in Southeast Michigan Junior Hockey Association cahmpionship round play.

★ ★ ★

The Hawks, one of the favorites in their "B" bracket bantams league, trimmed Fraser last Sunday, 8-4, as Doug Councell, Ray Emsley and Dave Webster netted two goals each. Eric Rose and Brad Strohm had the other tallies.

★ ★ ★

Baldwin Plans Annual 'Sno-in'

BALDWIN (UPI) — The city of Baldwin, which has tagged itself as the "snowmobile capital of Michigan," will host hundreds of snowmobilers Saturday for the second annual Sno-in Safari.

The area has more than 250 miles of marked trails. Baldwin leads the state in miles of available snowmobile trails.

AEC Wants Deliveries of Uranium Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said Wednesday its cupboard is overflowing with uranium and it would like the uranium industry to ease up on deliveries for awhile.

The Atomic Energy Commission said it is seeking proposals to limit total deliveries of uranium concentrates from companies now under contract.

Declaring such a reduction would save the government money, the AEC said:

"The commission believes that a moderate reduction in deliveries can be achieved on terms which would be mutually advantageous to the contractors and the government."

The AEC said its commitment to purchase uranium under the contracts—which terminate Dec. 31, 1970—exceeds its present needs, "largely because of previous cutbacks in military requirements for fissionable materials."

Burroughs May Split 2-for-1

DETROIT (AP) — Burroughs Corp., reporting the highest earnings and revenues in the company's history, Wednesday proposed a 2-for-1 stock split and an increase in the regular quarterly dividend from 25 to 30 cents.

Directors said the stock split proposal will be acted on at the March 26 annual meeting of the firm whose output includes accounting machines and systems, commercial data processing systems and government defense work.

The 30-cent dividend will be paid April 21 to stockholders on record March 28.

Ray W. MacDonald, president of Burroughs, said the firm had a 1968 worldwide income of $655.6 million, an increase of 18 per cent over the $553.9 million of 1967.

Net earnings averaged $5.27 a share in 1968, compared with $4.26 for the comparable period of 1967.

Rally in 3rd Straight Session

Vigorous Advance by Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed its rally into a third straight session with a vigorous advance in early trading today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials spurted 5.97 to 937.72 in the first half hour.

Brokers said the prospect that serious Vietnam peace talks would begin on Saturday was welcome news to investors.

TRADING ACTIVE

Trading was active, and the New York Stock Exchange ticker tape quickly fell two minutes behind in reporting floor transactions.

Atlantic Richfield declined ½ to 106½. Opening of trading in Sinclair was delayed due to an influx of orders. The Justice Department Wednesday filed suit to block a proposed merger of these two big oil companies.

Wednesday The Associated Press 60-stock average advanced 1.7 to 349.7.

* * *

Prices advanced on the American Stock Exchange. Fractional gains were made by Aerojet, Cinerama, Kane Miller, Unexcelled and Zale. Small losses were taken by Creole Petroleum, Genisco and Interphoto.

County Clerk Gets State Board Post

Oakland County Clerk Lynn D. Allen has been named by Gov. George Romney as a member of the State Aeronautics Commission.

★ ★ ★

Allen, named yesterday, will replace C. J. Reese of Muskegon who resigned. Allen's term will run until May 27, 1972. His appointment must be confirmed by the Senate.

★ ★ ★

Also appointed by Romney yesterday was Edward R. Beck of Troy to serve on the State Electrical Administrative Board for the remainder of a term ending Aug. 10, 1970. He succeeds Kent P. Stiner of Detroit, who resigned.

Lake Orion Civic Leader Is Dead at 96

George B. Cole Sr., former Lake Orion councilman, fire chief and chief of police, died yesterday. He was 96.

Service will be 1 p.m. Saturday at Allen's Funeral Home, Lake Orion, with burial in Evergreen Cemetery. A Masonic memorial service will be 8 p.m. tomorrow at the funeral home.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Neil R. Kitchen of Bloomfield Hills; two sons, Taylor M. of Phoenix, Ariz., and George B. Jr. of Saginaw; two stepsons, Clare L. Chapin and Byron Chapin of Lake Orion; two sisters, including Mrs. Lillian Carey of Romeo; nine grandchildren; and 10 great-grandchildren.

Cole of 1255 W. Silver Bell, Orion Township, was a long-time Lake Orion resident. A former ice, sand and gravel dealer, he served on the Lake Orion Board of Education and was a life member of Orion Lodge No. 46, F&AM and Orion Chapter No. 340, OES.

Cause No. 24390

STATE OF MICHIGAN—In the Probate Court for the County of Oakland, Juvenile Division.

TO: Robert Domman, father of said minor child.

Petition having been filed in this Court alleging that said child comes within the provisions of Chapter 712A of the Compiled Laws of 1948 as amended, in that the present whereabouts of the father of said minor child is unknown and said child has violated a law of the State, and that said child should be placed under the jurisdiction of this Court.

In the Name of the People of the State of Michigan, you are hereby notified that the hearing on said petition will be held at the Court House, Oakland County Service Center, in the City of Pontiac in said County, on the 27th day of January A.D. 1969, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, and you are hereby commanded to appear personally at said hearing.

It being impractical to make personal service hereof, this summons and notice shall be served by publication of a copy one week previous to said hearing in The Pontiac Press, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County.

Witness, the Honorable Eugene Arthur Moore, Judge of said Court, in the City of Pontiac in said County, this 10th day of January A.D. 1969.

Teacher Strike Possible

New Waterford School Crisis

By ED BLUNDEN

The Waterford Township School District is facing another crisis—a confrontation on a contract provision between the school board and the Waterford Education Association (WEA).

Although the WEA is working under a two-year contract that does not expire until July, a strike remains a possibility.

★ ★ ★

The issue is an "agency shop" contract provision, also called "union security." It means all teachers within the bargaining unit must pay dues even though they do not choose to become members.

The WEA feels this provision is vital to its existence. School officials feel it is impossible and illegal to grant it.

RULINGS ON ISSUE

Several other school districts in the state have faced the conflict and it has been ruled upon by various lower court judges.

It is expected to go to the State Supreme Court in the near future, however, where some ultimate guidelines may be set.

Bargaining between Waterford teachers and the schools on the issue began last March, according to a reopener clause in the original contract. It appears that after 10 months no real progress has been made.

★ ★ ★

Adding fuel to the controversy is a report on a hearing held last month before a Michigan Labor Mediation Board fact-finding tribunal presided over by M. David Keefe, hearing officer and arbitrator.

The report is strongly in favor of the agency shop provision and sharply critical of the board and now the WEA insists the recommendations be acted upon. School officials said they feel that Keefe was prejudiced in favor of the provision before hearing the evidence. They also insist it would be illegal to comply with the recommendations.

EXPLAINS POSITION

School Board President Donald W. Porter said the board feels it cannot legally approve an agency shop contract. He points out that if it was approved, the board would be forced to carry out the WEA provision that a nonpaying member be discharged (if such a case occurred and he was certain it would).

He said this would usurp and conflicts with the power of the State Tunure Commission which hears cases of teachers with tenure fired for alleged "just and sufficient cause."

Porter said the board was also considering the possible imposition on the taxpayers of the district if the board was faced with legal fees when sued by fired teachers.

Robert Crmpton, WEA executive secretary, insists other districts have "lived with the provision," and that the fact-finder (Keefe) has presented a valid formula.

'FINDINGS NOT BINDING'

Fact-finding is a step used in many union-management negotiations, but according to state rules its findings are not binding in any way.

Crumpton, however, said, "We have now exhausted all possibilities of negotiation." School board officials insist negotiations are still on. Crumpton claims this only means "We're right back where we started last March."

No upcoming negotiation sessions were announced but the school board holds a regular meeting tonight at 7:30 at its office, 3101 W. Walton and may discuss the issue.

Crumpton said the WEA will be consulting with its attorneys to determine the next step to pursue. He said this could include the calling of a strike vote by the membership.

ISSUE IN COURTS

Both WEA and school officials have pointed out the issue as it involved other school districts is now in the courts.

One school official said he hoped the State Supreme Court would ultimately set a pattern upon which some agreement could be reached. The official said he hoped any severe actions would be avoided until the courts have had their say.

★ ★ ★

Other types of modified agency shop agreements have been reached in other districts. Some of them, for instance, have a "grandfather clause" in which teachers employed before a contract was signed need not join or pay dues. Other contracts provide for nonmembers to play only local dues and not state or national association dues. (In Waterford annual dues are $101 — $39 locally, $47 nationally and $15 to the state organization).

In the agency shop sought by the WEA all teachers would be required to pay full dues but not necessarily sign a membership card.

The impending conflict adds to existing school district problems caused by insufficient finances. Shortened school days have been in effect for some grades since last fall and more class-time cutting is faced since the Dec. 7 millage request defeat.

Police Action

Pontiac police officers and Oakland County sheriff's deputies investigated 76 reported incidents and made seven arrests the past 24 hours.

A breakdown of causes for police action:

Vandalisms—7
Assaults—6
Property damage accidents—23
Traffic offenses—13
Injury accidents—8
Larcenies—10
Burglaries—2
Obscene phone calls—1
Disorderly persons—5
Bad checks—1

Store in Area Is Burglarized

Five teen-agers were arrested early this morning on charges of burglarizing a store at Keatington Antique Village in Orion Township where about $80 was stolen and nine coin-operated machines were broken into earlier.

An Oakland County sheriff's deputy apprehended the youths after he spotted a car reportedly linked to the incident, drive past a store at 2369 Joslyn about two hours after the break-in.

★ ★ ★

Deputy Russell Bremer stopped the car near Indianwood and Baldwin after he said he saw it go through a stop sign.

He said he observed reportedly stolen cigarettes and music records on the floor of the car.

★ ★ ★

Bremer said the car fit the description of one a neighbor noticed at the village earlier in the morning.

Arrested were two Pontiac juveniles, one 15 and one 16, and Ronald Stamour, 17, of 380 E. Columbia, Pontiac, and Leo W. Miller and Wayne L. Spencer, both 18 and both of 4084 Manitoba, Pontiac Township.

City Man Gets 3 Years' Probation for Bar Shooting

A Pontiac man was placed on three years probation yesterday for shooting a bar patron last September.

Wesley Rambus, 36, of 356 Franklin Road, pleaded guilty last month to a lesser charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

Rambus had been charged with assault with intent to murder after Joe A. Carr, 27, of 329 Harrison was wounded in the leg during an argument Sept. 21 at the 88 Club, 88 Bagley.

In sentencing Rambus, Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer also ordered that he pay $10 a month court costs during the probation period.

Car Hits Tree; Area Man Hurt

A Waterford Township man is in satisfactory condition at Pontiac General Hospital after an accident in which his car ran off Andersonville Road near Windiate in Waterford Township and struck a tree early yesterday.

Melvin E. Spricer, 23, of 4247 LaForest told townsihp police that he only remembered crossing a bridge before the accident.

'Detroit Must Double Share of Pollution Funds'

LANSING (AP) — Detroit will have to double its share of the financing of the city's water polution control program, Detroit Metropolitan Water Services General Manager Gerald J. Remus said Wednesday.

Remus said the city will have to double its original $12-million portion of the financing because the federal government failed to appropriate money to cover a portion of the grant program for water-pollution control.

★ ★ ★

Promised federal aid has been cut back by costs of the Vietnam war and other domestic programs, Remus told the State Water Resources Commission Wednesday.

He said he would ask the Detroit Common Council Tuesday to issue twice as many revenue bonds as it had planned.

Recount Ups Win Margin of Supervisor

A recount conducted yesterday at the request of a candidate for the Oakland County Board of Supervisors only added to his margin of defeat, according to county election officials.

The review of the Nov. 5 vote revealed that Ray Lahti, 53, of 240 Nalone, Wixom, lost the election to Lew Coy by 56 votes rather than 50.

Lahti had petitioned for the recount shortly after the election, but no action was taken while a lawsuit started by Coy against Lahti was pending and another recount involving Daylight Savings Time was completed.

Coy had taken Lahti to court on the grounds that he had not been informed within a specified period that Lahti had petitioned for the recount.

Oakland County Circuit Judge William R. Beasley settled the matter by ruling that Coy, too, could ask for a recount even though it was beyond the deadline for filing such a petition.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY of Sgt. Mario Ramirez who passed away January 16, 1967.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sadly missed by Monica Ramirez and Family.

IN LOVING MEMORY of Sgt. Mario Ramirez who passed away January 16, 1967.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
Sadly missed by Mary Rodriguez and Lolly Dye.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY OF my husband, Robert S. Raut, who passed away January 16, 1968.
Once in my life I had everything,
And once in my life I had someone who needed me.
God saw you getting weaker so he took you away.
You asked me not to cry but many tears I shed,
And told me always to remember
God has been good to us.
He gave us love, happiness and trust.
I miss you more and more each day,
But you are always by my side.
God took my heart with you and left me alone and sad.
In the beautiful isle of somewhere where there is no more sorrow and pain.
God give me strength and courage to go on until we meet again.
Sadly missed by his wife, Mrs. Beatrice Raut.

"A PAD THAT'S RIGHT OUT OF PLAYBOY!"
30-DAY OCCUPANCY

That's what one young swinger said when he first glimpsed an Oakland Valley Apartment! Modestly, we agree. We've put all the latest luxuries into these 1 and 2 bedroom apartments . . . sunken living rooms, terrace dining rooms, even private balconies. We've carpeted them, draped them, installed air conditioning, and sound-condition them so as not to inhibit parties. And just to show we're serious about the Playboy bit, we've built the great new Oakland Valley Club for Oakland Valley Apartment residents and their guests. It has a pool, card and game rooms, exercise room, sauna baths, and a very free-wheeling atmosphere. All yours for as little as $175 a month. P.S.—Bunnies Welcome.

Models Open Daily and Sunday—1 to 8 P.M. Saturday—1 to 6 P.M. Closed Wednesday.

ANNUAL SALE

"START THE NEW YEAR RIGHT"

Has always proved to be a good deal for our customers . . . . and, if it's been good for them, it's been good for us. This year's sale will be no exception. All cars have been specially selected, inspected and winterized. If you've been shopping for a used car you'll very quickly recognize that the cars listed below have been competitively priced . . . . and, in some instances, even lower than that.

Agnew Sparks 'Ted' Set at Hope Wedding Festival

By EARL WILSON

HOLLYWOOD — Besides the Jet Set, there is now a Ted Set.

It's made up of people who know Vice Pres.-elect Spiro T. Agnew well enough to call him Ted. Bob Hope referred to him as Ted repeatedly at the huge wedding of the Hopes' daughter Linda to Nathaniel Greenblatt Lande here last weekend.

WILSON

Tall, quiet "Ted" was here for everything — the wedding rehearsal dinner, the wedding and the reception, which I would long remember because there was something like 1,500 guests drinking imported champagne under a series of tents said to cover five acres — all at the Hopes' home on Moorpark St. in North Hollywood.

(The Ted Set is not to be confused with the Teddy Set, made up of followers of Teddy Kennedy.)

★ ★ ★

Ted Agnew moved around at all the partying, seeming to be as impressed as the rest of us. The reception was so enormous that the father of the bride — who's now practically called "Mr. America," with a greater audience than even the late Will Rogers in his day — was actually paged in his own home.

"Will Bob Hope, wherever he is, please report to the bride's table?" somebody called out several times.

★ ★ ★

His TV writers had prepared jokes and parodies. In his tailcoat he went to the mike and said, "Rarely do I do a benefit in my own home."

There was a murmur. "Sssh, people, the owner's on!" he warned them. Quiet, or I'll drop the tent on you!"

The size of the party must have impressed even the host, for he said to his younger daughter Nora, who's about to become engaged, "Why don't you get married right away, before we have to strike the set.?"

★ ★ ★

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Joe Namath's east side pub, Bachelors III, was open in the afternoon Sunday for the first time so patrons could watch the Superbowl on TV. When the Jets won, the house bought one round of drinks: "We don't want to throw Joe's money around when he's not here."

Thelma Carpenter subbed capably for ailing Pearl Bailey in "Dolly" . . . Comic Gene Baylos, now in H'wood is returning to N.Y. to get a divorce, after 11 years separation . . . Columbia Pictures spent $300,000 to dub "Oliver!" into Italian and French for European showings.

Pills Threaten 'Speed' Trap

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A pharmacology professor says that while the effectiveness of diet pills disappears within two or three weeks, some people continue to use them for their mild euphoric effect.

★ ★ ★

Diet pills belong to the amphetamine family, said Dr. Frederick Meyers of the University of California Medical Center, adding "Addiction to injected amphetamine ("speed") is the most serious drug problem among today's youth."

★ ★ ★

"The individual on a 'speed' trip doesn't eat or sleep for days, experiences both auditory and visual hallucinations, and often exhibits violent paranoid behavior," Meyers said.

He said the compulsive user of large doses of oral amphetamine, unlike that of injected amphetamine, is rare.

★ ★ ★

"However, some vulnerable individuals gulp dozens of diet or pep pills daily, doing nearly as much damage to themselves as the 'speed' abuser," said Meyers.

★ ★ ★

Anxiety and wakefulness, often to the point of insomnia, are common side effects of even moderate doses of amphetamines, especially at the beginning of use. Meyers said.

Here's a Brief Look at Military Physical

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second of three articles on entering the armed services through enlistment or the draft.)

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Newsfeatures

FT. HOLABIRD, MD. — If you're enlisting or facing the draft, the doctors who'll give you your physical exam probably will be civilians working part-time for the military. But doctors in uniform make the final decision on how fit you are.

BAULCH

That's the way it is at the Armed Forces Examining and Entrance Station here at Ft. Holabird and at most of the other 78 stations across the United States — the place where you get your first exposure to military life.

So what's it like taking your physical for military service?

On the day I visited here, about 100 men were taking their preinduction testing and about half that many being tested for enlistments. Another 100 who had gone through the process weeks or months earlier were back to enter service as draftees or enlistees.

The preinduction draftees and those trying to qualify for enlistment take the same physical exam but go through in separate groups to facilitate their processing with different types of mental exams.

QUICK ONCE-OVER

Those who are entering service go through in two other separate groups—draftees and enlistees—but they get only a quick once-over to see if there is any change since the big physical checkup.

The physical check starts in a dressing room where you all strip to undershorts, hang your clothes on a hook and put your valuables in a bag you'll carry with you.

EVERYBODY LINES UP

First you all line up. Then doctors with stethescopes handy go up and down the line and give you a head to toe looking over—listening, probing.

Then you slowly follow a broad white line with arrows guiding you from station to station—blood pressure, urinalysis, blood test, chest X ray, eye test, weight and height check, a hearing test chamber.

★ ★ ★

If there's a special problem, the doctors consult. Maybe a specialist is needed. Capt. Michael Borushok, the senior doctor here, has civilians on tap in Baltimore or he can send to Walter Reed Army Hospital in nearby Washington.

Sometimes this means you won't be processed in one day as usual. The psychiatrist, for instance, doesn't come every day. Or a three-day blood pressure check may be required. The center can hold you up to 72 hours in such cases.

NEARBY QUARTERS

If you have to be held overnight, there are quarters nearby and you get meal tickets. Also you get a toothbrush and toilet necessities since you probacly didn't bring any baggage. Some stations provide rooms in nearby motels.

When no special checks are needed, the physical exam is over in a couple of hours.

★ ★ ★

When you claim a disability or want some past medical problem on your record, Capt. Borushok recommends that you bring your medical reports from your personal physicians. Some disabilities are obvious but not all.

If Dr. Borushok disagrees with your personal physician, it is the captain's judgment that prevails.

YOU CAN APPEAL

Any added documents can be sent here later through your draft board. If you still feel strongly you are not fit for military service you can appeal. For Army draftees the appeal must be directed to The Surgeon, U.S. Army Recruiting Command, Hampton, Va. 23366, but you have to have a strong case backed with records to get the decision reversed.

As I noted last week, both those seeking to enlist and those here for their preinduction physicals return home when the process is over.

★ ★ ★

Those enlistees who make the grade come back to enter the service according to their agreed-to schedule.

If you're a draftee you return when your draft board tickets you to fill a quota, which probably will be two to three months later, depending on whether draft calls go up or down.

PRIVATE TALK

Before heading home, but on completion of their mental and physical exams, those who have mentioned criminal records are directed to the desk of Mrs. Catherine Cirri.

She talks to each man privately, gets the details of his law breaking and starts processing a waiver for him if it seems he can qualify for service. After the man leaves she checks, if necessary, with the judge, probation officer or others involved in his case.

★ ★ ★

In some cases, Mrs. Cirri says, a man facing the draft will boast of a criminal record, hoping it will disqualify him for military service. But Mrs. Cirri looks into such a case and may provide a waiver even if he doesn't want one.

Something new has been started here and at a few other stations—assignment of a representative of the Office of Economic Opportunity to the center. Truman Hohl, the OEO agent here, looks over the records of men to see if they are school dropouts or come from poverty homes and are good candidates for the Job Corps so they can be trained to qualify for jobs or military service.

PRETTY GOOD AVERAGE

Hohl considers it a pretty good batting average that only five of 55 candidates he interview in his first three weeks jumped at the chance to join the Job Corps.

The man who oversees the fine points of the processing is Maj. Edward Bucksom, who presides in a meeting-size hall office. He and his military and civilian crew check the records to see that all is in order.

★ ★ ★

He has to see too how many men on each draft board's list fail to show up. About five out of each 50 called up, he said, don't make it here. And others do arrive but "elope" before the day is over.

In both cases the draft boards are notified, the missing men are classified as draft delinquents and face immediate call-up.

Sometimes, the major said, men coming for their preinduction checkup feel that since they aren't in the military yet they don't have to obey orders. These balky ones he gives a fatherly lecture to persuade them, if they prove uncooperative the draft boards are informed and such men usually end up being called for immediate induction.

★ ★ ★

Some time ago, Buckson had to deal with Vietnam war protesters picketing Ft. Holabird. It was finally settled by a court order permitting picketing but giving him authority to toss out any who actually interferred with the process.

(Next week I'll wind up this series of columns by describing the day you actually enter the service.)

Wider Peace Talks Start Saturday

By The Associated Press

The United States and North Vietnam, with consent of their respective allies, announced in Paris today that the long-stalled expanded Vietnam peace talks will begin Saturday morning.

★ ★ ★

The American, North Vietnamese, South Vietnamese and National Liberation Front delegations will meet at a round unmarked table at the International Conference Center.

● The table will be flanked by two rectangular tables at opposite points 18 inches from the main table. The U.S. and South Vietnamese view the rectangular tables as a dividing line across the round table.

● There are to be no flags or name plates, a provision which avoids identification of the NLF as if its delegation represented a government instead of a revolutionary force.

● The speaking arrangements will be that each delegation on one side speaks in order and then each delegation on the other. If the United States speaks first, South Vietnam speaks second and then the two representatives on the other side speak.

FINAL LBJ ACHIEVEMENT

The three-point compromise which ended the deadlock is regarded in Washington as a final diplomatic achievement of the Johnson Administration in its efforts to end the Vietnam War.

★ ★ ★

A final effort by President Johnson to break the deadlock was revealed by government sources who said the new proposals have President-elect Nixon's personal support.

★ ★ ★

A U.S. spokesman in Paris, refused to characterize the agreement, or to say whether it represented concession by the U.S.-Saigon side, which had insisted on a marked table to show the peace conference was two sided.

SAIGON: TWO-SIDED

In Saigon today, Foreign Minister Tran Chanh Tranh insisted the talks will be in fact two-sided.

Announcing agreement on an unmarked circular table flanked by two tables for secretaries, Thanh said: "This is the nearest we could get to the two sides we have been fighting for."

★ ★ ★

But for some time it is expected the enlarged conference will deal with procedural matters before it gets down to talking about how to achieve peace in Vietnam.

The first meeting 10:30 a.m. — 4:30 a.m., EST — Saturday will be held with four members of each delegation present, a total of 16, plus secretaries as needed.

DEPUTIES TO HEAD SIDES

The deputy heads of delegations will be present, since there are still procedural matters to be discussed. Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance will represent the United States, Col. Ha Van Lau the North Vietnamese, Nguyen Phong the South Vietnamese and Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh the NLF.

Vance and Lau reached the agreement after meetings of an hour and a half yesterday and one of a half-hour this morning.

★ ★ ★

Shape of the table and speaking arrangements had been the core of the wrangle which had held up enlarged talks ever since Johnson announced the end of bombing of North Vietnam Oct. 31.

The first session, at least, will be held in private. The United States said future meetings might be open to the press.

★ ★ ★

Saturday the Saigon-American side will speak first. At the next meeting, the Hanoi-NLF side will speak first. For Saturday the allied side has designated Phong, Saigon's No. 2 man, as the speaker, followed by Vance.

2 Red Spacemen Change Ships

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts transferred from one orbiting spaceship to another today, scoring a dramatic first for the Soviet space program.

The two space ships, Soyuz 4 and Soyuz 5, had linked up in orbit shortly before cosmonauts Yevgeny Khrunov and Alexei Yeliseyev made the transfer.

★ ★ ★

The official Soviet news agency Tass said they moved from Soyuz 5 to join Vladimir Shatalov in Soyuz 4, leaving Boris Volynov alone in Soyuz 5.

Radio Moscow said the two cosmonauts were outside the linked-up ships "about an hour."

NEW SUPPORT SYSTEM

Khrunov and Yeliseyev donned space suits just before the maneuver. Radio Moscow said the suits were equipped with a new life-support system.

Khrunov exited from Soyuz 5 and climbed aboard the companion ship above the territory of South America. Yeliseyev made his move over the Soviet Union.

★ ★ ★

"The condition of all cosmonauts is good," Radio Moscow said.

Moscow television showed a videotape of the two cosmonauts inside the orbiting ship preparing to make the transfer. Volynov helped Yeliseyev and Khrunov get into their suits.

'DON'T RUSH'

"Our condition is excellent," Volynov reported.

"Don't be in a hurry," a voice from ground control said.

One of the cosmonauts could then be seen floating in space.

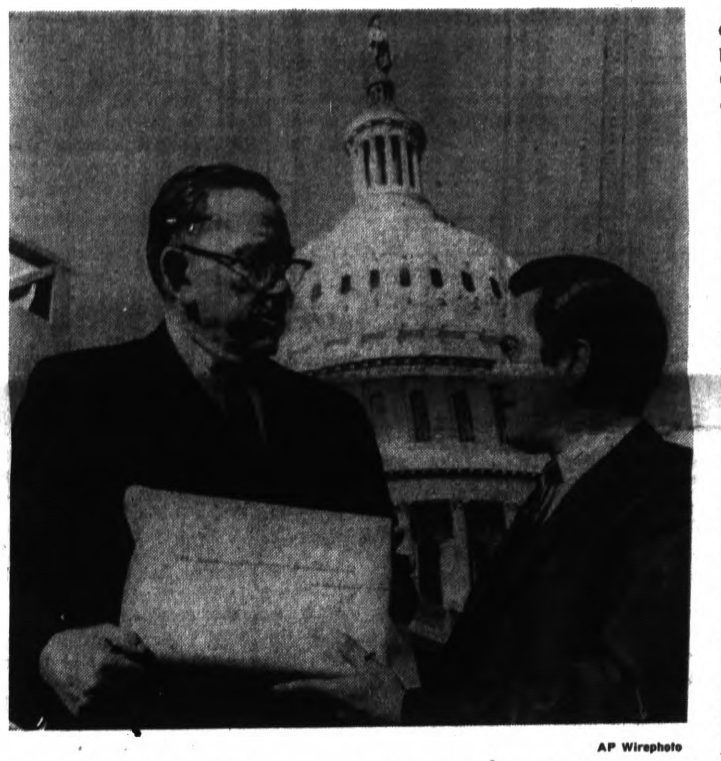
GOP Predicts Deficit in New Johnson Budget



AP Wirephoto

$195.3-BILLION PACKAGE — Presidential Secretary Ronald Geisler (right) delivers President Johnson's fiscal year 1970 budget to William M. Miller, doorkeeper of the House of Representatives. Delivery was yesterday, after Johnson signed the document.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans in Congress are complaining that the $195.3-billion spending budget submitted to Congress by President Johnson will produce a deficit instead of the surplus that Johnson claimed.

Democrats, meanwhile, indicated they will wait to see President-elect Nixon's legislative program before they act to put Johnson's proposals for full funding of welfare programs into effect.

★ ★ ★

Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirkson of Illinois said his fellow Republicans are waiting to "get the figuring straight" before pouncing on Johnson's contention that his budget would give Nixon a $3.4 billion surplus in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

But Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, a new member of the Senate Finance Committee, pinpointed the GOP's main objection. He said Johnson had counted as revenue surpluses being piled up in trust fund accounts for future Social Security and medicare benefits.

BORROWING NEED SEEN

"What really counts," Miller said, "is the regular operating accounts. If deficits occur in these, they must be covered by increased federal borrowing — the root cause of the inflation that has been sweeping the country.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., a Senate Armed Services Committee member, said the course of the Vietnam war will have a heavy influence on the ability of the new administration to operate in the black.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Johnson had taken "a courageous course" in recommending increased welfare spending, and "I hope that President Nixon will see the need for continuing programs to meet our domestic problems."

WAIT-AND-SEE

Kennedy, assistant Senate Democratic leader, and a possible candidate for his party's 1972 presidential nomination, said he thinks most Democrats will want to see Nixon's program before drafting any alternative proposals.

"The responsibility lies with the President-elect to suggest action in a variety of fields," he said. "Hopefully there will be an early meeting of the Democratic Policy Committee to identify the areas in which the party ought to move to meet the needs.

★ ★ ★

"I am sure we will want to develop our own priorities but we must wait to see what Mr. Nixon proposes."

Junior Miss Activity Will Begin Tonight

A variety of activities begins tonight for the 24 finalists competing for the title of Michigan Junior Miss with a reception at the Community National Bank building.

Tomorrow the attractive and talented teen-agers will attend personal interviews and rehearsals for the talent performance scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. at Pontiac Northern High School auditorium.

★ ★ ★

Saturday at 8 p.m. the final judging will be held in the auditorium.

The girls will be judged on scholastic ability, individual interviews, poise and appearance, physical fitness and talent performance.

Judges are Fred McEvoy, associate director of admissions, University of Detroit; Caroline Roulier, executive secretary to the president of the University of Detroit; Frank Bollinger, director of public relations at Meadow Brook Theatre; Michael Pulte, buyer for the J. L. Hudson Co., Detroit; Patrice Gaunder, America's 1965 Junior Miss from Stevensville, Mich.; and Patrick J. Duggan, 1967-68 Michigan Jaycee president.

The winner of the state Junior Miss Pageant, sponsored by the Pontiac Area Jaycees, will receive a trip to the national finals in May in Mobile, Ala.

Other prizes include a $1,000 scholarship from the Coca-Cola Bottlers of Michigan, a $100 scholarship from the Community National Bank, a $500 savings bond from the Chevrolet Division and a $25 savings bond from the Pontiac State Bank.

Tickets for both evening performances may be purchased at the door or obtained in advance at Osman's downtown and in the Tel-Huron Shopping Center and at the C. R. Haskill Studio, 1 University.

Report to LBJ Urges Action Plan

Postwar Recession Is Feared

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Cabinet-level report to President Johnson warns that the United States faces a possible recession when the Vietnam war ends, and urges that the government be ready with an action plan to stop it.

The report, sent to Congress today by the President, said the economy would be subjected to the same deflationary pressures that followed the Korean war.

While not predicting any date for an end to hostilities in Vietnam, the committee of top-White House advisers based estimates on an assumption that the transition to peace could be essentially completed by July 1, 1971 — in other words, the start of the 1972 fiscal year.

The report said that if the current 10 per cent income surtax is still in effect when the fighting ends, earlier phase-out of the tax could help offset any recession and promote healthy economic growth. It also urged that a detailed plan to speed up government spending on high priority projects be prepared now to cushion the impact of the transition from a war to peace economy.

SIGNATORIES

The report of the Cabinet committee, under preparation since March 1967, carried the signatures of Defense Secretary Clark Clifford, Treasury Secretary Joseph Barr, Commerce Secretary C. R. Smith, Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, Budget Director Charles J. Zwick and Chairman Arthur M. Okun of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Anticipating that the U.S. economy will be generating more than $1 trillion — one thousand billion — by 1972, the report said the cost of the Vietnam war has been a load for the U.S. economy to carry, and not a prop supporting it.

★ ★ ★

"Prosperity has not depended on the defense building and will not need high military spending to support it in peace time," the report said.

The amount available for federal "peace and growth" spending would amount to $22 billion by fiscal 1972 and would increase at the rate of $7 billion to $8 billion a year thereafter, once peace is restored, it estimated.

The report warned that peace could come in a number of ways. Hostilities might decline gradually, requiring reduced expenditures, or there could be a lengthy armed truce which would not permit a significant reduction of U.S. forces in Southeast Asia.

The United States now is spending $80 billion for defense. In the absence of peace, it was estimated that defense purchases would reach $86 billion after 18 months, and $90 billion after 30 months. But if a genuine peace is reached, the report estimated that defense purchases could be reduced to $73 billion by fiscal 1972.

Underground N-Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission says two underground nuclear test were conducted yesterday at its test site in Nevada.

The AEC said it set off one explosion of low-intermediate yield, which includes explosives with 20 to 200 kilotons power and one of low yield, 20-kilotons or less.

Range of Prizes Wide at Cook School

Two gas ranges from Consumers Power Co. will be among the grand prizes at the 10th annual Pontiac Press Cooking School. The school begins Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Pontiac Central High School auditorium.

Consumers Power also is contributing a 40-gallon hot-water heater, a gas incinerator, a gas dryer and a gas outdoor barbecue.

★ ★ ★

Other grand prizes are a portable dishwasher from Coleman's Furniture Mart; a portable TV set from Hampton Electric Co.; a dinette set from House of Dinettes; a vacuum cleaner from Singer Sewing Center and a 14-cubic-foot refrigerator from Bill Petrusha & Sons.

One or more of these prizes will be given away at each of the six sessions, Monday through Thursday evening, and Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon.

Other prizes given daily include dinner tickets from Ted's Restaurant and Uncle John's Pancake House; cleaning certificates from Spencer's Floor Covering, Fox Cleaners and Gresham Cleaners; and a wig from Donnell's. Kmart store will give electric frypans and Peoples-Foodtown Stores will give Gold Bell gift stamps.

Atlas, L. S. and Tenuta Foodlands, Felice Quality Market and Richardson's Farm Dairy will provide food for bags of groceries to be given away daily.

Although there are no longer tickets available, any interested person may attend. All empty seats will be filled just before the sessions start. Everyone has an equal chance to win prizes, except for members of Pontiac Press employes' families.

LBJ Fiscal Report Stresses Advances, Warns of Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said today in his final economic report that he's leaving behind a solid foundation for continued prosperity, but he conceded that his successor will have to deal with major problems in the economy.

The President, in sending his report to Congress, said the United States has experienced an unprecedented period of prosperity in the last eight years, all under Democratic administrations. This has permitted, he said, major investments which should insure continued economic growth for the indefinite future.

★ ★ ★

To support Johnson's case, the economic report listed investments in:

- Industrial plant and equipment, which has grown by nearly a third in five years.
- Manpower, more than a million persons have acquired skills through government-aided programs.

- Education, which has seen a spectacular increase of 2.2 million in college enrollments since 1963.
- Urban centers which, the President said, are beginning to be restored "as decent places to live."

Johnson said, "The nation is now in its 95th month of continuous economic advance. Both in strength and length, this prosperity is without parallel in our history."

MAJOR PROBLEM

He insisted that this was caused in no small part by the failure of Congress to enact the 10 per cent income surtax in January 1967, when he first asked for it.

Johnson declared in his report that the job of combining national prosperity with price stability "is the biggest remaining over-all challenge facing the nation."

4 Bandits Rob City Drugstore

Four bandits escaped with an estimated $3,000 to $4,000 from cash registers and a safe of a Pontiac drugstore last night as they forced at gun point some of seven people in the store to lie on the floor.

After the four bandits entered Arrow Discount Pharmacy, 450 E. Pike, two stayed at the door and the others went to the back of the store where one of them reportedly pulled a pistol and ordered employe Robert Arnold, 42, to empty the cash registers and safe.

★ ★ ★

Arnold, another employe and a customer were then forced to lie on the floor behind a counter while the robbers ran out the door, Arnold told police.

The bandits prevented one customer from leaving the store and prevented a man from entering the store, witnesses told police.

7 IN STORE

There were four customers and three employes in the store at the time of the robbery at 6:30 p.m., police said.

Witnesses said one man escaped south on South Sanford and the other three went west on East Pike.

★ ★ ★

They said the robbers were Negroes about 19 to 21 years old.

One wore a black car coat and yellow or green head scarf and had pockmarks on his face, and another wore green slacks, a green jacket and a brown hat and sported a mustache.

The other two were only described as wearing dark clothing.

Divorce Is Granted to Mrs. DeLorean

The 14-year marriage of Pontiac Motor Division General Manager John Z. DeLorean, 44, ended yesterday with the granting of an uncontested divorce to his wife, Elizabeth, by Oakland County Circuit Judge Arthur E. Moore.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. DeLorean, charging cruelty in the suit filed March 7, 1968, will receive $375,000 over the next 15 years, whether she remarries or not. She also gets possession of the home at 31235 Bingham, Bingham Farms; title to 163 acres in Springfield Township; and $22,000 in attorney fees. There were no children.

Big Federal Pay Hikes Get Congress Rush

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is in the process of giving itself — and counterpart bigwigs in the executive branch — raises in pay.

Big raises. So big the guidelines of 5 per cent recommended by the White House for most workers look like peanuts.

★ ★ ★

Richard M. Nixon will get the biggest raise — a 100 per cent increase over the $100,000 Lyndon B. Johnson now makes.

The bill breezed through the House a few days ago and through the Senate yesterday.

LBJ DOES PART

The increases will become effective in 30 days, unless Congress vetoes them.

★ ★ ★

There were five broad "levels" of increases. These included:

I. Cabinet officers, raised from $35,000 to $60,000. Persons affected—12.

II. Secretaries of the three branches of the armed forces, and head of the independent agencies, such as the Veterans Administration, raised from $30,000 to $42,500. Persons affected—41.

III. Undersecretaries, and chairmen of boards and commissions, such as the Civil Service Commission, raised from $29,500 to $40,000. Persons affected—60.

IV. Assistant secretaries, chief legal officers of the departments, under secretaries of the armed forces, and members of boards and commissions, raised from $28,750 to $38,000. Persons affected—225.

V. Heads of some major bureaus and the counsels for the armed forces, such as the Bureau of the Customs, from $28,000 to $36,000. Persons affected—178.

- Mrs. Marion Craft of 94 Riviera, Pontiac. She has been with the bank since its establishment in 1933 and previously worked the loan and discount department. She was the supervisor of the bond department since 1942.

MRS. MOORE

- Mrs. Neulla Moore of 136 Randell, Pontiac. She joined the bank in 1943 as a teller and has held supervisory positions both in the bulk receiving and teller training departments. Currently, she is in the operations department.

Birmingham Area

Fire Dept.'s Aid Sought for 2 Subdivisions

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — This township's fire department has been asked by West Bloomfield Township officials to provide fire protection for the Sylvan Manor and Hammond Lake subdivisions in West Bloomfield. West Bloomfield recently sold a fire station serving that area to Keego Harbor for the new Tri-City Fire Department serving Sylvan Lake, Orchard Lake and Keego Harbor.

The Township Board has given the fire department authorization to secure estimates on the cost of fire protection for the two subdivisions.

The board also approved the low bid purchases of two GMC pickup trucks at $2,164 each from the General Motors Corp. branch sales office in Pontiac; a Ford station wagon at $2,835; two Ford patrol cars at $2,380 each and a Ford van at $2,650, all from John McAuliffe Ford Inc. of Pontiac. There were five bidders.

In other business, the first hearing on the proposed extension of Valley Spring Road was held. No objections were voiced at the hearing. Assessments will be established at the second hearing, March 10. The proposed extension of Valley Spring is between Inkster and Franklin on the south side of Maple.

A concert by the Contemporary Jazz Quintet has been scheduled for Sunday at 5 p.m. in the Galleries of Cranbrook Academy of Art. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students. Members will be admitted free.

BIRMINGHAM — A public hearing on the vacation of an alley between Redding and Quarton, behind businesses on the west side of Woodward, will be held Jan. 29. The city planning board scheduled the 8 p.m. meeting, which will be at city hall, last night.

Some businesses backing the alley have requested that the city vacate the alley and turn it back to private property for their use.

The board also discussed creating guidelines for an architectural review committee. This would include reviewing plans for new commercial and multiple buildings in an attempt to coordinate each building with those around it.

26th Sailor Missing

Navy Probes Carrier Tragedy

PEARL HARBOR (AP) — The U.S. Navy carried on with cleanup operations aboard the nuclear aircraft carrier Enterprise today as investigators sought to pin down the cause of explosions and fire which killed 25 crewmen and injured 85.

A 26th sailor was missing in the disaster which struck the 85,000-ton warship on a training exercise 75 miles southwest of Honolulu Tuesday.

Related Story, Pictures, Pages A-5, A-11

Adm. John J. Hyland, commander of the Pacific fleet, said he was "confident that we are going to be able to establish exactly what did happen and what caused it."

The explosions and fire put the Enterprise, world's largest combat vessel, out of action until repairs are completed. No official source would guess how long this would take.

HOMEWARD TRIP

It was indicated that the ship would start back to its home port of Alameda, Calif., as soon as possible.

In Honolulu's Tripler Army Hospital, 58 injured crewmen were still under treatment, four in serious condition. Another nine were flown to a special burns treatment center at Brooke Army Hospital in Texas.

Gutted aircraft and other debris littered the carrier's flight deck, but Cmdr. Samuel B. Lancaster, public affairs officer of the Enterprise, said a cleanup would be completed "in a couple more days."

Two Get Prison for Extortion Try

Prison terms of 3 to 20 years were ordered yesterday for two men convicted of trying to extort $4,600 from the proprietor of a Pontiac Township bowling alley.

Sentenced were Thomas F. Davis, 39, of Dearborn and Michael D. Bruno, 53, of Detroit.

In imposing the sentence, Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer refused to continue their bonds while the convictions are being appealed.

The two were taken to the county jail where they will await transfer to the state prison at Jackson.

FOUND GUILTY DEC. 11

Davis and Bruno were found guilty by a jury on Dec. 11 of threatening Donald A. Spalla, part-owner and manager of Orchard Lanes, 645 Opdyke, in May 1967.

Instead of turning over the money, Spalla went to the State Police with his story.

The money reportedly was owed to Patricia Kelly of Detroit, a friend of Bruno and Davis, as a repayment of a loan to Spalla.

Spalla, 35, claimed that the money was not a debt and that Miss Kelly had given it to him for living expenses when he accompanied her on a business trip in Florida.

★ ★ ★

The guilty verdicts were returned against the pair after the jury deliberated five hours. Their trial lasted two weeks.

Romney: Biggest Mistake Was Speaking Out

LANSING (UPI) — Gov. George W. Romney says he considers the biggest mistake of his six years in office was speaking out on controversial issues when he should have kept quiet.

He gave this appraisal yesterday afternoon in his last news conference as governor of Michigan. He vowed not to make the same error as U. S. secretary of housing and urban developlent.

* * *

"I've been very accommodating with the people of the press, radio and television . . . and that's been my main problem all along," said Romney.

"I've answered questions as I've gotten off planes . . . I've gone for radio interviews when I didn't have time to gather my thoughts . . . I just went too far in that respect."

BRAINWASH REMARK

Romney did not say so directly but he obviously was thinking about perhaps the most political damaging extemporaneous remark of his career — that he'd been "brainwashed" on the Vietnam war.

The impromptu statement was made Sept. 2, 1967, during an interview on a Detroit television station. It has been credited with ruining Romney's chances for a shot at the presidency.

Romney told the 50 reporters attending his farewell news conference in the State Capitol that he'll be more careful in the future.

TO BE MORE CAUTIOUS

For one thing, he said, he won't be so quick to react when a Washington newsman asks for an "off-the-cuff" comment on federal developments.

"I'd be a foolish individual if I hadn't learned someting in my relationships with the press," Romney said.

* * *

"I've learned that every time someone runs up and sticks a microphone in my face and asks me a question that I ought to discuss with all the press, I'm not going to discuss it with an individual commentator. I'm going to wait until I have an opportunity to discuss it generally."

* * *

As HUD secretary, Romney said he views his biggest problem as shaping public attitudes to believe America's urban malaise can be solved.

'UNLIMITED CHALLENGES'

"What people think is much more important than what they do," he said.

He said the Cabinet post offers "unlimited challenges to meet the needs of this country." No other job in the new administration, he added, is more "exciting and meaningful."

* * *

Romney continued: "The deeper I get into my new responsibilities, the more my enthusiasm grows. I'm chafing at the bit to get going and get something done."

* * *

Romney said he had not had a chance to "properly scrutinize" the new HUD budget but that he's hopeful the Nixon administration can "make some meaningful advances," with the assistance of private industry, to ease unemployment and housing problems in the nation's ghettos.

Political Berth Dates From Birth

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Roy Chapman, Fannin County ordinary for more than 20 years, was testifying Wednesday before the Georgia House Rules Committee in connection with charges of election irregularities.

* * *

Attorney Freeman Leverett asked him if he were a Republican by "political persuasion."

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — Service for Carl A. Westerberg, 86, of 4750 Algonquin will be 11 a.m. Saturday at C. J. Godhardt Funeral Home, with burial in Ottawa Park Cemetery, Independence Township.

Mr. Westerberg, retired supervisor for Ford Motor Co., Johansson Division, died yesterday.

Surviving are a son, Eric E. of West Bloomfield Township; a daughter, Mrs. Ragnar G. Peterson of Dearborn; three grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren.

Dental Board Denies Bias

DETROIT (AP)—Michigan's State Board of Dental Examiners Wednesday called charges of discrimination, made by a Negro dentists' group, "entirely false."

Dr. John Champagne, executive secretary of the board, denied charges by the Wolverine Dental Association that the board discriminated by turning down two black applicants for dental licenses.

★ ★ ★

The 85-member organization also accused the dental license examiners of discouraging Negroes from practicing in Michigan.

★ ★ ★

Wolverine had also charged Gov. George Romney with bias for appointing Dr. Richard Huffman to the dental board instead of a Negro dentist who was the first choice of the state dental association convention.

★ ★ ★

Huffman was reappointed to the board this year after completing the term of another member who died three years ago. He had been one of three persons recommended to the governor by the 1968 Michigan Dental Association convention.

Parochiaid Gets Boosts

MAKE OVER PAGE

LANSING (UPI) — A joint Senate-House study committee report and a further "clarification" by departing Gov. George Romney boosted prospects for tax aid to Michigan's 1,000 parochial schools in the Legislature today.

The committee, headed by Sen. Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo, announced it had settled on a recommended parochiaid program that would meet constitutional tests.

★ ★ ★

Modeled after a plan now in force in Pennsulvania, it provides tax money to nonpublic schools on a teacher services' contract basis.

The proposal does not envision direct tax grants to parochail school students or their parents.

'SOLID PROGRAM'

"The majority of the committee believes it is a solid program," said Rep. Dale E. Kildee, D-Flint. "It does not violate the Constitution."

The committee has been studying the parochiaid problem for several months. It investigated school systems in Ohio and New York as well as Pennsylvania.

★ ★ ★

No price tag was announced immediately, though the program was expected to cost several million dollars if approved by the Legislature and signed by the governor.

Forces supporting parochiaid were also helped when Romney, at a farewell gubernatorial news conference, backed further off his suggestion that nonpublic schools stick to religion and leave reading, writing and arithmetic to the state.

BACKS MILLIKEN

Romney said his statemens on the politically sensitive subject continue to be misunderstood and that he fully embraces the position of Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken.

Milliken, in his first State of the State message last week, told the Legislature he is "in sympathy" with the financial crisis facing nonpublic schools. He indicated he would not object to legislation granting them aid so long as funds were provided for the program and constitutional restrictions were observed.

★ ★ ★

Earlier Romney urged lawmakers and churchmen to "seriously consider whether it would not be more desirable to leave secular education to the state . . ."

He then attempted to "clarify" the statement in a farewell appearnace before the Legislature by saying he did not mean to advocate the shutdown of private schools.

★ ★ ★

At his last news conference in the capitol Wednesday afternoon, he expanded on his parochiaid position, saying there was "no difference" between his and Milliken's stand.

Said Romney: "The lieutenant governor deplored the shut down of private schools. I deplore the shutdown of private schools. If we could go to a dual school system where we were willing to support both and you could freely choose between private and public schools, that would be the best approach."

Parks Leaders Will Eye Bonds

Rperesentatives from 16 or 17 state counties having parks programs will meet in Oakland County tomorrow to probe the projected allocation of the $100-million parks and recreations bond issue approved in the November elections.

Oakland County Parks Director Kenneth L. Van Natta stated that representatives at tomorrow's meeting will form a Michigan County Parks Forum. This body will study current state plans to divide the funds among cities, counties and state conservation programs.

GOP Support for McLaughlin

By JIM LONG
and JEAN SAILE

William McLaughlin of Northville, executive director of the Republican party in Michigan, last night won the support of delegates in the 19th Congressional District in his bid for the state chairmanship.

The endorsement came during the district convention in the supervisors' auditorium at the county courthouse.

In Southfield, where precinct delegates from the 18th District were holding their conventions, there were strong indications that they too would support McLaughlin to succeed Elly Peterson, who is resigning to become National Committeewoman. The matter did not come to the floor, officially however.

Both conventions undoubtedly were the quietest in recent years, particulary in the 18th District, where internal power struggles have marked previous conventions.

NO INCIDENTS

Unlike past conventions, delegates to the state convention in Grand Rapids Feb. 14 and 15 were elected without incident.

One party member even remarked that things just didn't seem the same without the fireworks that have sparked conventions over the last three years.

★ ★ ★

The reference was in connection with the obvious absence of members of the party's conservative faction, usually led at the 18th District convention by Sen. Rober J. Huber of Troy.

Huber was not at the convention.

167 DELEGATES PICKED

In the 18th District, precinct delegates elected 110 delegates and an equal number of alternates to attend the state convention, while in the 19th District, 57 delegates and alternates were named.

Had conservatives wanted to increase their strength, it would have been an opportune time since only about one-third of the 264 precinct delegates in the 18th District, and half of the 147 delegates in the 19th showed up at the conventions.

★ ★ ★

The light turnout probably was due to the fact that state convention delegates were chosen at legislative district caucuses held earlier in the week and had only to be confirmed and that no leadership struggle was foreseen.

Jack Gibbs, chairman of the 18th District, and John Cartwright, 19th District chairman, were named to preside over their respective conventions.

Gibbs, who has held his post two years, will seek a second term when district officers are elected at caucuses during the state convention.

Cartwright, however, has announced he will not run for reelection. In line for his job is Sheldon Smith of Pontiac. Smith says, however, that he hasn't decided if he will seek the post.

Teen Is Given Jail Term for Car Damage

A 1½-to-4-year prison term was ordered yesterday for a West Bloomfield Township teenager for maliciously damaging a small foreign car by jumping on the roof and hood and kicking the doors.

Upon hearing his sentence, Pat Noskey shouted at Circuit Judge William J. Beer and had to be removed from the courtroom by Oakland County sheriff's deputies.

★ ★ ★

Noskey, 17, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Noskey of 1555 Lookout.

The youth pleaded guilty Dec. 18 to maliciously injuring personal property in connection with the incident in Waterford Township a month earlier.

★ ★ ★

Waterford Township police said that the only motive Noskey gave for his actions was that he was helping a friend who had a grudge against the owner of the car. The companion is a juvenile and has not yet appeared before authorities.

Damage to the car was so severe that for all practical purposes it was a "total loss," police said.

African Bees Imperil Brazil

Threat Seen in Decade to All South America

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Swarms of African bees are becoming a national menace in Brazil and soon will be a menace to the South American continent, experts predict.

Coroliano Francisco Caldas, an apiculturist, says that in five years Brazil will be completely taken over by them and that in the next 10 years all of South America may be overrun.

★ ★ ★

Frequently firemen are called in to disperse or exterminate them with special equipment.

162,000 ESCAPED

Bees were brought here in 1956 to be studied at a Sao Paulo university. Because of their ferocity the bees were kept in closed and secure places, but through negligence about 162,000 were allowed to escape.

Since their escape and because of their great reproduction capacities they have spread over almost all of Brazil. Swarms have been reported in Sao Paulo, Parana, Santa Catarina, Minas Gerais, Rio de Janeiro, Guanabara, Mato Grosso and Goias.

Farmers have reported damage to their honey production center, caused by the African bees during their attacks on other more useful bees. Cities are not free of them either, as the bees invade urban areas while searching for water and food.

Ohio Pair in Custody After Area Chase

Held in Oakland County Jail on charges of stealing a car and felonious assault with an auto, they were identified by police as Ronald Lee Hasty, 20, and Thomas Allan Hillary, 21.

They were apprehended in a residential district near Old Orchard and Noyle, about an hour after smashing their car into a utility poll at Voorheis and Edgefield.

The car went out of control after being bumped in the rear during a chase by State Police Trooper Roger Moore of the Pontiac post.

STOLEN CAR REPORT

Moore began following the car on Dixie near Silver Lake Road after receiving a broadcast of a description of a stolen car in the area.

Moore said he attempted to stop the car but the driver refused to pull over, leading him on a chase that covered about five miles through the east section of the township.

★ ★ ★

At one point the driver tried to run him off the road by smashing into the side of his patrol car, Moore said.

He fired one warning shot as the pair fled on foot after the accident, "but it didn't slow them down one bit," he said. No one was hurt in the accident.

FOUND IN SEARCH

Police from White Lake Township, Sylvan Lake and the Oakland County Sheriff's Office also were involved in the manhunt.

State Police said Hasty has been sought by military officials since he escaped from custody at Ft. Meade, Md., Dec. 21.

The car they rode in had been reported stolen in Dayton, police said.

TEMPTING BREAKFAST — Nourishing meat breakfasts are easy and quick to fix. For a good day, start it off with an ample meal. Fruit, eggs, meat and sweet rolls should get anyone out of bed.

Meat Breakfast Will Start Day Well

A good breakfast can be ready in minutes if you plan it around modern fast-fix foods, fully cooked meats that need only a quick heating, egg dishes that go together fast, rolls that heat in minutes and fruit or juice that can be prepared ahead and stored in the refrigerator until serving time.

★ ★ ★

Week days, when time is short, it's well to plan for a few "on the run" breakfasts each morning. Serve breakfast cafeteria style with extra easy-to-tote fruit on hand.

Then if time is short, the heated sausages or other meats can be popped between toast slices, a bit of fruit tucked in a pocket, and breakfast can be enjoyed on the way to school, bus or train.

EVER ON SUNDAY

When Sunday rolls around, make breakfast a special occasion. Arrange the foods attractively on a large platter or tray and serve it buffet style. Breakfast will take on a new and pleasant image.

When Sunday breakfast is a late morning affair, add elegant dessert such as Bananas Flambe or Chilled Custard or Cheese Cake Squares with Raspberry Sauce.

SUNDAY BREAKFAST PLATTER

1 package (8-ounce) precooked pork sausage links
4 precooked smoked sausage links or wieners, sliced diagonally
¼ cup sliced celery
¾ cup sliced onion
⅛ cup butter or margarine
½ cup catsup
¼ cup water
¼ cup chopped green pepper
Dash pepper
6 eggs
⅓ cup dairy sour cream
¾ teaspoon salt
2 to 3 oranges, sliced

★ ★ ★

Heat sausages together in frypan over moderate heat as directed on package label until hot and lightly browned.

While sausages are heating, saute' celery and onion in 1 tablespoon butter or margarine in small saucepan until onion is tender, not brown. Add catsup, water, green pepper and pepper; simmer to blend flavors, about 5 minutes.

EGGS

Prepare eggs. Combine eggs, sour cream and salt in mixing bowl. Beat lightly and scramble in remaining butter or margarine in frypan over low heat. Stir frequently while eggs are cooking.

★ ★ ★

Arrange sausages in rows on either side of eggs on serving platter and edge platter with orange slices. Serve with tomato sauce. Yield: 4 servings.

Delight Little Girls With Intriguing Cake

Give a "giggle party" and make all the neighborhood's little girls happy. As every mother knows, "sleeping over" is ecstacy to small fry, and the thrill lasts right into the teens.

Pajama parties call for refreshments just before going to bed. Be the hostess with the mostest. Surprise the giggle girls with a Pajama Cake that will bring cries of delight. It looks adorable, tastes wonderful, and it isn't at all hard on the cook.

Use a cake mix baked in a 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan. Cut it into the simple pieces that make the pajama shape, as shown in the photo. Set on foil-lined cardboard or a platter.

Butterscotch morsels make a marvelous frosting that is easy to make and to spread. Call on semi-sweet chocolate morsels for instant decorations to use "as is." And the flavor is as scrumptious as chocolate candy.

BUTTERSCOTCH PAJAMA CAKE

1 package yellow or white cake mix
1 6-ounce package (1 cup) butterscotch flavored morsels
⅓ cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 cups (approximately) sifted confectioners' sugar
semi-sweet chocolate morsels

★ ★ ★

Prepare and bake cake mix according to package directions, using 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan. Cool completely.

★ ★ ★

To cut cake to make pajama pieces, cut into three crosswise pieces, one 7 inches and two 2½ inches. Turn 7-inch piece sideways for top of pajamas. Cut each 2½-inch piece to make a sleeve 2½ inches long and a leg 5½ inches long.

★ ★ ★

Arrange pieces on tray. Following the photograph, cut out neck and shape shoulders and side of top. Cut small slanted pieces from tops of sleeves and legs to make them fit at an angle.

Frosting

To make frosting, melt butterscotch flavored morsels over hot (not boiling) water. Remove from water; stir in milk, butter and salt. Gradually beat in confectioners' sugar until thick enough to spread.

★ ★ ★

Use a little frosting to hold pajama pieces together. Brush off loose crumbs and lightly frost cut surfaces of cake. Frost entire cake with remaining frosting.

★ ★ ★

PAJAMA CAKE — Make a pajama cake for your little girls' next "sleep-over" party. The youngsters will squeal with surprise and delight. The cake is easy to make with cake mix, and butterscotch flavored and semi-sweet chocolate morsels.

Top Prep Swimmer Again After Honor

Last year's winner of the Oakland County 'Outstanding Swimmer' award is making a bid to capture the honor for a second time.

★ ★ ★

Gary Gottschling, a junior at Royal Oak Kimball, checked in with some hot times this past week and now leads in two divisions among area swimmers.

COMPILES TIMES

★ ★ ★

Gottschling moved to the front in the 100-yard butterfly and 100-yard backstroke. He owns a clocking of 56.4 seconds in the fly and a time of 58.1 seconds in the backstroke.

TOUGH CHALLENGER

Pushing Gottschling for top honors is Southfield's Greg Ortega, who also holds the top spot in two divisions.

★ ★ ★

Ortega heads the 50-yard freestylers with a time of 22.7 seconds and he's setting the pace in the 100-yard freestyle with a :51.4 clocking.

TWO CHANGES

There were a couple other divisional changes in the past week.

★ ★ ★

Kurt Finney of Birmingham Seaholm posted a time of 4:07.1 in the 400-yard freestyle to slip ahead of Rick Watson of Royal Oak Kimball (4:08.5). Watson maintained his lead in the 200-yard freestyle at 1:55.6.

Utica S. Boys Victors

Wednesday's Eastern Division Prep Ski League races at Mt. Holly saw Utica Stevenson's boys defeat Detroit Benedictine, but the Stevenson girls were beaten by their Benedictine counterparts.

Stram Coaching West

Namath's Foes Impressive

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Hank Stram wouldn't dispute for a minute that Joe Namath is a great quarterback, but he doesn't think that gives any edge to the East team in Sunday's American Football League All-Star game.

"We think we have two great quarterbacks," said Stram, coach of the West All-Stars. His signal callers are San Diego's John Hadl and his own Kansas City chief, Len Dawson.

RECEIVERS

Just as Namath will have familiar pass receivers in his New York Jet teammates, George Sauer and Bon Maynard, Hadl will have San Diego compatriots.

★ ★ ★

"Add to that group Bob Trumpy of Cincinnati and Warren Wells of Oakland and you can see that we have super receivers for our great quarterbacks," Stram said.

Because none of his West players had seen action in at least three weeks, Stram worked them twice a day Monday through Wednesday and tapered off to once today.

★ ★ ★

"Our timing is coming along," he said, "and I think we've caught up with the East in conditioning."

The 11 members of the world champion Jets on the East team had the advantage, as Stram sees it, of playing in the Super Bowl last Sunday.

Wally Lemm, Houston Oilers coach guiding the East All-Stars, had a ragged session Wednesday when the Jets joined the team for the first time.

"We will put it together by Friday," Lemm said with an unworried look. "These are pros and they will be ready to play."

Winter Sports on Tap

Winter has arrived in all its glory.

For those unable to or nor interested in skiing or snowmobiling, the Pontiac and Waterford Township recreation departments are providing sledding, tobogganing and ice skating facilities.

★ ★ ★

Murphy Park on East Boulevard in town has facilities for all three activities. Various elementary and junior high school yards both in town and in the township have skating areas.

★ ★ ★

Waterford's nighttime skating is generally limited to the Drayton Plains softball park rink which is also available for outdoor hockey games if a reservation is obtained from the department office.

Limited sledding and tobogganing is permitted on the city municipal golf course.

Martin Facing Suit for 1960 Rhubarb

CHICAGO (UPI) — Minnesota Twins manager Billy Martin will defend himself in court Monday against a damage suit for assault and battery filed by former Chicago Cubs pitcher Jim Brewer. The suit was the after math of a 1960 rhubarb between Martin and Brewer in which Brewer suffered broken bones in his face.

Male Jockeys Thwart Ride of Barbara Jo

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — "I'm going to ride and ride and ride. And I'll make it someday," Barbara Jo Rubin said.

But she was disappointed Wednesday.

Male jockeys thwarted her effort to become the first girl rider in American thoroughbred racing history. Now the petite 19-year-old brunette says she's determined to carry on her fight, to take it to court if necessary.

★ ★ ★

Dressed in the gold and red slacks she had hoped to wear in the fourth race at Tropical Park Wednesday, Barbara Jo told newsmen: "I didn't expect this at all. I was all ready to go. The male jockeys were so nice to me this morning."

Fighting back tears, she added: "I think there were just a few of them who seemed to be against me. But I'm going to try and I hope I'll be the first woman to race some day."

About 100 male jockeys threatened a mass boycott at Tropical if the former exercise girl were allowed to ride a horse named Stoneland in the fourth race.

★ ★ ★

After a stormy meeting in the jockey room, the 11 jockeys in the third race refused to come out unless Barbara Jo was removed from her horse.

Trainer Bryan Webb bowed to the pressure and broke the news to Barbara Jo.

"Barbara, honey," he said, "You're stuck. You ain't gonna ride." Webb explained "it was a case of taking her off or calling the race off."

★ ★ ★

Attorney Robert H. Burns of the American Civil Liberties Union talked with Barbara Jo and her father, a Miami tavern owner, and said he would go to court charging interference with the right of contract.

AEC Wants Deliveries of Uranium Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said Wednesday its cupboard is overflowing with uranium and it would like the uranium industry to ease up on deliveries for awhile.

★ ★ ★

The Atomic Energy Commission said it is seeking proposals to limit total deliveries of uranium concentrates from companies now under contract.

★ ★ ★

Declaring such a reduction would save the government money, the AEC said:

★ ★ ★

"The commission believes that a moderate reduction in deliveries can be achieved on terms which would be mutually advantageous to the contractors and the government."

CUT BACKS EXPLAINED

The AEC said its commitment to purchase uranium under the contracts—which terminate Dec. 31, 1970—exceeds its present needs, "largely because of previous cutbacks in military requirements for fissionable materials."

In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1968, cigarette smoking declined by .28 per cent over the preceding year.

Pushes Into 3rd Session

Stock Mart Rally Continues

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed its rally into a third straight session with a vigorous adavnce in early trading today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials spurted 5.97 to 937.72 in the first half hour.

★ ★ ★

Brokers said the announcement that Vietnam peace talks will resume Saturday was welcome news to investors.

And, they noted, personal income posted a sharp rise to a record level in December.

★ ★ ★

Trading was active and the New York Stock Exchange ticker tape fell two minutes behind in reporting floor tranactions.

County Clerk Gets State Board Post

Oakland County Clerk Lynn D. Allen has been named by Gov. George Romney as a member of the State Aeronautics Commission.

★ ★ ★

Allen, named yesterday, will replace C. J. Reese of Muskegon who resigned. Allen's term will run until May 27, 1972. His appointment must be confirmed by the Senate.

★ ★ ★

Also appointed by Romney yesterday was Edward R. Beck of Troy to serve on the State Electrical Administrative Board for the remainder of a term ending Aug. 10, 1970. He succeeds Kent P. Stiner of Detroit, who resigned.

Lake Orion Civic Leader Is Dead at 96

George B. Cole Sr., former Lake Orion councilman, fire chief and chief of police, died yesterday. He was 96.

Service will be 1 p.m. Saturday at Allen's Funeral Home, Lake Orion, with burial in Evergreen Cemetery. A Masonic memorial service will be 8 p.m. tomorrow at the funeral home.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Neil R. Kitchen of Bloomfield Hills; two sons, Taylor M. of Phoenix, Ariz., and George B. Jr. of Saginaw; two stepsons, Clare L. Chapin and Byron Chapin of Lake Orion; two sisters, including Mrs. Lillian Carey of Romeo; nine grandchildren; and 10 great-grandchildren.

Cole of 1255 W. Silver Bell, Orion Township, was a long-time Lake Orion resident. A former ice, sand and gravel dealer, he served on the Lake Orion Board of Education and was a life member of Orion Lodge No. 46, F&AM and Orion Chapter No. 340, OES.

Cause No. 24390
STATE OF MICHIGAN—In the Probate Court for the County of Oakland, Juvenile Division.
TO: Robert Domman, father of said minor child.
Petition having been filed in this Court alleging that said child comes within the provisions of Chapter 712A of the Compiled Laws of 1948 as amended, in that the present whereabouts of the father of said minor child is unknown and said child has violated a law of the State, and that said child should be placed under the jurisdiction of this Court.
In the Name of the People of the State of Michigan, you are hereby notified that the hearing on said petition will be held at the Court House, Oakland County Service Center, in the City of Pontiac in said County, on the 27th day of January A.D. 1969, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, and you are hereby commanded to appear personally at said hearing.
It being impractical to make personal service hereof, this summons and notice shall be served by publication of a copy one week previous to said hearing in The Pontiac Press, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County.
Witness, the Honorable Eugene Arthur Moore, Judge of said Court, in the City of Pontiac in said County, this 10th day of January A.D. 1969.

Teacher Strike Possible

New Waterford School Crisis

By ED BLUNDEN

The Waterford Township School District is facing another crisis—a confrontation on a contract provision between the school board and the Waterford Education Association (WEA).

Although the WEA is working under a two-year contract that does not expire until July, a strike remains a possibility.

★ ★ ★

The issue is an "agency shop" contract provision, also called "union security." It means all teachers within the bargaining unit must pay dues even though they do not choose to become members.

The WEA feels this provision is vital to its existence. School officials feel it is impossible and illegal to grant it.

RULINGS ON ISSUE

Several other school districts in the state have faced the conflict and it has been ruled upon by various lower court judges.

It is expected to go to the State Supreme Court in the near future, however, where some ultimate guidelines may be set.

Bargaining between Waterford teachers and the schools on the issue began last March, according to a reopener clause in the original contract. It appears that after 10 months no real progress has been made.

★ ★ ★

Adding fuel to the controversy is a report on a hearing held last month before a Michigan Labor Mediation Board fact-finding tribunal presided over by M. David Keefe, hearing officer and arbitrator.

The report is strongly in favor of the agency shop provision and now the WEA insists the recommendations be acted upon. School officials said they feel that Keefe was prejudiced in favor of the provision before hearing the evidence. They also insist it would be illegal to comply with the recommendations.

EXPLAINS POSITION

School Board President Donald W. Porter said the board feels it cannot legally approve an agency shop contract. He points out that if it was approved, the board would be forced to carry out the WEA provision that a nonpaying member be discharged (if such a case occurred and he was certain it would).

He said this would usurp and conflicts with the power of the State Tunure Commission which hears cases of teachers with tenure fired for alleged "just and sufficient cause."

★ ★ ★

Porter said the board was also considering the possible imposition on the taxpayers of the district if the board was faced with legal fees when sued by fired teachers.

Robert Crmpton, WEA executive secretary, insists other districts have "lived with the provision," and that the fact-finder (Keefe) has presented a valid formula.

'FINDINGS NOT BINDING'

Fact-finding is a step used in many union-management negotiations, but according to state rules its findings are not binding in any way.

Crumpton, however, said, "We have now exhausted all possibilities of negotiation." School board officials insist negotiations are still on. Crumpton claims this only means "We're right back where we started last March."

★ ★ ★

No upcoming negotiation sessions were announced but the school board holds a regular meeting tonight at 7:30 at its office, 3101 W. Walton and may discuss the issue.

Crumpton said the WEA will be consulting with its attorneys to determine the next step to pursue. He said this could include the calling of a strike vote by the membership.

ISSUE IN COURTS

Both WEA and school officials have pointed out the issue as it involved other school districts is now in the courts.

One school official said he hoped the State Supreme Court would ultimately set a pattern upon which some agreement could be reached. The official said he hoped any severe actions would be avoided until the courts have had their say.

★ ★ ★

Other types of modified agency shop agreements have been reached in other districts. Some of them, for instance, have a "grandfather clause" in which teachers employed before a contract was signed need not join or pay dues. Other contracts provide for nonmembers to play only local dues and not state or national association dues. (In Waterford annual dues are $101 — $39 locally, $47 nationally and $15 to the state organization).

In the agency shop sought by the WEA all teachers would be required to pay full dues but not necessarily sign a membership card.

The impending conflict adds to existing school district problems caused by insufficient finances. Shortened school days have been in effect for some grades since last fall and more class-time cutting is faced since the Dec. 7 millage request defeat.

Police Action

Pontiac police officers and Oakland County sheriff's deputies investigated 76 reported incidents and made seven arrests the past 24 hours.

A breakdown of causes for police action:

- Vandalisms—7
- Assaults—6
- Property damage accidents—23
- Traffic offenses—13
- Injury accidents—8
- Larcenies—10
- Burglaries—2
- Obscene phone calls—1
- Disorderly persons—5
- Bad checks—1

Store in Area Is Burglarized

Five teen-agers were arrested early this morning on charges of burglarizing a store at Keatington Antique Village in Orion Township where about $80 was stolen and nine coin-operated machines were broken into earlier.

An Oakland County sheriff's deputy apprehended the youths after he spotted a car reportedly linked to the incident, drive past a store at 2369 Joslyn about two hours after the break-in.

★ ★ ★

Deputy Russell Bremer stopped the car near Indianwood and Baldwin after he said he saw it go through a stop sign.

He said he observed reportedly stolen cigarettes and music records on the floor of the car.

★ ★ ★

Bremer said the car fit the description of one a neighbor noticed at the village earlier in the morning.

Arrested were two Pontiac juveniles, one 15 and one 16, and Ronald Stamour, 17, of 380 E. Columbia, Pontiac, and Leo W. Miller and Wayne L. Spencer, both 18 and both of 4084 Manitoba, Pontiac Township.

City Man Gets 3 Years' Probation for Bar Shooting

A Pontiac man was placed on three years probation yesterday for shooting a bar patron last September.

Rambus had been charged with assault with intent to murder after Joe A. Carr, 27, of 329 Harrison was wounded in the leg during an argument Sept. 21 at the 88 Club, 88 Bagley.

In sentencing Rambus, Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer also ordered that he pay $10 a month court costs during the probation period.

Car Hits Tree; Area Man Hurt

A Waterford Township man is in satisfactory condition at Pontiac General Hospital after an accident in which his car ran off Andersonville Road near Windiate in Waterford Township and struck a tree early yesterday.

Melvin E. Spricer, 23, of 4247 LaForest told township police that he only remembered crossing a bridge before the accident.

'Detroit Must Double Share of Pollution Funds'

LANSING (AP) — Detroit will have to double its share of the financing of the city's water polution control program, Detroit Metropolitan Water Services General Manager Gerald J. Remus said Wednesday.

Remus said the city will have to double its original $12-million portion of the financing because the federal government failed to appropriate money to cover a portion of the grant program for water-pollution control.

★ ★ ★

Promised federal aid has been cut back by costs of the Vietnam war and other domestic programs, Remus told the State Water Resources Commission Wednesday.

He said he would ask the Detroit Common Council Tuesday to issue twice as many revenue bonds as it had planned.

Recount Ups Loss Margin of Supervisor

A recount conducted yesterday at the request of a candidate for the Oakland County Board of Supervisors only added to his margin of defeat, according to county election officials.

The review of the Nov. 5 vote revealed that Ray Lahti, 53, of 240 Nalone, Wixom, lost the election to Lew Coy by 56 votes rather than 50.

Lahti had petitioned for the recount shortly after the election, but no action was taken while a lawsuit started by Coy against Lahti was pending and another recount involving Daylight Savings Time was completed.

Coy had taken Lahti to court on the grounds that he had not been informed within a specified period that Lahti had petitioned for the recount.

Oakland County Circuit Judge William R. Beasley settled the matter by ruling that Coy, too, could ask for a recount even though it was beyond the deadline for filing such a petition.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY of Sgt. Mario Ramirez who passed away January 16, 1967.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sadly missed by Monico Ramirez and Family.

IN LOVING MEMORY of Sgt. Mario Ramirez who passed away January 16, 1967.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
Sadly missed by Mary Rodriguez and Lolly Dye.
