Law Would Avert Possible Disaster

Study Gas Truck Ban

A law to keep gasoline trucks out of downtown Pontiac was submitted today to city commissioners for study.

Mayor Philip E. Rowston believed it would receive favorable consideration.

The law was drawn up by City Attorney William A. Ewart on request of the City Commission and George Richman, president of the Downtown Merchants Assn.

It is aimed at preventing an occurrence here of the kind of disaster that recently took place in Novalis, Ore., when a gasoline truck exploded, Ewart said.

"The potentiality for such an explosion has existed here for many years," said Ewart, "and this ordinance is a reasonable attempt to control the problem."

The law would outlaw all gasoline or explosive-laden trucks in the downtown area, except those making deliveries there.

Permits for deliveries would have to be obtained in advance.

"The ordinance appears to contain the necessary precautions to protect Pontiac," said Rowston.

STEPS NEEDED

"We definitely should take the steps necessary to prevent an occurrence of havoc and property damage here, and this appears to be a satisfactory way of doing it."

Three other commissioners had comments on the proposal, although they had not yet had time to study it in detail.

"There certainly is no necessity for a lot of trucks in our downtown area if they are not involved in deliveries there," said Commissioner Floyd P. Miles.

Commissioner Milton R. Henry doubted the legality of the move in view of the fact that Pontiac streets are public and the downtown Saginaw-Oakland avenue route is a state trunkline (U. S. 10).

"I also question whether Pontiac has an adequate system of side streets to function as alternate routes," he said.

Commissioner William W. Donaldson said he was in favor of protecting downtown. "But we must judge this move on facts, not hysteria," he warned.

WOULD BAR THEM

Other commissioners were not immediately available for comment.

Another portion of the law is an attempt to keep through gasoline and petroleum product trucking out of Pontiac altogether, if the origin and destination of the delivery both are outside the city limits.

"Keep out" signs should be posted at the city limits, Ewart said.

Incorporated in the law are other legal provisions, already in existence, concerning the transportation, storage and sale of explosives.

It is not expected that the new law will be brought up for discussion at the City Commission table until after several weeks study.

Town's Power Fails

Help! No Heat! Friends? Yes!

WORTHINGTON, Minn. (AP)—When it was all over, the 9,500 people of this southwestern Minnesota town acknowledged they had friends.

Within minutes after an explosion ripped out all the city's power and much of its heat, in sub-zero weather, offers of help began to roll in.

Portable generators were rushed in from neighboring towns and set up at nursing homes, the city's three water wells and some schools. Even a greenhouse got one.

The municipal hospital switched to its own power units and was not affected. Repair crews quickly provided power for the Southwestern Minnesota Crippled Children's Hospital-School.

HELP RUSHES IN

Civil Defense Director Ray Schisler said "We needed all the help we got and we got it before we could ask."

The power was lost at 9:40 a.m. Monday when an explosion ripped wires between plant turbines and the distribution system.

Capt. Henry Fauskee of the National Guard turned in the alarm after a manhole a block from the plant blew up in front of him.

Fauskee never made it home from the police station. Gov. Orville Freeman ordered out the local Guard unit after he had been advised of the situation. Six patrols of 50 guardsmen roamed the darkened streets to check possible pillaging and fires.

WORKMEN BURNED

There were no serious casualties but two power plant workmen—John T. Anderson and Gerald Post—received flash burns about the face and arms and were taken to the hospital.

With repair crews working through the day and most of the night, complete power was returned early this morning.

Many residents crowded into five outlying motels and a downtown hotel, served by steam heat. Others simply huddled around stove ovens or relied on the meager fires in gas furnaces, minus their electric blowers.

Stores closed at dusk. Candles and gasoline lanterns lighted their cash registers.

Filling stations, their electric pumps out of service, sold gasoline from five-gallon cans.

Families with heat telephoned neighbors and offered the hospitality of their homes. Farmers outside the city phoned residents at random, offering them a night in the country.

President Plans More Missiles

OKs Less Manpower After 4-Hour Meeting With Pentagon Brass

WASHINGTON (AP) — More missiles, less manpower is what emerges from the Eisenhower administration's 1961 military budget.

Spending will remain at about the present 41 billion dollars for the year starting next July 1.

Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy said the Navy and Air Force had volunteered to cut their manpower requirements a little in 1961. To offset this loss they can look forward to more and better missiles and more atomic-powered submarines. A second nuclear-powered aircraft carrier for the Navy failed to get approval.

The Army and Marine Corps resisted pressures to cut their forces.

McElroy, foreshadowing the new shape of war in the missile age, said the nation must face some time in the future the question of calling back some of its troops overseas. No cut in these forces is in prospect for the next 18 months.

In concert with McElroy's thinking, the Air Force chief of staff Monday told the meeting of NATO parliamentarians here to expect cutbacks in conventional forces, including manned aircraft, in the future.

Gen. Thomas D. White told the NATO group other changes are in prospect, such as a rearrangement of military forces now in Europe and creating of a fast-striking combat unit based in the United States but ready for action anywhere.

Military manpower now is about 2½ million. Just where and how many will be pared was not disclosed.

Another Hidden Tax

NEW YORK (UPI) — City Clerk Herman Katz said yesterday he had a proposal for increased city revenue which he doubts those affected by it will even notice. He wants to raise the marriage license fee from $2 to $3.

BUSHEY, England (UPI) — Poultry farmer Frank Woodward complained to police yesterday that jet airplanes flying over his farm were ruining him. They are scaring his chickens to death, he said.

Teen-Age Curfew Hit by Panel Members

A five-member panel put a proposed city ordinance setting curfews for teen-agers under the microscope last night and a majority wasn't happy with what it saw:

The panel met before the 70-member Civic Improvement Advisory Committee in the City Commission Chambers.

The committee, formed by the Commission to form closer relations between the voting public and city government, heard three panel members express opposition to the ordinance.

Student council presidents of Pontiac Central and St. Frederick's high schools and assistant school superintendent Dr. Philip J. Proud protested the proposal.

Members leaning toward the adoption of such an ordinance were Public Safety Director George D. Eastman and the executive director of the Boys' Club, Cressy Larson.

The committee recommended to the Commission, which takes up the curfew tonight, that a small study committee be formed to study further the need for such a curfew and to meet with Pontiac high school student councils for discussion of how such a curfew could be made acceptable to students.

Judy Dearing, Pontiac Central Student Council president, said a majority of the students at the high school were not in favor of the plan.

"Students are the responsibility of their parents, not the police," she said. "If the parents can't watch their kids, why should we believe the police can do the job.

"If someone wants to be a delinquent, then he'll find a way to get around the law."

Jack O'Reilly, Student Council president at St. Frederick's, expressed similar views. "Only a minority are causing trouble," he pointed out, "and it isn't fair to punish the majority of the students."

Proud called for a "positive approach" toward teen-agers. He called a curfew a "negative approach" based on a psychology of fear.

"A curfew is essentially punitive," he said. "There is no evidence that it's worked anywhere as a preventive to delinquency. If such a rule is a necessity, the students should be consulted.

"You just can't expect them to go with it. They won't."

Eastman said the police would be willing to exercise discretionary responsibility if a curfew were enacted. Before it could become effective, he emphasized, it would need wide community support.

Larson said teen-agers would not object to a curfew if "it isn't to penalize them." He said they might object to someone "imposing on their rights, but not to a curfew as such."

Larson stressed that consultation with youngsters was a "must" before enactment of a curfew ordinance.

Assembly Plant Shut in Detroit as Workers Protest Cold

A blanket of frigid cold settled icily over Pontiac today setting unseasonable records.

Ponds in the area began to freeze over early this morning, indicating a repeat performance of last year's "ice winter."

A reading of 11 above zero at 8 a.m. in Pontiac earned today the distinction of the coldest Nov. 17 for this area in the history of the U.S. Weather Bureau.

The old mark for this date was 16 above, recorded in 1880.

A spokesman for the Pontiac Division of the Automobile Club of Michigan reported only two distress calls early this morning. More are expected throughout the day, the spokesman said, attesting that motorists were having difficulty getting their cars started.

"Some of the people in our office were late to work because of the cold," he stated.

MEN TOO COLD

The cold prompted some 40 employes of Chrysler's Plymouth Assembly Plant in Detroit to walk out.

They complained the plant was too cold to work in. The company then sent home approximately 1,500 workers, shutting down the assembly line until heating in the plant could be improved.

The firm explained the plant is being remodeled, with some door openings covered only by canvass.

The forecast for the Pontiac area today calls for cloudy skies with snow flurries to continue through Wednesday. The low tonight will be 5 to 10.

A high of 25 to 30 degrees is expected tomorrow.

Westerly winds up to 20 miles per hour added to the discomfort of downtown pedestrians in Pontiac this morning, while stronger gusts were reported elsewhere in the southern portion of the state. Gale warnings were up on all of the Great Lakes.

In the Upper Peninsula, zero readings were reported by the Weather Bureau at Escanaba, Kinross Air Base and Marquette. Michigan's coldest spot last night was Ishpeming with 10 below.

The lowest reading in the Lower Peninsula was 4 above at Gladwin.

Other low readings in the state were 8 at Alpena, 9 at Grand Rapids, 3 at Houghton, 7 at Lansing, 4 at Sault Ste. Marie, 6 at Traverse City, 10 at Muskegon and 8 at Saginaw.

The Weather Bureau said the deepest snow accumulation in the state was 20 inches at Houghton. Other snow depths included 9 inches at Kinross, 8 at Traverse City and Marquette and 6 at Pellston.

In most sections of the State, roads were slippery. All main highways were reported passable, however.

The highest temperature forecast anywhere in Michigan tomorrow is 30 degrees in the extreme south. Wednesday's high temperatures, according to the Weather Bureau, likely will be up to 10 degrees higher than today's, but not above a sub-freezing 30 in even the "warmest spots.

The outlook for Thursday is cloudy and warmer.

The highest temperature recorded in downtown Pontiac before 8 a.m. today was 27. The temperature at 2 p.m. was 14.

HURRYING TO SCHOOL — Frigid temperatures and blustering winds found these three young ladies wide-eyed with cold early this morning on their way to Pontiac Central High School. Chalen Wiegert (left), 232 Russell St., is a student. She was accompanied by teachers Mrs. Jean Smith (center), 757 E. Tennyson Ave., and Marjorie Jackson, 3365 Squirrel Rd., Auburn Heights. They were almost motionless (except for some convulsive shivering) on the corner of West Huron and Wayne streets waiting for the traffic light to give them the right-of-way.

Family Phoned by Press

Ex-Resident Sees Volcano

Hawaii's Kilauea volcano is providing islanders and tourists with one of the most spectacular natural fireworks displays ever seen—and a former Pontiac resident and his family have a ringside seat.

While her exhausted husband tried to catch up on his work-deprived sleep, Mrs. Ruth Loucks, reached yesterday by The Pontiac Press in a transoceanic phone call, told about the amazing natural phenomenon.

"We're enjoying this to the fullest since there's no apparent danger," exclaimed Mrs. Loucks.

Her husband, Burton, 52, has been on the go ever since 8:08 p.m. Saturday (Hawaiian time) when the 4,090-foot volcano erupted for the first time since 1868.

Loucks, a former Pontiac Motor Division toolmaker, operates the seismograph at the Volcano Observatory in the Hawaii National Park, on the Island of Hawaii. He's been with the observatory since 1944.

A long succession of small earthquakes noted by the machine the past 10 days showed nature might again be on the rampage, Mrs. Loucks said. She said her husband had noticed sharp and frequent readings on "tilt meters" and that the instrument showed the top of Kilauea "bulging just like a boil."

Then Saturday it let go.

"The red-hot molten lava began flowing just like a waterfall," said Mrs. Loucks, a housewife. "It shot some 200 feet into the air. It flows very much like water down the side of the ridge of the crater. When it hits the bottom it spatters more or less like water splashes over rocks and goes into low end of the crater."

Mrs. Loucks said it has become such a tourist attraction that Park Rangers are having a difficult time keeping spectators from dangling their feet over a fence which rings the rim of the crater.

She said roads leading to the volcano on the southeast side of Hawaii, are snarled with traffic. She said tourists can drive within a 10-minute walk of the flowing lava.

Her 16-year-old son, Burton Jr., made a trip Sunday into the crater with scientists to take movies. The scholars are there to take gas readings and rock samples.

"My son said while he was in the crater a new flow started out from another crack and that he continued to take pictures until the hot lava was two feet from him."

"Then he jumped out of the way."

Mrs. Loucks said there's no telling how long Kilauea will continue its fiery eruptions, which are causing only damage to nearby hardwood trees which have been set afire.

"We've seen eruptions last for a day, months, and sometimes a period of years," Mrs. Loucks told The Press.

She said the spitting mountain poses little danger because it is some distance from the park's housing area or nearby villages.

Mrs. Loucks, who said she was looking out a window to see the columns of smoke from the volcanic gases as she talked to The Press reporter, said instrument readings resulted in a warning to the area 24 hours before Kilauea erupted. The Loucks home is

Demand Examination in Furniture Store Arson

Accused of arson, two Pontiac furniture store owners who have confessed to a plot to burn their establishment demanded examination last night at their arraignment before Municipal Judge Maurice E. Finnegan.

Sidney Cohn, 41, of 21190 Kipling St., and Irving Aaron, 50, of 24701 Church St., owners of the Lord's Furniture & Appliance Co., Inc., 125 W. Huron St., were released under $200 bond pending examination Dec. 3. Both are Oak Park residents.

IRVING AARON

A third man implicated by the business partners, Nathan Wolfe, 45, of 18651 Northlawn St., Detroit, also demanded examination on the same charge. He was released under $1,000 bond pending examination Dec. 3.

Cohn and Aaron have confessed at the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office they knew a fire was to be set in their store Saturday night. They said they had agreed to pay an arsonist $7,000 to set the blaze.

The two business men said they planned to use the insurance they collected from the blaze to pay off their creditors. They said they were $30,000 in debt.

According to Pontiac Fire Marshal Charles E. Metz, the store's inventory is worth approximately $45,000.

Cohn and Aaron told authorities that Wolfe had agreed to send them an arsonist to set the fire. Wolfe denies any knowledge of the blaze.

Police are searching for a fourth man believed to be the arsonist.

BUSINESS BAD

Aaron and Cohn said that they had told Wolfe, a long-time friend, that business was very bad. He had said he would send them an arsonist, they claim.

They said the arsonist sent by Wolfe first appeared at their store Wednesday and asked $10,000 for starting the fire, but finally agreed to do the job for $7,000. The pair said they agreed to pay him after they collected the insurance.

The arsonist reappeared on Fri-

Labor Rackets 'Ganged Up On' by Government

All Branches Have Part in Gouging Corruption From Nation's Unions

WASHINGTON (AP) — A knockout blow is being aimed at labor rackets by all three branches of the federal government — executive, judicial and legislative.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said the new labor law passed by Congress and administered by his department already is beginning to rid unions of corrupt elements.

He said it also is giving union members a full voice in running their organizations.

Court-appointed monitors today charted a speedy new cleanup drive of the big scandal-rocked Teamsters Union.

The Supreme Court refused Monday to set aside lower court decisions arming the monitors with sweeping reform enforcement powers. Teamsters President James R. Hoffa said the union, though disappointed at the ruling, will "live up to the court's decision." But he said it still may challenge individual reform orders.

Martin F. O'Donoghue, monitor chairman, said his watchdog group now will move on a variety of fronts, including charges that could result in removal of Hoffa as president.

"We can move very fast now because the last legal roadblock is out of the way," O'Donoghue said before a strategy meeting with his two fellow monitor board members.

Mitchell, reporting on the first two months of operation of the anticorruption provisions of the new labor law, said some union officials with criminal or Communist backgrounds already have quit union office. He said nearly 100 complaints are under active investigation and some will be turned over to the Justice Department for prosecution.

LEADER QUITS

Mitchell disclosed that the president of an independent Passaic, N.J., local quit during a Labor Department investigation into whether the official was continuing to serve despite a new ban against criminals holding union office.

The secretary said a number of Teamsters officials have similarly been ousted.

"Reports from around the country indicate," Mitchell said, "that rank-and-file members of unions which have been mismanaged in the past are pleased with the results of the new law."

Mitchell said eight local unions which had been under trusteeship of their national unions have been returned to local control. This resulted, he said, from new supervisory powers the law gives his department.

Think Alswel? Wel They Al Have Opinions

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — In suburban Sappington, all isn't well on Alswel — or Alswell or maybe Allswell — Lane.

Mrs. Segundo Tolentino, who lives there and is outspoken on the matter, says Alswel is right.

But the county directory carries it "Alswell."

The telephone directory says Mrs. Tolentino lives on "Alswel Lane," her neighbor, Albert A. Beck, lives on "Alswell Lane" and another neighbor, Norman Denike, lives on "Allswell Lane."

Mrs. Tolentino said the telephone company told her it's going to standardize the spelling as "Allswell."

Alcoholics Anonymous Spirited

2,000 Ex-Boozers Boo Booze

NEW YORK (AP)—More than 2,000 of the admittedly worst drinkers in America, untempted by the handy watering holes of a mid-Manhattan hotel, paid tribute Monday night to a man who hasn't had a drink for 25 years.

Full of good spirit — definitely not bottled — they wildly greeted Bill W., cofounder of Acoholics Anonymous, at a huge banquet.

Bill is the man who started out to play golf on Staten Island on Armistice Day, 1934, ended up in a bar and went on a monumental bender that took him from his stockbroker business forever.

SOBERED UP AT 39

Now 64, Bill said he sobered up when he was 39 and ever since "it's been a gay and wonderful time for me."

When he sobered up he was in the company of an Akron, Ohio, surgeon. From their meeting came the idea of a fellowship of men and women who "share their strength, hope and understanding to solve alcoholism."

In the crowded grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor, a table-hopper could eavesdrop on many conversations and find the alcoholics talking about their favorite subject: alcoholism.

This banquet began with a fruit cocktail and the first of many huge pots of coffee.

"This is what we drink," said a Scarsdale, N.Y., woman, who was wrapped in a lovely mink stole. "Personally, I can't stand coffee, but I've had four cups already."

Before the speeches, there was an intermission and many of the alcoholics found themselves standing near a bar in the foyer that would have gotten plenty of action in the old days. Now it was shuttered.

The absence of booze brought some gloom to the men's room attendant.

"Other parties, you know, there's drinking and dancing and this place is always busy. These guys at this banquet tip okay, only not enough of them come in here. It's a bad night."

Now State Lawmakers Fuss Over 1 Special Tax

LANSING (UPI)—There was new confusion today in Michigan's tax muddle.

The confusion came as the administrative board met to ration out what money was left in the treasury, and the Legislature resumed its search for revenue to replenish it.

The Revenue Department said it can't quite figure out the latest tax-writing effort by lawmakers who have been trying for nearly a year to find a cure for Michigan's fiscal ills.

Revenue Commissioner Louis M. Nims said there was doubt about the yield on a package of "nuisance" taxes designed to produce about 74 million dollars.

Nims also said some corrections had to be made before the emergency tax measures would be in shape for passage. But he said the flaws were not major bloopers and could be corrected.

PROPERTY DEAL UP

The confusion centered on a measure to raise from 30 to 35 million dollars by imposing the use (sales) tax on specified services dealing primarily with "improvement of personal property."

The tax on services was reported to hit hard at bus lines, home builders and railroads.

But Nims, in a letter to Sen. Clyde H. Geerlings (R-Holland), said the bill would require further study before full impact can be assessed.

Geerlings, chairman of the Senate Tax Committee that authored the tax package, predicted there would be continued stalemate tonight when the full Senate returns to session if "the Democrats don't let the people vote next year on a sales tax increase."

STILL AN IMPASSE

The impasse developed last week when Republicans insisted there would be no action on the tax package until Democrats agree to allow a tax referendum on the 1960 ballot.

Democrats said the emergency tax package should be passed first and then long-range solutions could be discussed.

Geerlings, contacted at his home last night, was all for holding out until Democrats yield. Senate majority leader Frank D. Beadle (R-St. Clair) said the decision probably would be made in a caucus tonight.

The Legislature technically was in session last night. But the politicians were practical about the Sunday opening of deer season and agreed informally not to return to work until tonight.

Four answered roll last night in the 34-seat Senate, including Sen. John Fitzgerald (R-Grand Ledge), who said he came "because the people elected me to fill this seat."

Seven reported in to the House, including Speaker Don R. Pears (R-Buchanan), who said he was leading a "faithful little band of warriors."

Pears said the House would continue to mark time until the Senate acts on the tax package, which in addition to the tax on services, includes new levies on beer, cigarettes, non-cigarette tobacco, liquor, and telephones, telegraph and leased wires.

Gullett Suing City for Post

Ex-Deputy Treasurer Had Been Suspended After Gambling Raid

LaRue E. Gullett, dismissed as deputy Pontiac city treasurer after he was arrested in a gambling raid a year ago, has sued the city for reinstatement.

Gullett, 42, of 301 Dick Ave., filed a lawsuit in Oakland County Circuit Court yesterday seeking a writ of mandamus ordering the city to grant him a reinstatement hearing under the Veteran's Preference Act.

Judge William J. Beer, who dismissed gambling conspiracy charges against Gullett's wife, the alleged kingpin of the ring, and acquitted two others, set a show cause hearing on the writ for next Monday.

Named as defendants are Marvin M. Alward, city finance director, the seven-member City Commission, and the city itself.

Gullett, deputy treasurer since 1955, was fired in August 1958 shortly after he and the other four were arrested by State Police Rackets Squad detectives. They were charged with conspiracy to violate state gambling laws in an alleged horserace bookmaking ring in Pontiac.

Charges against Gullett were dismissed in June because of insufficient evidence.

A month later Gullett appeared before the City Commission trying to collect 11 months' back pay, estimated at $4,500.

In his suit, he said he received two letters from the city last month —one from Alward and the other from City Attorney William A. Ewart—refusing reinstatement and a hearing. No mention was made of the back pay in the suit.

He said he was deprived a hearing despite being cleared by the court of any wrongdoing or violation of the laws.

Gullett claims he has "a clear legal right" to a hearing under the Veteran's Preference Act, and that the city has a legal duty to provide such a hearing.

Leaders to Talk for Three Days

Adenauer in London to Reconcile Viewpoints With Macmillan

LONDON (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer arrived today for talks with Prime Minister Macmillan to disperse nagging misunderstandings between West Germany and Britain.

In three days of consultations Macmillan and Adenauer hope to coordinate foreign policies in anticipation of an East-West summit conference next spring or summer.

Macmillan went from a cabinet meeting to London's Victoria Station where he shook hands and chatted with the 83-year-old West German leader.

A crowd of 300 inside the station and 1,000 along the streets witnessed the arrival with a few cheers but no evidence of real warmth.

Adenauer came to Britain with a minimum of fanfare. A blue and white airliner brought him to Gatwick Airport, 30 miles outside London. There he exchanged greetings with John Profumo, minister of state for foreign affairs, and reviewed guard of honor.

Considerable give-and-take will be necessary to completely reconcile the points of view of the British and West German governments.

Adenauer has shown uneasiness about Macmillan's policies since the British prime minister went to Moscow last February. But now Bonn is trying to change the climate.

Call Reducing Tablet Advertising False

DETROIT (AP) — Federal authorities seized 35 bottles of reducing tablets yesterday upon request of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration which said the tablets were advertised falsely.

Donald F. Welday Jr., assistant U.S. attorney, said the tablets were produced by Lustgarten Laboratories Inc. of Philadelphia under the trade name "Trim-a-Drine."

Welday said the Food and Drug Administration stated the tablets were represented in advertising as an "appetite depressant." The FDA called this term misleading, Welday said.

NEW U. S. CARDINAL — Archbishop Albert Gregory Meyer, named a cardinal by Pope John XXIII, poses at a news conference Monday with two cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church, Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York, left, and James Francis Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles, right. Cardinal-designate Meyer, 56, is the archbishop of Chicago. The other American chosen to be elevated to cardinal status (not pictured) is Archbishop Aloisius J. Muench of Fargo, N. D. He is 70 years old and is presently in West Germany. Born in Milwaukee, Cardinal-designate Muench says it is a great honor for his Fargo diocese. The Pope named a total of eight prelates to be raised to cardinals. The number of American cardinals is now six which is seen as a reflection of the increasing influence of United States Catholics at the Vatican.

Will Sponsor County Membership Drive

'Citizens for Michigan' to Meet Here

Oakland County's committee of the Citizens for Michigan will meet for the first time Monday at the Birmingham Community House, according to Murray D. Van Wagoner, committee chairman.

He said the local committee will sponsor a mid-December county-wide drive for membership in the CFM.

George Romney's independent group, created to study the state's needs, has picked up momentum with the division of the state into 14 regions for organizing purposes. Oakland County is one of the regions.

At the same time, Gov. Williams, Neil Staebler, Democratic state chairman, Paul D. Bagwell, titular head of Michigan Republicans, and Lawrence B. Lindemer, GOP state chairman, voiced their support of the CFM in letters to Romney.

Monday's meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Van Wagoner, former Democratic governor, said the Oakland branch will be subdivided into chapters to study facts and recommendations in three areas. These are:

1. What services do the state need? 2. How are the services to be paid for? 3. What changes are required in the structure of state government?

Romney, a Bloomfield Hills resident and president of American Motors Corp., is expected to meet with the Oakland group to help kick off the drive for additional members.

COMMITTEEMEN

Those who have already accepted appointments on the local committee are:

Pontiac — Leonard T. Lewis, Louis H. Schimmel, and Clyle R. Haskill; Farmington—Delos Hamlin, chairman of the Board of Supervisors; Huntington Woods — David Calhoun; Royal Oak — Robert Browning; Birmingham-Bloomfield Hills — Paul Penfield, Mrs. Peter B. Loomis, Richard C. Van Dusen and Henry L. Woolfenden.

Walnut Lake — Mrs. Charlotte Richards; Oxford — Mrs. C. N. Ray; Leonard — Commander Mel Lanphar; Ferndale — Mrs. Mary Pence, Jonathan Snow and George N. Higgins; Lake Orion — Mrs. Denelda Lessiter; Oak Park — Rabbi Mordecai Halpern; Keego Harbor — Mrs. Sylvester Trythall; Milford — Kenneth G. Peterson; and Southfield — Rev. Frank Gentile.

Also meeting with the Oakland committee Monday will be C. Allan Harlan, chairman of the finance committee from Bloomfield Township, Mrs. Berrien C. Ketchum, member of the executive committee from Birmingham, and Martin L. Butzel, member of the Board of Directors from Birmingham.

Nation's Midsection Shivers

By The Associated Press

Stiff northerly winds fanned arctic air across the nation's midsection today, dropping temperatures to record low marks for the date from the Great Lakes region to northern Texas.

It was nearly freezing as far south as San Antonio, Tex., and Amarillo, Tex., shivered in 14 above temperatures. The mercury edged toward the zero mark at Chicago and Milwaukee and it was below zero at Minneapolis. The cold Canadian air headed into the East and dipped southward toward the Gulf.

Near or zero weather was the rule in most of the north central region while readings of 5 to 10 below were the rule in the Dakotas and northwestern Nebraska. The icy weather was expected to continue today with some moderation Wednesday.

Montana reported a warming trend, but it still was the coldest part of the country. Temperatures were as low as 10 to 20 degrees below zero in many places. However, those marks were as much as 30 degrees higher than Monday morning when a low of -45 was reported.

No heavy snow was reported in the cold belt but snow flurries were indicated in the Great Lakes region. Strong winds caused much drifting of snow on the ground in some northern areas.

about two miles from the volcano.

"During the last several nights we have had brilliant full moons which has added to the display," she went on.

"The gases form many clouds which seem to hover over the top of the crater and the rising lava reflects off the clouds to create bright red and orange casts which can be seen for miles."

"This is more like a Fourth of July spectacular than an eruption," Mrs. Loucks said.

"The flow of lava has gone down a little from the first original burst, and has been maintaining a steady level lately," she said. She said scientists are voicing little concern because the settling lava has risen only about 15 feet in the last 24 hours in the base of the crater.

"They say it would take a long time before this level reached 600 feet where it would overflow," she said, "and even then it would flow into an adjacent crater below it."

"There's no danger as it stands right now." She said rangers are on duty 24 hours a day and that her husband, when he's not sleeping, watches the seismograph for possible changes.

Missing the excitement is the Loucks' 12-year-old daughter, Carolin, who is away at school in Honululu.

"She'll probably want a blow-by-blow description when she comes home for Christmas," Mrs. Loucks said.

Shot Kills Hunter; Lowell Man 2nd One

A Western Michigan hunter, whose chest was pierced by a bullet as he stalked a deer in thick brush Monday, was the second person to die by gunshot in Michigan's two-day-old deer hunting season.

Louis Baker, 33, of Lowell, was shot in the left chest while hunting with five other men on the Stonington Peninsula in Upper Michigan's Delta County.

A hunting partner, Lester Sherman, also of Lowell, told State Police he had fired at a deer as it jumped across a trail. He said he heard someone groan, ran about 150 feet and found Baker lying on the ground.

Waterford Board Approves 80 Subdivision Street Lights

The Waterford Township Board last night approved the installation of 80 street lights in the Maceday Gardens subdivision. Some 20 residents attended the special hearing on the matter.

Owners of the 472 lots in and adjoining the subdivision will pay a yearly fee of $5.13 each for 24 large street lights for main highways and 56 smaller lights throughout the subdivision.

The total assessment for the street lighting district will be $2,688 annually, with the township paying 10 per cent, or $267. The Detroit Edison Co. will install the lights free of charge.

Only 19 per cent of the property owners objected to the assessments and the project was approved by a unanimous vote by the Board.

A request for rezoning some four acres on Elizabeth Lake road near the Clinton River bridge from residential to commercial was approved after a delay of three weeks for study by the Board.

The Board approved the zoning change with the provision that the owner, James H. Baden of 6279 Maybee Rd., Clarkston, have the land surveyed and a legal description recorded with the township.

Some 25 feet from the river's edge will remain residential to assure sanitary conditions. Baden is also required to install a greenbelt along the commercially zoned border line.

The Board approved the blacktopping of Midland street 800 feet east to Dixie Highway. The project will cost about $5,000 with the Road Commission paying 50 per cent, the township 17 per cent and promoters of the Drayton Shopping Center, the Sherwood company, 17 per cent of the total cost.

A report on the Coleman-Friedman sewer system in the Huron Gardens area showed the sewer plant is operating with a deficit of $3,660. In a report on the township's only other sewer plant, in the Lorraine Manor subdivision, Clerk James Seeterlin pointed out that this sewer system is also operating with a deficit of $10,520.

Both of the sewer systems were installed within the last three years, with plans of eventually hooking into the Farmington interceptor line.

Since Waterford Township was ruled out of this project, the two sewer plants have been rapidly going into the red despite a rate of $3 per month per customer for sewer service.

MISSING CLUB PLEDGE—The Arkansas River near Tulsa, Okla., is being searched for John B. McKenzie, 15, missing since Sunday morning when he and a fellow pledge in a high school social club reportedly swam the stream in 21-degree weather after an initiation ceremony. Club members said the swim was not part of the initiation. The other boy reached safety.

The Day in Birmingham

Truck Debris Ordinance Passed by Commission

BIRMINGHAM — An amendment to the nuisance ordinance cracking down on careless truckers was approved last night by the City Commission.

The amendment calls for the revocation of licenses and permits issued by the city to any driver permitting any part of its load or contents to blow, fall or be deposited on any street, alley or sidewalk.

The amendment also states that the city manager may grant temporary exemption from the provision if a violation is corrected. This is intended to permit delivery of top soil and other loads which are to be removed from the street, alley or sidewalk later.

An agreement with the city can be made by which the city is reimbursed for any maintenance expenses incurred by such a violation.

The police department, as stated in the amendment, is authorized to impound any vehicle found violating the amendment, and to hold the vehicle until the owner or operator posts a $100 appearance bond and until the dirt or other material violating the amendment has been removed.

The Commission also authorized the police department to place "No Parking" signs on Wellesley and Berwyn streets between Midvale and Radnor streets in an attempt to keep students of Seaholm High School from parking their cars there during school hours.

The signs will be in effect from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. on school days.

A meeting in the city manager's office last week with school authorities showed that parking in the school lot was adequate.

It was pointed out by school officials that permits to park in the school lot have been issued to all students who have applied.

Students are not permitted to leave the lot during the school day, they said, so approximately 30 students park on adjacent streets in an apparent move to overcome this restriction.

School officials said there are still about 15 vacant parking spaces left and 19 more will be available when construction on the lot has been completed.

An inequity in the fire department's rules and regulations was corrected when the Commission approved the deletion of a phrase restricting the employment of off-duty firemen.

According to the deleted regulations, a man could have held a job with another concern on his off days. However, it had to be inside the city limits.

City Manager L. R. Gare told the Commission no restrictions are put on a man's time if he is using it for recreation and not for employment.

Therefore, Gare said, a man may go fishing and be out of the city, which would mean that he could not be contacted in the event of an emergency.

"In addition to this problem," Gare said, "our restriction that the job must be within the city limits did not recognize the fact that some jobs, even though the headquarters may be here, necessitate his absence from the city on delivery calls or sales calls."

November Auto Outlook 'Dismal'

Ward Sees Low Rate of Sales; GM Already Hit Hard, Others Hurt

DETROIT (AP) — Ward's Automotive Reports has called prospects for auto industrywide sales in November dismal, with perhaps the lowest daily rate of sales for the month since 1951 in the offing.

Blamed by the automotive agency were effects of the steel strike.

Ward's said yesterday the daily rate of new car sales during the first 10 days of the month dropped 11.1 per cent below a month ago. Nov. 1-10 sales were 17.2 per cent below the entire October daily rate.

Hardest hit by both the steel strike and the drop in daily sales was General Motors, said Ward's. GM plunged 40.6 per cent in the daily rate under Oct. 1-10 while Ford and Chrysler showed gains.

Ward's said the industry sold 129,000 cars Nov. 1-10 compared with 163,566 during the first 10 days of last month. The daily rate was 16,151 units this month and 18,174 in October.

Ford nearly outsold GM during the first 10 November days, Ward's said. Ford sold 32.2 per cent of domestic built cars while GM sold 38.6 per cent. Chrysler sold 13.9 per cent, American Motors 7.5 per cent and Studebaker-Packard 2.8 per cent.

Films of Animals 'in Space'

Reds Document Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet scientists have documented space experiments with motion picture films they say show rats, mice and dogs on rocket flights through space.

The half-hour film was shown Monday night at a meeting of the American Rocket Society. It reportedly was the first time the full film had been shown outside the Soviet Union, although portions had been shown earlier.

Prof. Anatoly A. Blagonravov, member of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences, said the pictures were made during several dozen launchings he said extended from 1951 to 1957.

The films included views of rats and mice struggling, spinning and floating about their cages. A number of pictures of dogs also were included.

Dogs were shown in training, being taught to accept their harnesses and various instruments, becoming accustomed to the confined quarters of hermetically sealed capsules. There were scenes of the well-corseted dogs whirling in centrifuges, riding vibration tables, becoming inured to noise, heat and vibration.

HERO'S NAME 'ORBIT' — Scientists told the meeting of the American Rocket Society in Washington Monday that they have embedded a 2-ounce radio transmitter inside a dog's body and connected it to the animal's heart. Their plan is to send a dog or monkey so instrumented aloft in satellites before man goes up. 'Orbit,' the 1½-year-old beagle hound shown here, was the dog used in the experiment. A photo of the transmitter, compared for size with a quarter of a dollar, is shown also.

Three Demand Exam in Store Arson Plot

day, they said, and took from their store a living room set, washer and freezer.

Police said the items were charged to Wolfe in the firm's account books.

The third and last time he entered the store was 15 minutes before closing time Saturday evening, they said. He carried a pail of water which contained sticks of yellow phosphorous.

While they watched horse races on TV, they told police detectives, he put the phosphorous sticks into white cotton bags and secreted them under cushions and mattresses.

Phosphorous ignites when reached by oxygen, according to Metz. Once the cloth dried, the phosphorous ignites.

While the arsonist was planting the sticks, the men said, one stick did ignite. The arsonist extinguished the flames with a store fire extinguisher.

Shortly before 6 p.m., he left.

The two men left the store and headed home. They were notified of the blaze, returned to Pontiac, and were immediately held for questioning.

Firemen had the blaze under control within 10 minutes after a passer-by saw smoke coming from the building.

Metz immediately called the fire the work of an arsonist. "And he certainly bungled the job," he commented.

The two men denied any knowledge of the blaze Saturday night. At first they agreed to take a lie detector test but then balked.

They broke down Sunday and implicated Wolfe, owner of Serv-Well Food Service, Inc., 1532 Alfred St., Detroit. He was arrested at his home Sunday night. He has since denied any knowledge of the case.

Pontiac police say that the pail they believe the arsonist carried into the store Saturday night has been recovered by Detroit police in an alley of northwest Detroit.

Cohen and Aaron said they don't know the name of the arsonist.

The warrants were issued by Assistant Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Condit.

Wolfe, Aaron and Cohen were given lie detector tests yesterday. Police said results indicated the two local businessmen were telling the truth.

Cohen and Aaron told police they planned to pay off their debts with the insurance they collected and perhaps start a new business. Neither man has any previous known police record, according to authorities.

HEARINGS ON AGED — Sen. Patrick V. McNamara, right, stresses the bipartisan approach in greeting Rep. Gerald R. Ford Jr., Grand Rapids Republican, who was invited to the platform Monday. With them is Miss Lulu Cudney, oldest practicing registered nurse in the city, as they discuss problems of the aged. McNamara's subcommittee today completes the hearing, which is the fifth of seven scheduled, before making recommendations to Congress in January. Compulsory retirement, elimination of earning restrictions for social security recipients and a halt to inflation were cited by professional leaders and oldsters as major blocks to productive and meaningful lives.

GM Employes Trek to Work

Slow March Back Is Started in Four Cities; Other Firms Begin

DETROIT (AP)—Steel-hungry General Motors, its auto production halted entirely because of shortages of the car-building metal, is slowly returning some of its 220,000 workless employes to their jobs.

The return to work started yesterday at GM plants in Rochester, N.Y., Cleveland, Grand Rapids and Flint.

The Delco Appliance and Rochester Productions Division at Rochester started the recall of 2,000 of 3,600 workers.

Almost 500 maintenance employes went back to work at the Fisher Body Plant in Grand Rapids and 250 employes returned to the Fisher plant in Cleveland.

Chevrolet, where 58,296 of more than 60,000 hourly employes were idled, recalled 189 men at Flint and 250 more at Cleveland.

But Chevrolet and Fisher Body Divisions said there is no general plan to recall large numbers of workers at this time.

GM said there is no indication when it will return to car assembly in any of its divisions.

GM's Ternstedt Division planned to bring back 10,000 employes starting yesterday. The division manufactures body hardware for all GM cars. It generally works four to six weeks ahead of final assembly lines.

Ford assembly plants returned to a five-day week this week. But Chrysler planned three or four-day work weeks for all its divisions except the idled Imperial Division.

The Imperial plant in Detroit was shut down for an indefinite period last Friday. There now are more than 7,500 workers off the job at Chrysler.

88 Teachers in Eaton Rapids Breathe Again

EATON RAPIDS (AP)—Eighty-eight worried school teachers here have been assured that they will get their next paycheck due Dec. 1.

Don Kasuba, vice president of the Teachers' Club, said Sen. John W. Fitzgerald (R-Grand Ledge) told the group the district will get some $27,000 in state aid within two weeks.

The teachers were paid through Nov. 15 last Friday. At that time, Supt. M. J. Beiser reported the pay checks would be the last until the district gets more state aid. He said many banks were refusing the district loans secured by state aid.

The teachers scheduled a special meeting yesterday to consider their plight. After Fitzgerald's appearance, Kasuba said, "We feel there is no immediate problem now as long as we have been assured of money for our next pay checks."

To Open M57 Stretch

SAGINAW (AP)—Some 12 miles of reconstructed M57 in Saginaw will be opened to traffic Friday, Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie said today. The $728,000 project stretches from M47 in Saginaw County west to 2.3 miles west of the Gratiot-Saginaw County line in Gratiot County.

Would Use Tenure Idea to Get More Teachers

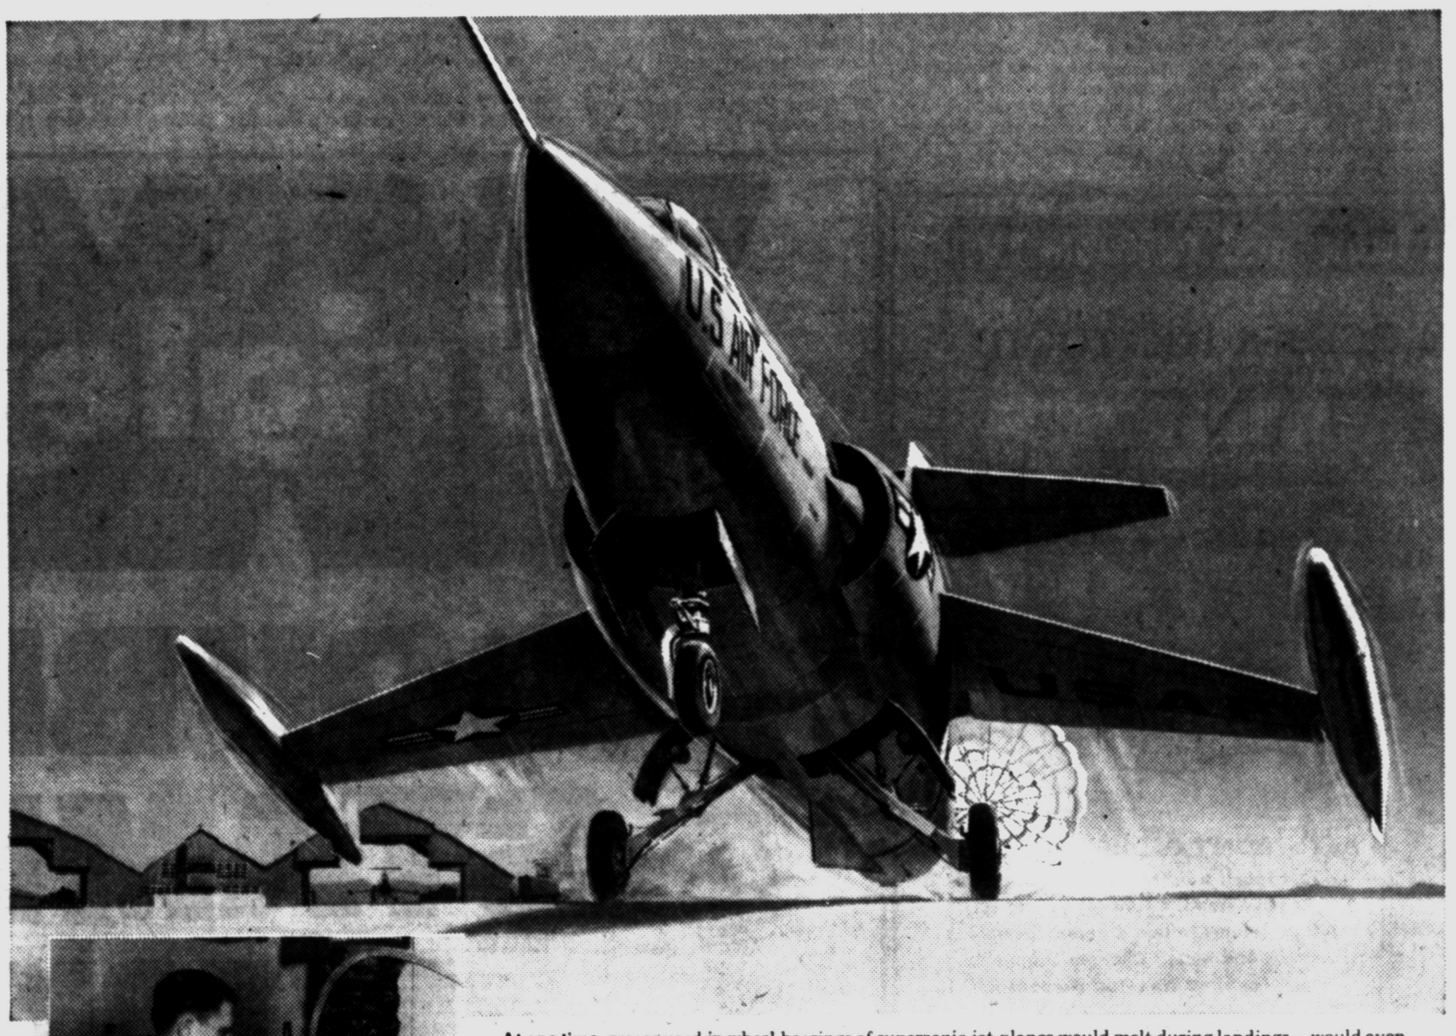

MONROE (AP)—Carl L. Megel, president of the American Federation of Teachers, says one solution to Michigan's teacher shortage would be to place all state teachers under tenure. Megel says Michigan's present local option tenure law "is largely responsible for the teacher shortage."

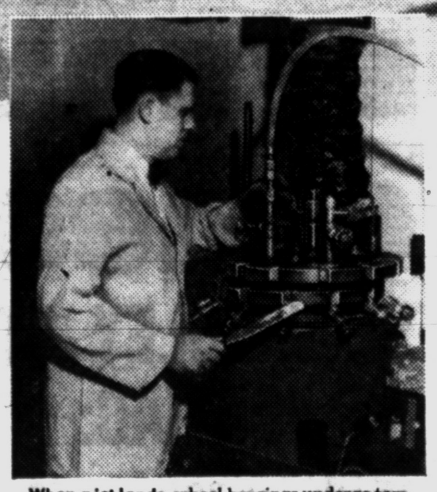

He says a good tenure law "is one that is statewide and makes a teacher's job permanent after two years of probationary teaching."

When a jet lands, wheel bearings undergo temperature changes from —40° up to 450°. Above, Dr. Richard H. Leet, who helped design a grease that could withstand such punishment, is shown working in the Standard Oil research laboratory.

Rockets and missiles have moving parts that must be lubricated at temperatures from —65° to 450°. Another special Standard Oil grease can do this job without breaking down.

At one time, grease used in wheel bearings of supersonic jet planes would melt during landings—would even catch fire! Now this has been solved by a revolutionary new grease developed by Standard Oil research.

Meet the man who put the grease in greased lightning!

When men started probing into space and flying at speeds faster than sound, they met a new and baffling lubrication problem.

Existing greases were good either in cold or heat, but not in both. A grease was needed that would not break down under extreme changes in temperature—from bitter cold one minute to blow-torch heat the next.

Lubrication experts in the research laboratories of Standard Oil, headed by Dr. Richard H. Leet, had foreseen the need for such a grease. And when America's future jet growth hinged on the development of a revolutionary new grease, it was ready—as the result of a five-year research project.

Because of the unique qualities and great versatility of this new grease, it is also being used in industry, serving more efficiently and more economically than previous greases under conditions of extreme heat and extreme cold.

It is another example of a major contribution to progress from Standard Oil's research laboratories. Other examples of the same thorough and painstaking research are the gasolines and oils millions of motorists buy daily at Standard service stations throughout the Midwest and Rocky Mountain region.

What Makes A Company A Good Citizen?

One gauge is a company's usefulness...its contribution to the general welfare. Through research, Standard constantly strives to develop products that will strengthen America's defenses and help millions of people in their work, in their homes, and on the road—today and in the future.

Hal Boyle Says:

Committees Intoxicate You? Shun 'Em

NEW YORK (AP) — One test of a successful man today is how many committees he can serve on without shortening his life.

BOYLE

We live in an age of togetherness, and our lives are largely ruled by committee-made decisions.

To have an active social life today, you almost have to serve on a committee dedicated to one cause or another. One's importance in the community often indeed is measured by the number of committees one serves on.

CAN THEY DO IT?

But committee work is a thing a fellow has to learn by personal experience whether he can take in stride or should leave strictly alone.

Serving on too many committees undoubtedly has killed by aggravation and overwork many men in their middle years who might otherwise have lived to a graceful and serene old age. They had become addicts. They didn't know how to handle it.

Haunting indeed are the sordid stories of those who tried to raise their social status by joining a committee, then found their lives ruined as one committee led to another, until finally there was no stopping.

SAD TALE

Here is one such man's story:

"I moved to the suburbs and bought a new house. I joined the PTA, and they put me on a committee to add a gymnasium to the school.

"The neighborhood association asked me if I'd serve on a committee to improve the beach, and I said yes. Then I joined a lodge and a church, and they both soon put me on committees.

"We were invited to a lot of parties, and it seemed like at each party they organized a new committee, and I was always asked to join, and I did. I joined a committee to bring industry into town, and I joined another committee to keep the town zoned only for private homes.

"At first I was deliriously excited by all this committee duty, because I never had made friends so fast in my life. I worked hard on each committee, and that, of course, led the other committees to want me to serve with them.

WELL KNOWN

"At the end of the first year I guess I must have been about the best known man in town, and they were even talking about running me for mayor. I was serving on 68 committees, and being invited to join new ones at the rate of one a week.

"I was getting three hours sleep a night, making an average of 37 phone calls a day from my office on committee work; and living on pep pills that turned me into a nervous wreck. I was completely neglecting my own family and my own job.

"Well, the whole thing collapsed last week. My boss fired me, my wife ran off with a man down the street, and my two children were sent to reform school as juvenile delinquents.

"Naturally, I thought my friends on all those committees would stand by me in my hour of need. But do you know what I found out? I found out that for every fair-weather friend you make by serving on committees, you make at least two all-weather enemies.

"My neighbors now are organizing a committee to ask me to sell the house and move away as an undesirable member of the community. It's a funny thing. That's the only committee in town I haven't been asked to join."

The moral is obvious. If committee work goes to your head, leave the stuff alone. Let the other fellow get the hangover that always comes from group efforts to rescue the barn owl or amend the world.

Waterford Township Tax Rate Decreases

Waterford Township's over-all tax rate has dropped 70 cents for each $1,000 of assessed valuation for the 1959 fiscal year.

This was revealed by Supervisor Elmer Johnson as township employes were preparing some 27,000 tax statements to be mailed Dec. 1.

A report of property tax as assessed from 1956 through 1959, with a percentage comparison of each year, will be enclosed with the tax bills, Johnson said.

The report gives a breakdown of how the property owner's money is distributed and why taxes have been reduced.

One reason for the tax drop, Johnson said, was a Supreme Court decision regarding last year's 55 cent tax for the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority. The court ruled it illegal to include the Authority for a separate tax, and that it must be absorbed into the county's general fund.

The second reason for lower taxes is that there was a drop of .01970 in the equalized factor. Last year's equalized factor was 2.1716. This year it will be 2.1519, Johnson said.

In the tax report, $35.15 of the total $71.02 per $1,000 of assessed valuation is earmarked for Waterford Township school district operating costs. Last year's figure was $28.39. For the school building program there is $19.81, compared to $26.37 last year.

The county general fund will receive less—$12.15, compared to last year's $12.25.

The Waterford Township municipal tax will be $2.83, a reduction of 4 cents from last year.

Property owners failing to pay their taxes before the Jan. 20 deadline will be penalized 4 per cent of their bill, Johnson said.

When you see an auto mechanic conscientiously change the oil, clean the windshield, wipe away greasy finger marks, check the radiator and battery and drive away slowly, you can be sure of one thing — it's his car . . . An old-timer is one who can remember when it took a lot more onions to cover a $2 steak. —Earl Wilson.

Snakes to Grace Lions' Luncheon Menu Tomorrow

Snakes will be on the menu at the noon luncheon meeting of the Pontiac Lions Club Wednesday, but officers say members need not fear having to eat the reptiles—or vice versa.

After the conventional meal, Paul Allen will present his "Snakes Alive" program, with live snakes.

Allen runs the Serpentarium, 10070 Dixie Highway, Springfield Township.

He may bring with him a rattler captured on the estate of Art Selden, publicity chairman, but promises not to put the bite on anyone. The club meets at the Waldron Hotel.

CAUGHT NAPPING — Two drowsy models appropriately clad in scanty nighties, descend a new kind of fire escape in a demonstration in Philadelphia. The ladder is made of aluminum and will support nearly three tons. It telescopes in against the wall, taking up less room than the average drain spout.

Stamp Will Honor Philip Melanchthon

Melanchthon, who died 400 years ago next April, was the principal author of the Augsburg Confession and the Apology of the Augsburg Confession, two basic doctrinal writings of Lutheranism.

The West German government makes it a practice to issue at least two religion stamps a year, one commemorating an Evangelical Church event, the other a Roman Catholic.

Try Aluminum Foil

Aluminum foil is the answer to wrapping gifts that are hard to wrap, such as vases and bottles. The foil molds easily to the shape. Just dress it up with a pretty bow.

Little Rock, Ark., was first named by French explorer Bernard de la Harpe as "La Petite Roche."

EVEN THE "ROCKS" taste BETTER!

SO TRUE! In its lighter, milder 86 proof, Old Taylor 86 is so rich and deep in flavor that you sip it right down to the bourbon dew on the ice!

It is the same in quality as our famous 100 proof bottled in bond Kentucky bourbon—which makes it the lightest full-flavored bourbon you can buy.

Try Old Taylor 86, see how good a light bourbon can be!

Businessman Lists 9 Ways State Can Add to Its Purse

LANSING (AP)—A Jackson manufacturer Monday called on Gov. Williams and the Legislature to "swing the hatchet of economy" through state government operations.

John J. Smith, president of Sparton Corp., offered nine suggestions for cutting down costs while the state is caught in the grips of a big cash crisis and a stalemate over a new tax program.

"For more than 10 months the people of Michigan have suffered through an economic mess in our state government as an apparetnly weak administration and the Legislature have stalemated in finding a solution to the fiscal plight of our state," he said in letters to Williams and lawmakers.

"The citizens of Michigan have every right to be disgusted with the entire affair. I am convinced that if they were asked if they want a use tax, income tax or any other kind of new tax, their first choice would be an overwhelming vote for economy — not taxes."

Smith, whose firm manufactures automotive, electronics and railway equipment, suggested:

LISTS 9 WAYS

1. A moratorium on new construction at state colleges and universities until goals are re-evaluated and buildings planned "for usefulness rather than frills."

2. Hiking the tuition of out-of-state college students "to make it more realistic" with costs paid by Michigan taxpayers.

3. Compelling colleges and universities to reimburse state and local police for handling traffic at athletic events.

4. A review of adult education and extension services "to see if both the taxpayers and students are getting dollar value for dollar tax."

5. Setting up a single system of liquor inspection to replace separate state and local inspection systems.

6. Cutting what he said were overly liberal vacation, sick leave and coffee break allowances for state employes "at least until our tax muddle is solved."

7. Creation of a legislative auditing staff to serve as a watchdog in state expenditures.

8. More serious consideration for recommendations of the so-called Little Hoover Commission set up to streamline state government.

9. Delaying payments to teacher and state employe retirement funds to allow the state to take advantage of cash discounts in paying bills.

Smith laid blame for Michigan's financial troubles on both the Democratic governor and the Republican - controlled Legislature. The governor, he said, has neither recommended a fiscal program or ordered sufficient economies.

"On the other hand," he said, "I feel there has been a failure on the part of some of our Republican senators and representatives to put the brakes on overspending."

Smith also assailed the State Economic Development Commission for painting an "unrealistic" picture of Michigan's industrial growth. A recent report, he said, failed to mention the size of new industries, the number of industries lost, the number planning to move from the state or the manufacturing buildings lying idle in the state.

Chunk of Wing Ice Crashes Into Home

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) — A piece of ice, believed to have fallen from an airplane, smashed through the roof of a house here Monday.

It left a hole the size of a football in the roof of Mrs. Floyd Berg's home and loosened plaster below. Five chunks of ice, each the size of a fist, were found melting in the attic.

Sheriff's officers, who estimated the chunk at 25 pounds, said ice frequently falls from planes when loosened by de-icing gear.

Mary Pickford Breaks Collarbone in Tumble

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., (AP) — Former screen actress Mary Pickford fell in her home Monday and fractured a collarbone. She is being treated at her home.

A member of her household staff said she caught her heel in a thick rug in a dressing room and fell against the corner of a table. Her physician said Miss Pickford's condition is good. She is 66.

Pieces of Plane Hint Explosion

But if So, Did It Come Before or After DC7B Smashed Into Gulf?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Was there an explosion aboard the National Airlines DC7B liner that crashed in the Gulf of Mexico Monday with 42 persons aboard? If there was, did it come before or after the crash?

Members of the party hunting in the shark-infested waters for bodies believe there was an explosion. But they don't agree on when it occurred. There apparently were no survivors among the 36 passengers and 6 crew members to supply the answers.

Lt. James L. Sigman, executive officer of the Coast Guard air detachment at New Orleans, said the wreckage was spread over a comparatively small area of two to three miles. This indicated to him, he said, that the explosion came after the plane hit the water.

But two Air Force fliers who spent four hours over the scene said because the wreckage was so scattered it seemed to them the plane exploded in the air.

United States railroad payrolls totaled almost five billion dollars in 1958.

Ike Charged With Holding Information

President EISENHOWER is charged with "too much secret Government" by Sigma Delta Chi, a journalistic fraternity.

We believe this is correct.

Washington becomes steadily more furtive.

It's quite possible that the President is unconscious of the extent to which "executive privilege" and other high sounding phrases are invoked by bureaucrats. The desire to withhold information from the press, and hence from the voters and taxpayers, becomes increasingly apparent. Sigma Delta Chi holds the Chief Executive responsible for this and the fraternity may be exactly right. Even though Mr. Eisenhower himself does not refuse to "let the people know," he has a large coterie of Governmental associates who do.

They're very glib about it and speak loftily of "national security" and "the welfare of the nation." The bulk of this is pure bosh. Secret, nighttime government is a lot easier and "safer" for the administering sources. Mistakes are concealed. Errors are glossed over. Dubious expenditures can be covered. Unjustified junkets are hidden.

We live in a democracy and a republic. You can glance across a brief span of the Atlantic and see what happens in Cuba when you go the other route. Or you can look around in too many other places all over the world and see the general results.

Remember, newspapers are still a greater check on deceit and fraud in government than all the provisions in all the constitutions there are. When Government officials don't want the people to know what they're doing and what's going on, look out.

Edgar Eisenhower Is Loyal Supporter of ACA

President EISENHOWER'S older brother, EDGAR, is a red hot member of "Americans For Constitutional Action."

There are so many organizations with similar sounding titles these days that a little clarification is in order. The "ACA" is opposed to all Socialistic tendencies and against the concentration of more power in Washington.

It believes in the people.

Also, it is heartily in opposition to the big spending which produces more inflation and higher taxes. Dwight D. Eisenhower declared himself against big spending when he was running for office, but after the ballots were counted he seemed to be mesmerized by the Big Spenders' pronouncements. Anyway, he became a victim.

Now the President sees the error and is supporting sound financing. Even his precariously balanced budget at 72 billion reached a sky-high peacetime level that left the nation gasping and breathless.

This newspaper hopes that Edgar exercises lots of influence with his younger brother.

Favoring Foreign Aid Will Hurt Rockefeller

When NELSON ROCKEFELLER appeared in the Midwest recently, he was quite outspoken in favor of a large grant for foreign aid. Also, he asserted that "income taxes will probably remain at a high level for some time to come." Both declarations were received in chilly silence.

The candidate had fumbled.

When the Empire State Governor returned to his home bailiwick he must have engaged in a little earnest soul searching. The next time he mentioned the second of these subjects in public, he did an abrupt about face.

"Federal taxes can be cut," he said.

Foreign aid on a broad and liberal basis still stands as a part of his program, but he's backing up on the earlier pronouncement. Governor, you haven't solicited any campaign advice from Pontiac, but if you're serious about seeking that nomination for the Presidency, you better furl that foreign aid flag.

It isn't popular.

The Man About Town

Pulled the Weeds

Seed Firm Ends Nearly a Century Career in County

Turkey: A bird that's coming back, and a country that never went away.

Removal of all activities of the Ferry-Morse Seed Company

from the Rochester area, according to ends nearly a century's work by the Ferry interests in Oakland County.

One of their earliest seed farms covered about 200 acres on the edge of Pontiac, on the present GMC site on South Boulevard. Nearly three-quarters of a century ago that was the most available vacation employment spot for Pontiac school children.

Among those still living who pulled weeds there for five cents an hour is who says the boss over the gang saw to it that it was an all work and no play job.

There's a problem in the family of

Mr. and Mrs. Abner Lossman

of Bloomfield Hills. When they moved here from Florida last summer they brought their children's driving pony with them. Now it refuses to step into the snow.

Living near the Drahner wild life sanctuary, east of Oxford.

Whitney Ullman

tells me that the deer who took refuge there at the start of the bird season all are remaining over for the deer season.

According to Superintendent

David Laidlaw,

the deer herd in Kent Lake Metropolitan Park in the west part of Oakland County always adds a number of visitors when the trigger happy boys are on the loose.

With the assistance of some Pontiac men, a society called

The Sons of Michigan

was organized in Washington in 1862, and now is preparing to celebrate its centennial. It had hard going at first but, according to the minutes of one of the first secretaries, about a banquet, "We were a little short on the substantials of the repast, but of liquid refreshments there was an abundance, and the utmost good humor prevailed."

Zebina Moses,

Compare today's prices with those of ten years ago, according to a clipping sent me by

of Waterford. It says that in 1949 a survey made in Pontiac showed that a Thanksgiving dinner for four, including a ten-pound turkey and all the trimmings (including cranberries) cost $8.16.

My historian tells me that it was 40 years ago today that the

was organized in Holly. It proved to be a good name, as it soon after went into hibernation—and has yet not awakened.

WASHINGTON — Lawyers in many parts of the country are expressing surprise at the reasoning used by Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court of the United States in his dissenting opinion in the steel case.

LAWRENCE

They point to it as another example of the tendency of present-day justices to consider themselves as writers of legislation rather than of judicial rulings and as exponents of what the "law of the land" ought to be rather than what it is in the light of precedents and previous decisions.

For Justice Douglas, in his recent opinion, contradicted the reasoning he himself used when he spoke, not in dissent, but for the majority of the court in a case decided 15 years ago.

The other day Justice Douglas didn't agree with the eight justices that an 80-day court injunction was necessary, ordering all strikers in the entire steel industry back to work. The dissenting justice said, "There is nothing in this record to sustain the conclusion that it is necessary to send 500,000 men back to work to give the Defense Department all it needs for the nation's 'safety'."

Justice Douglas seemed to think that a blanket injunction might be proved unnecessary and only a portion of the strikers need return to work.

But in the 1944 case, known as Bowles v. Willingham, Justice Douglas, writing in behalf of a majority of the Supreme Court, took a different view of blanket injunctions or court orders.

The case involved the rent-control provisions of the Emergency Price Control Act. This law was not unconstitutional, said the Douglas opinion, just because it required the administrator to fix maximum rents which were generally fair and equitable instead of applying the fair and equitable test to each individual landlord.

Incidentally, the landlord got no hearing before the administrator issued his rent-control order, and he was limited solely to judicial review after the order fixing his rent became effective. Justice Douglas called this "due process," and he wrote:

"A member of the class which is regulated may suffer economic losses not shared by others. His property may lose utility and depreciate in value as a consequence of regulation. But that has never been a barrier to the exercise of police power. . . .

"A nation which can demand the lives of its men and women in the waging of that war is under no constitutional necessity of providing a system of price control on the domestic front which will assure each landlord a 'fair return' on his property."

Justice Douglas is today disturbed that a whole class of workers might be injured by a blanket injunction or order when only an injunction against a part of their number might be necessary. Yet, when dealing with "landlords," he was not concerned by the fact that individual property owners might suffer by a broad rent-control order.

There are those who say that, because the "cold war" isn't a shooting war, it isn't an "emergency." Yet, judging by the amount of money being spent by the government and the vast numbers of men in our armed forces stationed overseas to guard against aggression, the threat of danger is real.

To argue that the ordering of men to work in only a few plants is all that needs to be done disregards the risks to be taken in selecting which plants and what supplies shall be favored.

There is no provision in existing law which empowers the President to engage in any such discrimination.

So far as the government is concerned, it depends on the steel industry as a whole to supply defense needs.

Dr. William Brady Says:

Nutrition Field Neglected by Many Doctors Today

Robert McCarrison, M.D., D. Sc., Hon. LL. D., F.R.C.P., is one of the great names in the modern science of nutrition.

His Studies in Deficiency Disease belongs on the shelf alongside of Sherman's Chemistry of Food and Nutrition, McCollum's Newer Knowledge of Nutrition, Rose's Foundations of Nutrition, Davis' Healthy Children, Bicknell & Prescott's The Vitamin in Medicine and Boas' The Patient Past Fifty.

DR. BRADY

It is because the libraries of many physicians do not have these books that doctors are so backward in the field of nutrition.

Today it wouldn't be remarkable but away back in 1921 when McCarrison published his studies it was so startling that the medical profession in general regarded McCarrison as a freak or a nut when he wrote:

"One of the earliest pathological evidences of deficient and ill-balanced foods, as observed in animals, is congestion of the gastro-intestinal mucosa. Such a state of congestion may well give rise in children to the gastro-intestinal catarrh which characterizes 'mucous disease.' This disorder is very common among children who are fed largely on sterilized milk, artificial foods, white bread, polished rice, poor butter, overcooked vegetables and excessive quantities of sugar."

In McCarrison's day the condition we now recognize as colon derangement was universally called "colitis" or "mucous colitis," just as the condition we now recognize as chronic joint disability or rheumatiz was universally called "arthritis" twenty years ago.

Both terms are misnomers because the condition designated as "arthritis," "osteo-arthritis" or "heumatoid arthritis" is not -itis (inflammation) at all, but degeneration of joint tissues; and the condition designated as "mucous disease," "chronic intestinal indigestion," "celiac disease" or "mucous colitis" is not -itis but atrophy and degeneration of one or more parts of the gastro-intestinal or digestive tract.

"One of the most constant results of food deficient in vitamins is colitis," said McCarrison, meaning, of course, so-called celiac disease (marasmus, infantile atrophy) intestinal indigestion and colon derangement. "It is so frequent that it may rank as a cardinal sign of vitaminic deficiency."

Have you ever observed the happy effects of a banana diet on a practically starved, puny infant with marasmus?

Familiar features of colon derangement are chronic anemia, unhealthy skin, loss of weight, lassitude, backache, colicky pains in abdomen, bouts of diarrhea alternating with constipation, excessive mucus in stools, and a neurotic state characterized by morbid obsessions the worst of which is the one about the significance of mucus. People who don't know too much about "mucous colitis" that isn't so may get some help from studying The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene, for which send me 35 cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

'Attitude Toward Crime Is Now Showing Results'

How did our soft attitude toward crime and punishment happen to come about? First, the movie industry portrayed the shocking, unconventional and unusual as a matter of policy. It did not intend to glorify crime. It didn't intend to foster corruption and disrespect for law and order. It merely intended to sell tickets.

When a man was sentenced to the electric chair, he was usually innocent. Invariably he would be saved by a last minute reprieve. Dramatic? Of course. True to life? Certainly not!

The second factor in swaying public opinion was P. T. Barnum's dictum that a sucker is born every minute. Reflection shows it was merely his alibi for cheating the public. Unfortunately, the public accepted it lock, stock and barrel.

In doing so, it unwittingly opened the floodgates of deception. Fraud and trickery are no longer confined to the side show trades. It's become big business. It even oozes from our TV screens. About the only protection we have is an occasional published warning from the business ethics board.

We are now paying for our soft attitude towards crime and punishment. The chickens have come home to roost.

Van Doren doesn't have any criminal tendencies. He was put on the spot and admitted his fault.

How many people in high, important positions—lawyers, doctors, preachers, editors, etc.—hide in a cloak of respectabilities because they haven't been found out? So why not forgive Van Doren?

Perhaps that was one big fault he had to overcome on the ladder of spiritual evolution. Isn't that the way we overcome our faults—through painful error? At least he won't be tempted again. Therefore he's a better man than before and therefore fit to be a teacher of the highest caliber.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Small Farm Ends Man's Worries

Read Clyde's fascinating "progress report." What he has done can be duplicated by every man who has ambition. When you can reside on your own land and supplement a factory pay check with your own "fringe benefits" from a garden, a cow and chickens, you will feel like a free man.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE D - 402: Clyde H., aged 33, is the worried husband mentioned yesterday who had a take-home pay of $58 per week.

He lived in the city in a small was trying to buy. And he had a frustrated wife, plus two children to support.

CRANE

"Dr. Crane, I want to tell you how well I have followed your advice," he informed me a year later.

"Since I had a steady job without much chance of advancement, but nothing else in prospect, I decided to stick to my sure income of $58 weekly.

"Then I began looking around for a small piece of farm land with a house on it.

"Last winter I saw an ad in our local newspaper. An old man owned 40 acres down by the river. Half of it was in second growth timber.

"But there were about 20 acres of pasture and flat ground. It also had a 3-room house on it with electric lights, but no modern toilet facilities.

"However, he had a driven well 110 feet deep. And he wanted to sell the place. His total price was $7,500.

"My mother urged me to go ahead and buy it. Meanwhile, I sold the equity in the city home we were buying and got $5,000 which I applied on the farm.

"It is 6 miles from the city plant where I work, but it takes me less than 10 minutes to drive to the factory.

"We moved to this place last Spring and started fixing up the house. I got an electric pump installed so we'd have running water and then put in a bathroom by myself, with the aid of my dad.

"My wife grumbled about the little house but I told her when I was overseas during the war, I saw that a house like ours would have been the envy of most people in Europe.

"Besides, we bought an old cow for $125 and she averages 6 quarts of milk in the morning and 6 quarts at night.

"That eliminates all our grocery bills for milk, cream, butter and cottage cheese.

"And we have so much surplus milk, I use it to help feed a sow and 24 pullets. The hens started laying in April and we average 18 eggs daily.

"I hired a neighboring farmer to plow my garden. It cost me only $5 to get it in fine shape, and I had about an acre in all sorts of vegetables.

"My two kids like the farm swell! They fish in the river that borders our land, and so do my dad and I when we have time.

"Farming on second rate land like mine would not be profitable if a man had no other income whatever.

"But as a sideline it is a big boost to my $58 per week, for our grocery bill alone used to run almost $20 every week. Now we don't spend more than $7 or $8 at the grocery per week.

"Meanwhile, I decided to try my luck at selling, so I took a little home study course and have now built up a small clientele of customers for coffee, tea, soap, vanilla extract and other kitchen products.

"It was slow going the first two months, but now I have 127 steady customers who re-order every time I make the rounds.

"I net $15 per week, after paying all gasoline bills, etc., so this, added to my $10 saved on groceries, plus my original $58 wages, boosts my earnings to $83 per week.

"And I finally quit cigarets, for the $115 I save per year in that fashion pays almost the entire interest on the $2,500 mortgage I have on the farm. Now I feel like a free man for the first time in my life!"

Bob Considine Says Nixon Way Out Ahead

Latest Poll on '60 Uses New Angle

NEW YORK—From this hour on you're a 1-to-10 shot to be hit from all sides by presidential polls. Some of these "findings" are reached by interviews with fewer than 2,000 persons out of the massive body called politic.

Others reach conclusions mathematically. One esteemed poll is said to depend on how many red beans pop out of a shaken jar of red and white beans. Still others may depend on hallucination or, indeed, Revelation.

On hand today is what purports to be a new approach at divining the identity of the presidential candidates of 1960. It is the work of the Gahagan Research Company of New York.

It is said to differ from other polls by the use of "psychological projective techniques." Persons questioned (no number mentioned) were asked 25 questions on as many subjects. To wit:

"He looks like the kind of man who would take a personal interest in peoples' problems: (Give name of your choice here.)" or "He hasn't had enough experience in the problems of government: (Give name of your choice here.)" or "He is a little too tricky for my liking: (Give name of your choice here.)"

Swearing on a stack of old "Literary Digests," the Gahagan people find Nixon far out in front for the GOP nomination and a wide-open Democratic race that may lead to the selection of a dark horse. Which is hardly stop-press news, but the details are interesting.

Gahagan says his sampling showed that people consider Kennedy capable and trustworthy "but too young for an important job such as the presidency."

Rockefeller showed "surprising potential as a vote-getter, considering the short time he has been in the public eye."

Rocky's weakest showing came in the number of times his name appeared next to the query about the lack of experience in the problems of government.

SCORE ON STEVENSON

Stevenson got only 11 per cent association with the "people like him. He has a warm, human, friendly personality" and only 9 per cent with, "He looks like the kind of man who would take a personal interest in people's problems." But he scored high in a question concerning the candidate who would be most concerned about unemployment.

Symington scored well (19 per cent) in only one category—defense and armed forces—leading all the others in this particular. He was outranked only by Humphrey in being seen as "too closely associated with labor unions."

"Sen. Johnson elicits a consistently low level of response," the survey notes.

Nixon's highs and lows: He ranked first or near there in his ability to engender trust, 43.5 per cent; in experience; in dependability in a crisis, 42.5 per cent; in his knowledge of foreign affairs; in concern about unemployment, 22.5 per cent.

ON NEGATIVE SIDE

On the negative side, he was seen as egotistical (27.5 per cent), too much of a "professional politician" (18 per cent); "too tricky" (23.5 per cent), "too ambitious" (27.5 per cent) and "unscrupulous" (18 per cent).

He was nosed out in the latter category by Stevenson and followed by Rockefeller. Johnson, according to the poll, came out as least "unscrupulous."

Gahagan, a young Ivy League and Madison Avenue product, concludes:

(Kennedy)—"Should wait four years. Extremely difficult to change the emotional perception which people have of him as too young . . . people are quite willing to vote for a younger man as senator (but) they will almost certainly demand a mature, responsible person for the presidency."

(Stevenson)—"At a disadvantage against either Nixon or Rockefeller."

(Symington, Humphrey) — "Potential, possible dark horses."

(Johnson)—"Another dark horse, since his actual importance and reputation in the party stands far above the public's low awareness of him."

(Nixon)—"Strong points far outweigh his weak points. Little question in minds of our staff that if election were held today he would be an easy winner, but it should be recognized that this lead will probably become significantly less disproportionate."

(Rockefeller) — "Rockefeller's weaknesses, particularly those lying in the field of experience, are more easily overcome than those of Nixon, which are based upon emotional prejudices. His strong showing in so short a time makes him a candidate to be reckoned with."

(Chief Justice Warren)—"In the event of a Nixon-Rockefeller deadlock, the "ideal dark horse choice."

Record Foreign Lakes Shipping

Tops a Million Tons for First Time in '58, With 11 Ports Handling Most

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — The Great Lakes Commission reported Monday that overseas shipments from Great Lakes ports exceeded one million tons for the first time in history during 1958.

The commission said Lakes carriers carried 1,054,000 tons, including 708,000 tons carried directly between the Great Lakes and overseas ports and 346,000 tons transferred en route at Canadian ports on the St. Lawrence River.

Both the tonnage and dollar value, $268 million, of overseas trade in the final pre-Seaway year were all-time highs. U. S. exports exceeded imports in both the direct overseas trade and Canadian transshipments, the commission said.

About 98 per cent of the 1958 tonnage moved through 11 ports. They were Buffalo, 40,038; Chicago, 321,700; Cleveland, 98,966; Detroit, 162,194; Duluth-Superior, 215,626; Green Bay, 40,655; Milwaukee, 66,996; Muskegon, 17,094; Saginaw River, 19,888; South Haven, 17,531; and Toledo 30,598.

Eleven other Lake ports handled lesser amounts of tonnage.

Big Inventory by Car Dealers Is No Worry

DETROIT (AP) — Automotive News has reported that dealers had a near-record inventory of 525,568 new cars on Nov. 1 with one-fourth of the stock 1959 models.

The record for the date is 569,335 in 1955.

The trade paper said dealers showed no concern over the size of the inventory, mainly because of sharp production cutbacks now in effect.

Used car stocks also were reported to have increased greatly during October to the highest point this year. Automotive News estimated the inventory as a 44.6 day supply but gave no exact figures.

The trade paper said dealers attributed the rise in used car stocks to exceptional new car demand plus a normal slowdown at new model introduction periods.

Senior Citizens OK in Michigan

State Health Chief Says Fine Start Being Made but Urges Expansion

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Michigan already has a good start in public health services for senior citizens, says Dr. Albert Heustis, State Health Department chief.

He reported Monday before a Senate subcommittee hearing the problems of the aged and aging. Sen. Patrick McNamara (D-Mich) is chairman of the subcommittee and presides at the two-day session in Grand Rapids.

Dr. Heustis urged, however, a broad scale attack on long term illness. He recommended stronger local public health services, an expanded hunt for disease in early stages, chronic disease care and welfare assistance for nursing homes.

Using charts and photos, Dr. Heustis told the subcommittee of nine cooperative programs in Michigan with private physicians.

Among some 8,500 women tested for cancer of the womb, he said, potentially one life was saved for every 250 tested with the finding of 33 new cases.

Nearly 28,000 checks for diabetes and further examination of diabetic suspects by private physicians showed 117 previously unknown diabetics.

More than 1,650 older persons were tested for glaucoma, an eye disease, with followup tests confirming 20 new cases, Dr. Heustis reported.

"We can save lives and prevent serious disability by expanding these programs," he declared. "This represents a newer phase of a long-established partnership between private medicine and public health."

To Examine Hopefuls for State Tax Post

LANSING (AP) — Nineteen applicants to succeed Louis M. Nims, 70, a retiring state revenue commissioner, will undergo oral examination Thursday and Friday.

A final selection may be announced by the State Civil Service Commission in January. The position pays $17,500. Competition has been narrowed from a starting field of 28.

Arthur G. Raschn civil service director, announced as the five members of the oral examination board:

Alan L. Gornick, Ford Motor Co. tax affairs specialist; Albert Lee, Detroit public accountant; Alfred M. Pelham, former Wayne County Board of Auditors finance director; L. Hart Wright, University of Michigan law professor; and Charles E. Yager, AFL-CIO tax consultant.

Pope Looking Forward to It

Ike to Visit Vatican Dec. 6

ROME, (UPI) — Pope John XXIII will receive President Eisenhower informally and in "private character" when the two men meet at the Vatican Palace Sunday morning, Dec. 6.

That means Eisenhower probably will appear at the Vatican in a simple dark suit and shoes. Dark topcoat and wearing a dark hat, perhaps one of his severe homburgs.

Pope John, who by then will be a little more than a week past his 78th birthday, will be dressed in his ample white robes, tiny skull cap and soft doeskin slippers.

Vatican and State Department protocol experts went back 40 years to find out how the first meeting between an American incumbent president and a pope was handled.

This was Jan. 4, 1919, when President Woodrow Wilson called on Pope Benedict XV, a Genoa-born diplomat and intellectual.

Wilson, then touring European capitals propounding his 14 peace points before the Paris Conference, was accompanied by an admiral, a general and an official from the U.S. embassy.

They drove to the cobblestoned courtyard of St. Damasus, inside the Vatican, where the Palatine guard and a platoon of papal gendarmes rendered honors.

Prince Ruspoli, then grand master of the Sacred Hospice, greeted Wilson and escorted him to the stairs leading up to the papal apartments.

Upstairs, the American President was met by Msgr. Giovanni Tacci, major domo of the Pope, and other prelates of the pontifical household.

They included two present-day Italian cardinals — Nicola Canali and Giuseppe Pizzardo.

Swiss guards escorted the group to the papal library.

Wilson was introduced to Pope Benedict. Msgr. Charles A. O'Hern, then rector of the North American College, acted as interpreter.

The audience lasted 20 minutes. Wilson then introduced members of his party.

Pope Benedict presented the American President with a mosaic from Vatican City showing an image of St. Peter.

The same basic formula is expected to be followed for the Eisenhower visit.

MET IN PARIS

The President is no stranger to the Vatican nor to the present Pope whom he met when the latter was nuncio to Paris.

Eisenhower had his first papal audience Sept. 15, 1945, when — with General Mark Clark — he was received by the late Pius XII. Eisenhower's son John, then an army lieutenant, also was present.

John, now a major, will accompany his father on his forthcoming tour as an aide.

The present Pope, then Giuseppe Cardinal Roncalli, was papal nuncio to France while Eisenhower was supreme allied commander, and they met several times.

The President, as a protestant, is not required to kneel or kiss the hand of Pope John for his Vatican audience, as a Catholic would do.

The two probably will shake hands and take seats for their interview.

LITTLE PROTOCOL

The President, as a matter of courtesy and the protocol of titles, will refer to the pontiff as "your holiness."

Pope John will address his visitor as "Mr. President."

If the pontiff feels that his English is progressing sufficiently, he probably will speak that language.

Either a Vatican or an American interpreter in all likelihood will be on hand.

For the Vatican, the pontiff probably will choose Msgr. Patrick Ryan, six-foot, one inch Irish priest from Tiperrary who is teaching the Pope English. Msgr. Ryan has a high post in the Vatican.

One thing is certain, according to preliminary soundings at the Vatican:

Pope John, the peasant's son who has impressed almost all by his earthy sincerity and warmth, is looking forward with lively interest to seeing Eisenhower?

The American President can be assured of a sincere reception.

Output of soybean oil in the United States now exceeds that of cottonseed oil, previously the chief vegetable oil produced in this country.

Auto Dealers Report Profit

Averaged $90 Per Car Before Federal Taxes; (1.8 Pct. Total Sales)

DETROIT (AP) — Auto dealers averaged $90 operating profit for each new car sold during the first nine month of 1959, the National Automobile Dealers' Assn. reports.

The profit, before federal taxes, averaged 1.8 per cent of total sales. At the end of six months the figure was 2 per cent of sales.

The NADA said that during the third quarter dealers reduced their new car inventories from 884,000, or 23.9 cars per dealers, to 473,600 on Sept. 30, or 12.8 cars per dealer.

Figures were taken from a quarterly business management survey by the association.

In discussing the future the NADA report said: "Uncertainties as to the final quarter of the year center on the effects of the steel strike. While the steel workers have returned, at least temporarily, it will take time to regain the new car production already lost.

"Also, not fully answered as yet are some of the questions on the new compact cars — their place in the overall sales picture, and their influence on the used car market.

"On the optimistic side, new car shortages will improve the outlook for a satisfactory and profitable clean-up of remaining 59s. In the absence of more reassuring signs than are apparent as this is written, it would appear that most dealers would be willing to close out the year with their nine months' profits intact."

LIVE BETTER FOR LESS

Begins to Look Like Potential Candidate

Rockefeller All Pepped Up

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Is Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller going to take the big plunge for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination?

He says he hasn't made up his mind.

But he returned to New York Monday from a four-day swing through the Far West, obviously bouyed by what he found there. As a result, he looks much more like a potential candidate today than he did a week ago.

Information he received on the trip has given him a new insight into the political picture in the West.

Rockefeller spent two days in Vice President Richard M. Nixon's home state, California, and one in Oregon, where Nixon appears equally as strong. He stopped briefly in Washington and Idaho.

In California and Oregon, the governor expected to find, and did find, blocs of Nixon backers as solid as anywhere in the United States.

But people close to him say he also found a certain amount of uneasiness among West Coast Republicans as to whether Nixon, if nominated, could win the election next year.

Rockefeller won't discuss that.

Conforming to political tradition, he merely says, "Whoever the Republicans nominate will be elected."

He concedes that, to win in 1960, the GOP nominee will have to pull votes from the independent voters and the Democrats. But he says, "It's a well known political fact that more and more people are moving back and forth across party lines."

Whether he believes he can pull more of this floating vote than Nixon is another question he sidesteps.

In the West, he made a number of speeches. Sprinkled through the audiences, except at the strictly Republican party shindigs, were numerous people who identified themselves as Democrats and independents.

Sen. Knowland Also Predicts Nixon

'Brown Is '60 Contender'

DETROIT (AP)—"Other candidates who treat Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California as only a favorite son entry for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination are going to get a shock," William A. Knowland, former senator majority leader, said Monday.

Knowland said in an interview that Brown would be "a deadly serious" candidate for the nomination.

Knowland, the assistant publisher of the Oakland (Calif) Tribune, was in Detroit for a meeting of publishers with the advertising bureau of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn.

He predicted Vice President Nixon would get the 1960 Republican presidential nomination, adding that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York "must announce soon and define his stand" if he is to "dent Nixon's strength."

Michigan Man Aboard Lost National Plane

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A Michigan man was aboard the ill-fated plane that plunged into the Gulf of Mexico yesterday because he extended a business-vacation trip to attend the funeral of an associate.

Arthur H. Fraser, 51, of Redford Township, general manager of a Detroit auto parts firm, was one of the 42 persons apparently killed when the National Airlines plane crashed.

Fraser had planned to return home Sunday after a trip to Florida with his wife, Marjorie. But Fraser, an ex-Army colonel, switched plans and boarded a plane for Dallas where a business associate had died of a heart attack.

Aldo Ray Returns Without General's Daughter in Tow

LONDON (AP)—Film star Aldo Ray flew home to America today without a British general's daughter he said he might propose to if she liked the United States.

Maj. Gen. Roland Bennett squelched plans of Johanna, 20, and Ray, 33, by refusing to endorse her request for a U.S. visa. The actor left alone by plane Monday night for San Francisco.

Johanna will be 21 in March and then can get a visa without her parents' approval. She says she will "miss Aldo terribly. Still, he's coming back in January. If I try hard perhaps I can wait until then."

Gen. and Mrs. Bennett didn't like the fact that the movie tough guy had been divorced twice. The actor hasn't asked Johanna to marry him yet, but says he might after she gets a good look at America to see how she likes it.

Johanna, who was Ray's secretary in London, said she had tried to make her parents understand Aldo "is not the bad man some people make him out to be," even if he does prefer "whisky to tea and coffee and sometimes swears."

Hint Sabotage in Rail Runaway

FBI Enters New Jersey Locomotive Dash Case; Went 22 Miles Alone

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The Jersey Central Railroad says its runaway locomotive may have been sent off deliberately by some one trying to sabotage the line.

The FBI also said it had entered the case to determine if there had been any violation of a federal train wreck statute.

A Central spokesman said Monday "It looks like some one maliciously sent the engine off. It's extremely unlikely the engine could get going by itself."

The 123-ton diesel-electric engine slid out of the Central yard in Jersey City Thursday night with no one aboard and highballed 22 miles down the tracks toward the Jersey shore before it was intercepted.

An engineer mounted a second locomotive in Perth Amboy, dashed ahead of the runaway locomotive, allowed it to catch up to him and hook on and then braked his engine to a halt.

The state Public Utility Commission also investigated the case. PUC President Ralph Fusco said the throttle on the engine was wide open and the brakes were on.

"It looks like the train crew left the train properly," the Central spokesman said. Several procedures have to be taken before the locomotive begins to move, the spoksman said.

Continue N-Test Ban, Humphrey Urges

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey called today for an extension of the ban on nuclear bomb testing by the United States for one year but no longer unless agreement is reached at the Geneva talks.

The Minnesota Democrat urged the three nuclear powers negotiating at Geneva, the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union, to set up a test monitoring system under United Nations sponsorship to see if such a control arrangement could work.

Humphrey said President Eisenhower was under strong pressure to let the voluntary test ban expire at the end of the year.

This would be a great mistake, he said. It would turn world opinion against the United States and jeopardize the Geneva conference which he said "is coming as close to success as any arms control conference has come since the end of the war."

Slumber Masks Just the Thing Students Needed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The class of basic essentials of foreign languages at the University of San Francisco came to order and everybody put on slumber masks, but not to go to sleep.

"The masks allow a student to give all his attention to the drill," said the Rev. P. Carlo Rossi, S.J.

Father Rossi conceived the idea on a plane trip when he was handed a mask so he could sleep during daylight. It only set him to thinking. "I found that all distraction was gone. I was able to concentrate."

Master Your Tensions

Try Taking a Positive Step Forward

GEORGE S. STEVENSON, M.D. and HARRY MILT

Martha used to come home from school and cry because she was so unpopular. Her mother couldn't understand. Martha was not at all unattractive nor dull. She was a kind, sincere, gentle person.

She could dance, swim, skate and play tennis. She was rather timid but once she warmed up she could be a lot of fun. Why then was she unpopular?

Mother asked a close friend to make some quiet inquiries. Without exception, everyone questioned thought Martha a sweet and lovable girl. But they thought it was she who wanted to be left to herself — that she didn't care much for parties and outings.

The boys and girls had asked her many times but Martha had said she was going to be busy doing something else.

Why? This was Martha's explanation: "I would have loved to go along with them, but I know they really didn't want me. They were only asking me because they pitied me."

OUT OF CIRCULATION

And there, in Martha's reply, is the answer to the plight of so many tense, unhappy people who think that others don't like them when it is they who don't like themselves.

Remember other people are busy taking care of their own social affairs. They don't have time to seek you out if you've taken yourself out of circulation.

Unfortunately, many people tend to judge by superficial impressions.

If you are outgoing and give the impression you think highly of yourself, they will think well of you too. If you go around with hang-dog attitude and belittle yourself, they will tend to take you at your own face value.

What can you do about it?

Even though you may not be able to change your personality overnight, you can overcome quickly some of the difficulties your traits create. You can also have the assurance of knowing that as you develop new habits this can, over a period of time, change and eliminate the troublesome characteristics.

The thing to do is to start taking a positive step forward, to let people know you are interested in them; that you would like to be a part of what they are doing. Here are seven suggestions:

1. BE AVAILABLE

When you hear that fellow employes, or neighbors, are planning to do something together, go to your best friend in the group and ask if there's room for one more. You may die a thousand deaths for fear of being rebuffed but once you've taken the step and seen how unfounded your fears are you'll wonder why you haven't done this long before.

When Patricia took a new job, she was frightened and lonely. She happened to arrive at a time when everyone was rushing around preparing inventory but Patricia didn't realize this.

A sensitive girl, she thought she was being cold shouldered and she retreated further into herself.

When the office got back to normal, the word had gotten around about "that strange, unfriendly girl," and everyone left her alone. One morning she became so upset she fainted. Regaining consciousness she was surrounded by a half dozen worried girls outdoing each other to help her.

Then, when one of the older girls asked her to have a cup of coffee, Patricia burst into tears and told her how unhappy she was because no one wanted to be friendly. That noon, and every noon thereafter, Patricia had company for lunch. Months later she commented, "How silly I was just to sit there and wait for someone to talk to me."

As you begin to make yourself available, there are two things to be aware of. First: even though you have taken a forward step, you may still be inclined to hang back. This will just be a hangover of your original problem. Once you're in the group become part of it.

If there is work to be done, volunteer to help. If teams, sides or committtees are being chosen, step forward and volunteer. You'll find that once you feel a part of things you'll relax and your performance will improve. Even if it doesn't, remember that no one is eyeing you to see how well you do.

Second: If you're not asked along the first time, or if you are omitted the second after being out with the group once, don't fall back crushed. It may be that just this one time it is inconvenient to include an extra.

2. TAKE THE INITIATIVE

Chances are that you wait for other people to invite you, making this a test of how you rate. The fallacy in this is that their failure to call may have nothing to do with their regard for you. They may be busy, tired or lazy, or waiting for you to ask them. Instead of waiting, why don't you arrange the activity and ask other people along?

3. JOIN ORGANIZATIONS

If you have difficulty striking up sontaneous acquaintances, find out where there are organized groups and join one or more.

In schools, Y's, churches, settlement houses, there are all sorts of clubs and discussion groups you can join. In addition every community has many different volunteer service organizations.

4. MEET PEOPLE

If you know just two or three people, your opportunities for social activity will be limited to just these few. How do you get to know new people?

By taking the initiative. By joining new organizations. This is just the first step.

Don't expect some magic process to keep friendship alive. Friendships have to be cultivated. Put the same thought into making and keeping friends as you do other important things in your life. Find out what your friends like to do, and arrange to do it togther. Don't wait until they call you. You call them.

5. DON'T DEMAND

Maybe one reason you don't have many friends now is that you demand too much. One common mistake is expecting a friend to have as deep and intense feeling for you as would a very close relative. If that feeling is there, fine. But if it isn't, don't judge the whole friendship to be worthless. Your friends may be very fond of you but may not feel as intensely about it as you do.

6. DEVELOP YOUR TRAITS

Just as you look for attractive traits in friends, you may be sure they look for attractive qualities in you.

Friends expect consideration, appreciation, attention. If a friend does not call for a week or two, do you phone to see that everything it all right with him?

If something nice happens to a friend, do you make it a point to congratulate him?

Another area where you can strengthen yourself is in that of special skills or talents. If you are good at the piano, guitar or at singing, why not practice up? If you've had to sit out card games or dances, why not take the trouble to learn these now?

7. DON'T BE PUSHY

A great deal of trouble can come from being dissatisfied with what you've got and wanting to be in on everything.

"My friends are so ordinary and dull. Why don't those other people like me? I'm probably not attractive or smart or lively enough to suit them."

And there you are going through the same mental suffering as a person with no friends at all. Next you'll be dropping your old friends and running after others.

Do this once or twice and you will find yourself without any friends, old or new.

Also don't expect your friends to be perfect. Perfection doesn't exist. Your friends, like everyone else, have weaknesses, and these weaknesses should be overlooked, unless they become very offensive. If you expect your friends to be perfect, you'll surely lose them.

Vet Commanders Offer Reason to Hold Fund

LANSING (AP) — Commanders of Michigan's organized veterans' groups have re-affirmed their opposition to tapping the veterans trust fund to ease the state's cash emergency.

The commanders pointed out that the 50 million dollars invested in fund securities would "bring no more than 38 to 40 million dollars on the open market today."

Controls Paper Sales; Gets Prison, Big Fine

NEW YORK (AP) — Irving Bitz, a leading distributor of newspapers and magazines, was sentenced Monday in federal court to five year imprisonment and fined $45,000 for conspiring to monopolize the distribution of periodicals in the metropolitan area and for extorting $45,000 from suburban Wholesalers Association, Inc.

District Judge Frederick Van Pelt Bryan postponed jailing the 56-year-old Bitz until Nov. 27.

Bitz pleaded that his wife is ill and he would like to spend Thanksgiving with her.

Bitz had pleaded guilty.

Ten other defendants await trial.

Now that school is well underway, here's a thought for the teen-ager in your family. To give him the feeling of "having arrived" and become a man of the world give him a telephone of his own. With his telephone (in an attractive color to blend with his room decor) he can become truly independent. And just to carry the thought a step further, make sure that there is a separate listing in our directory so that your young man (or woman) of the world can be found quickly.

Incidentally, while I'm talking about gifts, why not get your Christmas shopping done early and with a minimum amount of effort, by giving a gift telephone. This kind of a gift will give a thrill to the young and old alike, especially if you choose one from the many very beautiful colors we now have to offer, and the best part of it is, you can't find a gift to compare to a telephone for practicability and yet it is so inexpensive.

HOW CAN SHUT-IN boys and girls keep up with their school work? One successful solution has been Michigan Bell Telephone Company's School-to-Home telephone installations. Even though a child is in bed, he can still take part in the lessons of his own class. He can ask questions and recite as if he were in school. Two-way speaker units make this possible. Here is an invention that ends a worry for many a parent and removes a handicap from scores of children who are confined to their homes for long periods.

"OVER THE RIVER AND THROUGH THE WOOD, To grandfather's house we'll go . . ." How long has it been since you recited that poem in school? It's called "Thanksgiving Day," and it was written in the last century by Lydia M. Child. Things certainly have changed since then: today instead of a sleigh ride, you can often get to grandfather's house in a few minutes by car. But if he does live too far away to visit, and you'd like to remember him on Thanksgiving Day, there's no better way to do it than with a leisurely Long Distance call.

PARTING SHOT: It's not the minutes at the table that add to your weight. It's the seconds.

Abby Advises:

Irked by Guy's Perfection? Let Another Gal Have Him

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend is getting on my nerves. He is the type who would rather eat burnt toast in a restaurant than make a fuss by complaining about it.

ABBY

He is steady and dependable. He hasn't missed a day's work or been late in four years. He is so conservative I could scream. He makes his own hair tonic and shaving lotion and says I am foolish to buy cologne when he could make me some. He works in a plant where everything is made with an alcohol base. He is so "good" he is boring. My parents want me to marry him. Do you think he would make a good husband?

BORED WITH HIM

DEAR BORED: He would make a wonderful husband — but not for you. If his patience irritates you, his thriftiness annoys you and his steadiness bores you, turn him loose. There are plenty of girls who are looking for a man with his qualities. One girl's nightmare is another girl's dream.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl with a rare problem. I can't stand old people. I don't even like to be near them. They are very repulsive. The other day when I was on a bus this old lady got on and sat next to me. She was all wrinkled up and drooling and humming. I suppose she couldn't help it, but she made me feel so crawly I couldn't wait to get off the bus. How can I get over this feelnig? Do you think I will outgrow it?

FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: The fact you are "feeling guilty" indicates that you realize your attitude is wrong. This is half the battle. With maturity will come understanding, patience and respect for others. Elderly people are not always attractive (neither are young people) but it is up to the younger ones to give them a pleasant minute, or hour or day. Who knows how many more they will have?

DEAR ABBY: Who said a woman has to be skinny as a beanpole in order to be good-looking?

Ten years ago I married a gal who weighed 155 pounds. She was five feet six. I'm the kind of guy who like a lot of Mamma. Today she is down to 110 pounds and she is always on a diet. Her disposition is terrible and she picks at her food like a sparrow. She won't even take a drink because of the calories in it. I am fed up with diet talk and diet meals. I'd like to have her like she was. But how?

BILL

DEAR BILL: Every woman should consider her husband's preferences first and foremost. If you like "a lot o' Mamma"—your wife should start filling herself in. She shouldn't weigh more than the doctor's chart allows, but dieting down to "a rag, a bone and a hank of hair" is ridiculous.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GIGOLO AT TWENTY": If what you say is true, I think you are selling out too cheaply. Otherwise, give up pre-med and take up fiction writing.

Blessings on You, Little Woman

Men: If You Would Cook, Market

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blessings on Mrs. Emmie Berg, a food authority from Sweden. And would that American cooking experts copied.

Mrs. Berg feels that if the man of the house wants to cook, let him learn how to market as well as how to mess the kitchen; teach him menu planning to get him off a steak and french fries diet. And above all, turn out an amateur chef who is professional enough to prepare the whole meal from soup to nuts.

Mrs. Berg, a tall, sparely built woman of 55, teaches cooking as part of an adult education program at the University of Gothenburg. One course is for women only; one for men only; and a third, an advanced course, mixes the sexes and gives them instruction in elaborate dishes, French-style.

The men, some married, some single, attend school three hours a night, one night a week for eight weeks.

They learn basic preparation of at least eight dishes—how to make an omelet, how to prepare hot sandwiches which are a Swedish specialty, preparation of main-dish casseroles using beef, chicken, veal or pork; how to make Sweden's famous beef a la Lindstrom, which is a fried mixture of chopped beef, chopped beets, and capers; and desserts from cookies to custard.

Their final exam is the preparation of a full meal for which they did all the menu details and marketing.

"Buying is a man's biggest stumbling block," said Mrs. Berg. "Men have trouble with the right cuts of beef, the right fish. They also find it difficult to get everything to come out at the right time."

Mrs. Berg chose not to generalize on which sex produced the better cooks. "Men are quick in the kitchen," she said, "and some develop into excellent cooks. Dentists usually do, for some reason. So do men with sailing experience."

Mrs. Berg, now in the United States for four weeks of lectures on food, has an enviable background in culinary arts.

She trained to be a nurse, but marriage to a Frenchman—now an official of the Swedish-American Line—changed her career. "You know how the French love cooking," she said in an interview.

Her early training was as an apprentice in some of the finest restaurant and hotel kitchens in Europe. She is a graduate of the Cordon Bleu in Paris, has taught at the Au Bon Gout cooking school in Palm Beach, has written several cookbooks and acts as consultant to Swedish food industries.

She is one of the contributors to and editors of Sweden's best known work on food—"The Great Cookbook," which covers all facets of preparation, Swedish style, including a smorgasbord.

"Swedish cooking is amazingly French," she said. "Especially the sauces, the stuffings, the game dishes and some of the festive dishes. Our kings used to import French chefs, and I've found receipts as far back as 1600 with French characteristics."

Mrs. Berg entertains frequently at home and does the cooking herself. "I'm a quick cook," she said, "I won't spend more than two hours in the kitchen even for 16 people. But it helps that I don't have to look up the recipes."

After 72 Years Says Marriage Food Problem

LONDON, Ky. (AP)—Richard Elam offers this formula for a long and happy marriage: "Be good to your wife and feed her good."

Elam, 92, has had considerable experience. He and his wife will celebrate their 72nd wedding anniversary Wednesday.

"Married life is what a body makes it," says Mrs. Elam, 90.

The Elams have lived on the same farm near here for 69 years. They still are active in farming and gardening. Two of their six children are living.

Undiluted evaporated milk, vinegar and a goodly portion of sugar (plus salt and pepper) make an unusually good dressing for cole slaw.

Donna Brown Marries Michael J. O'Connell

Donna Kay Brown wore a floor length princess gown of lace and tulle for her marriage to Michael J. O'Connell Saturday at Our Lady of Refuge Catholic Church. The Rev. Paul Zelaff officiated before some 100 guests. White chrysanthemums decorated the altar.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfidale Brown of Greer road are the bride's parents. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice O'Connell of James street.

A princess crown of pearls caught the bride's fingertip veil. She wore pearl earrings and a necklace and held a white carnation and red rose bouquet.

Kathleen O'Connell attended as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Beatrice Brown and Bette Morris. All three were gowned in pale blue taffeta street length dresses with oval necklines, three-quarter sleeves and full skirts. They wore matching hats and veils and carried arrangements of white carnations tipped in blue.

Patrick Campbell was best man. Robert Lake and Thomas Sheffield ushered.

MRS. MICHAEL J. O'CONNELL

Mrs. Brown wore a blue dress with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations tipped in blue. A blue and black flowered suit with blue accessories were Mrs. O'Connell's choice. Both mothers also wore corsages of white carnations tipped in blue.

The guests were received at Cass Lake Community Center later in the day.

The couple is residing on Howard street.

Automobiles were not permitted inside Yellowstone National Park until the season beginning in 1915.

Take Good Look, Dear in Mirror

By EMILY POST

"Dear Mrs. Post: There is one item of behavior about which I wish you would comment in your column for the benefit of many young women. They simply don't think about the skimpiness of the skirts they may have on and the need for paying attention to the way they sit in chairs and sofas, busses and subway trains, to the embarrassment of others in the bus, train, room, or wherever it may be."

Answer: Further than quoting this letter, I should like to add a reminder that knee-length skirts that are also narrow look deceptively proper from their wearer's angle of sight. Therefore, everyone who wears such clothes should practice standing and sitting down in front of a mirror.

"Dear Mrs. Post: We would like to have my daughter's wedding at half past four in the afternoon, followed by the reception with just wedding cake and punch and then the dinner for the families at a restaurant. But if we have this dinner last of all, I don't know how we could keep the reception guests from staying on and on. What do you suggest?"

Answer: If following the reception with a family dinner is what you would like, this is one way it could be done: To end the reception it is merely necessary that the bride and bridegroom dress for traveling and leave.

Then instead of going immediately on their journey, they go to the restaurant and wait to be joined by the rest of you for dinner. Even if the other guests know the plan, there is no rudeness to them if the bride and bridegroom have dinner with their families before their departure.

"Dear Mrs. Post: I have been asked to be the godfather for a friend's child. Never having acted in this capacity before, I would like to know who is responsible for the customary donation given to the clergyman — the baby's father or the godfather?"

Answer: The baby's father.

Worth remembering: grease the bottom of the skillet in which you are going to poach eggs and the eggs won't stick.

Fur Coats for Children Create Problem

By MARY PRIME

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dad isn't the only one who has problems if a teen-aged daughter wants a fur coat. A girl's age, figure and tastes make her a tougher customer than her mother.

Furriers must make a completely different type of line for girls under 20 than for adults.

"Half the girls are gawky and growing out of their bones, so we make coats loose and casual and a little fuller than usual," said Herbert Fishbein of American Deb Furs. "Sleeves are longer to cover their arms. The area between the wrist bone and elbow always seems to be sticking out.

WORN OPEN

The coats must take into account the smaller shoulders and bust and straighter appearance of the young figure. And coats must be warmer because "no matter how cold, girls will keep the coats open," Fishbein said.

Other style "musts" for teens include buttons which never are used, man-tailored slits in back, flat, open collars, ¾ lengths which are less bulky and awkward than full lengths, patch pockets and half belts.

What does a girl look for in a fur coat? Warmth, beauty and, especially, casual styling.

"They want the campus type, not coats for dress-up. Perhaps they feel too ostentatious on a date, because they usually wear dressy cloth coats then," said another furrier, Nat Prince of Fantasia Furs.

What do parents look for? Price, furriers agreed. The average parents wants to spend between $100 and $200, although some will go up to $300 or $500 if the girl is in college. Occasionally, a parent will shell out as much as $800 or $900 for a fur such as opossum.

Parents also object to luxury furs like mink, chinchilla and Russian broadtail because they are too expensive, impractical and sophisticated. Many feel that fur coats will be outgrown or require too frequent remodeling to be worth the price.

HAMSTER PROBLEM

Choice of fur is another problem. As one furrier said, "Hamster is out. Many kids have them at home as pets."

However, other furriers believe girls do not associate fur coats with pets. They said hamster, mouse, rabbit, pony, squirrel, jaguar and ocelot are ideal for the young figure.

Also recommended are mouton, raccoon, beaver, hair seal, spotted calf, curly and Italian lamb, and mink gills, paws or heads.

Colors for teens are red, blue, green, beige and oyster. The colored furs have proved so popular that Fishbein plans to make coats in college colors.

Occasionally fur linings are included. But only if parents don't mind the added price. For instance, a green rabbit coat which costs $300 will jump to $400 with a natural hamster lining.

Perhaps the biggest problem a girl faces when she asks for a fur coat is her age. Most girls become fur-clad between 18 and 20 years, probably because many parents "want to give them something to look forward to."

But younger girls might apply psychology and appeal to their parents' vanity. As Fishbein said, "A fur coat is a sports car type of thing. It's something a parent can do for a kid—and safer than a car."

CAROL BROCHER

Mr. and Mrs. George Brocher of Pingree avenue announce the engagement of their daughter Carol to William Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kirkpatrick of Detroit. A December wedding is planned.

Cinnamon Candies Add Spice to Molded Salad

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor

Are you looking for a substitute for cranberries for your Thanksgiving menu? We're sure many people are and we think this recipe from Mrs. Thomas Ainge will please them. It's a molded salad that goes well with poultry.

Mrs. Ainge, as a minister's wife, has a number of duties connected with church work. She is active in the Bluebird organization of the Campfire Girls. The Ainges have two daughters.

JELLIED CINNAMON SALAD

By Mrs. Thomas Ainge

1 package lemon gelatine
½ cup hot water
1 cup red hots (cinnamon candies)
½ cup hot water
1 package (3 ounce) cream cheese
¼ cup evaporated milk
1 cup applesauce

Dissolve gelatine in ½ cup hot water and red hots in the other ½ cup hot water. Thin cream cheese with milk. Mix all together and pour into mold. Chill. This makes a rather rich salad that is good with poultry or pork.

United Brethren Fellowship Class Elects Officers

Officers were elected at the Saturday evening meeting of the Fellowship Class of the Baldwin Avenue Evangelical United Brethren Church.

They were Mrs. George Hollis, president; Mrs. Robert Walker, vice president; Mrs. Harold Pearsall, secretary and Mrs. Wilbert Hiscock, treasurer.

Paul Jones conducted the meeting and Omar Johnson gave devotions.

Hosts were Mr. and Mrs. George Hollis with Mrs. William Gaddes assisting.

The next meeting will be the annual Christmas dinner at the church.

Church Units Meet, Tell of Plans

Bible Study, Yule Projects, Others Are Revealed

A number of the First Presbyterian Church groups met recently.

Mrs. James Coon opened her Bedford road home to members of the February-December Group Friday for its monthly luncheon meeting.

Mrs. Robert Sigler presented the Bible Study "The Spirit Speaks to the Church" from the Book of Acts.

Christmas project of the group will be presentation of gifts to the National Missions School at Ganado, Arizona.

Mrs. Ted Panaretos was a guest.

The July-August Group met at the Bloomfield Hills home of Mrs. Verne Hampton for luncheon Friday.

Assisting were Mrs. Edward Graham, Mrs. Howard Powers and Mrs. Mary West.

Members will bring garments, toys or Indian shopping bags to the Christmas luncheon Dec. 11 for shipment to national missions.

Following the recent Needlework ingathering at which members served tea and coffee, the September-October Group held their regular meeting at the church.

The Flora Shelly Group met for dinner Friday evening. Hostesses were Mrs. Roy Ward, Mrs. Eva Clark, Mrs. S. E. Minard and Grace Heitsch. Twenty-one members and a guest, Margaret King, were present.

Devotions were led by Adah Shelly and the Bible study was led by Mrs. Allan Monroe.

Mrs. Monroe will entertain the group for their Christmas dinner Dec. 11 at her Cherokee road home.

Assisting will be Mrs. W. H. Lehman, Mrs. W. E. Van Riper and Daisy Benedict.

Holiday Baskets to Be Filled

Navy Mothers Set Other Giving Plans, Convention Role

The Pontiac Navy Mothers Club will fill its usual Thanksgiving baskets for distribution in Pontiac, it was announced at a recent meeting at the Naval Training Center.

A monthly check to the Detroit U.S.O. to provide lunches for service personnel passing through and a contribution to the Battle Creek and Dearborn Veteran's Hospitals Christmas parties are among the philanthropies chosen.

These are financed in part by the recent successful turkey dinner, bazaar and current Christmas card and corsage sale.

Plans were initiated for the club's part in the National Convention to be held in Detroit in August.

Mrs. William Christie will head a committee to send gifts to sons of members on active duty.

There will be a party and jewelry demonstration Friday evening at the Virginia avenue home of Mrs. Vinton Ball.

The next regular business meeting will be held at the Naval Training Center Dec. 3 at 7:30 p.m.

Teachers Hear of Child in China

Members heard a discussion of "Home Life and the Child in China" by Mrs. Juho Hsu when the Teachers Exchange Club met for dinner at Devon Gables.

Hostesses were Faye Donelson and Mrs. Mary Wagner.

Guests at the Thursday gathering were Mrs. Charles Cartwright, Nicki Folsom and Madeleine Wycke.

Art Club to Dine

Pine Lake Art Club will meet for dinner Wednesday evening at 7:30 at Rotunda Inn.

Speaker will be Margaret Bilsborrow who will show slides of art trips.

Show Parents Math Methods

An audio-visual demonstration was presented at the Bagley School PTA meeting.

Second grade pupils of Mrs. Williams Lambert demonstrated to parents the methods used in teaching arithmetic in the schools today.

Braid Wood gave a short talk on the advantages of cub scouting and Mrs. John Fournier gave a progress report on the Parent's Talent Show to be held in March.

Mrs. Robert Ashford and Mrs. Richard Demba were in charge of the Thursday program.

Discusses Creeds

"Our Social Creeds" was discussed by the WSCS of First Methodist Church when they met in the church parlors Thursday evening.

Plans were completed for a Smorgasbord Supper Dec. 7 at the church to which the public is invited.

Volunteers Win Pins

The Women's Service Committee of William Beaumont Hospital held its annual awards meeting recently. Volunteers have given more than 130,000 hours of service in the past 5 years.

Loretta J. Bennett, daughter of the Samuel C. Sturgeons of Edison street, married Harold E. Burmeister of Shirley avenue, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Burmeister of Kingston, Saturday.

MRS. HAROLD E. BURMEISTER

Harold Burmeister Wed to Loretta Joan Bennett

Loretta Joan Bennett wore a Chantilly lace over blue satin floor-length gown for her marriage to Harold E. Burmeister Saturday evening at the Joslyn Avenue Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Edmond Watkins officiated at the double ring ceremony before nearly 200 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Sturgeon of Edison street are the bride's parents. Mr. Burmeister of South Shirley avenue is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Burmeister of Kingston.

Rows of lace gathered ruffles enhanced the bride's gown, fashioned with a lace jacket and long, tapered sleeves. She wore a crown with a shoulder-length veil and held a white orchid bouquet with blue and white streamers of shattered carnations attached to a white Bible.

Judith Dunham of Drayton Plains was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sharon Nelson and Gloria Giddings.

The attendants wore matching pale blue chiffon over taffeta gowns. Blue and white carnations were carried by the honor maid. She wore pale blue gauntlets. The bridesmaids held carnation arrangements and wore white gauntlets.

William Burmeister of Chicago, the bridegroom's brother, was best man. Ushers were Charles B. Malony of Dearborn, Carl Pingston of Mohawk road and Roy Sturgeon, the bride's cousin.

Loretta Hoisington was soloist for the ceremony, accompanied by Gloria Herrod.

Mrs. Sturgeon wore a dusty rose Chantilly lace dress with matching lace jacket and black accessories. Mrs. Burmeister chose a blue sheer wool dress with black accessories. Both wore white rosebud corsages.

After a reception held in the church parlors, the bride changed to a blue and green Scotch plaid suit with black accessories for traveling to the Lake of the Ozarks, Mo. They will reside on Cherryland street, Auburn Heights.

The bridegroom is an Eastern Michigan University graduate.

Foundation Lotion Is a Big Help

A tinted make-up foundation can do a lot for a girl. Properly applied and buffed down with cleansing tissue, it provides a glow for the skin as well as protection from wind, sun, heat or cold. Some foundation creams or lotions keep the skin moisturized all day long.

But in applying tinted foundation, bear in mind that it should go on lightly. And pick a shade that's close to your own natural skin tones. Otherwise, what you'll get will be a rose-tinted face and neck in sharp contrast to white arms and hands.

This defeats the very purpose you had in using the foundation: a natural, glowing look. It creates an enameled, artifical look that's as dated as high-button shoes.

Don't regard a tinted foundation as a cover-up for blemishes, either. This is a matter to be handled separately and not to be coated over with cosmetics.

Newer Fabrics Require Special Pressing Care

The combination fabrics of dacron with rayon, cotton or wool all require extra ironing care, says a clothing specialist at Ohio State University.

Although the fabrics look and feel like wool, they should be pressed with an iron set at the rayon setting—250 to 300 degrees. Pressure on the fabric should be light, and the iron should be in contact with the fabric for the shortest possible time.

Remember that the fabric should be pressed on the wrong side. If it is necessary to press on the right side, use a dry press cloth.

Out-Out, Moth!

Moths will stay out of your clothes closet if you wipe the floor with a cloth that has been moistened with turpentine.

Women Can Work Selves Out of Blues

By RUTH MILLETT

When a woman is feeling low she can almost always get a lift from—

Walking into a beauty salon and saying, "I'm sick of the way I've been wearing my hair. I don't care what you do to it—just so it is a complete change."

Splurging a little on a dress that "does something" for her.

Shoving the furniture around to give her house a new look.

Rolling up her sleeves and pitching into the job of housecleaning.

Calling up a friend and saying, "Let's go shopping and have lunch downtown."

Potting a plant for the house, cutting flowers and arranging them, or digging in the garden.

Doing something thoughtful for someone whose troubles make her own look small by comparison.

Baking a cake, stirring up a batch of homemade bread, or making jelly.

Planning a party—deciding on the guests, planning the menu, and so on.

Deciding to join an exercise class, take a sewing course, or enroll in a night school course.

Getting out a can of paint and a brush and going to work on a drab room or an old piece of furniture.

When a woman is momentarily depressed or dissatisfied there are dozens of ways she can work herself out of the doldrums. The only important thing is that she get busy doing something.

Brilliant, Admirable and Useful

MacArthur, Near 80, Still Sharp

By JACK V. FOX

NEW YORK (UPI)—Every Saturday afternoon in a 37th floor suite of oriental decor, a tall, austere gentleman tunes in television to a football game.

If Army is playing, wonderful! If it's another game but an Army contest is on radio, the gentleman watches TV and keeps an ear cocked simultaneously to the sound broadcast.

The gentleman is General of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

There in his Waldorf Astoria aerie, MacArthur has succeeded in his wish to "fade away" from American public controversy.

Not that MacArthur is inactive. Eighty years old in a little more than two months, he is intellectually as brilliant and conversationally eloquent as ever and while the heroic figure clamping the corncob pipe has "dried up" a bit with age, there is spring in his step and steel in his posture almost like West Point days.

MacArthur the civilian is chairman of the board of the vast Sperry Rand Corp. It is not a day-to-day responsibility but one of advice and decision on top policy matters. His "office" is the Hotel Tower, Suite K and the board of directors usually comes there for meetings.

To the suite also come an impressive procession of VIPs every day. At other times, MacArthur reads for hours on end. By 9:30 a. m. he has perused the morning papers and is up on anything from the quiz show fixes to President Eisenhower's 11-nation trip.

His comments have the grandiose sweep that always marked the MacArthur manner. One recent visitor remarked that his speech is so grammatically flawless and colorful that a conversational passage could be recorded and printed without change as a polished essay.

REFUSES INTERVIEWS

But MacArthur's views on world affairs are for his friends alone. He has refused any interview since retiring from public life in 1952 shortly after his recall by President Truman as Korean commander.

MacArthur stuck to his rule when asked to comment on Field Marshal Alanbrooke's tart comments on American military men in World War II—with notably exceptional praise for MacArthur. He apparently has no intention of adding to the flood of generals' memoirs—at least until after his death when his papers may be made available to some biographer.

His right hand man is Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney who also makes his home in the Waldorf and who has been at MacArthur's side since before Pearl Harbor and the death march at Bataan.

MacArthur's own military status is a five-star general "on active duty, without assignment." He therefore has no actual duties, but could be called upon for advice.

General Whitney was asked how frequently MacArthur goes to Washington.

"Never," Whitney replied.

MacArthur did not attend the recent funeral of Gen George C. Marshall. Friends point out the Marshall family had asked it be a small and quiet ceremony.

MacArthur's relationship with Eisenhower appears to be pleasant. At a football dinner in New York a year ago, both men were seated at the speakers' table. They chatted in animated fashion and Eisenhower in his talk went out of his way to refer to MacArthur as "my old chief."

But MacArthur has not changed his strong personal opinions one whit—and particularly not his conviction that the Korean War should have been pushed to victory at the risk of Soviet intervention at a time when we had great nuclear superiority.

He is said to hold no great grudge toward President Truman, but to be bitter about some of the men around Truman who sought his recall. The manner in which he heard it rankles still. He was at a dinner party in Tokyo when the news was broadcast on the Japanese radio that he had been relieved.

His wife heard the news and bent over to whisper it to her husband as he was laughing at a dinner table joke. His face grew grim for a moment, then he relaxed and said:

"Well, Jeanie, we're going home."

He came back to a tumultuous national welcome and a speech to a joint session of the Congress. He got into the 1952 political campaign, supporting the late Sen. Robert A. Taft and making the keynote address to the Republican convention. After Eisenhower's thumping nomination victory and election, MacArthur bowed out.

He certainly has no money worries.

His annual salary as Sperry Rand board chairman is reported to be $100,000. He is entitled to Army pay and allowances of $20,543 a year and a personal staff. He has a warrant officer handling his military correspondence at a small office in New York Army headquarters. Two sergeants are at his service—one mainly as a driver and the other a Philippine-born cook and valet.

MacArthur will make one of his infrequent public appearances early next month when he speaks at a dinner of the National Football Foundation which will award him a gold medal for his contribution to athletics.

Forest Conflict Grows Out West

Timber Firms Want Trees Chopped Quickly While Others Protest

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Population growth is beginning to produce conflicting demands for the use of this country's forests and wilderness areas, a government forestry expert said Monday.

As a result, forest management is due for some sharp changes, said Charles A. Connaughton, regional head of the U. S. Forest Service, San Francisco, in a paper prepared for delivery to the Society of American Foresters.

He said one of the conflicts is between timber producers and the growing army of people seeking recreation in wooded areas.

Timbermen want to cut trees as soon as they are developed enough for profitable harvest, recreationists want the trees oversize and average — at least from the timber producer's standpoint.

Another area of conflict, Connaughton said, is between users of forest ranges and groups of people favoring undergrowth preservation for the benefit of wildlife.

The forester, he added, also is between groups who want watershed areas closed to the public in the interests of fire protection and those who want these areas left open for recreational or other public use.

Since 1937 Nebraska has had only one house in its legislature, instead of the usual two of other states.

HAPPY AT 100 — All dolled up for her 100th birthday today is Mrs. Philo (Mary) Isham of Attica Township who still delights her friends and relatives with her keen sense of humor even though she is confined to bed. She celebrated the event Sunday and will be feted again today at Kathryn Stephens' rest home in Oxford Township where she lives.

Mary's Celebrating (She's 100 Today)

OXFORD TOWNSHIP — It's party-time again for Mrs. Philo (Mary) Isham.

But today the occasion is more important than ever. It's her 100th birthday.

She celebrated the event with five generations of her family Sunday. And those who couldn't make it then are expected to be with her today to mark the century milestone.

Although confined to her bed at Kathryn Stephens' rest home on Metamora road, Mrs. Isham doesn't miss a thing that goes on around her.

Her mind is keen, her hearing good, and her sense of humor is remarkable for one of her years. She can't see, but that doesn't seem to prevent her from enjoying herself or from having fun with the nurses and her fellow patients.

When asked to what she attributed her long life, Mrs. Isham's ready answer was, "Hard work."

"I didn't get stale," she said firmly. She told of her busy life on the farm where she did "everything a man could do but plow."

"I drove the binder, cut the weeds and grain and even loaded the hay in the barn," she recalled.

And what's more she could even fix the farm machinery when it broke down, she said — "that is if it didn't require major repair work."

Mrs. Isham has a large family including two daughters, Mrs. Ray Hallenbeck, Metamora postmaster; Mrs. Dennis Kelley of Pontiac, five grandchildren, 10 great-grandchildren and two great great grandchildren.

The sprightly centenarian has numerous visitors at the rest home and loves to receive cards and letters from her friends. Her bedside table is filled to overflowing with gifts today.

Although she can't read or watch television, she does enjoy listening to music on the radio for brief periods — but most of all she loves people.

MRS. PERCY A. DUNCAN

Newlyweds Return From Niagara Falls

HIGHLAND TOWNSHIP —Newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Percy A. Duncan are now residing at 1236 Livingston Rd. following their honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls.

The former Ethel Jean Hardy, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hardy of 1793 Lombardy Dr. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Percy Duncan of 2854 Campers Dr.

For her wedding the bride chose a ballerina-length gown of chantilly lace over taffeta, with a sabrina neckline and pointed sleeves.

A tiara encrusted with seed pearls secured her fingertip veil.

The bride was attended by her sisters, Patricia and Sharon.

The bridegroom's brother, Dale served as best man. Attendants were Jim Allie, Tom Molter and Bill Hefflebower.

JP Challenge Killed in Utica

Businessman Refused Writ in Try to Force Circuit Court Ruling

UTICA — The Macomb County prosecutor's office yesterday refused to issue a writ sought by local businessman Richard C. Seymour, that would have challenged the legality of Richard S. Stavoe's recent appointment to Utica justice of the peace.

Seymour, who owns a Utica repair shop, was an unsuccessful candidate for the post last spring. He petitioned for the writ as the first step in action which would have forced a Circuit Court ruling on Stavoe's appointment.

Roy W. Rogensues, chief assistant prosecutor, stated however, that there was no legal question involved because Stavoe was a Utica resident when he took the oath of office yesterday. He moved from St. Clair Shores last weekend.

Further, Rogensues said, the Utica City Charter does not require appointees to be residents of the city. Those who are candidates for elective office, however, must have been city residents at least two years.

Seymour had contended that he should have had the justice of the peace appointment to succeed E. James McClelland, who resigned recently, or the City Council should have called a special election.

Stavoe resigned from the Macomb County prosecutor's office to take the appointment. He has law offices at 45112 Cass Ave., Utica.

12-Acre School Site Purchased in Troy

TROY — Purchase of a site for construction of an 18-room elementary school was announced today by the Troy Board of Education.

The 12-acre area is at the end of Eckford street, about a third of a mile east of Livernois road. The price was $1,750 an acre.

It's Goats for Fred Theiss

By LEE WINBORN

GOODISON — When Fred Theiss retires from railroading next week to become a full-time goat farmer, he will be fulfilling a lifelong dream.

And he's as excited as a youngster at the prospect. He says so himself.

Theiss will complete 43 years of railroading on Nov. 28. From that moment on he will devote all of his time to raising goats, geese and guinea hens on his Orion road farm here.

It will be quite a change of pace for the 65-year-old Theiss. After the hectic routine of meeting schedules and never knowing when he will arrive home at night, the more leisurely life of a farmer appeals to the veteran engineer.

But Theiss will never be far from the railroad — the tracks run along Paint Creek right behind his home.

"I'll be able to give the guys a 'highball' (a wave) every day," he said.

Reminiscing about his nearly half-century of railroading, Theiss said he liked it better when he ran a steam engine.

"When I started with the Bay City division, 800 to 900 tons was a train. Now we haul 4,000 to 8,000 tons — 100 to 150 freight cars — with three or four deisel units," he explained.

Theiss added:

"In the old days, there was more physical work but not such a mental strain as with the big deisels and long trains of today."

His "run' is from Vassar to Warren. He picks up his New York Central engine in Oxford at 10:30 a.m. six days a week and hauls gravel, feed and seed, coal and other raw materials for farm and industry along the line.

It's been a time-consuming job with the day ending almost any hour, the engineer said. "And if any other train breaks down, we're called out to help."

In less than two weeks, Theiss' time will be his own and he has extensive plans to fill every minute. Outside of turning his five-year hobby of raising goats into a full-time occupation he has lots of yard work to do around the farm.

He plans to reroute the sparkling stream that curves through his property providing a natural habitat for the four geese he has now. He will expand this flock and add more guinea hens next spring.

Theiss, who is married and has one son, says he will be glad to be a farmer. "I've seen many horrible accidents on the railroad, and you don't know what they do to a man," he reflected.

"Automobile drivers are the worst offenders. They have no idea of the danger at a railroad crossing. If they'd only stop or even slow down and look both ways, our job would be much pleasanter."

Soon Theiss will be able to relax on his farm near the heart of Goodison, which he calls "God's Country" because of its rolling hills, picturesque scenery and restful atmosphere.

TURNS TO FARMING — New York Central Railroad engineer Frederick Theiss will devote all his time and energy to raising goats, geese and guinea hens after he retires Nov. 28. He is looking forward with youthful enthusiasm to life on his farm located on Paint Creek, near the heart of Goodison.

Farm Bureau Opposes Land Grab

Looks for Rural Annexing Solution

By DALE ARNOLD
United Press International

A solution may be on the way in the long-time critical area between rural and urban interests in annexation procedures.

The problem — a touchy one — appears when a city or village annexes an area largely agricultural and levies higher city-level taxes which hit the farmer squarely in the pocketbook.

The farmer has to pay for services he neither wants or can use. The situation becomes more and more evident as the state and nation's growing population requires more and more land.

"It's part of an age old conflict," said Louis A. Wolfanger, a specialist in land utilization at Michigan State University.

"The problem has been with the world since the days of old Rome but I think we are approaching a better solution than to let such things happen and accept them with resignation," he said.

Wolfanger cited the "increasing interest in planning agencies" on a county, township and regional level.

"Such groups try to see through in a logical way what the future holds for various areas, and when men put their feet under a table, face each other and lay down the facts, maybe they will reach the answers," he said.

However, the decisions still rest with government heads in the cities and villages and the planning groups "have no more authority than the weight of a good idea," Wolfanger said.

A farmer can be ruined if the tax level is beyond what the land will produce.

Wolfanger said much pressure for annexation comes from the person who has lived in the city and works there but has moved to the country. City services are desired by the suburbanite and when annexation results, the farmer must pay his share even though he may not want the annexation.

At its recent annual session, the Michigan Farm Bureau adopted a resolution calling for procedures which would make it more difficult to annex land which would remain primarily farm land.

"Frequently the boundaries of annexation projects are cleverly drawn to include property which should not be taken into the municipality but which involve in other portions of the project enough voters to carry the proposal," the resolution said.

The bureau called the problem "one of the most serious threats confronting farm owners in some sections of the state" and said "almost confiscatory" levels of taxation result for farmers.

"A high tax rate multiplied by a large assessment of a sizable and well-equipped farm frequently results in a school tax burden which siphons off much of the receipts of the farming enterprise," the resolution said.

A "doubly serious" situation results when part of the farm is annexed to a city "and has to pay added taxes for various municipal services which it may not receive and doesn't desire or doesn't need."

The bureau opposed annexation of land "which is being used solely for agricultural purposes."

Maybe a solution is coming. Perhaps the way is through planning agencies.

Named Councilman in City of Southfield

SOUTHFIELD—Clarence Durbin of 22918 Evergreen Rd. was appointed councilman by the City Council last night, subject to the approval of Mayor Donald L. Swanson who was not at the meeting.

Durbin would fill the vacancy left by Robert F. Wuerful who resigned two weeks ago due to ill health. If approved by the mayor, he will be sworn in at next Monday's Council meeting.

Durbin presently is chairman of the City Zoning Board of Appeals. He said he will resign from that position today.

The 31-year-old Durbin helped draw up Southfield's first charter in 1955. He was on the old Southfield Township Tax Board of Review for four years and secretary of the township's Zoning Board of Appeals for two and a half years. He is an architect and builder with offices here.

Claims Chemical Found Naturally in Vegetables

By DICK HANSON
Suburban News Editor

The "much-dreaded" weed killer used on cranberries and credited with causing cancer in experiments on rats has been greatly overated, according to the experts.

Known as aminotriazole, it has been used in medicines for the past 15 years and appears naturally in such vegetables as mustard, cabbage, turnips and broccoli wherever they are grown.

This "revelation" was made yesterday by Dr. Edwin B. Astwood, senior physician at New England Center Hospital and professor of medicine at Tufts University, Boston, Mass.

In his letter, a copy of which was received by the Oakland County Agricultural Extension Agency, Dr. Astwood states:

"The quantity of this chemical in cranberries as the result of spraying would be minute, and in no way cause any trouble, let alone cancer."

Oakland County Agricultural Extension Agent Lyle Abel noted that aminotriazole is not used to spray crops in this area. Cranberries are not commercially grown in Michigan, and very few appear in Oakland County.

The Michigan Farm Bureau has issued a warning to farmers using chemicals on crops to follow manufacturers' recommendations carefully, insuring the greatest amount of protection to producers and consumers.

Heavy cranberry-producing states have declared their situation disastrous in some areas, and have asked President Eisenhower to provide relief to thousands of farmers facing a financial crisis.

Welfare Secretary Arthur Flemming is credited with initiating the "cancer-ridden cranberry" announcement that threatens to destroy a great American tradition—eating the sauce that goes with the holiday turkey like ham 'n' eggs.

GOOD SUBSTITUTE

For those who don't want to "risk" eating cranberry sauce an equally tasty relish can be made with red cherries, many of which are grown in Michigan.

Already a move has been started by the Great Lakes Cherry Producers Marketing Cooperative to offer red cherries as a dish fit to accompany the king of the Thanksgiving Day table.

The group will begin promoting their product as such almost immediately, according to B. I. Freeman, manager of the cherry organization with headquarters at Grand Rapids.

In the meantime, Food and Drug Administration inspectors in Detroit, are diligently checking cranberries being shipped into Michigan from other states.

No contamination has been found so far, they reported yesterday.

Most cranberries for commercial use are produced in Wisconsin, Washington, Oregon, New Jersey, Massachusetts and California.

Farm Price Support Investment Rises

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department reported that its total investment in farm price supports rose to $9,007,512,000 last Sept. 30.

This includes more than $7,500,000,000 in surplus crops owned by the government. The rest is accounted for by price support loans.

The price support investment has risen about two billion dollars in the last 18 months. With surplus crops still moving into support loans, the total was expected to rise another $1,500,000,000 by next summer.

Troy Will Draft Fire Ordinance

City Manager, Attorney Authorized to Draw Up Code in Wake of Deaths

TROY — The Troy City Commission last night authorized the city manager and city attorney to draft a fire code and ordinance which will set up certain restrictions designed to prevent fatal fires within the city limits.

The proposed code will establish directives prohibiting sheds like the one in which two local boys lost their lives last week.

It also will cover electrical wiring and govern the burning of trash and leaves.

The Commission was prompted to move because of the boys' deaths and a fatal fire which claimed the lives of two young men here earlier this year.

In other action, the contract for purchase of two police cars was awarded to Stark Hickey, Inc., Royal Oak. The firm's low bid was $2,312.50 with trade-ins.

A contract also was awarded to the Contractors Machinery Co., Highland Park, for a steam cleaner. The cost will be $695.

In addition, City Manager David W. Hasse was authorized to take bids on processed and pit-run gravel for street repairs.

Tomorrow Committee Plan Is Due

NOVI — Candidates will be selected and an organization structure established for the newly formed Novi Tomorrow Committee at a meeting Nov. 23, the Village Council was told last night.

The committee was organized earlier this month to obtain a cross section of ideas on long range planning from village citizens, working in association with the Planning Board.

The committee also asked that a meeting be arranged in the near future with the Council, the Planning Board, the Appeal Board and the Board of review to discuss its legal powers and jurisdiction, set up by the village attorney.

The committee was formed on the recommendation of Village Planning Consultant Waldemar C. Johnson.

Topics to come before the committee will be parks and recreation facilities, thoroughfare planning, utilities, educational and cultural facilities, commercial and industrial development, master planning and zoning.

Boy Chased in Ferndale

Halt California Runaways

A teen-age California boy and girl who said they were going to the movies there were picked up yesterday by police in Ferndale.

Storm L. Helminen, 18, of El Cajon, Calif., is being held in Ferndale on a charge of reckless driving and for investigation of violating the Mann Act.

His companion, Christine Aukee, 15, of Lakeside, Calif., is staying at the Oakland County Children's Home in Pontiac.

Her mother is en route from California today to take her back home.

The teen-agers had left their homes Nov. 6.

Ferndale police said Helminen told them he and the girl were going to go to a drive-in movie but decided to come to Michigan instead to visit friends of the Helminen family in Royal Oak.

The friends, Mr. and Mrs. Willard F. Speer of 1222 Greenleaf Rd., called Royal Oak police when the teen-agers arrived.

Before the police pulled up to the house, the Californians left. Their car was spotted by Ferndale police who gave chase at high speed.

Majority of Employes Want to Strike?

Picketing Is Biggest Labor Change

By STUART ROTHMAN
General Counsel, NLRB

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The biggest change in federal labor law made by the new Taft-Hartley amendments probably is the limitation put on picketing or threats of picketing by a union seeking to organize employes or to force bargaining recognition by an employer.

This provision grew out of the administration's efforts to curb "blackmail" picketing. Its general thrust is to halt picketing or threats of picketing by unions which do not represent a majority of the employes.

Unfortunately, this also is one of the most intricate provisions of the new law.

It not only forbids such organizational or recognition picketing, but it also provides a special high-speed procedure for representation elections in such cases.

In addition, it includes a safeguard against the provision being used to protect a "sweetheart" union, which an employer has helped organize in order to prevent genuine union bargaining for employes.

Furthermore, it provides a special exception for "informational" picketing or publicity which truthfully informs the public that an employer does not employ union members or does not have a contract with a union.

This exemption only applies, however, if the picketing does not stop deliveries or pickups. These various provisions are all wrapped up in one section of the law.

The curb on this type of picketing, however, does not apply to a union which has a current certificate from the National Labor Relations Board, designating it as the bargaining agent of the employes involved. It applies only to unions not certified by NLRB.

The new provision deals with three specific situations. But the key one undoubtedly is that forbidding "such picketing . . . without a petition (for a representation election) . . . being filed within a reasonable period of time not to exceed 30 days" from the start of picketing.

However, if an election request is filed within the reasonable period, the law directs the board to hold an election "forthwith"—without having to follow usual procedures.

These elections will be held without a preliminary hearing unless substantial questions on the voting unit or other important matters make a hearing essential.

The expedited elections, however, will not be held until the employer or some other interested party has filed a written charge of illegal picketing or threats of picketing.

Even then, we can proceed only if our investigation confirms that the picketing involved or threatened is for the purpose of forcing an employer to bargain with an uncertified union or to compel employes to join the union.

In addition to the usual NLRB proceeding in cases of this type of illegal picketing, the new law also requires us to seek a federal court injunction to halt the picketing until the board can complete its action on the case.

This injunction procedure, however, is not available if a charge of illegal assistance to another union is filed against the employer and investigation indicates the charge is true.

The other two situations in which this type of picketing is forbidden are (1) where the employer has lawfully recognized another union and its bargaining status is not open to challenge, and (2) where, within the preceding 12 months a valid NLRB representation election has been conducted among the employes involved.

Tomorrow: Secondary boycotts and hot cargo.

PROSPECTIVE CITIZEN AT 100 — Mrs. Anna Collica, 100, of suburban Downey, Calif., crosses her fingers for luck after taking her preliminary test for United States citizenship. She didn't know it yet, but she passed. Mrs. Collica came to America from Sicily 49 years ago. But she never learned to speak and read English, a shortcoming which made citizenship impossible until the requirement was changed several years ago. At the urging of a daughter, she recently decided to become an American citizen. The daughter told newsmen: "She's thrilled to death."

Hollywood Headlines:

Pay Ruckus in Ol' TV Corral

(Editor's Note: There's an uprising amongst riders of the TV range, Warner Bros. pasture. The oater actors say they're overworked and underpaid. The studio counters it made them what they are today and they should be grateful. Bob Thomas discusses this unusual situation in two columns, this is the first.)

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The whole town's talking about the Burbank mutiny.

Never have so many actors been so unhappy as in the Warner Bros. TV productions.

THOMAS

Wayde Preston (Colt .45) has walked off the lot and gone into the airplane business, complaining that his contract was "as equitable as a lynching party."

Edd Byrnes (77 Sunset Strip) refused to report for work until he got a raise. He gets $400 weekly, says he takes home only $284.

James Garner (Maverick) and Clint Walker (Cheyenne) are bitter about their contracts. Says Garner: "I feel like a slab of meat hanging there; every once in a while they cut off a piece."

Peter Brown (Lawman) is trying to get a new contract.

Will Hutchins (Sugarfoot) says he feels like a "peon actor."

Jack Kelly (Maverick) is not mulling revolt but feels he is working "in an area of servitude."

Ty Hardin (Bronco), who once threatened a walkout, now appears content. So are Efrem Zimbalist and Roger Smith, the sleuths of "77 Sunset Strip," and John Russell (Lawman).

BEEFS CHRONIC

Of course, it's not unusual for actors to complain; it's chronic with their craft. Nor is Warner Bros. an unfamiliar battle ground.

But there has never been such a mass uprising as among the cowpokes of the TV range. The situation even reached the point of an official complaint from the Screen Actors Guild. A hasty meeting of guild and studio officials reached an agreement to rectify certain working conditions.

The actors claimed they were due money in six figures for alleged contract violations, mostly involving overtime.

But the settlement hasn't stopped the beefs. The battle is an old one, between the studio which feels it created stars from nothing and the stars who feel they are misused. It is aggravated because of the immense volume of work required for TV, plus the fact that the new medium creates stars so fast.

The studio's official reply to the restless actors comes from William T. Orr, television executive producer and himself once an actor.

OPENED DOOR

"Warner Bros. contracts have made it possible for many players to develop from complete unknowns in a brief time. These contracts, signed in good faith by both parties, have opened the door to opportunity and advancement," Orr said.

"The studio has respected its contractual obligations, and in many instances has exceeded vances. The studio has every them by making financial adrightful reason to expect players to respect their contractual obligations.

"Appearing before television and motion picture cameras frequently is hard work. Most work is tiring and demanding, but few occupations are as rewarding as acting. It is difficult to believe that any actor expects a soft job when he chooses a screen career.

"Their plaint reminds me of the story of an actor complaining that there must be an easier way to make a living. An office boy overhearing spoke up and said: 'There are a lot of easier ways to make a living—but not at the salary you're getting.'"

Tomorrow we'll hear from the actors.

Expedition Goes After Abominable Snowman

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The Abominable Snowman hunting season opened today in the Himalayas with one fast rule: Bring him back alive.

A six-man Japanese expedition under Dr. T. Ogawa, professor of anatomy at Tokyo University, received permission from the kingdom of Nepal to start the latest search for one of the legendary monsters of the mountains which Nepalese call yeti.

Nepal, which charges a special tax for Snowman-hunting expeditions, ruled that if a yeti were found, it could not be shot or injured in any way. It could be photographed.

Ogawa is convinced that yetis exist. Most Nepalese agree with him. So do a number of Russian scientists who have organized expeditions in the past.

One Russian scientist said his team got close to one two seasons ago in the snowbound Himalayas and described the creature as being ape-like, with silvery hair.

According to legend, the yeti is a seven- or eight-foot-tall creature, covered with hair which walks erect and leaves huge, strange footprints in the deep snows. Some Nepalese think it is cannibalistic.

In 1957, Texas oilman Tom Slick headed an expedition to try to find an Abominable Snowman, which supposedly stays above the 14,000-foot level of the mountains.

Slick returned saying he was "95 per cent certain" that Abominable Snowmen existed, although he did not see one. But he said his party found three pairs of yeti footprints in the snow.

The Japanese expedition planned to begin explorations in the vicinity of Mount Everest, world's tallest mountain. The party arrived in Calcutta Nov. 11 to prepare for the expedition.

The Pony Express began to carry mail to the West Coast in 1860.

Russian Movie Is Smash Hit at U.S. Theater

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet exchange film "The Cranes Are Flying" is a boxoffice success in Washington and has been held over after its opening week.

An official of the Dupont Theater predicted today the Soviet World War II romantic drama may run as long as 10 weeks.

It has been drawing capacity audiences in the 450-seat theater since its first night premiere last Tuesday. The film has grossed about $10,000 and nearly 9,000 persons have seen it so far, a theater spokesman reported.

Meanwhile, the American film "Marty" is being shown in Moscow under a cultural exchange agreement signed between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. last year.

"The Cranes Are Flying" has to make money here to keep running. It is strictly a commercial venture for U.S. film distributors.

The theater spokesman said most Americans viewing the film "are thrilled by it." What's more, he said, they are "surprised and amazed that the Soviets can make a picture as well as this."

"The Cranes Are Flying," like "Marty," is a prize-winning black and white production that has received international acclaim. It has English sub-titles that were put in here with Soviet approval.

The "Savannah," the United States' first atomic merchant vessel, will have a cruising radius of 350,000 miles compared to the present average of 10,000 miles.

Dear Sir:

I have no use for these people who say Rote can't pass. No one can pass to those ten thumbed Lion receivers who drop everything in sight. They are the worst in the league by a wide margin. The Lions need about four or five new ends. Put the blame where the blame belongs for they have the worst ends in pro football.

Middleton's catch Sunday was the only helpful thing he has done in two years and a half.

C.J.M.

Dear C. J. M.

In regard to Rote, you might be interested to know that in the overall passing statistics in the NFL, he has one of the poorest career passsing-completion records in pro ball. In regard to Middleton, ditto. How about the one he dropped in the end zone?

Dear Sir:

Will you explain to me how Pontiac can divide its football players between Central and Northern and come up with a better team at Central than they've had in 20 years? If those two squads had been combined, they might have won the state title.

Home on Leave

Dear GI:

Central had its best season, and Northern actually won three or four more than expected, so we must say both had highly successful seasons. We doubt that if still combined they would have won the state title because we doubt that half of the players now at PNH would have been playing this year at PCH. This is not meant to be a reflection on PCH but on many parents who still want to coddle their sons away from football.

Dear Sir:

If Chamberlain is making the records because of the fact he is seven feet two inches tall, shouldn't something be done to equalize this physical advantage? Would it be possible to put the basket three or four feet higher without spoiling the sport? His rebounds are more damaging than his scoring and apparently he has a reach advantage that simply puts other players out of it.

Bill

Dear Bill:

Yep, we agree. Pro basketball needs a 12-foot basket height and a cut in scoring opportunities by way of free throws. A penalty box for fouls as in hockey would be better than free throws.

BEATS BROTHER'S MARK—Crawford Kennedy, a Michigan State University senior from Glasgow, Scotland, nears the tape to win the IC4A cross country title at Van Cortlandt Park in New York yesterday. His time of 23:51.8 for the five-mile course beat the record of his brother Henry, who ran it in 24:01 four years ago. The Spartans won the team title for the 4th consecutive year.

Barr Shift Has Sparked Lions

SPORTS

Outside Foes Have Trouble Beating Them

Big Ten Still Tough

CHICAGO (AP)—The Big Ten is still one of the toughest football leagues in the country, if not the toughest.

Although Western Conference members have been knocking off each other with monotonous regularity, clubs outside the family have not found them easy to handle.

Against non-league opposition, the Big Ten stands 14-5 discounting one tie. And if Michigan State defeats Miami of Florida and Iowa downs Notre Dame this weekend, the record would be 16-5.

This mark would be the second finest in more than a decade. In 1956 the Big Ten bowled over outside competition 19 times in 24 games.

Three years ago the Big Ten adopted the program of financial aid on a basis of need. A cry went up that the better football players would go to schools outside the conference.

This may be true. And while the plan definitely has levelled off competition within the league, it has not injured Big Ten strength against independents and teams from other leagues.

In fact, the Big Ten is enjoying a greater success against outside foes than it did some 10 years ago. In the last four years the Big Ten has amassed a 64-23 record against non-league teams. This does not count ties and victories in the one-sided Rose Bowl situation.

In a four-year period from 1949 through 1952, the Big Ten had a mediocre 50-44 record against non-league foes. The worst year in the last 10 was in 1952 when Big Ten teams were defeated 13 times in 21 games.

One fact is significant in Big Ten football these days and that is the have-nots are riding high. Northwestern, which is fighting for the championship this weekend, has been a doormat for years.

Indiana, another toughie, was alongside Northwestern. In fact, two years ago neither Indiana nor Northwestern won a single conference game.

On the other hand, Michigan and Ohio State—a pair of powerhouses for years—will be meeting Saturday with nothing at stake except a victory or a defeat. Until last year, the Ohio State-Michigan game usually played a big part in determining the championship.

Wilson Claims Ex-Wolverine Key to Success

Improved Aerial Play Recently Featured by New Flanker

DETROIT (AP) — It's too late to cry about it now, but the Detroit Lions may have had a winning formula all along.

One shift of personnel seems have supplied the Lions with the key to success.

Two weeks ago, coach George Wilson moved Terry Barr from defense to offense. The Lions haven't lost since, tying Pittsburgh and then beating the Los Angeles Rams 23-17 Sunday. And some accurate field goal kicking would have defeated the Steelers.

Placing Barr on offense gave the Lions one thing they needed earlier in the season when they were losing week after week. He is the reliable, fast, sure-fingered pass receiver Wilson had been seeking. No team can win without one.

Dropped passes had been a major Lion fault all season. Barr on offense is a constant threat. As a decoy, he has been valuable because other Detroit receivers find it easier to work into the clear. The old Michigan wingback has been an asset as a ball carrier on a deep reverse that set up scores in the last two games.

Wilson admitted yesterday the transfer of Barr had brought the Lions back to their feet.

"The shift of Barr to offense has helped tremendously," Wilson told the weekly meeting of the Lions' Fan Club. "With Barr as the flanker, our pass patterns have opened up."

Wilson also had plenty of praise for Earl Morrall, who has quarterbacked the Lions to both their victories. The No. 1 signal-calling post belongs to the old Michigan State All-America as long as he can hold it, Wilson indicated.

"He has the confidence of the ball club going for him now," said Wilson. "That's a big thing. It should help him in future games."

Detroit Rally Beats Lowly Hawks

Howe Garners Clincher in 3-2 Comeback Win

McIntyre and McKenzie Other Scorers After Chicago Led 2-0

DETROIT (AP)—The Chicago Black Hawks are back in the give-away business after a brief interlude of prosperity.

The Hawks returned to their wasteful ways last night and dissipated a two-goal lead in losing 3-2 to the Detroit Red Wings. Only 24 hours before, Chicago had ended a 14-game winless streak with its first victory since the National Hockey League's opening night — a 5-3 comeback triumph over Detroit.

The victory seemed to spur the Hawks on through 48 minutes of last night's game before they lapsed into their old habits. They enjoyed a 2-0 lead and had outshot the weary Wings by 10 shots. Then in a flash of 5½ minutes a Detroit counterattack notched three goals.

A couple of former Black Hawks, Jack McIntyre and John McKenzie, had evened the score for Detroit by 10:32 of the final period. Gordie Howe, as productive as ever in his 14th NHL season, applied Detroit's clinching goal three minutes later.

Second-period markers by Murray Balfour and Bill Hay had provided Chicago with its wasted advantage.

The goals by McIntyre and Howe came on Red Wing power plays while the Black Hawks had men in the penalty box.

Both teams were tired from playing three games in three nights. There were long periods of listless skating.

Terry Sawchuk had another busy night in the Detroit goal, stopping 34 shots. The goalie has had 128 shots fired at him in the Red Wings' last three games, about 30 more than normal.

Last night's game was the only one on the NHL docket and there are none tonight. The Wings play at Toronto and the Hawks entertain New York tomorrow.

AP Wirephoto

FLYING BLACK HAWK — Chicago Black Hawk left wing Bobby Hull (16) literally flew through the air in the 2nd period last night as he approached the Detroit Red Wing net for a try where he was tripped up. Protecting the Wings' goal are center Norm Ullman (7) and goalie Terry Sawchuk. Detroit won, 3-2.

Kennedy IC4A Champ Again; Will Quit Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — Crawford Kennedy, who looks like he might have trouble running 100 yards, has his mind on more serious matters than cross-country.

"This is a lot of fun," the 5-8, 137-pound Michigan State senior said after winning the IC4A championship for the third straight year yesterday, "but after I have defended my NCAA championship next Monday, I'm calling it a career.

"I'm going to go for my masters degree and perhaps do some coaching. I'm not going to try for the Olympics." Kennedy's tone indicated nothing is going to change his mind.

After he graduates in June Kennedy would be finished with college running, of course, but he'd probably be a definite threat for the Olympic 10,000 meters if he were so inclined.

In the process of winning the IC4A title over Van Cortlandt Park's 5-mile course, Kennedy led the Spartans to the team crown for the fourth straight year. Michigan State wound up with 50 points to 105 for second-place Army.

In addition, Crawford broke big brother Henry's IC44 record with a 23:51.8 clocking. Henry set the old mark of 24.01 in 1956, so Crawford thus becomes the first to go under 24 minutes for the exhausting grind.

"He's the greatest I've ever seen," enthused Michigan State Coach Fran Dittrich, "Henry was good, but Crawford is terrific."

Michigan State has lost the Big Ten title only once since joining the conference a decade ago. The Spartans also now have won the IC4A championship a dozen times since 1933.

At the moment, Kennedy still is a citizen of Scotland. He was born in Glasgow. But he is in the process of becoming an American citizen, and when he is through school will settle down to teaching and coaching.

He took the lead at the 2½-mark from Bob Lowe of Brown. From then on, he lengthened his margin with every stride and at the finish was a 100 yards to the good. Lowe was second in 14.10, followed by Dick Englebrink of Penn State in 24:12, Dick Greene of Army in 24:13 and Frank Finnerty of Alfred, N.Y., in 24:21.

"I said before the race I might do it in 23:52," said Kennedy. "I really wanted the record."

He is the fourth to win the IC4A championship three straight times.

The first 10 finishers:

1.	Kennedy, Michigan State	23.51.8
2.	Lowe, Brown	24.10
3.	Engelbrink, Penn State	24.12
4.	Greene, Army	24.13
5.	Finnerty, Alfred	24.21
6.	Reynolds, Michigan State	24.25
7.	Levin, NYU	24.33
8.	Verdisco, Georgetown, D.C.	24.38
9.	Young, Michigan State	24.40
10.	Vinton, Georgetown, D.C.	24.46

Nickell Hits 706 in Huron Bowl

John Nickell posted the first 700 series in the new Huron Bowl as he fired consecutive games of 223, 235 and 248 for a fine 706. Nickell's set overshadowed a 638 by Don Martell and a 618 by Pat Sweeney as Felice's Market took three points from Furtney Drugs in the Huron Classic. Meanwhile Carl Behrick was rolling a 669 for the losers.

West Side Mobil displaced Stroh's as the Huron Bowl Classic leaders by dumping Kasper Manufacturing for four points. Monroe and Archie Moore led the Mobilmen with series of 674 and 644, respectively. Jay Lovett added a 633.

Stroh's slipped to second place when they lost three points to Montcalm Centre, and Calbi Music pulled up even with them on the strength of a 3045-2876 sweep over Pasquale's Pizzeria. Bill Bull paced Calbi with a fine 698 on games of 204, 266 and 228.

Highest scoring of the season saw a total of 20 600 series recorded in addition to Nickell's 706.

Other high sets were: Gene Shell, 671, Buck McDonald, 665, Curtis Neal, 638, Paul George, 624, Jim Tinson 622 and "Skin" Keith, 621.

Waller to Start Shows

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Ron Waller, former Los Angeles Rams backfield ace, and Leon Black, Long Beach fight promoter, have announced they will jointly stage boxing shows here.

Signed to appear on the first show Nov. 30 is Joey Giambra of San Francisco, fourth ranked middleweight. His probable opponent is Al Andrews of Milwaukee.

Wings Kennedy, Goegan Cut; Add New Center

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Red Wings today obtained center Murray Oliver and sent forward Forbes Kennedy and defenseman Pete Goegan to their Edmonton Western Hockey League farm.

Oliver joined the parent club Sunday on a two-game tryout basis from Edmonton and showed enough talent to remain in the National Hockey League.

Kennedy and Goegan were sent to Edmonton subject to immediate recall. Kennedy was playing his fourth NHL season. He has been a light scorer, getting only one goal last season and one this year. Goegan joined the Wings late in the 1957-58 season from Cleveland of the American Hockey League.

Trapshoot Boss Quits

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP) — Aaron Bird, manager of the Amateur Trapshooting Assn. for six years, resigned Monday night following a meeting of the executive committee.

Caddies Big Canada Cup Issue

MELBOURNE (AP) — The international good will of golf underwent a strain today when some competitors complained that the host Australian team was given preferential treatment in the assignment of caddies for the Canada Cup matches beginning tomorrow.

Australia's Peter Thomson and Kel Nagle were favored over 29 rival teams from throughout the world in the seventh renewal of the international event over the Royal Melbourne Club.

Some players said Thomson and Nagle, who already have the advantage of playing on their home course, were given an additional advantage when they were awarded professional caddies while others had to be content with amateurs.

"My boy hasn't caddied in five years," said Al Balding of Canada. "I don't know how much help I will need but I would like to have an experienced caddy."

Gary Player of South Africa said his caddy was so inexperienced he had to be told how to take out and replace his clubs in the bag.

Others including America's Sam Snead and Cary Middlecoff were similarly affected, but few changes were made.

Snead and Middlecoff were previously given university students as bag toters but later were assigned professionals.

Club officials said the caddies were assigned by a draw and Australians were simply lucky. They said Sydney caddies were given an opportunity to work here but refused to put their names in the draw.

Meanwhile weather continued bright and beautiful and there was hope for perfect conditions during the four-day 72-hole event in which both team and individual champions were to be crowned.

The Australians will be first off the tee tomorrow, playing with defending champions Harry Bradshaw and Christy O'Connor of Ireland. Bradshaw has been off form failing to make the British Ryder Cup team and as a result the Irishmen are given little chance to repeat.

Snead and Middlecoff, who top the money winning lists for the last decade, had trouble adjusting themselves to the course on their first try yesterday, but then improved greatly today. Snead canned three birdies in the first seven holes of the practice round and sank two putts of better than 25 feet. Middlecoff was driving excellently.

The Canada Cup goes to the two-man team having the best combined score for 72 holes. The International Trophy goes to the individual winner over the same route.

All-Star Pin Points

BALL IS MOST IMPORTANT
By LEE JOUGLARD

Choose your ball with great care. It is the most important part of the equipment. Select a ball from the rack at the local bowling center the first few times you bowl. Then, if possible, purchase your own.

Considering what weight to choose—most men and many women are able to control a 16-pounder, the maximum. If your hands are not strong enough for this weight, through trial and error, however, pick one out somewhat lighter. They are made as light as 10 pounds.

Test the thumb and finger holes, making certain that they fit snugly, yet loose enough to allow you to withdraw the fingers freely.

Check for proper span. Bury the thumb in the thumb hole and wrap the rest of the hand around the ball. If the ball fits, the first joints of the middle and fourth fingers should extend a quarter-inch past the inner edge of the finger holes.

Special bowling shoes may be rented or purchased. For right handers, the left sole is made of leather to allow for the fourth or sliding step and the right sole of rubber to insure a good, firm pushaway.

SOLE IDEA — Leather provides for sliding step, rubber insures a good, firm pushaway.

Nascar Purse $143,950

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A total of $143,950 has been posted as prize money for Nascar's 11th annual safety and performance trials Jan. 31 through Feb. 14.

This is an increase of $50,000 over Speed Week events in 1959.

The major increase is in the 500-mile International Sweepstakes, Feb. 14, when $83,475 will be paid.

Pistons Battle Celtics Tonight

NBA Rivals Put Hot Streaks on the Line at U-D

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Pistons risk their three-game winning streak tonight against the hottest team in the National Basketball Assn. — the Boston Celtics — at the U. of Detroit Memorial Building.

The Celts, with Bill Russell and Bob Cousy playing spectacular ball, have won 10 of the 11 games.

Coach Red Rocha says Russell is every bit as dangerous as Philadelphia's fabulous Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain.

"Sure Wilt scares you with his overpowering size (7-feet-1)," Rocha said. "But that Russell is as tough as they come.

"Not only that, but you can get almost any combination of four men out there with him and those Celtics will knock your brains out with their shooting. That's the whole secret of Boston's success — Russell's rebounding and the balanced team scoring."

The Pistons have been displaying good balanced scoring themselves over the last three games. And an improved defense has helped in the three victories.

50 Candidates Start Mat Drills at PCH

Pontiac Central began preparations for its 3rd wrestling season yesterday with coach Steve Szabo greeting 50 candidates.

"We have five returning veterans and a lot of potential," said Szabo. Competition begins Dec. 3 against Waterford with a Christmas tourney and a big battle with Northern on the docket later in the month.

The Chiefs will be host to the annual Saginaw Valley tournament for the 1st time this season.

Little Bob Kiser, Ermino Trevino, Sam Wiscombe, Joe Collins and Glen Sherman are the PCH veterans back.

Heading the top prospects are Del Sanborn, Tom Smallwood, Ed Van Tassel, Henry Smith and Adolphus Houston. All were impressive as Jaycee performers a year ago.

McCovey Unanimous Pick as NL Rookie of Year

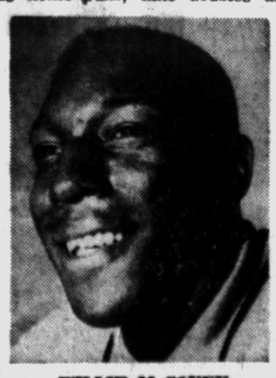

BOSTON (AP) — Willie McCovey, who forced San Francisco to find another job for 1958 winner Orlando Cepeda, today was unanimously named 1959 National League Rookie of the Year.

McCovey was the choice of each member of the 24-man selection committee for the Baseball Writers Assn. of America honor.

An automobile salesman in the off season, McCovey joined the Giants on July 30 from the Phoenix farm club and proceeded to spark Frisco in a drive to the league lead. His slugging helped keep the club in contention the remainder of the season.

McCovey, 21, hit .354 in 52 games. He had 38 runs batted in, 13 home runs, nine doubles and five triples to show for a third of a season. His slugging average was a lusty .660.

WILLIE McCOVEY

Cepeda, unanimous rookie choice for 1958, quickly was moved to the outfield to make room for McCovey when the 6-foot-4, 200 pounder arrived.

In his first four major league at bats, McCovey slammed out hits off Philadelphia's Robin Roberts to break up a free-scoring game. During his first week with the Giants, McCovey decided several contests with his hitting.

Like Cepeda the previous year, McCovey didn't figure in Giant plans when spring training opened. But Cepeda was put on the roster in mid-April while McCovey was farmed out for more experience.

McCovey is the third unanimous pick since the National League rookie balloting was instituted in 1949. The first to sweep the votes was Frank Robinson of the Cincinnati Reds in 1956. Curiously enough, all have played first base although Robinson was an outfielder when picked.

Other previous winners were: Don Newcombe, Dodgers, 1949; Sam Jethroe, Braves, 1950; Willie Mays, Giants, 1951; Joe Black, Dodgers, 1952; Junior Gilliam, Dodgers, 1955; Wally Moon, Cardinals, 1954; Bill Virdon, Cardinals, 1955; Frank Robinson, Redlegs, 1956; Jack Sanford, Phillies, 1957.

Ignore Squabble, Wilson Advises

Chinese Problem Still Worries Olympic Body

(This is another of a series of articles on the 1960 Olympic Games which will be held in Rome next fall. Ted Smits, AP general sports editor, who directed the coverage of the 1948, 1952 and 1956 games, has just returned from an inspection trip to Rome.)

ROME (AP)—Italy and China are half a world apart but the two are very much of a single piece in the minds of United States Olympic officials.

Or rather the three, namely, the 1960 Rome Olympics, the Nationalist Chinese on Formosa, and the Red Chinese on the mainland.

As the result of the action of the International Olympic Committee in dropping Nationalist China from its list of members, followed by an outpouring of public statements and what almost seemed like a campaign of misrepresentation, the U. S. Olympic Committee has been put on the spot.

Kenneth L. Wilson, president of the U. S. committee, who recently toured the sites of the Rome games, said this while he was here:

"First of all, it is important to remember that the U. S. Olympic Committee had nothing to do with the action of the International Olympic Committee in insisting that Nationalist China change its name, and generally the U. S. Olympic Committee disapproves of that action since we felt that it would be misunderstood.

"Secondly, contrary to a widespread misconception Red China is not now in the Olympic organization, and very likely will not be in it in the foreseeable future. On the other hand, we expect Nationalist China to be back in the IOC as soon as the technical detail of an appropriate name is determined.

"But above all, I believe that the American people should ignore this international squabble and concentrate on preparing and financing the best possible U. S. team for the 1960 Olympic games."

But to the United States officials the problem is still very real. Under Olympic rules, the U. S. Olympic Committee had nothing to do with the vote of the International Olympic Committee in dropping Nationalist China, although the two American members voted against the action and the international president, Avery Brundage of Chicago, abstained because of his position.

However, the blame fell on the U. S. committee and many of its members are now deeply concerned lest this interfere with the big job of sending the best possible team to represent the nation in what will be the biggest games ever held.

The U. S. Olympic Committee has set a goal of $1,500,000. Some of this will go for financing of the 500 who participated in the recent Pan-American games in Chicago and some to send 125 athletes to the winter Olympics in Squaw Valley. But the bulk is needed for the team of 420 ticketed for Rome and another spotlighted duel with the Russians—and the campaign is going slowly. An Olympic official said the men who should be leading the drive are holding back because of the turmoil over China.

The practical Italians couldn't care less about the Chinese problem. Neither the Red Chinese nor the Nationalist Chinese have many outstanding athletes and the absence of one or both from the games will make no difference.

Fortunately the apparel industry has come to the support of the U. S. team. Counting the Pan-American and winter games, donations of uniforms and clothing—and it is all smart, well tailored stuff—come to about $250,000. No team at the Rome games will be better dressed.

(Tomorrow: Who will win the 1960 games?)

Wilt Still Has Best Average

NEW YORK (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain's still at it, still leading the National Basketball Assn. with a 37.1 scoring average and closing fast on Elgin Baylor's total point lead.

Philadelphia's rookie Warrior has scored 371 points in 10 games compared to 446 in 13 games by Baylor, the sophomore standout of the Minneapolis Lakers. That leaves the Stilt No. 3 in the scoring race, according to statistics released today, with Cincinnati's Jack Twyman the runner-up on a 400-point total in 12 games.

Chamberlain also has a 30-plus average in rebounds, picking off 312 for a 31.2 mark. Bill Russell of Boston is the runner-up with a 23.0 average on 253 in 11 games.

Backcourt man Sam Jones of the Celts moved past teammate Russell for the field goal percentage lead with a .526 mark on 97 shots.

JERRY RUSH

CHARLEY BROWN

All-State Candidates Lead PCH to 6-3 Season

Brown, Rush Spark Revival

By BILL CORNWELL

Charley Brown, already widely-heralded as a guard-fullback deluxe, and tackle Jerry Rush, who just found himself this fall, were the key figures in Pontiac Central's finest football team in nearly 15 years.

PCH coach Jesse MacLeay has nothing but praise — and worlds of it — for these two dynamos who sparked the 1959 gridiron revival which saw the Chiefs compile a 6-3 season record.

It was Central's first winning campaign since 1952 when the Chiefs posted a 4-3-1 mark under Hercules Renda.

Both Brown and Rush are tremendous all-state candidates, but Brown has the inside track on the honor by virtue of a reputation already well-established before the 1959 season ever got under way.

Brown just missed a berth on the Associated Press Class A all-state team last year as a junior by one vote. He looks like a cinch to crash the honor squad this year in view of the Chiefs' winning record.

Rush had no advance billing for all-state laurels for the simple reason that it was not until this fall that the giant tackle really settled down and played football at its very best.

"Jerry finally found himself as a football player this fall," said MacLeay. "He gained an extreme desire for excellence and as a result he took great pride in handling his opponent game after game."

Rush was terrific in every game the Chiefs played this fall, but he perhaps enjoyed his greatest single game performance against Bay City Central when PCH upended the previously undefeated Wolfpack, 12-7.

Blessed with amazing speed for his size — he's 6-3 and weighs 220 — Rush was down field under punts ahead of anybody else, ready and waiting to knock down the ball carrier.

He was the No. 1 offensive blocker in opening up holes in the Bay City line and the big fellow wrecked the Wolves on defense. PCH opponents during the season avoided running to Rush's side of the line as often as possible.

Rush was a squad "pepper-upper" in practice sessions and always had words of encouragement for his teammates on the line. "Jerry's spirit was instrumental in helping our team be a winner," MacLeay declared.

MacLeay had this to say about Brown: Charley is so versatile that he could play any position on our football team with the possible exception of quarterback and he could probably do that with a little work.

Brown, who stands 5-10 and scales a solid 200 pounds, has good speed and a great pair of hands.

"He could be either a strong fullback or halfback and his hands would also make him a fine end," MacLeay commented, "but I believe his best position in college ball would be at the guard position."

Brown has always been a guard, but in emergencies he has switched to fullback and performed in all-state fashion. He scored three touchdowns against Ferndale as fullback and against Waterford in the first game of the year he scored a TD from his guard post.

In addition to his physical attributes, Charley has the greatest asset of all — he loves to play football. He's a tireless worker on the gridiron and the rougher it gets out there, the better he likes it.

Brown is blessed with agility and quickness and those virtues enable him to excel both as a defensive linebacker and an offensive blocker. "He's simply a great all-around football player," MacLeay remarked.

MacLeay considers Brown sound football timber for any college in the country and several colleges already have expressed interest in him. He's on a college curriculum at PCH and is a C-plus student.

They're both All-State performers of the highest order.

Dupas TKO Victor

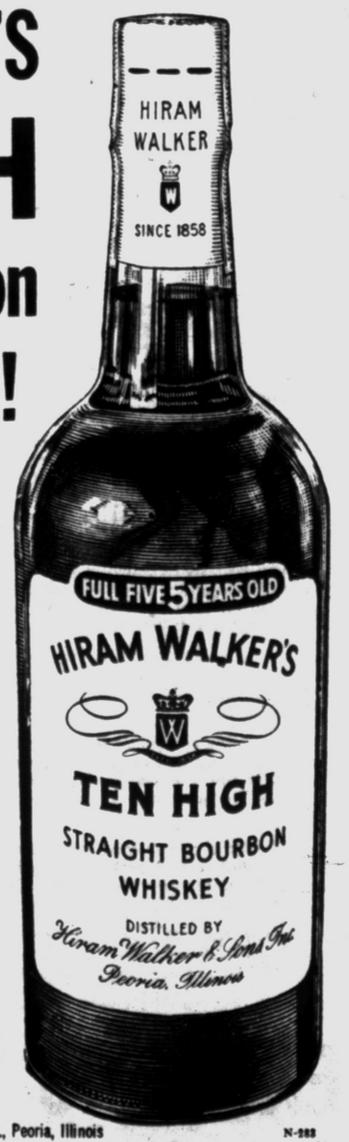

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ralph Dupas, New Orleans welterweight, battered Pat Lowry of Los Angeles until the referee halted the match in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-rounder Monday night. Dupas weighed 154¼, Lowry 146.

College Football

"RED" BLAIK

Saturday, in the Bowl, Yale and Harvard will meet for the seventy-sixth time. It is still The Game to old Crimsons and Blues. It is still the Queen of Ivy League battles. But it does not carry the wallop nationally it once did.

There is a good reason. Yale and Harvard and the other six Ivy League colleges, by maintaining almost exclusively insular schedules, have invited other sections to regard Ivy football as inferior.

Even for its own supporters, Ivy League games lack the appeal they held 20 years ago or even following World War II. Sellout crowds used to be frequent; today, attendances are relatively sparse. For example, Saturday, October 10, an ideal Autumn day, saw five important and seemingly attractive games involving Ivy teams: Yale-Cornell, Harvard-Columbus, Pennsylvania-Brown, Dartmouth-Boston College and Princeton-Colgate. Yet the total attendance announced was only 81,000.

In the 'thirties, the Ivies held their own or better with such outside powers as Ohio State, Georgia, Texas, Michigan and Stanford. Is there that much difference in the material today? Let me quote an Ivy League athletic official:

"Overall, there is more talent than there ever was. And it does not arrive unsolicated and unwelcomed. It would make interesting research, as a case in point, to compare the ratio of football players and non-players among Ivy enrollees from certain western Pennsylvania townships. Even the Big Ten complains Ivy League schools are getting too many of their good boys."

If there has been no fall-off in material, what is the answer? Simply this: the game has been purposely devaluated. It is exactly the kind of game the Ivy League presidents want: not good enough to create too much enthusiasm; not bad enough to evoke more than a faint protesting murmur from alumni.

The devaluation was set in motion by the elimination of spring practice. There is considerable irony here. There are no round-the-calendar restrictions for crewmen, swimmers, lacrosse and baseball players. But the Ivy League football player, who usually needs more coaching than players at institutions with less rigid academic requirements, is denied this extra help.

By eliminating spring practice, the presidents downgraded Ivy football. It naturally followed that the incentive of the gifted player to excel was diluted. He soon learned his football ambition was not really important. If it is less important to others, it can hardly be more important to the players.

Therein lies the answer to the question raised by several Ivy officials: "Why do many of our great prospects fail to live up to their promise?" Ivy football has been deemphasized, as planned, in the mind of the player, undergraduate and alumnus. And this is a handicap no football player or team can overcome.

NCAA Taking Check on Aids

Recruiting and Financial Practices Are Being Re-Evaluated

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) may develop new legislation on recruiting and financial aids for college student athletes.

NCAA executive director Walter Byers announced yesterday that confidential questionnaires have been sent to the 501 member colleges and universities to obtain complete and factual information on present athletic recruiting and financial aid practices.

The data will be studied by a 13-member committee which convenes in Chicago tomorrow.

"This committee is re-evaluating recruiting and financial aid practices among the nation's universities and colleges," Byers said.

"If it finds that there are abuses which can be corrected by legislation, I'm sure the committee will strongly back such legislation. It is much too early to tell, however, what the findings of the committee's study or the conclusions of the committee's deliberations might be."

Big Ten Football Picture Is Really Muddled

Duffy Tries to Get Spartans Down Off Cloud Nine

Can 'M' Pass Against OSU?

ANN ARBOR (UP) — Michigan's last chance to boost its position in the final Big Ten standings may hinge on cracking Ohio State's tough pass defense here Saturday.

The Buckeyes, who will be Michigan's final 1959 opponent, invade Michigan Stadium with one of the top pass defense records in the loop.

Ohio State has allowed its opponents an average of little more than 80 yards a game in the air and only an average of three first downs on passing.

If coach Bump Elliott's Wolverine passers can eliminate a season-long tendency to throw the ball into enemy hands, chances of dumping the rugged Buckeyes will be enhanced considerably.

And if Michigan's two first-line ends—John Halstead and Bob Johnson—come up with their usual performance, things will be much easier.

Johnson ranks high among Big Ten pass receivers with 16 catches this season for 224 yards. Against Indiana last week, the Chicago senior snagged six for 80 yards—many of them in the circus catch variety. Johnson, who played only six minutes as a sophomore, has another year of eligibility.

In the same game, Hadstead picked off two passes for 36 yards. One was a 10 yard toss, which he lugged 14 yards into the end zone for Michigan's lone touchdown. The Bay City junior has nabbed six passes this season for 77 yards and two touchdowns. His two field goals and three extra points give him a total of 21 points, second only to Darrell Harper's 26.

The two flankers helped quarterback Stan Noskin enjoy his most productive passing effort of the year as he hit on 14 of 24 passes for 164 yards and one touchdown against the Hoosiers.

EAST LANSING (UP) — The Michigan State football team has orders to concentrate on the business at hand this week — the season's finale Friday night at Miami.

"We've got to get down off Cloud Nine," said Coach Duffy Daugherty.

Daugherty didn't want any distracting dreams of a possible Rose Bowl to interfere with the business of making it a 6-3 season.

All Michigan State can do in the Big Ten now is sweat out Saturday's results.

Miami has beaten Tulane, Florida State, Navy, North Carolina and South Carolina. The Hurricane losses were to LSU, Auburn and Kentucky.

One of the toughest jobs, Daugherty admitted, will be naming the 38 players to make the trip to Florida for the night game in the Orange Bowl.

"I wish we could take them all," Daugherty said. "They all deserve it."

A collection of minor injuries was reported from the hard hitting in the 15-10 defeat of Northwestern.

Herb Adderly bruised his shoulder diving into the end zone with the 28-yard scoring pass from Dean Look. End Jason Harness picked up a black eye. Among the linesmen, Don Wright had a sprained wrist, Paul Rochester a bumped knee and Tony Kuminga a fractured finger.

The team plane for Florida will fly out of Lansing at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

MSU, Badgers, Wildcats Fight for Loop Title

A Twice-Beaten Squad Will Win It for First Time in History

CHICAGO (UP) — Big Ten football never has been in such a dither.

For the first time in history, a team is going to win or share the championship although losing as many as two conference games.

Since 1896, the title winner never has lost more than once, and 40 times it has gone through the conference season unbeaten and untied.

The final week of play finds the crown up for grabs among three twice-beaten outfits — Wisconsin, Northwestern and Michigan State.

With contenders being knocked off as never before in the cannibal campaign, this also could be the first time a Big Ten team fails to place in the top 10 rankings of the Associated Press poll.

The balance in the conference never has been so thoroughly established. Possibly, this could be a result of the Big Ten's recruiting policy change of three years ago of granting financial aid on a ratio based on need.

Some officials believe that under the plan, fewer high caliber players are being obtained and the leveling off process may produce a more exciting title struggle but not necessarily better football. Or it may be a question of the better teams getting worse and the worst teams getting better.

The windup of a season, which generally has seen the rarity of linemen stealing the thunder from the backs, is focused this way for Saturday:

Wisconsin (4-2), surprised 9-6 by Illinois last week, is at Minnesota (1-5). Northwestern (4-2), whose 15-10 loss to Michigan State followed a 24-19 licking by Wisconsin, is at Illinois (3-2-1). Michigan State (4-2) plays an intersectional game against Miami of Florida in the Orange Bowl Friday night.

Wisconsin and Northwestern play seven conference games and MSU only six.

Victories by Wisconsin and Northwestern would leave them sharing the crown. Athletic directors vote on which team to send to the Rose Bowl.

A 5-5 tie in the vote automatically would give Northwestern the trip under an agreement that the team making the last Rose Bowl appearance be eliminated.

Wisconsin was in the 1953 New Year's day game, losing 7-0 to Southern California — the only Big Ten defeat in the Rose Bowl series. Northwestern went in 1949, defeating California 20-14.

If both Wisconsin and Northwestern lose or even tie Saturday, Michigan State will be champion. A tie counts a half game won and a half game lost in the standings.

Both could be upset.

Illinois is primed for Northwestern, one of its bitterest rivals, because it will be its last game under coach Ray Eliot. The dean of Big Ten coaches takes over as the Illini's assistant athletic director.

Minnesota is primed for Wisconsin, a traditional foe, because it may be the last game under coach Murray Warmath. An ouster-Warmath movement is afoot by a group of Minneapolis businessmen to buy up the remaining two years of his contract.

CLASSROOM STAR, TOO—Dean Look, Michigan State University's star quarterback, explains a point in anatomy to Judy Frazier, a Detroit junior. Look, a senior from Lansing, is majoring in health, physical education and recreation. He set a Big Ten Conference record Saturday by completing seven passes in seven attempts against Northwestern in the Spartan's 15-10 victory.

Orange Boosts Margin; Ol' Miss Moves to 2nd

By The Associated Press

Syracuse continued its magic of managing to be more and more impressive with each game and counted its second straight week as the No. 1 college football team in the nation today—unbeaten, untied and unchallenged in The Associated Press poll.

The Orange, with two regular season games left before a New Year's Day date in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas was named first on 126 of the 253 ballots cast by sportswriters and sportscasters for almost a 2-1 margin over runner-up Mississippi.

They did it by whipping expected pushover Colgate by an unexpected 71-0 to retain the No. 1 berth they gained in a seven-week rise from 20th.

The rankings, determined by total points awarded on a basis of 10 for first, nine for second, etc., show Syracuse with 2,145 points to 1,859 for Mississippi, which drew 68 first place votes.

Ole Miss moved up from fifth in a swap with Texas after the Longhorns were handed their first defeat, 14-9, by Texas Christian.

Louisiana State, the defending champion tumbled to third a week ago after a 14-13 upset by Tennessee, remained No. 3 behind Mississippi—whose lone loss was to LSU (7-3), but who walloped Tennessee 33-7 last Saturday.

Southern California, matching Syracuse's 8-0 record as the only perfect-record clubs left among the majors, stayed fourth — but after that the standings underwent a shake-up.

Georgia jumped to sixth from 12th after beating Auburn 14-13. Penn State, beaten only by Syracuse (20-18), moved from 10th to seventh, while Northwestern and Wisconsin each dropped two places, to eighth and ninth, after suffering their second defeats. TCU, also a two-time loser, shot up to 10th from 18th for its job on Texas.

Auburn tumbled from sixth to 12th with its second defeat. Tennessee (5-2-1) plunged from ninth to 20th.

The only ranked meeting this weekend sends Michigan State, No. 10, against Miami, No. 18.

The top 10 with points bases on 10 for a first-place vote, nine for second etc. (first-place votes and won-lost records in parentheses):

1.	Syracuse (126) (8-0)	2,145

Unveil Plaque Honoring Late Red Sanders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tribute was paid Monday to late UCLA football coach Henry R. (Red) Sanders as a memorial plaque was unveiled in the forecourt of the Coliseum.

Sanders coached at UCLA nine years, 1949-57. He died of a heart attack in August 1958.

The Sanders plaque joined those of four other distinguished coaches honored in past years—Howard Jones of Southern California, Knute Rockne of Notre Dame, Glenn (Pop) Warner of Stanford and Andy Smith of California.

Badger Skipper Bruhn in Line for Gopher Job

CHICAGO (AP) — Winconsin's Milt Bruhn is in line to be Minnesota's next head football coach, the Chicago American said Monday.

An article by sports writer Jim Enright said:

"While Minnesota executives reportedly offer to pay off Coach Murray Warmath's contract, this reporter learned from good authority that the Gophers and Murray will part company nevertheless, and Bruhn can have the job.

"It has been said that Milt, currently in his fourth season at Wisconsin, has been sounded out and is willing to accept."

Area's Shooters Score as Hunting Is Improved

Special to The Pontiac Press

CURRAN — Deer hunting improved somewhat on the second day of the regular Nov. 15-30 season in this northeast section of Michigan's "Club Country."

Pontiac area hunters scored well at several of the camps in Alcona County. In fact, according to Frank Reed, conservation officer for this section, these camps were "well ahead of the rest of the county in the buck-kill department."

There were many empty meat poles, and hunters are blaming the severe die-off of last winter. Many of the bucks taken were "light on horns."

Glenn Griffin of Pontiac, hunting at Club 24, hung up the largest, best-antlered whitetail seen thus far. Griffin put down a seven-pointer with one well-placed shot.

Also at Club 24 on the second day, Dr. George Petroff bagged a spike shortly after arriving.

At the Oakland Hunt where 25 Pontiac hunters are holding forth, two deer fell opening day and two more bucks were added to the meat pole on Monday. The successful hunters were Pat Crow, Carl Holechek, Bill Hanson and Ted Robinson.

Dr. James Miller, Birmingham medical psychologist, bagged a buck at Ivan James Ranch just a few hours after driving here from his office. Other hunters at the James Ranch, north of Curran, have bagged four bucks and two does.

Paul Sparrow, Emil Neilsen and the other Pontiac hunters at the Crow-Bar Club all have doe permits. However, like many hunters here they say they are "strictly" after bucks. As of noon yesterday, Crow-Bar hunters still had only two bucks.

Although there is still about six inches of snow in the woods and the weather has warmed up, deer are not moving well.

160-Pounder May Be First Contest Entry

A Lake Orion hunter apparently is the first "official" entry for the 1959 Pontiac Press' big deer derby.

Farrel Dodds, 554 Atwater, Lake Orion, downed his buck opening day of the state season, at Glennie. His brother John, also from Orion, was with him, but didn't connect.

Dodds' buck weighed 160 pounds, sported a nice 8-point rack. It was the hunter's first deer in eight years. His only other buck was taken nine years ago at Hillman.

Winner of the "derby" receives $150 in U.S. Savings Bonds. Contest closes at noon Dec. 3 (entry deadline).

Picture Talk by Bill Nicholai Outdoor Travel MOVIES
Today's Story
"Automatically Wonderful"
Have you ever stood patiently waiting to take a picture while the sun played hide-and-seek behind some clouds. It's one of life's minor trials but one you can forget when you won a still or movie camera with electric-eye lens control.
The electric eye is probably the best friend a snapshooter ever had. Instead of squinting at the sky and trying to decide whether it's cloudy-bright or cloudy-dull, you let the electric eye make the decisions.
It measures the amount of light reaching the camera and sets the lens automatically to give you the correct exposure. Shoot one picture in bright sun, the next in the shade. Two different lighting conditions, but the electric eye instantly adjusts the lens to get each picture.
You get all the convenience and accuracy of electric eye lens control in the Automatic Cameras. This handsome handful of a camera not only is automatic — also takes color slides, color snapshots and black-and-white.
Or you can have an electric eye working for you in a new Automatic Movie Camera. You just follow the action with this camera, and the electric eye keeps your exposure right on the nose.
Just decide how you'll have your automatic. Then drop in. Soon.

Only Angry People Take Time to Write

Columist Asks for Nice Letters

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK—I have a small, wistful question to put to American newspaper readers:

Why do not more nice, adjusted, gentle and educated people write letters to the editor—or columnists—or the reporter who wrote that nice, educated story about the five-year-old orphan who foiled the burglar on West 88th street?

Why must it almost invariably be the angry people who spend time and four cents to express themselves . . . These and the hate-people, the religious and political fanatics, the folks who sincerely try, but cannot quite, spell "drop ded"?

The answer everyone gives is, of course, it's human nature to complain. Well, if this is human nature—to pour out only one's angers, while discarding one's pleasures or curiosities — let's take animal nature.

I've tabulated, over the years, the letters that pass across this desk and into the wastebasket. Because that is where most writers' "drop ded" letters go, along with the anti-everything, from Atlantic to Pacific notes.

(The kind words, the informative and constructively critical letters, are always cherished and answered.)

LISTS RAVE SUBJECTS

In the tabulation, the following topics, in the following order, have proven to be the subject for most of the ill-spelled and ill-founded ravings:

1. Presley, Fabian, or any other rock & roll singer, when kidded in a column, will bring fanatic response. In one piece I merely quoted Elvis Presley verbatim (an unflattering thing to do) and received nearly 2,000 vindictive letters from American teen-agers.

2. Puerto Ricans. A kind word about these people, or their country, and a writer is labeled beast or fool by hundreds of interested readers. Friendly reference to Hungarian refugees also makes a reporter realize she's being read, if not appreciatively.

3. All religions, except Protestantism. As a Protestant, I am embarrassed to admit that all my religious cutthroat mail is anti-Jewish or anti-Catholic.

4. Cats. Nobody kids a cat and gets away with it. Owners from all corners of the world get their claws up and strike back.

5. Ingrid Bergman. She is still the morality-minded American housewife's vision of corruption. There are many who scrawl "How can you write about such trash?" Across columns about almost any celebrity you mention — but Miss Bergman's critical cult out-scraws them all.

6. Overly aggressive women. A favorite topic of mine, and I occasionally give them a noticeable dig. They come back fighting, often with intelligently worded letters—proving that educated people can write, if they want to.

It all gets so depressing sometimes that I sit down and write a column about how loyal, how friendly, how eternally wag-tailed are dogs.

This is the only way I know to be assured of having friendly, cheerful letters pass across my desk.

Dogs have many nice, adjusted, contented, educated letter-writing friends.

But, alas, the number cannot compare to the fretful, threatful, disgruntled enemies of all the other entities a columnist writes about.

Subpoenas Set in DJ Payola

Push Money Probe About to Open on More House Scandals of '59

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House subcommittee is ready to subpoena papers and documents to find out how extensive the payola racket is in television and radio.

Payola is a show business term for bribes or other inducements to disc jockeys to get them to play and push new records. It also covers the practice of some performers who work in free plugs for products on their shows in return for an undercover payoff.

"We've got more than 100 leads on payola already and more are being volunteered every day," a subcommittee source said today. "Our big job now is to narrow all this down and that will take time."

The House subcommittee on Legislative Oversight wound up a sensational probe of television quiz shows earlier this month and indicated at that time it would turn to disc jockeys.

Subpoenas will be issued for those the subcommittee wants to question at public hearings, probably beginning early next year.

"It's possible, but unlikely, that we'll have some hearings next month," the source said.

The committee has scheduled a three-day hearing starting Dec. 9, but this is to wind up some old unfinished business—the questioning of Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine. Goldfine got a suspended sentence for contempt of Congress for refusing to answer committee questions last year about some of his financial dealings.

Waltzes Off With $45,149 in Dance Suit

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Julia W. Hinman, 69, a widow, won a $45,149 damage verdict Monday from a dance studio which sold her $16,000 worth of lessons.

The jury's award included $15,000 actual damages and $25,000 punitive damages. Mrs. Hinman sued for $200,000, saying she had suffered great mental anguish.

Defendants were Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bebb, owners of the Evan Charles dance studio in Wichita, and Bud Stewart, 28, former manager.

Testimony showed she contracted for 4,000 lessons at $4 apiece, paid more than $6,000 and took about 250 lessons.

TWA Hostesses Set to Strike Wednesday

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A strike by hostesses against Trans World Airlines is scheduled for 9 a.m. Wednesday.

Negotiations remained deadlocked today in a dispute over wages and hours for hostesses on jet aircraft.

Leverett Edwards, a federal mediator, said "it looks like a very rugged situation at the moment." Roland K. Quinn, president of the Air Line Stewards and Stewardesses Assn., agreed. John P. Mead, chief negotiator for TWA, declined comment.

Details of the dispute were not revealed. Current wage scales were not available.

The previous contract expired April 30.

Steels Push Up to Help Mart

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels joined the space age issues in helping the stock market to a moderate advance early this afternoon.

Trading was fairly active after the ticker tape twice fell behind the pace of transactions for brief spells.

Gains ranged from fractions to around 2 with some wide movers—notably Motorola—running ahead of that. Motorola added better than 6 to earlier gains this year. Thiokol was ahead better than a point and Texas Instruments around a point in the science group.

Steels were aided by industry figures showing a faster than expected acceleration of production, which is expected to be at nearly 80 per cent of capacity this week.

U. S. Steel, whose new president, Leslie B. Worthington, was quoted as sighting "some signs of progress" in steel negotiations, was up better than 2 points.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Lukens also were up around 2, while Republic was up more than a point and Jones & Laughlin around a point.

Brokers saw some hope in the fact the market apparently had braced around the 635 level in the Dow Jones industrial average. Popular averages have declined for six successive trading sessions.

Motors and chemicals also did well while airplanes and aircrafts generally were weak. Other groups showed mixed patterns.

S-P, Farm Equipment Firm Discuss Merger

NEW YORK (UPI)—Studebaker-Packard Corp. and Oliver Corp. have confirmed that merger talks are in progress.

Directors of the companies met here yesterday and said they have instructed their executive and finance committees to continue exploratory merger conversations.

It was the first confirmation that merger discussions were in progress between the auto company and the farm tractor and equipment firm.

Girl, 12, Stabbed, Strangled in West

KENTFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Stabbed in the chest and strangled with a rope, the body of flame-haired Lorna Lax, 12, was found beside a creek Monday in a secluded, heavily wooded grove she called her "fort."

The girl, clad only in a blue pajama top, was in a sitting position, her legs stuffed into a sleeping bag and her torso held erect by the rope knotted around her neck and lashed to a tree branch above.

Deputy coroner Harold J. Keaton said he found indications Lorna could have been raped but he would not be certain until laboratory tests were made.

The weapon used to inflict the stab wound was not found.

Her body was found by a friend and neighbor, Norman Fortner, 13 who accepted her invitation of a week earlier to come and see the fort.

Nixon to Visit Detroit for Speeches Feb. 15

LANSING (AP) — Vice President Nixon will visit Michigan Feb. 15 at a time when maneuvering over the 1960 Republican presidential nomination could be heating up.

Nixon, returning to the state after a 16-month absence, has been booked for a speech at the Economic Club of Detroit and for a nighttime meeting in the Detroit Masonic Temple.

John B. Martin Jr., GOP national committeeman, made the announcement yesterday. Nixon will be responding to invitations from various Detroit groups, he said.

Lawrence B. Lindemer, GOP state chairman, said similar invitations had already been passed along to Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, mentioned as a Nixon rival for the Republican presidential nomination.

Food Running Low on Ship Seized in Detroit

DETROIT (UPI) — The crew of a Greek-owned ship, seized for failure to pay its bills, was beginning to wonder today where its next meal was coming from.

And the federal government decided it was not coming from U. S. taxpayers.

The ship, Theodoros-A, sails under Panamanian register but it's owned by the Ermoupolis Co. of Greece. It was seized by U. S. marshals in Lake St. Clair on Nov. 8 after several firms filed suit for payment of bills totaling about $35,000.

The ship has been held in dock here since. Yesterday its captain, Vasilios Trimis, appealed to the marshal's office for help and said the ship's food stores were running low.

Southfield Hunter Is Found Alive

MIO (AP) — An 80-year-old deer hunter missing overnight in zero weather in the Huron National Forest was found alive, but suffering from severe exposure today.

He is Elmo E. Richards of 21343 Negaunee St., Southfield. He was rushed to a Mio Hospital, where his condition was described as "dangerous."

Richards wandered away from a hunting party in the woods about 5 o'clock yesterday. He was found at 11 a.m. today by a member of a searching party organized to hunt him.

He was found a mile east of M-33 and about four miles from Mack Lake, near the Ogemaw-Oscoda County line.

Grain Futures Go Into Stall

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market went into a virtual stall during the first several minutes of trading today at prices scarcely changed from previous closes.

There was about an equal distribution of plus and minus signs, mostly within a one-fourth cent range.

Trade volume all around was at its lowest and slowest pace in several weeks. Commercial buying was almost wholly absent and speculative dealers were reluctant to extend any commitments or make sizable new ones.

Trade still was draggy after about an hour with wheat ¼ cent a bushel lower to ⅛ higher, December $2.01¾; corn unchanged to ⅛ lower, December $1.12⅜; oats unchanged to ¼ higher, December 77¼; rye unchanged to ¾ lower, December $1.32⅞; soybeans ⅝ to ½ lower, November $2.19¼.

Girl, 12, Stabbed, Strangled in West

KENTFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Stabbed in the chest and strangled with a rope, the body of flame-haired Lorna Lax, 12, was found beside a creek Monday in a secluded, heavily wooded grove she called her "fort."

The girl, clad only in a blue pajama top, was in a sitting position, her legs stuffed into a sleeping bag and her torso held erect by the rope knotted around her neck and lashed to a tree branch above.

Deputy coroner Harold J. Keaton said he found indications Lorna could have been raped but he would not be certain until laboratory tests were made.

The weapon used to inflict the stab wound was not found.

Her body was found by a friend and neighbor, Norman Fortner, 13 who accepted her invitation of a week earlier to come and see the fort.

Nixon to Visit Detroit for Speeches Feb. 15

LANSING (AP) — Vice President Nixon will visit Michigan Feb. 15 at a time when maneuvering over the 1960 Republican presidential nomination could be heating up.

Nixon, returning to the state after a 16-month absence, has been booked for a speech at the Economic Club of Detroit and for a nighttime meeting in the Detroit Masonic Temple.

John B. Martin Jr., GOP national committeeman, made the announcement yesterday. Nixon will be responding to invitations from various Detroit groups, he said.

Lawrence B. Lindemer, GOP state chairman, said similar invitations had already been passed along to Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, mentioned as a Nixon rival for the Republican presidential nomination.

State Educators Ask for Building Program

LANSING (AP) — Immediate passage of a capital outlay program has been urged by the association of governing boards and presidents of state colleges and universities.

A bill providing 12 million dollars for new state building projects —most of them at institutes of higher learning — has passed the House but is being held up in the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The educator's association at its annual fall meeting here yesterday unanimously adopted a resolution calling for enactment of this measure "even though this may require additional tax revenues."

The group said the bill "provides a very modest beginning for a building program" and warned that lack of legislative action before the end of this year will delay availability of new classroom space until the fall of 1962.

Gold Crest Brake Shop Is Opened in Pontiac

Michigan's Eighth Gold Crest Brake Shop has been opened in Pontiac at 973 Orchard Lake Rd.

The manager of the new store is Ray Tracey of Riverside, Ontario.

Bank May Seek Overpass Right

Commission Will Hear Annex Building Plan at Session Tonight

The Community National Bank is expected to ask the City Commission tonight for permission to overpass an alley in order to construct a four-story annex on East Lawrence street.

The annex would be on the lot east of the alley behind the Saginaw street main office.

Charles Harris, a vice president of the bank, said construction plans still are in a preparatory stage.

Bank officials have been discussing the expansion with the city for about three years, said Carl F. Alt, city building inspector. A building permit is still to be filed.

The overpass would provide an enclosed corridor between the main office and the annex, said Alt.

The commission will hold a hearing on the assessment roll covering installation of a sidewalk on the west side of Lake street, from the south end of the street to the Michigan Airlines Railroad, near the Bethune School.

The city is scheduled to receive a warranty deed for the southern portion of the site for the new public library. This portion, on the northwest corner of South Parke and Water streets, recently was sold to the city by Stuart A. Austin, owner of the Austin Trucking Co. The company's offices and land on the southwest corner of the intersection also were purchased by the city on an installment basis.

Presentation of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce plan to revamp police department administration has been rescheduled for next Tuesday.

The chamber is asking the City Commission to have a spring election to amend several portions of the city charter, especially in the Police Trial Board section.

Several trial board members and the Oakland County AFL-CIO have announced opposition to the changes.

Britain's Montgomery May Visit Red China

LONDON (AP)—Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, 72 today, said he may go to Communist China after visiting Prime Minister Nehru next January.

Montgomery, commenting on his birthday, said: "In my life I have seen a lot of fighting. I don't like it. I think fighting is unproductive. I would like to make some contribution to a peaceful world. I want my children and my children's children to grow up to be good citizens in a peaceful world."

SPEBSQSA Chapter 17 Sets Guest Night Friday

Pontiac Chapter 17 of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc. will hold its annual guest night Friday.

Headlining festivities will be a local foursome, the Key Knights, who recently won sixth place in the SPEBSQSA Michigan District finals held at Holland.

The quartet is made up of Richard F. Blanchard of 4779 Irwindale Dr., Lyle Howard and Jack Caverly, both of 5885 Loch Leven St., and Charles Sherwood of 2351 Fairport St., all of Waterford Township.

Howard and Caverly are brothers - in - law. The original Key Knights organized about two years ago, were named 1958 novice champs in the society's third area.

Sherwood joined the group a year ago, coming from another area quartet, the Hi-Fis.

Friday's guest night will be held at the Knights of Pythias Fellowship Lodge 277, 948 Voorheis Rd., Waterford Township.

The event, scheduled for 8:30, is open to the public. A buffet dinner will be served. It is a stag affair.

Also expected to sing are the Puritones, a newly organized Pontiac group.

Reds Demand Parity on Space Committee

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union is reported holding out for East-West parity on the proposed permanent U. N. Committee on Outer Space Research.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov reportedly made the demand Saturday in a meeting with chief U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge. Lodge reported Monday to a private meeting of the 13 functioning members of the present temporary outer space committee.

Last year, just before the temporary committee was set up, the Soviets insisted that the number of Communist and neutral countries on it should equal the number of Western allied countries.

Because the Soviets did not get that form of parity, the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and Poland all boycotted the committee. India and the United Arab Republic also refused to participate, contending the committee was meaningless without Soviet participation.

The other 13 countries went ahead without them and eventually recommended that the Assembly set up a permanent committee.

Bucking Custom, Firm Puts Stores Close Together

The tradition in established firms is to open a second store, or branch in an outlying area, but the General Warehouse Co. is doing the opposite.

The Waterford Township company will open a second store Wednesday at 105 N. Saginaw St.

The main General Warehouse store is at 2258 Dixie Highway, near Telegraph road.

J. J. Farrell Jr., co-owner, said, "We are opening the second store in the heart of Pontiac in an effort to more conveniently serve all Pontiac area shoppers."

The new addition will be less than half the size of the main store, but will carry the same stock with the exception of heavy hardware, such as large machines.

Standard Oil Wholesale Price Up .8 Cent

Standard Oil Co. today raised wholesale gasoline prices .8 cent a gallon in the Pontiac and Detroit Metropolitan areas.

Other companies are expected to look into the increase and perhaps follow suit.

Milo I. Hector, Standard regional manager, said the increaes in price "only partially restores the reductions during the past three months."

Standard, as well as most other major dealers, dropped prices by 1.9 cents a gallon Sept. 21 and again by 1.2 cents Oct. 27. Most retailers passed the drop in prices on to their customers and are expected, now, to pass along the increase, too.

High U.S. Official May Go to Panama

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department may send a high-ranking officer to Panama for conferences aimed at preventing a new outbreak of violence against U.S. citizens there.

An offer to dispatch the officer was made to Panama Monday by Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, who told of receiving reports "which indicate the threat of further violence."

Herter informed Ambassador Ricardo M. Arias of Panama in a 40-minute conference that the officer would discuss the current controversy with Panamanian officials. Herter did not say who might be sent.

Saturday Bake Sale in Drayton Center

Waterford Township school faculty wives will have a bake sale beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Kresge store in the Drayton Shopping Center.

Unusual Christmas fruit cakes, rolls and breads will be offered along with an assortment of cookies, pies and cakes.

All proceeds will be used for some worthy community project.

South Africa Urged to Dump Segregation

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The U.N. issued another appeal today for South Africa to abandon its policies of racial segregation. There was no chance the South Africans would heed the appeal, for they boycotted the debate as they have in the past.

The General Assembly adopted a resolution expressing deep regret and concern that South Africa had ignored all previous U.N. appeals to "reconsider governmental policies which impair the right of all racial groups to enjoy the same fundamental rights and freedoms."

The vote was 62-3 with 7 abstentions. South Africa was absent. France, Britain and Portugal voted against the resolution. The United States, which supported a similar resolution last year, voted yes.

Who Guards Watchdog?

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (UPI) — Charles Baggett left his four-year-old pet boxer dog in his locked car last night to scare off thieves. He returned later to find the car still there, but someone had opened a door and made off with the dog—leash and all.

Tennessee Puts Reflector Tape on Wide Autos

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee officials ruled yesterday that provisions of the law would be met on the "wide, wide cars" if their owners stick reflector tape at the ends of front and rear bumpers.

State law requires vehicles wider than 80 inches to be equipped with reflectors on the sides, in addition to special lights.

Although the 1931 law was designed to apply to trucks, many 1959 and 1960 cars were found to exceed the 80-inch width. some 1957 and 1958 models also were oversize, according to trade literature.

Gov. Buford Ellington said that after a conference with state Atty. Gen. George F. McCanless and Safety Commissioner Greg O'Rear, it was determined that reflectors at the bumper corners would meet legal requirements.

The Governor said all new cars have at least six front lights and four rear lights. The reflector tape, he said, should eliminate all traffic hazards from the "wide, wide cars."

O'Rear said these 1960 models exceed 80 inches in width: Pontiac, Chevrolet, Continental, Edsel, Ford, Imperial, Lincoln, Mercury and Oldsmobile.

Any fool can criticize, condemn and complain—and most fools do . . . Teen-age children certainly brighten up a home—and their parents have the electric light bills to prove it. —Earl Wilson.

Hospital Holds '59 Clinic Day

McGill University Man Talks on Wednesday to St. Joseph's Staff

The "Dr. C. B. Tolle Memorial Lecture" tomorrow will cap a day of teaching at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

The hospital is holding its fourth annual Clinic Day. Widely known specialists in their fields, four doctors are slated to speak to St. Joseph's medical staff.

Honored this year as speaker for the memorial lecture is Dr. Campbell Gardner, assistant professor of surgery at McGill University, Montreal. He is also chief of surgery at Queen Mary's Veterans Hospital and director of Department of Veterans Affairs.

His speech, scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at the Kingsley Inn, will be on "The Present Trend in Gastric Surgery."

The memorial lecture fund came into existence in 1956, after the death of Dr. C. B. Tolle, director of the Clinical Laboratory and member of the Department of Medicine at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

At the request of Mrs. Tolle, money in lieu of flowers was set aside in memorial fund. The Executive Committee of the hospital sponsored the lecture program as a result. The fund provides travel, expenses and honorarium for the guest lecturer.

Host for the day is Dr. Norman F. Gehringer, St. Joseph Mercy Hospital chief of staff.

With a total capacity of 418 beds, the hospital has a staff of 180 active physicians, 27 resident physicians and 80 students in the McAuley School of Practical Nursing.

Irish Ambassador Sends Son Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Irish Ambassador John Joseph Hearne announced today that his son David Patrick, whose brushes with the law were climaxed last week when his automobile killed a woman pedestrian, is being sent back to Ireland.

David, 21, who has been studying at American University for the past year, was driving from Washington to the University of Maryland last Wednesday evening when his car struck and killed Mrs. Jossie Hamlin, 54, a domestic. Her body was knocked 41 feet.

The fatal accident touched off a furor when David invoked diplomatic immunity. That prevented police with charging him and impelled Coroner A. MaGruder MacDonald to cancel an inquest.

Fears Accompany Freedom Movement

Africa Boils Over With Rioting, Death

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

It seems incongruous that with freedom should come fear.

And that, because of fear, the birth of a new nation is accompanied by unspeakable atrocities.

Those atrocities are occurring now in Africa where new nations are taking or are about to take their first unsteady steps. A decade or so ago they occurred in India and Pakistan where a great riptide of humanity was set in motion by the creation of two independent states, the one Moslem, the other Hindu.

The fear arises from the attempt or suspected attempt of one group to dominate another in the new state.

Thus the Mau Mau attacked the whites in African Kenya. In the Belgian Congo, the once-powerful and warlike Lulua tribe battles the formerly subordinate tribe of the Balubas. In Ruanda, the giant Watusi and their pigmy allies battle the Bahutus.

Headless corpses lying beneath the manana trees in Ruanda attest to the savagery of this war fare among people who shortly will be given the opportunity to vote on their freedom.

The westerner, with his tradition of an ordered society, finds such jungle violence hard to believe. A Belgian army man explained it this way:

"We in Europe possess only two kinds of condition — order and disorder. But here in Africa you find a third condition: A wild and mindless hysterian, which makes the word 'disorder' seem like a gentle understatement."

In Ruanda, the Bahutus fear that with the coming of independence, the Watusi once again will attempt ot assert their domination. In the Belgian Congo, the Balubas, now tribesmen of a certain amount of wealth and status, mean to see to it that the former power of the Luluas never can be revived.

In black Africa, the states of Ghana and Guinea already are independent. Next year, there will be three more — Nigeria, The French Cameroons and Somalia.

In the whole of Africa, there are some 200 million people. Of the total about 195 million are black.

As in other of the world's backward areas, Africa is swept by a surging nationalism that takes its orders neither from the democratic countries of the West nor the Communist nations of the East.

At times, it seems totally without direction. Certainly it contemplates no such thing as one vast African nation.

Intermingled are tribal conflicts and a changing economic status brought about by the white settlers who established industry and an ordered agriculture, and thrust primitive tribesmen into industry, schools and finally, government.

Africa today is a land in the midst of a vast upheaval, with today's savages tomorrow's voters and the future of the white man there in doubt.

Early New 'Ol' Redhead' Has Long Rowe to Hoe

By FRED DANZIG

NEW YORK (UPI) — In another lame attempt to recapture the spirit of the unavailable ol' redhead, Arthur Godfrey, the CBS-TV daytime schedule inserted the Red Rowe Show yesterday.

Rowe, called "The Redhead, Himself," makes the mistake of nearly begging for audience acceptance in a sticky kind of casual patois that blends the hip and the hillbilly.

Crosby (Bing) and Ernie Ford can work this sort of approach skillfully while others attempt it at their own risk.

The highlight of the premiere came when singer Julie Wilson threw herself to the floor and demonstrated her setting-up exercises, complete with a superb head-stand. But Miss Wilson was there as a guest, not as a member of Rowe's TV family.

Perhaps if Rowe can get more guests to unbend as Miss Wilson did, he may appeal to viewers who can't wait until nighttime and the Paar Show. Otherwise, I'm afraid the Red Rowe Show has a long row to hoe.

It may be that the beatniks' great contribution to American culture will be that they supplied TV comedians, comedy writers and choreographers with a full season of material. Just about every situation comedy, private eye and variety show has gone beat this fall.

Last night, it was the Danny Thomas Show on CBS-TV that flogged the beatnik minority. While the poetry-reading spoof was enjoyable, Thomas had to deliver an impassioned antibeatnik sermon and crush the fun right out of the show.

To Thomas, beatniks and beats were "crumbs," "lazy bums," and their work "garbage."

Then came the Steve Allen show on NBC-TV, with guest Jack Kerouac, the bellwether of the beats.

Reading from his novel, "On The Road,' Kerouac's recitation added dimensions of sincerity that heretofore were lacking. Incidentally, the clan was "sympathetic." Obviously, Jack hadn't seen the Thomas show.

THE CHANNEL SWIM: Edd "Kookie" Byrnes is temporarily on the sidelines while Warner Bros. films more episodes of ABC-TV's 77 Sunset Strip. Kookie isn't working until his agents and Warner Bros. reach agreement on a new contract.

Sportscaster Bill Stern's Story will be seen on NBC-TV's This Is Your Life Wednesday, Nov. 25. The show was taped Nov. 9 . . . Sir Anthony Eden will show off his home and garden at Pewsey Wiltshire, 85 miles from London, for CBS-TV's Person to Person videotape recorders next Monday. Viewing will be scheduled for sometime next January.

Latest Musical Full of Splendor

Broadway's Newest, 'Sound of Music' Is Daring in Format

By WILLIAM GLOVER
Associated Press Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Broadway's big new entry, "The Sound of Music," rings with daring and melodic splendor.

Involved in the show, which opened Monday night at the Lunt-Fontanne Theater, is a stellar array of creative talent that includes Mary Martin as star; Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II as the composing team; and Howard Linday and Russel Crouse as the writers.

What they have created for the public, which brought 2¼ million dollars worth of tickets in advance, is a musical play that blithely disregards the format cliches of most commercial show ventures.

There is neither orchestral overture nor significant dance routine; there is a plot line that weaves convent cloisters with Hitlerian Anschluss; there is a religious processional sung in Latin; among the performers is Theodore Bikel, well known folk-singer, who however, is called on primarily to act.

SCORE RANKS HIGH

It all adds up to a stimulating experience that derives its greatest measure of entertainment values from a score that ranks well up in the Rodgers-Hammerstein record.

Among the numbers that will take their place in popular esteem are "My Favorite Things," "Climb Every Mountain," "Do Re Mi," and the title song.

Miss Martin, radiant and joyous, is in top vocal form as the girl who leaved an Austrian abbey to become the governess of a motherless brood of seven youngsters, and stays in their Tyrol castle to become the wife of the widowed clan sire.

The story of "The Sound of Music" is basel upon the true-life adventures of the Trapp family of singers. Most of the play concerns the gentle love story of the stern naval captain and the would-be nun.

Lakeland Players Ready 'Arsenic and Old Lace'

Rehearsal is under way for the Lakeland Players' first production, "Arsenic and Old Lace," to be presented Dec. 11 and 12 at the Community Center in Waterford Township.

The cast of 14 has been working thre nights a week on the mystery comedy in which two old ladies serve poisoned elderberry wine to 13 victims.

Organized this fall by the Waterford Township Recreation Department, the Lakeland Players have swelled their membership to 70 according to Mrs. William Aebersold, group president.

Junior high school teacher Duke Chaffee is directing the play and high school teacher Miss Ann Hobart is assisting.

Included in the cast are Mrs. George Foran as Abbie Brewster, William Beaudoin, Teddy Brewster and Mrs. Ralph Ellsworth is playing the part of Martha Brewster. Gregory Peck will be Mortimer Brewster.

Dr. Harper will be played by George Foran, Dr. Einstein, William Salley; Officer Klein, James Starnes; Officer Brophy, Robert Munro; Officer O'Hara; Richard Thompson; Mr. Witherspoon, James Tolfa; Elaine Harper, Gloria Hartman; Mr. Gibbs, Paul Ripley, Jonathan Brewster, James McMahon, and Lt. Rooney, by Douglas Foran.

Still needed are backstage construction and lighting workers, Mrs. Aebersold said.

Those interested are invited to attend the next business meeting to be held at 8 p.m. Dec. 2 in the CAI library.

Warning Goes Out to Heater Users

LANSING (AP) — The State Health Department has issued an urgent warning against use of a gas heater it says caused the deaths of two Michigan deer hunters and three women in the last two months.

The department said State Police have been asked to caution hunters that trailers equipped with Thurm heaters using bottled gas may be dangerous.

Joseph Zakrewski, 38, of Detroit, and Stanley J. Danilowicz, 35, of Dearborn, were found asphyxiated from gas fumes in a trailer at Lewiston Sunday. Frank Macyda, 36, of Dearborn, a third member of their hunting party, was in critical condition.

Bernard D. Bloomfield, assistant to the state director of occupational health, said three women who had been sleeping in a trailer equipped with a Thurm heater also had been asphyxiated last September near Dimondale.

Alvin S. Seifert, president of Thurm Engineering Corp. which manufactures the heaters, declined comment at Elkhart, Ind.

Transfusion Fails to Help

Doctors Try but Youth Dies Despite Order to Disobey Parents

ANN ARBOR (AP) — A 14-year-old boy died Monday night, two days after receiving a blood transfusion despite the objections of his parents, who said it violated the family's religious beliefs.

Clare L. Barrett was admitted to University Medical Center last Wednesday with cystic fibrosis, a disease which causes internal bleeding.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Barrett of Temperance, refused to allow physicians to give him a blood transfusion. The Barretts, members of the Jehovah's Witnesses sect, said it violated their beliefs.

When the boy's condition became worse Saturday, medical center officials obtained a court order making Clare a temporary ward of the state and clearing the way for a transfusion.

Barrett, father of seven other children, gave permission for an autopsy to determine cause of death.

"God is the judge," said Barrett. He said he bore no ill-will toward anyone despite the court order and transfusion.

Says Nonliberal Would Hurt Dems in 1960 Election

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Democratic chances of winning the 1960 presidential election "would be diminished if not completely lost if we nominated a conservative or middle-of-the-roader," Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan told a news conference Monday.

Williams made the statement when asked if he thought a moderate like Texas Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson or a New Dealer would get the nomination.

Tom Quimby, Michigan national committeeman, told reporters Democrats he represents do not think Johnson has a chance of getting the nomination and they find Johnson unacceptable.

Williams was a key speaker at the Texas AFL-CIO convention here.

Awaits Sentencing on Bad Check Count

Sentence will be imposed Dec. 7 on Harold Cummings, 42, of 102½ S. Saginaw St., who pleaded guilty yesterday before Circuit Judge William J. Beer of uttering and publishing in the passing of a $58 bad check in a Pontiac supermarket last month.

Cummings was held in the county jail until sentencing, unable to post a $300 bond.

Not Everyone Labels Disc Jockeys Unfair

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — I'd like to say a word in the interests of disc jockeys. It's about time somebody did.

Nine years ago, a cute gal from the Bronx, June Valli, a hosiery and lingerie salesgirl in a 5th Avenue store, was teased into singing a song at a friend's wedding—after which somebody sent her name to the Arthur Godfrey Talent Scout TV show.

"I remember having a lot of long forms to fill out," she says . . .

She won the contest, was on Godfrey's show, progressed to "Stop the Music," "Your Hit Parade," (with Snookie Lanson and Dorothy Collins), made a record called "Crying in the Chapel,"—became really famous and went on "a disc jockey tour" to Cleveland and Chicago.

"There was a d.j. party in Chicago. I walked in. This man sat next to me. That was it . . ."

Howard Miller, Chicago's leading d.j., played her records constantly. They were married. She moved to Chicago. "I wanted to give marriage a fair chance. Howard would help me . . ."

But: "Howard had the feeling people would say, "Oh, look, he's playing his wife's record. That's hardly fair.'

"That wasn't why we divorced, of course. It was just that he was so busy I never saw him unless I worked with him."

JUNE

June, now around 30, again with a good record ("My Darling, My Darling"), and singing daily with Frank Blair and Don Russell on their radio show, is sometimes rather amazed the way life works out, because:

"Now that we're divorced, he gets on every record I've got and 'lays on it.' as they say in the business.

"I get letters from Chicago fans saying 'Come back, he's playing your records, he must be in love with you.'

"HO HO! Not me, I know better!"

You can't convince June that disc jockeys don't have integrity. Sometimes, maybe, a little too darned much.

Here's a hair-raising note: The Washington probers are screening old shows and counting the free plugs — after which there may well be hell to pay for those who took all that loot and didn't declare it.

EARL'S PEARLS: Children say the funniest things—and usually in front of the wrongest people.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Taffy Tuttle says that while she was playing hard to get, her boy friend met a girl who believed in love at first sight . . . That's earl, brother.

Charge 8 Set Fires to Relieve Boredom

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP)—Eight fire fighters are accused of setting a half dozen brush fires so they could help fight them.

Their reason, the U. S. Forest Service says, was boredom.

The young men pleaded innocent Monday to charges of maliciously setting fires.

None of the fires burned more than two acres. They were set in the Banning area between last Jan. 1 and Sept. 7.

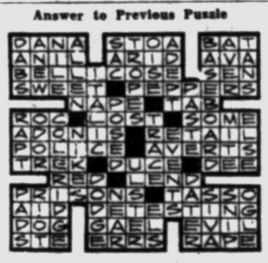

All of the employes have been fired by the Forest Service.

Modern Art Museum Plans Big Expansion

NEW YORK (AP)—The Museum of Modern Art has started a 25-million-dollar expansion and building program, including an eight-story addition to its mid-Manhattan building.

The museum will run a public campaign for funds. It already has pledges totaling $9,250,000.

Castro's Men Using Force Only; Seize Buildings as Well as Land

HAVANA (AP) — The takeover of Cuban and foreign-owned ranch and farm property by Fidel Castro's forces appears more and more to be following only one law —the law of force.

Although the sweeping agrarian reform law adopted by Castro's revolutionary Cabinet last May gives his representatives power to seize big estates, the government's agents are taking over buildings, equipment and livestock as well.

Estimates of the amount of land seized now reach into the millions of acres. Most of it so far is in cattle-rich Camaguey and Oriente provinces, and in Pinar del Rio, where most of Cuba's fine tobacco is grown. Most sugar estates are being left alone for the present—so as not to reduce the next harvest.

Cuban lawyers representing the landowners say appeals to points of law with agents of the government's powerful Institute of Agrarian Reform (INRA) frequently bring the reply "What law? We are the law."

Files of the United States Embassy are rapidly filling with reports of cases in which Castro agents—usually bearded military officers backed by squads of armed soldiers—moved in and seized equipment, cattle and buildings.

The agrarian reform law provides for expropriation of land for distribution among the landless but contains no provision for seizure of agricultural machinery, other equipment or livestock.

"So - called agrarian institute delegates pay no attention to this law when they 'intervene' in properties," said one Cuban lawyer. "They just take over and all our efforts to find out under what decree or law they are acting are futile."

Intervention is one step short of expropriatio — a government agent moves in to control operations of the farm or ranch but does not take formal possession.

This was the step taken Sunday against the American - owned Punta Alegre Sugar Company's 5,000-acre La Gloria ranch in Camaguey province.

A spokesman at La Gloria said the owners are still in physical possession of their land and buildings. But on Sunday INRA agents took the second step—formal seizure—against the 38,000 - acre ranch in Camaguey of the Becerra Cattle Co., owned by the King ranch of Texas. The managers there are fighting what appears to be a losing battle to prevent Castro agents from physically seizing the ranch buildings, equipment and cattle.

"Its a sort of anarchy in many sections of Cuba today, with institute representatives and armed forces under them doing just about as they please," one American rancher reported.

A number of American ranchers whose property is disappearing are asking the U.S. Embassy to make individual and forceful protests to the Cuban government.

Some ranch owners have been offered five-year Cuban government bonds for livestock taken. One or two say they have been promised cash payment. But in most cases property simply is taken over with the implication that a settlement will be discussed in the future.

3 Badly Injured as Cars Collide

Waterford Twp. Men Crash by Intersection at Crest of Hill

Three Waterford Township residents were seriously injured in a head-on collision Monday afternoon at Scott Lake and Watkins Lake roads, according to Oakland County sheriff's deputies.

One was Gerald C. Carter, 43-year-old township constable and an employe of General Motors Truck and Coach Division. He was one of the drivers.

Carter, who lives at 1043 Hira St., a passenger in his car, Hamen G. Metheny, 37, of 3614 David K Dr., and the other driver, Paul J. Rabaut, 53, of 2274 Locklin St., all were taken to Pontiac General Hospital.

Suffering chest, face, and internal injuries, Carter was in serious condition today. Metheny, who suffered severe facial cuts, chest injuries and fractures of both legs was listed as fair by hospital officials.

Rabaut, owner of the Cooley Lanes Bowling Alley and Lounge, 8193 Cooley Lake Rd., Union Lake Village, suffered face, chest, and possible internal injuries. His condition was described as satisfactory.

"They're lucky to be alive," said Deputy Lyle R. Gillespie. "Both cars were total wrecks and neither moved from the point of impact. They were almost welded together."

Gillespie said the impact threw Metheny partly through the windshield, then jerked him back into the car.

A witness told Gillespie that Carter began to pass him as they neared the intersection which is on a hill. Gillespie said the Rabaut car, moving northwest, came over the hill and met the other on the crest.

Santa's Local Helpers Busy at Clearing House

By DICK SAUNDERS

As far as the small folk are concerned, the world's top executive position is held by a gent called Santa Claus, and like most executives his job is impossible without a staff.

Although the bearded champion of children doesn't tackle his biggest job until the special delivery date of Dec. 25, many of his staff members at the Salvation Army Citadel in Pontiac have been working since early last summer.

Their aim is to see that, through the Oakland County Christmas Clearing House, Santa doesn't miss anyone in the Pontiac area.

CAPT. J. WILLIAM HEAVER

But just as important is the job of seeing that Santa doesn't make any unnecessary trips. Last year there were more than 1,000 needy families left without Christmas gifts, while others got two deliveries.

Capt. J. William Heaver, head of the citadel, is Santa's district chairman. Heaver's chief assistant is Margaret Klass, social worker at the citadel.

The clearing house is an enterprise which operates a month before Christmas each year, and falls from existence immediately following the big day.

It is a community project supported financially by the Pontiac Area United Fund. The Salvation Army, a UF agency, takes over all preliminary work. The clearing house is located in the basement of the Citadel Building at 29 W. Lawrence St.

TAKING APPLICATIONS

It will not be open until Nov. 30 to accept applications from individuals. But participating groups are already at work calling the citadel at FE 2-5122, giving and receiving information.

The Salvation Army's job will be mostly finished when the clearing house opens. From Nov. 30 until Christmas Day, the clearing house will be an entirely separate organization with its own phone number, FE 2-1955.

But since the middle of last summer, Miss Klass and Capt. Heaver have been busy contacting the many Pontiac area civic and fraternal groups, and various agencies expected to be sponsoring a Christmas aid program.

This means writing many letters, acting as a central information agency for all interested groups, setting up dates and deadlines, designing and printing all application forms, and finally, hiring the personnel that will be actually running the clearing house.

"What the clearing house amounts to mostly," says Miss Klass, "is a means of avoiding confusion and duplication in the giving of Christmas gratuities."

"We have a large list of all the needy families in this area. All we ask is the cooperation of any local group giving gratuities of any kind, in an effort to see that one family doesn't get two baskets and another none."

5-POINT CHECK LIST

Under the Salvation Army's five-point check list, clubs and agencies should:

1. Appoint a representative and submit the person's name, address, phone number to the clearing house.

2. Submit the number of families to be helped by each group and what type of aid it plans to give.

3. Either draw up the club's list of names of needy families from the clearing house, or, if it already has a list, be sure to notify the clearing house of the families it plans to or already has delivered gifts to.

4. Cooperate with and pass information to other interested groups.

5. Find out what the deadline is for giving and receiving names of deserving families and keep within the time limits.

Last year a total of 51 area clubs and agencies used the clearing house. There were an estimated 2,000 well screened families that applied for Christmas gratuities.

Even with 51 clubs using the coordinating agency, the Salvation Army ended up giving gratuities to 1,003 families left without aid due to lack of cooperation by local organizations.

"We by no means want to limit the freedom any area clubs planning to give Christmas gifts," says Capt. Heaver. "But we do think that those who sponsor gift giving projects would be unhappy to find that some of their families had already received gifts from another group."

Giving the names of deserving families is the easiest part. Getting them is more difficult, according to Heaver.

"If all area groups would inform us of the families they plan to give gifts to, we could add the names to the clearing house list or inform the group if any of their families are already on the list," Heaver said.

Should a family already be on the list as receiving presents from another group, another family could be substituted.

So you see how even St. Nick could get the wrong directions. There's nothing he likes more than making two deliveries to one home, nor hates more than making no delivery to another family.

His local staff and many area helpers hope the clearing house project will fill more stockings in Pontiac homes this year.

Car Dealer Fined Over Bill of Sale

Circuit Judge H. Russel Holland yesterday fined Anthony O. Grimaldi, Pontiac used car lot operator, $50 and $100 court costs or 30 days in the county jail, for failure to furnish a bill of sale.

Grimaldi, manager of the Economy Used Car Market, 22 Auburn Ave., was found guilty last month of failure to provide the proper bill of sale in June of last year when Arlie T. Sanch of 1156 Cherrylawn Dr. traded a truck and a car for a 1953 Ford.
