Waterford Schools Face Money Woes

By HUDSON WILLSE JR.

Supt. of Schools Dr. Don O. Tatroe last night alerted the Waterford Township Board of Education of a grave financial condition facing the school district next school year and told members they should start preparing for a fall millage election.

"We have a very serious financial situation facing us for the coming year," said Tatroe, who termed the recent budgetary action of the Michigan Legislature as "too little and too late."

Tatroe pointed out that the district next year will, in reality, receive almost $3 less per pupil in state aid than during 1966-67.

A 5 per cent state aid increase was approved, but the district must pay more because of a hike in state equalized valuation.

Tatroe suggested three possible alternatives for raising funds — a further increase in State Legislature appropriations, to incur a cash deficit by borrowing on anticipated income and a tax increase which he said could not be levied in time to remedy the predicament.

He and Treasurer Donald W. Porter favored approaching state leaders in an effort to obtain additional monies. Porter suggested a coalition of needy districts would have a greater impact on the Legislature.

Tatroe also recommended that all non-essential operations in the district be reduced or eliminated unless funds become available and that the number of personnel be reduced by leaving some positions vacant.

The financial woes faced by the district compound the problem of meeting 1967-68 teacher salary demands.

Little-Known Pro Off Fast in PGA

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Donald Bies, a little-known assistant teaching pro from Seattle, Wash., got off the mark fast with an outgoing two-under-par 34 today and moved into the thick of contention in the second round of the PGA championship.

Getting birdies on the two par 5 holes—the 592-yard second and 580-yard eighth—and paring the rest, the 29-year-old Far Westerner moved five-under-par through 27 holes with a score of 103.

At this stage in relation to par, he was even with U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus and one behind the first round leader, Dave Hill of nearby Evergreen, Colo., who were among the late starters.

Young Hill scalped the 7,436-yard, par 72 Columbia golf course Thursday with a record six-under-par 66.

Lake Orion Wife Charges Husband With Rifle Threat

A sleeping Lake Orion waterfront was roused this morning as an alleged family fight threatened to erupt into a shooting.

Held by Oakland County sheriff's officers is John Czarnowski, age unknown, of 602 Longpoint, Lake Orion, who had barricaded himself in his boathouse, living quarters following a reported squabble with his wife.

He is charged by her with threatening to shoot her with a .35-caliber Martin rifle. The rifle was confiscated by Lake Orion police after Czarnowski was persuaded to surrender.

Six county cars responded to an appeal for help from the Lake Orion department after Mrs. Czarnowski escaped from the boathouse with another rifle, a .22-caliber.

She ran to neighbors, the Robert Chambers, 616 Longpoint. Mrs. Chambers notified police at 7:15 a.m.

BULL HORNS USED

Bull horns were used by deputies in an effort to persuade Czarnowski to surrender. He came out about 8:30 a.m. after an appeal by a friend, George R. Schindler of Detroit.

Tear gas was not needed according to Detective Charles Whitlock. Neighbors said the Czarnowskis had lived in the boathouse with living quarters on the second floor for about three or four years.

Navy Pilots Down 3 MIGs in Aerial Battle

ABOARD CARRIER BON HOMME RICHARD (AP)—In a raging dogfight against Communist MIGs "that were everywhere," U.S. Navy fliers said they knocked down three North Vietnamese planes today and probably got a fourth.

Two U.S. planes from the carrier Bon Homme Richard were shot up badly but both pilots brought them back safely. No planes from the carrier were lost in the strike against an oil depot about 20 miles north of the port of Haiphong.

"Their pilots were pretty good and they were aggressive," said Cmdr. M. H. "Red" Isaacks, 37, of San Diego, Calif., the leader of the first flight of fighter escorts over the target. "But they were not good enough. They made some mistakes."

Isaacks shot down one MIG and then brought his damaged plane back.

The F8 Crusader pilots ran into the MIGs as they approached the oil dump after encountering little groundfire on the way in.

'POPPED OUT OF CLOUDS'

"They just popped up out of the clouds," said Lt. Cmdr. Robert L. Kirkwood, 36, of Fall River, Mass., and San Diego, who was credited with a kill.

The other kill was made by Lt. Cmdr. Ray G. Hubbard Jr., 32, of Poway, Calif., and the probable was credited to 35-year-old Lt. j.g. Philip William Dempewolf of Bellevue, Iowa.

It was believed that later sifting of information would convert his probable to a confirmed kill.

It was the first MIG for each of the Navy fliers, although Hubbard had been credited with damaging one of the North Vietnamese jets on May 1.

The fliers knocked the MIGs out of the sky with rockets and gunfire, and one of the Red jets "exploded like a fireball," they said. Three "good" chutes were seen from all three planes, indicating the three Communist pilots parachuted safely.

Ex-Official, Builder Indicted

By JIM LONG

Oakland County grand juror James S. Thorburn late yesterday issued indictments against a former Madison Heights councilman and a Detroit builder.

Other indictments and warrants for the arrests of at least three more persons reportedly have been issued, but grand jury investigators refuse to disclose any information until they are taken into custody.

The indictments, the first handed out by Thorburn since he was named to succeed Circuit Judge Philip Pratt, accuses ex-Councilman Roman Nowicki with bribery and conspiracy to commit bribery.

He allegedly accepted $1,000 of a $6,000 bribe, according to the warrant, in return for his favorable vote on a rezoning matter.

The property, according to investigators, is located on the south side of 14 Mile Road at Barrington, near the I-75 expressway interchange. It was rezoned from residential to commercial, they say.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Indications grew today that the administration is putting finishing touches on its plans for a tax increase.

Government economists, armed with a late string of statistics, contended the economy is strong, buoyant and moving toward the boom they predicted last January.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and Undersecretary Joseph M. Barr huddled late yesterday with Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee in Mills' office.

And Fowler is expected to remain available this weekend for any possible high-level conference on taxes.

One source said a formal tax bill could be sent to Congress within 10 days.

President Johnson proposed a 6 per cent surtax on income taxes last January to help pay for the Vietnam war, hold down interest rates and stem inflationary pressure from the boom economists said was coming.

Johnson has not sent a formal tax message or tax legislation to Congress but at a news conference this week he reaffirmed his intention to do so.

He said the 6 per cent rate he proposed in January could be adjusted — presumably upward — but no decision has been made.

It's known, however, that alternatives ranging from 6 to 10 per cent have been submitted to the White House. But one source says he still expects the rate to be 6 per cent, at least for individuals.

Government officials are convinced the economy eventually will bear out their request for the tax hike.

They said the June figures—completed yesterday by the Commerce Department and showing personal income took its biggest jump since last January—offer some proof of this.

Kuhn Files Suit on Income Tax

Pontiac attorney Richard D. Kuhn today filed a suit in Detroit Federal District Court challenging the constitutionality of the new Michigan state income tax.

Kuhn charges that the income tax violates provisions of both the 1863 Michigan Constitution and the U.S. Constitution.

The suit requests a three-judge hearing on the act which was signed into law by Gov. Romney yesterday.

Kuhn was a Republican delegate to the 1962 Constitutional Convention which drafted the new State Constitution.

He is the brother of State Sen. George Kuhn, R - Birmingham, who recently asked Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley whether the tax law violated provisions of the constitution insuring the right to a referendum.

IN OWN BEHALF

In an informal letter, Kelley told Sen. Kuhn he thought the law was constitutional and would stand up in court.

Richard Kuhn filed the suit in his own behalf as a citizen and taxpayer.

He said the tax, if collected, would cause himself and other citizens "immediate and irreparable damage."

Ford Calls UAW's Goals 'Unrealistic, Complicated'

By The Associated Press

DETROIT — Ford Motor Co. received yesterday the last of the United Auto Workers' demands for new contracts and the company's chief negotiator termed them "complicated and unrealistic."

Sidney F. McKenna of Ford said the UAW demands made up "a longer list and of greater magnitude than they have confronted us with in past negotiations."

Henry Ford II, board chairman of Ford, previously had said the union goals were "unreasonable and unrealistic" and warned that labor strife may lie ahead unless the UAW softens its ambitions.

The contract talks, which began July 10, are aimed at reaching agreements to supplant year pacts expiring Sept. 6. The UAW represents 160,000 workers at Ford, 400,000 at General Motors Corp. and 95,000 at Chrysler Corp.

Next Tuesday, Ford will present to the union its proposals for contract changes.

The union and the UAW got into a dispute over what they would call a committee being set up to "explore and refine" one of the union's major proposals, guaranteed annual income.

LBJ, Chief of HUD Rip Antirat Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and federal housing chief Robert C. Weaver denounced as cruel and unjustified House rejection of a measure aimed at attacking rats in urban slum breeding grounds. Johnson, in a statement shortly after Thursday's 207-176 vote to sidetrack consideration of a two-year, $40-million rat eradication measure, urged House reconsideration of the administration-backed legislation.

“We are spending federal money to protect our livestock from rodents and predatory animals,” said the President. “The least we can do is give our children the same protection that we do our livestock.”

Weaver, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, called the House vote “thoughtless, heartless action” that “victimized the poor—and this time the helpless.”

Grievance on Pay for Teachers Aired

A grievance filed by the Waterford Education Association (WEA), involving the rate of pay for 10 teachers in a study program, was discussed at last night's board of education meeting.

The WEA contends the teachers should receive regular wages during the six-week program which began Monday. The administration claims the summer-study pay rate of $22 a day should prevail, based on provisions of the current contract.

Minneapolis Race Violence Flares Again

By the Associated Press
Rock throwing, at least two shootings and a dozen small fires were reported as violence flared up in Minneapolis, Minn., Thursday night and early today.

A police inspector said the second outbreak in two nights occurred on the Negro North Side of the city. There were no fatalities from the shootings but two injuries.

Earlier, Mayor Arthur Naftalin blamed the Wednesday night outbreak of street fights and fire-bombing on a few “lawless” individuals and said the Negro community was not at fault.

“We’re dealing with a few individuals who want to inflame the community,” he said. “For many days rumors of impending trouble have been circulating. In certain measure it was organized around the rumors themselves.”

Burham, N.C., some 300 Negroes staged a relatively peaceful march to City Hall to underline their demands for better housing and other social reforms.

THEN AND NOW — Shirley Temple Black (pictured at left during her childhood acting career as Shirley Temple and at right in a recent photo) is reportedly considering running for the congressional seat vacated by the death of Republican Rep. J. Arthur Younger of California. Mrs. Black said she would make her final decision in a week or two.

Former Child Star-Eyes Vacant Seat in Congress

WOODSIDE, CALIF. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black is thinking seriously of running for Congress. The former child movie star expects to announce her decision within two weeks.

Mrs. Black, 38, a Republican, said Thursday she was considering entering a Nov. 14 special election race because state Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, Atherton attorney, had decided against running.

“He was my candidate,” Mrs. Black said. “Now that Sen. Dolwig has made his announcement that he will not run, I am going to give the matter serious consideration.”

Gov. Ronald Reagan on Thursday set for Nov. 14 the special election to fill the fifth district seat vacated by the death of Rep. J. Arthur Younger. He died June 20 in Washington of leukemia.

If no candidate wins a majority in the Nov. 14 voting, a runoff election will be held Dec. 12.

Three Republicans already have announced for the seat representing San Mateo County, immediately south of San Francisco on the San Francisco Peninsula.

They are Paul N. McCloskey, Palo Alto attorney; Robert R. Barry, former New York congressman now living in Woodside, and Sheriff Eri Whitmore.

William Draper III, member of a wealthy investment banking family, has said he expects to decide shortly on making the race.

MSU Student Fee Hike Seen

By The Associated Press
Michigan State University's Board of Governors was to meet today and was expected to follow three other state universities in announcing a hike in student fees.

Wayne State University and Eastern Michigan University have announced boosts in student tuition.

The University of Michigan announced it would up student dormitory charges.

Higher cost of higher education for thousands of Michigan's college and university students were forecast after budget cutting by the last session of the state Legislature.

All 21 state-supported colleges and universities may fall in line and boost tuition fees.

The Legislature cut Gov. Romney's higher education budget and also rejected most of the individual schools' proposed appropriation it creases.

Wayne State of Detroit Thursday announced an increase of $99 to $300 yearly for resident and nonresident students, acting a day after Eastern Michigan's increase of $80 to $150.

The larger of the two sums will be charged against nonresident students in each instance.

Both EMU, an Ypsilanti institution with an anticipated 2,000 enrollment increase this fall, and Wayne State said that legislative appropriations beneath requested amounts were the cause.

Grand Juror Indicts 2 in Bribery Probe

A second party, not yet arrested, is also accused in the indictment.

The alleged bribe and rezoneing, according to the warrant, took place between March 1964 and February 1965.

The second indictment against Nowicki says that he and other parties did accept “gifts and gratuities from certain individuals” applying for state and local approval as package liquor dealers between January 1962 and June 1964.

ALREADY IN JAIL
Nowicki already was in jail when taken to his arraignment. He was sentenced to a one-year term on Monday after being found in contempt of court for failing to answer a grand jury subpoena.

He was defeated for reelection in April 1965.

Eggart and Branoff lost their bid on reelection in the primary two months earlier.

All Whites Are Excluded

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — From black nationalists to the NAACP, about 600 delegates to the first national conference on black power are gathered here today intent on making the once divisive slogan on the one day into a working model of Negro unity.

All whites, including newsmen, were formally excluded from all working sessions, and delegates, including the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee's Chairman H. Rap Brown, were asked not to give individual news conferences.

But the tone of the orientation session Thursday set by Negro

Black Power Confab Opens

comedian Dick Gregory and Los Angeles black nationalist Ron Karenga, was not so much anti-white and pro-black and anti-white exploitation.

Some speakers pointed out what they considered absurdities in the way the United States expects its nonwhite citizens to behave.

“GOT TO BE SICK”
“If whitey thinks he's going to send me to Vietnam to risk my life for instant freedom for a man who looks more like me than he (whitey) does while my wife and kids back home get freedom in the installment plan, he's got to be sick,” Gregory said to a storm of applause.

The main question, to be debated over three days in a series of 14 concurrent workshops, is what sort of action and organization Negroes should unite behind.

“Everybody knows whitey's a devil. The question is what are you doing to do about it?” asked Karenga.

Predictions are made risky by the fact that delegates come from almost all political factions of the Negro community.

'Dial-a-Class' Concept Eyed

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — A study it at least a year, Cook “dial-a-class” concept in education is being studied by the school district's board of trustees.

The idea is called “an exciting possibility” by David Cook, principal of the new Lahser High School.

He explained that with it, individual students or classes as a whole could phone or tune in on taped lectures or educational presentations.

“The idea is in common use in colleges and universities, and more and more high schools are installing them,” Cook said.

The program, labeled “Dial Access Retrieval System,” will not be instituted this fall, and board members are expected to study it at least a year, Cook said.

CENTRAL OFFICE
The program would call for a central office containing tapes. Teachers or individuals could dial for the desired material.

Cook sees an ever-increasing application of the basic principle. “This would greatly expand possibilities in language teaching, where this process is familiarly used, as well as all other disciplines.

“Even the football coach could use it for skull sessions,” Cook said.

The student would not necessarily have to be in school to dial a class, he pointed out.

MINIMAL COST
Cook called the idea the best use of updated, electronic devices and pointed out the cost could very well be minimal due to the possibility of reducing the amount of teachers and space needed.

“Looking farther into the future he sees the system as easily incorporated as a community service.

“It could someday be available for home use and taxpayers would get a direct benefit for their dollars spent,” he said.

No Success in Manhunt for 4 Killers

The manhunt for the killers of Edward Emmett DeConick, 83, West Bloomfield Township trustee, continues unabated to day, 18 days after the brutal slaying.

A combined effort by township, county and State Police, aided by FBI agents, has thus far failed to bring about an arrest.

DeConick was killed at his home at 5847 W. Maple the night of July 3 by a gang of four intruders — three Negro males and a light-skinned woman.

His sister, Kathleen DeConick, 73, was beaten and shot in the head, losing her left eye, but is recovering in a Pontiac Hospital.

Police are checking criminals with various backgrounds and keeping a lookout for the pieces of jewelry taken in the $25,000 robbery.

A $6,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of members of the gang has been offered, $5,000 by the Detroit News and $1,000 by The Pontiac Press.

The ready-made concrete business, an enterprise of small proportions just a decade ago, now involves more than 3,000 companies and annual sales of more than $2.4 billion.

Death Cause Unknown on Man in Pool

The cause of death of an 80-year-old man whose body was found in a swimming pool in Bloomfield Township yesterday was undetermined today.

Henry J. Fericks, gardener at the home of C. W. Smith of 3068 Chickering, was discovered dead in the pool at noon.

Township police said he had apparently accidentally fallen into the pool, perhaps while stricken with a heart attack.

Oakland County sheriff's deputies said today the body bore no marks and it was not known if drowning or illness was the fatal cause. No autopsy was performed.

Tam Seeking 1970 Tourney

Tam O'Shanter Country Club on Orchard Lake Road in West Bloomfield Township yesterday made a bid in Denver to host the 1970 PGA championship.

At first the club considered a bid for the 1969 tournament. However, pro Warren O'Flack said the club wanted more time to get its course into top condition.

Tam O'Shanter recently completed a half-million dollar remodeling program to the clubhouse and adjacent buildings.

The current PGA championship is being played in Denver where the PGA executive committee is also holding its annual meeting.

PONTIAC CARS IN DERAILMENT — About 175 new Pontiacs, including several experimental models, were stacked up in piles yesterday after 13 cars of a Monon Railroad freight train derailed in Warratah, Ind. Damage to the cars was placed at $300,000. One train crewman suffered a minor injury. The cause of the derailment is being sought.

Hare: Cyclists and Motorists Must Coexist

LANSING (AP) — Most motorcycleists are not "hippies out for kicks or members of lawless gangs," says Secretary of State James Hare.

Hare, also chairman of the State Safety Commission, said Michigan's some 4.5 million motorists must learn to coexist on today's crowded roads with a growing army of some 100,000 cyclists.

"Both must develop techniques of road safety to compensate for the vast differences in cars and cycles," Hare said. "The new breed of bike rider," Hare said, "is often a person who genuinely enjoys the pleasures of motorcycling. The two-wheelers are inexpensive, economical and easy to park."

LIGHTER CYCLES

"Many businessmen are turning to them. With lighter cycles, many women have taken to riding them too."

Hare said motorists should keep one main safety principle in mind.

"Give cycles plenty of room," he advised. "Don't crowd. Don't tailgate. Make sure the stopping distance is sufficient to provide for absolute safety."

Hare's other tips were to give the motorcycles plenty of room in passing and to watch for cyclists coming from behind. Many have been hurt, he said, when cars suddenly stopped.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A series of federal and congressional actions improve the outlook for U.S. consumers. If all bear fruit, buyers may not necessarily save money but they'll be assured a fairer shake in the marketplace.

While federal agencies moved Thursday to implement or impose rules governing sale of food and transistor radios, congressional subcommittees worked toward improving the auto insurance shopper's lot, letting credit buyers know what credit costs and looking out for fair travelers.

These were the developments: — The Federal Trade Commission proposed a rule that would force sellers of transistor radios to list in their advertising and labeling a true count of the number of transistors.

The FTC said the practice of listing transistors that don't really add to a radio's effectiveness misleads purchasers into believing certain radios are better than they actually are.

INSURANCE PROBE

— It was learned that Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., has ordered the staff of his House Antitrust subcommittee to probe the auto insurance industry. Aim of the investigation: To see whether the industry should retain its 1945 congressional exemption from antitrust laws.

The probe apparently resulted from a request by subcommittee members Reps. Peter J. Rodino, D-N.J., and William T. Cahill, R-N.J., who told Celler in a letter of widespread complaints that auto insurance firms discriminate among purchasers on racial, occupational and economic grounds.

— Chairman Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., of the House Consumer Affairs subcommittee urged the panel to make tougher so-called "truth-in-lending" measure that recently cleared the Senate.

The Senate-passed bill would require most lenders to list the true annual interest they charge. Mrs. Sullivan is pushing for a federal ceiling of 18 percent on financing charges — far below the maximum often charged — plus a ban on garnishment of wages to satisfy debts.

FOOD PACKAGING

The Food and Drug Administration announced its new rules requiring food packages to state clearly on labels the quantity in each package. The rules become effective Dec. 31. Starting then, each food container must specify in boldface type the net quantity in total ounces for all containers less than four pounds or one gallon.

Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., announced the House Commerce Committee would start public hearings Monday on aviation safety.

He said the committee may try to determine the cause of Wednesday's collision of a small private plane and a commercial transport which killed 82 persons in North Carolina.

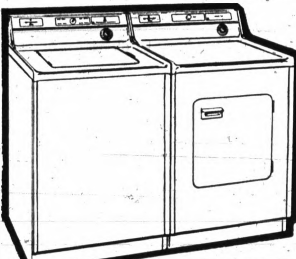

To Air Milk Order

TRAVERSE CITY (AP) — A meeting of northern Lower Michigan dairy farmers is scheduled Aug. 1 to discuss amendments to the milk marketing order, the U. S. Agriculture Department announced. The proposals would raise the price paid farmers for Class II and III milk used in manufactured dairy products and establish a special price for milk used in cottage cheese. The marketing order includes dairy farmers in Cadillac, Manistee, Petoskey, Rogers City, Boyne City and Traverse City.

To Zone or Not to Zone—That Is the Question

Trailer Park Issue Swirling in Almont

ALMONT — Village officials here are stirring up a proverbial hornet's nest in their search for what they believe to be adequate control of future trailer park sites.

Several residents have expressed the opinion that no zoning for such parks would be better than any legislation at all.

As Clerk Verne Messer explains it, "The council feels that a court could force us to allow trailer parks here. Rather than to have that happen, we feel it would be better to set up adequate legislation which would give us some control over the parks."

An amendment to the zoning ordinance allowing for such zoning as an exception to the general business classification was passed at a recent stormy meeting.

On Aug. 15 the council will conduct a public hearing on a trailer coach ordinance falling under that classification and will at the same time consider a rezoning application allowing trailers on 52 acres of land within the village.

The job of preparing the ordinances has fallen to newly employed Village Administrator Ernest King, formerly city aide and police chief at Farmington.

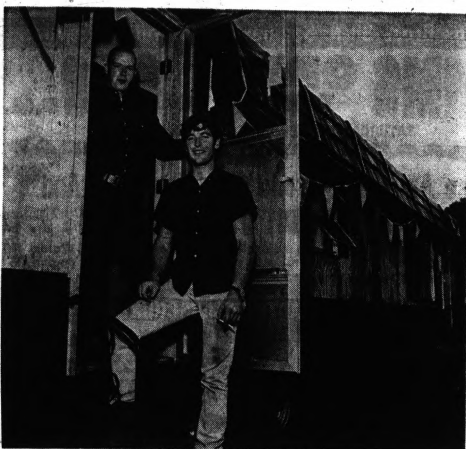

He admits he's getting his initiation under fire.

Bringing the issue to immediate attention are the plans of W.C. Lane of Florida and his son, W.E. Lane of Romeo, for establishing a trailer or mobile home park in the northwest corner of town on land now zoned residential but used for farming.

Champion Home Builders Inc. of Dryden, a nearby manufacturer of house trailers, has brought one into town for inspection by the residents in the hope of changing a few minds.

VARIED REACTIONS

The trailer sits on a Main Street gas station lot, and the emotions it evokes are varied. Some people have taken the opportunity to view its interior, but the through traffic is not noticeably congested, according to reports.

IN FAVOR OF TRAILERS — Two Almont residents, Jack Corbin (left), 8327 Tubspring, and James Sloan, 8755 Tubspring, view the Champion trailer on display at Almont with no alarm. Corbin, who with his wife and baby now lives in a trailer on private property, sees nothing wrong with them. Sloan said he agrees.

Court Disagrees With Thief — He's a Fearsome Figure

LANSING (AP) — It was 4 a.m. and the waitress was working alone in the all-night diner. A male customer in a heavy dark coat told her: "OK, this is a robbery," court testimony showed.

"You're kidding," the waitress said.

Then she decided he wasn't. Although he did not threaten her or show a weapon, she followed his instructions—filling a paper sack with money from the two cash registers, then lying on the floor while he escaped.

Martin L. Laker, appealed his subse-

'FRIGHTENING CIRCUMSTANCES'

The State Court of Appeals disagreed with Laker Thursday.

"The circumstances here of a waitress alone in the early morning hours, and a man ordering her to hand over money and lie on the floor, were enough to induce fear," the court said, adding:

"The only indication that the waitress was not put in fear was her initial remark, 'You're kidding.' We are not inclined to place great importance on the initial reaction of the waitress. What is important is the entire factual situation presented in the record."

The robbery occurred March 29, 1965, in Royal Oak.

Orchard Lake Council Retains New Firm as City's Legal Adviser

ORCHARD LAKE — The firm of Hartman, Beier, Howlett and McConnell of Pontiac will replace William W. Sloucum Jr. of Birmingham as the city's legal council.

The City Council has retained the new firm for $2,500, said Mayor Sylvester Leahy.

"The council felt it was desirable to retain a new law firm," explained Leahy. He declined to explain further on the change. Sloucum had been the city's attorney for the past 10 years.

Sloucum, however, will continue to represent the city in its financial dispute with West Bloomfield Township. The dispute originated three years ago when Orchard Lake became a city.

And should the city cut overgrown weeds on vacant lots?

WEED CUTTING EYED

Mayor Leahy is investigating this problem. If the city cuts the weeds, costs will be added to the property owner's tax bill.

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — Residents of Woodcrest North subdivision have assurance for the present that there will be a 100-foot buffer between their homes and a proposed shopping center at Maple and Orchard Lake roads.

Borman Food Co., developer of the shopping center, has been refused rezoning of the buffer from single family residential to commercial by the Township Board.

Borman had several plans for the 1½-acre buffer area. They included first a group of specialty shops, supermarket, bank and restaurant; a department store; and lastly a garden

City Manager Gets Go-Ahead on Water Pact

WALLED LAKE — City Manager Royce Downey got the go ahead for a $1.6-million contract for completion of the city's water system. He received the authority from the City Council.

By December 1968, Downey said, the city will be supplying all residents with water. Presently, the city water system's two wells serve 30 per cent of the residents. The operating wells are in the Tri-A and Carole Acres subdivisions. The city's remaining residents have their own wells, Downey said.

The contract will be for construction of water mains and two other pumping stations. The stations will be on Pontiac Trail near Ann Jo and at the intersection of Ladd and Maple.

The council also accepted the appointment of James Gilmore as the new fire chief. Gilmore previously was the fire department's dispatcher.

Gilmore is replacing Basil Stoddard Jr. of Wall Lake, who resigned several weeks ago. Stoddard had been chief for the past 1½ years. He is now employed in insurance repair in Pontiac.

Board Refuses Buffer Rezoning center, service drive and parking lot.

The board's reason for refusal of rezoning was that the commercial area would be almost in the back yards of the subdivision residents.

The board also refused rezoning from residential to office a 3½-acre parcel on Maple, adjoining the shopping center area. The Borman company intended to build a professional office building on that site.

REQUESTED HEARING

The rezoning refusal came at a hearing before the township board, requested by the firm. It was not a public hearing, because the planning commission and the Oakland County Coordinating Planning and Zoning Committee had recommended denial of the zoning change.

The board also set a hearing date of Aug. 2, for proposed rezoning to office of Lot 40 Automobile Country Club Subdivision. The lot is on Orchard Lake Road near the Grand Trunk Western Railroad tracks.

The board scheduled a public hearing on the budget for Aug. 2 at 7:30 p.m. at the township hall. Citizens can examine the budget in the township clerk's office after July 26.

Youth in Firm Program

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP — Dan Craven of 6666 Wealthy, a senior at Michigan State, is taking part in a special program this summer provided by the Goodyear-Rubber Co.

At the firm's school in Akron, Ohio, Craven is both working and studying the industry.

was told the prospects for it were dim because most of the damage was to personal property.

At least two deaths resulted from the flooding. More than five inches of rain fell on the area in less than two hours Wednesday afternoon, according to an unofficial measurement.

The downpour and flooding were restricted to Macomb, Oakland and parts of Wayne Counties. The stricken communities included northwest Detroit, Royal Oak Township, Royal Oak, Hazel Park, Madison Heights, Sterling Township and Warren.

City crews worked Wednesday night and yesterday to pump water from streets and residential areas. But there were still scattered lakes of rainwater yesterday evening.

UTILITIES REPAIRED

Michigan Bell repairmen spent Thursday catching up with 4,800 telephone lines knocked out by the storm. Detroit Edison crews completed repairs on downed wires, blown transformers and other power failures that caused 1,157 trouble calls.

the water out of flooded cellars, cleaning Area residents spent the day pumping up what they could of the mess and wondering what to do about soaked and debris-covered furniture, clothes, fur-naces and cars.

Warren Mayor Ted Bates asked Gov. George Romney to declare the city part of a disaster area. Romney sent State police to survey the city with Bates yesterday.

"If we're eligible, we'll ask for aid," Romney said. But yesterday afternoon T. A. Vangen of the federal office of emergency planning in Battle Creek told him Warren's flood damage didn't qualify for help.

In Washington, Rep. James O'Hara, D-Mich., and Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., asked yesterday that the Corps of Engineers check the drainage in the entire stricken area.

Drive for Troy School Election Near Success

TROY — A petition drive to call for a new school millage vote is expected to go "over the top" this weekend.

At least 700 signatures are sought to request the school board to set a new millage proposal before the voters. The millage is needed to cut a $465,000 deficit the district is facing which has called for numerous cuts in school programs.

The drive got under way after an emotion-packed board meeting last week.

At the meeting it was decided to keep the "modular" scheduling at the high school and retain Principal Joseph Bechard — under attack for alleged mishandling of the program.

It was also announced that the austerity program would be put into effect in the fall, with sports, music and art being dropped, along with at least 22 teachers.

SPORTS SCHEDULING

Since then, a group of coaches and citizens have taken over the sports scheduling to insure Troy being represented in league play.

At the close of the meeting, a petition drive got under way in the hope of salvaging some of the programs.

One of the petition-takers, John R. Baker of 192 Kirk, said today petitions are still being circulated by 25 volunteers.

Tabulation is to take place Monday in time for Tuesday presentation to the board, he said.

$170,000 to 4 Children Orphaned by Collision

MOUNT CLEMENS (AP) — The grandparents of four Southfield children orphaned in a 1965 traffic collision have been awarded a damage settlement of $170,000.

The settlement was approved in Macomb County Circuit Court in behalf of the children of Peter A. Grapp, 32, and his wife, Jean, 29, killed when their car and a lumber company station wagon collided. The youngest child is 4.

The award was against Robert H. Roese, 31, of Shelby Township, driver of the station wagon, and Ulrich Lumber & Builder Supply, Inc., of Warren, owner of the station wagon.

Roese is on probation for negligent homicide in the crash.

The children's grandfather, Peter H. Grapp of Southfield, brought the suit.

No Vacation for Avondale High School

Avondale High School, normally a dust collector during the summer months, is being put to good use this year by 62 college and elementary school students participating in an unusual remedial reading program.

Thirty-one youngsters, aged 8 to 13, are being tutored on an individual basis by 31 experienced teachers who, in turn, are being supervised by Dr. Hal Capbone, a professor of education at Oakland University.

"It's both a training situation for the teachers as well as a program for the students," noted Capbone. "Everyone benefits—the youngsters, their parents, the teachers and the school district."

The teachers are taking part in the program as part of a course they are taking for master's degree credits in education at OU. All of them have had at least one regular course in the teaching of reading and are regular teachers in numerous area school districts.

The teachers are now in their fourth of five weeks to be spent with the youngsters.

'RISE TO OCCASION'

"The teachers have risen to the occasion," said Capbone. "The long hours and heavy loads they are carrying are far in excess of what would be demanded of them in a regular lecture class situation. I'm delighted with the group."

Student and teacher meet each week morning for one and one-half hours after which the teachers gather for about an hour in small groups to discuss what they've been doing with their youngsters. They then attend a regular 90-minute lecture class on techniques of reading problem diagnosis and remediation taught by Dr. Capbone and can meet with him privately for conferences after the lecture.

Each teacher keeps daily records of his youngster's progress and makes out a final report which will be given to the child's regular teacher this fall. The report will indicate what has been done with the student over the summer, what his difficulties are and what might be done to correct them.

BUILDING SUPPLIED FREE

The Avondale School District has supplied free of charge the building which would otherwise stand unused over the summer, instructional materials and a bus to take the group on field trips.

"It's an ideal situation for the youngsters," said Dr. Capbone.

He said that the going rate for this kind of instruction, which the university is providing without charge, would be about $10 an hour.

He explained that there are no simple reasons for reading difficulties but that a number of physical, psychological and educational factors may contribute to the youngster of normal intelligence developing a reading problem.

BETTER SELF-IMAGE

"When they fall behind, they began to doubt themselves and thereby complicate their own problems. If emotional difficulties aren't part of the original problem, they usually enter in eventually."

"None of us are psychologists. We just try to teach the student and help him develop a better self-image. All of these kids have responded."

In working with the youngsters, the teacher uses the student's own interests as a basis for instruction. If, for example, he has an interest in fishing, the teacher will find reading material on that subject that is fitted to the youngster's reading level and read it with him.

"After a trip to Cranbrook," Capbone said, "a number of them developed an interest in growing rock crystals. In order to grow them here at the school, they had to find instructions and read them." Avondale High School now is equipped with a flourishing collection of rock crystals.

CAMERAS PROVIDED

Six cameras have been provided for the program. On field trips, student and teacher take snapshots and later the student writes a report on the trip.

Dr. Capbone said this summer's program should be a meaningful step toward establishment of a closer bond between the university and the area's public schools.

"Too often the university is an 'ivory tower' in the community. The university has to step out toward the schools. We have ideas and information that can help the school get the job done. We want them to feel free to come to us when they need assistance."

He said the program has demanded much time and effort from everyone concerned but that the benefits more than make it all worthwhile.

"It's been a lot of work, I don't think I'll do this again — until next summer."

PROJECT PROGRESS — Bruce Alluvot and teacher Dave Sommers review a report prepared following their recent trip to Cranbrook Institute of Science. Projects on the desk and bulletin board represent visual evidence of Bruce's progress.

Each has been read and written about by the student. Sommers taught at Avondale Junior High School last year and will move to Avondale High School this fall.

Quakers Plan to Ship Medical Supplies to N. Viet Again Soon

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—An American Quaker organization which recently transported a cargo of medical supplies to North Vietnam in defiance of the U. S. government today made known it will try to make another shipment soon.

"It's a matter of conscience," said Lawrence Scott, 58, the white-haired leader of the project. "When people are being bombed and are bleeding, it's a religious risk to try to help them, whoever they are."

Despite a tightening web of federal pressures and roadblocks, the undeterred task group is going ahead with its plan in a gathering funds, screening volunteers, awaiting a go-ahead from the North Vietnam Red Cross.

"We're lining up a new boat crew," Scott said. The sponsoring unit, of which he is secretary, is called simply, "A Quaker Action Group." To indicate it is only one of various Quaker approaches to the situation.

MEETING HOUSE

It operates from a scuffed three-room office on the second floor of the old, red-brick 12th Street Quaker Meeting House in midtown Philadelphia, in an atmosphere of informal improvisation—of cluttered mail, peace posters, ringing telephones and anticipation.

"I'm excited," said a tow-headed college boy when asked how he felt as a potential recruit for the intended new voyage into Haiphong. He's among about 40 who have offered their services for the outlawed mission, aimed at helping civilian war casualties.

It still is contingent on approval from North Vietnam, Scott said, adding that arrangements are being made through correspondence handled from abroad to avoid government interception. However, the sailing date is expected to be in late August.

Scott said the organization has chartered for a year's use the 50-foot U. S. ketch, Phoenix, which carried an initial $10,000 medical shipment to Haiphong last March. The crewmen on that voyage were ordered deprived of their passports.

PROSECUTION URGED

In Washington Thursday, officials of the U. S. Treasury Department said it had recommended to the Justice Department prosecution of those crew members under the assets control provisions of the Trading with the Enemy Act.

The Justice Department said the case is under review. Con-

Crash Is Fatal to State Woman

SOMERSET, Pa. (UPI)—Mrs. Rose Habel of Lincoln Park, Mich., was killed yesterday in an accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, two miles west of the Somerset interchange.

A turnpike spokesman said Mrs. Habel was riding in a carpool-truck that was slowing for an accident ahead when it was hit in the rear by a tractor-trailer.

Some 1,400,000 Germans will visit Spain this year.

State Police to Seek Nonwhites

LANSING (AP)—Michigan's state civil service director said Thursday an increased emphasis will be placed on recruiting nonwhites as candidates for State Police trooper positions.

Franklin Dewald reported that a recent study of trooper applications showed only 31 of 1,364 were nonwhite.

The study was conducted at the request of Sen. Coleman Young, D-Detroit.

Young had complained that State Police, without a single Negro trooper, had not made enough effort to recruit Negroes.

SCREENING PROCESS

Dewald said the study showed seven of the 31 nonwhites passed the written examination. All but one were eliminated by a subsequent screening process.

Jack Hall, a former Benton Harbor policeman, currently is in his eighth week of the police training school.

State Police Director Fredrick Davids reported Hall is in the top half of his recruit class.

Troy Coaches Rate 'A' for Athletics

The proven axiom "Where there's a will there's a way" was never more truly exemplified than by the action of five athletics coaches of the Troy High School.

With the school district facing an operating deficit of $375,000 for the 1967 fiscal year, aggravated by voter rejection in June of a millage tax increase, an austerity program became imperative. Part of it was the elimination of high school athletics.

But the athletic director and four coaches blew the whistle on the cut by agreeing to serve without supplemental pay amounting to $11,500 to enable the school to field teams in eight branches of athletics.

The teams will do their part by making do with available equipment and uniforms while transportation has been underwritten by local citizens.

We warmly commend the fine spirit shown by the group of Troy High School coaches and their personal interest in the student body. It comes at a time when there is a growing disregard of it by teaching staffs as they push salary and procedural demands in contradiction to the idealism that once distinguished their calling.

Let us hope that the example of selfless service set in Troy may find emulation throughout the scholastic community.

C.A.B. May Cut Off Airlines' 'Free' Drinks

The Civil Aeronautics Board has given the airline industry until Monday to comment on a proposed regulation that would end the practice of serving "free" drinks on airlines. On most trunk airlines, first-class passengers receive free drinks and coach passengers pay $1 a drink. (Either way, there is a limit of two per person).

It could be argued that gratis liquor and all the other perquisites of first-class air travel are not free at all; that the cost is more than met by the considerable difference between first-class and coach fares.

Still, the C.A.B. proposes "to require that each passenger who receives such in-flight service shall be assessed a charge therefor which shall be reasonably related to the cost and value of the service, in all classes of service."

The proposed rule may be a long time in coming into force. Just one year ago, the C.A.B. asked nine major carriers to show why they should not run their air terminal clubs in a non-discriminatory manner.

Members of such clubs are selected on the basis of how many fares or how much goodwill they can generate. Since there are no membership charges, it was obvious that the fares of non-members as well as of members help to meet operating expenses.

The C.A.B. still has not handed down a decision.

Industry the Lifeblood of Community Prosperity

Inducing a payroll-producing, tax-paying industry to locate in a town is the objective of most communities. Therefore, the remarks of an executive of a company that located in Albany, Georgia, to build business airplanes are of more than passing interest to many localities.

They give a measure of what a prosperous, progressive industry means to any area. No city, or indeed state, can better attest the truth of this than Pontiac or Michigan, favored as they are as the seat of the gigantic automotive industry.

passenger cars are registered; 74 jobs are created in addition to the 100 factory jobs; there is $590,000 more in personal income per year; $270,000 in bank deposits and $360,000 in retail trade.

But, beyond that, new industry means more young people will find employment and advancement in their home towns.

The spokesman concluded his observations with this truism: "We have to run a successful, competitive enterprise or both we and the community are in trouble. If the community is hurt in some way, our plant is hurt. If the plant is hurt, the community suffers. That's why we must cooperate with each other."

This is a relationship that holds true and makes good sense in every community large or small all across the Nation.

Critical Trouble With China Ahead

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Dean Rusk raised the lid just enough for a brief look inside a box of dynamite — Red China of the future — a subject which seems to be getting scant public attention.

In the midst of one of his most infrequent news conferences he warned Red China and Asian Communists generally against "taking any comfort" from Britain's decision to withdraw militarily from the Far East by the mid-1970s.

That there is critical trouble ahead with Red China seems certain.

At the moment it has stayed out of the Vietnam war, perhaps for one of several reasons, some of them cynical.

Further, the Red Chinese have been concentrating for years on developing hydrogen bombs and missiles.

BIG SUCCESS
They have had phenomenal success so far with the bomb development. A war might wreck the whole project.

But the last thing the Red Chinese have to worry about is being in a hurry to communicate or dominate their neighbors. Those neighbors will have a long time.

When China has the bomb fully developed, and the missiles to carry it, the balance of power in Asia will change, and perhaps change in the world. Therefore, it can afford cynically to sit idly by while the Vietnamese war goes on.

Suppose the North Vietnamese are forced to withdraw by the American force. And, suppose further, with American help South Vietnam then creates a non-Communist, democratic government.

TIME TO MOVE IN

This could last for some years — but only so long as the missile-loaded Chinese found it convenient — until China decided it was time to move in, either directly or indirectly with local Communist forces.

Would the United States

then be willing to risk an atomic war with China for South Vietnam. Or by then through fear and fatigue would South Vietnam be far more ready to accept Communist domination.

If this happens, then all of this country's sacrifices for Vietnam in these days will have been for nothing.

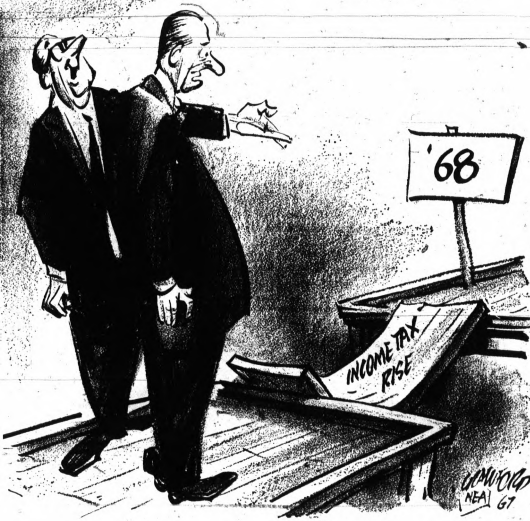

Or suppose a nuclear China began pressuring the other neighbors around its vast perimeter. Would their present resistance to communism, strong today, when the United States and not Red China is the nuclear power, then melt?

It seems obvious that as China grows in nuclear strength the various local Communist parties within China's neighbors will feel strengthened and become more active.

The best hope for this country is that a more reasonable group will take over it. China's leadership among the fanatics of Mao's generation die off.

At best this is only a hope, and maybe not a sound one.

What lies ahead looks like a nightmare.

"It Could Be The First Plank In Your New Platform!"

David Lawrence Says:

Rail Formula Is a Step Forward

WASHINGTON — It may be confidently predicted that there will not be a nationwide railroad strike again.

The formula which has just been put into effect by an act of Congress has been called "compulsory arbitration." But it does not LAWRENCE really become so unless collective-bargaining process have been fully utilized and until a board of experienced labor and business mediators—appointed by the President—has endeavored to bring both sides together.

It is only when no agreement is reached between the parties themselves that the terms of settlement proposed by the independent commission become final and binding.

This week's action by Congress, therefore, is a definitive step forward.

Just three years ago, Mr. Johnson tried a different tack. As one veteran negotiator at that time put it, the President "took personal charge of the actual negotiations, and kept them right in the White House." But the same negotiator added:

"Now, this means that when the next big dispute develops, the industry and union will expect Mr. Johnson to take over the job of mediating it."

"They will be afraid to work out their own agreement if they think he may call them in for White House peacemaking."

This is precisely what has developed during the current dispute.

President Johnson this week, on signing the new law, said:

"We had hoped that the parties would reach their own agreement, without the need for legislation. But for more than a year, companies and unions alike were unable to find a solution—despite the help of three special boards, members of Congress, and the Secretary of Labor."

The big question now is what steps will be taken to deal with nationwide disputes before they become full-fledged strikes.

More attention undoubtedly will have to be given to measures that will forestall work stoppages which damage the public interest.

Except in wartime, Congress has rarely interfered with strikes, no matter how far-reaching their effects happened to be.

The legislation just enacted applies only to the railroads and for a specified period of time.

Will Congress eventually give the president authority to intervene in the same way before any serious strike is called and to proclaim that the terms set by an independent board must be accepted and that no strike will be permitted?

Union labor will, of course, oppose any measures that could weaken its right to strike. The argument is that employers will refuse to make concessions when they know the government will intervene.

Bob Considine Says:

Old Teacher Gets Thanks Nearly Half-Century Late

EN ROUTE IRELAND — I'm off on a trip to the Old Sod with an old friend, Sister Bernard of the Sisters of Notre Dame da Namur.

It's a little gesture of gratitude, slightly overdue. Sister Bernard was my teacher in the sixth grade of St. Aloysius Grammar School in Washington, D.C. nearly half a century ago.

Sister Bernard and I drifted far apart in the years that followed, her patient and inspiring efforts to be able to understand the country. My teacher will tell me what it's all about.

Then one day came an astonishing report that she was still alive. I flew to Washington to St. Aloysius. I walked down the hallway of the old school, past classroom after classroom that I had sat (and sometimes studied) in.

REMEMBERS STUDENT

And there at the end of the hall, in the eighth grade—advancement is rapid in the order of Notre Dame, da Namur—sat Sister Bernard.

Sister Bernard looked up at the intruder. She looked exactly as she had looked when the intruder had sat at her feet. She looked 80, a fine and fit 80.

"Hello, Robert," she said in her fine voice. She had not seen me for 40 years.

I told her I couldn't believe it was possible that she would remember.

MAKES MISTAKE

"I remember all of you," she said of her generations of students. "And I have a bone to pick with you," she added with mock severity. "I read a piece about you recently which quoted you as stating that you got your training in writing at George Washington University.

"You know very well that that's not true. You learned to write right here," and she pointed to the second desk in the first row. "You learned to write thorough compositions, such as the ones I have here on my desk."

"So did two other boys in that class, George Garner (now NY Daily News) and Felix Belair (NY Times). George sat opposite you in the second aisle and Felix, let me see, of course, Felix sat here in front."

I wrote a book about Ireland once upon a time, but I felt that only now will I be able to understand the country. My teacher will tell me what it's all about.

Rule of Law
Chicago Tribune

In the Voice of the People today appears a letter from Charles Cogen, president of the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO), in which he criticizes a recent Tribune editorial on teachers' strikes.

The editorial noted that two teachers unions had been punished for defying court injunctions against strikes.

His main point is that teachers' unions have learned that strikes have benefited the union members and therefore they will be continued regardless of laws or court orders.

The letter closes with a slur on school board members, who work countless hours for no pay and are probably the most public-spirited citizens in

Reader Questions Need for Added Income Taxes

Why are the State income tax and the newly proposed city income tax necessary? Some commentators say it is because so many persons are making a career of living on the dole and welfare. Is this true? Certainly it is not a case of the taxpayer getting any more for his tax money than he did 20 or 30 years ago. We enjoyed the same governmental services even in the days before the Michigan State Sales Tax was levied as a "temporary" measure.

It has been said that higher taxes are the result of growth. This is not logical. If there are more people needing the services provided by government, it follows that there should be more people also paying taxes to provide these services. The ratio of income required for taxes paid by each individual should remain about the same.

Surely these matters require a referendum, but the high-handed politicians and sociologists refuse this democratic process. So those who have to work for a living continue to pay and pay.

'Service of Ambulances May Save Lives'

"Silence Ambulances" is all you read. Have these people or their loved ones ever been in an ambulance trying to get to the hospital in an emergency? Have they ever lain beside the road wondering when the ambulance would come? Do these complainers move off the road to let an ambulance go by? I thank God that we are able to have the service ambulances give and pray they make it in time to save another life.

B. M.

For seven years I have shuddered every time an ambulance with sirens wailing travels on Huron, but not because of the wailing sirens. It may be going to pick up someone I know or trying to get a relative to the hospital in time to save a life or a limb. I shudder at the utter disregard of motorists on Huron. Most try to see if they can beat the ambulance, seldom do they even slow down, and never do they pull over and stop.

In place of criticism, everyone who hears a siren screech, wail or whoopee should say a prayer that it makes it safely and in time to save a life.

Question and Answer

I have nothing against motorcycles, but we have a couple in our neighborhood that make so much noise they just about take the roof off as they go by. Isn't there something to put on them that will quiet them down a little?

INDIAN VILLAGE RESIDENT

REPLY

Dealers tell us motorcycles are relatively quiet when they come from the factory and when they are sold — only slightly noisier than a car. The noise comes when alterations are made on the machine, and if the motorcycles in your neighborhood are deafening, it's because the owners like them that way. There are laws against excessive noise, and police will write a ticket for it if you call them when the motorcycle is cruising your area. Dealers also hope citizens will make complaints against offenders, because they don't like noisy motorcycles any more than you — it's bad for their business.

the United States. Mrs. Cogen calls them "carefree, arrogant, and dictatorial."

The most disturbing feature of this letter is Mr. Cogen's frank denials of anarchy. Every property owner knows that if he fails to pay his taxes, most of which goes to schools, the local governments will invoke laws against him and his property may be sold to satisfy the unpaid taxes.

This is one form of the rule of law. Everybody must pay taxes, or government would collapse. Property owners may complain about taxes, but they must pay them.

Mr. Cogen no doubt agrees that all property owners should pay taxes, especially school taxes. He does not urge disobedience of all laws. He favors disobedience of only laws and court orders that inconvenience his union. But if Mr. Cogen can disobey laws he opposes, why can't the taxpayers do the same?

To Mr. Cogen, the rule of law is too slow. His letter says his organization has an "arsenal of weapons," including mass resignations, if a board of education refuses to arrive at a "satisfactory" agreement.

And who is to judge what is satisfactory? Not the taxpayers or their elected representatives. Not the courts. The only fountain of goodness, wisdom, and justice, in Mr. Cogen's view, is his union — or, perhaps, himself.

Family Films, Animal Projects

Producer Follows Disney Path

Lion

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — He scarcely fits the Walt Disney image, being stocky, goateed and Hungarian accented. To the inevitable question in interviews, he replies:

"No, I don't want to be the second Walt Disney. I want to be the first Ivan Tors."

Yet the comparison remains, and almost every week brings an announcement of a new project that makes it appear that Ivan Tors is destined to attract the same kind of family audience that flocked to the late, great Disney.

Tors' latest venture puts him into the amusement park business, pioneered by Disneyland. The film producer has announced he will build two large attractions, called Animal Kingdom, in California and Florida. His entrance into this field is somewhat reluctant, he admitted.

FORCED BY DEMAND

"There is such a demand for leisure-time attractions that I have been forced to get into the business, whether I wanted to or not," he sighed. "Also, the cost of keeping animals has become so great that I have to find ways of offsetting it. When you have 600 to 700 animals, as we do, it means employing 40 trainers and a full-time veterinarian just to give the animals shots."

"Originally, I didn't want to open the compounds to the public because I was afraid the exposure to people might harm them. But now I find it is necessary."

The Florida Animal Kingdom will be situated on 4,000 acres Tors owns at Palm Beach Gardens; the California location is yet to be selected. His present Africa, U.S.A., 50 miles north of Hollywood, is not big enough for a public operation.

The plan is to allow the animals to roam as freely as possible—the more obstreperous beasts would be isolated on islands—and humans would be permitted to drive among them in their own cars or safari trucks.

PREFERS ANIMALS

You get the faint impression from talking with Tors that while he is not entirely a misanthrope, he somehow prefers the character of animals to that of his own species. Indeed, he is a persistent preacher of the lack of hostility on the part of animals toward humans.

"I first discovered this when I was producing 'Sea Hunt,'" he explains. "During all the years we made the series, no shark ever attacked us, nor were we nipped by a barracuda. After that I decided not to believe in the zoology I had learned in school."

"I am convinced that no animal will attack a human being unless it is provoked. Once in Africa a lioness came up to my car, rubbed against it and walked on. It obviously had no interest in me. We look like apes to lions, and they don't eat apes; both apes and humans smell bad and taste bad to them."

"Even a killer whale won't eat you because you aren't on its diet. The only time it would attack a human would be if they were starving. But that rarely happens."

DISNEY-LIKE EMPIRE

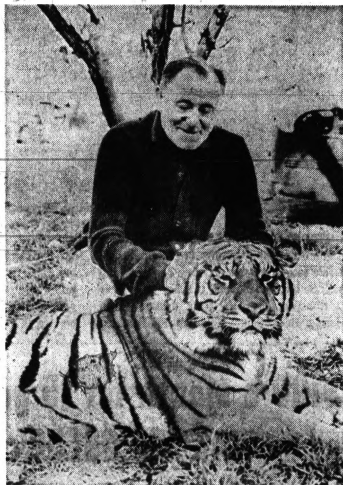

Tors, 51, has managed to translate his compassion for animals into film entertainment that has found a warm response from theater and television audiences. In fact, his operation has taken on all the aspects of a Disney-like empire. It includes:

- Feature movies. The new management of Paramount has announced it hopes that Tors can corral the family trade and has ordered 10 pictures in 14 months. In release: "Africa—Texas Style." Coming up: "Gentle Giant," "The Daring Game," "Island of the Lost."

• Television series. Tors has cannily used his features as pilots for new series; thus "Africa—Texas Style," with Hugh O'Brian emerges as "Cowboy in Africa," with Chuck Connors "Gentle Ben," costarring Dennis Weaver and a 7-foot bear, "Daktari" will be back, and "Flipper" returns in reruns next winter while the show gears for a new family. "Our kids outgrew the series," Tors explains. He also shares production of "Off To See the Wizard" with MGM.

IVAN AND STAR TIGER — Film producer Ivan Tors kneels with his star Bengal tiger, Sanang, during a break on the set of the Daktari series. Tors says he doesn't want to become a second Walt Disney. Instead, he wants to become "the first Ivan Tors." The film producer's latest venture is a pair of attractions to be called Animal Kingdom. One will be in Florida, the other in California.

Police Youth Corps Program Hailed

By MEL NEWMAN
The first half of the Pontiac Police Youth Service Corps program is nearly over, and administrators and field workers alike are already voicing hopes for an expanded program in the summer of 1968.

The project, initiated June 19, has, in the words of Director George P. Caronis, had a "very positive and constructive effect."

"It's good," he said, "to have youths working with, rather than against, the police."

Sgt. Carl Colando, head of the Police Department Crime Prevention Bureau, and group leaders Richard Hayes and Thomas Gracey, both officers, all cite a change in the attitudes of the boys involved as the program's most encouraging development.

"They've changed in speech and dress habits for the better," said Hayes. "And with the interest they've shown this all seems to mean a change in their self-conception."

WORK WITH PATROLMEN

Working with patrolmen on actual beats is a big part of the program for the boys and is supplemented by sessions with Roy Gray, senior staff counselor.

Gracey said riding in patrol cars with officers helps the youths understand a policeman's job and also gives them a feeling of belonging to the department, one of the projects stated objectives.

How well the boys have accepted the idea is demonstrated by their desire to tell of the program to others, according to Colando.

"Some of the boys really talk it up around the playgrounds," he said.

30 MEMBERS

Two of the program's 30 members, Walter Poss, 14, of 37 Stowell and Keith Spann, 15, of 22 S. Marshall, showed no hesitation in "talking it up."

"We have real beats, said

Walter, "and we watch out for accidents and for vandalism."

Keith recalled seeing a boy hit by a car during his first week as a Youth Corps member.

"It made a real impact," he said, "and showed the importance of a policeman's job."

BOYS' PLANS

Perhaps the best measure of the project's success is revealed in the boys' future plans.

"If I'm not going to be an entertainer," said Walter, "I want to be a policeman."

Keith was more definite. "I want to be a policeman," he said.

Accepting Bids

LANSING (AP) — The State Highway Commission says it is accepting sealed bids for removal or demolition of houses on 49 parcels of land in Flint. The buildings are located on property purchased by the department for construction of the I-475 freeway.

THE FAMILY WAY—When the members of the McLellan family of Atlanta, Ga., decide to go on vacation, they do it in a big way. So big, in fact, that it takes an airliner to transport them to their destination in Florida. Here Robert McLellan, his wife and seven children, along with his brother John, his wife and three children, plus two nieces wave goodbye as they leave the Atlanta airport. Robert's wife, in the wheelchair, broke her leg in an auto accident.

Farm Workers Theater Slated

The Michigan G. I. Forum and the Political Association of Spanish Speaking Organizations of Michigan (PASSOM) are among 19 organizations sponsoring a two-performance showing in Michigan of the Farm Workers Theater (El Teatro Campesino).

The theater group was formed by talented grape workers in California shortly after organization there of a migrant farm workers union.

The players will present pantomime, singing and dramatic sketches based on experiences of farm workers on July 29 in Dearborn and on July 31 in Lansing. Both performances begin at 8:30 p.m.

The showing in Dearborn will be at the UAW Local 600 union hall, 10650 Dix, and in Lansing at the UAW Local 652 union hall, 426 Clare. Admission is $1.50.

Tom Chavez, chairman of PASSOM, said Pontiac area residents needing free transportation to the Dearborn performance can ride on a chartered bus which will leave St. Vincent's Catholic Church at 6:30 p.m., July 29.

Soviet's Mideast Blunders Raise Eyebrows in West

By MAX HARRELSON
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Western diplomats are not as surprised by the Soviet Union's failure to win the diplomatic battle at the United Nations over the Middle East as by the string of blunders that caused the Russians to lose the skirmishes as well as the war itself.

No one can recall a time when the Kremlin got into so many untenable positions and suffered so many rebuffs in any similar two-month period.

This raises some questions whether Soviet diplomats suddenly lost their touch, and if so who was to blame for the step-by-step lapses.

There has been widespread speculation that Nikolai T. Fedorenko was the central figure, but that he may be replaced, but it would be an oversimplification to pin the whole thing on Moscow's delegate to the U.N.

News Analysis

TRACED TO MOSCOW
At least part of the trouble can be traced to top-level officials in Moscow. Some of it stemmed from faulty intelligence and some from diplomatic necessity which required the Soviet Union to take losing positions.

Most U.N. officials don't think Fedorenko initiated the idea of the emergency session of the General Assembly, overriding the long-held Soviet doctrine that peace-keeping matters should be handled by the Security Council.

Since 1950 the Soviet Union has insisted that the "uniting for peace" procedure for calling emergency assembly sessions was illegal, but that is the way the current session was convened. This procedure was first proposed by the United States to get around persistent Soviet vetoes in the Security Council.

The decision on this seemed to be one for the highest level. This is true also on the personal participation of Premier Alexei N. Kosygin in the assembly session.

ONE REASON
That is one reason why the failure of the Soviet Union to get a clear-cut assembly demand for the withdrawal of Israeli troops from Arab territory is a blow to the Russians and helps explain why they have kept Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in New York for more than four weeks trying to find a face-saving formula.

As the permanent representative of the Soviet Union at U.N. headquarters, Fedorenko was the man in the middle during most of the debate, and he was responsible for carrying out the Secretary General U. Thant and three Security Council presidents, contributed to an unfavorable image presented by the Russians.

As recently as July 9, for example, Fedorenko delayed for at least six hours Security Council agreement on assigning U.N. observers to the Suez cease-fire, before finally accepting a formula already agreed to by Israel and Egypt as well as the other council members. He failed to make out a convincing case for the delay and finally agreed.

Part of the Soviet trouble stemmed from the Kremlin's inability to take a position without coordinating it with that of the Arabs. There was, in effect, an Arab veto since the Russians did not want to risk a public break. The Russians were being accused of letting the Arabs down militarily, and they wanted to prove they would not desert them in diplomacy as well.

The Soviet Union appeared to get off on the wrong foot in April. Authoritative sources said some Soviet leaders at that time told a visiting Egyptian parliamentary delegation that Israel was about to attack Syria. This is said to have led to Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's sending massive forces to Israel's southern borders. This in turn resulted in the Israeli mobilization and the war, Israeli Ambassador Gideon Rafael told the Security Council. "The Arab people have paid a heavy price for having been misled."

In May, when the Security Council was called at the request of Canada and Denmark to deal with the mounting crisis, Fedorenko accused the two countries of trying to dramatize the situation. He said there was no urgency in sending out an appeal for a breathing spell as Thant had suggested.

When the war broke out June 5, most council members were ready to vote an immediate cease-fire appeal. Fedorenko insisted that the appeal be linked with a demand for Israeli troops to pull back to their June 4 positions. The Soviet position apparently was based on intelligence reports which failed to show the extent of Egyptian military losses.

Eventually the Russians and the Arabs accepted the cease-fire resolutions without any call for troop withdrawals — but by that time Israeli troops had made further gains against Egypt and had inflicted heavy losses on Jordan and Syria as well.

The biggest single mistake made by the Russians, diplomats suggest, was to call the assembly into emergency session. They apparently believed they would win support for Soviet demands already rejected by the Security Council. These included condemnation of Israel and the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of Israeli forces from Arab territory.

They first dropped their demand for condemnation and then agreed to a watered-down resolution on troop withdrawal, but they were unable to win the required two-thirds majority even then.

Patrol Boat Trainees Put to the Test

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP) — The men are hollow-eyed, jumpy and mean. Vietcong tricks that took a bloody toll earlier in the week no longer worked. The Vietcong and the blood are fakes here. But in a week and a half they will be real for these U.S. Navy men training in a 15-square-mile patch of California's Suisun Slough to police the waterways of the guerrilla-infested Mekong River delta.

"We're trying to make sure they get a round-trip ticket," says Lt. Roy Boehm, head of the River Patrol Craft Division of the Naval Inshore Operations Training Center at Mare Island, 30 miles southwest.

Day and night, Boehm and other instructors, all Vietnam veterans, harass their student crewmen who live for a week in a muddy base camp among the reeds, muskrats and mosquitoes of the delta formed by the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers at the upper end of San Francisco Bay.

30 MILES AN HOUR

Floating mines—small charges of TNT—explode geysers of brackish water as trainees gun their little jet-driven river patrol boats at speeds up to 30 miles an hour through tortuous shallows in simulated rescue of a downed U.S. pilot. Ambushes along the reed-screened shores spit machine gun, sniper and mortar fire. The shells are blanks.

The fledgling Mekong River police go without sleep from Monday to Friday, working out 80 or more exercises around the clock for 104 hours.

"If they can react when they're dead tired," says Boehm, "they can react anytime."

After graduation, the river police fly to the Philippines and two days of jungle training, then head for Vietnam.

EXPERT ON VIETS

Boehm, whose 25-year career with Navy special commando forces extends from two-man submarine operation to parachuting and skin diving, has become an expert on the Vietnamese, their religion, language and customs.

In one of Boehm's exercises, two patrol boats encounter a Vietnamese sampan, a mock-up complete with square crimson sail and coolie-hatted peasants. One PBR—Patrol Boat, River—draws alongside while the other circles, guns trained on the two craft.

A peasant at the tiller of the sampan asks for aid for his wounded companion who slumps on the deck with a bandaged head.

Two sailors lift the injured man onto the PBR bow. Suddenly the peasant at the tiller heaves a grenade into the Navy boat, and the bandaged man leaps to a machine gun to fire at the second PBR.

The slough rocks with gunfire.

Boehm, observing from a motor launch 100 yards away, moves in for a debriefing. He pulls no punches as he points out mistakes.

"You've got to learn to react within two seconds," he insists. They do, Boehm says. "By Thursday they don't trust anybody."

The training is modified as "Charley"—the Vietcong—changes tactics, according to observations from newly returned instructors and "after action" reports aired to the training center.

The Suisun area facilities are also used for researching answers to Vietnam problems, Boehm says.

"The function of the PBR is to police the river, not fight it out with shore parties," stresses Capt. C. R. Johnson, the center's commanding officer. "The men learn to calculate the risk and take it only when they have the odds. If ambushed, they fire back immediately, then get the hell out of the kill zone."

Johnson's training command includes a second phase of river warfare, assault forces, the first the United States has had since the Mississippi Flotilla was disbanded after the Civil War.

River Assault Flotilla 1, River Support Squadron 7 was commissioned last September to support U.S. combat troops in the Mekong.

Working with the 2nd Brigade of the 9th Infantry Division in Vietnam, the joint Army-Navy force is known as the Mobile River Force—MRF.

The MRF won a major victory over a 400-man Vietcong battalion June 19-20, killing 169, with 28 Americans killed, according to a U.S. Command spokesman. The river battle took place in the delta 17 miles south of Saigon.

A naval river assault squadron can lift an entire infantry battalion and elements of an artillery battery into combat, and then provide blocking and fire support for the GIs after they debark.

River assault and patrol boat training lasts 11 weeks, the first two to four weeks in classrooms of the Pacific Fleet Amphibious Training Command in Coronado, Calif., before moving to Mare Island.

Continuing assault classes have leveled out to about 150 trainees while the patrol boat classes number 70-80, most of them volunteers.

Why do so many people buy used cars from Ford Dealers?

A recent used car study tells why.

Car owner tells researcher why she bought her used car from a Ford Dealer.

Here's what you said:

1. You needed a car you could afford. Your previous car was worn out. Or a member of your family needed a car.
2. You bought from us because the price was right and the deal was good. We had the car you were looking for. You had been thoroughly satisfied in dealing with us in the past.
3. You bought the make of used car from us that had given you previous satisfaction—and again, the price of it was right for you.
4. In looking for your used car, you came to us seeking "good mechanical condition," "good overall condition,"

"a price I could afford," and "reliable, dependable transportation."

5. Did you shop other dealers? Yes, over half of you did before coming to us and buying from us. (88% of you shopped other-make-dealers!)

6. What was the greatest help to you in buying your used car? The biggest percentage of you said, "the Ford Dealer." Other aids: "past experience," and "newspapers."

Trumbull Terrace Is Open for Visitors

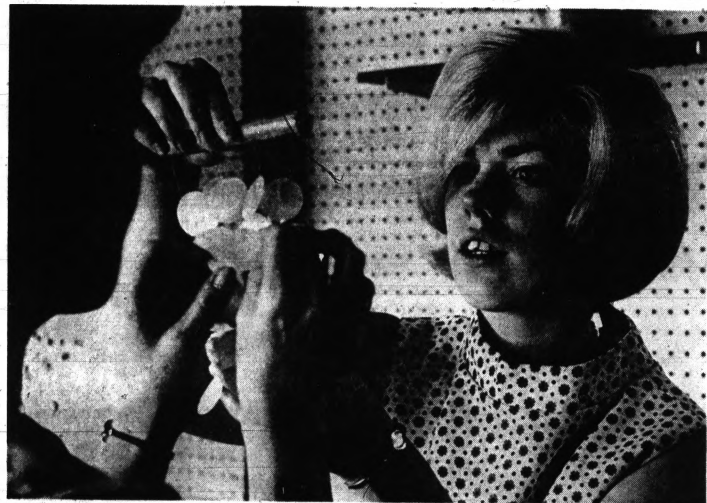

Pontiac Press Photos by Edward R. Noble

Mary Foster (Mayly) Collins, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter S. Collins (he's dean of the Meadow Brook School of Music) has learned to look without touching. This three-year-old miss enjoys a visit to Trumbull Terrace and the Scholar Shop. P.S. Don't tell the food service department; Mayly brings her own peanut butter sandwich.

These colorful umbrella tables provide a pleasant shelter from the sun for diners on the terrace. A luncheon is served each Wednesday from 12 to 1:30 p.m., weather permitting. The terrace and Scholar Shop are available for guests from 12 to 4 p.m. on that day.

Margo Weiberg, Scholar Shop worker, helped a coworker untangle a new stock of capez shell wind chimes. A wide variety of articles is on sale, ranging from room accent pieces to things that are just fun to have. The shop is open prior to performances at the pavilion, during intermissions and one hour following performances as well as Wednesday.

Wednesday afternoon is a convenient time for businessmen and area residents to shop associates and guests around Meadow Brook. Dr. A. R. Young (left) of East Hammond Lake Drive has with him, a houseguest, Oran Vaughn of Searcy, Ark.

Mrs. Grover J. Taylor (left) and Mrs. H. B. Littell, both of Rochester, look with mild curiosity upon an iron and brass tree in the Scholar Shop window. The unusual metal sculptures are a feature of the shop.

This is a reverse of the view that accompanies outdoor luncheons on the terrace. Often bridge games are started here and on a windless day the orchestra can be heard at practice.

Valter Poole, associate conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, follows the score as the orchestra does its weekly Wednesday morning rehearsal in the Howard C. Baldwin Memorial Pavilion.

While rehearsals are closed to the public, this candid photograph gives an idea of what takes place when the audience is missing. While there is time for laughter now and then, it is still hard work. Conductor Sisten Ehring leads the musicians through their scores.

Hairpin Buttons

Keep a package of hairpins in the sewing basket. When you remove buttons from worn garments, thread them on a hairpin, twisting the ends of the pin to hold them there and drop them into the button box. This keeps all buttons of one kind together and makes it possible to see at a glance if you have enough of a certain kind of button for a new garment. More than five million older U.S. citizens live in poverty and more than two million must be helped on welfare, government statistics show.

She Appreciates 'Old Southern Hospitality'

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 years old and have always lived in a small town in South Carolina. Last summer my family and I spent our summer vacation in New York and Philadelphia. Down here in South Carolina everyone is friendly to everyone else and when you pass a person on the street you say, "Hi." This isn't just in our little town, but all over the South. If you do that up North, the looks and stares you get back show that northerners aren't used to it. Maybe I'm prejudiced, but I never really appreciated Southern hospitality until I went North. I think the North is a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there. Anyone care to comment?

SOUTHERN GIRL

DEAR GIRL: You have a point about Southern hospitality, but don't repeat a mistake some northerners make by judging a whole region by the actions and reactions of a few. DEAR ABBY: When a man is being introduced to another man how can he keep from having his hand crushed by the handshake? Some men are so intent on impressing you with their power and friendliness they practically break your fingers. It's tough on a surgeon whose fingers must retain their sensitivity. Thank you.

S. S. R. M. D.

DEAR S. S. R. M. D.: A doctor should know that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. When extending your hand, warn, good humoredly, "Easy, friend — I need that to operate with." He'll get the message.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 years old. My brother is married and has three children. Before they were born, my parents used to love me. Now I could drop dead, and they wouldn't even notice I was gone.

My mother is always telling people all about her DARLING grandchildren and what they do, but she never says a word about me.

My parents just don't care a bit about me, Abby. Please print this and tell me what to do.

NOT LOVED

DEAR NOT: Your parents love you just as much as they ever did, but now that their grandchildren have come along they have others to love as well. But that doesn't mean they love you less.

DEAR ABBY: A rather embarrassing thing happened to me and I need some advice. The other day I received a very appreciative note from a friend of mine, thanking me for a baby gift I did not send. The worst part of it is, I never got around to sending her baby anything, although I had been meaning to. Should I let this person know of her mistake? Or should I ignore the whole thing so she'll never know I didn't send anything? B.

DEAR B: Let your friend know at once that a mistake has been made. Then she can try to find out who sent the gift and thank her for it.

DEAR ABBY: For the mother who wanted to give her newborn child the same name she had given to a previous child who had died in infancy. I am sure it has been done by many who were eager to pass their name on to a member of the younger generation. One famous case comes to mind: The late Franklin Delano Roosevelt named a son "Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr." but that child did not survive. Later another son was born, and he was given that name.

ALL HAND TIED WIGS GET FREE STYLING AND LUGGAGE. ALSO FREE LUGGAGE WITH MACHINE WETTED.

All of us at Coiffure Par Anne Beauty Salon and the Drayton Wig Salon invite you to visit us. We shall print a few helpful hints on wigs and hairpieces.

The two most popular types of wigs sold today are the Hand Tied Ventilated, and the Machine Wet.

Will a wig of Drayton Wig Distributors harm the scalp or hair? Definitely not! Drayton Wigs permit the hair and scalp to breathe naturally because their fine netting is constructed with air holes. In fact, persons wearing wigs discover their hair becomes much healthier after repeated wearings, since it is protected from the elements that dry out the hair.

The finest hand tied ventilated wig range in price around one hundred dollars more than the machine wet wig. This is due to labor costs. The hand tied wig is constructed of 100% human hair, completely hand tied by crocheting small groups of hair onto each corner of the wig base.

Terry Good for Outdoors

Floral - splashed terrycloth remains the favorite pillow and pad covering for outdoor furniture. Its out-doors-y look, its inviting softness, and its repeated launderability keep it in the Number One spot for popularity. An attractive current trend is to buy extra yardage to run up into sheaths for feminine members of the family.

Terry has another popular advantage — no ironing needed. After being machine-washed in soap or detergent suds and fluffed in a dryer, it is immediately ready to add colorful brilliance to porch or pool-side.

A new portable data processing unit small enough to be installed in police squad cars has been developed.

Meadow Brook Festival

Opening Night Pulls Full Crowd

By BERNICE ROSENTHAL
The magic name of "Van Cliburn" drew a capacity audience to Meadow Brook last night. In a season which seems to be devoted to extremely gifted young artists, Cliburn did not measure up to his predecessors.

His Brahms Second Piano Concerto was letter-perfect technically, his tempi precise, his pedalling sparse and clear. But beyond the notes he did not go. The emotional impact, the poetic introspection, the soulful qualities of this great concerto were lost in a sea of pounding harsh notes, which were loud without depth and brilliant without inner support.

WITHDRAWN
He seemed withdrawn, and without communication either with the orchestra or with the audience in the first and second movements. In the third, there was some attempt at sensitivity and feeling, and the fourth movement, although a trifle too rapid for comfort, unfolded with greater understanding and delicacy than any of the others.

It was a performance which left much to be desired interpretatively. The orchestral accompaniment, under Sixten Ehrling's direction, was full, sensitive, and as emotionally satisfying as it could be, under the circumstances.

The plaudits for the evening go to Ehrling and the orchestra. Never have they played with such unity, such intensity of feeling and such excellent taste.

Contemporary William Kraft's "Concerto Grosso" featured the quartet playing of Mischa Mischakoff, violin, Albert Tipton, flute, Italo Babino, cello and Charles Sirard, bassoon. While the music itself was not particularly inspiring, the quartet of orchestra members played the solo parts with depth, fluency and interpretative meaning way beyond the confines of the music.

The interplay between orchestra and solo quartet was deftly handled by Ehrling and the orchestra.

Allan Chase, trombone principal, was soloist in the World Premiere of Eugene Zador's

Concerto for Trombone and Orchestra

While Zador was aware of the limitations of the instrument, and refrained from composing anything that it could not handle, he did not make use of the great possibilities of the instrument either.

Chase, a master of the trombone, did a remarkably fine job with the music at hand. His exquisite tone and beautiful sense of interpretation more than made up for the inadequacy of the music.

Berwald's nineteenth century Tragic Overture to "Estrella de Soria" opened the concert with verve and animation. This rarely heard composition, skilful in many respects to Weber & Berlioz, is an overture in the grand, early romantic manner and is delightful to play and to hear.

Saturday's concert will feature Cliburn in the popular Third Concerto By Rachmaninoff. Gordon Staples will be soloist in Berg's Violin Concerto, and the orchestra will be Symphony.

Towel Serves as Crib Pad

Here's an idea worth trying for baby's summertime comfort:

Spread a large turkish towel between a plastic crib mattress and sheet. The absorbent towel soaks up perspiration and other wetness to keep baby more comfortable.

The towels cost nothing extra in money, and add virtually no extra laundry time or trouble as they can be thrown in with any normal washing machine load.

The number of men employed in seafaring jobs by the U.S. merchant marine reached 57,367 on the first day of 1967, an increase of about 48,000 over the beginning-of-1966.

Eastern's Bell Ringers Back From British Tour

Completing a three-week tour of England and Scotland, the 18 Bell Ringers from Eastern Junior High School, with their director, William Coffing, and eight chaperones, returned early this week, tired but very appreciative of the opportunity afforded them by the citizens of the Pontiac area to participate in the American Festival in Britain, sponsored by the Restoration Arts Theatre of Detroit.

The Festival had as its center, the Lake District of northern England, one of the loveliest scenic areas in the British Isles. Mountains, lakes, stone fences, and small villages were common sights throughout the area, along with many historic buildings, some dating back to the 12th century.

The Bell Ringers gave 14 concerts during the ten days of the festival. Programs were given in schools, churches, a YWCA, a town hall, on lawns, in the courtyard of a hotel, and even in the market place of one town. In all cases, they were enthusiastically and graciously received, and their style of bell-ringing is not used in England.

Quoting from one of the area newspapers, the Lancashire Evening Post: "The principal concert in this year's American Festival in Britain, staged in the Kendal Town Hall, must have been the best free concert ever held in Kendal. An enthusiastic audience of over 200 were treated to a three-hour exposition of the marvelously high standards of music, song, and dance of the American visitors from Michigan. A team of 18 handbell ringers from Eastern Junior High School, Pontiac, with a range of tunes from "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" to a Rachmaninoff piano classic, delighted the audience with their teamwork, easy precision, and enchanting tone—like the bells of a fairy cathedral. It was a memorable evening which should go a long way to forging Anglo-American links to which this festival is dedicated."

Adjust Insurance to Meet Change

NEW YORK (AP) — Read any good insurance policies lately? It's not like curling up with a good book. But keeping your life insurance and your health insurance up to date is one way of avoiding financial difficulty later on, family advisors say.

According to the Institute of Life Insurance, a family's life insurance program should be reviewed periodically, especially when there is a major change in family circumstances — say, birth of a child, acquisition of a home, approach of retirement, or a new job.

Junior Editors Quiz on LIGHTNING BUGS

QUESTION: Why do lightning bugs light up?

ANSWER: Lightning bugs, often called fireflies, are neither true bugs nor flies, but a special kind of beetle. Little heat is given off by the light they produce, which, because of this is called cold light and is of great interest to scientists.

The light is formed by a group of five chemicals in the firefly's body held together by a chemical bond. But another chemical may be released, which will break the bond, allowing the chemicals to react together to produce light. The flashing lights enable fireflies to find each other during the mating season.

As the picture shows, these fireflies have wings, but there are wingless insects in Europe called glowworms, which also give off similar light.

Most dramatic of the fireflies is the large railway beetle of Paraguay in South America. It gives out a red light from one part of the body and green lights from other parts, suggesting railway signals.

It's fun to chase fireflies and watch them flash inside a jar, but you're likely to make a grab at one and find him winking from some distance away.

U.S. to Orbit Observatory to Vastly Hike Sun Data

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—Maf's first venture into space with an array of high-powered telescopes is expected to tell scientists more about the sun than all the past unmanned space probes put together.

That's the forecast of Dr. Ernst Stuhlinger, chief scientist for the manned solar observatory planned for launch into earth orbit in 1969 as an Apollo follow-on mission.

Before the advent of unmanned spacecraft, Stuhlinger said man's view of the heavens was clouded by the "dirty window of the atmosphere" which blocks out most of the X-ray, gamma ray and ultraviolet and infrared light that tell astronomers most of what they need to know about the sun and stars.

The orbiting observatory, called the Apollo Telescope Mount (ATM), will be the first time geoscientist-astronauts a stable platform about earth's atmospheric veil to examine the sun with telescopes designed to photograph and monitor its X-ray and ultraviolet radiation.

The five ATM experiments will show how the great disturbances on the sun called solar flares build up and die down and how they affect the layer of gas molecules called the corona around the sun. The experiments will also photograph specific areas of the sun to show the processes going on there and will take unique X-ray pictures of the sun.

BEST TOOL

Man's best tool to date to examine the sun has been the unmanned Orbiting Solar Observatory (OSO). Three of the little satellites have been launched successfully and have provided scientists with valuable new insights on the sun.

But the ATM will carry larger and more sophisticated telescopes, will be more accurate and, most important of all, will have men along to do what the unmanned satellites cannot.

Stuhlinger, who is also director of the research projects laboratory at the Marshall Space Flight Center here, said one of the major advantages of having trained observers along is to recognize areas of interest and then train the telescopes at them. He said the astronauts will be equipped with television monitors to actually see what the telescopes are looking at.

"We want the astronaut to help us find the early development of flare areas," Stuhlinger said in an interview. He noted that the most interesting areas probably cannot be seen from the ground.

Latin Reds Now Focusing on Bolivia

CAMIRI, Bolivia (AP)—Two young strangers dressed as farmers showed up in this mountainous corner of southeast Bolivia 14 months ago and let it be known they were interested in buying land for a pig farm. The men were brothers, Guido and Roberto Peredo, who described themselves to the local farm population as men of wealth.

After inspecting various sites they purchased a seemingly useless tract of brush land 50 miles north of this oil town. It is deep in a thickly forested mountain district known as the Nancabazua—pronounced Yahn-kah-wah-zoo—after a small stream that winds through it.

This was to become the cradle of the Bolivian guerrilla movement, the latest flare-up of Cuban-directed rebel uprisings in Latin America.

The recognizable leaders of the movement are the two strangers who came on the scene more than a year ago.

VISITED CUBA

The sons of a farmer in northeast Bolivia, the pair joined the Bolivian Communist party and visited Cuba in 1965-66, probably on training missions. They are in their 20s.

Many Bolivians believe the real boss is Ernesto Guevara, the Argentine-Cuban revolutionary who disappeared from Cuba in March 1965.

The guerrilla outbreak wasn't taken too seriously at first, but Bolivian authorities and foreign observers now regard it as at least a drain on the thin finances of this landlocked, long-troubled country.

The guerrillas are not yet considered a threat to the government itself, but public indifference toward both the guerrillas and the government poses a danger.

TIED TO NEIGHBORS

An indication of long and studied preparation has convinced officials the guerrilla idea and its organizational nucleus came from Cuba and that it is linked to Marxist movements in neighboring Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Peru.

This causes skeptics to ask: "Why Bolivia, a relatively poor prize?"

Prominent Bolivians cite the nation's position in the heart of South America and "historic antecedents" demonstrating that ideas born in this country have spread. The continent's fight for liberation from Spain began in 1809 in virtually the same mountains.

Another theory is that in the absence of significant guerrilla gains in Guatemala, Venezuela and Colombia, Marxist strategists felt compelled to seek a dramatic effort and hit upon Bolivia.

Gen. Alfredo Ovando, armed forces commander in chief, says plotting for the operation may have started in 1964, the year the military overthrew the left-wing Nationalist Revolutionary Movement (NRM) government.

This was also the year a young French writer and philosophy professor, Regis Debray, visited Bolivia as a lecturer. He made several more trips to Bolivia's interior as an anthropologist in 1965.

He came early this year as a newspaperman, he says, to write about the guerrillas. He has denied the charges.

Gen. Ovando calls him a sort of advance agent for the guerrillas.

CITES BOOK

He cites Debray's book "Revolution Within the Revolution" It shows the Cuban revolution's mechanics can be applied to Latin American countries.

The Peredo brothers went on shopping trips to villages, made friends with farmers and peasants.

The men with them, some say, stayed in the background.

Nocturnal traffic to and from the Peredo farm aroused suspicion that a large-scale cocaine operation was under way. Cocaine is derived from the leaf of the coca plant that people around here chew for energy and to eliminate hunger pains.

CEMENT BAGS

In late February, farmers reported seeing three large truckloads of cement bags heading into the forest. Cement is rare in the area, where almost all construction is of mud or bamboo.

Army officials believe the bags were filled with weapons and ammunition.

Alerted by the reports of strange activities, the army sent out three patrols in February and March without uncovering anything unusual.

A fourth patrol, on a different mission March 23, stumbled onto the guerrillas, and seven troopers were killed.

Principal, 4 Indicom Posts Filled

Board Makes Appointments

Appointments proved to be one of the highlights of last night's Waterford Township Board of Education meeting.

A principal was named for the proposed Waterford-Mott High School, four key posts were filled in the district's Indicom (individual communications system) project and board members were appointed to various groups.

Daniel J. Hogan, 39, of Saginaw Township gained the top spot at Waterford-Mott High School for the 1967-68 school year.

Principal of a high school under development in Saginaw Township and a curriculum consultant, he holds a bachelor's and a master's degree from the University of Detroit and is close to receiving a doctorate at Michigan State University.

Hogan also has served with Chippewa Valley Schools and at Servite High School in Detroit.

SPECIALISTS HIRED

Indicom specialists hired last night were Joseph B. Mullen, information services; Robert V. Scrivens, research; Ronald E. Arnold, curriculum and instructional services.

Indicom is a three-year trial program in which the district will experiment in individual instruction with a computer.

Waterford School Affairs

Architect Drawings Unveiled

Architectural drawings for the Waterford Township School District's proposed new $222,000 administration building were unveiled at last night's board of education meeting.

The administration will be housed at 1021 Airport, current site of Waterford Center School where classes will be discontinued.

The existing three-story and one-floor sections of the school will be altered to accommodate administrative offices. A new addition, featuring a two-level board of education meeting room, also will be constructed.

The meeting room will provide seating for 148, according to the plans designed by Wakely-Kushner Associates, Inc., of St. Clair Shores. Capacity could be increased to 200.

Parking facilities at the structure will accommodate 180 cars, architects noted.

The new building will centralize virtually all of the administrative offices which now are scattered in five different locations.

The project was approved by school district voters in June 1966 as part of a bond issue.

In other business last night, the board voted to rebid the mechanical trades of the Crescent Lake Elementary School project after it was revealed that the low bidding firm had erred in its proposal submitted July 6.

The mistake increased the low bid from $120,100 to $142,430, still about $13,000 less than the next lowest bid.

The board, however, awarded architectural and electrical contracts with a few revisions.

The architectural contract for $371,400 went to the Waterford Construction Co. Electrical Maintenance Co. was awarded the electrical contract for $63,109.

Also last night, the board authorized the administration to apply for 1967 National Defense Education Act Title III aid for equipment and supplies costing $491,741. Part of the funds is earmarked for built-in equipment for the proposed new Waterford-Mott High School and Crescent Lake Elementary School.

In other business, 1967-68 contracts were approved for 21 teachers and three resignations were accepted.

'Fair Trial' Proposals Eased, Still Severe

By WILLIAM B. MEAD
ANN ARBOR (UPI) — A State Bar of Michigan committee today slightly softened its "fair trial" proposals which would curtail public release of information about criminal cases. But it still called for a severe clamp-down.

The committee, whose original proposals were sharply criticized by newsmen, a federal judge and Michigan's attorney general, presented its revised recommendations to a meeting of lawyers and Michigan news officials.

There was little difference between the new and old proposals.

The committee suggested that instead of a court order strictly limiting what policemen could tell reporters about criminal cases, that "law enforcement agencies adopt their own regulations governing this matter."

But if they don't, the committee said, the courts or Legislature should do it for them.

The committee also eliminated its original proposal that prosecutors, defense attorneys or policemen who break the rules be subject to jail on contempt of court citations.

COULD BE DISBARRED

Lawyers still could be disbarred for violations, however.

Left intact were proposals that would prohibit release of information about a defendant's confession or criminal record and the name or comments of witnesses to a crime; permit secret pretrial hearings; and, under threat of jail, stop court employees from telling newsmen what was said in a secret court hearing.

The proposals, still to be considered by the State Bar membership, are intended to keep newspapers and broadcast stations from getting information about a criminal case which the committee believes might influence jurors and make it impossible for the defendant to get a fair trial.

Newsmen have opposed the recommendations "on grounds they would interfere with the public's right to know, promote general policies of official secrecy, and stop the press from informing the public about corruption or other flaws in the administration of justice.

The proposed rules also would encourage judges to postpone trials, or move them to another city, if it appeared likely that news accounts might influence jurors; to be more careful in selecting jurors; and to make sure jurors don't read newspaper accounts or listen to radio news during the trial.

Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley has said Michigan needs no laws on release of information.

Kelley said there is not a single case in Michigan history in which a defendant was convicted because of news accounts.

But William M. Ellmann of Detroit, president of the State Bar, said he could cite "15 cases in the last month" in which jurors were influenced by news about the case. He refused to disclose them.

The original proposals were copied from a list being considered by the American Bar Association, and Ellmann said the changes disclosed today merely followed recent changes in the ABA's proposed rules.

ST. PIERRE (AP) — French President Charles de Gaulle cruised through the Gulf of St. Lawrence toward Quebec today, leaving behind the tiny, eight-island remnant of France's North American empire whose World War II loyalty to him may be beginning to pay off.

During his enthusiastically received 10-hour visit Thursday, de Gaulle acknowledged that there are economic problems on St. Pierre, Miquelon and the six other drab chunks of French territorial rock off the Newfoundland coast and said France would help.

He made no specific promises to the 5,500 islanders, whose chief activity is cod fishing, but said France has a duty to them and "will do what she must."

He said he was willing to discuss economic development plans with their representatives.

One economic step the islanders are eager to take is to become a port of call for foreign fleets fishing on the nearby Grand Banks. If the islands were fully outfitted with freezing and storing facilities, the travelers could deposit their catch and leave the long-distance hauling to other vessels.

The program is to be financed exclusively by the federal government through Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

The project has been given verbal approval by the U.S. Office of Education. School officials are awaiting a final contract.

Among those still to be hired for Indicom is a director. Prospects currently are being interviewed.

Also hired last night as assistant principal of Pierce Junior High School was David L. Lindsay, director of the Waterford Township High School band and convener of secondary instrumental and vocal music teachers.

In other appointments last night, Board Secretary Mrs. Virginia Ross gained a three-year term with the Community Schools and Recreation Advisory Board and Treasurer Donald W. Porter was named designate to the Oakland Schools Board of Education with Lewis S. Long the alternate.

Michael G. Patterson was named delegate to the Michigan Association of School Boards (MASB). Long was selected as the alternate.

John Boardman was named as MASB legislative contact.

America's Bald Eagle.

In his headlong rush to alter the natural world, man has wiped out many wild species. Passenger pigeons once formed such huge flocks as to darken the sky—50 years ago, the last one died in an Ohio zoo. The Labrador duck, giant sea mink, great auk and many other life forms have passed from existence since Europeans landed on America's shores.

Many other creatures are on the thin edge of oblivion; some can be saved, others perhaps not, but all of them deserve a chance if only because man cannot be the only living animal on earth.

The bald eagle, this country's national bird, is in jeopardy. In a recent year, there were only 230 active eagle nests in the prime nesting areas of the south; only 96 nests were successful in hatching young. The reason is being sought.

Alligators, once found throughout our Southeast and west to the Rio Grande, wear skins that are valuable for leather items. Now, they exist only in Southeast coastal waters, in small numbers.

Hawaii has suffered greater losses to extinction than any other State. Sixteen species of native birds have gone, about 20 others are in danger, including the nene or Hawaiian goose. The nene lives on lava slopes of Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea volcanoes, 5,000 to 8,000 feet above sea level, an area so arid the webs of their feet have almost disappeared.

The timber wolf, once ranged across much of North America. In the "lower 48" states, they are now found only in isolated sections along Lake Superior and on Isle Royale in the Lake, although still relatively plentiful in Canada and Alaska.

The best known endangered creature in the United States is the whooping crane. There were only 14 whoopers left when the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife began keeping records in 1938. Their numbers painfully increased to 43 in 1966. Because of their 2,500-mile migration between nesting grounds in Canada and their wintering area on the Texas Gulf, whoopers are difficult to protect.

The Department of the Interior hopes to save endangered species of wildlife through research, development of sanctuaries, and other measures provided by the Endangered Species Preservation Act of 1966. 78 mammals, birds, reptiles, and fishes have been selected by Interior for special attention under this new law.

"Someone is trying to fool both the public and the United States Congress," Reuss, D. Wis., said Thursday, shortly after the State Department made public portions of secret testimony before a congressional committee.

Reuss accused the Defense Department of trying to hide the federal Export-Import Bank's role in providing credit for massive foreign purchases of U.S.-produced arms.

He said when Pentagon officials testified before a closed session of the House Banking Committee Monday, they insisted figures they gave on arms loans be kept secret.

'Angry' Congress Mood Felt

By CARL P. LUERSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — This Congress may be regarded in history as the 'angry Congress,' one Democratic House member said this week — and worried administration floor leaders could begin to fear he's right.

Action taken by the House on three bills this week, added to the slim record of the last seven months, sounded still another warning that the Johnson administration is in deep legislative trouble, especially in the House.

Some Democrats have talked seriously about finishing up necessary appropriations business and adjourning, but three big fights lie ahead — antipoverty, foreign aid and taxes.

The first two are "must" administration bills. If the programs are to continue at all, the last, President Johnson indicated this week, is in almost the same category although it could be put off until 1968.

News Analysis

was making a vain effort to stem passage Wednesday of the so-called antiriot bill, which members pushed through 347 to 70.

Less than 24 hours later they turned on a $40-million administration proposal to help cities exterminate rats and voted 207 to 176 against even bringing it up for debate.

It marked the first time since 1961 the House refused consideration of a measure by rejecting the resolution from the rules committee setting terms of the debate. In 1961, the measure was an emergency school aid bill.

Tuesday, Republicans scored another success when they succeeded for the second time this year in amending an appropriations bill with their pet amendment to restrict expenditure of money to 95 per cent of the amount appropriated.

FUTURE YEARS

The amendment was attached to the bill providing money for the new Department of Transportation. Its effect, was unclear, since some of the money in the bill is for future years, but it demonstrated again the increased GOP punch in the 90th Congress.

The antiriot bill approved Wednesday also was passed last year, but as part of a civil rights bill which later died in the Senate. It was forced to the floor by a bipartisan combination of Rep. William C. Cramer, R-Fla., its chief sponsor, and Chairman William M. Colmer,

D-Miss., of the rules committee. It sets stiff penalties for persons who cross state boundaries with intent to incite riots. Colmer told the House recent racial rioting is due to an "organized conspiracy" which he said is backed by "the Communists" who "have the most to gain in this kind of anarchy and unlawfulness."

Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., of the Judiciary Committee, who unsuccessfully tried to keep the bill bottled up, said rioting results from the Negro's "disenchantment as to promises made but not fulfilled, the dreary slow pace by which he achieves equality."

All but a handful of Republicans and a majority of Democrats supported the bill. Republicans and Southern Democrats teamed Thursday to block the rat eradication bill.

Last-Minute Change Cause of Air Crash?

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C. (UPI) — Was the pilot of a small plane trying to adjust to a sudden change in landing instructions when he collided with a Piedmont jetliner in a shattering holocaust that claimed 82 lives?

That is one of the questions for which a team of 68 federal investigators sought an answer today in its probe of Wednesday's tragedy over this mountain resort.

John H. Reed of National Transportation Safety Board said operators in the control tower of the Asheville-Hendersonville Airport would be questioned today, along with 60 witnesses who saw the collision which rained bodies over a one-mile area. No one survived.

Among the victims of ill-fated Flight 22, Piedmont's morning flight from Atlanta to Washington, were new Navy Secretary John T. McNaughton, 45, his wife and young son.

The airliner carried 74 passengers and a crew of five.

NEW INSTRUCTIONS

Vern Lawyer of Des Moines, Iowa, an attorney and accident specialist representing Lansaire, an aviation insurance firm, said Wednesday he had learned the two-engine plane apparently received new instructions from the control tower as it approached for a landing.

Lawyer said "we have reason to believe" the Cessna pilot, Dave Addison, 40, Lebanon, Mo., first was instructed to land on instruments from the south, but later was "advised to go north of the field."

The airliner had been cleared for takeoff in the same area where the Cessna was, Lawyer said, and it took Addison "time to adjust when he was given a new instruction and he could not get out of the way" of the airliner.

The planes collided at about 4,000 feet, spewing bodies and wreckage over a wide area. The main wreckage plunged into woods near two summer camps for youths.

Sources in Washington said it had not been determined why the Cessna was off course, but said it was possible the pilot may have become confused in his bearings and gave an incorrect report of his position to the tower.

Reed said all of the victims have been recovered, but only 11 have been identified positively.

Souvenir hunters have returned some of the wreckage, Reed said, and 200 Boy Scouts will be asked to gather parts over the weekend.

He said no malfunctions have been found in the airliner wreckage.

Hoffa Out of Jail Briefly

CHICAGO (UPI) — Imprisoned Teamsters Union boss James R. Hoffa was out of jail again for four hours yesterday while he conferred with his attorneys about Monday's appeal of a five-year conspiracy mail fraud conviction.

Then he was locked up again.

It was the second day in a row Hoffa was transported from the Du Page County Jail in suburban Wheaton to the Federal Building here where he met with his attorney-son, James P. Hoffa, 27, of Detroit, and attorney Maurice J. Walsh.

Hoffa was brought to Illinois Monday from the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa., where he is serving an eight-year term for a jury-tampering conviction.

He is appealing a five-year sentence he drew when he was convicted in Chicago in 1964 of conspiracy and mail fraud.

GUERRILLA WEAPONRY — Once they fired poison arrows from crossbows, but the Vietcong troops of today have much better weapons. This collection, some Chinese, some Russian, some French or German and others of unknown origin, is typical of the arms being carried by the VC today.

Crossbows Are Disappearing From Arsenal of Vietcong

By TOM TIEDE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK — The enemy arsenal in Vietnam has always been incredible.

Three years ago it was incredibly bad. Viet Cong soldiers were so ill-equipped for combat that they sometimes threw spears, and shot poison arrows from crossbows.

Many captured prisoners in those early days of the war readily admitted they had not been issued weapons. A few insisted they had never discharged a rifle. And it was not at all uncommon for several guerrillas to share a single, small revolver.

That was in 1964 — 11,000 American lives ago.

Today the incredible thing about enemy weapons is that there are so many of them. Thanks to steady supplies from several sources, the VC's vastly matured stockpile now includes nearly four dozen different kinds of individual arms.

STAGGERING GAIN

The gain is staggering. According to one military handbook on the subject, once-empty Viet Cong armories now contain 21 separate models of machine guns alone.

To be sure, some of the guerrilla arms still tend to the antique. For example, VC often carry World War I vintage Springfield rifles which were first manufactured in 1903 and which fire at only 10 to 15 rounds a minute.

The enemy is also burdened with a number of clumsy, bolt-action Mosin Nagent rifles (circa 1891), Russian-designed Maxim machine guns which are operated by handcrank and U. S. Thompson submachine guns which were all the rage in the roaring '20s.

But such are the exceptions. Most other VC weapons are considerably more modern and frightening. The majority are second-hand but they kill just as good as new ones.

CHINESE MACHINE GUN

There is, as illustration, the Chinese Communist-type 56 light machine gun. It's an excellent ambush weapon. Since it operates off a belt-clip, it can deliver 100 rounds into a target in about half a minute. Since it operates from tripod, it's highly accurate.

The Czechoslovakian AK-47 is another outstanding enemy instrument. Short (34 inches long) and light (10 pounds), it fires a banana clip of 30 rounds in the blink of an eyelid. It's highly coveted among jungle fighters on both sides of the lines.

Some others:

• German 9 mm and United Kingdom 9 mm submachine guns. Both are short (the German model has a collapsible stock) and easily maneuverable for close quarters warfare.

• German 7.92 mm machine gun, MG-34. It is weathered (the Nazis used them in Europe) but can send 900 rounds a minute at either advancing airplanes or troops.

• Soviet 120 mm regimental mortar. It's weighty (1,100 pounds) but sends a baseball-thick projectile over a mile to strike with percussion of an air bomb.

• French 7.5 mm carbines with built-in grenade launchers; Chinese Communist-type 50 submachine gun with 30-round clip (11 pounds); Soviet-designed PPSH shoulder-harness machine guns.

WIDE ARMS SOURCES

Quite obviously, the VC are not limited as to the source of their battle arms. Aside from Chinese and Russian donations, at least eight other nations are contributing as well.

Even the United States is donating considerable numbers to the VC pile. The military estimate is that the enemy has at least five models of American machine guns, seven of carbines, two of mortars, four of recoilless rifles and one type antitank gun.

The U. S. contributions are indirect, of course. So are those arms of many other nations. The weapons simply fall into VC hands by way of pilferage and confiscation.

However the VC get them, the Pentagon admits, "they get them."

Opening lead—♦ Q

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

When you have to lose a trick anyway it is good policy to consider exactly when you want to lose it. There is no bonus paid for winning the first trick.

Most players would have doubled four the South hand. Then they JACOBY would have complained about bad luck if West had managed to make his contract.

We aren't sure West would have, but we are sure that he could have. In fact he might even have made an overtrick if hearts were opened and continued. He would have to gamble that he could get to dummy with a diamond. He would start by leading a high diamond and putting on dummy's king.

Later on he would overtake his six with East's eight to finesse the spades. Assuming that he had not already lost a club trick he would wind up discarding dummy's losing club on a long diamond.

All this is academic. South's bid was five hearts. West doubled and led the queen of diamonds. East played the eight and South looked things over.

He saw that he wasn't going to make five hearts but he wanted to hold his loss to one trick and the way to do it would be to keep East out of the lead so he ducked the first diamond. From then on he had no problems. He won the diamond continuation, drew trumps, knocked out West's ace of clubs, and would have been able to discard a spade on dummy's fifth club except that West cashed his ace of spades right away and saved South this trouble.

East and West could have

N. Carolina Church Missing Big Bell

TURKEY, N.C. (AP) — A 400-pound bell hoisted to the top of the new Wilson Chapel church in this tiny rural community last week is missing.

A crane was used to put the 70-year-old bell in place in the 35-foot-high steeple. How it was removed is a mystery.

Duplin County Deputy George Merritt says residents have posted an $80 reward for return of the bell.

New Program for Roads Urged

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Forecasting a U.S. population of possibly 250 million by 1980 and car sales of 13 million a year before then, Robert Anderson, Chrysler Corp. vice president, Thursday urged a start now on planning for a new federal highway program. Anderson, general manager of Chrysler's Chrysler-Plymouth division, told the Rotary Club the present 41,000-mile interstate program is "only a good start" toward meeting needs.

Create Dramatic Effect

Bring Garden Inside

You can use hundreds of different containers to decorate with living plants around your home. By changing plants, you achieve a wonderful world of color and beauty all season long.

Your kitchen cupboards and knick-knack shelves contain dozens of striking and unusual flower containers.

A teapot, for instance, or a salad bowl. A champagne glass, a compote, a bread basket, a sea shell, a hurricane lamp.

Who would have thought, for example, of using bachelor's buttons and ivy in the lower drawer of a spice chest.

Yet it is a wonderfully original arrangement, and practical, too! The secret lies in those new bonos to flower lovers, aluminum foil and plastic foam.

ORIENTAL GRACE

Zinnias manage to look both stiff and bushy when pushed into a conventional narrow vase. But cut their stems short and blend them with celosia in a low bowl and you have a breathtakingly graceful Oriental arrangement.

Panics look unhappy crammed together in a tight-necked container. You can help them look their bright.

Insects Costly to Americans

Insects cost agriculture in this country more than $4 billion in 1965, with the cost representing insect control and the loss to food production.

To help reduce this loss, the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station is building a $3.6 million entomology and plant pathology structure at Geneva. The facilities will include:

An electron microscope that will help scientists study insects by magnifying them 200,000 times. This could expedite identification of viruses affecting plants and bring more disease resistant plants.

A rain tower that will enable study of the effects of precipitation on fungicides.

Growth chambers that will augment study of insects and plant diseases under carefully controlled light, temperature and humidity.

In 34 rearing rooms, entomologists will raise insects used as research tools.

A chemical laboratory with a low level tracer and counting room for studying the fate of pesticides.

Picked at Dawn

Do you know the best time to taste tomatoes-from-the-vine to enjoy their delicious flavor at its best?

Early in the morning of a cool day.

est with soft, airy ferns in a shallow champagne glass.

Hanging pots and baskets in the half shade formed by overhead rafters are made richly colorful with hanging tuberous begonias, fuchsias and trailing lobelias. Ivy-leaved geraniums and strawberry geranium (Saxifraga sarmentosa) are other trailing plants to consider.

For that open, sunny spot on the terrace, arrange pots of orange, mahogany and yellow dwarf French marigolds.

Mix in a few pots of ageratum, Blue perfection, Petunias, plain and fancy, are also heat and sun lovers as are the various verbenas, lantans and dwarf zinnias.

All are beautifully displayed in clay pots inside various decorator containers.

Petunias

Bring Color to Garden

Available for beautifying your garden in the summer of 1967 are two of the perkier, prettiest petunias you can imagine, both with softly-fluffy, double flowers: both with sturdy, fast-growing plants, and both with unusual coloring.

One, named Blue Danube, has delicate lavender-blue blooms with veining in a darker shade of blue. It is the double-flowered counterpart of the well-known single Petunia, Blue Lace, but the many extra petals give it a powderpuff-like appearance, quite different in impact on the eye from Blue Lace. It gives a different effect in the garden, too.

Blooms of Blue Danube may be 2 1/2 inches in diameter and are borne freely on compact plants 10 to 12 inches high. To allow for full development of each individual, plants should be spaced 15 to 18 inches apart.

Valentine is the name of the second new double grandiflora petunia, and what a honey it is! Imagine rounded, many-petaled, 3-inch diameter, dark red blooms with salmon undertones, so bright and cheerful in color that you'll want one in your bathtub to start the day right.

Then, visualize the brilliant blooms appearing on compact, 10 to 12 inch high plants, starting to bloom early in the petunia season, continuing until frost kills the plants. What more could you ask of a bright red petunia?

Why double petunias rather than single? Because a planting of double petunias makes your garden picture distinctive, because the flowers are unusual for cutting and beautiful enough for use in corsages.

Both of the double-flowered grandiflora hybrid petunias described above flower best when grown in full sun. Both are adaptable and may be used equally well in pots, in planters, or window boxes, or in beds and borders. Both should adorn your 1967 garden.

INDOOR GARDEN — A table top indoor garden takes little effort and lends an especially nice decorative touch. Here an entrance hall is perked up with black and white tile-patterned wallpaper, and a pot plant garden on a red lacquer chest. Simply line a tray with pebbles and rest your clay-potted plants on the surface. If you use different sizes and species of plants, you'll create interesting effects. Keep the pebble layer watered and resulting evaporation will supply ample humidity for plants.

Color Pictures of Wild Flowers

New York Visitors Take Note

Live wild flower gardens, earlier this year and the second, "The Southeastern States," will be published during the exhibition period.

They are the work of Dr. Harold William Rickett, senior curator of the Botanical Garden, assisted by distinguished botanists throughout the United States. The publisher is McGraw-Hill Book Company, New York.

Hybrid Plants Are Valuable

A hybrid plant is the offspring of mixed parentage. A good hybrid needs good parents and it may take hundreds of test crosses of promising parent lines to get a plant.

The value of the hybrid is in the built-in disease resistance, quality, vitality, productivity, and adaptability or improved size. This may take years.

Hybrids, however, cannot reproduce themselves. Their seeds revert to more common stock from whence they came.

Others are completely sterile and produce no seeds, because their chromosomes are unbalanced.

The result is that each year,

Consider Plant When Potting

With warmer weather here, it's wise to make sure that container plants you plan to buy or grow for outdoor displays are in red clay pots, which keep plant roots cooler than thin-walled substitute containers. Synthetic containers often absorb heat and expose roots to killing temperatures that quickly destroy plants.

Violet Care for Vacation

Your violets can survive a two week vacation without bothering your friends or neighbors. First, remove all blossoms by pinching them off. Do not remove buds. Water the plant very thoroughly with room temperature or slightly warmer water. Be sure the entire soil ball is saturated. Allow them to drain.

If you have a large number of plants, put about an inch of old newspapers in the bottom of your bathtub. Soak them well. Place the well watered pots on the wet newspaper. Split open one of the plastic bags which cover your dry cleaning and spread it over the top of the tub, holding it in place with a few weights set on each rim.

Be sure that the room temperature will not become too high by providing as much ventilation as possible. A good watering upon your return should put them back to normal, or maybe even better than usual.

If you only have a few plants you can skip the bathtub routine. Just water well, as above, set two or three small sticks into the pot so as to hold a plastic bag above the foliage.

Enclose the entire plant and pot, in a polyethylene bag. Tuck the open end of the bag under the pot and make no holes in it. Place in a well lighted cool spot. Be sure no direct sunlight can shine onto the bagged plants. Polyethylene has the unique property of retaining water and water vapor while allowing gases to pass through it. Your plant will therefore stay moist and healthy for quite extended periods.

If you love your plants enough to go through this work for them then you will certainly want to know about membership in The African Violet Society of America and the African Violet Magazine.

Why not drop them a line before leaving for your vacation. When you get back the mailman will have left you a pretty show growth both above and below ground. There will also be a section on the Botanical Garden itself and its many services and functions.

Plant Pansy Seed for Spring Bloom

Pansy seeds should be planted in August for plants to bloom next spring.

Choose a shaded spot and make a seedbed by raking the soil until fine. Sow seeds, cover them with cheesecloth and water through this until seeds sprout.

Remove cheesecloth and continue to water as necessary. Thin plants as needed. Cover area with straw for winter.

There are many strains and types of pansies that you might grow. Perhaps you'd like to try the new F1 hybrids because of their 3 to 4 inch wide flowers and resistance to heat.

Regal Lily

Marco Polos of the Plant World

By JODY HEADLEE
Pontiac Press Garden Editor
Gardeners of today owe a great deal to the early explorers, missionaries and horticulturists, reports George H. M. Lawrence, director, Hunt Botanical Laboratory, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pa.

It was through their efforts and energies that many of the plants we accept so matter-of-factly were found, identified and domestically propagated.

When the famous traveler Marco Polo returned to his home land of Venice and described the wondrous plantings of the Orient, his compatriots thought him crazy and had him imprisoned.

His claim of roses as big as cabbage was inconceivable to his fellow Venetians who were familiar with the rose of the 1300's, a tiny bloom about as big as a silver dollar.

Hundreds of years later, his "cabbage" rose was discovered to be the tree peony.

STRANGE FRUIT

Venice knew the Seckel pear but when Polo told of pears one foot long, people were certain he was daft. He actually was looking at the fruit of the aromatic Japanese quince, the shrub so widely cultivated in the United States during World War II because of its high pecan content.

"Plant exploration followed the development of commerce," said Lawrence. "Men seeking not gold or silk but spices opened the Cape of Good Hope and the world of plant exploration."

Early missionaries did their bit to help the horticulturists who followed.

The apple so universally enjoyed had its start in Russia and the citrus plants originated from Persia long before the sea routes were established.

The Dutch, after winning sea battles with the Portuguese took over the ports and actually were the first to bring back to their native lands horticultural specimens.

In 1680 the seafarers imported azaleas and chrysanthemums from Batavia, now Djakarta in Indonesia.

Among the Marco Polos of the 20th century were Joseph Banks and Ernest Wilson.

Banks, an Englishman, arranged to join the Cook expedition as it left for Iceland in 1758 to study the plant Venus. From that voyage, he introduced to the world, hydrangeas both the pink and the blue. He also is the founder of England's Royal Horticulture Society.

TO CHINA

Wilson embarked on an expedition to China to collect seed of the Dove tree which is related to the flowering dogwood.

He failed on his original mission but discovered and brought back the floriferous kolwizia or beauty bush and saw for the first time the breath-taking beauty of the regal lily perched high on a rock-laden summit.

Later he returned to seek the bulbs of the beautiful lily.

The bulbs collected, Wilson and his men began a hazardous descent. Their movement triggered a landslide and a boulder caught Wilson crushing his leg.

The tripod of his camera equipment helped save him. His men used one leg as a splint and the other two to fashion a litter to continue the eight-day journey back to the boat.

The open wound became infected and the result of amputation more real. Eggs of the flies gathered about the wound hatched into the maggots which kept the wound clean and free of gangrene.

It was the discovery of this preambiotic method which was to save so many limbs of the wounded in World War I.

When the accident occurred, Wilson weighed 190 pounds. By the time he reached the mission and help his weight had fallen to less than 100 pounds.

For the rest of his life, Wilson was a cripple, his one leg 1 1/2 inches shorter than the other. But his mission had been accomplished and the bulbs were saved for the pleasures posterity.

DIFFERENT - Red Monarch is a new sweet william that blooms in two months from the time seeds are sown. Unusual in color too.

Try Climbers as Dividers

Climbing plants, rooted in clay pots and held upright by bamboo or bark sticks, make good room dividers.

Because they can exist under the same growing conditions, several varieties may be kept together.

Among such social climbers are Philodendron imbe, Philodendron hastatum, Philodendron panduriforme, and Pothos scutellaria and Syngonium.

Annual asters make September gardens colorful. If your garden this year does not include asters, be sure to plant seeds next spring.

Red Monarch Not Biennial

Most sweet williams are biennials. That is the seeds are sown one year and develop into small plants.

These winter outdoors and bloom the following year. Red Monarch sweet william acts, instead, as an annual, blooming in two months from seeds sown in early spring, or in spring from fall-sown seeds.

That's one characteristic that makes it "different."

A second is its flower color which is solid scarlet red, relieved by white stamens. Since mature plants grow 10 inches high if spring sown and 16 inches tall if seeds are sown in fall, those scarlet red blooms are good for cutting.

They last a long time as individual flowers continue to open. Because of its annual flowering habit and its new color Red Monarch received last year's All-America award.

Condition Soil for Flower Beds

You can improve the quality of your flower beds by conditioning the soil with horticultural vermiculite.

One part vermiculite worked into two parts soil will provide better aeration and moisture retention, increasing root growth and strength.

Angel's Trumpet Is July Bloomer

Probably the most exotic flower you can grow from seeds is that known as Angel's Trumpet. This is a half-hardy annual datura. Seeds will sprout in 2 to 3 weeks if started indoors and seedlings can be set out in the garden when weather and soil warm.

Transplant them to a warm, sunny place. There the huge white trumpets of flowers will start to open in mid-July and continue until frost. Pick each flower as it fades. Do not let seeds form because they are both attractive and poisonous to eat.

Insects Aid in Pollen Transfer

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

The children were stripping bees from the plants, a reader wrote, and when she told them the bees were needed to help the plants bloom, the youngsters wanted to know if some insects rid plants of other, undesirable insects.

Insects are the principal means of pollinating plants, carrying pollen from flower to flower. The visits to the plants, of course, often are not for the pollen but for the nectar that they use in making honey.

While getting the nectar, the insect is dusted with pollen, and becomes a pollen carrier.

The wind is another main pollination agent. The wind carries the pollen of grasses, sedges and some trees.

CARRIERS

Bats and snails carry pollen in the tropics.

Increasing in importance is artificial pollination by which plant breeders help produce hybrids.

As to the second point: Many injurious insects and pests are killed by other insects.

These are divided into two classes — predators that seize and devour insects as prey, and parasites that lay eggs in, on or near the insect host.

The larvae hatching from these eggs feed in or on the insect until it is destroyed.

Among the predators are the praying mantis, dragonflies, many beetles, some two-winged flies or their larvae and some large wasps.

Others are ladybird beetles with red and black spots, and their larvae, which look like small lizards.

Both the adults and larvae feed hungrily on aphids. One such insect may devour hundreds of aphids in a lifetime.

Most parasites belong to two insect groups, the two-winged flies and the bees and wasps.

Strawberries Without Weeds

The Connecticut Experiment Station is working on a way to raise strawberries without having to weed by hand or machine.

A plant expert has found that by dipping the roots of strawberry plants in activated carbon before transplanting protected the plants from damage by five other herbicides or combinations of herbicides.

The combinations are sesone and diphenamid, and simazine and DCPA. The activated carbon treatment did not protect the strawberry plants from damage by five other herbicides or combinations of herbicides.

Plants dipped in activated carbon before transplanting produced as many runners as did untreated plants in the plot.

HUMPHREY AT WATER PLANT — Vice President Hubert Humphrey flew to Key West, Fla., yesterday to dedicate the world's largest plant which converts salt water to fresh water. The plant can produce up to 2.6 million gallons of water a day.

Government Is Quietly Withdrawing Silver Coins

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government quietly is withdrawing from circulation some of the old dimes and quarters containing 90 per cent silver. They could be pumped back in during the Christmas shopping rush this year.

Officials say they have no plans to recall the 90 per cent silver coins in the wake of a Treasury Department decision to free the price of silver from its four-year level of $1.29 an ounce.

They described the new move as a contingency to handle any emergencies which might occur late this year or during 1968.

No announcement of the withdrawal into a coin stockpile has been made but officials said it's been going on for some time.

When silver coins find their way back to a Federal Reserve Bank in their normal course of circulation, officials said, they are held in reserve rather than recirculated.

The new copper-nickel sandwich coins — less likely to be set aside by collectors — are circulated instead.

One official gave three reasons for the move:

- To insure a stockpile of coins for possible use during the upcoming Christmas season when the demand for coins reaches its yearly peak.
- To gather a stockpile of silver should the Treasury need it to redeem silver certificates before the redemption deadline next June 30.
- To make certain enough silver is available to satisfy the strategic stockpile quota of 165 million ounces.

Officials emphasize they believe enough new type coins are available to satisfy needs but they want an extra safety valve just in case.

The price of silver shot this week to more than $1.80 an ounce after the Treasury last Friday stopped selling it to private industry at $1.29. It now is selling up to 2 million ounces weekly to industry at the going market price.

The idea in maintaining the price of silver at $1.29 was to preserve the coinage. But officials said enough of the silver coins now are available to satisfy needs if the silver content coins should disappear from circulation.

With the price of silver exceeding $1.80 an ounce the old dimes and quarters are worth more in silver than their face value. The melting point — the price at which the silver content equals the face value — is $1.38 an ounce for the old dimes, quarters and half dollars and $1.29 for silver dollars.

But since half dollars still are in short supply there is little use in trying to stockpile them.

Vice President Dedicates Key West Desalting Plant

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A water desalting plant that will take city drinking water from the sea has been officially dedicated by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, but it still is not in full operation.

Preparations are under way for the 30-day test during which the plant will be required to operate at full capacity — 2.6 million gallons a day — for a month before it is accepted by the Florida Keys Aqueduct Commission.

"This plant demonstrates we are putting science and technology to work for man's living rather than for man's dying," Humphrey said Thursday before pushing a button that sent desalted water to a display 75 feet into the air over the Atlantic surf.

Humphrey said that by 1980 nuclear-powered plants capable of pumping a billion gallons of fresh water daily at 10 cents a thousand gallons will be operating.

Dentists Suffer From an Image Gap

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — If we can believe a survey recently published by McCall's Magazine, many single women dream of marrying brain surgeons.

But, according to the same survey, few if any girls feel that way about dentists.

Since this is the second survey I have seen that tended to relegate dentists to the bottom of the romantic ladder, I am obliged to give it some credence. Yet it makes no sense.

The average dentist certainly is every bit as handsome, intelligent, witty, charming and adorable as the average brain surgeon. And probably makes more money.

I am driven, then, to the inescapable conclusion that dentists are suffering from an image gap. Which means they should visit a public relations consultant at least twice a year.

A painless PR expert could quickly elevate dentists to their rightful place as an equal with brain surgeons among the great lovers of the world.

In weekly episodes, it unfolds the story of a surly but dedicated dental surgeon locked in a bitter struggle with the enemies of fluoridation.

He is ruggedly masculine and darkly handsome. Mickey Rooney would be good in the part.

Ben's beautiful blonde assistant (Doris Day?) has been carrying the torch, as well as the pliers, for years. But although he admires her bicuspid, Ben keeps their relationship on a high professional level, being too much of an idealist for intra-office hanky-panky.

After one season of "Ben Caries, DDS," McCall's could take another survey. I'll warrant it would show every spinster in America hankering for a dentist.

Malta Victim of Conflict in Middle East

By VERNE BERRY
Kalamazoo Gazette-Writer
RICHLAND (AP) — When a telephone rings at the Earl Somerville home in this Kalamazoo County town, one almost expects to hear a voice at the other end of the line crackle, "Mr. Watson, come here I want you."

Somerville has a collection of 60 old-fashioned wall telephones, the kind grandmother and, even great-grandmother used to listen in on the party-line.

The telephones are all of the magneto type, the kind with the crank on the side, and all are in working order.

Somerville's oldest model dates back to 1882, the year that Francis Blake made a practical mechanism out of Alexander Graham Bell's invention. Bell's historic call to his assistant, Thomas A. Watson, was made on March 10, 1876.

20 YEARS
Somerville has been collecting old telephones, rebuilding and refinishing them, for 20 years.

Although a retired plumber, he worked for Bell Telephone Co. for two years in 1927-28 about the time the company was pulling out all wall-type telephones and destroying them by the hundreds.

Today, Somerville and his wife look for the ancient instruments in their travels across the country. "If we're lucky we might find two on a trip. We've never had much luck in the South, but last fall we found two in New England."

Somerville bought his first wall telephone in 1922 in Prairieville as a customer of the local telephone system. At that time each customer purchased the instrument outright and the company installed it. The total price was $7.50 and the yearly charge for service was about $6.

The customer replaced his own dry cell batteries, the power element for the voice mechanism.

"The batteries would last 12 to 18 months, depending on the amount of use," Somerville says. "A single call didn't take much power, but when all the receivers went up on the party-line, the drain on the batteries was considerable," he says.

RINGIN IN HIS EARS — Earl Somerville in the collection of 60 ancient wall telephones he has gathered as a hobby.

Has 60 Old Devices

Man Collects Wall Telephones

for the telephone, he says. It only powers the bell, and the magneto can supply up to 15 volts of electricity.

Somerville says that earlier in this century, a group of farmers in an area would set up their own telephone system with eight, 10 or 12 parties or more. The system functioned with no central exchange or operator.

Each farmhouse had its own number of long and short rings, and when one telephone rang, they all rang.

When the neighborhood system joined each other, an exchange would be set up, usually in the operator's front-parlor.

Somerville says he can establish the dates of his early models from a poster distributed by the Western Electric Co. "You can verify the years the models were built back to 1882, but beyond that there is no positive proof," he says.

Until Blake developed the basic transmitter-receiver device the telephone was a noisy, undependable instrument. Skeptics of the day, asked, "Who would want to talk to a box full of wires?"

Bell worked on improving quality by stepping up power up.

Milford Twp. Official Picked

Townships' Delegate to Metro Council Unit

Milford Township Supervisor William L. Mainland yesterday was selected as the Oakland County township representative on the executive committee of the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (COG). The designation of Mainland to the executive committee and the naming of Bloomfield Township Supervisor Homer Case as the alternate came at a caucus of township officials.

Mainland two months ago was named chairman of the temporary COG bylaws committee that later drafted guidelines that were adopted by the general assembly of the six-county organization.

Oakland County will have six members on the 33-member executive committee.

Already seated on the committee are the two county government representatives and

COUNTY REPRESENTATIVES

The county selections are De los Hamlin, chairman of the board of supervisors, and David Levinson, chairman of the supervisors' ways and means committee.

Representing cities and villages in Oakland County are Mayor L. Curtis Potter of Royal Oak and Mayor Joseph Forbes of Oak Park.

DELEGATE TO BE CHOSEN

With Mainland's selection as the township representative on the committee, only a school system delegate remains to be selected and this will take place Thursday at a caucus of school officials.

Waterford Twp. Police Nab Georgia Fugitive, 19

Waterford Township police, assisted by Pontiac State Police, captured an escapee from a Georgia jail early today in a Cass-Elizabeth home.

The fugitive, William J. Elrod, 19, was found hiding behind a sofa at the J. G. Johnson home, 4833 Cass-Elizabeth, police said. He offered no resistance.

The occupants are relatives of Elrod, according to police.

Retired Head of Building Firm Is Dead

The owner of a pioneer building company, Charles A. Handeside, died yesterday. He was 86.

Service for Handeside, of 5760 Monterey, Birmingham, will be 3 p.m. today at the Unit Memorial Funeral Home, Westland. Burial will be at Glenwood Cemetery, Wayne.

Handeside was retired owner of the former Handeside Construction Co. of Detroit.

Handeside's firm built bridges and many of the first concrete highways in Michigan. It also constructed the major portion of the original General Motors Corp. proving ground in Milford.

Handeside was a member of Wayne Lodge No. 112 F&M and the Senior Men's Club of Birmingham.

Born in Wayne, he graduated with a degree in civil engineering from the University of Michigan in 1905.

Surviving are his daughter, Mrs. Frederick Gould of Birmingham; a brother, Morrison of Detroit; and two grandchildren.

2 Sentenced in the Death of Child, 2

A Royal Oak girl and man were sentenced yesterday in Oakland County Circuit Court in connection with the death of the girl's 2-year-old son.

The mother, Charlene Kowalczyk, 20, was placed on five-years' probation, and the man, Lynn Holback, 21, was sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the state prison at Jackson.

Both had pleaded guilty to cruelty to a child July 1 when they appeared before Judge Arthur E. Moore.

The couple was arrested after the woman's son, Kevin, died last November of injuries suffered from a blow to the stomach.

They had been charged originally with second-degree murder, but were allowed to plead to the lesser offense, Mrs. Kowalczyk to the section of the cruelty statute which makes it a violation to permit such an action, and Holback to the actual offense.

Union at OU OKs Contract

Members of Local 1418 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees at Oakland University last night unanimously approved a new one-year contract.

The contract, effective July 1, calls for an across-the-board pay hike of 6 per cent for employees and provision for merit increases, according to Local President James Oates.

Also specified in the new contract is recognition of skilled trades, a one-day vacation increase for employees with one to five years seniority and added sick time accrual.

The contract covers 160 employees at the university including skilled tradesmen, grounds keepers, food and cleaning service personnel.

"Paper" items now on the market include dresses, jewelry, hats, a portable paper bar, paper chairs, pocketbooks, lampshades and football jerseys.

GMC Outfits Texas Bakery

GMC Truck & Coach Division recently delivered 46 Model CM-3500Vs to Richter's Bakery of San Antonio, Tex. The new units have been fitted with 10-foot bakery bodies and will operate throughout the state. They join 186 GMCs currently being operated by the bakery.

Richter operates three main bakeries in San Antonio, Austin and Corpus Christi, and carries on a highly coordinated inter-city bakery exchange of products.

To facilitate this rapid transit of goods, Richter's Bakery recently received two Model HI-9629A's, powered by GMC 6-71NE diesel engines and equipped with 10-speed transmissions and single speed axle.

The trucks will haul high cube vans and are replacements for competitive makes. Firm president Richter commented that he was "well pleased with the 7.6 m.p.g. received with the new equipment."

The successful operation of the diesel might mean an eventual conversion from gasoline to diesel power, for the bakery has no rail facilities and relies totally on over-the-road transport of its products.

Hospital Board Reelects Exec

A business executive was reelected last night to his fourth one-year term as chairman of the 11-member Pontiac General Hospital Board of Trustees.

Alec Capsalis, 221 Ottawa, is personnel director of Becton Corp. Research Laboratories in Southfield. He was first appointed to the hospital board in August 1961.

Elected vice chairman of the hospital board was Harold S. Goldberg, 1079 James K.

who has served as treasurer and chairman of the board.

Robert T. Flynn, 138 Ogema, had been vice chairman.

Mrs. B. Roush of 326 W. Iroquois was reelected board secretary, a post she has held for several years.

Elected to the executive committee for the first time was Dr. Lynn D. Allen, 110 Wenhaw, who was made treasurer.

GM Charged With Denying Draft Benefits

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — General Motors Corp. was charged yesterday with violation of the Selective Service Act in failing to restore sick leave and other benefits to eight employees who were drafted into military service.

U.S. Attorney Veryl L. Riddle, representing the Justice Dept., said the suit was the first of its kind to be filed in this court district.

The petition asked the court to restore "lost paid absence allowance, seniority, status and pay" to the plaintiffs, all employees of the St. Louis Chevrolet plant.

The suit mentioned a clause in the United Auto Workers Union contract with the company calling for five days' sick leave a year. General Motors maintained the contract was not applicable to the plaintiffs since it was entered into while they were in service.

Ambulance Quiz

LANSING (AP) — A special House committee today planned a public hearing in Flint on ambulance service in Michigan. Later hearings will be held in Escanaba, Ann Arbor, Petoskey and Lansing.

Total daily newspaper circulation in this country at the end of 1966 reached 61,397,232, according to Editor 7 Publisher.

First step is to screen brown, fibrous peat moss through quarter-inch wire mesh to remove twigs and large particles.

Add water to two parts peat mixed with one part clean, salt-free sand, enough so that only a few drops squeeze from a handful of mixture.

Home Gardener's Greenhouse

A plastic bag and a windowsill are the key items of a simple home gardening method for rooting cuttings. It borrows the practice widely used by nurserymen of covering cuttings with plastic sheets. But for the windowsill greenhouse, plastic freezer bags from the kitchen shelf will serve the purpose. Some recommended times for rooting: Conifers—January, early February. Garden flowers—late May through August. Flowering shrubs—mid-June to mid-August. Broadleaved evergreens—mid-June to mid-August. Foliage plants—any time of year.

Cuttings four to six inches long are taken from a plant with a sharp knife or pruning shears. Cut should be straight across the base and leaves should be removed from lower third to half of the cutting.

Seal bag with rubber band and place on a northern windowsill until roots have formed.

Stage Star of 'Funny Girl' 'Garlics Up' for Film Debut

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Barbra Streisand had been feasting on heavily garlicky dishes at the Cafe Brittany and her snooty white poodle Sadie had got into her eye shadow and now looked as though she'd rolled in coal dust.

Sadie dozed in her lap as Barbra sat in a Hollywood canvas chair on Pier 34 talking of her new life as a movie star.

"How long have you been one?" I asked Barbra, who started "Funny Girl" the other day after weeks of rehearsal.

"Not even a week."

"Have you got it licked?" I asked. She waved a hand airily.

Producer Ray Stark had been telling me before that he's now worked with the two most beautiful girls in the world, Liz Taylor and Barbra.

"I mean it—physically beautiful. If Barbra's nose is a little long, you never notice it, because her eyes are so deep!"

Barbra was on the pier for a tugboat scene past the Statue of Liberty. But tugs are controlled by railroads and the strike had it messed up.

"Is doing pictures different?" I asked her.

"No—it's just like TV—only bigger."

"Just like TV?" screamed Ray Stark. "This one location right here costs $600,000, more than a whole TV show. That's about $100,000 a minute for the film we get."

"I mean, a camera's a camera," Barbra said.

Suddenly the thought of $100,000 a minute staggered her.

"Oh, my God, I can't act on anything so expensive. Ray, I got to talk to you!"

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

The topless all-girl band at the Crystal Room has collected 24 summonses so far. James Mullins, opening at the Las Vegas Bonanza, has given up her bare midriff outfit in favor of a bare-back-to-the-waist dress . . . London Buzz . . . Brian Epstein, the Beatles' mgr., wants to get out of the business.

Harry Singer's heading for London to talk to Tommy Steele about starring at the Miami Beach Hilton-Plaza . . . A friend, flying to Paris, brought Shirley MacLaine something she wanted—a box of buns from the Automat . . . Mayor Lindsay took the wife and kids to see "South Pacific" (and backstage to meet Florence Henderson).

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A woman's hair is the perfect length when it's longer than her daughter's and shorter than her son's.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Success comes easily to those who set mediocrity as their goal."

EARL'S PEARLS: Dr. Charles Allen of Houston's First Methodist Church tells of a presidential candidate who admits he wasn't born in a log cabin—but moved into one as soon as his family could afford it.

"One weight," says Dr. Hans Goldschmidt, author of "It's Square to Be Round," "is often the result of living hand to mouth, hand to mouth, hand to mouth." . . . That's earl, brother. (Publishers-Hall Syndicate)

LBJ Ready Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indications grew today that the administration is putting finishing touches on its plans for a tax increase.

Government economists, armed with a late string of statistics, contended the economy is strong, buoyant and moving toward the boom they predicted last January.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and Under-secretary Joseph M. Barr huddled late yesterday with Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee in Mills' office.

And Fowler is expected to remain available this weekend for any possible high-level conference on taxes.

One source said a formal tax bill could be sent to Congress within 10 days.

President Johnson proposed a 6 per cent surtax on income taxes last January to help pay for the Vietnam war, hold down interest rates and stem inflationary pressure from the boom economists said was coming.

Johnson has not sent a formal tax message or tax legislation to Congress but at a news conference this week he reaffirmed his intention to do so.

He said the 6 per cent rate he proposed in January could be adjusted — presumably upward — but no decision has been made.

It's known, however, that alternatives ranging from 6 to 10 per cent have been submitted to the White House. But one source says he still expects the rate to be 6 per cent, at least for individuals.

Government officials are convinced, the economy eventually will bear out their request for the tax hike.

They said the June figures—completed yesterday by the Commerce Department and showing personal income took its biggest jump since last January—offer some proof of this.

Ex-Councilman, Builder Indicted

By JIM LONG

Oakland County Grand Juror James S. Thorburn late yesterday issued indictments against a former Madison Heights councilman and a Detroit builder.

Other indictments and warrants for the arrests of at least three more persons reportedly have been issued, but grand jury investigators refuse to disclose any information until they are taken into custody.

The indictments, the first handed out by Thorburn since he was named to succeed Circuit Judge Philip Pratt, accuses ex-Councilman Roman Nowicki with bribery and conspiracy to commit bribery.

He allegedly accepted $1,000 of a $6,000 bribe, according to the warrant, in return for his favorable vote on a rezoning matter.

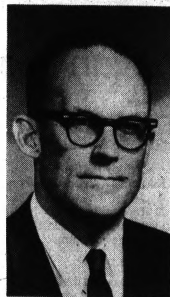

The property, according to investigators, is located on the south side of 14 Mile Road at Bennington near the I-75 expressway interchange. It was rezoned from residential to commercial, they say.

CO-CONSPIRATORS

Two other former councilmen, Antonio Branoff and Dean Eggart were named as co-conspirators in the warrant, but were not named as defendants.

The Detroit builder was identified as Marvin Alexander, 46, of 19426 Warrington.

He and another party are accused of bribery and conspiring to commit bribery in the alleged $6,000 transaction.

The identity of the other person cannot be revealed since he has not been arrested.

Nowicki stood mute at his arraignment this morning before Bloomfield Hills Justice of the Peace Jack Baldwin. A preliminary examination was scheduled for Wednesday at 10 a.m.

Another indictment involving the solicitation of a bribe in connection with a liquor license also was issued against Nowicki.

Navy Pilots Down 3 MIGs in Aerial Battle

ABOARD CARRIER BON HOMME RICHARD (AP) — In a raging dogfight against Communist MIGs "that were everywhere," U.S. Navy fliers said they knocked down three North Vietnamese planes today and probably got a fourth.

Two U.S. planes from the carrier Bon Homme Richard were shot up badly but both pilots brought them back safely. No planes from the carrier were lost in the strike against an oil depot about 20 miles north of the port of Haiphong.

"Their pilots were pretty good and they were aggressive," said Cmdr. M. H. "Red" Isaacks, 37, of San Diego, Calif., the leader of the first flight of fighter escorts over the target. "But they were not good enough. They made some mistakes."

Isaacks shot down one MIG and then brought his damaged plane back.

'POPPED OUT OF CLOUDS'

"They just popped up out of the clouds," said Lt. Cmdr. Robert L. Kirkwood, 36, of Fall River, Mass., and San Diego, who was credited with a kill.

The other kill was made by Lt. Cmdr. Ray G. Hubbard Jr., 32, of Poway, Calif. and the probable was credited to 25-year-old Lt. J.G. Philip William Dempewolf of Bellevue, Iowa.

It was believed that later sifting of information would convert his probable to a confirmed kill.

JET EXPLODED

The fliers knocked the MIGs out of the sky with rockets and gunfire, and one of the Red jets "exploded like a fireball," they said. Three "good" chutes were seen from all three planes, indicating the three Communist pilots parachuted safely.

Waterford Schools Face Financial Woes

By HUDSON WILLSE JR.

Supt. of Schools Dr. Don O. Tatroe alerted the Waterford Township Board of Education of a grave financial condition facing the school district next school year and told members they should start preparing for a fall millage election.

"We have a very serious financial situation facing us for the coming year," said Tatroe who termed the recent budgetary action of the Michigan Legislature as "to little and too late."

Tatroe pointed out that the district next year will, in reality, receive almost $3 less per pupil in state aid than during 1966-67.

A 5 per cent state aid increase was approved, but the district must pay more because of a hike in state equalized valuation.

Tatroe suggested three possible alternatives for raising funds—a further increase in State Legislature appropriations, to incur a cash deficit by borrowing on anticipated income and a tax increase which he said could not be levied in time to remedy the predicament.

He and Treasurer Donald W. Porter favored approaching state leaders in an effort to obtain additional monies. Porter suggested a coalition of needy districts would have a greater impact on the Legislature.

Tatroe also recommended that all non-essential operations in the district be reduced or eliminated unless funds become available and that the number of personnel be reduced by leaving some positions vacant.

The financial woes faced by the district compound the problem of meeting 1967-68 teacher salary demands.

Lake Orion Wife Charges Husband With Rifle Threat

A sleeping Lake Orion waterfront was roused this morning as an alleged family fight threatened to erupt into a shooting.

Held by Oakland County sheriff's officers is John Czarnowski, age unknown, of 602 Longpoint, Lake Orion, who had barricaded himself in his boathouse-living quarters following a reported squabble with his wife.

He is charged by her with threatening to shoot her with a .35-caliber Marlin rifle. The rifle was confiscated by Lake Orion police after Czarnowski was persuaded to surrender.

Six county cars responded to an appeal for help from the Lake Orion department after Mrs. Czarnowski escaped from the boathouse with another rifle, a .22-caliber.

BULL HORNS USED

Bull horns were used by deputies in an effort to persuade Czarnowski to surrender. He came out about 8:30 a.m. after an appeal by a friend, George R. Schindler of Detroit.

Tear gas was not needed according to Detective Charles Whitlock.

Neighbors said the Czarnowskis, had lived in the boathouse with living quarters on the second floor for about three or four years.

Tam Makes Bid for PGA Tourney

Tam O'Shanter Country Club on Orchard Lake road in West Bloomfield Township yesterday made a bid in Denver to host the 1970 PGA championship.

At first the club considered a bid for the 1969 tournament. However, pro Warren Orlick said the club wanted more time to get its course into top condition.

Tam O'Shanter recently completed a half-million dollar remodeling program to the clubhouse and adjacent buildings. The current PGA championship is being played in Denver where the PGA executive committee is also holding its annual meeting.

STBY, Chief for HUD Rip Antirac Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and federal housing chief Robert C. Weaver denounce as cruel and unjustified House rejection of a measure aimed at attacking racial urban slum breeding grounds. In a statement shortly after Thursday's 207-176 vote to sidetrack consideration of a

"We are spending federal money to protect our livestock from rodents and predatory animals," said the President. "The least we can do is give our children the same protection that we do our livestock." Weaver, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, called the House vote "thoughtless, heartless action" that "victimized the poor—and this time the helpless."

ATTACKS HOUSE MEMBERS
Weaver sharply attacked—without naming names—several House members who bickered about the bill before voting against debating it.

Weaver said he deplored "those who found anything humorous in such a proposal. I cannot understand those who ridiculed a program to protect children against rats."

The House rocked with laughter when Rep. James A. Haley, D-Fla., called the measure "a monstrosity of a bill," and suggested: "Why not just buy some cats and turn them loose on the street."

But Rep. Martha W. Griffiths, D-Mich., squelched the laughter by saying rats "have killed more human beings than all the generals in the world."

DEFENDS MEASURE

Noting earlier House approval of the $78-billion defense appropriations bill, Mrs. Griffiths said, "If you're going to spend $73 billion to kill off a few Viet-con, I'd spend $40 million to kill off the most devastating enemy man has ever had."

But 148 Republicans and 59 Democrats, most of them Southern, combined to overcome the 164 Democrats and 22 Republicans who backed the measure.

Opponents of the bill said action should be left to state and local authorities.

After the vote, Rep. Theodore R. Kupperman, R-N.Y., told the House he was "ashamed of the vote here today." He called the House inconsistent in passing antirac legislation earlier this week, then rejecting the antirac measure.

Criticism of the House action also came from President Mayor Joseph M. Barr, president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, who called it deplorable and urged reconsideration.

Grievance on Pay for Teachers Aired

A grievance filed by the Waterford Education Association (WEA), involving the rate of pay for 10 teachers in a study program, was discussed at last night's board of education meeting.

The WEA contends the teachers should receive regular wages during the six-week program which began Monday. The administration claims he summer study pay rate of $22 a day should prevail, based on provisions of the current contract.

The project is a federally funded exemplary program to be incorporated at the new Crescent Lake Elementary School. It is aimed at developing greater individualized instruction.

The board will decide the issue in executive session.

Minneapolis Race Violence Flares Again

By the Associated Press

Shooting, at least two deaths and a dozen small fires were reported as violence flared up in Minneapolis, Minn., Thursday night and early today.

A police inspector said the second outbreak in two nights occurred on the Negro North Side of the city. There were no fatalities from the shootings but two injuries.

Earlier, Mayor Arthur Naftalin blamed the Wednesday night outbreak of street fights and fire-bombing on a few "lawless" individuals and said the Negro community was not at fault.

"We're dealing with a few individuals who want to inflame the community," he said. "For peaceful march to City Hall to underline their demands for better housing and other social reforms."

WOODSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black is thinking seriously of running for Congress. The former child movie star expects to announce her decision within two weeks.

Mrs. Black, 39, a Republican, said Thursday she was considering entering a Nov. 14 special election race because state Sen. Richard J. Dowling, Atherton, had decided against running.

"He was my candidate," Mrs. Black said. "Now that Sen. Dowling has made his announcement that he will not run, I am going to give the matter serious consideration."

MSU Student Fee Hike Seen

By The Associated Press
Michigan State University's Board of Governors was to meet today and was expected to follow three other state universities in announcing a hike in student fees.

Wayne State University and Eastern Michigan University has announced boosts in student tuition.

The University of Michigan announced it would up student dormitory charges.

Higher cost of higher education for thousands of Michigan's college and university students were forecast after budget cutting by the last session of the state Legislature.

MAY FALL IN LINE
All 21 state-supported colleges and universities may fall in line and boost tuition fees.

The Legislature cut Gov. Romney's higher education budget and also rejected most of the individual schools' proposed appropriation increases.

Wayne State of Detroit Thursday announced an increase of $99 to $300 yearly for resident and nonresident students, affecting a day after Eastern Michigan's increase of $60 to $150.

The larger of the two sums will be charged against nonresident students in each instance.

Both EMU, a Ypsilanti institution with an anticipated 2,000 enrollment increase this fall, and Wayne State said that legislative appropriations beneath requested amounts were the cause.

He was defeated for reelection in April 1965. Eggart and Branoff lost their bid on reelection in the primary two months earlier.

All Whites Are Excluded
NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — From black nationalists to the NAACP, about 600 delegates to the first national conference on black power are gathered here today intent on making the once divisive slogan a working symbol of Negro unity.

All whites, including newsmen, were formally excluded from all working sessions, and delegates, including the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee's Chairman H. Rapp Brown, were asked not to give individual news conferences.

But the tone of the orientation session Thursday set by Negro comedian Dick Gregory and Los Angeles black nationalist Ron Karenga, was not so much anti-white as pro-black and anti-white exploitation.

Some speakers pointed out what they considered absurdities in the way the United States expects its nonwhite citizens to behave.

'Dial-a-Class' Concept Eyed

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — A study it at least a year, Cook "dial-a-class" concept in education is being studied by the school district's board of trustees.

The idea is called "an exciting possibility" by David Cook, principal of the new Lahser High School.

He explained that with it, individual students or classes as a whole could phone or tune in on taped lectures or educational presentations.

"The idea is in common use in colleges and universities, and more and more high schools are installing them," Cook said.

The program, labeled "Dial Access Retrieval System," will not be instituted this fall, and board members are expected to sarily have to be in school to dial a class, he pointed out.

CENTRAL OFFICE

The program would call for a central office containing tapes. Teachers or individuals could dial for the desired material.

Cook sees an ever-increasing application of the basic principle. "This would greatly expand possibilities in language teaching, where this process is familiarly used, as well as all other disciplines."

"Even the football coach could use it for skill sessions," Cook said.

The student would not necessarily have to be in school to dial a class, he pointed out.

MINIMAL COST
Cook called the idea the best use of updated, electronic devices and pointed out the cost could very well be minimal due to the possibility of reducing the amount of teachers and space needed.

Looking farther into the future he sees the system as easily incorporated as a community service.

"It could someday be available for home use and taxpayers would get a direct benefit for their dollars spent," he said.

No Success in Manhunt for 4 Killers

The manhunt for the killers of Edward Emmett DeConick, 63, West Bloomfield Township trustee, continues unabated today, 18 days after the brutal slaying.

A combined effort by township, county and State Police, aided by FBI agents, has thus far failed to bring about an arrest.

DeConick was killed at his home at 5847 W. Maple the night of July 3 by a gang of four intruders — three Negro males and a light-skinned woman.

His sister, Kathleen DeConick, 73, was beaten and shot in the head, losing her left eye, but is recovering in a Pontiac Hospital.

Police are checking criminals with violent backgrounds and various gangs and keeping a lookout for the pieces of jewelry taken in the $25,000 robbery.

A $6,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of members of the gang has been offered, $5,000 by the Detroit News and $1,000 by The Pontiac Press.

The reay-mix concrete business, an enterprise of small proportions just a decade ago, now involves more than 3,000 companies and annual sales of more than $2.4 billion.

DEAD CANDIDATE
Howard M. Keating, Atherton lawyer and founder of Ramo's magazine, is the only announced Democratic candidate.

Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, south San Francisco Democrat and former school teacher, said he would make his decision by next week. He said he expected the Republican National Committee to do something about stopping a his intraparty fight in San Mateo County.

Mrs. Black and her husband, Charles, are active in social and community affairs in the county and Woodside, wealthy suburban area. Black is a business executive. His late father headed Pacific Gas & Electric Co.

Death Cause Unknown on Man in Pool

The cause of death of an 80-year-old man whose body was found in a swimming pool in Bloomfield Township yesterday was undetermined today.

Henry J. Fericks, gardener at the home of C. W. Smith of 3060 Chickering, was discovered dead in the pool at noon.

Township police said he had apparently accidentally fallen into the pool, perhaps while stricken with a heart attack.

Oakland County sheriff's deputies said today the body bore no marks and it was not known if drowning or illness was the fatal cause. No autopsy was performed.

Principal, 4 Indicom Posts Filled

Board Makes Appointments

Appointments proved to be one of the highlights of last night's Waterford Township Board of Education meeting.

A principal was named for the proposed Waterford-Mott High School, four key posts were filled in the district's Indicom (individual communications system) project and board members were appointed to various groups.

Daniel J. Hogan, 35, of Saginaw Township gained the top spot at Waterford-Mott High School for the 1967-68 school year.

Principal of a high school under development in Saginaw Township and a curriculum consultant, he holds a bachelor's and a master's degree from the University of Detroit and is close to receiving a doctorate at Michigan State University.

SPECIALISTS HIRED

Hogan also has served with Chippewa Valley Schools and at Servite High School in Detroit.

Indicom specialists hired last night were Joseph B. Mullen, information services; Robert V. Scrivens, research; Ronald E. Arnold, curriculum and media; and Nicholas A. Menghini, technology.

Scrivens, Arnold and Menghini have been employed with the Waterford Township School District, although Arnold left last school year for another position. Mullen presently is a reporter at The Pontiac Press.

Indicom is a three-year trial program in which the district will experiment in individual instruction with a computer.

The program is to be financed exclusively by the federal government through Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

The project has been given verbal approval by the U.S. Office of Education. School officials are awaiting a final contract.

Among those still to be hired for Indicom is a director. Prospects currently are being interviewed.

Also hired last night as assistant principal of Pierce Junior High School was David L. Lindsay, director of the Waterford Township High School band and convener of secondary instrumental and vocal music teachers.

In other appointments last night, Board Secretary Mrs. Virginia Ross gained a three-year term with the Community Schools and Recreation Advisory Board and Treasurer Donald W. Porter was named designate to the Oakland Schools Board of Education with Lewis S. Long the alternate.

Michael G. Patterson was named delegate to the Michigan Association of School Boards (MASB). Long was selected as the alternate.

John Boardman was named as MASB legislative contact.

Waterford School Affairs

Architect Drawings Unveiled

Architectural drawings for the Waterford Township School District's proposed new $22,000 administration building were unveiled at last night's board of education meeting.

The administration will be housed at 1021 Airport, current site of Waterford Central school where classes will be discontinued.

The existing three-story and one-floor sections of the school will be altered to accommodate administrative offices. A new addition, featuring a two-level board of education meeting room, also will be constructed.

The meeting room will provide seating for 148, according to the plans designed by Wakely-Kushner Associates, Inc., of St. Clair Shores. Capacity could be increased to 200.

Parking facilities at the structure will accommodate 180 cars, architects noted. The new building will centralize virtually all of the administrative offices which now are scattered in five different locations.

The project was approved by school district voters in June 1966 as part of a bond issue.

In other business last night, the board voted to rebid the mechanical trades of the Crescent Lake Elementary School project after it was revealed that the low bidding firm had erred in its proposal submitted July 5.

The mistake increased the low bid from $120,000 to $142,430, still about $13,000 less than the next lowest bid.

The board, however, awarded architectural and electrical contracts with a few revisions.

The mechanical contract for $371,400 went to the Waterford Construction Co. Electrical Maintenance Co. was awarded the electrical contract for $63,100.

Also last night, the board authorized the administration to apply for 1967 National Defense Education Act Title III aid for equipment and supplies costing $491,741. Part of the funds is earmarked for built-in equipment for the proposed new Waterford-Mott High School and Crescent Lake Elementary School.

In other business, 1967-68 contracts were approved for 21 teachers and three resignations were accepted.

State Trooper at Pontiac to Be Elevated, Moved

A State Police trooper, who has been stationed at the Pontiac post for five years, will be promoted to the rank of corporal and transferred to Marquette, effective Sunday.

He is Duane G. Gerstenberger, 32, a 10-year veteran of the State Police. Prior to his assignment to the Pontiac Post in 1962, Gerstenberger was stationed at Jonesville. He is the recipient of a meritorious service citation. A native of Brown City, Gerstenberger graduated from high school at Marquette and attended the University of Michigan for two years. 'Fair Trial' Proposals Eased, Still Severe Quebec Is Next for De Gaulle

By WILLIAM B. MEAD
ANN ARBOR (UPI) — A State Bar of Michigan committee today slightly softened its "fair trial" proposals which would curtail public release of information about criminal cases. But it still called for a severe clamp-down.

The committee, whose original proposals were sharply criticized by newsmen, a federal judge and Michigan's attorney general, presented its revised recommendations to a meeting of lawyers and Michigan news officials.

There was little difference between the new and old proposals.

The committee suggested that instead of a court order strictly limiting what policemen could tell reporters about criminal cases, that "law enforcement agencies" adopt their own regulations governing this matter.

But if they don't, the committee said, the courts or Legislature should do it for them.

The committee also eliminated its original proposal that prosecutors, defense attorneys or policemen who break the rules be subject to jail on contempt of court citations.

COULD BE DISBARRED
Lawyers still could be disbarred for violations, however.

Left intact were proposals that would prohibit release of information about a defendant's confession or criminal record and the name or comments of witnesses to a crime; permit secret pretrial hearings; and, under threat of jail, stop court employees from telling newsmen what was said in a secret court hearing.

The proposals, still to be considered by the State Bar membership, are intended to keep newspapers and broadcast stations from getting information about a criminal case which, the committee believes, might influence jurors and make it impossible for the defendant to get a fair trial.

Newsman have opposed the recommendations on grounds they would interfere with the public's right to know, promote general policies of official secrecy, and stop the press from informing the public about corruption or other flaws in the administration of justice.

The proposed rules also would encourage judges to postpone trials, or move them to another city, if it appeared likely that news accounts might influence jurors; to be more careful in selecting jurors; and to make sure jurors don't read newspaper accounts or listen to radio news during the trial.

Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley has said Michigan needs no laws on release of information.

Kelley said there is not a single case in Michigan history in which a defendant was convicted because of news accounts.

But William M. Ellmann of Detroit, president of the State Bar, said he could cite "15 cases in the last month" in which jurors were influenced by news about the case. He refused to disclose them.

The original proposals were copied from a list being considered by the American Bar Association, and Ellmann said the changes disclosed today merely followed recent changes in the ABA's proposed rules.

ST. PIERRE (AP) — French President Charles de Gaulle cruised through the Gulf of St. Lawrence toward Quebec today, leaving behind the tiny, eight-island remnant of France's North American empire whose World War II loyalty to him may be beginning to pay off.

During his enthusiastically received 10-hour visit Thursday, de Gaulle acknowledged that there are economic problems on St. Pierre, Miquelon and the six other drab chunks of French territorial rock off the Newfoundland coast and said France would help.

He made no specific promises to the 5,500 islanders, whose chief activity is cod fishing, but said France has a duty to them and "will do what she must."

He said he was willing to discuss economic development with their representatives. One economic step the islanders are eager to take is to become a port of call for foreign fleets fishing on the nearby banks. If the islands were fully outfitted with freezing and storing facilities, the trawlers could deposit their catch and leave the long-distance hauling to other vessels.

Tentative Okay Reached

Stock Market to Stay in NY

NEW YORK (AP)—City officials and representatives of the New York Stock Exchange have reached a tentative agreement to keep the exchange in the city while reducing the impact of the stock transfer tax, the New York Times said today.

When the controversial tax was increased last year, the exchange canceled its option on a new site in Lower Manhattan and threatened to move to New Jersey.

Though it is a state tax, the $100 million revenue it took in last year all went to the city. The tax ranges from 1.25 cents a share on stocks priced at less than $5 to 5 cents a share on stocks of $20 or more.

The Times story said it was estimated the city would not lose revenue because the volume of stock trading continues to increase and because the proposed amendments would bring in business now done elsewhere to avoid the tax.

The pact would have the tax over a five-year period for persons living outside the city and place a $500 ceiling on the tax on single large block transactions by individuals or institutions wherever they are, the Times said.

Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., said Thursday some of the 1,300 young interns working in Washington this summer are circulating a petition among the rest and are planning an anti-war protest at the White House later this year.

He said they have discussed seeking a face-to-face meeting with Johnson — and then perhaps walking out on him in a bid for wider news coverage.

Michel protested "that the prestige of our offices is being used to foster a given point of view."

The administration point of view is being marketed by Taylor and Clifford in a follow-up to Defense Secretary Robert M. McNamara's recent visit to South Vietnam.

It reportedly is beamed at getting Vietnam's allies to match in part predicted increases in U.S. forces.

He concedes, however, that it "is not catching on like wild-fire," and he comments that CUNIFF at the present time, "we'd like to see if we can consolidate our circulation."

The handsome, digest-size, multicolumned, 50-cent, 248-page Monday edition, for example, will have a U.S. distribution of less than 25,000 copies. The Reader's Digest sells 17.2 million copies monthly.

But Sputnik, launched last January as a condensation of the best in Soviet newspapers and magazines, was never meant to give that kind of competition in the United States.

Abroad it might be a different matter, for Sputnik lists 40 countries in which it is distributed.

Nevertheless, it will have to travel like the satellite it was named after to catch up with the Soviet satellite.

Capital Interns to Protest War

2 LBJ Advisers Off for Selling Job on Allies

WASHINGTON (AP)—While President Johnson sends two top advisers on a tough Vietnam selling mission, a group of congressional interns is thinking of attempting an even tougher job on Johnson — selling him antiwar sentiments.

The Johnson advisers going to Asia, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor and Clark Clifford, are trying to get six allies to boost their troop commitments in Vietnam.

The Capitol Hill young people want the United States to cut or eliminate its own commitments in that war-torn country.

Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., said Thursday some of the 1,300 young interns working in Washington this summer are circulating a petition among the rest and are planning an anti-war protest at the White House later this year.

Not Catching On in U.S.

Soviet Digest Sputters

The Digest's foreign circulation of 10.7 million copies in several languages, Sputnik originally was printed in English, Russian and Japanese, but more languages will be added.

In the United States, Eastern News Distribution, Inc., which supplies newsmagazines across the nation, reports that of the 25,000 copies now distributed some are returned by dealers, "but the Reader's Digest has some returns too."

"We're not doing much promotion," a spokesman said, "and you really can't launch a magazine until you promote it."

In the past we did, but now we want to see how the results hold up."

The editors reportedly hoped for a circulation of 50,000 in the United States, a small goal that still seems within sight. Many times more Americans, however, have seen Sputnik satellites in the skies than Sputnik magazines on the newsstands.

Its sales generally are restricted to downtown stores rather than corner newsstands or suburban variety stores.

As for doing business with the Russians, the distributor says, "It's easy to deal with them."

The contract is based on the number of magazines distributed, and he says, he isn't losing money.

"We're in business. We could stay in this and take a loss. We're compensated for our services."

For the publisher, Novosti Press Agency, it may be a different matter. Even the barest expenses could not be met on the $12,000 or so return from present circulation. Just a few years ago an American magazine, the old Coronet, went broke with a circulation of $8.5 million and lots more ads.

The current issue of Sputnik has only eight full-page advertisements, four from Finnish companies—the magazine is printed there—and four from Soviet industries: lumber, cameras, fur coats and textiles.

Parcel Post Service Hiked

Pontiac Postmaster William W. Donaldson today announced that parcel post deliveries in Pontiac will be expanded from five to six days a week as of Monday.

This resulted from a directive from U.S. Postmaster Gen. Lawrence F. O'Brien following legislative appropriation of $8.5 million for restoration of the six-day-a-week delivery. The six-day route had been cut back in May 1964 as an economy measure.

The improved service will remove an inequity for many business and residential routes, Donaldson said.

Survey Shows CNB Growth

Community National Bank has climbed from 23rd to 22nd place among 500 banks holding the most total resources in the United States, according to an American Banker magazine survey, a bank spokesman announced today. The survey reported that the rise in position took place during the first six months of 1967.

The spokesman attributed the rise to aggressive management, the opening of three new branches in the last year and the new check-free system.

"The bank has been here for years and we're sharing in the general prosperity of the area," he added.

Ford Unveils Electric Car

Prototype Debuts at Preview for Newsmen

DETROIT (AP)—You wouldn't call it long and loud, but at least it's not loud.

That was the impression given by the Ford Motor Co.'s prototype electric car which made its debut Thursday in a preview for newsmen.

Named the Comuta, it is the first to be designed by a major auto maker specifically for electric propulsion. Ford sees it primarily as a city or shopping car, hence the name.

The Comuta is powered by four lead-acid batteries, with a fifth to run the car accessories. It goes 40 miles at 25 miles per hour.

Boxy Shape

Tiny by American standards, the Comuta is designed to carry two adults and two children. The shape is boxy since there's no engine. The batteries are located under the seats and the two electric motors are attached to the rear wheels.

The control system is simple: a key to turn on the power and a little switch with positions for forward, reverse and neutral.
