Commission Is Expected to Discuss 1954-55 Budget at Monday Night Meeting

From Our Birmingham Bureau
BIRMINGHAM—City Manager Donald C. Egbert said yesterday the 1954-55 city budget will probably be under discussion at Monday night's City Commission meeting, following a closed session this morning.

As proposed, the budget totals $1,200,740 "in operating within the 15 mill levy, the resulting budget is not satisfactory," Egbert said yesterday.

Egbert said he is "not particularly happy to see any increase in the rate, if it can be avoided, but we must face our needs." The city does not desire to do any deficit financing, he added.

Substantial increases have been asked for by the fire department and library, and will be considered, Egbert said. Another major item is the need for street repairs, which the manager said cannot be delayed.

Influencing factors which in the last year have caused additional dipping into the operational funds of the city, have been the decrease in tax rate, an increase in millage to the library and the segregation of parking meter revenues.

At a surprise testimonial dinner last night, Dr. and Mrs. David W. Thornberry stepped into the spotlight. Unknown to them, members of St. James Episcopal Church had planned a program based on the television program, "This Is Your Life," to honor their first resident minister and his wife.

Dr. Thornberry served as rector from 1905 to 1907. He and Mrs. Thornberry returned to Birmingham in 1944. Since that time he has acted as assistant to the Rev. Harold E. Towne.

Surprise guests attending were the Thornberrys' children: David R., archdeacon of the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Ohio; Mrs. Margaret Loftis of Cincinnati; and Mrs. Charles Coughlin of Berkeley, Calif.

Others were: Clarence H. Foster of Cadillac, who was best man at the honored couple's wedding; and Mrs. George Lerch of Virginia, Minn.

Winners of the six Birmingham Musicale scholarships have been announced. To attend the Interlochen Music Camp this summer are Joan Gassaway, oboe; John Kerley, saxophone and trombone; and Jane Ann Russell and Carolyn Shattuck, piano.

Joan also received the $25 memorial gift awarded to the outstanding musician among the applicants.

Pat Barkley, piano and Mary Jo Allgire, flute, will use their scholarships for the Michigan state music program.

Working on their advancement at Dodge Park near Milford this weekend are Boy Scouts of Troop B-1, Eugene Kempf, camping director, is in charge of the camp-out, along with three dads.

Troop Chairman Glenn Emery has announced that the troop is in need of a new scoutmaster. Any one interested may contact him.

Honoring Mother's Day, Ladies Auxiliary No. 9 of the Metropolitan Club will hold a mother-daughter banquet at 6:30 p. m. next Thursday at Embassy Methodist Church. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Charles Reynolds by Monday.

At Monday's noon luncheon at the Community House, Rotary Club members will view a film entitled, "The New Paul Bunyan," shown by a representative of the Weyerhaeuser Lumber Co.

Following this week's city commission meeting, City Manager Donald C. Egbert will prepare plans to service the Troy Township property west of the Grand Trunk Western Railroad right-of-way, through Birmingham's sewer system.

Egbert will negotiate with Norman Barnard, the township supervisor, who requested the connection. Owners of the property will pay for installation, Barnard said. He said the Birmingham Development Co., one of the owners, has agreed to pay its share for additional relief sewers in the area.

Birmingham Musicale will be a co-hostess club when the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs meets Monday through Wednesday in Detroit at its 37th annual convention.

Members will take part in the traditional massed chorus concert Monday afternoon. Mrs. I. W. Robertson, of Binbrook road, is in charge of the formal banquet to be held Tuesday night.

vice stations throughout Pontiac where checkups are available.

A yellow "O.K." windshield sticker will be furnished to motorists passing the inspection.

The inspection will consist of a brake, horn, muffler, lights and windshield wipers checkup.

Courtesy warnings will be issued to motorists whose autos fail the inspection, according to Police Chief Herbert W. Straley.

After this week's inspections, several roving Police crews will continue the checkups during the rest of the month.

Establishments where the checkups also may be obtained are the following:

Braid Motors Sales, Central Lincoln-Mercury Sales, Jacobson Hudson Sales, Jerome Motor Sales, Kimball Bros., Riemschneider Bros., Cy Owens, Oliver Motor Sales, Pontiac Retail Store, Wilson GMC Co., Matthews Hargreaves Inc., and the Firestone Stores.

Service stations cooperating also are the Davis Texaco Service, Alder's Super Service, Cass Ave. Brake Service, Earl Liggett, Louis Soucey, D. R. McDonald, and Joe's Neighborhood Service Stations and the Foster Garage.

Berkley Man in Hospital After Being Hit by Car

Harold Gauthier, 45, of 2079 Harvard, Berkley, was admitted to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital last night when he was struck by a car near his home. His condition is reported as good today.

Berkley police said today that Gauthier left a taxi and dashed across Harvard into the path of an eastbound car driven by Elmer Llewellyn, 33, of 1674 Cambridge. Llewellyn was not held.

Two Are Jailed in Store Breakin

Pontiac Youths Face Arraignment May 17 in Circuit Court

Two Pontiac youths waived examination on charges of breaking and entering in the nighttime, and are in Oakland County Jail awaiting Oakland County Circuit Court arraignment May 17. They were unable to furnish $500 bond each.

Sylvan M. Kelly, 17, of 140 Mar-ian Ave., and Harry L. Pate, 19, of 164 Dresden Ave., are accused of breaking into the Lakeside Grocery at 6891 Williams Lake Rd. on April 30 and again May 2. In both breakins many cartons of cigarettes were taken.

Kelly and Pate were arrested shortly after the second breakin by Oakland County Sheriff's Deputies Thomas Brimhall and Lyle Walmsley. The deputies had been called to an accident at Williams Lake and Cooley Lake Rds. where a car had rolled over.

In the car they found about 160 cartons of cigarettes, and after searching for the occupants, the deputies, assisted by Sylvan Village Police Sgt. John Carman and Patrolman Frank Stott, located Pate and Kelly coming out of a field about half a mile from the accident scene.

Yesterday Waterford Township Patrolman Millard Pender arrested Pate's brother, Lyle L., 20, of 124 E. Farnum, Royal Oak, for investigation of receiving stolen property.

Community Club Guests See Films of Fishing Trip

Howard Shelley of the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club showed his movies of a Canadian fishing trip Thursday at the annual Father and Son Banquet of the Weyerhaeuser Community Club. About 250 persons attended the event in Weyer Junior High School.

General chairman was L. R. Stanley and Arthur J. Law was master of ceremonies. The Rev. Charles Mahar of the Baldwin Avenue Methodist Church gave the invocation. Merlin Sanderson, accompanied by Richard Gould, led community singing.

Decorations and arrangements for preparing and serving the food were handled by Mr. and Mrs. George Gray, Mrs. John Emerson and William Simmons. Members of the Pontiac Board of Education will explain the new tax plan at the next meeting May 22 in Owen School.

ings and the recent Smith Act trial of six top Michigan Communists.

Mrs. Baldwin told the subcommittee that the party sent out its "most militant cadres" to "colonize" — organize — Communist cells in Michigan auto plants.

This, she said, was in line with a party directive to concentrate on big industry, particularly the auto industry.

Rep. Kit Clardy (R-Mich.), chairman, sat as a one-man subcommittee in the absence of the other two members. Rep. Scherer (R-Ohio) returned to his home in Cincinnati after the three went to Washington Thursday to vote on the St. Lawrence Seaway. Rep. Moulder (R-Mo) became ill in Washington, delaying his return to Detroit.

All three are expected to be on hand when the subcommittee moves to Lansing Monday.

Because of the absence of the two members, Mrs. Baldwin was the only witness at the final Detroit session. One other, auto worker William E. Fletcher, was called, but his testimony was postponed when he informed Clardy he did not intend to be a "cooperative" witness.

Clardy announced that the subcommittee will return to Detroit Tuesday, May 25, for a one-day stand. He said about 20 witnesses will be heard at that time.

Minors With Alcohol Top List of Arrests

Minors in possession of alcohol accounted for the most arrests in Waterford Township last month, according to the monthly report of Police Chief Frank Van Atta.

Of 56 arrests, 23 were minors with alcohol. Eighteen were felony arrests and the remainder were misdemeanors, Van Atta said.

The department handled 374 complaints, of which 51 were auto accidents, and seven were breakins. Five of the seven breakins have been solved, Van Atta said. Traffic violations totaled 187.

French Expected to Depose Laniel those responsible for the worst defeat in seven years of Indochina warfare, the debate easily could result in a new government upset. News of Dien Bien Phu's collapse had been expected almost every day since fighting for the north Indochina fortress started nearly two months ago. But the headlines, when they came, struck a hard blow at French morale and increased demands for peace—at almost any price.

The cry that some way out of the 7-year-old war must be found was once popular only among Communists. Recently it had become shrill and insistent from many quarters.

The government came in for severe criticism on Indochina policy in assembly debate this week. With the gallant defenders of Dien Bien Phu still holding out and the talks about to start in Geneva, however, the disgruntled deputies hesitated in throwing out Laniel and his Cabinet.

A hunt for scapegoats will reopen the question. Already one deputy has announced that he wants the government to say who was responsible for the Dien Bien Phu defeat.

Detroit Youth Injured in Automobile Collision

Detroit's Gerald E. Roy, 19, was treated for a scalp cut Friday night suffered when his car collided with another that made a left turn in front of him, he told Waterford Township Police.

Roy, westbound on M59, told police he was passing a line of cars when Gilbert D. Grubb, 40, of 850 Bald Eagle Lake Rd., attempted to turn into a driveway at 4821 Highland Rd.

The couple faces arraignment in Gratiot County Circuit Court Monday.

17,116 in County Get Polio Shots

Number of Volunteers Pleases Health Officials; 2nd Injections Due

Final figures showed today that Oakland County parents have let 17,116 first, second and third grade students take part in the Salk polio vaccine test.

The last of the youngsters taking part in the test were given their first shots Friday. Each will get three injections — the second a week after the first and the third shot four weeks after the first.

Dr. John D. Monroe, county health director, said he was very happy with the number of volunteers "in this program, the biggest one of its kind in the history of medicine."

"More than half the 33,000 children in the first three grades of our schools have come forward for this test," Dr. Monroe said. "This is a lot higher than we expected."

Dr. Monroe said that the county thought "scare" publicity would cut the total number of youngsters in the test to about 15,000.

Dr. Monroe said he had not had a single report of any child having a bad reaction "that we can honestly say was caused by the injection."

Health department figures showed that Bloomfield Village School ranked highest in the county in the percentage of youngsters taking part in the test. There, 73 per cent of the first three grades—91 of the 124 eligible children — were given injections.

Pontiac's two highest schools were Webster and Whitfield, where almost 58 per cent of the eligible youngsters took part. Webster had 250 volunteers from 427 children and Whitfield, 126 of 224.

Bagley had 212 of its 461 eligible students participating; Whitfield, 93 of 264, and LeBaron, 123 of 277 children.

"Considering the size of this project and the short time we had to get ready," Dr. Monroe said, "everything went much more smoothly than we expected. Drs. Thomas Francis and R. F. Korns, of the University of Michigan Evaluation Center did a spot-check on a half-dozen clinics here and were very pleased."

Near-Perfect Guess Wins Defense Bond

T. Wesley Neddo, of 8761 Arlington Rd. Pontiac won a $100 defense bond for his nearly perfect estimate of the number of pennies in a model house display at the recent home builders show here.

The Plexiglas model, in the Community National Bank booth, contained 3,758 pennies. Neddo guessed 3,759.

The Pontiac Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored the show.

Church Program to Emphasize Faith of Families

First Presbyterian Church will climax National Family Week with a Mother's Day service tomorrow and a dinner and program Wednesday.

The Rev. William H. Marbach, D. D., will preach on the theme, "The Christian Message and Motherhood" at the Sunday worship service. The choir sing two appropriate anthems, "Mother Love" and "Bless This House."

"Faith of Our Families" will be the theme of the May Family Night Dinner Wednesday at 6:30 p.m.

The program is centered around a film on how to direct family worship. The purpose is a revival of the "family altar" that has contributed so largely to the spiritual life of America.

Hosts and hostesses were provided by the Parents Class which consists of nearly 100 adults for Bible study, as a part of the Church School. The program was arranged by Rev. Edward B. Auer.

Hosts and hostesses are: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Threlkeld, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Midwinter, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Lemaux, Mr. and Mrs. William Hilderley, Mr. and Mrs. William Herrmann, Mr. and Mrs. William Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Max Doerr, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood May, and Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Marbach.

Chief Requests Public's Help

Urges City Cooperate in Keeping Trash From Pontiac Streets

Pontiac Police Chief Herbert W. Straley today asked citizens to make it unnecessary for police to enforce a city ordinance against littering streets and public places with trash.

"There should be no need," said Straley, "for officers to enforce this ordinance if citizens display the spirit of civic pride synonymous with 'Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up' week now being sponsored here by the Pontiac Junior Chamber of Commerce."

"Streets littered with debris mar the potential beauty of our city. Anyone doing his part to prevent this can help make Pontiac a place to be proud of."

The ordinance makes it a misdemeanor to litter streets, alleys, parks or other public places with dirt, ashes, filth or other substances.

It states that vehicles used for hauling should not be loaded above the side or end boards; that they should be constructed to prevent scattering of contents on the streets and covered when contents might be blown out by the wind.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — Raymond H. Boyer, 59, of 11 Waldo, Pontiac, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Justice A. J. Richardson Friday on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor.

Woman Wonders Where to Find Part-Time Job Making Draperies

She Should Advertise in the Paper

Also Is Advised to Consult Yardgoods Saleswomen

By ANNE HEYWOOD
"I sew beautifully," a woman writes, "especially draperies, which have always been my specialty."

"I do all of our own, and I pride myself on the fine details and finishing. I have made them for friends also, and they have loved them."

"But none of my friends can afford to pay for my services, and I wonder if there is any way I could get a part-time job sewing, but just draperies."

"I am not so good at slipcovers, or dresses, or anything, really, except drapes."

"Do you have any idea where I might find a job?"

First, let me say that you are very wise to specialize. Many women make the mistake of trying to do everything, and end by doing nothing well.

I suggest that you put an ad in your local paper.

There may be firms, or individuals, looking for just exactly such a service as yours, but they will never know it if you don't advertise.

Word your ad in some such way as: "Fine drapes made professionally: four hours per day, your premises or mine, fees moderate."

Next, call on the salesgirls in your favorite shop, or at department store fabric counters. You might show them a photograph of draperies you have made, tell them you do it reasonably, and see if they might recommend you when they have a customer who asks about such a service.

You might also write a brief, business like letter to the leading decorators in your city. You should find them listed in your classified telephone directory.

Say something like this: "May I come in and talk with you about the possibility of making draperies for you or your clients on a part-time basis? My fees are reasonable, and my work is excellent. I would be glad to show you samples of my work."

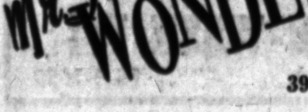

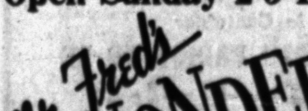

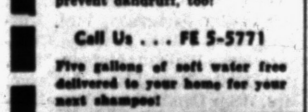

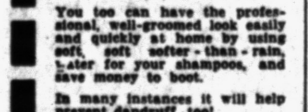

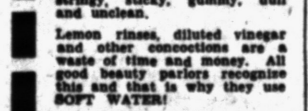

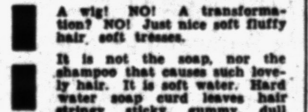

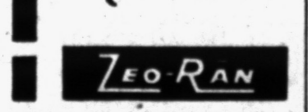

"Perhaps if you find yourself snowed under, with a seasonal rush and deadlines, I might be of help to you."

Then give your phone number. If you will keep at it, there's no reason why you shouldn't have a lucrative part-time business.

Drapes Affect Look

If the windows in your living room are narrow, hang the draperies so that they extend out over the frame. Hanging them within the frame, of course, will make too wide windows look narrower.

She Should Give Up—Now

Boy's Parents Veto Girl

By ELIZABETH WOODWARD

A girl likes to snuggle down into the comfy, warm feeling that her boy friend's family likes her. It's not enough to know that he loves her to pieces—his relatives must love her, too.

But a girl can afford the luxury of such sentimental notions only when she knows his family well. If they live somewhere else and she's never met them, she's just an idea to them—a vague, formless creature they may, or may not, have heard about. It's silly to expect them to go all out for a girl they've never seen.

It's equally silly to count on their enthusiastic approval when they refuse to take their son's girl friend seriously. And such is the case when, from their point of view, son is too young, too unsettled, too low on the ladder to be in anything but puppy love.

It's downright painful for a girl to bump up against real opposition from his family. Maybe they have nothing against her personally. They just have plans, traditions and ways of thinking that don't include her.

Such opposition is a real challenge to a girl in love. She refuses to face the fact that the cards would be equally stacked against any similar girl her boy friend liked. She is blithely sure she can overcome any and all barriers—if she just knew how.

Here's a girl who's facing some pretty rockbound traditions. She writes that she's being judged for something she can't help.

"Dear Miss Woodward: His family is terribly strict and they want him to break off with me because they want to pick the girl for him to marry."

"She must be someone with the same racial background, the same religion—someone they've known forever—the daughter of family friends."

"We've been going together for two years and have talked of marriage, but because I'm only 17 we have decided to wait for two more years so I can graduate and we can save for our future."

"He is 22 and must be home at 10:30 each night or else he is locked out and must either sleep in his car or impose on friends. I try to respect his family's wishes so we end our dates at 9:30."

"We've talked it all over without finding any real solution. He could leave home, which I don't want him to do."

"He could join the service, but I'd hate to be the one to push that idea because I wouldn't be able to see him at all. We could break off—but neither of us wants that."

"Is there any way I can prove to his family that I'm just as good a girl friend and future wife for their son as any girl they could pick out?"

"I can't understand how his whole family can judge me when they've just met me once—and their main criticism is the fact that my racial background is different from theirs."

It would be interesting to know how your own family feels about the young man in question.

Are they convinced that he would make the perfect husband for you? Are they even aware that you're thinking about marriage with him? Do they like him wholeheartedly—with all his differences? Have there been any conflicts at home because of those differences?

Your own family's attitudes and ways of thinking are familiar to you—and would be valuable help in getting your own thinking straightened out.

My own angle is this: You're 17 and it's too soon to be thinking about marriage when you're so far from its accomplishment. If he can't convince his family to accept you—you can't. Marriage with a boy whose family ties are very strong—and whose family doesn't approve of you—would be lifelong misery.

My recommendation is to break it off clean and now. You're still in school—you've chances and time to find someone else.

However, Givers Are Criticized for Keeping Presents

By EMILY POST

A letter tells me: "My daughter and I visited a relative in the hospital recently. She had undergone a serious operation but was recovering nicely. My daughter took her a box of candy and I gave her a box of cookies."

"As soon as she saw them, she said, 'I can't have candy or cookies.' I felt quite put out over this remark but said nothing, and when it was time for us to go we took the packages with us."

"Now I understand we are being criticized for doing this. Don't you think this was the right thing to do under the circumstances? I would appreciate hearing from you."

Answer: If you had said, "If you really can't eat these, I will take them home and bring something you can eat if you will tell me what this is," that would have been quite all right. Although her own reply was tactless, your taking the gifts and walking off with them was certainly not good manners.

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married soon and would like to know if it would be proper to send my cousin, who lost her father two months ago, an invitation to my wedding. There seems to be a difference of opinion about this and I would like to know what is correct.

Answer: Even though your cousin may not feel able to go to your wedding, you certainly should send her an invitation, because otherwise she will feel neglected—in fact, shut out!

Dear Mrs. Post: My doctor has cured me of a very serious illness. I would like to send him a basket of fruit or a flowering plant in addition to paying my bill.

Should this be sent to office or home, and should it include his wife, who is a stranger to me?

Answer: Since his wife is a stranger to you, sending it to him alone at his office would be preferable.

Paper Showers Become Popular

Many young people today plan a paper shower for a prospective bride, if several parties are planned in her honor.

Popular work-saving items usually included are: a variety of paper plates in several designs and sizes; paper towels, wax paper, shelf paper, monogrammed matches, note paper, playing cards and decorative prints which the bride can have framed later. Paper baking cups and dishes also will prove useful, as will a good supply of paper table mats and napkins.

To carry out the theme of the shower, the hostess can use as all-paper table service. For decorative purposes she can make miniature umbrellas out of paper plates.

This is done by cutting a two-inch wedge out of a nine-inch plate, overlapping cut edges, fastening with cellophane tape and sticking a pipe cleaner through the middle for a handle.

A cluster of these makes an attractive centerpiece, while umbrellas made from smaller paper plates can be used for place cards.
