Plans Are Unveiled by Pontiac

Architectural plans and final details for the proposed 300,000 square-foot Pontiac Motor Division administration building were made public today.

The five-story structure will face to the south and will be located near the intersection of Joslyn and Kennett.

Groundbreaking for the structure is scheduled this fall and completion is early 1968.

Designed to accommodate nearly 1,200 employees, the building will house the division's main administrative office, the accounting and data processing departments, sales department, public relations department and the purchasing and production control departments.

The new building will be four times larger than the 46-year-old present administration building on Oakland which will be used for storage and warehousing when the new unit is completed.

Included in the new structure will be a cafeteria facility to serve both administration building and product engineering building employees.

NEW HEADQUARTERS—Pontiac Motor Division General Manager John Z. DeLorean sits behind a model of the division's proposed new five-story administration building. The new structure will face Kennett, near Joslyn, and will contain 300,000 square feet of office space. Ground will be broken this fall and it is scheduled for completion early in 1968.

AAA Is Willing to Include Noncancellation Clauses

LANSING (AP) — The Automobile Club of Michigan — the state's largest auto insurer — says it is willing to insert noncancellation guarantees in its $15,000,000 insurance policies.

The statement was made to the House Insurance Committee yesterday by Paul Erickson, general manager of the Detroit Automobile Interinsurance Exchange and Motor State Insurance Co., the insurance affiliates of the AAA.

Erickson testified against a bill that would make noncancellation clauses mandatory, but told the committee the club would be willing to include such clauses — subject to the limitations spelled out in the bill, and with a longer grace period between the time the policy was written and the date the guarantee went into effect.

The limitations in the bill include:

- A finding that the insured represents an unacceptable risk to the firm;
- A deliberate withholding

Yanks Shoot Panicky Viets in Evacuation

WASHINGTON (AP) — American servicemen shot seven mountain tribesmen when panic broke out during evacuation operations at a Special Forces camp overrun by Communists last week, it was learned today.

In another incident in the panic, a grenade killed 10 other tribesmen, members of the civilian irregular defense group hired to work with Special Forces in Viet Nam.

The tribesmen — called Montagnards — were shot when they tried to scramble aboard helicopters evacuating wounded from the Ashau camp, a mud and log fortress near the Laotian border.

Preliminary reports said of the 400 defenders at the camp, 190 persons were evacuated over a three-day period. Seventeen of them were U.S. Special Forces troops, including five who died.

It was learned that on March 10 when the first evacuation helicopters got into Ashau, some able-bodied civilian irregular defenders panicked during the loading of wounded, and tried to storm aboard the aircraft.

American advisers beat and kicked them off and finally were forced to shoot about seven, it was said, to free the aircraft for takeoff.

NATO Allies Standing Firm — U. S. Envoy

LBJ, Aides to Confer Today; May Consider Answer to De Gaulle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen, home from Paris for consultation with President Johnson, said today that 14 Atlantic allies are firmly determined to carry on the Western alliance defense system despite France's announced plan to pull out.

Bohlen, who made an initial report to President Johnson yesterday, testified today before a closed session of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee.

He was scheduled to return later today to a White House meeting with Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson and other top policy advisers.

Johnson was reported sending a new letter to French President Charles de Gaulle on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization crisis.

De Gaulle informed Johnson two weeks ago he intends to take over U.S. military bases in France, which are part of the NATO system.

PLANS REMOVAL

He also plans to remove two French divisions and two air squadrons in West Germany from NATO command and to oust NATO military headquarters from France.

Rep. Edna F. Kelly, D-N.Y., chairman of the House subcommittee, said Bohlen discussed the NATO situation in general at the closed session, starting a series of hearings on NATO and U.S. relations.

Bohlen told reporters later he was home for consultation about France's new attitude toward NATO and did not want to talk about specific details "which are still under discussion."

He said, though, the European defense organization will continue as it is known today and that the other 14 nations in it had made this intention clear.

The over-all situation and this country's next moves are being considered at the White House meetings.

Soviets Launch '2 Michigan Dems Didn't Report Taxes'

Check Space Dogs for Future Trip Data

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union today launched the 112th unmanned Cosmos satellite in its program of space study. Scientists were already studying the effects of space on two space dogs sent aloft in an earlier Cosmos flight.

Study of the effect of space and radiation on the two dogs is necessary before Russian scientists give the green light for a new manned flight that reportedly will involve two or more cosmonauts in an attempt to set a three-week endurance record.

The Tass News Agency said Cosmos 112 was orbiting the earth every 90 minutes in an orbit ranging from 530 miles to 132 miles.

The announced aim of the Cosmos program instituted in March 1963 is to help study conditions for manned space travel.

As is customary with Cosmos shots, the Russians did not disclose the weight of the spacecraft nor reveal the precise nature of the mission.

The dogs, Blackie and Breeze, returned yesterday from a 23-day whirl in space and were immediately subjected to a battery of tests to follow up data received while they were in orbit.

The dogs came through in "good condition," Tass announced. But authorities admitted some minor problems with heart rhythm and initial adjustment to weightlessness.

HURDLE PASSED

But the chief hurdle — coping with the dangerous Van Allen radiation belts more than 550 miles out from earth — appeared to have been negotiated, according to the Tass announcement.

Why Gemini Had Mishap Still Mystery

Spacemen on Way to Okinawa Base in Recovery Destroyer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Gemini 8 astronauts rode a destroyer toward Okinawa today while space officials dug into the mystery of the violent mishap that brought their mission to a hair-raising end in the waters of the Pacific.

The destroyer Leonard F. Mason, which picked Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott out of the water after the first emergency landing in U.S. space history, was scheduled to put them ashore tonight at Naha.

Both were reported to have come safely through the dangerous reentry which abruptly terminated their scheduled three-day flight 10 hours, 42 minutes after the blastoff.

At a morning news conference at Houston, Tex., overnight flight director Gene Kranz said it will be some time before officials can say what caused Gemini to buck in space like a frightened stallion.

The trouble which sent the spacecraft into a spin happened when there was no voice or telemetry communication between earth and the spacecraft.

The troubles the astronauts experienced apparently were so dangerous that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration refused at first to let newsmen hear tape recordings of their voices during the crisis.

GOOD NEWS — Three leaders of the St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Building Fund drive scan latest figures that reveal the campaign is now $725,000 from the $3.25-million goal. They are (from left) Don B. Whitfield, E. M.

Estes, and Robert R. Eldred. Estes is general chairman, and Whitfield and Eldred are co-chairmen of the public drive, which got under way with a dinner for volunteers in Pontiac last night.

Public Drive Launched

The campaign for public donations to the St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Building fund was launched at a dinner for volunteer workers at Pontiac Elks Temple last night.

It is the final phase of the drive which needs $725,000 to hit its $3.25-million goal.

Presiding over the meeting was campaign chairman, E. M. Estes, a General Motors vice president and general manager of the Chevrolet Division.

Nearly 400 volunteers attended the dinner to receive final instructions and hear a progress report on the campaign.

Accepting the challenge for the Birmingham-Bloomfield area was Don B. Whitfield, a Birmingham realtor, while Robert R. Eldred, executive vice president of Community National Bank, accepted for the Pontiac area. They are co-chairmen of the public campaign.

An official tabulation of the fund to date revealed that the memorial gifts committee under the leadership of Ernest A. Jones and John W. Fitzgerald has accounted for $608,597.

Robert M. Critchfield's corporation committee raised $667,000, while the physicians' committee, headed by Dr. Eugene J. Kestle, reported $249,490.

JOHN N. O'BRIEN

Enters Race for Judgeship

Royal Oak attorney John N. O'Brien announced today he has entered the race for circuit judge.

Two and possibly three vacancies on the bench will be filled this fall.

The 36-year-old former assistant prosecutor is the second with the name of O'Brien to become a candidate.

Since leaving the prosecutor's staff under George F. Taylor, O'Brien has been associated in private practice with Jack W. Hutson, with offices at 530 Washington Square Plaza.

Prior to becoming a prosecutor, O'Brien served on the staff of the Oakland County Probate Court by appointment of Judge Arthur E. Moore.

He received his law degree from the University of Detroit, where he had earlier been graduated from the College of Commerce and Finance.

Advanced law courses in criminal defense were later taken by O'Brien at Northwestern University.

Married, he, his wife and four children live at 1716 Rosemont, Berkeley.

O'Brien is legislative committee chairman of the Berkley Elementary PTA, and a member of the county Law Enforcement Association, Royal Oak Exchange Club and Royal Oak Lions.

The other O'Brien seeking the judicial post is William A. O'Brien, a Clawson attorney.

began until the communications blackout at reentry. What the astronauts have to say will have an important bearing on the future of the U.S. space program. The whole concept of hooking up with another satellite might have to be changed.

The trouble cropped up only half an hour after they achieved the first linkup with another satellite.

GENTLE NUDGING

At 6:13 p.m. EST command pilot Armstrong climbed a brilliant space chase by gently nudging the Gemini 8 nose into a funnel-like docking collar of a 26-foot-long Agena space vehicle.

Shortly after, mission directors at the control center in Houston, Tex., were jolted out of their seats when tracking data indicated the joined spaceships were rolling.

Here's what the data now available indicates:

Armstrong and Scott were preparing to make some maneuvers, using small Agena control jets to yaw the coupled craft. Purpose was to study resulting vibrations and their effect on the joined vehicles.

For some reason, there was a violent sideways movement, then the spaceships started to spin at a rate of about once every 10 seconds.

HEARTS POUNDED

During this period, Armstrong's heart rate pulsed up to 150 beats a minute and Scott's to 135. Both normally register in the 70s.

Armstrong managed to control the two spaceships sufficiently to disconnect and back away from the Agena, which carried about 1,000 pounds of potentially dangerous fuel.

The Agena then stabilized, but the Gemini resumed its rolling motion and went out of control.

Armstrong was unable to stop his main engines to operate the motion. He activated a set of 16 thrusters that are normally used only for reentry and was able to stabilize after wrestling with the problem for 30 minutes.

FIFTH ORBIT

The trouble occurred during the fifth orbit, as Gemini 8 was entering a series of glider revolutions that would take it away from main recovery areas.

Recovery officials decided that a landing in the Western Pacific during orbit No. 7 would offer the fastest recovery.

Computers calculated the time to fire the retro-rockets, and Armstrong fired them without a hitch as Gemini 8 sailed high over Africa.

The 28th began a suspenseful 30-minute period during which the astronauts made a fiery dash back through the atmosphere, skimming over Arabia, India and Red China.

'Area School Builder Has 'In-Tents' Tactic

By PAT MCCARTY

Ladeezee and gentlemen!

The Farmington School System is proud to present Fairview Elementary School, constructed right here under the Big Top—in the dead of winter, despite near-blizzard weather and the adversity of subzero temperatures.

Roll back the flaps, boys!

And there it stands—the framework of a building which next fall will house some 450 youngsters.

The 14-classroom unit is being built on a site at 32300 Rockridge, south of 14 Mile between Inkster and Middle Belt, Farmington Township.

Now up are the walls and the steel roof beams.

MAN'S INGENUITY

The construction is the product of one man's ingenuity, an idea which made light of normal winter building woes to give Farmington School District its 17th elementary unit on schedule.

General contractor Carl W. Luoma, who devised the plan to erect a school under circus tents, figures he's now in the clear.

"Compared to all the other projects in the area, we're ahead about five months," he said.

Thus was solved the perennial nial problem of winter layoffs and construction delays because of bad weather.

With a $345,000 contract and an Aug. 20 deadline, Luoma decided to find a way to keep the construction site covered so his employees could work during the hard winter months.

He conceived the idea of using canvas tents and believes he may be the first contractor in the nation to do so.

Luoma, temporarily based in Franklin, first faced the problem of finding someone who would lease him the tents.

He finally discovered the Cobb Canvas Co. of Detroit, a firm willing to take a chance on his experiment.

"They've been real cooperative," he said. "Cobb is the only company in the area that agreed to work with me. It's worked out real well for both of us."

The company set up three tents, one 40 by 140 feet and two 40 by 80 feet.

With oil heaters keeping temperatures in the 50s and 60s, Luoma's employees were working in "shirt-sleeve weather," he said.

Because of the tents, Luoma was able to keep 20 laborers busy, providing work for men who ordinarily would be drawing unemployment checks during the winter.

"We lost only one and a half days," he said. "That was because it was too cold to relocate a tent."

Cost of renting each tent ran about $30 a day, but Luoma had figured that in his bid, which nevertheless was the lowest submitted.

Schools Supt. Gerald V. Harrison gave high praise to Luoma for his unique idea.

"This is one of the best construction gimmicks I've seen," Harrison said. "Because of his foresightfulness, he is far ahead of where our previous contractors have been at this time of the year."

OU Grant Aids Alumni Program

Oakland University today received a $185,000 grant from the Kellogg Foundation.

The grant is for continuation and expansion of OU's experimental alumni education program.

It was accepted by the Michigan State University Board of Trustees at their meeting this morning.

The grant is to be administered over a three-year period by the university's division of continuing education. The program was established in 1963 under a Kellogg grant.

Since its inception, the experimental program has been concerned with providing a systematic plan for lifetime education of the alumnus, wherever he may be located.

NATIONWIDE INTEREST

A sharp departure from the usual college alumni program, the OU experiment has attracted nationwide attention.

According to Gary Woditsch, program director, more than 100 colleges and universities have requested information on the alumni education program.

A new feature of the program under the grant will be an information dissemination system, employing the latest computerized library science technologies.

Woditsch said the system will generate for alumni a weekly listing of abstracts of current literature related to their specific interests.

VARIED SELECTIONS

The alumnus will be able to request complete documents, selective bibliographies or information on available course programs.

Sheriff's Dept. Is Unionized

Nonsupervisors Vote for AFSCME 81-21

Nonsupervisory personnel of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department voted overwhelmingly yesterday to establish the American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees (AFSCME) as bargaining agent.

Final returns in the election conducted by officials of the State Labor Mediation Board showed 81 votes favoring the union and 21 opposed.

State labor board officials who tallied the votes said the count would be officially certified within five days.

In addition, 10 ballots cast were challenged by the county as representing supervisory personnel.

Generally, persons with the authority to "hire and fire" or advise on hiring and firing are not covered by provisions of the state statute authorizing collective bargaining by public employees.

3 EXCEPTIONS

In petitions for recognition, the AFSCME had included all sheriff's department personnel with the exception of the sheriff, undersheriff Donald M. Francis, and Capt. Leo R. Hazen.

A total of 116 deputies, detectives, turnkeys, clerks and other personnel were eligible to cast ballots.

The vote makes the sheriff's department the second group of county employees to affiliate with a union.

NOW PENDING

Now pending are contract negotiations between the county and the union regarding salaries, hours, and working conditions of sheriff's department employees.

Under Public Act 379 (the Hutchinson Act), a formal contract between the two groups is required by July 1, the beginning of the fiscal year.

Yesterday's election was the result of a request for recognition first carried to Sheriff Frank W. Irons by the AFSCME Feb. 3.

At that time, Irons referred the union petition to the state board, which confirmed a minimum 30 per cent of employee support for the AFSCME and set an election date.

Brings 2 Political Careers to Halt

Election Ends Stormy Lake Orion Episode

By BILL EASTHAM
Asst. City Editor—Suburban
LAKE ORION — Monday's elections brought to at least a temporary close two of the stormiest political careers in the history of this village — those of Village President Clarence B. Rossman and Assessor Robert J. Swem.

Both served only one term after being elected last March by uncomfortably close margins — a three-vote majority for Rossman and eight for Swem.

CLARENCE B. ROSSMAN

Wallace C. Crane, who thumped Rossman Monday with a majority of 497 to 186, nearly upset him last year as a sticker candidate, polling 188 votes to Rossman's 171.

Swem, who lost to Albert J. Rhodes by a solid majority of 461 to 171, was also nearly defeated by a sticker candidate in his first political adventure.

Wallace Beer, who did not enter this year's race, garnered 207 votes to Swem's 215 in last year's balloting.

CROSSED SWORDS
A month after his election, Rossman, a maintenance employee at Pontiac Motor Division, crossed swords with the Village Council over appointments for the coming year.

From that time on, he never relaxed his efforts to exercise his rights as "chief executive" granted by the General Law Village Charter of 1895.

His insistence on these rights resulted in some council meetings that were as well attended as any movie ever shown in the former theater now used as a meeting place.

Much of the fodder for the council meeting cannons was provided by Swem, who resigned three weeks after his election because he wasn't permitted to take over the assessor's books until the tax rolls were completed by the outgoing assessor.

LOUD PROTESTS
A month later the council voted to accept his resignation despite his loud protests that he had changed his mind and wanted to stay in office.

Swem's status was never quite clear after that. One side maintained that he was the legal assessor while the other side was just as steadfast in its claim that he wasn't.

Swem, a manufacturer's agent, took the case to court, but, never obtained a ruling on it.

He asserted his authority last October, however, by removing the tax books from the village clerk's office on the authorization of Rossman.

AIM AT CLARIFICATION
At its regular meeting the following night, the council sought to clarify Swem's status by appointing Rhodes to the office of assessor.

Caught unawares, Rhodes went to the clerk's office the next morning and registered to vote. He had recently been an Orion Township resident and had not registered after moving into the village.

The Swem faction made much of Rhodes' oversight because an officeholder must be a qualified elector and resident of the village, according to the charter.

The council continued to recognize Rhodes as the village assessor, however, and authorized him to pick up this year's tax rolls from the county treasurer's office.

OF EQUAL INTEREST
The Swem faction wasn't the only source of council meeting drama throughout the year.

Equally interesting were discussions of the employment status of Village Attorney Robert V. Parenti, whom Rossman "fired" June 1.

A month after he was elected, Rossman tried to appoint Robert L. Templin, former senior assistant prosecutor of Oakland County, to the office of village attorney.

The council refused to accept the appointment, however, and later passed a resolution retaining Parenti.

Hired Attorney
Rossman refused to recognize Parenti and hired attorney Wallace D. McWay of Waterford

Chief Neal Leonard, with the approval of council members, ordered the sergeant to remain on duty, however, and he is still in uniform.

THREATENED CHIEF
Rossman threatened Chief Leonard with disciplinary action, but never carried out the threat.

He refused to sign any more of Perkins' pay checks, however, so the council passed a resolution giving all the members the power to sign checks.

One of the highlights of Rossman's political career was a hearing conducted at the Youth Center Sept. 2 by the Senate Committee on Investigations.

Rossman obtained the hearing with the aid of Rep. Slingerland and Sen. Carl W. O'Brien, D-Pontiac.

STOOD GUARD
While nearly all the Lake Orion police force and three or four sheriff's deputies "stood guard" outside, the committee heard more than four hours of McWay appeared on behalf of the village in Swem's suit to regain the assessor's post and at a hearing on litigation resulting from the pollution of Paint Creek, but he was not recognized by the court.

He billed the village for nearly $1,000 for his services, which also included numerous phone calls and conferences, but the council has refused to pay the bill.

PETITIONS CIRCULATED
Petitions demanding Parenti's removal were circulated and submitted to Gov. Romney, allegedly bearing 500 signatures.

Parenti later obtained copies of the petitions, however, and reported that they bore less than 50 signatures.

Rossman also sought help from the state attorney general, but was told that the case was a Circuit Court matter.

Swem was told the same thing when he sought state help in regaining his office.

APPOINTIVE POWER
Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley, however, had stated earlier in a letter to Rep. Robert Slingerland, D-Lake Orion, that the general law charter places the power of appointment with the president, not with the council.

Rossman carried his refusal to recognize Parenti as

Board OKs Street Light District

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP — The Township Board has approved a special assessment street lighting district for Thendara Park Country Club Subdivision.

Thirteen street lights will be installed on portions of Sequoyah Court, Thendara Boulevard, Hawk Drive, Onondaga Road, Itasca Drive and Pequot Drive.

Benefiting residents will share the cost of the $300 project. Cost is $2.35 per lot. The project involves 160 lots.

The board has indicated it may take action April 5 on the proposed packaging of the township's insurance business.

Five policies — fire, comprehensive liability, boiler, marine and crime — would be placed under one policy with one due date for premiums.

NEW PREMIUM
According to Clerk Howard Altman the new annual premium of $1,865 for the grouped policies would save the township approximately $200 a year.

The policy would be with the H. W. Huttenlocher Insurance Agency of Pontiac.

The only policies excluded would be workmen's compensation ($1,500 annual premium), firemen's ($200) and fleet ($938).

Premiums for these policies will be handled separately, according to Altman.

A group of residents attended Tuesday night's meeting, complaining about junk being dumped along Maybree Road primarily east of I-75.

The Oakland County Road Commission, sheriff's deputies and State Police have been contacted to help correct the situation, according to Altman.

EAST LANSING (AP) — As many as 1,500 dairymen may be looking around for someone to milk their cows next week.

That many are expected to attend the annual meetings of three different state dairy groups next Tuesday through Thursday at Michigan State University.

More than 900 persons are expected Tuesday for the 50th anniversary meeting of the Michigan Milk Producers' Association, which has about 10,000 members.

The Michigan Animal Breeders' Cooperative meets Wednesday, and the Dairy Herd Improvement Association Thursday.

The club will meet from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. every Tuesday.

Husbands Were Killed

LANSING AP — Two women convicted of first degree murder in the slaying of their husbands will offer freedom pleas before the State Parole Board March 24 at Lansing.

Both are asking for commutation of life sentences. The women, imposed in 1948 from Ingham County Circuit Court. Her husband, Frank, was shot in the chest from ambush as he returned to their farm home near Williamston in 1947.

Harriet Shellenberger, 71, is one of Michigan's oldest women inmates at the Detroit House of Corrections, the board said.

She has served 23 years of a life sentence for first degree murder, imposed following a jury trial in Branch County in 1943. Although not the wielder of the weapon, she was charged in connection with the sledgehammer slaying of her husband, James.

2 Subdivisions to Get Sewers

PONTIAC TOWNSHIP — Homes in Walton Heights and East Walton Heights subdivisions will soon be hooked up to the new Walton Heights sewer line.

Township Supervisor Leonard Terry said the new line will serve about 170 homes on Walton east of Oakley, Oakland University and the new Rochester Village Townhomes near the University.

He said about 60 per cent of the homes should be hooked up by this summer.

"It has been a mess around there," said Terry. "This thing has dragged on for seven years. The septic tanks have been overflowing and the people have paid about $1,100 apiece in special assessments without getting anything for it."

Shelby OKs License Laws
SHELBY TOWNSHIP — The Township Board has approved two new licensing ordinances which control land-fill and quarry operations.

The two ordinances were formerly part of the zoning ordinance and under the control of the board of appeals.

Requests to set up such operations will now come before the planning commission which will hold public hearings and refer them to the Township Board for final action.

The ordinances will become effective April 23.

3 Air Crashes Dampen Japan's Spring Exuberance

TOKYO (AP) — Spring is a season which continues to behave, in what seems to laymen, a capricious way. Exports and imports are heading for records and the Gross National Product continues to be one of the healthiest anywhere. But there have been large-scale firings in some industries. Despite these tidings, the signs of spring were undeniable. They include: —Sale of kites at Oji Inari temple—bought by devout house owners not to fly but to store in their homes. Stamped with the temple's crest, they are believed to ward off fire. —An exhibition of bonsai, the famed dwarf trees, with entrants from former Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida and the imperial family. Some were hundreds of years old and valued at 10 million yen. —Completion of entrance examinations by more than 100,000 applicants to Waseda University. The tests were carried out after police broke a 30-day occupation of the campus by students protesting a hike in fees. —Issuance of oxygen cylinders and masks to policemen on duty at busy Tokyo crossroads who periodically become faint from automobile exhaust fumes.

The immediate result of the triple catastrophes was to cause a slump in domestic air travel. Hundreds of passengers diverted to railway travel, despite a 25 per cent increase in train fares. The new Tokaido line between Tokyo and Osaka registered a 30 per cent increase. The air of depression has not been helped by the disclosure that small and medium business enterprises are heading into rougher waters. A government white paper reported that bankruptcies in these firms came to 8,141 in 1965, a 45.8 per cent increase over the year before. Businesses with capital of a million yen—$2,800—or less were principally affected.

CURRENT RECESSION All this has been charged off to the current Japanese recession which continues to behave, in what seems to laymen, a capricious way. Exports and imports are heading for records and the Gross National Product continues to be one of the healthiest anywhere. But there have been large-scale firings in some industries. Despite these tidings, the signs of spring were undeniable. They include: —Sale of kites at Oji Inari temple—bought by devout house owners not to fly but to store in their homes. The tests were carried out after police broke a 30-day occupation of the campus by students protesting a hike in fees. —Issuance of oxygen cylinders and masks to policemen on duty at busy Tokyo crossroads who periodically become faint from automobile exhaust fumes.

It was also the period of what the Japanese call haru boku, or spring madness, as witness: Police banned the sale to minors of chocolates containing 20 proof brandy after nabbing two grammar school children high on the stuff. A man in Hyogo Prefecture, kicked out of a poetry reciters' club, shot the president to death. Fair, containing a dumbbell-like symbol topped by a black dot. There were no more alums in Sapporo, said the authorities, and the symbol was too abstract. The artist, Issa Nishijima, said the lower circles represented the cold war antagonism of Japan, and another ad-onists, or man and wife: the veridical 1970 Osaka World upper one, the rising sun.

Orchestra Crisis Hits Meadow Brook

It is unthinkable that the superb concert shell at Meadow Brook may this summer be muted because of a contract hassle between the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and the musicians. But there is grave possibility that the Meadow Brook Music Festival, now looking toward its third season, will suffer such a setback.

The management of the Detroit Symphony, in a replay of contract negotiations of three years ago, has announced cancellation not only of the orchestra's Detroit programs but for its midyear participation in Meadow Brook's musical education and concert program.

Since its inception, Meadow Brook has been linked with the Detroit Symphony, and in the present impasse between management and artists finds itself in the unenviable role of helpless bystander.

Should the orchestra indeed be unavailable to fill this year's Meadow Brook engagement it is questionable whether at this late date other arrangements could be made.

It is to be hoped, of course, that the issues that threaten to deprive our area of one of its top cultural aggregations will be resolved and commitments fulfilled.

But from the standpoint of future security, it might be wise for Meadow Brook to give thought to alternative orchestras. Its potential is too great to be at the mercy of the rigidity that periodically marks contract negotiations affecting the Detroit Symphony.

De Gaulle Stock Falling in Bonn

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN, Germany (U)—Charles de Gaulle's stock is falling again in West Germany because he apparently wants France to do here just what he wants to stop the United States from doing in France.

He is taking steps to put French forces in Germany fully under his own command.

There are 60,000 to 70,000 French troops in West Germany, at least on paper. The United States has 25,000 in France.

The West Germans do not complain about this situation. Yet in some ways they are even more sensitive about national sovereignty than de Gaulle. Any proposal that looks like a lowering of their status gets a most unfriendly reception in Bonn.

So the presence of foreign troops is all right with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's government as long as they are under a unified Atlantic command, as are West Germany's own 400,000 men.

What the West Germans don't like is the idea of returning to anything like the situation right after World War II, when foreign troops occupying German territory were the supreme authority in the land.

This could occur under emergency treaties if an emergency arose and the American, British and French commanders decided their troops were threatened — say by war or rioting.

Erhard's government has been trying hard to eliminate this possibility but has run into domestic political difficulties.

PROSPECT ARISES

Now the prospect arises that the French troops will revert to purely French command even without an emergency.

De Gaulle probably is ready to negotiate some kind of joint command directly with Erhard. But Erhard wrote him last week that all these matters concern the alliance as a whole and need to be negotiated with all 15 members. Naturally these include the United States.

De Gaulle has made it plain that he would like a European defense system built around his own nuclear force and allied only loosely with the United States.

There has been much talk of a political and defense organization among the countries of the Common Market: France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium,

Holland and Luxembourg. So far it has come to nothing.

None of the other governments, and particularly not the West German, is interested in a defense system designed to drive the United States out of Europe and to risk losing the protection of the American nuclear umbrella.

De Gaulle's plan to resume full control over French troops in Germany may be designed as pressure on the West Germans to change their minds.

A Gaullist group active in West German politics wants to do just that.

His leaders are ex-Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his former defense minister, Franz Josef Strauss. They belong to Erhard's Christian Democratic party but are at odds with him and Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder.

Erhard and Schroeder now have the problem of how to keep the French troops in Germany, give up as little national sovereignty as possible and at the same time avoid antagonizing the United States by making a special deal with de Gaulle.

Romney-Javits Alliance Firming Up for '68 Race

NEW YORK — Little by little, bit by bit, the GOP is closing ranks and thinking seriously about what kind of combination it can throw against the Johnson-Humphrey team in '68.

One of the more intriguing alliances which now is in the course of firming up is that of Gov. George Romney of Michigan and Sen. Jack Javits of New York.

He watched a couple of skits that lampooned him and the Great Society with something less than vast enjoyment. When he was called on, The Man Who Almost Didn't Come to Dinner made what many in the audience considered the finest off-the-cuff speech of his life.

They have a great bond of liberal Republicanism working for them, see eye to eye on the matter of the party's future direction and apparently plan to stay in increasingly closer touch with each other as convention time nears.

If they carry the day they will be the first combination of Mormon and Hebrew ever to enter the presidential sweepstakes.

They plan to confer this week in Lansing.

Last Saturday evening presidential assistants Bill D. Moyers and Bob Fleming were preparing to depart from the White House after a long day's work.

Fleming asked the President if he could think of anything else that had to be done, because if that was all, Bob said, he would have to get home to climb into his white tie and tails for the Gridiron dinner. Moyers said he had to do the same thing.

As he was leaving, Fleming asked the President what his plans were for the evening.

"I have none," the leader of the free world said with a shrug. Moyers said then why don't you go to the dinner? You know how much they'd want you there.

'NOTHING TO SAY'

"Oh, I haven't anything to say to those fellows tonight," the President said.

Moyers and Fleming left and when they were out of earshot of the President Moyers said to Fleming, "Make some notes on your way home, as I'm going to do, call me when you get there and we'll put something together for him."

It worked. To the astonishment of the hotel's security guard the President strolled in near the end of the white-tie-and-tail dinner in an ordinary business suit.

He watched a couple of skits that lampooned him and the Great Society with something less than vast enjoyment.

When he was called on, The Man Who Almost Didn't Come to Dinner made what many in the audience considered the finest off-the-cuff speech of his life.

Student Demonstrations Succeed

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The strange effectiveness of student youth demonstrations in Asia and Latin America was shown again in the army "take-over" in Indonesia.

Indications are the Indonesian Army had refused to stand up against Sukarno's pro-Red moves, even though the Communists were blackened nationally for their part in the abortive resistance of October 1965.

When Sukarno recently strengthened the pro-Peking group in his cabinet, the army unhappily went along.

For awhile, the army even helped Sukarno put down student anti-Communist demonstrations.

But the students and other youths kept on demonstrating.

This persistence apparently gave indecisive army leaders the determination to move Sukarno out and on with their Communist purges.

If history elsewhere is a precedent, the Indonesian student-youth groups, having tasted this success, will try their powers again in the future.

Students thus have emerged

'No Programs in Dance Planned for OEO Funds'

In response to the allegation that a teacher from Pontiac schools was hired at a $200 weekly salary to teach modern dancing this summer as part of the anti-poverty program at Bagley Elementary School, there are no programs in dance funded under the Economic Opportunity program at Bagley or any other school.

There are no plans for a summer dance program. The programs presently being operated with OEO funds at Bagley include: supervised study programs, counseling and remedial reading.

Teachers in the anti-poverty program in Pontiac are paid at $5 per hour of actual teaching time. There is no compensation for their preparation or grading time. When the funds from last year's appropriation ran out, the teachers agreed to work without pay in order to keep the program in existence.

Teen-agers wonder why adults consider them first-class morons. As if the hairdos and wearing apparel aren't enough, teen-agers like to play with telephones and jam the circuits. They yell and bellow so loud you can hear it above the busy signal. They must place these calls from bomb shelters; otherwise the neighbors would turn them in for disturbing the peace.

Legislature should pass a law to prevent insurance companies from digging into driving records. These companies are deliberately canceling drivers' insurance and offering to sell them risk insurance which costs hundreds of dollars. It's practically blackmail. How do they get away with it? I can understand them cracking down on reckless drivers or drunken ones, but not for minor tickets. Where is justice?

Questions Need for Federal Office Building

Congratulations on your endorsement of a sound Federal policy, as outlined in your March 10 editorial. It is important that "we draw a line between what the country stands in need of and what it can afford." No one questions the appeal of the recently announced decision to construct a large new Federal office building here in Pontiac. But do we really need it?

In the name of fiscal responsibility, should we not defer this luxury at least until the day when it can be included as part of a balanced budget?

AMOS ANON

(Editor's Note: Perhaps, but if the Federal Government is allocating money for such projects, Pontiac might as well get its fair share, rather than having it spent somewhere else.)

U.S. Viet Nam Troops 'Taken' by Customs

U. S. soldiers in Viet Nam are wrathful over U.S. customs regulations.

Travelers can only send home gifts to the amount of $10 tax free. Stupidity applies the same limit to our overseas soldiers. A congressional bill, however, would raise the exemption for

Army personnel in combat zones to $50.

What a concession! Aren't we noble!

The bill—or a more worthy one—deserves speedy passage and immediate enactment. Let's hope someone, somewhere, doesn't work out a "serious objection."

Red China Leaders Reactionary

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON—The Red Chinese leadership, old and inflexible in its ways, makes noise like a revolutionary force but has become a reactionary one. It has happened before in this century.

In the Soviet Union, Stalin, once he took charge, became a reactionary, murderous force, as his successors admitted later. The Russian people may have improved a bit economically under him, but freedom became a joke and terror a way of life.

Because he remained inflexible in his hostility and ambitions, the Western world had its containment policy which held him tight.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., figures the average age of the present Chinese leaders is 80. Together in the 1920s and 1930s, they dreamed of their revolution and take-over and made both a reality in 1949.

They made a true revolution in their homeland and for millions of their poor and hungry countrymen it was probably good. But, like Stalin, they gradually became a menace to the world, and certainly to all of Asia.

It is possible their successors, like Stalin's, may be more reasonable and modern and that the whole world then can enter a more peaceful era.

But it is hard to see any such change, so long as the present leadership survives, despite any hopes of American Chinese scholars or the Johnson administration.

And outside its borders, this leadership has been inept. In its zeal to spread communism outside China, it has made one mess after another. It can't even get along with other Communist states, much less Western ones.

It split with the Soviet Union and split with and antagonized Fidel Castro's Cuba.

In recent years, Indonesia looked lost to communism under President Sukarno. But last fall when the Indonesian Reds tried revolt, the army crushed them and, reportedly, slaughtered thousands. Now the army has stripped Sukarno of much of his power.

RED CHINA REVERSE

The recent overthrow of Ghana's Kwame Nkrumah was considered here a reverse for Red China. The Communist-backed war in Viet Nam resulted in a massive American military buildup in Southeast Asia.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, over the past week, indicated what may be a new Johnson administration policy toward Red China.

While China must be contained, he said, "we must make every opportunity to show our friendship for the Chinese people" who should not be isolated from the "family of mankind."

The Red Chinese leaders gave a quick and predictable reaction, predictable because they never seem capable of anything but the same old frozen reaction, by calling Humphrey's remarks "a kiss of Judas" that must "disgust the Chinese people."

Rivalry of 2 Leaders Threat to Kenya

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Long before Secret Agent 007 (licensed to kill) attained his present popularity, there was in Kenya a politician called by white settlers "Mr. Double O."

His real name was the euphonious Odinga Odinga, a member of the 1.25-million Luo tribe living around Lake Victoria.

Almost from the beginning of Kenyan independence on Dec. 12, 1963, Odinga has been at political war with Kenya President Jomo Kenyatta.

It was a war that went beyond internal politics for it involved Odinga's affections for Moscow and Peking and Kenya's policy of nonalignment which if anything seemed to lean toward the West.

Last Sunday the quarrel came to a head when, through a process of reorganization of the country's ruling Kenya African National Union, Kenyatta abolished Odinga's job as deputy president of the party and thus removed him from power.

That had been the base from which Odinga, a man in his early 50s, had claimed the right of succession in the event of the passing of Kenyatta, a man of undetermined age but generally believed to be in his mid-70s.

Although Kenya functions under a one-party system, there is no law that says a deputy president of the party automatically succeeds to the presidency of the country.

By abolishing Odinga's post and naming in his stead eight vice presidents representing various areas of the country, Kenyatta abolished even that claim.

STRUGGLE STORY

Within the political struggle between the two men also is the story of the struggle for influence in Africa.

Odinga has been a frequent visitor to Moscow and Peking.

During a visit to Peking in 1964, he called on Communist China to help Kenya "break the backbone . . . of imperialist domination of our country."

In Kenya it was commonly reported that $250,000 from the Red Chinese enabled him to seize political control of the Luo tribe.

FOREIGN POWERS

Kenyatta made reference to this when, in connection with Odinga's ouster, he declared he would not permit those "on African nations.

the payrolls of foreign powers" to confuse the people.

Kenyatta's own story is a study in contrasts.

As a leader of the Kikuyu tribe before Kenya independence, he went to jail as the mastermind behind the Mau Mau, a secret organization of nauseous ceremonial rites dedicated to ouster of the white man from Kenya.

But as president he has encouraged white farmers to remain to help build up the country.

LOANS SECURED

In fact he has been so outstanding a disciple of stability that Kenya has obtained sizable loans from the United States and most of Western Europe.

Now there are reports that Odinga may play a prominent role in a new opposition party in which Kenya's suspended minister for cooperatives and marketing also would play a part.

The latter is Paul Ngũt whose office is under investigation for alleged irregularities.

Ngũt is a member of the Wakamba tribe which, with Odinga's Luos, could put a political squeeze on Kenyatta's Kikuyus.

The result could be tribal strife and the path toward disunity trod by other unfortunate African nations.

Supersonic Fighter-Bomber Big Headache for Luftwaffe

BONN, Germany (AP) — A supersonic fighter-bomber of American design is giving the West German air force the biggest headache of its 10-year history.

Since Jan. 1, 1961, 49 of the Luftwaffe's 415-million F104G Starfighters have crashed. Since the beginning of 1965, 15 pilots have been killed in 33 smash-ups.

"Of all the countries flying Starfighters, West Germany had neither the highest nor the lowest accident rate," says the air force chief, Gen. Werner Panitzki.

In a country that has painfully learned about war twice in half a century, rearmament is far from popular. The peacetime loss of 15 men flying the most expensive weapons system in German history has caused a scandal.

TRAINED BY U.S.

Among the charges is that the Luftwaffe pilots, trained by the U.S. Air Force, are unable to master this advanced weapons system designed to pierce Soviet defenses on nuclear retaliation missions.

Critics also suggest that the Lockheed-designed plane was bought after a minimum of study and in a billion-dollar deal that should be investigated.

"There is no such thing as a typical Starfighter accident," Defense Minister Kai-Uwe von Hassel says.

The needle-nosed jet is West Germany's basic strategic airplane. It is a brainchild of Clarence Johnson, the designer of the U2 and other advanced aircraft. It is meant to be a bomber, interceptor and reconnaissance plane and in order to carry out these tasks it is loaded with highly sophisticated electronic equipment.

NUCLEAR WEAPON

Taking off from West German airfields, it could lob a nuclear weapon as far inside the Soviet Union as Minsk and return home at more than twice the speed of sound.

On normal flights, Starfighters carry no nuclear bombs. They remain under U.S. custody.

Starfighter enemies in Parliament have brought the affair into the political arena. The opposition Social Democratic party hopes to oust von Hassel over the issue. American aerospace representatives in Bonn view the subject with undisguised gloom.

The Defense Ministry says that the F104G was the best fighter-bomber available in 1958, when the Luftwaffe took the big step from subsonic to supersonic planes under the guidance of the then minister of defense, Franz Josef Strauss.

'SUDDEN DASH'

The influential news magazine Der Spiegel recently editorialized:

"In a sudden dash for military and political greatness, and in pursuit of partnership in the West's atomic strike force, the armed forces have hastily and with lack of expertise imposed on themselves an extremely complicated weapons system in numbers that overtax the technical and personal resources of the still young Luftwaffe."

West Germany bought 699 F104Gs, and von Hassel says they will be retained as the basic fighter-bomber for at least five more years.

In the eyes of some Americans dealing almost daily with Starfighter masters, the Germans bought themselves a lot of fine hardware without quite being prepared for it.

PILOTS GROUNDED

They point out that for 11 years, from 1945 to 1956, West German military pilots were grounded by Allied orders. Flying the first Luftwaffe jets — subsonic, American-built fighters — was not too different from piloting World War II piston-engine planes. A Starfighter pilot has to carry out many more tasks.

West German pilots are trained by the U.S. Air Force in the American Southwest for two years. Before they go it alone over Germany, they are given a short "Europeanization" course to adapt them to the continent's usually overcast and often stormy weather.

"The training in the United States is excellent, and qualitatively unsurpassed," Gen. Panitzki asserts.

He says pilots training there sit in two years the same proficiency it takes others four years to reach in Europe.

What happens after the pilot returns from his stateside stint is as important as his basic schooling. Most Starfighter pilots in Germany are not flying the minimum number of hours which are said to be required to keep in shape. The reason is a lack of maintenance personnel.

With the country enjoying prosperity, it has become increasingly difficult for the armed forces to attract and keep technicians. Air Force wages and working conditions don't match what the civilian world offers.

Von Hassel says 60 per cent of the technical and maintenance jobs in the Luftwaffe are not covered.

The plane also has had its share of growing pains. Several modifications were made as Starfighters rolled off the assembly lines of the European consortium that Lockheed licensed to build them.

NAVIGATION SYSTEM

One of the components which has been giving the Luftwaffe trouble is the compact, five-piece navigation system. The device, mounted behind the pilot, gives position readings without resorting to outside references, such as radio beacons or geographical features.

"This is the most difficult gear on the plane," a Defense Ministry official says.

"But not one accident has been due to malfunction of the device," Panitzki told newsmen.

To ease maintenance problems, the Luftwaffe has decided to hand over some servicing to private industry. Lockheed has sent an inspection team to work quietly at German bases. The Defense Ministry has promised that German draftsmen will be assigned to the air force in an effort to fill some of the gaps in the ranks of maintenance men.

Junior Editors Quiz on Balsa

QUESTION: Where does balsa come from and why is it so light?

ANSWER: Balsa is the wood of the balsa tree, which grows in South America and southern Mexico (1). When first cut, the logs are heavy with sap, but as the wood dries out, it becomes extremely light, twice as light as cork.

This is because air fills the cells when dry. A man can carry an amazing amount of this dried-out balsa on his shoulder (2).

Also, because of the air in its cells, balsa is extremely buoyant. We show the famous raft Kon Tiki (3) made of balsa logs, which drifted from the coast of Chile to the South Seas. Balsa is a wonderful material for making model airplanes and boats because it cuts so easily and is so smooth.

Jimmy has made a simple but good-looking plane from strips of balsa which he cut according to a plan he bought.

He has cemented the balsa pieces together.

As he becomes more expert, he will cover the balsa pieces with light but tough tissue paper, sprinkled with water to dry out the wrinkles. Then he'll apply two coats of the quick-drying special liquid which gives a very realistic surface.

Try making a balsa wood plane or boat. You can get fine kits including the materials. Be sure you follow the directions carefully. Take your time and you'll get a better result.

FOR YOU TO DO: The voyage of the Kon Tiki was one of the most exciting sea passages ever made. See if you can find a book or article which tells the story in detail.

Boy's Wealth Is Too Brief

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Charles Miranda was cleaning out an alley in suburban Kirkwood, Mo., when he found a cache of $10 bills totaling $2,810.

He told him the bills were counterfeit and proved it by showing that all the bills bore the same serial number.

Try Talking to Husband First Before You Contact Attorney

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My husband fun.
and I have enjoyed your column for a long time. Perhaps it is the only thing we have in common.

After six years of married life with a fine M.D. specialist, I have had it. My problem is not how to make this marriage work, but how to work myself out of it with the least possible hurt to my husband and our two dear, innocent children, both under 5 years of age.

Since my husband and I are no longer in communication in any important way (physically or mentally), there is nothing left. He's kind and generous, but on the verge of seeing a lawyer. But before seeing a lawyer, I am a possessive and a good provider, TELL him how you feel about failure.

but he's neither interesting nor fun. I have tried everything, from vacations for two to new hobbies, but I have failed. I am bored and miserable. My husband thinks everything is just fine, but I can no longer live this dull life as tho we were 50 instead of 35.

How can I make him understand it is all over for me before I see a lawyer?

HAD IT
DEAR HAD IT: It is difficult to imagine an intelligent husband who is so insensitive and obtuse as to regard everything as "just fine" when his wife is miserable, bored, completely devoid of "that old feeling," and on the verge of seeing a lawyer.

But before seeing a lawyer, I am a possessive and a good provider, TELL him how you feel about failure.

him. Then the two of you should decide whether to call it a day or get help thru a psychiatrist or a qualified marriage counselor.

DEAR ABBY: A man from the cemetery has been going around selling lots and monuments. I would like to know, do you really have to put the date of your birth on the monument? I don't think it's anybody's business.

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: It is customary to place the dates of birth and death on a monument, but it is strictly a matter of choice, not law.

CONFIDENTIAL TO PENNY: Get to know him better. When his true character "crops out" you are apt to witness a crop failure.

Jacqueline Ann Little, daughter of Mrs. C. R. Keathley, North Cass Lake Road, and the late Harry Little, plans July vows to Philip George Lichok, also of North Cass Lake Road, son of Mrs. Michael Lichok, Natrona, Pa. and the late Mr. Lichok. The bride-elect attended Olivet College.

MD Warns of Poisons

NEW YORK (UPI) — Common household substances and medications which might be found in a typical bathroom cabinet cause the death, through accidental poisoning, of a large number of children each year, Dr. William S. Skellenger reports in the "American Journal of Nursing," publication of the American Nurses' Association.

Skellenger cited aspirin as one example, saying it is responsible for 25 to 30 per cent of all drug intoxication in children.

He said increase in rate and depth of respiration is usually the first sign of salicylate — aspirin — poisoning. Inducing vomiting is an important emergency treatment.

Parliamentary Women Hear Talk on Russia

Mrs. David Saks talked of her trip to Russia last year at the annual luncheon for members of the Parliamentary Study Club Wednesday in Kingsley Inn.

While there, she visited her brother and sister who both live behind the "Iron Curtain."

Sisterhood Plans Event for Culture

Plans for a Sabbath day cultural program were announced when Temple Beth Jacob's Sisterhood met Tuesday in the synagogue on Elizabeth Lake Road.

Mrs. Rudolph Hartman announced that the first Oneg Shabbat will be March 26 at 1:30 p.m. in the Ottawa Drive home of Mrs. Martin Eller. Mrs. Lee Fisher will review the book "The Beginners" by Dan Jacobson.

The Michigan Federation of Temple Sisterhoods convention April 25-27 at Detroit's Temple Beth El was announced by Mrs. Sherwin Birnkran, president.

DELEGATES

Delegates appointed to attend were Mrs. Eller, Mrs. Kenneth Dickstein and Mrs. Isaac Grabelsky. Mrs. Birnkran and Mrs. Harold Bienefeld, vice president, also will be at the convention.

Mrs. Bienefeld reported on progress in plans for the Donor, most significant fundraising program of the sisterhood. It will be a champagne midnight supper April 30 at the temple.

Hostesses for Tuesday's meeting were: Mrs. Rudolph Hartman, Mrs. Jewel Fisher, Mrs. Lee Fisher, Mrs. Ernst Conrad and Mrs. Maurice Thome.

Rabbi Conrad reviewed James A. Michener's "The Source" as the group's program for the day.

Stitching Edges Prevents Ravel

Take time to stitch new wash cloths through the buttonhole edge on the machine before using. It prolongs the life of the cloth, as the edge will not ravel.

If each person in the family is used to having a certain color and you happen to find some good cloths on sale, all white or all one color, stitch each person's cloth with their color of thread.

A highlight of the meeting was election of officers.

Those who will serve include Mrs. Fred Goines, president; Mrs. Ervin Christie, first vice president; Mrs. Joseph Phillips and Mrs. J. R. Shaffer, secretaries; Mrs. Merrell Petrie, treasurer and Mrs. Paul Gorman, auditor.

Those participating in the luncheon program were Mrs. Lewis Swartz, Mrs. I. J. Gouin and Mrs. H. N. Watson.

Members appointed to standing committees were Mrs. Vernon Jeans, Mrs. Forbes Hascall, Mrs. Saks, Mrs. Odes Case, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Swartz and Mrs. Robert Sawyer.

Cook-Nelson Event

Honoring its 48th anniversary, the Cook-Nelson post of the American Legion and its auxiliary will celebrate with a party Saturday at 6:30 p.m. in the post home on Auburn Road.

Pontiac Press Photos

Memories become much sharper when you "have actual tokens of an exciting trip." At left, Mrs. David Saks, Bloomfield Terrace, displays the items she brought back from Russia last year. Looking over the arrangement is Mrs. Glendal Taylor of Keego Harbor. Mrs. Saks discussed her treasures at the annual luncheon of the Parliamentary Club held Wednesday in the Kingsley Inn.

The Press photographer caught these three newly-elected officers of the Parliamentary Club holding a corner conference. Left are Mrs. Irvin Christie of Blaine Street, first vice president; Mrs. Fred Goines of West Rundell Street, president; and Mrs. Lee Hill of Carter Street, parliamentarian.

AAUW Joins Food and Fashion

Mrs. Robert F. Gray is chairman of the exciting show, entitled "Taste and Togs" and scheduled by the Birmingham branch, American Association of University Women.

The two-day event will take place from 10 a.m. until noon in Cranbrook Auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The "Taste" doesn't refer to selection, but rather to one of the senses.

Quick dishes for delightful meals by means of small appliances will be demonstrated by Marion Ryan of the Detroit Edison Company.

COMMENTATOR

Abby Anderman of Jacobson's will commentate on the kitchen wardrobes. Since the menus will be different for each day, so the clothes will differ.

Assisting the chairman with the over-all duties will be Mrs. Arthur G. Burleigh Jr.

Committee chairmen include Mrs. Richard Lindgren, Mrs. Donald Knapp, Mrs. Lloyd J. Haynes, Mrs. Gordon K. McCormick, Mrs. Shelby Mathis and Mrs. Thomas Duncan.

Members who will model the latest in home fashions are Mrs. James Olson, Mrs. Richard Kendall, Mrs. Preston Weir, Mrs. Frank Bagamery, Mrs. Vernon Fritch, Mrs. Reginald Croy, Mrs. John Hannett, Mrs. Douglas Gettel and Mrs. Robert Whitney.

FOR FELLOWSHIPS

Proceeds support the AAUW fellowship program which provides graduate study for local and international women.

Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Make Plans for Banquet

It was announced at a recent meeting of the Italian American Club Auxiliary that Mrs. Robert Ramilla and Mrs. Verne Sinkler will head up committees for the mother-daughter banquet on April 12.

Working under Mrs. Joseph Pollina for the May 11 card party will be Mrs. Marvel Wher, Mrs. Gerry Traynor, and Mrs. James Campoli.

The spring dance slated for May 7 in the clubhouse will be under the direction of Mrs. Carl Grassi, Mrs. Ralph Spadafore and Mrs. Pollina.

Hostesses for the meeting where Mrs. Campoli spoke on "The Need for a Civic Center," were Mrs. Carl Leone and Mrs. Traynor.

When Group Forms Kitty for Dinner

By the Emily Post Institute
Q: A group of us (all women) went out to dinner the other evening. Each of us contributed 10 dollars and gave it to one of the women to pay the check.

My dinner and that of a few others came to around seven dollars. The others ordered more expensive dishes and had several drinks, bringing their share over 10 dollars.

As I felt it unfair to those of us who ordered less to pay for their extravagance, I asked that we be given our change and that the others put in the additional amount.

I have been accused of being cheap. Will you please tell me if I was wrong to have asked for change?

A: If you all agreed to put in an equal amount ahead of time and pay the evening's expenses out of it, you really should not have asked for change.

I would suggest that in the future, if you feel that there is going to be such a wide difference in your bills, that you ask for separate checks rather than contribute to a pool.

The Emily Post Institute cannot answer personal mail, but all questions of general interest are answered in this column.

Beta Sigma Phi Units Carry On Activities

"Crown Every Moment" was the theme of a pledge party for Xi Gamma Delta chapter, Beta Sigma Phi sorority, Wednesday in the Sylvan Lake home of the president, Mrs. Earl Kreps.

An address book and a yellow rose, symbol of the sorority, were presented to the guests: Mrs. Eldon Erickson, Mrs. Philip Beebe, Mrs. Robert Treseder and Mrs. Lloyd Hunt, who is transferring from Milan, Ohio.

Xi Pi Chapter

Mrs. K. W. Webb showed slides of Australia before members of Xi Pi chapter Tuesday evening, in the home of Margaret Luther on Lincoln Avenue.

Plans were discussed for the annual Founders' Day, April 27, in Holiday Inn.

Phi Chapter

Mrs. Harold Morgan was elected president of Phi chapter on Tuesday.

The meeting took place in the Colrain Drive home of Mrs. John Nord.

Others who will assume new duties include Mrs. Russell Farum, vice president; Mrs. Nord, secretary and Mrs. Doyle Thompson, treasurer.

This chapter will be responsible for the table decorations for Founders Day dinner.

Tackles 'Tempest'

The Waterford Great Books group will discuss Shakespeare's romantic comedy "The Tempest" at 8 p.m. Friday in the CAI Building.

Mrs. K. B. Valentine of Clarkson will lead the discussion. Newcomers will be welcome.

Here's a festive St. Patrick's Day table that would gladden the heart of any Irishman—and sure, isn't everyone Irish on March 17? The gleaming silver is the new "Silver Artistry" pattern in Community Silverplate by Oneida Silversmiths; the fine china with green and blue garlands is Syracuse, China's new "Engagement" pattern. The Irish coffee is optional—but highly recommended!

Eastern I-696 Route Near Acceptable Stage

LANSING (AP)—A detour in Roseville might make the east half of I-696 acceptable to all affected cities, but communities along the west half still were battling at a meeting with Gov. George Romney Wednesday.

Romney and top highway officials met with representatives of 18 communities located in the corridor between 8 and 14 Mile roads in Oakland and Macomb counties.

A route for the freeway from Southfield to St. Clair Shores had been worked out, but the Highway Commission scrapped it March 3 because of objections from five communities.

In the east half, Roseville objected to having the freeway, following the route of 11 Mile Road, split the city in half. But it offered to take the freeway entirely within its city limits if it dipped to 10 Mile Road, along Roseville's southern border.

PLAN TO MEET
Representatives of Roseville, East Detroit, Warren and St. Clair Shores planned to meet in Roseville next Monday to discuss the proposed change.

In the center of the route, Hazel Park objected to a proposed interchange with I-75, which Councilman William McCann said would displace 70 homes.

"We already are a community split in half (by I-75) — a community that cannot reasonably be asked to give up more tax base," he said.

Howard Hill, state highway director, said later the proposed interchange had been enlarged by adding a ramp to serve Hazel Park. This could be changed, he indicated.

Hill also told Romney that to receive 90 per cent federal aid for the $140 million freeway project, construction should be completed by September of 1971.

This means, he said, a final proposed route, which starts at 11 Mile Road then dips to 10 Mile Road.

Romney asked the Highway Department to study the proposals and meet with the affected cities in an effort to reach agreement on a route.

SUGGESTED ROUTE
Joseph Forbes, mayor of Oak Park, suggested a route following 11 Mile Road to U.S. 10, then dipping to 10 Mile.

"Such a route would remove objections from Southfield, Oak Park and Pleasant Ridge," he said.

Hill said an 11 Mile route had been studied but it would displace at least 400 more families than the 10 Mile route.

Ernest Getz, a Pleasant Ridge city commissioner, said the 10 Mile route would take substantially all of his city's recreation area and about 11 per cent of its tax base.

"No other Michigan city has been asked to make such a sacrifice for highways," he said.

Richard N. Cogger, mayor of Lathrup Village, objected that an 11 Mile route would split his city in half.

There also were objections the route would disrupt school districts in Royal Oak and Berkley.

Berkley Mayor George Kuhn suggested the freeway be routed across 8 Mile or 16 Mile roads.

Royal Oak Mayor L. Curtis Potter suggested keeping the 10 Mile route, but moving it north of 10 Mile Road into Royal Oak and Huntington Woods and out of his city's recreation area.

This would cut into the Detroit Zoological Park and Detroit Rackham Golf Course.

Halt Teen Telephone Trauma

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Back in the days before someone invented child psychologists, parents were forced to muddle along in doubt and darkness, botching things up as they went.

I dare say many fathers, though meaning no harm, were witness enough to use the telephone occasionally when they were at home of an evening.

Little did they know that by doing so they were depriving their progeny of a means of achieving emotional stability.

In other words, they lacked the benefit of guidance from a psychologist named Edie Le Shan, who could have straightened them out in a hurry.

Mrs. Le Shan recently came forth with a magazine article admonishing parents of teen-agers to limit their own phone calls to the morning and early afternoon so the instrument would be free for juvenile use in the evening.

At a time when teen-agers are experiencing "change, uncertainty and self-doubt," she explained, "the phone can serve as a bridge across an abyss of fear and unreality."

ODD COINCIDENCE
An odd coincidence, I happen to have spent some time as both a teen-ager and an adult. Given a choice between the fear and unreality of adolescence and the fear and unreality of middle age, I would not hesitate to choose the former.

Nevertheless, I am always willing to make parental sacrifices. So I obtained an audience with my teen-age daughter, who was busy playing the phonograph, and gave her the good news.

"The telephone is all yours, my dear," I said. "Feel free to use it as long as you please. I will forego my own calls in the interest of your welfare."

"What are you talking about?" she asked. "You haven't used the phone for six months."

BAD NEWS
In all honesty, I have to admit she was right. The telephone itself makes me fearful and unready. I always assume when it rings that I am being notified there is a panther on my roof. Or something equally dire.

"Whether or not I use the phone is beside the point," I said. "I have reached my maturity. You haven't. The phone is supposed to be good for someone your age. So turn off that record player and start dialing."

Child psychology is great. Had it not been for Mrs. Le Shan I would have had to spend the evening listening to Beethoven records.

Radio Says Sukarno Still Boss

SINGAPORE (UPI) — The official radio in Jakarta reiterated today that President Sukarno of Indonesia is still the undisputed boss of the far-flung island nation.

But observers in Singapore doubted it.

The radio kept rebroadcasting a 15 minute statement, heard in Singapore for the first time yesterday, that the Indonesian "president-for-life" continued to rule unimpeded by the powerful military chiefs who crushed an attempted Communist coup last October.

An earlier Radio Jakarta broadcast yesterday carried the same assertion by Lt. Gen. Suharto, to whom Sukarno delegated "political powers" last Friday.

The radio quoted Suharto as saying:

"The issue of the order did not at all degrade the position of President Sukarno . . . on the other hand, it was to guarantee his leadership and authority in carrying out the leadership of the Indonesian revolution." There was little doubt that Sukarno still was popular in Indonesia. But intelligence and diplomatic sources here did not doubt that he signed away at least some of his powers on Friday.

Singapore observers felt a clear picture of the new balance of power in Indonesia might emerge with the announcement—expected any day—of a new cabinet.

They said if the first deputy premier and Foreign Minister Subandrio—a close Sukarno adviser considered friendly to Communist China—was dropped from the cabinet, the strong influence of the anti-Communist military would be confirmed.

STILL THE BOSS

In Sukarno's speech yesterday read over the radio by Third Deputy Premier Chairul Saleh, the ailing 64-year-old leader repeated six times that he was still president, supreme commander and "great leader of the revolution."

He said the broadcast was necessary because of "actions from a section of the community which showed lack of understanding . . . resulting in the wrong attitude toward the position of the president . . ."

Gift of Toy Gun Stirs a Fuss

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Two people called police when George Jefferson, carrying a toy revolver, went to visit his 7-year-old son in the Milwaukee Children's Hospital yesterday.

The first call was from someone who reported Jefferson's license number as he parked his car near the hospital and went inside to meet his wife.

The second call was made when he left the toy, wrapped in a newspaper, in the hospital lobby when he went to have coffee in the cafeteria.

A detective—one of the police who responded to the calls—tracked Jefferson down in the cafeteria and ordered him outside.

As six officers stood by, Jefferson unwrapped the toy in the lobby—"very carefully because they were looking pretty serious," he said.

Then the police left. And so did Jefferson, without seeing his son.

"I had to get something for my nerves," he said.

RESIGNS — David Dubinsky, 74, announced his resignation in New York last night as president of the AFL-CIO International Ladies Garment Workers Union. He said he will step down from the post he has held for 34 years April 12.

Air Pollution Cuts Summer

Could End Season
Eventually—Scientist

By Science Service

WASHINGTON — There may be no summer at all for the whole world not too far in the future if man continues to muddy up earth's atmosphere as he is doing now.

The effect on crop growth and seasonal temperatures is the same as chopping out 33 days of typical summer weather.

Dr. Reid A. Bryson, director of the University of Wisconsin Center for Climatic Research made these dire predictions at a seminar on atmospheric physics here.

Every large city on earth, he noted, is in effect a volcano spewing forth uncounted tons of half-burned debris.

The contrails left by high-flying aircraft, of which there are now some 3,000 in operation, also contribute to the blanket effect.

He cited both of these examples to show how man inadvertently is changing his environment.

All atmospheric motion results from inequalities in heating or cooling, especially the net radiation differences between the tropics and the polar regions.

In the last 20 years, Dr. Bryson has calculated, this atmospheric driving force has never reached the force measured in previous years for normal summer weather.

He blamed this drop both on dirt being added to the atmosphere and on jet contrails.

Between 1957 and 1963, Dr. Bryson reported, a U.S. Weather Bureau scientist found that the dirtiness of air over the contiguous United States increased 100 per cent.

Flag Winners Scraping Bottom

By The Associated Press
It's October in March. Turn the Grapefruit league standings upside down and you've got the World Series all over again.

Pennant winners in 1965, the Minnesota Twins and Los Angeles Dodgers are learning how the other half lives this spring. Their combined record is a less than championship 6-11 pace.

The American League champion Twins dropped their seventh straight Wednesday, bowing 2-1 to baseball's specialists in losing, the New York Mets.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers continued to show how easy it'll be to defend their world title with out holdouts Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale by taking a 9-0 thumping from the New York Yankees for their fourth straight setback.

NATS WINLESS
The only other winless team is Washington, which dropped its fifth straight 6-2 against the Braves. Boston and the Chicago Cubs managed their first victories, the Red Sox clipping Philadelphia 5-3 and the Cubs downing Cleveland 5-1.

In other games, San Francisco whipped the California Angels 7-3, the Chicago White Sox thumped Cincinnati 10-4, St. Louis downed Detroit 4-2 and Kansas City whacked Pittsburgh 12-5.

Eddie Bressoud, an American League refugee, drove home the winning run for the Mets with a 10th inning single against the Twins. Chuck Hiller started the winning rally with a single and moved up on an infield out before scoring on Bressoud's hit.

Johnny Lewis homered for New York and Tony Oliva, making his first appearance of the spring after ending his holdout, drove in Minnesota's only run with a seventh inning single.

The Yankees pooled five Dodger pitchers — none of them named Koufax or Drysdale — for 13 hits in running up their victory over the world champs. Clete Boyer led the Yanks' attack with two singles and double while veterans Whitey Ford, Bill Stafford and Steve Hamilton limited the Dodgers to five singles.

Yanks' Ailing Mantle Riding Recovery Trail

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., after he swings. He's still not

(AP) — Two seven-foot lengths of bandage hung on the adjacent wall while in Mickey Mantle's cubicle the uniform shirt with No. 7, some shaving equipment, a shiny apple and a paper back book entitled "Folk Medicine" were neatly arranged.

Only one thing was missing: Mickey Mantle.

Mantle had taken the day off, resting because of the soreness that developed as he pushed himself along on the rigorous training program he has established in an attempt to heal from his shoulder operation.

MAKES PROGRESS
Any short layoff makes it a virtual certainty he will not be able to open the season for the New York Yankees. But despite the delay, both the Yankees' team physician and former great Joe DiMaggio said Mantle was making substantial progress. Each, however, saw Mantle's problems differently.

Dr. Sidney Gaynor, of course, described Mantle's problems medically.

"His motion, range and muscular strength have improved," said Gaynor, citing the three keys to the healing of Mantle's right shoulder. "However, it still reacts to activity — it hurts yet."

"I'd have to say at this point that you can't really say without a reasonable doubt that he can play," Gaynor said. "But as far as I can see of his progress with activity, there's no reason he won't be able to."

DiMaggio meanwhile, saw Mantle's problems through a player's eyes.

"It's surprised everyone in camp that he has started to swing so early," DiMaggio said. "And from what I can tell, he's swinging that bat pretty good — without pain. But he really hasn't done anything strenuous

Army '5' Faces Tournney Pick

NEW YORK (AP) — Army, the surprise team of the tourney, gets its big chance against the favored Brigham Young Cougars in the semifinals tonight of the National Invitation college basketball tournament.

Villanova, on an eight-game winning streak and triumphant in 12 of its last 13 games, is expected to down NYU in the other semi before a capacity turnout of 18,400 at Madison Square Garden.

The winners meet at 2 p.m., EST Saturday in the championship game which will be nationally televised over CBS. The losers play for third place at noon Saturday.

NO CHANCE
Virtually everyone wrote off Army's chances when the West Point Cadets lost Sunday 6-foot-6 Mike Silliman, their star, because a knee injury near the end of the regular season.

But another senior, 6-foot-3 Bill Helkie of South Bend, Ind., stepped into the breach and the Black Knights of the Hudson upset Manhattan and San Francisco to reach the round of four. Helkie tossed in 27 points against Manhattan and 34 against the Dons.

The fired-up Cadets are expected to have tougher going against the BYU Cougars led by Dick Nemeika and Jeff Cong.

Detroit Bucks Tradition in Olympic Bid

DETROIT (AP) — Tradition is a strong force in the decisions made by the International Olympic Committee (IOC) but it hasn't frightened Detroit's

Final City '5' Tourney Loser

The last Pontiac men's recreation basketball team left in post-season tournament play was eliminated last night when the Amigo's Club lost a 93-63 decision to Livonia.

This was the city league champions' first start in the Recreation Association of Michigan Class A tournament. The Amigos were outscored in every period, trailing 38-25 at halftime.

Cy Green's 17 points led the losers. Livonia had five in twin figures in a well-balanced attack that saw it outscore Pontiac by 11 field goals, 34-23, and eight free throws, 25-17.

Olympics to the IOC in Rome on April 25.

The IOC will also hear the bids of Munich, Madrid and Montreal before announcing the site of the 1972 games on April 27.

Douglas Roby, the president of the United States Olympic Committee, isn't quite as optimistic as the Detroit officials.

"I'd hate to forecast how it's going to come out but Munich is making an all-out bid," said Roby.

"The games were out of Europe in 1964 and will be outside again in 1968. Our IOC membership has a very strong block in Central Europe and what's good for Germany is good for France. They'll vote together, you know," he said.

MUNICH CONTENDER Hedge called Munich the "leading contender" but expressed doubt whether it could muster the needed votes in the IOC, particularly from the Communist countries.

DETROIT'S financial position in preparing for the Olympic games is strong. During the last bidding, in 1963, the Michigan legislature passed a bill which would channel money into the city's building of a modern Olympic complex. The money would automatically be available if Detroit should win the games.

"If we get the games we'll have the most modern up-to-date facilities in the world," Hedge said. "We have no out-dated stadium to show."

And the Detroit committee, hoping to break tradition, is valiantly trying to make that "some day" come in 1972.

Rochester 9 Seeks to Avenge Slump

By JERE CRAIG

The final week of the Oakland A baseball race last season was disastrous to the Rochester Falcons.

Tied for first place, they lost twice and tumbled to fourth place behind Troy's champions, Warren Cousino and Madison.

The Falcons finished with an 8-5 mark which was actually very good considering they had a team batting average of less than .200.

A new season will begin soon for coach Ron Murray and the Falcons. Pitching and outfield depth are the expected strong points.

But key gaps that need plugging could force some early season experimenting. With four of the first five games set for opponents' diamonds, the Rochester squad may need a strong finish if it's going to contend.

In this respect, the schedule may be in the Falcons' favor. They will play — barring postponements — six straight home games in the middle of the season right at the time when they could be jelling.

In addition, the expected league contenders will be met during the final two weeks of the season.

Murray has juniors Jim Burton, a southpaw, and Randy Hinds, a right-hander, forming a capable mound staff. Sophomore Don Lovelace may provide relief.

Hinds and Burton also double as outfielders, complementing returnees Tom Vanece, a left-handed batter, and Bob Sebastian.

The infield, though, has only Bob Mills, a rangy shortstop, back from last season. Jim Ball, a second baseman, and Dick Ferand, a third sacker, are potential regulars. Burton could plug the hole at first base when not pitching.

The real danger spot, however, could be the crucial catching berth. Murray expects enough hitting from the returnees to offset a weak stick behind the plate — if he can find a suitable defensive specialist to handle the pitching.

Weather is a definite factor in the league. The eight teams will have a home-and-away schedule with each other, but more Don Lovelace may provide relief.

Ailing Bullets Clinch Berth in Playoffs

BALTIMORE (AP) — It was only fitting that the Baltimore Bullets clinched a National Basketball Association playoff berth with three cripples playing and two others watching from the bench.

That's the way it has been all season for the Bullets, who have a chance to finish second in the Western Division despite a rash of injuries.

"This has to be the most rewarding of my 26 years in the game," said Baltimore Coach Paul Seymour after the Bullets came from behind in the final six minutes Wednesday night to defeat the New York Knickerbockers 118-113.

Don Ohl, who had a fractured cheekbone earlier in the season and has missed seven games, led the Bullets with 39 points Wednesday while being honored as the team's most valuable player for the year.

Jack Favored in Citrus Golf

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus insists he doesn't expect to be "real sharp" until time to defend his Masters title, but it appears his golf game is coming along faster than he realizes.

Although making only his third tournament appearance of the year, Nicklaus has been installed as the favorite in the brand new $110,000 Florida Citrus Open which begins today.

The Citrus Open is the richest and most star-studded tournament so far this year and pairs off the "big three"—Nicklaus, top 1966 money winner Arnold Palmer and U. S. Open Champion Gary Player—for the first time since last August.

Windsor Slates Trot to Blend With Auld Sod

WINDSOR, ONTARIO (AP)—Windsor Raceway officials wondered Tuesday how the name of Jacques Vanderpoel got into the all-Irish race dreamed up for St. Patrick's Day at the harness racing track.

Only the pacers with the name from the Auld Sod will go in the fourth race sponsored by who else, John Kelly, a Detroit auto dealer.

The horses scheduled to start are Dame Abbe, driven by Terry O'Brien; Irish Ensign by Ronnie Feagan; Irish Forbes by Pat Crowe; Fat Yates by Donald Keeton; Irish Direct C, by Murray Stephenson; Adlo Killean by Ray McLean; Dandy B. Harmony by Roy McPadden.

McDaniel O'Boy also was entered but he has the racing secretary blushing green. He'll be driven by Jacques Vanderpoel, who by no stretch of imagination can be considered Irish.

Denny Neubert can tell you that the computer is not infallible.

The other night they had a dance at Wethersfield High School in Kewanee, Ill., where he is a senior. The idea was to match up partners on the basis of information fed into a computer — physical and intellectual characteristics, hobbies, interests, the like.

When Denny's turn came at the computer, it selected a partner for him, a junior at the school. Her name is Penny. She's his sister.

John Wayne a Grandfather for 11th Time

She is the wife of Donald La Cava, a Beverly Hills business management executive.

Blind Student Top Scholar, Wrestler

Roger Drewicke lost the sight in each eye in separate accidents while playing as a child.

At the Minnesota Braille and Sight Saving School at Faribault, he learned to read braille. At the school he also learned to wrestle well enough so that years later he won two college conference championships at 137 pounds.

He will graduate with honors in June from the University of Minnesota branch at Morris.

His goal is to become a college teacher of English literature. And he's well on his way. He has received two fellowships which will pay for his graduate education.

Drewicke has a 3.97 grade on the 4-point system. He has made the dean's honor roll every quarter at Morris. He has been named the university branch's "scholar of the year" every year. Also, he has helped to found a literary club and has served in the school's general assembly.

Dems to Push Vets' Tax Bill

Eye Override of Veto
Expected by Romney

LANSING (AP)—Democratic legislative leaders told Gov. George Romney "no deal" Wednesday on a proposal that a veterans property tax exemption bill be renegotiated instead of vetoed.

House Speaker Joseph Kowalski, D-Detroit, and Senate Majority Leader Raymond Dzendzel, D-Detroit, each said after meeting with Romney that they would push for an override of the Republican governor's expected veto.

Neither would speculate on what kind of compromise might be attempted if the override fails.

The bill passed by the Legislature nearly identical to a measure Romney vetoed last year. Override failed last December.

INCREASE EXTENSION

The measure would increase the present exemption for disabled veterans and veterans' widows from $2,000 state equalized valuation to $3,500. It would cost an estimated $4.5 million to $6 million.

Romney is backing a plan whereby exemptions would be scaled to amount of disability for veterans and kept at a flat $2,500 for widows. He estimates it would cost $2.5 million.

The governor has indicated for weeks he would veto the bill again.

Kowalski quoted him as declaring again at the meeting he would veto.

VOTES NEEDED

Democrats normally need three Republican votes in the Senate and one in the House for override. But present hospitalizations of Sen. George Fitzgerald, D-Grosse Pointe, and Sen. John Fitzpatrick, D-Detroit, could make override one vote more difficult in each chamber.

Kowalski said he and Dzendzel each told Romney, "we're not going to call this bill back. We'll wait and see if he vetoes, then decide our course next week."

Democrats originally hoped to put the increased exemptions into effect this year. But in the Senate they could not get immediate effect for the bill, meaning even if Romney signed it, benefits would not be boosted until 1967.

Dzendzel said, however, that if the bill was vetoed, then the veto override, the Legislature still might be able to give it immediate effect, thus increasing benefits this year.

Ferndale Folks Can Get 'Dir' on Neighbors

FERNDALE (AP)—What residents in this Detroit suburb didn't know about their neighbors may soon be revealed.

Ferndale is experimenting with transparent garbage bags.

City Manager J. William Little says the heavy-duty bags would line trash cans. On garbage pickup days, house owners would haul the bags to the curb, leaving trash cans undented at the rear of the house.

Little says the bags save collection time. "Besides," he added, "Ferndale has nothing to hide."

THIRTY-DAY FORECAST — These maps, based on those supplied yesterday by the U.S. Weather Bureau, predict that temperatures in Pontiac and vicinity will be much above normal through mid-April. Pontiac is apparently a borderline case as far as precipitation is concerned, lying on the line dividing above-normal and near-normal areas.

Foreign Funds, Self-Help Aid Brazil's Development Agency

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — Foreign capital and local self-help are the cornerstones on which the head of Brazil's Northeast Development Agency hopes to build his program.

"It was once a mortal sin to discuss international cooperation around here," says Jose Goncalves.

"But now," he adds, "foreign capital is coming in strong and being more favorably received."

Goncalves took over the agency after the 1964 overthrow of President Jose Goulart.

OWN RESPONSIBILITY

Goncalves says that "the people must realize that development is their own responsibility."

"His agency can help, he says, but local initiative and private enterprise are 'essential.'"

With responsibility for developing the sprawling and poverty-stricken nine-state northeast, Goncalves has one of the toughest jobs in Brazil today.

Some say he has gotten things moving, others argue that his administration is not doing as much as it should. Some U.S. aid officials complain that red tape and administrative bungling are slowing down the disbursement of authorized American aid.

NEW ATTITUDE

But under Goncalves' stimulus, a new attitude is beginning to show through. Communities in the interior are working on development programs, and a new approach seems to be at work.

Last year, he says, more than 100 new industries were set up providing jobs for about 35,000 workers, with thousands of others created by the effect of the first 35,000 on the local economy.

Branching into agricultural financing, the agency wants to boost food production, foster colonization, reorganize the antiquated sugar industry and encourage agricultural diversification, replacing sugar with poultry, fruit, dairy and other food industries.

With foreign capital coming in from the United States, France, Japan, Israel, Belgium, Portugal and Germany, Goncalves is looking for a continued period of expansion in the economy of the northeast.

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Worried University of Mississippi officials imposed tight security on this tree-studded campus today on the evening of an appearance by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

The senator, who played a major role in ending the university's century-old segregation policy, will address the law school student body Friday afternoon.

The appearance of the late President's brother has provoked some criticism in Mississippi. A "rebel flag day" protest rally is set for tonight in Jackson, the state capital 180 miles to the south.

Kennedy's only purpose in coming to Mississippi "is to rub salt into the wound," said Rep. Prentiss Walker, this state's lone Republican congressman.

TERMINED INSULT

State Rep. Jim True of Harrison County told the Legislature Wednesday the visit would be "an insult to all Mississippians."

Some state officials called for a display of Southern hospitality.

Kennedy was attorney general in 1962 when federal marshals and soldiers occupied the campus to quell a riot that followed the court ordered enrollment of Negro James Meredith. Two men died in the riot and many more were hurt.

The New York senator will arrive by private plane, landing at the airport where the bulk of the 25,000 soldiers dispatched here in 1962 were quartered. He will attend a brief private reception sponsored by the campus Young Democrats Club, then will address the law students at the Pullman chapel — just across the street from where U.S. marshals and rioters clashed in 1962.

TO ALABAMA

From Oxford, Kennedy will fly to Tuscaloosa for an address at the University of Alabama Friday night.

Ole Miss officials said outsiders would not be permitted on the campus during the Kennedy appearance. First priority for seats in the 1,400-seat chapel went to law students and faculty. About 600 remaining tickets were gobbled up quickly Wednesday by other students.

Many students stood in line without ever getting tickets.

University officials would not release the Kennedy timetable.

W. B. Stuart, assistant to the dean of student personnel, said only, "I don't think we can say when his speech will take place."

SECURITY BOSS

Stuart is responsible for campus security for the visit.

Stuart said he expects no trouble from the students. "Our stay away" because Communists may be planning to kill Kennedy."

FBI agents from Jackson were ordered here and campus police were put on special alert.

Prof Claims Laws Worsen Indian Drunks

By Science Service

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — Antiquated laws prohibiting alcohol to American Indians have only served to aggravate the still-serious drinking problem existing among these people, an anthropologist believes.

A Federal ban against drink was lifted in 1953, but several states and many tribal councils continue the restrictions, said Dr. Edward P. Dozier of the University of Arizona in Tucson.

Besides being ineffective — the Indians made their own inferior liquor — the laws have prevented Indians from learning how to control alcohol. They have also contributed to a sense of inadequacy by treating the Indians as children.

Traditionally Indians drink in groups or gangs, Dr. Dozier said. Because the solitary, anti-social drinker is uncommon, the Indian is not an alcoholic by normal standards.

However, his drink-associated crime rate is 12 times higher than the national average.

SOLUTIONS PAID

The problem is a serious one but since it is a group problem, individual approaches such as Alcoholics Anonymous and psychotherapy do not work well. The anthropologist recommended that the most promising technique would be communitywide programs.

REFLECTIONS — Chairman Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., is in the foreground with the images of two high-level State Department witnesses reflected in a wall mirror as he chats with them yesterday before a closed session of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee in Washington. Mirrored are Secretary of State Dean Rusk (right) and Assistant Secretary Douglas MacArthur II.

Rusk Backs Aid Request

'Main Fight Is for Viets' Well-Being'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk told Congress today that while victory could be won on the Viet Nam battlefield, "We could still lose the more important fight for the future well-being of the people."

In a statement prepared for the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Rusk strongly urged approval of the Johnson administration's request for the $3.38 billion in economic and military aid to be concentrated in 20 countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

"The foreign aid program which this committee is now considering is essential to U.S. security and national interest in both their short and long range aspects," he said.

He said that $550 million to be spent in South Viet Nam in the new fiscal year starting July 1 would provide direct support for what he called the "quiet battle for economic and social progress."

"I think it is important," Rusk said, "that these works of peace continue even while the military struggle continues. For we all recognize that while we could win the victory on the battlefield, we could still lose the more important fight for the future well-being and progress of the people."

U. S. ASSISTANCE

He said that U.S. assistance also is being stepped up to neighboring Thailand and Laos.

As for India and Pakistan, Rusk declared the United States is "prepared to continue to help if these two countries demonstrate their willingness to take necessary self-help measures in the field of agriculture and other priority areas, and find a way to live at peace with each other."

He said that India-Pakistan reconciliation efforts in the United Nations, the Tashkent declaration and the troop withdrawals in Kashmir were heartening to the Johnson administration.

Peru's Hopes in Jungle Road

IQUITOS, Peru (AP) — The Amazon Queen sported a broom lashed upright to her mast as she pushed four barges slowly up the dun-colored Amazon River.

Her whistle shrilled twice. A small crowd broke into applause as they watched her churn past.

Peru's development minister, Sixto Gutierrez, his white sport shirt, pasted to his back by sweat, put up his hand to shield the sun and gaze better look at the passing barges laden with road building machinery.

"Well, that's the first of three," he said. "And don't forget the broom. That's the human touch."

MISSION ACCOMPLISHED

"Submariners used a broom in World War II when they came home. It means mission accomplished."

Gutierrez then made a little speech to half a hundred local residents. He called the Amazon Queen and her barges a "marvelous spectacle" and part of Peru's future.

With this machinery and more like it, men like Gutierrez and President Fernando Belaunde Terry hope to sweep away centuries of unproductiveness in Peru's jungle back country.

"The jungle — called the Selva here — makes up about half of Peru. Its resources have been locked up for centuries by remoteness and the inaccessible Andes."

GRAND DESIGN

To unlock this rich area, Belaunde has a grand design: A two lane highway transversing Peru north to south through the wilderness region between the high jungle of the Andes' eastern slopes and the Amazonian plains.

It's called the Jungle Marginal Road — La Carretera Marginal de la Selva.

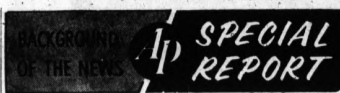

The Amazon Queen's load of machinery will be used on one of the most important segments, 148 miles in northern Peru from Tarapoto to the Nieva River.

Target date for completion of this segment is 1971. Other parts of the 1,000-mile road have been begun. A preliminary engineering study last year figured the entire highway could be finished by 1979 at a cost of $172 million.

HIGHWAY NETWORK

The highway is planned to link with roads — as yet uncompleted — in Ecuador and Bolivia, creating a network for land transportation in Amazon head-waters country.

This shipment of 4,500 tons of road-building machinery came on a freighter from New York and Baltimore. It was put aboard barges at Belem, Brazil, and the Amazon Queen began its long push across almost the width of the South American continent. It took a month to reach Yurimaguas, Peru. From there it is being moved overland to Tarapoto.

Two similar shipments will follow in the next few months. James Loucks, 43, of Princeton, N.J., made the long trip aboard the tug.

"It was an extremely difficult passage," he said. "There are no navigational aids along the 2,500 miles of river. We had some hand-drawn charts. That's all."

OIL FIRM ADVISER

Loucks, an executive of Sinclair Oil Co., made the trip as an adviser because of his company's experience in handling heavy equipment. "We frequently sent a small

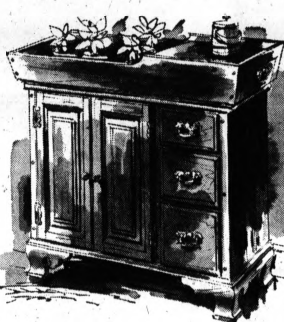

ROAD FINANCED

The road is being financed by the U.S. Export-Import Bank and the Peruvian government.

The Tarapoto-Nieva River segment will be built by Morrison-Knudsen Co., Inc., of Boise, Idaho, in cooperation with three other U.S. companies: J. A. Jones of Charlotte, N.C.; Oman of Nashville, Tenn.; and Wright of Columbus, Ga.

SOUTHERN SAMPLER SUPPER

By JANET ODILL

Pontiac Press Food Editor
"Let's make it potluck."
That's the American way of sharing the work in informal entertaining. It may be a neighborhood group, a club or the church fellowship.

This is nothing new on the American scene. When the country was more rural, families would get together for reunions, quilting bees, an evening of dancing or a picnic. Each woman brought the dish for which she was famed.

Unplanned potluck dinners are fun if you like suspense. I used to belong to a group that always had this kind.

Once, nearly everyone brought beans and once we didn't have any dessert. But surprisingly enough, most of the time, the meal was balanced.

The usual method is to sign up for what you want to prepare.

You choose casseroles that travel well and taste good after standing. You don't fuss with elaborate decorations on the salad that might fall off on the way.

Here are a few suggestions for you to try.

Wheat Germ Rhubarb Cobbler

4 cups rhubarb, cut in 1/2-inch pieces
1 cup water

Dried Beef Filling for Pinwheel Treats

For delectable pinwheel sandwiches, use this novel way with dried beef: shred finely 1 jar (6 ounces) dried beef. Add 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese softened with 1/2 cup of half and half cream and 1 tablespoon mayonnaise. Fold in 1/2 cup finely chopped chutney.

Spread filling on slices of white bread which have been rolled thin with a rolling pin. Roll as for jelly roll, chill thoroughly and then slice about 1/2-inch thick for "pinwheels."

1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 cup unsifted flour
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup wheat germ
1/4 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt

1/4 cup milk
3 tablespoons shortening
1 egg
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Combine rhubarb, water, 1 cup sugar and 1 tablespoonful flour in saucepan. Cook over medium heat until mixture boils, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Pour into 2-quart casserole.

Measure 1 cup flour, 1/2 cup sugar, wheat germ, baking powder and salt into mixing bowl. Stir well to blend. Add milk, shortening, egg and lemon juice to blended dry ingredients.

Beat 2 minutes with electric mixer (medium speed) or by hand (150 strokes per minute).

Drop by tablespoonfuls onto rhubarb sauce in casserole.

Combine 2 tablespoonfuls sugar and lemon rind. Sprinkle on dough. Bake at 375 degrees for 30-35 minutes. Serve warm with whipped cream or ice cream, if desired. Yield: 6-8 servings.

Dry Toasted Peanuts Star of New Fruit Pie

Good cooks use their imagination. Some good cook dreamed up the idea of adding dry toast-peanuts to a pie crust and adding more of the same peanuts to the fruit filling.

This is the perfect sweet for the dessert and bridge crowd. Or if someone is announcing an engagement, it is a fitting end to a gay and exciting luncheon.

PARTY PEANUT FRUIT TART Crust:

1/2 cup dry toasted peanuts
1 egg yolk
1 cup sifted all purpose flour
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
Preheat oven to 400 degrees

Vegetables Need Careful Cooking

To insure the best flavor, color, texture, and food value in vegetables, cook them only until they are tender. Vegetables cooked whole in skins retain most nutritive value.

The less water used in cooking vegetables, the more nutrients retained. . . For young, tender vegetables, 1 to 1 1/2 cup of water is usually enough for six servings.

Water to cover is needed for some older root vegetables that require longer cooking. Spinach and other greens need only the water clinging to their leaves from washing if cooked over low heat in a pan with a tight-fitting lid. Tomatoes can be cooked in their own juice.

Here are directions for boiling fresh vegetables:

- Bring salted water to a boil.
- Add vegetable. Cover and quickly bring water back to a boil.
- Reduce heat and cook gently until vegetable is just tender.
- Serve immediately; flavor and nutritive value may be lost if vegetables are allowed to stand.

Grind or very finely chop peanuts. Beat egg yolk until bubbly. Mix together flour and sugar. Cut butter into flour-sugar mixture until mixture resembles coarse cornmeal. Add peanuts, vanilla, egg yolk.

Mix pastry with fork until very well blended. Pat into bottom and onto sides of 9" pie plate, making small edge on rim. Bake 15-15 minutes until golden. Cool thoroughly.

FILLING:

1 (1 lb. 4 1/2 oz.) can cling peach halves
1 (1 lb. 4 1/2 oz.) can pear halves
1 (1 lb. 4 1/2 oz.) can apricot halves
12 marachino cherries
1/2 cup dry toasted peanuts

Drain peaches, pears, apricots well reserving 1 cup fruit juice. Put juice in saucepan. Add just enough juice to cornstarch to make thin paste. Add to rest of juice and cook stirring constantly, until mixture is thick and transparent. Cool slightly.

Arrange fruit in prepared cooled shell. Sprinkle peanuts over fruit and peanuts. Cool. Serve plain or with whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

PEANUT FRUIT TART—Jewel-like canned peaches, pears and apricots glisten under a glaze. Adding interest to both filling and crust are dry toasted peanuts.

Jam Rolls Are Best When Hot

Here's a delightful homemade quick hot bread to add pleasure to breakfast. It is made with a pancake mix and strawberry preserves.

- Straw-Filled Rolls
2 1/2 cups pancake mix
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon mace
1/2 cup shortening, soft
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Strawberry preserves

Combine pancake mix, sugar and mace in medium-sized bowl. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add milk and vanilla, stirring lightly only until dry ingredients are moistened.

Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead gently a few seconds. Roll out to form a 9x15-inch rectangle. Cut into 3-inch squares. Place on ungreased cookie sheet.

Place 1 teaspoon preserves in center of each square. Fold two opposite corners of each square into center; pinch edges together to seal. Bake in preheated hot oven (400 degrees) about 10 minutes.

Remove from cookie sheet. Serve hot. If desired, drizzle with thin confectioners' sugar frosting. Makes 15.

Salads a Help in Reducing

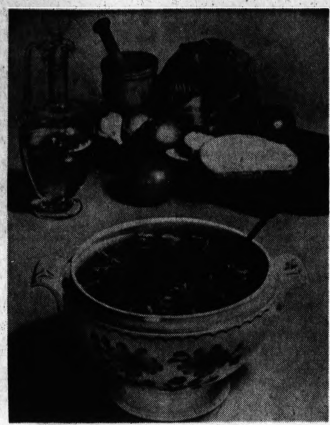

"Salads have a valuable place in a reducing diet. Such large portions of vegetables and fruit salads may be used that a limited meal will appear to be more satisfying as well as actually being so.

The occasional use of an "aspic base" for fruits or vegetables, or a combination of both, is recommended. Cottage cheese also may be put to good use in salads.

Although salad oil in dressings must be avoided or limited in amount, there are a number of savory dressings that can be prepared without its use. Low calorie salad dressings are also available commercially."

POTATO FISH CAKES—Give old-fashioned fish cakes an extra heartiness and tempting flavor by starting with a potato soup mix for the base. Serve them with a crisp homemade slaw tossed with a bottled deluxe French dressing... onion butter to go with chunks of crusty bread.

CABBAGE SOUP—The almost-lost art of soup-making deserves re-discovery. Pictured here—an inexpensive, savory Spanish cabbage soup from Mallorca, made entirely with vegetables. The secret of its rich flavor is the way garlic and bread are first sauteed in Spanish olive oil, then mashed together to a paste. This subtly flavors the vegetable broth.

For Fish Cakes

Start With Potato Soup Mix

Some people take fish very seriously... and rightly so. Fish should be held in high esteem: it never fails to offer us delicate flavor, excellent nutrition and wide versatility.

For truly delightful fish fare, choose old-fashioned fish cakes. But try them this way... with a new taste twist.

Use potato soup for a base... it gives the fish body and a good hearty flavor that can't be topped. Start with a potato soup mix, of course, to give you that velvety, deliciously seasoned base you want; to save you time and trouble as well.

A tasty homemade cole slaw is the classic companion for these inviting fish cakes.

And a good slaw is easy to make by merely tossing shredded cabbage, grated carrot, chopped green pepper with a convenient bottled deluxe French dressing.

One thing more: you'll need some crusty French bread, cut into chunks, ready to be spread with onion butter (just blend a 1 1/2-ounce envelope onion soup mix with a half pound of butter or margarine). This onion butter mixture makes bread especially flavorful.

With chilled tomato juice, garnished with hearts of celery as edible stirrers, this completes a fish dinner even a temperamental chef would admire!

Potato Fish Cakes
1 (3-oz.) envelope potato soup mix
1 1/2 cups cold water
1 pound haddock fillet, poached, well drained, flaked
1 egg, beaten
About 1/4 cup dry bread crumbs
Shortening
Into a small saucepan empty potato soup mix; gradually stir in water. Bring to boil, while stirring; then cook 2 minutes. Cool slightly; stir in fish and egg. Chill thoroughly.

Drop chilled potato-fish mixture by heaping tablespoonfuls onto bread crumbs, coating well. In skillet, heat several tablespoons shortening; brown cakes well on each side, adding more shortening as needed. Drain on paper toweling.

If desired, serve with lemon wedges. Makes 4 to 6 servings or about 12 (2 1/2-inch) cakes.

Proper Use of Garlic Essential in Soup

With all the talk of gourmet cooking that's bandied about these days, few American cooks seem to know about that most creative and satisfying of all cooking—the art of soup-making.

It isn't hard to make a fragrant, mouth-watering soup. It's far easier than baking a cake, or rolling out pie crust, or even trussing a turkey. And the results can earn ringing plaudits.

Best of all, a huge pot of soup can be made for pennies. Many utterly delicious soups can be made from vegetables alone. If you wish to have a beef or chicken stock, chances are good you can get bones or perhaps a whole bag of chicken necks, free from your butcher.

Or, if you don't want to go to the trouble of making stock, use powdered concentrate or bouillon cubes.

An important first step is to simmer vegetables in olive oil or a blend of butter and oil. This brings out the full flavor and "marries" the flavor of the vegetables and herbs most subtly.

European cooks know that combining olive oil and butter prevents the butter from burning. In cooking onion for a soup, it is particularly important that the onion not get the least bit brown, for this will give the soup a burned taste.

If garlic is to be used—and garlic is used effectively in many Mediterranean soups, the whole garlic clove should be placed in olive oil and sauteed until golden (but not browned), then mashed. In this way, the nuttiness of the garlic is retained without any of the bitter garlic flavor.

SOPA MALLORQUINA
(Cabbage Soup of Mallorca)
1/4 cup Spanish olive oil
1 garlic clove
2 to 3 pieces stale white bread
1 medium onion, chopped or sliced
1 pimiento, diced
1 tomato, skinned, seeded, chopped
2 cups chopped or sliced green cabbage
4 cups water
Salt to taste, about 1 teaspoon
1/4 teaspoon pepper

In top-of-stove type casserole, place the olive oil, heat until it starts to sizzle, add the whole garlic clove and the bread. Remove the garlic clove as soon as golden; fry bread quickly on each side. Drain both garlic and bread on paper towel.

Reduce heat, add the onion, pimiento and tomato in the same casserole. Lower heat, cook until onion is soft. Add cabbage, saute over low heat 5 minutes. Add water, salt and pepper.

Meantime, mash garlic and the bread together to a paste with mortar and pestle or back of wooden spoon, adding a little liquid from the casserole. Return bread-garlic paste to casserole, simmer covered for 20 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Follow this with an omelet and green salad for a week-night family supper.

War's Horror Seen in GI Viet Hospital

By TOM TIEDE

LONG BIEN, Viet Nam (NEA) — The unpainted, unpretentious, round-roofed buildings are settled in the dust of a small hillside. Each one is newly constructed but already drying and aging under a sun with no shade.

They are the wards of a war hospital.

Huts of horror . . . houses of hope.

The sick and the slaughtered come here, the pious creatures of combat, bruised and bleeding, to suffer, to sleep, and to pray they may leave not as they came, but whole again and walking.

The buildings are wood-walled, cement-floored, and shaped as uncolored crosses. The doors and windows are wrestling with time in the intersections. The living and dying are wrestling with hope in the wings.

The postoperative ward is in the center of the grounds. It is at once the best and the worst of all. Soldiers enter it who should die, but don't . . . and soldiers enter who shouldn't die, but do.

MEN HUMBLD
Hard men are humbled in this building. And no one who sees its sights can forget.

There are 64 beds — this cots, really — holding patients under intensive care. Many are still in shock, some are jaundiced, and all are freshly patched, sewn, wrapped and injected.

A boy near the middle is covered with a sheet that form-fits his leg and then drops off where his foot used to be.

An older man next to him is twisting in torture from a body mummified with tape that tears at opened flesh when he moves.

SOLDIER WHIMPERS
A Negro soldier whimpers, "Oh, God . . . Oh, God."

Somebody in the rear bites his thumb in pain.

Immediately off the center vestibule, a blond Pfc. is sprawled on his side, his legs drawn up as if in defense, because he is unconscious; his stomach has been probed and stitched because he is seriously wounded.

The private is taking oxygen from a green container called a respirator. He has gastric tubes running from him to the floor. Dextrose is being fed into his arm. A tele thermometer is wired to his leg.

He is not moving. He is hardly breathing. He may not last the night, a doctor says.

VARIOUS BOTTLES

At every other bed, bottles of various solutions are strung to feed back into bodies what the ravages of war have taken out.

Under the cots, plastic bags catch bladder and other organic fluids which drop from combatants too weak to control the functions.

Near one door a finger amputee stares at the ceiling; next to him a man's eyes glow through a scribble of sutures; further on a once beautiful boy gets his third pint of whole blood.

Back there a man lies with a shot-away lip.

PART OF LEG

Between them is the mutilated victim of an exploding mine.

Three beds off the end of one wing, two attendants are placing an oxygen tent around a GI with several bullet holes in him. Those who can see watch in grim solemnity.

"It's a bad sign," one of them whispers.

"Looks like he's had it."

"Two of them like that yesterday."

"Wish I was asleep."

THINK OF HOME

The men tighten their eyes and look away. They think of other things . . . of home and children and neighbors and times made ancient by artillery and armed assaults.

They, the inmates of this war hospital, are also the daily spectators of its pain, its scars, its flies, its dust and its moaning, mangled men.

Few others have observed the sights and suffering here.

And that is the pity.

Every man should witness this . . . and remember it.

Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt Says:

Smoker Must Want to Live if He's to Quit

Q—Will a pipe smoker who inhales be as likely to get lung cancer as a cigarette smoker? Could smoking cigarettes cause pain in the chest? How can I stop smoking?

A—In one study, limited to men, the death rate per 100,000 from lung cancer among cigar-BRANDSTADT smokers was 127, among pipe smokers 39, among cigar smokers 13 and among non-smokers 13.

Heavy smoking is associated with an increase in the incidence of lung cancer, chronic bronchitis, emphysema, tuberculosis and coronary heart disease.

Chest pain is associated with only one of these — heart disease.

Quitting smoking is a tough problem for most confirmed smokers. It takes a great deal of will power. Without strong motivation, failure can be assured.

Some persons are benefited by such psychological props as substituting gum chewing for smoking, self-hypnosis with the aid of a specially prepared record, drinking more water, getting more outdoor exercise and getting adequate rest so that nervous tension is reduced.

MUST WANT TO LIVE
In the last analysis, however, you've got to want to live more than you want to smoke.

Q—The doctor says my husband has bulbar palsy. Is there any cure for it?

A—In this disease the tongue, jaws and palate are paralyzed and speech, chewing and swallowing are difficult. In some victims there may also be some weakness of the neck and shoulder muscles. The disease may be caused by hemorrhage into the spinal cord just below the brain, by a tumor in this region or by chronic degeneration of unknown cause. Treatment is unsatisfactory. (Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

HOT ITEM — This GMC truck and six others like it play a prominent role in enabling a New Jersey trucking company to expand its operation. The vehicle is engaged in a "fish-back" freight-hauling project at Port Newark, N.J.

City Officials GMC Diesels Aiding in Rail Confab

Talks Are Attended by GTW Executive

City officials met yesterday with a high-ranking railroad executive to open talks that eventually might lead to grade separations at two busy railroad crossings in Pontiac.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr., City Manager Joseph A. Warren and City Engineer Joseph E. Neippling met with Harry Sanders, a vice president and general manager of Grand Trunk Western Railroad.

Taylor said object of the meeting was just to explore possibilities for grade separations. He said it was decided the city would initially make some preliminary studies on cost and feasibility of a grade separation for North Johnson.

The mayor emphasized nothing definite was decided, but preliminary facts would be gathered and presented at a later date to Grand Trunk officials.

'INTERESTED'
"He (Sanders) was interested in talking to us," said Taylor. Efforts to establish a grade separation on the West Huron crossing would have to move slower, according to Taylor, because state and federal governments would be involved.

Under terms of state law, bulk of the cost of grade separations would probably fall on the city unless other agreements could be worked out.

County Workers' Credit Union Will Move Saturday

Facilities of the Oakland County Employees Credit Union will be moved Saturday from the courthouse to the new credit union building in the county service center.

The credit union will be open for business at 10 a.m. Monday in its new location, according to Herbert R. Radunz, president of the credit union board of directors.

Construction on the $20,000 building began last October. It contains 2,500 square feet.

Office hours will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

All present officers of the credit union board have been reelected to one-year terms.

Besides Radunz, they are William Arnold, vice president; James Jones, treasurer; Gretchen Maki, secretary and directors Pauline Hammznd, Leo Halpenny and William Webb.

Its trucks travel more than a million miles a year to serve some 2,500 shippers and consignees.

In a move toward complete dieselization of its fleet, the firm has called on GMC Truck & Coach Division for trucks.

Seven model DLV-4014 GMC Toro-Flow diesel trucks with steel tilt-bed models were added last year and more are scheduled for the company's fleet later on.

IDEALLY SUITED
Transportation Manager Harold Cox said the GMC's are ideally suited to "diminishing load" operations.

"These Toro-Flows are giving us 75 to 100 per cent better mileage than our gas jobs," he said.

"Fuel savings alone will offset the extra initial cost of the diesels in less than three years."

He went on to say that downtime has been negligible and drivers vie with one another to drive the trucks.

MANY ORDERS
While many shipping orders flow into Jayne's Motor Freight from New York City and Philadelphia, others come from customers not five miles away.

One of its closest customers is Grace Line. Its fish-back vessels bring containerized loads to Port Newark and take on freight picked up by Jayne's trucks at various points in New York, New Jersey and Philadelphia.

Supervisors Reject 3 of 8 Proposals

The Oakland County Board of Supervisors yesterday rejected three of eight legislative proposals recommended by the legislative committee.

Influenced by John Rphard, supervisor from West Bloomfield Township, the board voted to throw out a recommendation to deny support to a Kalamazoo County resolution calling for chemical tests to determine intoxication of motorists.

Rphard objected to the committee's recommendation, saying that such legislation would be just another measure to hamper law enforcement.

The Kalamazoo County resolution suggested testing for intoxication when investigating police officers have reasonable grounds to believe a motorist is under the influence of intoxicants.

Another committee recommendation was ordered returned for further consideration of the equalization committee of the board of supervisors by a 54 to 12 roll call vote.

It referred to a house bill which sets determination of value of certain personal property on installed acquisition cost and establishes the depreciation schedule on a straight line basis.

S. James Clarkson, supervisor from Southfield, claimed the legislation would hurt the small businessman and called for withdrawal of support recommended by the legislative committee.

Another house bill for which the committee recommended support would allow the Probate Court to charge a schedule of graduated fees as an expense of administering the gross estates of deceased persons.

This proposed legislation also met criticism and supervisors voted against supporting it.

NAME PARK COMMISSION
In other business yesterday, the board appointed a 10-member park commission.

Appointed were Daniel W. Barry, drain commissioner; Robert O. Felt, chairman of the road commission; Donald A. Kalmbeck, planning commission chairman; Daniel T. Murphy, chairman of the board of auditors; and Corporation Counsel Robert P. Allen.

Also named were three supervisors, John L. Carey, Springfield Township; Mrs. Dorothy Olson, Waterford Township; and Clarence A. Durbin, City of Southfield.

The remaining appointees were citizens—at-large Mrs. Frances Clark, Bloomfield Township, and Mrs. Velma Austin, City of Royal Oak.

DEEP IN THE HEART—Urban renewal has made it possible to plunk the latest entry in the fair-building business—HemisFair—in the San Antonio, Tex., downtown district, just yards away from the Alamo.

Texas Latest Entry in the Fair Business

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (NEA)—The 1966's will, it now appears certain, go down in history as the Decade of the Fairs.

Seattle had a little gem in 1962.

The wrecker's ball is crunching into the remnants of the New York World's Fair, which closed last October after a fitful two-year run.

New York's sobering experience (the fair lost money) hasn't deterred Canada from pumping millions into the mammoth Expo '67, set for next year in Montreal.

And now, Texas is in the fair-building business.

BOLDEST ENDEAVOR

The state's venture, planned for April 16-Oct. 16, 1968, is called HemisFair and the theme is "The Confluence of Civilizations in the Americas."

Promoters have already labeled it "the boldest and most imaginative endeavor in the history of the Southwest."

HemisFair's Robert Moses is James M. Gaines who winces at the inevitable comparison, a burly, 54-year-old transplant from New York television network executive. His title is executive vice president.

Gaines makes it clear that he doesn't consider himself Bob Moses in a stetson and high-heeled boots.

'AWARE OF MISTAKES'

"I'm aware of Moses' mistakes," he says. "Besides, I still don't think I'm ready for Mount Sinai—and I don't mean the hospital in New York."

That dispensed with, HemisFair's major-domo ticks off the reasons why the "Fair of the Americas" is going to be different:

- Money worries aren't anticipated. San Antonio businessmen have pledged $7.8 million. Local bond issues will make $30 million available. There's $12.5 million in urban renewal funds for site-clearing on the banks.

- HemisFair is one of the few international expositions to be held in the heart of a city—and the only one located 300 yards from the back door of the Alamo.

- HemisFair has a unifying theme which orients it to this hemisphere, particularly the American Southwest and Latin America.

- HemisFair, unlike the New York fair, is sanctioned by the Bureau of International Expositions. This means national exhibitors like Britain, France and the Soviet Union might well display here, which they didn't do in New York.

Until recently, residents of San Antonio, a city of 700,000 people (half speak Spanish as a native tongue) weren't at all sure there would be a fair. It had been talked about for several years.

THEY'RE SURE

They're sure now. A converted, tastefully decorated schoolhouse is headquarters for about 30 full-time staff members. The 30-acre site is being bulldozed clean, though historic buildings will be spared.

What is most surprising about plans for HemisFair is that it effectively explodes Texas myth and concentrates on Texas reality.

An outsider would half-expect Texans to level all of San Antonio (with the exception of the Alamo) and build the biggest, glossiest, most expensive exposition in the history of western man.

But HemisFair could fit in a corner of the New York fair site. Gaines says there'll be a lot to see, but most can be glimpsed in a day or two. "Not much walking," he adds.

7.2 MILLION

Since the New York fair attracted 51 million visitors (Moses predicted 70 million), the Texasphobe might guess HemisFair would predict 200 million.

No so. Gaines hopes to entice 7.2 million to San Antonio, an extremely conservative figure.

The non-Texas might think that prominent Lone Star Staters (from the White House down) would invite anybody to

Town Clerk Quite a Hit

BARNHAM, Maine (AP)—Daniel A. Dyer could be the envy of politicians everywhere. Voters have elected him to 60 consecutive terms in office. Dyer, 85, attributes his political appeal to the fact that "my house is in the middle of the village. It's handy to people."

Dyer has been elected town clerk in every year since 1907, even though he's a Democrat in a traditionally Republican state. No one's ever run against him.

Woman Dies in Crash

RUDYARD (AP)—An auto ran off a road and struck a tree near this eastern Upper Peninsula community Wednesday, killing Mrs. Florence Skinner, 72, of Greenville and injuring Mrs. Margaret Frender, also of Greenville.

exhibit anything in any conceivable form, as long as it's big.

But HemisFair has some tough rules for exhibitors. Gaines reports:

"HemisFair will examine the diversified cultures of the American hemisphere—how they started, what they accomplished, what they promise to attain.

WIDE RANGE

"This will allow the event to embrace the art, culture, history, religion and socio-economic development of each participating nation. All plans for exhibits will be examined by us to determine whether they fit into our theme."

But lest anyone thinks HemisFair plans to out-intellectualize the British Museum, Gaines says the fair will also be a "184-day fiesta—a whole lot of fun."

For the city of San Antonio, and for Texas, HemisFair is much more than a six-month, build-it-up, rip-it-down exposition.

Many of the buildings—including the proposed federal pavilion, a 700-foot-tall tower restaurant and an auditorium-theater-area complex—will be permanent.

PERMANENT INSTITUTE Recently Texas Gov. John Connally, HemisFair's commissioner general, outlived even starry-eyed fair planners by proposing a permanent $10 million Institute of Living Culture as the state's contribution.

Gaines says what Connally has in mind is a colossal combination of "the Smithsonian Institution, the NASA space center, the Louvre and the anthropological museum at Mexico City."

Apparently, the State Legislature will go along.

HIGHER DEATH RATE FOUND FOR SMOKERS

WASHINGTON: Cigarette smokers among 250,000 United States veterans observed for more than eight years had a higher death rate than non-smokers, the Public Health Service reported today.

Death rates for cigarette smokers remained fairly constant over the eight-half-year period, while rates for non-smokers went down, it said.

The service said the finding showed that, in the same age group, 11 times as many cigarette smokers as non-smokers died of lung cancer and 12 times as many died of emphysema, a lung disease.

Three or more times as many cigarette smokers as non-smokers died of cancer of the mouth, pharynx, esophagus or larynx, and such diseases as bronchitis, asthma, stomach ulcer, duodenal ulcer, and non-syphilitic aneurysm of the sort.

According to a recent university survey, 52% of American doctors do not smoke. Many quit recently due, according to the Anti-Tobacco Center of America, to the conclusive evidence linking cigarettes and lung cancer.

Over 150,000 people, many of whom were doctors, have tried a new tablet program. Less than 2% have reported that they are still smoking!

Smokers interested in receiving information (free) about this new tablet are invited to contact directly the Anti-Tobacco Center of America, Dept. 740-S-1, 366 Fifth Avenue, New York 1, New York.

It is sufficient to send your name and address. Just a postcard will do.

Program Approved for 60 Retardates

A program to provide training for 60 retarded children aged 14 to 21 was approved yesterday at a special joint meeting of the Oakland Schools Board of Education and the Superintendents' Special Education Committee.

This is Oakland School's share of a proposal to operate a facility in conjunction with the county Community Mental Health Services Board that would provide a complete program, including recreation and counseling, for trainable retarded youth beyond the age of 13.

"The solution for programs of trainables beyond age 13 will rest on the outcome of this pilot program," said Dr. William J. Emerson, superintendent of Oakland Schools.

Dr. Paul Thams, director of special education for Oakland Schools, said 20 children now enrolled in 10 type B rooms in the county will reach the phase-out age of 14 by Dec. 1.

They will have priority placement in the new program.

RETAIN SOME
Gerald Harrison, superintendent of Farmington Schools, said it would be possible to retain some 14-year-olds in their present classes.

"Other children at this age," Harrison said, "have become so large physically that they do not belong in the elementary schools where these rooms are located."

"Placement of children in the programs will be the responsibility of the superintendent and special education directors in local districts."

The extension of the age limit of programs for children with IQ ranges between 30 and 50 is in addition to a plan to increase the number of type B classrooms from 10 to 16 next year.

NEW ROOMS
All of the new rooms will serve as centers for combinations of school districts.

The board agreed that the four rooms for those beyond age 13 should be located in the southern part of the county near the center of population.

Won't Get Far Trying to 'Pedal' His Stolen Car
For a moment yesterday, Pontiac police faced yet another stolen automobile report in a recent wave of car thefts.

Mrs. Lauri Bolin, 29, of 25 Park Place, however, managed to check the trend briefly with the added information that her son's missing car was run by pedals rather than a motor.

"This one's going to the Juvenile Division," said Chief William K. Hanger.

The pedal car is valued at $11.

KENNETH C. WATSON
Kenneth C. Watson, 60, of 3230 Warrington, Waterford Township, died this morning.

His body is at the Coats Funeral Home, Waterford Township.

Surviving are his wife, Rachael; a daughter, Mrs. Nathan Williams of Manistiquic; and two grandchildren.

The rooms will be leased and operated by the intermediate district (Oakland Schools) in accordance with terms of the Phillips Amendment.

The new elementary school rooms—to be built and paid for from county special education tax revenue—will accommodate 60 children.

WAITING LISTS
Sixty-six children are presently on waiting lists for type B placement.

The eligibility of those pupils beyond age 13 will be determined by school diagnosticians in tests to be given before school starts in September.

Parents who believe their children might qualify for the new program are advised to call their local school offices.

Under terms of the Phillips Amendment, 75 per cent state aid is available for type B programs for pupils through age 21.

Last year the state contributed $1,513,900 for type B programs. The estimated budget for the 1965-66 school year is $1.8-million.

Break-In Nets Cash at Tavern in Pontiac Twp.

A break-in early yesterday at a Pontiac Township tavern netted some $240 in change and an undetermined amount of paper currency, according to Oakland County Sheriff's deputies.

The theft took place at Ron's Roost, 2531 Opdyke, some time after the tavern had been locked up in the early morning hours.

Deputies said a side door to the building had been kicked in to gain entry.

Missing from the cash register was $37.50 and an additional $200 in change was taken from several boxes in an office.

Plane Hunted in Lake Huron

ALPENA (AP)—U. S. Coast Guard rescue craft today launched a sea and air search for a twin-engine plane, piloted by a Tennessee man and believed missing over Lake Huron.

Coast Guard officials said Ernest Nabors, 42, of Marysville, Tenn., failed to arrive as scheduled today at Alpena on a flight from Windsor Locks, Conn. He was believed to be alone.

Nabors left Windsor Locks Wednesday night in a Piper Comanche owned by the Alpena Flying Service and was last seen when he landed at Wairton, Ont., early today to refuel.

The Coast Guard said two planes, a helicopter and the cutter Mackinac were taking part in the search.

"I'LL BET YOU $2.00 I CAN SELL YOU A NEW RAMBLER THIS WEEK!"

... says Russ Downey

"I'M SO SURE YOU'LL LIKE ONE OF OUR NEW RAMBLERS WHEN YOU SEE AND DRIVE IT THAT I'M WILLING TO RISK $2.00."

"The bet's good on any new Rambler American, Classic, Ambassador or Marlin. I welcome this opportunity to tell you what 'quality built in, not added on' really means. All I ask is that you are 21 years or older . . . bring your title and registration for your present car . . . that you are not 'locked-in' on the choice of car you purchase . . . and that you take a test drive in a new Rambler while you're in."

"That's all there is to it. If you can resist, then you get my $2.00. If you can't resist, you'll get a deal of a lifetime and I'll forget to collect $2.00 from you."

"Either way, you can't lose, so come in today and start winning!"

Astronauts' Training Has Always Pulled Them Through

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Eight of America's 12 manned space flights have run into major problems. But the courage, skill and training of astronauts have prevented any disasters.

When Gemini 8 began to spin violently Wednesday, command pilot Neil A. Armstrong, a civilian, made a last-ditch decision to use his only remaining system of maneuvering jets to bring it under control.

If he had exhausted the fuel in the system, his life and the life of pilot David R. Scott, an Air Force major, could have been jeopardized as they returned to earth.

In 1961, before any American achieved orbit, Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom had to swim for his life when the hatch blew on his spacecraft at sea after it landed.

NO DIRECTIONS

In 1962, Navy Cmdr. M. Scott Carpenter was forced to steer by the horizon when a short-circuit cut off the device that told him which way his Aurora 7 was pointing.

Just last August, Air Force Col. L. Gordon Cooper and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr. nursed Gemini 5 through 120 revolutions after it looked like a fuel pressure problem might force them down after six. If it had been unmanned, space officials said, it would never have come down.

The only problem with a spacecraft involving manned space flight that astronauts did not have a hand in dealing with was the failure of the Atlas-Agena 6 last Oct. 25.

That Agena target ship blew up before orbiting, and astronauts Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford climbed out of their Gemini capsule before launch time.

MANUAL CONTROL

The first American in orbit, John H. Glenn Jr., then a Marine lieutenant colonel, had to take partial manual control of his Friendship 7 on Feb. 20, 1962, when a small jet thruster failed.

President Johnson praised Armstrong and Scott for having shown "remarkable courage and poise under stress." They pulled the Gemini 8 out of a spin that reached at least six revolutions a minute and brought it to a landing almost exactly in the middle of the planned landing zone.

Problems in space do not automatically mean a reverse for the space program.

During Cooper's first space mission — the Faith 7 flight of May 15-16, 1963 — drinking water leaked into the cabin and ground stations feared that the automatic reentry system might have been short-circuited. They directed Cooper to fly the capsule manually back to earth and he became the first space man to do so.

GROUND DIRECTION

Astronauts Air Force Lt. Col. James A. McDivitt and Edward

malfunctioning computers as they brought Gemini 4 down last June. They followed instructions from the ground and landed safely.

The only American space pilots to escape major space problems were Navy Capt. Alan B. Shepard Jr. in Freedom 7, May 5, 1961; Schirra in Sigma 7, Oct. 3, 1962; Grissom and Navy Cmdr. John W. Young in Gemini 3, March 23, 1965; and Air Force Col. Frank Borman and Navy Capt. James Lovell in Gemini 7, Dec. 4-18, 1965.

Early Landing Disappointing

Spacemen's Families Relieved

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Those who most love astronauts, Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott are a disappointed — but very much relieved — group of relatives today.

After their joy-nerved husbands dropped safely to earth, Ann Scott and Janet Armstrong showed by their smiles they are also very disappointed. But both said they were "very disappointed" the flight ended early.

In La Jolla, Calif., Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Tom W. Scott, parents of the Gemini 8 pilot, said they were also disappointed. The general conceded that it was "a great relief" when the splash-down occurred safely, however.

"I just wanted to see the flotation collar around that thing," he said.

The two wives spent most of the time in a bedroom watching television and kept in constant communication with Mission Control.

'DISAPPOINTED'

"I'm very disappointed but happy it turned out safely for both," said Mrs. Armstrong after the vigil. Scott's wife added, however, that she was pleased "the primary purpose of the mission was accomplished."

She was referring to the successful linking up of the Gemini 8 spacecraft and its Agena target—a "first" in the history of space flight.

Mrs. Scott's parents, retired Air Force Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Isaac C. Ott, San Antonio, helped look after the Scott children—Tracy, 4, and Doug, 2.

Mrs. Edward H. White II, wife of the first U.S. astronaut to stroll in space, and Mrs. Armstrong's sister, Mrs. T. S. Trude, Barrington, Ill., baby-sat at the Armstrong house with the command pilot's sons, Ricky, 8, and Mark, 2.

The Armstrongs watched the launch at Cape Kennedy, a mile away from the Gemini-Titan 2 pad. They came to Florida from their home town of Wapakoneta, Ohio, where Neil was born and raised.

After the failure occurred 185 miles above the earth, Armstrong's wife, Janet, went to the Scott home in the Nassau Bay subdivision near the Manned Spacecraft Center at Houston.

SPLASH-DOWN POINT — The disabled Gemini 8 spacecraft made an emergency landing in the Pacific Ocean spot designated on this map last night.

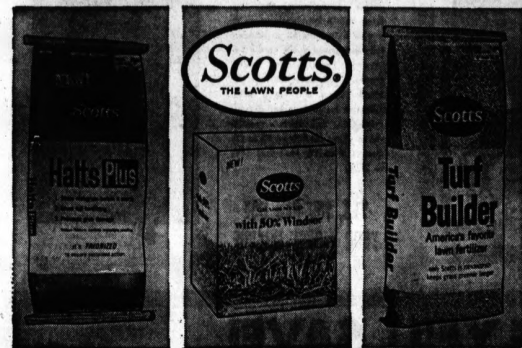

Lawsuit Is Seedy

ROME, Ga. (AP) — Farmer W. M. Cargle sued a seed store for $417 on grounds the seeds it sold him were the wrong ones. He wanted to grow purple-top beets, but got something else.

The Superior Court jury returned the price of the seeds, but decided to charge to experience his claims of $40 for depreciation of his mule, $25 for land damage, $50 for use of his tractor, $50 for rent of the land, $10 for fertilizer, and $2 for insecticides.

The seeds cost $1.

GOP Claims Delay of Bill on VP's House

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House Republicans claimed a partial victory today in their attempt to delay construction of a $750,000 "Junior White House" for Hubert H. Humphrey and his vice presidential successors.

House consideration of authorizing legislation was postponed until next Tuesday after GOP members protested the government should get servicemen's families out of the slums first.

"Cheap politics," cried the bill's handlers.

They said the postponement was only because Speaker John W. McCormack was in Massachusetts yesterday and wanted to be present for debate on the bill.

Republicans said their aim is to delay legislation to build the vice presidential residence until after the fighting has ended in Viet Nam.

CITY DELAY
They said the weekend delay in its consideration encouraged them to believe the bill was in trouble.

Not true, said Rep. Kenneth J. Gray, D-Ill. He predicted the bill would be passed next week. The Senate already has passed its own version.

Gray scoffed at the Republican contention that cost of the mansion should rule out its immediate approval. He said the only outlay in the next 12 to 18 months will be about $45,000 for preparation of plans.

2 Jets Shadow Yank Craft in Raid Over N. Viet Nam

SAIGON (UPI) — Two unidentified jets, believed to be Communist MIG21 fighters, shadowed American planes bombing targets in North Viet Nam, U.S. military spokesmen said today.

The U.S. Air Force planes also encountered "surface-to-air (SAM) missiles near Hanoi.

An Air Force F105 Thunderchief was shot down by enemy ground fire during the raids yesterday while attacking the Dien Bien Phu highway bridge about eight miles east of the historic city. No parachute was observed, and the pilot was listed as missing.

It was the first time American spokesmen have announced the possible sighting of the sophisticated, Chinese Communist-supplied MIG21s over North Viet Nam. Informal sources said, however, the swift jets have been seen before but not reported.

The mystery planes and SAM rockets were seen during missions west of Hanoi, U.S. spokesmen said. A flight of F105s spotted the jets at 14,000 feet, two miles north of Dien Bien Phu, 145 miles west of Hanoi. The two "bogies" shot up to 20,000 feet, then headed back in the direction of the Communist capital. The Air Force flight leader said he could not make out national markings on the planes but they "resembled MIG21s."

The Air Force planes attacked storage areas, highways, roads and bridges near Dien Bien Phu, scene of the French defeat which ended the Indochina War in 1954.

U.S. Navy planes ranged over the panhandle region on the southeast, hitting similar targets.

BRIGADE HIT
A battalion of U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade paratroopers was hit from four sides yesterday by hundreds of Viet Cong. The yanks called in additional troops and air and artillery and beat off the attack in four hours of heavy fighting.

The paratroopers, along with U.S. 1st Infantry Division troops and the Royal Australian Army Regiment, pushed into the jungles after the Communists had retreated.

At least 142 Viet Cong were known dead in the first battle and 133 others were killed later.

On the political front, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi today traveled from Da Nang to the politically potent city of Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon, to calm a protest movement sparked by his ouster last week as military commander of the country's five northern provinces.

By LESLIE J. NASON, E.D.
High school English teachers are trapped between increasing demands that students write better and the large numbers of students they must handle.

Students learn to improve writing by writing. Their efforts must be carefully corrected and returned promptly to the students with helpful suggestions for improvement. The process must be repeated over and over again.

If 150 pupils turn in only one paper a week and the teacher spends only 10 minutes per paper, the job takes 25 hours. This is more than the time available for correcting papers.

CORRECTION OF PAPERS

On the assumption that this process is the only available one and, consequently, that getting help from the teacher in the correction of papers will solve the problem, several districts have employed, as theme readers, retired teachers and housewives whose major in college was English.

The system works well for those students who have background or necessary skills and the desire to improve their writing ability.

High school graduates in increasing numbers do an adequate job on the writing part of the entrance requirements for many colleges.

These, of course, are not the students in mind when people complain of the inability of high school students to write. They are referring to the college-bound students who do not show a readiness for college English composition courses and are relegated to what are sometimes called "bone-head" courses.

FAIL TO PROFIT

They, along with many non-college-bound students who enter the business world directly from high school, have not profited sufficiently from their high school English instruction.

Perhaps the system itself should be questioned. Perhaps these students were not ready for high school English when they entered high school.

Should the high school English teacher now be expected to perform a miracle with these students and, in the eight or 10 minutes per week which she can devote to each, accomplish what the elementary school teacher had not done in several years?

So much difficulty with handwriting that he cannot keep his attention on what he is writing much less on sentence structure, capitalization, punctuation and spelling?

If these fundamental skills were demanded of all students before they were allowed to enter a class in high school English, the teacher would have some chance of success.

With proper prerequisites met by every student in the class, time would be available for such considerations as how information is accumulated, how ideas are developed and how materials can be organized so that thoughts can be communicated in written form.

A high school English class should be just that — composed of students ready for high school. It be sentence structure, spelling or writing.

Hole Torn in Wing

Jetliner, Duck Collide

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A jetliner with 60 passengers landed safely here yesterday after a collision with a duck tore a 12-inch hole in a wing.

The Delta Air Lines DC9, on a flight from St. Louis to Memphis, landed without incident despite the flurry of fire engines and rescue vehicles waiting at the runway.

Delta officials said the twin-engine jet was at 3,000 feet when it flew into a small flock of ducks.

Capt. David Thayer of Chicago, the pilot, said the jet was coming down when he became aware of the damage.

"I knew we had hit a bird," Thayer said, "but I didn't know where. But I knew everything was all right when we came on down."

"I'd declared no emergency and I was a little surprised to see the fire trucks."

The bird smashed into the front of the plane's right wing, midway between the tip and the fuselage.

"We sent the fire trucks out as a precautionary matter, which is usual."

Some Have Police Records, Use Dope

School Experimenting With Bright Dropouts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Classrooms begin at 10 a.m. in the Walden school for gifted high school dropouts—but nobody keeps time.

The 15 pupils sprawl across a makeshift classroom on the third floor of a Civil War era building on Washington's northwest side, on a street of seedy homes.

The pupils are wearing sandals, boots, blue jeans and sweatshirts. Some sport beards in addition to long hair.

Some have used dope. Others have police records. Most have left home and all have failed or been kicked out of high school. All are bright, attractive and highly articulate. They want to learn.

BLACK BOOTS

Enter the teacher. He's wearing black boots, black chinos, a sweatshirt and a red, white and dirty plastic motorcycle helmet.

Today's subject: a seminar in human relations. The technique: Role playing, a classroom play aimed at showing the pupils different ways of relating to others.

The teacher, William H. Jackson, has served a nine-year Navy hitch, worked as a truck driver, boiler inspector, deep sea diver and taught grammar school for four years. He also writes poetry.

His part in the classroom drama: A motorcycle messenger. A pupil is playing a role that all have experienced: Loitering on a doorstep. Another student is a passing policeman.

DRAMA UNFOLDS

The drama unfolds. The pupils clash with each other and Jackson. They get mad. They get happy. And maybe they learn something about themselves and life.

Tomorrow, Jackson may teach a seminar in poetry. And maybe the pupils will again learn something.

It's all part of the school's experimental approach to one of the nation's tragedies: the bright high school dropout.

"We're doing some pioneering here," Alex Rode, 31, the founder and headmaster of Walden School, said in an interview.

POVERTY PROGRAM

"These kids are not the kind of poor the poverty program is concerned with," explained Rode, a curly-haired, warm-eyed intellectual who once taught psychology at Georgetown University. "They're invisible because they know how to find food."

Only a few of Walden's pupils are Negroes. "This isn't a civil rights thing at all," he said. "We discourage involvement in causes, because for kids of this age it's more of an escape than anything else."

Rode left academics to start the school three years ago along with his wife, Meredith, an artist who also teaches at Washington's Corcoran Gallery School of Art. Foundation grants pay most of the bills, including the instructors' $50 weekly salary.

Other funds come from an adult education center operated at night by Rode and his staff. Classes are taught four times a week in art, literature and sociology.

ENROLLMENT FREE

For the high school dropouts, enrollment is free but limited to 15 pupils annually between ages 16 and 20. After up to two years of successful study, a high school diploma is awarded. Only a few pupils have dropped out of the dropout school.

SPECIAL REPORT

"Right now the great concern is for the Negroes, other minority groups, the poor and the culturally deprived," Rode said.

"They had identity problems, sexual problems—some began stealing cars. Several have been in mental institutions. All had some psychiatric treatment," he said.

"These were the beatnik intellectuals—the beatnik elite."

Most of Walden's pupils come from middle and upper middle-class families marred by divorce or alcoholism. "These are kids who were 'A' students in self-expression and self-understanding," said Rode, standing.

But by the time they got to mingled with gentler doses of personal counseling.

School psychologist Dr. Joseph G. Slavin, 38, is consulted frequently. He is impressed by the school's ability to redirect its pupils. "This is a useful experiment," he says. "A number of youngsters who have graduated have been able to go to college or engage in a kind of work life that you would not have been able to predict beforehand."

Results, however, aren't overly dramatic. Only some of the graduates are going to college. Others are still walking the same streets and doing the same things they did before going to Walden.

But one pupil has developed a reputation as a photographer, another is a singer, a third is an ex-hippy, that being an "A" student inhibited artist. And most are not the requisite for being a heavy doses of academics are rarely found without a thick success in America.

Walden's approach excites Prof. Harold L. Cohen of the Institute for Educational Research in Washington, who has done extensive research in juvenile delinquency and its link with poor academic performances.

While at Southern Illinois University, Cohen began an experiment involving nearly 300 pupils from the lower third of their high school classes. Selected at random, they were allowed to enroll as freshmen in the university, which normally has no room for such poor high school finishers.

Now, four years later, 52 percent of them are still in school. The study points up, says Cohen, that being an "A" student is not the requisite for being a success in America.

Star Admires Dad's Well-Timed Silence

By LORNE GREENE
Star of TV

Dad was a huge man. He wasn't unusually tall, but he was tremendously broad across the chest and shoulders. And like so many big men, he was exceptionally gentle.

He had one special quality which I have come to think of as the essence of his fatherhood. It's such a simple thing, on the surface. He knew that there is a time for silence.

When I was 15 it happened that Mother went to New York for two weeks to visit her sister, leaving Dad and me alone in the house.

The more I thought about that house, standing empty and peaceful all through the day while Dad was at the shoe shop, the more delightfully it contrasted with the restraints of school.

I took out a sheet of Mother's note paper, experimented with her signature until I was satisfied, then signed an illness excuse and began to enjoy a few days of leisure.

One morning I picked up my pile of books as usual, and left the house.

Dad always left for his shop at 8:30, but I was taking no chances; I waited until 9:30 before going home. I let myself in, glancing at my own cleverness, and slammed the front door behind me.

"Who's there?" Dad's deep voice boomed through the hall. He stepped out of the bathroom, a towel around his shoulders, and my cleverness deserted me.

"I — uh — came back for an umbrella."

NOT A CLOUD

Both of us instinctively glanced out the window. There was not a cloud in the sky.

In the immense silence proceeding from my father I went through the wretched pantomime of taking an umbrella from the closet. I was halfway out the door when he spoke.

"Aren't you forgetting your rubbers?"

GREAT TREAT

"Lorne," Dad said, "let's have lunch together today." Ordinarily this was a great treat. I tried to sound hearty as I accepted.

I knew what that lunch date was for: It was a chance for me to tell him anything that might be on my mind. But somehow when I got there the words stuck in my throat.

MAINTAINS SILENCE

Dad maintained that powerful silence of his which said so much more than words. After the meal, he said simply, "I'll walk you back to school."

In the principal's office, of course, it all came out. That principal bawled me out for half an hour, but five minutes after we left his office I couldn't have told you one thing he said.

All the while Dad simply sat

looking at me. And whereas I cannot tell you a thing the one man said, the well-timed silence of the other has haunted me ever since.

During my first semester at college I faced a decision about the future. I was enrolled in the chemical engineering course at Queen's University in Kingston, Ontario, about 100 miles from home.

I'd been intrigued by chemistry for years, but I had another love, too. I wanted to be an actor. Not professionally, perhaps, but as a hobby.

But I made a jolting discovery: being a scientist was going to take all of my time! There were lectures in the morning, labs all afternoon, and written assignments for the evening. Only people in nonlab courses had time to act in plays.

Suddenly I wanted very much to be talking this all over with Dad. I put through a phone call. "Isn't this a coincidence?" Dad's voice interrupted me. "I'll be passing right through Kingston tomorrow on my way to Toronto. Why don't I stop by the school and you can tell me more?"

Today, of course, I know he didn't have to go to Toronto any more than he had to go to the moon. He closed his shop and made that 100 mile trip because there was a boy with something on his mind who needed a good listener.

At the time I only knew that we sat all that September afternoon on the shore of Lake Ontario while I poured out my thoughts, my hopes, my dreams for the future, and that by the time I had finished I had chosen a lifetime in the theater.

What he thought about my plans, of becoming an actor, I never knew.

I was talking with a friend not long ago about Dad's gift of creative silence. My friend, Joe Reisman, is a songwriter, and suddenly he picked up a piece of paper and started jotting down some of the things I'd said. Here's what he wrote:

"You can talk to the man. He's got time. He'll understand. He's got shoulders big enough to cry on. Tell all your troubles, and take your time. He's in no hurry. He doesn't mind. It matters not how bad you've been: 'You can talk to the man.'"

Now I'd been talking about Dad. But by the time Joe had set the words to music and we'd made a record of them, the word "Man" had become capitalized, and the record was about God the Father of us all.

But that's a natural progression, when you come to think about it. Doesn't what we know of the Father in heaven, start with a father here on earth? We believe in His love because we've known human love. We believe that He listens to our prayers because another father has listened to our words.

Best — Thomas Owen, young former Marine, tells how his buddy, a quick-tempered heavy drinker and woman chaser, finally became a "real man." From the magazine Guideposts and copyright, 1964, by Guideposts Associates Inc., Carmel, N.Y. Distributed by The Register and Tribune Syndicate.

Auto Insurance Firms Pay Record in Claims

LANSING (AP)—Preliminary figures indicate automobile insurance companies paid out a record $217 million for the care of injured and repair of wrecks following traffic accidents in Michigan last year. The Michigan Insurance Information Service said this was up $16 million from the previous year and $100 million above 1958.

Area Dem Urges Nurses' Pay Hike

LANSING (AP)—Michigan is practicing false economy in paying low wages to the nurses and attendants at its state hospitals, says Rep. Robert Slingerland, D-Lake Orion.

Slingerland introduced a resolution in the House yesterday calling for a Civil Service Department study of the wage rates. They are lower than those paid at factories near the hospitals, he said.

Even a pay raise next July 1 will bring the wages to only $2.28 per hour—still far below the average in private industry, Slingerland said.

Artists Find Prison Doesn't Bar Success

CANON CITY, Colo. (UPI)—The first annual exhibit at the "Walled-In Art Shop" was a success. The 13 artists sold 48 paintings for more than $900. Others were ordered by art dealers and private buyers for $2,000 more.

Warden Wayne K. Patterson said next year's exhibit by inmate artists of the Colorado State Penitentiary will be bigger.

U.N. Due Copy of Old Treaty

Negotiated by Egypt, Hitites in 1280 B.C.

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—The United Nations will receive a copy of what is believed to be the world's oldest known peace treaty, negotiated almost 33 centuries ago.

The reproduction will be presented by the Turkish government to be hung at the U.N. headquarters because the treaty follows to a great extent the principles of the U.N. charter.

The original pact, now in Istanbul's Museum of Oriental Antiquities, was concluded about 1280 B.C., between Ramses II, pharaoh of Egypt, and King Hattusilis, ruler of the Hitites in what is now modern Turkey.

The treaty, written in Akkadian cuneiform, the international diplomatic language of that age, was found on a brownish terra cotta tablet, in Anatolia, near Bogazkoy, by the German archaeologist Hugo Winkler, about 60 years ago.

TREATY PROVISIONS

The rectangular slab of clay measures only 7 by 6 inches but it contains all provisions of the treaty. Cuneiform's wedge-shaped characters represent words by letters, similar to modern shorthand.

A Turkish artist will copy the treaty on copper. After years of enmity, the Hitites and Egyptians decided to make peace and set up what has been described as an "offensive and defensive alliance."

The treaty, in effect, recognized Egyptian dominance in Palestine and southern Phoenicia, and Hittite hegemony in Syria and northern Phoenicia — modern Turkey.

It is believed that the text, carried to Egypt, was engraved on two silver tablets — both of which presumably are lost.

The treaty includes provisions of mutual renunciation of aggression and reciprocal assistance in case of a threat or challenge directed by a third power — much like modern non-aggression and friendship pacts between states.

Watts Riot Bloomed After Rumors, Arrest

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "For two weeks we'd been hearing rumors that the Negroes were planning to run the Mexican and white businessmen out of Watts," said Police Detective G. H. Riley. "And we'd noticed that the Mexicans seemed tense, afraid."

But, Riley said Wednesday, "we couldn't do much about a rumor until it became a fact. Until Tuesday, we didn't have anything laughable enough to nip in the bud."

Tuesday, after a routine arrest near Jordan High School in Watts, center of Los Angeles' teeming, sprawling Negro district, a riot bloomed into ugly flower across an area already devastated by six days of racial violence last August.

Between 3:30 p.m., when restless high school pupils went into the streets looking for an excuse for a fight and found one in the arrest, and 8:30 p.m., when police hopefully pronounced the disturbance contained, two persons were killed, 26 were injured, 49 were arrested, many cars were overturned and burned and 19 buildings were damaged or looted.

RIOT TRIGGER

But Riley and his partner, Detective C. L. Larson, said the arrest over a rock-throwing incident, only served to trigger the riot.

The violence, brewing for weeks, was fed by rumor and was actually born in a series of shootings Monday night, they said.

Larson gave this account: A Mexican-American, about 25, on crutches — who has not yet been located — and Duane Graves, 18, a Negro, got into a fight Monday night at Bob's Liquor Store, 2066 E. 103rd St., stone's throw from the high school.

George Sanders and John Newman, both 21, both Negroes, broke up the fight and went into the store. Graves ran a block down the street.

A carload of Mexican-Americans cruised by and shotgunned Graves, wounding him in the left arm and leg, then drove past the liquor store and fired four blasts at Sanders and Newman. Sanders was wounded in the hand and throat. Newman was unhurt.

A fourth Negro, Francis Keyes, 43, ran out of the back of a telephone booth. The Mexican-Americans pursued him in their car and shot up the booth, but Keyes escaped without injury.

Later that night, Larson said, police received an anonymous tip that unidentified Negroes planned "to take care of" the liquor store's Mexican-American manager, Gilbert Yousef.

either Tuesday night or Wednesday night, and bomb the store.

DIRECTED BY TIPSTER

Officers, directed by the tipster, found two gasoline bombs hidden under some bushes directly across the street from the store, which was later looted and partially looted.

"I'd hate to say anything that would seem to pit one minority against another," said Riley, "but the persistent rumors and the quick retaliation in Monday night's incidents does seem to show an organized pattern of Negro versus Mexican hatred."

SAID SATISFACTORY

The truth, police said: Graves was released Wednesday from Los Angeles County General Hospital.

Sanders, after surgery Wednesday morning, was reported progressing satisfactorily.

The next incident, the trigger, took place at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, police said, when Thomas Lee Galloway, 21, Negro, for no known reason, threw three rocks at passing white motorists.

Robert Guy Hyder, 39, a white speech therapist at various schools in the area, received minor head cuts from a rock and flying glass.

Officers said: Galloway ran into a barber shop at 2054 E. 103rd St., jumped into a chair and told arriving officers he was there for a haircut. Found to have no money, he insisted he had already paid the barber.

KICKED, STRUGGLED

When police began to drag him out, he kicked and struggled, inflicting a slight back injury on officer Philip Scheidecker.

Police said Galloway began shouting: "Help! They're beating me up and I did nothing. Riot! Riot! Police brutality!"

From there to a nearby hospital, where Galloway was treated for minor hand abrasions, to 77th Street Police Station, where he was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon.

Galloway shouted "Riot! Riot! Police brutality!" through the police car window.

Irish Police Eye Hotheads

Alert but Expecting Quiet St. Pat's Day

DAILY 10-10;
SUNDAY 12-7
THURS., FRI.,
SAT., SUN.

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Irish police don't expect any trouble on St. Patrick's Day today but they're on the alert.

The day of Ireland's patron saint has always been a quiet affair here compared with celebrations elsewhere, especially in New York and Boston.

But nationalist extremists last week blew the top off the 134-foot Nelson monument in downtown Dublin, and the 50th anniversary of the 1916 Easter rising against England is only three weeks away.

This, and a rash of recent bombings, have police keeping an eye out for hotheads. However, authorities said they didn't expect any political trouble today.

CHURCH BELLS

The festive day dawned with church bells calling all Irishmen to religious services. There was a special service at the Church of Ireland's Anglican cathedral at Downpatrick, County Down, where some believe St. Patrick is buried.

The annual parade in Dublin is a commercial affair with advertising floats and pretty girls.

For the first time, its route down O'Connell Street was not dominated by Nelson's column. Government demolition squads have blasted the 56-foot stump that remained after the extremist blast.

The statue to Britain's most famous admiral was erected by British public subscription in 1809 to commemorate Lord Nelson's victory over the French at Trafalgar. To Irish nationalists, it was a symbol of British oppression.

Extremists also recently hurled fire bombs at Dublin's British Legion Veterans' Club and set fire to the home of the British military attaché.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army has denied responsibility for the terrorism, which is attributed to a far-out extremist group. Its name is not generally known.

These extremists feel that the government has betrayed Ireland into economic enslavement by Britain by concluding a recent trade treaty. They also want to unite the Irish Republic with the six counties of Northern Ireland, which still are part of the United Kingdom.

Coin Shortage at End, Declares Federal Reserve

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Reserve yesterday officially declared the nation's coin shortage at an end.

On Aug. 20, 1964, the Federal Reserve agreed to accept deposits of coin from financial institutions and pay the transportation costs.

"This action was taken in conjunction with all other Federal Reserve banks to help relieve the coin shortage that then prevailed," said the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

"Such practices no longer serve the purpose for which they were intended and are now being discontinued by all reserve banks."

Canada Judicial Probe May Go to Europe to Question 'Playgirl'

OTTAWA (UPI) — They were talking about other things in the House of Commons today. Gerda Munsinger was nearly off the front pages and no longer a topic of parliamentary debate.

Out of sight. But by no means out of mind.

For Gerda may yet return. Or, if she doesn't, the judicial inquiry appointed to look into her affairs may go to Europe to ask some questions.

Justice Wharfed F. Spence of the Canadian Supreme Court left open the possibility that he and his staff may travel to Europe to interview Mrs. Munsinger, the 36-year-old shapely blonde who was alleged to have been a friend of Conservatives in high offices.

The justice minister, a Liberal, alleged the improprieties in the former Tory government constituted a breach in national security.

Ruth Gordon Apprehensive Oscar Nominee Eager to Win

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD — "If someone else's name is called," says Oscar nominee Ruth Gordon, "I hope I don't stand up and make a fool of myself."

Naturally she hopes that her own name will be announced April 18 as winner of the award for best supporting actress of 1965. But she herself against disappointment.

"Above all, I hope I don't do anything embarrassing," she said, "like trying to collect the Oscar when I haven't won it."

Miss Gordon was nominated for her role as the raucous mother of Natalie Wood in "Inside Daisy Clover." Oddly, she has been nominated for an Academy Award before, but as a writer. She and husband Garson Kanin wrote several films for Spencer Tracy - Katharine Hepburn and for Judy Holliday.

"But this is the first time I have been up for an Oscar as an actress," she reported. "I would be less than honest if I didn't say I would dearly love to win."

Great Day for Irish -- of All Nationalities

NEW YORK (AP) — This is the day when the Irish in every body bubbles up in a kind of green frenzy.

By the thousands, Irish Americans across the country take to the streets this St. Patrick's Day in remembrance of the man who helped put Ireland on the map.

In New York more than 100,000 persons will parade up Fifth Avenue. The street normally is one-way southbound, but for the day the signs have been turned around.

Other St. Patrick's Day parades are being held in Boston, Chicago and New Orleans. The latter city was founded by the French, but set in it like a Gaelic enclave is the Irish channel section.

Parade reviewers Among those reviewing the New York parade are Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and former Postmaster General James A. Farley. Mayor John V. Lindsay, who turned Irish for the day, then join the others on the review stand.

Boston's parade is dedicated to House Speaker John W. McCormack, who has served in the House of Representatives for nearly 40 years.

Memorial services will be held at Dorchester Heights, where George Washington replaced the guns that forced the British to evacuate the city in 1776.

Sean Flanagan, Ireland's secretary of commerce and industry, actor Pat O'Brien and Mayor Richard J. Daley are to watch Chicago's parade. State Street's center line has been painted green for the occasion and the Chicago River has been dyed green.

CORNERED BEEF After the parade in New Orleans' Irish channel, a feast of corned beef and cabbage, green bread and green beer will be served. At the Fairgrounds race track, Francis Patrick Quinn, a native of Galway, Ireland, and 7 years old today, will present the trophy to the winner of the St. Patrick's Day handicap.

And back in New York, after the Irishmen have retired, Britain's Prince Philip files in for a three-day visit. Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, is on a tour of the United States.

Wants College Name to Have Better Image

BOSTON (AP) — Rep. Thomas J. Farrell says Quinsigamond Community College is being "treated like an unwanted child" because of its name.

Farrell won initial House approval of a bill to change the name of the college to the Community College of Worcester.

Arms Found at NY Theater

Bizarre Cache Tied to Black Nationalists

NEW YORK (AP) — A bizarre cache of arms, ranging from a slingshot to a sawed-off rifle, has been uncovered by police in a Harlem theater notable for the antiwhite sentiment of its productions.

One top police official, who declined to be identified, said an investigation was under way to determine if the cache is connected to a "secretive organization of extreme black nationalists" known as the "Pakistani Muslims."

Police said they found a sign inside the Black Arts Repertory Theater, at 109 W. 130th St., which read: "All weapons cleaned and sharpened by 6 p.m. All weapons will be inspected by Khan, the leader."

Discovery of the cache followed an attempt by two detectives to question two men as they emerged from the theater shortly before midnight Wednesday. One of the men eluded them, but was later seen going back inside.

CONVERGE ON SCENE As the detective started back toward the theater, a shot rang out. Some 50 policemen converged on the scene and managed to talk five men inside into walking out.

While they were being taken to the station house for questioning, police explored the three-story brownstone which houses the theater and came up with some surprises.

In the basement they said, was a rifle range. Among the weapons were a 30-caliber carbine with two loaded magazines, a sawed-off 22-caliber rifle, a crossbow with two darts, the slingshot and four assorted knives.

There was also a foot-long "pipe bomb," 1 1/2 inch in diameter and loaded with powder, a quantity of shotgun shells, more than an interval of 20 years before she returned as an actress in "Inside Daisy Clover" and "Lord Love a Duck."

"Now I'm ready to try my luck in films again," she said. "We're taking a house here even though I have no immediate prospects of acting jobs."

"If I get an acting job, then I have my makeup kit ready to go. If not, then keep my pencil handy. I'm going to write a movie script which I'm titling 'Call it a Fling.' All I will say about it is that it will be wild."

He added, "I don't see anything wrong with hating white people," and later it was revealed the group was staging dramas of antiwhite frustration and rage.

Jones reportedly left the group later on.

One sign discovered by police read: "All officers will be obeyed. Penalty for disobedience are (sic) death. This law was given by our fathers. It has not been enforced in 1,400 years. It will be enforced now. — The Black Arts Theater."

Two Pontiac men were hospitalized last night and one underwent surgery after they were reportedly stabbed outside a South End tavern.

Listed in fair condition at Pontiac General Hospital are Walter Robinson, 43; and Abraham Kemp, 55, both of whom gave their address as 234 Western.

Robinson was stabbed once in the back and once in the stomach, Pontiac police said, and was operated on early today.

Kemp was stabbed in the stomach and cut over the right eye.

Each was reportedly assaulted near a bar at 88 Bagley.

Police said neither victim would give information regarding the attacks.

A letter from New York underlines the words you must go to six and asks, "Can there be no doubts, no agonizing reappraisal — I'm probably being too aggressive — my partner may only have six or seven points — is there any reason to think he has more? Can there be no turning back?"

The answer to our reader is that the turning back should take place before you use you use Blackwood. You do not — repeat, do not — use Blackwood unless you are prepared to go to six with a combined total of three aces.

North's Blackwood bid represented some slight optimism on his part but one should not change from optimism to pessimism between bids and it behooved him to carry on to six.

South had several ways to play the slam. All worked, but the one he adopted avoided the need to try any finesses at all. At trick two he led a diamond to dummy's king. East took his ace and returned a spade for dummy to ruff.

South played out the ace and king of trumps and queen and four of diamonds. He ruffed the four of diamonds and when West's jack dropped he was able to discard one club on the ten of diamonds.

Judge Says Shoot, Then Ask Questions

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—A municipal judge told a policeman in his courtroom how to handle hoodlums who threaten to shoot him.

"If they go for their pockets, kill them and ask questions later," Judge Howard L. Aaron advised the arresting officer after a 17-year-old youth had threatened to kill him.

The judge also told the youth he was making a notation of the threat "so that if you're shot by a police officer no one will be able to yell police brutality."

Income Guarantee Is Near--Economist

DETROIT (AP)—A guaranteed income for citizens will exist in the United States within five years, economist and lecturer Robert Theobald predicted Wednesday.

Theobald, British-born author on automation and cybernetics, said the guaranteed income for a worker displaced by mechanical progress will be "not only social justice but good politics."

He told a news conference that society must start now to learn to change its sense of values from the concept that "life is toil" and accept another that the machine will take care of all or most work.

The U. S. Weather Bureau has 13,000 persons who serve as "cooperative weather observers."

Road Name Hits Home

CLINTON, Conn. (AP)—Thirty home owners have petitioned to change the name of their street, claiming its present name subjects them, their children and the town to ridicule.

It is called High Taxes Road.

The residents say the name always raises eyebrows and that it affects property values.

First Selectman George Kinney said the street got that name because the developer "was annoyed with the town for not sharing the cost of putting it in with him."

'Quiet Revolution' Stills Quebec Pullout Talk

By MAX HARRISON
 QUEBEC (AP) — In French Canada today talk of secession or separation is little more than a whisper, but the visitor hears much about the "quiet revolution" and the "new Quebec."

Significant changes have taken place both inside the sprawling province and in its relations with the federal government.

Quebec's premier, Jean Lesage, 53, seeks to expand the role of his province and to improve the lot of the country's five million French-speaking citizens.

He has been careful not to go too far too fast.

NO DEADLINES
 No one knows where it will end. Even Lesage declines to set deadlines. So far Canada's 95-year-old confederation has proved flexible enough to adjust to Quebec's expanding autonomy.

One result of Lesage's moderate approach has been to steal much of the thunder of the separatists — those who want Quebec to be a separate nation.

The movement still has a substantial hard core, but it is not the noisy, aggressive group that launched terrorist bombings and marred the visit of Queen Elizabeth II by demonstrations 18 months ago.

The leadership of the separatists is split by personal bickerings and by rivalries between Montreal and Quebec factions. Where they once cried for action, they now urge patience. But they haven't given up their goal of an independent Quebec.

OPPOSES SEPARATISTS
 Lesage opposes the separatists and he seems to have an overwhelming majority of the province behind him.

With a provincial election expected in May or June, political experts are predicting that Lesage's Liberal party will be returned with as many as 70 of the 95 legislative seats.

Lesage came to power in 1960 with a narrow majority, eight seats. He had vowed to give the province a dynamic new program after 15 years under the National Union party of Maurice Duplessis. In 1962 he won the mandate he wanted when he won 64 seats to 28 for the National Union, headed by Daniel Johnson.

REVOLUTION
 Lesage likes to use the word "revolution" to describe what has been happening in Quebec during the past six years. Sometimes he calls it a quiet revolution, sometimes a fast revolution.

"We are building a new society," he says.

"Quebec has developed enormously over the past few years. For a long time, the people of Quebec lived under themselves, looking backward upon a glorious past."

"Today this is no longer the case, and it will never be again. The bucolic image which people had of us, and which many still have, must be definitely abandoned. Quebec, and with it the whole of French Canada, has just entered a new era."

Lesage established a department of education headed by a Cabinet minister. He has launched a program to stress vocational and technical education. He has promised $600 million to a billion dollars for new school buildings by 1971.

Economic production has grown during his administration and Quebec is rapidly developing new industries and trade. More than 2,800 new businesses have been established in five years. This is one part of Canada where U.S. capital is eagerly sought.

BROUGHT IN LINE
 Quebec's social welfare program has been brought more in line with the rest of Canada. This will be supplemented by a comprehensive medical care program no later than 1967.

Few quarrel with these achievements. Other elements in Lesage's program have caused uneasiness in Ottawa or provoked anxiety in the English-speaking community.

SPECIAL REPORT

One development which some considered an encroachment on federal jurisdiction was the establishment of Quebec "diplomatic" missions in Paris, London and New York. The three bureaus, working independently of the federal government, missions in the same countries push Quebec's cultural and economic interests.

Quebec has its own agreement with France for an exchange of students, teachers and researchers.

MORE AUTONOMY
 Even more irritating to English Canada is a practice under which the federal government permits the provinces to "opt out" of certain joint federal-provincial programs. All provinces have this privilege of not taking part in joint programs, but it was initiated mainly to satisfy Quebec's demands for more autonomy.

Twelve federal-provincial programs permit opting out. Quebec stays out of eight. This means it administers such programs as hospitalization, old-age assistance and health grants. Federal grants pay part of the costs.

"We want to grow in a manner which suits us," Lesage says. "We refuse to accept that ways of thinking and living be imposed upon us. We object to courses of action which do not take our own priority needs into account."

Quebec's labor minister, Carrier Fortin, touched off a controversy by declaring Quebec could not take part in a plan for national manpower mobility. He said it would drain skilled labor from the province.

DISCRIMINATION
 Both the Montreal Gazette and the Montreal Star, along with English-language papers in other parts of Canada, contend that some of Lesage's policies discriminate against Quebec's English-speaking minority.

There were widespread cries of discrimination when the provincial government announced its annual grants to higher education. The grant to English-speaking McGill University turned out to be much less than grants given smaller French-speaking universities.

The government denied any discrimination was involved, but Raymond Robice, president of French Canada's Junior Chamber of Commerce, took a so-what attitude, saying that a majority of McGill's graduates leave the province anyway. "Why should we pay to educate the English-speaking students?" he asked.

'ARROGANT, IGNORANT'
 Quebec's minister of welfare, Rene Levesque, has attacked the English-speaking community in Montreal as "arrogant and ignorant." He said they had better get out of their "Rhodesian-like frame of mind while there is still time."

Speaking at a Liberal party rally in Montreal, businessman Lyon W. Faucher expressed concern, saying:

"English-speaking people are beginning to be doubtful if there is a role for them in the 'quiet revolution,'" he said.

"There are many quiet revolutions going on in our country today, and in this new and wonderful Quebec there is a question whether any minority group will still be there to enjoy it."

Rise Continues

Demand for Rails Aids Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Demand for rails and selected issues kept the stock market a little higher early this afternoon in dull trading.

The rise was a continuation of yesterday's technical rally which followed two sessions of very sharp losses.

Rails were responding to an encouraging statement from the Interstate Commerce Commission about the rail merger situation. They rebounded from steep declines taken recently when optimism about mergers and other money-saving decisions began to drag.

An irregularly higher trend was apparent among airlines, electrical equipments, coppers, motors and steels, but more losses appeared as the session wore on.

A 2-point loss by du Pont dampened the list as trading went into the afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.0, or 341.9 from 340.9.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.23 at 917.31.

Soviets Eye French Ties

Treaty of Alliance Is Up to De Gaulle

PARIS (AP)—Soviet Ambassador Valerian Zorin said today Moscow is ready to conclude a treaty of alliance or nonaggression with France at any time such a treaty is acceptable to President Charles de Gaulle.

Such a treaty would bring France closer than ever to the Soviet Union and would further strain ties between de Gaulle and his NATO allies.

Zorin said the Soviet Union is perfectly ready to conclude such an alliance during de Gaulle's trip to the Soviet Union in June if the French president is willing.

GM Leads in Profits

Which Firm Biggest?

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK—Corporations are flooding the mails with annual reports these days. And their legions of owners can indulge in one of America's most satisfying pastimes—deciding who's the biggest.

"It goes without saying that we shall support everything which, in this respect, is acceptable to France."

Zorin also used the question-and-answer period to pledge that the Warsaw pact nations would either reduce their military forces or even abolish them if a corresponding move was undertaken by the NATO allies in western Europe.

"We consider our Warsaw organization as a defense system against what we call the 'aggressive NATO system,'" he said. "It is therefore logical that if NATO is liquidated, there will be no more Warsaw organization."

Chase Manhattan, New York, was fifth with $15,331,407,583, and First National City Bank, New York, sixth with $13,976,787,000.

Still another measure of bigness is the total of sales or revenues. Here GM is the champ, with sales of $30,733,982,285 in 1965. Jersey Standard reports $12,725,000 in revenues, and the phone company $11,661,788,000.

Sears, Roebuck's latest figures are around $7 billion, while the A&P grocery chain tops $3 billion.

Then there's the stockholders. AT&T's 2,674,141 at the last published tally, makes it the world's biggest. GM has 1,311,278 now and Jersey Standard around 710,000.

As for the biggest employer, how about Uncle Sam? His payroll, civilian and military, make most private enterprises look like also-rans.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR
Q: "We are an elderly couple in our 70s, living on interest from savings accounts and Social Security. We also have $12,000 in Government and corporation bonds. Our investments offer no protection against inflation as we are considering selling the bonds and buying a diversified list of stocks. I feel that such an investment will do our children and grandchildren more good. Please comment on this and the stocks I intend to buy." S. H.

A) As your savings bank accounts and bond holdings are indeed vulnerable to future inflation, your proposal to switch some funds from bonds to stocks is a good one, provided you realize that you incur more risk.

I approve your choices of American Telephone; Boston Edison; Gulf Oil; Sterling Drug; First National Bank of Boston; Gillette and Sears, Roebuck. I suggest Scott Paper; Chubb, Peabody and General Motors rather than the other three you name.

New Financing on AMC Credit

DETROIT (AP)—American Motors confirmed today that negotiations are nearing completion for a new $75 million revolving credit agreement with 24 banks.

The agreement would replace one under which American Motors borrowed $50 million last summer. Half of that amount has been repaid already.

AMC board chairman Richard E. Cross and president Roy Abernethy said of the new financing:

"This increase in the line of credit open to American Motors reflects the confidence of lending agencies in the corporation's strength and capacity to realize its full potential in the growing automobile and appliances industries."

Chase Manhattan Bank of New York heads the banking group underwriting the new agreement.

Financial circles said the new $75 million credit is short-term financing which means it must be repaid in a year. These were the same conditions under which AMC got the $50 million capital last year.

The board of directors at Higbee Manufacturing Co. in Rochester have declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share.

The dividend will be paid May 15 to stockholders of record April 15 on the $1 common stock.

Association president Glenn Lake cited rising farm costs and the difficulty of getting farm help as one of the causes.

Dairy industry spokesmen said earlier price rises were expected for ice cream, milk and other milk products. A spokesman for the Food Industry Committee said retail ice cream prices were expected to go up about 10 cents a half gallon. He blamed a growing milk shortage.

Wholesale Price of Drinking Milk to Go Up April 1

DETROIT (AP)—The Michigan Milk Producers Association today announced the wholesale price of drinking milk sold to dairies will go up effective April 1.

The association said the price will go up from $5.10 hundredweight (46% quarts) to $5.40 in southeastern Michigan. Other parts of the state where the price is different will experience similar increases, the association said.

Association president Glenn Lake cited rising farm costs and the difficulty of getting farm help as one of the causes.

East Germans Release Yank After His 17 Months in Prison

BERLIN (AP) — John Van Altena Jr., 21, an American released by the East Germans after serving 17 months of an "indefinite good shape" today.

Van Altena of Milton Junction, Wis., was convicted in January 1965 of trying to smuggle an East German woman and her child through the Berlin wall in the trunk of his car. He was arrested in October 1964 and released at the wall Wednesday.

"The East Germans claimed they caught him in the act," his mother, Mrs. John Van Altena, said in Milton Junction. "In his letters to us, he never denied it but he said not to believe everything we heard."

She said her son went to Germany about six months before his arrest to work for West Germany's Lufthansa Airline.

An informed source in Berlin said Van Altena wanted to get back home. He was taken to an undisclosed location in West Berlin to rest, the source said.

Van Altena's parents said they were told their son had been taken to a U.S. Army hospital in West Germany for a physical examination.

His father, 48, a dairy farmer, said John's release had been arranged by lawyers Wolfgang Vogel of East Berlin, Jürgen Spang of West Berlin and Riecy New of Washington, D.C. Vogel was involved in the exchange of Soviet spy Col. Rudolf Abel for captured U.S. pilot Francis Gary Powers in Berlin in 1962.

The Van Altenas said the State Department told them on Monday that the release was pending but asked them to keep it secret in case a hitch developed.

"I was notified by telephone yesterday that he had been freed," Van Altena said. "It was a great relief."

Businessmen Protest Proposal

By Esther Van Wagner Tufty
WASHINGTON — Michigan congressional members are getting considerable mail from small business men protesting HR 8282 which liberalize the eligibility requirements for unemployment compensation payments.

Republican House Leader Gerald Ford of Grand Rapids calls the proposal "unreasonable" and expects the ways and means committee to make substantial changes.

Some 60 Michigan farmers are here this week on a legislative air tour sponsored annually by Farm Bureau women. They are buttonholing Michigan senators and congressmen discussing such issues as proposed food for freedom.

From Oakland County: Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Cogges (South Lyon); Mrs. Irene Volz (Highland); Mr. and Mrs. John Lowe (Holly); Wilma Doeblner (Clarkston); Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Helmholdt (Holly) and Mrs. William Scramlin (Holly).

Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., annoyed at the stories that consumers do not want his labeling and packaging bill enacted, has told the Senate about the long list of those who support truth-in-packaging.

He topped the list with 12 organizations representing 42 million members, which is significant as there are 57 million households in the United States.

Twelve senators are cosponsors. The Michigan Democrat notes that the stories are on the increase now that the Senate commerce committee is about to consider the proposal.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C. and Congressman Gerald Ford, R-Grand Rapids, will receive the 1966 George Washington awards of the American Good Government Society at their 14th annual dinner May 1 in honor of the First President's "enduring contribution to government in this country."

National Science Foundation has announced award of 1,998 graduate fellowships in the sciences, mathematics and engineering for the academic year 1966-67.

NSF policy is to encourage outstanding students to obtain advanced graduate training in the sciences on a full-time basis. Michigan received 34.

Included was Joseph F. Plante of Bloomfield Hills to Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and Martin C. Weirich of Birmingham, to continue at University of Michigan. Both specializing in mathematics and general science and have been students at the University of Michigan.

Appeal Is Confining

Plans Are Unveiled by Pontiac

Architectural plans and final details for the proposed 300,000 square-foot Pontiac Motor Division administration building were made public today.

The five-story structure will face to the south and will be located near the intersection of Joslyn and Kennett.

Groundbreaking for the structure is scheduled this fall and completion in early 1968.

Designed to accommodate nearly 1,200 employees, the building will house the division's main administrative office, the accounting and data processing departments, sales department, public relations department and the purchasing and production control departments.

The new building will be four times larger than the 45-year-old present administration building on Oakland which will be used for storage and warehousing when the new unit is completed.

Included in the new structure will be a cafeteria facility to serve both administration building and product engineering building employees.

NEW HEADQUARTERS—Pontiac Motor Division General Manager John J. DeLoe sits behind a model of the division's proposed new five-story administration building. The new structure will face Kennett, near Joslyn, and will contain 300,000 square feet of office space. Ground will be broken this fall and it is scheduled for completion early in 1968.

AAA Is Willing to Include Noncancellation Clauses

LANSING (AP) — The Automobile Club of Michigan — the state's largest auto insurer — says it is willing to insert noncancellation guarantees in its $15,000 insurance policies.

The statement was made to the House Insurance Committee yesterday by Paul Erickson, general manager of the Detroit Automobile Interinsurance Exchange and Motor State Insurance Co., the insurance affiliates of the AAA.

Erickson testified against a bill that would make noncancellation clauses mandatory, but told the committee the club would be willing to include such clauses — subject to the limitations spelled out in the bill, and with a longer grace period between the time the policy was written and the date the guarantee went into effect.

- The limitations in the bill include:
- A finding that the insured represents an unacceptable risk to the firm;
 - A deliberate withholding of material information on his record by the insured;

• A record, traffic, criminal or accident, or indication of a "physical, mental or other condition which considered as a whole is such his operation of a motor vehicle would endanger the public safety."

• Habitual excessive use of alcohol and habitual use of narcotics "which can be medically substantiated."

• Conviction or forfeiture of bail within the preceding 36 months for "criminal negligence resulting in death, homicide or assault arising out of the operation of a vehicle, knowingly leaving the scene of an accident without stopping to report, theft or unlawful taking of a vehicle."

The two insurance firms canceled only about 2 percent of their policies in 1965, Erickson said.

Prince Philip in Hot Water Over Coffee

CHICAGO (UPI) — Britain's Prince Philip stirred a tempest in a coffee cup yesterday.

Touring the United States, the prince committed his first faux pas when he picked up a packet of British tea at Chicago's Marshall Field and Co. department store and asked:

"You can actually buy this stuff here? Is there any coffee here? How anybody in the United States can complain about British coffee after the stuff I've had here beats me."

Today, opposition was brewing in the kitchens of some of the nation's finest hotels.

"I don't know why he would dislike our coffee," exclaimed assistant chef Edgar Provencar at Miami's Fontainebleau Hotel, which provided lodging and meals for the prince. "We grind our own coffee beans right here."

FOUR CUPS
At the Beverly Hills Hotel in California, banquet manager Steve Martin boasted of his coffee and said Prince Philip downed four cups at a single sitting earlier this week.

A spokesman for the Drake Hotel in Chicago declared "we use the very best. He (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

LBJ, Top Aides Will Confer on NATO Tonight

President Is Reported Considering Sending Letter to De Gaulle

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson meets with top State and Defense Department advisers tonight on the crisis in the western alliance over President Charles de Gaulle's moves to pull France out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The scheduled meeting will be the second in two days.

There was speculation that the President was considering sending a new message to de Gaulle setting forth more explicitly than in a previous letter U.S. reaction to the French breakaway program.

Summoned to the early evening session were Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Undersecretary George W. Ball, Deputy Defense Secretary Cyrus R. Vance, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, ambassador to France Charles E. Bohlen and Assistant Secretary of State John M. Leedy.

Rusk, Acheson and Bohlen were among yesterday's participants.

GETTING REPORT
One official said that one reason for the meetings at this time is that Johnson is getting a report from Bohlen on French policy and attitudes. The envoy returned from Paris last weekend.

Officials said the major lines of U.S. policy in the crisis are clear: The United States is confident that NATO will remain as a 14-nation defense system under the Atlantic alliance regardless of de Gaulle's withdrawal.

Johnson is represented as having made clear that while the U.S. position on NATO itself must be absolutely firm, he does not want any avoidable difficulties with de Gaulle.

Two specific issues which are beginning to take form in policy discussions here concern the legality of de Gaulle's projected action and his responsibility for paying the cost for upsetting present NATO arrangements.

Soviets Study Recovery Partial Triumph

May Soon OK Record Manned Space Flight

MOSCOW (UPI) — Scientists today studied Russia's two "guinea pig" space dogs before giving the go-ahead for a new Soviet space spectacular involving two or more cosmonauts and an attempt to set a three-week endurance record in space.

The dogs, Blackie and Breeze, returned yesterday from a 23-day whirl in space and were immediately subjected to a battery of tests to follow up data received while they were in orbit.

The Soviets indicated that only after a final evaluation of all the information would a final okay be given for the new manned Soviet space effort — the first in a full year.

"The main materials require special processing after which the final conclusions about the state of the animals and inferences about the plans for future studies will be drawn," the official Tass News Agency said.

The dogs came through in "good condition," Tass announced. But authorities admitted some minor problems with heart rhythm and initial adjustment to weightlessness.

HURDLE PASSED

But the chief hurdle — coping with the dangerous Van Allen radiation belts more than 500 miles out from earth — appeared to have been negotiated, according to the Tass announcement.

The systems for withstanding radiation worked well, the Kremlin said.

Whether the health difficulties could pose any major problems or were merely small snags was not disclosed.

However, the success of the dogs' space venture was considered an essential step in the race to the moon.

NEAR FUTURE

The Russians have not said when the new manned flight will take place, but indications here were that no serious obstacles had been uncovered as a result of the canine flight and that the manned venture will take place in the near future.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — "Anytime you can put that spacecraft down about 500 miles off the coast of China and have an aircraft there to see it on the chute, I don't see how we could do much better."

Christopher C. Kraft, assistant director for flight operations of the Manned Spacecraft Center, spoke of this partial triumph yesterday despite the failure of Gemini 8 to carry out its full complex mission.

The quick recovery early today of Astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, a civilian, and David R. Scott, an Air Force major, from an unexpected Pacific landing gave Department of Defense and NASA officials reason for pride.

The destroyer Leonard F. Mason and an old-fashioned propeller aircraft were the key vehicles in spotting the capsule and pulling the astronauts from the ocean.

As Armstrong and Scott began their planned three-day Agena-docking mission in perfect fashion yesterday morning, the carrier Boxer, a dozen helicopters and assorted other ships and aircraft were on station in the Atlantic off the U.S. East Coast ready for Saturday morning's recovery — hopefully by live telecast.

Then came trouble aloft, and mission control ordered an emergency landing.

But where could they land? What ships and planes were on hand?

NASA and defense officials picked target area 7-3 — about 500 miles east of Okinawa and south of Japan. It was the third of four primary landing areas around the world.

Only four ships were assigned to recovery forces in the entire Pacific. As the closest, the Mason headed toward the planned landing spot.

PLANE ON SCENE

A C-54 plane was on the scene by the time the capsule floated earthward beneath its parachute.

An amphibious plane arrived shortly after and hovered above. It was capable of landing on the sea for a pickup — but (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Pair Is Recovered Following Emergency Landing in the Pacific

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Gemini 8 astronauts rode a destroyer toward Okinawa today while space officials dug into the mystery of the violent mishap that brought their mission to a hair-raising end in the waters of the Pacific.

The destroyer Leonard F. Mason, which picked Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott out of the water after the first emergency landing in U.S. space history, was scheduled to put them ashore tonight at Naha.

Both were reported to have come safely through the dangerous reentry which abruptly terminated their scheduled three-day flight 10 hours, 42 minutes after the blastoff.

At a morning news conference at Houston, Tex., overnight flight director Gene Kranz said it will be some time before officials can say what caused Gemini to back in space like a frightened stallion.

The trouble which sent the spacecraft into a spin happened when there was no voice or telemetry communication between earth and the spacecraft.

The troubles the astronauts experienced apparently were so dangerous that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration refused to let newsmen hear tape recordings of their voices during the critical period (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

GOOD NEWS — Three leaders of the St. Joseph Building Fund drive scan latest figures that reveal the campaign is now $725,000 from the $3.25-million goal. They are (from left) Don B. Whitfield, E. M. Estes, and Robert R. Eldred. Estes is general chairman, and Whitfield and Eldred are co-chairmen of the public drive, which got under way with a dinner for volunteers in Pontiac last night.

Public Drive Launched

The St. Joseph Mercy Hospital building fund has moved within $725,000 of its goal, volunteer workers learned last night as the — public — phase of the campaign began.

The announcement was made by the chairman of the $3.25 million drive, E. M. Estes, a General Motors vice president and general manager of the Chevrolet Division.

Nearly 400 volunteers gathered at the Pontiac Elks Club to receive final instructions and hear a progress report on the campaign.

Accepting the challenge for the Birmingham-Bloomfield area was Don B. Whitfield, a Birmingham realtor, while Robert R. Eldred, executive vice president of Community National Bank, accepted for the Pontiac area. They are co-chairmen of the public campaign.

An official tabulation of the fund to date revealed that the memorial gifts committee under the co-leadership of Ernest A. Jones and John W. Fitzgerald has accounted for $608,597.

Robert M. Critchfield's corporation committee raised $667,900, while the physicians' committee, headed by Dr. Eugene J. Kette, reported $349,490.

Hospital employees have contributed $72,361, about $10,000 more than the goal they set, according to Ralph W. Lownds, personnel director and chairman of the drive.

Frank G. Andreoli of the Community National Bank announced that bank employees had raised $47,300.

When combined with the share pledged by the General Motors Corp. from its matching gifts, the fund stands at $2,302,597.

Presuming that the balance of the GM challenge will be met, the public campaign must account for $724,013 to achieve the minimum goal, said Estes.

Area School Builder Has 'In-Tents' Tactic

By PAT McCARTY

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP

—Ladees and gentlemen!

The Farmington School System is proud to present Fairview Elementary School, constructed right here under the Big Top — in the dead of winter, despite near-blizzard weather and the adversity of subzero temperatures.

Roll back the flaps, boys!

And there it stands — the framework of a building which next fall will house some 450 youngsters.

The 14-classroom unit is being built on a site at 32300 Rockridge, south of 14 Mile between Inkster and Middle Belt.

Now up are the walls and the steel roof beams.

MAN'S INGENUITY

The construction is the product of one man's ingenuity, an idea which made light of normal winter building woes to give Farmington School District its 17th elementary unit on schedule.

General contractor Carl W. Luoma, who devised the plan to erect a school under circus tents, figures he's now in the clear.

"Compared to all the other projects in the area, we're ahead about five months," he said.

Thus was solved the perennial problem of winter layoffs and construction delays because of bad weather.

With oil heaters keeping temperatures in the 50s and 60s, Luoma's employees were working in "shirt-sleeve weather," he said.

Because of the tents, Luoma was able to keep 20 laborers busy, providing work for men who ordinarily would be drawing unemployment checks during the winter.

"We lost only one and a half days," he said. "That was because it was too cold to relocate a tent."

Cost of renting each tent ran about $30 a day, but Luoma had figured that in his bid, which nevertheless was the lowest submitted.

Schools Supt. Gerald V. Harrison gave high praise to Luoma for his unique idea.

"This is one of the best construction gimmicks I've seen," Harrison said. "Because of his foresightedness, he is far ahead of where our previous contractors have been at this time of the year."

The prince's criticism brought at least one rebuttal from a patriotic American coffee-drinker at Billy Goat Saloon in Chicago.

"How can you expect a Britishman of Greek ancestry to know good coffee when he drinks it?"

the astronauts chose to wait for the Mason.

They landed at 10:23 p.m. EST and were aboard the destroyer at 1:30 a.m. EST — nearly 14 hours after blast-off — and headed for Naha, Okinawa, at a somewhat slower pace than the 17,500 miles an hour they made in their six and a half spins around the world.

"They came down probably right on the landing point we had chosen as a target," Kraft said.

Were rescue forces adequate? "I think they were adequate," said Maj. Gen. V. G. Huston, deputy Department of Defense manager. "They actually operated just like we planned and simulated."

Sheriff's Dept. Is Unionized

Nonsupervisors Vote for AFSCME 81-21

Nonsupervisory personnel of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department voted overwhelmingly yesterday to establish the American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees (AFSCME) as bargaining agent.

Final returns in the election conducted by officials of the State Labor Mediation Board showed 81 votes favoring the union and 21 opposed.

State labor board officials who tallied the votes said the count would be officially certified within five days.

In addition, 10 ballots cast were challenged by the county as representing supervisory personnel.

Generally, persons with the authority to "hire and fire" or advise on hiring and firing are not covered by provisions of the state statute authorizing collective bargaining by public employees.

3 EXCEPTIONS

In petitions for recognition, the AFSCME had included all sheriff's department personnel with the exception of the sheriff, Undersheriff Donald M. Francis, and Capt. Leo R. Hazen.

A total of 118 deputies, detectives, turnkeys, clerks and other personnel were eligible to cast ballots.

The vote makes the sheriff's department the second group of county employees to affiliate with a union.

Last year, employees of the Oakland County Road Commission also voted for representation by the AFSCME.

NOW PENDING

Now pending are contract negotiations between the county and the union regarding salaries, hours, and working conditions of sheriff's department employees.

Under Public Act 379 (the Hutchinson Act), a formal contract between the two groups is required by July 1, the beginning of the fiscal year.

Yesterday's election was the results of a request for recognition first carried to Sheriff Frank W. Irons by the AFSCME Feb. 3.

At that time Irons referred the union petition to the state board, which confirmed a minimum 30 per cent of employee support for the AFSCME and set an election date.

Kahn, 25825 W. 14 Mile, Franklin, attended Purdue University and the University of Detroit. A member of Albert Kahn Associates Architects and Engineers Inc., he is secretary of the Detroit chapter, Michigan Society of Professional Engineers.

The couple will head a fund committee selected from the school's advisory board, staff, parents, and alumni.

Connolly, 4347 Karen, will visit lighting research centers in Germany and Holland in addition to participating in the conference.

The conference, first of its kind in Europe, will feature discussions on the relationship of drivers' vision and roadway illumination and how they affect highway safety.

Orchestra Crisis Hits Meadow Brook

It is unthinkable that the superb concert shell at Meadow Brook may this summer be muted because of a contract hassle between the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and the musicians. But there is grave possibility that the Meadow Brook Music Festival, now looking toward its third season, will suffer such a setback.

The management of the Detroit Symphony, in a replay of contract negotiations of three years ago, has announced cancellation not only of the orchestra's Detroit programs but for its mid-year participation in Meadow Brook's musical education and concert program.

Since its inception, Meadow Brook has been linked with the Detroit Symphony, and in the present impasse between management and artists finds itself in the unenviable role of helpless bystander.

Should the orchestra indeed be unavailable to fill this year's Meadow Brook engagement it is questionable whether at this late date other arrangements could be made.

It is to be hoped, of course, that the issues that threaten to deprive our area of one of its top cultural aggregations will be resolved and commitments fulfilled.

But from the standpoint of future security, it might be wise for Meadow Brook to give thought to alternative orchestras. Its potential is too great to be at the mercy of the rigidity that periodically marks contract negotiations affecting the Detroit Symphony.

The World Salutes the Spirit of St. Patrick

St. Patrick's Day, likely the most ancient of our civilization's annual celebrations, has been observed in America since the founding of the Union. Uniquely, it is the date of the death of Ireland's patron saint that we observe because his birth date is unknown.

That it is given such significance in this Country is eminently fitting, since 10 of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and 35 per cent of the Revolutionary Army were sons of Erin. Indeed General WASHINGTON gave top recognition to the first American Irish society by becoming a member of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

As for the revered Saint, there is little about his youth that is not shrouded in uncertainty. Generally believed to have been born in Great Britain — enough to cause any Irishman extreme anguish — his early life was nomadic. Eventually he was consecrated a bishop in France, and in 432 set foot upon the Emerald Isle.

Thereafter his life was dedicated to the dissemination of Christianity throughout his adopted land. For 28 years the apostle was ever on the move, establishing churches, ordaining priests, consecrating bishops. Whether or not he rid Ireland of snakes, as legend has it, we leave to the judgment of every Irishman.

St. Patrick lived to the ripe old age of 106 and died in the year 493. His place in the pantheon of ecclesiastics is secure, as is evidenced by the worldwide commemoration of his spirit.

U.S. Viet Nam Troops 'Taken' by Customs

U. S. soldiers in Viet Nam are wrathy over U.S. customs regulations.

Travelers can only send home gifts to the amount of $10 tax free. Stupidity applies the same limit to our overseas soldiers. A congressional bill, however, would raise the exemption for

Army personnel in combat zones to $50.

What a concession! Aren't we noble!

The bill—or a more worthy one—deserves speedy passage and immediate enactment. Let's hope someone, somewhere, doesn't work out a "serious objection."

Red China Leaders Reactionary

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON—The Red Chinese leadership, old now and inflexibly set in its ways, makes noises like a revolutionary force but has become a reactionary one. It has happened before in this century.

In the Soviet Union, Stalin, once he took charge, became a reactionary, murderous force, as his successors admitted later. The Russian people may have improved a bit economically under him, but freedom became a joke and terror a way of life.

Because he remained inflexible in his hostility and ambitions, the Western world has his containment policy which held him tight.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., figures the average age of the present Chinese leaders is 68. Together in the 1920s and 1930s, they dreamed of their revolution and take-over and made both a reality in 1949.

They made a true revolution in their homeland and for millions of their poor and hungry countrymen it was probably good. But, like Stalin, they gradually became a menace to the world, and certainly to all of Asia.

despite any hopes of American Chinese scholars or the Johnson administration.

And outside its borders, this leadership has been inept. In its zeal to spread communism outside China, it has made one mess after another. It can't even get along with other Communist states, much less Western ones.

It split with the Soviet Union and split with and antagonized Fidel Castro's Cuba.

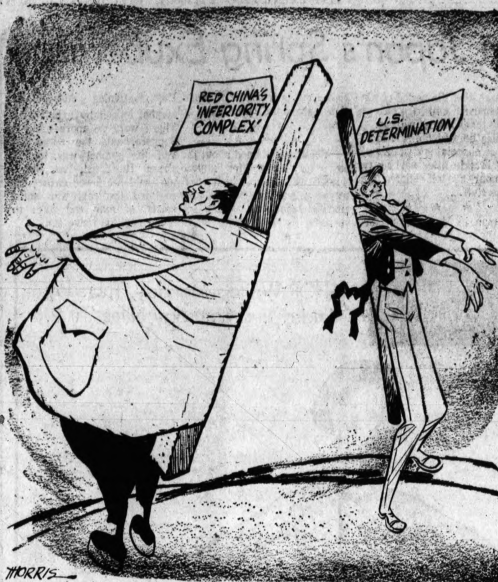

In recent years, Indonesia looked lost to communism under President Sukarno. But last fall when the Indonesian Reds tried revolt, the army crushed them and, reportedly, slaughtered thousands. Now the army has stripped Sukarno of much of his power.

RED CHINA REVERSE
The recent overthrow of Ghana's Kwame Nkrumah was considered here a reverse for Red China. The Communist-backed war in Viet Nam resulted in a massive American military buildup in Southeast Asia.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, over the past weekend, indicated what may be a new Johnson administration policy toward Red China.

While China must be contained, he said, "we must take every opportunity to show our friendship for the Chinese people" who should not be isolated from the "family of mankind."

The Red Chinese leaders gave a quick and predictable reaction, predictable because they never seem capable of anything but the same old frozen reaction, by calling Humphrey's remarks "a kiss of Judas" that must "disgust the Chinese people."

Someone, Sometime Will Have To Unbend!

De Gaulle Stock Falling in Bonn

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN, Germany (U—Charles de Gaulle's stock is falling again in West Germany because he apparently wants France to do here just what he wants to stop the United States from doing in France.

He is taking steps to put French forces in Germany fully under his own command.

There are 60,000 to 70,000 French troops in West Germany, at least on paper. The United States has 25,000 in France.

The West Germans do not complain about this situation. Yet in some ways they are even more sensitive about national sovereignty than de Gaulle.

Any proposal that looks like a lowering of their status gets a most unfriendly reception in Bonn.

So the presence of foreign troops is all right with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's government as long as they are under a unified Atlantic command, as are West Germany's own 400,000 men.

What the West Germans don't like is the idea of returning to anything like the situation right after World War II, when foreign troops occupying German territory were the supreme authority in the land.

This could occur under present treaties if an emergency arose and the American, British and French commanders decided their troops were threatened — say by war or rioting.

Erhard's government has been trying hard to eliminate this possibility but has run into domestic political difficulties.

PROSPECT ARISES

Now the prospect arises that the French troops will revert to purely French command even without an emergency.

De Gaulle probably is ready to negotiate some kind of joint command directly with Erhard. But Erhard wrote him last week that all these matters concern the alliance as a whole and need to be negotiated with all 15 members. Naturally these include the United States.

De Gaulle has made it plain that he would like a European defense system built around his own nuclear force and allied only loosely with the United States.

There has been much talk of a political and defense organization among the countries of the Common Market: France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium,

Holland and Luxembourg. So far it has come to nothing.

None of the other governments, and particularly not the West German, is interested in a defense system designed to drive the United States out of Europe and to risk losing the protection of the American nuclear umbrella.

De Gaulle's plan to resume full control over French troops in Germany may be designed as pressure on the West Germans to change their minds. A Gaullist group active in West German politics wants to do just that.

Its leaders are ex-Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his former defense minister, Franz Josef Strauss. They belong to Erhard's Christian Democratic party but are at odds with him and Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder.

Erhard and Schroeder now have the problem of how to keep the French troops in Germany, give up as little national sovereignty as possible and at the same time avoid antagonizing the United States by making a special deal with de Gaulle.

Romney-Javits Alliance Firming Up for '68 Race

If they carry the day they will be the first combination of Mormon and Hebrew ever to enter the presidential sweepstakes.

They plan to confer this week in Lansing.

Last Saturday evening presidential assistants Bill D. Moyers and Bob Fleming were preparing to depart from the White House after a long day's work.

Fleming asked the President if he could think of any other place that had to be done, because if that was all, Bob said, he would have to get home to climb into his white tie and tails for the Gridiron dinner. Moyers said he had to do the same thing.

As he was leaving, Fleming asked the President what his plans were for the evening.

"I have none," the leader of the free world said with a shrug. Moyers said then why don't you go to the dinner? You know how much they'd want you there.

"Nothing TO SAY?" "Oh, I haven't anything to say to those fellows tonight," the President said.

Moyers and Fleming left and when they were out of earshot of the President Moyers said to Fleming, "Make some notes on your way home, as I'm going to do, call me when you get there and we'll put something together for him."

It worked. To the astonishment of the hotel's security guard the President strolled in near the end of the white-tie-and-tail dinner in an ordinary business suit.

'No Programs in Dance Planned for OEO Funds'

In response to the allegation that a teacher from Pontiac schools was hired at a $200 weekly salary to teach modern dancing this summer as part of the anti-poverty program at Bagley Elementary School, there are no programs in dance funded under the Economic Opportunity program at Bagley or any other school.

There are no plans for a summer dance program. The programs presently being operated with OEO funds at Bagley include: supervised study programs, counseling and remedial reading.

Teachers in the anti-poverty program in Pontiac are paid at $5 per hour of actual teaching time. There is no compensation for their preparation or grading time. When the funds from last year's appropriation ran out, the teachers agreed to work without pay in order to keep the program in existence.

Reader Discusses Insurance Practices

Legislature should pass a law to prevent insurance companies from digging into driving records. These companies are deliberately canceling drivers' insurance and offering to sell them risk insurance which costs hundreds of dollars. It's practically blackmail. How do they get away with it? I can understand them cracking down on reckless drivers or drunken ones, but not for minor ticks. Is justice?

'Obscene Literature Is Problem to Nation'

In answer to letters asking what can be done about obscene literature, we urge you to write President Johnson and ask him to help rid our Nation of this cause of the five major teen-age crimes. Eighty per cent of this literature is sold to teen-agers—the leaders of tomorrow.

Questions Need for Federal Office Building

Congratulations on your endorsement of a sound Federal fiscal policy, as outlined in your March 10 editorial. It is important that "we draw a line between what the country stands in need of and what it can afford." No one questions the appeal of the recently announced decision to construct a large new Federal office building here in Pontiac. But do we really need it?

In the name of fiscal responsibility, should we not defer this luxury at least until the day when it can be included as part of a balanced budget?

AMOS ANON

(Editor's Note: Perhaps, but if the Federal Government is allocating money for such projects, Pontiac might as well get its fair share, rather than having it spent someplace else.)

Student Demonstrations Succeed

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) The strange effectiveness of student demonstrations in Asia and Latin America was shown again in the army "take-over" in Indonesia.

Indications are the Indonesian Army had refused to stand up against Sukarno's pro-Red moves, even though the Communists were blackened nationally for their part in the abortive revolt of October 1965.

When Sukarno recently strengthened the pro-Peking group in his cabinet, the army unhesitatingly went along.

For while, the army even helped Sukarno put down student anti-Communist demonstrations.

But the students and other youths kept on demonstrating. This persistence apparently gave indecisive army leaders the determination to move. Sukarno out and go on with the Communist purges.

If history elsewhere is a precedent, the Indonesian student youth groups, having tasted this success, will try their powers again in the future.

Students thus have emerged as a power in Indonesian politics.

When Sukarno moves for a comeback, as he certainly will unless his ailments keep him quiet, the students again might be the only spark able to unite other groups against him.

This power of student demonstrations is difficult to understand. But it has shown up repeatedly in Latin and Asian lands.

Though this time the technique was used against them, it's more frequently the Communists who have set up student demonstrations for their own ends.

The Reds sparked student demonstrations in the Panama Canal Zone and created an international incident some time back. Student demonstrations played a part in the rise of Castro to power. Chinese Communists have even organized student demonstrations in Moscow.

Student demonstrations repeatedly have been successful in the overthrow of one South Vietnamese government. They have led to the resignation or overthrow of several Latin regimes. Not all there were re-inspired.

The Communists have no hope, in the United States, of overthrowing the government. Instead, they have concentrated on sparking or backing demonstrations to embarrass Washington. They've started demonstrations of their own. They've moved in on non-Communist demonstrations and attempted to take them over.

Reports are that the U.S. Communist party is so happy with the results that it will emphasize the student demonstration route here even more in the future.

The Reds, it's understood, are impressed with the sizable publicity effects a small handful of Communists can achieve by this means.

The Communists won't have it all their own way. More and more non-Red groups are discovering the technique.

City Officials in Rail Confab

Talks Are Attended by GTW Executive

City officials met yesterday with a high-ranking railroad executive to open talks that eventually might lead to grade separations at two busy railroad crossings in Pontiac.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr., City Manager Joseph A. Warren and City Engineer Joseph E. Nepling met with Harry Sanders, a vice president and general manager of Grand Trunk Western Railroad.

Taylor said object of the meeting was just to explore possibilities for grade separations.

He said it was decided the city would initially make some preliminary studies on cost and feasibility of a grade separation for North Johnson.

"INTERESTED"
"He (Sanders) was interested in talking to us," said Taylor. Efforts to establish a grade separation on the West Huron crossing would have to move slower, according to Taylor, because state and federal governments would be involved.

Under terms of state law, bulk of the cost of grade separations would probably fall on the city unless other agreements could be worked out.

GMC Diesels Aiding Jersey Trucking Firm

With a major assist from a batch of diesel trucks built in Pontiac, a New Jersey trucking firm is becoming increasingly prominent in East Coast trucking circles.

Jayne's Motor Freight, Inc., of Elizabeth, has blossomed from a $500 initial investment 10 years ago to a company grossing some $1.5 million annually.

County Workers' Credit Union Will Move Saturday

Facilities of the Oakland County Employees Credit Union will be moved Saturday from the courthouse to the new credit union building in the county service center.

The credit union will be open for business at 10 a.m. Monday in its new location, according to Herbert R. Radzisz, president of the credit union board of directors.

Construction on the $300,000 building began last October. It contains 2,500 square feet.

Office hours will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

All present officers of the credit union board have been reelected to one-year terms.

Besides Radzisz, they are William Arnold, vice president; James Jones, treasurer; Gretchen Maki, secretary and directors Pauline Hammond, Leo Halfpenny and William Webb.

Its trucks travel more than a million miles a year to serve some 2,500 shippers and consignees.

In a move toward complete dieselization of its fleet, the firm has called on GMC Truck and Coach Division for trucks.

Seven model DLV-404 GMC Toro-Flow diesel trucks with steel tilt-cab models were added last year and more are scheduled for the company's fleet later on.

IDEALLY SUITED
Transportation Manager Harold Cox said the GMC's are ideally suited to "diminishing load" operations.

"These Toro-Flows are giving us 75 to 100 per cent better mileage than our gas jobs," he said.

"Fuel savings alone will offset the extra initial cost of the diesels in less than three years."

He went on to say that downtime has been negligible and drivers vie with one another to drive the trucks.

MANY ORDERS
While many shipping orders flow into Jayne's Motor Freight from New York City and Philadelphia, others come from customers not five miles away.

One of its closest customers is Grace Line.

Its fishy-back vessels bring containerized loads to Port Newark and take on freight picked up by Jayne's trucks at various points in New York, New Jersey and Philadelphia.

Supervisors Reject 3 of 8 Proposals

The Oakland County Board of Supervisors yesterday rejected three of eight legislative proposals recommended by its legislative committee.

Influenced by John Rehder, supervisor from West Bloomfield Township, the board voted to throw out a recommendation to deny support to a Kalamazoo County resolution calling for chemical tests to determine intoxication of motorists.

Rehder objected to the committee's recommendation, saying that such legislation would be just another measure to hamper law enforcement.

The Kalamazoo County resolution suggested testing for intoxication when investigating police officers have reasonable grounds to believe a motorist is under the influence of intoxicants.

Another committee recommendation was ordered returned for further consideration of the equalization committee of the board of supervisors by a 54 to 12 roll call vote.

HOUSE BILL
It referred to a house bill which sets determination of value of certain personal property on installed acquisition cost and establishes the depreciation schedule on a straight line basis.

S. James Clarkson, supervisor from Southfield, claimed the legislation would hurt the small businessman and called for withdrawal of support recommended by the legislative committee.

Another house bill for which the committee recommended support would allow the Probate Court to charge a schedule of graduated fees as an expense of administering the gross estates of deceased persons.

This proposed legislation also met criticism and supervisors voted against supporting it.

NAME PARK COMMISSION
In other business yesterday, the board appointed a 10-member park commission.

Appointed were Daniel W. Barry, drain commissioner; Robert O. Fell, chairman of the road commission; Donald A. Kalmbach, chairman of the board of auditors; and Corporation Counsel Robert P. Allen.

Also named were three supervisors, John L. Carey, Springfield Township; Mrs. Dorothy Olson, Waterford Township; and Clarence A. Durbin, City of Southfield.

The remaining appointees were citizens-at-large Mrs. Frances Clark, Bloomfield Township, and Mrs. Velma Austin, City of Royal Oak.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla.)—An escape last-ditch decision to use his only remaining system of maneuvering jets to bring it under control. If he had exhausted the fuel in the system, his life and the life of pilot David Scott, an Air Force major could have been jeopardized as they returned to earth.

In 1961, before any American achieved orbit, Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom had to swim for his life when the hatch blew on his spacecraft as he sat after it landed.

Spacemen's Families Relieved

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Those who most love astronaut Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott are a disappointed — but very much relieved — group of relatives today. A typhoon that has battered and washed away much of the beach and dropped a scale to earth, Ann Scott and Janet Armstrong approved by their smiles they are happy their men are safe. But both said they were "very disappointed" the flight ended early.

At Cape Kennedy, Mr. Armstrong's parents, Captain Stephen K. Armstrong, Neil's parents, declined to speak directly with newsmen until they talk first with their son. A spokesman said the Armstrongs were concerned during the tension-filled period leading up to reentry "just like any parents would be, but certain everything would be all right."

The Armstrongs watched the launch at the Cape Canaveral missile

The two wives spent most of the time in a bedroom watching television and kept in constant communication with Mission Control.

'DISAPPOINTED'

"I'm very disappointed but happy," said Ann Scott, Armstrong's mother, "but I'm disappointed after the vigil. Scott's wife added, however, that she was pleased "the primary purpose of the mission was accomplished."

In La Jolla, Calif., Briggen and Mrs. Tom W. Scott, parents of the Gemini 8 pilot, said they also were disappointed. The general consensus is that it is a "space relief" when the splash-down occurred safely, however, "I just wanted to see the flight collar around that thing," said Briggen.

SPLASH-DOWN POINT — The disabled Gemini 8 spacecraft made an emergency landing in the Pacific Ocean spot designated on this map last night.

the way which way Aurora 7 was pointing.

Just last August, Air Force Lt. L. Gordon Cooper and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr. nursed Gemini 5 through 120 hours of flight after it looked like it had too much pressure, and might force them down after six. If it had been unmanned, space officials said, it would never have come down.

The only problem with a mission involving named space flight that astronauts do not have a hand in dealing with was the failure of the Atlas-Agena 6 last Oct. 23.

That Agena target ship blew up before orbiting, and astronauts Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford climbed out of their Gemini capsule before launch time.

President Johnson praised Armstrong and Scott for having shown "remarkable courage and poise under stress." They pulled the Gemini 8 out of a spin which reached at least six revolutions a minute and brought it to a landing almost exactly in the middle of the planned landing zone.

Problems in space do not automatically mean a reverse for the space program.

During Cooper's first space mission — the Faith 7 flight of May 15-16, 1963 — drinking water leaked into the cabin and ground stations feared that the automatic reentry system might have been short-circuited. They directed Cooper to fly the capsule manually back to earth and to make the first space mission to do so.

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Irish police don't expect any trouble on St. Patrick's Day today but they're on the alert.

The day of Ireland's patron saint has always been a quiet affair here compared with celebrations elsewhere, especially in New York and Boston.

But nationalist extremists last week blew the top off the 134-foot Nelson monument in downtown Dublin, and the 50th anniversary of the 1916 Easter rising against England is only three weeks away.

This, and a rash of recent bombings, have police keeping an eye out for hotheads. However, authorities said they didn't expect any political trouble today.

CHURCH BELLS

The festive day dawned with church bells calling all Irishmen to religious services. There was a special service at the Church of Ireland's Anglican cathedral at Downpatrick, County Down, where some believe St. Patrick is buried.

The annual parade in Dublin is a commercial affair with advertising floats and pretty girls.

For the first time, its route down O'Connell Street was not dominated by Nelson's column. Government demolition squads have blasted the 50-foot stump that remained after the extremist blast.

The statue to Britain's most famous admiral was erected by British public subscription in 1809 to commemorate Lord Nelson's victory over the French at Trafalgar. To Irish nationalists, it was a symbol of British oppression.

Extremists also recently hurled fire bombs at Dublin's British Legion Veterans Club and set fire to the home of the British military attaché.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army has denied responsibility for the terrorism, which is attributed to a far-out extremist group. Its name is not generally known.

These extremists feel that the government has betrayed Ireland into economic enslavement.

Coin Shortage at End, Declares Federal Reserve

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Reserve yesterday officially declared the nation's coin shortage at an end.

On Aug. 20, 1964, the Federal Reserve agreed to accept deposits of coin from financial institutions and pay the transportation costs.

"This action was taken in conjunction with all other Federal Reserve banks to help relieve the coin shortage that then prevailed," said the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

Such practices no longer serve the purpose for which they were intended and are now being discontinued by all reserve banks.

by Britain by concluding a recent trade treaty. They also want to unite the Irish Republic with the six counties of Northern Ireland, which still are part of the United Kingdom.

Urge Changes in District Bill

Oakland Officials Hit County Board Plan

Two major changes were proposed yesterday by the Oakland County Board of Supervisors in a bill on county apportionment passed Tuesday by the State House of Representatives.

Supervisors also agreed that the bill was unconstitutional.

House Bill 2774 calls for apportionment of county boards of supervisors on a one man, one vote basis.

First, the board disagreed with the bill's provision for the county clerk, treasurer and prosecuting attorney to comprise the apportionment commission.

It suggested that no county or state official or employee serve on the commission and proposed a five-member body consisting of two representatives of each major party and a fifth member selected by the first four.

SELECTION SYSTEM

The party members would be selected by the executive committee of their respective parties.

Secondly, the board agreed that the bill fails to set a standard population criteria to be used in determining apportionment in districts.

It proposed that apportioned districts should be within 10 per cent (under or over) of the average.

The board also suggested that redistricting be given more consideration in the State Legislature than in the past because of the great changes it will bring about in county government.

Board members termed the bill itself "in violation of the constitution and a derogation of the power of the Supreme Court," since the court has not yet issued a decision on a Kent County test case.

GM Leads in Profits

Which Firm Biggest?

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK — Corporations are flooding the mails with annual reports these days. And owners can include in one of America's most satisfying pastimes — deciding who's the biggest.

But a company that's top when viewed from one angle may not be the biggest.

The biggest money maker, for example, is well down the list of companies with the largest assets. And at least a million more persons prefer to own stock in the company that's the runner-up in profits than to hold shares of the corporation that's top dog in total sales or revenues.

The annual census on who is the biggest money maker already has been won. General Motors takes the title for the second straight year. With a record $2,125,000,440 of profits in 1965 it made $23 million more after taxes than did runner-up American Telephone & Telegraph with $1,796,094,000. Jersey Standard Oil was third with $1,035,000,000.

PHONE FIRM

But the phone company can claim to be the biggest of all if the measure is total assets. It now has $40,389,648,000, up nearly $10 billion from 1964. AT&T also is far ahead of GM, whose assets are $11,476,546,500. And the auto giant probably trails the oil company, which hasn't reported yet for 1965, but had $12,489,565,000 in assets at the end of 1964.

These top money makers in the auto and oil industries are far below the leading banks and insurance companies when it comes to assets. Metropolitan Life counted $21,388,602,000 at the end of 1964 and Prudential $21,015,885,000.

The Bank of America reported assets of $16,528,957,600 at the end of 1965 for fourth place.

Ice Cream Prices

Going Up Shortly in Detroit Area

DETROIT (AP)—Ice cream is going up in price in the Detroit area shortly. And prices are expected to rise in other areas as well.

Industry spokesmen drew the picture Wednesday in blaming a variety of causes.

The retail price of ice cream will go up 10 cents a half-gallon, said a Food Industry Committee spokesman. He said a milk shortage has forced up prices to manufacturers.

A spokesman for the Michigan Milk Producers Association confirmed diminishing supply.

The representative of the dairy farmers organization said the condition arises from a combination of increased demand from population growth and prosperity and a trend of farmers to give up the business. He said farmers are selling their herds and retiring or going into other fields.

Chase Manhattan, New York, was fifth with $15,331,407,583, and First National City Bank, New York, sixth with $13,976,787,000.

And Jersey Standard and GM may find a close contestant in Equitable Life when its 1965 figures are reported. It had $11,731,361,000 in assets at the start of 1965.

BIGGEST RAILROADS

The biggest railroads could put in a strong claim to being the biggest in terms of physical property. The far-flung Pennsylvania Railroad has miles and miles of real estate, with total assets of more than $3 billion.

Southern Pacific is second with $2.6 billion, and New York Central third among the rails with $2.4 billion.

But in mere banding about of dollar totals alone, the insurance companies can dwarf the industrials, utilities and rails. These figures measure the total value of policies in force: Metropolitan $113 billion, Prudential $104 billion, Equitable $49 billion.

Still another measure of bigness is the total of sales or revenues. Here GM is the champ, as in profits, with sales of $20,753,962,295 in 1965. Jersey Standard reports $12,725,000,000 in revenues, and the phone company $11,061,783,000.

Sears, Roebuck's latest figures are around $7 billion, while the A&P grocery chain tops $5 billion.

LAST TALLY

Then there's stockholders. AT&T's $2,674,141 at the last published tally, makes it the world's biggest. GM has 1,311,278 now and Jersey Standard around 710,000.

As for the biggest employer, how about Uncle Sam? His payroll, civilian and military, make most private enterprises look like ants.

Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass would give you the same yield, in my opinion, the dividend seems more secure in its coverage. If you could afford to accept less income, Socymo-Mob would offer you better growth prospects.

GM Vehicle Total Hits 100 Million

LANSING (AP)—General Motors Corp. hit a major milestone yesterday when it rolled 100 millionth vehicle off a Lansing assembly line.

As the bronze Tornado moved off the Oldsmobile plant assembly line, GM President James M. Roche hailed the event as an industrial feat without parallel.

Harold N. Metzger, general manager of Oldsmobile Division, said "It is fitting" that the milestone vehicle was a Tornado, the car that provided the major engineering excitement of the 1960 models. It was the first U.S. car with front wheel drive since the 1937 Cord.

The dividend will be paid May 2 to stockholders of record April 15 on the $1 common stock.
