EVER-PRESENT SMILE — Genuine geniality shows through in this picture of Queen Elizabeth looking from a car window as she leaves a function in Washington yesterday. Long hours of handshaking, listening to speeches, and performing the rituals of a state visit have yet to dampen her spirit.

STEADY THERE — An unidentified guest bends a knee to the visiting Queen at a British embassy reception for the royal couple yesterday. Eying the maneuver with approval is Ray Maley, press attache at the Australian embassy. So far America's curtsey record is unblemished — no locked knee-joints, no popped seams, no tumbles.

ROYAL DESCENT — Down the steps of the Capitol after a reception and luncheon goes Queen Elizabeth, with Vice President Richard Nixon as escort. Nixon and Mrs. Nixon gave the luncheon yesterday in honor of the Queen and Prince Philip.

Inkster GI Testifies

Says He Disliked Girard Publicity

SOMAGAHARA, Japan (AP) — A soldier testified today that he stopped covering up for GI William S. Girard in the firing range death of a Japanese woman because Girard was being pictured as a hero.

Specialist 3.C. Victor Nickel, a one-time friend of Girard, originally denied to Japanese investigators that he knew that Girard fatally shot Mrs. Naka Sakai, a Japanese brass collector. Later he said he did know about it.

When presiding Judge Yuzo Kawachi asked him about this change, Nickel testified:

"My reasons, sir, were because my conscience bothered me. It was also because they played him up as being a hero, which I didn't think he was."

Nickel, of Inkster, Mich., said he asked his legal adviser, Capt. Albert Rakas of Chicago, what he should do and was told to tell the truth. Nickel said he then changed his story.

Nickel was one of two soldier witnesses who returned today with Girard to the firing range hilltop where Mrs. Sakai was killed last Jan. 30. She died after being struck in the back with an empty cartridge casing fired from Girard's grenade launcher.

Girard, of Ottawa, Ill., admits firing the shot but says he did it to scare away brass scavengers and did not intend to kill Mrs. Sakai.

Nickel insisted earlier that he moved a machine gun in an effort to give Girard an excuse for the killing of the scrap collector.

★ ★ ★

Girard denied the statement, saying the gun was at one spot all the time.

His defense has claimed he was defending the machine gun at the time and fired to drive away scrap collectors.

Nickel said the gun was moved a distance that newsmen later measured as 26½ feet to bring it nearer the spot where Mrs. Sakai was hit.

The other witness, Sgt. 1.C. Alex E. Smith, 27, Fresno, Calif., testified for Girard that the gun was not moved. The testimony was taken on the firing range where Mrs. Sakai was killed.

★ ★ ★

The prosecutor said he would examine Smith later to determine if the gun might have been moved without his knowledge.

U. S. and Turkey Parry Charges

Soviet - Syrian Aches to Be Taken Up in UN Tuesday

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The United States and Turkey marshaled their forces today to parry, in a U.N. General Assembly debate, Soviet-Syrian charges of aggressive plans in the Middle East.

The 82-nation assembly voted 66-0 to take up Syria's complaint that Turkey menaces her security. High point of the debate, however, is expected to be Russia's companion charge that the United States is goading Turkey into an invasion of Syria.

★ ★ ★

Both the United States and Turkey have denied repeated accusations, but they said they would welcome a full airing of the charges. Debate is expected to begin Tuesday.

As the U.N. agreed to look into the crisis, the Soviet Union renewed a warning that it would go to Syria's aid in case of attack.

A statement issued in Moscow also charged Turkey planned to attack along 180 miles of Syria's northern border "with the support of the U.S. 6th Fleet." It said Britain had consented to a top-secret war plan.

Turkey's Ambassador Seyfullah Esin charged in a U.N. Steering Committee debate that Russia was trying to intimidate his country by creating a fictitious situation.

Turkey, he declared, already has assured both Syria and Russia that she does not have aggressive designs against her Arab neighbor.

The United States, which has been consulting with other delegations since the Syrian-Russian charges came in, is working on proposals for the debate. They would highlight Russia's role in the Middle East.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge expressed confidence the discussion would "show not only the absurdity of the charges against the United States and Turkey, but will also reveal the true source of tension in the entire area."

Vanguard Rocket Test Postponed Twice in Florida

WASHINGTON (AP)—A test of the Navy's Vanguard rocket—the powerhouse planned to propel an American satellite into space—apparently was put off twice yesterday.

★ ★ ★

The scheduled firing at Cape Canaveral, Fla., was to have been a test of the Vanguard's first state engine. There was no explanation of why the test wasn't held.

Newsmen watching the Florida test area through binoculars yesterday said towers and cranes twice were moved up to the missile then withdrawn—the second time when a rain squall swept the area.

★ ★ ★

There was no word when the Vanguard test might be rescheduled. Two preliminary tests of Vanguard rocket stages, help previously, have been described officially as successful.

Pentagon Boss Expects Results Without Delays

Message to 3 Services Follows Complaints by Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy has served notice he will stand for no delays in planned development of long-range ballistic missiles.

He also indicated yesterday he will accept no excuses that bottlenecks or lack of help are impeding progress in this vital defense field.

The new Pentagon boss, who has been on the job less than two weeks, made known his position in a memorandum to the secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

A number of Congress members of both parties have voiced concern over the recent launching of a Russian earth satellite before the United States could get one aloft. Some of them have said this, coupled with Russia's claimed success in testing an intercontinental missile, indicates the United States has fallen dangerously behind the Soviets.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed services Committee, said in Blackshear, Ga., he planned to fly here today to direct a committee investigation of the nation's missile and satellite programs.

In his memo, McElroy said he was "greatly encouraged by the progress" he said is being made at missile centers he visited. He said that during these visits, he had watched firings of both operational and test weapons "which in general met or exceeded their design specifications."

★ ★ ★

He said it appeared the missile program represents "the best balance of technical knowledge, trained manpower and test installations that we can make at this time."

SCHEDULE IMPORTANT

But McElroy stressed the "great importance to our national security of maintaining these programs on schedule. . ."

★ ★ ★

The individual service heads were ordered to send weekly progress reports to William Holaday, McElroy's assistant in charge of missile matters, and to mark copies of such reports "for my personal attention."

The defense chief instructed the service secretaries to inform him directly if they need any help on scientific problems that might be hindering progress in ballistic missiles development.

At one point in his memo, McElroy seemed to be taking note of charges by some members of Congress and others that development of American intercontinental missiles has been slowed by inter-service rivalries.

He told the service heads to inform his guided missiles aides immediately of any assistance which any other service, the Defense Department or any government agency can provide "which

Train-Auto Crashes Kill 4

Man and Wife Killed Near Gaylord; 2 Men Die in Wyandotte

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Collisions between trains and automobiles claimed four lives at Michigan crossings overnight.

One train-auto collision was in Wyandotte, the other near Gaylord.

Killed in the Wyandotte collision were Anthony V. Bartnicki, 30, of Wyandotte, and Thomas Hodges, 32, of Flat Rock.

Victims in the Otsego County crash near Gaylord were Joseph Koczwara, 65, of New Boston, and his wife, Agnes.

Bartnicki and Hodges, the latter a father of three, had left a Wyandotte social club only minutes before their car and a backing New York Central freight hit at 12:50 a.m.

Bartnicki, an employe of Pennsalt Chemical Co., was driving, and Policeman Henry Przedworski said "either he didn't see the train or was trying to beat it across the tracks. The flasher was working and a brakeman was on the rear of the caboose with a red lantern."

Koczwara and his wife were hit by a southbound New York Central passenger train seven miles south of Gaylord shortly after midnight. State police said the couple had been driving on U.S. 27, which parallels the tracks there, and had turned into Mancelona road only a few feet before reaching the crossing.

3,600 Cheer Chiefs at PHS Homecoming

A crowd of 3,600 students, parents and alumni added their colorful spirit at Wisner Stadium last night to Fontiac High School's celebration of its first homecoming.

Although their gridiron Chiefs were defeated 27 to 14 by the Saginaw High School Trojans, more than 800 Pontiac rooters moved on to support the "Anteneeban" festival finale, a dance at the high school following the game.

Carl Rose, representing the PHS graduating class of 1946, made the presentation on behalf of the 140 members of the class who attended the festival.

A 1½-hour parade of 12 floats and six bands marched to the stadium before the game. Larry Beamer, PHS track star, and Jeanne Johnson, PHS cheerleader, reigned as Chief and Princess of Anteneeban following an all-school election last week.

Frances W. Staley, principal of PHS, acclaimed the entire festival as "very successful" and added that the student workmanship of the autumn-tinted floats was "outstanding."

Staley said he felt future homecoming celebrations should be held every three or five years.

Queen to Watch Grid Tilt

By RUTH MONTGOMERY

WASHINGTON (INS) — Today is a dream-come-true for the most avid sports fan that British queendom has ever boasted.

Petite, blue-eyed Elizabeth II, whose rigorous schedule these past few days would test the stamina of an All-American half-back, takes off for Maryland University's Byrd Stadium this afternoon to witness her first football game.

Back in mother England, the indomitable little queen has rooted at soccer and rugby games, raced her own string of horses and ridden to hounds. By tonight, she should know what happens when 11 padded young athletes go into a huddle.

Fair skies—after two days of monotonous English-type drizzle—are promised for the gala festivities. Should the heavens fail to cooperate with the weather man, a clear plastic canopy will be drawn across the royal box.

GM Vice President Chayne Says:

Driver's Attitude Counts Most in Safety

A motorist's attitude toward driving is more important than his physical reflexes in determining whether he will wind up an accident statistic, Vice President Charles A. Chayne of General Motors said today in Chicago.

Chayne, who is vice president in charge of General Motors' Engineering Staff, addressed the 18th annual General Motors Safety Conference of plant safety engineers.

". . . Safety designs and devices notwithstanding, traffic safety is a direct function of the driver's basic sense of responsibility, his attitude, his self-discipline, his psychology or whatever you wish to call it," Chayne declared.

He based his conclusions on 33 years of GM experience with test drivers who have driven 172,000,000 test miles on GM proving grounds.

He disclosed that GM engineers have developed a device to measure reaction time to determine whether good physical reflexes had any influence on a good driving record. All drivers were tested.

GOOD DRIVING COUNTS

"The results," Chayne declared, "disclosed a remarkable fact. Some men with the most sluggish reflexes had the best driving histories. Apparently their overall good driving practices had more effect on their records than their physical equipment."

"On the highway, the three factors most influential are the highway itself, the vehicle, and the driver," he added.

"Highway accident records, such as they are, contain an overwhelming amount of evidence to the effect that controlled access highways are relatively safe, Chayne stated. "The fatal accident rate per 100,000,000 miles on limited access highways is less than half of the rate where access is not controlled.

"The accident rate on dual-divided highways is much lower than on 4-lane highways. The current highway legislation which will impose requirements on the interstate system in terms of providing limited access and divided highways in all vital areas will eliminate a great many thousands of accidents.

The maintenance of the vehicle in the hands of the owner is a factor over which auto makers have little control except by means of advice, admonition, and dealer facilities well equipped and staffed by employes carefully trained in every phase of maintenance, he said. The big problem here is that all too often the vehicles are not taken to the service garage as frequently as desirable.

This is the direct responsibility of the third factor in the problem, the owner and driver, Chayne maintained.

He has a sort of dual personality, in one phase he is the owner of the vehicle who is entrusted with seeing to it that proper maintenance is conducted, and in the other phase he is the driver whose responsibility is to see that all his actions on the highway are safe. The vehicle manufacturer has no control whatsoever over the actions of the driver of its product."

At the same time, he said, GM is not "downgrading the importance of safety devices on automobiles. Our belief is that any innovation . . . is a boon to safety whenever it frees the driver of certain physical operations and responsibilities so he can concentrate on his job of piloting a vehicle."

"However, during the last nine years of test driving at the proving grounds not a single mishap, even of a minor nature, was caused either by structural or functional failure of a vehicle or road defect, he said.

"Driving involves three things—manual skill, attitude and aware-

Pilot Rescued From Ocean

Failed to Finish Solo Nonstop Flight From Galveston to Rome

PRESTWICK, Scotland (AP)—American pilot William Wyatt has been picked up safely from the Atlantic Ocean off the Spanish coast, air control operations at Prestwick Airport said it learned today.

ROME (AP)—Airport officials today abandoned hope that American pilot William Wyatt could reach his destination here on an attempted nonstop flight from Galveston, Tex.

Officials said at 10 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) Wyatt must either have landed somewhere in northern Europe or come down at sea in his small, single-engine plane.

Wyatt took off from Galveston at 7:25 a.m. EST Thursday hoping to reach Rome in 36 to 40 hours. He carried 44 hours of fuel. The 44 hours expired at 3:25 a.m. EST today.

The last word from the 25-year-old former Marine pilot was a radio message to the Bordeaux, France, Municipal Airport. He said he had been burning gasoline faster than planned because of headwinds but still hoped to reach Rome.

If winds were too strong, he would land at Bordeaux, Wyatt radioed. That was at 11:15 last night, Rome time (5:15 p.m. EST).

His backers in Galveston said they had received a radioed message that Wyatt planned to land at Brive La Roche, France, east of Bordeaux. But officials at that airport said they had not seen him.

Wyatt's course to Rome covered 5,693 miles. He was trying to break the 4,957-mile record for single-engine aircraft set in 1949 by the late William Odom in a flight from Honolulu to Teterboro, N.J.

How is a stationary front formed? What causes most of them in fall and winter?

A stationary front usually results in the movement of a cold air mass into a mass of warmer air. Instead of forcing a passage and breaking through, sometimes the cold front's winds will blow parallel to the juncture of the two air masses.

The cold air mass thus stands still — as far as forward movement is concerned. The warm air mass sends its winds parallel to the juncture line (the stationary front), but in exactly the opposite direction of those of the cold air mass.

In summary, the stationary front is set up when a warm and cold air mass meet and neither is strong enough to dissipate the other.

West Germany Drops Ties With Yugoslavia

BONN (INS) — The West German government officially cut its diplomatic ties with communist Yugoslavia today in reprisal for President Tito's recognition of the East German regime last Tuesday.

Details of the severance were not made available immediately, but it was believed restricted to diplomatic and not trade and economic ties.

TAKES EFFECT

The break took effect at 10 a.m. (5 a.m. EDT) when Yugoslav envoy Dusam Kveder appeared at the foreign office and was handed a diplomatic note from Foreign Minister Heinrich Von Brentano.

The diplomatic break had been expected since last Tuesday when Yugoslavia became the first nation outside the satellite bloc to recognize the East German regime.

It marked the first time the federal republic chose a "get tough attitude" in its eight year history and put teeth into its dogma against recognition of East Germany by nations which have diplomatic ties with the Bonn government.

★ ★ ★

The decision was one of Adenauer's most crucial steps to safeguard his country's newly won prestige as the sole legitimate successor of the former German Reich.

One of Adenauer's dilemmas was Tito's special relationship with Washington, which had to be taken into account in deliberations on whether to sever diplomatic ties. Another was the fear that Asian-African states might follow Tito's lead in extending recognition.

THOUGHT OUT

The thought given to the move is indicated by the length of time it took the Bonn government to react to Yugoslavia's announcement.

★ ★ ★

A decision was believed reached two days during a meeting of Adenauer with his cabinet. An announcement was expected yesterday after Von Brentano told a special committee of members of Parliament that the government believed a break in relations with Yugoslavia was essential. But the official action was again put off until today.

In Washington, the U.S. government today officially stood behind West Germany in its action in severing diplomatic relations with Yugoslavia.

The State Department said that the U.S. had been consulted in advance and told the Bonn government that it understood its position fully.

A brief State Department statement said:

"We expressed understanding of the reasons which made it necessary for the federal government to take this action."

★ ★ ★

Officials in Washington said the West German Republic had consulted not only the U.S., but Britain, France and the other NATO countries, in advance of the action.

Crippled Children Society Slates Ground Breaking

Ground breaking ceremonies for the proposed $49,000 new headquarters for the county's crippled children will be held tomorrow afternoon.

The 300x300 foot site of the building of the Oakland County Society for Crippled Children is on the west side of Telegraph road across from the county service center. The property has been leased from the county.

Four persons are expected to turn over the first shovels of the sod.

They are L. C. Megee, of Clarkston, society president; William Bullock, of Royal Oak, first vice president and building committee chairman; four-year-old polio victim Deborah Shelton, of 566 E. Tennyson Ave., Miss Easter Seal of Pontiac, 1957; and another polio victim, Craig Baker, 9, of 1734 Bonnieview St., Royal Oak.

Craig is the son of the society's former president Phil Baker who first proposed the need for the building. Baker was killed in an auto accident in 1954.

★ ★ ★

The ceremonies will begin at 2:30 p.m. with the Reverend William C. Hamm, of St. Ann's Episcopal Church, Lake Orion, giving the invocation.

4 More Oil Firms Boost Gas Prices

Four more major oil companies have raised retail gas prices 2.9 cents a gallon in the Pontiac area. They joined Standard Oil, Speedway and some independent dealers yesterday in returning to summer levels.

A Shell spokesman stated that "this change restores prices to a more realistic level, based on current costs of doing business."

terday's garden party are willing to concede that it's about time she had some fun. The Maryland-North Carolina football game should prove just that, since she will be there by reason of her own royal request.

CAPPED DAY

The cabinet officer who had been a guest at Thursday's White House dinner where President Eisenhower toasted greater cooperation between the U.S. and Britain, added his own sentiments by saying the closer Anglo-American ties would not harm the overall free world alliance.

But, he, too, placed great importance on strengthening the bonds of friendship between the subject of Queen Elizabeth and the constituents of President Eisenhower as he told the youthful monarch: "We can be grateful to her majesty for a visit which, I think, will prove to be historical if it leads, as I hope and believe it will, to our using more fully the great potentials which we jointly possess."

Despite the fact that she had wrung 2,500 garden party hands, lunched with Vice President Nixon and some 90 other dignitaries, and traveled through the National Gallery of Art and Children's Hospital, she was able to return the Dulles toast last night in clear, bell-like tones.

"I do not believe that there is any field of human activity," the queen told the white-tie gathering, "in which exchanges and contracts between leading men of our countries have not at one time or another played a major role in the building of our common civilization."

Perhaps prompted by President Eisenhower's stirring free-world toast at Thursday's White House state dinner, she added with a trace of a hint to our security guardians: "Unfettered exchanges between men of ideas are essential to the maintenance of freedom and are also one of the greatest boons that real freedom has to offer."

Squired by jaunty Prince Philip, who wore the Order of the Garter with his white tie and tails, the 31-year-old monarch glittered resplendantly in a slim-fitting dress of aquamarine romaine entirely embroidered in aquamarine crystals.

With the stunning, draped gown she wore a fringe tiara, diamond necklace and earrings, and the Garter family orders.

Besides members of the royal entourage, the Dulles guest list included the secretary's brother, Central Intelligence Chief Allen Dulles, Senators Alexander Wiley, H. Alexander Smith and Mike Mansfield; Deputy Defense Secretary Donald A. Quarles, the military chiefs of staff, several representatives and executive department officials, all with wives.

Other distinguished guests included former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, publisher William Randolph Hearst, Jr., Herbert Hoover, Jr., and former ambassadors to Britain Lewis Douglas and Walter Gifford, with their wives.

Among the unaccompanied women guests were former secretary of Welfare Oveta Culp Hobby, Mrs. Ogden Reid, Sr., and the secretary's sister, Eleanor Dulles.

Elizabeth and Philip parted company yesterday morning for the first time during their current American tour. While the queen visited the National Art Gallery and greeted moppets at Children's Hospital, her dashing consort had himself a field day at the National Academy of Science.

There he astounded the experts with his informed questions on satellites, rockets and missiles. The prince, who is chairman of the International Geophysical Year for Britain, had previously received from President Eisenhower the National Geographic Society medal at the White House.

High point of the British Embassy reception came when Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zaroubin paused over-long in the split-second receiving line to exchange pleasantries with Prince Philip. The incident occurred a moment after Elizabeth II had greeted him with an enthusiastic: "Nice to see you again."

Afterwards, surrounded by curious onlookers who were forgetting to ogle the queen, the usually somber Zaroubin sparkled: "The prince and I are old friends, you know. I attended their wedding."

The Red envoy also took occasion to remark: "I'm very proud of sputnik, and it's still going around." He said it with the air of a man who dared a British queen to overshadow his satellite.

Today, besides the rah-rah football game, the queen and Philip are also receiving staff members of Commonwealth countries at the British embassy. Then, while Elizabeth invests commonwealth citizens and awards insignia to American citizens who have received honors from her majesty, Philip visits the Marine barracks here.

Into her fantastically busy schedule, the queen will also crowd time for a cornerstone laying of a new British embassy office building.

Tonight, her majesty and Prince Philip will climax the long day by playing host at a state dinner in honor of the President and Mrs. Eisenhower.

ness," Chayne said. "So far as manual skill is concerned, the non-professional and professional driver are on equal footing. Either one can master physical movements of steering, braking, accelerating, etc., with minimum training and practice.

"A driver's attitude is more nebulous to describe than manual skill; it involves knowledge and experience. The difference between the amateur and the pro shows up when attitude or knowledge is applied.

PRO DRIVERS NEEDED

"Since driving is pretty much a part of our daily lives, is it not worthwhile to become as nearly professional as possible? How can we know whether we are approaching perfection or whether we just think we are?"

Awareness or attentiveness also is nebulous to describe, Chayne continued. Certainly it is no less important than a driver's manual skill or attitude because if anyone is inattentive at the wrong instant behind the wheel we all know it can be fatal.

★ ★ ★

"So much has been said about speed as a hazard that we are building up the idea that if we drive slowly we are safe; this is a very bad habit of thinking," he said. "The good habit is to learn to be a good judge of safe speed conditions. The good habit is to learn to be a good and conservative judge of your own skill as a high speed driver.

★ ★ ★

"This calls for consistent practice with very gradual speed increases over months and months of driving—certainly not by routinely driving 35 or 40 and then deciding to make a trip at 60 or 65.

★ ★ ★

". . . Of late so much emphasis has been placed on the car and the highway that the driver has been wrongfully neglected," he concluded. "If you carefully consider all facts, I think you'll agree it is in him that the secret to highway safety will be found."

Distillery Union Loses Leaders

Quit as Recommended by AFL-CIO; Abuses Uncovered Earlier

CHICAGO (INS) — The president and four vice presidents of the Distillery Union have announced their resignation in compliance with the recommendations of the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee to clean house.

★ ★ ★

The president, Joseph O'Neill, said that the resignations were in response to a recommendation by Peter McGavin, representative of AFL-CIO President George Meany, which calls for the officers of the union to resign and stand for re-election at a special convention to be held in Chicago next Nov. 22.

★ ★ ★

The Distillery Union was placed on probation last May 23 by the AFL-CIO Executive Board after being found guilty of corruption and welfare fund abuses which were turned up in the 1955 Senate investigation.

The union had held a special convention last March to put its house in order, but did not fully comply with the recommendations of the Ethical Practicies Committee.

Monkeys, Dogs Foil Burglary of Pet Store

Patrolmen Joseph Patkus and Jack Kennedy said they heard the screeching and barking, sped to Docktor's Pet Shop in Center City and arrested Joseph Sweet, 25, just around the corner.

Sweet admitted he and a partner tried to break into the second floor window of the pet shop, never dreaming the kennels were there, the patrolmen said.

"We've got 150 dogs in there from Chihuahuas to Great Danes and when one starts barking they all bark," said Manager Arthur Rees. "Add 80 monkeys and you have a lot of noise."

Body of Wyandotte Man Found With Gun Near

DETROIT (AP) — The body of a man missing since midsummer was found yesterday in a swampy area of suburban Brownstown Township.

★ ★ ★

A rusty double-barrel shotgun with empty shells in both barrels was found near the body of Langlois Spaven, 81, of Wyandotte. State Police said cause of death was not immediately determined.

The Day in Birmingham

Will Build Grade School on West Long Lake Rd.

BIRMINGHAM—Bloomfield Hills Board of Education this week announced plans for the construction of a new elementary school on West Long Lake Rd., between Middlebelt and Orchard Lake roads.

The school will house approximately 200 children, Kindergarten through sixth grade. Board spokesmen said every effort would be made to have the building ready for service next September.

In announcing the construction, it was made public that the 11-acre site was purchased from Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Callow at a cost substantially below 1955 market prices.

In connection with this, numerous recent gifts to the district were acknowledged.

Similar interests on the part of W. F. Connolly made it possible for the economic purchase of the 18-acre site on Westview road, where the new Eastover School has been built.

M. M. Heim made possible a below-market purchase of land adjoining the Callow property, bringing this site to more than 14 acres.

An outright gift in corporate stocks came in December of 1955 from Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey E. Streadwick. The stock, having a value of $5,500, was designated for the improvement of high school athletic facilities. A year later, the Streadwicks gave an additional $1,500 for improvement of the high school library.

★ ★ ★

The Robert C. J. Traub Memorial Scholarship Travel Fund was created by the gift of 100 shares of General Motors Corp. stock.

This provides funds for summer travel in Europe for two high school graduates specializing in the field of art or music, prior to college entrance.

Most recent gifts include $150 from the Birmingham branch of the AAUW from the high school library. William F. Wild gave two Japanese Gingko trees for the high school front lawn.

Brucker Blasts Russian Leader

Army Chief Accuses Khrushchev of Satellite 'Scare Campaign'

YORKTOWN, Va. (INS)—Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker accused Nikita Khrushchev today of "outrageous conduct" and a "scare campaign to intimidate free people all over the world."

★ ★ ★

He also assailed Congress' three billion dollar cut in defense requests and said "too many" Americans lack "moral courage" in facing issues involving the nation's security.

Brucker's remarks were contained in a speech prepared for the dedication of a monument commemorating the victory of American revolutionary forces over the British at Yorktown 176 years ago.

The Army chief added: "We have the ominous picture before us of Khrushchev ostentatiously toying with the model of a Soviet missile while discussing with an American newspaper correspondent the Soviet views on maintenance of peace."

Brucker insisted: "The situation confronting us sparks the need for the highest degree of and maintain."

He said Khrushchev had launched a "clever campaign of exploitation to get all the propaganda value out of the Russian satellite."

will insure the maintenance of our schedules."

OVERTIME APPROVED

McElroy said that as far as he knows, all requests for permission to pay overtime in the missile program had been approved.

★ ★ ★

The defense chief said a preliminary study turned up no regulations to hamper progress in ballistic weapons development.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, Vice Adm. John H. Sides, director of the Defense Department's weapons evaluation group, said last night that he is confident "that we shall win" the race for development of effective intercontinental missiles.

★ ★ ★

Speaking in New York, the admiral disputed the Russian claim to have achieved such a missile. He said the Russian claim probably was based on an "errant Sputnik" that failed to reach its orbit when launched late in August.

One person was injured in a six-car accident early last evening at the Fortin-Big Beaver-Woodward intersection.

Investigating officer Ronald Farrell of the Bloomfield Township police said that a car driven by Charles Haas, 69, of 5401 North Adams Rd., had stopped at the Big Beaver intersection and then drove across the northbound lane of Woodward inton the path of a car driven by Nellie Stewart, 59, of 1458 Oak St., Davison.

Her car went out of control, striking another driven by John Balser, 59, of 18 East Huron St., Pontiac.

The fourth car involved was driven by Rose Caswell, 52, wife of the injured man. Car No. 5 was driven by Louis White, 43, of 990 Erskine St., Detroit.

The sixth car was driven by Sgt. James Fowler, 30, of the Bloomfield Hills Police Dept.

Rise 16 Miles Above Earth

2 Fly High in Balloon

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The Navy's two high-flying balloonists, Cmdr. Malcolm D. Ross and Morton L. Lewis, today began checking the results of their testtube ride across the northern skies.

★ ★ ★

Flown back to Minneapolis after an uneventful landing last night near Hermansville, in northern Michigan, Ross and Lewis were reported in "perfectly normal" health by a Navy doctor.

The 38-year-old Ross and his 44-year-old partner spent 9½ hours drifting from an open pit iron mine at Crosby, Minn., to the field where they landed.

They rose to 84,000 feet, nearly 16 miles above the earth, suspended beneath a two-million cubic foot plastic balloon for the flight, then were hustled over cloudy skies across northern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan by 50-mile-an-hour winds.

NO ILL EFFECTS

Dr. Norman Barr, Washington, of the Navy's Bureau of Medicine and Surgery Research Division, said the two fliers experienced no ill effects from the flight.

★ ★ ★

It was apparently uneventful compared to a similar flight in the "Strato-Lab" gondola last November, when Ross and Lewis narrowly escaped disaster.

In the earlier flight, their balloon made an unexpected plunge through space before its descent was slowed and they landed safely.

Dr. Barr said tests made during the flight would supplement data gathered from an Air Force record flight in August, when Maj. David Simons flew above 100,000 feet in a 24-hour endurance test.

Expert Attacks Red Stop Signs, Prefers Yellow

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

Walls told a meeting of optometrists and safety experts yesterday that red is one of the hardest colors to see whereas yellow has easily won every test for visibility.

★ ★ ★

He said the octagonal shape could hardly be worse.

"Only a prefectly round plate would be more difficult to identify," he said. "At a distance, the octagonal shape tends to appear round and thus becomes difficult to distinguish from surrounding objects."

Lansing Firm Flies Potion to Save Child

LANSING (AP) — A Lansing chemical firm is breaking a release date on a new formula for coating fruits in an effort to keep a little girl alive.

R. G. Atwood, plant manager for "It Did It Products" said a plane loaded with watermelons and the new formula will leave here today for Cameron, W. Va.

Six-year old Jean Roxby, seriously ill with a kidney disorder, must eat a preparation made from watermelons twice daily to keep alive.

The new preparation, Atwood said has been tested under laboratory conditions on such fruits as grapefruit, oranges and bananas. The transparant film keeps the fruit airtight and keeps out bacteria and fungi.

"We were just on the point of marketing this formula commercially," he said. "Then my wife read about this little girl and suggested the flight, so we all figured trying to help her was more important than making money."

Harry to 'Raise Hell' to Get Dems Back In

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman says he's going to "raise hell with people" if necessary to help put the nation back under Democratic leadership.

★ ★ ★

He told Democrats from 13 Midwestern states at a luncheon yesterday the Republicans must be ousted from Washington if the United States is to regain world leadership.

"We've almost lost every friend we had because we had to have an agonizing reappraisal," he said. "We've got the agony all right but we haven't got the reappraisal."

★ ★ ★

The luncheon climaxed a two-day meeting at which Democrats of the region made plans for dislodging the GOP.

"I'm going to get into politics and raise hell with people if we don't get this job done," Truman told the gathering.

Montreal Paper Quits Publishing

Herald Prints Farewell Final After History of 147 Years

MONTREAL (AP) — Brash and breezy to the last, the Montreal Herald Friday printed its farewell final.

Just 24 hours from its 147th birthday, the tabloid-format newspaper that sought sparkle in its news ceased to publish, a victim of climbing costs.

But its biggest story — its own sad story — got only one column play on page one and was quickly jumped to inside pages. The paper reserved for other news its flair for bold, big headlines and appealing pictures.

Herald readers, about 40,000 a day in recent months, were told the paper, Montreal's oldest, has published at a loss for many years.

"Montreal's habits have changed," it said editorially. "The Herald . . . apparently does not belong."

The Herald staff learned of their paper's death in a pre-dawn message yesterday from John G. McConnell, president of the Montreal Star which owns the Herald.

Some Herald writers will join the Star, and the parent paper plans to place on sale its early edition about the time the mid-morning Herald used to appear. The others will get a cash severance payment.

Scared Elephant Being Sought in New York Wilds

CATSKILL, N. Y. (AP)—Siam, a frightened, mixed-up adolescent girl elephant, was the object of a renewed search through a thickly wooded, 20-acre section of a mountain near this city on the Hudson River today.

★ ★ ★

The 13-year-old pachyderm, a circus and television performer, was frightened by galloping horses yesterday in a farm at nearby Mitchell Hollow, where she is spending the winter. She plunged through a barbed-wire fence and into the woods.

About 40 farmers, led by a woman animal-trainer, tracked Siam to the mountain but had to stop when darkness fell.

Mrs. Alfred Vidbel who, with her husband, has a circus act with three elephants, said Siam was tame and predicted she would return meekly when found.

State police also said she was tame but added that they didn't advise hunters to test their skill on her.

★ ★ ★

Siam, who has been a circus trouper for six years, was frightened while being watered. Searchers followed her trail easily in the trampled brush.

Vidbel said she apparently bled heavily for a while from cuts on her legs caused by the barbed-wire fence.

Persons With Rashes Giving Away Secrets?

CHICAGO (INS) — A New York allergist said today that if you're prone to rashes — you may be giving away your deepest secrets.

He is Dr. Maury D. Sanger of New York's Albert Einstein Hospital who has made a 10-year study of the relationship between rashes on certain parts of the body and specific emotional problems.

"If there is a rash on the wedding ring finger which cannot be traced to a physical condition or external stimulant, you can be certain the patient is suffering marital difficulties.

"These emotional problems may result from an inability to have children, marital infidelity, etc., on the part of the husband or wife."

STUMBLED UPON

Dr. Sanger said he "stumbled" onto the symbolic "specific spot-specific problem" when he found that some rashes simply would not clear up with orthodox treatment.

"Of course," he continued, "the proof is in the results and I have seen many patients cured by finding the particular guilt complex through this system and bringing it out of the dark corners of his mind."

Dr. Sanger cited one case in which a man did not have a rash under his gold wedding ring, but had suffered for six years from a rash on the third finger of his right hand on which he wore a gold signet ring.

ASKED OCCASION

The rash obviously was not caused by an allergy to metal, so the allergist asked the man the occasion on which the ring was given.

It developed that his wife had given him the signet ring when he returned from a trip to Paris on which he had been unfaithful, Dr. Sanger said. The guilt feeling was manifested in the rash which cleared up when he admitted his failing.

Dr. Sanger found that eruptions around the ankle invariably mean the patient "thinks sex is a bad thing and wants to put is as far away from his mind as possible."

★ ★ ★

However, when the person experiences what he considers "bad thoughts," a guilt feeling results and the rash breaks out on the ankle.

Dr. Sanger's diagnosis for other rashes include:

External ear — the person is fearful that he may hear something which he suspects and which will cause him anger, shame or embarrassment.

Lips — this occurs many times in adolescence. The teenager may want to kiss but feels guilty about it and the irritated lips gives him an "out."

★ ★ ★

Eyelids — the individual is afraid of seeing something which he knows exists and which is intolerable to him.

Thumbs — this person is insecure. The inflamed thumb, whether the patient puts it in his mouth or not, indicates his desire to return to the security of his mother's breast.

Junior Editors BIBLE QUIZ

QUESTION: What was the first miracle by Jesus?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: Jesus performed his first miracle, at the urging of His mother Mary, by changing water into wine at the marriage feast in Cana. This action is generally regarded as the start of His public life of teaching and working miracles. Jesus made no promises when Mary informed him that her friends, the hosts, had run out of wine at the wedding feast, which usually lasted for several days in those times. But confident that He would help, she instructed the servants to do whatever He told them. In the dining hall were six tall stone jars, about as large as barrels and capable of holding 25 gallons each. Jesus told the servants to fill them to the brim with water. They were sceptical but obeyed. "Now draw some out," He instructed, "and take it to the steward of the feast." The steward, not knowing that the wine had been water only a few seconds ago, was amazed at its quality.

Actor Held on Narcotics Charge

Claims Arrest Frameup

Brady and Desmond Slattery, 43, actor-publicist, were arrested yesterday following a police raid on Brady's Hollywood Hills home. They were booked at Central Jail and released on $2,500 bail each for arraignment Monday.

Officers said they had received tips that narcotics parties were being staged at Brady's home. Brady, Desmond and two women were in the home at the time of the raid.

Sgt. John O'Grady, who led the raiding party, said Slattery threw a marijuana cigarette into the bushes after Brady warned him of the officers' approach.

Slattery told newsmen the two women found at Brady's house were "plants." He said they were sent there for a party and they disappeared at the height of the raid.

Police denied that the women were implicated in the raid in any way. O'Grady said the girls were they had nothing to do with the released when police were sure narcotics charge.

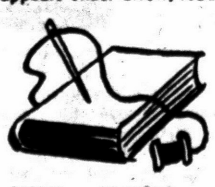

O'Grady said a search of the house disclosed evidence of a "reefer" party in the form of a partly smoked marijuana cigarette.

UNITED FUND

J. L. VOORHEES

We may, if we wish, donate to individual charities or individuals; then we would know where our money has gone. Or we may contribute to the United Fund—and know where our money is going. Of the two ways, the latter is far more efficient.

Records in our police departments are filled with histories of kind people who allowed themselves to be talked into assisting what seemed to be a worthy cause only to find that they had been buncoed. The United Fund has investigated each agency, each organization and knows to a dollar its needs; our money goes to fill that need.

The volunteer who comes to your door has credentials, gives you a receipt, allows you to participate in a community-wide plan.

You know your money is being stretched to the limit.

It Seems to Me . . .

Graham Convinces All Types

At the fall meeting in New York, ALAN J. GOULD, Executive editor of the Associated Press, gave directors some side lights on Evangelist BILLY GRAHAM.

"We've never had such universal demand for that type of news," said GOULD. "Nor was it confined to any particular sector. The requirements were nationwide. Newspapers carried columns and columns during the period of his activities.

★ ★ ★

"Editors reported to us that readers were accepting everything they printed and, in the language of the late lamented Lord GEOFFRY AMHERST, 'looked around for more when they were through.' "

★ ★ ★

BILLY GRAHAM makes a profound impression on any big audience he faces and does the same thing when he is part of a small group. According to GOULD, he possesses an unusually engaging personality and is earnest and sincere.

When he goes "all out" he's a tremendous orator and can captivate any audience, even though it numbers into the thousands; and here the personal touch begins to ebb away.

Graham was invited to speak to the Dutch Treat Club in New York which is perhaps the nation's top organization of newspaper executives, writers, actors, producers, TV officials, etc. "I wouldn't like to say they're hard boiled," said Gould, "for I'm one of them myself, but they've been here and there in large numbers and they've been exposed to every type of talk and act imaginable."

When Graham spoke before this group of sophists and sophisticates, there was an unspoken challenge, for these listeners weren't recruited from his Madison Square Garden believers.

GRAHAM realized the type of audience he faced and he tailored his material to suit the occasion and did a masterful job.

He won 'em all.

They stayed to applaud.

His business organization is very efficient and capable; and it's constructed on big and expansive lines. However, no organization could elevate a phony and keep him on the crest of the wave indefinitely. Stygian darkness enfolds the pretenders eventually.

★ ★ ★

He'll Try Again

Governor G. MENNEN WILLIAMS is an avowed candidate for the Presidential nomination on the Democratic ticket in 1960. And, as predicted in this column a few weeks ago, he will again enter the Gubernatorial race in 1958 instead of seeking a seat in the United States Senate.

Williams ran away from the late Mayor Cobo in '56 and Dems believe the GOP will be hard pressed to find a candidate who can give Williams much more than a light workout. Hence, Oakland County's own Phil Hart will draw the tougher assignment against Potter.

And in Conclusion . . . . . .

The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

The great missionary doctor, Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell, who first brought medicine to Labrador, carried on literally under the banner of "God is Love." That slogan appeared on a pennant that flew from the mainmast of his hospital ship. On its helm was inscribed "Jesus saith, follow Me and I will make you fishers of men." And Sir Wilfred performed operations in the hold of that craft. "It is deeds of love," he said, "that never fade from the soul."

Clergymen to Have Sunday Off

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

The clergy will have a day off tomorrow in more than 100,000 churches in the United States and Canada, for this is Laymen's Sunday, the day when the laymen take over. They will run the services, preach the sermons, read the Scriptures, and say the prayers —leaving the parson with nothing to do.

Laymen's Sunday is no stunt. It is a vigorous symbol of the Christian laymen's increasing awareness that he, too, is a minister, a responsible representative of his faith in all areas of his life.

This year's theme is "My Father's Business," taken from the scene reported in Luke, chapter 2, verse 49, where the young Lord, discovered in the temple by His parents, said to them, "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business."

Services will be built around this theme, developing the idea that every Christian is called to be about the Lord's business at all times — in his family life, his business life, and in his participation in community affairs.

Christianity is not a one-day-a week matter, nor is it confined to the church building. Every situation is to the Christian an opportunity to minister in the Lord's name.

Laymen's Sunday started in 1942, with only 30 churches participating in its observance. Its phenomenal growth is one of the impressive evidences of men's new role in the life of the church. The day will also be observed in the Armed Services around the world.

It is sponsored jointly by United Church Men (National Council of Churches) and The Laymen's Movement for a Christian World, an independent, nondenominational organization.

WORLD ORDER

Sunday is also designated, by the National Council's Department of International Affairs, as World Order Sunday. No special form of service is recommended by the department, and the day is in no way in conflict with Laymen's Sunday.

A brief message for use in the churches calls attention to world changes being brought about by the newly developing countries in Asia, Africa, and Latin America, and pleads for a Christian attitude toward the people of these countries as persons of equal dignity with all other persons of the earth.

World Order Sunday is always the first day of United Nations Week, which is the week in which U.N. Day, Oct. 24, occurs.

SHOEMAKER LEGEND

The twin saints, Crispin and Crispinian, who were martyred and buried at Soissons, in France, were cobblers during their short life in the French city, and naturally they immediately became the patron saints of all shoemakers everywhere.

In France, and to an extent elsewhere, they brought several new expressions about shoes and shoemaking into the language. A cobbler's tool kit came to be called simply a St. Crispin; a bootjack was a St. Crispin's stole; and an awl a St. Crispin's lance. Anyone seen hobbling along in shoes obviously too tight for him was said to be "in St. Crispin's prison."

In medieval times the local shoemakers' guild made a procession on Oct. 25 every year to the Chapel of Saints Crispin and Crispinian at Soissons.

Just Heed Ol' Ben Told: Best Way to Catch a Cold

If your quack is stringing the ever gullible customers along with an imposing metabolimeter, he is not likely to be interested in the basal temperature test. Veteran Urges All Others to Protect Their Interests

With the Russian satellite whizzing overhead and Egypt joining armies with Syria, and now Tito is recognizing the East German government and Russian blockade between East and West Germany; with the integration problem in Little Rock and so many other things, it seems as though ex-GI's have taken their thoughts off some of their own problems. Perhaps a lot of them think the old Economy League died with the last depression.

But perhaps they will awaken some day next January when Congress cuts off the rest of their benefits that have taken a long time to build up. Mr. Truman has offered a message on how to handle Syria.

As an expert in the art and practice of losing nations vastly larger and more important than Syria, Mr. Truman ought to be qualified to speak.

The American people will never forget that it was Truman who wouldn't turn his back on Dean Acheson, who in turn would not turn his back on Alger Hiss, and that between them they lost China by betraying Chiang Kai-shek. So the pot presumes to call the kettle black.

In the list of American Presidents, Truman probably will be classed with the third or fourth rate Tylers, Fillmores and Pierces. But those worthies at least did not venture, after their little day was done, to pose as great authorities on the problems they had failed to solve. They sank into respectable oblivion.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Dogs Are Fun and Valuable Pets

Dogs make excellent pets and also serve as good burglar alarms. Sometimes they trick their masters, as Sandy's case shows. She often feigns sleepiness to deceive Mrs. Crane. An only child should have a pet to cuddle and care for. And he is more relaxed at bedtime if you let his dog stay in the room with him.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case W-324: Sandy, aged 11, is our fox terrier dog.

She was given to Danny when he was in the fifth grade, for his teacher had no place to keep the puppy.

DR. CRANE

So she bequeathed him to Danny. And Sandy has been a family pet ever since. She is also quite "foxy."

For example, Mrs. Crane forbids her to sleep on the upholstered chairs. But Sandy relishes taking a nap there.

When Mrs. Crane was upstairs recently, I happened to be out in the kitchen.

I saw Sandy hop up into my big easy chair and go to sleep. A few minutes later, Mrs. Crane started down the stairs.

Sandy recognized her footstep at once and leaped out of the chair. But she didn't stop there.

No, she hastened out into the dining room. In the far corner we keep a cardboard box for Sandy's bed.

So she went over toward her box, but didn't actually climb into it. When Mrs. Crane reached the dining room door, Sandy walked over from her box and then stretched sleepily, as if she had just awakened in her box.

Several other times I have caught Sandy as she tried to pull this same deception.

For example, if Mrs. Crane and I are both outdoors and then come in, Sandy will also saunter from her box and stretch with both her front feet and then her hind legs, as dogs usually do.

But when we lay our hand on the seat of one of the upholstered chairs, we find the warm spot which tells us that she has been taking a snooze on that forbidden cushion.

FOXY MRS. CRANE

But my wife has developed a ruse that now keeps Sandy off the chairs. For Sandy once got her nose nipped by a mouse trap while we were at the farm.

So Mrs. Crane keeps a supply of clean, new mousetraps in our living room. When we leave, she lays a trap on each of the chairs and the davenport.

These traps don't need to be set, for Sandy is afraid of them and never comes within several feet of where they lie.

If, however, we happen to forget, then she quickly takes advantage and upon our return, we find the telltale warm spot on the chair, which proves she has been using it for her bed.

Sandy also shows another evidence of cleverness, for our bench legged Beagle, named Botch, likes to be outdoors much more than Sandy does.

In order to get the dogs to come in quickly from the back yard, we have often rewarded them with a dog biscuit apiece.

Now Sandy, who is indoors will bark loudly when she knows Botch is ready to come inside. Then as we go to the back door, Sandy trots along, for she expects to get her biscuit when we also reward Botch.

Among the virtues of having a pet dog is the fact it makes a good burglar alarm. Dogs have the faculty of spotting the footsteps of friends vs. strangers.

But recent animal research now shows that the pig is one of the smartest quadrupeds we have, much to the surprise of many folks.

Our failure to recognize the high I. Q. of the porker is probably due to the fact we butcher him before he is fully grown. But don't sell him short as regards brain power.

Pets are also helpful in teaching children to be unselfish and responsible, but your parents will probably be stuck with most of their care, even so.

Mrs. Crane and I should know, after 25 years of nursemaiding the pets of our five kids!

The Proxy Murder

By ERLE STANLEY GARDNER

Copyright 1957

THE STORY SO FAR: Jerry Conway is alarmed by an advertising campaign Gifford Farrell, a discharged employe, is conducting to obtain proxies and oust Conway at the stockholder's meeting of the California & Texas Global Co. In a mysterious telephone call a woman calling herself ROSALIND offers to supply Conway with a list of the proxies Farrell has acquired. Though he suspects a trap Conway agrees to follow her cloak-and-dagger directions. Eva Kane, his secretary, thinks she has heard her voice before. Asking the hotel clerk for a message for Gerald Boswell he obtains a key to a hotel suite for the meeting but instead of finding Rosalind there's a young woman scantily attired, and on her face a mud pack. She's Rosalind's roommate, Mildred. She points a gun at Conway which he takes from her. Since the gun has been fired recently Conway suspects a frame-up and calls Perry Mason, attorney. Mason looks over the gun and asks Conway for the key to the hotel room. He'll take Detective Paul Drake with him Drake convinces the hotel clerk he is Gerald Boswell.

Chapter 6

By ERLE STANLEY GARDNER

The girl in the elevator was reading her paperbacked novel. The picture on the cover depicted a good-looking woman in panties and bra, engaged in casual conversation with a man in evening clothes. The title was "No Smog Tomorrow."

The elevator girl didn't look up. As Mason and Drake entered and as the cage moved under their added weight, the operator closed the book, holding her forefinger to mark the page.

"Floor?" she asked.

"Seven," Drake said.

She started chewing gum as though the book had been sufficiently absorbing to make her forget about the gum.

"What's your book?" Drake asked.

"A novel," she said shortly, looking up for the first time.

"Looks spicy," Drake said.

"Any law against my reading what I want?"

"None," Drake said.

"I'm interested," Drake told her.

She flashed him a quick glance.

"But not twenty-five cents worth," the detective added.

SENENTH FLOOR

She diverted her eyes, pouted, jerked the cage to a stop, said, "Seventh floor."

Mason and Paul Drake walked out and down the corridor.

The girl held the cage at the seventh floor. The mirror on the side of the elevator shaft showed her eyes as she watched the two men walking down the corridor.

"Sure," Mason added. "She's interested."

"So much the better."

Mason paused before the door of 729. He knocked twice. There was no answer.

★ ★ ★

The door swung back on well-oiled hinges.

There was no one in the room, although the lights were on.

★ ★ ★

Mason entered the room, closed the door behind him, called, "Anyone home?"

No one answered.

Mason walked to the partially-opened door leading into the bedroom. He knocked gently.

"Everybody decent?" he called, waited for a moment for an answer, then pushed open the door.

Abruptly he recoiled.

"All right, Paul, we've found it!"

Drake came to stand at Mason's side. The body of the girl was of the twin beds. Her left arm and the head were over the far edge of the bed, blonde hair hung straight down alongside the dangling arm.

The girl wore a tight-fitting, light blue sweater, and blood from a bullet wound in the left chest had turned the sweater to a purplish hue.

★ ★ ★

The right arm was raised as though to ward off a blow at her face, and remained stiffly grotesque. The short, disarranged skirt disclosed neat nylon legs doubled up and crossed at the ankles.

★ ★ ★

Mason crossed to the body, felt of the wrist, and put slight pressure on the upturned right arm.

Paul Drake said, "Good Lord, Perry, we're in a jam. We've got to report this. I insist."

Mason, regarding the body in frowning concentration, said, "Okay, Paul, we'll report it."

"Not here! Not now!" Mason said sharply.

"We have to," Drake said. "Otherwise we'll be concealing evidence and making ourselves accessories. We've got to turn Conway in and let him . . ."

'HE'S MY CLIENT'

"What do you mean, we have to turn Conway in?" Mason interrupted. "Conway is my client."

"But he's mixed up in this thing!"

"How do you know he is?"

"He admits it!"

"The hell he does. There was nobody in the room when he left. This isn't the girl he left here. If it is she dressed after he left."

"What do you intend to do?" Drake asked.

"Come on," Mason told him. "Look, Perry, I've got a license. They can take it away. They. . ."

"Forget it," Mason said. "I'm running the show You're acting under my instructions. I'm taking the responsibility. Come on!"

"Where?"

"To the nearest phone booth where we can have privacy. First, however, we give it a quick once-over."

"No Perry, no. We can't touch anything. You know that."

"We can look around" Mason said. "Bathroom door partially open. No sign of baggage no clothes anywhere. Conway said the girl was in undies and was supposed to be Rosalind's roommate. This place doesn't look lived in."

IT'S A TRAP

"Come on, Perry, for the love of Mike," Drake protested. "It's a trap. If they catch us prowling the place we'll be the ones in the trap. We can claim we were going to phone in a report and they'll laugh at us, want to know what we were doing prowling the joint."

Mason opened a closet door. "I shouldn't have brought you along, Paul."

"You can say that again," Drake said.

Mason regarded the empty closet.

Drake followed the lawyer to the elevator. The elevator girl had brought the cage back to the seventh floor. She was sitting on the stool, her knees crossed, good-looking legs where they could be seen.

She was looking at the book but seemed more interested in her pose than in the book.

She looked up as Mason and Paul Drake entered the elevator. She closed the book, marking the place with her right forefinger. Her eyes rested on Paul Drake.

"Down?" she asked.

"Down," Mason said.

★ ★ ★

She looked Paul Drake over as she dropped the cage to the ground floor.

Della Street's voice said, "Hello."

"You decent?" Mason asked.

"Reasonably."

Reds Boast of Achievement

Sen. Gore Says Soviets Build Huge Atomic Plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gore (D-Tenn) said today the Russians told him they had started construction on two atomic power plants larger than anything the United States even has "in the talking stage."

Gore, who returned yesterday from a European trip including five days in the Soviet Union, said he was not permitted to see either plant.

But he added in an interview that he knew no reason to doubt the Russian claims. He said he was more determined than ever to push for strong U.S. moves to win the international atomic power race.

The Russian experts told him one of the plants would generate 420,000 kilowatts of electricity and the other plant 400,000, Gore reported. The completion date for both was set as 1960.

"We don't even have a 100,000-kilowatt plant in prospect before 1961," he commented. "And anything bigger than 200,000 kilowatts isn't even in the talking stage over here."

The senator, who serves on the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, sponsored a bill last year for a 400-million-dollar program of government construction of reactors. It passed the Senate but was beaten in the House with strong opposition from the Eisenhower administration.

Gore contends such a program is essential because it is not economically feasible for private utilities to pour large sums into such work now.

The Russian atomic experts impressed him as "skilled, competent, suave and maybe a mite confident," Gore said.

He said his impression was the nation has "what we would call a strict wartime regimentation of the economy."

Flying Service in South Haven

Air Age Operations Help Fruit Farmers

By ED MARKAITY
Associated Press Farm Writer

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — If you need machines for anything from poison bombing of pests by airplane to motorized cauliflower harvesters, some west Michigan farm may provide the answer.

Two pre-war planes are "stabled" at the Schaefer orchards near Sparta in Kent County as the basic elements of a new flying service for agriculture.

The do-it-yourself cauliflower harvester is based on the Roy Adkin farm near South Haven in Van Buren County.

Arnold Schaefer Jr., his brother, Caryl, and crop duster pilot Frank Edwards are adapting traditional ground methods of fruit production to air age operations.

They decided on the move last spring after Edwards was hired to dust the Schaefer orchards because wet ground delayed normal schedules.

PLANES SUITED

They found the front cockpits of their two-place biplaines ideally suited for conversion into hoppers for materials to be distributed through a venting system on the underside of the craft.

Caryl, a past president of the Michigan Flying Farmers, has a variety of farm tasks planned for the planes.

Besides chemical dusting and spraying for insects and plant disease control, he says aerial applications are suited for seeding grass and other crops, preventing frost damage, fertilizing crops and baiting farm pests.

Edwards' log book contains note of a job in which he sprayed range cattle in Texas by airplane as pest control measure. He says the same measures can be used on Michigan herds.

★ ★ ★

He recently demonstrated aerial poison baiting of the Schaefer orchards for control of field mice and also for application of a chemical to prevent pre-harvest apple drop.

Richard Reath, Kent County farm agent who observed the demonstration, noted little hazard to game and song birds results from the orchard mousebaiting.

The tiny chips of poisoned grain sift down through the grass and are hidden from birds — sight hunters — but are lures to nostrils of field mice.

Reath and Lyle Tompkins, area fruit specialist from Hart said growers can expect to find more of their trees girdled by the bark-eating mice this fall unless some type of control measures are used.

CUTS LABOR TIME

Meanwhile, the mobilized field harvester developed in their farm workshop by Adkin's son, Glen, reportedly cut labor time by about 25 per cent this year.

Developed at a cost of about $2,500, it can be used with a crew of from 5 to 15 men. Adkin used it for an 80-acre cauliflower harvest.

The machine, a system of conveyor belts mounted on a re-designed truck, rides on outsize airplane tires to prevent it from sinking into soft spots on the field.

It passes along rows of cauliflower while workers cut the ripened heads and place them on Conveyor belts.

★ ★ ★

The head roll along conveyors to crewmen on the truck who trim them and pass them to others for packing into crates carried on the vehicle. Traditional procedure is to cut the heads and toss them to a tractor-hauled trailer which carries them to a packing shed for trimming and crating.

Adkin says his method prevents much bruising of the harvested cauliflower.

The machine, derived from watching a tractor-drawn lettuce harvester, allows packing of 200 crates per trip. Adkin believes it is the first self-contained cauliflower harvester in use.

Man Needs Assistance Beyond Himself When Trouble Comes

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Some time ago, I was flying in a Navy plane with an officer who, I am told, is considered one of the best pilots in that service.

We were schedule to land at Floyd Bennett Field, just outside New York. But, several hundred miles out, my pilot friend told me that the ceiling at Floyd Bennett was only two hundred feet. Nevertheless, as we approached the New York area, I felt the plane begin to lose altitude.

DR. PEALE

"You're not letting down here?" I asked in some surprise.

"Oh, yes," he answered, nonchalantly.

We hadn't broken through the clouds yet and I could see nothing below. "Where are we?" I asked.

"Over Long Beach, going into Floyd Bennett," he said. And just then I saw below us a long stretch of sandy beach. I don't believe we were more than a hundred feet above it. Then we were over water, then a sandy beach again and, finally, a runway. The lights were on at its sides, although this was the middle of the day.

★ ★ ★

We made a smooth landing and I complemented the pilot, "That was a marvelous landing; it required real skill."

FAITH PLUS SKILL

"Not altogether," he replied. "It wasn't all skill. It required faith, too; faith in my instruments. I couldn't have made that landing by my own skill alone. When I'm sitting there in the cockpit under conditions like this, I don't say to myself, 'These instruments could be wrong; they might be off a bit.' I say, 'These instruments are right and will bring me down to a safe landing.' I put my trust completely in them, not in myself. To doubt those instruments could be fatal; to have faith in them means security."

★ ★ ★

This application is simple, isn't it? We are flying through life, and often we are in fog, mist and storm. Visibility is low. But we have instruments, too — reliable spiritual instruments. We can't trust ourselves too far — there is too much error in the human mind, far too much: prejudice, hate, ignorance and strange twists and turnings we cannot explain. It is these things that lead us off the beam.

Fortunately, on our personal instrument panel, we can have God, faith, prayer and love. And if we keep our attention fixed on them and trust in them, we can make our way with remarkable accuracy through all the vicissitudes of life.

A person who trusts in these wonderful spiritual instruments which we all have available will achieve the best results in life. He will act with a wisdom and insight far beyond his native capacity. He is being guided by a greater power.

I would like to plant just one thought in your mind.

If things haven't gone too well for you, perhaps it's because you've trusted too much to your own supposed skills. Maybe you have been trying to reach your important decisions without the guidance that is based on truth.

Perhaps you have been looking fearfully into the fog and the gloom, into the uncertainties and the shadows, rather than straight ahead at your true instruments.

To get on the right course through life and come in for a safe and happy landing, keep your eyes on God. Trust in Him, look ahead and plan in His name, and you cannot go wrong.

Pastors' Salary to Be Studied

Grant From Rockefeller Brothers' Fund to Help in National Survey

The nation's ministers, whose average purchasing power today has been rated only slightly above the nation's farmers and restaurant waiters, will be cheered that a study of their economic situation is about to be undertaken.

Approval of what will be the first comprehensive study of ministers' salaries ever made was given by the General Board of the National Council of Churches at its meeting in New York Oct. 2.

With the help of a grant of $33,500 from the Rockefeller Brothers' Fund, a far-reaching interdenominational analysis will be undertaken.

Dr. Samuel W. Blizzard, noted sociologist, will head the undertaking, getting the facts on what ministers actually receive as distinct from housing and fringe benefits. Information concerning the services required of a minister and the provisions for budgeting made by the church groups will also be included.

"Surveys made recently by several denominations indicate that ministers' salaries have not kept pace with the changing economy," Dr. Blizzard said, citing a prior study by the National Council of 14 denominations in the North Central states a year ago.

This showed that the average minister's salary in 1954 in rural churches was $3,231 and in urban churches $3,544.

Dr. Blizzard has been granted a year's leave from Princeton Theological Seminary, where he is professor of Christianity and society, to conduct the survey.

Council Hits Minstrels

The Interchurch Council of New Bedford, Mass. (Protestant and Orthodox) adopted a resolution condemning minstrel shows as offensive to churchgoers. It asked all member congregations to reject literature and programs which "characterize racial or national groups in such a way as to perpetuate the concept of the stereotype."

CARILLONNEUR AT CHRIST CHURCH CRANBROOK — Dr. Maurice A. Garabrant, organist, carillonneur and director of music at Christ Church Cranbrook will present a carillon recital at 4 p. m. Sunday. Seated at the clavier, he strikes mahogany levers with gloved fists instead of playing keys with his fingers as on the organ. The carillon has a total of 62 bells, covering four complete chromatic octaves with a range of 48 notes.

Bell Concert 4 P.M. Sunday

Dr. Maurice Garabrant to Give Carillon Recital From Christ Church

Ringing out over the countryside at 4 p.m. Sunday will be the 62 bells of the carillon in the tower of Christ Church Cranbrook on Lone Pine road, Bloomfield Hills.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Maurice A. Garabrant, organist and director of music at Christ Church, will play "The Cranbrook Carillon" for his opening number of the recital.

This will be followed by "Musically Interesting Changes for Ten Bells."

Other numbers to be presented will be:

Anna Magdalena's March ... J. S. Bach
Pastorale ... G. C. Menotti
Minuet in G ... L. van Beethoven
Traumerei ... R. Schumann
Great Is Thy Mercy ... G. F. Handel
Sonata for a Musical Clock G. F. Handel
Three Hymns
O Zion Haste ... Tidings
How Wondrous and Great ... Lyons
Faith of Our Fathers ... St. Catherine

The stationary bells are played from an eight foot long clavier which is similar to the manuels and pedals of an organ.

HITS WITH FISTS

Instead of keys like an organ or piano, the carillonneur strikes the mahogany levers with his fists. Gloves are worn and usually the little finger has an extra padding of leather.

★ ★ ★

The clavier is in the center of the 20 x 20 foot room below the bells. Wires connect the levers with the balanced clappers which hang from the inside of the bells.

From the second floor level, Dr. Garabrant will climb 65 turret steps to play. Another 55 steps of winding stairs leads up to the belfry.

When the carillon is played, it can be heard for miles. It stays in tune for centuries. The concert Sunday afternoon will last about 45 minutes.

★ ★ ★

Other recitals will be given through October at the same time by Dr. Garabrant and guest artists.

Harvest Festival Some Sunday

Mission Superintendent Urges Urban, Rural Churches to Participate

Both urban and rural churches are being urged by Dr. Glenn F. Sanford, superintendent of town and country work in the Division of National Missions, to have a service of "Harvest Festival" on some Sunday this autumn.

★ ★ ★

"It is natural for those who till the soil, plant the grain, and harvest to recognize God in the whole process and to give thanks at the altar of the church," says Dr. Sanford.

"And it is equally important for the rest of us—especially city folks—who are wholly dependent upon what happens in the country for their food and raiment to give thanks to God.

"The Harvest Festival has always been observed as a religious celebration and has a strong Biblical background. Harvest time offers one of the best opportunities to make clear the divine relationship between the spiritual and the physical.

"It offers, by far, the best opportunity to help understand the value of land and the place of the farmer in the total life of the people, the nation and the world."

Dr. Sanford suggests that the Harvest Festival be held at the normal harvest season in any area; that there be a special preaching service in the morning; a common fellowship luncheon at noon; and perhaps a quarterly or other conference in the afternoon; and a youth rally and perhaps motion pictures of rural life in the evening.

Translating Bible Into Guarani

The Bible is being translated into the Guarani language in Paraguay by Dr. Reinaldo Decoud, professor at the Free Methodist Bible School in Asuncion. Already completed are the books of Genesis and Matthew.

Other portions of the Bible were translated many years ago, but since there were no fixed spelling rules, grammatical errors were made.

The Guarani language, which originated with the Guarani Indians, is spoken by the majority of the people of Paraguay, even though Spanish is the official language.

Correct Your Own Failings First

By ANNE HEYWOOD

Mark Twain said, "It is noble to live a good life, but it is even more noble to help others live a good life. Also easier."

★ ★ ★

'REALLY NEEDS HELP'

"Please send your pamphlet on better personal relations, in the enclosed addressed envelope, to my niece in Indiana. She really needs help along those lines. She won't take a word of advice—hasn't for years. I thought if this pamphlet just came to her anonymously . . ."

★ ★ ★

There were four pages of this poor woman's complaints about her niece and her daughter and all the people who ought to be doing better, but who wouldn't listen to her.

Obviously, it's the woman herself who needs help on better personal relations.

It's a good rule, really, to correct in ourselves whatever we find to complain of in others. That usually keeps us so busy that we haven't time to worry about the behavior of others!

However, like most of the things I've learned, I learned that the hard way.

AN AWFUL GOSSIP

My best friend in high school was an awful gossip and one of the laziest girls alive. Because I was fond of her, I used to worry a good deal about her.

★ ★ ★

One day I was sitting, pondering her problem. She had failed in algebra just because she was too lazy to do her homework.

At that point, my grandfather came in and offered a penny for my thoughts. I gave them to him and, suddenly, the old boy got a glint in his eye.

★ ★ ★

"Young lady," he said severely, "how much time have you spent worrying about her laziness?"

"Oh, hours and hours. You see, she's —"

OWN LAZINESS

"Every minute you spend deploring her laziness is laziness on your part. You should be studying your own math this minute, instead of deploring her behavior.

★ ★ ★

"Every time you think what a gossip she is, you're actually engaging in gossip, or at least malice, yourself.

"Stop being your sister's keeper and get after yourself. Remember," he ended with a nice oratorical flourish, "yourself is a hard enough row to hoe for the rest of your life!"

★ ★ ★

Next time you settle down to contemplate somebody else's bad faults, or to have it out with somebody about their bad habits, stop yourself short.

Devote that same amount of time to correcting some little undesirable trait of your own and you'll make out a lot better!

Gals Want Tresses of Brown

Why? Men Think Dark Hair Looks More Natural

By OLGA CURTIS

★ ★ ★

"We sell more brown hair dye than anything else," explained the hair products manufacturer from Chicago. "It's considered the most 'natural' hair color . . . by men."

Gidwitz, one of three balding brothers who masquerade as a fictional beauty named Helene Curtis," admitted that what men like determines what hair products are sold to women.

PREFER WAVES

Permanent waves, for instance, are a multi-million dollar item, because "men think wavy hair is feminine; straight hair is masculine."

★ ★ ★

"A girl with straight slick hair may be stylish, but most men consider a boy cut unromantic. It's a very rare woman who doesn't care what men think. As a result, no straight hair style has ever been successful in America."

The amiable Gidwitz, whose products are sold in most beauty parlors and drugstores, adds that it's "men who have made beauty the third biggest business in the U. S."

★ ★ ★

"No girl ever really combs a man out of her hair these days," he grinned. "All advertising is keyed to man-appeal. We sell romance with every hair product." Why?

CROWNING GLORY

"Well, did you ever see a baldheaded pin-up girl?"

"Hair is a woman's crowning glory."

★ ★ ★

Gidwitz noted that the "crowning glory" is being dyed these days at a greater rate than ever before.

He thinks it's all to the good, both financially and psychologically, that modern women casually switch hair colors as they do dresses.

Ann Arbor Festivities Call Alums

Games and Dance Highlight U. of M. Homecoming

By MARCIA THOMAS

This is Homecoming at the University of Michigan. The theme for this year's displays will be "Mythigan Therpant."

Ninety-eight displays made by members of residence halls sorority and fraternity houses, are competing for trophies in the annual contest.

Homecoming exhibits are judged on originality, appropriateness, artistic and mechanical design. Judges are Elizabeth Leslie, assistant dean of women, Prof. Marvin Eisenbery of the Fine Arts Department; Prof. Walter Gores, design; and William Cross, assistant to the dean of men.

'DUKE' TO PLAY

After the football game this afternoon, in which Michigan plays Northwestern, the annual Homecoming dance will feature composer Duke Ellington and his band.

The "Duke," known throughout the world as the creator of new, rich, distinctly American musical idiom, will play from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Intramural Building.

★ ★ ★

Sharon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wall of Belmont Avenue, is a freshman in lit school. She is a resident of Mosher Dorm, where she is an active member on the dorm's social committee.

Also a freshman, Constantine, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sousanis of Mohawk Avenue. Besides being a lit school student, Constantine is a member of the photograph club on campus.

MUDBOWL GAME SET

Homecoming will also feature the annual Mudbowl game. This colorful event is played in the ravine beside the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity house. Here SAE men clash with their friendly rivals from across the street, Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Collegiate Sorosis and Kappa Alpha Theta sororities, neighbors of the SAEs and Phi Delts, will play a soccer game in the muddy bowl during halftime.

"Queen" of the Mudbowl will be selected today by special judges.

Participating in the contest will be fraternity men dressed by competing sororities. After a parade in front of the judges the "beautifulest" contestant will be crowned.

Square Dance Group Holds Halloween Fete

William Schmiel, John DePauw, Robert Neinstedt, Howard Upton and Howard Bond were callers for Friday evening's Halloween party held by the Elk's Sashay-Quadrille Club.

Mrs. Bert Denham and Mr. Upton won costume prizes while Mrs. Ken Whiting and William Cash won an apple-eating contest. Pie-eating contest was won by Mr. DePauw.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Templeton, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Redo, Mr. and Mrs. William Tripp, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Baber and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Houghtor.

Catherine Ann Justin Wed in Our Lady of Refuge Rite

A 10 a.m. Nuptial Mass united Catherine Ann Justin and Thomas Francis Devereaux, of Birmingham, today at Our Lady of Refuge Catholic Church. The Rev. Giles Bartol officiated at the double-ring ceremony, in the presence of 600 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William John Justin of Orchard Lake. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Devereaux of Howell.

EMPIRE STYLE GOWN

For her wedding Catherine chose an Empire style gown of white taffeta with Alencon lace and seed pearl trim on the bodice and wore matching gauntlets. The bell skirt was accented by a chapel-length train which fell from a tiny back bow.

Her fingertip veil of French illusion was secured to a crown of pearls and pailettes. A pearl choker was her only jewelry, and she carried a cascade arrangement of white miniature snowdrift chrysanthemums centered with a white orchid.

★ ★ ★

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Robert Watkins of Columbus, Ohio. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Edward Coe of Kalamazoo, sister of the bridegroom; Gerrie Godin of Grosse Pointe and Sheila Flannery of Orchard Lake.

All wore peacock blue velveteen gowns with lace bodices in the Empire design. Their headpieces were dyed-to-match feather caps with delicate pearl trim, and they carried arrangements of white fugi chrysanthemums.

ASSIST BRIDEGROOM

Acting as best man was Wilford Devereaux of Howell, cousin of the bridegroom. Ushers were Clyde Maas of Lansing, Lester Fan Dell of Alma, Charles Hood Jr. of Birmingham and James Lamoree of Birmingham.

Following the ceremony a breakfast for 200 guests was served at Pine Lake Country Club. The club also was the scene of an afternoon reception.

★ ★ ★

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Justin chose a Dior street-length sheath dress in ashes of roses Chantilly lace over chiffon, with rose blush accessories and a brown cymbidium orchid. Mrs. Devereaux wore a dress of pink lace over taffeta, with a feather cap and matching accessories and a corsage of white cymbidium orchids.

★ ★ ★

The couple will live in Birmingham.

Mental Illness Behind Iron Curtain

Communism Is Vise to Grip, Break, Human Nerves

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of two articles on mental illness behind the iron curtain by Ruth Nathan.

By RUTH NATHAN

Why mental depression, hopelessness and suicide behind the iron curtain? The reasons are multiple but have one thing in common: they are traced directly to the mental cruelty imposed by the Communist government.

For example, a Bulgarian father, whose 12-year-old son had informed on him for listening to Free World broadcasts, was so brokenhearted at his son's disloyalty that he shot to death both himself and his boy . . . A young woman teacher who'd been hospitalized as a "saved suicide," said she had met about 20 other women teachers there who'd failed in the same attempt at self-destruction.

"All of us," she reflected, "were unable to adapt to the confusion, the contradictions of the post-Stalin regime."

SPIRITUAL EXHAUSTION

A literary editor who defected to Austria from Poland said that, since the Communists have ruled his country, "neurosis is the number one problem; there is general spiritual exhaustion."

An elderly Budapest grandmother whose daughter and grandchild had been under mental care said: "The strengthening of religious belief makes life under Communism easier to bear, but religious freedom is not to be found. People need to pray openly, in groups, in churches. My children didn't dare."

★ ★ ★

Poland and Hungary continue to be the most incorrigible problem satellites for Red Mother Russia. It may be, though, that the firm hand of the Kremlin is smacking too low and too hard for the point of discipline in dealing with the intransigence of these two most troublesome states.

VIOLENCE AND SCORN

In Hungary, there is continual belligerence, mocking and violence. After the Reds distributed early this year the benificent poster: "Man Is The Most Precious Value In A Peoples' Democracy," it was followed by a new rush of executions of Freedom Fighters, most of them teenagers and young adults.

Janos Kadar, top man of the present Budapest regime, has been described concisely as "no model of mental health." A foreign correspondent who visited with him pictured him as a man "weary of life," who often speaks inaudibly to himself. When the reporter asked him: "Do you realize you are hated by the Hungarian people?" he answered blankly: "Yes, I know . . . yes, I know."

In Poland, where writers nowadays feel freer to discuss openly the problems of the Polish state, much is being said about what is causing the mental and emotional collapse of its people. Some of the points they've been making:

"Trust is degenerating. The people don't know whom to trust. They are also guilt-ridden with 'alibism,' which is the feigned outward faithfulness toward Moscow hiding the disappointments and desolations."

JITTERS AT TOP, TOO

The emotional toll of dishing out the injustices of the Red regime apparently is overwhelming the Red bigwigs themselves. An escaped Rumanian Air Force psychiatrist was able to tell plenty about his treatment of the upper-echelon victims.

"Highly placed Party members are tense, tormented, difficult patients," he said, "reluctant to talk freely and hiding the truth even from themselves. They are showing the strain more than the satellite peoples. They are living on large doses of evipan (tranquilizer) and morphine. Some, like Mr. Khrushchev, prefer to drown themselves in vodka . . ."

So here we have the picture of widespread instability in the Red states, among the proconsuls of the Kremlin as well as among the enslaved peoples. How, then, emerging from this sick climate, have the recent thousands of Hungarian refugees now in the United States been able to adapt and adjust to their new environment?

Talks with leaders of religious and social welfare agencies reveal what may seem to be a phenomenon — that the need for psychiatric attention among the escapees is almost nil! There are none of the expected and more serious conditions, such as total crackups, resignation, apathy.

★ ★ ★

In the opinion of this writer, who has interviewed scores of the new arrivals, Americans might best grasp the paradox of their sudden switch to good mental health this way: Just imagine yourself virtually stir-crazy in the enslavement of a captive country.

FREEDOM AT LAST

Suddenly you emerge, as if from a vast prison; you are safe across the border; the curtain of fear on your brain is lifted; you see and smell free land; you have hope; you get your bearings; you're miraculously restored.

★ ★ ★

Then comes kindness and assistance. Reverend Albert Rees Hay of North Haven, Conn., who has worked closely with the Church World Service in rehabilitating Iron Curtain refugees, told me:

"I have been in close personal contact with about 50 of these young people, age 16 to 28. Nearly all suffered from anxiety, exhaustion, suspicion, fearfulness, bewilderment, nervousness. After about two weeks in town, they began to throw off initial fright. They were placed in friendly surroundings; kept busy.

"I remember the day I worked near a group of them and heard what I thought was a strange sound. It was laughter! Laughter, to which I am ordinarily so accustomed, rushed in on me like a shock when I heard it for the first time from these youngsters.

"Then I watched them, day to day, emerge as strong-willed, self-respecting, independent individuals . . . even hard to mold, I would say. American people should know this and not treat them as poor cousins."

The United States, it seems, has much to be thankful for. While the Kremlin-dictated countries battle a continuing rise of mental health problems among its severely distraught masses, incredibly and fortunately, America has been receiving the very cream of high caliber moral strength from its shores. Freedom has proved to be the best medicine for a captive mind.

Spadea's American Designer Pattern

Jo Copeland

Princess Dress Serves as All-Year Basic Style

Designs by Jo Copeland have a long-lasting loveliness because she believes that fashion should not be faddish but rather an articulation of true style. This year-around basic dress cut on princess lines and with only 14 pieces in the pattern is easy to make.

★ ★ ★

Seemingly, the shoulder straps are cut in one with the side gores, and they are, but only up to the point under the bust. Here they are released and faced, making an effective bosom line. Note the slight width of the straps, so very flattering to the back of your arm.

Choose peau de soie, taffeta, brocaded silks in solid colors or one of the new dark, warp prints. If you're planning a winter vacation wardrobe, it is wonderful in novelty cotton, shantung, prints, pique or linen. Give the skirt the advantage of its fullness with a pretty petticoat.

Sizes	Bust	Waist	Hips Inches	Length From Nape of Neck to Waist
10	34	24	35	16½
12	36	26	36	16¾
14	36½	26½	37½	17
16	38	28	39	17¼
18	40	30	41	17½

Size 12 requires 5¾ yards of 39 inch material for dress and ⅝ yard of 39-inch material for lining.

To order Pattern 1209, state size, send $1. For new jumbo 96-page Pattern Booklet 14, send 50 cents — for Jo Copeland label, send 25 cents. For airmail service in U.S., add 25 cents per pattern, 50 cents per booklet. Sales tax extra.

Report Shakeup Probable in Textile Union Leaders

WASHINGTON (INS) — A shakeup in the leadership of the 40,000-member United Textile Workers was reported likely today in a move designed to avoid possible AFL-CIO ouster on corruption corruption charges.

Asked in advance of a union executive board meeting today whether a change in union leadership was impending, UTW President Anthony Valente said, "It's up to the board."

★ ★ ★

President Valente and Secretary-Treasurer Lloyd Klenert, along with UTW Southern Director Joe Jacobs, have been under fire of the Senate Rackets Committee.

In summer hearings the committee heard testimony that Klenert and Valente used union funds to finance purchase of expensive homes for themselves in Washington suburbs. Both denied the committee's charges that their use of the funds was improper. They said all borrowed money had been repaid.

Although the UTW is a small union, what happens to it is important to the textile industry. The UTW has for years operated in rivalry with the Textile Workers of America.

Raids on each other's membership have about canceled out each union's organizing efforts. Only a small portion of the textile industry has consequently been operating on union contracts.

Under the AFL-CIO merger, the parent organization has been striving to combine the two unions. It seems likely that this will be an inevitable result of the corruption charges against the UTW.

According to one report, Klenert and Jacobs were expected to step out at today's meeting and leave the UTW under Valente's rule. Klenert has been the union's chief boss.

Another report had it that both Valente and Klenert would get out, leaving Jacobs at the union helm.

Unless something is done, the UTW faces possible suspension next week by the AFL-CIO, along with the Teamsters and Bakery Workers unions, both of which also have been involved in scandals disclosed by the Senate Rackets Committee.

The UTW leaders may decide against abdicating and accept AFL-CIO ouster. There have been other reports the union has considered operating on an independent status, divorced from the AFL-CIO.

Report Navies Ending German River Patrols

BONN (INS) — The U. S., British and French navies were reported today to have decided to end their operations on German rivers, such as the Rhine.

DPA, the West German news agency, said the U. S. Navy will hand over its Rhine patrol duties next spring to engineer units of the U. S. and West German Armies.

Count and Countess Discuss Meatballs

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—The atmosphere is very regal nowadays—as we practice our dipsy-doodles for the Queen—so I've been bending an elbow with a countess, movie star Elsa Martinelli, once a mere secretary.

★ ★ ★

But we got along "royally"—so sorry—particularly when we discussed Italian meatballs of which, it seems, there aren't any.

WILSON

"First," I humbly asked pretty Miss Martinelli, who was a model here with only 20 bucks in her kick about three years ago, "is it correct to call you 'Countess' now?"

"Our visiting cards," replied her friendly, nice-looking husband, Count Franco Mancinelli Scotti, who's in tobacco, "say 'Count and Countess.'"

"Has it changed your life any being a Countess?" I inquired of Elsa, who's been one since June 1.

★ ★ ★

"You can be a Count and be a heel—and you can be a Mr. and be a wonderful man," the Count answered for her. "Even without being a Countess, she would have only done things that were right."

"I have always been against cheesecake pictures," asserted Her Highness, "because they're so sexy. It's so seely of anybody to get a kick out of seeing a leg of somebody. Of course, day always ask me to push my skirt up. I say no, what's de deefrence?"

ELSA and COUNT

"Dey say it sells de pictures better!" the Countess explained. "But I always say to have more eenches of bosom is not sexee!"

★ ★ ★

Which seemed to take care of the cultural side. Then the royal Roman couple mentioned that their American friends are disturbed that they don't eat meatballs with spaghetti.

"I was afraid to taste even," the Contessa shuddered.

"In Rome we don't have it, the meatball, at least not with spaghetti. It doesn't fit. It's like homburger with ossparegass. That's something else! Here dey always give you the homburg with onion even if you don't want to."

The Count murmured over a gin-and-tonic. "In Rome we have an expression. 'Different countries you go, different habits you find.'"

"We have one, too," I said. "When in Rome, do as the Romans do."

Elsa and her Count have a new home full of old ruins on the Old Appian Way outside of Rome, not far from Gina Lollobrigida's home. "I meet twice a day Gina's husband, Dr. Milko Skofic," the Count said.

★ ★ ★

"But we don't spend any time with movie people," Elsa shrugged. "To me eet's no deefrent to be a movie star than any other job."

Reds Pressure Berlin Lifeline

Aim to Whittle Access; Force Allied Recognition of East German State

BERLIN (INS) — The Communists are picking away at the lifelines which keep West Berlin nourished 110 miles behind the iron curtain.

No Allied or German officials foresee another blockade or anything like it, but they admit that the East German regime and its Soviet masters are employing constant pressure to whittle off allied rights of access and to keep it apparent that the lines of communication are tenuous.

It is a process which has been going on for the eight years since the Allies and West Berlin defeated the blockade, proving to the Soviets that the Western Big Three would go to any length to maintain the island city.

The latest move is a threat by the East German regime that without the permission of the "German Democratic Republic" no foreign aircraft will be able to fly over East German territory.

The Communist magazine "German Foreign Policy," in an article which is regarded as official, said East Germany does not recognize the four-power agreement of 1945 which grants the Western Allies use of three 30-mile wide air corridors between Berlin and West Germany. They are controlled by a commission which includes Russian representatives, but no East Germans.

The Russians themselves, in agreements which claim to establish the full sovereignty of East Germany, have said the special status of the air corridor is "temporary."

Lately Americans have found it almost impossible to obtain Russian visas to travel through East Germany. They are told that the East Germans are the proper people to handle the request.

★ ★ ★

The Western Allies refuse to admit that East Germany, a state they do not recognize, has any right to control West Berlin traffic and insist that their officials deal only with Russian officers when traveling.

★ ★ ★

If the Communists should get really tough, they would find West Berlin well prepared to cope with a blockade. A $170-million stockpile has been built up to take care of essential needs for food, fuel, raw materials and medicine for periods of six months to one year.

Hope to Fire Rocket in Third Test Today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (INS) —America's third satellite test rocket reportedly may be fired from Cape Canaveral today if weather conditions are right.

The test rocket is designed to prove out the powerful first-stage engine, rated at 27,000 horsepower, which will lift the satellite on its first step into outer space.

Included in the rocket are dummy second and third stages, mounted only for purposes of the test. The first U.S. firing that could create a satellite is scheduled for December.

Ivan Can Dream of Owning a Car —No Dates Given

MOSCOW (INS) — Not only are the Russian people being promised trips to the moon but Ivan-in-the-street may soon own his own automobile.

Soviet industry has designed a "people's car" and built a prototype of it, although no production date has been announced.

The car, somewhat similar to the German Volkswagen, has an air-cooled two-cylinder engine of new construction which reportedly will give 62 miles to one-and-a-half gallons of gasoline at speeds up to 75 miles an hour.

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UP) — Sheriff Earl B. Whitmore's office has solved the Half Moon Bay "trunk murder case."

John Dooley, 10, told police Sunday he saw a body being stuffed into the rear end of a car.

After 40 hours of investigating, the sheriff's office learned yesterday: The body was that of a live high school student who wanted to avoid paying the 90-cent admission to hot rod drag races.

If 'Maverick' Doesn't Shoot It Down

Joan Caulfield May Find Success With 'Sally' Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — What does Joan Caulfield have in common with Robert Cummings, Eve Arden, Richard Boone, Wally Cox and Gale Storm?

If you were up on your TV history, you'd know that all six have starred in two television series. Joan is the latest member of the two-time winners' club. Once the delight of "My Favorite Husband," she is now appearing on NBC Sunday nights in "Sally."

Provided her show isn't shot down by the sharp-shooting "Maverick" on ABC, Joan should find success with "Sally." Judging from last week's porgram, it appears to be one of the brighter spots in an otherwise dismal season. It had crisp writing, bright direction and sharp acting by Joan, Marion Lorne the wonderful Mrs. Gurney of the late "Mister Peepers" show and other accomplished actors.

"If people dont' like our show, they just don't have taste," Joan says militantly. "I'm a tough audience. I've done some shows that make me cringe. But some of the 'Saly' shows have made me real proud."

Well, you gotta admit she's frank.

She said at first her husband said he would merely get the series started and then bow out—"but now you can't pry him away from it." The producer of "The Robe," he is now making a movie with Frank Sinatra, Tony Curtis and Natalie Wood, as well as supervising "Sally."

Prince to Confer With Top Scientists

★ ★ ★

There seemed small doubt that he would ask about Vanguard, the U.S. earth satellite project, which is still months away from matching Russia's achievement in getting its baby moon into outer space.

Philip planned to drop in on the scientists at the National Academy of Sciences headquarters while Queen Elizabeth visited the National Art Gallery and the Children's Hospital.

The prince long has had a keen interest in scientific developments. He was president of the British Assn. for the Advancement of Science when he last visited America in 1951.

Believe Portrait Bought for $25 Is a Rembrandt

LONDON (UP) — Two art experts announced today a portrait bought for $25 half a century ago is a Rembrandt which may be worth $150,000 or more.

Winder and his partner, Stewart Goodall, said the painting is unquestionably a portrait by Rembrandt of his wife, Saskia, whom he painted many times. They said X-ray and ultraviolet tests showed a Rembrandt signature under an overlay of paint in one corner, and proved that the canvas itself is at least 300 years old.

★ ★ ★

John Corlette, the major's son, said the picture had long been a family joke because his father always insisted it was an undiscovered Rembrandt. The major's wife picked it up at a London auction in 1905.

Corlette said he has insured the portrait for 30,000 pounds ($84,000) and will offer it for sale if a panel of experts agree with Winder and Goodall that it is a Rembrandt.

Lakes and rivers in Manitoba annually produce a commercial fish catch worth more than six million dollars.

IGY Scientists Investigate Puzzle

Airglow Gives Earth Mysterious Halo

(Scientists have long been mystified by strange phenomena that haunt the earth. Perhaps none has been more puzzling than the rainbow hues that surround the planet like a halo. Here, through the eyes of a veteran science reporter, is the story of another phase of international Geophysical Year research.)

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

BOULDER, Colo. (UP) — At night our earth wears a curious green, red and yellow halo.

And it moves, as though swept by hurricane winds of 150 miles per hour.

Rarely can human eyes detect this halo, so faint and filmy it is.

But if our eyes were sensitive enough, one part of the halo would make even the darkest night like mid-twilight — like the time when you need to turn on your car's headlights. Perhaps some animals can see it, and so make their way easily in the dark.

This halo is called airglow, a fascinating mystery now being explored during the International Geophysical Year (IGY).

Dr. Franklin E. Roach, astrophysicist and an authority on airglow, is one of the few persons who has seen the belt of colored light floating on the night side of the earth.

★ ★ ★

"It is filmy bands like the Milky Way, but moving like a cloud," he said. "To see it, you need a very dark night and must let your eyes become accustomed to the dark. Then you may catch glimpses of it by looking out of the sides of your eyes."

NEED SPECIAL INSTRUMENTS

Special instruments, photometers, that can measure the intensities of selected wave lengths of light, have brought some knowledge of airglow. Rockets have shot through it with telltale instruments. Presumably there is a day-glow, too, but it has not been detected even with instruments.

One is a band of green light, existing at about 60 miles up. At 96 miles up, there is a red glow. Yellow light comes from the air about 50 miles up. Below it is a layer of complex radiations, in the infra-red range which our human eyes cannot see.

"But were our eyes sensitive to this infra-red radiation, we would have trilight all though a dark clear night. We would never be able to see the Milky Way at all. The whole history of astronomy and our knowledge of the universe would be different," Dr. Roach said.

Both green and red light above come from atoms of oxygen "excited" by sunlight, by streams of electrons from the sun, or by turbulent collisions, or some other forces so they emit light.

The yellow hue stems from sodium atoms also excited so as to emit light.

The infra-red radiation is due to hydroxyl atoms, created from water vapor. It varies greatly in intensity and movements.

Perhaps they are actually being swept along by winds of that force, Dr. Roach suggests. The violent winds might even create some of the glow, bashing oxygen atoms together to make them give off light.

IGY STATIONS REPORT

All the information comes feeding into a data center here for compilation by Dr. Roach and his staff. By IGY's end in 1959, they expect to have a file of one million punch cards, each containing 17 bits of airglow information.

Enthusiastically, Dr. Roach believes that "inevitably we will get spectacular findings from some of the dozen major fields of study of the IGY. They will be unpredictable. IGY has caught the imagination of scientific workers. They have all become internationally minded."

Pontiac Rally Is Too Little and Too Late

By BILL CORNWELL

It was Pontiac's desire to play only two quarters instead of four that helped a husky Saginaw team roll to a 27-14 victory over the Chiefs last night in their Saginaw Valley Conference duel at Wisner Stadium.

The setback, Pontiac's 1st in the SVC this season, somewhat dampened Homecoming festivities for hopeful old grads and other well-wishers who wanted to see if the Chiefs could again successfully defy the odds-makers.

But the Chiefs forgot to play football in the 1st half and that, to all intents and purposes, sums up the story of yesterday's game.

Saginaw, propelled by fullback Bill Yauck, displayed a pulverizing ground attack during the first two periods and pushed the Chiefs up and down the field for a 20-0 halftime advantage.

Yauck, a bruising 210-pounder who played tackle last year, and his ball-carrying partners, halfbacks Bruce Hill and Tyrone Bryant, ran over, through and around the PHS gridders in the first 24 minutes. Yauck scored three times for the Trojans and Bryant tallied the other.

The 1st half statistics tell the sad tale. Saginaw made seven 1st downs compared to none for Pontiac and the Trojans rolled up 143 yards rushing while the Chiefs were held to a lowly three.

Pontiac was a changed team in the 2nd half. The Chiefs rallied for two touchdowns and seemed ready to go for the tying counter when a costly fumble permitted Saginaw to score an insurance TD.

Speedy Bob Manning, who accounted for both Pontiac touchdowns, Larry Douglas and Dick Whitmer spearheaded the 2nd half surge.

Saginaw marched to a touchdown from the opening kickoff. The Trojans went 62 yards in 10 plays with Bryant cutting 22 yards through Pontiac's right side for the tally. Bob Halliday kicked the extra point.

The Chiefs were forced to punt and Saginaw took possession on its own 47. On the 1st play of the 2nd period, Yauck smashed across from one yard out and Halliday again converted.

A pass interception set the stage for Saginaw's 3rd TD. Terry McLean intercepted quarterback Fred Staley's aerial on the Trojan 43 and rambled to the Pontiac 17. Bryant slashed his way to the four yard line from where Yauck bulled over.

Revived Pontiac drove 64 yards in the 3rd quarter for its initial touchdown with Manning hitting pay dirt from the seven. Mike Hardiman booted the bonus point.

Not ready to call it quits, the Chiefs struck again midway through the 4th period. They ate up 42 yards in six plays with Manning scooting across the goal line on a 13-yard trip. Hardiman's conversion cut Saginaw's lead to 20-14.

With four minutes of game time remaining, the Chiefs took over on their own 28. On the 1st play from scrimmage, Manning fumbled and Saginaw's Bill Duke recovered on the 24. The Trojans promptly iced the decision by moving in to score. Yauck plowed the final eight yards and Halliday added the point.

WIGWAM HAPPY — A couple of Pontiac gridders on the sidelines joyfully hug each other as the Chiefs score their 2nd touchdown to come within six points of catching Saginaw. The Trojans survived the Pontiac rally for a 27-14 triumph in last night's Saginaw Valley battle at Wisner Stadium.

Troy Wins, Avondale Bows

Orion Upsets Clawson, 12-8

By CHUCK ABAIR

The Lake Orion Dragons are in the driver's seat of the Oakland B League today and could go all the way if one more difficult hurdle can be overcome. They knocked over a big one last night.

Although outweighed almost 10 pounds per man, the Dragons rose up to pin a 12-8 setback on Clawson, the loop's defending champion and preseason favorite, before a large Homecoming crowd at Orion.

The victory was the 3rd straight for the charges of Ted Sela in loop play keeping them ahead of Troy, which walloped Madison 25-6 in an afternoon tussle and is 2-0. The unbeaten powers meet in two weeks but Troy must first face Clawson next Friday.

An early 12-0 lead and some sparkling defensive play by the out-manned and inexperienced Orion line told the story.

A gallant stand which stopped the Trojans inches short of a 1st down at the home three late in the final quarter sewed up the issue.

Clawson earlier missed what would have been a tying touchdown in the 3rd period when Trojan halfback John Volk, who ran well all evening, tried to pick up a fumbled Dragon lateral and score only to fumble himself as he went over the goal line. Jim Neph's alert recovery gave Clawson only two points instead of six.

Similar alertness in the 1st quarter had given Lake Orion a lead it was to hold all the way. A fumble recovery at the Clawson four set up the opening TD. Quarterback Nick Neira sneaked around end for the score from the one.

The other Lake Orion touchdown climaxed an 80-yard march midway through the 2nd period. John Schoff went 32 yards for what proved to be the deciding points.

Lowell Acton, brother of Clawson coach Bob, came up with the longest run of the night for the losers' only TD. He raced 58 yards behind some excellent blocking to score just a little over a minute after Schoff went over. But the hard-hitting Orion line was equal to the occasion the rest of the way.

Clawson had the edge in the statistic department gaining a combined total of 187 yards to 95 but could not keep rolling when scoring chances came up.

Avondale settled down to play good football after trailing 21-0 in the opening minutes but the Yellowjackets could never overcome the big deficit and bowed to Fitzgerald, 46-26.

Speedy Bob Kline, a shifty 130-pounder, scored three times for Fitzgerald. He went 80 yards for one of them.

★ ★ ★

Jerry Hill and Duane Lau each scored two touchdowns and Hill added a pair of extra points in the losing cause. Both Hill scores were on passes from Gary Acker.

WIGWAM SAD — Several gloomy members of the Pontiac High School football team begin their journey across the Wisner Stadium gridiron to congratulate the Saginaw Trojans for their 27-14 victory over the Chiefs Friday night in a Saginaw Valley contest. Leading the way is tackle Tom Nichols (76) while halfback Archie Brooks (33) and quarterback Fred Staley (18) are right behind.

Holly, West Bloomfield and Milford W-O Victors

One thing seems almost certain in the Wayne-Oakland League. The 1957 championship will very likely not be decided until the final week of play. And four teams are currently in the running.

All four won as expected last night. The scores were: Holly 20, Clarkston 7; Milford 13, Clarenceville 7; West Bloomfield 20, Brighton 12 and Northville 39, Bloomfield Hills 6.

Holly had to rally from a 7-0 deficit to get by Clarkston as three of the four favorites had more trouble than had been anticipated. Holly is now 3-0-1, Northville 2-0, Milford 4-1 and West Bloomfield 2-1-1.

The Broncos lost the ball four straight times on fumbles in the 1st period and Clarkston made one count for a TD as Russ Soffredine went over from the nine and added the point after.

Holly got even in the 2nd and scored twice more in the last half. With the score 7-7, a bad pass from center on 4th down gave the winners possession at the Clarkston 5. Bill Taylor went the distance on a bootleg play. Bob Letson scored the 1st Holly six-pointer and Amos Bradsher garnered the last while Phil Tinsman booted two extra points.

Flu-riddled Milford had its hands full at Clarenceville. The Redskins had a 13-0 lead in the 2nd quarter on TDs by Pat Kelley and Larry Hudson but had to hold on the rest of the way to win. The losers scored late in the 1st half and were inside the Milford 10 when the game ended.

That Keego-Brighton contest was a thriller that was not wrapped up until the final four mintes of play when John Lucadem and Ross Fockler clicked on a short pass play which ended a 58-yard march. Lucadem scored all 13 West Bloomfield points in the opening half and added an extra point after the Fockler tally.

Dick Biery scored four times on runs of 3, 11 and 70 and a pass reception to pace Northville. A 43-yard pass play with Chuck Mezey throwing and Tom Sharp catching accounted for the only Bloomfield points.

Utica Rallies in 4th to Nail First Victory

Utica of the Bi-County prep football league last night pulled its first win of the season out of the fire, downing Lake Shore, also winless, 18-12. Chieftans trailed their foes going into the finale, 12-6.

Then Pat Connor squared the count with the 1st 4th period tally, on a 23-yard dash. With only three minutes left in the tilt, Jim Rooney went over from the three after a 44-yard drive. A Jacques' pass interception set up the drive.

Imlay in 2nd Place After 27-0 Victory

With Ortonville's league leaders idle as a result of a cancellation against Oxford, and Millington playing a non-loop contest at Howell, Imlay City's South Central Spartans Friday night crushed North Branch to take over 2nd place. The 27-0 victory at North Branch gave the Imlay eleven a 2-1 mark, behind Ortonville's 1-0 record.

Don Coenen's 62-yard sprint in the 1st period nailed the win for Spartans, but Jim Ward (2) and Jerry Billiet added three more to spoil North Branch's homecoming.

Gary Smith for Howell and George Kish for Millington scored in the 6-6 tie at Howell. Both teams missed conversion kicks.

Walled Lake Breezes Past Abes, 37-0

Walled Lake flashed its greatest offensive display of the season Friday night to crush Van Dyke 37-0 in an Inter-Lakes Conference football game at Walled Lake.

★ ★ ★

Frustrated by Southfield and Farmington in their previous Inter-Lakes starts, the defending champion Vikings took it out on the hapless Abes for their 1st league victory this fall.

Overall, it was Walled Lake's 3rd win in five games. Van Dyke has yet to taste victory in the same number of attempts.

Berkley and Farmington, strong contenders for the Inter-Lakes crown, fought to a scoreless tie yesterday afternoon at Farmington in a dull contest played for the most part between the 30-yard lines.

The deadlock dropped Farmington into 2nd place, half a game behind pace-setting Southfield which downed Waterford 25-18. Southfield's league record is 3-0, while the Falcons are 2-0-1 and Berkley is 1-1-1.

He hit Don Rounds with a 35-yard scoring aerial in the 2nd quarter and found Larry Vanderveide twice after intermission for touchdown plays of 75 and 32 yards, both in the 4th period.

Frank Fink, operating at halfback again following a trial at quarterback, opened Walled Lake's scoring with a 37-yard sprint in the 1st period. Havel's pass to Rounds made it 12-0 at halftime.

Rounds started the 2nd half scoring by scooping up a Van Dyke fumble and racing 30 yards to pay dirt. Don Yeargan place-kicked the extra point for Walled Lake's only conversion.

An eight-yard touchdown run by fullback Mike Wurst hiked the count to 25-0 entering the 4th quarter. Then Havel and Vanderveide joined forces to wind up the point-making.

All of the Berkley-Farmington action was packed into the 3rd stanza when each team made its only scoring threat. The Falcons recovered a fumble to halt Berkley on the nine-yard line, then the Bears stopped Farmington one foot short of their goal.

Boost From Weather

Rain Aids Bird Hunters

LANSING (AP) — Heartened by several days of rain, thousands of hunters will take to the field Monday for the opening of Michigan's three-week pheasant season.

★ ★ ★

Pheasants are legal game starting at 10 a.m. Monday throughout the Lower Peninsula. Bag limits are two pheasants per day, four in possession and eight for the season, the same as last year.

Rabbit and squirrel shooting also begins Monday throughout the Lower Peninsula south of M-20.

State game experts predict well over half a million pheasant hunters will be afield before the season windup Nov. 10. About 60 per cent of the take will be shot during the first week when birds are most plentiful.

★ ★ ★

Rain which fell across the state this week after a long dry spell is expected to improve shooting conditions considerably. Damp weather makes it easier for a hunter's dog to flush game, and cuts down the cover which camouflages pheasants and other game. Farmers also have harvested some of their corn crops, a favorite hiding place for pheasants.

Skippers Beaten by Southfield's Running Power

By PAUL RIPLEY

Southfield High School's football machine parlayed two halfbacks into a powerful rushing game last night to sweep by Waterford, 25-18. The triumph gave the unbeaten Jays sole possession of 1st place in the Inter-Lakes Conference.

★ ★ ★

Moore had runs of 69, 55 and 33 yards and scored one touchdown while Ridley ran for a total of 134 yards and also tallied once.

The Skippers had scoring thrills of their own as they came from an 18-0 deficit to within one foot of possibly tying the game.

With two minutes left to play, two long passes, one to Jerry Nelson and the other to Bill Cole, put the Skippers on the Southfield four yard line. Waterford needed seven points to tie, but failed to push the ball over.

Waterford also muffed a golden scoring opportunity in the early moments of the contest and the Bluejays turned it into a touchdown of their own.

On the 1st play from scrimmage, Waterford recovered a fumble on the Jay 20. The Skippers drove to the six where Ridley intercepted a Wendy Meyer pass on the goal line.

Moore's 69-yard jaunt set up Zurcher's plunge. Bill Loveland had pulled down Moore from behind on the Skipper one.

The Jays continued to roll in the 2nd quarter with sustained touchdown drives of 69 and 62 yards. Ridley and Zurcher did the scoring, each on a four-yard run.

Midway through the 3rd period the Jays were driven back to their own six. An attempted Statue of Liberty play was fumbled and John Keating recovered the ball in the end zone for Waterford's 2nd TD.

Southfield took the ensuing kickoff and marched 72 yards for its final TD. with Moore scooting across from the four. Bob Filar booted the extra point.

The most sensational run in the wide-open contest came on the following kickoff when Cole returned the boot 75 yards for Waterford's last touchdown.

Southfield's final TD effort was stopped on the Waterford 28, then the Skippers made their last and futile bid which ended on the one-foot line.

Port Huron's Big Reds handed previously unbeaten East Detroit a stunning 13-6 setback Friday night in a crucial Eastern Michigan League football game at Port Huron. The upset snapped East Detroit's 12-game victory string. Ferndale blanked Mt. Clemens 8-0 in another EML contest.

Lions Hope to Ambush Stampeding Colts

They're Coming to Detroit With Spotless Record

Halting Unitas Is Big Task for Lions in NFL Showdown at Briggs

DETROIT (INS) — The Detroit Lions hope their claws, sharpened by two victories, can snag the stampeding Baltimore Colts when the two National Football League teams collide in a return match here Sunday.

The Colts, with a surprising 3-0 record, started their 1957 season by thrashing the Lions 34 to 14 at Baltimore.

Since then, they have thumped the Chicago Bears, pre-season favorites of the NFL's Western Division, 21 to 10, and roared to a 45-to-17 decision over the Green Bay Packers.

Detroit has bounced back to measure Green Bay 24 to 14 and edge the Los Angeles Rams 10 to 7.

Defensive play was a major factor in the Colts' spanking of the Lions. Detroit has sharpened its own defense in the last two contests with alert protectors snaring six Ram passes last week.

Spearheading the Colt attack is quarterback John Unitas, who was cut loose by the Pittsburgh Steelers two years ago and slipped to sandlot football in Pittsburgh.

Unitas has completed 38 passes in 66 attempts for 555 yards and eight touchdowns.

If the defensive squads are equal, the Lions will have to come up with added offensive punch to beat the Colts.

Detroit has scored 48 points against 55 for its opponents while Baltimore has an even 100 points compared with 41 for its opposition.

Ole Miss Drubs Tulane, 50-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Before the season started, Coach Johnny Vaught of Mississippi's football team professed that his club was strictly a mystery to him — too many imponderables.

★ ★ ★

By now, though, the air has cleared to such an extent that the Rebels have proved themselves to be one of the classy teams of the Southeastern Conference. They definitely will be in the running for the title.

Last night, they ran their winning streak to four, whipping Tulane, 50-0, in effortless fashion. Ole Miss doesn't meet Auburn, which has become the favorite to win the title, so the championship of the league will be decided on neutral grounds.

North Carolina State, which finished a dismal third-from-last in the Atlantic Coast Conference a year ago, also remained undefeated today, but the Wolfpack failed to impress in their scoreless tie with Miami last night.

West Virginia crushed George Washington, 34-14, in a Southern Conference clash, in the only other major game last night. The victory was the Mountaineers 23rd straight in league competition.

Meanwhile, at least one Bowl spot could be practically settled today. A Washington State victory over Oregon would just about send the Cougars to the Rose Bowl Jan. 1.

Only four teams in the Pacific Coast Conference are eligible for the Rose Bowl berth, and Washington State and Oregon are among them. State already has beaten the other two eligibles, California and Stanford.

★ ★ ★

In the Big 10, Michigan State, No. 1 team in the country, anticipated no trouble with Purdue, while Minnesota, was favored over Illinois. Defending champion Iowa faced surprising Wisconsin.

★ ★ ★

Texas A&M, the favorite to win the Southwest Conference crown for the third straight year, had a relatively easy assignment against Texas Christian, while Arkansas, the Aggies' leading rival, faced Texas — the team that scared the wits out of Oklahoma last week.

★ ★ ★

Oklahoma, which lost its top spot to Michigan State played a Big Eight game against Kansas and was the heavy choice to wrap up consecutive victory No. 44.

Auburn, riding along in the favorite's role in the Southeastern Conference, had a date with disappointing Georgia Tech.

The Eastern championship well could be decided at West Point, where Pitt visits Army. Both teams are in the running, along with Navy, which is playing in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk, Va., against Georgia.

The two Ivy League bigwigs—Princeton and Dartmouth — both play non-league foes. The Tigers were at home to Colgate, while Dartmouth was put to a stern test against Holy Cross, one of the more powerful teams in the East.

Vikings Make Winning Entry

Blast Maples 18-6 in Hazel Park's Opening EML Contest

Hazel Park Vikings moved north (into Birmingham) last night to make their first Eastern Michigan league effort for 1957 a success. Chuck Skinner's lads counted once in each of the 1st three periods to win, 18-6.

Oscar Lewis ran 14 for the first Viking TD. Larry Clyma made it 12-6 on a dive after Jim Welling went 53 yards to the two. Doug Gephart contributed the final tally early in the 3rd period with an 8-yard drive following another Welling dash.

Golfers Prep for Canada Cup Play

TOKYO (INS) — Sixty of the world's topnotch golfers from 30 nations are sharpening up in Tokyo today for next week's Canada Cup matches—first major international golf tournament ever held in the Orient.

By the time they tee off Thursday for four days of play, most of them will know that the biggest enemy is going to be swank and tricky Kasumigaseki course, a nightmare of traps and greens of coarse "Korai" grass.

Two men know these greens better than anyone in the field—Japan's two-man entry, Torakichi Nakamura and Koichi Ono. They'll go into the competition as favorites, ahead of the American duo of Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret.

At stake is the Canada Cup, symbol of world team supremacy, and the international trophy which goes to the individual low scorer for the 2 holes.

The foreign stars expect trouble because many of them will be playing for the first time on "Korai" grass. This grass, used on all Japanese courses, is extremely grainy and unlike the smooth bent grass found on greens in other countries.

Also making things tough on the pros are the 112 sand traps scattered over the course. Distances on the course range from the 159-yard fourth hole to the 592-yard 14th.

Last year, Snead teamed with Ben Hogan to take the Canada Cup to the U. S. Hogan had the best individual score in the competition at Surrey, England, to cop the international cup.

Hogan is not competing this year.

Class A Powers Keep Rolling

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Midland Chemics and the Bay City Central Wolves—currently in a deadheat for the No. 1 rating among the state's Class A high school football teams—set the stage for next week's showdown clash with convincing tune-up victories Friday night.

Midland rolled up a 21-0 halftime lead over Alpena and coasted to a 27-6 victory. Bay City had a 20-0 margin over Saginaw Arthur Hill at the half and relaxed to a 26-6 triumph.

The 5-10, 165-pound signal-caller completed 12 of 17 for 229 yards and two touchdowns. In Bay City's five straight victories, Gross has hit on 45 of 64 aerials for 954 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Two Bay City coaches were at Alpena where the Chemics rolled to two scores in the first five minutes and got fine quarterbacking from Mike Westley. He combined with Chris Roberts on a 13-yard pass play that brought Midland its final touchdown. It was No. 5 for Midland, too.

Midland and Bay City meet in the state's top game of the year next Friday night at Bay City, and 10,000 fans are expected to be on hand for the contest that probably will determine the 1957 Class A champion.

Flint Northern Upset by Muskegon, 13-6

MUSKEGON (AP)—Muskegon High pulled one of the major upsets of the Michigan high school football season last night, defeating fourth-ranked Flint Northern, 13-6.

Unranked Muskegon, beaten twice in its first four starts, battled from behind to nail down its most important triumph of the campaign. The loss was Northern's first after three victories and halted the Vikings' after 12 victories extending through the 1956 season. Last season Northern was the state's mythical Class A titlist.

Fires 305-Yard Ace

Lapeer Shocks Romeo, 19-13

Romeo High's dream of an undefeated football season went up in smoke last night at Lapeer when the rapidly improving Panthers scored a 19-13 upset victory in the 1st scheduled game of the newly formed Tri-County League.

It was Lapeer's 2nd triumph in four starts and the 1st setback in five games for the Bulldogs.

End Allen Cornwall's 70-yard gallop with an intercepted pass scored the winning touchdown for Lapeer in the 3rd quarter after the two teams had battled to a 13-13 deadlock at halftime.

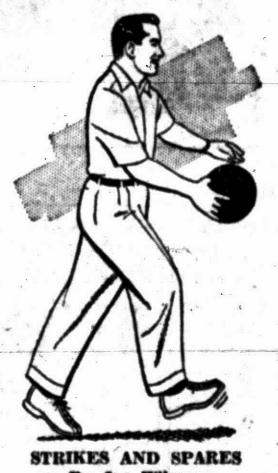

Dick DeBeaubian's 30-yard TD dash and Larry Coller's conversion gave Lapeer a 7-0 lead in the 1st quarter. Romeo tied the score early in the 2nd period on a 45-yard scamper by Angus Sterling and Dave Proper's extra point.

Lapeer took a 13-7 advantage on a three-yard plunge by Coller and Romeo tied the count again on Proper's 40-yard sprint. Then Cornwall settled the argument.

STRIKES AND SPARES
By Joe Wilman

See anything wrong with the footwork in today's drawing? Our bowler might do better on the dance floor than the bowling alley with that style.

Perhaps you're a bowler who also has a hop, skip or jump mixed up in your footwork. If so, I'll bet you let it work into your approach when you first began bowling, and it now seems a natural part of your footwork. Well, get rid of this unnecessary shuffle; your timing will always be off as long as you keep it up.

First, try walking slowly through your approach. It's easy to eliminate the skip or hop that way. Then, keep increasing your speed gradually as you move through your approach. Develop a rhythm. After practicing this way, you should be able to take your normal delivery with the ball without the hop, skip or jump.

Don't kid yourself, either, that you can become a good bowler without eliminating this trouble in your footwork. Believe me, it's worth working on, but it does require practice and concentration.

Lamphere Wins Third Victory Over Dryden

Madison Heights Lamphere's first football team yesterday rolled to its season's 3rd victory at the expense of Dryden, 20-7, but the win may have cost rather dearly. Coach Joe Borovick's guard, Henry Burack, is in Almont Bishop hospital with a possible concussion. He was hurt in the first half of the game and was still under observation today.

Lamphere grabbed a halftime lead 6-0, then added two more counters in the 3rd and 4th periods. Dryden scored in the final frame. Bob Bogues accounted for two TDs, on 21 and 24 yard runs. Jerry Sylvain got the other on a 42-yard gallop and added one conversion. Bill Beach ran for the other one-pointer.

Dryden was the only Southern Thumb league team in action Friday. Armada entertains Almont, with the loop lead at stake, in an afternoon game today.

St. Michael, Rams Play Loop Games Here Sunday

Twice-beaten St. Michael, idled last week by the flu, takes on strong Orchard Lake St. Mary in the 3 p.m. opener. The night game will match St. Frederick and Royal Oak St. Mary starting at 7:30.

It will be the Rams 1st outing in three weeks following two successive postponements because of flu invasions.

St. Mike has a 1-3 season record and is scoreless in two loop starts. That should make the Shamrocks decided underdogs.

Orchard Lake, SCL champs for the past two years, bounced back from an opening setback to wallop Ferndale St. James last week to rate as a solid title contender once more.

St. Mike has not beaten the Eaglets since 1953 and has not scored against them since '54.

Meanwhile, St. Frederick enters its game in the favored role as the Rams hope to break a league winless streak that goes back to 1950.

The locals will be in top shape for the game after the long layoff and should snap their second dubious skein this season. They broke a four-year overall winless streak by taking the season opener.

Where St. Michael has shown a lack of scoring punch, St. Fred has moved the ball exceptionally well with 68 points in two outings. The 1-1 Ram record includes a 25-18 league loss to St. James.

One of the highlights of the St. Fred return to action will be the opportunity for fullback Jack Lyon to get back into the fight for county scoring honors. He paced the entire area with 42 points the 1st two weeks but dropped behind by not playing.

Pontiac Press Pheasant Derby Starts Monday

Pheasant hunters by the thousands, most of whom have been marking time impatiently during recent weeks as time for the fall small game season neared, will be in the fields Monday, season's opening day. But they'll have to wait until 10 a.m. before unlimbering their shotguns and loosing their dogs.

At the same time the season opens, The Pontiac Press 1957 "pheasant derby" swings into action. With field reports indicating a good increase in bird populations in the area an interesting contest is anticipated. "Derby" concludes Nov. 10, end of pheasant season.

Full-time residents of Oakland only are eligible. Birds, however, may be taken anywhere in Michigan. Two awards will be made (no one may win both). A $50 U.S. Bond goes to heaviest entry, $25 for longest bird.

Western Michigan Game Bows to Flu

KALAMAZOO (AP) — Flu has forced Washington University of St. Louis to cancel its football game today with Western Michigan University.

The game was to have marked Western's Homecoming.

Waterford School Board Hears of Buildings, Safety

A progress report on the new John D. Pierce Junior High School in the process of construction on Hatchery and Crescent roads in Waterford Township was presented when the township board of education met.

Plans for occupancy by September 1958 are underway and the building will accommodate 1,500 in the 7, 8 and 9 grades.

Another 12 room elementary school building will be built on the north side of Watkins Lake this year, and should be ready sometime next fall, William Shunck, superintendent of schools, said.

★ ★ ★

Some part of the attendance areas will include Drayton Plains, Hudson Covert, and the Montieth schools and will accommodate children from the kindergarten through the sixth grades

A progress report from the newly formed PTA Safety Committee was presented by Tom Peterson and Clifford Lampson, co-chairman of the group.

★ ★ ★

The men outlined the work that various PTA's in the township are doing and specific recommendations will be made to the board of education in the near future, Peterson said.

President of the board of education Marshall Smith appointed Mrs. Donald Adams a chairman of the committee to be assisted by Lester Carlson and Shunck.

Purpose of this committee will be to meet and work with any of the lay groups in the community interested in the safety program.

The questions and answers had reference to the amount of time for lunch periods, time pupils are permitted to enter buildings; plans for site improvements at the Schoolcraft Elementary School, the marking of pavements with school signs and training of adult crossing guards.

The glass top protects the beautiful grain of the wood. This room is over 30 feet long and opens through French doors onto a large screened porch. Stanley Mentons Like Suburban Life

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor

Roads are curving, the uninhabited stretches remind one of a state park and there are actually two waterfalls in the subdivision. Forestbrook Hills is a new suburban section in Farmington Township, just south of Twelve Mile road. Its homes are pleasantly situated on acre-sized lots. There are several small lakes.

★ ★ ★

The Stanley Mentons are new residents of suburbia. Until four months ago they lived in Detroit. For a city dweller, Mrs. Menton has made a swift adjustment to country living. She has no car during the day. Instead of pavements, heavy traffic and nearby stores, all she sees are a few houses nearby, a flock of ducks on the miniature lake back of her house and fields stretching into woodlands at the side.

The Menton home, like all others in Forestbrook, is constructed in the Early American style. It is a rambling ranch house with a three-car garage at one end. The entrance is in the center.

The vestibule contains a corner desk. The room itself has a slate floor and is papered in white with gold fleur de lis. On one wall there is an antiqued copper lavebo.

Situated at the rear of the house, the living room has over 30 feet of window space. These picture windows are draped in sheer white with a brown and beige branch design on the material. The carpeting is gold and the walls and ceiling ivory.

ROSEWOOD TABLE

In front of the brown sofa there is an interesting coffee table made by Mr. Menton. Someone shipped him an entire rosewood log from Brazil. One slab makes the coffee table. Glass covers and protects the beautifully grained wood. The legs are brass tipped. Small as it looks, it is unbelievably heavy.

There are several upholstered chairs in different conversational groupings throughout the room. All the lamp tables are walnut. One that serves two chairs is triangular shaped with a woven cane shelf underneath. The long magazine table near the windows has a mosaic tile insert.

Another product of Mr. Menton's cabinet-making skill is a handsome cherry cabinet for the hi-fi. He used cane to panel the fronts so that this piece would match the other furniture.

At one end of the living room, opposite the fireplace, is a minute bar. It's about the size of a closet, with a window opening onto the porch and a Dutch door for the main opening. This birch door has a pickled finish—so do all the other doors in the house.

Glass shelves line the walls which are papered in deep turquoise, printed with replicas of famous liquor labels. Short curtains in matching material are used at the little window. There's a small stainless steel sink with a Formica counter around it under the window.

Two steps down from the living room is a delightful porch. Facing south and west, it should be livable even on cooler spring and autumn days. Furniture out here is informal bamboo. Mr. Menton made some of it. For meals there is a black iron table with a glass top. The chairs around it have peppermint striped seats and backs, both perfectly round.

The porch opens into the garage which in turn opens into the kitchen. This is a huge room, divided in the center by a range top counter. Beyond is a dining area with a bay window. The entire room measures about 25 x 15.

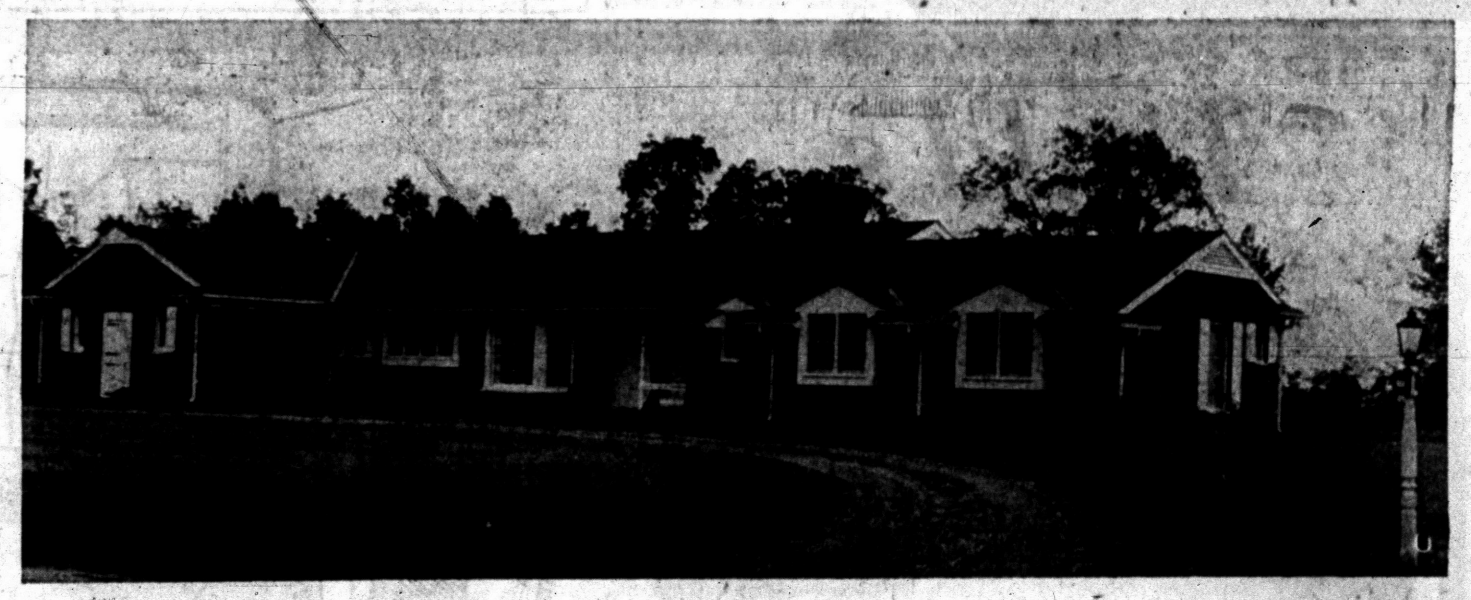

The floor is cork. The ceiling is painted rose, while the wallpaper and the curtains are white with Colonial sign posts printed in bright colors. All cupboards are matched pickled birch with brass pulls.

Next to the wall oven there is a long work counter topped in creamy white. In the dining section one wall is a huge china cupboard painted rose inside. The sliding doors are glass.

Mrs. Menton has something not many housewives have these days—a real pantry. It is situated next to the garage door, between it and the refrigerator.

IN FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — The Stanley Mentons are occupying an Early American type home in Forestbrook Hills. Designed and built by the Duke brothers of Forestbrook Hills, their house is red brick with white trim. There is a three-car garage at the left. The Mentons' lot is about an acre in size. They have lived here for four months.

FOR LEISURE HOURS — The Mentons use this little room for hours of relaxation. There's an armchair covered in an aqua tweedy fabric right next to the bookshelves. It's also in good position to watch the television set. Below the TV there are cupboards of pickled birch. Note how the louvered door folds back out of the way.

PINK CUPBOARDS — Mrs. Menton displays her prized collection of interesting dishes in this pink cupboard. The cupboards below, as well as those on the left, are made of matched pickled birch with brass pulls. This is the dining area of the kitchen. It has a pleasant bay window to the right of this table.

In the small den one whole wall is lined with books. A low fireplace set in a red brick wall takes up most of another wall. The red brick continues behind the shelves that house the television set and family mementos.

FORSYTHIA CURTAINS

Like the kitchen, this floor is cork. All painted walls are green. The draperies are beige with yellow forsythia branches and aqua shadows. In front of the window is a beige sofa. This room has an outside door.

Near the den is a little bathroom. It has a yellow tile floor and beige dune scene wallpaper. The lower walls and fixtures are nutmeg shade.

The guest room has its own nutmeg and yellow bathroom. The room itself has greenish yellow walls. Below the window which is recessed outward, there is a wide marble shelf.

Furniture is Colonial maple. The bedspread is quilted beige material. Draperies, bed ruffle and the cover on a small stool match—the material is a green and white flower, bird and fruit print.

The master bedroom has traditional furniture. There are two amethyst velveteen slipper chairs with a table and lamp between them for reading. The beds have aqua silk spreads with pink satin bowknot appliques. Draperies are the forsythia print ones like those in the den.

There is a wonderful walk-in clothes closet with a window in it. In one corner of the room is a built-in vanity that is Mrs. Menton's perfume bar.

The master bathroom is completely tiled in pale blue, walls, floor and ceiling. Fixtures are nutmeg shade. Small white shutters are used in place of curtains. Above the white vanity is a mammoth medicine chest, hidden by a five-foot-high mirror. Towels are white with a gold sunburst design.

We were puzzled by push buttons on the wall of every room. Not having the courage to push one "just to see," we finally asked about them. It seems that outside flood lights can be switched on from any room in the house. Neat trick!

Bruce A. Duke was the designer of this house and Thomas A. Duke the builder. A decorator friend of Mrs. Menton's helped her with the interior.

Man Slow to Learn Secrets of Nature

Some 5,000 years ago, great cargoes of cedar were cut along the Levantine Coast and shipped to Egypt, and the forests of cedar supplied wood for the palaces of Persian kings until the supply of timber was finally exhausted. Man knew nothing of reforestation.

★ ★ ★

Today, in America, trees are harvested in such a way that the supply will last forever. Tree farms, started 15 years ago in the great Douglas fir forests of the west, today are located nationwide, and their owners last year planted 886 million baby trees. But, most new trees will come from seeds dropped from specially left seed trees. Most tree farm rules and some state laws require seed trees be left.

Experts Advise Most to Reduce Mortgages

Most homeowners feel they'll never have to answer it, but here's an often-asked real estate question: If the owner has spare cash beyond reserves needed for emergencies, should he speed up his mortgage payments, or even pay it all off?

★ ★ ★

The experts answer "yes" if your mortgage is one on which you are paying 5 per cent or more.

This is particularly true if the house is substantially built of such quality materials as brick, ceramic tile and hardwood. Extensive use of durable materials enhance a home's resale value and make it more attractive if and when placed on the market.

Some ask, "What about the fact that mortgage interest payments are tax-deductible?" This may not be important since, if your cash is invested otherwise than in payment, you still pay taxes on interest received on that investment, so it may even out.

While a large mortgage may sometimes help facilitate a sale, there's a catch: If the buyer takes over your mortgage instead of negotiating his own, you may have to make good if he defaults. Thus, if you can't get a materially higher return on your extra cash otherwise, mortgage prepayments may be worthwhile.

Pipes and Drains Rattle? Water Hammer Does It

He haunts houses by thumping on pipes and rattling drains. He destroys. Few folks really know this menace for what he is because he can't be seen. Yet . . . all should fear him. For he can turn a home in its prime into noisy, unsafe shambles.

★ ★ ★

The ghost's name? It's . . . Water Hammer.

Once Water Hammer strikes, you're in for trouble. Perhaps you'll need an entire new plumbing system. But, by understanding Water Hammer, by recognizing that he's after your home, he can be stopped!

First, Water Hammer's the name of the banging noise heard when you turn the faucet off abruptly. The noise is reminiscent of olden days when tenants belted a radiator with a shoe to demand more heat. It's caused by a pressure wave which bangs through the piping system when the flow of water is stopped abruptly by jolting a faucet closed.

In other words, clanging, noisy pipes are a sign of danger, warns the Plumbing Fixture Manufacturers Association. If you recognize the danger in time, if you stop mistreating faucets, the danger can be stopped. But if you recognize the trouble too late, better call a skilled plumber to investigate.

First cousins of the galloping ghost are whistling sounds and pipe chatter. Whistling sounds sometimes occur in the toilet flush tank and are caused by worn inlet valves. Plumbing chatter comes from loose piping somewhere in the building. Trace down the loose pipe and secure it with brackets or insulate it from wall contact. However, a plumbing contractor may be able to do a more professional job.

Another plumbing S.O.S. is one which the nose can detect—sewer gas. All fixtures in the home are connected to the municipal sewage system. And so, each one has a water trap to safeguard against unpleasant odors. The shape of the trap is designed to retain a column of water which seals off sewer gases.

If the water evaporates, or is too low, there's a chance gases might escape directly into the home. When this happens, act fast. Call the plumber.

The most common household plumbing nuisance is a leaky faucet. Here, a worn washer usually is the trouble-maker. To repair, follow these simple directions: First be sure to close the water shut-off valve located on the wall below and in back of the lavatory. Then, remove the large nut on the handle of the faucet.

Turn the handle counter-clockwise and the spindle will rise, revealing a rubber washer at the end. If the washer is faulty, replace it with a new one and reinsert the unit. When leakage continues, call the plumber.

★ ★ ★

With these few tricks of your own, you can make your home completely ghost-free. But, of course, it's a good idea to make sure your home stays in top condition. Periodically replace older fixtures and piping with the most up-to-date facilities.

Send for Free Booklet on Art of Paint Making

Few people know off-hand the origin of paint. The beautiful colors we take for granted are evolved in many cases from crude and ancient recipes. The grinding of pigments and mixing with oil were achieved in early days by a great granite ball in a narrow Boston street. The ball is imbedded now in the side of a building with a granite block below it on which is carved "Boston Stone, 1737."

Thomas Child, house painter and stainer, set it up before his shop in Marshall Lane in Colonial days. It served as a paint mill for many years. This and many other charming and interesting facts about the origin of paint are contained in a pamphlet called "The Paint Story." If you'd like one, free for the asking, send your name and address and the name of the booklet to The National Paint, Lacquer and Varnish Association, 1500 Rhode Island Ave., N. W., Washington 5, D. C.

You Must Thin Shellac

Shellac is a basic, natural commodity which has a wide variety of uses. It's also easy to apply. But many persons needlessly invite trouble by applying it full strength. You're wasting money and creating problems for yourself by doing this. For virutally all work, shellac should be thinned with a high quality denatured alcohol. Don't use anti-freeze as a thinner.

Necessary Water Supply

For the house beyond the water mains, the best fire protection is plenty of water delivered by an adequately-sized electric water system, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau. The Bureau says that an effective fire stream through a small nozzle requires from 8 to 10 gallons per minute. The system should be capable of maintaining this flow uninterrupted for a period of at least two hours.

Strip Wiring Adds Outlets

Extension cords and "octopus" outlets indicate inadequate wiring. Small-size extension wires become overloaded and heat up, burning and cracking insulation. Shock hazard is always present wherever wires are exposed.

The safest, easiest way to add outlets to a home with a growing number of appliances is baseboard strip wiring, according to an article in a recent issue of a home magazine. Used around the baseboard or over counters in the kitchen, strip systems provide more than an outlet every six feet —the recommended minimum.

The outlet strips are available in two systems. One, the fixed multiple outlet system, carries stationary outlets every six to 30 inches in a wired metal raceway or hollow plastic strip. Another continuous outlet strip has movable plugs that twist in and out anywhere along the strip.

Both of the systems can be mounted with screws—on, over or flush with the baseboard. Existing outlets can power the strip. Electricians merely install a feed-in device to carry the current to the baseboard strip.

Important: Simply adding outlets is not the cure-all in a wiring modernization of an old or new house. New outlets do not increase the current-carrying capacity of circuits.

Have an electrician or utility company check the service entrance of your house, the magazine suggests. You may have to add a No. 12 wire branch-circuit to power an outlet strip.

Two-Way Closets Save Many Steps

There are times when being two-faced is a virtue, especially in the case of a two-faced linen closet.

This step-saving device is built into the wall separating the bathroom from the hallway. Sliding doors enclose it on either side so that the towel section may be reached from the bathroom, other linens from the hall.

Although a new-fangled design, all the advantages of an old-fashioned linen closet may be had, including a lining of western red cedar. This wood is not only decorative, but it comes with a built-in sachet which will impart a delightfully fresh, outdoors and sunshine aroma to the linens.

★ ★ ★

The sliding or hinged doors of the closet should match the woodwork in the hall and the built-ins in the bathroom. Among popular woods for all types of built-ins, Douglas fir and west coast hemlock have many advantages in color, texture and grain. Cedar is a lovely wood which would also work out well for the cabinets.

Quality Rates at the Top

The quality of the home is more important than its style. Whether the house be a ranch type, bungalow, Cape Cod, Tudor Colonial, Early American or Georgian, the most important consideration is the quality of its materials and the craftsmanship with which they are installed.

HOME SEC
FILLERS

Masonite headboards are made by exploding wood chips in huge guns and then forming the fibers into panels in steam-heated presses.

To make a small room look larger use plain walls in light, cool colors, such as soft greens or blues. Painting the walls and the woodwork the same color helps make the room look larger, too.

OPEN, YET PRIVATE — The cozy neighborliness of the backyard fence had its social advantages, but privacy also has its virtues. In this city home, the owner has solved his outdoor entertaining problems by enclosing his paved patio at the rear of the house with glass block and one-inch louvered wood slats. Five courses of semi-transparent block form the bases of the partitions at either side of the patio. The one-inch slats mounted in wooden framing on top of the block permit passage of cooling breezes, but help to block out the view of the area from adjoining houses.

Small Concrete Job Guide Now Ready

A new handy guide for home owners planning to undertake small concrete jobs may be obtained free from the Portland Cement Association, 2108 Michigan National Tower, Lansing.

The booklet outlines simple procedures for constructing sidewalks, steps, patios, curbing, flagstone, and for patching. It also contains helpful information on selection of materials, proper mixes, placing, finishing and curing of concrete.

Use of air-entrained concrete is especially recommended in Michigan wherever the concrete will be exposed to weather. Air-entrained concrete, available at no added cost, contains billions of tiny air bubbles and adequately resists surface damage resulting from frequent freezing and thawing or use of ice-melting chemicals.

Wood Proven Strongest for Sheathing in Houses

Home buyers can get a good idea of the strength and stiffness of the walls of a house by checking the kind of sheathing used in its construction. Strength is a measure of the ability of a wall to stand up against a load, such as a high wind, without collapsing. Stiffness is the resistance of a wall to bending under loads which may cause trouble like plaster cracking.

Repeated tests of the Forest Products Laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture have shown that wood has greater strength and stiffness than other sheathing materials.

Clay Flue Lining Will Prevent Fires

The Clay Flue Lining Institute, an association of manufacturers located in Ohio, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Michigan dedicated to safe flue and chimney construction, recommends that early Fall is the best time to inspect homes, industrial and commercial chimneys for faulty construction or unsafe conditions.

The Institute warns that chimneys not protected by clay flue lining may allow soot to accumulate on rough surfaces or in cracks. In time this accumulation of soot can be ignited by hot furnace gases, burning rapidly and generating intense heat. Pressure forces the burning soot out of the chimney onto the roof and nearby buildings, or spreads the fire through cracks in the chimney into walls and framework of the building.

Many communities have already taken steps to protect their citizens by enacting ordinances requiring the installation of clay flue lining in all new chimneys. This action conforms to the NBFU recommended ordinance for chimney construction, which endorses the use of clay flue lining.

Clay flue lining provides a smooth interior surface that permanently prevents furnace gases or sparks from escaping into the structure. It prevents those insidious fires which smolder in the walls and suddenly burst into flames, gaining such a head start that homes and buildings are often destroyed before fire-fighting equipment can be brought into play. And clay flue lining will outlast the structure it serves.

Sofa Cushions Are Back

TILE WALL — Beauty and long-lasting quality are embodied in ceramic tile wall in modern living room. Here Paul McCobb, noted for his "Linear Look" in furniture design, has created the "Roulette" for Pomona Tile Manufacturing Company's "Distinguished Designer Series" of ceramic tiles. Table and chair are from McCobb's "Directional Contemporary" line.

The trend, which is slowly spreading from the Pacific Coast to the Atlantic Seaboard, ranks among the most significant changes in home design in the past generation.

Tile has for years been a standby in the kitchen and bathroom because of its resistance to water and easy-to-keep-clean qualities. During this time it has had little acceptance outside these rooms because of the flat, shiny finish that gave it a "hospital" look.

In recent years, however, tile manufacturers have developed new methods of glazing ceramic tile that impart depth and texture to the finished product, similar to the texture of stone.

Such a finish is provided by applying two or three coats of glaze to the tile, so that each coat is visible through the overlying layer.

With these new "three-dimensional" glazes, manufacturers now are developing designs adaptable to the living areas of homes to augment the kitchen-and-bath applications.

The search for new designs currently is reaching a high point with the introduction of a "Distinguished Designer Series" of tiles by Pomona Tile Co.

For the program, Pomona commissioned five of the nation's top artists each to create a new tile pattern. Among the artists are Millard Sheets, director of Los Angeles County Art Institute and one of America's top-ranking painters; Paul McCobb, who is best known for his "Linear Look" in contemporary furniture design; Paul Laszlo, active in interior design and industrial design; Dorothy Liebes, who has earned the title "First Lady of the Loom" for her textile patterns, and Saul Bass, outstanding motion picture artist and industrial designer.

Commenting about the project, Artist Sheets said he believed the tile industry is "on the verge of the greatest breakthrough in its history because of the increasing use of tile in rooms throughout the home."

"New tiles now being introduced provide a dramatic mural treatment to a fireplace or a living room wall, an entry hall or a barbecue patio," Sheets said. "The movement is exciting because it gives architects and designers an entirely new field to work with in home design."

Although California generally is using more tile in such applications than other geographical areas, the trend toward increased tile usage is sprouting like mushrooms in various parts of the United States.

The Salt Lake area, for example, has become the leader in tile fireplaces, while the southwest states —Arizona, New Mexico, Southern California—are utilizing more and more tile in outdoor barbecue patios.

Entry halls, rumpus rooms, dining rooms, indoor-outdoor living rooms and swimming pools all are among the places in which increased amounts of tile are being used, according to tile manufacturers.

It is interesting to note that, although such usage is new to the modern home owner, such applications were commonplace in the 6,000- or 7,000-year history of ceramic tile, for palaces and gardens of past empires have been lavishly decorated with ceramic tile. Archeologists have located fine art works on tile in such distant countries as Egypt, Persia (Iran), India and Turkey.

Here in the United States, the modern ceramic tile industry was born about 1850 in Pittsburgh and slowly spread across the nation. The growth of the industry was greatly accelerated during the 1920s when the old-fashioned bathtub on high legs was replaced by the modern tub with an apron front, and the shower bath—which first gained popularity in World War I—became a "must" in bathrooms. With both of these came tile walls and floors in bathrooms.

About the same time, tile rose in popularity in the kitchen to establish a solid and continuing market for the industry.

Boiler Heat Melts Driveway Snow

In homes with forced hot water heating systems, it is possible to add equipment to melt snow and ice on walk, entry steps or driveway, says "Today's Home" Magazine.

In a typical setup, pipes are placed under the driveway surface or other area to be kept free. The heating medium is an anti-freeze solution which is warmed and circulated independently of the house system. Cost of operation is about 6 cents an hour.

You won't need a larger boiler to accommodate snow melting, the publication adds. Snow usually falls at temperatures above 26 degrees, and at such times a boiler is not operating at full capacity and can spare the heat.

Is Your Furnace Safe?

Take a close look at your heating system. Defective heating units cause six per cent of the total fire loss. Replace broken parts, tighten loose joints; check the hinges and fittings on the furnace door; have a repairman check over your complete system for the winter season. He'll know how to clean, adjust and lubricate the working parts.

Tile Can Be Laid on Top of Old Floor

Most manufacturers and floor tile installation men recommend that all old floor coverings be removed before new tile is installed. This is the best insurance for a good job.

If the old tile floor was properly installed, however, and is smooth, even and solid underfoot there should be no real problem in laying new tile over it. The old tile, though, must be completely free of all oil, dirt, wax or other surface preparations.

If this is the case, proceed with the new tile as you would on top of sub flooring. Spread the adhesive on top of the old tile and carefully place the new tile, working only on a small area at a time.

A felt underlining also could be placed first on top of the old tile. This would add resiliency to the new flooring. But remember that the felt underlining and the new tile are going to add considerable height to the flooring when placed over old tile flooring.

"Old Ironsides," the American frigate that won her nickname because British shot failed to penetrate her sides in the War of 1812, was built of oak, cedar and pine.

Varnish Screens First

Before storing screens for the winter, experts advise cleaning them well with turpentine, then covering with a coating of spar varnish. When used for this purpose, spar varnish should be thinned by adding an equal amount of half and half mixture of turpentine and linseed oil.

Put Tape on Sandpaper

Sanding chair rounds and "gingerbread" on other furniture pieces is tough to do with regular sandpaper when you run out of cloth-backed tape. In this emergency, back paper with plastic or cellophane tape and fold it over at ends for finger grips.

Second Section of Hills Open

Work has now begun on the next group of lots of the Waterford Hill Manor Subdivision, located on Waterford Hill. There will be approximately sixty-seven lots in the new addition to the present subdivision, which contains one hundred lots — the last portion of these lots to back up to almost the top of Waterford Hill, a well known landmark in lower Michigan.

The elevation of these lots is probably higher than any other building sites in this part of the state, with an elevation of approximately 1,250 feet. From these lots, most of which will face south and west, tremendous views of the surrounding countryside and lakes can be seen.

A great portion of this new subdivision contains the famous towering pine trees so well known to everyone who travels the Dixie Highway. The only ones to be removed are those necessary for the new roads to be constructed. The new roads, of course, will be entirely blacktopped as soon as allowed by the Oakland County Road Commission.

To tie in with the opening of the new subdivision, which will be held in approximately two to three weeks, White Brothers are offering two new homes built by Berkshire Villa Homes, which will sell for around $30,000.

One of these homes is the "Sapphire" which won the award in Home Magazine for outstanding design for 1957. This is a four bedroom home with two baths and full basement.

The other home is a three bedroom home with a very large family room and four sliding glass wall panels which open up to terraces. This home also features full basement, built-in oven and range, garbage disposal, fireplace, life-time tile roof, face brick exterior and two full baths.

Both homes will sell in the $30,000 range and will be open simultaneously with the opening of the new part of the subdivision. The new homes are located on Wellesley Terrace.

The uppermost road on the hill has appropriately been named Olympus Drive after a mountain in Greece on the borders of Macedonia and anciently fabled to be the abode of the greater Grecian Gods; hence, close to heaven or the sky.

Men Complain of Bathroom Inadequacies

Bathroom tenors will sound more melodious if they can see the face they are shaving and find the towels they are hunting. A chief complaint of husbands is that there just isn't enough good illumination around bathroom mirrors. Bathroom planners say the problem is readily coped with by the installation of lighting that completely encircles the mirror.

★ ★ ★

A second complaint from masculine members of the house is that "there's no place to put anything." This problem can be eliminated if lavatories are surrounded by waterproof tile. No amount of after-shave lotion or harsh razor blades will mar such surfacing.

The men of the house don't like to look high and low for things—any more than their wives like to hear them shouting, "Where are the towels?" The solution is plenty of storage space. A well-designed bathroom has built-in linen cabinets.

Men are usually more shower-minded than women, the ladies preferring the leisure of a tub soaking, complete with bath salts or oils. But the joy of a brisk shower can be marred if one slip and falls. Grab bars can reduce the threat of such accidents.

And don't forget the need for an adequate number of towel racks so husbands won't have to compete with the laundry hung on racks by the women of the house.

Special Finishes Used to Renew Appliances

Scratched refrigerators and chipped bathtubs look new again when given a finish that has a porcelain-like surface and is as smooth as glass. Applied to a drain board or kitchen table, such an enamel shows high resistance to boiling water, grease, fruit juices and alcohol.

★ ★ ★

A dingy kitchen range may be freshened with a special paint that provides a glossy surface that is unlikely to crack, chip or discolor. The paint is also useful to camouflage objectionable piping. It's washable and one coat usually does the trick.

Women Dissect Homes at Housing Congress

They want more privacy and quality than many new homes give. Most of all, they want service to meet their individual needs — even if it costs extra money. And they want personalized bathrooms.

The women, one hundred in all, representing nearly every state, met recently in Washington, D.C., at the Second Women's Housing Congress. Their meeting was sponsored jointly by members of the building industry and a home magazine.

The women were divided into 10 discussion groups, then asked "why" questions about every part of their homes. They jumped at the chance to be heard, to express their views and problems. And the building industry sat up and took notice.

"Two small bathrooms are far better than one large one," the women say. "Large, compartmented bathrooms with extra fixtures are fine — but only if there's a small extra bathroom or two for the rest of the family."

Why? "Privacy," they argue.

"I want 'togetherness' in every part of the home but the bathroom," was the way one discussion leader summed it up.

"With six children," a Tennessee delegate explained, "how in the world can I relax unless I have at least two bathrooms?"

Mrs. Riki Levinson of Elmont, New Work, goes on to say new home buyers should be consulted by the builder. They should be given a choice of what bathroom fixtures go into the home. She wants bigger tubs.

"Why don't tubs have lower front aprons?" asks Mrs. Jeanne C. Caldwell of Philadelphia, Penna. "It would make bathing children so much easier!"

ONE FAUCET

A number of discussion groups showed interest in lavatories with single control faucet handles that, with one turn, provide hot, cold, or warm water.

In the kitchen, the women call for more two basin sinks. Some suggest a lower partition between to allow easier use of each section. They want deeper sinks.

As far as heating, most kinds are liked. But almost without exception, they want it cheaper. Solar heating appeals to them.

Although opinions differ on many subjects, the delegates agree home ownership is the best possible investment. "It's worth sacrificing any number of things for."

Other things considered important when selecting a home are privacy and low maintenance. Nearness of schools, cultural centers, and public transportation are also high-ranking factors.

WANT DISTINCTION

Personalized homes made from more durable building materials are called for. "Builders don't realize people will pay for durability," is one delegate's complaint. For contrast in the home, the women like a combination of brick, stone and natural finished wood. One group unanimously demands an open-beamed, high-ceilinged living room.

They prefer extra storage space to a garage, if they must make a choice. Some would convert their garage into a family room, then put the car in a carport. Others would use their carport as a patio.

Movable partitions are endorsed to facilitate "rearranging" their homes from time to time. Other "likes" are sliding doors, glass walls that open for ventilation, deep wall-to-wall carpeting, and ceiling lights.

The National Lumber Manufacturers Association points out that for every dollar saved in school construction costs, an additional 35 cents is saved in interest charges over a 15-year period. Modern wood schools stretch the school tax dollar, the association says.

Stack-on gas ranges can be manipulated like building blocks. Cook-top and oven fit on base cabinets of matching sizes. Each can be purchased individually, for instance, if you need an extra oven, you need not buy the extra cook-top too.

NEWS VIEWS

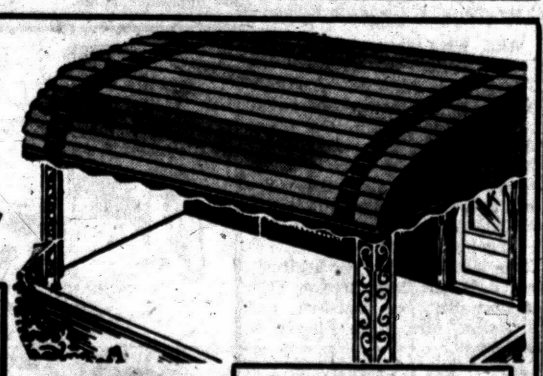

I notice there have been quite a few pictures lately about insects or animals that get a touch of radiation and become huge monsters. On top of that, a scientist claims that insects may inherit the world if there ever is an all-out atomic war. This puts a reverse spin on the evolution theory . . . and its a quick answer to folks who claim the world is going to the dogs.

It seems that insects can absorb 20 to 40 times as much radiation as humans. In other words, a jolt that would jar a man would only recharge the batteries on a glow worm. This certainly sticks a pin in the ballooning ego of the human race. For centuries we've considered man the top specimen in the animal kingdom. Now we find we're low man on the atomic poll.

Shows 55 Pct. Increase Since 1950 Census

County Is Pace-Setter in Population

Oakland County has been a pace setter in population growth since the 1950 Federal Census, figures released by the Detroit Metropolitan Area Regional Planning Commission show.

★ ★ ★

Oakland gained 218,999 persons, or a 55 per cent increase in the seven and a quarter years, making it second to Macomb County percentage wise (Macomb increased 83 per cent) but ahead in actual number gained to all but Wayne County which added 375,165.

Total Oakland population today is 615,000.

Percentage-wise, two Oakland communities were among the fastest growing in the metropolitan area: Oak Park grew by 26,033 people, or a 494 per cent increase, and Bloomfield Township added 12,149, or a 315 per cent boost.

The total population of the metropolitan area (Oakland, Macomb and Wayne Counties) is estimated at 3,770,000, an increase of 753,803, or 25 per cent, since 1950.

Natural increase accounted for 61 per cent of this boost, and migration for the rest. This compares with the 1940-50 decade when migration accounted for 57 per cent of the growth.

Lowdown on Bargaining for New and Used Cars

(These are the times that try the souls of auto dealers—or so they would have you think. One look at the panic signs on the show windows is enough to convince thousands of American car buyers that this is the time to get a car bargain—and they're probably right.)

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT (AP) — If auto dealers could halt the persistent tread of time, they'd probably pick these days of model changeover to do it.

Since they can't, the late fall is becoming the time for the great bargain sale on cars for Americans who will trade prestige for economy.

In days now 1958 model car will go on sale; you will hear that prices are higher but that broad engineering and styling changes justify the increases. Of course there will be features on the 1958 models that were not common to the 1957 cars.

Most dealers are confident, according to trade surveys, that they will clean up outgoing models.

But they admit they will sell most of the cars at bargain prices. Most of the cars sold since the start of the 1957 model year have been sold as less than "suggested list price."

Although dealers may cut prices a little more than they did earlier in the season, they are not going to give away their stock.

Generally speaking, the car retailer may mark up his cars as much as 25 per cent over the wholesale price. But practically, he seldom does.

That means that car prices vary greatly for the same make and model as the car model year nears its end.

The questions have been asked, how much does the average car dealer net in a normal model year and how can he slash prices so greatly and still survive? It also has been asked how can a car retailer cut his prices as much as $1,000.

Probably there are few, if any, instances in which a car retailer has actually cut $1,000 off the list price of a car. That would be the full markup of a car for which he paid $4,000.

Figures supplied by the National Automotive Dealers Assn. suggest that retailing new cars has not been especially profitable for several years although the net return has gone up somewhat this year.

The association reports that aside from inventory investments the average new car dealer has $1,088,000 in his operation; that he has to spend $677 annually per new unit retailed to operate his business and that his operating profit per unit during the first half of 1957 was $85. It was $68 during the first quarter of this year. A year ago during the first half the profit per unit was $48. Industry authorities sometimes question the exactness of these figures.

★ ★ ★

Obviously when the dealer starts slashing prices near the model year end he does not pocket all the price cut himself. Most car manufacturers have franchise agreements providing for rebates of around five per cent to their retailers for all unsold outgoing models at the start of the new model year.

★ ★ ★

Also, quotas. It is matter of simple mathematics that a new car retailer cannot slash delivered prices to the limit and at the same time offer a high allowance for the car traded in as part payment. The traded-in car has a definite re-sale value, usually a couple of hundred dollars more than the allowance it brought.

But the retailer frequently cuts his markup on the traded-in car, if the net on the new car justifies it.

He gained substantial concessions from the manufacturer in the Congressional hearings a year ago that searched into manufacturer-dealer relationship.

He also agreed not to force cars on the retailers beyond their capacity to sell and he made changes in the franchise agreements to meet objections from the retailers.

But the retailer still has problems. He reports he is harassed by bootlegging, where new cars are sold by nonfranchised dealers who buy them at cut prices.

But total new car sales for the 1957 model year probably will add up to around six million units when the final tabulation is made and most dealers will readily admit it has been a profitable year.

Russia Reported Down With Flu

No Figures Supplied in Dispatches From Moscow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Information available here strongly suggests that influenza has reached epidemic proportions in several parts of Russia.

★ ★ ★

World Health Organization officials in Geneva, Switzerland, also reported yesterday that the incidence of Asian flu continues to increase in both eastern and western Europe.

Censored press dispatches from Moscow have given no figures on the number stricken on the localities. However information relayed by other channels indicates the impact has been severe.

U.S. officials said yesterday that Soviet deputy minister of health V. M. Zhdanov wrote an article last week saying flu had reached epidemic proportions in the Soviet regions of Siberia and the Caucasus, with some schools forced to close and some entertainments cancelled.

Other reports said several schools in Moscow and Leningrad have been closed.

A dispatch from Moscow Tuesday night quoted a Soviet newspaper story relating that 500 doctors and an unspecified number of medical students had been recruited to care for Asian flu victims in Moscow hospitals.

★ ★ ★

Officials here said they understand that Russian anti-flu vaccine is not available in large quantities.

14 in Michigan Die From Asian Flu

LANSING (AP)—The death of 14 persons, all older people suffering from other ailments, has been attributed so far this fall to Asian flu, the State Health Department said yesterday.

"In all deaths attributed to influenza, an effort is being made to obtain laboratory and post-mortem confirmation that influenza was the cause of death," the department said.

Health officials said most of the deaths occurred in Detroit. All the deceased were suffering from other diseases serious enough in itself to result in death.

The department said the flu now has spread through the entire state, hitting hardest in the southeastern section, and that about one half the 83 counties are reporting unusual school absenteeism.

★ ★ ★

The department said influenza appeared to be following the same pattern in Michigan that has been established elsewhere, rising to a peak in a community in about two weeks and then disappearing in four to six weeks.

French Chief Turns to Center Parties

PARIS (AP)—President Rene Coty turned to the center parties today for a possible premier after conservative Antoine Pinay failed to win national assembly approval head the country's 24th postwar government.

Pinay, leader of the independents and peasants, won only 197 votes to 248 against him—mostly Socialists and Communists. There were many abstentions.

The Socialists killed Pinay's hopes by opposing him when he demanded special powers for a year to deal with economic and financial problems and indicated he might cut social services.

★ ★ ★

Coty had a choice between immediately designating someone else to try to form a government or naming a conciliator to seek information and try to pave the way for a new premier.

The president reportedly called in former premiers Robert Schuman, a popular republican; Henry Queuille, a radical Socialist; and Guy Mollet, a Socialist.

Six-Cannon Salute to Welcome Queen

NEW YORK (AP) — Six cannons will blast a 21-gun city hall salute to Queen Elizabeth when the British royal party arrives here Monday.

Mayor Robert F. Wanger yesterday authorized the salute after the Army assured him no damage would result and that half-charge blanks will be used.

About 600 detectives have been assigned to special duty for the day, while 4,689 members of the Police Department will keep crowds in check in the three boroughs the Queen and Prince Philip will visit—Richmond, Manhattan and Queens.

Agrees to Pay More

THREE RIVERS (AP) — The Continental Can Co. has agreed to drop a provision in its contract with the city of Three Rivers which would have saved the company money on its tax assessment. A taxpayers suit filed against the city and the company claimed the company would have saved about $40,000 over a 10-year period. Continental's new seven million dollar plant is scheduled to begin operations here next month.

Filmland Finally Decides to Pay for Oscar Telecast

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Hollywoodites are talking about:

I wonder if Mike Todd's crack, "If the film industry doesn't, I will," had anything to do with it? . . .

Jackie Gleason's arrival in Hollywood soon to talk movie deals. TV may not want him this season, but

Faubus May Sue Asking Troop Withdrawal

Still Deadlocked in Little Rock

By ED MARTIN

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Although the crisis stemming from forcible integration of Central High School appeared no nearer to a solution today, more legal developments seemed likely.

Gov. Orval Faubus has hinted that the state might file a suit asking withdrawal of the federal troops on duty at the school.

And a Little Rock attorney has vowed to write the Arkansas congressional delegation, urging the impeachment of U.S. District Judge Ronald N. Davies of Fargo, N.D. Thursday the judge threw out a federal suit which requested removal of the troops.

President Eisenhower ordered a contingent of about 1,100 soldiers of the 101st Airborne Division to Little Rock Sept. 24 to carry out Davis' orders for integration of nine Negro students at Central High.

The suit Davies threw out was filed by attorney Kenneth Coffelt on behalf of Mrs. Margaret Jackson, vice president of the segregationist League of Central High Mothers. She has two daughters enrolled at the school.

The House of Representatives must start any such proceedings against a federal judge. If the House votes for impeachment, a trial is held before the Senate.

Coffelt said that "in a very short time" he would appeal Davies' ruling to the eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis and would ask that the case be remanded for hearing before a three-judge court here. He contends that Davies had no authority to "prevent a hearing" on the suit.

★ ★ ★

Faubus criticized Davies' dismissal of the Jackson suit Thursday and said the state might step in and re-file it. But he gave no indication of when such a move might be made.

Yesterday, seven of the Negro students went to clases at Central. The other two were ill with influenza.

Rev. John Baker, head of the Md., and the Rev. Dunbar H. Ogden Jr., pastor of Little Rock's Central Presbyterian Church, said scholarships will be awarded to both white and Negro students on a basis of scholastic ability.
