Rickover Testimony Revealed

'Soviets Near Edge in Subs'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy nuclear chief Hyman G. Rickover says the Soviets—determined never again to have to back down as they did during the Cuban missile crisis—rapidly are overtaking the U.S. nuclear submarine fleet.

The Soviet Union is likely to have more nuclear submarines than the United States by the end of next year, the vice admiral told a House Appropriations Subcommittee, and they already have 230 more submarines of all types.

He said the Soviets could catch up with the U.S. missile-firing Polaris submarines by 1973 or 1974.

A censored transcript of Rickover's testimony May 20 in support of the Navy's $1.16 billion request for nuclear ship development and procurement was released today by the public works subcommittee.

Rickover linked the rapid Soviet submarine buildup to the 1962 Cuban missile crisis when asked about the danger of the United States being overtaken.

"I would put it this way: I believe that after the Cuban confrontation—which resulted ultimately in Mr. Khrushchev being kicked out of office—they made up their minds that they would never again be faced with a similar situation," Rickover said.

The Polaris now is the major U.S. deterrent to nuclear war, Rickover said, because it can glide undetected and fire a retaliatory missile barrage from under the oceans.

★ ★ ★

But as the Soviets catch up in their own Polaris-type subs and in their ability to detect and attack the U.S. submarines, he said, America will need escort submarines.

81 U.S. N-SUBS

The United States now has 81 nuclear submarines, including 41 Polaris, Rickover said, and the Soviets have 65. But at the present construction rates, Russia would surpass the United States by the end of 1970.

★ ★ ★

The Soviets have a total force of 375 submarines, he said, or 232 more than this country's 143.

★ ★ ★

He said the Soviets are expected to add 70 nuclear submarines by 1974 compared to the United States' 26—including enough Polaris-type submarines to match or surpass the United States' 41.

★ ★ ★

The Soviet Union now has seven of the Polaris-type submarines, he said, and is capable of turning out one a month while America has no present plans to expand its Polaris fleet.

Teacher Strike Prospects 'Good'

By DICK ROBINSON

Schools in Waterford Township are scheduled to open Sept. 4, but the teachers may not be there.

Some 650 teachers in the county's third largest school district may be taking what they call "an extended summer vacation." Others call it a strike.

★ ★ ★

Prospects for a teacher strike which would affect 18,500 students are good, some observers feel. Teachers have already vowed not to return to work without a contract.

Negotiators for teachers and the school board are a "substantial amount" apart in the key salary issue, said Warren Williams, executive director of the teachers' Waterford Education Association (WEA).

ADDS UP TO MONEY

And five other issues—fringe benefits, pay for extracurricular activities, class size, agency shop and length of the contract—all remain unresolved.

It all adds up to money. There is just not enough money to go around for the students, teachers and the administration.

"The problem is that we don't have the money we would need to make an agreeable settlement with the teachers," explains Acting Supt. Dr. John Pagen.

"We've had three millage losses. And even with a curtailed program, there's not enough money left over."

The school district will face more students this fall than last, and with about 75 less teachers than a year ago. In addition to the needed central administrative staff, there is a need for a new junior high school, according to school officials.

One of the major cutbacks for this school year puts elementary pupils on half-day sessions. They will be given only a basic education, Pagen said.

Secondary students will continue for the second year to do without one class period a day. The district's high schools risk losing their accreditation, making it harder for students to get into college, claim school officials.

Negotiators first started talks in March on the teachers' contract which expired last month.

RECOMMENDS FACT-FINDING

After a 16-hour negotiation session which ended early yesterday, state labor mediator Richard Terepin recommended both sides go into formal fact-finding.

Fact-finding involves a hearing where both the teachers and school administrators present their respective arguments. The fact finder then makes recommendations, which aren't binding, for settlement.

Waterford probably won't get a fact finder from the State Labor Mediation Board for at least a week, according to a spokesman in the Detroit office. Some 30 school districts around the state have applied for fact-finding.

If the fact finder's recommendations are agreed upon by

Says He Can't Believe Grand Jury

Lazaros Hits Perjury Charges

Former Mafia moneyman Peter Lazaros of Troy, whose accusations of corruption among public officials touched off two grand jury investigations, was indicted yesterday on 12 counts of perjury by a federal grand jury.

Lazaros of 2410 Dalesford said today he could not believe the 23-man grand jury's charges.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, the one-man grand juror assigned to investigate Lazaros' charges of corruption in Oakland County, hinted the federal perjury indictment could affect the local probe.

★ ★ ★

Oakland County one-man grand juror Judge Robert J. Colombo declined comment on the significance of the perjury charges to his probe of Lazaros' allegations of corruption in this county.

'REASONABLE ASSUMPTION'

He said, however, it would be a "reasonable assumption" to believe he would consult with Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley regarding the grand jury's future. Kelley and State Police Director Col. Fredrick Davids petitioned for the local probe, and Lazaros was expected to be a key witness.

★ ★ ★

"I testified to the truth," Lazaros said.

"I would appeal to anyone who has any information to help any law enforcement agency to forget it, bury it in their minds and refuse to cooperate," he said.

★ ★ ★

The federal grand jury has charged that Lazaros lied when he testified last Thursday that he made payoffs to Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh and five employes of the Internal Revenue Service.

STANDS MUTE

Lazaros, 36, stood mute before U.S. District Judge Ralph M. Freeman at his arraignment yesterday afternoon. He was released a short time later on $10,000 bond.

If convicted on the 12 perjury charges, Lazaros could face up to 60 years in jail and be liable for a fine of $24,000.

Lazaros claims he paid Cavanagh $3,000 and gave the IRS officials $1,000 each "for favors" at a 1967 Christmas party allegedly held at the Kingsley Inn in Bloomfield Hills.

★ ★ ★

The grand jury indictment claims Cavanagh and the IRS agents were not at the party and did not receive payoffs.

The panel also said Lazaros lied about giving $500 to Arthur Stone, general manager of the Detroit Harbor Terminals and a former purchasing director for the city, and about bribing James Dunleavy, former chief of detectives for the Detroit Police Department.

Bedside Death Talk?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A medical specialist on aging urges health professionals and families to stop engaging in what he calls a mutual pretense of avoiding talk about death when standing at the bedside of the dying elderly.

Dr. Anselm Strauss of the University of California's San Francisco Medical Center, also said health professionals should become better trained in the behavioral sciences so they could give better psychological and social care to old folks about to die.

Weather Watchers Get Fair Warming

The weatherman predicts fair with a warming trend today, tonight and tomorrow with the high temperature climbing into the low 80s. The low will dip to near 55 to 60 tonight.

above the normal high of 78 to 86 and normal low of 52 to 62.

Precipitation is expected to total about one-fourth to one-half inch in showers over the weekend.

Probabilities of precipitation are near zero today and tonight and 10 per cent tomorrow.

★ ★ ★

Today's winds are variable at 5 to 15 miles per hour and will become southwesterly at 8 to 15 miles tomorrow.

A sunny 54 was the low thermometer reading before 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac. By 2 p.m. the mercury had climbed to 64.

THREE DIED — Three area persons died this morning when this car collided with a gravel truck on M24 at Silver Bell Road in Orion Township. A third youngster is hospitalized in critical condition. All were passengers in the car. The truck driver received only minor injuries.

2-Vehicle Crash in Orion Kills 3

Three persons died today when their late-model auto collided with a gravel truck on M24 at Silver Bell Road in Orion Township.

Oakland County sheriff's deputies piecing together details of the collision speculated the auto ran a stop sign on Silver Bell before colliding with the northbound truck about 10 a.m.

Last Year to Date 95

Dead on arrival at Pontiac General Hospital were Mrs. James Johnson, 27, of 141 W. Beverly, Pontiac; her daughter Billie Jean Morris, 4, of the same address; and Kenneth LaFond, 16, of 2175 Silver Bell, Oakland Township, deputies said.

★ ★ ★

LaFond was believed to have been a family baby sitter. A third youngster, George Morris, 6, was in critical condition awaiting surgery about noon today for fractures and possible internal injuries. The two Morris youngsters were children of Mrs. Johnson by a previous marriage.

★ ★ ★

Both the car and the truck ended up in a ditch in the median between the northbound and southbound lanes of M24, a divided highway.

★ ★ ★

The driver of the truck, James Barnett, 25, of Madison Heights, was not injured seriously. He was treated for minor wounds at Pontiac General Hospital.

But these final days have been splendid, warm, sunny and dry. Enjoying yesterday and storing up memories for winter is Rick Bates, 10, of 2250 Garland, Sylvan Lake.

A-Energy to Power Planet Trip, Heart?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atomic energy may play such diverse roles in the future as power for a planetary grand tour and an artificial heart, Congress has been told.

★ ★ ★

The idea of implanting a tiny nuclear engine in the body to power an artificial heart is hypothetical, but worth looking into since heart disease kills some 750,000 Americans a year, says the director of the Atomic Energy Commission's isotopes development section.

★ ★ ★

E. Eugene Fowler estimates such heart research would take about four years and $5.5 million.

The commission's director of space nuclear systems, Milton Klein, in arguing for funding of the nuclear research on project Nerva, said atomic engines will be a must for deep space flight.

TESTIMONY RELEASED

The testimony of both men before House appropriations subcommittees in May was released yesterday.

The urgency of finding a practical power supply for an artificial heart, said Fowler, was demonstrated last year in Dr. Denton Cooley's effort to keep a patient alive in Houston, Tex.

The artificial heart Cooley used needed a power supply system the size of an office desk. Possibly, Fowler said, a nuclear engine weighing a few pounds could substitute, being implanted in the body.

The AEC is already at work on a radiation-safe fuel—electrorefined plutonium 238 enriched in oxygen 16. But no one has started on development of an engine, Fowler told committee members.

SPACE TRAVEL

As for space travel, Klein said, "We are moving into needs for very long life systems." A trip to Jupiter takes two years. A grand tour in the late 1970s when all the planets are in a favorable alignment would take seven to 11 years. years.

Klein said a desk-size Nerva atomic engine would produce as much power as Hoover Dam. Nerva would speed travel and make rescue of the vehicles possible. In comparison, the total weight of a Saturn booster is 6 million pounds, 5 million of which is chemical propellant.

As for space versus domestic priorities, Klein said, "The real long-term solutions to the problems of poverty, which are real ... is to increase our ability to produce and do things better.

"The space program serves as the cutting edge of technology," Klein said.

State Denies Having Pistol in Coed Deaths

YPSILANTI (AP) — State Police Capt. Daniel Myre said today authorities do not have a weapon used in two of the seven murders of young women in the Ypsilanti-Ann Arbor area in just over two years.

★ ★ ★

Radio station WJR of Detroit reported earlier that law enforcement officials "have the weapon" used in the slayings of Jane Mixer, the third victim, and that of Alice Kalom, the sixth.

★ ★ ★

It said ballistics tests of a 22-caliber pistol showed it killed the two girls.

★ ★ ★

Capt. Myre, chief of a special crime center established to handle the murder investigations, flatly denied "There is any such gun," after previously having refused to confirm or deny the report.

CALIFORNIA TRIP

WJR also reported Sgt. Kenard Christiansen, chief of the State Police's Plymouth crime laboratory, had been in Salinas, Calif., "the past week and returned with a slug from the body of an unidentified young girl murdered in that area on or about July 6th."

★ ★ ★

"Ballistic tests were made over the weekend," the station said, "and reports indicate the same weapon was used in that killing."

★ ★ ★

John Norman Collins, 22, an Eastern Michigan University senior, is the only person to have been charged in any of the seven Ypsilanti-Ann Arbor slayings. He is awaiting Circuit Court arraignment on a charge of having slain Karen Sue Beineman, 18-year-old Eastern Michigan coed, the seventh victim.

★ ★ ★

Witnesses identified Collins at his examination as having been seen with Miss Beineman the day she disappeared. They said she was riding a motorcycle with him.

★ ★ ★

The Detroit News has quoted Collins' attorney as saying the young man denies

Reds Mum on Airliner Crash Near Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet officials and news outlets kept a strict silence today on the flaming crash-landing outside Moscow of a Soviet commercial airliner with 112 persons believed aboard.

* * *

The Foreign Ministry, in the only official comment on the crash, said there were no foreigners on the flight.

* * *

That was all the official information available. Casualties were not known.

* * *

Only fire trucks and ambulances with sirens screaming as they raced out of Moscow toward Vnukovo Airport 15 miles away gave any clue to the seriousness of the accident last night.

Unofficial sources said the turboprop IL18 of the National Aeroflot Airline was carrying tourists to Moscow from the Black Sea resort at Sochi.

* * *

One employe at Vnukovo said there had been "victims." From a distance, witnesses could see ambulances leaving the scene for Moscow, their blue lights flashing.

* * *

The unofficial account of the crash said the plane had been unable to get its landing gear down, circled the airport to burn up excess fuel and then attempted the belly landing, bursting into flames.

* * *

Moscow radio and television went off the air last night without mention of the crash. Morning newspapers had no crash accounts. The official news agency, Tass, had nothing 12 hours after the accident.

LAST CRASH

The last known Aeroflot crash involved an IL18 that went down near Sverdlovsk in November of 1967. No casualties were ever announced although an official investigation of the accident was held.

Soviet officials and news outlets last reported a fatal airline crash on Feb. 17, 1966, when a Tupolev 114 went down at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport, killing 50 persons, including some foreigners.

No survivors were brought into the main Vnukovo Terminal where correspondents were kept under guard. At one point, more than 30 ambulances could be seen on the runway near the burning airliner.

Aides Pressuring Mitchell on Bias

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dissident Justice Department lawyers have mounted a campaign to get their boss to make a clear statement supporting strong enforcement of public school desegregation.

And if Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell does not meet their demands, some have indicated they may take drastic action, including mass resignations, to dramatize their discontent.

* * *

The intra-administration dispute came to light last night as most of the department's civil rights lawyers met to draft a statement seeking assurances the government will not relax its strong posture on school desegregation.

Sources said the meeting was triggered by the department's action Monday in asking Jackson, Miss., federal court to approve a delay in desegregation of 33 Mississippi school districts.

SEEDS SOWN

Actually, however, the seeds of the discontent were sowed almost two months ago when the administration announced it was eliminating absolute deadlines for achieving integration in the South's public schools.

* * *

Mitchell, the main target of the lawyers' criticism, was vacationing near the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., and could not be reached for comment. Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard, head of the civil rights division, was in Louisiana where he was reported trying to dampen opposition to school integration.

* * *

The department's public information office said it was unaware of the discontent in the division.

* * *

Of the 165 civil rights lawyers, about 85 are staff or "working attorneys." Sources said all 85 were invited to last night's meeting, which was held at an undisclosed location in Southeast Washington.

Infiltration Rate Below N. Viet Casualties--U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnamese have reduced their infiltration into South Vietnam below their casualty rate, and thus enemy forces in the South may be getting smaller in number, a State Department spokesman said today.

* * *

The spokesman, press officer Robert J. McCloskey, reaffirmed the State Department's view that the infiltration cutback is "significant" but added that the United States still seeks a mutual U.S.-North Vietnamese withdrawal deal.

* * *

While North Vietnamese combat losses in excess of replacements "will eventually have the same effect as a withdrawal by North Vietnamese forces," he said, it would be a slow process and "we prefer to end the conflict by negotiation" leading to a pullout of all non-South Vietnamese troops.

* * *

State Department officials said the infiltration drop may be a factor in President Nixon's still-pending decision on the next withdrawal of American forces. But they cautioned against regarding it as the actual determining factor.

McCloskey gave no figures in saying "There has been a considerable reduction in North Vietnamese infiltration into South Vietnam."

DINIS' SHADOW — Massachusetts State Police Cpl. Robert Enos keeps a watchful eye on Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis who stops to read a newspaper in front of his New Bedford office yesterday. The Boston Record American said the trooper had been assigned to guard Dinis "because of several legitimate threats against his life." The newspaper said the threats pertained to Dinis' decision to proceed with an inquest Sept. 3 into the death of a Washington secretary who died in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's auto on Chappaquiddick Island July 18.

Judge Says Ted to Appear at Kopechne-Case Inquest

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — District Court Judge James A. Boyle said today that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy will appear at the inquest Sept. 3 into the death of Miss Mary Jo Kopechne "even if he has to be subpoenaed."

Boyle commented at a preinquest hearing in this island resort town attended by attorneys for Kennedy and several other individuals involved in the case.

"It is essential that Mr. Kennedy be present as a witness," Boyle said. The judge added that he would see to it that Kennedy testifies even if he has to be summoned.

Kennedy's chief counsel, Robert Clark Jr. of Brockton, promptly announced that the senator would be present at the inquest. He did not indicate, however, whether he intended to put Kennedy on the stand.

GROUND RULES

The hearing was held to go over ground rules for the inquest and consider various motions from the attorneys involved.

A similar session, at which Boyle is to rule on the motions, was scheduled for 9 a.m. (Pontiac time) tomorrow.

The motions pertain to such questions as whether the attorneys for the various witnesses have the right to object, whether they will have the right to cross-examine, whether statements will be permissible in lieu of testimony, the manner in which witnesses will be questioned and by whom.

Boyle said the witnesses will be sequestered—that is, locked up and prohibited from talking with newsmen.

Hearing on New Hoffa Trial Ends

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa's hearing for a new jury-tampering trial ended in its seventh day today, with his lawyers given 10 days to file memoranda on information they feel should be added to the record.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank Wilson took the case under advisement, after denying a new request for more transcripts on bugged conversations by Teamsters officials.

* * *

Hoffa, who has served 30 months of an eight-year sentence at the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa., was permitted to remain here today and Thursday to confer with his attorney.

Shortly before the hearing ended, it was interrupted by a man who said he wanted to arrange for Hoffa's bail. Hoffa's lawyers immediately disclaimed the man, who identified himself as Robert E. Morgan of "the rank and file committee for Hoffa."

The judge ruled the man's move out of order.

Teacher Pact Try Steps Up

BIRMINGHAM — Negotiations between the board of education and the Birmingham Education Association (BEA) have intensified this week in an attempt to reach contract agreement before the opening of schools Sept. 3.

Donald Cameron, executive director of the BEA, said that if contract accord is reached before the scheduled school starting date it will be an 11th-hour settlement.

* * *

Major difference in negotiations reportedly concerns the middle part of the teacher salary scale, according to Cameron.

"Both the board and the teachers realize that the minimum and maximum rates have to remain competitive with the contracts settled by other districts.

EQUAL INCREASE SOUGHT

"However, we definitely want to be sure that all teachers get an equitable salary increase," he noted.

Last year's salary schedule ranged from a bachelor's degree maximum of $6,900 to a master's degree maximum of $12,550.

Settlements in the metropolitan Detroit area for the 1969-70 term are averaging about a $7,500 minimum for beginning teachers with a maximum of $12,500-$13,000.

Spokesmen for the board and the BEA said the fringe package is essentially settled, with good progress reported on a number of smaller noneconomic items.

NEW SPOKESMAN

Robert Maxfield, past president of the BEA and a social studies teacher at Seaholm High School, is the new spokesman for the teachers' bargaining unit. Maxfield replaced Burton Bronson, who resigned to accept a position with the Waterford Public Schools.

New members of the BEA team are Catherine Slick, mathematics teacher, Derby Junior High; Donald Vratanina and John Kish, mathematics teachers at Seaholm High School; and Alex McInnes, social studies teacher at Seaholm.

The new members of the BEA negotiation team have replaced those teachers who have other commitments. Other team members are Betty Meyers, Bloomfield Village teacher, and Cameron.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — William T. Gossett of 420 Goodhue, a Detroit attorney and former president of the American Bar Association, has been named to the American Council on Education's new Committee on Campus Tensions.

Gossett will serve on the committee of 18 prominent educators, laymen and students under Sol M. Linowitz, chairman, a former ambassador to the Organization of American States.

Further Pullouts Hinge on Reds

PARIS (UPI) — President Nixon will hold off announcing more U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam until the Communists demonstrate they are willing to end the war, allied sources said today.

Nixon's chief peace negotiator, Henry Cabot Lodge, brought back that message yesterday for the Vietcong and North Vietnamese after consultations with the President in the United States.

* * *

Exactly what sign would be acceptable — a decline in battlefield attacks or a new move at the peace table — was not clear. Nixon's initial 25,000-man pullout was to be completed tomorrow.

"The message is clear — it is time for something in return," one source within the other side to respond, to do the allied delegation said.

PULLOUT DELAYED

Nixon delayed indefinitely plans to announce another pullout last week after new Vietcong and North Vietnamese attacks on the battlefield and no progress at the Paris peace table.

On his return, Lodge would not disclose what his advice had been on the matter but said Nixon "wants to leave no stone unturned for peace."

* * *

A South Vietnamese official said "we are pressing for a response, and will continue to press them because our course is well set and all we have to do now is continue in the same direction."

The 32nd session of the four-party peace talks is set for tomorrow.

* * *

South Vietnam for weeks has been seeking a positive Vietcong response to its offer to include the guerrillas in national elections. The Communists have rejected the proposal repeatedly.

Nader Charges Violations of Information Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader charges that numerous federal agencies, while giving preferential treatment to special interest groups, have violated the Freedom of Information Act by withholding information from press and public.

"Government officials at all levels in many of these agencies," Nader said, "have violated systematically and routinely both the purpose and specific provisions of the law.

The charges came in a 29-page report by Nader and a group of about 100 law, engineering and medical students and graduates who have been investigating the workings of several government agencies over the summer.

They called a news conference yesterday to list specific instances of what they termed violations of the two-year-old Freedom of Information Act.

VIOLATIONS CITED

Some violations cited by the group were: the Defense Department's denial of access to the quantity of oil being pumped from Navy ship bilges; the Water Pollution Control Administration classifying domestic military base sewage as a national security matter; and attempts by the Highway Administration to keep automotive safety standard violations from the public while quickly informing manufacturers.

The report said the Labor Department had denied public access to records from 5 to 15 years old on violations of minimum wages and safety standards for certain businesses.

And it listed in an appendix 19 violations of the information act by the Agriculture Department.

Nader criticized the news media for not bringing more court cases to force disclosure under the information act and reporters for not asking "searing, controversial, difficult questions" at some news conferences.

The act, the report said, "designed to provide citizens with tools of disclosure, has been regressively forged into a shield against citizen access."

Don't Have Death Gun---State

any connection with Miss Beineman's death. Newsmen have not been allowed to talk to Collins.

Andrew Julian Manuel, 25, with whom police said Collins made a trip to California, was to undergo examination today in Ypsilanti District Court on two charges.

* * *

Manuel, a former roommate of Collins' at Ypsilanti, is accused of possessing a woman's stolen ring and of larceny by conversion.

Authorities have confirmed the ring came from none of the murder victims and say it was stolen in a spring burglary at the apartment of an Ypsilanti elementary school teacher.

* * *

The larceny by conversion charge stems from a trailer, which police said was rented in Ypsilanti by Manuel but left in California. Michigan authorities searched the trailer, located after Collins' arrest, for clues and reported they found none linking it with any of the killings.

Teacher Strike Is Looming

the negotiators, it would take a few more days for the school board and most of the other teachers to study and approve the proposals.

MAY CONTINUE TO MEET

This certainly would extend beyond the designated Sept. 4th opening of school. So it appears the only way of avoiding a teacher strike is if both parties and the mediator settle the issues themselves.

Both Pagen and Williams said the two groups may continue to meet. But as of this morning no new meetings were scheduled.

The six issues at stake are:

- Salaries. Teachers want a competitive salary scale. Administrators say they're offering all they can for salaries and their offer would be pretty competitive.

Waterford ranked third lowest of 28 county districts in bachelor degree teacher salaries which ranged from $6,700 to $10,500 last year.

They were also third lowest in master's minimum of $7,100 and sixth lowest in master's maximum of $11,500.

- Fringe benefits. Teachers want their health and life insurances paid for 12 months, not 10 months as in the past.
- Extracurricular activities. Williams said the negotiators are about $30,000 apart on salaries for teachers who spend extra time supervising after school activities.
- Class size. Teachers want the right to grieve if they have too many children in a class. Pagen contends it would cost the school system $170,000 alone in salaries to hire new teachers if each class were to be reduced by one student.
- Agency shop. Teachers want every teacher to become a member of the teacher's union since they all benefit from WEA negotiations. Administrators fear teachers who don't join—who under the agreement would have to be fired—would disrupt the school system.
- Length of contract. Teachers want a one-year contract. Administrators are pushing for a two-year noneconomic pact and one-year economic agreement.

Nixon Riot-Cleanup Setup Hard to Recognize

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $9 million President Nixon set aside for riot cleanup is financing projects ranging from portable swimming pools in Akron, Ohio, to boardwalk repairs on Coney Island.

The President announced the program April 8 as a start to rid 20 cities of what Nixon called the "marks of violence and destruction."

But Detroit is using $739,383 of those federal funds for what its officials call a "morale program" aimed at rats and garbage, not riot debris.

And "those rotting, boarded-up structures, barely 30 blocks from the White House" that the President referred to in his statement still stand in Washington.

LITTLE TO SHOW

So far, the capital has only one tot lot mini park and four more being readied to show for the program.

* * *

There's little else the cities can do with the $9 million Nixon and the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) made available under HUD's previously ignored interim assistance program.

* * *

Congress specified in 1968 that this program's money could only be used in future urban renewal sites for such things as temporary recreational facilities, sprucing-up operations and repairs to public facilities and demolition of structurally unsound buildings.

So Akron is using part of its $534,000 grant for four portable swimming pools as well as for trash cleanups and demonstration projects designed to improve garbage collection.

BUSY IN GOTHAM

And New York City, where major racial disorders broke out in Harlem and Brooklyn in 1964, is pumping $800,000 in interim assistance into a host of projects scattered throughout the city's poverty areas.

Part of the money, about $10,000, will improve the boardwalk in Coney Island—a section of the city best known for its boardwalk amusement area but also troubled by poverty in its Negro and Puerto Rican slums.

* * *

Youths battled police in a flareup on Coney Island last summer.

"This is interim assistance," said Richard R. Torchia, Model Cities director in Providence, R.I. "Forget the riot damage nonsense. That's a publicity grab."

FEW RIOT TRACES

But an Associated Press survey of participating cities showed that in most, traces of rioting were barely visible when the program was announced.

In city after city, officials said debris cluttering vacant lots and alleys was not the product of rioting but the refuse of slums, such as abandoned refrigerators, automobile hulks, and rusted and shattered bed springs.

In cities like Rochester, N.Y., and Los Angeles, debris from rioting was cleared away years ago. Rochester's riot was in 1964. Watts erupted in 1965.

In some cities, such as Providence, Louisville, Ky., and Nashville, Tenn., damage from disturbances was relatively minor.

NO APPLICANTS

Interim assistance, designed to take the edge off the desolation that usually descends on neighborhoods pegged for urban renewal, had not drawn a single application from the nation's cities before President Nixon tapped that section of the 1968 House Act for the special riot funds, HUD officials said.

Cities must match every $2 in federal money with $1 of their own.

Cities such as Cleveland and Newark are happy with the program because they will be able to link interim assistance to assorted other HUD programs, including open space and demolition and urban renewal. Both expect to make an impact on riot areas. But other cities are less impressed.

Housing, said John T. Mauro, Pittsburgh planning director, is that city's No. 1 need, not the landscaping, cleanup campaigns, parking lots and playgrounds that a $450,000 share in interim assistance funds will provide.

GATHERING DUST

But Pittsburgh's housing-oriented Neighborhood Development Program application has been gathering dust at HUD.

"We had to really fabricate a program to do something that was not what the people really wanted done," Mauro said. "We're not kidding anybody."

HUD officials say the administration was careful from the beginning not to oversell the program.

"Our program has been characterized as a bulldozer and rubble operation," said G. Richard Dunnells, a special assistant who helped shape the program. "This is a mischaracterization."

"The focus of this program," Dunnells said, "was to use a limited amount of money in a limited geographical area . . . It was to give attention to areas where you have a history of decay and blight, give some attention to these areas and tell people they haven't been forgotten."

HUD officials note that the President also pledged a speed-up in the processing of funding of $200 million in other HUD projects.

* * *

All told, officials said, $189.6 million in funds have gone into the riot cities so far this calendar year.

"I hope we didn't have to have a riot to get this money," commented one city official who had waited since 1967 for the approvals.

Agreement on Ownership

Is Library Accord Near?

ROCHESTER — An agreement to legally define ownership of the Avon Township Free Public Library may be in the offing.

The City Commission this week approved "in principle" a proposal by city and township attorneys to split responsibility for the library between the municipalities.

* * *

If the Township Board also approves the cooperative venture at its meeting tonight, it will resolve the final problematic legal issue since Rochester incorporated as a city two years ago.

The problem — without available legal guidelines — has been what to do with a township library within city limits.

BOARD HOLDS TITLE

The seven-member library board now holds title to the library. Because of legal technicalities, title transfer and the status of the library have never been resolved, explained Lewis R. Bebout, Avon Township attorney.

In the 1920s, the township levied a half-mill tax to buy property for a proposed library. Later, Mrs. Eva Woodward Parker provided money for a library building in her will.

The deed to the property at 210 W. University is made out to the trustees of the Avon Township Free Public Library. Bebout contends, however, that the deed actually belongs to the township and that the library board only has a "trusteeship" and is responsible to the township.

Bebout said that the Township Board has asked the library board to sign over the deed and put ownership of the library in the name of the township. But up to this time, he said, the library board has "done nothing."

TAX EVALUATION BASIS

The plan proposed by Bebout and Rochester City Attorney Arthur R. Cox would be on the basis of tax evaluation, with both municipalities holding the title.

Rochester would own 23.1 per cent of the library, while the operational cost would be divided, based on the number of library cards used, in the city.

* * *

Also in the plan is a provision to elect a new library board of four Avon Township representatives and two from Rochester. The present board would be allowed to finish its term, with present members eligible for reelection.

Unable to say if the Township Board would act at this Wednesday's meeting, Bebout said they would consider the proposal "very soon."

In Teacher Impasse

Fact-Finding Asked

CLARKSTON — Fact-finding hearings have been requested by a mediator in an attempt to resolve a three-week impasse in contract negotiations between the board of education and the Clarkston Education Association (CEA).

The beginning of fact-finding sessions probably will depend on the outcome of a teacher's meeting tomorrow night when teachers will decide whether to talk out if the contract is not settled by next Tuesday or continue to negotiate after classes begin.

* * *

Major differences in contract negotiations concern the salaries at the upper end of the wage scale, according to a school board spokesman.

There are a number of other areas still unsettled but it is expected that those differences would fall in line once the salary difficulties are worked out. The principal issue, of ocurse, is money.

RANGE $6,780—$12,155

The salary range on the expired one-year contract was $6,780 to $12,155.

Most settlements in the metropolitan Detroit area are averaging $7,500 maximum of $12,500-13,000.

Thomas Brown, president of the CEA, said the two sides are still far apart on establishment of a curriculum council, class size, definition of building aid duties, procedures for resolving grievances, definition of extra duty requirements, personal leave days for teachers, economic issues and the school calendar.

* * *

Brown said elementary teachers in the sytem are hopeful class sizes can be reduced to a more realistic figure of less than 30 students. "This would enable the teacher to devote more attention to those students requiring additional help," he said.

Brown said teachers were also asking for a set of procedures to be followed in resolving any employe grievances which may arise.

"Since the State Labor Mediation Board will no longer conduct factfinding hearings of grievances," Brown said, "it is more important now than ever before that the method of resolving these differences be incorporated into the contract with the teachers."

* * *

Brown called it unrealistic for one member of a two party contract to be the interpreter of any grievance matter that should arise in the course of the year.

Contract talks began in March and were held on a regular basis until about three weeks ago when talks bogged down.

* * *

The CEA negotiation team represents 266 teachers in the Clarkston district.

Utica Schools OK $3-Million Budget Boost

UTICA — The school district will operate on a budget of $14.5 million during the 1969-70 school term, an increase of nearly $3 million over the 1968-69 fiscal plan.

The new spending plan, approved by the board of education this week, will finance the operation of 28 schools and instruction for an estimated 20,150 students, 1,750 more than last year.

* * *

There will be no increase in local property taxes to meet the projected budget needs.

* * *

The hiring of 164 additional personnel for the enrollment growth, numerous program improvements, a cooperative sidewalk construction program with Sterling Heights and Shelby Township and salary increases negotiated by school employes account for the budget increase.

NEW CLASSROOMS

The school district will operate 60 additional elementary classrooms in three buildings and a new 50-teacher junior high school this year.

* * *

New spending will be required for a vocational education laboratory at Utica High School, a new swimming pool at Stevenson High School, a districtwide reroofing program, shared-time programs with four parochial schools and a new kindergarten-first grade program at Burr Elementary in Sterling Heights.

* * *

The new budget also includes a 25 per cent increase in funds earmarked for student instructional supplies.

Frank Pichel, assistant superintendent for business affairs, revealed the breakdown on the origin of each dollar in the 1969-70 budget: property taxes, 61 cents; state aid, 35 cents; interest on investments, 2 cents; the Macomb County Intermediate School District, one cent; and federal aid, one cent.

SPENDING BREAKDOWN

Pichel also explained how each budget dollar will be spent: instruction 63 cents; debt service, 12 cents; operations and maintenance, 12 cents; transportation, 4 cents; fixed charges, 3 cents; capital outlay, 2 cents; administration, 3 cents; and miscellaneous, one cent.

* * *

It will cost the Utica Community Schools $720 to educate each of its students this year, compared to $629 in the 1968-69 school year, according to Pichel.

Novi Schools OK Teacher Contract

NOVI — The school board last night unanimously approved the teaching contract ensuring schools will open on time.

Teachers ratified the contract last week calling for salaries for teachers with bachelor's degree to begin at $7,300. Last year, salaries began a $6,700.

* * *

Under the new agreement, teachers with master's degrees will receive a minimum $7,950 to a maximum of $12,250. Last year, teachers with master's degrees received $7,100 to $10,915.

* * *

In another aspect of the agreement, teachers will now be paid for time spent in certain extracurricular events. Previously they did so on their own time. Included are golf, wrestling, spectator bus chaperoning, future teachers club and the National Honor Society meetings.

* * *

Medical benefits were also increased.

W. Bloomfield School Head Evaluates Needs, Progress

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — "What shall be taught, when, and to whom?' are the essential questions to be considered by the professional staff, school board and community," said Dr. A. P. Witham, schools superintendent.

In an annual report filed with the school board this week, Witham outlined accomplishments of the past year and stated needs for the upcoming one.

* * *

Witham suggested that curriculum should go beyond its primary function — imparting knowledge.

* * *

"It should also promote critical and effective methods of thinking, encourage curiousity and creativity, and encourage constructive social attitudes and relationships, if it is to be relevant and meaningful in 1969," he commented.

CONTINUAL APPRAISAL

Witham noted that the cirriculum is continually being appraised in terms of its relevancy to the changing social and educational needs and objectives.

Priority lists for the upcoming year include improving and expanding physical education, vocational and technical education, and special services, such as counseling and guidance.

* * *

The development of more sophisticated budgetary controls was made last year beginning with the hiring of Norman Kainer, the district's first assistant superintendent of business affairs. A new budgeting system has been developed and is now going into use, said Witham.

He said that anticipated general fund revenues may reach $3.4 million this year — up $600,400 from last year. The increase will cover anticipated salary increases, repairs and additions at several schools, and the cost of 24 new teachers needed to cover 300 additional students.

EXPANDING ROLES

The roles of the administration and of the board have expanded in the last year according to Witham. The increasing challenges from growing enrollment and staff, a limited budget, collective bargaining with employe organizations and development of curriculum goals have all been taken on by the administration, according to Witham.

He urged the adoption of new management techniques to arrive at creative solutions for these challenges.

The school board was also informed of increasing administrative attempts to promote communciation with the community and with the professional staff.

Last year, Witham instituted an "open-door" policy to encourage parents to visit him. Thursday afternoons were left for taxpayers and teachers to discuss concerns, criticisms and suggestions for improving curriculum and services. The day will remain open this year also.

DISCUSSION GROUPS

Newsletters and monthly calendars also are sent to parents. Neighborhood discussion groups, led by Dr. Witham, can also be arranged.

The superintendent's report also discussed attempts to allow the staff a greater involvement in curriculum development. Last year, a professional resource center was started.

* * *

Witham also reported that building and site acquisitions were at an all-time high. The new $8-million high school is under construction with occupancy set for 1971.

State Board Sells $42 Million in Bonds for Local School District Building Loans

LANSING (UPI) — The State Administrative Board yesterday sold $42 million in general obligation bonds to loan to local school districts for construction projects.

State Treasurer Allison Green said the average interest rate the state will have to pay on the one-year bonds is 6.23 per cent.

The Detroit Bank and Trust Co. bought $5 million at 5.45 per cent; a group of four companies headed by the National Bank of Detroit bought $10 million at 6.27 per cent; and another group headed by the Detroit Bank of the Commonwealth bought $27 million at rates varying from 6.31 to 6.44 per cent.

The state school bond fund is now below $6 million, Green said. Of the $42 million being borrowed, $26 million will be used to pay off fiscal notes now due.

$5 MILLION CUSHION

Only $16 million will be made available for local districts to borrow. The remaining $5 million will be a "cushion" for the funds, Green said.

"I would have been more pleased with an interest rate under 6 per cent," Green said. But he added that the large number of bidders (12 individual companies or groups) shows Michigan has a good credit rating.

School districts are eligible to borrow from the fund if their debt requirements for building projects exceed a seven-mill local property tax. The amount they may borrow is based upon a statutory formula.

When the minimum rate before borrowing was 13 mills, the state fund was more stable, Green said. "The money began to go out like crazy after it was lowered to seven."

The state will have to sell more bonds next year to pay off the bonds just sold, Green predicted.

If the tax reform package pending in Congress is approved, the amount of money Michigan must repay on the $42 million loan could be increased by as much as $250,000, Green said. This is because the federal government is considering revoking the tax-exempt status of governmental bonding issues.

Farmington Twp. Pushes Loiter Law

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — The Township Board has instructed Township Attorney Joseph Brennan to draft a loitering ordinance to cope with groups hanging around private shopping centers.

There now is no controlling ordinance because the centers are on private property.

Supervisor Curtis Hall indicated that store owners he contacted endorsed the idea of such an ordinance.

The time when the sidewalks and parking areas in front of the stores are most congested is immediately after classes are over for the day.

* * *

In other business this week, the board decided to require licenses for any company wanting to collect trash and garbage in the township. There had been no control over companies collecting garbage in the area.

Rochester Teaching Contract Gets Accord

ROCHESTER — Tentative agreement has been reached between the board of education and the Rochester Education Association (REA).

Tomorrow the REA will meet at 8 p.m. in Rochester High's auditorium to consider ratification of the tentative agreement.

The board will meet later that evening at 10 in the Board of Education Building to consider ratifying the tentative agreement.

Davison GI Reported Killed in Viet Action

DAVISON — Spec. 4.C. David L. Bonesteel was reported killed in Vietnam fighting Monday. He had previously been listed as missing in action.

His mother, Mrs. Alice M. DeMain of 322 Rising, said that "he didn't regret fighting in Vietnam."

A graduate of Lapeer High School, Bonesteel, 21, had been stationed in Vietnam since July 22. He had entered the army in February, 1968.

He is survived by his father, Robert Bonesteel, two sisters and one brother.

CO of Balking Troops Relieved of Unit

SAIGON (AP) — The young American lieutenant who couldn't get his men back into battle last Sunday has been relieved of his command.

His battalion commander, Lt. Col. Robert C. Bacon of Falls Church, Va., said today that Lt. Eugene Shurtz Jr., 26, of Davenport, Iowa, had been relieved as commander of Alpha Company and would be given a new assignment with the 196th Light Infantry Brigade.

★ ★ ★

"I went out to relieve him personally," Bacon said in a telephone interview from his headquarters in the foothills southwest of Da Nang. "I wasn't satisfied with the progress the company was making."

Alpha Company suffered heavy casualties last week in five consecutive days of assaults on a labyrinth of North Vietnamese bunkers and trench lines on the slopes of Nui Lon Mountain. Ordered to move out again Sunday, Shurtz told Bacon over a field telephone: "I am sorry, sir, but my men refuse to go. We cannot move out."

SENT TO SCENE

Bacon sent his executive officer, Maj. Richard Waite of Reynoldsville, Pa., and Sgt. Okey Blankenship of Panther, W.Va., a Vietnam veteran, to the scene. Blankenship finally persuaded the men to get moving. They ran into no opposition.

★ ★ ★

Bacon said that Capt. Bernard F. Wolpers, a native of Germany who is now a U.S. citizen, had replaced Shurtz as company commander.

The colonel said the company's refusal to follow Shurtz's orders "was certainly a contributing factor" in his decision to change commanders, but that the action "was not solely based on that."

A LOT OF REASONS

"I made the decision for a lot of reasons," he said. "I don't think he had the experience to handle the job . . . The company wasn't responsive; it was dragging its feet.

"It was slow getting its gear together. I didn't think the company moved when I wanted it to. I would tell them to move out at 6 a.m. and they would move out at 6:30."

★ ★ ★

A spokesman for the American Division said five enlisted men had questioned Shurtz's orders to move out, but that all five had finally gone with the rest of the company "and the company completed its mission." Both Bacon and the spokesman said no charges are pending against anyone and no formal investigation is being conducted.

"The matter is not being further pursued," the spokesman said. "The men are still in the company, and the company is still in the field."

NO COMPLAINTS

Bacon said five enlisted men in the company had requested during the incident to see the Inspector General, but "they decided not to once they settled down and started moving. They decided they had no complaints at all."

He said the company is still operating in the field but has not been involved in any significant fighting since last Saturday.

★ ★ ★

Shurtz had been in Vietnam only a month and was commander of Alpha Company for three weeks. Bacon took command of the battalion last Thursday after his predecessor, Lt. Col. Eli P. Howard of Wondridge, Va., was killed in a helicopter crash.

Bacon said he did not consider the Alpha Company incident "a big problem."

★ ★ ★

"I've seen similar type things happen," he said.

Shurtz could not be reached for comment.

Western States Sight Meteor Shower

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A swarm of meteors glowing cherry red as they burned up in the atmosphere flashed across California, Nevada and Arizona skies Tuesday night.

"The sky seemed filled with flying sparks," exclaimed a Federal Aviation Administration official in Phoenix.

★ ★ ★

Other persons said the meteors looked like a burning airplane that was disintegrating in the air.

The skies also were laced with the luminescent vapor trail of a Minuteman II ICBM missile test launched earlier down the Western Test Range in the Pacific from Vandenberg Air Force Base in central California.

★ ★ ★

The meteors were seen for about five minutes starting at 8:50 p.m. PDT and left a shining white streak visible to many observers for several minutes, mingling with the remnants of the Minuteman vapor trail.

★ ★ ★

A Palomar Observatory spokesman said, "A meteor shower was more or less expected about now. They run in cycles."

Jackson UF Fair

JACKSON (AP) — Jackson's first United Fund Free Fair will be held Sept. 13-14 at Parkside High School. Seventeen service agencies of the United Community Services will take part in the fair, offering free hearing tests and demonstrations of how they work to serve the public. There will be free pony rides and entertainment, featuring rock groups and country and western musicians.

Cyclist Sought in 2 Shootings

DETROIT (AP) — A member of the Detroit motorcycle club, the Scorpions, is being sought on a warrant for attempted murder in the shooting early Tuesday of a Taylor Township patrolman and a member of a rival club.

A 19-year-old Taylor youth is sought in the shooting of patrolman Freeman Suiter, 26, of Taylor, reported in satisfactory condition in Wayne County General Hospital, and Jesse Laster, 33, also of Taylor, listed in fair condition Tuesday night.

★ ★ ★

A second person was accused in a warrant of assault with intent to murder. He was alleged to have fired two shots from a 22-caliber pistol before being disarmed by other motorcyclists.

Taylor Township Deputy Police Chief Doyle Vaughn said Laster and the youth sought had a fight in the parking lot of the Top Hat restaurant in Taylor. He said the assailant returned a half-hour later with a shotgun and shot Laster.

Suiter heard the shot, identified himself as a police officer, and ordered the youth to drop the shotgun. Instead he shot Suiter and fled.

Governors Meet Slated

A minor but time-consuming activity of a state governor is attending conferences. There is a Republican Governors' Conference and a Democratic Governors' Conference. In addition, there are Southern, Western, Midwestern and Middle Atlantic governors' conferences.

Most important of all is the National Governors' Conference. The 61st of the annual series will be held for four days beginning Sunday in Colorado Springs, with President NIXON addressing the meeting on Labor Day.

The agenda of a National Governors' Conference inevitably reflects the domestic concerns of the day. Topics to be discussd this year include problems of the cities, major issues in human resources, transportation, response to the challenge of crime, and environmental quality.

★ ★ ★

But the most lively discussion may be that on revenue sharing.

The President recently proposed a plan to share Federal tax revenues with states and localities with no strings attached.

★ ★ ★

The present lineup of governors shows 30 Republicans and 20 Democrats. Four men who were Republican governors prior to Election Day, 1968, have since become members of the Nixon Administration — Vice President SPIRO T. AGNEW, Secretary of Transportation JOHN A. VOLPE, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development GEORGE W. ROMNEY, and Secretary of the Interior WALTER J. HICKEL.

★ ★ ★

All except Agnew were replaced by Republicans. By the end of this year, the GOP may have enlarged its control of state executive mansions. New Jersey and Virginia, each with a lame-duck Democratic governor, will elect replacements on Nov. 4.

'Court' Awaits Haynsworth

The "Burger court" is now complete.

President NIXON's nomination of Judge CLEMENT R. HAYNSWORTH JR. of South Carolina to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of ABE FORTAS will, when and if confirmed by the Senate, raise the Supreme Court to full nine - justice strength.

HAYNSWORTH

The suspense these past weeks has been, to say the least, bearable. HAYNSWORTH has been widely discussed in the press as the likely choice. And if by any chance more was needed, there was the laying on of hands, a week before the announcement from the western White House, by chief congressional oracle, Sen. EVERETT DIRKSEN, whose record in calling the shots on major appointments has been rather good so far in this administration.

★ ★ ★

Now the great game begins—analysis of Haynsworth's record on the bench and his personal philosophy, speculation of the effect on the Court's balance and decisions, and the political maneuvering over his confirmation.

★ ★ ★

Pros and cons are, of course, relative. What will count in the nominee's favor in some quarters—his reported strict constructionist views on the admissibility of confessions, or his liberal decisions on habeas corpus —will be black marks against him in others. To be expected are the charges that the nomination of HAYNSWORTH, although a Democrat, is another example of the President repaying an election debt to the South.

★ ★ ★

The analysis and maneuvering are inevitable—and conjecture equally so. Although the Haynsworth nomination would seem to reduce the hard-core liberals to three—Douglas, Brennan and Marshall—there is enough of a mix in the Haynsworth record, as there is in Burger's, to make prediction risky.

Cheers Milliken's Veto of Legislators' Pension

Gov. Milliken is to be congratulated on his veto of the pension bill for Michigan Legislators. They are among the highest paid in the Country and shouldn't even have a pension. They knew what the job paid when they ran for office and the idea of a pension after six or eight years is preposterous. Making it available at 55 or 60 is worse.

★ ★ ★

I'm surprised more of our over-taxed citizens didn't start protesting about this when it was being considered.

'Could We Make Friends Closer to Home?'

It was refreshing to see that President Nixon made so many friends far away from home on his recent trip. Now we have some countries closer to home he could woo if he followed Nelson Rockefeller's trip to South America.

Comments on Demands Made on Taxpayers

How do people on welfare and ADC have the nerve to think the working taxpayer owes them a living and demand $75 for school clothes, for Christmas, etc. Some take home tax free, more each week than the working man, plus free doctor and hospital care, and even a down payment on a home. How many working taxpayers have $75 for each child for clothes to start school? There should be no welfare or ADC until all jobs in newspaper ads and the unemployment office are filled, then only assistance until a job is available.

'Concerned About Use of Dope by Youths'

I am much concerned over the problem of dope among our young people. We have two boys in junior high and one in senior high and we have warned them about dope and stressed that if anyone should try to peddle dope to them they are to go directly to their school principal or counselor and report it. We have tried to make them understand this would help save another young person from the temptation of trying it.

★ ★ ★

I also wonder what might be accomplished in fighting this problem if all our school boards, school administrators and PTA groups would give it as much time as they give trying to push sex education.

'Will Mott Athletes Be Able to Use Field?'

All persons connected with the Waterford Township school system would do well to emulate the example of Mott High School students, faculty and parents. These people contributed cash and physical labor in an admirable display of cooperation to complete sodding of the Mott football field so that the seniors could play games on their own gridiron for at least one season before graduation.

★ ★ ★

Now it remains to be seen if the Mott athletes will be able to see action on the new field.

David Lawrence Says:

Ignorance of Finances Shown

WASHINGTON — Most people have imagined that, if the Vietnam war came to an end, there would be many billions of dollars available each year for social welfare.

LAWRENCE

It turns out that this is an illusion and that almost all of the money which would be saved by a termination of the conflict is already scheduled to be spent on existing projects.

The news came out on Monday after a three-hour conference by the President with his advisers, during which they discussed a special study which had been made.

★ ★ ★

Daniel P. Moynihan, assistant to the President for urban affairs, talked with the press after the conference with the President, and declared that the study of future requirements as well as authorized appropriations indicated that budgets are going to be higher each year.

He said it would not be realistic to expect that big sums would be available for any new projects because the funds would be almost entirely consumed by programs "already on the books."

REFERS TO PROGRAMS

He referred to Medicare, education, proposals to share revenues with the states, and various military expenditures for equipment or research now under way.

All this is a significant example of how little the public knows about the financial affairs of their government. Indeed, Congress is not too familiar with them, either.

The reason is that, when an appropriation bill is passed, it doesn't always designate the year in which the funds may be spent, but merely authorizes the expenditures.

In order to find out what the budgets might be for each of the next five years, a careful examination of the existing authorizations would be necessary as well as a projection as to when the actual expenditures will be made.

Congress, of course, can stop any authorizations and refuse to expend more money. But on Medicare and education, the chances of such action being taken are remote. In fact, because of the increasing population, it is conceded that in many instances the amount of money needed will be even larger than what has already been authorized.

The state and city governments are frustrated by their lack of revenues to take care of hard-pressed areas. Members of Congress are urging "priorities," which merely means that some worthy projects would be set aside.

While many members of Congress and state and city officials are disappointed to learn that the ending of the Vietnam war will not make available to them much more revenue, it would take a considerable amount of time to overhaul existing programs and determine priorities.

The trend probably will be toward a gradual increasing of tax rates in order to derive more revenue for the federal government. It would not be surprising if the tax surcharge or an equivalent were retained beyond this year, because it is not expected that the Vietnam war will be ended in 1970.

The expense of maintaining a substantial force in Vietnam will probably be large for another two or three years.

Decline in Birth Rate Disturbing the Kremlin

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Foreign News Analyst

NEW YORK — Communist leaders in Russia and East Europe are worried by a new kind of shortage — not enough babies.

While the rest of the world is voicing concern over exploding populations, Communist society is faced with low birth rates and a steadily aging population.

For the Russians this is grave, since they are outnumbered more than three-to-one by their Chinese forces. In January 1969, the population of the Soviet Union reached 239 million, some nine million less than the forecasts by Moscow's Central Statistical Bureau.

Among other things, the Kremlin leaders find it increasingly difficult to populate their Central Asian "republics" with Russian settlers who would keep a watchful eye on the native Uzbeks, Kazakhs, uprooted Tartars and others who stage periodic revolts and conspire with the Red Chinese against the Muscovites.

TEST-TUBE BABIES

So haunted are the Red chiefs by the specter of the "vanishing Russian" that Moscow's weekly L'iteraturnaya Gazetta recently launched an editorial campaign in favor of "test-tube" babies.

The Literary Gazette usually deals with subjects that have nothing to do with literature. It complained recently that Soviet boys are becoming "effeminate" and lack the hatred of their fathers for Russia's enemies. But it was especially scornful of Soviet women who "refuse to increase their child-bearing activity."

According to the editorial, about 30 per cent of all couples in Russia are childless. It urged the government to encourage artificial insemination of "married and unmarried" women who want children.

This is hardly going to arrest the declining birth rate in the foreseeable future, since so far there have been only three successful experiments in Russia.

PREDICTED FALL

In the past, Soviet demographers, like all dogmatic Marxist - Leninists, predicted an "unavoidable" fall in the populations of the industrialized Western countries due to the alleged weaknesses in the "capitalist system."

However, since these forecasts were made, the birth rate and the natural increase in "socialist" Russia has been falling drastically from year to year. It has shrunk to the extent that in the next two decades the population could even begin to decline.

110 New U.S. Cities Needed by 2000?

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — In the next 30 years, some 100 million more Americans are expected to be added to this country's population. At least one important urbanologist thinks that building places for them to live can be made as exciting as going to the moon.

BIOSSAT

This expert, who cannot be named, assumes that most of the urban-suburban growth needed to accommodate this 50 per cent increase in numbers of people will occur in and around existing cities. By the old 1960 census, we have 130 cities of 100,000 population or more, and the total, of course, will rise after the 1970 census.

★ ★ ★

As for perhaps a fifth of that expected increase (20 million), this urbanologist agrees with a report of the National Committee on Urban Growth Policy which contends they ought to be put in some 110 totally new cities.

The committee's idea is that we ought to have 10 new cities of one million persons each, and then 100 cities of 100,000 each. One calculation suggests that such a mammoth undertaking would consume at least two million acres of presently rural land.

NEED TO REMEMBER

To get some indication of the scope of this plan, we need to remember that in the 1960 census we had only five cities of more than a million, and just 15 in the bracket from 100,000 to 110,000.

By comparison, then, the plan sounds outrageously ambitious. Yet the added 100 million people evidently are going to be with us come the year 2000, and we obviously have to find some place to put them.

Existing cities may have their hands full accommodating the remaining 80 million not included in this plan. They are beset today.

★ ★ ★

Possibly much more important, in the view of the top urbanologist here mentioned, a big-gauge program to build a physically new urban America might be infused with sufficient drama and excitement to give the country's existing millions the kinds of goals they need to get out of their present spiritless doldrums.

Few public figures who traverse the nation regularly these days fail to make the point that countless Americans, both poor and affluent, seem to be caught in a web of dissatisfactions. The general quality of living is found seriously wanting, and millions evidently can see no uplift.

MONUMENTAL TASK

Obviously no one can be sure that people would respond with fresh spirit to such a suggested goal as "110 new cities in 30 years." But the quoted urbanologist believes they would.

He believes the task is so monumental it could enlist all the energies and drives of millions currently consumed in grumblings of discontent.

★ ★ ★

To make a city-building program a sort of earthbound "going to the moon," he adds it would have to be dramatically led from the White House on down, fueled by immense resources and organized as no U.S. program has ever been before.

Foreseen is an operation much like that prevailing in today's military establishment, with federal funds channeled into thousands of private companies committed to key parts of the big task.

NEED FOR THE BEST

There would be need for the best of modern management techniques, with perhaps huge state development corporations dealing with broad-gauge organizational clusters which would plan every phase of new-city building, community by community, and contract for the great volume of work to be done.

The dream of building a great new "physical America" is seen as economically attractive to private enterprisers even as it offers hope of giving disenchanted Americans a unifying goal they badly need.

★ ★ ★

The plan has already reached the ears of President Nixon's advisers, but there is no sign yet of its going higher. In the minds of some, the urgency is so great that the nation right now should be "banking land" to prepare for the big new rush of cities.

Postal Gains

The San Diego Union

One of the least appreciated but significant achievements of the Nixon Administration in just a half year is its progress in solving the postal crisis.

That there is a crisis is self evident. The postal system is inefficient, archaic and rigidly opposed to innovation and modernization. While mail deliveries are becoming slowly poorer, the annual postal deficit of more than $1 billion is constantly increasing.

★ ★ ★

And permeating the department to stifle efficiency and damage morale was political patronage so severe that fully 70 per cent of the postal employes were retiring on the same job level as when they entered the service.

One of the first acts of the Nixon Administration was to eliminate the political patronage system, substituting a merit selection of executives — an unheard of act for a party in power.

★ ★ ★

Now the President is asking Congress to approve a government-owned postal corporation that would have the power to set rates and make appointments. It would put postal service on a business-like basis by giving it control of investments, costs and prices. It also would assure a continuity of command through presidential administrations.

Mr. Nixon and Postmaster General Winton Blount believe the quasi-corporation could make the postal service self sustaining in five years.

★ ★ ★

In just six months President Nixon has taken a major step toward fulfilling his promise to streamline the nation's mail service. Now the burden rests with Congress.

25,000-Troop Viet Pullout Nearly Completed

SAIGON (AP) — Three hundred more men of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division flew from Vietnam to Hawaii today, virtually completing the withdrawal from the war of 25,000 U.S. troops ordered by President Nixon.

The last numerically designated unit to leave under the current cutback program, Marine Corps Fighter Attack Squadron 334, will complete its transfer to Japan Thursday. Redeployment of the squadron's 250 men and 14 F4J Phantom fighter-bombers began Tuesday.

* * *

The U.S. Command said a total of 22,700 men have been moved out by units, while another 1,400 Army men, 400 Marines and 350 Navy men left in advance parties or as individuals. Departure of a Navy LST (landing ship tank) with a crew of 150 a week ago completed the total of 25,000 men which Nixon on June 8 said would be pulled out of Vietnam by the end of August.

Despite withdrawal of the 25,000 troops, U.S. forces in Vietnam last Thursday totaled 526,500 men, or only 10,500 less than the 537,000 in the country when Nixon made his announcement.

REPLACEMENT LAG

U.S. spokesmen explained that this was due to a lag between the arrival of normal replacements and the departure for the United States of men relieved after a year's duty in Vietnam. The spokesmen said the total strength would drop to about 515,000 men in the next two weeks.

South Vietnamese headquarters announced that 17 persons were killed and 99 were wounded Tuesday night in two terrorist attacks, one on the central coast and one in Da Nang. Both attacks were blamed on Vietcong agents, and in both attacks the terrorists escaped.

* * *

One terrorist hurled a grenade into a meeting of government pacification workers and villagers near the district town of Phu My, 270 miles northeast of Saigon. Fifteen peasants and two pacification workers were reported killed, and 28 civilians and 12 pacification workers were wounded.

Another terrorist hurled two bombs into a crowded Da Nang market place located in front of a South Vietnamese artillery battalion headquarters. Forty-six soldiers and 13 civilians were reported wounded.

CLASHED TWICE

Thirty miles southwest of Da Nang, a task force of American Marines and infantrymen clashed twice Tuesday with North Vietnamese troops in the rolling foothills behind the populous coastal lowlands. Six North Vietnamese and one American were reported killed and 30 Americans wounded.

There has been hard fighting almost daily in this region since Aug. 17, with at least 650 enemy soldiers and more than 60 Americans reported killed.

Birthday in Coma

Tommy's Candle Flickers

LAKESIDE, Calif. (AP) — Tommy Buchmann's third birthday today was a sad time without a cake and without a party.

"There is only hope," Mrs. Max Buchmann said sadly of her son, history's longest survivor of rabies.

The brown-haired boy lies in the deep coma into which he fell April 28, four weeks after being bitten by a rabid bobcat outside his home. A spokesman at San Diego's University hospital said Tommy is still near death.

Although his muscles respond to extreme stimulus, the response is involuntary.

A respirator pumps air into Tommy's lungs, liquid formula is funneled through his nose and he has grown in his comatose paralysis. But doctors say he apparently feels nothing.

A stuffed teddy bear sits on Tommy's dresser and another on his bed.

Max Buchmann; a chicken farmer with 28,000 laying hens, and his wife are taking a little present to Tommy—a musical toy.

"We don't know if he hears," Mrs. Buchmann said. "He may. We only hope he does."

Customer Is Shot as 2 Rob Market

DEARBORN (AP) — A customer at the Abner A. Wolf wholesale grocery in Dearborn was shot twice during a holdup which netted $4,500 for two gunmen Tuesday afternoon.

Peter L. Thomas, 61, is in Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn in critical condition after being shot in the neck and chest. He owns a small grocery store in Detroit.

* * *

Police said Thomas had a license to carry a gun and he drew it to shoot at the bandits in the wholesale grocery. The gunmen shot him to make good their escape, police said.

Fire Hits WSU

DETROIT (AP) — A three-alarm fire on the top two floors of Wayne State University's Medical Center did extensive damage Tuesday afternoon, according to fire officials. The medical center is under construction at St. Antoine and Canfield streets. No official estimate of damage was made.

Most State Schools Seen Opening on Time

By JACQUELINE KORONA
Associated Press Writer

LANSING (AP)—Chances are most Michigan youngsters will be back in class right on schedule next week despite lack of contract agreement between some boards of education and teacher unions.

But there is a possibility of spotty strikes throughout the early fall.

★ ★ ★

"It could just drive us crazy all fall," one official said Tuesday.

The office of Gov. William Milliken, keeping close tabs on the situation, reported Tuesday that 188 districts have yet to reach settlement.

AGREEMENTS IN 345

Agreements have been approved in some 345 districts, including several where teachers are operating under a two-year contract signed in 1968, the executive office said.

A Milliken aide said officials expected the number of unsettled district contracts to be cut "way down" by the traditional school opening dates next week. Mediators and factfinders are working around-the-clock in some disricts, he added.

The governor's office said 180 of the unsettled districts are covered by the Michigan Education Association and eight by the rival Michigan Federation of Teachers.

Some 336 MEA districts have settled, he said, as have nine MFT locals.

Asked about the possibility of strike action, MEA spokesman George Brown said:

"Our feeling at the moment is that most of these people are going to proceed through factfinding before they decide on any other kind of action."

"We have a pretty firm policy with our people they must exhaust all legal remedies before they take any kind of withholding action," he said. "Factfinding is part of that — a legal remedy.

Dodge Introduces Challenger

A new entry from Dodge Division in the tough specialty compact field was introduced today by General Manager Robert B. McCurry.

The 1970 Dodge Challenger, a four-seater built on a 110-inch wheelbase and at a total length of 191 inches, is slightly larger than other cars in its class. It has a front track of 59.7 inches and a rear track of 60.7 inches.

★ ★ ★

Area dealers are Dick Canaan Motor City Dodge, 855 Oakland, Pontiac; Hunter Dodge, 499 S. Hunter, Birmingham; Kessler Sales, 10 N. Washington, Oxford; and Lloyd Bridges Traveland, 1010 W. Maple, Walled Lake.

The Challenger offers a new safety feature on the steering column that allows the steering wheel to keep in line with the driver's chest in the event of an accident, regardless of the direction of impact.

In addition the collapsible steering column remains standard.

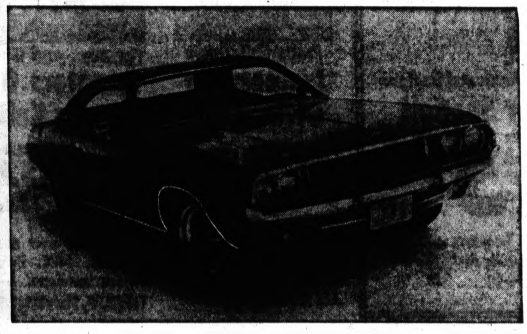
Styling of the Challenger is a Dodge adaptation of the popular long-hood, short-deck theme, and although related to the Charger, retains a unique identity.

★ ★ ★

A thin blade bumper sets off a recessed grill and canted headlights.

In the rear, taillights, stop, back-up and turn signal lights are contained within a single, full-width lens surrounded by bright moulding.

Keeping in mind the total aerodynamic styling of the automobile, the side panels are "tucked under" for streamlined effect.



CHALLENGER—A new entry in the sporty specialty car field, the 1970 Dodge Challenger, goes on display in dealer showrooms Sept. 23. It is available with a 225-cubic-inch slant six, and 318 V8 engines.

States Haven't Been Responsive

Tax-Split Plan Solves Nothing

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.
Executive Director
National Urban League

The Nixon administration has offered a series of proposals that would drastically shift power, funds and a variety of important programs from federal to state control.

YOUNG

The plan to share taxes with state and local governments is just the most publicized of the administration's plans. Others include shifting aspects of welfare administration and job training.

The revenue-sharing plan is the most dramatic. A percentage of federal income tax money would be returned to the states with no strings attached. They would be able to spend the money anyway they pleased. A complex formula will determine how much each state gets, and the states would have to share the money with the cities.

On the surface, the plan looks good. Demands for public services are out-stripping local revenues and schools, hospitals, transportation systems, and other vital areas are short of funds.

STATES HAVE FAILED

But just giving money to the states doesn't inspire much faith among those of us who have seen local governments ignore the needs of the poor in the past. One reason the federal establishment has grown so large is because states have failed in their responsibility to the people.

Federal power has been needed to try to correct local injustices such as discrimination and neglect of cities. Under the administration's plan, there is no assurance that the shared revenues would be used without discrimination or that they would be used to improve schools or urban life.

* * *

The same monies could be used by the federal government to accomplish these goals. If big-city schools need more money, it seems a roundabout way of doing things to give funds to states and they hope they'll use the money to improve ghetto schools. It's much simpler to grant funds directly to school districts that need them.

Since there would be no strings attached to the shared revenues, states could give the money to local school districts that still illegally practice segregation — even when those districts are cut off from present federal grants because they are breaking the law.

RIGHTS REPORT

On the same day the President unveiled his plan to share power with the states, the Civil Rights Commission released a report accusing state and local governments of discrimination in employment.

So long as state and local governments remain insensitive to the legitimate needs of the poor and of black people, there is no justification for replacing expanded federal programs with revenue-sharing schemes.

* * *

If federal power is to be shared with local government, the federal government must build into its proposals ironclad safeguards that will prevent discrimination.

What we need above all at this time in our history is a new set of national priorities — new goals to build the schools, housing and jobs the nation needs, and a final end to poverty and discrimination.

NATIONAL EFFORT

Such priorities can only come from the national government. The moon landing didn't come about because that national priority was split among the states and cities. The space program was a success because it was a federal priority and got the federal backing needed to make it succeed.

If, as we have been told, federal revenues are not enough to meet the great demands for government services, it seems wasteful to distribute scarce resources without insuring that they'll be used to implement national goals.

Even if there were no serious objections to reducing federal power in favor of the states, the plan's formula for splitting the tax take leaves cities out in the cold. The money would be shared according to population and state tax efforts, not according to need and income.

Federal prestige has suffered, the President said, "because the federal government promised as much and delivered so little."

PNH Music Aide
After Top Voices

John Tousley, vocal music director at Pontiac Northern High School, has been appointed honors choir chairman by the Michigan School Vocal Association for the year 1969-70.

* * *

He will arrange for auditions of students throughout the state to represent their schools in a handpicked choir at the Midwestern Educators Conference next January.

Airborne Photog Buzzed Off

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A pilot and a newsman have charged that racing officials ordered their plane buzzed last week in an attempt to stifle photographic coverage of a fatal accident.

* * *

Jim Breeze, pilot for JD Air Service Inc., said the incident occurred when he and KCPX newsman Bill Brown flew over the Bonneville Salt Flats in western Utah.

Brown was attempting to photograph a streamlined racer which had caught fire after a 284-mile-per-hour run, killing the driver, Robert Herda of Portola Valley, Calif.

Glen Deeds, chairman of the board for the Bonneville National Speed Trials, acknowledged that "We put a plane in the air to keep them from photographing the scene."

TAILED AIRCRAFT

Breeze said the plane tailed his aircraft by as close as 50 feet, and wouldn't move away until he landed at nearby Windover, Utah.

* * *

"It was on us like a rash," he said.

Breeze said the pilot of the other plane radioed "You might as well go home, boys, you're not going to get any pictures."

* * *

Breeze complained Monday to the Federal Aviation Administration and was instructed to make a written report. Brown said he had photographed the buzzing plane's number.

Everyone's Concerned About Rising Food Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of getting food from the farmer to the housewife has soared 160 per cent in two decades and now consumes two-thirds of America's grocery bill. The House Agriculture Committee cites these figures:

Twenty years ago, when Americans spent $45 billion a year for food, the farmer got about $20 billion and the middlemen $25 billion. Today, when the nation's annual food bill is about $90 billion, the farmer gets about $30 billion and the middlemen about $60 billion.

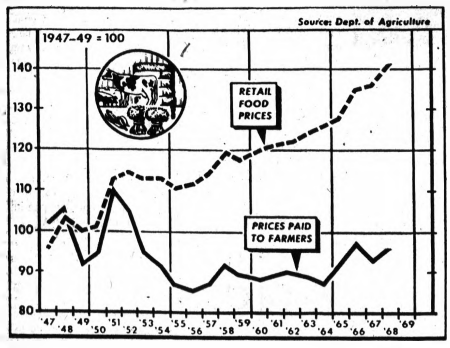
* * *

The recent upward trend — the Labor Department reported Friday that the cost of living advanced again in July and is going up at the fastest rate in 18 years — has been so steep that in some areas housewives are talking of boycotts in an attempt to bring down the cost of food.

"My food bill averaged $135 a month in 1964 and the same stuff would cost me about $275 monthly in 1969. That hurts," said Mrs. Jan Stophlett, who is leading a protest movement in Cocoa Beach, Fla.

Similar complaints are being sounded elsewhere.

"We're supposed to be on a budget, but the money never lasts as long as it's supposed to," said Mrs. Judy Sidman, a Natick, Mass., mother of two.



Where the food money goes . . . Chart shows the relation between prices farmers get for their goods compared to the prices consumers must pay in retail stores.

NO LUXURIES

"It's the prices of things like bread and milk that hurt, not the luxuries because we just don't buy that many luxuries."

The widening farm-to-consumer gap is clear in a comparison of Agriculture Department statistics showing what happened to the money a housewife paid for a loaf of bread 20 years ago and what happens to it today.

- In 1949, the average price of a one-pound loaf of white bread was 13.5 cents. Today, the same loaf costs 22.9 cents.
- In 1949, the retailer's slice of the bread price was 2.2 cents. Today it is 5 cents.
- In 1949, the baker and wholesaler — the key middlemen — got 8.3 cents. Today they get 12.2 cents.
- In 1949, 1.7 cents of the retail price went for milling, grain handling and transportation. Today the figure is 2.4 cents.
- In 1949, the farmer received 3.3 cents for his wheat and other ingredients — such as lard, sugar and dried milk — that went into the loaf of bread. Today he gets the same 3.3 cents.

* * *

The staff of the House Agriculture Committee, in a report this year, pointed directly at the middlemen in discussing the reasons for rising prices.

"Processors and marketing agencies — the middlemen between farmers and consumers — experiencing higher costs, have been successful in adding greatly increased charges to farmers' products before they reach the consumer," the report said.

". . . All the increase in retail price — and more — goes to the middlemen. None accrues to farmers."

NOT SO!

Middlemen bristle at the contention they're solely to blame for higher prices.

"It's inflation — pure and simple," said Clarence Adamy, president of the National Association of Food Chains.

Adamy and other spokesmen for marketers tick off their own rising cost — labor costs up more than 100 per cent in 20 years, costs of containers and packaging material up 40 per cent, overhead costs such as rent up 96 per cent.

Housewives, they add, also are demanding foods that require more and more processing — canned chocolate pudding, for example, or frozen three-course dinners.

ADDED COSTS

A commission set up by former President Johnson to study food marketing costs, however, was critical of "the substantial costs built into the price of food as a result of various forms of selling effort — advertising, sales promotion, expensive packaging, salesmen."

These costs, the commission concluded, "are an important form of inefficiency in the food industry."

* * *

For example, the farmer gets 4.3 cents for the ingredients in a 41-cent box of cereal. The remaining "marketing margin" is distributed this way:

- 23 per cent went for labor,
- 22 per cent for advertising and promotion,
- 15 per cent for profits before income tax,
- 13 per cent for containers and supplies,
- 12 per cent for administrative and other costs,
- 10 per cent for buildings and equipment, and,
- 5 per cent for transportation.

S. Kent Christensen, an economist for the food chain association, said supermarket chain industry profits have dwindled steadily, dropping from 1.41 cents per dollar of sales in 1964 to .99 of a cent last year. He cited these figures from an industry-financed study by Cornell University — a study which also disclosed that the average supermarket's annual sales have climbed for 12 consecutive years and now stand at $1,679,000.

* * *

The department also listed profits for 149 food manufacturers at $1.1 billion last year, up 2.4 per cent from 1967.

The increase in food manufacturers' profits "was due mostly to a strong rise in sales volume rather than an improvement in profit margins," department economists concluded.

Middlemen, added Christensen, "have not passed along their costs in the form of price increases as fast as they occur." But farmers who look at the middlemen's profit levels believe they have been left behind.

BACK IN 1869

"Do you know that 100 years ago, on Aug. 1, 1869, wheat was selling for $1.10 a bushel? That's more than we're getting now," grumbled wheat farmer Harold Tonn of Haven, Kan.

Tonn was referring to the cash price for wheat, which dipped below $1 a bushel in Kansas during this summer's harvest. Actually, counting government support payments and subsidies, the farmer in Kansas averages $1.55 a bushel.

* * *

Farmers like Joe Stucky of Pretty Prairie, Kan., point out that the typical American family spends less than 17 per cent of its take-home pay on food, compared with 20 per cent in 1960 and 22 per cent in 1940.

There's a widely held belief among farmers that consumers should be paying more for their groceries.

"I think they should," said John Wagner, a Dane County, Wis., dairy farmer. "Compared with other countries they're living cheap — they're making high enough incomes to afford paying more for food."

Housewives, of course, don't agree.

"I used to buy steak frequently," said Mrs. Irene Berlin of Wilmette, Ill., "but now I have to settle for ground beef — which isn't cheap for a large family."

It's the recent upward surge in beef prices that has brought talk of housewife boycotts.

PROTEST RALLY

On Long Island, housewives staged a protest rally with chants like "Let the meat rot," and "Prices too high, we won't buy."

Leo Kaufman, manager of a Miami meatpacking firm, countered: "Nobody ever hears a word when prices sink. Then let 'em rise, and they scream."

* * *

Beef prices shot up this spring and summer, analysts said, because production hadn't kept pace with America's awesome craving for beef—per capita consumption has nearly doubled since World War II to 110 pounds a year.

Cattlemen had been keeping the size of their herds in check, remembering past money-losing periods of overproduction. But now, spurred by higher prices, they are moving cautiously to enlarge their herds.

As more and more cattle reach market this fall, the slaughter price of choice beef is expected to drop. But industry officials predict that the wholesale and retail markups will be widened when live cattle prices drop.

The net result for the housewife: Retail beef prices will stay about the same as now, or even climb higher.

* * *

"I don't think anybody in this country can expect to see $1 round steak again, and certainly not less than about $1.39 for sirloin," said Lyle Liggett of the National Independent Meat Packers Association.

In its last quarterly report, the Agriculture Department said the farmer's share of the price paid for a pound of choice beef was 65 per cent. The wholesaler's share was 10 per cent and the retailer's share 25 per cent.

Grocers are just as unhappy as housewives.

From behind the counter of his Hutchinson, Kan., store, Gene Fitzgerald said, "These have been the most unprofitable six months I've ever seen in the meat business."

His costs for a side of beef have increased 25 per cent in a year, he said, but the price he collects from the housewife hasn't gone up as much.

SOMEONE'S GLAD

About the only ones happy about rising meat prices are cattlemen.

"We had it coming," said Calvin Goecke, who fattens about 200 head of cattle a year on his Marshall County, Iowa, farm.

"The cattle market hadn't gone up according to the rest of the economy. Too often it was down around $20 or $24 a hundred pounds, where it's been for 20 years. When it got up around $32, yes I was making money."

* * *

High beef prices could cut into consumption. In fact, the Agriculture Department already has detected a downward trend. "Consumers apparently began switching to lower-priced foods," it said in a report this month.

Follow Doctor's Advice, Not Your Hairdresser's

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am soon to become the proud mother of an adopted infant, and here is my problem: I want more than anything in the world to breast-feed this child. I have heard that there are hormone shots which will manufacture milk in women whether they are pregnant or not.

My hairdresser says she knows for a fact that many of the women who belong to the La Leche society do this to keep themselves in milk all the time.

*

When I told my doctor about my great desire to nurse my adopted baby he said I should forget it, and he would not give me any hormone shots for this purpose. He also tried to convince me that bottle babies are just as healthy as breast-fed babies, which shows you how much he knows.

Abby, I still have my heart set on nursing my adopted baby. Can you put me in touch with a doctor in the Cleveland area who will give me those hormone shots?

WANTS TO NURSE BABY

DEAR WANTS: Don't rely on medical advice from your heirdresser. She is all wet. I advise you to listen to your own doctor, and don't fool around with hormone shots or you're apt to wind up with no milk and a mustache.

DEAR ABBY: Before Bob and I were married (six months ago) he went through his wallet and made quite a ceremony of throwing all the girls' telephone numbers away. He did this voluntarily.

This is the second marriage for both of us, although we're both in our middle twenties. I'll be honest with you, Abby, I snooped through his wallet about a month ago to see if he had any new numbers, and I found three! I was hurt but didn't say anything.

Last night I went snooping again and I found five more numbers, all written in his own handwriting.

I am so hurt. I was under the impression that he was satisfied with me. I hate to believe that he has strayed so soon after our marriage. He's a good man, and he has been wonderful to me and my children. He has to go out of town on business about twice a month on overnight trips, and that is what worries me.

What should I do? If I bring it up it might drive a wedge between us. I trusted my first husband and he broke my heart.

This morning Bob left early, and when I got up, I found a note on his pillow which read, "I love you, Baby."

HURT

DEAR HURT: Judge Bob by the way he treats you, and quit snooping! Maybe he just likes to collect telephone numbers.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I just received an invitation to a bridal shower. It is being given by the cousins of the groom who happens to be a very nice fellow and a good friend of mine.

The prospective bride is still married to another man and she will not be officially divorced until after the date of the bridal shower.

As I understand it, the bride's divorce will be final on Sept. 1, and her wedding will take place on Sept. 2. All this split-second timing has really got me wondering. How should I treat an invitation of this kind?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Since the groom is a very nice fellow and a good friend of yours, go to the shower and don't split hairs over the split-second timing.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO HONEY: No woman has to be "rented out" like a floor polisher unless she wants to be. There are laws, you know.

Relaxed Rules Allow Guests to Leave First

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of the Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: Does the guest of honor leave first to indicate the evening is ended, or remain to bid farewell to all those who have come to honor him? Or does it vary with the occasion? — Mrs. P.

* * *

Dear Mrs. P.: Years ago it was considered rude if anyone left a function before the guest of honor. Today, with our more relaxed rules of behavior, there is no set way. With the exception of a party at which the President of the United States is present, people may leave when they wish, merely being sure to bid the host and guest of honor goodbye.

The latter may leave early if he has reason to do so — otherwise he stays until most of the guests have left.

BRIDE'S PICTURE

Dear Mrs. Post: Why is the bride's picture printed in the newspaper wedding announcement without the groom? It would be nice to see what the young man looks like. Is it ever permissible to have the couple's picture with the wedding announcement? — Mrs. K. Snyder

* * *

Dear Mrs. Snyder: The bride's picture appears alone because in most cases it must be sent to the paper weeks ahead of time. The photograph is often taken during one of the fittings of the bridal gown. Unless the wedding is considered so newsworthy that the paper sends its own photographer to cover it, there simply are no pictures available of the bride and groom together. It's as simple as that.

ON BRIDESMAIDS' DRESSES

Several readers have disagreed with my statement that bridesmaids' dresses should be of one color rather than varied. They have also sent me some pictures of bridal parties.

The effect of the soft "rainbow" colors was lovely, and I am happy to retract my statement and say that, when tastefully done, the muted, varied colors are beautiful.

Married Year Ago

Schicks Celebrate the First

By SHIRLEY GRAY

What Ever Happened To Department: Kristin (Jeynes) and Brian Schick are far from the madding crowd, both teaching out in Manchester and loving every minute of it.

The young couple, married a year ago last Sunday, celebrated their first at the Lower Long Lake home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon F. Jeynes, with a day of sailing and swimming.

Kris will be teaching third grade this year in a brand-new, wall-to-wall carpeted school. Last year's assignment wasn't quite so posh. Brian coaches and teaches social studies in junior high.

The couple has a cuddly new addition to the family to announce — a German Shepherd pup named Leibchen.

Kris' brother, Fred, was graduated from the University of Colorado Law School in June. Already he and his bride of last December, the former Jerrie Nelson of San Diego, are settled in an old Victorian house in San Francisco.

As soon as Fred finishes his bar exams, he starts work with the prestigious firm of Price, Waterhouse. Jerrie, also a University of Colorado grad, will continue as an elementary teacher.

GRANDPARENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ostby of Bloomfield Hills are proud first-time grandparents. Grandson Stephen Alexander Harlan arrived Aug. 14. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harlan of Ann Arbor.

The other grandparents, just as proud but a little more experienced, are the C. Allen Harlans, also of Bloomfield Hills.

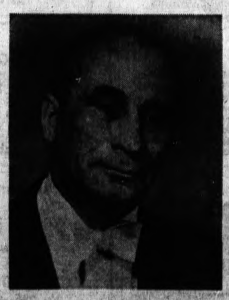
The house on Rolling Rock Drive in Bloomfield Hills being vacated by Maurice and Marianne Barnett, who are off for the wilds of Arizona, will soon have new tenants — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Horgan, former Birmninghamites, just back from a four-year stint in Puerto Rico.

New York Philharmonic to Be at Meadow Brook

The great New York Philharmonic will be featured in the ninth and final week of concerts at Oakland University's Meadow Brook Festival Thursday, Friday, and Saturday at 8:30 p.m., and Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

On Thursday and Friday the noted Czech conductor, Karel Ancerl, will conduct with pianist, Grant Johannesen, playing the Beethoven Concerto No. 3 in C minor. The program will also include Dvorak's "Carneval" Overture and Franck's Symphony in D minor.

On Saturday and Sunday, the exciting Japanese conductor, Seiji Ozawa, will conduct with pianist Andre Watts playing the Rachmaninoff Concerto No. 3 in D minor.



KAREL ANCERL

SEIJI OZAWA

The program will include Glinka's Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla," Debussy's "La Mer," and Alberto Ginastera's Suite from the Ballet "Estancia."

The New York Philharmonic, founded in 1842, is the oldest symphonic organization in the United States and one of the oldest in the world. Each year it presents nearly 200 concerts, and has performed on its many tours in some 300 cities in 38 countries around the world.

During its uninterrupted history, the world's most distinguished conductors have directed the orchestra, the list reading like a "Who's Who" in music of the past century.

Its appearance at Meadow Brook will mark the close of the most ambitious program mounted in the area and the nation.

Festival grounds will open two hours before performance times for picnics and buffet service. Tickets are available at the Festival box-office on the grounds, at Hudson's and Grinnell's.

Music at Meadow Brook—and youthful listeners find hilltop places to listen. This is the last week of the 1969 season with concerts Thursday through Sunday. Concertgoers can picnic on the grounds.

Varner-Ferry Vows Are Spoken

MRS. THOMAS A. VARNER

In a Victorian style gown of silk organza, Janet Kay Ferry repeated wedding vows with Thomas Ashburn Varner. The couple was married in a Saturday afternoon ceremony in Saint John Fisher Chapel, Oakland University.

Following the ceremony, the wedding party and parents of the couple greeted guests at a reception in Bloomfield Hills Country Club.

Attending the bride, who carried roses, baby's breath and Stephanotis, was maid of honor, Mary Werth. Bridesmaids were Sue Varner and Jennifer Ferry.

On the esquire side, William Powers performed the duties of best man. Assisting as ushers were Jay, Jeffery and James Ferry and Bart Bartlebough. John Ferry was the ring bearer.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Ferry of Lonesome Oak Drive, Oakland Township and Chancellor and Mrs. Durward B. Varner of South Adams Road, Avon Township.

The newlyweds are honeymooning at Lake Michigan.

Girl Hidden in Gas Tank, Escapes Reds

ST. GALLEN, Switzerland (AP) — A Swiss engineer has told how he smuggled his 19-year-old East German fiancee 200 miles to freedom in the converted gasoline tank of his English automobile.

* * *

Ralf Baldenweg, 27, brought his bride-to-be, Friedl Linke, across Hungary and Yugoslavia to the safety of Austria. After being refused permission to marry her sweetheart, the girl went on a camping vacation to Lake Balaton, Hungary, where she had arranged to meet Baldenweg.

* * *

Before leaving Switzerland Baldenwed paid $1,000 for a large Alvis special car and set to work fitting a special 22-gallon gas tank. But it held only four gallons. The rest was a cramped compartment for the girl.

Ten days ago their flight to freedom began. "I don't know how we got through," said the pretty brunette from Dresden. "At times I thought I was going to die in there."

RESPITE

Baldenweg, who was accompanied by his brother Werner, said that twice, after passing the Hungarian and Yugoslav frontiers, he pulled his fiancee out of the compartment, which was no bigger than a small refrigerator with an attached air tube for breathing.

"She was unconscious and turning blue," he said. "But each time she came round.

Polly's Pointers

Good List of Ideas

DEAR POLLY — Some letters you reprinted make me realize that manufacturers read your column. My Pointers are for them rather than for the other girls. I wonder why boxes of Christmas and other special occasion cards do not include one extra envelope in the box?

We should all be allowed at least one mistake.

* * *

Boxes that children's games and puzzles come in are not made strong enough. New boxes have to be reinforced all the way around with strong tape if mess made by having the boxes come apart and 101 small parts fall all over the floor.

* * *

Sheets should be made with a deep hem on both ends so they will be worn evenly and one does not have to bother looking for the top or bottom.

With all the iron-on patches on the market, why can't Boy Scout and Girl Scout patches be made so they can be ironed on or at least so they will stay straight until one can get the edges sewn firmly?

Gas station attendants should turn their belt buckles to the side and not wear jackets with big zippers and buttons that scratch a car while washing the windshield. One little scratch seems like nothing, but let this happen every week for a year and the fender will be a mess. — MARY C.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — Would someone please tell me how to preserve new wood to keep it from cracking? What should be used and how? MRS. M. M.

DEAR POLLY — Old throw rugs make nice beach mats. They absorb moisture and save one's towels for later use. Also metal clip shower curtain rings made good sewing machine bobbin holders. They are easy to get at and you can quickly tell if there is a filled one in the desired color. — DANA.

For Five Couples

August Is Wedding Month

Broenel-Hartman

Karen Sue Hartman and Kenneth Lewis Bronoel were feted at a reception in the parlors of the First Congregational Church of Pontiac following their marriage Saturday.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Hartman of Oakshire Road was attended by her sister, Nancy Hartman, as maid of honor.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson L. Bronoel was assisted by his father, who performed the duties of best man.

Garris-Boston

Kingsley Inn, Bloomfield Hills, was the setting for a reception feting Peggy Lee Boston and Stephen T. Garris. The newlyweds were married Saturday afternoon in Presbyterian Church of Our Savior, Birmingham.

Mrs. John Christian and David McKee stood as honor attendants. Judy Boston was bridesmaid for her sister. They are the daughters of the Robert E. Bostons of Long Point Drive, Bloomfield Township.

* * *

Ushers for the son of the Steven Garrises of Short Hills, N.J. were Brian Schrope and Brad Boston.

The bride chose an organdy gown. She carried a colonial bouquet of roses and daisies.

Kent-Alexander

Birmingham Unitarian Church was the setting for the Saturday afternoon exchange of vows of Karen Jean Alexander and David Michael Kent.

A reception in the church followed. They were joined by their honor attendants, Barbara Hart and Richard Gullett.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Alexander of Schoolhouse Drive chose a gown of silk organza with rose point lace accents. She carried a bouquet of roses, lily of the valley and Stephanotis.

A honeymoon trip to Canada followed for the son of Dr. and Mrs. James Kent of Houghton and his bride.

Packman-McKee

Kathleen Ardis McKee became the bride of William Richard Packman in a candlelight ceremony Saturday in First Baptist Church of Rochester.

Joining them as they greeted guests in the Auburn Heights American Legion Hall were the couple's maid of honor and best man, Janet McKee and Allyn Packman.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Calvin McKee of Slocum Street, Pontiac Township and Mr. and Mrs. True Packman of Birmingham.

Perez-Vantine

The Rene Drive, White Lake Township, home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Vantine was the setting Saturday for a reception feting their daughter, Susan Elisabeth and her husband, Hector David Perez of Mexico City, Mexico.

The couple exchanged vows in a morning ceremony in Central Methodist Church.

Attired in lace and carrying carnations and roses, the bride had Marget Vantine as her maid of honor.

On the esquire side, the son of Professor and Mrs. Jose Perez of Chihuahua, Mexico, asked Isaac Perez to assit him as best man.

The newlyweds are honeymooning in Canada. They will make their home in Mexico City.

Crime Closeup

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Patricia Neely had $40 stolen from her purse while she was momentarily away from the desk in her office. Mrs. Neely is a state parole officer.

Drawn by a nine-year-old boy patient at Fairlawn Center, Pontiac State Hospital, this Christmas card is offered by the Foundation for Mentally Ill Children. All proceeds go to benefit children's needs at the hospital. Cards are 25 for $5 and may be ordered from the Foundation, Box 245, Bloomfield Hills, 48013.

Case No. K-568

Women Want Words

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph. D., M. D.

CASE K-568: Marjorie M., aged 28, is married.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "my husband is a quiet introvertive chemical engineer.

DR. CRANE

"At parties, he is never surrounded by young women, for he seldom speaks unless he is asked a question.

"But my sister's husband rates high with all the women for he is a salesman and can talk easily about anything.

"Many other wives complain that their husbands don't talk enough when they get home from work.

"So would a salesman have a better chance of avoiding divorce than an introvertive husband?"

WANT WORDS

The telephone companies can tell you that the female sex runs up the big phone bills in America!

For girls are more talkative than boys, even in grammar school.

And women want words! Especially compliments.

* * *

Same goes doubly for children, so will you introvertive dads PLEASE open your mouths a little more often and pass around a few compliments daily?

A man doesn't need to "run off at the mouth" to be a popular husband.

Calvin Coolidge was thus so laconic that jokes were created to lampoon his lack of conversation.

But he made a good husband, why?

Because when he did speak to his wife, he paid her compliments.

* * *

Calvin Coolidge grew up on a farm and farmers are usually quiet folks, due to their dealing with tractors and other inanimate tools.

They get so accustomed to working without the use of spoken words that it becomes habitual.

Same is typical of others who don't deal with human beings all day.

Introverts thus include accountants, musicians, scientists, surgeons, farmers and the usual labor union craftsmen.

Extroverts get that way from long contact with a talking environment, so they include salesmen, clergymen, social secretaries, and the type of newspaper boy who vends his wares on street corners by shouting his merchandise.

Both types can make superb husbands.

* * *

But the introverts should resolve to vocalize their love for their wife and children EVERY DAY.

* * *

A wife will forgive a laconic husband for his few words, if he will imitate Calvin Coolidge and make them count.

* * *

But if he seldom gives her a compliment and limits his half dozen words per day to harsh criticism, that makes a wife's personality shrivel and her love begin to die of anemia.

* * *

For compliments nurture love just as iron builds up hemoglobin in our red blood cells and thus combats anemia.

Beware, for anemia pertains not only to blood but also to romance!

* * *

Dryers Eliminate Salt Spray, Ice

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Onlookers were surprised to see hairdryers being loaded on a tanker in port here when they knew there were no women aboard.

It was explained that the dryers were being mounted on bridge portholes to eliminate the salt and spray and ice which build up on the glass when the weather is bitterly cold as the tanker is in northern waters. The ships agent reminded the onlookers that the portholes were about the same size and shape as a woman's head.

Weekend Weddings Unite Six Couples

A reception in the Waterford C.A.I. Building followed the Saturday morning exchange of vows of Denise Lauretta Metevia and Delbert Franklin Hall of Watkins Lake road.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace F. Metevia of Portlock Street, Commerce Township was assisted by Mrs. Arles Kimrey, her matron of honor.

* * *

Elmer Hall performed the duties of best man for his brother. They are the sons of Mrs. Elber E. Hall of Diana, W. Va. and Elmer E. Hall of Webster Springs, W. Va.

The bride chose a gown of organza over nylon net for the nuptials in St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Union Lake.

Moilanen-Ringler

The parlors of Drayton Plains United Presbyterian Church was the setting for the reception feting Sue Anne Ringler and David Clark Moilanen following their marriage Saturday.

For the candelight ceremony, the daugher of the Donald W. Ringlers of Francesca Drive asked Mary Muse to assist her as maid of honor.

* * *

The bride chose a silk faille skimmer with Alencon lace accents. Her colonial bouquet included lillies, chrysanthemums, and pompons with baby's breath.

Jan Gatz was best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne J. Moilanen of Angelus Drive.

The newlyweds are honeymooning in northern Michigan.

Largent-Collom

Maid of honor, Cheryl Truit was escorted by best man, Wesley Smith, in the Saturday marriage of Susan Loree Collom and Pfc. David Michael Largent, USMC, in Pontiac Church of Christ.

The bride, daughter of the Francis F. Colloms of Silver Valley Street, Orion Township, chose a traditionally-styled lace gown with illusion veil for the rite. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Largent of Tull Court. They received guests in White Lake Township Hall.

* * *

The couple is honeymooning in San Diego, Calif., where the new Mrs. Largent will reside during her husband's tour of duty in Vietnam.

Wilson-Harlyvetch

Cynthia Marie Harleyvetch and Guy Charles Wilson II exchanged vows Saturday in a morning ceremony in Sacred Heart Catholic Church, Auburn Heights.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Graves of Holcomb Street, Independence Township, chose a traditionally-styled gown of Chantilly lace trimmed with sequins and seed pearls. Carnations and lily of the valley comprised her bouquet.

* * *

Mrs. Kenneth Kenny was matron of honor with best man, David Renshaw.

* * *

Following a reception in the American Legion Hall, Rochester, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Wilson of Auburn Road, Pontiac Township, and his bride departed for a nothern Michigan honeymoon.

Reschke-Elliott

Roxanne Mary Elliott of Traverse City became the bride of David Martin Reschke in an afternoon ceremony Saturday in Immaculate Conception Catholic Church, Traverse City. The newlyweds were feted at a reception in Sugar Loaf Village, Cedar, following the exchange of vows.

* * *

The bride chose a gown of silk organza with Alencon lace accents at the bodice and hemline. She carried a bouquet of roses and baby's breath.

* * *

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Max Elliott of Traverse City and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reschke of Pine View Drive, West Bloomfield Township.

* * *

Honor attendants were Susan Elliott and Lee Wood.

Fulkerson-Malone

Sandra K. Malone and her bridegroom Lowell A. Fulkerson, greeted guests in K. Falls Lounge and Restaurant following their exchange of vows Saturday.

Their afternoon wedding in Grace Lutheran Church was witnessed by honor attendants, Carol Benson and the bridegroom's brother, William.

* * *

Gowned in organza with seed pearl accents, the daughter of Mrs. Doris A. Matney of Gateway Drive and Merle C. Malone of Oak Park carried a bouquet of carnations with an orchid.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fulkerson of East South Boulevard is honeymooning with his bride in Miami, Fla.

Threading Hints

You can save time threading needles while basting by rubbing in a piece of soap over the end of the thread when threading a needle. This stiffens the thread so that it will slide easily through the needle eye.

Lawn Upkeep Needn't Be Costly

By ANNE TAYLOR
AP News Feature

One of the easiest ways to part with your money is to believe that building or renewing a lawn has to be a complicated and costly project. Take it from the authorities, it need not be.

Since these late summer and early fall days are ideal for working on lawns -- the warm days, cool nights, dampness and absence of some weeds providing ideal conditions — I checked out some money saving tips with lawn experts.

* * *

Frankly I was surprised to learn that you don't need to "excavate" the present lawn or buy bales of peat moss and "dressing" and top soil. Instead, use the soil you have, for it is really just an anchor for the seed.

The essentials for growth — the seed, fertilizer and water — are provided by you. Seed can, I am told, grow in almost any soil, even beach sand if it is kept moist and level.

A NEW LAWN

In planning a new lawn you have your choice of doing it yourself or of hiring outside help. The experts I consulted feel that you'd be just as well off doing the job on your own. Labor can almost double the cost.

The ground need not be cultivated beyond a depth of three inches before the seed is applied. Don't try to sift the soil to a flour-like consistency; clods the size of peas or even golfballs help to anchor the seed.

Fertilizer should be applied at about the same time, and both should be lightly raked into the top one-quarter inches of soil. Don't cover deeply. Moisten the soil thoroughly, and thereafter water at least twice a day.

* * *

Seeds vary for different soils and climates, so it is a very good idea to take a soil sample to your county agricultural agent for analysis. A call may do, providing you can accurately describe the surrounding foliage, therefore tipping him off to the type of soil.

* * *

Follow his advice on seed choice and avoid trying to get "amazing" bargains; you could get a lot of weed seeds. Comparing the per pound costs also can be misleading, for there's many times as much seed in a pound of bluegrass as in a pound of rye.

INSTANT LAWNS

There's another way to produce a new lawn but it's costly. This is the instant lawn. It means that you buy sod and roll it on just as you would lay a carpet.

Without a doubt a sod lawn can be a beautiful lawn, healthy and free of weeds. But if you're on a tight budget it's an extravagance. Quality sod for a 5,000-foot lawn might cost around $600.

RENEWING

Seldom is it necessary to dig up an established but pockmarked lawn. In the fall, a lawn can be thickened by applying fertilizer even without any seed. It would be a lot more difficult and costly to accomplish this in the spring.

If seeding an established lawn this fall, six points must be kept in mind:

- Mow as short as possible without ripping and chewing the grass.
- Rake the debris.
- Apply fertilizer and seed.
- Keep moist with light and frequent waterings.
- Mow frequently to one inch or 1½ inches and remove the clippings so the sprouting grass is not smothered. Frequent mowings also retard weed growth.
- Keep mowing into the fall as long as there is grass to mow. If left to grow wild, your lawn will mat during the winter and be tangled and spotty in the spring.

Newlyweds Go on Northern Trip for Honeymoon

A northern Michigan honeymoon followed the Saturday afternoon wedding of Christine M. Moore, and Gary F. LaClair.

Mrs. John Devine and Greg LaClair, the bridegroom's brother, were honor attendants for the couple at the First Methodist Church of Clarkston. Serving as flower girl was the sister of the bride, Tamara Moore. Ringbearer was Michael LaClair, the bridegroom's son.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clebert Moore of Clintonville Road wore a gown of Alencon lace over slipper satin, trimmed with seed pearls, and carried a bouquet of roses, carnations, and daisies.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. Floyd LaClair of Van Zandt Street and the late Mr. LaClair.

The couple were feted with a reception at Independence Township Hall.

Catholic Cause Boosted by Gift to Bernadette

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernadette Devlin, touring America to raise $1 million for Roman Catholics left homeless by disorders in Northern Ireland, had $1,000 in cash thrust into her hand by two men who said they were from County Kerry, Ireland.

* * *

The incident occurred Tuesday night as she was entering a ballroom to address 2,000 persons. Today she takes her campaign to Los Angeles.

Miss Devlin, a petit 22-year-old member of the British Parliament, said in an interview Tuesday night that her tour was going "quite well.

"Every nickel we get will be well spent and well used," she added.

Earlier she visited the United Nations Tuesday to talk with Secretary General U Thant about the problems of the Catholic minority in her homeland.

"I received the diplomatic sympathy which I expected," she said, "but it must scare the British government and the government of Northern Ireland to think someone like me could even get to meet with him."

Informed of the Northern Ireland government plan to send a three-man "Truth Squad" to the United States to challenge Miss Devlin on television, she said "I'll debate them anytime, any place, anywhere."

She said a relief plane with medical supplies, canned food and bedding will leave for Northern Ireland Sept. 17.

If your solid color sweaters are still good, yet you are tired of them, embroider a design on the front with pretty yards of contrasting colors.

Mrs. R. N. BARNARD

Bride Chooses Princess Gown

Attired in a princess silhouette gown of peau de soie with Alencon lace accents, Karen Ann Spanski was escorted to the altar of Our Lady of Refuge Catholic Church Friday where she became the bride of Robert Norman Barnard.

She carried roses and Stephanotis with ivy.

Witnessing the candlelight exchange of vows were honor attendants, Noreen Spanski and Frederick Barnard. Harold and Ronald Barnard were ushers for their brother.

They are the sons of Judge and Mrs. Norman R. Barnard of Troy.

* * *

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Spanski of Onawa Court and her husband received guests in the Bloomfield Centre.

The couple is honeymooning in Canada and the eastern states. They will make their home in the Pontiac area.

1st Reading for New Housing Code Law

The first reading of a new housing code ordinance for Pontiac, to replace one established in 1915, was held by the City Commission at last night's meeting.

The new ordinance will codify existing regulations plus add new and more stringent rules.

* * *

The new code will provide the city with standards applicable to all city housing regarding wiring, plumbing, heating systems, sanitation, space per person, construction materials, fire safety, etc., and provide for enforcement. Commissioners said the document is of importance to every city home owner.

* * *

A second reading has been scheduled for Sept. 16 at 8 p.m.

In other business, a progress report on the $12.2-million Augusta Drain was also received. The County Drain Commission said rights-of-way are now being acquired. Construction is expected to start in 10 or 11 months.

The storm drain serve the northwest quadrant of the neighborhoods along Pontiac Creek. It is expected to relieve flooding on such streets as Florence and Sanderson.

In still other business the commission:

● Heard a report on the installation of $40,000 in playground equipment purchased half by the city and half by a federal grant. In 17 city parks, 67 pieces of equipment have been installed including swings, slides and merry-go-rounds. About 120 new picnic tables have been placed. The program is three-fourths completed.

● Held three public hearings: 1 — On the necessity for construction of a water main in Lehigh from Highwood to Laurel. Cost is $7,200 with $5,650 to be assessed. Assessment roll was ordered prepared; 2 — sidewalk on east side of Joslyn north of Walton from Northfield to Brooks. A decision was delayed pending possible extension of the project to Collier; 3 — on assessment roll for water main in Northfield from Joslyn to west end of street. Confirmation was deferred, no objections made.

● Named six persons to the Citizens District Council serving the downtown urban renewal area. They will replace former members on the council established a year ago. New members are: Higgens Dickson of 98 Center, Laurence Sevegney of 130 Judson, Sam Hatcher of 213 Whittemore, Mrs. Edna Tate of 90 Cottage, Mrs. Richardeau King of 229 Whittemore and Mrs. Ignacio Cervantes of 149 Perkins.

● Was notified a public auction will be held Sept. 2 at the County Courthouse for excess property along the right-of-way of M59. Odd ends of lots acquired for the expressway will be for sale. The parcels would reportedly only have practical use to abutting property owners.

NO TIME TO FLIRT—Despite the obvious attraction in the foreground, veteran lifeguard Bob Moore, 59, has to keep a sharp eye on his responsibilities—youngsters in the surf off Redondo Beach, Calif. "When you have 100,000 persons on a beach, the noise drowns out any cries for help," says Moore. "That's why a guard can't let a blonde distract him."

Lifeguarding No Lark

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A hardworking lifeguard has no time for larking about with pretty girls.

His heroic rescues are likely to take place in about three feet of water.

* * *

He spends most of his time handing out bandages, picking up trash or looking for lost objects—children, rings, watches and false teeth.

Such, at least, are the observations of Bob Moore, who has worked for the Los Angeles lifeguard service for more than 35 years.

NOT LIKE MOVIES'

"I'm afraid a lifeguard's job isn't what it's like in the movies," sighed Moore, still trim, hard and handsome at the age of 59.

"We don't loll around flexing our muscles for giggling girls. In fact, girls are usually furious at us for ignoring them."

Moore has rescued hundreds of persons. One day he and two other lifeguards pulled 82 persons from the surf.

But, he confesses, "the rescues usually occur in the shallows just off the beach.

PEOPLE PANIC

"They're people who start panicking when a wave hits them and they swallow a little sea water," he said. "These are usually the tired, the fat, the drinkers. They fall face down and can't get back up."

17 State Task Forces for Party

GOP Names Panels

LANSING (AP)—Sen. Harry Demaso, chairman of the Senate Taxation Committee, has been named to head the Republican party's state task force on fiscal policy.

Appointment of Demaso, who this summer is probing Michigan's $1-billion tax exemption system with an eye toward heading off bigger bills for taxpayers, was announced Tuesday by William McLaughlin, GOP state chairman. McLaughlin also named chairmen to task forces on higher education and election laws.

* * *

The task forces, totaling 17, will be charged with sampling public opinion on specific issues and presenting their information early next year to Gov. William Milliken and other Michigan GOP leaders.

Named vice chairmen of the fiscal policy task force were Rep. James Farnsworth of Plainwell, ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee, and Dr. Gene Booker, professor of management at Western Michigan University.

TO CHAIR FORCE

Mrs. Donald C. DuMouchelle of Grosse Isle, an unsuccessful candidate for the State Board of Education last year, will chair the higher education task force.

Vice chairmen under Mrs. DuMouchelle will be Rep. Clifford Smart of Walled Lake, ranking Republican on the House Education Committee; Dr. Leroy Augenstein, a member of the State Board of Education and chairman of biophysics at Michigan State University; and Norman O. Stockmeyer of Westland, chairman of the Wayne State University Board of Governors and former state GOP party secretary.

* * *

Arthur G. Elliott Jr., a Birmingham realtor and former Republican state chairman, will chair the election laws task force.

Serving as Elliott's vice chairmen will be Ella Koeze of Grand Rapids, former GOP national committeewoman, and Rep. Russell Strange of Clare, ranking Republican on the House Elections Committee.

* * *

Other task forces will deal with aging, agriculture, consumer protection, crime, ethics, health and mental health, human rights, job opportunity and labor relations, natural resources, social services, tourism and economic development, transportation, urban affairs and youth.

Meeting Shifted

The City Commission has changed the date of its regular meeting of Sept. 8.

* * *

Because of conflict with the Michigan Municipal League Conference, the meeting has been moved forward one day and will be Sept. 8.

The commute to LaGuardia has become more colorful.

Darkness Brings Nightly Eruptions of War to the Suez Canal

WITH ISRAELI TROOPS AT THE SUEZ CANAL (AP) — Night on the Suez Canal brings welcome relief from the oppressive heat—but also swarms of predatory mosquitoes and countless exchanges of gunfire.

* * *

Some of the heaviest fighting between Egyptian and Israeli troops entrenched and bunkered on opposite banks of the canal now takes place after dark.

* * *

Only after nightfall does the 103-mile-long waterway come alive.

Fighters move freely in and out of positions, unafraid of snipers' bullets. Equipment is moved, posts and trenches strengthened.

FRESH TROOPS

On the western side, the Egyptians use the cover of darkness to move up fresh troops to canal-side positions.

On the eastern embankment, Israeli soldiers man the so-called Car-Lev line, a well fortified system of bunkers and trenches named after the Israeli chief of staff

Preparations for the long night begin early on the Israeli side.

Off-duty troops emerge from their underground lairs long before dusk, to wash, grab an early meal and check arms and ammunition. Then the waiting begins.

QUIETER NOW

A lieutenant colonel, at 27 one of the youngest in the Israeli army, says his men were never trained for a static trench war. But morale is high and "We have been hitting the Egyptians harder than they have hit us," he says. "The canal is quieter now than it has been."

He estimated there were four divisions, perhaps 100,000 men, on the Egyptian side of the canal. There are Algerians, too, whom he described as being "no better or no worse" than the Egyptians.

* * *

Another officer claims Egypt has the world's largest concentration of artillery on the west bank since those of World War II in Europe.

One hour passes, two. The moon, almost full, rises higher in the southern skies.

TENSION MOUNTS

"No commandos will cross tonight with that moon," says one soldier looking down the canal, shimmering peacefully between the silent armies.

Tension mounts.

Then the heavy rumble of artillery rolls up from the south.

* * *

An Israeli position reports one of its soldiers wounded in the cannon barrage. He is ordered evacuated by helicopter.

Now the Israelis return light artillery fire.

* * *

The bunker is alerted for possible cannon shelling in this area.

BULLETS CRISSCROSS

And the night explodes.

Deadly barrages of light arms, light and heavy machine-gun fire crisscrosses the canal. Tracer bullets ride on meteorite tails and are lost from sight.

The Israelis fire star shells across the canal to light the Egyptian side.

The tempo increases.

Bullets from Soviet-made Kalashnikov rifles make a popping noise when they strike the sandbags above. Wood splinters shower an onlooker. The full-throated roar of the Soviet-built Gurianov guns mingle with Israeli 30- and 50-caliber machine guns.

The shelling continues for an hour and 20 minutes. No mortar or cannon are used.

NERVOUS LAUGHTER

Slowly the shooting dies, then stops entirely.

There are no Israeli casualties.

* * *

Life returns to normal. The cicadas begin their raucous rasping. Nervous laughter echoes down from the Israeli positions.

* * *

An Israeli private slaps at a mosquito: "Now the real fighting begins."

New Hampshire built and operated the first cog railway in the world in 1869 on Mt. Washington.

Time Is of the Essence to Ellington, Still Busy at 70

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Duke Ellington, probably the greatest living figure in jazz, is a man who likes to have his feet higher than his head when he rests.

BOYLE

A visitor to his hotel room found the elderly bandleader, relaxing before doing his nightly stint at the Rainbow Grill, comfortably lying on his back in bed with both feet cushioned in a pillow propped against the wall above the bedstead.

* * *

As informal in attire as in posture, the Duke wore nothing but a pair of black socks, a white sweat shirt, and an old black stocking cap. Peering owlishly from beneath the cap, Duke gestured at his elevated feet and said:

"The heart doesn't have to work so hard this way. My doctor saw me doing this and thought it was great."

Two waiters entered with a steak dinner, wheeled the table to his bedside and left. Sitting up, Elling'on bowed his head and murmured a few words under his breath before attacking the steak.

"I say my prayers," he remarked. "When you say the grace you're not thanking God for the food—it might be there anyway. You're thanking Him for the time to eat it. Everything is measured by time. A million dollars means nothing if you don't have time."

Since he first won renown here at the old Cotton Club in Harlem in 1927, Ellington has been extraordinarily busy. He has traveled the world, written more than a thousand musical compositions, including such jazz standards as "Mood Indigo," "Sophisticated Lady," and "Solitude." He and his band have made a thousand recordings, from which more than 15 million discs have been sold.

The musical world has been giving the old master a series of salutes since he celebrated his 70th birthday last spring. But the Duke is in no mood to close ar and cola, then sleep until down the cover of his piano.

MAKE YOUR NOISE

"I like to get out of bed and go to work," he said. "Going to work—that's the thing. You have to make your noise, and you have to make it sound right. Because if you turn it into a torture machine, it tortures you, too."

After his band finishes its last show, Duke still likes to compose until dawn, fueling himself with his favorite mixture of sug- dusk.

Ellington, whose first composition at 17 was called "Soda Fountain Rag," is currently and simultaneously trying to finish "a book, an opera and a ballet."

That's why, as always, he feels the pressure of time.

"How much time would I like to have? Oh I don't know. I never like to make requests. "It would be hard to ask Him for time without a good reason. A man might ask for time to finish all the pieces of music he's promised, or wants to write. But that's impossible. There ain't that much time."

* * *

Ex-Rodeo Trick Rider Gets PSH Oldsters Out of Bed

By DICK ROBINSON

Bennie couldn't get out of his Pontiac State Hospital bed for 30 years.

He was old and confused. There was little interest in him or some 70 other mental patients in his ward who were hopelessly confined to bed for years.

* * *

Then a former rodeo bareback rider turned nurse came along.

Psychiatric attendant nurse Mrs. Gertrude Ellis gave love and understanding as no one else had before.

'GETTING UP PARTY'

She waved a seemingly magical wand over the whole group for weeks before she was able to persuade them to get out of bed.

And then Mrs. Ellis stripped them of their hospital gowns, bathed them, shaved them, clothed them. Next she threw a "getting up party," complete with live combo.

"I first gave Bennie a doll," Mrs. Ellis, 53, of 1475½ Benvenue, Waterford Township, recalls. "He was about 58. Then I gave him a Mickey Mouse watch. It didn't work but he was so proud of it. And then he became a man."

That was several years ago, but Gerdie, as her friends call her, is still almost a living legend around the hospital.

'MIRACLE WORKER'

One veteran hospital official describes her as the last of the old line of hospital attendants who believe old patients shouldn't be confined to bed.

"She gets the tough assignments," the official explained, "but she almost performs miracals. She's the best of our 500 attendants."

* * *

But Gerdie, who now works only with patients over 65, is modest.

"Don't waste your time writing about me," she said in her slight Tennessee accent. "I don't think I'm that outstanding. I'm just trying to do my job."

Other attendants are curious about Mrs. Ellis' success. They ask her for advice and she says she tells them to "treat patients as humans and give them love and understanding."

GOLDEN RULE

"I try to give the patients the same care as I would myself. You never know, I may be here someday myself.

"You try to take an interest in patients. You don't try to avoid them. I try to do for them. I leave my problems at the door.

* * *

"There's no end what can be done for these people. This is my job. This is what I want to do."

* * *

TEMPORARY JOB

"I took the job here 23 years ago on a temporary basis," she explains. "I needed work."

She had visited at the hospital with a friend and was coaxed by a nursing office supervisor to apply for a hospital job. She got the job.

After six weeks, she says she was put in charge of a ward. She had little training at the time, but Mrs. Ellis acquired much of her training on the job and earned a psychiatric attendant nurse license.

Mrs. Ellis left the rodeo circuit after 10 years when she separated from her world-champion bronco-busting husband.

'A STRIPTEASER?'

She came to Pontiac where her family had moved from Winchester, Tenn. Her dad, a former farmer, lives in Pontiac. In her spare time, she can be found visiting him.

"People at the hospital thought I was a stripteaser when I first started working here," she said.

"Show business gives a person great compassion and a willingness to work with everyone."

OU Expands Fall Course List for Adults

Seventy new courses have been included in Oakland University's Adult Continuing Education fall offering of more than 190 courses.

They include new areas such as anthropology, astronomy, Afro-American literature, architecture appreciation, supervising the executive husband, franchising and community planning.

* * *

Course planning has been directed toward the adult who wants to broaden his knowledge and keep abreast of developments which may affect society and the individual.

Basic astronomy will be one of the courses taught at Cranbrook Institute. William Schultz, course instructor from Cranbrook, will use both the Cranbrook Observatory and Planetarium to orient his class to the possibilities of the universe.

OTHER COURSES

Three other OU adult courses will be offered at Cranbrook. They include ecology, the study of freshwater, marine and terrestrial habitats, led by Dr. Daniel S. McGeen who will focus on conservation of natural resources.

* * *

Introduction to anthropology, a new course by Robert N. Bowen, assistant director of Cranbrook Institute of Science, will emphasize human evolution and racial history of the Midwestern cultures, the Southwest and Pacific.

Creative photography, a course taught by Miles Barrie, will cover camera equipment and techniques, film and print making, emphasizing composition and lighting. Cranbrooks darkroom facilities will be available for class use.

* * *

Many of the 190 courses have limited enrollments and early registration is suggested by university officials. Courses are open to all adults, with classes beginning the week of Sept. 22.

Catalogs and registration may be obtained by contacting Oakland University's division of continuing education, Rochester 48063.

Recent Racial Quiet Analyzed in Britain

By The Associated Press

LONDON (AP) — Pictures of rioting in Northern Ireland may make Americans ponder "their own escape—so far—from the kind of major racial outbreak which has marred other years in American cities," the British weekly the Economist said.

One reason the summer is quiet, the Economist continued, is that "police forces have learned when to back down when not to back down, when to act and to take orders as a platoon.

* * *

"In the ghettoes there is a growing respect for the ability of most police departments to outwit or simply beat down a full-scale riot. And the slums themselves, the victims of their own riots, are tired. A recent poll showed that less than one-third of city blacks now believe riots to be justified."

Other comments about America abroad this week concerned the murder of movie actress Sharon Tate and the state of religion.

SENSUAL CLIMATE

A correspondent for the Turin, Italy, newspaper La Stampa mused the murder to observe about California:

"There are those who say the fault is the climate, too balmy and sensual. Those who say the fault lies with the money, too easy to make and spend. Those who say that blame should go to the society, too mobile and restless. There's a little truth in each of this.

* * *

After a lecture tour in the United States, Dr. Norman Pittenger, a theologian at King's College, Cambridge University, wrote in a British newspaper:

"Comparisons are said to be odious, but a visit to a dozen theological centers and to many parishes on the East Coast and in the Middle West assures me that if comparisons are made, religion in Britain is in a healthier state than in the United States.

U.S. Sets Final '69 Launchings

Manned Moon Trip, Satellite Shots Slated

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The U.S. space agency plans to end the decade with four unmanned satellite launchings and another manned moon-landing expedition.

Up first on the schedule for the final four months of the 1960s is Great Britain's first communications satellite — a military radio relay station tentatively set for launch here Sept. 24.

* * *

It probably will be followed in mid-October by the launch of a commercial communications satellite owned by the Comsat Corp. and its 52 partner nations.

On Oct. 22, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) plans to fire a new-type weather satellite into polar orbit from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. Four days later, NASA is scheduled to orbit an experimental electric rocket engine from Vandenberg.

FINALE OF DECADE

America's final civilian space shot of the decade is scheduled to start Nov. 14 when Apollo 12 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean set out for the moon.

Conrad and Bean will attempt to land on the Ocean of Storms, within walking distance of the Surveyor 3 television robot that landed there 2½ years ago. They are scheduled to spend almost twice as much time walking on the surface as did Apollo 11's pioneers, and they will attempt to bring back part of the surveyor for study.

* * *

Conrad, Gordon and Bean began the final phase of their training in spacecraft simulators here last week. Their 363-foot rocket-spacecraft combination is scheduled to be moved from its assembly building to the launch pad Sept. 8.

The British satellite set for launch in September, called Skynet, is designed to provide the United Kingdom with reliable long-distance defense communications between ground stations, ships and mobile land terminals.

RELAYS MESSAGES

The satellite will be launched by a Delta rocket toward a stationary orbit above the western Indian Ocean. From that vantage point, the drum-shaped spacecraft will be able to relay radio messages over all of Europe and Africa and most of Asia.

* * *

The satellite is one of two built by the Philco Ford Corp. of Palo Alto, Calif., under a $7.5-million contract. The project is managed for Britain's ministry of defense by the U.S. Air Force, and NASA will be paid $5 million for launch costs. After three weeks of orbital check-out, Skynet will be turned over to the Royal Air Force.

*

The commercial communications satellite expected to be orbited in October will be placed above the Atlantic Ocean to reinforce three spacecraft now handling trans-atlantic communications for the International Telecommunications Satellite Consortium (Intelsat).

The last launch of an Intelsat 3 series satellite for Comsat failed July 25 when the third stage of its Delta Rocket misfired. An eight-man review committee is now investigating the failure to determine what happened.

PROTOTYPE

The weather satellite set for launch from the West Coast Oct. 22 is the prototype of an improved storm watchery designed to replace two of the Tiros spacecraft now operated by the Environmental Science Services Administration (ESSA).

* * *

It is called Tiros-M and it carries three camera systems to observe the globe's cloud cover twice a day, day and night. It can beam cloud pictures "live" to any receiving stations within range and it can store pictures on tape when it is over isolated areas.

* * *

Vandenberg Air Force Base's second civilian launch in October will test new electric thrusters for spacecraft of the future. The experiment is mounted on an Agena upper stage rocket that will soar into orbit equipped with large solar panels to convert energy from the sun into electricity to power the thrusters.

Prices well reduced in August.

Kaline Homers Twice in Nightcap

Tigers and A's in High Scoring Split

DETROIT (AP) — There were brass bands, and clowns, and an Arabian Horse Troop at the sixth annual Shrine Night at Tiger Stadium Tuesday.

So, in keeping with the carnival atmosphere, the Oakland Athletics and Detroit Tigers sandwiched each side of the halftime entertainment by turning the baseball diamond into a merry-go-round.

* * *

They scored 29 runs in splitting a twi-night doubleheader, with Oakland taking the first game 8-6 and Detroit coming back with a 9-6 win in the nightcap.

Mike Kilkenny, 3-4, was scheduled to pitch today for Detroit against the Oakland's Jim Hunter, 9-11.

Mickey Stanley drove in six runs, three in each game, and Al Kaline drove in three runs in the nightcap with a pair of home runs to pace Detroit.

Tito Francona, recently acquired from Atlanta, knocked in two runs in the opener and a run in the second game as he collected three singles, a double, and a homer in the A's well balanced attacks.

Oakland took advantage of a sore-armed Denny McLain in the first game, but the Tigers took advantage of a mental lapse by 'A's second baseman Ted Kubiak in the second.

"It cost us four runs, but whose to say what the outcome would have been if it didn't happen," said Oakland Manager Hank Bauer.

The mental miscue came in the second inning when Jim Price hit into what should have been an inning-ending play. But Kubiak failed to relay shortstop Bert Campaneris' throw to first and just stood on the infield grass while Price slid into second.

That opened the door to four runs as Tiger starter Earl Wilson singled home a pair and Stanley followed with his second straight homer, his 13th of the season. He also hit the first pitch of the game for a homer off Paul Krause, 7-6.

Kaline hit a solo homer in the third and hit a two-run shot, his 17th, in the seventh. Norm Cash followed with another homer.

Wilson, 11-8, coasted until he needed relief in the ninth when the 'A's scored five runs and had the tying run at the plate. But John Hiller struck out Reggie Jackson to end the game.

Trailing 5-0 in the first game, Detroit rallied for four runs in the third on a two-run triple by Stanley and a two-run homer by Jim Northrup off starter George Lauzerique. Stanley also doubled home a run in the fifth.

Oakland had a 15 hit attack in the opener and knocked McLain from the mound with their third inning outburst. It was reported later McLain was troubled by the sore arm that bothered him during the World Seires.

The question now in everyone's mind in regard to the ABA's raid into amateur athletics by pulling Spencer Haywood off the University campus is—just how much was Will Robinson, the Pershing High School coach, involved in the matter .

Robinson will have a hard time proving that he had nothing to do with it.

The whole case by word of mouth has been termed "Robinson's Revenge," apparently his way of getting even for not receiving the coaching job at U. of D.

Whether Robinson played an active part in helping with the Haywood-ABA deal isn't really known as yet, but the Pershing coach can take much of the blame for the ethics and principals which were violated by the deed.

If Robinson was such a responsible guardian of Haywood's he would have made sure that he or Haywood would have told U. of D. officials what the basketball star had in mind.

But it is obvious that ethics was not part of his teaching.

WIDEN BREACH

Not only were ethics and principals violated, but the entire matter merely widened the breach between amateur and pro athletics.

In recent years, professional athletics has done much to make smoother their relationships with amateur sports and now the ABA with a swift stroke of the greedy pen has turned the amateur-pro association into one of mistrust.

* * *

If vengeance was the motive, Robinson not only ruined a complete athletic program at an honorable institution but he destroyed the faith and programs of many other colleges who build their schedules around the former Olympic star.

The Denver Rockets, the worst team in the worst professional league in America, claim it was a matter of being a hardship case.

Any college athlete who doesn't drive a Cadillac might claim hardship.

O. J. Simpson once claimed he didn't have enough money to pay for his wife's pregnancy. That could have been termed a hardship case if pro football was to look for a loophole to sign him before he finished college.

If the NCAA, the National Basketball Association, and all of amateur athletics allow the ABA to get away with this, they ought to have their heads examined.

NEEDED COUNSEL

Haywood, like most 20-year-olds, would naturally be awed by the almighty dollar and especially six figures waved in front of him.

This is where the guardians like Robinson and, the more ethical people in pro athletics would have given counsel to the boy.

But, obviously this isn't the character of revenge-minded guardians or pro teams who are at the level of crawling on their bellies for survival.

* * *

The Denver Rackets, as they should be known, and the ABA, whose initials would appropriately stand for A Bunch of . . . donkies, shouldn't be so lucky as to die a fast death.

Robinson certainly can't deny ignorance in the case. Haywood incriminated the coach by telling of his money discussions with Robinson.

And Robinson was apparently just waiting in glee for the story to break. He was known to have called the Detroit Lions office, for whom he does some scouting on college campuses, hours before the story broke to tell them of the "big news."

Every college in the country should bar him and the ABA from their campuses.

This chapter in pro-amateur relations will appropriately be named the "The Darstardly Deed of the ABA," with a sub-heading "Will Robinson's Revenge."

Poses Over for Wolverines

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

ANN ARBOR — They ran, they caught, they snarled for the photographers on the new $250,000 rug in University of Michigan stadium yesterday.

Today, the fun time is over for some 78 Wolverines, who began twice daily football practice under new head coach Bo Schembechler, successor to Bump Elliott who doesn't mind saying that things look bright at Ann Arbor this year.

* * *

"The NCAA suggests we use the first three days of practice for conditioning," said Schembechler, "but we can't afford that much time. Our players were given a weight with which to report and most of them have.

"We don't have the time that the pros have in training camp, so we have to add a couple running and pass plays with every practice session to be ready for our opener," he added.

REVIEWED MOVIES

Schembechler replaced Elliott last winter, coming to U. of M. from Miami of Ohio, and he said that during the summer he and his staff looked over film of some 85 games of the opponents on this year's schedule.

"We figured our opponents this year played something like 101 games last season. We went over at least 85 of those games including every game played by Michigan State, Vanderbilt and Washington our early opponents."

The big loss to the Wolverines is that of Ron Johnson who is now with the Cleveland Browns.

A pair of sturdy backs, Bill Taylor of Barberton, Ohio, Schembechler's home town, and Glenn Doughty, a sophomore from Detroit Pershing, are the top prospects for Johnson's position.

* * *

"We're not going to put as much emphasis on our tailback spot as there was with Johnson," said Schembechler. "We look for better balanced running among all the backs."

Don Moorhead, a 6-3 and 200-pound junior from South Haven, whom Schembechler called the "quality quarterback" is the starting signal caller at this point.

"He has good speed, able to run the 40 in 4.7, and his fast moving feet give him capability of running with the ball."

Among Oakland County gridders who are vying for positions on the offensive and defensive units are former Pontiac Northern fullback Dana Coin, who is being used at linebacker; Dan Parks, a 6-5 and 233 defensive tackle from Birmingham; Phil Seymour, a 6-4 and 205 defensive end from Berkley; cousin Paul Seymour, a big 6-5 and 220 split end from Berkley; and John Gabler a 6-2 and 210 pound senior wingback from Royal Oak Kimball.

* * *

The entire playing surface of Michigan Stadium has been covered with the Tartan turf. The outer sidelines and aprons are expected to be completed this week. The Universities of Vanderbilt and Washington, two schools with artificial turf, will open the Wolverine season at Ann Arbor, Sept. 20 and Sept. 27.

Money Becomes 'Only Thing'

By the Associated Press

To paraphrase Vince Lombardi: Money isn't everything . . . it's the only thing. Ask Jerry Wolman and Leroy Keyes.

Wolman, making another "gold line stand," has come up with a new scheme to buy back the Philadelphia Eagles, and Leroy Keyes is considering a "substantial contract offer" to play in the Canadian Football League.

* * *

Wolman's latest plan was presented to federal bankruptcy referee Joseph O. Kaiser in U.S. District Court in Baltimore Tuesday. It involves a new partner, Washington financeer Thomas Shaheen, and a few Wolman businesses—the Yellow Cab companies of Philadelphia and Camden and the Yellow Limousine Service.

Hyman Tatelbaum, Wolman's lawyer, said Wolman hopes to repay $3 million to creditors over a 10-year period with the latest plan. But, he said, the exact method of financing the repayment plan has not been determined.

REFINANCING

He explained the $3 million could be raised from revenues of the firms; from a refinancing of the debts using the companies as security, or through a merger of the businesses with a prominent, yet unspecified company that is listed on the American Stock Exchange.

Tatelbaum said the referee's approval of a Wolman-Shaheen venture would place the men in a position to reclaim the Eagles, sold earlier this year for $16.1 million to Leonard Tose of Norristown, Pa.

* * *

The availability of the National Football League team for purchase, however, is a matter of debate between Tose and Wolman. Wolman insists he's still able to execute a buy-back clause in the sale agreement— but Tose disagrees, saying any such clause has been voided.

Meanwhile, the British Columbia Lions

STATE RECORD — Mrs. John Edmondson of Muskegon set a state record for chinook salmon Monday night with this 22¼-pounder caught off the Muskegon Channel. The Department of Natural Resources declared the record. However, it probably won't stand up too long as chinooks up to 30 pounds are expected to be caught this fall. (Additional salmon fishing story on Page C-6.)

Fleisher Seeking 2nd Amateur Golfing Crown

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The contrast is startling. First, you have Bruce Fleisher, 20, and as many years of amateur golf ahead of him as he chooses. Then, there is Billy Hyndman, still shooting for his golf moon at 53.

Both started around Oakmont Country Club's 6,892-yard course today in the 69th annual U.S. Amateur Golf Championship. Fleisher is the defending champion. He won it in his first try. Hyndman was making his 17th bid since his first in 1949.

* * *

These young and old were part of a field of 150 eeking the title in the four-day, 72-hole tournament. The top 60 scorers and ties will qualify for the final 36 holes. Uncle Sam's victorious Walker Cup team was here in body, along with its victim of last week, the Walker Cup team of Great Britain.

Pete Green of Orchard Lake leads the Michigan contingent.

Fleisher expressed confidence in his ability to do something only six others have accomplished—win back-to-back national amateur titles. Harvie Ward last did it in 1955-56. Although he said he was confident, the usually flamboyant Fleisher didn't sound convincing.

NOT BOTHERED

Hyndman, an insurance executive from Huntingdon Valley, Pa., who has two sons older than most of the field here, isn't bothered by the generation gap.

"I feel great physically and I never hit the ball any better or longer than I do now," he said, before practicing on the welltrapped Oakmont course.

* * *

Hyndman has come close to winning a big title three times and he realizes time is running out on him. In 1955, when this tourney was match play competition, he lost to Harvie Ward in the final, 5 up. Deane Beaman beat him in the 1959 British Amateur final. This year, he lost to Britain's Mike Bonalack in the final of the British Amateur.

Name OCC Cage Coach

A veteran of the junior college ranks will head the basketball and baseball teams at Orchard Ridge of Oakland Community College next season.

Joining the Orchard Ridge staff is 30-year-old Tom McPhillips, who moves here after three years as head coach and athletic department chairman at Alpena Community College.

McPhillips is a 1961 graduate of Alma College where he played basketball and tennis, along with running cross-country and serving as captain of the cage team.

During the past two seasons, McPhillips' teams compiled 12-4 and 11-3 records. He had stops at three high schools before taking the Alpena post.

At Orchard Ridge, McPhillips replaces Dick Robinson, who was recently elevated to the position of athletic chairman at the school after a year as head basketball coach.

Wolman Plans Another Try at Refinancing

Canadian Team Bids for Keyes; Pro Grid Squads Make Cuts

Football League say they have made a "substantial contract offer" to Keyes, the Eagles' No. 1 draft choice.

Danny Veitch, Lions' general manager, said the club has been dealing with Keyes' agent, Arthur Morse, and a final decision is expected from the Purdue star Thursday.

Terms of the Lions' offer were not disclosed and Veitch said no other financier or parties are involved in the negotiations. Keyes recently broke off dealings with the Eagles when they failed to agree to terms on a three-year contract.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., the San Francisco 49ers also are having trouble signing Clifton McNeil, the NFL's leading receiver. McNeil met with 49er General Manager Jack White, but they failed to agree on a contract. There was no report on any planned future meetings.

On other pro football fronts, the Washington Redskins acquired fullback Henry Dyer and safety Nick Rassas, two free agents. Dyer was picked up from the New York Giants and Rassas, the Atlanta Falcons.

WAIVERS ASKED

The Minnesota Vikings traded rookie flanker Tom McCauley of Wisconsin to Atlanta for rookie offensive guard John Sandstrom. Baltimore asked waivers on Gary Fleming, a rookie offensive tackle, and placed linebacker Robbie Nichols on the reserve list. The Eagles placed Len Persin on the reserve list and put linebacker Mark Kosmos on waivers.

In the AFL, the New York Jets cut seven players, including cornerback Johnny Sample. But coach-general manager Weeb Ewbank indicated he would recall some if the other teams claimed them on waivers.

Tom Nomina, 280-pound, six-year veteran of the AFL, was among five players cut by the Miami Dolphins.

Brothers Among Mat Champions

A couple of brothers were among five Oakland County youngsters collecting titles in the recent state AAU Midget Wrestling (10 and under) Championships at Hazel Park.

Bob Elsenheimer won the 45-pound title while his brother, Peter, took the 68-pound crown. The two Madison Heights grapplers are brothers of Bill Elsenheimer, who captured the state Class B 145-pound title last year.

Others winning titles were Tom Davids (47 pounds), Kurt McPherson (49 pounds), both of Hazel Park, and Mark Crosthwaite (78 pounds) of Troy.

CAN'T MAKE CATCH—A small poodle invaded San Diego Stadium last night to interrupt a 6th inning rally of the New York Mets in the second game of twin bill with the Padres. Third baseman Van Kelly of the Padres makes an unsuccessful attempt to field the pup which finally exited into the San Diego dugout. The Padres probably should have gone with it as they lost both ends of the doubleheader to the Mets, 8-4 and 3-0.

Cubs Feel Pressure

Durocher Gets Wish

By The Associated Press

For a while, it looked as if Leo Durocher wasn't going to get his wish, but the way his Chicago Cubs keep throwing away games and the New York Mets keep picking them up, Leo might get it after all.

Just last weekend, Durocher was saying how curious he was to find out how his players would react to pennant pressure. But the way the Cubs had been winning, it didn't appear as if there would be much pressure to react to.

* * *

However, all that has suddenly changed and after the Cubs lost again to Cincinnati 8-7 Tuesday afternoon, and the Mets swept a twi-night doubleheader from San Diego 8-4 and 3-0, the pressure is on.

* * *

The results left the Mets only three games behind Chicago in the National League East and only one in the important loss column, quite a drop from the 9½-game lead the Cubs had only 14 days ago.

BLEW CHANCES

St. Louis and Pittsburgh missed golden opportunities to add still more pressure when the Cardinals split a twi-nighter against Houston, winning 1-0 and then losing 4-2, and the Pirates lost to Atlanta 6-4.

The third-place Cardinals thus picked up only a half game and stand 7½ back, while the Pirates are eight behind.

* * *

The West Division needs no added pressure with one game still separating the first four teams after all won.

San Francisco clung to its half game, three percentage point lead over Cincinnati by clubbing Philadelphia 13-4 , and Atlanta remained two points behind the Reds. Los Angeles is one game and seven points behind after bouncing Montreal 6-0. Fifth-place Houston is three games back.

For the second day in a row, the Cubs fell far behind and then fell just short with a ninth inning rally that ended with a relief pitcher coming on to get the last out with the tying run on third base.

* * *

It marked the sixth defeat in eight games for the Cubs and their third in succession.

Cincinnati piled up seven runs in the first two innings on a flurry of singles, but the Cubs pecked away at Jim Merritt, 15-5, with homers by Don Young, Glenn Beckert and Ernie Banks and Ken Rudolph's two-run pinch single in the seventh.

* * *

The Reds scored the winning run in the ninth for an 8-8 lead on Lee May's double, but a walk, Beckert's double and a sacrifice fly drove out Merritt in the bottom of the ninth.

And Durocher, a bit high-strung himself, wasn't even around to see his Cubs react. He was ejected in the second inning over a dispute involving a change of pitchers.

The Mets took full advantage later as Tom Seaver, 18-7, became the league's first 18-game winner with a four-hit first game victory and Jim McAndrew, 6-5, followed with a five hitter, running the Mets' winning streak to five games and 11 in their last 12 outings.

Rick Barry Indicates He Won't Move

OAKLAND (AP) — Attorney Earl Foreman, who has a $2.6 million deal to buy the Oakland Oaks and move them to Washington, talked Tuesday with staff members of the American Basketball Association club, including Coach Alex Hannum.

*

Foreman met all questions with "no comment" except one, to which he replied: "There are no present plans to meet Rick again."

Superstar Rick Barry and Foreman met in Los Angeles Monday. Foreman later announced the Oaks' forward said he didn't want to leave the San Francisco Bay Area and felt his contract did not require to him to leave.

* * *

Barry was unavailable Tuesday for further comment, amid reports he was ready to sign a new contract with the San Francisco Warriors of the National Basketball Association—the team he left two years ago.

Warriors' owner Frank Mieuli was not available to add to his Monday comment that he was "more optimistic than I've been in 2¼ years" about the possibility of getting Rick back to San Francisco."

TEEING UP IN CROSSWINDS

YOU NEED EVERY ADVANTAGE YOU CAN SEIZE WHEN PLAYING A ROUND IN THE WIND, AND THERE'S NO BETTER PLACE THAN ON THE TEE BASES. THE TYPE OF WIND CONFRONTING YOU SHOULD DETERMINE THE SPOT ON THE TEE TO PLACE YOUR BALL.

IF THE WIND IS LEFT-TO-RIGHT, TEE UP ON THE LEFT SIDE AND TRY TO FADE THE BALL SLIGHTLY WITH THE WIND, THUS GETTING AS MUCH YARDAGE AS POSSIBLE OUT OF YOUR SHOT.

IF THE WIND IS RIGHT-TO-LEFT, USE THE RIGHT SIDE OF THE TEE AND ATTEMPT TO DRAW THE SHOT A LITTLE, AGAIN GIVING THE WIND A MAXIMUM CHANCE TO CARRY THE BALL WHILE STILL KEEPING IT ON THE FAIRWAY.

Top Net Seeds Out of Spotlight

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The world's richest tennis tournament, the $137,000 U.S. Championship, broke with tradition and opened a 12-day stand with the name players shunted from the spotlight.

Top-seeded Rod Laver of Australia, gunning for the first Grand Slam of the Open era, faced Luis Garcia of Mexico today on an obscure side court at the venerable West Side Tennis Club.

* * *

Defending champion Arthur Ashe, hoping to break out of a service slump, and second-seeded John Newcombe, runnerup at Wimbledon, were among other stars relegated to field courts.

Ashe, seeded fourth, faced Richard Stockton, a Junior Davis Cupper from Garden City, N.Y.

"This is a marked break with tradition that we are not starting with the defending champion," said referee Mike Gibson of Britain. "But we feel it's more important to give the public at Forest Hills the most attractive possible matches rather than those featuring the name players."

CENTER COURT

At Wimbledon and elsewhere, the defending champion opens on the center court, regardless of the status of his opponent.

Although Laver, with Australian, French, and Wimbledon Open victories behind him, is one of the most-talked about players here, the outcome of the feature match between third-seeded Tony Roche of Australia and unseeded Bob Lutz of Pasadena, Calif., could provide a barometer for the entire tournament which officials hope will put tennis on the road to commercial success.

* *

Lutz lost to Stan Smith, his Davis Cup doubles partner, last weekend in the U.S. Grass Courts Championship while Roche skipped a pro tournament in Newport, R..I. to rest an ailing shoulder.

The preliminary match on the cushy grass center court pitted fifth-seeded Tom Okker of Holland, runnerup here last year, against unseeded Mark Cox, a British Davis Cupper. Rumania, the United States Davis Cup Challenge Round adversary, will be featured on the center court with Ilie Nastase playing Ian Crookenden of New Zealand.

Although he is seeded 12th, Smith is expected to be very much in contention for the $16,000 first prize which has lured an elite field of 128. The 22-year-old 6-foot-4 Smith, like Lutz a product of the University of Southern California, is billed in many quarters as America's star of tomorrow. He drew Patricio Rodriguez of California as a first round opponent, also on a field court.

Oriole 'Slump' May Cause Some Jitters

By United Press International

The Baltimore Orioles, with by far the best record in the American League, are showing signs of weakening.

Although they're way out in front in the Eastern Division race, their fourth straight loss, 2-1, to Seattle Tuesday night, might understandably cause a few jitters among the Oriole faithful.

Opera may be the big draw in Baltimore next year if the Orioles dominate the race only to blow it in the end.

* * *

In other American League action, Chicago squeezed by New York, 3-2 in 10 innings, Boston beat Kansas City, 6-1, California triumphed over Cleveland, 8-4 and Minnesota bested Washington, 6-4.

SUFFERS LOSS

The Pilots' Tommy Davis drove in both runs with a homer and a single in the Orioles' defeat as Gene Brabender hurled a four-hitter to even his record at 10-10. Tom Phoebus suffered his sixth loss against 12 victories.

Chicago's Pete War sent home the winning run against New York with a sacrifice fly in the 10th, but converted outfielder Danny Murphy had to stop the Yanks with the bases loaded and one out in the bottom of the frame to save Wilbur Wood's ninth victory. Both Yankee runs came on Frank Fernandez 11th homer.

* * *

In Boston, Carl Yastrzemski drove in three runs, two with his 33rd homer, to help Mike Nagy breeze by Kansas City on an eight-hitter and run his record to 9-2.

Aurelio Rodriguez drove in three runs for California with a double and a single to pace the Angels over Cleveland, with rookie reliever Vern Geishert picking up his first major league victory. Bill Voss and Ken Tatum added solo homers to the Angels' 14-hit attack, while Lou Klimchock connected for the Indians.

Minnesota hurler Dave Boswell proved he could hit something besides his teammates as he smacked a homer to ignite a four-run third-inning outburst by the Twins against Washington.

Boswell, who went 6 2-3 innings, rans his record to 14-9.

Truluck Is Most Lucky

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — Truluck owned by Sherwood Farm, Irvington, N.J., and driven by George Sholty, blazed a record-breaking mile in 1:57.2 to win the $32,176 McMahon memorial Stake for two-year-old pacers at Du Quoin State Fair Tuesday afternoon.

* * *

The time bettered a 1:48.1 track mark for juvenile pacers set by Good Counsel in 1956 and matched by Best of All in 1966. It was only two-tenths of a second off the world mark established by Bullet Hanover in Indianapolis in 1959.

* * *

Sholty brought Truluck, a bay colt, back from an eighth-place finish in the first heat to capture the McMahon.

Race Time Boy, driven by Billy Haughton, won the first heat in 2:00.1 but was withdrawn because of exhaustion.

Ex-Phil Kazanski Joins Tiger Staff

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers announced Tuesday they have signed Ted Kazanski, former infielder with the Philadelphia Phillies, as a coach for the rest of the season.

* * *

He is the numerical replacement for pitching coach Johnny Sain, who was recently fired, but Kazanski won't serve as a pitching coach.

Kazanski, 35, was with the Phillies from 1953 through 1958.

No Doubt in Willie Mays' Mind About 1970

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Willie Mays, 38, is coming back again next year.

There never was any doubt in his mind, only in the minds of some others.

★ ★ ★

Willie Mays has discovered a few new aches he never had before, he doesn't pull that good fast ball or hit it out of the park like he once did, and he can use an occasional day off, but he still outperforms nine out of ten others and can't understand why some people are looking to rush him into retirement.

★ ★ ★

Nobody has to tell Willie Mays he doesn't get the same jump on the ball he did 10 years ago. He knows that. Nobody has to tell him his arm isn't what it used to be either. He knows that, too.

But there's at least one man who says Willie is the same now he was 20 years ago.

HASN'T CHANGED

"To me," this man says, "he hasn't changed at all. He's about the same today as he was when he was 10 years old. He goes to sleep early; he reads funny books; he doesn't drink, he doesn't smoke and he doesn't bother with any bad company."

The man who says all this about Willie Mays knows him better than anyone else in the world. The man who says all this about him is his father, also named Willie Mays, also an exceptionally fine centerfielder in his day but never a professional performer.

★ ★ ★

The elder Mays, still in good physical shape at 56, bears such a startling resemblance to his famous son that he frequently is mistaken for him in and around Shea Stadium where he always comes out to see him play when the Giants are in town.

"People stop me and say, 'Hey, Willie, will you sign this?' he laughs. "I tell them I'm not Willie, I'm the father, and they say they want my autograph anyway. That makes me feel good."

HOW IT STARTED

Willie May's father has a right to feel good. Few other persons ever made more people happy than his son has in a remarkable 18-year career. Willie's father remembers how it all started.

"When he was two years old, I bought him a rubber ball," says the elder Mays. "I'd roll it to him. Then when I'd stop, he'd cry for it. Not many people know it, but Willie was a better football player than a baseball player as a boy. I think his going into baseball instead of football was my decision. I always liked baseball best. I felt it was such a clean game. Besides, I didn't want him hurting his knees."

While Willie grew up near Birmingham, his father worked in a steel mill.

★ ★ ★

"I used to tell him all the time, 'don't go into the steel mills,' recalls Willie's father. "He went to high school and as soon as he finished, the Giants signed him."

Wall Named to Furman Post

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Tommy Wall was named today to succeed Bob Reising as Furman University baseball coach.

★ ★ ★

Wall, a 1959 Furman graduate, has been director of activity at the Connie Maxwell Children's Home in Greenwood, S.C.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By John Carter

How much bigger are the average football players today than they were in the past? . . . Well, someone has compiled figures of the average weight of All-Americans 40 years ago and last year . . . Last year the average weight of players on the All-America team was 217 pounds . . . Forty years ago the average weight of the players was only 183 pounds . . . Thus, today's player is some 34 pounds heavier.

• • •

Ever wonder where the sport of badminton got its name? . . . Why is it called badminton? . . . Here's the reason . . . The game was first played on the estate of the Duke of Beaufort in England, and "Badminton" was the name of the Duke's estate, so the sport got its name from there.

• • •

You may be able to guess who holds the all-time record for batting in the most runs in a career in baseball history (the answer is, of course, Babe Ruth) — but very few people can name the man who ranks second in most runs batted in for a career . . . Would you care to take a guess? . . . The answer is Lou Gehrig.

I bet you didn't know . . . that creeping inflation keeps eating away at our food budget while underinflation keeps eating away at our tires. See one of our Pros for some of that good inflation.

Mud Hens Still Losing Ground in IHL Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Things are not going well for Toledo in the International League.

The sagging Mud Hens lost their second straight game to the Richmond Braves 5-4 Tuesday and slipped to 9½ games behind league-leading Louisville.

* * *

Richmond got all its runs in the third inning with the help of a bases-loaded single by Buddy Booker. Toledo got seven hits off Gary Hill, including a solo homers by Wayne Redmond and Mike Derrick. Redmond also doubled in a run.

In other games Tuesday, Louisville smothered last-place Buffalo 12-1, Syracuse downed Columbus 5-2 and Tidewater shut out Rochester 3-0.

DERBY LEADER—Larry Puffer of Holly displays the 6¼-pound black bass he caught Tuesday morning at Bush Lake in Holly. The lunker is the new leader of The Press Fish Contest's bass division.

'Last Time' Yields New Derby Leader

One last cast yesterday morning may make Larry Puffer of Holly a winner in The Pontiac Press Big Fish Contest.

Puffer, 1006 N. Saginaw, and Carl DeVries of Holly started fishing Bush Lake about 4:30 a.m. After catching several sub-legal bass they decided to try deep water before heading home.

★ ★ ★

Puffer made "one more cast" into 20 feet of water with a Rapalla about 7 a.m. He retrieved a 6¼-pound largemouth black bass.

This fish replaces the previout bass division leader in the contest by three ounces and will be tough to beat because the contest ends next Tuesday at noon.

★ ★ ★

The pike devision leader is a nine-pounder.

All residents of Oakland County are eligible. The pike or bass must be caught in Oakland County waters and brought to The Press sports department for weighing.

MLCA, Scouts Join Forces

Safe Gun Handling Class Scheduled

The Multi-Lakes Conservation Association is joining forces with the Explorer Scouts to provide instruction in the safe handling of firearms.

★ ★ ★

The club, located near Walled Lake, will host nearly 100 Explorer Scouts from Redford and the MLCA troop Sept. 20.

★ ★ ★

The scouts will receive instruction in the handling of shotguns and rifles during the all-day session which will start at 8 a.m. Competitive shooting will conclude the activities.

Those satisfactorily completing the course will receive proficiency patches from MLCA and the Explorers and be eligible for gun safety instruction certificates.

★ ★ ★

MLCA plans to make this an annual event and hopes to expand the program to include other youths, according to J. W. Shuhran.

One Step Removed

LANSING (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley ruled Thursday that a district court magistrate may issue a warrant for violation of fish and game laws without the prior approval of the prosecuting attorney.

WINNER — David Priebe, 15, of Pontiac, and his dog, Princess, were first in the advanced graduate novice A competition of the 4-H obedience dog event last week at Michigan State University. The dog show was part of the State 4-H Show.

Quiet Summer Picnic Shattered by 'Quacks'

The temperature was in the upper 60s, no breeze stirred, corn husks were piling up — a nice day for a picnic.

"Qu-ack, Qu-ack, Qu—ack!"

First one "duck" and then another picked up the cry. Soon four or five different "calls" could be heard renting the still air at Dodge Park No. 10 near Milford.

★ ★ ★

The occasion was a summer picnic arranged by Ducks Unlimited. Over 70 families attended, with a majority of the men members of the Oakland Duck Hunters Club.

★ ★ ★

A featured event was the duck calling contest judged by former international champion Art Beauchamp and state champion Ken Peterson, both from Flint.

★ ★ ★

Many of the 15 entrants hadn't picked up a call since the close of last season and were practicing after dinner highballs, lonesome hen and feed calls. Jerry Gelarn of Fox Lake was the winner.

Dale Nance, president of the Duck Hunters, had charge of the picnic and said it may become an annual event.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Jan O'Malley of Manteloking, N.J. won the women's North American Sailing Championship on Eagle Mountain Lake Tuesday with 51½ points.

Distribution Planned

Cohos Schooling Near Manistee

The cohos apparently heard about the Salmon Festival at Manistee and are heading toward making the final activities a big success this weekend.

Schooling cohos were finally located last weekend about 10 miles south of Manistee and several 12 to 15 pounders were brought in by charter boats.

★ ★ ★

The salmon are still about six miles off shore in 100 feet of water but are running 50-55 feet deep. Bayou specials in chrome, orange and yellow patterns and tadpolies were the most effective lures.

During the first week of the festival few cohos were taken and occasional chinooks up to 20 pounds held sway. Festival leaders are now hoping the cohos arrive off the Manistee River for the Labor Day weekend activities.

A few large steelheads are being picked up by the salmon anglers to spice the action.

The cohos still haven't put in an appearance off Tawas, Oscoda or Alpena on the Lake Huron side.

Free distribution of salmon to licensed fishermen will begin in mid-September at the trapping sites on the Tawas, Muskegon, Platte and Little Manistee Rivers.

★ ★ ★

The Blackport Company of Grand Rapids will distribute the cleaned fish on weekends. Wives of licensed anglers may also receive one if they are accompanied by their husbands.

Blackport will retain the eggs for possible caviar sales and commercial bait distribution.

★ ★ ★

Perch fishing on Lake St. Clair continues to hold up off Huron Point. Some smallmouths also are being taken. Bass and catfish continue to hit around Charity Island in Saginaw Bay, but the perch fishing has been slow.

TAPERING OFF

Walleye fishing in the St. Clair River near Port Huron has started to taper off. Limit catches of walleyes, just barely legal size, are reported from the Muskegon River above Evart.

During the past two weeks 10 men have been convicted of illegal deer kills in the Gladwin district. Three lost their hunting privileges for three years.

Trial Scheduled by Fox Hunters

A good chase was had by all.

This is what the Michigan State Fox Hunters Association hopes to report after its annual field trial and bench show Sept. 11-14 at the Youth Camp on Lake George Road near Lapeer.

★ ★ ★

Hounds will be cast at dawn the last three days of the trial. Clyde Rose of Elkridge, Md., will be master of hounds and serve as the bench show judge which will be at 8 p.m. Sept. 13.

Pat Ireland of the international sportsmen's committee will discuss new national dog laws and hunting conditions at 6 p.m. Sept. 13, followed by brief messages from dignitaries present.

★ ★ ★

The field trial will be run under national rules. Jim Curtis of Oxford is president of the state association and Clifford Hicks, Jr., 311 E. Wood, Pontiac, is the secretary.

Fail With McNeil

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Holdout Clifton McNeil, the National Football League's leading receiver last season, met with San Francisco 49er General Manager Jack White for two hours Tuesday, but they failed to agree on a contract.

Pointing Toward Point Spread

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of these days point spreads are likely to be as important to duck hunters as they are to basketball and football fans.

In the case of waterfowl gunners, these point spreads will determine how many ducks and what kind they can take home.

★ ★ ★

An experimental point-system season will be held at the Shiawassee Game Area this fall and there is a good chance Michigan will use the system state-wide in 1970.

One delegate to the Waterfowl Advisory Committee meeting here recently said "this is the only ultimate solution to the problems that confront us."

The point systems being considered will determine the species, number and even the sex of the daily bag.

Under one typical plan each hunter would go into the marsh or waterway in the morning with 50 points to his credit.

LESSER PENALTIES

Relatively scarce ducks such as canvasbacks and red heads and heavily shot ducks such as mallards would count high points. High density ducks like teal and scaup would carry lesser point penalties. Hens would account for more points than drakes.

For example, a mallard hen would carry a penalty of 50 points and bagging one would end the days shooting.

Canvasbacks, red heads and wood duck hens would also be 50-point ducks.

★ ★ ★

But teal, shovelers, male pintail and widgeon and scaup of either sex would carry only a 10 point penalty. A hunter could shoot five of them in a day's outing.

All other ducks would carry 25 points.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS

This is just one system and there are several suggested modifications. One frequently mentioned is this same system but with a two-duck minimum.

A spokesman for Ducks Unlimited, the major conservation group operated by duck hunters themselves, said they consider it of good potential "because of its flexibility."

★ ★ ★

A spokesman for the Audubon Society, which is not, as many people think, against hunting, said "we support the point system because it will increase hunter incentive."

Rome—'The Infernal City'—Staggering Municipal Mess

By CHARLES W. BELL

ROME (UPI) — When President Giuseppe Saragat sent a quick message of congratulations to Rome's newly elected mayor, Romans were sure they knew why.

"Saragat was afraid he would get stuck with the city," said one.

It seemed for months the Eternal City—renamed by some critics the "Infernal City" — would be subjected to the ultimate humiliation of rule by proconsul.

But this legal step, not taken since the time of the Caesars when local powers proved incapable of ruling themselves, was avoided this month when feuding politicians ended a prolonged crisis by narrowly electing Christian Democrat Clelio Darida mayor.

MUNICIPAL MESS

He inherited a staggering municipal mess.

Broke, crowded, antiquated, corrupt, dirty, demoralized, stagnating — Rome is all this and more.

The upshot is smoldering resentment by most of the 2.7 million inhabitants of one of the world's most ancient and revered cities.

Even a list of the most urgent problems Darida faces makes depressing reading.

$2.3-BILLION DEBT

The municipal debt stands at $2.3 billion and swells by about $240 million every year.

Public health officials describe Rome as one of the dirtiest cities in Italy, and 500,000 persons live in neighborhoods legally defined as slums.

* * *

Transportation is a joke, if not a scandal. Streets are choked with traffic, parking space is virtually nonexistent, and bus and trolley services are fitful and slow. A subway system is just now being built, years after the need for it became desperate.

* * *

Educational facilities are so strained that many of the city's 400,000 pupils go to classes in five-hour double-up shifts.

Rome has less park space than any city in Europe. One neighborhood of 100,000 has not one inch of recreation space.

WATER SHORTAGES

Water shortages are commonplace, caused mostly by breakdowns in the six aqueducts — the newest built 90 years ago—carrying water from surrounding lakes and rivers.

Bureaucracy smothers and stalls every modernizing move in streams of red tape and overlapping officialdom that turns the simplest transaction into a long, complex and costly operation.

Strikes are frequent — and often unannounced.

Another problem is about 25 years old. Since 1945, about 1 million newcomers, many of them illiterate, have poured into Rome from the poverty-stricken south, seeking jobs. The strain on housing, schooling and public services has created vast new slums and added millions of dollars to relief rolls.

OVERRIDING PROBLEM

The overriding problem is financial. Only a formal declaration of bankruptcy keeps Rome from being legally broke. Even that possibility seemed real two years ago when then Mayor Amerigo Petrucci, later arrested for stealing public funds, successfully appealed to the central government for $21.6 million to pay urgent bills.

Higher taxes and sharp cuts in a public payroll of 40,000 might ease the debt problem, but both are so politically risky Rome's coalition government dares not — or prefers not — to take these measures.

* * *

In fact, politicians contend Rome needs thousands more police, street cleaners, garbage collectors and caretakers for ancient monuments. Experts agree.

Romans pay about $43 million in consumer taxes and about $120 million in direct taxes. But tax evasion is endemic with more than 300,000 lawsuits pending over unpaid taxes.

Rome has been called a museum resting on a museum, a fact that makes the dead hand of history press heavily on a city celebrating the 2,724th anniversary next year of its legendary founding by the twins Romulus and Remus.

Earl's WGE Pick an Encore for 'All-Round' Sammy

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — That time of year has arrived when I pick "the world's greatest entertainers." I do it every year (when I remember it). It hasn't been too much of a chore. Because it's always Sammy Davis.

WILSON

Is it still Sammy Davis? The "greatest clown," "the greatest comedian," may be somebody else — Red Skelton won the clown contest several times, and Bob Hope is hard to shut out as the greatest comedian — but "the world's greatest entertainer" tag was stuck on Sammy a decade ago by Groucho Marx and it was still sticking there the last time I looked. WGE, we call it. World's Greatest Entertainer.

Some young girls, who are very powerful letter writers and have unlimited stamp money, have been blasting me with mail saying that the biggest star of all time ("all time" to them is the last couple of years) is Tom Jones.

Elvis Presley? Jimi Hendrix? Tony Bennett? Barbra Streisand? Pearl Bailey? The Beatles? There's another school of people who feel that the only entertainment is singing, and therefore the best entertainer is one who sings best to their ears.

There's another set that is entertained only by the TV talkers, and therefore the best entertainers are Johnny Carson, Merv Griffin and Joey Bishop.

Where do you fit in Buddy Hackett, Don Rickles, Danny Thomas, Shecky Greene

* * *

There wouldn't be much argument against me saying that the Best TWO entertainers today are Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme.

"All-around entertainment" is what Groucho Marx had in mind when he handed the crown to Sammy Davis. For Sammy, a magnificent dancer, a terrific drummer, an extraordinary mimic, became a powerful singer and a most believable actor. Added to that was his amazing energy which drove the man to go on and on and on (until he actually dropped and went into a hospital last year).

* * *

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

New York is having trouble for the first time getting cafe stars, due to competition of Las Vegas, Hollywood's television, and union problems. The musicians' union's new October demands may be blamed for shuttering more rooms or raising the cover charge. The Waldorf has just signed Tony Newley at $25,000 a week — one major hotel has difficulty getting any performer because of competition offers from other cities.

Ann Miller of "Mame" who travels with a valiseful of stuffed animals, says she has so many now she'll give a batch of 'em to hospitals . . . The singing Checkmates gave the Copa a bright, bouncy and exciting opening night, with plenty of music and humor.

* * *

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Radio may be old-fashioned, but nobody ever accused it of showing an old movie.—Webster's Unafraid Dictionary.

EARL'S PEARLS: Most teen-agers do know the value of a dollar today. It buys about three gallons of gasoline.

Graffiti spotted on B'way: "Alexander Graham Bell — Be patient, the repairman is on the way." . . . That's earl, brother.

These Are Homes For Migrant Workers In Southwest Michigan

Michigan's Migrants—II

Work, Cash Needed

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second of a five-part series by Associated Press Writer Hugh Morgan on Michigan's migrant workers. In this article Morgan, who has studied the problems of the Mexican-American in Michigan and in the Southwest, looks at some of the workers' specific complaints.

By HUGH MORGAN
Associated Press Writer

Joe Juarez says his father walked from Guanajuato, Mexico, to Saginaw, Mich. It took him eight years.

He was one of the thousands of Mexican-Americans —known as Chicanos—who stream into Michigan each year to work in the fields. But Joe's father escaped from the stream and became a successful dry cleaner.

* * *

Joe rejoins the stream each harvesting season to tell his fellow Chicanos to quit stooping in the fields and find a better life in another job.

Raynaldo Castro, who is 24, tried but failed this summer to flee from the life of a migrant.

TURNED DOWN

Castro—who supports his wife and four children by working in Michigan's fruit and vegetable fields—almost found a job in a factory at Saginaw. He was turned down at the last moment when doctors found his hearing was bad in one ear.

The Saginaw office of United Migrants for Opportunity Inc., a federal antipoverty program, is trying to get the workers needed medical treatment.

Until then, Castro works inthe fields.

* * *

"I want a better life," says Castro, of San Benito, Tex., and to stay in a community where "my children can go to school."

Two migrant field workers. One escaped the nomadic life. One didn't.

Most of the migrant workers would prefer a new way of life.

ONLY 55 DID

A Michigan Civil Rights Commission study showed that 811 adults did not want their children to continue farm work. Only 55 did.

For the migrant, housing is substandard. He has no guaranteed pay.

* * *

"There have been genuine attempts to make his housing better, and to enforce health standards and provide education, but," says Michigan Gov. William Milliken, "the migrant's life is a cruel, hard life."

A spot survey of migrants around the state showed they generally felt they were not being mistreated by the farmers, but they needed both more work and more money.

"They are driven up here by economic necessity," said James R. Shrift of Mount Pleasant, director of the United Migrants for Opportunity. "They're thinking about their next meal."

"A system that makes a man drive halfway across the nation to earn less than a poverty wage is inhumane," Shrift said.

* * *

"I think the greatest majority of farmers really and truly attempt to do everything they can to help the migrant. But a significant number don't."

The lack of work and rain this year sent many migrant families to welfare agencies for food. It's a common scene to see the mother walk in, head bowed. The father—the leader of a Mexican-American family—waits in the car, too embarrassed to ask for food.

ONLY FEW INTERESTED

Ruben Alfaro, Midwest director of the Bishop's Committee for the Spanish-Speaking, said only a few farmers are really interested in helping the migrant.

"The majority couldn't care less, as long as they get their crops in."

Tina Katz, assistant director of the Michigan Civil Rights Commission's Latin American department, lists other complaints about the system.

● The Bonus. Farmers promise a certain wage and a bonus if the worker stays for a specified period of time. Miss Katz says this means a worker is committed to stay until the field —less productive by the day—is picked clean. In effect, it holds a worker on one farm when he may be able to earn more money at another.

Farm Bureau officials, however, said the bonus system provides an incentive system of awarding extra money in order to keep a stable work force.

● Piecework rates. State law says the worker should get $1.25 an hour and federal law requires $1.30 an hour and $1.65 an hour in the government-subsidized sugar beet farming.

Many workers, however, a paid by the job rather than the hour. The state has a recommended schedule of payments for piece work relating specific picking jobs to the hourly rate. Miss Katz points out this is only a recommendation and is not enforceable.

State piecework rates are not in accord with the hourly rate, Miss Katz said, contending the rate does not account for peaks and slumps in the season.

Daniel Sturt of the Michigan State University Rural Manpower Center disagrees. He says the hourly rates and piecework rates do correspond.

● Workmen's Compensation. Few migrants qualify for full workmen's compensation. The law provides it is mandatory for employes who have three or more regularly employed farm workers, who are paid on a time basis and have worked 13 or more consecutive weeks for the same employer.

BENEFITS MANDATORY

However, medical and hospital coverage benefits are mandatory for all farm employers of one or more workers who are employed for at least 35 hours per week for five or more consecutive weeks for the same employer. Sturt notes that an estimated $1.5 million is paid in premiums per year by Michigan farmers for workmen's compensation. In addition to some migrant workers, this also applies to the farmer, his family and year-round workers, he noted.

* * *

The Rev. William Benallack, executive director of the Michigan Migrant Ministry, said, "Migrancy is a debilitative system. It does not lend itself to the family, its education, nor its stability, nor the stability of the community."

There's no retirement plan for migrant workers.

"A farm worker is crippled, dead or disabled by the time he's 49," says Julian Herrera, head of the Michigan United Farm Workers Union. "It's too young. The job is too hard on the back."

"You have to stoop if you want to make money," says State Sen. Roger Craig, D-Dearborn, who spent three days recently picking cucumbers in southwest Lower Michigan. "If you squat, you can't get as much done."

WORKER COMPLAINTS

Some workers voice complaints themselves.

Jaime Gonzalez, 14, of Corpus Christi, Tex., said he developed a rash at a camp from sleeping on a straw mattress. He said he thought the grower promised to pay his medical charges which were $10, but it was deducted from his check.

* * *

Other farmers noted, however that they are not required to provide hospital expense for illnesses that are not developed as a result of the work.

The Michigan Civil Rights Commission this month received a complaint from Carlos Reyna, Jose Hernandez Jr., and Rafael Torres in which they claimed they were not paid for hoeing sugar beets from June 1 to July 20 at the Gerald Resmer farm at Pinconning.

ASKED FOR PAY

They said they left to work at a farm at Hamilton and called Resmer asking for their wages, but that he told them the fields had not been measured. They were to be paid, they said, $16 an acre.

Contacted about the complaint, Resmer said the money was waiting for them if they wanted to come and get it. He said they had promised to help pick his pickles, but had not returned.

* * *

"You tell them to come over here and I've got pickles to pick," Resmer said. He said he would not send them the money.

NEXT—Mechanization on the Farm.

Auto Makers Admit Truck Year Changes

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. said today it is industry practice to change the model year identifications of trucks carried over by dealers at the end of a model year and sell them as current models.

General Motors Corp. conceded it does so with heavy-duty trucks.

Ford Motor Co. said it "is attempting to obtain clarification the problem discussed" by the Federal Trade Commission, which reported Tuesday that at least seven manufacturers change model year identifications on unsold vehicles.

In some instances, after the date change, the FTC said vehicles are sold as new, even though they were manufactured two or more years previously.

FTC COULD ACT

The FTC said its investigation was initiated because of complaints from consumers concerning five domestic manufacturers and two subsidiaries of foreign manufacturers. It declined to name the companies.

★ ★ ★

The FTC said it had taken no action against the manufacturers, but that it would do so if the practices are continued.

It said similar practices were followed by some trailer manufacturers and makers of other vehicles.

"Dodge Truck," Chrysler said in a statement, "follows an industry practice of redesignation of truck production. Trucks do not change annually as cars do. However, all Dodge vehicles now being manufactured carry permanently affixed identification of the date on which they were manufactured.

'ANNUAL' MODELS

"The last time that Dodge Truck had 'annual' truck models and paid dealers a rebate on all unsold units in dealer stock at announcement time was 1960.

★ ★ ★

"Dodge redesignated approximately 1,500 trucks from 1969 to 1970 models and notified states of the serial numbers of trucks which had been so redesignated. Such letters are sent to the registrar of motor vehicles."

General Motors issued a statement in which it dealt only with heavy duty trucks and declined elaboration.

"Unlike light-duty trucks and passenger cars, limited volume, special purpose, heavy-duty gasoline and diesel-powered trucks, as a general rule, do not normally undergo major annual appearance and specification changes," GM said. "It is common industry practice for the model year designation of such sale.

★ ★ ★

"However, in General Motors, whenever such a truck remains in a dealer's stock unsold 12 months following the date of shipment from the factory a rebate allowance of not less than five per cent is paid to the dealer."

REBATE ALLOWANCE

The FTC said what it termed a deceptive practice involved the recall and reissue of the so-call "manufacturer's statement of origin" sent to dealers.

"There is little doubt," the FTC said, "that an unused motor vehicle, no matter how carefully it may be maintained, will be subject to deterioration during a long period of storage following its manufacture."

'Won't Seek Polley Ouster Behind Back'

LANSING (UPI) — James F. O'Neil, State Board of Education treasurer, says he will not call for a board vote on removing Dr. Ira Polley as superintendent of public instruction unless Polley is present.

"I'm not going to do anything behind his back," "O'Neil said following a board meeting last night at which the vacationing Polley was absent.

★ ★ ★

"He knows how I feel about him. I've questioned his competency before and I'm doing it now. But I'll wait until he's at a board meeting before I bring the issue up again," the Livonia Republican said.

O'Neil said "reliable sources" told him Polley was in Lansing this week.

HE COULD HAVE...

"He could have attended the meeting if he wanted to," O'Neil said.

Earlier yesterday, O'Neil told reporters at a news conference he was asking board members to support him in a move to oust Polley in favor of Dr. John Porter, the associate superintendent of the bureau of high education. He said the superintendent's post was "too much" for Polley and he would be better suited in Porter's job.

★ ★ ★

However, Porter said later he had no desire to take the $30,000-a-year superintendent's job.

"I was totally unaware that Mr. O'Neil would say this. As a board member he can make recommendations, but I'm not interested in switching jobs," Porter said.

LOST PERSONNEL

O'Neil, an ardent critic of Polley and his stance on sex education, said the superintendent was responsible for losing key personnel over the years and had misused authority.

O'Neil said when the time comes to take a vote on Polley's job, partisan politics may play a major part in the issue.

★ ★ ★

"I know of at least six been putting the pressure on board members to keep Polley on," O'Neil said. "But if politics are kept out, I'm sure the board members will vote their consciences on this.

"I know of at least six members at one time or another have questioned the competency of Dr. Polley."

NY Commuter Is Cleared in Train Dispute

NEW YORK (AP) — A Long Island Rail Road commuter who refused to show his ticket to a trainman because he couldn't find a seat and the train was dirty has been cleared of criminal charges by a city judge.

Judge William Suglia, who sometimes rides the troubled railroad himself, dismissed charges Tuesday against Seymour Cummins of Manhattan.

★ ★ ★

"Let's face it," Suglia said. "This railroad has problems. I think we can understand how a man, though he had no intention of causing public inconvenience, could do this."

Cummins was en route to his summer home in Long Beach Aug. 12 when he refused to show a conductor his monthly commutation ticket. He said the train was too crowded, hot and dirty. He was put off the train at an unscheduled stop, taken to a police station and charged with disorderly conduct.

★ ★ ★

The judge also maintains a summer home on Long Island.

"I drive there," he said.

Woman Is Robbed on Way to Laundry

Pontiac police today are searching for two youths accused of robbing a city woman last night of her purse and $150 cash at gunpoint.

The woman, Myrtle Rodgers 35, of 15 Mariva, told police she was walking form her home to a local laundromat about 9 p.m. when someone behind her said "I've got a gun — don't turn around."

★ ★ ★

One of two youths then grabbed her purse, and they both fled on foot, she said.

Crash Is Fatal in Stolen Car

An unidentified man driving a stolen auto died today when the car flipped over on Dixie Highway near Tripp Road in Holly Township.

The driver has not yet been identified. Oakland County sheriff's deputies said he was driving a car reported stolen from a Flint attorney, however.

★ ★ ★

The driver, the only person in the car, lost control of the car around 8:30 a.m., swerved off the roadway and rolled over.

'More Bad Air or New Engine'

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) —Presidential science adviser, Lee DuBridge said Tuesday it may take some kind of new, unconventional "automotive propulsion device" for cars to solve the pollution problem before the turn of the century.

And, he said, the government plans to spend some money to help the auto industry to speed development.

DuBridge said there may be a lively race between companies trying to turn out an unconventional car engines and those seeking to improve the gasoline engine to the point pollution will be no great menace,

"We do not know," DuBridge told reporters, "how that race will turn out but we want to make sure it is a lively race and that the federal government stimulates private industry to encourage development along all these lines.

MORE SPENDING

The Department of Transportation, Du Bridge said, is spending $2.2 million in this field now, but hopes to double or triple that in the next year or two.

He said many private companies are putting up funds, and with a little stimulation and federal insistence, he said, it is thought there will be rapid stimulation for turning out prototypes to do the job.

★ ★ ★

"We think," he said, "these will be developed by private industry because the opportunities of sales of automobiles is so enormous that there is great attractiveness in getting the best possible engine so they can keep ahead of the requirements for air pollution."

DuBridge, cabinet members and other members of the Environmental Quality Council outlined the prospects to President Nixon at the Western White House in a three hour session.

PRIME THRUST

While environmental quality control goes beyond the smog problem DuBridge said, the prime thrust of the meeting focused on air pollution particularly caused by motor vehicles.

After the meeting members went up the coast to Newport Beach to look at some cars and engines the auto industry put on display—including some equipped with turbine and steam engines.

★ ★ ★

Then some took a helicopter flight over the Los Angeles metropolitan area for a close-up look at smog.

DuBridge said California has adopted standards and regulations which are already helping cut into pollution by gasoline engines.

He said the peak pollution in the Los Angeles area was reached in 1966 and is declining even though the number of automobiles are increasing.

And the new requirements for anti-pollution devices, he said, should bring the level to a low point about 1980.

★ ★ ★

That would be to about the level in 1940.

But then, he said, there is a possibility that the rate will start upward again unless something is done to develop new type engines and unconventional cars.

Social Security for Miniskirts

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Miniskirts now are proper attire at the Social Security Administration's headquarters complex in nearby Woodlawn.

★ ★ ★

The agency's employe newspaper, the SSA Central Office Bulletin, says miniskirts, pant dresses and culottes meet the accepted standards of a business office, but shorts and slacks are unacceptable.

"These are an inappropriate in a business or government office as blue jeans, tuxedos or evening gowns," the article said,

The marchers walked around the huge skyscraper in pairs, clapping their hands and chanting: "Close it down! Close it down!" At one point, they changed their chant to :"Blow it up! Blow it up! Blow it up!"

★ ★ ★

They were referring to the 65-story building U.S. Steel is constructing only two blocks from its present headquarters.

Byrd Brown, a march leader, said the marchers want to meet with U.S. Steel officials and ask them to halt construction of the skyscraper.

NO COMMENT

There was no immediate comment from U.S. Steel on Brown's demand.

★ ★ ★

The demonstrators, pressing for the third straight day their demands for more Negro membership in craft unions, were led across the Manchester Bridge by Safety Director James A. Cortese.

★ ★ ★

"I'm hoping my presence will help cool the situation," he said.

March leaders said they asked Cortese to march with them and said they might stop at any point along the way.

THREAT BY LEADER

"If we are sitting down and the police hit anybody, every man jump up and beat the hell out of them," Brown told the demonstrators as they formed into the long column.

"We all came here yesterday for a peaceful demonstration. but we didn't get 100 yards up from the bridge when we got our heads whipped," he said.

★ ★ ★

However, the march today was peaceful and orderly. Brown and other civil 7th grad take 84.50 anywhere you want... but it won't go as far as it does with our 4-in-1 suit/sportcoat/vest/slacks combination

What you're getting is practically a college wardrobe at one easy price. Like it's a suit: coat and matching trousers. Plus a matching vest. Then there's an extra pair of slacks, but in a contrasting shade so you can wear them with the suitcoat as a sportcoat/slacks ensemble. And reverse the vest for a change of pace. All this versatility is packed into one outfit (to say nothing of the other things you can wear the various components with). And they're great looking, too. The suit comes in three-button natural shoulder models and two-button up-tempo models; in cheviots, herringbones, diagonals, plaids and windowpane checks; and the extra slacks are in handsome solid shades. And we have 4-in-1's in practically every proportioned size. At 84.50, how can you miss?

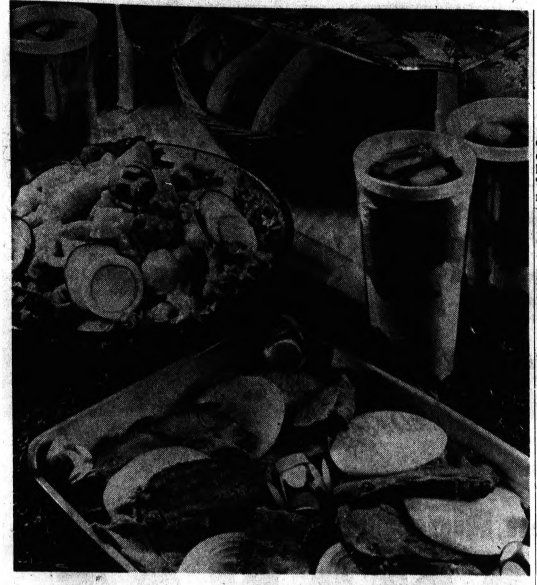
OUR PONTIAC MALL STORE IS OPEN MONDAY THROUGH SATURDAY TO 9:00 P. M. — TELEGRAPH AND ELIZABETH LAKE ROADS



MUSTARD GLAZED — Combine ¼ cup prepared mustard; 1 tablespoon brown sugar; 2 tablespoons salad oil; 1 tablespoon catchup and ½ teaspoon onion salt. Place a 2-3-pound sirloin tip roast in pan; spread generously with mustard sauce. Roast at 325 degrees for 20-25 minutes per pound, until desired doneness. Slice: wrap in aluminum foil to carry to picnic. Take sliced and buttered crusty rolls and let each person make his own sandwich. Makes 8-10 servings.

'Formula' Foods Pall on the Palate

By JANET ODELL
Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

After a three-week vacation, during which time we ate most of our meals in restaurants, I have some complaints to make. They are addressed to restaurant owners in the eight states we visited.

Like too many other processes in today's complicated and crowded society, food service has become automated, in part. Chains of restaurants have sprung up, each one a carbon copy of the other. Their very existence depends upon large scale buying and simplified preparation. It is much easier to follow a formula than it is to be creative.

* * *

Unfortunately, this is the type of restaurant one finds most easily when traveling. Agreed that it is good to know you can depend upon such places for safe, palatable meals, it gets monotonous. It is difficult to find the other type of restaurant, granted it does exist in every town.

* * *

But why can't restaurant managers use fresh produce in the growing season? Why don't they take advantage of locally-grown fruits and vegetables and feature them on the menu?

Why, when watermelons were selling three for a dollar in Virginia, did the restaurant next door charge 40 cents a slice?

In one delightful country setting near Hendersonville, N.C. we had a meal that did use local produce. The climax was warm peach cobbler. We'll remember that place.

The only fresh vegetables we were offered — outside of salads — were green beans. We'll ignore the fact that southern cooks and we don't agree on how long to cook beans.

But even in the salads, the tomatoes were obviously from the wholesale house, were often only half ripe and certainly weren't the good tasting food they could and should be at this time of year.

The better half complains most vigorously about the potatoes. There are usually three choices: french fries, baked or mashed.

Some diets preclude the first. Today's baked potato, encased in foil and often held long after the baking time is completed, is soggy and flat-tasting. And, let's face it: package mashed potatoes do not taste like fresh ones.

I know we're fighting a losing battle on this last issue. The instant mashed potato is here to stay; it is easier and cheaper to use in quantity cooking.

DO OWNERS CARE?

But one wonders if the restaurant owners really care what their patrons think about the food?

Or is the average American taste so poorly developed that the individual does not know good food from poor?

Have we fed our young people so many foods like hamburgers and french fries or pizza or fried chicken in a basket, that they do not like anything else? That's a depressing thought. There is nothing wrong with any of the goods mentioned, but they are such a small sample of all the good food in the country.

Why do they bread everything? Why are so many meats and fish french fried? If people ever stopped to analyse how much breading and how much meat or fish they are getting, they'd realize that the bread coating is pretty expensive. This, incidentally, goes also for the food you buy in the frozen food sections of the grocery store.

* * *

We did find restaurants on the North Carolina coast that offered a variety of seafood dishes in addition to the ubiquitous french fried shrimp, crab cakes, scallops and stuffed flounder. We had crabmeat sauteed in butter, fine broiled fish fillets and freshly-made oyster stew and clam chowder. We occasionally got a piece of fresh fruit. We found fresh peach shortcake and sundaes in Delaware.

* * *

In spite of the reputation southern cooks have for always serving hot breads, we found few places that did; once, the better half had biscuits and once or twice we saw cornbread.

But even in the place where they had "fresh coffeecake" on the breakfast menu, it was the frozen variety that had not even been sufficiently warmed through.

Coffee, for the most part, we found good. Only once did we detect excessive amounts of chickory in it. And the southerners make excellent iced tea, truly a drink one needs in the heat we encountered.

* * *

But, all in all, our vacation was not a gastronomic success. Fortunately, we stopped with friends and relatives during part of the trip; then we ate royally.

We may be achieving some kind of standard for American cooking and eating with our great chains of restaurants, but we certainly aren't any competition to cordon bleu places.

To Stuff Olives

For a quick and appealing appetizer, stuff plump, pitted ripe olives with bits of Muenster cheese, sweet pickle sticks, creamy liver pate, pimiento cream cheese, tiny shrimp or crunchy salted nuts — each makes a delicious bite.

Olive Topping

For a delightful cauliflower dish, break cauliflower into flowerlets. Cook until tender. Spoon into a shallow baking dish and top with a cup of chopped or sliced ripe olives. Sprinkle buttered bread crumbs over the top and bake for a short time.

Many Household Uses for Salt

Modern homemakers value salt, but for a variety of reasons never suspected by our primitive ancestors.

For example: a wet cloth dipped in a half and half solution of salt and water and rubbed briskly across carpet pile will help revive colors. A bit of salt in the vase will help flowers stay fresh longer.

Then after the flowers have faded, a salt and vinegar solution is very effective in cleaning the vase.

* * *

Salt can sweeten thermos bottles . . . and 4 tablespoons of salt perked with water in the coffee pot will banish bitter coffee flavors and oil residues.

Common mold growth on the surface of cheese can be retarded by wrapping the cheese in a cloth dampened with salt water and then storing in the refrigerator . . . and greasy frying pans respond very well to a sprinkling of salt and then a quick wipe with paper towels.

STORE COUPON

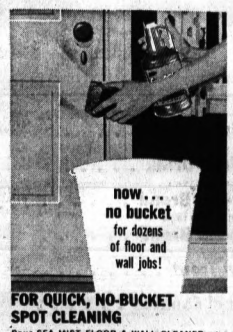
FOR BIG SURFACE, HEAVY DUTY BUCKET CLEANING

SEA MIST FLOOR & WALL CLEANER cuts grease, dirt and grime instantly from all linoleum, vinyl and tile surfaces. Picks up dirt between waxing; or easily removes built-up wax. No scrubbing! No rinsing! Cleans so thoroughly it works like a clean-up crew.



FOR QUICK, NO-BUCKET SPOT CLEANING

Pour SEA MIST FLOOR & WALL CLEANER on a sponge or cloth — and wipe off the dirt. It's the fastest, most convenient way to remove fingerprints, smudges, crayon marks, scuffmarks and tracked-in dirt . . . plus dozens of other no-bucket uses.

Works faster, more thoroughly than powder floor and wall cleaners because it contains full power SEA MIST AMMONIA. And it's kinder, much kinder to your hands.

HERE'S HOW TO SAVE 50¢ on SEA MIST FLOOR & WALL CLEANER

Clip the store coupon and take it to your grocer. It's worth 15¢ toward the purchase of a bottle of SEA MIST FLOOR & WALL CLEANER. Then send us the label from the bottle with the information requested below and we'll mail you a certificate worth 35¢ toward your next purchase. Altogether you save 50¢. Limit one to a family. Fill Pastry With Jellied Egg Salad for Luncheon

OLIVE AND EGG SALAD PIE — Colorful red and green Spanish olives make an attractive garnish and provide a tangy flavor in this Olive and Egg Salad Pie.

Egg Salad is a favorite of all age groups and makes its appearance with equal aplomb in lunchbox sandwiches and cocktail canapes. You'll find egg salad particularly attractive when it's molded in a crisp pastry shell and topped with a pretty garnish such as a crown of pimiento-stuffed olive slices.

OLIVE AND EGG SALAD PIE

Unflavored gelatin is added to the filling so it will cut easily.

1 envelope plus 1½ teaspoons unflavored gelatin
¾ cup water
1 chicken bouillon cube
6 hard-cooked eggs, coarsely chopped
1 cup chopped celery
¾ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
8-inch baked pastry shell
Sliced pimiento-stuffed olives

Combine mayonnaise, sour cream, lemon juice, salt, dill and tabasco in bowl. Soften gelatin in water in a small saucepan; add bouillon cube and stir over low heat until gelatin and cube are dissolved. Stir gelatin mixture slowly into mayonnaise mixture; stir in chopped eggs, celery, ¾ cup sliced olives and the onion. Chill until mixture is thick enough to mound slightly. Spoon into pastry shell. Chill until firm. Garnish edge of pie with overlapping olive slices. Makes 8-10 servings.

Perennial Favorite

Ice Cream at 'Frolic'

Beads, beards, and mini skirts are the teen-age world. Then there's hamburgers for breakfast, catsup over everything, and the perennial favorite — ICE CREAM. What more could any teen want?

Suppose you're planning a teen-age "frolic" at your house and are wondering what to serve for refreshments. Take a tip from the guests themselves and serve the treat that they love and is also one of our most nutritious foods — ice cream. There are several ways to plan this affair and with the help of a freezer it may be accomplished well ahead of the party deadline.

* * *

Served from a tray, refreshments may include a strawberry and chocolate sundae — serve in a paper cup for convenience and really save on the clean-up detail. A yummy treat is a frosted brownie a la mode drizzled with hot fudge sauce.

Ice cream with fresh frozen or canned fruit is a tasty idea such as pineapple chunks and marashino cherries on a skewer and stuck in the ice cream kabob style.

If a beverage is in order, try an ice cream drink that will be a top scorer. Combine vanilla ice cream with orange juice and garnish with pineapple, coconut and a whole strawberry — truly a tropical delight.

RED RASPBERRY FLOAT

1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen red raspberries, thawed
2 cups cold milk
1 pint vanilla ice cream

Mash undrained raspberries with fork or break up in blender if desired. Combine raspberries, milk and ½ pint of ice cream cut into small pieces in quart jar with tight fitting cover; shake.

Pour into chilled glasses and top with remaining ice cream. Makes 4 servings.

CHOCOLATE CRUNCH

2½ squares unsweetened chocolate
½ cup milk
¾ cup light brown sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup crunchy peanut butter
1 quart vanilla ice cream

Shave chocolate into small pieces; heat with milk until chocolate is melted, stirring constantly. Beat until smooth.

Add sugar; cook over low heat until mixture bubbles. Add vanilla; cool. Stir in peanut butter. Serve over ice cream. Makes 6 servings.

COOKIE SHORTCAKE

Top large, plain butter cookies with generous spoonsful of ice cream. Place another cookie on the top of each and add more ice cream to the top. Serve plain, topped with nuts, chocolate shavings, or with hot chocolate sauce.

Order Booklet on Chip Use

In the last year snack food sales have soared tremendously. As a matter of fact a quick glance in any supermarket or beverage carryout in the area devoted to snacks will prove this fact.

* * *

With this growth, crispy potato chips still remain the preferred snack item. In addition to out-of-hand eating, potato chips have become an important ingredient in recipes.

Instead of noodles or rice for example, potato chips are frequently better and easier, or instead of bread crumbs on Au Gratin entrees, crushed potato chips add unique crispness and flavor.

* * *

The Potato Chip Institute has compiled a free colorfully illustrated booklet giving over 65 recipes and ideas using "chips."

Some are recipes of the winners in the annual Potato Chip Institute Men's Cooking Contest. Dips for Chips, Party Snacks, Recipes for Young Homemakers, Cook-Out and picnic Ideas, Party Ideas for Teens and Kiddies, and some unusual cake and cookie recipes too. All recipes have been kitchen tested by the Institute.

They are available by sending name, address, city and zip code to: "Recipes Starring Potato Chips," Potato Chip Institute International 940 Hanna Building, Cleveland, Ohio 44115.

Canned Punch Is Base of Float

A Hawaiian Float combines refreshing canned pineapple punch with vanilla ice cream.

* * *

Serve it as a combination beverage and dessert to accompany great outdoor food.

* * *

Chill a 46 oz. can of Pineapple Hawaiian Punch. Fill tall glasses about two-thirds of the way with punch. Drop in a scoop of vanilla ice cream and top with a fresh strawberry.

Sardine Canape

When your next party rolls around, here's a canape that will win favor with everyone. Generously spread buttered toast fingers with finely chopped hard-cooked eggs mixed with mayonnaise. Arrange two whole Norway sardines, dovetail, on each and top with a sliver of pimento.

USDA Keeps Watch for Labels That Mislead Consumers

When a housewife sees a label on a federally inspected meat or poultry product, she can be sure that every aspect of that label has been carefully reviewed and approved by specialists in the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Last year over 100,000 labels were given an "OK" by experts in USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service.

But there are other labels which the housewife never sees. These are label candidates which have been rejected for failure to meet C&MS requirements. About 2,000 labels went back to the drawing boards last year.

By understanding the reasons for label rejections, housewives can better appreciate the value of approved labels which appear on the meat and poultry products they buy.

A significant number of labels are rejected for the improper use or omission of certain words. For example, one proposed label used the phrase "guaranteed tender."

Regulations provide that when the word "guarantee" is used, the label must also state consumers can get their money back if the contents fail to measure up to the statement.

HOW BIG?

Other labels are refused approval for using unqualified expressions such as "makes 6 to 8 servings." These words must be explained by stating the size of each serving, such as 4 ounces.

Labels which claim a product is made in a certain "style" may be rejected. The term "kosher style," for example, is prohibited unless the product has been actually made under rabbinical supervision.

A proposed label for "country style" sausage was rejected because the product contained nonfat dry milk and artificial coloring, two additives which a genuine "country style" sausage would not include.

CONFUSING

Other regulations cover certain physical aspects of the label or wrapping. Consumers have been accustomed to buying bacon in half-pound, one-pound, or two-pound packages. This factor led to rejection of a proposed bacon package which would hold only 10 ounces since this irregular weight was not made sufficiently clear to the consumer.

Where a fresh meat package includes see-through "window," that opening must not include any scatter print or markings which could give the meat a leaner appearance. A proposed bacon package, for example, was rejected for the similar reason that the photograph used on the label had been tinted red to give the bacon a lean look.

The regulations also require a white border around any window to aid consumers in getting a true image of the contents.

* * *

Obviously, many of these label requirements cover some very fine, and perhaps minor points. But the total effect is of direct benefit to consumers who can safely rely on a label of a federally inspected product as telling the whole truth.

MANDARIN COOLERS—(from the top, clockwise) Mandarin Tea Punch, Mandarin Ice Cubes, Mandarin Ice Cream Soda, Mandarin Grape Delight, Mandarin Champagne Cocktail and a Mandarin Wine Cooler. Plump little Japanese Mandarin orange sections add color and delicate flavor to a wide variety of cooling drinks.

Canned Oranges Are Base for Drinks

Warm summer weather brings on almost unquenchable thirst and some of the most interesting summer coolers around are those made with fruit. One of the most delicious varieties of fruit is Japanese Mandarin Oranges — a little delicacy that is ready to use right out of the can.

These seedless, rindless little sections come without membrane in their own sweet syrup. They'll stir flavor into a variety of summer drinks.

Now that we're in the grips of the really warm weather, you'll want to keep your refrigerator stocked with thirst quenchers — some for the kids, some for the adults. Here are some delicious suggestions for unusual drinks that will please everyone.

Mandarin Tea Punch is a delightful way to take care of a large group. The following recipe will insure you of many compliments.

MANDARIN TEA PUNCH

2 11-ounce cans Mandarin oranges
2 large bunches fresh mint
2 quarts fresh, cold water
½ cup loose tea or 15 tea bags
½ cup sugar
1 46-ounce can pineapple juice
Tray of mandarin ice cubes

Drain Mandarin oranges. Reserve juice and chill orange segments. Cut mint into small pieces and place in large saucepan. Mash with wooden spoon.

Add cold water and bring to a boil. Remove from heat and immediately add tea. Brew, uncovered, four minutes. Add sugar. Stir until sugar is dissolved.

Stir and strain into a large punch bowl. Add juice from Mandarin oranges and pineapple juice. Cool to room temperature.

When ready to serve, add Mandarin orange ice cubes, toss in Mandarin orange segments, garnish with sprigs of fresh mint.

MANDARIN CUBES

Mandarin Ice Cubes add flavor and color to any fruit drink. Simply add segments, from one can of Mandarin oranges to ice cube tray before the ice is completely formed, then freeze firm. Float them in lemonade or raspberry soda.

Mandarin Ice Cream Soda is a really delectable treat for the young and the young-in-heart. Whip up a foamy ice cream soda with ginger ale, vanilla ice cream and top with luscious Mandarin orange segments.

Mandarin Grape Delight is what it sounds like — a delightful blending of Mandarin orange syrup and segments to grape juice. Pass a plate of chilled oranges, so more may be added to the drink.

Mandarin Champagne Cocktail become a little offbeat by the addition of orange sections instead of the usual dash of bitters.

Lamb Shoulder Marinated First, Cooked on Coals

The man of the house can cook the roast outdoors.

OUTDOOR LAMB ROAST

Shoulder of young lamb
Juice of 1 lemon (about 2½ tablespoons)
2 teaspoons of salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons dried rosemary
1 medium or large clove garlic, crushed.

Have meatman bone a whole lamb shoulder (about 7 pounds) but leave shank attached with bone in, remove fell and surface fat, roll and tie. (Roast will look square.)

In a shallow container, stir together the remaining ingredients; add lamb, bottom side down. With a paring knife make about 8 small, fairly deep slashes in top surface of meat. Spoon marinade over top, seeing that some of it sinks into slashes. Cover with a tent of foil and let stand at room temperature for 3 hours.

Insert roast on electrically turned spit; skewer shank to rest of meat; spit-roast over glowing coals, basting midway and at end of roasting time with remaining marinade. With coals just low enough to avoid touching meat as it revolves, the roast will need 2½ to 3 hours cooking time.

Opening lead—♣ A

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

The Blackwood Convention is probably the most popular of all conventions.

West studied his opening lead for awhile and finally played his ace of clubs. East produced the jack and won the club continuation with his king. South was down one before he could get started. He had tricks to burn from then on but there was no profit in that.

North was very annoyed, "I had potentially two quick club losers. Likewise, South felt that North should not have had two quick losers in that suit.

Of course, if West had led anything but a club, South would have made his slam and there would have been no argument.

★ ★ ★

We side with South in this matter. North's jump to four spades was a tremendous overbid.. He had four spades and a sound opening bid, but he could have showed all that with a simple two-spade raise. Or, if he felt like overbidding a trifle he could have raised to three.

★ ★ ★

In these situations where your partner has given very little information about his hand, the higher you raise him the more you should hold. Thus, a jump to three spades would be highly invitational but not absolutely forcing and the jump to game.

South did not hold an ideal hand for Blackwood. When North showed only two aces he had enough to go on.

The Card Sense

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
			1♠
Pass	2♣	Pass	2♦
Pass	4♣	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠AK954 ♥Q65 ♦AK104 ♣2

What do you do now?

A—Bid five spades. You are very much interested in getting to a slam but you are afraid of two quick losers in hearts. This bid warns your partner of your fears.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You do bid five spades and your partner bids six hearts. What do you do now?

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNE YOMARR
For Thursday

Lunar position continues favorable for FISHING, PLANTING.

Developments occur tonight which appear to affect STEEL INDUSTRY.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Cycle moves up. Express innate desire to lead. Be independent in thought, action. Stress originality tonight. You may be asked to assume special duties.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your friends early today make fine promises. Tonight there could be some disappointment. Key is to be self-reliant. Basic methods are outmoded. Know this and revise them, think.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Obtain hint from Taurus message. There can be fun and games tonight. But concentrate on the new. Discard areas which have represented pressure. Sorrow be a bit selfish.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Tonight you may be chosen to represent family, group or club. Key is to act with dignity. But don't leave sense of humor at home. It can break ice and make you a success.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Money concerned with travel or publishing could be subject for discussion tonight. Key is to broaden horizons. There are no limitations — except those you set for yourself. Relax.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23): Emotions for finding the why of things. Don't accept the superficial. Dig deep for reasons. Be analytical. By so doing, you could realize a profit. Act accordingly. Watch yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): Keep up with latest developments: You may have competition from unexpected sources. Being forewarned is being forearmed. Specifically, competitor may have access to inside leak.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You do best dining, entertaining at home. Don't stray too far from familiar. Those who want you to take chances probably have nothing to lose themselves. Realize this, respond accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Good lunar aspect for coincides with romantic inclinations. You are affectionate. You give of yourself. But do realize that there is a tomorrow. Give logic equal time with emotions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 25-Jan. 19): Continue with striving toward practicality. You may be tempted to relegate authority. But key is to know what's happening — and where. Accent on property, real estate, basic security.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be alert to opportunities. You may have to hurry up a project. This is the time to finish rather than to begin. An important question is answered. Respond to information received.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cycle continues high. You have chance to add to possessions. Recent contact proves instrumental in providing gain. Accent on money and potential income increase.

Diver Awarded Treasure Found in Sunken Ship

HALIFAX (AP) — The Nova Scotia Supreme Court has handed down a decision giving Alex Storm possession of an estimated $700,000 in gold and silver coins he found off the Cape Breton coast in 1966.

The decision gives Storm the entire cache of 8,000 coins he and two other drivers located in the wreckage of the French vessel Le Chameau, which sank in 1725.

★ ★ ★

Storm and the two other divers reported finding the treasure in 70 feet of water off Louisbourg. The others were Harvey MacLeod and David MacEachern.

Storm said he would give his fellow divers part of the proceeds.

Trash Program to Fight Poverty

Space Plan: (Profitable) Vast Wasteland

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ever since the Apollo 11 moon landing, there has been a great deal of hallooing and calli - thumping over setting national priorities for the coming decade.

WEST

Variations on the theme abound, but in general the priority-setters are divided into three categories:

(1) Those who want to follow Vice President Agnew on to Mars, and hang the expense;

(2) Those who favor an all-out war on poverty, and hang the expense;

* * *

(3) Those who feel first consideration should be given to solving environmental problems, and hang the expense.

BRANCHING OUT

Branching out from them is a subspecies of optimists who insist America's resources are sufficient to pursue all three of these goals simultaneously with equal vigor — that is, to explore the heavens while creating a sort of heaven on earth. To my knowledge, however, no one has yet proposed combining the three goals. So I shall do so now.

* * *

I got the idea for this approach from recent congressional hearings on business "conglomerates" that have been formed in the past few years.

* * *

The beauty of a three-priority merger is that it avoids a bitter struggle for funds among the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) and the various agencies concerned with environmental pollution.

* * *

What we do instead is lump them all together in a new agency to be called the National Antipoverty, Space and Antipollution Administration (NAPSAPA).

FIT NICELY

At first glance, this might seem a rather incongruous arrangement. Upon closer examination, however, you will see that the pieces fit quite nicely.

One of the main environmental problems, for example, is the disposal of garbage and other waste materials that are presently befouling our air, water and landscape. That ties right in with the space program.

* * *

NAPSAPA's prime missions would be to try to find some place in space to dump the junk we are discarding on earth.

If trash removal, rather than the satisfaction of scientific curiosity, were the chief aim of our space flights, you can bet a lot of the grumbling about the expense would cease.

GREAT BENEFIT

Nor should we overlook the economic opportunities that would be created by the merger. The poor could benefit greatly from the joint space-antipollution program.

It would, for instance, put garbage collectors, who are now in the low-income bracket, on the same pay level with space technicians.

* * *

With a branch of the Manned Space Center serving every ghetto, poverty would disappear overnight.

State's Top Weeder Spurred by Sandburs

DETROIT (AP) — Whitney C. Haynes found sandburs in his garden this week, and was thrilled.

When you're the top weed man in Michigan, you have to hustle to stay on top, and the 70-year-old retired teacher has a real jump on the competition with his opportune discovery. Hames won $55 and a blue ribbon at the Michigan State Fair this year for his "educational exhibit of Michigan" weeds, properly labeled."

★ ★ ★

It was the second straight year that Hames has claimed the weed title at the fair. He's won several other times since the category was introduced in 1953.

A total of $160 is split among the first six finishers in the competition.

TO BE PULLED

The category was established as a method of identifying for the fairgoers the various weeds, presumably so they could be pulled.

He visits often with his closet competitor but doesn't give up too many professional secrets. She is Alice Niveton, his married daughter. "She's on her own," he said, "... with a little advice here and there. She didn't think she was going to do anything ... fourth or fifth place. I told her she'd probably get second after I looked 'em over," Hames said.

★ ★ ★

He said he never doubted he would win.

Speaking of the competition, he said: "I used to have a lot of it, but in late years — I don't know — it's kind of fallen off somewhat."

MOON MOTIF

Some of the weeds Hames displayed in a moon motif — a concession to current events — were bull thistle, rough pigweed, horseweed, catnip, bittersweet nightshade, dandelions, butter-and-eggs, old witch grass, live forever and a real favorite among weed fanciers, crabgrass.

Marijuana, a common weed in the Midwest, was not among the 85 weeds in the exhibit.

★ ★ ★

James said one of the toughest weeds to locate — and one which was missing from his display this year — is rabbit foot clover.

"That rabbit foot clover is quiete a weed," Hames said. "Looks just like a little rabbit's foot."

Junior Editors Quiz on BUTTERFLIES

QUESTION: What has butter got to do with a butterfly?

ANSWER: Yellow is a kind of butterfly color, especially when contrasted with black, probably helping butterflies to see and recognize each other. Many common butterflies, like the tiger swallowtail (middle left) and the clouded sulpher (upper left), flash around like glitters of yellow sunlight in our summer gardens.

Jeannie, trying to imitate a butterfly with her yellow hair and dress, would make a pretty note if we could only use color in our pictures.

Many people seem to think the word butterfly comes from flutterby, an imaginary word which certainly suggests the butterfly feeling. But authorities say the name is because butter is yellow and so many butterflies are yellow or orange.

Butterflies do have other colors. Many, like the checkerspots, mourning cloaks, nymphs and satyrs, are mostly brownish — yet all of these are enlivened with yellow or orange in some places.

A double page in a popular encyclopedia shows 31 butterflies; of these, 26 are marked with yellow or orange in some way. So, if you are a butterfly, the color of butter is the fashionable one.

(You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

Lifted by Selective Buying

Market Reverses Down-Drift

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market reversed an early down-drift and worked its way into higher ground in quiet trading early this afternoon, with brokers reporting selective buying giving it some lift.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 3.37 at 826.89. The DJI had been off 1.19 at 10:30 a.m.

Advances led declines by better than 100 issues.

"The market went down pretty sharply earlier this week," an analyst said, "and this apparently drew in some buying interest. Some of the issues which slid apparently fell to price levels that some traders found attractive."

They said some early encouragement also may have been drawn from the market's ability to stay above the 820 level on the Dow industrial.

The quiet trading pace, they said, indicated that many investors were remaining out of the action while waiting for the market to take a solid direction.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was up .7 at 292.0, with industrials up 1.9, rails unchanged, and utilities unchanged.

Among the so-called glamor stocks, some of which rose on selective buying late Tuesday, Polaroid was up 2⅛ at 126; Control Data, up 2½ at 149½; and IBM, up 4¼ at 344¼.

Oil Official Hits Hart Plan

'Lifting Import Curbs Perilous to Industry'

DETROIT (AP)—A petroleum industry official said today that lifting of controls on oil imports would destroy the structure of America's petroleum industry.

Harold McClure Jr., president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, told newsmen that if the U.S. were to become largely dependent upon foreign petroleum then domestic exploration for oil and gas would fall off sharply in the face of a diminishing domestic oil market.

* * *

McClure challenged Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., who has called for an end to oil import controls, to debate the subject at a time and place of his choosing.

He said Hart's proposal was based on predetermined attitudes and explained through specious logic. Hart is chairman of a Senate subcommittee on antitrust and monopoly.

"In focusing entirely on oil and ignoring gas," McClure said, "Sen. Hart displays a complete failure to understand the nature of petroleum exploration and production.

OIL, GAS LINKED

"The finding of oil and gas through drilling and exploration are interrelated and inseparable processes."

While acknowledging that unlimited oil imports could result in a drop in the price to the American consumer, McClure contended that there would be a significant rise in the cost of gas that would "tend to offset any transitory saving to consumers in the cost of oil."

McClure said gas already is in short supply. The gas shortage, he declared, is not imminent—it's here.

"Last year, U.S. consumption outstripped production for the first time in our nation's history," he said. "The Federal Power Commission is extremely concerned and warns that reserves are scarce compared to projected demand.

Alaska Gets Ready for Rush to the Bank

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — Like an individual who comes into a pile of money, the State of Alaska is going to rush directly to the bank Sept. 10 when it accepts bids and down payments on about $1 billion worth of oil leases.

CUNNIFF

In fact, that Alaskan oil money is going to be flown to the bank by jet, which sets some sort of a record for haste and adds another colorful episode to the dramatic North Slope oil find.

* * *

Beneath the North Slope, along the Arctic Ocean, lies one of the biggest caches of natural resources anywhere in the world, something on the order of 5 to 10 billion barrels of oil. Only 21 fields have ever produced a billion barrels, so the discovery ranks as huge.

And, because this black teasure will glitter all the more when transferred to the reports of the big oil companies, it is inspiring some heroic deeds and plans.

PUBLICIZED FEAT

Most publicized of these feats is the pioneering voyage through the Northwest Passage of the 115,000-ton tanker Manhattan, equipped with an ice-breaker prow and operated by men with blood as cool as the arctic waters.

The Manhattan will test the feasibility of transporting the oil from the arctic to the Atlantic, and thence to the populous, profitable markets nearby.

* * *

Alaska is putting up 431,104 acres for bids near the original discovery last summer by Humble Oil and the Atlantic Richfield Co. Terms call for 20 per cent down in cash or cashier checks, the rest payable in 45 days.

Nobody wants that kind of money lying around, and so state officials have signed an agreement with the Bank of America to handle the bookkeeping and investment of the money. The bank is taking its job very seriously.

Leland Prussia, vice president, notes that the contract calls for "expeditious" handling of the money. And to Prussia and other officials at the bank, that means a jet and nothing less.

Why? Because every day the checks and cash remain uninvested can mean the loss of about $45,000. That's the daily return that could be realized from investing $200 million.

* * *

In the normal check-clearing process several days can elapse before a check gets back to the bank of origin. But if you hire a jet, as Bank of America is doing, you can fly the check directly to the bank, cash it and deposit the money in an account that pays interest.

Since most of the checks are expected to be drawn on New York banks, because the big oil companies usually work through these institutions, the jet's first stop is scheduled for here. After that the plane might work its way back across the country, stopping at Chicago and other cities.

DISPROVING ADAGE

In their investments, Alaskans are disproving the adage of easy come, easy go. Although the money is coming easily—and will make the tax burden of Alaskans one of the easiest to bear—it is being held in a clutched fist.

State law limits investments to government securities and bank certificates of deposit, which are about as safe as any paper today. No gyrating stocks will be found in the portfolio.

The good news for Alaskans doesn't end with the knowledge that their money is safely tucked away in secure investments. Lots more cash could very well be on the way.

If oil is found, for example, the finder must pay a standard 12.5 per cent royalty. And then there's another 800,000 acres of leases that might be put up for bidding sometime in the future.

Being an Alaskan is fun these days.

Commercial Debut Set for 'Jumbo Jet'

NEW YORK (AP) — The first scheduled commercial flight by the giant Boeing—747 jet is planned for Dec. 15, Pan American World Airways announced Tuesday.

The jet, which carries 362 passengers, will fly from New York to London and Frankfurt, initiating daily "jumbo jet" service to those three cities.

Pan Am predicted that it will have 42 transatlantic flights a week on the new jetliners before the end of the year.

* * *

The airline has ordered 33 Boeing 747s, and 25 are expected to be in service by August, 1970.

Norman P. Blake, a senior vice president, said the "jumbo jet" service depended on delivery of the jets from Boeing, but added that he expected the company to meet its delivery deadlines.

* * *

The airline said it hoped to begin 747 service from New York to Paris on Dec. 18, from Los Angeles to Tokyo on Feb. 6 and from New York to San Juan, Puerto Rico, on Feb. 9.

Pan Am said 5,000 persons have already made reservations for the first flights on "jumbo jets," and clerks are now confirming the reservations.

The airplane can carry 64,000 pounds of cargo and baggage.

News in Brief

A spokesman for Jerry's Rent-It Shop, 8183 Commerce, Commerce Township, told Oakland County sheriff's deputies yesterday that someone entered the shop and stole a chain saw valued at $200 sometime in the morning while employes were working in the back of the shop.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q — I own shares of U.S. Industries which made an offer to buy back shares. What does this mean for the stock's price action? — F.N.

A — Wall Street has interpreted, perhaps mistakenly, a company purchase of its shares as being bullish, indicating advance knowledge of some favorable development. But a recent study by Allan Young, assistant professor of finance at Syracuse University, reveals evidence that the reverse may be true. Two hundred twenty-seven NYSE companies which had bought 1 per cent or more of their own shares in any year from 1960 through 1967 were compared with 227 control companies selected at random from the same industries. A significant difference in the two groups was noted in earnings performance just prior to repurchase, indicating that reacquisition was used as a diversionary tactic. Price earnings ratio in the two years following repurchase tended to be lower, primarily reflecting poor price performance, since per share earnings are increased by reacquisition. Companies with a lower leverage factor and a declining capital base tended to use share purchase to adjust this balance. A company may utilize market weakness to acquire shares for later acquisitions. These purchases frequently serve as an immediate prop to the price.

U.S. Industries' recent tender offer for 300,000 shares is an excellent example of this. The original offer at $24 was amended to $26.50 because of strong price action. Confirming Prof. Young's findings on leverage, USI's long-term debt is only 30 percent of total capitalization. Earnings have shown rapid growth, as have sales. But profit margins, after rising sharply in 1964 and 1966, widened only slightly last year and have remained unchanged this year.

This sluggishness might be misinterpreted as corroborating the study's conclusions on the relationship between earnings and repurchase. If price action should follow the presumed pattern, USI could lag behind the market, near term. Since the effects of repurchase are transitory depending on the company involved, I see no reason to disturb holdings.

Green Beret: Held for Political Reasons

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — A Special Forces officer says he and seven other Green Berets charged with killing a Vietnamese national are being held for "political reasons" by the Army.

Capt. Budge E. Williams wrote his father from an Army stockade in South Vietnam that their first hearing "looked like the Nuernberg War Trials all over again.

"I did not get a lawyer until three days after I asked for one. There were lawyers available on post.

"Charges are supposed to be read in 24 hours. We waited a week.

"It was two weeks before the hearings started.

"Definite coercion was used in getting a statement from a witness."

SOLITARY CONFINEMENT

Williams and his companions were lodged in solitary confinement for 30 days in the U.S. Army headquarters stockade at Long Binh near Saigon. GIs refer to the jail as Camp LBJ for Long Bin Jail.

Williams' cell at Camp LBJ filled an area approximately five by seven feet. He was in solitary from July 19 until Aug. 18 before being shifted to confinement in a barracks.

* * *

While in solitary, Williams wrote, there was only one opening in his sealed room, and the roof was made of tin. Because of the heat the temperatures inside the box soared.

* * *

To go to the bathroom, Williams said he had to bang on his cell door to raise a guard, and then he might or might not gain a response.

'SAVE MOTHER'

First on Williams' mind was keeping the situation from his mother.

"Don't tell mother," he instructed his father, "unless you have to."

But two weeks later, he wrote, "I have just been informed that there will be a news release. I guess you better tell mother before she gets it on TV."

He said the Army promised a telegram would be delivered in advance of the news release.

The telegram did not arrive in time.

A neighbor watching television called and told Mrs. Williams her son had been charged with murder.

After three weeks in solitary confinement, Williams became confused.

* * *

"I must say," he wrote his family, "this thing is beyond me now. We are being blamed for a big shake-up in South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu's cabinet, Gens. (William) Westmoreland and (Creighton) Abrams are in conflict, the press cannot understand why we are in jail (nor can I) the Special Forces is in revolt, Gen. Abrams made a secret trip to Nha Trang, and the stock market has fallen off three points."

* * *

Williams later wrote "I guess you are wondering why we were charged with murder. I have asked myself the same question a thousand times.

* * *

"I can't help but think we are being held here on political reasons only."

From the beginning, Williams feared he and the other seven Berets were in danger of being railroaded.

'LIKE NUERNBERG'

"We had the first hearing today," he wrote. "It looked like the Nuernberg War Trials all over again."

Building his fears were what he believed were violations of his rights.

* * *

"Ask Guy (Guy Scott Williams' civilian lawyer in Athens) to see if our rights are being violated for being imprisoned for political reasons. This is the only thing I can figure out. They want to quiet us down.

* * *

"At the rate they are going now, we can stay in here three or four months before our court martial," he said in another letter. "By then I won't even be able to remember my name."

Throughout his month in solitary confinement, Williams expressed optimism in his letters that he and the other Berets would not be brought to trial nor convicted if they were.

* * *

"I don't want you to worry," he wrote his mother. "I think everything will work out all right if it comes to a court martial. I just don't believe anyone with an open mind would convict us of this."

Blacks' Claim to Funds OK'd

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The National Student Association has climaxed its 22nd annual convention by approving a claim for $50,000 by a breakaway black student association.

Delegates to the convention, numbering about 500, acted late Tuesday night on the militants' demand after a riotous session the preceding night, during which black dissidents took control of the meeting.

* * *

The black militants demanded that NSA pay back to black students funds received from foundations since 1961 for civil rights work.

A spokesman, Gwen Patton, said the new National Association of Black Students estimated the amount due to be $50,000. Miss Patton is coordinator of the Third World Conference, an organization of black separatists.

ALREADY IN RED

There was no indication of where the funds would come from, barring volunteer student contributions. Robert Powell, outgoing president, said NSA, which operates on a $750,000 annual budget, currently is $120,000 in the hole.

The NSA picked as its new president a 22-year-old graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, Charles Palmer of East Los Angeles, Calif.

Palmer told delegates he was looking forward to helping students work together as a means of preventing new campus violence.

The convention voted approval of a black resolution calling on the organization to recognize that racism is the most serious problem affecting American students. The resolution called on the NSA to combat racism as its first order of business in the coming year.

* * *

In addition, delegates adopted resolutions sought by Mexican-Americans, who call themselves "Chicanos," for support of a California grapes boycott and a boycott of a Colorado beer company accused by the Chicanos of hiring discrimination—an allegation the beer firm has denied.

N.D. Governor Tabbylates Why Cats Get Honor

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — "We are indebted to our friend for such useful words as cat-astrophe, cat-alogue, cat-nap, cat-sup, cat-tle, cat-apult, cat-aract, cat-hedral and kitty-cornered," the governor said.

And with that in mind, North Dakota Gov. William Guy has declared Nov. 2-8 as International Cat Week in the state.

* * *

It is time cats are honored, said the governor, because "they still remain our best protection against the return of another mice age."

The proclamation was issued at the urging of the American Feline Society, Inc.

'Forgotten' GI Is Ordered to Go on Vietnam Tour

FORT ORD, Calif. (AP) — Pfc. Richard G. Beaty, the Army's "forgotten soldier," says he has been notified he will leave for Vietnam Aug. 30. He has about 10 months of active duty remaining.

The 22-year-old father of three was sent home on a 30-day leave in November 1967 and told to await further orders. He waited —for 15 months.

* * *

When his separatio date came in February 1969, he asked for his discharge.

But the Army ruled he must serve an additional year of active duty. On July 25, a U.S. District Court judge ruled against Beaty's appeal.

Freed Murderer Back in Prison — and Getting Paid

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Convicted murderer James I. Cox has returned to prison. And it was by his own choice.

Cox, 64, was freed earlier this year on $2,500 bond after a Baltimore judge granted him an appeal of his 1961 conviction for killing a woman.

* * *

Now Cox is back at the Maryland Penitentiary, supervising the maintenance of a building.

The difference is, however, he now goes home at night. And according to his lawyer, Cox gets paid $7,000 a year as a civilian worker doing the same job he performed as a convict.

Senators Set to Cut Defense Budget Anew

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators critical of the defense budget are planning new assaults on it despite a Pentagon campaign depicting further cuts as dangerous.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., said the Senate no longer will accept as infallible the judgment of the Pentagon or the White House on weapons spending.

* * *

When the Senate reconvenes one week from today, it will take up once again an amendment to cut $533 million for the giant C5A transport plane from the defense budget.

Action is due later on an amendment sponsored by Case and Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., to slice $377 million programmed for work on a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier.

FIGHTER CUT EYED

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., is considering an effort to knock out $239 million for the new F14A Navy fighter plane.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., is challenging a $90.2 million item for research and development work on a new manned bomber.

* * *

And there may be other attempts to trim the $20 billion bill authorizing weapons purchases, research and development spending, and other military outlays.

DANGEROUS COURSE

The overall military budget now stands at some $77 billion.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Tuesday those demanding further big cuts in that budget "are urging a very dangerous course."

Laird told the American Legion national convention in Atlanta that the defense budget has been trimmed $4.1 billion since the new administration took over.

"Even these cuts do not satisfy some critics who impatiently demand additional major reductions," he said.

Detroit Police Hunt Rookies in Inner City

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Police Department opened a new recruiting headquarters Tuesday dedicated to the proposition that "blue is beautiful" and aimed at gaining a higher proportion of black recruits.

Police Commissioner Johannes Spreen helped spread a "police blue" carpet to welcome the public and civic dignitaries to the housewarming ceremonies.

* * *

The new recruiting headquarters is located in the inner city, three blocks from 12th Street where Detroit's 1967 racial riot first erupted. Recruiting previously was handled at police headquarters downtown.

INTENSIFIED BID

Spreen said 28 police officers, including two lieutenants, would be assigned to the recruiting office, which occupies the entire first floor of the building. The second floor is being used for the police uniform store, which also had been located in the downtown headquarters.

Moving the recruiting headquarters to the inner city, Spreen said, marks the first step in an intensified recruiting effort aimed at increasing the number of applicants, with a higher proportion of recruits from the inner city.

* * *

"The separate recruiting headquarters has the psychological advantage of helping to spotlight the recruiting effort, which is a matter of major concern both to the department and the entire community," he told newsmen.

"The location geographically is as close as possible to the historical heart of the city."

Spreen said there were 200 job openings now on the 4,000 man force.

Army to Close Metro Battery

DETROIT (AP) — The Army has announced it soon will close its Nike - Hercules air defense missile battery at Detroit Metropolitan Airport as part of a Pentagon economy move.

* * *

Originally a site at Carleton in Monroe County was to have been closed, but an Army spokesman said it had been decided to continue this battery, along with others at Detroit's Belle Isle, Selfridgt Air Force Base, Commerre Lake and Utica.

Anti-Israeli Summit Set for All Islam

By the Associated Press

Hoping to capitalize on Moslem indignation over the fire at the Al Aksah Mosque in Jerusalem, the Arab nations have agreed to try to convene a summit meeting of all Islamic nations and also to hold a joint Arab defense council in November.

* * *

As the Arabs inched toward unity, in words at least, the U.N. Security Council voted another condemnation of Israel, and the Israelis reported finding 13 Arab missiles trained on the heart of Jerusalem.

* * *

Foreign ministers and other representatives of the Arab governments ended a two-day meeting in Cairo Tuesday with a communique which said Saudi Arabia and Morocco would be asked to line up all the Moslem countries for the Islamic summit. The purpose is to enlist such non-Arab nations as Iran, Pakistan, Malaysia and Indonesia in the fight against Israel.

The ministers said the Arab defense meeting, to be held in Cairo in the first week of November, would "put the necessary plans toward mobilizing Arab military potentials against Israeli aggression and consolidation of the Palestinian revolution."

FORCE CALLED FOR

They agreed that only "force" would liberate the Arab lands occupied by Israel and called for strengthening of the guerrillas in the occupied territories.

Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser messaged King Hussein of Jordan urging consolidated military action by Egypt, Jordan, Syria, Iraq and the Arab guerrillas.

* * *

Plans for an Arab summit conference to unify action against Israel were postponed until after the November defense meeting.

California Waterfowl Poisoned by 'Nature'

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Thousands of wild ducks, geese and other waterfowl are dying in central California of a poison produced by nature.

The killer is waterfowl botulism caused by a breed of bacteria which thrives on rotting vegetation.

* * *

State and federal conservationists, aided by volunteer groups, are setting off rockets, exploding dynamite and buzzing lakes with planes and helicopters in an effort to drive birds away from the poisoned waters of the Pacific migratory bird flyway.

Ray Arnett, California director of fish and game, has urged an off-season duck hunt to scare the birds from the area. But Secretary of the Interior Walter Hickel, calling such a move "too drastic," has thus far declined to give his permission.

NERVE DISEASE

Botulism is a disease of the nervous system caused by botulin, a bacteria which develops in spoiled foods eaten by animals, birds, fish and man.

Type C or waterfowl botulism is spawned by rotting vegetation lying at the bottom of warm waters during years when excess runoff from mountain streams floods fields and lakes normally dry in summertime.

* * *

A state fish and game biologist said "Type C botulism is one of the most potent poisons known to scientists—200 times more deadly than the venom of a cobra. Thank God it does not affect man."

So far this year more than 10,000 ducks, geese and other waterfowl have died. In other years, the situation has been worse. More than 67,000 birds perished in 1957, and in 1961 the total was placed at 250,000.

PROMPT REPORT

Charles Meacham, a U.S. fish and wildlife commissioner, flew over the area Monday and Tuesday and planned to make a prompt report to Hickel on his findings.

He said the idea of a special duck hunt had not been completely ruled out, adding: "We're keeping our options open and studying the whole situation."

Atmosphere Eases Fury of Storm Eve

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A cooling atmosphere softened the fury of tropical storm Eve's wind system today, easing the threat to the middle Atlantic coastline.

Maximum winds early today were estimated at no more than 40 miles an hour, a reduction of 20 m.p.h. during a 12-hour period as the storm maintained a slow drift toward the northeast off North Carolina's coast.

* * *

"Conditions do not favor significant intensification," forecaster Neil Frank said at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

* * *

Frank said the storm probably would shift to a more northerly direction during the day. At 6 a.m., the storm's center was near latitude 33.0 north, longitude 70.5 west, or about 325 miles east-southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

* * *

Eve's winds began dropping Tuesday after the storm broke away from the warmer weather off Florida where it was born.

In Memoriam 2

IN MEMORY OF Ellen Koch, passed away 2 yr. ago August 27.
The things you loved I have not laid away,
To molder in the darkness, year by year;
The songs you sang, the books you read each day
Are all about me, intimate and dear.
I do not keep your chair a thing apart,
Lonely and empty-desolate to view—
But if one comes a-weary, sick at heart—
I seat him there and comfort him for you.
I do not go apart in grief and weep,
For I have known your tenderness and care.
Such memories are joys that we may keep,
And so I pray for those whose lives are bare.
I may not daily go and scatter flowers
Where you are sleeping 'neath the sun and dew—
But if one lies in pain through weary hours,
I send flowers there, dear heart—for you.
Life claims our best, you would not have me waste
A single day in selfish idle woe.
I fancy that I hear you bid me haste
Lest I should sadly falter as I go.
Perchance so much that now seems incomplete
Was left in my poor way to do.
And I shall love to tell you — when we meet—
That I have done your errands, dear for you.
Sadly missed by Mother, sisters and brothers.

People in the News

By the Associated Press

Singer Aretha Franklin, the "Queen of Soul," has canceled the rest o her bookings for 1969 on the advice of her doctor.

A spokesman in Hollywood for Miss Franklin, 27, said she was suffering from the effects of overwork and needed a rest.

Cancellations include appearances on the Andy Williams and Tom Jones TV shows, three California concerts and a European tour.

Nixon to Join Mexican Leader for Dam Rites

ORDAZ

The Western White House says President Nixon will join President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz of Mexico Sept. 8 in dedicating the newly completed Amistad dam on the Rio Grande River near

Joint construction of the dam by the United States and Mexico began Aug. 1, Del Rio, Tex. c

1968. It will create a reservoir 86 miles long and more than seven miles and provide large power facilities.

Nixon will make the stop for the dedication en route back to Washington from his summer home here.

Actress Helen Hayes Honored in Detroit

MISS HAYES

Actress Helen Hays, 69, was given the American Educational Theater Association's Distinguished Service to the Theater Award yesterday in Detroit.

Miss Hayes, who has won every major award in her field, told the association's 33d annual convention she attributed much of her success to help from good playwrights, directors, other actors and her audiences.

RUSK

Rusk's Car Stoned at University

A car used by former Secretary of State Dean Rusk was stoned as he left the University of Wisconsin Student Union after a speech to a convention of bankers last night.

About 50 persons who objected to Rusk's policies when he was in office surrounded the car as it left a parking lot. It was hit by half a dozen stones and a large stick.

Husband Says Judy Died $1 Million in Debt

Judy Garland's husband says she died a million dollars in debt, including half a million owed to the U.S. Internal Revenue service .

"Too many sharks in the business used her as a pawn to their own ends," said Mickey Deans, the singer's fifth husband in London.

Deans said the condition of the estate was "why I was able to laugh at the people who said I married her for her money. I don't expect anything except the bills."

PAUF Publicity Head Fills Committee Posts

Appointments for this year's Pontiac Area United Fund Public Relations Committee were announced today by William Quigley, General Motors regional public relations manager and this year's PAUF publicity and promotion chairman.

Gary Drew of Pontiac Motor Division's personnel department will be arrangements chairman for various sponsored luncheons and meetings of the campaign.

* * *

Sponsorship chairman is Charles Woodhead, Michigan Bell's Pontiac community relations manager. He will be in charge of acquiring funds from local businesses to sponsor luncheons.

Art Sanford, assistant retail advertising manager for The Pontiac Press, will coordinate the PAUF advertising division this year, and Dianne Durocher will serve as the Press appointee on campaign news.

OTHER AIDES

William Morgan, manager of WPON, is the chairman of the radio committee and Frank Cronin, director of public relations at GMC Truck and Coach Division, will be in charge of industrial publications.

Wellington L. Criger, chart and display manager at Pontiac Motor Division, will be this year's PAUF display chairman.

* * *

Mrs. Richard Veazey has been appointed chairman of special events, and Mrs. Charles A. Stark, manager of the Bloomfield Hills branch of the Pontiac State Bank, and John V. Manikoff of the Patterson & Patterson, Barrett, Whitfield, Manikoff law firm are cochairmen of this year's speakers bureau.

Quigley said, "Our campaign slogan this year is 'Reach out and care . . . through your Pontiac Area United Fund.' We feel, now more than ever, our agencies are reaching out to the needs of the people in our community.

* * *

"We hope everyone takes heed of the motto and shows his concern through generous giving," he added.

School Bond Out

MIDDLETON (AP) — The Fulton School District in Gratiot County voted down Monday a proposed $1.5-million bond issue for construction of a new building to house grades five through eight. The vote was 223 yes — 366 no.

A Look at TV

New Drill for Nabors

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Frank Sutton was bellowing furiously at Jim Nabors. Jim Nabors, in that high-pitched, back-country voice, was innocently protesting.

The pair, abetted by a young New York actress named Karen Morrow, was rehearsing a sketch for the new "Jim Nabors Show." It could have been a rehearsal for the dear, departed "Gomer Pyle-USMC" which over the past five seasons made a top-Nielsen TV star of Nabors, and that was no coincidence.

MISS LOWRY

* * *

The difference, when the sketch was put on tape two days later, was that both Sutton and Nabors were in civilian clothes instead of uniforms and were playing their new parts as brothers-in-law. The weekly sketch is one important way by which Gomer Pyle is being converted into Jim Nabors, singing, dancing variety host, while—hopefully—carrying along that legion of Gomer fans.

During the rest of each show, Nabors will permit other facets of his performing repertory to show.

NETWORK WAS HAPPY

The network, CBS, would have been happy to continue as long as there was life in the simple, innocent comedy of Gomer and his fearsome nemesis, Sgt. Carter. But Nabors wanted a change of pace and, unlike most TV stars, was determined to abandon Gomer while he was still ahead.

* * *

The new show, like most of the new and returning variety hours, will be a mixture of music, chorus dancing, comedy sketches and guest stars. Nabors will periodically uncork his rich, deep voice in solos, work in the comedy sketches and introduce the guest talent.

* * *

The run-through, held in a big CBS rehearsal hall, was watched closely by an audience of 50 or more—not one of them a casual onlooker and all working on or in the series.

Sutton, a Broadway dramatic actor who has been Nabors' foil during the Gomer years, mopped his brow and looked relieved after the rehearsal.

FIRST FOR FRANK

"Frank has never done anything like this," Nabors explained, "But we thought it would be good for the show if he came along over with us. We didn't want to push, but he thought it over and decided to do it. Now he's singing a little, dancing a little and doing fine."

* * *

Actually, the transformation of simple-minded Gomer Pyle into tall, well-dressed Jim Nabors has been in progress for several seasons. He has appeared out of comedy character in his own special variety hours several times and been a guest star on a lot of other shows.

* * *

Gomer has given Jim a handsome hilltop home in the San Fernando Valley which most often is shared by visiting members of his family from Sylacauga, Ala., a Rolls Royce, swimming pool, walls full of good art and a healthy bank account.

The question, which only can be answered in the coming months, is whether it is Jim or Gomer that the public really loves. On the answer hangs a lot of money, effort and the stuff that makes ulcers.

Met Postpones Curtain-Raiser

Talks With 11 Unions Wipe Out Rehearsals

NEW YORK (AP) — The Metropolitan Opera has postponed its season debut as contract negotiations continue with 11 unions, representing singers, musicians, dancers and other personnel.

Postponement of the Sept. 15 opening was announced Tuesday by the Met.

* * *

Three weeks of rehearsals had already been canceled. Rudolf Bing, the Met's general manager, said the opening date had to be postponed because of a lack of rehearsal time.

Herman Gray, a lawyer representing musicians, choristers and dancers, said of the postponement: "There is absolutely no need for this, because the artists had committed themselves not to interfere with the opening night."

UNIONS SINGLED OUT

Spokesmen for the Met said rehearsals would begin when a settlement was reached. They singled out "certain unions, notably the American Guild of Musical Artists, Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians and Local 1 of the International Association of Theatrical Stage Employes," in announcing the delay.

"The Metropolitan has made offers of substantial salary increases which place our personnel at higher levels than any other symphony, ballet or opera in the United States," they said.

* * *

The musicians, whose basic pay is $260 weekly, asked for a 50 per cent increase. The Met offered a 21 per cent hike over three years. Choristers, who average $10,200 yearly, asked for a 140 per cent increase, the Met said, while dancers, averaging $8,500, have asked for a 200 per cent raise.

Gray said both groups had been offered $3,500 increases over three years.

The Met said tickets for opening night, when Verdi's "Aida," was scheduled, would be honored whenever the season opens.

Tarzan's a Lion in the Hoosegow; Owner's in Court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A clawless, 400-pound African lion named Tarzan was hauled off to a city animal shelter when he was found unattended in a parked panel truck on a Los Angeles street.

His owner, Ray E. Grant, a magician from Pasco, Wash., was ordered to appear in municipal court under a code section forbidding the bringing of wild animals into the city without a permit.

* * *

Grant told authorities he had come here to join a USO tour to Alaska and Vietnam and had left Tarzan alone only an hour Tuesday to keep an appointment.

* * *

He said he had been trying to find the lion a good home, but that the San Diego and Los Angeles Zoos had refused him because Tarzan had been declawed.

Holiday Prompts Rubbish Changes

Pontiac's Collier Road landfill will be closed Monday, Labor Day.

Rubbish pickup in the city will be one day behind schedule next week. In districts with normal pickup Monday, trash should be put out Tuesday, etc.

Bach Sound Alive and Jamming

By YOLANDA BENAVIDES

Don't knock the Bach.

The Johann Sebastian movement is alive and jamming well under hard rock conditions, according to the New York Rock and Roll Ensemble.

* * *

The group is here for tonight's performance at Oakland University's Baldwin Pavilion.

Blues singer B. B. King also will appear in the 8:30 concert, the final event of the OU Special Events Series.

Billing Bach with rock isn't as unholy an alliance as it may sound, according to Marty Fulterman, who plays oboe and drums in the ensemble.

A TASTE OF CLASSICS

Like the other five members of the three-year-old group, he feels its music, most of which the members write themselves, is hard rock with merely a taste of the classical baroque.

"We're really a conglomeration of a lot of different sounds and influences because of our varied tastes; I like the bump and grind of Sly and the Family Stone, Mike loves the controlled writing in the Beatles' songs, Brian digs old rock 'n' roll favorite like Chuck Berry, and Dorian and Cliff vary from day to day," he said.

Mike Kamen, who's heavy on the oboe and keyboards, feels classical overtures are more evident than any others from the group's training. Three of the members are former Juilliard School of Music students.

As a matter of fact, Juilliard is where the idea of a fun rock ensemble began, with Mike and Marty setting it up for relaxation.

Dorian Rudnytsky, who also was studying at the New York School at the time, eventually joined and introduced two hometown friends to the group — Brian Corrigan and Clifton Nivison, who complete the group as it is today.

Like the others, Mike has no regrets since leaving Juilliard. If anything, he's probably a bit stronger in his feeling regarding the decision.

* * *

"I'm not knocking the classics, but I think that it's wrong that so many young people go to Juilliard to do nothing other than read and play someone else's music," he said.

He feels sad that, in the music world today, so few musicians really can improvise on their own.

However, Mike does credit Juilliard for the tools it provided him as a musician and writer.

"I still lean to a semidisciplined bag when I play or write; we all do, but it's merely relying on a basic training background. From there, you jam until it feels right for you," he explained.

* * *

However, it hasn't always been that easy, according to Dorian and Marty.

The group tried to jam with everything down to the top 40 tunes line from soul to psychodelic.

The result was mediocre, according to Marty, "we knew we wouldn't get the respect of the hard rock community until we found our own thing," he said.

They've found it.

STORING MEMORIES—Summer nears its end, and soon the kids will start the school grind. The early season and midsummer were terrible, cold and rainy. Bue these final days have been splendid, warm, sunny and dry. Enjoying yesterday and storing up memories for winter is Rick Bates, 10, of 2250 Garland, Sylvan Lake.

Rickover Testimony Revealed

'Soviets Near Edge in Subs'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy nuclear chief Hyman G. Rickover says the Soviets—determined never again to have to back down as they did during the Cuban missile crisis—rapidly are overtaking the U.S. nuclear submarine fleet.

The Soviet Union is likely to have more nuclear submarines than the United States by the end of next year, the vice admiral told a House Appropriations Subcommittee, and they already have 230 more submarines of all types.

★ ★ ★

He said the Soviets could catch up with the U.S. missilefiring Polaris submarines by 1973 or 1974.

A censored transcript of Rickover's testimony May 20 in support of the Navy's $1.16 billion request for nuclear ship development and procurement was released today by the public works subcommittee.

Rickover linked the rapid Soviet submarine buildup to the 1962 Cuban missile crisis when asked about the danger of the United States being overtaken.

"I would put it this way: I believe that after the Cuban confrontation—which resulted ultimately in Mr. Khrushchev being kicked out of office—they made up their minds that they would never again be faced with a similar situation," Rickover said.

The Polaris now is the major U.S. deterrent to nuclear war, Rickover said because they can glide undetected and fire a retaliatory missile barrage from under the oceans.

But as the Soviets catch up in their own Polaris-type subs and in their ability to detect and attack the U.S. submarines, he said, America will need escort submarines.

81 U.S. N-SUBS

The United States now has 81 nuclear submarines, including 41 Polaris, Rickover said, and the Soviets have 65. But at the present construction rates, Russia would surpass the United States by the end of 1970.

The Soviets have a total force of 375 submarines, he said, or 232 more than this country's 143.

★ ★ ★

He said the Soviets are expected to add 70 nuclear submarines by 1974 compared to the United States' 26—including enough Polaris-type submarines to match or surpass the United States' 41.

The Soviet Union now has seven of the Polaris-type submarines, he said, and is capable of turning out one a month while America has no present plans to expand its Polaris fleet.

Teacher Strike Prospects 'Good'

By DICK ROBINSON

Schools in Waterford Township are scheduled to reopen Sept. 4, but the teachers may not be there.

Some 650 teachers in the county's third largest school district may be taking what they call "an extended summer vacation." Others call it a strike.

★ ★

Prospects for a teacher strike which would affect 18,500 students are good, some observers feel. Teachers have already vowed not to return to work without a contract.

Negotiators for teachers and the school board are a "substantial amount" apart in the key salary issue, said Warren Williams, executive director of the teachers' Waterford Education Association (WEA).

ADDS UP TO MONEY

And five other issues—fringe benefits, pay for extracurricular activities, class size, agency shop and length of the contract—all remain unresolved.

It all adds up to money. There is just not enough money to go around for the students, teachers and the administration.

"The problem is that we don't have the money we would need to make an agreeable settlement with the teachers," explains Acting Supt. Dr. John Pagen.

"We've had three millage loses. And even with a curtailed program, there's not enough money left over."

The school district will face more students this fall than last, and with about 75 less teachers than a year ago. In addition to the needed central administrative staff, there is a need for a new junior high school, according to school officials.

One of the major cutbacks for this school year puts elementary pupils on half-day sessions. They will only be given a basic education, Pagen said.

Secondary students will continue for the second year to do without one class period a day. The district's high schools risk losing their accreditation, making it harder for students to get into college, claim school officials.

Negotiators first started talks in March on the teachers' contract which expired last month.

RECOMMENDS FACT-FINDING

After a 16-hour negotiation session which ended early yesterday, state labor mediator Richard Terepuin recommended both sides go into formal fact-finding.

Fact-finding involves a hearing where both the teachers and school administrators present their respective arguments. The fact finder then makes recommendations which aren't binding, for settlement.

Waterford probably won't get a fact finder from the State Labor Mediation Board for at least a week, according to a spokesman in the Detroit office. Some 30 school districts around the state have applied for fact finding.

If the fact finder's recommendations are agreed upon by

Says He Can't Believe Grand Jury

Lazaros Hits Perjury Charges

Former Mafia moneyman Peter Lazaros of Troy, whose accusations of corruption among public officials touched off two grand jury investigations, was indicted yesterday on 12 counts of perjury by a federal grand jury.

Lazaros of 2410 Dalesford said today he could not believe the 23-man grand jury's charges.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, the one-man grand juror assigned to investigate Lazaros' charges of corruption in Oakland County, hinted the federal perjury indictment could affect the local probe.

★ ★ ★

Oakland county one-man grand juror Judge Robert J. Colombo declined comment on the significance of the perjury charges to his probe of Lazaros' allegations of corruption in this county.

'REASONABLE ASSUMPTION'

He said, however, it would be a "reasonable assumption" to believe he would consult with Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley regarding the grand jury's future. Kelley and State Police Director Col. Fredrick Davids petitioned for the local probe, and Lazaros was expected to be a key witness.

"I testified to the truth," Lazaros said.

"I would appeal to anyone who has any information to help any law enforcement agency to forget it, bury it in their minds and refuse to cooperate," he said.

★ ★ ★

The federal grand jury has charged that Lazaros lied when he testified last Thursday that he made payoffs to Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh and five employes of the Internal Revenue Service.

STANDS MUTE

Lazaros, 36, stood mute before U.S. District Judge Ralph M. Freeman at his arraignment yesterday afternoon. He was released a short time later on $10,000 bond.

If convicted on the 12 perjury charges, Lazaros could face up to 60 years in jail and be liable for a fine of $24,000.

Lazaros claims he paid Cavanagh $3,000 and gave the IRS officials $1,000 each "for favors" at a 1967 Christmas party allegedly held at the Kingsley Inn in Bloomfield Hills.

★ ★ ★

The grand jury indictment claims Cavanagh and the IRS agents were not at the party and did not receive payoffs.

The panel also said Lazaros lied about giving $500 to Arthur Stone, general manager of the Detroit Harbor Terminals and a former purchasing director for the city, and about bribing James Dunleavy, former chief of detectives for the Detroit Police Department.

Weather Watchers Get Fair Warming

The weatherman predicts fair with a warming trend today, tonight and tomorrow with the high temperature climbing into the low 80s. The low will dip to near 55 to 60 tonight.

★ ★ ★

The outlook for Friday is partly sunny and warm.

The five-day forecast is for temperatures to average about four degrees

FAIR AND WARMER

above the normal high of 78 to 86 and normal low of 52 to 62.

Precipitation is expected to total about one-fourth to one-half inch in showers over the weekend.

Probabilities of precipitation are near zero today and tonight and 10 per cent tomorrow.

★ ★ ★

Today's winds are variable at 5 to 15 miles per hour and will become southwesterly at 8 to 15 miles tomorrow.

A sunny 54 was the low thermometer reading before 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac. By 12:30 p.m. the mercury had climbed to 80.

Flash

Three persons died about 10 a.m. today in a car-truck collision on M24 at Silver Bell in Orion Township, according to Oakland County sheriff's deputies. Names of the dead were withheld pending positive identification and family notification. All three were riding in the auto. Dead were a woman, a 16-year-old boy and a young girl. A fourth youngster was listed in critical condition at Pontiac General Hospital.

'2 Coed Deaths, Pistol Linked'

DETROIT (AP) — Radio station WJR of Detroit reported today it has learned that law enforcement officials "have the weapon" used in two of the seven murders of young women in the Ypsilanti-Ann Arbor area in just over two years.

The station reported the weapon was a 22-caliber pistol and that ballistic tests show it was used in slayings of Jane Mixer, the third victim, and Alice Kalom, the sixth.

★ ★ ★

It also reported Sgt. Kennard Christiansen, chief of the State Police's Plymouth crime laboratory, had been in Salinas, Calif., "the past week and returned with a slug from the body of an unidentified young girl murdered in that area on or about July 6th."

"Ballistic tests were made over the weekend," the station said, "and reports indicate the same weapon was used in that killing."

'1st SOLID LINK'

The station described the weapon as "the first solid link" between the Michigan slayings and "at least one in California."

State Police Capt. Daniel Myre, head of the crime center which was established to handle the investigation, would neither confirm nor deny the report.

★ ★ ★

John Norman Collins, 22, an Eastern Michigan University senior, is the only person to have been charged in any of the seven Ypsilanti-Ann Arbor slayings. He is awaiting Circuit Court arraignment on a charge of having slain Karen Sue Beineman, 18-year-old Eastern Michigan coed, the seventh victim.

Witnesses identified Collins at his examination as having been seen with Miss Beineman the day she disappeared. They said she was riding a motorcycle with him.

The Detroit News has quoted Collins' attorney as saying the young man denies

A-Energy to Power Planet Trip, Heart?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atomic energy may play such diverse roles in the future as power for a planetary grand tour and an artificial heart, Congress has been told.

The idea of implanting a tiny nuclear engine in the body to power an artificial heart is hypothetical, but worth looking into since heart disease kills some 750,000 Americans a year, says the director of the Atomic Energy Commission's isotopes development section.

★

E. Eugene Fowler estimates such heart research would take about four years and $5.5 million.

The commission's director of space nuclear systems, Milton Klein, in arguing for funding of the nuclear research on project Nerva, said atomic engines will be a must for deep space flight.

TESTIMONY RELEASED

The testimony of both men before House appropriations subcommittees in May was released yesterday.

The urgency of finding a practical power supply for an artificial heart, said Fowler, was demonstrated last year in Dr. Denton Cooley's effort to keep a patient alive in Houston, Tex.

The artificial heart Cooley used needed a power supply system the size of an office desk. Possibly, Fowler said, a nuclear engine weighing a few pounds could substitute, being implanted in the body.

The AEC is already at work on a radiation-safe fuel—electrorefined plutonium 238 enriched in oxygen 16. But no one has started on development of an engine, Fowler told committee members.

SPACE TRAVEL

As for space travel, Klein said, "We are moving into needs for very long life systems." A trip to Jupiter takes two years. A grand tour in the late 1970s when all the planets are in a favorable alignment would take seven to 11 years. years.

Klein said a desk-size Nerva atomic engine would produce as much power as Hoover Dam. Nerva would speed travel and make rescue of the vehicles possible. In comparison, the total weight of a Saturn booster is 6 million pounds, 5 million of which is chemical-propellant.

As for space versus domestic priorities, Klein said, "The real long-term solutions to the problems of poverty, which are real ... is to increase our ability to produce and do things better.

"The space program serves as the cutting edge of technology," Klein said.

Nader Charges Violations of Information Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader charges that numerous federal agencies, while giving preferential treatment to special interest groups, have violated the Freedom of Information Act by withholding information from press and public.

★

"Government officials at all levels in many of these agencies," Nader said, "have violated systematically and routinely both the purpose and specific provisions of the law.

★ ★ ★

The charges came in a 20-page report by Nader and a group of about 100 law, engineering and medical students and graduates who have been investigating the workings of several government agencies over the summer.

They called a news conference yesterday to list specific instances of what they termed violations of the two-year-old Freedom of Information Act.

VIOLATIONS CITED

Some violations cited by the group were: the Defense Department's denial of access to the quantity of oil being pumped from Navy ship bilges; the Water Pollution Control Administration classifying domestic military base sewage as a national security matter; and attempts by the Highway Administration to keep automotive safety standard violations from the public while quickly informing manufacturers.

The report said the Labor Department had denied public access to records from 5 to 15 years old on violations of minimum wages and safety standards for certain businesses.

★ ★ ★

And it listed in an appendix 19 violations of the information act by the Agriculture Department.

Nader criticized the news media for not bringing more court cases to force disclosure under the information act and reporters for not asking "searing, controversial, difficult questions" at some news conferences.

The act, the report said, "designed to provide citizens with tools of disclosure, has been regressively forged into a shield against citizen access."

GOP Powwow Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — Candidate recruiting, fund raising, polling, public relations and vote analysis procedures will be discussed by top staff members of Republican state committees in a conference in Chicago next month.

GOP National Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton announced plans for the sessions to be held Sept. 18-20, sponsored by the Republican National Committee.

SURFACED SUBMERSIBLE — Crew members of the submersible Ben Franklin stand on the deck of their craft yesterday, with the Statue of Liberty in the background, as they are given the traditional fireboat geyser welcome to New York. The sub drifted more than 1,400 miles up the Gulf Stream in 31 days on an exploration mission.

Reds Mum on Airliner Crash Near Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet officials and news outlets kept a strict silence today on the flaming crash landing outside Moscow of a Soviet commercial airliner with 112 persons believed aboard.

* * *

The Foreign Ministry, in the only official comment on the crash, said there were no foreigners on the flight.

* * *

That was all the official information available. Casualties were not known.

* * *

Only fire trucks and ambulances with sirens screaming as they raced out of Moscow toward Vnukovo Airport 15 miles away gave any clue to the seriousness of the accident last night.

Unofficial sources said the turboprop IL18 of the National Aeroflot Airline was carrying tourists to Moscow from the Black Sea resort at Sochi.

* * *

One employe at Vnukovo said there had been "victims." From a distance, witnesses could see ambulances leaving the scene for Moscow, their blue lights flashing.

* * *

The unofficial account of the crash said the plane had been unable to get its landing gear down, circled the airport to burn up excess fuel and then attempted the belly landing, bursting into flames.

* * *

Moscow radio and television went off the air last night without mention of the crash. Morning newspapers had no crash accounts. The official news agency, Tass, had nothing 12 hours after the accident.

LAST CRASH

The last known Aeroflot crash involved an IL18 that went down near Sverdlovsk in November of 1967. No casualties were ever announced although an official investigation of the accident was held.

Soviet officials and news outlets last reported a fatal airline crash on Feb. 17, 1966, when a Tupolev 114 went down at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport, killing 50 persons, including some foreigners.

No survivors were brought into the main Vnukovo Terminal where correspondents were kept under guard. At one point, more than 30 ambulances could be seen on the runway near the burning airliner.

Aides Pressuring Mitchell on Bias

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dissident Justice Department lawyers have mounted a campaign to get their boss to make a clear statement supporting strong enforcement of public school desegregation.

And if Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell does not meet their demands, some have indicated they may take drastic action, including mass resignations, to dramatize their discontent.

* * *

The intra-administration dispute came to light last night as most of the department's civil rights lawyers met to draft a statement seeking assurances the government will not relax its strong posture on school desegregation.

Sources said the meeting was triggered by the department's action Monday in asking Jackson, Miss., federal court to approve a delay in desegregation of 33 Mississippi school districts.

SEEDS SOWN

Actually, however, the seeds of the discontent were sowed almost two months ago when the administration announced it was eliminating absolute deadlines for achieving integration in the South's public schools.

* * *

Mitchell, the main target of the lawyers' criticism, was vacationing near the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., and could not be reached for comment. Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard, head of the civil rights division, was in Louisiana where he was reported trying to dampen opposition to school integration.

* * *

The department's public information office said it was unaware of the discontent in the division.

* * *

Of the 165 civil rights lawyers, about 85 are staff or "working attorneys." Sources said all 85 were invited to last night's meeting, which was held at an undisclosed location in Southeast Washington.

School Aid Cut System Altered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has revised its procedures for cutting off federal school aid, according to government sources.

The move, expected to blunt administrative assaults on segregated southern school systems, would in effect require more evidence that discrimination exists before federal aid to specific programs could be cut off, the sources said.

The department's past practice was to stop all aid if it found proof of faculty or student segregation. The contention was there could be no federally-funded program in a segregated environment.

A federal appeals court questioned the HEW approach early this month, ruling the department must demonstrate discrimination in programs, not just over-all pupil and faculty segregation.

FIRST INDICATION

The first indication of the department's shift came in a little-noticed brief filed by the HEW general counsel's office in a discrimination action against the Raleigh, N.C., schools.

The brief asked the hearing examiner to make his findings in light of the appeals court decision.

HEW Secretary Robert H. Finch has yet to take a public position on the court decision.

But qualified sources say Finch has made the basic decision to shift focus from systemwide segregation to programby-program discrimination.

Tricia to Leave Hospital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tricia Nixon, reported feeling much better in her recovery from an abdominal illness, was expected to be released from Walter Reed Army Medical Center today.

DINIS' SHADOW — Massachusetts State Police Cpl. Robert Enos keeps a watchful eye on Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis who stops to read a newspaper in front of his New Bedford office yesterday. The Boston Record American said the trooper had been assigned to guard Dinis "because of several legitimate threats against his life." The newspaper said the threats pertained to Dinis' decision to proceed with an inquest Sept. 3 into the death of a Washington secretary who died in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's auto on Chappaquiddick Island July 18.

Hearing Today for Lawyers Involved in Mary Jo Inquest

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — A district court hearing was scheduled today for attorneys representing several prospective witnesses for the Sept. 3 inquest into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne.

No official reason was given for the hearing before Judge James A. Boyle, who will preside at the inquest, but reports indicated it was called at the request of the attorneys.

Miss Kopechne was killed when a car driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., plunged off a narrow bridge into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island July 18 near this summer resort community on Martha's Vineyard.

* * *

A medical examiner ruled Miss Kopechne drowned accidentally.

The Boston Record American reported Tuesday that a state trooper has been assigned to guard Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis, who ordered the inquest "because of several legitimate threats made against his life."

* * *

A spokesman at state police headquarters in Boston confirmed that an additional trooper has been assigned to the district attorney's office at Dinis' request, but said the trooper's role was investigative and not that of a bodyguard. The spokesman said he was unaware of any threats against Dinis.

Dinis was not available for comment.

Hoffa Witnesses Tell of 'Bugging'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A parade of witnesses, including FBI agents, a government informer and a Teamsters Union official took the witness stand in federal court yesterday as James R. Hoffa attempted to prove he should have a new jury-tampering trail.

Hoff's attorneys, probing for information which would show the Justice Department used evidence gained by electronic eavesdropping in his 1964 trial, have gone through more than a score of FBI agents and former agents in an effort to find the proof.

* * *

They also have demanded that reams of government records be produced for the Supreme Court-ordered hearing into whether Hoffa's rights were violated by eavesdropping and wiretapping.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank W. Wilson, the 1964 trial judge who is presiding over the hearing, has refused most of the demands for the records.

AIDE TESTIFIES

A long time Hoffa aide and confidant, Charles (Chuckie), O'Brien testified for the defense that he had been the subject of eavesdropping and a case against him was reversed because of the overhearings.

'2 Coed Deaths, Pistol Linked'

any connection with Miss Beineman's death. Newsmen have not been allowed to talk to Collins.

Andrew Julian Manuel, 25, with whom police said Collins made a trip to California, was to undergo examination today in Ypsilanti District Court on two charges.

* * *

Manuel, a former roommate of Collins' at Ypsilanti, is accused of possessing a woman's stolen ring and of larceny by conversion.

Authorities have confirmed the ring came from none of the murder victims and say it was stolen in a spring burglary at the apartment of an Ypsilanti elementary school teacher.

* * *

The larceny by conversion charge stems from a trailer, which police said was rented in Ypsilanti by Manuel but left in California. Michigan authorities searched the trailer, located after Collins' arrest, for clues and reported they found none linking it with any of the killings.

Teacher Pact Try Steps Up

BIRMINGHAM — Negotiations between the board of education and the Birmingham Education Association (BEA) have intensified this week in an attemp to reach contract agreement before the opening of schools Sept. 3.

Donald Cameron, executive director of the BEA, said that if contract accord is reached before the scheduled school starting date it will be an 11th-hour settlement.

* * *

Major difference in negotiations reportedly concerns the middle part of the teacher salary scale, according to Cameron.

"Both the board and the teachers realize that the minimum and maximum rates have to remain competitive with the contracts settled by other districts.

EQUAL INCREASE SOUGHT

"However we definitely want to be sure that all teachers get an equitable salary increase," he noted.

Last year's salary schedule ranged from a bachelor's degree maximum of $6,900 to a master's degree maximum of $12,550.

Settlements in the metropolitan Detroit area for the 1969-70 term are averaging about a $7,500 minimum for beginning teachers with a maximum of $12,500-$13,000.

Spokesmen for the board and the BEA said the fringe package is essentially settled, with good progress reported on a number of smaller noneconomic items.

NEW SPOKESMAN

Robert Maxfield, past president of the BEA and a social studies teacher at Seaholm High School, is the new spokesman for the teachers' bargaining unit. Maxfield replaced Burton Bronson, who resigned to accept a position with the Waterford Public Schools.

New members of the BEA team are Catherine Slick, mathematics teacher, Derby Junior High; Donald Vratanina and John Kish, mathematics teachers at Seaholm High School; and Alex McInnes, social studies teacher at Seaholm.

The new members of the BEA negotiation team have replaced those teachers who have other commitments. Other team members are Betty Meyers, Bloomfield Village teacher, and Cameron.

Further Pullouts Hinge on Reds

PARIS (UPI) — President Nixon will hold off announcing more U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam until the Communists demonstrate they are willing to end the war, allied sources said today.

Nixon's chief peace negotiator, Henry Cabot Lodge, brought back that message yesterday for the Vietcong and North Vietnamese after consultations with the President in the United States.

* * *

Exactly what sign would be acceptable — a decline in battlefield attacks or a new move at the peace table — was not clear. Nixon's initial 25,000-man pullout was to be completed tomorrow.

"The message is clear — it is time for something in return," one source within the other side to respond, to do the allied delegation said.

PULLOUT DELAYED

Nixon delayed indefinitely plans to announce another pullout last week after new Vietcong and North Vietnamese attacks on the battlefield and no progress at the Paris peace table.

On his return, Lodge would not disclose what his advice had been on the matter but said Nixon "wants to leave no stone unturned for peace."

* * *

A South Vietnamese official said "we are pressing for a response, and will continue to press them because our course is well set and all we have to do now is continue in the same direction."

The 32nd session of the four-party peace talks is set for tomorrow.

* * *

South Vietnam for weeks has been seeking a positive Vietcong response to its offer to include the guerrillas in national elections. The Communists have rejected the proposal repeatedly.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — William T. Gossett of 420 Goodhue, a Detroit attorney and former president of the American Bar Association, has been named to the American Council on Education's new Committee on Campus Tensions.

Gossett will serve on the committee of 18 prominent educators, laymen and students under Sol M. Linowitz, chairman, a former ambassador to the Organization of American States.

Army Refuses Firm's Rifles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling the weapons poorly made, the Army has stopped accepting M16 rifles produced by a Massachusetts company involved last year in a contract award that raised the ire of Congress.

The Army says in effect that the Harrington & Richardson Co. of Worcester, Mass., has been turning out shoddy rifles but it hopes the suspension of M16 acceptances will be temporary.

In response to questions, the Army said it had rejected five lots totaling 5,000 rifles before suspending further acceptances last July 25. The company is behind in deliveries by 12,866 weapons.

"The contractor was not complying with the contractually prescribed quality assurance program," the Army said. "Some rifles failed to pass function, endurance and targeting and accuracy tests."

FAIL TO PASS TESTS

Furthermore, H&R' M16s failed final examinations because of such flaws as defective barrels and bolt carriers and improper lubrication, the Army said.

The Defense Contracting Administration Service has been called into the situation and with the Army is trying to help H&R straighten out the quality problem, officers said.

In Worcester, H&R president C. Edward Rowe Jr., said he would have no comment.

The Army irritated Congress last year when it picked H&R and General Motors Corp. of Ypsilanti, Mich., to become second and third producers of the rapid-firing M16 even though two other companies said they could produce the rifles more cheaply.

Bedside Death Talk?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A medical specialist on aging urges health professionals and families to stop engaging in what he calls a mutual pretense of avoiding talk about death when standing at the bedside of the dying elderly.

Dr. Anselm Strauss of the University of California's San Francisco Medical Center, also said health professionals should become better trained in the behavioral sciences so they could give better psychological and social care to old folks about to die.

Teacher Strike Is Looming

the negotiators, it would take a few more days for the school board and most of the other teachers to study and approve the proposals.

MAY CONTINUE TO MEET

This certainly would extend beyond the designated Sept. 4th opening of school. So it appears the only way of avoiding a teacher strike is if both parties and the mediator settle the issues themselves.

Both Pagen and Williams said the two groups may continue to meet. But as of this morning no new meetings were scheduled.

The six issues at stake are:

● Salaries. Teachers want a competitive salary scale. Administrators say they're offering all they can for salaries and their offer would be pretty competitive.

Waterford ranked third lowest of 28 county districts in bachelor degree teacher salaries which ranged from $6,700 to $10,500 last year.

They were also third lowest in master's minimum of $7,100 and sixth lowest in master's maximum of $11,500.

● Fringe benefits. Teachers want their health and life insurances paid for 12 months, not 10 months as in the past.

● Extracurricular activities. Williams say the negotiators are about $30,000 apart on salaries for teachers who spend extra time supervising after school activities.

● Class size. Teachers want the right to grieve if they have too many children in a class. Pagen contends it would cost the school system $370,000 alone in salaries to hire new teachers if each class was to be reduced by one student.

● Agency shop. Teachers want every teacher to become a member of the teacher's union since they all benefit from WEA negotiations. Union members who don't join—who under the agreement would have to be fired—would disrupt the school system.

● Length of contract. Teachers want a one-year contract. Administrators are pushing for a two-year noneconomic pact and one-year economic agreement.

CO of Balking Troops Relieved of Unit

SAIGON (AP) — The young American lieutenant who couldn't get his men back into battle last Sunday has been relieved of his command.

His battalion commander, Lt. Col. Robert C. Bacon of Falls Church, Va., said today that Lt. Eugene Shurtz Jr., 26, of Davenport, Iowa, had been relieved as commander of Alpha Company and would be given a new assignment with the 196th Light Infantry Brigade.

★ ★ ★

"I went out to relieve him personally," Bacon said in a telephone interview from his headquarters in the foothills southwest of Da Nang. "I wasn't satisfied with the progress the company was making."

Alpha Company suffered heavy casualties last week in five consecutive days of assaults on a labyinth of North Vietnamese bunkers and trench lines on the slopes of Nui Lon Mountain. Ordered to move out again Sunday, Shurtz told Bacon over a field telephone: "I am sorry, sir, but my men refuse to go. We cannot move out."

SENT TO SCENE

Bacon sent his executive officer, Maj. Richard Waite of Reynoldsville, Pa., and Sgt. Okey Blankenship of Panther, W.Va., a Vietnam veteran, to the scene. Blankenship finally persuaded the men to get moving. They ran into no opposition.

★ ★ ★

Bacon said that Capt. Bernard F. Wolpers, a native of Germany who is now a U.S. citizen, had replaced Shurtz as company commander.

The colonel said the company's refusal to follow Shurtz's orders "was certainly a contributing factor" in his decision to change commanders, but that the action "was not solely based on that."

A LOT OF REASONS

"I made the decision for a lot of reasons," he said. "I don't think he had the experience to handle the job . . . The company wasn't responsive; it was dragging its feet.

"It was slow getting its gear together. I didn't think the company moved when I wanted it to. I would tell them to move out at 6 a.m. and they would move out at 6:30."

★ ★ ★

A spokesman for the American Division said five enlisted men had questioned Shurtz's orders to move out, but that all five had finally gone with the rest of the company "and the company completed its mission." Both Bacon and the spokesman said no charges are pending against anyone and no formal investigation is being conducted.

"The matter is not being further pursued," the spokesman said. "The men are still in the company, and the company is still in the field."

NO COMPLAINTS

Bacon said five enlisted men in the company had requested during the incident to see the Inspector General, but "they decided not to once they settled down and started moving. They decided they had no complaints at all."

He said the company is still operating in the field but has not been involved in any significant fighting since last Saturday.

★ ★ ★

Shurtz had been in Vietnam only a month and was commander of Alpha Company for three weeks. Bacon took command of the battalion last Thursday after his predecessor, Lt. Col. Eli P. Howard of Woodridge, Va., was killed in a helicopter crash.

Bacon said he did not consider the Alpha Company incident "a big problem."

★ ★ ★

"I've seen similar type things happen," he said.

Shurtz could not be reached for comment.

Western States Sight Meteor Shower

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A swarm of meteors glowing cherry red as they burned up in the atmosphere flashed across California, Nevada and Arizona skies Tuesday night.

"The sky seemed filled with flying sparks," exclaimed a Federal Aviation Administration official in Phoenix.

★ ★ ★

Other persons said the meteors looked like a burning airplane that was disintegrating in the air.

The skies also were laced with the luminescent vapor trail of a Minuteman II ICBM missile test launched earlier down the Western Test Range in the Pacific from Vandenberg Air Force Base in central California.

★ ★ ★

The meteors were seen for about five minutes starting at 8:50 p.m. PDT and left a shining white streak visible to many observers for several minutes, mingling with the remnants of the Minuteman vapor trail.

★ ★ ★

A Palomar Observatory spokesman said, "A meteor shower was more or less expected about now. They run in cycles."

Jackson UF Fair

JACKSON (AP) — Jackson's first United Fund Free Fair will be held Sept. 13-14 at Parkside High School. Seventeen service agencies of the United Community Services will take part in the fair, offering free hearing tests and demonstrations of how they work to serve the public. There will be free pony rides and entertainment, featuring rock groups and country and western musicians.

Cyclist Sought in 2 Shootings

DETROIT (AP) — A member of the Detroit motorcycle club, the Scorpions, is being sought on a warrant for attempted murder in the shooting early Tuesday of a Taylor Township patrolman and a member of a rival club.

A 19-year-old Taylor youth is sought in the shooting of patrolman Freeman Suiter, 26, of Taylor, reported in satisfactory condition in Wayne County General Hospital, and Jesse Laster, 33, also of Taylor, listed in fair condition Tuesday night.

★ ★ ★

A second person was accused in a warrant of assault with intent to murder. He was alleged to have fired two shots from a 22-caliber pistol before being disarmed by other motorcyclists.

Taylor Township Deputy Police Chief Doyle Vaughn said Laster and the youth sought had a fight in the parking lot of the Top Hat restaurant in Taylor. He said the assailant returned a half-hour later with a shotgun and shot Laster.

Suiter heard the shot, identified himself as a police officer, and ordered the youth to drop the shotgun. Instead he shot Suiter and fled.

Varner-Ferry Vows Are Spoken

MRS. THOMAS A. VARNER

In a Victorian style gown of silk organza, Janet Kay Ferry repeated wedding vows with Thomas Ashburn Varner. The couple was married in a Saturday afternoon ceremony in Saint John Fisher Chapel, Oakland University.

Following the ceremony, the wedding party and parents of the couple greeted guests at a reception in Bloomfield Country Club.

Attending the bride who carried roses, baby's breath and Stephanotis was maid of honor, Mary Werth. Bridesmaids were Sue Varner and Jennifer Ferry.

On the esquire side, William Powers performed the duties of best man. Assisting as ushers were Jay, Jeffery and James Ferry and Bart Bartlebough. John Ferry was the ring bearer.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Ferry of Lonesome Oak Drive, Oakland Township and Crancellor and Mrs. Durward B. Varner of South Adams Road, Avon Township.

The newlyweds are honeymooning at Lake Michigan.

Girl Hidden in Gas Tank, Escapes Reds

ST. GALLEN, Switzerland (AP) — A Swiss engineer has told how he smuggled his 19-year-old East German fiancee 200 miles to freedom in the converted gasoline tank of his English automobile.

* * *

Ralf Baldenweg, 27, brought his bride-to-be, Friedl Linke, across Hungary and Yugoslavia to the safety of Austria. After being refused permission to marry her sweetheart, the girl went on a camping vacation to Lake Balaton, Hungary, where she had arranged to meet Baldenweg.

* * *

Before leaving Switzerland Baldenweg paid $1,000 for a large Alvis special car and set to work fitting a special 22-gallon gas tank. But it held only four gallons. The rest was a cramped compartment for the girl.

Ten days ago their flight to freedom began. "I don't know how we got through," said the pretty brunette from Dresden. "At times I thought I was going to die in there."

RESPITE

Baldenweg, who was accompanied by his brother Werner, said that twice, after passing the Hungarian and Yugoslav frontiers, he pulled his fiancee out of the compartment, which was no bigger than a small refrigerator with an attached air tube for breathing.

"She was unconscious and turning blue," he said. "But each time she came round.

Their 69 years of marriage was tops at the Fair. Carrie Bean, 88, plants a kiss on the cheek of her husband, Wade, 86, after they were presented trophy at the Michigan State Fair for their record of marital longevity. The Beans live in East Detroit.

Polly's Pointers

Good List of Ideas

DEAR POLLY — Some letters you reprinted make me realize that manufacturers read your column. My Pointers are for them rather than for the other girls. I wonder why boxes of Christmas and other special occasion cards do not include one extra envelope in the box?

We should all be allowed at least one mistake.

* * *

Boxes that children's games and puzzles come in are not made strong enough. New boxes have to be reinforced all the way around with strong tape if mess made by having the boxes come apart and 101 small parts fall all over the floor.

* * *

Sheets should be made with a deep hem on both ends so they will be worn evenly and one does not have to bother looking for the top or bottom.

With all the iron-on patches on the market, why can't Boy Scout and Girl Scout patches be made so they can be ironed on or at least so they will stay straight until one can get the edges sewn firmly?

Gas station attendants should turn their belt buckles to the side and not wear jackets with big zippers and buttons that scratch a car while washing the windshield. One little scratch seems like nothing, but let this happen every week for a year and the fender will be a mess. — MARY C.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — Would someone please tell me how to preserve new wood to keep it from cracking? What should be used and how? MRS. M. M.

DEAR POLLY — Old throw rugs make nice beach mats. They absorb moisture and save one's towels for later use. Also metal clip shower curtain rings made good sewing machine bobbin holders. They are easy to get at and you can quickly tell if there is a filled one in the desired color. — DANA.

For Five Couples

August Is Wedding Month

Broenel-Hartman

Karen Sue Hartman and Kenneth Lewis Bronoel were feted at a reception in the parlors of the First Congregational Church of Pontiac following their marriage Saturday.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Hartman of Oakshire Road was attended by her sister, Nancy Hartman, as maid of honor.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson L. Bronoel was assisted by his father, who performed the duties of best man.

Garris-Boston

Kingsley Inn, Bloomfield Hills, was the setting for a reception feting Peggy Lee Boston and Stephen T. Garris. The newlyweds were married Saturday afternoon in Presbyterian Church of Our Savior, Birmingham.

Mrs. John Christian and David McKee stood as honor attendants. Judy Boston was bridesmaid for her sister. They are the daughters of the Robert E. Bostons of Long Point Drive, Bloomfield Township.

* * *

Ushers for the son of the Steven Garrises of Short Hills, N.J. were Brian Schrope and Brad Boston.

The bride chose an organdy gown. She carried a colonial bouquet of roses and daisies.

Kent-Alexander

Birmingham Unitarian Church was the setting for the Saturday afternoon exchange of vows of Karen Jean Alexander and David Michael Kent.

A reception in the church followed. They were joined by their honor attendants, Barbara Hart and Richard Gullett.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Alexander of Schoolhouse Drive chose a gown of silk organza with rose point lace accents. She carried a bouquet of roses, lily of the valley and Stephanotis.

A honeymoon trip to Canada followed for the son of Dr. and Mrs. James Kent of Houghton and his bride.

Packman-McKee

Kathleen Ardis McKee became the bride of William Richard Packman in a candlelight ceremony Saturday in First Baptist Church of Rochester.

Joining them as they greeted guests in the Auburn Heights American Legion Hall were the couple's maid of honor and best man, Janet McKee and Allyn Packman.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Calvin McKee of Slocum Street, Pontiac Township and Mr. and Mrs. True Packman of Birmingham.

Perez-Vantine

The Rene Drive, White Lake Township, home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Vantine was the setting Saturday for a reception feting their daughter, Susan Elisabeth and her husband, Hector David Perez of Mexico City, Mexico.

The couple exchanged vows in a morning ceremony in Central Methodist Church.

Attired in lace and carrying carnations and roses, the bride had Margot Vantine as her maid of honor.

On the esquire side, the son of Professor and Mrs. Jose Perez of Chihuahua, Mexico, asked Isaac Perez to assit him as best man.

The newlyweds are honeymooning in Canada. They will make their home in Mexico City.

Crime Closeup

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Patricia Neely had $40 stolen from her purse while she was momentarily away from the desk in her office. Mrs. Neely is a state parole officer.

Drawn by a nine-year-old boy patient at Fairlawn Center, Pontiac State Hospital, this Christmas card is offered by the Foundation for Mentally Ill Children. All proceeds go to benefit children's needs at the hospital. Cards are 25 for $5 and may be ordered from the Foundation, Box 245, Bloomfield Hills, 48013.

Case No. K-568

Women Want Words

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE K-568: Marjorie M., aged 26, is married.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "my husband is a quiet introvertive chemical engineer.

DR. CRANE

"At parties, he is never surrounded by young women, for he seldom speaks unless he is asked a question.

"But my sister's husband rates high with all the women for he is a salesman and can talk easily about anything.

"Many other wives complain that their husbands don't talk enough when they get home from work.

"So would a salesman have a better chance of avolding divorce than an introvertive husband?"

WANT WORDS

The telephone companies can tell you that the female sex runs up the big phone bills in America!

For girls are more talkative than boys, even in grammar school.

And women want words! Especially compliments.

* * *

Same goes doubly for children, so will you introvertive dads PLEASE open your mouths a little more often and pass around a few compliments daily?

A man doesn't need to "run off at the mouth" to be a popular husband.

Calvin Coolidge was thus so laconic that jokes were created to lampoon his lack of conversation.

But he made a good husband, why?

Because when he did speak to his wife, he paid her compliments.

* * *

Calvin Coolidge grew up on a farm and farmers are usually quiet folks, due to their dealing with tractors and other inanimate tools.

They get so accustomed to working without the use of spoken words that it becomes habitual.

Same is typical of others who don't deal with human beings all day.

Introverts thus include accountants, musicians, scientists, surgeons, farmers and the usual labor union craftsmen.

Extroverts get that way from long contact with a talking environment, so they include salesmen, clergymen, social secretaries, and the type of newspaper boy who vends his wares on street corners by shouting his merchandise.

Both types can make superb husbands.

* * *

But the introverts should resolve to vocalize their love for their wife and children EVERY DAY.

* * *

A wife will forgive a laconic husband for his few words, if he will imitate Calvin Coolidge and make them count.

* * *

But if he seldom gives her a compliment and limits his half dozen words per day to harsh criticism, that makes a wife's personality shrivel and her love begin to die of anemia.

* * *

For compliments nurture love just as iron builds up hemoglobin in our red blood cells and thus combats anemia.

Beware, for anemia pertains not only to blood but also to romance!

* * *

Salesmen are noted for "having a way with women" because women want words!

Dryers Eliminate Salt Spray, Ice

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Onlookers were surprised to see hairdryers being loaded on a tanker in port here when they knew there were no women aboard.

It was explained that the dryers were being mounted on bridge portholes to eliminate the salt and spray and ice which build up on the glass when the weather is bitterly cold as the tanker is in northern waters. The ships agent reminded the onlookers that the portholes were about the same size and shape as a woman's head.

Bernadette Devlin, 22, member of the British Parliament from Northern Ireland, looks over a scale model city with Herman Wrice, former gang leader and now president of the Young Great Society, a self-help organization in west Philadelphia which is striving to rebuild the ghettos.

Catholic Cause Boosted by Gift to Bernadette

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernadette Devlin, touring America to raise $1 million for Roman Catholics left homeless by disorders in Northern Ireland, had $1,000 in cash thrust into her hand by two men who said they were from County Kerry, Ireland.

* * *

The incident occurred Tuesday night as she was entering a ballroom to address 2,000 persons. Today she takes her campaign to Los Angeles.

Miss Devlin, a petit 22-year-old member of the British Parliament, said in an interview Tuesday night that her tour was going "quite well.

"Every nickel we get will be well spent and well used," she added.

Earlier she visited the United Nations Tuesday to talk with Secretary General U Thant about the problems of the Catholic minority in her homeland.

"I received the diplomatic sympathy which I expected," she said, "but it must scare the British government and the government of Northern Ireland to think someone like me could even get to meet with him."

Informed of the Northern Ireland government plan to send a three-man "Truth Squad" to the United States to challenge Miss Devlin on television, she said "I'll debate them anytime, any place, anywhere."

She said a relief plane with medical supplies, canned food and bedding will leave for Northern Ireland Sept. 17.

If your solid color sweaters are still good, yet you are tired of them, embroider a design on the front with pretty yards of contrasting colors.

Mrs. R. N. BARNARD

Princess Gown Bride Chooses

Attired in a princess silhouette gown of peau de soie with Alencon lace accents, Karen Ann Spanski was escorted to the altar of Our Lady of Refuge Catholic Church Friday where she became the bride of Robert Norman Barnard.

She carried roses and Stephanotis with ivy.

Witnessing the candlelight exchange of vows were honor attendants, Noreen Spanski and Frederick Barnard. Harold and Ronald Barnard were ushers for their brother.

They are the sons of Judge and Mrs. Norman R. Barnard of Troy.

* * *

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Spanski of Onawa Court and her husband received guests in the Bloomfield Centre.

The couple is honeymooning in Canada and the eastern states. They will make their home in the Pontiac area.

Dedline Continuing

Stock Market Settling Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled lower in moderate trading early today as it continued the downward trend of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones industrial average at 10:30 a.m. was off 1.19 at 822.33.

* * *

A 13,700-share block of Litton Industries traded at 46½, up 1¼.

Other early gainers included IBM, up 2 at 342, and Polaroid, up 1⅛ at 125.

Opening prices included:

American Telephone & Telegraph, off ⅛ at 53 on 13,200 shares; Atlantic Richfield, off 4⅛ at 111 on 12,800 shares; Xerox, off ¼ at 94¼ on 8,100 shares; Pennzoil United, up ¼ at 30 on 8,000 shares, and Sperry Rand, up ⅜ at 43⅞ on 7,200 shares.

The market tumbled again Tuesday, with profit-taking continuing to weigh on it. The Dow Jones Industrial average lost 7.92 to 823.52, bringing its total loss for the week to 13.73 points.

Some late selective buying among issues which had fallen sharply was reported as helping them firm near the close. Analysts said the steepness of the market's decline in two sessions apparently encouraged some traders to get back into the action.

Oil Official Hits Hart Plan

'Lifting Import Curbs Perilous to Industry'

DETROIT (AP)—A petroleum industry official said today that lifting of controls on oil imports would destroy the structure of America's petroleum industry.

Harold McClure Jr., president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, told newsmen that if the U.S. were to become largely dependent upon foreign petroleum then domestic exploration for oil and gas would fall off sharply in the face of a diminishing domestic oil market.

* * *

McClure challenged Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., who has called for an end to oil import controls, to debate the subject at a time and place of his choosing.

He said Hart's proposal was based on predetermined attitudes and explained through specious logic. Hart is chairman of a Senate subcommittee on antitrust and monopoly.

"In focusing entirely on oil and ignoring gas," McClure said, "Sen. Hart displays a complete failure to understand the nature of petroleum exploration and production.

OIL, GAS LINKED

"The finding of oil and gas through drilling and exploration are interrelated and inseparable processes."

While acknowledging that unlimited oil imports could result in a drop in the price to the American consumer, McClure contended that there would be a significant rise in the cost of gas that would "tend to offset any transitory saving to consumers in the cost of oil."

McClure said gas already is in short supply. The gas shortage, he declared, is not imminent—it's here.

"Last year, U.S. consumption outstripped production for the first time in our nation's history," he said. "The Federal Power Commission is extremely concerned and warns that reserves are scarce compared to projected demand.

Alaska Gets Ready for Rush to the Bank

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — Like an individual who comes into a pile of money, the State of Alaska is going to rush directly to the bank Sept. 10 when it accepts bids and down payments on about $1 billion worth of oil leases.

CUNNIFF

In fact, that Alaskan oil money is going to be flown to the bank by jet, which sets some sort of a record for haste and adds another colorful episode to the dramatic North Slope oil find.

* * *

Beneath the North Slope, along the Arctic Ocean, lies one of the biggest caches of natural resources anywhere in the world, something on the order of 5 to 10 billion barrels of oil. Only 21 fields have ever produced a billion barrels, so the discovery ranks as huge.

And, because this black teasure will glitter all the more when transferred to the reports of the big oil companies, it is inspiring some heroic deeds and plans.

PUBLICIZED FEAT

Most publicized of these feats is the pioneering voyage through the Northwest Passage of the 115,000-ton tanker Manhattan, equipped with an ice-breaker prow and operated by men with blood as cool as the arctic waters.

The Manhattan will test the feasibility of transporting the oil from the arctic to the Atlantic, and thence to the populous, profitable markets nearby.

* * *

Alaska is putting up 431,104 acres for bids near the original discovery last summer by Humble Oil and the Atlantic Richfield Co. Terms call for 20 per cent down in cash or cashier checks, the rest payable in 45 days.

Nobody wants that kind of money lying around, and so state officials have signed an agreement with the Bank of America to handle the bookkeeping and investment of the money. The bank is taking its job very seriously.

Leland Prussia, vice president, notes that the contract calls for "expeditious" handling of the money. And to Prussia and other officials at the bank, that means a jet and nothing less.

Why? Because every day the checks and cash remain uninvested can mean the loss of about $45,000. That's the daily return that could be realized from investing $200 million.

* * *

In the normal check-clearing process several days can elapse before a check gets back to the bank of origin. But if you hire a jet, as Bank of America is doing, you can fly the check directly to the bank, cash it and deposit the money in an account that pays interest.

Since most of the checks are expected to be drawn on New York banks, because the big oil companies usually work through these institutions, the jet's first stop is scheduled for here. After that the plane might work its way back across the country, stopping at Chicago and other cities.

DISPROVING ADAGE

In their investments, Alaskans are disproving the adage of easy come, easy go. Although the money is coming easily—and will make the tax burden of Alaskans one of the easiest to bear—it is being held in a clutched fist.

State law limits investments to government securities and bank certificates of deposit, which are about as safe as any paper today. No gyrating stocks will be found in the portfolio.

The good news for Alaskans doesn't end with the knowledge that their money is safely tucked away in secure investments. Lots more cash could very well be on the way.

If oil is found, for example, the finder must pay a standard 12.5 per cent royalty. And then there's another 800,000 acres of leases that might be put up for bidding sometime in the future.

Being an Alaskan is fun these days.

Commercial Debut Set for 'Jumbo Jet'

NEW YORK (AP) — The first scheduled commercial flight by the giant Boeing—747 jet is planned for Dec. 15, Pan American World Airways announced Tuesday.

The jet, which carries 362 passengers, will fly from New York to London and Frankfurt, initiating daily "jumbo jet" service to those three cities.

Pan Am predicted that it will have 42 transatlantic flights a week on the new jetliners before the end of the year.

* * *

The airline has ordered 33 Boeing 747s, and 25 are expected to be in service by August, 1970.

Norman P. Blake, a senior vice president, said the "jumbo jet" service depended on delivery of the jets from Boeing, but added that he expected the company to meet its delivery deadlines.

* * *

The airline said it hoped to begin 747 service from New York to Paris on Dec. 18, from Los Angeles to Tokyo on Feb. 6 and from New York to San Juan, Puerto Rico, on Feb. 9.

Pan Am said 5,000 persons have already made reservations for the first flights on "jumbo jets," and clerks are now confirming the reservations.

* * *

The airplane can carry 64,000 pounds of cargo and baggage.

News in Brief

A spokesman for Jerry's Rent-It Shop, 8183 Commerce, Commerce Township, told Oakland County sheriff's deputies yesterday that someone entered the shop and stole a chain saw valued at $200 sometime in the morning while employes were working in the back of the shop.

Millage Rejected

GLADWIN (AP) — Voters in the Gladwin School District have rejected a proposed four-mill operational levy for one year. Officials said the levy was defeated by a vote of 713 to 535. It was the third time this year the proposed levy had been rejected.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q — I own shares of U.S. Industries which made an offer to buy back shares. What does this mean for the stock's price action? — F.N.

A — Wall Street has interpreted, perhaps mistakenly, a company purchase of its shares as being bullish, indicating advance knowledge of some favorable development. But a recent study by Allan Young, assistant professor of finance at Syracuse University, reveals evidence that the reverse may be true. Two hundred twenty-seven NYSE companies which had bought 1 per cent or more of their own shares in any year from 1960 through 1967 were compared with 227 control companies selected at random from the same industries. A significant difference in the two groups was noted in earnings performance just prior to repurchase, indicating that reacquisition was used as a diversionary tactic. Price earnings ratio in the two years following repurchase tended to be lower, primarily reflecting poor price performance, since per share earnings are increased by reacquisition. Companies with a lower leverage factor and a declining capital base tended to use share purchase to adjust this balance. A company may utilize market weakness to acquire shares for later acquisitions. These purchases frequently serve as an immediate prop to the price.

U.S. Industries' recent tender offer for 300,000 shares is an excellent example of this. The original offer at $24 was amended to $28.50 because of strong price action. Confirming Prof. Young's findings on leverage, USI's long-term debt is only 30 percent of total capitalization. Earnings have shown rapid growth, as have sales. But profit margins, after rising sharply in 1956 and 1966, widened only slightly last year and have remained unchanged this year.

This sluggishness might be misinterpreted as corroborating the study's conclusions on the relationship between earnings and repurchase. If price action should follow the presumed pattern, USI could lag behind the market, near term. Since the effects of repurchase are transitory depending on the company involved, I see no reason to disturb holdings.
