No More Vietnams, Rogers Is Stressing

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers is spreading the word across Asia that the U.S. government is cutting its involvement abroad and intends to have no more Vietnams.

While he has also given assurances that treaty commitments will be kept, Rogers has begun detaching the United States from the conflicts of Asia and promoting a substitute policy of regional self-reliance.

It is a big swing away from the policies which led the Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson administrations step by step into the Vietnam war.

Rogers, winding up his first foreign venture in personal diplomacy, will report to President Nixon this weekend that the initial steps in disengagement have, on the whole, been met with enthusiastic approval by the leaders he has talked to.

RELAXED STYLE

Associates credit much of his success to Rogers' style of personal diplomacy — easy, relaxed, and low-keyed, the manner of the highly successful corporation lawyer confidently working over problems with his clients.

The chief danger is that with his friendly desk-side manner, the secretary may have given the impression of more support than he intended to foreign leaders seeking sympathy for their special causes.

President Yahya Khan of Pakistan said Rogers was sympathetic to his request that the United States resume the sale of tanks, artillery, planes and other arms to his country. Rogers thought he was being diplomatically noncommittal.

Rogers did try to get some of Asia's quarreling countries together. He is trying to set up talks between Pakistan and India on Kashmir. He urged Pakistan and Afghanistan to try to resolve their long dispute over the Pathan tribesmen along their border.

Rogers told Foreign Minister Thanat Kohman that he understood Thailand's talk about getting on better terms with Red China. The United States would like to do the same thing, he said, but the Chinese are not interested.

Asian leaders, who tend to be formally polite, haven't seen a diplomat quite like Rogers before. Although they evidently liked him, they will watch closely now to see what action the United States takes. By this, they can measure the extent of his influence with President Nixon.

Hot Dog Data Garnered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Should chicken meat be allowed in hot dogs without saying so in large letters on the package?

Consumer and industry reaction to that question was mixed, the Agriculture Department said yesterday, announcing the end of a 45-day period to collect comment on the proposal.

A new regulation would allow up to 15 per cent poultry meat in federally inspected sausages, hot dogs and bologna without a large-letter label. Poultry ingredients in excess of 15 per cent would still require a large label.

YORTY AND WIFE PRIOR TO VICTORY—Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles and his wife, Betty, arrive at their polling place to vote in yesterday's municipal election in which the mayor turned back City Councilman Thomas Bradley's bid to become Los Angeles' first Negro mayor. With all but six precincts in, Yorty had 447,030 votes to Bradley's 392,379. Almost 80 per cent of the voters cast ballots. (Story, page A-2.)

Postal-Reform Route Is Rocky

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's urgent postal reform legislation was given special delivery to Capitol Hill but its trip through Congress may be slower than a footsore mailman.

Potential opposition from bulk mailers and postal unions—the politicians' version of snow and rain and heat and gloom of night—may stay Nixon's bill from swift completion of its appointed rounds.

The mailers and the unions, who fear the loss of gains they fought for in called the proposal to convert the Post Office Department into a government owned, self-sustaining corporation "a subject for long-range consideration."

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan conceded the administration faces "a selling job on postal employees and the Congress."

'OUTLOOK DIM'

Udall, D-Ariz., a high-ranking member of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee and a supporter of the President's plan, admitted "the outlook is dim this year."

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., second-ranking Democrat on the Senate Post Office Committee, has announced his opposition to the postal corporation plan.

Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen said to expect opposition from rank-and-file GOP officials who resent losing postal patronage.

President Nixon wants these changes for the Post Office, with its more than 700,000 employees, $7-billion budget a year, and annual mail load of 80 billion pieces.

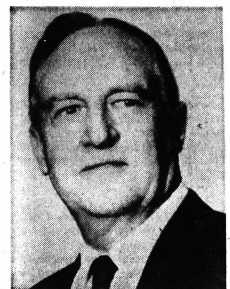

Control by a nine-man, appointed board of directors to replace the present Cabinet-rank postmaster general.

Settlement of union wage and benefit requests by the board rather than by Congress.

Nonpolitical appointment of all officers and employees.

Total responsibility for all financing, including new authority to borrow for capital improvements up to $10 billion.

Rate setting and mail classification by a commission of experts subject to review by the board and veto by Congress.

WILLIAM P. ROGERS

War Cost Close to $100 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vietnam is fast becoming a hundred-billion-dollar war.

Government figures show the 1970 defense budget will add $25.4 billion to officially admitted expenses dating back to 1965, raising the price of the conflict to $108.2 billion.

Hidden or indirect costs probably add hundreds of millions to the real expense of the war, although the scope of these items is sometimes difficult to assess because of official secrecy.

For example, the American government is doing out millions in economic assistance to reinforce such Vietnam border countries as Thailand and Laos which could sway the balance of power in the area.

LUMPED TOGETHER

The Pentagon budget lumps admitted Vietnam war costs under a category entitled "Estimated Special Support for Southeast Asia Operations."

The Southeast Asia category does not, however, fully reflect some other war-related expenses such as construction of the Thai-owned airfield near Sattahip, Thailand, which the United States built in 1965 to handle KC135 tankers and B52 bombers flying missions into Laos and South Vietnam. This base cost well over $150 million.

The general financial bookkeeping for the war back to fiscal 1965, which began in mid-1964, reads this way:

In 1965—$103 million; 1966, $66.094 billion; 1967, $29.557 billion; 1968, $28.839 billion; 1969, $29.192 billion; and, proposed for fiscal 1970, $25.4 billion.

The U.S. cost for fighting the 37-month Korean War was about $18 billion. The American cost for World War II ran about $250,000 million a day.

Springtime Sizzle Is Due to Continue

The temperature in downtown Pontiac rose 16 degrees between 6 and 10 a.m. today, accelerating the warming trend begun Monday. The skies continue cloudy with highs expected between 84 and 89; lows between 60 and 64.

Tomorrow's thermometer will continue to climb with highs ranging from 86 to 90. A chance of thundershowers is indicated.

Cooling is expected late in the day when warm winds, currently varying from 10 to 20 miles per hour, will tack to the northwest at about the same rate.

Friday's outlook is mostly fair and a little cooler.

The overnight low was 66. By 2 p.m. the temperature had climbed to 88.

SMOKE VICTIMS—Police administer oxygen at Penn Station in Newark to passengers who suffered smoke inhalation when a Penn Central commuter train caught fire in a tunnel under the Hudson River last night. One man was killed when the train lurched backward after he stepped off it. About 200 others were forced to walk a half-mile in the darkness on a tunnel catwalk to the New Jersey end. Misadventures in Paradise

HONOLULU (UPI) — Dale Kuhns of San Carlos, Calif., won't forget the 60th annual convention of Rotary International in Honolulu.

Sunday when Kuhns was riding in a rented car his swim trunks and his pants flew out. The pants, with $170 and his hotel keys in the pockets, were found by four youngsters who returned them to Kuhns.

Early Monday thieves broke into Kuhns' hotel room and took $300 in cash, including the $170 that had been in his pants.

Kuhns later went surfing and hurt his back. That night, he and his wife went to a luau. Food ran out before Kuhns and his wife were served.

College-Degree Plan for Troy

A college degree without leaving the local high school is the goal of a program to debut this fall in the Troy School District.

Troy school administrators and representatives of Oakland Community College and Wayne State University yesterday unveiled cooperative plans for a complete kindergarten through masters degree opportunity exclusively within the Troy school system.

A student who graduates from Troy High School presently may complete his freshman and sophomore collegiate years right at the high school via OCC extension classes. Now he'll be able to complete his junior and senior years through the new WSU program.

In education and business programs, the student could even earn his master of arts degree at the high school with a minimum of downtown campus time. The latter visits would be necessary only for selected courses.

NO COMMENT

There was no immediate comment from the governor on Kuhn's letter.

A citizens' petition calling for a grand jury investigation of Bronson was filed with the Oakland County Circuit Court last March 24. Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley and the State Police are studying the matter.

Kuhn and Sen. Robert J. Huber, R-Troy, have continually criticized Kelley's handling of the investigation ever since admitted Mafia moneyman Peter Lazaros of 2410 Dalesford, Troy, started talking last fall.

Lazaros, a Greek immigrant, alleges that high-ranking elected officials in Macomb, Oakland and Wayne counties accepted from Mafia sources in return for political favors.

Bronson, 39, elected to the appellate court last November, has refused comment on the allegations.

Suspend Judge, Asks Sen. Kuhn

LANSING (UPI) — State Sen. George W. Kuhn, R-West Bloomfield Township, yesterday asked Gov. William G. Milliken to recommend suspension of a state appeals judge involved in a Mafia tipster's allegations of bribery and political payoff.

Kuhn urged the action against Judge S. Jerome Bronson, former Oakland County prosecutor, in a letter to the governor.

He suggested the suspension remain in effect until the allegations involving Bronson are "satisfactorily investigated and adjudicated."

The senator added: "In my judgment, suspension or relieving of the judicial functions of any judge under such circumstances is necessary, not only to protect the dignity of the court but the integrity of the entire judicial system in this state as well."

Bell-Annex Parking Issue Bounced to City Planners

By ED BLUNDEN

The City Commission played hot potato and tossed the questions of downtown parking to the planning commission last night.

The planners will be asked to determine if a city ordinance has been violated in the case of parking for the $12.5-million addition to the Bell Telephone Co. facility at Mill and East Huron.

A charge that parking requirements have been ignored was leveled for the second straight week by Jerome Mulligan, an attorney for the Communication Workers of America (CWA).

Last night he charged the city was taking advantage of a "void" in its own ordinance to issue a building permit to Bell although the firm has not announced any plans to provide additional parking.

The expansion is expected to result in hiring 200 additional employees. To get a site for the annex, Bell traded land with the city, taking a former parking lot and giving a new one. Both pieces of land are about the same size, leaving the city with the same parking space with possibly 200 additional cars to worry about, Mulligan pointed out.

Holiday Brings Many Closings

All city, county and state offices, public service agencies, and banks, savings and loan offices in Pontiac will close over the three-day Memorial Day weekend, starting Friday.

Most area stores will be closed on Friday only, in observance of the holiday.

Regular holiday schedules will be observed Friday by the post office, including limited pickups and no regular delivery service beyond special delivery. The post office will be open Saturday as usual.

All operations except routine maintenance will be shut down at Pontiac Motor Division, GMC Truck and Coach Division and the Fisher Body plant over the weekend.

First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Oakland, Community National Bank and Pontiac State Bank have adjusted schedules to remain open tomorrow until 6 p.m. Capitol Savings and Loan Association will keep regular hours tomorrow, closing Friday.

The Birmingham - Bloomfield Bank, which also will be closed over the weekend, plans to extend business hours until 8 p.m. tomorrow.

The City Commission didn't answer Mulligan's charges or questions concerning the ordinance—which he brandished as he spoke. Instead, it voted to send the issue to the planning commission, which had drafted the ordinance.

Two city commissioners, T. Warren Fowler Sr., District 1, and P. Jack Douglas, District 4, expressed dismay that no representative of the Bell company had been present. The firm had been informed of the agenda item.

Other commissioners have commented that the CWA effort is aimed at getting free parking for Bell employees.

Many of the employees park in an all-day temporary lot at the south end of Mill at a charge of 25 cents per day. Mulligan said the employees, especially women, object to having to walk the three blocks to work, especially at night.

'NO CLEAR REQUIREMENT'

City Attorney Shirwin Binkrant reported that the present ordinance "does not clearly and specifically make any requirement for additional off-street parking to be provided" in the case of the Bell facility. He said the planning commission should also study revising the ordinance.

Yorty Defeats Black Candidate to Win 3rd Term

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mayor Sam Yorty won reelection to a third term today, turning back City Councilman Thomas Bradley's bid to become Los Angeles' first Negro mayor.

Unofficial returns at 3 a.m. from all but six of the city's 2,890 precincts gave Yorty 53.25 per cent of the vote to 46.74 for Bradley. The tally was Yorty 447,030, Bradley 392,379.

It was a powerful comeback for Yorty, who got only 26 per cent of the vote to 42 per cent of the vote for Bradley in the mayoral primary less than two months ago.

Yorty campaigned in the face of public opinion polls that up to the end forecast a Bradley victory by margins ranging from 5 to 15 per cent.

City Clerk Rex Layton estimated that close to 80 per cent of the 1,127,224 registered voters had cast ballots in a record-smashing turnout.

It was the greatest vote for a municipal election in Los Angeles history. The previous high was 66 per cent in the primary election of the same mayoral race April 1.

Los Angeles voters gave their verdict after a bruising campaign in which Bradley's race was a major factor.

Yorty urged voters to "keep Los Angeles the way we want it." He predicted mass resignations from the largely white police department if Bradley — a retired police lieutenant — captured the mayor's office.

Bradley, the Texas-born son of a Pullman car porter, trained his fire on alleged corruption during Yorty's second four-year term in City Hall.

Five of Yorty's appointees to city boards have been ousted on charges ranging from bribery to criminal conflict of interest.

Bradley emphasized his commitment to impartial law enforcement.

Bradley needed white votes to win. Negroes comprised only 17 per cent of the voters in Los Angeles, a far lower percentage than Cleveland and Gary, Ind., which have elected black mayors.

Officially, the election was non-partisan, and neither candidate's name carried a party label on the ballot.

Actually Bradley got considerable help from Democratic professionals and a organized labor. He was endorsed by powerful Democratic Assemblyman Jess Unruh and by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Yorty, 59, was a Democrat whose maverick political behavior has offended party leaders in the past. He supported Richard Nixon for president against John F. Kennedy in 1960, and tried to unseat former Gov. Edmund G. Brown in the Democratic primary in 1966.

Post Is Filled on Bloomfield Twp. Board

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — John Gnaou of 3894 Peabody has been appointed a trustee on the Township Board to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Robert Sinclair in January.

The term expires in January.

Gnaou was previously on the Township Zoning Board. He is vice president of Alexander Hamilton Insurance Co. in Livonia.

The Township Board has rezoned 18 acre lots off Telegraph in the northern part of the township from light manufacturing to small business.

The property is located to the rear of existing business properties in the area just south of Orchard Lake Road.

Construction is expected to begin immediately on a street-paving project in Meadowlake Subdivision. Nearly a mile of roadway along Valley Spring, Crestway and Whysall streets will be paved in the special assessment project.

Total project cost is $118,770. About $40,000 has been raised by a bonding issue which is to be repaid by the residents of the three streets involved in the project. The remaining money will be paid by the township ($22,293) and the Oakland County Road Commission ($11,877).

The construction contract was awarded to O'Connor-LaLonde Contractors of Warren. Completion is expected by July 30. All roads will be kept open to local traffic throughout the construction period.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — Five Cranbrook School faculty members have received summer study grants.

English instructors John Ghegan and William Moran, who started a course this year on film production, will study communications at the State University of Iowa and the University of Michigan, respectively.

Richard Huesing will study advanced mathematics at Ohio State University.

Wayne State University, William May will enroll in a program of black studies and Douglas Shepard will study biological sciences.

Try to Cut Troops in Europe Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield says he soon will revive his resolution seeking substantial reduction of U.S. troop strength in Europe — a measure shunted aside last summer by the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Mansfield's proposal has the support of Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., chairman of the subcommittee on security agreements and commitments abroad, as well as of Sen. J. W. Fulbright who opposed the original resolution last year.

Fulbright, the Arkansas Democrat who heads the foreign relations committee, said he is especially aroused at the State Department's rejection of appeals to put a proposed new military agreement with Spain into treaty form.

Fulbright said the administration should cut the number of bases in Europe and reduce its troop commitment there — the position advocated by Mansfield in a separate interview.

'CLOSED CHAPTER'

Mansfield said the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, which crystallized Senate objections to his pullback resolution, "appears to be a closed chapter now."

Mansfield said that, before seeking Senate action, he is awaiting a Defense Department survey of the possibility of eliminating some of the 2,700 American bases around the world — 429 of them classified as major.

The original resolution was introduced Aug. 31, 1966, and cosponsored by 12 other senators.

It was opposed by President Johnson, Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen and a bipartisan grouping of senators.

OBJECTED TO PLAN

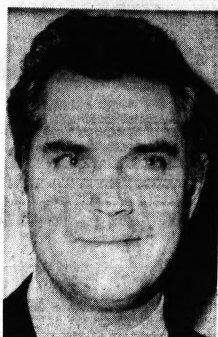

Fulbright said then he objected to Mansfield's plan to take the 1966 resolution directly to the floor without hearings by his committee.

Now Fulbright says Spanish and other European bases are not as vital to American or Western European security in an era of rockets and missiles.

"Nobody in the military wants to give up these bases or reduce our troop commitments. These are pleasant assignments with swimming pools, PXs and all the trimmings of easy living," Fulbright said in an interview yesterday.

As a starter on troop cutbacks, Mansfield proposed, the Nixon administration set a fixed date — possibly 1972 — for a change in the status of Okinawa, which the Japanese want to reclaim.

He conceded that freedom of American action on Okinawa, which has been used as a basing point for B-52 attacks on Vietnam and as a port of call for U.S. nuclear submarines, must be preserved at least until after the Vietnam war is ended.

ACTOR DEAD AT 42 — Actor Jeffrey Hunter died yesterday after brain surgery for a head injury. He was 42. A coroner's report after an autopsy said the death was caused by "blunt force trauma compatible with a fall." He was found unconscious in his Van Nuys, Calif., home Monday with a swollen right eye. The actor was best known for his role as Jesus Christ in the 1960 movie, "King of Kings."

Peace Respite for Reds--Thieu

SEOUL (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam said today the Communists would use a peace in Vietnam as a respite to rest their soldiers for taking up the fight again.

Thieu spoke to the Korean Military Academy as part of a visit to South Korea on a swing that will take him to Taiwan before his June 8 conference with President Nixon on Midway Island.

"It is because of our progress and our strength in the face of the weakening enemy that we are able to have the chances for peace," he said. "We should, however, always remain vigilant because the Communists are unlikely to accept and respect a long-lasting peace."

"The Communists have made no secret of their ultimate aims of world domination," he said. "A 'peace' they conclude is often only a respite in order for them to renew aggression later under conditions more advantageous to them."

Thieu's contention that the Communists would only be biding their time even if peace came may have explained much of the Saigon government's reluctance to grant extensive concessions at the Paris peace talks.

Heated Debates in Legislature Over Spending

LANSING (AP) — The Legislature became embroiled today in heated debates over allocations of state funds and means of raising new revenues for the coming fiscal year.

In the Senate, Republicans recessed to consider an amendment that would require a resolution to transfer state funds while the Legislature was in session.

Sen. Robert Vanderlaan, R-Grand Rapids, argued that the Legislature could legally be in session but not physically present in Lansing to take action.

If the amendment were approved, he said, it could effectively halt the emergency transfer of funds.

The debate opened as the upper chamber reviewed a $27.4 million appropriation bill for the Department of Corrections. The amount represents an increase of $1.9 million over the department's budget for the current fiscal year.

HIDDEN TAX HIKE

The House, meanwhile, debated additional commercial taxes buried in a $22-million appropriation for regulatory agencies under the departments of commerce, labor and licensing and regulation.

Specified taxes could raise additional revenues an estimated $20 million, legislators said.

- An additional one cent per gallon tax on aviation fuel.
- A $5 fee for private fleet trucks.
- A one cent levy on annual revenues for railroad operations within the state.

Ex-Postal Official Indicted in Baltimore Bribery Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former top-level Post Office Department official was indicted by a federal grand jury today on charges of bribery, corruption and conflict of interest.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said Joseph P. Doherty was accused in a nine-count indictment returned by a special grand jury in Baltimore.

Doherty served as executive assistant to the assistant postmaster general in charge of the bureau of facilities under the administration of former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The indictment charged Doherty with seeking and agreeing to accept a $20,000 bribe from Dominic Piracci Sr., a Baltimore builder, and the Piracci Construction Co. of Baltimore.

BUILDING CONTRACT

The indictment said Doherty, in return for the money and a promise of future employment, agreed to use his influence to help Piracci obtain a contract to build a new main post office in Baltimore and lease other postal facilities in Maryland.

The indictment also alleged that Doherty went to work for Piracci in June 1968 after resigning from the Post Office Department and, in the new position, used his influence in the postal system on behalf of the Baltimore builder.

Each of the eight counts of bribery and corruption in the indictment carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison and a $20,000 fine. If convicted on the conflict of interest count, Doherty could get a $5,000 fine and a one-year sentence.

The indictment said Doherty agreed to accept the $20,000 "on or about" March 15, 1968, in Baltimore. At that time, he was still a postal official.

TOP ADVISER

In his post office job, Doherty was the top adviser to the assistant postmaster general on matters relating to new construction.

He also served as the principal contact with Congress, top government officials and the business community on post office programs for acquiring new facilities, modernization of old structures and other programs relating to capital appropriations.

382,000 Autos Recalled by Ford

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. recalled 382,000 standard-sized 1969 Fords and Mercury Cougars yesterday for inspection and possible replacement of help latches which the firm said could fly open when the cars are in motion.

Inspection and replacement were to be carried out at no cost to the buyers of the vehicles.

Ford said that some of the latches have been produced with insufficient clearance between parts. A spokesman said the condition could cause the main latch to bind, interfering with complete closing.

The firm said no accidents are known to have occurred as a result of the defect.

Altogether, the company said, it is looking for 250,000 defective latches which were manufactured by a supplier. About 354,000 of the cars were sold in the U.S., 26,000 in Canada and 2,300 in overseas markets.

Nursing Home May Be Sold

Beverly Enterprises of California, an organization owning and operating some 6,000 to 8,000 beds in nursing homes across the nation, has offered to buy Seminole Hills Nursing Home, 532 Orchard Lake.

When and if the acquisition is completed, Cooley and Associates, owners of Seminole Hills Management, Inc., will make an announcement, said Basil F. Boyce, Seminole executive vice president.

Seminole Hills owns and operates six care facilities, containing 713 beds, throughout the state. There are 231 beds in the Pontiac nursing home, established in 1963.

Boyce said Beverly Enterprises, which includes extended care facilities and subspecialty hospitals in its western-based chain, has signified the intent of continuing to operate the Pontiac facility along its present lines.

Should the sale be completed, as announced by the California company at its annual meeting, the Seminole purchase would represent Beverly's first acquisition in Michigan.

Laos Troops, Reds Still Battling for Plain

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — 30 miles from the North Vietnamese border. Lao government troops and Communist forces were reported still battling today for control of the Plaine des Jarres in northeastern Laos.

Military sources said that government forces had withdrawn from the strategic town of Xieng Khouang but that the Communist Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese troops had taken to take it because of heavy bombing by U.S. and Lao planes.

"The town has been flattened," a senior officer said. "Xieng Khouang is a no-man's land."

The Plaine des Jarres is a barren plateau of strategic value because main east-west and north-south highways meet on it. Xieng Khouang is on the southeastern edge of the plain, month into one of the most serious engagements in Laos in more than two years.

LOSSES NOT DISCLOSED

Government losses have not been disclosed. But army headquarters in Vientiane claims more than 500 North Vietnamese have been killed so far, mainly in air strikes.

The strikes have been carried out by Lao T28s, reportedly joined by U.S. B52s and F105s from Thailand.

The United States has consistently denied that its planes are bombing in Laos, but Prime Minister Souvanna Phouma has publicly acknowledged at least twice that U.S. bombing is taking place.

Government sources said more than 1,000 Pathet Lao troops have defected to the government since the fighting began. Most of the defections resulted from daily air strikes which have disrupted the supply of food and ammunition to the Communist forces, the sources said.

Brandon Supervisor's Job Keeps Rural Visionary Busy

By NED ADAMSON

BRANDON TOWNSHIP — Norman Kapson, the supervisor of this unprosperous township in north central Oakland County, is a scambler. He is progress-minded. You might even call him a rural visionary.

But Brandon Township has its problems.

It is essentially a poor township comprising hard-pressed farmers, migrant Appalachian whites who commute to the auto plants in Flint and Pontiac or work small farms, and disenchanted city dwellers who have fled to the country to slow down.

Much of the land is rolling, scenic and undeveloped. It probably will be one of the last rural bastions in Oakland County to surrender to the steadily encroaching urban sprawl.

POOR TAX BASE

The community, virtually absent of industry, has a poor tax base. The school district that serves the area is the poorest in Oakland County in terms of operational millage.

Poor soil conditions and the existence of only one major thoroughfare running through the township (M15) make it difficult to attract the industry that would give the tax base a lift.

The population is growing, slowly but methodically. In 1967, 30 new houses were constructed. More than 100 went up in 1968. About 32 new houses were under construction as of April 30. Land is being purchased for two proposed large apartment projects.

Said Kapson, "We want to grow — if we stay at the status quo, we're in real trouble."

INDUSTRIAL PARK

"One reason we have no industry in the township is that we haven't given it any breaks. We hope to set up an industrial park in the near future."

The Transportation and Land Use Study (TALUS) report points to the Brandon area as one of the few areas in Southeastern Michigan that will preserve its rural image during the next 20 years.

Kapson isn't particularly looking for a boom-type growth, but he does feel the township needs to strengthen its shaky tax base.

Some of the speculative land buying that contributes to spiraling land reassessments already has hit the township, and many of the local property owners were hit with sharply increased tax bills this year.

HIS OWN BUSINESS

Kapson came to the township in 1962. An automotive design engineer, he set up his business in a red barn at the rear of rambling white frame house with green shutters on Mill Street in Ortonville. He threw up a tree house for the kids and built a fishing pond at the back of his property.

After many years of hard commuting, working in Detroit, he is an established country dweller.

"It was tough at first. I didn't think I would make it out here for a couple of years. I missed the city, particularly the night life—but now, well, it's home."

"I will have to admit I got into local politics out of purely selfish reasons. When first approached for the supervisor's job, I wasn't interested. But then I figured I could do as good a job as anyone, so I grabbed it."

FULL TIME JOB

Kapson has found that the part-time job that pays $6,000 per year is, in essence, a full-time job. He shuttles between the township office and his business quarters daily.

Evenings will find him assessing property, arbitrating family squabbles, soothing testy shotgun-armed farmers who don't like trespassers, enforcing junk car ordinances and tending to numerous other duties contiguous with rural life.

Kapson grew up in the ethnic Delray section of Detroit and his city ways stand out in Ortonville. He likes natty clothes, and drives about town in a lumbering late model steel-gray Cadillac.

Said an observer, "Norman looks like the local bookie — but he seems to impress almost everyone with his hustle. He will always listen to a problem and will usually do something about it — fast."

Despite his tough exterior, Kapson comes off genial and friendly. He radiates confidence-plus concerning his small stable business and his position as the township's government boss.

Richard W. Wilcox, Kapson's predecessor, summed up Kapson "as the sort of man who is willing to work hard at anything he does. He has really dug in at his new job. He is tough in an argument, but is always willing to understand the other side of the story."

EDUCATIONAL EVOLUTIONISTS — Explaining the Troy School District's unique three-step educational program are (from left) Clyde LeTart of the Michigan Department of Education, Dr. Ben Jordan, assistant dean of urban extension, Wayne State University; Walter Fightmaster, executive director of community services, Oakland Community College; and Boyd Larson, acting superintendent of Troy Schools. With the entrance of WSU into Troy's evening school programs, Troy now has complete kindergarten-through-college educational opportunity.

and declared that his department supports all attempts of the effort that "will reduce unnecessary duplication and provide expanded services to a larger segment of the adult population."

Ben Jordan of WSU, that some 200 students are anticipated per quarter.

Clyde LeTart, of the Michigan Department of Education, said that the only somewhat similar program in Michigan is the Ironwood (northern Michigan) School District in cooperation with Northern Michigan University.

"Nowhere in the state do we know of a cooperative program among a public school, a community college and a university," LeTart said.

Students for the WSU college segment will be able to register for classes at Troy High School by mail.

Bid Opening Set on State Road Work Projects

Bids on State Highway Department projects, including an estimated $450,000 in improvements on Oakland County roads, and another $160,000 in Lapeer County, are to be opened next Wednesday.

The bid opening covers an estimated $20.4 million in projects in 28 counties, according to State Highway Department officials.

The state expects to spend $130,000 on widening Telegraph Road in front of the Miracle Mile Shopping Center. Completion is scheduled for Oct. 31.

Widening to five lanes on two-tenths of a mile of Huron (M59) from West Wide Track to West of State Street in downtown Pontiac is planned, at a cost of $100,000. Completion is set for Oct. 4.

Construction of a pedestrian bridge and approaches on Stephenson Highway (I-75) at Garfield and Morhouse Avenues in Hazel Park is scheduled at an estimated $160,000. Completion is due Dec. 15.

In Lapeer County, the state intends to pave 5.7 miles of Otter Lake Road west of the M24 — M90 intersection north of Lapeer. Cost is estimated at $160,000 with completion due Nov. 15.

Farmington Schools Plan 'Satellite' Hot-Lunch Setup

FARMINGTON — Students will be eating prepackaged lunches — much like meals served on airlines — when a new lunch program begins in 11 schools next fall.

The "satellite" lunch program, approved by the school board this week, has been in operation on an experimental basis at Larkshire Elementary school since spring vacation and at Middle Belt Elementary school since April.

"These are not frozen TV dinners," emphasized William C. Prisk, Farmington Schools' business manager. The food is prepared into prepackaged lunch-size portions and refrigerated in a central kitchen at Larkshire. The containers are then trucked to the satellite schools where the hot portions, individually wrapped in foil, are placed in quick-heating ovens.

DISTRICT ADVANTAGE

"This method has a distinct advantage because we can apportion properly so that the last child through the lunch line gets just as much to eat as the first child, and the food is just as hot," Prisk explained.

"We can serve any number of children much faster than we can by using traditional methods of cooking," he added.

The hot food tray is placed on top of the cold tray, each individually wrapped, with coverings that adhere to each other. The milk carton is placed on top of both.

Prisk explained that the child can then go directly to a table without fear of losing anything. Should the lunch fail, it is covered so it won't spill.

THROWS IT ALL AWAY

When finished, the child just nests one tray in the other, adds the plastic silverware and throws it all away.

The program offers an annual $7,000 savings, Prisk said. The initial cost for the equipment will be $29,000.

The cost for next year's satellite program will be $37,922.

Councilman in Wolverine Lake Gets 'Citizen of the Year' Honors

WOLVERINE LAKE — A. D. Balze, councilman and part-time acting village president, was honored as "Citizen of the Year" by Ford Motor Co.'s Plymouth Area Community Relations Committee last night.

A quality standards technician at the Sheldon Road plant in Plymouth, Balze, 1433 Shanklin received the Town Crier Bell, Ford's highest award for community service.

Balze has been a councilman for four years and has served as acting mayor during the mayor's exchange program during Michigan week for the past two years.

He has also served as chairman of the village's recreation committee and chairman of its employee relations committee. He is active in the YMCA Indian Guides, a program for boys, and as a Republican party precinct worker.

GUEST SPEAKER—Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley will be the featured speaker at West Bloomfield High School's 8 p.m. commencement ceremonies June 11. He will discuss the causes contributing to current campus crises across the nation and will discuss the responsibilities of college students.

Business District Renewal Plan to Be Aired in Oxford

OXFORD — Citizens affected by the proposed $4-million urban renewal project in Oxford central business district will have a chance to air their views and ask questions of village officials and representatives of the federal department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The Village Council last night set the meeting for 7:30 p.m. June 11 at the village hall. Representatives of HUD's Chicago office will be present to review Oxford's application for urban renewal.

In other business last night, the council agreed to go beyond painting the village water tower (cost of Washington Street near W. Burdick), allocating $31 for welding repairs and $294 for materials.

Avon Man Gets New Parke-Davis Position

AVON TOWNSHIP — Parke-Davis & Co. has announced the appointment of Robert J. Clegg, 368 Nesbit, a pharmaceutical product manager in the U.S. Marketing Division.

Clegg, 44, joined Parke-Davis in 1962 as a sales representative after two years in retail pharmacy. In 1966, he was promoted to field manager and supervised sales in the Grand Rapids and Detroit areas.

JCs to Serve Coffee to Holiday Motorists

LAPEER — The Jaycees here will provide free coffee and soft drinks to tired Memorial weekend motorists in an effort to "Bring 'Em Back Alive."

The coffee break center will open at 1 p.m. Sunday at Arnold Sales & Service Inc., 408 S. Main, south of M21. The coffee center will close when the traffic rush ends.

Rochester OKs 4-Year Lease

ROCHESTER — The city will take a four-year lease on a parking lot owned by Potere Funeral Home, on Walnut Street between Third and Fourth, for $1 per year.

Under the agreement, the city will resurface and the lot and will assume taxes on the property. The council recently directed the mayor and clerk to sign a lease agreement with the funeral home.

According to City Manager Bill Sinclair the city most likely will erect parking meters on the lot.

In other recent business, the city amended its downtown area zoning ordinance governing gas stations. Under the amendment, gas stations may not be constructed within 500 feet of each other. The amendment, said Sinclair, is an effort to halt further such developments in the downtown section.

Income Tax Big Boost to Finances

Pontiac's finances are in reasonably good shape, thanks to the city income tax, a report to the City Commission indicated last night.

The tax garnered some $2.5 million in 1968 after being imposed Jan. 1. Receipts to the city come in quarter years, so only three quarters were received last year.

Director of Finance, Edward Gallagher, projected that some $4.1 million will be collected this year, about 40 per cent of the city's entire budget.

Collections are very close to predictions made when the tax began. Gallagher pointed out the average amount paid by a resident is $48.53 yearly, termed high in comparison with other cities.

PROPERTY TAX DROP

After the income tax went into effect, the city dropped its property tax from 10 to 7 mills. This saved property taxpayers some $1.4 million.

However, with the additional income tax revenue, the city treasury is about $2.7 million ahead on the exchange.

Gallagher said that, in order to get the additional revenue by property tax methods, the city would have to add nine mills to the existing seven.

In other finance matters, Gallagher reported the city's equalized value was placed at $461,438,000, compared to $446,998,000 last year, a rise of about 3.3 per cent.

BEING REVISED

Gallagher also pointed out the city's budget is in the process of revision due to increased costs in the wage contracts agreed to by the city with its four employe unions.

In other business last night, the commission delayed approval of a contract for a new fire station at West South Boulevard between Motor and Bagley. Low bidder was R. L. Hanson Construction Co., 2111 Orchard Lake, West Bloomfield Township.

Ten firms bid on the job, with Hanson's low at $229,400, about $25,000 above expectations.

Bidders are to be checked for June 16 at a total estimated cost of $160,000. Work to be done this year under the proposed contract is: Curb gutter and paving on Ypsilanti.

The commission also:

- Directed the public works department to petition the Oakland County Drain Commission for construction of the North Central Storm Relief Sewer which will start near Joslyn and Tenayson and extend to the Clinton River. This extensive project is meant to replace 30-year-old systems said inadequate for the area and to remedy flooding.

- Held second reading on adopted amendments to the Building Code.

- Denied approval of a construction job for water mains on Stirling from Walton to Northfield and on Stirling from Northfield to Collier. Extensive objections were raised at a public hearing. The City Department of Public Works also recommended the project be delayed until at least 1973.

- Changed the name of the Diston between the Clinton River and Bagley to Gillespie.

- Recommended to the County Road Commission that construction projects on county roads in the city under study include Voorhees from Telegraph to James K. Collier, and Opdyke.

- Referred to the city engineer requests for sidewalks in the area of Malkin School — Joslyn, Walton and Collier streets — and a proposed water main on Emory from Hollister to Courtwright.

- Approved appointments: Vernon Page of 199 Rockwell to a new five-year-term on the Housing Commission and Elbert Wilmut of 74 Troquois to the Pontiac Area Planning Council.

- With Rev. Carl Price of 58 Franklin Boulevard as alternate.

- Resolved congratulations to former track star Hayes Jones and his parents on the honor bestowed on Jones who was inducted into the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame Monday.

Justice Talks of Court Situation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Potter Stewart said the court at the time he called President Nixon.

Fortas resigned from the court May 15 under criticism for his relationship with Louis E. Wolfson, now serving a jail term for violating securities laws.

CAUTIONED NIXON — Last week Nixon nominated Warren E. Burger, an appeals court judge, to succeed Earl Warren as chief justice.

Stewart said he visited the President last month to caution him against a promotion within the court's own ranks because it had not worked out.

But Stewart emphasized that he had no regrets and he could never be sure what he would have done if Fortas had been off well.

Lost Sweeper Found at Last

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The $13,000 street sweeper that vanished in November 1967 has mysteriously turned up in Aurora, Colo.

Ernest O. Weber, vice president of the Los Angeles Board of Public Works, said Tuesday the bright-orange machine was traced through its serial number after Aurora requested a service manual for it. The manufacturer notified Los Angeles that its sweeper had been found.

Weber said "I think" the 9-ton machine will be returned after some unanswered questions are cleared up.

We Cheer Apollo 10

Unlike most dress rehearsals, that of Apollo 10's epic eight-day space voyage to the edge of the moon was a brilliant success.

In final preparation for Apollo 11's mission of landing two men on the moon sometime in July, Apollo 10, after orbiting the moon for 2½ days, put two of its three-man crew—Air Force Col. THOMAS P. STAFFORD (captain of the spacecraft) and Navy Cmdr. EUGENE A. CERNAN within nine miles of the lunar objective. While they observed it at close range for eight hours, Navy Cmdr. JOHN W. YOUNG stayed behind in Apollo's command capsule to mind the store.

expression of human remoteness, "The man on the moon."

Progress of the Nation's space program from the first unmanned Explorer satellites through the Mercury, Gemini and Apollo series has been marked by fantastic achievement and operational expertness. Mainly all objectives of the complicated missions have been accomplished, as each succeeding one brought nearer the ultimate goal.

Credit for Apollo 10's spectacular exploratory feat, with its pinpoint splashdown in the Pacific Monday noon within 500 miles of Pago Pago, would cover a wide range of Government agencies, scientists, manufacturers, technicians and, of course, the intrepid astronauts who flew the spacecraft.

We congratulate all on the unceasing dedication that has given the United States its preeminence in the realm of celestial discovery.

All phases of the expedition went off with utmost precision, as the landing vehicle simulated maneuvers that will enable Apollo 11 to accomplish its historic mission. This long-awaited climax to America's program of space exploration will give dramatic reality to the once fanciful

Fired Teacher Regains Job

MARLYNN MARCKS was reinstated to teaching status Tuesday, but only after a painful experience that reflects discreditably on Highland Park school authorities.

The 33-year-old teacher was originally discharged by the school board for having informed police that one of her students had reported witnessing the shooting of a Detroit policeman on March 29 during disorder that centered at the New Bethel Baptist Church.

fusing it on advice of her attorney, she won complete vindication by a court order issued by Wayne County Circuit Judge Thomas J. Foley directing that she be returned to classroom duty.

Although the statement of the student which caused all the ruckus was later repudiated, Miss MARCKS nonetheless did her duty as a conscientious citizen by informing proper authorities of it. That she should have been punished for so doing is unthinkable, particularly at a time when good citizenship seems to be in short supply.

Because of public clamor against her summary dismissal, Miss MARCKS was subsequently offered a nonteaching job. Re-

Monkey to Ape Spaceman

Remember Enos the Astronaut? If you do, you qualify either as an expert in space history or as an animal lover, first-class. Enos was a chimpanzee and the first "American" to be sent into earth orbit and returned, way back in November 1961. Our primate friends are still playing an important role in space exploration. A little 15-pound pigtail monkey is scheduled to go into a 30-day orbit on June 18.

It will be the first time a high form of life will be studied continuously in a state of weightlessness for such a long period. The knowledge is essential for the planning of permanent, manned space platforms.

The tiny creature will be wedged inside a spherical Biosatellite amid a mess of instruments and other equipment and will be wired from head to toe. Surgically implanted electrodes will telemeter information on such things as brain temperature and muscle response. He won't be able to blink an eye without it being recorded on earth.

About the only diversion the monkey will have will be pushing buttons in two behavioral tasks. If he pushes the right buttons, he'll be rewarded with food pellets.

Here's a salute to the simian space hero. A human being put through the same ordeal would go ape.

Double View

(Niagara Falls Gazette)

If you have friends or acquaintances who are planning to come to Niagara Falls for a visit this summer, drop them a note and tell them they are in for a special treat. They will see the famous cataracts in a way that never has been possible before.

They'll see the great Horseshoe Falls rushing over the precipice in all its majesty — its rainbow shining through the mist and its constant roar sounding in full cadence. Just like it's always been.

Also, they'll see the American Falls silent and bone dry — its water diverted over the Horseshoe by a coffer dam and its rapids and crest exposed to full view for the first time ever.

The diversion — to last several months — will enable army engineers to study ways of halting erosion and removing unsightly rock piles. You might say that it will be two great sights for the price of one. Or as they say on the cocktail circuit, "with water" and "on the rocks."

The reason you ought to tell your friends about this is to correct a report, gaining some circulation, that the de-watering of the American cataracts will somehow detract from the view which tourists will get. Here on the scene, we know that just the opposite will be true.

Smut

The Daily Oklahoman

President Nixon has proposed a triple attack on smut sent through the mails and otherwise distributed to unwilling recipients.

An age limit governing addresses would be the first requirement. Advertising material to which the addressee objects also would be barred.

Considering the volume of such material, this idea no doubt will evoke a favorable reaction from decent citizens. There have been 140,000 protests sent the post office department since 1964 asking that delivery of such mail be prohibited.

In contrast to easier rulings by the supreme court, where the standard of decency was based on "contemporary mores" in municipalities and states, recent decisions have cast doubt on just what is permissible and what is not.

The President can send directives to the post office department. He can transmit legislative recommendations to Congress. But he can't end the flow of smut with the sort of rulings made by the high court recently.

The pendulum swings slowly, but it does swing. It appears now that this, and other areas, may get a different look if the court membership itself changes, as it could do within the next two years with four prospective vacancies.

Now We'll See How The Delivery Is!

David Lawrence Says:

Mail Service Stirring Complaints

WASHINGTON — Mail delivery is getting worse and worse throughout the United States. Whether packages or airmail letters are being sent, the delays are startling. Last week this correspondent received a letter from Sarasota, Fla., that took 11 days to be delivered, and another letter from Boston, Mass., delivered 10 days after mailing.

These are not rare instances. People all over the country are complaining about the mails.

President Nixon has announced that he agrees with President Johnson that the recommendation made by a national commission, proposing the establishment of an independent corporation to handle the mails, should be adopted.

Mr. Nixon declares that, without such a system, Congress either will have to raise postage rates or the taxpayers will have to bear the burden of paying deficits far greater than at present, when they are running at a billion dollars a year.

BIG DEFICIT

In the last 10 years, the deficits have amounted to more than $8 billion, and Mr. Nixon says it will be twice that much if the post practices of the Post Office Department are continued.

What is not generally realized is that the Post Office Department today handles an unprecedented volume of mail — approximately 84 billion pieces annually — which is almost as much as the postage systems of all the other countries in the world combined.

More capital is needed so as to take advantage of machines available to handle and process the mail. The Post Office Department has not invested enough capital to do this.

Postmaster Gen. Winston Bland, who was formerly the head of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, pointed out recently that there is no need for large post office buildings in the center of cities. He said they could be better placed on the outskirts where there is access to highways, airlines and trains, while small branch post offices would be located inside the cities.

FREQUENTLY DELAYED

Even the mail within cities is frequently delayed. Blount said in an interview recently: "You hear people in our big cities talking about mail taking three or four days to get across town when it can cross the country in a day or so."

The Post Office Department is frequently confronted with complaints, particularly because of the damage suffered when important business mail is delayed.

While there has been much discussion in the last two years about a government-owned but independent corporation to operate the mails, members of Congress are reluctant to do much about it. They want to keep control of the post office because they feel it benefits them politically. Many postmasters owe their jobs to members of Congress whom they have usually helped in their campaigns.

But the real opponents are to be found in the postal union. Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., says that the proposal "will never pass as long as postal unions are opposed to it."

He suggests that their fears about "being thrown to the wolves" must be calmed.

It could be, of course, that if Congress blocks the plan, protests will be noted in the congressional campaign of 1970.

For there are plenty of persons who have been annoyed by the delays in the delivery of mail, and many members of Congress of both parties may be surprised at the votes against them if something isn't done to improve the operations of the post offices throughout the United States.

Wounded Veteran Tells of GI's Burden in Viet

NEW YORK — Meet Capt. Max Cleland, U.S. Army (Ret.), formerly with the First Air Cavalry, Vietnam. Looks like Gordon MacRae and has a master's degree in American studies from Emory College, Atlanta.

He also has both legs and his right arm off. And the Silver Star. He is 26, and alternately cheerful and puzzled: "I'm lucky. I could've been killed," he said.

"Fellows over there carry a lot of burdens," the wonderful guy said in his articulate manner. "One of the burdens is the burden of dissent. The dissent back home, that is. The fellow in the field has no such choice as dissent. He doesn't have the privilege to dissent. He's there, and that's that."

"But the fact that others have the right to dissent, and do, back home, is a psychological weight on him. He's not antidisemit, mind you. Just puzzled. He wonders why we can't think alike on a thing like Vietnam, one way or the other."

VOLUNTEERED FOR VIET

"I volunteered to go to Vietnam. I had a soft job as a general's aide back here but I couldn't escape my conscience. I think I see things a little more clearly now."

"Apparently we're now going to have a token withdrawal, just as we once had a token buildup. But that won't please everybody over there."

"We could send between 50,000 and 100,000 guys home right now and not really weaken our punch. But if I were still there I wouldn't like to see it. One of those guys sent home might somehow have saved my life."

"It's all bound up in politics. There are battles that are waged to make a political point. Sometimes they don't even make the point."

'CHANGED OUTLOOK'

"Fighting for a hill on the Laotian border or Cambodian border doesn't change the war. But the big Tet offensive of last year did. It changed our whole outlook on the war."

"It had the same effect on American public opinion as the loss of Dien Bien Phu had on the French people. It started the 'Let's get out' crusades that have been taken up by so many of the Left and Right."

He's not bitter, really. "I'm not a paraplegic," he said, waving his lone wing for emphasis. "True, it's tough without knees. Nobody at the Veterans' hospital in Washington, where they're fitting me with some legs, can assure me that I'll make it. But I'm going to foot it. I'm going to make it."

"And when I do I'm going to write a book — a study of what happened in this country and in Vietnam between President Johnson's State of the Union message in January 1966, and his abdication speech on March 31."

He thinks Vietnam will end with a draw, but that it won't be quite as good a draw as Korea. "The Seventh Fleet can't surround three-fourths of Vietnam," he explained pointedly.

Beauty of Area Roadside Is Ruined by Dumping

Recently I walked down Martin Road, a short road between Oakley Park and Richardson. This used to be a beautiful road with big trees overhanging the road. Now it is nothing but a public dump littered with furniture, old appliances, bathroom fixtures, bags of leaves and garbage. There is not a sign saying not to dump anything.

Is there a dump where people in this area can take junk? There should be signs posted and anyone found dumping on the roadside should be fined. Can this road be cleaned up?

Has Suggestions to Ease Housing Shortage

The ADC could help eliminate the problem of having to house families in motels by raising the amount allotted for rent. Property owners could help by including utilities in their rent demands. Now that ADC recipients are trying to buy homes, a lot of substandard houses are for sale that do not meet the strict housing code under which an ADC recipient can buy. Some of these houses could be used by needy families on a rental basis.

County Communities May Pay 30% of River Work

By JEAN SAILLE

Oakland County communities may be called on to contribute as much as 30 per cent of the as-yet-unknown cost of widening and dredging the Clinton River through Macomb County.

And the benefits won't be noticed by the average county resident, but County drain commissioner Daniel Barry knows notice would be taken if the benefits weren't provided.

The project, as Barry describes it, would require about $5.5 million to widen, deepen and straighten the Clinton from the outlet of the Red Run Drain in the southern portion of the county to the Market Street bridge in Mount Clemens. The figure quoted does not include the cost of acquiring some 800 acres of land necessary for the project.

COSTS FOR PROJECT
Costs are to be borne by Macomb, Oakland, Lapeer and St. Clair counties on a "benefit received — contribution made" basis, according to Barry.

The only benefit for Oakland, Lapeer and St. Clair counties will be a place to empty storm waters, Barry notes, but for Macomb it means alleviation of recurring flood conditions.

Oakland was also required to contribute when the Clinton River spillway was constructed nearly 20 years ago, and it was the percentage figured at that time that Barry ascribes to the pending project.

Drains are big business, particularly in the last 10 years, since legislation has been upheld which allows a governmental unit to spread the costs of construction across the unit as a whole.

$65 MILLION IN PROJECTS

Barry estimated the county is currently engaged in drain projects for 1969 and 1970 to the cost of $65 million. There are 45 separate systems involved. He estimated a total of 320 existing drain systems in the county, some of them dating back to the Civil War, and many of them simply open ditches.

While getting rid of sewage is not the drain commissioner's problem, Barry does expect to get involved in projects designed to free drain water from pollution.

The drain commissioner said the County Board of Supervisors will probably be asked next month for permission to proceed with surveys which might provide solutions to pollution problems in the south end of the county.

There Barry noted storm and sanitary sewers are interconnected and an estimated $50 million would be needed to separate them.

Whether separation is the answer is also a big question in Barry's mind.

Apart from the excessive cost, he notes that pollution experts are coming to the realization that there is much pollution in ordinary drain water as there is in sewage. What the eventual answer will be, he doesn't know.

He does say, however, that the answer must be in accordance with the communities' ability to pay.

And even then, the commissioner notes, a really big rain can make even the best system inefficient.

A goodly portion of a drain commissioner's reputation rests on the weather man, Barry might agree.

Police Think Car Hit Boy Deliberately

GIBRALTAR (UPI) — While 12-year-old Jeffrey Polishak lies in University Hospital in Ann Arbor with two broken legs, police in this downriver Detroit suburb are hunting for the hit-and-run driver they think deliberately struck the boy.

The youth was bicycling to baseball practice from his Rockwood home Monday afternoon when a speeding car veered off the road, struck Jeffrey and dragged him under its body for more than 50 feet.

The driver, believed to be a teen-ager, then sped away with one witness in pursuit until he finally evaded him in a residential section. A friend of Jeffrey's managed to jump from his bike and wasn't injured.

"I would suspect we're dealing with some teen-agers who panicked," said Gibraltar Police Chief Tim Ford. "I'm just guessing, but they may have just wanted to 'skin' the kids. The way they kept on going would indicate they knew they struck one of them."

The car was described as a two-door, blue-green 1963 to 1966 Chevrolet or possibly Plymouth which should have red paint all over the front from Jeffrey's smashed bicycle.

Hal Dreams the Impossible Dream and...

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The wonderful thing about life is that it always leaves you something to look forward to.

BOYLE

Whether you have achieved much or little, whether you are young, middle-aged or elderly, there always remain slights you haven't seen and things you haven't done. There is no such person as a man or woman who has everything.

The world always has some added experience in prospect, an old ambition unachieved, a fresh quest that beckons.

Here's one man's list of things he may still get around to doing one of these days:

Set an income tax form to music and ask Congress to make it the national anthem.

Sail the Atlantic in a paper yacht made from varnished copies of the Sunday New York Times.

SELL IT BACK

Sell Manhattan Island back to the Indians for a keg of whisky and a $24 mortgage.

Solve the poverty problem by giving everyone in America his own private key to Ft. Knox.

Become the leading guru of Keokuk.

Talk a besieged gunman into surrendering by telling him that's what his dear old mother would want him to do—if she weren't in jail herself for shop-lifting.

Meet a teen-ager who was allergic to pizza pies, French fried potatoes, and the telephone.

Buy the Eiffel Tower for Howard Hughes and move it to Las Vegas.

Paint the Empire State Building with psychedelic designs.

CAVE AT MIAMI

Build a 1,000-room cave on Miami Beach for hermits who prefer to live underground.

Carve the head of Benedict Arnold on the Mt. Rushmore memorial, so tourists could have something to criticize as well as praise.

Help a fainting robin into its nest again.

Get Greta Garbo to put a well-combed before her front door.

Create a sex-free movie that children could take their parents to without having to worry about the old folks' blushing.

Turn every girl in the world red-haired—so there'd be one for every man.

GIVE IT BACK

Give athlete's foot back to the athletes.

Pass a law requiring that all ashtrays be at least eight inches square and six inches deep.

Invent windows made of layers of plastic. Then a man wouldn't have to wash them—he could just peel them clean.

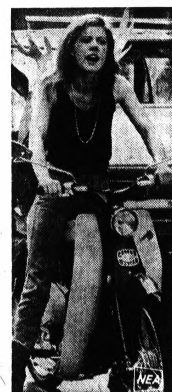

Discover something more to hope about today in modern youth, the "hope of tomorrow."

Perfect a lie detector machine that would work on political candidates as well as criminals.

Extend the present oil depletion allowances to millions of taxpayers who find their pocket-books are depleting even faster than the average oil well.

SILENT TELEVISION

Offer ear-throbbing mankind the boom of the century—a new form of entertainment called silent television. Even the horses in the horse operas would run on padded hooves.

STAR STALLED — Actress Patty Duke gives out with some invective as she is stalled in traffic in a scene from an upcoming movie.

JOB-HUNTING — Toni Amber poses for photographers at Cannes, France, in hopes that some producer in town for the International Film Festival will sign her for a film role.

S. Africa Head Unites His Party

Nationalists Toe Line After Crucial Caucus

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister John Vorster has papered over cracks in the ruling Nationalist party and blocked the threat of a splinter political movement. Two dissident Nationalist members of Parliament agreed to toe the party line in what Vorster termed a "reconciliation." He said differences were dissolved unanimously at a caucus in Cape Town.

"All members of the caucus are ... convinced that South Africa can only be governed and steered to its destiny through the policy and principles of the National party," he added. Nationalists have been in power 21 years and right-wing discontent has been smoldering. Plans were announced in April for a new "purified" Afrikaner political organization which would challenge Vorster for the allegiance of conservative Afrikaners.

CONSERVATIVE FEARS
The right-wingers fed on the fears of some conservatives that Vorster's policies would dilute Afrikaner nationalism and lead eventually to the end of white supremacy. Afrikaners are the descendants of Dutch-origin Boer pioneers who adhered to a stern Calvinist faith, sowed the seeds of race segregation and viewed outsiders with suspicion. Conservatives think Vorster is leading South Africa away from these principles.

A key conservative figure has been Dr. Albert Hertzog, who was dropped from Vorster's Cabinet last year. Hertzog and another member of parliament, Louis Stofberg, are now back in the party mainstream, Vorster announced.

The prime minister said Hertzog "rejects the people who pose as Nationalists and try to shield behind him, while they are in fact engaged in plans for the formation of a new party and are undermining the National party."

POLITICAL MIRACLE
The Nationalist party newspaper in Johannesburg, Die Transvaler, praised Vorster for achieving a "political miracle." Some observers believe deep-seated differences will inevitably reassert themselves.

Leading conservative spokesmen now are Barry Botha, editor of Veg (Fight) magazine, who last month announced plans for a new party, and S.E.D. Brown, editor of the monthly pamphlet South African Observer. In his May issue, Brown spoke of a growing credibility gap between Vorster and traditionalist Afrikaners. "The gap between Mr. Vorster and his people is widening, not diminishing," he said.

Space Program Defenders Point Out Benefits

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Even as the United States space program stands at the threshold of man's greatest technological feat—a moon landing—space agency officials continue to find themselves having to defend the program's existence.

Critics say the billions of dollars that are paving the route from earth to moon are more urgently needed on earth to combat a host of domestic problems.

But defenders point to a long list of material benefits from space research: A sensor that counts meteorite hits on a spacecraft is the basis of an instrument that, by measuring muscle tremors, may help to detect early signs of neurological ailments such as Parkinson's disease. A technique used to clarify spacecraft photos of Mars and the moon by putting TV signals through a computer is being refined to clarify medical X-rays.

Electronic sensors used to keep tabs on astronauts in space have been adapted to continuously monitor the pulse, respiration, temperature and blood pressure of heart patients.

A switch operated simply by eye movements was developed for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and has been adapted for use in a motorized wheelchair. It enables a paraplegic to control the chair without moving his body.

A tiny FM radio transmitter developed by NASA to radio solution on an astronaut's chest electrocardiograms from astronauts and other subjects being tested in centrifuges is being used on patients in hospitals. If the infant stops breathing for 10 seconds, it sounds a buzzer so a nurse can rush to the child for emergency care.

By modifying astronauts' space helmets, researchers have designed a device which, when placed over the head of a patient, measures oxygen consumption.

A technique for spraying a radio solution on an astronaut's chest to hold lead wires for recording heartbeats is being used on patients in hospitals or being transported by ambulance.

In nonmedical fields, an electromagnetic hammer that smooths weld seams without weakening metal, invented for building the Saturn 5 moon rocket, is being tested in shipyards, airplane factories and automobile plants.

COMPUTER ADVANCES
Important savings have been realized in industrial space and fault zones.

What about the future? Just as advance warnings from hurricane-hunting weather satellites have provided time for preparations that have saved countless lives, observations from earth-resources spacecraft to be launched in 1971 could reveal potential hazards such as landslide areas and

Old, New Jazz Programs Planned on Campus of OU

Two of the entertainment world's most outstanding musical groups, The Preservation Hall Jazz Band and Young-Holt, Unlimited, will bring a weekend of great old and new jazz to Oakland University's Baldwin Pavilion on June 13 and 14.

At 8:30 p.m. on June 13, The Preservation Hall Jazz Band will return to Meadow Brook for one performance only after its triumphant appearance here last June.

Granny Proves Rocking Chair Days Numbered

NEW YORK (UPI) — She's a grandma with the traditional rocking chair. But she's also a grandma who wears false eyelashes, the latest in makeup, and models clothes.

She, at 42, is the "National Glamour Grandmother of the Year."

"Grandma" in this case is the gorgeous looking green-eyed blonde with two children, Barbara, 25, and Robert, 13, and two grandchildren, Barbara, Mrs. Paul Daon of Cincinnati, Ohio has Jeffrey, 5, and David, two months.

The name of this glamour grandmother: Mrs. Robert (Kathy Elizabeth) Rothacker, of Cincinnati.

THINK YOUNG
"If you think young, you stay young," said Mrs. Rothacker, who was selected from a field of 5,000 candidates in what its sponsors call the first national search for glamour grandmothers to kill off the stereotyped image of the inactive woman, gray-haired, rocking and knitting.

Mrs. Rothacker got the rocking chair as a present from friends when the pageant sponsors announced she was "It." Each burned her name into the chair as one memento of the selection.

The finals were held at Horizon City, near El Paso, Tex., and when Mrs. Rothacker returned to Cincinnati friends also had erected a 70 foot sign in her front yard with flashing lights saying, "Welcome Home, Grandma."

Evangelist and Mrs. Billy Graham have announced in Asheville, N.C. the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Bell, to Ted Diener of Rydal, Pa. She is a sophomore at Gordon College in Massachusetts. Diener is employed in Philadelphia. No wedding date has been set.

whom are over 60, have been playing in New Orleans' French Quarter and the surrounding parishes for over 40 years and are among the few living talented negro jazzmen who originated the pre-Dixieland New Orleans style.

The music they play has scarcely changed since the turn of the century. It is plain, unadorned, footstomping original jazz.

On June 14 at 8:30 p.m., Young-Holt, Unlimited will offer a unique new sound, "happy jazz." Originally two-thirds of the famed Ramsey Lewis Trio, Red Holt and Eldee Young have formed this exciting new trio with Hysear Don Walker.

Their recent best-selling single and album entitled "Wack, Wack," gave the music world a sampling of a fresh and exciting "IN" sound of today. Their latest single success, "Ain't There Something That Money Can't Buy," which is included in their new album, created an additional demand for more of their infectious, swinging music.

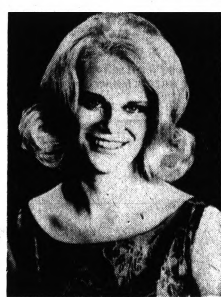

As a result of their growing popularity, night-club, concert and television appearances have become a steady part of their routine.

Tickets for the Preservation Hall Jazz Band and the Young-Holt, Unlimited concerts at Meadow Brook will be available at the Meadow Brook Theatre and at all Hudson and Grinnell stores.

Area Folks Are Making Tracks Across State, Country, Continent

By SHIRLEY GRAY
Mr. and Mrs. George Altmansberger of Bloomfield Hills have just spent a week in Norwich, Conn. Daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Mark (Karen) Graves have lived there for a year now, ever since Mark separated from the service.

The especially nice part of the visit was seeing Karen's two youngsters, the only two Altmansberger grandchildren.

DEAR ABBY: My wife took a secretarial job with an insurance company just to keep herself busy as the kids are grown and gone. Suddenly she announces that she and a man she works with are going on a weight losing contest.

The one who loses the most weight in 30 days has to treat the other one to a steak dinner in the best restaurant in town. (Just the two of them.) I trust my wife, but I don't like the idea of her going out to dinner with another man. He's married, too, but I understand his wife is all for it as she'll do anything to get him to lose weight.

Should I go along with this "contest" or not?

JEALOUS
DEAR JEALOUS: It sounds like a fun kind of contest with a healthy objective. Give them your blessings and may the biggest loser win.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, I overheard my teen-age son telling a friend that the two teen-age daughters of a good friend of mine were having sexual relations with the two sons of a woman who is a mutual friend of both the mother of the girls and myself.

When I asked my son how he came by this information, he said the two boys had been bragging about it at school. My son asked me not to tell anyone but I have not, as yet, agreed. I told him I would have to think about it.

Abby, I have never believed in interfering in the lives of my friends but I wonder if I would be a true friend to the two mothers if I just keep quiet. By speaking out, I could either be instrumental in helping all concerned avoid a tragedy, or I could lose two friends.

Consequently, I have decided to ask your advice and then follow it. Of course, I do not know that the boys' boasts are even true, but I do know that the boys and girls have been dating.

CONCERNED PARENT
DEAR CONCERNED: Now would be a good time to tell your son that a man of character NEVER — but NEVER repeats ugly rumors. And if I were you, I'd remain silent.

DEAR ABBY: You were right in advising that mother not to dwell on the fact that her 13-year-old daughter refused to lend her mother her "good white kid gloves" for a special evening out.

I was about that age when I refused to let my mother wear my "good" jacket. I

Expect Action

Abortion Bills Remain Pending

LANSING (AP) — Proponents of abortion law reform are working behind the scenes, trying to pin down the 20 Senate votes they'll need to win a second attempt to order debate on the emotionally charged issue.

Sens. Gilbert Bursley, R-Ann Arbor, and John McCauley, D-Wyandotte, say they expect action late this week that could take their reform proposals off the table and put them in line for a vote.

Bursley's bill would allow termination of pregnancy if:

- There is significant risk that the physical or mental health of the mother would be seriously impaired.
- The pregnancy resulted from rape or incest.

- There is significant risk that the child would be born with serious physical or mental defect.

McCauley's proposal — far more sweeping — would remove criminal penalties for abortions performed in licensed and accredited hospitals by licensed and accredited doctors.

Moves last week to order debate on the Bursley bill failed by two votes, 18-13. Nineteen senators voted against taking the McCauley bill from the table, while only 13 approved the motion.

Bursley and McCauley said they were not discouraged by the votes, however, will never forget the hurt look on her face when I told her no. She didn't say a word. She just turned around and left without it. When I saw her through the window wearing her shabby old coat, I could have bitten my tongue off.

She never mentioned it, nor did she ever "punish" me, but it has been 10 years, and my own conscience has punished me plenty.

STILL SORRY

because the apparent defeat served to mobilize backers throughout the state.

"I've had many phone calls from people who think the bills are in trouble," Bursley said. "And some of them have started telephone campaigns, urging 'yes' votes for us."

The Michigan Catholic Conference, major opponent of liberalized abortion laws, still is working against the bills.

I was delighted to see, in the picture you sent me, that your daughter held herself proudly, looked her priestess, and most of all, the couple looked so happy.

FAMILY TREE

Dear Mrs. Post: With the birth of our son, a question of great importance has arisen. My mother and father have been divorced for 12 years. During this time I have seen him only twice.

My father has never remarried, but my mother has. The relationship with my stepfather has been friendly. What would be the correct name to enter on our family tree, as my baby's grandfather — my real father, or my stepfather? — Brenda

Dear Brenda: A family tree follows a bloodline and when the line is interrupted that branch stops. Therefore, it is your father's name — not your stepfather's — that must be entered as the baby's grandfather.

Treat Friend to Ease Pain on Anniversary

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: My friend's anniversary is coming up shortly but her husband passed away a month ago. Does one just completely drop anniversaries now that she is alone and in a sense, there is no more marriage? — Ruth

Dear Ruth: It is extremely painful to most widows and widowers to receive the same sort of remembrance they did when their partners were alive. A more considerate way of remembering the occasion is to ask your friend to your home, or to take her out to dinner, to afford her some diversion and keep her from becoming depressed on that special day.

CRITICISM
Dear Mrs. Post: I am enclosing a picture of my daughter and her husband on their wedding day. Our daughter is slightly taller than her husband. I have had a great deal of criticism that she should not have worn high heels. Actually they were very low but narrow.

She looked taller than him because of the heels, hair-do, and veil. But I cannot understand why that is so important. They are so very happy together. Why do people get so petty about things like this? — Ruby

Dear Ruby: Your friends had no business criticizing your daughter. What she wore was entirely her business, and furthermore, the slight difference in height was totally unimportant. A slender heel is far more flattering and graceful to someone who is a little bit heavier than "flats."

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

Dear Mrs. Farmer: The other day I made a terrible mistake and put my buttonholes on the wrong side of my dress. I haven't enough material left to rectify the front and wonder if you have any idea how I may cover up my mistake.—Mrs. M. A. W.

Dear Mrs. M. A. W.: First, I suggest you measure the fronts and see if you can't just whip the completed buttonholes together, sew the button over this and remake them on the correct side. The success of this would depend on whether the lap at the center front would cover the old buttonhole.

If this doesn't work, you may be able to add a decorative strip of contrasting grosgrain ribbon, embroidered banding, heavy lace or whatever letting it extend past the front edge of the garment. This could actually make the dress more original and interesting than it would have been without the contrasting trim.

You could also add decorative frogs which would cover the buttonholes entirely. Since you didn't mention your fabric, I will have to generalize and suggest you work out something original with one of the above ideas.

Dear Eunice Farmer: I am accustomed to finding most collars marked with the usual notation that it will shrink less than one per cent. Recently, I have some fabrics marked with the shrinkage listed at two to three per cent. Would I be safe in washing this garment and still be able to wear it, or should I shrink it first?—Mrs. F. B.

Dear Mrs. F. B.: Upon checking this information from you, I have found that there is quite a lot of fabric available this summer that does say it might shrink two to three per cent. It would certainly be safer if you would preshrink this fabric before cutting your garment. Since most fabrics today have been treated for wrinkle resistance, just place the fabric in fairly warm water and let it dry. It won't require much pressing (if any) and you can now proceed with confidence.

Incidentally, I have suggested that if you are going to wash any fabric, you preshrink the underlining fabric first. Even though they guarantee with some brands that it won't shrink, we have still had experience of some shrinkage, and this could prove disastrous. Better to take a few minutes in advance instead of having to take an entire dress apart later.

For instructions on making bound buttonholes send for Eunice Farmer's free leaflet "Bound Buttonholes." To obtain your leaflet send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of The Pontiac Press, Dept. E-600, P.O. Box 9, Pontiac, Mich. 48065.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. Maurice Tomjack, Rock Rapids, Iowa, is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

"I've discovered a quick and easy way to gather the popular gathered skirts, as well as easing the lower edge of a sleeve before applying the cuffs and any other tedious gathering job. Use a piece of No. 8 thread, (buttonhole twist, heavy carpet thread may be substituted) and cut it 2 inches longer than the finished gathering, knot one end securely. Place it on the line that is to be gathered, set the zigzag stitch at a wide setting and carefully sew with the zigzag stitch over the heavy thread, pulling gently behind the presser foot.

The thread is heavy enough to withstand the gentle maneuvering of gathers, and it is 'sew simple' to get your gathering nice and even as well as exactly the right length when finished."

Flower Talk

THE GOAT'S BEARD

One of the most unusual members of the rose family is the Goat's Beard rose. This pistillate flower has usually three distinct pistils and it is three to six feet high. They grow in the rich woods in Pennsylvania south to Alabama and west to Arkansas.

The tiny narrow - petaled flowers are yellowish-white, and they are an exception to the general rule of the family, as they are staminate on one plate and pistillate upon another. The stem is smooth and the deep green leaves are compound, and sometimes they have eleven small leaflets. These flowers are very tall.

For any of your floral requests, just call FE 2-0127 and we will be happy to assist you.

Rings Are Exchanged

Lee Pauline Eby and John E. Hardy Jr., were married Saturday during a double ring exchange in St. Andrew's Catholic Church, Rochester.

Attended by her sister, Rita, the bride was gownned in organza trimmed with lace and seed pearl.

Mrs. Danny Graham and Bernadette Eby, also sisters of the bride, assisted as bridesmaids with Anne Marie Ketterer as flower girl. Best man was Stanley Karas.

The daughter of the Emerson Elys of Rochester and the son of Mrs. Fred Steckley of Royal Oak and the late John E. Hardy were feted at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Lake Orion.

Following a honeymoon trip to the Smoky Mountains, the couple will make their home in Berkeley.

For Droopy Eyes

No amount of makeup can make dull, tired eyes look attractive. A basic essential for eye care is one that most of us forget. That is — enough sleep and rest. A tired person can't help having tired-looking eyes.

BPW Group Reveals Plans

The Michigan Federation of Business and Professional Women met in annual convention last weekend in Grand Rapids. During their business sessions, they voted on two recommendations of interest to women in general:

- That the Federation contact President Nixon and Mrs. Elly Peterson, requesting that Dr. Margaret Moore of Indianapolis, Ind. be appointed to the office of Secretary of Urban Affairs under George Romney. She would work as woman director of law enforcement and the prevention of crime. Dr. Moore was instigator of this movement in Indianapolis.

- That the Federation, the local clubs and individuals write President Nixon requesting the appointment of the Hon. Martha W. Griffiths to the Supreme Court.

Miss America 1958, Marilyn Van Derbur, was guest speaker at the banquet.

Among area women attending the meetings were Mesdames: Andrew Mitchell, E. Cleo Wiley, Fred Giddings, E. R. Sturdy, Berdie Hall and George Frayer. Others were the Misses: Wilma Webb, Joanne Walsen, Helen Kinney, Mabel Smith, Faye Donelson and Bernice Hueter.

Soap Eases Task

To simplify the task of stitching heavy material, such as denim or canvas, on the sewing machine, rub the seams with a bar of hard soap. Then the needle will pass through the material easily, making your sewing go smoother and faster.

PCHS Class Notes Golden Reunion

Thirty-eight persons attended the golden anniversary reunion of Pontiac Central High School class of 1919. Joining the party were members of 1918 and 1920 graduating classes.

Master of ceremonies at All Saints Episcopal Church on Saturday was Donald McGaffey of Holly. He was assisted in arrangements by Mesdames: Bradley Miller, Virginia Husted, Hazel Schroeder and Paul Nelson.

Mrs. Sophia Eaton Kelly, who taught at PCHS during the time this group was in high school, was a guest.

Mrs. Alice McKinnon Brumfield came from Naples, Fla. and the Ed Logies from Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Eriksens Are Newlyweds

King of Kings Lutheran Church, Lake Orion, was the recent setting for the marriage of Hilary Potter and Cpl. Erik C. Eriksen, USMC, son of the Richard O. Eriksens of Clarkston Road, Oakland Township.

The daughter of the Keith Potters of Indianapolis, Ind., was assisted by her sisters, Becky and Missy, with Kirk and Rick Eriksen attending their brother.

Following a honeymoon trip to northern Michigan, the newlyweds will make their home in North Carolina where Cpl. Eriksen is stationed.

Portuguese Battle Guerrillas in Thick Mozambique Jungles

MUEDA, Mozambique (U) — The operating theater in the small military hospital looks grim. Oxygen cylinders are stacked in the corner. Equipment lacks the usual polish. The once cream walls of the small square room are green with mold.

"We can't get rid of it," says the surgeon with a shrug. "Once the rainy season is over we'll be able to scrub the walls clean and paint them."

The Portuguese hospital is at this military outpost in the far north of Mozambique where African nationalist guerrillas are trying to overthrow a rule which began in the early 18th century.

STEAMY JUNGLES

Fighting between Portuguese forces and the Mozambique Liberation Front, known as Frelimo, is hardly a war in the conventional sense. It is a series of inconclusive skirmishes. Most involve only a few dozen men.

Fighting is in steamy jungle country where supply trucks can take three days to cover 40 miles over roads and tracks torn by torrential rains.

For the Portuguese soldiers, it is an irritating, nerve-racking war against a hit-and-run enemy seldom seen in undergrowth or thick grass that grows eight feet high. For Frelimo guerrillas, based across the Rovuma River in neighboring Tanzania, it is an uphill struggle. It's bad enough for the Portuguese troops, but the guerrillas don't have helicopters, light aircraft or vehicles to evacuate them if they are wounded. This is one of three costly little wars Portugal is fighting against nationalists in its African territories. The others are in Angola and Portuguese Guinea, both on the west coast of Africa. Like the allies in Vietnam, Portuguese forces are fighting an elusive opponent in conditions favoring guerrilla warfare.

Frelimo guerrillas operate in small bands and never press home an attack. Groups of 20 to 30 mine roads and tracks and strike from ambush. They melt away into the bush before the Portuguese can launch an effective counterattack.

TIES DOWN ARMY

The Frelimo tactics are not sufficient to wrest the initiative from the Portuguese, but the harassment ties down an army of 40,000 to 50,000 of both whites and blacks.

Casualty rates, according to Portuguese communiques, average about 10 Portuguese and 100 guerrillas killed a month.

There are three war zones: In the Tete district, where the planned giant Cabora Bassa dam is to harness the waters of the Zambezi; in the northwest corner of the territory, in Niassa district; and in the northeastern corner, in the Cabo Delgado district.

They are remote areas, far from the main towns and cities of Mozambique where South African and Rhodesian tourists flock.

CENTRAL HQ

Gen. Antonio dos Santos directs operations from headquarters in the central city of Nam-pula.

His chief of staff, Brig. Pinto Bessa, said Frelimo has been virtually wiped out, for the present, in Tete and is being steadily pushed back in Niassa. The main fighting, where "the situation is stable," is in Cabo Delgado.

Mueda is nestled on the edge of a small 3,000-foot plateau. Supplies, with roads near impassable during the rainy season, are flown in by Nord Atlas aircraft. Single-engine Dorniers relay them to smaller settlements.

The commanding officer, Lt. Col. Nuno Frazao, is a short, smiling man who carries a swagger stick carved from ebony wood and bearing the head of a Makonde tribal chief.

UNPLEASANT OUTPOST

His battalion occupies one of the most unpleasant major outposts in Portuguese Africa, but he and his officers can still enjoy brandy with coffee after dinner.

Periodically, perhaps once a year, Frelimo attacks Mueda itself.

They are remote areas, far from the main towns and cities

Like other African nationalist movements, Frelimo is backed by Communists, notably Chinese, who arm, train and supply them. Portuguese troops frequently display captured weapons made in China, the Soviet on foot.

The Portuguese are cautiously optimistic that they will be able to win back from Frelimo the 100,000 to 130,000 Africans estimated to be actively supporting the guerrillas.

Rising Sons of Japan Keep Rising, Thanks to Western Diets

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is a markedly taller and heavier short story of growth and an Eastern story of Western influence. The Japanese, mainly because of Western-type diets begun during allied occupation after World War II, are growing taller and heavier.)

By FRANCIS K. ICHIGAYA
TOKYO — Average Japanese bigger than average Americans.
It could happen some day, says one Japanese scientist. Meanwhile, Japanese children are outgrowing their school desks, and houses may have to be remodeled with higher ceilings and doorways.
The Japanese are growing taller and heavier.

The average American stands 5 feet 7 inches, about 3.9 inches taller than the average Japanese.
Nagamine said the dietary change as well as the sharp rise in Japanese living standards undoubtedly have contributed to the remarkable physical growth in postwar Japan.
The impressive physical changes are particularly remarkable in younger generations.

'COULD PASS YANKS'
"It may be in the not so distant future the Japanese would possibly surpass the Americans in their physical measurements," said Dr. Shinkichi Nagamine of the National Institute of Nutrition, run by the Ministry of Health and Welfare.

OUTGROW FURNITURE
In primary and junior high schools, children have outgrown their desks and chairs, officials at the Ministry of Education reported, and the ministry had to revise standards for classroom furniture.

Draft Chief Against Army of Volunteers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey opposed President Nixon's proposal for an all-volunteer Army because he says it won't work and it isn't the American way.
The 75-year-old lieutenant general, charged with inducing the willing as well as the unwilling, indicated the American fighting man traditionally has been a volunteer fighting for his nation's freedom, not for cash rewards.
"I do have misgivings, as old men do, of having a person go into something for no other reason than to get money," Hershey said in previously secret congressional testimony made public yesterday.

Testifying before a House Appropriations subcommittee Feb. 17, Hershey explained why he didn't think scrapping the draft in favor of a professional army of volunteers would succeed.

EXPERIENCE 'NOT GOOD'
"The experience, ever since 1939, on recruiting, has not been too good," Hershey told his questioners. "Since 1940 I have a schedule that shows the influence on recruiting. You can figure that about 60 days in advance of induction, when the call goes out, if it is a big call, then you will get an up in recruiting. If it is a little call, that is when recruiting slows down."

Shortly after he assumed office Jan. 20, Nixon took steps to fulfill a campaign pledge that he would work for an all-volunteer army once the war in Vietnam ended.

A ministry survey showed the average height of 11-year-old boys has increased by 4.6 inches over the past 68 years.

Girls of the same age had an increase of 3.4 inches.

During the 1900-1968 period, the 11-year-old boys gained 13.6 pounds and the girls 18.9 pounds in weight, the survey said.
For 14-year-old boys the average increase in height was 4.95 inches during the same period.

NOTABLE PERIOD
Officials said the growth rate was especially bigger in the last two decades, during which most of the deprivations of World War II had been ameliorated or eliminated completely.

"Today," they said, "it is common for 14- or 15-year-old children to be taller than their parents."

Officials said rice is called a staple food for 1.8 billion people in Asia, but in Japan more people are eating or drinking such foods as bread, butter, corn flakes, eggs, meat and milk.

"It's not too much to say that almost every Japanese home has no rice on the breakfast menu today," they stated.

SCHOOL LUNCH SYSTEM
The tendency for younger Japanese to prefer no-rice diets could be attributed partly to a school lunch system adopted in 1947.

The school lunches are served at primary schools throughout this country. They began with powdered milk, flour and canned foods released by the allied occupation forces to save the hungry children in defeated Japan from malnutrition.

The school lunch menu still is based on bread and milk—and no rice.

No nationwide survey on nutrition conducted by the Ministry of Health and Welfare has shown the Westernization of meals at Japanese standard homes.

DAILY CALCIUM
The statistics showed the average Japanese had taken 49.9 milligrams of calcium a day in 1966, compared with only two milligrams in 1949. Calcium is an important nutrient for human bones.

This clearly indicates that the Japanese are drinking more than 20 times as much milk as 20 years ago, officials said.

The figures also showed that the daily per capita intake of animal protein was 29.3 grams in 1966, 15.3 grams more than in 1949, and that of fat increased by 23.9 grams during the same period.

Officials said animal protein and fat are absorbed mainly from meat, milk and eggs.

BAROMETER
On the other hand, the statistics showed, the average Japanese took 380 grams of carbohydrate a day in 1966, less than 1949's 423 grams.

The carbohydrate intake is a barometer of rice and wheat consumption, they said.

Dr. Nagamine said, "If this trend continues, as is expected, the scale used for the construction of houses will have to be revised. Doorways and ceilings will have to be built higher than before."

A similar revision of specifications for furniture and clothing already has become a problem for manufacturers.

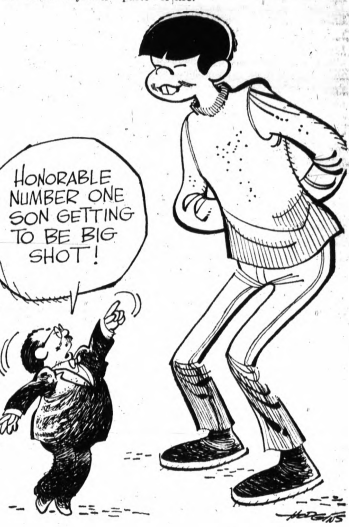

ILL EFFECTS
Dr. Nagamine said there have been some ill effects from the dietary changes.

He said cases of once widely prevalent diseases such as beriberi and tuberculosis have dropped sharply in number, but those of heart disease and arteriosclerosis have increased.

Japan's traditional sumo wrestlers, who eat specifically to become gigantic, are taller and much heavier than the average Japanese—or American.

Their average height is about 6 feet and their average weight is 264 pounds.

SATURDAY

QUESTION: How did the days of the week get their names?

ANSWER: No one can say what particular person named the days. These names came into use in ancient times when many gods were worshipped. The days got their names because each one became sacred to some particular god or goddess.

The Anglo-Saxon word monandæg meant moon's day, so Monday was named for the goddess of the moon. Tuesday was Tyr's day, Tyr being the god of war in ancient Norway.

Wednesday was sacred to Odin or Woden, ruler over Valhalla. His two ravens flew around the world every day and brought him the news (too bad he didn't have this newspaper).

Odin's famous son Thor, god of thunder and lightning, gave his name to Thor's day, or Thursday. Friga, Odin's wife, gave us Friga's day, Friday. She was so wise she knew everything.

Saturday comes from the Roman god Saturn, god of harvest. The Romans had a gay festival called a Saturnalia. Among the old European peoples Sunday meant the day of the sun. The sun was always popular in ancient mythology.

To Curb Riot Situations

Rumor Control Unit Operating

Pontiac has a Rumor Control Central—an operation aimed at curbing or controlling crisis or riot situations in the city when the type of rumor that proved so alarming, particularly in suburban dwellers, during the summer disturbances of 1967.

He also pointed out that he wished residents would confine their calls to the center to rumors and not specific problems. He said persons had called with complaints about potholes, street signs, etc.

Those with a specific problem should call that department responsible," he said.

What is it for and how will it function?

"It's to allay fears... No matter how harsh the truth is, it's better than what people will make up," explained Samuel A. Baker, chairman of the Pontiac Human Relations Commission.

IN PHONE BOOK
Rumor Control Central is listed in the new phone book under the city of Pontiac departments. Those who have heard a rumor about the city can call the number — 338-6441 — and have it traced down by a commission member.

This is the ongoing procedure, Baker said, and it will be followed unless a crisis occurs in the city.

At such a time, the entire resources of the center will be activated.

This means the phone number will have 10 extensions each manned by a citizen volunteer. Truth and rumor will be separated and fed to the phone-duty volunteers.

Appointed persons will channel information from the police, fire department, hospitals, etc., and news media will be enlisted to help control rumors, Baker said.

All this effort will be directed to give the people the truth, Baker said.

He One American diplomat in Dahomey describes Israel's pro-gram there as about the best of Black Africa's 35 countries $35,000 annual investment any schoolchildren, farmers, sick country ever made.

Israel's cooperation, however, is with people not money. "We give them know-how. And this know-how is without preconditions," says Haim Yaari, Israeli ambassador to Arab and Islamic nations in Africa. Yaari insists African coun-try, the rest of the continent is tries "don't fall into the pitfalls of Arab and Soviet propaganda."

Big Changes Needed

Society Must Open

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.
Executive Director
National Urban League

The title of my new book, published this week by McGraw-Hill, is "Beyond Racism: Building an Open Society." It's five years since I last put my thoughts on the racial scene in book form, and much has changed since then. At that time, the civil rights movement was concerned with the battle for equal rights, but I felt that the real struggle was going to emerge on economic grounds.

I asked then for a domestic Marshall Plan, to help bring about equal job opportunities, and better housing, health, and education for America's oppressed black minority.

That massive commitment to breaking down the economic barriers between the races never was undertaken, and the crisis I foresee is upon us. We are now in the post-civil rights phase of the movement, and the battle is now clearly against the racism that pervades our society.

RADICAL CHANGES

In "Beyond Racism," I also make suggestions for radical changes in the way our society distributes its rewards and necessities among the various groups. It is now clear that there has to be a drastic change in the power relationships between whites and blacks in America.

Black people must have their fair share of the power and the privileges now held exclusively by white citizens. America cannot ask the black man to be responsible without giving him the responsibility for his own destiny; it cannot ask him to exercise discipline unless it allows him the power to control his own life.

This is what the whole struggle for community control of the schools and other public services is all about. The black man wants in; he wants to take his place as an equal partner in the society.

The subtitle of the book is "Building an Open Society." That's because I feel whites and blacks alike must strive to create a truly open society, a society in which each human being can flourish and develop to the maximum of his god-given potential, a society in which each group can retain its identity, and pluralism is respected.

MANY CHOICES

In an open society, for example, some Negroes may prefer to live together temporarily in close-knit enclaves — as just about every ethnic group in this country has done. But the exercise of such a choice would not be penalized with inadequate services, discriminatory practices, and open hostility. It would be but one of many choices that individuals would be free to make within a pluralistic society.

Respect for the differences among people alone won't bring about an open society. Group achievement must join group respect as an essential ingredient. When, in each group in our society, roughly the same proportion of people succeed and fail, we will have true equality.

That means, for a time at least, unequal resources will have to be allocated to enable all Americans to compete on an equal basis. It is the height of hypocrisy to allow a child to grow up in slum housing, attend inferior ghetto schools, and keep him from all the advantages other children enjoy, and then say to him: "Go ahead and compete, you have equal opportunities."

that says Israel's cooperation Ethiopia and paracommandos serves imperialist interests." here. The mission chief here is He adds: "They don't believe Col. Amihai Levy, a 22-year it. We never, never retaliated army veteran at 40 who puts for their positions by withdrawing aid..."

UNUSUAL RAPPORT

The Israelis usually manage to create an adviser-to-advised rapport that other nations find hard to match.

"I know the difference," says Maj. Tshikeva, clapping a heavy hand on the shoulder of Israeli Maj. Elibou Ben-David. "Fifteen Congolese spent 9 1/2 months in Belgium in parachute training. Only eight passed. A little later, 217 Congolese went to Israel and in four weeks, they all passed."

OUTSHINES EGYPT

Not only technical assistants but also diplomats score Israel points against an equally high-priority program by Egypt.

Embassy parties always seem to attract more Cabinet ministers, more Africans in general, in those of other diplomatic missions. Men like Emmanuel Ron in Nigeria, Schmel (Sammy) Teveth in Dahomey and Aryeh Amir in the Congo make friends as well as contacts and are widely respected for it.

AGAINST OCCUPATION

Countries often offer tepid public statements against Israeli occupation of the Sinai Peninsula, nominally African territory, while continuing de facto friendship with Israel.

Ambassador Yaari says modern Jews' interest in Africa far predates the independence era. "There is a similarity between the history of Jews and Africans," he observes. We've both suffered racial discrimination... treated as second- and third-class citizens... In the diaries of Theodore Herzl, the prophet of Zionism, we find him saying in 1901, "After I establish a Jewish homeland, I will consecrate my life and energies to the liberation of African peoples."

French Students Studying Harder as Revolution Sputters On

PARIS — The first obvious sharply as it contrasts with last year's student spring's massing in the streets, revolution in France is that the police, bating, rock throwing students are studying harder and flaming barricades. That than ever before.

Both students and school system, and the students ministrators agree on this, as swept along the leftist political parties, triggering the widest work stoppage since World War II and economic chaos from which France still has not recovered.

The revolution is sputtering on. But a routine of hard daily work has descended upon the colleges to replace cramming for all-important annual examinations. The once-a-year exams have been succeeded by weekly and monthly tests. The students have to work harder for them.

Also an organizational reform is prying the universities out from under the centralized control of the Ministry of Education. The new local governing bodies include faculty, students and outside leaders.

MORE REFORMS COMING
More reforms are coming. The education minister, Edgar Faure, is promoting a bill to require two years of education courses for high school teachers — they now take none — and a year of paid full-time practice teaching. He also wants to internationalize degree equivalencies, presently a nightmare for foreign students.

But change brings resistance. The ministry says the hardest job is getting the habit-bound teachers and middle management to adopt new ways. Also, every proposed reform seems to draw unmerciful flailings from special-interest groups made up of everyone from college presidents to janitors.

Some critics speak of being "on the edge of the abyss" and of the universities "being attacked, red-haired girl of about 23, visited one of the education minister's news conferences.

Not that they ever stop trying. This month the student boycott — and spoil for others — the annual "aggregation" tests for high-school teaching certificates.

EXAMS 'VERY DEAR'
Only in a few examination centers did they muster enough support to cause trouble, and police intervention in those places let nearly every serious candidate take his exam.

"The students hold their exams as something very dear," a spokesman for a student militant group explained lamely.

One of the minority, a spec-

She complained that "machine-gun armed cops" forced her out of the examination hall and refused to believe she was not an agitator.

CONFIDENT OF SUPPORT
Faure promised to investigate, and consoled her by saying that next year there would be no "agregre" examination at all because of his reform bill demanding education courses.

Faure seems convinced that "But," explained an official of the Education Ministry, "you majority, are his allies. He thinks they will support his solidarity. No matter how bad the militants act, if you call the teaching, exams and teacher police, everyone suddenly sides training to the point that they will eventually shut out the militant agitators."

Already he can claim that the troubles, less than 10 per cent, of the country's university students were in "troubled" situations. Only 20 high schools out of 1,500 in the country had serious disturbances, according to the Ministry of Education.

Much of the trouble involved the party politics of extremist groups which went far beyond the scope of educational reform.

'COLD TREATMENT'
Faure hopes that eventually the militants will find themselves "given the cold treatment" by the majority. "But," explained an official of the Education Ministry, "you majority, are his allies. He thinks they will support his solidarity. No matter how bad the militants act, if you call the teaching, exams and teacher police, everyone suddenly sides training to the point that they will eventually shut out the militant agitators."

Intensive homework fits into the system, old or new. French courses always have been long-range affairs with reading lists, grave damage to a diligent printed lectures and little compulsory class attendance. He added that they are not the ones who succeed in their studies, "and God knows how they succeed in life."

This means a university or a high school can close its doors for a week or a month without

Chained Lion Bound for Zoo Attacks Two

AURORA, Ill. (AP) — A 3-year-old lion, chained in the back of a pickup truck, attacked two persons Tuesday, but was driven back by a man wielding a hammer.

Charles Towne of Muscatine, Iowa, suffered multiple cuts on his face, arms and back, and Mrs. Betty Mathis of Aurora suffered minor cuts.

Towne had picked up the lion at Brookfield Zoo outside Chicago and was taking it back to the Muscatine Zoo.

He stopped in Aurora to visit friends and started to take a picture of Mrs. Mathis with the lion when the animal became frightened and attacked her.

HIT WITH HAMMER
Towne was clawed trying to pull her from the lion. Mrs. Mathis' husband, Warren, struck the lion with a hammer to drive him back.

Towne later continued to Muscatine with the lion in the back of the truck.

However, West has a normal opening lead of the king of spades. South ducks on general principles and West will surely continue the suit. South ducks again but has to win the third spade.

His next play should be a low heart. West will almost surely play the seven spot and South should duck in dummy. Remember if South is playing for a squeeze he wants to lose four tricks in order to develop it. If West proceeds to cash his last spade the squeeze will be established, but West may be smart enough to see what is going on and to lead a second heart.

It actually does West no good. South simply cashes the ace and king of hearts and East must discard either a diamond or a club. A diamond gives South four tricks in that suit. A club allows South to lead three rounds of clubs and set up his fourth club for the ninth trick.

A really expert South might improve slightly on this line of play by just taking his ace of hearts, leading a low club and covering West's five with dummy's seven. Then he would win the minor suit return, cash

GIs Move off Hamburger Hill, Push Hunt for Reds Elsewhere

SAIGON (AP) — American 101st Airborne Division said the Dong Ap Bia within 1,000 yards of Hamburger Hill today and began sweeping and now are continuing their reconnaissance-in-force mission. "We were not going after the hill, but after the enemy's forces," a spokesman for the U.S. Command said. "We've reported now that the North Vietnamese forces on the mountain have been beaten, and there's no tactical reason to stay there."

"We're going to look for him wherever his forces are and defeat him in the most expeditious manner. We seek him out wherever he is. It all hinges on seeking out the enemy wherever he is. That's the key point."

STILL IN AREA

U.S. officers said there was no indication that the North Vietnamese were returning to Dong Ap Bia in force "or plan to do so." But some enemy forces were still in the area, Tuesday night, a dozen mortar rounds hit 875 near Dak To, in the central highlands. In that 17-day battle, 267 paratroopers of the 173rd Airborne Brigade were killed, three of them slightly.

There have been other costly and 1,000 were wounded. The mountain overlooks the North Vietnamese claimed 1,641 North Vietnamese were killed.

Spokesmen emphasized that the operation which produced the battle for Dong Ap Bia—Operation Apache Snow—is continuing in and around the A Shau Valley, the North Vietnamese stronghold which the mountain overlooks.

The valley is a staging area for attacks on Hue, 30 miles to the northeast, and Da Nang, 55 miles to the southwest.

The objective of Apache Snow is to hinder or destroy North Vietnamese troops and supplies moving from Laos into the A Shau Valley.

"We feel we've gotten everything out of this mountain that we're going to get," one officer said.

The 3,000-foot mountain was taken a week ago after 10 days of infantry assaults and retreats up and down the slopes.

The American casualties—50 killed and 300 wounded—brought criticism from Sen. Edward Kennedy and some other members of Congress who apparently did not think that the 600 North Vietnamese reported killed justified the American losses.

1 Dead as Fire Stalls Train in Tunnel to N.J.

NEW YORK (AP) — An electrical fire billowing clouds of acrid smoke disabled a Penn Central commuter train in a Hudson River tunnel, forcing passengers to walk a half mile to safety. One man was killed and 100 persons injured.

Coughing and choking on the blue-gray smoke, most of the more than 200 passengers climbed out of the stalled train through the darkness on a concrete catwalk to the New Jersey end of the tunnel.

The dead man was identified as William J. Thompson, 63, of Rahway, N.J., an off-duty conductor. He had stepped out, then was struck by the train, apparently as it lurched backward after coming to a stop, police said.

At the tunnel end in North Bergen, N.J., the passengers streamed out after their 20-minute walk through the stygian darkness. Most of the injured were treated for smoke inhalation and minor cuts. Only two were hospitalized.

ENCOURAGING VOICES

"We walked holding onto the guard rail," said Robert Waterson, a passenger. "You couldn't see anything, but we heard encouraging voices saying, 'Keep moving, keep moving.'"

All agreed there was no panic on the four-car, New Brunswick-bound train, which had left Penn Station at 6:55 p.m. "It was amazing to me that the people kept their cool," said Art Munda, 27, of Metuchen, N.J., a passenger.

The fire halted all traffic through the tunnel for several hours until the disabled train was pushed through by a heavy-duty engine dispatched from New York.

A Penn Central spokesman said the fire was caused by a faulty electrical mechanism. Waterson said, "There was a flash and a lot of smoke very quickly from the back" of the electrically powered train.

Road Construction to Halt for Holiday

Due to the heavy volume of traffic expected over the Memorial Day weekend, the Michigan State Highway Department and the Oakland County Road Commission have requested that work on all construction projects be postponed until Monday morning.

The restrictions apply to all but emergency projects or those authorized by the county or district engineer and go into effect as of 5 p.m. tomorrow, road commission officials said.

All contractors have been further asked to make arrangements for the maintenance of barricades, warning lights and signs for the protection of the traveling public.

Saigon's Fear of Coalition Government Has Historical Basis

By WILLIAM L. RYAN, AP Special Correspondent

The Saigon government's fear of a coalition with the Vietcong is based on the history of post-World War II governments that have included Communists. In Western Europe and in Indonesia, the Communists were notably unsuccessful in using coalition tactics as a path to power. But coalitions invariably turned into totalitarian Communist governments wherever the Communists had supporting armed strength nearby.

In Poland, the Russians never gave the postwar "national union" coalition a chance. Soviet power installed Kremlin men, while the United States fruitlessly protested that Soviet-American understandings were being violated. By 1946, Poland was totally dominated by the Communists.

Hungary's coalition was subjected to "salami tactics," a bit by bit sliced off at a time. A coalition came to power after the war, but the Communists, protected by Russian guns, gradually installed their own people and forced the other parties out. Bulgaria had a "Fatherland Front" coalition, too. The story was the same. Soviet troops executing their coup to end the postwar "national front" coalition were there, and the Communists crushed all opposition.

Soviet troops were not physically present in Czechoslovakia, but the threat of Russian intervention was always implicit in 1946 when the Communists were and unrestricted elections to convene a national assembly which will form a proper coalition government.

Under U.S. prodding, Mao and Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists agreed to a coalition scheme involving convocation of a national assembly to write a constitution. The Communists later discarded the agreements, mounted an offensive, and by October 1949 were masters of the mainland. Nothing more was heard of elections, even though other "parties" were permitted to exist in name.

In North Vietnam after World War II, Communist Ho Chi Min proclaimed a republic under a "fatherland front." North Vietnam to this day retains that facade of coalition, but all parties except the Lao Dong-Communists—are powerless.

On the other side of the ledger, the Italian Communist party took part in seven postwar coalition governments. Communists also were in the first postwar provisional government of France. In both cases, the Communists eventually were kicked out of the government.

In sprawling, populous Indonesia, the Communists for a long time participated in a coalition in President Sukarno's government and enjoyed enormous influence. The party, inspired by Red China, tried a coup in 1965, but it backfired. The result was a countryside slaughter of Communists. The remnants are now hiding out, hoping and planning for a comeback.

Food Stamp Changes Told

Changes in food stamp program regulations, designed to make increased buying power available to more people in the low-income groups, are in effect in Oakland County.

New participants are now allowed to purchase food coupons at one-half the regular price, during their first month of participation. The change applies to everyone eligible for the program, not just those in the lowest income groups, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service.

After the first month in the program, participants would be required to pay the normal amount.

The change is viewed as an attempt to ease the difficulty a family has in putting together enough cash to enter the program.

MINIMUM REDUCED

The second change reduces the minimum purchase requirement for the food stamp program to 50 cents per person per month.

Miss Ora Hinkley, director of Oakland County Social Services Department, noted that the changes went into effect at the beginning of the year, but there has been little increase in usage of the food stamp program.

Grand Rapids Vote on Busing Is Urged

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Three members of the Grand Rapids School Board, who were elected recently on an anti-busing campaign, have called for a public vote on the controversial master plan for the city's schools. They are Lawrence Pojeski, Everett van Slyke and Jack Boonsira.

Pojeski said, "We believe the election is a mandate, a command from the people to reject the plan."

"They don't want a school system based upon busing and superschools," he said, "and they very clearly stated this at their very first chance to speak."

ONE COLOR

Rule of Nicaraguan Dynasty Is Threatened

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)—A humor magazine reported recently the 11,243rd day of Somoza family rule in this country.

Like a weather statistic, the brief news item was offered without editorial comment.

The implied parallel was clear to many Managuans: the Somoza dynasty had reached climatological status. Sometimes stormy, sometimes benign, it was largely inevitable.

The permanence ascribed to the family that has ruled Nicaragua since 1937 contrasts somewhat with the public image of uncertainty and vulnerability being cast by the latest Somoza regime.

MONEY PROBLEMS

Gen. Anastasio Somoza Jr., president since 1967 and last surviving son of the man who founded the dynasty, is in trouble economically. This is nourishing his chronic political difficulties.

Low market prices have weakened the nation's main export crop, cotton, which usually from where rebel chieftain Ce-provides 40 per cent of total dollar earnings. Production this year is expected to dip below 400,000 bales, compared with 540,000 in the peak year, 1965.

Unable to obtain subsidies from an austerity-minded government, growers are reducing acreage and trimming payrolls. Dealers say not one new tractor has been imported in two years. In addition, the existence of a new leftist guerrilla force was revealed in mid-May. They are in the northern hills not far from where rebel chieftain Ce-

Augusto Sandino battled U.S. occupation forces in the late 1920s and early 1930s.

APPREHENSION

Signs of increasing restiveness in the business and political sectors are arousing apprehension in the capital about where the country is headed under the leadership of the West Point-educated Somoza. There is speculation that the president will try to extend his term two years beyond 1972 to gain time to cope with the problems blocking the administrative program he pledged.

The constitution bars re-election and presidential succession by close relatives. Constitutional reform would be no problem for the president if he wished to remain in office, however. He effectively controls all branches of government.

He also has a solid segment of the population behind him while what passes for opposition is splintered and leaderless.

BEST ALTERNATIVE

"Somoza's strength is in the weakness of his political adversaries," says one business executive. "In 30 years, the opposition has failed to produce a satisfactory alternative to the Somozas."

The Somozas have retained total control for 31 years with and without the presidency. When necessary, for political reasons, they've managed through dependable substitutes.

Those who doubt that "Tachito," as his intimates call him, intends to extend his term stress that he can maintain effective control through a trusted front man. But one of those who regard him as unpredictable and headstrong says: "His messianic impulses wouldn't allow him to share even the symbol of power with anyone, however close."

HOPE, DESPAIR

Within one recent week, Somoza's political adversaries, anxious for a governmental change in any form, experienced hope and despair through two happenings.

The kidnapping of a wealthy farmer turned out to be the work of the new guerrilla faction called the Nicaragua Rebel Armed Forces. In a tactic similar to that carried out successfully in recent years by Castroite guerrillas in Guatemala, the rebels got a ransom of $42,000.

The kidnapping, in northern Chinandega Province bordering on Honduras, stirred talk of a possible new guerrilla offensive in small urban communities.

Although the national guard smashed its mountain operations last year, the other leftist guerrilla movement, the Sandinista Front of National Liberation, remains active in Managua. Two terrorist bombs were exploded in recent weeks.

Easy Living Blamed for Guerrillas' End

BOGATA, Colombia (AP)—Choice meals, the best clothes, girls and "breakfast in bed" led to the downfall of Colombian guerrillas trying to begin a revolutionary movement in the mountains, one of their former members said in an article in the Colombian press.

These "crimes against revolutionary morale" led Juan de Dios Aguilera, 30, to quit the Army of National Revolution and go to another part of the country to start his own movement.

Dios Aguilera said the downfall of the group began in January 1966 when government troops killed the guerrilla leader Camilo Torres, a priest. Until that time the movement formed peasants and of murdering those guerrillas who did not agree with his actions."

In summary, Dios Aguilera writes: "Vasquez stained the prestige of guerrilla warfare here, ruined the possibility of obtaining peasant collaboration. He frustrated, I hope not forever, the future of armed fight in Colombia."

SURROUNDED, KILLED

Government troops surrounded the guerrillas and killed or captured all except Vasquez and a few followers, Dios Aguilera said. The disillusioned young revolutionary also accuses Vasquez's account of life among the guerrillas.

Ever since Cuba's Fidel Castro said he would support with arms and money any Latin American revolutionary movement, the army has stepped up its efforts to quash them. As part of their propaganda war they are circulating Dios Aguilera's account of life among the guerrillas.

End Surtax or Fight Inflation? U.S. House Lines Being Drawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — When House members vote next month on extending the income surtax, will they give more weight to fighting inflation or to giving a break to middle-income taxpayers?

The argument over President Nixon's fiscal program is hardening along these lines.

Those who oppose the surtax have fresh ammunition in statistics compiled for a House appropriations subcommittee by the Internal Revenue Service. This table highlights the extent to which middle-income taxpayers — those in the $8,000-to-$20,000-a-year brackets—are carrying the tax burden.

On the basis of 1967 income, these 21.5 million taxpayers, about 30 per cent of the total, paid nearly $28.8 billion—or nearly 46 per cent of all personal income tax collections.

SIGNS OF WORRY

Both administration and legislative leaders are showing signs of worry that middle-income voters' hopes have been raised too high by the tax-reform proposals now being prepared for action.

Neither the Nixon reform proposal nor the broader package being completed in the House Ways and Means committee room offers much, if anything, to the man in the middle.

Both would hit high-income taxpayers now using tax shelters and would completely or partially lift income tax from millions at the bottom of the scale.

The only way Congress could do something quickly for the tax-conscious group of voters in between would be to let the income surtax expire June 30, or to continue it at a lower rate or for a shorter time than Nixon recommends, or to confine it to corporations.

GREATER BURDEN

But to do this, the administration contends, would hurt the middle-income man—and everybody else—more than the surcharge. It argues such a step would feed inflation, cut the purchasing power of the dollar, and require monetary measures that would choke off credit for home buyers, small businesses and state and city governments.

Nixon has proposed continuing the surcharge at 10 per cent until Jan. 1 and at 5 per cent at least until July 1, 1970. Such an extension, with the other tax measures associated with it, would produce an estimated $5.3-billion budget surplus.

Under sharp questioning, witnesses told the House Ways and Means Committee the surtax could be ended as early as Sept. 30 and still leave the budget in balance.

There is no clear indication how the opposing arguments will appeal to the House. But there are some straws in the wind.

SPATE OF BILLS

Individual members have introduced a spate of tax-easing bills—not with any real hope of having them enacted, but to show where they stand. A favorite theme is increase of the $600 personal exemption.

Then there is what amounts to a petition to the Ways and Means Committee by a vocal group of Democrats. They ask that the surtax not be extended for any long period until tax reform is far enough along to provide some general tax relief.

Signers now have reached 71. A check of the roll call by which the surtax originally was passed last June 20 shows that 39 of the signers voted for it then. Another 23 voted against it.

Voting for the surtax were 154 Democrats and 114 Republicans. Against were 77 Democrats and 73 Republicans.

Political Violence Returning to Guatemala as Campaign Nears

GUATEMALA (AP) — One night early this month, a stolen car slowed to a halt in a darkened side street of downtown Guatemala City. A young woman darted out of the vehicle, but before she reached the curb, her companions shot her dead.

The slain girl, identified as Gladys Haydee Rojas Vargas, was the victim of a Castroite guerrilla execution. The Guatemalan Rebel Armed Forces issued a mimeographed communique saying she had been sentenced to death "by revolutionary laws for informing and treason." The girl had been a member of the FAR, the communist said, who had turned "counteragent for the enemy."

Responsible Guatemalans regard such killings as the earliest signs of a renewal of political violence they are convinced will be spawned in this most populous and troubled of Central American countries as the 1970 presidential election campaign nears.

August marks the start of electioneering for the presidential chair occupied since 1966 by Julio Cesar Mendez Montenegro, ex-law professor and titular boss of the Revolutionary party.

FEW COMPLETE TERMS

If Mendez Montenegro completes his term and steps down next July, he'll be the second democratically elected Guatemalan president to do so in this century. Juan Jose Arevalo, who governed in 1945-51, is the other. Political greed and violence either toppled others or drove them to try to perpetrate themselves in office.

The FAR communique awakened apprehensions about left-wing extremists and their capabilities. Although the army crushed their mountain-based operations in mid-1967, the two major leftist factions, the FAR and the MR-13, continued a deadly urban war that finally died out in early 1968.

The far leftist leaders, Cesar Montes of the FAR and Marco Antonio Yon Sosa of the MR-13, are apparently hiding somewhere in the country.

The general expectation is that they'll soon renew the once-successful strategy of kidn-ings of rich businessmen for ransom with which to finance operations.

One of the leading candidates for the presidency is Col. Carlos Arana Osorio, who led the bloody cleanup of guerrillas in Guatemala's northeastern mountain ranges. He is backed by the rightist Movement of National Liberation, and the campaign slogan is "security, order and work."

Although he hotly denies it when asked, Col. Arana, 50, a beefy, personable 6-footer, is reputed to have armed and organized peasants familiar with the mountain terrain into paramilitary units that were instrumental in flushing out the Castroite guerrillas. Many peasants were killed in the fighting.

Because of this background, the Guatemalan left views Arana as symbolic of official repression. His candidacy is expected to polarize leftist sentiment against him.

Nonetheless, Arana is considered a strong candidate with special appeal among affluent and influential conservatives anxious for peace. He also has known support among the small rural farmers whose areas he pacified.

The other announced candidates so far are Mario Puentes Pieruccini, 47, a lawyer backed by the ruling Revolutionary party, and Jorge Lucas Caballeros, 44, a chubby university professor, economist and former army major, of the Christian Democratic party.

Film Academy Headed for Needed Revamp?

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Oscar, Hollywood's favorite whipping boy, is taking it again. This time it's the directors who are up in arms over an alleged slight to their profession.

The motion picture Academy made a 56-minute capsule of last month's awards affair for televising in foreign countries. Many of the awards in the two-hour show had to be eliminated, and Carol Reed, named best director for "Oliver!", landed on the cutting-room floor.

The Directors Guild of America was incensed, even though Britisher Reed was not a member. Academy President George Peck replied that the capsule version had been an experiment and the director award would be included next year.

That didn't satisfy the directors. They insisted on a public apology. The academy's answer was the return of Peck from Europe.

OVERHAUL ASKED

Among the directors who protested individually was George Sidney. "It won't happen again' is not good enough. The academy membership, it's not to look into membership, methods, aims, ideals, must be overhauled," he said.

The academy's membership list indicates that an overhaul is overdue.

The academy is an honorary organization of industry craftsmen. So reads the official pronouncement.

The academy's by-laws declare: "Invitations to active membership shall be limited to those persons employed by motion picture producing companies, or credited with screen achievements, who in the opinion of the board, are qualified for membership by virtue of having achieved distinction in their respective fields of endeavor within the industry."

MORE THAN 3,000

Somehow the academy has managed to find slightly more than 3,000 persons who fit that category.

There are 339 academy members in the acting category, by far the largest grouping. Fully one-third of them are recognized by even close observers of the film scene, including this one. These are a few of the names: Edit Angold, Parley Baer, Majel Barrett, Argentina Brunetti, Steve Ihnat, Rita Royce, Joan Wynn, Will Kuluva, Syl Lamont.

Consider the membership in the other voting categories: administrators, 80; cinematographers, 143; music, 190; film editors, 141; producers, 174; short subjects, 157; directors, 117; public relations, 210; sound, 194; writers, 262; executives, 234; art directors, 175.

With all due respect to my

Fewer Cherries

TRAVERSE CITY (AP)—The agricultural extension agent for the Grand Traverse County area said that harvesting of cherry crops will be down in comparison to last year, due to cool spring temperatures in northwestern lower Michigan. George McManus Jr. said the lows have caused extensive damage to both the sweet and tart cherry crops.

Copper can be drawn into such a thin wire that a four-inch square bar produces a thread 20 million times the length of the ingot.

Earl, on the Roam in Cannes, Finds 'It's a Small World'

By EARL WILSON

CANNES—It's because I'm from a small town myself that I'm always pouncing on people, asking them, "Where are you from?"

I saw a little man sitting on the terrace at the Hotel Carlton, so short that his chin just came to the table top. There were a lot of sophisticates here for the film festival, making remarks such as, "The new trend is to make pictures without stars—yes, and without stories too."

"Who is that little guy?" I kept wondering. It was 3-feet-10-inches tall Michael Dunn, once of "Ship of Fools," quite a scintillating performer in the Broadway show, "Ballad of a Sad Cafe," with Colleen Dewhurst in 1963—and now getting star billing in the picture, "The Way the Cookie Crumbles," being made by Brigitte Bardot's one-time romance, Bob Segur.

"Where you from?" I asked him. "Shattuck, Okla.," he said. But he grew up in Livonia, Mich., went to Detroit Redford High, then while at the University of Miami in Florida, he did sports rewrite for the Miami News in the '50s though he was then known as Gary Miller. And now the 90-centimeters high little guy is getting big in films.

We were at beautiful Cap d'Antibes. Our host, a man of the world, Sam Arkoff, head of American International Pictures in Hollywood, had his own box of Havanas in front of him.

He's just filmed "De Sade" which he describes in his sophisticated way as "a picture about a wholesome, homey, folksy, fun-for-everybody-in-the-family orgy." Next he and partner James Nicholson film "Dante's Inferno," set on the Reeperbahn, the famous brothel street in Hamburg.

"Where you from?" I asked Sam. "Fort Dodge, Iowa," he said.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL IN N. Y. . . . Joe E. Lewis is in Mt. Sinai Hospital for a checkup. . . . Kaye Stevens' burgled jewels and other valuables were not insured; the insurance had expired four days earlier, and she hadn't signed renewal papers. . . . Mimi Hines and Phil Ford will tour in "I Do, I Do."

Barbra Streisand may buy the plush E. 62nd St. town house she's been looking at. . . . Sandy Dennis helicoptered from L.I. to a screening in N.Y.C. of her "Cold Day in the Park." . . . Natalie Wood (now in "Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice") will turn producer for her next film.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A French girl was surprised love making, and whispered to her lover, "Don't worry, it isn't my father—it's only my husband."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: When a woman calls a man "My treasure," she usually means "My treasury."

EARL'S PEARLS: Some kids never notice that Dad's home from work unless he walks between them and the TV set. . . . Johnny Martin, WFLD.

Comic Allen Drake claims his wife is lazy: "And I mean lazy. Did you ever see anybody washing dishes while lying in bed?" . . . That's earl, brother.

Exercise Is Very Important for Anyone Reducing

EAST LANSING — Who says that exercise is of no value in helping you reduce?

A foods specialist at Michigan State University denounced the idea that exercise increases appetite, and hence weight, as a myth that frequently misleads people.

Mrs. Anita Dean, specialist with MSU's Cooperative Extension Service, said that exercise is a great variable in using up energy, or calories, and doesn't necessarily increase food intake.

"Obese people should understand that an increase in food intake follows an increase in exercise only under limited conditions," she stressed.

Men who work in offices or jobs that are not physically demanding are advised to consume only about 2,400 calories a day. But laborers, athletes, and very active men are advised to eat up to 4,500 calories. In some instances, this allowance may even go as high as 6,000 calories.

"This wide range weakens the belief that physical activity plays only a small part in the daily energy balance," Mrs. Dean noted.

An overweight person requires more energy for the same amount of exercise than a person of normal weight. And unless that overweight person eats more, he should burn up a greater amount of body fat doing the exercise. But in a physically active person, an increase in calories will cause only a modest weight increase.

Since sedentary (inactive) individuals usually don't move around as much, weight gain is more rapid and more pronounced, the specialist emphasized.

NEW PERCOLATOR—Spring's the time to begin a love affair with coffee that can last right through the warm days of summer. Essential to the art of coffee-making is a good coffeemaker like this 18-cup "Happy Medium" Party Perk of sparkling stainless steel inside and out. There's even an extra fast brewing cycle which adds up to a cup a minute; just the right size for most serving occasions. It's the ideal wedding, bridal shower or Mother's Day gift. Maple Syrup a Real Treat; Keep It Right

The demand for maple syrup is such that these products are sold soon after the close of the season. Therefore, it is best to purchase them now. Pure maple syrup and the tasty confections that are made from it make especially nice hostess and Christmas gifts.

Maple syrup is graded. Fancy grade is the Highest — it is light amber in color and has a mild maple flavor. Grade I maple syrup is somewhat darker and more highly flavored. It may be cloudier than the Fancy grade.

Grade II maple syrup usually is not sold as such to consumers. It is used to make extracts or is blended with other sweeteners to make maple-flavored products.

One gallon of maple syrup must weigh at least 11 pounds. If the syrup is not this concentrated it is apt to sour. If it is boiled down beyond this point, the syrup may form sugar crystals.

WARM IT

If this should happen, just place the container of syrup in warm water and the crystals will dissolve. The syrup should also be kept in sealed containers at room temperature. Store opened containers in the refrigerator.

Syrup purchased in gallons is more economical to buy than quarts and half-gallons. Remove it from the can, heat it to boiling, and then seal it in smaller sterilized glass jars for convenience and best quality.

If maple syrup should mold slightly, restore it to normal flavor by skimming off the mold. Then heat it to the boiling point and skim again.

Each time, however, syrup is reheated it will become cloudy. Do not become alarmed, there is nothing objectionable with the taste of the syrup and this cloudy appearance will slowly settle out.

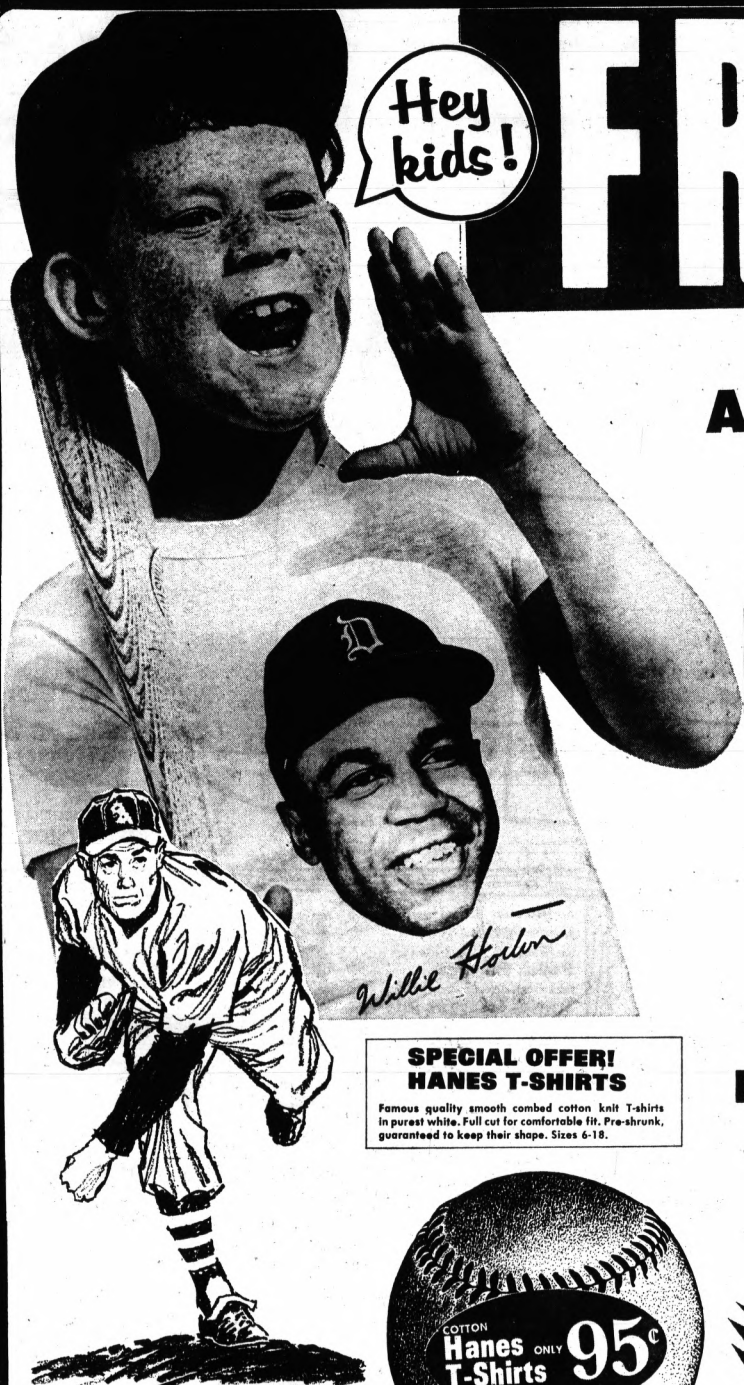

Spanish in Mexico Loved Chocolate

The early Spanish in Mexico were so fond of chocolate that they not only drank it at home all day, they even sipped it in church. They paid no attention to the edicts, decrees, and proclamations issued by the church dignitaries against it, and went right on drinking their chocolate. As a matter of fact, one Spanish nobleman, named Mancera, was so bothered at having to put his cup and saucer down, when the time came to kneel that he invented a cup and saucer that could be managed when sitting, standing, or kneeling.

The invention was called a mancerina, and although they are no longer used in church, many old mancerinas may be found in Mexican homes.

Cook Completely

U.S. Department of Agriculture home economists caution: Never partially cook poultry, then store, and finish cooking at a later date. Cooking all at once lessens the chance of harmful bacterial growth.

Little Hope That Meat Prices Will Be Lower

CHICAGO — When is the price of meat going down?

When the average family income goes down, says the National Live Stock and Meat Board. The current issue of the organization's industry newsletter, Meat Board Reports, states consumers must face the fact of higher meat prices:

"There can be no going back to the meat prices of the good old days, unless we want to go back to the standard of living and paycheck of the 'good old days.'"

"Continued, expanded prosperity depends on a strong economy. The strength in that economy, like the strength of the human body, is directly dependent on the industry that produces food. It, too, must be strong."

If it were not, the Meat Board says, food prices would be even higher and some foods more scarce.

It's unlikely that meat prices have lagged far behind other buys 40 more pounds of meat buy — TV sets, cars and invested in his own 'manufac-

Heart Valuable for Economy, Good Flavor

Take heart. For high nutritional value at low initial cost, this variety meat is hard to beat. Another economy factor is the small amount of waste. Heart, like liver and kidney, yields more servings per pound than many, more expensive, meats.

Beef heart, weighing 3 to 3½ pounds, will provide 8 to 10 servings. The smaller lamb, pork and veal hearts yield 1 to 3 servings each.

Contrarily, these hearts are not tender. Being tough muscle meats, they require long, slow cooking, by braising or simmering methods. Marination also helps tenderize.

Vegetables or dried fruits added for the last 30 to 40 minutes of meat cooking time, saves effort. And to retain flavors during the long cooking time (some 3 hours for beef heart), add sugar at the beginning of the affair.

For each heart pound, use about ¼ teaspoon of sugar — not to sweeten the heart — but to bring out and blend the individual flavors in the whole, hearty stew.

MEAT COOKERY Quiz

Q. What's the name of this meat cut?

A. Smoked picnic shoulder.

Q. Where does it come from?

A. How is it identified?

A. It comes from the pork shoulder and includes the arm section and part of the fore shank. The curing and smoking process gives it the characteristic color and flavor of all pork cuts handled in this way.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. By roasting (baking) or cooking in liquid. To roast, place on a rack in an open, shallow pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so it reaches the center of the thickest part, making sure the bulb does not rest either in fat or on bone. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325 degrees) until the meat thermometer reaches 170 degrees. Allow 35 minutes per pound for roasting. Smoke picnic shoulder ranges in weight from five to eight pounds which means the total cooking time ranges from three to four and one-half hours.

Slimming Salad

If you are trying to lose unwanted pounds, the National Broiler Council suggests Slim Chick salad: Blend together 1 cup yogurt, 1 teaspoon each curry powder and salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 stalks celery, sliced, 1 can (14 ounces) pineapple tidbits, drained, and 2½ cups diced cooked chicken. Toss, chill, and serve on salad greens. For 4 servings, 340 calories per serving; 6 servings, 22 calories per serving.

Blue Cheese Part of Sauce for Macaroni

A little imagination can pep up almost any dish. One of the most versatile ingredients for the imaginative cook is pungent American blue cheese, which is the most popular blue mold cheese in this country.

Since only a little blue cheese is needed to give a dish a special flair, use it regularly to provide sprightly and interesting meals for family and friends.

Here's a delicious macaroni dish that will be a Friday night favorite in many homes. A blue cheese olive sauce makes the difference.

Macaroni With Blue Cheese Olive Sauce

1/4 cup butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups warm milk
1/4 teaspoon salt

1 cup crumbled American blue cheese (about 5 1/4 ounces)
1/2 cup sliced stuffed olives
2 cups macaroni, cooked and drained

Melt butter; add flour and blend. Add milk gradually and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add salt, 1/4 cup blue cheese (reserving 1/4 cup for garnishing), and olives. Continue to cook over low heat until cheese begins to melt and mixture is heated through.

Pour sauce over hot macaroni. Garnish with remaining crumbled American blue cheese. Serve with grilled tomatoes on buttered toast pieces. Makes 6 servings.

Sardines Act as Appetizer

Schools of small, immature herring scurry about the coastal waters of the North Atlantic while crews of sardine fishermen wait. At night, they rise to feed near the surface. Phosphorescence of various sea organisms reveal their presence; the nets are dropped.

In the daytime, schools often are spotted from airplanes equipped with sound and depth devices that pinpoint the prospective catch. Their position is relayed; the fishermen cast their nets.

Last year Maine sardine fishermen had a good season. Processors packed around 2 million cases of sardines. This was a half million more than in 1967. With 650,000 cases of carry-over stock, the current supply is abundant.

With this in mind, the Consumer and Marketing Service recommends:

CRISPY SARDINE APPETIZERS

Drain 4 cans Maine sardines. Roll in 1/2 cup flour and dip in 1/4 cup tomato sauce. Then roll in a mixture of 1/4 cup dry bread crumbs and 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese.

Fry in a basket in deep fat (350 degrees F.) about 1 minute or until brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve with cocktail sauce.

BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By John Carter

Many people aren't aware of a fantastic baseball record achieved by a man who has been a pitching coach for the last few years, John Sain. ... Everywhere he goes, the team he works for wins the pennant. ... Sain was pitching coach for the Yankees in 1961, 1962 and 1963 and they won the flag each year. ... Then, he went to work for the Twins in 1965 and they won the pennant. ... Then, he joined the Tigers — and last season they won the pennant!

Now that Mickey Mantle has retired, here's an oddball about his career. ... Although he batted over 300 in the majority of seasons he played, his lifetime batting average wound up under .300. ... Mantle's lifetime average finished at .298.

What's the hardest sport to play? ... Bill Russell, coach of the Boston Celtics, has an interesting reason why he thinks the answer to that question is basketball. ... Russell was quoted as saying that to play basketball you need the speed of a sprinter, the endurance of a mile-runner, the strength of a football player, and the coordination of a baseball player.

I bet you didn't know... that it takes a "Pro" to pick your way thru the maze of new types of tires that are now available for your car. So drop in a brief lesson with one of our "Pros" will pay, and no matter when you use his advice, you'll save... maybe something important... like your life.

First Day Bonus for Bass Anglers

There's a special bonus waiting for some lucky fisherman who plans to try his luck when the bass season opens Friday.

The angler who enters the heaviest black bass taken from Oakland County waters the first day in the Pontiac Press Fish Contest will receive a $50 savings bond. In addition, the entry will be eligible for over-all bass division honors in the 33rd annual derby.

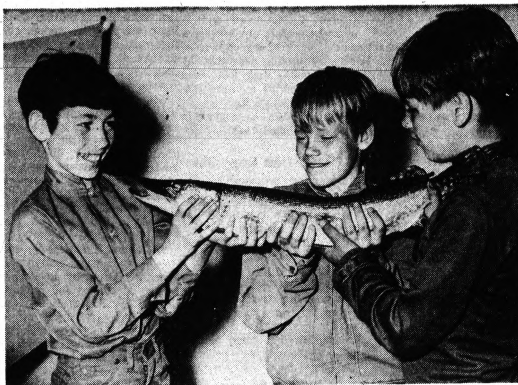

Only county residents are eligible and the bass must be caught from county waters and brought to The Press sports department before 8 a.m. Saturday to be eligible for the opening day prize.

All bass entered after that time will be included in the regular division contest which also has a $50 savings bond for the heaviest large or smallmouth. The bass and pike divisions close Sept. 2 at noon.

CURRENT PIKE LEADER

Rules and prize for the pike division are the same as for bass. The current pike leader is a five-pound, three-ounce northern. Walleyes and muskies also are eligible for pike class honors.

Contest entries must be brought to the Sports Department for weighing Monday through Saturday between 7 a.m. and 2 p.m. There will be only one winner in each division.

Duck Hunting Ban Furor Begins to Cool Off

LANSING (AP) — Now that those produced in the Canadian success the ducks have in population 10 per cent, leaving nine million, it is estimated that more lenient regulations were approved, however, whittled the population to a resulting in a 20 per cent estimated 6.5 million.

The number of mallards expected to fly south in the fall ducks this fall is beginning to be a key to the kind of bag and season limits permitted by the government, which sets hunting guidelines for each flyway.

This fall flight is determined by the number of mallards flying back north to nest, the number of prairie ponds available to the ducks throughout the summer and the

It should be pointed out that the advice probably won't be taken — wasn't expected to — and that there probably will be some sort of restricted season in Michigan this year.

The closure recommendation came in February from the Technical Section of the Mississippi Flyway Council in Paducah, Ky. Admittedly made at an "early date," it aroused considerable comment and confusion.

STATEMENT ISSUED

It drew a statement from John S. Gottschalk, director of the U.S. Bureau of Sport, Fisheries and Wildlife in Washington, D.C., declaring: "We have no intention of arriving at a conclusion concerning this fall's waterfowl season until we know the water conditions from our May survey and the population counts from our July survey."

It resulted in an editorial from Dale E. Leeling, executive director of Ducks Unlimited, who called of the action "premature" and pointed to "excellent" water conditions and in the breeding conditions in the Canadian provinces where most ducks nest.

Whitwell also questioned the contents of the game biologists who make up the Technical Section that the mallard breeding population is at a critically low level.

The welfare of the mallard population has much to do with the bag limit and length of season in the Mississippi Flyway, explained Edward J. Mikula, who is in charge of waterfowl management in Michigan.

Mallards are the most heavily hunted ducks in the flyway, he said, and the flyway hunters usually kill the lion's share of the mallards shot in the country.

In 1967, for example, 37 per cent of the ducks shot in the Mississippi Flyway were mallards. And those mallards, comprised 41 per cent of all of that species taken in all four flyways.

Hunters in the Pacific Flyway take most of the rest of the mallards bagged each year in the country.

The total mallard bag in 1967 was 4.4 million, while, in 1968, the take dropped to 3.2 million. Mississippi Flyway regulations are influenced by the health and welfare of the continent's mallards — particularly week

VITAL FACTORS

These production factors are vital to predictions of the fall flight.

Obviously, the number of breeding mallards has much to do with the size of the young crop each year. And biologists were gloomy this winter after taking a look at estimates of the breeding flock.

Their concern is not new. Last fall, they suggested to wildlife managers that the season should be closed if management hoped to return the same number of breeding mallards to the nesting grounds as few north in the spring of 1968.

A severely restricted 1968 season, biologists said, would decrease the breeding hunters bagged three million.

In 1968, breeding mallards numbered 8.2 million. The fall flight was estimated at 13 million, allowing for the number of young produced.

This was pared by a million hunters, biologists said, would decrease the breeding hunters bagged three million.

Proper cleaning and cooking can lower the pesticide levels in fish, reports a Michigan State University scientist.

Dr. Norman Leeling, assistant professor of entomology at MSU, says that laboratory tests run on coho salmon from Lake Michigan showed that DDT levels in the salmon were 25 to 30 per cent lower after the fish had been cleaned and cooked.

"Pesticides are evenly distributed throughout the fatty tissues in fish," explains Dr. Leeling. "These fat tissues are located along the belly and back of the fish, and along the lateral line on either side. When these tissues are removed, a substantial portion of the pesticides is also removed."

The entomologist notes that skinning and cooking further reduce the pesticide residues in fish.

"The type of cooking method used doesn't make much difference," he says. "The temperatures are much the same in all cases, and this is apparently the prime chemicals."

Bluegills already are on the beds in Southern Michigan and upper fishing is good. Top area lakes include Pontiac, White, Lakeville and Orion. Conger Ray on Lake St. Clair also is a top bluegill spot.

Cloudy water

Perch are hitting off St. Clair's Huron Point on Minnow, but action at Saginaw Bay is very slow because of cloudy water. The same problem is hampering walleye anglers on the St. Clair River.

Pike fishing is picking up and some of the best crappie fishing in years is reported at Wisconsin Lake in Gladwin County.

Catfish are being taken in good numbers above the Sanford dam in Midland County and carp and sheepshead fishing is rated good at Pointe Mouille. Carp spearing is good in the shallows of Saginaw Bay.

Coho salmon are still being turned up in good numbers by DNR test nets in less than 10 feet of water between Lakeport and Fort Austin. The salmon are averaging about four pounds and some chinook are noted.

Most of the waterfowl season is still being turned up in good numbers by DNR test nets in less than 10 feet of water between Lakeport and Fort Austin. The salmon are averaging about four pounds and some chinook are noted.

Seeks End to Antlerless Season

Deer Measure OK'd

LANSING (AP) — Sen. Joe Mack, D-Ironwood, has moved a step closer to his longtime ambition to outlaw the killing of antlerless deer in the Upper Peninsula.

In the upper chamber Tuesday, Mack successfully amended a bill to prohibit the Natural Resources Commission from declaring an open season on antlerless bucks and doe white-tailed deer.

The bill passed the upper chamber by a vote of 30-3 and was sent to the House where sources predicted it would find tough sledding.

Mack has tried for nine years to prohibit doe shooting. But before, he said, had he received a majority vote on the proposal in the Senate.

"All our sportsmen are against continued doe shooting in the Upper Peninsula and I would say the state as a whole," he said.

MACK CHARGE — "I do know beyond question that they (the Natural Resources Commission) have way at 10 a.m. the deer herd in many areas," he said.

The bill which Mack successfully amended was introduced by Sen. Thomas Schweigert, R-Petoskey, who wanted to extend this an all-age match.

Mental Health Facilities Decried

LANSING (UPI) — A survey of Michigan's state-operated mental health facilities has turned up dilapidated buildings and patient overcrowding reminiscent of the Dark Ages.

Some structures were found to be firetraps — and a 95-year-old dormitory at the Kalamazoo State Hospital contained no heat or electricity in patients' rooms.

Survey results were released yesterday by Director William H. Anderson of the state Mental Health Department and Gov. William G. Milliken.

"Michigan's state hospitals for the mentally ill and state institutions for the retarded are housing a majority of their patients in obsolete and inadequate buildings," Dr. Anderson reported.

MUCH OVERCROWDING

"Equally important, though less apparent, is the fact that many buildings are overcrowded with patients."

Milliken, who ordered an immediate inventory of mental health facility needs for 1970-71 budget purposes, told of visiting the Pontiac State Hospital and finding certain conditions deplorable.

"I saw some patients housed in antiquated buildings with the rooms which lack electricity and get only the heat that comes from the corridors," the governor said.

The governor and Dr. Anderson toured the Pontiac hospital Monday.

LACKING HEAT

Complaints at Pontiac State Hospital have involved buildings not having heat, electricity or airtight windows in patients' rooms.

Dr. Anderson said state facilities for the mentally retarded now house 2,500 patients more than state fire marshal standards permit.

representing "overcrowding of serious proportions."

Conditions were described as poorest at the Lapeer, Caro, Coldwater and Ft. Custer state homes.

At Lapeer, Dr. Anderson said, many buildings now in use are dilapidated beyond repair and should be razed.

FIRE STANDARDS CITED

"Lapeer has a resident population 60 per cent (1,190 patients) above permissible fire safety standards," the director added.

"At Caro, overcrowding is more than 32 per cent, at Coldwater nearly 40 per cent, and the age and condition of the buildings in use are comparable to many of those at Lapeer."

Dr. Anderson said plans are under way to close the Ft. Custer home but that it will be nearly five years before evacuation can be completed. The hospitals at Kalamazoo, Pontiac and Traverse City — Milliken's hometown — were singled out in the report for deteriorating physical facilities.

ANCIENT BUILDINGS

Dr. Anderson said of the 7,000 resident patients in these hospitals, less than 40 per cent are housed in buildings constructed since 1910. He said some 3,000 are in buildings opened between 1875 and 1900.

"One of the buildings constructed at Kalamazoo in 1874 is still occupied," Dr. Anderson said. "It has no heat or electricity in patients' rooms."

It was noted that Newberry State Hospital, opened in 1895,

GETTING ATTENTION ON THE STRIP — Showgirls picketing along the Las Vegas Strip yesterday had no trouble getting people to notice, especially when the wind started blowing. Janet Boyd, who jumps out of a space capsule nightly at the Silver Slipper show, wields a picket sign for the American Guild of Variety Artists. The 700 dancers, singers and comedians are trying to pressure hotels into meeting their demands. They held a one-hour demonstration which some tourists described as a free show.

Nixon Plans Partial Revamping

Foreign-Aid Plea: $2.6 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, after taking steps to seek bipartisan support, had a $2.6-billion foreign aid request to present to Congress today.

Nixon's program calls for a partial revamping of the U.S. overseas assistance effort, but a more far-reaching overhaul of foreign aid will await a study by a blue-ribbon review group the President plans to appoint, administration sources said.

Technical assistance and private investment in developing countries abroad were items marked for special emphasis in the new administration's first message on the controversial foreign aid issue.

The $2.28 billion in economic and $375 million in military aid in Nixon's budget is $62 million below former President Lyndon B. Johnson's aid proposal for the coming fiscal year.

But it also totals some $900 million more than what Congress voted last year — and some economy-minded congressmen, including Rep. B. Johnson, have served notice they intend to slice into the new President's program.

Nixon called in both Democratic and Republican congressional leaders Tuesday for a White House meeting on his program. Last year the lawmakers dismanned the executive branch by slashing nearly $1.2 billion from President Johnson's request.

Administration officials said Nixon has decided on only moderate changes in the Agency for International Development—AID—the organization set up by the Kennedy administration at the start of the decade to run the aid program. The administration sources look for more changes in Nixon's aid program next year after the special committee has completed its study.

Both money and bureaucratic organization are involved in the new emphasis on technical assistance to underdeveloped nations.

"The observance is a gesture of compassion and concern for those whose anonymity was preserved in death as in life because they were in a mental hospital," said hospital Chaplain Paul Kapp. "Now, if a patient dies who has no relatives or funds, he is buried alongside others from the community in his home county, not in a Potter's Field in a grave marked only with a number."

No More Vietnams, Rogers Is Stressing

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers is spreading the word across Asia that the U.S. government intends to have no more Vietnams.

While he has also given assurances that treaty commitments will be kept, Rogers has begun detaching the United States from the conflicts of Asia and promoting a substitute policy of regional self-reliance.

It is a big swing away from the

policies which led the Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson administrations step by step into the Vietnam war.

Rogers, winding up his first foreign venture in personal diplomacy, will report to President Nixon this weekend that the initial steps in disavowment have, on the whole, been met with enthusiastic approval by the leaders he has talked to.

RELAXED STYLE

Associates credit much of his success to Rogers' style of personal diplomacy — easy, relaxed, and low-keyed, the manner of the highly successful corporation lawyer confidently working over problems with his clients.

The chief danger is that with his friendly desk-side manner, the secretary may have given the impression of more support than he intended to foreign leaders seeking sympathy for their special causes.

President Yahya Khan of Pakistan said Rogers was sympathetic to his request that the United States resume the sale of tanks, artillery, planes and other arms to his country. Rogers thought he was being diplomatically noncommittal.

Rogers did try to get some of Asia's quarreling countries together. He is trying to set up talks between Pakistan and India on Kashmir. He urged Pakistan and Afghanistan to try to resolve their long dispute over the Pathan tribesmen along their border.

Rogers told Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman that he understood Thailand's talk about getting on better terms with Red China. The United States would like to do the same thing, he said, but the Chinese are not interested.

Asian leaders, who tend to be formally polite, haven't seen a diplomat quite like Rogers before. Although they evidently liked him, they will watch closely now to see what action the United States takes. By this, they can measure the extent of his influence with President Nixon.

Hot Dog Data Garnered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Should chicken meat be allowed in hot dogs without saying so in large letters on the package?

Consumer and industry reaction to that question was mixed, the Agriculture Department said yesterday, announcing the end of a 45-day period to collect comment on the proposal.

A new regulation would allow up to 15 per cent poultry meat in federally inspected sausages, hot dogs and bologna without a large-letter label. Poultry ingredients in excess of 15 per cent would still require a large label.

War Cost Close to $100 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vietnam is fast becoming a hundred-billion-dollar war.

Government figures show the 1970 defense budget will add $25.4 billion to officially admitted expenses dating back to 1965, raising the price of the conflict to $108.2 billion.

Hidden or indirect costs probably add hundreds of millions to the real expense of the war, although the scope of these items is sometimes difficult to assess because of official secrecy.

For example, the American government is doling out millions in economic assistance to reinforce such Vietnam border countries as Thailand and Laos which could sway the balance of power in the area.

LUMPED TOGETHER

The Pentagon budget lumps admitted Vietnam war costs under a category entitled "Estimated Special Support for Southeast Asia Operations."

The Southeast Asia category does not, however, fully reflect some other war-related expenses such as construction of the Thai-owned airfield near Sattahip, Thailand, which the United States built in 1965 to handle KC135 tankers and B52 bombers flying missions into Laos and South Vietnam. This base cost well over $150 million.

The general financial bookkeeping for the war back to fiscal 1965, which began in mid-1964, reads this way:

In 1965—$103 million; 1966, $6,094 million; 1967, $20,557 billion; 1968, $26,539 billion; 1969, $20,182 billion; and, projected for fiscal 1970, $25.4 billion.

The U.S. cost for fighting the 37-month Korean War was about $18 billion. The American cost for World War II ran about $250,000 million a day.

Springtime Sizzle Is Due to Continue

The temperature in downtown Pontiac rose 16 degrees between 6 and 10 a.m. today, accelerating the warming trend begun Monday. The skies continue cloudy with highs expected between 84 and 87; lows between 60 and 64.

Tomorrow's thermometer will continue to climb with highs ranging from 86 to 90. A chance of thundershowers is indicated.

Cooling is expected late in the day when warm winds, currently varying from 10 to 20 miles per hour, will tack to the northwest at about the same rate.

Friday's outlook is mostly fair and a little cooler.

The overnight low was 66. By 1 p.m. the temperature had climbed to 86.

SMOKE VICTIMS—Police administer oxygen at Penn Station in Newark to passengers who suffered smoke inhalation when a Penn Central commuter train caught fire in a tunnel under the Hudson River last night. One man was killed when the train lurched backward after he stepped off it. About 200 others were forced to walk a half-mile in the darkness on a tunnel catwalk to the New Jersey end. (Story, page B-14.)

Misadventures in Paradise

HONOLULU (UPI) — Dale Kuhns of San Carlos, Calif., won't forget the 60th annual convention of Rotary International in Honolulu.

Sunday when Kuhns was riding in a rented car his swim trunks and his pants flew out. The pants, with $170 and his hotel keys in the pockets, were found by four youngsters who returned them to Kuhns.

Early Monday thieves broke into Kuhns' hotel room and took $200 in cash, including the $170 that had been in his pants.

Kuhns later went surfing and hurt his back. That night, he and his wife went to a luau that ran out of food before Kuhns and his wife were served.

College-Degree Plan for Troy

A college degree without leaving the local high school is the goal of a program to debut this fall in the Troy School District.

Troy school administrators and representatives of Oakland Community College and Wayne State University yesterday unveiled cooperative plans for a complete kindergarten through masters degree opportunity exclusively within the Troy school system.

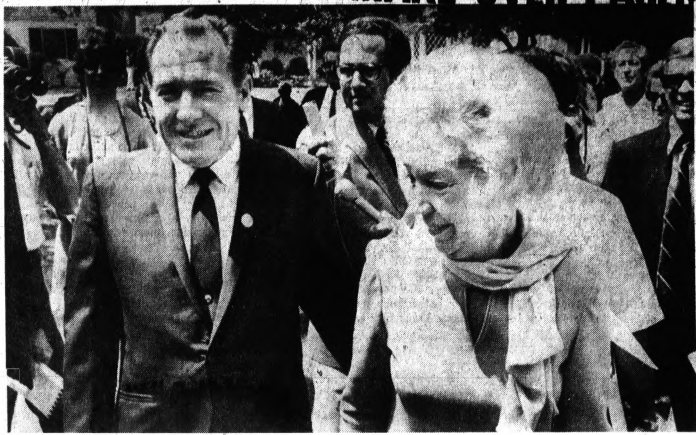

A student who graduates from Troy High School presently may complete his freshman and sophomore collegiate years right at the high school via OCC extension classes. Now he will be able to complete his junior and senior years through the new WSU program.

In education and business programs, the student could even earn his master's degree at the high school with a minimum of downtown campus time. The latter visits would be necessary only for selected courses.

YORTY AND WIFE PRIOR TO VICTORY—Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles and his wife, Betty, arrive at their polling place to vote in yesterday's municipal election in which the mayor turned back City Councilman Thomas Bradley's bid to become Los Angeles' first Negro mayor. With all but six precincts in, Yorty had 447,039 votes to Bradley's 392,379. Almost 80 per cent of the voters cast ballots. (Story, page A-2.)

Postal-Reform Route Is Rocky

WASHINGTON (U) — President Nixon's urgent postal reform legislation was given special delivery to Capitol Hill but its trip through Congress may be slower than a footsore mailman.

Potential opposition from bulk mailers and postal unions—the politicians' version of snow, mud, rain and heat and gloom of night—may stay Nixon's bill from swift completion of its appointed rounds.

The mailers and the unions, who fear the loss of gains they fought for in Congress, pose the greatest opposition to the reform plan.

"The unions are going to have to be convinced that the situation under the new arrangement will be as good or better than what they now have," Rep. Morris K. Udall said.

HOPEFUL NOTE

Postmaster General Winton M. Blount, however, struck a hopeful note on the union opposition.

"While they haven't formally endorsed it (the reform plan), we did have very fruitful discussions," Blount said.

House Speaker John W. McCormack

called the proposal to convert the Post Office Department into a government owned, self-sustaining corporation "A subject for long-range consideration."

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan conceded the administration faces "a selling job on postal employees and the Congress."

'OUTLOOK' DIM

Udall, D-Ariz., a high-ranking member of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee and a supporter of the President's plan, admitted the outlook is dim this year.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., second-ranking Democrat on the Senate Post Office Committee, has announced his opposition to the postal corporation plan.

Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen said to expect opposition from rank-and-file GOP officials' who resent losing postal patronage.

President Nixon wants these changes for the Post Office, with its more than 700,000 employees, $7-billion budget a year, and annual mail load of 80 billion pieces.

Control by a nine-man, appointed board of directors to replace the present Cabinet-rank postmaster general.

Settlement of union wage and benefit requests by the board rather than by Congress.

Suspend Judge, Bounced to City Planners

By ED BLUNDEN

LANSING (UPI) — State Sen. George W. Kuhn, R-West Bloomfield Township, yesterday asked Gov. William G. Milliken to recommend suspension of a state appeals judge involved in a Mafia tipster's allegations of bribery and political payoff.

Kuhn urged the action against Judge S. Jerome Bronson, former Oakland County prosecutor, in a letter to the governor.

He suggested the suspension remain in effect until the allegations involving Bronson are "satisfactorily investigated and adjudicated."

The senator added: "In my judgment, suspension or relieving of the judicial functions of any judge under such circumstances is necessary, not only to protect the dignity of the court but the integrity of the entire judicial system in this state as well."

NO COMMENT

There was no immediate comment from the governor on Kuhn's letter.

A Citizens' petition calling for a grand jury investigation of Bronson was filed with the Oakland County Circuit Court last March 24. Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley and the State Police are studying the matter.

Kuhn and Sen. Robert J. Huber, R-Troy, have continually criticized Kelley's handling of the investigation ever since admitted Mafia moneyman Peter Lazaros of 2411 Dalesford, Troy, started talking last fall.

Lazaros, a Greek immigrant, alleges that high-ranking elected officials in Macomb, Oakland and Wayne counties accepted from Mafia sources in return for political favors.

Bronson, 29, elected to the appellate court last November, has refused comment on the allegations.

The City Commission played hot potato and tossed the question of downtown parking to the planning commission last night.

The planners will be asked to determine if a city ordinance has been violated in the case of parking for the $12.5-million addition to the Bell Telephone Co. facility at Mill and East Huron.

A charge that parking requirements have been ignored was leveled for the second straight week by Jerome Mulligan, an attorney for the Communication Workers of America (CWA).

Last night he charged the city was taking advantage of a "void" in its own ordinance to issue a building permit to Bell although the firm has not announced any plans to provide additional parking.

The expansion is expected to result in hiring 200 additional employees. To get a site for the annex, Bell traded land with the city, taking a former parking lot and giving a new one. Both pieces of land are about the same size, leaving the city with the same parking space with possibly 200 additional cars to worry about, Mulligan pointed out.

Holiday Brings Many Closings

All city, county and state offices, public service agencies, and banks savings and loan offices in Pontiac will close over the three-day Memorial Day weekend, starting Friday.

Most area stores will be closed on Friday only, in observance of the holiday.

Regular holiday schedules will be observed Friday by the post office, including limited pickups and no regular delivery services beyond special delivery. The post office will be open Saturday as usual.

All operations except routine maintenance will be shut down at Pontiac Motor Division, GMC Truck and Coach Division and the Fisher Body plant over the weekend.

First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Oakland Community National Bank and Pontiac State Bank have adjusted schedules to remain open tomorrow until 6 p.m. Capital Savings and Loan Association will keep regular hours tomorrow, closing Friday.

The Birmingham-Bloomfield Bank, which also will be closed over the weekend, plans to extend business hours until 8 p.m. tomorrow.

send the issue to the planning commission, which had drafted the ordinance.

Two city commissioners, T. Warren Fowler Sr., District 1, and F. Jack Douglas, District 4, expressed dismay that no representative of the Bell company had been present. The firm had been informed of the agenda item.

Other commissioners have commented that the CWA effort is aimed at getting free parking for Bell employees.

Many of the employees park in an all-day temporary lot at the south end of Mill at a charge of 25 cents per day, women, object to having to walk the three blocks to work, especially at night.

'NO CLEAR REQUIREMENT'

City Attorney Shirwin Birnkrant reported that the present ordinance "does not clearly and specifically make any requirement for additional off-street parking to be provided" in the case of the Bell facility. He said the planning commission should also study revising the ordinance.

No Parochial Action Seen This Week

QUESTION: Where do birds sleep. Why don't they fall off the branches?

ANSWER: Birds are very active and need plenty of rest at night. Few of us see them sleeping, because it would be dangerous for them to sleep in exposed places. They have many enemies.

Birds are expert at hiding. Some sleep in thickets, or in holes in trees; some burrow in leaves. Many sleep high up on branches of tall trees, concealed in the foliage, with their heads tucked under their wings. The soft shoulder feathers make fine pillows.

Birds don't fall off the branches because of an ingenious arrangement of their legs and feet. Each of the toes connects with a kind of cord going up inside the leg and around the joints.

When the bird squats down to sleep (upper left) this cord pulls the toes together, so the bird is securely locked to the branch.

But when the morning light wakes him, he stands up (upper right). This loosens the cord; now the bird can fly off the branch. It is time to fustle up some breakfast (lower left).

LANSING (AP) — House Speaker William Ryan, D-Detroit, said yesterday he does not think there will be any new move this week to revive the issue of state aid for nonpublic schools in the House.

NO PAROCHIAL

"I don't think we'll have time to discuss it," Ryan said. "We haven't had the time to talk to the legislators on their positions."

UNESCO Text Quotes Gandhi; Marx Most

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — The fathers of non-violence—Mahandas K. Gandhi and of communism—Karl Marx—are the most quoted thinkers in a book of quotations on human rights published today by the U. N. Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization.

Also in the 591-page book: "The Birthright of Man," are 39 quotations from the Old Testament, eight from the New Testament, 15 from the Koran and 11 from the Talmud.

Milliken to Talk and we don't know whether we have the votes or not."

Ryan said the time to revive parochial would be "when we have the votes to pass it—56 in House and 30 in the Senate."

Passage of an enabling resolution by both Houses could bring back the entire issue anew, Ryan noted.

CLOSINGS SEEN

"The problem won't go away," Ryan said. "If we don't pass it this year, some schools will go out of business. If we wait until 1970 to pass it, it will be too late for them."

The House speaker said both houses probably would like to see the other house handle the issue first.

Ryan said he saw some danger there might not be a fall legislative session to consider the entire area of reform of state school financing.

"The Legislature simply could not formally adjourn," he explained. "Then it would take the leaders of the Legislature to call them back."

'DO-NOTHING SESSION'

There also is a possibility, Ryan said, that any fall session might be a "do-nothing session."

There have been "rumors," he said, that some members of the Senate do not want a fall session.

"Some of these people are reflecting their own opinions," Ryan said. "Others might be pressured by public school administrators who are so against aid to nonpublic schools they would be willing to forego the port fall session to work for more aid for public schools."

There still are vehicle bills in the Senate, Ryan noted, to which a parochial measure could be attached.

RESOLUTION OF INTENT

Ryan said he saw no use in the passage by the Legislature of a resolution of intent to support parochial, or to ask the governor's study committee to take it under consideration.

"I'm against such a resolution," he declared. "It is kid stuff and would accomplish nothing."

Ryan reported that about $22 million had been added in committee to bills submitted by Gov. William Milliken on social services and public welfare.

About $10 million of this, he said, was added to direct relief, about $10 million to pay for hospitalization of the needy, about $1 million for services by physicians and some $750,000 "to get low-cost housing off the ground."

About $17 million of the total would come from state funds, he said.

Ryan said the $10 million added for direct relief would ease an added burden on counties if the governor's bills were passed as proposed.

Wayne County would be the major sufferer under the governor's plan, he said.

The $10 million added for hospitalization, he said, would be to pay for added costs caused by eliminating a cutoff period of 20 days for hospitalization.

COMMEMORATIVE STAMPS — The Post Office yesterday released these designs for two new six-cent postage stamps. One commemorates Alabama's sesquicentennial, featuring the state flower, the camellia, and the state bird, the yellowhammer. It will be issued Aug. 2 at Huntsville, Ala. The second stamp honors John Wesley Powell, the noted geologist who explored the Colorado River. It will be issued Aug. 1 at Page, Ariz., and features three small boats braving the turbulent river.

Lakes Study Is Fouled Up by Pollution

DETROIT (AP) — The Army Corps of Engineers reports that pollution has fouled a two-year study of Great Lakes pollution.

The $8 million study failed to answer the question of whether the dumping of muck dredged from river channels and harbors increases pollution in the Great Lakes.

"The beds of lake, and bay areas were found so polluted that additional pollution from dredge disposal could not be detected," the Corps reported.

The pilot study was undertaken in part because of a proposal to dispose of waste materials in diked land areas. Participating in the study were the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration and the State Water Resources Commission, along with the Army engineers.

The Corps insists that the problem of dumping in the open lake is "open to question," and contends that more research is needed.

Officials from the other two agencies, however, agree that the practice of dumping dredgings in deep water is undesirable.

Col. James T. White, Detroit district engineer, said that he believed it would cost too much money to set up diked land areas where polluted materials could be dumped.

Legal Opinion on Bell Slated

A legal opinion on a charge that Michigan Bell Telephone Co. is violating the city ordinance on off-street parking is expected to be submitted to the City Commission at its meeting at 8 tonight at City Hall, East Pike and East Wide Track.

Last week, a lawyer for the Communication Workers of America charged the company was building a $12.5-million addition to its building at Mill and East Huron without regard to the parking needs of some 200 additional workers expected at the facility.

The city's legal department was asked to check agreements and proposals concerning parking in that area of downtown.

Other items on the agenda include several proposals for utility projects.

No More Vietnams, Rogers Is Stressing

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers is spreading the word across Asia that the U.S. government is cutting its involvement abroad and intends to have no more Vietnams.

While he has also given assurances that treaty commitments will be kept, Rogers has begun detaching the United States from the conflicts of Asia and promoting a substitute policy of regional self-reliance.

War Cost Close to $100 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vietnam is fast becoming a hundred-billion-dollar war.

Government figures show the 1970 defense budget will add $25.4 billion to officially admitted expenses dating back to 1965, raising the price of the conflict to $108.2 billion.

Hidden or indirect costs probably add hundreds of millions to the real expense of the war, although the scope of these items is sometimes difficult to assess because of official secrecy.

For example, the American government is doing out millions in economic assistance to reinforce such Vietnam border countries as Thailand and Laos which could sway the balance of power in the area.

LUMPED TOGETHER

The Pentagon budget lumps admitted Vietnam war costs under a category entitled "Estimated Special Support for Southeast Asia Operations."

The Southeast Asia category does not, however, fully reflect some other war-related expenses such as construction of the Thai-owned airfield near Sattahip, Thailand, which the United States built in 1965 to handle KC135 tankers and B52 bombers flying missions into Laos and South Vietnam. This base cost well over $150 million.

The general financial bookkeeping for the war back to fiscal 1965, which began in mid-1964, reads this way:

In 1965—$108 million; 1966, $6,094 billion; 1967, $20,557 billion; 1968, $26,839 billion; 1969, $29,192 billion; and, proposed for fiscal 1970, $25.4 billion.

The U.S. cost for fighting the 37-month Korean War was about $18 billion. The American cost for World War II ran about $250 billion a day.

Springtime Sizzle Is Due to Continue

The temperature in downtown Pontiac rose 16 degrees between 6 and 10 a.m. today, accelerating the warming trend begun Monday. The skies continue cloudy with highs expected between 84 and 87; lows between 60 and 64.

Tomorrow's thermometer will continue to climb with highs ranging from 86 to 90. A chance of thundershowers is indicated.

Cooling is expected late in the day when warm winds, currently varying from 10 to 20 miles per hour, will tack to the northwest at about the same rate.

Friday's outlook is mostly fair and a little cooler.

The overnight low was 66. By 1 p.m. the temperature had climbed to 86.

policies which led the Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson administrations step by step into the Vietnam war.

Rogers, winding up his first foreign venture in personal diplomacy, will report to President Nixon this weekend that the initial steps in disengagement have, on the whole, been met with enthusiastic approval by the leaders he has talked to.

RELAXED STYLE

Associates credit much of his success to Rogers' style of personal diplomacy — easy, relaxed, and low-keyed, the manner of the highly successful corporation lawyer confidently working over problems with his clients.

The chief danger is that with his friendly deskside manner, the secretary may have given the impression of more support than he intended to foreign leaders seeking sympathy for their special causes.

President Yahya Khan of Pakistan said Rogers was sympathetic to his request that the United States resume the sale of tanks, artillery, planes and other arms to his country. Rogers thought he was being diplomatically noncommittal.

Rogers did try to get some of Asia's quarreling countries together. He is trying to set up talks between Pakistan and India on Kashmir. He urged Pakistan and Afghanistan to try to resolve their long dispute over the Pathan tribesmen along their border.

Rogers told Foreign Minister Thanat Kohman that he understood Thailand's talk about getting on better terms with Red China. The United States would like to do the same thing, he said, but the Chinese are not interested.

Asian leaders, who tend to be formally polite, haven't seen a diplomat quite like Rogers before. Although they evidently liked him, they will watch closely now to see what action the United States takes. By this, they can measure the extent of his influence with President Nixon.

Hot Dog Data Garnered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Should chicken meat be allowed in hot dogs without saying so in large letters on the package?

Consumer and industry reaction to that question was mixed, the Agriculture Department said yesterday, announcing the end of a 45-day period to collect comment on the proposal.

A new regulation would allow up to 15 per cent poultry meat in federally inspected sausages, hot dogs and bologna without a large-letter label. Poultry ingredients in excess of 15 per cent would still require a large label.

College-Degree Plan for Troy

A college degree without leaving the local high school is the goal of a program to debut this fall in the Troy School District.

Troy school administrators and representatives of Oakland Community College and Wayne State University yesterday unveiled cooperative plans for a complete kindergarten through masters degree opportunity exclusively within the Troy school system.

A student who graduates from Troy High School presently may complete his

Postal-Reform Route Is Rocky

WASHINGTON (U) — President Nixon's urgent postal reform legislation was given special delivery to Capitol Hill but its trip through Congress may be slower than a footsore mailman.

Potential opposition from bulk mailers and postal unions—the politicians' version of snow and rain and heat and gloom of night—may stay Nixon's bill from swift completion of its appointed rounds.

The mailers and the unions, who fear the loss of gains they fought for in Congress, pose the greatest opposition to the reform plan.

"The unions are going to have to be convinced that the situation under the new arrangement will be as good or better than what they now have," Rep. Morris K. Udall said.

HOPEFUL NOTE

Postmaster General Winton M. Blount, however, struck a hopeful note on the union opposition.

"While they haven't formally endorsed it (the reform plan), we did have very fruitful discussions," Blount said.

House Speaker John W. McCormack

called the proposal to convert the Post Office Department into a government owned, self-sustaining corporation "A subject for long-range consideration."

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan conceded the administration faces "a selling job on postal employees and the Congress."

'OUTLOOK' DIM

Udall, D-Ariz., a high-ranking member of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee and a supporter of the President's plan, admitted the outlook is dim this year.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., second-ranking Democrat on the Senate Post Office Committee, has announced his opposition to the postal corporation plan.

Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen said to expect opposition from rank-and-file GOP officials' who resent losing postal patronage.

President Nixon wants these changes for the Post Office, with its more than 700,000 employees, $7-billion budget a year, and annual mail load of 80 billion pieces.

Control by a nine-man, appointed board of directors to replace the present Cabinet-rank postmaster general.

Bell-Annex Parking Issue

Suspend Judge, Bounced to City Planners

By ED BLUNDEN

The City Commission played hot potato and tossed the question of downtown parking to the planning commission last night.

The planners will be asked to determine if a city ordinance has been violated in the case of parking for the $12.5-million addition to the Bell Telephone Co. facility at Mill and East Huron.

A charge that parking requirements have been ignored was leveled for the second straight week by Jerome Mulligan, an attorney for the Communication Workers of America (CWA).

The expansion is expected to result in hiring 200 additional employees. To get a site for the annex, Bell traded land with the city, taking a former parking lot and giving a new one. Both pieces of land are about the same size, leaving the city with the same parking space with possibly 200 additional cars to worry about, Mulligan pointed out.

The Birmingham - Bloomfield Bank, which also will be closed over the weekend, plans to extend business hours until 8 p.m. tomorrow.

The City Commission didn't answer Mulligan's charges or questions concerning the ordinance—which he branched as he spoke. Instead, it voted to send the issue to the planning commission, which had drafted the ordinance. Two city commissioners, T. Warren Fowler Sr., District 1, and F. Jack Douglas, District 4, expressed dismay that no representative of the Bell company had been present. The firm had been informed of the agenda item.

Other commissioners have commented that the CWA effort is aimed at getting free parking for Bell employees.

Many of the employees park in an all-day temporary lot at the south end of Mill at a charge of 25 cents per day, women, object to having to walk the three blocks to work, especially at night.

'NO CLEAR REQUIREMENT'

City Attorney Shirwin Birnkrant reported that the present ordinance "does not clearly and specifically make any requirement for additional off-street parking to be provided" in the case of the Bell facility. He said the planning commission should also study revising the ordinance.

DEAR ABBY: My wife took a secretarial job with an insurance company just to keep herself busy as the kids are grown and gone. Suddenly she announces that she and a man she works with are going on a weight losing contest.

The one who loses the most weight in 30 days has to treat the other one to a steak dinner in the best restaurant in town. (Just the two of them.) I trust my wife, but I don't like the idea of her going out to dinner with another man. He's married, too, but I understand his wife is all for it as she'll do anything to get him to lose weight.

Should I go along with this "contest" or not?

JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: It sounds like a fun kind of contest with a healthy objective. Give them your blessings and may the biggest loser win.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, I overheard my teenage son telling a friend that the two teen-age daughters of a good friend of mine were having sexual relations with the two sons of a woman who is a mutual friend of both the mother of the girls and myself.

When I asked my son how he came by this information, he said the two boys had been bragging about it at school. My son asked me not to tell anyone but I have not, as yet, agreed. I told him I would have to think about it.

Abby, I have never believed in interfering in the lives of my friends but I wonder if I would be a true friend to the two mothers if I just kept quiet. By speaking out, I could either be instrumental in helping all concerned avoid a tragedy, or I could lose two friends.

Consequently, I have decided to ask your advice and then follow it. Of course, I do not know that the boys' boasts are even true, but I do know that the boys and girls have been dating.

I was about that age when I refused to let my mother wear my "good" jacket. I will never forget the hurt look on her face when I told her no. She didn't say a word. She just turned around and left without it. When I saw her through the window wearing her shabby old coat, I could have bitten my tongue off.

She never mentioned it, nor did she ever "punish" me, but it has been 10 years, and my own conscience has punished me plenty.

LANSING (AP) — Proponents of abortion law reform are working behind the scenes, trying to pin down the 20 Senate votes they'll need to win a second attempt to order debate on the emotion-charged issue.

Sens. Gilbert Bursley, R-Ann Arbor, and John McCauley, D-Wyandotte, say they expect action late this week that could take their reform proposals off the table and put them in line for a vote.

Bursley's bill would allow termination of pregnancy if:

- There is significant risk that the physical or mental health of the mother would be seriously impaired.
- The pregnancy resulted from rape or incest.
- There is significant risk that the child would be born with serious physical or mental defect.

McCauley's proposal — far more sweeping — would remove criminal penalties for abortions performed in licensed and accredited hospitals by licensed and accredited doctors.

Moves last week to order debate on the Bursley bill failed by two votes, 18-13. Nineteen senators voted against taking the McCauley bill from the table, while only 13 approved the motion.

Bursley and McCauley said they were not discouraged by the votes, however, because the apparent defeat served to mobilize backers throughout the state.

"I've had many phone calls from people who think the bills are in trouble," Bursley said. "And some of them have started telephone campaigns, urging 'yes votes for us.'"

The Michigan Catholic Conference, major opponent of liberalized abortion laws, still is working against the bills.

Wedding Information

Planning your wedding? We want to help you.

Beginning June 9, we must have information about your wedding in our office five days in advance of the ceremony. Information blanks are available in the women's department, or the material may be printed clearly on any large sheet of paper.

MAKE OVER PAGES Installs Officers

Highlighting Tuesday's annual luncheon of the Women's Auxiliary to the Pontiac General Hospital was the installation of officers. The event took place in Pine Lake Country Club.

Installed by Mrs. Lee Hill were Mrs. Merrell Petrie, president; Mrs. Robert Stogdill, Mrs. Edward Eickmeier and Mrs. Richard J. Jorgensen, vice presidents; Mrs. A. L. MacAdams and Mrs. Violet McCoy, secretaries; Mrs. Fred McGuire, treasurer and Mrs. Maxwell Doerr, controller.

Mrs. Clark Adams was chairman of the day. Mrs. Maxwell Shadley shared the limelight with members of her committee, Mesdames: James Clarkson, Warren Newton, John Guenther, Arnold Brown and Charles Galloway.

Treat Friend to Ease Pain on Anniversary

Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: My friend's anniversary is coming up shortly but her husband passed away a month ago. Does one just completely drop anniversaries now that she is alone and in a sense, there is no more marriage? — Ruth

Dear Ruth: It is extremely painful to most widows and widowers to receive the same sort of remembrance they did when their partners were alive. A more considerate way of remembering the occasion is to ask your friend to your home, or to take her out to dinner, to afford her some diversion and keep her from becoming depressed on that special day.

CRITICISM

Dear Mrs. Post: I am enclosing a picture of my daughter and her husband on their wedding day. Our daughter is slightly taller than her husband. I have had a great deal of criticism that she should not have worn high heels. Actually they were very low but narrow.

She looked taller than him because of the heels, hair-do, and veil. But I cannot understand why that is so important. They are so very happy together. Why do people get so petty about things like this? — Ruby

Dear Ruby: Your friends had no business criticizing your daughter. What she wore was entirely her business, and furthermore, the slight difference in height was totally unimportant. A slender heel is far more flattering and graceful to someone who is a little bit heavier than "flats."

I was delighted to see, in the picture you sent me, that your daughter held herself proudly, looked her prettiest, and most of all, the couple looked so happy.

FAMILY TREE

Dear Mrs. Post: With the birth of our son, a question of great importance has arisen. My mother and father have been divorced for 12 years. During this time I have seen him only twice.

My father has never remarried, but my mother has. The relationship with my stepfather has been friendly. What would be the correct name to enter on our family tree, as my baby's grandfather — my real father, or my stepfather? — Brenda

Dear Brenda: A family tree follows a bloodline and when the line is interrupted that branch stops. Therefore, it is your father's name, not your stepfather's — that must be entered as the baby's grandfather.

For Droopy Eyes

No amount of makeup can make dull, tired eyes look attractive. A basic essential for eye care is one that most of us forget. That is — enough sleep and rest. A tired person can't help having tired-looking eyes.

BPW Group Reveals Plans

The Michigan Federation of Business and Professional Women met in annual convention last weekend in Grand Rapids. During their business sessions, they voted on two recommendations of interest to women in general:

- That the Federation contact President Nixon and Mrs. Ely Peterson, requesting that Dr. Margaret Moore of Indianapolis, Ind. be appointed to the office of Secretary of Urban Affairs under George Romney. She would work as woman director of law enforcement and the prevention of crime. Dr. Moore was instigator of this movement in Indianapolis.

- That the Federation, the local clubs and individuals write President Nixon requesting the appointment of the Hon. Martha W. Griffiths to the Supreme Court.

Miss America 1958, Marilyn Van Derbur, was guest speaker at the banquet.

Among area women attending the meetings were Mesdames: Andrew Mitchell, E. Cleo Wiley, Fred Giddings, E. R. Sturdy, Berdie Hall and George Frayer. Others were the Misses: Wilma Webb, Joanne Walsler, Helen Kinney, Mabel Smith, Faye Donelson and Bernice Hueter.

PCHS Class Notes Golden Reunion

Thirty-eight persons attended the golden anniversary reunion of Pontiac Central High School class of 1919. Joining the party were members of 1918 and 1920 graduating classes.

Master of ceremonies at All Saints Episcopal Church on Saturday was Donald McGaffey of Holly. He was assisted in arrangements by Mesdames: Bradley Miller, Virginia Husted, Hazel Schroeder and Paul Nelson.

Mrs. Sophia Eaton Kelly, who taught at PCHS during the time this group was in high school, was a guest.

Mrs. Alice McKinnon Brumfield came from Naples, Fla. and the Ed Logies from Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Ericksens Are Newlyweds

King of Kings Lutheran Church, Lake Orion, was the recent setting for the marriage of Hilary Potter and Cpl. Erik C. Ericksen, USMC, son of the Richard O. Ericksens of Clarkston Road, Oakland Township.

The daughter of the Keith Potters of Indianapolis, Ind., was assisted by her sisters, Becky and Missy, with Kirk and Rick Ericksen attending their brother.

Following a honeymoon trip to northern Michigan, the newlyweds will make their home in North Carolina where Cpl. Ericksen is stationed.

Portuguese Battle Guerrillas in Thick Mozambique Jungles

MUEDA, Mozambique (AP)—The operating theater in the small military hospital looks grim. Oxygen cylinders are stacked in the corner. Equipment lacks the usual polish. The once cream walls of the small square room are green with mold.

"We can't get rid of it," says the surgeon with a shrug. "Once the rainy season is over we'll be able to scrub the walls clean and paint them."

The Portuguese hospital is at this military outpost in the far north of Mozambique where African nationalist guerrillas are trying to overthrow a rule which began in the early 16th century.

STEAMY JUNGLES

Fighting between Portuguese forces and the Mozambique Liberation Front, known as Frelimo, is hardly a war in the conventional sense. It is a series of inconclusive skirmishes. Most involve only a few dozen men.

Fighting is in steamy jungle country where supply trucks can take three days to cover 40 miles over roads and tracks torn by torrential rains.

For the Portuguese soldiers, it is an irritating, nerve-racking war against a hit-and-run enemy seldom seen in undergrowth or thick grass that grows eight feet high. For Frelimo guerrillas, based across the Rovuma River in neighboring Tanzania, it is an uphill struggle. It's bad enough for the Portuguese troops, but the guerrillas don't have helicopters, light aircraft or vehicles to evacuate them if they are wounded.

This is one of three costly little wars Portugal is fighting against nationalists in its African territories. The others are in Angola and Portuguese Guinea, both on the west coast of Africa. Like the allies in Vietnam, Portuguese forces are fighting an elusive opponent in conditions favoring guerrilla warfare.

Frelimo guerrillas operate in small bands and never press home an attack. Groups of 20 to 30 mine roads and tracks and strike from ambush. They melt away into the bush before the Portuguese can launch an effective counterattack.

TIES DOWN ARMY

The Frelimo tactics are not sufficient to wrest the initiative from the Portuguese, but the harassment ties down an army of 40,000 to 50,000 of both whites and blacks.

Casualty rates, according to Portuguese communiques, average about 10 Portuguese and 100 guerrillas killed a month.

There are three war zones: In the Tete district, where the planned giant Cabora Bassa dam is to harness the waters of the Zambezi; in the northwestern corner of the territory, in Niassa district; and in the northeastern corner, in the Cabo Delgado district.

They are remote areas, far from the main towns and cities of Mozambique where South African and Rhodesian tourists flock.

CENTRAL HQ

Gen. Antonio dos Santos directs operations from headquarters in the central city of Nam-pula.

His chief of staff, Brig. Pinto Bessa, said Frelimo has been virtually wiped out, for the present, in Tete and is being steadily pushed back in Niassa. The main fighting, where "the situation is stable," is in Cabo Delgado.

Mueda is nestled on the edge of a small 3,000-foot plateau. Supplies, with roads near impassable during the rainy season, are flown in by Nord Atlas aircraft. Single-engine Dorniers relay them to smaller settlements.

The commanding officer, Lt. Col. Nuno Frazao, is a short, smiling man who carries a swagger stick carved from ebony wood and bearing the head of a Makonde tribal chief.

UNPLEASANT OUTPOST

His battalion occupies one of the most unpleasant major outposts in Portuguese Africa, but he and his officers can still enjoy brandy with coffee after dinner.

Periodically, perhaps once a year, Frelimo attacks Mueda itself.

Frelimo guerrillas in Cabo

Delgado operate largely through area, make up a large proportion of the "ethnic bridgehead" offered to Frelimo forces.

Using Mtwaru in Tanzania as a supply port, guerrillas enter into both Mozambique and Tanzania. The fierce Makondes, camp at Nachingwea to infiltrate Cabo Delgado.

Like other African nationalist movements, Frelimo is backed by Communists, notably Chinese, who arm, train and supply them. Portuguese frequently display captured weapons made in China, the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Yugoslavia.

Unable to use vehicles because they would be quickly spotted from the air, the Frelimo guerrillas move everywhere on foot.

The Portuguese are cautiously optimistic that they will be able to win back from Frelimo the 100,000 to 130,000 Africans estimated to be actively supporting the guerrillas.

Saigon's Fear of Coalition Government Has Historical Basis

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
The Saigon government's fear of a coalition with the Vietcong may be based on the history of post-World War II governments that have included Communists. In Western Europe and in Indonesia, the Communists were notably unsuccessful in using coalition tactics as a path to power. But coalitions invariably turned into totalitarian Communist governments wherever the Communists had supporting armed strength nearby.

In Poland, the Russians never gave the postwar "national unity" coalition a chance. Soviet power installed Krenin men, while the United States fruitlessly protested that Soviet-American understandings were being violated. By 1946, Poland was totally dominated by the Communists.

Hungary's coalition was subjected to "salami tactics," a bit sliced off at a time. A coalition came to power after the war, but the Communists, protected by Russian guns, gradually installed their own people and forced the other parties out. Bulgaria had a "Fatherland Front" coalition, too. The story was the same. Soviet troops were there, and the Communists crushed all opposition.

Soviet troops were not physically present in Czechoslovakia, but the threat of Russian intervention was always implicit in 1948 when the Communists were executing their coup to end the postwar "national front" coalition.

As World War II was ending, Mao Tse-tung also proposed a government for China representing all parties and "free and unrestricted elections to convene a national assembly which will form a proper coalition government."

Under U.S. prodding, Mao and Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists agreed to a coalition scheme involving convocation of a national assembly to write a constitution.

Food Stamp Changes Told

Changes in food stamp program regulations, designed to make increased buying power available to more people in the low-income groups, are in effect in Oakland County.

New participants are now allowed to purchase food coupons at one-half the regular price, during their first month of participation. The change applies to everyone eligible for the program, not just those in the lowest income groups, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service.

After the first month in the program, participants would be required to pay the normal amount.

The change is viewed as an attempt to ease the difficulty a family has in putting together enough cash to enter the program.

MINIMUM REDUCED

The second change reduces the minimum purchase requirement for the food stamp program to 50 cents per person per month.

Miss Ora Hinkley, director of Oakland County Social Services Department, noted that the changes went into effect at the beginning of the year, but there has been little increase in usage of the food stamp program.

Grand Rapids Vote on Busing Is Urged

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Three members of the Grand Rapids School Board, who were elected recently on an antibusing campaign, have called for a public vote on the controversial master plan for the city's schools. They are Lawrence Pojeski, Everett van Slyke and Jack Boonstra.

Pojeski said, "We believe the election is a mandate, a command from the people to reject the plan."

"They don't want a school system based upon busing and superschools," he said, "and they very clearly stated this at their very first chance to speak."

tion. The Communists later discarded the agreements, mounted an offensive, and by October 1949 were masters of the mainland. Nothing more was heard of elections, even though other "parties" were permitted to exist in name.

In North Vietnam after World War II, Communist Ho Chi Minh proclaimed a republic under a "fatherland front." North Vietnam to this day retains that facade of coalition, but all parties except the Lao Dong Communists—are powerless.

On the other side of the ledger, the Italian Communist party took part in seven postwar coalition governments. Communists also were in the first postwar provisional government of France. In both cases, the Communists eventually were kicked out of the government.

In sprawling, populous Indonesia, the Communists for long time participated in a coalition in President Sukarno's government and enjoyed enormous influence. The party, inspired by Red China, tried a coup in 1965, but it backfired. The result was a countrywide slaughter of Communists. The remnants are now hiding out, hoping and planning for a comeback.

One coalition is being watched, though without much hope, as a possible model for Vietnam. This is in Laos, next door. There, in an attempt to solve a threatening world crisis in 1962, a formula was reached to put three groups in the government: right wing, neutralist and Communist.

The fiction of that arrangement is maintained, even though the Communists are not participating actively. The Communists, in fact, are entrenched in a large section of the north, with their own administration. As a coalition, the Laos arrangement has to be judged a failure, since the Communists there, with their North Vietnamese allies, have been continuing the war.

Political Violence Returning to Guatemala as Campaign Nears

GUATEMALA (AP) — One night early this month, a stolen car slowed to a halt in a darkened side street of downtown Guatemala City. A young woman darted out of the vehicle, but before she reached the curb, her companions shot her dead.

The slain girl, identified as Gladys Haydee Rojas Vargas, was the victim of a Castrolite guerrilla execution. The Guatemalan Rebel Armed Forces issued a mimeographed communiqué saying she had been sentenced to death "by revolutionary laws for informing and treason." The girl had been a member of the FAR, the communist said, who had turned "counteragent for the enemy."

Responsible Guatemalans regard such killings as the earliest signs of a renewal of political violence they are convinced will be spawned in this most populous and troubled of Central American countries as the 1970 presidential election campaign nears.

August marks the start of electioneering for the presidential chair occupied since 1966 by Julio Cesar Mendez Montenegro, ex-law professor and titular boss of the Revolutionary party.

FEW COMPLETE TERMS

If Mendez Montenegro completes his term and steps down next July, he'll be the second democratically elected Guatemalan president to do so in this century. Juan Jose Arevalo, who governed in 1945-51, is the other. Political greed and violence either toppled others or drove them to try to perpetuate themselves in office.

The FAR communiqué awakened apprehensions about left-wing extremists and their capabilities. Although the army crushed their mountain-based operations in mid-1967, the two major leftist factions, the FAR and the MR-13, continued a deadly urban war that finally died out in early 1968.

The far leftist leaders, Cesar Montes of the FAR and Marco Antonio Yon Sosa of the MR-13, are apparently hiding somewhere in the country.

The general expectation is that they'll soon renew the once-successful strategy of kidn-ings of rich businessmen for ransom with which to finance operations.

One of the leading candidates for the presidency is Col. Carlos Arana Osorio, who led the bloody cleanup of guerrillas in Guatemala's northeastern mountain ranges. He is backed by the rightist Movement of National Liberation, and the campaign slogan is "security, order and work."

Although he hotly denies it when asked, Col. Arana, 50, a beefy, personable 6-footer, is reputed to have armed and organized peasants familiar with the mountain terrain into paramilitary units that were instrumental in flushing out the Castrolite guerrillas. Many peasants were killed in the fighting.

Because of this background, the Guatemalan left views Arana as symbol of official repression. His candidacy is expected to polarize leftist sentiment against him.

Nonetheless, Arana is considered a strong candidate with special appeal among affluent and influential conservatives anxious for peace. He also has known support among the small rural farmers whose areas he pacified.

The other announced candidates so far are Mario Fuentes Pieruccini, 47, a lawyer backed by the ruling Revolutionary party, and Jorge Lueas Caballeros, 44, a chubby university professor, economist and former army major, of the Christian Democratic party.

Film Academy Headed for Needed Revamp!

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Oscar, Hollywood's favorite whipping boy, is taking it again. This time it's the directors who are up in arms over an alleged slight to their profession.

The motion picture Academy made a 56-minute capsule of last month's awards affair for televising in foreign countries. Many of the awards in the two-hour show had to be eliminated, and Carol Reed, named best director for "Oliver!", landed on the cutting-room floor.

The Directors Guild of America

was incensed, even though Britisher Reed was not a member. Academy President Gregory Peck replied that the capsule version had been an experiment and the director award would be included next year.

That didn't satisfy the directors. They insisted on a public apology. The Academy's answer awaits the return of Peck from Europe.

OVERHAUL ASKED

Among the directors who protested individually was George Sidney. "It won't happen again" is not good enough. The academy membership, its methods, aims, ideals, must be overhauled," he said.

Peck has appointed a committee to look into membership, particularly as it affects the voting for the Oscars. A study of the academy's membership list indicates that an overhaul is overdue.

"The academy is an honorary organization of industry craftsmen." So reads the official pronouncement.

The academy's by-laws declare: "Invitations to active membership shall be limited to those persons employed by motion picture producing companies, or credited with screen achievements, who in the opinion of the board, are qualified for membership by virtue of having achieved distinction in their respective fields of endeavor within the industry."

MORE THAN 3,000

Somehow the academy has managed to find slightly more than 3,000 persons who fit that category.

There are 339 academy members in the acting category, by far the largest grouping. Fully one-third would not be recognized by even close observers of the film scene, including this one. These are a few of the names: Edit Angold, Parley Baer, Majel Barrett, Argentina Brunetti, Steve Ihnat, Rita Royce, Than Wyenn, Will Kuluva, Syl Lamont.

Consider the membership in the other voting categories: administrators, 80; cinematographers, 143; music, 190; film editors, 141; producers, 174; short subjects, 157; directors, 117; public relations, 210; sound, 194; writers, 262; executives, 234; art directors, 175.

With all due respect to my

Earl, on the Roam in Cannes, Finds 'It's a Small World'

By EARL WILSON

CANNES—It's because I'm from a small town myself that I'm always pouncing on people, asking them, "Where are you from?"

I saw a little man sitting on the terrace at the Hotel Carlton, so short that his chin just came to the table top. There were a lot of sophisticates here for the film festival, making remarks such as, "The new trend is to make pictures without stars—yes, and without stories too."

"Who is that little guy?" I kept wondering. It was 3-feet-10-inches tall Michael Dunn, once of "Ship of Fools," quite a scintillating performer in the Broadway show, "Ballad of a Sad Cafe," with Colleen Dewhurst in 1963—and now getting star billing in the picture, "The Way the Cookie Crumbles," being made by Brigitte Bardot's one-time romance, Bob Segui.

"Where you from?" I asked him. "Shattuck, Okla.," he said. But he grew up in Livonia, Mich., went to Detroit Redford High, then while at the University of Miami in Florida, he did sports rewrite for the Miami News in the '50s though he was then known as Gary Miller. And now the 90-centimeters high little guy is getting big in films.

We were at beautiful Cap d'Antibes. Our host, a man of the world, Sam Arkoff, head of American International Pictures in Hollywood, had his own box of Havanas in front of him.

He's just filmed "De Sade" which he describes in his sophisticated way as "a picture about a wholesome, homey, folksy, fun-for-everybody-in-the-family orgy." Next he and partner James Nicholson film "Dante's Inferno," set on the Reeperbahn, the famous brothel street in Hamburg.

"Where you from?" I asked Sam. "Fort Dodge, Iowa," he said.

Mental Health Facilities Decried

LANSING (UPI) — A survey of Michigan's state-operated mental health facilities has turned up dilapidated buildings and patient overcrowding reminiscent of the Dark Ages.

Some structures were found to be firetraps — and a 95-year-old domiciliary at the Kalamazoo State Hospital contained no heat or electricity in patients' rooms.

Survey results were released yesterday by Director William H. Anderson of the state Mental Health Department and Gov. William G. Milliken.

"Michigan's state hospitals for the mentally ill and state institutions for the retarded are housing a majority of their patients in obsolete and inadequate buildings," Dr. Anderson reported.

MUCH OVERCROWDING — "Equally important, though less apparent, is the fact that many buildings are overcrowded with patients."

Nixon Plans Partial Revamping

Foreign-Aid Plea: $2.6 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, after taking steps to seek bipartisan support, had a $2.6-billion foreign aid request to present to Congress today.

Nixon's program calls for a partial revamping of the U.S. overseas assistance effort, but a more far-reaching overhaul of foreign aid will await a study by a blue-ribbon review group the President plans to appoint, administration sources said.

Technical assistance and private investment in developing countries abroad were items marked for special emphasis in the new administration's first message on the controversial foreign aid issue.

representing "overcrowding of serious proportions."

Conditions were described as poorest at the Lapeer, Caro, Coldwater and Ft. Custer state homes.

At Lapeer, Dr. Anderson said, many buildings now in use are dilapidated beyond repair and should be razed.

FIRE STANDARDS CITED

"Lapeer has a resident population 60 per cent (1,190 patients) above permissible fire safety standards," the director added.

At Caro, overcrowding is more than 32 per cent, at Coldwater nearly 40 per cent, and the age and condition of the buildings in use are comparable to many of those at Lapeer.

Dr. Anderson said plans are under way to close the Ft. Custer home but that it will be nearly five years before evacuation can be completed.

The hospitals at Kalamazoo, Pontiac and Traverse City — Milliken's hometown — were singled out in the report for deteriorating physical facilities.

ANCIENT BUILDINGS

Dr. Anderson said of the 7,000 resident patients in these hospitals, less than 40 per cent are housed in buildings constructed since 1910. He said some 3,000 are in buildings opened between 1875 and 1900.

One of the buildings constructed at Kalamazoo in 1874 is still occupied," Dr. Anderson said. "It has no heat or electricity in patients' rooms."

It was noted that Newberry State Hospital, opened in 1885,
