OAKLAND UNIVERSITY
1975 Commencement Program

The motto, Seguir Virtute E Canoscenza, has a very distinguished origin, Canto XXVI, 1. 120, of Dante's Inferno. These are the final words of Ulysses' great speech to his men urging them to sail on and on in pursuit of knowledge and experience of the world - even beyond the pillars of Hercules, traditionally the frontier and limit of legitimate exploration.

This is the three-line stanza:

Considerate la vostra semenza

Consider your birth

Fatti non foste a viver come bruti

You were not made to live like brutes

Ma per seguir virtute e canoscenza.

But to follow courage and knowledge.

UNIVERSITY AND DEPARTMENTAL HONORS

At each Commencement Oakland University extends special recognition to those students who have attained outstanding levels of academic achievement.

The University Senate, acting on the advice of its Committee on Academic Standing and Honors, authorizes University Honors at three levels for those students who have completed 62 credits or more at Oakland, with cumulative averages above 3.60 as follows:

Cum Laude	3.60 – 3.74
------------------	--------------------

Magna Cum Laude	3.75 – 3.89
------------------------	--------------------

Summa Cum Laude	3.90 – 4.00
------------------------	--------------------

Those students who have records of superior achievement in their major field of study are designated as graduating with departmental honors.

Recessional

on academic regalia

an edifying note contributed by a certain anonymous doctor of philosophy on at least two solemn occasions during the academic calendar — spring commencement and fall convocation — the faculty of the university publicly displays its full academic regalia and participates in the liturgical measures of processional and recessional. the purposes of commencement and convocation are well known, but the reasons for the peculiar garb of the celebrants and their odd order of march are often as obscure to the audience as they are, in fact, to the faculty itself. this note may serve to explain academic dress and the professorial pecking order it costumes.

contemporary academics are descendants of clerical schoolmen in the universities of medieval europe. like the clergy, members of the bench and bar, and other learned professionals, the medieval scholar clothed himself in heavy robes to keep out the draught from unheated, windowless buildings. like all members of a hierarchical society, the medieval faculties rejoiced in visible insignia of rank. these outward signs of accomplishment and authority were tailored into the robes. the need for such voluminous garments to keep the scholar from catching a cold is long past; the use of them to symbolize the dignity of the wearer remains.

you will observe that all caps and gowns worn by our faculty are black, with certain disturbing exceptions. black was the color adopted by mutual agreement among american universities at the end of the nineteenth century. in europe each university has its own distinctive gowns, varying in color and cut with each institution. a european academic assemblage is a far gaudier occasion than its counterpart in america. recently, a few universities in this country rashly broke the agreement and authorized robes in their own colors: the crimson of harvard and the blue of yale may be seen in our ranks. this unsuitable spontaneity has been frowned on by sister institutions, but harvard and yale persist in their madness.

there are three basic academic degrees: the baccalaureate or bachelor's degree, the master's degree, and the doctorate. a special style of robe is prescribed for each. the bachelor's gown is sparsely cut, neat, but a bit skimpy and unadorned, as befits apprentices. the master's gown is still simple, but fuller, sports a sleeve of extraordinary design impossible to describe, and has a hood draped from the shoulders down the back. once used to keep the tonsured heads of medieval clerks from freezing, the hood now is solely a badge of a degree of scholarly achievement. the master's hood is small and narrow, but displays the colors of the institution that awarded the degree. if you knew the colors of american universities, you could easily identify from whence came our masters. the doctoral robe is the most handsome of academic raiment. generous of cut, of fine aristocratic stuff, it is faced with velvet and emblazoned with velvet chevrons on the ample sleeves. you will note that most of the velvet facings and chevrons are black, but that some are of other colors. according to personal taste, the doctor may display the color of his doctoral degree on his sleeves and facings: royal blue for philosophy, green for medicine, purple for law, scarlet for theology, and many more. the royal blue of the doctor of philosophy (ph.d.) is the most commonly seen in a liberal arts institution such as oakland. the doctor's hood is the most elegant of all academic appurtenances. large and graceful, it is lined in satin with the colors of the university that awarded the degree and is bordered with the color of the degree itself. all academic costume includes the square cap called a mortarboard; the doctor's tassel may be either black or gold — tassels of all other degrees are black and a bit stringy.

to instructed eyes, the order of march in the processional and recessional reveals the standing of individuals in the institution's formal hierarchy. in the processional the order of entrance into the hall is, quite fittingly, from most junior to most senior. the baccalaureate candidates enter first, separated from the faculty by a decent interval. in the faculty order, the instructors precede the assistant professors who in turn are followed by the associate professors. the august full professors bring up the rear. after a respectful distance, come the deans who in turn are separated by significant space from the awful majesty of chancellors, presidents, and members of the board of trustees. all remain standing until the board is seated. after the ceremonies the order of recessional is the reverse of the processional. the greatest dignitaries stream out of the hall first, with the artfully organized ranks of priority following in their wake.

it is hoped that these notes may make more intelligible the spectacle you are witnessing today. a discerning intelligence may detect in it many clues to an understanding of the academic profession as it confronts the ambiguities of the future with ancient wisdom and dignified confidence.
