New Post Office on West Huron Wins Official OK

Bids for Main Building Near Genesee Avenue to Be Open in 48 Hours

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield and Congressman William S.

Broomfield (R - Royal Oak) have announced the approval of a new post office building for Pontiac.

Bids for the Huron Street structure will be open in 48 hours, with specifications available at the regional real estate office of the post office department in Chicago, Broomfield reported from Summerfield.

The new building is designed to alleviate crowded conditions and inadequacies in the present downtown building. It will be located on Huron between Chippewa road and Genesee avenue.

Originally contemplated as a parcel post and vehicle handling operations, the building plan was later switched to provide for a new main office, including the original facilities.

Postmaster General Summerfield recognized the need for the Pontiac building following a survey by his department of crowded conditions in the existing facilities here.

Upon completion of the new post office, the downtown branch will become a "finance section," according to Acting Postmaster Leslie Dean.

He added that present public services will be maintained at the downtown office, but all bulk mail handling and sorting will be done at the new building.

As announced by Summerfield, the new structure will be a modern design one-story building, with a large basement.

The new block and brick veneer building will have 37,088 square feet of floor space on the main floor, with another 47,000 square feet of land utilized for parking and driveways.

2-Car Collision Kills Local Man

Arvid Fors, 60, Dies
After Crash at Golf Dr.,
Telegraph Rd.

A 60-year-old Pontiac man died yesterday, 2½ hours after he was involved in a two-car accident at Telegraph Rd. and Golf Dr. in Bloomfield Township.

Arvid N. Fors, 1255 Desaix Rd., died from extensive brain injuries and a fractured skull about 8:10 p.m., according to Deputy Coroner Harry Riggs.

Bloomfield Township Police report Fors' auto collided with another driven by William H. Brown, 46, of 183 Oliver St., while attempting to turn out of Golf drive south onto Telegraph road.

Brown was treated for cuts and bruises and then released from the hospital.

Fors, a native of Sweden, was employed at the General Motors Truck and Coach Division.

He was married and had two children.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at the home of Mrs. Fors, 1255 Desaix Rd.

Interment will be in the Forest Hill cemetery.

The body will be in state at the home of Mrs. Fors.

Quiet Hospital Room? It Could Stay Like This

YOUR VOTE WILL DECIDE — This is how the interior of the Pontiac General Hospital addition looks today. Not much of a spot in which to survive a critical illness. But the hospital addition will stay this way unless voters Monday approve a bond issue to equip and furnish the new wing. Will it be this, or usable hospital facilities? Your vote will decide.

For Equipment Bond Issue

Hospital Gains Support

Three more organizations have endorsed the proposed bond issue to complete and equip the city hospital's new 200-bed addition.

Endorsements come from the Pontiac Association of Insurance Agents, the Optimist Club and the Zonta Club.

"It brings the list to 14 civic, labor and business organizations representing thousands of people behind a 'yes' vote Monday on the hospital election issues.

"The hospital expansion program is essential to our community," said Carleton C. Patterson Jr., president of the insurance association.

"The bond issue is the fairest way of financing the sorely needed new facilities," Patterson said. "A 'yes' vote is a must."

Patterson's group represents 16 of the community's established agencies. The Optimist Club, made up of independent businessmen, and the Zonta Club, a professional women's group, also issued statements strongly supporting the hospital program.

On Monday's ballot are a $4,500,000 general obligation bond issue and a corresponding one mill added to the city's tax structure.

The bond issue is divided into $1,500,000 for completing and equipping the hospital addition; $350,000 for a 300-unit hospital parking lot, and $2,700,000 for enlargement of the city's sewage treatment plant system.

According to Carroll L. Osmun, chairman of the Volunteer Hospital Committee, these groups have gone on record favoring passage of the hospital issues.

Quizzing Beck Again on Beer, Borrowing

WASHINGTON (INS) — Teamsters Union chieftain Dave Beck makes his third—and possibly last—stand before the Senate rackets investigating committee today.

The Senate group wants to hear more about Beck's adventures in beer, banking, borrowing and brokerage. He already has refused to answer 150 questions.

The 62-year-old embattled president of the nation's largest union, however, was expected again to defend himself with the weapon he has used twice before—the Fifth Amendment. Today's hearing was scheduled to get under way this afternoon.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said Beck's appearance today would "just about wind up this phase" of the probe into the union leader's financial maneuvers.

The No. 1 Teamster still will be faced with a federal court income tax indictment, a move within his own union to force him to step down, and an AFL-CIO trial on possible expulsion as vice president of the federation.

Beck may have no support from his own union when he defends himself before the AFL-CIO Monday against charges of pleading the Fifth Amendment to senators.

Canada's to Blame for Cold, Cold Air

The U. S. Weather Bureau reports that cold air from Canada is responsible for this area's near freezing temperatures.

Downtown Pontiac's lowest temperature prior to 8 a.m. was a frosty 35, and in Grand Marais a frigid low of 22 was reported.

Mostly fair and continued quite cool, low 36 to 40, is the forecast for tonight.

Tomorrow the high will average 56 to 60. Occasional rain is expected tomorrow night, with the mercury dipping to a low of 44 to 48.

At 2 p.m. the temperature was 51.

Witness Denies Budget Padding

Veteran Supervisor Says
Courthouse Plan Saved
Money

Veteran members of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors were prepared today to defend their plans to build a new courthouse.

One supervisor testified that a new building is badly needed and the county's pay-as-you-go financing plan has saved taxpayers' money.

Testifying in behalf of the proposed building in the service center area was David Levinson of Birmingham, a supervisor 24 years.

Corporation Counsel Harry J. Merritt said he may not call other members of the board since the need for a new building "has been conceded" in the case.

Among those ready for testimony were Fred W. Smith, of Royal Oak, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Harry W. Horton, of Royal Oak, chairman of the Buildings and Grounds Committee.

"There never has been any attempt to adopt any budget that had been padded in anyway whatsoever," Levinson emphatically stated.

"Originally, I was in favor of financing the courthouse through a bond issue. I thought that we

Property Takes Heavy Battering From Twisters

All Deaths Reported by Hardest-Hit Community of Silverton

DALLAS (AP)—More than 20 tornadoes lashed Texas last night and today, killing at least 20 persons, injuring scores of others, and inflicting heavy property damage.

All of the deaths were at Silverton, 65 miles southeast of Amarillo in the Texas Panhandle, where a vicious twister roared through the small town of 857 population at 10:30 p.m.

All regular lines of communication into the plains town were wiped out.

At least 30 persons were injured, many of them critically.

The tornado ripped through an eight-block area in the southwest part of Silverton, destroying 25 houses, a cotton gin, four granaries and a warehouse. At least 30 other homes were damaged.

The Silverton tornado climaxed the 28th straight day of violent weather in Texas.

NO WARNING

"We got no warning at all," said Elvert Stephens. "It came down on Silverton out of the rainy night without warning. People died without even knowing what happened. In one family, seven are dead."

The black funnel smashed automobiles, buses and utility lines.

"The people are numb with shock and terror," Sheriff Darrell Smith said. "They can't seem to realize what has happened."

Lack of lights, a torrential rain that continued for hours after the tornado struck and unpaved roads hampered rescue work.

One elderly couple covered in their storm cellar hours after the twister had passed. Their home had been swept away.

FULL HOSPITALS

When hospitals at Tulsa and Lockney were overflowing with injured, ambulances took other victims.

Downtown Merchants Plan Dividend Days

"Dividend Days," an opportunity for downtown Pontiac shoppers to secure unusual values, starts tomorrow and continues Saturday.

Paced by their special ads in today's Pontiac Press, 32 members of the Downtown Pontiac Assn. are offering the public "real buys" in a wide variety of items.

In addition, many of the Pontiac department stores are featuring their own sales and special events to make shopping in Pontiac still more attractive during the next two days.

Ghost Generals at Gettysburg

GETTYSBURG (NEA) — A chill breeze ruffled the grass at Little Round Top as the two old soldiers walked back to their car, followed by a troop of reporters and photographers.

Looking as if they'd been there all the time, you suddenly were aware of two additional figures still standing on the mound.

One wore shadowy Confederate gray, the other a filmy Union blue.

Each wore a general's epaulets on his dusty shoulders.

"So they would have sacked us, George." It was the white bearded man with the gentle eyes shaded by a gray campaign hat who spoke first.

"Oh well, Bob," said the stocky man in blue, "it's always hard to comprehend the other fellow's tactics."

"True," said Robert E. Lee. "Do you remember how hard we found it to understand why Monty took so long getting out of the Normandy peninsula? Pickett spoke up pretty sharply about that in our joint non-Confederate briefing at that time."

"Ah yes," chuckled George G. Meade. "And Jeb Stuart was pretty provoked with Ike's man Patton. Claimed he was too much of a headline grabber. He would have torn his shroud if he had heard Ike today say 'What hurt Stuart was his love of headlines.'"

"They couldn't understand why I fought across these fields," Lee continued. "I found it very hard to understand why Ike fought across those beaches."

"And why Monty advanced inch by inch across Belgium and Holland only after destroying everything in front of him with artillery," Meade broke in.

"If I might borrow a phrase from our recent visitors," added Meade tartly, "I might say that the way they fought was 'monstrous, simply monstrous.'"

The gray figure stood for a moment with bowed head and then spoke with a gentle smile:

"The way all of us fought... Alexander, Darius, Caesar, Washington, Wellington, Napoleon... MacArthur, Clark, Eisenhower, Montgomery... the misalliance of White Sands and the Urals too... is all 'simply monstrous.'"

"You're right, Lee," said Gen. Meade. "Maybe we should all have been sacked. But we all did the best we could in our time according to our lights."

20 Die as Tornadoes Roar Across Texas times to Plainview, Floydada, Dimmitt and Amarillo.

"There was destruction everywhere and the scene of death and devastation was made eerie by the wailing sirens, the flashing lights of police cars and ambulances, and lightning from the electrical storm," said Liron of the Plainview Evening Herald, one of the first newsmen on the scene.

The seven persons in one family who were killed lived in two adjoining houses. They were Mr. and Mrs. Veral Vaughan, Mr. and Mrs. Rance Stephens, and the three Stephens children. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan were the parents of Mrs. Stephens.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Domingo Rivas and their two children was wiped out by the twister.

Another victim was J. D. Dingham.

Still unidentified was an infant whose body was picked up in the middle of a debris-strewn street.

WAKENED BY ROAR

The roar of the twister awoke many of the residents but struck before they could get to storm cellars.

In serious condition at an Amarillo hospital was William Proctor. A stick of wood had been driven through his neck by the force of the tornado. His wife was also injured by debris.

The tornado missed the business section of Silverton, county seat of Briscoe County. It cut a 200-yard swath through the southwest residential section, where it destroyed homes and continued northeastward through residential and industrial sections.

Officials said that a preliminary survey showed that the path was about 200 yards wide and at least six miles long.

"Houses were leveled or swept away and I saw one that was piled in a heap like a shock of wheat," said Elvert Stephens. "I went to where the residence of an elderly sister and brother had stood—Miss Edyth Cox and her brother, Eddy. HOME TORN AWAY

"I groped through the rain and found the house had been completely torn away. The brother and sister had been saved because they had feared there might be a tornado and had gone to the cellar.

"I found them, still in the cellar, wrapped in blankets. Mr. Cox kept saying: 'Everything we have is gone.'"

Every house in the small Donley County community of Goldstone, nine miles north of Clarendon, was damaged by a small twister. The Department of Public Safety said it also damaged the school a short time after classes had been dismissed.

At Plains, 60 miles southwest of Lubbock, two business buildings and a house were damaged by a tornado which was accompanied by a heavy downpour.

Other tornadoes struck near Pampa, Amarillo, Plainview, Lockney, Tulla, Lela Lake, McLean, Groen, Miami, Lefors and Lubbock—all in the Panhandle and South Plains area.

Some ripped off roofs and damaged buildings, other just roared over the farm and range lands without damage.

Steal 3 Men's Suits From Pontiac Home

Three men's suits valued at $341 were stolen from the home of Eugene Avery, of 314½ Wessen St., sometime between 4 and 6 p.m. Saturday according to Pontiac Police.

Entrance was gained after thieves forced the lock on the door, Avery told police yesterday.

questions about his financial deals.

Teamster Vice President Elmer Mohr said yesterday after his five-man union committee conferred with AFL-CIO President George Meany that Beck's defense stand Monday "is an individual matter."

WON'T HELP BECK
Mohr's committee, composed of Teamster executive board members, had earlier charged that the AFL-CIO had no authority to try Beck, but yesterday's statement was taken to mean that the union's top command will make no further effort to intervene in their president's behalf.

Also on tap as a witness today before the Senate committee was Donald McDonald, auditor for the 11-state western conference of Teamsters.

The committee yesterday heard a story of the Teamsters shelling out a $12,000 commission to Beck's Chicago buddy, Nathan Shefferman, after he had attempted unsuccessfully to clean up $71,500 on a land transaction with the union.

Raymond Fields, former American Legion national public relations director and now publisher of two Guyton, Okla. newspapers, said Shefferman—representing Beck—suggested in 1949 that they profit to the tune of $71,500 from the sale of Legion-owned land in Washington to the Teamsters.

Fields said he balked at the plan, but Washington real estate broker Franklin C. Salisbury testified that the union later voted a $12,500 gift to Shefferman. There was no explanation as to what happened to the extra $500, but documents showed that a month later Shefferman paid Beck $8,000.

In addition to the land deal, Beck will be asked whether he:

1. Made more than $11,000 profit by selling mortgages to the needy widow of his closest friend, Ray Leheney, one-time Teamsters public relations man.
2. Used his role as union boss to obtain the biggest Badwater beer distributorship in the nation for his son, Dave Beck Jr.

485 'Make Decisions' as Graham Crusades

NEW YORK — Billy Graham's New York crusade got off to a rousing start last night. He said it could be the "beginning of a spiritual fire that will sweep this nation and ignite the world."

A crowd of 18,500 filled Madison Square Garden as Graham drummed at the "moral sickness" he said was loose in the land, and pleaded for a change of heart.

"We have lost God," he declared, his voice stern, his arms outstretched. "We have lost our anchorage, our moorings, our moral direction, our spiritual sensibilities."

At the end of the sermon, when he appealed for those who would "give your life to Christ" to come forward, 485 people came. He said it was "the largest first-night response I've ever seen from the pulpit in America."

They filed up the aisles, and down from the bunting-draped galleries. They crowded the escalators, moving to the ground floor, and clustered around the speaker's platform, a few of them tearful.

"As you come," Graham said, "many of you are not quite sure what is happening to you. It is a new birth. It is something God does for you supernaturally."

The Day in Birmingham

CAP Will Participate in Armed Forces Day

BIRMINGHAM—According to Lt. Ralph E. Beseg, public information officer, Birmingham Group CAP will participate in the open house Armed Forces Day programs Saturday and Sunday. The group consists of Birmingham, Clawson, Madison Heights, Hazel Park and Ferndale squadrons.

The cadets will man displays at Selfridge Air Force Base and the Army Ordnance depot on Mound road throughout the two days.

Displays will consist of radio and land line communications, air craft used in CAP missions and photographs of regular CAP sponsored activities. Planes are both CAP and privately owned and are used for search and rescue missions, training flights and cadet orientation rides.

Lt. Beseg said this is one of the best opportunities for the public to see for themselves the results of this nationally recognized youth development program. Basically it is designed to perpetuate an interest in aviation, to keep America strong, alert, ever-ready and ever-flying.

Dogs and cats, birds and an occasional fish are getting spruced up in preparation for the annual pet parade sponsored by St. James Episcopal Church. The 11 a.m. parade will be a part of the Fair operating from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

Cash prizes for the first three winners and honorable mentions for 12 boys and 12 girls will be awarded. Judges for the affair will be Leonardo the Great, who also will present a magic show at 12:30.

DAYTON, Ohio (INS)—There are two mailboxes on a Dayton street corner—one labeled "Out of Town Mail" and the other "Local Mail." Three times a day a mail truck pulls up and a driver empties both boxes into the same bag.

A bill to create a national atomic monopoly is being studied in Brazil.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Sergio Tomasani and Nancy both of Chicago, two sons Henry B. and Edward of Pontiac.

Service will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow from the Manley Bailey Funeral Home with burial in White Chapel Cemetery.

Walter Norberry
Birmingham Lodge 44 F & AM will conduct service at White Chapel Cemetery at 1 p.m. tomorrow for Walter Norberry, 55, of Sears. Arrangements are under the direction of Bell Chapel of the William R. Hamilton Co.

Mr. Norberry, a 32nd degree Mason, died Tuesday at Henry Ford Hospital after a long illness. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, a son, one sister and four brothers.

At the outset of the service, he expressed belief that the crusade may stir a "spiritual revolution." It is scheduled to last for at least six weeks.

"We need a spiritual revolution in America," he said, "and the place where it could begin is in New York."

A mass of greenery encircled the pulpit—potted ivy, ferns, cedars and other shrubs. Above it stretched a long blue banner, lettered in white: "Jesus, said, 'I am the way, the truth and the life.'"

American flags hung from the ceiling. The crowd began gathering hours before the meeting.

When the doors opened, they jammed the ground-floor chairs, and filled the three tiers above to the eaves, except for a few places high behind the pulpit.

Pacing back and forth, gesturing, often picking up his Bible and tapping its pages with his forefinger, Graham exhorted the assemblage to "surrender your will to Christ."

He said millions of people, frustrated and disillusioned by trying to live without God, are resorting to alcohol and tranquilizing pills and "running up one blind alley after another."

"The soul is hungering, straining for God, but people throw another aspirin in, and say, 'Be quiet, soul.'"

The answer, he said, can only be found in "an encounter with the living God."

MEMBER OF AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

THURSDAY, MAY 16, 1957

Vote 'Yes' on Expanding Sewage Treatment Plant

Expansion of Pontiac's sewage treatment plant will be voted May 20 at the special election.

The need for this expansion is not new. Pontiac will be merely complying with a 1951 order of the Michigan Water Resources Commission. The sewage expansion system will cost $3,091,000, the bulk of which the voters are being asked to approve with $2,700,000 worth of general obligation bonds.

Treatment of sewage is a must for any city. The health of too many people is involved not to have an adequate system. Present sewage facilities of the City plant at Featherstone and East Boulevard are now inadequate.

Pontiac officials, with the help of engineers, have come up with a plan to build a second and more modern plant on a 47-acre site at Opdyke Road and Auburn Avenue.

According to City Manager WALTER K. WILLMAN, the present site will not stand further expansion. Since this is true, we must act accordingly to take care of our needs. Much of this has been necessitated by the rapid population growth the last few years.

If Pontiac is to continue to grow, particularly in the northeast quadrant, the new sewage plant is a must. Any further growth to the east might well be curtailed because of the lack of adequate sewage.

Handling the sewage is one of the prime requisites of any city and the proper facilities to make this possible should be provided.

We feel that in order to encourage continued growth of both home owners and businesses, the voters should vote "YES" on the sewage bond issue.

Any sewage expansion completely lacks glamor, but it does claim tremendous necessity. It's one of those things "we simply have to do." There's no ducking.

We'll Also Make It Oakland County Week

While our State at large is supposed to be celebrating Michigan Week, May 19-25, it is a good time for our home folks to concentrate on observing it as Oakland County Week.

While the dates chosen are a little early for the outsiders to come and see us at our summer's best, that week is a good time to urge your friends to plan their vacations so they can be with us a little later—in July or August.

With the most lakes of any county in the southern peninsula, a great number of hills and valleys, expanses of prolific farming fields, excellent highways, fruit orchards, greenward meadows and beautiful homes, we have the vistas that are eye appealing, heart warming and mind soothing.

We have plenty of cultural projects, like Cranbrook and many others, to show that we have not allowed our industrial development to befog our views on the better things in life. And don't fail to remind your visitors that we are assured of a great university branch in the near future.

If it is wild life that has your guests' greatest appeal, just take them down most any of our back roads, or drive through some of our sanctuaries, and they'll see most everything afoot from gophers and squirrels to foxes and deer, and awing from humming birds and robins to hawks and eagles.

In sequestered wild life we have the Royal Oak Zoo within our own county where large and small birds, animals and reptiles from the entire world are on exhibition under the most humane conditions in that world.

Then, there's our golf courses, of which we have a greater number than any other similar area in the nation.

Our state, county and Huron-Metropolitan parks have every facility for the lover of the great outdoors, including plenty of picnic tables, camping grounds, nature trails and even diesel-driven excursion boats.

When you sum it all up, there is no area in the entire nation that furnishes such a wide diversity of attractions contiguous to such a large concentration of population.

So you have every reason to get behind the movement to make May 19-25 Oakland County Week.

The Man About Town
Our Oldest Man
Has Been Found, at an Age Leaving No Doubt

Modest: What many Oakland County people are too, in telling about our features that make it such a wonderful place to live.

This column's quest for the oldest man in Oakland County brings several entries, one of whom far outdistances all the others. He is Martin Lewis, formerly of 90 Jackson St., Pontiac, now at the Infirmary here. He turned the age of 107 a few weeks ago.

A verification of the records shows that he was born in slavery in Georgia on March 6, 1850. He now has no surviving relatives closer than a stepson. He is blind, but in quite good health. His hearing is good, he eats regular meals and bears well that unusual age.

No other man above the century mark has been reported. There are several women above that age in the county, the eldest being

Mrs. Elizabeth Beaumont Taylor of Highland, who will celebrate her one hundred and eighth birthday Dec. 18.

A golf partner at least 30 years his junior, who went the rounds of the links the other day with Attorney J. A. Tillson, now in his eighty-fourth year, tells me that Jay wanted to do it over again the same day, but his partner was bushed.

My Flint correspondent sends word that our Sarah Van Boven Jones was the speaker at the annual achievement day program of the Genesee County home economics groups in that city Wednesday.

The beautiful wisteria that surrounds the Lake Orion gas station of Earle Abbey is putting on its usual spring glory show, which it has done for over 30 years.

Perhaps our county's black panther has gone north for the summer. Residents of the Leonard area will be interested to know that we have received word from Frank Hawkes of Pickford, in the Northern Peninsula, that a black panther has been seen there—with a litter of cubs.

Quite exceptional among the villages in this area is Fenton. According to word from its long time President Harry E. Lemen, it is making a reduction in its 1957 tax rate.

Word comes to me from Superintendent David Laddlaw that open house will be held Sunday from ten to four o'clock at the new nature center building at Kent Lake Park, near Milford. In charge will be Naturalists Bill Hopkins and Charles Damm, and the general public is invited.

Verbal Orchids to—

Mrs. Emma Taylor of New Hudson, eighty-ninth birthday.

Mrs. Flora Hatchings of Metamora, eighty-sixth birthday.

Still Benched

David Lawrence Says:

Budget Cuts Won't Reduce Taxes

WASHINGTON — If the Federal budget were cut by $5.5 billion—which is about the deepest cut anyone has yet suggested—every taxpayer in the United States would have to pay about $78 less taxes than before.

If the budget cut is only half that sum—$2.75 billion—which is about what many leaders are saying could be safely trimmed, the tax reduction would amount to less than $40 per taxpayer.

This assumes that none of the money saved by budget-cutting would be used to retire any of the national debt. It also assumes that corporation taxes would remain as they are and that the savings would be divided on an equal basis among all individual taxpayers.

Yet there are many persons now participating in the hullabaloo about the Federal budget who really think that budget-cutting will mean sizable reductions to them in taxes, both as to individual and corporation rates. The illusion is widespread.

What isn't generally realized is that the Congress of the United States, facing a 1958 election, would probably follow the pattern of giving to the low-income groups the largest amount, if not all, of the tax reduction. In fact, in a significant roll call in March of this year 34 Senators—6 Republicans and 28 Democrats—led by Democratic Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, showed their desire actually to increase the rates for all corporations earning above $25,000 a year in order to give a tax benefit to companies earning under that level.

PERSONAL EXEMPTIONS
When the possibility of a tax reduction came up for consideration last year, a substantial number of members of Congress urged that the personal exemptions be raised so as to benefit the lower income groups.

This is the trend in Congress nowadays. If more radicals are elected to Congress on the Democratic side next year, the chances are that a tax law will be passed which is designed to win the largest number of votes. Hence, taxpayers in the middle or upper brackets are very likely not to get much, if any, benefit from the present agitation. Yet if national security is endangered by the budget cuts and an international crisis develops, there would immediately be imposed higher and higher taxes on taxpayers in the middle and upper brackets as well as on corporations.

Assuming that big savings could be made on the Federal budget, the logical thing to do is to use all of it to retire the national debt, which is already too high. As for the tax burden itself, there is every evidence that the country has absorbed it in a wave of prosperity. The tax take is a smaller proportion of the national income today than it was in 1954.

The U.S. Department of Commerce in the last 24 hours, moreover, has reported that personal income last month established a new record. It is running now at an annual rate of $339 billion. This is about one billion dollars higher than in March and 18 billions above April 1956.

The same official report says that more than half of the one-billion-dollar rise in April 1957 resulted from increases in wages and salaries, dividends and interest and much of the rest was due to payments to farmers who are drawing old-age benefits for the first time under social security. Incidentally, it isn't likely that many Congressmen from farm districts will want to economize on that item.

The demand for drastic cuts in the Federal budget is coming primarily from people who think that's the way to get a tax reduction. In Congress, of course, the economy drive has given to members who don't like certain types of legislation an opportunity to curtail appropriations. In the economy drive, the school program can be defeated, and that will naturally result in political trouble for many Congressmen up for re-election.

PLAY POLITICAL GAME
Judging by the political game

being played by the Democrats, who are egging the Republicans on to fight one another, the chances of electing a Republican Congress in 1958 are each day growing dimmer. President Eisenhower's leadership alone can save the situation for the Republican Party. But the fight against foreign aid and even against the military budget itself will tend to weaken the solidarity of the Republican Party, all of which is gird for the Democratic mill.

It is too early to appraise the impact of the President's appeal, but it would not be a bit surprising if a month hence, as the facts about the illusory tax reduction sink in, the mood of Congress becomes one of moderation rather than extremes in budget-cutting. (Copyright, 1957)

Dr. William Brady Says:

Quinine Is Old Standby, Prevents Colds, Jitters

Prophylaxis means guarding against, preserving from, or preventing disease; observing rules of health; preventive treatment. An example of prophylaxis is the scaling, polishing, cleaning, and treatment of any wee cavities your dentist finds when you pay him your periodic call.

The favorite prophylactic of the general public, judging by what readers tell me, is quinine.

In the CRI book, about nose, throat, and bronchial troubles (35 DR. BRADY cents and stamped self-addressed envelope) I say:

"If any medicine under the sun deserves the name 'cri cure' ('cold cure' to you), it is that old standby, quinine."

"We don't know precisely how quinine aids in the fight against pneumonia, bronchitis, flu, grip, etc., but the fact remains, that good physicians the world over place reliance on quinine for the prevention and treatment of such infections."

A good many readers have assured me that two grains of quinine twice a day for adults, one grain twice a day for children, has kept them free from flu, grip, etc. Good for them! Then there are those others who take it only when there is an epidemic.

GOOD FOR JITTERS TOO
More impressive, I think are the reports received from those who have used quinine and B-1 tablets as a prophylactic against stage fright or examination jitters.

For the prevention of either of these wretched conditions, begin preferably two weeks before the ordeal, but better even two days than not at all, taking 1 grain of quinine and 1 milligram of B-1 (thiamin) to tablet three times a day and continue this on up to the last hour.

"The first week of school, a whole group of freshmen boys got up when I reached their table with my tray and welcomed me with a great show of gallantry."

"They exaggerated their welcome, for they never dreamed that I knew their names, since they hadn't been on campus a week."

"But a few moments later Jim Zuckerman came over to the same big table with his tray,

City Post Office Employees Ask Help in Getting Raise

Letters will be condensed when necessary because of lack of space. Full name, address and telephone number of the writer must accompany letters but these will not be published if the writer so requests unless the letter is critical in its nature.

Postal career employees' starting pay is $3,660 per year. It takes seven years to reach $4,410. Our retirement fund is good, but 6½ per cent is deducted for it each pay day.

Our salaries shouldn't be compared with foreign countries. Circumstances and living costs are entirely different.

Congress should decide on this once and for all and set rates that will assure people of good, sound service. Second and third class and magazine publishers should pay their own way.

Salaries shouldn't be tied in with any rate increase, as salaries don't come out of Department revenue. They are appropriated by Congress. We cannot strike. It takes an act of Congress to give us a raise, and your representatives vote your way if you let them know how you feel.

It takes several years to train a postal employee properly to give you fast efficient service. In the past year 53 Pontiac employees left because salaries are hopelessly inadequate to cope with present living costs. This is happening all over the country. Detroit has a 32½ per cent turnover. Thus, you cannot have the kind of service possible if the wage scale were high enough to hold trained employees.

Two bills now in Congress will put Postal salaries on a comparative basis with private industry. Your help can mean lower employee turnover, lower operating cost, faster, more efficient service and an adequate pay scale. Please write the following congressmen, telling them you favor these bills to provide adequate raises: Representative William S. Broomfield, New House Office Building, Washington, D.C., and Senators Patrick McNamara and Charles Potter, Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C.

Backs Opposition to Income Tax

I agree with the anti-income tax efforts of Dean Manion and the Manion Forum. The income tax is destructive of private enterprise, an instrument of further Federal centralization of power and an enemy of American Constitutional freedom. The Manion Forum is one of the top anti-Socialist, anti-income tax organizations in this country and merits the support of everyone.

Says Quit Yapping About Governor

It's high time the die-hard Republicans quit yapping about Governor Williams and his high taxes. He's the greatest governor we ever had. There are still plenty of jobs in Michigan if you just look around.

When Williams is elected President of the United States in 1960, those that criticize him now will be the first to brag about the fact we have a Michigander in the White House. If ever a man deserved to be called "The People's Choice" it's G. Mennen Williams. In 1960 he will become "The Nation's Choice."

More Answers for 'Bird Lover'

Me, Too

Bird Lover refers to the white throated sparrow. I've had several at my feeding place. They arrive in October and depart in May. I've had the fortune to see 20 different types of birds in my yard, among them a great blue heron, which is from 38 to 50 inches in length.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Tells Ways to Remember Names

Judy highlights an important asset of all men and women who deal with the public for a livelihood. Salesmen, doctors and all others who "front" before the public, soon learn that a good memory is worth thousands of dollars to them. You can become an expert at recalling names and faces in short order. Just follow the formula outlined below.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
Case U-332: Judy, aged 22½, is our only daughter.

After graduation from Hillsdale College last summer, she took a position with the same school to do counseling and public relations work.

"Daddy, I find it helps me a great deal to remember names and faces," she began.

"And after making it my hobby for a few weeks, I am surprised at how many people I can call by name at a social gathering."

"In fact, I think it often surprises the others, too. For example, I still sat at East Hall with the rest of the students."

"The first week of school, a whole group of freshmen boys got up when I reached their table with my tray and welcomed me with a great show of gallantry."

"They exaggerated their welcome, for they never dreamed that I knew their names, since they hadn't been on campus a week."

"But a few moments later Jim Zuckerman came over to the same big table with his tray,

"So I introduced Jim as our former swimming team captain and the president of the H-Club this year."

"Then I turned to Jim and presented every one of the freshmen boys by name."

"They were so taken aback to realize I knew all of them, that one of the boys picked up his tray and said: 'Follows, we better get out of here' she knows us!"

"Daddy, are there any shortcuts to remembering names?"

NOW IMPROVE MEMORY

Yes, we psychologists can offer you several shortcuts. But at the outset, please try trying to excuse your poor memory by thinking you are born that way.

You aren't! The remembering of names is a simple mental task. Some of the famous memory experts had very poor memories at the beginning.

So they decided to learn the strategy for becoming proficient at recalling names. Here are the standard psychological rules:

(1) Be sure you get a clearcut impression of the new name when you are first introduced. For you cannot reproduce a clear memory "print" later on, if you have a fuzzy negative.

Memory is much like photography, therefore, and thus demands a clear original exposure to the new name. Ask that it be spelled out or repeated, if you don't hear it well at the start.

(2) Act upon the new name. For example, when you acknowledge your introduction USE the new name, as by saying, "I'm very happy to meet you, Mr. Zuckerman."

Also, employ the name often as by turning to others and introducing the newcomer, by saying,

"I'd like to have you meet Jim Zuckerman."

Even when you have heard the syllables clearly, you may have an excuse, to add: "Mr. Zuckerman, is your name spelled 'with one n' or two?'"

(3) Try to associate the name with previously familiar ideas. Try to analyze the root meaning of the new name or link it with friends or towns or other well-known ideas that have similar sounds.

"Zucker" comes from the German, meaning "sugar," so Zuckerman can be visualized as a "Sugar-man."

The memory experts may thus conjure up a man built of lumps of sugar, for this artificial imagery helps "set" the new name more indelibly in your own memory.

For further advice, send for my booklet "How to Improve Your Memory and Study More Efficiently," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and do to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

Britain Tests First H-Bomb --in Class With U.S., Russia

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — Now three nations—the United States, Russia and Britain — can sit back and finger the trigger of their hydrogen bombs as they'd finger a fare-well note.

With the explosion of its first hydrogen bomb high over the Pacific yesterday, Britain has moved into that new age where people may learn to be good because they're scared to death not to be.

No bets are being taken on the outcome of this new age because it still has to be proved that people have enough sense not to start something that's going to get them killed.

It's comforting to the United States that its ally Britain now has both atomic and hydrogen bombs. It's one more bit of discouragement to the Russians against starting a hydrogen war since they can be hydrogenized themselves.

But it's going to be just a little harder on the nerves of all three countries, requiring them to stay constantly on the alert against a surprise attack which would be not only catastrophic but might be conclusive.

The Russians accuse the West of wanting war. The United States and Britain say the only reasons for their bombs is to prevent the Russians from starting a war.

Britain's development of the atomic and hydrogen bombs proves only two things for immediate purposes: (1) the British had brains and ability and resources enough to make them and (2) they weren't kidding when on April 4 they announced a startling change in their defense setup.

On that date the British, convinced they can't defend their small island in the era of hydrogen bombs in the nose of inter-continental missiles, said they'd depend for defense on their ability to dish out equal catastrophe on anyone — meaning Russia — who started a war.

For the next three to five years

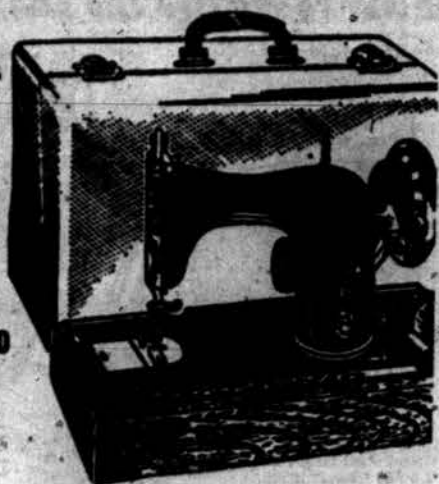

Britain's ability to retaliate will depend on bombers carrying atomic and hydrogen bombs manufactured in Britain. Then they will be sticking the bombs in the nose of missiles provided by the United States.

And, since the British are going to depend for safety against nuclear attack on the power of nuclear discouragement, they will reduce their army, navy and air force.

When they made the April announcement it was still not known they had been able to produce hydrogen weapons. Apparently they had. So they weren't bluffing when they disclosed their new policy of defense.

Ike Gives Nod to Israeli Plan

Ship Will Try to Sail Through Suez Canal to Test Egypt's Reaction

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today said he thinks of Israel's plan to send a test vessel to the canal.

He replied he always wants to see the rights of nations properly, such as the U.N. or the World Court.

In this case, he added, he would see no objection if Israel made a peaceful test of its right to use the canal.

But he said emphatically that for Israel to use force to achieve its purpose would be reprehensible.

Possibly, he continued, Israel believes that if Egypt makes a peaceful objection to the passage of its ship Israel then will have a case which can go to the World Court for a decision.

In declaring Israel's intention to send a test ship through Suez, officials said they will consider any attempt to prevent passage as an act of aggression. Israel and Egypt are still technically at war with each other.

Nation's Newest Turnpike Opens

WESTON (AP)—The nation's newest high speed turnpike opened yesterday — linking the seaboard area of New England with the growing network of superhighways across the nation.

From this eastern terminus in metropolitan Boston, the Massachusetts turnpike runs 123 miles westward to the New York state line without one sharp curve, without one steep grade, without intersections, railroad crossings or traffic light.

Maximum 60-mile speed could carry a passenger vehicle from New York state to the suburbs of Boston in little more than two hours. It will be illegal to travel less than 40 miles an hour. Trucks have a 50-mile maximum. Passenger cars pay about two cents a mile; trucks and buses pay higher fees.

Motorists were invited to take one free ride after yesterday's ribbon-cutting ceremonies at the eastern terminus at Weston and at the 13 other interchanges.

Governor Renames 3 to State Fair Board

LANSING (AP) — Gov. Williams has reappointed three members of the State Fair Commission for terms ending in April, 1961.

They were Stephen Farco of Detroit, Robert J. Noon of Jackson and George Merriman of Manchester.

Williams also announced the appointment of J. David Grover of Mt. Clemens as assistant county agent for Macomb County, succeeding Cleo J. Martell, resigned.

Named to Post at Clio

LANSING (AP)—Secretary of State James M. Hare has announced the appointment of Byron E. Leach as branch office manager at Clio. Leach, a former bank cashier, now operates an insurance agency.

About 90 per cent of the cotton seed oil used in the United States is diverted into various food products.

Second Copperbelt to Enrich Rhodesia?

LUSAKA, Northern Rhodesia — Prospectors are predicting the opening of another fabulous copperbelt in Northern Rhodesia, which will boost the country's mineral wealth, within five years. Big companies prospecting in the Numbwa region have clamped a secrecy curtain on news but it is understood that the ore discovered is even richer than that being exploited on the Katanga border. And across the Belgian Congo border lie the known deposits which are the greatest source of Congo prosperity, good for centuries to come. Mining experts already have predicted that within 50 years, Northern Rhodesia may become the richest part of all Africa, Lusaka reports.

Copters to Be Used in Search for Yeti

DARJEELING, India — Even though no notable success has been achieved, the hunt for the Yeti continues, on the slopes of the Himalayas. Ever since a member of Sir John Hunt's Everest expedition found a scalp in the Thyangboche Monastery, the search for the Snowman has been on. Even the fact that the scalp was proved to be that of another creature didn't matter. Latest in the field is Tom Slick, American oil man, Darjeeling reports. He is reported intent on ferreting out the Yeti with the help of helicopters and has conferred with Tenzing, a hero of Everest's conquering expedition. At last reports Slick awaited Nepal's permission.

Musk rats Dangerous on Spring Rambles

ANN ARBOR (INS) — A wildlife expert at the University of Michigan warns that if you see a huge "meadow mouse" with a slightly flattened tail lurking near your house, he's probably a muskrat and you'd better not tangle with him.

Prof. Warren W. Chase, chairman of the Department of Wildlife Management at the university, said: "Musk rats, out of their normal habitat, occasionally become aggressive when cornered, and bite people."

He says it's not uncommon this time of year to see muskrats pretty far from their natural environment of stream and marsh. He explained:

"They're on the lookout for food, and since the breeding season begins in April, they do a lot of fighting this time of year."

Do-It-Yourself Fad Helps Cure Ulcers

WATERLOO, Neb. (INS) — When John Parlek, a former high school coach who now supervises the Waterloo schools, got a case of ulcers he took up the do-it-yourself furniture fad.

The buffing machine and varnish therapy not only helped the ulcer, but his home is now filled with gleaming antique furniture he has refinished himself.

School Superintendent Parlek, who picked up his ulcer while his football and track teams were winning championships in the North Platte Valley Conference, now forgets his problems in the workshop.

Parlek, who began by refinishing a shotgun stock, considers his greatest accomplishment the restoration of an old melodeon once owned by his wife's great aunt.

GOING UP — Col. Terrell J. Murrell rides hoist to inspect his apartment building.

Luxury Suites Available Soon

Cost—More $250,000; Spacious, Sliding Walls of Glass—Ah, Florida!

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — (NEA) — In case you're threatened with eviction, or your apartment is being torn down, or you feel the need of a larger flat, this is to call your attention to a vacancy.

There are two apartments available — or they soon will be — in Fort Lauderdale. And they're rather nice. In fact, they are the world's most expensive (and, presumably, luxurious) apartments.

They'll sell for $250,000 apiece. (This is a cooperative venture.) The building is still being built and the builder, Col. Terrell J. Murrell, is still adding honey little touches to the place — like three sculptured mermaids in the bottom of the private swimming pool.

This will be no place for anybody but an oil millionaire or retired quiz show contestant to live. The job of furnishing alone will tax even the wealthiest, because this is a big place.

The living room is 54 feet long. The dining room is a 30-footer. There are balconies that stretch 90 feet, plus a patio that hangs out over the ocean.

There are three bath rooms, each complete with such unusual fittings as sunken Italian marble tubs and built-in TV sets.

WALLS OF GLASS

The walls of the apartments on the outside are all glass, and slide. Thus, the living room or dining room can be completely open to the glorious ocean view. It makes it handy for jumping, in case the bills mount up.

The kitchen will include every mechanical and electronic device known to man or millionaire. One simple little gadget is a new electronic bartender; you push one of a series of buttons and the device mixes the drink you want.

The man responsible for these modest little hotels is an ex-industry officer who is now one of Florida's busiest builders. And he's something of an extravagant type himself, what with a private fleet of three airplanes.

"Two are for ferrying customers to and from Florida," he says, "and the other is for our private use."

This "private use" sometimes includes a trip to Havana for lunch, when Murrell and his wife have a yen to get away from the press of business during the working day.

Murrell and his wife also have the unenviable habit of visiting their current project and inspecting it from ground to roof. Since it isn't finished yet — June is the estimated completion date — they have to do their inspecting from the crane hoist.

So far, the two $250,000 dream apartments are unrented. Murrell isn't worried.

"One of these Texas millionaires," he says, "who has run out of things to talk about will probably turn up and buy it."

Man Fails to Surface in Diving Record Attempt

NOUMEA, New Caledonia — While trying to break his own deep diving record, Rene Gail apparently died or was taken by a shark, at the mouth of the Dumbes River, 12 miles from Noumea, New Caledonia. He failed to surface after a 200-foot dive. Gail, a French marine scientist at the Institute Francaise de l'Océan, was equipped with Costau breathing apparatus.

A companion made several deep dives after Gail failed to reappear but finally had to quit due to bleeding from his nose and ears. His opinion is that Gail was seized by a shark. He had a wife and two children.

TODAY'S ASSIGNMENT FOR:

JUNIOR EDITORS

CIRCUS TIME — 4. Champ Chimps

There's monkey business going on here all right, just as at every circus. Tik and Tok are probably the best acrobats on the Junior Editors circus lot. They come by their talents naturally from swinging through the jungle trees in their pre-circus days. Tik is the little fellow at the top of the pole, weaving back and forth dizzily. His buddy Tok sets up the thrilling ride by rolling back and forth on the beach ball down below. The big bamboo pole — with Tik at the top and Tok at the bottom — sways back and forth like the pendulum on a grandfather clock. That's how Tik and Tok got their musical sounding names. Tik seems to be holding on for dear life up there on that small perch, but actually he's having a fine time and wants Tok to speed things up.

In readying this act for the opening night of your big Junior Editor's circus, paste the picture down on cardboard and color it with your crayons. The monkeys, of course, are brown with slightly lighter faces and the bamboo pole is yellow. The colorful baseboard has a blue sky, yellow sand, green palm trees and a bright moon or sun, whichever you choose. Cut out the parts carefully and follow the instructions. Fold back the ends of the base and it will stand up. When the pole is put together and attached to the base, Tik and Tok are set to go into their act.

(Today's $10 award goes to Genevieve Oshon, Johnstown, Pa. Your idea may be a winner too. Send it to this newspaper. Violet Moore Higgins, AP Newsfeatures.)

Chicago Warring on Drunk Drivers With New Gadget

CHICAGO (INS) — The days when an intoxicated motorist with a deft tongue was able to talk his way out of a drunk driving charge are about over in Chicago.

Chicago's police department is mobilizing the "Breathalyzer" and opening classes to train officers in the expert use of the purportedly fool-proof drunkenness detecting machine.

Three-week courses are being given to officers and some of the Indiana State Police, who inventors' top experts on the ed the "Breathalyzer."

"Breathalyzer," and a team of psychologists are delivering the lectures.

Dr. Patrick Vitullo, police surgeon, said:

"The 'Breathalyzer' can be operated simply and quickly, but it is a technical device. The men who operate it have to be specialists."

"We will have one of the machines operating on the streets and motorists suspected of driving while drunk can be tested quickly."

Warship at Bay Bottom Sinks Another Vessel

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The old battleship San Marcos, originally christened the Texas when launched in 1889, has sunk another ship although she has been at the bottom of Chesapeake since 1911. A 55-foot yacht, the Moby Dick, snagged on the sunken battleship in rough weather. Yachtsmen headed for a buoy which they thought meant safety but instead it was to mark the wreck. The battle ship was sunk in naval gunnery practice 46 years ago. According to government estimates there are more than 50,000 lumber mills in the United States currently engaged in regular production.

The State Health Dept. decreed that physicians and hospital personnel must continue to record births and deaths on EST to keep vital statistics uniform throughout the state.

Brother Sees Through Wag's X-Ray Humor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Before having a Health Department chest X-ray, a local wag tucked inside his shirt a profile of a girl's head cut from tinfoil, which is impervious to the penetrating rays. Then he signed his brother's name to the identification card. When the brother recovered from the shock, this was his revenge: He cut two letters from a sheet of tinfoil, slipped them under his shirt before being X-rayed, and gave the Health Department the first brother's name. The letters which showed up on the film were "T. B." There are 2,150,000 members of 4-H clubs in the U. S.

Youth Named for Judge Appears in His Court

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C. (AP) — A youthful defendant appeared on a reckless driving charge before Judge Fentress Horner. It developed that the defendant's first name and middle initial were Fentress H.

"Whom were you named for?" inquired the judge.
"For you, Your Honor," the defendant responded.
For one long moment, Judge

Horner stared down from the bench. Then the defense lawyer came to his assistance — entering a guilty plea for the youth.

In fact, he said, a lot of union members are being buried in non-union caskets.

Beecher told the Portland Central Labor Council that "Any good union man would be ashamed to be laid away in a non-union casket."

Dogs in New Guinea Yodel Rather Than Yelp

PORT MORESBY, Australia — Two native dogs found recently in Lavani Valley in New Guinea's Southern Highlands, will end up in Australia's Taronga Park zoo, Port Moresby reports. Sir Edward Hallstrom, noted zoologist, flew to New Guinea to study them.

In many ways they are like an Australian dingo, having muzzles like those of a fox. Their brush is like that of a fox, too. Their toenails project almost an inch from the pad and they use them for climbing. Instead of barking, they make a yodeling sound, morning and night. The natives call it talking.

It costs the U. S. more than $35 million annually to clean up the litter strewn by careless and selfish people along highways and in public parks.

France Tops in Thorium

DUBLIN — The now hotly disputed border between Northern Ireland and Eire is not as modern as most Ulster people think, Richard Hayward told a luncheon meeting in Belfast. The historian explained that running almost parallel with the present border was an old earthwork trench, 15 feet deep, between Newry and Bundoran.

Known as the Black Pig's Dyke, it formed a complete barrier between Ulster and the rest of Ireland—and proved that the people of the North had always been different. It was constructed around 1 A.D., he thought, and continued in existence until 332 A.D.

Wrong Specifications

LOS ANGELES — A lady answered an ad for a "unique foreign car." She found it was a 1927 Essex with Vancouver, B.C., license plates.

American Airline Seeks Hostesses From Ireland

DUBLIN — Because interviewers from an American airline have been interviewing more than 100 girls from all over Ireland, Dublin people are beginning to claim that Irish girls make the best air hostesses.

Pan American Airways officials recently took five girls to New York for training and announced that they wanted more. Three hundred applications for the job—starting salary $56 a week rising to $98—poured into the company's Dublin offices.

Got Hubcap; Lost Car

VALDESE, N. C. — A Valdesse motorist stopped his car on Mineral Spring Mountain to retrieve a hubcap. He got the hubcap all right. But as he did his car rolled down a 100-foot embankment.

Ireland's Future Eyed

BELFAST — More than 100 essays are being submitted in the 1957 Northern Ireland Empire Essay Contest for school children, promoted in Belfast by the Overseas League. The subject is: "There has been a strong trend in recent years among younger members of the British Commonwealth towards nationalism. How should the mother country guide these aspirations to ensure that these countries remain members of the Commonwealth?"

STRINGIN' ALONG — Tell Martin Beck of Pittsburgh, Pa., to go fly a kite and he'll probably take you up on it. Back in 1938 he started saving string. Today he has a ball 9 1/4 feet around and weighing 650 pounds. He is shown with grandchildren who get a kick out of granddad's hobby.

For Northern Michigan Counties

Panel Eyes Improvement

GRAYLING — Northern Michigan, represented by about 500 area leaders, took a look at itself in terms of natural resources, industry, crops, forestry and home industries.

The mirror was a detailed panel discussion on "Northern Michigan and You," sponsored by the Northern Michigan development council.

Myrt Riggs, council president, said the panel aimed to recommend ways to improve the economy of the 23-county area. It was headed by an imaginary line connecting the southern limits of Bay and Oceana counties.

Dr. Charles L. Anspach, president of Central Michigan College, was program chairman. Subjects under discussion included:

"Northern Michigan natural resources and industry; Northern Michigan high value crops; Northern Michigan opportunities for home industries; Northern Michigan forestry and forest products; Northern Michigan recreational resources; and What's All This Mean to You?"

Riggs said Grayling was selected as the meeting site because of its central location in the area served by the development council.

The Northern Michigan Development Council, recently expanded to 18 members to broaden its scope of representation, also has announced plans for another area meeting in the fall. Riggs said details are nearing completion for the fall meeting, which will be devoted almost entirely to industry.

Traffic Problem Arises

DAHOMEY—Traffic has become a problem for the first time in Dahomey, West African French possession, Porto-Novo reports. Many accidents have occurred in recent months involving vehicles plying between Nigeria on the east and Ghana on the west. New regulations provide that car and truck drivers must produce an international driving license, and no vehicle may enter Dahomey unless covered by an all-risks insurance policy.

Call Big Game Restless

LIVINGSTON, Rhodesia — Reports of unseasonal migrations by elephant herds in Rhodesia this year are linked to the weather by experts in Livingston. Old-timers say the big rains have never been so unreliable and there is unrest among big game. "Elephants and hippos seem to have lost their sense of orientation," said one trader. "They are wandering where they should not be at this time of year. The great river itself seems to be deserted and is unusually low."

Zoli Tries to Form Italian Government

ROME (INS) — Italian Senator Adone Zoli, a moderate Christian Democratic leader, has agreed to President Giovanni Gronchi's request that he try to form a new government.

Zoli, 69-year-old father of six sons and daughters, was budget minister in the coalition cabinet of Premier Antonio Segni who resigned last week.

Zoli said he intends to form a cabinet of Christian Democrats, perhaps with a few independents. Asked when he thought he would be able to report back to the president, Zoli replied: "Not sooner than three days and not later than three months."

Evangelists Open Meeting at First Baptist Church

Men and women from around the world joined home delegates in singing "I've a Story to Tell to the Nations" at the Evangelical Alliance Mission Conference last night in the First Baptist Church.

The 67th annual conference which began Tuesday evening will continue through Sunday. About 120 missionaries are here with their wives and children for the six-day session. More than 500 delegates from throughout the United States and the local church met for the worship period last night.

At the meeting yesterday afternoon, the Rev. John Van Kampen of Venezuela, the Rev. Rodney Johnston of France, the Rev. Allen Fadel of Japan and the Rev. Vern Rock of Pakistan spoke on the pioneering opportunities for Christianity in the countries in which they served.

A colored film, "The Light of the Sun," was shown at 7 p.m. followed by an evening service at 7:30.

The Rev. Masaichi Matsuda, chairman of the Japan Church Association, spoke through an interpreter.

Armed Forces Day to Be Observed Saturday

Units in Area Plan Displays

Mock Battle Scheduled in Afternoon Near Auburn and Opdyke

Through the combined efforts of area military personnel, Oakland County residents will be given the chance to see an outstanding display of the nation's military might Saturday.

Those in the immediate Pontiac area will have open houses and a mock battle competing for attention on Armed Forces Day. The scene is set for residents to witness a galaxy of events, all aimed at demonstrating this year's Armed Forces Day slogan—"Power for Peace."

The day will start with an open house at the Army Reserve Training Center, 37 W. Lawrence St., from 9 a.m. until noon.

Consisting mainly of a guided tour, the open house will give the public a chance to see the classrooms, office space and various pieces of equipment such as 105 mm. howitzers and the M-47, 90 mm. tank.

A similar open house at the Naval Reserve Training Center, 90 S. East Blvd., from about noon to 5 p.m. will focus attention on radar, radio and signal corps operation.

Expected to draw thousands is the exhibition at the Detroit Arsenal, located on E. 11 Mile road between Mound road and VanDyke.

30th TANK BATTALION
This demonstration to take place both Saturday and Sunday will feature Pontiac's 30th Tank Battalion. According to project officer, Maj. Raymond Astor, the Pontiac battalion will participate in a 3½-hour demonstration of fire-power and mobility, and will join with the Marine's Fifth Infantry Battalion in a mock tank battle and assault on a fortified position.

The 30th's show will feature the army's new family of tanks, tank retrievers, self-propelled atomic artillery and other armored vehicles and mobile weapons.

The highlight of Saturday's demonstrations will be a "mock battle" to be staged about a quarter mile south of Auburn road on Opdyke road.

The battle, scheduled to begin at 1 p.m., will consist of a reinforced rifle company in the assault of a reinforced position. Company M, 2nd Battalion, 125th Infantry Regiment, local National Guard unit, together with Company L from Port Huron, will be the participants.

Commanding the local forces will be Captain A. J. Largent, while the Port Huron force will be commanded by Captain Jack Story.

The demonstration will be narrated by Major Howard B. Baker, Executive Officer of the local unit. Aside from witnessing tactical maneuvers and having them explained, the public will have the opportunity to see such weapons as rifles, machine guns, 105 mm recoilless rifles and 81 mm mortars used in action.

Army officials say the battle will be as realistic as possible in every detail. Simulated shells and explosives will be used, and much work and planning has been done for over nine months to assure the public of what is described as the most spectacular military demonstration ever staged in the Pontiac area.

Half-Pay Pension Bait for British 1960 Labor Vote

LONDON (AP)—The Labor party today dangled before British voters a new pension plan which would pay a worker half pay—up to about $42 a week—when he retires at 65.

The plan will be a major plank in the party program for the next general election, which falls due in 1960 at the latest.

The present weekly retirement pension is 2 pounds ($3.00) for a single man and 3 pounds 5 shillings ($5.10) if he is married. Under the new plan the basic pension for all would be 3 pounds ($4.50) plus an allowance linked to the worker's average earnings throughout his life. A man drawing the national average wage of 14 pounds ($28) would get a total pension of about 5 pounds.

The pensions would come out of a new pension fund contributed by the workers, employers and the state. The contribution would come to about 10 per cent of a worker's pay—3 per cent from the worker, 5 per cent from his employer and 2 per cent from the government.

EARTH TREMBLER—Few people would be happy to see, hear, and feel this M-48, 90 mm U. S. Army tank rumble its way into their own backyard. But Pontiac and Oakland County residents won't have to go much further than their backyards to see this, and many other weapons in Armed Forces Day exhibitions this Saturday. In fact, one of the nation's most spectacular demonstrations of military power will be held right here in the Pontiac area.

Medical Company, Detroit, will treat the wounded just as in a real battle.

To be used in this assault are simulated artillery shells which will be exploded, parachute flares and smoke streamers. The big feature will be the firing of rocket launcher rounds from bazookas, the first demonstration of its kind in this area.

GUIDED MISSILE
Another attraction will be the Nike Guided Missile which will be on display at the battle site. The Nike will be brought from Battery D, 18th Antiaircraft Artillery Battalion near Rochester, commanded by Captain Raymond J. Geoffrion.

Aircraft flyovers for Pontiac are scheduled at 1 p.m., 2:37 p.m. and 2:41 p.m.

The annual Armed Forces Day parade will not be held this year due to the date falling so near Memorial Day.

The ground show portion of the Detroit Arsenal observance will be staged Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 4:30 p.m. The other displays and demonstrations will be available from 9 a.m. to 4:40 p.m.

Largely responsible for planning all events in the Pontiac area is Armed Forces Day Project Officer, Lt. Commander P. A. Woessner of the U.S. Naval Reserve Training Center in Pontiac. His major aides are Major Edgar W. Groteluschen of the Michigan Army Reserve Advisory Group and Major John L. Underwood of the local Air Force Reserve.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams officially proclaimed the day, in a ceremony witnessed by two area military men.

Air Force M/Sgt. Ralph J. Young of Drayton Plains and M/Sgt. Ismael. Powers of the Pontiac Marine Recruiting Station participated in the proclamation-signing event.

2 Area Presbyterians to Receive Diplomas

Two young men from Waterford Township are graduating from the theological school of the United Presbyterian church in Pittsburgh, Pa., today, and Rev. W. J. Teuwissen, of the local Presbyterian church is participating in the ceremonies.

Both Roy Lindahl, Jr., 3563 Cosyburn St., and Harvey Beach, of 4269 Walton Blvd., will receive their B. D. Degree, during the graduation exercises.

Harvey Beach is a graduate of Clarkston high school, and also Sterling college in Kansas. He will be ordained to the ministry in Drayton Plains United Presbyterian church on June 10. He and Mrs. Beach will then move to Viola, Kansas, where he has accepted a pastorate in the Presbyterian church there.

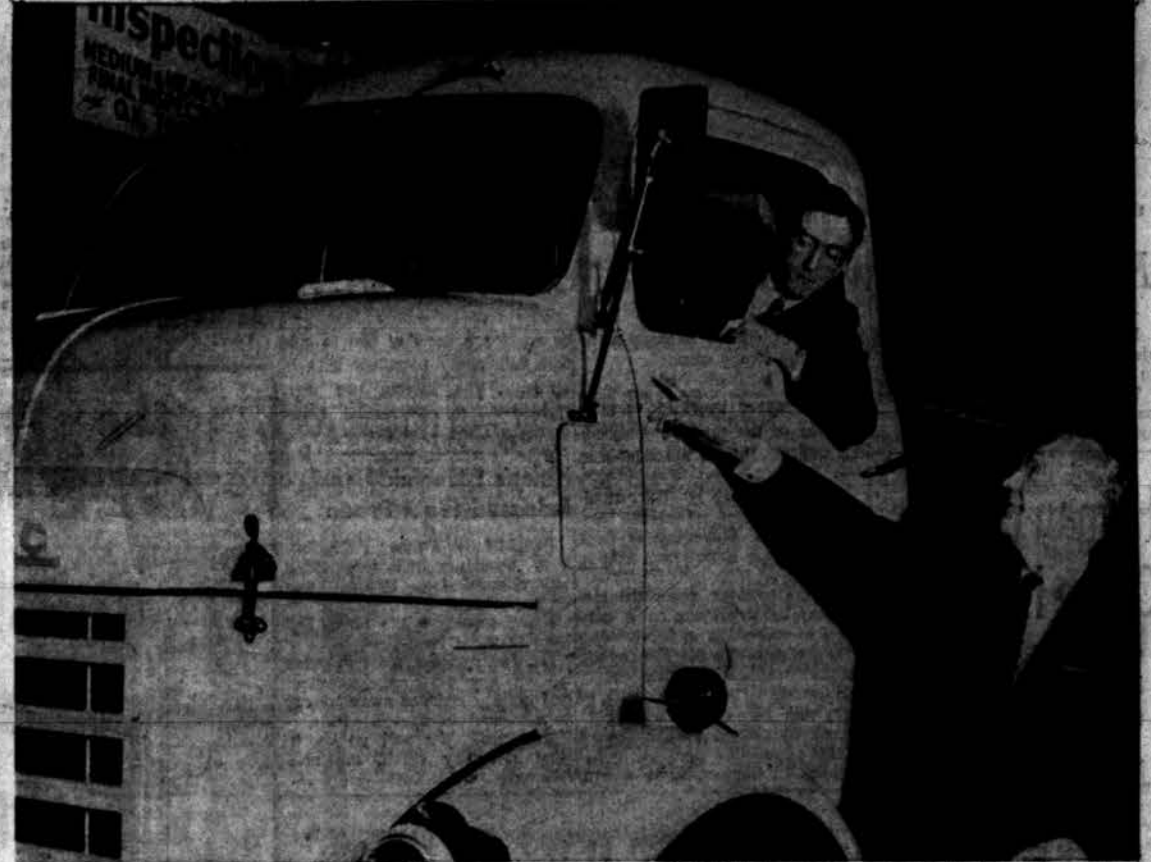

Roy Lindahl, Jr., graduated from Waterford Township high school and Monmouth college in Illinois. He expects to do graduate work in Greek at the University of Michigan in the fall and to assist on the weekends in services at the First United Presbyterian church in Detroit.

Fight Street Widening

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—A citizens group which says it does not want the nation's oldest city "to become just another town" claims 2,000 names on a petition opposing a plan to widen historic Bay Street.

The petition asks that the City Commission let the people vote on the street widening issue.

Mrs. Arthur McQuig, a city commissioner, said the project would destroy "some of our historical sites that are so important to the city, state and nation."

VISITOR INSPECTS A BIG ONE—Australian visitor Denis Hawker of The Pontiac Press gets a driver's eye view from the cab of this powerful GMC truck, which has just left an assembly

Oakland County will send a six-member delegation to the Red Cross national convention Monday through Wednesday in Washington, D. C.

Representing the Oakland chapter will be Roy, William C. Hamm, of Lake Angelus, past chapter chairman; Mrs. Frieda Bennett, director; Arthur Heaton, of Pontiac, second vice chairman; Mrs. W. C. Sproull, of Birmingham, county chairman of Gray Ladies; Mrs. Alfred T. Barnes, of Royal Oak, first vice chairman; and Mrs. L. C. Curry, of Royal Oak, former executive committee member.

On Monday, the group will give a breakfast for delegates from 36 midwestern states.

Highlight of the convention will be an address by Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, national president.

America at Work

GM Truck Division Offers Great Show

By DENIS N. HAWKER

Visiting Australian Journalist

"This is the greatest show on earth," proclaims a circus known in every cranny of the globe.

A similar claim is made and substantiated in Pontiac—by an organization which specializes in a recipe for progress.

Take a large quantity of sheet steel, add an assortment of rubber, casting metal aluminum, tubing, electrical wiring, mix thoroughly in a 121-acre pot; add a large quantity of paint and assorted trimmings. Work briskly and efficiently—and the finished product is certain to take the prize in any world competition.

The Truck and Coach Division of General Motors Corporation is the greatest show on earth when it comes to specializing in commercial motor vehicles and products more coaches than any other plant—in fact more than almost any nation.

American industry is well known throughout the world as the acme of efficiency. But it takes a tour of Pontiac's hive of truck and coach industry to appreciate it fully.

It comes as somewhat of a shock to a visitor that on a 121-acre site in Pontiac are produced more trucks and coaches a year than all new commercial vehicles registered in the 3,000,000 square miles of Australia in 1956.

And Australia with its long distances, railroad problems, and emphasis on primary industry has a greater need and use for trucks than many countries.

The other day I followed Truck and Coach Division's production line from the sheet steel stage to the point where 55-passenger buses and 30-ton trucks were being road tested.

I watched an assembly line capable of producing a truck every one and one-third seconds slide swiftly by another production unit on which a large coach sat for a day before being completed.

At in-between speeds trucks and coaches of various sizes came off other lines.

Pride in workmanship and output was obvious. But rush and bustle, swiftly moving machinery, intricate assembly, and heavy overhead lifting does not mean lack of efficiency or danger at this plant.

LOW REJECTION RATE

If any testimony to this is needed it is amply provided by charts registering an incredibly low rejection rate—a loose rivet in a big coach is considered a fault—and a long-time accident free record.

As the colorful parade of many-hued trucks and coaches swung past to the music of riveters, drills, tools on steel, the cymbals clanging of metal on metal, and the hiss of paint sprayers, I realized how impossible it was to evaluate adequately the contribution of this and other plants like it to Pontiac, Michigan, the United States, and the world.

But I was satisfied to have seen America at work.

British Newspapers Hail Success of H-Bomb Test

LONDON (AP)—British newspapers declared today Britain's first hydrogen bomb test had restored the nation's independence of the United States and increased its stature as a world power.

Asian nations quickly expressed regret at the blast, exploded yesterday in the Christmas Island area of the Pacific. But U. S. officials welcomed the news as contributing to Allied strength by making Britain the world's third full-fledged nuclear power, along with Russia and the United States.

Reports from Washington said, however, the British H-blast was considered certain to result in new pressure on both the British and American governments to call off future atomic weapons tests.

Such demands were renewed at once in Japan and Ceylon, where government officials asserted it was regrettable that Britain had gone ahead with the tests in the face of widespread opposition.

The British press generally assumed the test was successful although a terse announcement from the ministry of supply said merely that the "first explosion of a nuclear device in the present series took place." The ministry added that scientific records are being collected "for accurate evaluation" and that a "further statement will be made in due course."

Child Guidance Clinic's Board Holds Meeting

The regular board meeting of the Oakland County Child Guidance Clinic was held yesterday afternoon.

The clinic will be represented by its professional staff and board members at the Mental Health Fair to be held at Northland, May 23-25, it was announced.

The public has been invited to stop by the booth to receive information on the services offered by the clinic.

Orientation meeting for the board of the Birmingham Branch of the clinic will be held in June, it was decided. Local police will comprise the new board as the Birmingham Junior League is turning over control of the branch to the community.

A report was made on the South Oakland Branch. Donations are being taken to furnish an office at 315 Sixth St., Royal Oak.

Human Failings Cause Mishaps

Only 15 Pct. of Injuries in Industry Attributable to Faulty Machinery

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (INS)—An insurance firm official says faulty machinery causes only 15 per cent of the accidents recorded in American industry.

Fred W. Braun, vice president in charge of accident prevention for Employers Mutuals of Wausau, Wis., says "human failure" causes 85 per cent of industrial mishaps.

Braun notes that 35 years ago the percentages were reversed. He says:

"Industry is apparently the safest place to be at the moment."

He points out that of 95,000 persons killed accidentally last year, 14,300 died in plant accidents.

"Industry management has contributed a great deal toward making industry a safe place to work," he says, "and this achievement was not easy."

Braun, whose firm is one of the three leading workmen's compensation insurers in the nation, warns management not to become "satisfied" with its safety record. He insists company officials must not lose their "Desire to do something bigger and better in accident prevention for the good of people and business."

Braun declares simply: "People are the most important asset in any plant."

Socialized Medicine Trend for Oldsters?

LOS ANGELES (INS)—In 5 or 10 years, the president of the American Osteopathic Assn. predicts, the federal government will be picking up the tab for medical treatment given elderly people.

Dr. Robert D. McCullough of Tulsa, Okla., said in an interview that he doesn't think much of the idea, "but that's the trend."

"Socialized medicine — not really good wording (since) it will be different than in England — will be put into practice in the same way as Social Security at first," he said. "That is, the government will pay the medical bills of all the aged."

Educator Tries Special Calculator on Fifth Graders

By NEA SERVICE
CEDAR GROVE, N. J. (NEA)—The staccato chatter of calculating machines is an everyday sound now during arithmetic periods for fifth graders at the Cedar Grove elementary school. This revolutionary teaching method is the result of an experiment conducted here last year by Dr. Howard F. Fehr, head of the mathematics department at Columbia University's Teachers College.

LILIPUTIAN COUNTING HOUSE—It's really arithmetic period in the fifth grade at Cedar Grove, N. J., where pupils use miniature calculators to work problems.

methods of teaching arithmetic, which he feels soft-pedals meaning and enjoyment in favor of a dreary "rote" system of memory callisthenics.

With arithmetic listed as No. 1 on nearly every youngster's classroom hate parade, Dr. Fehr linked this to the dislike of science in high school and college, inasmuch as the third "R," he points out, is the bedrock of all the sciences.

In the fall of 1955, Dr. Fehr got the chance to put his theories to the test. At that time he prepared and supervised a controlled group experiment using a midget calculating machine called the Monroe "Educator," designed exclusively for school use. The project, lasting four and a half months, took place in Cedar Grove's fifth grade.

The classroom function of the machine, he points out, is not to do the problem for the pupil, but to enable him to check his answers—and the steps involved in reaching them—after he has completed the problem with pencil and paper.

New York Battles Broadway Scalpers

NEW YORK (AP)—A Broadway boxoffice crackdown by the city license commissioner is making it tougher for visitors to arrange their show-going here in advance. The crackdown, aimed at scalpers who have been getting fancy prices for ducats to sell-out hits, also affected travel agencies that have over the past two seasons developed a booming business in organizing show tours for vacationists.

No body accused the agencies of scalping, but the new regulation bans sale of more than 10 tickets to any performance of any stage show to other than licensed ticket brokers.

One theater tour agency said it was suspending business, others affected are hoping for revisions in the law, and several court tests are planned.

Safety Features Halt Accidents?

Installation of 4 Items in Cars Would Reduce Injuries, Expert Says

COLUMBUS, Ohio (U)—The number of persons injured in auto accidents annually in the United States could be reduced by almost one-fourth if four simple safety features of most 1937 cars were universally adopted and used, an auto accident researcher states.

John O. Moore, director of automotive crash injury research at Cornell University Medical College, listed the four as safety belts, padded dashboards, shock-absorbing steering wheels and safety door locks.

He said they could "reduce the number of injuries in auto accidents in this country by $500,000 annually if they were universally adopted and the safety belt used."

Moore's remarks came in an interview preceding his address before the Ohio State Medical Assn.'s annual convention here. He said the most important single safety feature in preventing injury was the safety belt. "But we have a problem in getting people to use it even when the auto comes equipped with one," he added.

Moore said a preliminary study compared accidents where these safety factors were present and similar accidents where they were missing. He said the study showed a remarkable reduction in the incidence of injury and fatalities when the safety devices were present.

Work Guaranteed as Excellent 2,000 Years Ago

What may have been the first written guarantee of product excellence in history was given by the plumbers of ancient Rome. A recent discovery revealed that it was the practice of Roman plumbers to put their own name and the name of their clients or customers on every piece of pipe installed, the Sanitary Engineering Committee reports.

It is interesting history to note that the placing of the artisan's name on the pipe ultimately led to a measure of his merit. Certainly it would not help a plumber's reputation to install pipe, which prominently displayed his name, and then discover the pipe to be faulty and necessitating replacement. Many of these original pipes are still in existence, having been discovered by archaeologists. Those in best condition were made of vitrified clay pipe, the same material used for sewers today.

The excellent condition of the pipe, even after 2,000 years of service underground, attests to the value of using clay. A sewage system found in the ancient civilization of the Indus which dates back to 2,500 B. C. was as modern in principle as any we have today.

Pay-as-you-earn income taxes will start in Norway in 1937, Oslo reports.

Security for You

SS Attorneys Will Assist Your Appeal

By RAY HENRY
Associated Press Writer

The Social Security offices around the country are long past the stage where they're surprised by strange questions people ask.

But, some of them are worth repeating.

Take the conversation between a telephone receptionist in the Tacoma, Wash., Social Security office and an unknown inquirer:

Receptionist: "Good morning, Social Security."

Inquirer: "Do you have attorneys in Social Security?"

Receptionist: "Yes, we do."

WANTS DIVORCE

Inquirer: "I want a divorce and as I am receiving Social Security, please send one of your attorneys to see me as soon as possible."

The rest of the conversation wasn't recorded. But, presumably the receptionist explained that Social Security attorneys don't handle divorces or other cases for private citizens. Their job usually is interpreting the law and handling court cases involving the Social Security Administration.

Why is there this need for them?

Because every person who applies for Social Security payments and who is dissatisfied with a decision involving their application has a right to appeal the decision.

This right includes taking the case to court to get a legal decision.

Lawyers are needed to handle the cases for the Social Security Administration.

But if you want to appeal a decision, there are a number of steps you can take before you have to go to court.

ASK OFFICE

The first step is to ask your Social Security office for a reconsideration of the facts in your case. This request should be in writing and made within six months after the first decision was made on your case, unless you get permission to extend the period.

If after the reconsideration you're still not satisfied with the decision, you can ask that your case be heard and reviewed by a special Social Security referee. Here, too, it's necessary that your request be in writing.

As part of the referee's review of your case, you or your representative will be given the chance to appear at a hearing to present your case personally.

The third step, if you're not satisfied with the referee's decision, is to ask that your case be considered by the Appeals Council of the Social Security Administration in Washington. Any local Social Security office will accept your written application for this review.

If you don't agree with the council's action, the final step is to take your case to a United States District Court for the district in which you live or in which your business is located.

The court may agree with, modify or reverse the decision you've had from the Social Security Administration. Or, it may send the case back to the Social Security people for another hearing. The case is closed following the court action.

Although, under the Social Security law, these steps are your legal right, don't be surprised if you fall in getting the decision on your case reversed. The Social Security law, in most instances, is fairly specific about the operation of the program.

(Questions on Social Security problems may be addressed to "Social Security," in care of The Pontiac Press. Questions will be answered by mail from the Pontiac office of the Social Security Administration. There is no charge for this service.)

Settlement Ends Troy Site Battle

Detroit Land Company Agrees to Pay 4 Heirs Sum of $300,000

Dispute over a valuable 70-acre site in Troy ended yesterday with a $300,000 settlement.

The four heirs to the land at 15 Mile and Livernois roads agreed to accept payment of that sum from the Tracey Lane Co., a Detroit firm.

The property is wanted for a proposed $5 million shopping center and residential community.

The company had brought suit, claiming to have an option to the land in December, 1955, for $210,000.

Trial had been held up by other litigation. Another Detroit firm, Kaufman and Wolf Associates, claimed the land was sold to them last April for $318,000.

That claim was dismissed last week by Circuit Judge Frank L. Doty, after testimony of one of the heirs, John Most, that he had not understood the sale agreement.

Yesterday's settlement includes terms for a $77,000 down payment and the rest in four installments over the next eight years.

Most, an octogenarian, lives in a farmhouse on the property with his sister, Cora, and brother, Nelson. The fourth heir is a niece, Irene Fisher, of Royal Oak.

The sale means the final settlement of the estate, which had belonged to Louise Most, who died in 1932.

Scientist's Dust Collection Benefits U. S. Housewife

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — Ever hear of a professional dust collector? Well, there is one. He's Dr. Nathan Weiner, friend of the American housewife, who collects two tons of house dust a year, purifies it and concentrates it.

The concentrate is then used to immunize hundreds of thousands of persons allergic to dust.

AND DON'T SNEEZE

Take it from Dr. Weiner, a former Harvard faculty chemist who now is research director for Endo Laboratories, the problem of house dust isn't to be sneezed at.

"About 70 per cent of the people who suffer from bronchial asthma are sensitive to house dust," he said. "It can be positively dangerous to them."

Some 16 million Americans are allergic to one or more substances.

"Allergy is as nearly a universal affliction as any I can think of," said Dr. Weiner. "It is a bond that links mankind."

"I doubt if there is a large percentage of people who aren't allergic to a degree to one substance or another," he said.

"There even have been cases of women who were found to be allergic to their husband's dandruff."

COMMONEST CAUSE

"House dust is one of the commonest causes of allergies," he said, "at least as common as any other well-known agent, such as goldenrod and ragweed pollen during the hay fever season."

"The housewife usually thinks of dust as dirt — the particles of soot and ash that float into her home."

"That is not dust to us. The dust we are after is decomposed proteins from the breakdown of wool, cotton and other organic materials in the home — such as pillows and upholstery stuffing."

The foreign proteins in this dust, breathed into the body, cause the allergic reaction.

Dr. Weiner gets his dust from mattress manufacturers and upholstery firms. If you have any idea of sending your boy through college by selling Dr. Weiner the dust from your old sofa, abandon the thought.

QUITE SATISFIED

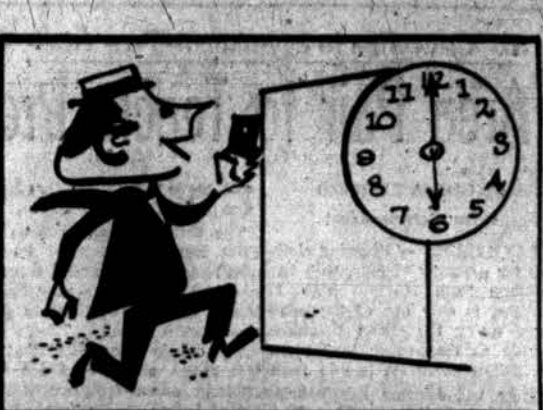

"As of now," he said, "we are satisfied with our present sources of supply."

The 4,000 pounds of rough dust he uses each year go through eight purification stages and emerge as 10 to 20 pounds of pure house dust concentrate, enough for two million inoculation shots. The stuff no longer really then is a dust, but a brown syrupy mixture that looks like molasses.

"No matter how dust-free a woman keeps her own home," said Dr. Weiner, "she can't control the dust in other places she goes, such as restaurants, movies, hotels and other people's homes. The only other solution I know would be to walk around in a space helmet."

'Painted Pigs' Stress U. S. Interest

NEA Foreign Service

SAIGON, VIET NAM — (NEA) — "Painted pigs" are making friends for the U.S. in Southeast Asia.

The Republic of Viet Nam, with assistance from Uncle Sam's International Cooperation Administration, is engaged in a nationwide program to improve and increase the country's livestock.

Most actively working with the Vietnamese in this project is ICA's animal husbandry adviser, Dr. Toshio Tamashiro of Honolulu, an American of Hawaiian and Korean ancestry who graduated in agriculture from Iowa State College in 1935.

Various kinds of breeding stock have been sent to Viet Nam, ranging from water buffalo to chickens and ducks, and even fish. All of them, as their numbers increase, add to the ability of the country to improve its standard of living and increase its economic strength.

One of the most-talked-about livestock projects of Dr. Tamashiro in Viet Nam was the importation recently of some 3,400 "painted pigs," all pedigreed Berkshires and Yorkshires purchased in Japan.

PIGS PAINTED

Before they were turned over to Vietnamese farmers, each pig was "painted." That is, the familiar shield emblem which identifies U. S. aid goods the world over was stenciled on each side of each pig. The emblem shows the clasped hands of friendship that denotes American economic assistance.

Bright yellow shields went onto the black Berkshire pigs, and navy blue shields on the white Yorkshire pigs. The Vietnamese jokingly asked whether spotted paint would have been used, had the pigs been spotted.

BETTER THAN TALK

Commenting on the project, "The Times of Viet Nam" said: "Recently pigs have taken on themselves a symbolic value they have never had until now; they have been chosen to express the friendship and cooperation that some countries want to offer Viet Nam."

Pigs are far more meaningful and symbolic than long speeches. In their own ways they are living messages of friendship and cooperation. Besides, to people doubtful of the value of words, they are far more substantial."

Farmers do not pay — that is, not in cash — for their purebred pigs. First, only farmers who have complete pig-raising facilities and a will to do it receive the "painted pigs." Those who do must share the offspring. After the first litter, the breeder gives back one piglet to the Veterinary Service and from the second litter, he must give two piglets.

These piglets, in turn, are distributed on the same arrangement to other breeders.

Six Churches to Sponsor 5-Year Stay

Area Pair to Teach, Preach in Africa

By LAOMA SANFORD
Orion Correspondent

LAKE ORION — Planning clothing for a family of four, with two children Ruth 2½ and May 17 months, is only one of the problems facing the Glenn Hotchkiss family as they make final plans for sailing to Africa late in June.

They will become missionaries in Zambesi Valley, Southern Rhodesia.

The family has secured a kerosene refrigerator, gasoline washer, and a one-ton truck.

They are still seeking a treadle sewing machine and perhaps a generator to meet needs where there is no electricity.

Mrs. Hotchkiss is taking yard goods along to meet whatever needs prove most necessary, as the nearest shopping center is 170 miles trail road away, and prices are known to be high.

The decision to become missionaries was made by the couple while they were attending Detroit Bible Institute before their marriage. Hotchkiss also has a BA degree from Bob Jones University, qualifying him as a teacher. Their primary purpose will be to teach natives to become teachers for their own people.

Plans are to sail to Capetown, drive their truck to Salisbury 1,700 miles, then travel a 170-mile trail road to the first area station, founded in 1942. Here they will stay until they learn Shona, the native language, then they will move inland for the duration of their five-year stay.

The Orville Dunkelds from the First Baptist Church of Pontiac who returned to the field recently, have told the couple may help things, and will be there to greet them.

The couple is confident that the last $1,200, still needed for their passage on a freighter will be raised before sailing time.

They are being sponsored by the First Baptist Church of Lake Orion, his home church; the Grace Bible Church of Ann Arbor, her home church; the Covenant Bible Church of Redford; Community Bible Church of Redford; Hillside Bible Church of Byron City, N. C., and the Community Christian Church of South Norfolk, Va.

The couple will join TEAM, the Evangelistic Alliance Mission which works to educate the natives "known to be intelligent but uneducated."

Martha Raye Taken to New York Hospital

NEW YORK (INS) — Comedienne Martha Raye was taken to Doctors Hospital in New York early today in an ambulance from her suite in the Park Sheraton Hotel. It was reported she had suffered a heart attack.

Nick Condos, her manager and former husband, however, categorically denied any emergency condition.

"She was just run down and needs a few days rest," he said. "So she decided after we talked it over to check in at the hospital."

"But the ambulance—and at 5 a.m. too?" he was asked. "Do you know any better way to get to a hospital? You can't find a cab at 5 a.m. so we called an ambulance," Condos said.

Haiti Turmoil Grows Violent

Armed Farmers Hold Roads to Protect Foods; Await Election

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Haiti's political turmoil grew more violent today.

Ten thousand farmers armed with knives blockaded the road to the capital to keep our food supplies. Arson and sabotage were increasing. The government said troops and police were battling armed demonstrators in many communities to put down "a state of terror."

Army headquarters said the situation was critical. The capital itself remained comparatively quiet.

The seven-man Executive Council, which is supposed to be arranging for elections June 16, banned freedom of speech and muzzled the press, radio and judiciary in a desperate attempt to restore order.

The council, an interim government until a president can be elected, pledged again that free elections would be held. It said it was forced to abrogate the constitution's guarantees of liberty of expression because the nation's future was at stake.

Dr. Francois Duvalier, one of the leading candidates of the 10 seeking the presidency, declared the people were organizing to topple the government and install a provisional chief of staff who would guarantee free and honest elections.

Midland Asks Tax Hike

MIDLAND (AP) — The city of Midland has announced a proposed budget calling for an increase of $4.50 per $1,000 assessed valuation in property tax. The boost would bring the property tax to 16.50 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

Legislators Act on Many Bills

House Passes Senate Measure Setting Fees for State Parks

Racing toward an expected May 24 adjournment, the Legislature yesterday spewed forth a bewildering variety of major and minor bills, with the Senate working until 10 last night.

Among the more significant bills on which some type of action was taken were:

1. The House passed a Senate bill requiring motorists to pay a $2 fee each year for admittance to state parks. The measure was sent back to the Senate for concurrence.

It will raise an estimated one to two million dollars annually, but will not become law until September, thus not affecting most of this year's tourist season.

2. A bill offered in the House as a substitute for a Senate measure would require owners of motorboats to pay a $2 registration fee, counties to hire officers to enforce motorboat speed limits and other regulations.

3. The Senate passed a whiskey-cigarettage school financing plan designed to raise $13 million a year. Two cents a pack would be levied on cigarettes and a new 2½ percent excise tax on whiskey. The measure was sent to the House.

4. The Senate passed a bill which would establish mental, physical and moral standards for school bus drivers. Another measure adopted would set a 50-mile-an-hour speed limit for school buses.

5. The Senate also approved a bill to allow a vote in Waterford Township on prohibiting hunting.

6. Township caucuses will be held on the third Monday or Saturday preceding the third Monday in February, between the hours of 8 a.m. and 8 p.m., according to another bill which cleared the Senate.

In all, 63 bills of the 136 on the Senate calendar yesterday morning were disposed of by nightfall.

Mole Tunnel Traps Are Most Effective

Pests such as moles, pocket gophers, and field mice occasionally damage lawns. Since these pests usually invade lawns to feed on grubs and other insects, a good insect-control program that removes their food supply will generally keep them away.

Traps in mole tunnels are effective. Poison baits will control pocket gophers and field mice but are not readily taken by moles.

Pontiac Firemen Begin Move to New Station

Pontiac firemen have started moving into the city's new West Huron street fire hall.

The City Commission, in committee session this week, decided to accept the new building from the contractor for immediate occupancy, City Manager Walter K. Willman said yesterday.

The $100,000 structure, financed by funds from the city's 1956 and 1957 capital improvement program, is at the corner of Genesee street.

Of brick and cinder block, the city's fifth fire hall will house 14 firemen and serve the West Side area.

The hall was designed by architect Leo J. Heenan, and work began last October by the Chisum Construction Co. of Birmingham. An open house is planned soon, Willman said.

Name Gerald Guinan to Civil Service Unit

The City Commission has approved the appointment of Gerald Guinan to the new civil service commission, City Manager Walter K. Willman announced yesterday.

Guinan, who served on the former commission which governed only firemen, now will serve on the joint police-firemen board.

He and Theodore Carlson, representative of police and firemen, will choose the final member of the three-man board.

Senators Slash Federal Budget

Coalition of Both Parties Whacks 37 Pct. Off USIA Appropriations

WASHINGTON (INS)—An economy congressional coalition applied new brakes on President Eisenhower's spending program today and one legislator warned that the federal budget may not be balanced.

The warning came from Senate Finance Chairman Harry F. Byrd (D-VA) who said that tax revenues appear to be falling behind estimates.

Byrd's renewed demand for a curb on spending accompanied a double legislative blow at the President and his $1.8 billion dollar budget for the year beginning July 1.

A Senate Democratic-Republican coalition showed its disdain for President Eisenhower's televised appeal for budget support by whacking 37 per cent of his appropriation requests for the U. S. Information Agency.

In the House, lawmakers voted to kill a major part of next year's "set" bank program and upheld a cut of more than a quarter of a billion dollars in agricultural department operating funds for 1958. The House vote was 192 to 187, and the measure now goes to the Senate.

Only 14 of the 37 Senate Republicans who voted on the USIA cut backed the President. They were joined by a lone Democrat—Sen. Richard Neuberger, Ore., who also favored giving the agency more money. The showdown vote was 61 to 15.

After this decision the bill carrying a total of $63 million dollars for the State and Justice departments and relating units, passed unanimously.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson, backed by the Senate GOP leadership, engineered the USIA cut. The agency wound up with $90,200,000 instead of $108,000,000 voted by the House and sent.

Emphasizing his opposition to what he called the President's "super-luxury budget," the economy leader declared: "He may not be able to balance the budget." Eisenhower backers on the Republican side of the Senate made no secret of their belief that "politics" was in part dictating the leadership attack on the USIA fund. Sen. Clifford Case (R-NJ) stressed "trivial" faults of the agency and had given senators no time to study the record of testimony before his subcommittee.

Benson Battles for Soil Bank

Attempting to Salvage What He Can of Plan Slashed by House

WASHINGTON (INS)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson returns today to Capitol Hill—this time to salvage what he can of his botched soil bank program.

In a political revolt sparked by Democratic foes of the Eisenhower administration's farm policies, the House yesterday voted 192-187 to kill Benson's yearling plan to subsidize surplus crop reduction this year.

The House action was a blow to the administration's program for reducing farm surpluses. It found Republicans as well as Democrats blaming Benson for what they called waste and mismanagement.

As a witness before the Senate Agriculture Committee yesterday, the embattled Benson said the entire farm program needs an overhaul. He said government farm aid to farmers will continue to be expensive until surplus production is cut.

Meanwhile, the old "Brannan plan" was being dusted off by House Democrats led by Rep. Whitten (D-Miss), chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee. Charles F. Brannan was secretary of agriculture in the Truman administration.

Here is how Michigan members voted as the House ended soil bank payments:

Democrats for — Diggs, Dingell, Griffiths, Lesinski, Machrowicz, Rabaut.

Republicans for — Bennett.

Democrats against — none.

Republicans against — Bentley, Broomfield, Cederberg, Chamberlain, Ford, Hoffman, Johansen, Knox, McIntosh, Meader.

Smoky Mountain Trip Follows Area Wedding

LAKE ORION — A Smoky Mountain honeymoon followed the recent marriage of Bonnie Jean Chapin and William Freer. The 7:30 p.m. ceremony was held by candlelight in the Pilgrim Holiness Church Saturday with the Rev. E. C. Swanson officiating.

The bride, who was given away by her brother Ronald McNeal, is the daughter of Mrs. Glen McNeal of 810 Beardslee, Lake Orion. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Leslie Freer of 18 Jefferson Ave., Pontiac.

About 200 guests witnessed the service as the bride was married in a gown with white lace puffed sleeves. Peter Pan collar and long pointed sleeves. The skirt was comprised of tiers of white nylon net over pale blue tulle. The fingertip veil was secured by a pearl headpiece. For her bridal bouquet, she carried a cascade arrangement of white mums and blue iris.

Attending her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Reid Scheil of Belleville, with Mrs. Ronald McNeal, of Pontiac, sister-in-law of the bride as bridesmaid. Linda McCarrick, niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl.

Acting as best man was Samuel Lampher of Pontiac, with Reid Scheil, brother-in-law of the bride, and Kenneth Freer, brother of the bridegroom as ushers.

A reception followed the ceremony at the YMCA on Franklin Blvd. The paid will reside on Silver Lake road.

Township Maps CD Recruitment

Waterford Will Make Canvass of Households to Find Volunteers

Leaders in civil defense for Waterford Township met last night at the high school and mapped out a house-to-house recruitment campaign to get under way immediately, according to Mrs. John Cudobutsky, personnel director.

Many neighborhood home associations in the township were represented at the meeting, along with firemen, VFW members and Supervisor Elmer Johnson.

The Oakland County civil defense truck was on display, and Mrs. John Warren, coordinator of emergency welfare, was present to explain procedure in recruiting volunteer help for disaster work.

The township has been divided into various sectors. Each part will have an individual warden to direct the leaders in the canvass.

The workers will ask each household to indicate what service he can render in case of emergency. On June 5, all information obtained will be returned to the new CD headquarters in the township hall and each recruit will be classified by category for future reference.

Auto Industry Seeking New Brakes

PUTTING ON THE BRAKES — What looks like a phantom car here is the complete mockup of a brake system being tested by General Motors researchers in search for better brakes.

BY DOUGLAS LARSEN
DETROIT (NEA) — The automobile industry is seeking new brakes for its horsepower race.

This does not mean less powerful engines. It's a vast research program to get new and improved brakes for safe control of all the new power.

Next year will probably find the biggest jump yet in horsepower, to challenge the brake developers as never before.

The power jump will come from the widespread offering of fuel-injection engines as optional equipment. Fuel injection means shooting liquid gas directly into the piston chamber, shortcircuiting the conventional carburetor system of first vaporizing the fuel.

This reporter has just driven an experimental Pontiac with a fuel-injection system, planned to be offered to the public next year. It's like being behind the wheel of a souped-up sports car. The acceleration, from any speed, is astonishing.

It's this startling boost in engine performance which the new fuel-injection systems and other improvements will offer next year that now has the brake researchers working overtime.

During the past 10 years almost everyone in the car design business has been working at odds with the brake boys.

Cars have been built heavier, making them harder to stop. Automatic transmissions have eliminated the braking effect of engines. Styling has covered the wheels and made them smaller, increasing the vital heat dissipation problem.

New roads have increased the average highway speed, putting a greater strain on brakes. Congested city traffic has also put an added burden on brake systems.

Up until now the brake experts have kept pace by improving the basic components of the conventional drum system. This involves the principle of applying friction to the inside rim of the cake-tin-shaped drum.

The metal parts of the brake assembly have been constantly improved to take greater heat and wear. Brake systems have been stabilized so that stopping does not pull a car to one side. Brake linings have also been improved to take greater wear and heat.

So-called power brakes are not considered a fundamental improvement. Actually, power brakes only make it easier for the driver to push the pedal down. They do not add any inherent stopping qualities to the brake system.

NEW APPROACHES

Today, however, brake research is taking some basic new approaches to the problem of keeping high-powered cars under control. This includes improving the traction of tires.

School Heads Named Tonight

2 Principals for Area's Elementary Schools to Be Announced

Two principals for the new elementary schools in Waterford Township will be named at tonight's regular Board of Education meeting, according to William Shunk, superintendent of schools.

The William Beaumont school on Elizabeth Lake road and the Henry R. Schoolcraft school on Maceday drive are under construction and it is hoped that they will be in operation by September, under the supervision of the new principals.

Other business will include the consideration of a teacher's salary schedule for the 1957-58 school year, and members will determine whether or not to have driver training for teenagers during the summer months.

Shunk will report on the status of the current school legislation as affecting the state school aid program.

The board will also decide whether or not to file an application with the Municipal Finance Commission for approval of a possible sale of tax anticipation notes.

The board will decide which form of ballot will be used for the June 10 election for two new members. Election officials will also be approved by the board, Shunk said.

'Mary Jo' Had Lonely Heart for Hard Cash

PHILADELPHIA (A) — "Mary Jo," a 17-year-old lonely hearts letter writer, wasn't "Mary Jo"—she was a 24-year-old man named Herb, postal inspectors said.

The man, Herbert S. Scott, Philadelphia, was indicted on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Warren Bass, 39, Detroit, began corresponding with "Mary Jo" after seeing a lonely hearts advertisement with the picture of an attractive young girl, the indictment charged. Most of the letters had to do with $400 that "Mary Jo" needed to buy a trousseau to "come out to see you in style."

The indictment said Bass sent Scott $108 before becoming suspicious.

Wedding Notice Clue That Jails Navy Man

BOSTON (A) — Marvin Lee Collier, 27, of Dallas, Texas, is doing a month in jail because Armed Forces Police read the marriage intentions column in a newspaper.

The Armed Forces Police noticed his name in the column and notified Boston Police.

Collier was arrested and yesterday was sentenced by a Municipal Court judge on charges of passing two worthless checks, one of them to purchase a $5.45 wedding ring Monday.

Armed Forces Police said when Collier is released they will take him into custody for being AWOL. They said he jumped ship in Norfolk, Va., after five years Navy service.

Silent SAC Chief Knows His Mind

(This is the second of three articles by a veteran Pontiac reporter providing a close-up of one of the key figures in America's atomic-age defense.)

By DARRELL GARWOOD
WASHINGTON (INS) — The two personal qualities for which Gen. Curtis LeMay is best known, taciturnity and singlemindedness, apparently go back to his early youth. He was the eldest of six children in the family of an iron foundry worker at Columbus, Ohio, and himself worked nights in a foundry part time when he was attending Ohio State University.

All the stories of his early life are agreed that from childhood he didn't say much and that he was determined to have a military career.

Lacking any chance of getting an appointment to West Point, he decided he would have to realize his ambition by starting in the Reserve Officers Training Corps at Ohio State and then take flight training.

NOT SPECTACULAR

His career before World War II was unspectacular. He was assigned to Selfridge Field, Mich., where he learned to fly a B17 Flying Fortress. Then he took part in a good will tour of South America led by Maj. Gen. Robert Olds in 1937.

LeMay had the rank of major when America entered World War II. He was promoted to lieutenant colonel within a month after Pearl Harbor. Then he was assigned to train the 385th bombardment group, which he took to England in the fall of 1942.

The European decision for which he is probably best known ordered American bombers to ignore German anti-aircraft "flak" and head straight for their targets. With the addition of "pattern bombing," in which all pilots took their instructions from the lead plane, this increased accuracy by 50 per cent. LeMay personally led the first shuttle bombing raid, in which his Flying Fortresses flew from England to Africa and then descended on Regensburg, Germany, in August, 1943.

Soon afterward he was promoted to brigadier general and later he was transferred to the China-Burma war theater where he planned and ordered the highly successful bombing of Tokyo from an altitude of 6,000 instead of the usual 25,000 feet.

None of his men were in any greater hurry to get home after the war. LeMay flew non-stop from Japan to Chicago. After a tour with the air materiel command at Dayton, Ohio, he was made commander of U. S. Air Forces in Europe, but was brought back in 1948 to assume his present post as commander of SAC.

The stories of his taciturnity in SAC border on the incredible. Bomb wing commanders contend they have flown thousands of miles to spend hours in his office without hearing him utter more than one or two words.

When there is an accident or a series of accidents, or some other problem in SAC, LeMay customarily asks for a full report. The presentation may take hours, but he listens in silence, possibly raising one hand to indicate approval. At the end he is likely to say nothing except "thanks."

LeMay has a reputation for standing back of his men, however, and in fact for refusing to let go of them. Normal "tours" in the Air Force are about two years before transfer, but SAC is studded with men who, like LeMay, have been there since the command was organized.

The general's official papers are about as brief as his speech. His official biography is only a page and a half long, and does not mention the Berlin airlift, for which he was operational commander, or other noted exploits. He is married and has a daughter, Patricia Jane, 18.

LeMay was more interested in establishing that he is a working flier as well as an administrative officer. The biography contains this statement: "He is a rated command pilot, combat observer, aircraft observer and technical observer."

(Next: What's ahead for LeMay)

Water Pistol Ban Fails to Keep Picnickers Dry

BENTON, Ky. (U) — Each year at the Tater Day festival, youngsters would run amok with water pistols. Finally, the city fathers outlawed sales of the toys.

But that failed to keep the crowd from getting soaked this year. A steady rain fell all day.

GENEVA, Switzerland (U) — The World Council of Churches reports

some 180,000 refugees have tramped out of Hungary in the five months following late October, 1956. Of these, about 130,000 went to the United States, 21,000 to Great Britain, 17,000 to Canada, 9,000 to France, 10,000 to Switzerland, 6,000 to Australia, and 11,000 to Germany. Some 35,000 are still in Austria. To help the World Council, churches around the world have given more than half a million dollars earmarked for Hungarian relief. About one-third of the sum came from the United States.

New York Shop Sells Solid Slumber

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK (INS) — In New York City there probably is less solid slumber per sleepy capita than in any other city in America. This is not because New Yorkers work, play or listen to disk jockeys until dawn.

It is because the excitement of the city builds up a wall of babel that Morpheus and his countable sheep have a time surmounting; for here the night noises are louder, the pace is faster, the tensions are tenser and, for insomniacs, there is infinitely more nonsense to stew about.

Where else can a businessman have so many competitors to keep his ambitions awake? Where but here can a worrying-type woman indulge more solidly her fears about the high cost of living?

Where, indeed, can a civic-minded sleep-fighter have five separate boroughs to fret over, instead of only one town?

In honor of this penchant for beating one's head against a pillow, a new shop was opened in New York this week. It is called the World Sleep Center, and it is run by a man named Norman Dine—long ago dubbed "Public Sandman" by the late comedian Fred Allen.

'BED-UCATION' EXPERT
Mr. Dine, a salesman of "bed-ucation" gimmicks for many years in a New York department store, has devoted some 6,000 square feet to tranquilizing sleep influences.

A genially groggy looking character by nature ("I'm still catching up," he says, "from my insomnia 25 years ago; sleep like a rock now, even days"), Mr. Dine long ago attended Columbia University Teachers College for a complete study of the mental hygiene, physiology and psychology of sleep.

He has come to the conclusion that there are one million sleep problems. In his shop he attempts to solve them all. The customer picks what he believes to be his problem—be it a snoring spouse, a nervous stomach, a fear of the dark, etc.—and Norman will offer an antidote.

"Excessive brain activity," he says, "is probably the chief cause for sleeplessness in New York." For this trouble, he recommends soporific nightcaps:

"The purpose is to increase circulation in the abdominal region and reduce the volume of blood in the brain area. Brain anemia is what we're after. Take any warm, but not hot, bland drink minus caffeine—preferably milk, beef broth, etc.—then lie in a bathtub with the water at body temperature, no more than 100 degrees, for 20 minutes.

"Put in the water some of our special tranquilizer oil. Get out and pat—do not rub—yourself dry."

OTHER SOPORIFICS

In bed—and Dine urges that the bed must be eight inches longer than your height and 10 inches wider than your width—you must use other soporifics.

There is a "drowsing slumberbug," a record with rhythmic droning sound, that will bore your brain to sleep. Also a bald-head warmer, which is a fleece-lined cap for nude-topped people.

And a special "platonic bed," which is a split-twin model divided down the middle with a fanelli equipped table, for couples whose nightly arguments keep one another awake.

"Snoring," Dine says, "is one of the most persistent problems. Some snoring is caused by sleeping in a supine position. Others snore because they breathe through their mouths."

There are many happy solutions, including a device which buzzes the snorer to turn over if he's slipped into supine; and an anti-snore mask which makes mouth breathing difficult and forces use of the nose.

There are also plenty of "emperor-sized beds" for couples, or single people, who cannot sleep unless they sprawl obnoxiously. And a new type alarm that will allow a wife to sleep though her husband must rise and shine. It flashes a light in his face, shocking him awake. But silently and politely.

Personal Income Rises to Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—Personal income last month rose to a record annual rate of 339½ billion dollars. Reporting this today, the Commerce Department said the rate was about a billion dollars higher than in March and 18 billion higher than last April. Little more than the half of the April increase reflected continued rises in wages and salaries, dividends and interest. Much of the remainder was attributed to higher government payments. The government's estimates of personal income include wages and salaries, the net income of proprietorships and partnerships, dividends and interest, rents and other types of individual incomes.

Pills Cut Expenses
KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)—Operational costs at the Kalamazoo State Hospital, a mental institution, have been cut with "notable results" by the use of tranquilizing drugs. Window breakage by violent patients has been reduced, electroshock treatments cut to less than a fourth of what they were and brain surgery all but eliminated.

WILLING WORKER — Named the national "Goodwill Worker of 1957," Mrs. Genevieve Farris, 26, of St. Petersburg, Fla., flips the pages of a telephone book with a knobbed stick while on a visit to Washington. Stricken by polio at 22, she partially supports herself and an eight-year-old daughter by working as a telephone solicitor for Goodwill Industries. Using a knobbed shoe, Mrs. Farris dials a telephone placed on the floor. The honor is the highest bestowed on a handicapped worker from among the 116 Goodwill Industries in the U. S.

U. S. Restaurant Industry Hungers for Good Cooks

NEW YORK (NEA) — There is a famine in the U.S. restaurant industry.

According to a national hotelmen's association, there are not enough chefs to fill all the jobs.

According to an administrator in a food trades school, neither enough people nor the right kind are enrolling.

According to a European-trained chef, it is no longer possible to lure qualified people from abroad.

Even the Hotel and Restaurant Workers Union, jealous of its position, tells employers, "Give us 24 hours to find somebody. After that, you're on your own."

Meanwhile, jobs that pay no less than $10,000-a-year go begging. Jobs that carry extra benefits of travel and executive prestige. Jobs that give men a passport to almost every place in the world.

SOCIAL STIGMA
"We're battling a social stigma," according to Robert Herz, administrative assistant at New York's Food Trades Vocational High School. "Even if we point out the great rewards in this field, we still have to fight the lack of glamor that has become attached to being a chef."

Young people, he said, think of a short-order cook when they think of food work. They are wrong, he said, but they have good reasons.

"In my father's time," he said, "a man would spend an evening at dining. Eating was an art that went hand in hand with the art of cooking. Today, we're diet conscious. We do everything faster. We are tempted with packaged dinners, with quick cooking and a fast bite-to-eat."

NO GLAMOR
It has all contributed to taking the glamor out of cooking.

As much of a paradox as famine in the restaurants, however, is our well-traveled and culinary-educated nation that is at home with pizza, with chop suey or with gefilte fish.

"Our people know good food and good restaurants," Herz said, "and they demand good cooking. But our food trades schools have empty seats. And those who enroll are often below normal intelligence. If we require an entrance examination, we'll have even fewer students."

One executive chef, Albert Stockil, added testimony to the unhappy dossier. He is a graduate of the kitchens in Europe's finest restaurants — where an apprentice had to pay for the privilege of learning. Several years ago, when he assumed responsibility for New York's Hawaiian Room, he was sent to Hawaii to learn recipes.

ANYONE IMPRESSED?
"Do you think this impresses anybody here?" he asked. "I cannot get people to understand that this is a good way to work and earn a living. I remember the old days when a chef was treated like royalty because he deserved it. Today he still deserves it, but nobody cares."

In Stockil's experience, we can no longer count on Europe's supplying us with chefs. Too many years of war have thinned the ranks and now that their restaurant business is picking up again, they need all the chefs they can train.

Diem Receives MSU Degree

Viet Nam Chief Returns to Former 'Haven' for Honorary LL.D.

EAST LANSING 16—A new era of good feeling between the East and West was predicted yesterday by Ngo Dinh Diem, anti-Communist president of the republic of Viet Nam.

Diem, who once was given a haven at Michigan State University while in exile, returned yesterday to be received in pomp as a chief of state and to accept an honorary doctor of laws degree.

A crowd of nearly 5,000, swelled by students released from classes for the occasion, heard him thank MSU for the warm welcome.

"This is in sense a homecoming for me," said Diem, who was at Michigan State in 1953 as a consultant on Southeast Asian affairs to the MSU Governmental Research Bureau.

"It was only four years ago that I last visited this campus," he said. "At that time I was in voluntary exile from my homeland but I received the same courtesy and understanding that you have shown me today."

Diem paid particular tribute to the work of MSU advisory groups in helping Viet Nam reorganize its governmental and police administration setups.

Ethiopia Prepares Step to Democracy

ADDIS ABABA 16—A first step toward democracy is to take place in Ethiopia—a parliamentary election.

Emperor Haile Selassie in 1955 proclaimed a new constitution. It calls for elections to choose the 250-seat Chamber of Deputies while the Emperor appoints the upper house, or Senate.

Elections will begin Sept. 1 and continue for one month.

All native subjects are entitled to vote, male and female, who have reached 21. Candidates also must be Ethiopian by birth, 25 years old and must own at least $2,000 worth of movable property or $1,000 worth of immovable property in his district.

Seek Chicago Man, Runaway Girl, 15

DETROIT (INS) — A Chicago man and a 15-year-old runaway girl were being sought in the Detroit area today.

The girl's father, Savelli Evans, 40, of Chicago, said Miller Ephraim, 23, had twice telephoned him and said he would return the girl for $2,000. The second call was made yesterday from Dearborn.

Evans told police his daughter left home April 25 after taking $300. He said he learned she was with Ephraim when the man made the first call, from California.

The girl talked to her father yesterday and said Ephraim wouldn't let her return home unless the money was paid.

A federal warrant charging Ephraim with extortion was issued after the first call and Chicago authorities want him for contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The board also approved the appointment of Dr. Clair L. Taylor, state superintendent of public instruction, as director of the summer school and evening college. The appointment is effective July 1. Taylor did not seek re-election to his state post in the April 1 election.

In other actions, the board appointed E. L. Willett, director of research at the American Foundation for Biological Research at Madison, Wis., as a member of the dairy department effective July 1, and accepted gifts and grants totaling $84,109.

Junior High Pupils Adopt Conduct Code

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—The 1,200 pupils of Alexander Graham Junior High School here have answered "doubts and fears adults have concerning us."

The pupils adopted a 51-rule code of conduct for school, church, home and community.

Sample rules:
Wear clothes and styles accepted by the majority; attend only approved movies; frown upon smoking and "absolutely forbid drinking"; when out at night go home at a respectable hour; be sure parents know where teenagers are at all times; take school and personal problems to favorite teachers.

Mother, 33, Sees Son's Accident, Commits Suicide

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Patrolman M. Granados said neighbors told him Mrs. Phyllis Briggs often said if anything ever happened to her children, she'd kill herself.

The 33-year-old divorcee was found sprawled on her bed near a .22 caliber pistol shortly after she saw her son, George, 11, almost sever his left arm in a fall from a church roof. Stunned by the sight of her son crying in pain as blood spurted from his arm, she ran to her home near by and locked all doors and windows, officers said. Her body was found minutes later.

A verdict of suicide was rendered by Bexar County medical examiner. Her son was reported in fair condition at a hospital.

Canada Allocates $100 Million to Develop Cultural Activities

OTTAWA, Canada (NEA)—Canada's top insurance man, who hasn't yet caught up with Hi-Fi, is about to spend a hundred million dollars to prime a unique new "Canadian culture pump."

He's 58-year-old Brooke Claxton, a big, genial garden-fan, ski-enthusiast and manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. which insures more Canadians than any other company.

Claxton gets this huge kitty for culture as first chairman of the newly-created 21-man Canadian Council.

Nothing quite like it has ever been tried by a nation. Half of the money is to be spent during the next 10 years in construction grants to colleges, and for scholarships. This is not controversial.

The other half is to be invested, with the estimated two million dollars per year interest to be used for support of various cultural activities which will be determined by the council. This activity could become controversial.

During Commons debate, a member declared: "What has happened in 10 years in the U. S. could happen here. Little cliques, eggheads, could gain absolute control of this council."

Another member charged the council would contribute to making Canadian kids like American kids. "Children will begin to rate their fathers and mothers as daddies, old fuddy-duddies, or all wet, to use the common expression," he argued.

St. Laurent is appealing to wealthy live Canadians to contribute large sums to the council.

BROOKE CLAXTON — The opposition tossed eggheads.

In the manner of such U. S. organizations as the Ford Foundation donations.

Canada has no reason to apologize for its present state of culture and the council will find plenty of places to spend the money, Claxton points out.

Catan claims he was the first paying motorist on the New York Turnpike, the Chesapeake Bay Bridge, the Garden State Parkway in New Jersey and the George Washington Bridge across the Hudson in New York.

Mother Claims Son of Actor Really Eats

LOS ANGELES (AP)—For a 2-year-old boy, actor Rod Cameron's son is a hearty eater. The child's mother says she needs $100 a month just to keep up with his appetite.

Angela Alves-Lico, 25, the ex-Mrs. Cameron, yesterday asked an increase from $200 to $300 a month in Cameron's support payments for their son Anthony. Among his expenses she listed $100 a month for food.

Observed Superior Judge Wallace L. Ware: "I live pretty well, but my wife and I don't eat $100 a month worth of food — and we entertain a lot."

The judge raised the monthly payments from $200 to $300 and advised Miss Alves-Lico to begin practicing economy.

Meat Sandwiches Sure to Please

Give them sandwiches and they'll be pleased! Whether it's a female gathering you're serving, a group of hungry men, or a "rock 'n' roll" meeting of the teenagers, you'll satisfy their appetites with meat sandwiches.

Especially for the feminine contingent is this Meat Sandwich in the Round, for it holds a variety of fillings, cuts easily into pie-

Meat Sandwich in the Round

1 half-inch slice cut crosswise from 2 pound round loaf rye bread
3 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
1 1/2 cups deviled liverwurst spread
4 thin slices cucumber, halved
1/2 cup chili-bologna spread Parsley
Frankfurters, cut into 1/2 inch coins Spread bread with butter. Spoon a ring of deviled liverwurst onto bread 1/2 inch from edge. Arrange cucumber slices around inside ring of liverwurst. Pile chili-bologna spread in center and garnish with sprig of parsley. Stick frankfurter coins into liverwurst spread to make border. Cut into wedges to serve. 6-8 servings.

Deviled Liverwurst Spread
Blend 1/2 pound liverwurst, 1/4 cup finely chopped green pepper,

1 tablespoon grated onion, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper and 3 tablespoons mayonnaise. Chill. Yields 1 1/4 cups.

CHILI-BOLOGNA SPREAD:
Blend 1/4 pound finely ground bologna, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, 1 tablespoon minced green onion and 2 teaspoons horseradish. Chill. Yields 1/4 cup.

Hot and hearty and with plenty of tang — that's the way men like sandwiches. Place a platter of Sausage Sizzlers in front of the hungry group and watch the bubbling combinations disappear!

Sausage Sizzlers

1 1/2 pounds pork sausage links
4 large English muffins
1/2 cup chili sauce
1 teaspoon oregano
Spread sausage links, one layer deep, in a shallow baking pan. Bake at 400 degree F. 25 minutes. Split muffins in half and toast. Place 3 sausage links on each muffin half, browned side down. Top each with a tablespoon of chili sauce and sprinkle each with 1/2 teaspoon oregano. Broil until sauce bubbles. Serve immediately. 4 to 8 servings.

Let the teen-aged hostess prepare her own party food, if you like, for these Ham Hot Rods may be assembled several hours before serving, then refrigerated 'til baking time. The foil-wrapped sandwiches are baked and served in their silvery covering.

Ham Hot Rods

1/2 pound cooked ham, sliced
1/2 pound process cheese, cubed
1/2 cup tomato paste
1/2 cup tomato sauce
1/2 cup mayonnaise
8 frankfurter buns
Aluminum foil
Mix ham, cheese, onion, olives, tomato paste, and mayonnaise and spoon into buns. Wrap each bun securely in aluminum foil. Place on cookie sheet and bake in 350 degree F. oven 15 minutes. 8 servings.

Hint of Viennese Pastry Present in Napoleonettes

Napoleonettes are shortcuts to the Viennese pastry treats of "olden days. Cinnamon-flavored crackers are the solid element of the "pastry." The filling and frosting are simplified by making them with semi-sweet chocolate morsels and instant coffee.

Whether you've invited friends for a Sunday afternoon, or want to conclude dinner with coffee and dessert in the living room, you'll find this easy formula fun for your repertoire.

Napoleonettes

Combine and melt over hot (not boiling) water:
1 package (8 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate bits
1/2 cup light corn syrup
3 tablespoons water
Remove from water. Let cool, approximately ten minutes. Spread mixture on 30 cinnamon-flavored

Unique Bread Sticks Use Horseradish

At one's fingertips — a zesty accent for soup or snack—HORSE-RADISH BREAD STICKS. Blend a tablespoon of fresh horseradish and a teaspoon of prepared mustard into 2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine. Remove crusts from toasted enriched bread and spread with horseradish butter. Place toast, spread side up, on a cookie sheet and toast under low broiler heat for 5 minutes.

Want New Date Bait? Try Frozen Waffles

One of these evenings, after a show or a dance, why not try a change of pace for the benefit of that special boy friend. Take him home and treat him to a stack of savory waffles. Nowadays, you don't have to be an expert batter maker or an engineer at operating a waffle iron, for frozen waffles save you all that as well as the cleaning up afterward.

Of course, it won't hurt your case a bit to tie on a chic apron, but frozen waffles are simply popped into a toaster, taken out in a minute, and served. They're mighty good eatin' and have just what it takes to fill that late-evening void.

Seconds can be dished up almost as soon as they're asked for — and a special touch can be added, particularly on warm evenings, with ice cream. Trot out chocolate or strawberry sauce for the latter treat.

It's Not Complicated!

Sleeping and dripping are two basic methods of making coffee. In the first method, hot water is held in contact with the ground coffee for several minutes. In the second method, the hot water is poured through the ground coffee one or more times.

Give Spuds the Eye Before Buying Them

You can tell a lot about how to cook a potato by looking at it, says Mrs. Josephine Lawyer, M. S. U. Marketing Information Agent.

potatoes are fine for boiling and making salad, but rate low as a baking choice.

The old potatoes have thicker more leathery looking skins. Potatoes from the old crop can be boiled, mashed, fried or baked. Think of how you wish to prepare potatoes, and choose those that best fit your plans.

SWORDFISH STEAK — Fisherman's Wharf, in the city of San Francisco, brags about this broiled swordfish steak. Swordfish is one of the most prized of the food fishes and a recipe like this can spark up your menu. Lemon brings out the fine flavors of fish. Here you will find that delicate salad oil and fresh lemon juice bring swordfish steak to the heights of piscatorial delight.

Lemon Brings Out the Flavor

You have marinated meat and fish before. But here is a new method of preparing fish with salad oil and lemon juice before it is broiled.

Swordfish steak is the suggested fish to use, but this method is equally good with other ocean fish.

Swordfish Steak

2 pounds swordfish steaks
1/2 cup salad oil
3 tablespoons minced green onion tops
3 tablespoons chopped parsley
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon soy sauce
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1/2 cup fresh lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Lemon wedges

Cut swordfish into serving pieces. Heat salad oil in skillet; add onion and parsley; cook until light brown. Stir in the remaining ingredients and simmer until blended.

Cover swordfish with this sauce and allow to set for an hour. Heat broiler and broil swordfish steaks 3 to 4 inches from heat for 10 to 15 minutes on each side.

Serve hot with plump lemon wedges.

MSU Specialist Gives Tips on Cutting Cake

Cutting a wedding cake need not be a complicated problem in geometry if you follow one of the two plans suggested by Fay Kinder of Michigan State University's College of Home Economics.

Bride's cakes, whether they are round, square, oval or rectangular, can be cut according to one of these plans.

This first plan is for a cake with each succeeding tier slightly smaller than the one it rests on. Cut this kind of cake a tier at a time, starting at the top, so that each piece is about one by three inches.

The second type of cake has each succeeding tier three or more inches larger than the one it rests on. This cake is cut from the outside, a part of a tier at a time.

At a small reception, the bride may cut her cake and serve the guests herself; at larger functions a relative, friend or waiter may take this responsibility.

Fish and Beets in Italian Style

This is a variation of an Italian main dish. The Italians have a knack for making delicious dishes of unusual food combinations. That's why Italian cooking makes such interesting and delicious eating.

This recipe using fish, beets and olives is a good example of an unusual combination of foods. Once you try it, it will be a favorite at your house. Red beets, green olives and white fish make a beautiful platter.

White Fish in Beet Sauce

1 tablespoon cooking fat
1 cup coarsely chopped onion
2 cups water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon celery seed
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup tomato juice
2 tablespoons finely chopped green olives (not stuffed)
1 cup thinly sliced cooked beets
1 pound fresh or frozen, thawed white fish fillets

Melt the cooking fat in a large skillet. Add the onions. Cook slowly until the onions are tender and begin to turn yellow.

While the onions cook, put the rice, 1 teaspoon salt and water in a 2-quart saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat down low. Cover with a lid and leave over this low heat 14 minutes. Remove the saucepan from the heat but leave the lid on until ready to serve, at least 10 minutes.

After the onions are tender, stir in the celery seed, black pepper, 1 teaspoon salt, tomato juice and olives. Add the beets. Cut the fish into serving pieces. Arrange over the beets. Cover and simmer about 15 minutes or until the fish is tender and flakes easily.

Arrange the hot rice on a large platter. Pour the sauce over the rice. Arrange the fish and beets over the sauce. Garnish with parsley or celery leaves if desired. This recipe makes 4 to 5 servings.

Carrots and Peas Get 'Gingered Up'

Looking for a new way to cook carrots and peas? You may like this unusual method using ginger sauce.

Carrots and Peas in Ginger Sauce

3-ounce can chopped broiled mushrooms
1/2 cup water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/2-ounce package quick-frozen peas and carrots
1/2 teaspoon cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon cold water
2 tablespoons chopped salted peanuts

Place contents of can of mushrooms, water, salt and ginger in saucepan. Bring to boil. Add frozen peas and carrots which have been broken apart. Cover and bring to boil. Cook over moderate heat until vegetables are barely tender, about 5 minutes.

Blend together and stir in cornstarch and cold water. Cook until liquid thickens and turns transparent. Garnish with chopped nuts and serve immediately.

Ever slice iceberg crosswise? The slices are good used as a base for mounds or seafood salad.

Pork Chops in Wine Make Fine Casserole

Hearty dishes taste good any time of year, and one of the best is made by browning thick pork chops and serving them with a sherried sauce. Remove the browned chops from the pan; then saute a sliced tomato, sliced onion, sliced green pepper and two stalks of chopped celery in the pan juices, to which you add a cup of sherry, either a dry fino or nutty amontillado. Simmer this for ten minutes, then pour over the chops.

For a made-ahead-of-time dish, you can place the browned chops in a greased casserole, cover them with the vegetable slices, top each chop with a tablespoon of pre-cooked rice, fill the spaces with the chopped celery, cover with a cup of the Spanish sherry, then bake for two and a half hours at 375 degrees.

Mustard Needs to 'Set'

When you add dry mustard to mayonnaise or French dressing, prepare the dressing ahead of time. The bitter flavor of mustard, sometimes detected when a dressing is first made, will dissipate after some hours.

Chiffon Pie and Cookbooks, Clean Charcoal—All New

By JANET ODELL,
Pontiac Press Home Editor

Today I'm just bursting with news. For the past several weeks all sorts of new products and stories about them have come to my desk. Let's see what they include.

Last summer when the Girl Scouts held their Roundup at Highland Recreation area, they burned thousands of tons of charcoal. All their cooking was done on charcoal stoves. Handling the fuel was sometimes a messy job and the girls kept gloves handy to protect their fingers.

This year a new product will eliminate any such difficulties for the millions of families in Oakland County and elsewhere who enjoy outdoor cooking. The Diamond Match company has produced a self-starting charcoal briquet package made of molded wood pulp.

All the fire builder has to do is touch a match to any of four ignition tabs on the underside of the box, set it in the barbecue grill and leave it alone. In twenty minutes there will be a glowing bed of charcoal all ready for cooking. The package can be used indoors or outside. These special packets of charcoal will be available in grocery stores.

MEASURING JARS

Homemakers who do lots of summer canning will be pleased to know that one brand of glass fruit jars now comes with measuring marks on them. Think how handy that will be for countless uses around the house. This same company is also making a one-and-a-half pint jar, useful for freezing.

Saccharin users can now purchase handy moisture-proof cellophane packets of two (quarter-grain size) saccharin tablets. Neat and convenient to carry, these packets are available in drug stores and super markets. You may find these same packets on the table at your favorite restaurant.

Seven years ago an intriguing little cookbook, "The Spice Sampler" was introduced. What made it an unusual cookbook was the inclusion of five actual packets of herbs attached to the inside of the front cover.

NEW RECIPES INCLUDED

Edith Barber, the author, and one of the nicest women in the food editing business, has revised her original book. In the 1957 Spice Sampler (Sterling Publishing Co., New York, $1.25) will find vacuum packs of poppy, celery, dill and caraway seeds and powdered rosemary. The recipes themselves are new and exciting.

Making chiffon pie is now a simple matter of opening a package, adding water and sugar to its contents and heating until cloud-light. Two flavors of a new chiffon pie filling mix are being produced—lemon and strawberry. Watch for them soon.

I have had sample packages but haven't seen the product in the stores yet. Chiffon pie is an excellent summer dessert. Incidentally this mix may be served as a pudding if desired.

For several years you have been using salad dressing mixes. You have your favorites among the original five flavors. Now there is a new flavor—American French—to intrigue your palate. The makers say it is spicy yet slightly sweet; they recommend it for fruits and cheese. This product I know is already on your grocer's shelves.

One morning I found a telegram on my desk. It contained the news that this spring sees the best supply of quality bananas in the market in five years. The prices fluctuate from week to week, but they seem to be slightly less than during the winter. You can plan bananas on your spring and summer menus, knowing you will get good fruit.

Have you had any citrus fruit with a little tag saying that the fruit had been treated to reduce mold and stem-end decay? This advance in food preservation is for your benefit and is harmless.

DEVELOPED IN MICHIGAN

Our own Dow Chemical Company developed a chemical to treat the fruit and reduce losses. The Food and Drug Administration cleared it for safety. You and I are the winners. We get better fruit with better keeping qualities.

At present all types of citrus fruits are thus treated, as well as pears and apples in some areas. If you are averse to eating such treated fruit, give it an extra scrubbing. Of course, the citrus fruits are peeled anyway.

My fast item concerns graham crackers. One biscuit company has come out with a graham cracker that contains complete protein. They are using a V-10 Protein Concentrate developed by the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation.

This research laboratory, best known for originating the irradiation process of creating Vitamin D in foods, found that a certain combination of wheat grain contains complete protein. This protein is comparable to that of meat, fish, cheese and milk. You will probably see this wheat concentrate used in other products soon.

Oh, by the way, the graham crackers are delicious.

More Homemakers Fix Fried Chicken

Does your family like chicken too? In a recent survey done by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, 90 per cent of 3,100 homemakers who were interviewed said they had bought broiler-fryers within the past year.

And guess how they prepared them? Fried chicken scored first, relates Mrs. Josephine Lawyer, M. S. U. Marketing Information Agent. One third of these homemakers had not served them any other way than fried. Forty per cent had baked or roasted them. Twenty-five per cent had broiled a chicken, and seventeen per cent had barbecued these popular birds.

Know your meat: veal is the flesh from immature beef animals or calves.

Budget Not Padded, Supervisor Says

should build the entire unit at one time.

"Now I'm glad that the money to finance a bond issue was defeated at the polls in 1954, since that method of financing would have cost the county a million dollars in interest.

"Right now we have about $1.4 million on hand for the new building and can easily realize the rest of the money needed through sale of lands and from anticipated millage over the next three years.

"In this way, the taxpayer will have been saved all that interest."

Another official who testified yesterday on behalf of the county was William J. Emerson, county school superintendent and chairman of the tax allocation board.

Visiting Circuit Judge Herman Dehnke today saw the possibility of a delay in the trial in order to reconcile conflicting reports of the county's finances over the past ten years.

The county introduced a new set of figures in a move to offset an audit already in evidence. The audit is damaging, Merritt argued, because it is based only on the county's general fund instead of the whole budget.

The Taxpayers' League charges the board padded budgets and illegally transferred subsequent surpluses to the building fund. It says that since 1946, the county illegally accumulated or spent $3,656,000, although only $328,303 had been legally raised under a 1 mill constitutional limitation.

In the ten years, the League says, the county has extracted $2,651,000 in excessive taxes for its building program.

Emerson noted yesterday that in 1953 the county submitted its budget for allocation purposes, with $311,246 in unappropriated funds still on hand from the previous year.

"I don't have figures with me for other years, but I know that the same thing happened other times," he said.

During the time the county was accumulating the building money, Emerson said, many governmental units were forced to accept reduced allocations under the 15-mill limitation in which the county shares.

Judge Dehnke interrupted questioning of the county's witnesses yesterday with this statement:

"The big issue is whether the board failed to use surpluses to wards the next year's budget and instead transferred them to the building fund with the definite purpose of circumventing the constitutional limitation."

Speaking while Levinson still was on the stand, Judge Dehnke commented that the county "has a continuous history of substantially understating future revenues and of transferring substantial surpluses."

Levinson replied that surpluses were unpredictable and could be ascertained only after the following year's budget had been prepared.

"That's why I favor transferring all of the year-end surplus, instead of applying it to next year's budget," said Levinson, a committee member 11 years.

Judge Dehnke then referred to figures already brought out in an audit of the county's books and records over the past 10 years.

"Why has the county each year considerably underestimated its miscellaneous revenues for the following year when drawing up budgets? The estimated receipts each year are less than the actual receipts for the year preceding," he observed.

Levinson's answer was that the county "has been fortunate that the economy has continued to rise each year. But we couldn't anticipate it and when it might suddenly start falling."

The judge's reference was to figures showing receipts of $2,238,363 more than anticipated in the yearly budgets, making actual revenues 39 per cent more than estimated.

The League contends this practice alone resulted in the levy of more taxes than actually were needed.

Saying the building fund had been built up from many sources, Levinson expressed his belief that at least 50 per cent of the present $1,392,000 equity came from land sales.

But Gillespie voiced objections to this statement, and referred to his previous charge that the present equity had been built up solely from unappropriated surpluses and direct relief funds transferred last year, at a time the courthouse planning was nearing completion.

Before that, Gillespie maintained, the building fund was broke. Denying knowledge of any attempt to pad budgets, Levinson declared that the board's financial policy "will give the people of Oakland County a new courthouse at the very lowest cost."

Corporation Counsel Harry J. Merritt also called on another supervisor, Harold K. Schone, Birmingham City Manager, to describe the proposed courthouse site.

Schone, chairman the past two years of the supervisors' special committee for the new building, testified that constitutional offices in the proposed courthouse would not be located outside the disputed city limits of Pontiac, the county seat.

His testimony answered charges by the League that the building would be located in an area improperly annexed from Waterford Township.

The League says the board wants to move the courthouse site illegally from its present downtown location to the county's service center on the northwest side of the city. Also testifying for the county were J. Anton Berst of Royal Oak, a consulting engineer for the county; Carl Alt, Pontiac Building Inspector, and Mrs. Wilma P. Burbridge, an employee of the Oakland County Infirmary in the disputed service center area.

Mark-Leach, Inc. Sues for $2 Million

Suits totaling $2,054,400 were filed in Detroit yesterday by Mark-Leach, Inc., a former Birmingham Ford dealership, against Ford Motor Co., Universal C.I.T. Credit Corp. and 11 Ford dealers in the Detroit area.

In four separate suits, the dealership charged it was discriminated against on shipments of Mercury and Lincoln autos in 1948, 1951 and 1952 because it refused to finance its stock through C.I.T.

Two of the suits charge violation of the Sherman Anti-trust Act, and two others charge conspiracy between Ford, the finance company and the other dealers to change scheduled allocation of cars.

Ford officials termed the suit "unjustified" and said the corporation would fight it.

Oberton was reed on $200 bond until trial May 23.

The condition of Lucille H. Padde, 68, of 2 Wenonah Dr., changed from satisfactory to fair today, and her husband, Lloyd, 67, was reported in satisfactory condition. Both are in Pontiac General Hospital.

Police Dig For Cut-Up Body

Man Tells Police He Slew Mother, Buried Her in 1954

CINCINNATI (U. S. A. man known here as Augustus Clifford Gaylord, 41, told police early today that he killed his mother, Mrs. Pearl Hartlage, in Evansville, Ind., on Oct. 15, 1954.

He said the body is buried beneath the flooring of a cupboard in a farmhouse near Crawfordsville, Ind., about 140 miles north of Evansville, and 40 miles northwest of Indianapolis.

Watson was pointed out to police by a man who said he recognized him from a picture in the magazine "Inside Detective." A story entitled "What Became of Pearl Hartlage?" was in an issue of the magazine, along with a picture of her son.

Watson told police here that he shot his mother during a quarrel over receipts of an oil station, restaurant business they operated in Evansville. He claimed the shooting was accidental.

He told Detective Thompson Buchanan that his wife, Mary, and three children, Peter, 8, Juanita, 7, and Janice, 2, knew nothing of the slaying.

Watson, who operated a "fix-it" shop in Cincinnati, was pointed out by Mickey Cosmah, 23, who had read the magazine article and looked at the picture.

Watson told police he had had several glasses of beer before the slaying and took some bottles of the brew to his mother's home.

She quarreled about not "getting enough out of the gasoline station part of the business," he said.

"She hit me on the head with a beer bottle and I pulled out the gun," he said.

Watson said his mother seized the pistol and during the struggle it fired, the bullet hitting her in the head.

He said he tried to fit her body into a box "because I knew no one would believe it was accidental."

Watson said he cut up the body, put the pieces into the box and kept it in the oil shed of the gasoline station until July 1955.

Watson said he then rented a farm house near Crawfordsville, moved his family there, and took the box with him.

A short time later he was quoted as saying, his wife and children went away for a visit and he buried his mother's remains under the floor boards of a cupboard.

Voters Can Mail In Absentee Ballots

Pontiac residents who will be out of town on election day, Monday, can still participate through absentee ballots. Ada Evans, city clerk, said today.

Applications for absentee ballots can be picked up at her office until 2 p.m. Saturday, she said. The ballots must be mailed in to reach her by 6 p.m. Monday so they can be forwarded to the appropriate precincts and counted.

"So far, 38 applications have been made for absentee ballots," she said, "which is good for an election of this type. It may indicate a relatively heavy vote."

Probate Judge Dies

MASON (U. S. L. B. McArthur, 85, former Ingham County probate judge, died at his home here yesterday following a lingering illness.

McArthur served as probate judge from 1916 to 1936 and was active in a law practice until 1949. He also had served as Ingham County prosecutor and Circuit Court commissioner and was a former member of the Mason School Board.

2 Charged in Break-In of Highland Golf Club

Two Milford men, arrested at Gaylord for the Oakland County Sheriff's Department by Otsego County sheriff's deputies, were arraigned yesterday accused of breaking and entering the Highland Golf and Country Club, 2075 Oakland Dr., Highland, on May 6.

They are Burton Hayes, 21, of 3385 Harbor Ct., and James Goodwill, 27, of 525 Lone Tree Rd.

The men waived examination when they appeared before Milford Justice James VanLeuven and were bound over to Circuit Court for arraignment Monday. They were returned to the county jail when they failed to furnish $2,000 bonds.

George Hansch, Evansville police detective chief, said he was informed Watson had agreed to return to Evansville without extradition. He sent two officers here to get him.

When Evansville neighbors became suspicious about the disappearance of Watson's 57-year-old mother, he said he thought she had married a wealthy Indianapolis real estate man and had gone to the Pacific Coast.

Evansville police questioned him and the next day the family packed and disappeared.

Just Hates Airplanes

ANN ARBOR (U. S. Police said Edward de Gross, drove his car up to a light plane at Washtenaw Airport, got out and smashed the windows of the plane. "I hate airplanes and I hate pilots," police quoted him as saying in explanation.

Hollywood's Greatest Moments

Swanson-Negri Rivalry Rocked Movieland

(Explosive feuds were part of the headline-making days in the golden era of Hollywood. The first lady of Hollywood describes the most devastating of them all in this fourth of five articles.)

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

ENS Motion Picture Editor

Undoubtedly, one of the most disastrous feuds of all film history is the parting of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis and the determination of the two boys (who can't get along in private life — neither can their wives) to go their way alone.

But it is far from the only battle which from time to time has disrupted studio routines and set the nerves of Hollywood a-tingle.

Perhaps the bitterest war other than the Martin and Lewis brawl was the one staged between Gloria Swanson and Pola Negri on the old Paramount lot back in the late '20s, which practically had a whole studio organization divided between the two queens.

Gloria got there first and there was not the slightest doubt in her own mind that she was the queen bee of the lot. Polish-born Pola, with much blarney of publicity trumpets, flatly refused to concede that Gloria was carrying the scepter.

I've heard it said that there isn't an actor or actress worth while who doesn't have a large quota of jealousy in his or her makeup. Acting is a highly competitive business — but Gloria and Pola took it out of the bounds of competition and into open warfare.

ARMY OF CATS

It started with the small army of studio cats that were purring and purred all over the studio lot. Gloria liked the cats. Pola despised them and ordered them banished.

"If one of these cats goes, so do I," threatened Queen Gloria and believe it or not she had a funky who made a count of the cats daily.

Pola used to call for champagne on the set and this Gloria that any actress needed a stimulant to jack up her talent.

Gloria has always favored a Spartan diet, shunned drink, and taken the greatest care of her beauty and health. But I don't believe she looks any younger today than Pola who is still a beautiful woman despite her champagne sipping.

Although Gloria was very serious about this vendetta, I've always suspected that Pola had her tongue-in-cheek about a lot of it and actually went out of her way to think up things that would annoy her rival. She was a terrific "dramatist" both on and off the screen.

MAN OF HER HEART

She sent for me when the man of her heart, Rudolph Valentino, died and begged me not to leave her. She was engaged to marry the Latin lover at the time of his death and her weeping and carrying on was worthy of a duse.

I knew that she felt bad, but cynic that I was, I never believed her grief was as intense as she had the world believing. It wasn't long until she had many admirers circling around her.

Across town from Paramount, in Hollywood, where Gloria and Pola were holding forth, was Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, a new company, which later was to be the stamping ground for some beautiful battles between its women stars. To list some of the major ones there were:

Joan Crawford vs. Norma Shearer. Joan Crawford vs. Jean Harlow. Mae Murray vs. director Erich von Stroheim and star John Gilbert.

The Crawford girl, whose penchant for knitting was equalled only by Madame Lafarge, clicked her needles ominously at every female that set foot on what she considered her territory, the MGM lot.

But Norma Shearer (wife of the studio genius Irving Thalberg) and Jean Harlow (the bombastic platinum blonde) were her favorite targets. Joan contended that, as boss' wife, Norma got the cream of the stories and Jean she Norma and Joan refused to be interviewed about Miss Crawford.

But not Joan. She aired her woes against them to the housewives — all to the delight of the writing boys and girls.

Only once did Norma blow her top and that was when both she and Joan, among other femmes, were co-starring in "The Women." Joan, with her eternally clicking knitting needles, was bothering Norma in a rehearsal — and Miss Shearer got George Cukor to order the Junior La-farge from the set!

Wow! Did Joan chatter to the press about that!

The element of comedy in these battles is completely missing from a feud which shocked Hollywood for many years, the complete estrangement between the beautiful actress sisters, Olivia de Havilland and Joan Fontaine.

Oddly enough, they rose to stardom at almost the same time, even to competing against one another for best actress honors in the Academy Awards. Joan won first in 1941 for "Suspicion" and Livvy won in 1946 for "To Each His Own."

TENSION AT DINNER

I'll never forget the tension that marked the academy dinner (it was a dinner then, not held in a theater) held in the Biltmore Bowl the year that blonde Joan won the coveted gold Oscar.

She had been nominated in "the best actress" category.

You could have heard a pin drop when the award went to Joan. The bets had been heavily in favor of Olivia. If Livvy was and was not unhappy to one knew it. She kissed her sister and was gracious and charming.

I remember that occasion very well because Wendell Wilkie, who later became a presidential nominee, was the speaker of the evening.

Although there was no explosion or show of annoyance at that fateful dinner I always felt that the feud between the sisters dated from that night.

aided with Joan and until last summer did not see her eldest daughter nor speak to her — while the father was on Olivia's side.

HUSBANDS AT ODDS

The husbands of the two girls at that time (William Dozier was married to Joan and Marcus Goodrich to Olivia) did not help matters. The men cordially disliked each other. Bill was very witty in his comments about Goodrich who always used the word "we" in speaking of Olivia's career.

Livvy is now married to charming Pierre Galante, a Paris newspaper and magazine editor, and has a beautiful little daughter, Pierre and Collier Young (now Joan's husband) are largely responsible for bringing the girls together again.

Joan saw Livvy in Paris on a recent trip there and time has seemed to greatly soften their feelings toward one another.

I saw Olivia in Paris last summer, had luncheon with her, and was introduced to Giselle, then 4 weeks old. Livvy is a completely happy woman these days.

Her film, "The Ambassador's Daughter," was a smash success. Joan, too, has had many film successes and Collier Young is very good for her.

Not all film fights, however, have been between personalities.

But They Approve of Dad Helping With Household Chores

Most Teenagers Think Mom's Place Is in the Home

By EUGENE GILBERT
President of the Gilbert Youth Research Co.

Modern teenagers uphold the old dictum that dad should make the living while mom stays home and makes the living worthwhile.

They tell us they'd like to see mother do most of the housework and have father concentrate on winning the bread.

Many even feel that a working mother jeopardizes a home's stability, although few fear the consequences of a father doing a certain amount of housework.

About 57 per cent answered "yes" to the question:

"Do you think it is well for the mother to work just to lift the family standard of living, or would it be better for everybody to get along in the old-fashioned way on money available so that the mother may stay home and attend to the children?"

On the other hand, the percentage of working mothers' offspring who thought their mothers should keep on working was 36 per cent. Circumstances evidently alter cases.

RECENT MARRIAGE

One circumstance is recent marriage. Three quarters of the teenagers felt it all right for a young woman to take a job when first married.

About half thought she might well keep her job for one to three years; 18 per cent said she should work for an indefinite period.

Getting back to housework for father, our nationwide survey showed that 47 per cent of the fathers do some housework, and that most of the youngsters interviewed thought the amount done was about right.

But not all of them. A 16-year-old boy, one of the 2 per cent whose fathers do most of the chores, exclaimed:

"Don't women want to do anything for themselves? It seems to me that they want their menfolk to do everything for them. What a life! I don't think I'll ever get married."

Here are some additional comments:

"When husbands do housework, their wives should go and help out in the office."—Arizona girl.

"A husband should help his wife in every way to make her happy."—a 19-year-old boy.

"Father should do all the work on Sunday."—Indiana girl.

"What is 'women's work?' Men can work in the house just as women can be judges or executives."—North Carolina boy.

As might be expected, more girls than boys favored increased housework for their fathers. Over 20 per cent of the girls thought dad should do more, but only 15 per cent of the boys.

Incidentally, none of the young people interviewed reported their fathers did all the housework while 29 per cent said dad did none at all.

Also, 67 per cent said their fathers carried their share of the load willingly; 4 per cent showed resentment.

SPENDING PLAN

What if mother does work — should father still exercise at least some control over the spending of her income? More than half answered yes, but about 37 per cent favored some other spending plan.

Of that group, 87 per cent figured that expenditures should be a joint father-mother operation, while 11 per cent figured each should be in charge of spending the money he or she earned.

The relative importance that young people place on the questions of father doing housework and mother working outside is reflected in their thoughts on the stability of the home.

A slight majority said they felt the home is more stable if father helps with the housework and 39 per cent said it didn't make much difference.

Only 5 per cent said they thought father's efforts to help mother hurt home stability.

But—and it's an important "but"—39 per cent said they felt the home is less stable with mother working outside.

Only 7 per cent thought mother's outside job helped keep the home more stable while 27 per cent thought it was the same either way.

'NO HELP AT ALL'

Perhaps a 17-year-old Massachusetts boy summed up the feelings of the 5 per cent who thought the home is less stable with dad helping mom.

Fathers, he said, are "no help at all. They only get in the way."

Shower Honors Mrs. John Collins

Mrs. Dee St. Dennis, Mrs. June Haire and Mrs. Eugene Haire were cohostesses in the Haire residence on James K boulevard Monday evening at a pink and blue shower honoring Mrs. John Collins.

Attending the shower were Mrs. Clare Kramp, Kathryn Kramp, Mrs. David Speer, Judy Bellows, Mrs. Vernon Haire, Eunice Collins, Mrs. Lyle Saum, Mrs. Marvin Addis, Mrs. Robert Haire, Mrs. David St. Dennis, Mrs. Elmer Bays, Mrs. Leamon Huff, Mrs. Edward Collins, Mrs. Pat Bellows, Mrs. Pete Compau, Mrs. Kenneth Benedict and Mrs. Evelyn Buchanan.

Breakfast Party Held

Members of the Junior Child Study Club attended a "come as you are" breakfast Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. Franklin Niggenman of Barrington road. Mrs. Leslie Ware assisted the hostess. Mrs. Howard Powers and Mrs. Don Robertson comprised the planning committee.

Honored at Shower

Mrs. Robert Overcashier was the honoree at a pink and blue shower hosted by Elaine McManus of Lake Orion Tuesday evening. Mrs. Thomas Pruente served as co-hostess to the 22 guests attending.

Limpid and soft chiffons in delf and checks are more sophisticated than florals, particularly in high necks and long sleeves.

The turning point in fashions—from bouffant and rigidly fitted—gives authority to new silhouettes in supple silks, crepe and chiffon. It takes self-knowledge to wear these extreme new fashions.

Bridegroom May Sing at Wedding

He Should Remain Behind the Scenes for Vocalizing

By EMILY POST

The mother of a bride-to-be writes me: "Our daughter is being married soon. For the past month our house has been very unpleasant because my daughter insists that the bridegroom sing at the wedding. My husband and I feel it would not be proper and are very much opposed to it."

"Their big argument is that it is their wedding and they should be allowed to do as they like. I have mentioned the bridegroom's singing to a few of my friends and they were shocked. We have all agreed to abide by your decision."

Answer: It is most unusual for the bridegroom to sing at his own wedding. However, if he would like to sing and is not too nervous to do so, I see no valid reason why he should not sing before the ceremony if he stands behind the scenes.

Needless to say, it would be questionable taste to sing in full view of the guests and utterly improper that he sing during any part of the service.

"Dear Mrs. Post: I am a young married woman, and neither my husband nor I smoke. Most of our friends do. Am I supposed to provide cigarettes for them when they come to our house, or is it all right to take for granted that they will smoke their own cigarettes since they all carry them?"

Answer: If you are giving a party you should certainly include cigarettes in your provisions. But if people merely stop in to see you, it is not necessary to proffer cigarettes since, as you say, all smokers carry their own.

"Dear Mrs. Post: When a dinner table is set with two or more forks, does one use the fork nearest the plate and work out, or is the fork farthest from the plate used first? Also, is it permissible to eat fried shrimp in the fingers?"

Answer: (1) The one farthest from the plate is used first. (2) No, it is not permissible to eat fried shrimp in the fingers.

Try These Respiration Exercises

Deep Breathing Improves Health

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

When we stop breathing we die. And how deeply we breathe has an effect on how vibrantly we live through the years. Splendid oxidation is important to health. It speeds up the elimination of waste products and leads to better nourishment of the tissues. Yet many people use less than half their lungs. They indulge in shallow inhalations. In order to breathe properly we must use the muscles of the diaphragm, abdomen and back. If we expand our diaphragm and abdomen, we obtain a depth of breathing which is impossible otherwise.

The practice of deep breathing daily is a great help to those who are nervous, underweight or anemic. First, try taking a deep breath — feeling the muscles of the diaphragm, abdomen and back expand.

Hold while you lift the ribs and expand the chest. Slowly exhale. At the end of the exhalation force every bit of air out of the lungs. Do this several times.

Here are a few deep breathing exercises for you.

1. Stand tall. Bend the elbows and clasp the hands behind the head. Do not allow the head to move forward. Stretch up toward the ceiling. Breathe in deeply as already described. Breathe in through the nose.
Hold your breath for a few moments and then exhale slowly through the mouth. Do this several times. Now do it several more times but exhale forcibly through the mouth. Shoot the air out of your lungs.

2. Breathe in deeply for five seconds. This should fill the lungs. Hold your breath for five seconds and then spin the air out through pursed lips just as slowly as you possibly can.

3. Lie on the floor on your back, bend your knees and place your feet flat on the floor. Breathe in deeply, feeling the muscles of your back push against the floor. Hold while you tap your ribs gently with your hands. This forces the air into the small air pockets.

Of course increased respiration is one of the wonderful benefits of exercise. When you indulge in sports you of necessity breathe deeply.

Tomorrow: "I Am a Mess; I Want to Get Rid of Flips, Increase Bust."

Do this deep breathing exercise: Breathe in deeply, feeling the muscles of your back push against the floor. Hold while you tap your ribs gently with your hands. This forces the air into the small air pockets.

Talking With Teenagers Calls for Tact, Patience

Parental Questions Immediately Place Youngsters on the Defensive

By RUTH MILLETT

"I just can't seem to talk to my 15-year-old daughter," a mother writes.

Lots of parents find it hard to stay on easy conversational terms with their adolescent children. If they ask questions, the kids feel their privacy is being invaded or that they aren't trusted.

If they discuss the adolescent's friends, the slightest hint of criticism may be resented.

If the parent tries to be helpful, the adolescent all too often feels he is being lectured.

So there is a special art or knack a parent has to learn in order to keep conversations between parent and adolescent friendly and free-flowing.

When your daughter comes home from a party, don't say brightly,

"Now tell me all about the party." Chances are that will only get you a gloomily, "There's nothing much to tell."

Asking a teenager to tell you "everything" about anything makes him shut up like a clam.

If you want to hear all about the party, ask one unimportant little question, and chances are a lot of information will follow.

If you want to know more about your daughter's friends, don't ask a lot of prying questions that indicate you are trying to find out if they are the "right sort." If you don't appear to be eager to disapprove, your child won't feel she is constantly having to protect her friends against your criticism.

When a teenager confides in you regarding something you don't approve of, don't jump down his throat. Hear the story out and then gently ask, "Don't you think it might have been better if you had done such and such?" You'll hear a lot more confidences if you can keep your reactions from putting your adolescent child on the defensive.

It takes tact and patience and understanding to keep the lines of communication open between a parent and a teenage son or daughter. But it can be done.

Never Put Off Thank-You Note

There is really no excuse for not writing a thank-you note to the person who sends you a gift or does you a favor. You weren't too busy to accept the gift or the favor.

Then don't be too busy to take a few minutes to express your appreciation.

White Shrine Hears Convention Reports

Mrs. Wayne Scott and Mrs. Samuel Smith reported on the highlights of the recent Supreme White Shrine Convention held in Detroit.

Mrs. Phillip Worth presented the Pontiac White Shrine with an American Flag at the Wednesday meeting held at Roosevelt Temple. Plans were completed for the annual card party May 22, at Roosevelt Temple.

Mrs. Winifred Vought was chairman honoring the May birthdays. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Arthur Ward, Mrs. Stanley McClellan and Mrs. Richard Skarritt.

Just What Is 'Washable'?

Manufacturers stress the importance of following laundering instructions, but all too often the rules and regulations are set down in vague terms difficult to comprehend.

For example, there are the terms "warm water" and "lukewarm water." This is fine, but how many women know the difference between the two?

"Wash in warm water" means up to 130 degrees. When the instruction advises washing by hand in lukewarm water, 105 degrees should be the maximum. If a garment is marked "completely washable" it may be laundered in hot water up to 160 degrees in a commercial laundry or home washer, with a soap or synthetic detergent and may be bleached, if necessary.

If it says "fully washable—don't bleach," the above instructions hold true except bleaching is taboo. "Dry clean" can mean doing the job at home with a commercial drycleaner or sending it to a dry cleaning establishment.

Job Partnership Tests Marriage

By ANNE HEYWOOD

It's true that you can tell a great deal about people from living with them, but it's also true that you can learn a great deal more by working with them.

Hubband- and -wife teams who want to start businesses together had better not forget that!

"I would say my father and mother knew each other about as well as it's possible for two people to know each other," Mary T. writes. "They've been married for 34 years, and quite happily — or so it seemed.

"Then, a few years ago, they went into the restaurant business. It was supposed to be a retirement project for Father.

"Mother pitched in, partly because they couldn't afford to hire enough people, and partly because, with all of us married and on our own, she had time on her hands.

HASN'T WORKED

"But the venture hasn't worked out at all. That is, the restaurant is successful, but Mother and Father are at each other's throats half the time.

"We're all so worried about it. What can we do?"

First of all, I doubt if this girl can do much, really. Parents are notoriously unwilling to take advice from their children.

But one thing is possible. If the restaurant is going successfully, perhaps her father could now afford to hire enough help so that her mother could get out of it for awhile.

Mary might urge her mother to come for a visit, which would at least give both her parents a breather.

If it really is as bad as it sounds, perhaps Mother ought not go back to the restaurant. She might look for another activity which would interest her and which she could do on her own.

MARRIAGE FAILURE

This would certainly be better than having the marriage fail!

This couple has already made the mistake of entering a business together without a well-defined plan. For them, the trouble is already stewing, and it will be hard to undo it.

But for other husbands and wives, contemplating a joint business, here are some steps to take to prevent a sad ending:

First, both of you should have good vocational training before you begin. This way, you'll each know your own aptitudes as well as what each of you should avoid.

Second, divide the chores into two well-defined categories, assigning to Mom what is along the lines of her abilities and to Pop what he does well.

TWO TERRITORIES

Be meticulous about not stepping into the other partner's territory. This way, you'll have a successful project and keep your happy marriage.

The Auxiliary to Pontiac General Hospital entertained employees at the annual Florence Nightingale Tea Wednesday at the hospital. Photographed as they were served by Mrs. P. Eugene Miller, past president of the

Singer to Tackle Serious Role in First Movie

Pretty, Perky Peggy Goes Dramatic

By LEE NELSER

HOLLYWOOD (INS) — Cute, red-haired Peggy King, who has played straight woman for Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Milton Berle and George Gobel, is about to rate a shudder instead of a laugh.

"I've always wanted to do a little straight acting for a change," Peggy said with a pleased grin. "Now I have the chance to, really do it up right in a film called 'Zero Hour'."

The little TV singer, who got her start by supplying up a tomato soup commercial on television two years ago, will play a heroic airline stewardess who surmounts 50 passengers and crew members through a siege of mass pneumonia poisoning and a hair-raising rock and roll landing.

This will be Peggy's debut as a movie actress.

"When I was under contract to the network," she declared, "I never had a chance to do a film, or even an outside TV show. Now that I'm free-lancing, I can do anything I want."

Peggy spent two years on the Gobel show, where she doubled as singer, sidekick and "wife" to "Lonesome George."

COMFORTABLE SPOT

"It was a comfortable spot," she admitted, "and I enjoyed every minute of it. But I thought it was time to get out and do something else. I had to turn down about nine picture offers because of the TV tie-up."

Peggy, however, is burned up over the rumors that have been circulated about her quitting the Gobel show.

"I've been very unhappy and upset about the things people have been saying," she confessed. "Somebody is always asking me, 'Did you have a fight with George?' or 'Did he have a fight with you?'"

"The truth is, George wouldn't fight with anybody, no matter what happened. He just isn't that kind. I felt that we were getting too much like Burns and Allen and that pretty soon we'd be turning into the Cherry sisters. I decided I wanted to work on my own."

Since Peggy quit NBC she has appeared in a spectacular, "Jack and the Beanstalk," the Perry Como Show, the Steve Allen Show, the Bob Hope Show and the Ray Bolger Show; has done a stint at the Coconut Grove, and has cut a new album for Columbia records. "My next job is Las Vegas,"

Peggy glowed. "In one engagement there, I can make as much as I made in a whole season on the Gobel show!"

Barbara's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Boncher of Rochester and Donald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Morrissey of Pontiac Lake road.

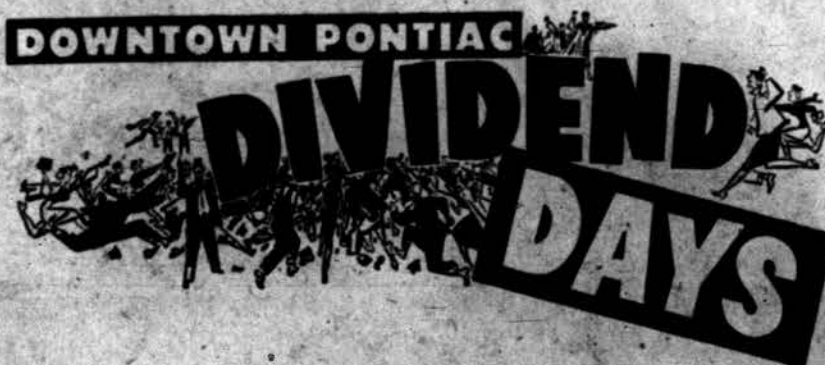

Guests at the recent shower were Mrs. Boncher, Mrs. Morrissey, Mrs. Gilbert Luebke, Mrs. Kay Henderson, Mrs. John Mick, Mrs. Frank Zwicker, Mrs. Wilbur Brown. From out-of-town Mrs. Archie York of Birmingham. Mrs. Don Starr of Hazel Park, Mrs. Al Cox of Lake Orion and Mrs. Lee Boncher and Patricia Boncher of Holly attended.

Teen Idol - 'James Dean of France'

PARIS (NEA) — They have a new name these days for Francoise Sagan, the 21-year-old French literary sensation. They're calling her the James Dean of France.

A few weeks ago, they lifted her like a broken doll from her sports car after it had somersaulted off a broad highway and pinned her beneath the wreckage. James Dean had met his death in much the same way. But miraculously, Francoise recovered.

Like Hollywood's late James Dean, Francoise is an idol of the teenage generation in her own country. Like Jimmy, she belongs to what the French call "sacred monsters." And like Jimmy, her passion for speed is relentless.

Her sudden success was something new to France, where usually writers can hope for recognition only when they have reached old age.

Her first book, "Bonjour Tristesse" (Hello Sadness), which she wrote in less than a month, became a worldwide best seller. It was followed by "A Certain Smile." Both were translated into 20 languages and earned over $450,000; American editions have reached a million copies.

With her first check, Francoise bought a secondhand Jaguar racing car. As royalties grew, so did her stable of cars and playthings. She now has five cars (including a conventional American Buick and a souped-up Thunderbird) plus a speedboat, a house overlooking the Mediterranean and a Paris apartment.

LIKE FAST DRIVING

"I like driving fast because I feel at one with the car," she once explained.

Despite success, she still has her simplicity and shyness. But she admits she has had enough of mad parties, whisky and jam sessions. Now she says:

"I am finished with getting up in the evening and going to bed at breakfast time. Most people do the opposite. There must be something to the idea."

Success also has taught her there are other clothes for a girl besides sweaters and pleated skirts, but she still disdains mink and diamonds. And while there are numerous young men among her host of new friends, she seems to disdain romance, too.

"I cannot stay in love more than three months," she says. "Then I get bored."

She has had many other things to say, too (the French call them "Saganisms") such as:

"In America and England they cannot understand that you can be a good person and yet have no fixed morals."

"The love I write about is not sinful."

"A girl of 15 is a woman. Every little girl knows about love. It is only her capacity to suffer because of it that increases."

If Francoise is suffering, she did not show it after her recovery from the crash which at first put her life in the balance.

that got her expelled from two convent schools in her younger days.

In one respect, however, she is slowing down. Recently she rented Christian Dior's converted mill-house 30 miles out of Paris. There she has begun a new book. Unlike her first two, she says it will take two years to finish. Whether the feminine James Dean of France will slow down on the open road, however, is another question.

Forced by Hungry Pig

NEW YORK (U)—Overeating has caused the first major cast replacement in Broadway's musical "L'il Abner."

Victim of the shift was the live pig that appears in two scenes. The porker weighed 20 pounds when rehearsals began last winter, now tilts the scale at over 200.

Nevada had the highest accidental death rate of the states in 1953 with 157.8 per 100,000 population. By comparison New Jersey ranked as the lowest with a 41.2 ratio.

About three of four private auto-wholly or in part in the earning mobiles in the U. S. are used of a living.

Bothersome Dust Gives Much of World's Beauty

WASHINGTON — Dust plagues housewives and costs industry millions of dollars every year, but is still a valuable part of the atmosphere.

Without dust little rain or snow would fall, and much of the world's color would disappear, says the National Geographic Society. Sky and lake would lose a great deal of their blue; fiery sunsets would not be possible. And rainbows would vanish with the rain.

Although smokestacks, incinerators, automobiles, locomotives, and atomic tests throw vast quantities of soot and other products into the air, the presence of dust does not require man's inventions. Eve found it waiting in the Garden of Eden.

Dust is everywhere in the air. Particles of soil and rock, worn off by the wind, join plant pollen and spores, dried sea spray, and bits of organic material in the sky. Much of this material is invisible, even under a high-powered microscope. Motes in a sunbeam falling into a darkened room are giants of their race.

PRODUCES RAIN

Water has an affinity for tiny bits of salt, sulphur compounds, and other materials in the atmosphere. When there is sufficient moisture in the air, it gathers into droplets around the particles, producing fog, clouds, and, eventually rain or snow.

For years, scientists believed dust particles essential to rain production. It has been proved recently, however, that drops can form without dust nuclei under certain unusual conditions.

The blue sky owes its color to dust and vapor molecules, which scatter the sunlight. The blue end of the spectrum is spread across the heavens, where it is reflected in the water below.

SUNSET DUST

The glories of sunset and sunrise are dust-born. When the sun is low on the horizon, its light slants through a greater portion of dust-laden air than when it is overhead. Air-borne particles break up the light rays, scattering the blue and green. Red-orange rays pass through to touch clouds and buildings with glowing rose and scarlet.

Great volcanic eruptions may change sunsets everywhere. The explosion of Krakatau in 1883 threw so much fine dust into the atmosphere that two years of spectacular sunsets followed.

Eruptions can even change the weather. Dust from the Tambora volcano on Sumbawa Island east of Java is believed to have reflected and absorbed so much of the sun's heat that it made 1816 a cold year around the globe. It was known as "the year without a summer" and "eighteen-hundred-and-froze-to-death."

Prince Philip's 1st Glider Flight Called 'Terrific'

NYMPHFIELD, England (U)—Prince Philip, air-minded husband of Queen Elizabeth II, took his first glider flight here today. He said it was terrific.

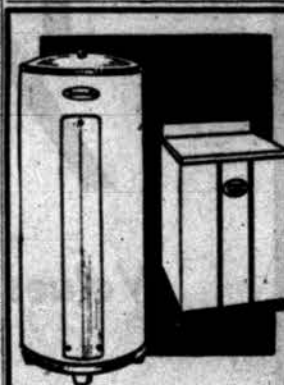

The Bristol Gliding Club manager, Peter Collier, took him up for a nine-minute glide in gusty weather. Philip sat in the back seat, but handled the controls for about five minutes.

Philip is a qualified airplane pilot. He has aroused a lot of criticism by flying his own plane.

Some circles complain that, as a member of the royal family, he takes too many unnecessary personal risks. He is criticized also for risking injury by playing polo.

Package Deal Modernizes

To make it more convenient for householders to bring old bathrooms in step with the times, contractors are offering a package modernization deal. Plumbing contractors will assume the responsibility for other crafts involved in the work. Thus it is not necessary for the owner to deal separately with electricians, carpenters, decorators, and other tradesmen.

Millionaire Gives Up Life of Wealth to Aid Haitians

DESCHAPPELLES, Haiti (U—) Here in the broad Artibonite Valley an American millionaire works day and night to bring health and cleanliness to thousands of poverty-stricken Haitians.

William Larimer Mellon Jr., a tall, youthful man with prematurely white hair at 47, is doing what he wants to do. Out of his life forever are round-the-world cruises and polo ponies.

Scion of the Pittsburgh Mellons and great nephew of old Andrew Mellon at 37 had "retired" to Arizona after working in the family bank and Gulf Oil.

One day he read an article on the work of Dr. Albert Schweitzer in the African jungle.

From that moment, a new horizon opened for Mellon. He went back to school to start long preparation for the new days ahead.

Seven years later, he walked out of Tulane University as a doctor.

With his wife, he visited Haiti in 1952 to get material for his doctor's dissertation on "tropical ulcers."

He found incredible poverty, helplessness and physical miseries among the densely populated rural districts.

He built, with Haitian labor, a sprawling, one-story structure of poured concrete, and named it the Albert Schweitzer Memorial Hospital.

It cost him 1½ million dollars. Cyclone and earthquake proof, Mellon's modern air-conditioned hospital has three operating rooms, X-ray facilities, a pathology laboratory and a morgue. Annual upkeep runs to about $200,000.

Mellon also acquired a 100-acre farm which makes the hospital virtually self-sufficient. Besides vegetables, corn and rice, the farm produces beef cattle, goats, chickens, turkeys and pigeons. There are also citrus fruits and bananas. Powdered milk comes from the United States.

Thus the Mellons started a great new adventure, overcoming discouragements and even politics and jealousy that at times harassed their progress.

Today, Mellon's hospital is a beacon of hope for the tens of thousands of Haitians who have sought medical aid. In the year since the 75-bed hospital was opened.

Four American doctors, two laboratory technicians and four nurses, in addition to a Haitian dentist and other trained native personnel, assist Dr. Mellon. He acts as director but still does most of the diagnoses — and there's never any shortage of patients.

Mrs. Mellon is a medical technician and presides at the reception desk. Ian, Michael and Rosanne, children of Mrs. Mellon's first marriage, collect the two Haitian gourdies — about 40 cents — registration fee and advise patients that only one gourdie will be required for the next visits.

Out-patients can buy medicine at cost.

Dr. Mellon asks payment for services — just as the patients

"satisfy their pride in themselves" — even if a patient pays with a mango. They want everything from medical attention to advice from Dr. and Mrs. Mellon on domestic troubles and education.

In the Artibonite Valley, Haitians for years have been prey to malaria, yaws, tuberculosis, venereal disease and shocking malnutrition. It has not been unusual for thousands of Haitians to die annually of starvation.

Dr. Mellon wants the valley people to feel that the hospital is theirs — one reason he charges for services. He hopes one day the Haitians can take over. In the meantime the hospital is "a place where American doctors can share their techniques with their Haitian colleagues."

The Mellons believe there will always be a place "for service to mankind and to God," and they'll move on if the Haitians ever take over this hospital. They think of such places as the headwaters of the Amazon River.

Mrs. Mellon as Gwen Grant Rawson went to Arizona to get a divorce. Mellon met her there and they married in 1946.

Blue-eyed and pretty, she took life on Mellon's two huge ranches in easy stride. She had a handsome new home and a swimming pool.

But when Mellon made up his mind to give up all of that, she never hesitated to encourage him and follow him wherever he wanted to go.

The recent appointment of Pontiac dentist J. K. Schachern to a 12-man advisory committee on athletics at the University of Detroit was another silent footstep in what is often termed "big time athletics."

It wasn't Dr. Schachern's appointment, but the creation of the board that has more to it than meets the eye.

The man behind the U. of D. athletic picture now is the school's vice-president John Mulroy, an enthusiastic young man who has taken a more realistic approach from an attitude which came near to being a myth.

"We have been called starry-eyed dreamers, myth-makers and other disdainful things," said Mulroy, "but I think the dreamers are those who expect an athletic program to be built overnight."

Mulroy's "five-year" plan began a year ago. He figures it has and will continue to grow. He has selected 12 men to help him with community relations.

DORAIS FOUNDATION BEHIND IT ALL

The key to Mulroy's plans is the Dorais Foundation which contributes something like $32,000 annually to the scholarship fund.

In the past the extent of the number of full time scholarships for football was 12. Today the number has reached 32. This means that more than $80,000 will be expended in football annually, and under Mulroy's "five-year" period nearly half a million dollars.

What does this mean to U. of D. football? "If what they say about having the horses is true, then I am confident we will get positive correlation with what we put into the program," said Mulroy.

"With all the added resources we have put into our athletic program, we have not nor do we intend to relax our scholarship requirements," he continued, "and every boy given a scholarship must be as good a scholar as he is an athlete."

RECRUITING DONE SCIENTIFICALLY

Mulroy pointed to the fact, that several outstanding names in college football today were turned away for failing to meet scholastic requirements. He also pointed out that for the first time since World War II, not one member of the present freshman squad was lost through grades at mid-term.

Much of the success depends on what Mulroy called "scientific recruiting." In the past, the process of recruiting was haphazard and disorganized. It was never completed until late in the summer, long after the best of the crop was taken.

Last season's freshman team, the first under the Dorais fund, was considered the best in many years. Next season's recruiting has already been completed, the earliest in history, with outside-Michigan names from Massachusetts, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, etc., among the prospects.

It will be interesting to watch Mulroy's "five-year" plan.

Split Decision for Bobby Boyd

CHICAGO (AP)—Bobby Boyd, who was bombed from the No. 2 midweight ranking by Joey Giardello eight months ago, still has a long way to go in his attempt to gain top contention.

The lanky, 23-year-old Chicagoan, was not too impressive last night in winning his third straight fight since the Giardello incident with a split 10-round decision over shiftier Willie Vaughn.

The Chicago Stadium bout, which was nationally televised and broadcast, drew only 1,423 fans at ringside and a net gate of $1,220.

Boyd, whose 43 victories in 32 bouts includes 22 knockouts, displayed little of the punching power that took him to the top before Giardello pulverized him in five rounds at Cleveland. And if Vaughn had any steam in his punches, Boyd may have been in trouble.

Yankee Outfielder Involved in Brawl

NEW YORK (INS)—New York Yankee rightfielder Hank Bauer was accused today of slugging a man in a pre-dawn altercation in a swank New York night club.

But he quickly denied the charge through a Yankee spokesman. "I didn't hit anybody," the ballplayer was quoted as saying. The alleged incident occurred in the Copacabana at 2:35 a.m. Bauer was helping infielder Billy Martin celebrate his 29th birthday with triple crown winner Mickey Mantle, catcher Yogi Berra and pitcher Whitey Ford and their wives.

Tighe Worried Over Pitching as Tigers Lose

Boston Pounds Out 16 Hits in Winning 11-8 Slugfest

BOSTON (AP)—"If our pitching blows up here, we're sunk," said Detroit manager Jack Tighe as the Tigers came into Boston Tuesday for a three game series.

In two games his club has made him look like an excellent prophet. Duke Maas tamed the Red Sox in brilliant 2-0 fashion Tuesday. Yesterday Frank Lary and four successors were bumped and the Tigers lost, 11-8.

For Lary it was another chapter in a growing book of spring failures—duplication almost page by page his early troubles last season. He was charged with his fourth loss in six decisions and yielded half of Boston's 16 hits before bowing out under fire in the fifth inning.

Last season Lary won 21 games, 17 of them after July 1. His record for April, May and June was 4-10. In his last five starts this spring he has finished only once and won only once—against Baltimore May 5.

On April 26 at Cleveland he was struck on the knee by a line drive off the bat of Vic Wertz in the fourth inning. Maas finished up the shutout and got the victory.

In his next start, May 1 against the Yankees, Lary was hit again—this time on the hip by a Gil McDougald liner in the fourth. He had given up six hits and was charged with the loss.

After beating Baltimore Lary was shelled again, 8-5 by Washington before losing yesterday. The Tigers got more than their share of hits against the Red Sox, but the Detroit pitching collapse kept Boston in the lead from the fifth inning on.

Ray Boone put the Tigers in front with a first inning homer and they caught up again with two runs in the third after Boston scored three in the second. Boston routed Lary with three more in the fifth. Don Lee, working in relief for the first time, walked one man and then retired the next one in finishing out the fifth.

Lee was lifted for a pinch hitter in the sixth and was followed by Steve Gromek who was pounded for four hits and four runs in a single inning. Lou Sleater opened the seventh on the mound for Detroit but was promptly yanked after giving up singles to the first two batters. Paul Foytack finished up with two hits, two walks, two strikeouts but no runs in the last two innings.

Jim Bunning, elevated from the bullpen after several excellent relief performances, drew today's starting assignment against Dave Sisler.

DETROIT (AP)—Reno Bertola of the Detroit Tigers held the American League batting lead today by a 10-point margin.

The 22-year-old Italian-born infielder got two hits in three at-bats in yesterday's game against the Boston Red Sox, lifting his average to .383. He edged out Kansas City's Vic Power who went hitless against the New York Yankees and dropped his mark to .383.

Bertola, a .382 batter in 22 games for Detroit last season, has only a lifetime mark of .386 in 115 games before the current season. He has appeared in 25 games this season.

The Windsor (Ont.) College student was signed as a bonus player Aug. 31, 1953. In his first full year the following season he batted .162 in 54 games. In 1955, Bertola hit .205 in 38 games. He was shipped to Charleston in the American Assn. last year and beat out Jim Fanning for the Tigers' regular third base job early in the current season.

Iron Liege Top-Rated in Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP)—Young Willie Hartack and old Jim Fitzsimmons two of the leading characters in the cast for Saturday's $100,000-added Preakness, tried today to dispel a couple of growing impressions about their horses.

Hartack, vigorous and outspoken at 25, brushed aside a suggestion that Calumet's Iron Liege may be maturing into a better colt than stablemate Gen. Duke.

"But he's still the best horse in this race," he said of the thoroughbred which carried him to victory in the Kentucky Derby and will be under him again Saturday.

Fitzsimmons, stooped, gentle, but alert despite his 82 years, begged to differ with another notion which has been budding during preliminaries to the Preakness, a notion that Bold Ruler is a moody customer.

The idea spread after the Wheatley Stable star finished fourth as the 65 Derby favorite and jockey Eddie Arcaro described him as a "typical Nasrullah (sire of Bold Ruler and 1955 Preakness winner Nashua) when it comes to temperament."

"He's not really moody," said Fitzsimmons. "It's just that he doesn't like anybody to fool around with his mouth."

Mr. Fitz said Bold Ruler suffered a severe injury to his tongue as a 2-year-old.

"He must have bitten it or something," suggested Bart Sweeney, the Wheatley foreman.

"We're not sure exactly how it happened," said Fitzsimmons.

"But whatever it was, it hurt him pretty bad for a while. He's all over it now, but he still doesn't like to be pulled too sharply. When you do that, he bears to the outside to get away from you."

Fitzsimmons pronounced Bold Ruler "ready enough" for the Preakness.

But he quickly denied the charge through a Yankee spokesman.

"I didn't hit anybody," the ballplayer was quoted as saying.

The alleged incident occurred in the Copacabana at 2:35 a.m.

Bauer was helping infielder Billy Martin celebrate his 29th birthday with triple crown winner Mickey Mantle, catcher Yogi Berra and pitcher Whitey Ford and their wives.

By Al Kaline Day I Remember Most

(One in a series of articles by Detroit Tiger players written especially for The Associated Press and the Press)

DETROIT (AP)—The day I hit three home runs against Kansas City on April 17, 1955, is the most memorable day in my baseball career.

I have had many thrills in the short time I have been with the Detroit Tigers, but I think that day against Kansas City really started me off to my best season so far. I had hit only four home runs during the 1954 season, my first full one with the club.

I got three against the A's and in the first week or so of the season I had surpassed my 1954 total. I was stronger and heavier and I found out then that I could hit a pretty long ball.

It was a big thrill, too, playing in the all-star game in Milwaukee later that year. I hope there will be many more seasons with the Tigers and many more thrills.

Michigan Leads Hitting Department

Iowa Holds Lead in Big 10 Race

CHICAGO (AP)—Michigan is finding out it takes more than hitting to win the Big Ten baseball pennant.

The Wolverines lead the league in batting with .283, according to official conference statistics released today, but are third in standings with 5-3. Michigan's sluggers have collected 82 hits, 25 more than any other club, good for 136 total bases.

The Wolverines lead the league in batting with .283, according to official conference statistics released today, but are third in standings with 5-3. Michigan's sluggers have collected 82 hits, 25 more than any other club, good for 136 total bases.

Both Tippery and Steve Boros of Michigan have 13 hits, high in the circuit; Boros is runnerup in total bases with 22.

Boros also leads in runs batted in with 9, and Tippery shares second place with Michigan State's Frank Palamara, a .320 hitter, with 8 RBIs.

Sharing home run production, each with three, are Tippery, John Hermstein of Michigan and Jerry Thomas of Minnesota.

Iowa, which last week took three games from defending Big Ten and NCAA champion Minnesota, has taken over the lead with 6-1. The Hawkeyes are second in team batting with .378 but have the league's No. 1 pitcher, Don Dobson. He has a 4-0 record, yielding only 19 hits and 4 earned runs in 25 innings.

Four pitchers have 2-0 marks: Ron Nischwitz, Ohio State; Tom Scheurman, Northwestern; Glenn Giardin, Michigan, and Jim Rueteck, Ohio State.

The schedule of single games tomorrow sends Wisconsin (3-4) to Northwestern (3-2), Illinois (3-2) to Indiana (1-7), Purdue (3-2) to Ohio State (4-2), Iowa (5-1) to Michigan State (3-4) and Minnesota (4-3) to Michigan (5-3).

Birmingham's impressive track victory over highly-rated East Detroit, a 4-3 tennis triumph for Pontiac and Walled Lake's 2-0 baseball win over Waterford headed a well balanced area sports card yesterday.

Clarkston won a dual meet and Orchard Lake St. Mary finished 2nd in a triangular in other track action. Cranbrook won in baseball but bowed in tennis, while Mt. Clemens and Southfield were other baseball victors.

A sweep of nine 1sts and four 2nds gave Birmingham a 20-point victory by the score of 62½ to 46½. Pat Berry tied the school and field record with a 10.2 time in the 100 and also won the 220 to lead the Maples.

Other BHS sparkplugs were Chuck Gibson and Dick Boyd with their best performances of the season in the shot put and 800 respectively. Veteran Gary Ballman topped East Detroit by winning both hurdle races. He tied the low hurdle mark in 13 seconds.

Clarkston's track forces had little trouble with the South Central champion Oxford contingent compiling a total of 80 1-6 points to 28 5-6. George Lang led all the scorers with 13½ points by winning the 100 and 220 and tying with runnerup Jim Jensen for 2nd in the broad jump. Jensen had 12½ points with his 440 victory and a tie for 1st in the high jump. Both were on winning relay teams. Barnes topped Oxford with nine points. The Wolves have a 4-4 record.

A sweep of the shot put and 1sts for Chet Wajda and Pete Madelians helped Orchard Lake St. Mary to a 2nd place finish as St. Joseph of Detroit triumphed 71½ to 59½. Notre Dame had the other ½ point.

The Cranbrook baseballers had to overcome a 6-0 deficit in whipping Dearborn 11-7 for their 5th win against five setbacks. The Cranes clinched the verdict with a four-run 5th. The tilt was marred by 13 errors, four by Cranbrook 3rd sacker John Studebaker in the 2nd when Dearborn scored five times.

In tennis, Hamtramck romped to a 4-1 verdict to end a six-match Crane win streak. A double triumph for Fred Fechtelmeier and Bob Schultz accounted for the only point for the losers who are now 3-3.

Mt. Clemens put together three hits and a walk for four runs in the 5th to hand Birmingham its 2nd EML defeat in four games, 5-2. Jack Smoot homered for Mt. Clemens. Arnie Islette stole home for one of the Maple markers.

Southfield continued its drive for the Inter-Lakes crown by nipping Farmington 3-1 with two unearned runs in the 5th. Losing pitcher Roy Temple allowed only one hit.

Average Falls 99 Points Williams' Temper Soars as Batting Mark Drops

BOSTON (INS) — Boston Red Sox slugger Ted Williams' temper is soaring after a 99-point drop in his batting average in a week.

Cooled off at the plate after one of his greatest starts, Williams blew his top in the clubhouse yesterday after getting only one hit in four times at bat in an 11-5 victory over Detroit.

Williams took out his anger on his pet choice — Boston baseball writers.

"If Yawkey and Cronin had any guts they would bar all you guys," a Herald writer quoted the big slugger as saying.

The writers were talking with rookie catcher Heywood Sullivan optioned to Miami of the International League, when Williams passed them.

"Watch out what you say to those guys, Sully," Williams said. "They'll twist it around somehow and make you look bad."

The feud between Williams and the majority of Boston writers is an old one. He refuses to speak in the presence of most and has been getting the "silent" treatment from many newsmen in return.

Since belting three homers in one game in Chicago last week, Williams has been virtually silenced in six games.

In 23 official trips to the plate, he has managed to collect only a double and two singles while watching his average drop from a lofty .474 to .375—fourth among American League batsmen.

Ted dropped below the .400 mark Tuesday when he failed to get the ball out of the infield in four appearances against the Tigers' Duke Maas. Except for one day, it marked the first time

ANN ARBOR (INS) — Al Renfrew, hockey coach at the University of North Dakota, was named hockey coach at the University of Michigan last night.

He succeeds Vic Heyliger who quit after the 1956-57 season to enter the restaurant business at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Renfrew is a 1949 graduate of Michigan. He previously coached at Michigan Tech. All three schools are members of the Western Intercollegiate Hockey League.

Renfrew's team finished third in the WIHL race this year behind Colorado College and Michigan.

Michigan, under Heyliger, competed in all ten NCAA tournaments, winning six.

Renfrew is Heyliger's brother-in-law.

Junior '9' Managers Will Meet Tonight

Managers of city Junior League baseball teams will hold an organizational meeting tonight at the Pontiac Parks and Recreation Department office in City Hall.

Class F, Midget and Widge managers are scheduled to meet at 7 o'clock, while Class E and D managers convene at 7:45.

The weekly spring training workouts for all boys under 18 years of age will resume Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon at the Washington Junior High and Jaycee Park diamonds.

Rain forced cancellation of last Saturday's drills. The spring training program concludes June 8.

Ted Put on Report

BOSTON (INS) — Boston Red Sox slugger Ted Williams was on report today to American League headquarters for throwing his bat in yesterday's game at Fenway park.

The temperamental star flipped his bat toward the Red Sox dugout after he fouled out in the first inning of the game with Detroit.

Umpire Charlie Berry filed the report against Ted.

Patterson Breaks With IBC

NEW YORK (INS) — Heavyweight boxing champion Floyd Patterson will come out of mothballs to make his first title defense this summer without the blessings of the International Boxing Club.

Cus D'Amato, Patterson's manager, confirmed his split with the IBC yesterday and told a news conference that the 22-year-old champion probably will defend his crown against Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson in "a New York ball park" sometime in July.

D'Amato said the proposed July bout would be only the first of several this year for Patterson, who hasn't defended since he knocked out Archie Moore in the fifth round for the championship last Nov. 30.

If Jackson's manager is unwilling to shake off IBC ties, D'Amato said he will "go down the list of ranking heavyweights until I find an opponent."

DEATH CAR — This is the wreckage of the racer in which Keith Andrews, 36, of Colorado Springs, was killed yesterday in a practice run for the 500-mile Memorial Day race. His racer smashed into a concrete wall. He was the first to die at the track since Bill Vukovich was killed in the 1955 race.

Lence formerly operated the Eastern Parkway Arena in Brooklyn and Hurley is a long-time manager and promoter who frequently has backed the IBC himself.

D'Amato threatened the IBC with court action "if it tries to obstruct us." D'Amato said his break with the IBC, which already is awaiting a federal court decree on charges that it is a monopoly, is "for the good of boxing."

Patterson's manager said a television package for the projected July fight has been offered to all major networks but that "there is no deal yet." A $200,000 price tag reportedly has been placed on rights to Patterson's first defense.

D'Amato said he wants to "help independent promoters get back on their feet" and to stimulate "more competition among the networks" for the rights to major fights. He added he is not interested in working with "one-shot" promoters but only with those who will turn their profits back into boxing.

"Patterson is ready to fight anybody in the world," said D'Amato. "If somebody for some reason doesn't want to face him, he'll forfeit his chance and we'll go down the list until we find somebody willing. After this defense, we'll go to other independent promoters for more challenges."

Lake Orion Oakland 'B' Track Champs

The Lake Orion track team had more awards to add to its rapidly growing trophy case today after winning the Oakland B championship under the lights at Fitzgerald.

Five 1sts and a total of 43 1/2 points produced the Dragon triumph in the closely contested seven-team battle last night.

The big win made Orion a strong contender for state honors at Ann Arbor Saturday. The locals won the Algonquin regional last week.

Roseville won out in a battle for 2nd in the Oakland B race over host Fitzgerald with 37 3/5 to 35 1/4. Troy had 31 9/10, Avondale 25 1/10, Clawson 20 3/10 and Madison 13 1/10.

The final outcome was never decided until the final event of the night in which the Green and White went all out to take the 880 relay title to match an earlier medley victory.

Dragon Jim Drake led the individuals by winning the 100 and pole vault and placing 2nd in the broad jump. Dick Mach had the other LOHS 1st in the 880.

Jim Neph's runnerup showing in the 100, No. 2 finish for John Avondale was the only other school with two 1st places. Miller Dick Hutchinson, Coach Dick Bye's top candidate for state honors, won that event in 4:15.4 and Bill Gerber took the 220.

Isalah Harris had the other Roseville 1st win a high jump of five feet, eight inches. Other victors were Les Kubalak of Fitzgerald in the broad jump and Paul DeFauw of Troy in the 440.

Driver Killed in '500' Track Practice Race

INDIANAPOLIS (INS)—Keith Andrews, 36-year-old Colorado Springs, Colo., driver, was killed at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway yesterday when his car hit the northwest retaining wall.

The racer crashed with such force that it crushed his body between the fuel tank and the cowl of the car.

He was driving the No. 41 Farina special, owned by Italy's Nino Farina, who had two previous spins in the new car before Andrews' fatal crash.

Shooting Mark CHICAGO—Basketball teams in the Big 10 conference in the 1956-57 season averaged 38.9 per cent success in their field goal attempts, a mark somewhat higher than those recorded in other seasons.

Wings Acquire Seattle Center

SEATTLE (INS)—The Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League have acquired Guyle Fielder from the Seattle Americans in the Western Hockey League.

The Seattle center was named most valuable player in the league last season and was named to the WHL all-star team. He scored 122 points on 33 goals and 89 assists.

Terms of the sale were not revealed. Keith Allen, Seattle general manager, said yesterday both players and cash were involved in the deal. The agreement also provided that Fielder return to Seattle if sent back to minor league hockey.

LANSING — Michigan State has won the Big 10 cross country title five times in six years.

CINCINNATI—The Redlegs' first spring training camp was at Mobile, Alabama in 1955.

FOUL IN GRANDSTAND — Kansas City catcher Hal Smith and a fan both go after a foul ball off the bat of New York Yankee Bobby Richardson in the game at Yankee Stadium yesterday.

Smith's glove and arm land in the face of the cigar smoking fan who also makes a grab for the ball. Neither got the ball. The fan lost his hat and sun glasses but held on tight to his cigar.

All Major League Teams Down to 25-Player Limit

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
All of the major league baseball clubs were down to the 25-player limit today but it took some scrambling by nine of them to reach the required figure by midnight last night.

With only hours remaining the nine teams began disposing of their expendables through trades, sales, options and outright releases.

Some of the clubs, however, still carried more than the 25 because under the rules a team is permitted to carry an ex-serviceman for one year without affecting the player limit. Johnny Podres, ace of the Dodgers' mound staff, falls in this category. So does Frank Bolling of Detroit, whose service status expires May 28.

Here's how the clubs reached the limit yesterday:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Brooklyn — Sold pitcher Karl Spooner to Macon, Ga., of South Atlantic League.

New York — Optioned southpaw Pete Burnside to Minneapolis farm club in American Assn.

Milwaukee — Sent outfielder Chet Covington and pitcher Bob Trowbridge to their Wichita farm in the American Assn. on option.

Cincinnati — Take infielder Rocky Bridges off active list and asked waivers on him. Waiver expires Monday.

St. Louis — Optioned outfielder Jim King to Omaha in American Assn.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Washington — Purchased outfielder Bob Usher from Cleveland. Then sold outfielder Dick Tottlebach and pitcher Dick Brodowski to Indians' farm at San Diego in Pacific Coast League and optioned outfielder Neil Chrissy to Indianapolis and pitcher Garland Shifflet to Charlotte.

New York — Optioned infielder-outfielder Woody Held to their Denver farm in American Assn.

Boston — Optioned catcher Heywood Sullivan to Miami of International League.

Cleveland — Sent infielders Billy Harrell and Preston Ward to San Diego farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

Courtney Hits 4:13 in 1st Try at Mile

BOSTON (AP) — Olympic 800-meter champion Tom Courtney was a little disappointed today after winning the mile on his first competitive try with a respectable 4:13 clocking.

"I thought I could break 4:10, but I don't know very much about running the mile yet," the Army private said last night after he breezed to an easy victory over five other entries.

The race was held in conjunction with the Catholic Youth Organization track meet at White Stadium.

Franchise Recalled

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — The franchise of the Bradford, Pa. Blue Sox has been recalled by the class D New York-Pennsylvania Baseball League.

The action was announced last night by league President Vince McNamara, who said the league would operate the club temporarily starting today.

1,000 Games

CINCINNATI — Gus Bell's first 1957 game for Cincinnati marked his 1,000th appearance in a major league contest.

Seixas will oppose Peter Phillips and Bartzen will meet Ian MacDonald. The U. S. — BWI match is one of nine scheduled in all three zones of Davis Cup competition during a busy weekend.

'$5 Billion Would Be Saved'

Hoover Seeking Adoption of Commission Proposals

WASHINGTON (U) — Former President Hoover said after a call on President Eisenhower yesterday that the government could save around five billion dollars a year by adoption of Hoover Commission recommendations on which Congress has not yet acted.

Hoover, who headed two government reorganization commissions in the Truman and Eisenhower administrations, said he talked with Eisenhower exclusively about such long-range savings. He added he did not touch on the present budget controversy.

Hoover said one of the difficulties in getting the recommendations passed is that a lot of people don't like to see reform and reduction of expenses. He said it would be difficult to find a single agency in the government interested in reform or cutting expenditures.

Hoover went on to say that it is a question of eliminating "outmoded methods" of government—a government which has grown from a 4-billion-dollar budget in 1932 to a 70-billion budget now.

He estimated that more than half of the savings still in the proposal stage would come from a budget and accounting bill, reorganization of the Civil Service, surplus property handling, and consolidation of common use services in the Pentagon.

Asked if he believed substantial cuts could be made in the present budget, Hoover said he was not going to discuss that.

Money Awaits
June Graduates

Industry Pays Out Big Salaries to Employees in All Fields

NEW YORK—Engineers and scientists are not the only June graduates being offered big money by the giants of U.S. industry, reports an article in a recent issue of a national magazine.

For example, William Hughes Mulligan Dean of Fordham University's law school states that 1957 is seeing the heaviest competition in history for top-flight law graduates.

Non-veteran lawyers, says the article "Industry's 10 Most Wanted Men," are being offered $5,000, veterans, $6,500 a year to start, as compared with $4,500 just last year.

At the same time, brand new doctors can command a figure of between $1,000 to $2,000 a month, depending upon field of specialization, years of study, geographical location and type of practice.

Members of the class of '57 who wish to be artists, writers, teachers or musicians may still have to pound the pavements looking for a job that pays substantial wages, but even these liberal arts men and women are coming under heavy surveillance by industry.

One recent study shows that 43 per cent of all college graduates now working for Standard Oil Company of New Jersey have non-technical degrees.

Another survey conducted by Northwestern University reveals that 27 per cent of all college graduates employed by 190 typical business firms last year were liberal arts graduates.

Girl Drowns at Outing of Romulus Students

JACKSON (U)—An outing of Romulus High School students ended tragically yesterday with the drowning of Helen Louise Draper, 17, of Wayne, in Vinyard Lake southeast of nearby Brooklyn.

Miss Draper was swimming to retrieve a raft that had drifted away when she went down. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Draper of Wayne.

The tragedy occurred near Camp De Sales. The students were on an outing at the cottage of Leonard Dombek, of Wayne.

Hollywood Headlines

Joanne Dru Disillusioned About Marrying Actors

HOLLYWOOD (U)—Last week, Lana Turner said she'd never marry again. Now Joanne Dru says she'll never marry—another actor.

The lovely actress recently shed actor John Ireland. Before that, she was wed to singer-actor Dick Haymes. She admitted that marrying actors is a losing game.

"It's seldom possible to be married successfully to an actor unless the wife completely subjects herself to his career," she reasoned. "I've known women who have devoted their lives entirely to their husbands' acting careers and have been happy. But to women who want some life of their own, it's difficult."

Actors also have one-track minds, she observed. She recalled how Haymes became intensely interested in horses and devoted his entire time to them for eight months. Then one day he came in from the stable and said he'd had it. He never went near the horses again.

The same thing happened with photography. He was so engrossed in his meters and lenses that she couldn't get a word with him. The hobby blew over and he gave all the equipment away.

"That's another thing," Joanne sighed. "Actors don't seem to worry at all about money."

Though Haymes has earned huge amounts of money, he has been behind in his support payments for their two children. Likewise the Ireland alliance ended in a financial bust, she indicated.

What about being married to an actress? Doesn't that place

Magazine Editors Say 'Yes'

Chemical Industry Boom?

DETROIT (U)—A forecast that the chemical industry will become by far the biggest factor in the nation's economy has been made by seven editors and writers of two magazines, Chemical Engineering and Chemical Week.

The industry this year, they said, will be the "top spender among all manufacturing industries for new plants and equipment," investing an estimated $1,900,000,000 compared with a forecast of $1,200,000,000 for the auto industry in 1957.

The seven featured a round-table discussion at the Detroit Athletic Club which attracted 70 Detroit industry representatives.

The chemical industry's investment will continue to grow and by 1975 will be spending $3,500,000,000 on research alone, the seven predicted.

Principal growth was forecast in plastics, synthetic fibers, pharmaceuticals and new metals.

Those participating in the discussions were Wallace F. Traubitz and Sidney D. Kilpatrick, publisher and editor of both magazines; John R. Callahan, editor in chief, and Theodore R. Olive, senior associated editor of Chemical Engineering; Howard C. E. Johnson, editor of Chemical Week, and Johnson's associate editors, Anthony J. Flomino and Donald P. Burke.

Literally 'in the Hole' on Tornado Shelter

FERRYSBURG (U)—Chester W. Clark said he plans immediate alteration of his newly constructed tornado shelter. The shelter, excavated beneath a porch, has a cement top with an oblong hole as an entry.

With Ferrysburg in the tornado alert area Tuesday night, Clark decided to use it. He let his wife, Marvita, and his dog go in first. But when he tried to ease himself through the hole he couldn't make it—as a matter of fact, he spent a good share of the earlier alert period trying to get out. Now the hole is going to be enlarged.

Boosts Indiana, Hits Michigan

Lt. Gov. Parker Claims His State's Tax Hike Lures New Industry

FRENCH LICK, Ind. (U. P.)—Lt. Gov. Crawford Parker says the tax situation in Indiana is luring new industry while the tax setup in Michigan is causing industry there to leave the state.

Parker, a Republican, told the Indiana Bankers Assn. yesterday that tax increases voted by the 1957 Indiana Legislature stabilized the state's financial situation so that businessmen can be assured of no further tax increases in the foreseeable future.

He said this has contributed to "attracting 10 new industrial payrolls to Hoosierland every single month." Then Parker criticized Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, a Democrat, saying:

"Contrast our Eden-like situation with that of Michigan. There a political tyrant who has been kept in office by the ominous might of ruthless labor bosses and by the cowardly surrender of certain businessmen has demanded a new 6 per cent tax on corporate profits. He wants to raise a pyramid of taxes to match his pyramid of power."

"No wonder that industries are now fleeing Michigan. No wonder that this radical ruler of our sister state is now planning to leave the wreckage of his regime and boldly and brazenly touts himself for the presidency of the 48 states."

He and his labor boss mentors constitute one of the biggest menaces to a safe and sane America."

Saginaw Man Killed

Husband Says Wife Had Been Despondent Because of Sickness

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (U. P.)—Coroner Edward S. Shelley wrote verdicts of triple homicide and suicide today in the fatal stabbings of three little children and their mother.

The tragedy took the lives of Mrs. Helen J. Conley, 33, and her children, Rebecca, 6, Matthew, 4, and John, 2, in their home in a moderately fashionable east side section yesterday.

The coroner said all four died from knife wounds in the heart. Three bloody butcher knives were found, one of them protruding from Mrs. Conley's chest.

The husband and father, George W. Conley, a laboratory technician in the U. S. Rubber Co. plant in Mishawaka, found the bodies. He had gone home to investigate after failing to get an answer to a telephone call to his home.

Conley told police his wife had been despondent, Shelley said she had been confined to the house for a month by outbreaks of measles, mumps and chickenpox among the children.

The girl, a first grade pupil, was home from school because of chicken pox.

Shelley said autopsies showed John had been stabbed twice, Matthew once and Rebecca four times.

MSU Protests Fund Plan

EAST LANSING (U. P.)—Michigan State University today described the House committee's proposed revisions to the State Legislature of operating budgets for MSU and the University of Michigan as "unfair."

The House committee had recommended an overall increase of $2,033,466 to the $84,276,894 previously voted by the Senate for operation of the state's colleges and universities.

The University of Michigan was scheduled to receive $1,234,586 of the increase and $413,993 would go to MSU. Other state colleges and universities would receive lesser amounts.

"The increases added by the committee, it passed by the House and Senate, will be of substantial help in maintaining effective operation of the University of Michigan," said Marian Hatcher, president of U. of M. He added he was "gratified" by the changes.

As amended, the appropriations bill would give the University of Michigan $30,955,586 for next year's state support given the University of Michigan and Michigan State $38,133,193.

Tulip Festival Opens Despite Poor Weather

HOLLAND (U. P.)—The Holland tulip festival opened on schedule yesterday despite cold and damp and overcast skies.

Officials had feared Tuesday night's heavy storm might have damaged the blooms. But an early check disclosed flowers upright and blooming in lanes and gardens.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams took part in the opening day festivities. The festival concludes Saturday.

Collision at Roseville
DETROIT (U. P.)—Kenneth Anderson, 31, of Detroit, was injured fatally early today when his car struck the rear of another car at an intersection in suburban Roseville.

Albert L. Williams, of Detroit, the driver of the second car, was not injured.

Hospital Employees Get $50,000 in Raises

Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital employees got $50,000 in cost-of-living raises last night.

The announcement was made by hospital director Harry H. Whitlow in behalf of the private institution's board of directors.

Whitlow said raises would bring the osteopathic hospital's salaries in line with those of the city's other two hospitals.

Boosts range from $8.22 a month for new employees to a top $22.50 a month, he said.

All of the hospital's 265 employees will be affected by the pay increases, Whitlow said.

Airlines Seek Penalty
WASHINGTON (U. P.)—The scheduled airlines have asked government approval of a $3 penalty for anyone who fails to show up after reserving a plane seat and gives no notice of cancellation.

Match Contributions by Dow Employees

MIDLAND (P) — A program of matching employee contributions to educational institutions has been announced by Dow Chemical Co. Dr. Leland I. Doan, Dow president, said the program would be effective July 1. He said the company would match employee contributions up to $100 a year.

Dow also announced grants of some $300,000 in other funds to educational institutions for the 1957-58 year.

Included in the grants were a $2,500 fellowship at the University of Michigan, a $20,000 gift to the Michigan College Foundations, $11,550 to the University of Michigan's entomological study and $10,000 to U. of M.'s Foundation for Research on Human Behavior.

Here is the mattress that outperforms—actually obsoletes anything else you are now sleeping on! Serta Perfect Sleeper alone gives you both relaxing top softness and healthful deep support in one mattress.

Sertaliner Construction won't let inner-springs crush down from night-after-night pressure at shoulder, hip, knee. No "hollow spots." You sleep on the Perfect Sleeper...not in it!

Stop in and make the 1-2 test above. Discover how you, too, can get "that Serta feeling"—from the world's most refreshing sleep!

come try the mattress with both

1. TOP SOFTNESS

Press Lightly

Press lightly...see how Patented Sertaliner Construction gives you permanent top softness in the inner-spring construction—not just the upholstery. Press lightly, feel how responsive at body contact. It's permanent comfort!

2. DEEP SUPPORT

Press Hard

Press hard...and see. At full body weight, ribbons of steel in Patented Sertaliner Construction give firmness to the inner-springs—distribute your body weight, as many doctors advise, for sag-free posture and refreshing sleep.
