Worried LBJ Aides Plot Vote Strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's political advisers, genuinely concerned that Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy may beat the President in Wisconsin's April 2 presidential primary, are plotting a major overhaul in strategy.

An informed source says they will junk two tactics which they believe backfired against Johnson in Tuesday's New Hampshire primary, where McCarthy captured an impressive 42 per cent of the vote.

One of these, the well-placed informant said, is the message that "Hanoi is watching" for an anti-Johnson turnout that might signify U.S. disunity over the war.

The other is the use of pledge cards

Related Stories, Pages A-13, B-11

"You may be pretty sure," said the informant, "you won't hear of those two gimmicks again.

"New Hampshire simply isn't something you can bursh off lightly," the source said. "We have serious problems. And we've got to face up to the fact that McCarthy can take the President in Wisconsin.

"That would really hurt."

In the three weeks remaining before the Wisconsin test — where the President will be on the ballot — his strategists' plan is to pin down the Minnesota senator on specific alternatives to Johnson's Vietnam war policy.

McCarthy's opposition to conduct of the war has been the basis for his steadily mounting campaign to wrest the Democratic nomination from the President.

Welfare Chief Quits in Disgust

Expressing "disgust and frustration," Oakland County's director of social services has turned in his resignation effective April 12.

Douglas H. Hoard had been in charge of the county welfare office since March 18, 1967.

In the last week he has expressed dissatisfaction with the way the state was treating the county office.

The county no longer has direct control of its program having merged with the State Department of Social Services last year.

Hoard has charged that, since then,

the state has steadily reduced his staff while the welfare case loads have grown.

'NO RESULTS'

Hoard and other county officials were backed yesterday by a vote of the Board of Supervisors asking Gov. Romney to personally intervene in the Oakland County welfare program.

Today Hoard said, "I just haven't been able to get any results. Now let someone else try."

Hoard, 58, is a retired naval officer who began working for the county as assistant corporation counsel in 1961. He held several other posts including assistant welfare director before his present $17,000 per year post.

He lives at 1158 W. Maple, Birmingham, and said he has no immediate plans but said he would travel for a while. "I want to lose my neurosis before I think of another job," Hoard said.

Road Officials Answer Critics

By L. GARY THORNE
Assistant City Editor—Suburban

The charter chapter of WHAR (Why Have Awful Roads?) hosted Frazer W. Staman, road commission chairman, and Paul W. McGovern, one of the two other commissioners. Also appearing was Paul VanRoekel, highway engineer.

An estimated 75 to 100 persons — most of them WHAR members — attended the meeting at Holly High School.

Essentially, the head-to-head meeting ended in a standoff with the critics remaining critics and the road commissioners convinced the county was doing the best it could with the funds available.

Organized about three months ago, WHAR is a self-admitted protest group which seeks better and more efficient maintenance of the county's network of rural roads.

NO ACTION

Ben East, WHAR chairman, described the group's effort:

"Everybody has talked about it—like the weather, no one does anything about it."

Fowler Sights 20 Pct. Surtax

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler declared today it is necessary that Congress pass a big income tax increase within 30 days.

While he was testifying before the Senate Finance Committee, gold sales in Europe skyrocketed, and market observers said only firm action by the United States could restore public confidence.

Fowler told the committee he would welcome a tax hike more than twice as big as the 10 per cent surcharge proposed by President Johnson. This development came as Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., suggested that it would be a good idea to go back to the income tax rates prevailing before they were reduced in 1964.

Fowler said this would bring in about $22 billion a year compared with the $10 billion in the President's proposal and added: "I would welcome this."

The secretary said that five factors made it urgent to get the income tax increase on the books at once:

- "The highly volatile situation in the international monetary markets now is threatening the very preservation of the international monetary system as we know it."
- "Clear indication that the Federal Reserve is on the move in the direction of increased monetary restraint because of the failure to pass a tax bill."
- "It is now clear we may be faced with increased federal expenditures beyond the figures in the President's budget submitted in January because of events in the intervening period in Vietnam."
- "The increased pace of the economy generally calls for more restraint."
- "Our trade surplus is being reduced to an extent that may offset the efforts we are making to reduce our balance of payments deficit contained in the President's New Year's Day message."

Youth, Mother Shot

DETROIT (UPI) — A teen-age boy, John Williams, 16, was shot to death and his mother, Maggie, seriously wounded in a gun battle with another youth last night.

JAIL MODEL — This model shows approximately what Oakland County's new jail complex will look like when it is completed in 1970. The structure, designed by Giffels and Rossetti, Inc., of Detroit, will cost about $6.4 million and be located adjacent to the courthouse at the County Center.

By County Supervisors

$6.4-Million Jail Is Okayed

A $6.4-million jail complex was approved yesterday by the County Board of Supervisors

The board directed final plans and specifications for the two-story structure be drafted by the firm of Giffels and Rossetti, Inc., of Detroit and submitted to the board once again for final approval.

Target date for completion is July 1970.

Accepted by the board were alternate plans that added about $500,000 to the basic cost. For about $168,000 a tunnel will be built from the proposed jail to the courthouse which will be about 200 yards to the northeast at the County Center on Telegraph and Pontiac Lake Road.

★ ★ ★

Also included will be a full basement rather than a partial one that had been proposed in early planning. Recommendations for the extras were urged by the buildings and grounds committee which has studied the proposals for about the last six months.

MORGUE FACILITY

The new jail will have about 165,000 square feet of floor space with eventually three wings for cellblocks, administration section in front, morgue facility in back, services area and parking for 58 cars in the basement.

Capacity will be about 850 ultimately compared to about 300 capacity at the present jail in downtown Pontiac. The present structure was built in the 1920s and has been deemed inadequate and antiquated for today's needs.

The architects announced work could begin by September and be completed about 22 months afterward.

Methods of financing the structure are yet to be determined. This will be studied by the ways and means committee with either a bond issue or pay-as-you-go program a possibility.

U.S. Crime Soars in '67; FBI Points to Summer Riots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI reports a 23 per cent spurt in big-city crimes paced an over-all 16 per cent jump in the nation's major crime rate last year. It cites last summer's riots as a factor.

The 23 per cent hike was in cities of 500,000 to one million population.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said in a report released today that crime was up 16 per cent in the suburbs and 13 per cent in rural areas. A 17 per cent jump was recorded in cities of 25,000 population and more.

The FBI said arrests of persons under 18 years old rose eight per cent.

"Included in the increased police arrests was a rising volume of arrests for offenses against public order" — or riots — the bureau said in a statement accompanying statistical data.

Arrests of adults rose by three per cent after declining slightly in 1966, the report said.

Crimes of violence were up 15 per cent, led by robbery which increased 27 per cent from 1966. There were 12 per cent more murders, 9 per cent more rapes and 8 per cent more aggravated assaults.

Property crimes jumped 16 per cent. Auto thefts rose 17 per cent, and burglary and larceny of $50 or more in value were up 16 per cent, the report said.

★ ★ ★

Hoover, who favors federal firearms control, said serious assaults where a gun was used as the weapon rose 22 per cent and one of five assaults was committed with a gun.

ARMED ROBBERY SOARS

Armed robbery had a sharp upswing of 30 per cent and a firearm was used in 58 per cent of all robbery offenses, he reported.

The FBI chief said police solved 23 per cent of the crimes reported to the bureau, a decline of seven per cent over 1966.

The FBI report did not include changes in the crime picture for New York, Detroit, Kansas City and Baltimore. The bureau said 1966 figures were not comparable with the 1967 figures in these cities because of changes in reporting some offenses.

Weather Will Be Windy, Warmer

The windy and warmer weather will include occasional showers possibly mixed with light snow tonight. Lows will average 27 to 33 degrees.

Mild and cloudy with sporadic showers likely is tomorrow's forecast. Saturday should be somewhat colder and cloudy.

Increasing southerly winds will move at 10 to 20 miles per hour throughout the day.

Precipitation probabilities in per cent are: today, 10; tonight, 40; and tomorrow, 60.

The lowest temperature preceding 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac was 15. At 2 p.m. the mercury reading was 35.

More Busing Likely if School Tax OK'd

Pontiac schoolchildren who live at least one mile from school have a strong chance of being bused to school if the March 25 millage issue passes, the board of education said last night.

This new ruling applies to pupils who live within the Pontiac city limits. They previously have not been transported except in extreme cases where safety hazards are present.

The school board's statement of intent said:

- Elementary pupils who live more than one mile from the school they attend or who face unusual safety conditions between home and schools are intended to be transported.

★ ★ ★

- Junior high school students who live more than 1½ miles from the school they attend or who face severe safety problems are intended to be transported.

NO PROVISIONS

No mention was made of provisions for senior high school students.

Safety hazards, such as an expressway, may be less than the prescribed distances in each case to receive consideration for transportation.

"The board of education wishes to be clearly understood that it can only carry out this intent if sufficient financial resources to meet normal current expenses and these new costs are available to the school district," the position statement said.

"A favorable vote on March 25 for the proposed millage increase would make possible at least partial implementation of this plan in September 1968.

NO OTHER WAY

"It would not appear that financial resources would be adequate for implementation of this program under any other circumstances."

Changes in the transportation policy were apparently spurred by parents who have questioned whether transportation will be available to new planned facilities, such as the Human Resources Center.

Pontiac completely finances transportation for about 920 students who live outside the city and from 1 to 1½ miles from their school.

The state partially reimburses school districts only for transportation of students who live outside a city and at least 1½ miles from the school they attend.

Detroit Gunman Kills 2, Hurts 3

From Our News Wires

DETROIT — A holdup man who said he didn't "like the looks" of his victims gunned them down in an east side bar early today, killing two persons and wounding three others, two of them critically. He escaped.

Witnesses said the killer, wearing a blue-hooded sweatshirt, entered the Fireside Lounge bar shortly after midnight, wielded a rifle and announced "this is a holdup."

Five customers, all men, were sitting in the bar. The gunman ordered them to give him their wallets.

The man then scowled at the group, shouted "I don't like your looks" and opened fire.

Killed were Walter Charlton, 46, of Royal Oak and an unidentified man in his early 20s.

Frank Buniak, 23, of Detroit and Robert Crough, age and address unknown, were injured critically. Buniak was hospitalized with gunshot wounds of the chest and neck. Crough was shot in the abdomen.

Frank Losh, 34, of Detroit was hit in the face and hand. He was treated at a hospital and released.

County Road Bond Sale OK'd

The Oakland County Road Commission received approval yesterday from the board of supervisors to sell $4 million in bonds to finance road projects.

The funds will provide the commission with about $6 million for roads this year, adding about $2 million from available sources.

The bond issue will have to be approved by the State Municipal Finance Commission, a process which usually takes about two months.

The commission has claimed it does not have sufficient funds to carry on an extensive road project this year.

★ ★ ★

Last year it requested eight-tenths of a mill tax levy from the board of supervisors to carry on essentially the same program as is now proposed. This was not approved, however.

20-YEAR BASIS

The bonds will be on a 20-year basis. The commission made a similar bond issue about six years ago.

This year a payment of $580,000 is due, plus the commission must pay back $500,000 to the supervisors that was borrowed last year in a cash crisis situation.

The bulk of this year's road program will be spent in widening projects on Greenfield, Farmington, Elizabeth Lake, Maple and Walton, for about four-fifths of the total.

Secondary road projects totaling $629,100 are proposed for small sections of 11 Mile, Powers, Drake, Square Lake, Sleeth, Elston, Fish Lake, Newton, Canal and Oakside. Total distance involved is 9.2 miles of grading, drainage and bituminous surfacing.

State House Passes Bills on Road Safety, Demolition of Slums

LANSING (AP) — A pair of bills aimed at slum landlords and accident-prone drivers won House approval Wednesday and were sent to the Senate.

Advanced, meanwhile, were measures raising the penalties for fish poaching, raising benefits under the veterans' homestead property tax exemption and outlawing retail promotional games.

A bill giving mining companies power to condemn land and acquire surface rights also was moved into position for final action.

The Senate spent most of the day in recess for committee meetings and met briefly to discuss several minor bills.

DRIVER'S LICENSE

The traffic safety bill, approved 75-31 after several weeks of off-and-on debate, allows the secretary of state to revoke a motorist's license on the basis of his accident record. It would apply only if the driver were described by police as guilty of moving violations in connection with the accidents.

Eligible for revocation or suspension would be any driver involved in a mishap resulting in death, or any driver involved three times within 24 months in crashes causing injury or damage over $200.

Rep. J. Robert Traxler, D-Bay City, charged the measure would give "arbitrary and capricious powers to the bureaucrats" in the State Department.

"All we're trying to do," retorted Rep. Quincy Hoffman, R-Applegate, the bill's sponsor, "is protect you and me and everybody else in Michigan from the people that we don't want driving on the highways."

ELDERLY MOTORISTS

An amendment by Rep. Daniel Cooper, D-Oak Park, providing that each driver reaching his 70th birthday would be examined by the department and could lose his license, did not attract the votes needed to second it.

Given approval 91-13 was a measure giving cities authority to order demolition of deserted buildings and repair of unfit housing units, or to do the work themselves and assess the costs as a lien on the property involved.

Sponsored by Rep. James Del Rio, D-Detroit, the measure applies to buildings which are "unsanitary or unfit for human habitation" or which are "likely to work injury to the health, safety or general welfare of those living within."

An owner would be able to appeal a decision of the city to Circuit Court.

Passed 103-0 was a bill raising the professional educational requirements of optometrists from two to six years. Rep. Robert Mahoney, D-Detroit, who is blind, sponsored the bill.

Also moved into position for final action meanwhile was a bill which would relax the eligibility standards for veterans' property tax relief and graduate such relief according to the degree of disability of the veteran

Multiwarhead Rockets in Test

Subs to Fire Missiles Against Pacific Radar

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy plans to launch multiple-warhead Poseidon missiles against Army antiballistic missile components on Kwajalein Island in the Pacific in a combat-type test.

Pentagon officials said they expect the result to be a good guage of the reliability of both advanced weapons systems.

The Poseidon is the new Navy missile ticketed eventually to go aboard 31 of the 41 nuclear-drive Polaris submarines. It's intended to increase U.S. assurance of being able to overwhelm Soviet antimissile defenses.

Kwajalein is the site of test radar and antiballistic missile interceptors being developed for use in the $5 billion U.S. anti-missile defense shield.

NO NUCLEAR DEVICES

Sources said no nuclear devices will be used either by the flock of reentry vehicles released by Poseidon—which carries 10 warheads—or by the Sentinel system's interceptors. Nuclear bursts in the atmosphere are prohibited by the 1963 Test Ban Treaty.

But through radar tracking and computerization Kwajalein technicians will be able to tell just how effective one is against the other.

As one planner explained it:

"We will be able to see on the radars just how the Poseidon attack will look, and at the same time launch one or more Spartan or Sprint antimissiles at several altitudes to simulate the intercepts."

★ ★ ★

The Spartan is the long-range antimissile and Sprint the superfast short-range interceptor. They form the one-two punch of the Sentinel missile defense planned for completion the next few years.

Welfare Crisis Aid Is Sought

County Board Seeks Romney Intervention

A direct appeal to Gov. Romney to relieve an Oakland County welfare problem was authorized by the County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

R. W. Lahti of Wixom, chairman of the supervisors' social services committee claimed the county's ability to help its citizens is being impaired by state practices.

Lahti, whose committee works on problems related to welfare and social aid, put the problem on a crisis basis and claimed both the appointed and elected officials of the county had done all they could to seek help through the Michigan Department of Social Services.

The basic complaint is that the state agency has been cutting the staff in the county despite growing case loads in most categories of aid.

The county abdicated control over its own welfare program by a merger agreement with the state effective March 1967. All employes then became state employes and all funding and administration was placed in the hands of the state administrators.

CONSEQUENCES

The merger was urged prior to the agreement on the basis it would save the county money. Opponents of the move warned of future consequences, however.

Lahi revealed staff members have been reduced from 186 to 168, and that the efficiency of the operation has been impaired.

"We are talking about something that affects people," he said.

Some protest to making the appeal was expressed. William Mainland of Milford said he "questioned the wisdom of going over the head of the State Welfare Department and appealing to the boss."

'HARSH AVENUE'

He said he could not support "such a harsh avenue of protest."

Philip O. Mastin of Hazel Park countered this by saying a direct appeal to the governor had worked in his city in a highway matter.

"I see nothing wrong with appealing to anyone who will help us," he said.

The motion to make the appeal passed with only a smattering of negative voice votes.

Bobby Mulls Big Decision

Says N. H. Removed Barrier to Candidacy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has stepped to the brink of presidential candidacy and a key aide says he'll make his decision in a week.

Kennedy huddled with political advisers in New York last night after saying in Washington he is reassessing whether to run against President Johnson.

The New York Democrat said the New Hampshire primary results removed "the major obstacle" to challenging Johnson — and said the vote demonstrated Democratic concern over Johnson policies.

But Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, who drew an unexpectedly high 42 per cent of the New Hampshire Democratic vote, said he won't pull out of the race whatever the New Yorker decides to do.

"He's been reassessing his position all along the way," McCarthy told newsmen after a 20-minute meeting with Kennedy. "I said I intended to stay in the primaries and in the race," the Minnesotan added.

BY MARCH 22

A close aide said Kennedy will make his decision by March 22, deadline for entering the May 28 Oregon primary. And Kennedy said if he runs he probably would have to campaign actively in the primaries.

NATIONAL WEATHER—Showers will fall in the Utah-New Mexico mountain area tonight and in a wide band along the Mississippi River from Illinois to Louisiana. Snow is expected in the Dakotas, and rain is predicted for the Great Lakes region.

Road Officials Answer Critics

"We know more about roads than you do and we're aware of 2,450 miles of (local) roads," he told the commission critics.

Indicating that the commission was continuing its endeavor to obtain general tax revenue from the County Board of Supervisors, Staman saw no other answer to road problems than more money.

NOT MAGICIANS

"We're not magicians," he lamented "We spend what money we have where the statute says."

He pointed out that road funds (from state gas and weight taxes) are returned to areas where the population is. He cited Wayne County as an area that receives 3½ times the money Oakland County does for less than 1,700 miles of local roads.

"You're only going to change it (the dollar distribution) in the State Legislature, and they send two representatives to our one," Staman contended.

TROUBLE SPOTS

Several of the WHAR members told of specific trouble spots either not corrected or not corrected properly. The road critics, however, did admit that the coffee break problem appeared corrected.

This latter was in reference to complaints that several road commission trucks would be seen at restaurants for long periods of time.

McGovern strongly denied that WHAR had anything to do with correcting the problem. He said the directive on coffee breaks had gone out before WHAR was organized.

Meanwhile, Staman said that a grievance had been filed over the directive.

VanRoekel defended the quality of road workmanship. He pointed out that some areas of the county have better roads simply because of soil conditions.

He said $1 million was spent on maintenance of local roads last year. The highway engineer added that this averaged out to only $600 a mile with about one-third of this going for snow and ice control.

"We're not claiming we're doing a good job of maintenance, but we've been trying to get additional resources." (One source of funds cited last night was extra voted millages for roads in some townships.)

The road spokesmen said cutbacks on local road maintenance were ordered last August when the designated funds were exhausted. They said maintenance was stepped up again Jan. 1 with the beginning of the new fiscal year.

DENIED CREDIT

Van Roekel pointed out that local roads today receive far heavier traffic at faster speeds and have far less money spent on maintaining them.

"In spite of the workmanship or anything else, they're wearing out," he said.

The highway engineer used charts to detail the road commission's financial structure. In a sheet distributed to the audience, it was pointed out that the average one-car family pays only $6.50 per year toward the county's local road system.

Counties receive 34 per cent of the gas and weight tax revenue, the state 46 per cent and cities and villages 20 per cent, according to the road spokesmen.

Of the state funds received by Oakland County, only 25 per cent are used on local roads.

Concluded after a three-hour discussion, the session last night appeared to only touch the surface of WHAR complaints.

East said he hoped the commission representatives would sense the mood of the people.

Troy Schools Set May 6 Vote on 2-Mill Hike

TROY — Residents of this school district will vote on an operating millage request May 6 for the fourth time in 11 months.

The board of education has voted to ask a tax of 5 mills for two years for operating expenses.

The amount is to supplant a millage reduced from previous elections. Voters rejected proposed increases of 7 mills in June and September and only last month denied a 5-mill one-year hike, 3,208 to 3,119.

Board member Harold A. Jones who has opposed millage attempts in the past has agreed to serve as chairman of a citizens' study committee.

* * *

"We expect to open all schools and restore program cuts if the millage passes," said Assistant Supt. of Schools Boyd Larson.

OTHER AR 'IFS

Whether the district's cash deficit of about $800,000 can be reduced depends on a number of ifs, Larson added.

These are a final determination of the district's assessed valuation, the amount of county-allocated tax money.

"With everyone else's proposals being defeated and ours having lost three times, we feel this is the best thing to do," the assistant superintendent continued. "I feel that 5 mills will give us a basic program and let us keep our head above water."

* * *

In other business the board received a report recommending continuation of the 6-period modular scheduling system at Troy High School. The study was presented by a parent-teacher-administrative group which had been considering the program for some months, Larson said.

Oxford Manager Robert Smalley Submits Incorporation Petitions

Petitions for Incorporation of Oxford Filed With County

OXFORD — Petitions seeking Oakland County approval to incorporate the village and about four square miles of Oxford Township as the City of Oxford were filed yesterday afternoon at the county clerk's office.

Oxford Village Manager Robert Smalley said the petitions carried the names of 318 village residents and 15 township residents.

The petitions seek approval of the county boundaries committee for the holding of an election sometime later this year.

A petition requesting a state census of the area involved also was included. A $500 filing fee accompanied the petitions.

* * *

County officials said the matter probably would be considered by the board of supervisors at one of its April meetings. Signatures of the petitioners will have to be checked before any action is taken by the board.

LARGER IN AREA

The incorporation vote, if successful, would increase the village's size from less than two square miles to about six square miles and give it city status.

Boundaries outlined on the petitions are as follows: 222 feet south of Drahner Road on the south, north through Section 28 a mile to Seymour Lake Road on the west, west another mile and three-quarters along Seymour Lake Road, north a mile to Granger Road, east on Granger extended to Ray and Oxford roads a total of about four miles, south a mile to Lakeville Road, a half-mile east along Lakeville and south to Drahner.

The area includes some $31 million of the township's total assessed valuation of $39 million. It includes four subdivisions plus the three major gravel industries in the area and the Sea Ray Corp. on Lapeer Road.

Only those people living in the village and in the affected area will vote in the election and a simple majority is all that is required for passage.

* * *

Voters, however, will also be asked to elect a nine-man charter commission for the purpose of formulating a city charter. It also must be approved by voters before incorporation becomes effective.

Lake Orion Council Asks Vote on Police Bargaining

LAKE ORION — The Village Council has asked the State Labor Mediation Board to hold an election to determine whether a union will represent police department employees as a unit for bargaining agent.

Village Manager John P. Kenney has written the board for certification that a petition for such representation has been filed by Metropolitan Council No. 23 American Federation of State County and Municipal Employees.

The union seeks to represent all police department employees except Chief Neal Leonard.

Lake Orion's department has four regular officers, three policewomen, 10 retired officers and six relief policewomen.

In other recent business, the council has approved an amended curfew ordinance. The revised ordinance puts a 10 p.m. curfew on all unattended minors under the age of 17.

EXTEND COVERAGE

Kenneth explained that the changes in the ordinance primarily were to extend provisions of the ordinance to cover matters in water craft and motor vehicles.

The council has approved a request from Lake Orion Community Schools to erect six temporary classroom buildings at Waterford Hills Elementary School.

Wixom Eying Water System

City Council has hired engineers Pate, Stern and Bogue to draw up a master plan.

To be done in about six months, it will cost about $2,200, said Mayor Wesley Weston.

He added that the city has no definite plans now to provide public water.

* * *

The council also adopted a policy of operating and maintaining community well systems. Although no such systems are operating now, there are plans for community systems in Island Woods.

The contract for the paving of Fleming, Pontiac and Theodore streets was awarded to Cadillac Asphalt Paving Co., Southfield, for about $88,500. The project, paid for through general taxes, is expected to be done in four months.

The city will be dubbed Lincoln Town March 25 when the millionth Lincoln comes off the line at the plant here.

The council accepted the resignation of the chairman of the recreation committee, Mrs. Neil Taylor, 200 Wagoner. Her letter of resignation states that she lacks enough time to fill the position.

* * *

The city has joined nine neighboring communities in membership in the South Oakland County Emergency Police Aid Agreement.

Through the pact, member police departments will lend aid in emergencies such as civil disorders and natural disasters.

Filling of Vacancy on Oxford School Board Is Delayed

OXFORD — A successor to Mrs. Murray Smith, eight-year member of the Oxford Board of Education, is yet to be named. Mrs. Smith recently resigned because she is moving from the area.

Three present did approve preliminary plans for the district's new junior high school and additions to Leonard, Clear Lake and Lakeville Elementary schools.

Because of rising interest rates, the board resolved to ask the Michigan Municipal Finance Commission to allow a 5½ per cent rather than 5 per cent maximum rate on the sale of its $2.5 million in construction bonds.

* * *

The bonds are yet to be sold.

A summer remedial reading program was approved and application for federal funds was initiated. Tony Hendrickson, principal at Leonard Elementary School, was named as the likely director.

Salary negotiations, presently being conducted with the Oxford Education Association, and the Oxford Cafeteria Association, were expected to be extended to custodians, bus drivers and noon teacher aides as of Monday.

The board voted to purchase a bus chassis for $3,681 from GMC Truck and Coach Division.

Will Present Musical

FARMINGTON — Jaycees here will present "The Match Game" tomorrow and Saturday as their 21st annual spring musical.

Shows will be at 8:15 p.m. at the Farmington High School Auditorium, 32 W. Middle Rd.

Levy in Leonard Is Cut by 3 Mills

LEONARD — Three mills were dropped from the tax levy here last night as the newly elected Village Council met for the first time.

A 3-mill levy for sidewalks, collected the last three years, was dropped reducing the remaining levy to 12 mills.

A plea made by Charles Hamilton for a further drop in view of higher assessments was overruled by other council members who cited a need of meeting rising costs.

Ackie's Rubbish and Garbage Disposal, which has done business with the village a number of years, was last night granted a franchise. The monthly village collection fee was increased from $45 to $100 a month, but individual collection fees were dropped from $3 to $2.50 a month.

The council raised the pay of village workmen from $1.50 to $2 an hour and of machine operators from $2 to $2.50 an hour. The pay of election inspectors was increased from $15 to $20 a day.

* * *

Oxford Council Decides to Buy Police Riot-Control Equipment

OXFORD — Approval to spend $1,000 for Police Department riot-control equipment has been given by the Village Council.

The purchase of smoke-inhalation masks for the Fire Department was also approved.

In approving the purchases, the council considered possible help needed by Pontiac should riots break out next summer, according to Village Manager Robert Smalley.

* * *

In other recent business the council approved purchase of a new police car from Miloseh Chrysler-Plymouth of Lake Orion at a trade-in cost of $1,639.

RUBBISH DISPOSAL

A rubbish disposal contract, effective April 1, was awarded to the low bidder, B & J Disposal of 5632 Pine Knob, Independence Township. Total cost to the village is $9,295 including provision for a free dump site.

Smalley said the cost to residents would remain the same — $1 per month for garbage pickup.

A resolution enlarging the area to be considered for urban renewal was passed on the advice of planning consultants, Vilican-Leman Associates of Southfield.

Boundaries on the east were moved from M24 to the railroad track between Broadway and East Burdick.

Avon to Reappraise Property

AVON TOWNSHIP — All property in the township will be reappraised.

Supervisor Gyril Miller and Clerk Thelma Spencer last night were authorized to contract with Gordon B. Hunter Associates of Southfield for the reevaluation.

To be used as a basis for assessments, the reappraisal will cost the township $79,300 or about $6.60 per property description. The job is to be completed by Jan. 31, 1969.

Mrs. Spencer said the reappraisal will involve house-to-house calls and a drawing of every building on every piece of property in the township.

Such a reappraisal is expected to quiet some of the controversy, particularly in the southwestern portion of the township, where residents have protested increasing taxes based on higher assessments.

* * *

In other business, the City of Rochester's request that the township share in the cost of a new $35,000 fire truck was referred to the fire committee.

By a contract signed in 1941, the township agreed to go 50-50 on equipment purchases with the city. The Rochester Fire Department serves a portion of Avon Township.

Richard Leigh of Harding Road was authorized to consult city and school officials on the construction of an open ditch drain to alleviate flooding on Alice Street and around McGregor School.

Board Approves Formal Arrangement

Farmington Twp. to Join Fire-Aid Group

FARMINGTN TOWNSHIP — The fire department will join a mutual aid association of nine fire departments in southwestern Oakland County.

* * *

The aims of the Western Oakland Mutual Aid Association are to advance and coordinate mutual help and further the education of the departments.

The township department has worked with member departments before on an informal basis. The approval to formally join came at a recent township board meeting.

Association members include departments from the townships of West Bloomfield, Commerce, Highland and White Lake; the villages of Milford and Novi; and the cities of Wixom and Walled Lake.

* * *

The board took action agreeing with the Oakland County Road Commission's awarding of the Drake Road paving project contract to Stolaruk Asphalt Paving Co. for $26,181.

$90,000 PROJECT

The asphalt is expected to be on Drake from Grand River north to 11 Mile by July 1, said Township Supervisor Curtis Hall.

* * *

The total project, including completed base and ditching work, costs $90,000 — financed half-and-half by the county and the township.

* * *

A public hearing on the necessity to pave Stonewood Court will be held March 25 at 7:30 p.m. On the same night at 7:45 p.m. there will be a hearing on the necessity to construct water mains in Franklin Forest Subdivision.

Dinner Set at Oxford

OXFORD — OES Chapter No. 266 will serve a family-style chicken dinner from 5 to 7 p.m. tomorrow at the Masonic Temple. The dinner is open to the public.

Wolverine Lake Joins in Pact for Mutual Police Aid

WOLVERINE LAKE — The Village Council has given unanimous approval to the village joining a mutual police aid system for emergencies.

The North Oakland County Reciprocal Police Aid Agreement is planned to act at such times as civil disorders and natural disasters. The agreement was sent to 18 communities mostly southwest and east of Pontiac.

Neighboring communities of West Bloomfield Township and Walled Lake have already signed the agreement.

The village council also approved at this week's meeting the appointment of Joseph Gabriele, 33, of 520 Laguna, as an auxiliary policeman.

DETROIT FORCE

Gabriele, who left the Detroit police force two years ago after 10 years of service, is the assistant manager of Ace Budget Center, Waterford Township.

The new auxiliary policeman will be paid $2.25 per hour if he is used as a full-time officer, said Village Manager Clifford Cottrell.

* * *

The council hired certified public accountants Carey and Olsen, Birmingham, to balance the ledger and provide financial statements quarterly and make an annual audit for $1,200 this year.

McCarthy HQ to Open

The Michigan headquarters of McCarthy for President will open at 10 a.m. tomorrow at 2006 W. McNichols in Detroit, according to John Weiss, president of the organization.

In Wolverine Lake

Zoning of Land Left Up in Air

WOLVERINE LAKE — A rezoning request just can't seem to get a yes or no answer from village officials.

The question first went before the village planning board.

The board sent out a recommendation to council to take no action — nothing was said about giving approval or disapproval.

The result was that the council passed a motion to take the planning board recommendation of no action.

* * *

ASKED FOR REVIEW

So he asked for a review of his plea.

* * *

The council rescinded its action at the Monday night meeting and shuttled the rezoning request back to the planning board.

* * *

The land in question is three lots on the southwest corner of Oakview and Glengary. White hopes to someday build apartments there.

MARCHING MOTHERS — Avondale's marching mothers turned out again yesterday to picket the board of education offices in regard to bus and sports cuts undertaken as part of a recent district economy program. The march, the second day in a row, was peaceful. Pickets were to return again today.

Sahara Nation Is About to Enter Nuclear Age

NIAMEY, Niger (AP) — The nuclear age is about to make an impact in Niger, a Sahara land where the goats, cattle and camels outnumber 3 to 1 the four million humans.

★ ★ ★

The French have discovered 20,000 tons of uranium metal in one square mile of desert north of Agades in Central Niger, 500 miles northeast of this capital.

Hamani Diori, a broad, affable man who has escaped one assassination attempt to remain the only president since independence from the French in 1960, says the discovery will be the basis for Niger's entry into industrial society.

This is heady talk in an impoverished country the size of Texas and California combined, where the predominantly Moslem population has put up with subsistence living for centuries.

Once mining starts in the 1970s, the find will mean $4 million to $5 million annually to Niger, which exists now on a yearly budget of about $31 million.

★ ★ ★

The Niger government will have a 5 per cent share and the French Atomic Energy Commission a 45 per cent share in a company exploiting the find.

★ ★ ★

It will first build Arlit, a completely new town of about 5,000 in the desert. A refinery with a capacity of 200 tons of concentrates annually is scheduled for operation by 1970. A second plant to produce 1,000 tons annually will start operating in 1973.

Christmas, as a word, is derived from the Old English "Cristes maesse," or "Christ's mass."

Rabbi Israel Goodman

The community was shocked and grieved by the untimely death at 52 of RABBI ISRAEL GOODMAN, leader of Congregation B'nai Israel in Pontiac.

A native of New York State and a graduate of New York City's Yeshiva University, the personable rabbi had served his congregation for 12 years. In 1962, the board of trustees recognized his outstanding service by voting him life tenure as their leader.

RABBI GOODMAN

Rabbi Goodman was not only a dedicated servant of his congregation but actively involved himself in the City's civic and humanitarian areas.

Prior to assuming his Pontiac post, he had graced pulpits in Puerto Rico and Pennsylvania. He served as chaplain of U.S. Armed Services in the former location, and held honorary offices in both State and national councils related to his religion.

The passing of Rabbi Goodman is a deep loss not only to those of his faith but to the area at large. He well fulfilled his mortal mission. That it was cut tragically short must be accepted humbly as the will of One whose ways are beyond human understanding.

U.S.-Soviet Culture Exchange Pact Spins Wheels

The Soviet-American cultural exchange program is as tenuous as ever after 10 years of agreements and interruptions. The program has been renewed every two years since it was begun in 1958, but three times out of four the old agreement lapsed before the new one was approved.

This year is no exception — the fourth lapse has occurred. Moscow has been unwilling to set a date for talks to begin on a pact replacing the 1966-67 agreement which expired Dec. 31.

Some analysts of Soviet affairs believe the delay is caused by a struggle within the Kremlin between party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and Aleksandr N. Shelepin, a potential challenger. In December, a Brezhnev faction succeeded in abolishing the State Committee for Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries, the agency responsible for cultural exchange negotiations. The committee chairman, Sergei K. Romanovsky, was identified with Shelepin.

Soviet diplomats in Washington have been dropping hints that the foot dragging is Moscow's way of showing its displeasure over American involvement in Vietnam. But a State Department official, pointing to delays in years past, insisted that there was "no reason not to believe that a new agreement won't be reached." The process of reaching agreement, he added, "is more or less par for the course."

He noted that the stipulated 40 scholars and scientists from America have continued to study in Russia beyond the Dec. 31 expiration date, and that an equal number of Russians have remained here.

However, the Bolshoi Opera was forced to postpone — perhaps cancel — a visit to the United States. In the performing arts, exchange visits are arranged for about five groups from each country a year. Additionally, the U.S. magazine Amerika is permitted to circulate in Russia, and the Soviet counterpart U.S.S.R. in the United States.

'Do Nothing' Congress Accomplished Much

The first session of the 90th Congress was tagged by many legislative activists as a "do nothing" body. Others called the session a welcome relief to citizens and taxpayers, because it did not pass many proposals that would have meant more restrictions on our daily lives and even more astronomical, if that is possible, government spending.

The last session of Congress withheld approval of vast new public spending obligations in the name of rural electrification. It denied further funds for planning the controversial Dickey-Lincoln Federal hydroelectric project in Maine. It withheld action on the Electric Power Reliability Act.

Utility authorities have called this legislation the power "unreliability" act, since it would result in a degree of Government control that would cast public authority in the role of manager of the investor-owned electric industry rather than regulator.

However, the pressure for bigger government never ceases. The bills and spending proposals that are turned down by one session of Congress reappear at a later date.

If a "do nothing" Congress means holding the big deficit spenders and super-government advocates at bay, then we need more "do nothing" Congresses.

Winter Defies Weather Predictions

By DICK SAUNDERS

You're probably wondering why all this sudden snow so late in the season.

The reasons are obvious.

SAUNDERS

First, my boss wrote on this page several weeks ago that winter has had it and warmer weather was here to stay—oodles of early spring.

Then, Monday, my immediate supervisor went golfing.

These two in combination are enough to unleash a torrent of abuse from Mother Nature.

But that's not all of it.

I went out and bought a rake Saturday. I also put a kite together, had the car washed, told my wife when trout season opens and even suggested that maybe we need a new set of golf clubs more than we need bread.

★ ★ ★

With that, the March winds began shifting uneasily.

Then I put away my winter coat and put the television set back in the sunroom which is too cold in winter for comfortable viewing.

There came a rumble of foreboding out of the southwest.

Our wire editor, Jack Stroud (also an avid fisherman), went out and tested a new spinning outfit at Beaudette Park over the weekend and dug up a batch of worms for use about a month hence.

★ ★ ★

It started snowing in Oklahoma.

Our chief photographer, Edward R. Noble, took his snow tires off and stowed them away for another year.

Heavy snow warnings were issued for much of the Missouri Valley.

Heavy snow warnings were posted for the Pontiac area and the wind nearly ripped my storm window off.

Standing ankle deep in snow, I announced to my clan that our family leaf raking day would have to be postponed.

I then reclaimed my winter coat . . . to wear into the sunroom to watch television.

I think I can safely predict it will all happen pretty much the same way again next year about this time.

'Whose Little Boy Are You?'

David Lawrence Says:

N. H. Significance Is Overstated

WASHINGTON — Misleading inferences are being drawn about the vote in the New Hampshire primary largely because most people are unfamiliar with the way the "write-in" votes should be compared with the votes for a name which is actually printed on the ballot.

LAWRENCE

Thus, it is significant that President Johnson polled approximately 26,000 votes when his name wasn't even on the ballot, while Sen. Eugene McCarthy got around 23,000 votes after an active campaign and, of course, with his name on the ballot.

Lots of people just don't know how to handle a "write-in" when they get into the voting booth. In 1964 on election day more than 184,000 voted in New Hampshire for Johnson.

Why didn't 135,000 of these go to the polls on Tuesday? The leaders of the Democratic party in the state didn't put on a vigorous campaign for Johnson because of a belief that McCarthy wasn't a serious contender.

It may be assumed that President Johnson commands a majority in the Democratic party in New Hampshire and undoubtedly would have polled even more votes if it hadn't been necessary for those favoring him to do a "write-in."

Nor is it accurate to say — as the Soviet Union is joyously proclaiming — that the vote for Sen. McCarthy showed that the American people are against the Vietnam war.

AGAINST RETREAT

Indeed, former Vice President Nixon on the Republican side got more than 84,000 votes, and certainly he is not in favor of a retreat or "pullout" from Vietnam.

The fact that more Republicans went to the polls than Democrats is usual in New Hampshire primaries. With a president's name not on the ballot, many voters take it for granted that no harm is done by staying away from the polls altogether.

Some members of Congress have interpreted the vote for McCarthy as an "anti-Johnson" vote. This, of course, is a logical inference, but the real question is how many of those who voted for Sen. McCarthy in the Democratic primary would prefer Nixon, for instance, to President Johnson in November.

Based on past experience with rump movements, however, it may well be that by the time the convention is held, the amount of opposition to the President's renomination will be irrelevant unless Sen. Robert Kennedy of New York does throw his hat into the ring.

The New Hampshire primary does not prove that the voters in the Democratic party are opposed to the renomination of President Johnson. Nor does it establish that the selection of Nixon as the Republican nominee will necessarily assure a victory for him.

Much will depend on exactly how the Republican candidate defines his position in connection with the Vietnam war.

President Johnson also can be expected to make clear before election day what he believes can and should be done to bring about peace in Vietnam.

The results of the voting in New Hampshire this week can hardly be called decisive as a measurement of public opinion.

Bob Considine Says:

Charge for Drinks, Films Bodes Ill for Air Traveler

WASHINGTON — The Ides of March arrived a bit early this year. The bad news from here was that the Civil Aeronautics Board, which rules absolutely over America's airlines, told the carriers they must charge everybody for booze served in flight and also for the movies shown while aloft.

CONSIDINE

Some airlines do, some don't. It depends. Foreign carriers who had to meet the competition of U.S. lines that threw in a movie as a bonus on transocean flights, and needed money to put in the equipment and rent the films, pushed through a $2.50 charge for an in-flight show a year ago.

The CAB signed an agreement with the International Air Transport Association that forced TWA, Pan Am and Northwest to do the same, and now has renewed it.

This goes for the passengers in the tourist section, too. They've come full circle, so to speak, in a fight for their rights.

★ ★ ★

PLASTIC CURTAIN

A plastic curtain was drawn separating First from Tourist, so that the Tourist passengers couldn't kibitz. They were not provided with earphones either, of course.

There was one hair-raising rebellion against this segregation one night over the darkest Atlantic when a lady souse in the back of the plane demanded that, as an American citizen, she had every bit as much right to see the movie that was about to start, up front, as those who sat up there.

A patient steward explained to her that the folks up front had paid about twice as much for a ticket as she had. So, sorry, but that was that. And with that, he moved up to the first class compartment, firmly closed the plastic door, and was enjoying the film while he stood guard with his back to the door when something most unusual happened.

The lady drunk had crawled up the aisle of the tourist compartment. Now she stuck her head under the plastic barrier, and bit a small filet mignon out of the steward's ankle.

EVERYBODY HAPPY

By coincidence or design films thereafter were shown in Tourist, and everybody was happy, until soaked $2.50 to buy the key to the plot — the earphones.

As for drinks, that subject has been a sensitive one for a long time. Action taken by the CAB the other day suggests that it will become somewhat more sensitive.

I don't know where the gentlemen of the CAB do their drinking but they suggest (a synonym for "demand," in their case) that the airlines charge $2 a drink. The going rate has been a buck in the rear of the plane and for free up front on all flights except very short hauls.

Discusses Millage Vote in West Bloomfield

Are we voters of West Bloomfield wholly responsible? Is our Township Board telling the whole truth? If our Board was sincere in wanting better police and fire protection, why did they not earmark one mill for each department? The three mills in a permissive proposal for the general fund is only a promise for more protection.

★ ★ ★

I suggest all voters read the brochure published by the Township, "Your Government, Your Money and Your Responsibility," and then go to the police department and see where you could house six more men. Is part of or all the millage gained going to build a new police and fire station? Remember, manpower is protection, not buildings.

Opposes State Support for Private Schools

The (mis)appropriation of public funds for private schools is not in the best public interest. Can you imagine the administrative problems or the quality of education which would exist if we had separate state-financed major systems sponsored by atheists, Baptists, black nationalists, Buddhists, Catholics, Democrats, Jews, Mormons, Nazis, etc., etc.? State support encourages creation of such private school systems.

'Draft Mature Men Rather Than Youths'

A boy's disregard of danger does not really make him the best fighter in war. He shows the same recklessness driving, but could he compete in the Indianapolis 500 against the cool, iron nerve of mature men? President Johnson's order to draft men first, including college graduates, will give boys a chance to grow up first. No average 19-year-old boy could compete against the mature graduate. Their high standard of intelligence, their fortitude to work hard to keep their grades up and to finish school will enable them to train quicker and better. Considering none of these went to college to avoid the draft, I'm sure they will be glad to serve their country.

Replies to Comments on School Finances

Once again the self-appointed expert on educational philosophy and school finance, Willie Downes, has spoken. What are the credentials of this man? How many hours of academic and practical experience does he have in school finance, school law, administration, child accounting, child guidance and counseling, etc. I am no apologist for Dr. Whitmer but at least he's qualified to assess the situation.

Mr. Downes, your archaic educational philosophy that would cram 2,800 students into that miserable building on Huron has been rejected time and time again. The 90-odd people of Pontiac who were members of the Finance Study Committee have outlined a quality educational system for all the children of Pontiac. People of Pontiac, whose recommendations are you going to follow on March 25?

MRS. ESTHER DOREY

REPLY

Each state decides which will be legal observances, and different units of government choose different days as holidays, according to the number they are allowed. Federal, state, county and city employes all observe New Year's, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving, and Christmas. Federal, county and city add Washington's birthday; county and city add Lincoln's birthday.

GOP Prodded on Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders are banking on support from Republicans—including one declared presidential candidate—in their go-for-broke plan to win passage of a civil rights bill that would outlaw most housing discrimination.

* * *

* * *

After two days of intensive strategy sessions which culminated in a two-hour meeting with civil rights leaders and White House officials, the Democratic leadership decided to present the Senate-passed bill as is for a vote. Passage would send it directly to President Johnson.

The leaders rejected an alternative plan to send the bill to a House-Senate conference for agreement on a compromise version. If their original plan fails, however, the conference approach would still be possible.

REQUIRES RESOLUTION

The procedure agreed on requires a resolution from the rules committee, headed by an archfoe of the bill, Rep. William M. Colmer, D-Miss.

"I'm not going to do anything to advance this bill," Colmer said. He also expressed doubt the bill's supporters have enough votes to win passage without some changes.

* * *

But House Democratic leader Carl Albert said he expected favorable action by Colmer's rules committee next week, with the bill advancing to the floor for a vote the following week.

"I hope that at least 75 Republicans will vote for this bill that is so important to the nation," said McCormack, conceding it would take about that many to guarantee passage.

'FREEDOM OF RESIDENCE'

Discussing the open-housing provision of the measure, Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner, a Democrat who headed the President's Commission on Civil Disorders, told a Senate housing subcommittee that "freedom of residence is essential" for all Americans.

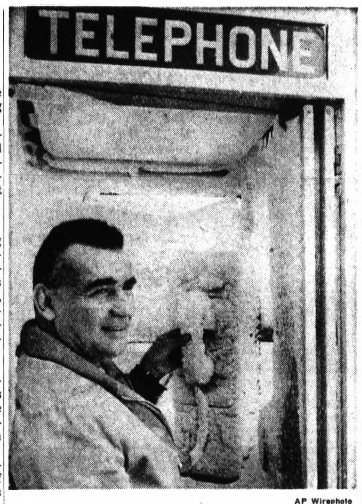

* * *

He said that while the commission put top priority on jobs in blueprinting plans to solve the nation's social ills, it considered housing and education close behind in importance.

The bill would outlaw discrimination in the sale or rental of about 80 per cent of the nation's housing units by 1970.

* * *

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, accepting a public service award, urged House passage of the bill, citing the open-housing section as being of prime importance.

Trip of Hope Given Boy Afflicted With Leukemia

By GEORGE ZARRY

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI) — Because some people in California "transplanted" their hearts and cash to Michigan, a 7-year-old boy suffering from leukemia will fly from here to the City of Hope Sunday for a last-ditch treatment.

* * *

The boy is Dean Leroy Rheens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rheens, who returned here from Burbank, Calif., two years ago for a visit to their home town after 10 years in California. In February 1966, Dean became ill.

The ailment was diagnosed as leukemia and the parents, who have five other children, wanted to take him to the City of Hope. But they were caught in an economic trap and couldn't afford to go back. The father is a part-time construction worker here.

* * *

A story about the plight of the family was publicized in California. It touched the heart of Kenneth Miles, a Monterey Park Lockheed employe who started a fund-raising campaign.

MONEY CONTRIBUTED

Other Lockheed employes got into the act, and other Californians also contributed money to bring the boy back to California.

Dr. Robert Rosen of the City of Hope told Miles that Dean would receive treatment immediately on his arrival.

Mrs. Rheens, Dean, and his sister, Kim, 13, will fly to California Sunday. The father and other members of the family will follow later by car.

Township Officials Seek State Road Fund Share

LANSING (UPI) — The Michigan State Highway Commission's opposition to sharing state road-building money with townships was nearly swamped yesterday by officials from the townships themselves.

At a jam-packed hearing before the House Roads and Bridges Committee, township officials from all parts of Michigan testified in favor of legislation that would give them a slice of Michigan's $300-million-plus highway construction pie.

The State Highway Commission, however, protested that the proposed diversion of 4 per cent to townships would "create an imbalance" in the present distribution formula. It urged the Legislature to defeat the proposal.

"A reduction in funds would place a severe handicap on the Department of State Highways' ability to meet the state's critical highway needs, thereby seriously affecting state and local economies," the department said in a formal statement.

* * *

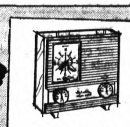

The present distribution formula, approved as part of the $60-million "good roads" package of new highway taxes last fall, gives 46 per cent of highway funds to the state, 34 per cent to counties and 20 per cent to cities and villages.

'Yes, Please' Words to Look Up To

By DENNIS DAY

Recently I read an article about a woman whose secret of happiness was to be found in two words which she had printed in large letters and placed in a frame over her sink. Those two words were "Yes, Lord."

DAY

I recognized immediately what those words meant to that woman because out of my own life there are two similar words that I'd do well to frame.

I came across them for the first time — in a meaningful way, that is — in the 1930s, back in the heyday of radio.

On one memorable occasion I had the chance to audition for Jack Benny's vastly popular Sunday night program. Kenny Baker was leaving the show and they needed someone to replace him, someone who could both sing and play the part of a good-natured stooge.

At that particular time I was just out of college and was about to enter law school in New York when a sudden appendix operation kept me idle for a term.

ONE OF THE PROSPECTS

I had done some singing on radio in New York during school days and somehow or other a recording of me singing "I Never Knew Heaven Could Speak" got to Jack Benny's wife, Mary Livingston. She suggested that I be added to the long list of prospects.

There was great secrecy about the audition. When I went into the office and saw Jack Benny sitting there, I nearly fell through the floor.

Eventually I was taken to a studio where I sang over a microphone for Jack, who sat listening in another studio. I sang for 20 minutes. I did a variety of songs and then I heard the instruction through the intercom:

"O.K. Take a rest."

* * *

And so I did. I just sat there. The time passed. The silence in that studio was nerve-wracking.

NAME IS CALLED

Then suddenly the intercom called out my name. I jumped up and quickly, without thinking at all, blurted out an innocent "Yes, please?"

I didn't know it at the time, but that remark had convulsed them in the listening room and when I later landed the job they wrote "Yes, please" into the weekly radio script.

The remark was accidental; yet, there is within it an attitude which reflects the type of upbringing I had as a child.

* * *

Like "Yes, Lord," the idea of "Yes, please" suggests readiness to respond to requests. I think that this world is made up of yes-please people and no-thanks people, and, thank God, I was blessed by being born into a yes-please family.

HOME IN THE BRONX

My four brothers and one sister and I grew up in New York's Bronx where my father was a city engineer. We didn't have much money. But somehow or other we became imbued with the idea of grabbing hold of life as it was given to us and then wringing as much good from it as we could.

All of us kids worked hard — eventually all of us graduated from college — and we played hard and prayed hard.

We McNultys (I was born Owen Patrick McNulty) were totally, unabashedly Irish. Mom and Dad both spoke with heavy brogues.

There was lots of singing of Irish songs and frequent stepdancing to an Irish accordion. We were a houseful of yes-please optimists.

Even later, when we had grown up and gone away from home — but never really away from one another — I found examples again and again of how my family accepted life with joy and willingness. I think in particular of my brother John who suffered from cancer of the stomach for two years and nine months. John never complained.

At last John was forced to enter a hospital and there he stayed for six months.

One night I was in Milwaukee playing "Brigadoon" and I telephoned long distance to see how he was. My sister answered and put him on the phone. He seemed as chipper as ever.

"Now don't forget," he said, "send me your reviews. I want to see how well you did."

Two days later John was dead. At the very moment I talked to him, they were saying the rosary for the dying.

Whenever I see people who accept life willingly, in good times or bad, I draw strength from them.

Maybe this outlook on life is too simple for some people. Maybe "Yes, please" on a sign would be pointless to anyone but me.

Nonetheless, I have found that when people say "No," or even "No thanks," they tend to look down.

When they say "Yes, please," they look up. And I like to look up.

Contest Winner, Out of Gas, Gets a 'Tankful' Prize

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Fate intervened when Mrs. Victor Sprangler ran out of gas Wednesday.

As her car sputtered and she pulled to the side of the street, she heard her license number called out over the radio. She had been declared a winner in a traffic tag contest by a radio station WDXB newsman following her.

Herrington Grounds to Get Lights

Pontiac's Herrington School will be getting outside lights to curb vandalism, which has run as high as $2,000 for a 10-month period.

The board of education last night okayed a proposal for the school's PTA to pay $400 for installation and maintenance of seven pole lights in a pilot project.

The Herrington PTA volunteered to pay the money since it is concerned about window breakage and breakins.

Board members approved the request since the PTA would be putting the money into the school anyway.

Temporary poles and flood lamps will be placed around the building at intervals by Detroit Edison Co. and 40 feet away from the building.

If the lights prove effective after the pilot period, the school district has agreed to assume the monthly costs.

In other business, the board voted to exclude two 17-year-old Pontiac Central High School students who unprovokingly attacked another student in separate incidents.

They now can't attend any school in the school district until the board of education lifts what is considered serious punishment.

The board received a letter from its Citizens Committee on Human Relations, asking that the committee's suggestions for improving student relations at Central High School be implemented.

It has been turned over to Central Principal Garth Errington for consideration.

A representative of the new militant Black Educators of Pontiac (BEP) demanded in a statement to the board that Negroes fill administrative positions which become vacant.

Negro History Shortchanged

Pontiac teachers came under fire last night for not using enough Negro history material in the classrooms.

Making the charge to the board of education was Mrs. Joan Walker, a fourth-grade teacher at LeBaron Elementary School.

She was supported by two other teachers and the executive secretary of a teaching organization.

As a result, the school board requested a progress report from Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer on why minority group materials have not been widely used by teachers.

Whitmer was also directed to suggest a policy statement on the use of the materials by teachers and to recommend ways to strengthen the in-service training program for teachers on minority groups.

Board members were particularly concerned with the topic since they have bought numerous library and classrooms materials on minority groups, particularly Negroes.

What touched off a long discussion was an oral report by Asst. Supt. William Lacy and two other administrators on progress made in including Negro history materials in the school curriculum.

* * *

Lacy said an experimental Negro history course is planned for high school summer school and during the next school year. They will be course electives.

Requests for such a course came from students at Central High School, where racial tensions broke out last month.

Lacy, however, indicated he felt it would be more desirable to improve United States history courses with contributions of Negroes being noted.

Mrs. Walker urged the board to require teachers in all schools to use the available materials "to stop the chain of hate which is going around."

* * *

Trustee Russell Brown said he was "surprised that more hasn't been done" in this area.

'STRONG INTEREST'

Trustee James Howlett advised Whitmer to notify all principals that the "board has expressed a strong interest in utilitization of the materials."

Tom Everitt, president of the Pontiac Education Association, said a board directive to teachers would be "all too late in coming."

Whitmer explained that inclusion of Negro history materials in the curriculum takes time.

* * *

Books, teacher study guides and voluntary and involuntary in-service programs on Negroes are included in the current program, Whitmer said.

60 Millionth Visitor Tours Chicago Site

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago's No. 1 tourist attraction — the Museum of Science and Industry — has welcomed its 60 millionth visitor.

Opened in July 1933, when Chicago was staging the first year of its Century of Progress world's fair, the annual visitation is nearing the 3¼-million mark.

His $8-million endowment in the mid-1920s, plus a $5-million bond issue and donations by schoolchildren and women's clubs, made it possible.

It was created by the rehabilitation of the Fine Arts Building of the Columbian Exposition of 1893.

Guppies to Be Tried as Mosquito Control

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UI) — A University of California at Riverside scientist has been commissioned by the United Nations World Health Organization to work on a mosquito control project utilizing guppies.

Dr. Ernest C. Bay will make a one-month trip to Thailand and Burma to learn whether certain guppies from Bangkok sewers can control disease-carrying mosquitos in Rangoon.

Dr. Bay will first study the fish in their present habitat — the sewers of Bangkok. He will then take them to Rangoon.

Ky Calls for 'Liberation' of North Viet

SAIGON (AP) — Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky called on the Vietnamese people today to "liberate" North Vietnam from communism and reunify the country.

In a speech to Roman Catholic villagers 15 miles north of Saigon, Ky said the government would give weapons to anyone who could hold one if they were anti-Communists.

The vice president presented arms for self-defense to several Roman Catholic parishes in Bien Hoa province.

"Down with the Communists is not enough," he said. "You have to say 'Down with the Communists, Communist henchmen and colonialists.' We will kill all of them and not let one remain alive.

'WILLING TO SACRIFICE'

"If necessary, I will be first. I will sacrifice myself."

On Wednesday, the government announced that a March to the North Army of volunteer guerrillas will be formed to invade North Vietnam.

A government spokesman said the army was being organized by members of the vice president's office, and Ky told newsmen today he will accompany it if and when it marches north.

After the division of Vietnam in 1954, almost a million refugees from North Vietnam came to the South to live. Most of them were Roman Catholics who now constitute one of the most militantly anti-Communist groups in the South.

IN VILLAGES

Since the Communist offensive in February, the government has been arming self-defense forces in various villages and neighborhoods, many of them Roman Catholic.

Ky told the Catholic villagers today. "If all the people are like you, with your spirit of anti-communism, we will liberate North Vietnam, we will reunify our country and we will return to our fatherland." Ky, a Buddhist, is a native of Hanoi.

★ ★ ★

Victory over the Communists is a Vietnamese task, Ky continued, and he said: "We have to shed our own blood to bring about the success of our country, not depend on the assistance of the allied forces."

Bill on Sex Education Faces Senate Debate

LANSING (UPI) — Although the State Bord of Education is delaying liberalization of sex education in Michigan, the State Senate is wasting no time in urging the board to get busy.

In position for debate on the Senate floor is a bill allowing local school districts to furnish full sex education programs and requiring the state board to "provide leadership" in the field.

The board has tried to settle the issue but is hung up over recommendations made in a lengthy report from the State Department of Education on revising present statutes and policies.

At its meeting Tuesday night, the board split 4-4 on two key issues: encouraging local sex education and abolishing current laws that some feel are overly restrictive. Those laws prohibit the teaching of birth control and permit only doctors, nurses and other trained specialists to teach sex subjects.

Dr. Ira Polley, the state superintendent of public instruction, told the board the present prohibitions were an "inhibiting factor" in sex education and ought to be lifted.

'NOT AN ENDORSEMENT'

He said, however, that if they were, the board's approval would "in no way be an endorsement" for the teaching of birth control.

Unable to resolve the deadlock, the board postponed further consideration of the issue for another two weeks.

Though the Senate bill does not specifically lift either prohibition, it does require the state board to set guidelines for "family planning information" given in schools and says a school may hire "competent instructors."

It also sets up a 19-member sex education advisory board to help the Education Department carry out the law and to draw up the guidelines for teaching family planning.

The bill was introduced by the Senate's only lady member, N. Lorraine Beebe, R-Dearborn, and nine of her male colleagues from both parties.

Churches' Award to Interracial Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Southern California Council of Churches calls the film, "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," an important step in overcoming prejudice concerning interracial marriage.

The council's annual best-film award was presented Wednesday to producer Stanley Kramer by Methodist Bishop Gerald H. Kennedy.

Kramer was described as being "in the great and honorable tradition of the Hebrew prophets, men who dared to face the controversial issues of their time."

Most Factors in Wisconsin Primary Favor Minnesota Senator

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — More than the scene shifts as the nation's political attention turns from the supposed administration stronghold of New Hampshire to Wisconsin, where President Johnson's policies have few all-out supporters among top Democrats.

At stake April 2 in Wisconsin's historically powerful primary which put John F. Kennedy on the high road to the White House in a head-on confrontation with Hubert H. Humphrey, are 59 Democratic National Convention votes, bound by law to the winner.

In addition to strong sympathies for Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy among Democrats, there is the possibility of a crossover by Republicans, now that the GOP primary has been conceded to Richard M. Nixon by the withdrawal of Michigan Gov. George Romney.

There is no registration of voters by party, Republican and Democratic ballots are given to each, and there is no way for leaders to enforce party loyalty even if they were so inclined.

FREQUENT CRITICS

But Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Reps. Henry Reuss and Robert Kastenmeier are all frequent critics of administration activities, particularly the war in Vietnam, and have declared they will remain neutral. Sen. William Proxmire, an administration critic on other subjects, says he will support the President's war stand but is staying neutral in the primary.

And Bronson C. La Follette, two-term attorney general and heir to Wisconsin's most glittering political name, said in announcing his candidacy for governor this week that while he too would stay neutral in the presidential contest, his position on Vietnam was closer to the Minnesota senator's than to the President's.

The 32-year-old La Follette's father and grandfather were senators, his uncle a three-term governor.

Head of Wisconsin's McCarthy organization is a party regular, 10th district chairman Donald Peterson, who today asked Sen. Robert F. Kennedy to announce support of McCarthy in Wisconsin.

STATE CHAIRMAN

The President's most active supporters are Richard D. Cudahy, a businessman who became Democratic state chairman after the 1966 elections, and the state's other Democratic congressman, Milwaukee's veteran Rep. Clement Zablocki. As in 1960, when John Kennedy and Humphrey met in the kind of a contest that left scant room for excuses, Johnson and McCarthy will be alone on the Democratic ballot.

Under Wisconsin's new primary law, there also is a provision for electors to register a protest by voting for "none of those named."

There also is a space for write-in votes. But the organization which helped former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace win 266,136 votes in 1964 has broken down and there is no concerted effort to stage a write-in on his behalf.

NO WRITE-INS

And a spokesman for those supporting Robert Kennedy says there will be no write-in campaign in Wisconsin, even though Kennedy said Wednesday that as a result of the New Hampshire voting, which gave McCarthy 42 per cent of the vote to 49 for Johnson, he was reassessing his position on whether to run against the President.

★ ★ ★

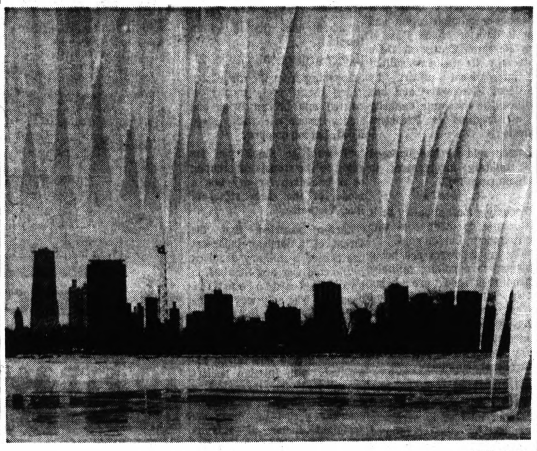

Leslie Aspin, an aide to former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara until he returned recently to his home state as executive director of the Johnson

"He's got more things going for him here," Aspin said. "In New Hampshire Wednesday he was no better here" than in New Hampshire.

★ ★ ★

Aspin said. "In my opinion, the political leaders aren't coming out for the President."

Little Hope Is Seen for Parochiaid Bill

LANSING (AP) — The controversial nonpublic school aid bills today were locked in legislative committees with little likelihood they would be reported out during the current session.

The possibility remained, however, that the proposal to grant up to $150 in state funds to parents for each child in nonpublic schools could be attached to another bill up for legislative consideration.

Principal sponsors of the measure — Reps. Thomas Brown, R-Lansing, and J. Robert Traxler, D-Bay City — said Wednesday they had not decided whether to attempt such a move.

Under their bill, grants would be made to parents of youngsters attending the state's 950 parochial schools, 682 of which are Roman Catholic, and 16 private schools.

CONTINUE FIGHT

Meanwhile, Citizens to Advance Public Education—CAPE—vowed to continue its fight against the measure.

"We don't have enough votes to put it out of committee and I don't propose to put it out on the agenda," House Education Committee Chairman Clifford Smart, R-Walled Lake, said Wednesday.

The Senate Education Committee earlier this week voted unanimously to keep the bill in committee until "an extensive study" could be made. One committee member said the measure would not go to the Senate for a vote this session.

A Senate committee statement said "the ramifications of public aid to nonpublic schools are of such magnitude that the problem should not be considered hastily."

'Talks With Russia Key to Viet Peace'

Negotiations with the Russians — rather than North Vietnam — may be the key to the military deadlock there, a former presidential aide said yesterday at Oakland University.

"It is time the two superpowers began to act like superpowers instead of being pulled around by the nose by their client states," Arthur Larson told an audience of about 300.

Larson headed the U.S. Information Agency under the Eisenhower administration and now is director of the Rule of Law Research Center at Duke University. He was a consultant in international affairs to President Eisenhower and has continued in the same capacity as a consultant to President Johnson.

Larson said he has opposed U.S. military involvement in Vietnam since 1962.

Discussing foreign policy as it has related to other cold war confrontations, Larson said:

"The great powers are being subjected to appalling military expenditures and are being drawn into possibilities of nuclear confrontation, not so much by the clash of their own immediate and direct interests, as by the clash of inerests of their clients and allies . . ."

REAL DAMAGE

"In all honesty, what real American interest is seriously damaged by the continued division of Germany? Or Berlin? Or Korea? Or Vietnam? Or China? We can live with these divisions indefinitely without being hurt as a people or a nation. The trouble is that the people of these divided countries themselves are convinced that they cannot."

Larson proposed that the U.S. and Soviet Union try to reach a stalemate of hostilities which would be worldwide, rather than limited to Vietnam.

"The Russinas may be willing to halt their arming of the North Vietnamese," he contended, "if the U.S. would agree to stop pressing for the reunification of Germany." Larson estimated that Russia was pouring about a billion dollars of arms into Vietnam each year.

★ ★ ★

"Red China is also a very important factor, of course, but the thing that keeps the war going from the Communist side is primarily the liberal supply of surface-to-air missiles, aricraft, weapons, rocket launchers and the life from Russia."

BACKDROP QUIP

Speaking from the stage of a "King Lear" set, mostly of twisted and broken twigs and stones smeared with stage blood, Larson quipped:

"I want to thank you for going to the trouble of creating as a backdrop for my talk a model of the main street of Hue, Vietname."

Larson asserted that the threat of a nuclear holocaust has caused a military deadlock in the cold war and this has, in turn, forced a diplomatic deadlock. The only way out, he feels, is to "accept the fact of a divided world.

★ ★ ★

"Anyone who has talked extensively with Russian leaders knows that the threat of a unified Germany for most of the post-war period has been the dominant factor of Russian foreign policy. To be relieved of this threat, with the support of the United States, would be worth far more to the Russians than most Americans in or out of Washington realize.

★ ★ ★

"If in return the Russians would cease its military aid of the Vietcong," Larson said the United States could concentrate all its force on preventing the passage of personnel and material through or around the proposed 'electronic fence' which would separate North and South Vietnam."

Best-Selling Poet Really Surprised by Success

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — The best-selling poet in America is not Marianne Moore or Robert Lowell or Robert Frost. He is a taffy-haired jack-of-all-musical-trades named Rod McKuen.

THOMAS

"In fact," says McKuen with a nervous laugh, "they say I'm the best-selling poet ever."

This is undoubtedly news to most of the literary critics and English teachers of the land, but it is a well-known fact to booksellers.

His first book of poems, "Stanyan Street and Other Sorrows," has sold 250,000 copies, and the second, "Listen to the Warm" 200,000. Each is selling at the rate of 5,000 a week.

McKuen's own reaction to such figures is a mixture of amazement and delight. He remarks: "Sometimes I find it hard to believe. You take a poet like T. S. Eliot. I've been told that his last book of poems sold a total fo 3,500 copies. T. S. Eliot!"

* * *

Obviously Rod McKuen is not T. S. Eliot. Not quiet. His poems are mostly in the freest of verse, although some rhyme and a dogged kind of meter. Here's a sample, titled "Apartment 4E:"

The girl upstairs
Is entertaining again,
I could set my clock
By the footfall on the stairs
I see her sometimes,
Coming and going on the stairs
Or going to the market.
Sometimes I hear her late at night
Playing sad music
Or walking overhead.
She smiles in the daytime,
But not at me.

MELANCHOLY

The poems are mostly along the same lines — plantive, melancholy, though not without rueful humor, simple laments for lost loves and distant cities, told in the spare style of Japanese haiku.

"I'm in the business of communicaton, says McKuen, "and my poems are communicating to the younger generation.

"Why? Because I'm talking to people in a language they understand; they don't need a dictionary to dig what I'm saying. I also feel there is appeal in the fact that I am not afraid to deal with emotion. Nowadays everyone is trained to suppress his emotions. To use a trite expression, I'm telling it like it is."

For 15 years, Rod McKuen had been telling it like it is, but until recently not many seemed to be listening.

He had been doggedly pouring forth songs — he has written 700 — and some of them ended up in the repertoires of such performers as Andy Williams, Eddy Arnold and the Kingston Trio.

His various record albums — singing, instrumental, poetry readings — have sold a half million copies.

"I'm getting a thousand letters a week, and they tell me Rock Hudson doesn't get anything like that," he reported.

"I've had to hire a staff to answer the mail. I'm planning a television special, and I'll produce a film of 'Stanyan Street' for Warner Brother-Seven Arts. Fos has optioned 'Listen to the Warm,' and I'd like to direct it.

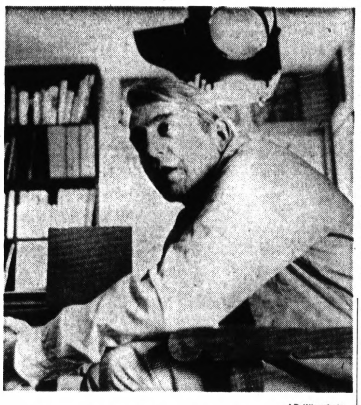

"I've got three more books coming out — another volume of poems called 'Lonesome Cities,' the Rod McKuen songbook and a children's book.

"I've had calls from Ray Strak, Edward Padula and David Merrick about doing Broadway shows. I just turned down a guarantee of $100,000 to put my face on sweat shirts and so forth; I don't want that.

I'm having the time of my life, and I enjoy it even more because I made it on my own. I wasn't promoted to replace someone, as the Monkees were because the Beatles weren't available, or Donovan was because Bob Dylan was sick. Me, I came from nothing."

A professional loner, he shrinks from comparison to such a social protester as Bob Dylan. "I'm not protesting anything," McKuen declares. "I'm no guru; I don't want to tell anyone how to run his life.

"If there's any message in my work, it's about man's inability to communicate. Fathers don't know how to talk to sons, husbands can't communicate with wives. It's the sickness of our times."

DISCUSSIONS WITH A POET — This is Rod McKuen, the best-selling poet in America. His first book of poems, "Stanyan Street and Other Sorrows," has sold 250,000 copies, and the second, "Listen to the Warm," has sold 200,000. McKuen still finds his success hard to believe. Cuba May Keep U.S. Airliners

HAVANA (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro today threatened to confiscate hijacked American Airliners because Cuban ships and planes have not been returned from the United States.

Castro charged in a lengthy speech at Havana University that hijackings were encouraged by the United States and "now they see the consequences."

"We collect them (planes), but we don't have to bother returning them as they (United States) are still in possession of several planes and boats of our own," he said.

(In New York, observers said the bearded Communist leader apparently referred to planes and small boats used by refugees who arrive in Florida almost daily. Most of the planes involved have been small single-engine craft or helicopters stolen from Cuban airfields.)

Two large U.S. jets have been hijacked in the last month, both during scheduled Tampa-to-Miami runs. The most recent was Monday when three armed men forced a National Airlines DC8 with 58 persons aboard to land in Havana.

3 REFUGEES

The three were Cubans who, only seven months before, had fled to the United States in a small boat but decided they wanted to return.

Castro complained that the United States "started this game a long time ago, encouraging people to take a boat or a plane — we weren't the ones who encouraged it . . ."

He said the United States "enjoyed causing terrible things for this country and now they see the consequences."

* * *

He later joked about the hijackings from the United States and said they had "opened a new air route."

SWISS MOVES

Castro suggested that the Swiss embassy in Havana initiate measures for the return of Cuban boats and planes. Switzerland handles U.S. diplomatic affairs in Cuba.

On other matters, Castro attacked "parasites" working in soft jobs and in private businesses.

"The last day for private enterprise is very near," he said.

* * *

He said a government survey showed many black-market operations and 955 private bars which he said were owned by persons "against the revolutionary process."

Junior Editors Quiz on TOURNAMENTS

Question: Why did owners of castles hold tournaments?

* * *

Answer: Castles were built by wealthy and powerful lords and barons, in the old days of feudalism which followed the breakup of the Roman Empire. War was going on in Europe much of the time and each lord had his fighting knights. Tournaments were gatherings which displayed the courage and hardihood of the knights.

Sometimes groups of knights would engage in fierce combat, and many might be killed; but often there would be individual encounters like the one we picture. A jousting field has been set up outside the castle. A group of nobles sit in the place of honor where a Queen of Beauty will award a rich prize to the victorious knight.

A herald blows his long horn; the mounted knights thunder at each other, aiming their heavy lances. They crash; one or both may be unseated, or even killed. Frequently, unseated knights would continue to fight on foot with swords, until one had been forced to yield.

Her Hobby Is a Work of Art

By JUNE ELERT

An artist who received five awards in four categories in The Pontiac Mall Art Show is Mrs. Robert (Jean) Belknap of Ottawa Drive.

* * *

Jean's mother, Mrs. Ruth Lockhart, was on hand to show me the model for Jean's best-of-show sculpture, Bo-Bo, a three-foot long iguana.

Jean's childhood was spent traveling in circuses with her family's reptile exhibit. Her mother and late father, Paul Allen, later operated the "Snakes Alive" Serpentarium on the Dixie Highway. Bo-Bo is one of three iguanas her mother keeps as pets.

Jean was 16 when the family settled down in Waterford.

A smiling, talkative person, Jean told me about her husband, whom she first met at Waterford Township High School. Their romance began without romance, she said, when he "came over to see my snakes."

CHILDREN, PETS

Now parents of three girls and a boy ranging in age from 9 to 16, they have other common interests. A poodle, cat and rabbit complete the household.

A tour of the home left me agape at Jean's prolific output and wide range of artistic endeavor.

Oils, watercolors, pastels, sculptures, collages meet the eye everywhere. The subjects are animals, birds, sea creatures, people and insects with a scattering of scenes and still lifes.

Jean surprised me by naming rock hunting as her primary interest. Both she and her husband make jewelry from the polished rocks. They spend family vacations traveling in a camper to desert areas in search of suitable stones.

The shelves of a basement workroom are crammed with the fruits of these excursions. (A few spaces are occupied by jars containing the coiled bodies of long dead snakes.)

Shelves and drawers of a buffet display the finished jewelry products, along with a stack of Jean's award ribbons, accumulated in the last few years.

Although she did well in art classes in high school, this interest lay dormant for many years while the babies occupied most of her time.

* * *

After her children began attending school, her father gave her a painting set and urged her to get back to drawing and painting. She said, "He believed in me. He felt I had talent."

Soon afterwards, her father was killed by a cobra at the Serpentarium. Jean determined to try to do what he had wanted.

Some examples of her early efforts were brought out for me to see.

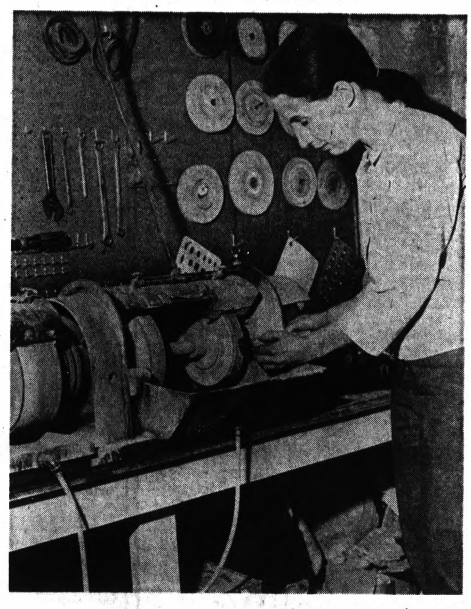

Jean laughed as she pointed out their "picture-postcard" effect and said, "I entered these in shows. I thought they were good. But I learned quickly. I read books and took classes."

She indicated that "there is more to it than just faithful copying of existing forms."

* * *

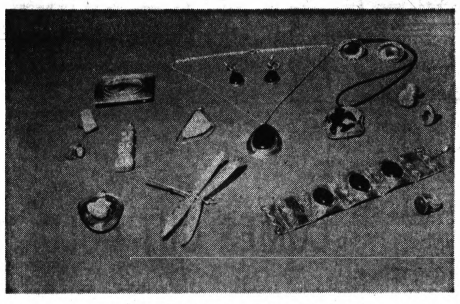

Jean was working on a sculpture at the time of our interview. Her most recently completed work was an impression of penguins "scratched" on marble. Several projects are "in the works" while ideas for others are already formulated in her mind.

Pilot Is Third Husband for Maureen O'Hara

* * *

It was the third marriage for the red-haired actress. Her 1938 marriage to British film executive George Brown was annulled in 1941, and she was divorced from movie director Will Price in 1952 after an 11-year marriage. Her daughter, Bronwyn Fitzsimmons, 23, was an attendant at the wedding.

* * *

Blair, an Air Force Reserve Brigadier General, won the Harmon Trophy in 1951 for being the first man to make a solo flight over the North Pole. He has been a pilot with Pan American Airways for the past 29 years.

The couple plans to honeymoon in Europe for three weeks after Miss O'Hara completes taping a television show here March 18. She has appeared in 52 movies since she came here from her native Ireland in 1939.

Government Stops Control on Drug

The Government has stayed an order bringing the tranquilizing drug meprobamate under the Drug Abuse Control Amendments. Control of the drug was to have become effective March 5, 1968.

* * *

The Food and Drug Administration granted the delay at the request of Wallace Laboratories, a Division of Carter-Wallace, Inc., Cranbury, New Jersey. The firm, which contested control of the drug in an administrative hearing, is expected to seek judicial review by the U. S. Court of Appeals of the FDA's decision that the drug is subject to abuse.

* * *

If the order had not been stayed, druggists, distributors, wholesalers, and others handling meprobamate would have been required to inventory stocks on March 5 and maintain records of receipt and distribution after that date.

* * *

Since the time allowed for filing a court appeal also expired March 5, the effective date for controlling the drug was delayed to avoid confusion over the status of the drug.

A New Resident Complains of Messy Neighbor

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I recently bought a new house. The man who lives in back of me, and his daughter who has a house alongside his, have lots of vacant land. They use this land for a dumping ground.

The man is a builder and he stores all his supplies in what were barns. This is a fire hazard. What can we do to improve this situation? Hinting did no good. I told them this was an eyesore, but they ignore me. — Mrs. Crane.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Crane: There is little you can do. If you find your other neighbors feel the same way, however, you might go to him in a group to express your feelings.

You should have taken a good look at his place before you bought your house. A person who moves into a new neighborhood cannot become a one-man improvement league to correct a condition which already exists and is apparently accepted by those already there.

Could Mean Real Break

Advice: Leave Well Enough Alone

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 21 and my husband is 23 and we recently bought our own home. We also have a small baby. Adjoining it is a two-room efficiency apartment that we rent out to a 41-year-old bachelor. He is nice and polite and all, but here is my problem:

ABBY

Last month I found out that this man has a suitcase full of girlie-type movies, a projector, and screen. I am sorry to admit it, but I snooped around in his apartment when I went in to close his windows on a rainy day.

Anyway, my husband's company is sending him away for four months and I'm afraid this man might try something, knowing my husband will be gone. I know that a man who looks at these movies isn't necessarily a sex fiend, but I'm worried, anyway. My husband says if he hasn't tried anything so far, he probably won't.

* * *

This man has never given us any trouble. He's quiet, keeps his place clean, and pays his rent promptly. He has no lease, so I'm wondering if we should get rid of him or not? If you tell me to get rid of him, what excuse shall I use?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Regardless of what I think, if you are "worried" about this man, get rid of him. Don't give him an "excuse" — give him a reason. The real one. He may be glad to leave.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Two months ago my husband received a birthday card from his secretary who thinks he is just wonderful.

He has been carrying that card around in his pocket ever since he got it. He changes it from one suit-coat pocket to the next whenever he changes his suit.

Now why would a man want to carry around an ordinary birthday card everywhere he goes? Why can't he throw it away like the others he received? This one he didn't show me. Why?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: If he didn't show it to you, perhaps it isn't "ordinary." Why don't you clear up the big mystery and ask him?

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with two daughters. One is married and lives 700 miles away, and the other (I'll call her "Mary") is 16, and lives with me. Mary and I have always had an ideal relationship. She's sweet, pretty, a good student, and she's never given me a moment's worry.

About six months ago, an elderly cousin of mine told Mary that I had had an illegitimate child when I was 17, and now Mary can't forgive my sin. She says our relationship has been a "lie" inasmuch as she thought I was as "good" as I always wanted her to be. When I try to tell her that I made a mistake for which I have dearly paid, she walks into her room and closes the door.

* * *

Mary attends church regularly, is a candy-striper at the local hospital, and she goes with nice people. She's everything a mother would want her daughter to be. But now she wants to go live with her married sister and finish school there. She wants nothing from me except to be left alone. How can I get through to her, Abby? I am dying of a broken heart.

A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: In time, of course, your immature daughter will grow up and realize that her cruel and unforgiving attitude is also a "sin." Perhaps (if you wish to confide in him) your pastor can get through to Mary. Or, I will be glad to write to her directly, if you'll send me her name and address.

* * *

* * *

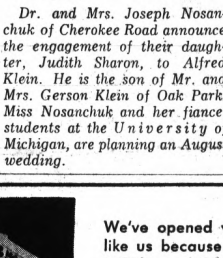

CONFIDENTIAL TO W.H.: I think one of our biggest problems is that too many adults, and not enough children, believe in Santa Claus.

* * *

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, in care of The Pontiac Press, Dept. E-600 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Nosanchuk of Cherokee Road announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith Sharon, to Alfred Klein. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerson Klein of Oak Park. Miss Nosanchuk and her fiance, students at the University of Michigan, are planning an August wedding.

We've opened very grand. Seems people like us because they've been driving over to Telegraph Road and coming in and buying our sets. We may keep our celebration going if it keeps up. Come on over. Get a goodie.

Alright, everybody, come to the table.

We think it's nice to give folks a choice. Here's one for you. Round table or square table and four Regency chairs (the picture shows more to fill up space) at a rather small price. $119.95 as a matter of fact is very little to pay for Daystrom (or any other make, today). We have another choice for you—Regal Walnut or Linden wood laminate. Otherwise there should be no choice. Except which day you'll come to the table at the House of Dinettes.

Round Face Makeup Tips

If yours is a round face, avoid highly arched eyebrows and the round-eyed look. Instead, concentrate mascara on your outer lashes and pluck beneath your brows for a short straight brow line.

★ ★ ★

For a square face, keep eyebrows and lipline rounded. For an oblong face, avoid peeked or droopy brows and a pointed bow mouth. Chin long? Draw lower lip to look as full as possible. The right hairdo can also balance face shapes and compensate for imperfect features.

Great Fashions Happen Now and When

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Women's Editor

Six young fashion designers flew into Detroit Wednesday to present their 1968 clothes and also their ideas of what women will be wearing in the year 2001.

* * *

NOW — LATER

Each designer was to create two garments that reflect contemporary fashion and one for the 21st century.

* * *

All 18 garments were presented at a press preview last night. The space age outfits are to be presented to the Detroit Institute of Arts after they have been on display in area Winkelman stores.

Outfits in the spring collection reflect a softer, more feminine styling. Demure voiles, ruffles and more closely fitted silhouettes define the wearer as a girl. Skirts are short and stockings continue to be wild.

Projecting themselves into the future, the young designers let their imaginations swing.

WEAR AND TOSS

Jeannemarie Volk sees women wearing plastic dresses that come on a roll and are pulled on over a body stocking. Each is discarded at the end of the day.

Ruth Norman puts her space age model in midnight blue transparent cellophane with matching leotard and visor. Frills set off neck, hemline and cuffs.

* * *

* * *

Kathy Brown envisions a society existing beneath the sea and plans accordingly. Her skin-tight suit of titanium and spandex is water repellent. A waterproof hood has gills filled with super-compressed air to help the wearer swim.

* * *

Jane Justin came up with a miro-mini made completely of mirrors. Shipping problems reared up and were solved by a coffin-like box with lots of packing material. The tiny glass squares become more brilliant when hit by colored lights.

UP OR DOWN?

Asked by the audience where hemlines are going, the youthful designers had this to say:

"Long, especially in coats." (Costa)

"Length is a matter of mood. There is not just one answer; it's anything you choose." (Brown)

"Youth leads and the junior customer hasn't taken to the long length yet. Fashion only changes radically when business is hurting." (Norman)

"We're not ready for the total midi look except in coats. It is not our life today." (Simic)

* * *

"I cannot conceive of active young moderns running around all day with extra fabric around their legs. It is just not practical. Eventually hemlines will drop. But I'm not ready for it." (Volk)

* * *

"For the first time in fashion all lengths are the fashion." (Justin)

And that last statement seems to sum up the situation.

Jane Justin of Don Sophisticates does things up brown beautifully with feminine embroidered dots on Dacron/cotton voile with sash belt, also in grey and white, sizes 8 to 14, $40. Available locally.

A flash from the year 2001. Victor Costa of Suzy Perette molds a dress from gleaming silver foil, believes it just the thing every well-dressed gal will be wrapped up in some 33 years hence. This very open design has a modest neckline and hem trimmed with shiny silver transistor discs.

Secretarial Skills Needed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — More than 200,000 secretaries will be needed every year for the next decade. That means 2 million needed by 1977.

* * *

The engagement of their daughter, Bonnie Blythe, to Pvt. Robert Lynn Parsons, USA, is announced by the J. Merton Lones of Strathdon Way. Pvt. Parsons, who is stationed at Fort Lee in Virginia, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Parsons of Hershey Street.

Parents and Teen-Agers Find It Difficult to Talk

NEW YORK (UPI) — Expect the communications gap between parent and teen-ager to worsen when you have a confidential talk with son or daughter — then blab contents of same.

* * *

The same will happen if every conversation takes on the tone of a courtroom interrogation.

Many of the teen-agers who stand charged with being sparse in the word department on the homefront really long for conversation with parents.

A report in the "Christian Herald" makes that point, adding that the youngsters keep the exchanges of words on a superficial level for many reasons.

-- The youngsters have learned their confidences are not respected. Their parents tell each other, or other relatives, what has been revealed in private, or make jokes, or discuss their opinions with outside friends. Child reacts by clamming up.

—Parents do not accept their children's feelings as real, but attempt to change their moods without sitting down and trying to find out exactly what bothers them.

—Parents substitute advice and orders for real conversation, dodging the issue when it comes to telling their children what they really think about such subjects as petting, cheating on examinations, politics, or religion.

—Parents talk pompously, or too knowingly, stressing only what they think without listening to the youngster's ideas. Youngsters find such talks boring.

—Parents pretend to be authorities on subjects about which they really are ignorant. They make fools of themselves especially when parading their ignorance in front of child's friends.

—In the middle of a discussion, parents lose patience, yelling at child — "You'd better do what I say" or "I know best." That puts the clamps on the child's tongue, cutting off communication.

MRS. DANIEL J. LIDDY

D. J. Liddys Speak Vows on Friday

St. Michael's Catholic Church was the setting Friday for vows spoken by Geraldine Cox and Daniel Joseph Liddy.

* * *

Mrs. Frank O'Neill stood as matron of honor for the vows wit Pamela A. Loukes as bridesmaid.

Prior to their departure for a honeymoon trip to northern Michigan, the couple were honored with a reception at the East Longfellow Street home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Liddy.

Posh Bathrooms Relatively New

NEW YORK (AP) — Bathrooms as we know them today made their first appearances in posh homes about 1880, says the Tile Council of America.

* * *

However, they didn't become a universally accepted part of the new home building plan until the 1920s, making them johnnies-come-lately among standard rooms of the home.

How to Report Gain on Sale of House

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant
in Money Management

Dear Miss Feeley:

We sold our home last week and would like to know if we have to pay a capital gains tax on the total amount we sold it for or just on the profit? Also, do we have a limited amount of time to reinvest some of the money in another home?

L.W.M., Lansing, Ill.

MARY FEELEY

Dear L.W.M.:

Let's take your second question first. If you buy and occupy another home within a year from the date of sale, the gain you have made on your home is not taxed, provided the cost of the new home equals or exceeds the sales price of the home you just sold.

The tax is not to be forgotten—just postponed. The current gain should be subtracted from the cost of the new home you purchase to give you the proper lower cost basis to be used at a later date if needed.

As for your first question, capital gains is paid on the gain from the sale of the house — the difference between the adjusted sales price and cost. Adjusted sales price is the amount you received for the house, less broker's fees, legal fees and "fix-up expenses."

The cost price is your original purchase price plus legal fees in buying the house, plus the cost of all permanent improvements inside and outside the house.

Dear Miss Feeley: A few of my friends and I are planning to start a little investment club. What information does one need for such a project? Do we have to have a contract between the members? Do we have to pay income tax on earnings? We're anxious to get started, but just don't know how or where to begin.

K. G. H., Chicago, Ill.

Dear K. G. H.: If you're going to make a success of this project, and show some profits, you will want to start by ordering the manual, "The Handbook for Learn-by-Doing Investing" published by The National Association of Investments Clubs, 1300 Washington Boulevard Bldg., Detroit, Mich., 48231.

You'll get the answers in this publication about how to set up a partnership arrangement stating the principles which the club intends to follow. There's considerable emphasis too on what Uncle Sam expects from the club pertaining to earnings made.

It is usually the treasurer of the club who determines the amount of profit that has been earned at the end of the taxable year. Each individual partner is then assessed for taxes on his share. Even though the club may not actually draw money out, there's income from these sources — dividends from securities owned by the club, short term capital gains from sales of securities owned six months or less, and long term capital gains. So a yearly tax reporting has to be done.

Since a stockbroker in your community will certainly stand to gain from the formation of your club, he, too, should be very helpful in working out the procedures necesssary to get the club on its feet.

Dear Miss Feeley: What is an annuity? I'm 67 years old, and is it too late for me to inquire about this type of policy?

Mrs. E. K., Butler, Pa.

Dear E. K.: You're never too old to purchase an annuity. In fact the longer you wait to buy one, the better income it will provide.

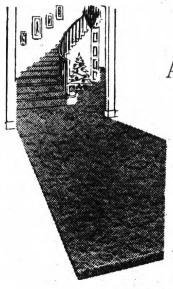

The chief purpose of an annuity is to provide you with a monthly income for life, and the same companies that sell life insurance policies also sell this type of protection. You can purchase an annuity in one lump sum payment, and monthly income payments will then start immediately.

If you decide now to invest $10,000 in what is known as a straight life contract, providing you with the largest possible payments because there's no value left in the policy if you should die, you can expect a monthly income for life, of about $69 from any one of several well-known insurance companies.

Rinse With Soda

To keep bread boxes and lunch boxes wholesome and free from stale food odors, wash frequently with soap and warm water, rinse well with a baking soda solution. A handful of soda to a quart of water, then rinse in clear water, dry, and place in sun.

YEHUDA HANANI

To keep glasses and plates from sliding around on the serving trays, put moistened paper napkins beneath them.

Cellist, Hanani, to Play in OU's Wilson Hall

Yehuda Hanani, one of the nation's most promising young cello talents, will give a single recital in the area Monday at 8:30 p.m., in Oakland University's Wilson Hall. His piano accompanist will be Anahid Alexanian.

The program will include Boccherini's "Sonata in A Major," Debussy's "Sonate," Beethoven's "Sonata No. 4 (Op. 102, No. 1), "Bach's "Unaccompanied Suite No. 6," Dvorak's "Rondo in G minor," and Paganini's "Bravura Variations on One String on a Theme from Rossini's Moses."

* * *

Hanani, born in Israel in 1943, came to this country in 1964 on a scholarship to the Julliard School of Music in New York.

Hanani studied with Leonard Shure at Harvard in 1966, and with the Stern-Istomin-Rose Trio in Oakland University's Meadow Brook School of Music that summer.

Canadian-born Anahid Alexanian has toured widely as piano soloist and is currently at the Mannes College under a Canada Council Arts Scholarship.

50 Million Hurt in U. S. Yearly

More than 50 million persons are injured to some extent every year, according to a survey by the U. S. Public Health Service.

Nearly half the injuries require only medical attention, with no restriction of the person's usual activities. One injury in five confines the victim to bed.

Starch Worn Spot

It's a help when patching sheets and pillow cases if you first dip the area to be patched in a light starch solution, then dry and press. This gives the soft, worn cloth more body, making it much easier to work with.

There are more than 40 million women drivers in the United States, or 41 per cent of the driving population. Female drivers are expected to exceed men by 1970, says one automotive source.

Mrs. Chihiro (Grace) Kikuchi of Ann Arbor wears the cap and gown she was deprived of wearing when she was graduated in absentia from Mills College, Oakland, Calif., 26 years ago. The ceremonial attire was sent to her when she was selected as the school's official delegate to University of Michigan president Robben W. Fleming's inaugural Monday. Mrs. Kikuchi was whisked away to a detention camp in Utah for persons of Japanese extraction at the beginning of United States' participation in World War II, just before she was to have taken part in Mills College graduation ceremonies.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

I don't know what you call your feet, but among other things the dictionary says, "a foot is that part of an animal upon which it rests when standing and upon which it moves." That makes our feet sound pretty important doesn't it?

Not only are we dependent on them for standing and walking but uncomfortable feet can have a truly far reaching effect on one's personality and life. Who can be gay and gracious when feet ache and throb? Also, the inclination would surely be to keep off of our underpinnings as much of the time as possible.

Problem feet may make even a part-time job you are interested in impossible to tackle and disorders of the feet limit all activities in which one can participate. This is true at any age. It is especially important to give the feet excellent care from middle-age on.

FOOT TROUBLE

It has been estimated that around 85 per cent of older people suffer from sort of foot trouble. This is even more damaging in older years because energy and physical activity are less than they were in younger years. Therefore, it is more difficult to activate many older people and foot trouble doesn't help any. Foot discomfort leads to less activity and weaker muscles.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Charles Mayo once said, "I am convinced that Doctors of Medicine, including myself, have paid too little attention to the feet in their relationship to the condition of the patient and have made too cursory an examination of the feet, considering their importance to people, with the beating they take, and their potentiality as a source of comfort or discomfort." Also, insensitivity and discoloration on the feet may be warnings of more serious trouble.

Be sure to wear correctly fitted shoes.

If you are overweight, lose those extra pounds! They place a strain on your arches as well as your heart.

Use a wet pumice stone or wet a brush with soapsuds on any calluses when in your bath, unless you have diabetes. Then get expert help.

Cut your toenails straight across the top.

Have your feet examined periodically by a podiatrist or a chiropodist.

The importance of foot care has come into its own. There are many foot clinics. Podiatrists in the United States alone serve more than 1,000 such clinics. Some schools of nursing are now including elementary care of the feet in their courses.

Plenty of Suds

Lack of sufficient suds in washing silk garments may cause troublesome deposits which settle on the surface and in seams, hems, and other thicknesses. To prevent these black specks, use enough soap or detergent suds to maintain a thick, foamy topping.

It's Woman Driver

Femme Fatale Behind Wheel

LONDON (AP) — A road safety officer claims the modern femme fatale is the woman driver who wears a long-line bra and tight corset.

And he launched an appeal for safer clothes for women drivers.

Drawing on 40 years driving experience, the Major warned:

GIRL WATCHER

The Major, who explained his findings were the logical and obvious result of standing at street corners watching women drivers, said:

"She spends her time trying to relieve the discomfort. She takes her hand or hands off the wheel and yanks at the offending garment.

"When they refuse to budge she becomes irritable, her attention wanders and to escape the torture she puts her foot down and more than likely has an accident."

Major Cook also condemned dresses with wide sleeves, high-heeled shoes, narrow dresses, mini-skirts which ride up and nylon gloves which slip.

"I suppose the ideal outfit would be nothing at all," he added, conceding, "but that might distract other drivers."

EXPERT

Anne Hope wrote in the Sun newspaper that she put the Major's views to Britain's best-known woman rally driver, Pat Moss-Carlsson, who piloted an Italian Lancia in this year's Monte Carlo rally and who used to drive for Saab of Sweden.

"Few girls are so daft as to wear uncomfortable clothes when motoring," she replied.

"Look at me: I can't bear being restricted in a rally.

If I feel restricted I undo the hooks and eyes.

I wouldn't wear one nor would any of my friends.

"High heels?—Out for driving. I always keep a pair of flatties in the car. Don't you?"

IN THIS WEEK'S COLUMN WE BRING YOU SOME ADDITIONAL, HELPFUL DECORATING IDEAS

Did you ever think of putting a black - board on your kitchen wall? It will serve not only as a shopping reminder but as a place to write family and phone messages, appointments, recipes and the menu for tonight.

When planning to decorate a room, many people think only of 4 walls, but to do a smart decorating job you must consider 6 "walls" or areas to co-ordinate. Four walls, the floor and the ceiling must all be given equal attention.

By the same token many people don't take into consideration that proper lighting has not one — but two distinct jobs to perform. First, you need one kind of background light for the entire room and secondly another kind of stronger lighting for specific purposes such as reading, card playing, etc. By realizing both functions of lighting, you'll do a better job.

You can put new life in a drab room with fresh colors on fabrics and accessories or with vividly colored artificial fruits and flowers.

Here's another decorating idea to think about. You may want to mix the old and the new. For greater interest and contrast, try using a fine antique chest in an otherwise modern room, or modern art in a traditional room.

And don't forget — for help in attractively furnishing your home, we are at your service always. Each member of our staff is trained and qualified to provide helpful hints on selection of correct furniture sizes, furniture placement, blending and co-ordinating of colors, etc. This is just one more of the many ways we try harder to go out of our way to help you create the kind of home you want for yourself and your family. We take into consideration your personal needs, and we suggest accordingly.

Best of all, we help you with greater selections of every type of furniture for every room and offer them in a selection of lower prices to satisfy the needs of your budget. Then, we give you a choice of several payment plans to suit your requirements. If there's something else we can do for you, all you need do is ask! Our number one purpose is to earn your friendship. After all, that's how we build our business.

—Stop in and browse. You're always welcome. We're located at 536 North Perry just across Glenwood from Kmart and we're open every night till nine P.M. and Saturdays till 6. Phone us at FE 4-9615.

Breading Meats With Crackers

When breading meats with cracker crumbs, roll the crumbs into the meat with the rolling pin. This makes a more even and more thorough job of breading.

Dip the meat as usual into beaten egg first, then lay it over a thick layer of the crumbs sprinkled over waxed paper. Cover the top with crumbs and roll the pin over them lightly. Your meat will be well breaded on both sides at once.

Beckers the Mall SHOES

Need Awareness of Distinct Individuality

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Our eight-year-old girl is friendly with a girl who plays with her only when other youngsters aren't around. When this girl comes over to our house, she leaves our phone number with her mother who calls her if another child wants to see her. She has also walked out on Carol when other youngsters call her from the street.

I know that parents are not supposed to interfere in children's friendships but I wonder how long I have to keep quiet about such a hurtful one as this one . . .

ANSWER: You don't have to "keep quiet" about it at all.

Certainly, Carol has to suffer this friendship until she gets so sick of its hurts that she either gets better treatment from it or rids herself of it. But you are not Carol. So, if you don't share her opinion of this girl, you're free to say so.

Any time you like, you're free to say, "So Jane's gone off again with another child, eh? Well, you can like her forever, if you want to but I don't like her. I think she's a mean girl."

If you claim your right to express your feelings about this girl you'll find it much easier to grant Carol her right to express her different ones.

Remember that our noninterference in a child's undesirable friendship has nothing to do with the friendship. It has to do with Carol's training in acceptable difference from us. So, if we "keep quiet" about our different opinion of her friend but pretend to agree with hers, she's deprived of that training.

Denied the quiet but honest expression of our opposing feelings, loyalty to her own cannot develop, slowing Carol's trust of her own judgment until circumstances arrive to change it.

I make this point because the extreme behavior by which so many teen-agers now declare their difference from us is the result of too much parental agreement in childhood.

In adolescence a child must say, "I am not you." But if we have stifled our you, lost our otherness to pretended (and resentful) agreement with all his opinions, he's got to resort to most drastic methods to say: "I am not you."

Advocates Women's Rules

'Fullerette' Job Fills Women's Needs

HARTFORD, Conn. — Women who work for a living are entitled to special rules. They should not be bound by rules created for an out-moded world where men were the only breadwinners.

That is the view of one of the country's leading industrialists, Avard E. Fuller, president of the Fuller Brush Co., which has just completed the second year of its Fullerette program.

For the first 61 years of its existence, the 'Fuller Brush Man' was synonymous with the man ringing the doorbell. Now the Fullerette has joined him on the doorstep.

"We knew, when we decided to go ahead with the Fullerette program, that a woman who wants to work also has to take care of a home," says Fuller.

"We used to expect a Fuller Brush man to work full time but we changed all that when women joined us. A Fullerette may work as many hours as she chooses, on as many days as she chooses and, if a kid gets sick or Christmas comes along, she may take time off, at will.

"Naturally, some of us thought that such an approach might be too haphazard but we soon learned that three women working three hours a day can sell as much as, and often more than, one man working nine hours," Fuller continues.

Women approach the selling job differently from men, he points out. "A man is thinking about a living for his family. A woman becomes a Fullerette for a hundred different reasons.

FLEXIBLE HOURS

"You wonder how a woman in Milwaukee with 10 kids can be one of our leading Fullerettes until you realize this was a heaven-sent opportunity for her. She was dying to get out of the house for just a few hours a day.

"No job which required her to be at a certain place at a certain time every single working day was possible for her but she could be a Fullerette on a work-when-she-could' basis.

"A Miami housewife decided to earn some money when her husband became bedridden while a Phoenix woman decided she wanted enough money to add a patio to her house. Incidentally, she went on for a mink coat after the patio was laid down."

There are now some 30,000 Fullerettes around the country, Fuller reports.

★ ★ ★

"The housewife with curlers and a wrap-around often welcomes a Fullerette while she might refuse admittance to a man. The real difference is that the men prefer to sell but the women prefer to visit.

"This means that women tend to spend more time with a customer. Often a Fullerette will spend twenty minutes where the man would be in and out in five minutes.

"Strangely enough, the women manage to sell almost as much as the men in the same time. They see fewer customers but they make bigger sales.

"Since the Fullerettes are selling almost entirely to neighbors, they tend to sell in odd ways, uninhibited by circumstances. Some sell while attending bridge parties and others have sold right on the street to mothers pushing their baby carriages.

"Then there was this housewife in Idaho whose home was visited by a book salesman. She turned about and sold him an eight dollar order. When she delivered it, the book salesman's wife ordered eleven dollars more.

"Our Fullerettes often travel by boat, on horseback and by bicycle. We have hundreds of Fullerettes who stay with us because walking is part of their weight-control program," Fuller says in awe.

"At first we thought that husbands might prove difficult. Although we often find an initial resistance, it soon wears off.

"One Pennsylvania man who objected at first, now spends his evening keeping his wife's records and wrapping the merchandise for delivery. In Virginia, there is a husband who inspires his wife by setting quotas for her to fill.

"We tried to figure out what sort of woman is most likely to become a Fullerette but after a year we're still puzzled. Maybe nobody can understand a particular woman's needs.

"We have the wives of lawyers, doctors, deputy sheriffs and aviators. We have women who are nurses, teachers and factory workers. In Texas, one of our Fullerettes is also a chemist in a Phillips-Petroleum plant,

"In Boston, we have a retired TV actress. Right here, in Hartford, a violinist in our symphony orchestra also is a Fullerette," Fuller continued.

"You want to know something?" he added. "My wife even became a Fullerette."

Polly's Pointers

Put Set Up Higher

DEAR POLLY — An experiment in our home over a period of time has proved that, at least in part, television slump is the cause of much poor posture. Try raising the position of the television set onto a high shelf or cabinet. Everyone would have to raise their eyes and the chin will follow as backs straighten to glance up at the screen.

With a set in such a position, even getting up to change the channel will raise the arm and stretch the back muscles, instead of bending over to turn the knob. — VIOLET

DEAR POLLY — I keep an old squirt bottle filled with vinegar under the sink or near the dishwasher. When I wash dishes or pans that have an odor, such as from fish, I just squirt a little vinegar in the suds or rinse water to take away the unpleasant odor. — MRS. H.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — How can I whiten plastic shower curtains (flowered with a white background) that have yellowed?—BONNIE

DEAR POLLY — A missing thimble can be the cause of putting off that "stitch in time that saves nine." Believe me, I know since it has happened to me all too often. Now I have discovered that some small plastic bottle caps are thimble-sized, so I started a collection of them.

I keep these in the drawer of my sewing machine. Now, when needed, I have an almost-perfect substitute for that missing thimble.—MRS. M.E.M.

DEAR POLLY — I am answering the woman who wanted to remove iron-on tape or patches. It is a simple job if you just iron it off the same way you iron it on, crazy as that may sound. Take the hot iron and apply to the tape, and then lift up one end of the hot tape and pull. It comes off without any trouble. Hope this will keep someone from ruining a garment as I did before discovering this method.—MRS. M.M.

★ ★ ★

Polly's note — As a further precaution, it might be wise to do as Mrs. R. R. suggests. When removing the iron-on tape with the iron, place a clean cloth over the tape before ironing so the garment will not get scorched.

Spout Measures Drink Allotment

New for the home bartender is a cordless electric "pumpermatic" pour spout that will fit any bottle. At the touch of a fingertip, it will shoot exactly the amount of beverage desired into a glass.

Vinyl Holds Up

New vinyl sink mats are stain resistant, will not mold or mildew, will not chip or peel, and are unaffected by hot water, frozen surfaces, or strong detergents, the manufacturer says.

For Busy Woodworker, 90

It May Be Time to Slow Down

KALAMAZOO — Peter Schrier just turned 90 and he says he is going to give some thought to slowing down a little.

And for a man entering his 10th decade, he has a lot of unlikely activities to moderate.

Schrier, who lives alone in a large stucco home he built himself in 1929, includes among his activities intricate wood carving, yard work, a vegetable garden, and ice fishing — without the comfort and protection of a shanty.

This latter activity may be the first to be curtailed, although not necessarily, because sitting out on a frozen, windblown lake is too taxing.

"Lately it seems we never catch anything," he explained. "We" in this case includes a brother, John, who is just 82.

BOYHOOD HOBBY

He carves a wide variety of objects, but recurring favorites are complicated toys and puzzles formed from a single piece of wood.

Among these "all-of-a-piece" carvings are rattlelike toys with a round ball caged by thin pillars, and long chains, each link carefully whittled free of its neighbor. The links take about 20 minutes each from roughed-out blank to finished copy, he says, and a six-foot length requires about a week of off-and-on labor.

His other woodworkings include rocking chairs in various sizes and styles, and small oval tables, some of which are replicas of full-sized furniture he has built.

Often a project which proved "too simple" in a soft wood is duplicated in cherry or oak.

Schrier's wood carving has always been something of a busman's holiday; with a brief exception he spent the years from the time he was 14 in 1892 until his 'complete' retirement eight years ago as a carpenter.

Home building, particularly for a "finish" carpenter like Schrier, was an entirely different proposition when he started working for his father and later for himself.

"There weren't any 'prefinished' parts in those days," he says. "We even made our own window frames from rough lumber."

Not surprisingly, the home-building projects Schrier recalls best are some of the ornate old houses built near the city's core for some of its wealthier residents.

"Nobody much cares for intricate trim nowadays, and if they do they can buy it already made at most any lumberyard," he says. "But we used to make a lot of it — al right there on the job."

Schrier has few worries, except perhaps a nagging bother that licensing officials may not want to renew his driver's license this spring.

"If they don't, it'll just be because I'm 90," he says.

Fossil Found in Antarctica

Trace of Inhabitation by Land Invertebrate

NEW YORK (UPI) — A jagged rock fragment two inches long has provided science with the first evidence that the Antarctic was inhabited by land invertebrates, a paleontologist at the American Museum of Natural History reported yesterday.

Dr. Edwin H. Colbert said the fragment is the fossilized rear section of the jawbone of an amphibian some four feet long, not unlike a giant salamander.

The vertebrate known as a labyrinthodont lived near the South Pole about 200 million years ago — about 250 million years after the first primitive vertebrates emerged in the earth's seas.

The fossil was found by a geology team of the Institute of Polar Studies, Ohio University, which worked in mountainous country about 325 miles from the South Pole early last year. It was imbedded in the solidified sediment of a stream bed along with ferns and other plants of the Triassic period.

★ ★ ★

"It is one of the most important fossil finds of the century," said Colbert. "It has very far-reaching implications."

Crimes of Violence Down in Seven Outstate Cities

DETROIT (AP) — Crimes of violence in seven outstate Michigan cities dropped by three per cent in 1967, even though such crimes were rising by 15 per cent across the nation, the FBI reported today.

* * *

In its annual crime report, the FBI listed a total of 3,925 crimes of violence as having occurred in 1967 in the cities of Flint, Grand Rapids, Saginaw, Lansing, Livonia, Warren and Dearborn. The agency reported that 4,079 violent crimes occurred in 1966 in these cities.

Detroit continued to report the highest number of crimes in all categories, but the FBI did not compare the Motor City's 1967 crime incidence with 1966 because a new system of reporting crime was inaugurated by the Detroit Police Department for last year.

FIGURES LISTED

Hamburger Is Always a Favorite

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

Hamburger will never take the place of steak — that statement is hard to challenge. But there's a world of good eating in hamburger, or if you prefer, ground beef.

★ ★ ★

What's the difference? Plenty. Quality and price are the two considerations.

Hamburger has more fat in it than ground beef, but even it is regulated in Michigan. Ground chuck and ground round mean just that — the chuck portion or round steak is ground for patties or meat loaves.

You get what you pay for. We assume, of course, that you are shopping in a reputable meat market or supermarket.

★ ★ ★

You must decide whether the loss of volume when the fat cooks out of hamburger is enough to offset the lower price.

LESS FAT

Chuck and round will be drier, but the fat loss is less. Some cooks prefer hamburger because they think it has a better flavor.

We often buy hamburger for chili or spaghetti sauce. We pour off the fat as it accummulates and lift it off the sauce after it has chilled for 24 hours. The good flavor is there.

Someone has decided to call March "National Hamburger Month." That's all we need to round up some recipes.

★ ★ ★

When you are making hamburger patties, treat them gently and don't mash them down.

Extend the amount of meat you have with bread or cracker crumbs, oatmeal or crushed cereal like corn flakes. For liquid, use water, milk, tomato juice, leftover juice from canned vegetables or wine.

Try various combinations of herbs. Broil, pan broil, grill or barbecue. Serve with or without a sauce. There is really no limit to the possibilities.

What parent hasn't been embarrassed by his child's asking for a hamburger in some rather elegant restaurant? The young like hamburger.

If you're catering to those hollow-leg appetites, you might serve Sky-High 'Burgers which are the tallest, the wildest and the biggest hamburers of them all.

These are to be attacked with knife and fork; but let everyone find his own method.

SKY-HIGH 'BURGERS

1½ pounds ground beef chuck
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon celery salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 hamburger buns, toasted
Catsup
Sweet pickle relish (about 1 cup)
4 onion slices
4 tomato slices
Mustard
4 small sweet gherkins

Mix together chuck, salt, celery salt and pepper; shape into 12 patties about 3 inches in diameter (about 2 ounces each). Pan fry patties to desired doneness.

Build up each 'burger by layering in this order; bottom half of bun, spread with catsup; pickle relish; 1 'burger; more relish; 1 onion slice; another 'burger; relish again; 1 tomato slice; the third 'burger; a last layer of relish; top half of bun, spread with mustard. Garnish with a small sweet gherkin on a wooden pick. Makes 4.

Hamburger tarts will appeal to the whole family. Make enough so that you can have them for dinner with some left over. Tucked into a luncheon the next day, they'll be a welcome change from the usual sandwiches.

HAMBURGER TARTS

Pastry
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup lard
5 tablespoons cold water

Filling
1 pound ground beef
¼ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup minced onion
3 tablespoons minced green pepper
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon thyme
½ cup catsup
1 can cream of mushroom soup
¼ cup milk

★ ★ ★

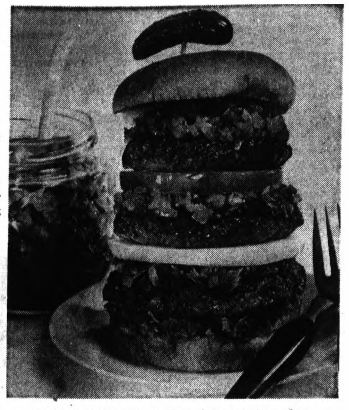

Make pastry and roll to ⅛ inch thickness. Cut into eight 5-inch rounds and fit into eight muffin tins.

★ ★ ★

For the filling, in 2 tablespoons hot fat, cook celery, onion and green pepper for 5 minutes. Push to one side and sear beef. Spoon off excess fat and add seasonings and catsup.

Fill pastry cups with meat mixture and fold pastry edges over filling. Bake in a 400 degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes, or until pastry is lightly browned.

Garnish with criss-cross strips of pimiento and serve with sauce made by heating the mushroom soup with the milk.

SKY-HIGH 'BURGERS—High, wild and handsome is this triple 'burger sandwich. It has everything that goes with hamburgers in it. The pickle was added at the top for good luck — without it there would have been 13 layers!

HAMBURGER TARTS — Ground beef, one of the more economical meat buys, is prepared here as hamburger tarts, an exciting new dish to serve hot for dinner or cold in the lunch box.

Simmer Sauce for Hamburgers

Barbecued hamburgers served on toasted buns or fluffy rice are deliciously different. The delightful flavor is in both the meat and the sauce.

Barbecued Hamburgers

1 pound hamburger
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon shortening
1 cup catsup
1 sliced onion
¾ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon dry mustard

Mix together hamburger, finely chopped onion, salt, and pepper. Shape into 4 large or 6 smaller patties. Pan fry in hot shortening to brown both sides. Combine catsup, sliced onion, vinegar, sugar, and dry mustard. Pour over hamburgers. Cover and simmer 20 minutes. Serve over toasted buns or fluffy rice. Yield 4 to 6 servings.

Four Hamburgers Line Up on a Roll

If you wish a quiet celebration of Hamburger Month, stay at home one night and cook up a batch of Hero 'Burgers for a few of your best friends.

Four juicy beef patties are stretched out the length of the hero roll, and alternated with slices of onion and tomato and a pimento. There are a few other ingredients to season it properly.

HERO 'BURGERS

1½ pounds ground beef chuck
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Mayonnaise
Prepared mustard
4 hero rolls, split lengthwise
Shredded lettuce
4 tomato slices
4 onion slices
4 canned pimientos
4 dill pickles, sliced lengthwise

Mix together chuck, salt, garlic salt and pepper; shape into 16 patties, about 3½ inches in diameter (1½ ounces each). Pan fry patties to desired doneness.

Blend 2 parts mayonnaise to 1 part prepared mustard, amount of each depending on size of hero rolls; spread on both sides of rolls. Place shredded lettuce on bottom half of each roll.

Arrange on top of lettuce 4 hamburger patties alternated with 1 tomato slice, 1 onion slice, and 1 pimiento. Top with pickle slices and top half of roll. Makes 4.

Bake Ground Beef in Pastry for Buffet

With a little imagination and ingenuity you can transform ground beef into an exciting dish that's really something extra special. Brown it with some onion and a hint of garlic, add some tomatoes, some capers and pimiento-stuffed olives and serve it baked in a crisply tender pie crust.

It looks continental and very Spanish, and yet it's simple to make and quite economical. It's good to include at a buffet party because it's attractive and easy to serve.

SPANISH HAMBURGER PIE

1½ pounds ground beef chuck
1 medium onion, chopped
1 medium green pepper, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ cup flour
½ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
⅓ cup seedless raisins
1 can (1 pound) tomatoes
2 tablespoons capers, drained
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¾ teaspoon ground cumin or ½ teaspoon chili powder
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup solid all-vegetable shortening
3 tablespoons water

Break up ground beef in skillet, then stir over medium heat until lightly browned. Add onion, green pepper and garlic; cook until onion is tender.

Drain off excess fat. Blend in ¼ cup flour. Add olives, raisins, tomatoes, capers, 1½ teaspoons salt, pepper and cumin.

Bring to a boil; cover and simmer over low heat 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and cool while making pie crust.

Combine 1½cups flour and ½ teaspoon salt. Cut in shortening until uniform but coarse. Sprinkle with water, toss with a fork and press into a ball.

On lightly floured board, roll out the pastry 1½ inches larger than inverted 9-inch pie plate. Fit into plate and trim ½-inch beyond edge of plate. Fold under to make double thickness of dough around rim and flute edge.

Spoon filling into pie shell. Bake in 425 degree oven 30 minutes or until crust is browned. Garnish with sliced pimiento-stuffed olives and serve with finely chopped hard-cooked egg, if desired.

Let Relish Stand a While to Mellow

Allen Matlock's Relish

2 packages (each 9 ounces) frozen artichoke hearts
2 pounds small mushrooms, wiped with a damp cloth
2 bay leaves
1 teaspoon mustard seed
⅓ cup sugar
1½ cups cider vinegar
2 cloves garlic, peeled

Cook artichokes with amount of water and salt called for in package directions for anly 5 minutes to keep crisp; drain. Cover mushrooms with water; boil for 3 minutes; drain.

★ ★ ★

Marinate and Cook Patties in Wine

These are burgers with a difference, burgers that have a flavor that will set folks wondering what it is that makes them so good.

And, if you're the kind of cook who will tell about her recipes, you'll have to explain that there are a number of reasons for the superb taste and appeal of VIP Cheeseburgers.

In addition to the usual ground beef, we've added canned deviled ham, red wine and a bit of Tabasco. Different? Um-mm, yes!

VIP CHEESEBURGERS AND FRIES

2 pounds ground beef
2 2¼-ounce cans deviled ham
½ teaspoon Tabasco
¼ teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
¾ cup dry red California wine
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons minced parsley
Pasteurized process Cheddar cheese spread in pressure can Toast points
Mushrooms, sauted
Frozen French fried potatoes

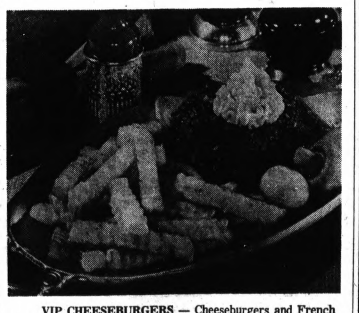

Mix together beef, ham, Tabasco and pepper. Shape into 4 patties. Place in a flat container; pour over the wine; let marinate in the refrigerator for 2 hours.

Drain, reserving the wine. Melt the butter in a skillet; brown the hamburgers on both sides, then add the wine. Cook to desired degree or rareness; place on toast points. Sprinkle with parsley; spoon pan juices over; top with rosette of cheese.

Serve with frozen French fried potatoes, prepared as directed on package, mushrooms and additional Tabasco.

SPANISH HAMBURGER PIE — Economical ground beef, seasoned and combined with sliced pimento-stuffed olives and served in a crisp, tender crust, is deliciously different.

VIP CHEESEBURGERS — Cheeseburgers and French fries appeal to all ages. But adults may prefer a more sophisticated version. These special 'burgers are prepared in wine and come to the table with a rosette of cheese.

Preschoolers Can Be Taught to Eat a Variety of Foods

Set the stage for new foods carefully if you want to appeal to the fussy appetities of preschoolers, advises Mrs. Rosalie Hawley, home economist with the Cooperative Extension Service in Oakland and Wayne counties.

Helping preschoolers discover and enjoy a variety of food is good nutrition insurance. Studies show that children with adequate diets eat a larger variety of foods than those with "poor" diets.

To make the debut of new foods successful, be sure the child is not tired or excited, says Mrs. Hawley. Fatigue causes both rebellion and resistance to change.

The enthusiasm of others eating and enjoying food is contagious. Nursery schools use this idea by seating fussy eaters at the same table or next to children who readily accept many foods. Food habits of parents and older brothers and sisters are also important examples to preschool children.

Make mealtime happy, secure and leisurely. Pleasant conversation that includes the child generates security and pleasure and makes new food more acceptable.

SMALL HELPINGS

Portions served to preschoolers should be small. A plate heaped with an unknown food overwhelms a child; a small amount is enticing.

Allow the child to help with meal preparations. Just opening the box makes frozen vegetables seem more attractive to a two-year old.

Remember that young children have food preferences, Mrs. Hawley reminds. Plan meals to include a particular favorite when serving a less popular or new dish.

Crunchy foods are high on the preference list of most young children. They like both the sound and feel of eating toast, carrot sticks, and celery. Cooked forms of these food are not nearly as popular.

The preferred serving temperature for cooked foods is slightly warmer than lukewarm. Chilled foods such as milk and ice cream are also favorites.

Hot, highly seasoned foods are too irritating to young palates to be popular. Foods that are hard to eat, such as tough meat, also may be rejected.

Cooperative Extension Service Bulletin 588, "Food for Your Preschool Child" gives additional information about diets and eating habits of preschool children. It's available at no cost from the Cooperative Extension Service Office, 155 N. Saginaw Street, Pontiac, Mich. 48058.

Top Ambrosia Dessert With Creamy Sauce

Dessert is the wonderful end-of-meal treat that everyone waits for. In the British Isles it's called a "sweet" or "trifle" no matter how elaborate it is.

Here a dessert can be as simple as a portion of "fruits in season" or as intricate as a mousse. The trick is getting a dessert that looks elaborate — but is easy to prepare.

Such a one is Japanese Mandarin Orange Ambrosia.

A few minutes working on your stove, several minutes wielding a beater, and that's all the "work" there is. The refrigerator does the rest. Yet when you bring it to the table, it will look as if you'd spent hours fussing and fixing.

Because this dessert is so-easy-as-pie to make, it's a wonderful last-minute suggestion when you get those unexpected guests.

Mandarin Ambrosia

2 11-oz. cans Mandarin Orange segments
2 tablespoons flaked coconut
1 tablespoon flour
¼ cup granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup heavy cream
1 cup juice drained from Mandarin segments

In heavy saucepan combine flour, sugar, and salt. Combine eggs, cream and juice; stir into dry ingredients in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Pour into bowl or pitcher; chill.

Serve over chilled Mandarin segments and coconut. Makes about 2 cups sauce and enough for 6 servings.

MANDARIN AMBROSIA — Next time you want to make a light and lively dessert that's many cuts above the ordinary, try your hand at Japanese Mandarin Orange Ambrosia. You'll find it a delicious paradox: elaborate yet simple; rich-tasting yet inexpensive; easy to remember yet hard to forget!

It's a German Dish

Start With Noodles

The National Macaroni Institute claims that macaroni products can be combined with almost any other food to produce a delicious main dish. This recipe proves the point quite dramatically. Attractive curly-edge Munchen egg noodles join sauerkraut and seedless raisins in a delectable dish.

Egg Noodles with German Meat Balls is a robust dish in which the kraut and raisins perform together to produce a sweet-sour flavor that is typically German.

Egg Noodles With German Meat Balls

1 pound ground beef
1 slice white bread, cubed
2 medium onions, grated
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
½ cup firmly-packed brown sugar
¾ cup seedless raisins
3½ cups undrained sauerkraut
8 ginger snaps
2 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce
1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
8 ounces egg noodles (about 4 cups)*

Combine beef, bread, half of the onion, 1 teaspoon salt and pepper; shape into 1-inch balls. In Dutch oven or large pot, combine remaining onion, sugar, raisins, kraut, ginger snaps and tomato sauce. Add meat balls and simmer covered 1½ hours.

* * *

Meanwhile, add 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add noodles so that water continues to boil. Cook, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Serve topped with meat balls and sauce. Makes 4 servings.

*Or use medium egg noodles.

EGG NOODLES WITH GERMAN MEAT BALLS—Curly egg noodles provide a golden background for German meat balls in a sauce made sweet-sour with seedless raisins and kraut. The dish can be made with medium egg noodles if you prefer.

BRUNCH MENU—A mouth-watering brunch platter will be a welcome sight to both family and friends. For that weekend brunch specialty, serve delicately flavored Corned Beef Hash Custard surrounded by bacon flavored hominy and colorful canned sliced tomatoes.

New Way With Hash Good for Brunch

Entertaining friends after a morning filled with activitiy or maybe just after church on Sunday is always so much fun and ever so relaxing.

* * *

A perfect menu will consist of a platter brimming with Corned Beef Hash Custard surrounded by heated canned sliced tomatoes and Bacon 'N' Hominy. Toasted muffins and assorted jellies or jams will compliment this brunch trio.

This menu will also be perfect for an evening supper. It is filled with all of those special vitamins and minerals that are so necessary in our diets. A mug of hot canned soup before supper will be a taste-tempting beginning. Ice cream sundaes for dessert will mean a pleasant ending.

Spending just a little extra time in the kitchen will mean praise from both family and friends. Everything is seasoned to a "T" and all it needs is friendly conversation.

CORNED BEEF HASH CUSTARD

1 medium onion
2 tablespoons butter, or margarine
1½ cups half and half (half milk, half cream)
4 eggs
1 can (1 lb.) corned beef hash
½ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Cook chopped onion in butter until tender. Add half and half; heat. Combine well beaten eggs, corned beef hash, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Add onion-half and half mixture; mix well.

Pour into a greased deep 1½-quart casserole. Set casserole in a pan of hot water. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) about 1¼ hours, until an inserted knife blade comes out clean.

Bacon 'n' Hominy

6 slices bacon
1 can (1 lb. 12 oz.) hominy
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
Paprika

Cook bacon until crisp; remove and drain. Add drained hominy to bacon fat; sprinkle with seasoned salt. Heat over low heat, stirring occasionally. Add crumbled bacon. Serve sprinkled with paprika. Four to six servings.

Fill Up Peppers With Macaroni

Only five ingredients are needed for Ham-Stuffed Peppers. Slice tops from 4 large green peppers and remove seeds and membrane; cook in boiling, salted water 5 minutes; drain.

* * *

Combine 2 cups diced cooked ham, 1½ cups cooked macaroni and ½ can (8-ounce can) tomato sauce; fill peppers. Place peppers in shallow baking dish; pour remaining ½ can tomato sauce over peppers. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

HOT CHOCOLATE PARTY—You probably didn't even know you had a hot chocolate pot in the house, but you do if you own a large party percolator. For your youngsters' next party, make the cocoa in the Party Perk and let the kids serve themselves. West Bend Company has developed a series of recipes for making everything from cocoa to hot onion soup in a party percolator.

Cocoa for a Crowd Made in Percolator

Nothing delights youngsters as much as the prospect of a party. Promise them an afternoon or early evening get-together with their friends, then give them a hand in the plans.

Suggest an "old fashioned" theme for something different. Haul out all the old games and have the kids prove their proficiency. Or put on old records with one of the "older generation" on hand to demonstrate the jitterbug or Charleston. Be ready for howls of young laughter.

Fixing's a breeze if you put your coffeemaker to the test. It can do double-duty as a hot chocolate pot, making a generous 18 to 20 cups at one time.

Coffeemaker cocoa is ready in minutes with a minimum of bother and serve-yourself efficiency that busy party planners will love. Set out colorful, thermo mugs and plastic utensils before the crowd arrives, follow the Perky Cocoa recipe. Then sit back, relax and enjoy the capers.

If you want to put your coffeemaker to use in other ways, write to West Bend Company, Dept. PR, West Bend, Wis. 53095, for a copy of a new booklet, "Perk Up A Party."

Perky Cocoa

8 cups water
8 cups milk
¼ Teaspoon salt
¾ Cup chocolate syrup
1 cup small sugar cubes (approximately 60 cocktail size)

Place water and milk in coffeemaker. Lay sugar cubes evenly on bottom of basket. Place basket assembly into perk. Pour chocolate syrup over cubes. Add salt. Perk. When coffeemaker stops, remove basket assembly and serve immediately. Garnish cocoa with whipped cream, small marshmallows or Special Topping. Makes 18-20 servings.

Special Topping

2 tablespoons chocolate syrup
5 large marshmallows
¼ Teaspoon almond extract

Place Ham on Chicken in Casserole

Chicken With Ham and Cheese

2 eggs slightly beaten with 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon white pepper
1 cup fine soft breadcrumbs
½ cup olive oil
6 thin slices cooked ham, each about 4 inches square
½ pound Mozzarella cheese, cut crosswise into 6 slices after removing ends
1 can (10¼ ounces) Marinara sauce (meatless)

Dip chicken in seasoned egg, then coat with breadcrumbs. In a large skillet heat the olive oil and brown chicken in it so pieces are more than half cooked through — at least 20 minutes.

Place chicken in 1 layer in a 3-quart oblong ovenglass baking dish (13 ⅛ by 8¾ by 1¾ inches) or similar utensil. Top each half-breast with a slice of ham; top ham with cheese. Pour Marinara sauce over chicken toppings.

Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven until chicken finishes cooking, sauce is very hot and cheese is partly melted — about 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

You may want to add a little almond extract to a confectioners sugar frosting that is going to cover an angelfood cake.

'Mass Transit Aid Will Wait Till After Viet'

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Cities looking for federal aid for mass transit programs may have to wait until the end of the Vietnam war.

Transportation Secretary Alan Boyd and Sen. Gordon Allott of Colorado gave this warning to 1,400 experts from 100 cities Tuesday at the windup of the third annual International Conference on Urban Transportation.

In the meantime, what funds are available will be distributed to the cities with the best program, Boyd said.

"Rather than try to nickel and dime all over the country, we would pick the city where there would be the greatest benefit," Boyd said.

If a city needed $300,000 to plan a program and had $100,000 in local funds but the federal government could grant only $50,000, there would be no point in making the grant because the job could not be done, Boyd said.

IMPORTANT FOR JOBS

Meanwhile, Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois blamed a lack of adequate transportation for unemployment and underemployment in city slums.

"The truth is we have poured millions of dollars into airport construction for the small, elite flying public and billions into highways for prosperous city-bound suburbanites while . . . money-starved mass transit systems and passenger-carrying railroads have received mere pennies," Kerner said.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, who received the conference's award this year, stressed the importance of states in helping develop city transit systems.

He received the award for his efforts in securing voter approval of a $2.5-billion transportation bond issue which will be used for both highways and mass transit.

★ ★ ★

It was the largest bond issue ever approved by any state and New York became the first state to begin subsidizing transit programs.

★ ★ ★

Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania, in a speech Tuesday night, called for a $2-billion expenditure for mass transportation in his state.

The Danube River is sometimes called a highway of races because the Huns, Magyars and Turks took their armies into Europe through this beautiful picturesque valley.

Tiger Batters Deal From Cold Deck

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Detroit Tiger bats were as cold as the temperature yesterday at chilly Al Lang Field where they dropped a 6-2 decision to the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

Nelson Briles, that last of three St. Louis pitchers gave up the two Tiger tallies and the other six hits.

Tiger starter Earl Wilson was the victim of two runs which scored when a couple of scratch hits blooped over the bag down the third-base-line with two outs.

The game produced several defensive gems on the part of both teams. In the third inning, Wilson spun around and trapped pudgy Roger Maris off second base to end the inning.

John Hiller relieved Wilson in the middle three innings and had things in control until he walked Orlando Cepeda and Mike Shannon with two outs in the sixth frame.

Phil Gagliano then doubled, Dick Schofield singled, pitcher Carlton singled, Bob Tolan singled and the Cardinals had four runs across the plate before Hiller struck out Jose Cruz.

* * *

Rookie Les "Sugar" Cain held the Cardinals scoreless in his two innings on the mound, allowing two hits. Cain has now pitched five innings without allowing a run.

The Tigers managed to get two men on base in each of the final two innings, leaving all stranded.

Northrup, who now has eight hits in 18 trips to the plate in the 2-4 record in Grapefruit play, also contributed a beautiful defensive play when he grabbed a low liner along the right-field-line and pegged it perfectly to Tracewski to get Julio Javier at second trying to stretch it to a double.

Denny McLain was scheduled to start against the Los Angeles Dodgers today at Lakeland where temperatures were again expected to be on the chilly side.

Prep Scores 41 to Pace Champ

By the Associated Press

John Sperle tossed in 41 points to spark a come-from-behind effort that gave Class D defending champion Flint St. Matthew an 88-77 schoolboy basketball victory over Chesaning Our Lady in regional tournament action Wednesday night.

In other regional basketball action, Class A's second-rated East Lansing was knocked out of the running for the state crown by No. 7 Battle Creek Central 73-62.

* * *

A last-second field goal by Larry Damek broke a 65-65 tie to give Class B's fifth-rated Chesaning a 67-65 victory over Lansing Gabriels. Damek had 18 points for the game, behind Tom Beckman's 19. The victory gave Chesaning a 19-1 record for the season.

NO TROUBLE

Class D's DeTour rated in the AP poll for most of the season but left out of the final ratings, blasted 10th ranked Brimley out of the running with a 90-70 victory. Tim Tischer was DeTour's high man with 30 points.

Job Talk Continues

ANN ARBOR (AP) — University of Michigan Regents begin a two-day meeting today and the biggest news of the gathering — selection of a new athletic director — may be disguised under the agenda title, "athletic department matters."

The agenda carries no direct reference to the matter of an athletic director to replace H. O. "Fritz" Crisler, who steps down June 30.

The "athletic department matters" item is down for today's meeting, which will be a closed affair.

There has been no official inkling of who may get the job, but track coach Don Canham is seen by many as the likeliest choice.

Canham, asked about the report, said no one has offered him the job — yet.

In Lakeland, Fla., another prospect for the job, Don Lund, director of Detroit Tigers farm clubs, was making himself difficult for newsmen to reach.

The reports in Lakeland were that Lund stood a strong chance of getting the job.

The most recent information tended to pass over the chances of football coach Bump Elliott, who had been mentioned in the most prominent position months ago when talk first began about a successor for Crisler.

The field of favorites apparently has boiled down to Canham, Lund, Dr. Robert Brenzan of San Jose State and Pete Newell, who resigned Tuesday as University of California athletic director.

State Age-Group Swim Championships at PNH

Boys and girls 16 years old and under will seek 25 championships Sunday in the State AAU swimming championships at Pontiac Northern.

Preliminaries in the boys 400 freestyle will start the age-group event at 8 a.m.

The boys will compete for titles in 11 events. There are 14 girls events scheduled.

Boys competition will dominate the morning session and the girls will take over in the afternoon. All participants must be 16 or under and members of the Michigan Amateur Athletic Union or registered 'Y' swimmers. No poolside entries will be permitted.

John Moreau, swimming coach at PNH, is the meet director. He is being assisted by Mrs. John K. Irwin Jr. and C. W. Klann, president of the Pontiac Swimming Association which is hosting the meet.

STARTING TIMES

In addition to the 400 freestyle, other starting times and for boys preliminaries will be:

Preliminaries and semifinals in diving, 9 a.m.; preliminaries in all other events, 10:30 a.m. Finals will be held about a half hour after preliminaries end.

Girls action will get under way with preliminaries and semifinals in diving at 4 p.m. and other events at 5:15 p.m. with the same waiting period before the finals.

Swim Club Needs Help During Meet

"We need alumni, swimmers, parents and any others who have experience to help time, referee, judge and so forth during Sunday's meet," said Edward Dauw, a meet official. About 50 are needed.

Those interested should contact Dauw at Pontiac Central or report to the Northern pool at 7:45 a.m. Sunday for assignment. Help also will be needed later in the day, according to Dauw.

Detroit Wins, 4-2

Wings Blitz Seals

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — There's nothing like a little "blitz" to take some of the sting out of those can't-make-the-playoffs blues the Detroit Red Wings are suffering from.

* * *

* * *

All four Detroit goals came within eight minutes and five seconds of the final period as the Red Wings extended their unbeaten streak to three games.

Oakland, also out of playoff consideration and in danger of having its franchise spirited away to Vancouver, jumped off to a 2-0 lead on goals by Larry Popein and ex-Red Wing Ted Hampson in the first two periods.

Bruce MacGregor finally scored for Detroit at the 2:17 mark of the last period and Kent Douglas, who came to the Red Wings in the deal which sent Hampton to Oakland, tied the score at 7:35.

* * *

Within the next two minutes and 47 seconds the Red Wings had shot out in front to stay on tallies by Alex Delvecchio and Pete Mahovlich.

TURNED BACK

Masked Gerry Cheevers turned out 39 of 40 New York shots for Boston as the Bruins eked out a 2-1 victory over the Rangers to tie the two clubs for second place in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division.

Johnny Bucyk, who has gone through eight nonplayoff seasons, fired in his 30th goal of the season with just 4:33 to play to give the Bruins the win.

Bobby Hull and Pierre Pilote starred in Chicago's 4-3 win over the Pittsburgh Penguins, moving the Black Hawks to within a point of the Rangers and Bruins. Hull bagged his 43rd goal while Pilote picked up the 400th assist of his NHL career.

Philadelphia opened its Western Division lead to three points by sinking Minesota 4-2. The Flyers had a commanding 4-0 lead before the North Stars could get on the scoreboard in the game, during which 18 penalties worth 59 minutes were handed out.

* * *

Ex-Red Wing Paul Henderson scored his second goal in four games for Toronto as the Maple Leafs gained a 3-3 tie with the St. Louis Blues. Henderson put the puck in the net with just 26 seconds to go but Toronto must make up 13 points on Chicago in just nine games if they hope for a chance to defend their Stanley Cup.

Oregon Student Grabs Keg Lead

CINCINNATI (AP) — A 23-year-old University of Oregon student shot a 710 series Wednesday to take first place in the regular singles division of the American Bowling Congress Tournament.

* * *

Ron Babjar from Eugene, Ore., shot games of 193-279-238 as he deposed Ed Hughes of Elmira, N.Y., who had led the division since March 6 with 701.

Carroll Yocum led the scoring in the team event Wednesday night with a 226-248-232—706 series.

Yocum helped his team, the Sports Bowl Tournament of Middletown, Ohio, to total 2,945, good for seventh place in the regular five-man standings. Don Dennis was second high with 676.

* * *

Shrine Bombards Anchor Bay Five

The Knights of Royal Oak Shrine, fresh from a 98-41 win over Anchor Bay last night, take on Romeo tomorrow night in the semifinals of the Class B state regional tournament at Ferndale.

* * *

The first game tomorrow at 7 pits Detroit DePorres against Detroit Servite. Romeo and Shrine tangle in the 8:30 contest. Winners tomorrow meet at 8 p.m. Saturday for the title.

* * *

After battling Anchor Bay to a 18-18 count in the first quarter, Shrine blew it open with a 35-5 advantage in the second period. Wayne Hambell led the Knights (15-4) with 18 points.

Fordson Falls, 70-69, Despite Late Comeback

By FLETCHER SPEARS

* * *

And with a regional title, of course, goes a berth in the quarter-finals, the next step on the trail that leads to East Lansing and the finals next week.

* * *

When the Chiefs have their game in high gear, there's no stopping them; but they have a habit of alternating hot-and-cold play, and they came up chilly at the wrong time last night, almost costing them a ball game.

* * *

After streaking to a 45-34 lead at halftime, the Chiefs cooled off but held on for a 70-69 victory over Dearborn Fordson in the second game of the Livonia Franklin regional.

* * *

Garden City East, which eliminated Farmington Tuesday night, 74-69, takes on Ecorse this evening at 8 with the winner moving to the finals at 8 p.m. Saturday against Pontiac Central.

CLOSE CONTEST

The Fordson affair, which looked easy for most of three quarters, turned into a cliffhanger in the final moments.

* * *

The Chiefs held a 69-65 lead with 2:06 remaining and junior guard Clayton Burch made it 70-65 with a free throw at the one-minute mark.

* * *

* * *

* * *

In their bid for a final basket, the Tractors tossed the ball to Los who then flipped it to forward Bob Metz. Metz turned a shot loose from 30 feet that went through but it came after the final buzzer.

BALANCED ATTACK

The Chiefs came up with a balanced attack in the scoring column with forward Frank Russell leading the way with 21 points. Leonard Cole collected 16, Wilson 14 and sophomore Monte Herring contributed 12.

* * *

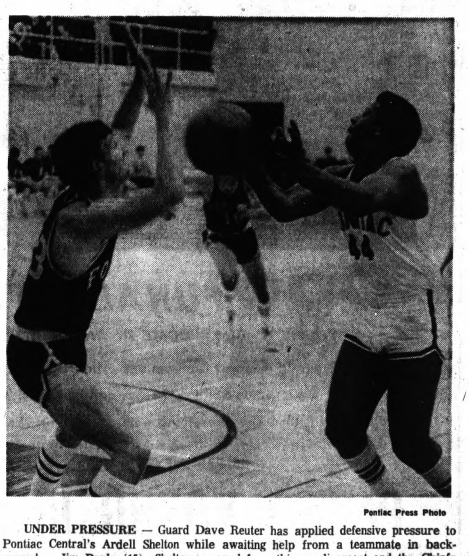

Herring, boosted into a starting role when 6-5 Rudy Churchwell injured a foot in practice Monday night, teamed with Cole, Wilson and Russell in dominating the backboards. The Chiefs held a 50-31 edge in rebounds. Churchwell is expected to play Saturday night.

Duke Cagers Hope to Regain Prestige

NEW YORK (AP)—The Duke Blue Devils hope to erase the disastrous memory of last year in the opening college basketball doubleheader tonight of the 31st National Invitation Tournament.

The Blue Devils, 10th ranked nationally in the final Associated Press poll of the season, take the court against high-scoring Oklahoma City in the second game of the twinbill. Marshall and St. Peter's of New Jersey meet in the first game.

* * *

The Blue Devils, who were not sure until last Sunday night they would get a second chance in the NIT as the Atlantic Coast Conference representative, failed in their first try last year. They lost in their first game to Southern Illinois, the eventual champion, 72-63.

Duke, 21-5, brings back third team All-American Mike Lewis, who averaged 24 points and 15 rebounds this season. Oklahoma City, 20-6, relies on honorable mention All-American Rich Travis, a 30-point average scorer.

Marshall, 17-7, and St. Peter's, 22-2, each will try to improve on last year's NIT performances.

SURPRISE FINISH

Marshall, led by George Stone's long jump shots and 23.4-point game average, has visions of bettering its surprising fourth-place finish of 1967. St. Peter's, led by Elnardo Webster's 24.7 average, was routed by Southern Illinois last year 103-58.

Another doubleheader Friday and four games on Saturday complete the first round of the 16-team field.

On Friday, Temple meets Kansas and Villanova opposes Wyoming. Saturday afternoon Army plays Notre Dame and Long Island goes against Bradley. Saturday night it will be Duquesne vs. Fordham and Dayton vs. West Virginia.

The NIT opening headlines the college basketball tournament scene tonight. The second round of the NCAA tournament for the national championship is not scheduled until Friday night at four regional sites.

SMALL COLLEGE

The small college boys were busy Wednesday night with the quarter-finals in the NCAA college division tourney at Evansville, Ind., and the second round in the NAIA tourney at Kansas City.

At Evansville, Ashland, Ohio, beat Cheyney State 45-30, Indiana State downed Nevada Southern 94-75, Kentucky Wesleyan defeated American International 90-78 and Trinity, Tex., whipped Evansville 93-77.

Quarter-Final Berth for Eastern Michigan

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Giant killers Oshkosh, Wis., State and Eastern Michigan and third-seeded Central State of Ohio moved into tonight's quarter-final round of the 31st annual NAIA basketball tournament as upsets continued to be the rule, not the exception.

Central State, tourney champion in 1965, meets Central Washington, seeded 10th, in the first game tonight, followed by Westminster, Pa., vs. Eastern Michigan; Dickinson, N. D., State vs. Fairmont, W. VA., State and Oshkosh State vs. Drury of Springfield, Mo.

* * *

Eastern Michigan, which edged second-seeded Stephen F. Austin of Nacogdoches, Tex., in first round action, upended 15th-seeded Hanover, Ind., 94 to 81. Eastern built up a 25-point halftime lead and coasted to victory as Harold Simons scored 22 points and Harvey Marlatt 21.

The Titans of Oshkosh, behind Bill Schwartz's 26 points, scored eight straight points to come from a 58-54 deficit and take a 62-58 advantage as they defeated Eastern Montana 82-75 Wednesday night. Four men scored in double figures for Oshkosh, who upset top-seeded Guilford, N.C., in the first round.

SEEDED TEAMS

Besides Central State, Central Washington and Westminster are the only seeded teams remaining in the tournament.

Sixth - seeded Westminster, take over the Pittsburgh U. reins next season, snatched another victory in the final seconds to edge Monmouth, N.J., 70-69.

Ace Rebounder Out of Lineup

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI) —Ron Sanford, the second leading scorer and rebounder for New Mexico has a recurring knee injury and will not be in the Lobos' starting lineup Friday when they meet Santa Clara in the NCAA Western Regionals.

Flags Grab Sixth Spot

PORT HURON (UPI) — Jake Hendrickson scored a goal with 58 seconds remaining in the contest Wednesday to give the Port Huron Flags a 6-5 victory over the Des Moines Oak Leafs and sixth spot in the International Hockey League.

With Action, Not Sex

Ice Hockey Wins Way With Women

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Sin Bin Sally, an arresting platinum-blonde, occupies a seat alongside the penalty box at nearly every New York Ranger home game.

She holds a lively dialogue with the sentenced rogues. She also lectures officials on the finer aspects of the sport.

Sin Bin Sally is not her actual name, just a tag hung on her by other Madison Square Garden Habitues. But in fact, she is a striking example of a hockey phenomenon — the great, sometimes fanatical, interest of women.

There's a lady of unimpeachable breeding who never misses a Philadelphia Flyer home game, and is described by a team executive as a "raving maniac." A woman in Toronto who died recently hadn't missed a Maple Leaf contest in 35 years.

WOMAN'S GAME

"It's a woman's game," said Jack Adams, one of hockey's most venerable executives. "It's fast, they like the action and body contact, the rules are easy to understand and the games are now played in arenas as beautiful as theaters."

* * *

"Once you take your wife or girl friend to a game," said Ivan, "you're sunk. From then on, you'd better get her a ticket every time you go.

"One big attraction in hockey is that you're close to the action wherever you sit. In football, for example, you can have a seat three miles from the field. But in hockey there's a certain intimacy."

BODY CONTACT

Smythe is a believer in the attraction of body contact.

"Some people have said there is sexuality and sensuality involved for women fans," he said. "I don't know if that's true, but I'm sure they like contact."

Then he gave a kind of parable to prove his point: "You know, if women went on strike by saying to their husbands and lovers, 'No more contact until you end the war,' the war would be over in one day. They don't say it, so they must like contact. Right?"

On more solid ground, Smythe added that the grand new buildings for hockey are an important factor.

As for sex in hockey, a Philadelphia psychiatrist said: "(There) is a combination of identification with the men on the ice and sensuality, a gratification or satisfaction of the sense of being (a close) part of it."

* * *

"I like the fast action and excitement and the grace of the skaters, but it's the unsexiest sport in the world," she said.

"The uniforms are ridiculous. The pants, for instance, are like bloomers stuffed with paper. At least, a football player wears tight pants and you can see a cute kookie.

PCH Advances to Title Game in Regional

Russell turned in a sparkling all-around performance. He set his teammates up for several easy baskets with lead passes and he helped steady the shaky PCH offense in that hectic fourth period.

The Chiefs had their hot streak in the second quarter after battling the Tractors to a 17-17 standoff in the opening frame.

They quickly broke that tie on two baskets apiece by Wilson and Russell and went on to a 28-point quarter. Herring pushed in a short shot as the frame ended to put the Chiefs in front by 11.

TRACTORS IN CHARGE

The second half belonged to Fordson. The Tractors outscored the Chiefs, 35-25, and stayed even in the rebounding department, but it wasn't enough to offset the PCH rush in that second period.

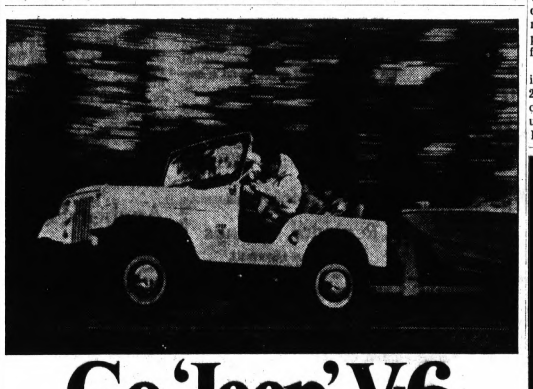

Although the Tractors came close in the third and fourth periods, they never gained the lead. Their best came at the last.

Los carried the load for the Tractors. He beat the Chiefs defense from close range repeatedly and finished with 31 points. Metz scored 11, hitting five baskets from long range.

In rolling up that 45-34 lead at intermission, the Chiefs hit on 21 of 35 shots, and despite the chilly second half, they wound up with 31 of 61 attempts. Fordson made 27 of 69.

Unheralded Duo Powering Way Into Majors

By The Associated Press

Sal Bando is making it hard for the Oakland Athletics to send him to Vancouver. And Bob Schellenberg is making it hard for the Philadelphia Phillies to keep him in oblivion.

Bando hit only nine homers in Oakland's 4-1 victory over the New York Yankees in their exhibition baseball game Wednesday. That makes four homers for the young third baseman in two games.

* * *

Bando hit only nine h omers all last year in 116 games with the Athletics' Vancouver farm club. In 41 contests with the big league club he went homerless.

Schellenberg's story is something else again. His grand-slam homer Wednesday was the big blow in the Phillies' 8-0 triumph over Houston. It was his second time at bat during the spring, his second homer and raised his RBI total to seven.

STRONG BID

In his first time up Sunday, Schellenberg, who isn't even on the Phillies' roster, hit a three-run homer.

In other games Wednesday, Cleveland edged San Francisco 6-5, the Chicago Cubs took California 5-4, St. Louis beat Detroit 6-2, Washington nudged Minnesota 5-4 and Los Angeles outlasted the New York Mets 3-2.

* * *

Also, the Chicago White Sox blanked Pittsburgh 4-0, Baltimore beat Atlanta 2-1 and Cincinnati beat Boston 5-3 in 10 innings.

Bando drove in all the Athletics' runs with a three-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the eighth. Jim Bouton pitched four hitless innings for the Yankees, extending his hitless streak to eight innings.

* * *

Golf's Revered 3 Back on PGA Tour

* * *

The explosive trio headlined the field for the $115,000 Florida Citrus Open which began in abnormally cold weather. It was the first time all three have been in the same tournament since late last summer when Player left the tour to return to his South Africa home.

Palmer, looking tan and fit after a week in Puerto Rico and shooting a 66 Wednesday to win the Pro-Am, was an early starter.

Face Liftings Scheduled

Pledges have already been received for a $30,000 fund raising campaign designed to give Waterford Township's softball and baseball facilities a face lifting.

Eight men, known as the Better Ball Field Backers (for lack of a better title), have organized themselves for a year's concerted effort on behalf of the existing diamonds.

* * *

The immediate goal is to raise sufficient funds — perhaps one-third to half of the total — this spring to improve the five playing fields at the junior and senior high schools, plus increase the lighting at the Drayton Park diamond.

The remainder of the money would be used to put lights on the new WTHS field, and build a new softball diamond on the WKHS campus.

The funds would be administered by the township's Recreation Department, with the cooperation of the school board.

Heading the group is president S. C. Burns and treasurer Don Yeoman. Neil Walton, Jack Cross, Al Girard, Bill Stormer, Robert Lawyer and Gary Reynolds are working with them to provide representation for all baseball and softball programs.

* * *

Royals' Hopes Receive Boost

Bullets Giving Up Pursuit of Pistons

By the Associated Press

The Cincinnati Royals are live, but the Baltimore Bullets are dying.

By beating Seattle 142-123 Wednesday night, the Royals remained one game behind idle Detroit in the fight for the National Basketball Association's final Eastern Division playoff spot.

But when the Bullets were beaten 100-96 by the lowly Chicago Bulls, they fell 2½ games behind the Pistons and their playoff hopes were reduced to prayers for a miracle.

And what miracles it will have to be. Baltimore has four games left: two with Boston, two with Philadelphia. Winning three of those plus a sudden collapse by both the Royals and Pistons is what is needed.

NIKES' LEADER — Guard Glen Lenhoff of Oakland Community College made the Northeastern Division state Community Junior College All-Conference team as a freshman this season.

Auburn Hills' Star on All-Conference

Freshman Glen Lenhoff from Southfield was the only southeast Michigan community college cager selected on the two five-man Michigan Community Junior College All-Conference teams.

The 6-2 Oakland CC-Auburn Hills sharpshooter was named to a guard berth along with flashy 5-8 divisional scoring leader John Thomas of Alpena CC and Willow Run High School.

Thomas was the only MCJAC marksman to top the 400-point mark in the 14 divisional games. Lenhoff, however, placed first in the league's combined scoring race, notching 567 points and a 29.8 average in 19 games.

Both he and Flint's Lin Robinson, a 6-4 selection at forward, had 27 p.p.g. tempos in their Northeastern Division outings.

League-champion Saint Clair placed 6-7 Mike Branaugh and 6-5 Dan McLemore on the first team, completing the five-man Northeastern Division.

In the Southwestern Division, Kellogg CC's ace sophomores Felton Lewis, 6-4, and Bob Pratt, 6-0, gained berths. Grand Rapids JC, who shared first place with Kellogg, had 6-1 freshman Dan Edwards on the unit.

Two other plebes rounded out the honorees: Kevin Blodgett of Jackson CC, 6-2, and Muskegon's 6-3 Bob DeVries. Blodgett's 23-point average is the top mark among the Southwestern selections.

In the playoff for the league championship, Saint Clair trimmed Kellogg, 79-62, at Flint. Alpena won the third-place intra-divisional scrap from Grand Rapids, 106-105.

City '5' Falls in Tournament

Sam Allens Ousted by Highland Park

Sam Allen & Sons of the Pontiac recreation men's basketball program was eliminated Wednesday in the semifinal round of the Inter-City Tournament by host Highland Park, 69-48.

The Pontiac quintet stayed even with the winners in the first eight minutes of each half, but it faded in the late going. Highland Park led 30-19 at the intermission.

Bob Rabaja's 12 points paced Sam Allen's who defeated Livonia, 77-61, in its opening tournament game Monday. Jeff Meyer hit 11 and Ken Carpenter 10 for the losers.

They next will meet Petrolanes Monday in the Pontiac recreation program's National League playoffs.

Salvatore says:

Draft Rulings Leave Agitation in Ranks

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Newsfeatures

WASHINGTON — Although the one big uncertain point on student deferment was nailed down when Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey ruled that deferments may be continued for junior college students and those taking apprentice training, there is still unhappiness in the ranks.

BAULCH

This is the same rule that has been in effect for them. Those in junior college taking two-year apprentice training will get 2A occupational deferments, the same as those in other trade schools. And men in junior college taking courses leading toward baccalaureate degrees will get 2S student deferments, as do those in four-year colleges.

It's mostly a matter of prestige, since the students are deferred in both 2S and 2A until their training is completed.

★ ★ ★

Another major question remaining — and it could come to a head at the end of this school year — is whether to keep the current order of draft — oldest first.

CONTINUING AGITATION

There is continuing agitation to turn to a lottery of all 19-year-olds for the draft — with no deferments — but this so far has gotten nowhere.

The proposal has surfaced again in light of the prospect of most draftees in the summer and fall being graduates just fresh out of college. This could happen for two reasons:

- A recent order by Hershey, with advice of the National Security Council, knocking out all future graduate student deferments except for those in the medical fields and those now in the second or subsequent years of study in other graduate fields.
- The order by Hershey saying the selection in filling draft calls will remain unchanged because a change "is not justified at this time." The phrasing hinted at possible future changes.

With the prospects of graduate schools' enrollments being cut by as much as 40 per cent next fall, the Council of Graduate Schools in the United States is urging Congress to set up a 19-year-old draft lottery with no deferments.

INEQUITY WIPED OUT

At least one inequity has been wiped out — that of men who couldn't manage to go to college being drafted while those in college held on to their deferments past the draft age by staying in graduate study.

The Army, which is the major service requiring draftees now, has long let it be known it generally prefers the younger draftees because they are more adaptable to military life.

There is a provision in the law for the secretary of defense to ask for men in specific age brackets — age 19, for instance — in addition to the policy of taking the oldest. This dual selection method would be a tough administrative problem for draft boards, but it may end up as the answer.

One factor that could change the picture is how much military developments will increase the draft calls. They have been rising sharply — the latest call is for 48,000 men — but this is mostly because of replacing those drafted for the military build-up two years ago.

ENROLLMENT CUTS SEEN

Most colleges are predicting the ban on future graduate deferments will drastically cut their graduate enrollments next fall.

And for those who want to take graduate study it poses a dilemma of whether to invest in fees and in time to start a study year in the face of being summoned into the Army in the middle of the school term.

One problem some colleges face is keeping their graduate students who teach and have first-year graduate deferment status. They will be faced with trying to get occupational deferments as hard-to-replace teachers.

The order suspending the government's list of essential activities and critical occupations probably will have only limited impact. Some boards followed the lists to the letter but most used them only as guides and limitations.

And the new ruling has no effect on farm deferments because the guidance on that is written into the draft law.

Korea Pay Problem

The stirring of new combat activity along the demilitarized zone in Korea raises to new intensity the gripe by servicemen assigned there about the rule on combat pay. They get the $65 monthly hostile pay only if wounded or injured because of hostile action.

When a man is killed his family gets the money for the month in which he died.

If a man is wounded he gets the pay for the month in which he was wounded plus extra months in which he is hospitalized, up to three months.

There is agitation to give the pay to all troops assigned in the DMZ. This would be similar to Vietnam, where everybody gets hazard pay.

Satellites Aid Troops in Viet

Used for Surveillance and Message Relay

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — American troops in Vietnam recive considerable support from orbiting satellites, and the soldier of the future can expect even more help from space.

Present U.S. satellite systems are speeding military messages between Southeast Asia and Washington; they're photographing enemy troop and missile positions; intercepting radio signals; navigating ships, and spotting favorable weather for air and ground attacks.

Originally, space communications traffic from Southeast Asia was handled by the Syncom 2 and 3 satellites, with research payloads turned over to the Defense Department by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

They're still in use, but the Defense Department now has 18 jamproof, secure communications satellites of its own providing worldwide coverage.

PHOTO RELAY

Also in the communications field, ferret Satellites eavesdrop on enemy radio traffic, recording messages for transmission to U. S. officials.

Meteorological satellites developed by the space agency and the Environmental Science Service Administration send their pictures directly to receivers in Vietnam, permitting aircraft to select clear weather areas as targets.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

These payloads also are helpful in planning sea and ground operations and in telling what weather conditions the enemy is working under.

Before long, aircraft and gound artillery units will start using advanced space navigation systems.

Troops are experimenting with a satellite called LES-5, for Lincoln Experimental Satellite. It is forerunner of a system of tactical communications payloads that will enable a foot soldier in the field to communicate with rear headquarters, or a small patrol boat to contact a larger ship or a shore base, in any weather. Such a system also could aid in search and rescue operations.

SUBMERGED SUBS

Farther down the line are satellite sensors that will spot submerged submarines, enemy soldiers hidden under dense foliage or missiles buried underground. Within a few years, commanders in Washington may sit before a television set and watch as a battle rages in a far-off place.

★ ★ ★

In the late 1970s, the Defense Department would like to have a huge multipurpose satellite incorporating several military assignments — observation, reconnaissance, communications, navigation.

Women's Law Course Aims at Life's Complexities

Another woman gives her neighborhood grocer a blank check with the trusting instruction, "Fill in the amount." The grocer fills in the amount—and a little more.

"These housewives are not stupid," says Prof. Henry Sellin, 61, who has been teaching a two-semester Woman's Law Course at New York University for 19 years. "It's a combination of being in a hurry and being too trustworthy."

The Woman's Law Course was established in 1890 "for the protectio n obe tterm'fswen o better protection of women's rights."

FEW RIGHTS

At that time they had few rights to be protested. Women were not allowed to vote. They could own property, but it was subject to the dictates of their husband.

And of more importance to the small band of suffragettes who endowed the course, they were not being admitted to law school.

In these swinging '60s the woman's lot has improved—but the problems she faces have grown more complex. Even a small purchase can present problems if a shopper learns the hard way that a warranty differs from the salesman's promise.

Sellin calls his opening lecture each fall, "Now Listen, Joe." It begins with asking the women if they voted last year and ends with a lesson in buttonholing congressmen.

'LOGICAL BEGINNING'

"It's a logical beginning for a women's law course, to make the students aware how laws are made and that laws can be initiated by an individual," he says.

Once the class gets under way Sellin branches out into lectures on warranties, mortgages, loans, alimony and taxes. Occasional gasps can be heard as each woman recognizes something she has done wrong-like not having interest rates spelled out, or not reading the fine print in a contract.

Over the years, women attending the course have ranged in age from 18 to 75. Sellin says they've enrolled for varying reasons. One woman is simply curious; another "wants to check up on her lawyer," and there is always one who is going through a divorce procedure.

"We don't want to make lawyers out of these ladies, although some have gone to law-school and even have become judges," he says. "We just want to make them aware when they need a lawyer."

For instance, he wryly tells his classes, beware of what you say about the neighbor over the back-yard fence.

Home Climate Control Seen

EAST ORANGE, N.J. (UPI) — By the year 2000, most people in the United States will live in a completely controlled home climate, according to air-conditioning engineers.

Occupants not only will be more comfortable, but they'll also be healthier because improved air filtration will lock out germs, noise, dust, pollen and polluted air.

There will be balanced heat distribution, eliminating drafts and cold spots, and each family member will be able to adjust room or zone temperatures to his own comfort.

Worthington Corp.'s air-conditioning division, which makes this prediction, adds that units will be smaller and, because of more efficient systems and better insulated homes, equipment prices will be lower.

TV Special Will Examine 'The Actor'

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — What is there about the actor that makes him get up on the stage and expose himself so-defenselessly to the world?

Leo Gluckman, a sometime actor and producer who directed the documentary, said, "There are strong forces working on him to make him do these things. I think it takes a special type of person to become an actor."

The program, to be seen at 8:30-9:30 p.m. EST tomorrow on the ABC television network, opens with Sir Alex Guinness stepping onto the stage of the Old Vic Theater in London.

HUMAN SACRIFICE

Guinness looks about the empty stage and says, "When the actor stands there, challenging the darkness, he offers himself as a kind of human sacrifice."

"What we've tried to do," Gluckman said, "is find out what constitutes the species actor. And to this end the evidence we have chosen comes from people who are terribly well-known in some cases, and these represent our marquee value.

"But there are also people who are younger, kids who are battling to get into school to learn their craft, and the young actor who has left school and is looking for work. And the actor walking the street because he can't find work."

HEADS CAST

Guinness, the noted British actor, narrates the special and heads a cast of London theatrical figures in examining the actor.

Gluckman, who has a rich, resonant voice and a British accent, said, "We tried to investigate his doggedness that makes this young person, who too soon becomes an old person in a very merciless and overcrowded profession, stick it out.

"What is the goal? Is fame the spur? Or are there other things that drive him? What are his psychological needs that have to be satisfied by the audience? Does the applause the audience gives the actor represent a kind of love he can't find in any other sphere of life?"

From the documentary, here are what two of the participants have to say about actors.

Director Peter Brook: "I've had the feeling year after year . . . that they have found in play-acting a perfect way of life by which they can act out fantasies that they prefer to their own lives . . ."

Director Tyrone Guthrie: "I think there probably is something neurotic about wanting to go on the stage, just as there is possibly something even more neurotic about wanting to go into the church or into plumbing or into the stock market. But I do not think actors go on stage primarily to exhibit themselves, to show off . . . Part of the pleasure of the actor, I think, is being somebody who looks and sounds and feels quite different from your dreary old self."

Coach's Lesson Makes Points

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — When it came to coaching basketball, Dr. Forrest C. (Phog) Allen could show his players what he was talking about at the University of Kansas.

One day in the 1933-34 season, Phog was directing practice from the sideline at midcourt. He stopped Gordon Gray and Ernie Vanek.

"I want you to learn the power of self-confidence," Allen told them. "You must become convinced that you can do the right thing. When you feed the ball to somebody, you know it will be a good pass! When you shoot at that goal, let there never be the slightest doubt in your mind — you KNOW it's going in! Like this!"

Allen, standing on the sideline squarely at midcourt, snatched a ball from Vanek and in a continuous motion, without pausing one instant to take aim, whirled and fired at the basket. Swish! The ball whistled through without touching the rim.

Mineral Has Variety of Uses

COLONY, Wyo. (UPI) — What is used in sheep-dip, wines cosmetics and fire extinguishers, absorbs 15 times its weight in water, and once was used to wash clothes and grease axles?

It's bentonite, a strange volcanic clay compound now being pulled out of the ground in a new million-dollar plant here.

Cattle being driven along the Old Chisholm Trail used to bog down in bentonite slough, which settlers called "soap holes" because the slick yellow stuff could be used to wash clothes.

It also proved useful as a kind of axle grease for wagon wheels.

Bentonite has so many uses that it's always an ingredient of something else but the average man has never heard of it.

About 85 per cent of the current production, much of that in the Black Hills area of South Dakota and Wyoming, is used in oil drilling muds.

A lot is employed to make a slurry for fighting forest fires, and some goes to wineries for use as a purifying agent.

Geologists say the Black Hills variety of the mineral was formed millions of years ago by volcanic ash and lava settling to the bottom of a disappearing inland sea.

Another thing bentonite does—it ruins roads. One of the most absorbent materials in nature, a half-teaspoonful of bentonite can hold a glass of water, and swells to 15 times its original size.

Patent Path to Inventions

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — To be an inventor, you first must know what is needed; then come sketches to clarify your thinking; followed by the building of a model that you can test and evaluate to see if it performs in accordance with your thinking.

That's the formula for success as given by Dr. James M. Lafferty, manager of the plasma and vacuum physics branch at the General Electric research and development center, who has just been awarded his 50th patent.

Chess Rivals in Silent Battle

Winner Gets Chance at World Titleholder

The adversaries, each endeavoring to outconcentrate the other, are seated at the table, a chessboard between them. They are Leonid Stein, champion of the Soviet Union, and Vlastimil Hort, champion of Czechoslovakia.

In the folding chairs, on this critical night, are no more than 20 persons, all in the attitude of a cat watching a bird.

WORLD PLAYOFF

Stein, by winning, would qualify to join seven other candidates for a world championship match to be played sometime this year against the present titleholder, the Soviet Union's Tigran Petrosian.

Since Feb. 18 Stein, Hort and grand master Samuel Reshevsky, former U.S. champion, have engaged in a series of matches to break a tie resulting from the interzonal tournament at Sousee, Tunisia.

Stein and Hort are required to make 40 moves in 2½ hours.

Beyond that there is no limit of how long it takes them to make individual moves. The match can run as long as five hours, after which it is adjourned.

The players never address one another. They do occasionally exchange a level, eye-to-eye gaze.

SMOKING HABIT

The hall is lined with "no smoking" signs, but Stein consistently lights a cigarette between plays, inhales two or three times, then lays it on an ashtray. When it burns to inch-length, he stubs it out.

Hort, not smoking, does not complain of Stein's cigarettes. Hort is a pacer. While Stein studies his move, Hort ranges up and down the aisles in long strides, even wanders into other rooms of the Herman Steiner Chess Club.

Nobody speaks. No one smiles. The spectators do not even look up as Hort passes their chairs. Each is busy with his miniature board and pieces, reenacting the play.

In midevening the tension mounts. Even this chess-ignorant visitor feels the infectious strain and stares intently at the players. The first thing he knows nearly an hour has passed.

No one even yawns.

EYES ON SCREEN

All the audience except two are men. Half are bearded. Some become so nervous they go outside to smoke and chatter in their bishop-knight-two, pawn-king-four shorthand jargon. But, through the glass doors, their eyes are constantly on the screen behind the players' table that reflects the play-by-play positions.

Among them, puffing a pipe, is the stately figure of greying Gregor Piatigorsky, renowned cellist and dedicated chess aficionado. The Piatrigorsky Foundation is one of the match sponsors.

Inside, Stein, wearing a conservative business suit, bends over the board, pokes a forefinger into his cheek, begins a move, changes his mind. Hort, comfortable in sport shirt and beltless slacks, reaches a hand inside the collar to massage a shoulder as he waits.

The move is made, the frozen-faced scorekeeper follows suit on the board of the monitor screen. The two critics at the press table quickly make symbols with their pencils.

Hort sits down for his move, devours the board with his eyes, looks at Stein and suddenly exhales loudly.

At 11 p.m. the game is adjourned. Stein's queen is trapped. The resumed play is set for Friday morning.

★ ★ ★

But at that time Stein resigned, although he had led the 12-game match by one-half point over Reshevsky. Had he won this game with Hort, Stein would have won the match here.

Binoculars—Key to Action-Packed Nature Viewing

By JIM CROSSLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Kids love to watch chipmunks reading books.

When there are chipmunks around, spread the inside of a small, folded piece of cardboard with peanut butter.

WALT DISNEY GIANT

From about 20 feet away, the chipmunk is a Walt Disney giant in the glasses and not a gleam of eye nor a disarranged whisker escapes the viewer.

It's an example of the fun binoculars can add to any outdoor activities and illustrates something owners of glasses sometimes overlook.

Hoist a pair to the eyes and immediately most viewers start reaching out for the most distant object, looking right past the foreground which crawls with interesting subjects for observation.

An observer can make an acquaintance with birds through no other method than using binoculars at close range.

Actually, close-up things are seen bigger than life and differently than life, in super 3D, because the front lenses are spaced much wider than the distance between the eyes.

★ ★ ★

Alternating the long shots of natural viewing and closeups through the binoculars make a concert, stage play or a sports event as action-filled as a movie because this mixture is a technique used by all moviemakers.

GOOD ADVICE

The public library has an abundance of good advice about buying glasses, particularly in consumer magazines or their annual reports.

The size 7x35 is generally considered the most useful and versatile.

Too high-powered and a pair is hard to hold. The subjects jitter out of the screen.

Heavier glasses only add weight and bulk to be carried.

Prices range from $20 to hundreds. There are good ones from Japan in the middle ranges and considering the chance that binoculars can be dropped or lost overboard from a boat, a pair that can be replaced without too much sacrifice will serve well.

Cleveland's Mayor Has Hands Full

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Except for race relations, it has been a short political honeymoon for Carl B. Stokes, the Cleveland mayor who was the first Negro elected head of a major American city.

Since his election in November, Stokes has run into a number of problems — economics, politics, the constant glare of publicity and what some observers say is bad advice.

But one field in which Stokes has made progress is the relationship between City Hall and Cleveland's approximately 265,000 Negroes.

With Stokes in the mayor's chair, racial tensions have eased so much, the police department may be the only large one in the country which does not expect rioting this summer.

Stokes himself does not share the pessimism of the national administration about the inevitability of more riots across the nation.

'TOO PESSIMISTIC'

"I think the President is too pessimistic, because all the conditions that lead to riots can be cured," Stokes said. "I would rather the President were more pessimistic about the 'Neanderthal' Congress that votes down every proposal to ease the problem.

"If we can face the summer having given the people some real hope, riots willl not be inevitable."

★ ★ ★

While a state representative, he sponsored a state open-housing law. At the same time he authored a bill giving the governor authority to send national guardsmen into a riot area without waiting for a request from local authorities.

'NOT WELCOME'

Stokes has said more than once that militant black power advocate H. Rap Brown would not be welcome in Cleveland.

In defining his view of black power, Stokes said:

"To the extent that this new philosophy is intended to shake the Negro into political action and to excite his pride in being black, I support it. To the separatism and 'control by blacks' that it connotes, I reject it. I find not difference in a bigot whether that bigot be black or white."

★ ★ ★

In 1966, Cleveland's predominantly Negro Hough section experienced a major riot. Last year, Hough had two outbreaks, both minor in comparison to 1966. In 1968, there is a feeling of optimism.

But Stokes has found the office of mayor to be far from a bed of roses.

When Stokes, a Democrat, moved into the mayor's office, he replaced eight of the nine city department heads. Not all of the partings were sweet.

He fulfilled one campaign pledge by reogranizing the police force.He put his own appointees at the top spots and shuffled the middle echelon.

BACK ON A BEAT

Many officers who spent their time behind desks found themselves on a beat in keeping with his promise to get more policemen on the streets. Many policemen were not happy.

With police, firemen and other city employes demanding pay increases, and no money in the till, Stokes had the politically unpleasant task of announcing he would seek to have the city double its one-half per cent income tax.

But observers said he has little chance of getting City Council to go along. A referendum, if he can manage it, would be in deep trouble.

Stokes said one of the biggest problems facing the nation's eighth largest city is urban renewal. Welfare is another.

He said the appointment of Richard Green, an expert on urban renewal, as community development director was a major accomplishment of his administration.

"There is so much to be done in this field," Stokes said. "The pressure is so great."

Stokes has had other successes in his brief term in office. He has lined up business leaders and labor groups behind his administration to an extent not possible with the previous administrations.

English Village Fighting Plan to Use Land for Airport

TAKELEY, England (AP) — In the Essex farmlands 30 miles north of London, a village is fighting for its life.

If the fight fails, the bulldozers move in. Takeley and its 12th century church will vanish beneath a sea of concrete.

London needs a new airport, and Takeley's rich farmlands are earmarked for the runways.

Until late February it seemed the villagers' fight was lost. The death sentence had been proclaimed by the government and approved by the House of Commons.

A sudden switch inside Prime Minister Harold Wilson's cabinet brought the villagers new hope. The Board of Trade ordered a new public inquiry.

The villagers, backed by such powerful organizations as the National Farmers Union and county councils representing more than 15 million people, argue that it's close to madness for this overcrowded island to use good land for airports.

They want the government to give close study to alternative proposals. One is to expand the airport at Luton, midway between London and the industrial midlands. Another is to build a giant international airport and deep-water docks on reclaimed land off Essex.

Peter Masefield, chairman of the government airport authority, believes these arguments are misplaced. London's present airport facilities, he says, are already inadequate and soon will be choked.

BY 1974

In a speech he contended that the new airport must be in action by 1974—and that the new inquiry, as did a previous one, will find Takeley project the inevitable choice.

As English villages go, Takeley is nothing special. It straggles along a road built by the Romans. To the north stands its church, built by the Normans, and a mile farther north an air-strip built by the Americans.

PRESENT THREAT

★ ★ ★

A century ago cheap grain from Canada and the Middle West threw the area's wheat and barley farmers into bankruptcy. Canny Scots moved in to buy land cheap and restore the derelict farms with mutton and wool.

★ ★ ★

In 1943, the Americans arrived and carved out the airstrip north of the village and another one three miles to the east.

★ ★ ★

The two airstrips—one known as Stansted, the other as Easton Lodge—form the basis of the new project. It is known as London Airport, Stansted, to distinguish it from the main London Airport west of the capital and the subsidiary at Gatwick, to the south.

'TIME TO ACT'

Government planners first started eying Stansted 15 years ago when it became clear that the main London Airport, though still building, would prove inadequate.

★ ★ ★

Now, with 13 million passengers crowding through its lounges every year and air traffic doubling every five to years, Masefield and his planners say it is time to act.

The villagers are equally determined that action shall not cost them their homes.

U. S. Dilemma Is Eyed Abroad

Success in Vietnam, Home Front Doubted

LONDON (AP) — Foreign commentators suggest that something has to give in America's efforts to fight a war in Vietnam and pacify racial conflict at home at the same time.

An Italian analyst, Alberto Ronchey of La Stampa in Turin, asked: "Can a complex society, opulent but poor in respect to its incredible needs, multiracial and charged with tensions, at the center of a delicate strategic equilibrium and of a yet more delicate monetary equilibrium, truly sustain a prolonged war like Vietnam?"

Speaking of what he called the "political cost" of the Vietnam war, Ronchey added, "It is difficult to understand how the greatest power can continue . . . to appear as the symbol of violence in the world, while almost nobody talks of the massacres of the Sudan, of Yemen, of Biafra."

Heinz Pol, in a story from Washington for West Germany's Frankfurter Rundschau, put the question this way: "How can the country even start on such a program of job creation, education and housing construction as long as the Vietnam war alone devours $2 billion to $3 billion a month?"

BIG ACHIEVEMENT

Pol called the report of the President's Commission on Civil Disorder a remarkable achievement, adding: "Here men who belong to the political and economic elite of the country express with courage, conviction and a detail of evidence exactly the facts, namely that racial conflict is ruining the nation and the main guilt for the conditions is borne by the white majority of the country."

But, he said, "instead of getting rid of the miserable city districts or even making an attempt to do so, numerous city administrations are spending millions for modernizing the weapons of police forces who are supposed to restrain black agitators during the coming summer."

In the Sueddeutsche Zeitung of Munich, Hermann Proebst wrote that outgoing Secretary Robert S. McNamara now "is free to return to his other self, to that of a man favoring peaceful reconstruction in a spirit of humaneness . . . His past conflicts are still those of many other Americans."

'BIG ERROR'

Dieter Cycon wrote in the Stuttgarter Zeitung that McNamara "neglected Western Europe's security interests" and that "one of the big errors of the McNamara era was the belief that a U.S.-Soviet clash can be prevented by America's good conduct toward the Soviet Union."

He said the most important task of the new secretary, Clark M. Clifford, is "to restore the ties linking together the United States and West Europe in an extreme emergency."

British commentators concentrated on American politics. Ralph Champion, chief of the Daily Mirror's American bureau, said the American system "excludes anyone except the very rich or those supported by wealthy organizations not only from the presidential race but also from humbler posts."

Commenting on the November elections, Tony Delano, Sunday Mirror correspondent in New York, wrote: "Most of the faithful of both major parties find their prospective candidates so unappealing that deadlock is a distinct possibility."

An editorial in the London Daily Telegraph said: "It has been clear all along that Vietnam was likely to be the fulcrum of the American presidential election campaign. But it could not have been foreseen that at such an early stage one of the candidates would promise to end the war. Mr. Nixon may live to regret it: He will certainly be hard put to answer Vice President Humphrey's challenge that he should now give chapter and verse on his solution to a conundrum which has baffled everyone else."

In Tokyo, the newspaper Asahi reacted warmly to remarks by former U.S. Ambassador to Japan Edwin O. Reischauer, who said the question of Okinawa's return to Japan should be settled by 1969.

Americans Wage War on Smallpox in West Africa

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Forty-six Americans—15 of them physicians—are waging a war aimed at wiping out smallpox in West Africa.

They have trained 6,000 Africans to help them.

And the National Communicable Disease Center—where the campaign is being mapped—says smallpox in the region will be eradicated by 1975.

Dr. Donald Millar, a 34-year-old medical doctor from Newport News, Va., heads the program which has been under way for little more than a year.

Why is the United States spending $7 million a year to try to wipe out smallpox in Africa?

Millar says there is a selfish reason, in one respect, in that the United States has not had a single case of smallpox since 1949, and it doesn't want any.

The African nations involved in the inoculation program are among three areas of the world considered principal sources of the disease. The others are India and portions of the Far East.

The smallpox program has been conducted on a regional basis among the 19 countries with the help of the United States.

PARTICIPANTS

Smallpox claims more than 6,000 lives a year in the region. Its victims are said to be cursed by evil spirits and are banished from their villages and left in the bush to die in shame.

But on the border of Togo and Dahomey, there are tribes that worship smallpox. They have a smallpox goddess known by several names, such as Sorponna or Shopona.

Millar, who travels to Africa periodically, said this has resulted in three major problems.

- People in this region naturally resist vaccination.
- There is a tendency to hide outbreaks of smallpox, making it difficult to determine where to send the medical teams.
- And it results in propagation of the disease through rituals.

SEARCH FOR APPROACH

"We are looking into the anthropology of these people to see if we can find some way to approach them," Millar said.

★ ★ ★

"But this is the only cultural barrier we have found. People quite openly accept any kind of help program that is delivered to them by the government.

"Generally speaking, when you have a tribal system and an unsophisticated people, most of the time you just have to make the service available."

The program has been made possible by development of a jet gun which sprays vaccine through the skin at 1,300 pounds per square inch. The hydraulic-powered gun, operated by a foot pedal, can vaccinate more than 1,000 persons each hour. The old scratch method wasted vaccine and could handle only 100 vaccinations an hour.

Barrels Wean Beer Drinkers From Bottles

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — German breweries hope to wean hard-drinking televiewers from the bottle by putting the barrel beside them.

The average German, the statisticians say, is drinking about 40 gallons of beer annually, but last year consumption increased by only 1 per cent.

Breweries found that the increase almost exclusively was due to more drinking of bottled beer at home. Innkeepers have been complaining for a long time that television is keeping people at home.

Adding to the plight of pub owners was the changeover on Jan. 1 to the added-value tax, charging a beer in a bar the normal rate of 10 per cent, while bottled beer from a store is considered food and charged only 5 per cent.

LESS PROFITABLE

Breweries are unhappy because bottled beer is harder to handle and not more profitable than the barreled beer. So some breweries decided to offer barrels to the home drinker. Initial results are good, they say.

Only one of the three systems on the market actually means putting up a barrel in the living room. One manufacturer is offering small 4- or 8-gallon aluminum barrels to breweries, who lend them to customers, tagging them "party barrels."

The small barrels are not equipped with pumps. They are tapped the "Bavarian way," that is, turn the tap and beer flows.

Another type of barrel is offered by one of the biggest German breweries. In this case a dark oak cask contains an ice unit to cool a 1.3-gallon "service barrel." Despite the high price of $112.25 per refrigerated barrel, the brewery claims to have sold about 1,000 of these.

Nigeria Faces Fiscal Woes

Shrinking Reserves Hinder War on Biafra

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Nigeria's shrinking economy appears to be hindering the federal military government's ability to fight all-out war against Biafra's secessionists.

Despite a steady but slow advance into secessionist territory in the former Eastern Nigeria, the central government has been talking about negotiations.

★ ★ ★

Edwin O. Ogbu, the country's representative at the United Nations, has said the federal government is willing to deal with Lt. Col. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu, the man who declared Biafra independent May 30. At one time, the central government demanded the secessionists topple Ojukwu.

POUND VALUE

"We must earn foreign exchange," said Dr. Clement Isong, governor of Nigeria's Central Bank and leader of the struggle to avoid devaluing the Nigerian pound, pegged at $2.80.

"We use these international exchange currencies to buy what we need from the world. Our ability to earn foreign exchange has been drastically reduced."

★ ★ ★

As of mid-February, the Central Bank held $98 million in foreign exchange. A year ago the figure was $182 million. Cost of fighting the war and buying military equipment has cut the total.

Chances of replenishing the reserve are dim, according to economic forecasts. The petroleum industry produced at a rate of 30,000 barrels a day in January, representing 5.3 per cent of production in the prewar month of April 1967.

Nigeria's cocoa crop is expected to bring in $154 million in foreign exchange on 220,000 tons of beans, down 50,000 tons from last season. The peanut crop from the North, usually good for about $112 million annually, has been hit by slow sales and falling prices.

Man's Life in Next Century? 'Enjoyment, Learning'

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Would you like never to have to work for a living and also have a trained ape to help your wife around the house?

BOYLE

These awesome delights are envisioned — and not altogether tongue-in-cheek — as possible benefits to man in the next century by Arthur C. Clarke, one of the world's top science fiction writers.

★ ★ ★

"It isn't possible to predict the political future, but it is possible to map technological trends," said Clarke, a trained physicist and mathematician who is also recognized as an authority on space and oceanorgaphy.

"The life of the average man will be profoundly changed.

ENJOYMENT

"In the next century 95 per cent of the work done by men now will no longer exist, or will be handled by machines. Man's purpose in the universe will be to enjoy himself — and it is about time he did.

"Pericles never had to go to a daily job. Neither did Socrates. No free man of ancient Athens had to labor to live. They had thousands of slaves. Future man will have millions of superior machines to do the world's work."

★ ★ ★

What about those trained apes to help the little lady do the dishes and clean the rugs?

Smiling slightly, Clarke replied:

"A chimpanzee already has the ability to do many household chores, but he lacks the motivation — the desire to do them. In the future we can genetically engineer apes to do even more complicated tasks — and enjoy doing them."

40 BOOKS

The English writer — 50, thin-haired, slender, slightly stooped — has written some 40 books that have sold five million copies. He spent four years working on MGM's science thrill film, "2001: A Space Odyssey."

Clarke believes we are in the beginning stages of a revolutionary intelligence and information explosion of which most of us are still unaware.

"Knowledge now is doubling every 10 years," he remarked. "By the time a man is middle-aged, half the things he learned are no longer true.

"In the coming century the ordinary day-to-day running of the world will be turned over to a race of supercomputers. The great problem will be educating people.

"Education will be lifelong. If a man lives to be 125, he may attend some form of school until he is 120. People will spend their time living and learning, not working at routine jobs.

"The great industries of the future will be education, research and entertainment.

★ ★ ★

"Before the development of agriculture man didn't really to work. He lived as a hunter. In the time ahead agriculture, as we know it today, will be ended. It is too inefficient. Synthetic foods will be produced more cheaply and in larger quantities. Even now only three per cent of the world's petroleum output could be used chemically to produce all mankind's protein needs."

Turtle 'Dove' Turns 'Hawk' on Starlings

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Of the hundreds of bills introduced in Congress each session, there are usually less than a dozen that I get personally keyed up about.

WEST

I have long felt that something should be done to stamp out the interstate movement of green sea turtles. But until Rep. Claude D. Pepper, D-Fla., introduced the bill, I didn't really know why I felt that way.

All I had to go on was a sort of vague fear that interstate traffic in green sea turtles was getting out of hand.

★ ★ ★

Pepper gave that fear form and substance this week with a press release warning that green sea turtles are in danger of becoming extinct.

THREAT TO SURVIVAL

"One of the most recent threats to the survival of the green turtle is a new cosmetic product called 'oil of turtle,'" the Florida Democrat said.

"It is being promoted by Polly Bergen as a wonder-working beauty aid, and this fact is threatening the extermination of a magnificent species."

Certainly one hates to see a creature of nature sacrificed on the altar of feminine pulchritude. But at the same time one also hates to see ugly women.

★ ★ ★

And so it was with torn emotions that I was walking past a government building at twilight the other evening. Up among the classic columns were hundreds of dirty birds of the type all Washington pedestrians instantly recognize as starlings.

VIETCONG OF BIRDS

Starlings are the Vietcong of the ornithological world. For years, the capital has fought a losing battle against this feathered menace.

All countermeasures — electronic, mechanical and hydraulic — to discourage them from roosting on federal buildings have failed.

Suddenly it came to me how the government might decimate the starling population and help Pepper save the green sea turtle all at one swoop.

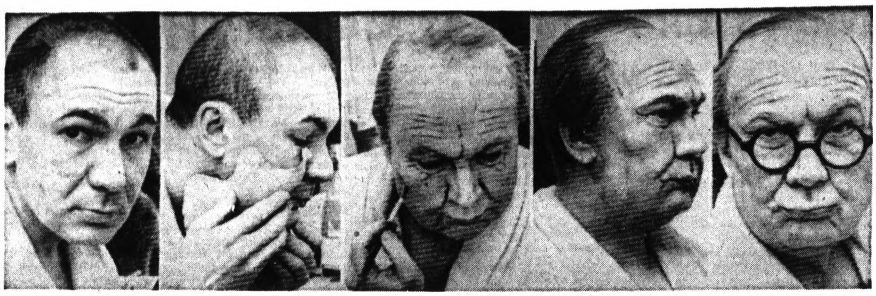

★ ★ ★

It simply persuades the cosmetic industry to bring out a new product called "oil of starling."

★ ★ ★

Once women become convinced that starling oil will make them beautiful, the birds will be in great demand and the pressure on green sea turtles will ease accordingly.

Eventually, even starlings might be threatened with extinction. At which time I'm sure we can count on Pepper coming to the rescue.

Dems Seeking More Negro Candidates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic National Committee is encouraging Negroes to run for public office this year in record numbers.

★ ★ ★

Top Democrats have worked up a strategy aimed at giving the party a political cushion in the event of more disturbances in the nation's cities next summer.

The strategy is simple: to have the maximum number of Negroes on the ticket in areas where trouble is the most likely.

The idea is that no matter how widespread the turmoil and disaffection in the black ghettoes, Negro voters will not turn against members of their own race at the polls in November.

★ ★ ★

The men who have devised the strategy are aiming their appeal at Negroes of all persuasions, figuring that the more they get into politics, the more the party will benefit.

WILL BE WELCOME

Even black militants will be welcome, one of the strategists said.

Going into 1968, there were about 1,000 Democratic Negro public officeholders throughout the nation compared to about 100 Negro Republicans.

They also have a target to register 7 million Negroes for the November elections, about 1.5 million more than 1964.

Tenant Sign-Up On for New Rent-Supplement Housing Units

Plans for the first 200 units have been approved by the city, and construction is now under way on West Kennett, just east of the city limits, he said.

He estimated that all 525 units can be completed by years-end. There is a possibility that additional units will also be constructed if public response warrants it, he said.

The developer said applications can be made at his office at 785 Auburn. He expects the first units to be occupied within 120 days.

* * *

The rent supplement project—called North Hill Farms—is believed to be the largest in the country and is reportedly the first in the metropolian area to begin construction.

FEDERAL SUBSIDY

The development is sponsored under a federal program whereby the federal government subsidizes rental payments for persons who need housing but are unable to afford standard rental charges.

The government has authorized expenditure of $409,000 for subsidies on the 525 units, $156,000 on the first 200 units.

Under the program, renters with low income would have to pay 25 per cent of their monthly income for rent. The government would subsidize the difference between that and the required rent.

To be eligible for the rent supplements, tenants' yearly incomes must not exceed $2,800 for one person, $3,800 for two persons, $4,700 for three persons and $5,000 for four persons.

RENT CHARGES

Standard rent charges as approved by the government are $106 for an efficiency apartment, $131 for a one-bedroom unit and $150 for two-bedroom units.

Langs said he believes there are a considerable number of persons, especially those living on pensions or Social Security funds, who will benefit from the housing project.

He said he will give preference to those over 62 in processing applications because "these are the people that should be helped the most. Younger people generally are able to work and afford standard rent."

* * *

Although there is no requirement that all of the 525 units be rented to persons needing rent supplement, the developer said most of the units would go to low-income tenants.

FLUCTUATIONS LIKELY

He explained that the 25 per cent charge could fluctuate as income rose or dropped, but those needing rent supplements would never have to pay more than one quarter of their earnings.

The units to be constructed are similar to town house apartments. The buildings will be one story high and have brick facing.

Rental charges include payment of heat, electricity, gas and maintenance of the units and grounds, he said. Refrigerators and stoves for the units will be supplied.

PUBLIC NEEDS

Langs said the composition of the next 325 units will be determined by public needs. Since the program is new, he said, it is not really known whether there is a greater need for one-or two-bedroom units.

Persons interested in such housing could indicate their needs to his office (see coupon below). This would be useful in future planning, he said.

Housing Need Coupon

BY OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

Thirty-five years ago when there weren't many expert bridge players, everyone knew everyone else quite well. In those days Waldemar von Zedtwitz was the slowest playing expert. His partners never minded. They were sure after Waldy finished thinking, he would come up with the right play.

JACOBY

There are plenty of slow players today and when most of them go into a trance their partners shudder. Somehow or other they don't always find that right play when they get through thinking.

East was one of those slow players. It didn't take him long to play his king of hearts after a low card was played from dummy at trick one. Then East commenced to think while West shuddered.

West couldn't see that singleton ace of clubs in the South hand, but West could see that East was thinking of leading a spade and West wanted no part of a spade lead.

East could not see that singleton ace of clubs either but he might have. East was looking at 10 of clubs. His partner's three of hearts had been fourth best, so South was marked with four hearts.

South had bid and rebid diamonds to show a five card suit. This left him with only four black cards and three were likely to be the queen and two other spades.

Anyway, East thought and finally played his king of spades. South dropped the queen and had established a sure spade entry to dummy. If East had returned a heart at trick two and used his top spades properly, declarer would have been set several tricks.

Even after the king of spades play, East could have defeated the contract by shifting to the 10 of diamonds. But East did not make that play. Instead he led the heart back one play too late. South led a club to his ace, played a spade and wound up with six clubs and one trick in each other suit.

♥♣CARD Sense♠♦

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
1♥	Dble	Pass	2♥
Pass	3♥	Pass	?

♠AQ87 ♥32 ♦KJ98 ♣Q53

What do you do now?

A—Bid four spades. Your partner has told you to pick a suit and you can afford to jump now. If partner continues to five spades, pass. You have done full justice to your hand already.

TODAY'S QUESTION

A Look at TV

Stars Set for New Tries

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The sweet smell of possible long-term television success is bringing back to the home screen next season numerous stars who once had their own series, and want to try again.

Phyllis Diller, who last season had an unsuccessful show about a wealthy family that went broke, will return to the weekly grind with an hour variety series.

She will be trying to do what the Smothers Brothers did—overcome a past situation comedy failure with a song-dance-and-comedy entry.

Then there is Martin Milner, who formerly costarred with George Maharis in "Route 66," and now will be coming back in "Adam-12," a show portraying the experiences of two squad car policement in Los Angeles.

Darren McGavin, will be returning in "The Outsider," as a private investigator. In the past he starred as Mike Hammer in the Mickey Spillane series, and in "Riverboat."

PUBLISHING EMPIRE

One upcoming series, "Name of the Game," which concerns a vast publishing empire, will star three actors who have had series of their own.

They are Gene Barry, who starred as "Bat Masterson" and in "Burke's Law", Tony Franciosa, who had a short-lived show called "Valentine's Day", And Robert Stack, who of course gained considerable fame as Eliot Ness in "The Untouchables."

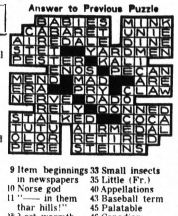

Another new series, "Land of the Giants"—a science-fiction entry—has Gary Conway, also formerly of "Burke's Law," as its headliner.

Port Congestion Grows in Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Saigon's commercial port is growing increasingly congested although cargo is being unloaded at a faster rate, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

They said 21 ships are waiting to unload 97,000 tons of cargo, the largest backlog since the crisis of early 1967. Three weeks ago there were 16 ships with about 60,000 tons waiting to unload.

Irish Actor Never Marked St. Patrick's Day at Home

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — St. Patrick's Day came a little early this week with trouble-makin' Irishman Richard Harris of the movies arriving from Europe and claiming, "I never celebrated St. Patrick's Day in Ireland . . ."

WILSON

Sideburned down to his knees, mustached, long-haired, he said he'd come only for Sharman Douglas' party at the Rainbow Room for benefit of the Brain-Injured, with Meg and Tony as guests.

He denied that a picture contract blew up over his willingness to wear this hairiness in one film and not in another.

"It was about the script," he said. "To give up $500,000 for a mustache and sideburns is carrying inflation too far."

Award-winner Harris, soon to do "Michael Collins" in films, likes "Bonnie" for the Oscar, but — "The one person who MUST win an award is Faye Dunaway."

Edison, Consumers Hit for Overcharge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Michigan's two largest electric utility companies overcharged their customers $40,043,000 in 1966, according to Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont. The accusation was based on a company 16 per cent rate of return on common stock equity, when the rate should have been no more than 9.5 per cent, he said.

MICHELE KIRSTEN

The Montana senator, along with public power specialist Vic Reinemer, is author of a book published last year entitled "Overcharge." The book attacked the private electric power industry.

Metcalf, according to his calculations, said Detroit Edison Co. overcharged its customers $23,320,000 in 1966 while Consumers Power Co. had overcharges of $16,723,000.

Metcalf made his latest charges yesterday as the Senate Commerce Committee prepared to consider a bill to restrict Federal Power Commission (FPC) regulation of electric companies.

★ ★ ★

"One hundred and seventy power companies collected one and a third billion dollars more than they should have in 1966. That is $150 million more than their 1965 overcharge," Metcalf said.

'BURY' BILL

The senator released the 1966 figures after requesting and receiving a compilation from the FPC. With their release, he called on the commerce committee to "bury" the bill.

Besides Detroit Edison and Consumers Power, Metcalf released figures for 18 other private electric companies he said overcharged their customers by at least $10 million in 1966, according to his calculations.

MACE TO FACE — Cook County Sheriff's Patrolman Frank Gori holds a can of the chemical Mace near the face of Gerald Bartlett last night after Bartlett was hauled from a Nixon press conference.

Intruder Arrested at Nixon Press Talk

CHICAGO (AP) — Police broke up a disturbance at a news conference being conducted by Richard M. Nixon Wednesday night and arrested a man they said tried to inject himself into the questioning.

Gerald Lowell Bartlett, 28, of New York City was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Bartlett told police he was merely attempting to ask the Republican former vice president a question. Police said Bartlett pushed and kicked several officers before he was arrested.

Police used the chemical Mace to subdue Bartlett and placed him in a squad car outside the Sheraton-Blackstone Hotel where the news conference was being held, officers said.

IN WISCONSIN TODAY

Nixon, a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, was in Chicago overnight and was scheduled to fly to Marshfield, Wis., today for an appearance.

Nixon told the news conference it was no surprise to him that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York had announced that he was reassessing his earlier decision not to challenge President Johnson for the Democratic nomination.

Kennedy's announcement followed a strong showing by Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota against Johnson in the New Hampshire, primary.

"But I doubt that either he (Kennedy) or Sen. McCarthy can win the Democratic nomination if Johnson wants it," Nixon said. "Historically, an incumbent president has both the money and the power to get the nomination, if he wants it."

★ ★ ★

"The big question is whether Johnson will decide not to be a candidate," Nixon added. "I doubt that this will happen."

Bartlett said he was a research analyst for Union Carbide Corp.

Rep. Ford Gets NAACP Prod

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), sent a telegram yesterday to House Minority Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan and three other GOP congressmen urging support of the civil rights bill now before the House.

Wilkins reminded them only three Republican senators had voted against the bill, which passed the Senate 71-20 Monday, compared to 29 GOP senators who voted in favor of it.

Wilkins expressed hope the same ratio would prevail in the House.

Sources close to Ford in Washington said yesterday he was opposed to the Senate-passed bill as it now stood and would vote against it.

Wilkins' telegram to Ford said that, if the same ratio of Republican votes was recorded in the House, "the party in this time of crisis would earn the deep thanks of the Negro minority and of the nation as a whole."

Another Ford Joins Guard

HONOLULU (AP) — Herbert M. Ford is the fourth member of his family in four generations to join National Guard units.

His father, Maj. Herbert A. Ford, is now in the Air Force and enlisted in the California Guard in 1935.

Lurleen Remains on 'Serious' List; Infection Fought

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. Lurleen B. Wallace remained in serious condition today and was being given large doses of antibiotics to combat a continuing abdominal infection following her second operation in three weeks.

A statement released yesterday said, "The governor's overall condition . . . remains about the same . . . and she is described as being as well as could be expected in view of the circumstances. Her first postoperative day was satisfactory.

"She remains in serious, but not critical, condition."

Mrs. Wallace, 41, had an operation Tuesday at St. Margaret's Hospital to drain an abdominal abscess which doctors said occurred because of the governor's weakened condition, brought on by months of treatment for cancer.

Perilous Mail From Viet GIs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mail from Vietnam still brings live hand grenades, automatic pistols, ammunition, grenade launchers and AR15 machine guns, says James Miller, U.S. customs import specialist.

"No week goes by without our receiving at least one such article," Miller said Wednesday.

But, he said, the amount of dangerous contraband being mailed home by U.S. military personnel is much less than a year ago.

George K. Brokaw, district customs director, said, "Now they make our boys open packages for inspection before they will accept the articles for mailing."

★ ★ ★

But the stuff still arrives, including marijuana, which Miller said GIs send "in small quantities, for their personal use. We haven't had an instance of someone trying to become a distributor."

3 Orion Twp. Fire Victims Still Critical

St. Joseph Mercy Hospital officials reported the conditions of Mrs. Marion Chisholm, 40, and two of her children still critical as a result of burns suffered in a fire early Monday at their home, 2210 Waldon, Orion Township.

The funeral for Dorothy Jean Kennie, 11, a daughter who died in the fire, was to be today at Voorhees-Siple Funeral Chapel, Pontiac.

A collection center for money, food and clothing for the survivors has been set up at Carpenter School, 2290 Flintridge, off Joslyn in Orion Township.

Principal James Theunick said students, their parents and teachers had been notified.

The two unharmed boys, Johnny Kennie, 8, and Elmer Chisholm, 6, reportedly owed their lives to the efforts of an older sister, Linda M. Cornell, 18, who rescued them from the burning building.

The cause of the fire, still not officially determined, was believed to be an exploding coal heater.

Suharto Adds to Congress

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Acting President Suharto appointed 102 more persons to Congress Wednesday, a week before it meets to consider giving him a full five-year term. Last month he appointed 67 new members.

Suharto, who commanded the armed forces until he supplanted President Sukarno, has now packed the Congress with military men, wives of military men and veterans. The army contends that it must take full control because the political parties are bickering over personal interests rather than advancing national programs.

Gen. A. H. Nasution, the president of Congress, has said Suharto's term should be limited to three years, the remaining legal life of Congress. But Congress is expected to vote a five-year term.

Librarian Decodes Request for Book

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — In the Rochester Public Library recently, one man handed a librarian a written request for "A Connecticut Yankee on King Arthur's Porch." The veteran librarian quickly noted the error and found the Yankee in the king's court.

Other written requests, which the librarians had fun decoding, included "Our Megaton" for Leon Uris' best-seller "Armageddon"; "Accidental Mythology" for the Occidental Variety, and "Pre-Justice" for Jane Austin's "Pride and Prejudice."

She is in custody in Oakland County Jail in lieu of $2,000 bond set at her preliminary examination by Municipal Judge Cecil B. McCallum.

Mrs. Tillery was arrested at her home after Jesse J. Williams of the same address was fatally stabbed in the neck.

Three years after Dr. Paul Carlson was slain in the Stanleyville massacre, his widow, Lois Carlson Bridges, is on her way back to the Congo to dedicate a medical center in his memory.

Mrs. Bridges, remarried to appliance firm executive Henry Bridges, left from Los Angeles International Airport yesterday on a journey which will take her to a remote part of Ubangi province near the River Loke.

There the Paul Carlson Medical Center, built at a cost of $1 million by the foundation named for the late missionary doctor, will be dedicated.

Mrs. Birdges and her husband live in suburban Torrance, Calif., with her two children, 10 and 13. She worked with Carlson as a missionary but has given up this work.

Prince: Future of Europe Is Unsettled

Prince Philip said last night "At this moment, no one can pretend that the future for Europe is either settled or particularly encouraging."

PHILIP

"There is a revival of nationalism which can only fill with dread those of us who took part in the last great war," the husband of Queen Elizabeth II told an Anglo-Belgian Union dinner in London.

He said the economic fragmentation of the continent had been prevented, but there existed two separate economic blocs — the European free trade area and the Common Market.

Although this might be convenient and even pleasing, too, for those with a limited outlook and parochial minds, in the context of world trends it can only be self-destructive," he said.

U.S. Viet Toll Again Tops 500 for Week

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. death toll in the Vietnam war topped 500 last week for the third time in four weeks, the U.S. Command reported today.

The command said 509 Americans were killed in combat and 2,766 were wounded last week, compared with 542 killed and 2,191 wounded the previous week.

In the week of Feb. 11-17, the number of Americans killed was the highest of the war—543. There were 470 killed in the week of Feb. 18-24.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported 418 government troops killed last week, 1,199 wounded and 98 missing or captured. This was a sharp rise over the week before, when 139 were reported killed, 779 wounded and 92 missing.

ENEMY CASUALTIES

The U.S. Command reported that allied forces killed 4,335 of the enemy last week, while the South Vietnamese said 5,327 were killed and 488 captured. Discrepancies in the report of enemy casualties by the two commands is not unusual.

The report raised total American combat casualties in the war since January 1961 to 19,760 killed, 120,101 wounded and 1,087 missing or captured. Nearly half the wounded—56,437—did not require hospitalization.

The weekly summary also said allied troops had killed 310,557 of the enemy since the start of 1961. But it also estimated enemy military strength in South Vietnam at 223,000 to 248,000, the same estimate the U.S. Command has been giving for months.

McCarthy Campaign Gets Shot in Arm

NEW YORK (AP) — Supporters of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy report his strong showing in the New Hampshire presidential primary has produced a surge of volunteers and some contributions. And most say Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's "reassessment" has not changed their plans.

★ ★ ★

McCarthy told newsmen Wednesday he thought it was "fine" for Kennedy to get into the race, but that it would have no effect on his own plans. The Minnesota Democrat then went to Wisconsin to join the young volunteers working for him in that state's primary.

"I think I can get the nomination," he said.

An Associated Press survey found McCarthy's opinion was shared by most of his supporters around the country as well, even after Kennedy's move to the edge of presidential candidacy.

'NO DIFFERENCE'

"It makes no difference whatsoever in our plans," said Chairman Marvin Madeson of the McCarthy for President organization in St. Louis. "We're going all the way with McCarthy. Kennedy is in the position of hanging on McCarthy's coattails, but he stands less of a chance of being elected than McCarthy."

Harry Beardsley of Concerned Democrats in Iowa said, "We realize there are a lot of Kennedy supporters working for McCarthy. We have known that sooner or later this question would have to be resolved. A great deal of McCarthy support could be directly transferred to Kennedy.

★ ★ ★

"On the other hand, it is not impossible that one of Kennedy's reassessment alternatives will be to put his support behind McCarthy."

COALITION FORMED

One hundred leaders of Reform and Independent Democrats organized a Coalition for a Democratic Alternative in Brooklyn to support McCarthy. ported an unprecedented stream of contributions.

"We have received $13,000 in two days," said codirector Sarah Kovner.

★ ★ ★

Some apparent bitterness against Kennedy was voiced. Harold Ickes, cochairman and son of Franklin D. Roosevelt's secretary of the interior said, "Kennedy gave very good reasons for reconsidering, but they were valid six months ago."

"It's too late for Kennedy," said Michael Tonkonogy, a retired schoolteacher, and another worker said Kennedy's announcement "fits into the whole Kennedy image of being an opportunist."

NEW CLUBS

A new McCarthy organization opened in Trenton, N.J.; and, at a rally at Charlottesville, Va., plans were announced for new McCarthy clubs throughout Virginia.

In Wisconsin, McCarthy campaign director Jay G. Sykes predicted for the first time, "We're going to carry the state" in the April 2 primary.

Richard D. Cudahy, a Johnson supporter and Wisconsin state chairman, said the President now probably is the underdog there.

Hoosiers for a Democratic Alternative said in Indianapolis that the New Hampshire results brought them a surge of volunteers. C. Harvey Lord of the group said, "We have been getting all kinds of spontaneous offers of help."

'MORE THE MERRIER'

John Carney, McCarthy's campaign coordinator in Illinois, said he would welcome Kennedy's entrance into the race. "The more the merrier," he told newsmen. "It's a tremendous job to challenge an incumbent president . . . if Sen. Kennedy should decide to support McCarthy, it would add a great deal to our campaign, particularly if the support included strong organizations which have supported the Kennedy family, such as Mayor Daley's in Chicago."

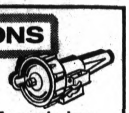

Miami attorney Allan Milledge of the Florida Conference of Concerned Democrats said membership had swollen from 300 to over 2,000 in the past days.

Milledge said, as did other leaders in the drive for McCarthy, that most supporters were professional men, businessmen and students, with a strong sprinkling of housewives.

A statewide organization for McCarthy was founded in Pennsylvania March 12, and its leader, Philadelphia lawyer Michael Malin, predicted it would draw 200,000 votes for the Minnesota senator in the April 23 primary.

Worried LBJ Aides Plot Vote Strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's political advisers, genuinely concerned that Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy may beat the President in Wisconsin's April 2 presidential primary, are plotting a major overhaul in strategy.

An informed source says they will junk two tactics which they believe backfired against Johnson in Tuesday's New Hampshire primary, where McCarthy captured an impressive 42 per cent of the vote.

One of these, the well-placed informant said, is the message that "Hanoi is watching" for an anti-Johnson turnout that might signify U.S. disunity over the war.

The other is the use of pledge cards

Related Stories, Pages A-13, B-11

"You may be pretty sure," said the informant, "you won't hear of those two gimmicks again.

"New Hampshire simply isn't something you can bursh off lightly," the source said. "We have serious problems. And we've got to face up to the fact that McCarthy can take the President in Wisconsin.

"That would really hurt."

In the three weeks remaining before the Wisconsin test — where the President will be on the ballot — his strategists' plan is to pin down the Minnesota senator on specific alternatives to Johnson's Vietnam war policy.

McCarthy's opposition to conduct of the war has been the basis for his steadily mounting campaign to wrest the Democratic nomination from the President.

Welfare Chief Quits in Disgust

Expressing "disgust and frustration," Oakland County's director of social services has turned in his resignation effective April 12.

Douglas H. Hoard had been in charge of the county welfare office since March 18, 1967.

In the last week he has expressed dissatisfaction with the way the state was treating the county office.

The county no longer has direct control of its program having merged with the State Department of Social Services last year.

★ ★ ★

Hoard has charged that, since then,

Related Story, Page A-2

the state has steadily reduced his staff while the welfare case loads have grown.

'NO RESULTS'

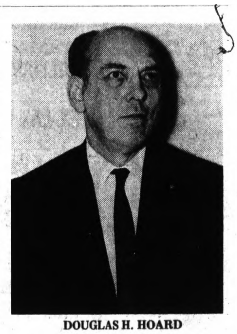

Hoard and other county officials were backed yesterday by a vote of the Board of Supervisors yesterday asking Gov. Romney to personally intervene in the Oakland County welfare program.

Today Hoard said, "I just haven't been able to get any results. Now let someone else try."

Hoard, 58, is a retired naval officer who began working for the county as assistant corporation counsel in 1961. He held several other posts including assistant welfare director before his present $17,000 per year post.

★ ★ ★

He lives at 1158 W. Maple, Birmingham, and said he has no immediate plans but said he would travel for a while. "I want to lose my neurosis before I think of another job," Hoard said.

Road Officials Answer Critics

By L. Gary Thorne
Assistant City Editor—Suburban

The charter chapter of WHAR (Why Have Awful Roads?) hosted Frazer W. Staman, road commission chairman, and Paul W. McGovern, one of the two other commissionrs. Also appearing was Paul VanRoekel, highway engineer.

An estimated 75 to 100 persons — most of them WHAR members — attended the meeting at Holly High School.

Essentially, the head-to-head meeting ended in a standoff with the critics remaining critics and the road commissioners convinced the county was doing the best it could with the funds available.

Organized about three months ago, WHAR is a self-admitted protest group which seeks better and more efficient maintenance of the county's network of rural roads.

NO ACTION

Ben East, WHAR chairman, described the group's effort:

"Everybody has talked about it—like the weather, no one does anything about it."

Bobby Mulling Big Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has stepped to the brink of presidential candidacy and a key aide says he'll make his decision in a week.

Kennedy huddled with poliitical advisers in New York last night after saying in Washington he is reassessing whether to run against President Johnson.

The New York Democrat said the New Hampshire primary results removed "the major obstacle" to challenging Johnson — and said the vote demonstrated Democratic concern over Johnson policies.

But Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, who drew an unexpectedly high 42 per cent of the New Hampshire Democratic vote, said he won't pull out of the race whatever the New Yorker decides to do.

★ ★ ★

"He's been reassessing his position all along the way," McCarthy told newsmen after a 20-minute meeting with Kennedy. "I said I intended to stay in the primaries and in the race," the Minnesotan added.

BY MARCH 22

A close aide said Kennedy will make his decision by March 22, deadline for entering the May 28 Oregon primary. And Kennedy said if he runs he probably would have to campaign actively in the primaries.

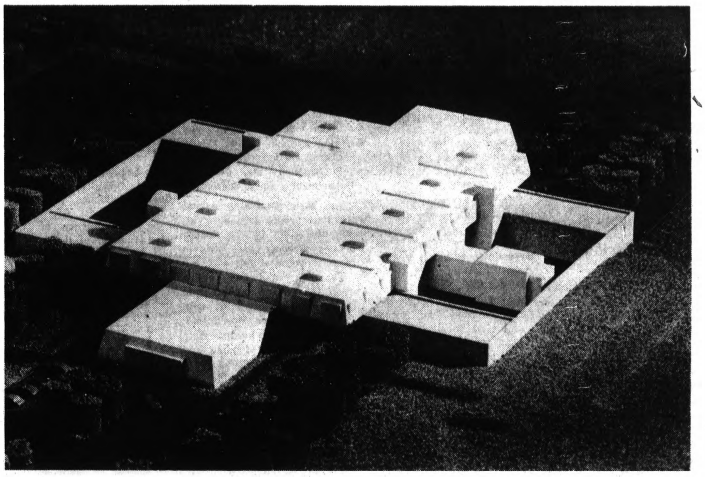

"Otherwise, there is no reason why anyone should consider me," he told newsmen.

Kennedy said the major obstacle to his candidacy had been a fear of deeply dividing the Democratic party if he was suspected of personal ambition or personal animosity toward Johnson.

But McCarthy's strong showing in New Hampshire removed the personal element, Kennedy said, and "indicated a good deal of concern in the Democratic party about the direction our country is going."

Kennedy said Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings this week indicated the administration is sticking to its Vietnam policies — and he criticized Johnson for not saying what he will do with recommendations from his special riot commission.

JAIL MODEL — This model shows approximately what Oakland County's new jail complex will look like when it is completed in 1970. The structure, designed by Giffels and Rossetti, Inc., of Detroit, will cost about $6.4 million and be located adjacent to the courthouse at the County Center.

By County Supervisors

$6.4-Million Jail Is Okayed

A $6.4-million jail complex was approved yesterday by the County Board of Supervisors.

The board directed final plans and specifications for the two-story structure be drafted by the firm of Giffels and Rossetti, Inc., of Detroit and submitted to the board once again for final approval.

Target date for completion is July 1970.

Accepted by the board were alternate plans that added about $500,000 to the basic cost. For about $168,000 a tunnel will be built from the proposed jail to the courthouse which will be about 200 yards to the northeast at the County Center on Telegraph and Pontiac Lake Road.

★ ★ ★

Also included will be a full basement rather than a partial one that had been proposed in early planning. Recommendations for the extras were urged by the buildings and grounds committee which has studied the proposals for about the last six months.

MORGUE FACILITY

The new jail will have about 165,000 square feet of floor space with eventually three wings for cellblocks, administration section in front, morgue facility in back, services area and parking for 58 cars in the basement.

Capacity will be about 850 ultimately compared to about 300 capacity at the present jail in downtown Pontiac. The present structure was built in the 1920s and has been deemed inadequate and antiquated for today's needs.

The architects announced work could begin by September and be completed about 22 months afterward.

Methods of financing the structure are yet to be determined. This will be studied by the ways and means committee with either a bond issue or pay-as-you-go program a possibility.

U.S. Crime Soars in '67; FBI Points to Summer Riots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI reports a 23 per cent spurt in big-city crimes paced an over-all 16 per cent jump in the nation's major crime rate last year. It cites last summer's riots as a factor.

The 23 per cent hike was in cities of 500,000 to one million population.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said in a report released today that crime was up 16 per cent in the suburbs and 13 per cent in rural areas. A 17 per cent jump was recorded in cities of 25,000 population and more.

"Included in the increased police arrests was a rising volume of arrests for offenses against public order" — or riots — the bureau said in a statement accompanying statistical data.

Arrests of adults rose by three per cent after declining slightly in 1966, the report said.

Crimes of violence were up 15 per cent, led by robbery which increased 27 per cent from 1966. There were 12 per cent more murders, 9 per cent more rapes and 8 per cent more aggravated assaults.

Property crimes jumped 16 per cent. Auto thefts rose 17 per cent, and burglary and larceny of $50 or more in value were up 16 per cent, the report said.

★ ★ ★

Hoover, who favors federal firearms control, said serious assaults where a gun was used as the weapon rose 22 per cent and one of five assaults was committed with a gun.

ARMED ROBBERY SOARS

The FBI chief said police solved 23 per cent of the crimes reported to the bureau, a decline of seven per cent over 1966.

The FBI report did not include changes in the crime picture for New York, Detroit, Kansas City and Baltimore. The bureau said 1966 figures were not comparable with the 1967 figures in these cities because of changes in reporting some offenses.

Weather Will Be Windy, Warmer

The windy and warmer weather will include occasional showers possibly mixed with light snow tonight. Lows will average 27 to 33 degrees.

Mild and cloudy with sporadic showers likely is tomorrow's forecast. Saturday should be somewhat colder and cloudy.

Increasing southerly winds will move at 10 to 20 miles per hour throughout the day.

The lowest temperature preceding 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac was 15. At 1 p.m. the mercury reading was 33.

More Busing Likely if School Tax OK'd

Pontiac schoolchildren who live at least one mile from school have a strong chance of being bused to school if the March 25 millage issue passes, the board of education said last night.

This new ruling applies to pupils who

Related Stories, Page A-11

live within the Pontiac city limits who previously have not been transported except in extreme cases where safety hazards are present.

The school board's statement of intent said:

- Elementary pupils who live more than one mile from the school they attend or who face unusual safety conditions between home and schools are intended to be transported.

★ ★ ★

- Junior high school students who live more than 1½ miles from the school they attend or who face severe safety problems are intended to be transported.

NO PROVISIONS

No mention was made of provisions for senior high school students.

Safety hazards, such as an expressway, may be less than the prescribed distances in each case to receive consideration for transportation.

"The board of education wishes to be clearly understood that it can only carry out this intent if sufficient financial resources to meet normal current expenses and these new costs are available to the school district," the position statement said.

"A favorable vote on March 25 for the proposed millage increase would make possible at least partial implementation of this plan in September 1968.

NO OTHER WAY

"It would not appear that financial resources would be adequate for implementation of this program under any other circumstances."

Changes in the transportation policy were apparently spurred by parents who have questioned whether transportation will be available to new planned facilities, such as the Human Resources Center.

The state partially reimburses school districts only for transportation of students who live outside a city and 1½ miles from the school they attend.

Detroit Gunman Kills 2, Hurts 3

From Our News Wires

DETROIT — A holdup man who said he didn't "like the looks" of his victims gunned them down in an east side bar early today, killing two persons and wounding three others, two of them critically. He escaped.

Witnesses said the killer, wearing a blue-hooded sweatshirt, entered the Fireside Lounge bar shortly after midnight, wielded a rifle and announced "this is a holdup."

Five customers, all men, were sitting in the bar. The gunman ordered them to give him their wallets.

The man then scowled at the group, shouted "I don't like your looks" and opened fire.

Killed were Walter Charlton, 46, of Royal Oak and an unidentified man in his early 20s.

Frank Buhiak, 23, of Detroit and Robert Crough, age and address unknown, were injured critically. Buniak was hospitalized with gunshot wounds of the chest and neck. Crough was shot in the abdomen.

Frank Losh, 34, of Detroit was hit in the face and hand. He was treated at a hospital and released.

Laborites Face 8 Tests

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's embattled Labor party began a period of testing today in the first of eight special parliamentary elections. Its prospects were not good.

Labor held six of the eight seats vacated by death or resignation but stands a chance of losing five. The opposition Conservatives won the other two in 1966 and are expected to keep them.

County Road Bond Sale OK'd

The Oakland County Road Commission received approval yesterday from the board of supervisors to sell $4 million in bonds to finance road projects.

The funds will provide the commission with about $6 million for roads this year, adding about $2 million from available sources.

The bond issue will have to be approved by the State Municipal Finance Commission, a process which usually takes about two months.

The commission has claimed it does not have sufficient funds to carry on an extensive road project this year.

★ ★ ★

Last year it requested eight-tenths of a mill tax levy from the board of supervisors to carry on essentially the same program as is now proposed. This was not approved, however.

20-YEAR BASIS

The bonds will be on a 20-year basis. The commission made a similar bond issue about six years ago.

This year a payment of $580,000 is due, plus the commission must pay back $500,000 to the supervisors that was borrowed last year in a cash crisis situation.

The bulk of this year's road program will be spent in widening projects on Greenfield, Farmington, Elizabeth Lake, Maple and Walton, for about four-fifths of the total.

Secondary road projects totaling $629,100 are proposed for small sections of 11 Mile, Powers, Drake, Square Lake, Sleeth, Eston, Fish Lake, Newton, Canal and Oakside. Total distrance involved is 9.2 miles of grading, drainage and bituminous surfacing.

State House Passes Bills on Road Safety, Demolition of Slums

LANSING (AP) — A pair of bills aimed at slum landlords and accident-prone drivers won House approval Wednesday and were sent to the Senate.

Advanced, meanwhile, were measures raising the penalties for fish poaching, raising benefits under the veterans' homestead property tax exemption and outlawing retail promotional games.

A bill giving mining companies power to condemn land and acquire surface rights also was moved into position for final action.

The Senate spent most of the day in recess for committee meetings and met briefly to discuss several minor bills.

DRIVER'S LICENSE

The traffic safety bill, approved 75-31 after several weeks of off-and-on debate, allows the secretary of state to revoke a motorist's license on the basis of his accident record. It would apply only if the driver were described by police as guilty of moving violations in connection with the accidents.

Eligible for revocation or suspension would be any driver involved in a mishap resulting in death, or any driver involved three times within 24 months in crashes causing injury or damage over $200.

Rep. J. Robert Traxler, D-Bay City, charged the measure would give "arbitrary and capricious powers to the bureaucrats" in the State Department.

"All we're trying to do," retorted Rep. Quincy Hoffman, R-Applegate, the bill's sponsor, "is protect you and me and everybody else in Michigan from the people that we don't want driving on the highways."

ELDERLY MOTORISTS

An amendment by Rep. Daniel Cooper, D-Oak Park, providing that each driver reaching his 70th birthday would be examined by the department and could lose his license, did not attract the votes needed to second it.

Given approval 91-13 was a measure giving cities authority to order demolition of deserted buildings and repair of unfit housing units, or to do the work themselves and assess the costs as a lien on the property involved.

Sponsored by Rep. James Del Rio, D-Detroit, the measure applies to buildings which are "unsanitary or unfit for human habitation" or which are "likely to work injury to the health, safety or general welfare of those living within."

An owner would be able to appeal a decision of the city to Circuit Court.

Passed 103-0 was a bill raising the professional educational requirements of optometrists from two to six years. Rep. Robert Mahoney, D-Detroit, who is blind, sponsored the bill.

Also moved into position for final action meanwhile was a bill which would relax the eligibility standards for veterans' property tax relief and graduate such relief according to the degree of disability of the veteran

Multiwarhead Rockets in Test

Subs to Fire Missiles Against Pacific Radar

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy plans to launch multiple-warhead Poseidon missiles against Army antiballistic missile components on Kwajalein Island in the Pacific in a combat-type test.

Pentagon officials said they expect the result to be a good guage of the reliability of both advanced weapons systems.

The Poseidon is the new Navy missile ticketed eventually to go aboard 31 of the 41 nuclear-drive Polaris submarines. It's intended to increase U.S. assurance of being able to overwhelm Soviet antimissile defenses.

Kwajalein is the site of test radar and antiballistic missile interceptors being developed for use in the $5 billion U.S. antimissile defense shield.

NO NUCLEAR DEVICES

Sources said no nuclear devices will be used either by the flock of reentry vehicles released by Poseidon—which carries 10 warheads—or by the Sentinel system's interceptors. Nuclear bursts in the atmosphere are prohibited by the 1963 Test Ban Treaty.

But through radar tracking and computerization Kwajalein technicians will be able to tell just how effective one is against the other.

As one planner explained it:

★ ★ ★

The Spartan is the long-range antimissile and Sprint the superfast short-range interceptor. They form the one-two punch of the Sentinel missile defense planned for completion the next few years.

Welfare Crisis Aid Is Sought

County Board Seeks Romney Intervention

A direct appeal to Gov. Romney to relieve an Oakland County welfare problem was authorized by the County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

R. W. Lahti of Wixom, chairman of the supervisors' social services committee claimed the county's ability to help its citizens is being impaired by state practices.

Lahti, whose committee works on problems related to welfare and social aid, put the problem on a crisis basis and claimed both the appointed and elected officials of the county had done all they could to seek help through the Michigan Department of Social Services.

The basic complaint is that the state agency has been cutting the staff in the county despite growing case loads in most categories of aid.

The county abdicated control over its own welfare program by a merger agreement with the state effective March 1967. All employes then became state employes and all funding and administration was placed in the hands of the state administrators.

CONSEQUENCES

The merger was urged prior to the agreement on the basis it would save the county money. Opponents of the move warned of future consequences, however.

Lahi revealed staff members have been reduced from 186 to 168, and that the efficiency of the operation has been impaired.

"We are talking about something that affects people," he said.

Some protest to making the appeal was expressed. William Mainland of Milford said he "questioned the wisdom of going over the head of the State Welfare Department and appealing to the boss."

'HARSH AVENUE'

He said he could not support "such a harsh avenue of protest."

Philip O. Mastin of Hazel Park countered this by saying a direct appeal to the governor had worked in his city in a highway matter.

"I see nothing wrong with appealing to anyone who will help us," he said.

The motion to make the appeal passed with only a smattering of negative voice votes.

Youngsters Are Offered Cranbrook Workshops

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — A new program of after-school workshops, each for eight weekly meetings starting the first week of April, has been announced by Cranbrook Institute of Science, located on Lone Pine Road.

"Woods and Meadows in Spring" is offered for children in grades 1-3 beginning April 2. Instructor Mrs. Janet Hawksley, science teacher at Brookside School Cranbrook, will teach the children about plants and animals in short excursions on the institute grounds and with indoor projects. The class will meet from 4-5 p.m.

Also beginning April 2 from 4-5 p.m. will be "Starting a Mineral Collection." This program, for grades 4-6, will be under the direction of Mrs. Velva Pinney, of the institute staff.

For junior high students, there will be two programs, "The Pond in Spring" and "Astraonomy," both from 4-5:30 p.m. starting April 4.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Philip T. Clampitt, institute associate zoologist, will conduct the pond study, which will include laboratory sessions and field trips to gather pond specimens.

EVENINGS FOR ASTRONOMY

Mrs. Doris McMillan, institute planetarium instructor, will conduct the "Astronomy" program, which will include two evening classes in the observatory.

"Natural Forces," a study of the phenomena of physical forces, will be offered for senior high students. Michael V. Butler, institute curator of physics, will instruct.

Each of the workshops will be limited to a small number of young people. The fee is $20.

BIRMINGHAM — The Pierce School PTA's general meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. will be devoted to an explanation of the "Helping Hand" program recently initiated by the association.

A movie entitled "The Child Molester" will be shown.

The Helping Hand program consists of two or more volunteer homes in each block displaying the Helping Hand sign — a large orange-colored hand. Children go to these homes only in cases of emergency, such as accident, sudden illness, during storms or when lost.

Open-Housing Bill Is Vote-Shy

State Senate Backers Uncertain of Passage

LANSING (AP) — Senate open-housing backers were counting votes today—not at all sure they could muster the 20 necessary to secure passage of the controversial measure.

Meanwhile, Sen. Coleman Young, D-Detroit, said he has asked that a substitute bill be drafted, similar to a version drawn up last fall during meetings between Gov. George Romney and a bipartisan legislative committee.

Supporters of the bill estimated that they have, at best, only 11 of the 18 Democratic votes and six of the 20 Republican votes—three short of the required number.

The bill, banning racial discrimination in most real estate sale and rental transactions, was returned to the Senate floor Wednesday by the appropriations committee with a recommendation that it pass.

COMMITTEE STUDY

It was reported out by the State Affairs Committee last Wednesday but was sent to the appropriations committee the next day for a study of fiscal implications despite charges that the move was an attempt to kill the bill.

The appropriations committee added three amendments, but committee chairman Frank Beadle, R-St. Clair, said the amendments made no significant changes in the bill.

Road Officials Answer Critics

"We know more about roads than you do and we're aware of 2,450 miles of (local) roads," he told the commission critics.

Indicating that the commission was continuing its endeavor to obtain general tax revenue for the County Board of Supervisors, Staman saw no other answer to road problems than more money.

NOT MAGICIANS

"We're not magicians," he lamented "We spend what money we have where the statute says."

He pointed out that road funds (from state gas and weight taxes) are returned to areas where the population is. He cited Wayne County as an area that receives 3½ times the money Oakland County does for less than 1,700 miles of local roads.

"You're only going to change it (the dollar distribution) in the State Legislature, and they send two representatives to our one," Staman contended.

TROUBLE SPOTS

Several of the WHAR members told of specific trouble spots either not corrected or not corrected properly. The road critics, however, did admit that the coffee break problem appeared corrected.

This latter was in reference to complaints that several road commission trucks would be seen at restaurants for long periods of time.

McGovern strongly denied that WHAR had anything to do with correcting the problem. He said the directive on coffee breaks had gone out before WHAR was organized.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, Staman said that a grievance had been filed over the directive.

Van Roekel defended the quality of road workmanship. He pointed out that some areas of the county have better roads simply because of soil conditions.

He said $1 million was spent on maintenance of local roads last year. The highway engineer added that this averaged out to only $600 a mile with about one-third of this going for snow and ice control.

"We're not claiming we're doing a good job of maintenance, but we've been trying to get additional resources. (One source of funds cited last night was extra voted millages for roads in some townships.)

The road spokesmen said cutbacks on local road maintenance were ordered last August when the designated funds were exhausted. They said maintenance was stepped up again Jan. 1 with the beginning of the new fiscal year.

DENIED CREDIT

VanRoekel pointed out that local roads today receive far heavier traffic at faster speeds and have far less money spent on maintaining them.

"In spite of the workmanship or anything else, they're wearing out," he said.

The highway engineer used charts to detail the road commission's financial structure. In a sheet distributed to the audience, it was pointed out that the average one-city family pays only $6.50 per year toward the county's local road system.

Counties receive 34 per cent of the gas and weight tax revenue, the state 46 per cent and cities and villages 20 per cent, according to the road spokesmen.

Of the state funds received by Oakland County, only 25 per cent are used on local roads.

Concluded after a three-hour discussion, the WHAR session last night appeared to only touch the surface of WHAR complaints.

East said he hoped the commission representatives would sense the mood of the people.

Herrington Grounds to Get Lights

Pontiac's Herrington School will be getting outside lights to curb vandalism, which has run as high as $2,000 for a 10-month period.

The board of education last night okayed a proposal for the school's PTA to pay $400 for installation and maintenance of seven pole lights in a pilot project.

The Herrington PTA volunteered to pay the money since it is concerned about window breakage and breakins.

Board members approved the request since the PTA would be putting the money into the school anyway.

Temporary poles and flood lamps will be placed around the building at intervals by Detroit Edison Co. and 40 feet away from the building.

If the lights prove effective after the pilot period, the school district has agreed to assume the monthly costs.

In other business, the board voted to exclude two 17-year-old Pontiac Central High School students who unprovokingly attacked another student in separate incidents.

They now can't attend any school in the school district until the board of education lifts what is considered serious punishment.

The board received a letter from its Citizens Committee on Human Relations, asking that the committee's suggestions for improving student relations at Central High School be implemented.

It has been turned over to Central Principal Garth Errington for consideration.

A representative of the new militant Black Educators of Pontiac (BEP) demanded in a statement to the board that Negroes fill administrative positions which become vacant.

Negro History Shortchanged

Pontiac School Affairs

Pontiac teachers came under fire last night for not using enough Negro history material in the classrooms.

Making the charge to the board of education was Mrs. Joan Walker, a fourth-grade teacher at LeBaron Elementary School.

She was supported by two other teachers and the executive secretary of a teaching organization.

As a result, the school board requested a progress report from Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer on why minority group materials have not been widely used by teachers.

Whitmer was also directed to suggest a policy statement on the use of the materials by teachers and to recommend ways to strengthen the in-service training program for teachers on minority groups.

Board members were particularly concerned with the topic since they have bought numerous library and classrooms materials on minority groups, particularly Negroes.

What touched off a long discussion was an oral report by Asst. Supt. William Lacy and two other administrators on progress made in including Negro history materials in the school curriculum.

Lacy said an experimental Negro history course is planned for high school summer school and during the next school year. They will be course electives.

Lacy, however, indicated he felt it would be more desirable to improve United States history courses with contributions of Negroes being noted.

Mrs. Walker urged the board to require teachers in all schools to use the available materials "to stop the chain of hate which is going around."

★ ★ ★

Trustee Russell Brown said he was "surprised that more hasn't been done" in this area.

'STRONG INTEREST'

Trustee James Howlett advised Whitmer to notify all principals that the "board has expressed a strong interest in utilitization of the materials."

Tom Everitt, president of the Pontiac Education Association, said a board directive to teachers would be "all too late in coming."

Whitmer explained that inclusion of Negro history materials in the curriculum takes time.

★ ★ ★

Books, teacher study guides and voluntary and involuntary in-service programs on Negroes are included in the current program, Whitmer said.

60 Millionth Visitor Tours Chicago Site

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago's No. 1 tourist attraction — the Museum of Science and Industry — has welcomed its 60 millionth visitor.

Opened in July 1933, when Chicago was staging the first year of its Century of Progress world's fair, the annual visitation is nearing the 3¼-million mark.

His $8-million endowment in the mid-1920s, plus a $5-million bond issue and donations by schoolchildren and women's clubs, made it possible.

It was created by the rehabilitation of the Fine Arts Building of the Columbian Exposition of 1893.

Guppies to Be Tried as Mosquito Control

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UI) — A University of California at Riverside scientist has been commissioned by the United Nations World Health Organization to work on a mosquito control project utilizing guppies.

Dr. Ernest C. Bay will make a one-month trip to Thailand and Burma to learn whether certain guppies from Bangkok sewers can control disease-carrying mosquitos in Rangoon.

Dr. Bay will first study the fish in their present habitat — the sewers of Bangkok. He will then take them to Rangoon.

NEW FREEDOM SHARES

What are they? Who may buy them?

Americans have put their savings to work for freedom through U.S. Savings Bonds for many years. New Freedom Shares do the same job . . . plus. Read how.

Freedom Shares are U.S. Savings Notes. They pay a higher return than Savings Bonds, 4.74% when held to maturity. And they mature in just four-and-a-half years.

For regular Bond buyers only

These new Freedom Shares—which are not redeemable for the first year—are offered on a one-for-one basis with E Bonds, but only to people who belong to the Payroll Savings Plan where they work or the Bond-a-Month Plan where they bank.

There are four denominations of Freedom Shares, each of which may be paired with a Series E Bond of the same or larger denomination, as a "package." For instance, for $39 total, you can purchase a Savings Bond that matures at $25 and a Freedom Share that matures at $25.

America needs your help

When you buy Savings Bonds and Freedom Shares you do an important job for freedom, backing our men in Vietnam and helping to keep the country economically strong. The need is urgent. What you do counts.

Sign up

Tell your supervisor or the Payroll Department where you work (or any officer where you bank) that you'd like to join a Bond purchase plan. Decide how much you'll save . . . whether you want Freedom Shares as well as Bonds . . . and just sign the authorization card.

Tiger Batters Deal From Cold Deck

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Detroit Tiger bats were as cold as the temperature yesterday at chilly Al Lang Field where they dropped a 6-2 decision to the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

Nelson Briles, that last of three St. Louis pitchers gave up the two Tiger tallies and the other six hits.

Tiger starter Earl Wilson was the victim of two runs which scored when a couple of scratch hits blooped over the bag down the third-base-line with two outs.

The game produced several defensive gems on the part of both teams. In the third inning, Wilson spun around and trapped pudgy Roger Maris off second base to end the inning.

John Hiller relieved Wilson in the middle three innings and had things in control until he walked Orlando Cepeda and Carner Shannon with two outs in the sixth frame.

Phil Gagliano then doubled, Dick Schofield singled, pitcher Carlton singled, Bob Tolan singled and the Cardinals had four runs across the plate before Hiller struck out Jose Cruz.

Rookie Les "Sugar" Cain held the Cardinals scoreless in his two innings on the mound, allowing two hits. Cain has now pitched five innings without allowing a run.

The Tigers managed to get two men on base in each of the final two innings, leaving all stranded.

Northrup, who now has eight hits in 18 trips to the plate in the 2-4 record in Grapefruit play, also contributed a beautiful defensive play when he grabbed a low liner along the right-field-line and pegged it perfectly to Tracewski to get Julio Javier at second trying to stretch it to a double.

★ ★ ★

Denny McLain was scheduled to start against the Los Angeles Dodgers today at Lakeland where temperatures were again expected to be on the chilly side.

Fordson Falls, 70-69, Despite Late Comeback

By FLETCHER SPEARS

★ ★ ★

And with a regional title, of course, goes a berth in the quarter-finals, the next step on the trail that leads to East Lansing and the finals next week.

★ ★ ★

When the Chiefs have their game in high gear, there's no stopping them; but they have a abit of alternating hot-and-cold play, and they came up chilly at the wrong time last night, almost costing them a ball game.

★ ★ ★

After streaking to a 45-34 lead at halftime, the Chiefs cooled off but held on for a 70-69 victory over Dearborn Fordson in the second game of the Livonia Franklin regional.

★ ★ ★

Garden City East, which eliminated Farmington Tuesday night, 74-69, takes on Ecorse this evening at 8 with the winner moving to the finals at 8 p.m. Saturday against Pontiac Central.

CLOSE CONTEST

The Fordson affair, which looked easy for most of three quarters, turned into a cliffhanger in the final moments.

★ ★ ★

The Chiefs held a 69-65 lead with 2:06 remaining and junior guard Clayton Burch made it 70-65 with a free throw at the one-minute mark.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

In their bid for a final basket, the Tractors tossed the ball to Los who then flipped it to forward Bob Metz. Metz turned a shot loose from 30 feet that went through but it came after the final buzzer.

BALANCED ATTACK

The Chiefs came up with a balanced attack in the scoring column with forward Frank Russell leading the way with 21 points. Leonard Cole collected 16, Wilson 14 and sophomore Monte Herring contributed 12.

★ ★ ★

Herring, boosted into a starting role when 6-5 Rudy Churchwell injured a foot in practice Monday night, teamed with Cole, Wilson and Russell in dominating the backboards. The Chiefs held a 50-31 edge in rebounds. Churchwell is expected to play Saturday night.

Detroit Wins, 4-2

Wings Blitz Seals

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — There's nothing like a little "blitz" to take some of the sting out of those can't-make-the-playoffs blues the Detroit Red Wings are suffering from.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

All four Detroit goals came within eight minutes and five seconds of the final period as the Red Wings extended their unbeaten streak to three games.

Oakland, also out of playoff consideration and in danger of having its franchise spirited away to Vancouver, jumped off to a 2-0 lead on goals by Larry Popein and ex-Red Wing Ted Hampson in the first two periods.

Bruce MacGregor finally scored for Detroit at the 2:17 mark of the last period and Kent Douglas, who came to the Red Wings in the deal which sent Hampton to Oakland, tied the score at 7:35.

★ ★ ★

Within the next two minutes and 47 seconds the Red Wings had shot out in front to stay on tallies by Alex Delvecchio and Pete Mahovlich.

TURNED BACK

Masked Gerry Cheevers turned out 39 of 40 New York shots for Boston as the Bruins eked out a 2-1 victory over the Rangers to tie the two clubs for second place in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division.

Johnny Bucyk, who has gone through eight nonplayoff seasons, fired in his 30th goal of the season with just 4:33 to play to give the Bruins the win.

Bobby Hull and Pierre Polote starred in Chicago's 4-3 win over the Pittsburgh Penguins, moving the Black Hawks to within a point of the Rangers and Bruins. Hull bagged his 43rd goal while Pilote picked up the 400th assist of his NHL career.

Philadelphia opened its Western Division lead to three points by sinking Minesota 4-2. The Flyers had a commanding 4-0 lead before the North Stars could get on the scoreboard in the game, during which 18 penalties worth 59 minutes were handed out.

★ ★ ★

Ex-Red Wing Paul Henderson scored his second goal in four games for Toronto as the Maple Leafs gained a 3-3 tie with the St. Louis Blues. Henderson put the puck in the net with just 26 seconds to go but Toronto must make up 13 points on Chicago in just nine games if they hope for a chance to defend their Stanley Cup.

Oregon Student Grabs Keg Lead

CINCINNATI (AP) — A 23-year-old University of Oregon student shot a 710 series Wednesday to take first place in the regular singles division of the American Bowling Congress Tournament.

★ ★ ★

Ron Babjar from Eugene, Ore., shot games of 193-279-238 as he deposed Ed Hughes of Elmira, N.Y., who had led the division since March 6 with 701.

Carroll Yocum led the scoring in the team event Wednesday night with a 226-248-232—706 series.

Yocum helped his team, the Sports Bowl Tournament of Middletown, Ohio, to total 2,945, good for seventh place in the regular five-man standings. Don Dennis was second high with 676.

Prep Scores 41 to Pace Champ

By the Associated Press

John Sperla tossed in 41 points to spark a come-from-behind effort that gave Class D defending champion Flint St. Matthew an 88-77 schoolboy basketball victory over Chesaning Our Lady in regional tournament action Wednesday night.

In other regional basketball action, Class A's second-rated East Lansing was knocked out of the running for the state crown by No. 7 Battle Creek Central 73-62.

A last-second field goal by Larry Damek broke a 65-65 tie to give Class B's fifth-rated Chesaning a 67-65 victory over Lansing Gabriels. Damek had 18 points for the game, behind Tom Beckman's 19. The victory gave Chesaning a 19-1 record for the season.

NO TROUBLE

Class D's DeTour rated in the AP poll for most of the season but left out of the final ratings, blasted 10th ranked Brimley out of the running with a 90-70 victory. Tim Tischer was DeTour's high man with 30 points.

Job Talk Continues

ANN ARBOR (AP) — University of Michigan Regents begin a two-day meeting today and the biggest news of the gathering — selection of a new athletic director — may be disguised under the agenda title, "athletic department matters."

The agenda carries no direct reference to the matter of an athletic director to replace H. O. "Fritz" Crisler, who steps down June 30.

The "athletic department matters" item is down for today's meeting, which will be a closed affair.

There has been no official inkling of who may get the job, but track coach Don Canham is seen by many as the likeliest choice.

Canham, asked about the report, said no one has offered him the job — yet.

In Lakeland, Fla., another prospect for the job, Don Lund, director of Detroit Tigers farm clubs, was making himself difficult for newsmen to reach.

The reports in Lakeland were that Lund stood a strong chance of getting the job.

The most recent information tended to pass over the chances of football coach Bump Elliott, who had been mentioned in the most prominent position months ago when talk first began about a successor for Crisler.

The field of favorites apparently has boiled down to Canham, Lund, Dr. Robert Brenzan of San Jose State and Pete Newell, who resigned Tuesday as University of California athletic director.

State Age-Group Swim Championships at PNH

Boys and girls 16 years old and under will seek 25 championships Sunday in the State AAU swimming championships at Pontiac Northern.

Preliminaries in the boys 400 freestyle will start the age-group event at 8 a.m.

The boys will compete for titles in 11 events. There are 14 girls events scheduled.

Boys competition will dominate the morning session and the girls will take over in the afternoon. All participants must be 16 or under and members of the Michigan Amateur Athletic Union or registered 'Y' swimmers. No poolside entries will be permitted.

John Moreau, swimming coach at PNH, is the meet director. He is being assisted by Mrs. John K. Irwin Jr. and C. W. Klann, president of the Pontiac Swimming Association which is hosting the meet.

STARTING TIMES

In addition to the 400 freestyle, other starting times and for boys preliminaries will be:

Preliminaries and semifinals in diving, 9 a.m.; preliminaries in all other events, 10:30 a.m. Finals will be held about a half hour after preliminaries end.

Girls action will get under way with preliminaries and semifinals in diving at 4 p.m. and other events at 5:15 p.m. with the same waiting period before the finals.

Swim Club Needs Help During Meet

"We need alumni, swimmers, parents and any others who have experience to help time, referee, judge and so forth during Sunday's meet," said Edward Dauw, a meet official. About 50 are needed.

Those interested should contact Dauw at Pontiac Central or report to the Northern pool at 7:45 a.m. Sunday for assignment. Help also will be needed later in the day, according to Dauw.

Sam Allens Ousted by Highland Park

Sam Allen & Sons of the Pontiac recreation men's basketball program was eliminated Wednesday in the semifinal round of the Inter-City Tournament by host Highland Park, 69-48.

The Pontiac quintet stayed even with the winners in the first eight minutes of each half, but it faded in the late going. Highland Park led 30-19 at the intermission.

Bob Rabaja's 12 points paced Sam Allen's who defeated Livonia, 77-61, in its opening tournament game Monday. Jeff Meyer hit 11 and Ken Carpenter 10 for the losers.

They next will meet Petrolanes Monday in the Pontiac recreation program's National League playoffs.

Tenant Sign-Up On for New Rent-Supplement Housing Units

Plans for the first 200 units have been approved by the city, and construction is now under way on West Kennett, just east of the city limits, he said.

He estimated that all 525 units can be completed by years-end. There is a possibility that additional units will also be constructed if public response warrants it, he said.

The developer said applications can be made at his office at 785 Auburn. He expects the first units to be occupied within 120 days.

* * *

The rent supplement project—called North Hill Farms—is believed to be the largest in the country and is reportedly the first in the metropolian area to begin construction.

FEDERAL SUBSIDY

The development is sponsored under a federal program whereby the federal government subsidizes rental payments for persons who need housing but are unable to afford standard rental charges.

The government has authorized expenditure of $409,000 for subsidies on the 525 units, $156,000 on the first 200 units.

Under the program, renters with low income would have to pay 25 per cent of their monthly income for rent. The government would subsidize the difference between that and the required rent.

To be eligible for the rent supplements, tenants' yearly incomes must not exceed $2,800 for one person, $3,800 for two persons, $4,700 for three persons and $5,000 for four persons.

RENT CHARGES

Standard rent charges as approved by the government are $106 for an efficiency apartment, $131 for a one-bedroom unit and $150 for two-bedroom units.

Langs said he believes there are a considerable number of persons, especially those living on pensions or Social Security funds, who will benefit from the housing project.

He said he will give preference to those over 62 in processing applications because "these are the people that should be helped the most. Younger people generally are able to work and afford standard rent."

* * *

Although there is no requirement that all of the 525 units be rented to persons needing rent supplement, the developer said most of the units would go to low-income tenants.

FLUCTUATIONS LIKELY

He explained that the 25 per cent charge could fluctuate as income rose or dropped, but those needing rent supplements would never have to pay more than one quarter of their earnings.

The units to be constructed are similar to town house apartments. The buildings will be one story high and have brick facing.

Rental charges include payment of heat, electricity, gas and maintenance of the units and grounds, he said. Refrigerators and stoves for the units will be supplied.

PUBLIC NEEDS

Langs said the composition of the next 325 units will be determined by public needs. Since the program is new, he said, it is not really known whether there is a greater need for one-or two-bedroom units.

Persons interested in such housing could indicate their needs to his office (see coupon below). This would be useful in future planning, he said.

Mayor Initials Gorilla's Name

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Columbus Zoo's baby gorilla has been named Emmy—for Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner.

Emmy is the daughter of Colo, the first gorilla born in captivity.

The winning name in a contest for school children was submitted by 10-year-old Denise Given. She picked the name in honor of the mayor, she said, "because he is a good mayor and a nice man. I know he likes children and animals."

Offer on Table Will Go to Vote

UAW-AMC Deadline Today

DETROIT (UPI) — The 17,500 United Auto Workers members at American Motors Corp. today were to get their first chance at voicing an opinion on contract bargaining that has been continuing, off and on, for eight months.

At noon today, the UAW was to take whatever proposal was on the table and submit it to its AMC membership with the stated purpose of calling a strike against the smallest of the major auto makers on March 20 if the proposal is rejected.

The money offer now on the table was for a 13-cent-an-hour wage hike for the first year of the two-year pact. That was seven cents lower than auto workers in the rest of the industry.

In addition, AMC was offering skilled workers an additional 33 cents an hour in the first year compared with the 50 cents given by the "Big Three" to their skilled workers.

The money figure might change before the noon deadline if both sides make progress on other matters, the company spokesman said.

At General Motors Corp., with 11 of 168 local contracts still not agreed on, two assembly plants were still closed by strikes with a third set for today at 10 a.m.
