

Red Chinese Press On; Indian Troops Yielding

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—The Communist Chinese pressed their counterattacks around key defense outposts at Walong, forcing out numbered Indian troops to yield some ground, the Defense Ministry reported today.

Indian reinforcements were flown into the northeast battle area on commandeered civilian airliners, informed sources said.

"Our troops are offering stout resistance but had to yield after successive attacks by the enemy," said a Defense Ministry spokesman. "Fierce fighting is still going on, according to the last report here, on Saturday morning."

TOP POSITIONS

The Walong positions are considered highly important by Indian commanders because a Chinese breakthrough there could mean a Red advance into India's Assam State.

The spokesman said Indian forces repulsed four Chinese attacks around Jang, about 300 miles west of Walong.

Jang is near Tawang, another strategic defense point, it lies below the Indian defense line of the 12,500-foot Se Pass.

The Defense Ministry spokesman said the Chinese attacked at Walong in numbers considerably superior to ours after Red artillery laid down artillery and heavy mortar fire.

Informed sources said India was rushing troops up the Brahmaputra River Valley of Assam State. Indian commanders braced for possible Chinese assaults on two other critical points.

Perhaps most vulnerable of the two points is Chushul airfield, nearly three miles high in the mountains of Ladakh at the western end of the disputed border. Chushul is the key to the Indian effort to hold a defense line in that region where 2,500 square miles of territory have been lost since the Chinese offensive began Oct. 20.

The other critical point is to the east of Chushul. Located more than 100 miles from Tawang in India's northeast frontier district, the Indian defenses are based on 13,756-foot Se Pass, a dozen miles southeast of Tawang.

Any large-scale battle there might determine whether the Chinese would carry the border war into a full-fledged invasion of the thickly settled plains of Assam beyond the mountains.

By Chinese account, Indian forces already have launched an attack in the Tawang area.

A Chinese broadcast mentioned fighting there as well as in the Walong region 300 miles to the east, where the Indians said Friday they were holding their ground against what they called a massive Chinese counterattack.

The Chinese struck in the Walong area, near the Burma border, Thursday night after a week in which each side tested the other's positions with patrol actions.

U.S. Advice Refused by Lockheed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon said today that Lockheed Aircraft Corp. stands alone among missile firms in refusing to accept recommendations of a presidential board of settling a labor dispute. It said it is looking into alternate means of production if a strike comes.

Three other firms—Convair, North American and Ryan Aircraft—accepted the recommendations involving proposals for pay increases, settlement of other economic issues, and submission of a union shop, to arbitration if they could not be negotiated promptly. The AFL-CIO Mechanics Union has warned it may call a strike against Lockheed.

Noting this, the Pentagon said in a statement that it was imperative in the national interest that the Defense Department make preparations to minimize any loss of production in missile contracts because of a strike.

"Responsible officials of the Department of Defense are therefore considering what alternate means of production can be utilized so that work on the vital programs can go forward in the event of a stoppage at Lockheed," the statement added.

The statement did not make plain what alternate means might be used.

3 Cubans Arrested in NY Conspiracy

STUDENT REQUEST
Santesteban had requested diplomatic status and immunity but the request was still under study and had not been granted.

Named as conspirators but not arrested because of diplomatic immunity were Jose Gomez Abad, 21, and his wife Elsa, 20, listed as members of the Cuban mission in the U.S.

The arms cache seized was displayed for newsmen at FBI headquarters here. It consisted of six French delayed-action incendiary bombs, concealed in a fluorescent light fixture; a dozen detonators for the bombs; a 45-caliber automatic pistol and three U.S. Army-style fragmentation hand grenades.

These were seized about 8 a.m. in a raid in Manhattan. The FBI said the premises were occupied by the model-craft costume jeweler manufacturer, a concern owned and operated by Garcia.

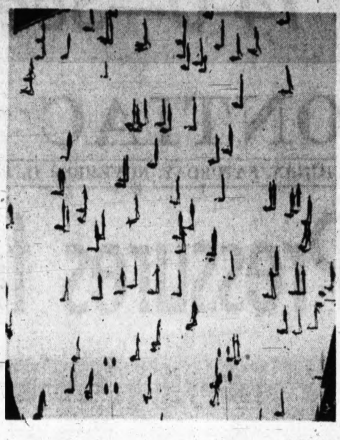

The detonators for the bombs were found in an envelope bearing the address of the 155 East 44th St., 31st floor, N.Y. 17. That is the address of the Cuban mission to the United Nations.

The FBI said the formula Santesteban tried to swallow was for a home-made explosive employing five different substances, including nitroglycerine, phosphates and acids.

Santesteban was arrested at 10 o'clock last night. Suero at 8 a.m. today and Garcia at 8 a.m. Suero was described as a part-time employee of Garcia.

TAKEN INTO CUSTODY
Taken into custody and held as a material witness was a woman identified as Ada Marie Drivas, 26. She was in the company of Suero at the time, the FBI said.

A federal complaint filed by the FBI here yesterday alleged that Gomez and his wife delivered incendiary and explosive devices to Garcia.

Delay 2-Man Space Shot

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The first two-man U.S. space flight has been delayed at least three months and most likely will not be made before 1964.

"We might even have further slips," a U.S. space agency official said Friday at the American Rocket Society convention.

Robert R. Gilruth, director of the agency's Manned Spacecraft Center at Houston, Tex., said the delay was not due to a shortage of funds for the two-man Gemini astronaut program. It just takes time "to do this very complicated job," he said.

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS
In other convention developments, Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert announced the start of a billion-dollar program under which the Titan III super rocket will be developed, and Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, deputy administrator of the space agency, said construction of huge orbiting space stations may be the nation's next large manned space project.

Gilruth declined to specify what technical problems have delayed the Gemini program. But he said the first launching of an unmanned Gemini capsule "has slipped from the third quarter to the fourth quarter of 1963."

"There is virtually no possibility of a manned flight before 1964," he said.

RECEIVES AWARD
Gilruth came here to receive the Robert H. Goddard Memorial Award. The award, highest honor bestowed by the rocket society, is named for the father of American rocketry and is given each year for eminence in the field of rocket engineering and space flight.

Zuckert said contracts for the Titan III program have either been signed or are being negotiated. He said the program is "a very important part of our space effort."

General Motors argued through its counsel, Bruce Bromley, that it had complied with the subpoena and that Justice Department attorneys possessed the documents sought.

General Motors insisted that it wished to cooperate fully and that it had in all good faith—as it understood the subpoena—produced what was asked for.

Floyd H. Davis, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service supervisor at Minneapolis, has ordered his agent in Grand Rapids, Minn., to pick up the animal, "dispatch it humanely" and ship the body to the Twin Cities.

But the Duluth citizenry, rallying to a "no noise for the mongoose" campaign, were supporting Mayor George Johnson and Zoo Director Lloyd Hacki in their efforts to keep the animal from being done in under the terms of a 1909 federal law.

The law says that no mongoose shall be kept within the confines of the United States, primarily because it can reproduce at an astounding rate.

SIX-LITTER GAL
A female can deliver six litters of young a year, said Davis, as he put his own personal padlock on "Mr. Mongoose's" cage.

The city attorney was contemplating obtaining a court restraining order to save the animal.

End of Storm Helps Search

Planes Seeking Men, Missing Yacht

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—Moderating weather broadened visibility today in the air-sea hunt for 18 seamen from the explosives-laden Greek freighter Captain George, abandoned and burning but still afloat about 300 miles northeast of Bermuda.

Heavy seas subsided after a storm in which 50-mile-an-hour winds whipped flames on the World War II Liberty ship, rocked by a violent explosion Wednesday night.

Aerial observers who took off at dawn reported metal parts from the afterdeck glowed red hot from flames that presumably still could set off the main cargo of the floating powderkeg.

ESCAPE SEARCH
Four U.S. Coast Guard planes, a U.S. Navy plane and a U.S. Air Force plane resumed the search for the missing men from the crew of 25. Surface patrols were carried on by the U.S. submarine Turk and the Coast Guard cutter Mendota.

Seven members of the freighters crew were rescued Thursday from two lifeboats buffeted by gale winds and lashing waves.

Two tankers of Liberian registry that took part in the rescue were headed to North American ports. They were the Trinity Navigator, bound for Paulsboro, N.J., and the Virginia, bound for Montreal.

Another search was going forward for the 55-foot schooner Windfall with five men aboard.

Seven of the 25-man crew of the Captain George were rescued from two lifeboats Thursday, shortly after all hands abandoned ship. Another lifeboat with the 18 men aboard capsized in the raging sea.

First JOB
The Titan III's first job will be to boost the X-20 Dyna-Soar space vehicle into orbit for the Air Force. Titan III will have a thrust of 2.5 million pounds and will stand 151 feet high when topped by the Dyna-Soar vehicle.

The third stage of Titan III will be a 16,000-pound thrust engine that could be connected to the Dyna-Soar vehicle to give it maneuverability in space.

Dismiss Move Against GM
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy, praising the builders and designers of "this distinguished ornament of our great country," dedicated Dulles International Airport today—the nation's first jet-age terminal.

Joined by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in the ceremony, Kennedy also lauded the memory of the man for whom it is named—the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Twenty-five members of Dulles' family, including his widow, were among the thousands assembled for the official opening of the giant $110-million facility near Chantilly, Va., 27 miles from Washington.

"This is a great airport and a great time in the life of our country," Kennedy said.

He quoted statistics showing only two per cent of the population was being regularly active in the political parties, three per cent making political financial contributions, four per cent taking part in campaigns, and seven per cent attending political functions.

What effect a success of Romney's philosophy will have on his political future also remains to be seen.

ALTHOUGH UNLIKELY
Despite mentioned prominently for the Republican presidential nomination in 1964, he continues to say that he will not be a candidate. He sees a draft move only as a "very remote possibility."

He declined to comment on whom, among other contenders so far mentioned for the 1964 nomination, he would support.

When asked if he would take a stand on national issues as governor of one of the nation's largest states, he said, "I certainly expect to take my appropriate role as governor."

What will be his reaction if his goal of bringing divergent interests together to work as team for common objectives meets frustration in his relations with the state legislature?

"I will work effectively. I go to work because I think I would be able to help solve Michigan's problems. I'm delighted I did and

"Public reaction to the execution order has been absolutely fantastic," Johnson said. "People just can't understand how one male mongoose is going to reproduce."

Davis, however, has taken a firm position, and Grand Rapids agent Harry Pinkham was on his way to "dispatch" Mongoose, who used to kill poisonous snakes in India.

Pinkham said he didn't know what he would do if officials refused to turn the animal over to him.

"I can't believe they would do that," he said.

Two Detroit Investors Seeking Landmark

DETROIT (AP)—Negotiations are under way for sale of the 29-story Fisher building, a Detroit landmark for 34 years.

Edward Fisher, one of the famed Fisher brothers who built the $30-million structure in 1928, said yesterday, "You don't sell a building in 30 minutes, and there are many deals between cup and hand. A deal is not made until it is signed, sealed and delivered."

Fisher declined to say who is involved in the negotiations or what the price is.

Two prominent Detroit investors however, confirmed reports they are trying to buy the building at West Grand Boulevard and Second Ave. in the vicinity of the General Motors Building.

They are Louis Berry, 58, president of International Hotels, Inc., and George Seyburn, 52, a builder. "Negotiations are going along," Berry said. "The only person who is associated with this in my venture is my partner George Seyburn."

Berry said if the deal goes through the Fisher building will continue to be operated as general offices. He said the newly opened Fisher theater would not be affected by a sale.

Before a second LSC could hook onto the causeway, two steel cables holding it to the beach snapped and an anchor gave way and was lost.

Tanks fanned out into the scrubbrush on desolate Hutchinson Island. Jeeps, ambulances and trucks worked their way into scrub pine and were camouflaged.

One LST (landing ship, tank) unloaded its cargo of troops and equipment during the night after taking more than three hours to work across the sand bar and hook onto a steel pontoon-typic causeway.

City Faces Water Woes

here and I can find nothing in the contract with Detroit that would prohibit them from delivering fluoridated water," Ewart said.

VOTE POSSIBLE
If Detroit fluoridates water, the easiest way out would be to put the ordinance up to a vote of the people again at a special election next spring.

A vote to rescind the ordinance would solve the problem.

Otherwise, the city might well be faced with the question of how to de-fluoridate water.

"Chemically, it is possible," according to Paul Tomboulis, assistant professor of chemistry at Michigan State University Oskeland.

"But it is very impractical. Homeowners could do it individually, but such units would cost roughly two to three times what the average water softener costs."

"In addition, such units are not common," he added. "They are not mass produced."

Herbert Parker, city water superintendent, agreed "it is not feasible financially. In fact, I've never heard of it on a citywide basis."

Parker admitted it is most likely that Detroit "cannot fluoridate its own water and give us a separate, unfluoridated supply."

NO COST FOR FLUORIDE
Louis H. Schimmel, chairman of the Detroit Water Board and long-time Pontiac resident, said last summer that although fluoridation of Detroit water would also mean a fluoridated water supply here, Pontiac would not have to pay for the fluoride.

The controversy was renewed last March when the U.S. Public Health Service urged Detroit to fluoridate its water supply.

Dentists and medical authorities have called the fluoride treatment of drinking water "the single most important development in modern public health."

On one side are glowing medical accolades on fluoridation, and the presumably exorbitant cost of a de-fluoridation plant.

On the other side is a law. It might be like taking one step forward and two steps back.

Library Official Faces Queries

Waterford Board Calls State Aid Director

Mrs. Fanny S. Noonan, director of state aid to public libraries in Michigan, will be present at Monday night's Waterford Township Board meeting to answer questions pertaining to a proposed township library.

The appearance of Mrs. Noonan, designed to clarify financial aspects of establishing a public library, was arranged by a Township Board library committee and the friends of the library.

In other business the board will consider a lease agreement prepared by the township attorney for a one-year lease and option on a 1,000-square-foot building at 4900 35th for supplemental office space.

The board will also consider naming the Oakland County Health Department of its director as health agent for the township. Waterford recently adopted a county-endorsed food and health ordinance.

Action on an appropriation request of $150 for professional assistance in preparing the final report of the incorporation study committee is also expected.

A hearing on the Midland Street black-topping special assessment roll is scheduled at 7:30 p.m.

Detroit Group to See County School Library

A group of leading educators from the Detroit School District will inspect the professional library of the Oakland County Board of Education at 2:15 p.m. Monday.

Their aim will be to find ways of establishing a similar library for the Detroit system's new educational center in the Macaebes Building.

The group includes Dr. James Barry, director of a study of business and finance for the business administration department, Detroit schools; Dr. Carl Byerly, assistant superintendent for instruction; and Dr. Gertrude Whipple, in charge of reading instruction.

The county library consisted of 1,000 volumes of which about one fourth are on the professional aspects of instruction and administration.

The rest are texts and supplementary books used at every grade level.

The library also contains one of the country's largest collections of large-type books for the partially sighted.

There are also 150 periodicals received each month in specialized areas of education.

REFERENCE USE

The library is for reference use of all teachers and school personnel in Oakland County.

The visitors will be taken on a guided tour by County School Board Librarian Robert Snow.

Out of Ideas, Car Namers Resort to Numbers Game

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Automotive Writer
DETROIT — A few years ago Ford built a luxury car called the Continental Mark II. Today this would never do. The number isn't big enough.

If you want to go all out in today's auto market, you ought to buy something called the Exotic 1000, or the Belchfire 2500.

You'd have to go that high because most of the lower numbers are already spoken for.

Auto showrooms have replaced dream books for followers of the numbers game. The racket may even start paying off on the last three digits of the last car sold each day, instead of using something as prosaic as the stock market transactions.

Not only can you buy a number, you can buy a number that has a letter to go with it, like S33, F85, 440H.

DESPERATE MOVE

Car makers probably turned to numbers in desperation.

They've virtually run out of names. After all, there have been some 1,700 individual makes of car names since 1900.

And the big fashion in recent years has been for each make to have various series, each with a name. What these actually are, are cars with more (or less) fancy trappings and therefore a more (or less) fancy price.

Naming things always has held a fascination for some people. Consider the men who named Pullman cars, back when Pullman cars were the thing. Names like Apple Valley and Killmanjaro.

Automobile names rarely got that fancy. The makers preferred short, snappy Babbitt-type words like Zip (1913), Dragon (1906) and Ace (1920).

But imagination was not entirely dead. Cars appeared with such names as Seven Little Buffaloes (1921), Ben Hur (1917) and Jay-Eye-See (1907).

The last big round of car names came several years ago when the compacts appeared. We got nothing but fancy, appellations such as Falcon, Corvair, Valiant, Comet, Tempest, Special and P-45 (there's one of those numbers!).

AM NUMBERS TOO

Like the telephone companies which are trying to eliminate words in favor of numbers, American Motors swung solidly to the side of digits when it brought out its new cars this fall.

Instead of common series names such as Super and Deluxe, American went for numbers from bottom to top. It now has the 220, 330, 440 and 440H; the 550, 660 and 770; and the 880 and 990.

One of the oldest number advocates is Oldsmobile. Its Dynamic 88, Super 88 and 98 series were so well established that by the time it brought out a compact in 1960 it was foregone conclusion the smaller car would get a number. It did — Olds F-85.

Cadillac is another veteran in the numbers business with its Cadillac 62 series, which is less expensive than the 60 Special series and the 75 series tops everything.

As you can tell, the numbers, as such, are meaningless. They serve simply as designations.

Sucker Season Is Always Open!

It's a wide-open field with no quotas, no limits. And you are the game! Its "sportsmen" will take you on any conceivable proposition. Once you nibble they'll never tire of trying to hook you.

Beware the fast talking salesman who high pressures you into an unheard of bargain. Be cautious of door-to-door promoters who represent vague faraway companies.

Play safe: Deal with reliable local firms.

Expect Recounts to Cost Over a Million

By LARRY OSIUS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Over a million dollars apparently must be spent and millions of votes recounted to determine at least three governors and one senator. And another gubernatorial race is so close it may go to a recount.

With the election 11 days old, residents of Massachusetts, Maine, Minnesota and Rhode Island still don't know for sure who their next governor will be. The same applies to a Senate seat in South Dakota.

The latest figures show:
In Massachusetts, Democrat Endicott Peabody won the official count 1,651,653 to 1,948,562 for Republican Gov. John A. Volpe, a margin of 3,091 votes. Volpe is seeking a recount.

621-VOTE MARGIN
In Maine, Republican Gov. John H. Reed won re-election by 621 votes over Democrat Maynard Dolloff. But Dolloff has filed for a recount of the official tabulation which gave him 146,121 votes to Reed's 146,742.

In Minnesota, Democratic Lt. Gov. Karl Rolvaag held a 96-vote lead over Republican Gov. Elmer T. Andersen as an official canvass of the votes neared the end. The loser probably will ask a recount.

In Rhode Island, Republican challenger John H. Chafee held a 132-vote lead over Democratic Gov. John A. Notte Jr. in the canvass with the outcome hanging on more than 7,000 absentee ballots that won't all be counted until next week.

In South Dakota, Democrat George McGovern picked up a few votes in the official canvass Friday to move 223 votes ahead of Republican Sen. Joe Bottom, who was working on petitions for a recount.

EYES ON RECOUNTS
With the official canvassing completed in some of the close races and nearing an end in others, the attention began swinging to the recount situation.

In Massachusetts Gov. Volpe said that he was seeking a recount because a change of one vote a precinct in his favor would put him ahead. His recount petition is expected to be presented early next week.

Each municipality bears the cost and Secretary of State Kevin White estimated it would run them about $800,000 plus $20,000 a day since Nov. 7 for guarding the ballots. A recount probably would begin Nov. 27 and last more than a week.

Maine officials estimate their recount will cost the state only about $5,000. It is scheduled to begin Nov. 26 and last three or four weeks.

NO WINNER DECLARED
Neither Gov. Andersen nor Lt. Gov. Rolvaag has sought a recount.

Will Investigate Complaints on Troops in Laos

VIETNAMESE, LAOS (AP) — The International Control Commission voted unanimously today to investigate complaints of right-wing and Pathet Lao factions of the coalition government that pro-Communist, American and Nationalist forces are still hiding in Laos.

Under the Geneva accords all foreign forces were to have left by Oct. 7.

India's Avtar Singh, chairman of the commission, said the decision was reached at a meeting attended by himself, Poland's Col. Jan Czerwinski and Canada's Paul Brille.

A national commission composed of all three factions of the coalition government agreed Wednesday, after a long deadlock, to ask the international commission to make the investigation.

count in Minnesota because the State Canvassing Board, which meets Tuesday, hasn't declared a winner. But the closeness of the 619,610 for Andersen—indicates the loser will seek one.

Under Minnesota law, the loser pays for the second count, but the courts can force areas where errors show up to chip in. The cost estimates range from $100,000 to $300,000. A recount probably would take a month to six weeks.

In Rhode Island the attention is focused on the absentee ballots to break the near deadlock between Chafee and Gov. Notte. Chafee had 160,669 votes to Notte's 160,537 Friday with 368 machines still to be checked.

About 5,600 absentee ballots have been certified as valid. Added to this are between 1,500 and 2,000 servicemen's ballots that can't be opened for counting until Wednesday.

In South Dakota, attorneys for Sen. Bottom were filing petitions in almost all of the state's 1,821 precincts for a recount of the senate votes.

Bottom, who filled the vacancy created by the death of Republican Sen. Francis Case earlier this year, trailed McGovern 128,751 votes to 128,540 Friday as official canvassing continued for the official vote.

Detroit Surrenders to Police

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Police were holding a 34-year-old man on a charge of felonious assault today after he barricaded himself in his home and threatened to shoot it out rather than give himself up.

Police were summoned to Fritz Mangold's home by his wife yesterday after she reported to police he tried to shoot her with a shotgun during a family argument.

She said he fired at her as she ran out the door. She called police from the home of a neighbor.

Lt. Wilbert Kenny reported that after shooting at his wife, Mangold barricaded himself in the home with four of his five children.

Kenny said police delayed any immediate action for fear Mangold would harm the children still in the home.

A Catholic priest tried to talk Mangold into surrendering but failed.

"We told him we had the house surrounded and were prepared to use tear gas if necessary," Kenny said.

"I told him to put his gun down and come out with his hands up," Kenny added. Mangold denied having a gun and shooting at his wife but surrendered meekly to the more than 10 police officers who surrounded the house.

Should Avoid Painting Ads on City Sidewalks

The Hi Fever Follies has come and gone, and in passing has raised a goodly amount for Pontiac General Hospital.

However, the Follies is still very much underfoot. Advertisements for the two-day event were painted on sidewalks in the downtown area after approval of the City Commission.

We find no fault with the usual devices for drawing a crowd to a charity affair—placards in store windows or banners over streets. But these disappear after the event.

Painted sidewalks linger for some time, unless the message is scrubbed off. We feel advertising events on the sidewalks should be avoided in the future; in the interests of keeping our city looking as attractive as possible.

If the Hi Fever Follies can use the sidewalks like this, why can't everyone?

Driving Private Autos Could Become Limited

Have you ever thought that severe restrictions might be imposed upon your right to drive an automobile?

Secretary of Commerce LUTHER H. HOGES warns that curtailment of private vehicle operation is coming unless far-sighted and constructive programs are pushed to ameliorate some of the traffic evils causing serious problems on our highways and in downtown areas.

Articulate groups are already pointing with alarm and going so far as to advocate the elimination of central parking lots to discourage motorists from driving to shopping and business districts; the imposition of rush-hour tolls—cash penalties on major access routes to make commuting by car too costly for the average citizen; and the cessation or drastic slowdown of the great effort being made to modernize our roads and complete the interstate network of super highways.

We vigorously oppose such fallacious reasoning.

It is a truism that infringement of freedom results ultimately in its loss. Rush-hour tolls today can lead to bureaucratic "trip tickets" tomorrow; not to mention the economic letdown that will inevitably come when Americans stop buying cars they can't drive where and when they choose.

The problem must be solved in the true American way.

Traffic problems will not be mastered by removing cars from our roads, but by providing better roads and more, not less, accommodation for cars.

The U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, for example, recently issued guidelines for using air-space over and under freeways for parking. There are many more innovations possible.

Cities should require that all new high-rise buildings be constructed with parking space for the cars of persons who do business there. Some cities are already doing so. Similarly, cities with off-street loading platforms for trucks have seen a marked speed-up in traffic flow.

In answer to complaints that every new freeway has a built-in traffic jam, it should be realized that not a single major city has a completed freeway system.

Most—Los Angeles with its 3.2-million cars, for example—have systems only a third or half done. One shudders to think what traffic would be like there without its free-ways.

No, this problem, like many others that make up our pattern of daily living, can and will be solved by a mutually enlightened and progressive attitude on the part of the citizenry of the Country and its elected and appointed representatives.

How to prevent thousands of traffic fatalities: figure out some way to have the car seat belt regarded as a status symbol.

The POWER of FAITH By WOODI ISHMAEL

"The best Thanksgiving," said Cotton Mather, one of the great colonial spiritual leaders, "is thanks-giving."

The words Mather spoke in a Thanksgiving Day sermon in Boston in 1889 are as timely today as they were then, for he based them on the ageless pages of scripture. Mather quoted Isaiah, "Sing unto the Lord; for He hath done excellent things. This is known in all the earth."

"Since excellent things are done by God," Mather told his congregation, "there are two things to be done by us. First, we ought with many praises to observe the excellent things which God has done for ourselves. Secondly, we ought with many praises to observe the excellent things which God has done for others... Our lives are likewise to be employed in the praise of God. We have hands as well as tongues for it."

Mather concluded with the words of the 105th Psalm: "Give thanks unto the Lord; call upon His name: Make known His deeds among the people... Talk ye of all His wondrous works."

Days of All Faiths:

Join 'Share Our Surplus' Program

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

One does not have to be a Christian to be concerned—and bewildered—about such modern problems as:

1. The horribly unequal distribution of food in the world. "Why are millions of people starving while we pay millions of our tax dollars to store food we can't use?"

2. The diminished purchasing power of the dollar. "When I was young you could buy a good suit of clothes for $25, etc., etc."

3. The kind of foreign aid that enriches a few top politicians of a country and never reaches the people for whom it is intended.

Well, the Share Our Surplus (SOS) program provides a happy answer to all three of these vexations.

SOS is a year-round activity of Church World Service, an interdenominational organization made up of major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox communions. It sends millions of pounds of food to countless starving people overseas at a cost so low it is almost unbelievable.

Here is what happens: In the first place, the United States government makes outright gifts to the program from its food surplus.

Second, Church World Service receives contributions of money through the churches to buy the commodities that are necessary but cannot be supplied out of government surplus.

Third, through its network of overseas connections—Church World Service gets the food to those who need it.

The efficiency of this plan is dramatically illustrated by the record. Last year 169,000 bushels of wheat, 324 million pounds of food for 29 areas of acute distress. That is more than 300 pounds of food for a dollar, including delivery. When, in the memory of the oldest living inhabitant, did a dollar have more purchasing power than that?

It is cheering also to observe that this is a people-to-people program. No bureaucrats, no diplomacy, no attempt to buy friendship, no axes to grind, no measuring of results or even of gratitude. Just plain giving to human need. Church World Service is not looking for applause or thanks. It is simply making it possible for every Christian to serve the Lord, "inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren."

It is quite appropriate that Thanksgiving week should be the year when the SOS program is spotlighted. It is at this time of the year that we all feel together an upsurge of the gratitude to God that over the rest of the year strikes us occasionally and individually. Next week we will gather in thousands of churches across the land to say "Thank you, God," with one corporate American voice:

We have an abundance of the fruits of the earth. Two-thirds of the world beyond our fertile continent is riddled by hunger and malnutrition. Just saying "Thank you" isn't enough. The truly grateful man must express it in more than words.

And so, at the time of the year when together we count our blessings and grope for a way of showing our feelings in positive action, SOS offers us this tangible means of sharing.

Three problems answered: surplus goods, intelligently distributed, our dollar stretched to an unheard-of value, and all red tape slashed so that we can know we are giving direct help to individuals. For all this we can count on Church World Service and its SOS program.

Although income for the program reaches its peak during the Thanksgiving season, it is important to note that a sizable proportion comes in throughout the year. Receipts are not restricted to this season.

You have failed in your obligation. Richard P. Condit Birmingham

I was shocked at your editorial condoning the murder of a helpless infant. Although I don't agree with all of your editorial opinions, I do recognize your sacred American right to voice them. On this issue, I strongly feel that I must disagree with you. Murder is murder.

Judging is God's prerogative. If this child in your opinion had no right to live, then what should we have done about our soldiers, sailors and marines who became physical "monstrosities," minus arms, legs and faces? Should we just give them an overdose of sleeping pills?

These people deserve love and understanding. It is tragic for anyone to be born malformed, but it certainly gives man no right to deprive him of his life. Better Understanding

Adenauer Visit Brings Progress

(Editor's Note — Two veteran AP newsmen, Carl Hartman who traveled from Berlin to cover the Kennedy-Adenauer meeting and Endre Marton of the Washington staff, pool their knowledge in this analysis of the meeting's results.)

By ENDRE MARTON AND CARL HARTMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's visit with President Kennedy had one positive result: It established a considerably closer understanding between the two leaders than their two earlier meetings did in 1961.

This greater rapport, stressed by close and high-ranking observers, almost bridged the difference in their personalities. Nobody denies that such differences exist, and they are serious.

Many Germans and Americans concerned with foreign affairs have been impressed with what they see as a change in American-German relations since the Kennedy administration came in. Adenauer's relations with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's government, especially with John Foster Dulles, the late secretary of state, were deep and close.

However, President Kennedy's advent brought a change. There was distinctly less sympathy for Adenauer and his country among highly placed people in Washington.

CHANGE FOR BETTER

Now Adenauer's own relations with Kennedy seem to be changing for the better, and with the change came a change in the chancellor's own mood.

Those who watched the chancellor, closely on his visits to Washington have noted this especially the clear difference between his attitude of last year and this time.

A year ago Adenauer was a grim, sulky, irritable man. This time he was ready with a smile. When he left Friday, he appeared happy and radiant.

Such outward signs reveal more with Adenauer than with other dignitaries. The chancellor is an old man (86) and, like old men in general, he is impatient. He would prefer to get through the routine of protocol as soon as possible. He has no pretension to appear as a diplomat whose features would never betray what he thinks.

Observers said that the change in Adenauer's mood was all the more significant because this time the chancellor obviously could not forget his serious troubles at home, which did not exist during his last visit a year ago.

The same observers explain the greater understanding between Kennedy and his guest by the quick agreement they reached at the outset of their first meeting on Wednesday. The agreement was to postpone any reassessment of the Berlin issue—and, in fact, of any other headache—until the chapter of Cuba can be closed. By the agreement to do virtually nothing, inevitable controversies were avoided. This, observers believe, pleased Adenauer more than Kennedy.

The same observers object to calling the visit untimely. It is true, they concede, the visit was made under entirely different circumstances than existed when it was planned, but still it was important for the two leaders to get together in a period that Kennedy described as an "important turning point" in East-West relations.

When Adenauer was invited, President Kennedy's administration was predicting a major East-West crisis over Berlin. The Cuban crisis came instead, and Adenauer's trip had to be postponed for a week.

The Berlin crisis did not materialize, and Washington officials believe that there will be none for some time. They think the U.S. stand on Cuba has made the Russians think twice.

What exactly Kennedy meant by a "turning point" is not yet clear, but American officials tend to disagree with Adenauer's interpretation.

Adenauer was reported as saying privately he was convinced the President's intention was to warn that the immediate Soviet danger—in Cuba, in Berlin, and everywhere else—is not less, but probably greater than ever.

This would confirm the chancellor's thinking. In his remarks at the White House on his arrival Adenauer said, "I believe that more than ever in the last 10 years we are confronted today with great dangers."

Kennedy, observers said, has no quarrel with this finding. But being a practical man, he cannot fail to note that the situation in Berlin is quiet — much quieter than anyone expected it to be now.

Ford Picks Britain

Work Shift Assailed

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union protested yesterday Ford Motor Co.'s revision of its tractor division operations which would shift some work to Ford of Britain.

The UAW told Henry Ford II, Ford chairman, "Hundreds of jobs not only will be leaving Michigan, but will be going overseas as a result of the company's new tractor production policy."

At the same time, the UAW asked Gov.-Elect George Romney to look into the job transfer.

Ford spokesmen said U. S. tractor production has decreased to about one-third of the production level of the years immediately following World War II.

EXPANDS ELSEWHERE

They said the tractor market throughout the rest of the world, particularly Europe, has been expanding.

Ford noted that British tractor production in 1961 was 71,000 units, or more than double what it was in 1947.

Ford said that "the changing pattern of agriculture in the United States has created an ever-increasing demand for higher horsepower tractors.

"It is expected this trend toward higher horsepower units will be followed by similar trends in world markets."

The company said it would go into full-scale production of its new 800 model at Highland Park in December. Some 1,000 workers are employed there.

Ford added, however, that a "realignment of tractor production at Ford Motor Co. will be started in the first quarter of 1963 and completed gradually over the next 18 months."

Highland Park is the sole U. S. producer of Ford tractors.

Retired Minister Dies at Memorial Home

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Retired Rev. Albert R. Elliott, 87, one of the oldest Methodist ministers in Michigan, died yesterday at Clark Memorial Home where he had resided since 1960.

He had served congregations in 10 cities—including Grand Rapids, Muskegon and Lansing—prior to retirement in 1940 after 30 years of service.

Gambler Gets Year in Jail, $12,500 Fine

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Joseph (Newsboy) Moriarty was sentenced to a year in federal prison yesterday and fined a total of $12,500 on two gambling charges.

Moriarty had been convicted by a jury Oct. 30 of failing to pay the federal 10 per cent tax on gross receipts of a numbers game operation and failing to register for a $50 gambling occupation stamp.

Police have tailed Moriarty as the owner of a $2.59-million cash hoard found in two Jersey City garages last July. The federal case stems from a June 23, 1961, gambling raid.

Moriarty was brought to court for sentencing today from state prison where he is serving a 2-to-3 year sentence on state gambling charges.

Dr. William Brady's Mailbag

Results Reasonable but Description's Not

Taking the calcium and D capsules to prevent foot and leg cramps proved fantastic — it not only stopped the cramps but, strange though it sounds, it brought complete relief to the pain in neck, shoulders and arms from arthritis in the spine. (Mrs. N. M.)

Ans. — It seems only reasonable DR. BRADY to me. That is, everything except calling your trouble "arthritis." You had better study Little Lesson No. 12, "Chronic Joint Disability," for which send me 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

My feet were so sore and raw and still itched, and specialists I consulted prescribed things that gave only temporary relief. I can't thank you enough for your pamphlet on foot itch. I am the happiest woman . . . you are the one that should have all that money I spent on specialists. (Mrs. B. M.)

Ans. — Thank you, ma'am. The No. 27 pamphlet on "Foot Itch" (ringworm, athlete's foot, dermatophytosis) is available free to anyone who provides stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Had teeth cleaned by dentist in 1939, again in 1949 and finally in 1960. Nothing to do but remove tartar. Never used any dentifrice but faucet water. Had several rear teeth filled many years ago. Used teeth as youngster to crack nuts. Present age 78½ years. Still have ALL of my original 32 teeth and they are still good and sound. (W. B. L.)

Ans. — Interesting, but it is negative information. More positive would be information about your diet. Still more instructive would be your dentist's explanation for your exceptionally good teeth. If you will give me your address I'll send a complimentary copy of Little Lesson No. 1, "Save Your Teeth."

In November '57, had colostomy for cancer. After a five-month siege, I recovered and have had fine health ever since. In August, '62, careful examination revealed no sign of recurrence. (B. B.)

Ans. — Thank you, sir. I hope many others will report.

Doctor said I have arthritis of the lumbar region of spine. He told me to go to Arizona, maybe the hot dry climate would help. But I can't go away from home, for a lot of reasons . . . (S. M.)

Ans. — The ideal climate, the year around, is where one can spend most of the time out of doors with comfort. You'll find it a day's drive west of Arizona. But, there's as much rheumatism in the warm, dry Southwest as in any other part of the world. The notion that climate has anything to do with it is a lot of booby. Send me 35 cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope for No. 12 Little Lesson, "Chronic Joint Disability."

Bus Patronage Tops 80,000

3rd-Highest Monthly Total of Year in City

Bus patronage in Pontiac edged above 80,000 in October for the third time this year.

The passenger total last month was 80,367 according to Glen Crawford, manager of Pontiac Transit Corp.

The figure is about 800 above passenger totals for October last year and a big increase over the preceding month when 68,535 passengers were recorded.

Much of the increase was due to student bus riders. October was the first full month since last May that city schools were in operation.

The year's high came in March when 88,508 patrons rode buses. The only other month topping October was May, with 82,401 passengers.

Revenue also climbed last month totalling $17,683, an increase of about $2,400 over the preceding month.

In addition, buses drove about 41,999 miles on 7,067 gallons of gas in October.

More than 100 Pontiac area teen-agers will join with 20 college-age young people called the Spurrans in a concert known as Splendor of Sacred Song in Pontiac Northern High School on Dec. 1.

Sponsoring the affair is the Oakland County Youth for Christ.

Thurlof Spurr, president of Splendor Productions and known as Mr. Music to thousands of teen-agers, will direct the choir. Mr. Spurr is the author of three popular gospel songs, "First Place," "Who Is on the Lord's Side" and "The World Is Yours."

"Mr. Spurr has combined some of the old hymns and some of the latest gospel songs and formed a package of Christian music that includes stage properties, special lighting effects and production techniques," said Norm Clothier, director of Oakland County Youth for Christ.

Tickets may be obtained at Christian Literature Sales.

of American Seating Co., Detroit; Dr. James T. Cheng, medical director of the sanatorium; and Rev. Lewis Ellis, pastor of St. Patrick Catholic Church, Union Lake. William Frankendorf is the architect.

Plan Interfaith Chapel for Sanatorium

Plans are under way to secure funds for furnishing an interfaith chapel at the Oakland County Tuberculosis Sanatorium, 7350 Cooley Lake Road.

Rev. Robert L. Adams, Protestant chaplain at the sanatorium, said "approximately $2,000 is needed to provide the dorsal curtain, lectern, altar, cross, five pews, a spinet organ and pulpit Bible."

"The need for a chapel has been felt for some time by the ministers, both Catholic and Protestant, who conduct worship services each Sunday."

"The chapel will also serve as a place of private prayer and counsel," said Pastor Adams.

This project has been endorsed by the Pontiac Pastor's Association, the Greater Pontiac Area Evangelical Minister's Fellowship, Waterford Township Ministerial Fellowship, and Catholic chaplain, Rev. John Trese.

Efforts to secure the cooperation and endorsement of other groups in the County are now under way, Pastor Adams said.

Any person, church, or civic group wishing to donate toward the chapel furnishings may call Rev. Robert L. Adams or Mrs. Arthur Voorhees, social worker for the hospital.

CARILLON ARRIVES — Dr. Milton H. Bank, minister at Central Methodist Church (left), watches James Walters connect wires as he installs the new carillon. Elbert M. Wilmot, general chairman of the church building committee is another observer. Mr. Walters is a representative of Schuler Inc. Carillons Inc.

Installing Carillon at Central

The "Coronation" carillon has arrived and is being installed in the tower of new Central Methodist Church, 3876 Highland Road.
Dr. Milton H. Bank said the bells are a gift in memory of Mr. and Mrs. James Greer from Mrs. Pauline Sanford and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Sanford.
The carillon is an exclusive development of Schuler Inc. Carillons Inc. of Sellersville, Pa.
The instrument consists of 25 miniature bell unit of bronze metal struck by metal hammers, producing exact true bell tones almost inaudible to the human ear.

These bell vibrations are then multiplied over 100,000 times by means of specially designed electronic equipment, producing true bell tones which are far superior to the tone of traditional vast bells of massive proportions, Dr. Bank said.
The instrument provides the total equivalent of 79,362 pounds of cast bells tuned to the finest English standards.
The range is G below middle C to G two octaves above. The low G bell is equal in tone to a cast bell weighing 13,250 pounds.
The carillon will be played from the keyboard of the new Casavant organ console now being installed in the church. Selector switches will permit the bells to be heard within the church alone, solo or with the organ, as well as from the tower above the church.
Automatic daily programs on the carillon will be provided by means of the Ashmole "auto-bell" roll player which is included.
The roll player is neither a phonograph nor a wire-recording device and plays the bells through the use of perforated plastic rolls. These rolls actuate the circuits which strike the bell units, duplicating the performance of an artist at the keyboard. Made of durable plastic material, the rolls are formed as an endless belt.

The roll player can be set to play a single selection or an extended program.
Automatic operation of the roll player is controlled by an electric device which can be set to play the carillon at any time of day.
Plans call for the playing of the bells everyday at noon and at 6 p.m. Great hymns of the church will thus be brought into the daily lives of the people of the community.

'Ike Sees End to Segregation'

Interview Published by Negro Magazine

CHICAGO (UPI)—Ebony magazine reports that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower predicts the end of racial segregation in the United States within the next decade.

The Negro publication made the comment in its current issue following an interview with Eisenhower by Simeon Booker, its Washington correspondent.

However, Booker said Eisenhower made a distinction between desegregation and integration of the races.

He "describes integration as the mixing of Negroes and whites in private clubs and social organizations, while he refers to the enrollment of Negroes in schools or their use of public facilities as desegregation," Booker said.

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

"The matter of who comes into your home, your club or your social group is a personal privilege, he believes, and no legislation can interfere under our American system . . . he is for desegregation, against enactment of law to enforce integration," the article said.

Ebony called Eisenhower "perhaps the most misunderstood" of the country's presidents so far as Negroes were concerned.

"A majority of Negroes bid him a cool and hasty farewell" at the completion of his second term, despite major civil rights gains during his administration, the magazine said.

Monaco OKs French Offer to Renegotiate

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (U)—Monaco today accepted a French offer to resume negotiations on a thorny tax dispute between the two countries.

Negotiations broke down Oct. 12 on France's demands that this tiny principality levy taxes on some French corporations and private individuals enjoying a tax haven here.

France has been enforcing her demands with mild economic pressure, including cursory customs checks at the border.

Negotiations are expected to resume the last week in November. Prince Rainier is expected to announce a new constitution for Monaco during the three-day national holiday which started today.

The new constitution will give to women the right to vote and to candidates for the national council or parliament.

Refugees Flee Algeria for France

PARIS (UPI)—Tens of thousands of Moslem Algerians who served with the French army and police are fleeing to France to escape persecution, the Defense Ministry said today.

An authorized statement said the refugees had been branded traitors by their fellow countrymen because they served as auxiliaries with the French forces. Those who have already fled face a cold and bleak winter living mostly in tents or ramshackle huts, it said.

Unconfirmed press reports have said 10,000 former auxiliaries have been assassinated in Algeria in the eight months since the March 18 accord ending the rebellion.

The Defense Ministry statement said by the end of this month 32,000 auxiliaries and their families will have fled into France to escape the new law. Many more were also reported seeking a way to escape.

The situation brings France face-to-face with an embarrassing moral obligation which comes on top of the task of having to resettle an estimated 700,000 European refugees from Algeria.

Arrest Suspect in Rape-Killing

Nabbed in Georgia, to Be Returned North

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—A handyman wanted for strangling a Connecticut society matron and terrorizing her young daughter for 12 hours was arrested and brought here yesterday to be returned north for trial.

Harris Miller, a rangy, 31-year-old yard worker, faces charges of murder, rape and kidnapping.

He and his common-law wife Rosalie were arrested at the home of Miller's mother in Soperton, Ga.

The arrests were made at about the time funeral services were being conducted in Westport, Conn. for the victim, Mrs. Isabel Sillan, 50, wife of a fashion designer.

FORMER EMPLOYER

Miller is charged with murdering Mrs. Sillan, his former employer, and kidnapping and raping her 14-year-old daughter, Gail. His common-law wife is charged with kidnapping.

Both denied the charges and waived preliminary hearing before a U.S. commissioner yesterday.

FBI agents and local officers, acting on a tip, found Miller lying in the back of a truck parked behind his mother's home.

Mrs. Miller was standing nearby and both surrendered to the officers.

He had been missing since 8 a.m. Thursday in the Marquette National Forest near the eastern end of the Upper Peninsula.

Suffering from shock and exposure, Young told the helicopter crew, "Get me the hell out of here." He was flown directly to the hospital.

'Would Save Wear and Tear on Candidates'

Hare Pushes September Primary Date

LANSING (UPI)—Secretary of State James M. Hare, who is still recuperating from the rigors of the 90-day campaign that preceded the Nov. 6 general election, wants the state primary election held in September rather than August in future years.

The wear and tear on the candidates, considerable though it is, is not the main reason Hare seeks the change in the election date.

"The thing that bothers me most," he said in an interview this week, "is the cost of the campaigning. I don't like to see money being spent."

Hare, whose administration of the secretary of state's office during the last eight years had helped give Michigan one of the cleanest election systems in the nation, said he feared a high cost campaign could bring heavy pressure on election winners.

"You can't raise the kind of money that's needed today without the people who put in the big chunks thinking they've got something coming," Hare said.

Hare, whose idea is opposed within his own office by State Elections Director Robert M. Montgomery, said he realized a later primary "would raise problems for recruits and so on. But I think the benefits of the change would outweigh the drawbacks."

Montgomery, on the other hand, feels the shortening of the time between the primary and the general election would hamper the jobs of official canvassers, recounts, issuing of absentee ballots and preparing regular ballots.

TIME IS COSTLY

Hare claims, "there's another important thing to consider too. We don't talk about it during the campaign but you should consider the amount of time it hauls us away from our offices. And it's not quite true the government runs quite as well with us away."

Hare also contended a lengthy campaign doesn't necessarily produce a larger vote. "In fact, I think some people get tired of hearing us. A lot of them—they've made up their minds before we ever get into the last weeks."

In Hare's opinion "seven weeks

India to Receive Polish Equipment

WARSAW, Poland (U)—Poland agreed to supply India with 155 million rupees worth of mining and other industrial equipment in an eight-year economic cooperation pact signed here yesterday.

The credit is worth 11,625,000 pounds sterling at official exchange rates. (The pound is worth $2.80).

However, it called for repayment in rupees, with 2½ percent a year interest, to be used by Poland for financing purchases from India.

Famed French Painter Found Dead in Street

PARIS (UPI)—Painter Jean B. Swainson, noted for his paintings of Parisian women and the French aristocracy, was found dead last night in a street near his apartment in the Jacquart-Andre Museum. He was 73.

Dormerque, whose works were exhibited throughout the world, had started his career as a landscape painter and then turned to scenes of Parisian life. His Parisian works have been compared by some critics with those of the famed Toulouse-Lautrec.

is plenty of time to explore and examine all the issues. We used to have a gentlemen's agreement before that the campaign wouldn't get started until mid-September. But this year it was different. George Romney couldn't officially start until the day after he was nominated (which was a primary) but he had his organization all set up and he was ready to go. He forced us to start earlier."

"The local candidate would be much better off because he just can't afford the luxury of a long campaign just in time off alone. His own individual economics compels him to put in just so much time."

Hare, who takes pride in pointing out that "of the nation's eight big industrial states we're the only one in the last decade that hasn't had a grand jury investigation or scandal," believes he may have found a lifetime's work in the secretary of state office.

Hare, who was beaten in the Democratic gubernatorial primary in 1960 by then Lt. Gov. John B. Swainson, has about decided the chief executive's job is not what he wants. "That front office is a frustrating one," he said.

"Here," referring to the job he has now won five consecutive times, "you can see things getting done. This job and John Mackie's (state highway commissioner's) are the most interesting in state government. You can get a feeling of accomplishment."

The average man of the street may not see this but you have a wide spectrum of things that are entirely dissimilar that must be taken care of." Considering the ease with which Hare usually finds his incumbency—he beat Republican Norman Stockmeyer by some 300,000 votes in the latest outing — it's not at all impossible Hare could continue in his job on a lifetime basis.

Wants Halt in Yule Gift Exchange

By The Emily Post Institute
Q. Is there a tactful way to suggest to friends that we stop exchanging Christmas presents? I wouldn't be at all surprised if they feel about it just as I do but each is probably waiting for the other to say something.

A. You could say, "Christmas is almost here again and I am really desperate over the problem that present giving has become and I must try to cut down on my list. Won't you be a dear and help me start by not exchanging any with me this year?"

Q. Our son and only child is going to be married soon and I would like to know what my duties are at the wedding and also the duties of my husband. This is a brand new experience to us and we want to be sure to do the right thing so as not to embarrass our son.

A. You and your husband wait in the vestibule of the church to be taken to your pew by the head usher just before he escorts the bride's mother to hers. At the reception, the bride's mother will probably ask you to stand beside her as she greets the guests.

Possibly your husband receives with you but very often the two fathers walk out together, leaving the two mothers to receive alone. If there is a table for the bride's parents, you and your husband will be seated at it—he on the bride's mother's right and you on the bride's father's right.

Q. At a large cocktail party I went to the other evening I noticed that several of the women kept their gloves on while drinking cocktails. Will you please tell me if they were correct in doing this?

A. A woman may keep her gloves on if she holds her cocktail glass by its stem which has a none of the condensed moisture usually present on the outside of a glass.

More and more cities are banning outside trash burners because of smog, dirt, odors and flying ashes. That's why the gas smokeless-odorless incinerator was devised. It meets a need for most communities. Gas incineration is considered the most effective way of disposing of garbage. It will not pollute the air or streams. It increases the value of the property, makes it easier to finance, easier to sell and easier to live in.

Neighbor Lives Well, Abby Told

This 'Needy' Woman Abuses Aid From the Welfare Dept.

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: A woman who lives down the street from us is on relief, has two Princess telephones and pays $60 a month for her apartment. She keeps a bum she calls her "husband."

This bum she keeps has a wife and three children, and you won't believe this, but she pays his wife's all-money out of her welfare check so he won't get arrested for nonsupport. She has four children of her own who are the hungriest-looking kids on the block.

She drives a new car and is having trouble making the payments. Respectable citizens like ourselves pay taxes to support trash like her. How does the welfare department let people like that get away with it? What I'd like to know?

TAXPAYER
DEAR TAXPAYER: If only half of what you say is true, your local welfare department would appreciate the information.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the person who said he didn't believe you really get some of the letters you print in your column. Just send him to me, Abby.

I have been a clerk in a large store for many years and some of the conversations I hear are absolutely unbelievable!

One customer was trying to select a sympathy card. I showed her one which read, "Thinking of you today." Then she said — "But she won't get the card until TOMORROW!"

M. E. T.
DEAR M. E. T.: Some people are funniest when they are in dead earnest. I once heard from a young man who wrote, "Dear Abby: I joined the Navy to see the world. I've seen it . . . now how do I get out?" (signed) San Diego

DEAR ABBY: I am a junior in high school and am writing for others as well as myself. Do you see anything wrong with a boy and girl walking down the hall with his arm around her waist? (Not real tight.) If it is wrong, please tell me why. There has been a lot of comment about this at our school lately.

DEAR FRUSTRATED: While it may not be "wrong," it is in bad taste. Careless your books and embrace your studies.

WHAT'S ON YOUR MIND? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Early American for Hughes

PHOTOSTORY BY
REBA HEINTZELMAN
Pontiac Press Home Editor

Probably one of the warmest, friendliest entrance halls in Michigan belongs to the L. W. Hughes family of Orchard Lake. And that's not all. The entire house radiates mellow charm, personalized by brought-back to-life antiques that were pulled out of old barns and bargained for at auction sales.

Braded rag rug carpeting, gleaming brass and satiny smooth items of by-gone years are all part of the big Hughes' house at 4905 Pelletier Blvd.

Most important, is the fact that the owners have done all of the restoration work themselves.

For instance, a quaint old butter-worker was resurrected from a shed in back of a Canadian farmhouse, brought home and turned into a useful coffee table. An old chair, wheeled from the owner of a Findlay, Ohio barbershop sets quietly in one corner, a shining black example of sturdy necessity.

Red calico print wallpaper, sparked by pure white woodwork in the entrance hall has a "come-on-in" feeling. Directly above a small seat in the hall alcove there is a shuttered peek-through window which encourages light and tricky viewing.

The first thing that meets the eye in the big uncluttered living room are the stiffly starched white curtains with mammoth wide ruffles. These, next to the Williamsburg blue walls and hand rubbed wood (you love to touch), make for an atmosphere of long-ago tranquility.

Incidentally, Mrs. Hughes used three bolts of white glazed cotton material when she designed and made all the draperies. The front draperies are each more than 150 inches in width.

An old Quaker desk and chair, topped by a cranberry glass lamp are both useful and ornamental. Comfortable chairs separated by a yarn winder made into a lamp, are the focal points of the sweeping front bay window.

A huge round polished copper kettle, formerly used for boiling apple butter, holds logs at the end of the raised hearth.

Shantung blue and white print wallpaper sets the pace in the dining room. One wall has all built-in cupboards, maple ladder back chairs surround a round table.

Individuality has been incorporated into the Hughes' five children's bedrooms. There is Nancy, 5, and Heidi, 8, in one strictly-for girls room. Across the hall Jeff, 6, and Jon, 10, hold forth in a boys' room filled with treasures. Candy, 18, has her own room at Michigan State College, but when at home has an apartment being completed on the first level.

Ruffles, stuffed toys, chintz chairs and a bed that expands for growing are tastefully arranged in these activity bedrooms. A variety of Early American patterned wallpaper stands out above white wainscoting in all four bedrooms. Dark blue and white in the master bedroom, deep red and white for the girls and yellow-browns for the boys.

In all the bed and bathrooms, the small print of the wallpaper is carried along the bottoms of the café curtains with strips of material, identical to the wallpaper.

Four replicas of antique drop lights extend from the ceiling down the long cheery yellow and white hallway. A collection of colorful glass sugar shakers sparkles against the white shelves facing the hallway and an old electrified oil lamp lights the way in this area.

The kitchen is all wood, old brick, copper and soft toned wallpapered walls and beamed ceiling. Cherry-toned maple predominates in woodwork and furniture in this — one of the friendliest rooms in the house.

For the Hughes' there's plenty of fun in coming home to this magnificent home overflowing with the mellowed tradition of Early American living.

EARLY AMERICAN THROUGHOUT — That is what the L. W. Hughes' wanted and that's what they have. This is the streetside view of the four-bedroom house furnished with items collected and "brought back to life" by the Hughes' in their spare time. The L-shaped entrance area has a typical early era lamp post and the sweeping bay window adds drama to the house.

HEART OF HOUSE — What better way to enjoy cooking savory food for a family of seven than in this reproduction of an Early American kitchen? A black and white photograph just doesn't do justice to the warm-toned woodwork, the reclaimed brick built-ins and satiny copper accessories. A muted gold and brown wallpaper print extends from the wainscoting on up between the beams of the ceiling.

QUAINT ARRANGEMENT — Silhouetted against the southern window-wall is a rare old table, accompanied by two needle-point covered chairs. The sunlight streams through jewel-like amethyst lamp that has been wired for electricity.

The multi-colored wool rug sets the tempo for warm, friendly living in this Williamsburg blue room. The stark white polished cotton curtains add drama to the big windows.

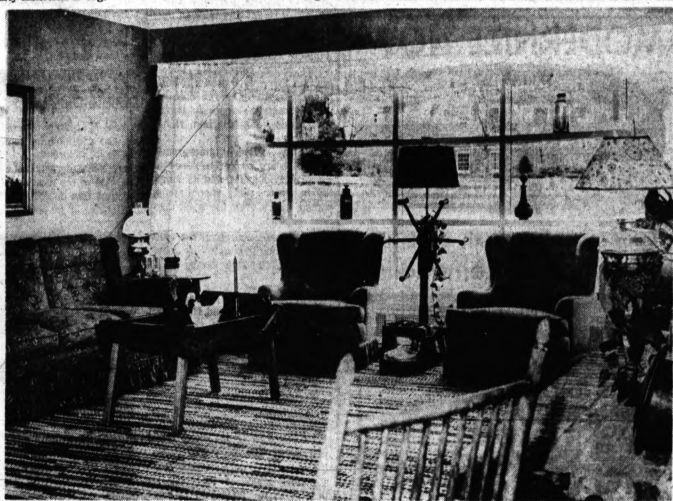

FACES LAKESIDE — Like so many houses that look like one-story homes from the street, the Hughes' domain seems to "expand all over the place." This stairway winds up to the top porch, while underneath is paved cement for under-cover entertaining. Glass doors here open onto the terrace both upstairs and down and half-size bathrooms abound throughout.

OLD QUAKER DESK — Many an old Quaker probably sat down and took pen-quill in hand to write solemn proes for future generation's reading at this old desk. It was scarred, neglected and full of paint when the Hughes' rescued the desk. Now it sits with proud dignity against a soft blue wall in the living room.

SPACIOUS VIEW — This is the other end of the big Hughes living room — especially designed for LIVING. The streetside of the house is enhanced by a 15-foot long window-wall that curves out of the house like a giant half-moon. Inside, the walls seem to embrace two down-filled chairs separated by an old yarn winder lamp. Old colored glass is artistically arranged in the window sections.

DINING BUILT-INS — It's fun to sit down to a dining room table surrounded by gay colored wallpaper, snow-white woodwork and feel the softness of good wool carpeting under your feet. The Hughes make it a point to light those candles in the brass holders and serve food on the best china during dinner time "for the sheer joy of it."

Doing It Themselves

Do-it-yourself home improvement has become a $3-billion-a-year industry, report remodeling specialists. About 90 per cent of the do-it-yourself projects are undertaken by owners of single-family homes, and one of the most popular projects is installation of sound-absorbing acoustical ceiling tiles.

The U. S. has about 3.3 million miles of public roads.

FAR UNDERGROUND beneath this well landscaped city lot in Plainview, Texas, there is a modern four bedroom home, designed for both gracious living and for protection from radioactive fallout and Texas tornadoes. The house, constructed by Plainview builder Jay Swayze, overcomes the feeling of being underground by (1) skillful use of concealed, indirect and vari-colored lighting; (2) and extra-broad stairway surfaced with quarry tile; and (3) by a patio wall surfaced with black ceramic tile and dotted with gold and platinum tile to give the effect of a starry night. Entrance stairway to the house is housed in the two-car garage shown at left. Stone structure at right is fireplace and exhaust chimney.

FRONT ENTRANCE to underground house in Plainview, Texas, is pointed out by Cheryl (left) and Nancy Swayze, daughters of Plainview builder Jay Swayze, who constructed the house. Rugged, warm-toned quarry tile was used to surface the walkway (13 feet underground) which surrounds the front door. Indirect overhead lighting makes it look as if it were "outdoors." The use of color in all lighting helps overcome a feeling of claustrophobia and can be varied to give a hint of the time of day.

Americans May 'Go' for Dugout Homes

Early American settlers often lived in dugouts, partially underground. Present day citizens may do it again.

Jay Swayze, a Plainview, Tex., builder, constructed a four-bedroom house completely underground to prove that it's a good idea. Swayze calls his creation the "Atomit"—a combination of the words "atomic" and "habitat."

The so-called "underground house" bears no resemblance to those early dugouts, and its sumptuous decor and appointments would startle even the most opulent pioneer.

Swayze has overcome the feeling of "going in a hole" or being "closed-in" through design techniques.

For example, the house is entered through a broad stairway surfaced in a warm shade of quarry tile that features plaques of fieldstone and living plants—all "elements of the earth."

A unique feature is a "patio" wall surfaced with unglazed black ceramic mosaic tile dotted with jewel-like tiles of gold and platinum. Tiny spotlights directed on the tile give the appearance of a star-filled night. A flat wall is thus given the feeling of infinite depth.

The house is built inside a reinforced concrete shell. Its ceiling is three feet below the surface of the ground; its floor is 13 feet below the surface.

It is on—or, perhaps, under—a normal city lot that has been landscaped with a series of walkways and flower beds.

While the "Atomit" has obvious value as a fall-out shelter, Swayze says there are a number of good reasons for living underground. There is less maintenance, both interior and exterior; absence of harsh sunlight makes more imaginative decorating possible; insurance costs are much lower than those of a normal house; it is healthier because of the controlled temperature and humidity, and it is dust and pollen-free. It is obvious, too, to the tornado-prone weather of the Texas Panhandle.

Someday you may tell Junior to go mow the roof.

A host of battery-powered devices are available for home use these days, reports the November issue of The American Home Magazine. One of the most useful is a lamp that can do double duty in emergencies or for outdoor use.

Bundling Time Now Out-Dated

Check Heating Plans to Avoid Old Custom

"Bundling time will soon be here — so those families with marriageable daughters had better check the blanket supply and the fit of the bundling board."

Puzzled? Well, don't be. If you had lived 150 years ago, you might have read this item in your hand-printed Weekly Gazette.

Let your imagination drift back to that time in U.S. history and you will have an accurate picture of the hazards to romance our hardy forebears faced.

That we're here to joke about it proves that the method worked, but not that it was ideal.

In those days, when a suitor came to call in winter time, roses frozen in his hand, the only place he and his intended could talk romantically — and stay warm — was in bed.

There, fully clothed, with bundling board between them, romance could, if not flourish, at least survive.

The custom of abetting romance is just as important today, of course, although bundling is passe, unquestionably because of the advances made in modern home heating equipment.

Today's engineers are romanticists, however, and no doubt they considered the problems of courting when they devised a near-perfect heating system which eliminates the drafts, chills and other discomforts which beset early American suitors.

If your present heating system puts the chills on amorous endeavors, the National Better Heating — Cooling Council suggests that you install a hydronic (forced circulation hot water) heating system.

While hydronic "total heating" doesn't guarantee a proposal to your daughter, at least it provides a comfortable environment conducive to romantic pursuits.

A sure way to romantic success in the winter is to have your heating contractor check your heating system.

Don't let your daughter bungle her way to romance. Fix up that heating system now!

Early American Gifts

If your home is furnished in Early American, you can carry out this motif in building gifts for your youngsters this Christmas.

Heater for Bathroom Can Do Other Jobs

Useful for households with small children is a bathroom heater to install in the ceiling, out of the reach of inquisitive fingers. One company, the Hunter Division, Robbins & Myers, Inc., has developed a bathroom ceiling unit that not only heats, but provides illumination and ventilation.

The axial flow exhaust fan removes odors and moisture. Moisture is the bathroom villain that loosens wall coverings and corrodes plated fixtures.

Seek Approval of Plastic Pipe

Needs Acceptance by Authorities, Builders

When we think of plastic piping, we are likely to think of the flexible garden-hose variety. But the plastic piping being introduced to the home-building market is of the rigid, thermoplastic type.

The manufacturers of plastic piping face two major problems. The first is to get state and local code authorities to accept the plastic for general use in house-hold plumbing.

The second is to convince home buyers, architects and builders that the new product has certain advantages.

Manufacturers and trade groups are setting up test installations in key regions of the country in an effort to prove to code officials everything they claim.

The pipe and fittings for all-plastic hot and cold water, drainage, waste and vent lines are already developed, in production and in limited use.

The layman will find plastic piping terminology a bit complex, to say the least. The major candidates for household use are plastics named polyvinyl chloride, acrylonitrile-butadiene-styrene, polyvinyl chloride and polyethylene.

What do the manufacturers claim for these products? They say the piping is capable of withstanding indefinitely industrial corrosion attacks more severe than conditions found in the home, without incurring pinhole leaks or deteriorating at the joints.

DON'T IMPART TASTE
They do not conduct electricity. And PVC and PVDS do not support combustion. The latter two types, recommended for hot and cold water lines, are said not to impart a taste to drinking water.

On the matter of material they will be slightly higher than for the comparable metals, but add this may not be so when production is geared to large quantities used by home builders.

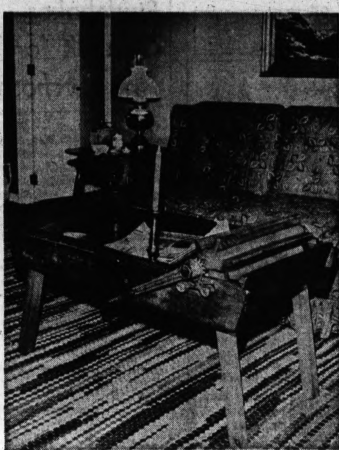

The manufacturers also claim that, whatever the initial higher costs are, they will be offset by installation and maintenance savings.

Horizontal and vertical runs of rigid plastic piping are suspended from or attached to ceilings or walls in much the same manner as metal piping, using straps or hangers and leaving them a little loose so the piping can expand or contract slightly with changes in temperature.

Meanwhile, the general use of plastic piping will gain headway only insofar as code authorities can be convinced of its practicality.

Spend Loans Plumbing

Approximately 20 per cent of the amount advanced through FHA Title One property development loans is spent on plumbing and heating improvements, Anaconda home specialists report.

OLD BUTTER WORKER — In the old days, milk was poured into this box-like item; then a cylinder with wooden paddles was hand-cranked from one end to the other for making butter. A small hole in one end allowed the excess moisture to escape while the butter was being churned. The L. W. Hughes of Orchard Lake found the rare antique in an old Canadian barn and it now serves as a charming coffee table.

2nd Kitchen Nice to Have Around House

A second kitchen for the home-trend brought on by changing living patterns — is making a strong bid for the attention already granted the second bathroom and the second car.

The second kitchen serves admirably when:

- The family room is at the other end of the house or on a different floor from the kitchen;
- There are semidetached quarters for other members of the family, such as parents-in-law or grown children; there is a need for late snacks or baby's midnight bottle without long treks; the recreation room is far removed from the kitchen.

In every case, it is important to have the same intrinsic quality features as the master kitchen. These include easy-to-clean surfacing materials such as ceramic tile, plenty of light and electrical outlets in the immediate area and adequate working and service space.

However, a second kitchen need not be an entire food preparation or serving center; in fact, it often consists mainly of a refrigerator and sink. Some of the self-contained units on the market combine heating and cooking facilities with beverage glasses, coffee pot outlets, storage areas and utensil holders.

Since the second kitchen area often is in another room and exposed to view, its design should tie in with the over-all room pattern. Real tile countertops and floor surfacings meet this test admirably, since ceramic tile comes in more than 250 shades and colors, and in such a multiple of sizes and shapes that it will fit in with any decor.

Modern Builders Eye Indian Culture

While the European colonists who settled America may have been scornful of Indian culture, modern 20th century architects are showing a higher respect.

According to the Southern Pine Association, there's a remarkable resemblance in the lines of the new A-frame homes to the old Indian teepee.

Like the wigwam, wood members of the A-frame converge at the roof, the main difference being that solid or laminated lumber beams are used for arch support instead of poles. And in lieu of bear-skin covering, there are 2 inch thicknesses of wood decking to complete the A-frame.

Rustic Look Desired

A rustic "natural" look is desirable for many "second homes" in wooded settings, and the Southern Pine Association suggests a unique reverse twist: exposure of the rough side of wood boards-and-battens on the exterior house walls.

Each Child Needs His Place in Home

Love and acceptance are unquestionably the best "furnishings" for a child's home, be it a shanty or showcase. Yet this home — this child's center of the universe — includes its furnishings and they are part of all the things that say home to him.

It only follows that they can work with or against the more important emotional climate in the home.

As the home furnishings industry committee often points out, furnishings can help parents in teaching responsibility and sharing.

They can be part of the child's first knowledge of color, form and artistic appreciation. More importantly, they can underline the experiences of growing up, loving and living within a family.

The child whose mother lovingly creates a home for the family's enrichment is indeed fortunate. The active boy or girl who feels he is an intruder in his parent's well ordered home, among their treasured possessions, can absorb very negative feelings.

TRAIN CHILD

This is not to say it is advisable to pack away all expensive objects and avoid fine home furnishings. Quite the contrary, it is also in the home that a child should be trained to care for valuable possessions.

Finding the happy medium is more a matter of common sense.

MAKE THESE FIGURES to tell the Christmas story. The group fills a space about 5 feet long and 4 high — a good size for a front yard or a Sunday-school room. Patterns 374 for Holy Family and Shelter and 375 for Wise Men and Animals, which give actual-size guides, are 35c each. Both are in Christmas Packet No. 43 with other full-size patterns for decorations — all for $1.

The Pontiac Press Pattern Dept., Bedford Hills, New York.

than anything prescribed. A child-proof table for everyday dining is more conducive to congenial family meals than a highly prized antique.

On the other hand, a formal dining room setting or the "good" sofa in the living room can be instruments for teaching your children the principles of becoming a young lady or gentleman.

By the time the boy or girl reaches adolescence, his space needs have drastically increased. It is during the teen-age period that he seeks and needs privacy.

It may not be possible for each child to have a private room, but there are many ways to increase the feeling of privacy.

There is one pitfall you want to avoid when two or more children are sharing a room.

An older child will resent having the same restrictions placed on him as may be necessary for the younger child.

With careful planning, perhaps the addition of a room divider, an extra desk or chests, parents can help growing children avoid unnecessary frustrations and resentments.

This is, then, not a matter of furnishing a picture-book home. The most professionally designed, decorated and staffed house will not make a home.

But a thoughtfully furnished home, on any budget, can play an integral part in creating a healthy environment for the developing child.

People Hid the Hoax

There's the story of the fast-talking, quick-money artist of the 1890s who sold people on stringing up a hundred or so feet of wire in a church or auditorium to end the noise problem. Crowds flocked to church to see the wonderful device — and ironically, acted as sound-absorbers themselves. The hoax was promptly discovered the following Sunday when attendance — and sound absorption — returned to a more disturbing level.

Vacation Homes on Rise

If the current trend continues, the number of U.S. vacation homes, which now total approximately 1 million, will double by 1970, Anaconda home specialists report.

A tiny one-celled plant known as the main ingredient of sand and the diatom has a shell of silica, glass.

Forecasts Houses Built of Plastic by the 1980s

NEW YORK — Whole houses will be constructed of plastics by the 1980s, predicts a leading plastics specialist.

"Home builders are now using many plastics in construction, and in the future — by the 1980s — whole houses will be built with plastics and chemicals," according to Henry DeVore, a plastics expert.

"Advancements made with chemicals and plastics in the past 15 or 20 years indicate that continued progress will result in many dramatic new techniques in home construction," DeVore said at the ninth National Plastics Exposition.

"There now are about 32.5 million U.S. families who own homes and they represent the greatest total in U.S. history. It is significant that three out of every five families now own a home, and we have become a nation of home owners, rather than tenants."

"Plastics will help house more Americans in the future," he added.

DeVore cited an experimental building constructed by Army engineers at Ft. Belvoir, Va., as a practical example of "one of the most significant advancements in plastics thus far."

The building, about the size of a two-car garage, was constructed of plastic panels, molded and shaped from foam sprayed from a 45-gallon barrel. It was reinforced by spraying it with polyester and when completed weighed about 550 pounds — or less than half as much as a compact European automobile.

"There will come a day when houses such as this will be poured from a barrel," DeVore continued. "Buyers will select a site and then order barrels of chemicals for on-the-spot molding into the panels that will be used in the basic structures of the houses."

OTHER PLASTICS

DeVore listed other building materials made of plastics that have already received wide attention. Among them are polyethylene.

Architect Can Save Money

Many persons consider an architect one who draws up home plans, but actually this is a minor role for him. His real purpose is to save you time, money and anguish in turning your dream home into an actual structure.

The first step an architect takes in stretching each penny of your building dollar is to analyze your family's living habits and requirements and match them to financial resources.

Another essential function in assistance in choosing a building site. Professional advice in this matter has become increasingly important since suitable land is increasingly hard to find.

The architect also specifies every item that will go into construction, including the shape and color of ceramic tile for the bathroom and other areas of the home.

The value of his skill in preparing specifications makes a real impression when you realize that anything not included to begin with is considered an extra by the contractor and charged accordingly.

In addition to materials, the specifications describe the work to be done by listing all operations under major classifications. This may save time (and money) in the event that workmen disagree over building procedures.

Architects also contribute to home building efficiency by selecting contractors who offer reliability as well as modest bids.

If you follow the usual procedure from this point, the architect will supervise construction to see that every step adheres strictly to specification. Resulting savings will far exceed the slightly additional supervision charge.

List Six Tips for Proper Use of Oil Burners

Here are tips on what to do if your oil burner fails to start.

1. Check the thermostat. Burner may not start unless the setting exceeds room temperature by about 3 degrees.
 2. Check the main electric burner switch to make sure that it is in the "on" position.
 3. Examine electric fuses. Replace blown fuses. Be sure to use 15-ampere fuses.
 4. If boiler is equipped with a low water cutoff, make sure water level in boiler gauge glass is at the "water line" which is usually about half way up the glass.
 5. Check pressure gauge or thermometer. If pressure or temperature is high, limit control may have stopped burner. Burner will start automatically as soon as the pressure or the temperature drops.
 6. Check storage tank gauge. Burner may have shut down due to lack of oil.
- If the burner still refuses to start, then press or turn the manual reset button on the burner control box. The burner may then start and run along normally.
- If the burner runs for only a minute or two and shuts down again, do not press the reset button again.

Turn the main electric burner switch off and call an oil burner service man, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau advises.

The U.S. ranks first in the world in production of electricity with 62.5 per cent. Russia is second with 51 per cent and England third with less than that.

Junior Editors Quiz on PLANTS

QUESTION: What causes lichen to grow on the rocks?

ANSWER: Lichens are among the strangest of plants, for, as our picture shows, they are a team, a partnership between a green alga and a whitish fungus.

It is the combination of these two which gives the attractive light green gray of the lichen. Lichens grow on rock because they find all the conditions there which enable them to survive and keep growing. It seems hard to believe a plant could live without any roots. How do they get moisture, which all plants must have in order to grow?

This is the job of the fungus part of the lichen — to obtain water. The fungus can do this, because it has the special ability of "condensing" moisture out of the air. "But what about food?" you may ask, knowing that plants must have food as well as animals.

This part of the job is done by the alga. It contains the almost magical substance chlorophyll, by which, using the sun's energy, it can make sugar. Lichens secrete an acid which can actually dissolve rock, creating a tiny bit of soil underneath.

Later on, mosses and other plants may come and enlarge the soil area started by the lichens. Over thousands of years, lichens have done a big job of helping to make soil in which human beings can raise food.

FOR YOU TO DO: — The minute world of lichens and mosses is one of the most interesting in nature. Borrow a strong magnifying glass and look closely at lichens and mosses outdoors. You'll see many strange objects on them. Make a few notes and sketches and then you can find out more from a book in your library.

NCA Patronage Lower, Mail and Air Freight Up

The amount of mail and air freight carried from Pontiac Municipal Airport on North Central Airlines (NCA) flights in October showed a sharp increase from the preceding month.

Patronage, however, dropped to 21 on outbound flights, according to J. O. Edwards, station manager.

There were 37 passengers on outbound flights in September. In October 1961 outbound passengers totaled 55.

Only two other months this year saw a lower outbound passenger total — January with 17 and February with 19.

SHUN NEW FLIGHT

Edwards said that "not much interest has been shown to date" in a newly scheduled flight to Cleveland.

The afternoon plane goes from here to Detroit and on to Cleveland. Previously, passengers had to change planes at Detroit.

On inbound flights there were also 21 passengers, compared to 26 in September.

Outbound air mail was up to 1,100 pounds compared to 824 in September. Air express was up 1,000 pounds, with 1,283 pounds recorded last month compared to 248 in September.

A similar jump came in air freight with 1,800 pounds on October outbound flights compared to 701 the month before.

Inbound flights in October carried 405 pounds of air mail, 47 pounds of air express and 4,109 pounds of air freight.

September inbound flights carried 622 pounds of air mail, 40 pounds of air express and 5,396 pounds of air freight.

Truck production was estimated at 26,520 this week against 27,078 last week and 25,965 last year. Ward's said 23 of the nation's 47 auto assembly plants will work overtime tomorrow, including 13 of the 16 Ford plants.

Rename Club's Bars

WANSTEAD, England (UPI) — The West Essex Conservative Club, whose president is Sir Winston Churchill, yesterday named its new women's bar "The Clementine Bar" after Lady Churchill.

The reconstructed men's bar is predictably called "The Churchill Bar." Sir Winston is also M. P. for the constituency.

Studebaker Gets OK for Firm Purchase

MINNEAPOLIS (U) — Stockholders of Studebaker Corp., which embarked on a diversification program after losing ground in the automobile market, yesterday approved acquisition of Franklin Manufacturing Co., a Minneapolis firm which makes refrigerators and other private-brand appliances.

The approximately $46 million purchase was ratified in a stockholders meeting here. The transaction involved transfer of $20 million in cash and 1,333,333 shares of Studebaker common stock to owners of Franklin.

Studebaker began its acquisition program four years ago, to diversify its business beyond the Studebaker automobile and to take advantage of a $134 million in tax credits.

Franklin builds refrigerators, freezers, washing machines and dryers in Minneapolis, St. Cloud, Minn., and in Iowa, Indiana and Canada.

Muskegon Man Given 5-Year Jail Terms

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Ralph M. Tucker, 42, of Muskegon was sentenced yesterday by U.S. District Court Judge W. Wallace Kent to two concurrent 5-year prison terms on a car theft conviction.

Tucker was convicted of conspiring and aiding and abetting in the transportation of a stolen car April 5 from Muskegon to Amarillo, Tex.

Hold Suspect in Kazoo Theft

CHICAGO (AP) — A man under indictment for a $1.75-million Florida jewel robbery was turned over to Chicago authorities yesterday in connection with an $18,000 jewel theft in Kalamazoo, Mich.

John Patrick Johnson, arrested Tuesday night by FBI agents, and a second man, Charles Frank Mondrak, both 25 and both of Chicago, are accused of the robbery of Arthur Oberlander, a Chicago jewelry salesman, in a Kalamazoo motel.

U. S. Commissioner C. S. Bentley Pike dismissed federal charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution which were lodged against the two men.

John Thompson, an FBI agent, said Johnson never was served with an indictment charging him with the theft of $1.75-million worth of jewels from a store in Pompano Beach, Fla., on Feb. 10. Thompson said he believes serving the indictment was withheld to await disposal of charges pending against Johnson.

Small Children Play Games With Dynamite

PORT ARTHUR, Out. (AP) — A group of small children threw dynamite sticks at each other for almost an hour at a sewer construction site here last night.

The dynamite did not explode and no one was hurt. Police launched an immediate investigation to find out who left 11 sticks of dynamite unattended. A police department spokesman said all sticks were accounted for.

Police heard about the dynamite when a father was told by his child that a group of children had been playing with "funny sticks" in a residential section of the city's North End.

The children found the dynamite in a sewer pipe. There were no blasting caps, however, police said.

De Gaulle Faces Two Elections

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles De Gaulle tomorrow will enter a new phase of his showdown fight with the nation's old-line political parties.

In elections scheduled for tomorrow and a week from tomorrow, rebellious party leaders will attempt to wrest control of parliament from De Gaulle.

The parliamentary elections represent the second round of the old general's jousting with his political opponents.

The first round was the constitutional referendum on Oct. 23. De Gaulle laid his job on the line and won — though with a greatly reduced vote.

The fight began early this fall when De Gaulle told the nation he wanted to have the Fifth Republic constitution changed so that his successors would be elected by the whole country instead of by a college of some 50,000 "grand electors" or notables.

He announced he would submit this proposal for approval by the nation in a referendum without obtaining its prior endorsement by parliament.

SPARKS FIGHT
The proposal at once touched off a bitter fight between De Gaulle and party leaders. All political groups ranging from the communists to the right-wing independents (conservatives) denounced it.

They charged it was unconstitutional to bypass parliament and that the proposal itself would lead to a dictatorship.

Only the pro-De Gaulle Union for the New Republic (UNR) supported it.

In an outburst of anger against De Gaulle, the National Assembly early in the morning of Oct. 5 passed a censure motion against Premier Georges Pompidou and overthrew his government.

De Gaulle promptly dissolved the National Assembly and ordered parliamentary general elections. The date for these was fixed as Nov. 18 and 25.

Faced with the opposition of all the old-line parties, De Gaulle announced he would quit for good unless he won a massive "yes" vote in the constitutional referendum.

The vote was less massive than he had hoped — some 62 per cent of the valid ballots cast but only 46.6 per cent of the electorate as a whole. More than 6.5 million out of 28 million registered voters did not cast ballots.

However, De Gaulle expressed himself as satisfied. In a nationwide radio-television broadcast Nov. 7 De Gaulle charged that the old-line political parties were trying to drag down France to "national disaster." He appealed to the voters to give him a pro-De Gaulle parliament.

The party leaders retorted with charges that De Gaulle is leading France to dictatorship and a one-party state.

De Gaulle's chief worry was that after voting for him in the referendum many Frenchmen would vote for the anti-De Gaulle parties in the elections.

A heavy defeat for De Gaulle in the elections could lead to the deadlock between him and parliament many Frenchmen ment.

Dodge Ordered to Show Up for Divorce Hearing

DETROIT (AP) — Millionaire auto heir Horace E. Dodge was under a court order today to show up at a referee's hearing in his divorce suit or face contempt charges.

The order was issued yesterday by Circuit Court Judge Joseph R. Rashid.

Dodge, who is suing his wife, Gregg Sherwood Dodge, for a divorce has failed to appear for the past four days at referee Edward A. Singelyn's hearing on Dodge's plea to keep his wife from running up charge accounts.

Dodge was reported unable to attend because of a heart condition. But a physician reported to Judge Rashid that a study of an electrocardiogram and of old X rays indicated Dodge was capable of appearing in court.

PCH Scores Twice in Second Half to Defeat Fired Up PNH, 14-0

Humphrey Gets Both on Muddy Gridiron

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

Very few people really care about moral victories. In fact when football games of past years are recorded, who really cares or even knows that an underdog was a "moral" victor and a scoreboard loser.

If it would make Pontiac Northern's football team feel better today, they could claim last night's 14-0 loss to Pontiac Central as a moral victory and for their efforts against the favored Chiefs they could accept the feeling with a pat on the back.

The Huskies were fired up and they showed they weren't ready to lie down before their city rivals from the West Side. But as was figured, the PCH experience and speed finally won out in the second half when the Chiefs scored both touchdowns.

The game was played in a light drizzle and a sea of mud but surprisingly there was only one fumble despite the conditions.

PNH CONTROL

Northern took the opening kickoff and marched to the PCH 15 with short running yards, led by the running of junior halfback Don Weyer.

When Jim Kimmel's screen pass play failed at this point Central took over but managed only six yards and had to punt out.

Northern again punched out short yardage and got to the PCH 30 where Kimmel's 4th down pass was dropped on the 15 living Central the ball on the 30.

On the third play, Randy Stiles bobbled the ball trying to handoff and tackle Roger Coleman grabbed the mid-air fumble and Northern again had possession on the PCH 35. The threat ended on the 27 and the Chiefs took over again.

Another break came Northern's way when Ed Jim Bland raced in to block Paul Oliver's pass giving PNH the ball on the Central 37.

Pass attempts by Mike Marcum and Kimmel failed and Mike McCarshi pointed to the PCH 7.

The Chiefs finally started to move and crossed midfield for the first time to the PNH 37, but only 12 yards left in the half, Stiles' pass was intercepted by Charles Wilson on the 15 as the half ended.

Northern had the edge in first half statistics with 76 yards to 67.

SECOND HALF

In the second half Chuck Humphrey, Jesse Hodges and Tom Lewis combined their resources and the Chiefs went 64 yards in 15 plays to score. Humphrey went over from the eight-yard line and Jim Moore added the points.

Central ate up 9 minutes in the drive and after six Northern plays the third quarter ended on the PCH 41.

For eight minutes of the 4th period, neither team could cross midfield. Northern's threat on a pass from Kimmel to Wilson ended when Humphrey intercepted on the PCH 18.

It appeared that Wilson was beyond the defenders but as Kimmel released the ball, Wilson fell and the ball was easily grabbed by Humphrey.

Northern called for interference claiming Wilson was pushed, but the officials ruled otherwise. They did however call a clipping penalty on the play and PCH had the ball on its own 18-yard line.

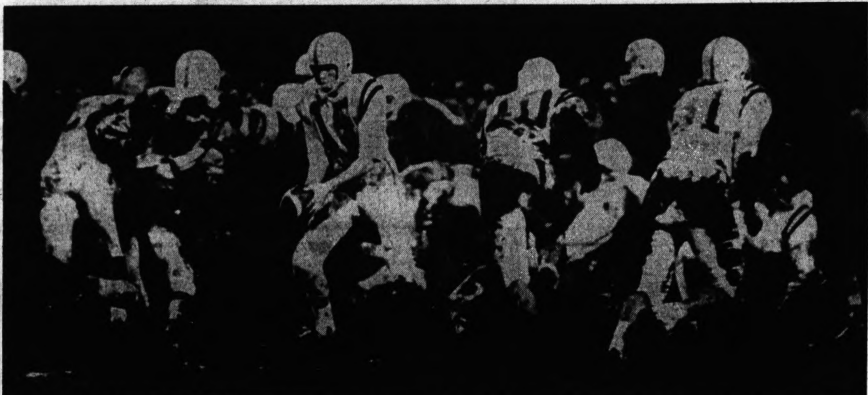

Humphrey went for three and

TD BOUND — Chuck Humphrey goes over his right tackle for an eight yard touchdown in the third quarter of the game putting Pontiac Central ahead of PNH, 7-0.

Humphrey later scored the second PCH touchdown on an 87 yard run in the fourth quarter.

OFFENSE HO! — Quarterback Randy Stiles (15) of Pontiac Central turns to handoff to Jesse Hodge as the mud-splattered white jerseys of the PCH line hold off the Huskies of Pontiac Northern in their intra-city rivalry last night at Wisner Stadium. The Chiefs defeated PNH, 14-0, for the third time in their series. The game was played in mud and steady light drizzle.

GLEE — The expression of glee on this cheerleader's face is indication of how Pontiac Central was doing in the game against rival Pontiac Northern.

GLOOM — Disappointment on the opposite side of the field is seen in the face of this Pontiac Northern cheerleader. Her Huskies were defeated 14-0.

Survival of Fittest Today

Wisconsin, Gophers Picked

By The Associated Press

The most surprising Big Ten football race in recent years plunges into its semifinal round Saturday with four once-beaten contenders struggling for championship survival.

Prime choices to battle it out for the title following today are two teams playing a seven-game conference schedule — Wisconsin and Minnesota.

But first, Wisconsin (4-1), No. 4 in The Associated Press poll, must triumph Saturday at Illinois (1-4) and Minnesota (4-1) must conquer still-alive Purdue (3-1) at Minneapolis.

At Evanston, Ill., Northwestern (4-1), knocked from its top national perch last Saturday by Wisconsin, rests its title case in a conference finale against Michigan State (2-2).

MSU AT IOWA

A fourth conference joust sends Michigan to Iowa while deflated defending champion Ohio State is host to dangerous Oregon in an interconference match.

Purdue, like Northwestern plays only six conference games. The Boilermakers will close against Indiana which has an open date Saturday.

The Big Ten championship battle is one thing. The squabble for a Rose Bowl bid is another.

Minnesota, having played in the Rose Bowl the past two games, is not eligible for another Pasadena appearance on New Year's Day.

Theoretically, the title winner gets the Rose Bowl nomination but this is not necessarily so. The fine print reads that the conference athletic directors pick "the most representative team."

Wisconsin, if it takes the title with a 6-1 record, ostensibly should get the Rose Bowl nod. Yet, Purdue—with a possible 5-1 finish—could conceivably get the Pasadena call since the Boilermaker school never has gone to the Rose Bowl.

For that matter, Northwestern has made only one Rose Bowl appearance—that in 1949 when the Wildcats defeated California 20-14.

Molinas Also Coached What to Tell the Jury

NEW YORK (AP)—Even before his name was linked to the baseball scandal, former Bowling Green University star Bill Reed was coached by Jack Molinas on what to tell the Grand Jury in case he should be called to appear, Reed testified.

The 25-year-old Reed testified Friday that Molinas showed up at Bowling Green, Ohio in the spring of last year and told him "It was not a difficult thing to appear before a grand jury."

At the time, Reed's name had not been linked with the scandals, 25 COUNTS

'Wait Till Next Year?' Northern Is Serious

The cry "Wait Till Next Year" is often used to ease the pains of defeat, but Pontiac Northern may feel it has strong reason to reiterate the chant after last night's 14-0 loss to Pontiac Central.

The Huskies had only two senior regulars in the lineup last night and only six of the 25 players who got into the game ended their prep careers.

"I felt we really had a chance to win this one," said PNH coach Ed Heikkinen, "I certainly don't feel about the way our boys played."

The Huskies were a far different ball club in the final weeks of the season.

"We finally started to jell. Our junior came through well for us," added Heikkinen.

PCH LOSSES HEAVY

PCH coach Paul Dellerba on other hand looked at his roster and saw only six regular players as his nucleus for next season.

"Maybe some sophomores will surprise us," Dellerba said, "if they don't we'll be in real trouble."

"We really had to fight for our lives out there. Northern was fired up, and played a fine game," he continued, "and we didn't play a bad game either."

Officials of both schools were speaking of the possibility of moving the game up to an earlier date in the season, hoping for warmer conditions and better crowds.

The crowd numbered around 4,000 yesterday with the weather killing some of the interest.

There was also talk of possibly playing the game as a twilight affair on an earlier date, playing at 4:00 or 5:00 p.m. hoping to gain the pre-shopping crowd of Friday night.

"It might be something to think about," said one of the school's officials, "Northern will be host to the 4th game of the rivalry next season."

Broomfield Moves Up 5 Seats

Michigan Solons Advance in Congress

Congressman William S. Broomfield, R-Oakland County and other Michigan Republicans in the U.S. House of Representatives, moved into better positions on the standing committees where legislation is made.

Retirements and the recent elections made possible the elevation.

Broomfield moved up five seats to fifth on the foreign affairs committee minority.

While no Michigan House incumbents were defeated, several members lost in other states and by their absence made room for Michigan members to move up the committee ladder.

Montrose Heads for Toledo With Fate Uncertain

DETROIT (UP) — The British freighter Montrose, which sank in the shadow of the Ambassador Bridge July 31, is headed for dry dock in Toledo.

A spokesman for the Patton Steamship Agency said "the whole question of salvaging is up in the air."

The Montrose was scheduled to be towed to Toledo this morning, weather permitting. It had been docked in Ecorse for the past week.

Decision to move the Montrose to Toledo was made after clearance was given by the insurance firm Lloyd's of London. There plans include preventive maintenance and winterization on the 444-foot ship.

Igor is the son of Anatoly Gromyko, a first secretary at the Soviet Embassy in London. Under Britain's medical program national health facilities are free to all foreigners living in Britain.

THANKSGIVING

There have been Thanksgiving Festivals from pagan times, the ancient Hebrew Feast of the Tabernacles goes back to the time when the first man realized his dependence upon a higher power than himself. Chinese and Indians, Africans and Turks, Egyptians and Desert Nomads celebrated harvest festivals from very ancient times.

Our Thanksgiving is the oldest American holiday. It was first celebrated by Gov. Bradford of the Plymouth Colony in 1620. It has been woven into our history and tradition.

Thanksgiving goes deep into the hearts of every American. We celebrate the occasion with gratitude, mirth, peace and goodwill. It's a chance for us to give thanks for the good things of life. Smiles are magnified, voices ring with heartfelt thankfulness. The most important ingredient in our Thanksgiving celebration is an abiding faith in a power so great that we, as a species of dust in the infinite, receive gracious bounty from Him, the God of Creation. Happy Thanksgiving!

mitted runs, too, but none moved into the top spots where subcommittee chairmanships are doled out.

They will be joined in January by Neil Steahler, newly elected congressman-at-large, who will be appointed to committee posts by the Democratic committee on committees.

The Republicans, meanwhile, will be looking for a couple of seats for Edward Hutchinson, who succeeds the veteran Allegan Republican, Clare Hoffman.

Michigan Republicans advanced into the top five slots of the minority lineup in several committees.

Rep. August E. Johansen, conservative Battle Creek Republican, became top-ranked GOP member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, with the retirement of Rep. Gordon H. Scherer of Ohio.

Rep. John B. Bennett, Ontario Republican, remains No. 1 Republican on the interstate and foreign commerce committee.

CHANGES POSSIBLE
Here's how the Michigan committee entries stand going into the 88th Congress—subject to changes if members of some committees successfully seek switches to what they consider better committees:

Republican Gerald R. Ford Jr. of Grand Rapids moved from the sixth to the third seat on the minority side of the appropriations committee.

Bay City Republican Elford A. Cedarberg moved from 11th to 8th. On the majority side, Rep. John Lesinski moved from 29th to 23rd.

Republican Charles E. Chamberlain of East Lansing moved up one seat to the 11th position on the armed services committee, on which Michigan has no Democrats.

Rep. Harold M. Ryan, Detroit Democrat, moved from 17th to 15th on the banking and currency committee, where Republican James Harvey of Saginaw went from ninth to eighth.

On education and labor, Republican Rep. Robert P. Griffin

Halt Stamp Sale but It's Too Late

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A New Jersey stamp collector has won the battle with the Post Office Department but may have already lost the war.

Leonard Sherman, an amateur collector from Irvington, N. J., successfully obtained a court order that temporarily halted the sale of one million delugately misprinted Dag Hammarskjöld commemorative stamps.

But by the time the order was handed down an eager public had bought up 375,000 of the stamps — thereby ruining Sherman's chance to make more than a tidy profit.

Sherman owns 50 of 400 original and unintentional — misprints of the stamp that commemorates the late secretary general of the United Nations.

A yellow portion of the original stamp was printed upside down.

TO BLOCK SPECULATION
Sherman figured that he could realize a half-million-dollar windfall from the original "mistakes" he holds.

Postmaster General J. Edward Day, however, ordered the misprinted stamps in line with what he said was a post office policy of preventing errors that cause speculation among stamp collectors.

Sherman and many other stamp collectors raised an uproar. Sherman outbid the other known holders of the originals and went to court.

He failed Thursday to get an injunction from a federal district judge in Newark, N. J., to halt the sale of the extra misprints.

But yesterday, Judge Gerard McLoughlin of the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, also in Newark, issued a temporary order restraining the Post Office Department from continuing its sale of the stamps.

After the order had been issued,

Department said it would ask the full Circuit Court on Monday to dissolve the restraining order.

BIG PLANS
Sherman, a jeweler by trade, hoped to turn his 50 stamps into a bonanza that would pay for his five children's college educations; buy the family a new car; and finance other luxuries.

Although Sherman said his stamps were worth $500,000, philatelic experts said his estimate was far too high.

Some experts figured the original misprints were worth about $350 each, which would total out to about $17,500.

Play Cricket on Problem of Sexy Spies
LONDON (UP) — The British government is going on the theory that its diplomats are sophisticated enough to realize the danger of falling for sexy stress behind the Iron Curtain.

It prefers to handle the problem by social hints and checks of a private, fatherly type rather than to put the whole matter on the basis of written directives of the "what every young man should know" type.

A foreign office spokesman said no new instructions have been sent to Britons abroad telling them they were keeping out of the grip of Red Mata Hara.

He made this comment when a reporter noted that Washington has warned American servicemen abroad to avoid falling into the spy's version of the old badger game. The American warning said romance with any Soviet or Communist bloc citizen should be avoided.

The Foreign Office spokesman turned down any suggestion that Britain was following the U.S. lead in issuing instructions. Asked if he accepted the validity of the term sexy stress, he replied: "I think perhaps in modern diplomacy it might be used."

Gather Today for Report on Tax Crusade

DEARBORN (UP) — The Vigilance Tax Committee was scheduled to meet here today for a progress report on its petition drive for a statutory law banning local income taxes unless such taxes are approved by voters.

Berkley Mayor George Kuhn, head of the committee, said the petition drive, which has been scheduled to end last Thursday, will be extended for one month.

Kuhn also announced that the goal of 300,000 signatures on petitions has been reduced to 250,000 signatures.

The number of signatures to petition for a statutory law is based on the total number of persons who voted for governor in the most recent election.

About 2,670,000 persons voted for governor last week.

Haiti Deports 4 Clergymen

Chase Bishop, 3 Priests for Voodoo Crusade

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—The Negro Republic of Haiti, in a renewal of a feud with the church, accused a Roman Catholic bishop Friday of crusading against voodoo and ordered him and three priests deported.

The Haitian government also charged that the 60-year-old French-born bishop, the Most Rev. Paul Robert, had conducted of defamation campaign against President Francois Duvalier in 1957, when Duvalier won reelection to a second term. The bishop was called "an enemy of the government."

The voodoo charges dated back to 1941.

Bishop Robert and the priests were to fly to New York today via Miami, Fla. The bishop was to go on to Rome to report to the Vatican.

The priests, also French-born, were identified only as Robin, George Martin and Salus.

The expulsions brought to 12 the number of Catholic clergymen ordered out of Haiti in the last two years by Duvalier.

The president of the French-speaking nation was accused of high-ranking clergy on charges of allegedly conspiring with Communists.

Court Rules Suit Against Times OK

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Reversing its stand on the basis of an Alabama Supreme Court decision, a U.S. appeals court ruled yesterday the New York Times could be sued for libel in federal courts here.

The U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans ordered Federal District Judge H. H. Groome to proceed with $2.5 million libel suits seeking a total of $2.5 million.

Grooms said last night he has set no hearings yet on the suits filed in 1960 by city officials of Birmingham and Bessemer on the basis of a Times story concerning race relations.

The Fifth Circuit Court cited an Aug. 30 ruling by the Alabama Supreme Court that a cause for libel action arises in a state where libelous material is distributed as well as where it is published.

The city officials, Birmingham Commissioners Eugene (Bull) Connor and J. T. Waggoner, former Mayor James Morgan and Detective Joe Lindley, Bessemer Commissioners Jess Lanier, Herman Thompson and Raymond Thompson, all claimed they were intentionally defamed in a story written in 1960 by Times staff writer Harrison Salisbury.

Injured Girl Suing Ford for $1 Million

YORK, S.C. (UPI)—$1-million damage suit was on file here today against the Ford Motor Co., charging a design defect in a Ford car was responsible for the crippling of a 17-year-old girl.

Janet Elizabeth Mickle of Rock Hill, S.C., was paralyzed from the chest down when the car in which she was riding collided with another automobile May 29 in Rock Hill.

She said she was sitting in the front seat of a Ford and was thrown against the gear shift lever on the steering column.

The suit filed yesterday charged Ford with "designing and selling an automobile with inherent defects making it dangerous and hazardous, and failing to install adequate safeguards to prevent the type of injury the plaintiff suffered."

The suit did not specify the "adequate safeguards."

Defluoridation Poses Costly City Problem

By DICK SAUNDERS
What would it cost to defluoridate more than 3.5-billion gallons of water a year?
This is the question of the hour in Pontiac; a question for which no one has a ready answer.
It's a pretty valid question because that's what might have to be done after next July 1.

It evolves from the possibility that Detroit may initiate a water fluoridation program. Such a proposal faces the Detroit Common Council now.

Detroit will begin supplying Pontiac as this city's sole water source on July 1, 1963. That contract is already signed, sealed and delivered.

It's good for 35 years.
An earlier question was "How much will fluoridated water cost Pontiac?" This query has been sidetracked by another question: "Can fluoridated water be used in Pontiac?"
This answer is "No, not legally."

An ordinance prohibiting the addition of fluoride or any fluoride compounds to this city's water supply was placed on the ballot at a special election April 4, 1955.

In a slim turnout that saw only about 10,000 votes cast, the ordinance passed by a margin of 1,473 votes.

Thus, if Detroit decides to fluoridate its water supply, Pontiac officials will be placed in an almost impossible position.

The water contract is signed and a $4-million water system improvement program about half completed (its sole purpose to handle water from a single source).

SUITS POSSIBLE
To turn back to the city's 30 wells now and refuse Detroit water would be throwing away $1 million and would also leave the city open to a suit for breach of contract.

On the other hand, to accept a fluoridated water supply is clearly against the law. To do so would leave the city wide open to a taxpayer's suit.

City Commissioner Loy L. Leford this week introduced a resolution "opposing" the fluoridation of Detroit water to be supplied to Pontiac. It was unanimously passed.

"Someone asked me why I voted against fluoridation," said Commissioner William H. Taylor Jr. "I didn't vote against fluoridation; I voted against something that is illegal."

These points have been supported by City Attorney William A. Ewart.
"The ordinance clearly makes it illegal to use fluoridated water (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1).

2 Secret Indictments on Ole Miss

Grand Jury Raps Marshals

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — The Lafayette County grand jury, which indicted three men for the riot at the University of Mississippi, has handed down two secret indictments.

No names were released by the grand jury as it acted Friday after studying for a week the Sept. 30 riot that followed the arrival of James H. Meredith — a Negro — on the Ole Miss campus.

However, it lashed out at Chief U.S. Marshal James P. McShane for his order to fire tear gas at demonstrators that night.

"We find that this illegal action on the part of McShane set off the tragic violence which followed," the grand jury report said.

Sheriff Joe Ford of Lafayette County was directed to arrest the two persons and have them in the next session of court, scheduled for March 4, 1963.

The names of the indicted persons will not be released until they are arrested, under Mississippi law. Both are from outside Mississippi, according to Circuit Judge Walter M. O'Barr.

Therefore, the names could be released when the judge signs papers to extradite them to Mississippi. O'Barr said Dist. Atty. Jesse Yancy Jr. would prepare the extradition papers.

O'Barr, a native of Mississippi, had charged the grand jury to indict anyone who helped incite the riot — including President Kennedy and his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy. However, O'Barr said that "neither the President nor the attorney general was named."

In a related development, the Justice Department in Washington announced it hoped to file papers in the criminal contempt cases against Gov. Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr. shortly after Thanksgiving.

Edwin Guthman of the Justice Department distributed a statement from Atty. Gen. Kennedy, in which he said: "I said shortly after the riot that Mr. McShane and the marshals acted with great bravery and restraint, and investigations since then by FBI and reports by newsmen more than sustain that position."

Bombers Out of Cuba Top Goals in Talks

Believe Kennedy Tells K Other Action Halted by Aerial Threat

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is reported to be increasing its diplomatic pressure on Russia for prompt removal of Soviet jet bombers in Cuba.

Withdrawal of the planes — the last of the offensive weapons to which the United States made specific objection — dominates all U.S. Soviet contacts, including personal exchanges between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev, informants said.

Kennedy is understood to have made clear to Khrushchev that it will be impossible for the United States to move on any other front of diplomatic relations until the bomber problem is settled.

The President and his advisers regard it in large part as an issue of good faith, since Khrushchev promised to take from Cuba all the offensive weapons to which Kennedy objected and not just the 42 missiles cleared out last week.

Washington officials said the bomber issue is of greater concern than Prime Minister Fidel Castro's threat to shoot down U.S. reconnaissance aircraft.

Their confidence apparently rested on a belief the Russians would not support Castro in any military action that was sure to bring U.S. retaliation.

It was assumed here that the big surface to air missile bases — the Soviets set up 22 in Cuba — are under Soviet command and the control of Soviet troops.

WILL BOOM TENSION

Authorities said that Castro certainly has the power to fire on and perhaps to knock down some U.S. planes. And there was no denial that if this happened it would bring a rapid increase in tensions in the Cuban crisis and mark the beginning of a dangerous new period.

Whether it would also have the result of causing Khrushchev to look more carefully at his policy on the H23 jet bombers is a question.

Since he has lost Cuba as a major nuclear missile base, authorities here find it hard to believe he would pay much of a price to retain weapons of secondary importance there at the cost of serious trouble with the United States.

U.N. Envoys Worry on Shooting Threat

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — A threat by Prime Minister Fidel Castro to shoot down U.S. reconnaissance planes heightened the fears of many delegates today that a shooting incident might torpedo talks to settle the Cuban crisis.

In Washington, U.S. officials were inclined to think that the Russians would not support Castro in any military action risking U.S. retaliation. There was a conviction that anti-aircraft missile batteries in Cuba are manned by Russians not subject to Castro's orders.

Nevertheless, Castro got Soviet verbal support Friday as U.S. Delegate Arthur Dean and Soviet Delegate Valerian A. Zorin clashed on the issue before the U.N. Political Committee.

Zorin called the Cuban leader's warning against U.S. flights "perfectly legitimate."

Dean declared the United States would continue scout missions over Cuba as long as necessary and give its planes protection if need be.

He told the 110-nation committee that Castro's threat carries no weight with the United States. Such flights are essential, Dean said, until Premier Khrushchev carries out his promise of on-site inspection to make sure the Soviet rockets have been pulled out of Cuba.

Dean rapped the Russians for installing missile bases in Cuba while assuring President Kennedy that no offensive weapons were being sent to Castro.

Dean said Khrushchev had been "found" with his hand in the Cuban missile plot, or if you will, STUNG BY REMARKS

Stung by Dean's remarks, Zorin said any attempt by the United States to violate Cuban sovereignty "cannot but provoke universal condemnation."

Romney Sees Hope for Constitution

By JIM DYGERT
What happens in Michigan during the next two years may have a profound effect on the future of American politics if George Romney is as successful a governor as he was a candidate.

In an interview yesterday in Bloomfield Hills, Romney told the Pontiac Press he feels his election is already changing Michigan's national image and that the state's new proposed constitution now stands a much better chance of legislative approval.

About Michigan's national image and whether his victory may already have begun to help it, Romney said. "It called attention to the fact that we have ended special interest government in Michigan."

"Michigan was first presented as a problem-solving state instead of a problem state when the constitutional convention was called," he said. As head of Citizens for Michigan, Romney was a prime force in bringing about the constitutional convention.

"I don't think there's any question but that my election increases the chances of the new constitution being approved," he noted. Romney stated he felt there is now wider support for the new constitution than there was for the calling of the convention, and he said, the Democratic party has not yet come out absolutely against it.

He said the need for more jobs is still the state's No. 1 problem, adding that his election and the end of "special interest government" has provided a basis for gains in this area.

Although he indicated he has some specific plans to bring more jobs into Michigan, he is "not prepared to announce them now."

If the power of the "citizen government" is demonstrated in Michigan, "it could have meaning nationally," Romney said.

of party strength, especially if Romney succeeds in reshaping the Republican party into a "citizens party."

"It's already been shown in the campaign that the concept of citizen government is gaining strength," he said.

He sees his victory as a triumph for the concept and "a real political breakthrough" that may be duplicated nationally if Michigan now succeeds in solving its problems.

In fact, Romney says he sees the nationwide publicity he has been getting as actually directed at Michigan and whether it can solve its problems.

But how much or how soon Romney will actively promote on a national scale his concept of citizen government with "citizenship above partisanship" in place of "special interest government" remains to be seen.

He said his major concern is here at home. "I'm just thinking about the job in Michigan."

Broomfield Moves Up 5 Seats

Michigan Solons Advance in Congress

Congressman William S. Broomfield, R-Oakland County and other Michigan Republicans in the U.S. House of Representatives, moved into better positions on the standing committees where legislation is made.

Retirements and the recent elections made possible the elevation.

Broomfield moved up five seats to fifth on the foreign affairs committee minority.

While no Michigan House incumbents were defeated, several numbers lost in other states and by their absence made room for Michigan members to move up the committee ladder.

DEMS GAIN, TOO

Democrats gained a few committee rungs, too, but none moved into the top spots where subcommittee chairmanships are doled out.

They will be joined in January by Neil Staehle, newly elected congressman-at-large, who will be appointed to committee posts by the Democratic committee on committees.

The Republicans, meanwhile, will be looking for a couple of seats for Edward Hutchinson, who succeeds the veteran Alagan Republican, Clare Hoffman.

Michigan Republicans advanced into the top five slots of the minority lineup in several committees.

Rep. August E. Johansen, conservative Battle Creek Republican, became top-ranked GOP member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, with the retirement of Rep. Gordon H. Scherer of Ohio.

Rep. John B. Bennett, Ontonagon Republican, remains No. 1 Republican on the interstate and foreign commerce committee.

CHANGES POSSIBLE

Here's how the Michigan committee entries stand going into the 86th Congress—subject to changes if members of some committees successfully seek switches to what they consider better committees:

Republican Gerald R. Ford Jr. of Grand Rapids moved from the sixth to the third seat on the minority side of the appropriations committee.

Bay City Republican Elford A. Cederberg moved from 11th to 8th. On the majority side, Rep. John Lesinski moved from 29th to 23rd.

Republican Charles E. Chamberlain of East Lansing moved up one seat to the 11th position on the armed services committee, on which Michigan has no Democrats.

Rep. Harold M. Ryan, Detroit Democrat, moved from 17th to 15th on the banking and currency committee, where Republican James Harvey of Saginaw went from ninth to eighth.

On education and labor, Republican Rep. Robert P. Griffin

BIG PLANS

Sherman, a jeweler by trade, hoped to turn his 50 stamps into a bonanza that would: Pay for his five children's college educations; buy the family a new car; and finance other luxuries.

Although Sherman said his stamps were worth $500,000, philatelic experts said his estimate was far too high.

Some experts figured the original misprints said it would cost $350 each, which would total out to about $17,500.

Sherman owns 50 of 400 original and unintentional — misprints of the stamp that commemorates the late secretary general of the United Nations.

By the time the order was handed down an eager buyer had bought up 375,000 of the stamps — thereby ruining Sherman's chance to make some what more than a tidy profit.

Yellow portion of the original stamp was printed upon down.

TO BLOCK SPECULATION

Sherman figured that he could realize a half-million-dollar windfall from the original "mistakes" he holds.

Postmaster General J. Edgar Day, however, ordered the intentional misprints in line with what he said was a post office policy of preventing errors that cause speculation among stamp collectors.

Sherman and many other stamp collectors raised an uproar. Sherman outdid the other known holders of the originals and went to court.

He failed Thursday to get an injunction from a federal district judge in Newark, N.J., to halt the sale of the extra misprints.

But yesterday, Judge Gerard McLaughlin of the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, also in Newark, issued a temporary order restraining the Post Office Department from continuing its sale of the stamps.

After the order had been issued, the sale of the stamps was halted.

Play Cricket on Problem of Sexy Spies

LONDON (AP)—The British government is going on the theory that its diplomats are sophisticated enough to realize the danger of falling for sexy sirens behind the Iron Curtain.

It prefers to handle the problem by social hints and checks of a private, fatherly type rather than put the whole matter on the basis of written directives of the "what every young man should know" type.

A foreign office spokesman said no new instructions have been sent to Britons abroad telling them how to keep out of the grip of Red Mata Hari.

He made this comment when a reporter asked that Washington has warned American servicemen abroad to avoid falling into the spy's version of the old badger game. The American warning said romance with any Soviet or Communist bloc citizen should be avoided.

The Foreign Office spokesman turned down any suggestion that Britain was following the U.S. lead in issuing instructions. Asked if he accepted the validity of the term sexy siren, he replied: "I think that in modern diplomacy it might be used."

JFK, Ike to Dedicate Dulles Airport Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dulles International Airport — still a building — will be formally dedicated today by President Kennedy and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

About 100 men worked through the night adding finishing touches, but the sleek new terminal designed by the late Eero Saarinen won't be complete even when the big jetliners start swooshing in and out Monday morning.

THANKSGIVING

There have been Thanksgiving Festivals from pagan times, the ancient Hebrew Feast of the Tabernacles goes back to the time when the first man realized his dependence upon a higher power than himself. Chinese and Indians, Africans and Texans, Egyptians and Desert Nomads celebrated harvest festivals from very ancient times.

Our Thanksgiving is the oldest American holiday, set aside by Gov. Bradford of the Plymouth Colony in 1620. It has been woven into our history and tradition.

Thanksgiving goes deep into the hearts of every American. We celebrate the occasion with gratitude, mirth, peace and goodwill. It's a season for cooperative family solidarity, ties are tied tighter, attitudes are magnified, voices ring with heartfelt thankfulness. The most important ingredient in our Thanksgiving celebration is an abiding faith in a power so great that it has, as a spark of dust in the infinite, received gracious bounty from Him, the God of Creation. Happy Thanksgiving!
