

Overwork Caused Fog-Up, Says Cernan

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Astronaut Eugene A. Cernan reported today that overwork kept him from maintaining his space walk as planned because of fogging that cut the stroll short.

Cernan and his flying companion, Thomas P. Stafford, told a news conference about their exciting, often-troubled three-day mission in space earlier this month.

The astronauts reported their troubles taught them many things for future flights, including the fact that the Apollo spacecraft has to go to the rescue of two astronauts who have started a descent toward the moon and for some reason decide not to land.

Cernan, 32, a Navy commander, said that when he went to an equipment bay at the base of the Gemini 9 vehicle to don a rocket-powered back pack: "I had a position problem trying to keep my feet in the stirrups while using both hands to get into the back pack."

"I continually floated out the back and had to work continuously against a pressure suit."

50 PER CENT

"This overpowered the environmental control system in the chest pack. I was devoting 50 per cent of my work load just to maintain position."

"As soon as we went into a darkness period, my visor started to fog," Cernan said.

"I had only two more connections to make. I looked into the black night and the earth and the light looked the same. I could not see the horizon."

"I'm not saying I felt lonely out there. But a light in the equipment section looked like a headlight coming through a fog. That's when we decided not to use the back pack."

Cernan returned to the spacecraft half an hour earlier than planned.

Cernan also disclosed that some insulation material for his space suit and that he got very hot in that one area for a brief period.

Cernan summed up the achievements of his walk this way:

"We know we can work in daylight and darkness and in the extreme temperatures with no disorientation or vertigo. The spacecraft is the basic frame of reference and there is no trouble working around it."

"We know I put out a lot of work that overpowered the environmental control system we had."

"This is not to degrade the system. It worked up to specification. We just didn't realize the amount of work that would be needed."

Now we know and we'll be able to plan for it in the future."

Another major achievement of the three-day flight was the rehearsal of the moon rescue maneuver, which required radar.

3 Artificial Heart Valves Placed in Turkish Woman

LONDON (AP)—Demonstrating his pioneering technique to a medical convention, an American surgeon, Dr. Albert Starr, last night replaced three valves in the heart of a woman patient with artificial ones.

Two hundred doctors watched the 7½-hour operation on a wide screen color television.

Starr, of the University of Oregon in Eugene, performed the operation on Mrs. Ziba Vasvi, 27, a Turkish Cypriot living in London. She suffers from a rheumatic heart condition.

"So far, there has been nothing to indicate any problem to mar the eventual outcome," said the surgeon, 40, later.

As he worked, Starr explained his technique.

He was assisted by Dr. M. V. Brainbridge, senior lecturer in cardiac surgery at St. Thomas' Hospital, and two of his own staff who were flown here.

Starr used a heart-lung pump to take over circulation from the flagging heart, then the blood was cooled with a deep freeze unit until the heart stopped.

He cut away the diseased valves, then pushed in the man-made replacements.

The heart was started again by reheating the blood.

After the operation, the bespectacled Starr threw his arms around theater nurse, Sister Leona Fisher and planted a triumphant kiss on her cheek.

"It is unusual to have such extensive valve disease," he said. "The result should be good with the patient restored to moderate activity."

"The operation will not cost Mrs. Vasvi anything."

The operation would have cost a private patient in Britain around $11,200.

BURNING TANKER — The British tanker Alva Cape burns after colliding yesterday with the American tanker Texaco Massachusetts in the Kill Van Kull between Staten Island, N.Y., and Bayonne, N.J. Firemen were still working today in an attempt to cool the smoldering hulk of the British ship. At least 20 were known dead in the collision.

Starr reported on his "ball-in-a-cage" mechanism for substituting the heart's natural valves to a medical convention in Atlantic City, N.J., last October. He was asked by British surgeons to demonstrate the development.

SPECTACULAR RESULTS

At the Atlantic City convention Starr reported that "spectacular" results had been achieved with his method in 31 patients, who, he said, were otherwise headed for certain death.

In the operation last night Starr virtually took apart Mrs. Vasvi's heart. He cut out three of her four heart valves and replaced them with ball valves of his own invention. They are made of plastic, metal and rubber.

He operated at St. Thomas' Hospital in central London. A mile away, across the River Thames, British and foreign heart specialists sat in the private theater of the Royal College of Surgeons and watched on closed circuit television.

The four-inch incision made by Starr was projected to fill a 16 by 14 foot screen.

Boy Drowns in Area Pond

A 12-year-old Rochester youth drowned yesterday afternoon in about eight feet of water in Rochdale Pond at Rochdale and Rockingham in Avon Township.

The victim was Richard R. Boice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boice of 112 N. Alice.

A companion, John Geist, 11, of 1473 Walton, Avon Township, attempted to rescue the Boice boy, pulling him ashore and applying mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Geist told sheriff's deputies that Boice was standing in waist-deep water when he dived beneath the surface.

Geist said he jumped in after Boice after spotting bubbles. Boice was found lying face-down on the bottom of the pond.

According to the Geist boy, Boice was submerged for only about a minute.

LBJ, Wilson Plan to Meet Next Month

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson and President Johnson next month, it was announced today.

The announcement from No. 10 Downing Street said the visit would take place in the second half of July.

"The prime minister and the President of the United States have agreed that it would be useful for them to meet again for one of their periodic exchanges of views on world problems," it said.

"This meeting will take place in Washington in the second half of July. The exact date will be announced in due course."

An official spokesman commented that it is "nearly seven months" since Wilson and President Johnson last met in Washington "though they have been in communication."

LIKE TO MEET

He said the prime minister and the President "like to meet one another from time to time."

542 Graduate From Central

Despite a 15-minute downpour at the outset, Pontiac Central High School last night graduated 542 seniors in ceremonies at Wisner Memorial Stadium.

Pontiac Central Principal Francis W. Staley announced to the anxious audience that the ceremony would not be postponed because of the threatening clouds.

The cloudburst, he assured them, would last only a few minutes.

The seniors were drenched as they marched onto the stadium before waiting parents and friends.

However, the rain had subsided by the time Dr. David

Ideal Weekend Is Predicted for Area Residents

The weatherman promises dad a pleasant weekend for swimming, sailing, golf or just relaxing.

The U.S. Weather Bureau forecast reads like this:

FRIDAY — Mostly sunny today with some afternoon cloudiness. Highs in the 70s will fall to lows of 45 to 50 tonight.

SATURDAY — Sunny and a little warmer with highs hitting 73 to 80.

SUNDAY — Sunshine with increasing cloudiness and a slim chance of late afternoon showers.

Pair Picked for the Final Gemini Shot

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. drew assignments today to fly Gemini 12, the nation's final two-man Gemini space mission.

The flight, featuring an around-the-world space walk by Aldrin, 36-year-old West Point graduate, is scheduled into this year, probably in mid-November.

Gemini 12 will clear the way for full space agency efforts on Project Apollo, the U.S. program to land men on the moon by the end of the decade.

The first three-man Apollo flight, 14 days in earth orbit, could also come in November.

Lovell, 38, will be command pilot on the three-day journey. He made his maiden orbital flight last December with Air Force Col. Frank Borman aboard Gemini 7. The pair brought the United States virtually all man-in-space records while spending 14 days aloft.

PRIME PILOT SLOTS

The new space twins moved into prime pilot slots after serving as back-up crewmen for Gemini 9, a troubled, yet historic journey made by Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan early this month.

A combat pilot in Korea credited with destroying two MIG15 aircraft and damaging another, Aldrin became an astronaut in October 1962. He has never been in space, but is considered an expert on space rendezvous—a prime objective of Gemini 12.

No back-up crew was announced immediately.

Gemini 10, a three-day rendezvous, linkup and space walk mission to be flown by Navy Cmdr. John W. Young and Air Force Maj. Michael Collins, is scheduled July 18.

Navy Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr. and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Richard F. Gordon Jr. will follow in Gemini 11 two months later on a similar assignment.

Pair Believe Son Is Back

Tot Was Kidnaped in Chicago 2 Years Ago

CHICAGO (AP) — The mystery that enveloped the hospital kidnapping two years ago of 37-hour-old Paul Joseph Fronczak has been reopened with the adoption of a child by the parents.

The infant was taken from Mrs. Chester Fronczak's arms in Michael Reese Hospital April 27, 1964, by a woman posing as a nurse.

The woman, who said she was taking the infant for an examination, walked out of the hospital with the baby. They were never seen again.

The Fronczaks believe they have their son. He is a sandy-haired 2-year-old abandoned July 2 in Newark, N. J., and has been in an orphanage.

Neighbors said Mr. and Mrs. Fronczak have told them they are convinced the child is theirs.

They said the lad has been playing in the Fronczak yard since last week.

Ky to Discipline Police Who Beat U.S. Newsmen

WASHINGTON (UPI)—South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky has ordered an investigation and disciplinary action against government police who have roughed up American newsmen, Saigon's ambassador to the United States said yesterday.

In a telegram to Julius Frandsen, vice president of United Press International in Washington, Ambassador Vu Van Thai said his government was "taking steps to prevent further similar incidents and to insure total freedom of coverage for newsmen."

The State Department earlier yesterday said the U.S. had lodged a strong protest with South Viet Nam over the incidents, in which one UPI newsmen covering street demonstrations was injured and others had cameras and tape recorders confiscated by police.

Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the protest was delivered to the foreign ministry in Saigon yesterday by U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

Meany said at a news conference after the AFL-CIO had talked to both President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk after AFL-CIO delegates walked out of the Geneva conference of the ILO when Leon Chajin of Communist Poland was elected president.

Neither Johnson nor Rusk asked him to order the U.S. labor delegates back, Meany said, and emphasized the AFL-CIO would continue to work in the ILO and try to "save it" from a Communist take-over.

Walter Reuther replied mildly yesterday through an aide that he was "happy to hear the AFL-CIO will not pull out of the ILO."

Reuther declined to hold a news conference. Meany said Walter Reuther's charge that the ILO was a "damnable lie," that Victor Reuther's charge of fronting for the CIA was "slandering" and that Walter Reuther's leaking of the dispute to newsmen was "contemptible."

Local Firm Made Equipment

Part of Orion Twp. on Moon

ORION TOWNSHIP — The Surveyor spacecraft landed on the Moon June 3, employees of the M. C. Manufacturing Co., 118 Indianwood, greeted the news with more than casual interest.

An integral part of the spacecraft's propulsion system was designed and built at the M. C. plant.

Called a relief valve, the device was made according to engineering specifications submitted by Hughes Aircraft Co., which built the spacecraft for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Its function was to prevent overpressurization of fuel tanks in the Surveyor rocket propulsion system. Lawrence A. Hyland, vice president and general manager of Hughes Aircraft, said the M. C. company's contribution to the project was typical of the fine engineering know-how which helped make the Surveyor's mission successful.

MOST COMPLEX

Called the most complex spacecraft ever launched, the Surveyor transmitted thousands of closeup pictures of the Moon's surface for several days after it made the first "soft" Moon landing by a NASA spacecraft.

The M. C. Manufacturing Co. produces high pressure valves, air compressors and fuel pumps for aircraft and guided missiles.

In the same location for some 25 years, the firm employs over 100 persons.

Board Okays Sewage Pact

W. Bloomfield Joins 8-Community Project

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The Township Board has approved the Clinton-Oakland Sewage Disposal System contract which involves eight communities.

Although the board approved the project, it separated it into two parts. One is the main trunkline which will connect to all communities and the other is the branching trunks and arms of West Bloomfield's internal system.

West Bloomfield will pay 6.1 per cent of the total cost of $16.5 million on a connection charge basis.

John C. Rehder, township supervisor, said tentative charges are estimated at $500 per lot plus a $14 debt retirement charge per year.

Of the total charge per lot, $350 will be paid on the main trunkline and $500 will be paid on the internal trunk and arms.

NEED OK BY ALL — Only those units using the sewer system will be charged, Rehder said.

Although engineers have been told to proceed with designs for the system, it will not go into effect until all eight communities have approved the project.

Other communities included in the proposed sewer system are the townships of Avon, Pontiac, Waterford, Independence and Orion and the cities of Pontiac and Orchard Lake.

Vote on School Tax Set July 25 in Holly

HOLLY — The board of education has set July 25 for a special millage vote on the same proposal that failed by one vote, $64 to $63, on Monday's school ballot.

Taxpayers will be asked to approve a 5-mill operating levy for four years, which would raise total school taxes in the district to approximately 29.70 mills, or $29.70 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

District taxpayers are currently paying 7 voted extra mills for operation, which expires next year, 9 mills for debt retirement and 8.7 allocated by the County Tax Allocation Board.

The extra 5 mills would bring in approximately $117,000 per year on the district's current assessed valuation of $26,066,396, according to schools Supt. Russell G. Haddon.

The 5 mills are proposed to help offset a budget deficit, improve curriculum and to add 11 teachers, one clerk, one custodian and one vocational guidance director.

WOULD HELP — Although there are openings for 18 teachers, Haddon said, the funds required to hire the 11 teachers would help eliminate what he termed crowded conditions in Holly schools.

Haddon has previously noted that 18 early elementary and nine fourth, fifth and sixth grade sections have in excess of 30 students each. A few have as many as 35.

Junior high school classes average 33 students and in the senior high school, all English sections are overloaded as well as some business education classes and the three government classes, he said.

Haddon also reported that negotiations are still continuing with teachers represented by the Holly Education Association.

NONECONOMIC FACTORS — Although there is agreement on most of the noneconomic factors, salaries are still being negotiated.

Construction on Patterson school is proceeding according to plan and the main part of the building is expected to be complete by the end of this month.

Construction on an addition to Devisburg Elementary School has halted.

Haddon said the Bersh Construction Co. of Pontiac has not contacted the school board concerning the delay.

UPPER LEVEL — The addition will include a library with adjacent art room and small theater on the upper level.

On the lower level, three offices and work rooms are planned. Construction was to be finished by the beginning of the fall term.

Opening of Bids Set for City Hall Work

WALLED LAKE — Bids will be opened July 8 for the new city hall to be built on a four-acre site on West Maple, just west of Decker.

The one-story, 7,000 square foot building will house city offices, court, police, fire, and library departments.

A $75,000 bond issue will support the most of the building. The bond issue was approved by voters six weeks ago.

'Inadequate' Outlay Blamed

MSU Hikes Tuition $30 to $150 a Year

EAST LANSING (AP) — Michigan State University Trustees calling the Legislature's appropriation to MSU inadequate, boosted tuition Thursday by $30 a year for Michigan residents and $150 for out-of-state students.

It also ordered a study of the possibility of basing tuition on a student's ability to pay.

Starting with the fall term, tuition for Michigan residents will climb from $324 to $354 a year and for out-of-state students from $870 to $1,020.

The eight-member board voted unanimously for the out-of-state tuition increase. Trustees Warren Huff, Frank Merriman, C. Allen Harlan, Connor Smith and Stephen Nisbet voted for the institute boost, with Don Stevens, Frank Hartman and Clair White voting against it.

'NEEDS MORE'

MSU officials told the House Ways and Means Committee May 11 it needed $17.7 million more than the $51.3 million which the Senate approved. The Senate figure was $14.5 million above Gov. George Romney's recommendation. The House added no additional money.

The additional money, MSU officials said, was needed to meet commitments based on the number of students to be admitted next fall and the number of instructors needed to teach them. They said at the time a tuition raise might have to be considered.

MSU had about 35,000 students on its East Lansing campus this year, and expects about 38,000 next year.

"The Legislature has not given us credit for taking the large number of students that we have," said Merriman, a trustee from Decker.

LACKED INFORMATION

"If we could have figured how to work out a system of assessing fees on the ability to pay, I would not have voted for this blanket increase," said Huff of Plymouth, chairman of the board. "But we did not have enough information."

"This is a step in the wrong direction," he added. "We should be making education more accessible to people of all economic levels."

White of Bay City and Stevens of Okemos, earlier proposed a sliding scale tuition plan based on ability to pay. Stevens also proposed Thursday that tuition be set at 30 per cent of the federal income tax paid by a student's family, or $1,020, whichever is lower.

'COULD AFFORD COSTS'

"I've had a strong feeling that we have been underwriting students that could well afford

Walled Lake Band Program Starts June 27

WALLED LAKE—A six-week summer band program for Walled Lake fourth, fifth and sixth graders will begin June 27 at Clifford H. Smart and Walled Lake Junior High schools. Three-hundred children are expected to enroll in beginning, intermediate and advanced classes.

Classes will be organized by instrument and will meet for one-half hour twice a week.

Helmut Holland-Moritz, program director, will teach at Clifford H. Smart, and Mrs. Janith Robison will teach at Walled Lake Junior High. Students may attend classes at either school. Tuition for the 12 classes is $4. Students who have not already enrolled may do so at the first class session.

to pay the full costs of their education," said Harlan. "With a sliding scale," Harlan said, "I assume some of those students with means would go elsewhere because some of them are coming here because they can come here inexpensively."

White noted that he has accused the governor and a majority of the Senate Appropriations Committee of collusion. "There has been political bargaining in relation to Michigan State's appropriation," he said.

'DON'T KNOW'

"This tuition increase will prevent some students from coming here," he said. "I don't know where they will get the money to pay the increased fees."

Stevens said he was "sick and tired of having legislators say we should slam the door to 5,000 or 6,000 students."

Merriman said a sliding scale tuition plan would be "against my better judgment."

If MSU could get its case across to the Legislature, he said, there would be no need for a tuition increase or sliding scale.

The trustees also raised fees at off-campus centers from $13 to $15 a credit hour.

For graduate students not taking classes, but still enrolled to work on their thesis, the fee was raised from $16 to $36 a term.

Utica Council OKs Higher '66-67 Budget

UTICA — A $273,282 budget for 1966-67, up about $46,000 over the present budget, has been approved by the City Council.

The total tax levy was set at 18 mills, an increase of 3 mills over the present levy.

Of the 3-mill increase, 1½ mills will go toward bonded indebtedness on a $263,000 bond issue for the Utica Improvement Drain.

The additional 1½ mills will cover salary increases and other increased expenses. The raises, which were granted some time ago to stay on a par with surrounding communities, amounted to about $9,700 in the new budget.

Tax-revenues are expected to amount to $185,296. The rest of the expenditures will be made up through sales tax diversions, the motor vehicle highway fund, court fines and traffic violations.

Junior Woman's Club Installs New Officers

ROCHESTER — Mrs. Walter Kowalczyk, 144 W. Maryknoll, has been installed as president of the Rochester Junior Woman's Club.

Other officers installed were Mrs. Arthur Tobiansen, first vice president; Mrs. Thomas McGone, second vice president; Mrs. Robert Cavan, recording secretary; and Mrs. E. Thomas Sturmer, treasurer.

Village Budget Is Approved

WOLVERINE LAKE — The village council has approved a balanced budget of $92,805 for 1966-67.

Property taxes, currently 16 mills, will be collected at the rate of 10 mills under new assessment procedures, providing revenue of $48,782.

Other revenues will include an estimated $21,000 from state sales tax refunds and $7,000 from justice court and the violations bureau.

The general fund contains a surplus of $6,623 from the current year.

Expenditures from the general fund are listed at $54,862, plus expenses at $34,753 and building department expenses at $3,370.

A separate balanced budget of $43,181 was also approved for the road department. Revenues include $23,000 from state weight and gas tax refunds and $11,680 from the reserve fund.

Total expenses included $10,200 in wages and $12,000 for new road construction.

Take a Gander at This Farm Help

GOBLES (AP) — It isn't unusual nowadays for man to be replaced by a machine. But whoever heard of both being replaced by a goose?

This year, as last, a shortage in farm labor is expected at the Mentha Plantation, near Kalamazoo, where mint is again growing into the number one cash crop.

Gene Potts, manager of the Van Buren County plantation, is employing a flock of 500 geese to keep weeds out of his fields.

He says 12 of the big birds can do the work of one man.

Restrictions imposed last year by the U.S. Department of Labor bar Mexican nationals from coming to the United States as farm laborers.

TRIED EXPERIMENT

Potts said finding men for hoeing the fields of mint is nearly impossible, so he decided to experiment with the geese.

The birds, under the supervision of one field hand, are driven out into the fields at daybreak and work until about 11 a.m.

"They don't work so well during the heat of the day so we turn them in to water for the afternoon," Potts said.

A drainage ditch gives the flock respite during the afternoon. In the evening they are driven to their pen.

FLOCK TOGETHER

"You can drive them," Potts said, "Just about the same as you drive a flock of sheep."

Potts said geese are used extensively for weeding fields on the West Coast. They are especially effective, he said, in cotton fields.

The geese eat a little mint when they first start out, but the manager explained, but find weeds more to their liking and then settle down to the job of cleaning the fields.

The mint is processed for its oil during the harvest late in the summer.

In addition to the mint crop, Mentha also has 125 acres of

One of the most appetizing potatoes and 200 acres of corn features of the experiment is still to come. Potts said a Hol- land company has arranged to buy all the geese at the end of the season for processing into Christmas dinners.

LARGEST CROP

This year Mentha Plantation has the largest crop of mint in the last 10 years. Potts said the total is 350 acres.

The mint is processed for its oil during the harvest late in the summer.

In addition to the mint crop, Mentha also has 125 acres of CHEAP LABOR—A labor problem at the Mentha mint farm near Gobles was solved when manager Gene Potts turned a flock of geese into the fields. The big birds clean out the weeds but do very little damage to the mint crop.

Tragic Incident Feared

Guard for Mississippi Marchers Reduced

GREENWOOD, Miss. (UPI)—Gov. Paul Johnson withdrew most of the state troopers guarding the Mississippi freedom marchers yesterday, and a Negro leader expressed a fear of "some tragic incidents" in the delta.

The 100 marchers encountered their first arrests and their most serious heckling since a sniper wounded James Meredith near Hernando June 6.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who has led the march on occasions, was to return to Mississippi today for a rally at Winona, about 40 miles from here.

Highway patrol cars protecting the marchers were reduced from 20 to 4 by Governor Johnson, who said the remaining troopers would "control traffic" around the march.

Johnson said in Jackson, the eventual destination of the march, that the march has "deviated completely from its original purpose . . . and . . . has turned into a voter registration campaign."

"We are not going to be in the position of wet-nursing a group of shamen," the governor said. Johnson said it would be up to local authorities to maintain order, but that he would "use all available resources we have with the exception of the National Guard" if trouble erupts.

Charles Evers, state field director for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said, "I am afraid there may be some tragic incidents. We are getting into tough territory and have little protection."

Vocal and silent heckling greeted the marchers yesterday. Seven white teen-agers in two cars drove back and forth past the walkers yelling obscenities for a half-hour until troopers, at the urging of march leaders, ordered them away.

Seaway Pact Is Announced

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Lester Pearson announced last night that the St. Lawrence Seaway labor dispute, which threatened to cut off waterborne commerce from the Atlantic to the Great Lakes, has been settled.

Pearson told the House of Commons the cabinet had approved a wage hike for the seaway's 1,200 Canadian employees "in the national interest."

Mediator Sen. Norman MacKenzie said the settlement called for a 20 per cent wage hike retroactive to Jan. 1, 1966, with another 10 per cent next Jan. 1.

He said the seaway would take over payment of all welfare programs, formerly split with the employees.

Canadian workers had demanded an increase to $3.57 an hour to bring Canadian wages up to the level paid on the American side of the seaway. They had averaged $2.36 an hour.

Ecorse School Heads Pass Test

The Ecorse teachers' strike and the action by school authorities in firing the 194 strikers may prove to be the showdown on the State law that bans strikes by public employees.

It is high time that such flagrant disregard of the public interest be appraised for what it is, and high time that employees guilty of such dereliction be held accountable under the law.

As civil employees become increasingly organized, with the general populace cast in the role of victim when unresolved issues between labor and administration result in strikes, legal ground rules must be established and adhered to by all parties concerned. The alternative is disintegration of public service.

Labor has been prone to claim all rights and privileges of Federal and state laws by which it benefits; reluctant in many cases to abide by those that impose obligation and responsibility to employer or society.

In the Ecorse case, the teachers that struck June 3 appear to be in violation of a state law originally passed in 1947 and amended in 1965. Although the law has been invoked in the educational area on six previous occasions, it has never met judicial decision because settlement of issues foreclosed such action.

We are heartily in accord with the Ecorse Board of Education and Supt. RALPH BRANDT in their forthright action under the law that, free of contrived interpretations, fits precisely the crisis confronting the City's school system.

Fred V. Haggard

The untimely death of FRED V. HAGGARD deprives the area of a highly-regarded labor executive and a community-minded citizen who had devoted a quarter-century to serving his twin interests.

Mr. HAGGARD rose in the organizational ranks of labor to become president of Oakland County AFL-CIO Council.

At the same time he became an outstanding figure in Pontiac's civic and civil affairs, serving on the boards of many of the community's foremost agencies.

Deliberate and soft-spoken, Mr. HAGGARD's stature expanded with his responsibilities, and his counsel won deep respect within the many circles that benefited from his untiring participation.

The area will sorely miss this sterling character whose passing is mourned by a large number of friends and associates.

Valid Reasons for Defense of South Viet Nam

When the JOHNSON Administration asserted in its defense against critics of the U.S. military escalation in Viet Nam that President EISENHOWER made the initial commitment in a letter to President NGO DINH DIEM, the former President promptly denied any military commitment was made.

So the JOHNSON Administration then gave other and more valid reasons for U.S. defense of South Viet Nam from Communist aggression.

Now the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has added to the foreign aid bill a policy clause asserting that U. S. military or other aid "shall not be construed as creating a new commitment or as affecting any existing commitment to use armed forces of the United States for the defense of any foreign country."

Except as a rebuke to President JOHNSON, the clause has no meaning or validity. The reasons for U.S. armed intervention will always be of greater weight than could possibly be ascribed to foreign aid.

President EISENHOWER hoped to assist in containing Communist expansion by helping the South Vietnamese with economic aid, weapons and military training cadres.

President Johnson saw the necessity of sending more troops to Viet Nam, as well as employing naval and air power. No clause in a foreign aid bill would have dissuaded him.

In fact some people think pretty strongly that President JOHNSON runs a one man show and that he makes all the decisions.

Ky Shrewd in Handling Buddhists

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — To an American, the wheels within wheels in South Viet Nam — power struggles, inner conflicts, Buddhist uprisings, endless government changes — are an exasperating, confusing sight.

Now perhaps the spinning wheels will slow down. Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, a 35-year-old air force general, seems to have overcome the extremist and difficult leadership which sought to get rid of him.

How did he manage this, when others failed? For one thing, he used force against the opposition. But that isn't enough explanation.

The real story behind Ky's tactics and success hasn't been told yet.

Some of it can be guessed at by way of contrast in the person of President Ngo Dinh Diem who was toppled and killed in 1963 after using extremely violent force against the Buddhists.

He was inflexible, without alternatives, a dictator without the necessary political instincts to survive. He gave no indication he intended to yield any power or share it. He underestimated the intensity of his opposition and wasn't shrewd enough to split it by showing some willingness to compromise. By his stubbornness he solidified the opposition.

Ky was sharper. When the Buddhists got on his back, complaining that his military government of 10 generals should be replaced by a more representative one of civilians, he agreed, although not saying exactly when.

His concession could be expected to, and obviously did, satisfy his moderate critics. This seemed to show up quickly when the extremist Buddhists, tasting some success, wanted more fast; they wanted Ky out in a hurry, but apparently didn't have the masses of Viet Nam behind them.

But there was more to Ky's tactics than just making a big concession. When the extremist-led Buddhists in Da Nang rioted, Ky sent in troops to crush them and then, at the last moment, pulled back.

The reason seems clear enough: He wasn't yet sure that most of the country would stand for it. He waited until, apparently, he felt sure. Then he turned the troops loose in Da Nang. No more trouble, there.

FASCINATING STORY

As this is written, the extremist effort seems crushed. But how Ky decided on his tactics and his timing will be a fascinating story, if it ever comes out.

That he now feels self-confident was clear enough Wednesday when his military government said it would stay in power until 1967, permitting only a step-by-step march to civilian government.

They Don't Use Rice Any More

David Lawrence Says:

Congress Recess Seems Likely

WASHINGTON — Congress is getting tired and wants a vacation. President Johnson agrees with the idea but wishes to make it conditional on the willingness of both houses to pass or report out of committee certain important measures.

LAWRENCE

It looks now, however, as if, for the first time, Congress is going to get a lengthy recess in midsummer.

In a formal sense, the vacation period will be only 10 days, but this actually means two or three weeks, as members like to get away early and come back late.

Back of the whole drive for a bit of rest is a peculiar set of circumstances. For neither house has been overworked.

It has been a dull session thus far, and nothing has been acted upon that could possibly be pushed aside or held in committee.

The House of Representatives seldom meets beyond Thursday of any week and the Senate doesn't meet that often. The leaders frequently have been hard put to find legislation on the calendar to take up the day's session.

Most of the bills involving the Great Society program have been kept away from the floor.

Many members recently began to get restless and the vacation idea was given considerable support. The argument is that members do not get back home to their districts often enough and that they miss a chance to evaluate the sentiment of their constituents on current issues.

With reapportionment in many districts, most members feel much more campaigning is going to be required this summer than for years past.

President Johnson heard about the drive for a recess and figured that he might be able to take advantage of it by insisting that some of the important bills on the calendar be acted on at once.

Certainly the prospect of a vacation has stepped up the tempo on both sides of the political aisle.

Thus, the foreign-aid bill is being reported out and the civil-rights measure is emerging from the subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

A date has been set for the House Rules Committee to take a vote on the antiparty bill which it has been holding up. The auto-safety measures are being ready for floor action in both houses.

Appropriation bills have been rather slow moving in this Congress. The bills to provide funds for the Viet Nam war have been pushed along, but the regular appropriation bills have trailed behind.

Oddly enough, not many members want to see Congress adjourn too soon before the election, because a member always likes to give the impression that his presence is demanded in Washington.

They find themselves embarrassed by being home too often when there is a war going on in Viet Nam and big decisions are being made.

This is an additional reason why the midsummer recess has been widespread acclaim in the House of Congress, as it is likely to raise less objections.

Capital Letter:

I Dreamed Mrs. Wallace Put George in His Place

By RUTH MONTGOMERY

WASHINGTON — We dreamed that we were in the governor's mansion at Montgomery, Ala., on a bright morning next January.

George Wallace, holding the last of his grays and red eyes gray, shoved back Ruth's chair and Montgomery said:

"Lurlene, honey, that was a great 'I'll' of breakfast. I'll be calling you from the office 'bout whether I can get home to dinner."

"Who-a-a-a office, sweetie pie?" his wife drawled. Stopping at the doorway, he said, "Why the governor's office, like always."

Lurlene Wallace, gliding past him into the hall, smiled sweetly: "You better stay home today, sugar! A delegation from the Ladies' Aid is comin' at 11 o'clock to make you honorary chairman of their fund-raisin' drive."

GROCERY LIST

"Here's the grocery list, and don't forget to call the laundry about that sheet they tore there. I'll be seein' ya."

With that she stepped blithely into the waiting car, as the chauffeur doffed his hat and murmured, "Good mornin', Madame Gov'nor."

Wallace, standing wide-eyed at the door, watched the car pull out of the drive.

A short time later he stalked out into the sunshine. Entering a phone booth at the corner drugstore, he finally managed to get his wife on the telephone, and began explosively: "Look heah, Lurlene, a joke is a joke, but this has gone far enough. I'll be there in two minutes, and you better lemme in that office."

CANASTA CLUB

"Now George, honey," she purred, "you're gonna have to learn to put in your own time while I'm at work. Maybe you oughta join a canasta or bridge club."

"Canasta!" he bellowed. "Lurlene, I'm the governor of this state in all but name, and... who you got in your office?"

Smilingly noting that he had unconsciously used the word "your," she replied: "Some officials from the poverty program in Washington. These nice gentlemen are allocating $135,000 to an Upward-Bound Project on the university campus, and Dr. Martin Luther King says a lovely group of students will come from... George, what was that crash? George? George?"

Articulate, penetrating, personable, youthful, the Governor spoke frankly of Republican shortcomings as well as virtues. This takes a sense of philosophy as well as a hard-hitting campaign approach.

Deplores Latest Ruling of U.S. Supreme Court

The Earl Warren Supreme Court has done it again! According to its latest decision, it is now next to impossible for the police to question legally any apprehended suspect or criminal.

In view of the fact that crimes of violence are at an all-time high, one would expect the Supreme Court to lean toward encouraging more stringent support of law and order, but this the Court fails to do. It seems determined to provide a way of escape from justice for every hoodlum punk and criminal thug. It is alarming to note how many of the Warren Court rulings favor the Communists, narcotic peddlers and all criminals.

Will Congress ever take action to correct this situation?

Advocating New Law for Bicycle Safety

I work in a hospital and have just completed the admitting records on a little boy who was hit from behind while riding his bicycle. Other than a broken leg, contusions, lacerations and a possible concussion, he is not in dire danger.

I have long believed that bicyclists should ride facing the traffic but have never expressed my view, in the belief that wiser heads than mine would change the law if there were not some advantage to keeping it as it is now. If there is such an advantage I have failed to discover it.

When I drive, I am frightened when I see bicyclists ahead. They weave and bob and if they hit a bump or a rut they may veer right in front of me or into the side of my car. When I have ridden a bicycle, I have been frightened to find cars only inches away from me before I became aware of them and have come very close to being run down because of my own startled reaction.

Question and Answer

What has happened to the Community Activities building in Waterford? I thought it was for all to use, but one must pay a high price, and this is pulling people away. What happened to the vending machines? Since C.A.I. facilities aren't open all the time, the machines served the public more than the building.

ONE MORE PULL AWAY

REPLY

Director Wedell says the organization isn't tax-supported, so UF provides only about 20 per cent of the budget, so building rental had to be raised the first time in ten years to cover expenses. He says the $25 per hour fee ($400 for community service groups) is less than any comparable facility. Dr. Naz, president of the organization, says vending machines were removed because they brought nothing but complaints about improper functioning, incorrect change, etc., and were broken into at least five times. Dr. Naz is munity is pleased by the work of the board members, who are making every effort (even refinishing the floor themselves) to provide the best service possible on a tight budget.

The speaker emphasized that there are enough major agreement areas in the Republican viewpoint to outweigh by far the individual differences that also exist.

We have an idea that this approach is much more in keeping with political reality than the old fire-eating partisan mudslinging. This must be true, since Governor Hatfield, in a "traditionally Democratic state," Oregon, has run away with the laurels in his election attempts so far.

A Junior Editors Quiz About RHODE ISLAND

QUESTION: Why is our smallest state called Rhode Island when it isn't an island at all?

ANSWER: Narragansett Bay, on the south east, has a number of islands, but the state of Rhode Island as a whole is not an island.

It runs, as you can see by looking at our map, without interruption into the area of Connecticut and Massachusetts. Two explanations are usually given for the state's odd name.

The first is that the explorer, Verrazano, in 1511, noticed an island in Narragansett Bay which reminded him of the Island of Rhodes in the far off Mediterranean Sea.

We illustrate the second theory. It is known that another explorer, Adrian Block, visited this area in 1614, and spoke of a "Roodit Eylant" or red island, also in Narragansett Bay, calling it red because red clay was visible.

From one of these beginnings the bay area became known as Rhode Island. Then, in 1689, the famous Roger Williams, called the father of Rhode Island, bought land from the Indians and founded Providence, now a prosperous city.

Williams was seeking a spot to establish a colony dedicated to religious freedom. In an English charter of 1663, the province as a whole was called Rhode Island and Providence Plantations.

This still remains as the official name of the state although shortened to Rhode Island for convenience.

FOR YOU TO DO: Remember the following interesting bit of history about Rhode Island, which although a small state, has a right to be proud of its past. The settlement of Providence gave every man an equal voice in the affairs of the state — said to be the first such government in the history of the world.

LANSING (AP)—A bill which will provide veterans' benefits to Michigan men who serve in Viet Nam became law Thursday with Gov. George Romney's signature.

The bill extends recognition of veteran status to servicemen who serve under war conditions when there is no declaration of war.

Also signed was a measure prohibiting private policemen from carrying a loaded pistol while not on the job. Railroad policemen are exempt from the law.

LBJ Repeats Desire to Talk Peace Anytime, Anywhere, With Any Nation

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson says the United States stands ready to discuss peace prospects for Viet Nam "anytime, anywhere, with any government."

Thumping the podium with his fist for emphasis, the President departed Thursday for the White House rose garden to reiterate his willingness for peace talks. "All they have to do to test us is to name the place and date; they will find us there," Johnson said. "But you can't have a unilateral contract. The other side has to want to talk, too."

The President's comments came about two hours after Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana proposed in a New York speech that Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi meet to explore peace for Viet Nam.

When asked for Johnson's reaction to Mansfield's suggestion, White House Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said the President "welcomed any constructive suggestions from members of Congress, members of the Senate." Moyers then called attention to Johnson's comments on peace talks in the speech to the legislative leaders.

A State Department spokesman cautiously encouraged Mansfield's call for face-to-face discussions but expressed doubt Peking would agree.

"We'll just wait and see," said press officer Robert J. McCloskey. But McCloskey reaffirmed that Rusk is ready "to go to Geneva tomorrow" to discuss peace with anyone from the Communist side.

In this rose garden speech, Johnson said the United States is not fighting in Viet Nam only for the 14 million people of that country. "We are fighting for almost three billion people who also want freedom and liberty. And we must continue to fight until men are convinced that it is better to talk than fight," he said.

The President said U.S. policy is designed to serve notice to the world that, "gangsterism and aggression and force are not to be rewarded."

"We have what other people want. If they develop the power and the strength to take it, don't you think they won't try," he said, and better means for resolving disputes before they reach the stage of crisis.

Later in the day, the President said his administration would strive to strengthen the United Nations' "capabilities" for peaceful settlement in a crisis.

Without specifically mentioning Viet Nam, the President said in a message read at a New York dinner of the U.N. and the Association of the United Nations, should be able to deal with all forms of aggression, including indirect aggression and subversion.

(Electric water heaters install anywhere—carry a money-back guarantee) Install it and forget it. That's about the nicest thing you could say about a water heater. And you can— if it's electric.

An electric water heater has no flame. No pilot light. So there's no worry about flues or venting. You can install it anywhere: in a closet, under the basement stairs or, with our lower models, even under a kitchen counter. Put the heater closer to where you use hot water. That way you eliminate long pipe runs.

We're so sure you'll like an electric water heater, we give you a one-year guarantee of satisfaction. (If you don't get all the hot water you need, you get your money back—including installation cost.) The guarantee applies no matter where you buy your heater, just so long as you're an Edison customer.

So remember, see your Qualified Retailer or your Edison office about an electric water heater. Then forget it.

Media Study Grant OK'd

A $19,250 federal grant has been approved to finance a study of educational media needs in the area, according to Oakland Schools Supt. Dr. William J. Emerson.

Findings of the five-month study to begin in September, will be used as the basis for further federal grant applications.

The project will involve representatives of each school district in Oakland County, resource people from the communities and representatives of area libraries and museums.

Committees of these persons are to determine ways the cultural resources of the area can be incorporated into school programs.

Working with the committees will be two full-time professional librarians or audio-visual specialists yet to be named.

Motorcycle Mishaps Kill Two in Area

Separate motorcycle accidents in Bloomfield Township claimed two lives this week, Bloomfield Township police disclosed yesterday.

James G. Fraser, 28, of Ferndale died Tuesday in William Beaumont Hospital after his motorcycle hit a landscape truck driven by Floyd G. Cory, 45, of 1064 Boyd, Troy.

Police reported Fraser collided with the truck when he attempted to pass and turning right onto Adams at the intersection of Adams and Big Beaver.

Cory and his son, David, 13, a passenger in the truck, were not hurt.

A passenger on Fraser's motorcycle, Bonnie Van Rossum of Ferndale, suffered minor injuries.

DIES OF INJURIES

George Gray, 18, of Royal Oak died in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Sunday of injuries suffered in an accident last Friday night on Telegraph in front of the Miracle Mile Shopping Center.

The boy's father said he and his son were riding their new motorcycles to buy safety equipment to wear while cycling.

Police said the youth was apparently heading home when the accident occurred.

California Fire
About 65 Pct.
Under Control

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — Fire fighters expect to contain by Saturday night a giant brush and timber fire which has blackened more than 90,000 acres in the rugged Los Padres National Forest.

U.S. Forest Service officers said the blaze was about 65 per cent contained by daybreak today and its perimeter was cut to 113 miles.

Less than 40 miles of open line remained, a spokesman said.

A favorable turn in the weather yesterday aided the fire-fighting crews in establishing a permanent fire line.

Fog and low clouds raised the humidity to about 40 per cent and dropped temperatures into the low 80s.

China's Chou Praises Romanian Neutrality in Red Dispute

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP)

— Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai began an eight-day visit to Romania by praising the Bucharest regime's neutrality in the dispute between Moscow and Peking.

"Your country has fought pressure from outside," Chou told a cheering crowd on his arrival Thursday, "and you have been driving to find useful norms for cooperation."

The 67-year-old premier was careful not to attack the Soviet Union by name, in deference to the efforts by Romanian Communists to avoid taking sides in the ideological feud between Russia and China.

But he referred indirectly to Romanian resistance to Soviet domination in Eastern Europe. "The people of Romania defend the independence of their country," he said.

Welcoming Chou, Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer said the visit would be "an important contribution to the development of relations between our parties."

Maurer omitted any reference to Romania's independent attitude toward Moscow. He said Chou's visit would include talks on "international questions of mutual interest concerning the international worker's movement."

But Romanian-Soviet differences are expected to be discussed by Chou and Nicolae Ceausescu, the independent-minded Romanian Communist party chief. Ceausescu has recently become increasingly outspoken in criticizing Soviet domination of the Warsaw Pact military bloc.

Medicare—4

Extra Burdens on Hospital Staffs Foreseen

EDITOR'S NOTE—In a few weeks, millions of elderly Americans will be eligible for medical care under Medicare. Some doctors see extra burdens being imposed on hospital staffs, especially in the administrative and clerical departments. Here, in the first of four articles, is a report on this aspect of the program.)

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Science Writer

"You get a sick patient in a hospital who is 85 years old," the surgeon said. "He has to be fed, taken to the bathroom, washed, his teeth brushed—but Uncle Sam says that patient is less expensive to take care of than a youngster with an appendectomy."

"It just doesn't make any sense."

Right or wrong, that is the opinion of many doctors as Medicare provisions come into effect July 1 and millions of elderly Americans can compete for additional medical services.

An Associated Press survey across the nation shows that some of the troubles forecast in the wake of Medicare are: Higher fees for some specialized doctors, perhaps higher hospital bills for private patients, more hospital crowding, at least at first, less nursing care for everyone, and in some areas a longer wait for surgery.

NOT UNANIMOUS

But the opinions are far from unanimous — and confusion marks most of the thinking when medical experts try to predict just what Medicare will do.

One thing appears certain: The new financial ability of older people to buy long-needed care—from surgery to nursing home benefits—will show up many of the shortcomings of the U.S. medical establishment. But over dates continue to increase."

Even hospital administrators are confused on just what effect Medicare will have on the private patient and his bills.

With Medicare bills fully paid, "the private patient may get a better break than he now gets," says John Rasmussen of the Hillside, Mich., Community Health Center.

Not so, says Harold Reed of the Clinton Memorial Hospital in St. Johns, Mich. "The private patient outside the scope of the law will be affected adversely," he said. "His bills will be higher and already burdened medical and nursing staffs will have less time to devote to the private patient."

He expects that the hospital will break even at best on Medicare patients and will lose money in some cases. "This means that the private patient must subsidize the Medicare patient," Reed said.

In a poll of New England hospital administrators, most felt that Medicare provisions would not reduce present hospital charges—but might hold down new increases at least for a time.

William A. Clermont, administrator of the Malone, N.Y., Alire Hyde Hospital said that medical costs would continue to rise—not because of Medicare—but because the national economy expands and "salary man-

BILLING PRACTICE

Almost universally, the new billing procedures under Medicare are going to mean that many hospitals will have to change billing practice and all will run into more clerical and accounting work.

For many hospitals, it will mean an increased itemization of individual patient costs — and that will mean computers and mechanization.

There will be other changes and costs. At Boston's 980-bed Massachusetts General Hospital, with 6,000 employees, increased Social Security levies will cost the hospital $300,000 more this year — and that cost boils down to almost an extra dollar a day per patient. It will show up on hospital bills.

To some, Medicare will discourage hospitals from employing their own chiefs of surgery and radiology. To one administrator, that is "a classic blunder on the part of Congress" and going to set back U.S. hospital development "a good 15 to 20 years."

But over-all, most are optimistic about the effects of Medicare on hospitals.

Francisco's Mount Zion Hospital, and the Medical Center, and president of the California Hospital Association summed it up:

"The broader benefits designed to provide better medical care for the aged will produce new demands by everyone. We're placing more and more reliance on government. I don't think we really have anything to fear from these kinds of control."

"The government seems to be giving voluntary initiative to start the Medicare program. If we don't accept it, it will be our own fault when it fails."

Boy's Body Recovered in Montague Channel

MONTAGUE (AP) — The body of 13-year-old Roger Dyer was recovered Thursday from the White Lake Channel at Montague by State Police skin divers and sheriff's men. The son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dyer of Montague was reported missing June 6 when his bicycle was found near a White Lake pier after he had gone from home on a solo outing to the lake.

Garden Center Pilgrimage Set for Weekend

CONTEMPORARY SIMPLICITY — The grounds of the James Mimura home on 3701 Lakecrest, Bloomfield Township will be featured on the annual Birmingham-Bloomfield Hills Garden Pilgrimage. Sponsored by the Garden Center of Metropolitan Detroit, this year's pilgrimage will include seven gardens.

The Pontiac Press

Seven area gardens will be open to the public during the annual Birmingham-Bloomfield Hills Garden Pilgrimage tomorrow and Sunday from 1 to 6 p.m.

Proceeds of the tour will benefit the Garden Center of Metropolitan Detroit.

Chairmen of the event are Mrs. Robert B. Pokorsky of 1362 Latham and Mrs. Arthur K. Hyde of 21710 Hampton, both of Birmingham.

Other chairmen include Mrs. William A. Hyland of 3000 Telegraph, Birmingham Farms, tickets; and Mrs. G. R. Hennings of 16200 Locherbie and Mrs. Joseph D. Braden of 18800 Locherbie, both of Beverly Hills, hostesses.

Among the gardens to be shown is Mr. and Mrs. G. Howard Willett of 655 Pilgrim, Birmingham. Cut-leaf maples accent the small shady garden framed by a picket fence.

The fence was made from the widow's walk of an old Birmingham home.

An Ohio blue stone patio, designed and built around a Norway maple, is the focal point in the charming garden of the Joseph M. Morris of 6178 Lantern Lane, Bloomfield Township.

Completely owner maintained, the garden of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Barton of 4170 Orchard Way, Bloomfield Township, features a front doorway garden.

Raised flower beds add color interest to the back yard's secluded patio.

In the unusually designed garden of the T. O. Townsends of 3535 Wooddale Court, Bloomfield Township, outstanding perennials and gardenias captivate bloom throughout the year.

Rhododendron and mahonia dominate the interesting front yard of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mensing of 220 Larchlea, Bloomfield Township.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sipe of 5716 Round Hill, Birmingham, have created a picturesque setting for their family swimming pool. The walk leading to the pool is set off by well designed plantings of evergreens and shrubs.

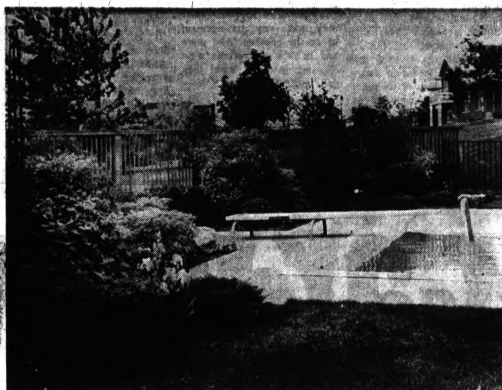

The hillside site of Dr. and Mrs. James Mimura of 3701 Lake Crest, Bloomfield Township, puts the spotlight on two courts.

One is on the outside of the window wall of dining room at the front of the house and the other separates two wings at the rear.

Oriental touches highlight the contemporary garden.

In addition, Cranbrook House garden and park at 380 Lone Pine, Bloomfield Hills, will be open at a special fee.

The only garden of its type in the immediate area, the Cranbrook House garden, covers over 4 acres. The fee also allows entry to the Cranbrook Museum.

POOLSIDE PLANTING — Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sipe of 5716 Round Hill, Birmingham, have combined evergreens, shrubs and perennials as a decorative background for their swimming pool. Pilgrimage guests are asked to please wear low heels for their comfort and to protect the gardens.

Build New Fountain in Your Back Yard

If you have yearned for a fountain in your backyard, you can set one up yourself if you have a little of $25, a few materials and muscles.

There are now an estimated 500,000 display fountains in this country's private gardens or yards, up from 10,000 in 1960, according to one report.

The boom is attributed largely to sharply reduced costs. And the fountain fancy has been influenced by the magnificent water displays at the World's Fair in New York and by increased travel to Europe.

A Dallas, Tex., company has traces of oil, a troublesome patented a recirculating nugget problem in some fountains.

It has a thermal overload which is a protector that shuts off the motor if it becomes too hot.

Most of today's fountains are of the so-called jet stream type in which water rises from water.

With the underwater nugget pump, water is recirculated, an important factor in water-short areas.

The tiny pump not only is unobtrusive, but it leaves no boxwood and yew.

Boxwood, Yew

Do Well in Salt Air

Small leaved evergreens kept in the new "king-size" 14 or 16-inch clay pots are among the shrubs most likely to do well in the salt air near seacoasts. Two favored varieties are boxwood and yew.

TIERED GARDEN — Mrs. Edward Sipe of 5716 Round Hill, Birmingham, checks her garden to make sure everything is in readiness for tomorrow and Sunday's Garden Center pilgrimage. Gardens on the tour will be open to the public from 1 to 6 p.m. General chairmen are Mrs. Robert S. Pokorsky of 1362 Latham and Mrs. Arthur K. Hyde of 21710 Hampton, both of Birmingham.

Soil Testing Is Spring Ritual

With spring comes the ritual of soil testing to determine fertilizer and lime needs of lawns and gardens.

Periodic tests are desirable to avoid plant damage from overabundance of plant foods, as well as deficiencies.

Soil scientists say plant food may accumulate in the soil from one season to another, especially when heavy applications of fertilizer are made in dry seasons.

One type of test, the Morgan method, was devised at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station.

It uses an extracting solution to imitate the action of roots as they draw on plant foods in the soil.

PLANT FOODS

In effect, the solution separates available plant foods from those chemically interlocked so that plants cannot use them.

Color comparisons with solutions of known strength permit analysis of deficiencies, if any, of soil samples. Then the analyst can suggest soil treatments designed to improve plant growth.

Chemical tests are especially important in determining proper treatment of soils recently reclaimed from woodlands — for example, in suburban developments.

Such soils may need considerable lime to reduce acidity, and extra fertilizer.

Scientists say it is better to add necessary lime and fertilizer before seeding new lawns or planting gardens than later.

Large applications can be made before seeding. If you delay, many small applications will be necessary to get comparable results without damaging plants, particularly turf.

SOIL ACIDITY

The so-called acidity (pH) of soil solutions affects many reactions in the soil. With too much acid, for example, available levels of micronutrients are toxic to some plants.

These micronutrients normally are used by plants in very small quantities.

Soil sampling is best early in the growing season and they should be taken from several spots, to a depth of 6 inches for lawns, vegetable and flower gardens.

For shrubs, samples should be taken to a depth of 12 inches at two or three locations around the plant base.

Your county agricultural agent will advise you where to send samples for analysis.

Waterproof Saucers

Easy Bird Baths

New waterproof clay saucers in sizes from 6 inches to 16 inches make easy bird baths, as well as companion pieces for clay-potted plants.

They can be set on terraces, steps or lawns, or glued to fence post tops.

Red Monarch Blooms Early

Most sweet williams are biennials. That is the seeds are sown one year and develop into small plants.

These winter outdoors and bloom the following year.

Red Monarch sweet william acts, instead, as an annual, blooming in two months from seeds sown in early spring; or in spring from fall-sown seeds.

That's one characteristic that makes it "different."

A second is its flower color which is solid scarlet red, relieved by white stamens.

MATURE PLANTS

Since mature plants grow 10 inches high if sown in fall, and 16 inches tall if seeds are sown in fall, those scarlet red blooms are good for cutting.

They last a long time as individual flowers continue to open.

Because of its annual flowering habit and its new color Red Monarch received an award for 1966 from All-America Selections.

Seeds of all award winners should be purchased early as there never is enough to go around.

Save all the grass clippings after the lawn is mowed, and use them to mulch tomatoes, melons, and cucumbers in the garden. Spread them out about one-half inch deep, covering the ground well around the plant.

These vegetables do better when mulched in this way.

It also keeps down weeds and helps to hold moisture.

Use Water Intelligently in Areas Lacking Rainfall

If you live in one of the many parts of the country suffering from a lack of rain this year, you can still have a pretty good garden.

First, don't waste any water. If you can salvage dish or bath water, don't be afraid to use it.

The amount of detergents present in what you will use won't do any harm. In fact, may help to make the water penetrates.

If you are permitted to water, don't do it frequently. This keeps the roots near the surface where they can dry out.

Water each part of the garden only once a week but water deeply, wetting the soil at least 4 inches.

USE MULCHES

Next, keep the moisture already in the soil by the use of mulches or protective layers over the soil.

These can be crushed corn cobs, rice, buckwheat, peats, or cocoa hulls, shredded sugar cane or barks, pine needles, rotting leaves, hay or straw, manures, wood or stone chips, sawdust, wet paper, black or translucent plastic sheeting, flat stones, boards, or crushed cans.

Planting somewhat closer than usual, so long as it is not too close to choke the plants, helps to shade the soil and thus retain moisture.

Also, the leaves of plants not yet in fruit can be sprayed with one of the anti-drying agents which greatly reduce the loss of moisture through leaf and other plant pores.

Finally, if you intend to plant succession or late crops, you can greatly speed up the sprouting of the seeds by wetting the row before putting in the seeds. (This is less likely to disturb the seeds than watering afterwards).

Then hoe the soil over them. Large seeds like beans, corn, etc. can be soaked in a jar of water overnight for the same purpose.

Finally, placing boards, flagstones, plastic, burlap or paper over the rows also helps keep in the moisture and speed germination.

Just be sure to remove them as soon as the seedlings begin to poke through the ground.

Both Amateurs and Professionals

Arranging Leans Toward Originality

In the United States, flower arranging is beginning to reach out toward greater freedom and originality.

Both amateur and professional flower arrangers now realize there is a danger that the art may become too stylized and formal just as it did in Japan under the auspices of its many great teachers and rival schools.

The most promising sign of this new trend toward freedom is that in almost every flower show today there is at least one "As You Like It" class in which the contestants may make any arrangement he or she chooses. And more and more contestants are choosing to make what they call "abstract" designs.

To devotees of Japan's classical flower arranging traditions, the present interest on the part of leading Japanese and Western arrangers in the abstract style seems nothing short of heresy.

It is nonetheless true that there is currently worldwide enthusiasm for this school of arranging. The abstract arrangements you see here are from the Better Homes and Gardens Flower Arranging book.

They are the work of Norman J. Sparrow, a former Australian Army Colonel and Japanese language expert who served with American combat units through the bitter island-hopping campaigns of the South Pacific during World War II.

Although he has earned the title of "master" in both traditional and modern schools of flower arranging in Japan,

Sparrow has turned enthusiastically to the abstract style because he believes it offers more freedom for personal expression.

What, exactly, are the elements of an abstract flower arrangement? In his book which also contains excellent examples of Traditional, Oriental and Modern arrangements, the editors of Better Homes and Gardens provide this description:

"There is an element of surprise in most abstract arrangements. It stems both from new uses of old materials and from the use of unorthodox materials, like feathers or plastic rod."

"Nothing is barred, so far as abstract arrangers are concerned. Wires, bits of metal, painted or bleached stems and leaves—all these and more are acceptable if used imaginatively."

DARING DESIGN

"Veering away from tradition in another area, abstract arrangers are constantly seeking new kinds of containers. Some may be the work of leading contemporary potters; or they may be homemade "constructions" of daring design."

Or abstract arrangements may have no containers at all—in the conventional sense—materials being assembled instead on some kind of base."

In short, fantasy and surprise seem to characterize many abstract arrangements.

Flower arrangers, like artists in the fields of music, painting, sculpture and architecture, definitely have broken with tradition to develop a contemporary style in which they feel at home, unbound by most rules of the past.

Key Lime History Leads to Yucatah

The Key Lime may not be a wild fruit species native to the Florida Keys, as is commonly believed.

Mrs. Sarah R. W. Palmer says that the Key limes are all descended from a handful of lime seeds brought to Florida from Yucatah by her grandfather, Henry Perrine in 1827.

She also says that all seven varieties of the agave found in South Florida were also brought by him from Yucatan.

Perrine also introduced the wild coffee which descends from Arabian coffee seed.

Goat's Beard for Gardens

Perfect for a conversation piece in your garden is the state-herbaceous goat's beard, aruncus sylvestris.

Its 4- to 6-foot stems bear clusters of slender racemes of small white flowers in plume-like panicles through June and July.

Hardy, it prefers shady locations.

Water Slope With Seeds

In an effort to beautify a slope of freeway which is too steep to mow, the state highway department has sprayed the area with thousands of flower seeds which were donated by a seed company.

In the experimental planting program some 340 pounds of seed, mixed in 2,000 gallons of water, were sprayed on the slopes by a tanker truck.

"If it works it should be a blooming good-looking hunk of highway," remarked Charles G. Frahl, state highway director.

Healthy Turf Rarely Dies From Drought

Last year's drought and the continuing national concern about water make people wonder whether or not they can maintain a good lawn.

Fortunately, well established grasses of the proper kind seldom die from drought. Of course they don't look their best if niggardly rainfall is not supplemented by irrigation, but underground parts survive, and revive.

Fortunately, the recognized fine-textured lawngresses get along with only modest moisture. It is not necessary to turn to exotic or ill-looking species, which not only give a less attractive lawn but probably require special care.

Among the fine-textured grasses, the fine fescues stand out for adaptability to dry, poor-soil conditions.

As with any turfgrass, seed must receive moisture in order to sprout and the seedlings become established. Mature fescue turfs are especially tenacious in dry shade, where other species do less well.

FINE FESCUES

You will find among the fine fescues such varieties as Chewings, Illahee, Pennlawn, Rainier and Creeping Red.

Nor are the Kentucky bluegrasses slouches when it comes to "sitting out" drought. Kentucky bluegrass is at its best in fertile, well-drained ground rather than water-logged soil. So, by natural inclination it is reasonably undemanding of water.

Several weeks in summer without rain will usually cause Kentucky bluegrass to wilt, perhaps some varieties slightly ahead of others. Even complete browning does not kill the grass, especially if it has been mowed considerably tall.

Bluegrass revives from underground parts with the next soaking. Many times the revived grass is better than ever, the drought having been in a degree therapeutic, — i.e. it sets back weeds and disease more than it does the grass.

Of course there are better ways to control weeds and disease than drying up the lawn, but this does point up the tenaciousness of this widely recognized lawngress. Park and Merion are varieties of Kentucky bluegrass.

Check to Determine Potted Plant's Thirst

One way to tell if your clay potted plant needs water is to flick your finger against the side.

A dull, heavy sound indicates there's plenty of water, while a lighter tone says you had better add water.

Philodendron Adds Shady Spot Greenery

For foliage plant greenery in the shaded portions of your patio or terrace, group Philodendron cordatum and Philodendron panduriforme plants in large red clay pots.

These varieties require a minimum of light and can remain indoors in the fall.

Time to BANISH BUGS

We have insecticides to kill all kinds of bugs — bugs like mosquitoes and flies that bother you — bugs that dine on your roses — bugs that destroy your garden — bugs that cause your fruit to be wormy. We have effective dusts and spray to do the job right — also materials to control fungus and plant diseases.

School Services Coordinator Named

The Waterford Township Board of Education last night hired Donald E. Youmans, 39, as coordinator of community school services, replacing Robert Lawyer who will become supervisor of accounting effective July 1.

Presently working toward his doctorate degree at Michigan State University, Youmans earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Michigan, and Eastern Michigan University, respectively.

Married and the father of three children, he has been employed as an elementary teacher in the suburban Flint Hoover School District and as a community school director in Flint.

This past year, he was a Mott intern in school administration in Flint.

Lawyer, 31, served as recreation department director for three years prior to his two-year stint as coordinator of community school services.

PRESENTS PROPOSALS

Roy J. Alexander, coordinator of secondary schools, presented proposals for two new programs for the 1966-67 school year.

A one-year high school course entitled "American Civilization" would combine fine arts, English and social studies. Team teaching would be used.

The other proposal would ex-

• Offer broader opportunity in orchestra at the junior high level.

• Form string ensembles at the senior high level.

• Involve adult members of the community in string instrument instruction.

FEDERAL APPROVAL

Both the string instrument and "American Civilization" programs hinge on federal approval through the arts and humanities act, according to Alexander.

In other business, the board heard a report on federal projects offered school districts.

Presenting the report were Dr. V. M. Kerenaky, an administrative assistant; Thorn; and Alexander.

At City Airport Skyroom Restaurant Will Be Closed

Steps are being taken to close the school-operated Skyroom Restaurant at Pontiac Municipal Airport by July 1, it was disclosed last night at the Waterford Township Board of Education meeting.

The city-owned restaurant, which served as a training ground for 16 food service students of Waterford Kettering and Waterford Township high schools this semester, will be discontinued primarily because of financial reasons.

School officials had agreed at the outset of the experiment that the operation had to be self-sustaining.

The program was made possible through a cooperative arrangement among Waterford Township Schools, the Pontiac City Commission and airport management.

According to Dr. Burton K. Thorn, director of vocational education of Waterford Township Schools, the board of education cannot justifiably make capital improvements of facilities it doesn't own.

Thorn said efforts to secure financial assistance from outside sources have been unsuccessful.

From an educational standpoint, school officials regarded the project a success.

The students — all juniors — were instructed in short-order cooking, baking, salad making, serving, store room work, cleaning, sanitation, customer relations and restaurant management.

Thorn noted that all of the student trainees have gained employment this summer, mostly with local restaurant establishments.

CO-OP PROGRAM

As seniors next year, they will be eligible for the district's co-operative education program and can be placed in school-supervised employment in local restaurants.

At the same time, they will receive in-school instruction in food service as well as complete their graduation requirements.

Thorn said that the Skyroom is well-equipped as a restaurant, but that a teaching kitchen and other instructional facilities were badly needed if the educational program were to continue.

Thorn noted that a food service education facility is being planned as part of the new high school, scheduled to open in September 1968.

PRIMARY PURPOSE

A dining room and kitchen will be provided to serve the faculty and school district guests, but its primary purpose will be to provide food service education.

According to Thorn, the facility will fulfill all purposes which had been envisioned for the Skyroom.

In the interim, observed Thorn, the school district expects to continue food service education through use of school cafeterias and home economics and through cooperation with local restaurants.

WSU Defies Draft Board, Won't Give Class Ratings

DETROIT (AP)—Wayne State University will no longer supply class rankings of men students to draft boards for deferments, the board of governors said yesterday.

Wayne's president, Dr. William R. Keast, said he would ask other institutions to join in a "comprehensive review of our entire national service policy," which he termed deeply inequitable.

Since the only other means for students to get deferments is to take the Selective Service tests, Wayne students will be forced to do so. Dr. Keast said that class rankings will be supplied temporarily for those who did not take the test this month.

One reason for the decision, Dr. Keast said, was that the class rankings are unreliable in measuring abilities. Faculty members and schools vary widely in their grading practices and quality of programs, he said.

Students now are eligible for deferment if they rank in the upper half in their freshman year, upper two-thirds in their sophomore year and upper three-fourths in their junior year.

ABSURD METHOD

"It may be possible to determine the very best and very poorest students," Dr. Keast said, "but to make fine distinctions in the middle range—the fine line between upper and lower halves, for example—leads to absurdity."

Class rankings emphasize "conventional academic achievement rather than creativity and experimentation," he said, and they also operate to the disadvantage of students who are employed.

He noted that about 75 per cent of WSU students are employed.

"I am sure that the policy announced here is a variance with current practices of most institutions in Michigan," he said, "But I hope to see a widespread reappraisal of current policies."

Graham Visits London's Sin Area Tonight

LONDON (UPI)—Dr. Billy Graham takes a walk tonight through the streets of London's Soho district — the sleazy "square mile of sin" described by its own parish priest as more wicked than Las Vegas.

The American evangelist wants to see for himself this multitude of coffee bars, blue movie houses, gambling and striptease clubs, obscene book and photograph shops and the people who patronize them.

And Soho wants to see Graham. So, although he has not requested it, there will be police and detectives nearby when he leaves the platform at his Greater London Crusade at Earl's Court tonight and takes the word to the hangouts of the people who need it most.

Graham, more than halfway through his month-long crusade, said he is not going to Soho to condemn, but to show concern for its denizens and extend a personal invitation for them to attend his meetings.

Many aspects of the walk are expected to be as spontaneous as his celebrated look at park necking sessions during his first London crusade 12 years ago.

Blue Shield Rates Cut for 170,000

LANSING (P) — Some 170,000 Blue Shield subscribers will receive rate reductions starting Oct. 1, the medical insurance service announced yesterday.

Average rate reductions of $4 a year were announced in a public hearing before acting State Insurance Commissioner John Wickstrom.

Marvin Novick, director of Blue Shield's actuarial division, said the reduction will cover all subscribers in the Upper Peninsula and in 50 Lower Peninsula counties.

The only counties not included in this latest cut are the metropolitan Detroit area counties of Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Washtenaw, the Saginaw Bay area — including Bay, Midland, Saginaw, Genesee, Ogemaw, Iosco and Arenac counties — and the northwestern area including Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim, Kalkaska, Grand Traverse, Benzie, and Leelanau counties.

The change, Novick said, is the result of the prepaid insurance plan's switch over to modified experience rating July 1, 1965. This means that in addition to setting rates by area, the service takes into account the number and size of claims collected by a specific group.

PAYING IN
Subscribing groups in those areas that are not changing Oct. 1, he said, were found to be paying in approximately as much as they were taking out.

Since the changeover, he added, Blue Shield has reduced rates for 2.1 million subscribers. Less than 250,000 people have experienced rate hikes.

The base rate also has remained unchanged since the rating system changeover, he added, and senior citizens have not been hit with any rate hikes.

U.S., Russia Back Neutrality in Space

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union, different U.N. organs, today backed rival treaties to neutralize the moon and other heavenly bodies.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg requested the 28-nation U.N. Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space to meet July 12 to consider a draft treaty he submitted late yesterday to Austrian Ambassador Kurt Waldheim, chairman of the group.

Earlier in the day, Ambassador Platon D. Morozov, acting chief of the Soviet delegation, submitted to Secretary General Thant a similar draft treaty which he suggested be taken up directly by the General Assembly at its fall session scheduled for Sept. 20.

Some Officials Believe Bombing Is Key

'Red Viet Buildup Falls Short'

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are indications that the premonition supply buildup by the Communists in South Viet Nam fell below expectations, sources said today.

This may be one explanation for the failure of the Reds so far to mount the kind of offensive that American forces had been preparing to meet during the rainy season which began about a month ago.

The recent evaluation also figures in the belief of some key U.S. authorities that the cumulative effects of the bombing in the North and against the supply routes through Laos are telling.

During the spring, officials said repeatedly that the North Vietnamese were putting on a maximum effort to push arms, ammunition and other materiel into South Viet Nam, even risking daylight truck convoys to do so.

To counter this operation, the U.S. Air Force and Navy intensified their plane strikes all along the infiltration routes and against ammunition depots and other similar installations in North Viet Nam.

There was no immediate way to tell how effective those strikes were. Normally it takes about six weeks to develop the hard intelligence information for a firm evaluation.

American air attacks against the lines supplying the Reds in South Viet Nam from the North now are running somewhere between 9,000 and 11,000 sorties a month. A sortie is one flight by one plane.

The level of these air operations is between twice and three times as intense as before the 37-day bombing pause of late December and early January.

SUMMARIES

Recent official reports tell of as many as three Navy carriers mounting bombing strikes and strafing raids against North Viet Nam in a given week.

A check of official summaries shows claims over the past four weeks amounting to the destruction or damage of more than 200 trucks, more than 260 railroads, more than 200 bridges, some 60 ferries, better than 600 barges and junks.

91 Pct. of U.S. Toll Suffered in Last Year

NEW YORK (AP) — In nearly 5 1/2 years of war in Viet Nam, the United States has lost 3,804 men to enemy action, 3,454 of them since June 1, 1965, a study of casualty figures showed today. The South Vietnamese reported nearly 11,000 battle dead in the period since June 1965.

The sharp increase in the number of Americans killed over the past year demonstrates the heavy buildup of U.S. forces in Viet Nam.

The heaviest weekly toll of U.S. servicemen killed in action was 224 in the week ending Nov. 22, 1965, reflecting the bitterness of the fighting at Ia Drang Valley, in the central highlands.

EXCEEDS 5, VIET

In three weeks this year, in the April and May period, in which the Saigon government turned its attention to the quelling of an internal effort to overthrow it, the number of American battle dead exceeded the South Vietnamese.

In the period June 1, 1965, to May 31, 1966, the United States reported 3,203 battle dead, with 251 added in the first two weeks of this month. U.S. wounded reported from June 1, 1965, to May 31, 1966, totaled 17,979.

In the period June 1, 1965, through May 31, 1966, the figures — with none available for three weeks — show South Vietnamese reporting 10,919 combat dead. They do not report figures for wounded.

Troy GI Dies in Viet; 1 of 7 From State

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department Thursday listed seven Michigan men killed in Viet Nam fighting in the week ending last Saturday.

Killed in action were Sgt. Dewey L. Ferguson, Mount Clemens; Spec. 4 Charles H. Shelton, Detroit; Lance Cpl. Gary Wright, Rockford; Cpl. Kenneth M. MacBeth, Riggs; Pvt. Terrence R. Tange, Mount Clemens; Pfc. Larry M. Winton, East Detroit; and Cpl. Stanley L. Moore, Troy.

Posts $25,000 Bond in Meredith Case

HERNANDO, Miss. (AP) — Aubrey James Norvell, the man charged with attempting murder James H. Meredith on his march through Mississippi, posted $25,000 bond and left jail here today.

Defense attorney Edward Lee Whitten of Hernando said Norvell headed home to Memphis, Tenn., with his wife, his father and brother.

"The people of the mid-South had an indignation due to the fact that Judge Walter M. O'Barr would not lower the bond," said Whitten.

"They started a Norvell legal aid fund and sent the necessary 10 per cent cash and collateral to Post Office Box 27057 in Memphis," he said.

'CASE LOOKS BETTER'

Whitten said he and his law partner, Boyce Lee Garner, were continuing their investigation and "everything we find makes our case look better."

"We expect to fully exonerate Norvell when the trial comes up," Whitten said. "If we could present our evidence before the grand jury when it meets Nov. 14, it would be very doubtful he would ever be indicted."

Meredith was wounded on the back from ambush on the second day of his planned 220 mile march from Memphis to Jackson, Miss. Norvell was arrested minutes later.

Storms Subside, Leaving Much of Nation Clear

By the Associated Press
Thunderstorms subsided today in the East, South and the Western mountains, leaving a wide stretch of the nation with clear skies and pleasant temperatures.

Isolated tornadoes swirled out of thunderstorms Thursday night in Virginia, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas, but little or no damage was reported.

The Weather Bureau said the favorable weather would continue throughout the day over most of the nation, with the exception of showers or thundershowers along the southeastern coastal area and the mountains of the West.

Hole Punched in Art Treasure

NEW YORK (AP) — A hole was punched in an 80-year-old painting, valued at $250,000, at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, police reported. The painting was done by French impressionist Claude Monet.

A man taken into custody Thursday by a museum guard was charged by police with malicious mischief, a felony.

Museum officials said the hole was about a third of an inch wide. Edges of the canvas around the jagged puncture were turned back.

The cost of restoring the painting was estimated at $300.

The arrested man was Anthony Alvisi, 28, of the Bronx. Police said they knew of no motive for damaging the picture.

Elections will conclude the convention Sunday.

Tarzans in Decrease MIAMI

MIAMI (AP) — Henry Ringling North, producer of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, was asked how he acquired so many animals for his 1966 show.

"They're not making as many Tarzan pictures as they used to," he replied.

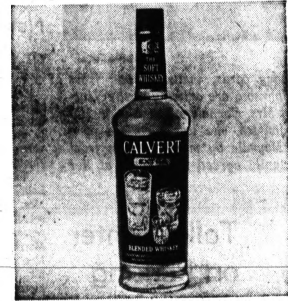

Soft Whiskey: Whiskey with the tiger taken out.

As you know, tigers are "in" these days. But not in Soft Whiskey.

No, sir. Soft Whiskey goes down the ol' hatch as soft as...as...Soft Whiskey. (We tried to think of something softer but we couldn't.)

So how do we do it? It's simple once you know how. (Let's not talk about how long it took us to know how.)

First of all, we do some of our distilling in small batches. Instead of big ones. And second of all, that's all we're going to tell you.

But hold on.

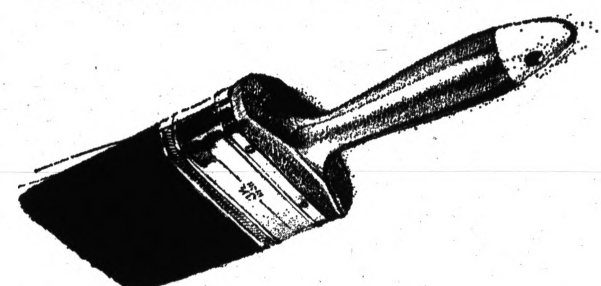

Before you send out for a bottle, there's one other thing you better know. Soft Whiskey is 86 proof. Got it? Soft Whiskey is 86 proof.

Remember it.

Because Soft Whiskey does anything any other whiskey can do. It just does it softer.

Sure we took the tiger out. But not the tiger's strength.

LIFE SAVER

One of man's most useful and enduring tools, the paint brush has been used for centuries to apply protective and decorative coatings to objects of every description. Dating back to ancient times, brushes are mentioned in the writings of Homer, and through many civilizations have provided an easy way for man to apply protection to things which could not otherwise endure the ravages of time and weather.

Like the paint brush and its many relatives in the brush and broom family, the newspaper Want Ad has endured through history as one of man's most useful inventions. The Want Ad can be a "life saver" too, when you have a message to deliver to the public. Low in cost and fast acting, the Want Ads are used by millions of people to sell, buy, rent, hire and find.

Pert Mrs. Fox Shuns Notice on 100th Birthday

By MARGARET BROWN
Mrs. Cornelius (Violet) Fox is 100 years old today and happy to be out of town.
Vacationing at Toronto, Ont., Mrs. Fox was determined to "... avoid this birthday fuss!"
She "foxily" planned her trip to discourage excessive attention on her centennial milestone.

"I'm just not going to be here June 17," she smartly informed her daughter.

"Mother always preferred to be doing for others rather than receiving," said Jane Fox, a reading clinician for Oakland County Schools.

It took all the persuasive power Miss Fox and friends could muster to arrange today's picture and interview.

A spirited walking wonder (she already has 34 pairs of mittens knitted for Christmas), Mrs. Fox plainly will not tolerate senile pampering.

AVOID WALKER

"When we first came to Pontiac from Mt. Pleasant, mother was 75 and walked regularly from our home (on Vinewood Avenue) to town and back on shopping trips," said Miss Fox.

"As the years went along, she began to walk one way and ride the bus home."

"I like to poke around outdoors," said Mrs. Fox, expressing pride in her tomato patch. "I'll say," her beaming daughter added, "Last winter she shoveled snow!"

Mrs. Fox whose appearance and agility belie her years does all of the housework (it was immaculate) and meal preparation in the pleasant brick home she shares with her daughter.

"Oh, Jane cooks some, too," said Mrs. Fox. "Precious little," Miss Fox answered smiling in mock reproach. "Mother even bakes bread."
Until age 97 Mrs. Fox was canning peaches, "... but now

I can't get the lids sealed tightly enough."
Readers may find it difficult to imagine, but Mrs. Fox even handles the family laundry. You guessed it: she uses a conventional wringer washer. "I finished all my ironing yesterday," she added nonchalantly.

Sprightly Mrs. Fox enjoys putting in solitude while her daughter is at work.

"I went to Texas recently, and she flatly wouldn't have anyone here to watch her during the day. We did have a friend stay nights, however."

A "last leaf" with few peer acquaintances, Mrs. Fox has numerous friends. "I've always had good neighbors," she said appreciatively.

NO CLUBS
She's uninterested in organizations for the elderly. "They're too frivolous for her," laughed Miss Fox.

A widow since 1932 (her husband was a retired farmer and carpenter), Mrs. Fox has had remarkably good health.

During her only major illness two years ago, a family friend affectionately admonished, "You hurry and get well; I want to send you 100 yellow roses on your 100th birthday!"

Arising spryly, she inquired, "Would you like to see them?"

Noting our concern that the effort be too great, Miss Fox responded, "Oh, she'll probably be out hoeing this afternoon."

Pro Musica Concerts Prelude Meadow Brook

As a prelude to the great Meadow Brook Festival opening June 30, Oakland University will present the New York Pro Musica in concert.

English music of the Courts of Elizabeth and James will be played June 26, at 6:30 p.m., in the new Matilda R. Wilson Hall on Campus.

The program will be the first of three that this distinguished group will present in its two-week stay on the campus.

All are resident teachers of the Meadow Brook School of Music's Institute for Medieval, Renaissance, and Early Baroque performance practices.

The other concerts will be at 8:30 p.m. on June 28 and July 5, offering Florentine Medieval and Renaissance Music in the first instance and Renaissance Music of Spain and Colonial Mexico for the final performance.

The concerts will serve as a memorial to the group's founder and music director Noah

Greenberg who died suddenly in New York earlier this year. It was Greenberg who envisioned the concert ensemble of ten singers and players dedicated to performing the music written before Bach and brought its performance before the audiences of the world.

The performances will be under the direction of Llanos Davernport, who has been named interim conductor of the group. Six hundred tickets are available for each performance at Oakland University through the Festival office.

Talks Center on Parking Automobile

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Strange, isn't it, how many flaws in etiquette seems to be connected with driving an automobile? Consider this pet peeve I just received:

Dear Mrs. Post: The careless parking of cars constantly involves inconvenience to and thoughtlessness of others. I go through life seeing two cars parked where three could easily stand.

I am especially conscious of this because I drive a small foreign car and there is always plenty of room to park it in the three-quarter space left between two parked cars. Leroy Vogel Dear Mr. Vogel: You're fortunate to have that small foreign car. To the many of us with larger cars, careless parking certainly is one of the most irritating examples of thoughtlessness.

The brother of the man who takes up two spaces is the one who jams his car up against yours so tightly that you can't get out of the parking space until he does!

Every aspect of automobile driving could be improved by the application of a dose of good old-fashioned manners. Car owners—take note!

Send your question to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of The Pontiac Press, and don't forget to include your name and address!

lowed at The Meadowlands in Darien.

The bride, daughter of the James A. Wolds of Darien, wore her sister's Empire-styled gown, of white pique with matching cap securing her tulle veil. Miniature ivy accented her bouquet of lilies of the valley.

SISTERS

After a visit to Detroit and an extensive motor tour ending at the west coast, the couple will live in Denver where he will attend the University of Denver.

The bride attended Colorado Women's College, Denver.

Too Many Calories

Dieters Scorn Her Goodies

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I think dieters are the cruellest, most selfish people in the world. Dieting has become a national mania. If you wear a size 12, the diet nut tells you you should wear a size 10. How crazy can people get?

I gave a coffee recently and stayed up past midnight the night before, baking date-nut bread and four kinds of cookies. Of the 20 women who came, nine took ten servings, and six refused even to sample my baking!

One had the nerve to announce to everyone that she belonged to some crazy kind of diet club and was on an 18-day diet with a pack of other women. I didn't sleep a wink that night. I was even too sick to cry over the way my baking had been scorned.

I will never entertain again as long as I live. Do you blame me?

THROUGH ENTERTAINING

DEAR THROUGH: I appreciate your disappointment, but look at the other side. Those who are fighting the battle of the bulge should not be made to feel guilty if they count calories. A gracious hostess appears to take no notice of how much or how little her guests eat.

The purpose of entertaining is not to show off one's baking, but to show one's guests a good time. So entertain again, for the sheer joy of fellowship. And have diet wafers, and no-cal beverage available for the dieters. They will love you for it.

DEAR ABBY: This boy and I are pretty good friends but we have never dated. He is 20, and I am 17. He is quite handsome and by no means shy, but he hasn't dated much. I'm quite a bit overweight, but have been told that I have a pretty face and a good personality.

The other night we were sitting on my front porch and he asked me to get him a date with a good-looking girl. He said he could take a girl to the movies, hold her hand, and talk sweet to her as well as any other boy.

Now, here's what I want to ask you. If I were to tell him that I could be taken to the movies, my hand could be held, and I would enjoy sweet talk more than some good-looking girl who hears it every Friday night, would he get the wrong idea?

LIKES HIM
DEAR LIKES: No, he'd probably get the right idea.

DEAR ABBY: Does a man who is a citizen of a foreign country but is residing in the United States need to register for the draft? If so, how long after he gets here must he do so?

CONCERNED
DEAR CONCERNED: Yes. And he must register for the draft WITHIN 6 months of his arrival in the United States.

Has Answer

Well, all sorts of solutions have been proposed by all sorts of people for the country's many problems, but this one may be the most far out of all... and then again it may be just what the country needs.

As The Insider's Newsletter tells it, 87-year-old dancer Ruth St. Denis, an ardent crusader for women's rights, has proposed that the United States have a husband-and-wife team for President.

Miss St. Denis made the suggestion at a meeting of the subcommittee of the California Commission on the Status of Women. As she sees it, it would give the country "balanced government" and it might even be better than "just a woman President in our time," she concedes.

MRS. J. G. CUCKSEY

Cotton has a special affinity for vat dyes, the most color-fast dyes produced.

Ohio Ceremony Unites Jonathan G. Cuckseys

Lois Jean Baldauf and Jonathan G. Cucksey of Van Wert, Ohio son of the Morris Cuckseys of Lake Orion, were wed recently in St. John's Catholic Church, Delphos, Ohio.

Reception in the American Legion Hall followed the rite performed by Rev. Lawrence Scharf after which the newlyweds left for an eastern honeymoon.

The bride, daughter of the Albert Baldaufs of Delphos, chose imported white silk organza and Alencon lace with matching double train. A lace crown held her French illusion veil. She carried white carnations, yellow roses and ivy.

With Mrs. Donald R. Snyder, her sister's honor matron were Helen Hempling and Sarah McDonough as bridesmaids.

Joseph Motyka was best man. Donald Baldauf, Donald R. Snyder and Dennis Callison were ushers.

Follow Tips of Safety in Cleaning

Spring is that time of the year when a young man's mind turns to fancy and a woman's to housecleaning.

But a noted insurance company warns that spring cleaning is not only a dreary necessity, it can be a hazardous undertaking if certain precautions are not followed. Here are a few safety tips:

- Avoid using a naphtha-type rug cleaner in a poorly ventilated room. Naphtha fumes are extremely dangerous to inhale and can cause serious injury.

- Don't try to move heavy furniture yourself. It's a two- or three-man job. If necessary, hire a handyman. The few extra dollars spent are well worth it, in terms of your well-being.

- Spread your work over a sufficient period of time. Trying to accomplish too much too quickly can cause accidents and be damaging to your health, as well.

- When waxing floors, use low-lustre wax or polish. A glossy surface may cause a slip which results in broken bones.

- Keep youngsters away from working areas. It's an open invitation to disaster. You can accomplish this more easily by cleaning one room at a time.

- Cleaning solutions, such as ammonia, soaps, lye solutions, waxes and polishes, as well as paints, should all be stored out of sight when they're not being used, for your safety as well as your child's. And these should all be properly marked.

- Follow the directions on bottles and cans explicitly. Many cleaning solvents require special handling to be used safely.

Fairly Easy to Revamp Old Marble

If you happen to fall in love with a marble-topped chest in an antique shop, buy it — stains, scratches, and all. It is a relatively simple task to revamp that old marble, said Manfred Steinfeld, chief executive officer of American of Chicago, a division of Shelby Williams Industries, Inc.

The furniture manufacturer suggests you scrub the surface with detergent, using a fiber brush. If stains persist, make a paste substance of alkaline cleaner and water which should be spread evenly on the surface with a trowel.

Cover the entire slab with a damp cloth to retard the evaporation process. After it has been covered for 24 hours, remove the cloth and allow to dry for another 24 hours.

To remove the coating, simply use a wooden trowel or add water to soften it before removing. Sand the marble and polish it with putty powder. Incidentally, the paste substance can be saved and used again, said Steinfeld.

If the marble is scratched, Steinfeld recommends light sanding and repolishing by hand, using putty powder on a damp cloth. However, he warns against waxing white marble, for it will turn yellow. A colorless light paste wax is ideal for darker shades of marble.

If these directions are followed, your marble will be as good as new, while your coveted chest will retain its antique charm.

Trio of Showers Honors Bride

A trio of showers has honored Judith Ann Dalton before her marriage to Bryan Alan Dorman, Saturday, in the Francesca Drive home of her parents, the Edward F. Daltons.

Mrs. Donald Redmond of Fortress Drive, with Mrs. Neil Strahan as cohostess, gave a recent shower in her home. Mrs. Edwin Lally of Balmoral Terrace also entertained for the bride-elect with Mrs. Earl Weber assisting.

Nancy Kerezy was hostess at the final shower in the home of Mrs. Charles D. Shear, North Rochester Road, Avon Township.

Parents of the bridegroom-elect are Philip Dorman, West Walton Boulevard and Mrs. Brown Dorman, Hollywood, Fla.

These flowers say "congratulations" to Mrs. Ted Girthman of North Johnson Street as she assumes duties as incoming president of Wisner PTA. Outgoing president, Mrs. Richard Reinelt of Pingree Street, does the honors at Thursday's luncheon held in the school.

Cotton fibers can be more readily modified before drying than after.

MUSKEGON (UPI) — A record number of 51 contestants for the Miss Michigan queen title, June 28-July 1, will be outnumbered about 2 to 1 by a record number of photographers and reporters.

Jerry Cheske, press director for the big beauty contest at the Miss Michigan pageant, said today that a 100-seat section has been reserved for news media this year.

The 51 queen entries entered represent various colleges, communities and civic organizations in Michigan.

Barry's Year-Old Group Is Smaller, Less Trouble to GOP Than Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barry's year-old group is smaller, less trouble to the GOP than expected, one year old today, in neither as big as its promoters forecast nor as troublesome as organization Republicans feared.

But the conservative-minded association believes it is making headway in what Goldwater once called a nonpartisan crusade for political education. The vast majority of its members are Republicans.

And Republican officials said they do not think the organization has as they feared at the outset — drained away party funds.

They concede a few donors may have given the association money that otherwise would have gone to the GOP National Committee, but they report that Republican fund raising is moving at a record pace.

DOLLAR DRAIN
Republican National Chairman Ray C. Bliss said at the outset that the society, with a defeated GOP presidential nominee as honorary chairman, would make more difficult his quest for party unity — and drain away dollars which might otherwise go to the GOP National Committee.

Bliss, worried about rocking the unity boat, is not talking publicly about the society now. But he is known to feel the organization has not posed a problem to the National Committee.

ON SCHEDULE

"We're maintaining our speed and course and we're on schedule," said Langhorne Washburn, executive director of the Republican National Finance Committee.

Charles M. Lichenstein, research chief at the Free Society Association, said the organization now has some 42,500 members.

Its president, Denison Kitchen, had forecast first year membership of 400,000 to 500,000, and a budget of $2 million to $2.5 million.

Lichenstein said the association's budget totaled about $600,000 during the first year, and may be somewhat higher during the year ahead.

"We were wrong in putting so much emphasis on sheer numbers of people," Lichenstein said. "There are many other ways of influencing the thinking of people."

The association tries to do it in the direction of conservation — with monthly newsletters, issue papers and a newly launched series of regional

Road Safety Bill OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Public Works Committee approved yesterday a mandatory $250 million highway safety bill dealing with drivers, highways and automobile inspection.

The measure goes further than either the administration's proposed bill or the version recently approved by the Senate Public Works Committee.

The House version also creates a national safety agency within the Commerce Department to administer the program.

The bill would establish a three-year, $260 million program under the Commerce secretary which includes:

- $200 million for mandatory state highway safety programs covering driver education and testing, highway construction and maintenance, vehicle operation and inspection, and traffic laws.

- $55 million for safety research and training of personnel.
- $2.4 million to create a national driver registry to keep tabs on law-breaking drivers whose licenses have been suspended or withdrawn.

- $3 million for planning national safety research and testing facilities.

The bill requires states to have highway safety programs of their own under way by Jan. 1, 1968, or face loss of all safety aid, plus one-fourth of their federal highway construction aid.

The state safety programs would have to comply with standards set down by the Commerce secretary on the advice of a 31-member advisory council.

Think all wagons are too big or too small?

(Rambler Classic)

Betty and Phil Mason knew what they wanted: a station wagon with size and style and sass. They hadn't considered a Rambler until Betty met the Mind-Changer, a Rambler Classic 770 Wagon. It's bigger, bolder — with plenty of room for people and paraphernalia. (More total head room — leg room — hip room than the average intermediate wagon.) Betty thought the interior was surprisingly good-looking. She tried out the coil-spring reclining bucket seats* ("Very comfortable.") and poked around in the lockable hidden compartment. Phil took a test drive, went for the Mind-Changing difference our big 327-cubic-inch V-8* makes. He was surprised that many extra features like Double-Safety brakes and that gleaming roof rack are standard, at no extra cost. Betty and Phil had decided on the ideal-size Classic Wagon even before they heard that prices are now at their model-year lowest. Why don't you test-drive a Mind-Changer today? Pro Leads U.S. Open Tourney by Stroke

Mengert Posts Three Birdies for 67 Round

Littler, Massengale Shoot 68s; Player Eight Over Par

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Al Mengert, a club pro from Tacoma, Wash., who grabbed the first-round lead in the U.S. Open Golf Tournament, says mental condition is all-important for the darkhorse.

"A fellow like me, a club pro, has to lick a mental bug," Mengert said after carving out a three-under-par 67 Thursday.

"A club pro only plays about three times a week. The guys on the tour play all the time and you may figure that gives them an advantage. So you have to get geared up mentally. You have to build your confidence."

It also gave him a one-stroke lead over Gene Littler and Don Massengale, and a two-stroke margin over Billy Casper. He scored the 6,719 yards of the par 70 Olympic Country Club course without suffering a bogey. He had three birds.

Littler, the 1961 Open champion, and Massengale managed to take two strokes off par and Billy Casper was one under.

Grouped at par 70 are Phil Rodgers, Doug Sanders, San Francisco amateur John Miller and Australian Kel Nagle, who lost the 1965 Open title to Gary Player in a playoff.

At 71 were PGA champ Dave Marr, Masters champ Jack Nicklaus, Tony Lama, Arnold Palmer, Bob Goalby, Tom Nieporie and Wes Ellis Jr. Four-time champion Ben Hogan, who received a special invitation to the tournament, was one of 10 at 72.

Player came in with a 70 after missing seven putts of four feet or less, including one of 15 inches.

"My chipping was atrocious," Palmer said, while Nicklaus said, "I just hit some bad golf shots."

The low 60 and ties after today's second round. The final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by ABC-TV.

Jockey Shrine Lost in Blaze
Pimlico Race Track Has 6-Alarm Fire

BALTIMORE (AP) — A spectacular six-alarm blaze destroyed the historic Pimlico clubhouse Thursday night, a landmark in American racing since 1870 and oldest clubhouse in the United States.

The frame structure, which houses the National Jockeys Hall of Fame, was engulfed in flames shortly after the first alarm was sounded at 11:30 p.m.

BIG WELCOME—Willie Horton of the Detroit Tigers gets a royal welcome at home plate after hitting a 3-run homer in Boston yesterday. Horton drove in six runs in the Tigers' 16-4 win over the Red Sox. He is greeted by Al Kaline (6) and Jim Northrup (30).

STAYS CALM — Al Mengert, Tacoma, Wash., has a moment of delight (top) as he hits the 10-foot putt for a par drops in the 17th hole. The U.S. Open leader with a 67 for Thursday's opening round, strolls somewhat smugly off the 18th green (bottom) after finishing with his 15th par for the day.

They've put some character in the Warwick Hills Country Club course, home of the Buick Open, and they did it with sand.

The 7,280-yard course, often criticized by touring pros for its lack of character, showed the play-for-pay golfers a new face this year and the newness found favor with the pros.

Essentially, Warwick officials wanted to turn the course into what they termed a "thinking man's layout."

To do it, they brought in golf course architect Joe Lee, who by careful placing of fairway bunkers, forced the pros to think in this year's Buick Open and at the same time gave the course some character.

Pontiac's Gene Bone, former pro at Warwick and now head pro at Bay Pointe Golf Club near Union Lake, found the changes forced him to think a little before hitting.

"We used to step up to the tee and bang away," said Bone after the first round of the Buick, "But with those fairway bunkers, you have to be more careful."

The changes are a welcome sight, since they take away some of that swing-from-the-heels attitude and put a little more finesse in the game.

From the standpoint of scoring, the changes are unlikely to force the winning score higher.

SCORES SIMILAR

This year, seven players shot par or better, the same as last year.

While strategically locating the bunkers, the distance was trimmed slightly so that the big hitters wouldn't have too much difficulty staying on the fairway.

The course is still far from the Oakland Hills, but then most others are, too. The improvement is making the players think.

In one of the guidebooks to golf on the market, players are advised to hire two caddies in India. The reason for the second one is that he'll protect your ball from thieving birds and hungry monkeys who tend to snatch unguarded balls and devour them.

"THERE MUST BE A REASON"

Event Begins Monday

Horse Show a Crowd Pleaser

Horses and riders are the main attractions at the annual Detroit Horse Show on the Bloomfield Open Hunt grounds, but the show sponsors don't overlook entertainment.

The 49th festivities at the Long Lake Road club will begin 8:30 a.m. Monday with a dressage event and will conclude the following Sunday night with the humorous grooms' bareback jumping event.

During that time more than 400 horses and perhaps half as many riders will try their skills on the sometimes intricate, sometimes beautiful and usually challenging BOH courses.

Some of the most impressive horses in the United States and Canada will be competing—particularly in the crowd-pleasing evening jumping events Wednesday through Sunday.

But another feature will be the horsepower on wheels parade of the latest cars in the stables of the nation's "big four" automotive producers.

A main entertainment feature twice daily Wednesday through Sunday will be the exhibitions by the Volage Team of the Windsor Equestrian Training Center.

An unusual attraction those same nights will be the quick-draw demonstrations of Joe Bodrie.

The Detroit Horse Show is the world's largest outdoor event for hunters and jumpers. More than $15,000 in prize money, trophies and ribbons will be presented.

The seven-day show is rated an honor show by the American Horse Shows Association, and very few shows that last five days or longer are so designated.

The competition will last from 8:30 a.m. through midnight every day except Tuesday when there is no evening show. Weather won't stop the competition.

General admission tickets are $1 per adult and 50 cents per child daily. Reserved seats cost $2 during the day through Friday, and $3 weekends and evenings.

Heading the field in the first 25-lap feature event will be Jack Goodwin of Farmington and Jim Daniels of Clio, and as long as their cars are running, you'll generally find one or the other near the head of the pack.

Regular qualifying trials for the super stocks start at 6 p.m. with the make-up features first on the program at 8 p.m.

Hot Shots Set for Speedway Driving Duel

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The United States goes into the second day of the World Freestyle Wrestling Championships today in better shape than expected while the favored Russian team is in danger of losing a couple of wrestlers.

The USA, which has never finished better than fifth, made it through the first two rounds Thursday without suffering a loss.

The Russians suffered three losses and Andrey Tskhovrebov, 191.5, in trouble with five penalty points. Dean Lahr of the United States outpointed Tskhovrebov in the first round.

Twenty-six wrestlers were eliminated in the 98 bouts conducted during the first day.

Bobby Douglas, former Oklahoma State star, earned the USA's only pin as he decked Cesar Sosa Siso of Venezuela in the first round and outpointed Mohammed Aghandi of Iran in the second round.

Grayson Tough to Beat

The Grayson School boys' softball team showed its mettle in winning the Waterford Township elementary championship from Montclair.

Grayson, which lost the opening game in the best-of-three playoffs, took its second straight with a 10-7 victory last night.

10 Cities, Big Money Back Soccer

But Marriage Not Solution

'Birds' Plague Soccer Star

NEW YORK (NEA) — Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays think in Yankee Stadium watching his first baseball game.

They should talk to Cyril Knowles' headaches aren't with hordes of sleeve-tugging drunks who breathe, "I just wanted to shake yer hand, pal."

"It's worse than that," Knowles said. "Birds. Thousands of birds."

In England, where Knowles is the defensive standout and glamor puss of the Tottenham Hotspurs soccer team, "birds" is what young Britons call women.

"I believe you call them chicks here in the states, don't you? They can get bloody awful sometimes, with their pulling and hollering. It could turn a man against marriage."

Knowles, 21, spoke as he sat behind the dugout — but the clamor and hero-worship comes mostly from hard-core baseball fans and poptized kids.

"That fellow out there, Mickey what's-his-name. I've heard about him. Is it true he makes 25,000 quid (roughly $100,000) a year? Wager birds drive him crazy."

It was explained to Knowles that Mantle is married and that American gals generally don't riot around athletes.

They make themselves available — the ever-present blonde behind the dugout — but the clamor and hero-worship comes mostly from hard-core baseball fans and poptized kids.

So how does a star athlete in England combat the problem?

"You have to keep devising tricky ways to sneak out of the football stadium. You can't have a routine or they get onto it quick. The Beatles and the Rolling Stones are very clever that way."

"I got me a steady bird in London. Maybe if I got married they'd leave me alone. But, that's like saying, 'if you can't fight 'em, join 'em.'"

Beyond that, Knowles was bored stiff by his first baseball game.

"I heard so much about American baseball, but what's all the fuss about? That chap Mantle has just been standing out here in the field pacing the whole game, and when he bats he just knicks it straight up."

Suddenly everybody seated around the Hotspurs stood up.

"Is it finished?" Knowles asked.

"No, this is the seventh inning stretch."

"Why wait until the seventh? Pardon me for knocking it, but this game's a bloody bore. There's no excitement here."

Knowles obviously was paying little attention to the blonde behind the dugout.

Pro Football Owners
Support New League

NEW YORK (AP) — If success breeds success, the playing fields of America soon will thunder to the sounds of old Europe.

The birth of the National Professional Soccer League was announced Thursday and among its wealthy godparents are four owners from the National Football League, perhaps the most affluent organization in all sports history.

Other promoters have tried to introduce soccer to the United States, but it never caught on in a big way although it easily rates as the most popular sport in the world.

ACTING PRESIDENT

However, Richard Miller, a Los Angeles lawyer who is acting president of the new league, said that "interest in America has now reached a point where my association and I feel that soccer in this country is ready to enter a new era on a major professional league level."

The proposed circuit will consist of 10 teams in the United States and Canada and the basis of optimism for great success rests on an abundance of money, experience and confidence.

Among the league founders are Carroll Rosenbloom and Donald Kellest of the Baltimore Colts; Arthur and Daniel Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers; Charles and William Bidwill of the St. Louis Cardinals and Max Winter of the Minnesota Vikings.

Other cities to be represented are Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Toronto and Vancouver. GET THE POINT?—New York Mets Coach Yogi Berra and Umpire Ed Sudol discuss their differences in last night's game with the Atlanta Braves. The argument resulted from an attempted third-strike bunt by Met pitcher Rob Gardner. Sudol ruled the ball foul, making Gardner out. Yogi said the ball was fair. The umpire won the argument.

Tony Cloninger was batting 500 when $100,000 convinced him he had no future as a hitter.

Now he's batting .184 — and wondering again.

The Atlanta pitcher, a $100,000 bonus baby eight years ago and a 24-game winner last season, turned slugger Thursday night, driving in five runs with the second and third homers of his major league career as the Braves stomped the New York Mets 17-1.

The Braves' 17 runs and 21 hits were the highest single-game totals in the majors this year.

LONDON (AP)—American tennis stars Dennis Ralston and Marty Riessen faced two top Australians today in a trial of strength before Wimbledon.

Ralston, of Bakersfield, Calif., faced defending champion Roy Emerson, Riessen, of Evanston, Ill., had to play Tony Roche, the Australia left-hander who is seeded No. 2 for this year's Wimbledon tournament.

The matches were the semifinals of the London's Queens Court Tournament, which is the last big event before Wimbledon starts Monday.

ERRATIC

Ralston, who has been erratic this week, suddenly snapped out of it Thursday with a stylish 6-4, 6-3 triumph over Manuel Santana of Spain.

Emerson had to struggle for a 3-6, 14-12, 6-3, victory Thursday over British Davis Cup star Bobby Wilson.

Riessen, volleying well, scored a 10-8, 7-5 triumph over the tall left-handed Yugoslav star, Nicole Pietrangeli.

Play Resumes

Surprises in City Softball

A couple surprises marked play in the city men's softball program which resumed Thursday after two nights of rain problems.

Spencer Floor Covering easily held onto first place in the American League with an 8-1 rout over Town and Country.

But runner-up Ron's Roost took a 9-6 surprise loss at the hands of Bob and Larry's Bar. Orchard Lanes moved within a half game of second place by trimming Bob-Ken's Bar, 11-1.

MGM Cleaners-Shalea Lounge made quick work of its supposed first-place showdown with Sport-O-Rama in the Slow Pitch League. The unbeaten, dual-sponsored-men tallied 10 times the first time at bat and coasted to a 20-6 victory.

A single by Jerry Hesse, Loui Seay's double, Church Graven's triple and a wild pitch gave Spencer a 3-0 lead in the fourth and it added five more in the sixth as Seay had a two-run single and Jim Long a key double.

Ron's Roost (3-2) scored four times aided by Bob Becker's

DIRT'S UP—Broad jumper Gary Ard, a junior from Kansas University, hits the dirt during the NCAA Track and Field trials yesterday at Bloomington, Ind. The championships continue today.

Fleet Feet, Strong Arm Set for NCAA Meet

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—San Jose State's Tommie Smith, looming as the world's all-time fastest human, and Texas A&M's Randy Matson, the world's best shot putter, got down to cases in the 45th NCAA track and field meet today.

In preliminary competition Thursday at Indiana University, Smith officially matched the NCAA 100-yard record of 9.3 and unofficially equalled the world 220-yard mark of 20.2, while Matson easily set an NCAA shot put mark of 65-4 on one of his two qualifying tosses.

The meet tempo picks up to day in another twilight session with six finals. Included are an expected hot 100-yard showdown between Smith and defending champion Charlie Greene of Nebraska, and the shot put in which Matson should improve on his NCAA record.

Thursday's only final was the six-mile run, captured by world co-record holder, Washington State's Gerry Lindgren, in the modest time of 28:07. This was

Video Package for NHL Games Put on Paper

MONTREAL (AP)—Weekly televising of National Hockey League games in the United States is a distinct possibility now that the circuit has put its TV package on paper.

The proposed package, which includes 14 regular season games plus at least three playoff games, was approved by the NHL Board of Governors Thursday when the league ended its annual summer meetings.

The proposal will be submitted to the National Broadcasting Co. which last season televised coast-to-coast for the first time four playoff games.

Although dates remain to be worked out, the plan calls for three games to be televised from Chicago, Boston, Detroit and New York and one game each from Montreal and Toronto. The games would be played on either Saturday or Sunday afternoons.

far below the current world record of 27:11.6 which Lindgren shares with Billy Mills.

Today's feature event is the 100-yard showdown between Smith and Greene after each qualified Thursday at 9.3, equalling the NCAA record.

The flying Smith's 20.2 clocking in the 220 trials, matching the world mark of Arizona State's Henry Carr, was wind assisted and not an official effort.

Two high hurdle qualifiers Thursday were Dale Frederick, Arizona sophomore, with 13.7 and UCLA's Ron Copeland and Brigham Young's Al Rockwell with 13.8 each.

Summary of the six-mile run, the only final in Thursday's events at the NCAA track and field championships: Smith, 28:07, 3. John Lawton, Kansas, 28:16, 3. Chris Westman, Washington State, 28:45.

Miss Whitworth Two Shots Ahead

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Cool Kathy Whitworth rode a low gear game into a first round lead in the 72-hole Milwaukee Jaycee Open Golf Tournament. Miss Whitworth fired a two-under-par 68 Thursday for a two-stroke edge over Susie Maxwell, Tulsa, Okla.

Tax Increase Remains an Open Question, Says Treasury Chief Fowler

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler indicated today that a proposed tax increase "remains very much an open question" despite signs that the economy has begun a slight slowdown.

"The situation is still uncertain enough," Fowler said in a speech prepared for the 73rd annual convention of the Virginia Banking Association, "to require our continued readiness to adopt whatever further restraints events may clearly demand."

"And President Johnson has made it abundantly clear," Fowler added, "that he will not hesitate to apply or to recommend further fiscal restraints should these become necessary."

CONSIDERING MOVE

While Fowler did not specifically mention an anti-inflation tax boost, the President has been known to be considering such a move with his economic advisers.

"Whether such restraints will become necessary remains very much an open question," he told the bankers. "There are, to be sure, indications that, while the economy is still moving strongly ahead, it is not moving as rapidly as it was earlier this year."

Fowler said the administration's main task today "is to make a smooth shift from the very high growth rates of the recent past to a somewhat lower but still historically high level of steady, sustained growth — to slow down without stalling."

"And," he added, "we must accomplish that task amid all the uncertainties that Viet Nam introduces into our economic picture."

But perhaps the most important uncertainty facing the administration, Fowler said, is Congress, which has approved a series of budget-shattering bills.

"At a time when the need for restraint is so great," he said, "we must face the fact that the Congress may add some $3 billion to $3 billion to the President's expenditure proposals for fiscal 1967."

Fowler told the bankers that Congress must make every effort to assure that "when it has done its job the total cost of the program enacted does not significantly exceed the total cost of the programs the President has proposed for fiscal 1967."

If this should happen, he said, "the prospect of a balanced budget or even a budgetary surplus in fiscal 1967 is a very real one."

FAMOUS PAIR—Movie actor John Wayne, who played a number of war heroes on the screen, meets a real-life war hero—former All-America football star Capt. Pete Dawkins of Royal Oak. The two are shown on a Saigon street with two Vietnamese girls who recognized the movie star and asked for an autograph. Wayne is in Viet Nam to entertain troops and, along with Dawkins, make a film for the Defense Department.

U.S. Fires Salvo of Words at Castro

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If revolution in the spirit of the Alliance for Progress, the State Department would be well on its way toward getting rid of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

In a taunting statement, yesterday, the department said the bearded Cuban leader "has not been in the foreground of events" in his country since May 1.

It added that there is "growing popular dissatisfaction" in Cuba and that living conditions are unlikely to improve under Castro.

"The tragedy is," the department said, "that, were it not for Castro and those closest to him, Cuba's problems would be no means insoluble."

By suggesting that Castro was losing political control and also saying the United States had been the beginning had backed the ideal of "democratic revolution" in the spirit of the Alliance for Progress, the department's statement came close to inviting exiles or dissenters within Cuba to move against the regime.

DENY INTENT

Following issuance of the statement, department officials denied this was its intent.

The statement, it was learned, had been toned down from an earlier draft which would have sounded more like incitement of revolution.

The department said there was "widespread speculation inside Cuba about Castro's whereabouts."

Actually, it was not that Castro had been absent, but rather than he had not appeared in his usual prominent role since May 1 when he spoke at a May Day celebration.

Riot Neighborhood Quiet in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Everything appeared quiet today in the Puerto Rican neighborhood on Chicago's northwest side where rioting erupted early this week. Three hundred policemen remained on duty in the 16-block area 15 minutes from downtown Chicago. Taverns in the neighborhood were permitted to reopen.

The Chicago Commission on Human Relations announced a bilingual hearing to investigate the conflict between Puerto Ricans and police.

Holland Girl, 7, Dies After Being Hit by Car

HOLLAND (UPI) — Carol Ann David, 7, Holland, was killed yesterday when she ran into the path of a car in front of her home. The child suffered a skull fracture and was dead on arrival at a Holland hospital.

Church Group Seeks Leader

7th-Day Adventists' President Resigns

DETROIT (AP) — A nominating committee was to meet today to consider a successor to Robert B. Figuhr, who has resigned as west president of the 1.5-million-member Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Two men have been mentioned as possible successors. They are Robert H. Pierson, president of the church's Trans-Africa division, based in Salisbury, Rhodesia; and Neal C. Wilson Jr. of Takoma Park, Md.

Wilson is president of the church's Columbia Union conference, which encompasses seven states and the district of Columbia.

Figuhr, 70, announced his resignation immediately after delivering the keynote address to 11,000 delegates and visitors at the church's 50th quadrennial conference.

TIME HAS COME
"After three score and 10 years," Figuhr said, "the time has come to lay aside the mantle to a number of capable men of foresight and vigor."

He has been president of the church since 1954. Twenty-seven of his 44 years in the church were spent working with overseas missions in the Philippines and South America.

Born in Superior, Wis., Figuhr graduated from Walla Walla College in Walla Walla, Wash., in 1922. He served as missionary in the Philippines from 1923 to 1941. He was president of the Adventist's South American division from 1941 to 1950.

In his keynote address Thursday night, Figuhr challenged the 1,400 delegates to maintain the level of activity of the last four years. He said:

"Through baptism and profession of the faith, 469,048 new members have been added to the church during the quadrennium. Despite the indifference to spiritual matters on the part of so many, doors long closed because of prejudice are now opening."

"We have access today to knowledge that formerly was beyond our reach."

Before Men Go

More Lunar Tests Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. space officials, concluding from Surveyor 1 pictures that man can walk on the moon, say future lunar landings will include further tests to determine whether man can survive on the planet 240,000 miles from earth.

"The success of Surveyor 1 does not change any plans as far as we're concerned," said Dr. Homer E. Newell, associate administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"But we're very definitely looking at what else can be included in future Surveyor flights," he added.

Surveyor 1, the first of seven spacecraft designed for soft lunar landings in 1966 and 1967, has transmitted 10,368 pictures of the moon's surface since it landed June 2.

FROM SURFACE
NASA officials said Dr. Robert Gilbreath, director of the Manned Space Center at Houston, reported the pictures indicate the "surface is adequately firm" to support man and "properly designed" spacecraft.

But officials emphasized at a news conference Thursday that their conclusions are based on a preliminary analysis of information returned by Surveyor 1 during its first five days on the moon.

Future experiments, Newell said, include radioactivity measurements and use of a "scratcher," a device that can dig beneath the lunar surface.

NASA officials said Thursday the Surveyor 1 pictures indicate the moon's surface is composed of "gritty, granular particles, many rocks — some a yard in diameter — and smaller 'clods.'"

DUST NOT FOUND
The pictures show, officials said, the Surveyor 1's landing pods sank an inch into the surface. And, they added, there apparently is little or no dust on the moon, at least in the "dark, relatively smooth surface, encircled by hills and low mountains in Oceanus Procellarum, where the spacecraft landed."

Walking across the moon's surface "will not be unlike walking across a plowed field," said Dr. Eugene Shoemaker of the U.S. Geological Survey.

Everything's Going for Candice Bergen

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD — A reluctant actress, Candice Bergen, may well prove one of the more successful ones.

She is headed in that direction. Everything about her speaks success.

For her second film, she is co-starring with Steve McQueen in the $11-million "The Sand Pebbles." She has the background famous father, continental education — and looks — and a fashion-model figure.

She is also a fluent talker, especially about Candice Bergen.

"Acting came to her as an afterthought."

"I saw it as a chance to provide the independence to pursue what I really wanted to do, which was photography and writing," she explains.

Miss Bergen carries her independence like a banner, and she admitted it has been a source of friction between herself and her father, ventriloquist Edgar Bergen.

"I've always been antipathetic," she admitted, "and this has frustrated my father, poor man, because he is by nature a disciplinarian."

"He was able to exact discipline on me because I relied on him for financial support. Therefore the way for me to break his hold was to start earning my own money. I went to New York from the University of Pennsylvania, got my own apartment and started working."

HARD ON FATHER
"It was hard on my father, but it wasn't easy for me, either. After the first two months of living alone, I got terribly blue and wondered, 'Is this what I really want?' I had never had to call a doctor for myself before — and I didn't even know any doctors in New York!"

Miss Bergen managed to survive, and she moved to a larger, more cheerful apartment at the request of her tearful mother. "As soon as I started furnishing it, I began to feel all right," she recalled. "It was living in a bare room that depressed me."

She became one of the darlings of the fashion world, and her fame as a model brought an offer to appear in "The Group." To her father's despair, she took the role of a Lesbian.

"The picture couldn't have been better for me," she commented. "How can you fall when you have only five minutes of screen time? It was over before the audience had a chance to ask 'Can she act?'"

Detroit Teachers OK Strike by 7-1 Margin

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit's unionized public school teachers Thursday authorized their leaders to call a strike if necessary to back up their contract demands.

Mary Ellen Riordan, president of the 6,000-member Detroit Federation of Teachers, said strike authorization was approved by a 7-1 margin.

The federation, an AFL-CIO affiliate, is sole bargaining representative for the city's 10,000 teachers. Mrs. Riordan said only DFT members were eligible to vote.

She said teachers also indicated they would not break out of the union.

Boards Urge Fast Mediation

More Aggressiveness Needed — Federation

LANSING AP — Earlier action by the State Labor Mediation Board could cut down teacher strike problems that plagued Michigan this spring, school board representatives told Gov. George Romney Thursday.

More aggressive—but not earlier—action is what is needed, said representatives of the Michigan Federation of Teachers.

Representatives of the Michigan Association of School Boards, the federation and the Michigan Education Association met with Romney.

The meeting—the second since the spring rash of strikes—ended with the agreement that the Labor Mediation Board will keep Romney informed throughout the summer on potential trouble when classes resumed in September.

STRONGER PROCESS
Leonard Keller, attorney for the School Board Association, proposed strengthening the mediation process "at the outset."

Under his plan, both the board and the teachers' bargaining unit would have to list their demands for the following year 120 days before a contract expired.

They would be called then to a hearing before representatives of the Labor Mediation Board and the contract goals of both would be set. After this meeting, neither side would be allowed to inject new demands into the bargaining.

"Then the board would check periodically to see that both sides are meeting seriously," Keller said, adding:

"This would eliminate the 'stalling' some of the boards have been accused of."

CAN BE DESTRUCTIVE
Thomas Hill, assistant to the president of the Michigan Federation of Teachers, said "too much mediation" board can destroy collective bargaining.

We would be looking to the board to do our job," Bernard Fieger, general counsel to the federation, said that a stalemate has developed and the board is needed, it is not aggressive enough.

"The board has to be willing to push, even if the school boards don't want to talk because a strike is going on," he said.

The plans will be flown by Sgt. Norton Main at Lansing, Cpl. Chester Notage at Traverse City and Leland Albright at Marquette.

The program should be in full swing over the July 4 weekend, he said, although the aerial spotting is planned as a long-range operation, not just as a holiday special.

The one-eighth mile sections of highway have been marked with painted white stripes on hard-surface shoulders or on the roadway itself.

The planes will carry a pilot and observer, both equipped with stopwatches, so two cars may be checked at once. Information on violators will be radioed to State Police cars.

While watching chiefly for speeders, the plane crews also will report improper passing following too closely and other violations, he said.

The planes will be flown by Sgt. Norton Main at Lansing, Cpl. Chester Notage at Traverse City and Leland Albright at Marquette.

MEETS THE NEED — Eleanor Scott tries out a seat which seems perfect for her high-back skirt. The seat, designed in London, could solve the embarrassing seating problem of the girl with the short-short skirt. However, it was designed for use on crowded buses and subways.

Welfare Chief to Take Leave
George H. Williams, director of the Oakland County Department of Social Welfare, said that he would begin a six-month leave of absence without pay tomorrow.

The leave was authorized by the social welfare board on a request from Williams for time off for personal reasons.

It still is subject to approval by the county retirement commission, according to personnel director John Withers.

A special meeting of this committee probably will be called in about a week, Withers said.

In authorizing the leave for Williams, the welfare board named assistant director Douglas H. Hoard as acting director of the department, according to board member Mrs. John D. Rumsey.

Vatican City (AP) — Pope Paul VI laid down guidelines to follow for Roman Catholic bishops, allowing them limited powers to make exceptions to church rules on celibacy, marriage and the life of priests and nuns.

Vatican sources said the decree actually granted the bishops broad powers they never had before. The Pope's decree spells out what bishops can and cannot do under general changes proposed by the Vatican Ecumenical Council to give bishops a larger voice in running church affairs.

Surgeon Places 3 Artificial Heart Valve in Woman

LONDON (AP)—Demonstrating his pioneering technique to a medical convention, an American surgeon, Dr. Albert Starr, last night replaced three valves in the heart of a woman patient with artificial ones.

Two hundred doctors watched the 7½-hour operation on a wide screen color television.

Starr, of the University of Oregon in Eugene, performed the operation on Mrs. Zilva Vavsi, 37, a Turkish Cypriot living in London. She suffers from a rheumatic heart condition.

"So far, there has been nothing to indicate any problem to mar the eventual outcome," said the surgeon, 40, later.

Starr reported on his "ball-in-a-cage" mechanism for substituting the heart's natural valves to a medical convention in Atlantic City, N.J., last October. He was asked by British surgeons to demonstrate the development.

SPECTACULAR RESULTS

At the Atlantic City convention Starr reported that "spectacular" results had been achieved with his method in 31 patients, who, he said, were otherwise headed for certain death.

In the operation last night Starr virtually took Mrs. Vavsi's heart. He cut out three of her four heart valves and replaced them with ball valves of his own invention. They are made of plastic, metal and rubber.

He operated at St. Thomas' Hospital in central London. A mile away, across the River Thames, British and foreign heart specialists sat in the private center of the Royal College of Surgeons and watched on closed circuit television.

The four-inch incision made by Starr was projected to fill a 14 by 14 foot screen.

EXPLAINED TECHNIQUE

As he worked, Starr explained his technique.

He was assisted by Dr. M. V. Brainsbridge, senior lecturer in cardiac surgery at St. Thomas' Hospital, and two of his own staff who were flown here.

Starr used a heart-lung pump to take over circulation from the flagging heart, then the blood was cooled with a deep freeze unit until the heart stopped.

He cut away the diseased valves, then pushed in the man-made replacements.

STARTED AGAIN

The heart was started again by reheating the blood.

After the operation, the bespectacled Starr threw his arms high in triumph after Sister Louisa Plater had administered a triumphant kiss on his cheek.

"It is unusual to have such extensive valve disease," he said. "The result should be good with the patient restored to moderate activity."

The operation will not cost Mrs. Vavsi anything.

Astronauts Tell of Difficulties on Rendezvous

Say Mission Shows Radar Essential for Lunar Craft Rescue

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini 9 astronauts said today radar will be essential if an Apollo spacecraft has to go to the rescue of two astronauts who have started a descent toward the moon and for some reason decide not to land.

Rehearsal of this rescue technique was a major achievement on the three-day space flight of astronauts Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene A. Cernan earlier this month.

Difficulties encountered in the tricky maneuver were disclosed by the astronauts today at a news conference at the Manned Spacecraft Center.

To set up the rendezvous maneuver, the Gemini 9 pilots moved their spacecraft to a point several hundred miles ahead of and about eight miles above the target — called an ATDA for Augmented Target Docking Adapter.

This meant they had to zero in on the target from above — trying to spot it against a fast-moving background of land features and clouds.

"CLASSIC TEST"

"Without radar we never would have found the ATDA," Stafford said. "It was like a period on a piece of typing paper. It was a real classic test in relative motion."

"It really moved across the surface of the earth," Cernan added.

"We lost it visually many times against the very bright reflected light from the earth and especially against the oceans."

THUNDERING DRUMS — A Pontiac Central High School commencement ceremony at Wisner Memorial Stadium seems like a fine idea — until the storm clouds begin hovering. Then everyone starts to worry — like junior Charles Moss, 517

Branch, who had the problem of keeping himself, his drum and his music protected during unimpeachable choruses of "Pomp and Circumstance." The rain came and, somehow, the band played on.

542 Graduate From Central

Rain Doesn't Dampen Spirit of the Occasion

Despite a 15-minute downpour at the outset, Pontiac Central High School last night graduated 542 seniors in ceremonies at Wisner Memorial Stadium.

Pontiac Central Principal Francis W. Staley announced to the anxious audience that the ceremony would not be postponed because of the threatening clouds.

The clouds, he assured them, would last only a few minutes.

The seniors were drenched as they marched onto the stadium before waiting parents and friends.

However, the rain had subsided by the time Dr. David Molyneux began the commencement address.

The pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Flint delivered a speech entitled "Barbarians At the Gates."

Rev. Molyneux was introduced by Pontiac Board of Education President Monroe M. Osun, who presided at the ceremony.

Diplomas were awarded by Pontiac Schools Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer.

Romney Raps Plan for Osteopath School

Gov. George Romney said last night it would be unwise to establish a new medical college before completion of a State Board of Education study.

In an address at Mackinac Island, Romney indicated, he would probably veto a pending bill to create a osteopathic college authority to govern a proposed medical school to be located at Auburn and Opdyke.

"No one has the right individually to make such a major decision based either upon the ambitions of a single institution or the power and influence of lobbyists in Lansing," he said.

The House is considering a bill that would establish the osteopathic college authority and, lawmakers say, commit the state to support the proposed college.

"An obvious gap exists today between the number of trained medical personnel needed and the number being provided," Romney told a convention of the Michigan Hospital Association.

To some, the apparent answer is a head-long rush into additional facilities.

"I regard the question of additional medical colleges to be a matter of such import as to be subject to the most thorough decision-making process possible," he said.

The governor also recommended a state system of hospital licensing.

"The public has a right to expect certain minimum standards applicable to all who would operate facilities, standards which can be set only by the state and enforced by the state," he said.

Heat, Danger of Fires Block Search Efforts

20 Known Dead, 12 Missing in Collision of 2 Tankers in NY

NEW YORK (AP) — Intense heat and a continuing danger of new fires thwarted efforts today to search for more victims in the twisted metal left by the flaming collision yesterday of two ships here, the Coast Guard said.

More than 18 hours after the collision in the Kill Van Kull channel in lower New York Harbor, firemen still were pouring foam onto the smoking, smoldering bulk of the British tanker Alva Cape, trying to cool her down and insure that her remaining volatile naphtha cargo does not catch fire again.

The Coast Guard placed the toll of known dead at 20 among 101 crewmen on the tankers and two escorting tugs which also caught fire after the collision.

Twelve men were listed as missing. Of 59 survivors, 40 were hospitalized.

Police listed known dead at 21.

CARRYING NAPHTHA

The British tanker was carrying the naphtha cargo. The other vessel, the American tanker Texaco Massachusetts, was empty.

A harbor pilot, Donald Baker, 45, of Massapequa Park, N.Y., who was aboard the Alva Cape at the time of the collision, said the disaster apparently was caused by a mixup in signals.

Baker said the Texaco Massachusetts, which was pulling out of a tank farm, signaled the Alva Cape, which was coming into the channel, that the two ships would cross paths.

Chicago Pair Believe They Have Tot Back

CHICAGO (AP) — The mystery that enveloped the hospital kidnapping two years ago of 37-hour-old Paul Joseph Fronczak has been reopened with the adoption of a child by the parents.

The infant was taken from Mrs. Chester Fronczak's arms in Michael Reese Hospital April 27, 1964, by a woman posing as a nurse.

The woman, who said she was taking the infant for an examination, walked out of the hospital with the baby. They were never seen again.

They said the woman who had the baby was playing in the Fronczak yard since last week.

Boy Drowns in Area Pond

A 12-year-old Rochester youth drowned yesterday afternoon in about eight feet of water in Rochdale Pond at Rochdale and Rockingham in Avon Township.

The victim was Richard R. Boice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boice of 112 N. Alice.

A companion, John Geist, 11, of 1473 Walton, Avon Township, attempted to rescue the Boice boy, pulling him ashore and applying mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Geist told sheriff's deputies that Boice was standing in waist-deep water when he dove beneath the surface.

Geist said he jumped in after Boice after spotting bubbles. Boice was found lying face-down on the bottom of the pond.

According to the Geist boy, Boice was submerged for only about a minute.

Wire Service Contab Draws Senate Rivals

GAYLORD (AP)—The state's three leading contenders for U. S. senator meet here today on the same stage for the first time during the current campaign.

Former Gov. G. Mennen Williams; his rival for the Democratic nomination, Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh; and Republican Sen. Robert Griffin will address a luncheon meeting of the Michigan Associated Press Editorial Association. Pontiac Press Editor John Fitzgerald and Managing Editor Harry Reed are attending the meetings.

Elsewhere on the political scene, Zolton Ferency, Democratic candidate for governor, Thursday accused Gov. George Romney of moving toward the political right.

Ferency, state Democratic chairman, said in Lansing that Romney "didn't need the right-wing GOP conservatives in 1964, but he does now."

CITES 'ENDORSEMENT'
That is why, said Ferency, Romney endorsed Ronald Reagan, Republican gubernatorial candidate in California. Ferency described Reagan as a chief spokesman of Barry Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential nominee.

Romney sent Reagan a telegram of congratulations after his primary election victory.

"Goldwater and Reagan haven't changed but Romney has," Ferency said in a statement. He accused Romney of "inconsistency and fundamental political dishonesty."

LBj, Wilson to Meet in July

British Leader Will Come to Washington

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson and President Johnson will meet in Washington next month, it was announced today.

The announcement from No. 10 Downing Street said the visit would take place in the second half of July.

"The prime minister and the President of the United States have agreed that it would be useful for them to meet again for one of their periodic exchanges of views on world problems," it said.

"This meeting will take place in Washington in the second half of July. The exact date will be announced in due course."

An official spokesman commented that it is "nearly seven months" since Wilson and President Johnson last met in Washington "though they have been in communication."

He said the prime minister and the President "like to meet one another from time to time."

Main subjects expected to be discussed included: NATO and changes forced in its military deployment by President Charles de Gaulle's decision to pull French troops out July 1.

— East-West relations in general.

— The situation in the Far East, including Viet Nam and Britain's role "East of Suez."

400 Waterford Teachers at School Board Meeting

About 400 teachers, some carrying placards urging that the contract demands be accepted, attended the Waterford Township School Board meeting last night at Waterford Kettering High School.

A negotiating session was held yesterday afternoon with a representative of the State Labor Mediation Board, the first time that group had been called to the bargaining table in the four-month dispute.

Another meeting is scheduled for 10 a.m. next Thursday.

A total of 24 negotiating sessions have been held since Feb. 11, amounting to more than 100 hours of talks.

The sides are $100 apart in beginning salaries for teachers. The WEA wants an $8,500 starting salary and $9,013 maximum for teachers with bachelor's degrees.

DEMANDS
Current WEA demands for teachers with masters' degrees range from $6,275 to $10,043.

The WEA's original request in February was $6,200 to $10,043.

Downed Pilot Says Goodbye in N. Viet Raid

SAIGON (UPI) — American war planes dodged Russian-built missiles and hit North Viet Nam with 90 missiles, U.S. spokesmen said today. A U.S. Navy jet fighter went down, and the pilot radioed that Communist troops were closing in on him.

The pilot bade farewell to fellow fliers in a hurried message over his escape radio.

In Saigon, Viet Cong terrorists exploded a deadly Claymore mine and a hand grenade at a bus stop today, wounding 10 Americans, two Koreans and three Vietnamese.

BOOSTS ODDS
With the reinforcements, Ky pushed the odds in the government's favor in the event of further skirmishes with pro-Buddhist elements of the 1,500-man local garrison of the Vietnamese army's 1st Infantry Division.

The junta paratroopers killed one infantryman and wounded at least three Thursday in breaking up a march by anti-government troops under Buddhist banners.

Government tanks rumbled into the downtown area after the shooting.

Ky's forces seemed in control of most of Hue, except for the ancient walled citadel where Viet Nam's emperors once lived and which now serves as headquarters for the Vietnamese 1st Division.

Army Reservists to Leave for Camp

Army Reservists of Pontiac's 2nd Battalion, 333rd Regiment of the 70th Division, will leave Sunday for Camp Atterbury, Ind., for a two-week stay.

While there, they will team with the 1st and 3rd Battalions from Flint to train 1,000 recruits of the 38th Infantry Division of the Indiana National Guard, returning to Pontiac July 2.

Emphasis will be placed on individual qualification with the M1 rifle in the training program. The battalion, under command of Lt. Col. James K. Sutton, is comprised of four training companies and a headquarters.

The AT Skyhawk went down 40 miles north of Vinh. Fellow pilots circled overhead hoping to protect him long enough for a rescue helicopter to pick him up until the short goodbyes crackled over their radios.

Witnesses said one of the tugs exploded, igniting naphtha leaking from the Alva Cape.

Crewmen from both ships and the tugs clambered overboard only to find the water a boiling sea of flame from the burning naphtha.

Coast Guard and police rescuers in boats and helicopters plucked survivors from the sea. There were tales of heroism among the crewmen.

DESCRIPTS HEROICS
"There was a man in every man," said Alfonso Colon, 56, chief pumpman of the Texaco Massachusetts, describing the behavior of the men in the fiery water.

Colon told of one unidentified crewman who "took off his own life belt and gave it to somebody else. Then he kept swimming from one man to another and helped them to the buoy."

Colon said his ship struck the Alva Cape and "cut through them like a knife."

"Then naphtha started to pour out of the Cape," Colon said.

Bloomfield Hills Offer Is Rejected by Teachers

BLOOMFIELD HILLS—Teachers represented by the Bloomfield Hills Education Association (BHEA) last night rejected, by a vote of 158 to 10, the latest Board of Education contract proposal.

The board proposed a schedule of $4,600 starting salary for teachers with bachelor's degrees with a maximum of $9,900 after 11 years.

Those with a bachelor's degree plus 20 hours were offered $5,000 starting salary with $9,100 after 11 years.

Teachers with master's degrees were offered $5,150 starting salary and a maximum of $10,500 after 11 years.

Those with a master's degree plus 30 hours would receive $6,450 starting salary and $10,800 after 11 years.

Although the board and teachers are only approximately $100 per teacher apart in their proposals, George E. Cavin, head of the teacher's negotiating team, and Mrs. Jane Marshall, BHEA president, said one of the main factors of rejecting the proposal was the board's incentive pay proposal.

The board included in the contract proposal the present incentive pay procedure, limiting the number of teachers to receive it to 30 per cent of the qualified teachers.

Cavin and Mrs. Marshall said the teachers believe there should be no arbitrary percentage figure since it is possible that more than 80 per cent are deserving of the increase.

Cavin said the board's limitation is contrary to the principal of incentive pay.

PROCEDURAL STEPS
Other procedural steps included in the board's contract proposal were also rejected by the teachers.

The most recent salary proposal presented by the teachers called for a starting salary of $5,700 for those with a bachelor's degree and a maximum of $9,400 after 10 years.

Those with a bachelor's degree plus 20 hours would receive $6,150 starting salary and $9,600 after 10 years.

Teachers with a master's degree would receive $6,150 starting salary and $10,000 after 10 years.

After 10 years

Negotiations will continue to day at 1 p.m.

BIRMINGHAM — Teachers in the Birmingham Education Association (BEA) have rejected the Board of Education's latest salary proposal which provided an average increase of $604 per teacher.

The cost of the board's proposal amounted to $488,000.

With yearly increases, each year would have salary increases ranging from $650 to $1,225, with an average of $863.

The teachers are asking for a $750,000 contract package with average salary increases of approximately $1,000 per teacher, according to Don Cameron, BEA president.

Ecorse School Heads Pass Test

The Ecorse teachers' strike and the action by school authorities in firing the 194 strikers may prove to be the showdown on the State law that bans strikes by public employees.

It is high time that such flagrant disregard of the public interest be appraised for what it is, and high time that employees guilty of such dereliction be held accountable under the law.

As civil employees become increasingly organized, with the general populace cast in the role of victim when unresolved issues between labor and administration result in strikes, legal ground rules must be established and adhered to by all parties concerned. The alternative is disintegration of public service.

Labor has been prone to claim all rights and privileges of Federal and state laws by which it benefits; reluctant in many cases to abide by those that impose obligation and responsibility to employer or society.

In the Ecorse case, the teachers that struck June 3 appear to be in violation of a state law originally passed in 1947 and amended in 1965. Although the law has been invoked in the educational area on six previous occasions, it has never met judicial decision because settlement of issues forestalled such action.

We are heartily in accord with the Ecorse Board of Education and Supt. RALPH BRANTY in their forthright action under the law that, free of contrived interpretations, fits precisely the crisis confronting the City's school system.

Fred V. Haggard

The untimely death of FRED V. HAGGARD deprives the area of a highly-regarded labor executive and a community-minded citizen who had devoted a quarter-century to serving his twin interests.

Mr. HAGGARD rose in the organizational ranks of labor to become president of Oakland County AFL-CIO Council.

At the same time he became

an outstanding figure in Pontiac's civic and civil affairs, serving on the boards of many of the community's foremost agencies.

Deliberate and soft-spoken, Mr. HAGGARD's stature expanded with his responsibilities, and his counsel won deep respect within the many circles that benefited from his untiring participation.

The area will sorely miss this sterling character whose passing is mourned by a large number of friends and associates.

Valid Reasons for Defense of South Viet Nam

When the JOHNSON Administration asserted in its defense against critics of the U.S. military escalation in Viet Nam that President EISENHOWER made the initial commitment in a letter to President Ngo DINH DIEM, the former President promptly denied any military commitment was made.

So the JOHNSON Administration then gave other and more valid reasons for U.S. defense of South Viet Nam from Communist aggression.

Now the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has added to the foreign aid bill a policy clause asserting that U.S. military or other aid "shall not be construed as creating a new commitment or as affecting any existing commitment to use armed forces of the United States for the defense of any foreign country."

Except as a rebuke to President JOHNSON, the clause has no meaning or validity. The reasons for U.S. armed intervention will always be of greater weight than could possibly be ascribed to foreign aid.

President EISENHOWER hoped to assist in containing Communist expansion by helping the South Vietnamese with economic aid, weapons and military training cadres.

President Johnson saw the necessity of sending more troops to Viet Nam, as well as employing naval and air power. No clause in a foreign aid bill would have dissuaded him.

In fact some people think pretty strongly that President JOHNSON runs a one man show and that he makes all the decisions.

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — To an American, the wheels within wheels in South Viet Nam — power struggles, inner conflicts, Buddhist uprisings, endless government changes — are an exasperating, confusing sight.

Now perhaps the spinning wheels will slow down. Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, a 35-year-old air force general, seems to have overcome the extremist Buddhist leadership which sought to get rid of him.

How did he manage this when others failed? For one thing, he used force against the opposition. But that isn't enough explanation. The real story behind Ky's tactics and success hasn't been told yet.

Some of it can be guessed at by way of contrast in the person of President Ngo Dinh Diem who was toppled and killed in 1963 after using extremely violent force against the Buddhists.

He was inflexible, without alternatives, a dictator without the necessary political instincts to survive. He gave no indication he intended to yield any power or share it. He underestimated the intensity of his opposition and wasn't shrewd enough to split it by showing some willingness to compromise. By his stubbornness he solidified the opposition.

Ky was sharper. When the Buddhists got on his back, complaining that his military government of 10 generals should be replaced by a more representative one of civilians, he agreed, although not saying exactly when.

His concession could be expected to, and obviously did, satisfy his moderate critics. This seemed to show up quickly when the extremist Buddhists, tasting some success, wanted more fast; they wanted Ky out in a hurry, but apparently did not have the masses of Viet Nam behind them.

But there was more to Ky's tactics than just making a big concession. When the extremist Buddhists in Da Nang rioted, Ky sent in troops to crush them and then, at the last moment, pulled back.

The reason seems clear enough: He wasn't yet sure that most of the country would stand for it. He waited until, apparently, he felt sure. Then he turned the troops loose in Da Nang. No more trouble, there.

FASCINATING STORY

As this is written, the extremist effort seems crushed. But how Ky decided on his tactics and his timing will be a fascinating story, if it ever comes out.

That he now feels self-confident was clear enough Wednesday when his military government said it would stay in power until 1967, permitting only a step-by-step march to civilian government.

They Don't Use Rice Any More

David Lawrence Says:

Congress Recess Seems Likely

WASHINGTON — Congress is getting tired and wants a vacation. President Johnson agrees with the idea but wishes to make it conditional on the willingness of both houses to pass or report out of committee certain important measures.

LAWRENCE

It looks now, however, as if, for the first time, Congress is going to get a lengthy recess in midsummer.

In a formal sense, the vacation period will be only 10 days, but this actually means two or three weeks, as members like to get away early and come back late.

Back of the whole drive for a bit of rest is a peculiar set of circumstances. For neither house has been over-worked.

It has been a dull session thus far, and nothing has been acted upon that could possibly be pushed aside or held in committee.

The House of Representatives seldom meets beyond Thursday of any week and the Senate doesn't meet that often.

The leaders frequently have been hard put to find legislation on the calendar to take up the day's session.

Most of the bills involving the Great Society program have been kept away from the floor.

Many members recently began to get restless and the vacation idea was given considerable support. The argument is that members do not get back home to their districts often enough and that they miss a chance to evaluate the sentiment of their constituents on current issues.

With reappointment in many districts, most members feel much more campaigning is going to be required this summer than for years past. President Johnson heard about the drive for a recess and figured that he might be able to take advantage of it by insisting that some of the important bills on the calendar be acted on at once.

Certainly the prospect of a vacation has stepped up the tempo on both sides of the political aisle.

Thus, the foreign-aid bill is being reported out and the civil-rights measure is emerging from the subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

Audate has been set for the House Rules Committee to take a vote on the anti-poverty bill which it has been holding up. The auto-safety measures are being ready for floor action in both houses.

Appropriation bills have been rather slow moving in this Congress. The bills to provide funds for the Viet Nam war have been pushed along, but the regular appropriation bills have trailed behind.

gress adjourn too soon before the election, because a member always likes to give the impression that his presence is demanded in Washington.

They find themselves embarrassed by being home too often when there is a war going on in Viet Nam and big decisions are being made.

This is an additional reason why the midsummer recess has won widespread acclaim in the Halls of Congress, as it is likely to leave less objection.

Capital Letter:

I Dreamed Mrs. Wallace Put George in His Place

By RUTH MONTGOMERY

WASHINGTON — We dreamed that we were in the governor's mansion at Montgomery, Ala., on a bright morning near January.

George Wallace, bolting the last of his grits and red-eye gravy, shoved back his chair and Montgomery said:

"Lurleen, honey, that was a great 'I'll' breakfast. I'll be callin' you from the office 'bout whether I can get home to dinner."

"Wha-a-a office, sweetie pie?" his wife drawled.

Stopping at the doorway, he said, "Why, the governor's office, like always."

Lurleen Wallace, gliding past him into the hall, smiled sweetly. "You better stay home today, sugar! A delegation from the Ladies' Aid is comin' at 11 o'clock to make you a honorary chairman of their fund-raiser' drive."

GROCERY LIST

"Here's the grocery list, and don't forget to call the laundry about that hemstitch they tore. I'll be seein' ya."

With that she stepped blithely into the waiting car, as the chauffeur doffed his hat and murmured, "Good mornin', Madame Gov'nor."

Wallace, standing wide-eyed at the door, watched the car pull out of the drive.

A short time later he stalked out to the sunshine. Entering a phone booth at the corner drugstore, he finally managed to get his wife on the telephone, and began exuberantly: "Look heah, Lurleen, a joke is a joke, but this has gone far enough. I'll be there in two minutes, and you better lemme in that office."

CANASTA CLUB

"Now George, honey," she purred, "you've gotta have to learn to put in your own time while I'm at work. Maybe you oughta join a canasta or bridge club."

"Canasta!" he bellowed. "Lurleen, I'm the governor of this state in all but name, and... who you got in your office?"

Smilingly noting that he had unconsciously used the word "you," she replied: "Some officials from the poverty program in Washington. These nice gentlemen are allocating $135,000 from an Upward-Bound Project on the university campus, and Dr. Martin Luther King says a lovely group of students will come from... George, what was that crash? George? George?"

Alas, the crash awakened us, too.

Deplores Latest Ruling of U.S. Supreme Court

The Earl Warren Supreme Court has done it again! According to its latest decision, it is now next to impossible for the police to question legally any apprehended suspect or criminal.

In view of the fact that crimes of violence are at an all-time high, one would expect the Supreme Court to lean toward encouraging more stringent support of law and order, but this the Court fails to do. It seems determined to provide a way of escape from justice for every hoodlum punk and criminal thug. It is alarming to note how many of the Warren Court rulings favor the Communists, narcotic peddlers and all criminals.

Will Congress ever take action to correct this situation?

Also, I don't think that anything should be taken from one and given to another—anything worth having should be earned. That's how we got ours and the only way. The government is supposed to be by the people and for the people—not for the NAACP. Let's have civil rights for everyone.

Advocating New Law for Bicycle Safety

I work in a hospital and have just completed the admitting records on a little boy who was hit from behind while riding his bicycle. Other than a broken leg, contusions, lacerations and a possible concussion, he is not in dire danger.

I have long believed that bicyclists should ride facing the traffic but have never expressed my views, in the belief that wider heads than mine would change the law if there were not some advantage to keeping it as it is now. If there is such an advantage I have failed to discover it.

When I drive, I am frightened when I see bicyclists ahead. They weave and bob and if they hit a bump or a rut they may veer right in front of me or into the side of my car. When I have ridden a bicycle, I have been frightened to find cars only inches away from me before I became aware of them and have come very close to being run down because of my own startled reaction.

Question and Answer

What has happened to the Community Activities building in Waterford? I thought it was for all to use, but one must pay a high price, and this is pulling people away. What happened to the vending machines? Since C.A.I. facilities aren't open all the time, the machines served the public more than the building.

ONE MORE PULL AWAY

REPLY

Director Wedell says the organization isn't tax-supported, and UP provides only about 20 per cent of the budget, so building rental had to be raised the first time in ten years to cover expenses. He says the $25 per hour fee ($4.00 for community service groups) is less than any comparable facility. Dr. Naz, president of the organization, says vending machines were removed because they brought nothing but complaints about improper functioning, incorrect change, etc., and were broken into at least five times. Dr. Naz is sorry you're dissatisfied, but feels most of the community is pleased by the work of the board members, who are making every effort (even refinishing the floor themselves) to provide the best service possible on a tight budget.

People's GOP

The Grand Haven Daily Tribune

Governor Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon is a special kind of Republican. He was no table-thumping, partisan attack on the Democrats, even though a county fund-raising dinner for the GOP at Spring Lake could have been the locale for such a performance.

Articulate, penetrating, reasonable, youthful, the Governor spoke frankly of Republican shortcomings as well as virtues. He, like Governor George Romney of Michigan, is one of the group of new Republicans who is seeking to rebuild the party into a winning political force. This takes a sense of philosophy as well as a hard-hitting campaign approach.

The Governor declared again and again that the Republicans must place a high priority on people. He implied that the failure of the GOP in past years was to analyze the needs and wants of the mass of people caused their party's decline. Yet today the GOP offers about the only hope of restoring the dignity of individualism to the American way of life.

The Governor reminded his audience that it was people and their creativity at the local level that launched virtually every program which today the federal government likes to claim as its own. Education, highways, help for the poor and the sick were at first strictly local concerns.

The trend toward ignoring the law in seeking to solve vexing problems is of major concern to the Oregon Governor. The courts and the legislative bodies were created to handle the laws, not mobs on the streets. Laws can be changed by constitutional process. If there is no willingness to work under inspired rules of procedure, there will be no spirit to enforce any law. The frightening end result of inaction despite law could be anarchy. Republicans must fight this threat to the human spirit with everything they have.

The speaker emphasized that there are enough major agreement areas in the Republican view to outweigh by far the individual differences that also exist.

We have an idea that this approach is much more in keeping with political reality than the old fire-eating partisan mudslinging. This must be true, since Governor Hatfield, in a "traditionally Democratic state," Oregon, has run away with the laurels in his election attempts so far.

Both Amateurs and Professionals

Arranging Leans Toward Originality

In the United States, flower arranging is beginning to reach out toward greater freedom and originality. Both amateur and professional flower arrangers now realize that it is a danger that the art may become too stylized and formal just as it did in Japan under the auspices of its many great teachers and rival schools.

This new trend toward freedom is that in almost every flower show today there is at least one "As You Like It" class in which the contestants may make any arrangement he or she chooses. And more and more contestants are choosing to make what they call "abstract" designs.

To devotees of Japan's classical flower arranging traditions, the present interest on the part of leading Japanese and Western arrangers in the abstract style seems nothing short of heresy. It is nonetheless true that there is currently worldwide enthusiasm for this school of arranging. The abstract arrangements you see here are from the Better Homes and Gardens Flower Arranging book.

They are the work of Norman J. Sparrow, a former Australian Army Colonel and Japanese language expert who served with American combat units through the bitter island-hopping campaigns of the South Pacific during World War II. Although he has earned the title of "master" in both traditional and modern schools of flower arranging in Japan,

Sparrow has turned enthusiastically to the abstract style because he believes it offers more freedom for personal expression. What, exactly, are the elements of an abstract flower arrangement? In their book which also contains excellent examples of Traditional, Oriental and Modern arrangements, the editors of Better Homes and Gardens provide this description: "There is an element of surprise in most abstract arrangements. It stems both from new uses of old materials and from the use of unorthodox materials, like feathers or plastic rod.

Key Lime History Leads to Yucatah

The Key Lime may not be a wild fruit species native to the Florida Keys, as is commonly believed. Mrs. Sarah R. W. Palmer says that the Key limes are all descended from a handful of lime seeds brought to Florida from Yucatan by her grandfather, Henry Perrine in 1827. She also says that all seven varieties of the agave found in South Florida were also brought by him from Yucatan. Perrine also introduced the wild coffee which descends from Arabian coffee seed.

Goat's Beard for Gardens

Perfect for a conversation piece in your garden is the state-ly herbaceous goat's beard, aruncus sylvestris. Its 4- to 6-foot stems bear clusters of slender racemes of small white flowers in plume-like panicles through June and July. Hardy, it prefers shady locations. British Idea Tops for Sparce Bloom

Having a party in your garden soon? If so, you might want to take a tip imported from Britain. The English use clay potted flowering and foliage plants sunk in the ground to "flesh out" gardens for special events.

"Nothing is barred, so far as abstract arrangers are concerned. Wires, bits of metal, painted or bleached stems and leaves — all these and more are acceptable if used imaginatively. DARING DESIGN "Veering away from tradition in another area, abstract arrangers are constantly seeking new kinds of containers. Some may be the work of leading contemporary potters; or they may be homemade "constructions" of daring design.

Or abstract arrangements may have no containers at all — in the conventional sense — materials being assembled instead on some kind of base. In short, fantasy and surprise seem to characterize many abstract arrangements. Flower arrangers, like artists in the fields of music, painting, sculpture and architecture, definitely have broken with tradition to develop a contemporary style in which they feel at home, unbound by most rules of the past.

Golden Delicious Has Anniversary

The Golden Delicious apple is more than 50 years old. A bronze plaque has been placed at Morgantown, W. Va., in honor of this popular apple variety. The Golden Delicious is now planted in Europe, Africa, the Middle and Far East. It first was introduced on the farm of Anderson Mullins in the Porter Creek area of Clay County, W. Va. The original tree was bought by Stark Brothers Nursery and Orchards Co., of Louisiana, Mo. And from this one tree, 24 million trees have been propagated around the world, with an apple crop worth an estimated half billion dollars.

Plant Likes Hot Weather

Texas A&M University has developed a new tomato variety described as a sweet, hot-weather item suitable for growing in the family garden. Plant pathologist Arthur L. Harrison said the new tomato, called "Summertime," should be planted in May or June and will begin producing in 60 days. It is undaunted by hot weather and continues to produce until frost, he said.

Controls Put on Diet Foods

U. S. Orders Affect Labeling, Content

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced new regulations today which affect the labeling or content, or both, of most special diet foods and diet supplements.

Dr. James G. Goddard, commissioner of food and drugs, told a news conference the regulations are designed to become effective 180 days after publication Saturday in the Federal Register.

Interested parties may file objections within 30 days and Goddard said effectiveness of individual provisions may be stayed if there are legally justified requests for public hearings.

The new regulations are a complete revision of a proposal announced four years ago.

More than 50,000 comments were received. Goddard said 99 per cent of the comments were in the form of printed postcards and resulted from an organized campaign, opposed to the proposed regulations.

The Food and Drug Administration said the revised regulations are aimed at providing the consumer with more facts about the food he buys for weight control, for dietary supplementation with vitamins and minerals, and for other special diet needs such as controlling salt intake.

A major change from current practice is adoption of Recommended Dietary Allowances as a guide to meeting nutritional needs. These allowances, based upon findings of the National Academy of Sciences, replace what Goddard described as "outdated 35-year-old concept of 'minimum daily requirements'."

Romney indicated he would immediately ask Robert J. McIntosh, director of the Department of Commerce, as well as other officials who are responsible for certain transportation functions, to determine how the
