New Truck Design Idea at GMTC

By HAROLD A. FITZGERALD
Publisher, Pontiac Press

According to a statement today by Philip J. Monaghan, General Manager of GMC Truck and Coach Division, this plant is in the midst of the most sensational and forward step in the history of the trucking industry. "Everyone down on South Boulevard is excited over this wonderful development," said Monaghan, "and I'm happy to report the top echelon of the whole corporation shares our enthusiasm."

"Some time back, we started a gigantic engineering design and quality-control program that will gain in speed and intensity as it goes along. This is the greatest forward surge the trucking industry has ever seen. Furthermore, the plan is backed by the entire know-how and planning of the GM corporation and the keenest brains and manufacturing ability in the business."

"We've labeled the operation 'High Gear.' It's a new philosophy and a new attitude of mind. We started in," said Monaghan, "to design a truck the way a truck wanted to be built—instead of letting it grow like Topsy. Previously, all trucks used components of passenger cars, with many changes that tried to incorporate new ideas and requirements. But these hodgepodge moves never produced a scientific vehicle."

GMC took a clean sheet of paper, forgot the mechanics of the truck as it existed and started over. To scrap the past would cost millions of dollars, so Monaghan took these new ideas to the corporation. He sold them on his program and top officials endorsed the complete set-up and appropriated the money required. The work has been going forward quietly. The walls, floor and ceiling of the South Boulevard plant remain. But a large part of the interior has been replaced and this includes very expensive machinery.

The new trucks have these essential qualities:
Lighter weight
Stronger frames
More miles per gallon
More payload per pound of truck
Longer life

In passenger cars, looks and personal desires are very important. But the truck is a cold-blooded, mechanical proposition. Buyers want the vehicle that holds the most payload, operates at the lowest cost, has the least weight itself and lasts for the greatest number of miles.

"Our new trucks," says Monaghan, "have licked the entire industry in all these things. We have not re-adapted something that existed before. We started from scratch. Furthermore, for these better products, the initial price is not only tremendously competitive with all other makes of equal sizes, but in many cases it's considerably lower. I'm more optimistic about the future of the GMC Trucks today than I have ever been in history. The outlook has never been as bright."

"New transit buses will appear around the middle of 1959," he said, "and by October the complete new line will be offered. Probably the bulk of these will require 12 months in the field in the hands of hard-boiled users before the new vehicles have completely established the fact they can perform the way we claim. Truck users—large and small—want to find the essential facts for themselves."

"The conversion of the 'old' truck plant to the 'new' requires the largest sum of money ever spent here in GM's history. The whole automotive industry is going forward in the next several years; but we're going to advance faster than the rest. Our potential growth in the next five years is the greatest in the history of our division."

"We are building approximately 300 large trucks a day and are falling behind every 24 hours. Orders are mounting. This new vehicle is backed by the best brains in the automotive industry, plus a new philosophy which sponsors a completely new picture. Everyone in our division is squarely behind this development and there is wonderful acceptance in the whole corporation," said the General Manager.

"Also, our new line of buses will occupy an equal position. At the low point of the last few years, we were employing around 7,000 men. Today the total is 9,500 and we have added a large number since the first of October. Our big plant on South Boulevard should be a most stabilizing force in Pontiac."

"Our sales don't necessarily follow passenger cars as people in Pontiac already know; and I think this will be even truer in the future. We have always been a balance wheel of sorts and now our employment is actually creeping toward Pontiac's."

"In 1957, we built around 600 diesel trucks and since these have been in the field and have proven their worth and merit, the orders have jumped to around 400 a month. The word of truck performance slowly spreads among users. Until a big truck firm has put a hundred thousand miles on the speedometer and studied detailed cost sheets, it always takes a 'show me' attitude. A year from now our new products will have proven themselves and word will be spreading within the industry of this superior performance per dollar."

"I would also like to make another point," said Monaghan. "When truck buyers in the Pontiac area pass over their own GMC trucks for competitive makes, they deny employment in Pontiac and provide it to rival cities. We have the best products in all weights and sizes and we want to think that the local community believes in us and supports us as completely as we do the area."

"We take part in United Fund drives, etc. in a big way; and we are sure that truck buyers will return this confidence, especially when they realize they are helping a home industry and providing more jobs in Pontiac. We want the support of the area in actions as well as words. With all of us working together, we can build Pontiac to a bigger, greater and finer city."

Serov Suddenly Transferred

Red Security Chief Out

MOSCOW (U) — The Soviet Union's top policeman, Gen. Ivan A. Serov, has been relieved of his job.

The announcement in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia today said he had been transferred to other duties but gave no hint of what they were. Serov's successor as chairman of the Committee for State Security also was not announced.

Most foreign observers in Moscow believed Serov may perhaps have been given an even more important job.

He has long been a friend and close associate of Nikita S. Khrushchev, who heads both the government and the Communist Party.

Some Western experts on Soviet affairs believed Serov had been demoted because the Izvestia announcement did not give his new post, the customary procedure when a Kremlin official is promoted.

Serov, a 53-year-old army general, had become well known abroad in recent years for being in charge of security arrangements on Premier Khrushchev's trips. He was widely known earlier for directing the plan to liquidate anti-Communist elements in the Baltic countries in 1940.

Serov was last seen by Western correspondents at a Kremlin reception Nov. 10 for Wladyslaw Gomulka, head of the Polish Communist Party.

A slight, ruddy-faced man with penetrating blue eyes, he was usually friendly and informal in public, chatting freely with foreign diplomats and newsmen at receptions.

After having been closely identified with Soviet security organs almost from the beginning of his career, Serov got some of the powers of Lavrenty Beria after Stalin's police chief had been executed in 1953. He formally took command of the committee which is the supreme Soviet police organ in April 1954.

Serov was one of the numerous officials now in top Soviet ranks who worked with Khrushchev when the present Premier was Communist Party boss in the Ukraine during World War II.

British newspapers have greeted Serov with such names as "butcher," "mur-derer," "odious thug" and "jackal."

The attacks were based primarily on Serov's role in purging anti-Communists from areas newly acquired by the Soviet Union.

When the Soviet Union seized the Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania in 1940, Commissar Third Class Serov formulated the plan for mass deportations to Siberia and other measures to break resistance.

20,000 Idle at Chrysler

Dodge Plant Walkout Hits Plymouth Output; Talks Go On Today

DETROIT (U) — Worker idleness at Chrysler Corp.'s automobile factories hit close to the 20,000 mark today in the Dodge main plant strike.

Layoffs in the Detroit area and at Indiana and New York plants swelled the total in the week-old production rates dispute with the United Auto Workers.

The layoffs, by which Plymouth production now also is affected, were attributed mainly to parts shortages. Chrysler has said the strike ultimately can idle 50,000 workers.

The auto union's 7,000 workers at the key Dodge main plant walked out last Tuesday, charging an unfair production speedup. The company denies this.

Included in the vital Dodge plant are Dodge car assembly, two foundries and a stamping operation. Negotiators failed again yesterday to reach an agreement and scheduled another effort today.

Chrysler laid off 12,840 men at half a dozen plants, including more than 6,000 in Detroit Plymouth factories. At Plymouth Body 3,800 were laid off and another 2,400 at Plymouth Lynch road assembly were sent home.

Life in Prison Main Desire of 1 Woman

MIAMI, Fla. (U) — Estelle Mason, 63, wanted to spend the rest of her life in jail. Instead, the judge turned her loose. "I hoped I'd get life," said Mrs. Mason. "All I got to live on is a $50 a month pension and where can you live in Miami on $50 a month? In jail I never had it so good—radio, food served in my room and hot dishes."

Returned from a year in a hospital, the white-haired Mrs. Mason pleaded guilty in Circuit Court Monday to a charge of manslaughter and received a five-year suspended sentence.

At her insistence, the state recently agreed to retry her for manslaughter, giving her a second chance at her goal—life in prison.

Gives Books for Tax Check

But Goldfine Records Not Complete, Says Internal Revenue

BOSTON, Mass. (U) — Industrialist Bernard Goldfine has turned over books and records of his companies to the Internal Revenue Service as ordered by federal court, but tax officials said the records are not complete.

A spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service said Goldfine employees did not turn in the records for one of his five companies and that the records of the other four concerns were found to be incomplete.

The tax officials said Goldfine's representatives pleaded they lacked sufficient time to assemble all the records.

A spokesman for the industrialist said a bookkeeper was at home sick and hence not all the records could be collected at short notice.

James W. Kelleher, one of Goldfine's attorneys, said the court's order would be complied with 100 per cent.

Federal officials said Goldfine aides failed Monday to produce the records of Goldfine's Lebandale Mills, Inc., Lebanon, N. H.

Federal Judge Charles E. Wyzanski had directed Goldfine and his secretary Mildred Paperman to turn over the records of five corporations to the Internal Revenue Service for study in its investigation of the firms' tax situation in 1957 and prior years.

A pre-winter blast of snow and near-zero temperatures held its icy grip on the Pontiac area today, as a big part of the eastern half of the nation fought back from the season's first storm.

Although winter doesn't officially arrive until Dec. 21, you couldn't prove this to the hundreds of Pontiac area residents who made their way through yesterday's all-day snow only to shiver to a 6 degrees early this morning.

And the mercury is expected to plummet to a low of about 3-above tonight, a reading which many residents of outlying Pontiac areas experienced this morning.

A slight warming trend should be here by Thursday, the Weather Bureau said, with Wednesday's daytime reading expected to reach around 22 degrees.

The cold spell that moved into Michigan and most of the eastern United States sent the thermometer to 17 below at Pellston. This deep-freeze left seven loaded ships ice-locked in the lower St. Mary's River.

In the northern New York community of Oswego, snow-plows battled efforts to 20 feet high in efforts to free the town virtually isolated by a storm that deposited 5 feet of snow in 24 hours.

Snow accumulated to about four inches in the Pontiac area Monday and made driving extremely hazardous. A spokesman for the County Road Commission said most major roads today were "in good shape."

Law enforcement officials in the county said, strangely enough, motorists maneuvered over slippery streets yesterday without any serious accidents.

As cold as it was in Pontiac this morning, residents were relatively "warm" compared to the traditionally coldest spot in the nation, International Falls, Minn. It was 28 degrees below zero there.

How to Please Those Who Have Everything

By JANET ODELL

"But so-and-so has everything!" Maybe so, but you can usually find some gift that will please the individual and not duplicate what he already has.

Take a gag ruler, for instance. These are large brass rulers with ridiculous sayings on them, like "Assistant Manager of the Coffee Break Division."

If she is a tea drinker, she'll love having a silver tea ball with a long handle. This is for people who dislike tea bags and want to choose their own brand of tea. You can include a box of special tea with this gift.

A variation of the sweater clips that have become an accepted accessory with a sweater is seen in one store. This pair of clips can be made into a bracelet.

Dresser valets to hold his wallet, watch and rings take the form of a wide-mouth fish, a begging puppy or a pawing bull.

Some of the prettiest Christmas candlesticks we have ever seen look like inverted wine glasses. In the bottom section each has a miniature Christmas tree.

Most girls would like to have a new evening skirt, especially if the one she gets is a bright plaid taffeta. And if she is attending a gala New Year's Eve dance, she'll love a rhinestone or pearl tiara to set on her curls.

If his hobby is guns, give him a set of cuff links and tie clasp, each set a miniature of a famous gun.

You've all heard of bird watchers. Did you ever hear of a people watcher? It's a little bird you can perch on flowers or on the edge of a shelf. Made of real feathers, too.

For the youngsters consider a telescope. With the new interest in sky watching, what with Sputnik and Explorer scooting around the heavens, this should appeal to children.

TELLS OF MOSCOW VISIT—Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) left, gestures as he answers a reporter's question at a crowded news conference yesterday. Humphrey reported on a long talk in Moscow with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Humphrey Reports to Ike on Kremlin Conferences

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) completes a politically profitable trip today, reporting to President Eisenhower on his Kremlin conferences.

With his report go a couple of messages from Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to Eisenhower. Humphrey disclosed Monday they deal with atomic energy and some Soviet suggestions on how to settle East-West problems in Germany.

Humphrey has gained wide publicity from his eight-hour conference in Moscow with Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders, and from the news conferences he has held since then in Moscow, London, New York and Washington.

His hopes for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination aren't hurt either by the invitation to confer with the President on grave international matters. Eisenhower gave the 47-year-old senator a chance to show himself in international affairs as a delegate to the United Nations last year. But he has not previously been in the top echelon of congressional Democrats consistently consulted by the administration.

Thousands Riot in Venezuela

Angered When Choice to Head Government Trails in Election

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Thousands rioted in Caracas Monday night in support of a losing presidential candidate, threatening Venezuela's transition from dictatorship to a constitutional regime.

(No word on developments in the Venezuelan capital had been received in New York early today since shortly after midnight. Overseas telephone operators said their channels to Caracas were out of order.)

The rioters were supporters of Rear Adm. Wolfgang Larrazabal, head of the junta which took control of the government after the overthrow of dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez. In returns from Sunday's presidential election he was trailing former President Romulo Betancourt, head of the leftists but anti-Communist Democratic Action party.

Latest returns gave Betancourt 1,097,360 votes to 925,540 for Larrazabal. Rafael Caldera of the Christian Socialist party had 315,589 votes.

Larrazabal had accepted Communist backing in the campaign and carried the vote in Caracas overwhelmingly, but Betancourt piled up what looked like an insurmountable lead outside the capital.

Word that Betancourt appeared the winner brought Larrazabal supporters—many of them youths—pouring into the streets where seven months ago demonstrators had massed against U.S. Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Small groups clashed with police and tried to march on the headquarters of the Electoral Council, where the official vote count was in progress. Tear gas drove them off, but they continued to surge through downtown streets, tearing down Betancourt campaign posters.

He saw less chance of a settlement of the Berlin dispute, which he said is "very serious and deep."

Three Juveniles Held by Waterford Police

Waterford Township Police have apprehended three area juveniles who have admitted stealing six high-powered rifles and pistols from various township firms in recent weeks.

The youths, two Waterford Township brothers 13 and 16 years old and a 13-year-old Pontiac boy, were questioned Monday after two of them were caught breaking into the Roger Electric Co., 2260 Dixie Highway Sunday night.

Two of the boys, caught in the act, took police to a vacant field where they had hidden the guns and other articles.

They admitted breaking into about eight places on Dixie Highway and implicated the third boy in the burglaries, police said. Officers said the youths would be questioned further and then turned over to Oakland County Juvenile authorities.

UAW Official Named Flint City Manager

FLINT (AP)—Robert A. Carter, an official of the United Auto Workers Union, has been named Flint city manager.

Carter's appointment was approved last night by the city commission.

Carter, 42, has been a director of UAW Region 1-C since 1951. He succeeds Harold C. Chirgwin who resigned last month.

Carter said he planned to resign his union job in order to take the new job.

raising campaign to aid the blind gets under way. A sale goal of 2,000 canes for $1 each has been set. So far the demand has been so great that it has been necessary to order several hundred more, Schell said.

Ex-Pontiac Teacher Sentenced in Detroit

A former Jefferson Junior High School science teacher was sentenced yesterday after a Detroit Recorder's Court jury found him guilty of possessing a stolen car.

William O. Mars, 28, who quit the Pontiac school system last June, was sentenced by Judge John A. Ricca to three years' probation, with the first six months in the Detroit House of Correction.

Mars, 2340 Tuxedo Ave., was found guilty of obtaining a junked car and transferring its title to one that had been stolen.

In Critical Condition After 12 Hours in Creek

BENTON HARBOR (AP)—The condition of Mrs. Marie Louise Barnett, whose car plunged into an icy creek Saturday, was reported "still critical" today.

A spokesman at Mercy Hospital said Mrs. Barnett's condition had not changed overnight.

Mrs. Barnett, 40, was trapped for more than 12 hours in the icy waters after her car ran off a rural road in a snowstorm. The frigid water covered three fourths of her body when she was rescued.

Mrs. Barnett suffered multiple fractures, a dislocated hip and concussion.

Buses in Pontiac to Run at Night Through Dec. 23

Beginning Thursday, Pontiac City Lines will operate bus schedules at night, Monday through Saturday, through Dec. 23.

The service is for the benefit of holiday shoppers and retail employees, said Norman L. Pattison, president of the Downtown Merchants Association.

The night schedules will be the same as those normally followed by the bus company on Monday and Friday nights, Pattison said.

"Since the stores are now open until 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, the bus company has agreed to the night service," he said.

Keeps Lincoln Assembly Going

Helicopter Carries Parts

A helicopter came to the rescue today when a truck failed to deliver necessary brake boosters to keep the Lincoln assembly plant of the Ford Motor Co. in Wixom in production.

William D. Singleton, plant manager, said that when the truck from a South Bend Bendix Corp. plant failed to arrive at 8 a.m. as scheduled, State Police were called to see if the vehicle might have been snowbound in yesterday's storm.

A check was also made to State Highway Dept. weigh stations along the scheduled route. A call to the station near Jackson disclosed the truck there. It had broken down three times, Singleton was told.

Fearing the assembly of new cars might have to be shut down for the day without the 51 brake boosters, Singleton called for a helicopter from the Helicopter Airways Service at the Wayne Major Airport.

It immediately headed for Jackson where the needed parts were transferred to it. The whirly bird, piloted by Barney Stutesman, then turned around and headed for the Wixom plant where it landed minutes before noon, thus keeping some 3,000 workers on the assembly lines.

"Talk about the air age coming to the aid of the auto age," exclaimed Singleton, of Bloomfield Township. "This is a good example."

Bloomfield's Tax Increase Beaten

Cutbacks were predicted in Bloomfield Hills School District today following defeat of a tax hike proposal for operating and building funds.

Voters yesterday turned down a millage proposal by 865 to 597 votes and killed a proposed $1.165,000 bond issue, 824 to 614 votes.

Voter turnout was light, apparently because of the snow and cold weather.

The school district will have to borrow next year to meet operating expenses, Supt. Eugene L. Johnson predicted.

Because of increased enrollment and a shortage of operating funds, there will be a curtailment of some classes, larger class sizes, and possibly half-day sessions in some areas, he said.

Johnson said more study is needed before the extent of the cutback is decided.

The millage increase, put to a public vote by the School Board, called for a four-mill increase for three years, followed by a three-mill increase for the three years after that. Part of the millage would have covered operating expenses and part of the proposed bond issue for classroom construction.

A group of Pontiac heating contractors asked for the code, saying that without it they were denied building permits in communities that have codes.

The heating code would be Pontiac's first, setting up licensing provisions, an examining board and fees in the same manner as the city's electrical and plumbing codes.

Public hearings are scheduled on assessment rolls for sidewalks on both sides of Orchard Lake avenue, Telegraph to the city limits, and the north side of Madison avenue, to Perry to Arlene.

Pontiac Underwriters Will Hear Milligan

William M. Milligan, Detroit manager of the Manufacturers Life Insurance Co., will address the monthly meeting of the Pontiac Life Underwriters Assn. tomorrow at Elks Temple.

A Birmingham resident, Milligan is a former president of the Detroit Life Underwriters association, the Life Insurance Managers of Detroit and the Michigan Life Agency Management association.

Lion Rookies Honored

Former Iowa stars Alex Karas and Jim Gibbons were presented trophies as outstanding rookies at the final Lions' Fan Club yesterday. The awards were presented by U. S. Senator-elect Phil Hart.

Filing his nominating petitions in Lansing today for Oakland County circuit judge was Milton F. Cooney, Pontiac attorney.

Cooney, 52, of 56 E. Washington St., Clarkston, said he had filed petitions with "upward to 4,000" signatures for a full six-year term on the Oakland bench and a short term of six months created when a fifth judgeship was approved by the Legislature this year.

The candidate in the April, 1959, non-partisan judicial election has been practicing law in Pontiac since 1930 when he was admitted to the Bar after graduating from the Detroit College of Law.

Besides this general practice, Cooney today serves as attorney for Independence Township and Clarkston.

In 1950 he was made Pontiac's first director of public safety, a position he resigned one year later. At one time he was a candidate for congressman from Oakland County on the Republican ticket.

A graduate of Pontiac High School and a two-time constable of the city, Cooney also held a position on the Pontiac Municipal Court bench from 1938 to 1941.

Trial Opens Today for Holland Airman

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP)—An 18-year-old Holland, Mich., airman, accused of the Halloween night slaying of a Charleston chemical company executive, is scheduled to go on trial on a murder charge in general sessions court here today.

John Joseph Mahon, stationed at Charleston Air Force Base, is charged in the death of Jack Dobbins, 30, slain with a heavy candlestick following a Halloween party.

Dobbins' nude body was found Nov. 1 in his apartment in a fashionable section of old Charleston. Mahon has been held since surrendering to police. He said he died after learning of Dobbins' death through a newspaper story.

The airman's attorney, William C. Ehrhardt, maintains the slaying was justifiable homicide.

Officers said an autopsy showed Dobbins had been struck nine times on the head with the candlestick.

The Day in Birmingham

Several Thousand Men Shop on Special Night

BIRMINGHAM — In spite of the season's worst storm, several thousand men took advantage of their special shopping night in Birmingham stores last evening.

Charles Mortenson, Chamber of Commerce manager, said it was one of the most successful Men's Night so far. He added that many fathers brought their sons and shopped together.

Mortenson said that by 8 p.m. every parking place in the entire business area was taken.

City commissioners last night passed tentative approval on the access drive for business places at Wakefield and 14-Mile roads.

asked to begin negotiations for construction of the drive.

The study on how to establish special assessment districts was postponed for one week.

Members of the Senior Men's Club are packing clothing today to be distributed to Russian refugees when they arrive in West Germany. The Community House is the receiving station for clothing being shipped from Birmingham.

At their meeting Friday, Mrs. Raymond Reilly, who recently returned from a trip to Russia, will be the speaker.

The discussion group will have "leisure" as their topic with Andrew Ten Eyk as moderator.

Cranbrook School, Bloomfield Hills, is offering scholarships up to $1,500 for deserving boys in the area. Anyone may apply to a grant if he is eligible for grades seven through eleven by next September.

Applications for scholarships must be made by March 1 to the headmaster.

Traffic Bureau Setup Changed

Municipal Court, Not Police Department to Handle Violations

Pontiac's new Traffic Violations Bureau will begin operations Jan. 2 under the terms of an ordinance scheduled for adoption by the City Commission tonight.

The bureau will be transferred from the Police Department to Municipal Court under a setup based on the Detroit Traffic Violations Bureau system.

The switch was recommended in the Public Administration Service report on the police department.

Commissioners have gone on record favoring the change, but held up final approval until facilities for the new bureau could be installed on the second floor of the Public Safety Building.

Also up for possible adoption is an ordinance providing for a city heating code, bringing the city within the scope of reciprocal agreements in effect in most Oakland County communities.

A group of Pontiac heating contractors asked for the code, saying that without it they were denied building permits in communities that have codes.

The heating code would be Pontiac's first, setting up licensing provisions, an examining board and fees in the same manner as the city's electrical and plumbing codes.

Public hearings are scheduled on assessment rolls for sidewalks on both sides of Orchard Lake avenue, Telegraph to the city limits, and the north side of Madison avenue, to Perry to Arlene.

HOUSE WHERE FOUR DIED — A fire at this frame house in a wartime housing project took the lives of four persons yesterday at Willow Village near Ypsilanti. Killed in the explosion and fire were John F. Kearney, 32, and his children, Sherry Lynn, 4, Melvin, 2, and John, 18 months. Kearney had taken the gas tank from his car into the house to work on it, and the fumes apparently caused the blast.

Prize Winners Gather to Receive Nobel Awards

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Winners of 1958 Nobel Prizes gathered today with their wives for the prize giving. The Russians sent the three winners of the physics prize but, as promised, literary winner Boris Pasternak stayed home.

Another blast was loosed at Pasternak, author of the novel "Dr. Zhivago," by Soviet writers at a Moscow meeting Sunday. Premier Nikita Khrushchev and the rest of the Communist party's ruling Presidium looked on approvingly.

The prizes will be awarded at ceremonies Wednesday. Pasternak's three countrymen arrived to share in the physics prize of $41,420. The Soviet scientists are P. A. Cherenkov, I. M. Frank and Igor Tamm.

Coming in early today from London were the British winner of the prize in chemistry, Frederick Sanger, and Dr. Joshua Lederberg, who shares the medicine and physiology prize with U.S. colleagues Dr. George Beadle and Dr. Edward L. Tatum.

Beadle arrived Sunday and Tatum was expected later today. Lederberg is from the University of Wisconsin. Tatum from the Rockefeller Institute in New York.

and Beadle from the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena. Father Dominique Georges Pire, Belgian priest who won the peace prize, arrived in Oslo, Norway, to receive his prize there Wednesday.

day. The peace prize is awarded by a five-man committee from the Norwegian Parliament. The other winners were picked by Swedish groups.

Pasternak at first accepted his literature prize, then turned it down under pressure at home. But the committee making the award said he would be listed as the 1958 winner, although the $41,420 was put back in the Nobel fund. His diploma and gold medal are in a safe, to be given him if he ever comes to Sweden.

At the Moscow meeting of the new Russian Federation of Writers, novelist Leonid Sobolev, chairman of the union's organizing committee, condemned Pasternak in a two-hour speech outlining the duties of Soviet writers.

He charged Pasternak with giving "ammunition to agents of the cold war" and termed him "the rightful heir of the decadent movement condemned by Lenin and Chekov."

Pravda also denounced Pasternak, calling him a traitor.

Art Authority Dies in Florida at 78

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Homer S. Saint-Gaudens, who died Monday, was a man who knew the value of color.

To the art world, he was an au-thority; the military respected him for his pioneering work on camouflage.

Saint-Gaudens, 78, was stricken by an apparent heart attack a few minutes after he and his wife in-spected a boat at the Coral Reef Yacht Club. Friends said he loved to sail.

He came South in 1950 with the rank of director-emeritus of fine arts at the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, Pa. As director for 28 years, he oversaw the assembling of works of modern artists for the annual international exhibit and induced European artists to show their works in this country.

He served as a camouflage ex-pert in both world wars.

His father was Augustus Saint-Gaudens, one of America's fore-most sculptors.

Survivors include his widow; a son, Augustus of Miami; and a daughter, Mrs. John E. Dodge, Stonington, Conn.

Deaths Elsewhere

LONDON (AP) — Philip Con-nard, 83, internationally known mural painter, died Monday. He was keeper or custodian of Brit-ain's Royal Academy from 1945-49.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Prof. John L. Gillin, 87, pioneer Uni-versity of Wisconsin sociologist and author whose work led to many reforms in Wisconsin's han-dling of criminals and the insane, died Monday. He was born on an Iowa farm.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Singer Julia Lee, a widely known Negro recording and night club star, died Monday. The blues sing-er had been identified with Kansas City jazz life for more than 30 years.

CHICAGO (AP) — Charles P. Hughes, 55, a former radio pro-ducer, died Monday of a heart at-tack. Hughes was best known as "Mr. First Nighter" in the radio program Little Theater Off Times Square in the 1930s.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — C. Hal Reynolds, 68, long a leader in Pasadena's Tournament of Ros-es, died Sunday after a long ill-ness.

CHARLES STREBE
Charles Strebe, 37, of 21 Putnam St., died yesterday in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital after a brief ill-ness.

He was an employee of Whitzer Products Co. and a member of St. Trinity Lutheran Church.

Besides his wife, Maxine, and mother, Mrs. Ewa Strebe, he leaves seven children, Robert, Diane and John Young, Janice Warren, Patricia Runyon, Coral and Ronald Strebe.

Two brothers, Frank and George Strebe of Pontiac, also survive.

Mr. Strebe's body is at the Brace-Smith Funeral Home.

MRS. FLORENCE M. VERVEY
Mrs. Florence M. Vervey, 41, of 12 Downing Ct., died yesterday after an illness of nearly three years.

Survivors include a son, Russell of Lansing; two daughters, Mrs. Delores Ward of Owosso and Miss Nancy Vervey of Lansing; and a sister, Mrs. Arnold Phillips of Drayton Plains.

Service will be at 11 a.m. Thurs-day from Coats Funeral Home, Drayton Plains. Burial will be in Crescent Hills Cemetery.

MRS. ROSS F. HODGES
WHITE LAKE TOWNSHIP — Service for Mrs. Ross F. (Anna Mae) Hodges, 83, of 8855 Lakeview St., will be held at 2 p.m. Thurs-day at the Steele Funeral Home, Huntington, W. Va. Burial will be in Spring Hill Cemetery, Hunting-ton, W. Va.

The body will be at the Pursley Funeral Home, Pontiac, until 9 p.m. tonight.

Mrs. Hodges died Monday at her home following a six months ill-ness.

She was a member of the Central Christian Church, Huntington, W. Va. and the OES Chapter 427, Detroit.

Surviving are a son, Harry B. Hodges of Tyler, Tex.; a daugh-ter, Mrs. Crystal Armentrout of White Lake Township and two sis-ters.

Petoskey Man Faces Murder Trial Dec. 29

PETOSKEY — A defense motion to quash the first degree murder charge against Paul L. Achenbach in his mother's death has been denied. Achenbach will be brought to trial Dec. 29.

Circuit Judge Edward H. Fen-ton yesterday rejected the motion and set the trial date.

Achenbach, 46, a former insur-ance broker, is charged in the death of Mrs. Clara Achenbach, 78. Her body was found in her apartment last Nov. 15. Authori-ties said it had lain there for six months.

The motion to quash was made by Defense Attorney Claire Gil-lette on grounds that Achenbach's Nov. 22 justice court examination failed to produce sufficient evi-dence of a crime.

China rates as the world's chief producer of tea but it consumes most of its own crop and exports only smaller amounts of some of the finer and costlier varieties.

Nuclear Power Resources Alike in U.S., Russia

DETROIT — The United States and Russia are much alike on one score—natural resources—with respect to developing nuclear power plants, says an expert.

This also distinguishes them from other countries, points out Dr. Norman Hilberry.

Dr. Hilberry, director of the Ar-gonne National Laboratory at Le-mont, Ill., made his comparisons at a news conference yesterday. He is here for the American Nu-clear Society's meeting.

Both the United States and Rus-sia have rich reserves of oil and coal and are not under economic pressure to find substitutes, Dr. Hilberry said.

"A pipe comes up from Texas and squirts oil right into your furnace," he said.

European countries like Great Britain and Italy need nuclear power more than the United States, he said, adding "they're going after power. We are going after information." He said each country has to adjust its nuclear power program to its own needs.

Planets are said to shine be-cause they reflect the light of the sun.

Pontiac Mother, Son Injured in Accident

A Pontiac mother and her 5-year-old son were slightly injured Monday evening when their auto crashed into a ditch on Opdyke road in Pontiac Township, accord-ing to Oakland County sheriff's deputies.

Juanita L. Beltz, 25, of 751 First St., and her son Wesley, were treated for minor injuries at Pon-tiac General Hospital and released.

The woman told deputies she was slowing down to make a turn at 170 Opdyke Rd. when the car skidded on icy pavement and went out of control.

County Government Groups Hold Meeting

EAST LANSING — A two-day meeting of the Michigan As-sembly of County Government is underway here to discuss legisla-tion needed to cope with county-level problems in 1959.

Taking part are the Registers of Deeds Assn., Assn. of County Clerks, Assn. of County Treas-urers, Assn. of County School Ad-ministrators and Sheriffs' Assn.

Bomb Jury Still Divided

2 Defendants Released on Bond in Jewish Temple Dynamiting

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A superior court jury today began its third day of deliberations in the Jewish temple bombing case against George Bright, 35-year-old industrial engineer.

Two of the four other defendants in the Oct. 12 dynamiting were ordered released on bond late Monday night.

Earlier, Foreman Ralph C. Castleberry told Judge Durwood Pye the jury was divided 9-3 and "hopelessly deadlocked." The judge told the jurors to resume deliberations and later had them returned to their hotel for the night.

The case went to the jury at 11 p.m. Saturday night but deliberations were suspended from mid-night until Monday morning under a law forbidding Sunday deliberations.

Solicitor General Paul Webb said $5,000 bond was granted for Wallace Allen and $1,000 for Robert Bowling under an agreement with the defense to withdraw their demands for immediate trial. The trial demand would have forced the prosecution to try the cases before the current court term ends Dec. 31 or dismiss the charges.

Webb said no bond had been granted for Kenneth Chester Griffin and Richard Bowling because their defense counsel would not agree to withdraw their trial demands.

The charge of destroying a place of worship carries a death penalty. The jury can only reduce it to life in prison by recommending mercy.

Launching One Next Month

Nuclear Subs Carrying Missiles Almost Ready

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP) — Missile — packing nuclear submarines, which is the number now being built or contracted for, could fire 100 million tons of nuclear force at targets in Eurasia from positions near the North Pole.

The USS Halibut, which the Navy says will be the world's first of this type, will be launched next month at Mare Island Naval Shipyard, San Francisco.

The submarine missile firing system has been duplicated on a surface vessel and will be tested today for the first time with the launching of a Regulus II guided missile from the Pacific missile range here.

The USS King County, a converted World War II tank landing ship, will be the first surface ship to send a Regulus II aloft. One of these missiles was launched by the conventionally powered submarine Grayback last September, but the Grayback did not have the intricate firing and tracking facilities going into the nuclear Halibut.

Electronic jungles known as telemetry rooms have been installed on the King County and will guide today's Regulus to some inland portion of the Pacific missile range—probably Edwards Air Force Base on the Mojave Desert north of Los Angeles, or the Air Force facility at Tonopah, Nev. The 11-ton, 57-foot Regulus II has been fired successfully many times. A guided missile, it differs from ballistic missiles in that it can be directed in flight. Ballistic missiles, like artillery shells, are largely beyond outside control once they are fired.

The Regulus II has a shorter range than the big intercontinental ballistic missiles—1,000 miles compared with their 6,000 miles — but nuclear submarines can take it secretly almost to the shores of an enemy nation.

The Halibut will carry Regulus II missiles at first, but later is expected to be converted to handle the Polaris, a 1,500-mile intermediate range ballistic missile.

Nine Polaris — equipped submarines, which is the number now being built or contracted for, could fire 100 million tons of nuclear force at targets in Eurasia from positions near the North Pole.

Each sub will be able to carry 14 missiles, and each missile will have a warhead with an explosive force equal to a million tons of TNT.

Men Surrender in Firm Theft

FBI Charges Four With Illegally Selling Company Merchandise

DETROIT (AP)—Two men accused by the FBI of draining a Milwaukee firm of $236,000 surrendered yesterday in Detroit to U.S. District Court Chief Judge Arthur F. Lederle.

Lederle released Frank Verville of Milwaukee and Robert Halpin of Chicago on $1,500 bond and set Dec. 22 for examination.

The FBI said Verville and James H. Bishop purchased Scanlan Radio & TV Co. of Milwaukee last July. It said the men purchased thousands of dollars worth of merchandise on credit.

Agents said much of the merchandise disappeared from Milwaukee and later turned up in Detroit public warehouses.

Thomas J. Gearty, Detroit FBI agent in charge, said Halpin will be prosecuted in Detroit and Verville in Milwaukee. He said Bishop and a Mrs. Ruth J. McGuigan of Chicago have been arrested and are awaiting trial.

Bishop, Halpin and Mrs. McGuigan are charged with receiving, storing and selling merchandise taken from the Milwaukee store. Verville is charged with interstate transportation of stolen merchandise.

Missing Tug Found Stuck in Lake Ice

KINGSVILLE, Ont. (AP) — The tug Lee Brothers, missing for 24 hours on icy, storm-swept Lake Erie, was found icebound last night two miles southeast of Pt. Pelee.

All five crew members were in good shape but cold and hungry. Two other tugs reached the ice-bound vessel after a flare set off by the crew was seen on the shore at Sturgeon Creek, near Leamington.

A third tug was on its way to help free the Lee Brothers from the ice.

Aboard the tug were its skipper, Capt. Elmer Simpson, his son Ronald, Fred Fuller, Duncan Baldwin and Joe Borocko, all of Kingsville.

They had gone out late Sunday for a routine night's fishing, taking only light lunches. Engine trouble developed and then the ice closed in.

A hard snowstorm hampered the search during the day but the weather moderated later.

Finland's Government Forced Out by Soviets

Under economic pressure from Moscow, Finland's coalition government in power since Aug. 29, collapsed with the resignation of Prime Minister FAGERHOLM and five Agrarian Party members.

Of the 200 member Finnish Parliament, 50 are Communists, the largest single party. The Prime Minister had given them no cabinet posts and had governed through a coalition around his own rightist Social Democrats, the Agrarians and some Conservatives.

To show its displeasure, Russia withdrew its ambassador to Helsinki and proceeded to exert economic pressure. The Soviets canceled orders in Finnish shipyards, reduced imports from Finland, refused new orders and cut off further oil shipments to Finland. That country already had severe unemployment and trade problems. Many of its industries had been converted to meet Russian requirements for reparations after World War II and Western markets were lost.

Although by culture and inclination it is part of the West, Finland has avoided alliances and has gone to great lengths to keep peace with its Soviet neighbor. Nevertheless Moscow has complained any time Finland expressed interest in co-operation with the West.

What Russia wants is a new Finnish Government to include Communist members who would do Moscow's bidding and pave the way for Red domination. The Finnish people have firmly withstood Soviet attacks and pressure in the past. If Moscow cuts off all trade, the West may have to give Finland some economic trade assistance in order to keep it from becoming another "people's democracy."

New Pure Food Law Gives More Protection

An important but little noticed amendment to the Food and Drug Act was passed by the last session of Congress. It provides that chemicals added to food products must be found safe for human consumption before they can be used.

The burden of proof is put on the manufacturers of the food additives and not on the food processors. This means that testing will be done by chemical companies and not by the Government as heretofore.

Under a published regulation, data on the tests must be submitted to the Food and Drug Administration for approval or rejection. If accepted, the amount of additive that may be used will be specified and in what foods it may be used.

The first pure food law was passed in 1906 when all chemicals added to foods were considered injurious. Now, however, it is recognized that many additives, such as vitamins to prevent nutritional deficiency and iodized salt to eliminate goiter, are beneficial. It has taken eight years and extensive hearings in three sessions of Congress to get this amendment on the books.

At first the food and chemical industries opposed every move to bring additives under Government control. But exaggerated publicity concerning dangerous effects of all added chemicals made them change their minds. Irradiated foods also are included in the amendment.

The new legislation meets the approval of Food and Drug Administrator GEORGE P. LARRICK and closes a loophole in pure food laws which should benefit and protect everyone.

The Man About Town

Ice Now Is Safe

On Most of Our Lakes;
Watch These Exceptions

Numbers: A game quite dependent on the sucker crop.

The ice on most of the numerous lakes in the Pontiac area now is safe for skating and ice fishing. It generally is several inches in thickness, sometimes running up to nearly a foot.

However, it is thinnest next to the shores and far out on the water. Some of the larger lakes are not entirely frozen over. It still is unsafe to venture more than 100 yards from shore on most any lake.

It always is precarious to venture near the spot where a river or any stream enters or leaves a lake. Also it is advisable to keep off the ice over the course of any stream through a lake.

Moving water freezes slowly. That's why it NEVER is safe to go on the ice of any river or creek, no matter how cold the winter may become or how thick the ice may be on water not affected by any current.

In Santa Claus letters published in The Pontiac Press 56 years ago, two present local physicians express their wants, when Aaron Riker writes that he is a boy 7 years old and wants a wheel. The desires of Harold A. Furlong are more extensive. He wrote, "I am a little boy 7 years old. Please bring me a sled, pair of skates, candy, bottle, engine and coal car. Bring my little sister some candy." And with a keen foresight, Verne Todd asked for some slippers—and eventually got a shoe store.

David Lawrence Asks:

What Should Eisenhower Do Now?

WASHINGTON — The next two years for Ike—what will they be like? What ought he to do, and what will he do?

This is the subject uppermost in the minds of many people here.

It is important to the Republican Party, to the country as a whole, and to the world.

President Eisenhower is the last person anyone would call a politician, and it has often been said that he has no taste for politics. Both statements can be right, and yet it is conceivable that in his way Mr. Eisenhower could achieve real success on the political front.

For, while the word "politics" connotes a game or a contest between parties and persons in governmental life, it has a broader meaning—the capacity to understand the mood of the people.

The key to leadership in the next two years, therefore, is in how to deal with the mood of the people.

Obviously, the first step is to make sure just what the national mood really happens to be.

Today the national mood is a composite of a lot of local and individual moods. But there is a common denominator running through all of them. There are grumbles and annoyances of the economic world and many worries over the fact that the Communists do not seem to want to let things alone.

There are grumbles about high taxes and inequitable taxes. There are fears about the steady decline in the purchasing power of the dollar—otherwise called inflation.

There is unrest as between management and labor and a belief that organized labor will abuse its collective bargaining power and extort higher and higher wages. This means higher and higher prices and a squeeze particularly on the people with fixed incomes.

How then to cure the discontent? For discontent produced the negative reaction that instigated the Democratic Party's landslide in the recent elections.

The first and foremost problem in national and international affairs is to fix responsibility. In the recent elections the electorate didn't stop to ask who was in command in both houses of Congress during the last two years—the blame for everything was placed on the Republicans.

This was due to the tactics of the Democrats who assumed no responsibility themselves but constantly fostered the illusion that the President controls the budget, that the President writes the appropriation laws, that the President can increase or decrease spending, that the President can control wages and prices, and that the President can wave a wand and bring prosperity or, by making a mistake, drive the country into a recession.

The last Congress was one of the worst in American history if the criterion is the protection of the national interest against tyranny and autocracy in the courts, and if it be assumed that the preservation of the right of local self-government is any longer important to the people of America.

The Congress, moreover, encouraged policies of extravagance in the handling of public funds and turned away from constructive measures looking toward ways of using the local self-government as an incentive to business expansion.

Meddling by Congress in the conduct of foreign policy was constant so that the world isn't sure today whether partisanship on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee or the officials of the Department of State speak for this nation to other nations.

Actually, Mr. Eisenhower can wield more power with the people now than ever before if he diagnoses the national mood correctly, and keeps up a persistent campaign for measures and policies that he believes are right.

Smiles

Every time squirrel-hunting season comes, a lot of careless hunters go nuts.

Dr. William Brady Says:

Fine Coffee Brings Cheer but Brewing Takes Skill

One of my Elmira patients — after all, I lived in Elmira 12 years — was a conductor on the Lackawanna. He suffered with insomnia. When he was unable to get to sleep at night he would get up, toddle down to the kitchen, brew himself a pint of strong coffee, drink it or most of it, toddle back to bed and sleep well the rest of the night.

He was about 46 years old, but had the arteries of a man 66 years old. Whether his hardened arteries had anything to do with the unusual effect of coffee, I do not know.

Yes, I know, caffeine, the alkaloid or active principle of coffee, stimulates the cerebrum, makes the mind more alert, attention keener, spirits brighter. If you are tired, weary, bored, or drowsy, two grains of pure caffeine or 5 grains of elutriated caffeine (same amount of alkaloid) will cheer you up for an hour or two.

A man-size cup of well made coffee contains about 2½ grains of caffeine. And if you are serving what's left after most of the caffeine has been extracted from the coffee, make mine dishwasher.

Caffeine or coffee acts on the cerebrum for about 2½ hours or maybe as long as 3½ hours. But in four hours the drug is entirely oxidized or eliminated, so that one may enjoy a cup or two of good coffee at dinner or early in the evening and its effects on cerebrum, nerves, heart and kidneys will have worn off by bedtime.

HERE'S RECIPE

The secret of making good coffee is (1) grind your own coffee, just enough for each brew, (2) let the coffee stand in cold water in a cool or cold place an hour or two or over night, and (3) put the pot on the fire just before time to serve, bring the coffee nearly but not quite to boiling, then douse the fire and serve the coffee immediately.

If you can smell coffee all over the house when it is being prepared you may be sure it is ruined. That aroma should be kept in the pot where you can taste it, and not driven off into the atmosphere. Second degree manslaughter is a fair penalty for a cook who boils coffee.

It has always been my contention that if more good coffee were consumed in America there'd be much less drunkenness and chronic alcoholism for the hospitals, jails and other tax-supported institutions to handle. Temperance organizations and coffee importers should cooperate to establish coffee kiosks everywhere.

In a piece to follow we'll describe the health and remedial values of tea and coffee.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Scrapbook this vital case for it helps teach you how to think logically, and offers the latest facts about cancer. Then send for the booklet mentioned below to help reduce your likelihood of cancer.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
Case Z-386: Diane G., aged 42, is scared of cancer.

"Dr. Crane, my mother and father both died of it," she began, "and I understand two of my grandparents also had it."

"So I am panicky lest I die of cancer, too. It certainly must be inherited in my family, don't you think?"

"How can I avoid it, or is that possible?"
Learn to think straight. Even if three generations of your family have died of cancer, that doesn't mean it is inherited.

For most cancer researchers say that "cancer is apparently due to some chemical deficiency."

Like baldness, gray hair, diabetes and similar ailments of middle age that don't result from germs, we regard cancer as a deficiency ailment.

And if your parents and grandparents have lived in the same region for generations or have learned to dine on the same type of menu, it is entirely possible that several generations will thus fail to consume the proper chemicals that prevent cancer.

Voice of the People

'And They Called Bagwell a Liar for Warning State'

I got a letter last Wednesday stating that the place I've been working for 14 years has closed its doors for want of orders. They say they can't compete with out-of-state labor rates. I was laid off 18 months ago. When Bagwell warned the voters of Michigan of this very thing, he was called a liar, cheat and a phoney. The old saying is that where there's a black cloud, there's always a silver lining.

What satisfaction it is to know I was getting the highest wages in the U. S. A. for my trade and now I can sit all day and watch TV and count my money. So fellows, just keep on striking and asking for more money and who knows? Some day you may get a letter like I did and won't have to work anymore.

Soapy seems to think more taxes is the answer. Of course, the business he's heir to is in New Jersey. And to think he wants to be President, when he's gotten us in Michigan 80 million in the hole.

Two Comment on School Fire

Every school in this county more than two stories high should be inspected as a fire trap. The Press should print the results so parents will know.

City Cleanup Up to Citizens

I wish to congratulate the Pontiac Police Department and its safety director. The success of their recent raid on a numbers ring showed a lot of work, thought and planning. I hope this raid will help many of our complacent citizens to realize that our city needs a good cleaning up and to do all they can to encourage and help our police department. The job is theirs, but the responsibility to see that it's done is shared by us all.

Dems' Advisory Council Out of Congress' Channel

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic Advisory Council's broad legislative program appeared likely today to get only passing attention from a Congress which may be more interested in national security than social security.

In its first meeting since last month's elections bolstered Democratic majorities in both House and Senate, the policy-shaping council drafted a 24-point program of goals for the 86th Congress Sunday.

The pronouncement, the most comprehensive and far reaching ever issued by the 24-member council, called for action on a wide range of issues from expansion of Social Security to strengthening of civil rights.

It made no specific recommendations, however, on such things as outer space developments which Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas stressed last month—also in general terms—in a 12-point legislative program for the new Congress. Johnson omitted civil rights from his program.

The council's action put a fresh accent on the liberal views expressed by many of the new Democratic Senate and House members elected last month.

Despite the contention of National Chairman Paul M. Butler that the council's program reflects the direction in which the party is pointing in 1960, however, the proposals do not appear likely to command effective sponsorship in Congress.

The general opinion among politicians is that Johnson and House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas will, in practical effect, shape the final form of the legislative program that emerges from next year's session.

In the past, Johnson and Rayburn have not paid much attention to the council's recommendations. There is no reason to believe their attitude will change materially. In announcing its program, the council said: "Republican reaction, lethargy and indecision of the past six years have allowed this nation to fall woefully behind in meeting the demands of the times."

In addition to expansion of Social Security, the council urged "bold and comprehensive action" on such things as fighting inflation and the high cost of living, increasing the national minimum wage, a new housing program and readjustments of what it called inequities and loopholes in the tax laws.

On civil rights, the council called for enactment of a section struck out of the 1957 civil rights law that would authorize the attorney general to file civil suits against anyone who deprives citizens of "their rights to equal protection of the laws, on account of race, color, religion, or national origin."

THOUGHTS FOR TODAY

rain tends to leech them out of the soil and carry them into the oceans.

Indeed, ocean water may ultimately prove to be a panacea for many deficiency ailments; since it contains every soluble chemical on this earth!

Farmers are now using trace chemical salt to build sturdier, healthier cows, sheep, horses and even chickens.

And we medics are prescribing trace chemical capsules for human patients.

In addition to such trace chemical "vaccination" against cancer, be sure to avoid smoking, since it causes constant irritation of mouth, throat and lungs, and continued irritation is a requisite for cancer.

Then have a yearly medical check-up. But between check-ups, live like a lion instead of a timid sheep. Let your doctor worry for you in the interim.

Expect Fight on Annex Issue

Lansing Township Will File Writ of Mandamus With Supreme Court

LANSING (UPI) — An annexation proposal for Lansing, slapped down by the Attorney General and Secretary of State, was expected to be fought out in the Michigan Supreme Court.

Lansing Attorney Thomas C. Walsh, head of the Lansing Township Merger Committee, said he would file a Writ of Mandamus in the high court this afternoon, seeking approval of parts of the proposal voted on in the Nov. 4 election.

The Secretary of State, following a letter of the Attorney General, told the city and county clerks the proposed annexation failed because one of the four areas involved did not vote in favor of the merger.

The entire proposal failed, the Secretary of State said, because the parts were connected in the voting and if one was not approved, none was approved.

Walsh said his action would be to force the County Board of Canvassers to approve annexation of three areas on the ballot and "with some cooperation from the Attorney General and County Prosecutor" he expected approval of the annexation.

Walsh contended the Attorney General was basing his opinion on a case not entirely the same as the present one but the Attorney General, in a letter to Walsh last Thursday, stood firm on his original position.

Sense of Humor Helps West Berlin Morale

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

BERLIN—"Did you hear the funny story about the man from Leipzig who was trying to smuggle some new clothes out of West Berlin?"

"Well, he came to East Berlin to visit relatives, and while he was there he decided to get himself a new suit. He took the underground (subway) over here to West Berlin, where the fine clothes are, and then got back on the train and went right to the toilet room with his package."

"The Russians won't allow anybody to come back into East Berlin with purchases from West Berlin, so this man took off his old suit and threw it out the window. Then he opened the box and found the saleslady had forgotten to put in the trousers."

The raconteur broke into laughter. It had an unpleasant edge to it.

"What could the poor man do? He spent three years in a hard labor camp."

The man who told this story was an official driver in Berlin. He lives in the West Zone, while part of his family still live in the East, and what could he do but laugh? After seeing his family and friends naked of dignity, under the Russian regime, it was a relief to visualize a total stranger naked merely of trousers.

"I think we have more sense of humor," he said, "than before the war. Now we laugh at anything—troubles, threats, promises. It's safest."

He was driving a black, five-year-old Lincoln, a rental car. As we passed through the Brandenburg Gate into the Soviet Zone for a look around he said, grinning, "Watch this." A wonder-eyed boy of perhaps 18 in a Russian customs uniform approached, looked perfunctorily at our passports, and then exchanged words in German with the driver. Finally, the boy shook his head, saluted and we moved on.

"He said he could not afford even to buy the gas for such a car," the driver reported.

The Russians got the most beautiful section of Berlin. In the East Zone are the bombed out museums, opera house, department stores, shells, seemingly held together by wingless archangels, armless warriors and eyeless gargoyles.

Amid the ruins of great buildings, an occasional pair of curtains waves from a window, indicating that one room was left habitable, if heatless. In an overgrown cathedral, frigidly air-cooled by bombs, church services are still conducted by German Lutherans.

Much of the rubble has been removed in the last two years, but the once-great art center of the city still stands like a skeleton monument to war.

"The East Germans always wanted to work and rebuild but the Russians wouldn't let them," the driver said. He thought it was because the Soviets figured they would play the Western World for the fool: Let them foot the bill for rebuilding East Berlin, and then take it over.

After circling depressing East Berlin, we again crossed the border for a tour of modern, shiny, fashionable West Berlin. It wasn't till we reached a suburban, tree-lined street named "Uncle Tom Strasse" that we could work up a hearty laugh again.

The Simon Legree Strasses of the Soviet Sector seemed miles, even centuries, away.

Chemical Engineers Elect U. of M. Prof

CINCINNATI (AP) — Donald L. Katz, a University of Michigan professor and consultant on oil and natural gas well problems, is new president of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. Katz, who heads the chemical and Metallurgical Engineering Department at Michigan, has written more than 100 technical papers and a recent handbook on natural gas engineering.

Pope John May Visit Lourdes in February

LOURDES, France (UPI)—Pope John XXIII may visit Lourdes and its Roman Catholic shrine of Saint Bernadette next February when the shrine's jubilee celebration ends, Valerio Cardinal Valeri said last night.

The cardinal, who arrived from Rome, said his announcement was not an official one, but he said the Pope's visit is "possible." His statement followed rumors shortly after the Pope was elected that the new pontiff might travel to Lourdes.

Device Lets Aussies 'Tailor' Their Plants

CANBERRA — The Australian Scientific Industrial Research Organization plans to build a phytotron — a machine to produce man-made climates for agricultural research — at a cost of 500,000 pounds ($1,120,000).

The device will consist of 200 cabinets in which plants will be grown under variable artificial climatic conditions. In each cabinet the temperature will be controllable, while automatic shutters and supplementary lighting will control the length of the "day."

The organization, in announcing its plans, said the phytotron "will enable scientists to tailor-make plants to suit specific regions infinitely more rapidly, precisely, and economically than ever before."

Six new Standard Oil service areas, like the two shown here, will open soon on the Northern Indiana Toll Road. Each of these ultra-modern, super-service areas will be equipped with the most modern and efficient facilities in the country. They are built of Indiana limestone with porcelain curtainwall construction. Each service area will include an air-conditioned snack bar, gift shop, and restrooms.

How research helps provide new luxuries for motorists

Remember when service stations looked like the one in the small picture at the right? If you do, you have lived through an evolution in service stations that wasn't dreamed of forty-six years ago.

Year after year, Standard Oil service stations have become more efficient and more convenient as research has revealed better ways to serve customers. Today you have the speedy, courteous, convenient service provided by Standard Oil dealers all over Mid-America.

As demands change, this evolution will continue. For example, toll roads and super-highways connecting the Midwest with the East Coast have created a demand for different types of facilities. The experience gained in serving this high-speed through traffic undoubtedly will influence the service stations of the future. In fact, there is a continuing study at Standard on just what service stations should provide. And motorists like yourself have been of tremendous help.

Dozens of their suggestions have been incorporated over the years.

On the Northern Indiana Toll Road, six new Standard Oil service areas will provide a gift shop and a tastefully decorated snack bar for the convenience of travelers. They will be fully air-conditioned. A patio for outdoor dining will be among the deluxe service attractions at each station. Ladies' lounges will be equipped with a full-length mirror and a couch. New gasoline pumps will be arranged so that no car will be blocked by another.

Being first with the finest service is a tradition at Standard. The company was the first to establish service stations on a large scale in Mid-America. Free highway maps and other touring information were among the earliest conveniences provided for motorists.

Whether it be something as remote as fuels for the future, or something as present day as the proper distance between gasoline pumps in a service station, Standard's far-flung research facilities are busy finding the answers.

This was a Standard service station in Pittsburgh, Kansas, in 1912. Standard was a pioneer in providing Mid-America motorists with service station facilities.

What makes a company a good citizen?

Extraordinary service to a community—either by an individual or a company—is one measure of good citizenship. Such service can take many forms—from major research advances that strengthen America's defenses to dependable, high-quality products and top-notch service for motorists. We at Standard try never to neglect either of these great responsibilities.

Plan Workshop for Disabled

Urge Area Men Attend Meeting to Organize Rehabilitation Center

Oakland County business and professional men have been urged to attend a meeting here tomorrow night to assist in the organization of a governing body to establish a shelter-workshop for handicapped adults in the county.

The meeting, to be conducted by Ralph E. Cummins, assistant district supervisor of the Michigan Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, will begin at 8 p.m. at the Moose Lodge, 350 Mt. Clemens St.

Al Potter, state supervisor of selective placement of the Michigan Employment Security Commission, will be the guest speaker. He will discuss the need for hiring the handicapped, especially in this county.

Cummins explained there was a "desperate need" for a workshop for county residents who are handicapped, especially for those in the "period of restoration" who need re-training in specified fields during their periods of readjustment.

He added that these physically handicapped persons first would be evaluated physically as to their capabilities and also would be given aptitude tests.

He estimated more than 200 handicapped persons are jobless in the county today because of lack of training in suitable jobs for them.

"Oakland County is the second largest county in the state, and it could profit from processing its own salvageable materials for resale or repair, which the handicapped would be glad to do," Cummins said.

The proposed organization would be self-supporting and the money made would be retained in the county, Cummins explained.

Members of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce, General Motors Truck and Coach Division, Fisher Body, Pontiac Motor Division, Baldwin Rubber Co., Pontiac Police, and the Oakland County Tuberculosis Sanatorium will attend the meeting.

Waterford Police Probe Gas Station Robbery

Merchandise and $10 in cash was stolen yesterday from the Hillside Service Station, 4177 Cass-Elizabeth Lake Rd., Waterford Township.

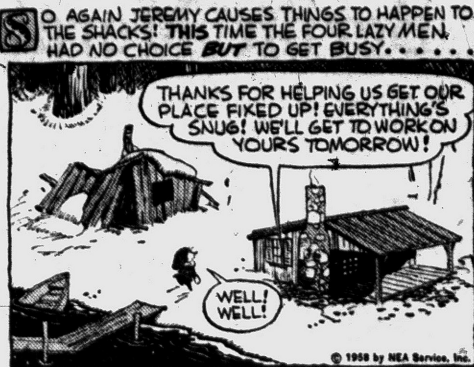

The station is owned by William Melyer of Walled Lake.

Since there was no indication the station had been broken into during the night, Township Police are investigating the possibility the theft was by persons in the station during the day.

Alcoholism Board OKs Clergy Meeting Funds

DETROIT (AP)—Michigan State Board of Alcoholism is pitching in with $250 to pay for speakers at clergyman's meetings.

The board approved the grant, first of its kind, at a meeting yesterday. A spokesman said this was done because of the increasing work of the clergy in dealing with problems of alcoholism.

The clergyman's meetings will be those of the Southwestern Michigan Institute for Clergymen to be held in Kalamazoo in January. The institute will be held one night each week in January.

A total of approximately $10,500 in grants to communities working on the alcoholism problem was approved by the board.

This included $3,607.46 to the Highland Park Alcoholism and Information Center, $2,900 to the Flint Committee on Alcoholism, and $2,794 to the Detroit mayor's committee on Skid Row problems.

2 Hurt in Collision on Clintonville Road

A two-car collision yesterday on Clintonville road south of Detroit street, Waterford Township, resulted in injury to both drivers, according to Oakland County Sheriff's deputies.

Injured were William L. Lumley, 31, of Allen Park and Mary Lou Wolfe, 19, of 4145 Clintonville Rd., Waterford Township.

The girl was reported in fair condition today at Pontiac General Hospital. Lumley was treated and released.

Rezoning Issue Due for Action in Waterford

When the Waterford Township Zoning Board meets at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow night, it will consider rezoning a plot of land across from the Community Activities Building on Williams Lake road, from residential to commercial.

Parts of the area have been zoned commercial, and property owners living there have requested the additional change, according to chairman Adsit Stewart.

The various islands of the world contain about four million square miles of land area and there are various estimates about how many islands are permanently inhabited.

Plan to Return Slaying Suspect

Officers Going to Texas to Bring McComb Back on Kean Murder

Assistant Oakland County Prosecutor Jerome K. Barry Jr. and State Police Detective Charles A. Leaf will leave for Fort Worth, Texas, tomorrow morning in an effort to get extradition of a man wanted here for the murder of Texas hoodlum George Kean a year ago.

Barry and Leaf will represent the county and state at a habeas corpus hearing Friday in the Tarrant County Criminal Court, at which time they must show that Lowell E. McComb is the man named in the second-degree murder warrant, and that he was in Michigan at the time of the Kean killing.

Already in the county jail charged with the murder is Demitrios B. Tsermegas, of Ecorse, who is accused of firing the fatal shot into Kean's head following a scuffle in a Commerce Township home.

A third man, Thomas D. Smith, is likely to escape prosecution as an alleged accomplice in the murder because Texas authorities are holding him for trial on a prior armed robbery charge.

Barry said the governor of Texas has signed the extradition warrant on McComb, making way for the Friday habeas corpus hearing.

Details of the Kean shooting did not become known until September when his body was found in a grave near Alpena after an informant tipped Texas Rangers as to its location.

Kean, McComb, Smith and Tsermegas had stopped off in Oakland County on their way to northern Michigan where they reportedly planned to stage a robbery. McComb and Smith returned to Texas following the shooting, while Tsermegas made his home in Ecorse.

Suffers Minor Injuries as Cars Collide in City

Dennis T. Hargrave, 28, of 5210 Westview St. received minor injuries in a two-car collision on Baldwin avenue at the Pontiac city limits early this morning, according to city police.

Hargrave, one of the drivers, was treated at Pontiac General Hospital and released. Driver of the other car, Charles E. Lackey, 36, of 62 Gladstone Ave., was uninjured.

Five Ask Dismissal of Gambling Charges

Municipal Judge Cecil McCallum today took under advisement a motion to bind over to Circuit Court five persons accused of running a bookie ring.

He also had before him a motion to dismiss the charges of conspiring to violate state gambling laws against the five: LaRue E. Gullett, 41, of 301 Dick Ave.; his wife, Gladys, 35; James Pruzor, 54, of 4 S. Saginaw St.; Basil W. Burke, 59, of 29 Salmer Ave., and Charles D. Apley, 44, of the Salmer address.

The five were arrested in an Aug. 29 State Police raid. Judge McCallum promised a decision in two weeks.

Pontiac Man Bound Over in Armed Robbery Case

A Pontiac man accused of a $350 holdup on Sept. 19 was bound over to circuit court yesterday after waiving examination before Municipal Judge Cecil B. McCallum.

Miguel Adkins, 27, of 79 S. Johnson St., is charged with the armed robbery of Tom's Market employees. Bond was set at $5,000 by Judge McCallum.

None Hurt as Furnace Explodes in Waterford

No one was injured when a furnace exploded at the home of Calvin England, 1321 Scott Lake Rd., Waterford Township, early this morning.

Firemen worked more than an hour to bring the 6:30 a.m. blaze under control. They estimated $1,400 damage to the home and contents.

Red Papers Give Warning:

Berlin Fight Only Begun

BERLIN (UPI)—Communist East Germany and the Soviet Union issued new warnings today to the West against letting results of the West Berlin municipal elections make them think the fight for Berlin was over.

The official East German Communist Newspaper Neues Deutschland said the fight for West Berlin is only beginning. Izvestia, the official Soviet Government newspaper, took note of Western claims the voting was a referendum against Soviet proposals to turn West Berlin into a demilitarized "Free City" and said:

"These propaganda tricks . . . can be regarded only as a gross and undisguised political racketeering."

"Now the fight for a peaceful solution of the West Berlin question starts," Neues Deutschland said. "The time is gone when the Imperialists could prepare their war fires in secret. He who wants to prevent war . . . must efface all those dangerous points which could spark a new world war."

Ad Foments Dispute for Ex-Cell-O, UAW

DETROIT (AP)—Striking United Auto Workers and Ex-Cell-O Corp. today disputed over the advertisement of a "back-to-work" committee bearing on negotiations.

Nearly 4,000 Ex-Cell-O employees have been on strike in a contract dispute for eight weeks at the company's six Michigan and Ohio plants.

David Johnson, chairman of the UAW Ex-Cell-O Council, said the advertisement was paid for by the company. Robert M. Jones, company industrial relations director, denied this.

The advertisement, anonymous except for its "back to work" signature, urged support for local contract bargaining in opposition to UAW policy. It appeared in Detroit's three daily newspapers yesterday.

The UAW wants to continue with a national contract. The company wants contracts with each separate plant.

Ex-Cell-O, which makes machine tools and precision instruments, has two plants in Detroit and others in Traverse City, Mich., and Lima, Bluffton and Fostoria, Ohio.

Chicago Barbers Help

Three Truckers Killed by Carbon Monoxide

LANCASTER, Mo. (AP)—Deaths of three Arkansas truck drivers in a bunkhouse at a Lancaster truck stop apparently were caused by carbon monoxide poisoning.

Coroner Bryce Norman said tests at the Missouri highway patrol laboratory showed the blood of John Parker, 26, Little Rock, Ark., and William Briner, 22, Malvern, Ark., contained a saturation of 60 to 65 per cent which is enough to cause death.

An autopsy on the third victim, Louis Lee Warden, 24, Little Rock, showed he apparently died of the same cause, Dr. Hans Schlumberger, Arkansas state medical examiner, reported at Little Rock.

Warden, a driver for D. W. Hoskins, Malvern, Ark., died Friday. Parker and Briner arrived late Saturday with another Hoskins truck. They were found dead Sunday morning.

The coroner said state gas inspectors would test the air in the bunkhouse. He expressed belief that a stove which burns bottled gas likely was at fault.

The U.S. educates about 10,000 engineers a year while Russia trains 50,000 annually, according to the U.S. Office of Education.

Check the new official price labels for Edsel's new, low prices

The new law says that every car must have a label showing the manufacturer's suggested retail price—and Edsel Dealers are even happier about it than the public! Because Edsel prices didn't go up this year—they went down! The 1959 Edsel is now priced with the most popular three—and the price labels prove it! Edsel's four new high-efficiency engines prove something else important—real gas economy. They include a thrifty six with a great test-track record—and a new, economy V-8 that uses regular gasoline! Edsel's new size makes sense, too. Six-passenger room inside—less length outside. And less useless car weight. So it's much easier to handle than long, bulky cars. Try the car that's proud to wear its price—proud to prove it makes sense! See your Edsel Dealer! Bob Considine Says:

New Jetliners Will Be Gluttons for Fuel

NEW YORK — There was a Peter Arno cartoon in the New Yorker last week showing one of the new super-winged cars being refueled at a gas pump. The attendant, whose hose nozzle is in the gas tank, is saying, "Will you please shut off the ignition? You're gaining on me."

But every moving object seems to be primly abstemious when compared to the new jets in which you'll soon be flying.

The 707 and the upcoming DC8 will burn up to 2,500 gallons of jet fuel an hour, about four times the rate of a DC7 of the biggest of the Conquies. Idling on the ground, a jetliner will gulp fuel at the rate of 700 gallons an hour.

About 40 per cent of takeoff weight is fuel, as against 30 per cent for the conventional planes of today. For the Los Angeles to New York run, which American inaugurates next month, each 707 will require 8,300 gallons of fuel but take aboard 12,500 gallons, for the conservative safety margin.

On takeoff, the Pratt and Whitney 13,000-pound thrust engines of a 707 or DC8 burn better than 300 gallons in the first 2½ minutes, another 1,400 gallons climbing to a cruising altitude of 31,000 feet. At altitude they are notably more effective than the engines on which most of us fly today.

U.S. airlines will use an average of 31,000 barrels of jet fuel a day during 1959, according to the American Petroleum Institute. This consumption will jump to 131,000 barrels daily in 1961 and to 195,000 barrels by 1966.

Speaking of fuel, Sen. Homer Capehart told us the other day that we could wipe out all U.S. grain surpluses if the fuel manufacturers would consent to use pure alcohol (made from the grain) as 10 per cent of their present fuel.

The senator estimates that it is now costing the taxpayers $1,000,000 a day to rent warehouses to protect our surpluses from the elements.

This is a plug for a roadside restaurant and bar I never saw before last Friday and may not see again. It is Bob Verchola's White Manor, at the intersection of U.S. Highway 45, Hillside, Ill.

Red Subs to Conduct World Ocean Survey

LONDON (AP) — Soviet submarines are to range the world's oceans on special charting missions.

Teamster Official Called Before Rackets Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Blumetti of Youngstown, Ohio, a Teamsters Union business agent, goes before the Senate Rackets Committee today for questioning.

The committee named Blumetti as an important witness in its hearings on alleged gangster infiltration of the juke box and vending machine industry in Ohio cities.

Kennedy said the committee will recess its hearings today until after Congress meets in January.

Book of Prayers 500 Years Old Sells at $89,000

LONDON (AP) — A 500-year-old Flemish prayer book, found in an old basket by a London auctioneer, was sold today for $89,000.

The manuscript, a 15th Century Book of Hours, was written on 163 leaves of vellum and richly illuminated in gold. Decoration on the calf binding included the name of the medieval binder, Livinus Stuart.

An expert from Christie's, London's noted antique auctioneers, discovered the book by chance in a basket of silverware at the Monmouth home of the late Baron Langatock. Three London book-sellers were the purchasers.

The proprietor gave us a quiet table on which to spread our typewriter and notes, set aside his private phone, served us coffee, charged nothing. Nice egg. Nice spot. End of plug.

Seattle old-timer Roy W. Corbett was a great admirer of the late Boss Kettering but resented the many references, including one by me, to the effect that Kettering was the inventor of the self-starter for cars.

"Electric" self-starter we should have said, Corbett writes. He was in the auto business when the 1907 Winton featured a compressed air self-starter. The McFarlen six had the same gadget. It worked before Kettering put his electric starter on the 1912 four-cylinder Cadillac.

The International Friendship League is dedicated to stimulating letter writing between the school children of this country and foreign lands. Recently it received a request from the Soviet Union for such an exchange.

The league turned the matter over to the State Department for an opinion. It now has been told to be wary of pen-pal moppets behind the Iron Curtain.

Undersecretary of State Christian Herter replied, "... such correspondence is frequently used as a vehicle for the dissemination of Communist propaganda. This is apt to be particularly true in the case of Soviet students and school children; their replies might well be inspired by their instructors and, in some cases, local Communist Party functionaries might even review the letters before mailing."

Isn't that sad?

Meat Counter Decorated With Original Paintings

WAYNE, N.J. (AP) — It's an easy jump from knockwurst to art in a supermarket here.

Local artists have placed 113 original paintings and pieces of sculpture on the walls surrounding the meat counter.

"When you're trying to decide between chuck at 79 cents a pound and round steak at 99 cents, it takes the pressure off a bit to look at the pictures," commented one housewife.

Restrain Furniture Wreckers

By EMILY POST

"Dear Mrs. Post: What can a harassed host and hostess do, short of rudeness, to rescue their furniture and accessories from the undisciplined children of some of their guests? We love children and enjoy having them play in our house; but what can we do when the parents sit idly by and let the children climb on the coffee table, put their feet up on the piano and play with our knick-knacks, without once telling them to 'stop'?"

"We have tried diverting the children or finding something for them to play with, but this means we have to spend every minute chasing them around the house instead of visiting with the adults. We certainly don't want to make our friends feel unwelcome but neither do we wish the expensive furniture repair that followed in the wake of one visit."

Answer: It seems to me that at the risk of making the parents feel unwelcome, all you can do is to tell them that you love the things in your house, that most of them are very fragile, and that you are afraid the children will ruin them unless they are restrained. After all there is no reason, in order to be polite, that you have to sit quietly by while cherished possessions are abused.

"Dear Mrs. Post: Every Christmas I send out well over a hundred Christmas cards to friends and business acquaintances. I always turn the flap of the envelope in and put half postage on the envelope. I was told that it is in very bad taste not to seal the envelopes and use full postage. Will you please give me your opinion?"

Answer: It is certainly not in best taste not to seal the envelopes. On the other hand, it is tolerated by too many to be criticized generally.

"Dear Mrs. Post: We recently bought crystal stemware (service for twelve) which we would like to have marked. Will you please tell us how many initials are considered proper; that is, should we use the initial of our last name only, or should we use the initial of our last name plus my husband's and my first initials? If it is considered proper to use three initials, what is the correct order for them?"

Answer: Most properly three initials are used. If you were married to John Smith your glasses are marked M.B.S.

Anna Capogna Becomes Bride of Ronald McAfee

In a double-ring ceremony performed Saturday morning at St. Vincent de Paul Church, Anna Capogna became the bride of Ronald C. McAfee.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Capogna of Henry Clay avenue. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Morgan McAfee of Grosse Pointe Woods.

IN GOWN OF LACE

The bride's floor-length gown was of white Queen Ann lace featuring three-quarter length sleeves and bouffant skirt. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a scalloped neckline of lace outlined with seed pearls.

A half crown trimmed with sequins held her fingertip veil of matching lace, and she carried a white orchid surrounded with white roses, ivy and lilies-of-the-valley on a mother of pearl prayer book.

The bride's sister, Mary Capogna, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Maria Leone, Ann Davis, and Ingrid Soderberg.

ATTENDS BRIDEGROOM

Arthur Capogna, the bride's brother, was best man. Ushers were Dale McAfee, Elio Capogna, and Michael Barrigan.

Following the ceremony a luncheon was held at St.

MRS. RONALD C. McAFEE

George Greek Hall, where 500 guests attended a reception later in the day.

The bride changed to a gray tweed suit with matching accessories for traveling. The couple will reside on West Huron street.

City Man Married in Maryland

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herbert McGee Jr. of Bellevue, Pa., announce the marriage of their daughter, Margaret June, to Philip Martin Hubbard Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Martin Hubbard of South Berkshire road.

The ceremony was performed at the First Presbyterian Church of Cumberland, Md., May 8 by the Rev. Maurice Robertson.

Mrs. Hubbard attended Beaver College, Jenkintown, Pa., and the Carnegie Institute of Technology. She is continuing her studies at the Art Institute of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Hubbard was graduated from Cranbrook School and is attending Carnegie Institute of Technology, where he is a member of Delta Tau Delta. The two are residing in Pittsburgh.

Winter Whirl Held

George Beauchamp was master of ceremonies at the "Winter Whirl" dance held by the Hoedowners Saturday at Owen School.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heth, Thelda Furney and Duane Reamer. The next dance will be held Dec. 20.

Dear Abby...

School Bus Driver Wants Method for Keeping 300 Kids Under Control

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

"DEAR ABBY: Your advice to the parents who were riled up because the teacher slapped the pupils was for the birds. The teacher should have been cheered, not reported to the principal. I am a school bus driver, and every day I haul over 300 kids to school and back. I am not allowed to strike any of them."

"I'm not allowed to let them hang out the windows, turn backwards in their seats, fight with one another, throw trash out the windows, or walk around when the bus is in motion. If I do, my license is revoked. How do you suppose this can be accomplished without laying a hand on them?"

BUS DRIVER

DEAR DRIVER: It doesn't take long to find out who the constant "trouble-makers" are. The parents should be notified that if their children do not conform to the rules, they do not ride on the bus.

"DEAR ABBY: Thank you for opposing teachers who slap children around. Let a teacher send the hard-to-handle student out of the room. Punish him by a public lecture or withholding privileges, but NEVER, NEVER should a teacher be permitted to use physical measures to discipline a child!"

"I know whereof I speak, because exactly 29 years ago (the day before Christmas vacation) a teacher back in a little school in Hammond Ind., gave me a good sound crack on the ear. I have been dead in that ear ever since. A pretty severe punishment for whispering in class, No?"

Yours Sincerely,
JOHN A. KWALSKI

"DEAR ABBY: I'm a woman in my early thirties and a year ago I met a man who said he was 40, but after going out with him a few times I could tell by his looks he was older. I inquired around town because he is such a big liar he can't remember his own stories, I learned he was 55. He tries to act young but he is a silly old fool."

"I never cared for him but he is a big spender. I'm sick of people asking me if he is my father. I want to shake him so I can find someone my own age, but he keeps pestering me. How can I get rid of him?"

PESTERED

DEAR PESTERED: Tell him to quit wasting his time—and yours. In the future, if you don't want a friendly dog in your lap—don't pat him on the head.

"DEAR ABBY: I certainly agree with that gentleman who thinks a lady should let him open doors, hold her coat, etc. When I ask my husband to do such things, he asks me if my arm is broken or something. Chivalry is dead. And, who killed it? When the men see women driving taxis, working in steel mills and repairing plumbing, who needs men to open doors?"

A Pre-Christmas dance was held by the Style Steppers Saturday evening at Willis School.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newell, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Srigley.

Honored at Surprise Party

Irwins Wed 25 Years

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Irwin of Hira street were honored on their silver wedding anniversary Saturday evening by their two daughters, Mrs. Robert M. Young and Mrs. William W. Palace.

The surprise reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Palace in Clarkston.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Hallman of Utica, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Evans of Dayton, Ohio; Edward Irwin, Mr.

Club Hears Original Yule Story

Mrs. Walter Teeuwissen Jr. of Drayton Plains recited a Christmas story she had written, "Howy and the Manger Scene," when Pontiac Chapter CL of PEO Sisterhood met Monday afternoon at the Williams Lake road home of Mrs. L. G. Rowley for a dessert luncheon. Mrs. Charles Matson was cohostess.

Mrs. V. M. Lindquist sang "Come Unto Him," from Handel's Messiah, with Mrs. W. H. Sink as accompanist.

The group sang Christmas carols under the direction of Mrs. C. W. Buck with Mrs. M. J. Wager accompanying at the piano.

Members revealed their secret sisters with a gift exchange.

Chapter CL will cooperate with other area chapters in giving a tea in honor of two International Peace Scholarship students in Michigan. At the present there are four such students in Michigan.

Holiday Greens Workshop Held

Holiday Farm Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association held a Christmas Greens workshop Monday evening at the Woodstock road home of Mrs. Nicholas Manzella.

Members and guests made wall hangings, door pieces, miniature Christmas trees and novelties.

Mrs. Web Cleveland was chairman of the affair, assisted by Mrs. Raymond McMorris, Mrs. Richard Cardona and Mrs. Manzella.

Others included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Leeland Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bego, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hayden, Joseph Palace, Mr. and Mrs. Manley Young and Mrs. Emma Hornblod.

Diet for Teenagers

Do It the Fun Way—Play Off Extra Pounds

By RUTH WEST

You can play it off! Dr. George Mann dramatically underlined this point at Harvard. Four medical students agreed to eat twice as much as they needed, and then to exercise enough to keep themselves from gaining weight.

The students normally ate 3,000 calories daily. Dr. Mann saw to it that they had three big meals every day, and enough candy in between to swell their total to 6,000 calories.

Then they swam vigorously, ran sprints, played basketball and raced bicycles. Even gorging themselves, they gained scarcely an ounce.

Another research team at Harvard reports that in a survey of high school girls it was found that tubby teenagers actually ate less than their slimmer sisters. But when it came to exercise, the girls with the svelte figures were more active physically.

Having fun is one of the best ways to step up the quality of your looks and personality. And one of the best ways to have fun is to be enthusiastically "for" a sport — group, team, or solo.

Even if you diet on 1,500 protein-packed calories a day and still divide that day between the television set and a long day-dreamy session with your favorite disk jockey, you'll not only lose weight more slowly but your color, good spirits, and mental zip may fall off.

You may honestly feel tired at night, even complain sometimes of backaches. If so, you'll be interested to know that these are common teenagers' complaints.

The reason lies in your emotional gears. The frustrations which you suffer daily through being neither child nor adult, the growing number of new problems you must face, keep you shifting constantly from low to second and sometimes even reverse gear, with only occasionally a nice comfortable stretch of open road in high.

As you learn, little by little, to handle your new grown-up position, this strain will lessen. At present, though, one of the best remedies for emotional overwork is—you've guessed it—exercise.

For another thing, exercise is a wonderful way to make new friends. You'll be surprised, too, at the poise you'll gain from performing reasonably well at a sport. That's for sure.

The table below shows the number of calories you can burn in a half-hour of different kinds of exercise—if you really give it what you've got: Cycling up to 585 Walking (fast) up to 550 Skating up to 685 Dancing up to 750 Golf up to 565 Tennis, Basketball, Hockey up to 805 Swimming up to 685 Rowing up to 1,300

Think of this chart in terms of six months or a year. Just half an hour a day at a fairly strenuous sport such as swimming will add up to a loss of 15 pounds over a 12-month period — and that's without dieting at all! Moreover, the fatter you are, the more weight you can lose through exercise.

WALK OR RIDE?

Think about your own exercise pattern for a minute.

Do you walk to school? And if so, do you make a good brisk trip of it, or do you dawdle? Do you ever choose to walk, rather than ride? Do you ever walk for fun?

What gym classes do you take? Do you throw yourself into it, try actively to help your team win — or do you sulk around the edges of the court, avoiding the ball? (You'll make yourself a lot more popular if you help out, and even if you're playing a solo sport, remember that everyone loves a winner.)

Is there a sport at which you might do well enough to make a team, if you tried? Yes? Then try. Is there a sport you love to watch but never had the courage to try, such as diving or fencing?

Some well-coordinated, healthy young people, fine natural athletes, are too self-conscious or timid to go out for anything more showy than table tennis (which is, incidentally, fine exercise).

With Mom, Dad Rated Tops on Gift List

Teeners Caught in Yule Rush

By EUGENE GILBERT
Gilbert Youth Research Company

In all the current bustle of pre-Christmas activity, hardly anybody is busier than the teenager.

To find out what he and his sister are doing about gifts for the occasion, we have just finished questioning several hundred typical youngsters from New York to California. The amount of activity they are carrying on is truly amazing.

Buying gifts for uncles, aunts, brothers, sisters, for teachers, grandparents, cousins, friends, and most of all, for parents, they are as pre-occupied as politicians the week before election.

As it will be, no doubt, forever after, the girls are busier than the boys, who have a slight tendency on this as well as many another occasion to let George — or sister Sue — do the spade work.

PARENTS 'SPECIAL'
This does not apply, however, to one special project:

the buying of gifts for dad and mom.

Practically ever one of those interviewed, whether boy or girl, said he is going to give the parents a gift, and that he is going to do the buying himself.

On this project, he is going to lay out more money than on any other. A fifth of those reporting said they will spend $4.01 to $5.50 on such gifts, and another fourth said they will spend $5.51 to $7.

Interestingly enough the boys indicated their expenditures will be a little higher for such purposes than the girls.

Actually the boys seem somewhat heavier spenders than the girls right down the line — whether it be from generosity or free wheeling or just the possession of more spending money as the result of having jobs or bigger allowances.

READ THE ADS
How do they go about choosing all these gifts? Half of them tell us they pay attention to newspaper ads. Half those who see an ad which interests them say they go right down and look themselves for the gift.

They aren't backward either about telling what they want. Fifty-six per cent say they mention things to their parents, a fifth tell their sisters or brothers, and 14 per cent even tell their friends. If they don't get what they want, it won't be their fault!

Getting back to the gifts that the youngsters themselves hand out, we discovered that a fourth to a half of them do their own buying, whether for friend or relative. The exception is that only a tenth do the buying of gifts for teacher. Could be that such gifts are not entirely the youngsters' own notions!

By far the most common gifts for parents are articles of clothing, with ties, shirts and sweaters the ones most frequently mentioned. Jewelry and purses are other popular items named.

RECORDS POPULAR
For friends, records top the list, with clothes, jewelry and perfume also popular.

Toys, games and clothes are favorite gifts for brothers and sisters.

In buying for friends, the teeners more often than not keeps his expenditures within the $2.51 to $4 bracket. The $1.01-$2.50 range is the runner-up.

Brothers and sisters rate more expensive gifts. In such cases, too, the $2.51 to $4 bracket is most popular, but in the broader, $1.01 to $5.50 range, presents are bought for 68 per cent of the brothers and sisters and only 39 per cent of the friends.

For teachers the $1.01 to $2.50 present is most popular. For grandparents, aunts and uncles, the $2.51 to $4, and for cousins $1.01 to $2.50.

So as you can see the typical teenager, even without a single national average in his head to worry about, has a multitude of Christmas shopping problems, even as you and I, and goes about solving them with a knowing eye and a keen sense of relative values.

For the holidays, Adele Simpson designs this after-five dress of crisp silk peau de soie in vivid colors of red or green. The shaped bodice is accented by a bow and a standaway panel falls into the bell skirt.

At Junior Women's Group Party
'Jills' Sing for Club Here

"The Jills," a girls' group from Bloomfield Hills High School, sang Christmas songs at the Monday evening meeting of Junior Pontiac Women's club held at Pontiac Federal Savings and Loan Building. The girls were directed by Clarence Luchman.

The Rev. Edward D. Auchard of Orchard Lake Community Presbyterian Church spoke on "The Glory of Christmas."

On the social committee were Gertrude Martin, chairman; Beatrice Robinson, Grace Hinkley, Norma Crawford, Marie Dougherty, Margaret Scott, Lucille Martin, Genella Williamson and Helen Derragon.

A Salad Change

Mix a little mayonnaise with French dressing before you toss your next green salad. The combination makes a creamy new texture, and your family will enjoy the change.

Detroit Recital Will Feature Local Organist

Phillip Steinhilber, organist and choirmaster of All Saints Episcopal Church, will present a recital at 8 this evening on the Jardine tracker-action organ at Trinity Episcopal Church, Detroit. The public is invited to attend.

The Trinity Church instrument dates from 1892 and is reported to be one of this region's best preserved examples of the early organ builder's art.

Guest artists for two ensuing concerts in the Trinity Organ Recital Series will be E. Power Biggs on Jan. 5 and Gordon Young of First Presbyterian Church, Detroit, on Feb. 10.

Trabajamas Club Changes Its Name

Plans to change the name of the Trabajamas Alumnae Club to the Philia Thea Club were made when members met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. William Palace.

The group also made plans for a Christmas party, to be held Dec. 17 at the home of Mrs. Robert Laity.

Was Grandma's Lot Such a Hard One?

By RUTH MILLET

"It just isn't true," says a woman who started housekeeping before the days of automatic washers, frozen foods, and instant rolls. "That mothers of families today have it a lot easier than we did."

"Sure," they have their fancy washers and driers. But we had something even better—a woman who came once a week to do the ironing. And it's still the ironing that is the hard part of doing the family wash.

Today's mothers may have their own cars. But they don't drive them for fun. The ones I know are family chauffeurs—pure and simple. So Mama doesn't really have a car—she conducts a taxi.

"Then, there isn't all the service we used to get."

"Today a woman doesn't sit down at the telephone and order her groceries. She goes after them, brings them home, and then unloads them."

"It's the same with many other things. It's not the store or the shop that picks up and delivers—it's Mama."

"Also, wives today are always knocking themselves out to be companionable to their husbands. They feel guilty if they send Papa off on a hunting or fishing trip or to a football game by himself."

"Whatever Papa does—Mama has to do, too—because all the other men's wives are going along."

WIVES INCLUDED
"It used to be that when a man had a business trip to make, he went alone. Now there are as many activities planned for wives of men at conventions as there are for the husbands."

"So wives have to be in there pitching, too—selling themselves to each other in order to help their husbands get ahead."

"And, of course, today many women hold down jobs as well as keep house. Nobody can tell me that is easy—no matter how many labor-saving devices Mama's pay check helps bring."

That's the comment of a woman who remembers when life was supposed to be so much harder for women than it is today, and her comment is: "I'm glad I brought up my family before women had it so good."

You'll Enrich Life

Encourage Your Creative Urges

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

There is something exciting and gratifying about projecting oneself into new mediums, about finding new modes of self-expression. Many psychologists and experts in the field of emotional health feel that the regimentation and mechanization of modern life is one reason for frustration. Many women would like to embark on some effort in writing or art or music or handicrafts, or something else, but fail to do so because they feel they are not really talented.

Yesterday I told you about Emarie Arling who long has been an established writer but who only recently has become recognized as an artist. When complimented on the accomplishment of being a two-career woman she replied, "But the important thing for me and for others, I think, is to keep oneself open to the opportunities life affords, to be cue-minded enough to pick up the possibilities when they are offered."

At this moment Mrs. Arling, who is a small, delicately built woman with pastel coloring, leaned forward to emphasize her point, and continued, "You know the important thing is to encourage your slightest creative impulse. Creativity by itself is invaluable whether you think of it in professional terms or not."

Sometimes I hear people wish, after a concert, that they could play the piano. Well, I always wonder why they don't try! Either they will find out that they enjoy it and go on with their study or they will find out they don't and give it up.

"The more we nourish creativity the more we become a part of the world about us and the warmer our lives as a consequence. This kind of listening to our creative stirrings puts us more in touch with others and it may also lead to new accomplishments. But whether it does the latter or not isn't really important. What is important is that it enriches us as human beings."

Readers of this column know that I say "Amen" to that. I long have believed that shrinkage in the number of interests and the narrowness of daily routine can lead to boredom, fatigue and premature aging.

Do not hesitate to pursue some interest because you feel that you are not especially gifted or because some of your friends might think it silly "at your age."

If you would like to have my leaflet "Hobbies" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 66 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Try Scalp Treatment Regularly

The woman who has her hair set in a beauty salon week after week without giving a thought to hair health is headed for trouble. Trouble may come in the form of dry, lifeless hair, thin hair, limp hair or actual baldness.

For while beauty salons do an excellent job of cutting and styling, many of them are not set up to give hair treatments. A hot dryer is hard on your hair, no doubt about it. So is bleaching. So are temperature changes or large doses of sun or an inadequate diet.

The salon that undertakes hair treatments will emphasize the importance of circulation to a healthy scalp and subsequently, healthy and beautiful hair. So, by all means, have your hair done each week but don't neglect treatments if you need them.

Loose Powder Outdoes Compressed in Testing

One of the nicer projects of a famous scientific laboratory has been, believe it or not, analyzing the relative merits of two kinds of face powder, the loose and the pressed compact varieties. The problem: to find which type does the most for the average woman's skin.

For months the entire gamut of skin types was studied microscopically in a variety of climatic and atmospheric conditions. All in all, loose powder came out ahead, even though the report showed that the compact has become a staple of our womanly paraphernalia.

According to a scientist: "The outstanding characteristic of loose powder is its three dimensional, therefore more natural effect, which is absent from any other cosmetic. This effect is due to the air which separates each particle. The powder has only a limited number of actual points of contact with the skin, therefore it maintains its color well and does not soak up the skin oils."

Loose powder softens facial lines and wrinkles.

It is most satisfactory on skin with lines, furrows and wrinkles. Since the powder is daubed on, it rests loosely on the skin and de-emphasizes facial lines by preventing sharp contrast of lights and shadows.

It does well on any type of skin, giving an optimum effect for the aging skin. But, because of its fluffiness, its limited anchorage on the skin, its low total weight of applied powder, it does not last.

"On the other hand, convenience is the basis of the success of compressed powder: easy to carry, no spillage, attached mirror, can be used when fully clothed, and lasts for hours."

In ample time to save us all from a schizophrenic future of beauty problems, a famous cosmetic house solved the whole problem right there in the laboratory. It developed a new formula of "soft-pressing" powder to a compact cake, which can be applied to the skin exactly like loose powder. The new pressed powder has been formulated to give fifty per cent more powder than the ordinary compact provides.

Alaskans Strictly Individual in Style, Mood of Home Decor

NEW YORK (UPI) — One thing about picture windows in Alaska — they look out on something besides other picture windows or the highway traffic whizzing by.

Almost every home in our newest and largest state has a view, says Mrs. Beatrice Culver, and interior decorators cater to it.

Mrs. Culver, who studied decorating at the University of California at Berkeley, and has been in Alaska since 1945, described life and home decor in a fascinating report to the American Institute of Decorators headquarters. She is the institute's first Alaskan member.

HOME IS HUB

"We all live simply," she wrote, "using our homes for our hobbies . . . usually entertaining casually, but able to gussie it up as the occasion demands . . ."

"The style and mood of our homes are controlled by . . . where we came from and what traditions we absorbed before arriving here."

Architecture may range from the practical and picturesque log cabin to Cape Cod and modern.

The more "modest" homes cost their owners from $15,000 to $20,000, she said; the "average" from $20,000 to $35,000, and the more elaborate, going on up through $65,000, $85,000 and even $125,000.

"But one must realize," she continued, "that dollar for dollar, it costs one-fourth to one-third more to build here than in most areas and that we have expenses not thought of in other cities, such as making our own provisions for wells and sewage systems . . ."

"Almost every home has a gorgeous view either of the mountains or the sea, with an even changing panorama of colors. I am always inclined to work around them, either by bringing them into the interior or by creating within the room a foil for the beauty framed by the windows."

Mrs. Culver said that "if there is such a thing as trend, it seems to be toward the spring and summer colors — which incidentally have their counterpart in the winter in the dramatic Northern Lights — lovely blues, mauves, violets, and even flame pink."

"Alaskans live and let live," she said. "There is no keeping up with the Jones, so there is a great deal of individuality and originality in homes . . . "If one procures a beautiful building, builds a basement and moves into it (himself and family) while he takes anywhere from a year to three years to finish the house proper, no one even raises an eyebrow."

"We are people of large families and inclined to do things together in family units. It is common to see whole families . . . painting the house for its final FHA approval," said the decorator, who is the wife of a real estate man and has six children of her own.

"They look like decorator's children for sure," she said. "Ranging in color from blondes through redheads to brunettes."

Mrs. Culver said decorating in Alaska has its problems to offset the panoramas. One is that of getting furniture and accessories. They either have to be flown in, or shipped by truck, rail and boat.

Because of the three to four months of daylight in summer when an Alaskan can read a paper at midnight without artificial light, homes need light-proofing if there is to be any sleeping.

She said she uses draw draperies with lightproof linings, or lightproof shades which provide darkness in summer and in winter when the nights are long, give a sense of privacy and coziness.

"Glacial grit" causes carpeting to wear more rapidly than it does in other parts of the country," she said.

"And storm porches, foyers or mud rooms finished with washable surfaces are a must . . . to afford storage for mukluks, parkas and skis."

Graham Cracker Crumbs Enclose Sweet Filling

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor

A quick and easy dessert that requires no baking is Mrs. Delbert Burnett's Graham Cracker Cake. You can make it ahead of time; you can even put it in the freezer, if you wish.

With a brand new baby in the family, Mrs. Burnett has her hands full; she has two older children also. She and her husband belong to the Congregational club and she is a member of the Mary Lyon group of her church. This busy

GRAHAM CRACKER CAKE

By Mrs. Delbert Burnett

1 cup nuts, chopped
1 cup sugar
3 eggs, separated
1 cup crushed pineapple, drained
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 pound graham crackers, rolled into crumbs
Cream sugar, butter or margarine and egg yolks until light and fluffy. Add nuts and fruit. Beat egg whites stiff and fold into first mixture.

Put half the cracker crumbs into an 8x8x2 pan. Press down. Add fruit mixture. Cover with remaining crumbs. Chill at least 5-6 hours. Serves nine.

Legion Women Plan Party for Children

Plans for a Children's Christmas party were discussed when the Auxiliary to Chief Pontiac Post 377, American Legion met Saturday at the post home.

The party, to be put on by the junior auxiliary and Sons of the American Legion, will be held Dec. 20. A feature of the party will be members of a local dance team.

Hostesses at the meeting were Mrs. Fred Beedle and Mrs. Ernest Walker. Mrs. Ray Pardon and Mrs. Edward Muschell were welcomed as new members.

Mrs. James Cheyne reported on the December meeting of the 18th District.

St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Group Plans 2 Parties

The Auxiliary of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital met Monday at McAuley School of Practical Nursing.

Mrs. Walter Williams, auxiliary chairman, announced that plans have been made for the annual Christmas party for children receiving medical care through the hospital's clinic.

Plans for a card party to be held after the first of the year were discussed. In response to a request from the administrator, the auxiliary voted to purchase two pieces of equipment for the hospital.

Pontiac OES Takes Pictures for Album

Members of Pontiac Chapter No. 228, OES, gathered Monday evening at the Masonic Temple. Pictures for the group's five-year fraternal album were taken.

Assisting with the meeting were Mrs. Claude Coons, Mrs. Grace Snover, Mrs. Meta McIlroy, Mrs. Lillian Boughton, Mrs. Leo Morrison, and Mrs. Sylvan Clark. Mrs. Theodore Marchbanks also participated in the program.

To Fete Children of St. Joseph Clinic

Santa Claus will be present when a Christmas party for children receiving medical care through the St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Clinic is held from 1 to 4 p.m. Dec. 15 at the McAuley School of Practical Nursing.

Nearly 250 children have been invited to the affair, which also will feature a film and refreshments.

Notice, Jewelry Buyers

If you're planning to buy that girl a gift of jewelry, better beware of bumpkin traps.

It seems there are many ways to be fooled in buying costume jewelry. Here are some pointers offered by a jewelry designer who hopes to safeguard novice purchasers:

In good jewelry gems are hand set in prongs, usually. Cheap jewelry has stones pasted in. Good costume jewelry is made of 14 karat gold or sterling silver or gold filled. Look for the hall marks which indicate the metal.

The better jewelry is made usually with imported rhinestones or crystals or from semi-precious stones such as jade, moss agate, rhodonite as in the now popular scarab bracelets.

EUNICE F. HAYWARD

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd L. Hayward of Grandie avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Eunice Faye, to John Julian Baker. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John William Baker of North Johnson avenue. No wedding date has been set.

Country Club Yule Party Set

A Christmas Party for women will be held at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday at Forest Lake Country Club.

Mrs. Milton Fields, chairman of women's social activities at the club, is in charge of this final party of the year. She and her committee members have arranged for a "Christmas Musical" to be presented at the affair.

An organist will play Christmas carols, and there will be group singing.

30 Attend Dinner of OES Chapter 228

Thirty members and friends attended a turkey dinner when OES Griffin Proficiency Chapter 228 met Saturday at the Oxley drive home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Weddie.

Members exchanged gifts and sang Christmas carols. Assisting the hostess were Mrs. Grace Snover, Mrs. Edna Warden, Mrs. Harry Brimhall, Mrs. Mabel Reynolds, Mrs. Melva Allen and Mrs. Meta McIlroy.

House Provided for Caswells

Food, Clothing Pour In for Family of 10 After Blaze Guts Home

By LEE WINBORN
Press Staff Writer

You might think the Caswell family was just moving into their new home at 1920 June Street in Avon Township near Rochester today, if you didn't know the tragedy which threatened their lives Sunday morning when flames gutted their actual home, two doors down the street.

"I don't know how I'll ever be able to thank everyone for all they've done," said Mrs. Floyd Caswell, mother of eight, as she surveyed the piled-up boxes of clothing and bedding which surrounded her in their temporary dwelling.

Following the family's narrow escape from flames which roared through their home for two hours, Eric C. Gunia of Berkley, owner of the new house where the Caswells are now staying, offered them the dwelling rent-free for a month.

Neighbors began collecting food, clothing and bedding for the destitute family of 10 almost immediately after the fire which forced to flee barefoot in freezing temperatures at 7:05 in the morning.

Contributions and offers to help from both friends and complete strangers continued to pour in throughout yesterday and today. And work has already commenced on repairing the gutted frame house which was insured.

None of the household effects were insured, however. All that was saved were the television set, though it appeared badly scorched, and a table which had been stored in the garage.

"We were just starting to get on our feet when this happened," Mrs. Caswell noted. "I just had my brand new stove and refrigerator and now they're ruined too," she added.

Firemen, who battled the blaze for two hours, said it was caused by a leaking gas line near the hot water heater.

Among the neighbors who immediately set to work helping the distraught family were Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne LaVigne and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Haddix. Many others were keeping busy handling the calls with offers to help and canvassing the whole community for donations of money, food, clothing, etc.

Mrs. Caswell said the things they won't be able to use will be turned over for future use by any other family which might be confronted with disaster.

Her husband is employed by the Avon Tube Co. in Rochester as a bender. Their children are Patricia Ann, 12, who is staying with relatives in Pontiac for the time being; twins Magdalen and Margaret, 11, Judy 10, and Rosemary, 7, who were taken in by relatives in Waterford; and in Royal Oak with other relatives is Kenneth, 3.

The two other children, Michael, 2, and Kathy, 11 months old are staying with their parents in their temporary home until work is finished on their house.

Mrs. Caswell has been working off and on since 1940 in the kitchen at Devon Gables restaurant in Bloomfield Hills.

Newly-Married Couple at Home in Ortonville

ORTONVILLE — Newlyweds now residing on Cedar street here are Mr. and Mrs. Lyding C. Krug following their wedding at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Detroit. The bride is the former Mary Gery Lawson of St. Clair Shores.

COUNT THEIR BLESSINGS — Mrs. Floyd Caswell, 1927 June St., Avon Township, and her family feel fortunate today to have a roof over their heads and to have so many friends to help them when they need it most. The Caswell family was left destitute Sunday when fire gutted their five room frame house. Mrs. Caswell is shown here with her two-year-old son Michael and 11-month-old daughter Kathy surrounded here by clothing and bedding that has been pouring in steadily since the fire. The rest of the Caswells' eight children are staying with relatives throughout the county.

4-H Livestock Show Opens

Over 300 Youths Meet at Detroit Fairgrounds to Enter Competition

DETROIT (UPI) — More than 300 4-H boys and girls from throughout Michigan were on hand today for the opening of the Detroit Junior Livestock Show.

Some 790 steers, lambs and hogs were entered in competition and placing anywhere in the upper brackets will give the youngsters something to brag about back home.

Meat packers, store operators and restaurant owners were also on hand to examine the champion animals.

Last year, Carol Payne, a Michigan State University co-ed, received $3.50 a pound for her 1,025-pound grand champion Aberdeen-Angus steer.

Only members of the Michigan 4-H Clubs may compete in the livestock show which runs through Thursday at the State Fairgrounds Coliseum.

After the "business session" today, the youngsters will be entertained tonight. On Wednesday night, they will be guests at a banquet at the Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel. Judging of the 4-H entries will be held Wednesday and the animals will be auctioned Thursday.

Village Assessor Gives Resignation in Romeo

ROMEO — Village Assessor Glenn Levine tendered his resignation last night at the regular meeting of the Romeo Village Council because he plans to spend the winter in Florida. No successor was named.

Press to Give Dairy Trophy

Award Honors Oakland Person; MSU's Clinton Meadows to Speak

Oakland County area's "Dairyman of the Year" will be presented with a trophy by the Pontiac Press tonight at 7:30 p.m. during the annual banquet sponsored by the Oakland County Dairy Committee at the Masonic Hall, 4835 Broadway St. in Clarkson.

"The Future of Dairying" is the topic selected by principal speaker of the evening Clinton Meadows, associate professor of Dairying at Michigan State University. Miss Janet Long of the Milford 4-H Club will do humorous readings.

Sam Smith, president of the Oakland County Dairy Committee, will act as toastmaster.

Richard Hanson, county editor of the Pontiac Press, will present the trophy to the Dairyman of the Year, who will be announced at the banquet.

The winner of the Press trophy is selected each year by the four Dairy Herd Improvement Assns. in the county. Among the factors upon which they base their choice are amount of milk and butterfat produced, improvements made in livestock housing, breeding and feeding and management practices.

The annual meeting of the Dairy Herd Assns. will follow the dinner, at which time new officers will be elected.

All county area dairy farmers have been invited to attend the affair, it was announced by Jay Poffenberger, Oakland County agricultural extension agent. The dinner is being prepared by the Commerce Order of the Eastern Star.

An average U.S. farm worker in 1880 harvested 21 acres of land. By 1950 the average was 47 acres and it is now nearing the 56 acre mark.

New Officials of Austin Lodge to Be Installed

WHITE LAKE — Newly-elected officers of Austin Lodge No. 48 F&AM will be installed at the Masonic Temple in Davisburg Saturday at 8 p.m.

E. Earl Mollenkopf has been elected worshipful master. Others to be installed include: senior warden — Stanley H. Verbeck; junior warden — William D. Ellis; treasurer — Harold J. Vollink; P.M.; secretary — J. William Aspinall, P.M.; senior deacon — Bruce Barnett; junior deacon — Ray L. Cushman; junior steward — Harold L. Vines; senior steward — Woodrow Weaver, and associate stewards — Robert Clark and David V. Spott.

William A. Leach, P.M., has accepted the station of chaplain, Gary K. Cushman that of marshal, and Don Turner that of tiler.

Presiding at the installation will be Dr. Morgan J. Smead, P.G.M. as most worshipful grand master. He will be assisted by Lawrence C. Hark, R. W., as grand secretary; Donald C. Kochenderfer, P.M. — R. W., grand chaplain; Frank A. Lane, P.M. of Brotherhood Lodge No. 561, worshipful grand marshal; Raymond L. Burkhardt, P.M., marshal; Mrs. Amy Mills, installing organist, and Larry Williams, soloist.

Garden Club Gives Yule Exhibition

FARMINGTON — The Farmington Garden Club will present a Christmas flower show Saturday at Dunckel Junior High School, 32800 W. 12-Mile Rd. The show will be open free to the public from 2 to 9 p.m.

The theme "Joy to the World" will be expressed in floral arrangements and in horticultural and conservation exhibits. Judging will be by the standard system.

The Farmington Junior Gardeners will exhibit arrangements and horticultural specimens. The show is being co-chaired by Mrs. James P. Henry and Mrs. Arthur F. Groskop.

Action Being Held Up on Church Robbery

OAK PARK — No action will be taken by Oak Park Police in the theft of $3,675 from the rectory of Our Lady of Fatima Church on Saturday unless someone makes a complaint, Public Safety Director Glen S. Leonard said today. The money was the proceeds of an illegal turkey raffle held Friday night in the church. Leonard said the church has no property rights on the money because it was obtained illegally.

To add insult to injury, the raffle and theft occurred 100 yards from the Oak Park police station. The church and rectory, 24000 Coolidge Rd., are directly across the street from the station.

25th Anniversary Noted by Gingellville Couple

GINGELLVILLE — Open house will be held Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Gingellville Community Center in honor of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A.G. Burgess of 4325 Joslyn Rd.

Hosting the party will be the Burgess' children, George, Arthur and Mrs. T. Wickman, all of Gingellville; Mrs. S. Pittoway of London, Ont.; Mrs. C. Knowlton of Owendale; Mrs. M. Harvey of Farwell, and Mrs. R. Felix Jr., of Auburn Heights.

Track Talks Start

SHELBY TOWNSHIP — The management of Curtiss-Wright Corporation, Utica Division, has scheduled a meeting in Lansing Dec. 17 with State Highway Department Commissioner John C. Mackie for the purpose of discussing the development of the Curtiss-Wright property here as an automobile race track.

Representatives of Macomb County Planning Commission and from the Shelby Township Board of Trustees and Zoning Board have also been invited to be present for the meeting at the State Capitol.

Curtiss-Wright officials are calling the conference primarily to inform the Highway Dept. of preliminary plans for the proposed track.

The track will cater to Indianapolis or championship cars as well as stock and sports cars.

Definite design and engineering work on the project is scheduled to start shortly after the rezoning amendment becomes effective Dec. 19.

Construction will follow next spring, a company spokesman said today. The building program will include a permanent grandstand to seat 20,000 spectators, bleachers for 20,000 more, comfort stations and a sports car course within the larger oval.

Santa Rides Again

By ED GUNDER

At twenty-two, thirty-two Quackenduck Lane, On leaving the chimney I looked round in vain For two little stockings that should have been there A singleton dangled instead of a pair.

While standing and thinking and tugging my beard And hoping it wasn't as bad as I feared, I heard a small noise and, bent in a crouch, Secreted myself behind a big couch.

Two shadows were coming, one taller than 'tother; I knew in a flash it was brother and brother. The larger one said, "Don't shiver and shake. 'It's all around school that Santa's a fake."

At that I stood up and exclaimed "Oh so HO, "How big in a year can a little boy grow?" He turned with a cry and said "I and my brother . . ."

Then started to grin. We winked at each other.

He ran up the stairs, returned with his stocking While shedding his manner so mocking and shocking.

He bowed quite politely right then in his house And said to me, "Santa I'll hush my big mouth."

He'll Appreciate Shirts It Selected With Care

Looking for a gift that's bound to please your favorite male? Why not give him "the shirt on his back?" And finding one that's sure to please is no problem.

If you've decided upon a dress shirt, then keep a discerning eye out for fabrics. Threading their way to sartorial prominence are the wash-and-wear groups.

For example, one manufacturer offers a complete collection in Vantage, a 100 per cent cotton material that can be washed by hand, in a machine, or commercially — and worn the next day without any ironing.

For added fashion interest, the fabric has been translated into muted squares and stripes in attractive pastel colorings. There also are solid tones of black, green, gold and red — as well as basic white and light shades.

To make life still easier, even coordinated neckwear is available in drip-dry fabric. And look for shirts with a one-piece collar that won't curl or wilt.

There's nary a fashion-conscious man alive that wouldn't appreciate a sport shirt, too. Look for checks and stripes and miracle cotton that requires little or no ironing. These are especially handsome in all-over foulard patterns.

Also in the field of wash and wear, there are gabardines and blends of orlon and wool, acrilan and worsted and arnel and cotton.

Christmas colors in sportswear include not only red and green, but deep rich tones of blue, gold and brown. Men will also take a shine to lustrous, iridescent effects produced by a blending of two shades. Important mergers are blue with tan or black and black with gold or white.

And if you really want your gift package to shape up to perfection, include a knit shirt with unusual placket treatments, contrasting trims, open V-necks and mitered collars.

Gifts Wrapped With Originality

Clever Accessories Add an Attractive Touch of Personal Taste

Use originality in making clever accessories for your gift wrapping. A cluster of pine cones, a poinsettia, a cluster of tiny bells or group of Christmas balls are attractive tied in with the bow on top of a package.

Other types of paper besides Christmas wrapping paper may be used effectively for gifts. Aluminum foil, shelf paper and even ordinary newspaper may be used if ribbon and accessories are carefully chosen.

It is wise to match your ribbons to one of the colors of the paper in which the gift is to be wrapped. Once a fine seamstress covered all her small gifts with scraps of cloth, silk, satin, velvet and other materials. Of course this took a lot of time as she stitched each seam with great care but her wrapped gifts were really something to behold.

Another woman, giving a gift to a friend whose hobby is sewing, selected for her all sorts of sewing aids — buttons, thread, pins, needles, snaps, tape measure, several short lengths of cloth, an apron pattern and scissors.

She wrapped all of these in a two-yard length of red cloth. Santa Claus seals were used on the cloth the same as on paper and it was tied with green ribbon. Tiny red buttons were tied here and there among the ribbon streamers. The bow that topped the package was fashioned of skeins of red and green embroidery thread.

Plenty of Chance for Variety

Home Gift Should Be Practical, Pretty

Christmas presents for the home are lasting reminders of the giver's thoughtfulness. They also provide a wider range of items to fit varied tastes and budgets.

Good guiding rules when selecting such home gifts are twofold: Make them attractive and practical.

Decorative presents of man-made fibers fit these requirements beautifully. For example, accent rugs of Avisco rayon would be welcomed by any homemaker with an eye for appearance and a liking for easy living. They'll take a dunking in washtub or laundromat for easy care.

Look for such colors as Aztec red, lemon gold or burnt orange as handsome accent touches.

Bedspreads are another good idea for Christmas giving. For school or college age members of a household, Tam O'Shanter by Morgan-Jones would surely make a hit. Styled with tartan effect plaid, this bedspread is made with thick tufts which thrive on frequent launderings.

Particularly good looking in bold red or blue, the spreads may also be paired with matching cafe curtains.

For modern bedrooms, the princess spreads seem made to order. Understated in design, they rely on texture interest and color brightness for their unmistakable appeal, offering down-to-earth practicality at the same time.

Dewdrop-effect cording matches the ground cloth in colors developed by well-known textile weaver Dorothy Liebes. Outstanding colors are marigold, a pumpkin-tinged orange; larkspur, a rich blue; and emerald, a vibrant green.

Bedspreads in traditional heirloom designs are ideal gifts and more so now since they come in a lint-free, tub-happy Avisco rayon.

A warm thought for a special kind of Christmas wrapping is a soft blanket with delicate hand-screened print. This one is styled by Chatham Avisco has rayon blended with orlon for a washable, color-fast blanket.

Santa's Best Friend: a Sparkling Diamond

With Christmas just around the corner a girl with a gleam in her eye would like to have one on her finger, too. And many young women realize this wish with Christmas being the favorite engagement day of the year.

Brilliant or round diamonds are still the most popular with emerald-cut being the choice of many because of their subdued beauty.

Heart diamonds, newest and most romantic, are rising in demand.

Before making a selection, a lady should consider the color of her skin, her personality and the size of her hands, according to a nationally known diamond cutting authority.

NO TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM — Yesterday's snowfall slowed up motorists, but it was just what Mrs. Philip Beehler of 2322 Georgeland St., Drayton Plains, needed to get around from store to store with her four children. Enjoying a sleigh ride at Wayne and Huron street were Mike, 18 months, and Donnie, 2. Also tagging along were Tommy, 5, and Bobbie, 10.

PEDESTRIANS THROG STREETS — Crowds like this are commonplace during the Christmas season in downtown Pontiac and at Tel-Huron and Miracle Mile shopping centers. To help insure safe crossings by pedestrians, Public Safety Director George D. Eastman has assigned special officers to guide pedestrians at busy intersections.

ELFIN CHARACTERS had a sniffing good time with fragrance for Christmas. They found a freshen-up kit (top left) with soothing talc, balm and soap; perfume and eau de toilette set and elegant urn. They also turned up (bottom left), a cooling, spray-on bath powder; improved packable aerosol containers for fragrances and more elegant and practical purse flacons.

Social Security Expert Warns:

Take Life Easier After 60

By RAY HENRY
Associated Press Writer

As we get older, our muscles weaken, our joints stiffen, our body gets less flexible, our hearing, sight and sense of balance become less perceptive. No one likes these changes.

But, there's little we can do about them except to recognize they occur and make allowance for them in our daily living.

If we don't—particularly after 60—we're courting disaster.

Take this true story about the 82-year-old mother of friend of mine. She died recently, perhaps because she refused to accept the fact that her body had grown old.

She was a truly independent woman. Almost to the last, she lived by herself in her own apartment. She did her own cooking, much of her own cleaning and shopping.

Perhaps, she reached 82 because she was so independent. Doing things for herself may have kept her more active and alert.

It may also have been her undoing. Her son often cautioned her against using the stools she had in her apartment. He pointed out they were easy to slip and fall from, chairs with a back and arms were much safer.

Several times he asked her to let him replace the stools with other chairs.

But, she refused to give the stools up and paid little attention to his warnings. Then one day a month or so ago, she fell from one of the stools while trying to make a phone call and broke two ribs.

She died a week later, possibly from complications brought on by the fall and broken ribs.

As this story illustrates, accident prevention should be a very special concern for older people. There are a number of simple, but effective ways to cut down the possibility of household accidents.

Here are some of them:

Slick floors and scatter rugs often cause slips and falls. To protect this danger, small rugs which are likely to slip should be tacked down. Better still, large and firm rugs should be used as floor covering.

The older person's bedroom, hallways and bathroom should be fitted with night lights to eliminate the possibility of a fall in the dark. This is extremely important because older people often have to go to the bathroom in the night.

The kitchen should be arranged so that the older person doesn't have to reach or climb to get to the things commonly used in cooking. Many accidents occur because it's necessary for an old person to climb on a stool, chair or step ladder to reach into cupboards.

The bathroom is a particularly dangerous spot. But, it can be almost accident proof. There are metal frames which fit around the toilet with firm arms to grip while getting up and down. There are also safety devices such as hand-grips for bathtubs. Ask your doctor or visiting nurse about these aids or send to a surgical supply house for a catalog.

Stairways should have securely fitted handrails. Bright lights at top and bottom are another must and they should both be controlled with a switch on each floor.

Door sills should be eliminated wherever possible. Any new appliance used by an older person should be demonstrated and its use carefully explained.

These are just some of the things which can prevent household accidents for older people. Probably you can think of more.

U.S. Space Chief Predicts Payoff on Launchings

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Dr. T. Keith Glennan, America's space chief, predicts a huge payoff for the public from the billions of dollars to be invested in space probes.

Glennan, head of the new National Aeronautics and Space Administration, tagged the organization's job as "the business of exploring the solar system."

He forecast a dozen such launchings next year.

He said in a Chamber of Commerce speech Monday night that weather prediction is an immediate aim of space vehicles. He said satellites could gather more data faster to aid meteorologists.

He also predicted improved way stations for long-distance transmissions.

Earlier, at Austin, he met with Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.). Both agreed the Army's lunar probe last week was a scientific success, but were not satisfied that the rocket went only a third of the way to the moon.

"We can't be satisfied until we reach the objective," Glennan said.

"We can't be satisfied as long as we have troubles," Johnson said. "Unless and until we find the answers, we must recognize the problems and solve them."

Their Future

and Yours Depends

on Our Colleges

The number of young men and women who want and deserve a college education will double by 1967. It's a sobering thought.

Our colleges and universities are making a valiant effort to take care of the hosts of eager-eyed young people who are already clamoring for admittance. They have an enormous job to do. For expansion calls for more than adding classrooms, laboratories and dormitory space. There must be a corresponding increase in faculty and in faculty caliber.

Freedom needs educated people. Won't you help overcome this crisis? Help the college of your choice today.

Probe Goes On in School Fire

Chicago Officials Plan to Question 500, Pledge to Determine Cause

CHICAGO (AP) — Forty investigators continued their broad inquiry today into the Dec. 1 Our Lady of the Angels School fire. A top city official said it will not end until the cause has been determined.

Earle Downes, Chicago fire attorney, said investigators will talk to more than 500 persons. Included in his task force are 15 juvenile officers who will query the older children who attend the parochial grade school.

As Downes pledged a continuing investigation, Cook County Coroner Walter E. McCarron announced the names of 16 men who will be on the jury at the inquest Wednesday into the deaths of 89 children and three nuns. Most are insurance company officials, engineers and architects.

McCarron said the jury's principal job is to determine the manner and cause of death.

At least four Our Lady of the Angels pupils will be called upon to testify, McCarron said. The four had dumped papers in the boiler room at about the time the fire was discovered, but the boiler room was untouched by fire.

Investigators have speculated that the fire may have been set off by a match or cigarette discarded in rubbish at the foot of a stairwell.

Total contributions to aid the families whose children were killed or injured in the fire is $199,259.

Checks for $500 have gone to families who lost a child in the fire. Similar checks will be sent this week to parents whose children were injured.

East, West Begin Atom Control Talks

GENEVA (AP) — East and West turned today to the details of a control system to police a world ban on nuclear weapon tests.

The Soviet Union accepted controls in principle Monday night but proposed that big power agreement be required to run the control system, thus giving each nation a veto. The United States and Britain insist that the system must be veto-free to be effective.

Western and Soviet delegates to the secret, three-power talks approved the second article of a draft treaty authorizing a control organization in general terms and obligating the signers to cooperate with it.

The first article, approved Saturday, obligates signers to suspend nuclear tests.

The articles will become effective only when a complete treaty is approved. The West wants the treaty or an annex to spell out in detail how an independent control system will work to prevent later hamstringing by one power.

The western states comprise almost 60 per cent of the nation's land area but have only about 30 per cent of the nation's total water supply now available.

Seaway Ports Excited About All-Year Shipping

MONTREAL, Que. (AP)—Deep-water ports flanking the St. Lawrence River are excited about the prospects of year-round navigation.

The St. Lawrence Seaway will allow bulk cargo vessels of the Great Lakes to sail for the first time up the St. Lawrence River. Supplementing this, there is growing pressure from normally ice-bound river ports for all-winter shipping channels between the Atlantic and Quebec City.

Capt. R. G. Edwards of Canadian International Paper Co. flew 2,000 miles from Montreal to Newfoundland on an aerial ice survey last winter. He reported: "Winter shipping into the gulf and into the St. Lawrence River itself presents no problem providing adequate equipment is made available."

More icebreakers, a continuing aerial ice survey and an ice forecasting service are considered keys to this year-round navigation.

Winter navigation as far upstream as Montreal is unlikely. Lake St. Peter below Montreal is easily jammed with ice by east winds.

Last winter the schooner D'Vora sailed the St. Lawrence north shore to Baie Comeau, Que. Ships called all winter at Dalhousie, N. B., to load newsprint.

The seaway will benefit two major bulk commodities — grain moving eastward to overseas ports and iron ore moving westward to Great Lakes steel mills.

Shippers suggest that the lakers may pick up Western wheat, sail through the seven locks and four
