Summit Conference Planned

Ed-Reform Plan in Jeopardy

From Our News Wires

LANSING—Legislative leaders in both houses planned a summit conference with Gov. William G. Milliken this afternoon on the fate of further education reform in 1969.

The development came as speaker William A. Ryan told colleagues on the House floor today that they should adjourn the 1969 session immediately unless they reach a bipartisan agreement to work seriously on education reform bills.

Ryan asked for party caucuses on the issue as the chamber recessed until midafternoon.

Milliken's educational reform program lay in serious jeopardy after House rejection of proposals to finance next year's mammoth school aid bill.

Defeated yesterday were measures to raise the state income tax and to repeal the property tax credit on the income tax, both to help pay for Milliken's $1-billion school-aid bill. The bill includes a $25-million allotment for lay teachers in non-public schools.

Although the school aid bill is scheduled for a vote in the House later this week, many members publicly have said they would not vote for it if tax measures were not passed first to finance a $183-million increase from this year's allocation.

Defeat came first for House Speaker William A. Ryan's proposed income tax increase, which would have raised the personal income tax in Michigan from 2.6 per cent to 3 per cent, estimated to bring in $131 million annually in additional revenue.

House members rejected the proposal on a 39-68 vote, with yes and no votes split evenly among Democrats and Republicans.

The lower chamber then debated Milliken's proposed property-tax credit repeal more than two hours before handing it a crushing 24-84 defeat.

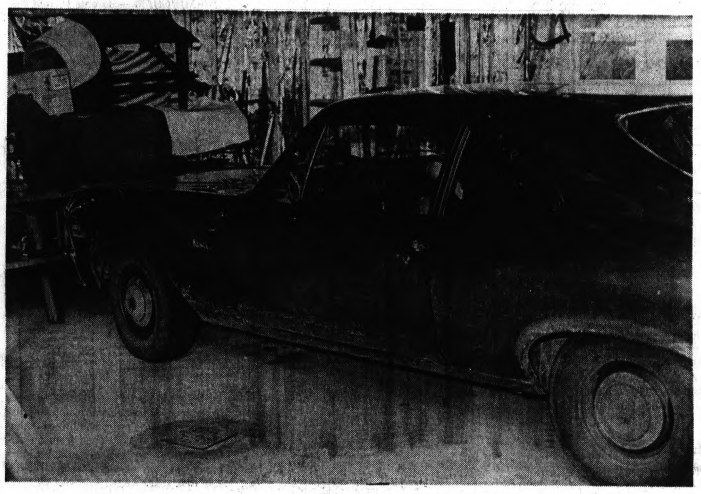

The bill would have raised $116 million and would have been contingent on voter acceptance next year of a constitutional amendment limiting school property taxes to 12 mills.

CLEARED BY SENATE

Milliken's property tax credit repeal proposal has already cleared the Senate.

In the meantime, Senate Republican leader Emil Lockwood of St. Louis said he has all but abandoned hopes of trying to push through the Senate the two constitutional amendments in the governor's program.

Lockwood said last night proposals to replace the present elective State Board of Education with the appointed board and create a statewide property tax to finance education may have to wait until January.

FAMILY DEATH SCENE — All five members of the Wayne Jowasky family were found dead yesterday in the garage of their home at 227 Franklin, Milford. All but Jowasky were in the car. He was on the garage floor. Copper tubing led from a cylinder to the car's engine block. Milford police suspect the deaths to be murder-suicide.

Police Suspect Murder-Suicide

Milford Family Found Dead

Milford police today are probing the apparent murder-suicide of a village family of five.

The bodies of the Wayne Jowasky family of 227 Franklin were found yesterday afternoon at 4:30 by three Cub Scouts who arrived for a meeting at the Jowasky home and could get no response from ringing the doorbell or knocking on the door.

★ ★ ★

Dead are Wayne Jowasky, 35, a member of the Milford Planning Commission and the special city study committee; his wife, Theresa, and the three children, David, 8, Diane, 7, and Barbara, 5.

The Cubs searched around the house briefly then found the five bodies in the adjoining garage.

Jowasky was on the floor of the garage, near the right front car door. His wife was lying in the front seat, and the three children were in the rear seat, strapped in with seat belts.

According to authorities, a length of copper tubing ran from a fuel cylinder in a corner of the garage to under the car, where it had been caulked to the fire wall near the car heater.

★ ★ ★

The tank has been sent to the Michigan State Police Crime Laboratory in East Lansing for analysis of its contents.

GAS TANK EMPTY

The car's gas tank was empty, according to police. A neighbor said she heard one of the Jowasky cars running in the garage Tuesday night.

Chief Joseph Brophy estimated that the family had been dead since "late Tuesday."

Jowasky was the senior experimental engineer in the passenger car development department of the Chevrolet Division at nearby General Motors Proving Grounds.

Official autopsy reports are due tomorrow from the Oakland County Medical Examiner.

Police said that investigation is being conducted into the possibility of foul play but they declined to indicate whether the investigation was more than routine.

British Ban Executions

LONDON (AP) — The House of Lords today permanently banished the death penalty for murder in Great Britain after a two-day debate that crossed party lines.

★ ★ ★

The Lords approved without a formal vote count a Labor government motion to make permanent a four-year experiment idling the hangman despite strong conservative opposition and public opinion polls showing renewed support for using the gallows.

Health Director Is Quitting

Dr. Bernard Berman, director of the Oakland County Health Department for the past six years, says he will leave his $33,000-a-year position next year.

★ ★ ★

Berman, who made the announcement during an annual department Christmas luncheon yesterday, said he did not know what he would be doing. He said he is interested in seeking a fellowship so that he might be involved in the newly developing approaches to medicine, but as yet he has no commitments.

Calling the Oakland County Health Department "the finest in the state," the 35-year-old doctor admitted there is some possibility he might accept a year's leave of absence if one were to be offered.

Parochiaid Foes Sue 8 Districts Over Fund Use

LANSING (AP) — A group opposed to state aid for nonpublic schools filed suit in Ingham County Circuit Court today charging eight state school districts with illegally using state money for parochiaid.

The suit was filed by Michigan Citizens to Advance Public Education (CAPE).

★ ★ ★

The eight districts charged were Center Line, Warren Fitzgerald, Warren Consolidated, Pinconning, Bay City, Harbor Beach, Saginaw Township and Lansing.

★ ★ ★

Harriett Phillips, CAPE chairman, said Lansing was charged only with furnishing auxiliary services to the schools.

PTA LEADERS

CAPE is made up of some dozen organizations opposed to state aid to nonpublic schools, led by the Michigan Congress of Parents and Teachers.

★ ★ ★

Asked that the state be permanently enjoined from making any aid payment to any school district providing auxiliary services for nonpublic school children at religiously affiliated or other nonpublic schools. The group further asked for a show cause order why a preliminary injunction should not be granted.

★ ★ ★

In addition to the school districts named, the suit was directed against State Treasurer Allison Green and John Porter, acting state superintendent of public instruction.

★ ★ ★

Kenneth Laing Jr., attorney for the group, said, "This has nothing to do with what is going on in the Legislature."

BEING DONE NOW

"It has to do with what is being done now in the school districts."

Laing said the suit is directed against districts in which public school teachers are sent in to teach in private or religious schools.

★ ★ ★

Laing said he hoped to stop the practice in two ways — by an injunction to prevent the state from furnishing money to the school districts and a similar injunction to stop the schools from using state money for private purposes.

Charter Change Election Today

In the snow and sleet, Pontiac voters are determining today if they want to change the way the City Commission is elected.

Polls will be open until 8 p.m.

★ ★ ★

There is just the one proposition on the ballot. It asks for three changes in the City Charter — that commissioners be elected by district only, and that age and residency requirements be lowered to 25 and one year respectively (now 30 and five).

★ ★ ★

The election was called after petitions with over 6,200 signatures were presented by the Pontiac Council of Concerned Citizens.

MODIFIED AT-LARGE

City commissioners are elected in a modified at-large manner. In each of the seven districts, candidates are narrowed to two in the primary. The pairs then compete in the citywide election.

★ ★ ★

The mayor is elected by the successful candidates. This would not be changed in today's ballot proposition.

★ ★ ★

The charter change would return the city to the system in effect before 1963.

Indicted N.J. Mayor Goes Back to Work

From Our News Wires

NEWARK, N.J. — Charged with extortion, conspiracy and income tax evasion, Newark Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio left federal court under $25,000 bail yesterday to return to his office to conduct the city's business. "We will have our day in court," he said.

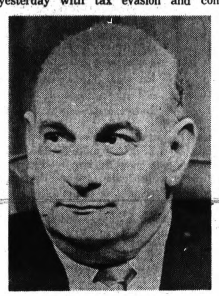

★ ★ ★

The mayor and 14 other persons — including three city councilmen and a reputed Mafia figure — were charged yesterday with tax evasion and conspiracy in an alleged $253,000 extortion plot.

The federal grand jury actions followed by a day the indictments of 55 persons on conspiracy and gambling charges in a widespread probe of organized crime and government corruption in New Jersey.

★ ★ ★

The 15 were charged with 65 counts of extorting payments of $500 to $7,000 from Constrand Inc., an engineering firm doing business with the city. Paul Rigo, an officer of the firm, was reported to be an informer in the investigation.

HUGH J. ADDONIZIO

TAX EVASION CHARGES

Twelve of the defendants, who included five former city councilmen, were charged with income tax evasion. Among those indicted were reputed Mafia figure Anthony "Tony Boy" Boiardo; Frank Addonizio, a councilman and distant cousin of the mayor; Municipal Court Judge Anthony Guiliano; and former corporation counsel Philip E. Gordon, who resigned last week after testifying before the federal grand jury.

★ ★ ★

The indictments were handed down in U.S. District Court in Newark yesterday. U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell formally announced the indictments in Washington.

SEPARATE PROBES

Five separate grand juries — state, federal and county — are investigating suspected crime and corruption in New Jersey. The probes range from gambling to city officials, alleged wrongdoing to the Internal Revenue Service in Newark.

The Star Ledger, a Newark morning newspaper, said in an editorial on the indictment of the city officials that "the best interests of the city would be served if those under a cloud of suspicion were to remove themselves from office."

The Greater Newark Chamber of Commerce urged "the legally constituted authorities to suspend these men from office immediately and until these grave charges are either proven or disproved."

Addonizio, however, said he planned to continue governing the city on an "effective and efficient basis" with "business as usual."

Oil-Depletion Compromise Near 22 Pct.

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON — House-Senate tax conferees, under orders to slash the controversial 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance, were reported compromising at about 22 per cent.

The House cut it to 20 per cent, the Senate to 23 per cent.

Hoping to wind up the tax-reform bill by tonight, the 14-man conference committee tackled other hard decisions affecting tax cuts, Social Security and a minimum tax on wealthy people.

A committee source said the conferees were "discussing" a cut in the oil depletion allowance to 22 per cent, but had made no hard, final decision.

SOCIAL SECURITY BOOST

Both House and Senate tax bills contain a 15 per cent boost in Social Security benefits across the board for all 25 million recipients, effective Jan. 1. The Senate added another provision, subject to the conference committee negotiations, to raise the minimum monthly payment from $55 to $100.

President Nixon has said he will veto a tax bill containing the Senate-approved features of a 15 per cent Social Security boost and an $800 personal tax exemption provision.

The House tax relief generally takes the form of rate reductions averaging at least 5 per cent for all classes of taxpayers in two years, by 1972. The Senate's relief substitutes the rate reductions for a $700 personal exemption for all taxpayers and dependents in 1970, and $800 in 1971.

A compromise was under discussion.

The Senate, meanwhile, worked to complete action on the last of the year's 13 regular money bills — foreign aid — plus a final catch-all supplemental measure.

The House dealt with the steady stream of measures coming out of various conference committees.

President Nixon, who has demanded that Congress finish all of the appropriations bills or face a past-Christmas special session, fired off a letter to congressional leaders urging a determined effort to hold down federal spending and maintain tax revenues "no matter what the cost in political popularity."

Nixon said his $192.9-billion spending budget is being jeopardized by $6 billion in "fixed, built-in increases," up to $4 billion stemming from boosts in money bills and another $1 billion in lost revenues resulting from congressional inaction.

No One Bids on Bonds for Water Project

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The city received no bidders for its bonds in connection with a $3.4-million water service project, City Manager Robert Stadler has noted.

Stadler cautioned, previous to the attempt to sell the bonds this week, that it appeared doubtful the bonds would move due to the present 6 per cent interest limitation imposed on municipal and school district bond sales by the Legislature.

Stadler said the city would probably wait to see if the Legislature takes action on lifting the 6 per cent limitation before resubmitting the bonds to the market.

There is presently legislation in Lansing calling for elimination of the limitation. The legislation could be acted on before year's end.

BIRMINGHAM — Jerome D. Rutledge has been elected president of Holmes-Harmon Corp., local real estate investment and finance firm.

Rutledge previously was a vice president of Holmes-Harmon, with primary responsibility for all negotiations in investment real estate financing.

★ ★ ★

Rutledge attended the University of Detroit and the graduate school of business at Northwestern. He is a member of the Detroit Real Estate Board, National Association of Real Estate Boards and the Mortgage Bankers Association of Michigan.

The two-week holiday for the Birmingham public school District begins officially on Dec. 19. Classes will resume on Jan. 5. All schools will be closed for the two weeks.

Railroad Strike Threat Renewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The renewed threat of a nationwide railroad shutdown after New Year's poses a postholiday hangover for the Nixon administration following union members' rejection of the biggest wage proposal in their history.

"I'm naturally disappointed," Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz said yesterday. He had directed government efforts to reach the tentative settlement after three days of grueling, marathon bargaining two weeks ago.

"The agreement was shot down by a vote of close to 2-1," said Vice President J. W. O'Brien of the AFL-CIO Sheet Metal Workers with 8,000 members involved.

Members of three other AFL-CIO shopcraft unions in the dispute—Machinists, Electricians and Boilermakers—narrowly approved the proposal, but the unions had agreed none would accept unless all did. Thus, about 5,000 sheet metal workers who voted "no" killed the settlement involving a total of 48,000 men.

Machinists' Vice President William W. Winpisinger, chief negotiator for the four unions, asked him to return to the bargaining table "some time after Jan. 6."

Chief industry negotiator John P. Hiltz said he assumed from this the unions would not call a strike before then.

The proposed settlement would have raised current wages of $3.60 per hour to $4 by Jan. 1, retroactive for all of 1969, and to $4.28 by next August.

Court: Plan to Desegregate or No State Funds

Georgia Gets U. S. School Order

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A panel of three federal judges has ordered the Georgia Board of Education to terminate state funds to school districts which have not filed desegregation plans by March 1970.

The far-reaching decision yesterday also:

- Defines an integrated school system as one in which 75 per cent of all pupils of a minority race are enrolled in integrated facilities.
- Requires the state board, with the assistance of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), to process and review all school desegregation plans in the state, before April 1, 1970.

Related Story, Page C-18

- Directs the state boards, in cases where desegregation plans are not in compliance with court standards, to insure compliance by May 1, 1970.
- Orders each of the desegregation plans fully implemented by Sept. 1, 1970.

The decision was believed to be the first in the nation placing the responsibility for school desegregation at the state level. In the past, such action has been directed at local boards with the possible cutoff of federal school funds used as the prime method of enforcement.

It also marked the first time a federal court has designated specific standards for school desegregation.

3-JUDGE VERDICT

The decision by U.S. District Court Judges Sidney O. Smith Jr., Newell Edenfield and Albert Henderson Jr. came on a Justice Department suit filed last August.

The suit, seeking state-enforced integration of all Georgia schools, was the first ever filed by the federal government against a state. It followed an announced shift in school desegregation enforcement from HEW to the Justice Department.

Earlier this week, the three judges denied motions by the state that the suit be dismissed, primarily on grounds the court lacked jurisdiction.

In their final decision the judges declared: "It should now be abundantly clear, to all save those who adamantly refuse to see or hear, that the supreme law of these United States provides that dual school systems must be completely abolished."

★ ★ ★

The order will affect 81 Georgia school districts. The remaining 111 districts are either under court order or in compliance with HEW's desegregation school guidelines.

40,000 War Toll Seen by Jan. 1

SAIGON (AP) — American battlefield deaths in nine years of the Vietnam war will total more than 40,000 by Jan. 1 if the current rate continues.

The U.S. Command announced today that 85 Americans were killed in action last week, 15 less than the previous week. This raised the number of U.S. battlefield dead since Jan. 1, 1961, to 39,827.

★ ★ ★

The U.S. Command also reported 836 Americans wounded in action last week, of sizable increase over the 592 wounded the week before. A total of 261,256 Americans have now been wounded in the war.

South Vietnamese headquarters said 421 government troops were killed in action last week, 10 more than the week before.

★ ★ ★

The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands claimed 2,396 North Vietnamese and Vietcong killed last week, a slight drop from the previous week's revised toll of 2,450.

Parakeet Dies in Surgery

"Perky," the parakeet mascot at Pontiac State Hospital, died in surgery yesterday.

The 4-year-old bird had developed a tumor three weeks ago and was the subject of much concern by PSH patients, staffers and office workers.

With much tenderness, the parakeet with a repertory that included wolf whistles and chirping the names of friends was prepared for surgery at about 12:50 p.m.

At 1:25 p.m., the veterinarian informed Mrs. John Bailey of the PSH community relations office that Perky had died as a result of "surgical shock."

"He was such a morale booster for all the patients here and the professional and office staff," Mrs. Bailey said.

County Legal-Aid Fund Cut Seen as Due to 'Timidity'

The Oakland County Legal Aid Society faces a funding cut because it hasn't been aggressive enough, its director indicated at last night's meeting of the Oakland County Commission of Economic Opportunity (OCCEO).

★ ★ ★

Legal Aid Director William R. McNamee, reported his program came under fire last month after a review by an investigator for the Chicago regional office of the legal aid program.

The Oakland County program was described as "too timid" in attacking basic problems in the community and in initiating test cases.

★ ★ ★

Involved is a basic conflict in what priority Legal Aid should have — meeting the needs of individuals or working toward law reform by legal confrontations.

EXPANSION PLANNED

The investigator recommended the county program to be cut from $146,000 this year to $132,000 in 1970, McNamee said. His office had planned to add two more attorneys and two more office personnel, but this move would have to be abandoned and cuts made in present staff. This year the program employed six attorneys and eight office workers.

★ ★ ★

In defending his program, McNamee insists his office is performing the type of service this community wants. He pointed out that 1,996 cases were handled in the first nine months of this year.

Legal Aid handles civil cases of indigents involving debts, divorces, property, custody, etc.

★ ★ ★

In discussing the directive to spend more time on law reform and test cases, McNamee pointed out, "It's going to be hard for us to tell someone that we can't handle his case because we have to work on law reform," he said.

SUITS SUGGESTED

The investigator suggested the county office take such steps as filing suits on school desegregation, lack of transportation and placing control of the Pontiac Police Department in a separate agency.

★ ★ ★

McNamee said he is contacting state congressmen to back the county program and funding. A resolution approved by the OCCEO last night supported the county legal-aid effort.

As Drug-Alcohol Treatment Center

Future Use of Sanatorium Is Eyed

By JEAN SAILE

The Oakland County Sanatorium, now under fire from the State Social Services Department in the matter of costs, is being considered for future use as a drug and alcoholic treatment center.

The possibility of using the normally 30-40 vacant beds in the 166-bed facility for such treatment was advanced yesterday by the County Board of Institutions.

Members agreed to invite to their Jan. 15 meeting Dr. H. L. Woodward who runs the Pontiac General Hospital volunteer therapy program for drug users; Arthur Jalkanen director of the county drug abuse committee; and Supervisor Robert Patnales, R-Royal Oak, chairman of the human resources committee of the County Board of Supervisors.

★ ★ ★

The three are expected to give information on what the hospital would have to do and what special training the staff would need in order to carry on a drug and alcohol treatment program.

The lack of Blue Cross-Blue Shield funding for alcoholic treatment in the sanatorium was pointed out by Anthony Wodek, hospital director. The county facility is not a participating member of Blue Cross, Wodek said.

★ ★ ★

The threat of fund withdrawal from the Medicaid program by the Social Services Department for patients not considered ill enough to be treated at a hospital is presently clouding the sanatorium's future.

★ ★ ★

"The state wants to get counties out of the hospital business and they're using the Oakland County Sanatorium as a test case," said Charles B. Edwards Jr., who was yesterday reelected chairman of the institutions board.

"A similar hospital facility in Grand Rapids had most of their patients qualified. We have the same kind of patient here, but they said they wouldn't fund 54 of the 58 Medicaid cases we had," Edwards said.

NEW CLASSIFICATION

He noted that, since the evaluation was made last month, about 25 of the cited patients have either died or been transferred to other care facilities.

"What the sanatorium needs is a new classification," Edwards told the board. "We need funding for subacute cases, those which nursing homes won't accept and which are not ill enough for general hospitalization."

He suggested that legislative help to create such a level be obtained from other counties in the state with similar medical facilities.

A patient reevalaution, to be conducted by Dr. Bernard Berman, director of the County Health Department, will be conducted Dec. 29, Wodek said. Future state funding is expected to be based on Berman's findings.

Milford Shocked at Tragedy

MILFORD — An apparent murder-suicide that claimed the lives of a family of five has shocked this community.

The bodies of Wayne E. Jowasky, his wife, Theresa, and their children, David, 8, Diane, 6, and Barbara, 5, were found in and near the family car yesterday in the garage of their home at 227 Franklin.

★ ★ ★

"Everyone is just shocked," said a neighbor, Mrs. William Genette of 222 Franklin. "No one noticed a thing. I just can't believe it was a murder-suicide like they're saying. It just isn't like them."

★ ★ ★

"Several people tried to call Mrs. Jowasky Tuesday to wish her happy birthday but no one got her," said Mrs. Genette.

Neighbors also noticed that house and Christmas tree lights remained on all night. One neighbor tried calling yesterday morning to see if anything was wrong but there was no answer, according to Mrs. Genette.

★ ★ ★

Her son, Michael, 15, was a baby sitter for the Jawosky children last Thursday and said everything appeared normal.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Earl Herrick of 223 Franklin said, "I heard the car in the garage running in the evening Tuesday but thought they were getting it warmed up to go somewhere. They seemed to be just a common ordinary compatible family."

"They were a wonderful family. I have a broken hip and the mother has helped me, and the children always said hello," said Mrs. Vivian Hazard, an elderly neighbor at 226 Franklin.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Jawosky were active in community affairs.

Jawosky was chairman of the newly formed municipal study committee, a member of the planning board and on the zoning board of appeals.

"He was an extremely intelligent man, easy to work with and very active in community affairs," said Village Manager Joseph Brophy.

Jawosky was due at a planning commission meeting Tuesday night. The group waited until 8:30 but when he failed to show up they finally started, Brophy said.

Village President Wilbur Johnson said, "I'm certainly shocked and very sorry. I knew Wayne as a perfect gentleman and a very good committeeman whenever I assigned him. They live just about a block away from my home."

The youth lies in Cleveland Clinic Hospital, dependent upon a kidney machine for life. A kidney transplant looms in the future, but no definite plans have yet been made.

★ ★ ★

The boy was born with only one-eighth of one kidney, but managed to live a more or less normal life, playing in the band — motorcycle riding, until this fall when he began to have convulsions.

FORM COMMITTEE

His classmates and friends at Holly Senior High School have formed a "Brad Wilson Committee," committed to raising funds for the boy's medical needs. Robert Warden of Citizens Bank has been placed in charge of a community fund-raising effort.

Contributions to help pay Brad's medical expenses may be mailed to Holly Senior High School, 920 E. Baird, Holly, Mich. 48442.

Tickets for the dance, featuring WTAC disc jockey Bob Dell and two area bands, may be purchased at the high school or at the door on Dec. 27.

Man, 79, Killed Crossing Street

NORTH BRANCH — A 79-year-old Lapeer County man, shopping with his wife, was struck by a car and killed last night as he attempted to cross a street.

Jeff Lomason of 4839 Mill died at 8:30 p.m. at Marlette Community Hospital in Tuscola County. He was struck at 6 p.m. while crossing M90 just west of West Street in the village.

★ ★ ★

Lomason and his wife, Edith, 78, were out buying a quart of milk. She had hold of his arm as they waited to cross the street, police said, but he yanked away from her and walked in front of the oncoming car. He was thrown 22 feet on impact.

The driver of the car, a minor, was not held.

Official Raps Cities Confab

BIRMINGHAM — Dr. John Dorsey, the city's new commissioner, said that a recent national municipal league conference in San Francisco concerning the state of the cities indicated to him that the social ills of the nation's municipalities will be treated lightly in the immediate future.

"I went out there with the idea that informative discussions and constructive workshops would be held toward developing ideas for solving the social ills besetting the cities.

"All we got was pontification concerning such things as zoning ordinances and services," Dr. Dorsey told The Press.

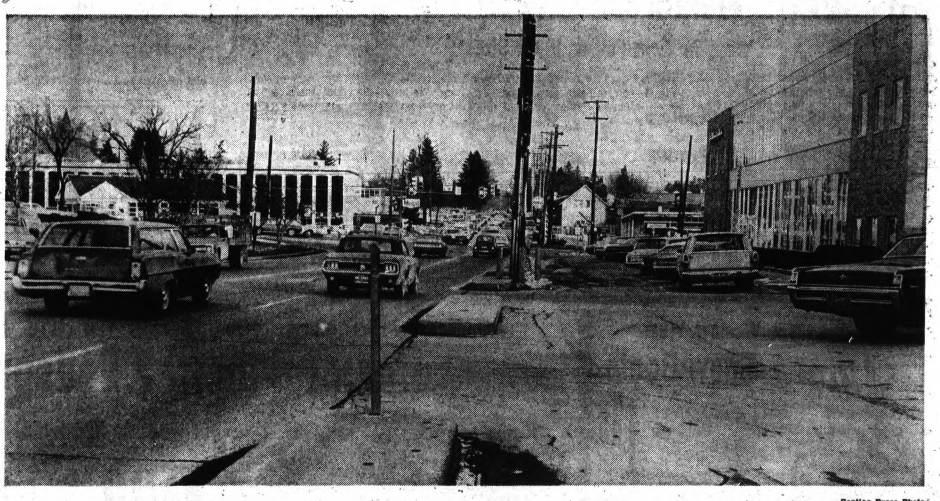

"There seemed to be no interest toward rectifying the social aspects of city problems or attempting to determine how suburban cities can help restore life in the city and attend to the social affiliation of the people who have to remain in the city.

★ ★ ★

"We received orientation on the broad and sweeping problems such as transportation and housing but when it got down to the specifics, there was nothing," Dr. Dorsey continued. He defined specifics as such items as low-cost housing programs, Office of Economic poverty programs and job training projects.

Congestion At Long Lake And Woodward—A Growing Menace

Can Bloomfield Hills Keep Its Residential Flavor?

Pontiac Press Photo

Stadler—New Man at Helm

By NED ADAMSON

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — While most cities are coping with money and social problems, this affluent municipality has a problem of a different orientation.

Bloomfield Hills remains the virtual single oasis of trees, grass and open land on the building boom strip along Woodward between Detroit and Pontiac.

And the city's main objective is how to preserve that lone bastion of residential flavor.

Standing between the retention of that residential flavor and more commercial exploitation are 14 parcels — ranging from three to 30 acres — along Woodward in the city. These in the developer's eye, could be ripe for plucking.

$1,000 A SQUARE FOOT

Property abutting Woodward has been selling in the neighborhood of $1,000 per square foot in recent transactions, according to Robert Stadler, the city's new city manager.

Stadler, who lives at 4196 Grayton in Waterford Township, assumed the city manager's post in November following nearly 22 years of service for the city. His responsibilities have ranged from city treasurer and clerk to safety director.

Meanwhile, the wait continues on what action the city may take concerning its attitude toward changing the existing single-family residential zoning, which now applies to the vacant property.

Stadler feels that the majority of the city comission members as well as most of the city's 3,500 residents want future commercial exploitation held to a minimum.

NO NEED FOR EXPANSION

Stadler explained that residents do not have a need for further commercial expansion because of the city's proximity to numerous shopping districts.

"The people here want the city to remain residential, and most of them realize that in order to do that, they have got to pay more taxes," he said.

Stadler pointed to the vacant Woodward Avenue land as a growing problem because of the diversity of opinion concerning the disposition of the property and the possibility of more rezoning petitions.

There are now three court suits pending on rezoning petitions to change various parcels to commercial zoning, with the possibility of a fourth coming up.

FURTHER DIFFICULTIES

Stadler foresees further difficulties with the zoning problems unless the city fathers come up with a solution that would eliminate possibilities of extensive commercial development.

"The members of the City Planning Board and the City Commission realize the Woodward situation is a problem. They are attempting to come up with a solution that would prove beneficial to the community," Stadler said.

★ ★ ★

"The desirability of building single-family residences along Woodward is low. This situation has prompted the planning commission to find out just what the best uses of the the land are while at the same time attempting to avoid a commercially exploited look," Stadler said.

The city manager notes that most of the recent commercial expansion has been the construction of large office buildings in and near the Woodward-East Long Lake intersection.

PRESTIGE OF ADDRESS

Most of the future development requests will probably be similar. The reason: Stadler can only believe that its the prestige of having the Bloomfield Hills address.

He noted that the most recent building, a 28,000-square-foot structure now near completion on East Long Lake Road adjacent to the city office building, has billed itself in a promotional brochure as "Bloomfield North," an address in a prestigious location near advertising agencies and other well-known firms.

★ ★ ★

Owners of the 14 vacant Woodward Avenue parcels naturally have been sitting tight awaiting the outcome of the pending law suits on the rezoning requests.

★ ★ ★

Decisions on the two principle suits — one involving a parcel at Lone Pine and Woodward now pending in Circuit Court — will undoubtedly serve as indicators concerning city government action on future zoning changes, Stadler feels.

DECISION APPEALED

The other disputed property problem concerns property on Lone Pine and Woodward which was directed to be rezoned to commercial by Oakland County Circuit Court. That decision has since been appealed to the Michigan Supreme Court.

★ ★ ★

Stadler said there has been increasing pressure from developers concerning the future of the vacant property, in the city. An example of this pressure was recently felt in a hassle concerning property on Hickory Grove at Lahser. The developer was attempting to double the housing density of the parcel in connection with plans for a condominium development.

★ ★ ★

Bloomfield Hills is by no means standing still in population. The total has jumped from 2,468 to 3,500 in just 10 years. The city is gradually losing its character of many years ago when the area was spotted with rambling estates stately houses, and rolling empty land.

★ ★ ★

The trend in recent years has pointed to smaller residences and the dividing up of large estate-type properties.

★ ★ ★

Stadler said the population saturation level in the city will top out at about 6,500. However, he does not expect population increase to reach a boom-type level that would come anywhere near that figure.

★ ★ ★

Under present zoning regulations, future construction of office buildings and other nonsingle-family residential structures would be minimal. The city now has only two parcels left that are zoned for apartments and one lot that is zoned commercial.

★ ★ ★

Zoning changes could, of course, appreciably change the situation.

Cease-Fires Backfire

About the year 1000, several Catholic Church councils in Southern France instituted what came to be known as the Truce of God. Under it, there was supposed to be no fighting from Thursday to Sunday, during Lent and on holy days — which left something less than two days a week for making war. Offenders were excommunicated.

Times have changed. The war week in Vietnam is seven days and truces are honored in the breach. Last year, the allies reported 111 violations of a 24-hour Christmas stand-down. The Vietcong claimed a similar degree of bad faith on the part of the South.

It was during another truce last year when North Vietnamese forces staged their heaviest assault of the war on Jan. 30— the Tet Offensive. A four-day extension of the Tet, or lunar new year, pause in 1967 was shattered when bombing was resumed to halt a North Vietnam buildup.

The Communists have almost always beaten South Vietnam to the punch by being first to announce a temporary truce. This year, however, South Vietnam was first, on Dec. 4, to announce 24-hour stand-downs beginning at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 24 and on New Year's eve. The North responded by saying it would observe three-day cease-fires beginning at 1 a.m. on Dec. 24, and Dec. 30.

★ ★ ★

Presidential Press Secretary RONALD ZIEGLER has declined to say whether the United States will observe more than a 24-hour cease-fire.

"This country has put forward a proposal for a general cease-fire and it has been rejected by the other side," Ziegler told newsmen on Dec. 5. On the other hand, South Vietnam refused to honor a three-day stand-down called for by the Communists to honor Ho Chi Minh following his death on Sept. 3.

Again this year, the chances for peace on earth are non-existent or slim.

Fate Plays Gruesome Role

Fate plays many tricks—some of them tragic and beyond mortal understanding.

Troy patrolman CHARLES E SMETANA was a recent victim of an irony of life. Answering an accident call, his car skidded into a bridge abutment on I-75. The officer suffered injuries of which he died hours later.

The 33-year-old policeman, a former U.S. Marine and Detroit patrolman for three years, had been on the Troy force for a like period.

Pesticide Ban Pest Boon?

The days are numbered not only for DDT. A government crackdown is expected on a wide variety of "hard" pesticides and herbicides as a consequence of recommendations recently made by the Commission on Pesticides and their Relationship to Environmental Health.

The commission, which reports to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, has asked for severe restrictions on such familiar bug and weed killers as Aldrin, Dieldrin, Chlordane and 2,4-D. These and other compounds, it has been determined, "are persistent and cause or can cause contamination to the environment and damage to various life forms within it."

In the case of DDT, that persistence is on the order of 35 years. This is how long scientists estimate it may take before the last traces of the chemical disappear from the life chain after the Federal ban on its use becomes effective in 1971.

Long before 35 years, however, science must reach into its magic hat and come up with effective replacements for the persistent pesticides. For if the earth cannot continue to absorb chemical pollution, neither could its agriculture support the present human population of 3.5 billion—let alone the 6 billion who will be here by the year 2000—without the aid of chemicals.

New Federal Pay Raise Is in Works

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is preparing to give government workers another pay raise.

If it survives a possible presidential veto, it will be the seventh pay boost federal employes have received in five years and the second in the past six months.

The most recent previous increase took effect last July 1. It boosted pay scales for 2.3 million civil service workers and 3.5 million members of the armed forces by an averaged of 9 per cent.

The new increase, authorized in a bill which the Senate Post Office and Civil Service committee hopes to steer to passage this week, would be effective Jan. 1, and would apply to white-collar civil service employes, postal workers and members of the armed forces.

Those now earning less than $10,000 a year would get a 4 per cent increase. The raise would be 3 per cent for those in the $10,000 to $15,000 bracket, 2 per cent for those earning $15,000 to $20,000 bracket, 1 per cent for those now being paid above $20,000.

The average government worker would get an increase of $389, bringing his salary to $10,116 a year.

The bill also would guarantee government workers another pay raise of at least 3 per cent next July 1. The July raise could be higher than 3 per cent if the Bureau of Labor Statistics and the Civil Service Commission should determine, on the basis of a national survey, that a larger increase is necessary to keep federal pay scales "comparable" to those prevailing in private industry.

That requires a two-thirds majority. But federal pay raise bills have an enormously effective lobby working for them, since the outcome affects the pocketbook of every member of every congressman's staff.

Proponents of the pay boost say it is needed to offset the sharp rise in living costs which has occurred in the past year.

Opponents say that the increase in government spending which the pay boost would entail would further feed the fires of inflation and drive everyone's living costs even higher.

EXPECTED TO PASS

The Senate is expected to pass the pay bill, and the House may accept it as a substitute for its own pay measure approved earlier in the session. The original House bill provided for more generous increases, including an extra boost for postal workers retroactive to last Oct. 1.

President Nixon let it be known that he would veto the House bill. Whether he would veto the somewhat less costly Senate version is not yet known, but there is a good chance that he would.

Unless there is a hue and cry from the taxpayers, however, there also is a good chance that Congress would enact the Senate bill over a presidential veto.

'Don't Shoot Until You See The Whites Of Their Eyes!'

U.S. Mideast Plan Merits Study

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The United States has for the first time publicly enunciated its peace proposals for the Mideast.

NEWSOM

It may be, as Secretary of State William P. Rogers said, that both the Arabs and the Israelis will find certain of the conditions unpalatable.

The plan has already been summarily rejected by Israel, but in a situation moving steadily toward the point of no return, it would seem worthy of serious study by both sides.

★ ★ ★

The secretary called for:

- Israeli withdrawal from territories occupied in the 1967 war. "Insubstantial" border changes should be negotiated by both sides.
- Arab agreement to a binding peace. These negotiations should be carried out under procedures employed in 1949 under the Rhodes formula of indirect talks through the United Nations representative, Gunfar Jarring.
- Jerusalem to become a unified city open to all faiths and nationalities. Presumably this would mean some kind of international control.
- Special safeguards for the area of Sharm El Sheikh which controls access to the Gulf of Aqaba and which was the trigger of the 1967 war, and demilitarized zones in the Sinai Desert.

PRESSING REASONS

Both sides have pressing reasons to come to some kind of terms.

As Premier Golda Meir begins her new term in office, Israel is facing an economic crisis which by the end of the year is expected to see foreign reserves fall to below $500 million.

★ ★ ★

Spending not included in Israel's regular budget this year will come close to $400 million and may go well over it.

All this means heavy added taxes for the Israeli people, along with an austerity program leading to arrested development and unemployment.

CHIEF ANTAGONIST

On the Arab side the chief antagonist is Egypt.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser's government exists on subsidies from its oil-rich neighbors, mostly Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, and gets its arms from the Soviet Union to which it has mortgaged much of its economy.

★ ★ ★

The Suez Canal, which once earned more than $200 million a year for Egypt, remains closed and in an age of oil pipelines and super tankers may never again regain its old importance.

All of the above provides valid reason for agreement.

But when emotion comes in reason goes out the door.

The Israelis say they never will give up Jerusalem. And in the emotional state to which Nasser has whipped the Arabs, it is doubtful if he could agree to peace and still keep his job.

Bob Considine

Possible Space Shuttles No NASA Boondoggle

HOUSTON — The National Space Agency has asked Boeing, Lockheed and TWA to whip up what might be called a giant economy-sized manned spacecraft.

Its purpose would be to shuttle astronauts from Cape Kennedy to the space stations that NASA proposes to put in earth orbit after the Apollo series ends.

CONSIDINE

★ ★ ★

The companies have been issued some arresting specifications. All the hardware used in the shuttle must be recoverable in good condition. The basic booster, possibly the size of a Saturn, must be constructed so that its crew — the first chauffeurs of the cosmos — will be able to bring it back and land it like an airplane, once the payload section of the shuttle has been inserted in proper orbit.

The task of the payload will be even more involved. Its crew must, first of all, find the space station and dock. Then they must restock the station with food, fresh oxygen and other life supports.

CHANGE PLACES

If the space station's crew has completed its 30-day tour it will change places with the crew of the shuttle and guide the vehicle through reentry and to an airplane-type landing.

Another type of shuttle service might involve a shuttle vehicle's making the rounds of several space stations, like a milkman or mailman tends to his route. Indeed, milk and mail delivery could become routine services in the particular portion of the space age that lies just beyond the Apollo moonshots.

★ ★ ★

Apollo Applications is the name of the new game. Some members of Congress regard it as a boondoggle by NASA to keep itself in business. It is nothing of the sort. It could result in considerable good for all mankind.

The crews of space stations, crossing and criss-crossing aloft, would be schooled in many arts and sciences relating to human welfare.

NEW FARMLANDS

Orbiting meteorologists could spot hurricanes and blizzards at their births; and orbiting agriculturists and mineralogists could find new farmlands to feed the overpopulated countries and new unprobed deposits of ores and petroleum.

★ ★ ★

We have lots to learn about this earth and, with the aid of sophisticated rocketry and instrumentation, now can learn it. All that is needed, really, is to get far enough away from the earth to see it properly.

'Discrimination Shown Against Three Youths'

Recently, my son and two of his friends went to an area bowling alley for an afternoon of bowling. When they went to the snack bar, one of the boys was told he couldn't be served because his hair was too long. The waiter then turned to my son and the third young men and asked if they were with the long-haired youth in question. When they answered in the affirmative, they were told that they would not be served either.

These three young men were discriminated against. My son is clean-cut, well-dressed and not a rowdy. I feel that the majority of citizens of Oakland County are against discrimination, no matter what form it takes. Tomorrow they might refuse to serve you because you are white, black or yellow, or they don't like your dress, suit or religion. There must be some recourse for the average citizen.

Thank goodness the Waterford Township schoolteachers who teach driver education as an extra job are being paid enough so that they do not have to stoop down to a $5 an hour job when they are through working at the high schools at 2 p.m.

'Why an Uproar Over Possible Mistakes?'

We don't hear much of an uproar about the massacres by the Communists in Russia, Eastern Europe, Asia, Cuba, Vietnam, etc., yet estimates of these murders run 70 to 80 million. Hiroshima and Nagasaki were blasted by our atom bombs. Dresden, Germany, was blasted by our bombs at the insistence of Russia. Biafran women and children are starving at the rate of thousands per month. These are blacks. Too many of our Senators, Congressmen and black leaders don't seem to care about these atrocities. Why all the fuss over a so-far unproved possible mistake in Vietnam?

'All States Should Have Capital Punishment'

I was sickened after reading of the recent gang rape of an 18-year-old baby sitter in a Detroit home. I am more convinced than ever that every state should have capital punishment and that rape should be punishable by death. That is the most final way to rid this Country of such detriments to society.

A CONCERNED WIFE AND MOTHER

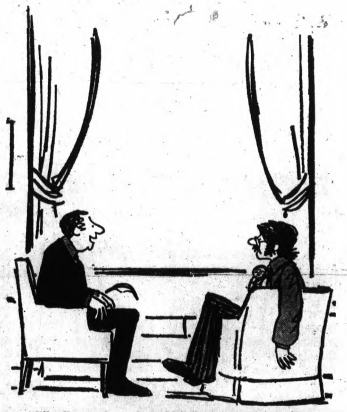

'Christmas Giving Is Motivated by Love'

The Press recently had a cartoon depicting a wheelbarrow loaded to the limit with Christmas boxes, pushed by a disgusted-looking clerk. Also, Sidney Harris says Christmas has become a "mess." One does not have to be a Pollyanna to remember that this mess is motivated by the strongest power on earth—love and kindness to our fellow men. Perhaps this thought may help some over-tired postal clerk or salesman and make him feel less disgusted that this spirit of Christmas comes once a year.

Q & A?

(Q) What's the difference in calories for ice cream and ice milk? Sherbet?

COUNTER

(A) Not much. One-half cup serving of ice cream has about 145 calories, ice milk has 140 and sherbet 130.

(Q) I notice air conditioners usually give their capacities in BTUs. What does BTU stand for?

SHOPPER

(A) It stands for British Thermal Unit. It's the amount of heat needed to raise the temperature of a pound of water one degree F. But since most of us are more interested in heating rooms than pounds of water, we suggest you consult a reliable dealer to find out the number of BTUs needed to heat or cool the number of cubic feet of living space you have.

(Q) I found an old recipe that calls for "barding" the meat. Is this a misprint, that should read "larding" and if not, what is barding?

PUZZLED

(A) It's no misprint, but larding and barding accomplish the same thing. Barding means to wrap the meat with fat, and larding is to insert thin strips of fat into the meat.

House of Herod and Jesus—4

Insane King Greets the Magi

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

In a slow, steady rhythm, the bare-chested slaves swung the long fans of peacock feathers above King Herod's head, keeping off the flies. He sat propped on pillows, paring an apple, mouthing it off the blade.

His hands shook. His breath came haltingly, in short gasps.

* * *

His red-lined eyes shifted warily about the reception hall scrutinizing the Syrian cooks with their laden platters, the mail-coated bodyguards, spears at their sides, the dusky hounds sprawling on the tessellated floor.

Thin whisps of smoke curled from the three-legged engraved brazier. A water clock dripped monotonously.

HEARS FOOTSTEPS

Outside, along the covered pergola, he heard the sandalled footsteps, and at once, a sentry stepped through the doorway drapes to announce the presence of the eastern travelers who had stirred up the city with their inquiries.

Herod, the knife still in his hand, motioned for their admission. They came forward, a stately looking delegation, in sashed robes, salaaming before him in the Oriental manner.

* * *

So these were the Magi, the sages of the hoary metaphysical books and celestial signs, the strangers who had been asking about a newborn king, a "Wonderful Counsellor," a "Prince of Peace," who would reveal "the glory of the Lord" and whose government would have no end.

To Herod, it was sheer treason.

LONG JOURNEY

They had reached Jerusalem after a long overland journey, apparently from Persia, looking for the illustrious child, a manifestation of the Omnipotent, foretold in their recondite tomes and signalled by a culminating phenomenon in the stars.

Herod, disease-ridden, often delirious, already obsessed with phobias about suspected plots against him, raised himself stiffly on the cushions, a frosty smile forming on his lips.

* * *

"The king greets thee," he said, coughing. He ran the back of his hand across his mouth, and leaned forward, forcing a tone of congratulatory solicitude into his voice. "Say on now, when didst thou behold this marvel in the firmament. It is a subject of our most eager desire."

The bearded chief Magus cited the day and hour, along with details about a series of planetary conjunctions in 7 B. C., climaxed by a triple conjunction of Jupiter, Saturn and Mars.

CYCLE COMPLETE

"The cycle is complete," he said firmly. "It was the supreme fravishi!"

It had been several months before, likely more than a year, with the intervening period requieed for their trip.

* * *

Herod previously had interogated Judaism's scholars, learning of their own Scriptural allusions to a coming Deliverer, a "light to the nations" of the earth.

"One like the Son of Man" with an "everlasting dominion," the Jewish seer, Daniel, had envisioned in the courts of Persia itself, the homeland of these visiting mystics. And the prophet Micah, 600 years past, had written that the mighty one would be born in Bethlehem.

'GO AND SEARCH'

Herod, after eliciting the time interval since the Magi saw their "star," directed them to the village south of the capitol, adding breathily, "Go and search diligently for the child, and when you have found him bring me word, that I, too, may come and worship him."

He settled back in his seat, his thumb stroking the knife edge, as the visitors disappeared through the damask curtains. The child would be under 2.

Herod muttered to himself, reaching for a slab or roasted venison on a sidestand. He swallowed several bites and threw the rest to the hounds.

* * *

They gulped it down and stood there, tongues lolling, greedy for more. "Jackals, parasites, demons!" he screamed at them, as if they represented the whole world around him, ready to pounce. Some had tried it once, the worse for them.

He had ripped them to shreds, but he still kept these beasts around to prove his nerve, daring them, these circling devils, with their beady, excited eyes, like his entire royal retinue, the stalking lot of them. "Miriamne," he murmured, his head sagging. "Bring her! Bring her — my Miriamne!"

GORGES HIMSELF

Then he gorged himself on more food, trying to sooth the ulcers scalding his insides. He also suffered from dropsy, which puffed his tissue with excess fluids, from fevers, convulsions, fierce head pains, a burning body rash and festering tumors on his abdomen and feet.

The glandular abnormalities and ulcers produced a ravening appetite, and his gluttony only worsened the infections. He had difficulty breathing, and as the surplus liquids clogged his lungs, could do so only when sitting upright.

* * *

There was an odor about him, a foulness of breath. And his mind reeled with guilts, horrors and illusions, imagining his own sons swooping down on him, swords in hand, his murdered wife Mariamne wailing in the night, his guards abandoning him, the hounds at his throat.

At the urging of physicians, he spent long hours in the hot baths of Callirrhoe on the Dead Sea, and then more baths in warm oil at his palace. But the medications gave only temporary relief, and his disorders increased.

WHETS RUMORS

Occasionally, he broke into wild lamentations over friends he had doomed at random, and then in opposite fashion, he would rage violently against them.

At the same time, his unabated investigations and enveloping espionage system kept whetting rumors of treachery by his own sons of Mariamne, Alexander and Aristobulus. At one point, Herod put them on trial before Caesar Augustus in Bierut, where the emperor effected a reconciliation.

* * *

But a rival son, Antipater, by a wife of Idumean rather than Jewish stock, revived suspicions against the two. Herod had 200 courtiers confined for questioning.

Some died from the lash, refusing to confess anything. But two tall, muscular guards, Jacundus and Tyrannus, who often had ridden with Alexander after Herod cast them off, confessed under torture that his son wanted them to kill the king, saying afterward he had fallen on his own sword.

ORDERS BEHEADINGS

Adding to Herod's mounting, feverish alarms, his barber, Trypho, whispered to him that an old soldier, Tero, who had served with Herod in past wars, had urged the barber — in Alexander's behalf — to slit the king's throat while trimming his beard.

Whipping off the apron, Herod lunged to his feet, shouting for his Galatian guards to lock the barber in irons and also the old comrade-at-arms, Tero, and his son.

* * *

In his hsyteria, he ordered them all beheaded, and also the 200 officers in custody. As for Alexander and Aristobulus, he had them bound and taken to his fortified palace in Sebaste and strangled to death there, the place where other members of the Hasmonean dynasty had been executed.

That was the last of them, as the deranged Herod counted it, the end of the royal Jewish clan that had beset and badgered him, threatened and fought him, slandered his own ancestry, the last of that impudent, unmanageable brood.

NOBLER PRINCE

He had beat them, finally, he gloated furiously, purged his kingdom of them exterminated them all, his challengers, his comrades . . . his own sons and hers.

However, a still nobler prince, of David's line, now tented in that realm.

* * *

Trembling, his sagging body dry with fevers and inflamed with itching, Herod threw off his clothes and shut himself in the steaming palace tepidarium, demanding oils, unguents, toweling, the strigilis on his back, in no orderly sequence, gulping milk and tonics, railing incoherently at frightened slaves.

He staggered to his bed, calling for powders on his flesh, choking for breath when he tried to lie down, perspiring and clammy now, huddling under downy quilts in a chair, his sensibilities drained, oblivious at one moment and starkly alert the next, rigid with unnameable, skulking perils, then dropping off again into blurred vacuity.

SALOME'S WARNING

Through watery eyes, he recognized the hounds at his feet, gap-mouthed, jowels dripping, mocking him, and then he realized he was staring into the face of his sister. Salome, who was telling him, warning him of further danger.

Had it not been Antipater, an older son of an early Idumean wife, Doris, who had first lodged the information against Mariamne's sons? True, true, he remebered, so it was, and Salome now had evidence that the case had been fabricated by deceit, forged confessions and bribed accusers in a criminal alliance with Antipater.

* * *

Where was he? At the Herodium near the Dead Sea for the executions. Herod lurched to his feet and bolted for the door, yelling for guards. Then he stopped stonily, realizing they already stood there, posted constantly in his chamber vestibule, and he croaked the command to seize Antipater.

Shortly, he also received word that the Magi, those alien fomenters of treason about an almighty new descendant of David to take the throne of the world, had tricked him, outmaneuvered him. They had quit the country secretly, without leading him to the child.

RAGES IN PALACE

Herod went bellowing through the palace, alternately raging, weeping and calling madly for the dead Mariamne. He descended to the dungeon cells, and back again, searching the kitchens and storerooms, scattering the domestics in panic.

*

He climbed again to the lofty ornate apartments and roof gardens, in view of the tower named for her, striking out with his scepter at wall hangings and jeweled furnishings, panting for air, at times falling to his hands and knees and crawling along the corridors, the hounds behind him.

* * *

"Mariamne . . . Mariamne!"

* * *

At one point, he grabbed a knife and tried to stab himself, but a guard stopped him. He seemed not to notice it, or care. When Antipater was brought before him, he pointed a wavering finger, bawling piteously.

* * *

"He would kill the king! Yet thou, O Antipater, was the informer against my slain sons."

Death, he decreed for Antipater also. He ordered troops to imprison all of the principal men of Jerusalem in the hippodrome just outside the city walls.

* * *

He directed that every soldier be paid an extra two-month bonus, 50 drachmae. And he dispatched a cohort of them to slay all male children under 2, in Bethlehem.

House Passes Bill for Coal Mine Safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — Caught in a crossfire of threats, the House has decided that the chance of a nationwide coal mine shutdown outweighed the possibility of a presidential veto by approving a stiff new coal mine safety bill.

★ ★ ★

Passage came on a 333-12 vote Wednesday night after the House turned down a move to strip from the bill a new program of payments to miners disabled by lung disease.

Rep. John Erlenborn, R-Ill., saying he was authorized to speak for the administration, asserted President Nixon might veto the bill if it included the new compensation program.

★ ★ ★

But members from coal mining districts said every coal mine in the nation would be shut down before Christmas if the provision were left out of the bill.

KEY VOTE

An attempt by Erlenborn to have the provision stricken failed by 258 to 83.

That was the key vote on the compromise measure as 73 Republicans joined 185 Democrats in defying the veto threat. The Senate still has to act on the bill. Differing versions were approved by both chambers earlier, leading to the compromise.

Erlenborn said the administration is concerned about the compensation program's cost, which it estimates will run between $150 million and $385 million a year.

But Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa., manager of the bill, said the cost would be only $40 million to $60 million. He said many ill and elderly miners wouldn't live to collect it very long.

FUNERAL COST

"You're worried about the cost," he told the Republicans. "Their funeral costs will be more than any benefits you pay them."

The payments would range from $136 a month for a single miner to a maximum of $272 for a miner with three dependents.

★ ★ ★

The federal government would make the payments for four years, then mine operators and the states would pick them up.

Dent was the first to raise the prospect of a strike if the compensation feature was killed, but other members from Pennsylvania and West Virginia quiegly echoed him.

BILL'S PROVISION

In West Virginia, miners went on strike last spring to back up their demand that the state legislature enact a compensation program.

The tough health and safety standards include these provisions:

- Six months after enactment mines would have to reduce dust levels to less than half the amount the average miner now encounters, and within three years, still lower levels will have to be met.
- Federal mine inspectors would be required to make a minimum of one spot inspection during every five working days at mines where there has been an explosion or a fire within the last five years.
- To detect black lung early, all miners must be given an opportunity to have a lung x ray within 18 months after enactment of the bill and others at five-year intervals.

Tate Slaying Suspect May Defend Himself

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles M. Manson, facing trial on murder-conspiracy charges in seven slayings, wants to act as his own attorney.

The 35-year-old cult leader made the surprise request Wednesday to Superior Court Judge William B. Keene, who said he would consider it.

★ ★ ★

Manson, bearded and long-haired, approached the bench with pad and pencil in hand and said, "Your honor, I am competent to stand and talk to you . . . I have the awareness to understand the charges against me and I have some knowledge of the law."

The soft-spoken defendant declared, "There is no way I can give up my own voice in this matter. If there is no way I can speak freely, it ties my hands and I might as well not have a defense."

CHARGED IN DEATH

Manson is charged along with four of his followers in the gun-shot-stabbing deaths of actress Sharon Tate and four other persons at her rented Benedict Canyon estate Aug. 9.

All five also are accused in the knifing deaths the following night of wealthy Hollywood grocer Leno LaBianca and his wife, Rosemary. A sixth member of the Manson "family" is charged only in the LaBianca killings.

★ ★ ★

Manson was led into court for the specially convened hearing flanked by two attorneys, Luke McKissack, 32, and Lawrence Steinberg, 51. Court aides, and apparently McKissack and Steinberg anticipated merely a motion to substitute the private attorneys for the public defender's office as counsel for the defendant.

But Manson told Keene: "I would like to represent myself, and then I would like Mr. McKissack and Mr. Steinberg to help me if possible."

The court denied the request for the time being, saying, "This will require some interrogation by me to determine if Mr. Manson is capable of representing himself." Keene promised a decision Dec. 22, the date set for Manson's plea.

When Steinberg and McKissack objected to the delay on the decision, Manson said with a broad smile, "I think the judge has said what he has said. He is the man."

Trujillo's Son Hurt, Duchess Dies in Crash

MADRID (AP) — Rafael "Ramfis" Leonidas Trujillo Jr., son of the late Dominican dictator, underwent surgery today after being injured Wednesday in a head-on collision which took the life of Spain's duchess of Alburquerque.

The newspaper Ya said Trujillo suffered a fractured pelvis and head injuries. The Covesa Clinic in Madrid, where he was undergoing surgery, would not confirm this.

★ ★ ★

The duchess, Dona Teresa Beltran de Lis, 44, was killed when her car and Trujillo's collided in fog about seven miles north of Madrid. Her son, the 11-year-old Marques de Cuellar, suffered a broken leg and a broken arm.

The Trufillo family has lived on a ranch near Madrid for 10 years.

Hickel: U.S. Will Succeed in Cleaning Lakes, Streams

CHICAGO (AP) — Walter Hickel, secretary of the interior, estimated Wednesday that it would take $15 billion and five to seven years to clean up the nation's polluted streams and lakes, and he added, "I predict we're going to do it."

Hickel told newsmen in a question and answer period that "Environment as a whole is becoming perhaps the top national issue." He said President Nixon "will address himself to this in the near future."

He implied in answer to a question, that the federal anti-pollution program will be part of the President's State of the Union address to the next session of the Congress.

* * *

Hickel spoke to newsmen and answered questions after a four-state Governors' Conference on Saving Lake Michigan. Three governors—Richard B. Ogilvie of Illinois, Edgar D. Whitcomb of Indiana and Warren P. Knowles of Wisconsin — and James Kellog, executive assistant of Michigan's Gov. William G. Milliken participated in the conference.

UNABLE TO ATTEND

Milliken sent word that he could not attend because of legislative debate on school reform.

Hickel and the four state representatives agreed the closed door governors' meeting had been "most productive and progressive" and that the four states were "totally committed" to a joint effort to halt and abate pollution of Lake Michigan.

But Hickel said a national commitment to the cause of pollution abatement is necessary. He said piecemeal appropriations and prosecution are ineffective — "You can't clean up a piece of a river; how can you put a city in jail?"

The administration, Hickel said, will spell out a total program to cope with pollution in all its forms and will act "when Congress accepts it, probably in the next session." He declined to disclose specifics, except to say that it will be "not only a program to catch up, but an ongoing program" to prevent future pollution.

NEED FOR PREVENTION

Ogilvie agreed that the need is for prevention, rather than merely "punishing polluters."

Knowles expressed support of a "total national program," but also urged immediate implementation of the present $800-million federal grant program for antipollution construction. Wisconsin, he said, already has scheduled projects that will require all that state's $17-million-a-year share.

* * *

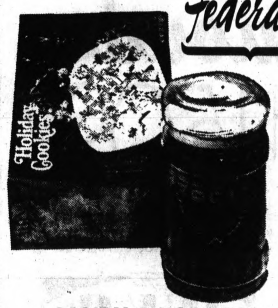

Whitcomb and Kellog also said that their states fully support a nationwide program and Whitcomb predicted "genuine accomplishments in the next few years."

Air Force Removes NCO Club Manager

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force removed the manager of a noncommissioned officers club in Greenland after discovering financial irregularities during a surprise audit, it was disclosed today.

Officials said S. Sgt. Dewey Risner was relieved from his managerial assignment at Thule Air Force Base on Sept. 20 as a result of a check made by the Air Force's auditor general.

* * *

So far it is the first known instance of the service acting against an individual in a current crackdown on irregularities in officer and NCO club operations.

Secretary of the Air Force Robert C. Seams Jr. announced a week ago that the Air Force, like the Army, had been conducting a probe of club activities and found such irregularities as alleged money kickbacks at clubs in Thailand.

WORLDWIDE PROBE

The latest disclosure indicates the Air Force investigation ranges worldwide. Officials said audits were begun 18 months ago.

* * *

No legal action has yet been taken against Risner pending a review of the auditor general's report by the commander of the base, Col. Nat D. King.

* * *

Details of the case are confidential. But in general the allegations involve sales of club property such as furniture and the charging of long-distance telephone calls and gasoline purchases in the United States to the club.

Military clubs fall in a category referred to as "nonappropriated-fund activities," meaning no tax money is involved. But club managers deal in substantial amounts of revenue generated by club sales and services.

County Health Director Is Quitting Post

A native Detroiter with degrees in medicine and public health from the University of Michigan, Berman joined the department 10 years ago as deputy director of health.

PRIME SATISFACTION

Having joined the department at a time of rapid area population growth, he has seen it more than double in size. One of his prime points of satisfaction is the development and construction of the South Oakland Health Center at 27725 Greenfield in Southfield. That building was opened to the public in 1967.

Another satellite health center is being considered for the western portion of the county and Berman also feels this to be of importance.

* * *

Two of the greatest needs the doctor visualizes for the future of Oakland County are the control of land and water pollution and the provision of health services to the poor and drug and alcoholic victims who are now largely ignored in the medical scheme.

Berman visualizes "tremendous change" in the health field in the next 10 years. He sees new classifications of medical aides educated to perform routine doctor functions and augmented by specialists "who have enabled us to reach medical heights unique in the world."

OFFICIALS REACTION

His announcement yesterday caught county officials largely unprepared. The general reaction expressed by both Charles B. Edwards Jr., chairman of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors, and Cyrus Miller, chairman of the county health board, was, "We hate to see him go."

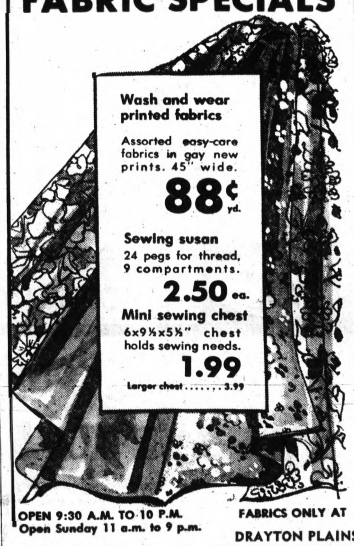

Next in command at the Pontiac department is Dr. Mary Soule who joined the county a month ago as deputy health director. Dr. Frank J. Condon is deputy director in charge of the South Oakland branch.

* * *

Officials were unwilling to speculate as to who might take over Berman's duties.

ORDEAL'S OVER — Inmate Haywood Quinn (in striped shirt at rear) talks to newsmen after he held 23 persons hostage for five hours yesterday at Tennessee State Prison. State Corrections Commissioner Lake Russell hands guard F. A. Smith Quinn's homemade knife as he talks to another newsman.

Con Unhappy; Lost Parole Bid

23 Held Hostage for 5 Hours

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — A state prison inmate, disgruntled over his failure to get a parole, held 23 persons hostage with a foot-long, homemade dagger yesterday before releasing them unharmed after five hours.

The prisoner, Haywood Quinn, 34, surrendered after State Corrections Commissioner Lake Russlell agreed to his demands, which included cash payments to the hostages for their inconvenience.

Quinn was taken to a maximum security cell at Central State Mental Hospital for examination.

Serving a 10 to 17-year term for armed robbery, Quinn rushed into the visitors' gallery in the main administration building of the prison and forced guards to give him the key to the room. He locked the door, keeping with him the visitors, who included a year-old infant.

HELD HOSTAGE

Two guards, four fellow inmates and their relatives who were visiting them were held hostage. The move apparently was triggered by Quinn's failure to receive a parole earlier this year.

Quinn, described by a prison psychiatrist as "psychopathic and potentially very dangerous," doused one guard, George Balthrop, with lighter fluid and threatened to set him afire. He also held the knife to Balthrop's throat.

Quinn told newsmen after he surrendered that he would not have harmed anyone "unless they harmed me."

Afterwards, Quinn was searched prior to being sent to the hospital and guards found half of a pair of scissors hidden under his clothing and two small homemade blades concealed in his shoes. Russell said the weapons were "lethal."

Russell agreed to four Quinn demands to obtain the release of the hostages: the hostages would be paid ($100 each) for their "inconvenience;" Quinn would not be placed in solitary confinement; he would not be transferred to Brushy Mountain State Prison, a maximum security prison at Petros in East Tennessee, and he would not be harmed by guards.

Group Gives $1,000 to Aid Draft Evaders

DETROIT (UPI) — About 25 clergymen and laymen from Detroit walked out to the middle of the Ambassador Bridge between the United States and Canada yesterday and presented a $1,000 check to a group helping American draft resisters and military deserters now living in Canada.

Members of the Clergy and Laymen Concerned about Vietnam (CALCAV) met representatives of the Toronto Anti-Draft Program at the international line in the middle of the bridge over the Detroit River.

★ ★ ★

The U.S. Attorney's Office in Detroit said it has asked for an investigation into the possibility that federal law was violated.

U.S. Attorney James Brickley said no federal agents witnessed the event but said he has asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation to collect information about it.

ILLEGAL TO AID

Brickley said that federal law makes it a crime to wilfully fail to report for the draft and also makes it illegal to aid or abet persons who violate Selective Service laws.

Mrs. Mary Weaver, whose son fled to Canada in September, gave the check to Douglas Sanders, a law faculty member of the University of Windsor, and said "God bless you for helping us."

Sanders replied: "It is with a feeling of sadness that this type of immigration is necessary."

Mideast: Promising Target of Soviet Ambition

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Soviet policy is making important gains in the huge, strategic area loosely described as the Middle East. That is shaping up as the main cockpit of East-West political conflict in the 1970s.

In showing its concern for the area's complaints the cautious but effective Soviet program utilizes economic-military aid, trade and propaganda.

The Russians industriously fan suspicions of the United States but seem to want to avoid any chance of provoking hot war or a showdown. The degree of peace they want in the Middle East may be subject to doubt; a stable peace could remove much of the reason for Arab cooperation with the Communist bloc.

A no-war, no-peace policy for the area would tie in with Soviet efforts toward lessening tensions in Europe and with Kremlin advocacy of collective security in Asia. The Russians probably can live in Europe and Asia with something like the status quo while they concentrate on a target which offers considerable promise.

VOLATILE TRIANGLE

This target is a volatile triangle stretching across the northern tier of Africa and east to Iran, southwest from there to Sudan, and northwest from there to Algeria. The area is home for about 140 million people, many living in backward areas under unstable rule.

At the core of the triangle is an apparently insoluble conflict which pits Arabs and their supporters against Israel, and tends to cast the United States as the chief foe of popular aspirations. American stock goes down steadily in lands where the United States has enormous economic and strategic interests.

Russian ambitions in the area, at least a century old, had led to establishment of Moscow power in the Mediterranean with access to the Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean.

Another aim now is to forge a ring of states dependent upon Moscow. The Russians do not need Middle East oil, but undoubtedly seek some authority over the flow of that oil to Europe.

SOW SUSPICION

The current thrust of Soviet propaganda, which seems to be bearing fruit, is to sow suspicion of U.S. intentions everywhere. Thus the Soviet press, echoing the leaders, pictures Washington proposals for a Middle East solution—which hardly made Israel happy—as an attempt to drive a wedge between Arab states at the Morocco summit conference opening Friday, and to prevent their "solidarity and unity of action."

The implication is that Washington is trying to appear reasonable only to weaken the resolve of Arab leaders to stand firmly behind the minimum demands of Gamal Abdel Nasser's Egypt and its Syrian ally.

In Libya the new regime calls itself "Arab Socialist." Moscow propaganda pushes the notion that the United States supports plots "inspired by foreign powers" against the regime, with an eye to preserving Western bases in the country. Libya has been demanding that the Americans get out of Wheelus Air Base ahead of schedule, and the United States is moving to do so.

TOLD TO COOL IT

The Russians profess to stand four-square behind Arab demands for Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territory as a minimum demand for a settlement, but the Moscow watchword is caution.

Last month Nasser called upon Arabs to "open our road toward what we want, over a sea of blood and a horizon of fire." The Russians seemed to tell him to cool it.

According to Pravda, Soviet leaders told a high-ranking Nasser delegation this month that Russia would continue seeking "political settlement" based on Israeli withdrawals. Premier Alexei N. Kosygin stressed "political" in a speech during the meetings. While pledging itself to support Arab "defense potential," Moscow hewed to a relatively safe line.

Meanwhile, Moscow has made points by replacing for Nasser all the billion dollars worth of Soviet arms destroyed in the 1967 war, though it is generally believed to have avoided increasing the amounts. Egypt swarms with Soviet advisers. Expanded economic and military aid, along with a lesser flood of advisers, has gone to Syria and Iraq. Even Jordan, whose regime is the least anti-West of the Arab East, benefits from economic-technical cooperation with the Russians.

Those nations are part of the inner core of the triangle. At the eastern corner, the Communist bloc has extended generous credits to Iran and has been aiding it in economic projects. At the western corner, Algeria's revolutionary regime gets expensive Russian aid.

SUDAN, TURKEY

From the southern tip of the triangle, Sudan's revolutionary government recently sent a delegation to Moscow to prospect for help. Moscow also has been steadily bettering its relations with Turkey, which commands the Dardanelles and its access to the Mediterranean.

While they plow these promised fields, the Soviet leaders go ahead on other fronts with what look like efforts to reduce tensions, notably in Western Europe and Asia. Soviet activity in Latin America at present seems based upon a hard-headed, businesslike practicality. As for black Africa, it can wait. The Russians found there that they were considered just as suspiciously white as Westerners.

The name of the game, apparently, is to concentrate efforts where the greatest dividends may be reaped.

Maritime Boss Salty

(EDITOR'S NOTE — On the rough, tough waterfront no one was tougher than Helen Delich Bentley, breezy columnist for the Baltimore Sun. Now the salty lady who wrote the seaside news is creating it—as first lady at the helm of the Federal Maritime Commission.)

Helen Delich Bentley

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH

WASHINGTON (AP) — Helen Delich Bentley is partisan. She will fight at the drop of a hat—yours or hers.

And she has, literally, a hundred hats.

★ ★ ★

There's not much middle ground among people who know Helen Bentley. You like her or you don't.

One who liked the Baltimore Sun's waterfront editor was Richard M. Nixon. He named her chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission—the first woman ever named skipper of the U.S. Merchant Marine fleet.

NOT QUITE UNPACKED

Not quite unpacked in her spacious, red-carpeted office, Mrs. Bentley conceded that "it's easier to make and throw balls than to have them coming at you."

And some already have been thrown. Columnist Harriet Von Horne, writing about women not being humble, got around to Mrs. Bentley "who has been covering the waterfront for years."

★ ★ ★

She added: "One could be catty and say she looks it. In truth she looks—with her grim jaw and pale fedora—more like the female sheriff in westerns. Her outstanding trait seems to be her salty toughness . . . she can throw dissenters off the pier."

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Bentley, 45, gained worldwide attention during the historic northwest passage of the S.S. Manhattan when she used a profane word over the ship's radio upon becoming exasparated with a rewrite man taking her story.

'A LITTLE BETTER'

In her new job, Mrs. Bentley readily concedes that she wants to get the message across that women can operate in a man's world and "maybe be a little better."

Competition has been the essence of Helen Bentley's life. Her father, Michael Delich, migrated to the United States from Yugoslavia shortly after the turn of the century and settled in the coal mining country of Pennsylvania. In 1906, he moved westward seeking work in the copper mines, and finally settled in Ruth, Nev., a community of about 1,000 population.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Bentley, youngest of three daughters, attended White Pine High School in Ely, seven miles from Ruth, where she was editor of the school paper, business manager of the yearbook, participated in dramatics and "earned more merits for extracurricular activity" than anyone has before or since.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Bentley went to work when she was 12, first as a clerk in a dress shop, then as a waitress, but she nonetheless won the Elks National Foundation scholarship as the outstanding high school graduate of 1941.

JOURNALISM DEGREE

Her collegiate career started at the University of Nevada, shifted to the night school at George Washington University and ended with a journalism degree from Missouri School of Journalism.

After brief stints with United Press and the Lewiston (Idaho) Tribune, she wrote a letter to Phil Potter, then city editor of the Baltimore Sun and now chief of its Washington bureau. He liked her letter and hired her.

★ ★ ★

In 1948 Mrs. Bentley was assigned to the waterfront. She developed her column "Around the Waterfront" and for 14 years had a maritime TV show.

A competitor observed that she had been from time to time persona non grata in all major maritime unions.

'TUGBOAT ANNIE'

Sometimes referred to as "Tugboat Annie" and described as having a "low boiling point and notorious temper," Mrs. Bentley says: "I'm a very plainspoken, hard-working and, I think, fair-minded person . . . I don't like phonies, don't like pseudo-socialites and I particularly don't like lazy people."

Walking into her 11th floor, corner office you are greeted by a full, firm voice and an even firmer handshake. The phone rings constantly as she greets her callers—frequently admirals—with a cheery "Hi, dear."

Never losing the direction of her conversation after each call, Mrs. Bentley fields all questions directly and forthrightly.

Is that the real color of your hair?

"I'm a bottle blonde—guess you could say I'm gray."

NEWSPAPER BUSINESS

Did you learn swearing in the mining-cattle country or on the waterfront?

"More likely in the newspaper business. I don't think I've used a swear word since coming here."

Your hats are famous—do you design them?

★ ★ ★

"No, I bought most of them from Anita Rose in Baltimore. She's retired now, but when she was designing them, she sold them to me very cheaply, and I never throw anything away."

Do you plan any feminine touches for your office?

COUPLE OF ANTIQUES

"I'm going to have a couple of antiques—a Minton plate with a picture of a lady with a hat (and a big smile broke over her face), an antique sketch, a plaque given me showing my first and last by-line in the Baltimore Sun and a picture of the President."

There's nothing up here—

Veterans Will Feel Benefits-Hike Bite

By JERRY T. BAULCH
AP Newsfeatures

WASHINGTON—The Social Security benefits increase Congress voted in mid-1968 is finally about to bite a bit into Veterans Administration pensions. A small, delayed deduction will take effect Jan. 1 for a large number of the veterans, widows and parents on both VA and Social Security rolls.

BAULCH

The VA and Congress wrote in the delay as a special favor to guarantee that any increase in other income would not have the big impact it could have had under the system then in effect.

But as the date draws near for the catch-up, the VA members of Congress are getting a flood of mail. The loss will amount to only $2 to $4 a month for most, but those in the highest income limits—$2,000 a year without dependents, $3,200 with dependents—could lose as high as $8.

★ ★ ★

As small as this may seem to many of you, these people all live on limited incomes, and even a few dollars is something to worry about as the cost of living climbs.

The pensions range from $29 to $130 a month for a veteran. For widows they range from $17 without dependents, to $90 with one child plus $16 for each additional child.

COULD FACE ANOTHER CUT

Some in the higher income figures could face another cut on Jan. 1, 1971, unless Congress changes the picture. The 1968 law limits the cuts to one increment in the VA pension ladder for each year.

The pension ladder provides for a change in pensions—ranging from $2 to $8 for each $100 change in other income. This current system of 29 levels substituted for a three-to-five level system where a few dollars change in other income often knocked a big hole in VA pensions or wiped them out.

★ ★ ★

If Congress votes another Social Security benefits increase, as President Nixon has requested, the problem will recur.

As I wrote recently, this is bringing a lot of mail to Capitol Hill and some members of Congress are trying to figure what, if anything, to do about it. Some have indicated they will try.

Footnote on Compensation Hikes

My recent column explaining the increases in Dependency and Indemnity Compensation that go into effect Jan. 1 for men who died as a result of military service needs this footnote:

The increase applies only to those under the plan that went into effect Jan. 1, 1957. It does not affect the payments to those who remained under the system for survivor compensation before that date. But most widows under the old system may still shift to the new and get the higher payments.

Footnote on Outpatient Care

In a recent column I reported that President Nixon has signed into law legislation permitting veterans with 100 per cent service-connected disabilities to get outpatient care in VA hospitals for nonservice connected problems.

Checking into a letter writer's query I find it does not apply to dental care.

New Publication for Retirees

The Army has started publishing, every other month, a publication called "Outlook."

This it is distributing to career soldiers with 18 or more years service to help them with their retirement plans. The average military man retires in his 40s or 50s and still has many good working years ahead.

Special emphasis will be placed on preretirement preparations in discussions on career planning and employment, choice of residence and continuing education.

"Outlook" is being edited by Lt. Col. James Mailler, who also edits the "Retired Army Bulletin" for people already out of service.

Mess Hall Changes

There's a big shake-up in the works on military dining facilities and subsidy messing payments, says the Army, Navy and Air Force Times.

A main reason is that within the past decade the number of enlisted men using military mess halls has dwindled so that fewer than half the enlisted men eat out of the GI pots.

The Times says about a third are drawing some kind of subsistence payments but about 9 per sent—270,000—are avoiding mess halls without getting any pay to offset the cost of eating out.

The diner loss is caused by the relatively higher income enlisted men get compared to years when almost everybody ate in the mess halls; by more auto ownership which makes eating off post easier, and by the fact that the percentage of married enlisted men is higher.

★ ★ ★

Ironically, the Times notes, this shift away from the mess hall has taken place while the government was improving the facilities and the food.

Air Force Change

The cutback in Air Force personnel in Vietnam and elsewhere has brought changes in policy for pilots. Beginning Dec. 1, those who volunteer for Southeast Asia will no longer be allowed to pick the type of plane they want to fly; also pilots have been told to expect a lot of short-notice changes in assignments to handle the reshuffle.

Question Box

Dear Jerry: I am attending school at Ft. Benning. When I graduate I will receive orders for Vietnam. If I get normal leave before reporting to Vietnam I will have less than 6½ months before my estimated time of separation. I have heard that the Army cannot send someone to Vietnam if has less than six months remaining in service. I am a draftee and I would like to know if the Army can extend me because I will be in Vietnam so much less than the normal year?

SP5 LHK, Columbus, Ga.

Dear SP5 LHK: The rule is that a man is not sent to Vietnam if he has less than six months as an indivdual or less than three months if he goes with a unit. Of course there are hardly any units going these days, since it's the other way round. You will be sent back to the states in time to get discharged when your two years service is up, since they do not extend a man involuntarily.

Dear Jerry: My husband was in service and while on leave his mother had him put into jail for one to five years on a felony charge. Does the Selective Service give 1A classification to such a person? Can he get a waiver and enlist? He is 20.

Mrs. PB, Michigan City, Ind.

Dear Mrs. PB: Normally a person who has served a prison sentence is given a 4F classification, meaning not eligible for the draft. It's possible some draft boards give 1Y eligible only in case of national emergency. The services will not take a man who served a prison term unless he gets a character waiver. This is done after investigation by the military service looking into the background and talking with such people as probation officers.

Ivan Tors And Sarang Prefer Florida

Climate Shines

Florida Lures Filming

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Florida's greatest natural resource — its sunshine—is providing the state with some extra business. Movie makers seeking clear weather for outdoor shooting are seeking the sun in Florida.)

MIAMI (AP) — The benefit which first lured movie makers to California — the climate — is now drawing some of them to the sunny shores of Florida.

"Hollywood movie makers have been chased indoors," said producer Ivan Tors, a Los Angeles and Miami operator who blames the smog and cold concrete for cutting down on some of Hollywood's outdoor location filming.

★ ★ ★

"Florida needs only to protect its blue skies and clear waters to provide backdrops for more and more films," said Tors, who produced his "Flipper" and "Gentle Ben" television series in Florida.

"Florida has to guard its beauty," he added. "The site used for the first Flipper filming is now sprinkled with apartment buildings. It's ruined a shooting site.

NOW IT'S SMOG

"That's what happened to Hollywood. When I came to California in 1940, it was blue skies and orange groves. Now it's smog and parking lots."

Few predict a wholesale flicker shift to Florida. Roots are deep in California.

★ ★ ★

"Hollywood has a firm grip on the popular TV series shows," said Tors. "The stars live there and like working near home. You'll never get Lucille Ball or Red Skelton to fly 5,000 miles a week just to film in Florida."

Hollywood's indoor facilities are unmatchable, too. It has over 150 professionally manned sound stages to Florida's six.

GLEASON IS HUSTLING

Jackie Gleason, a Miami resident, is doing all one man can to summon the film business to Florida. He made two movies last summer and tries constantly to coax more action for his adopted home state.

"Florida is paradise for me," said the trimmed-down Gleason. "Why the hell should I work or live anywhere else?"

★ ★ ★

Gleason hates to fly, which also keeps him pretty close to south Florida.

Gleason found time while dieting off 61 pounds to shoot two movies, "How Do I Love Thee" and "Don't Drink the Water." Frank Sinatra did "Tony Rome" and "Lady in Cement" here. And Rod Taylor is currently teaming with Theodore Bikel in making "Darker Than Amber."

IT'S HOT AND COLD

"Business is hot and cold," said Ricou Browning, a former deep sea diver who is president of Tors' Miami operation.

"You're buzzing when a movie is in the works," he said. "Then you sit around planning the next move. We need enough work to make actors want to live here . . . not stars, the other people who are so important to a film. That goes for technicians and production personnel, too."

★ ★ ★

Financing films is a hollow item in Florida. Most money for camera productions comes from New York or California despite Florida's large number of wealthy who line the ocean from Palm Beach to Miami Beach.

"We need the big money people," Browning said. "You need millions, but it's a vital — and missing — portion of Florida's film industry."

GODFREY ROAD

Arthur Godfrey first drew attention to Florida as a TV-movie possibility when his show came to Miami Beach in 1053. Locals enjoyed the redhead's publicity so much they named a major street Arthur Godfrey Road.

★ ★ ★

When Miami Beach publicist Hank Meyer talked Gleason into heading south six seasons ago, the city fathers pitched in $450,000 to prepare Miami Beach Auditorium for television shooting.

OU to Offer Income-Tax Course to Adults

For those whose New Year's joy ushers in the woes of the new 1040 federal income-tax form, Oakland University will offer a January adult evening course in preparation of federal and state income-tax returns.

Edward J. Fletcher, continuing education instructor, will cover the new 24-page 1040 form which this year replaces both the old 1040 and the short 1040A.

★ ★ ★

His course will involve a complete review of not only tax law and forms, but also a presentation of allowable and nonallowable deductions, includable and excludable income; tax credits and practice preparation of sample tax returns.

Adults interested in course registration and information may contact OU's Division of Continuing Education.

In 1966, 2,154,343 letters were returned to the sender by the Post Office and 25,084,621 were opened and later destroyed.

On Call Day and Night

Give an Astrologer This Yule

By LOUISE COOK

NEW YORK (AP) — How would you like your very own astrologer? "On call day and night. Knows all, tells all."

That's the latest gimmick to hit the Christmas season market.

★ ★ ★

"For sheer oneupmanship on Christmas morning," says a posh New York department store that offers a $50, one-year subscription to the dial-an-astrologer service. "Merry Christmas and happy Age of Aquarius."

The gift giver provides the name, birthdate, birthplace and time of birth—if known—of the recipient.

The $50 subscription includes:

● A special personal code number entitling the recipient to make unlimited calls for one year, at any time of day or night, for his horoscope readings. The service also is marketed at a lower price with limited calls.

● A 10-page bound copy of the recipient's astrological personality profile, covering such areas as love, life, partners, career and money to help him "use daily readings to their fullest."

★ ★ ★

● A monthly zodiac calendar giving the month's general planetary influences for the recipient's sign.

★ ★ ★

If the idea of astrology brings to mind a little old man in a wizard's robe at the other end of the telephone, forget it. This services features computers, not crystal balls.

EVERY COMBINATION

Information is fed into the computer by a staff of astrologers who, the store says, "translate every possible combination of planetary relationships into clear, up-to-date information."

The computer is programmed to calculate the positions of the planets and the stars at any given moment and interpret the planetary aspects.

★ ★ ★

Astrology dates to the Mesopotamian civilization about 5,000 years ago.

It is based on the theory that the movement of celestial bodies influences human affairs. A horoscope is "a map of the heavens at the moment of a person's birth."

12 HOUSES

The horoscope is divided into 12 "houses" or "signs," and the sign of a person's birth supposedly determines his temperament.

★ ★ ★

So, "when the moon is in the seventh house and Jupiter lies with Mars," in the words of the song from the rock musical "Hair," just call your personal astrologer for advice.

Snowmobiles Are In, Planes Out at Harrison Airport

HARRISON (AP) — Snowmobils instead of airplanes will be zooming down the runway of Harrison Airport this winter.

★ ★ ★

All day Sunday a deputy sheriff was busy trying to keep bundled and rosy-cheeked snowmobilliers out of the airport. They were reportedly attracted by the hundreds to the level, snow-covered airfield.

★ ★ ★

Then Monday, the Clare County Board of Supervisors, considering how few airplanes use the field and how many snowmobile enthusiasts live in the county, banned planes from the field and turned it over to the bullet-shaped, motorized sleds until April 1.

★ ★ ★

Half a dozen local pilots and several downstate businessmen keep their planes at this county-owned airport in central Michigan, previously in the category of a farmer's field where a pilot landed at his own risk but licensed as a year-round facility last summer by the Federal Aeronautics Administration.

PLANE CRASH

There was a plane crash Nov. 28 in which the pilot, Douglas Danberry of Harrison, said he overshot the runway trying to avoid a snowmobile while landing. He was injured.

★ ★ ★

Since then, Danberry says, snowmobile owners and dealers telephone him and complain that he is trying to ruin their business.

★ ★ ★

There are about 25 snowmobile dealers in the Harrison area, which advertises to tourists, "This IS the North," and which has had a solid three-inch base of snow for weeks.

★ ★ ★

Supervisors directed the county clerk to notify the FAA that snowmobiles are in and airplanes are out at Harrison.

He Broke Wife's Casserole Dish

Newlywed Man's in a Stew

By JEFFREY D. ALDERMAN

NEW YORK (AP) — The giant casserole dish was only three months old, and my wife had often said it was one of her favorite wedding presents both for sentimental and decorative reasons. The girls in her office had all chipped in to buy it.

We were married in September and just recently moved into our new apartment. I was building some shelves in the kitchen and put the casserole on an end table to get it out of the way.

* * *

I also moved a lamp out of the way. Reconstructing the disaster later, I figured that the lamp cord got wedged under a leg of the end table. When I went to replace the lamp—CRASH!

I felt the tug of the cord and turned just in time to see that sacred dish fall—but not in time to do anything about it.

SHE'D MISS IT

My wife had left for work. Should I hide it and hope she wouldn't notice? No, she'd be sure to miss it.

* * *

Maybe I could wedge all the pieces back together, then the next time she picked it up, she would think she had broken it. No, I'd never get away with that. I'd just have to face up to it.

I picked up the pieces, left a note telling her what happened and went to work myself.

I asked a fellow worker, with more time in grade in the marriage ranks than I, whether anything like the casserole debacle had ever happened to him. He chuckled, smoothed back his gray hair and said:

"Once—back in '42, I think it was— I dropped my wife's best crock. A million pieces. Happened right after we were married. Wife wouldn't speak to me for three weeks and started to poison me slowly by putting small doses of arsenic in my orange juice."

HE TOLD ALL

I immediately wished that I hadn't told him. He told everyone in the office, of course, and all day marriage veterans were offering advice.

I entered our apartment that night with head bowed. My wife was in the kitchen.

"Sorry about the casserole dish. I'll..."

"Don't say another thing," Joanne interrupted. "It could have been me just as well as you. We'll have to replace it, of course."

"Of course," I said, immensely relieved. "Thanks for being so nice."

We then had a small quarrel about why I thought she was going to be anything but nice about it.

The next day she had to work and it was my day off. Still feeling guilty, I decided that maybe I could salvage the dish by gluing it together. So I got out the cement and tried. Perfect, I thought. I put it on a shelf where my wife would be sure to see it.

* * *

Joanne arrived carrying a package.

"What have you got in the package?" I asked.

"I bought a new..." she paused. "I bought a new... er, ah,...dress."

LATER, DEAR

"Oh," I said. "Let's see what it looks like." "Later, dear," she said, putting the package in the hall closet. "Later."

Then, looking at the mended casserole dish, she exclaimed lovingly:

"Darling, you replaced the casserole dish for me!"

* * *

"Well, I didn't..." I started.

"What a sweetheart," she glowed. "I didn't expect you to run right out and buy another."

By this time Joanne was at the shelf admiring the thing.

"Don't... pick it up, the glue's..."

INSTANT REPLAY

My cry came too late. The casserole was, as before, in pieces on the floor. The only difference was that the pieces were sticky and dribbling on the rug.

At first she thought she had broken a second casserole, but then she saw the glue and began laughing uncontrollably.

You see, in that package in the hall closet, was a brand-new casserole, purchased on Joanne's lunch hour.

Paul John, Orchard Lake (left) and James Bernardin, representing Campbell-Ewald, examine the winning design for a 1970 Christmas card. John is a member of the Foundation for Mentally Ill Children, Inc., the group that sponsors an annual art contest among children at Fairlawn Center, Pontiac State Hospital. This design, done by a 13-year-old, represents the Holy Family. The other three designs on the page were runners-up, all first in their special division. The Foundation has cards printed from the winning design and sells them to raise funds for the children. This year they sold 35,000 cards. Other members of the Foundation board helped select the winning design.

It's 'Fancy' Life for Bobby Now

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Singer Bobbie Gentry and millionaire gambling casino owner William "Bill" Harrah were to be married today, an actress who said she was asked to be maid of honor reported.

★ ★ ★

Amandah Peppar made the disclosure Wednesday at the Hungry i theater in San Francisco, where she was appearing in a play. A spokesman at the theater said Miss Peppar canceled her Wednesday night performance and left for Reno.

★ ★ ★

A Mississippi native, Miss Gentry, 27, rose to fame in 1967 with her record "Ode to Billy Joe," which sold five million copies.

★ ★ ★

Harrah, 58, operates two casinos, one in Reno and another at South Lake Tahoe.

★ ★ ★

Neither was available for comment. One of Harrah's business associates, who would neither confirm nor deny marriage plans, said Harrah would continue his practice of avoiding publicity.

★ ★ ★

It will be Miss Gentry's first marriage and Harrah's second.

★ ★ ★

Harrah's former wife of 20 years, Sherry, divorced him last March on grounds of incompatibility. She has custody of their two adopted sons, John Adam and Tony Lee.

Saw Dad Playing Santa

WASHINGTON (UPI)—When she was 2, Pat Nixon said, she woke up on Christmas eve and found her father filling the stockings.

That shattered her illusion of Santa Claus, Mrs. Nixon said yesterday while showing newswomen the first family's Christmas tree.

"But he took me in cahoots," she said, and they kept the secret from her older brothers.

Milk Prices Up Again

LANSING (AP)—The increase in milk prices spread to northern lower Michigan Monday. The price of a half-gallon of milk went up two cents.

The hike follows a similar increase in the Detroit area earlier this month.

May Continue to Accept With Caution

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: A visit to my girlfriend is an overnight trip. Her mother has always invited me to stay in their home and I have accepted, taking a present with me. Is it all right for me to impose on their hospitality every few weeks, or should I stay in a motel?

Since I do know the family pretty well and because I have already stayed there several times, am I being unnecessarily concerned as long as the invitations continue?—Jack

Dear Jack: Suggest to your girlfriend that you feel you may be imposing and could stay at a motel sometimes. She will know better than you how her family feels. I suspect, from the continuing invitations, that your visits are welcome, and if they are issued warmly, you may certainly continue to accept them.

MAN FIRST

I am a single girl living alone. Is it proper, upon approaching the door, to hand my key to my boyfriend and expect him to open the door? (He is coming in with me.) I had always thought that it was the man's place to open all doors for a woman. After all, you never know who may be lurking behind that door.

My boyfriend disagrees. He says that it is my apartment and that he has no business unlocking and opening my door. Besides, he doesn't want to be the first to be hit over the head by any thieves. Is my boyfriend right, or is he just a coward? —Rhonda

Dear Rhonda: I believe I'd try to find another boyfriend if I were you! Any man who would send his girl into an empty apartment ahead of him so that she could be the one to run into an intruder, isn't worth inviting in. Either he should allow you to unlock and precede you in, or, open it himself.

The man should step in first and hold the door open for the girl to follow.

Forced Contribution Irks Company Office Worker

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm just a poor working stiff (office job) with a big company, and I mean really BIG.

Today I received an inter-office memo informing me that all the employes were getting together to "BUY THE BOSS A BUICK."

Now, the boss needs somebody to buy him a Buick like I need another head. Furthermore, I think it's a cheap trick to put the arm on all the employes this way.

So what's a guy supposed to do? If I refuse, it's sure to get back to the boss, and you know what will happen to me.

If I go along with it (which is probably the only thing I can do) I will hate myself. Got any advice?

WORKING STIFF

DEAR STIFF: If there are other "working stiffs" in your organization who share your feelings (and there must be), why don't you quit griping, and DO something about it?

DEAR ABBY: Our son who is 18 and in the Navy spent several months training in a distant state. During the last two months there he met a girl and spent every weekend with her. When he came home on leave he informed us that he was going to marry her within two weeks! Needless to say, we were shocked because she is only 17.

He is due to go overseas soon for at least a year, so we suggested they become engaged until they were sure of their feelings. It was then that he told us that they couldn't wait because she was pregnant.

★ ★ ★

After some questioning, he told us that he's not really sure she is pregnant, but she "thinks" she is. Also he is not really sure that he is the father, as she's dated several other service men that he knows, but she says he's the one.

★ ★ ★

Our son told us that the girl doesn't get along with her parents and is very eager to get away from home.

★ ★ ★

I do not condone our son's actions, but if he IS responsible for this girl's condition he should certainly face up to his responsibility. Still, how does one really know under the circumstances if it's really his responsibility? Can you advise us?

WORRIED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: First, your son needs legal counsel. And the chaplain on his base will be helpful, too. No young man should jump into marriage under any circumstances—especially the one you describe.

★ ★ ★

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, care of The Pontiac Press, Dept. E-600, P.O. Box 9, Pontiac, Mich. 48056. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Christmas Finds Paula Varner Looking Back, Glancing Ahead

By JANET ODELL
Women's Editor, The Pontiac Press

Paula Varner is taking in stride the news that she's moving. The only thing that upsets her a bit, according to a telephone interview, is the closeness of Christmas.

When the news broke Monday that Chancellor D. B. Varner is leaving Oakland University to assume the chancellor's position at the University of Nebraska, the Varners were in Lincoln.

Now that she's back home with just six weeks to go before their leaving, Paula knows she won't have many free minutes.

"I haven't even finished my Christmas shopping," she said.

Two of the three Varner children are married; Sue is a tenth grader at Rochester High School. She thinks the move will be fun.

Judy and her husband will come home for Christmas from Hartford, Conn. while Tom and his bride of three months will join the family too. Paula's brother and his family are to be houseguests also.

Paula's reaction to the move itself?

"I'm not sure I like it." She went on to say how much she has enjoyed living here and being associated with OU. In a way, she also hates to leave the house she had a hand in remodeling.

"We feel the house is ours." They so much feel the house is theirs that they have resisted moving into Sunset Terrace, the retirement home of the Alfred G. Wilsons. This house, overlooking the Meadow Brook Festival grounds, does not have the warmth and informality of the farmhouse where the Varners live.

Paula has made herself a definite and pleasant part of the university scene. One of my choice memories of her is the time the old chicken houses were being renovated as the costume department for Meadow Brook Theatre. Paula joined the other volunteers in their unglamorous but necessary jobs of scrubbing and waxing.

The Varners think they will like living in Lincoln. Both come from Texas and are used to wide open spaces. "But," says Paula, "the area round Lincoln is a bit rolling."

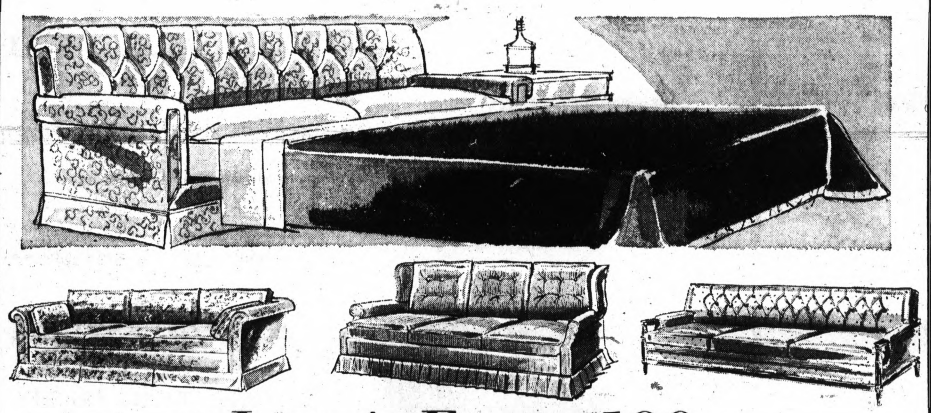

Their new home, which is furnished, is only about five years old. The three Varners spent the night there when they visited Lincoln.

Habitues at Oakland University events will miss the tall smiling woman with the touch of Texas in her voice. We shall.

Cotton Fabric, Trims Make Ornaments

Let the decorations on your holiday tree reflect all the color and gaiety of a Mexican Christmas.

Do it with Mexican-inspired tree ornaments in the charming folk art tradition . . . ornaments you can make yourself from bright-colored cotton fabrics cut in simple animal shapes. For added color, trim them with lively zig-zags of cotton rickrack and fringe.

No sewing is required for these easy-to-make tree trims, reports the National Cotton Council.

To give body to the ornaments, use heavyweight non-woven interfacing between front and back of the fabric designs. Cut two 6x7-inch rectangles of cotton fabric and one of interfacing to form a base for the designs. Join fabric and interfacing together with a new iron-on product — a web of fibers on transfer paper that fuses materials together with the aid of a steam iron.

Then trace an animal shape on the fabric base and cut out. Simple outlines of birds, owls, lambs, fish, or Mexican burros are most effective.

Glue appropriate rickrack trims to the animal shapes, making identical designs on both sides of each ornament, and use sequins for eyes.

For example, a tree ornament in the shape of the traditional Mexican stone bird can be cut from bright red cotton fabric. Outline the tail and wings of the bird with baby-size rickrack in black. Add rows of white baby rickrack on the wings and tail for contrast.

Glue one point of the rickrack on each side for the bird's beak, and add black sequins for the eyes.

Charming animal shapes cut out from cotton fabrics and edged with rickrack made tree-trimming fun for the whole family.

Paris-Bound Mother Seeks Prisoner List

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A mother of seven, who has undergone an operation for cancer during the 2½ years since her husband's plane went down over North Vietnam, says she is going to Paris after Christmas.

Her aim is to pressure North Vietnamese delegates into releasing the names of all U.S. prisoners.

Maj. John O'Grady, 37, disappeared April 10, 1967, while flying an F105 Thunderbird jet over enemy territory.

★ ★ ★

"I'm hit. It's on fire, I'm getting out," were his last radioed words.

Soon afterward, Diana O'Grady learned she had cancer and underwent surgery.

"They told me it was taken care of—only time will tell," she said. "I'm optimistic."

★ ★ ★

The attractive, blonde housewife will be financed in Paris by an organization called United We Stand, which also seeks the prisoners' names.

"I don't want one name either —I want all the names," she said. "I also want the conditions of the prisoners."

Have You Tried This?

Find Fruitcake Recipe

By JANET ODELL
Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

You recipe savers are right on the job. The recipe for fruitcake made with apple pie filling was given to us on the telephone less than 24 hours after the request was printed.

Several other readers also called to say they had it. Thank all of you.

APPLE FRUITCAKE

½ cup butter or margarine
1 can (32) apple pie filling (2 cups)
1 cup sugar
2 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cloves
1½ cups raisins
1½ cups currants
1 cup pecans
1 cup mixed candied fruit
1 cup candied cherries

Melt butter or margarine in saucepan, add pie filling and sugar. Heat, stirring occasionally until sugar melts. Cool.

Sift dry ingredients and mix with nuts and fruits. Combine the two mixtures. Turn into 9-inch foil lined tube pan. Bake at 300 degrees for 90 minutes or until cake tests done.

★ ★ ★

This cake may be served with the following sauce.

Butter Sauce

½ cup butter
½ cup confectioners sugar
½ cup cold water
1½ teaspoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon vinegar

Cream butter, add sugar gradually and beat until fluffy. Stir water into cornstarch and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is thick and clear.

Pour hot mixture into creamed mixture. Add vanilla and vinegar and mix well. Serve warm. Makes about 1 cup.

Leather Look Will Last Long

The leather look, whether real or imitated, is definitely in the fashion picture to stay. But before you go for leather consider the kind and cost of upkeep. Most real suede or leather garments call for dry cleaning only and require individual custom handling with accompanying higher charges.

★ ★ ★

Simulated leathers are of two kinds — polyurethane coated fabrics that can be drycleaned, and expanded vinyl that must be wetcleaned or wiped off.

Mrs. Onassis Is No. 19 in Women's Poll

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis has slipped to 19th position in a national magazine survey of the world's most admired women. While Jackie's appeal for American housewives has diminished considerably, admiration for the Kennedy clan itself remains high. Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy ranked fourth and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy was voted fifth position in the poll which is published in Good Housekeeping's January issue.

Actress Patricia Neal, wife of writer Roald Dahl, was voted number one by readers who paid tribute to her courage and perserverance. Miss Neal made a triumphant return to her screen career following a series of massive crippling strokes.

★ ★ ★

Writer Pearl Buck was ranked in second place and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower third. The nation's first lady, Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, was sixth, followed by Mrs. Martin Luther King, Jr., widow of the slain civil rights leader.

★ ★ ★

Three heads of state were named to the top ten: Queen Elizabeth II, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, and Mrs. Golda Meir, who placed eighth, ninth and tenth, respectively.

The poll was conducted among a sampling of 1,000 members of the magazine's consumer panel. The panelists were asked to choose the women they considered most outstanding from a list of 23 prominent women. Courage, strong-will and unselfishness were cited by many respondents as the attributes possessed in common by the top ten category.

Never overgarnish the platter that holds a roast as this does not leave the carver enough room.

MRS. ANTONIO MACIAS JR.

Legion Hall Reception for Newlyweds

St. Vincent DePaul Catholic Church was the setting for the Saturday wedding of Sarah Laura Medina to Antonio Macias Jr.

The couple was feted at a reception in the Auburn Heights American Legion Hall.

★ ★ ★

Rebeca Jimenez was maid of honor for the daughter of Mrs. Mary P. Medina of South Paddock Street and Alfredo Medina of Mount Clemens.

★ ★ ★

The bridegroom's brother, Ralph, performed the duties of best man. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Macias of Cottage Street.

★ ★ ★

Gowned in lace over taffeta, the bride carried a bouquet of roses and carnations.

The newlyweds are honeymooning at Niagara Falls.

Style Trends Range Hard to Ultra-Soft

Men's belts are proving to be one of the fashion highlights of the season, notes the Men's Fashion Association, with many variations and "looks." One example is the use of metal hardware along the entire length of the belt. Also, there are now many matching or coordinated watchbands to go with the belts.

★ ★ ★

While the conventional bowtie has remained in fairly-modest demand, the new wider shape (up to 31 inches) is getting a big acceptance. The same can be said for the large butterfly formal ties, many in velvet, and the importance of fringe among the younger people cannot be overestimated. You see it on shirts, vests, outercoats and almost everything else.

★ ★ ★

And here is a none-trend! A foreign sports car maker has brought out a leather trenchcoat that matches the interior upholstery of the car. We're all for new ideas in fashion, but this is one we just cannot see sweeping the country.

The port city of Mobile, Ala., was colonized by the French in 1699.

Chemicals Bathe Fireplace Wood in Bright Colors

You can make the home fires burn in one or more colors by chemically treating pieces of wood and dry evergreen cones with chemicals.

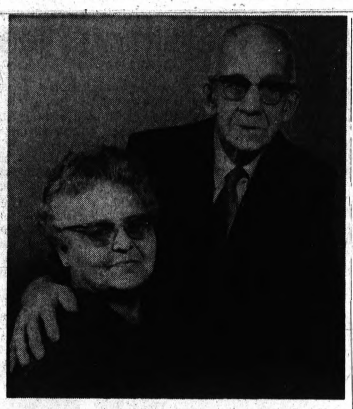

From a chemical supply house or hobby shop, buy copper sulfate for blue; calcium chloride for orange; lithium chloride, purple; strontium chloride, red; potassium chloride for lavender; and copper chloride, green.

★ ★ ★

Wearing rubber gloves and working in a well-ventilated room or outdoors, dissolve one pound of chemicals per gallon of warm water, in a non-metal container, and submerge an open mesh or porous sack of the wood for several hours. Then let it drip dry.

Vinegar Removes Spots

Grease spots may be removed from suede shoes with an old toothbrush dipped in vinegar.

A celebration Sunday will mark the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Baker of North Johnson Avenue. The couple married Dec. 24, 1919, in Laurenceville, Ill. They have lived in Pontiac area for the past 33 years. Open house is slated from 2 to 5 p.m. in the West Iroquois Road home of their daughter, Mrs. Leonard (Shirley) Sundahl. They also have a son, J. Julian Baker of Orchard Lake and five grandchildren.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

You are lucky if you have either a normal skin or a face shaped like an oval. If you have both, your problems are few. You can wear your hair in any style you like and still look your best and your complexion presents no special problems. You will not have to compensate for irregular features with special hair arrangements or try to hide blemishes with makeup.

★ ★ ★

If your skin is normal, use a mild soap for cleansing. Astringents are not necessary. However a moisturizer is in order when the weather is cold or windy and it is usually wise to pat on eye cream around the eyes at night. Remember that the natural oils diminish with age. Even normal complexions may benefit from lubrication later on.

Do not be so smug about your normal skin that you fail to remove all makeup every night before going to sleep. This rule applies to all types of epidermis.

If your skin is oily use no creams or oils on it. Cleanse with soap and water only. Use an astrigent after cleaning and rinsing. If you have a tendency to have blackheads you may find beauty grains or a complexion brush helpful. Bath salts are preferable to bath oils.

Very dry skin requires special attention. Use cleansing creams as a general rule and soap and water occasionally. An eye is essential if you are to avoid undereye lines and crow's-feet. By all means use a moisturizer under your makeup and choose cosmetics which have a creamy base. Avoid astrigents.

Many women have what is known as a "combination" complextion. The nose and chin are oily but the rest of the face is dry, especially the area around the eyes and on the cheeks. The answer to this is to treat the oily portions as you would an oily skin and the dry areas as you would a dry complexion.

★ ★ ★

It is important to give your skin the sort of care sutied to it individually.

Use Perfume to Relay Message

Since a fragrance can turn you on or off as effectively as something a person says, does, or looks like, a recent issue of Glamour Magazine featured a briefing on the scents you wear — how to evoke feelings with them, where to put them and how they can heighten or detract from pleasure, along with dos and don'ts in choosing and wearing.

- Don't try on a new perfume unless your skin is completely free of other odors and perfumes.
- Don't sample more than three at the counter — your nose will lose its ability to distinguish between them.
- Do wear the sample around the store for ten minutes before making final judgment. Scents change after they have been on the body for a time and the fragrance blends with your own skin oils after the alcohol evaporates.
- Do suit your scent to the season and occasion — light for summer, office, home and parties since heat tends to heighten scent; heavier for winter, evenings out and outdoors since perfume's staying power is less on cold days.
- Don't restrict yourself to a signature scent — change around. The nose develops somewhat of an immunity to fragrances and will respond less to one that it's been exposed to over and over.
- Do touch up your scent during the day.
- Don't save scents forever — they evaporate and spoil.

When thinking of places to put your fragrance, consider dropping a bit in the rinsing water of your lingerie. Spray clean closets, cloth clothes hangers, hem linings, scarves if they don't stain easily, handkerchiefs and purse linings. But don't spray scent directly on furs, as it does stain them.

★ ★ ★

Put empty scent bottles in sweater, lingerie or ribbon drawers as a sachet. Drop a teaspoon or two of a fragrance in the rinsing water after your shampoo, or in your bath for a great pickup before going out or as a relaxant before going to bed.

★ ★ ★

To evoke special feelings try: placing perfumed candles about the rooms. Put a drop of your favorite scent on a light bulb before you turn it on. The heat will doffuse it throughout the room and make it linger.

Mixed Doubles Started Romance

GREENFIELD, Ind. (AP) — Bowling has played a major part in the lives of the Frank Parker family, as the 135 bowling trophies on display in their home indicate.

The romance of Frank and Maxine Parker, married 25 years, began when they bowled together in a mixed league in Indianapolis. Mrs. Parker, who has a 184 average and has been Indianapolis city singles and doubles champ, is a certified bowling instructor. Her husband has a 190 average.

★ ★ ★

Their son Tom, 24, with a 190 average, started bowling at 9. Their other two sons, Jim and Dave, also got an early start in the sport.

The first voting machine was used in the nation in 1892.

A Few Year-Long Gifts Mothers Want

By BETTY CANARY
NEA Writer

Parents who have purchased everything on their children's Christmas lists can, if they like, lean back, hum a little tune, and be satisfied that they, in their wisdom and humanity, have done everything possible to insure happiness within the family. So it goes.

★ ★ ★

What most children would prefer, over all the spacestations, clockradios and dancing dolls on the market, is a guaranteed 12-month cessation of critical questioning and emotionally destructive complaints.

Some things children wish we'd stop saying:

"If only you applied yourself, you could bring home all A's on your report card."

"Your sister always had first chair in the orchestra when she played violin and if you would only practice a little more each day . . ."

"WHEN will you ever LEARN?"

★ ★ ★

"Didn't you know I was saving that last piece of cake for your father's lunch tomorrow?"

"But WHY do you want to wear those ugly boots?"

"When I was a boy your age . . ."

"When I was a girl your age . . ."

"When I was younger than you are now, I . . ."

"Do you mean to tell me you've lost your lunch money again?"

"Kids today don't appreciate anything!"

"You don't know the meaning of the word 'work'."

"We spent a lot of money putting shelves in your room, so why can't you put your toys on them?"

"WHY can't you understand?"

"Do you think money grows on trees?"

"Where did you put the toothpaste?"

"You are always losing things!"

"I'm not saying you're clumsy, but . . ."

★ ★ ★

"You kids think you know how to solve the problems of the world—sure seems funny you'd need my help with that geometry homework."

"Won't you quiet down?"

"This is the LAST time I'm telling you!"

It is only fair to point out that parents, although hopelessly unable to refrain totally from criticizing their off-spring, just might be easier to live with if they had a gift of a 12-month period during which they had some things they really wanted.

That is to say, it was unselfish of Johnny, saving his allowance in order to get mother a hair dryer, but she'd be happier if:

He applied himself and brought home some A's on his report card. If he'd practice a little more each day. If he'd stop eating everything in sight without mentioning it. Etc., etc., etc., etc.

Scientists Ascribe Large Benefits to Ascorbic Acid

Can an orange a day keep the psychiatrist away?

Large doses of vitamin C (found in fresh fruits, especially citrus, tomatoes and vegetables) were highly recommended at this year's second International Congress of Social Psychiatry.

★ ★ ★

Taking about 10 times the recommended dose of vitamin C daily under a doctor's care, according to Dr. Linus Pauling, professor of chemistry at the University of California, San Diego, and a Nobel Prize winner, can provide the average person with:

- Increased vigor.
- Increased protection against infectious disease including the common cold.
- An increased rate of healing of wounds.

★ ★ ★

In addition the Nobel laureate said he and his colleague, Dr. Arthur B. Robinson, had found an abnormally low level of ascorbic acid (vitamin C) in the body fluids of about one-third of schizophrenics they had examined. This was borne out by other investigators.

Hardy Clothing Needed for Moon Walks

Women's Wear Daily

HOUSTON — Moon dust is tough on clothers — even $100,000 outfits.

So tough that Lunarnauts a year from now will be wearing a new design, possibly a throwaway coverall for working on longer moon explorations.

For the Apollo 13 mission in March the gloves may be changed to give greater protection to the palms of the hands. But the suit changes probably will not be made until later missions, when three moon walks are scheduled.

★ ★ ★

Apollo 12 moonwalkers Pete Conrad and Alan Bean found moon dust was their toughest adversary during their eight hours on the moon.

"Pete said their suits looked worse after eight hours on the lunar surface than their work suits on earth in which they have spent many days," said Dr. Christopher C. Kraft, Jr., in an exclusive interview.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Kraf, former director of flight operations, is the new deputy director for the Manned Spacecraft Center here.

"That moon dust was rough on the Beta fiber . . . the suits were pretty well abraded in certain areas . . . like on the legs," said Dr. Kraft.

★ ★ ★

"We don't feel there is any danger for moon walks of similar duration, but we want to provide a safety margin for the longer moon walk missions," he said.

NOT WEAR RESISTANT

Despite intensive research, the Beta fibers which form the top layer of the moon suits are subject to abrasion and do not wear too well.

Dr. Kraft said suit experts were looking at some type of a coverall that could be worn while the men were working on the moon, then taken off before they climbed back in the lunar module.

Besides being abrasive, the dirt which clung to everything is a source of concern for another reason.

Dr. Kraft said the astronauts don't want to carry it into the cabin, because it floats around and gets into everything. The astronauts had to keep helmets on to prevent the dust from getting into their eyes and nostrils.

Furthermore, they were concerned that if they took the suits off (for a night's rest) the dirt might get into the seals around the joints (such as at the wrist) and that they wouldn't be able to get a proper seal when they put the suits on a second time for another moon walk.

The gloves were so badly frayed . . . especially in the palm and finger area . . . that a protective covering probably will be added for Apollo 13. The gloves became worn from all the work the men had to do in setting up experiments and handling tools for rock collecting and clipping pieces from the Surveyor III.

Mirrored Tricks

For ticky makeup jobs like applying false eyelashes or drawing a thin line with your eye-liner brush, you'll never be caught in the wrong light with a lighted mirror that reverses for magnification.

Strip Old Way

To remove old wax from floors or linoleums, use a good grade of commercially prepared wax remover. Mix with water and apply as directed on label.

The pretty young model is standing beneath an 18th century Christmas kissing bell, which predates the Christmas tree in America. Several of the bells, constructed of boxwood or laurel on a wire frame are to be seen in Greenfield Village this season. Christmas tours of the Village and a special crafts exhibit in the Henry Ford Museum will continue through the end of the year.

First Christmas Card Designed by English Artist

By QUINBY SCHUYLER

NEW YORK — The whimsical curiosity of American children, it seems to me, has never been any keener than it is today. At least, I got that impression a few days ago, when my ten-year old son abruptly asked: "Where do Christmas cards come from?"

It stumped me, but good. And my wife, I'm afraid, wasn't much better informed. To the same question, she had answered:

"Oh, from friends and relatives usually. People you don't see much anymore."

So I, realizing that it's wiser to answer these questions properly as they come up, did a little Christmas card research and found:

★ ★ ★

● Contrary to a fairly general supposition, the history of Christmas cards is not centuries-old. The first known Christmas card having been designed in 1843 by John Calcott Horsley, R.A., painter and illustrator to Sir Henry Cole, the inaugurator and first director of the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, England. In 1846, one thousand copies of the Horsley design were lithographed, hand-colored and sold by Felix Summerly's Treasure House in Bond Street, an art shop which Cole had set up in order to improve the taste of his contemporaries.

● The first American Christmas cards were published in 1875 in Roxbury, Mass., by a noted craftsman lithographer, Louis Prang. Earlier he had perfected a lithographic process of color printing that surpassed those of other graphic arts craftsmen in both Great Britain and the United States. In the early 1870s he began the publication of de luxe editions of Christmas cards which found a ready sale in England, culminating in the introduction of the first American Christmas cards in 1875.

● Early Christmas card designers met widespread public ridicule. Like Fulton and his steamboat, they were warned that the custom of sending Christmas cards "could never win popular support."

INTRIGUED

These preliminary findings intrigued my interest further. What did the first Christmas card look like? How does it compare with the 1969 Christmas cards? Who were the people most responsible for founding a custom that brings such tremendous happiness into every American home?

The first known Christmas card, I have discovered, has a central illustration depicting the conviviality of the season. Small panels in the design to the left and right show the charitable acts of "clothing the poor" and "feeding the hungry," always connected with the Christmas season. Inevitably, of course, the greeting on the card was destined to become the most popular Yuletide message ever composed—it reads, "A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year To You."

Notwithstanding the rather cool reception the first Christmas card received, other artists and publishers during the next few years after its appearance intensified their efforts through what might termed an experimental or face-lifting period. Then, in 1866, Messrs. Marcus Ward and Co. of Belfast, Ireland, were commissioned by an English firm to lithograph a set of four designs by artist C. H. Bennett. Reproductions from this set, it seems, were the forerunners of the first "popular" Christmas cards.

Standards for Christams cards published by Marcus Ward and Co. were extremely high. For years this firm monopolized most of the better-class trade. The Ward cards were conventional, almost always, and the finished product embodied gala Christmas scenes, floral devices and beautiful hand lettering.

Before the 1860s—the same era which saw bustles come into fashion—had passed, the exchange of colorful Christmas greeting cards was one of England's most cherished customs. As might be expected between two countries whose cultural ties are so closely allied, Christmas cards soon migrated to America. Here, the story of their origin parallels the career of Louis Prang, the lithographer of many rare talents.

On April 6, 1850, Prang arrived in New York City, a political exile from his native Germany, and in poor condition both physically and financially. In a brief 25 years, he was established in Boston as one of the most important lithographers, had published the first American Christmas card line, and could say of his career:

"It was in 1865 that I inaugurated the chromo. I followed this up with the chromo business card in 1873, and with the artistic Christmas card in 1874-5, all of which publications made the tour around the world, and set more lithographic presses to work all over Europe and America than any other special line of publications ever did before or after."

COLLECTOR'S ITEMS

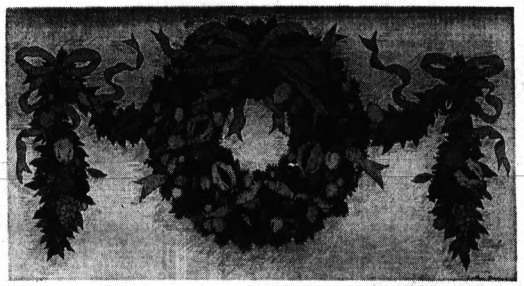

The "chromos" Prang referred to were the product of a printing process, chromo-lithography, that he helped to perfect. Their vast range of colors and shades, simulating the woven texture of an artist's canvas, received popular and professional acclaim the world over. Today, Prang's "chromos" are valuable collector's items.

In 1880, Prang initiated his annual prize awards for the best Christmas card design by a free-lance artist. These contests, unique at that time, were instrumental in improving the artistic foundation of Christams card designs, and in attracting national attention to the newborn Yuletide custom.

Ten years later, with an uncontested claim to the title "Father of the American Christmas Card," Louis Prang abruptly discontinued publishing Christmas cards. Cheaper reproductive process had been developed, and cheap novelty cards from Europe were flooding the country. Prang decided to withdraw from the field, rather than risk bankruptcy with his more expensive "chromos."

★ ★ ★

The modern era of Christmas cards dates from 1900-1910, when a number of new publishing firms were first established. But the big boom came immediately after World War I. At that time, public fancy was completely won over by the symbolic designs — Christmas trees, holly wreaths, gleaming candles, and church bells — which are as popular today as they were then.

Wood Finishes Require Care

Do you take care of your furniture? Proper care means longer life for most pieces — so if you don't take care,' you should. These hints may help: Avoid exposing wood surfaces to extreme heat, cold or humidity.

★ ★ ★

Use only the polishes recommended for furniture. A self-polishing floor wax, when used on furniture, will soften the finish. Always lift objects when moving them. Never drag furniture across a finished surface.

Mrs. Walker Reelected Head of Local Group

Mrs. Roosevelt Walker will again lead Walker's Workers as president during 1970. Mrs. Ophelia Humphrey will assist as vice-president; Mrs. Albert Burt as secretary and Mrs. Henry Latimore as treasurer.

The group's Christmas party is scheduled from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday in Hayes Jones Community Center. The children will present hand-made gifts to their home mothers. There will be carol-singing, refreshments and candy stockings for the youngsters.

Sarah Moore will play the piano for the festivities and Mark Rutherford will sing.

On Tuesday, the Pontiac Transit Company will supply a bus to take the younger members of the group (10 and under) from Bethune, Whittier and Wilson Schools, to The Pontiac Mall to visit Santa Claus.

Buffing Pewter

It's advisable to take a valuable piece of pewter of intricate design to a jeweler for buffing. However, if you are sure the pewter is not coated with silver, rub with a fine steel wool soap-filled pad. Otherwise, use a good silver cleaning cream.

Polly's Pointers

Seeks Carpet Uses

DEAR POLLY — We had some pieces left over after our living room and television room were carpeted. Does anyone have any suggestions for uses for such carpet? — MRS. L.

DEAR POLLY — Sometimes psychology strikes out! I read Mrs. R.J.J.'s Pointer about telling a small boy that you are going to have his hair fixed like daddy's rather than that you are going for a haircut.

I am the official barber for our family. My young son was very hesitant about getting his hair cut and I told him it would be just fine, because we would do it just like daddy's.

That really did it. He cried as though his heart would break but we finally calmed him down enough to find out what was upsetting him. You see, our daddy is bald right down the middle. We are still laughing. — ELAINE

DEAR POLLY — The lady who wanted to remove green scum and water marks from her vases should fill them with white vinegar and let it set for several hours or as long as required to loosen the scum. I buy this vinegar by the gallon.

After such use, pour it through a strainer or piece of cheesecloth and save it in a bottle to use for the next such job or to resoak the vase if it does not come out just right the first time. It can be diluted half-and-half with water.

After the soaking, I wash the vase thoroughly, using a bottle brush or a cloth-wrapped stick. I also think there is nothing like vinegar to make windows shine and use a small amount in the baby's diaper pail, too. — LAURA

DEAR POLLY — I find it most helpful to mount my most-used recipes on the inside of a cupboard door just over the kitchen counter. Cover them with transparent wrap or some other such material to keep them clean and handy. — R.H.

You will receive a dollar if Polly uses your favorite homemaking idea, Polly's Problem or solution to a problem. Write Polly in care of The Pontiac Press, Dept. E-600, P.O. Box 9, Pontiac, Mich. 48056.

Bands, Bows in Stocking Sure to Please

For Christmas, delight a teenager with a wardrobe of bands and bows for her hair. Headbands and lacy flat bows are easy to make from fabric remnants and sewing trims.

For headbands, use any washable cotton like velveteen, corduroy or a vivid print. To make, cut strips of fabric about two inches wide and 12 inches long. Fold the fabric with right sides together and stitch, leaving both ends open. Turn right side out and hem the ends. Then gather them and attach to a strip of elastic.

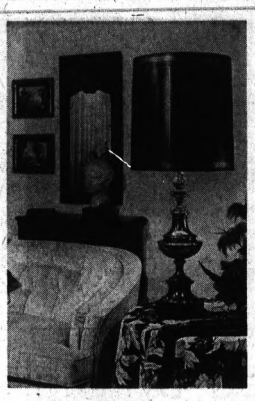

★ ★ ★

For one of the headbands, you might use jumbo cotton rick-rack, stitched to a backing of nonwoven interfacing. Alternate red, white, and blue rick-rack for a colorful effect.

To make flat bows, use wide cotton lace or eyelet bands. Back the material with organdy before you fold it into a bow. Sew to a hair clip, comb, or bobby pin.

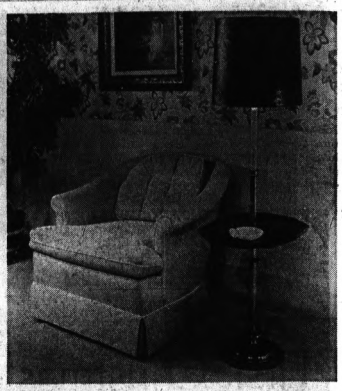

Beef Chicken Favored

Beef and chicken are America's favorite meats, according to a nationwide survey in urban and rural areas by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Lamps with a definite "bloodline" can easily be a decorative addition to the home furnished in a distinctive period or style. At left, the antiqued brass lamp mimics a classical Georgian urn. Its ebony shade features gold band and stripping accents. Rich and rustic England is reflected in the lamp at right, a brass version of a fireman's trumpet. The sturdy campaign desk by Globe Furniture Company completes the masculine setting. Lamps by The Stiffel Company are available locally.

This simple table lamp turns an easy chair into a restful reading area. Pictured is Stiffel's antique-finished lamp with a polygonal wood tray. Available in nut brown or fruitwood finishes, it features a finely molded rim and is available locally.

Napped Fabrics Need Special Gentle Care

Velvet and velveteen require special handling because of their napped surfaces. Velvet is usually made of a silk or synthetic fiber with a cotton back.

Velveteen is really a cotton velvet with a short, thick pile and a dull surface. Both fabrics are popular for evening fashions and at-home wear.

Meg Carter, sewing expert for the McCall Pattern Company suggests you follow the layouts given for napped fabric, placing all the pattern pieces in the same direction.

For rich color, let the nap run up toward your face; for longer wear, run the nap toward the hem.

Use fine pins and silk thread to prevent marring the surface. You can avoid bulk by using chiffon or taffeta for facings. Use a long machine stitch (10-12 per inch), light pressure on the pressure foot and stitch in the direction of the pile.

Velveteen should be steam pressed to prevent matting and flattening the pile. Place the fabric face down on a needle board with a slightly damp press cloth on the wrong side. Hold the steam iron close to the fabric (but not on it) and brush the fabric lightly to distribute the steam. With your fingers, press the seam open and steam it again.

If you do not have a needle board, stand the iron on end and place a wet heavy press cloth over it. Then holding the fabric lightly, draw the wrong side of the fabric across the iron.

For Pattern Companies

Europe Provides Inspiration

Even though getting a pattern through production may take longer than a comparable piece of ready-to-wear, the pattern companies all manage to keep on the fourth floor, it won't be abreast of the latest fashion trends.

When the lady-who-sews falls in love with a piece of garment long 'til she can pick up a pattern for it on the sixth. And how do pattern companies keep up? They really do their homework. And lately, a lot of studying has been done in the boutiques of Paris and London.

★ ★ ★

Head researcher for Vogue-Butterick is design director John Norman, just back with a trunkload of goodies. Since he admits to being brainwashed on the couture, he didn't expect much from his first venture into inexpensive boutique clothes.

To the contrary. "I was hooked on the clothes in my first 24 hours," he chuckled.

★ ★ ★

Most of the items were purchased for design inspiration of some sort . . . especially for items like the prepatterned soutache braid, or the ribbon-fringe-by-the-yard. Others will be copied directly and shortly will find their way into the catalog.

TIME LAG

Since it takes three months to produce a finished pattern, the first ones will appear in the April catalog, which is in the stores by February.

The first batch from this trip consists of a crushed velvet dress, shaped by elasticized smocking, a Dorothy Bis skirt, likewise shaped elastically and a long open vest, fastened at the bust.

Meanwhile, keep an eye open for future additions. It's a good bet the catalogs soon will include such ideas as:

- Darts . . . decorative darts to pull in and shape . . . very fitted shirt dresses . . . the L-shaped Biba dart . . .
- Maxi shirt dresses . . . the London look . . . often partially unbuttoned at the hem . . .
- Cat suits . . . slinky one-piece jumpsuits . . .
- Smocking . . . and elasticized shirring everywhere . . . sleeves, sleeve caps, pants, skirts, dresses . . .
- Ponchos . . . also for evening . . .
- Long vests . . . often with elasticized waistlines . . . watch for undershirt armholes . . .
- Robin Hood look . . . self loops and lacings . . . in both blouses and skirts . . .
- Jumpers . . . the look of Paris . . . often wrapped . . . usually with pockets near the hem and lots of top stitching . . .
- Milkmaid look . . . long, ruffly, romantic and costumy . . . probably will face a lot of adaptation.

Most items were bought with Butterick in mind. Yet several . . . like the drapy pantsuits with the look of the Elegant 1930s, will find their way into the higher priced Vogue.

Also slated for Butterick . . . delightful children's wear from London, including several maxis.

DIFFERENT WAY

Simplicity prefers to note trends and capture the "attitude" and feeling of its purchases, but as the name suggests, with simplicity.

Because Paris and London provided the inspiration for both companies, both trunk shows featured similar merchandise. Simplicity agreed with many of the trends listed above, and in addition, is fond of a few others. Be watching the Simplicity catalog for details like:

- Longer "short" raglan sleeves . . . almost to the elbow . . .
- Assymetric closings . . . on both jumpers and shirt dresses . . .
- Yokes . . . also a lot of Western yoke and tab styling . . .
- Tuxedo collars . . . both double and single breasted . . .
- Buttons . . . tiny . . . and a lot of them . . . lots of buttons on flippy skirts . . .

For this year-of-the-knit, here's a glamour knit that shines with an opalescent shimmer by virtue of the metallic-like Lurex in its weave. Very alluring in a gently shaped evening fashion with a neckline that plunges way down to here! The "belt" is made of two rows of wide "golden" braid with glittery fake stones set into its whorls. Singer fabric; Simplicity pattern.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Miles were married this month after being separated by World War I, 53 years ago. Each has been married twice in the meantime and their previous spouses have died.

Teen-Age Sweethearts Wed in Golden Years

GAINES (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Miles, both 74, celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary Wednesday. Twenty days of marriage, not years.

The newlyweds first met in East Jordan, Mich., in 1916, but World War I intervened and they lost contact for 53 years. They met again this fall and were married Nov. 29.

★ ★ ★

As teen-age sweethearts, the couple wrote many letters to each other when Miles was sent overseas and she remained behind. But neither received the mail from the other because of a change of orders for the young soldier.

Miles originally had been scheduled to go to Archangel, Russia, but the Army sent him to France instead. It was not until after the war ended that the letters turned up in Russia.

When they failed to receive any mail, both thought the other had found someone else. In the ensuing years, both were married twice, surviving the death of their spouses. Miles was a conservation officer until his retirement in 1961; she is a former schoolteacher.

Mrs. Miles has four grown children and Miles one.

From 1917 on, neither of the former sweethearts knew what had happened to the other, but her curiosity got the better of her—and she decided to check. The result: a happy reunion and wedding bells.

"Check Liz Taylor," the bride-to-be told her daughter jokingly after the wedding date was set. She said she wanted to know how to handle her third marriage.

★ ★ ★

The couple have moved into the 153-acre farm where Mrs. Miles has lived since 1920.

"Getting this house into shape will take 10 years work," the bride said. "It takes a man to keep it up."

★ ★ ★

The new Mrs. Miles also said she may have to sign her Christmas cards with her maiden name, plus her married ones, making it read Mrs. Grace White Sill Hunn Miles.

Soap Gains Statusas Beauty Aid

Soap is achieving status in the beauty market. Long scorned by women who insisted that creams were for grownups and soap only for children, it is enjoying a rebirth of support by leading skin specialists and cosmeticians.

Mass audiences are encouraged to try their new beauty regime with frequent washings with soap. Beauty has now come a full sudsy circle; from soap and water to creams and oils, and back to soap and water.

Peg Bracken . . . The author of "The I Hate to Cook Book" credits her success to a simple formula: admitting what other women would like to but can't.

Display Board for Holiday Cards

Give holiday visitors a special greeting by displaying this year's Christmas cards as a framed decoration in the foyer, the Picture and Frame Institute suggests.

* * *

Before the cards start arriving, cut a piece of cardboard to fill a large picture frame. Cover this cardboard with red or green cloth; put the cardboard into the frame, and hang your soon-to-be masterpiece in the entryway. As cards arrive pin them to the cloth backing in arrangements that please you.

Authoress Uses Humor to Tell Housewives' Secrets

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Asking most women to admit they're not tops in the homemaking department is like asking them to admit they've had a face-lift. They may tell their very best friends, but few women are likely to come right out and make a public statement to the effect that their cooking and cleaning leave much to be desired.

Peg Bracken did; witness the titles of her best-sellers: "The I Hate to Cook Book," "The I Hate to Housekeep Book," "I Try to Behave Myself: Peg Bracken's Etiquette Book" and "Peg Bracken's Appendix to The I Hate to Cook Book." Furthermore, she feels that admitting what many other women would have loved to admit but couldn't about such previously reverently treated topics as cooking is responsible for her success as a humorist.

"Humor is almost always serious. What makes the situation funny is that it's so true," says the attractive middle-aged wife, mother and homemaker-writer.

* * *

"For example," explains Miss Bracken, "given a half hour's notice that company is coming, is the average woman going to be able to turn out one of those deluxe dishes displayed in the ladies' magazines — setups that take three women three days to prepare and photograph? No, so why not do what I do? Open a can of corn beef hash, poach an egg and slice some tomatoes. For dessert, there's always a box of chocolates in the house. This meal is okay with me and with my guests and I suspect it's okay with the home economics ladies, too, but they're not about to admit it."

Or take the well-known decorating hangup.

"It's an established fact that many women get all jittery because they aren't sure that their taste is first-class, but they're afraid to say so. I admit that my only real talent is wallpapering but I never pick the right paper — a fact I never discover until the project is finished," says Miss Bracken with a smile.

There was no decorating crisis at her home in Bolinas, Calif., where she lives with her husband, painter-illustrator Parker Edwards and Johanna, 13, her daughter by a previous marriage. It was only natural for her to call in a decorator right at the start.

BROAD TASTES

"Otherwise I'd never have decided on anything. I'm too democratic . . . I like everything from French provincial to Early Man," she quips.

The decorator, "who knew me for a long time and knew what I liked," helped ease her mind and left her more time to devote to her writing. One of the results, her latest book, "I Didn't Come Here to Argue," permits her "to sound off on all those topics I wanted to sound off on before but wasn't able to." In it she tackles every subject from sex and the supermarket to the joys of not being young to her opinions on the feminine mystique.

"I don't go along with ideas for complete equalization of the sexes, except in terms of equal pay for equal work," says the Antioch College graduate. "In fact, I wish women would stop rocking the boat. There's hardly any job we can't get today — though we may be paid less than a man would — and we still have the privilege of being treated with courtesy and gallantry. I know my back muscles are not as strong as my husband's and that makes me kind of special. We women never have had it so good."

Does Miss Bracken have any pet peeves in addition to the 108 (from the 108 sins of Buddha) she itemizes in her latest book? "Yes — two," she says with fire in her eyes. "One is spreading the bathroom over the living room. Have you ever had guests in, turned on the television and watched a very detailed commercial for a feminine deodorant. It's downright embarrassing."

Pet peeve No. 2 is being called clever. Although she delights in combining wit with wisdom to ease the housewife's burden's and even though she's especially proud of the fact that a New York clinic is giving away her books to help newly discharged psychiatric patients cope better with everyday chores, clever to her is a "dirty word."

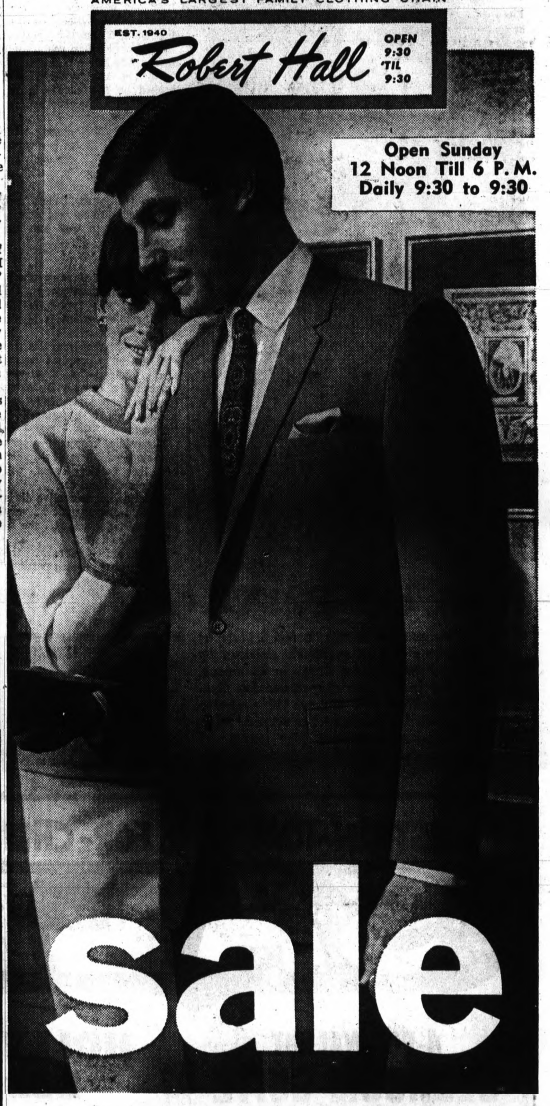

"I don't want people to admire my writing for its double meanings, for its sharp use of words," says the woman who claims she's wanted to be a writer since her childhood days in St. Louis, where her Dad was superintendent of schools.

"I want people to laugh aloud when they read me.

Hears Vows of Daughter, Bridegroom

MRS. PHILIP MENZEL

The Lutheran Church of the Epiphany was the setting for the Saturday afternoon wedding of Martha Jane Hoehner to Lt. Philip Walter Menzel, USA. The bride's father officiated at the ceremony.

A reception in Botsford Inn, Farmington, honored the newlyweds.

★ ★ ★

Peau de soie with lace was chosen by the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hoehner of Orchard Lake for her wedding.

Marianne Rollo and the bridegroom's brother, Lt. Roger A. Menzel, USA, assisted the couple as honor attendants. They are the sons of the Rev. and Mrs. Walter Menzel of Holyoke, Mass.

★ ★ ★

Following a northern Michigan honeymoon, the new Lt. and Mrs. Menzel will reside at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

OCC Official Will Fill Post

Mrs. Cuneign resides at 451 Valencia.

Floor Is Base for Decorating

The foundation of any good decorating scheme is just that . . . its foundation or floor. The type of floor covering you select should be determined by the room's function, amount of traffic, insulation and sound-proofing needs and your personal preference.

With today's miracle fabrics — they don't spot and need very little care — wall-to-wall carpeting can be as practical in the bath or kitchen as it is in other rooms.

Little Mirror Pretty Gift of Handwork

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

There is still time to make little Christmas stocking stuffers and other glamor gifts with which to charm your friends.

Girl friends should appreciate a gift of a wall mirror. These may be made using cardboard, gift wrap, mirrors, glue, packaging tape and gift paper. At a display of their gift wraps, the Norcross design staff showed a number of mirrors — all different shapes and sizes. But you can use the basic instructions to make any shape mirror — star, sunburst, four-leaf clover. The mirrors exhibited were about 7 inches long and wide.

★ ★ ★

You cut three cardboards into identical shapes. Two of these have cut-outs for the mirror. The second cardboard is the one the mirror fits into, the top cardboard is the one that is cut to shape — round, heart, square, and so on. The third cardboard fits over the back.

Cover the front section with gift wrap, allowing one-inch on all sides for overlapping. Tape the mirror securely in place on the second cardboard. Glue the three pieces together.

MATCH PAPER

Cover the entire back piece (the solid one) with matching paper. Glue the one-inch flaps that are left on the sides of the top cardboard to the back of mirror, mitering the corners.

The mirrors may be decorated in a number of ways. You can use lustrous Christmas cord to make the little designs. The designers of the mirrors suggest s-shape or bow designs.

Avon Players

Amateurs Leap to Stage Lure

By JUNE ELERT

A notice of open try-outs for an amateur musical production is roughly equivalent to the call of the wild.

It is an irresistible lure to that segment of the theatrical species who live to act as opposed to the more practical practitioners who act to live.

JUNE

Bunches of believers in the maxim that "Concealed talent brings no reputation," turned up at Avon Playhouse on a recent evening to try out for the March-scheduled production of "My Fair Lady."

The hopefuls ranged in age from the teens through the 50s. Among the chorus contenders were some whose knowledge of their own limitations preclude them from seeking larger roles. These are limitations not necessarily of talent but may be equally of suitability to the available roles.

Eliza, for instance, the only major female singing part, is required to be believably 20ish.

Some were younger folk anxious to get a start — but shy! They hung back, dreading to sing first — or alone—wanting to hear others, probably as a basis for calculating their own chances.

★ ★ ★

By twos, eventually they plunged glassily into "A Little Bit o' Luck," dissolving occasionally into blushes and confusion at strangled high notes or lost places in the score. Their turn over, they shrank willingly into invisibility. It was unnecessary for the spectators were already trekking to the stage hoping to be selected for larger roles.

There is no troublesome shyness here. Polite competitiveness, good sportsmanship, casual acceptance of the routine overlay quiet determination, tense watchfulness, eager desire and sure confidence.

None of the bevy of would-be Elizas could be faulted for voice quality. Each tried to be more "Loverly" than the one before. Some depended totally on vocal beauty without attempting to muck it up with acting.

THE SURE ONES

Others moved freely about the stage making full use of body movement, facial expression, shadings of tone and volume and an occasional remembered deference to Eliza's Cockney beginnings.

'enry 'iggins and Doolittle also 'ad their interpreters and "Al, Sal, the director's goin' to 'ave a job of it, ain't she?"

Director Adele Carraher's staff will notify each candidate of his acceptance or rejection within the next few days.

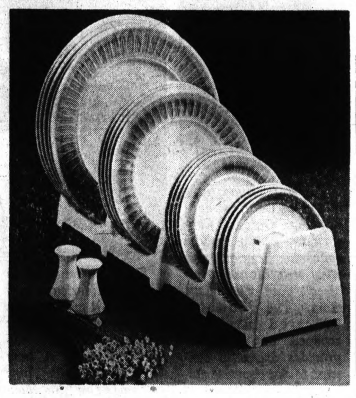

★

The fortunate ones will obligate themselves to a strenuous two-month period of rehearsals, two or three evenings a week and some Sundays. Lives will be rearranged; every spare moment will be devoted to learning lines and perfecting delivery.

All of this will lead to a hectic three weeks of performances, totalling 14, including one matinee.

★ ★ ★

And the reward for all this? There is none — unless you consider the applause, the inner feeling of accomplishment, the savor of pride, the glow of worth, the fun, the swell of ego, the comradeship, and the love — of people, performing and "The Play."

A new plate rack from Rubbermaid provides a convenient filing system for platters and plates. Dishes can be stored in easy-to-reach cupboards instead of in high, unsafe stacks. The styrene rack is sectioned to hold various sized plates. Ridges separate plate edges to prevent chipping. It is available in the housewares section of department and hardware stores.

Christmas Is For the Children

Along with the jingle on Santa's sleigh and the promise of Dancer, Prancer and Vixen, little people should take delight in this season's crop of holiday fashions, filled to the brim with yuletide spirit. Holly red and white are everywhere, while embroidery trim, big floppy bows, Christmas stars and candy stripes herald a whirl of festivities for excited little misses.

* * *

For an at-home, trim-the-tree party, Kate Greenaway offers an irresistible red and white candy stripe dress with white sailor collar and cuffs, and a long streamered navy bow. The dress is one currently being featured in stores across the country as part of the Young Fashionables holiday collection in party-proof fabrics with Eastman Kodel polyester, destined for the washer-dryer, one and all.

A dress that's perfect for playing hostess on Christmas day is a Scandinavian style white sheer dress by Johnston in an airy voile of Kodel and cotton, accented with bright berry red. The full gathered skirt is Schiffli embroidered in red to match a simulated weskit top.

For a round of holiday partying, Cinderella gets inspiration from the 30's for a low waisted dress whose flippy circle skirt is red and white polka dot, topped by a solid cherry red bodice, with long, full sleeves, and floppy polka dot bow at the neck.

As with grown-up fashion these days, there is no clear cut message to be gotten from the many festive young designs slated for holiday merrymaking. Considering all the fresh, feminine little-girl good looks around, what may be her holiday dress in December, could well be her favorite party dress all next spring!

Bright and gay wallpaper print A-line overblouse and pink check flared pants by Nannekins. In cotton canvas.

Ready for a holiday cruise in his nifty six button double breasted seersucker jacket worn with flared pants in navy poplin. At his neck a fashionable polka dot ascot. By Nannekins.

Beautiful Babe frock by Nannette. The flocked dot high yoke dress has white batiste lace-edged popover trimmed with bird motif.

For starry-eyed little misses to wear on holiday . . . Dale of California's sunny yellow sailcloth jumper and navy voile blouse printed all over with giant stars. The double-breasted jumper's scooped out neckline provides dramatic contrast to the oversize collar on the peasant-sleeved blouse. Both, in blends of Eastman Kodel polyester and cotton.

Kate Greenaway puts a bit of Americana into a little girl fashion with snappy red and white stripes, pert sailor collar and cuffs. A long streamered navy bow completes the look, created in a Crantex burn-out batiste of Eastman Kodel polyester and cotton.

Will-O-Way Sets Play for Holidays

The near-classic musical "Carnival" has been scheduled as the mid-winter special holiday show at Will-O-Way Theatre. It is the melodic and sentimental story of a young girl, Lili, who learns about life and love from the puppets in a traveling carnival, and from the puppeteer.

* * *

"Carnival" replaces "Little Women," announced earlier as the holiday offering. The musical, with music and lyrics by Bob Merrill and book by Michael Stewart, features a melodic score highlighted by the familiar numbers "Love Makes the World Go 'Round" and "Hi Lili!"

* * *

In the leading role of Lili is Sharon Maher, who earlier in the season gained critical approval for her singing lead in "The Apple Tree." Opposite her, as Paul the puppeteer, is Jon Tanner. Major supporting roles are played by Ginna Parsons, Bill Tidd, Gary Graham, Pam Buchanan, Ron Wresinski and Martin Colbeck. The cast also features a number of talented youngsters and a number of 'performing' animals.

* * *

Meanwhile the regular repertory season continues at Will-O-Way, with "The Apple Tree" Dec. 30, 31, Jan. 1.

Louisa May Alcott's little women would have felt at home in today's youthful fashions as interpreted by Siro Fashions in this little dress bibbed in white and trimmed with braid, of Crompton's black rayon velvet.

Johnston opts for Scandinavian charm for some lucky young lady's Christmas dress. Lace and colorful embroidery decorate the dirndl-skirt peasant style, with a simulated weskit accenting its high waitline. In Loomtex's soft, sheer voile of Eastman Kodel polyester and cotton.

Treat Sheet for Safety

Are you planning to put a cotton sheet under your Christmas tree this year? If so, why not make it flame retardant to increase the safety in your home during the Holiday Season! The following recipe can also be used with such items as curtains, draperies and potholders.

DISSOLVE
7 ounces of borax and
3 ounces of boric acid in
2 quarts of hot water.

Wet the items completely and then dry by any method. The items will be flame resistant until washed again.

Towels Choice for Person Who Has Everything

If there are people on your gift list who have you stumped, remember that no one can have enough pretty towels in thick 'n' thirsty cotton. New styles will turn any bath into a decorator's delight.

* * *

For instance, a bouquet of larger-than-life tulips is printed on plush terry velour in one new towel line. The tulips are red, lavender, and purple, surrounded by green leaves and set on a white ground. Towels have a grass green border trimmed with deep fringe.

* * *

The tailored type on your Christmas list might prefer another new towel style that's patterned with thin pencil stripes. Towels come in rich colors like rose red striped in maroon, and navy blue striped in green.

'Doc' Wertheimer Checks A Fingerprint

Doctor of Philosophy Is Rookie Patrolman

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Roger Wertheimer got his doctorate degree from Harvard in moral philosophy. That was last June. Now he'll be the doc on the beat in Portland, Ore.)

By KERNAN TURNER

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Roger Wertheimer, a moral philosopher, is a rookie patrolman for the Multnomah County sheriff's office.

He has a bachelor's degree from Brandeis University and received his doctorate last June from Harvard, where he was a teaching fellow for four years.

★ ★ ★

His dissertation, on the utility of semantics for moral philosophy, won the annual award as the best in the Harvard Philosophy department.

"The idea to become a police officer occurred to me last spring," Wertheimer says. That was when he was a lecturer in philosophy at Portland State University.

NOT INCOMPATIBLE

"I don't see my work being incompatible with my background," he says. "I fully intend to continue writing moral philosophy. I hope that this job will provide me with insight into human responses in extreme situations."

Wertheimer, originally from Buffalo, N.Y., is 27, married and has a child. His wife is vice principal in charge of guidance at John Adams High School in Portland.

★ ★ ★

Civil Service rules required that Wertheimer begin work at the lowest job classification.

Patrolmen receive $605 a month to start and $805 after five years.

★ ★ ★

Wertheimer, a man of medium height and athletic physique, will begin recruit training in February, then go on patrol. Meanwhile he is receiving orientation in each unit of the department.

NORMAL COURSE

"I expect to go through the normal course for a deputy sheriff. A lot of things a patrolman does interest me and are tasks that would try the intelligence of any man.

"It would require a great deal of good judgment, for instance, to deal with a family squabble between a drunken couple.

"The most efficient is generally not the most humane solution, especially since the policeman's alternatives are limited by law, training and time. It becomes a very complex problem.

"The regulation of conduct by society and government has steadily increased for 200 years. The growth in size and powers of police forces in the last century is symptomatic of this. The police have gradually become the real interpreters and implementers of official and unofficial public policy on an increasingly wide range of vital issues."

HAS BEEN FELLOW

Sheriff James C. Holzman, who doesn't have a degree but has been a university fellow, says Wertheimer's first assignment is to suggest revisions in the department manual.

"He comes with a completely new viewpoint," the sheriff says. "It adds vitality to our department to have the advantage of new, objective examination of our operation."

★ ★ ★

The sheriff says he sees nothing wrong with hiring a man with a degree outside law enforcement and then handing him the manual for revision.

"It is a good thing to have a reexamination of policies, goals, procedures and concepts themselves. Someone who can bring a well-developed intellectual interest to bear upon new material has the advantage of objectivity.

★ ★ ★

"We're not asking him to tell us the proper procedure for stopping a holdup man, for instance, but we will ask him to review the concepts that underly the procedures."

Marriage Isn't Shot, Wife Says

LONDON (AP) — Mrs. Arthur Robinson told the judge who sentenced her husband of 21 years that she wanted to make a fresh start with him when he got out of jail.

Robinson was given six years for trying to hire a man to murder her.

Family Services in County Told of New Urban Efforts

Stepped-up efforts to help solve certain aspects of the urban crisis related to destruction of family life were reported at a recent board and staff meeting of Family Services of Oakland County.

Family services, a Pontiac United Fund organization, provides counseling service on personal-adjustment problems, marital problems, and problems involving the aged, adolescents, and child-parent relationships.

* * *

"The socioeconomic characteristics of Oakland County are a cross-section of those belonging to the nation," said Robert J. Janes, executive director of Family Services of Oakland County.

"Oakland County has its wealth, its middle class, its very poor and concentrations of disadvantaged minority groups, such as black and brown people," he added.

BASED ON REPORT

His remarks were prompted by a report published by the Family Service Association of America entitled "The Family Agency and the Urban Crisis," which describes some of the social ills that exist in America today.

The report documents how low-income families throughout the country suffer from an array of preventable and remedial ailments.

* * *

Janes said Family Services of Oakland County's emphasis in recent years has been to the low and marginal —income families as well as to minority groups.

"Much more has to be done yet," he added, "we have only begun to develop programs, but with the support of the community, we hope to develop many more."

Janes said the agency has been active in serving families who fall under the federal guidelines for poverty, through a contract with the Oakland County Commission on Economic Opportunity, and has been reaching the scattered populations of the county which are poor to provide counseling and discussion groups that enable families to live more productive lives.

Family Service of Oakland County is a member agency of Family Service Association of America, the accrediting organization for more than 340 family and marriage counseling agencies throughout the United States and Canada.

WARM WELCOME—Penn State football players receive bags of oranges from sarong-clad girls as the team arrived Tuesday in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The team started training this week for its game in the Orange Bowl at Miami Jan. 1 against Missouri.

Daily Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Thursday, Dec. 18, the 352nd day of 1969 with 13 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase.

The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1787, New Jersey ratified the proposed Constitution of the United States.

In 1865, the 13th Amendment to the Constitution which abolished slavery in the United States, became law.

In 1915, President Woodrow Wilson, then a widower for more than a year, married Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt, widow of a Washington jeweler.

Hungary Plans to Open Computer-Mate Agency

VIENNA (AP) — A bureau to encourage marriages will be opened soon in Hungary. Up to now, the Communist states have frowned on such endeavors as bourgeois.

Even before its opening the Hungarian bureau, called Four Seasons, has received thousands of applications from persons who want to find suitable partners with the help of the bureau's computerized operation.

* * *

The newspaper Magyarorszag —Hungary—says the bureau was conceived by sociologist Pal Loecsei after a lengthy study of the problems of lonely persons.

An applicant will have to answer personal questions and among other things state his sexual experience, if any. After he talks with a psychiatrist or sociologist, the information will be transferred to a data-processing card. A computer will then be used to find a suitable partner.

SLIDING FEES

Fees will be adjusted according to incomes.

Government authorities at first seemed not to care for the idea at all, then said the service should be given on a cost-free basis. They finally agreed to it but said the government would not give financial support.

* * *

Magyarorszag reported 160,000 widowed persons in Budapest. To this it added 80,000 divorced persons and 80,000 more still unmarried at the age of 34.

The computer will only select a suitable partner. Everything thereafter is the concern of the two who are introduced.

Probation Set for Area Man in Road Death

A Lyon Township man was placed on one-year probation yesterday in connection with a traffic death of a 19-year-old Howell youth in November 1968.

Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer ordered the probation for George V. Gravelle Sr., 36, of 51460 Pontiac Trail.

Gravelle had pleaded guilty last March to negligent homicide in the death of Douglas Werner. Gravelle had fallen asleep at the wheel and went off the roadway of I-96 near Wixom and struck Werner's stalled car.

Judge Beer had delayed the sentencing since April. The delayed sentencing allowed Beer to review Gravelle's conduct during that time.

'Man' Is Topic of OCC Series

"All the World's a Stage," a five-part discussion and film series on man, will be held at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus, Jan. 6 through Feb. 3 at 8 p.m.

The discussions, to be led by Rev. J. Harold Ellens of University Hills Church in Farmington, are cosponsored by OCC, University Hills Church and the Farmington Community Arts Council.

* * *

Among the people depicted in the films and the dates of the programs are: Jan. 13, "Portrait of Lenin"; Jan. 20, "Rimski-Korsakov"; Jan. 27, "The Life of Adolf Hitler"; Feb. 3, "John F. Kennedy" and "Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

"All Quiet on the Western Front" is scheduled for Jan. 6.

Registration for the series is $5. Admission for individual discussions is $1.50. Further information is available from the OCC Community Services Division.

Supervisor Dies

JACKSON (AP)—John E. Elwood, 56, a ranking member of the Jackson County Board of Supervisors, died Wednesday. In addition to his work as a supervisor and an insurance agent, Elwood made a hobby of the career of Bing Crosby and hosted what the trade magazine Billboard called "the longest-running disc jockey show on radio devoted to a single artist" on Jackson station WIBM.

2 Waterford Policemen Cited as Officers of Year

Carl Solden, 1678 Tull Court, Waterford Township, has been named officer of the year by the Waterford Township Police Department.

Chosen as reserve officer of the year was Nelson Gelinas, 5815 Crescent, Waterford Township.

* * *

Solden, 28, has been with the Waterford Township Police Department for five years. He is a 1959 graduate of Waterford Township High School. In addition to basic police school, Solden has taken short courses at Oakland University and Michigan State University.

He and his wife, Bonnie, have four sons.

ID BUREAUS

Gelinas, 31, has been with the Waterford Police Department one year. He formerly worked in the identification bureaus of the Shiawassee County Sheriff and the Michigan State Police.

He and his wife, Cecile, have four children.

* * *

Both men were chosen on the basis of the quality of their work, contributions to the community, dependability, and cooperation with others.

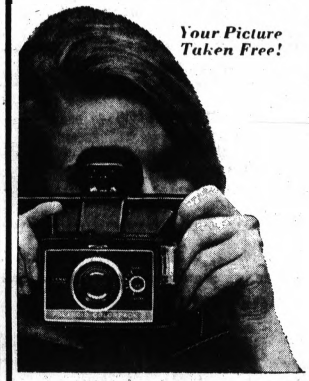

OFFICERS HONORED — Nelson Gelinas (left) has been named reserve officer of the year by the Waterford Township Police Department. Carl Solden (right) was named officer of the year. Solden has been with the force for five years, while Gelinas has served one year.

This is the new Polaroid super camera, the Model 360. It can do things no other camera in the world can do. Its clip-on electronic flash lets you take super-action shots at about 1/1000th of a second. You never have to buy another flashbulb. An automatic electronic timer tells you when your pictures are developed.
The most remarkable camera in the world—even if it didn't produce finished color photos in a minute, black and white in seconds. Come in and let us demonstrate it for you.

POLAROID WITH ELECTRONIC SHUTTER
39.87
Reg. 48.77 Discount Price

The Model 320 Electronic shutter and electric eye automatically set correct exposure, make flash pictures as perfectly as pictures in daylight. Dual image, non-folding coupled range and viewfinder. Big 3¼"x4¼" pictures. Color pictures in one minute, black and white in seconds. The least expensive folding model in the new Polaroid Land camera line. Lightweight, high-impact plastic body. Detachable camera cover and carrying straps.

MODEL 340 POLAROID

POLAROID COLORPAK CAMERA
Regular 79.88 Kmart Discount Price
67.88

The Model 340 is the most versatile Color Pack Camera ever sold. Like the less expensive Automatics, it has a plastic body — but it incorporates most of the deluxe features of the higher priced models. Besides producing finished color pictures in a minute or black and white shots in seconds, its accessory capability is greater than that of the less expensive models, allowing you to take portraits and close-ups in color or black and white with the accessory attachments.

THANK YOU, SANTA — Santa is pretty busy these days at the Pontiac Mall, giving out candy to hundreds of children who daily visit him during store hours. Carl Dixon (left), 4, of 184 Wall, his sister, Katrina, 3, and brother Gerald, 8, tell him what they want for Christmas this year.

Sheriff Set to Start New Pigeon Shoot

BRAWLEY, Calif. (AP) — Pigeons are back in and around Brawley, and Sheriff C. E. Ritzenthaler says he is ready to deputize citizens once again to bring 'em down with shotguns.

Ritzenthaler pinned deputy badges on six members of the Brawley Skeet and Trap Shooting Club in the fall of 1968.

* * *

The men who shoot clay pigeons for fun "must have got 1,000 on three Sundays," says Ritzenthaler.

"They hit 'em flying from buildings and almost never missed," he added.

* * *

The sheriff says there's no danger to residents of this Southern California city of 15,000 because the target shooters are to accurate — and the hunt is staged only at times when the business district offices and stores are closed.

The pigeons are lured by lush grain fields around the town.

Curb Announced, but Unenforced

Exit Clear for Poland's Jews

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Jews appear to be still receiving exit papers despite a government announcement in June that stricter emigration procedures for them would go into effect Sept. 1.

More than 10,000 Jews are believed to have left since Poland severed diplomatic relations with Israel in June 1967 because of the Middle East war.

A rush of about 1,000 departures a month in recent months is attributed to the announced intention to end relaxed procedures and bring them in line with a stricter general standard.

Processing is usually a two- to three-month affair, but those who have held sensitive posts in the government or army are required to wait a year or two.

WARNING BY RED

In 1967 the country's 25,000 to 30,000 Jews were warned by Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka against becoming a "fifth column." They were told they could leave Poland if they wished.

There were few departures in the beginning. Then student demonstrations in March 1968 were followed by widespread job dismissals and what the Jews regarded as an anti-Semitic campaign. Many Jews began leaving Poland thereafter.

* * *

One who remained says about 80 per cent of his Jewish friends are gone.

There have been no official explanations given for the deadline announcement and why it was not carried out. At any rate it prompted thousands of undecided Jews to quit the country. They must give up their Polish citizenship. And must state on their applications they are emigrating because they are Jewish, because they want to go to Israel or because they are Zionists.

SUITS THREATENED

Westerners have heard of a few cases where Jews planning to leave were threatened with suits over alleged debts. They were forced to settle out of court in order to meet their departure schedule.

Each emigrant is allowed to take out no more than $5. Once in the West, they are provided for by Jewish agencies or relatives.

Poland's shrinking Jewish population is the remainder of a once—thriving prewar community of 3½ million persons, virtually wiped out by the Nazis.

Sleeping on Job Reduces Laundry

Formosan Election Saturday Is Rarity

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — "You see that policeman? Where did he get his club? We gave it to him; we, the people. And we can tell him what to do with it."

That might not be considered radical talk elsewhere, but it sounds strange in an election campaign in Formosa. Authority is seldom questioned here.

★ ★ ★

The election Saturday will be to name 32 new Formosa members for the Yuan, or parliament, and the National Assembly, the electoral college. It will be the first election to these two bodies since 1947, and will fill seats vacated by the death of Formosan representatives and new seats allowing for increases in Formosa's population since 1947.

No similar elections have been held since then, a government publication explains, "as a result of the Communist rebellion and the government's removal to Taiwan."

RETURN TO MAINLAND

Until recently, the government's position was that elections to national bodies could not be held until all Chinese could participate—that is, until after the long-promised return to the mainland. As a result, Formosa has been ruled since 1949 by a parliament only 1.8 per cent of which is Formosan.

It's as if an American government in exile on Hawaii had decided to permit the election of new Hawaiian congressmen after a 20-year lapse, while leaving in their seats the surviving representatives of 49 other states elected in 1947.

After the election Formosa's representation in the National Assembly will rise to 2.5 per cent from 1.3 while membership in the legislative Yuan will rise to 4.2 per cent.

"There will be no change in the political situation," says an official.

IMPORTANT FACTOR

What is important is that the elections are being held at all.

Some point to the extensive economic power of the Formosans and say the party felt it had to hold elections to help insure the islanders' loyalty to the government.

★ ★ ★

Others feel the party sincerely wishes to give young Formosans a part in political life. The youngest members of the National Assembly today are the middle-aged sons of Mongol chiefs sent to the then National-ist capital of Nanking by their fathers in 1948.

Knowledgeable politicians say President Chiang Kai-shek has wanted to hold elections for two years, largely to contrast the image of a prosperous and democratic Formosa to conditions on the mainland.

DELAYS RESULT

But the party bureaucrats, one observer said, "would just as soon not have to go through this election business." They kept coming up with delays.

But in his 1969 New Year's message Chiang called for elections "before the year is out." The party bureaucrats had little choice but to comply.

★ ★ ★

They also had little choice but to permit more free speech than usual.

The party and government came in for criticism after November's city council elections because of tight controls over candidates' speeches and publicity. The Kuomintang party had been anxious to insure a favorable outcome for the elections after a serious big city defeat in 1964. All its 43 candidates won in November.

LITTLE VARIANCE

The results may be about the same this time, but independent candidates are making the most of their day in the sun.

A candidate in Taipei has called for an end to the government's right to hold persons without charge, for a Formosan vice president and police chief, and for an elected provincial governor. He has also repeatedly demanded punishment for "those who have delayed the counterattack against the mainland."

A flamboyant candidate in south Formosa has drawn none too subtle analogies between Formosa and Rhodesia—both, he suggests, ruled by a foreign minority. This plea pleases those Formosans who feel their government is dominated by mainlanders who have ruled with a strong hand here for the last two decades.

The crowds respond to all this with chuckles, nods and occasional applause.

"Why get excited?" said one onlooker at a recent rally. "It won't make much difference anyway."

"I don't think anything will really change as a result of the elections," a well-informed independent Formosan politician says.

"But we'll get a few more seats, and who knows? At least its a place to start."

Individualistic Poles Give Fits to Red Rulers

WARSAW (AP) — Among the many political jokes making the rounds in Poland is one which casts Wladyslaw Gomulka in a telephone conversation with Mao Tse-tung.

"Tell me," says the Polish party leader, "how many reactionaries do you have in the Chinese People's Republic?"

* * *

"About 32 million," Mao replies.

To which Gomulka says: "About the same as in Poland. I see." The point is that Communist Poland's 32 million citizens are largely non-Communist. They are by heritage a peasant people—individualistic, hard-drinking, life-loving. Their nature has caused many problems to the Red rulers who forged a war-ravaged, basically agricultural nation into an industrialized state.

* * *

Poland went Communist when the Soviet army liberated it from a nightmarish Nazi occupation. Stalin's troops, supported by secret police and Polish Communists, then eliminated the opposition of the predominantly anti-Moscow underground army.

* * *

With the Soviet Union on one side and East Germany on the other, Poland is corralled in the Moscow camp. "For better or for worse," Gomulka said in a speech last year.

NO HOPE

Even ordinary Poles, whose affections clearly lie with the West, see no hope for another political system under present conditions.

* * *

Outside official circles it is rare to hear a kind word about either of Poland's neighbors because German and Russian rulers bullied and bloodied the nation for 200 years.

* * *

In 1956, Gomulka emerged from Communist disgrace and arrest to ride an anti-Stalinist reform wave to the party leadership.

* * *

Cultural and press freedom flowered briefly, as in Czechoslovakia in 1968, but was smothered as Gomulka strengthened his position. He moves between the hard and reform wings of the party, but the popularity he enjoyed 13 years ago appears to have disappeared, amon low-wae earners as well as with a disappointed intelligensia.

PARTY MEMBERSHIP

The communism which exists under Gomulka embraces some Soviet-style controls but disregards others. The party boasts of an increased rank and file—1½ million in 1948 and 2 million 20 years later—but the proportion to population has remained static at just over 6 per cent.

Poland is one of the youngest countries in the world. Forty-five per cent of the people were born after the war. A look at this youth is enough to confirm the existence of mass affection for the West.

* * *

Boys cavort in Polish-made or imported blue jeans. City girls wear miniskirts that match the West's in brevity. The state slip-making industry was not able to keep pace.

Western and domestic pop music is heard all over Poland.

OFFICIAL APPROVAL

Jazz has official approval, and once a year prominent Western musicians are engaged to perform in the Warsaw Jazz Jamboree.

Many Poles have a brother in Hamtramck, an aunt in London or a cousin in Sydney.

* * *

Despite off-and-on government harassment and taxation controls, Poland has a flourishing colony of private entrepreneurs who run small businesses and truck farms and rank among the wealthiest citizens.

Of every 13 restaurants one is private. There are 160,000 private tradesmen and 110,000 privately owned small factories or plants.

POOR OUTPUT

Collectivization of agriculture, tried during the Stalinist period, resulted in poor output. In 1956 private land ownership was restored by Gomulka and today comprises about 85 per cent of arable land.

Agriculture has a manpower shortage, but there is wasteful overemployment in most of the state economy, a situation caused by the Communist taboo against unemployment and the influx of workers born in the postwar baby boom.

* * *

As nowhere else in the Communist world, this country has a powerful and vocal Roman Catholic Church whose leaders often criticize the regime's religious policies.

Many Communists go to church and admit it.

MANY CARS

The number of privately owned cars has increased dynamically—from 20,500 in 1955 to 345,000 in 1968. There are about 2.7 million registered vehicles, including 1.7 million motorcycles. Still, an automobile is just a dream for most people.

A worker earns on the average 2,300 zlotys a month; in many cases his wife works too. The cheapest Polish-made car, the two-stroke Syrena, costs 74,000 zlotys. Rents and food are cheap and medical care is free.

Offcially 24 zlotys equal $1.

PER CAPITA INCOME

Officials place per capita income at about the equivalent of $800 a year and admit it is one of the lowest among Communist nations.

A 1966 survey of 3,397 families revealed that one-half the households had no bathrooms and gas installations. Eighty per cent of the families had radios, and many Poles tune in Polish-language news broadcasts beamed from the West.

* * *

Every third family has a television. A good model costs four to six months pay.

Vodka is the national drink and also a national problem.

Cheese Project

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A three-man mobile cheese-making unit sponsored by dairy experts of the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) is roaming Lebanon's rugged back country to help Bedouin tribesmen make goat cheese on the spot and take it to far-off villages and city markets.

Bridge Tricks From Jacobys

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

Some declarers rush to play to the first couple of tricks. Sometimes this does not hurt. Many other times a little early though would have saved a headache later.

South was one of the early thinkers, and a slow one. He looked over dummy for a long time and finallly let the queen of clubs hold the first trick. He won the second club and promptly led a spade to his ace.

Most defenders sit around and woolgather while declarer goes into an early huddle. Woolgathering may be fine if you are in the sheep business. It is a losing proposition at the bridge table.

★ ★ ★

West knew this and had been thinking along with South. West's thoughts had not been happy ones. He was pretty sure that South would hold the ace of spades and would go after the spade suit by leading a spade to his ace (if he held it), and a second spade toward dummy and West could see that he would be helpless against that attack.

That is, he would be helpless if he followed to the first spade with the ten or jack, but West had worked out a saving falsecard.

When South played his ace of spades West simply dropped the king. Now South went into a real huddle. Spades weren't going to break because no one would drop the king if he didn't have to. South tried a heart finesse.

Then he tried to get a 3-3 break in one of the red suits. The one thing he did not try was a spade continuation. So South wound up with just eight tricks instead of the 10 he would have made by keeping on with the spades.

Junior Editors Quiz on MOLECULES

QUESTION: How does water stay inside a glass or spoon even when it is higher than the edges of the glass or spoon?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: You should certainly try the interesting experiment the young folks are making. Look closely at a spoonful of water to see the rounding up effect above the edge where the water joins the spoon. To do this, be sure to pick up enough water in your spoon. By rocking the spoon gently, you can see the water pile up to the side or end and yet not spill off.

The explanation of this is the principle called surface tension. When a liquid lies with a flat open surface, the force called cohesion makes the minute molecules at or close to the surface attract each other.

In the lower diagram, we have symbolized these molecules as molecule men who are trying to stay together by locking arms. The force of the surface tension is slight and can be easily overcome.

But in the case of the water in the spoon, this tension is enough to hold some extra water on top of that which fills the spoon level, without this extra water spilling over. Just as the pull of surface molecules on water tends to round the surface, this same force makes a soap bubble round.

For Friday

MENU TIP: Lunar position indicates most prefer hearty-type meals tonight. BRAGOLE is suggested dish.

★ ★ ★

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Conclusion of transaction today makes you feel like celebrating tonight. Money gain indicated. You add to possessions. People seem to like your product — and you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cycle is high; you can make successful appointments, take initiative and move ahead via original methods. Develop your own style. Lead rather than follow.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Best to remain behind the scenes. You can get more done if you act in unobtrusive manner. This does not mean you have to be shrinking violet. But it does mean bide your time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can have fun, but don't think rules are for everyone but you. Time your moves, everyone but you. Time your moves. Confide in friends. One contact leads to another — you make valuable discoveries.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Dreams are fine; so are illusions. But don't confuse them with reality. Today you get the story which has a solid base. You are able to elevate yourself — if that is your desire.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on journeys, completion of mission. Many today may seem to lack sense of humor. Don't push your luck. Be clear in explanations. You can go far — road is smooth if you are calm.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Examine various possibilities. Air of mystery seems to prevail. Don't fear the unknown. Dig deep for information. What you find could prove profitable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on permanent relationships. If single, you could be with that special person. If married, you could rediscover excitement of being with mate. Be dynamic. Turn on charm.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You learn things about yourself. Some hard core of inner wisdom surfaces. Heed intuitive intellect. Special emphasis on work, health, basic chores. Streamline your methods.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Good lunar aspect today coincides with love, creative expression, satisfaction gained through children. Be expansive — both in attitude and actions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Details which had been neglected come to fore. Attend to basic issues. Question of sale or purchase of property could arise. Be sure papers are in order. Avoid tendency to rush.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Ideas abound. Key is to communicate them. Commit thoughts to paper. Embellish plans. You can achieve much if there is method to your efforts. Realize this; and act accordingly.

IF FRIDAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are independent, original; many feel you break numerous rules, traditions. But your success depends on confidence in your own ideas. What was recently started begins to develop in favorable manner.

Fears of Violence Cloud Yule in Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, (AP) — Christmas for the Nellins family, who are Roman Catholics, will be spent in a two-room wooden hut amid a sea of mud.

Christmas for three generations of the Graham family, on the Protestant side of Belfast's barbed wire "peace line," will be much more in the family tradition.

* * *

For both the Nellinses and the Grahams, however, as for most of Northern Ireland's 1½ million people, the festival will be clouded by fear that more communal violence may not be far away. In the past year more than 20 were killed and hundreds wounded, and each side blames the other.

Trouble started last summer for George Nellins and his young wife and five children. They lived then in a three-bedroom house on Lisburn Road, a mainly Protestant area in Belfast's southern suburbs.

BOILING UP

Belfast had long been boiling up toward one of the clashes which have erupted here every generation or so for two centuries. In August it came to a head.

Nellins, a merchant seaman, was home on leave when the threatening letters started arriving—"Get out or be burned out," or "Get back to your own," meaning get back to a Catholic district.

* * *

"Until then we'd always got on fine with the neighbors," he says. "It wasn't them that did the threatenng. It was people from outside.

He decided to move his wife and the children, 1 to 7 years old, to his mother-in-law's house in a mixed area dividing the Protestant stronghold of Sandy Row from the Catholic Falls Road area. Again threatening letters started.

DECIDE TO QUIT

Again they decided to quit. Now, with more than 100 families with similar histories, they live at Beechmount, a mud-stream building site dotted with huts and trailer homes. The Nellins home is a hut of the kind nomally used on building sites for temporary offices.

Hilda Nellins fetches water from a faucet 50 yards away. Mobile latrines and washrooms stand across the road. She cooks on a bottled gas stove.

* * *

Their old house of Lisburn Road still is standing, unlike hundreds which were burned out by gasoline bombs as soon as the occupants fled. But the Nellinses won't go back.

"As soon as we left they lobbed everyting worth taking and smashed the rest," George Nellins says.

"They took all my clothes, all my seaman's gear. We were left with nothing."

MOTHER DIES

Hilda's mother died two weeks ago from a heart attack. She was 50. The family put it down to the strain of the past few months.

George Nellins says he has received not a penny from various relief funds set up after the fighting, but got $192 from the government relief agency. This bought new clothng and paid a deposit for new furniture.

* * *

Nellins says he is not too worried about his housing conditions, mainly because he can see something is being done to improve them. Of the 1,300 families displaced in the rioting, all but 300 have found perma-nent homes. Prefabricated houses are being shipped from Britain.

His main worry is that he can't get back to work. While at sea he sent his wife $36 a week and she drew $9.36 in government children's allowances.

AP Wirephoto

RELOCATED—George Nellins of Belfast, Northern Ireland, holds his son Gary, 1, outside their two-room wooden home in Belfast. Like many others, the Nellinses are living in temporary quarters following the destruction of their home during the Belfast riots.

UNEMPLOYMENT PAY

Every six months or so Nellins would arrive on leave with the traditional seaman's bankroll in his pocket and presents for the kids.

Now the family draws $36.60 in unemployment pay and children's allowances together, and the father is at home to be fed.

* * *

"It's just not possible to leave the wife and kids in these circumstances," Nellins says, "and everybody says the real trouble is still to come. Nobody wants it but everybody expects it."

Letitia Graham, a lively grandmother living in Warkworth Street right by the barbed wire and steel shuttering of the army's peace line, says much the same thing: "The trouble hasn't started yet."

Mrs. Graham, wife of a retired locomotive fitter, has lived 40 years in the red-brick streets on the Protestant side of west Belfast.

With a married daughter and five grandchildren round the corner, and a married grandchild two minutes' walk away, Mrs. Graham wouldn't like to move.

* * *

She looks back to the August fighting with some disbelief.

"In 40 years I'd seen nothing like it," she says.

"They (the Catholics) came up from the Falls shouting and yelling and throwing bricks. And we'd had Catholic families living in the street for years without a word being said."

* * *

Now life for the Grahams goes on much as before, except that Catholic neighbors have retreated beyond the wire, and soldiers with guns keep watch.

PROUD PROTESTANTS

Mrs. Graham's family is about as Protestant as you can get. She and Thomas Graham married 49 years ago on July 12, the festival commemorating William of Orange's victory over the Irish Catholics three centuries ago.

* * *

He is proud of his 50-year membership of the Orange Order, the Protestant Freemasonry. Every Sunday the womenfolk go to the Rev. Ian Paisley's Free Presbyterian Church across the Lagan River.

* * *

At Christmas the Grahams and the children and grandchildren will gather much as before, except that they can see that some burned houses in the street have no windows left to put a Christmas tree in, or people left to put one there.

This year the family will have a newcomer among them. A granddaughter is going steady with one of the British soldiers and will bring him home to share the turkey.

* * *

Like George Nellins and his wife on the opposite side of the divide, the Grahams and their children see little hope of peace and good will extending far beyond Christmas.

The University of Iowa was the first state university to admit women on an equal basis with men.

Christmas to Be Late as Family Waits for Word of 'Dead' Soldier

RICHWOOD, Ohio (UPI) — Christmas will not come next week for the Warren family.

★ ★ ★

Sharon Warren and her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Warren, want to celebrate the holiday with Sgt. John Warren.

The Army says Warren was killed in Vietnam Oct. 30, but the body shipped home for burial does not resemble the man they know, the family claims. They refused to inter the body and the Army sent it to a casualty center in Delaware.

"I will always have hope until I've seen what will prove otherwise," Roy Warren said.

YULE CAN WAIT

Sharon Warren said the family probably would not celebrate Christmas on Dec. 25, but instead would wait a couple of days in hopes of hearing from or about her husband.

★ ★ ★

"Little John (the couple's 18-month-old son) doesn't really know what Christmas is yet," she said. "So we've decided we may put it off for a couple of days and see what happens, see if John just might come back."

The army has steadfastly refused to consider the possibility the wrong body was sent to the Warrens. The Pentagon said the Warrens were "unable to face reality."

★ ★ ★

U.S. Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, however, said he believed there had been a "terrible mix-up" and that he would attempt to solve it.

★ ★ ★

The Army told the Warrens that if they do not accept the body "in a reasonable time," it would be buried in a national cemetery where it would be identified as that of John Warren of Richwood, Ohio.

The government may support research to produce a steam engine car, which would be relatively pollution-free.

C5 Transport Is Officially Given to AF

MARIETTA, Ga. (UPI) — The controversial C5 transport, with a cargo area longer than the flight by the Wright Brothers' tiny plane 66 years ago, formally was turned over to the Air Force yesterday on the anniversary of powered flight.

In a brief ceremony at Lockheed-Georgia Co., manufacturer of the C5, Gen. James Ferguson, commander of the Air Force Systems Command which directed its development, accepted the plane from Lockheed President T. R. May. He then turned it over to Gen. Jack J. Catton, head of the Military Airlift Command.

* * *

Ferguson called the C5, which has been under attack by some members of Congress for alleged deficiencies and excessive costs, a "genuine revolution in aeronautics, with profound implications for both military and commercial aviation."

* * *

The C5, the world's biggest airplane with a length of 248 feet and a wingspan of 223 feet, was flown shortly after the ceremony to Altus AFB, Okla., for flight training of crews.

Uranium was discovered in 1789 by a German chemist, Martin Claproth, but remained an obscure element for more than a century.

Patriotism: Varying Stripes Unfurl Flap

By MARY ELLEN MYRENE

NEW YORK (AP) — From its lofty isolation on a windless moon to an endless, earthly vigil over a thousand city halls, the American flag is getting around nowadays.

On car bumpers, car windows, car aerials, car doors.

* * *

In stores, in homes, in churches, in halls.

It's there, almost everywhere, a mute symbol of America...and some highly contradictory ideas.

CONSIDERED SACRED

"I consider the flag as sacred as the sacraments of my church," says an Elks lodge official. "Anyone who would destroy it is stupid."

"The flag," counters a black poverty worker, "never did anything for anybody. Try to find one in the black ghetto."

* * *

The alienated, peace-beaded hippie?

"Countries cause all our problems," says one. "I don't believe in flags."

Sacred, suspected and a little oversimplified. It all adds up to that perplexing expression called patriotism.

Patriotism?

For some, it is supporting the government in the face of criticism, and for others it's criticizing the government to speed reforms.

MEANINGS DIFFER

For some, it is mounting the drive for law and order, and for others it's breaking the law to further a cause.

Historically, a patriot was that person who loved his country and promoted and defended its interests. And historically, as now, almost anyone could qualify as long as national interest remained a matter of personal persuasion.

* * *

Who, then, is a patriot?

The next-best question, with more available answers, is how and why are Americans patriotic.

"I've always gone back to the fundamental that action brings reaction," says Frank Wetzel, a director of the U.S. Flag Foundation in New York.

NEW FEELING

"There's a new feeling of patriotism today because people are tired of protests. They're starting to collect their ideas and take a stand."

Patriotism in the past two years has been a highly visual expression. And it has been something of a phenomenon.

* * *

Readers Digest, in a spectacularly successful campaign started last February, distributed more than 18 million flag decals to its subscribers, then was flooded with requests for 32 million more.

Most of the additional decals went to large corporations, including Gulf Oil Co., which is handing out more than 20 million of the flag stickers as a service station promotion.

ELKS' DECAL

Another popular decal—an Elks' sticker bearing the slogan "Our Flag—Love It or Leave" —was first distributed through local lodges a year ago and has topped one million in circulation.

New York's Daily News has distributed more than one million flag stickers to its readership, including one designed in honor of the Apollo 11 moon mission and carrying the slogan, "Good Old USA."

* * *

Since most of the decals were distributed at no cost and without request, it is difficult to measure public response to the flag campaigns. But it is overwhelming if it is anything like the demand for cloth flags.

New York's Annin Flag Co., one of the country's oldest and largest flag manufacturers, has seen its orders double in the last year.

MINDLESS ALLEGIANCE

"Patriotism is a word monopolized by the right, and in the rightist view, it involves a sort of mindless allegiance based on accident of birth," says Ira Glasser, staff attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union in New York.

"It's translated into a belief that unpopular views must be suppressed," he said. "And it has little to do with values underlying the Bill of Rights."

Glasser, who specializes in court action involving student protesters, is most concerned about application of patriotic symbols to law and order issues.

* * *

"It's frightening that good people can end up subscribing to totalitarianism through misuse of patriotic symbols," he said, "but that is exactly what's happening."

Whether or not the ambitions of the New Left are patriotic concerns practically no one inside the movement. But for the sake of argument, young radicals see nothing about their thinking that isn't patriotic.

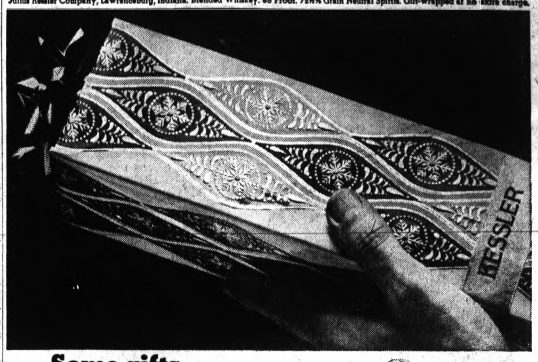

* * *

"The New Left is an authentically American development," says Dave Gelber, 28, an editorial associate of New York's Liberation magazine, a forum for leftist organizations.

"American radicals couldn't conceive of any other country to live in other than their own," he said. "They want to stay in this country. They want to make something that is decent and livable."

The first president who previously served in a cabinet was Thomas Jefferson.

Defense Issue in the '70s—How to Proceed on Arms

By DARRELL GARWOOD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Toward the end of his tenure as secretary of defense, Robert S. McNamara made a most un-Pentagonlike statement.

"A nation," he said, "can reach the point at which it does not buy more security for itself by buying more military hardware. And we are at that point."

* * *

McNamara had presided over a major military buildup. U.S. nuclear weapons tripled in the 1960s; the armed forces expanded by 40 per cent.

* * *

Now McNamara was looking ahead to the central defense issue of the 1970s: Whether the United States, Russia and other nations will seek security through more arms or more arms control.

IN ROUGH BALANCE

The 1960s end with the United States and Soviet Union in rough nuclear balance. Neither can attack the other without being destroyed in return.

* * *

In 1975—if Pentagon projections prove valid—the situation could be this:

* * *

● Russia could have enough triple-warhead missiles to wipe out the U.S. force of Minuteman land-based missiles. But by then the U.S. would have part of its Sageguard ABM system in operation to protect some Minuteman sites.

● The United States will be well along in deployment of multiple warhead missiles, known as MIRV. These will increase the number of U.S. missile warheads from 1,700 to something like 7,000—enough to penetrate Russia's ABM should it be expanded.

● Russia may have enough Polaris-type missile submarines to seriously threaten U.S. nuclear bomber bases. The U.S. Polaris submarine force, however, would probably still be able virtually to destroy Russia by itself.

* * *

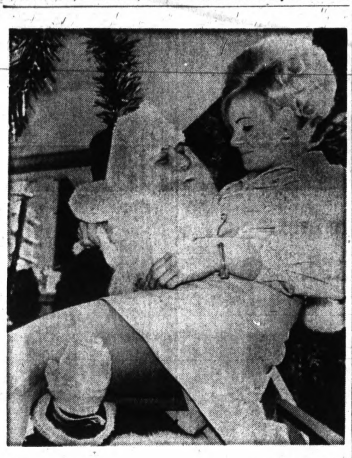

If all this happens as predicted by the Pentagon, additional billions will have been spent on arms by 1975 — but the security of both nations will be no greater and possibly less than it is today.

There would still be a nuclear balance but it would be more precarious, more susceptible to accident or miscalculation.

* * *

The problems of arms control also will have been compounded. The shift from a numerical to a technological nuclear arms race makes inspection harder.

The economic burden of defense is bearing heavily on both countries. Each spends nearly 10 per cent of its gross national product on defense.

Reluctant Literary Lion Isn't Singing Those First-Novel Blues

NEW YORK (UPI) — Leonard Gardner, who was convinced he would still be a literary bum at 75, is a reluctant literary lion at half that age.

"I always thought I'd live a life of obscurity," Gardner says. "I've had a lot of crumby jobs in the past 10 years and I don't think I earned more than $200 the whole time. I lived like a rat on unemployment insurance and sat around in raggedy clothes tanking about writing."

But for four of those years Gardner was working on a navel. Unlike most first novels, "Fat City" when it came out in August, was well publicized by its publishers. This meant it was widely reviewed and many of the reviews were enthusiastic.

Producer Ray Stark bought the movie rights and is negotiating with Gardner to write the script for "Fat City." Learning that Gardner once had theatrical ambitions he also offered him a small part in another Stark film, "The Owl and the Pussycat" with Barbra Streisand.

FAMILIAR INGREDIENTS

Rags to riches, or the American dream rides again. Taken apart, the cliche yields the familiar ingredients — talent, persistence, luck and press agentry.

Gardner's novel is a brief and episodic account of a few cruicial months in the lives of two would-be prize fighters in a section of Gardner's native Stockton, Calif., so seamy that civic pride decreed it be torn down last year.

* * *

"Fat city" — Negro slang for the good life — is an ironic title. No one ever gets there.

Gardner, who is 35 but looks 22 and, despite a broken nose, appears not at all pugnacious, knows a lot about the lives of his characters. He's been boxing since his father, an amateur, gave him his first gloves at the age of 12 and he still likes to work out at Newman's Gym in San Francisco.

He has traveled the Stockton skid row and lived in the Filmore Street ghetto in San Francisco and, like the fighters in his book, he has worked in the fields harvesting walnuts and topping onions.

" 'That's something I wanted to write about," he says. "It's absolutely amazing, the most torturous work. There are guys out there in the fields who are virtual slaves and getting the same thing that slaves get — room and board, pretty crumby room at that."

Gardner has his doubts about the way he's spending his time these days too. He's not overly fond of the New York publicity mill with its lunches at Sardi's and cocktails at the Algonquin and interviews on all the talk shows in town.

But he prefers it to what could have happened.

"I had a friend who published his first novel and it only got about three reviews," he said. "It died such a sudden death that he told me he didn't even feel he'd been published. He says he'll have to write another novel and that will be his first book."

Current Books

THE GANG THAT COULDN'T SHOOT STRAIGHT. By Jimmy Breslin. Viking. $5.95.

How funny is a bunch of inept gangsters? As it turns out, not very.

This yarn is about a branch of the Mafia in New York, run by a bloodthirsty character named Papa Baccala, who is in charge of all organized crime in the area.

He finds himself challenged by a young punk in his organization called Salvatore "Kid Sally" Palumbo.

* * *

He decides to cut Kid Sally down a notch or two by assigning him to run a six-day bicycle race, which involves the importation of some Italian amateur bike riders and inevitably becomes a fiasco.

This might have made an amusing short story, but dragged out to novel length it gets pretty dull.

Miles A. Smith (AP)

COUNTDOWN TO SUPER BOWL by Dave Anderson. (Random House, $6.95)

The countdown began on Jan. 2 when the New York Jets arrived in Florida. For 10 days, they were overshadowed by the favored Baltimore Colts. But on Jan. 12, the Jets walked off the field in the Orange Bowl with the Super Bowl championship.

And the sports writers who had brushed off the Jets before the game rushed to their typewriters to begin books on the team and its quarterback, Joe Namath.

* * *

Dave Anderson's is perhaps the best of the books on Namath and the Jets.

Anderson didn't rely on files to get his story. He dogged the players around the practice field and talked to their wives in the elevator. The Colts drift in and out of his book, but it is mainly about the Jets, each of whom is described in an intimate portrait.

LeRoy Neiman adds his sketches to complement the words of Anderson.

Bill Verigan (UPI)

WHO KILLED THE RED BARON? THE FINAL ANSWER. By P. J. Carisella and James W. Ryan. (Daedalus, $6.95)

The question of who killed Baron Manfred Von Richthofen has troubled historians as much as the German ace plagued the World War I Allies as he ran up an incredible string of 80 air victories.

The book chronicles the circumstances surrounding Von Richthofen's last flight on that day in April 1918 as he sought to add another kill to his mounting list, aiming toward the magic "century mark" of 100 confirmed kills.

* * *

The authors present each argument as to who may have killed Von Richthofen, then delicately riddle the argument.

The conclusion: an Australian "digger" was the only person who conceivably could have had a chance at Von Richthofen, judging from every aspect — flight pattern, target angle, death wound.

It's a highly captivating book which should end the Red Baron question — but, of course, it probably won't.

Pitch Given on Setting the Right Tone for Music Practice

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — If the Santa at your house plans to deliver a guitar, violin, trumpet, drums or even a zither for a child, understand:

Children have an innate love of music, but not necessarily of music lessons — especially the practice part after the novelty wears off.

★ ★ ★

Many of the joys of learning to play an instrument are crushed by parents who react to the reluctant ones at practice time. Their attitude: "We pay, play — or else."

Marion Egbert, educational services director of the American Music Conference, cautions parents against turning into snaring "practice watchdogs."

NOT TOO LONG

"Don't make practice sessions too long," he said. "If the music teacher recommends 45 minutes a day, it may be best to divide the time into two sessions.

"Above all, don't make the practice time replace other activities the child cherishes. If you do, music will become an enemy."

★ ★ ★

But children aren't the only new owners of musical instruments who get practice fidgets.

Guitarist Jimmie Webster gives these hints to adults who are going through throes of practicing:

"Never practice if you are out of sorts with yourself. This sort of practice means little or nothing. Skip it for a while and then go back to it. A good mood and warm receptiveness is all-important to a good practice session."

HELPS CHILDREN, TOO

The same advice will help children, too. Music educators are agreed about certain things regarding practice — no matter what the instrument — where children are concerned. To wit:

- For it to be meaningful, let child practice a well-learned piece before he takes on a newer and harder one. Starting out with the one that takes struggling will bog him down.
- Avoid threats.
- If the child rejects music study completely, discontinue lessons again in a short period.

★ ★ ★

- If he has a music class in school, be interested in his progress, how he feels about the experience and what type of music future he might be projecting for himself.

MUSICALLY MINDED — Katherine Hepburn uses the telephone in a scene from the musical "Coco" in which she plays the starring role and which opens tonight in New York, marking her return to Broadway. The musical is based on the comeback in 1954 of Parisian couturiere Gabrielle "Coco" Chanel.

Revamping of Copyright Law Is Urged

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States is called the only country in the world that discriminates against composers.

Critics of its copyright law say the situation is bad enough for the writers of its popular music but it is even worse for the composers of serious music who do not have record royalties as a cushion.

★ ★ ★

In drafting the copyright law of 1909 the legislators decided composers would have to be paid for their music only if the performances were "for profit."

"You can't perform a play or exhibit a movie without the consent of the copyright owner even if it is nonprofit," said Edward M. Cramer, president of Broadcast Music Inc. (BMI). "You can't reprint textbooks for school use without copyright liability.

NEED A LICENSE

"You can't copy and distribute works of art without license whether or not they are for profit.

"Music is the only economically important work that is singled out for this discriminatory treatment and it is practiced only in the United States," said Cramer.

★ ★ ★

BMI and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP) are the guardians of the rights of composers in this country.

"It sounds reasonable to say a nonprofit institution shouldn't pay for music," Cramer said. "But if it holds an art festival it will pay for the plays, it will pay compensation for material used in the souvenir book, it will pay the musicians who perform. Only the composer is not paid.

★ ★ ★

"This strikes hardest at the writers of serious music whose work is intended for schools and colleges, religious organizations and other nonprofit civil groups."

Cramer said it was hoped a new copyright law would eliminate this discrimination.

POINTS TO RIGHTS

In the meantime, he urged wider observance of the present rights of composers.

"A music educator who would reject in horror the idea of buying stolen instruments will distribute stolen property of another sort," he said. "That is he will make copies of sheet music. This is clearly a violation of the copyright law both civil and criminal and legally and morally it's precisely the same as any other form of stealing or using stolen property.

★ ★ ★

"The law states that the copyright owner alone has the right to copy and sell his copyrighted work."

Award to Briton Points Up Contributions of Young Physicists

NEW YORK (AP) — Physics is often a young man's game, a phenomenon demonstrated anew with the announcement of a major scientific award to a 29-year-old British theoretical physicist, Dr. Brian D. Josephson of the University of Cambridge.

Josephson won the award for fundamental work he did when he was seeking his doctorate in 1962, in his early 20s.

★ ★ ★

The award, announced Tuesday, is the 1969 Research Corporation Award for outstanding contributions to science. Of the 38 scientists who have won the award, 15 have subsequently won a Nobel Prize.

The history of physics is filled with examples of brilliant insights and discoveries coming from young physicists taking a fresh look at things.

REASON OFFERED

Prof. Nicholas Samios, a 38-year-old physicist at Brookhaven National Laboratory, Upton, N.Y., offered a reason for the youthful innovation:

★ ★ ★

"Generally it's because when you're young you're willing to try new ideas. You haven't been encumbered with stuff that's been around a long time.

★ ★ ★

"To do something big, you've got to change something radically. The older you get, the more conservative you get."

Last year's Research Award winner, Dr. Murray Gell-Mann of the California Institute of Technology, won this year's Nobel Prize in physics. He is 40 now, but made the first of his fundamental discoveries in subnuclear particles in 1953, in his 20s. He won his Ph.D. at 20, was a full professor at 22.

Jacobson's award was for basic work in superconductivity. Superconductors, metals such as tin and lead, lose their resistance to electricity at low temperatures.

The classic example of a young man's sweeping insight came from Albert Einstein, who found that matter and energy are the same and put forth his special theory of relativity in 1905—when he was 26. He was 37 when his general theory of relativity was published.

★ ★ ★

Before Einstein, the American physicist Albert Michelson was only 35 when he carried out a celebrated experiment in 1887 with Edward W. Morley involving the speed of light. Michelson won the Nobel Prize in 1907.

KEY DISCOVERY

In biochemistry, where scientists probe the cells of life, one of the key discoveries of recent years was determining the structure of DNA, the chemical substance that controls growth and heredity.

One of the three men who shared the 1962 Nobel Prize for the work was Dr. James D. Watson, who was in his 20s at the time of the work, in 1953.

★ ★ ★

And one of the latest discoveries in genetics was the isolation last summer of a gene, the basic chemical unit of heredity, by a team of scientists at Harvard Medical School. The team was led by Dr. Jonathan Beckwith, 33, who wears a dark beard, a Julius Caesar-style haircut and flare-bottom trousers.

DR. BRIAN JOSEPHSON

Romania Law Debate Unique

Some in Parliament Object Before Okay

BUCHAREST (UPI) — After a spontaneous debate unique in Communist legislatures, the Romanian Parliament yesterday passed a law giving more power to the government.

Deputies who questioned the new law lost their arguments. But the fact that they argued at all — and forced the nation's leaders to answer them — provided a dramatic sign of changing times.

★ ★ ★

Supporters of the law described it as part of a general administrative reform to allow more people a voice in decision-making. It was laid today before the winter session of the Grand Assembly, or parliament, which earlier this year was itself given more responsibility.

★ ★ ★

As if to illustrate this responsibility, four deputies rose to make minor objections to some points of the law. Veteran observers said the animated scene was unprecedented here.

★ ★ ★

The deputies either took the podium or stood at their seats. Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer, who had formally proposed the law, four times walked to the podium to answer the objections. Even President Nicolae Ceausescu, who also is Communist party first secretary, smilingly entered the debate over the wording of the law.

★ ★ ★

The deputies lost their points. But the debate came in a country where Parliament members in previous sessions never spontaneously debated anything, but acted as a "rubber stamp."

Malaya War Vet, Who Advises Nixon on Viet, a Domino Man

LONDON (AP) — Sir Robert Grainger Kerg Thompson, the British guerrilla fighter President Nixon consulted on Vietnam war policy, is a domino man.

He subscribes heavily to the theory that if America lets South Vietnam fall to the Communists, the rest of South Asia will follow like a stack of dominoes.

★ ★ ★

"Anyone can produce arguments, which the ignorant will be happy to devour, against it," he said in a recent television interview. "But you go and ask the dominoes.

"I visited Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman in Kuala Lumpur and (Prime Minister) Lee Kuan Yew in Singapore and they are both perfectly clear on this—that if the United States fails in Vietnam, then Asia will go Communist. And that will spread . . .

SENT TO VIETNAM

"So many people seem to be proposing that President Nixon should come out on the steps of the White House, with a piece of paper in his hand saying 'Peace in our time.' And we all know where that led last time."

Thompson, 53, veteran of the successful anti-Communist campaign in Malaya, was sent to Vietnam to assess the war for Nixon.

★ ★ ★

On Monday, the President announced the withdrawal of another 50,000 troops from the war and made clear that Thompson had influenced his decision. Nixon said the Briton's report was "candid and impressive."

Thompson said of Nixon: "He is taking risks for peace and I think they are justifiable. We did not agree on everything, but we saw eye to eye on most things."

PROBLEM DIFFERED

Thompson's career was forged as the Communist threat in Malaya advanced. He was made staff officer to the director of operations in 1950, when the guerrilla insurgency was at its height.

The problem in Malaya differed from that confronting the United States in several major respects: The Communist guerrillas were a small minority with no widespread support even among the Malayan Chinese. There was no Ho Chi Minh Trail to bring them supplies from outside. And the British after World War II fostered Malayan nationalism, while the French tried to crush the Vietnamese variety, developing a countrywide hatred of the European as a result.

★ ★ ★

It still took the British 12 years to crush the insurgency. But in the process Thompson gained invaluable experience in guerrilla warfare and knowledge of the Asian revolutionary mind.

In 1959 he became permanent secretary for defense of the Federation of Malaya. Two years later he was made head of the British advisory mission in South Vietnam and for his 3½ years of work there he was knighted.

'ON GROUND FLOOR'

Counter-insurgency absorbed him, his wife believes, because "he must have seen what happened on the ground floor—what happens among the peasant when there is a Communist infiltration. If you see terrorism at the root, you must become involved."

★ ★ ★

His first book, "Defeating Communist Insurgency", was published in 1966. This year his "No Exit from Vietnam" came out and established his name in the United States. It attributed American embarrassment in Vietnam to obscurity of aim, failure of strategy and lack of control. He concluded that the President had two options: defeat or continuation of the war by "a new long-haul, low-cost strategy."

★ ★ ★

Thompson says he is neither a hawk nor a dove—"both extremes are dangerous." Neither would he accept defeat.

★ ★ ★

"The position at the moment," he said in the TV interview, "is, of course, that either side could still win, but from the South Vietnamese point of view, helped by the Americans, they are now in a better position to win than they've ever been before."

He regards the Paris peace talks as a dangerous second front set up by the North Vietnamese.

★ ★ ★

"The moment you get into negotiations, you automatically erode the resolution of the other side, and this is what they are after by their negotiations. And if you look at what's happened in Paris, the United States and South Vietnamese have gone absolutely as far as they can in making concessions. Any further concession now would be a giveaway."

In another interview he said the balance of the war had changed — "They are weaker tactically and psychologically and we are now stronger.

"The Vietcong are no longer 10 feet tall. They are more like frightened 18-year-olds. They are on the way out. Fading away, you might say."

The 1968 Tet offensive "was the turning point," he continued. "From then on it has been a downhill trail for the Vietcong. And the Chinese won't help them. They believe in a do-it-yourself policy."

However, this "cold war administrator," as he calls himself, cautioned that "it could take three to five years before Hanoi was compelled to give up her purpose and to negotiate a real settlement.

"Even then the United States could not relax," he declared. "A continuing but much reduced military commitment would still be required as in Korea."

How big a commitment? He told the television questioner: "It has got to be something that is credible. In other words, it means that you're still interested and committed."

Credit Cards OK for Paying Bail

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The County Jail has started accepting credit cards for bail.

The move was approved by the board of supervisors after Sheriff Joe O'Connor said it would speed up release of prisoners for whom bail is permitted.

Early Miniskirt Brought Arrest

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — A retired Formosa policewoman says she was arrested 38 years ago for wearing a miniskirt.

Mrs. Ma Wu, 58, produced a picture showing her in a very short shirt, posing with six other girls on the campus of a high school in Hunan, central China.

She said she was arrested the first day she wore it in public.

Mia Snubs Her Movie Party Because Film 'Doubled' Her

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Mia Farrow didn't show up at a party for her new movie, "John and Mary," with Dustin Hoffman, because, according to Mia, they had used a picture of a backside that wasn't hers, but that of a double, and without her consent.

WILSON

Ignoring a party for the Darryl and Richard Zanucks and all the brass at the Four Seasons, pregnant Mia and Andre Previn, the composer and conductor, shuffled through another party at the Inn of the Clock, given by Huntington Hartford for his new "Show" magazine. Hartford invited about 600 and, as the old joke goes, only 1,000 could make it.

★ ★ ★

Mia admitted her disappointment that they would insert a posterior in the picture that wasn't hers.

"But we used a double for Mia at her request," claimed director Peter Yates. "She was, in fact, on the set and approved the double and the rushes."

"Not at all," protested Mia. "My next contract will have a provision that they cannot insert even a double for my backside into a picture."

Dustin Hoffman expressed astonishment. He wished never to be involved in such cultural arguments again.

★ ★ ★

As for Huntington Hartford's great party, he told about Abby Rockefeller (Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's sister) spiriting away his chauffeur from him at their Sutton Place building while he was in Europe. "I am going to steal something away from her — like her cook!" he promised.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

The new Ziegfeld Theater, glitteringly handsome and modern, had an embarrassing moment just before the "Marooned" premiere; as a major speaker was onstage describing the theater's remarkable automation, his microphone went dead.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: You miss a lot when you try to tour Europe on $5 a day, reports Joan Rivers: "In Paris, for example, the only thing I saw was the Eiffel Cellar."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Bell bottom slacks are OK, agrees David Hartman, if they're not worn by slack-bottomed belles.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "There is no shaving cream, lotion, hair conditioner, cologne or soap that can make a man of forty feel as young as does a smile from a beautiful young woman."—Bill Strickler, Baytown, Tex.

EARL'S PEARLS: A recent divorcee said at Nathan's Famous that she's no longer using her married name: "I'm using my matin' name again."

"They say Dean Martin's slow-moving," notes Pat Henry at the Copa, "but he sure did his Christmas shopping early." That's earl, brother.

Desegregation Curbs' Fate Up to House-Senate Unit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The southern-led drive to curb federal school desegregation powers, headed off in the Senate, moves now into the give-and-take atmosphere of a Senate-House conference committee meeting behind closed doors.

The conferees must also square a controversy over campus disorder and a $4-billion difference between them. It's all part of the two versions of the appropriations bills passed for the Health, Education and Welfare Department, the Labor Department, and related agencies.

★ ★ ★

The House, when it passed the money bill last July, approved an amendment barring the use of any of the funds to force the closing of schools, the busing of students, or the assignment of pupils to a school against their parents' wishes.

But in the Senate Wednesday, the phrase "except as required by the Constitution" was added to the amendment by a 52-37 vote. Southerners protested the effect was to scuttle the amendment.

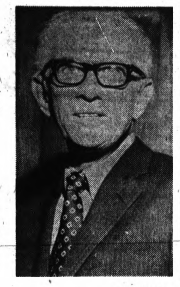

★ ★ ★

Republican leader Hugh Scott of Penfsylvania offered the qualifying language, but his GOP colleagues divided almost evenly on it. Twenty-one Republicans voted for it, and 19 against. The Democratic tally was 31 for and 18 against.

HEW Secretary Robert H. Finch had told senators adoption of the House-approved amendment could cripple the government's school desegregation efforts.

The Senate tabled, 60-28, an amendment by Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., to put Congress on record in support of freedom-of-choice plans for school desegregation.

State legislators in five of the 47 legislatures that convene in 1969 will likely receive pay raises this year.

CANDIDATE — Cleveland attorney Howard M. Metzenbaum, 52, announced yesterday he will oppose former astronaut John Glenn in the May 5 Ohio primary in an effort to become the Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate seat currently held by Sen. Stephen Young, who is retiring.

U.S. Attorney Bucks Nixon, Stirs GOP Split

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Atty. Robert M. Morgenthau has declined to resign his post, at least for the moment, as the state's top Republicans split with President Nixon over the latter's move to oust the prosecutor before the end of his term.

Nixon gave Morgenthau, a Democrat, an ultimatum Wednesday to quit or be fired. He named Whitney North Seymour Jr., a Republican, to be the new top federal prosecutor in New York's Southern District.

★ ★ ★

Morgenthau, who has filled the post for almost a decade, said he would consider whether Nixon's announcement had undermined his effectiveness and if, therefore, he should resign. "Meanwhile, my staff and I intend to pursue our work," he said.

U.S. Sens. Jacob K. Javits and Charles E. Goodell, both Republicans, said in a joint statement that Nixon's move posed "a serious problem." They praised Seymour but said they would try to hold up Senate action on his nomination.

TO CONSIDER CASE

"It is our duty to determine whether on the basis of the cases pending and in process, there is a paramount public interest in not replacing the incumbent at this time."

U.S. attorneys customarily submit their resignations when a new president takes office, regardless of the expiration date of their terms.

Morgenthau, 50, the son of Henry Morgenthau Jr., who was secretary of the Treasury under President Franklin D. Roosevelt, has declined to do so, citing pending investigation.

"My decision to stay on as a United States attorney after the change in administrations and until the expiration of my four-year term in June 1971 was prompted by my firm belief that I had an obligation and a commitment to complete major cases and investigations in which my staff and I had worked for years," he said Wednesday.

CORRUPTION CASES

"We presently have investigations and cases involving corruption on all levels of local, state and federal government, the illegal use of foreign bank accounts by prominent individuals in the business and financial community, consumer frauds victimizing the poor, labor racketeering, narcotics distribution and 'white collar' and organized crime."

Morgenthau was appointed by President John F. Kennedy in 1961 and resigned in 1962 to run for governor against incumbent Republican Nelson A. Rockefeller. After his defeat, he was reappointed by President Kennedy and given a second four-year term by President Johnson in 1967.

Mall for Jackson

JACKSON (AP) — Plans for a $10 million enclosed shopping mall to be built in Jackson were announced Wednesday by Sid Forbes, a partner in Forbes-Cohen Corp. of Detroit. The 500,000-square foot center will be developed jointly by Forbes-Cohen and by Frankel Associates of Detroit. Construction is to begin this summer with completion scheduled for 1972.

Humor Is No Joke in Judging Social Acceptance, Prof Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you want to insult someone, tell him he has "no sense of humor." If you wish to compliment him, tell him he has a "good sense of humor."

Indeed, says Prof. Harry F. Harlow, University of Wisconsin psychologist, "Humor is a common criterion of social acceptability."

★ ★ ★

The "anatomy of humor" has been dissected by Prof. Harlow, director of Wisconsin's Regional Primate Center, in a United Nations publication concerned with the "impact of science on society." The entire issue of the publication is devoted to articles dealing with "the science of humor" and the "humor of science."

According to Harlow, kinds of humor range from the brutal, the most primitive form, through physical degradation to "abstract wit and the ideal comic," the highest form.

Puns, often called the lowest form of humor, actually belong in the highest category, according to Harlow. So do aphorisms and bon mots. Example: Oscar Wilde's remark that "Work is the curse of the drinking class."

Most humor, says Harlow, is based either on observing or causing "the physical or social degradation of others" with a view to elevating one's own ego or social status.

★ ★ ★

Harlow's example of the brutal, or lowest, form of humor is a story of the 1930s in which a gangland killer helps an aged fellow citizen resolve the riddle of where he's going by pumping him full of lead.

A cut above this kind of humor, and considerably less sick, is the humor of physical degradation. Chimpanzees share with human beings addiction to this category of fun.

DRENCHED VICTIMS

Caged chimps frequently fill their mouths with water. Then when a human being comes within range, they drench the victim with water "expelled with propulsive and repulsive force."

This is a fine slapstick comedy, on a level with pie-throwing. When chimps bring it off, they jump up and down, clap hands, and emit "the characteristic nonarticulated chimpanzee laugh."

★ ★ ★

Billie, a chimpanzee at the Yerkes Laboratories in Orlando Park, Fla., practiced this kind of humor with considerable guile. One bright spring day a dozen girls from a biology class in a nearby finishing school visited the Yerkes labs.

★ ★ ★

Billie waited until the girls, all clad in pretty white dresses, were lined up in a row. Then he let them have it.

SENSE OF HUMOR

He thereby proved abundantly that he possessed a sense of humor. And a sense of humor, on Harlow's authority, is "a common criterion of social acceptability."

It didn't work out that way for the Yerkes chimp. After what he did to those girls, says Harlow, "No such opportunity ever presented itself again to Billie."

Holiday Drinks Hike Road Toll

LANSING (AP) — Driving after drinking can mean a spurt in the number of highway deaths during the holiday period, warns Secretary of State James Hare.

Hare said department records indicate that drinking may be a factor in at least half of the fatal motor vehicle accidents in Michigan.

"This becomes a matter of concern around Christmas and New Year's time when people keep in the spirit of things by drinking more than usual," Hare said.

Hare also reminded Michigan motorists that state laws cover in drinking and driving carry stiff penalties which include:

- Mandatory 90-day to two-year suspension of driver license.
- A jail sentence of up to a maximum of 90 days for the first offense. One year for the second offense.
- A fine up to a maximum of $100 plus court costs. A maximum of $1,000 for the second offense.
- Six points added to your driving record.
- A third conviction of driving under the influence is a felony.

Brother and Sister Reunited for Holidays; Apart for 29 Years

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Nearly 30 years of separation ended and a happy Christmas reunion began Tuesday night for a Florida woman and her Texas brother.

James Stewart, 33, watched a bus from Miami, Fla., pull into the depot and nervously scanned the passengers as they alighted.

* * *

The last off was Deloris Maxine Thompson, 31, of Daytona Beach, Fla., and Stewart, from the Dallas suburb of Duncanville, quickly embraced her.

AP Wirephoto

Mrs. Thompson And Her Brother

She was accompanied by her three daughters.

Quickly they turned to piecing together what has happened during a separation in which each possessed only an aging photo as proof the other ever existed.

STORY HIGHLIGHTS

These are some of the highlights in the story they reconstructed:

Stewart was born at De Leon Springs, Fla., and the family apparently moved to Lansing, Mich., where his sister was born two years later.

* * *

Their mother became ill with tuberculosis and died at a sanitarium. At that point some of the details become sketchy.

Stewart grew up in Lansing with a grandmother and an aunt, Mrs. Lillian Heckensmith. His sister was taken back to Florida, presumably by their father, and was raised by the elder Stewart's parents.

"I remember Pearl Harbor," said Stewart.

In the war years that followed, the families in Michigan and Florida did not write or otherwise maintain contact. Subsequent efforts of Stewart and his sister to find one another were unavailing.

It wasn't until this year that they finally managed it. The link was an uncle of Mrs. Thompson, who lives near her in Florida. He took a job of cutting some ferns for a woman friend of Stewart's aunt, Mrs. Hockensmith, who now lives at Lake Jackson, Tex.

* * *

The uncle mentioned his niece. His employer dropped Mrs. Hockensmith a note, and the aunt telephoned the Stewarts.

* * *

That led to a phone call from Mrs. Thompson to the Stewarts, and she came to Dallas for an indefinite stay. They agreed that this will be an especially joyful holiday season.

East Pakistan Eyes Secession

DACCA, Pakistan (AP) — Underfed, underdeveloped and resentful, East Pakistan looks to many people like a candidate for secession.

This month 12 persons died in riots in this swampy provincial capital. These riots showed a deepening resentment in the East against the Western partner in this unique Muslim land which has hung together for 22 years divided geographically by a thousand miles of India.

* * *

Eastern politicians play on the resentment. Some demand separate constitutions for the two provinces.

Sheik Mujibur Rahman, 52, who drew one million people to Dacca's racecourse after his release from jail shortly before the March downfall of President Ayub Khan, has proclaimed a six-point scheme for autonomy smacking of outright sovereignty. His program, called "Our Right to Live," wants the East to print its own money, collect its own taxes, bank its own foreign earnings and raise its own militia. It would leave foreign policy and defense to a weakened central government.

LAHORE RESOLUTION

"I don't want autonomy," coyly says Mujibur's major rival, Maulana Abdul Hamid Khan Bhashani, 87, a leftist peasant leader regarded as Mao Tse-tung's best friend in Pakistan. "Just implement the Lahore Resolution." That 1940 document of Muslim nationalism suggests sovereignty for the East.

Talk here is reminiscent of the complaints from Eastern Nigeria before it seceded as Biafra in May 1967, plunging Africa's most populous country into a draining civil war.

* * *

Four out of five East Pakistanis are Bengalis who speak a different language and have a different culture than their Western partners. Many believe the West has exploited this area ever since the 1947 partition of British India bracketed the two parts of Pakistan like bookends against India. The aim was to separate Muslim areas from largely Hindu India.

For two decades the East's main cash crop, jute, has supplied most of the whole nation's foreign exchange. Neither the Eastern intellectual nor the worker who stands up to his waist in swamp to harvest this fibrous plant believes he is receiving a rightful share.

FOOD SHORTAGE

Sharpening resentment now is an aching food shortage one year after Eastern leaders assured the people that the region would be self-sufficient in food. The staple food, rice, is selling at nearly 15 cents a pound. Some observers think such a price spells revolution.

Pakistan has asked the United States for 1.7 million tons of wheat, chartering the capacious SS Manhattan to carry the first emergency load to the East even before the Americans agreed to terms. Too late, say Eastern critics. They accuse the West-based national government of ignoring Eastern appeals six months ago.

* * *

East Pakistan must feed 72 million, a number growing at the rate of 3½ per cent yearly despite a birth control program. They live in an area about the size of Florida; each cultivated square mile of land must support 1,879 people. Even with birth control, it is estimated the same square mile must support 3,500 only 15 years hence.

In the West a cultivated square mile feeds 807 people; its 50 million people live in an arid but spacious area the size of Texas and Florida combined. The West, where Urdu is the official language, includes Punjabis, Sinds, Baluchis, Pathans, and is a much less homogeneous area than the East. Major links between the two provinces are the religion, Islam, and a mutual distaste for India and Hindus.

Government statistics abound to demonstrate the gap between provinces. Per capita income in the East is equivalent to $64, the West's to $108.

Most of the East's textile and jute manufacture is based on Western money. Its flow has slackened because of labor troubles and uncertainty in this region.

Officials have promised to double recruitment of Easterners into the army, which has 7½ per cent Bengalis. These people rarely have volunteered. As a result, most of the 20,000 government troops in the East are Urdu-speaking Westerners, a situation which is a source of friction.

Despite martial law since the fall of Ayub, the army has moved cautiously.

Some observers believe the threat of secession is a bargaining device to improve East Pakistan's position in whatever regime follows the return of civil rule. Others doubt the Bengali ability to act. There is speculation the two parts of Pakistan eventually must split. Said a diplomat: "Here it is like putting together Poland and Portugal because they both have many Roman Catholics."

Road Repaired ---Just in Time

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — After residents near the intersection of 59th and Elizabeth in St. Louis had complained for years about the roughness of the intersection, a city crew arrived and spent some time smoothing out the bumps and ruts and applying a layer of smooth topping.

Just as the city workmen were driving away, a crew of telephone men with air hammers and digging machinery arrived and tore up the smooth surface to lay a new telephone cable.

Desserts Show Christmas Colors

By JANET ODELL
Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

Desserts at Christmas time do not follow the more-or-less rigid pattern of Thanksgiving pumpkin and mince pie. Although in past generations, no Christmas dinner was complete without a plum pudding, today, we like lighter meals. The desserts we choose reflect this.

Here are four suggestions for Christmas desserts. Everyone can be made ahead of time which will relieve the cook on the big day.

★ ★ ★

Cherry Eggnog Pie combines a creamy nutritious custard with colorful red and green cherries. Garnish it with a sprig of artificial holly on top of the whipped cream.

CHERRY EGGNOG PIE

24 brown edge wafers
¼ cup butter, melted
⅔ cup sugar divided
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
2 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon rum flavoring
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup (½ pint) whipping cream, whipped
½ cup each drained, chopped red and green maraschino cherries

Whipped cream and cherries to garnish pie, if desired

Prepare crust. Save 11 or 12 perfect wafers; trim ¼ inch from bottom of each wafer. Save wafers and trimmings. Crumb remaining wafers and trimmings. Combine crumbs, butter and 2 tablespoons sugar; mix well.

Stand trimmed cookies upright around edge of 9-inch pie plate. (Tops towards center of pie.) Press crumb mixture over bottom; chill crust well.

PREPARE FILLING

Combine gelatin, ¼ cup sugar and salt in heavy saucepan. Add milk and beaten egg yolks; mix well. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture coats spoon. Chill until mixture begins to set; stir in flavorings and nutmeg.

Beat egg whites until they hold soft peaks. Gradually add remaining sugar. Continue beating until egg whites are stiff and glossy. Fold into gelatin mixture. Fold in whipped cream and cherries. Spoon into cooky shell; chill until firm.

Garnish with additional whipped cream and cherries if desired. Makes one 9-inch pie, 6 to 8 servings.

★ ★ ★

Somewhat similar in texture to the pie filling is this lime souffle. However, there is no crust and you use a mixture of noncaloric liquid sweetener with a small amount of sugar so that the calories are lower. Be sure to color it green honor of the occasion.

LIGHT LIFT OF LIME SOUFFLE

1½ envelopes (1½ tablespoons) unflavored gelatin
1½ cups cold water
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1½ teaspoons noncaloric liquid sweetener
⅔ cup bottled lime juice
½ cup nonfat dry milk
½ cup ice water
¼ cup sugar
5 to 6 drops green food coloring
Marzipan candies

Soften gelatin in 1½ cups cold water; stir in eggs. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin dissolves; remove from heat. Add sweetener and lime juice; chill until partially set.

Mix nonfat dry milk with ½ cup ice water; whip until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar, continuing beating to stiff peaks. Beat in food coloring to tint pale green. Fold into gelatin mixture.

MAKE COLLAR

Prepare a 1-quart souffle dish by cutting a strip of brown paper or foil about 4 inches wide and long enough to go around sides of dish. Fasten strip to outside of dish with tape, allowing it to extend about 2 inches above dish. Brush inside of strip with oil.

★ ★ ★

Spoon gelatin mixture into souffle dish and chill until firm. Remove tape and peel paper collar away carefully. This souffle may also be made in a 2-quart bowl or mold. Decorate with marzipan candy, if desired. 8 to 10 servings.

★ ★ ★

Have you ever thought of serving cream puffs at Christmas? You can make the puffs now and store them in a tin can. They'll stay fresh. The filling can be made the day before you plan to use it. Assembling the puffs will be a short task.

The interesting part of the filling is the use of rice in it.

MINIATURE RICE AND FRUIT PUFFS

FILLING:

1½ cups cooked rice
1 cup mixed candied fruit
⅓ cup apricot brandy
1 package vanilla pudding mix
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons finely chopped candied ginger, optional

Puffs:

½ cup water
¼ cup butter
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ cup sifted all purpose flour
2 eggs

Combine rice and candied fruit with brandy and let stand for about 30 minutes. Blend pudding mix and milk; cook over low heat until mixture thickens. Cool. Fold in marinated fruit and rice and ginger. Chill until serving time.

Slice tops from miniature puffs; fill with pudding mixture, then replace tops.

★ ★ ★

To prepare puffs, place water, butter and salt in heavy saucepan over moderate heat; when boiling briskly, add flour all at once, stirring vigorously and cook until mixture forms a smooth ball which leaves sides of pan clean, stirring constantly. Turn into mixing bowl and beat in eggs, one at a time, and continue beating until mixture is thick and shiny and breaks off when spoon is raised.

★ ★ ★

Drop from tip of teaspoon about 1½ inches apart onto a greased baking sheet. Bake at 450 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 10 to 12 minutes longer. Cool on cake racks.

Yields about 4 dozen puffs.

★ ★ ★

You can go out and buy ice cream in fancy shapes for Christmas dinner dessert. Or you can prepare your own.

Nesselrode Pudding is like the famous dessert, but is ice cream instead of a rich custard. The Christmas sundaes are a two-step process, but not difficult.

★ ★ ★

If you don't have enough molds of one kind, try forming heavy aluminum foil around a mold. Turn down the edges to make them firm. Slip off and use like metal molds. They will hold the ice cream nicely and go into the freezer.

FROZEN NESSELRODE PUDDING

1½ quarts vanilla ice cream
1 jar (8 oz.) mixed candied fruits, chopped
¾ cup chopped seedless raisins
¾ cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon rum extract

★ ★ ★

Chill mold (one holding 5-6 cups) in freezer. Place ice cream in bowl and allow to stand in refrigerator 15-20 minutes to soften slightly. Meanwhile combine fruits, raisins, nuts and extract; toss to blend. Stir ice cream until smooth; fold in fruit mixture. Spoon into mold; freeze. Makes 6-8 servings.

FROZEN CHRISTMAS SUNDAES

6 tablespoons strawberry preserves
1 quart vanilla ice cream
Red and green candied cherries for garnish

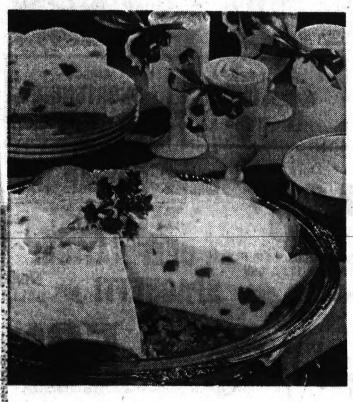

Place 1 tablespoon strawberry preserves in each of six molds; place in freezer until firm. Allow ice cream to soften slightly. Fill molds and pack down well. Freeze until firm.

★ ★ ★

To unmold dip into warm water and turn out onto chilled plates. Garnish with red and green candied cherries. Makes 6 servings.

ICE CREAM DESSERTS — Red, white and green like a Christmas wreath frosted with snow, these frozen ice cream desserts are perfect for Christmas dinner or a Yuletide party. They're easy to make with everybody's favorite, ice cream.

CHERRY EGGNOG PIE — Red and green cherries bring holiday spirit to a creamy custard-based pie. Top each serving with a dollop of whipped cream.

LIME SOUFFLE — Tinted a delicate green, this airy lime souffle is a delightful way to end a holiday dinner. Marzipan fruits make an interesting garnish for the top.

YULETIDE PUFFS — The tiny puffs are two-bite size portions of flavorful brandied rice and fruit neatly packaged in cream puff cases. They are excellent accompaniments for chilly punches, mugs of mulled wines, or simply steaming hot cups of coffee or tea.

Drop Walnut Halves in Sherry Syrup

Boil together, stirring often, 1½ cups granulated sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, and ½ cup sherry to soft ball stage (240 degrees on candy thermometer). Take from heat, add one teaspoon grated orange rind or ½ teaspoon cinnamon, and two to three cups California walnut halves or pieces. Stir until syrup is cloudy and walnuts are coated.

Turn out on waxed paper; separate walnuts. Pass a dish of these with pumpkin pie — delicious!

★ ★ ★

Another after-dinner fun thing — California walnuts roasted in the shell. Spread whole walnuts in shallow pan and bake at 450 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve hot or cold, and remember the nutcracker.

Gravy Mix and Wine Make Sauce for Beef

Entertaining takes many forms during the holiday season but one of the jolliest is an informal buffet supper. A serve-yourself spread is easy and comfortable for both guests and hostess. Plan a simple but special menu that can be made ahead so there are no last minute preparations.

A supremely suitable dish for such a festive buffet is this recipe. Holiday Beef in Wine Sauce is a happy blending of sirloin strips and a smooth sumptuous sauce easily made with an envelope of mushroom gravy mix, marmalade and port wine.

Serve the beef with hot rice and as go-alongs, Christmas Salad Wreaths are colorful and complementary. Spiced crab apple rings are topped with a piquant mixture of cottage cheese and prepared yellow mustard.

HOLIDAY BEEF IN WIN SAUCE

1 to 2 pounds boneless sirloin steak, cut in strips
2 tablespoons oil
1 envelope (¾ oz.) mushroom gravy mix
¾ cup water
¼ cup port wine
2 tablespoons orange marmalade
1 can (1 lb.) whole onions
Wild or white rice, cooked

Brown steak in oil in large skillet. Blend in gravy mix right from the envelope. Stir in water, wine, marmalade, and onions. Cook 10 minutes over medium heat. Serve on wild or white rice. 6 to 8 servings.

CHRISTMAS SALAD WREATHS

1 cup small curd cottage cheese
1 tablespoon prepared yellow mustard
1 tablespoon mayonnaise
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
6 to 8 spiced crabapple rings
Lettuce

Combine cottage cheese, mustard, mayonnaise, and lemon rind. Place crabapple rings on lettuce leaves; top each with a spoonful of the cottage cheese mixture. 6 to 8 servings.

Butternut Squash Fixed in Minutes

Glazed Butternut Squash is much simpler than it sounds: Cut 2 small squash in half, remove seeds and place cut side down in buttered baking dish. Bake at 375 degrees F. until done (30-45 mins.). Remove from oven, remove peel and slice.

Melt ½ cup butter, add 1 jar (4½ oz.) baby strained apricots with tapioca, and ¼ cup brown sugar. Heat for about 5 minutes. Brush on squash slices and put under broiler until glazed and bubbly.

HOLIDAY BEEF—Joyous holiday entertaining is an informal buffet supper with simple, elegant food that can be made ahead. For your main course, prepare strips of sirloin in a wine sauce.

Beautiful Cookies Made in Minutes

Buy unfrosted packaged cookies and top with ready-to-spread frosting. Sprinkle generously with chopped California walnuts, and for extra swish, center each cookie with a walnut half or a red or green maraschino cherry.

California walnuts are available shelled in vacuum cans and clear bags; when you're really rushed, it's a fine idea to have some handy.

Mixture of Danish Cheese Fills Yeast Roll

Holiday breakfasts are special — the family is together and looking forward to delicious food, but not necessarily a substantial meal. After all there are lots of rich, heavy dinners and parties and eggnog toasts during the holidays, so a simple Continental breakfast of juice, coffee and fresh bread is often really appreciated.

Make it a Continental breakfast — with extra Danish flair. The Danes enjoy their flavorful, nutritious cheeses for breakfast all the time. Your version — a home baked breakfast bread filled with an assortment of Danish cheeses.

Imagine a hot bread where you bit into piquant Havarti, mellow Esrom, nutlike Samsoe, aromatic Tybo or rich, tangy Danish Blue. Or, of course, you can bake this with your favorite of these flavorful cheeses.

* * *

If you have time, and your family enjoys a late breakfast, you can prepare your Danish Bread Wreath the morning it's to be served. Or else bake it beforehand, and reheat at serving time.

If there's any bread left over, it's scrumptious sliced and toasted for a late snack, or breakfast the next day.

DANISH BREAD WREATH

1 package active dry yeast
3 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup warm water
4 cups unsifted flour (approx.)
2 teaspoons salt
2 eggs
½ cup lukewarm milk
½ cup melted butter
¾ cup (about 3 oz.) each grated Havarti, Esrom, Samsoe, Tybo, and crumbled Danish Blue — or any mixture of Danish cheeses you like, adding up to 4 cups or 1 lb.)
1 egg yolk mixed with 1 tablespoon water

Combine yeast, sugar and water. Let stand 5 minutes. Combine flour and salt in a large bowl. Make a well in the center and drop eggs, milk, melted butter and yeast mixture into it. Combine ingredients, adding more flour if necessary to make a dough that holds together.

Turn out on a well-floured board and knead dough until smooth and satiny. Shape into a ball and place in a lightly buttered bowl. Brush top with melted butter, cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk.

ROLL UP DOUGH

Turn dough out on a floured board and roll into an oblong about 16 x 20 inches. Sprinkle with grated cheeses. Roll up lengthwise like a jelly roll. Form into a ring, pinching ends together.

Place on a greased cookie sheet. Slice halfway through the ring at 2-inch intervals and separate pieces slightly. Brush with egg yolk mixture.

Let rise in a warm place, free from drafts, until doubled in bulk. Bake in oven preheated to 375 degrees F. for 35 to 40 minutes. Serve warm. Makes about 12 servings.

NOTE: If Danish Bread Wreath is baked ahead of time, wrap in foil when cool. Leave at room temperature, If it is to be used the following day. Refrigerate, if it is to be used within two or three days. Freeze, if it is made further ahead than that.

At a serving time reheat foil-wrapped bread for 15 to 20 minutes in preheated 300 degree F. oven. (Thaw frozen bread in its wrapper for about 20 minutes before reheating.)

CHEESE-FILLED DANISH BREAD—For an extra-special holiday breakfast, or party, bake a bread wreath with a filling of five savory Danish cheeses—or your choice of Havarti, Samson, Tybo, Esrom or Danish Blue.

PICKLE SNOWBALLS—Call it a salad, or call it an open-face sandwich. Either way a Pickle Snowball will please as fare for lunch or late supper during the holidays. It's actually a scoop of ham salad (seasoned with pickles, of course!) frosted with cream cheese. Both adults and children will go for this.

Coat Ball of Ham Filling With Cheese, Put on Bread

Pickles can spice up holiday meals for family and company. Pickles can also help add a festive touch when used imaginatively as garnishes.

One suggestion from Pickle Packers International, Inc. is the new recipe for Pickle Snowballs. Call it a salad, or call it an open-face sandwich — either way it's good eating for company lunch or late supper. Or serve it for a children's party. A ham salad is made with chopped sweet mixed pickles, shaped in a round and frosted with cream cheese to resemble a snowball.

* * *

Served on bread, toast or lettuce, it's garnished with a "holly leaf" cut from a slice of sweet gherkin.

PICKLE SNOWBALLS

1 pound cooked ham, ground (About 3½ cups)
⅓ cup chopped sweet mixed pickles
⅓ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
Bread, toast or lettuce
8 ounces cream cheese, softened
1 tablespoon sweet pickle liquid
Sweet gherkin slices

Mix together ham, chopped pickles, mayonnaise and mustard. Using ice cream scoop, shape into balls (pressing mixture into scoop). Chill.

* * *

Place ham balls on bread, toast or lettuce, buttering bread or toast, if desired. Blend cheese and pickle liquid; frost balls with cheese mixture. Garnish with gherkin slices cut into holly shape. Makes about 3 cups filling; 6-8 servings.

Try Baby Food for New Taste

Looking for a new taste in 7-minute frosting? Try baby food. In the top of a double boiler place 1 can of strained baby fruit, 2 egg whites, 1½ cups sugar and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Beat with a rotary beater for 7 minutes over boiling water. Remove and beat until spreading consistency.

* * *

Makes 5 cups of frosting. Try apricots for a white cake, prunes for spcie cake and apple sauce for chocolate cake.

Holland Treat Drop Doughnuts Are Fun to Make

DUTCH DROP DOUGHNUTS

2 eggs
½ cup sugar
½ cup milk
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1½ cups sifted all-pupose flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cardamom
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
⅔ cup oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)

Beat eggs; gradually beat in sugar. Stir in milk and oil. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, cardamom and cinnamon; stir in oats. Add dry ingredients to egg mixture; blend well.

* * *

Drop batter by teaspoonfuls into hot deep fat (375 degree F.) and fry until golden brown, about 3 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar. Makes 3 dozen.

whomever you're giving a watch to this Christmas, Rose has exactly the right time.

She's 23, and already knows the most charming restaurant in St. Maarten, and how to use the Paris subway without backtracking. Her watch: David Steven's sleek bracelet imbedded with a square case—all in 14K gold, at $140.

Your cousin is the next astronaut scheduled for the moon. Give him a fantastically accurate Accutron—with 24-hour dial, an adjustable dial for time tables, zillions of features; in a 14K gold case at $1000.

She's ready to take Florence Nightingale's place in the annals of nursing—and the watch that will help her time a million pulses is our dependable Caravel, with its 17-jewel movement, sweep second hand, full-numeral illuminated dial, waterproof case, at $15.95.

He bowls with the guys every Thursday night, he made the kitchen cupboards himself, and he's got the best lawn on the block. What he'd like is a Bulova calendar watch with a 17-jewel movement, luminous dial, waterproof stainless case, expansion bracelet. $50.

His first watch should be one he can depend upon all through school. Our Caravel has a round face, big numerals, a sweep second hand, fine movement; and its stainless steel case is waterproof. $10.95.

He's made the team every year since Jr. High, and last year they made him Captain. The watch he needs is a rugged, shock-resistant Tissot Sideral; an automatic calendar watch with stainless case, fiberglass back, at $49.95.

She's Junior League, Women's Association for the Symphony, Tau Beta—the bright center of her well-established world. Her watch: Baume & Mercier's bracelet with a tiny rectangular case set into the brushed 14K gold links. Quietly elegant. $190.

When he isn't framing-in a house or pouring foundations, he's working on some crazy old car out in the garage. Give him a watch that can take it: a shock-resistant Bulova with a big luminous dial, sweep second hand, and stainless steel case, at $35.

His apartment is pure Mies vander Rohe, he collects Giacometti sculpture and Chang Dynasty porcelain. His watch: the Movado Museum timepiece: a brilliantly, classically styled timepiece in 14K gold at $185. (Women's version at $130).

Every winter, she packs up 35 dresses, 25 pairs of shoes, three fur stoles, six different kinds of sunglasses, and heads for Florida. The watch she'll show off to everyone is an oval-faced Baume & Mercier with 18 marquise-shaped diamonds and a gold link bracelet. $3250.

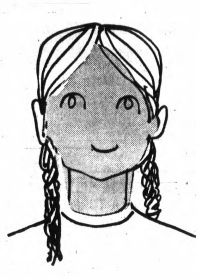

He's fathered four handsome children, collected stamps for 20 years, and is always there when you need advice. He'll be (quietly) very proud of his Movado King-matic-S with its unique instant date indicator, gold-filled case, and alligator strap. $145.

On his 45th birthday, he bought himself a red Alfa-Romeo and a knit tam, and started growing sideburns. He'll groove the Movado Video: a blue-dialed calendar watch with a heavy link bracelet and high-speed 360 movement. $165.

He's a city guy: likes great little bars, girls, plays the horses, knows what's open when everything is closed. His Baume & Mercier watch has 24 emerald-cut diamonds on the face, a 14K white gold case and a matching Florentine gold bracelet. $2850.

Her first watch should be as charming and feminine as the young lady she'll grow up to be. She'll be thrilled by our pretty (but sturdy and dependable) Caravel, with full numerals, stainless steel case, cord band. $12.95.

Six months of the year his forwarding address is Hong Kong or Rome or Copenhagen or Pago Pago. Movado makes a perfect timepiece for him: an alligator-cased travel alarm clock that winds itself automatically, folds compactly. $185.

Skin diving or simply snorkeling—he's more at home under water than on dry land. His watch: Movado's Time Machine, a stop watch with tachometer dial, chronograph, time-out indicator, high pressure seal. $195.

Tomorrow he'll go to the moon. Today he just wants to get to the show on time. Give him an incredibly accurate Accutron. The one we have in mind is automatic, has a sweep second hand, bold numerals, and sells for $110.

She spends the summer at Harbor Springs, the winter at Palm Beach—and never leaves the golf course. The match that compliments her marvelous sports wardrobe: a crisp Movado with a brightly colored dial and strap, Roman numeralled face, 14K gold case. $80.

He drives an XKE, he was the first guy to wear flared pants and an arm scarf, and Janis Joplin sends him birthday cards. His watch: the spaced-out Tissot PR 516 Visodate, self-winding, with a Grand Turismo bracelet, burgundy day-date dial, at $92.50.

She's taken a thousand temperatures and given a trillion pills, and she's still the brightest ray of sunshine in the hospital. Her watch; a fine Tissot in white or yellow gold, with sweep second hand, illuminated hands, round dial, at $55.

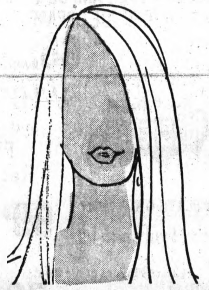

If anyone knows Where It's At, baby, he does. And since he's a total groove, his watch is a Longines with four diamonds on the square dial, a 17-jewel movement, dress strap, and a white or yellow 14K gold case, at $210.

She cooks, she plays the piano, and now that she's grown up, she teaches Sunday School—and the kids love her. If you're the boy next door, please her with an oval-cased Bulova in white or yellow gold, with a 17-jewel movement and expansion bracelet, at $55.

Now that her family's grown, she fills her abundant life with worth while clubs, the theatre, travel, good friends. She'd cherish a beautiful Hamilton watch, its gold marquise-shaped face encased in 36 diamonds. $595.

Mini's, maxi's, rimless shades, square heels, beaded headbands—she's All The Way all the time. The watch that moves with her is a Tissot calendar watch with an automatic date changer, stainless case, and racing strap. $75.

OL St. Mary Hosts St. James; Lake Orion at Romeo Tonight

The 1969 portion of the current basketball season will go out with a bang with the top contenders in the Oakland A and the Northwest Parochial circuit battling for honors in pre-vacation contests tonight.

Lake Orion, with a 4-0 mark, travels this evening to tangle with the Romeo Bulldogs, also 4-0 over-all for the season.

In the Northwest Catholic Suburban League, Orchard Lake St. Mary's high flying Eaglets will play host to pre-season favorite Ferndale St. James tonight.

WIN FIRST ONE

The Eaglets whipped the Dales in the first game of the season and have since rolled over seven league foes.

The game tonight starts the second half of the season and OLSM is the only unbeaten team in the league.

Coach Father Rakoczy has a fast moving unit which includes a 14-year-old freshman, Mike Paciorek, who is one of the top scorers on the team and in the county.

The Eaglets downed St. James in a surprise victory the first time the two clubs met in their season opener, 71-58. They rode the crest of that upset to seven straight victories in the league as they closed out first-round action Tuesday.

Paciorek is one of two freshmen, two sophomores and a senior who start for Fr. Rakoczy's squad, which lost all but one man from last year's co-championship team.

ROMEO'S HEIGHT

Romeo will have the height advantage on the Dragons, led by 6-7 Dan Burzyniski, 6-5 Jerry Richie and 6-2 Dave Olson. One of the top scorers for the Bulldogs is also Tom Lerchen a 6-0 senior guard.

Romeo had a scare last Friday night at Rochester before defeating the Falcons, 51-49.

★ ★ ★

Lake Orion also had some trouble with Rochester Adams before pulling out a victory last week, but the Dragons have yet to put their scoring punch together.

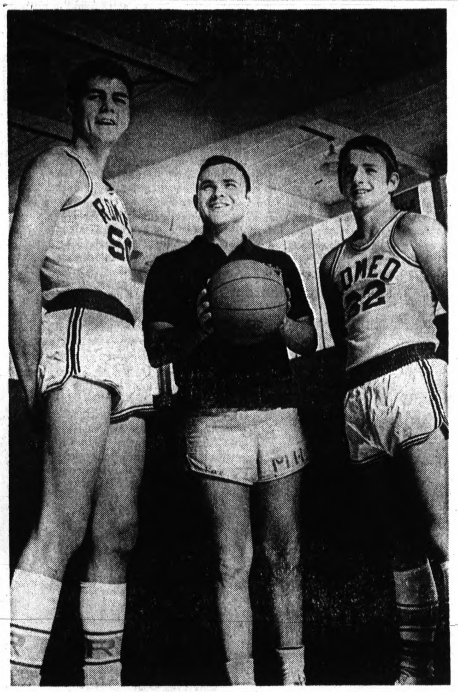

In each game thus far, different players have paced the scoring, Ed Kubilus, Jim Knapp and most recently Ray Rogers.

★ ★ ★

The Dragons will have to get the rebounding primarily from Knapp and Kubilus to match the Romeo board strength, and coach George Elias also has the scoring threat of any one of the starting, or all of them, capable of hitting in double figures.

Since this is the lone meeting of the two teams, it is almost certain that the winner could eventually emerge as the Oakland-A champion.

ROMEO RECORD	ORION RECORD

Romeo 72, Lahser 67	Orion 73, Rochester 48

BIG BULLDOGS—Coach Jerry Barr will pit his all-veteran Romeo basketball team against challenger Lake Orion tonight in a key Oakland-A game on the Romeo court. Big Dan Burzynski, 6-7, and Ron Lerchen (32) provide the big scoring punch for the Bulldogs who have posted a 4-0 record. It is the lone clash between the two in regular season play and the winner could finish as league champ.

Central, Northern, Catholic 5s Play Important Loop Contests

Pontiac Central opens its drive toward the Saginaw Valley West basketball championship and Pontiac Northern plays the first of three crucial games Friday.

Pontiac Catholic will be the only local school staying home Friday. Dearborn Sacred Heart invades the unbeaten Titans' gym.

★ ★ ★

PCH will be trying to run its undefeated mark to four games at winless Saginaw Arthur Hill in the first West Division game for both teams. Northern appears to have the stiffest test at Livonia Stevenson in an early Inter-Lakes League showdown.

Walled Lake Central plays at Waterford and Lathrup is at Farmington for other I-L contests.

Midland and Saginaw proved to be 20 or more points better than Arthur Hill and the Lumberjacks were dumped, 83-80, Tuesday by Saginaw McArthur.

INCONSISTENT PLAY

Although the Chiefs are being called the class of either SVA division, they have been inconsistent in their last two outings against Flint Southwestern and Flint Central.

Both contests were marked by fast PCH starts, a sag early in the fourth quarter and spurts at the end.

★ ★ ★

Livonia Stevenson and PNH were expected to be the top teams in the I-L and nothing has cropped up so far to indicate otherwise. Both are unbeaten in three starts and are 1-0 in league play.

Northern will be hampered by the loss of Dave Clancy who is out with a leg injury. He is expected to miss next Tuesday's game with PCH and the Dec. 27 contest against Catholic.

BIG HANDICAP

"Dave's loss is going to be a big handicap in all three games," said PNH coach Dick Hall. Clancy and Chuck Moncrief have been the key players in Northern's success and much of the scoring load will be shifted to Moncrief.

Stevenson is not a tall team, but the Spartans are excellent ball handlers and like to work in close for the percentage shot. They also are tough on defense.

★ ★ ★

Walled Lake Central has been somewhat of a surprise. The Vikings have won both their games and are slight favorites to trip Waterford which is 1-2.

Coach John Oswald lost two key players to Western after Central posted a 3-15 mark last season and the outlook was gloomy. However, Oswald probably would like a little breathing room. The victories over Plymouth and Farmington were posted in the last seconds.

Farmington has been the big disappointment and could have difficulty rebounding from the one point loss to WL Central and Tuesday's 110-74 sacking by Southfield. Lathrup is 1-2 and expected to improve as the season progresses.

FIRST PLACE

Pontiac Catholic is expected to continue its first place standing in the Catholic League's A-West division at the expense of Dearborn Sacred Heart.

The Class C Titans will be playing their first "C" opponent. Other members of the A-West are A or B schools. Catholic has taken the measure of all six and a victory of Sacred Heart would give them a first half sweep.

Conigliaro Gets Hutch Award by Edging Seaver

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Boston Red Sox outfielder Tony Conigliaro was named the 1969 winner Wednesday of the Hutch Award, edging Tom Seaver of the New York Mets in the closest vote in the award's five-year history.

The award by vote of sports writers and broadcasters across the nation goes to the player who "best exemplifies the fighting spirit and burning desire of the late Fred Hutchinson," a major league pitcher and manager who was felled by cancer.

The top five in this year's voting were Conigliaro, Seaver, Atlanta Braves outfielder Hank Aaron, Mets outfielder Tommy Agee and Minnesota infielder Harmon Killebrew.

Conigliaro was sidelined the entire 1968 season after he was struck in the face the year before by a wild pitch. He made a miraculous comeback this year.

'M' Gridders Westward Ho!

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan's Wolverines have just completed their final exams but one more big test remains—the Rose Bowl game New Year's Day against Southern Cal.

Michigan, Big Ten football cochampion with an 8-2 over-all record, was scheduled to fly to Pasadena, Calif., to begin preparations for the big game. A traveling squad of 50 players, plus coaches, wives and newsmen, was to depart on a charter flight from Detroit's Metropolitan Airport at 1:30 p.m. EST and arrive at Los Angeles International Airport at 3 p.m. PST.

"Right now we've just got to get back in shape and try and think football," said U-M coach Glenn "Bo" Schembechler. He sent his team through four days of full equipment practices last week. Sixteen full practice days are allowed by Rose Bowl rules.

Balanced Butler Tops Spartans; Simpson Hits 25

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — All five Butler starters scored in double figures Wednesday night to lead the Bulldogs to an 81-60 college basketball victory over Michigan State.

★ ★ ★

Sophomore Bill Shepherd topped Butler with 22 points. The game's leading scorer, Spartan sophomore Ralph Simpson, tossed in 25 points, but no teammate had more than eight.

The other Butler leaders were Bob Schroeder with 17, Floyd Garrott 14 and Dave Bennett and Steve Norris 12 each.

Butler led at halftime 36-26.

Three Actual's Squads Slated in Invitational of Tournament

Three squads of bowlers will take the lanes at 300 Bowl Sunday morning for the 13th annual Actual's Invitational being held in conjunction with the Pontiac Open Bowling championship.

Invitations have been extended to all Pontiac Open entries with averages of 184 and higher or those who rolled 617 actual during their qualifying rounds.

The pot has been sweetened for the Actual's bowlers with $250 going to the winner along with a trophy.

Each bowler entering the invitational shall register 15 minutes before his squad time and pay $5.00 for bowling, scoring and the added purse.

The tournament fund will add the balance of the Actual's prizes covering the top 10 bowlers.

The Actual's has always been the prestige portion of the tournament with the top bowlers of the Pontiac area competing against each other.

Runner-up in the Actual's will receive $150 plus a trophy and third place winner will earn $100. Other prizes to follow are $75, $50 and the next five at $25.

In the past, the tournament fund gave a prize of $50 to the winner and this was later upped to $100 and trophy.

★ ★ ★

Bowlers who entered the tournament with an average of 184 or better or who fired a 617 Actual during their qualifying round (this does not pertain to semifinals) and who do not find their names listed should call Shirley Pointer at Firebird Lanes to be added.

Some names may have been missed inadvertently.

SQUAD TIMES

The first squad will take the lanes at 10:00 a.m., followed by 11:30 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. squads.

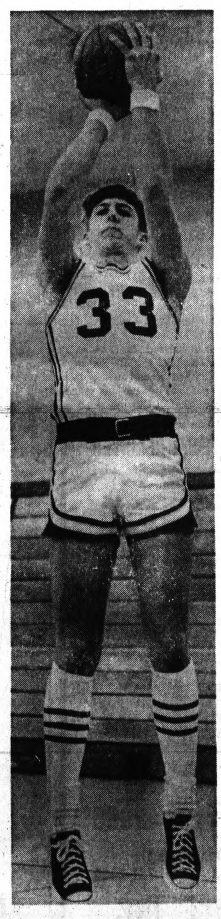

Bowlers have been assigned so as not to conflict with their squads should they be part of the finals of the tournament proper.

The tournament finals are set for Airway Lanes at 1:00, 2:30 and 4:00 p.m. These pairings will be announced tomorrow.

CMU Blitzes Akron With Balanced Attack

MOUNT PLEASANT (AP) — Central Michigan University spurted to a 36-22 halftime lead and went on to crush Akron 81-63 in a basketball match Wednesday. Akron's Bob Carlton was the game's high scorer with 20 points. The Chippewas had four men in double figures led by Jim Turner with 16.

FIRED UP DRAGON—Lake Orion's Oakland-A challengers won't match Romeo's height, but the Dragons will get strong rebounding and scoring from senior Ed Kubilus in the big clash at Romeo tonight.

Gets MVP Award

Gabriel Tops NFL

NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Gabriel, the sturdy Los Angeles Rams' quarterback who reached his peak in 1969, has been voted the Most Valuable Player in the National Football League by a 48-man panel of writers and sportscasters for The Associated Press.

GABRIEL

The 6-foot-4, 220-pound former North Carolina State passer led the Rams to the Coastal Division title with room to spare and was roaring toward an unbeaten season until upended by the Minnesota Vikings Dec. 7.

★ ★ ★

Gabriel received 21 full votes and a portion of another ballot that was split among Gabriel, Calvin Hill of Dallas and Joe Kapp of Minnesota.

KAPP CLOSEST

Kapp, the man who helped engineer the Rams' defeat at the hands of the Vikings, was Gabriel's closest competitor with eight votes. Carl Eller, the Minnesota defensive end who leads the charge of the Purple Gang, was next with seven, an unusually high total for a defensive player.

★ ★ ★

Sonny Jurgensen, called by Washington Coach Vince Lombardi the greatest quarterback in the game, and perhaps ever, had four votes for his efforts in leading the Redskins to their best record since 1955.

Calvin Hill, the surprising Dallas rookie from Yale, also had four votes and a portion of a fifth.

Deacon Jones, veteran Los Angeles defensive end Dick Butkus, the Chicago Bears' super middle linebacker, and Alex Karras, Detroit's fine defensive tackle, each had one.

★ ★ ★

The honors were won last year by Earl Morrall, who led Baltimore to the league title as a fill-in for the injured John Unitas. Morrall, used sparingly this year, did not get a vote.

Some knowing football people put Gabriel in the same class with Green Bay's Bart Starr in his mastery of ball-control plays. In addition to throwing 23 touchdowns and competing 204 of 375 passes for 2,439 yards, Gabe also can take off with the ball.

He ranks third on the team as a rusher and has carried the ball into the end zone for five touchdowns.

Life in Steel Ends for Penny

BRIDGEND, Wales (AP) — James Howell, 58, who feeds coke into a furnace of a local steelplant, won $632,786 dollars on a soccer pool Wednesday and prepared to lay down his shovel.

"I reckon the steel works can do without me from now on," said Howell, a family man with a daughter and two grandchildren.

It was Howell's first success in 25 years of trying.

He had a winning line costing one cent, picking all seven of last Saturday's soccer games which ended in ties.

Pistons Waive Rookie

DETROIT (UPI — The Detroit Pistons Wednesday asked waivers on rookie guard George Reynolds to make room for forward Steve Mix, another rookie returning on leave from a six-month tour with the Army reserves.

Bill Munson Week's Top Pro Player

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Munson, given a chance to get back at the team that traded him away, shot down the Los Angeles Rams Sunday with two long touchdown passes.

MUNSON

Munson, shuffled to the Lions in 1968 after four years with the Rams, earned The Associated Press' nomination as Offensive Player of the Week in the National Football League for his part in a 28-0 victory over Los Angeles.

A shoulder injury to Greg Landry, who had taken over when Munson suffered a hand injury in the fourth game, put Munson back in the starting lineup. After a 17-17 tie with Baltimore, the former Utah State quarterback beat the Rams with touchdown passes of 32 and 62 yards.

"Bill Munson did a fine job and I told him so after the game," said George Allen, coach of the Rams, who had a hand in trading him to Detroit.

Joe Kapp, Minnesota's quarterback, kept the Vikings' 12-game winning streak alive with a 51-yard scoring pass to Gene Washington and a 10-7 edge over San Francisco, despite Steve Spurrier's job of completing 26 of 48 passes for 292 yards.

Vikings' Coach Accorded Honor in Wire Voting

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — If Harry "Bud" Grant had been, in his own words, "Good enough" as a professional basketball player, he might not have ever gotten involved with professional football.

★ ★ ★

But Grant wasn't, at least in his own mind, so after two years in the National Basketball Association with the Minneapolis Lakers, he became a Philadelphia Eagle, later switched to Canadian football, became a coach and came back to the National Football League three years ago.

★ ★ ★

Grant, now coach of the Minnesota Vikings, was named Coach of the Year in the NFL by an overwhelming vote of a panel for The Associated Press.

He was also chosen by UPI today.

The former basketball player received 42 full votes to two for his nearest competitor, Tom Landry, coach of the Dallas Cowboys.

★ ★ ★

Receiving one ballot each were Vince Lombardi of Washington, Blanton Collier of Cleveland and George Allen of Los Angeles. One vote was split three ways among Grant, Landry and Allen.

PNH Matmen Are Favored

Pontiac Northern is favored to top a field of 32 high school teams Friday and Saturday in the Holiday Invitational wrestling tournament at Oakland University.

★ ★ ★

Because there will be over 380 competitors, PNH's strength could be dissipated before the finals.

Clarkston, Detroit Catholic Central, Hazel Park and Pontiac Central are PNH's leading challengers.

The preliminaries will be 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. Friday. Semifinals will get under way at 11 a.m. Saturday and the consolation and championship matches at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Some of the individual favorites will be Heavyweight Mario Castillo of Pontiac Northern, world junior Olympics wrestlers Bill Davids (115) of Hazel Park and Joe Gonzales (123) of Madison and 130-pounders Randy Hyde of Walled Lake Western and Jack Dunn of PNH.

Macomb Nips Orchard Five

Late Rally Falls Short in 77-75 Loss

Oakland Community College Orchard Ridge last a see-saw overtime contest to Macomb County Community College Wednesday night by a 77-75 count.

The losers took a 63-62 lead in the last minute of regulation time, but saw it become a 64-63 deficit on a basket by Jerry Carter. Gary Waters then hit a free throw to tie the score and send the game into overtime.

With 50 seconds left in the extra period, Macomb held a 77-70 lead, but Orchard Ridge cut that to two points before time ran out.

Carter and Curt Holmes paced the losers with 28 and 25 points, respectively. Waters was tops for the winners with 24, while Gil Mitchell hit for 17 and Alex Agee canned 16 for Macomb.

Orchard Ridge is now 2-3 on the year and 0-3 in the Michigan Community College league.

Auburn Hills Suffers First Loss of Season

Oakland Community College Auburn Hills suffered its first basketball defeat of the season Wednesday, an 84-80 trimming by Washtenaw Community College.

The winners overcame a 25-point performance by Richard Neal with four men in double figures, led by Lewis Weathers with 23 and Bob Cummings with 21.

Dewayne Blanchard had 19 for the losers while Larry Middlebrooks chipped in 16 in the Auburn Hills cause.

★ ★ ★

Joining Weathers and Cummings in double figures for Washtenaw were Joe Frye and Skip Hendrix, both with 19 points.

Auburn Hills is now 4-1.

Rangers in Draw

Goalie Assist Aids Tie

Things were getting drastic—so drastic, in fact, that goalies Ed Giacomin and Al Smith took things into their own hands.

The New York Rangers were trailing Philadelphia 2-1 with time running out Wednesday night when Giacomin's clearing pass led to Dave Balon's game-tying goal and a 2-2 National Hockey League deadlock with the Flyers.

Smith, the pugnacious Pittsburgh goalie, didn't fare quite as well as Giacomin. He left his net to join in a first period brawl against Montreal, drawing an automatic $100 fine for his troubles and then returned to the goal and quickly gave up a score to J. C. Tremblay. That broke a 1-1 tie and started the Canadiens to a 5-2 romp over the Penguins.

In other games, Los Angeles beat Chicago 3-1 and Oakland defeated Minnesota 3-1.

Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent kicked out 46 Ranger shots—21 of them in the second period—and was leading 2-0 on goals by Joe Watson and Lew Morrison.

LOSES PUCK

But Balon got the Rangers on the scoreboard when he swiped a loose puck into the corner of the Flyers' net early in the third period.

Then, with 3:20 left to play, Giacomin's clearing pass to Walt Tkaczuk led to Balon's second goal and the tie. It was the first assist in his NHL career for the goalie.

★ ★ ★

"That evened things up," said Giacomin. "I gave them their first goal when I lost sight of the puck and Watson poked it in."

Smith got into his third scrap of the season when he took on Terry Harper of the Canadiens. It must have worn him out because less than a minute after play resumed, Tremblay scored the Canadiens' go-ahead goal.

Henri Richard scored two goals and assisted on another for Montreal, which moved into for Montreal, which moved into a second place tie with idle Boston in the NHL's East Division, three points back of New York.

Los Angeles rewarded new Coach Johnny Wilson with his first victory on a third-period comeback. Cliff Koroll had given the Hawks a 1-0 lead in the first period. The Kings bunched their goals in the final stanza with Eddie Shack, Jimmy Peters and Butch Goring clicking.

Earl Ingarfield powered Oakland's triumph over Minnesota with a pair of third-period goals. Danny Grant scored the North Stars' lone goal in the first period and Gary Jarrett tied it for the Seals in the middle stanza.

2 Chip Gridders Among Top 10 in National Statistics

MOUNT PLEASANT (AP) — Two Central Michigan football players finished among the top ten in separate categories in statistics released by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for college division teams.

Junior placekicker John Paboski of Warren finished seventh among kicking specialists with 52 points on 28 conversion kicks and eight field goals. Meanwhile, sophomore tailback Jesse Lakes of Flint, who set a CMU season rushing record of 1,263 yards, was eighth nationally in that category.

As a team, the Chippewas piled up 2,900 yards rushing for the eighth best mark nationally.

Big Ten's Only Unbeaten

Illini Open 2-City Tourney

CHICAGO (AP) — A tournament of two cities, the Illinois-Chicago Loyola Classic, opens at Champaign, Ill., Thursday night with the host Illini taking on the University of Detroit as the Big Ten's only unbeaten basketball team.

In the opener of the four-team tourney at Champaign's Assembly Hall, Loyola (3-2) faces Wichita State (4-3). The final round will be played Saturday night at the Chicago Stadium with the losers facing in the opener and the winners in the nightcap.

Two other Big Ten teams see action Thursday night. Once-beaten Purdue (4-1), minus injured Rick Mount, is host to Kent State. Iowa (2-1) invades Cincinnati.

TWO FRONTS

Although the Illinois - Loyola Classic will be played on two fronts, it marks the first college tournament involving the Chicago Stadium since two - day round robins were played there in the 1940's.

Illinois is heavily favored to add Detroit (1-4) to a string of victories already including Butler, Georgia, DePauw and Creighton.

★ ★ ★

Detroit is struggling with a strong schedule which the Titans figured to handle ably before Olympic star Spencer Haywood turned pro.

"We won't be looking past Detroit," said Illini coach Harv Schmidt. "Even in their losses, against good teams, they have shown potential to be really tough."

Loyola's two losses were inflicted by strong Kansas and Indiana of the Big Ten. Wichita State holds victories over Oregon, Arizona State, Kansas State and St. Louis, and lost in an overtime to Nebraska.

Orioles' Star Betters, Ties Glove Marks

BOSTON (AP) — Brooks Robinson broke one major league record and tied another this year in leading Baltimore's pennant-winning Orioles to domination of the American League fielding statistics.

★ ★ ★

The slick-fielding third baseman tied with Washington's Ken McMullen at .9761 for the best average, becoming the only man in either league ever to lead at his position nine times. His previous titles came in 1960, 1961, 1962, 1963, 1964, 1966, 1967 and 1968.

★ ★ ★

Robinson also had 370 assists to lead the league in that category for the seventh time. This broke his own AL record for most years as leader and tied him with Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs for the major league high.

Santo missed his chance of staying ahead of Robinson when he finished second in assists in the National League this year to Tony Perez of Cincinnati.

Spencer Rec Rips Lounge

Spencer's Floor Covering remained unbeaten in Waterford Recreation basketball Wednesday by riding Earl Hook's 25-point performance to a 101-85 win over 300 Lounge.

The winners had four men in double figures as they raced to their third win of the season while handing 300 Lounge its second setback against one victory. Ike Askew had 22 points in the losing effort.

Morlan Collision took over second place with an 87-86 overtime win over Schram Auto Parts in Wednesday's other game. A tip-in by Jim Patterson at the overtime buzzer won the game. Patterson finished with 31 points, but game scoring honors went to the losers' Bruce McDonald, who hit for 33 points.

Hillsdale 2nd in Tourney After Defeat

SPRING ARBOR (AP)— Tri-State College of Indiana overcame a 38-40 halftime deficit to down Hillsdale 80-69 and win the Kiwanis Classic basketball tournament at Spring Arbor College Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

Hillsdale's John Kirk was high scorer in the game with 23 points, while Bob Livingston led Tri-State with 20.

The match for third place was a scorefest with Urbana of Ohio emerging the victor 137-124 over Calvary of Kentucky. Both teams passed the century mark with seven minutes remaining and the high scoring victory allowed Urbana to conclude the tournament with a 118-point per game scoring average.

★ ★ ★

Judson of Illinois, led by Bob Billar's 41-point performance, won fifth place over host Spring Arbor 105-95. Jerry Neigh was high for Spring Arbor with 23.

Don Eads scored 34 points to set a three-game tournament mark of 118, but it wasn't enough to save his Mount Vernon of Ohio team from a 96-90 defeat for seventh place at the hands of Detroit's Mercy College.

Win Seventh Straight

Iba's Cowboys Slow Down, Edge Texas

By the Associated Press

Henry Iba is getting ready to retire on his laurels . . . and his laurels right now read 7-0.

Iba's 36th and final season at Oklahoma State—he turned 65 last August—wasn't supposed to be a howling success. After all, in the Big Eight, a league in which every other school had front-line players coming back and four teams returned all five starters, the Cowboys, with all their starters gone, figured to be in trouble.

But, as usual, Henry Iba has the prescription for victory, which is what you might expect from a coach whose pre-season record showed 753 victories against only 326 defeats, two Olympic championships, two national championships, 14 Missouri Valley titles and one Big Eight crown.

RIGHT MOVES

Iba came up with the right move at the right time again Wednesday night. The Cowboys had just seen a 12-point lead whittled to three by Texas, the Southwest Conference favorites, when the veteran coach, whose teams have been known for their disciplined style, ordered a slowdown with just over seven minutes to go.

★ ★ ★

It paid off with a 54-51 triumph, seventh of the season for the unbeaten Cowboys. The deliberate offense shook Sparky Grober and Paul Mullen loose for easy layups that iced the game.

The only team in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action was Ohio University and the unbeaten Bobcats rallied from an 18-9 deficit to beat Northern Illinois 84-72. Cleveland Ivey and Craig Love (former Groves player) led the way with 26 and 20 points respectively.

OTHERS IN ACTION

Two members of the Second Ten were in action—against each other—and 19th-ranked Houston came away with a 91-76 victory over 11th-ranked Santa Clara. Both teams had been unbeaten previously.

★ ★ ★

Ollie Taylor paced the Cougars with 29 points, Melvin Hill and Jeff Hickman added 18 apiece and Dwight Davis scored 11 and blocked 10 shots in a head-to-head confrontation with Dennis Awtrey. Awtrey managed 21 points but Ralph Ogden was high for the losers with 23.

★ ★ ★

Columbia, another unbeaten, spotted Fordham the first two points in overtime, then reeled off 13 in a row to beat the Rams 80-69 and snap their home court winning streak at 25 games. Jim McMillian was high with 35 points.

North Carolina State made it five straight, defeating Auburn 76-69 behind sophomore Paul Coder's 31 points. Butch Zatezalo hit eight of 11 shots in the second half as Clemson held off Auburn 104-95.

Princeton turned back Navy 67-60 with Jeff Petrie and John Hummer splitting 20 points. It was Petrie's first appearance of the season after being sidelined with a back injury which he suffered playing pool.

In other top games, it was Missouri 81, Colorao State U. 55; Butler 81, Michigan State 60; DePaul 93, St. Mary's, Calif. 89; Wake Forest 53, East Carolina 52; Southwestern Louisiana 69, West Texas State 67.

Kentucky Wesleyan, the nation's No. 1 small college team, got by Evansville 80-74.

Miami's Rally Just Misses in ABA Clash

By the Associated Press

Miami's last-ditch effort fell just a bit short against Indiana while New Orleans' late heroics proved too much for the New York Nets.

Indiana, leaders in the East Division, hung on for a 101-100 decision over the Floridians and the Bucs, first in the West, overwhelmed the Nets in a 38-17 last period spurt for a 111-100 victory Wednesday night in American Basketball Association games.

In other ABA action, in a doubleheader at Los Angeles, Kentucky beat Washington 124-117 and Los Angeles whipped Carolina 105-98.

The Floridians had gamely battled from a 13-point fourth quarter deficit to a two-point edge when John Barnhill of the Pacers dropped in a three-point basket with six seconds left for the Indiana victory.

Stay in Last Place

Pistons Blow 13-Point Lead 114-107

By the Associated Press

The Detroit Pistons had to blow a 13-point lead to do it—but they have managed to stay a spell in the cellar of the National Basketball Association's East Division.

Detroit lost Wednesday night, 114-107, to the San Diego Rockets. It was the Pistons fourth straight loss.

In other games, Boston stayed just a half-game ahead of Detroit, as the Celts lost to Milwaukee 124-106.

Baltimore outlasted Atlanta 138-133 and Seattle topped Cincinnati 117-104 in the other NBA games.

FROM BEHIND

In the game at Detroit, San Diego was down by as many as 13 points in the early going, but sputered ahead by 11 points in the third quarter.

The Pistons turned it on in the final quarter after trailing 99-89 with 7:20 to go and finally took the lead at 100-99 on a threepoint play by Jimmy Walker.

But the Rockets' Toby Kimball followed with two free throws to put San Diego ahead. Then Jim Barnett poured it on with seven of his team's nine points in the final 2½ minutes of play.

Barnett, with 21 points, topped the winners. Walker, with 21, and Dave Bing and Howard Komives with 17 points, topped Detroit's scorers.

Lew Alcindor, Flynn Robinson and Jon McGlocklin sparked the Milwaukee streak that beat Boston with four points each. Alcindor finished with 29 points, Robinson 27 and McGlocklin 20. Henry Finkel scored 23 for the Celtics who had a three-game winning streak snapped.

Baltimore, second in the East, jumped to a 39-25 lead after one quarter by hitting 16 of 24 field goal attempts and Western Division-leading Atlanta could not get the lead although the Hawks tied the game six times in the last half.

Jack Marin scored 32 points and Gus Johnson set up many baskets and led the assault on the boards for Baltimore. Lou Hudson fired in 44 points for Atlanta.

Rookie Lucius Allen scored a career high of 23 points, 10 in the third period, as Seattle overcame a 17-point deficit in defeating Cincinnati. Oscar Robertson led the Royals with 28 points.

UP IN AIR—Bob Smith (32) of the San Diego Rockets and Detroit Piston Erwin Mueller are both up in the air during action in the second quarter of their game in Detroit yesterday. The Pistons lost the game, 114-107, to remain in last place in the NBA's East Division.

Huskies Toppled Despite Record

FAIRFIELD, Iowa (AP) — Larry Grimes' team record of 40 points was not enough to save the Huskies as Michigan Tech was defeated 99-95 by John F. Kennedy College in the opening round of the Iowa Corn Classic basketball tournament at Parsons College Wednesday. Michigan Tech was to meet Midwestern College of Denison, Iowa, in a consolation match today.

Kicking Duel Seen in AFL Playoff

Jets' Turner vs. Stenerud

Shea Stadium Called Poor Kicking Park

NEW YORK (AP) — If Saturday's American Football League playoff scruffle at Shea Stadium comes down to a toe-to-toe duel between two of the game's premier place kickers, New York's Jim Turner figures the winter wind could be his ally — and a formidable foe for Kansas City ace Jan Stenerud.

"Do I have an advantage here? I would hope so," Turner said Wednesday as the Jets drilled for their date with the powerful Chiefs. "Jan doesn't have to kick in a wind tunnel like this very often. It's the worst park in football for a place kicker."

* * *

Turner, who has been battling the tricky Shea wind currents for six years, captured his second successive scoring title this season with 129 points. His toe has made the difference in five of New York's 10 victories.

Stenerud, the Chiefs' Norwegian-born soccer-style specialist, fell 10 points short of Turner's total, but set an all-time pro mark of 16 consecutive field goals before missing a 38-yarder at Oakland last Sunday.

"He's one of the best in the business," Turner said. "Sure, he missed one. And I've hit the crossbar from 10 yards out. He's not a machine, and neither am I—even though some people seem to think so."

Turner expects to huddle with Stenerud before the kickoff Saturday. "We're very good friends," the Jet veteran said.

While his Jet teammates prepare themselves mentally for individual match-ups against the Chiefs, Turner keeps tabs on the weather man.

The Shea turf was relatively soft Wednesday as the defending Super Bowl champs worked out in blustery, 30-degree weather. Turner hopes for a firm track Saturday, but he's not counting on it.

Raiders in Favorites Role

OAKLAND (AP) — Houston doesn't dispute the odds listing the Oakland Raiders as 13-point favorites to win their American Football League playoff game here Sunday, but the Oilers still think they can prove them wrong.

"Off the comparative records of the two teams," said Houston publicist Jim McLemore, who preceded the team here, "I would say the spread seems about right. But I think the game may be a lot closer."

The Oilers pin much of their hopes for an upset — which would get them into the AFL title game against the winner of Saturday's New York-Kansas City game—on the performance of quarterback Pete Beathard.

"In the last five games," said McLemore, "Pete has looked the best since we've had him. He's beginning to arrive at being the football player people expected him to be."

Benched in favor of Bob Davis at the start of a game with Boston last week, Beathard came on to complete 17 of 24 passes for 250 yards and two touchdowns as the Oilers made up a 16-point deficit and beat the Patriots 27-23.

GOOD SHAPE

In addition, the Oilers, 6-6-2, will be in their best physical condition of the year. Beathard suffered an ankle sprain late in the game last week, but it turned out to be minor and he will start against the Raiders, who finished the regular season at 12-1-1.

* * *

Nor does the Houston quarterback lack for receivers. Alvin Reid leads the AFL's tight ends in receptions with 51. Jerry Levias and Jim Beirne each have 42.

Levias, also the Oilers' top punt and kickoff return man, ha smoved in at one of the starting wide receiving slots after a shaky start.

"Jerry gives us a new dimension," said McLemore, "since he's moved in as a starter. He's the most exciting player we've ever had."

The Raiders also are concerned about Houston's ground game.

Hoyle Granger, healthy for the first time last week, gained 139 yards on 25 carries. Woody Campbell has also come on strong in the Oilers' backfield after returning from 10 months duty in Vietnam.

Sanders Tops Charity Meet

HOUSTON (AP) — The First Cystic Fibrosis Golf Tournament has collected $12,000 for the general fund.

* * *

Some of the top touring professionals played for charity in the tournament Wednesday on the Houston Country Club Course.

* * *

Doug Sanders was the low pro with a six-under-par 66.

Fred Marti and Don Massengale scored 69s. Marty Fleckman, Miller Barber, Homero Blancos and Babe Hiskey posted 70s.

Lee Trevino, the 1968 U.S. Open champion, was delayed by weather conditions and only played nine holes. He did not report a score.

Set Sudden Death Rules

NEW YORK (AP) — All professional football conference and league championship games in both the National Football League and the American Football League will go to a sudden death period if the score is tied after regulation time.

Under the rules, announced Wednesday from the office of Commissioner Pete Rozelle, the following procedure will be followed:

"The team scoring first during overtime play shall be the winner. The game is automatically ended upon any score (including a safety) or when a score is awarded by the referee for a palpably unfair act.

"At the end of regulation playing time, referee will immediately toss a coin, at center of field, in accordance with rules pertaining to usual pregame toss. Visiting team captain is again to call toss.

"Following a three minute intermission after the end of the regular game, play shall continue by 15 minute periods and a two minute intermission between each such overtime period with no halftime intermission. Teams will change goals between each period.

* * *

"The rules for game timing and team timeouts shall be the same as in a regular game, including the last two minutes of the second and fourth quarter."

Clemson Picks Football Coach

CLEMSON, S.C. (UPI) — Cecil "Hootie" Ingram was officially presented as Clemson University's new head football coach Wednesday, replacing Frank Howard, who last week relinquished the post after 30 years.

* * *

Ingram, Arkansas defensive coach, signed a five-year contract at an undisclosed salary.

Penny For Thoughts On Skiing

1—Parallel Skiing

By PENNY PITOU
Written for NEA

Q—Is there a drift away from pure parallel skiing (keeping the skis together) and, if so, why?

A—Absolutely. Everyone has his own style and a person's style depends on the way he's built, his own physical strength, and how much skiing he has done before and just how well technically he skis. Nancy Greene, for example, says it's most comfortable for her to ski with her skis four inches apart. Egon Zimmerman, on the other hand, can't ski with his skis apart. He has long legs and finds it most comfortable when his skis are together. It's all a matter of finding one's own balance point. Now, on a straight downhill run, it makes little difference if the skis are an inch, two inches or four inches apart. But traversing a hill, for example, with skis from four to eight inches apart, is tiring. It's much easier to ski, strength-wise, with your skis together. Skiing on one leg at a time takes more physical strength. It's possible even to weddell with skis a little bit apart, but again it requires considerable physical strength. For the average skier, I'd recommend he find the balance point which is most comfortable to him, and then do his own thing.

Canada, Russia Disagree Over Using Ice Pros

WINNIPEG (AP) — If Canada persists in using nine professionals in the World Hockey Tournament next year against an International Olympic Committee decree the Russians will stay at home, a Soviet official said Wednesday night.

George Losolov, president of the Russian Ice Hockey Federation, was commenting at a news conference on statements by IOC President Avery Brundage of Cnicago that any amateur team who plays against professionals may lose Olympic eligibility.

Buck Houle, general manager of Canada's national hockey team, answered that Hockey Canada will absolutely abide by rules set down at the International Ice Hockey Federation's meeting in Switzerland. Those rules allow Canada to use nine professionals in its 1970 World Tournament line-up.

Timberlee to Host Junior Ski Camp

Timberlee Hills, at Traverse City, Michigan, will host its First Annual Junior Ski Racing Camps from December 21 through December 24, 1969, announced Viktor Weyand, Timberlee Hills general manager.

Boyne Chosen for Site of Alpine Meet

GREAT FALLS, MONT. — For the first time in the history of the U.S. Ski Association, the Midwest has been awarded a sanctioned Alpine competition, it was announced at the association's convention here.

Alpine committee officials approved a bid made by Central division president, Carl Grebe of Midland, Michigan, to host a slalom meet February 21 at Boyne Mountain, Boyne Falls, Michigan.

★ ★ ★

Grebe, who had campaigned for two years to win approval of such a meet on Midwestern ski slopes, expressed appreciation for the decision and said: "We've finally overcome the image of being a region of nothing but flatland. Our next goal is to gain a sanctioned international meet.

Competitors in the Boyne meet will be accorded International Ski Federation racing points on the basis of their performances.

N. Farmington Wins on Bars

Lee Katterman turned in a 51.3-point parallel-bars performance to lead North Farmington to a 107.08-65.39 win over Flat Rock in a gymnastics meet Wednesday.

North Farmington is now unbeaten in three starts.

Lawmakers 'Ski Flying'

LANSING (UPI) — The Michigan House voted Wednesday night to send five of its members to the International Ski Flying meet at the Copper Peak ski flying complex in the Upper Peninsula in February.

★ ★ ★

The resolution authorizing the trip, which was passed by the Senate Tuesday, authorizes expenses of up to $2,500 for the five House members appointed to attend the three-day meet. Similar expenses will be allowed for Senate members who attend.

★ ★ ★

The legislators, who will be named at a later date, will serve as "official state of Michigan host" for the event, the resolution said.

The House vote was 97-4, with objections coming from Rep. Ray Banker, R-Farmington, who said it was "a travesty on the people of Michigan spending money like this.

"It's time the membership of this body takes a look at some of these things," he said.

★ ★ ★

The joint legislative committee was directed "to investigate all facts with respect to participation and to report findings and recommendations" back to the Legislature.

The Copper Peak ski flying complex is the only such complex in the Western Hemisphere and is only the fifth such complex in the world.

★ ★ ★

An international field of ski jumpers from eight nations will attend the international meet next Feb. 27, 28 and March 1.

SNOW SAFARI by Ed Russell

So you want to buy a snowmobile and join 300,000 other fans? If you're not familiar with the many different makes on the market, be prepared for a shock. You'll have more than 60 brands to choose from, each make offering several models.

Most snowmobiles have a pair of skis up front powered by an endless loop track 4 feet long. Cycle-type handle bars steer the skis. On the right is a spring-loaded, thumb-push throttle; on the left, a brake lever.

★ ★ ★

An automatic torque converter coupled to a roller chain drive is characteristic of the snowmobile power train. From here on similarities end.

WEIGHTS

Although snowmobiles weigh in at 150 to 600 lbs., the vast majority of them go between 300 and 350 lbs. The numerous two-cycle engines on the market from 227 to 649 cc's give an excellent power to weight ratio.

Several larger snowmobile models are also driven by rotary engines.

Many snowmobiles have flip-up hoods, for easier access. While you're checking under the hood look to see if drive shaft and idler shaft bearings are pre-lubricated and sealed for longer wear.

A good feature to watch for is a twin drive chain with oil bath lubrication. The extra chain gives back-up protection should one break when you're far from civilization. The oil bath makes for cooler, quieter running.

When snowmobiles first came out one of the most common complaints was the noise. Make sure the muffler on your prospective machine is tuned for quiet running without cutting down too much on horsepower. Also much improved are compression release mechanisms and priming bulbs to help recoil starts.

If you plan on running at high altitudes a dash-mounted carburetor jet control is an option that will save stopping and fumbling under the hood to regulate fuel and air mixture. Electric start is also offered by most manufacturers.

Guinness, Harris 'Squaring Off' in 'Cromwell'

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Britain's past, its civil war of some 300 years ago, is the subject of a new motion picture, "Cromwell." A knight—Sir Alec Guinness—plays the king and an Irishman, Richard Harris, the rebellious upstart of the title who overthrows him and takes over the royal reins.)

LONDON (AP) — Sir Alec Guinness, dressed in royal robes, looked over the rounds of the vast Hatfield House estate as though he, indeed, owned it.

An entourage of makeup and costume men surrounded him, one combing his wig, another covering up a facial smudge, a third holding an umbrella to shield him from the misty rain falling on this north of London estate.

* * *

In this fantasy world of film making, where illusion jousts with reality, the regal and dignified British actor seemed sublimely right for the role of the courtly King Charles I in the movie, "Cromwell."

* * *

Nearby was Richard Harris, he, too, in 17th century costume-cum-wig. The rugged-looking, Irish-born six-footer with the off-screen "bad boy" reputation traded jokes with his stand-in, eyed the lady extras, joked about giving up drinking because of a "telegram from my liver."

SQUARE OFF

Guinness and Harris squared off on this Hatfield House location, rented for the filming, in an attempt to answer the cinematic question: Can a U.S. movie company spend $8 million or more on English history and still find happiness?

The endeavor takes on special significance at this time, when most Hollywood companies are economizing, shying from big-budget pictures, with some dropping several film projects altogether.

* * *

Columbia Pictures, perhaps the most successful film company now around, thinks it's worth the gamble. At least it thought so when it first got into the project about a year ago—when the production budget was "only" about $6.5 billion.

Irving Allen surely thinks so, but then he's the producer. He is quick to cite the success of other historical dramas, such as "A Man for All Seasons" and "Lion in Winter."

VARIED CREDITS

The job of proving it can be done is primarily in the hands of Ken Hughes, the director, who has done such varied pictures as "Oscar Wilde" and "Chitty, Chitty, Bang, Bang."

"Oscar Wilde," not so incidentally, was shot in about six weeks and cost as much as the second unit alone on "Cromwell," about $1 million.

"You can't make a cheap version of this," Hughes insisted of "Cromwell." "You have a sense of responsibility."

* * *

And he thinks this is the right time for such a film. "Straight" history, he feels, is more popular now—"people are more intelligent, more interested." And changes in the film industry, he believes, have made it possible now to propose more intelligent subjects.

Hughes wrote the original script, from John Buchan's book, about eight years ago—"when it 'weighed' about $10 million." But no major film company would touch it them. Columbia eventually picked it up and shooting began about a year ago, in Spain and various locations in Britain, and just recently wound up. It is planned as a reserved-seat attraction.

'LITTLE DONE'

"We've done so little with our (English) history," complained Hughes. "Oh, we've done romantic history. Henry VIII throwing chicken bones around. And America has done its civil war to death. But we've never, ever, really filmed ours, although there are 20,000 books on the subject.

"It's pretty exciting stuff. Democracy in 1640. We were the first to do it—then screw it up. But this fight put the king and the government in their proper places."

* * *

The film tells basically of Cromwell's exploits in Ireland filmed in Spain), where the Puritan leader was sent by the Protestant Parliament, which feared a Catholic take-over of England during the civil war period. When Cromwell returned, he stormed Parliament with his troops, dissolved it and set himself up as a virtual dictator.

It's all being done on a large screen, color, big battle scenes —but Hughes doesn't see much difference in directing the big or the small film.

"The essence of film making is still drama. And the drama in this one is as intense as it is in 'Oscar Wilde'."

Of course, he acknowledges, the big film will cost more—and take longer.

As Guinness whispered: "This one is going on a bit."

LIVELY HISTORY — Sir Alec Guinness (left) as King Charles I and Richard Harris as Cromwell will be seen in the new movie, "Cromwell." The director is Ken Hughes, who also wrote the script and who has a considerable enthusiasm for English history, which he characterizes as "pretty exciting stuff."

Names Sought for Waterford Jaycee Honors

The Waterford Township Jaycees are accepting nominations for the Outstanding Young Man and Outstanding Young Educator of Waterford Township for 1969.

Mominees for Outstanding Young Man must be 21 to 36 years old and live or work full-time in Waterford Township.

* * *

Selection is based on the applicant's contributions to his work, family and community. Nominations may be submitted to Robert C. Pace, 3570 David K, Waterford Township. The deadline is Jan. 9.

* * *

Nominees for Outstanding young educator must be 21 to 36 years old and currently employed in a public or private school in Waterford Township.

* * *

Selection of the educator is based primarily on his contributions to the profession. Nominations may be submitted to Bobby Grider, 3970 Athens, Waterford Township.

* * *

Nominees for either honor do not have to be Jaycees. Those chosen will be recognized at a banquet during Jaycee Week, Jan. 18-24.

Detroit Salaries Urged for Police in Highland Park

HIGHLAND PARK (AP) — Mayor Robert Blackwell of Highland Park said Wednesday that he will recommend to the City Council adoption of a one-year contract giving members of the suburb's police force the same pay as their counterparts in Detroit.

* * *

The tentative agreement has been ratified 48-23 by the policemen.

The council is expected to vote on the contract Monday at a regular meeting.

Breathing Hazard to Health

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reports submitted to the American Public Health Association this week provide new evidence that air pollution causes respiratory ailments and other maladies that sometimes prove fatal.

WEST

Maybe there are still some skeptics around, but I personally am now convinced beyond all doubt that breathing is hazardous to your health.

* * *

If such statistics were available, they probably would show that the rate of respiratory ailments among heavy breathers is 100 per cent greater than it is among nonbreathers.

Okay, then, why not quit breathing? Well, dear boy, that is easier said than done. For most people, it is almost as hard to quit breathing as it is to quit smoking.

IT'S A HABIT

Breathing has become such a habit with most of us that abstaining probably would do more harm than good. People who quit breathing often become nervous and irritable, and may have other adverse reactions.

In other words, the side effects of not breathing may do more damage than the pollutants we inhale. So it is doubtful you will be able to refrain from breathing.

If you exercise a little will power, however, you can cut down on your breathing. And it stands to reason that a light breather runs less risk than someone who is a chain breather.

Try skipping a breath at regular intervals with the aim of working up to the point where you are only breathing after meals. Anyone who does that will be a long way toward having the problem licked.

HELPFUL REGIME

A year or so ago, I devised a series of shallow breathing exercises that I have found helpful in reducing my air intake.

STRENGTHENS NOSE

These exercises are designed to strengthen the muscles of your nose so that you can keep one nostril closed, thus decreasing the amount of air that reaches the lungs.

Anyone who is interested may obtain a copy of the exercise instructions under separate cover. Enclose a self-addressed envelope and $9.90 in cash or money order to cover the cost of packaging and mailing.

* * *

Another good rule is to avoid situations that promote heavy breathing. Men, for example, are advised to stay away from Raquel Welch movies. Women should give up Jacqueline Susann's books.

Along with creating health hazards, air pollution also is having a political impact in America. It is, infact, the main reason we have a "great silent majority." People are saving their breath.

DR. RUTH MIDJAAS

Area Woman to Head Tech Teacher Unit

Dr. Ruth Midjaas, consultant in vocational education for Oakland Schools, became president-elect of the American Technical Education Association at its recent annual convention in Boston.

Mrs. Midjaas will assume the presidency of the organization, a branch of the American Vocational Association, next year.

At Oakland Schools, she is responsible for writing and coordinating the curriculum for home economics and health occupations that will be used in the four area vocational centers being constructed in the county.

The first two centers, in Pontiac and Royal Oak, are scheduled to enroll their first students next Sepember. The others, in Clarkston and Walled Lake, will open the following year.

SERVE 28 DISTRICTS

High school students from all 28 districts in Oakland County will be eligible for enrollment in the centers.

Mrs. Midjaas has been on the Oakland Schools vocational education staff for two years. Prior to that she was head of home economics education at Colorado State University.

She lives in Grand Blanc with her husband, Dr. Carl Midjaas, education director for Warren Holmes, architects - engineers, and two daughters.

China Saving Grain for War

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China has reported a bumper harvest in 1969 but says much of it will go into state granaries as a reserve in case of war or natural disasters.

Red Flag, the Communist party theoretical journal, says in its current issue that the Chinese people, in general will not get more grain.

To allay discontent over these decisions, the government said commune production teams which reaped a good harvest will get "a little bit more than the grain distributed to members of production teams reaping a bad harvest."

"With sufficient grain reserves for the public," the magazine said, "we will have greater strength to prepare against war and natural disasters . . . Therefore, after reaping a bumper harvest it is by all means necessary to store more grain for the public."

Middle East Malady: Too Few Doctors

ALEXANDRIA, U.A.R. (UPI) — The Middle East is critically short of doctors, according to a top official of the World Health Organization (WHO).

Dr. A. H. Taba, WHO's regional director for the Eastern Mediterranean, said great strides in the last 20 years had reduced the average doctor-patient ration in the area from one doctor for every 10,000 inhabitants to one doctor for every 4,500 inhabitants.

"Such progress does not afford any lessening of efforts," he said. "Most Eastern Mediterranean countries are still in dire need of medical men. The shortage of qualified nurses is just as critical in most countries, the ratios varying from 1,000 to 20,000 inhabitants per nurse."

The region covers 22 countries from Afghanistan to Tunisia with a population of a quarter of a billion.

Mart Continues on Losing Trail

NEW YORK (AP) — A statement by Arthur F. Burns, nominee for chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, helped trigger a stock market rally this afternoon.

* * *

Burns told the Senate Banking Committee, which is considering his nomination as Federal Reserve Board chairman, that he very much hoped that the board "will reconsider its present policy when it gets more facts on the tax-reform bill and the new budget."

"Under normal circumstances," he added, "I would say the time has definitely come for some easing of credit conditions."

* * *

The Federal Reserve's monetary restrictions have been cited as the chief cause for the declining market.

'SPARKED RALLY'

"Burns' statement definitely sparked a rally," said Eldon Grimm, senior vice president of Walston & Co. Several analysts said the market was due for a technical rally since it was in such an oversold condition and there remained so many bargains around.

* * *

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down nearly 2 points in earlier trading, gained 7.53 to 777.46 at noon.

Wall Street Losing 'Devil' Image in Russia

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Russian bear has stopped growling about Wall Street. He's not bullish about it yet—but give him time.

Pretty nearly all Russians, from bottom to top, haven't had the foggiest idea of what Wall Street was all about through all the years when it was a nice, familiar demon which could be blamed for anything that frightened them about the world of capitalism.

News Analysis

For a long time Wall Street, as depicted to Soviet citizens, was a handy whipping boy to represent malignant capitalism, the feeding ground for monopolist exploiters. So what has happened?

The fact is that Wall Street has been downgraded in the Kremlin roster of American deviltry. Lesser devils Wall Street was supposed to have sheltered emerged from their cocoons to become independent demons: monopolists, imperialists, militarists, ruling circles, the lot. When it does show up in the Soviet press these days, Wall Street is cited almost with respect as a barometer of what "Amerikansky beesnessmenny" are thinking.

* * *

Maybe it's been a case of creeping contamination. Maybe it's because Russians, without knowing it, are getting more capitalist. Maybe ideas seeped in. Maybe communism has been infected by germs implanted in Eastern Europe. Perhaps a lot of Russians nourish a daring notion that sometimes capitalism, in its crazy way, can work.

PREDICTED COLLAPSE

For decades, Muscovite theoreticians have confidently predicted the collapse of American capitalism in a general crisis and have been annoyed that it didn't happen.

Have they given up hope?

Well, early this month Pravda published an article by a prestigious academician praising the contributions of Eugene Varga, the Hungarian-born Soviet economist. This was a rehabilitation of sorts. Varga—dead these past six years—got himself in the Kremlin doghouse in the 1950s by saying that the U.S. economy could ride out severe economic crises.

* * *

Wall Street was to be the indicator of such crises. It would, by Soviet doctrine, struggle to stay alive by plotting all sorts of heinous activities.

But Wall Street began sliding downhill as the No. 1 demon as long ago as the early '60s.

BEDAZZLED

Perhaps trips by Soviet leaders to the United States at the turn of the decade, including two unforgettable visits by Nikita S. Khrushchev, had something to do with it. Two high-ranking Russians, former President Anastas Mikoyan and the now deputy premier, Dmitri Polyansky, had seen Wall Street firsthand and were bedazzled.

Soviet leaders, having made a private nightmare of capitalism, saw the nightmare developing right in their own sphere. Capitalist notions had infiltrated Communist countries. Yugoslav economists experimented with capitalist measures and, by 1968, Czechoslovaks were trying to outdo even the Yugoslavs, thus incurring Soviet wrath and military occupation.

* * *

The Yugoslavs skated on thin capitalist ice. While Czechoslovakia was enduring penance under Soviet guns, Yugoslavia had a motor vehicle enterprise assembling Italian Fiats. It offered bonds bearing 6 per cent interest, with the added attraction of permitting bondholders to rise to the top of the waiting list for cars. The issue was gobbled up. Other enterprises took note and flirted with ideas of financing through securities. One even offered what would amount to dividends: shares in profits for investors who would be offered a voice in management.

Yugoslav leaders found themselves staring unbelievingly at the beginnings of a capital market. To Moscow, it was all poison. But the poison had seeped into Moscow's own backyard. Heresy was being piled upon heresy.

As the 100th anniversary of his birth nears, Lenin is the subject of extravagant Soviet adulation as the fountainhead of anticapitalist wisdom. Few Soviet citizens know that Lenin was the original heretic. Fifty years ago, under what he called "war communism," Lenin tried to abolish money. Finding that this wouldn't work, he advised Soviet industry to adopt "state capitalism" as a road to socialism. It's been state capitalism ever since. These days there is more emphasis than ever on the capitalist aspects. For example, profits are being stressed as the best measure of industrial efficiency.

* * *

Among the chief Communist worries is Mikhail Suslov, the diehard Bolshevik who was Stalin's top theoretician. Depicting a capitalism he never saw close up, Suslov wrote not long ago in Pravda that the West was headed toward a "state monopoly capitalism" which would undermine private ownership. Actually, the reverse is going on in a small way in Russia. The Communist party, embracing state capitalism, must struggle to discourage the private ownership instinct. It has lost skirmish after skirmish.

* * *

Moscow's modern heretics stress such devices as letting prices find their own market levels, using credits, using incentives to workers—bonuses taken from company profits to reward productivity, and thus a form of profit-sharing. The more the profit, the more the bonus. In the name of profit, managers are firing surplus workers.

Abroad, Moscow has a hungry eye on the fast buck. It is engaged in deals that have at least a look of capitalism.

INDISTINGUISHABLE

London is headquarters for the Narodny—People's—Bank, which has branches in Frankfurt, Paris, Zurich, Beirut and elsewhere. It began operating in 1959, and 10 years later is indistinguishable from capitalist banking enterprises. It is regarded with respect by Western bankers as one of the five banks most active in the foreign exchange market. At the end of 1967 it had assets equivalent to $600 million and short-term deposits equivalent to $84 million.

While Russian neo-capitalists in Europe pursued golden goals for the Soviet state, things in the U.S.S.R. were diluting the sanctified doctrines of Marx and Lenin. Communism was getting into deep water.

* * *

Because of the formidable bureaucracy spawned by central planning, the Soviet Union frequently ran into production and distribution trouble. This encouraged the growth of a small but lively private sector.

There is even such a thing as a broker in the U.S.S.R., though he is not called that. The brokers are the "tolkachi"—the go-getters. They are wheeler-dealers operating on a commission, who run down and obtain for managers the supplies they find hard to get through regular bureaucratic channels.

* * *

Is Soviet communism, then, going to the dogs? The Red Chinese think so, literally.

"The kind of advertising the Soviet revisionist renegades are doing is copied from the capitalist world," exploded a Chinese broadside last year. "The Soviet press is full of advertisements similar to what one finds in the Western press, including illegal sale of means of production, vacancies for office and factory workers, sale of lottery tickets, life insurance, family celebrations, divorce announcements, dog racing and lost dogs."

Who knows? Some day there may be a Russian bear among the bulls and bears on Wall Street.

LANSING (AP) — The State Highway Department reports one-half mile of U.S. 127 freeway on Lansing's east side will be opened to traffic next Tuesday.

Dean's Honors by Degrees

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — W. Francis English, retiring dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Missouri, recently received an honorary college doctorate only nine days after getting his high school diploma.

As a boy, he earned 15 units of high school credit in three years, which was sufficient to admit him to college but not enough for a diploma.

When he gave the commencement address at Callaway (Mo.) High School, he was handed a high school diploma.

Westminster College at Fulton, Mo., granted him an honorary doctorate nine days later.

PET POSSUM — Danny Hampton of Chadds Ford, Pa., watches his mother feed a pet possum. The animal was found injured by the side of the road, nursed back to health and set free by the Hamptons, only to return to their home. Named Perry, he sleeps under the kitchen rocker during the day, roams the house at night, and shares a dish with Sparky, a pet cat.

Church Salvages Rugged Old Cross

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A cross, estimated to be about 100 years old and found in a heap of rubble beneath the parish house of Trinity Episcopal Church, has been refurbished and now hangs in the parish house facing the church.

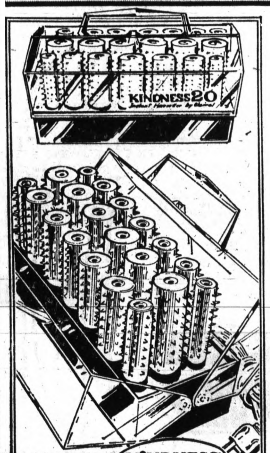

The Rev. F. L. Chambers, rector, has been unable to trace the history of the relic, but it was apparently used in the old sanctuary, a small building removed some 20 years ago to make room for the present sanctuary.

Hungarian officials report that the country's population grew 3 per cent in 1968, after several years of steady decline.

IMAGINE SANTA WITHOUT A RED SUIT!

Just thinking about it kind of "ruins his image," doesn't it? And as he hangs a taillight on his sleigh as the final chore before taking off, seeing him without a red suit is kind of like Christmas without a few delightful surprises.

And, speaking of surprises, don't let your family do without them because of a tight budget. While the kids get out their crayons to put color back in St. Nick's suit, you can take a quick inventory of those household "don't needs" which abound in every home. These are useful things you no longer use which can easily be converted into cash through a low-cost Pontiac Press Wand Ad. This is a wonderful way to uncover the cash you need for those little extras, which, like the red in Santa's suit, make Christmas the wonderful occasion it is.

DRESS REHEARSAL

A dancer shares an offstage break with Santa Claus (Alan Cole).

Hard-working girls rest those gorgeous legs.

All the cast have to be cared for.

It's the show audiences never see. A dress rehearsal is seen, of course, but not by that public for whom the performances are ultimately intended.

The eyes which watch the dress rehearsal are the professionals' eyes, not passive spectators'. There are the keen eyes of producer and director, observing from empty rows of seats out front. The cool, critical scrutiny of designers and craftsmen. The nervous, sidelong glance of performers, coping with their own costumes and props, weighing up the difference these make to their performance and to that of the next dancer on the line. It's a time for judging the sound of a high note on a stage now filled with scenery, for testing the stretch of an unaccustomed skirt to be handled gracefully climbing a newly-installed staircase.

It's the beginning of the opening. There's really no final rehearsal, since the first performance in front of a full house creates a new atmosphere again, a new challenge affecting everyone and everything. The laughter, the applause, the heat, the coughing, the shuffling, the different echo and resonance coming from an auditorium packed with people. An opening can never be rehearsed, never exactly foreseen. And so the changes go on, and the polishing and adjusting continue indefinitely.

The Radio City Music Hall, New York, renowned for its spectacular seasonal entertainments, gives of its best for the show at Christmas. On this Picture Show page, AP photographer Bob Wands reveals some glimpses of the people who bring the sparkle and color to life on the stage. Some 100 artists performing on the stage are supported by up to 500 working for the theater, in some capacity, offstage. The applause of the delighted audiences is a tribute earned by them all.

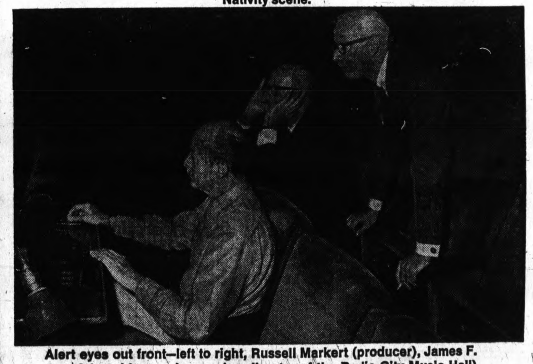

Chief set designer Jimmy Morcom with two assistants.

Leon Leonidoff, senior producer, gives last minute instructions for the Nativity scene.

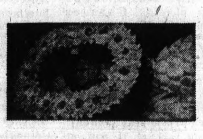

A practically perfect finale—only the audience is missing now.

Alert eyes out front—left to right, Russell Markert (producer), James F. Gould (president and managing director of the Radio City Music Hall) and John Jackson (director of stage operations).

23 Grad Nurses 'Refreshed' by Course at OCC

Twenty-three graduate nurses recently completed a refresher program sponsored by Oakland Community College to update inactive registered nurses.

Clinical practice was conducted at William Beaumont Hospital.

The graduating class brings the total to 116 nurses who have completed OCC's Nursing Program since January 1968, according to Mrs. Lilian Kelmenson, associate director, Allied Health Programs.

Funding for the program is obtained under the provisions of the Manpower Development Training Act, a federal program administered by the state to train adults in areas where there are a shortage of skilled personnel.

Robber Gets $40 in Highland Holdup

A Highland Township gas station attendant was robbed of $40 early today by a lone bandit.

Ronald Brock, employed at the Clark Gas Station, 2650 N. Milford, told Oakland County Sheriff deputies that the man drove into the station about 3 a.m. and ordered $3 of gas.

Brock, 584 Orchard Lake, Pontiac, said as he was replacing the gas cap, the man returned from the rest room and hit him in the forehead with an unknown object.

The robber fled in a 1968 or 1969 maroon or purple pickup truck, according to Brock.

Resource Center Grant Saved

The Pontiac School District's $1.1-million grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for construction of portions of the Human Resource Center is safe.

Gov. William Milliken signed a bill this morning allowing direct federal grants to school districts.

★ ★ ★

HUD granted the money to the school district in July for construction of facilities in the $5.5-million center to be used both by elementary pupils and the community.

Early in November, the state attorney general's office ruled that a school district could not accept direct federal grants.

BILLS INTRODUCED

To overcome the ruling, two area legislators, Sen. L. Harvey Lodge, R-Waterford Township, and Rep. Arthur J. Law, D-Pontiac, introduced bills in both houses immediately.

Bids for construction of the center to house 1,400 pupils were opened Nov. 4 and were about $2 million higher than available funds, including the HUD grant.

The bids were due to expire tomorrow, but low bidders for general and mechanical work extended their expiration date two weeks.

Contracts for electrical work on the center were to be let by the Pontiac School Board at a special meeting today.

The HUD grant to Pontiac School District is the first time funds have been authorized under the Neighborhood Development Program (NDP) for construction of dual-use facilities for both school and community.

Schools Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer commended the legislators for their quick action to assure the school district the funds.

★ ★ ★ ★

"Sen. Lodge faced an especially difficult problem in securing senate approval of his bill. The school district is much in his debt," said Whitmer.

Derailment Forces Trains to Pull Switch

LAPEER, Mich. (UPI) — A freight train derailment on the Grand Trunk Railroad tracks between here and the Thumb-area community of Attica early today caused a two-hour delay for an estimated 160 passenger train commuters.

Two passenger trains, one eastbound and the other westbound, were halted because one of the freight cars was blocking both tracks.

When officials realized it was impossible to get by, school buses were utilized to switch the passengers from one train to another.

★ ★ ★

The trains then reversed their directions and the commuters finally reached their destinations.

More Time Sought by Huber on Report

LANSING (UPI) — The chairman of a special legislative committee to investigate campus disorders says he needs more time to prepare his final report.

State Sen. Robert Huber, R-Troy, filed a resolution in the Senate yesterday asking that his committee be authorized to operate until June 30, 1970.

The committee was created by the Legislature earlier this year to examine disorders on the Michigan colleges and universities.

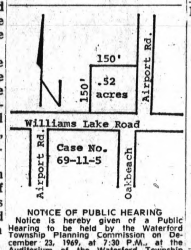

School Board to Let Center Electric Pact

A special meeting of the Pontiac School Board has been called for 5 p.m. today to award the electrical contract for the planned Human Resource Center.

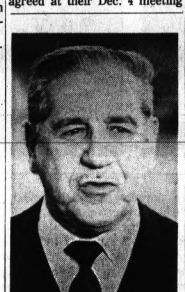

Bids for construction of the center, opened Nov. 4, expire tomorrow. Low bidders for the general and mechanical contracts have granted the school district a two-week extension, according to Schools Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer.

Combined low bids opened in November for construction of the center for elementary pupils and community use totaled about $2 million more than funds available.

Architects and designers have reduced some costs however on some of the bids, and the board agreed at their Dec. 4 meeting to slightly reduce pupil capacity.

Tiny Tim And His Bride, Miss Vicky

Tiny Tim and Bride Off on Honeymoon

NEW YORK (UPI)—Tiny Tim and his teen-age bride were off today on a honeymoon that will introduce them to the rigors of a series of marriage vows that included being "not puffed up."

The sweet singer of falsetto notes wrote practically the entire service himself—particularly the connubial vows—he disclosed after the ceremony on the NBC "Tonight" show last night.

The service, read by the Rev. William Glenesk, a New York Presbyterian minister, started with the groom repeating his real name after the pastor: "I Herbert Buckingham Khaury, being of sound mind . . ."

The couple vowed to be "sweet, gentle, kind, patient, not puffed up, charitable, slow to anger and swift to forgive."

KISSED HIS BRIDE

Tiny Tim then kissed his bride, Victoria May Budinger, 17, lightly on the lips.

Carson proposed a champagne toast, but the couple said they didn't drink liquor. Tiny Tim mixed a milk-and-honey tonic that he said was "the good Lord's food."

The first three days of their Bahamas honeymoon will be spent apart, Tiny Tim said, in accordance with the Old Testament tradition of Tobias.

People in the News

By the Associated Press

Justice William O. Douglas spent five days in the hospital last month having the batteries of his heart pacemaker replaced, a spokesman says.

DOUGLAS

Douglas was at Walter Reed Army hospital in Washington from Nov. 3 to Nov. 8. The pacemaker was implanted in the 71-year-old justice in June 1968 to correct an abnormally slow pulse rate.

"He's healthier than you or I," his spokesman remarked yesterday.

Liz Taylor, Burton Visit New York

Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor have flown to New York from Geneva for their first visit to the United States in a year.

They told reporters at Kennedy Airport yesterday they would stay a while in New York before going on to Hawaii to visit Miss Taylor's brother Howard.

MISS TAYLOR

British May Reconsider Ban on George Raft

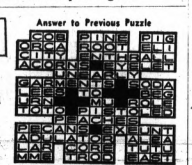

The British Home Office has agreed to reconsider a ban on actor George Raft if his lawyers produce promised new evidence why he should be readmitted to Britain.

Raft, who had been working as host at a London gambling club, was denied permission to reenter Britain after a California vacation in February 1967.

The Home Office said then his continued presence in Britain would "not be conducive to the public good."

Judge to Set Collins Trial Date Jan. 21

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — A circuit judge said yesterday he would decide Jan. 21 when John Norman Collins, the college senior charged in the sex slaying of a coed, would go on trial.

Collins, 22, has been ordered to stand trial on a charge of first-degree murder in the death of Karen Sue Beineman, 18, Grand Rapids, a freshman at Eastern Michigan University, which Collins also attended.

* * *

Washtenaw County Circuit Judge John Conlin delayed setting a trial date because Collins' new attorneys, Neil Fink and Joseph Louisell of Detroit, requested the additional time to prepare their defense.

Judge in Clay Shaw Trial Arrested in Raid on Party

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police crashed a stag party in a motel room Wednesday night and arrested everyone present, including the judge who presided at the Clay Shaw trial.

Newsmen who came on what they thought would be a routine raid saw silver-haired Judge Edward A. Haggerty Jr. struggling to get away. He was subdued and handcuffed.

Police Maj. Joseph Murry said Haggerty was booked on charges of soliciting for prostitution, obscenity, resisting arrest and four counts of assault on a policeman.

Haggerty, 55, of New Orleans, a judge in the state Criminal District Court, presided at the monthlong trial of Shaw, who was cleared of a charge of conspiring to murder President John F. Kennedy.

13 OTHERS BOOKED

Murry said three women and 10 other men arrested at the midcity motel were each booked on the obscenity charge.

The newsmen, who included television cameramen, were allowed in the room about a minute after police broke in.

Haggerty's brief struggle with officers was in the full glare of TV cameras. The judge suffered a small cut on the forehead.

Police Sgt. William Nolan said a stag movie was being shown in conjunction with live entertainment. He did not elaborate.

Hagerty was released on his own recognizance.

Civic Aide Dies

JACKSON (AP)—Mrs. Beth F. Moser, a leader in improving the lives of the elderly and the mentally disturbed in Jackson, died Wednesday at the age of 81. She was active in Senior Citizens Inc. and set up a mental health clinic which was later named for her. She had lived in Jackson since 1945, when she retired from the Wayne County Social Services Department.

A Look at TV

Is 'Hee Haw' Still Hot?

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK — "Hee Haw" returned to CBS Wednesday night with all the characters and jokes that made the program a summer-season hit. The question, which only time can answer, is whether the barnyard humor that charmed the hot-weather audience bored by reruns will exert the same fascination at another season.

MISS LOWRY

Most attractive aspect of the show is its music. The beat was infectious and the tunes attractive. There was even a song with offbeat lyrics, "Okie From Muskogee," sung by Merle Haggard—a pro-Establishment song that condemned pot and advocated respect for the flag.

The viewer must react to the show's jokes in one of three ways. Take a sample one-liner: "People in the roofing business tend to get shingles." The viewer must find this (A) novel and funny, (B) corny and square, or (C) so corny and square that it is funny.

At least, "Hee Haw" is honest. When the jokes are old and pretty bad, the jokesters are likely to be standing in the middle of a cornfield when they tell them.

SHOW'S STARS

Roy Clark, who is more interesting when he is playing the guitar than when clowning, and Buck Owens, who has an interesting singing style, are the stars of the show. They are surrounded by a large assortment of country-style comic and excellent country-western singers, including Haggard and Tammy Wynette.

The program has been called, imprecisely, a country-style "Laugh-In"—but it had what sounded like an enthusiastic studio audience laughing at its old, old jokes.

Tiny Tim and his Miss Vicki were married, between two commercial breaks, during the last half-hour of the "Tonight Show." It is doubtful that the ceremony will start a new fad or even stimulate a return of "Bride and Groom."

The ceremony itself, in spite of the advance exploitation and publicity, had a certain amount of dignity. But once it was over, the couple walked briskly a few feet to one side, into Johnny Carson's desk-and-sofa set. The bridegroom mixed himself and his bride a glass of milk and honey. Then he read off a long list of plugs and credits covering everything from hairdos to honeymoon facilities.

The whole proceeding seemed awkward and more like a stunt than a wedding. Carson's usual appreciative audience seemed subdued through the whole show, and the hour of preliminary comedy on stage was not as fast-moving as usual.

The most puzzling aspect of the ceremony came as the couple repeated after the minister some unfamiliar vows, including a pledge "not to be puffed up." Carson explained later that the bride and bridegroom themselves had done a little rewriting of the ceremony.

Florida Icon Said to Be Forming Tears

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) —The pastor and parishioners of a Greek Orthodox church say an icon of St. Nicholas is forming what appear to be teardrops.

* * *

The church serves the families of Greek sponge divers in this coastal city on the Gulf of Mexico. St. Nicholas is the patron saint of such seafarers, as he is of Christmas.

* * *

Father Elias Kalariotes, the pastor, said moisture which looked like "little teardrops" was first noticed by a cleaning woman Dec. 4 and had since developed into a rivulet.

"They look like little bits crystal," he said.

FORMING ON GLASS

Father Kalariotes said the moisture was forming on a glass cover which nearly touches the face of the painted icon.

"I examined the back of the icon, looking for an opening that moisture could get through, but it was sealed so tight I couldn't even get a razor blade through the frame," he said.

The pastor said he had assured parishioners who feared the phenomenon was a bad omen that "It's just an act of God."

The nation is spending $4 billion a year for new highways to the cities but only $200 million for urban mass transit.

He Bears Brunt of Happy Party

FOLKESTONE, England (AP) — In a happy mood after a party, John Brunt, 29, ate his car registration card when police asked to see it.

"I became momentarily flustered," Brunt explained to the court, pleading guilty to various traffic charges. The fine was $57.60.

State Police Transfer 22

State Police announced the transfer of 22 troopers effective Jan. 4.

* * *

Included in the transfers are Troopers Warren Fisk of the Pontiac Post and Curtis Fonger of Romeo. Fisk is transferred to Bridgeport and Fonger to Cheboygan.

Trooper Robert White of the Jonesville post will be transferred to Pontiac.

Police Suspect Murder-Suicide

Milford Family Found Dead

Milford police today are probing the apparent murder-suicide of a village family of five.

The bodies of the Wayne Jowasky family of 227 Franklin were found yesterday afternoon at 4:30 by three Cub Scouts who arrived for a meeting at the Jowasky home and could get no response from ringing the doorbell or knocking on the door.

★ ★ ★

Dead are Wayne Jowasky, 39, a member of the Milford Planning Commission and the special city study committee; his wife, Theresa, and the three children, David, 8, Diane, 7, and Barbara, 5.

The Cubs searched around the house briefly then found the five bodies in the adjoining garage.

Jowasky was on the floor of the garage, near the right front car door. His wife was lying in the front seat, and the three children were in the rear seat, strapped in with seat belts.

★ ★ ★

According to authorities, a length of copper tubing ran from a fuel cylinder in a corner of garage to under the car, where it had been caulked to the fire wall near the car heater.

★ ★ ★

The tank has been sent to the Michigan State Police Crime Laboratory in East Lansing for analysis of its contents.

GAS TANK EMPTY

The car's gas tank was empty, according to police. A neighbor said she heard one of the Jowasky cars running in the garage Tuesday night.

Chief Joseph Brophy estimated that the family had been dead since "late Tuesday."

Jowasky was the senior experimental engineer in the passenger car development department of the Chevrolet

Division at nearby General Motors Proving Grounds.

Official autopsy reports are due tomorrow from the Oakland County Medical Examiner.

★ ★ ★

Police said that investigation is being conducted into the possibility of foul play but they declined to indicate whether the investigation was more than routine.

FAMILY DEATH SCENE — All five members of the Wayne Jowasky family were found dead yesterday in the garage of their home at 227 Franklin, Milford. All but Jowasky were in the car. He was on the garage floor. Copper tubing led from a cylinder to the car's engine block. Milford police suspect the deaths to be murder-suicide.

Nixon Pressures Congress to Cut U.S. Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says his fight against inflation is in danger but could be rescued if Congress forgets "the cost in political popularity" and cuts down federal spending.

"At stake is nothing less than the future of the American economy," Nixon said in a Dutch-uncle letter sent to House and Senate leaders yesterday.

★ ★ ★

The President said his $192.9 billion federal spending ceiling is threatened by $6 billion in rising costs that are beyond his control and added millions dictated by congressional action— and inaction.

The letter, timed to coincide with Congress' efforts to pass a tax reform bill and complete action on appropriation measures for the current fiscal year, also said:

"The responsible path toward protecting the buying power of the consumer's dollar is clear. But the Congress has not appeared willing to take that path."

RESPONSIBILITY KEYNOTE

The keynote of Nixon's 1,200-word message was responsibility. "The Congress, along with the executive branch, carries the responsibility for the economic health of the nation," he told the leaders.

Nixon coupled his plea for responsibility with a new attack on the tax reform bill, now before a conference committee for long hours each day in an effort to compromise the Senate and House versions.

★ ★ ★

"The Congress appears to be well on its way to substituting tax reduction for tax reform," he said. "This will harm rather than help the average taxpayer. Sugarcoating a bitter pill is understandable, but all sugarcoating and no pill will not help the patient.

"A tax cut for some citizens would mean a rise in prices for every citizen."

★

And because of the way money multiplies as it moves from spender to spender, Nixon said, "A billion dollars of federal spending or tax relief can add many times that amount to the escalation of our rising price levels."

"Inflation—the hole in everybody's pocket—is the most unfair tax of all," he said.

House Nixes Funding Measures

Ed-Reform Plan Jeopardized

LANSING (UPI) — Gov. William G. Milliken's educational reform program lay in serious jeopardy today after House rejection of proposals to finance next year's mammoth school aid bill.

Defeated yesterday were measures to raise the state income tax and to repeal the property tax credit on the income tax, both to help pay for Milliken's $1-billion school-aid bill. The bill includes a $25-million allotment for lay teachers in non-public schools.

★ ★ ★

Although the school aid bill is scheduled for a vote in the House later this week, many members publicly have said they would not vote for it if tax measures were not passed first to finance a $183-million increase from this year's allocation.

In the meantime, Senate Republican leader Emil Lockwood of St. Louis said he has all but abandoned hopes of trying to push through the Senate the two constitutional amendments in the governor's program.

RYAN PLAN LOSES

Defeat came first for House Speaker William A. Ryan's proposed income tax increase, which would have raised the personal income tax in Michigan from 2.6 per cent to 3 per cent, estimated to bring in $131 million annually in additional revenue.

House members rejected the proposal on a 39-68 vote, with yes and no votes split evenly among Democrats and Republicans.

★ ★ ★

The lower chamber then debated Milliken's proposed property-tax credit repeal more than two hours before handing it a crushing 24-84 defeat.

The bill would have raised $116 million and would have been contingent on voter acceptance next year of a constitutional amendment limiting school property taxes to 12 mills.

CLEARED BY SENATE

Milliken's property tax credit repeal proposal has already cleared the Senate.

With only two days left in the fall legislative session, two key education reform items on the Senate calendar may be held over for final consideration until the Legislature reconvenes Jan. 13.

★ ★ ★

Lockwood said last night proposals to replace the present elective State Board of Education with the appointed board and create a statewide property tax to finance education may have to wait until January.

Ryan said the House would begin debating the school-aid bill today. He planned to break into the proceedings at some point to try a second and final vote on his income tax bill.

Charter Change Election Today

In the snow and sleet, Pontiac voters are determining today if they want to change the way the City Commission is elected.

Polls will be open until 8 p.m.

★ ★ ★

There is just the one proposition on the ballot. It asks for three changes in the City Charter — that commissioners be elected by district only, and that age and residency requirements be lowered to 25 and one year respectively (now 30 and five).

The election was called after petitions with over 6,200 signatures were presented by the Pontiac Council of Concerned Citizens.

MODIFIED AT-LARGE

City commissioners are elected in a modified at-large manner. In each of the seven districts, candidates are narrowed to two in the primary. The pairs then compete in the citywide election.

★ ★ ★

The mayor is elected by the successful candidates. This would not be changed in today's ballot proposition.

★ ★ ★

The charter change would return the city to the system in effect before 1963.

Boycotts Viet Talks

Indicted N.J. Mayor Goes Back to Work

From Our News Wires

NEWARK, N.J. — Charged with extortion, conspiracy and income tax evasion, Newark Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio left federal court under $25,000 bail yesterday to return to his office to conduct the city's business. "We will have our day in court," he said.

The mayor and 14 other persons — including three city councilmen and a reputed Mafia figure — were charged yesterday with tax evasion and conspiracy in an alleged $253,000 extortion plot.

★ ★ ★

The federal grand jury actions followed by a day the indictments of 55 persons on conspiracy and gambling charges in a widespread probe of organized crime and government corruption in New Jersey.

The 15 were charged with 65 counts of extorting payments of $500 to $7,000 from Constrand Inc., an engineering firm doing business with the city. Paul Rigo, an officer of the firm, was reported to be an informer in the investigation.

TAX EVASION CHARGES

Twelve of the defendants, who included five former city councilmen, were charged with income tax evasion. Among those indicted were reputed Mafia figure Anthony "Tony Boy" Boiardo; Frank Addonizio, a councilman and distant cousin of the mayor; Municipal Court Judge Anthony Guiliano; and former corporation counsel Philip E. Gordon, who resigned last week after testifying before the federal grand jury.

★ ★ ★

The indictments were handed down in U.S. District Court in Newark yesterday. Assistant U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell formally announced the indictments in Washington.

SEPARATE PROBES

Five separate grand juries — state, federal and county — are investigating suspected crime and corruption in New Jersey. The probes range from gambling to city officials, alleged wrongdoing to the Internal Revenue Service in Newark.

The Star Ledger, a Newark morning newspaper, said in an editorial on the indictment of the city officials that "the best interests of the city would be served if those under a cloud of suspicion were to remove themselves from office."

The Greater Newark Chamber of Commerce urged "the legally constituted authorities to suspend these men from office immediately and until these grave charges are either proven or disproved."

Addonizio, however, said he planned to continue governing the city on an "effective and efficient basis" with "business as usual."

Health Director Is Quitting

Dr. BERNARD BERMAN

Dr. Bernard Berman, director of the Oakland County Health Department for the past six years, says he will leave his $33,000-a-year position next year.

★ ★ ★

Berman, who made the announcement during an annual department Christmas luncheon yesterday, said he did not know what he would be doing. He said he is interested in seeking a fellowship so that he might be involved in the newly developing approaches to medicine, but as yet he has no commitments.

Calling the Oakland County Health Department "the finest in the state," the 35-year-old doctor admitted there is some possibility he might accept a year's leave of absence if one were to be offered.

Oil-Depletion Compromise Near 22 Pct.

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON — House-Senate tax conferees, under orders to slash the controversial 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance, were reported compromising at about 22 per cent.

The House cut it to 20 per cent, the Senate to 23 per cent.

Hoping to wind up the tax-reform bill by tonight, the 14-man conference committee tackled other hard decisions affecting tax cuts, Social Security and a minimum tax on wealthy people.

A committee source said the conferees were "discussing" a cut in the oil depletion allowance to 22 per cent, but had made no hard, final decision.

SOCIAL SECURITY BOOST

Both House and Senate tax bills contain a 15 per cent boost in Social Security benefits across the board for all 25 million recipients, effective Jan. 1. The Senate added another provision, subject to the conference committee negotiations, to raise the minimum monthly payment from $55 to $100.

President Nixon has said he will veto a tax bill containing the Senate-approved features of a 15 per cent Social Security boost and an $800 personal tax exemption provision.

The House tax relief generally takes the form of rate reductions averaging at least 5 per cent for all classes of taxpayers in two years, by 1972. The Senate's relief substitutes the rate reductions for a $700 personal exemption for all taxpayers and dependents in 1970, and $800 in 1971.

A compromise was under discussion.

The Senate, meanwhile, worked to complete action on the last of the year's 13 regular money bills — foreign aid — plus a final catch-all supplemental measure.

The House dealt with the steady stream of measures coming out of various conference committees.

President Nixon, who has demanded that Congress finish all of the appropriations bills or face a past-Christmas special session, fired off a letter to congressional leaders urging a determined effort to hold down federal spending and maintain tax revenues "no matter what the cost in political popularity."

Nixon said his $192.9-billion spending budget is being jeopardized by $6 billion in "fixed, built-in increases," up to $4 billion stemming from boosts in money bills and another $1 billion in lost revenues resulting from congressional inaction.

Birmingham

No One Bids on Bonds for Water Project

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The city received no bidders for its bonds in connection with a $3.4-million water service project, City Manager Robert Stadler has noted.

Stadler cautioned, previous to the attempt to sell the bonds this week, that it appeared doubtful the bonds would move due to the present 6 per cent interest limitation imposed on municipal and school district bond sales by the Legislature.

★ ★ ★

Stadler said the city would probably wait to see if the Legislature takes action on lifting the 6 per cent limitation before resubmitting the bonds to the market.

There is presently legislation in Lansing calling for elimination of the limitation. The legislation could be acted on before year's end.

BIRMINGHAM — Jerome D. Rutledge has been elected president of Holmes-Harmon Corp., local real estate investment and finance firm.

Rutledge previously was a vice president of Holmes-Harmon, with primary responsibility for all negotiations in investment real estate financing.

★ ★ ★

Rutledge attended the University of Detroit and the graduate school of business at Northwestern. He is a member of the Detroit Real Estate Board, National Association of Real Estate Boards and the Mortgage Bankers Association of Michigan.

The two-week holiday for the Birmingham public school District begins officially on Dec. 19. Classes will resume on Jan. 5. All schools will be closed for the two weeks.

Railroad Strike Threat Renewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The renewed threat of a nationwide railroad shutdown after New Year's poses a postholiday hangover for the Nixon administration following union members' rejection of the biggest wage proposal in their history.

"I'm naturally disappointed," Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz said yesterday. He had directed government efforts to reach the tentative settlement after three days of grueling, marathon bargaining two weeks ago.

"The agreement was shot down by a vote of close to 2-1," said Vice President J. W. O'Brien of the AFL-CIO Sheet Metal Workers with 8,000 members involved.

Members of three other AFL-CIO shopcraft unions in the dispute—Machinists, Electricians and Boilermakers—narrowly approved the proposal, but the unions had agreed none would accept unless all did. Thus, about 5,000 Sheet Metal Workers who voted "no" killed the settlement involving a total of 48,000 men.

Machinists' Vice President William W. Winpisinger, chief negotiator for the four unions, asked him to return to the bargaining table "some time after Jan. 6."

Chief industry negotiator John P. Hiltz said he assumed from this the unions would not call a strike before then.

The proposed settlement would have raised current wages of $3.60 per hour to $4 by Jan. 1, retroactive for all of 1969, and to $4.28 by next August.

Court: Plan to Desegregate or No State Funds

Georgia Gets U. S. School Order

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A panel of three federal judges has ordered the Georgia Board of Education to terminate state funds to school districts which have not filed desegregation plans by March 1970.

The far-reaching decision yesterday also:

- Defines an integrated school system as one in which 75 per cent of all pupils of a minority race are enrolled in integrated facilities.
- Requires the state board, with the assistance of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), to process and review all school desegregation plans in the state, before April 1, 1970.

Related Story, Page C-18

- Directs the state boards, in cases where desegregation plans are not in compliance with court standards, to insure compliance by May 1, 1970.
- Orders each of the desegregation plans fully implemented by Sept. 1, 1970.

The decision was believed to be the first in the nation placing the responsibility for school desegregation at the state level. In the past, such action has been directed at local boards with the possible cutoff of federal school funds used as the prime method of enforcement.

It also marked the first time a federal court has designated specific standards for school desegregation.

3-JUDGE VERDICT

The decision by U.S. Dist. Court Judges Sidney O. Smith Jr., Newell Edenfield and Albert Henderson Jr. came on a Justice Department suit filed last August.

The suit, seeking state-enforced integration of all Georgia schools, was the first ever filed by the federal government against a state. It followed an announced shift in school desegregation enforcement from HEW to the Justice Department.

Earlier this week, the three judges denied motions by the state that the suit be dismissed, primarily on grounds the court lacked jurisdiction.

In their final decision the judges declared: "It should now be, abundantly clear, to all save those who adamantly refuse to see or hear, that the supreme law of these United States provides that dual school systems must be completely abolished."

★ ★ ★

The order will affect 81 Georgia school districts. The remaining 111 districts are either under court order or in compliance with HEW's desegregation school guidelines.

40,000 War Toll Seen by Jan. 1

SAIGON (AP) — American battlefield deaths in nine years of the Vietnam war will total more than 40,000 by Jan. 1 if the current rate continues.

The U.S. Command announced today that 85 Americans were killed in action last week, 15 less than the previous week. This raised the number of U.S. battlefield dead since Jan. 1, 1961 to 39,827.

★ ★ ★

The U.S. Command also reported 836 Americans wounded in action last week, a sizeable increase over the 592 wounded the week before. A total of 261,256 Americans have now been wounded in the war.

South Vietnamese headquarters said 421 government troops were killed in action last week, 10 more than the week before.

★ ★ ★

The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands claimed 2,396 North Vietnamese and Vietcong killed last week, a slight drop from the previous week's revised toll of 2,450.

Parakeet Dies in Surgery

"Perky," the parakeet mascot at Pontiac State Hospital, died in surgery yesterday.

The 4-year-old bird had developed a tumor three weeks ago and was the subject of much concern by PSH patients, staffers and office workers.

★ ★ ★

With much tenderness, the parakeet with a repertory that included wolf whistles and chirping the names of friends was prepared for surgery at about 12:50 p.m.

At 1:25 p.m., the veterinarian informed Mrs. John Bailey of the PSH community relations office that Perky had died as a result of "surgical shock."

"He was such a morale booster for all the patients here and the professional and office staff," Mrs. Bailey said.

County Legal-Aid Fund Cut Seen as Due to 'Timidity'

The Oakland County Legal Aid Society faces a funding cut because it hasn't been aggressive enough, its director indicated at last night's meeting of the Oakland County Commission of Economic Opportunity (OCCEO).

★ ★ ★

Legal Aid Director William R. McNamee, reported his program came under fire last month after a review by an investigator for the Chicago regional office of the legal aid program.

The Oakland County program was described as "too timid" in attacking basic problems in the community and in initiating test cases.

★ ★ ★

Involved is a basic conflict in what priority Legal Aid should have — meeting the needs of individuals or working toward law reform by legal confrontations.

EXPANSION PLANNED

The investigator recommended the county program to be cut from $146,000 this year to $132,000 in 1970, McNamee said. His office had planned to add two more attorneys and two more office personnel, but this move would have to be abandoned and cuts made in present staff. This year the program employed six attorneys and eight office workers.

★ ★ ★

In defending his program, McNamee insists his office is performing the type of service this community wants. He pointed out that 1,996 cases were handled in the first nine months of this year.

Legal Aid handles civil cases of indigents involving debts, divorces, property, custody, etc.

★ ★ ★

In discussing the directive to spend more time on law reform and test cases, McNamee pointed out, "It's going to be hard for us to tell someone that we can't handle his case because we have to work on law reform," he said.

SUITS SUGGESTED

The investigator suggested the county office take such steps as filing suits on school desegregation, lack of transportation and placing control of the Pontiac Police department in a separate agency.

★ ★ ★

McNamee said he is contacting state congressmen to back the county program and funding. A resolution approved by the OCCEO last night supported the county legal aid effort.

As Drug-Alcohol Treatment Center

Future Use of Sanatorium Is Eyed

MAKE OVER PAGES

By JEAN SAILE

The Oakland County Sanatorium, now under fire from the State Social Services Department in the matter of costs, is being considered for future use as a drug and alcoholic treatment center.

The possibility of using the normally 30-40 vacant beds in the 166-bed facility for such treatment was advanced yesterday by the County Board of Institutions.

Members agreed to invite to their Jan. 15 meeting Dr. H. L. Woodward who runs the Pontiac General Hospital volunteer therapy program for drug users; Arthur Jalkanen director of the county drug abuse committee; and Supervisor Robert Patnales, R-Royal Oak, chairman of the human resources committee of the County Board of Supervisors.

★ ★ ★

The three are expected to give information on what the hospital would have to do and what special training the staff would need in order to carry on a drug and alcohol treatment program.

The lack of Blue Cross-Blue Shield funding for alcoholic treatment in the sanatorium was pointed out by Anthony Wodek, hospital director. The county facility is not a participating member of Blue Cross, Wodek said.

★ ★ ★

The threat of fund withdrawal from the Medicaid program by the Social Services Department for patients not considered ill enough to be treated at a hospital is presently clouding the sanatorium's future.

★ ★ ★

"The state wants to get counties out of the hospital business and they're using the Oakland County Sanatorium as a test case," said Charles B. Edwards Jr., who was yesterday reelected chairman of the institutions board.

"A similar hospital facility in Grand Rapids had most of their patients qualified. We have the same kind of patient here, but they said they wouldn't fund 54 of the 58 Medicaid cases we had," Edwards said.

NEW CLASSIFICATION

He noted that, since the evaluation was made last month, about 25 of the cited patients have either died or been transferred to other care facilities.

"What the sanatorium needs is a new classification," Edwards told the board. "We need funding for subacute cases, those which nursing homes won't accept and which are not ill enough for general hospitalization."

He suggested that legislative help to create such a level be obtained from other counties in the state with similar medical facilities.

A patient reevalaution, to be conducted by Dr. Bernard Berman, director of the County Health Department, will be conducted Dec. 29, Wodek said. Future state funding is expected to be based on Berman's findings.

Milford Shocked at Tragedy

MILFORD — An apparent murder-suicide that claimed the lives of a family of five has shocked this community.

The bodies of Wayne E. Jowasky, his wife, Theresa, and their children, David, 8, Diane, 6, and Barbara, 5, were found in and near the family car yesterday in the garage of their home at 227 Franklin.

★ ★ ★

"Everyone is just shocked," said a neighbor, Mrs. William Genette of 222 Franklin. "No one noticed a thing. I just can't believe it was a murder-suicide like they're saying. It just isn't like them."

★ ★ ★

"Several people tried to call Mrs. Jowasky Tuesday to wish her happy birthday but no one got her," siad Mrs. Genette.

Neighbors also noticed that house and Christmas tree lights remained on all night. One neighbor tried calling yesterday morning to see if anything was wrong but there was no answer, according to Mrs. Genette.

★ ★ ★

Her son, Michael, 15, was a baby sitter for the Jawosky children last Thursday and said everything appeared normal.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Earl Herrick of 223 Franklin said, "I heard the car in the garage running in the evening Tuesday but thought they were getting it warmed up to go somewhere. They seemed to be just a common ordinary compatible family."

"They were a wonderful family. I have a broken hip and the mother has helped me, and the children always said hello," said Mrs. Vivian Hazard, an elderly neighbor at 226 Franklin.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Jawosky were active in community affairs.

Jawosky was chairman of the newly formed municipal study committee, a member of the planning board and on the zoning board of appeals.

"He was an extremely intelligent man, easy to work with and very active in community affairs," said Village Manager Joseph Brophy.

Jawosky was due at a planning commission meeting Tuesday night. The group waited until 8:30 but when he failed to show up they finally started, Brophy said.

Village President Wilbur Johnson said, "I'm certainly shocked and very sorry. I knew Wayne as a perfect gentleman and a very good committeeman whenever I assigned him. They live just about a block away from my home."

Drive to Aid Holly Youth Will Feature Dec. 27 Dance

HOLLY — A community fund-raising effort to help the Donald Wilson family of 102 Sherwood will feature a "Brad Wilson Dance" from 8 p.m. to midnight Dec. 27 at Holly High School, 920 E. Baird.

The dance is one of several attempts to help the Wilsons raise an estimated $35,000, needed to keep 16-year-old Bradford Wilson alive.

★ ★ ★

The youth lies in Cleveland Clinic Hospital, dependent upon a kidney machine for life. A kidney transplant looms in the future, but no definite plans have yet been made.

★ ★ ★

The boy was born with only one-eighth of one kidney, but managed to live a more or less normal life, playing in the band — motorcycle riding, until this fall when he began to have convulsions.

FORM COMMITTEE

His classmates and friends at Holly Senior High School have formed a "Brad Wilson Committee," committed to raising funds for the boy's medical needs. Robert Warden of Citizens Bank has been placed in charge of a community fund-raising effort.

Contributions to help pay Brad's medical expenses may be mailed to Holly Senior High School, 920 E. Baird, Holly, Mich. 48442.

★ ★ ★

Tickets for the dance, featuring WTAC disc jockey Bob Dell and two area bands, may be purchased at the high school or at the door on Dec. 27.

5 Killed in Plane Crash

WAVERLY, Ohio (UPI) — Five persons, including a 13-year-old boy, were killed yesterday when their twin-engine private plane, one of its engines afire, crashed into a hillside.

The plane was en route from Cincinnati to Parkersburg, W. Va.

Egypt Hits Across Suez

By the Associated Press

An Egyptian infantry unit crossed the northern Suez Canal before dawn today, attacked Israelli positions and destroyed one tank and two armored cars, the Egyptian military command claimed.

Israeli denied the loss of the tank and armored cars, but admitted that about 30 raiders in two groups crossed the canal during the night.

Man, 79, Killed Crossing Street

NORTH BRANCH — A 79-year-old Lapeer County man, shopping with his wife, was struck by a car and killed last night as he attempted to cross a street.

Jeff Lomason of 4839 Mill died at 8:30 p.m. at Marlette Community Hospital in Tuscola County. He was struck at 6 p.m. while crossing M90 just west of West Street in the village.

Lomason and his wife, Edith, 78, were out buying a quart of milk. She had hold of his arm as they waited to cross the street, police said, but he yanked away from her and walked in front of the oncoming car. He was thrown 22 feet on impact.

The driver of the car, a minor, was not held.

Congestion At Woodard Intersection—A Growing Menace

Can Bloomfield Hills Keep Its Residential Flavor?

Pontiac Press Photo

Stadler—New Man at Helm

By NED ADAMSON

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — While most cities are coping with money and social problems, this affluent municipality has a problem of a different orientation.

Bloomfield Hills remains the virtual single oasis of trees, grass and open land on the building boom strip along Woodward between Detroit and Pontiac.

★ ★ ★

And the city's main objective is how to preserve that lone bastion of residential flavor.

Standing between the retention of that residential flavor and more commercial exploitation are 14 parcels — ranging from three to 30 acres — along Woodward in the city. These in the developer's eye, could be ripe for plucking.

$1,000 A SQUARE FOOT

Property abutting Woodward has been selling in the neighborhood of $1,000 per square foot in recent transactions, according to Robert Stadler, the city's new city manager.

★ ★ ★

Stadler, who lives at 4196 Grayton in Waterford Township, assumed the city manager's post in November following nearly 22 years of service for the city. His responsibilities have ranged from city treasurer and clerk to safety director.

Meanwhile, the wait continues on what action the city may take concerning its attitude toward changing the existing single-family residential zoning, which now applies to the vacant property.

Stadler feels that the majority of the city comission members as well as most of the city's 3,500 residents want future commercial exploitation held to a minimum.

NO NEED FOR EXPANSION

Stadler explained that residents do not have a need for further commercial expansion because of the city's proximity to numerous shopping districts.

"The people here want the city to remain residential, and most of them realize that in order to do that, they have got to pay more taxes," he said.

★ ★ ★

Stadler pointed to the vacant Woodward Avenue land as a growing problem because of the diversity of opinion concerning the disposition of the property and the possibility of more rezoning petitions.

There are now thre court suits pending on rezoning petitions to change various parcels to commercial zoning, with the possibility of a fourth coming up.

FURTHER DIFFICULTIES

Stadler foresees further difficulties with the zoning problems unless the city fathers come up with a solution that would eliminate possibilities of extensive commercial development.

"The members of the City Planning Board and the City Commission realize the Woodward situation is a problem. They are attempting to come up with a solution that would prove beneficial to the community," Stadler said.

★ ★ ★

"The desirability of building single-family residences along Woodward is low. This situation has prompted the planning commission to find out just what the best uses of the the land are while at the same time attempting to avoid a commercially exploited look," Stadler said.

The city manager notes that most of the recent commercial expansion has been the construction of large office buildings in and near the Woodward-East Long Lake intersection.

PRESTIGE OF ADDRESS

Most of the future development requests wil lprobably be similar. The reason: Stadler can only believe that its the prestige of having the Bloomfield Hills address.

He noted that the most recent building, a 28,000-square-foot structure now near completion on East Long Lake Road adjacent to the city office building, has billed itself in a promotional brochure as "Bloomfield North," an address in a prestigious location near advertising agencies and other well-known firms.

★ ★ ★

Owners of the 14 vacant Woodward Avenue parcels naturally have been sitting tight awaiting the outcome of the pending law suits on the rezoning requests.

★ ★ ★

Decisions on the two principle suits — one involving a parcel at Lone Pine and Woodward now pending in Circuit Court — will undoubtedly serve as indicators concerning city government action on future zoning changes, Sadler feels.

DECISION APPEALED

The other disputed property problem concerns property on Lone Pine and Woodward which was directed to be rezoned to commercial by Oakland County Circuit Court. That decision has since been appealed to the Michigan Supreme Court.

★ ★ ★

Stadler said there has been increasing pressure from developers concerning the future of the vacant property, in the city. An example of this pressure was recently felt in a hassle concerning property on Hickory Grove at Lahser. The developer was attempting to double the housing density of the parcel in connection with plans for a condominium development.

★ ★ ★

Bloomfield Hills is by no means standing still in population. The total has jumped from 2,468 to 3,500 in just 10 years. The city is gradually losing its character of many years ago when the area was spotted with rambling estates stately houses, and rolling empty land.

★ ★ ★

The trend in recent years has pointed to smaller residences and the dividing up of large estate-type properties.

★ ★ ★

Stadler said the population saturation level in the city will top out at abopt 6,500. However, he does not expect population increase to reach a boom-type level that would come anywhere near that figure.

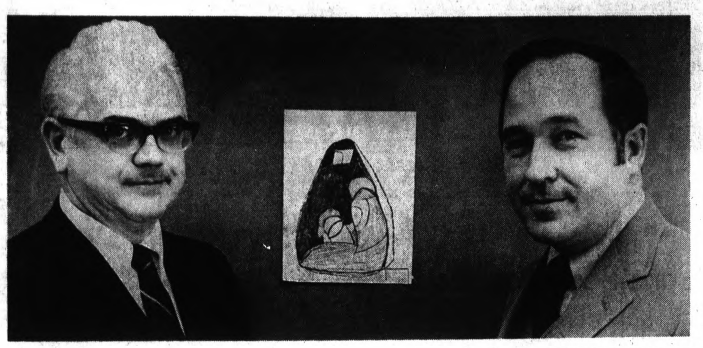

★ ★ ★

Under present zoning regulations, future construction of office buildings and other nonsingle-family residential structures would be minimal. The city now has only two parcels left that are zoned for apartments and one lot that is zoned commercial.

★ ★ ★

Zoning changes could, of course, appreciably change the situation.

It's 'Fancy' Life for Bobby Now

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Singer Bobbie Gentry and millionaire gambling casino owner William "Bill" Harrah were to be married today, an actress who said she was asked to be maid of honor reported.

★ ★ ★

Amandah Peppar made the disclosure Wednesday at the Hungry i theater in San Francisco, where she was appearing in a play. A spokesman at the theater said Miss Peppar canceled her Wednesday night performance and left for Reno.

★ ★ ★

A Mississippi native, Miss Gentry, 27, rose to fame in 1967 with her record "Ode to Billy Joe," which sold five million copies.

★ ★ ★

Harrah, 58, operates two casinos, one in Reno and another at South Lake Tahoe.

★ ★ ★

Neither was available for comment. One of Harrah's business associates, who would neither confirm nor deny marriage plans, said Harrah would continue his practice of avoiding publicity.

★ ★ ★

It will be Miss Gentry's first marriage and Harrah's second.

Milk Prices Up Again

LANSING (AP)—The increase in milk prices spread to northern lower Michigan Monday. The price of a half-gallon of milk went up two cents.

The hike follows a similar increase in the Detroit area earlier this month.

May Continue to Accept With Caution

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: A visit to my girlfriend is an overnight trip. Her mother has always invited me to stay in their home and I have accepted, taking a present with me. Is it all right for me to impose on their hospitality every few weeks, or should I stay in a motel?

Since I do know the family pretty well and because I have already stayed there several times, am I being unnecessarily concerned as long as the invitations continue?—Jack

Dear Jack: Suggest to your girlfriend that you feel you may be imposing and could stay at a motel sometimes. She will know better than you how her family feels. I suspect, from the continuing invitations, that your visits are welcome, and if they are issued warmly, you may certainly continue to accept them.

MAN FIRST

I am a single girl living alone. Is it proper, upon approaching the door, to hand my key to my boyfriend and expect him to open the door? (He is coming in with me.) I had always thought that it was the man's place to open all doors for a woman. After all, you never know who may be lurking behind that door.

My boyfriend disagrees. He says that it is my apartment and that he has no business unlocking and opening my door. Besides, he doesn't want to be the first to be hit over the head by any thieves. Is my boyfriend right, or is he just a coward? —Rhonda

Dear Rhonda: I believe I'd try to find another boyfriend if I were you! Any man who would send his girl into an empty apartment ahead of him so that she could be the one to run into an intruder, isn't worth inviting in. Either he should allow you to unlock it and then open it himself.

The man should step in first and hold the door open for the girl to follow.

Forced Contribution Irks Company Office Worker

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm just a poor working stiff (office job) with a big company, and I mean really BIG.

Today I received an inter-office memo informing me that all the employes were getting together to "BUY THE BOSS A BUICK."

Now, the boss needs somebody to buy him a Buick like I need another head. Furthermore, I think it's a cheap trick to put the arm on all the employes this way.

So what's a guy supposed to do? If I refuse, it's sure to get back to the boss, and you know what will happen to me.

If I go along with it (which is probably the only thing I can do) I will hate myself. Got any advice?

WORKING STIFF

DEAR STIFF: If there are other "working stiffs" in your organization who share your feelings (and there must be), why don't you quit griping, and DO something about it?

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: Our son who is 18 and in the Navy spent several months training in a distant state. During the last two months there he met a girl and spent every weekend with her. When he came home on leave he informed us that he was going to marry her within two weeks! Needless to say, we were shocked because she is only 17.

He is due to go overseas soon for at least a year, so we suggested they become engaged until they were sure of their feelings. It was then that he told us that they couldn't wait because she was pregnant.

★ ★ ★

After some questioning, he told us that he's not really sure she is pregnant, but she "thinks" she is. Also he is not really sure that he is the father, as she's dated several other service men that he knows, but she says he's the one.

★ ★ ★

Our son told us that the girl doesn't get along with her parents and is very eager to get away from home.

★ ★ ★

I do not condone our son's actions, but if he IS responsible for this girl's condition he should certainly face up to his responsibility. Still, how does one really know under the circumstances if it's really his responsibility? Can you advise us?

WORRIED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: First, your son needs legal counsel. And the chaplain on his base will be helpful, too. No young man should jump into marriage under any circumstances—especially the one you describe.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, care of The Pontiac Press, Dept. E-600, P.O. Box 9, Pontiac, Mich. 48056. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

CONFIDENTIAL TO BETH: Tell your husband you want a washer-dryer for Christmas. Clotheslines are for the birds.

Christmas Finds Paula Varner Looking Back, Glancing Ahead

By JANET ODELL
Women's Editor, The Pontiac Press

Paula Varner is taking in stride the news that she's moving. The only thing that upsets her a bit, according to a telephone interview, is the closeness of Christmas.

When the news broke Monday that Chancellor D. B. Varner is leaving Oakland University to assume the chancellor's position at the University of Nebraska, the Varners were in Lincoln.

Now that she's back home with just six weeks to go before their leaving, Paula knows she won't have many free minutes.

"I haven't even finished my Christmas shopping," she said.

Two of the three Varner children are married; Sue is a tenth grader at Rochester High School. She thinks the move will be fun.

Judy and her husband will come home for Christmas from Hartford, Conn. while Tom and his bride of three months will join the family too. Paula's brother and his family are to be houseguests also.

Paula's reaction to the move itself?

"I'm not sure I like it." She went on to say how much she has enjoyed living here and being associated with OU. In a way, she also hates to leave the house she had a hand in remodeling.

"We feel the house is ours." They so much feel the house is theirs that they have resisted moving into Sunset Terrace, the retirement home of the Alfred G. Wilsons. This house, overlooking the Meadow Brook Festival grounds, does not have the warmth and informality of the farmhouse where the Varners live.

Paula has made herself a definite and pleasant part of the university scene. One of my choice memories of her is the time the old chicken houses were being renovated as the costume department for Meadow Brook Theatre. Paula joined the other volunteers in their unglamorous but necessary jobs of scrubbing and waxing.

The Varners think they will like living in Lincoln. Both come from Texas and are used to wide open spaces. "But," says Paula, "the area round Lincoln is a bit rolling."

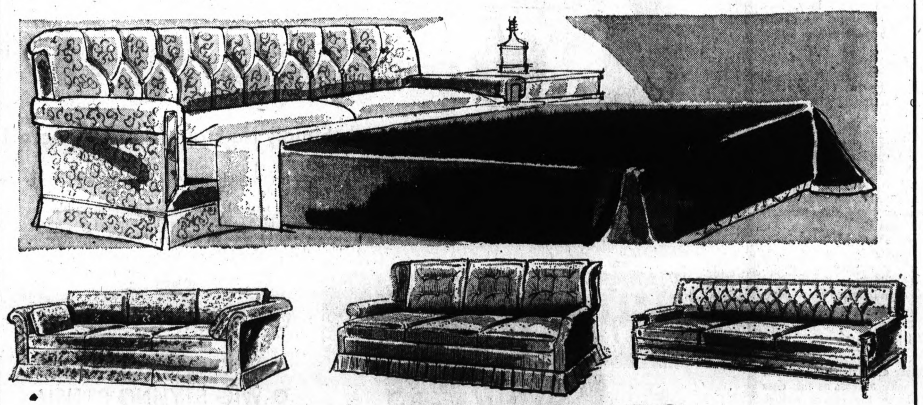

Their new home, which is furnished, is only about five years old. The three Varners spent the night there when they visited Lincoln.

Habitues at Oakland University events will miss the tall smiling woman with the touch of Texas in her voice. We shall.

Polly's Pointers

Seeks Carpet Uses

DEAR POLLY — We had some pieces left over after our living room and television room were carpeted. Does anyone have any suggestions for uses for such carpet? — MRS. L.

DEAR POLLY — Sometimes psychology strikes out! I read Mrs. R.J.J.'s Pointer about telling a small boy that you are going to have his hair fixed like daddy's rather than that you are going for a haircut.

I am the official barber for our family. My young son was very hesitant about getting his hair cut and I told him it would be just fine, because we would do it just like daddy's.

That really did it. He cried as though his heart would break but we finally calmed him down enough to find out what was upsetting him. You see, our daddy is bald right down the middle. We are still laughing. — ELAINE

DEAR POLLY — The lady who wanted to remove green scum and water marks from her vases should fill them with white vinegar and let it set for several hours or as long as required to loosen the scum. I buy this vinegar by the gallon.

After such use, pour it through a strainer or piece of cheesecloth and save it in a bottle to use for the next such job or to resoak the vase if it does not come out just right the first time. It can be diluted half-and-half with water.

After the soaking, I wash the vase thoroughly, using a bottle brush or a cloth-wrapped stick. I also think there is nothing like vinegar to make windows shine and use a small amount in the baby's diaper pail, too. — LAURA

Bands, Bows in Stocking Sure to Please

For Christmas, delight a teenager with a wardrobe of bands and bows for her hair. Headbands and lacy flat bows are easy to make from fabric remnants and sewing trims.

For headbands, use any washable cotton like velveteen, corduroy or a vivid print. To make, cut strips of fabric about two inches wide and 12 inches long. Fold the fabric with right sides together and stitch, leaving both ends open. Turn right side out and hem the ends. Then gather them and attach to a strip of elastic.

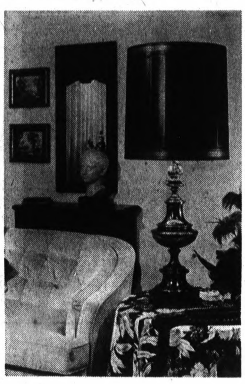

★ ★ ★

For one of the headbands, you might use jumbo cotton rick-rack, stitched to a backing of nonwoven interfacing. Alternate red, white, and blue rick-rack for a colorful effect.

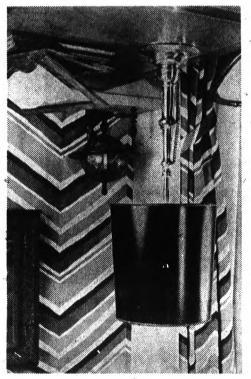

To make flat bows, use wide cotton lace or eyelet bands. Back the material with organdy before you fold it into a bow. Sew to a hair clip, comb, or bobby pin.

Lamps with a definite "bloodline" can easily be a decorative addition to the home furnished in a distinctive period or style. At left, the antiqued brass lamp mimics a classical Georgian urn. Its ebony shade features gold band and striping accents. Rich and rustic England is reflected in the lamp at right, a brass version of a fireman's trumpet. The sturdy campaign desk by Globe Furniture Company completes the masculine setting. Lamps by The Stiffel Company are available locally.

This simple table lamp turns an easy chair into a restful reading area. Pictured is Stiffel's antique-finished lamp with a polygonal wood tray. Available in nut brown or fruitwood finishes, it features a finely molded rim and is available locally.

Napped Fabrics Need Special Gentle Care

Velvet and velveteen require special handling because of their napped surfaces. Velvet is usually made of a silk or synthetic fiber with a cotton back.

Velveteen is really a cotton velvet with a short, thick pile and a dull surface. Both fabrics are popular for evening fashions and at-home wear.

Meg Carter, sewing expert for the McCall Pattern Company suggests you follow the layouts given for napped fabric, placing all the pattern pieces in the same direction.

For rich color, let the nap run up toward your face; for longer wear, run the nap toward the hem.

Use fine pins and silk thread to prevent marring the surface. You can avoid bulk by using chiffon or taffeta for facings. Use a long machine stitch (10-12 per inch), light pressure on the pressure foot and stitch in the direction of the pile.

Velveteen should be steam pressed to prevent matting and flattening the pile. Place the fabric face down on a needle board with a slightly damp press cloth on the wrong side. Hold the steam iron close to the fabric (but not on it) and brush the fabric lightly to distribute the steam. With your fingers, press the seam open and steam it again.

If you do not have a needle board, stand the iron on end and place a wet heavy press cloth over it. Then holding the fabric lightly, draw the wrong side of the fabric across the iron.

Little Mirror Pretty Gift of Handwork

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

There is still time to make little Christmas stocking stuffers and other glamor gifts with which to charm your friends.

Girl friends should appreciate a gift of a wall mirror. These may be made using cardboard, gift wrap, mirrors, glue, packaging tape and gift paper. At a display of their gift wraps, the Norcross design staff showed a number of mirrors — all different shapes and sizes. But you can use the basic instructions to make any shape mirror — star, sunburst, four-leaf clover. The mirrors exhibited were about 7 inches long and wide.

★ ★ ★

You cut three cardboards into identical shapes. Two of these have cut-outs for the mirror. The second cardboard is the one the mirror fits into, the top cardboard is the one that is cut to shape — round, heart, square, and so on. The third cardboard fits over the back.

Cover the front section with gift wrap, allowing one-inch on all sides for overlapping. Tape the mirror securely in place on the second cardboard. Glue the three pieces together.

MATCH PAPER

Cover the entire back piece (the solid one) with matching paper. Glue the one-inch flaps that are left on the sides of the top cardboard to the back of mirror, mitering the corners.

The mirrors may be decorated in a number of ways. You can use lustrous Christmas cord to make the little designs. The designers of the mirrors suggest s-shape or bow designs.

Avon Players

Amateurs Leap to Stage Lure

By JUNE ELERT

A notice of open try-outs for an amateur musical production is roughly equivalent to the call of the wild.

It is an irresistible lure to that segment of the theatrical species who live to act as opposed to the more practical practitioners who act to live.

JUNE

Bunches of believers in the maxim that "Concealed talent brings no reputation," turned up at Avon Playhouse on a recent evening to try out for the March-scheduled production of "My Fair Lady."

The hopefuls ranged in age from the teens through the 50s. Among the chorus contenders were some whose knowledge of their own limitations precluded them from seeking larger roles. These are limitations not necessarily of talent but may be equally of suitability to the available roles.

Eliza, for instance, the only major female singing part, is required to be believably 20ish.

Some were younger folk anxious to get a start — but shy! They hung back, dreading to sing first — or alone—wanting to hear others, probably as a basis for calculating their own chances.

★ ★ ★

By twos, eventually they plunged glassily into "A Little Bit o' Luck," dissolving occasionally into blushes and confusion at strangled high notes or lost places in the score. Their turn over, they shrank willingly into invisibility. It was unnecessary for the spectators were already trekking to the stage hoping to be selected for larger roles.

There is no troublesome shyness here. Polite competitiveness, good sportsmanship, casual acceptance of the routine overlay quiet determination, tense watchfulness, eager desire and sure confidence.

None of the bevy of would-be Elizas could be faulted for voice quality. Each tried to be more "Loverly" than the one before. Some depended totally on vocal beauty without attempting to muck it up with acting.

THE SURE ONES

Others moved freely about the stage making full use of body movement, facial expression, shadings of tone and volume and an occasional remembered deference to Eliza's Cockney beginnings.

'enry 'iggins and Doolittle also 'ad their interpreters and "Ai, Sai, the director's goin' to 'ave a job of it, ain't she?"

Director Adele Carraher's staff will notify each candidate of his acceptance or rejection within the next few days.

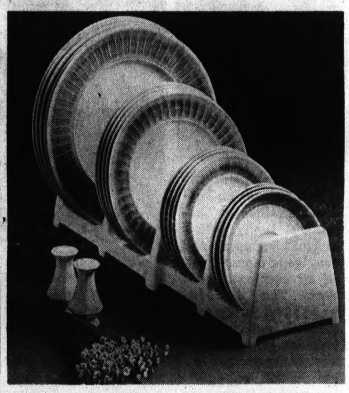

★

The fortunate ones will obligate themselves to a strenuous two-month period of rehearsals, two or three evenings a week and some Sundays. Lives will be rearranged; every spare moment will be devoted to learning lines and perfecting delivery.

All of this will lead to a hectic three weeks of performances, totalling 14, including one matinee.

★ ★

And the reward for all this? There is none — unless you consider the applause, the inner feeling of accomplishment, the savor of pride, the glow of worth, the fun, the swell of ego, the comradeship, and the love — of people, performing and "The Play."

A new place rack from Rubbermaid provides a convenient filing system for platters and plates. Dishes can be stored in easy-to-reach cupboards instead of in high, unsafe stacks. The styrene rack is sectioned to hold various sized plates. Ridges separate plate edges to prevent chipping. It is available in the housewares section of department and hardware stores.

Christmas Is For the Children

Along with the jingle on San-bows, Christmas stars and ta's sleigh and the promise of candy stripes herald a whirl of Dancer, Prancer and Vixen, festivities for excited little little people should take delight misses.

in this season's crop of holiday fashions, filled to the brim with yuletide spirit. Holly red and white are everywhere, while embroidery trim, big floppy

★ ★ ★

For an at-home, trim-the-tree party, Kate Greenaway offers an irresistible red and white candy stripe dress with white sailor collar and cuffs, and a long streamered navy bow. The dress is one currently being featured in stores across the country as part of the Young Fashionables holiday collection in party-proof fabrics with Eastman Kodel polyester, destined for the washer-dryer, one and all.

A dress that's perfect for playing hostess on Christmas day is a Scandinavian style white sheer dress by Johnston in an airy voile of Kodel and cotton, accented with bright berry red. The full gathered skirt is Schiffli embroidered in red to match a simulated weskit top.

For a round of holiday partying, Cinderella gets inspiration from the 30's for a low waisted dress whose flippy circle skirt is red and white polka dot, topped by a solid cherry red bodice, with long, full sleeves, and floppy polka dot bow at the neck.

As with grown-up fashion these days, there is no clear cut message to be gotten from the many festive young designs slated for holiday merrymaking. Considering all the fresh, feminine little-girl good looks around, what may be her holiday dress in December, could well be her favorite party dress all next spring!

Bright and gay wallpaper print A-line overblouse and pink check flared pants by Nannekins. In cotton canvas.

Ready for a holiday cruice in his nifty six button double breasted seersucker jacket worn with flared pants in navy poplin. At his neck a fashionable polka dot ascot. By Nannekins.

Beautiful Babe frock by Nannette. The flocked dot high yoke dress has white batiste laced-edged popover trimmed with bird motif.

For starry-eyed little misses to wear on holiday . . . Dale of California's sunny yellow sailcloth jumper and navy voile blouse printed all over with giant stars. The double-breasted jumper's scooped out neckline provides dramatic contrast to the oversize collar on the peasant-sleeved blouse. Both, in blends of Eastman Kodel polyester and cotton.

Kate Greenaway puts a bit of Americana into a little girl fashion with snappy red and white stripes, pert sailor collar and cuffs. A long streamered navy bow completes the look, created in a Crantex burn-out batiste of Eastman Kodel polyester and cotton.

Louisa May Alcott's little women would have felt at home in today's youthful fashions as interpreted by Siro Fashions in this little dress bibbed in white and trimmed with braid, of Crompton's black rayon velvet.

Johnson opts for Scandinavian charm for some lucky young lady's Christmas dress. Lace and colorful embroidery decorate the dirndl-skirt peasant style, with a simulated weskit accenting its high waistline. In Loomtex's soft, sheer voile of Eastman Kodel polyester and cotton.

Will-O-Way Sets Play for Holidays

The near-classic musical, "Carnival" has been scheduled as the mid-winter special holiday show at Will-O-Way Theatre. It is the melodic and sentimental story of a young girl, Lili, who learns about life and love from the puppets in a traveling carnival, and from the puppeteer.

★ ★ ★

"Carnival" replaces "Little Women," announced earlier as the holiday offering. The musical, with music and lyrics by Bob Merrill and book by Michael Stewart, features a melodic score highlighted by the familiar numbers "Love Makes the World Go 'Round" and "Hi Lili!"

★ ★ ★

In the leading role of Lili is Sharon Maher, who earlier in the season gained critical approval for her singing lead in "The Apple Tree." Opposite her, as Paul the puppeteer, is Jon Tanner. Major supporting roles are played by Ginna Parsons, Bill Tidd, Gary Graham, Pam Buchanan, Ron Wresinski and Martin Colbeck. The cast also features a number of talented youngsters and a number of 'performing' animals.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile the regular repertory season continues at Will-O-Way, with "The Apple Tree" Dec. 30, 31, Jan. 1.

Treat Sheet for Safety

Are you planning to put a cotton sheet under your Christmas tree this year? If so, why not make it flame retardant to increase the safety in your home during the Holiday Season! The following recipe can also be used with such items as curtains, draperies and potholders.

DISSOLVE
7 ounces of borax and
3 ounces of boric acid in
2 quarts of hot water.

Wet the items completely and then dry by any method. The items will be flame resistant until washed again.

Towels Choice for Persons Who Has Everything

If there are people on your gift list who have you stumped, remember that no one can have enough pretty towels in thick 'n' thirsty cotton. New styles will turn any bath into a decorator's delight.

★ ★ ★

For instance, a bouquet of larger-than-life tulips is printed on plush terry velour in one new towel line. The tulips are red, lavender, and purple, surrounded by green leaves and set on a white ground. Towels have a grass green border trimmed with deep fringe.

★ ★ ★

The tailored type on your Christmas list might prefer another new towel style that's patterned with thin pencil stripes. Towels come in rich colors like rose red striped in maroon, and navy blue striped in green.

Probation Set for Area Man in Road Death

A Lyon Township man was placed on one-year probation yesterday in connection with a traffic death of a 19-year-old Howell youth in November 1968.

Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer ordered the probation for George V. Gravelle Sr., 36, of 51460 Pontiac Trail.

Gravelle had pleaded guilty last March to negligent homicide in the death of Douglas Werner. Gravelle had fallen asleep at the wheel and went off the roadway of I-96 near Wixom and struck Werner's stalled car.

Judge Beer had delayed the sentencing since April. The delayed sentencing allowed Beer to review Gravelle's conduct during that time.

2 Waterford Policemen Cited as Officers of Year

Carl Solden, 1678 Tull Court, Waterford Township, has been named officer of the year by the Waterford Township Police Department.

Formosan Election Saturday Is Rarity

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — "You see that policeman? Where did he get his club? We gave it to him; we, the people. And we can tell him what to do with it."

That might not be considered radical talk elsewhere, but it sounds strange in an election campaign in Formosa. Authority is seldom questioned here.

* * *

The election Saturday will be to name 32 new Formosa members for the Yuan, or parliament, and the National Assembly, the electoral college. It will be the first election to these two bodies since 1947, and will fill seats vacated by the death of Formosan representatives and new seats allowing for increases in Formosa's population since 1947.

No similar elections have been held since then, a government publication explains, "as a result of the Communist rebellion and the government's removal to Taiwan."

RETURN TO MAINLAND

Until recently, the government's position was that elections to national bodies could not be held until all Chinese could participate—that is, until after the long-promised return to the mainland. As a result, Formosa has been ruled since 1949 by a parliament only 1.8 per cent of which is Formosan.

It's as if an American government in exile on Hawaii had decided to permit the election of new Hawaiian congressmen after a 20-year lapse, while leaving in their seats the surviving representatives of 49 other states elected in 1947.

After the election Formosa's representation in the National Assembly will rise to 2.5 per cent from 1.3 while membership in the legislative Yuan will rise to 4.2 per cent.

"There will be no change in the political situation," says an official.

IMPORTANT FACTOR

What is important is that the elections are being held at all.

Some point to the extensive economic power of the Formosans and say the party felt it had to hold elections to help insure the islanders' loyalty to the government.

* * *

Others feel the party sincerely wishes to give young Formosans a part in political life. The youngest members of the National Assembly today are the middle-aged sons of Mongol chiefs sent to the then Nationalist capital of Nanking by their fathers in 1948.

Knowledgeable politicians say President Chiang Kai-shek has wanted to hold elections for two years, largely to contrast the image of a prosperous and democratic Formosa to conditions on the mainland.

DELAYS RESULT

But the party bureaucrats, one observer said, "would just as soon not have to go through this election business." They kept coming up with delays.

But in his 1969 New Year's message Chiang called for elections "before the year is out." The party bureaucrats had little choice but to comply.

* * *

They also had little choice but to permit more free speech than usual.

The party and government came in for criticism after November's city council elections because of tight controls over candidates' speeches and publicity. The Kuomintang party had been anxious to insure a favorable outcome for the elections after a serious big city defeat in 1964. All its 43 candidates won in November.

LITTLE VARIANCE

The results may be about the same this time, but independent candidates are making the most of their day in the sun.

A candidate in Taipei has called for an end to the government's right to hold persons without charge, for a Formosan vice president and police chief, and for an elected provincial governor. He has also repeatedly demanded punishment for "those who have delayed the counterattack against the mainland."

A flamboyant candidate in south Formosa has drawn none too subtle analogies between Formosa and Rhodesia—both, he suggests, ruled by a foreign minority. This plea pleases those Formosans who feel their government is dominated by mainlanders who have ruled with a strong hand here for the last two decades.

The crowds respond to all this with chuckles, nods and occasional applause.

"Why get excited?" said one onlooker at a recent rally. "It won't make much difference anyway."

"I don't think anything will really change as a result of the electons," a well-informed independent Formosan politician says.

"But we'll get a few more seats, and who knows? At least its a place to start."

Not Accidental?

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A newsman who telephoned a fire station to inquire about accidents was told: "The ambulance was called twice to take maternity cases, but I don't know whether they were accidents."

Award to Briton Points Up Contributions of Young Physicists

NEW YORK (AP) — Physics is often a young man's game, a phenomenon demonstrated anew with the announcement of a major scientific award to a 29-year-old British theoretical physicist, Dr. Brian D. Josephson of the University of Cambridge.

Josephson won the award for fundamental work he did when he was seeking his doctorate in 1962, in his early 20s.

★ ★ ★

The award, announced Tuesday, is the 1969 Research Corporation Award for outstanding contributions to science. Of the 38 scientists who have won the award, 15 have subsequently won a Nobel Prize.

The history of physics is filled with examples of brilliant insights and discoveries coming from young physicists taking a fresh look at things.

REASON OFFERED

Prof. Nicholas Samios, a 38-year-old physicist at Brookhaven National Laboratory, Upton, N.Y., offered a reason for the youthful innovation:

★ ★ ★

"Generally it's because when you're young you're willing to try new ideas. You haven't been encumbered with stuff that's been around a long time.

★ ★ ★

"To do something big, you've got to change something radically. The older you get, the more conservative you get."

Last year's Research Award winner, Dr. Murray Gell-Mann of the California Institute of Technology, won this year's Nobel Prize in physics. He is 40 now, but made the first of his fundamental discoveries in subnuclear particles in 1953, in his 20s. He won his Ph.D. at 20, was a full professor at 22.

Jacobson's award was for basic work in superconductivity. Superconductors, metals such as tin and lead, lose their resistance to electricity at low temperatures.

The classic example of a young man's sweeping insight came from Albert Einstein, who found that matter and energy are the same and put forth his special theory of relativity in 1905—when he was 26. He was 37 when his general theory of relativity was published.

★ ★ ★

Before Einstein, the American physicist Albert Michelson was only 35 when he carried out a celebrated experiment in 1887 with Edward W. Morley involving the speed of light. Michelson won the Nobel Prize in 1907.

KEY DISCOVERY

In biochemistry, where scientists probe the cells of life, one of the key discoveries of recent years was determining the structure of DNA, the chemical substance that controls growth and heredity.

One of the three men who shared the 1962 Nobel Prize for the work was Dr. James D. Watson, who was in his 20s at the time of the work, in 1953.

★ ★ ★

And one of the latest discoveries in genetics was the isolation last summer of a gene, the basic chemical unit of heredity, by a team of scientists at Harvard Medical School. The team was led by Dr. Jonathan Beckwith, 33, who wears a dark beard, a Julius Caesar-style haircut and flare-bottom trousers.

Romania Law Debate Unique

Some in Parliament Object Before Okay

BUCHAREST (UPI) — After a spontaneous debate unique in Communist legislatures, the Romanian Parliament yesterday passed a law giving more power to the government.

Deputies who questioned the new law lost their arguments. But the fact that they argued at all — and forced the nation's leaders to answer them — provided a dramatic sign of changing times.

★ ★

Supporters of the law described it as part of a general administrative reform to allow more people a voice in decision-making. It was laid today before the winter session of the Grand Assembly, or parliament, which earlier this year was itself given more responsibility.

★ ★ ★

As if to illustrate this responsibility, four deputies rose to make minor objections to some points of the law. Veteran observers said the animated scene was unprecedented here.

★ ★ ★

The deputies either took the podium or stood at their seats. Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer, who had formally proposed the law, four times walked to the podium to answer the objections. Even President Nicolae Ceausescu, who also is Communist party first secretary, smilingly entered the debate over the wording of the law.

★ ★ ★

The deputies lost their points. But the debate came in a country where Parliament members in previous sessions never spontaneously debated anything, but acted as a "rubber stamp."

Cause No. 25561
STATE OF MICHIGAN—In the Probate Court for the County of Oakland, Juvenile Division.
In the matter of the petition concerning Larnell Wayne Spillers, minor.
TO: Henry Johnson, father of said minor child.
Petition having been filed in this Court alleging that said child comes within the provisions of Chapter 712A of the Compiled Laws of 1948 as amended, in that the present whereabouts of the father of said minor child is unknown and said child has violated a law of the State, and that said child should be placed under the jurisdiction of this Court.
In the Name of the People of the State of Michigan, you are hereby notified that the hearing on said petition will be held at the Court House, Oakland County Service Center, in the City of Pontiac in said County, on the 2nd day of January A.D. 1970, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, and you are hereby commanded to appear personally at said hearing.
If being impractical to make personal service hereof, this summons and notice shall be served by publication of a copy one week previous to said hearing in The Pontiac Press, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County.
Witness, the Honorable Norman R. Barnard, Judge of said Court, in the City of Pontiac in said County, this 15th day of December A.D. 1969.

Editor: Saw Attack by Police in Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — A newspaper editor has testified in the Chicago riot conspiracy trial that police trapped a young man in a revolving door of the Conrad Hilton Hotel and beat him "until he fell to the ground unconscious."

* * *

Thomas W. Pugh Jr., editor and publisher of the Troy (Ohio) Daily News, yesterday told the jury he watched police clubbing persons on the sidewalk in front of the hotel, headquarters of the convention delegates, and in an intersection near the hotel.

* * *

Pugh also testified that he was enveloped in a cloud of tear gas as he took pictures of a violent clash between demonstrators and police. Under cross-examination, Pugh said he did not see any demonstrators carrying baseball bats. He said he could not identify the two policemen who trapped the young man and beat him.

* * *

Earlier, the defense showed the jury three films taken in the afternoon and evening of Aug. 28 by CBS cameraman Richard Perez.

* * *

The prosecution objected to the voices of Walter Cronkite and Jack Lawrence, both CBS commentators, "editorializing" on the films. Their voices were stilled when the films were shown to the jury.

The films showed defendant David Dellinger at the head of a group of demonstrators; a clash between police and demonstrators at the intersection of Michigan and Balbo, and policemen dragging demonstrators by their arms, head and feet as they hurled them into paddy wagons.

* * *

Yesterday the defense asked for an early recess on Dec. 24 and for another recess Dec. 26 so that five of the defendants could be with their families for the Christmas holiday. Attorney Leonard Weinglass also asked that the jury be allowed to leave for the recess.

* * *

U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman said he would consider the request.

* * *

Prosecution attorneys said they planned to go ahead without a Christmas recess rather than risk tainting the jury.

* * *

Weinglass told Hoffman the defense case would take another five or six weeks to present, or at least until the last week of January. The prosecution is expected to present rebuttal witnesses at that time.

23 Grad Nurses 'Refreshed' by Course at OCC

Twenty-three graduate nurses recently completed a refresher program sponsored by Oakland Community College to update inactive registered nurses.

Clinical practice was conducted at William Beaumont Hospital.

The graduating class brings the total to 116 nurses who have completed OCC's Nursing Program since January 1968, according to Mrs. Lilian Kelmenson, associate director, Allied Health Programs.

Funding for the program is obtained under the provisions of the Manpower Development Training Act, a federal program administered by the state to train adults in areas where there are a shortage of skilled personnel.

Robber Gets $40 in Highland Holdup

A Highland Township gas station attendant was robbed of $40 early today by a lone bandit.

Ronald Brock, employed at the Clark Gas Station, 2650 N. Milford, told Oakland County Sheriff deputies that the man drove into the station about 3 a.m. and ordered $3 of gas.

Brock, 584 Orchard Lake, Pontiac, said as he was replacing the gas cap, the man returned from the rest room and hit him in the forehead with an unknown object.

The robber fled in a 1968 or 1969 maroon or purple pickup truck, according to Brock.

School Board to Let Center Electric Pact

A special meeting of the Pontiac School Board has been called for 5 p.m. today to award the electrical contract for the planned Human Resource Center.

* * *

Bids for construction of the center, opened Nov. 4, expire tomorrow. Low bidders for the general and mechanical contracts have granted the school district a two-week extension, according to Schools Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer.

* * *

Combined low bids opened in November for construction of the center for elementary pupils and community use totaled about $2 million more than funds available.

* * *

Architects and designers have reduced some costs however on some of the bids, and the board agreed at their Dec. 4 meeting to slightly reduce pupil capacity.

PLANS THREATENED

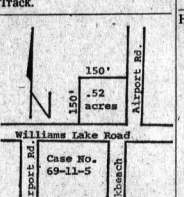

An attorney general's opinion also threatened financial plans for the center, when it was ruled that a school district in Michigan could not directly receive federal funds.

The school district received $1.1 million in July from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for construction of portions of the complex to be used both by elementary pupils and the community.

* * *

A bill which would allow direct government grants to school districts has passed both the State House and Senate, and is awaiting Gov. William Milliken's signature, expected by the end of this week.

The meeting is to be held at the board offices, 350 E. Wide Track.

Derailment Forces Trains to Pull Switch

LAPEER, Mich. (UPI) — A freight train derailment on the Grand Trunk Railroad tracks between here and the Thumb-area community of Attica early today caused a two-hour delay for an estimated 160 passenger train commuters.

* * *

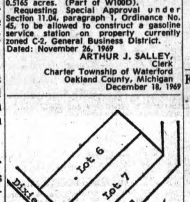

Two passenger trains, one eastbound and the other westbound, were halted because one of the freight cars was blocking both tracks.

* * *

When officials realized it was impossible to get by, school buses were utilized to switch the passengers from one train to another.

* * *

The trains then reversed their directions and the commuters finally reached their destinations.
