

Just a Little Delay for Air Travelers

EUROPE BOUND, AGAIN — Their four hour ordeal over, Mrs. Doreen Voltmann (center) and her husband Robert boarded a bus yesterday for New York's Idlewild Airport to resume their interrupted jet flight to London. The Voltmanns, 3883 Adams Rd., Avon Township, were among the 102 passengers aboard the crippled Boeing 707 transatlantic jetliner that had to circle Idlewild four hours Saturday night before landing safely in a cushion of foam. Pictured with them is another traveler, Mrs. Ruth Kane of Detroit.

Fiscal Concern Inflation Concer

Congressional Mailbag Shows Public Interest in Inflation Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A glimpse into the congressional mailbag disclosed today that more and more voters are writing their congressmen to appeal for action to halt inflation.

Members of congress polled informally by United Press International generally appeared to be aware of and sensitive to this change in the content of their mail. They said letters now being received reflect "more constant talk" about inflation and that "the people seem to have this idea in mind" more and more.

The letters turn the gamut of fiscal issues. Some writers complain of the inroads on fixed income caused by inflation. Others want their congressmen to cut federal spending, reduce waste, increase employment.

The mail has been augmented by a coupon campaign. The poll showed people have been clipping from newspapers, signing and mailing in anti-inflation coupons. (The Pontiac Press recently published such coupons and urged readers to use them in combating inflation.

Rep. Alfred E. Santangelo (D-N.Y.) said his office sent out mimeographed replies to 200 or more "stop inflation" coupons he received.

He said he thought the campaign was effective. He said it "enforced" his belief that voters considered fiscal issues of prime importance and "compelled me to think of cutting expenses wherever possible."

Rep. Peter F. Mack (D-Ill.) said the coupon mailings were not like an organized pressure campaign because, "after all, people had to go to some effort to clip them, find a stamp and mail them."

He said his own thinking was not influenced "because I don't think I'm the spender type in the first place." However, Mack said, it indicated people have "given a lot of thought to the tremendous federal outlays, particularly for foreign aid and defense."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) said there seemed to be a "cumulative effect" that had built enough interest to prod voters to write their congressmen about inflation.

Jackson, who said indirect controls such as the "tight money policies" have failed, foresaw no cuts in spending due to a "25 to 50-year economic conflict with the Russians." He advocated stringent standby wage and price controls to halt inflation.

Rep. Armistead Selden (D-Ala.) said that "people, at least in my district, are disturbed about inflation." He said voters' opinions definitely "carry some weight." He added he was willing to vote to cut spending and "glad to have my people's support."

Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.) said he replied to the coupon senders by suggesting they name specific expenditures that could be cut.

Airport Mobbing Alarms Officials

50,000 Jam Idlewild for Front-Row Seats at Possible Disaster

From Our News Wires
NEW YORK — City and airport officials took steps today to prevent a recurrence of the "Roman holiday" in which thousands of sightseers swarmed to watch the emergency landing of a jet airliner, hampering fire and rescue equipment and endangering their own lives.

The Pan American World Airways plane, with 102 passengers and a crew of 11 aboard, lost part of its landing gear when it took off for London at 8:37 p.m. Saturday.

It circled the field for four hours, reducing its fuel load and awaiting ground preparations for a possible belly landing, before it made a safe touch-down on its remaining wheels at 12:29 a.m. Sunday.

During those four hours, an estimated 50,000 persons converged on Idlewild Airport, clogging traffic for 15 miles on roads leading to the airport and delaying fire engines and ambulances attempting to reach the landing scene.

AT RUNWAY'S EDGE
About 4,000 spectators pushed to the edge of the runway seeking a front-row view of a possible disaster.

"If we'd veered off the runway, or there'd been an explosion and fire, hundreds could have been killed," said the pilot, Capt. Edward Sommers.

"The rescue equipment was at the other end of the runway and (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Stay Alive Longer!

Will You Live to Enjoy Your Success?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Is modern man killing himself to produce a better world for his wife and children to enjoy? Why do five times as many men die from heart attacks today as did 25 years ago? To what extent is a wife responsible for her husband's untimely death? How can every woman help her husband stay alive longer? In a highly provocative series of 20 articles, LeLord Korde! brings new hope and encouragement in dealing with these major problems of modern living. Don't miss even one of the 20 installments, of which this is the first.

By LELORD KORDE!

Installment One

Once on a tour of a world-renowned cemetery in Genoa, I stopped before a large, imposing statue of a little old woman.

"Who was she?" I asked, with a touch of awe. "What did she do?"

"She sold flowers in the street," said my guide.

"But that statue in her honor—" I insisted, "she must have done something heroic."

"Heroin, maybe. Foolish, more likely," the guide shrugged. "She worked hard all her life selling flowers, saved every penny, had no fun, not even enough to eat, so she could have a big monument built in her honor when she wouldn't be here to see it."

The scene changes from the quiet of a Genoa graveyard to the noisy, frenzied pace of New York. But the pattern remains the same.

I was having dinner with a friend of mine. Bob Swanson is a busy, successful executive whose company manufactures business machines. These machines are designed to operate with ease and efficiency.

A husky former all-American, Bob had forgotten that the mechanism of his own body was the most delicate and efficient ever conceived.

He wouldn't have thought of driving his car without gas and oil, yet he continually pushed his body to the breaking point without giving it the proper food to keep it operating.

The next time I saw Bob he was lying white and still on a hospital bed after a heart attack.

"Funny thing" — he managed a feeble grin — "the office is running fine without me. Just goes to show you, no man is indispensable."

Bob was one of the lucky ones: he recovered. His heart attack was a warning which he was wise enough to heed. He put himself on a five-day-week schedule, learned to delegate authority, bought a cottage by a lake, and spent every weekend there with his family.

"I'm learning to relax," he told me later. "I was a damn fool. For years I'd worked as though there'd never be a tomorrow. And you know something? There almost wasn't!"

MIDDLE-AGED REVOLT

"Death begins at forty!" That's what Dr. Clive M. McCay, of Cornell University, tells us. He says it's around this age that a man looks back over his first four decades, then decides to do something about the remaining three decades by recharting his whole life.

He goes into a middle-aged revolt. Fearful of getting old, he worries about his love-life. But sterility and impotence are not the results of age. They stem from nutritional disorders or from psychological blocks.

Sexual vigor can and should last many years past middle life. Even prostate difficulties are now treated without loss of fertility.

Don't go into the proverbial talispin. Don't try to be a playboy without the talent for it, a Don Juan without the fervor for it, nor an athlete without the build for it. Moderate exercise, certainly. But don't try to outdo the lads on Muscle Beach.

It isn't old age that brings disease. Rather, it's disease that brings old age.

30-Month Stopgap Plan on Berlin Is Revision of Red Proposal

GENEVA (P) — Western foreign ministers resumed their talks with the Soviet Union today in an effort to find agreement on a compromise plan for shelving the immediate Soviet threat to West Berlin.

The Big Four conference was resumed after a three-week recess. Western strategy, agreed upon this morning, was to take the initiative and seek a quick declaration from the Soviets on the Berlin problem.

In a reversal of their earlier stand, U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and his British and French colleagues were reported ready to negotiate with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko on his offer of a Berlin standstill agreement.

But they want the proposed moratorium to run for at least 30 months, instead of the 18 months offered by Gromyko, and they want a pledge of Soviet respect for Western rights in Berlin.

Herter was designated in a Western strategy meeting to lead the Western campaign when the Big Four conference reopens after a three-week recess. As conference chairman for the day, Herter was assured an opportunity to speak first.

Western strategy was decided upon when British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville, and West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano met with Herter in his headquarters here three hours before the resumption of sessions with Gromyko at the Palace of Nations.

Some West German authorities argued the United States, Britain and France should make one more attempt for an accord with the Soviet Union on German reunification. But American and British informants said there was no hope now of getting any agreement other than some kind of stopgap arrangement to ease the Berlin crisis.

Western diplomats said that in his leadoff speech Herter would offer certain inducements such as a cut in troop strength in West Berlin.

Warming Trend to Last 5 Days; Carry Raincoats

Pontiac area weather observers can look forward to a warming trend only until mid-week, with little temperature change thereafter. Temperatures will average a little above the normal high of 84 and normal 63 low.

Whatever the occasion, it would be handy to carry raincoat, for the weatherman predicts scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers, becoming heavier Wednesday or Thursday.

The mercury will drop to a low of 60 tonight, but with continued mild weather. Partly cloudy and warmer is the weather forecast for Tuesday. Gentle variable winds and a chance of showers are expected tomorrow, according to the U.S. Weather Bureau.

In downtown Pontiac the lowest temperature recorded before 8 a.m. was 57. At 1 p.m. the thermometer read 80.

Butler Refuses to Be Replaced

Democratic National Chairman Doesn't Think Plot Will Succeed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Paul M. Butler says some Democrats want to replace him with a member of Congress as Democratic national chairman so they can control the party's 1960 convention. He doesn't think they will succeed.

Butler said he will continue to urge a more "positive and aggressive" legislative program in Congress. He considers it his job, he said, to express "what I feel to be the majority point of view."

In a news conference Saturday and in a television interview Sunday, Butler insisted he's only reporting the sentiment he finds and not directly criticizing such leaders as Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.).

Butler in turn has come in for criticism in Congress since he said a week ago the party faces trouble in the 1960 elections unless its leadership in Congress moves more in the direction he advocates.

He said Sunday there are reports his Capitol Hill critics already have agreed to support a Western senator as his successor. Others discounted his report.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont), the assistant Democratic leader, said he knew of no move to replace Butler with a Western senator.

Area Crops Threatened by Prolonged Dry Spell

Oakland County area farmers are keeping an anxious eye out for some signs of rain these days as their crops wilt for lack of water.

"The situation is getting to be critical," according to Lyle Abel, county agricultural extension director.

"Considerable damage already has been done to crops on lighter soil," he said today, "Much of the first plantings of sweet corn has been ruined, and all major crops other than wheat are feeling the effects of a dry summer."

Farmers already have harvested their first wheat crop and it's too early yet to tell what effect the current drought might have on second plantings.

Fruit yields throughout the county area have been reduced considerably where no irrigation is provided, according to Abel.

"The quality of fruit in general is below par," he said. Farmers report the fruit is dwarf-sized and unusually dry of texture in many instances.

Area homeowners have been spending evening hours in watering the brown stubble that was green grass, but even prolonged soakings have been fruitless in many cases.

While the drought hasn't been declared official yet by the Weather Bureau, less than 1.34 inches of rain have been recorded in the county since June 1.

Saturday's rather violent but short-lived rainstorm measured only .16 of an inch, having little effect on easing the situation.

The story has been the same for most of the Lower Peninsula—a dry summer with far below average rainfall.

The Weather Bureau sees some relief in sight for farmers within the next five days and forecasts above-normal precipitation for the month.

Thundershowers are looming just over the horizon. Farmers are hoping they will move in before it's too late.

Now, Parking for Dogs

LEICESTER, England (UPI)—A local firm said it had received an order from a pet food firm in Pennsylvania, Pa., for 250,000 hitching posts for dogs. The manufacturer said the purchaser plans to give the posts to stores selling its products, so customers can tie their dogs outside while shopping.

Renew Efforts to Avert Strike Set Tomorrow

Ike Reportedly Has No Present Plans to Step Into Dispute

NEW YORK (P) — Union and industry negotiators responded to a White House request today and agreed to resume stalled steel talks at once.

The two sides said they would begin bargaining again at noon in an effort to avert a strike at midnight tomorrow.

The peace talks had broken off completely Sunday with no further negotiating sessions scheduled.

President Eisenhower this morning urged both sides to resume the meetings to try to reach a strike-saving solution.

David J. McDonald, Union president, met briefly with the Union's Executive Board and then telephoned R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, to arrange the noon resumption of bargaining talks.

Hagerty first read the statement, then volunteered that Eisenhower and Mitchell had conferred regarding the steel situation for about 25 minutes this morning.

The press secretary added that the President and Nixon later met for about 45 minutes. He said that conference dealt with many things, and that the steel strike threat was one of them.

In reply to a question, Hagerty said Eisenhower had not been in direct communication with either side in the dispute.

NOTES EARLIER FILED

The press secretary noted, however, that on June 27 Eisenhower urged that both sides continue negotiations—without interruption of production—until a new contract had been agreed upon.

He made that appeal in a letter to David J. McDonald, president of the Steelworkers Union, who then agreed to postpone any strike for two weeks—until tomorrow at midnight.

At his news conference last week, Eisenhower noted that he had called for continuance of talks until a new contract had been negotiated—and not for just a two-week continuance.

Asked whether the President plans any new move to avert a strike, Hagerty replied only that Eisenhower will be watching the situation with a great deal of interest.

Prospects for a new contract agreement before the strike deadline at midnight tomorrow appeared exceedingly dim, however. The industry has insisted on obtaining more management control over various operations to cover any pay or other concessions that might be offered.

The union has refused to yield on this subject. It said the industry has refused to make any specific wage increase offer.

McDonald, after receiving word of the White House request, met briefly with his Union Executive Board.

He rushed out to a hotel corridor telephone and, in the sight of reporters and photographers, called Cooper to arrange the new negotiating resumption.

In a short statement McDonald said:

"The Union agrees with President Eisenhower that there is opportunity and time for settlement to be reached before the strike deadline.

"We are notifying the industry's negotiators that we are prepared to resume negotiations at once for this purpose."

McDonald said the Tuesday midnight strike deadline still stands and the Union plans no further postponements.

Explosion Leaves Avon Pair Occupied Family of Eight Without a Home

A family of eight lost its home Saturday night as flames spread through the dwelling after an old refrigerator exploded.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mills and their six children, ranging from nine months to eight years in age, were at the home of Mrs. Mills' mother, Mrs. Allen Cooley, 335 Third St., when the fire started at 11:30 p.m.

Firemen battled the blaze at 156 Palmer St. for more than an hour and a half before extinguishing the flames. The home was completely gutted, and the family's furnishings and clothes a complete loss.

Mills, 26, a truck driver, has not been working steadily for the past six months because of illness.

The fire added to the monetary problems of the family, already saddled with numerous hospital bills because of the father's illness.

The $3,000 two-story home was insured, but not the contents valued at $1,200.

The family is being housed by Mrs. Mills' mother temporarily. Neighbors today started a drive to aid the family. Collections are being received at the home of Horton Graves, 155 Palmer St.

Pair of Waterford Children Injured

A four-year-old Waterford Township boy is in fair condition at Pontiac General Hospital with head injuries as a result of running into the path of a car Saturday morning.

William J. Welch, of 3237 Signet St., told police he was chasing his brother across the street and didn't see a car driven by Milton Fuller, 55, of 458 Seeden St., Waterford Township, until it was too late.

William is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. Welch.

Another township girl Mary McGinley, 16, of 2908 Lansdowne St., suffered a fractured skull yesterday afternoon when she fell from a horse at a riding stable located at 8318 Gale Rd., Waterford township.

She is in fair condition at the same hospital today.

Rain Clouds Hover Over Much of U. S.

Rain clouds hovered over broad areas of the country today with the threat of showery weather mostly this afternoon and tonight. The nation's general weather picture showed only minor changes. Hot weather continued in the Southwest and most of the plateau region. It was warm and humid in the south Atlantic states. Fairly pleasant temperatures were reported in most other sections.

In the eastern half of the country, scattered showers were forecast for Arkansas and Louisiana eastward to Florida and the Atlantic coast, northeastward into New England, mainly east of the Appalachians.

Fair weather was the outlook in the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, New York state and parts of the upper Great Lakes region. Scattered showers were likely from northern Illinois northward to Lake Superior, with clear to partly cloudy skies in other areas.

Most of the showers and thunderstorms Sunday were confined in a long but narrow belt from the Gulf Coast eastward to Florida and northward along the East Coast through parts of New York, Pennsylvania and New England. Temperatures early this morning ranged from the 50s in the Lake Superior district to the 60s and 70s in other parts of the country except the hot Southwest where readings were in the 80s and 90s. Monday's highest mark was 115 at Needles, Calif.

Avon Pair Occupied Jethner's 'Hot Seat'

when the pilot said he thought we could land on the remaining wheels (eight of them) instead of belly-landing.

"He said that after we had been circling for about two hours."

During the four-hour ordeal, the Voltmanns ate a roast beef dinner, with mashed potatoes and peas.

So did most of the other 102 passengers, as if there were nothing unusual about their flight.

Tension reached its peak when the pilot announced it was time to land.

"The plane came down to the ground so fast—they told us later it was 150 miles an hour."

"When we touched the runway, the sparks started flying up right underneath our window. But there would have been a lot more sparks if it hadn't been for that foam."

Seconds later, the big plane had skidded to a halt 200 feet from the end of the foam-covered runway.

The Voltmanns, like most of the passengers, easily slid down escape chutes to the ground.

BOARD ANOTHER PLANE
Undaunted by their experience, the Voltmanns boarded another jet airliner at 11 a.m. Sunday and once again headed for London on the first lap of their first trip abroad.

On a three-week tour, they plan to visit Western Europe, including Paris, Rome, Germany, the Lowlands and Denmark.

Friends and relatives shared the tense moments with the Voltmanns.

"Our hearts were in our mouths," said Mrs. Trudell, a dietitian at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

The Trudells followed the plane's adventure by means of the spot news broadcasts from Idlewild.

DAUGHTER PHONES
They turned on the news after a daughter in Toledo telephoned to tell them about the mishap.

"We were glued to the broadcasts for four hours, our fingers crossed. We were worried, but I had a feeling it would turn out all right."

"Thank God it did."

Close neighbors of the Voltmanns, Mr. and Mrs. Roland M. Diemer, 3861 Adams Rd., caught the news bulletins over the airwaves shortly after the plane took off at 7:30 p.m.

"We realized immediately that it was Bob and Doreen's plane that they were talking about."

"We had planned to retire early Saturday but there was no going to sleep as long as that plane was still up in the air. We kept right next to our television set until they announced the safe landing at midnight."

A Detroit woman who was aboard the floundering plane shrugged off the incident as "just an experience."

"Everybody had faith in the crew and they did a tremendous job," said Mrs. Ruth Kane.

She telephoned her husband and mother in Detroit shortly after she was to take off again yesterday for a delayed trip to London.

"There was absolutely no confusion or excitement — until after the plane was on the ground," Mrs. Kane said.

NIGERIA COMES TO MSUO — High officials of the Nigerian government were honored at a luncheon Saturday at the Kingsley Inn after touring the campus of Michigan State University Oakland. Among those at the luncheon were (from left): D. B. Varner, MSUO Chancellor; Don Ahrens, MSUO vice president

Says University in Native Land Inadequate

Nigerian Official Studies MSUO

A high-ranking official of the Nigerian government declared Saturday that university students in Britain's largest colonial territory learn "too much Latin and not enough about practical problems facing their people."

Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe, premier of Eastern Nigeria, expressed this opinion after touring the campus of Michigan State University Oakland.

He and members of his mission were guests of honor at a luncheon at Kingsley Inn. Other members of the Nigerian party were G. E. Okeke, minister of education; Lt. Col. E. C. Alderton, the premier's principal secretary, and Dr. T. O. Elias of

Oxford University, adviser on educational affairs.

Others present were representatives of Michigan State University, MSUO, and the MSUO Foundation.

Dr. Azikiwe is on a two-week tour of the United States to study land-grant universities. He explained that many features of these institutions will be incorporated into a new Nigerian university which will open in the fall of 1960.

Nigeria, with a population of more than 40,000,000 people, has only one university.

"And unfortunately, the graduates are ill-equipped to assume posts of leadership in our country," he declared.

Dr. Azikiwe said that "only the very cream" of the students in the British West African protectorate are accepted by the existing school which the British government established in 1947.

"In fact, you have to be a genius to go there," he said. "These students are suited for the academic world perhaps, but Nigeria needs something other than scholars."

Nigeria will become an independent republic in the British Commonwealth in the fall of 1960. The new university must, he declared, help the nation solve the tremendous challenges it will face when independence becomes a reality.

He was impressed by extension service programs of American universities.

"The findings of the university are brought to the people," he observed. "This is a distinct contribution of schools in this country to the welfare of the people."

"If democracy is to have meaning in Nigeria, the peoples must learn about new techniques. And for people to learn new techniques, the university must have a program for them."

Dr. Azikiwe said that until a few years ago 95 per cent of the Nigerian population was illiterate. "When we were granted a measure of self-government, we immediately started to reduce that percentage. We have now brought it to 85 per cent."

The new university's curriculum will heavily emphasize engineering, agriculture, home economics and business management programs, the African premier said.

Since not too many Nigerians are qualified to teach on a university level, faculty members will be recruited throughout the world, with the help of agencies such as the United Nations Education, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and the International Cooperation Administration (ICA).

Would farmers and other groups in his nation resist new Western techniques?

"Certainly not," he said. "People are naturally conservative, but show a farmer how to use a tractor instead of a hoe. He'll be impressed."

The new university, he said, will provide educational opportunities for many who are deprived of college training because of lack of space. Last year, he said, the existing university could only accept 300 of the 1,100 students who applied.

Dr. Azikiwe is premier of one of three sections of Nigeria which are united in a federation.

The proposed university would be established in his region.

The boys, both from the community of Eastview near Ottawa, are Richard Boudreau and Gerald Leclerc. They are 19 years old.

They were arrested Sunday as they attempted to cross the border into Mexico. They were booked on suspicion of grand theft and held for Canadian authorities.

Police said Boudreau and Leclerc told them the money would not be missed by the Toronto Dominion Bank until it opens for business today.

D. D. Bleucher, chief of police inspectors, said they told him of plans to establish themselves in business in Mexico and "become respectable again."

In a television interview over station KFMB, Boudreau, who was a teller at the bank, said "stealing the money was easy."

Leclerc said they drove to a place about 60 miles from Ottawa where they met a friend, who took them across the U.S. border, concealed in the trunk of his car.

Boudreau said there was about $4,000 in U.S. currency in the money he took from the bank. They figured this would be sufficient to meet their expenses in Mexico for a year and by that time, they would be able to invest or exchange the Canadian money.

Their plan was upset when they arrived at the Mexican border in a taxicab driven by a woman.

The cab driver, unidentified, told police that her passengers had luggage in the cab. This led patrolman Richard Wolfe to look into the suitcase holding the money.

They said the idea came to them two weeks ago "out of the clear blue sky."

Says University in Native Land Inadequate

Nigerian Official Studies MSUO

A high-ranking official of the Nigerian government declared Saturday that university students in Britain's largest colonial territory learn "too much Latin and not enough about practical problems facing their people."

Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe, premier of Eastern Nigeria, expressed this opinion after touring the campus of Michigan State University Oakland.

He and members of his mission were guests of honor at a luncheon at Kingsley Inn. Other members of the Nigerian party were G. E. Okeke, minister of education; Lt. Col. E. C. Alderton, the premier's principal secretary, and Dr. T. O. Elias of

Oxford University, adviser on educational affairs.

Others present were representatives of Michigan State University, MSUO, and the MSUO Foundation.

Dr. Azikiwe is on a two-week tour of the United States to study land-grant universities. He explained that many features of these institutions will be incorporated into a new Nigerian university which will open in the fall of 1960.

Nigeria, with a population of more than 40,000,000 people, has only one university.

"And unfortunately, the graduates are ill-equipped to assume posts of leadership in our country," he declared.

Dr. Azikiwe said that "only the very cream" of the students in the British West African protectorate are accepted by the existing school which the British government established in 1947.

"In fact, you have to be a genius to go there," he said. "These students are suited for the academic world perhaps, but Nigeria needs something other than scholars."

Nigeria will become an independent republic in the British Commonwealth in the fall of 1960. The new university must, he declared, help the nation solve the tremendous challenges it will face when independence becomes a reality.

He was impressed by extension service programs of American universities.

"The findings of the university are brought to the people," he observed. "This is a distinct contribution of schools in this country to the welfare of the people."

"If democracy is to have meaning in Nigeria, the peoples must learn about new techniques. And for people to learn new techniques, the university must have a program for them."

Dr. Azikiwe said that until a few years ago 95 per cent of the Nigerian population was illiterate. "When we were granted a measure of self-government, we immediately started to reduce that percentage. We have now brought it to 85 per cent."

The new university's curriculum will heavily emphasize engineering, agriculture, home economics and business management programs, the African premier said.

Since not too many Nigerians are qualified to teach on a university level, faculty members will be recruited throughout the world, with the help of agencies such as the United Nations Education, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and the International Cooperation Administration (ICA).

Would farmers and other groups in his nation resist new Western techniques?

"Certainly not," he said. "People are naturally conservative, but show a farmer how to use a tractor instead of a hoe. He'll be impressed."

The new university, he said, will provide educational opportunities for many who are deprived of college training because of lack of space. Last year, he said, the existing university could only accept 300 of the 1,100 students who applied.

Dr. Azikiwe is premier of one of three sections of Nigeria which are united in a federation.

The proposed university would be established in his region.

The boys, both from the community of Eastview near Ottawa, are Richard Boudreau and Gerald Leclerc. They are 19 years old.

They were arrested Sunday as they attempted to cross the border into Mexico. They were booked on suspicion of grand theft and held for Canadian authorities.

Police said Boudreau and Leclerc told them the money would not be missed by the Toronto Dominion Bank until it opens for business today.

D. D. Bleucher, chief of police inspectors, said they told him of plans to establish themselves in business in Mexico and "become respectable again."

In a television interview over station KFMB, Boudreau, who was a teller at the bank, said "stealing the money was easy."

Leclerc said they drove to a place about 60 miles from Ottawa where they met a friend, who took them across the U.S. border, concealed in the trunk of his car.

Boudreau said there was about $4,000 in U.S. currency in the money he took from the bank. They figured this would be sufficient to meet their expenses in Mexico for a year and by that time, they would be able to invest or exchange the Canadian money.

Their plan was upset when they arrived at the Mexican border in a taxicab driven by a woman.

The cab driver, unidentified, told police that her passengers had luggage in the cab. This led patrolman Richard Wolfe to look into the suitcase holding the money.

They said the idea came to them two weeks ago "out of the clear blue sky."

City Eyes Bid to Reduce Latham Road Hazards

BIRMINGHAM — In the hands of the Birmingham City Commission for consideration at tonight's meeting is a letter from Hugh R. Mack Jr., of 1710 Latham Rd., requesting action regarding safety measures on Latham road between 14 Mile and Lincoln roads.

The street is the same on which sidewalk construction was requested last month by R. B. King of 1700 Latham Rd.

A group of property owners protested sidewalk construction at the same time and the matter was tabled for further study.

In his letter, Mack asserts that placement of full stoplights on Southfield road at 14 Mile and at Lincoln roads has caused through traffic to use Latham road to avoid the lights.

The traffic increase has been "heavy," the letter states, and "speeds have been excessive."

Mack cites the danger of high-speed traffic to the many small children on the street, and asks for either sidewalk construction to keep the youngsters out of the roadway or for regulation of traffic by use of stop signs.

Bloomfield Hills Police Capt. Walter Sluiter today issued a warning to area teenagers and their parents concerning the Cranbrook Schools swimming pool — a private pool on Lone Pine road in Bloomfield Hills.

According to Sluiter, youngsters have been sneaking into the pool for after dark swimming. He cited trespassing as the first item of misconduct involved.

But more important, Sluiter said, is the fact that "the 22-foot deep pool is not safe for night swimming. Pool members themselves refrain from using it after dark."

The occurrences of trespassing have been numerous recently, according to Sluiter, so numerous in fact that Bloomfield Hills Police have clamped down hard.

Thursday night they nabbed nine teenagers swimming in the pool. Eight of the trespassers were fined $10 each in the Bloomfield Hills Justice Court. The ninth, a juvenile, was meted out punishment by his parents.

"We don't want their money," said Sluiter, "but we do want them to be safe."

Gustave A. Schettling Service for Gustave A. Schettling, 73, of 1664 Old Town Rd., West Bloomfield Township, will be held at 1 p.m. Tuesday from the Manley Bailey Funeral Home in Birmingham. Burial will be in White Chapel Cemetery, Troy.

Mr. Schettling died Friday following an automobile accident in Bloomfield Township. Cause of death is unknown, pending results of an autopsy.

Before the Senate last week reversed a plan to return to work tonight, seven senators asked for and were granted excuses to be absent from the Monday night meeting.

It was only after this happened that agreement was reached to come back tomorrow instead. The long weekend decision met resistance in the House and is not likely to be repeated this week.

On Thursday, the current session will equal the 1933 Legislature's record meeting, longest from a working day's standpoint in state history.

And barring developments Tuesday night or Wednesday not now foreseen, a solution to the marathon stalemate over new taxes still will be out of sight—perhaps as the state experiences its second major payless payday.

The week may produce the first showdown vote on a flat rate income tax, although this is by no means assured.

Atty. Gen. Paul L. Adams said today that he might need more attorneys to handle legal problems arising from the state's debts to vendors and contractors.

He was a former Birmingham resident, and had been a cabinet-maker for the Cadillac Showcase Co. of Detroit for 23 years prior to his retirement in 1958.

He was a member of the Crescent Hills Baptist Church, Drayton Plains.

Surviving are his wife, Lydia; two sons; Werner of 539 Bennaville Rd., Birmingham, and Rudy of Pontiac; and

Plans to Push Army Increase

Senator Will Introduce Amendment on Floor If Encouraged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A last ditch effort to lift the Army's manpower level to 900,000 is planned today as the Senate begins debate on the 40-billion-dollar defense appropriation.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) said he had an Army increase amendment ready and will introduce it on the Senate floor "if I think we can get the votes."

The biggest annual money bill provides operating funds for the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines for the fiscal year that began July 1. The Senate is expected to pass it by Tuesday.

Ellender wants to add another 132 million dollars to raise the Army ceiling from the 870,000 manpower level now planned and previously approved by the House.

As the bill reached the Senate from its Appropriations Committee it carried more than 346 million dollars above amounts asked by the President and 746 million more than voted by the House.

Much of these increases reflect 380 million dollars for another large aircraft carrier for the Navy and extra millions to modernize the Army and keep the Marine Corps and reserve forces at higher levels than requested by the Pentagon.

Ellender lost by narrow margins on previous efforts in the committee to put a 900,000 manpower floor under the Army. At the same time the group added 43 million dollars to raise the Marine Corps to 200,000 — 25,000 above the President's recommendations.

Boy Initiates Medicine Safari

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — The sergeant's son didn't go through channels. He wrote direct to the general.

As a result, 13-year-old Bobby Hill will be off Tuesday at the head of an airborne safari carrying about $400,000 worth of medicines to Dr. Albert Schweitzer in French Equatorial Africa.

Iraq Preparing Big Revolution Anniversary Fete

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Iraq is preparing for a mammoth celebration tomorrow of the first anniversary of the revolution that overthrew the monarchy.

There were fears here it could backfire into a bloody civil war.

Diplomatic delegations from 60 nations have accepted invitations to attend the week-long celebration, and Premier Abdel Karim Kassem's government is going all out to try to make them forget the worst sandstorm in a quarter century and 120-degree heat.

Musicians have been imported from Communist China and Russia. Dancing girls have been brought in from Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Hungary.

The government is spending about three-quarters of a million dollars on the celebration.

New York to Belt Cars

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says all New York state cars will soon be equipped with safety belts. He ordered department heads to see that employees use them.

California Union Official He'd Run for President

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What would happen if the Democrats offered California Gov. Edmund G. Brown the presidential nomination?

"I'd take it," Brown says, "and do everything I could to be a good candidate."

Brown, appearing on a television panel program Sunday after being involved in a minor traffic accident, said: "No man can turn down such a nomination if it is tendered to him."

Brown was asked whether he'd accept nomination as a running mate of Adlai E. Stevenson.

"I would like to be on any ticket with Stevenson," he said. "But I would much prefer to fill my job in California, as governor of this state. For, in the last six months, I have learned many things, and I prefer that position to vice president of the United States."

Brown's car and another auto collided as he was on his way to the studio. The governor's driver said he stopped for a traffic light. When the light changed, he said, he pulled out and was struck.

The driver of the other car, Eloy Duran of Los Angeles, was not held.

Haile Selassie Leaves Moscow With Credit

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev sent Emperor Haile Selassie winging back toward Ethiopia today with a ruble credit of about 100 million dollars to help industrialize his underdeveloped nation.

A Soviet jet took him to Prague for a five-day visit.

Political Situation in Louisiana... Weird and Terrifying

Frightened Foes Say Earl Long 'As Crazy as Hitler'

(Weird, wacky, bizarre-terrorizing they all describe the political situation in Louisiana today, a situation unparalleled in modern American history. But there's even more to the spectacle than meets the eye. Ruth Montgomery, noted Washington correspondent, has talked to dozens of Long's friends and enemies — many of the latter held clandestinely — and has dug deeply into the sordid politics of a once-powerful machine. This is the first article of a series.)

By RUTH MONTGOMERY
(Special to The Pontiac Press)

BATON ROUGE, La.—The weird world of Gov. Long is a whimsical conglomeration of catfish, corn pone, crackpots and cracker-barrel politics.

To decent, hard-working taxpayers of Louisiana, it is a sore that festers on their pride and their conscience.

Huey Long, the Louisiana "Kingfish" who established the Long dynasty and met death by assassination in 1935, rose to power on a "share the wealth" platform that had for its slogan, "Every Man a King."

Younger brother Earl, who viciously attacked Huey during his lifetime, but eagerly seized his vacated throne, is a different kettle of fish.

Always jealous of the brilliant, colorful, power-hungry Huey, Earl wants no man to be "King" except himself.

A vindictive man of unpredictable whims, he prides himself on raising his satraps to positions of power, watching them swell, and then thrusting in the sword that collapses the balloon—and the man. He tries to out-king the Kingfish, but unlike Huey, Earl secretly loathes his fellow men.

This is the widely held opinion of scores of state officials and leading citizens who have talked frankly with this correspondent—on one condition: Their names must not be revealed.

Fear is thick and frightening in Louisiana—fear, not for life and limb, but for the dire consequences to their careers and livelihood if the revengeful Governor should decide to strike out against them.

Earl Long, in the opinion of his legions of frightened foes, is a one-man Gestapo who is "as mad as Hitler."

You wouldn't think it, to see the wizened scarecrow of a man whose weight has plunged from 203 to 160 pounds while he has loudly fought off federal income tax investigators, hurled invective at loyal cohorts, wisecracked with psychiatrists, and defied the state constitution to seek an unprecedented fourth term for himself.

STILL HOLDS REINS

He seems too loquacious and bumptious to be taken seriously. Unfortunately, however, the man whom several outstanding doctors and psychiatrists have diagnosed as a dangerous paranoid schizophrenic still holds the full reins of his powerful office.

He can hire and fire, grant pardons to convicts, order state money used or withheld, and summon special sessions of the legislature. He is doing all of this now.

Long's diminishing hoards of political followers grin that "Ol' Earl is crazy like a fox." The ailing chief executive who sapped his waning strength to show himself at five political rallies on the Fourth of July told conspiring on-lookers: "If I'm crazy now, then I've always been crazy."

Some of his former cronies who have deserted the sinking ship sadly opine that "Uncle Earl may have" hit the nail on the head with that one. They pointedly recall that when he had to move out of the executive mansion in 1940 to make way for the newly elected "reform" governor, Sam Jones, Long "pulled out a pocket knife and cut up all the upholstered chairs and slashed the draperies to shreds."

"Now, what would a sane man want to do that for?" they ask wonderingly. "It just meant that his hated successor got a lot of nice new furniture and drapes."

Earl and Huey were two of nine children born to a hard-working hillbilly couple in the Piney Wood section of Northern Louisiana. This area around Winnfield, where Earl now has his "Little Pea Patch Farm," is the heart of the hardshell Baptist belt.

Huey, goaded by the brother who was loudly campaigning against him, once told a grinning political rally: "We used to have meetings at the Baptist Church, and the mothers would bring their babies and put them all together while we had potluck supper on the lawn. Once a storm came up, and they all rushed in to get their kids, but mama grabbed up the wrong baby. That was Earl."

JOINS CHURCH

The present Governor finally joined the Baptist Church for the first time only a few years ago, honored it with his presence a couple of times, and has not since darkened its door.

Recently, during the tirade at a legislative hearing which shocked the nation, he cussed profanely in front of some attending nuns and school children, and then "apologized" with these words:

"I sent for my Bible, but it didn't get here in time. Let's me and the children and the good nuns swear we won't use any profanity as long as it is possible."

The next day he called a special joint session of the Legislature to "cast bread upon the waters," but instead launched into a 90-minute diatribe against many of the lawmakers in the chamber. He moved one to tears by calling him a "dago," referred to another as "Dillinger in disguise," and to a third as a "jellybean" and the biggest "hypocrite" that ever lived.

"I have the experience to be governor," he bellowed. "I know how to play craps. I know how to play poker. I know how to get in and out of the Baptist Church, and ride horses. I know both sides of the street."

It was on this memorable occasion that he also told how an uncle was shot to death for "bein' caught in bed with a nigger."

The Governor, under constant care of psychiatrists since his eccentric release from a Louisiana mental hospital, is not the first member of the Long dynasty to experience such incarceration.

Huey's daughter, Rose, who had a brilliant wedding at the executive mansion with Huey's political appointees chipping in to buy her a solid gold table service, was once in a sanatorium.

Earl's sister, Mrs. Clara Knott, of Many, La., ended up in a psychiatric ward at Shreveport last month after returning from Galveston, Tex., where she had cooked catfish, mustard greens, corn bread, boiled beefsteak, and baked blackberry and huckleberry pies for her brother during his enforced stay in the mental section of John Sealy Hospital.

SWEARS TO GET 'EM

The hard-drinking, profane head of the crumbling Long dynasty doublecrossed some former cronies, swore to "get" others and cussed still more in public—then begged to make up with a number of them.

No sooner had he freed himself from a mental institution by firing the head of the hospital board than he also discharged his chief of police. Then he sent word to at least 15 legislators and satraps that he intended to name them to the top police vacancy.

A few hours after his court release, the governor turned his back on all 15 and awarded the post to Col. E. P. Roy, a one-time bodyguard for Earl's assassinated brother, "Kingfish" Huey Long.

The bitter peopl of Louisiana have never forgotten that at the time Huey was facing impeachment as governor, Roy armed State Troopers with 15 submachine guns and issued written orders for them to kill any policeman who set foot on the capitol grounds.

Earl Long unquestionably bit the hand of practically every man who ever fed him or helped him. One of his implacable foes is Secretary of State Wade O. Martin, Jr., a veteran Louisiana politician who once supported Long, but after a series of squabbles decided to run against him this year for the gubernatorial nomination.

During the 1956 legislative session, both men were testifying at a legislative hearing, and becoming more heated by the moment as they vied for control of the microphone.

At last Long, who is known as the crudest, commonest politician who ever came down the Louisiana Pike, grabbed the mike away from his antagonist and bellowed to the 1,000-strong audience: "Have you folks ever seen a more uncouth man than Martin in all your born days? They have not yet made up—but they could."

Long, who swallowed some lye in his youth and as a result has been coughing nastily ever since, has been making other overtures to men he has offended deeply. In the middle of the night, as often as at twilight time, he has shakily grabbed the phone to ask them to come and take him for a ride.

DRIVES 100 M.P.H.

He loves to tour around aimlessly in an automobile, if he has an audience for his vindictive outpourings. Just before his commitment to the hospital, he used to force State Troopers to turn on the sirens and "open it up" to 100 miles an hour while he whizzed along highways leading from Baton Rouge.

If a trooper failed to comply, Long himself—whose eyesight is fast fading—would forcibly take over the speed driving himself.

One of his closest pals, moved almost to despair by the Governor's refusal to follow doctors' orders and relax, told this writer:

"When Earl goes to that tin-roofed shack that he calls his 'Pea Patch Farm,' he has to take 100 people with him. If he's got 50 friends with him at the mansion he's lonesome and summons 50 more. He's a real pathetic old man, Earl is."

(Next: Long's great loves—women and horses.)

Appears in Hoffa Probe Today

Califorina Union Official to Challenge 'Red' Charge

WASHINGTON (AP)—The business agent of an independent Los Angeles Furniture Workers' Union says he'll appear before Senate probers today to challenge charges that he is a known Communist.

Gus O. Brown said in Los Angeles Saturday he had been subpoenaed to appear before the special Senate committee and would be there today. "If they permit me," he said, "I intend to disprove by documents" the Communist allegations.

"I have filed non-Communist affidavits annually since 1950 with the National Labor Relations Board," Brown added. "I am not a Communist."

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy had said he would call "one or two surprise witnesses" today ahead of James R. Hoffa, Teamsters' Union president.

The committee has heard allegations that Hoffa has bargained away benefits won by Teamsters locals in Midwestern and Eastern areas, managing to reap a personal profit in the process.

Kennedy said in a speech Saturday at Sun Valley to the Idaho Bar Assn. that Hoffa not only has close ties with the underworld but "in the past year he has shown willingness to do business with Communists."

Kennedy said this was reflected in Hoffa's support for Gus Brown of Los Angeles, whom the counsel called a known Communist leader.

Kennedy did not further identify Brown in his speech. But a Gus Brown in Los Angeles was business agent for Local 576, United Furniture Workers of America which was ousted by the old CIO as Communist-dominated. Brown reorganized it as independent Local 123.

Last February the Senate committee described Brown as a known Communist and charged Hoffa used $11,160 from Teamsters funds to finance Brown's local.

Aerial Camera Eyes Downtown Pontiac

Here's a pigeon's view of Saginaw Street, north of Huron Street, with widened Perry Street curving off to the upper right.

A forest of roofs is broken by the tower of the Oakland County Courthouse and the whiteness of the Pontiat State Bank Building on South Saginaw Street.

Dirt Is Enemy of Missile Men

Just One Tiny Speck Can Throw Rocket Far Off Its Course

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Dirt is a tiny word to the men who fire America's missiles.

Like the legendary gremlins that made things difficult for World War II bomber crews, dirt can be an enemy to U.S. rocketeers as powerful as the Russian missile arsenal.

A speck of dirt so small that it cannot be seen by the naked eye can, if it gets into the fueling system of a liquid-fueled rocket, throw it hundreds of miles off course.

Tiny flecks of grime in the wrong place can cause delicately balanced fueling systems to go haywire and could ruin the best laid plans to shoot the moon, put a satellite into orbit or fire an ICBM.

A small group of scientists in Tulsa think they have the solution to this problem. They work for the Dow Chemical Co.'s Dowell Division, which has been in business primarily to serve the petroleum industry in this Oil Capital.

These scientists clean missiles. But they go about it a lot more thoroughly than you do when hosing down the family car on a Sunday.

Using both extra-strong solvents and ultrasonic sound waves, the chemists have devised ways to get missiles and their parts far cleaner than previously thought possible.

"We have devised methods to clean a missile so clean you could put it in a hospital operating room and it would be the cleanest thing in there," said J. P. Engle, a laboratory group leader.

"Our cleaning removes all dirt particles bigger than .004 of an inch," Engle said.

Dowell makes use of the ultrasonic cleaning techniques recently developed.

High-frequency sound waves, instead of soap or detergents, are turned on and the dirt is knocked right off in a fraction of a second.

UNDERWATER MISSILE BASE—Shown above is scale model of the USS George Washington, the Navy's first submarine specifically designed to fire the Polaris missile. The sub's hull, 380 feet long, is a revolutionary design to combine with its nuclear engine. A crew of about 100 men operate the ship which has a surface displacement of 5,400 tons and uses one big propeller. Interior space is roughly twice as large as in conventional submarines. The reactor and other equipment were designed by Westinghouse.

Revolt Crushed in Honduras

Report Sunday Fighting Is Second Attack Led by Veleasquez

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department reports that for the second time in two months the Honduran government has crushed an armed revolt led by the same man.

The department quoted the U.S. Embassy in Tegucigalpa as saying Sunday's revolt was short-lived but that there was heavy fighting in the area around police headquarters in Tegucigalpa.

The embassy said government troops and police beat back the attack, launched with a few pieces of field artillery as well as rifles and pistols.

The reports named the leader of the revolt as Armando Veleasquez Cerrato, former army chief of staff, and said by agreement he was permitted to leave the Central American country again. The State Department received no information on the number of troops involved in the fighting, nor of the casualties.

But travelers arriving in Nicaragua from Honduras Sunday night said more than 100 persons were killed in Tegucigalpa. They said police, cadets of the Military Academy and troops at the San Francisco barracks took part in the revolt.

A Honduras government radio broadcast blamed the revolt on a "black army of civilians and Cuban Communist mercenaries."

Veleasquez led an attack by 500 rebels last May 11 on Gracias, a state capital in western Honduras. Those rebels were driven into the mountains and Veleasquez reportedly took refuge in Costa Rica.

The Honduran government of President Ramon Villeda Morales has been hit by sporadic revolts and terrorism since it was elected to office 20 months ago. The president was named for a six-year term as the candidate of the Liberal party.

She Knew Tax on 500,000 Gallons of Gas

BOSTON (UPI) — President Patrick B. McGinnis of the Boston & Maine railroad asked a luncheon gathering: "How many here know how much they pay for state and Federal gasoline taxes?"

He was surprised when the only woman in the room promptly answered: "Nine cents."

Asked how she knew, Miss Emily Rockett explained: "When you pay on 500,000 gallons a year, you know." She owns a Boston taxicab company.

He Had the First and Last Physical Exam

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Ten years ago, Lt. Cmdr. Willis J. Neth Jr. was the first reserve officer to take a physical examination at the Niagara Falls Naval Air Station when the reserve program was initiated at the base.

He also turned out to be the last man to take a physical at the station, before it was closed down under the Navy's economy program.

Houses Get Hot on Top

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nearly 90 per cent of the heat striking the outside of a house is concentrated on the roof, according to Allied Chemical Corp.'s Barrett Division. Light-colored shingles and well-ventilated and insulated ceiling areas are recommended to minimize the amount of heat entering a house.

Fireman, Come Home

GADSDEN, Ala. (UPI) — Fireman M. L. Owens was among the first to leap aboard the truck when the alarm came in. The fire was at his house. He was relieved when damage consisted of a burned out motor in a washing machine.

UAR Rejects Red Bid

BEIRUT (UPI) — Beirut radio reported last night that the United Arab Republic has rejected a bid by Communist East Germany to open a diplomatic mission in Cairo.

But Not for Lack of Fertilizer

Norwich, Rose of Connecticut, Wilting

NORWICH, Conn. (AP) — Norwich, the Rose of New England, is wilting.

Striking municipal employees have left this city without street cleaners and garbage men for almost two weeks. Now Norwich, once known for its abundance of roses, is trying to dig from under a week of festivities in honor of its 300th birthday.

A 2½-mile parade, which included some 200 horses, attracted about 75,000 spectators Sunday. The streets are laden with candy wrappers, confetti, paper cups and straws.

In the center of town, at Franklin Square, where the horses marched, there is enough fertilizer to start the roses growing again.

Residents take their rubbish barrels to the city dump in their own autos. Some residential areas have been cleaned up by individuals—but the industry area is thick with debris. Seventy-eight employees have brought city sanitation to a halt. Members of Local 14164 of the United Mine Workers Union, they are asking for a 15 per cent wage increase.

Union representatives complain that the city spent money for a birthday celebration but would not grant the wage increase. Salaries now range between $1.31 and $2.25 an hour.

City Manager Jay Ellinger said the City Council "recognized and expected the present situation" when it turned down the employees wage request.

"There are no plans at the moment," he said, "but we hope to correct the situation. Nobody relishes seeing the city in the condition it is."

Wishes U.S. 'Peace, Prosperity'

Kozlov Flies Back Home

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet Deputy Premier Frol R. Kozlov wished the American people "peace and prosperity" today. Then he stepped aboard a Soviet jet plane and took off for Moscow.

In a brief message at the airport he said one of his chief impressions of his visit to the United States is that "the American people are striving for eternal peace between our two countries."

He expressed appreciation "for the warm welcome I received during my two-week trip around the United States." He arrived here June 28 to open the Soviet Scientific and Cultural Exhibition.

He flew back in the same plane that carried him here, a four-engine jet-prop TU114, the world's largest airliner. He was accompanied by the plane's designer, Andrei Tupolev.

'Meals on Wheels' Help Aged People

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI) — A "meal-on-wheels" program may allow aged and chronically ill persons to remain in their own homes or apartments rather than be committed to institutions.

A grant of $12,000 from the Rosamond Gifford Charitable Foundation is financing a three-year demonstration project under which aged persons who are able to manage by themselves except for preparing food are served an adequate diet.

The food is packaged in disposable paper containers and delivered to the recipients before noon each day. Each package contains a hot lunch as well as a separate meal for supper.

They Almost Played to a Prison Audience

NEW YORK (UPI) — Seven young men from the Virgin Islands were found guilty of disorderly conduct because their steel drum band attracted a crowd estimated by police at 2,000 which paraded right behind them through the streets of New York.

Magistrate Walter H. Gladwin suspended sentence on the defendants, whose ages ranged from 16 to 20, after their lawyer explained they were following the custom of their native land in celebrating the end of the school term.

French Socialists Elect Guy Mollet as Leader

PARIS (UPI) — The French Socialist Party last night elected ex-premier Guy Mollet as its leader for the 14th consecutive time.

The Congress endorsed Mollet's line of "constructive opposition" to the De Gaulle government and called for new efforts to arrange a liberal cease-fire solution in Algeria.

Romulus Man Suffocates

ROMULUS (UPI) — Herman Emmons, 44, of suburban Romulus Township, suffocated when a fire swept his home yesterday. Deputies said Emmons apparently fell asleep while smoking.

Mount Clemens Blaze Kills 5

House Fire Is Fatal to Youngsters; Mother, Another Child Hurt

MOUNT CLEMENS (UPI) — Five young children were killed today in a fire that swept a two-story frame home near downtown Mount Clemens.

Two of the children were dead on arrival at a hospital. Bodies of three others were found in their bedrooms.

The victims were children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Langlois. The father had left for work at the General Motors Tech Center in nearby Warren when the fire broke out. The mother and children were still asleep.

The mother, Margaret, 26, and 8-year-old Deborah, suffered fractured legs and back injuries when they leaped from a second floor window. In addition, the mother was badly burned.

Dead were Stephen T., 4-year-old twins, Rene and Roy; Sharon, 3, and 7-week-old Russell.

Cause of the fire, which apparently started in the kitchen, was not determined.
