LBJ May Have to Trim Budget $1 Billion More

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, who agreed reluctantly to a $6-billion cut in federal spending to get his income tax increase, now faces the probability of having to cut an additional $1 billion.

Johnson, spending a long working holiday at his ranch, had Press Secretary George Christian announce yesterday the budget-cutting problems.

This followed a four-hour conference Johnson had with Budget Director Charles J. Zwick.

This is the situation facing the administration:

When Congress fixed a spending ceiling of $180.1 billion for federal programs — except the Vietnam war and some others — it looked as if the ceiling could be met by chopping $6 billion from planned outlays in the fiscal year that began July 1.

MORE FOR FARM SUPPORTS

Since then, estimated spending for farm-price supports has increased by $700 million and it appears costs of public assistance and medical aid may top the original projection by $300 million.

Those increases totaling $1 billion must be offset by cuts elsewhere.

Christian, quoting Zwick, said it seems likely Congress will specify $3 billion in spending reductions, leaving $4 billion of economy moves to be pinpointed by the administration.

The President, in action announced yesterday, approved new cutbacks in U.S. payrolls abroad. Many workers simply will be transferred to state-side jobs, but the move is intended to help ease the balance of payments deficit.

$28-32 MILLION CUT

By mid-1969 enough overseas jobs will be eliminated to cut spending abroad by $28 million to $32 million.

Christian had no word on when doctors might report their findings of X rays made Monday of Johnson's lower intestine.

Secret Service Busy Protecting Hopefuls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The shifting cast of characters on the political stage has kept the Secret Service hopping in its new role as protector of presidential hopefuls.

There was a wholesale changing of the guard, for instance, after last week's Republican National Convention and another will follow the upcoming Democratic convention.

Since they ended up in the GOP losers' column at Miami, Harold Stassen, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Gov. Ronald Reagan no longer qualify for shielding by the Secret Service.

The details of agents assigned to them have been withdrawn and dealt out to newcomers on the candidate list — GOP vice presidential nominee Spiro T. Agnew, for instance, and Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, who blossomed over the weekend as a Democratic contender.

Kennedy while he was campaigning for the Democratic nomination was the event that added candidate protection to the chores of the Secret Service.

When he assigned the new role, President Johnson acknowledged he had no specific authority to do so. But Congress backed him up, quickly supplying a law extending Secret Service protection to "major candidates" for the presidency and vice presidency.

The decision as to who gets the protection and who doesn't rests under the statute with the Secretary of the Treasury, advised by a committee made up of the Speaker of the House and the Republican and Democratic leaders in each chamber of Congress.

Army Nike Sites May Be Closed

WASHINGTON (AP) — As an economy measure, the Army is considering shutting down a number of anti-bomber missile batteries, Pentagon sources say.

Build at a cost of millions, some sites have been operating 10 years or less.

The proposed action reflects the pressure the services are now under to meet spending cuts ordered by Congress in exchange for passage of President Johnson's 10 per cent income surtax.

The Navy already has gone on the financial chopping block, laying up 50 ships, including a nuclear submarine and a fleet of World War II support vessels, and deactivating eight air squadrons to save an estimated $118 million.

UNIT NOT ACTIVATED
The Army was hit earlier with a Defense Department decision to save $125 million by not activating the 4th Infantry Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., as originally planned.

The over-all government spending cuts were originally pegged at $6 billion, a figure that may be revised upward. The Pentagon is expected to account for about half of the amount by slashing almost everything not needed for the war.

Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford said last week the No. 1 rule in economizing is that "the needs of our forces in Southeast Asia must be provided for fully, without exceptions."

The proposed missile cutback may knock out perhaps a dozen or more Nike-Hercules batteries across the country, sources indicate.

Exactly how many units are to be shut down, and where, is understood to be under consideration in the Pentagon. But at least some are expected to be National Guard outfits.

Sunny, Pleasant Outlook Continues
The weatherman promises Pontiac area residents sunny skies and pleasant temperatures — in the 70s — tomorrow. Tonight will be fair with a low of 47 to 55.

There's a chance of showers Friday with temperatures turning warmer.

Morning winds southwesterly at eight to 18 miles per hour will become west to northwest at 10 to 20 miles this afternoon and five to 12 miles by late tonight.

The low recording prior to 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac was 66. The thermometer registered 83 at 2 p.m.

Harriman Claims Buildup

PARIS (AP) — The United States told North Vietnam today it has mounting evidence that "you are making plans for another round of large-scale attacks" in South Vietnam.

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, beginning the fourth month of his talks with Ambassador Xuan Thuy, also accused the North of blocking progress in peace-making and declared: "We are ready to consider, publicly or privately, any realistic proposal which will advance the cause of peace."

Thuy, who spoke first in today's 17th session of the talks, charged the United States with "obstructing the way toward a correct political settlement."

"The state of these conversations over the past three months, just like the situation in the battlefield in Vietnam, has clearly shown that the bellicose ruling circles in the United States, while talking peace, always plan to intensify the war of aggression in Vietnam and to achieve neo-colonialism in South Vietnam," Thuy said.

BOTH SIDES REVIEW

Both the Harriman and Thuy speeches were reviews of the talks since they began May 13 and both repeated familiar charges and positions. Harriman's speech, however, also brought in by implication the currently critical issue of whether the lull in fighting in the South is a move of de-escalation by Hanoi which President Johnson could use to justify ending the bombing of North Vietnam.

Harriman was apparently saying that on the basis of available evidence so far that is not the case.

He said Johnson had limited the bombing of North Vietnam on March 31 so that four-fifths of the country has been free of attack.

"Despite this," Harriman said, "you have increased the infiltration of military forces and war supplies to unprecedented levels, sometimes as many as a thousand men a day."

'EVIDENCE MOUNTS'

"From captured documents, defectors, prisoners and from broadcasts by Radio Hanoi, the evidence has mounted that you are making plans for another round of large-scale attacks."

"Is that how you intend to show the world your peaceful intentions?"

"Thus far in 1968," Harriman said, "there have been more deaths from Vietcong terrorism than in all of 1967 and 1968 taken together."

Harriman said that in the three months of meetings so far "you have not been willing to make a move toward peace."

Quake Hits Mexico

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — An earthquake on the southern coast of Mexico, termed by seismologists strong enough to cause damage in a populated area, was recorded at 3:44 a.m. EDT today on University of California seismographs.

The magnitude was rated six on the Richter scale. The distance was 2,100 miles south of here, said Dr. Maurus Nisi.

NO NEW VOTE PLANS

There are no plans for another millage vote in the near future.

"We cannot ask for another millage vote in November because, according to law, in a county of 500,000 or more, issues of this nature may not be voted on simultaneously with a presidential election."

In the past, the Oakland County Board of Supervisors has turned down monetary

I-696 Route Outlined at Hearing

Michigan highway commissioners yesterday afternoon outlined their proposed route for construction of south Oakland County's 1,496 freeway.

The presentation was the first step of binding arbitration procedures being directed by a three-man panel of arbitrators named Monday by Gov. Romney.

Earlier yesterday, the arbitration panel met for the first time at the County Courthouse and announced tentative procedural arrangements for the series of public hearings that could go on for 60 days before a final route for the controversial roadway is determined.

Wayne State University Professor of Law Boaz Siegel, chairman of the panel of arbitrators, said the highway commission's proposal would be followed by a presentation of objections raised by the communities involved. The communities will also have a chance to suggest alternative routes.

$100-MILLION STRETCH

The 6½-mile stretch of the project in dispute will cost an estimated $100 million including property acquisition. It will go through the communities of Royal Oak, Pleasant Ridge, Huntington Woods, Oak Park, Lathrup Village and Southfield.

Highway Commission planners yesterday proposed that the roadway follow a line that runs north of 10 Mile from the I-75 interchange, dips south of 10 Mile at Woodward, swings north in Huntington Woods and gradually continues north to 11 Mile in Oak Park.

From there highway commissioners proposed that it run directly west through Lathrup Village and Southfield to connect with Northwestern Highway at Lahser.

Eastward it will join an extension of the expressway in Macomb County where the project is further advanced with land acquisition and planning well

Biafra Stronghold Goal of Nigerian Offensive

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Two columns of Nigerian commandos were reported pushing north today toward the Biafran stronghold of Aba in what could be the start of an all-out offensive to crush the 13-month-old secession of eastern Nigeria's Ibo tribesmen.

Informed sources said at least two brigades of Nigeria's 3rd Marine Commando Division were advancing from the Port Harcourt sector toward Aba, the largest of the three towns still under secessionist control.

The military high command in Lagos refused to divulge details of the offensive, but a high ranking officer said troops commanded by Col. Benjamin Adekunle were reported trying to cross the Imo River, 15 miles south of Aba. Another column was believed pushing across the river at the Imo railway station, about 22 miles from Aba.

Aba, which had a pre-war population of 131,000, has been the command headquarters for the Biafran regime of Lt. Col. C. Oduemegwu Ojukwu since federal forces captured the secessionist capital, Enugu, last Oct. 5.

Radio Biafra reported that Unu

Abayi, on the southern bank of the Imo River, has been under heavy mortar attack for the past three days. The broadcast said 35,000 civilians were fleeing and that Biafran authorities were undertaking a massive civilian evacuation from the area.

Fighting also was reported around Ikot Ekpen, a refugee center 28 miles northeast of Aba.

Commanders of the three Nigerian divisions surrounding the core of Biafran-held territory met in Lagos today, presumably to plan a final offensive.

"We will be clearing our minds this morning," said one participant.

PEACE TALKS RESUME

The new fighting was reported as peace talks resumed today in the Ethiopian capital Addis Ababa. Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie is presiding over the secret negotiations. Informants said the delegates would discuss the opening of a relief corridor to ship food and medicine to starving civilian war victims in blockaded Biafra.

Son of Missing Clerk Gets Ballot Support From Dems

Shane F. Murphy, son of the late Oakland County Clerk Register John D. Murphy, announced today the County Democratic Committee will take legal steps to have his name placed on the Nov. 5 ballot to replace his father.

Murphy disappeared and was presumed drowned in Lake Michigan on July 27. However, his name was still on the Aug. 6 primary ballot and running unopposed was nominated by the Democratic Party.

His son, Shane, 26, is presently an employee of the county as deputy county treasurer in the office of Treasurer James E. Sesterlin. He has been employed there for the last three years. Shane appeared before the Democratic Committee last night and received its endorsement, he said.

Legal procedures involved will be handled by the committee, Murphy said. He said state law calls for approval by the committee for a replacement on a ballot when a nominee dies.

Living at 3128 Coolidge, Royal Oak, Shane is a part-time student at Wayne State University. He and his wife, Mary Ellen, have a 1-year-old son.

Space Data Aid to People Eyed

VIENNA (AP) — Space leaders and scientists from 67 nations today begin two weeks of discussion on how best to apply practical benefits of space technology to social and economic advancement of mankind.

The two major space powers, the United States and the Soviet Union, will dominate the meeting, first space conference held by the United Nations. U.N. committees have been preparing for two years.

U.N. Secretary General U Thant, expected to address the conference later, described the effort as a major step in bridging the gap between space powers and other nations.

He expressed hope the meeting would explain practical benefits of space exploration and would result in joint ventures to bring these benefits to all nations to alleviate some of mankind's most pressing economic and social problems.

COOPERATION SOUGHT

The conference in Vienna's Hofburg Palace could lead to further cooperation in space activities between the United States and Russia.

The leaders of the two largest delegations, Administrator James E. Webb of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and academician A. A. Blagonravov of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, are expected to meet privately.

Arkansas Dem Calls for Debate

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Marion H. Crank, who won the Arkansas Democratic gubernatorial nomination yesterday, has challenged Republican Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller to debate the issue.

Rockefeller, who easily won renomination in July, previously said he would be willing to debate his Democratic opponent on television. They meet in the general election Nov. 6.

Crank, a long-time member of the Arkansas House, defeated Mrs. Virginia Johnson in the primary runoff.

Two weeks ago her husband, Jim Johnson, failed in an attempt to unseat Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., in a four-man race for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

With 2,532 of 2,608 precincts reported, Crank had 211,560 votes to Mrs. Johnson's 122,603.

Mrs. Johnson's husband was the 1966 Democratic gubernatorial nominee who was beaten by Rockefeller, the first Republican governor of Arkansas since Reconstruction.

During the primary campaign, Crank argued that he could reunite the state party, which was split in 1966 when Johnson repudiated several party segments after his primary victory.

Benson, an accountant, has moved from the city to the village of Bingham Farms, hospital administrator Harold Euler reported.

Benson had been a member of the hospital board since June 1965.

Correction

American Bar Association president William T. Gosselt today made the following comments on an Associated Press news article:

"I am writing to correct an erroneous impression, created in the article on Page A-11 of yesterday's issue of The Press, to the effect that I advocate or condone civil disobedience."

"My position is and always has been that the proper way to test a bad law is through appropriate legal procedure, which should be open to all citizens; and that those who choose to resort to civil disobedience as a means to that end must be prepared to take the legal consequences of their action."

Obviously if large numbers of citizens chose to oppose laws through civil disobedience, the ultimate result would be anarchy; and in the words of James Madison, the chief architect of our Constitution, "Anarchy ever has and I fear ever will, produce despotism."

"Also as to Sen. Griffin's opposition to the appointment of Abe Fortas as chief justice of the United States, the point I intended to make was that any attempt by the senate to lead a filibuster to prevent a prompt Senate vote on the nomination — not the senator's opposition to Fortas — would be a disservice to the country."

Fire-Bomb Clue Reward Is Set

Disturbed by repeated fire-bombings and what appeared to be a planned rock-throwing attack on firemen last week, city commissioners last night authorized rewards of up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest of individuals responsible for such incidents.

City Manager Joseph A. Warren said he recommended the rewards after conferring with fire and police officials. He reported to the commission that there have been 13 instances of fire-bombings this year.

The resolution authorizing the rewards calls for establishment of a three-member committee to determine who will receive rewards, how much will be rewarded in each instance and how

Library Budget Submitted

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The Township Board this week received a preliminary budget for the township's public library for the coming year.

The figure was set at $248,000 but remains flexible, according to library director H. G. Johnson, since it is based on a districtwide one-mile assessment.

Johnson also pointed out that the budget was the largest ever for the township and that it increased in the same proportion as the district's assessed valuation.

The board accepted and filed the preliminary figures pending a public hearing on the matter, to be set at a later date.

The board actually has no jurisdiction over library funds, Johnson pointed out, since all monies are gained through the special millage administered by the district's library board.

The board accepted two petitions, one each for water main and sanitary sewer projects.

The water main extension is slated for Hickory Knoll subdivision and carries an estimated cost of $22,000. It will be assessed at $1,047 per acre. First hearing on the proposed construction was set for 8 p.m., Sept. 9.

The Board also accepted a petition and set a hearing date for sanitary sewers on Kirkcaldy and Yorkton. It is proposed that the 27 sites involved be assessed $2748 for the $74,000 project. The Board set the first public hearing for the project for 8 p.m., Oct. 28.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, the board awarded a contract for construction of 120 feet of eight-inch water main. Mole Construction Co. submitted a low bid of $2,850 for the project, on Wing Lake Road at Maple.

BIRMINGHAM — The City Commission this week authorized funds for a number of purchases for needed city equipment.

They were: three new typewriters at a total of $1,494; 14 parking meters to replace those in Municipal Lot Six at a cost of $7,390 and materials for the relocation of the Cranbrook Water Main at a cost of $1,400.

In other business, the commission received a report from City Manager R. S. Kenning regarding Birmingham's refuse dump on Coolidge between 14 and 15 Mile roads in Troy.

TROY SERVES NOTICE

This week Troy served notice on Birmingham to discontinue the dumping and burning of refuse on the property in question.

Kenning pointed out that Birmingham has been using the site for the dumping and burning of combustible material.

He said the city would discontinue the dumping and burning, but would have to find a new location in the near future.

under way, according to highway officials.

COMMUNITIES DISAGREE

The section is completed west of the interchange of I-696 and Telegraph.

The 64-mile stretch was thrown into the hands of binding arbitration because communities affected by the proposed highway could neither agree on a route nor on a panel of arbitrators.

The binding arbitration procedure is designed to bring an end to more than four years of bickering between communities over the route of the 26-mile freeway.

The procedure is provided in a law signed last January which established arbitration of disputes over interstate highway locations that cannot be settled by negotiations.

POWER

Previously, local communities had final veto power over proposed routes.

Panel chairman Siegel scheduled the next hearing for 10 a.m. Monday at the courthouse, when communities unhappy with the route proposed yesterday will air their objections and have a chance to offer alternative routes.

Another hearing was set for Wednesday at 10 a.m., also at the Courthouse Auditorium.

requests of the commission, according to Siaman. A $4-million bond issue and a $1-million short-term loan granted for this year will be depleted by next year.

"Our last request to the board of supervisors was turned down," commented the chairman, "and the commission has borrowed as much as possible. Now, we must wait until the people are willing to pay more for road costs."

Figures show that the average Oakland County family pays $12.50 into the county's highway program each year.

'NO' VOTE WIDESPREAD

Although only 21 per cent of Oakland County residents voted in the recent primary, a large percentage did not want to add a one-mile stretch. Of the 48 voting communities, only three, Birmingham, Northville, and Royal Oak Township, were in favor of the ballot proposition.

Among the areas opposing the millage issue were Holly, Springfield, Groveland, and Highland. Several residents in these communities make up the self-styled protest group WHAR, "Why Have Awful Roads?"

"It seems that people protesting bad roads should have backed this millage issue," commented Siaman. "Without its approval it is impossible to radically improve Oakland County road conditions."

HEW Probes City Schools to Force Desegregation

PIN-WORMS
A FAMILY AFFAIR

Pontiac Schools is one of four selected systems in the nation currently being investigated by the federal government in a new move to force desegregation of schools in the North.

It is the first time that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's (HEW) school policy will be enforced in the whole nation rather than just the South.

Civil rights investigators have made initial visits to Pontiac, Flint, Saginaw and Tucson, Ariz. Smaller northern systems with less than 35 per cent Negro enrollments are now being reviewed.

If school systems refuse to follow HEW's guidelines, they risk losing all federal aid under the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

NO BUSING

Northern systems won't be required to balance the number of blacks and whites in their schools or to bus students to other schools, according to the guidelines.

School systems will be required to eliminate discrimination in all service facilities, activities and programs and to discontinue student-assignment procedures, school-attendance zones and other practices which segregate students.

HEW VISITORS

"We had two men here from HEW for two days," explains Pontiac Schools Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer.

"They gathered all kinds of information and will now write a report with recommendations for review by other HEW officials."

The investigators will probably return after school starts for on-the-spot checks in three Michigan cities and possibly for visits to others, according to a Michigan Department of Education official.

Federal hearings could follow if HEW finds evidence of violations of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The act provides for equal educational opportunities for black children.

Congress passed bills last year that require HEW to force its desegregation policies nationwide. HEW then surveyed six northern school systems. De facto school segregation in Pontiac has come under attack for over a year.

It started when the school board's citizens human relations committee proposed a plan to relieve de facto segregation, which was shelved by the school board.

They came up with their own short- and long-range plans, which the Pontiac Area Urban League, Pontiac Area Council of Churches and the human relations committee said were only token gestures toward racial balance.

CHOOSE SCHOOL

The short-range plan allows students from predominantly Negro Jefferson Junior High School to attend any other junior high school in the district this coming school year.

Whitmer reports that 50 or 60 Jefferson students applied and were accepted at other junior high schools.

Two months ago, the Pontiac Citizens Study Committee on Equality of Educational Opportunity concluded after an 18-month study that the school system "pays lip service to integration."

They said only eight of the district's 35 schools are integrated.

Lake Orion OKs Laws on Water and Disorderly

LAKE ORION — The Village Council took final action on a disorderly persons ordinance and a safe water ordinance this week.

The first calls for a fine of $100 or imprisonment in the county jail for up to 90 days, or both, for those found guilty of being disorderly in a public place.

The second ordinance promotes the safe use of waters in the village.

The ordinance requires that all those operating a motorboat within the village limits comply with state and federal laws governing the operation.

BOAT OPERATION

In addition the ordinance requires that boats be operated "in a careful and prudent manner and at such a rate of speed so as not to endanger the life or property of any person."

No one under the influence of liquor or narcotics may operate a motorboat legally.

The ordinance further requires a 100-foot buffer from docks, rafts, swimming areas, or moored boats when motorboats are operated.

Motorboats carrying skiers must have a "competent" person watching the skier in addition to the driver and must be equipped with a 170 degree wide-angle rear-view mirror.

Massachusetts Gets 2 in Slaying

CHICAGO (AP) — Two Michigan youths accused of fatally stabbing a student in Massachusetts waived extradition proceedings yesterday in the criminal division of circuit court in Chicago.

Ross G. Whitthoeft, 17, and Craig Simoni, 16, both of Beverly Hills, Mich.,

SIMONI WHITTHOEFT

were transferred to the custody of Plymouth County, Mass., sheriff's police.

Both are charged with manslaughter in the fatal stabbing of Robert D. Phelps Jr., 20, a Boston College student from Wethersfield, Conn. His body was found Thursday near Middleboro, Mass.

Jerry Bouché, a gas station operator, said the youths told him they wanted some new tires charged to the credit card issued to Phelps, police said.

BOUNDABOUT ROUTE

Bouché said that when the youths talked about going to Florida, he became suspicious of their roundabout route from the East.

Bouché put the car on a hoist and telephoned his central credit card office. The office checked with the Phelps family and discovered that young Phelps had been slain.

Chicago police were notified and placed the youths under observation until they could confirm that the youths were being hunted.

Hike Will Go for Operations

Clarkston Schools Tax Rate Is Up 1 Mill

CLARKSTON—The Clarkston Community Schools Board of Education has set its 1968-69 operational tax rate at 21.38 mills.

This is one mill higher than last year, according to Dr. Leslie F. Greene, superintendent, because the board had not used all of a five-mill 10-year tax increase approved in 1966.

Also levied at the recent meeting was a seven-mill tax for the payments of debts. That is the same as last year, according to Dr. Greene.

In other action, the board accepted bids for the planned bus garage.

TROY FIRM LOW

Of the 11 construction bids the lowest was Wake-Pratt Construction Co., of 2033 Austin, Troy, bidding $152,429.

Service Plumbing and Heating of 429 Orchard Lake, Pontiac, submitted the lowest of seven mechanical bids, $43,378.

T. L. Jacobson Electrical Inc. of 5344 Highland, Waterford Township, made the lowest of eight electrical bids at $23,113.

The bus garage, designed by Richard Prince Architects of Kalamazoo, is to be located behind the Clarkston High School.

NEW CONTRACTS

The board also agreed on contracts for custodians and cafeteria workers.

Dr. Greene said the new contracts represent a 10 per cent pay increase for the workers.

Pontiac Twp. Still Says No to Bald Mountain Land-Fill

PONTIAC TOWNSHIP—Permission for a land-fill site in the Bald Mountain area has been refused a second time by the Township Board.

Three representatives from the county road commission, Frazer W. Staman, commission chairman, Paul W. McGovern, commissioner, and Paul VanRockel, highway engineer, appeared to request the site for the land-fill.

The board refused permission by a 4-2 vote.

When the same proposition came before the board in June the county reported it would cost $100,000 to equip the land-fill, and that before opening, Bald Mountain Road would be blacktopped north to Dutton.

FREE USE INCLUDED

Township residents reportedly would have been granted free use of the road-commission site one day a week and the commission agreed at the earlier meeting to pay a $500 annual fee to the township for the privilege of operating the land-fill.

Approximately 50 to 60 people attended the meeting, according to township supervisor Roy Wahl, to discuss the land-fill proposal as well as a request to operate a poolroom in Auburn Heights.

The poolroom request was withdrawn after a discussion, Wahl said.

In other action the board reviewed bids on sewer repair work on Sheffield in Bloomfield Harbors.

The Boam Company of Livonia bid $107,310 for construction of a natural-flow sewer and $88,637 for construction of a pump house, the lowest amount noted.

Wahl said the bids were turned over to engineers who will report back to the board at their meeting Monday.

Young Republicans Urged to Push for House Victories

State Rep. William P. Hampton, R-Bloomfield Hills, last night urged Young Republicans to campaign hard for the November election to insure another GOP majority in the State House.

Hampton told the Oakland County Young Republicans Club, meeting in Royal Oak, that the party faces a tough fight to preserve its 56 seats, a margin of two.

Over 200 members and guests heard Hampton, who retains his membership in the county group, summarize the accomplishments of the Legislature in the last two years. Hampton, House majority floor leader, cited:

- Fiscal reform measures.
- Laws against drunk driving, including implied consent.

- Reduction of Mackinac Bridge tolls from $3.75 to $1.50, beginning Jan. 1.
- Reorganization of the lower courts — elimination of Justices of the peace.
- Several measures to combat organized crime and rioting.
- Civil rights including housing measures.

Hampton urged support of two of four propositions on the Nov. 5 ballot, the $335-million bond bill to fight water pollution and the $100-million bond bill for parklands.

He expressed opposition to the graduated income tax proposal. On the daylight savings time issue, he had no recommendation.

TROY — The City Commission has taken the first formal step to bring new library facilities to the community. The commission adopted a resolution allowing the city to issue bonds totaling $475,000 for construction of a new public library.

The city leaders have discussed, from time to time, the advisability of issuing bonds for a library and decided to take the initial step this week.

At the same time, the Commission instructed City Manager Paul York to contract Van Dine and Brown, Architects, for the project.

In other business the commission awarded bids totaling more than $50,000 for the purchase of two fire trucks and a number of grader blades.

The commission also agreed to send Mayor Jule Famularo to the annual Congress of Cities in New Orleans, La., Dec. 7-11.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A liberal House Democrat from Michigan says Republican lawmakers would reject the 1968 GOP platform by a wide margin if past votes were any indication of present party sentiment.

Rep. James G. O'Hara of Utica said yesterday an analysis by the Democratic Study Group (DSG), an organization composed of liberal House Democrats, "indicates that three out of four Republican senators and four out of five Republican congressmen would vote against their own platform if it were put to a vote in Congress."

O'Hara said the analysis was based on 64 congressional votes and on past records. He called the GOP party platform a "fraud" and said it was "completely at odds with the Republican record in Congress over the past four years."

O'Hara said the Republican platform emphasized a need to do more in areas of urban crisis, poverty, social security, rural areas, crime and foreign policy.

But the analysis of selective Republican votes in Congress during the past four years, according to O'Hara, showed 90 per cent of the GOP House members and 72 per cent of the Republican senators voting against programs to meet the urban crisis, 75 and 68 per cent against poverty programs, 86 and 68 per cent against educational measures, and 80 and 89 per cent against "crucial foreign policy programs" such as foreign aid loans and the Peace Corps.

The New Christy Minstrels and the Four Freshmen will highlight the entertainment agenda of "Sing Out America," a program sponsored by the Farmington Area Jaycees.

Called a positive demonstration of faith in America, the evening of patriotic singing will feature local entertainers who are financially unable to attend a junior college or a business or trade school.

Paul Lennson will host the event, to be held in Cobo Arena Sept. 13 at 8:15 p.m. John Bailey, president of the Farmington Area Jaycees, said 80 per cent of the expected $25,000 profit will be used to form a Greater Detroit Area Jaycee Scholarship Fund for average students who are financially unable to attend a junior college or a business or trade school.

He said the other 20 per cent will be donated to the Farmington Area Jaycees' civic improvement fund.

Bailey said that in light of the negative protests being staged against today's society, it is their intention to stage sort of a nonprotester's protest.

Produced by Decaying Matter

Fish-Boat Deaths Laid to Gas

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—Hydrogen sulfide, a highly lethal gas that can be produced by decaying organic matter, has been identified as the agent that caused five persons to topple over dead after they peered into the hold of a fishing boat.

Dr. Wallace M. Graves Jr., a Fort Myers pathologist, said Tuesday night the deaths were traced to hydrogen sulfide after autopsies and extensive testing of samples taken from the boat.

The men died Sunday after being exposed to the gas while preparing to unload fish from their boat, the Novelty, at the Protein Product Co. docks at Charlotte Harbour. Authorities said the five men died within a two-minute period.

A sixth man, Lawrence Finley, was revived by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and is reported recovering.

Authorities said the deaths came within seconds after one of the men, Francis D. Webb, 23, of Peace Dale, R.I., turned on a huge hose used to wash down the hole of the boat. The hose also was used as a vacuum tube to remove the water and the ship's cargo of menhaden and herring.

Graves said his studies had not identified the source of the gas, and Lee County Investigator James Loeffler said his office was continuing its attempt to identify the source.

The pathologist said the gas is highly lethal in concentrated form. He refused to speculate on how the gas found on the boat was produced, but said it can be generated by decomposition of organic material.

Trial Starts for 4 in Kidnaping-Rape

GRAND HAVEN (AP)—Four Holland men accused in the alleged kidnap-rape of a Hope College coed last April 12 were scheduled for trial today in Ottawa Circuit Court before Judge Raymond L. Smith. Police said the girl was released in Holland six hours after she was abducted near a city park.

On trial are Frank Martinez, 22; Celestino Garza, 20; Oscar G. Ramirez, 17, and Pedro Vigil Jr., 19.

The four also face rape charges in Allegan County in connection with the alleged abduction of the girl.

19th District GOP Split Ends

After more than a year and a half as a house divided, the 19th District Republican Committee is again a single entity.

Unity was achieved yesterday when members of the dissident 19th District Republican Executive Committee voted to discontinue formally as an organization operating separately from the recognized district committee.

The move was made "for the sake of unifying the party," according to David Bradbury, organization director.

The dissident committee was formed at the district convention in January 1967 and has since worked as a separate body from the so-called Cartwright Committee, with which it is now reconciled under John Cartwright, district chairman.

Arnold Jones, chairman of the executive committee, had requested the movement to dissolve by stating that "such a move on our part would be a positive indication of our desire to get behind the entire Republican ticket."

The split took place when the nondissidents were recognized by the county Republican structure after a contested credentials hearing and seated at the district convention.

Kennedy Center Joins Cultural Surge

The red steel skeleton of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts looms over the Potomac River as a kind of half-formed image of what is happening all over the country. It's a cultural explosion and Oakland County is no exception.

The huge Kennedy Center will contain a 2,750-seat symphony hall; a 2,500-seat auditorium for opera, musical theater and ballet; a 1,200-seat theater for spoken drama; facilities for art exhibits, and a restaurant.

Similar concepts for all-arts programs govern plans for centers elsewhere in the country. Centers are either planned or completed in Seattle, Wash.; Houston, Tex.; Trenton, N.J.; Winter Park and St. Petersburg, Fla.; Hartford, Conn.; Laramie, Wyo.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; and Cleveland and Cincinnati, Ohio.

The lead in promoting cultural centers in many communities has been taken by colleges and universities which are beginning to lay more stress on the arts and humanities to balance the post-war expansion of their science departments.

We of the Pontiac area can look to Oakland University for an excellent example of leadership in the field of culture. The Meadow Brook Theatre and Howard C. Baldwin Memorial Pavilion have given us a much needed cultural center in our midst.

The Pontiac School District, too, has laid plans to aid in this movement by constructing a human resources center on the Near East Side. It would follow the concept of many centers throughout the nation which take the form of schools. Yet, it would also act as a cultural focal point, primarily for residents of poorer neighborhoods where the need for cultural enrichment is particularly vital.

Plans for the eventual redevelopment of Pontiac's downtown urban renewal area include an arena-type complex which could be designed to act in part as a cultural center.

Initial classes have already begun at the Pontiac Creative Arts Center, 47 Williams Street, which is another bright light on Pontiac's cultural horizon. The center's board of directors is currently completing renovation of the building with the financial help of the city and several local organizations.

Pontiac can be proud it is part of this cultural surge throughout the nation.

Let's Give Our Roaring Tigers a Big Hand

How 'bout a standing ovation for our amazing Tigers?

It's been many a year since individual and team play have been as superb as that displayed by the Bengals thus far in the 1968 pennant race.

Statistically, the team is making its strongest bid for the pennant since it topped the league and won the World Series in 1945—with the odds now that it will maintain its championship pace.

Although every player on the team rates highest praise, the brilliant pitching of Denny McLain, heading toward a 30-win season, and the sensational pinch-hitting of Gates Brown have tremendously enhanced the sustained pennant-winning pace of the Tigers.

And have the fans been turning out to cheer them!

At the present rate of attendance, Tiger Stadium may reach the 2-million mark for the first time, and almost certainly top the previous attendance high of 1.95 million set in 1962.

Yes, it's great to have a winner. So, to borrow the current victory theme: "Socikit to 'em, Tigers."

Repetition Inspires Thought With a Real Kick

Have you noticed how, after a few repetitions, that "he who" phrase from those nominating speeches at political conventions begins to bear a striking resemblance to the "hee haw" bray of a certain animal not noted for its intellectual capacity?

"Grand and Glorious" is runner-up.

President Is Governed by the Role

By RAYMOND MOLEY

In a scene in his play, "Abraham Lincoln," John Drinkwater shows the President resting after a day spent visiting the troops at the front. His young secretary is reading from Shakespeare's "The Tempest" the comments of Prospero about the show of magic which he has just given his guests. At the end of the recital, Lincoln repeats the lines:

"We are such stuff as dreams are made on, and our little life is rounded with a sleep."

Lincoln, no doubt, realized what a captive he was in the role of president. But it was the genius of the playwright that associated it with the fantasy produced by Prospero.

There is nothing like a national convention which reminds us so much of the flight from reality which characterizes our political life. And of how a candidate or a president is governed by the part he must play.

SUM OF REFLECTIONS

That was the sum of my reflections after four days at Miami Beach.

The externals were all contrived make-believe. The mass of "literature" and gimmicks. The claque of hired hands. The useless free-lancers and camp followers.

The reckless violation of the truth by contenders and their managers. The speeches, a cascade of clichés and platitudes. The tireless repetition of meaningless politics. The long suspense and the final count of hard votes.

But there are rules and customs which lie beneath all this mad disorder. Rules determined by self-interest mingled with reason and deep concern for the nation as well as the party. The delegates are not moved by the show. Most had their mind made up long before they came to the convention.

Presidents are created in this strange setting, and while, as a foreigner observed long ago, not all have been great men, with rare exceptions, all have been honorable and true to the role in which they have been cast.

SCORE OF YEARS

Nixon emerged from all this as the choice of a great party. For more than a score of years he has traveled the highways of politics. No one knows so well the fleeting moments of glory bought by enduring frustrations and defeats.

And he knows that as a candidate in the next three months he must still be playing the part he has so well enacted in the months and years before. And if elected president, there is still a role to play.

Never again, if he is successful in November and/or January, will he be the private person of the past except in the enclave of his family. The Dick Nixon his friends have always known must be "Mr. President" then. They must meet him amid the reticence which will surround the great office he will hold.

His words will be weighed in the scale of the vast influence they will have in the corners of the nation and the world. His decisions will shake nations, including his own. He will be tightly confined for security's sake in all his comings and goings. He will be ruled as much by custom and prudence as are the royal prisoners in Buckingham Palace.

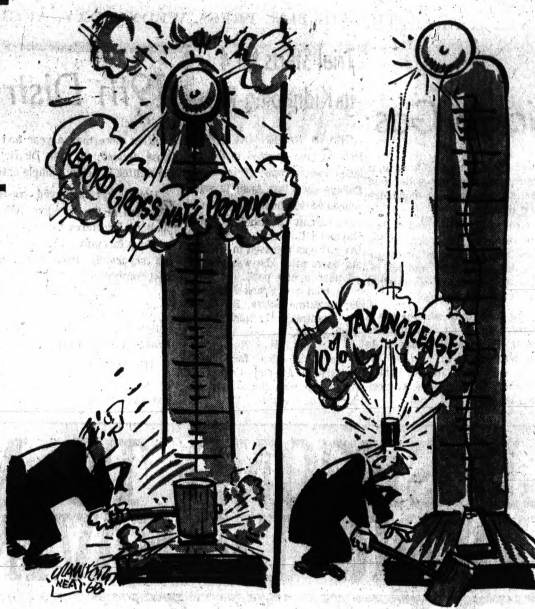

NOT MUCH CHANGE

But as long as some of the principal governments — including one of the most powerful — intimidate the small

Why should anyone seek such a transformation in one's life? Why should one scorn the delights of freedom in such a role?

There are no sure answers to such wondering. We can only know that such has been the lot of all the others who have held that great office. If he is elected, it will be decreed by his ordination.

David Lawrence Says:

Soviets Defy Purposes of U.N.

WASHINGTON—The government-controlled Soviet press, has just denounced Richard Nixon, the Republican nominee for president, as an "imperialist."

Doubtless it will express the same opinion about the selection of Hubert H. Humphrey as the Democratic nominee because he will have the support of the Johnson administration. But the Moscow regime itself has been carrying on a militant imperialism and is plainly responsible for continuance of the Vietnam war.

It has often been said during the current political campaign that the United States "has no business in Vietnam." This would be true if the United Nations obeyed its own charter and acted as a "world policeman" whenever nations, large or small, are the victims of aggression.

The Soviet government openly admitted it had helped the Red Chinese when the latter joined in the attack against South Korea in 1950, although the U.N. had authorized a military defense and had called upon its members — including the Soviet Union — to assist in repelling the aggression.

SUPPLYING ARMS

Today the Russian government is supplying billions of dollars worth of arms and munitions to the North Vietnamese in defiance of the purposes of the U.N. to which Moscow subscribed when it joined the body.

If the Soviets didn't want to control Southeast Asia, they wouldn't be any Vietnam war going on now, and an agreement could be promptly concluded to supervise elections and guarantee to the peoples of North and South Vietnam their right of self-determination.

The charter of the U.N. gives the General Assembly power by two-thirds vote to make "recommendations with respect to the maintenance of international peace and security." These may include collective measures and the use of armed forces.

There are 122 member countries in the U.N., and most of them are small and need the protection that the U.N. presumably will give them.

Verbal Orchids

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Davis of Waterford Township; 57th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Cordelia Leuchs of 678 Rosewood; 83rd birthday.

Ray W. Allen of 4932 Hatchery; 86th birthday.

er nations, there isn't much chance of the U.N. authorizing the collective defense of any country which the Soviet government seeks to dominate.

The weaknesses of the U.N. have been conceded. But collective action, of course, is possible without the authorization of the U.N. New alliances can be formed, and the proposed steps need only to be reported to the U.N.

Bob Considine Says:

Parallels to '52 Boost Lackluster GOP Team

NEW YORK—The last time a Republican won the presidency he had two big issues going for him. Americans of the '50s, all types were sick of the bogged-down war in Korea and sick of what came to be called "the mess" in Washington.

Gen. Eisenhower was a man who had "won" the biggest of wars, the folksie insisted, and, moreover, he was just the man to throw out the "Gen. Vaughan" and the "5 per centers."

The Democrats of 1962 were factually divided. Truman leaned toward Averell Harriman as his successor. Mrs. Roosevelt and her people could see no other torchbearer beyond Adlai Stevenson.

The Eisenhower-Nixon ticket won comfortably. It made good on his pledge to "go to Korea" if elected, and that war indeed was shut down six months later with the still shaky truce of Panmunjom.

CLASSY MESS

The "mess" in Washington was cleaned up, soon to be succeeded by the classiest mess of them all, the "vicuna coat" mess.

Certain parallels to 1952 would seem to brighten the image of the presently lackluster team of Nixon and Spiro. I'm hardly a household word. Agnew, the governor of Maryland.

The Vietnam war is more repugnant to a considerable portion of the electorate than was the conflict in Korea. The current "mess" in Washington, which has never had an administration without one, is made up of several things. Many voters are tired of President Johnson's inability to reach a decision either in Vietnam or at the rambling talks in Paris.

They don't like the Supreme Court's "indecision" or LBJ's choice of a successor to Earl Warren. They don't like "black power." They want both butter and bullets, but recent coupling up additional

This doesn't mean, however, that the world organization is justified in refusing to help maintain peace when it declines to authorize its members to aid in repelling a war of aggression in Vietnam.

The United States has obtained in Southeast Asia the help of a few allies. But significantly none of the European nations has come to the assistance of the American government.

Considine

taxes to pay for this combination.

Nixon has said that if elected he will go to the Soviet Union. He has been there before. And there is always the question of whether they would invite him.

What with the U.S.-Soviet agreement on nuclear nonproliferation, consular, cultural, air-route pacts and other rapports, including the "hot line," Nixon's promised visit would seem at this point less emphatic and vote-gathering than a pledge to "go to Vietnam" and — as Gen. Eisenhower frankly admitted in the case of Korea — get us to hell out of that one.

Gives Helpful Information on Service Flag and Pin

The flag Mrs. M. H. Hoard asked about in recent "Question and Answer" may be the flag of an organization called "The Blue Star Mothers." We know of no official flag as described, being government-authorized or issued. The pin to which she referred may be the official insignia of the same organization.

Blue Star Mothers was started during WW II. We stock the flags, one and two stars, in our store, subject to supply and demand. Gold stars are also available to those who have lost a family member in service.

Anyone may buy and display the flags. My mother, who has been a member of the group since its inception, advises that only members may wear the pin. We would be happy to put Mrs. Hoard in touch with someone who can give her information about joining the organization.

Youthful Voter Disappointed in Choice

As a first-time presidential election voter, I am very disappointed in what our parties have to offer.

After Bobby Kennedy's death, I saw no hope until Nelson Rockefeller jumped in. That ray of hope was put out by the nomination of a real loser at the Republican convention.

This year's race is a real nothing. It's too bad the people don't have something to say about this mess instead of the party machinery.

Needs Pictures of Pontiac Area Hostels

I am collecting data and pictures of the early inns and hotels of Oakland County, hoping to eventually put it all in book form so the information will be preserved for later generations.

I have had trouble locating pictures of the Pontiac hotels, except for the Hodges House, of which I have several. But there were many others, some of them operating after 1900: Hotel Oakland, American Hotel, Railroad Hotel and the Railroad Exchange Hotel, Aster House, (which had several names over the years), Dowling's Farmers' Home, National Hotel, Northern Hotel, Ogilvie House, The Rose House (on Perry Street) and the Waverly House.

Any help would be appreciated.

Campus (E)Quality?

Los Angeles Times

At Cal State Los Angeles a group of 10 young men identifying themselves as members of the Black Students Union, charged the B.S.U. with "trying to take over the campus."

Last week's rampage in the admissions office followed rejection by college officials of a set of impossible demands made by the B.S.U. Those involved "complete control" over admission of students sponsored by the B.S.U., including the channeling through the B.S.U. of letters of acceptance or rejection for students applying for admission.

A number of the young men who participated in the vandalism were identified as being Cal State students and were called in for disciplinary action.

There can be no excuse or mitigation for the planned act of destruction at Cal State. Those students who were involved have, by their contemptuous attitude toward the rights of others, forfeited their privilege of attending the college. They should be expelled forthwith, and criminal action should be taken where warranted.

A campus is not a playground for vandals or a sanctuary for hoodlums. This is a point that must be underscored daily.

It was not the first time the B.S.U. had resorted to such violence at Cal State. Last December members were involved in another demonstration that led to a virtual riot. At that time John A. Greenlee, president of Cal State, charged the B.S.U. with "trying to take over the campus."

Negroes Say GOP Is Shutting Them Out

By Austin Scott

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Black delegates to the Republican National Convention, a corporate's guard in the Grand Old Party, would like nothing better than to fill its ranks with young Negroes but, they say, the party is shutting them out.

The Republican party is unwilling, say these delegates, to offer anything meaningful that would attract Negro voters, who now flock to the polls on election day to vote Democratic.

Negro Republicans are convinced that the first step is to increase black influence in the GOP hierarchy. During the past week, two rules changes proposed by Negroes to gain this objective were the subject of considerable behind-the-scenes debate. But Negro leaders didn't try a fight on the convention floor, largely because only 26 of the 1,333 delegates were Negroes.

The positions of both sides were illustrated in an attempt by Florida Negroes to win places in their state's all-white delegation. Give us more power within the party, they said, and we will have something with which to appeal to the Negro voter.

NOT RESOLVED

Deliver more Negro votes, state GOP officials replied, and we'll give you more power.

The argument was not resolved, but Negroes are determined that this is the last convention that will be able to avoid an all-out floor fight on the issue of Negro representation.

Operating under the cumbersome name of the National Council of Concerned Afro-American Republicans, Negro delegates and GOP officeholders will set up permanent offices in Washington, D.C., and launch a drive to forge a power bloc of 200 delegates to the 1972 convention.

"Then we'll have as much power as Strom Thurmond," said Thurman L. Dodson, a Washington attorney who heads the new organization. Thursday, senior senator from South Carolina, is a leader of southern Republicans, most of whom advocate conservative policies that are an anathema to northern Negroes.

"We need something to sell those young people," she said. "They aren't coming in here to keep the two-party system alive. They couldn't care less." As for young Negroes working at the grass-roots level, she said:

"They're doing that for Minnesota's Democratic Sen. Eugene McCarthy, they would have done that for the late Democratic Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, but who have we got that they're going to do that for except maybe New York Mayor John Lindsay?"

NOT MENTIONED FAVORABLY

She didn't name one of the nation's most prominent Negro Republicans, Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts. But at this closed conference, Brooke's name was never mentioned favorably.

One reason was that Brooke, temporary chairman of the convention, raised no public objection to the seating of all-white delegations.

Several Negro delegates told the caucus they believed this convention was "the last chance the Republican party will ever have to get black votes." "They're trying to do it with words," said a Michigan Republican, referring to the platform section on the needs of the poor, "but that won't get it."

'DISENCHANTED'

"The black voter has generally been disenfranchised with the Republican party for so long, that in order for the GOP to recapture any significant numbers of blacks, they will have to offer far more than they have to date."

Most supported Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York as the best man to get those votes. Mrs. Stewart said that when the council asked the three major candidates to send over "a man with the authority to make policy," Gov. Ronald Reagan of California sent no one, Richard M. Nixon sent basketball star Wilt Chamberlain, and Rockefeller sent his son.

"When Rockefeller sends his son, we know he can talk for his pop," she said.

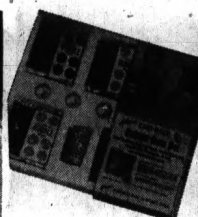

The council has promised to support Nixon, the party's nominee, but it is going to concentrate on a campaign in all states for registration "of a mass of nonvoting black people," Dodson said.

"We will campaign through churches, barber shops, beauty shops and pool rooms," he said. A national organizational conference is tentatively set for Aug. 31-Sept. 1 in Detroit.

"What the young black people want is a voice," said Mrs. Stewart. "We want to give them that."

Transit Firm Asks Pontiac to Buy or Lease Its Assets

The City Commission, which has authorized paying a monthly subsidy to the Pontiac Transit Corp. for continued bus service in the city, last night received new proposals from the bus company calling for purchase or lease of the bus system assets in the city.

Commissioners were non-committal and asked for more complete information. Under the proposal, the city would hire the Pontiac Transit Corporation to manage the bus system at a fee of six per cent of the gross profits.

The city has been subsidizing the local bus operation to the tune of $35,000 per year because of company claims that the city system loses money in the city.

AGREEMENT ENDING

The present agreement with the bus company ends Aug. 31. City manager Joseph A. Warren said company representatives have not indicated any willingness to continue the existing agreement, even by increasing the subsidy to cover the new higher cost involved in recent pay hikes for bus drivers.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. asked the city manager to meet with bus company representatives to discuss continuation of the service with a continued city subsidy.

He also asked the city manager to break down the either owning or leasing the bus proposals into "dollars and cents figures." Commissioners in the past have indicated they do not care to get involved in

More Sunday Liquor OKs

LANSING (AP) — The count-down of counties where boards of supervisors have voted to approve Sunday liquor sales now has reached 44.

The latest five counties to approve the sabbath sale of spirits, all voting this week, were Ingham, Genesee, Van Buren, Isabella and Cass.

The State Liquor Control Commission reported that more than 350 applications for special permits to sell liquor after 2 p.m. on Sunday have been received. The new law permits Sunday sales by establishments doing more than 50 per cent of their gross business in food sales and other services.

The Michigan Licensed Beverage Association estimated that the 40 counties approving such sales have a population of more than 5.8 million.

Gov. George Romney allowed the new law to become official without his signature on July 3.

* Authorized spending $2,200 with Denyes & Freeman Associates, architects and engineers, to determine possible uses of the former Masonic Temple building at 1 Lafayette and what needs to be done to the building to bring it up to standards. The building, currently occupied by Oakland County employees, was transferred to city ownership at the time of the transfer of the city airport to county ownership early last year.

* Agreed to advertise for bids for sale of the former city incinerator site, a 6.5-acre parcel at the southwest corner of Featherstone and East Boulevard.

* Denied a petition requesting rezoning of the west side of Franklin between Montana and Nevada to Commercial 3 zoning.

* Referred back to the City Planning Commission a request to rezone two lots at the northeast corner of Joslyn and Peacock to C-3 for construction of a gas station.

Pension-Fund Assets Are Up

Assets of the city's employee retirement fund passed $5 million last year, Director of Finance Edward R. Gallagher told the City Commission last night.

Gallagher, in relaying to the commission the annual report of the retirement system, said assets had reached $5,338,790 by the end of last year.

He said income from investments, primarily corporate bonds, was $230,000 for the year. He said this was an increase of $40,000 in investment income over the previous year.

All city employees except policemen and firemen are included in the retirement system, he said.

Gallagher said that employees about 1,500 — contributed $390,000 to the pension fund during the year and the city contributed about $335,000.

Required by State Law

Income Tax Review Unit OK'd

Establishment of a three-member income tax board of review was authorized by the City Commission last night, to comply with the state law which enables cities to collect income taxes.

Appointments to the board will be made as soon as practicable, City Manager Joseph A. Warren said.

The board will meet annually to review citizen appeals concerning income taxes. Warren said a survey of other cities shows that these boards "have not found it necessary to meet very frequently since differences between the income tax administrator and the taxpayer seem to be relatively infrequent."

In other action, the commission set a Sept. 10 public hearing to discuss establishment of a Citizens District Council in the city's urban renewal area.

COUNCIL MANDATORY James L. Bates, director of urban renewal, said a recent state law makes establishment of a citizens council mandatory by Sept. 20.

The council is to be made up of residents of the renewal area or those having a substantial interest in property in the area, with the majority being residents.

Bates said the law directs local officials to consult with and advise the council on all aspects of an urban renewal plan, including the development of new housing for relocating those displaced by urban renewal.

In addition to the Sept. 10 hearing, another is scheduled for Sept. 17 to discuss the method of selection of council members.

'Miniweapons' Class for Minors Moves Nearer

City commissioners last night took a preliminary step to make it legal to have instructional courses for minors in the use of air guns, bows and arrows and slingshots for the first time in 25 years.

Commissioners gave first reading approval to an ordinance amendment which makes it legal. It will be adopted next week.

City manager Joseph A. Warren said the city has had an ordinance for the past 25 years which prohibits any person under 18 from using or having in his possession an air gun, bow and arrow or slingshot.

He said instructional programs now in existence are theoretically violating the law.

Group Elects a Dirty Bum

BRITTT, Iowa (UPI) — "The Pennsylvania Kid" stood before the convention in this year of political surprises looking like a bum. In spite of it, or maybe because of it, he was elected.

Clad in filthy coveralls and sporting a heavy dark beard, the kid sought the support of the 400 delegates on a platform of being the candidate who could bring the most notoriety to this north-central Iowa community of about 2,000 residents.

Atop his head was a raunchy hat festooned with feathers and buttons.

It proved to be his crown. For "the Pennsylvania Kid," Richard Wilson, yesterday was chosen King of the Hobos. He will reign one year.

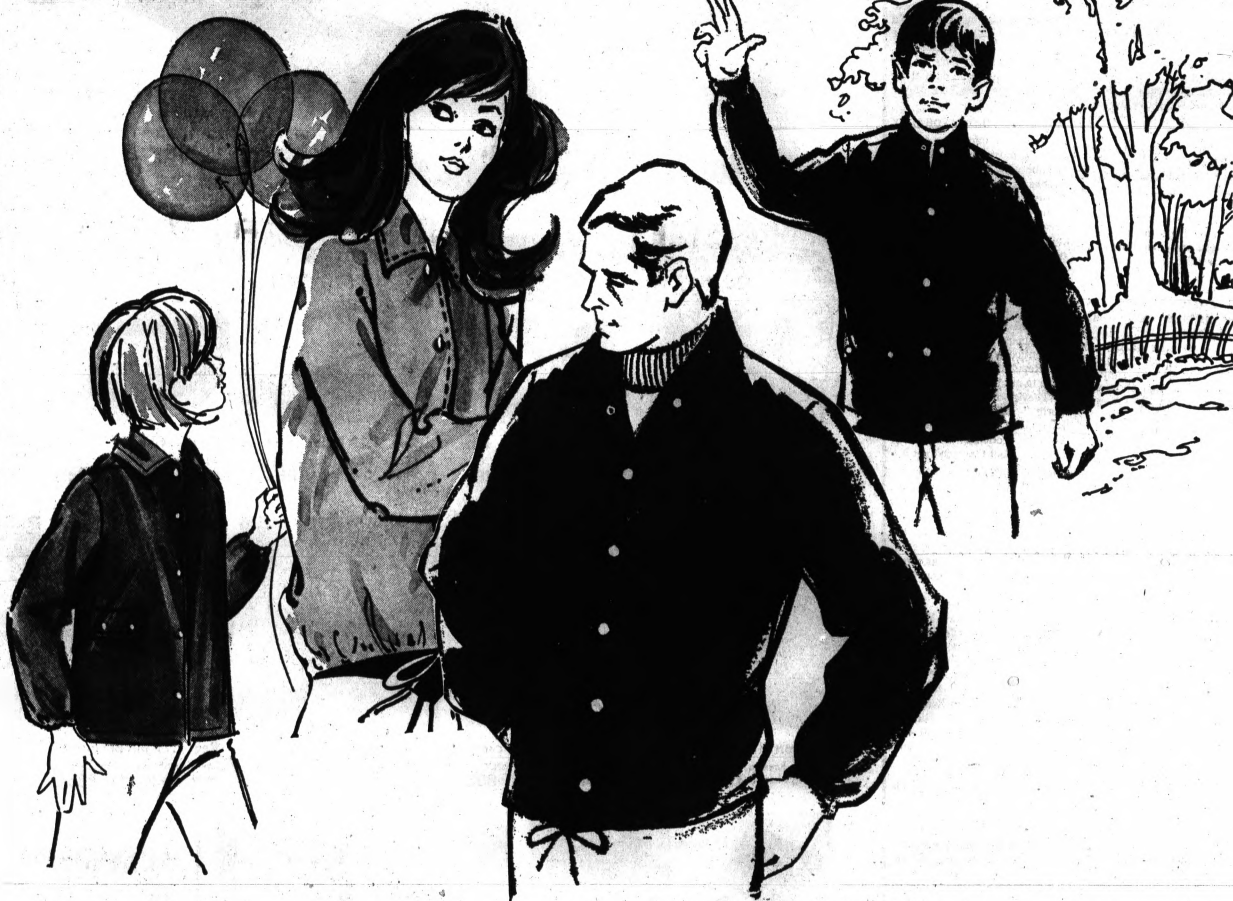

HE'S FILTHIEST, TOO

The self-proclaimed filthiest hobo in America had some opposition at the 35th Annual Hobo Convention. The kid wasn't a shoo-in, by any means. "Slow-motion Shorty," Gene Parker of Wichita, Kan., drew almost as much delegate support. The ballot was not a drawn-out affair. "The Pennsylvania Kid" was declared the winner on the basis of delegate applause.

Less-serious challenges were mounted by "South Dakota Heavy," Harry Hanks, and James (Big Town) Gorman of St. Louis.

Hobos attending but declining to place their name before the convention included "Lord Open Road" of Phoenix, Ariz.; "Trapper Red" from Des Moines; and "Polack Whiskey" from Austin, Minn.

Burn Victim Starts Series

Grafts 'to Make Annette Pretty'

Annette McLean hung onto her mother's arm telling how "the doctor will make me pretty." Her upper face covered by a bandage, the 4-year-old burn victim played while her mother, Mrs. Ervin McLean of 1480 Hillway, White Lake Township, described Annette's recent operation, the first in a series to rebuild her face.

Annette fell against a hot water tap, pushing it on, in March 1966. She was severely burned on the face, head and chest.

Skin from behind her ears was grafted onto her nose in her recent operation, according to Dr. Nevit Ergin of 35 S. Johnson. He explained he was replacing some pale-white skin which had been grafted from her leg in an operation last year and did not look like the skin surrounding her nose.

Annette, who is now home recovering from the operation, will have another graft placed on the rest of the nose area and her neck smoothed in the next operation, according to Ergin.

FUTURE OPERATIONS

Other areas, including implanting hair on her head—she now wears a wig—will be worked on in future operations.

McLean, a jitney driver at GMC Truck and Coach Division, is paying for the $20,000 series of operations at Pontiac General Hospital. He opened an account to build Annette a new face at the Community National Bank branch at 1620 Union Lake. To date the account book reads $3,016.

Men at GMC banded together to collect $1,000, and the United Auto Workers chipped in another $100. And one Sunday-school class of 9-year-olds gave up $15.55 worth of ice cream and pop to "make Annette pretty."

Inkster Man Is Charged in Shooting at Policeman

INKSTER (AP)—The Wayne County Prosecutor's Office Tuesday charged an Inkster man with assault with intent to murder.

The warrant against 24-year-old Turian Lewis stemmed from a series of incidents in Inkster last week in which a white State Police detective and a 14-year-old black youth died.

Lewis was arraigned in Inkster Municipal Court after being arrested the night of Aug. 7. He was charged then with carrying concealed weapons after police found two rifles and a pistol in his car. Lewis stood mute and was released on $5,000 bond.

Regarding the second charge filed Tuesday, James Brickley, chief assistant prosecutor, said ballistics tests showed one of the guns found in Lewis's car had been used to shoot at the officers.

Brickley declined to say whether Lewis alone was involved in the death of State Police Detective Robert Goussier, shot and killed while investigating earlier shooting at policemen.

A 14-year-old Negro, James Matthews, was shot and killed by police who said he ran from them.

Brickley said a full report, expected by Friday, "will explain but not justify all the things that occurred" in the slaying of the youth. That case is being investigated by members of the Wayne County Prosecutor's staff, Wayne County Sheriff's Department, Inkster Police and the Michigan State Police.

Police involved in the youth's death have not been identified. Brickley said the case "is getting a lot of attention on whether it was justifiable homicide." He would not say whether warrants are expected.

BEATING COMPLAINT

Brickley said a complaint by a 22-year-old Inkster woman that she was beaten by white policemen was also under investigation.

Witness 'Forgets' in Police Death Trial

Abernathy: SCLC May Endorse Candidate, but Not Nixon

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Southern Christian Leadership Conference opens its annual meeting today, and there were indications that the civil rights group might endorse a candidate for president before the convention is over.

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, SCLC president, told an airport news conference on his arrival Tuesday that tradition might be shattered with a presidential endorsement. He made it plain that Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon would not be on the receiving end of any endorsement.

Abernathy said he was disappointed that the Republicans had once again picked Nixon to head their ticket. He said Nixon "is not concerned about black people and poor people at all."

He also termed the field of Democratic presidential hopefuls "very, very sparse."

He said he would testify before the Democratic National Convention's Platform Committee in Chicago next week and that the Democrats, "if they want the black vote... had better write something progressive."

"We're going to say to the Democrats that we are sick and tired of being last hired and first fired. We demand a guaranteed national income and more equal distribution of wealth."

Abernathy is making his second visit to Memphis since the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who was shot here April 4. James Earl Ray, the man charged with murder in King's slaying, is lodged in the Shelby County jail in downtown Memphis. City police have provided a strong security guard for Abernathy.

"I had some doubts about Memphis for our convention city, but all doubts have been cleared," he said. "I know that you are ready for us and I am ready for Memphis."

"We want to say to Memphis and the nation and the world, you were able to kill the leader physically, but you will never be able to kill his dream," Abernathy said.

Workshops will begin Thursday and will be held each day on themes such as education, economics, politics and the military and their relation to the poor.

Convention officials say they expect 5,000 to 6,000 delegates for the sessions which runs through Saturday. A number of them are housed at the Lorraine Motel where King was killed. Thursday night.

Death Takes Pioneer of Car Assembly Line

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — "Horseless carriages" were a luxury, the mark of a wealthy man that afternoon when Charles Sorensen, a 33-a-day pattern maker, towed a car chassis on a rope through Henry Ford's factory in Detroit.

But Sorensen and Ford proved

Yugoslav Planning Grant Given WSU

DETROIT (AP) — A $100,000 grant has been awarded to Wayne State University by the Ford Foundation to continue a joint American-Yugoslav project on urban and regional planning for the Ljubljana region in Yugoslavia.

Wayne State administers the program that was started in 1968. The program also provides for interdisciplinary training and research opportunities for young professional planners.

Ford Foundation money will be used to complete the professional plan for Ljubljana and to continue training in urban-regional planning for Yugoslav specialists.

their point. Soon the plant was producing cheap automobiles called "Model T's" on the first industrial assembly line with each worker performing a single, simplified task.

Other industries followed suit, and America entered the mass-production, assembly-line era.

When America went to war, Sorensen turned his skills to producing armaments.

He developed the Jeep. He laid out the Willow Run factory that eventually rolled out a big B24 Liberator bomber every hour.

QUIT FORD

Sorensen was earning $220,000 a year as a Ford vice president when he resigned in 1944 to later become president of Willys-Overland Motors, Inc.

Sorensen, who emigrated at age 4 from Denmark with his parents, was knighted by Denmark's King Christian in 1937.

Sorensen died at his home Tuesday. He was 86.

He is survived by his wife, a brother, two sisters and two grandchildren.

Funeral services are to be in Miami Beach, Fla. No date was immediately set.

With warm sunshine and a large lawn dotted with shade trees, instructor Nancy Malkin of Joslyn Avenue could see no reason to keep her students indoors. This late morning reading class responded to the pleasant surroundings and participated actively in a word recognition exercise.

Enjoying the playground facilities during a recess break are Kristin Petersen of Sylvaan Lake, being followed down the slide by her sister, Robin. High school aide, Cindy Corpus of Elmdale Street, Independence Township, stands ready to avert a spill. The enclosed area adjoining the nursery school classroom abounds with activity when weather permits.

Help Mom Out Before Offering to Aid Others

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a mother who will not let her 16-year-old daughter do volunteer work in a local hospital, because she figures if the girl wants to work for nothing, there is plenty of work for her to do around the house?

Abby, that mother is mine, and I don't think she has the right to tell me whether or not I can work for nothing.

I want to do something worthwhile with my time, and I know I would like hospital work. Besides, hospitals NEED volunteer help. It's not like I don't do anything around the house, either. I do, but I think I should be able to do what I want to do in my spare time, don't you? Please put your answer in the paper so my mother can see it.

WANTS TO WORK

DEAR WANTS: I agree that young people who want to do volunteer work should not be discouraged. But I think your problem is that you and your mother need a clearer understanding as to what your home duties are and how much "spare" time you have.

Once that is cleared up, I think you should be allowed to do as much volunteer work as you wish.

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that it is bad luck to seat 13 at a table for a dinner party. Where on earth did that silly superstition come from? I have a friend who wouldn't sit 13 at a table for love or money.

DEAR GISELA: I don't know, but let me guess. It probably originated when a hostess, who had service for only 12 in her lovely china, crystal and silver, invited 12 for dinner and someone brought a friend, making it 13.

Psychiatric Problems Up Abortion Number

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — More women have undergone legal abortions in Colorado hospitals for psychiatric reasons under the state's broadened abortion statute than for all other reasons combined.

The Colorado Health Department says that between April 25, 1967, when the law became effective, and last June 30, 338 legal abortions were reported to the department.

One hundred were performed on women coming to Colorado from other states.

The department said mental health reasons accounted for 195 of the 338 operations. Thirty-two were made for medical reasons, 33 for victims of rape, 20 for women who had had German measles and two for women regarded as possible suicide risks.

In addition, doctors reported 56 therapeutic abortions with no other details given.

Prior to enactment of the new law, legal abortions in Colorado averaged about one a month, sometimes less, the department said. In 1966, for example, only 10 legal operations to end pregnancies were reported to the health agency.

Writers Set Workshop

The Oakland Writers' Workshop will be held tomorrow at 1 p.m. in the YWCA on West Huron Street.

Learning Process Is Vital at YWCA

There is a bustle of activity at the YWCA building on Huron Street. Children are going in and out, laughing, eating cookies and sipping orange drink from wax cartons.

It is easy to assume that the YW is conducting its regular summer day camp. But the tape recorders, black boards, typewriters and reading primers are the keys. They are instrumental in the tutoring and retarded nursery experimental workshop.

PROGRAM

In an effort to better serve the community's needs, the YW set up an eight week program for first through sixth grade youngsters. The sessions provide tutoring for poor readers, a day nursery for retarded children and a family exchange program.

This type of program is new to the area. The regular arts and crafts summer activities were replaced with this service which YW directors feel is more valuable.

Research teams and summer directors working with community leaders and school personnel earlier this year found some basic shortcomings affecting community youth.

School children were not all progressing equally and reading levels within elementary school grades varied considerably. The present summer session is an attempt to close these gaps.

As the program took shape, it was decided that there was something that could be done for the retarded child also. Objectives were to give the parents of these youngsters a few hours of free time during the day.

It was also hoped that skills needed for the trainable child, to be somewhat self-sufficient, could be stressed. Provision was made for a special day care nursery.

EXCHANGE

The final phase of the summer series developed in an effort to aid local youngsters who would not be able to take advantage of a camp experience due to the limited capacity of area facilities. YW workers decided to experiment with a summer exchange program enabling youngsters to benefit from a change of environment and living conditions.

Long before the program began July 1, volunteers were recruited. Approximately 50 interested housewives, high school students and one brave Eagle Scout, met for the first training session.

The instructors-to-be were trained by certified elementary teachers and a special education instructor. Schooling was given in the use of visual aids and evaluating methods. Most importantly, the volunteers were told to mold their programs to fit the individual needs of their class members.

SEVENTH WEEK

The program is now well into its seventh week of four-day-a-week morning and afternoon sessions. Program director, Mrs. Eva Terrell is pleased with the activity she and her staff have put into effect.

"Both the children and the instructors are enthusiastic," she said. "And, there are relatively few absences."

On a tour of the building Mrs. Terrell pointed out rows of reading books donated by area public schools, mimeographed spelling sheets and reading aids, developed by her workers.

Notice was made of one of the reading group projects. Group leaders had requested that the class members write their own reading material. The result was small books, written and illustrated by each child.

In glancing through two books, "Douglas the Airplane" and "The Mischief Maker", one is captivated by the thought and originality. The author's own grammar, sentence structure. Descriptions were taken down just as they were dictated to the tutor.

Complete with hand-made cover designs, these books are a delightful tribute to the work and interest taken by both student and instructor.

SELF-HELP

The volunteers in the retarded nursery are working to maintain the children's present level of skills and, if possible, to expand them.

Many of the youngsters have not yet had nursery school experience and they are only now responding to inter-group challenges. Once a level of comprehension and achievement has been reached, it is hoped that the nursery can maintain progress.

Retarded children are also given the chance to work with interesting materials. To develop skills needed to dress themselves, the youngsters work with a jacketed wooden manikin. In another exercise, zippers mounted in a small book provide training. Shoe tying and doll-dressing also promote individual accomplishment.

This year's program is primarily an experimental period for both the YW staff and the approximately 100 children participating. Yet, Mrs. Terrell believes that even now, progress is noticeable and that these accomplishments warrant an expanded program for next year.

Self Care

Why Grow Old?

JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

- One way to keep cool physically is to keep your cool emotionally. Violent emotions and arguments are heating. So is hurry. Try to fit your life into a more leisurely pattern, for summer, anyway.
- Go on errands and do your shopping early in the day before it really heats up.
- Here is an old trick I learned when living in the tropics. Open the windows at night but close them by mid-morning, or sooner. This lets the cooler night air in and keeps the hotter daytime air out.
- Water is cooling. If you do not live near a lake or river and can't get to a pool, or do not want to, then have summer fun spraying one another with the hose in the back yard. 'His will cool you off for fairly long periods of time.
- Wear clothing that is not only light in weight but also in color. Discard undergarments which are too heavy. There are many very light girdles which also exert some restraint on the figure.
- Stockings are very hot. If you wish to leave them off much of the time and do not have a suntan which looks like hosiery, try one of the body paints or waterproof makeups.
- When women first painted stockings on their legs during World War I, this product was far from perfection. If you get caught in a thunder shower, you didn't get a run in your stockings; they just ran away! Today, "stockings," as well as mascara, are waterproof.
- Pale summer slipcovers create an atmosphere of coolness and restfulness.
- Long cool drinks are cooling psychologically. However, the experts say that just the opposite is actually true. They are heating.
- Cut down on the heavy, rich foods. These, too are heating. Enjoy the great variety of vegetables and fruits which are now on the market.
- Try to plan many meals which do not keep you over a hot stove. Outside barbecues are a wonderful invention for the little woman. The man of the house usually takes these over.

Today's Problems Cloud the Future

By BETTY CANARY
I had coffee with two students at a little restaurant around the corner from the campus and the first sip explained why they called the place "The Last Resort."

"See this article where it says success is linked with suicide?" Mike asked me. "At the First National Conference on Suicide," he read, "a Dr. Kostubala said that suicide is somehow correlated with influence."

"What about this?" Nancy pulled a clipping from her French book and told me that Dr. George Engel of the University of Rochester said at a meeting of the American College of Physicians that there is a definite link between people who give up on life and a variety of illnesses.

I read the description of five symptoms of the "giving up" syndrome. "A person feels helpless or hopeless, is unable to function normally, feels life is unsatisfying and unfulfilled, believes the past cannot be used to improve what he feels is a bleak future and recalls past feelings of hopelessness or helplessness."

"That is all very interesting and morbid," I said, handing over the articles. "But what has this got to do with you? Do you feel sick? How can you feel all is hopeless? Are you afraid if you make a success of your job after school you will commit a suicide?"

THE GOOD

I ran down the list of exciting things American young people are doing today, including joining the Peace Corps, running neighborhood cleanup campaigns and doing part-time tutoring with disadvantaged children.

"And, there will be jobs tomorrow that haven't been created today!" I enthused.

"Why are you sitting there giving me statistics on suicides and telling me about giving up on life?"

"I'm not sure what I want out of life," Nancy said. "All I know is I don't have it now."

I turned to the waitress. "Did you have a chance to go to college?" I asked. "What do you want?" She confessed she was a dropout. I asked why she quit and I wonder if she was putting me on with her answer. "I came here to be with with," she said, sighing, "and I wasn't."

TalkCATNIP—
A FLOWER?

The catnip plant has a beautiful cluster of flowers that are whitish and tinged in delicate pink. It was given the name because cats like to roll and play in the leaves. They will eat them, too.

It was once used as a home remedy for babies' colic... and for seasoning food.

Some of the old stand-by flowers are still favorites. For instance, there is nothing that expresses your message better than roses.

WELTON - MILLS

The Donald Keith Weltons (nee Kaye Marie Mills) are honeymooning in Michigan and Florida following their marriage Friday in St. Rita's Catholic Church, Holly. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon G. Mills of Holly chose a gown of silk organza and Chantilly lace highlighted with a portrait bodice and matching lace Watteau train. A petal headpiece capped her veil of illusion and she carried a cascade of Stephanotis, Sweetheart roses and carnations. Mrs. Evan Falkenhagen and James Ream were honor attendants. Prior to their honeymoon departure, the son of the Ecco Weltons of Holly and his bride were feted with a reception at the VFW Hall here.

MOORE - HINKLEY

Carrying a bouquet of white daisies with baby's breath and tory, Mary Cathlene Hinkley became the bride of Richard Dean Moore Saturday in First Methodist Church, Clarkston. Parents of the newlyweds are the Paul Hinkleys of Clarkston and the Charles Moores of Big Lake Road, Springfield, Town ship. The bride chose a gown of white crepe with a dotted swiss overdress. She wore a floor length veil of dotted swiss. Honor attendants Mrs. Dale Calkins and Daniel Rogals led a bridal party of 10. Following a reception in Spring Lake Country Club, the couple departed for a honeymoon trip to Traverse City.

Plans Announced
for Fall Nuptials

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Nelsey of Nelsey Road announce the engagement and fall wedding plans of their daughter, Janet Audrey, to John T. Peterman. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Peterman of Grand Blanc. The bride elect and her fiancé are graduates of Pontiac Business Institute and Flint Junior Community College respectively.

Classon-Patten

An early November wedding is planned by Karen Classon and Milton Charles Patten. Parents of the betrothed pair are Mr. and Mrs. Ivar Classon of East Beverly Street and Mr. and Mrs. Milton C. Patten of Keego Harbor.

Quicker Patching

When patching everyday wearing apparel when the garment is pretty well worn, you can make the patching quicker by using pinkish shears to cut patches. Don't bother to turn under the edges, for the patches won't fray, and this saves you mending time.

Let Baby Splash in Smaller Tub

The six months to one-year-old baby loves to splash in water. This can become a problem at bath time when he splashes out a lot of water. Try placing his small tub into the bathtub.

There will be no more mopping up spilled water, and this also helps to acquaint baby with the big tub, so there will be no strangeness to him when you start using it regularly.

A collector's approach... to displaying art treasures. An entryway can become a mini-gallery; a bedroom can show off a child's portrait, a famous painting can be the focal point in a living room—with the addition of this solid oak easel. In a warm ginger finish, it is an important new addition to the Heritage "Collector's Corner" grouping.

Reaction of Foreign Press

View of Nixon Mixed Abroad

LONDON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's fiasco in winning the Republican presidential nomination and preventing an open ideological split at the party's national convention impressed many political observers abroad.

Reaction to his nomination was generally mixed.

Britain's nationally circulated

Guardian newspaper commented the day after Nixon's victory at Miami Beach:

"As a personal achievement, Mr. Nixon's nomination is remarkable. At the same time the convention brought the Republican party back into the mainstream of American politics after their fiasco with Mr. Goldwater in 1964. There has been much talk this year of a new Nixon. But he inspires as little enthusiasm as ever. From an electoral point of view this matters less than in 1960, for Mr. Humphrey, assuming he is the Democratic nominee, as seems all too likely, is no Kennedy. Both he and Nixon have an equal lack of personal appeal. Both are equally open to the charge of opportunism."

NEWFOUND CONFIDENCE

The Times of London observed: "The way in which Mr. Nixon won the Republican nomination is almost as weighty in Democratic calculations as the fact that he, and not Mr. (Ronald A.) Rockefeller or Mr. (Richard M.) Nixon, won it. He won on the first ballot and, whatever deals had to be done, managed to remain a statesmanlike figure above the party huckstering. He emerges at the same time as the bastion of the Republican party's newfound confidence."

Similarly, the London Daily Telegraph editorialized: "Richard Nixon, by winning the Republican nomination despite the incubus of his loser image, has proved that he has intense faith in himself, tremendous resilience and formidable political skill."

In France, editorial reaction to the Nixon selection ranged from noncommittal to negative.

The leftist newspaper Combat declared: "When for the first time since Gen. Eisenhower, the Grand Old Party is in good position to take the presidency, it chose again a man whose principal merit is his deep knowledge of the machinery of the party he comes from."

'PALE SECOND'

Nixon, it went on, is a "pale second" to Eisenhower, and Hubert H. Humphrey, the likely Democratic nominee, is a "pale second" to President Johnson, "who got his chance only through the disappearance of two members of the Kennedy clan. It's hard to see how either of the two mediocre candidates can deal with the crucial problems in America."

Humanite, the Communist party publication, restrained its comments, saying Nixon's program offers "no fundamental modification for American policies," especially on Vietnam. If the American voters pick Nixon, it said, "it will be through weariness rather than through conviction."

Junior Editors Quiz on FOUR LEAF CLOVERS

QUESTION: Why are four-leaf clovers supposed to bring good luck?

ANSWER: In the old days, when the world around us was little understood, many strange ideas gained acceptance. For example, an image in a mirror was thought to have a spirit of its own. If you broke the mirror, you would injure the spirit, and it might strike back at you in some way. So arose the superstition that it is unlucky to break a mirror.

It was also thought unlucky to walk under a ladder or to open an umbrella indoors.

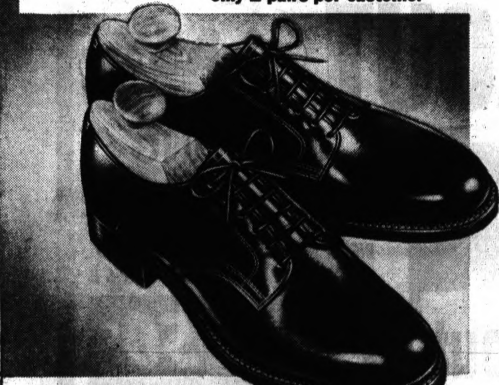

However there were goodluck superstitions too. People had the idea — which many still have — that finding something unusual brings good luck. That is why the four-leaf clover is supposed to be lucky. Look through a batch of clovers; almost all the leaves are in groups of three. Very rarely you may find one of four leaves or even more.

It is also supposed to be lucky to find a horseshoe or pick up a pin from the floor — "See a pin, pick it up, all the day you'll have good luck." The Irish venerate the shamrock, a three-leaf clover, because St. Patrick is supposed to have planted it in Ireland. The three leaves reminded him of the Holy Trinity.

(You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

Teacher Unions See Up to 400 Strikes in Next School Year

WASHINGTON (UPI)—School bells may go unheeded by thousands of teachers and young pupils across the nation next month.

According to the two giant teachers unions, the National Education Association (NEA) and the American Federation of Teachers (AFT), present conditions portend as many as 400 elementary and high school teacher strikes this school year, more than three times the record 126 walkouts of the last one.

Spokesmen for the two groups said there is "a strong

Nixon Due in Lansing to Air Campaign

LANSING (AP) — Richard Nixon will fly to Michigan early next week to discuss campaign plans with Gov. George Romney, who has warned that the Nixon campaign "will have a difficult battle" in his state.

Romney, who also said following last week's GOP National Convention at Miami Beach that "I think it's possible to win there (in Michigan)," announced Nixon would be in Lansing either Monday or Tuesday.

The governor also said Maryland Gov. Spiro Agnew, the Republican candidate for vice president, has been invited to address the State GOP Convention Aug. 24 in Grand Rapids.

Pending the Nixon visit, Romney added, two of Michigan's top Republicans — State Chairman Ely Peterson of Charlotte and Sen. Emil Lockwood of St. Louis, the State Senate majority leader — have been sent to San Diego, Calif., to work with Nixon's staff on scheduling arrangements.

UNSUCCESSFUL BID
Romney pledged to work for the Nixon-Agnew ticket after an attempt to give him the No. 2 spot on the ticket was unsuccessful.

Opponents of Agnew, Nixon's choice, nominated Romney, who drew 178 votes in 1,128 for the Maryland governor.

Romney said Tuesday he and Nixon planned to "confer on final plans and the organizational structure for the Republican campaign in Michigan."

Trial of Shaw Delayed Again

'Kennedy Plot' Suspect
Waits High Court Rule

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Clay L. Shaw's trial has been delayed again—at least until the U.S. Supreme Court starts its fall term.

A special three-judge federal court barred further prosecution of Shaw, accused by Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison of conspiring to kill President John F. Kennedy, until the Supreme Court rules on an appeal by Shaw's lawyers.

Shaw had been scheduled for trial Sept. 10 in Criminal District Court. He was arrested March 1, 1967 by Garrison, who claims a New Orleans-based plot led to the assassination of Kennedy in Dallas, Tex., on Nov. 22, 1963.

The Warren Commission, appointed by President Johnson to probe the slaying, reported it could find no credible evidence of a conspiracy; Lee Harvey Oswald was named the sole assassin.

STATE LAW HIT

Shaw wants the Supreme Court to hear his attack on the constitutionality of the Louisiana conspiracy statutes under which he has asked that the Warren Commission report be ruled "valid, accurate, binding and controlling upon all courts in the United States."

Shaw's trial was first scheduled for February and later for June. Proceedings in both state and federal court pushed the dates back.

The three-judge federal panel which Tuesday delayed the latest delay had ruled earlier that Shaw could be tried in Criminal District Court, saying "he must first seek vindication of his rights in the state courts."

There were three great temples at Baalbeck, erected by Imperial Rome to dazzle people of the East with its might.

possibility" of strikes at the opening of school next month in St. Louis, Mo.; Philadelphia, East St. Louis, Ill.; New Orleans; and Wilmington, Del.

In addition, the NEA said 35 suburban area schools in Michigan, mainly near Detroit, face the same strike threat.

along with isolated rural districts in Colorado, Oklahoma, Idaho, New Hampshire and South Dakota.

EARLY STRIKES SEEN

"We anticipate there will be about 50 strikes when school starts with another 300 to 350 spread throughout the rest of the school year," the NEA spokesman said.

Neither the AFT or NEA could estimate the number of teachers and students affected except to say it would run into the tens of thousands.

The Education Commission of the States (ECS), which represents the executive and legislative branches of 39 states, reported there were 100 work stoppages last school year and the NEA said there were 126.

ECS figures going back to 1940 showed a total of 73 such strikes in the entire decade ending in 1949, underscoring the marked contrast between then and the greater militancy of teachers in current times.

PUBLIC PUZZLED

One puzzling factor in the public's mind is how teachers can strike in the face of laws practically they are unenforceable because if you throw all the strikers in jail, you still have empty classrooms.

Sixteen states — Alaska, California, Connecticut, Florida,

Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Rhode Island, Texas, Washington and Wisconsin — have, since 1960, written new laws giving teachers some form of collective bargaining.

Children of Migrants Are Schooled for Mechanized Age

SAGINAW (AP)—A thousand migrant children in the Saginaw Valley and Michigan Thumb are starting to prepare for a mechanized age when hand farm labor may be a thing of the past.

Enrollment has more than doubled in an expanded second-year migrant education program being operated through the Saginaw County Intermediate school District.

It is similar to summer school for migrant children in five other regions throughout Michigan, paid for with federal money and coordinated through the State Department of Public Instruction.

To some it may seem ironic for the state to operate imaginative educational programs for migrant children when mechanization is beginning to throw migrant parents out of work.

BUDGET DOUBLED

Officials at the Intermediate district office say fewer job opportunities for migrants is the major reason the federal government has more than doubled the summer school budget to $317,000 this year.

"Mechanization has been creeping in and will eventually take the jobs of migrants who come here," said Anthony G. Martinez, director of the migrant programs here.

"This program may cost tax money now, but if we can get these children on their feet they'll be able to fend for themselves and not swell future welfare rolls."

"The whole purpose of the program is to get a child ready to run or fix the machine that may replace him," he stressed.

PRESCHOOLERS, TOO

The migrant education program has been expanded to include preschoolers this year. It extends upward to include 13-year-old children.

At 14, the legal age for a child to work in the fields, economic factors conflict with his education. Children go into the fields to help parents increase family incomes. School falls by the wayside.

Martinez noted that this creates a problem. He said the high school dropout rate is great in the migrant stream. "I can count the number of high school graduates in migrant camps in this region on one hand and not use all my fingers," he said.

Intermediate Schools Supt. Howard W. Corford noted that migrant parents are beginning to see the value of schooling opportunities for their children. He said they want to work in areas such as Saginaw County because of educational programs being offered.

"Hopefully, programs like this will give youngsters enough impetus to go on and complete school," said Martinez.

He said indications are that migrant youngsters are beginning to look ahead to more schooling. In a regional center at Capac, children this year have told teachers they want to be policemen or nurses. Last year the same children didn't have their sights set as high.

It's Never Too Late to Learn—2

Success Possible in Training Courses—With Right Approach

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second in a series of articles on adult education.)

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D., University of Southern California

Job training courses which involve the operation or maintenance of equipment may well result in advancement for you to a better position.

Don't be discouraged because you have tried in the past to study manuals and find it difficult to make heads or tails out of them. You can succeed if you go about it the right way.

Mr. A started out the wrong way when he took a ten-week training course for the maintenance of some rather complex equipment. He made average grades on the written examinations during the course, but failed in the maintenance of equipment.

The trouble was, Mr. A had attempted to memorize the manuals. He crammed for the tests and could remember enough to give practically word for word answers, but he really never understood the material thoroughly. The company offered him a two weeks' refresher course as a last chance.

BOOKS NOT ENOUGH

Together, Mr. A and I set up a different approach to learning the operation and maintenance of the equipment. He reviewed from the beginning. This time with the manual in hand and the equipment before him, he learned to see each operation not, just in words, but actually in terms of how it took place in the equipment.

In this manner, he reviewed the early portions of his manuals before commencing the refresher course.

During the course he visualized every maintenance problem as it actually took place in the machinery. And this time Mr. A passed the examinations with high grades. Later he made an excellent record on the job.

Whether it be auto mechanics, electronics, or the maintenance of typewriters, computers, or any other mechanical devices, the successful approach is always the same. Get a mental picture of each operation in the equipment, as well as understanding it in words.

Miss M was apprehensive about taking a course in computer programming. Her knowledge of computers was nil. She had no background in computer language, although she learned a little about it by doing some reading before the course started.

In the class, however, many of the students had had some previous experience on computers, and others had done some programming. Miss M was at a definite disadvantage. At my suggestion she spent every possible moment in the computer room, learning first-hand how the machines worked. As soon as she was able to perform an operation with the computer and was allowed to practice, she took advantage of any time that was available, whether it meant giving up her dinner hour, Saturdays, Sundays or holidays.

As the course proceeded, Miss M gradually overcame the advantage held by those with some previous actual experience. By the end of the course she received a satisfactory grade.

She is now preparing to take an advanced course by building up a background of knowledge about computers and computer vocabulary that will put her on an equal basis with other students in the class.

There seems to be no substitute for the actual performance of the operation by the student himself.

Make inquiries. Search out the courses that may be available to you. Much as trained men and women are needed, you must make the first move. The opportunity will not come looking for you!

3-Man Lunar Orbit Viewed

'More Data Needed' Before Moon Landing

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is seriously considering a plan to send a three-man Apollo team into orbit around the moon before committing another team to a lunar landing mission.

Officials who favor the idea say there is not enough firm information available on how to precisely track a vehicle in the vicinity of the moon—nor about the exact amount of fuel needed to make the quarter-million-mile journey, land and return to earth.

The present flight schedule calls for three manned earth-orbit flights to fully qualify the Apollo hardware. They are slated for October, December and the first quarter of next year.

If there still is uncertainty at that point, NASA will schedule the manned lunar orbit journey.

'DIFFICULT MISSION'

Charles Mathews, NASA deputy associate administrator for manned space flight, said, "The lunar mission is a difficult one. It's a treacherous step to go from a few hundred miles above the earth to 250,000 miles and land on another celestial body."

One who strongly favors the lunar orbit trip at the present time is Christopher C. Kraft, director of flight operations at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston, Tex. He heads the team that plots the flight plan and which is responsible for controlling manned space flights.

New Bureau Head Faces Drug Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) A lawman who once walked a beat in California is quietly taking up the fight against narcotics abuse. He recognizes that he's grappling with one of the nation's most serious, developing problems.

"I've no magic wand," said 38-year-old John Edward Ingersoll, who this month was named director of the new Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. His remark was intended to indicate that progress against drug trafficking and abuse is going to be a tortuous, uphill struggle in the years ahead.

The nation's newest crime fighter, a contemplative, pipe-smoking criminologist who went from book learning at Berkeley to a police beat in Oakland, Calif., pondered his new $28,000-a-year job in an interview a week after Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark watched him sworn into office. Clark said that narcotics abuse would become one of the most serious threats to America's future if steps aren't taken to control it.

FIRST STEP
 President Johnson warned, recently, too, that a great mobilization is required to halt the illegal trade in narcotics and drugs.

A first step was to merge the Treasury Department's old established Bureau of Narcotics and the Welfare Department's neophyte Bureau of Drug Abuse Control into a single bureau under the Department of Justice. The next was to get someone to head the new bureau, Clark picked Ingersoll, a man he'd known less than a year but whose credentials obviously impressed him.

"Jack Ingersoll," Clark said, "will bring youth, vision, experience, leadership and toughness to the task."

In his new job, he will direct upwards of 800 narcotics agents in U.S. cities and in other countries.

UNDERCOVER WORLD
 Ingersoll is familiar with the never-never world of the undercover agent. He did counterintelligence work in the Army from 1951 to 1953, so secret he still can't talk publicly about it. And he worked with the vice squad in Oakland on local undercover assignments. He was one of the Oakland police department's first "college cops," going there from the University of California at Berkeley where he earned a BA degree in criminology.

Recognizing there are no pat answers to the problems posed by the rising illicit traffic in narcotics and dangerous drugs, Ingersoll doesn't volunteer any fancy theories, though he's sure about one thing—cut off the importation at the source and the problem is more than half solved.

The source, however, is mainly overseas, which is why the bureau maintains agents in such cities as Paris, Marseilles, Beirut, Bangkok and Hong Kong.

REJECT ALCOHOL
 Ingersoll appears to have a more philosophical view about the rising use of marijuana among the nation's young people.

"Kids have always looked for some kind of escape," he said, "maybe just seeing the adults sit there and drink down martinis until they're glassy-eyed has turned them from alcohol and on to something else."

But Ingersoll won't buy the theory that perhaps marijuana smoking poses less of a problem than alcohol.

"Why add another evil?" Ingersoll asked, "when we've got enough of them already."

Anti-Israel Campaign Sparks Jewish Exodus From Poland

WARSAW (AP) — There is a Jewish exodus these days from Poland.

It isn't big. There are only 25,000 or 30,000 Jews left in Poland.

Those leaving are doctors, lawyers, engineers, professors, and other professional people. From various estimates, about 800 may have left since June 1967.

They go disappointed, bitter, feeling there is no future for them here. And these survivors of Hitler's genocide, which nearly obliterated Poland's 3.5 million Jews, represent a loss to the state.

The exodus is the result of an anti-Israel campaign which began a year ago after the defeat of the Arab states and a more recent "anti-Zionist" campaign launched by the Communist regime after an outbreak of student demonstrations and rioting last March.

DOOR OPEN

In June 1967, Party Chief Wladyslaw Gomulka denounced Polish Jews and non-Jewish Poles who welcomed Israel's victory over the Arabs. He said the door was open to Jews wishing to go to Israel.

This year, after the March disturbances, the party launched a campaign of rallies and press diatribes heaping primary blame on Zionists for the trouble.

In a subsequent nationwide purge involving both Jews and non-Jews, considerable publicity was given to the dismissal of Jews. At rallies, slogans demanded that Zionists be purged from the party.

Jewish organizations, such as the internationally famous Jewish Theater, were asked to declare their attitude toward what party propaganda called a Zionist-hatched "anti-Polish campaign."

The active role of Jews in Stalinist Poland, especially the secret police, was emphasized and Jews were criticized for not supporting the party line of condemnation of Israel.

Party officials asserted that although they opposed Zionism, "we are definitely opposed to anti-Semitism."

But one top Communist said at a Central Committee meeting in July there had been "clear phenomena" of anti-Semitism. Others admitted the "anti-Zionist" fight had gone too far.

Some observers said Gomulka and other Communists closely associated to him tried to tone down the campaign, which was viewed as part of an inner-party power struggle.

"I'm Jewish, but I always felt there had been 'clear phenomena' of anti-Semitism," said one Communist educator. "Now I just don't know. Where do I belong?"

ZIONIST OR TRAITOR

Another Pole said: "If I stay I am called a Zionist. If I go to Israel, I am considered a traitor."

Another, who applied for travel documents to leave the country, said simply: "I've had enough."

In his case, he was called one day by his office superior and told his services were not needed any more. There were reports of other such cases.

One Jewish Communist journalist, a prominent figure, was beaten up in June and his assailants called him a "filthy Jewish dog."

The director of a scientific institute, which had had many Jews on its staff and lost a number of them, said his organization hadn't done any useful work since April.

Poles must sign an "application" to give up Polish citizenship in connection with their departure for good to another country.

Jews are allowed to emigrate to Israel. They apply for visas to the Dutch Embassy, which has been handling Israeli affairs here since Poland broke off relations in June 1967. The embassy refuses to reveal the number of visas being issued.

TRAVEL DOCUMENTS

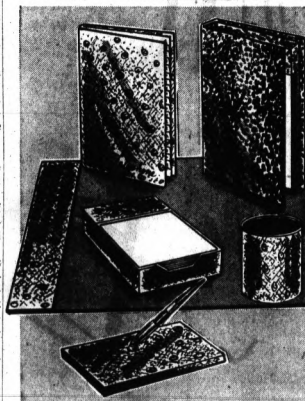

Jews then apply for travel documents from the Polish authorities. This takes about six weeks.

Leaving Poland, their first destination is normally Vienna. There a Jewish organization gives them assistance. From there some go to Israel, others to various Western destinations, some with promised jobs ahead, others with uncertain futures.

Library Rallies After 1966 Fire

Tomes Are Salvaged at Jewish Seminary

NEW YORK (AP) — Two years after fire destroyed 70,000 books in the Jewish Theological Seminary library—many of them ancient and irreplaceable—the work of restoring the books that are salvageable still goes on.

And, says the seminary's librarian, Dr. Menahem Schneier, "It all goes well we may be finished in 10 years."

In the fire 150,000 volumes were damaged, drenched by the firemen's hoses in the April 22, 1966, fire, the cause of which hasn't been determined.

The next morning, to stop any mildew damage, Schneier, students, faculty and volunteers from the community began placing paper towels between the pages of every volume to absorb the moisture.

QUICK-FREEZING

Some of the books were dried in microwave ovens, others were subjected to quick-freezing techniques.

Another hazard was the book-worm, whose microscopic spores had lain dormant in some of the books for centuries. The warmth and moisture started the worms boring into the pages, and they began boring into the pages.

But insecticide prevented further damage.

The cost of restoring the damaged books, Schneier says, "is at least $2 million." It is detailed and delicate work.

In a room off Schneier's office, the fingers of Hyman Ehrlich, the seminary's expert book binder, delicately turn the brittle pages of ancient and precious Judaic texts, gluing torn pages and creating new, protective coverings.

MISSING PAGES

In a huge prefabricated, air-conditioned building erected in the middle of the campus especially to restore the books, Rabbi Joseph Weiss, an expert in Judaica and Hebrew, identifies the remains of books, and seeks from libraries all over the world photographed copies of missing pages to complete the texts.

So far, gifts of 40,000 books have come from various sources to build up the collection, and the seminary has bought about 20,000 volumes. A new, fireproof library is planned.

Expert Turns Attention to Air Traffic

WASHINGTON (AP) — After almost a decade devoted largely to underwater research, Edwin A. Link is turning back to aeronautics, the field which made him famous and earned him a fortune.

As most pilots know, Link invented the trainer bearing his name in which thousands of budding airmen learned aircraft handling techniques by simulated flight on the ground. Now, at 84, he is seeking answers to one of aviation's biggest headaches, moving air traffic safely without delays.

"We don't have to invent anything," Link said in an interview.

"I believe the problem can be solved."

"The air traffic situation is critical," Link said.

ALREADY CONGESTED

"Now they are talking about adding 2,000 more controllers to an already congested system."

"What we must do is put the navigation back in the aircraft, and rely less on the controller on the ground. We have to simplify the system, establish one that is more straightforward."

To help think it through, Link is urging that each major airline, on its own, and each association of pilots and owners and manufacturers, appoint an executive to concentrate on the air traffic control dilemma. Then, he said, these experts—representing the very best talent available—should sit down periodically for mutual discussions.

Link said Eastern Air Lines has done this already by assigning famed test pilot Scott Crossfield to concentrate on the air

Press Curbed Less Than TV in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Gen. Juan Carlos Onganía's military government is enforcing a policy that depletes to broadcasters the freedom enjoyed by Argentine newspapers and magazines.

So far, none of the owners of the nation's 40 privately owned radio and TV stations have objected publicly to the policy. Most are awaiting government action on their franchise renewal applications. Station licenses are renewed once each decade in Argentina.

The government policy was defined at a news conference called by the minister of the interior, Guillermo Borda, to answer charges that the government has forced radio and television to suppress unfavorable news.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Borda acknowledged that the stations had been told to play down antigovernment demonstrations by students, politicians and labor unions in June and July. He explained:

"The principle of liberty of expression holds for radio and television, but the particular nature and dramatic impact of this medium of communications has led us to the conclusion that this liberty cannot be of the same magnitude because we must prevent disruption of social order."

This view was stated in an interview with Carlos Ibarra, a retired Navy captain who now heads CONART, the federal communications commission.

For weeks, there were unconfirmed reports that CONART was quietly and unofficially pressuring stations to make their programs favorable to the Onganía regime.

Then, in early June, CONART forbade radio and TV news reports of demonstrations in the country. The fear that student riots in France, the United States and Brazil would spread to Argentina. Although the order referred to local disorders, most stations gave only the briefest information on rioting abroad—until another order was sent out in July, lifting the ban entirely.

PLAY IN PRESS

Newspapers and magazines devoted columns to demonstrations in every major Argentine city on June 29—the second anniversary of the military coup which brought Onganía to power—while radio and TV said nothing.

Borda called the news conference and defined policy after Alberto R. Constantini resigned as manager of a major TV station. Constantini said he resigned because the government had forced the channel to censor news stories and fire an anti-government news commentator.

A major factor was CONART's decision to change the schedule of a half-hour weekly government panel show which every TV station is required to show.

The program had been shown from 11:30 p.m. until midnight. CONART changed the starting time to 10:30 p.m., despite the criticism of Constantini and others that the government was usurping prime TV time.

A stop and frisk ordinance will be presented to Sylvan Lake City Council for consideration at tonight's 8:30 meeting. The proposed ordinance will be similar to the one passed in Detroit, where a policeman can stop and frisk a person upon reasonable suspicion.

Allies Find, Destroy VC Weapon Caches

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces, trying to spoil the third Vietcong offensive of the year before it can get started uncovered huge weapons caches along infiltration corridors north of Saigon and leading from the Cambodian and Laotian borders, military spokesmen reported today.

Little other activity was reported in the Vietnam war, the U.S. Command said. Tropical storm Rose cut U.S. air missions over North Vietnam's southern panhandle to 31 Tuesday, the lowest number in more than two years.

In the most significant find, allied forces checking a group of villages reportedly housing as many as 25,000 Vietcong sympathizers 25 miles north of Saigon turned up more than 500 rounds of rockets and recoilless rifle ammunition. Tuesday, 72,000 rounds for automatic weapons and five pounds of dynamite.

Ten Vietnamese trying to escape were killed in a 15-minute fire fight, and 17 prisoners were flushed from the tunnels in the action Tuesday. No allied casualties were reported.

TUNNEL RATS

Using "seal and search" tactics, units of the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment put a cordon around the village of Cau Dat with armored personnel carriers and tanks. South Vietnamese and American "tunnel rats"—infantrymen who dig through tunnels—moved in to search the village.

Cau Dat is less than 10 miles north of a big U.S. Army helicopter base and the headquarters of the South Vietnamese 5th Infantry Division.

It was the second productive "seal and search" operation in the cluster of villages north of Saigon in the last five days.

Four miles to the northeast of Cau Dat, allied forces raided the village of Chanh Lau last Friday after sealing it off in a similar manner. That time the allies killed 18 Vietcong troops and seized 114 prisoners and more than three tons of food. The prisoners included two North Vietnamese soldiers and were from at least a half dozen Vietcong regiments, some of which took part in the offensives against Saigon in February and again in May.

25 KILLED

South Vietnamese rangers sweeping enemy infiltration routes leading from Cambodia into the Mekong Delta 73 miles west-southwest of Saigon turned up two weapons caches and killed 25 enemy soldiers in scattered fighting today and Tuesday, government headquarters said. The find included 92 AK-47 assault rifles, the enemy's standard infantry weapon in South Vietnam; five mortars and assorted mortar equipment; 64 mortar rounds and rockets; a rocket launcher; 60 hand grenades and 80 pounds of TNT.

The rangers said they suffered no casualties. They were sent in to search the area after American B-52 bombers dropped nearly 200 tons of bombs on the area. U.S. headquarters reported that the strikes triggered 29 secondary explosions, indicating a large-scale destruction of ammunition stores.

Still another cache was uncovered far to the north in the A Shau Valley, bordering Laos, the key infiltration corridor for supplies and troops moving from North Vietnam into South Vietnam's Northern Provinces.

Government troops clashed with a North Vietnamese force guarding the cache and killed 10 of the enemy while suffering one dead and two wounded, a U.S. spokesman said. A spokesman said the cache included an anti-aircraft machine gun; nine Russian rifles; 225 mortar and rocket rounds; 325 rounds of anti-aircraft ammunition and a large quantity of medical supplies.

U.S. officials say that allied forces in recent months have captured equipment for more than 40 enemy battalions.

Tunnel Driver Pact Talk Is Set

DETROIT (AP)—Officials of the Detroit-Canada Tunnel scheduled a meeting with union representatives and a U.S. federal mediator today in an effort to end a strike that has shut down tunnel bus service.

Bus drivers of Local 1303, Amalgamated Transit Union, refused to work Saturday after an offered 72-cent hourly wage increase over three years.

Canadian bus drivers are not members of the striking local, and are bargaining separately. But United Auto Workers Local 1303, representing Canadian employees of the company, has refused to allow its members to cross the boundary line in mid-tunnel.

Supervisory personnel have kept the tunnel open to all but bus traffic.

Hospital Units Tied to Suicide by Australian

By Science Service

The intensive-care units which the more modern hospitals have all instituted in recent years have been implicated in the suicides of some heart patients, according to an Australian physician.

Emotional disturbance is a frequent companion to heart surgery, and it may be aggravated by intensive care units where lights blaze 24 hours a day and electrical units record about the patient's heartbeat, claims Dr. J. B. Hickie, professor at Sidney University and St. Vincent's Hospital, Sydney, Australia.

When you are there for a couple of days and hear the machine occasionally miss a beat," says Dr. Hickie. Of the 30 per cent of male patients who react to heart surgery with psychiatric difficulty, six per cent commit suicide, according to Dr. Hickie's information.

GTW Drive to Make Commuter Runs Pay Is Showing Results

DETROIT (AP) — A Canadian National Railroad, an railroad is trying for success in a field where most American railroads are losing money. And it's trying in the home of its greatest competitor — the automobile.

Success hasn't come yet to the Grand Trunk Western Railroad, but the line has parlayed a $20,000 advertising campaign into a 42 per cent increase in passengers in the past year.

Sporting buttons reading "We Like Passengers," the Grand Trunk, a wholly owned subsidiary of the government-owned Canadian National Railroad, has, since mid-1967, been conducting an advertising and public relations campaign to lure passengers aboard its trains.

The route takes the train through a flock of Detroit suburbs including Birmingham, home of many wealthy auto executives.

SERVING PONTIAC

In addition to two daily trains between Detroit and Chicago, the Grand Trunk operates three runs daily each way between downtown Detroit and Pontiac, 26 miles northwest.

The service has been in operation since 1931, when the now-crowded suburbs along the line were well out in the hinterland. It hit a peak of 1.6 million passengers in 1954. But the coming of freeways to the Motor City sped auto traffic through the jammed Woodward Avenue corridor through which the trains pass and passenger traffic began to fall off.

In the first quarter of 1967, the six daily commuter trains were averaging a total of 2,069 passengers a day. For the first quarter of this year, the daily passenger load was up over 42 per cent to 2,976, the railroad said.

The radio and newspaper ad campaign for the commuter service, handled by McLaren Advertising Co. Ltd. of Montreal, aimed heavily at the frustrations of drivers trying to pick their way through congested city traffic.

AD CITED

One newspaper ad showed a picture of a car with a parking ticket clamped to the windshield. "We've never heard of parking violations," the text reads. Another showed a snowbound car and read, "We don't know any snow tires. Grand Trunk makes its own tracks... in any weather."

Despite the successful ad campaign, the service is still a long way from paying for itself, said John W. Demco, Grand Trunk vice president for passenger service.

Demco said that with the increased passenger load, the commuter service can now pay its out-of-pocket expenses, such as crew wages, fuel and other day-to-day costs.

But revenues, he added, are insufficient to cover such major outlays as major repairs or to provide capital for acquisition of new rolling stock.

LEVELING OFF

Demco said the recent increase in passengers now seems to be leveling off and, unless there is a major change in the attitudes of Detroit-area commuters toward trains, the service will never be a paying operation. More modern cars, he said, would likely prove an added incentive to passengers, but would probably not bring in enough new passengers to pay for the added cost.

Like many railroad executives, Demco said he believes subsidies are the cure to railroad ills. He cited the success of a government subsidy to Toronto commuter lines and said, "If the community wants better rail service, there will have to be found a way to pay for it."

He said, however, the Grand Trunk has never formally sought any government aid.

Unlike many railroads, the Grand Trunk has tried on its own to improve service and attract new passengers while waiting for subsidies which may or may not come some time in the future.

SHOPPERS SPECIALS

During the Christmas season last winter, the railroad added "Shoppers Specials," designed to get women downtown by 11 a.m. and home by lunchtime or midafternoon. The service, however, was discontinued when traffic fell off in spring, but the railroad hopes to reinstate it this winter.

In addition to the ad campaign, a public relations drive was staged recently to familiarize residents in areas along the line with the service available. A series of "train-ins" was held in some of the 10 suburban commuter stations between Detroit and Pontiac.

The public was invited aboard the Mohawk, the Grand Trunk's Detroit-Chicago express and served free coffee and pastry in the dining car. They were also treated to the rare sight of a railroad executive's private car, located on the eastern fringe of Detroit.

Demco's erratic wood-paneled coach complete with parlor, pantry, two bedrooms and full bath.

Scattered throughout the train was an abundance of literature, including Grand Trunk commuter and long-haul passenger services.

KEEP TRYING

Despite the inherent disadvantages of running a commuter railroad in the automobile capital of the world, the Grand Trunk Western intends to keep trying to lure commuters out of their cars and onto the train.

The Grand Trunk's parent company, the Canadian National, formed in 1963 in a consolidation of a number of Canadian rail lines. As a Crown Corporation, it is like the Canadian Broadcasting Company, run by an independent board of directors, but wholly owned by the Canadian government.

The Canadian National also owns two other U.S. subsidiaries, the Central Vermont and New England Railroad and the Deloit, Winnipeg and Pacific Railroad.

Central Highlands Experiment

U.S., S. Viets Unite Command

DALAT, Vietnam (AP) — In four provinces of the central highlands, American and Vietnamese Special Forces are quietly working toward what could become the first major unified command of the Vietnam war.

Instead of acting as advisers to Vietnamese units or mounting all-American operations, the Americans have set up a joint headquarters with the Vietnamese to conduct combined operations in the provinces of Tuyen Duc, Ninh Thuan, Binh Thuan and Lam Dong.

Called Task Force South, the joint command is housed in a rundown villa in the heart of the mountain resort city of Dalat.

Running the show together from adjoining desks are two adjutant generals: Col. John A. Cleland of Alexandria, Va., and Col. Canh Van, a veteran Vietnamese officer who fought the French, the Japanese and the Vietcong over the past 24 years.

TROOPS AVAILABLE

The task force has available units from the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade, the 101st Air Cavalry Division, the U.S. 4th Infantry Division, the 23rd Division of South Vietnam and some elements of Vietnamese rangers and paratroopers, in addition to Special Forces regional forces and local forces in the area.

The brainchild of Gen. Creighton Abrams, the new American commander in Vietnam, Task Force South is believed by many American officers to portend the tactical turn of things to come in Vietnam.

"This is just a microcosm," said a senior American commander. "If the joint command works out here, it will be used elsewhere on an even larger scale. For all intents and purposes, it will mean the end of the old advisory effort."

In the little over a month that it has been in existence, Task Force South has conducted four multinational operations in the southern provinces of the highlands. Officers from both the American and Vietnamese staffs report a minimum of friction and a maximum of cooperation.

PRIME AREA

The Dalat area was chosen for the experiment, according to one senior commander, because it has no large command units and because three of the four provinces chiefs were newly appointed and therefore more amenable to cooperating with a combined command.

"This is still a very hot political potato," said a high-ranking American officer. "The Vietnamese are very sensitive about surrendering any control to the Americans. The idea of a unified command was tried briefly in 1962 and then dropped. It also poses some political problem back home, where a combined command might be misunderstood as Americans taking over the war completely. That is why we are going about it quietly here."

One unexpected dividend has been an increased flow of intelligence at village and hamlet level.

"People seem to have more confidence in the future, at least where Vietcong activities are concerned, when they see the Americans and the ARVN working together," explained one intelligence officer.

NIGHT OPERATIONS

Task Force South has concentrated on encouraging regional and local force units to conduct more night operations.

"They're making progress," said a Vietnamese staff commander. "Three nights last week ambushes were sprung on infiltrators moving through the area. The ARVN rangers and paratroopers are working with the local units, training them in night tactics."

This Hospital in Africa Has Its Hands Full

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP)—Some expectant mothers have to await delivery of their babies on the floor of wards at Dar es Salaam's Ocean Road Maternity Hospital. More than 1,500 babies are born there each month.

The hospital, built by the Germans 60 years ago, takes only maternity cases, but even the addition of 43 beds recently cannot cope with the demand.

More and more African women are seeking hospital facilities for delivery, knowing that in a country with a high infant mortality rate, their babies will have a better chance of living after delivery in aseptic conditions.

But still African peasant women do not like to linger in the hospital. Most of them come in at the last possible moment, and are prepared to go home the same day after delivery.

"What they need is a bed to rest in for a few hours, then they go," a hospital spokesman said. "We don't like it very much, but when there are too few beds how can we keep them?"

Vegetable Oil Is a 'Must' in Well-Stocked Kitchen

One of the most handy kitchen aides that saves time and energy in food preparation is vegetable oil. Originating from seeds, fruits or beans of corn, cottonseed, olives, peanuts, soybeans or safflower, the oils are extracted either under heavy pressure or in an organic solvent.

In the final processing stages, most vegetable oils are deodorized so that the taste is bland.

Measure for measure vegetable oil can be used interchangeably for shortening in muffins, waffles and cornbread. With the exception of olive oil, vegetable oils are particularly good for deep-fat frying. They have high-smoking points which means the temperatures can be higher than those used with animal fats before oil is absorbed and foods begin to smoke and burn.

The Consumer and Marketing Service suggests the following quick tricks with plentiful vegetable oil:

- Brush gelatin and candy molds lightly with oil so that food slips out of mold easily.
- When cooking rice or macaroni products, add one tablespoon of oil to one quart water. Foods won't boil over and kernels will remain separated.
- For extra moisture and lightness in a cake mix, add one tablespoon oil for each 3-inch layer along with liquid ingredients.

Before using a new-waffle iron or treated pots and pans.

Serve Bread While Warm

Cut this onion bread in squares and serve it while still warm from the oven. It is especially good with green salads and cold cuts.

ONION FLAT BREAD
1 package (13½ oz.) hot roll mix
½ cup instant minced onion
1 tablespoon softened butter or margarine
Prepare dough following package directions. Let dough rise until double in size. Meanwhile, soften minced onion in 1-3 cup water; let stand at least 10 minutes.

After first rising of dough, roll on a lightly floured board into a 9x13-inch rectangle. Place dough on a greased cookie sheet. Spread top with butter and sprinkle with softened onion. Let rise again until double in size.

Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) 30 to 35 minutes. Yield: 1 bread.

CHOCOLATE MOSAIC PIE — Mix thoroughly one and one-third cups chocolate cookie crumbs (24 cookies) with 2 tablespoons sugar and ¼ cup melted butter or margarine. Press firmly into 9-inch pie pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 8 minutes; cool. Meanwhile, in a saucepan, combine one envelope unflavored gelatin over ¼ cup water; stir over low heat until dissolved. Gradually blend gelatin into one can milk chocolate pudding and ¼ cup chopped pecans. Beat 3 egg whites until soft peaks form; fold into pudding mixture. Pour into pie crust. Chill 3 hours. Arrange 1½ cups miniature marshmallows on top of pie. Broil 4 inches from heat until marshmallows are golden brown.

'Press' Food Editor Out West

California: Spot of Intrigue

By JANET ODELL

Food Editor, The Pontiac Press
LOS ANGELES, Calif. — This year, the vacation theme song has been, "California, here we come." Now we have crossed the country from one ocean to the other; but there are still so many places we haven't seen.

So far, the biggest attraction on this trip has been spending a day with a year-old-grandson we're seeing for the first time. He helped make his first birthday cake last week.

Baby care has not changed a great deal in the past 20 years. But Andrew eats with relish one surprising food — yogurt. He can put away an eight-ounce container of fruit-flavored yogurt at one sitting. Of course, he's a delightful baby! Why should I be different from any other grandmother in my thinking?

SAGEBRUSH
Before arriving here, I made an overnight stop at Grand Canyon. On one of the tours I took, the guide pointed out sagebrush, remarking that it was the same sage we use in poultry dressing.

To me, it looked like a much larger bush and not exactly the same. But the cooks in the park restaurant do use it for seasoning.

Another thing I learned is that the sage hen is a wild turkey. No doubt, a lot of readers already know that.

We paid a visit to the famed Farmers Market here. Despite the crowds, we were able to walk around the stalls after lunch.

Oh, that fruit... not only is all kind sold as we buy it, but some stalls sell the most beautiful plates of fruit salad you ever saw. Seafood salads are sold the same way.

In many stores here, all fruit is sold by the pound, fruit we are accustomed to buy by the dozen. Berries are the exception. Californians eat blueberries grown in Washington.

The daughter gave us Mexican food for our first dinner here. Since then, we have had Chinese food, Polynesian food and lots of good American food.

At the Polynesian restaurant I had french fried zucchini squash. The squash, cut in finger-size strips, was dipped in a batter before being fried. It was crunchy and good.

At Disneyland, we had lunch in a New Orleans cafe and a high calorie mid-afternoon snack at the Carnation old-fashioned ice cream parlor. It was good and I'll go on a diet some other day.

Thinking about my job leads to a tour of the Lawry Foodier.

Center here. As you know, Lawry's makes all sorts of seasonings, dry mixes for Italian and Mexican food, garlic spread and delicious salad dressings. Groups are invited to tour the plant, then stay for a luncheon which naturally features a different product daily. We had beef goulash, noodles, mixed vegetables, tossed salad and cookies. There is a colorful charming gift shop if the lobby where the daughter and I found lots of interesting items. The business offices and test kitchens are built around a center courtyard in the style of old Spain. The entire place is colorful and pleasing to see.

What we've seen of California so far we like. From here, we go to San Francisco and then as far north as we can get before we have to turn eastward toward home. Hopefully, other bits of food news will be gathered to a tour of the Lawry Foodier.

Canned and Frozen Foods Are Start of Casserole

Take canned condensed soups, canned sliced mushrooms, potato chips and package frozen corn with sweet peppers in a cooking pouch. Presto, you are halfway through with this recipe.

The trend toward using prepared ingredients in family dishes is growing fast. Make the most of it. Saves you time and kitchen work and produces excellent family dishes.

Corn Tupper Casserole

1 pound cubed veal steak
Vegetable shortening
2 (24-oz. each) jars sliced mushrooms, drained
1 small onion, chopped
1 10-oz. package whole kernel corn with peppers in flavor-tight cooking pouch
1 10-oz. package noodles
1 10-oz. can condensed chicken with rice soup
1 10-oz. can condensed cream of mushroom soup

Here are some suggestions for use of Teflon-coated cookware from The West Bend Company, leading manufacturer of cookware, bakeware and small appliances:

• Use of fats in cooking is a matter of choice. When frying, however, the use of a small amount of butter, fat or oil can improve the flavor, color and crispness of foods.

• Smooth-edge metal spoons and spatulas may be used on Teflon-coated metal pans. Do not use sharp-edged kitchen tools and do not beat, mix or mash foods vigorously in the cookware.

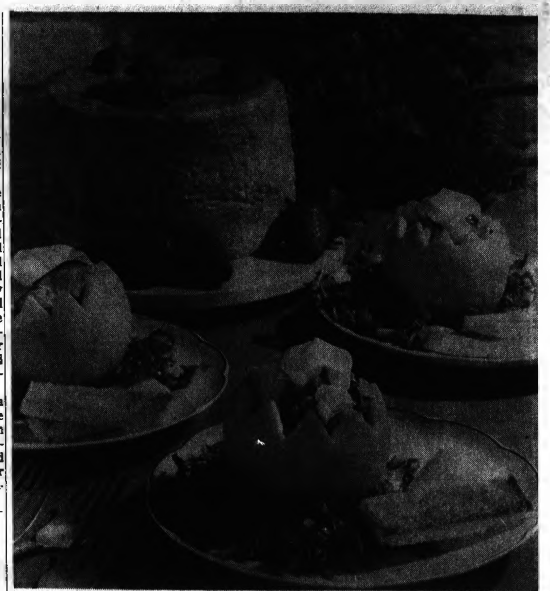

Do not use metal knives, rotary beaters or knives on any Teflon-coated item.

• Minor scratching will affect only the appearance of the Teflon surface. It will not harm its non-stick quality.

• For oven use, utensils may be placed in temperatures up to 450 degrees, for any length of time. Do not place Teflon-coated cookware under a broiler.

• "Condition" Teflon coating to insure non-stick cooking. Lightly wipe a teaspoonful of vegetable oil with paper towel over the entire surface.

• After each washing in an automatic dishwasher, Teflon should be reconditioned with cooking oil.

CHICKEN ORANGE CUPS — Halve 2 oranges by making zig-zag cuts to center. Separate halves and carefully remove orange sections from shells; combine with 2 cans (5 oz. each) boned chicken with broth, cut up, and one cup thin cucumber slices cut in half. Fill orange shells. Combine ¼ cup sour cream with ¼ teaspoon dill; spoon on chicken. Makes 4 servings.

Milk Drink Quick, Fizzy

"The least said, soonest mended," says an old proverb. But that's not true about the state of nutrition in our nation.

It should be shouted from the housetops that we have had a 20 per cent decline in households having good diets, according to a survey conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

One of the chief reasons for the slip in good nutrition is that less milk and milk products are being used.

That's an easy omission to correct: these warm days. Treat your family to refreshing, nourishing milk drinks.

A Chocolate Berry Bounce is as much fun as a front seat at a soda fountain. Make it with milk that is flavored chocolate in an instant with that handy powdered mix.

No beating necessary: quick chocolate-flavored mix dissolves the moment you stir it into milk.

CHOCOLATE BERRY BOUNCE
¾ cup quick chocolate-flavored mix
2 cups milk
1 pint strawberry ice cream
1 bottle (12 ounces) chilled carbonated water
Stir quick chocolate-flavored mix into milk. Pour into 4 12-ounce glasses. Add a scoop of ice cream to each glass and fill with carbonated water. Yield: 4 servings.

Soused Sardines Add Zip to Salad

Give zip to sardines.

Soused Sardines
Juice (about 1½ tablespoons) of ¼ lemon
¼ cup dry white wine (chablis)
¼ teaspoon dried crumbled thyme
¼ small onion, thinly sliced and separated into rings
1 can (3½ ounces) bristling sardines
Minced parsley, if on hand
In a small, wide, shallow dish, stir together the lemon juice, wine and thyme. Arrange the onion at each side of dish.

With a small spatula, carefully lift sardines from oil and place in center of dish; spoon marinade over them. Cover with transparent plastic wrap and refrigerate for 2 or 3 hours, turning marinade over sardines a few times. If parsley is on hand, sprinkle it copiously over sardines before serving.

Makes 4 servings. Nice served with Egg, Pimiento and Romaine Salad.

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

Like father, like son is a pretty common expression, but how about like mother, like daughter.

At Birmingham Country Club this week, Mrs. Harton Semple of Sewickley, Pa., and 19-year-old daughter Carol, started out together as entries in the U.S. Women's Amateur Championship for the third straight year.

When match play starts today in the tournament, Mrs. Semple will be on the sidelines giving Carol moral support, since she failed to make the 36 hole qualifying cut in her 14th appearance in this national tourney.

It almost looked as if the Semples would be on their way back to Western Pennsylvania, but Carol just made the 36 hole qualifying cut with a 35 foot birdie putt on the first playoff hole against four others tied at 157.

TOURNEY DEBUT

Mrs. Semple first entered the U.S. Amateur when it was played in 1954 at Sewickley Heights CC, and when it came back to the club in 1966, Carol made her debut in major tournament golf.

Now that Carol has qualified for match play, Mrs. Semple is undecided about staying or leaving.

"I might stay for one day, and even if she should win, I guess I should leave," said Mrs. Semple. "our only son, Harton Jr., will be leaving for Vietnam in a few days."

"Besides," added Mrs. Semple, "Carol will probably do much better without my watching."

Carol seems to do better when her partner or her opponent is her mother.

Last year in the Western Penn Women's Amateur the final turned out to be the Semple's mother-daughter match and Carol won it.

"I guess that was a big thrill for me," said Carol, "but I think that if she really wanted to, Mom could beat me anytime she wants."

Mrs. Semple didn't agree with this. "My days of beating her at golf are over, she's too strong for me."

HAS ACE TOO

Winning the championship against her mother wasn't the only thing that happened that particular day, recalls Carol.

"When the match was over early in the day, we decided to go another 18 and I shot my first hole in one," she remembered.

There are three other daughters in the Semple family, all of whom play some golf but not to the extent of mother and Carol.

Mrs. Semple and husband are both associated with the USGA. Harton Semple is the legal counsel to the USGA and Mrs. Semple is on the tourney committee.

Questioned about their own golf games, Mrs. Semple avoided talking about herself by referring to Carol. The daughter likewise said more to expound Mrs. Semple's golfing prowess than talk about herself.

ENJOY COURSE

They both were in agreement about one thing, that Birmingham Country Club was one of the finest courses they have played.

Receive Split End

Lions Trade Karl Sweetan

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Lions of the National Football League said Tuesday that quarterback Karl Sweetan, 25, had been traded to the New Orleans Saints for split end Walter "Flea" Roberts, 26, and an unspecified draft choice.

Roberts, a former San Jose State player, joined the Saints in the expansion draft after playing three seasons with the Cleveland Browns from 1964 through 1966. As a receiver and kick return specialist he ranked sixth last year in the league in kickoff returns.

RANKED 11th

Sweetan caught on with the Lions in the 1966 season by substituting for quarterback Milt Plum. In his subsequent two years with the Lions he averaged 47.5 per cent passes completed—231 of 486 attempted for 2,710 yards and 14 touchdowns. He was 11th among NFL passers in 1966, 19th last year.

With three other quarterbacks on the Lions roster, Sweetan reportedly had asked to be traded.

During the 1966 season Sweetan was involved in an altercation at a bowling alley and was divorced after that season. He was involved in a second incident at a tavern before the start of the 1967 season.

In asking to be traded, Sweetan was reported to say: "The quarterback situation here is obvious. I know I've caused many embarrassing problems for the Lions and I'm truly sorry."

French Swinger Eying U.S. Women's Crown

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

"Catherine the Great." That's what golf fans the world over will be calling 23-year-old Catherine Lacoste of Saint Jean-De-Luz, France, if she keeps picking up golf titles as if they were going out of style.

Miss Lacoste, who says she is no more of a Parisian than local people are New Yorkers, moved into match play today in the 68th U.S. Women's Amateur Golf Championship, a strong favorite to win her second major U.S. title in less than two weeks.

After firing a one-under 71 in her opening round of qualifying Monday, Miss Lacoste added a 72 yesterday and took medal honors with her 143.

This was four strokes ahead of Miss Joyce Kazmierski of Grosse Ile Country Club, who could be Catherine's closest challenger for the National Amateur title, which will be decided Saturday at Birmingham Country Club.

Thirty six holes of match play are slated today, with single rounds Thursday and Friday and a 36-hole finale on Saturday.

WESTERN CROWN

Less than two weeks ago, Miss Lacoste added the Western Amateur crown to her trophy case.

"If I should be fortunate to win this title," she said, "this would mean a sweep of the major titles for French women golfers."

She pointed out that Claudine Rubin won the French Open title, Brigitte Varangot took the British crown and the U.S. Amateur title would be a big feather in the cap of the French International Women's golf team which will compete in the World Matches in October in Australia.

Pointing out that she is always referred to as being from Paris she said, "I live 500 miles from Paris. Everyone thinks that the only place in France is Paris."

Right now the only place on Miss Lacoste's mind is the 8,170 yard layout in Birmingham where she started her match play this morning against Miss Margaret Jones, the 1968 Kentucky State champion who made the qualifying cut with an 80-75-155.

Thirty six holes of golf in one day is much to Catherine's liking.

"Most of our tournaments in France and Britain are 36 holes daily. They don't last as many as days as here in the U.S."

Cleveland Gains Revenge, 1-0

Indians' Sonny Siebert Scatters Three Safeties by Detroiters

CLEVELAND (AP) — It was an unusual night for the Detroit Tigers in Cleveland Tuesday—the Indians beat the Tigers for the first time in six games and Denny McLain was seen in the bullpen.

McLain's appearance in the bullpen wasn't a scare tactic against the Indians who stopped the Tigers 1-0 on Sunny Siebert's three-hitter and Larry Brown's bases-loaded single in the second inning.

When the Indians scored their only run, McLain bolted from the Tiger dugout to the bullpen and some of the baseball writers began to wonder if the pressure of the pennant chase was getting to Manager Mayo Smith.

"Naw, it was nothing," said McLain. "I just wanted to tell Jon Warden something. I can't even lift my arm tonight."

WALTER (FLEA) ROBERTS

STREAK SNAPPED

The defeat ended Detroit's four-game winning streak and cut their American League lead to six games over Baltimore as the second-place Orioles got by Oakland 6-5.

Tonight's game will be the final meeting of the season between Cleveland and Detroit with Mickey Lolich pitching for the Tigers against ace Luis Tiant 18-7.

Pat Dobson 3-5 pitched the first seven innings for Detroit allowing only four hits, three of them coming in the second inning and he was tagged with the defeat.

Tony Horton opened the inning with an infield single and took third on a double by Duke Sims. One out later, Max Alvis drew an intentional walk to fill the bases before Brown punched his run-scoring single to center field.

"We pitched well . . . but it's not only how well you pitch but when," said McLain referring to the six runs the Tigers gave him the night before when he picked up his 24th victory of the season against three defeats.

STUFF ON BALL

Conceding that Siebert had great stuff on the ball, McLain was told that one of the Cleveland writers had remarked that Siebert had the best stuff in the league.

"Tonight maybe he did," said McLain. "But I saw him pitch against us in Detroit last and he didn't impress too many of our batters." Last Thursday night in Detroit the Tigers battered Siebert 13-1.

"I just made up my mind that I was going to pitch like my old self," said Siebert who boosted his season record to 12-9.

Mickey Stanley, the second Tiger to face Siebert, tripped in the first inning, but Siebert didn't give up another hit until Norm Cash singled in the seventh. Al Kaline hit a pinch single in the eighth and made it to third with two men out. But he died there when Stanley flied out.

Siebert faced three big Detroit guns in the ninth — Jim Northrup, Cash and Willie Horton. Northrup hit a shot to center, but Jose Cardenal brought it down near the 365-foot marker. Russ Snyder picked off Cash's lazy looper behind shortstop, and Horton grounded to Alvis, who threw him out to end the game.

PETER GREEN

Green Passes Qualifying Test

PORT HURON — With a couple of state titles in hand this season, Peter Green of Orchard Lake Country Club now has his sights set on the U.S.G.A. National Amateur which is slated for Aug. 28-31 at Scioto Country Club in Columbus, Ohio.

Green, 27, warmed up for the national event yesterday as he turned in a record effort in pacing a qualifying field at Black River Country Club in Port Huron.

RECORD ROUND

After an opening 73, Green blazed around the club with a course-record 65 to finish with a 36-hole total of 138.

Earlier this season, Green won the Michigan Medal Play championship and followed that with a victory in the Horton Smith Memorial.

Running second to the sharp-shooting Green was Chuck Kocsis of Red Run who carded a 142.

SIX QUALIFY

In all, six players from the field of 93 qualified for the national event.

Third in the firing was Christian Kling of Cedarhurst, N.Y., with a 144.

John French, of Bloomfield Hills and Joe Grace of Detroit shared the fourth spot with 145, while Ted Talbot of Sarnia, Ont., fired a 146 and beat out four other players in a sudden-death playoff for the sixth spot.

LOW SCORER

Lowest among the qualifiers around the country yesterday was another Green — this one Hubert — who turned in a 67-66 to lead the qualifiers at Standard Club course in Atlanta. Green is from Birmingham, Ala.

Vinny Giles, 25, runner-up last year to Bob Dickson, who has since turned pro, was among the qualifiers yesterday as he posted a three-over-par 145 over the Golden Horseshoe course at Williamsburg, Va. Giles was the low amateur in the Masters at Augusta last April.

Reds' Pinson Ailing

CINCINNATI (AP) — Vada Pinson, veteran Cincinnati Reds center fielder, was admitted to Christ Hospital for observation Tuesday.

He has not been feeling well since he suffered a groin injury early last month. The club physician ordered him to the hospital.

New Baseball Club Luring NBA Official

MONTREAL (AP)—Wes Pavalon, chairman of the board of Milwaukee Bucks of the National Basketball Association, was in Montreal Tuesday to discuss the possibility of investing in Montreal's National League baseball team.

Pavalon, who has been in Montreal since Sunday, was quoted as saying that if the franchise is to remain in Montreal then he would definitely consider investing in it.

Montreal was awarded a National League franchise May 27, along with San Diego, and the club's first payment — $1,120,000 — is due Thursday.

Gridiron Coach Dies

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — Lee McLaughlin, 50, head football coach at Washington and Lee University since 1957, died Tuesday at his summer boys camp, Camp Maxwellton, near Lexington, Va.

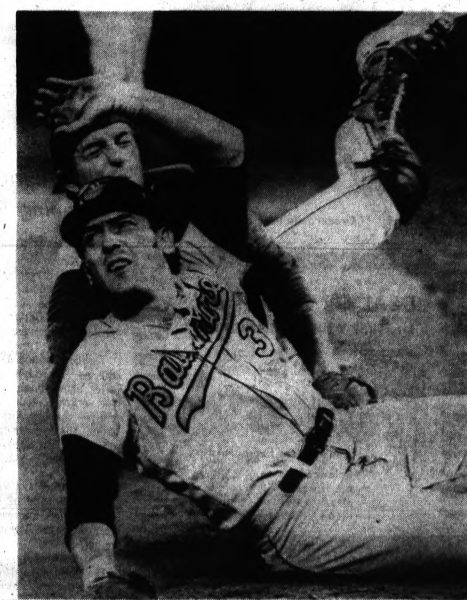

McLaughlin's appointment as W&L athletic director and head of physical education was to have become effective Sept. 1.

UNANSWERED

But a number of questions remain unanswered:

What about the new, two-year contract signed recently by the PGA with the American Broadcasting Company, giving ABC the right to televise virtually every big tournament except the Masters.

CHECKING WITH UMP — Baltimore left fielder Curt Blefary (3) looks to the umpire for a decision at the plate on this play in the fourth inning of a game in Oakland, Calif., last night. Blefary got the nod from the official and scored the fourth Orioles run. Late with the tag is Oakland catcher Jim Pagliaroni. Baltimore won, 6-5.

Orioles Edge Past Oakland To Gain Game

Petrocelli Produces for Boston; Yankees, Twins Victorious

OAKLAND (AP) — Don Buford drilled a tie-breaking two-run single in the fourth inning and homered in the ninth as the Baltimore Orioles trimmed Oakland 5-3 Tuesday night.

Buford's 10th homer gave the Orioles a 4-4 lead, but the A's closed the gap in the bottom of the ninth before rookie John Morris and veteran Eddie Watt, the fifth and sixth Baltimore pitchers, worked out of the jam.

The victory, seventh for the Orioles in their last eight games, brought them within six lengths of Detroit's American League leaders, who bowed to Cleveland 1-0.

BOSTON (AP) — Rico Petrocelli's third run batted in of the game snapped an eighth-inning tie and gave the Boston Red Sox a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night.

Ken Harrelson opened the Red Sox eighth with a triple and with one out, Joe Foy was intentionally walked. Petrocelli followed with a sacrifice fly, delivering Harrelson.

CHICAGO (AP) — Andrew Scheffers' home run in the eighth inning gave the Boston Red Sox a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night.

Ken Harrelson opened the Red Sox eighth with a triple and with one out, Joe Foy was intentionally walked. Petrocelli followed with a sacrifice fly, delivering Harrelson.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Yankees scored three first inning runs and the Yankees won on a 3-2 victory over California Tuesday night.

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (AP) — Tony Oliva lashed three singles Tuesday night, driving in three runs and leading Minnesota to an 8-4 victory over Washington.

Oliva, who raised his average to .286 in his pursuit of teammate Rod Carew in the American League batting race, paced a 10-hit pitcher's attack in support of rookie pitcher Tom Hall, who recorded his first major league victory with late-inning relief help.

Mays' Three-Run Blast Puts Spotlight on No. 21

By The Associated Press

Twenty-one is the magic number for Willie Mays and Juan Marichal. Mays needs them and Marichal has them.

Marichal won his 21st game of the season Tuesday night, and San Francisco blanked Pittsburgh 3-0 on Mays' 57th career homer. The eighth inning shot left Willie Mays' 21st of the covered 600 mark.

The homer was only the second in a month for Mays and his 15th this season. His last one was on Aug. 2, also against the Pirates.

Marichal pitched a two-hitter and now is 14-1 on the road and only 7-4 at home this season. The pitcher was the 57th of his career, placing him second on the all-time Giant list, one ahead of Carl Hubbell. Christy Mathewson holds the club record with 83.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago's rampaging

Cubs walloped St. Louis 10-3. New York used three pitchers to shut out Los Angeles 2-0. Cincinnati outslug Atlanta 9-3 and Houston split a two-night double-header with Philadelphia, winning 5-0 and then losing 4-2.

SCORELESS DUEL

Marichal was locked in a scoreless pitching duel with Pittsburgh's Bob Veale until the eighth. Then Hal Lanier walked and Ron Hunt was hit by a pitch, setting the stage for Mays.

The Cubs, vainly trying to create a pennant race in the NL, beat St. Louis for the second straight time with Ron Santo driving in four runs on a double and a homer.

Santo's 17th homer of the year snapped a 3-3 tie in the seventh and Chicago wrapped it up with a five-run eighth inning. Ferguson Jenkins won his 13th game and struck out 12, increasing his league-leading total to 180.

The victory left the second place Cubs 12 games back of the Cardinals.

NEW YORK'S Don Cardwell had the Dodgers shut out on three hits until the ninth but when Len Gabrielson and Willie Davis opened with singles, Mays' Manager Gil Hodges brought on Southpaw Billy Short to face left-handed batter Tom Haller.

The strategy worked with Haller, attempting to bunt, forcing Gabrielson at third. Then Hodges brought Cal Koonce in to retire Ken Boyer and Bob Bailey to wrap it up.

Larry Stahl tagged three hits and drove in one of New York's runs.

Leo Cardenas' ninth inning homer tied the game for Cincinnati and the Reds beat the Braves in the 10th on Mack Jones' double and a run-scoring single by Tony Perez.

The Reds tagged 19 hits—four of them by Pete Rose—and the Braves had 16 safeties. Fred Whitfield drove in three runs with a single and his first homer of the year for Cincinnati while Felix Millan and Bob Johnson had three hits each and Tito Francona three RBI for Atlanta.

Don Wilson pitched a four-hit game for the Braves.

Press Claims Slowpitch Title

Wins Defensive Battle From Standard, 3-0

The Pontiac Press outgated Reese's Standard Service, 3-0, in a fine defensive battle Tuesday night to claim the Pontiac International Slowpitch League softball crown.

An airtight infield defense spearheaded by the shortstop of Len Cole enabled Press pitcher Howard McKenney to toss his second straight two-hitter in the playoffs.

Reese's kept the game close by pulling four doubleplays in the first five innings.

Catcher Pete Manning of The Press, though, singled home runs in the second and fourth innings, and a manager-third baseman Sid Gregory rapped two singles and a double to score twice.

The action concludes the city recreation slowpitch season except for an All-Star game between the National and International League squads.

Hills Being Reshaped for Speedway

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION

(AP) — Construction crews have been reshaping 350 acres of the Irish Hills near this Lenawee County community for five months to make room for a new auto race track, with a view.

The new Michigan International Speedway is the brainchild of Detroit real estate developer Stan Lopatin, who claims auto racing buffs will get a better look at the sport there than anywhere in the nation.

A high-rise grandstand will provide fans with a total view of a two-mile banked oval for Indianapolis-type racing. A contiguous three-mile road circuit will be 80 per cent viable for sports car racing.

Lopatin, 41, says the track will be ready for its first big United States Auto Club-sanctioned event Oct. 13. A purse of $75,000 will be at stake which he says is the second largest in the history of the U.S.A.C. Top money is offered in the Indianapolis 500 race.

He hopes to attract such formula I drivers as Dan Gurney, England's Graham Hill and A. J. Foyt. Lopatin anticipates average speeds of cars in the Oct. 13 event will be 10 miles an hour more than those in the Indy 500.

Chuck Kipke, construction superintendent, says more than two million yards of sand and clay have been moved into a nearby swamp to make room for the track.

"There's about 1 1/2 tons of dirt to a yard," said Kipke. "A lot of the sand was in a swamp so we dumped it and leveled it out." "The track is about 20 feet above the original grade. We banked the oval 18 degrees on the turns and 12 degrees on the straightaway."

"That's not as steep as the big stock car tracks like Daytona, but it's more than the Indianapolis Speedway."

Kipke said the bank was designed to accommodate both Indy-type and stock car races. The big Formula I cars would take off and fly on a steeper bank, he said, but it's still a good challenge to stock cars.

The road circuit begins in the oval, and the mechanic's pits along the inside of the main track can be used for sports cars, Formula I and stock models.

THREE MILES
The circuit winds for three miles over hills and wiggles curves, including a carousel turn — a near U-shaped turn popular on some German tracks.

Retired British racer, the famous retired British racer, is a vice president of the speedway and worked closely with architects on its design.

"Sterling came up one day when we had it all just about suggested this spring and added a few changes to help make the circuit more challenging," said Kipke. "The changes were minor and won't hold us up."

"We had some problems with the building trades strike but managed to get some contractors who weren't members of the association."

The $4.5-million track includes a precast concrete and steel grandstand 52 feet above the oval. It's designed so that every ticketholder has a complete view of the main track and can see about 80 per cent of the road circuit.

Campbell Leading Snipe Regatta

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Erratic winds made sailing rough Tuesday but E.E. "Shorty" Campbell retained his lead in the National Snipe Regatta.

In the low score wins, best of 7 regatta, Campbell of the host Alamosa Bay Yacht club had 25 points.

Tied for second were Lou Bedford, San Diego, Calif., and Francis Seazy, Clearwater, Fla., at 28 1/2.

Defending champion Earl Elms of San Diego remained back in the pack with 38 points. He trailed Jim Warfield, San Francisco, 32 1/2; Gonzalo Diaz, Miami, Fla., 33; and Tom Nute, San Diego, 34.

Dave Peterson, San Diego, in ninth place with 37 points, won one of Tuesday's two races. The other was captured by Herb Shear of San Diego.

Filion Passes Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Harve Filion is the first harness racing driver to pass the 500 win mark this season, USTA statistics showed today. Filion has 201 victories to 167 for second place Stanley Dancer.

Teams After State District Softball Titles

Two Waterford Township entries and a Holly nine have moved into the driver's seats in the state Class B, C and D fastpitch softball district tournaments after last night's action at the Drayton Plains and Beaudette Park diamonds.

Day's Sanitary Service of Waterford trimmed Ferndale Republic Underwriters, 5-1, to reach the Class B finals.

The other games (Class D) at the Drayton diamond saw Carigan Realty of Holly down Waterford Ward Body, 7-4, to reach the finals; and Ron's Roust of Pontiac eliminated The Moon Bar of Hazel Park, 9-0.

At Beaudette in town, Spencer Floor Covering became the other Waterford squad to reach a district final when it whipped Holly Jamison Insurance, 5-0, in Class C. Town & Country Lounge of Pontiac was ousted by the Sport Club of Oakland County, 1-0.

LAST INNING

Two singles by the Warren unit in the last of the seventh decided that tense duel. A two-out double in the fifth inning gave T&C its only runner as far as second base. It managed only two safeties.

Sport Club of Oakland now meets Jamison's tonight for the right to oppose Spencer's in the title round Thursday.

Louis Spies's first-inning three runs with two doubles (singles) keyed a four-run outburst that gave Floyd Hicks all the cushion he needed in Spencer's triumph last night. He tossed a two-hitter, and struck out eight.

IMPRESSIVE
John Harrington allowed only two hits for Day's and had nine whiffs. Two-run outbursts in the third and fourth settled the outcome. Paul Atkins drove in three runs with two doubles.

Pontiac CIO 594 meets Ferndale tonight with the winner playing Day's in Friday's finals.

The "D" pairings now have Ward Body facing Ron's Roust this evening for the right to meet Carigan Realty tomorrow. The Holly squad reached the finals by scoring three times in the fourth to break a 2-2 tie with Ward.

Ron's stayed alive on a one-hitter by Jim Smith. Its 13-hit offense included two each by Bill Buck, Bucky Pointer and Sam Ponton. The game was 2-0 until the fifth when Ron's tallied four more runs.

DRAYTON PLAINS PARK
CLASS B — Holly vs. Ferndale, 6 p.m.
CLASS C — Pontiac vs. Waterford, 7 p.m.
CLASS D — BEAUBETTE PARK
CLASS C — Warren vs. Holly, 7:30 p.m.

Pollution Control, Parklands Sought

State's Natural Resources Dwindling

(This is the first of six articles by Lansing State Journal writer
Norris Ingells on what he terms
Michigan's Conservation Crisis.)

By NORRIS INGELLS
The Lansing State Journal

Headlines scream Lake Michigan is "dying" and Lake Erie is already dead. The fouling of the American environment is believed to have reached crisis proportions.

Water and air pollution are major political issues on a local, state and national level. Pressure groups demand bans on certain types of pesticides and herbicides. There is genuine fear the chemicals man places in the air, soil and water may someday doom life on this planet.

Areas that once were vast forests are now urban subdivisions. Northern resorts are crowded, and recreation facilities near metropolitan areas often post the "Sorry, Park Full" sign.

Twenty years ago, the trout fishermen could wade streams like the Little Manistee or the Au Sable for hours without seeing another angler. Today they are sometimes packed so closely together that tangled lines are common.

There is enormous pressure on every type of natural resource. Typical is the multiplicity of uses to which water must be put. Industries use it to cool machines; municipalities need it to carry away sewage plant effluent; swimmers swim in it; boaters boat on it; skindivers ply beneath the surface; water skiers skim across the top; fishermen glare at the noisy intruders and pray for a catch.

Leisure time is on the increase; the 35-hour week a distinct possibility. Rising incomes mean people have more money for recreation. Superhighways make once-remote areas accessible in a few hours. Cottages and summer homes bring urban problems like sewage disposal to rural areas.

Resort development continues to reduce the habitat for game. And burdened with the responsibility for trying to keep everyone happy, and still effectively and skillfully manage the vast natural resource base, is the Michigan Conservation Department.

It is probably the most controversial of all state government agencies. Happy coo fishermen, with their heavy creels, sing its praises. Deer hunters in some areas denounce its policies. The relaxing camper at a beautiful state park is pleased with the department. The would-be camper who got there just as the "Park Full" sign went up will angrily write his senator or representative.

Sportsman's groups call for more fish, game, wildlife areas and parks. Real estate interests urge the department to sell some of its vast land holdings for development into private subdivisions.

PRIORITY ITEMS

Citizens urge a cleanup of the state's polluted lakes and rivers. In some cases, these same citizens react angrily when the Water Resources Commission orders them to spend thousands for new sewage treatment facilities.

And while this is going on, the population of the state edges steadily upward, he do the number of tourists from neighboring states who use Michigan's vast recreation resources.

There is general agreement by officials and experts on resource management that two items top the list of needs that must be met during the next decade.

Almost all say emphatically that Michigan must halt water pollution of all types, and develop more parklands to serve the dense population centers in the southern third of the state.

Prof. Howard A. Tamer, director of Michigan State University's School of Natural Resources, predicts that enormous amounts of money will have to be spent to clean up and retain high quality water in the state's lakes and streams.

But while the cost of halting pollution will be high, the value of the abundant supply of fresh water in the Great Lakes area will be even greater to the people of the region, he points out.

Ralph A. MacMullan, director of the conservation department, called for injections of massive amounts of money to clean up the state's water.

"Traditionally we have been under-financing our natural resource management programs," he said. "Michigan has to be on top. If we ruin our shoreline and foul our lake system we have more to lose than almost any other state."

MacMullan urged the public to view paying taxes for the war on water pollution, and the program to obtain more parkland as "a legitimate business enterprise" of great importance to the over-all economy of Michigan.

Rep. Raymond L. Baker, Farmington, chairman of the House Conservation Committee, stated:

"The people are justified in their concern over the fouling of the environment. We have the means of preventing the pollution of our water. It is going to get better, but it will take a long time, cost a lot of money and require a lot of know-how."

Rep. Baker said he doubts there is enough money available today to launch a crash program to clean up the water, and added that such a program might not be logical. He noted that the federal government has withdrawn some of the matching funds it had promised for pollution control.

He also pointed out that many small towns around the state are having problems coming up with the funds needed to build pollution control facilities.

But he feels the over-all program is headed in the right direction. "We have set standards for water quality far beyond what the federal government is requiring. The question the department must answer is how fast can you solve the problem with the money that's available."

ALL LEVELS

Sen. Gordon Rockwell, R-Mt. Morris, chairman of the Senate Conservation and Recreation Committee believes more funds will be needed on all levels of government—state, federal and local—to fully solve the water pollution problem. He believes existing pollution laws are adequate and the "Water Resources Commission is doing a good job under existing circumstances."

Rockwell says the Legislature is aware of the scope of the water pollution problem, but still should devote more attention to solving it.

Harry H. Whitley, chairman of the Michigan Conservation Commission, also feels present water pollution laws are adequate, but that financing the needed projects will be the problem.

SAME ELSEWHERE

Preliminary findings by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife indicate that hunter performance also left something to be desired in other states.

Ed Mikula, waterfowl specialist for the Michigan Conservation Department, observes:

"This problem of sub-par hunter performance is a serious one, and we need to lean heavily on results of the bureau's computerized study to find ways of improving the situation. We must upgrade this aspect of selective shooting to properly approach early teal seasons and other duck hunting under a system of species management."

He adds that the species management system is the key to protecting birds which are in short supply and allowing liberal harvests of ducks which are plentiful.

Mikula continues: "There is a lot of data to be looked over from these experimental seasons, and it would be pure folly to go ahead with more test hunts for teal until we can work up some definite guidelines to improve hunter performances."

"Most of Michigan's land and natural resource base is in private hands—80 per cent of the high quality shorelines on the Great Lakes and inland waters."

"People must understand resources, their capacities and limitations to a far greater extent than they do now," MacMullan declared.

Many Hunters 'Flunked' Test

For the first time since 1964, there will be no experimental teal hunting season this September in Michigan and other states of the Mississippi and Central Flyways.

The three-year series of test hunts for teal is being suspended for several reasons, one of them so that officials of the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife can analyze results of these seasons which put a premium on selective shooting.

Even as information is being fed into computers by the bureau, game and law men in this state are disturbed over the number of hunters who "flunked" these test seasons by failing to properly identify teal, and to hold their fire on protected ducks.

Over the three-year period, about 26 per cent of this state's hunters didn't make the grade on these points.

Short of Goal

AUBURN, N.Y. (AP)—Wally Duncan, 71, swam seven miles of the Owego Lake Tuesday before being pulled from the water four miles from his goal at the end of the lake. He battled a 12-mile-an-hour wind for seven hours, before quitting because of pains in his left arm.

Other reasons for tabling the early season are pegged to the fact that breeding teal numbers are down 40 per cent from 1965 and the birds' nesting habitat is in poor shape. Another factor was the unexpected large kill of green-winged teal in 1967 which made up more than 20 per cent of last fall's total teal bag.

The three experimental seasons from 1965 through 1967 were agreed upon by state and federal wildlife agencies to expand duck hunting opportunities. Blue-winged teal were in good supply and most of these early migrants previously passed through the cooperating states before standard waterfowl seasons began.

BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW
Here's an oddity... Of all the men who've been big league baseball players, only one, Willie Mays, was a member of the Red Sox in the 1967 season. Was the first name started with the letter "M"? You'd think in all the years since 1900, and with all the different men who've managed baseball winners, there would have been more than one whose last name started with "M". Well, oddity, Williams was the first.

Ever wonder how many baseballs are used in a major league game? The league teams use an average of about 60 balls every game.

Here's an interesting baseball puzzle for you... Suppose a batter is at the plate with two strikes... The next pitch comes in and the batter swings, the ball hits him... Is it a strike? Is it a foul ball? Is it a home run? The batter is supposed to go to first base on a foul ball, but if you swing and miss or a pitch even though the ball hits you, it is not a foul ball, but it is a strike.

I bet you didn't know... That our 4-ly Douglas Wide-Oval tire is giving outstanding mileage and performance. They really drive and handle far better than conventional tires. I should know, I've got them on my '65 Chevy wagon.

Deerhorns pinchers comprise the largest breed entry with 54 for Sunday's show at Wisner. There will be 48 German shepherds, 45 Irish setters and a like number of Afghan hounds, 29 St. Bernards and Norwegian elkhounds and 26 basset hounds.

In addition, the rare Briard will be represented by 23 entries as part of the national specialty held in conjunction with the PKC show.

Other unusual breeds with better than average entries include borzoi, Belgian Tervuren, Bouvier des Flandres, Great Pyrenees and Lhasa Apso.

Passenger Trains—Are They All Passe?

(EDITOR'S NOTE—There is little argument that passenger trains, particularly long-distance haulers, have declined in number and service, especially over the last decade. The big question now is whether the train will go out of business entirely, or can they be saved and are they worth saving? High-speed trains now in experimental operation may provide some answers.)

By STEPHEN M. AUG

WASHINGTON (AP) — It took only 44 minutes and cost 90 cents to travel the 44 miles between Boston, Mass., and Providence, R.I., in 1936 on what the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad billed as "The Comet-Streamlined train of the present and the future."

Today in an era of jet planes and super expressways, the same train trip — same number of stops — takes five minutes longer and costs $2.37 on the bankrupted New Haven.

Just 19 years ago a traveler between Washington, D.C., and Chicago could choose among 17 trains daily — eight on the Baltimore & Ohio, nine on the Pennsylvania Railroad. And he could remain aboard the same sleeping car and travel on to Los Angeles.

Today, there are only four direct trains between Washington and Chicago and it is necessary to change trains, and sometimes stations, to travel west of Chicago.

MORE DECLINES

There is little doubt — even among those outside the industry who seek continued and better train service — that such declines as these have intensified in number — especially during the past 10 years — as passengers have left the railroads, lured by the speed of the jetliner and the convenience of the private automobile.

In the past decade alone, the Interstate Commerce Commission has permitted the railroads to discontinue nearly 1,000 passenger trains — and more are leaving the rails almost weekly. There are fewer than 600 trains a day now compared with more than 20,000 in 1929.

The railroads say passenger service deficits are draining resources they badly need to modernize for more efficient freight handling. They claim to have lost $484 million last year alone operating passenger trains — but this is a highly debatable figure, and not even railroad management contends it could cut costs by this amount if it eliminated all passenger trains tomorrow.

At least one ICC examiner, an organization of railroad passengers, and several congressmen blame railroad management for not only failing to encourage, but actually working to discourage passenger traffic.

'NOT US,' HE SAYS

But says Stuart T. Saunders, outspoken chairman of the Pennsylvania New York Central Transportation Co. — the nation's largest passenger-carrying railroad: "I don't think the railroads — considering the circumstances under which they have operated — have contributed in any major degree to the loss of passenger service."

He added in an interview,

PAST THEIR PRIME — These five engines, photographed in 1935, were the fastest of their day. They include a wood-burning Baltimore and Ohio model (left), the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Line's "Hiawatha," the Northwestern's "400," Burlington Line's "Zephyr" and the Alton Line's "Abraham Lincoln." Today many of the railroads have gone out of business or merged.

AP Photos

however: "There's the greatest amount of misunderstanding about this problem. Everyone is trying to draw extremes. Rail buffs think you should retain every train. On the other hand others say you ought to get out of the business entirely. There must be a middle ground. "Just to say we're going to live in the Victorian age is pure stupidity. You've got to re-examine the whole picture on just what does the public actually need — and not on nostalgia."

Big Loss Claimed

Penn Central claims a passenger service loss last year of $85 million.

Pennsylvania and New York Central merged earlier this year — but they, too, had downgraded their passenger service prior to merger, with a device railroads frequently use called "consolidation."

The Pennsy "consolidated" its famed Broadway Limited with the General — thus eliminating one round trip daily between New York and Chicago without the need to seek permission from any state regulatory agency or the ICC.

The New York Central's equally famous 20th Century Limited — for which it used to roll out a red carpet at New York City's Grand Central Terminal — was combined with another train and the name was eliminated altogether.

PROBE LAUNCHED

In the same field, the ICC launched — for the first time — an investigation into the practices of the Southern Pacific Co. to determine whether a railroad was providing adequate passenger service. The investigation was started at the request of several Southwestern state utility agencies.

For many years, SP had heavily advertised some of its best Western trains. Several years ago it began a program to eliminate its unprofitable passenger service. It stopped giving commissions to travel agents and — so the utility agencies claimed — made it difficult to secure reservations even though there was plenty of room aboard.

Specifically, the ICC investigated what used to be called the Sunset Limited — now, simply the Sunset — the only remaining passenger train between New Orleans and Los Angeles.

In 1950 Southern Pacific bought $18 million worth of new equipment for the Sunset. Each train featured four coaches with nonfolding picture windows and AM-FM radios, six sleeping cars with shower facilities, a lounge car, coffee shop-lounge car, dining car, and such services as a valet for pressing and minor tailoring.

MANY CUTBACKS

In recent years the railroad has eliminated the sleeping cars on the 2,033-mile, 45½-hour route, and installed food vending machines. The train is down to three coaches and an automot car and SP wants to end the service entirely.

ICC Examiner John Messer decided that the railroad had violated the Interstate Commerce Act by failing to provide transportation on reasonable request and by making charges for services not provided.

The charge to which he referred is $3.50 added to the fare on the Sunset — a special charge levied in the days when the Sunset was a luxury streamliner. The railroad says it retained the charge because it didn't want to raise the basic fare.

SP, Penn Central and virtually every other railroad would contend that this service was downgraded only after passengers had deserted the trains — and that as SP said, "the market for first class service on the Sunset route has been shrinking for years, until today the few who would make occasional use of it could be served only by the incurring of staggering losses."

'Trains Empty'

SP and most other railroads contend trains are running virtually empty. And SP advertizes showing a photo of a passenger coach with only one passenger in it.

But figures from the Association of American Railroads — the industry organization — show rail passenger service remains big business, although it has been steadily shrinking and the railroads' share of inter-city passengers has been declining.

Last year, AAR figures show, the railroads carried 239 million passengers — and more than 196 million rode distances greater than just commuting. They paid $424 million, and nearly 95 million passengers rode in coaches and 3.3 million in over-age sleeping cars. Pullman-Standard Inc. hasn't built a sleeper since 1956.

This, of course, is nowhere near the peak of more than $10 million passengers carried in 1944 when revenues approached $1.8 billion.

WHAT MARKET?

How much of a market remains for passengers on the trains? Both ICC Chairman Paul J. Tierney and the administrator of the Federal Railroad Administration, A. Scheffer Lang, share the prevailing industry view: If there is a market, it is for commuting and distances less than 500 miles.

Lang said in an interview that the "long-distance passenger train today is a sheer and total anachronism." Tierney said long-haul passenger trains "except for certain tourist routes and perhaps some overnight service between major cities cannot rationally be preserved."

Messer recommended the ICC set minimum standards for the operation of passenger trains, requiring sleeping and dining facilities on trains, depending on the length of the trip. He would also have the ICC set up a national rail passenger system to guarantee continued operation of passenger trains between major urban centers.

ICC DOES LITTLE

For the past 10 years the ICC has been able to do little more than preside over the demise of passenger service. It has faithfully — in accordance with law — held public hearings, noted thousands of protests, written reports and generally concluded by agreeing with the railroads.

In report after report the ICC quotes passengers at public hearings as complaining of dif-ty trains, lateness resulting in missed connections and other unhappy conditions — but these same passengers urged the commission to order continued operation of the trains.

Most recently, the ICC urged Congress to investigate the problem of passenger service. In a 66-page report the commission said it is limited under present law to allowing railroads to cut passenger service — not to promoting or fostering it.

The ICC urged also a moratorium on some train discontinuances while the study is in progress — "to preserve a minimum level of service" — and asked the Post Office to put the mail back on the trains to support the passenger service financially.

Tough Language

The commission — on some of its toughest language — told Congress it has seen its recommendations continually ignored, and blamed the lawmakers for not coming up with a rational policy on national rail transportation.

There are those, however, who believe there still is a market for long-distance passenger trains. Among them: Anthony Haswell, a Chicago lawyer, and Edd H. Bailey, president of the Union Pacific.

Haswell is executive director founder and principal financial supporter of the National Association of Railroad Passengers — only wholesale dis-continuation of passenger trains.

His long-term goals include a government-supported national passenger car pool to maintain equipment and make it available to railroads; restructuring present service to concentrate trains on tourist and vacation travel routes; centralized computerized reservation system and a national promotional campaign.

BIG ORGANIZATION

Haswell's organization claims

2,278 members and he says many are not rail buffs.

Bailey says the UP has "never said we wanted to get out of the passenger business. We are going to operate them in hopes the public will use them."

He placed some blame on the railroads for the loss of passengers; conceding "we have been a little slow with the necessary research to come up with something fantastic so that we could retain passengers."

Although the railroads invested about $500 million after World War II to replace worn-out equipment, the newer cars provided few completely new services. Speeds remained the same; 80-82 miles an hour, although some Western roads operate trains as fast as 90 if they are running late.

'TOO EXPENSIVE'

Bailey believes it would have been too expensive and economically unjustified to have tried to operate trains at sustained speeds of 115-125 miles an hour along the UP and other Western railroads.

Virtually unpublicized is the fact that some railroads make a profit on at least some of their passenger service. Most are reluctant to give figures — or even admit to a profit. And some profit claims are based on so-called over-the-rail basis — actual expenses of running the train — rather than the 60-year-old ICC formula which apportions part of all railroad expenses to passenger service. Here are some of the claimed money-makers:

• Penn Central claims a small profit on its heavily-traveled New York-Washington, D.C., passenger trains, although it loses on this route when it includes trains it operates for other railroads.

• Seaboard Coast Line makes a profit on its New York-Florida steamers, including the Florida Special which features champagne at dinner, bingo games and songsters, movies, television, fashion shows and a train hostess on the 1,438-mile trip.

In our great country we're lucky.

Our government trains and employs experts...men who inspect and grade beef at hundreds of locations throughout the nation. They protect you...and retailers, like us.

That's why A&P is happy there's a U.S. government inspector on the premises of our meat plant serving this area.

Also important are A&P's own beef experts.

Their job is to see to it that A&P Beef measures up to our own "SUPER-RIGHT" quality standards...standards which don't exactly fit our government's grading categories.

For instance, some beef graded U.S. Choice just doesn't meet our "SUPER-RIGHT" specifications.

No wonder we don't hesitate to guarantee that the "SUPER-RIGHT" Beef you buy will be as flavorful and tender as you think it should be, or your money back.

So, you don't have to become an expert to choose great beef for your family...just shop A&P!

Indonesian Reds Emerge From Shadow of '65 Coup Failure

BLITAR, Indonesia (U) — Indonesia's Communists, feeding on the troubles of this struggling nation, are emerging from the shadows in their most menacing move since they were driven underground 2½ years ago.

The storm center is around this little dusty town deep in the jungle hills of East Java — ironically the birthplace of ousted President Sukarno, whose flirtation with Communism resulted in his downfall in 1965.

In this area the Communist party, the PKI, is waging an often-savage guerrilla and ideological war against the government.

Communists are active in other regions, too, but it is here the PKI apparently is making its stand.

OUTLAWED IN '65

The party was outlawed and decimated in the frenzied massacres which followed the abortive October 1965 coup attempt. Early this year, after many months of reorganization and infiltration, it renewed its struggle in earnest. With the economy still shaky, inflation rampant and rice in short supply, the underground hailed 1968 as the most "favorable starting point" for its campaign.

However, the Communists may have been forced to move in a bid to gain ground before conditions improve enough under President Suharto to neutralize their propaganda. Or they may have been ordered to do so by Peking, to fall in line with other communist movements in Southeast Asia.

Whatever the reason, the PKI has fared badly in Java. In the last four months, the military claims to have killed or captured almost 2,000. This includes seven of the PKI's top leaders, among them Oloan Hutapea, chairman of the party's shadowy central committee.

MASSIVE CAMPAIGN

Six battalions of troops — an estimated 5,000 men — backed by Strategic Forces Command armor units and commandos, are waging a massive campaign.

One militia officer boasted: "We don't take many prisoners. If there's the slightest doubt about someone, we shoot first."

Another said his men burned to death many Communists in their hideouts in a vast tunnel network built by the Japanese during World War II.

The guerrillas generally are poorly armed. Some have automatic weapons seized in raids on army posts but many use homemade guns fashioned out of lengths of pipe.

SOME CARRY SPEARS

The army is supported by a local 3,000-man militia and even village vigilantes armed with bamboo spears. Officers predict the PKI in east and central Java will be smashed by the end of the year. This may prove optimistic, for they are up against a wily and desperate enemy who has several factors on his side.

Perhaps only 500 hard-core Communists exist in the region, but there are believed to be 300,000 card-carrying members. And east Java, with a population of 40 million crowded into an area the size of Florida, has long had Communist leanings.

Leaders who survived the post-coup bloodbath fled to this area. They have shaped a well-organized movement into three arms: military, administration and penetration.

India Is Jubilant as Agricultural Revolution Sweeps Nation

NEW DELHI (AP) — A revolution is sweeping India, and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government is delighted.

It is an agricultural revolution, fought with tractors, improved fertilizers, high-yielding seeds and determination.

The fruits are already evident, in terms of a bumper wheat harvest of 16 million tons — 33 per cent better than any previous record.

The Food Ministry estimates that total grain production — including wheat, rice, corn, millets and sorghums — will reach 35 million tons compared with 75 million last year and the previous record of 39 million in 1965.

Officials say they won't be satisfied, however, until they achieve their main target of complete self-sufficiency in food grains — with no need to rely on imports.

1971 TARGET

Mrs. Gandhi has expressed the hope this goal will be reached by 1971.

This year it is estimated India will import about 7.5 million tons of food grains, compared to 8.7 million tons in 1967 and 10.4 million tons in 1966, when the country was in the throes of a drought.

High government officials credit the drought in eastern India with providing the spark that touched off the agricultural revolution.

Before the drought, farmers generally took their annual harvests for granted. Government efforts to make them grow larger crops, so that they could put some in storage, failed repeatedly.

The attitudes have changed, and the farmers have begun seeking new ways to grow more.

NEW SEEDS

Tractors are rapidly replacing the traditional bullock-drawn wooden plows. Other weapons are high-yielding wheat seeds developed in Mexico with the assistance of the Rockefeller Foundation, new rice varieties originally produced in the Philippines, and motor-driven tube-wells that are adding to land with adequate irrigation.

Another important tool is the increased use of fertilizers. Total value of fertilizer imports this year is expected to reach $265 million, compared to $150 million last year. Domestic production of nitrogenous fertilizers is estimated to have increased from 293,000 tons last year to 350,000 tons this year, while production of phosphatic fertilizers has gone up from 144,000 to 200,000 tons.

There is no accurate way to assess how much of the increase in production is due to the weather, with the annual monsoon always a critical factor. But even with sufficient rainfall, Food Ministry officials point out, India would not be producing its record harvests if it were not for improvements in technology.

Even so, the bumper crops have created their own problems.

STORAGE PRICES

The two biggest problems are finding adequate storage facilities and insuring that the farmers are paid fair prices.

The government hopes to build up a buffer stock of at least seven million tons of food grains, to control prices and guard against shortages.

Food Ministry officials feel the government's use of the buffer stock will virtually wipe out hoarding of grains.

Samuel Houston, in 1861, was removed from the governorship of Texas because he refused to take the state out of the Union.

LBJ May Have to Trim Budget $1 Billion More

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, who agreed reluctantly to a $6-billion cut in federal spending to get his income tax increase, now faces the probability of having to cut an additional $1 billion.

Johnson, spending a long working holiday in his ranch, had Press Secretary George Christian announced yesterday the budget-cutting problems.

This followed a four-hour conference Johnson had with Budget Director Charles J. Zwick.

This is the situation facing the administration:

When Congress fixed a spending ceiling of $106.1 billion for federal programs — except the Vietnam war and some others — it looked as if the ceiling could be met by chopping $6 billion from planned outlays in the fiscal year that began July 1.

MORE FOR FARM SUPPORTS

Since then, estimated spending for farm-price supports has increased by $700 million and it appears costs of public assistance and Medicaid may top the original projection by $300 million.

Those increases totaling $1 billion must be offset by cuts elsewhere.

Christian, quoting Zwick, said it seems likely Congress will specify $3 billion in spending reductions, leaving $4 billion of economy moves to be pinpointed by the administration.

The President, in action announced yesterday, approved new cutbacks in U.S. payrolls abroad. Many workers simply will be transferred to stateside jobs, but the move is intended to help ease the balance of payments deficit.

$28-32 MILLION CUT

By mid-1969 enough overseas jobs will be eliminated to cut spending abroad by $28 million to $32 million.

Christian had no word on when doctors might report their findings of X rays made Monday of Johnson's lower intestine.

Secret Service Busy Protecting Hopfuls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The shifting cast of characters on the political stage has kept the Secret Service hopping in its new role as protector of presidential hopefuls.

There was a wholesale changing of the guard, for instance, after last week's Republican National Convention and another will follow the upcoming Democratic convention.

Since they ended up in the GOP losers' column at Miami, Harold Stassen, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Gov. Ronald Reagan no longer qualify for shielding by the Secret Service.

The details of agents assigned to them have been withdrawn and dealt out to newcomers on the candidate list — GOP vice presidential nominee Spiro T. Agnew, for instance, and Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, who blossomed over the weekend as a Democratic contender.

event that added candidate protection to the chores of the Secret Service.

When he assigned the new role, President Johnson acknowledged he had no specific authority to do so. But Congress backed him up, quickly supplying a law extending Secret Service protection to "major candidates" for the presidency and vice presidency.

The decision as to who gets the protection and who doesn't rests under the statute with the secretary of the Treasury, advised by a committee made up of the speaker of the House and the Republican and Democratic leaders in each chamber of Congress.

Army Nike Sites May Be Closed

WASHINGTON (AP) — As an economy measure, the Army is considering shutting down a number of anti-missile missile batteries, Pentagon sources say.

Built at a cost of millions, some sites have been operating 10 years or less.

The proposed action reflects the pressure the services are now under to meet spending cuts ordered by Congress in exchange for passage of President Johnson's 10 per cent income surtax.

The Navy already has gone on the financial chopping block, laying up 50 ships, including a nuclear submarine and a fleet of World War II support vessels, and deactivating eight air squadrons to save an estimated $118 million.

UNIT NOT ACTIVATED

The Army was hit earlier with a Defense Department decision to save $125 million by not activating the 6th Infantry Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., as originally planned.

The over-all government spending cuts were originally pegged at $6 billion, a figure that may be revised upward. The Pentagon is expected to account for about half of the amount by slashing almost everything not needed for the war.

Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford said last week the No. 1 rule in economizing is that "the needs of our forces in Southeast Asia must be provided for fully, without exceptions."

The proposed missile cutback may knock out perhaps a dozen or more Nike-Hercules batteries across the country, sources indicate.

Exactly how many units are to be shut down, and where, is understood to be under consideration in the Pentagon. But at least some are expected to be National Guard outfits.

Sunny, Pleasant Outlook Continues

The weatherman promises Pontiac area residents sunny skies and pleasant temperatures — in the 70s — tomorrow. Tonight will be fair with a low of 47 to 55.

There's a chance of showers Friday with temperatures turning warmer.

Morning winds southerly at eight to 18 miles per hour will become west to northwest at 10 to 20 miles this afternoon and five to 12 miles by late tonight.

The low recording prior to 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac was 66. The thermometer registered 78 at 12:30 p.m.

Paris Peace Talks Resume

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Xuan Thuy of North Vietnam went into the fourth month of their search for peace in Vietnam today. They are as tightly deadlocked as ever over the issue of ending U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

There has been wide speculation that either Hanoi or Washington might make some policy shift, but concrete evidence of imminent major progress in the talks is lacking.

Harriman accused North Vietnam of taking a "completely sterile" line in the Paris peace talks while Communist terrorists in South Vietnam killed thousands of people "in cold blood."

Harriman said: "He hoped that the return from Hanoi of Le Duc Tho, a member of the Communist party Politburo, 'will be useful.' This reflected U.S. speculation that Tho, who spent six weeks in Hanoi, may have brought some new instructions."

TERRORISM TOTALLED

The U.S. Mission in Saigon issued its weekly report on terrorism today and said since Jan. 1 Vietcong terrorists had killed 2,818 South Vietnamese civilians, wounded another 6,154 and kidnapped 4,642. But Harriman gave newsmen much higher totals for the year so far: 2,000 killed, 20,000 wounded and 6,000 abducted.

"That doesn't mean those who have been caught in the war," he said, "But those who have been killed in cold blood — These terrorist actions don't get much publicity, but terrorism is one of the facts of life in South Vietnam."

"This cruel, ruthless terrorist action of the Vietcong still continues with no purpose except to terrorize people into giving in to their rule."

His other point of attack in today's meeting, he said, was that "the North Vietnamese delegation has one phrase which it repeats."

DEMAND REPEATED

He apparently referred to North Vietnam's demand at every session since the talks opened May 13 that the United States stop all attacks on North Vietnam before any other peace-making issues can be discussed.

Harriman said that he and his delegation "have tried to jar discussions off center and have made some very definite constructive proposals."

Xuan Thuy returned to the conference table after missing several of the weekly sessions because of illness, but Le Duc Tho was not present.

Tho, who is listed as a special adviser to Thuy, left Paris at the end of June, and his prolonged absence led to speculation that the leaders in Hanoi were reviewing their policy and might change it. But the prevailing view of U.S. officials is that the North Vietnamese believe the pressure of public opinion will yet force President Johnson to end all attacks on their territory without any assurance of reciprocity on their part.

County Levy Defeat Hurts

Roads to Get Repair Only

Delay of proposed highway improvements and a continuation of the present road-maintenance program throughout next year are the results of last week's defeat of the road-millage issue, according to Frazer W. Staman, chairman of the Oakland County Road Commission.

"As it looks now," said Staman, "the county's entire highway program will have to be restrained next year. We have tried all possible financial resources with no success. So now we will have to work with the limited funds from gasoline taxes and weight and license fees."

The revenue from these sources is about $7 million annually. Most of this is used in road maintenance and additional equipment, noted the road commission.

Oakland County voters defeated the proposed one-mill tax increase in the election Aug. 6 by a 2-1 margin. Tabulations showed 25,615 persons in favor of the additional tax and 50,570 opposed.

$1.5 MILLION LEFT

Defeat of the millage issue, which annually would have brought an additional $3.5 million into the commission's road-building budget for the next five years, leaves the county with approximately $1.5 million for highway work.

"At a rate of approximately $200,000 to $300,000 per mile for new roads, the $1.5 million is definitely inadequate for much-needed road construction," said Staman.

"Our roads are more traveled than ever, and the commission continuously receives complaints about bad roads. But we cannot do anything without money, and the people did not vote for this."

"In 1969 we will have only enough money for absolutely essential road maintenance. There will be no opportunity for building new roads nor even for substantial improvement in present roads. Our budget will allow only for keeping existing roads at their present antiquated condition," he continued.

NO NEW VOTE PLANS

There are no plans for another millage vote in the near future.

"We cannot ask for another millage vote in November because, according to law, in a county of 500,000 or more, issues of this nature may not be voted on simultaneously with a presidential election."

In the past, the Oakland County Board of Supervisors has turned down monetary

Michigan highway commissioners yesterday afternoon outlined their proposed route for construction of south Oakland County's I-696 freeway.

The presentation was the first step of binding arbitration procedures being directed by a three-man panel of arbitrators named Monday by Gov. Romney.

Earlier yesterday, the arbitration panel met for the first time at the County Courthouse and announced tentative procedural arrangements for the series of public hearings that could go on for 60 days before a final route for the controversial roadway is determined.

Wayne State University Professor of Law Boaz Siegel, chairman of the panel of arbitrators, said the highway commission's proposal would be followed by a presentation of objections raised by the communities involved. The communities will also have a chance to suggest alternative routes.

$100-MILLION STRETCH

The 6½-mile stretch of the project in dispute will cost an estimated $100 million including property acquisition. It will go through the communities of Royal Oak, Pleasant Ridge, Huntington Woods, Oak Park, Lathrup Village and Southfield.

Highway Commission planners yesterday proposed that the roadway follow a line that runs north of 10 Mile from the I-75 interchange, dips south of 10 Mile at Woodward, swings north in Huntington Woods and gradually continues north to 11 Mile in Oak Park.

From there highway commissioners

State Highway Officials Explain Plans For Controversial Roadway

Biafra Stronghold Goal of Nigerian Offensive

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Two columns of Nigerian commandos were reported pushing north today toward the Biafran stronghold of Aba in what could be the start of an all-out offensive to crush the 13-month-old secession of eastern Nigeria's Ibo tribesmen.

Informed sources said at least two brigades of Nigeria's 3rd Marine Commando Division were advancing from the Port Harcourt sector toward Aba, the largest of the three towns still under secessionist control.

The military high command in Lagos

refused to divulge details of the offensive, but a high ranking officer said troops commanded by Col. Benjamin Adekunle were reported trying to cross the Imo River, 15 miles south of Aba. Another column was believed pushing across the river at the Imo railway station, about 22 miles from Aba.

Aba, which had a pre-war population of 131,000, has been the command headquarters for the Biafran regime of Lt. Col. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu since federal forces captured the secessionist capital, Enugu, last Oct. 5.

Radio Biafra reported that Umu

Abayi, on the southern bank of the Imo River, has been under heavy mortar attack for the past three days. The broadcast said 35,000 civilians were fleeing and that Biafran authorities were undertaking a massive civilian evacuation from the area.

Fighting also was reported around Ikot Ekpena, a refugee center 28 miles northeast of Aba.

Commanders of the three Nigerian divisions surrounding the core of Biafran-held territory met in Lagos today, presumably to plan a final offensive.

"We will be clearing our minds this morning," said one participant.

PEACE TALKS RESUME

The new fighting was reported as peace talks resumed today in the Ethiopian capital Addis Ababa. Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie is presiding over the secret negotiations. Informants said the delegates would discuss the opening of a relief corridor to ship food and medicine to starving civilian war victims in blockaded Biafra.

Missing Clerk's Son Gets Ballot Support From Dems

Shane F. Murphy, son of the late Oakland County Clerk Register John D. Murphy, announced today the County Democratic Committee will take legal steps to have his name placed on the Nov. 5 ballot to replace his father.

Murphy disappeared and was presumed drowned in Lake Michigan on July 27. However, his name was still on the Aug. 6 primary ballot and running unopposed was nominated by the Democratic Party.

His son, Shane, 26, is presently an employee of the county as deputy county treasurer in the office of Treasurer James E. Seestler. He has been employed there for the last three years. Shane appeared before the Democratic Committee last night and received its endorsement, he said.

Legal procedures involved will be handled by the committee, Murphy said. He said state law calls for approval by the committee for a replacement on a ballot when a nominee dies.

Living at 3128 Coolidge, Royal Oak, Shane is a part-time student at Wayne State University. He and his wife, Mary Ellen, have a 1-year-old son.

VIENNA (AP) — Space leaders and scientists from 87 nations today begin two weeks of discussion on how best to apply practical benefits of space technology to social and economic advancement of mankind.

The two major space powers, the United States and the Soviet Union, will dominate the meeting, first space conference held by the United Nations. U.N. committees have been preparing for two years.

U.N. Secretary General U Thant, expected to address the conference later, described the effort as a major step in bridging the gap between space powers and other nations.

He expressed hope the meeting would explain practical benefits of space exploration and would result in joint ventures to bring these benefits to all nations to alleviate some of mankind's most pressing economic and social problems.

COOPERATION SOUGHT

The conference in Vienna's Hofburg Palace could lead to further cooperation in space activities between the United States and Russia.

The leaders of the two largest delegations, Administrator James E. Webb of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and academician A. A. Blagonravov of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, are expected to meet privately.

Arkansas Dem Calls for Debate

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Marlon H. Crank, who won the Arkansas Democratic gubernatorial nomination yesterday, has challenged Republican Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller to debate the issues.

Rockefeller, who easily won renomination in July, previously said he would be willing to debate his Democratic opponent on television. They meet in the general election Nov. 6.

Crank, a long-time member of the Arkansas House, defeated Mrs. Virginia Johnson in the primary runoff.

Two weeks ago her husband, Jim Johnson, failed in an attempt to unseat Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., in a four-man race for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

With 2,532 of 2,608 precincts reported, Crank had 211,560 votes to Mrs. Johnson's 122,403.

Mrs. Johnson's husband was the 1966 Democratic gubernatorial nominee who was beaten by Rockefeller, the first Republican governor of Arkansas since Reconstruction.

During the primary campaign, Crank argued that he could reunite the state party, which was split in 1966 when Johnson repudiated several party segments after his primary victory.

I-696 Hearing Is Under Way

under way, according to highway officials.

COMMUNITIES DISAGREE

The section is completed west of the intersection of I-696 and Telegraph. The 6½-mile stretch was thrown into the hands of binding arbitration because communities affected by the proposed highway could neither agree on a route nor on a panel of arbitrators.

The binding arbitration procedure is designed to bring an end to more than four years of bickering between communities over the route of the 28-mile freeway.

The procedure is provided in a law signed last January which established arbitration of disputes over interstate highway locations that cannot be settled by negotiations.

POWER

Previously, local communities had final veto power over proposed routes. Panel chairman Siegel scheduled the next hearing for 10 a.m. Monday at the courthouse, when communities unhappy with the route proposed yesterday will air their objections and have a chance to offer alternative routes.

requests of the commission, according to Siaman. A $4-million bond issue and a $1-million short-term loan granted for this year will be depleted by next year.

"Our last request to the board of supervisors was turned down," commented the chairman, "and the commission has borrowed as much as possible. Now we must wait until the people are willing to pay more for road costs."

Figures show that the average Oakland County family pays $12.50 into the county's highway program each year.

'NO' VOTE WIDESPREAD

Although only 21 per cent of Oakland County residents voted in the recent primary, a large percentage did not want the additional one-mill tax. Of the 48 voting communities, only three, Birmingham, Northville, and Royal Oak Township, were in favor of the ballot proposition.

Among the areas opposing the millage issue were Holly, Springfield, Groveland, and Highland. Several residents in these communities make up the self-admitted protest group WHAR, "Why Have Awful Roads?"

"It seems that people protesting bad roads have backed this millage issue," commented Siaman. "Without its call improve Oakland County road conditions."

Library Budget Submitted

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The Township Board this week received a preliminary budget for the township's public library for the coming year.

The figure was set at $248,000 but remains flexible, according to library director H. G. Johnson, since it is based on a districtwide one-mill assessment.

Johnson also pointed out that the budget was the largest ever for the township and that it increased in the same proportion as the district's assessed valuation.

The board accepted and filed the preliminary figures pending a public hearing on the matter, to be set at a later date.

The board actually has no jurisdiction over library funds, Johnson pointed out, since all monies are gained through the special millage administered by the district's library board.

The board accepted two petitions, one each for water-main and sanitary sewer projects.

The water main extension is slated for Hickory Knolls subdivision and carries an estimated cost of $22,000. It will be assessed at $1,047 per site. First hearing on the proposed construction was set for 8 p.m. Sept. 8.

The board also accepted a petition and set a hearing date for sanitary sewers on Kirkcaldy and Yorkton.

It is proposed that the 27 sites involved be assessed $2748 for the $74,000 project. The Board set the first public hearing for the project for 8 p.m. Oct. 28.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, the board awarded a contract for construction of 120 feet of eight-inch water main.

Mole Construction Co. submitted a low bid of $2,850 for the project, on Wing Lake Road at Maple.

AF to Remove Ammo From Derailed Train

URBANA, Ohio (AP) — National Guardsmen were ordered to duty early today to help block off an area on Urbana's West Side where Air Force bomb squads planned to take ammunition from a derailed freight train.

The evacuation of a two-block area was ordered as a precaution last night after it was learned seven of the 17 derailed Penn Central cars contained explosives. The cars were believed to hold 105mm or 155mm shells and also highly explosive bomb detonators.

Bomb squads called in from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton and Clinton County Air Force Base near Wilmington refused to begin work until a large area was cleared. Then city officials asked Gov. James A. Rhodes' office for guardsmen.

An aide to the governor said at least 150 guardsmen from Companies C and D of the 218th Engineers, with units in Urbana and Springfield, would assemble in Urbana. They planned a door-to-door check to make sure all people were out of homes and other buildings within a half-mile of the derailment.

PLANT CLOSED

The derailment is in an industrial section of this central Ohio community of 10,000. Workers at the Grimes Manufacturing Co., the town's largest industry, were sent home after the wreck last night.

Railroad officials said there were no injuries in the accident. Cause of the derailment had not been determined.

The derailment occurred when the 35th car of the 100-car freight train jumped the tracks.

Correction

American Bar Association president William T. Gosselt today made the following comments on an Associated Press news article.

"I am writing to correct an erroneous impression, created in the article on Page A-11 of yesterday's issue of The Press, to the effect that I advocate or condone civil disobedience."

"My position is and always has been that the proper way to test a bad law is through appropriate legal procedure, which should be open to all citizens; and that those who choose to resort to civil disobedience as a means to that end must be prepared to take the legal consequences of their action."

Obviously if large numbers of citizens choose to oppose laws through civil disobedience, the ultimate result would be anarchy, as in the words of James Madison, the chief architect of our Constitution, "Anarchy ever has and I fear ever will, produce despotism."

"Also as to Sen. Griffin's opposition to the appointment of Abe Fortas as chief justice of the United States, the point I intended to make was that any attempt by the senator to lead a filibuster to prevent a prompt Senate vote on the nomination — not the senator's opposition to Fortas — would be a disservice to the country."

ANOTHER BODY

The caller said another body was "in the water."

The service station attendant said he serviced on Sunday the car in which Mrs. Clark was found. He said two adult women, a girl and a man were in the car at the time.

Police said Mrs. Clark and her daughter had been vacationing in the Miami area but they could not establish their whereabouts for the last 10 days.

Fire-Bomb Clue Reward Is Set

Disturbed by repeated fire-bombings and what appeared to be a planned rock-throwing attack on firemen last week, city commissioners last night authorized rewards of up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest of individuals responsible for such incidents.

City Manager Joseph A. Warren said he recommended the rewards after conferring with fire and police officials. He reported to the commission that there have been 13 instances of fire-bombings this year.

The resolution authorizing the rewards calls for establishment of a three-member committee to determine who will receive rewards, how much will be rewarded in each instance and how rewards will be divided if there is to be more than one recipient.

Persons receiving the rewards will not be identified in any way, officials said.

THREE TARGETS

The plan calls for rewards to be paid for information leading to arrests in any instance of arson, an attack on firefighters or police officers which constitutes interference with the performance of their duties, and any discharge of firearms which constitutes a felony.

The reward money is offered for each incident which occurred or will occur during 1968.

Warren said that a fire company was involved in what appeared to be a planned attack last Tuesday night. The fire department received a call shortly after midnight complaining of a large fire near Howard McNeill and Branch.

When a fire truck arrived at the scene — a dead end street — large groups of youths suddenly appeared and began throwing rocks and bottles at the truck.

NO ONE HURT

The windshield was smashed but there were no injuries, Warren said.

By the time police arrived, he said, those responsible had fled. No one was arrested in the incident, or in any of the recent fire-bombings, Warren said.

LAKE ORION OKS Laws on Water and Disorderly

LAKE ORION — The Village Council took final action on a disorderly persons ordinance and a safe water ordinance this week.

The first calls for a fine of $100 or imprisonment in the county jail for up to 90 days, or both, for those found guilty of being disorderly in a public place.

The second ordinance promotes the safe use of waters in the village.

The ordinance requires that all those operating a motorboat within the village limits comply with state and federal laws governing the operation.

BOAT OPERATION

In addition the ordinance requires that boats be operated "in a careful and prudent manner and at such a rate of speed so as not to endanger the life or property of any person."

No one under the influence of liquor or narcotics may operate a motorboat legally.

The ordinance further requires a 100-foot buffer from docks, rafts, swimming areas, or moored boats when motorboats are operated.

Motorboats carrying skiers must have a "competent" person watching the skier in addition to the driver and must be equipped with a 170 degree wide-angle rear-view mirror.

SCHOOLS, TOURNAMENTS OK

However, those ski provisions "shall not apply to vessels used by duly-constituted ski schools, or to vessels used in sanctioned ski tournaments."

Penalties under this ordinance are a fine of not more than $100, 90 days in jail, or a maximum penalty of both.

Massachusetts Gets 2 in Slaying

CHICAGO (AP) — Two Michigan youths accused of fatally stabbing a student in Massachusetts waived extradition proceedings yesterday in the criminal division of circuit court in Chicago.

Ross G. Whitthoeff, 17, and Craig Simoni, 16, both of Beverly Hills, Mich.,

were transferred to the custody of Plymouth County, Mass., sheriff's police.

Both are charged with manslaughter in the fatal stabbing of Robert D. Phelps Jr., 20, a Boston College student from Wethersfield, Conn. His body was found Thursday near Middleboro, Mass.

Jerry Bouchi, a gas station operator, said the youths told him they wanted some new tires charged to the credit card issued to Phelps, police said.

ROUNDOUBT ROUTE

Bouchi said that when the youths talked about going to Florida, he became suspicious of their roundabout route from the East.

Bouchi put the car on a hoist and telephoned his central credit card office. The office checked with the Phelps family and discovered that young Phelps had been slain.

Chicago police were notified and placed the youths under observation until they could confirm that the youths were being hunted.

Hike Will Go for Operations

Clarkston Schools Tax Rate Is Up 1 Mill

CLARKSTON—The Clarkston Community Schools Board of Education has set its 1968-69 operational tax rate at 21.38 mills.

This is one mill higher than last year, according to Dr. Leslie F. Greene, superintendent, because the board had not used all of a five-mill 10-year tax increase approved in 1966.

Also levied at the recent meeting was a seven-mill tax for the payments of debts. That is the same as last year, according to Dr. Greene.

In other action, the board accepted bids for the planned bus garage.

TROY FIRM LOW

Of the 11 construction bids the lowest was Wake-Pratt Construction Co., of 2033 Austin, Troy, bidding $152,428.

Service Plumbing and Heating of 429 Orchard Lake, Pontiac, submitted the lowest of seven mechanical bids, $43,378. T. L. Jacobson Electrical Inc. of 5344 Highland, Waterford Township, made the lowest of eight electrical bids at $23,113.

The bus garage, designed by Richard Prince Architects of Kalamazoo, is to be located behind the Clarkston High School.

NEW CONTRACTS

The board also agreed on contracts for custodians and cafeteria workers.

Dr. Greene said the new contracts represent 6 to 10 per cent pay increases for the workers.

Pontiac Twp. Still Says No to Bald Mountain Land-Fill

PONTIAC TOWNSHIP—Permission for a land-fill site in the Bald Mountain area has been refused a second time by the Township Board.

Three representatives from the county road commission, Frazer W. Staman, commission chairman, Paul W. McGovern, commissioner, and Paul VanRoekel, highway engineer, appeared to request the site for the land-fill.

The board refused permission by a 4-2 vote.

When the same proposition came before the board in June the county reported it would cost $100,000 to equip the land-fill, and that before opening, Bald Mountain Road would be blacktopped north to Dutton.

FREE USE INCLUDED

Township residents reportedly would have been granted free use of the road-commission site one day a week and the commission agreed at the earlier meeting to pay a $500 annual fee to the township for the privilege of operating the land-fill.

Approximately 50 to 60 people attended the meeting, according to township supervisor Roy Wahl, to discuss the land-fill proposal as well as a request to operate a poolroom in Auburn Heights.

The poolroom request was withdrawn after a discussion, Wahl said.

In other action the board reviewed bids on sewer repair work on Sheffield in Bloomfield Orchards.

The Boam Company of Livonia bid $107,310 for construction of a natural-flow sewer and $88,637 for construction of a pump house, the lowest amount noted.

Wahl said the bids were turned over to engineers who will report back to the board at their meeting Monday.

Young Republicans Urged to Push for House Victories

State Rep. William P. Hampton, R-Bloomfield Hills, last night urged Young Republicans to campaign hard for the November election to insure another GOP majority in the State House.

Hampton told the Oakland County Young Republicans Club, meeting in Royal Oak, that the party faces a tough fight to preserve its 56 seats, a margin of two.

Over 200 members and guests heard Hampton, who retains his membership in the county group, summarize the accomplishments of the Legislature in the last two years. Hampton, House majority floor leader, cited:

- Fiscal reform measures.
- Laws against drunk driving, including implied consent.
- Reduction of Mackinac Bridge tolls from $3.75 to $1.50, beginning Jan. 1.
- Reorganization of the lower courts — elimination of justices of the peace.
- Several measures to combat organized crime and rioting.
- Civil rights including housing measures.

Hampton urged support of two of four propositions on the Nov. 5 ballot, the $335-million bond bill to fight water pollution and the $100-million bond bill for parklands.

He expressed opposition to the graduated income tax proposal. On the daylight savings time issue, he had no recommendation.

At the same time, the Commission instructed City Manager Paul York to contract Van Dine and Brown, Architects, for the project.

In other business the commission awarded bids totaling more than $50,000 for the purchase of two fire trucks and a number of grader blades.

The commission also agreed to send Mayor Jule Famularo to the annual Congress of Cities in New Orleans, La., Dec. 7-11.

'Voting of GOP Belies Platform'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A liberal House Democrat from Michigan says Republican lawmakers would reject the 1968 GOP platform by a wide margin if past votes were any indication of present party sentiment.

Rep. James G. O'Hara of Utica said yesterday an analysis by the Democratic Study Group (DSG), an organization composed of liberal House Democrats, "indicates that three out of four Republican senators and four out of five Republican congressmen would vote against their own platform if it were put to a vote in Congress."

O'Hara said the analysis was based on 64 congressional votes and on past records. He called the GOP party platform a "fraud" and said it was "completely at odds with the Republican record in Congress over the past four years."

O'Hara said the Republican platform emphasized a need to do more in areas of urban crisis, poverty, social security, rural areas, crime and foreign policy.

But the analysis of selective Republican votes in Congress during the past four years, according to O'Hara, showed 90 per cent of the GOP House members and 72 per cent of the Republican senators voting against programs to meet the urban crisis, 75 and 68 per cent against poverty programs, 86 and 68 per cent against educational measures, and 80 and 89 per cent against "crucial foreign policy programs" such as foreign aid loans and the Peace Corps.

He said the other 20 per cent will be donated to the Farmington Area Jaycees' civic improvement fund.

Bailey said that in light of the negative protests being staged against today's society, it is their intention to stage sort of a nonprotester's protest.

Self Care

Oct. 19 wedding vows are planned by Diane Esther Germain and Bruce Marvin Hill. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Germain of Locklin Street, West Bloomfield Township. Her fiance, who is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn., attends Wayne State University in Detroit. He is the son of the Marvin W. Hills of Virginia, Minn.

Why Grow Old?
 by JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

- One way to keep cool physically is to keep your cool emotionally. Violent emotions and arguments are heating. So is hurry. Try to fit your life into a more leisurely pattern, for summer, anyway.
- Go on errands and do your shopping early in the day before it really heats up.
- Here is an old trick I learned when living in the tropics. Open the windows at night, but close them by mid-morning, or sooner. This lets the cooler night air in and keeps the hotter daytime air out.
- Water is cooling. If you do not live near a lake or river and can't get to a pool, or do not want to, then have summer fun spraying one another with the hose in the back yard. This will cool you off for fairly long periods of time.
- Wear clothing that is not only light in weight but also in color. Discard undergarments which are too heavy. There are many very light girdles which also exert some restraint on the figure.
- Stockings are very hot. If you wish to leave them off much of the time and do not have a suntan which looks like hosiery, try one of the body paints or waterproof makeups.
- When women first painted stockings on their legs during World War I, this product was far from perfection. If you get caught in a thunder shower, you didn't get a run in your stockings; they just ran away! To arguments are heating. So is hurry. Try to fit your life into a more leisurely pattern, for summer, anyway.
- Pale summer slipcovers create an atmosphere of coolness and restfulness.
- Long cool drinks are cooling psychologically. However, the experts say that just the opposite is actually true. They are heating.
- Cut down on the heavy, rich foods. These, too are heating. Enjoy the great variety of vegetables and fruits which are now on the market.
- Try to plan many meals which do not keep you over a hot stove. Outside barbecues are a wonderful invention for the little woman. The man of the house usually takes these over.

Cleaning Gloves

Old cotton gloves make ideal cleaning gloves. For instance, when you clean a crystal chandelier, you'll save time by wiping fixtures with both gloved hands dipped in ammonia water.

Sylvan Lake to Mull Stop-Frisk

A stop and frisk ordinance will be presented to Sylvan Lake City Council for consideration at tonight's 8:30 meeting. The proposed ordinance will be similar to the one passed in Detroit, where a policeman can stop and frisk a person upon reasonable suspicion.

The council will also consider clarification of an existing ordinance which bans residents from running drain spouts or putting storm water into the sanitary sewer.

The proposal will give an inspector the right to check any citizen's property to see that this regulation is being obeyed. A delegate and an alternate are to be appointed to attend the annual convention of the Michigan Municipal League, Sept. 17-20 in Lansing.

OCC Board Likely to Aid Ghetto Class

Oakland Community College trustees are expected to approve the school's first step to extend its operations into inner-city areas.

Eighteen Detroit youths are taking an introductory sociology class in the inner city. The night class started last week.

Sociology Instructor Richard L. Smith is teaching the course on his own time and without pay.

The college's board of trustees is expected to lend its assistance to the program tomorrow by waiving the $6 tuition for the course and subsidizing the students to buy books and supplies.

The board is to meet at 8 p.m. in the George A. Bee Executive Office, 2400 Opdyke, Bloomfield Hills.

BATTLE CREEK (AP) — Margaret Caswell, 58, of Battle Creek was fatally injured Tuesday evening when struck by a car in Battle Creek. The driver of the auto involved was not held, police said.

Allies Find, Destroy VC Weapon Caches

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces trying to spoil the third, Vietcong offensive of the year before it can get started uncovered huge weapons caches along infiltration corridors north of Saigon and leading from the Cambodian and Laotian borders, military spokesmen reported today.

Little other activity was reported in the Vietnam war. The U.S. Command said tropical storm Rose cut U.S. air missions over North Vietnam's southern panhandle to 31 Tuesday, the lowest number in more than two years.

In the most significant find, allied forces checking a group of villages reportedly housing as many as 25,000 Vietcong sympathizers 25 miles north of Saigon turned up more than 500 rounds of rockets and recoilless rifle ammunition Tuesday, 72,000 rounds for automatic weapons and five pounds of documents.

Ten Vietnamese trying to escape were killed in a 15-minute fire fight, and 17 prisoners were flushed from the tunnels in the action Tuesday. No allied casualties were reported.

TUNNEL RATS

Using "seal and search" tactics units of the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment put a cordon around the village of Cau Dat with armored personnel carriers and tanks. South Vietnamese and American "tunnel rats"—infantrymen who dig through tunnels—moved in to search the village.

Cau Dat is less than 10 miles north of a big U.S. Army helicopter base and the headquarters of the South Vietnamese 5th Infantry Division.

It was the second productive "seal and search" operation in the cluster of villages north of Saigon in the last five days.

Four miles to the northeast of Cau Dat, allied forces raided the village of Chanh Lau last Friday after sealing it off in a similar manner. That time the allies killed 18 Vietcong troops and seized 114 prisoners and more than three tons of food. The prisoners included 20 North Vietnamese soldiers and were from at least a half dozen Vietcong regiments, some of which took part in the offensives against Saigon in February and again in May.

25 KILLED

South Vietnamese rangers sweeping enemy infiltration routes leading from Cambodia into the Mekong Delta 73 miles west-southwest of Saigon turned up two weapons caches and killed 25 enemy soldiers in scattered fighting today and Tuesday, government headquarters said. The find included 92 AK47 assault rifles, the enemy's standard infantry weapon in South Vietnam; five mortars and assorted mortar equipment; 64 mortar rounds and rockets; a rocket launcher; 60 hand grenades and 80 pounds of TNT.

The rangers said they suffered no casualties. They were sent in to search the area after American B52 bombers dropped nearly 200 tons of bombs on the area. U.S. headquarters reported that the strikes triggered 29 secondary explosions, indicating large-scale destruction of ammunition stores.

Still another cache was uncovered far to the north in the A Chau Valley, bordering Laos, the key infiltration corridor for supplies and troops moving from North Vietnam into South Vietnam's Northern Provinces. Government troops clashed with a North Vietnamese force guarding the cache and killed 10 of the enemy while suffering one dead and two wounded, a U.S. spokesman said. A spokesman said the cache included anti-aircraft machine gun; nine Russian rifles; 22 mortar and rocket rounds; 3,500 rounds of anti-aircraft ammunition and a large quantity of medical supplies.

U.S. officials said that allied forces in recent months have captured equipment for more than 40 enemy battalions.

Watkins needed medical attention. He had shot himself in the foot while attempting a rifle he had stolen from a hunting lodge two hours before.

Baltimore Catcher to Have Operation

BALTIMORE (AP) — Catcher Andy Eltchebarren of the Baltimore Orioles, facing a hand operation Friday, is apparently finished for the 1968 baseball season.

The operation was prescribed Tuesday night after Eltchebarren returned to Baltimore from the West Coast and underwent additional X-rays.

The 25-year-old catcher was injured in Oakland Monday night when he was struck by a foul tip. He suffered a broken metacarpal bone of the right little finger.
