Glyndebourne Picnic Has Oriental Flavor

The Glyndebourne Picnic, now in its fifth year, is sponsored by the Friends of the Library, who conceived the idea to raise funds for library books (in addition to funds provided by the State).

The idea was born when W. Royce Butler, former dean of the Library, and Laszlo Hetenyi, dean of the School of Education, attended the original Glyndebourne Festival in England.

This year's picnic has an oriental theme. Much of the dress and some foods will reflect the Orient, says Peggy Pearce, executive secretary for the Friends of the Library.

"The first year we held the picnic, we released a picture of the festival in England with people sitting on the grass," Peg Pearce said. "We had calls from people wondering if they would be sitting on the grass too."

But rest assured, she says, we eat inside at tables with two dance floors nearby connected by a bridge.

Held at the Meadow Brook Indoor Riding Ring, the picnic will be from 7:30-12:30 p.m. on Sept. 23. Admission is $50/couple for patrons, $30/couple for regular tickets and $25/couple for OU faculty and staff.

Trustees Clarify Loitering, OK Campus Alcohol Ordinance

OU's Public Safety Ordinance regarding loitering was clarified and tightened in Board of Trustee actions Sept. 13.

The new ordinance is consistent with current interpretations of the laws and provides both freedom for the individual and protection of the rights of the individual, Oakland spokesmen say.

The loitering rule states basically that no person shall loiter or prowl on the campus at a time or in a manner not usual for law abiding individuals and under circumstances that warrant alarm for the safety of persons or property in the vicinity.

Circumstances that may be considered in determining whether or not such alarm is warranted include a person's taking flight upon approach of a public safety officer, refusal to identify himself, or attempts to conceal himself or any object. A public safety officer shall offer individuals the opportunity to dispel any alarm which their actions may have caused.

ALCOHOL ORDINANCE OKed

In other action, the trustees expanded and clarified the existing Ordinance on the use of alcohol to include University-approved and controlled social events.

The Board decision now establishes well-defined guidelines and circumstances for the social use of alcohol whenever University officials deem its use appropriate for the circumstances.

Alcohol may not be sold on campus, but the new Ordinance on liquor use states that the lawful possession and lawful and moderate use of alcoholic beverages shall be permitted in the private areas of University housing facilities including rooms, suites, apartments, and private homes and during scheduled and official University activities, in the following locations: Meadow Brook Festival grounds; Sunset Terrace; Meadow Brook Club House; Meadow Brook Hall; residence hall lounges; the Gold Room, South Cafeteria, Sunset Cafeteria, Oakland Room, faculty lounge, Meadow Brook room, and the Abstinence in the Oakland Center; and the University Art Gallery in Wilson Hall.

CONDITIONS SET

University officials said the changes are consistent with new laws which give adult status to 18 year olds, the University's desire to develop the campus as a center for selected social activities, and the opportunity to both enhance the campus programs by including use of al-

Board Accepts $1 Million In Gifts And Grants To OU

OU's Board of Trustees accepted $1,032,471 in gifts and grants to the institution at the Sept. 13 meeting in Varner Recital Hall on campus.

The sums include those contributions processed since the Board last met July 8.

Of the total contributions, $842,649 was received in support of departments, staff, schools, and colleges within the University.

Three grants totaling $271,095 will be administered by Manuel Pierson, dean of Student Services.

They include: $64,305 from Pontiac Division, General Motors Corp. for Project Pontiac, a cooperative school-work program for deserving Pontiac high school graduates attending OU; and grants of $91,500 and $115,290, from the U.S. Office of Education. The first grant is for an academic support program for deserving students at OU (formerly Project 20). The second is to support Project Upward Bound, the pre-college academic support program (including Cadet Engineering Program) for deserving high school students from the Oakland County communities of Ferndale, Hazel Park, Oak Park and Pontiac.

Walk-in Registration Planned Winter Term

OU will switch from the arena style registration used this fall to a walk-in registration for the winter term, Registrar Lowell Ruggles has announced. The walk-in registration was used very successfully last winter term.

Ruggles said the walk-in registration will open in early December and it will have the following advantages over the arena or mass registration procedures: students may register at their convenience and without waiting in long lines; advisers are all on hand to provide assistance; students will be able to leave for vacation Dec. 22 already knowing their schedules and with no obligation to return to campus until classes officially begin Jan. 8.

Anibal House is a dorm with a different kind of population. People in need of short-term housing are finding Anibal House a handy place to drop their knapsacks.

Anibal is used by four basic groups of students: college graduates hired in this area who need a place to live while locating permanently; summer interns in various companies in the area; co-op students who go to school for a semester; and student teachers from other areas placed in nearby school systems.

Singles are available at $15 a week, doubles for $20. So far, said Bill Connellan, asst. to the president, it's a popular program because students feel more at home on a university campus and have all of the University's facilities open to them.

Pontiac Motor was the first to recommend Anibal House to its interns and new employees. Connellan said. Now, General Motors Insti-

Two OU Trustees Reappointed To 8 Year Terms

In the north Detroit area, Chrysler, Burroughs, Korvettes, Sears and Hudsons send new employees and interns. Michigan State and Central Michigan send student teachers now, and Ronald Kevern, director of Placement and Career Advising, is investigating the possibility of more universities and colleges participating.

Jim Morrison, an OU Charter Class graduate and member of the Alumni Assoc. Board is now employed at Pontiac Motor. He was one of the first to put the new idea into practice.

Heroin Clinics Debated: Will They Help U.S. Drug Problem?

The question of replacing methadone clinics in the U.S. with heroin clinics is the subject of a bill pending in the Michigan Legislature.

Senator Jack Faxon, Detroit, sits on the committee reviewing the proposal. He gave his reflections on drug legislation in a Sept. 7 talk sponsored by the OU Office of Drug Education and Abuse.

The bill in legislation is an attempt to transpose the British system for treating drug-users into the U.S. Here, methadone is now given to heroin addicts, but in England heroin addicts are given controlled amounts of heroin.

"One of the driving forces behind the bill is that methadone is just as addictive as heroin. Addicts substitute it for heroin and many believe that methadone should be taken off the market," says Bill Epling, director of the Office of Drug Education and Abuse.

Literature given out with methadone at the clinics now warns users that methadone will cause constipation. If sleepiness, loss of appetite and loss of sexual drive are noticed, it may be a sign of too much methadone.

In England, the heroin clinics work under the principle that heroin, in controlled and pure amounts, is no more dangerous than methadone and does not have methadone's side effects.

The heroin clinics are for people with too great a physical or psychological dependence on the drug. Addicts are given enough heroin to prevent withdrawal, but not enough to produce a state of euphoria.

According to Faxon, if the Michigan bill is passed, the heroin clinics would make compulsory treatment and counseling sessions available.

A major problem in transporting the British system here, Faxon feels, is that there are approximately 3,000 heroin addicts in England and from 100,000-250,000 in the U.S. It is not known whether the clinics will work on such a large scale.

Beyond the legislation, Faxon expressed his views on pharmaceutically produced drugs which are being misused. Amphetamines are abused by older people and barbiturates by the young.

It is hard to get these drugs removed from the market, Faxon said, even though we know that they are being abused and that there are non-abused drugs available to replace them. It is hard because the corporate structure of the U.S. is interlocked. If one part of that structure is attacked, it can bring tremendous lobbying pressure to bear in support of the segment under attack. It is not impossible to remove harmful drugs from the market, said Faxon, although it is a long, tedious process.

coholic beverages under controlled means and to adequately control any excesses which might arise.

Among the many conditions which must be met before alcohol may be served are the following: responsibility to uphold the laws of Michigan and University Ordinances must be shared by the sponsoring group, leadership of the group, and the membership; a group may furnish such beverages only from funds derived from its membership; no University funds including activity fee funds are to be used for the purchase of alcoholic beverages; attendance will be limited to OU students, faculty, staff, and their spouses except for events sponsored by the director of conferences and approved by the director of the building in which the event is held.

Also taken under advisement was the student petition presented by Barry Gillogly asking for the reinstitution of in-patient services at Graham Health Center.

A PIRGIM (Public Interest Research Group in Michigan) request for a voluntary fees collection by the University was again deferred until the next Board meeting.
