SHORT TRIP — A Jupiter missile with 14 mice and two frogs aboard blew up shortly after launching at Cape Canaveral, Fla., today. The flight was to be a test of the effects of space on small animals. Parts of the rocket can be seen flying away from the flames.

Kills 6 on Playground With Suitcase Bomb

HOUSTON (AP) — "A man walks across the street with a bomb and kills children."

W. S. Hawes had just identified the body of his only son.

William S. Hawes Jr., 7, was one of six persons killed when a man pushed a button and blew up a suitcase of explosives Tuesday on the playground at Edgar Allen Poe Elementary School.

Paul Harold Orgeron, 47, pressed the doorbell type button minutes after enrolling his red-haired son, Dusty Paul, 7, in the school.

In addition to young Hawes, the blast killed Orgeron, Dusty, another pupil, a teacher and a custodian.

The 13 persons hospitalized included the principal, Mrs. R. E. Doty, 64. Four children remain in critical condition. Several are in serious condition with leg amputations and internal injuries.

William Hawes and John Cecil Fitch Jr., 8, died as they ran ahead of the class when they were released for recess.

Jennie Koller, 54, a second-grade teacher, and James Montgomery, 56, school custodian, died while aiding Mrs. Doty in trying to persuade Orgeron to leave the school grounds.

Two incoherent notes were found on the playground but police and the FBI could find no specific reason why Orgeron, a former convict, set off the explosion.

STOPPED IN HALL

Orgeron and Dusty entered the school and stopped Mrs. Doty in a hall to inquire about the son enrolling. Mrs. Doty sent them to the office to talk with a clerk, Juanita Weidner.

He told Mrs. Weidner he had just moved into the area from New Mexico, that he was a tile contractor.

"He did not appear to be angry at all," Mrs. Weidner said, "but he did talk rather fast and loud." A few minutes later, the father and son appeared on the playground where about 100 pupils were playing.

Patricia L. Johnston, a second-grade teacher, said Orgeron approached her, handed her two

Mice-Carrying Jupiter Explodes

Missile Lasts for Only 10 Seconds Before It Has to Be Destroyed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A Jupiter missile carrying 14 pregnant mice and two frogs exploded today 10 seconds after launching.

The shot was to have been a test of the effects of space flight on the tiny animals and several other biological samples packed in the nose cone.

The would-be space travelers met a fiery death when the Jupiter blew apart about 1,000 feet in the air.

Pieces of the vehicle fell back on the launching area.

No one in the area was hurt. The 60-foot rocket rose from its pad at 6:45 a.m. It veered sharply off course almost immediately.

As it climbed unsteadily it belched a long trail of fire from its powerful engines. Suddenly it erupted in a huge ball of fire and smoke as it was ripped by exploding fuel.

Flaming pieces of the broken Jupiter showered down on the launchers. It appeared most of the missile pieces landed on the Cape rather than the nearby ocean.

DESTROYED MISSILE

The Department of Defense announced several minutes later that the range safety officer deliberately destroyed the big missile when his instruments detected a malfunction.

Urban Renewal Project Outlined

Pontiac's $4 million urban renewal program — 18 months in the planning stages — came another step closer to reality last night when the final project report was outlined before the City Commission and Plan Commission prior to submission by Sept. 30 for federal approval.

Commissioners learned from Robert A. Stierer, assistant city manager who's coordinating the project, that some 300 families living in 240 homes probably will have to be relocated to make way for the project.

Phase one of the project involves an area bounded roughly by Pike street on the north, Saginaw on the west, Osmon on the South, and an irregular line along Paddock, Perkins and Parkhurst on the east.

At next Tuesday's City Commission meeting a resolution will be adopted forwarding the detailed final project report to the Chicago office of the Housing and Home Finance Agency (HHFA).

Stierer said it probably would take the HHFA and Urban Renewal Administration (URA) two to three months to review the report, make any changes, and return it to Pontiac.

A public hearing will then be held on the project, after which the City Commission must again put its stamp of approval on it. Then back it will go to the HHFA for final approval.

"It is hoped that all this can be accomplished by February, 1960," Stierer said.

"If so," he added, "the carrying out phase of the project can begin, including second appraisals leading to offers to purchase and land acquisition, rehabilitation programs, site improvements, and related matters."

"Experience in other cities indicates that it will require three to five years to carry out all the phases of the project," Stierer told commissioners. They also learned that the federal government's two-thirds net share of the project (the city pays one-third) has been upped to $2,756,940 because the city has been able to add local improvement

Solons' Blunder Worth $5 Million

Legislature Back in Session With a New Tax Headache

LANSING (AP) — A five-million-dollar blunder in the Aug. 29 legislative tax settlement today haunted state lawmakers reconvening after 17 days at home and summer vacation retreats.

The cost of the error, a closely kept secret for more than two weeks, was estimated yesterday by Clarence W. Lock, deputy state revenue commissioner. He said it could be even higher.

Lock and some lawmakers agreed prompt correction was necessary to keep medium and high profit business concerns from reaping an unintended tax windfall.

The process was certain to take a minimum of five days assuming no hitch developed.

COULD ERASE INCREASE

The blunder threatened to wipe out the bulk of the $8,500,000 tax increase the Legislature thought it was placing on business.

"Somebody goofed," said Rep. T. John Lesinski (D-Detroit), a member of the six-man House-Senate Conference Committee that put together the defective amendment to the Business Activities Tax (BAT) Act.

He pointed the finger at Sen. Carlton H. Morris (R-Kalamazoo). Morris denied responsibility and said the error could have been caught by numerous legislators and administrative officials.

The blunder showed up in a section of the BAT revision seeking to extend tax relief to losing and low profit concerns.

It had the effect of giving tax credits up to 25 per cent to thousands of firms not in this

Jovial Premier Takes a Look at U.S. Agriculture

Tries Verbal Fencing With Benson Before Addressing Reds

From Our News Wires
WASHINGTON (AP) — Bouncy and jovial, Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev told Americans today they and the Russians would be better off if they concentrated on peaceful pursuits — such as raising fine turkeys.

"If we don't give a capitalist turkey and a Communist turkey a passport, no one can tell the difference," quipped the beaming boss of world communism during a tour of the Department of Agriculture's huge experimental farm at Beltsville, Md.

If Khrushchev was in a gay mood, his host, President Eisenhower, displayed a more somber outlook. The President told two White House callers this morning he hoped the Khrushchev visit might do some good toward easing world tensions.

Khrushchev, nattily attired and apparently none the worse for wear after the long first day of his historic trip, showed his usual ebullience at the experimental farm. His comment on turkeys came as he looked over an exhibit of prize white turkeys.

The visit to the farm, about 20 miles from here, preceded the Soviet Premier's scheduled major address before an audience of newspaper writers.

The Communist boss, exponent in his own country of thoroughgoing agricultural reform, was told at Beltsville by Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson that capitalism helped the American farmer develop food production to a degree unequalled anywhere in the world.

"Our farmers are free, efficient, creative and hard working," Benson told the Soviet chief. "I like to call them the salt of the earth — truly good people."

Benson explained to Khrushchev — who has predicted the Soviet Union's agriculture some day would help create a living standard superior to the American — how the United States has achieved its present agricultural level.

"CONSTANT INFORMATION" He explained to the visitor how there is "constant give-and-take

Mrs. Nikita Khrushchev Wears Her 'Best' Gown

FROM OUR NEWS WIRES
WASHINGTON — Mrs. Nikita Khrushchev brought modest grandmotherly elegance to the White House last night.

But Christian Dior might not have thought so. If the late high priest of fashion had seen the Soviet first lady at the White House dinner, he probably would have described her as "dowdy" in a room full of exquisitely dressed guests.

Mrs. Khrushchev wore a teal blue, taffeta-like gown with a black thread running through the fabric. It had a low "V" neck and a fairly narrow skirt with no folds, pleats, or fancy arrangements.

A large gold rimmed brooch with green and white stones decorated the center of her dress. She carried a black beaded evening bag. Her graying hair was groomed in a soft, long page-boy style. On her lips was just a touch of lipstick.

But the Soviet premier's wife looked her very best, and it was obvious that painstaking preparation had gone into her appearance.

We Should Raise Turkeys and Forget War - Nikita information between government scientists and those in private industry.

Khrushchev invited Benson to take along farmers and agricultural scientists when the secretary visits the Soviet Union soon.

Benson said he hoped he could talk with Soviet farmers the same way Khrushchev can be able to talk to the American ones when the Russian leader visits Iowa next week.

At one point Khrushchev told Benson agriculture is basic to human existence because "the first thing one does when he gets up of a morning is to eat."

"You would make a good farmer," replied Benson, himself an ex-farmer.

"I could compete with you," retorted the grinning Khrushchev, who began his career as a shepherd boy and miner.

After the Beltsville exchange, Khrushchev re-entered a black limousine with Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and official guide for the Soviet chief's tour.

For the trip to the agricultural station Khrushchev wore a natty tan suit - possibly one of those he had imported to Moscow from Italy - an off-white silk shirt, brown tie and brown shoes. The jacket displayed his Order of Lenin and "Hero of Socialist Labor" medals.

Khrushchev was said to have prepared in advance the speech he would read to an audience made up of members of the National Press Club, the Women's National Press Club and the overseas writers.

But he consented also to subject himself to questioning after the formal address, possibly the most important of his 13-day visit.

Places were reserved at the luncheon for his wife, Nina Petrovna Khrushcheva, and the two daughters accompanying him on the tour, Julia and Kada.

President Eisenhower had about two hours of private conversation with the Soviet leader late yesterday.

The talk had been described as candid, and today the President was expressing some hope of results.

All television networks arranged to carry Khrushchev's address and the question period following it.

On the 20-mile drive into Maryland, few people were out to see the Premier. Perhaps there were two or three hundred, all told. None of them applauded.

eads is that they don't know what the Russian prime minister will be doing during the free time on his schedule. Another headache is the probability of mass picketing by various anti-Communist and refugee organizations.

Three of the Soviet Union's top intelligence agents also are traveling with Khrushchev's official 70-man party, keeping a trained and watchful eye on everything around them.

Stories Don't Agree

MOSCOW - Moscow newspapers told readers today Washington's welcome to Premier Nikita Khrushchev was the greatest in the history of the American capital.

Stories appearing in Pravda and Izvestia said the Soviet leader was greeted by "friendly shouts" and "stormy applause" from a smiling crowd so big "there was not even a place to drop an apple" on the street.

"Not even the end of World War II brought such a sea of people onto the streets of Washington," said the Communist party organ Pravda.

Traffic was halted and policemen guarded all bridges.

The Soviet leader saw a collection of low income houses in southeast Washington, drove by the city jail, and got a reminder of America's military power in six olive-drab tanks on a railroad flat car.

Besides the Beltsville trip and the Press Club appearance, Khrushchev's schedule today called for an informal get-together at a "tea" given by members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at 5 p.m. and a dinner for President and Mrs. Eisenhower at the Soviet embassy tonight.

He will leave Washington tomorrow morning for New York City and a cross-country tour that will take him to six American communities. He addresses the United Nations Friday.

Former President Harry S. Truman said today he has declined an invitation to attend a reception for Khrushchev tomorrow evening in New York.

Reason: He's got a date to dine with his daughter and son-in-law.

Upon his return to Washington on Sept. 24, Khrushchev and Eisenhower will hold another series of discussions at the President's heavily-guarded Camp David, Md. retreat.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met today to draft a flexible agenda for those talks.

Chemistry Set Blast Shatters Youth's Hand

A 17-year-old Walled Lake High School senior almost lost his left hand and was burned about the chest and stomach Tuesday afternoon when a chemistry set experiment exploded at his home.

Raymond Zaleski of 895 Laguna Dr., Wolverine Lake Village, was transferred from Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital last night to Harper Hospital, Detroit, where specialists are trying to rebuild what remains of his hand.

The youth was packing an explosive compound he had concocted into a lead container to use for underground demolition work, said Det. Sgt. Leo Haven of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The mixture exploded, shattering the container. Wolverine Lake police rushed Zaleski to the hospital. He had been alone at the time of the accident.

His father told Haven that the boy had "been fooling around with chemistry sets since he was six years old."

Any business with over 50 per cent of gross receipts going into payroll this would be entitled to a 25 per cent credit on tax.

The "real trouble here," Lesinski said, "is that tax relief would be afforded to many firms that need it least."

category—besides the ones lawmakers intended to reach.

Lesinski said it was the same as if Congress would allow a person to take the 10 per cent standard deduction on his federal income tax and then, on top of this, to deduct for dependents, charitable contributions and so forth—rather than one or the other.

In somewhat the same fashion, businesses in computing BAT liability for tax credit purposes could take the standard 50 per cent of gross receipts deduction always allowed plus deductions for payroll costs and personal property depreciation expense.

The other two speakers are Dr. Christopher Sower of MSU, whose subject will be "The Community as a Social System," and Richard F. Huegel, managing director of the United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit. His topic will be "Social Welfare Planning in the Modern Community."

Details of the day-long program were made yesterday by a planning committee headed by Robert Langer, assistant director of the Pontiac Area United Fund, which met at MSU.

The program itself is designed primarily for social agency volunteer leaders, board members and professional staff, clergy and church volunteer leaders of Macomb and Oakland Counties.

Dr. Ravitz will moderate the panel whose discussion will take up the major portion of the morning's agenda.

The Institute will focus on the theme, "Dynamics of the Modern Community."

Based on the premise that the "community of today is a very complex structure," the purpose of the seminar is to familiarize the citizen with social, economic, political and physical factors in the modern community.

It is also formulated "to show the interdependence of these factors and to enable the citizen to draw upon this knowledge in arriving at enlightened decisions."

Following luncheon in the new Student Center cafeteria, the conference will break up into groups to discuss the panelists' presentations.

The separate groups then will return to the general session to present two questions each to the panel for further clarification.

Love May Hold Back Michigan Legislation

LANSING (UPI)—It's unlikely there will be a legislative session Saturday.

Sen. Edward Hutchinson (R-Fennville), chairman of the Senate Business Committee and the one who usually gets the time for meetings, is getting married.

Hutchinson will marry Janice Caton, clerk in the Senate Appropriations Committee, at the Haslett Community Church at 2 p.m.

Friday night shoppers will see a racing exhibition when the Miracle Mile 14 Midjets perform at 9:45. There will be more than 50 cars in action on the center track.

All stores will remain open daily from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. All of the special shows are free.

4 Specialists to Speak at MSUO

By LEE WINBORN

Four specialists in modern community development will be featured speakers at the "Volunteer Leadership Institute" to be held at Michigan State University Oakland beginning at 9 a.m. on Sept. 29.

Dr. Melvin J. Ravitz of Wayne State University will talk on the "Social-Economic Factors of the Modern Community," and Dr. Noeland Heiden of the Oakland County Planning Commission on "The Physical Structure of the Modern Community."

The other two speakers are Dr. Christopher Sower of MSU, whose subject will be "The Community as a Social System," and Richard F. Huegel, managing director of the United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit. His topic will be "Social Welfare Planning in the Modern Community."

Details of the day-long program were made yesterday by a planning committee headed by Robert Langer, assistant director of the Pontiac Area United Fund, which met at MSU.

The program itself is designed primarily for social agency volunteer leaders, board members and professional staff, clergy and church volunteer leaders of Macomb and Oakland Counties.

Dr. Ravitz will moderate the panel whose discussion will take up the major portion of the morning's agenda.

projects credited as part of the city's net share.

This today stands at $1,378,470, to be paid for by so-called non-cash local grants-in-kind projects such as improvement of the Clinton River, parking lots, a main fire station, the loop perimeter road, and others.

"We're aiming for a very favorable financial plan for the city whereby its costs will be made up by these projects," said Jack Driker of Geer Associates

"LONGHAIR" GETS CLIPPED—Celebrated U. S. "longhair" musician, Leonard Bernstein, gets clipped at an open air beauty parlor surrounded by Russian visitors at the American Exhibition in Moscow. Director of the New York Philharmonic, Bernstein jokingly asked for a haircut at the beauty parlor, and was promptly taken up. He was the only man to use the beauty parlor, which was designed to show U. S. hair-styling and beauty treatment to Russian women.

U. S. on Credit Card Jag; Most Carriers Honest

CHICAGO (UPI)—The United States is on a credit card jag the likes of which have never been seen—but it works fine because the plain fact is most people are honest.

An estimated 70 per cent of American families hold credit cards or have charge accounts of one kind or another.

In modern America many of the man—and woman—who now carries cash only for tips and to buy the daily papers.

How does it work? A man who is up to his neck in the credit business, Carl Hobbes, general manager of the Credit Bureau of Cook County (Chicago) Inc., says 85 per cent of card holders pay their bills promptly.

Of the other 15 per cent, most are not crooked, he says—just "problem children" who overestimate what they can afford. A mere three per cent of credit card users, Hobbes estimates, are deliberately dishonest.

Hobbes' firm employs 140 persons to keep its files up to date on two to three million credit applicants. They check Federal tax liens and municipal court judgments, and clip newspapers for character-revealing stories about drunken driving or refusal to testify before Congressional committees.

600,000 PROBE
Last year the bureau investigated the records of 600,000 persons all over the country. If an applicant has established charge accounts, the procedure is comparatively simple.

Within minutes a credit bureau can report the date the applicant was investigated, his largest purchase and his "pay habits."

The bureau relays these and other pertinent facts, and the subscribing organization then decides whether its credit requirements are satisfied.

Hobbes advises his clients not to explain why credit is refused, but to refer the applicant to the Credit Bureau "which is happy to go over the record with him. Sometimes we can straighten out why a bill hasn't been paid and reestablish credit," he said.

Wealth is not always a guarantee of good credit, he said.

Hobbes recalled an applicant with an annual income of $100,000 and a $50,000 home who was refused a charge account at an expensive Michigan Avenue store on the basis of the Credit Bureau's report. He arrived at Hobbes' office fuming and threatening suit.

LET WIFE WORRY
"But he had to admit he had allowed his charge accounts to go unpaid for as long as 216 days," Hobbes said. "He said he wanted to make his wife worry about the bills."

Petroleum companies and organizations like the Diner's Club or American Express have the most rigid requirements, Hobbes said.

Their credit cards amount to blank checks, he explained, with no security but the character of the applicant.

Occasionally a bad risk slips past the Credit Bureau's close scrutiny. One of the major oil companies now is trying to track down a card holder who ran up a bill of $20,000 in one month, Hobbes said.

Credit bureaus increasingly are going into the collection business for their clients, he continued, but the day of the traditional bullying bill collector is past. The agent smiles as he requests payment of an overdue bill.

"The average person wants to pay his bills," according to Hobbes. "We're collecting over $50,000 a month just by salesmanship—selling the family on the idea that it's character that counts."

Hope to Keep Leaning Tower From Falling

LONDON (UPI)—A British engineer said Tuesday he has worked out a plan which may prevent one of Italy's most famous tourist landmarks from becoming "The Falling Tower of Pisa."

Fordham Pryke visited Pisa recently at the request of municipal authorities to consider means of securing its leaning tower, now 13½ feet out of true and tilting more dangerously each year.

Pryke said his plan envisions jacking the 17,000-ton tower back to a lean of 9½ feet—still perceptible but considerably less dangerous than the present angle—and settling it on a new foundation.

He said he will send his proposals to Italy later this week.

Install French Canadian as Governor General

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canada got a new governor general Tuesday. He is Maj. Gen. George P. Vanier, the first French-speaking Canadian to hold the post. Prime Minister John Diefenbaker hailed his installation as a milestone in Canadian unity.

Vanier, 71, a retired lawyer, scholar, soldier and diplomat, succeeds Vincent Massey, as the personal representative of Queen Elizabeth II in Canada.

Massey, 72, retired after 7½ years as the first Canadian in the largely ceremonial job. Vanier was installed in Canada's Senate chamber.

Spain's Economic Fight Welds Him In Franco's Position Solid—Now

(This is the third of four dispatches on Spain today.)
By HENRY F. SCHULTE
MADRID (UPI)—The future of Spain hinges on the success of an ambitious fight for economic stability which began in mid-July, and no one knows it better than the opponents of the regime of Francisco Franco.

They are clearly aware of the long-term repercussions of the plan, whether it succeeds, fails or falls somewhere between.

But for now, they admit that the plan has knocked out any hopes for a change of regime in the near future.

Earlier this year, Franco's foes, especially Spain's monarchists, expressed hope that economic catastrophe might topple the Caudillo within a fairly short time.

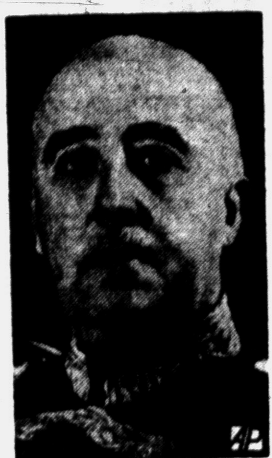

OPTIMISM FADES
But by mid-summer, their optimism had changed to resignation.

On July 20, the Franco government announced the first in a series of drastic measures aimed at overhauling the national economic setup and putting new life into its international commerce.

Part of the program put Spain in line for massive injections of foreign aid, an estimated 900 million dollars.

This was a blow to Franco's opponents.

"We had hopes that no aid would be forthcoming, or that it would be made contingent on a change in regime," a top monarchist spokesman said. "The aid has given the Franco regime a new lease on life."

On that, there was agreement among all elements of the opposition—but on little else.

For instance, there are the extremists, including the nation's small but well-organized Communist Party, who presumably desire complete failure of the government's attempts to bolster the sagging economy so they could capitalize on the political chaos that would follow.

For that reason, the monarchists and socialists do not want complete failure.

EYE, PARTIAL SUCCESS

But realizing that an unqualified triumph would entrench the Caudillo more firmly than ever, they hope for a partial, nonspectacular success.

If that happens, the middle-of-the-road opposition believes, Franco may tire of facing the problems of ruling Spain and arrange for an orderly and early succession.

Most "middle-roads" believe that the logical step after Franco would be restoration of a king to Spain's vacant throne.

The monarchists, who form perhaps the largest segment of the opposition, look upon the return of a king as the ultimate solution to the question. "After Franco, what?"

The socialists, on the other hand, look upon the restoration of the monarchy as no more than a transitional step toward a socialist-democratic state.

But there is one thought that is common to all shades of the opposition!

Any change in Spain's leadership will be made whenever and however Franco wants it.

Meany Calls for Labor Vote

Declares Union Men Should Ignore Their Party Affiliation

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, says union men should disregard party affiliations.

He told the International Labor Press Assn. Monday that labor figured it had done well last year in helping elect Democrats to Congress, "but, another victory like that might ruin us."

Passage of the labor law revision indicated he said, that organized labor should support its friends whether they are Democrats or Republicans.

He asserted that labor is on the defensive and must step up its political activities.

Meany blamed James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, for congressional approval of the labor legislation.

In referring to labor's enemies, he said he particularly had in mind Southern Democrats. Some Sulphur is used in the manu- The rate of consumption is tra- of these, he said, "are more con- facture of some 32,000 products, ditionally a barometer of a coun- servative than any Republican." ranging from toothpaste to steel. try's economy.

Bread Has Long Colorful History

Most Primitive Cultures Had Some Form of Staff of Life

WASHINGTON — Man has been eating bread for at least 10,000 years without growing tired of it. Primitive peoples first ate the seeds of wild grains, then learned to grind them into a crude flour. No one knows when the first bread was made, but the Swiss Lake Dwellers already had developed a baking industry 10,000 years ago, the National Geographic Society says.

The lake dwellers mixed pulverized wheat, barley, or millet with water, rolled the dough into sheets, and baked it on hot stones. Like other early breads, it was unleavened.

Egyptians apparently discovered that bread could be lightened by letting the wheat dough ferment to create gases. Triangular loaves 7,500 years old have been found in Egyptian tombs. Bread was the principal food and often was used to pay wages.

Ancient Greeks also baked a leavened bread, but in the Golden Age they preferred a coarse barley cake.

Baking was an important industry in classic Rome. By 100 B. C. there were more than 250 bakeries in the capital. Two centuries later, Emperor Trajan established a school for bakers.

Bread was given away as a sop to the populace, leading the famous satirist, Juvenal, to write that Romans required only two things: bread and circuses.

In Australia's Arnhem Land, aborigines grind water lily seeds to paste, mold it into loaves, and bake it. The bread is palatable but heavy and coarse.

American Indians of the Pacific slopes made a flour from acorns which they soaked in boiling water. The flat cake was cooked in the sun.

The natives of the Moluccas, or Spice Islands, cut out the starchy pith of the Sago palm for a wholesome but relatively tasteless bread.

The Wai Wai Indians of British Guiana in South America grate the poisonous cassava root into pulp, squeeze out the deadly juice, and turn the meal into crisp, thin cakes.

In the United States, 14 billion pounds of bread are consumed each year. Most is the soft, white variety or standard bread. Bakers call all other kinds, even whole wheat and rye, "specialty breads."

One of the most special specialties contains dates, oranges, lemons, apricots, peaches, and prunes.

In mythology, a three-headed dog, Cerberus, guards the entrance to Hades.

CALL ON ALL — Standing beside the oak tree emblem of the P.T.A., Mrs. James C. Parker of Grand Rapids, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, prepares to sow symbolic acorns in an effort to extend P.T.A. membership beyond the 12 million mark. She urges P.T.A. members to "call on all."

Says State Can Still Be Tops

Stress the Positive, Executives Are Told by Consumers Official

CHARLEVOIX (UPI) — Michigan can regain its role as the nation's leading industrial state if the citizens accept the challenge, and both business and labor fight for what is fair for all, Robert P. Briggs, executive vice-president of Consumers Power Co., said Tuesday.

Briggs told the Association Executive of Michigan at their meeting here that Michigan's citizens should accentuate the positive to overcome unfavorable publicity about the state. They should emphasize the news of progress, he said.

Briggs also called upon business people to take an active part in political affairs, and to encourage their employees to do the same — no matter what their political affiliations.

The formation of a state chamber of commerce, now under way, Briggs said, is an important forward step in increasing the voice of businessmen in state affairs.

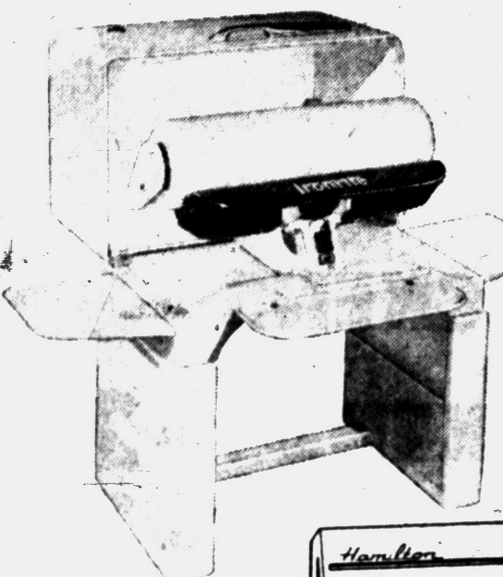

Monday he'll see a sign erected for him by a housing development. In English and Russian it reads: "Every person in this new Los Angeles, California, is a five, along Bayshore Freeway next happy home owner."

Rest, Shoppers, You Can Thank Local Merchants

Shoppers can now take a load off their feet on the sidewalks of downtown Pontiac. Ten redwood benches have been purchased and set up at points on Saginaw and Huron streets by the Downtown Merchants' Association.

"We have heard several complaints that there isn't any place in downtown Pontiac where shoppers can sit down for a few moments," explained George Richman, association president.

"So we bought the benches and designated their positions, and the Department of Parks and Recreation installed them with the comfort and convenience of shoppers in mind," Richman added.

The association got approval for the project from the city commission and hopes to add more benches in the future if the present ones aren't misused and the project receives favorable comment.

All 10 benches are located on Saginaw within two blocks on either side of Huron and on Huron just off Saginaw.

Steel Strike Hasn't Hurt Michigan Much

DETROIT (UPI) — Michigan so far has felt only a limited effect of the nationwide steel strike, according to the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

Except for about 17,000 workers immediately idled in this state when the walkout started 64 days ago, only another 2,000 have been idled because of the strike.

The MESCC said these included railroad workers, truck drivers and craftsmen on Detroit-based ore carriers.

However, Michigan construction projects and some industrial plants will be closed if the strike lasts two more weeks.

In the course of each year, the City of Vienna commissions major works from nearly 200 painters and 150 sculptors.

Would Require All Cars to Have Speed Lights

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—State

Sen. William V. Mullin has introduced a bill that would require every car in Pennsylvania to have a system of outside flashing lights that would indicate speed.

Mullin said the lights would be visible to the driver and anyone within 500 feet of the vehicle.

He explained that one light would come on when the auto reached 30 miles an hour, a second light would flash for 40, a third for 50, and a fourth for 60. When the vehicle reached 70 miles per hour, a red light would flash.

Kiwanis Urged to Plug Safety

Those at Convention Are Told of Mounting Danger on Highways

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan Kiwanians have been urged to join a "nationwide, combined and vigorous campaign to promote safety on the highways of America."

The plea came from Cecil L. Morris of Springfield, Ill., a trustee of Kiwanis International, in a speech to the 42nd annual convention of Michigan Kiwanians here Monday. The state has 148 Kiwanis Clubs.

"With a continuing heavy increase in automobile traffic, and with more and more new expressways and turnpikes," Morris said, "some immediate action on the part of service clubs is needed to help curb highway deaths and the maiming of our people."

"There are campaigns against the spread of cancer, polio, cerebral palsy and many another such scourge, but we have neglected the tragedies of the highways."

"Why, we haven't even scratched the surface in any all-out effort to halt highway accidents."

Almost 100,000 persons per year are disabled in highway accidents throughout America. That means a million of our population are being crippled by automobile crashes every 10 years.

Frank G. Staiger of Port Huron, Michigan secretary, was presented a check by District Governor Sidney F. Mann of Harrison "to help defray your expenses on your coming vacation trip to Scotland."

Norstad's Daughter to Wed Childhood Friend

PARIS (AP) — Kristin Norstad, daughter of Gen. Lauris Norstad, Supreme Allied Commander for Europe, will marry a childhood friend Thursday.

The bridegroom is Nicholas Weston Crow, an amateur pilot and sports car racer. He is the son of Mrs. Demas T. Crow of Charlottesville, Va.

His father was a U. S. Air Force colonel from Traverse City, Michigan who was killed in action at Port Lyautey, Morocco, in 1942. He was posthumously awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Both Miss Norstad, who is 21, and Crow, 22, were born at Ft. Jay, N. Y.

Miss Norstad, who has attended schools in the United States and Europe, made her debut in Washington in 1956 and a year later in Paris. She has lived here with her parents for the last nine years.

Crow was graduated from Princeton University this summer. He will enter the Johns Hopkins School for Advanced International Studies in Washington in October.

Prisoner Sends Blind Girl Chest of Gifts on Birthday

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI)—Little Cynthia Solano, who is blind, celebrated her fifth birthday with a surprise party to which the host couldn't come.

The unexpected "party" began when an express truck unloaded a huge package at Cynthia's home.

Inside were a cedar chest with "To Cynthia on her fifth birthday" burned into it, and a variety of hand-made leather items, including a purse, belts, key containers and wallets. There was even a purse for her mother.

The card accompanying the gifts had the name of the donor—and his prison number.

Warden Harry C. Tinsley of the Colorado State Penitentiary didn't think it so unusual.

"We have had many cases where articles in newspapers telling of people who have suffered serious injury or illness or other trouble have prompted prisoner reaction."

Many inmates, for example, are willing to contribute blood.

Motorist Hits Parked Cars: Was Seasick

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Seasickness was listed on a police report as the cause of a motorist striking two parked cars.

Officers said the 32-year-old driver was treated at a hospital for his ailment. He told police he and his wife attended a movie entitled "Abandon Ship." After about an hour of high waves and storm-tossed ships, he said he became ill and went out to his car while his wife saw the rest of the film.

An attack of nausea struck him on the way home and he lost control of the car, the man told officers. No one was reported injured.

Grand Rapids Republican to Be Sworn In Today

LANSING (UPI) — Martin D. Butch, Grand Rapids Republican, will be sworn in today as state representative from Kent County.

Butch was picked in a special election to fill the vacancy created by the death of Rep. Glenn Hunsberger (R-Grand Rapids).

The swearing-in will give Republicans a 55-54 membership edge in the House.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams is expected to call a special election to fill the vacancy created earlier this month by the death of Rep. Charline White (D-Detroit).

'Citizens' Group to Meet Monday

Romney Calling First General Gathering on State Problems

DETROIT (UPI)—George Romney, American Motors president and head of the "Citizens for Michigan" committee, said today the group will hold its first general membership meeting Monday in Lansing.

Romney said more than 300 citizens from 78 communities have indicated they plan to attend the meeting at the Lansing Civic Center.

The vigilante-like committee, spawned in the eight-month tax deadlock in the Legislature, will be presented with a four-point program aimed at solving Michigan's ills.

A temporary sub-committee will propose:

—What services do Michigan's citizens need from their state government?

—How should needed state government services be paid for?

—How should the state government be structured to carry out its responsibilities?

—What can be done to accelerate Michigan's economic growth and its cultural and social development?

The first mass-meeting program also calls for election of permanent officers and directors and agreement on problems to be studied.

Best Education

Better Hold Down Sports for Busy 'High' Student

By DR. BENJAMIN FINE and JULIAN FINE

At the beginning of the ninth grade, your boy or girl must decide at least tentatively whether to prepare for college, a business career, or prepare to enter a skilled trade.

If your child is certain he does not want to go to college but does want a business or technical or technical career, it may be worth while to let him continue to the nearest city where appropriate training is available.

But if a youngster is undecided about what he wants to do after high school, the college preparatory course is probably the best choice.

Subjects studied in the ninth grade are considerably more difficult than those studied in the seventh and eighth grades. All pupils continue to study English. Pupils who find the selections too difficult may require a reading guide for serious literature.

Parents can assist by talking about the play and stories, helping youngsters to appreciate their quality.

BIOLOGY IS BASIC
College preparatory students usually take biology, taught as a laboratory science. Many pupils enjoy the laboratory work but fail the final examination.

Parents can help by discussing the subject, showing youngsters how to take notes and review, having quiz games on scientific subjects, and arranging field trips.

A good many schools now require college preparatory students to take mathematics in the ninth grade. They usually take elementary algebra. Encourage your child to play with mathematical puzzles and riddles. The nations need for trained mathematicians and the rich opportunities awaiting them should be pointed out.

College preparatory students usually begin their study of a foreign language in the ninth grade. Whichever language your young child chooses, he may have difficulty.

Parents who have studied languages can help a good deal, but even if you haven't you can help your youngster by asking him the meaning of words in his homework assignment. There are some reasonably priced record albums that can be helpful or perhaps you can purchase a foreign language newspaper or magazine which your child can take to class.

The big thing is to show your interest in the child's progress and let him know you are proud of him.

CHOOSE "TOUGH" TEACHERS

By the eleventh grade your youngster is carrying a really heavy scholastic program. He needs all the encouragement you can give him.

A large number of pupils leave school at the beginning of the eleventh grade. They give all sorts of reasons but seldom admit the most common one, inability to do the work.

We all want our own children to take a good high school program.

with courses in general education as well as specialized ones. President Eisenhower makes these recommendations:

"Each child should be required to take four years of English, three or four years of social studies (including two years of American problems or American government, one year of social science) and a year of mathematics (algebra or general mathematics)."

Along with a choice of courses, many schools permit students to choose their teachers at least in later high school years. Parents can encourage youngsters to choose the "good" teacher. "The teacher who makes you learn."

If there are two geometry teachers and one of them has the reputation of being top-flight, ask the principal to have your child assigned to the good one. In some schools the principals may resent your interference, but informed parents have a right to this type of interference.

STUDY THOSE GRADES!
Any parent who sincerely wants his child to get a good education will study each report card carefully and discuss it with his youngster.

Most report cards carry a notation asking parents to discuss the card with the school authorities. Do you accept the invitation? If you do, you are the exception.

What can you do if it seems likely that your son or daughter will fail a subject?

For certain youngsters, one failure may be truly an educational experience. It shocks them into getting down to work.

A child should not be allowed to fail repeatedly, however. Worse than the loss of time in school may be the psychological effect.

What can you do if a youngster really tries but for some reason can't seem to comprehend a subject? It may be poor teaching, it may be that the student was absent or not feeling well when key concepts were taught, or it may be that the subject is beyond the child's comprehension. At this particular age, when all else fails, you might consider getting special help for your child.

TRUANCY A SIGN
One rather reliable indication that a youngster is having trouble in school is repeated truancy. If a "talking to" doesn't bring about an improvement, perhaps the youngster should transfer to another school or find courses more in line with his interests. Perhaps he should go to boarding school.

There is another major cause of failure in high school: neglect of practice in the basic skills of reading, spelling, arithmetic and written English.

High school pupils need to broaden and deepen their reading ability. They need encouragement to keep reading for pleasure.

Secondary schools often provide a wide variety of extracurricular activities, such as sports, clubs and social affairs. We are convinced that in this a youngster can steer a middle ground. To be a "grind" is not healthy. Nevertheless, the primary purpose of going to school is to learn. Let us put first things first!

College officers are seldom impressed by the applicant who has barely passing marks and a long string of extracurricular achievements.

Luebke Is Second Head of West Reich

BONN, Germany (UPI)—Heinrich Luebke took the oath as the West German Republic's second president Tuesday and pledged the country anew to fight for a united Germany.

Speaking to a joint session of parliament, Luebke said what was uppermost in the minds of all Germans on this 10th anniversary of the founding of the republic, and the 10th anniversary of Konrad Adenauer's accession to the office of chancellor.

"We Germans know only one Germany," he said.

Luebke, 64, agricultural minister in Adenauer's government for six years, succeeded Theodor Heuss, 75, whose second five-year term ended Saturday.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTERE, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath." Get FASTERE at drug counters everywhere.

Jet Boat May Change Industry

Has No Propeller or Rudder; Powered by Stream of Water

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The newest wrinkle in boating, America's fastest growing sport, is a "jet-propelled" runabout whose method of power could conceivably revolutionize the industry.

Propellerless and rudderless, the boat is driven and steered by the force of a tremendous stream of water which is sucked through a vent in the bottom and shot out a special device in the stern.

The water exit looks somewhat like the end of an oversized garden hose with big deflectors at the nozzle which guide the boat when pulled either left or right by the steering wheel.

The craft, known as the Beuhler Turbocraft, is built by the Indiana Gear Works in Indianapolis from a New Zealand design.

According to local distributors, the Turbocraft is from every point of view the safest thing of its size and type ever to cut the water.

Charles M. Byrne, vice president of Jet-Craft here, said the absence of a propeller permits the boat to travel in four inches of water or less. And there's much less danger to swimmers than from a boat with a propeller.

"As long as there is water for propulsion the boat will go anywhere, including over sandbars

ARLYNE FRANK... housewife-actress takes leading role in "The Music Man."

Back to the Mop, Mom

Stage a Cinch? 'Tain't Necessarily So

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (U)—Housewives—would you chuck mop and dish towel for the glamorous life of the Broadway stage?

Come along, and see how it's done. It's a cinch, if—

You can sing, dance, have fresh good looks, and have worked hard in off-Broadway shows, on the summer circuit and on television.

The latest heroine of the real-life Broadway success story is Mrs. Jack P. Green, wife of a Yale University pharmacology professor.

You may know her better as Arlyne Frank, playing the lead role of Marian the librarian in "The Music Man." She recently replaced Barbara Cook opposite Robert Preston.

"Despite what you may have heard otherwise, there's only one way to get a job," says Miss Frank, "and that's to work hard. People think there are all kinds of short cuts—there aren't any short cuts."

She spends more than three hours a day commuting between New York and New Haven and her two lives of Broadway star-to-be and Yale faculty wife.

What about hubby? "If he should object," says the little lady, "I don't imagine I would work."

But she adds quickly that there is no danger of that. The question of her career was settled—with an understanding it would continue—before their marriage last fall.

Besides, she says, "he's very excited and very proud."

Or, as she commented about her decision to leave her native Minneapolis, Minn., "The performing bug just was too strong—somehow I felt I had to go on with it."

Like many singing careers, Miss Frank's began during childhood. "I've always sung—all my life," she says, "and I guess a performer needs an outlet. Eventually I found myself thinking about getting into it professionally."

It wasn't long before she was in New York City, working in the fashion service department of a magazine and taking singing lessons on the side.

"When I arrived I knew I needed more work," she says.

A year later she decided she was ready to make the theatrical rounds. Within a few months she had her first job—a lead in an off-Broadway review.

Then came other off-Broadway parts, major roles in 20 summer circuit musicals, and television—soap operas, serious dramas and the lead in the "Omnibus" production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Trial By Jury."

She was considering a summer tour in "H.M.S. Pinafore" with Martyn Greene, a veteran savoyard, when the job in "The Music Man" opened up. She owes much to her stock company experience—including her husband. While playing in New Jersey last summer, she was introduced to a young man who had come down from New Haven to watch a friend in the show.

That's right, it was Dr. Green. Time did the rest.

P. S. She still spends time pushing that mop, and twirling that dish towel.

Telephone Association Opens Annual Confab

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI)—The annual convention of the Michigan Independent Telephone Assn. opened here Tuesday.

About 400 persons from independent telephone companies throughout the state are expected to attend the three-day meeting.

Snake Sings for Dinner, Gets Death Instead

ROME, Vt. (UPI)—Mrs. Myra Treglow Stansell was walking in her backyard on her way to feed the chickens when she heard a pleasant sound like something or someone "singing."

Mrs. Stansell looked in the direction of the sound just in time to see a rattlesnake. She leaped back before the reptile could strike.

The five-foot snake, who apparently was "singing" for his supper, just didn't have a chance. Mrs. Stansell summoned a neighbor and they shot the snake with a shotgun.

Just to make sure it was dead, they fired several rifle bullets into the snake's body and beat it with a large stick for good measure.

PIE-WORMS

A FAMOUS AFTER

Pickering, non-pickering and a tormenting pestal fish are often told tales signs of Pin-Worms... fully parasitic that medical experts say infect one out of every three persons examined. Before larvae may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pills must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do... and here's how they do it.

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredients go right to work—kill Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for Jayne's P-W Tablets... the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm diseases for over 100 years.

'Shear' Torture for Customers

Barber College Clients a Nervous Bunch, but Service Is Free

By CLIVE JOHNSON
United Press International
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—There's a barber shop in San Francisco where the barber is often too nervous to chat and the customer is often too nervous to listen anyway.
It's the Modern Barber College, where you can get a free haircut and shave by playing the guinea pig for student barbers.
The school is owned and operated by E. M. Robinson, still spry at 87 and a veteran of 33 years in the barbering business.
"I had to start the hard way," Robinson said. "At the age of 13 I began on the ground floor of this profession—by scrubbing it—for an old German barber in Odessa, Mo."
Robinson's teaching techniques are modern but the school itself has an archaic charm. The 30 students share four wash basins, plumbing facilities are noisy and shaving lather is whipped up in elderly soap mugs.
The college officially charges 75 cents for haircuts, but there's no fee much of the time. The student Army sends over volunteer "models" for the beginner students.
Occasionally a part-shaved customer gets the whips and angles as the student bears down on him with unshedding straight razor. One novice barber said two of his "patients" jumped out of the chair and fled without letting him remove the lather.
Robinson, who said he published the first book on how-to-do-it barbering in 1900, likes to think that his students have the freedom to develop their talents. But he still keeps three instructors roaming the shop to make sure they don't get into trouble.
Though beginning barbers are patiently instructed in the delicate art of shaving, it seems to be going out of fashion, Robinson said.
"Frankly," he sighed, "barbers are just too darn lazy nowadays to give a man a shave."

THE SHORT AND THE LONG — Shorter girl in the Miss America lineup this week is Miss Atlantic City, Phyllis Geraldine, who is only five feet, two inches tall, with measurements of 35-21-34. Tallest is Miss Florida, Nancy Purvis, who is five feet, nine inches tall, with measurements of 35½-23½-36. Miss Atlantic City serves as hostess and is not eligible for the Miss America title.

Hal Boyle Says:

Actor Has Profile Problem

NEW YORK (AP)—Actor Edward Binns has two profiles—and can't decide whether this is a curse or a blessing.
It all came about as the result of a nose broken in his youth.
"If I turn my head one way, I look like an honest cop," he said. "If I turn it the other way, I look like a hood."
"But is this good or bad?" he asked.
It's good to the extent that his double profile has helped keep Eddie one of the busiest actors in the craft. In the last two decades he has appeared in five Broadway plays, 15 movies and some 400 television shows.
It's bad, he feels, in that producers too often cast him in police or hoodlum roles. Gifted with one of the most memorable faces in show business, his problem has been to make his name as well known as his face.
"People on the street mistake me for someone on the FBI-wanted list," said Binns. "Detectives tell me I look just like a detective. That's funny to me, because no real detective I ever met really looked like me."
A peaceful man by nature who served as an armament officer in World War II, Eddie is a former instructor at Pennsylvania State University. He is married and has three daughters.

BOYLE

"I've had to fire guns hundreds of times, and every time I pull the trigger it startled me. I wonder what I am doing with a gun in my hand. After all, I was raised a Quaker, and have a distaste for violence," he said.
Binns achieved star status this summer playing a detective lieutenant in a new CBS network show.
The program got off to good critical acclaim but has been dropped by the sponsor. Its fate is dependent on whether CBS can find another sponsor and time slot.
"We're trying hard to put the emphasis on character," said Eddie. "There are a million shows that don't. We tell real stories about real people who happen to be cops, but without mock heroics of any kind."
"They complain about too much violence on television. In the first 22 shows I haven't shot one man. I did punch one fellow in the stomach, and I kissed a girl. Is that too much violence?"
"But still we were dumped, even though we had good ratings. The reason given was that the public doesn't want a show that faces up to life, and shows life as it is. They say the public only wants to escape life."

New Oil Well at McBain May Revive Boom

McBAIN (UPI)—The on-again, off-again oil boom in this Missaukee County community was on again Tuesday.
The boom started early this summer when two wells were brought in. The strikes touched off a number of wildcatting ventures in the area.
Then the boom died down when a third drilling attempt proved to be a dry hole.
But the fourth attempt was a success. Officials of the gas and oil division of the Michigan Conservation Department say the new well, which is flowing naturally at the rate of 10 to 12 barrels an hour, "looks like a nice one."
Oil was struck at 4,451 feet, a foot and a half deeper than the first well which is now producing about 100 barrels a day.

Ski-Jump Made of Plastic Snow

ROME (UPI)—A couple of Italian scientists have created an artificial ski-jump with a kind of plastic "snow" that looks like pressed spaghetti.

The "Trampolino Plastica" was constructed at a little winter resort town in northern Italy and was recently made the official training jump for Italian Olympic skiers. In nearly 12 months of testing, it was proved to be faster and safer than a jump of real snow.

It is made out of prefabricated panels of plastic which looks like multi-colored spaghetti pressed flat in wormy cross-cross pattern.

Huge Skywritten Cross Floats Over Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—A sky-written cross a mile and a half long floated over Washington Tuesday as Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev drove into the city.
Nicholas T. Nonnenmacher, president of Christianism, said that Anti Communist Information organization hired a New York skywriter to put up the cross in white smoke "just as a symbol of our faith."

Gas Would Make Leaders Irresponsible

Brief Case Could Win War for Reds

WASHINGTON (NEA) — An inconspicuous man with a brief case could openly walk into the Department of Defense, put his brief case down near an appropriate vent in the ventilation system and cause the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Secretary of Defense, and all their assistants to lose their sense of reality for hours.

The "brief case" would be filled with a new Russian chemical.

That gas would act so subtly that neither the joint chiefs nor anyone else would realize what had happened to them. It would make them just irresponsible enough to not care what was happening.

It would cause them to use flip-flop judgment in deciding on crucial issues. But it wouldn't make them obviously "out of whack."

In a time of crisis, that could be disastrous to the United States.

And it could be done by one Red agent—pretending to be a salesman, a newspaperman, or a repair man. The Pentagon doors are open to the public five days a week; the vents are also open. A brief case full of the gas would be enough for the entire Pentagon.

Or another ordinary-dressed man could sit quietly in a visitor's gallery of the U.S. Senate. He could have in his pocket a small squeeze bottle no larger than one a woman uses to spray lacquer on her hair.

A few silent squeezes—with the bottle never leaving his pocket—and the whole Senate would be breathing this gas. They'd turn quietly, inconspicuously irresponsible. Suppose again, this was a time of international crisis.

Again, it would be impossible to know what had happened. Who would be able to say to the chiefs of staff, or the defense secretary, or to a bevy of senators, "You have been gassed, your judgment is irresponsible?"

Or suppose a few whiffs of this gas were circulated at the proper time in the ventilating system of the White House?

Or suppose Red airplanes spread a fog of this gas over an American Army in the field just before a crucial battle—either in World War II or in a Korea-type "brush war."

WIDE AREA
American experts estimate it would be practical to spray an area say 10 miles by 20. The troops—and their commanders—would then probably wander off irresolutely in all directions, without a care in the world. The Red armies would have no trouble advancing, American troops would become a laughing stock.

These are not dream chemicals. They are part of a new series of gases the Russians are now working on. U.S. intelligence men report these mentioned above are already in the laboratory stage, and could be used in small quantities.

Other—even better ones—are being worked on experimentally. They should be ready in the next few years.

Indications the United States is not ignoring development of such gases came in recent testimony by retired Gen. William Creasy, former head of the Chemical Corps.

He told a House committee that biological or psycho-chemical warfare could be waged with "devastating force" with gases the enemy "couldn't see, smell or feel." He advocated the U.S. announce it has these weapons and intends to use them in event of war.

The effects of the gases known now will last for a few hours. Scientists say work now is aimed at gases which will have effects that will last for weeks. These seem practical.

Present gases, in fact, are just the beginning.

PRESS SEARCH
The Soviets are searching for a whole battery of chemicals to do a wide range of jobs. They want chemicals that will paralyze men temporarily, chemicals that will make men "cooperative," chemicals that will make men run in fear. There's one chemical in the works that will make a man not want to do anything at all, another that will make him think he's violently sick for a while—even though he isn't.

NEW ARMY GAS masks could protect soldiers from the new gases, but since they can't be tasted, smelled or seen, no one would know when to put on the masks.

These chemicals could be delivered by agents. One man could carry enough in a small case to take care of all the officials in a key building, using its ventilation system. The chemicals could be delivered by ballistic missile, or by plane.

There's little or no danger the whole U.S. would be sprayed with these particular chemicals. They are not practical for large areas. But they would be suitable and extremely dangerous on the battlefield—and for key factories, headquarters and offices.

At present, the U.S. has no real defense. A few of these dangerous chemicals are known. Many others are not. No one knows which the Russians will use.

There's no quick way known to detect them, no way quick enough to be of much use anyway. And there is no known antidote for many of the possible chemicals the Russians might use to make Americans afraid or irresponsible or jittery.

Hastings May Purchase Building for City Hall

HASTINGS — City council is studying an offer to buy an insurance firm's building and two lots for $65,000 to use as a new Hastings City Hall.

Attorney Paul Siegel was instructed to plan for a bonding election on a proposed purchase from Hastings Mutual Insurance Co. The firm's two-story brick building is located across the street from the present city hall which was built in 1896.

Insurance firm officials said if the transaction is approved, their company would buy the bonds at less than current interest rates. The firm, celebrating its 75th anniversary next year, then would build a new Hastings home office as part of an expansion program.

Adult Education Helps

Ease Your Tensions at School

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Space age tensions got you jumpy? Then try going back to school this fall.

That's the opinion of National Education Assn. experts who help design and promote adult education courses.

They believe the program is essential to the personal well-being of Twentieth Century Americans.

The tensions for which these experts view adult education as a do so in the near future. Many cure have little to do with the troubled world situation.

Ironically, they stem from a new life-booming economy, an increasing amount of leisure time and not plan easy living.

Arthur C. Burman, Assistant Executive Secretary of the National Association of Public School Adult Education, declares:

"A large segment of the American population has already attained their economic goals. They have the material things that they want out of life. Sooner or later, they start asking themselves, 'Now what?'"

Burman says that many persons fail to develop enough interests outside of their jobs. When they become successful and don't have to work so hard, they don't know how to use free time.

Resulting restlessness often leads to tensions that can damage health and happiness. Doctors have indicated that such tensions with hearting a strong nation disease and mental illness.

Sociologists blame them for delinquency, crime and other social problems.

Burman explains that state government departments and, putting more courses and encouraging state and local organizations increased participation in them. Teaching techniques include television, correspondence courses and classroom instruction.

He believes the courses should include all academic subjects in addition to hobby courses that are already widespread.

Agreeing with him is Adult Education consultant Bill Van Orman. He believes more courses are needed for millions of retired persons. Fifteen million Americans already have retired or plan to retire in the near future. Many are completely bewildered about how to adapt themselves to their new life.

Burman believes special courses for retired workers should include tips on how to live on a retirement income and how to maintain proper health. They also should be taught hobbies to help make proper use of leisure time.

Such courses already are being sponsored by public school systems of several New York cities. Others, aimed at workers who are nearing retirement age, have been started by industrial firms.

Another group of Americans which the experts believe would benefit from an adult education program are the nation's 10 million illiterates.

This covers all persons who have no more than a fourth grade education. The education association to tensions that can damage health and happiness. Doctors have indicated that such tensions with hearting a strong nation disease and mental illness.

About 40 million Americans already are taking part in adult education. Courses are sponsored by colleges, public school systems, and private organizations. Teaching techniques include tele-

Poised Before Spectators

Mrs. K. Fresh Upon Arrival

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mrs. Nina Petrovna Khrushchev looked fresh and collected upon her arrival Tuesday despite a tiring 12-hour jet flight from Moscow.

Mrs. Khrushchev was poised and smiling as she walked with her husband from the giant Russian TU114 plane which brought them to this country.

President Eisenhower greeted the Russian first lady with the words "I am delighted to meet you." But Mrs. Eisenhower was not on hand to greet her.

No slight was intended. Mrs. Eisenhower was merely following her practice, observed even when Queen Elizabeth made her state visit two years ago, of first greeting foreign dignitaries at the White House.

The grandmotherly wife of Russia's premier broke into a wide smile when one of the Russian embassy children, following the Russian custom handed her a big bunch of red roses at the airport.

Mrs. Khrushchev sat to the President's left in the rear of an open limousine for the drive into town. She smiled and waved continually to the crowds.

Mrs. Khrushchev and her family apparently did not expect the Indian summer weather which greeted them on their first visit to this country. They were dressed in fall attire.

Mrs. Khrushchev was wearing a heavy blue-gray suit, sober black hat and black shoes.

Mrs. Khrushchev and her daughters, 42-year-old Yulia and 29-year-old Rada, drew considerable interest from the spectators who watched their arrival.

One young woman in a light yellow summer dress said while waiting on a streetcorner for the motorcade to appear, "I am not interested in Khrushchev. I want to see his wife. They say she never wears a hat."

Child Growth to Be MSU Prof's Topic

Dr. Guy Hill of Michigan State University will speak on the question, "What Can We Do to Help Our Child Grow Up?" at the Central Elementary School PTA meeting to be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. The group will meet in the school's multipurpose room.

All present members and those interested in becoming members have been invited to attend the meeting and to assist the PTA in developing a closer relationship between parent, teacher and student. Fathers especially have been invited to attend.

Refreshments will be served following the program.

Variety of Art Forms Opens Group's Season

Stages in the development of murals in the Penobscot Building in Detroit, inspirational sketches of a ceramic sculpture that won first prize in the United Nations garden contest and a series of exhibits in every imaginable form of art highlighted the opening of the Bloomfield Art Association's fall season Sunday.

The premiere of the show included displays from each of the association's nine instructors.

A painting and drawings for five murals by Clifford West are on exhibit. Stressing the value of art in city planning, West illustrates how a commission can become a heritage.

Svea Kline, who created a tile mural at the Detroit Broach Company in Rochester, is showing sketches of it and also "Girl With Peach Bird," a ceramic sculpture that won first prize in the UN garden contest.

Dorothy Siddall is showing a number of still life arrangements from which she has painted abstract canvases.

Other instructors showing their work are Albert Mullen, Walter Ludwig, Kathleen Birch, Mary Jane Bigler, Mildred Williams and dancer Claire Levine.

UNMATED ART

A permanent feature of the association will be a portfolio of unmated art that is for sale to the public. Its contents will vary from month to month and will include watercolors, prints, drawings, casein and gouache and photographs.

Artists who will contribute to this portfolio are Joseph and Ray DeFrancisco, Frederick Simmer, Albert Mullen, Carolyn Hall, Susan Bolt, Dorothy Siddall, Jane Kilgour, Mary Ellen Dohrs, Svea Kline and the Birmingham Women Painters.

Mrs. Al E. Sanders and Mrs. L. Jerome Fink were chairmen of the show. Assisting them were Mrs. Joseph Oros and Mrs. James L. Coquillard.

SHARON D'ARCY

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin D'Arcy of North Anderson street announce the engagement of their daughter, Sharon, to Air Force Lt. Winston Boyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Boyer of Myrtle street. An October wedding is planned.

We Must Be Crazy

Even Our Fruit Juicers Have Fins

By MARY PRIME

NEW YORK (UPI)—We Americans have become so car-crazy that we want everything to look like an auto, says an industrial designer.

"Vacuum cleaners have tail fins, fruit juicers have tail fins, and so do outdoor motors," said J. Gordon Lippincott, who is a partner and co-founder of a design firm here.

"That's just the first of a long list of design clichés which are derivative of auto styling but not always appropriate to the function of the product," he added. "Look at the run of ads for small appliances in any magazine or newspaper."

"Time was, when radiator grills were found only on the front end of the family transportation. Now you find the same motif on everything from gas heaters to radios. Chrome strips and two-tone color jobs are just as common."

Who is at fault — consumers or designers?

"Both," Lippincott said. "Americans are primarily interested in Active Products—products that, like the automobile and the airplane, go places and get things done."

BLAME SOCIETY

Our society determines taste, the designer continued. In the middle ages, people primarily were interested in spiritual values and the life to come. Their creative energies went into Gothic churches and illuminated manuscripts.

"While we of 20th century America haven't totally abandoned the contemplative, our aims are different. The more things a given product does and the more efficiently it does them, the more we admire it," he said.

Automobiles, phonographs, and household appliances are essentially a coordinated blend of many of the same mechanical processes, he explained. So it's natural that their visual appearances reflect this.

But designers also must shoulder some blame for falling into "unnecessary ruts" just because they think "people will insist on an air-conditioner that looks like a box in the window or a car that looks the way cars have always looked," Lippincott said.

"Who knows? Someday we may have a car with the four wheels in different positions or an air-conditioner that looks like a room divider of graceful sculpture," he concluded.

Nikita Gets Formal Service

Dinner on Gold Plates

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, made no concession to American Standards of formal dress, at turkey and more than the usual trimmings Tuesday night at a White House state dinner.

Although the affair was as formal as Washington can get, Khrushchev arrived wearing a black business suit and a gray silk four-in-hand tie.

He appeared to be wearing the same suit, shirt and tie that he had on earlier in the day. At least they looked alike.

The Russian visitors mingled with a group of dinner guests as varied as the White House could make it—from the mayor of Des Moines, Iowa, to the president of the New York Stock Exchange.

ON GOLD SERVICE

The elaborate dinner on the White House gold service was followed by a musicale featuring more Americana for the Russian leader — a performance by Fred Waring and his "Pennsylvanians" singing old-time and familiar American songs.

Sitting at the head of the big E-shaped table with President and Mrs. Eisenhower, the premier and his wife enjoyed a turkey dinner made elaborate to fit the formal occasion.

Leading off was melon with prosciutto ham followed by curry soup with whole wheat Melba toast. Then came molded crab Louis with cole slaw in a tomato basket and Boston brown bread sandwiches.

20 RUSSIANS INVITED

The roast young turkey came next, accompanied by corn bread dressing, gravy, whole cranberry sauce, scalloped sweet potatoes and pineapple, French green beans almondine, and bread sticks.

Tossed bibb lettuce Parmesan topped by "Green Goddess" dressing and toasted sesame crackers followed the turkey and, in the last spot, came lime glaze with lady fingers, and nuts, candies and coffee.

Twenty Russians were included in the dinner for 100, including the Khrushchevs' son, two daughters and son-in-law, the Russian ambassador, a group of Russian officials and a Soviet newsmen.

Also present were Vice President and Mrs. Richard Nixon and Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson and Speaker Sam Rayburn. Other members from Congress were Republican Sen. Hiram L. Fong and Democratic Rep. Daniel K. Inouye, both of the new state of Hawaii.

FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover and Allen W. Dulles, chief of the Central Intelligence Agency—two men most concerned with combatting communism—also were guests.

No Coffee Breaks

Never Neglect Exercise

How would you like to do this on your coffee break—exercise! In Russia, instead of coffee breaks there are exercise breaks lasting from five to seven minutes, and it has been proven that they lessen fatigue and increase productivity.

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Yesterday I mentioned my recent visit to the Russian Exhibit at the Coliseum in New York City where I interviewed some of the people who were here from Moscow. I was interested in learning about the sports they enjoy and their program of Physical Culture.

Football is their most popular game. This is not like our football but like our soccer. This is literally a game of the masses. Practically every school, factory and village in the Soviet Union, has its own team. More than a million players take part regularly in official games.

Make no mistake about it, the Russians have an extensive physical fitness program and they take it seriously. The Soviet Union is constantly increasing the sums it spends on this. Physical fitness is considered a matter of great national importance and it encompasses all age groups.

There are two branches of Physical Culture in the Soviet Union. There is the official or state branch and there is also the voluntary branch. I have been informed that the number of factory and office workers who take part in sports increased by almost four million during 1956 alone.

Instead of coffee breaks there are exercise breaks in many of the factories of the Soviet Union. These last from five to seven minutes and it has been proven that they lessen fatigue and increase productivity.

BGTO BADGE

To show you how imbued the Russians are with this idea I will tell you that school boys try hard to get the BGTO badge which gets its name from the Russian words which mean "Be ready for Labor and Defense."

The Russians do not play golf but they ski and skate and play football, tennis, and ping pong.

When I think of all the conveniences we have and of all the cars we have — when I remember that our teenagers don't like to walk a mile unless they are running a mile in competition — I am convinced that we have a great need for our President's Physical Fitness program.

Five Concerts Scheduled by Cranbrook Guild

Robert Gerle, Hungarian violinist, will perform at the first concert of the Cranbrook Music Guild's winter series Oct. 21.

The series of five concerts continues with the traditional Young Artists Concert Nov. 21 featuring winners of 1959 Grinnell Scholarships. Iris Ball, mezzo-soprano winner of the 1959 operatic scholarship, and Karen Louise Taylor, winner of the 1959 piano scholarship, will perform.

For the third concert on Jan. 26, the Guild has scheduled the Detroit Symphony Wind Quintet. Composed of Detroit Symphony soloists, this group has made numerous appearances in the Detroit area and was a star attraction at Cranbrook Gardens Summer Music Festival this year.

The Netherlands String Quartet will appear at the Feb. 23 concert. This will be the only local appearance for these virtuoso musicians, all members of the famed Amsterdam Concertgebouw Orchestra.

The final concert of April 26 brings back Mischa Kottler, Detroit's well known concert pianist. This will be his second appearance with the Music Guild.

This final program will be held in Kingswood School Auditorium while the first four concerts will take place at Cranbrook House.
