PIRGIM Reports On Toy Safety In Local Stores

"Tis the season to be wary, fa la la la la...," began a recent article in PIRGIM's Progress concerning toy safety. PIRGIM's Progress is a bi-monthly publication of the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan.

This year, Michigan's PIRGs joined with students in nine other states to conduct a survey of stores for toys banned by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) or unsafe according to the criteria of the Federal Child Protection and Toy Safety Act.

Rochester stores surveyed

In the Detroit-Rochester-Pontiac area, students covered Crowley's (Detroit), J.L. Hudson's (downtown), Sears-Roebuck (Oakland Mall), J.L. Hudson's (Northland), S.S. Kresge's (Northland), Woolworth's (Northwood), Chatham's (Rochester), K-Mart (Rochester) and FAO Schwarz (Somerset Mall).

Findings indicated some officially banned toys in 40 per cent of the Michigan stores visited, and in all of the above stores.

FDA list called inadequate

Students also concluded that the "FDA 'banned toys' list is a grossly inadequate guide to unsafe toys. It includes only a minute fraction of the dangerous playthings manufactured, imported, distributed and sold for our children's use. For every banned item we found in stores, we found more than two that had identical faults, but were not listed as banned."

Course Offers Chance for Honest Community Help

Care to take a course that puts students in the middle of the action? It's not guaranteed to "make you feel good" about helping social injustices, but it is designed to help cure those injustices.

Community Service 200-201 is an eight-credit, two-semester course offered through the Dept. of Urban Affairs.

Students are placed in social agencies in an area of interest to them and must accept responsibility for their own degrees of commitment to that program's goals. Ten hours/week is required at that agency, and two hours/week in class.

Classroom sessions are loosely structured, but basically compliment the student's placement experience with systematic analyzations. Students in many different placements are free to share views and goals.

A statement of objectives issued by the Office of Urban Affairs says that "OU is comprised of many white, middle and upper-class students who call themselves 'concerned.' These white students feel that because they go into the inner city and hold hands with a welfare client, they have done their bit for society. OU is also comprised of many Black students who turn their backs on the Black community once they reach campus, and sit in the dormitory spouting rhetoric about what the establishment isn't doing when they themselves aren't involved in social action."

The heart of the community program "is to get inside a social change agency and learn how it functions. It is being able to constructively criticize and offer viable alternatives. It is learning how to systematically analyze an agency or organization to determine if it is doing all it claims to be doing. It is suggesting approaches to positive change."

Students may be placed in drug abuse programs, draft counseling programs or educational services working with bilingual students, drop-outs, retarded and gifted students.

Community organization programs deal with tenant groups, welfare rights, credit union programs and consumer education. Grass-root direct-help programs assist needy families in getting food stamps, clothing and housing. They provide emergency help to deal with evictions, fires and robberies.

Research and analysis teams explore city and county government,

Student Wins Administrative Position

Elaine Petz

Elaine Petz is the new Alumni Director at OU, replacing Katie Thoresen, who resigned last month.

William Connellan, assistant to President O'Dowd, named Miss Petz the new director last week. She is responsible to Connellan and the Alumni Board of Directors.

Miss Petz will graduate this month in psychology and is presently a student intern in the Office for Student Organizations.

As a student intern, Miss Petz helped make policies, write proposals and carried out projects from planning to execution stages. "My intern position was invaluable in helping me learn about University administration," she said.

Attorney General's Office Issues Holiday Consumer Warnings

Season's warnings come right along with Season's Greetings this year. Attorney General Frank Kelley's office issues nine consumer warnings to help make the holiday season a happier one.

-"Resist buying from temporary or seasonal businesses. They may pull out immediately after Christmas, leaving no word of their whereabouts.

-"Do not 'help' your neighbor by accepting packages for him unless you have specific instructions and authorization -- you may be obligating him or yourself to something unwanted.

-"Do not accept any C.O.D. package unless you know its contents and/or sender.

-"Beware of 'free gift' offers which may be tied in with a required purchase of an unwanted and overpriced item.

-"Unordered merchandise is a free gift under both Michigan and Federal law -- don't be pressured or conned into paying for something you did not order. -"Take the same care of credit cards as you would with cash.

-"Beware of 'extra income' ads -- in most cases they cause more trouble than they're worth. Do-It-At-Home projects are invariably designed so that only the seller makes money -- yours!

-"Do not do business with a company unless their reputation is known. If there is any doubt, check with the Better Business Bureau, the local Chamber of Commerce or Consumer Protection Division, Office of the Attorney General, 670 Law Building, Lansing, Mich. 48913

-"Keep all sales slips and ask whether deposits on lay-aways will be forfeited if the merchandise is not picked up. Also, be sure of the terms of each sale -- can there be exchanges or is the sale final?"

Former ADA Director Takes OU Actor And "The Contrast" To New York

New York play director Anthony J. Stimac is a man of his word.

Two years ago, when he directed the ADA in what was believed to be one of the first revivals of the first native American play ever presented professionally, Stimac vowed to take it to New York.

Not only has he taken "The Contrast" by Royall Tyler to the off-Broadway stage, but he has brought the male lead from his Academy production to star in the 200-year-old Revolutionary War classic.

Drawing critics' acclaim for his role of the strong and true Col. Manly is 1970 Academy graduate,

Robert G. Denison, now an established actor.

Jack Gaver, UPI Drama Editor, praised Denison as "particularly outstanding" in his portrayal of the prototype American officer.

And, although most reviewers had mixed emotions about the play itself, Stimac received plaudits for his "good direction" and for his ability to "keep things moving at a quick pace."

Clive Barnes, New York Times drama critic said,"...The play, which reads rather stiffly, emerges with surprising spirit on the stage."

It was in the spring of 1970 that Stimac was brought from New York to direct "The Contrast" for the Academy's Studio Company of which Denison was a member at the time.

The play was staged four nights at the University and then was taken on tour of area high schools and playhouses.

Stimac had such fun directing the production which ended with a giant-size pillow fight that he vowed then to take it on to New York "someday."

"The Contrast" is now playing at the Eastside Playhouse in New York.
