Ford Plunges Into Race for Halleck Post

Predicts He'll Have a Good Majority of House Republicans

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan plunged into a contest with Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana for the House minority leadership today with the prediction he will have "a good majority" of the 140 GOP members on his side.

Ford, now chairman of the House Republican Conference, sent a telegram to all other GOP members announcing his candidacy and promising to use all "House Republican talent, energy and dedication" if elected at a Jan. 4 caucus.

Ford, 51 and a congressman for 16 years, subsequently told a news conference that canvases of the membership indicate "a good majority will be on our side." He said he has "an excellent response" to his announcement.

Ford and Halleck, 64, are regarded as equally conservative. But Ford had been pushed forward by a group of House members pressing for a more vigorous image in the House leadership.

In announcing his candidacy, Ford said the issue was not one of party philosophy or policy.

NEW LEADERSHIP
"It is a question of having new, dynamic, bold, innovative leadership," he said. "It is a question of using all of the talent that we have available among Republicans in the House."

Ford said that, if selected, he intends to make each of the 140 Republicans "a first-team player" in the party strategy and policy.

He said he would want each member to be a "60-minute man" in playing the game of opposition to the Democrats.

What the Republicans need, Ford said, is "new ideas in party strategy on the House floor and in communication with the people of the United States."

FORGIVING ALLIANCE
There were some reports, meanwhile, that supporters of Halleck and of the embattled GOP national chairman, Dean Burch, were forging an informal alliance to keep both men in their jobs.

Ford said in his telegram to other House Republicans that "during the next two years our performance as Republican congressmen will have a great impact on the future of our party."

Upton, an attorney with Dr. James Hodges, assistant director of the State Mental Health Department, asked for an auditor general's investigation of the claims of overcharges to patients for items ordered through the hospital store.

Walter McCabe, an attendant at the hospital for the past 18 years, made both charges.

"They have been handicapping the people who favor the administration to testify," he said. "They didn't ask me."

McCabe said between 17 and 19 inmates with venereal disease or suspected of having the disease were locked up without food from late Friday through Sunday.

CAME ON DUTY
He didn't know about the situation until he came on duty Sunday and a patient complained to a visitor, McCabe said.

Then, said McCabe, somebody from administration told him "for God's sake, get those men fed."

Seek to Heal Panama Wounds

U.S. Launches Quest for Canal

WASHINGTON (AP)—A historic pact which the United States hopes will heal old wounds while the original canal becomes a relic of bygone days.

The new canal is to flow at sea level through Panama or a neighboring country, and will probably put the old passage way with its expensive locks out of business.

The troubled 1903 treaty with Panama is to be scrapped soon in favor of a new pact which the United States hopes will heal old wounds while the original canal becomes a relic of bygone days.

President Johnson went before television cameras yesterday to read his landmark announcement the United States will now "press forward in earnest" to achieve the long-discussed goal. He announced:

• Secretary of State Dean Rusk will start talks with three or four countries which have potential canal sites — Panama, Colombia, Nicaragua and perhaps Costa Rica — looking toward agreements with any interested in obtaining the new route. Then on-the-spot engineering surveys will be made in those countries signing agreements to decide which site is best.

• "An entirely new treaty on the existing Panama to replace the half-century-old pact that gives the United States Canal Zone rights 'in perpetuity.'"

The new treaty would retain U.S. rights needed to run and protect the present canal, but it would recognize Panama's sovereignty and would end when the new canal opens.

That would mean an end to U.S. control of the 10 by 50-mile Canal Zone strip as exercised under the 1903 accord.

Yesterday's announcement climaxed lengthy talks between the United States and Panama begun after the bloody anti-American riots there last January.

Panama's president Marco A. Robles hailed it as "a historic day" for his country.

Frank summoned a next-door neighbor, Herbert Robertson, 34, who ran to the Cox home. "We could see Mrs. Cox beating at this front window," he said, "but it was too high for us to reach from the ground."

JAGGED GLASS
The woman eventually forced her way out through the jagged glass, and then tried to run back into the house before being restrained.

Neighbors described the Cox family as "closely-knit and happy."

"They did things together," said one friend. "Cox used to load the whole family in the station wagon and take them out for drives."

"There seemed to be a tremendous bond between them all," he said.

Passing the hat, they collected from among themselves over $100 to buy Christmas gifts for young wards of the court at the Children's Center.

The money was presented to Juvenile Court director James W. Hunt and presiding Circuit Judge William J. Beer by juror LeRoy Warnock of 2406 N. Williams Lake, Waterford Township.

Family's Home Guttured by Fire

DETROIT (AP)—A suburban Warren steelworker returned home from his part-time cab-driver job today and found six of his nine children dead in a fire that gutted the family's two-story home.

"Six of my babies are gone... I've lost six of my babies," sobbed Elbert Turner Cox, 40, when told of the tragedy.

He was taken immediately to a Detroit hospital where his wife, Marie, 25, was reported in critical condition and his three surviving youngsters were under observation.

Killed in the fire were Marie, 25; Mary Jo, 7; John, 6; Diane, 4; James, 3, and Charles, 18 months.

Police said the surviving youngsters were saved because of the quick thinking of one of them and because of an eclipse of the moon.

CAUSE UNKNOWN
Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined, but Warren Fire Marshal Don Cockerline said it apparently started in a downstairs utility room.

The oldest of the Cox children, 18-year-old Elbert Jr., told police he was awakened shortly before 3 a. m. by a "muffled explosion."

Elbert, who slept in a second-floor room with his brothers, Frank, 10, and Thomas, 8, awakened the other two.

He then knotted sheets and blankets together for a rope, and helped his brothers out the window.

INTENSE HEAT
Intense heat prevented him from warning other members of the family, Elbert said, and he was forced to jump from the window.

The window was open, he said, because he had earlier been watching a lunar eclipse. The other windows were frozen shut.

Frank summoned a next-door neighbor, Herbert Robertson, 34, who ran to the Cox home. "We could see Mrs. Cox beating at this front window," he said, "but it was too high for us to reach from the ground."

Mouse Nest Cause of Fire?

Nursing Home Blaze Fatal to 20 in Indiana

FOUNTAIN TOWN, Ind. (AP)—A mouse nest could have caused the fire that destroyed a 60-year-old nursing home, killing 20 elderly patients, a state fire inspector said today.

Howard Boeghouth, deputy state fire marshal, said the fire nest could have been above an oil furnace where he believed the blaze started.

The predawn blaze spread through the two-story, frame McGraw Nursing Home so quickly yesterday that most of the victims were trapped in bed.

Firemen and volunteers from communities surrounding this town of 300, southeast of Indianapolis, fought the fire and limited water supplies to control the fire and rescue survivors.

ESCAPED INJURY
One patient escaped injury, and the rest were hospitalized with smoke inhalation and exposure.

INSPECTOR SAID
The inspector said the furnace was operating at full power because of the cold and said "it's possible a mouse nest in the walls smoldered because of the intense heat."

10 Children Die in Dixie Home Fires

By The Associated Press
A total of 10 children died in two home fires in two Southern states last night.

Five children of Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne D. Lafferty were killed when flames destroyed their rural frame house near Marked Tree, Ark.

The children ranged in ages from 7 to 16. Seven other children in the family were saved.

Five children died near Kingston, N. C., when a blaze swept through a five-room frame house where 14 persons were sleeping.

Four children of the Mrs. Verda A. Spencer family were killed along with a cousin of the family. Six other children, all nieces and nephews of the Spencers, were saved.

Mental Health Funds Okayed for County

Oakland County became the first area in Michigan yesterday to gain state approval for a large-scale mental health services program.

The State Department of Mental Health approved a $307,105 budget for the first six months of 1965.

Oakland County Community Mental Health Services Board was informed of the state's approval yesterday.

William H. Wagner of Berkeley, finances chairman, reported that Dr. Robert A. Kimmich, state mental health director, sent by letter approval of a "package" program for which the state will appropriate $151,553 for the first half of 1965.

Oakland County Board of Supervisors appropriated the other half in October, as provided under Public Act 54 (Community Mental Health Services Act) of 1963.

In January the board will launch an initial program that includes: an outpatient clinic, a limited inpatient clinic and a center to receive and refer patients to the proper agency.

The board also plans to recruit psychiatrists to see patients referred by the center after a diagnosis is made.

A rehabilitation service will be initiated. The board also will amplify a public information and education program.

POSSIBLE PARTICIPATION
The board of the mental health service plans to meet with the board of the Pontiac General Hospital as soon as a meeting can be set up, to discuss the hospital's possible participation in the program.

Ionian Patients Went Hungry

Worker Tells Probers of Hospital Abuses

LANSING (AP)—Patients at the Ionian State Hospital were deprived of food for as long as a weekend, legislative probers were told yesterday.

The committee also was told that patients were cheated when they ordered such luxuries as cigarettes, candy and chewing tobacco.

A check into both charges immediately was ordered by Rep. David Upton, R-St. Joseph, chairman of the House Mental Health Committee which is investigating the hospital.

There was repeated testimony, meanwhile, on claims of alleged abuse and beatings of patients by attendants.

Upton said his committee would tour the hospital next Wednesday to investigate the charges and would meet Dec. 29 to give a final summation of findings and recommendations.

ASKED PROBE
Upton, on agreement with Dr. James Hodges, assistant director of the State Mental Health Department, asked for an auditor general's investigation of the claims of overcharges to patients for items ordered through the hospital store.

Walter McCabe, an attendant at the hospital for the past 18 years, made both charges.

Snow Will Cause Hazardous Driving

The Weather Bureau has issued hazardous driving warnings for the area. Occasional snow beginning this afternoon may become mixed with sleet or freezing rain toward evening.

The snow will continue tonight. However, temperatures won't be so low. The prediction is 22 to 30.

Tomorrow will have snow flurries and not much change in temperature. A high of 25 to 32 is forecast.

OF Man Winter is due at 2:30 p.m. Monday, making it the shortest day of the year.

The appropriate forecast for the day is snow flurries and colder.

A bitter 9 above was today's low mercury reading prior to 8 a.m. At 2 p.m. 20 was recorded in downtown Pontiac.

Skies Clear for Lunar Eclipse

NEW YORK (AP)—Crisp, clear weather across much of the country provided a perfect setting last night for one of nature's celestial spectacles—a total eclipse of the moon.

Astronomers in all parts of North and South America, West Africa and Europe had bulky equipment in position for a scientific observations as the moon slid into the darkest part of earth's shadow at 9:08 p.m., EST.

Harvard College astronomers had near-perfect conditions and took temperature readings they hope will provide clues to the depth of dust on the moon's surface.

A six-member team put a temperature gauge on a 61-inch telescope at Agassiz Station and took readings for 7 hours and 15 minutes.

"Conditions were exceptional," said Hector Ingrall, a senior research associate at the observatory. "We have very good records of the rate of cooling during total eclipse."

Because dust on the moon's surface acts like insulation, measurements of the cooling rate can help determine the depth of the dust.

Congo Rebels Near Control of Paulis

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP) — Congolese rebels, with Soviet and Communist Chinese weapons, have recaptured all but the airport, hotel and mission compound in Paulis, radio messages said today.

The outnumbered government garrison of 47 white officers and 200 Congolese troops was reported under assault by 4,000 rebel troops, who had an armored car and two armored jeeps.

U.S. Charges Dearborn Pair

Allegedly Didn't Act in Racial Disturbance

DETROIT (AP) — A federal grand jury returned indictments against two top suburban Dearborn officials Friday for failing to act in a 1963 Labor Day racial disturbance.

Dearborn Police Chief Garrison Clayton and Public Safety Director George W. Lewis were named in the indictment.

The indictment charges the pair with witnessing an attack by more than 100 persons on the home of Giuseppe Stanzione in the suburb and that Clayton and Lewis "had opportunity and responsibility of dispersing the crowd and apprehending those persons."

Stanzione said he had rented the upper apartment of his home to a white couple. The couple had hired two Negroes to move their furniture in, Stanzione said. One of the movers brought his wife to help, he said.

Apparently assuming Negroes were moving into the all-white neighborhood, a crowd gathered and began to throw stones, eggs, bottles and vegetables at the house, Stanzione charged.

Stanzione charged that he was assaulted by a man holding a bed-rail "while police stood idly by."

He said Dearborn officials failed to protect his property. He said a crowd of some 400 remained in front of his home for 29 hours.

The grand jury charged the two officials with a violation of the U.S. Code, Conviction carries a possible $1,000 fine or a year in jail, or both.

The indictment charges that Lewis and Clayton watched the destruction and threatening assaults made on Stanzione.

The grand jury charged that Clayton and Lewis had deprived Stanzione of equal protection under the laws of Michigan.

Special Cong Date; Monk Might Burn Self

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Saigon police went on full alert today as a Communist Viet Cong anniversary and continued Buddhist harassment of the Vietnamese government threatened a weekend of violence.

High school students in the northern city of Hue went on an antigovernment strike.

Sunday is the fourth anniversary of the official founding of the political wing of the Viet Cong, the National Liberation Front, and authorities feared an outbreak of terrorism.

The Buddhists, who have been campaigning to overthrow the government of Premier Tran Van Huong, were planning a mass rally, police said.

Buddhist sources said a monk might commit suicide by burning.

A city of tents mushroomed near the sprawling Buddhist headquarters as thousands of potential demonstrators began arriving, some carrying straw sleeping mats.

Americans in Saigon were advised to exert unusual caution when in the city.

In Hue, several thousand students in the city's 13 high schools made a brief appearance at classes today but told their teachers they would not return until the Huong government resigned. No violence was reported.

Hue, a Buddhist stronghold, sparked the campaign that overthrew the regime of Premier Ngo Dinh Diem last year.

YANK KILLED

In the West against the Viet Cong, an American army officer was killed by guerrilla fire Friday, the U.S. Army said.

He was the 23rd American to die in combat in Viet Nam since December 1961.

The officer was piloting a helicopter about 100 miles northeast of Saigon when he was hit by a 30-caliber bullet, the Army said. The pilot took control of the craft and returned it to base.

The Army continued trials of an armed version of the shallow draft, flat-bottomed aircraft used in the Florida Everglades. It is powered by an airplane engine and can skim across diverse rice fields and bounce across dikes at 45 miles per hour.

Deformed Inventor

Off to Seek Fortune -- at Age 69

NEW YORK (AP) — Fred Medina is a happy man. He's 69, and he's starting out to make his fortune.

Medina, an inventor and machinist since he came to this country from Spain in 1916, always has dreamed of making a fortune.

For almost 50 years the sad-faced inventor spent his days tinkering with old machines and designing new ones.

The closest he came to his dream was in 1953, when he devised a machine to sew wings on the rubber heels of dolls.

UNTIL THEN, he explained, the "hair had been glued on, but his device sewed it into the skull."

He sold 75 of the machines, "and the profits were tremendous—about $50,000," but a bank loan he had to repay on the project and a partner he had to accept with the loan cut his share, he said, and soured him on bank borrowing.

He went back to tinkering—until an urban renewal project forced him out of the Brooklyn shop he had occupied for 20 years.

He wanted to relocate, but the $2,200 the city gave him for his old shop wasn't enough. He turned to the Small Business Administration, which granted him a $1,000 loan—quite small by that agency's standards, but a dream come true for Medina.

PROVE HIMSELF

Now he's going to set up a new shop in downtown Brooklyn. "I have to prove to all my friends what a man can do after 70," said Medina. "I want to make a fortune."

BERLIN WALL CHRISTMAS RUSH—Communists opened the Berlin wall to allow West Berliners to visit loved ones in the eastern sector today. Many took advantage of the offer and poured through the Oberbaumbrücke gate laden with Christmas gifts.

Berlin Wall Is Opened for Yule Visits

BERLIN (AP) — The Christmas rush into the Soviet sector began today as the Communists opened their wall to West Berliners for brief reunions with relatives.

East German border guards unlocked the steel gates at wall checkpoints 15 minutes earlier than the scheduled opening time.

Between now and Jan 3 every West Berliner with close relatives in East Berlin can make two visits through the wall. He can cross as early as 7 a.m. but must be back in the West by midnight, except for New Year's Eve when a special extension is allowed.

This is the second Christmas in a row that reunions among Berlin families have been allowed since the Communists built the wall on Aug. 13, 1961. Last year more than 1.2 million West Berliners crossed into the Communist sector of the city.

West Germans and other Westerners can cross the wall year-round.

The first West Berliners began lining up an hour before the scheduled opening. Their suitcases and large bags were bursting with gifts. There was a slight drizzle and temperatures were just about freezing.

Not as Bone-Chilling

Cold Wave Hits in East

By The Associated Press

A numbing cold wave which has brought death from exposure to tens of thousands of cattle and sheep in Montana and North Dakota knifed into the East Coast today.

No longer the bone-chilling cold which froze the Midwest, it nevertheless loosed snow squalls on the eastern shores of the Great Lakes and bored into the north and mid-Atlantic states carrying the promise of zero weather in the North Carolina Mountains. It was near zero in northern Maine.

Freezing air extended to the Gulf Coast and nearly to the south tip of Texas. But the 30-below temperatures that gripped Montana are gone.

CONTINUED EFFORTS

Ranchers in Montana and North Dakota continued efforts to save their remaining livestock. One estimate put livestock loss at $250,000.

Eight southeastern Montana counties were declared a major disaster area and $10,000 in federal funds were made available to help save animals, some of which have been seen wandering blindly, their eyes frozen shut. Others, their nostrils cemented with ice, have died of suffocation.

Four Air Force flying boxcars were on standby at Malmstrom Air Force Base, Great Falls, Mont., waiting to airlift hay bales to cattle in inaccessible areas.

National Guardsmen in bulldozers and heavy trucks were clearing North Dakota roads and hauling feed to starving cattle.

SAVED KEEPERS

A Coast Guard cutter in Duluth, Minn., succeeded in evacuating four lighthouse keepers in Lake Superior after fighting 60-mile-an-hour winds and heavy waves for six days. The men were down for their last coffee and candy bars when taken from the Rock of Ages Light.

Temperatures in Pennsylvania moved steadily lower Friday, plummeting to 5 above zero at Bradford and Phillipsburg.

The cold front dropped New Jersey temperatures to their lowest levels of the season. Newark reported 17 above at midnight, with new lows expected.

Rain and snow lashed the West Coast as a new weather front there began its march across the nation. A snowstorm brewing in the Pacific Northwest dumped up to four inches of snow on Washington, beginning at Tatoosh Island off the state's northwest tip. Gusts of six the jury which heard his 1963 conspiracy case in Nashville.

His appeal of that conviction is being considered by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals.

of Onia Abuse

Harmon, 50, of 2990 Barnes, Waterford Township, was convicted in Detroit federal court May 8, 1963, on 24 charges of embezzlement and falsifying union records.

The Teamster official had been charged with embezzling $2,865, from the union treasury by using gasoline credit cards to purchase supplies for his private, 32-foot cabin cruiser, "The Princess Enterprise."

Harmon, business agent and secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 614, was sentenced in 1963 to pay a $1,500 fine and was placed on two years probation.

In his appeal, the Teamster claimed that his actions were not in violation of the Labor-Management Disclosure Act, and that three other Teamster officials were called on unlawfully to testify in the case.

The Appeals Court rejected both contentions.

Bloomfield Hills Board to Hear School Report

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — Board of education members Tuesday night will get their first official glimpse at the kind of high school experts would like to see built here.

A progress report on the current study will be presented at the board's 8 p.m. session by Dr. Donald Leu and Dr. Richard Featherstone, Michigan State University educational consultants.

They have been working with teachers, principals, administrators and architects to develop plans for the district's second high school.

The proposed $2,200,000 facility was approved by district property owners in June as part of a $7-million bond issue.

"It should be flexible to meet the needs of the future, perform and produce a better educational program," Schools Supt. Eugene Johnson said.

KIND OF PROGRAM

Heads of departments and teachers have been called upon "to tell us what they want and what kind of program they think we should have for a forward-looking system," he said.

Among suggestions being considered are large-group teaching, ungraded classes and facilities for advanced research.

"Some of these are fast proving their value," the superintendent commented.

"We want to build a school within a school," he said. "We want classrooms built around core facilities — a library, gym, cafeteria, art and music rooms."

NOT ENTIRELY NEW

"This concept is not entirely new, but we're taking it a step further."

Johnson said the consultants are not planning a building but are planning and developing an educational concept.

"We're getting excited about this," he said. "We think we're ready."

Ready to Hold Berlin Talks, Say Allies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, Britain and France have told Russia they are ready to hold "informal" four-power meetings in Berlin on problems involving the whole of Berlin, officials here said today.

The allied statement was made Thursday to the Soviet liaison office in East Berlin in a reply to an earlier vague Soviet overture suggesting four-power meetings.

The allies suggested that such regular talks be held alternately in East and West Berlin.

There have been no regular meetings among the four Berlin occupation powers since 1948 when the Russians walked out of the allied commandaria just before they precipitated the Berlin blockade.

"The recent Soviet overture was said to have been made by one or more Soviet diplomats in Berlin to allied officials. It was extremely vague. Western officials suspected the Russians meant the talks to apply only to West Berlin."

The Russians have rejected Western claims that East Berlin also is legally under four-power control.

going to come up with something kind of special."

In an attempt to avoid obsolescence, the educators are seeking a program which will allow them to move in almost any direction that proves necessary.

They're developing, Johnson said, a program that is "way out in good, sound education."

To Air Water System Budget

Board Will Consider License for 300 Bowl

A proposed 1965 budget of $193,125 for operation and maintenance of the Waterford Township water system will be considered Monday night by the Township Board.

Chief item in the proposed budget is an estimated $90,000 expense for transmission and distribution.

Other budgeted expenses are pumping, $34,250; water treatment, $6,025; customer account expense, $14,900; and administrative and general expense, $47,150.

Proposed in addition to the water and maintenance budget is an expenditure of $17,500 for estimated property acquisitions.

In other business Monday the board will consider a request from Joseph Puertas, operator of the 300 Bowl, for a new entertainment license.

FLOOR SHOW

Such a license is required for establishments that provide floor show entertainment.

The board will act on a request that a two-lot parcel on Airport Road 200 feet south of Pontiac Lake Road be rezoned from agricultural to residential.

Also up for consideration will be repeal of the township's food handlers ordinance.

The Oakland County Health Department recently adopted an ordinance which will serve the same purpose, township officials said.

A date for opening bids on gasoline for township vehicles during the coming year will be set.

Freakish Storms Bring Snow in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Freak weather in Iran has brought storms destroying the homes of 2,500 people in the South, and heavy snowfall in the Southwest, the press reported today.

The newspaper Ettelaat reported the Iranian weather bureau is nonplussed. The bureau had predicted fine, clear weather in the capital-hit by the snowfalls—and calm seas in the Persian Gulf.

According to reports from the Persian Gulf, a 500-mile stretch of coast has been swept by floods and hundreds of homes destroyed.

Worst hit was the world's biggest oil-loading marine terminal at Kharg Island, where 2,500 were homeless. No casualties are so far reported, but floods also were reported in Ramhormoz, Bushire, Dayer and other Gulf ports.

Treasurer Brown to Stay On During Transition Period

By DICK BARNES

Associated Press Writer
LANSING (AP)—State Treasurer Sanford Brown said Friday "I'm staying on" to help keep Michigan government running smoothly during transition from the old to the new Constitution.

And outgoing House Speaker Allison Green hinted he might accept a turn as state auditor—a position that could lead to Green becoming treasurer. Green could take the place of incumbent auditor Billie Farnum who is expected to resign by Jan. 4 when he becomes a congressman.

Statements from the two men followed opinions handed down by Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley Friday on how to solve some transition problems until the legislature or Gov. George Romney reorganizes the executive branch of government according to terms of the Constitution.

In effect, Kelley ruled that Brown, a Democrat, can continue as auditor general after

Jan. 1 when his term would have ended. In saying he'd stay on, Brown added "what else can I do?"
Kelley ruled in a 15-page letter to Romney that the present offices of treasurer and auditor general must continue on an extended-term basis until reorganization of the executive branch into 20 major departments or until the powers and duties of the offices are abolished.

The incumbent treasurer and auditor general have the right to retain their offices during this period, Kelley ruled.

Republican Green, expected to be named treasurer by Romney, can be appointed to succeed Farnum. Then, when reorganization is complete and he loses his auditor's hat, he can be appointed treasurer.

FLINT (AP)—Flint-area employment hit a seven-year high in mid-November, the Michigan Employment Security Commission said Friday. Nonfarm employment stood at 146,000—highest since December, 1957. Unemployment stood at 1.9 per cent of the labor force, the MESC said.

Dies at Celebration

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Norman Lodge, 65, dropped dead Friday just after a luncheon given him to mark his retirement as director of the Veterans Administration information service. He was an Associated Press staffer from 1928 to 1956.

Swiss insurance companies rate drivers under 20 years old, particularly of sports cars, and cars over 10 years old, as top insurance risks.

To Spell Out Hospital, Board Cooperation

Future cooperation between Pontiac General Hospital and the County Community Mental Health Services Board will be spelled out in writing.

Seemingly still smarting over a misunderstanding with the county group over the hospital's outpatient mental health clinic, the hospital trustees have ordered future plans to be put down on paper.

Hospital Administrator Harold B. Euler reported Thursday on discussions with the county to reopen the clinic.

He said that the county board wanted the clinic open 40 hours per week and had budgeted $42,750 for the clinic's operation next year.

Euler said the hospital could not operate an outpatient mental health clinic on such a basis within present hospital facilities.

A POSSIBILITY

One possibility, according to the administrator, would be the use of a house, now rented out, that the hospital owns on Seminoles.

Euler told the trustees that the county would supply funds in advance and part of the money could cover the cost of renovating the one-story building.

Trustee William P. Babcock said the clinic proposal should be studied by the long-range planning committee and that plans should be documented.

PHASED OUT

The hospital's outpatient mental health clinic, which was opened in July on a seven-hour basis, was phased out recently when the hospital could not get funds from the county.

Euler said the clinic cost the hospital $1,800.

In other business, the hospital board moved to study emergency facilities.

Babcock said that the hospital has a responsibility to furnish the community emergency services, but not "total" responsibility.

STUDY GROUP

Board Chairman Aleck Capalis was authorized to appoint a representative committee — two trustees, two lay people and hospital officials — to study emergency facilities.

Hospital officials are concerned about the high occupancy rate at Pontiac General, which has forced cancelled admissions.

Euler said 63 per cent of last week's admissions were classified as emergency. Occupancy has been 100 per cent since the first of the month.

He said that 172 admissions were cancelled last week, compared to eight for the same week last year.

Mott Foundation Grant a Boon to Community

Through the generosity of C. S. Mott, Flint capitalist and humanitarian, the community influence of Oakland University will be appreciably enhanced.

Financed by a grant from the C. S. Mott Foundation, together with university and local participation, a Mott Center for Community Affairs will be established at the university.

To be under the direction of Dr. Lowell Eklund, Dean of Continuing Education, the resources of the Center will be directed toward study of regional social issues and advancement of the community's cultural enrichment program.

It was Mr. Mott's philanthropic interest in the Depression-born social problems confronting his home city that led to the establishment and development of the now nationally-acclaimed Flint Community School concept.

Fortunate indeed is our citizenry and university to be beneficiaries of his interest and The Press unites with them in an expression of deep appreciation.

Is Transistor Trouble Fault of the Receiver?

Here's a news flash to interrupt the programs coming in so loud and clear on the transistor radios so many addicts insist on having with them at all times:

In Philadelphia a college professor took a busy transistor radio away from a lady sitting beside him on a bus and, she says, bopped her on the head with it.

In Bogota, Colombia, three persons carrying tuned-in radios were shot in one evening. Police are looking for a noise-hater who finally flipped and went berserk.

Apparently, unsolicited and compulsory music and channel chatter hath power to arouse the savage beast.

Fakers in Many Lines Fatten on the Aged

Preying on the elderly—through medical quackery, phony investment and savings plans, fake property deals and many other approaches—is among the most common and vicious rackets in the country today.

Recently, the Senate Subcommittee on Frauds and Misrepresentation Affecting the Elderly concluded, as the result of extensive investigation, that the accepted estimate of $1 billion out of which the elderly are bilked annually is much too low.

Chairman of the subcommittee, Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., said "We don't know how bad the situation is because the quack has secrecy of his victims on his side."

Our senior citizens may be wasting 10 per cent of every spending dollar on worthless, useless or grossly misrepresented products and services. "Quacks," the senator added, "take more than dollars. They sometimes prevent cure or the hope of it."

There are 18 million Americans over 65—including 900,000 over 90.

Their annual spending power amounts to an unprecedented $38 billion. The vast majority live on modest pensions and Social Security benefits.

They are easy marks because, tragically, an estimated 75 per cent are suffering from some chronic disease or ailment. And oldsters are vulnerable to phony money-making or investment schemes because their incomes are generally low. A 1961 survey found that 75 per cent of those over 65 had incomes of less than $1,000 a year and 15 per cent received less than $500.

Without gainsaying the worth of the "hope" that springs eternal in the human breast, it can change to crushing hopelessness when the elderly spend scarce dollars on "cures" or schemes without consultation with trustworthy and competent advisers.

Field of Engineering Aided by Local Couple

The community is again indebted to Mr. and Mrs. BENJAMIN H. ANIBAL for a generous contribution made jointly to Michigan State University and Oakland University.

Consisting of 1,000 shares of General Motors Corp. stock, it is the second such gift by the educationally-minded couple to the university from which Mr. ANIBAL graduated in 1909, and will be used primarily for scholarships in the field of engineering.

The previous endowment, made in 1961, was utilized by Oakland University in the development of student housing, and one of its dormitories is known as "Anibal House."

Mr. ANIBAL came to Pontiac in 1925 as chief engineer of the Oakland Motor Car Co., forerunner of the Pontiac Motor Division, and filled that post until his retirement in 1947. During his long automotive career he was credited with some 200 advances in the engineering field.

We join residents of the area and the two universities in words of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. ANIBAL for their academic beneficence.

THE CHRISTMAS STORY IN CAROLS

"O holy night! the stars are brightly shining,
It is the night of the dear Saviour's birth!"

This inspiring carol was written a hundred years ago by Adolph Adam, a young French composer. His ambition was to write opera, but he is remembered today for the words and music of a song praising the birth of Jesus. In it he reaffirms the true meaning of Christmas.

"Truly He came to love one another:
His law is love and His gospel is peace.
Chains shall He break, for the slave is our brother
And in His name all oppression shall cease.
Sweet hymns of joy in grateful chorus raise we,
Let all within us praise His holy name!"

Days of All Faiths:

Notes on The Nativity of Christ

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Here are a few random, unconnected notes about The Nativity of Our Lord Jesus Christ, commonly called Christmas Day.

In the first place, for all that we Americans think of Christmas as the great religious festival of the year, it really is not. It was not among the earliest Christian holidays, and it ranks below Easter (Christ's resurrection), Pentecost (the coming of the Holy Ghost), and Epiphany (the recognition of Jesus as universal Savior and not just the Jewish Messiah). To the historic Christian Church all these seem more important than His birthday.

Santa Claus is known as Santa Claus in North America. He is St. Nikolaus in Germany, Father Christmas in England, Jul-Nisse in Norway and Den. And he is not everywhere a jolly, red-cheeked, fat old character. There are places where he is a witch (a friendly one) and places where he is a cowboy.

In Norway on Christmas Eve, children give up their beds and sleep on straw (we would call it hay). The symbolism, of course, is of the infant Lord sleeping in a manger. Afterward the Yule straw is fed to the cattle, and it is believed that it keeps them from both sickness and accidents.

The Yule Log comes from England. As we Americans become more and more a nation of city dwellers this old custom tends to die out, but at the same time suburbanites with fireplaces are reviving it and will probably go on for a long time. The log is traditionally oak and was customarily cut at midnight some weeks before Christmas, but not brought in until Christmas Eve. It was no trouble to get enough men to bring the log in, for anyone who helped was immune from witchcraft for the ensuing year.

If you want to do things exactly right, you must light this year's log with a brand from last year's. Besides serving as a torch for this year's log, this remnant from last year's will have protected your house against fire during the whole year you have been saving it. In Switzerland, Santa Claus (called Father Christmas there) has a wife, Lucy, who accompanies him on his rounds. She has her hair braided in long plaits, and wears a lace bodice and a silk apron. She gives gifts to the girls and her husband looks after the boys.

Swiss children rush the gift season a little. On the two Saturdays before Christmas every child puts a shoe outside his door at night and finds it filled with candy in the morning. This is in addition to the presents they get on Christmas Day.

The Roman Martyrology says Jesus was born in the 5190th year of the creation of the world.

The 2957th year after the flood, the 1510th year after the birth of Abraham, the 1510th year from the going-out of the people of Israel from Egypt, the 1832nd year from the anointing of David king, the 752nd year from the foundation of the city of Rome—all the earth being at peace, in the sixth age of the world.

Important as it is to us now, the commemoration of the birth of Jesus as a separate festival did not begin until the fourth century of the Christian era.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Baseball star Ty Cobb was born on this day in 1868.

The increasingly popular creche (the representation of the Holy Family with the animals in the stable) is said to have been started by St. Francis.

Washington Notebook:

GOP Governors Agree on Text

By WASHINGTON STAFF WASHINGTON (NEA)—When Gov. Robert Smylie of Idaho announced the text of the so-called "Denver Declaration" by GOP governors, he stressed that it had the unanimous endorsement of the attending executives, including Arizona Gov. Paul Fannin, friend of Barry Goldwater.

Newsmen's questioning of various governors quickly brought out, however, that several of those present put different readings on the language of the declaration. Finally a reporter asked Smylie: "Governor, is it correct to say that all of you governors are agreed on the text but not on what it means?" Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., was groping for words to describe the size of the calamity that struck his party in the 1964 elections. Said he:

"What happened reminds me of a story about a fellow who came up on the deck of the ill-fated liner Titanic just as it was about to strike a mammoth iceberg. 'The fellow grabbed a ship's steward and shouted: 'I asked for a bucket of ice—but this is ridiculous!'"

This January, Orville Freeman begins his fifth year as Secretary of agriculture. Reminded of this, Freeman noted: "That tenure is certainly not a record—but you don't find five-year secretaries of agriculture hanging from trees."

After a second's pause, he added:

"Almost every day, however, I do find at least one newspaper editor who thinks that is the right place for me."

Researchers will soon be at work developing policy papers for the Republican Governors' Association, which strengthened its machinery at the recent Denver meeting.

An early project for them was suggested by a governor who was miffed that Oregon Gov. Mark Hatfield came late to the Denver party and left early. The angry governor proposed a research paper to be entitled:

"How to Arrive After the Crisis and Leave Before the Vote."

A newsmen standing in a crowded New York hotel lobby during the Eisenhower-Goldwater-Nixon GOP summit meeting growled his discontent:

"I'm all for the Republicans saving their party, but I wish they'd do it after Christmas."

Waiting for Sen. Barry Goldwater to emerge from his meeting with former President Dwight Eisenhower and former Vice President Richard Nixon, a reporter was asked how Goldwater got to New York that day. The reporter, who had arrived by shuttle flight from Washington, answered: "He came up on Eastern's Air Force One."

Air Force One, of course, is the official designation of President Johnson's special plane.

'Should Enforce Laws on Burning Trash'

There ought to be a law prohibiting burning trash after a certain hour and a law enforcing proper containers.

'How Can Citizens Protect Themselves?'

A local woman was sentenced to prison for killing an intruder. This man entered her home twice and beat her husband. A Farmington man is to be tried for first degree murder because he killed a man who was trying to break in to see the man's wife.

Does a person have a legal right to protect himself, those he loves and his possessions? What is the home owner's right? WONDERING

Reader Comments on Slaughter of Deer

The first day of deer season this year two hunters started shooting not very far from where I was and later came by dragging a small fawn. It must have weighed all of fifty pounds.

Before the conservation department took over our deer herd and told the public the deer were all starving to death, I used to see twenty deer in a day of hunting. This year eight of us saw three deer in two days of hunting.

I've read the deer kill is near a record this year. I think it is a shame to let this slaughter go on in a sport so close to many.

Talks Suspended

U.S., Cambodia Break-Off Likely to Benefit Peking

By CONRAD FINK NEW DELHI, India (P)—The United States and tiny Cambodia, one key in the South Asian area of crisis, have failed to settle their bitter quarrels.

Communist China is likely to benefit. After nine days of secret negotiations, American and Cambodian envoys this week suspended talks in this neutral capital without resolving any basic issues.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the Cambodian chief of state, accused the Americans of "systematic bad faith and lack of good will" and said he was not interested in resuming negotiations.

Cambodia argued that the United States was responsible for its woes, particularly border incursions by neighboring South Vietnamese troops hunting Viet Cong guerrillas.

Because of these incursions—for which the United States has refused to accept responsibility, — Sihanouk says he may be forced to take his nation of six million into the Chinese camp.

LAUNCHING PADS

Political or military bases in Cambodia could be launching pads for action against next-door Viet Nam, Thailand and Laos. Suspension of the U.S.-Cambodian talks moved Red China one step closer to this goal.

A Cambodian delegation was being feted in Peking at the time.

The prince's negotiators in New Delhi, led by his private counselor Son Sann, avoided any public comment during the talks but in the final communique blasted the United States.

The Cambodians repeated a charge of U.S.-Vietnamese "aggression" and expressed wonder that the American delegation felt it must return to Washington for consultations "on subjects which had been officially communicated well in advance."

How Children Fail—12

Let the Student Choose What He Wants to Learn

By JOHN HOLT

We cannot have real learning in school if we think it is our duty and our right to tell children what they must learn.

We cannot know, at any moment, what particular bit of knowledge or understanding a child needs most.

Only he can do this. He may do it very well, but he can do it a hundred times better than we can.

The most we can do is try to help, by letting him know roughly what is available and where he can look for it.

Charging what he wants to learn and what he does not is something he must do for himself.

REJECT IDEA

There is one more reason, and the most important one, why we must reject the idea of telling them to do.

The reason is that there is no way to coerce children without making them afraid, or more afraid. We must not try to fool ourselves into thinking that this is not so.

The would-be progressives, who until recently had great influence over most American public school education, did not recognize this — and still do not.

They thought, or at least talked and wrote as if they thought, that there were good ways and bad ways to coerce children (the bad ones mean, harsh, cruel, the good ones gentle, persuasive, subtle, kindly), and that if they avoided the bad and stuck to the good they would do no harm.

BIG MISTAKE

This was one of their greatest mistakes, and the main reason why the revolution they hoped to accomplish never took hold.

The idea of painless, non-threatening coercion is an illusion. Fear is the inseparable companion of coercion, and its inescapable consequence.

If you think it your duty to make children do what you want, whether they will or not, then it follows inexorably that you must make them afraid of what will happen to them if they don't do what you want.

You can do this in the old-fashioned way, openly and avowedly, with the threat of harsh words, infringement of liberty, or physical punishment.

Or, you can do it in the modern way, subtly, smoothly, quietly, by withholding the acceptance and approval which you and others have trained the children to depend on; or, by making them feel that some retribution awaits them in the future, too vague to imagine but too implacable to escape.

You can, as many skilled teachers do, learn to tap with a word, a gesture, a look, even a smile, the great reservoir of fear, shame, and guilt that today's children carry around inside them.

Or, you can simply let your own fears, about what will happen to you if the children don't do what you want, reach out and infect them.

The alternative — I can see no other — is to have schools and classrooms in which each child in his own way can satisfy his curiosity, develop his abilities and talents, pursue his interests, and from the adults and older children around him get a glimpse of the great variety of richness of life.

In short, the school should be a great smorgasbord of intellectual, artistic, creative, and athletic activities, from which each child could take whatever he wanted, and as much as he wanted or as little.

After describing very sketchily to a sixth grader how such a school might be run, and what the children might do, I said, "Tell me, what do you think of it? Do you think it would work? Do you think the kids would learn anything?"

WONDERFUL!

She said, with utmost conviction, "Oh yes, it would be wonderful!"

She was silent for a minute or two, perhaps remembering her own generally unhappy schooling. Then she said thoughtfully, "You know, kids really like to learn; we just don't like being pushed around."

No, they don't; and we should be grateful for that. So let's stop pushing them around, and give them a chance.

Many Forces Cause Destructive Waves

Destructive surges of water are caused by many forces, such as high winds, submarine earthquakes, volcanoes and earth slides. Despite the term "Tidal wave," they are not related to tides.

Wind-driven waves wreak enormous damage, but are far less overwhelming than explosive subterranean upsets of nature. Storm waves seldom exceed 60 miles per hour, while those from a violent undersea source may reach more than 500 miles an hour.

Respond to Toast With Smile

By The Emily Post Institute
Q: In two weeks our children are giving a reception in honor of our golden wedding anniversary. A toast will be proposed.

Will you please tell me if it is necessary for me to acknowledge this toast, and if so, how?

A: I'm a very reserved person and words do not come easily. Also, is my wife expected to acknowledge the toast too?

A: After the toast has been drunk to you and your wife, you rise and say "thank you" for both of you.

Your wife remains seated and merely smiles her acknowledgment.

Q: My cousin is a dentist. His wife is also a dentist but no longer has her own practice. She helps her husband out occasionally when he is very busy.

The question is, when writing to them, how should the envelope be addressed? Should it be The Doctors Jones, or Dr. and Mrs. George Jones?

A: If your cousin's wife is known socially as Dr. Mary Jones, the envelope would be addressed to The Doctors Jones or The Doctors George and Mary Jones.

If she uses the title Mrs. in private life, the envelope would be addressed to Dr. and Mrs. George Jones.

Q: Is it proper to talk to someone one sees every day on the way to work? A young woman and I take the same train every morning and we have come to know each other by sight.

A: It would be a quite natural and friendly impulse to smile and say "good morning" to someone you see every day, but you must not start a conversation with her unless encouraged to do so.

The Emily Post Institute booklet, entitled, "Formal Wedding Procedure," includes details on the wedding procession, the receiving line and other helpful wedding information.

To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Emily Post Institute, in care of The Pontiac Press.

MSU Prof Heads for Nigeria

EAST LANSING — For all 33 years of her career, Miriam Kelley has been on the staff of the Cooperative Extension Service, first in Kentucky and then in Michigan.

For the first time next month, she leaves the Extension Service to head for Nigeria. There, she'll join Michigan State University's advisory group with the University of Nigeria at Nsukka.

On a two-year assignment, she will serve as a visiting professor in continuing education and home economics, both at the college level and in an extension-type situation that reaches into the homes of Nigerian families.

Mrs. Kelley came to this state 10 years ago to head the then new MSU Extension Consumer Marketing Information Program.

CHALLENGE

She is excited about the challenges her new job offers, even though she's not sure yet precisely what those challenges will be. She suspects that some of them will be the same as the challenges she has worked with in Michigan: expanding opportunities for women and helping all kinds of people find and develop for themselves what is good for them.

Mrs. Kelley says she's been told to be "flexible" and to "listen." This flexible, listening attitude, she says, will help her as she seeks to employ one of the basic philosophies of the land-grant university: adapting to whatever is necessary to meet the genuine needs of people.

She may be helping with the further development of the academic program in home economics at the University of Nigeria. She would like to see home economics in Nigeria encompass systematic, academic concern for the family, the home and community that involves both men and women.

First Ladies' Gowns

Mrs. Lyndon Johnson views one of her gowns on a plaster mannequin after presenting it to the Smithsonian's "Dresses of the First Ladies" display this week in Washington. Mrs. Johnson wore the gold satin gown at a White House dinner for Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Great Britain on Dec. 7.

AP Wirephoto

Mrs. George Romney poses in Lansing at a press preview, showing the dress she will wear at her second Inaugural Ball Jan. 1. It is a floor-length Empire gown of lime-yellow chiffon and slipper satin with heart-shaped neckline. There are pearl and crystal embroidered cuffs on the bracelet-length sleeves. Bodice of the gown is satin while the sweeping skirt is chiffon.

Gardeners Have Music at Meeting

Members of Sylvan Lake branch, Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, gathered for a Christmas musicale, Thursday, in the Oakland County Boat Club.

Singers from the West Bloomfield High School presented selections under the direction of Merlin Asplin who was heard in a solo. Alternating as accompanists at the piano were Barbara Brown and Peggy Book.

Hostesses were Mrs. Ray Howard, Mrs. Eugene Johnson, Mrs. Walter Lange and Mrs. Randall Wilson. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Kenneth Ollis and Mrs. Willis Brewer.

Enjoying the cookie exchange were guests, Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, Mrs. George A. Sutton and Mrs. Ray L. Allen.

Cheated Widow Wants Out 'Where Are You?' -- Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband died in 1951 and he left in excess of $700,000, and I was cheated out of every dime of it.

None of the lawyers in this town will touch my case with a ten-foot pole. My husband had liver trouble.

He was operated on for it, and his doctor told me himself that the operation was successful, but in nine days my husband was dead!

I refused to pay the bill because that doctor had lied to me. When my husband's will was read I was cut out of it except for a few dollars I was supposed to live on.

When I protested, they tried to prove that I was crazy. They are still trying to prove it.

His sisters got everything. THEY are the crazy ones. Money crazy! Can you help me get out of here?

DEAR CHEATED: Where are you?

DEAR ABBY: Our son married a girl with two children. He legally adopted these children.

It has been almost two years now and the wife and children have never called us anything but "MR. AND MRS. SO-AND-SO."

It is very embarrassing

when our friends and neighbors ask us if those children don't know that we are their grandparents.

We think it's terrible, and want to know what you think and what should be done about it?

MR. AND MRS. SO-AND-SO

DEAR MR. AND MRS.: Your son is half to blame. And since you are closer to him, he is the one to approach about remedying this unfortunate situation.

Perhaps his wife is shy and has been waiting for you to invite her to call you something more personal. Give her the benefit of the doubt. But ask your son to straighten her out.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to Abby, in care of The Pontiac Press, for Abby's booklet, "How To Write Letters For All Occasions."

Move Baby to Help Jealous Big Sister

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Our son is 11 months old. What I am writing about is the hysterics our 5-year-old girl gets when he cries and I don't run to him right off. They sleep in the same room.

If he wakes up at night and cries, she gets so excited that it's harder to quiet her down than it is him. She adores the baby, but we do not think she should feel so responsible for him. She loves to feed him.

ANSWER: She does not feel responsible for the little brother. She feels responsible for resentment of him.

If you are your parents' oldest child, you conclude that you are a disappointment to them when they have another one.

When, on top of this feeling of insufficiency, they expect you to "love" the baby who has displaced you, you can feel very insufficient indeed. And you'll grab for a sense of self-importance by treating him like another mother — by displays of devoted responsibility for him.

If your enemy starts crying and wakes you up at night, you will get overexcited, not because you "love" him, but because you're scared to death your anger at him will slip its leash — and expose you as a bad, resentful sister instead of a good, adoring one.

Can you separate these children at night? Can you move the baby's crib to another room (not your own), to the hall?

It will enable you to say to your little girl, "We are not going to let Buddy go on upsetting your sleep the way he does. You cannot like it very much."

Because in this situation you have permitted to develop, somebody will have to start speaking words which convey some sympathy for your overburdened little girl — words which grant permission to begin to feel that resentment of the baby that is now too dangerous to feel. Jealousy in us or in children is a most painful emotion, born as it is of fear of disappointing other people. We don't like to admit our own jealousy — the humiliating, tortured contrast, for example, between our own attractions and those of another woman guest at a party to whom our husband won't stop talking.

Instead of saying to him, "Don't talk to me now because I am angry and jealous," we find fault with his driving on the way home.

Our jealousy is such a torment to our own pride that we can't bear to register its torment in children. We try to make children's jealousy palatable by calling it "love" for new babies.

A mint-laden Christmas tree will do double duty by providing a festive centerpiece for the Christmas dinner table and a novel way of serving that finishing touch for the special dining occasion—after-dinner mints. Use a miniature green Christmas tree. Familiar chocolate-covered mints in their silver wrappings will make sparkling and tasty ornaments for the table-size tree. Available at any candy counter, they can be easily attached to the tree with cellophane tape, thread or regular ornament hangers.

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Don't let anyone tell you that nothing can be done about a double chin because there are effective measures! A few minutes a day spent doing corrective exercises, a loss of overweight, if you have extra pounds, and improvement in posture will work magic. However, this routine must be faithfully adhered to. Results require effort and patience.

Even in very young women we often see the shadow of chin to come. Stretching fatty tissues and tightening muscles are our objectives. Sometimes poor posture has a share in the chin line to blue.

Sometimes when a woman loses a great deal of weight too rapidly, and the skin does not have time to adjust to the loss, it may become loose and unattractive. Rounding out muscles with exercise will help. Do these exercises regularly.

EXERCISES

1. Stand or sit with the entire spine straight, chin parallel to the floor. Keep the shoulders still as you turn your head as far to the left as possible, over your left shoulder. Now lift your chin and pull back. Return head to starting position.

This time turn your head as far to the right as you can, lift the chin and pull back. Return to beginning position. It is most important to keep the shoulders facing straight forward. Alternate.

your head as far to the right as you can, lift the chin and pull back. Return to beginning position. It is most important to keep the shoulders facing straight forward. Alternate.

2. Sit or stand, spine straight. Lower your head forward to your chest. Now rub the chin on the chest up toward the left shoulder. Lift chin. Continue for eight times.

Now rub the chest with the chin eight times, up toward the right shoulder. If you cannot touch your chin to your chest go through these motions anyway.

3. Lower your head backward. Keep it that way while you chew in an exaggerated manner, opening and closing your mouth widely.

If you would like to have my exercises for the neck, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "Is Your Chinline A Pain In The Neck?" Address Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press.

Candlelight Enchanting at Yuletide

The glow of candlelight casts an enchanting spell.

While it would be difficult to imagine daily living without electric lights, they are not as romantic or fascinating as candles. This is, of course, the reason why tapers, considered a symbol of gracious living, are used extensively at the dinner table.

During the holiday season they play an important role, not only as decorations, but in contributing to the feeling of reverence.

Throughout the land candles will burn brightly in churches and homes. In Medieval Europe the custom arose of lighting a giant candle that would burn continuously from Christmas Eve until Twelfth Night.

The selection of candles is wide this year. Delicately scented bayberry candles, big candles, or series of either tall and short ones all come in a variety of gay holiday hues. If you prefer, there are other tones to fit any color decor.

Tapers can be given an added festive touch with just a little imagination. Surround the base of the candles with fir branches and pine cones. Or, anchor two or three tall ones in a shallow ceramic dish, then arrange ivy or poinsettias around it.

Why not have a candle party this holiday season? Turn off the lights, and have only the flickering flames of frelight and candles to create a festive glow that will become a fond memory to those who share it with you.

Deal Early With Chubbies

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—Don't wait for junior to outgrow his chubbiness. He probably won't.

In a study of overweight children, aged 4 to 16, Drs. George H. Lowrey and Alex F. Robertson, University of Michigan Medical Center, found that "45 per cent of these children were overweight before six years of age." More than half of the obese adolescents will be overweight adults, they added.

The pre-school age is suited perfectly for dealing with excess weight, because at this period parents have control over eating habits, the doctors said.

Rev. and Mrs. Allen Parent Jr. of South Adams Road, Avon Township, announce the engagement of their daughter, Rebecca Cathline to Pot. Thomas M. Anderson of Corapolis, Pa., son of the Thomas Andersons of Berkley. The wedding will be June 26.

Cutting Trunk Saves Tree

No matter where you buy your tree, keep it in a bucket of water outdoors or in an unheated garage or basement until you're ready to decorate. Heat would dry the tree out and cause the needles to drop early.

When it's time to bring the tree indoors, make a diagonal cut across the trunk an inch above the original cut. This allows for more absorption of water, rather than the article.

Place the tree in a holder that's very stable and has a large water container. Keep the cut surface submerged in water. Support any sagging branches with wire, and wire additional branches to bare spots.

Stand the tree away from fireplaces, heaters, and TV sets — to prevent fires and to keep heat from drying it.

HIGH SCHOOL

The American high school is an amazing and unique institution — it successfully combines social dancing with advanced chemistry, and Friday night football with honors courses in English and creative writing.

The American high school is based on the belief that students must be more than intellectually educated; they must also be prepared to take an active role in their communities and their government. While major emphasis is still placed on the three R's, educators have found that this just isn't enough anymore.

In the past, only the wealthy and most intellectually able students went to high school. Today, however, high school serves students of a wide range of mental and financial abilities — from the boy who is aiming for a doctorate in physics to the boy who needs help with subtraction; from the girl who plans to attend one of the exclusive women's colleges to the girl who must work after school to pay for her high school textbooks.

In order to serve the varied needs and interests of its students, the American high school has broadened its curriculum to include courses in vocational training, homemaking, and social and cultural development. These additions haven't replaced the basic subjects; they have supplemented them.

Today's high school must prepare its students for tomorrow's world — it can't afford to neglect either the bright or the slow student and it must provide a good solid education for the vast group in the range between.

Crucifix Given to St. Stephen

The hand carved figure of Christ attached to a 10-foot cross was installed above the altar in St. Stephen Lutheran Church, Sashabaw at Kerpel, Waterford Township this week. Worshipers may view the crucifix at 8 and 10:30 services tomorrow morning.

The crucifix was carved from a single piece of maple. Hans Heinzler of Oberammergau, Bavaria is the sculptor. Oberammergau is the site of the original passion play in 1633.

The 4- by 3-foot figure was presented as a gift to St. Stephen Church by Mr. and Mrs. George Durr, members of the parish.

Mrs. Burr ordered the carving while in Europe during the past summer to fulfill what she says "Has always been my wish. Let it represent some small part of the influence of Christ in our lives." The crucifix was given in memory of her parents, Robert and Anna Clemens, and Mr. Durr's parents, Christian and Julie.

During their trip, the Durr's visited family and friends in her home town of Thuringen, Germany now in the Russian zone. They also visited Mr. Durr's family in "Aemmergau, Bavaria."

The cross bearing the figure of Christ is constructed of redwood and covered with driftwood plywood to give a rugged appearance. Herman Reppuhn of Waterford Township constructed the cross.

Arrangements for design and installation were made by Charles Mayka, Gerald Mielke, Ronald Griffith, Keith Humbert and Charles Burgin who served as chairman of the committee.

Preserve Your Christmas With Film

By JODY HEADLEE
Home Editor, The Pontiac Press

Christmas is a natural for picture taking. If you have been disappointed in the past with your results, this year try following tips by Pontiac Press photographer Edward R. Noble.

Every photograph on this page can be duplicated by dad or grandpa if he has a camera with control settings, a flash attachment, a tripod and fast black and white film.

The twinkling Christmas lights at Mrs. Edwin Osterberg's on Hatchery Road in Waterford Township were reproduced by a process called painting.

This is done with a time exposure. Find the spot you want to picture. Turn on all the lights in the house. Affix your camera to the tripod, focus on the subject with aperture set at $f/8$ and open the shutter.

Fire three flash bulbs in different areas close to the focused scene. Keep moving as you set off flashes and your image will not be picked up on the film. Return to camera and close shutter. Total exposure time should be approximately one minute.

Brenda and Belinda Stubblefield, daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Beauregard Stubblefield of Sorbonne Drive, Avon Township, were snapped at $f/5.6$ $1/125$ of a second. The flash was held in a bounce position, aimed at the ceiling, to give the effect of natural room light and avoid glare on the youngsters' features.

The annual stocking hanging ceremony is traditional in many homes and is an example of a picture that can be taken before Christmas for reproduction in a family card.

If the family has a pet, let him or her get into the act. David, 4, and Christopher Knight, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knight of Highmoor Way, Bloomfield Township, share the spotlight with their boxer, Star.

Chris dropped a few dog biscuits in the toe of the stocking to hold Star's complete attention while the picture was taken at $f/5.6$ $1/60$ of a second. Be sure to keep the features of the subjects, at least the profiles, toward the camera.

This picture was taken with the available room light. All lamps were turned on and bright daylight filtered through the window toward the fireplace.

To get a shot of the family opening gifts, plan on a time exposure. The picture of the Raymond Bandemer youngsters, Brad, 11, Todd, 2, Kim, 13, and Jill, 8, of Graedale Road in Avon Township, was taken at $f/4$, $1/2$ of a second. The slow shutter speed was used to better capture the burning lights of the Christmas tree. A faster shutter speed tends to make the tree go dark. The flash was bounced off the ceiling.

Catch a picture of the dinner preparation for the big day. Mrs. Barry Fell of Bigfisher Lane, Waterford Township, and her mother, Mrs. Waldon Keasey of Holly Road, Springfield Township, were photographed in Mrs. Fell's kitchen. Using a tripod and available day and room light, settings for this picture were $f/16$ at $1/4$ of a second.

A snapshot of the whole family together at the holiday feast will be cherished for years. The Robert Rysons of Chippewa with their sons, Jeffrey, 5, Gregory, 3, and David, 9 months, are pictured with Mr. Ryson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Ryson of Elizabeth Lake Road, and Mrs. Ryson's mother, Mrs. L. L. LaZaroff of Chippewa.

Bouncing the flash off the ceiling, the camera was set at $f/5.6$ $1/60$ of a second. Try to have subjects look at something other than the camera for a more natural feeling in the snapshot. In the picture shown, all eyes are on the baby while he concentrates on the photographer and what's going to happen next.

Kids of all ages get into the act on Christmas, sometimes leaving the small fry as unwilling onlookers.

Mark Ryden and his father, LaVon Ryden of Pioneer, and brothers, Gregory, 14, and Dennis, 11, pose for a scene that is sure to be repeated in many homes during the holiday.

With camera settings at $f/8$ $1/125$ of a second, and the flash bounced off the ceiling, you too can preserve candid moments like this.

Southern Colonial
Has Modern Flair

A house in the true Southern Colonial style is appealing. But the modern family in search of a new home wants more than a pure American design, enchanting as it may be. The family of today demands the best in up-to-date materials and conveniences as well as a structure that is pleasing to the eye.

Architect Lester Cohen has designed a contemporary adaptation of a Colonial for the latest House of the Week. It has all the height and stateliness of the traditional model, thanks to a large front portico with a two-story colonnade.

There's an extra sense of spaciousness because of twin wings that add to the visual width.

One of these wings encloses a family room, the other a two-car garage, but design similarities make both appear as portions of the home's living area.

TWO STORIES
The two stories under the single, main roof include four bedrooms, two and a-half baths and a first-floor central hall entrance with an excellent traffic pattern.

A fine first impression is inevitable with anyone who crosses the flagstoned portico and moves through the front door into the center hall.

Directly ahead is a graceful curved staircase to the upper floor in the most elegant Colonial tradition.

Stairways like this always make ceilings seem higher and rooms larger. And decorating in any style takes on new highlights. To the left of the center hall is a fireplace living room, to the right a dining room with an unobstructed sweep across the family room.

Both the living room and

H-62 STATISTICS

Design H-62 has a living room, dining room, kitchen-dinette, laundry-mud room, family room, porch, lavatory and two-car garage on the first floor — with a habitable area of 1,061 square feet. There are four bedrooms, two baths and plenty of closets on the second floor — with a living area of 733 square feet. The over-all dimensions, including the garage and front portico, are 74' by 31'8". The plans call for a basement, highly desirable if additional recreational area is needed.

the dining room enjoy a porticoed view across the front lawn. Having the windows of these two rooms set back means filtered sunlight and privacy.

Modern planning at its most practical is seen in the layout of the service area at the back of the house.

There is a total width of about 26', combining the dinette, kitchen, laundry, mud room and lavatory. A covered porch adds outdoor area available to the kitchen-service section as well as to the family room.

SUN ROOM

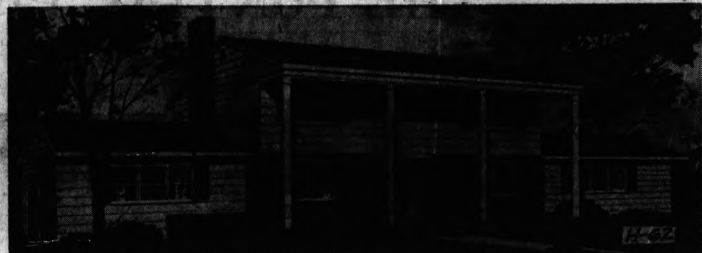

If desired, the porch could be turned into an old-fashioned sun room with the addition of a glass enclosure. Sliding glass doors lead to the porch from the family room, which is as large as many living rooms, although not as large as the living room in this house.

There are four bedrooms upstairs, with one bedroom in the master bedroom and another conveniently located to the rest of the sleeping quarters.

Large closets are featured in each of the four rooms, with an especially sizable one in the master bedroom. This entire floor is, as we mentioned previously, at the head of the attractive curved staircase.

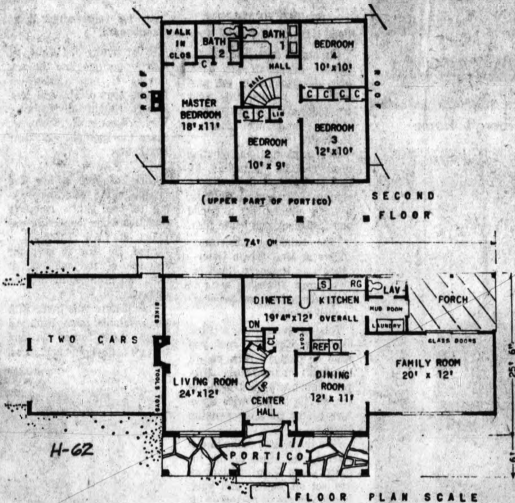

Bicycles, tools and toys can be stored in the two-car garage, a rear door making this section accessible without going past the space reserved for the autos.

The part of the garage facing the front has the same type of Colonial windows as the rest of the house, adding to the overall impression of comfortable width. But Design H-62's overall dimensions, including the garage and the front portico, are 74' by 31'8", modest figures for a house with 1,794 square feet of living area.

CLASSIC SOUTHERN ELEGANCE — There are four bedrooms, two baths and a lavatory in this native design, found nowhere but on this continent, originated in the South and still highly popular when combined with modern materials and conveniences.

Give Living Plants;
Prolong Yule Joy

The list of living plants you can give for Christmas grows longer and more interesting every year.

Tops among traditional presents, of course, are stately, luxurious poinsettias. You can pair them, with red flowers and white, for a happy holiday combination in red clay pots, the containers with automatic drainage that enable the recipient to give them enough water without over-soaking.

Gift poinsettias should be kept out of drafts, in temperatures between 60 and 75 degrees and given filtered light or adequate artificial light. They can be carried over a second year by drying them off in March and storing them in their clay pots in a cool, airy room or porch until spring.

Keep slightly moist in storage, until May, then gradually resume normal watering and move back into a sunny room. They can be planted or plunged, pot and all, in the garden next summer.

Care should be used in giving living Christmas trees. Balled spruce, pine or hemlock shrubs need help to stand the hot, dry air of modern homes. They should be given in large 14 to 16-inch clay pots, with matching saucers and enough pebbles to form a half-inch layer on the saucer.

Set the clay pot on top of the pebbles and keep watering the pebble layer throughout the holidays. The clay pot will help cool off the shrubs.

A truly distinctive and more hardy living "tree" is the relatively rare Arancaria, or Norfolk island pine. This plant, in a six-inch clay pot, has few equals as a hardy and decorative Christmas house plant. It is almost impervious to dry air and requires little light. Soil should be kept moist but not soaked.

Another Christmas foliage plant that withstands indoor conditions well is the Podocarpus, an evergreen shrub that grows from one to five feet high. The clay pot will provide insurance against both over-heating and overwatering and maintain a sturdy, tip-proof base.

Such foliage plants as the "Star of Bethlehem" hanging vine, the lush, green Jade or Prayer plant (Maranta) and syngonium (green gold) are always welcome Christmas additions to anyone's house plant collections.

Other popular plant gifts plentiful at holiday time include the Christmas cactus, the Christmas cactus, Jerusalem cherry combination plants specially grown for the season, peperomias and succulents.

A number of year-round flowering plants can supplement your traditional gifts of poinsettias. Most popular favorites include clay-potted chrysanthemums, miniature roses, azaleas, African violets or perhaps a lovely cyclamen or anthurium plant. For friends with exotic tastes, a gift of potted gardenias, orchids or perhaps a potted orange tree or pineapple plant will provide lasting delight.

Give Holiday Color
in Flower Plants

You can give holiday color in the form of professionally grown combinations of foliage or flowering plants in large red clay pots.

Plants popular in combinations for the holiday season include fibrous-rooted begonias, caladiums, coleus, Christmas peppers, compact chrysanthemums, Jerusalem cherries, ivy and marigolds.

Consult your florist for effective combinations of plants with similar light, temperature and watering preferences.

Poinsettias
Live Longer

When you select your Christmas poinsettias make sure they are in clay pots beneath the wrapping.

These porous containers provide essential drainage to prolong poinsettias' health, and guard against root rot, caused by overwatering.

Keep poinsettias away from extremes of cold and heat and enjoy them longer.

Glamour Plants
for Holiday Season

Camellias and gardenias, freshly in bloom by early December, make glamorous and appreciated plant gifts. Their clay pots assure the cool temperatures and proper drainage they like.

Company
Welcome
at Yuletide

There's been a lot of talk about drop-outs, but what about "drop-ins"?

Having company just drop in during the holidays can be a pleasant surprise or an unwelcome disaster. Whether it's fun or a fizzle often depends on whether the hostess has ample food for all.

Many modern homemakers have found that the best way to enjoy unexpected guests and make them feel welcome is to have a large-capacity electric refrigerator-freezer that's kept well stocked.

If you're currently struggling along with an undersize unit, now is a good time to push for a new one. It's a gift that the whole family will enjoy for years to come. And while you're at it, see if you can arrange to have it installed a few weeks before Christmas. The added convenience, including fewer trips to the store, will help make the holidays more pleasant for everyone.

Today's units, with their separate storage sections for both fresh and frozen foods, make it possible to always have on hand the makings for several company-size meals — from salad and soup through entree and dessert.

Once a homemaker has replaced a small out-dated refrigerator with a new big-capacity refrigerator-freezer, she finds she can often prepare double portions of meals — and then store the extra amount in the freezer. This is particularly handy at Christmastime.

Design improvements and thin wall insulation in many of today's refrigerator-freezers allow families to fit a new, large-capacity model in the same kitchen space once occupied by their old, small-capacity unit. In addition, new models have a square-shoulder, flush-to-the-wall construction that makes them just right for today's built-in look.

When pulling nails out of soft wood or gypsum board, place a piece of hardboard over the hammer head to prevent damage.

When you select your Christmas poinsettias make sure they are in clay pots beneath the wrapping.

These porous containers provide essential drainage to prolong poinsettias' health, and guard against root rot, caused by overwatering.

CHRISTMAS CENTERPIECE GOOD ENOUGH TO EAT

Whether you are having a dessert or coffee party or open house, nothing is so appealing as a centerpiece that is good enough to eat. Just such a centerpiece is a Partridge in a Pear Tree — a topiary tree filled with delectable marzipan candy and surrounded by flickering candles and scrumptious little cupcakes and tarts done up in flourishing holiday fancy. Directions for the tree and all the trimmings are given here.

Making the Partridge in a Pear Tree

ASSEMBLE MATERIALS:

1 pall about 5½x4¼-inch
¼-inch dowel, 11 inches
8-inch styrofoam ball
Gold colored paper
Pins
Sequins
Household foil

Lace paper dollies
Small pieces colored paper
Candles and holders
Plaster of paris
Spray paint
Glue or library paste
Wooden picks

Directions: Spray dowel stick and paper dollies with gold spray paint. Mix the plaster of paris according to package directions. Place one end of dowel in bottom of pall and pour the plaster of paris around it. Let it harden.

Use a small paring knife to make a hole in the styrofoam ball; place the ball on the other end of the dowel. Cover the ball with foil for protection and then with leaf shaped pieces of the gold colored paper for decoration.

Decorate pall with pieces of the dolly and sequins, using glue to fasten them onto the pall.

To make the single dimensional partridge cut a free form bird design from two thicknesses of heavy colored paper. Paste together with a pick between the layers at bottom; decorate with paper and sequins.

Attach a crepe paper tail cut from strips. Make comb by inserting short wooden picks and decorating with small pieces of Marzipan candy. (See recipe below).

Color Marzipan yellow for the pears and green for the leaves. Cut off and decorate. Attach the pieces of candy using a straight pin to hold each piece.

At serving time, arrange the cupcakes and tarts and light the votive candles.

It's Unusual, It's Nutty

For an unusual treat serve nuts seasoned and roasted in your own kitchen instead of those you can buy. Any nuts can be used but almonds are especially easy.

Buy plain shelled ones and blanch them in boiling water. Dry, then stir about 1 tablespoon of real mayonnaise through 2 cups of whole almonds, just until the nuts look well coated.

Spread on foil on cookie sheet and roast in a moderate oven, stirring to turn once. They will brown delicately in a few minutes. Salt when cool.

Spicy Topping Is Garnish for Drink

NEW YORK (UPI) — Try serving chocolate spice float to those of your guests who want a holiday drink full of cheer but minus spirits. You need one quart chocolate milk for 4 to 6 servings. You make it this way:

Chill bowl and beaters in refrigerator 15 minutes. Then blend in chilled bowl ½ cup dry instant non-dairy coffee creamer, ½ cup cold milk, 2 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon pumpkin pie spice.

Whip at high speed with electric mixer until soft peaks form (3 to 5 minutes). Pour chocolate milk into glasses. Top with whipped topping.

EDIBLE CENTERPIECE—On the first day of Christmas make a Partridge in a Pear Tree and tuck it away as a grand surprise. The tree is a foil wrapped styrofoam ball covered with Marzipan candies. The partridge is not for eating, but the candies and the cupcakes and tarts completing the scene are.

Marzipan

¼ cup margarine
¼ cup light corn syrup
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon almond extract (optional)

½ teaspoon vanilla
1 pound confectioners sugar
1 cup almond paste

Cream margarine; blend in light corn syrup, salt and flavorings. Add confectioners sugar, about ½ at a time, mixing well after each addition. Knead with hands as mixture becomes stiffer. Knead in almond paste.

Color with vegetable food coloring. Shape and decorate as desired. Makes about 1½ pounds candy.

Cream Cupcakes

1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg

½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup corn oil
¼ cup milk

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Beat eggs; gradually add sugar, beating until fluffy. Add vanilla. Combine corn oil and milk in measuring cup; whip with fork until creamy. Add dry ingredients to egg mixture alternately with oil and milk, beating until smooth after each addition.

Pour batter into paper lined or greased and floured cupcake pans. Bake in 350 degrees F. (moderate) oven until cupcakes test done, 20 to 25 minutes.

Frost with Lemon Frosting. Decorate with a small Marzipan candy molded to resemble a partridge and a leaf.

Lemon Frosting

½ cup margarine
½ cup light corn syrup
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice

¾ cups sifted confectioners
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel

Cream margarine. Add corn syrup and salt; blend. Add lemon juice and confectioners sugar alternately, beating until smooth and creamy after each addition. Add enough lemon juice to make a good spreading consistency. Stir in grated lemon peel. Makes enough to cover tops of 36 small cupcakes.

Pecan Tartslets

Pastry for 2 crust pie
2 eggs, slightly beaten
¾ cup dark corn syrup
¼ teaspoon salt

¼ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup sugar
¾ cup finely chopped pecans

Mix pastry; roll to ¼-inch thickness on lightly floured board. Cut into 3½-inch circles and use to line 24 individual tart shells or muffin pans (2½-inch). Flute edges as desired. Mix eggs, corn syrup, salt, vanilla and sugar together. Stir in pecans.

Spoon about 1 tablespoonful into each unbacked shell. Bake in 400 degrees F. (hot) oven 25 to 30 minutes. Remove from pans and cool on rack. Makes 24 tartlets.

Top with a small dollop of whipped cream before serving.

Pastry: Mix 2 cups sifted flour and 1 teaspoon salt. Blend in ½ cup corn oil thoroughly with a fork. Sprinkle 3 tablespoons cold water over mixture; mix well. Press dough firmly into ball with hands. If too dry, mix in 1 to 2 tablespoons more oil.

Hearty Welsh Rabbit

There are many different recipes for welsh rabbit which is primarily cheese melted into a liquid which may be ale, beer, wine cream or milk. The melting quality of the cheese is important.

This Rabbit is different, more hearty, and expandable because of the addition of cooked and drained large white Great Northern beans.

Usually made just before serving in a chafing dish or double boiler, a recipe for a good Cheese Sauce, instead of a Rabbit, may be used if it is desirable to make the dish in advance.

The hot cooked beans may be lifted from the bean liquid by using a slotted spoon or strainer and stirred into the cheese sauce just before serving.

Welsh Rabbit with Beans
1 pound sharp natural Cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup ale, beer or cream
1 and ½ teaspoons dry mustard
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
3 dashes Tabasco sauce
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 well-beaten egg
2 cups cooked drained large white Great Northern Beans

In top of double boiler or in blazer pan in hot water jacket of your chafing dish, mix dry seasonings. Pour in ale, beer or cream. Let stand until hot. Add cheese thin sliced, coarse-grated or crumbled, and sautes. Stir all, always in the same direction (but don't ask us why!) until cheese is melted.

Whip egg with fork in small dish, add a tablespoon of cheese mixture; combine and stir into cheese mixture, then stir in beans, cooked according to directions on the package. (The egg is not ordinarily added but it is a precaution against the mixture separating as it stands, which may happen at buffet parties.)

Garnish surface with crisp snippets of bacon or have side dishes of anchovies, bacon bits, sliced ripe olives, and cubes of cooked ham alongside.

High Glaze on Ham Starts With Molasses

For a festive gleam to holiday baked ham, glaze the meat with two pantry shelf staples... unsulphured molasses and prepared mustard. The blended ingredients (about ½ cup each of molasses and mustard) are brushed on a half or whole ham the last 45 minutes of baking time, after the rind has been removed and the ham scored and studded with cloves.

To achieve even a higher gloss, brush on additional glaze once or twice while the ham is in the oven for its final baking period.

WELSH RABBIT WITH BEANS

Yule Punch Is Welcome One

Sweet rich drinks, the kind you can spoon from cups, are a welcoming part of Christmas festivities.

Here's a new one from the hospitable state of California where orange groves and bright skies are far cry from the snow Santa Claus is used to.

Orange Coffee Punch
4 unpeeled oranges, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons chocolate syrup
2 quarts strong hot coffee
¼ cup creme de cacao
1 cup whipping cream
¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
2 tablespoons shaved unsweetened chocolate

Place orange slices in large heatproof container. Stir chocolate syrup into hot coffee; pour over oranges. Let stand ½ hour; strain.

Reheat coffee mixture, being careful not to boil. Stir in creme de cacao. Whip cream; gradually add sugar pour coffee into mugs. Float cream on top.

Sprinkle with orange peel and shaved chocolate. Makes 8-10 servings.

ORANGE COFFEE PUNCH

Raisins Star in Holiday Dessert

Creative homemakers like the challenge of using their imagination when planning holiday desserts with flavorful California raisins.

Gourmet cooking often extends to sophisticated flaming dessert sauces which place special importance on the menu finale. There's an aura of splendor around this interesting Snapdragon Pie.

The elegant chignon filling abounds in plump seedless raisins accented with coffee and brandy.

The old English holiday game called Snapdragon is one in which the participants try to snatch 12 raisins from a plateful of flaming brandy before the flame dies down. Each raisin symbolizes one month's good luck in the following year and woe be to those who don't get their quota.

This gourmet Raisin Snapdragon Pie holds enough brandied raisins to bring good luck for a year. The light chignon filling is delightful.

RAISIN SNAPDRAGON PIE
1 cup dark seedless raisins
¼ cup brandy
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons instant coffee
¼ cup finely chopped Brazil nuts
1 cup whipping cream
Baked Coconut Crust
Raisin Brandy Sauce

Chop raisins; combine with brandy in small saucepan. Heat gently, then flame stirring until flames die out.

Separate eggs. Beat yolks and combine with milk. Stir in gelatin mixed with ¼ cup sugar, salt and instant coffee. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until gelatin is dissolved, about 5 minutes.

Add brandied raisins and nuts.

Cool until mixture begins to thicken.

Beat egg whites until stiff, beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar; fold into filling. Fold in stiffly beaten cream. Turn into coconut crust; chill firm. Serve plain or with raisin brandy sauce. Makes 8 servings.

Coconut Crust: Combine 1½ cups flaked coconut with ¼ cup melted butter in 9-inch pie pan. Pat over bottom and up sides to make crust. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees F.) about 15 minutes until golden brown. Cool.

Brandied Raisin Sauce
¼ cup sugar
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon instant coffee
1½ cups water
1 tablespoon butter
¼ cup dark seedless raisins
¼ cup brandy

Combine sugar, cornstarch, salt, coffee and water. Cook stirring, over medium heat until mixture thickens and clears. Stir in butter and raisins. Heat brandy over hot water. Pour over sauce. Flame, spooning sauce until flames die out. Serve warm over wedges of pie. Make 1½ cups.

Separate eggs. Beat yolks and combine with milk. Stir in gelatin mixed with ¼ cup sugar, salt and instant coffee. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until gelatin is dissolved, about 5 minutes.

Add brandied raisins and nuts.

HOLIDAY CHICKEN MOUSSE

Chicken Mousse Smooth

Holiday Chicken Mousse, nicely spiced with sweet gherkins and prettily molded, is guaranteed to be the belle of the buffet. Any two-quart mold will do: bell-shaped as shown here or a ring, a tree-shaped cake pan or even a mixing bowl.

Just before serving, the mousse can be decorated with slices of sweet gherkins, in any design that compliments the shape used.

Crisp little crackers with fancy edges of scallops or points make a perfect accompaniment.

2 tablespoons sweet pickle liquid

1 teaspoon minced instant onion
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon salt
2½ cups finely chopped, cooked chicken

Ex-Con Still Held in Slaying

NILES (AP) — Ex-convict Charles Albertson remained in the Berrien County jail today under a number of felony charges in Friday's holdup slaying of a cafe patron and a woman's abduction.

Albertson, 33, parolee who police say has served time for rape and burglary, is accused of murder, attempted murder, armed robbery and kidnapping. Police said that Albertson when arrested declared he was "too drunk" to remember what he did.

Witnesses said Albertson, armed with a shotgun, invaded the cafe about 2:30 a.m., shot and killed Louis C. Elvinger, 35, a patron, and abducted Mrs. Ardis Darling, 28, fleeing by car with money from the cash register and from another patron. Mrs. Darling, divorcee and mother of two children, was held captive for seven hours before police found and seized Albertson north of the city with the aid of Jack Jacobs Sr., gasoline station operator.

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS

Hard, the King, had heard rumors of a man's death, and had sent the three wise men to search him out, saying, "Bring me word that I may see one worthy like him."

They departed into their own countries by another route, and Harod did not hear from them.

But the wise men were wise enough to know that Harod had something else in mind. Besides, they had been warned by God in a dream not to return to Harod.

SANTA and the SINGING TURTLE

By LUCRECE BEALE

(Synopsis—Womp tells George he will play his flute and put Santa and all of Fairyland to sleep. George tricks Womp into bending close to him and then clamps his jaws around Womp's nose.)

CHAPTER THIRTEEN
Womp, the manwitch, leaped into the air.

"Ouch! Ouch!" he hollered. "Let me go!"

But George clamped his turtle jaws as tight as he could around Womp's nose and would not let go.

Womp put both his hands around the turtle's shell and pulled and pulled.

The harder he pulled, the tighter George locked his jaws, and Womp felt as if he were pulling off his own nose.

STARTS TO DANCE
He began to dance crazily back into the circle of the audience.

He stamped his feet and waved his hands and screamed at the top of his voice. George shut his eyes and held on.

Meanwhile the Chipmunk Chatterboxes played on and the audience shouted and stamped their feet.

It appeared that Womp was merely carried away by the music and no one paid the least attention to his gyrating.

But suddenly the chipmunks were finished, and everyone was quiet.

Everyone, that is, except Womp who hollered louder than ever.

The fairies and the animals and the Storybook folk looked at him in amazement, but the manwitch was hopping around so wildly they couldn't tell what was going on.

Santa Claus got out of his rocking chair and said sternly, "This is very unseemly behavior. We must have quiet for the next performer who will be George, the singing turtle."

Womp shrieked and spun like a top. Suddenly the snowman, who had been searching for the turtle, saw what was hanging on the manwitch's nose.

"Good gracious!" he exclaimed. "George has gone out of his mind!"

BIG ARMS
He ran up to Womp and put his big snowy arms around him to stop his spinning.

"George!" he shouted. "It's your turn to sing!"
"Get him off! Get him off!" begged Womp, standing still and staring wildly at the snowman.

"For goodness' sake, George, let go!" begged the snowman, tapping George on the back.

SHOOK HIS HEAD
But the turtle shook his head furiously, pulling Womp's nose harder than ever.

Santa Claus stepped forward and said quietly, "This is a Music Festival and not a circus. Let go at once, George, and explain yourself if you can."

Instantly George let go and dropped to the ground.

With a great sigh of relief he turned to explain everything to Santa and warm him about the wicked Womp.

COULDN'T SPEAK
But alas! when he tried to speak he couldn't move his mouth!

He had clenched Womp's nose so tightly he had dislocated his own jaw and the only sound he could make was "Ahhhhh" which sounded like a cross between a groan and the sound a child makes when the doctor is looking down his throat.

Womp saw at once what had happened. He stepped right up to Santa and said, "I never expected to be treated this way when I came to the Music Festival to perform."

"Are you a performer?" asked Santa absently. He was looking down at George, and shaking his head sadly.

SANTA AMAZED
He was amazed and disappointed that the turtle would behave so badly.

"Indeed, yes," said Womp. "I play the flute and I should like to play for you now."

George said, "Ahhhh! Ahhhhh!" and shook his head frantically.

"It's George's turn," declared the snowman. "He wants to sing."

UNABLE TO SING
"Ahhhhhhh" went George furiously and it was clear he could neither sing nor speak.
"Shall I take his place?" asked Womp politely.

"I suppose so," said Santa. "Although I am sorry not to have heard the turtle sing, for I have heard great things about his voice. Well, we will have a break for luncheon and then we will hear you play the flute."

"Ahhhhh!" moaned George. "Ahhhhh!"

But no one could tell what he was trying to say.

Ask Rate Cut at Consumers

LANSING (AP) — Consumers Power Co. Friday asked the Michigan Public Service Commission for permission to reduce rates to residential electric space heating customers by 19 per cent.

This would mean a savings of about $75,000 a year for the company's 31,200 users of this service, said vice president John Klueberg.

The company also asked permission to set up a new rate schedule for some 300 commercial and industrial electric space heating customers. The varying rate reduction would result in a year saving of some $20,000.

Consumers applied last week for approval of a reduction for owners of fast recovery electric water heaters and an $800,000 to $3 million reduction for certain commercial and institutional customers.

Romney to Be Busy?

Probe Tie-Ups Eyed

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George Romney could find himself tied to the judge and jury chair for days or even weeks—and thus hampered in handling other state business—when National Guard scandal hearings finally begin.

At a recent conference Romney dismissed a question about how much time he might have to devote to the hearing he has called.

With much of the hearing detail yet to be worked out, no one can say what will happen, but knowledgeable sources concede the governor might well be spending plenty of time listening to evidence.

ASKED HEARINGS

Two of the three, Maj. Gen. Ronald McDonald and Brig. Gen. Carson Neffert, demanded hearings. Eventually, after a dispute between Romney and Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, they were reinstated—then immediately suspended pending the hearing.

McDonald had been adjutant general and Neffert quartermaster general.

Kelley's office is now preparing the formal statement of charges against the generals. It's expected to go to the governor next week—or at least before the end of the year.

But that could be just the start of a protracted case that's already consumed 10 weeks.

Halley's Comet, last seen in 1910 and due to return in 1986, has a history of recorded appearances as far back as 240 B.C.

Reds Are Key to Italy Vote

ROME (AP)—Italy's big Communist party holds a key bloc of votes as the deadlocked parliament heads today toward a sixth ballot in the election of a president.

Three men remain as serious contenders—Christian Democrats Giovanni Leone and Amintore Fanfani and Social Democrat Giuseppe Saragat.

At the end of five ballots, none was close to the number needed to succeed. Christian Democrat Antonio Segni, who resigned as president Dec. 6 because of poor health.

On the fifth ballot Friday night, Leone got 294, Saragat 140, and Fanfani 122.

RED SECOND

Communist candidate Umberto Terracini actually ranked second, with 252 votes. But although the Communists were giving him their vote, they did not pretend to think their man had a chance.

The required majority is 482, and with Communists controlling a bloc of 253 votes, their support could be decisive.

Bullet 'Flows' Through Man

ATLANTA (AP)—A 35-year-old man who accidentally shot himself in the thigh has had the bullet removed—from his lung.

The bullet, washed through the bloodstream, passed through his heart and into his lung.

Herbert Fowler, manager of a private club at Rome, Ga., underwent surgery last week at Emory University Hospital here, two weeks after accidentally shooting himself when his pistol fell out of his pocket.

Fowler, at the club when the accident occurred, received immediate treatment from his doctor. An X-ray showed the .22-caliber bullet lodged in his thigh and it was decided to leave it there where it was unlikely to do any harm.

Fowler then went back to work. Two weeks later he had sharp chest pains. He again consulted his doctor who X-rayed his chest. The doctor saw the same .22-caliber bullet, this time in Fowler's lung.

HARD TO BELIEVE

"I could hardly believe it," the doctor said. Fowler was then sent to Emory for the operation to remove the bullet.

"I know I'm very lucky," Fowler said Friday.

His surgeon, who declined to be named, said, "the bullet must first have lodged near a large vein in Fowler's thigh. It then obviously worked its self into the vein and traveled the vein route with his blood all the way up through his heart and into the lung."

"It's a very unusual case," the doctor added. "Even more unusual than the case last week in Portland, Maine, in which a bullet traveled from a man's head into his heart, where it was removed. At least that bullet flowed down, with the pull of gravity."

"In Fowler's case, it had to have enough pressure flow to move it upward from the leg, against the flow of gravity. We believe it moved at night, while he was in bed and lying on his left side, so the flow of gravity was not as strong."

"It was also a small bullet, roughly a half inch long and a third of an inch in diameter."

Luckily, it was spread out like a rim, which kept it wedged in his artery and prevented it from piercing through.

"The bullet really became a pulmonary embolism—a blood clot," the surgeon said. "But it was small enough not to block off Fowler's entire circulation when it passed through his heart valves and into his lung. When the entire circulation stops the patient usually dies."

Recruiter Announces

AF Basic Training Cut

S. Sgt. William H. Hines, local Air Force recruiter, announced today that basic training for Air Force enlistees has been cut from eight weeks to six weeks.

Several of the "nice to know" but really nonessential phases of "basic" have been cut from the curriculum, he said.

MIDLAND — A hot-shooting Pontiac Central quintet ran its record to 5-0 here last night with an easy 70-67 victory over Midland's Chemics.

The victory kept the Pontiac squad atop the Saginaw Valley Conference with a 4-0 record and the loss knocked Midland into a tie for seventh with Bay City Central.

The visiting PCH unit wrapped up the contest in the first quarter, outscoring the Chemics 24-9.

"We stole the ball on them a few times at the start of the ball game and I think it shook them up a little," said PCH coach Fred Zittel.

After the productive opening quarter, Zittel substituted freely and nine players had a hand in the scoring.

OUTSCORES PCH
Midland outscored the Chiefs, 14-13, in the second quarter and trailed at halftime, 37-23. Both teams picked up 23 points in the closing half.

The SVC triumph was the ninth in a row for PCH and the win was the team's 15th in its last 16 games. Central's last loss came in the state Class A semifinals at East Lansing last spring.

Leading the attack against Midland were Carl Arnold and Jesse Evans.

Arnold, a 5-8 senior guard who was used sparingly on last year's team, collected 10 field goals and picked up four of five attempts at the charity line.

Evans, a 6-3 junior forward, wound up with 23 points. John Hooper, a senior forward, chipped in with 11 markers.

Sparking Midland was junior Tom Erickson with 21 points. John Kawiecki followed with 12.

Arnold's point production could lift him a notch in the SVC scoring race. The little playmaker went into the game with a 19.0 average, tied for fourth place.

Coaches Turn to Benches for Wayne-Oakland Victories

Rochester Decisions Madison in Overtime

By HERB PETERS

Cold shooting performances last night nevertheless carried Rochester and Warren Cousino into shares of the sizzling hot Oakland-A League race with five teams tied for first place.

Rochester went into overtime again to beat Madison, 56-52, and match the Eagles with a 2-1 record. Cousino and Troy are at the same mark after the Patriots' 48-43 decision over the Colts.

It was the second straight extra period victory for the Falcons, and the third overtime in four starts for them.

But it might not have been necessary except for a frigid scoring spell in the fourth period.

when their average plummeted to a low 28 per cent for the night.

After leading 30-25 at the half and by a comfortable 43-35 going into the final stanza, the Falcons failed to score for six minutes and 50 seconds.

CHIPS AWAY

Madison kept chipping away until Bill Ploche hit from outside at 3:46 for a 43-43 deadlock. Just seconds later, Ploche drove in for a layup and the Eagles led for the first time since their 13-12 first period edge.

Bruce McDonald finally snapped the Falcons back with a tying bucket at 1:10, and then Madison's Jim Combs and Rod Krukus traded quick goals for the regulation time standoff.

Cards Atop League

Dryden Edges Armada

This could be Dryden's year in the Southern Thumb League. The Cardinals tied Anchor Bay for the football championship a few weeks back and the team is now trying to fly away with the basketball title.

Dryden knocked off Armada, 67-45, in a double overtime last night to remain atop the league with a 3-0 record.

In other games, Almont (2-2) trimmed Brown City (1-3), 54-52, New Haven (3-1) thumped Memphis (3-2), 76-51, and Anchor Bay (3-2) rode to a 68-55 decision over Capac (1-3).

Armada rallied in the final quarter to tie the Cardinals and matched the winners with three points in the first extra period.

CHARITY TOSSES

In the second overtime period, Ken Kitchenmaster, who finished with 16 points, tossed in four straight charity tosses to sew up the win for Dryden.

Helping Kitchenmaster with the scoring were Ron Fauds (22), George Couzens (11) and Tom Steiner (11). Lee Thompson picked up 21 for the losers and Mark Parker added 20.

Dan Burns tossed in 22 points to spark the Anchor Bay attack. Robert Kobayashi collected 16 for Capac. The winners led at halftime, 31-21.

Bill Wallace hit a 10-foot jump shot with 15 seconds left to give Almont the nod over Brown City.

Moments earlier, Wallace had put Almont ahead 50-50, and Brown City's Carl Steigewald tied it at 52-53 with less than a minute to go.

Hills, Wolves Earn Triumphs

Lakers Lose, 48-44; Milford Falls, 68-46

By JERRY CRAIG

Two Wayne-Oakland League coaches found the key to success on the bench Friday night and the discovery could have a large effect on the remainder of the title race.

Coach Hal Henderson benched three starters and came up with an impressive 68-46 victory for Bloomfield Hills at Milford and Clarkson's Bud McGrath had the right reserve in Rod Allen as the Wolves waylaid West Bloomfield, 48-44.

The victories left Hills, Clarkson and West Bloomfield all with 2-1 records and put them one game behind Holly's perfect 3-0 log.

Clarkston withstood a late rally by the Lakers to keep them off their unbeaten W-O tempo. The contest marked the third straight cliffhanger for the losers. Tuesday they lost in three overtimes at non-league foe Waterford.

The Lakers took three three-point leads in the first period; then Clarkson's hold them scoreless for three and a half minutes in the second session to go up 17-11.

They trailed until late in the third period when Jay Williams knotted the score with a field goal. The winning Wolves then spurred away again to a 35-29 edge as Allen tallied his first field goal.

His second basket at 37:31 of the last quarter made it 37-11. The Lakers began another comeback, and Greg Heppinall's two free throws with 3:34 to go put them ahead, 44-43.

Ron Lippert tied it for Clarkson with a charity toss, and Allen then put in a southpaw jumper with 1:37 to play that proved the deciding points.

BARONS ROLL

Although the replacements Bloomfield Hills' coach Henderson inserted into the starting lineup only tallied nine points among them; they put spark into the attack and spurred the displaced regulars when they got back into the lineup.

Milford made it close all through the first two periods. But Mike Yeager broke his nose in the second quarter and joined two other injured regulars on the sidelines.

This was too much for the Redskins to offset and the Barons' fast break took its toll in the closing half. The winners also canned 12 of their first 15 free throws.

Chelsea Nips South Lyon 5

South Lyon jumped off to a 22-21 lead at intermission but couldn't hit the bucket in the second half and dropped a 56-54 decision to Chelsea.

Tom Duncan poured in 24 points for the losers to take game scoring honors. The outburst spurred Duncan's scoring average to 22.0 for four games.

Racial Violence, Political Unrest

Anxiety Mars British Guiana Christmas Festivities

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP) — Santa Claus usually arrives on a bicycle in British Guiana.

There are no fireplaces in tropical Georgetown. Children hang a hopeful sock by their beds. Bicycles seem almost to outnumber people. At night, their feeble handlebar lamps look like hobbling, weaving glowworms on parade.

Christmas carolers carrying candles and cups for collections have started their rounds, singing in quaint falsetto voices to emulate children. "Silent Night" is sung under palm trees by sports-shirted people perspiring in the humid twilight.

ent about this Christmas — a hint of apprehension and uncertainty in the air.

SENSES REASON

The other day, Carl Blackman, a newspaper editor, told his wife, Edith: "Let's not plan on a big Christmas. Just something small and simple." She senses the reason but asked why any way. "Oh it's just the way things are; something could happen," he replied.

That "something" has been happening to British Guiana most of this year. Racial violence between Guineans of African and East Indian descent has claimed 167 lives and caused damage estimated at $1.3 million.

Politics and poor leadership have split the once friendly community. There now are deep fears that racial rivalries have gone beyond political control.

Recent elections in which the British government vested so much hope for peace in this stricken colony, resulted in the defeat of government of the British and the United States desired — Marxist leader Cheddi Jagan is out of power.

HAD FEARED

The United States had feared that Jagan ultimately would try to set up a Castro-type regime. It is understood to have urged the British into second thoughts about giving Guiana its independence. The British came up with an electoral formula using proportional representation. That has put Forbes Burnham in the premier's office.

Results of the election confirmed the depth of racial feeling and appear to have provided a potentially explosive setting for continued unrest and violence.

This is why. Present voter rolls are estimated to have 112,000 Indians, 96,000 blacks and 38,000 Guineans of mixed descent. This is almost exactly how the vote turned out with the Indians backing Jagan and the blacks supporting Burnham.

Unless Burnham can do something to heal the racial wounds and bring Indian voters to his aid.

A former Farmington Township physician yesterday was a found guilty of sodomy by an Oakland County Circuit Court jury and will be sentenced Jan. 12. He will appeal the conviction.

The charge was brought against Dr. Pawzy Askar of King of Prussia, Pa., by a 17-year-old girl whom he employed while operating a clinic at 14 Mile and Middle Belt between August and December of 1963.

The jury returned its verdict after deliberating three and a half hours following the nine-day trial. Askar faces a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison.

Police are holding Dock P. Robinson, 50, of 227 Hughes in connection with the shooting.

Robinson told police he was asleep at home when someone began knocking and banging on his front door.

He told police he got his 22-caliber rifle and shot through the door as the unknown intruder broke the glass in the door.

Robinson said he wasn't aware that Miss Rogers, a friend of his for the past 10 years, was the intruder until after he had shot her.

side, Jagan could regain power in 1968.

CLEAR OBJECTIVE

This is clearly Jagan's objective. He has pledged all-out opposition.

It is not difficult to instill a fear of Burnham among lower-class Indians who seem to blame the Negro leader for racial violence this year.

Jagan also is hopeful of leading sugar workers, predominantly of Indian descent, into an early strike through a demand for pay increases.

Burnham is confident of winning many Indians to his side. He has pledged a "communal democracy" in close contact on all issues with the leaders of all religious and ethnic groups in the colony.

Some Indians are saying "We have nothing to fear." Many others are still apprehensive.

3 Detroit Policemen Suspended on Charges

DETROIT (UPI) — Three Detroit policemen were under suspension from their jobs today and 10 others were under investigation in the wake of charges of violence and shaking.

Patrolman Joseph Michalski was suspended yesterday pending completion of a full-scale investigation of charges he broke the nose and jaw of a Negro cameraman and smashed his camera at the scene of a shooting.

Michalski admitted knocking a camera from the hands of Edgar Taylor, but denied striking the man. He was suspended on the basis of a formal charge brought by another Negro cameraman, Sidney Fields, a Wayne State University student, who said the patrolman smashed his camera and also threatened him.

A white patrolman and a Negro burglar suspect died in the shooting.

Police authorities said they were awaiting a formal complaint from Taylor, who was reported hospitalized.

In a separate case, patrolman Rudy Roodenbe and Donald Gheysen were suspended by their superior, Inspector Richard Loftus, who said he personally watched the two load a case of whisky into the trunk of their scout car yesterday at the Madison Electric Co.

Loftus said it was reported Roodenbe and Gheysen and the 10 other officers at the Woodward Police Station may have accepted gifts of whisky from persons in return for overlooking parking violations.

An investigation was launched into the charges.

Four promotions at First Federal Savings of Oakland have been announced by James Clarkson, president.

James M. Rahl, 1386 Woodlow, Waterford Township, has been named executive vice president and secretary.

Richard E. Cavill, 756 Beachway, White Lake Township, has been promoted to assistant vice president.

James H. Rohm, 7984 Perry Lake, Independence Township, has been made assistant treasurer.

Richard D. Morrison 151 Ascot, becomes acting branch manager of the Drayton Plains office.

Hearing Stated in Area Slaying

To Decide if Basis Exists for a Charge

A Juvenile Court hearing will be held Monday to determine what type of charge, if any, should be brought against a 16-year-old Independence Township boy who shot and killed his stepfather Dec. 1.

Daniel F. Gosley, 9905 M15, was released to the custody of his mother following the fatal shooting of Jesse Lyons, 43.

The prosecutor's office has not asked for a waiver on the youth.

Judge Norman R. Barnard will decide if there is a basis for a charge after hearing testimony during the 3 p.m. hearing.

Lyons was killed during an argument with his stepson in their home.

STRUCK BOY

Sheriff's deputies said Lyons lunged at Gosley with an unloaded 22-caliber rifle, striking the boy in the shoulder with the butt of the weapon.

A 7mm Mauser rifle which Gosley was holding when he was struck discharged and killed Lyons almost instantly.

Gosley told deputies that he did not know the weapon was loaded and had gotten it out of the bedroom to scare his stepfather out of the house.

FIREMEN FIGHT

Blaze in Big Dallas Store

DALLAS (AP) — More than 125 firemen battled a stubborn, smoky blaze near the center of the Neiman — Marcus specialty store in downtown Dallas today.

Security guard M.C. Williams, 60, reported the fire apparently centered around the escalator from the first floor to the fifth in a building chockfull of Christmas merchandise.

Williams first discovered the smoke and called police at 3:45 a.m. By 4:54 a.m., it was a five-alarm fire with 20 pieces of equipment at the scene.

At that point the fire department summoned an off-duty shift of 400 men, some to join in the battle.

"It's real smoky and hard to tell exactly where the fire is," Williams said. "Mostly it's burning around the escalator — not much on the first floor — but generally from the second floor up to the fifth."

BLAST HEARD

"We don't know how it started but another watchman heard what sounded like a small explosion before the pyrotechnics and it was something to do with it."

Reflections

PRESCRIPTION For Good Conduct

From ancient times boys have been given instruction for gaining honor, bravery and loyalty to tribe and fellowman. Boys were taught the art of food preparation, duties of wifehood and the art of leadership in her home, discipline with a sting to give her children lessons in good conduct.

VOORHEES-SIPLE FUNERAL HOME

1,000 years ago, 500 years ago, 250 years ago, a century ago, yesterday parents taught their children to grow tall and steady, to be a credit to themselves and to those around them. Some of those lessons seem rigid and cruel but they did create a strong virtue nation. There are good conduct prescriptions given to our children today. Are they successful? Look at the juvenile and divorce records. I'm inclined to believe our Prescriptions are lacking here.

About face to the arena of civilization's highest idealism, "Prescriptions for good conduct."

The largest power program ever undertaken in the United States is a project of the Western Energy Supply and Transmission Associates (WEST), formed recently by a group of 10 investor-owned electric companies in the Southwest. Its objective is to plan and coordinate a 20-year $10.5 billion power development program covering one-fifth of the continental United States. As a means of participating in this program, which we regard as one of the most significant developments in the history of the electric utility industry, our Research Bulletin recommends the high-quality stocks of two ably managed utility companies, with excellent growth potentials. Johnsons Plan Holiday

National Tree Lighted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is brimming over with the Christmas spirit. But soon the gaiety will be transferred to President Johnson's Texas Ranch, where the first family will spend most of the holiday season.

Friday night, Johnson and his closest kinfolk gathered in the circular park south of the White House as he pressed a button to light the 72-foot national Christmas tree in windy, 25-degree weather.

Even as Johnson closed the electric circuit to illuminate the tree, the White House walls, gleaming in a fresh coat of paint, were bathed by floodlights. This was the first time since his economy-in-government campaign was launched a year ago that the executive mansion was so bright.

Just before the tree-lighting, the Johnsons were hosts to the children of White House staff members. And Sunday White House correspondents and their families will drop by for a special holiday tour.

FREE TO FLY

Then the President, his wife, Lady Bird, and daughters, Lynda and Luci, will be free to fly to their ranch.

For the fourth consecutive year, the White House will be empty on Christmas Day. The last time it was occupied during the holiday was in 1960, when Dwight D. Eisenhower and his wife, Mamie, were about to relinquish occupancy to John F. Kennedy and his family.

6 Children Killed in Warren Blaze

Family's Home Guttured by Fire

DETROIT (AP) — A suburban Warren steelworker returned home from his part-time cab-driver job today and found six of his nine children dead in a fire that gutted the family's two-story home.

"Six of my babies are gone... I've lost six of my babies," sobbed Elbert Turner Cox, 40, when told of the tragedy.

He was taken immediately to a Detroit hospital where his wife, Marie, 25, was reported in critical condition and his three surviving youngsters were under observation.

Killed in the fire were Martha Ann, 11; Mary Jo, 7; John, 6; Diane, 4; James, 3, and Charles, 18 months.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined, but Warren Fire Marshal Don Cokerline said it apparently started in a downstairs utility room.

The oldest of the Cox children, 13-year-old Elbert Jr., told police he was awakened shortly before 3 a. m. by a "muffled explosion."

Elbert, who slept in a second-floor room with his brothers, Frank, 16, and Thomas, 8, awakened the other two.

INTENSE HEAT

Intense heat prevented him from warning other members of the family, Elbert said, and he was forced to jump from the window.

The window was open, he said, because he had earlier been watching a lunar eclipse. The other windows were frozen shut.

Frank summoned a next-door neighbor, Herbert Robertson, 34, who ran to the Cox home. "We could see Mrs. Cox beating at this front window," he said, "but it was too high for us to reach from the ground."

JAGGED GLASS

The woman eventually forced her way out through the jagged glass, and then tried to run back into the house before being restrained.

Neighbors described the Cox family as "closely-knit and happy."

"They did things together," said one friend. "Cox used to load the whole family in the station wagon and take them out for drives."

"There seemed to be a tremendous bond between them all," he said.

Nursing Home Blaze Fatal to 20 in Indiana

FOUNTAIN TOWN, Ind. (AP) — A mouse nest could have caused a fire that destroyed a 60-year-old nursing home, killing 20 elderly patients, a state fire inspector said today.

Howard Boegholtz, deputy state fire marshal, said the fire started in a furnace where he believed the mouse nest.

The pre-dawn blaze spread through the two-story frame McGraw Nursing Home so quickly yesterday that most of the victims were trapped in bed.

Firemen and volunteers from communities surrounding this town of 300, southeast of Indianapolis, worked against cold and limited water supplies to control the fire and rescue survivors.

Fourteen patients and three nurses survived, fleeing into near-zero cold.

ESCAPED INJURY

One patient escaped injury, and the rest were hospitalized with smoke inhalation and exposure.

The inspector said the furnace was operating at full power because of the cold and said "it's possible a mouse nest in the walls ignited because of the intense heat."

10 Children Die in Dixie Home Fires

By The Associated Press
A total of 10 children died in two home fires in two Southern states last night.

Five children of Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne D. Lafferty were killed when flames destroyed their rural frame house near Marked Tree, Ark.

The children ranged in ages from 7 to 16. Seven other children in the family were saved.

Five children died near Kingston, N. C., when a blaze swept through a five-room frame house where 14 persons were sleeping.

Four children of the Mrs. Verda A. Spencer family were killed along with a cousin of the family. Six other children, all nieces and nephews of the Spencers, were saved.

Ford Expected to Begin Fight to Oust Halleck

Summerfield Among GOP Group Battling to Prevent Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan told colleagues today he is out to replace Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana as House Republican leader.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan was expected to announce today his bid to topple House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck amid reports supporters of Halleck and GOP Chairman Dean Burch are forging an informal alliance to keep them in their jobs.

Ford's decision to challenge the Indiana was anticipated as he summoned newsmen to a press conference.

A group of young Republicans have urged him to try to depose Halleck in an effort to give the GOP House leadership "a younger image." Ford is 51 and Halleck is 64.

Meanwhile, former Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield of Michigan, is in the vanguard of a group of influential Republicans — some of them closely associated with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower — who are reported working to prevent the ouster of either Burch or Halleck at this time.

The impending fight for the House leadership parallels the struggle for control of the National Committee, which Burch is battling to keep his post.

SAY NO CONNECTION

But those backing Ford say there is no connection between the two ouster moves.

Halleck is on vacation. His aides say they believe they have the votes to turn back any challenge to his leadership.

Eisenhower, meanwhile, appears to be maintaining a neutral position in both instances.

He said yesterday in California where he is vacationing he is taking no part in the dispute over Burch, does not plan to attend the National Committee meeting in January in Chicago since he is not a member and added: "Anyway, I haven't been invited."

Upton, on agreement with Dr. James Hodges, assistant director of the State Mental Health Department, asked for an auditor general's investigation of the claims of overcharges to patients for items ordered through the hospital store.

Walter McCabe, an attendant at the hospital for the past 18 years, made both charges. "They have been handpicking the people who favor the administration to testify," he said. "They didn't ask me."

McCabe said between 17 and 19 inmates with venereal disease or suspected of having the disease were locked up without food from late Friday through Sunday.

CAME ON DUTY

"He didn't know about the situation until he came on duty Sunday and a patient complained to a visitor, McCabe said.

Then, said McCabe, somebody from administration told him "for God's sake, get those men fed."

CHARRED RUIN — This is the aftermath of the fire which engulfed the Elbert Cox home in Warren, killing six of nine children. Mrs. Cox is in critical condition.

Seek to Heal Panama Wounds

U.S. Launches Quest for Canal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A historic presidential order has opened the way for a new Atlantic-Pacific canal to replace the Panama Canal within 10 to 15 years.

The new canal is to flow at sea level through Panama or a neighboring country, and will probably put the old passage way with its expensive locks out of business.

The troubled 1903 treaty with Panama is to be scrapped soon in favor of a new pact which the United States hopes will heal old wounds while the original canal becomes a relic of bygone days.

President Johnson went before television cameras yesterday to read his landmark announcement the United States will now "press forward in earnest" to achieve the long-discussed goal, he announced.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk will start talks with three or four countries which have potential canal sites — Panama, Colombia, Nicaragua and perhaps Costa Rica — looking toward agreements with any interested in obtaining the new route. Then on-the-spot engineering surveys will be made in those countries signing agreements to decide which site is best.

"An entirely new treaty on the existing Panama to replace the half-century-old pact that gives the United States Canal Zone rights 'in perpetuity.'"

The new treaty would retain U.S. rights needed to run and protect the present canal, but it would recognize Panama's sovereignty.

Expressing their thoughtfulness were some 100 Oakland County Circuit Court jurors who, on ending their month-long duty, decided they could give a little more.

Passing the hat, they collected from among themselves over $100 to buy Christmas gifts for young wards of the court at the Children's Center.

AF Plane Crashes; All 5 Crewmen Killed

STEPHENSVILLE, Md. (AP) — A U.S. Air Force refueling plane crashed while landing at the Ernest Harmon Base here early today, killing all five crewmen aboard.

A six-member team put a temperature gauge on a 61-inch telescope at Agassiz Station and took readings for 7 hours and 15 minutes.

Harvard College astronomers had near-perfect conditions and took temperature readings they hope will provide clues to the depth of dust on the moon's surface.

"Conditions were exceptional," said Hector Ingrall, a senior research associate at the observatory. "We have very good records of the rate of cooling during total eclipse."

Because dust on the moon's surface acts like insulation, measurements of the cooling rate can help determine the depth of the dust.

Not all observers saw as good a show as they would have liked.

SECOND STORY MAN NEEDS 'STORY' — This suspect will have to come up with a good explanation of what he was doing on the fire escape of a building in the Bronx, N. Y., last night. Police saw him on the building and ordered him down to earth. He was charged with attempted burglary.

Mental Health Funds Okayed for County

Oakland County became the first area in Michigan yesterday to gain state approval for a large-scale mental health services program.

The State Department of Mental Health approved a $307,105 budget for the first six months of 1965.

Oakland County Community Mental Health Services Board was informed of the state's approval late yesterday.

William H. Wagner of Berkeley, finances chairman, reported that Dr. Robert A. Kimmich, state mental health director, sent by letter approval of a "package" program for which the state will appropriate $153,552 for the first half of 1965.

Oakland County Board of Supervisors appropriated the other half in October, as provided under Public Act 54 (Community Mental Health Services Act) of 1963.

In January the board will launch an initial program that includes: an outpatient clinic, a limited inpatient clinic and a center to receive and refer patients to the proper agency.

The board also plans to recruit psychiatrists to see patients referred by the center after a diagnosis is made.

A rehabilitation service will be initiated. The board also will amplify a public information and education program.

POSSIBLE PARTICIPATION

The board of the mental health service plans to meet with the board of the Pontiac General Hospital as soon as a meeting can be set up, to discuss the hospital's possible participation in the program.

ASKED PROBE

Upton, on agreement with Dr. James Hodges, assistant director of the State Mental Health Department, asked for an auditor general's investigation of the claims of overcharges to patients for items ordered through the hospital store.

Walter McCabe, an attendant at the hospital for the past 18 years, made both charges. "They have been handpicking the people who favor the administration to testify," he said. "They didn't ask me."

Congolese Rebels Counterattacking

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Congolese rebels equipped with Russian and Communist automatic weapons are counterattacking. Fiercely around two provincial capitals in the northeastern Congo.

U.S. Charges Dearborn Pair

Allegedly Didn't Act in Racial Disturbance

DETROIT (AP)—A federal grand jury returned indictments against two sub-urban Dearborn officials Friday for failing to act in a 1963 Labor Day racial disturbance.

Dearborn Police Chief George W. Lewis was named in the indictment.

The indictment charges the pair with witnessing an attack by more than 100 persons on the home of Giuseppe Stanzone in the suburb and that Clayton and Lewis "had opportunity and responsibility of dispersing the crowd and apprehending those persons."

Stanzone said he had rented the upper apartment of his home to a white couple. The couple had hired two Negroes to move their furniture in, Stanzone said. One of the movers brought his wife to help, he said.

Apparently assuming Negroes were moving into the all-white neighborhood, a crowd gathered and began to throw stones, eggs, bottles and vegetables at the house, Stanzone charged.

Stanzone charged that he was assaulted by a man holding a bed rail while police stood idly.

He said Dearborn officials failed to protect his property. He said a crowd of some 60 remained in front of his home for 20 hours.

The grand jury charged the two officials with a violation of the U.S. Code. Conviction carries a possible $1,000 fine or a year in jail or both.

The indictment charges that Lewis and Clayton watched the destruction and threatening assaults made on Stanzone.

Special Cong Date; Monk Might Burn Self

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Saigon police went on full alert today as a Communist Viet Cong anniversary and continued Buddhist harassment of the Vietnamese government threatened a weekend of violence.

High school students in the northern city of Hue went on an antigovernment strike.

Sunday is the fourth anniversary of the official founding of the political wing of the Viet Cong, the National Liberation Front, and authorities feared an outbreak of terrorism.

The Buddhists, who have been campaigning to overthrow the government of Premier Tran Van Huong, were planning a mass rally, police said.

Buddhist sources said a monk might commit suicide by burning.

TENTS MUSHROOM

A city of tents mushroomed near the sprawling Buddhist headquarters as thousands of potential demonstrators began arriving, some carrying straw sleeping mats.

Americans in Saigon were advised to exert unusual caution when in the city.

In Hue, several thousand students in the city's 13 high schools made a brief appearance at classes today but told their teachers they would not return until the Huong government resigned. No violence was reported.

Hue, a Buddhist stronghold, sparked the campaign that overthrew the regime of Premier Ngo Dinh Diem last year.

YANK KILLED

In the war against the Viet Cong, an American officer was killed by guerrilla fire Friday, the U.S. Army said. He was the 23rd American to die in combat in Viet Nam since December.

The officer was piloting a helicopter about 100 miles north of Saigon when he was hit by a 30-caliber bullet, the Army said. The pilot took control of the craft and returned it to base.

The Army continued trials of an armed arson of the shallow draft, flat-bottomed, airboat used in the Florida Everglades. It is powered by an airplane engine and can skim across flooded rice fields and bounce across dikes at 45 miles per hour.

Determined Inventor

Off to Seek Fortune -- at Age 69

NEW YORK (AP)—Fred Madina is a happy man. He's only 69, and he's starting out to make his fortune.

Madina, an inventor and machinist since he came to this country from Spain in 1916, always has dreamed of making a fortune.

For almost 50 years the sad-faced inventor spent his days tinkering with old machines and designing new ones.

The clockwork designer's dream was in 1953, when he devised a machine to sew wings on the rubber heels of dolls.

HELD TIGHT

Until then, he explained, the hair had been glued on, but his device sewed it into the skull "so that the harder you pulled, the tighter it got."

He sold 75 of the machines, "and the profits were tremendous—about $50,000" but a bank loan he had to repay on the project and a partner he had to accept with the loan cut his share, he said, and soured him on bank borrowing.

He went back to tinkering—until an urban renewal project forced him out of the Brooklyn shop he had occupied for 20 years.

He wanted to relocate, but the $3,200 the city gave him for his old shop wasn't enough. He turned to the Small Business Administration, which granted him a $1,000 loan—the smallest amount that agency's standards demand, a dream come true for Madina.

PROVE HIMSELF

Now he's going to set up a new shop in downtown Brooklyn. "I have to prove to all my friends what a man can do after 70," said Madina. "I want to make a fortune."

BERLIN WALL CHRISTMAS RUSH—Communists opened the Berlin wall to allow West Berliners to visit loved ones in the eastern sector today. Many took advantage of the offer and poured through the Oberbaumbrücke gate laden with Christmas gifts.

Berlin Wall Is Opened for Yule Visits

BERLIN (AP)—The Christmas rush into the Soviet sector began today as the Communists opened their brief reunions with relatives.

East German border guards unlocked the steel gates at wall check-points 15 minutes earlier than the scheduled opening time.

Between now and Jan 3 every West Berliner with close relatives in East Berlin can make two visits through the wall. He can cross as early as 7 a.m. but must be back in the West by midnight, except for New Year's Eve when a special exception is allowed.

This is the second Christmas in a row that reunions among Berlin families have been allowed since the Communists built the wall on Aug. 13, 1961.

Last year more than 1.2 million West Berliners crossed into the Communist sector of the city.

West Germans and other Westerners can cross the wall year round.

The first West Berliners began lining up an hour before the scheduled opening. Their suitcases and large bags were bursting with gifts. There was a slight drizzle and temperatures were just about freezing.

CHATTANOOGA (AP)—James Hoffa's lawyers say they have uncovered new evidence to justify a retrial since the Teamsters president was convicted last March of jury tampering.

The attorneys made the contention in federal court in a bid to gain Hoffa a new trial. They filed a revised motion Friday, replacing a motion filed Monday.

The new motion contains the same charge as the old one: that the government intruded into relationships between Hoffa and his lawyers, thus denying him his constitutional rights of due process.

LATEST MOTION

In the latest motion, however, the attorneys stressed what they termed new evidence.

The new material includes an affidavit by Hoffa's Nashville attorney, Z. T. Osborn Jr., who contends that a Nashville policeman he hired as a private investigator was actually a government "spy."

Hoffa was convicted in Chattanooga on charges of trying to fix the jury which heard his 1963 conspiracy case in Nashville. His appeal that conviction is being considered by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals.

rector of the department in charge of mental institutions, suggested it might be a case of one ward attendant not telling another that the inmates had not been fed because of their transfer.

"Who was responsible?" asked Upton.

KEPT NOTEBOOK

McCabe constantly referred to a notebook he said he had kept to jot down such incidents. He said there were repeated cases of overcharging patients for items ordered through the hospital store. These included food, candy, magazines, radios, cigarettes and chewing tobacco, he said.

"All the errors were in favor of the institution," testified McCabe.

Not as Bone-Chilling Cold Wave Hits in East

By The Associated Press

A numbing cold wave which has brought death from exposure to tens of thousands of cattle and sheep in Montana and North Dakota knifed into the East Coast today.

No longer the bone-chilling cold which froze the Midwest, it nevertheless loosed snow squalls on the eastern shores of the Great Lakes and bore in the north and mid-Atlantic states carrying the promise of zero weather in the North Carolina Mountains. It was near zero in northern Maine.

Freezing air extended to the Gulf Coast and nearly to the south tip of Texas. But the 30-below temperatures that gripped Montana are gone.

Ranchers in Montana and North Dakota continued efforts to save their remaining livestock. One estimate put livestock loss at $50,000.

Eight southeastern Montana counties were declared a major disaster area and $10,000 in federal funds were made available to help save animals, some of which have been seen wandering blindly, their eyes frozen shut. Others their nostrils cemented with ice, have died of suffocation.

Four Air Force flying boxcars were on standby at Malmstrom Air Force Base, Great Falls, Mont., waiting to airlift hay bales to cattle in inaccessible areas.

National Guardsmen in bulldozers and heavy trucks were clearing North Dakota roads and hauling feed to starving cattle.

SAVED KEEPERS

A Coast Guard cutter in Duluth, Minn., succeeded in evacuating four light-house keepers in Lake Superior after fighting 60-mile-an-hour winds and high waves for six days. The men were downed to their last coffee and candy bars when taken from the Rock of Ages Light.

Temperatures in Pennsylvania moved steadily lower. Friday, plummeting to 5 above zero at Bradford and Phillipsburg.

The cold front dropped New Jersey temperatures to their lowest levels of the season. Newark reported 17 above at midnight, with new lows expected.

Rain and snow lashed the West Coast as a new weather front there began its march across the nation. A snowstorm brewing in the Pacific Northwest dumped up to four inches of snow on Washington, beginning at Tatoosh Island off the state's northwest tip. Gusts of up to 46 m.p.h. accompanied the snow.

ICED ROADS

A storm in the southwest shook as much as six inches of snow on the Arizona and New Mexico mountains and iced Texas roads with freezing rain from El Paso east to Abilene.

In the southeast did the weather stay pleasant. A high of 88 degrees was registered at Clewiston, Fla.

Bloomfield Hills Board to Hear School Report

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — Board of education members Tuesday night will get their first official glimpse at the kind of high school experts would like to see built here.

A progress report on the current study will be presented at the board's 8 p.m. session by Dr. Donald Lau and Dr. Richard Featherstone, Michigan State University educational consultants.

They have been working with teachers, principals, administrators and architects to develop plans for the district's second high school.

The proposed $2,280,950 facility was approved by district property owners in June as part of a $7-million bond issue.

"It should be flexible to meet the needs of the future, perform and produce a better educational program," Schools Supt. Eugene Johnson said.

KIND OF PROGRAM

Heads of departments and teachers have been called upon "to tell us what they want and what kind of program they think we should have for a forward-looking system," he said.

Among suggestions being considered are large-group teaching, ungraded classes and facilities for advanced research.

"Some of these are fast proving their value," the superintendent commented.

"We want to build a school within a school," he said. "We want classrooms built around facilities—a library, gym, cafeteria, art area and music rooms."

NOT ENTIRELY NEW

"This concept is not entirely new, but we're taking it a step further."

Johnson said the consultants are not designing a building but are planning and developing an educational concept.

"We're getting excited about this," he said. "We think we're."

Grabs Gun: Coed Brave or Stupid?

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—"Dad said I was either stupid or very brave."

Judy Jerish, 18, Wichita State University freshman, was telling how she snatched a jail-breaker's gun away from him and helped capture him Friday.

"I had never touched a gun before in my life," Miss Jerish said, "and I don't know why I did it."

The fugitive, Richard Lee Arthur, 22, charged with armed robbery, slid down a bedsheet and escaped from the seventh-floor Sedgwick County Jail Dec. 5. Police had described him as "extremely dangerous with homicidal tendencies."

HIDE ON CAMPUS

McArthur told police he picked the university campus as a place to hide occasionally, thinking no one would recognize him in student crowds.

Police got a tip, however, and patrolmen Jerry Skelton and Harry Holtz entered the fine arts building Friday looking for him.

They spotted McArthur, who bolted. The officers asked students in the crowded hall to help stop him.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Freak weather in Iran has brought storms destroying the homes of 2,500 people in the South, and heavy snowfall in the Southwest, the press reported today.

The newspaper Ettelaat reported the Iranian weather bureau is nonplussed. The bureau had predicted fine, clear weather in the capital—but by the snowfalls—and calm seas in the Persian Gulf.

According to reports from the Persian Gulf, a 500-mile stretch of coast has been swept by floods and hundreds of homes destroyed.

Southern Colonial
Has Modern Flair

A house in the true Southern Colonial style is appealing. But the modern family in search of a new home wants more than a pure American design, enchanting as it may be. The family of today demands the best in up-to-date materials and conveniences as well as a structure that is pleasing to the eye.

Architect Lester Cohen has designed a contemporary 'adaptation of a Colonial' for the latest House of the Week. It has all the height and statelyness of the traditional model, thanks to a large front porch with a two-story colonnade.

There's an extra sense of spaciousness because of twin wings that add to the visual width.

One of these wings encloses a family room, the other a two-car garage, but design similarities make both appear as portions of the home's living area. TWO STORIES The two stories under the single main roof include four bedrooms, two and a half baths and a first-floor center hall entrance with an excellent traffic pattern.

A fine first impression is inevitable with anyone who crosses the flagstoned portico and moves through the front door into the center hall.

Directly ahead is a graceful curved staircase to the upper floor in the most elegant Colonial tradition.

Stairways like this always make ceilings seem higher and rooms larger. And decorating in any style takes on new high-light in the light of the center hall is a fireproofed living room, to the right a dining room with an unobstructed sweep across the family room.

Both the living room and the dining room enjoy a porticoed view across the front lawn. Having the windows of these two rooms set back means filtered sunlight and privacy.

Modern planning at its most practical is seen in the layout of the service area at the back of the house.

There is a total width of about 36' combining the dinette, kitchen, laundry, mud room and lavatory. A covered porch adds outdoor area available to the kitchen-service section as well as to the family room.

SUN ROOM If desired, the porch could be turned into an old-fashioned sun room with the addition of a glass enclosure. Sliding glass doors lead to the porch from the family room, which is as large as many living rooms, although not as large as the living room in this house.

There are four bedrooms upstairs, with one bathroom in the master bedroom and another conveniently located to the rest of the sleeping quarters.

Large closets are featured in each of the four rooms, with an especially sizable one in the master bedroom. This entire floor is, as we mentioned previously, at the head of the attractive curved staircase.

Bicycles, tools and toys can be stored in the two-car garage, a rear door making this section accessible without going past the space reserved for the autos.

The part of the garage facing the front has the same type of Colonial windows as the rest of the house, adding to the overall impression of comfortable width. But Design H-62's overall dimensions, including the garage and the front portico, are 74' by 31'9", model figures for a house with 1,784 square feet of living area.

H-62 STATISTICS

Design H-62 has a living room, dining room, kitchen-dinette, laundry-mud room, family room, porch, lavatory and two-car garage on the first floor — with a habitable area of 1,651 square feet. There are four bedrooms, two baths and plenty of closets on the second floor — with a living area of 733 square feet. The over-all dimensions, including the garage and front portico, are 74' by 31'9". The plans call for a basement, highly desirable if additional recreational area is needed.

the dining room enjoy a porticoed view across the front lawn. Having the windows of these two rooms set back means filtered sunlight and privacy.

Modern planning at its most practical is seen in the layout of the service area at the back of the house.

There is a total width of about 36' combining the dinette, kitchen, laundry, mud room and lavatory. A covered porch adds outdoor area available to the kitchen-service section as well as to the family room.

SUN ROOM If desired, the porch could be turned into an old-fashioned sun room with the addition of a glass enclosure. Sliding glass doors lead to the porch from the family room, which is as large as many living rooms, although not as large as the living room in this house.

There are four bedrooms upstairs, with one bathroom in the master bedroom and another conveniently located to the rest of the sleeping quarters.

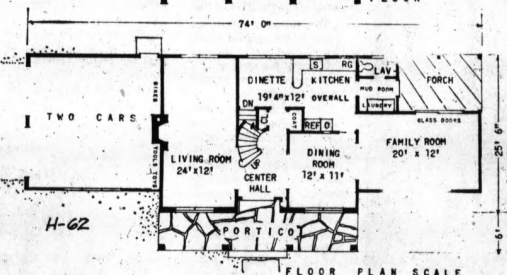

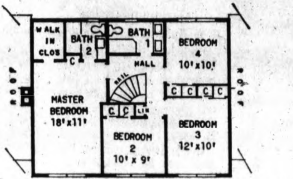

Large closets are featured in each of the four rooms, with an especially sizable one in the master bedroom. This entire floor is, as we mentioned previously, at the head of the attractive curved staircase.

Bicycles, tools and toys can be stored in the two-car garage, a rear door making this section accessible without going past the space reserved for the autos.

CLASSIC SOUTHERN ELEGANCE — There are four bedrooms, two baths and a lavatory in this native design, found nowhere but on this continent, originated in the South and still highly popular when combined with modern materials and conveniences.

Give Living Plants;
Prolong Yule Joy

The list of living plants you can give for Christmas grows longer and more interesting every year.

Tops among traditional presents, of course, are stately, luxurious poinsettias. You can pair them, with red flowers and white, for a happy holiday combination in red clay pots, the containers with automatic drainage that enable the recipient to give them enough water without over-watering.

Gift poinsettias should be kept out of drafts, in temperatures between 60 and 75 degrees and given filtered sunlight or adequate artificial light. They can be carried over a second year by drying them off in March and storing them in their clay pots in a cool, airy room or porch until spring.

Keep slightly moist in storage, until May, then gradually resume normal watering and move back into a sunny room. They can be planted or potted, and all in the garden next summer.

Care should be given in giving living Christmas trees. Balled spruce, pine or hemlock shrubs need help to stand the hot, dry air of modern homes. They should be given in large 14 to 16-inch clay pots, with matching saucers and enough pebbles to form a half-inch layer on the saucer.

Set the clay pot on top of the pebbles and keep watering the pebble layer throughout the holidays. The clay pot will help cool off the shrubs.

A truly distinctive and more hardy living "tree" is the relatively rare Arancaria, or Norfolk Island pine. This plant, in a six-inch clay pot, has few equals as hardy and decorative Christmas house plant. It is almost impervious to dry air and requires little light. Soil should be kept moist but not soaked.

Another Christmas foliage plant that withstands indoor conditions well is the Podocarpus, an evergreen shrub that grows from one to five feet high. The clay pot will provide insurance against both over-heating and overwatering and maintain a sturdy, tip-proof base.

Such foliage plants as the "Star of Bethlehem" hanging vine, the lush, green Jade or Prayer plant (Maranta) and syngonium (green gold) are always welcome Christmas additions to anyone's house plant collection.

Other popular plant gifts plentiful at holiday time include the Christmas cactus, the Christmas begonia, Jerusalem cherry combination plants specially grown for the season, peperomias and succulents.

A number of year-round flowering plants can supplement your traditional gifts of poinsettias. Most popular favorites include clay-potted chrysanthemums, miniature roses, azaleas, African violets or perhaps a lovely cyclamen or anthurium plant. For friends with exotic tastes, a gift of potted gardenias, orchids or perhaps a potted orange tree or pineapple plant will provide lasting delight.

When you select your Christmas poinsettias make sure they are in clay pots beneath the wrapping.

These porous containers provide essential drainage to prolong poinsettias' health, and guard against root rot, caused by overwatering.

Give Holiday Color
in Flower Plants

You can give holiday color in the form of professionally grown combinations of foliage or flowering plants in large red clay pots.

Plants popular in combinations for the holiday season include fibrous-rooted begonias, caladiums, colpas, Christmas peppers, compact chrysanthemums, Jerusalem cherries, ivy and marigolds.

Consult your florist on effective combinations of plants with similar light, temperature and watering preferences.

for Holiday Season

Camellias and gardenias, freshly in bloom by early December, make glamorous and appreciated plant gifts.

Their clay pots assure the cool temperatures and proper drainage they like.

Company
Welcome
at Yuletide

There's been a lot of talk about drop-outs, but what about "drop-ins?"

Having company just drop in during the holidays can be a pleasant surprise or an unwelcome disaster. Whether it's fun or a little off-ends depends on whether the hostess has ample food for all.

Many modern homemakers have found that the best way to enjoy unexpected guests and make them feel welcome is to have a large-capacity electric refrigerator-freezer that's kept well stocked.

If you're currently struggling along with an undersize unit, now is a good time to push for a new one. It's a gift that the whole family will enjoy for years to come. And while you're at it, see if you can arrange to have it installed a few weeks before Christmas. The added convenience, including fewer trips to the store, will help make the holidays more pleasant for everyone.

Today's units, with their separate storage sections for both fresh and frozen foods, make it possible to always have on hand the makings for several company-size meals — from salad and soup through entree and dessert.

Once a homemaker has replaced a small out-dated refrigerator with a new big-capacity refrigerator-freezer, she finds she can often prepare double portions of many dishes and then store the extra amount in the freezer. This is particularly handy at Christmas time.

During the holiday rush, planned left-over meals can be a real time-saver. Design improvements and thin wall insulation in many of today's refrigerator-freezers allow families to fit a new, large-capacity model in the same kitchen space once occupied by their old, small-capacity unit. In addition, new models have a square-shoulder, flush-to-the-walls construction that makes them just right for today's built-in look.
