Wilson Hits McCarthy Row

Defense Chief Says It Shakes Military Morale

Senator Levels New Charges at Army Aide on Eve of Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson, speaking on the eve of Senate hearings and with new charges swirling about one of his aides, said today the Army-McCarthy row has "done no good" to military morale.

Personally, the defense chief told a news conference, he feels that "in these critical times men of good will ought to get together to solve these problems" confronting the nation.

Wilson said he believes H. Struve Hensel, assistant secretary of defense is "a competent, honest man."

Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) brought Hensel's name into the row yesterday when he filed a "bill of particulars" with the Senate Investigations subcommittee outlining the things he will seek to prove in the televised public hearing set to open at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow.

McCarthy contended that concern that he was about to expose "misconduct" and "possibly law violations" by Hensel led Army officials to attempt to discredit him.

The McCarthy-Army dispute hearings are tentatively scheduled to be televised Thursday over WWJ-TV and WXYZ-TV. At this writing the hearing will begin at 10:30 a. m. over WWJ-TV. The afternoon hearing will be carried by WXYZ-TV and WWJ-TV at 2:30 p. m.

Hensel retorted "barefaced lies" to McCarthy's charges and challenged the senator to repeat them under circumstances permitting a libel suit.

A reporter asked whether Wilson "agreed" with McCarthy that Hensel was "guilty of possible law violations."

Wilson chuckled, paused, then answered "no."

He added that he didn't want to

Air Force Flies French Troops Into Indochina

U.S. Transports Used to Land Paratroopers in Non-combat Zone

PARIS (AP) — The U. S. Air Force is ferrying French paratroopers to Indochina for later dropping into Dien Bien Phu.

This was confirmed today here and in Washington. Charles Wilson, U. S. secretary of defense, said the 8,500-mile operation "is in line with present United States policy and in conformity with our existing military assistance program."

He added it was undertaken at the request of the French government.

The parachute troops are being flown from France to Indochina in C124 Globemasters. The Douglas planes belong to the Air Force Tactical Command. They will return to home bases in the United States, the Air Force said.

The troops are to be landed in non-combat areas. Planes piloted by French airmen or American civilians will shuttle them to the besieged fortress of Dien Bien Phu in northwest Indochina. Rains were upsetting air operations there today.

The troops—number unspecified but believed to total at least 1,000—were flown from Paris' big Orly Airfield yesterday. At last word, they had not yet reached Indochina.

It was learned that the U.S. Air Force also will ferry French troops from North Africa to Indochina, though American sources here considered the France-to-Indochina operation a "one-shot" affair.

The United States already is supplying the French with fighters, attack bombers and transport planes for their fight against the Vietminh. Some 200 American Air Force ground personnel have been stationed in Indochina to help maintain these planes.

Twenty-five or more American civilians under private contract also are piloting some of the transport planes carrying supplies to Dien Bien Phu, but no American Air Force personnel have taken part in the flying operations in the combat zone.

In addition to this emergency aid, the United States has been sending a billion dollars worth of military and economic assistance to the French and Vietnamese in Indochina.

Pontiac Decides Against 2nd Try to Condemn Site

Parke Street Property Will Form Part of First Municipal Parking Lot

Pontiac City Commission decided by a 5-2 vote last night to buy two acres of land at 11-49 Parke St. from the Jack Habel Chevrolet Co. for $78,000.

Only Commissioners Harcourt S. Patterson and Harry W. Lutz opposed the move to obtain the property for part of Pontiac's first municipal parking lot.

City Attorney William A. Ewart recommended the purchase after listing two alternatives which he considered unsatisfactory. They were:

1. Start condemnation proceedings against the property for a second time. This would take from eight months to a year.

2. Drop proceedings completely, with the city losing all money spent on the plan.

Before Habel's purchase of the property, the city planned to pay about $50,000 for it. City Manager Walter K. Willman said Habel had $61,500 invested in the land.

Willman said the cost per car space would be within the average rate being paid in the Midwest.

Commissioner John A. Dugan said the city should get the property and establish a lot. Under present conditions, he stated, many persons have to pay 35 cents just to park long enough to pay a bill.

Lutz and Patterson thought the price was too high.

Willman said work would start immediately on a 240-car metered lot covering the Habel land plus property fronting on East Pike and Parke streets previously bought by Pontiac.

The Habel property is bounded on the east by Parke street, west by the Clinton River, north by the Slater Apartments and South by city-owned land.

The lot will be paved and lighted for night parking. Another 90 meters will be placed in the former County-City Market, bringing the total number of city meters to 801.

Pontiac is obligated to repay to Habel all court costs incurred by him in fighting the city's suit to condemn the land. These costs were included in the purchase price.

Necessity for short-term parking on the site was pointed out in 1950 in a study prepared for Pontiac by Oscar Gunderson, Wayne County Road Commission traffic expert.

Last night's decision ended negotiations for the land by Pontiac which began in October 1952.

The program was first blocked when the Outdoor Parking Co. brought a suit to prevent Pontiac from using city money to establish municipal parking areas. Another obstacle arose when Habel purchased the property.

The parking company's suit was denied by both the Circuit Court

City Renews 7 Liquor Licenses

Commissioners Vote 5 to 2 for Renewal; Five More Up Next Week

Pontiac City Commission voted five to two last night to renew for this year 7 of the 12 Class C liquor licenses issued last year.

The other five permits approved in 1953 won't come up for renewal until next week. Seventeen Class C liquor-by-the-glass licenses issued prior to 1953 also were renewed. Six more of these will be acted on next week.

Some 15 tavern, three hotel and five club licenses also were renewed.

Action on the last dozen permits issued had been postponed one week on request of Commissioner Floyd P. Miles of District 4.

Miles said, although the licenses were issued legally under state law, they exceeded a city ordinance limiting the number to 24. It is his feeling, he said, that the extra Class Cs were approved against the wishes of a majority of Pontiac citizens. Licenses questioned by Miles, but approved last night were:

The Stadium Inn, 352 Oakland Ave.; Barr's Bar, 334 East Blvd.; El Chico Bar, 374 Franklin Rd.; Greg's Restaurant, 505 E. South Blvd.; Jet Bar, 716 Woodward Ave.; Clar's Bar, 800

Ike Supporter Wins Primary

Rep. Widnall (R-NJ) Gets Big Majority Over J. Parnell Thomas

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—Rep William B. Widnall today hailed his Republican primary election victory over McCarthy booster J. Parnell Thomas as a vote of confidence in President Eisenhower rather than a test of McCarthyism.

"It was not a true test of McCarthyism," said Widnall, who defeated Thomas by a 35,000 to 5,000 vote in the standout congressional contest of yesterday's primary election in New Jersey.

"I think the results show that you need more than McCarthy as a platform on which to make a successful run," he said in a victory statement. He said he thought pro-McCarthy sentiment had fallen off recently.

Widnall indicated the record Thomas carried into the election, rather than his support of McCarthy, hurt him at the polls in the state's mostly rural 7th District, traditionally Republican.

All major cities and most of the other 566 municipalities in the state authorized local licensing of bingo and raffles for charitable purposes.

Fort Defenders Appeal for Milk and Fruit Juice

HANOI (AP)—Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries sent out an urgent appeal today for milk and fruit juices to be dropped to the growing ranks of wounded trapped inside Vietminh - ringed Dien Bien Phu.

The heroic commander of the beleaguered fortress addressed his appeal to the people of Hanoi—French and Vietnamese.

The French have been unable since March 25 to get a plane in to evacuate the hundreds of wounded inside the fortress because of the constant pounding of the airstrip by mortar and artillery fire from the Communist-led besiegers. That was 12 days after the Vietminh launched their first all-out assault by suicidal waves of fanatical troops to seize the northwest Indochina fortress.

McCallum Assumes Judgeship May 1

Municipal Judge Odin H. Johnson last night submitted his resignation, effective May 1, to Pontiac City Commission.

Commissioners accepted and immediately appointed Cecil McCallum, elected to the post April 5, to start serving his term May 1 rather than at the starting date on July 4.

Johnson said the court's docket was in good shape and suggested the appointment of McCallum to prevent a backlog of cases from piling up.

County's Health Director Calls Polio Vaccine Safe

Dr. John D. Monroe, director of the Oakland County Health Department, said today he is convinced the Salk polio vaccine is perfectly safe for children.

The health official further pointed out the vaccine tests will begin in Oakland County Monday if the county receives the vaccine in time.

He made the statement after conferring yesterday with Dr. Robert J. Mason, president of the Oakland County Medical Society, and Dr. Douglas L. Wake, chairman of the society's public health committee.

"The concensus was that we are satisfied that only safe vaccine will be used and we will go ahead with the inoculations next Monday provided we get the vaccine in time," said Dr. Monroe.

He said every batch of vaccine will be triple-checked before being released.

"The vaccine will not be passed along to us until it gets a final check by a special advisory Committee of leading medical authorities," said Dr. Monroe.

He pointed out that the independent body headed by Dr. Thomas Rivers of New York, a prominent research coordinator in the field of biology.

Dr. Monroe's statement followed assurances of the vaccines safety yesterday by Dr. Albert E. Heustis, state health commissioner.

Ex-PW Heard in Turncoat Trial

Claims Cpl. Dickenson Refused Food to Sick GI, Abused Him

WASHINGTON (AP)—An ex-prisoner-of-war said today Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson pushed a sick POW down some stairs after the ailing man had asked Dickenson for food.

This incident was described by Staff Sgt. John A. Davis of Niagara Falls, N.Y., who stared at Dickenson with unmasked hate during his appearance in the witness chair. It was the third day of Dickenson's court-martial on charges of collaborating with the Chinese Communists while a POW in Korea.

Davis said Dickenson, 26, from Cracker's Neck, Va., worked at the sick compound as a cook at the Red POW camp at Pyoktong along the Yalu River and "I saw him trade off chow for tobacco and candy."

At one point, Davis said he saw a sick POW go up to Dickenson "and ask for chow. Dickenson said there was no more. I, personally, saw some chow in the chow pot."

The witness said there was "a little argument" and he saw Dickenson push the man down three stairs. "The man's legs were paralyzed for a day," Davis said.

Guy Emery, counsel for the defense, drew from Davis a concession that he could not remember clearly the incidents of chow trading.

Emery asked the short, stocky sergeant: "Was it at this time that you began to hate the accused?"

"Yes, sir," Davis said.

"And you still do?"

"Yes, sir."

Dulles Arrives for NATO Talk

Secretary in France to Consult With Allies on Geneva Strategy

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles arrived here today to attend the meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and to consult with Western allies on strategy for the Geneva conference.

He was greeted at the airport by French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault who will be his guest at a private dinner this evening when they will review the Indochinese question and other problems coming up at Geneva.

Dulles told newsmen Friday's NATO meeting is of "special significance, for one of its purposes is to take notice of the fact that five years ago this month the North Atlantic Treaty was signed. That was an historic event.

Dulles said Friday's meeting would be a continuation of that process of consultation. In such fashion, he added, the 14 member countries would be able to perfect their understanding of each other's problems.

"On this understanding," he said, "on a common purpose, the future of all of us depends."

Glass Firm Tells Causes of Pits in Car Windshields

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A national glass company has offered a tangible explanation for mysterious windshield pockmarks plaguing Michigan motorists from Detroit to Cheboygan.

A team of experts from the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., one of the nation's largest producers of windshield glass, attributes the pockmarks to the general deterioration of older cars and driving conditions.

After the examination of 150 autos marked in the mysterious epidemic sweeping the country, the glass company announced:

"Flying sand, cinders, gravel, or the materials used to de-ice snow covered roads could and very probably did cause the pit or crush marks found in the cars examined at Mount Pleasant."

W. L. Tomlinson, the company's representative to the auto industry in Detroit, said an investigator was sent to Mount Pleasant yesterday. Most of the Michigan reports of damaged windshields have been concentrated in the Mount Pleasant area.

"Generally, it was found that older cars or cars with high mileage—as would be expected—were more affected than newer cars," Tomlinson said.

He said 25 new cars, sitting in a totally exposed lot at Mt. Pleasant for many weeks, showed no pockmarks. Older cars parked in protected garages during the period of the Mt. Pleasant mystery were found to show the normal roadwear on windshields and front door vents.

Commission Renews 7 Liquor Licenses

Miles said the Police Department, clergy and Pontiac Manufacturer's Assn. were all against issuance of the last 12 permits.

Commissioner Dr. Roy V. Cooley of District 1 said he didn't think the police could express an opinion and that the manufacturers and clergy were not entirely opposed.

Commissioner Harcourt S. Patterson of District 2 opposed the 12, saying the effects of more licenses could be felt throughout the city.

Commissioner John E. Carry of District 6 said if the permits were not renewed owners would not be given back their old tavern licenses and would be forced out of business.

John A. Dugan, commissioner from District 5, and Mayor William W. Donaldson of District 3 said they didn't feel the last 12 could be removed and the first 23 approved.

Dugan said he thought the question was either to remove the liquor trade altogether or renew all licenses which meet regulations. Patterson and Miles voted against renewal.

Three class C licenses were approved conditionally for 30 days while plumbing changes are made to comply with a city inspection department order. They are Art & Lil's at 924-26 Joslyn Rd., the Glenwood Restaurant at 734-36 Glenwood Ave. and Salfi's Bar at 464 N. Perry St.

Renewal of a C license for Nick's Restaurant at 732 Glenwood Ave. was delayed one week while a check is made to see if the establishment is violating state law by being too close to a church.

A conditional 30-day renewal of a tavern license was also given for the Pullman Lunch at 724 Glenwood Ave. while the business conforms to an order from the building department.

Michael Samuilow, owner of Mickey's Bar at 338 Franklin Rd., was given six months to take up residence inside the city limits or sell his business.

City to Pay $78,000 for Habel Property and Michigan Supreme Court and condemnation proceedings to acquire the land were authorized by the City Commission in August 1953.

On March 2, 1954, a Circuit Court jury returned a verdict of "no necessity" for Pontiac to condemn the land, but did rule that short-term public parking is necessary in Pontiac.

Judge George B. Hartrick called the verdict "inconsistent" and received it subject to review. The city entered a motion for a new trial, a decision on which is still pending.

While the suit was in progress Habel offered to sell to Pontiac for $30,000 if the city would also deed him a 60x150 foot section of the County-City Market next to his building.

Soviets Brand Petrov 'Forger'

Demand That Australia Return Confessed Spy Who Fled Reds

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)—The Soviet Embassy accused its fugitive third secretary, Vladimir Petrov, of stealing "large sums" of embassy funds by forgery today and demanded that Australia hand him over as a criminal.

In a note to the Australian government, the embassy said Petrov's story of a widespread Soviet spy plot in this country was without foundation and the mass of "espionage" documents he had given Australian authorities might be forgeries.

Petrov turned himself over to the Australian government early in April and was granted political asylum. Parliament authorized a royal commission to investigate his story of large-scale Soviet spying and the large mass of data he brought with him from the embassy, but Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies said top security officials were convinced his account was authentic.

The Soviet Embassy made public an "unofficial translation" of its note to the Australians.

It said Petrov had charge of embassy supply affairs. This contrasted with Menzies' previous announcement that he was the chief in Australia for the MVD, the Soviet secret police.

The government has surrounded Petrov with a strong cloak of police secrecy since his switch to the West and security police have been questioning him constantly. Soviet Ambassador N. I. Generalov had charged previously that the Australians kidnaped him.

Two Commonwealth security officers also were questioning Petrov's wife today in Darwin, where she left a Europe-bound plane yesterday morning to join her husband in exile.

TEACHERS' CONFERENCE—Pontiac Public Schools' 600 teachers and principals met Tuesday to discuss ways to help children learn to read better. Comparing notes were William Wright, left, Whittier School principal and co-chairman of the conference; Dr. A. Sterl Artley, University of Missouri, speaker, and J. C. Cox, assistant superintendent of Pontiac Public Schools. Another speaker, Dr. Paul Witty of Northwestern University, is not shown.

City Teachers Study Ways to Improve Reading Skill

Some 600 teachers and principals of Pontiac Public Schools turned out Tuesday for this spring's "curriculum conference" at Pontiac High School to discuss ways to help children learn to read better.

Speakers were Dr. A. Sterl Artley, director of the University of Missouri's child study clinic, and Dr. Paul Witty, Northwestern University professor.

"Some children grow faster than others intellectually, as well as physically," Dr. Artley said. "You can't fit the same size dress to all 10-year-olds girls. By the same token, you can't fit all the children of any age with the same reading program."

Dr. Artley urged teachers not to rush slow learners too fast. He said it's all right if children entering the third grade have only finished the first half of their second grade work; if they've learned the first half thoroughly.

He suggested junior and senior high schools revamp their programs so teachers can carry through the work with slow-learning youngsters.

"Junior and senior high teachers sometimes complain when they get a crop of seventh graders who haven't reached the same point in study," Dr. Artley said. "These differences aren't there because the elementary teacher is doing a poor job—on the contrary, they show that she's done a good job.

"If we're going to fulfill our job as teachers," he said, "we must teach all children. We must not let those who are unusually bright or slow only get the crumbs that fall from the table just because they don't fit the program."

Dr. Witty re-emphasized Artley's point.

"The purpose of education," he said, "should be to bring about the best development in every boy and girl according to his needs and abilities."

Dr. Witty urged junior and senior high schools to have classes or reading "clinics" to help older students with reading problems.

He reminded teachers that children will learn to read more easily if books deal with the things they're interested in. He told how he and other officers taught thousands of U. S. Army recruits who couldn't read to read fourth grade books in eight weeks, by using films and pamphlets about "Private Peter" and camp life—their interests.

Dr. Witty said children should learn to read for study purposes, to understand themselves, to understand their surroundings and just for fun.

Pontiac High School's A Cappella Choir, directed by George Putnam, opened the program. A brief talk by J. C. Cox, assistant superintendent of schools, followed.

William Wright, Whittier school principal, introduced Artley and John Thors Jr., PHS principal, presented Witty. Teachers met in smaller groups Tuesday afternoon to talk over special reading problems in the grades and courses they handle.

Glass Firm Reports on Windshield Pits

nated, to its Creighton, Pa., research laboratory for analysis, Tomlinson said.

In Grand Rapids, plate glass windows were added to the mystery Tuesday.

Gordon Vander Wheel, assistant sales manager of the White Products Division of C. L. Bryant Corp., said pockmarks appeared in windows of the company plant in Middleville.

He said he heard a snapping sound Tuesday and then saw the pockmarks appear.

Four insurance companies agreed yesterday to pool information on the pockmarked windshields and to ask Michigan State College to make chemical tests.

Theories on the cause of the pesky pockmarks range from road conditions to recent H-bomb tests.

He said "automobiles are being built tighter today than ever before. Consequently the inside holds heat and the outside cools off faster. This change in temperature is what causes windows to crack."

Used car dealers on Detroit's famed Livernois Ave., reported numerous pockmarked vehicles yesterday. Dealers said the pockmarks also hit car finishes. One said the pockmarks started out as pin-sized pits but grew to a dime sized hole in a matter of hours.

Boom Tourist Year Predicted for State

LANSING (UP) — Michigan's expanding tourist business will have "its greatest year" in 1954, Robert J. Furlong, executive secretary of the Tourist Council, predicted today.

Michigan's tourist season gets under way April 24, with the opening of the state's fishing season on inland lakes, rivers and streams.

Furlong said a new high in the number of automobiles in the nation, a record number of persons elegible for paid vacations, and a high national income level indicate a boom tourist season "with normal weather and barring a major economic setback."

Requests for vacation information from the council are already up to 100 per cent over the 1953 figure, Furlong reported. He said Chambers of Commerce in the state's tourist regions have reported sizeable increases in inquires over last year.

Williams Maps 4th Term Drive

Governor's Campaign to Be Based on Need for Time to Finish Job

DETROIT (AP)—Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams will base his campaign for an unprecedented fourth term as Michigan's chief executive on the premise that the job he set out to do "is not yet finished."

Williams formally announced his candidacy in a combined radio and television hookup from Detroit last night. If the 43-year-old heir to wealth succeeds he will be the first four-term governor in Michigan's 119 years of statehood.

Among work still to be done, Williams listed:

Preservation of prosperity, more school facilities, more and better paid school teachers, better roads and more state police to patrol them, improved tax and election laws, fair employment practices legislation and a revision of what he termed "antiquated" labor laws.

The fourth-term announcement wound up speculation that the governor might run against Republican Homer Ferguson in the latter's bid for re-election to the U. S. Senate.

Speculation was shifted to former Senator Blair Moody as a Democratic opponent of Ferguson.

Criticism of Williams' announcement sprang up quickly from Republican leaders. John Feikens, GOP state chairman, issued a statement in which he said the governor was seeking a fourth term "because he was ordered to do so by Walter Reuther, Gus Scholle and other leaders of the CIO-PAC."

MEMBER OF AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 21, 1954

New School Chief Chosen

On or about July 1 Pontiac public schools will be under the direction of a new superintendent, Dr. Dana Philip Whitmer of Gary, Ind.

The successor to retiring Superintendent Frank J. DuFrain was unanimously chosen by the Board of Education from among 25 applicants.

A native of Bluffton, Ohio, and assistant superintendent of schools at Gary since 1950, Dr. Whitmer at 41 has both an excellent record as an educator and administrator and a fine academic background.

In addition, factors in his appointment no doubt were the recommendations received by the board in answer to inquiries. Among them were laudatory letters from Spencer W. Myers, superintendent of Flint schools, a former associate of Dr. Whitmer in Gary; John O. Niedhauser, chairman division of appointments, Ohio State University, and Edwin Crewe Rosenau, executive secretary of Gary's Chamber of Commerce.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Whitmer was graduated from Bluffton High School. He earned his A. B. degree at Oberlin College and his M. A. and Ph. D. at Ohio State University. His 18 years experience includes the teaching of physical education and mathematics and service as vice principal, principal and assistant superintendent.

We feel we can speak for the community and our school system's personnel in assuring Dr. Whitmer a warm welcome to the city and co-operation in his new post.

Polio Shots Begin Monday

With the Michigan Medical Society's withdrawal of objections, plans are being pushed to start inoculation of Oakland County school children with Salk polio vaccine next Monday.

This was the result of a televised statement of the society's position by Dr. William Bromme, chairman of its executive committee. While there was no unqualified endorsement, he said that the society will not withhold approval of the 11 county tests and would co-operate in them.

State Health Commissioner Heustis expressed extreme disappointment over the lack of "clear cut action" by the society. But he added that on the basis of evidence that the vaccine is safe "we are going ahead."

In announcing that the Oakland tests would begin Monday in Clarkston, Bertha Baker and Novi Schools, County Health Director Monroe said:

"...we are satisfied that only safe vaccine will be used and we will go ahead with the inoculation...provided we get the vaccine in time."

Then Dr. Monroe offered further assurance to parents, who have to give written permission for the inoculations. He pointed out that the vaccine would not be supplied for use here until it is tested by a special advisory committee of leading medical authorities.

While all obstacles to the test now have been removed, we think it well to emphasize a fact stated by Dr. Bromme. "It is important," he said, "that it be thoroughly understood that the responsibility for participation of the children in the experiment rests with their parents."

Promotion for Dr. Bunche

News that Dr. Ralph Bunche is to become undersecretary general of the United Nations is of special interest in this area because he is an outstanding native of Detroit.

The appointment also is of general interest because Dr. Bunche has such a long record of distinguished service to the international organization.

According to the announcement this promotion is part of the general shakeup of the U.N. undertaken by Secretary General Hammarskjold. His intention is to make use of Dr. Bunche's talents for trouble shooting by sending him to any part of the world where such ability is needed.

★ ★ ★

This eminent American is known for his work as head of U. N.'s trusteeship division and as winner of the 1950 Nobel Peace prize. The award was given for his help in ending the Arab-Israeli War, a task he took up after the still unsolved assassination of Count Folke Bernadotte.

We believe Mr. Hammarskjold has chosen wisely and well in filling the new post of undersecretary general.

James Clapp Recalls Time When Several Rivers in Michigan Were Called Huron

(Letters will be condensed when necessary because of lack of space. Full name, address and telephone number of the writer must accompany letters but these will not be published if the writer so requests, unless the letter is critical to its nature.)

How many Huron Rivers has our state had? Possibly the original Huron ran through Detroit in an early day, later changed to Savoyard, then just a big sewer. Following that was what later became two rivers, the Huron and Clinton.

A little farther north, in the thumb, what is now the Cass was a Huron. In the northern peninsula, along with the Huron Mountains and Huron Bay there was a Huron River.

At the extreme western point of the peninsula there was a Huron in an early day, but there was doubt as to whether it was in Michigan or Wisconsin.

The name Huron was not an Indian name but French. The tribe known for a time as the Hurons were originally Wyandots. They later dropped the name Huron and resumed their original name of Wyandot.

Due to a case of too many Huron Rivers the legislative council of the Michigan territory changed the name of the Lake St. Clair branch to Clinton on July 17, 1824.

He Claims Greed Keeps the Cold War Seething

Most people want peace. There are a few, however, that, consumed by greed and lust for power, are keeping the cold war seething.

These greedy people are spread all over the world. Most of them, however, are in Russia or the Russian controlled satellites. They are the Russian government who advocate abject slavery for most of the people so that the rulers can live in luxury.

They are athists and deny the existence of God and are so rabid and overbearing that when the United Nations was formed at San Francisco, for the purpose of establishing world peace, at their insistence no mention was made of God.

This one atheistic nation overruled the 50 supposedly Christian nations. There were undoubtedly many God fearing men among the 50 Christian nations, yet in an attempt to appease Russia they ignored God and attempted to set up a man made system to establish peace on earth. If we continue to follow this man-made system we are doomed.

Communists in America Aim Primarily at Negating U. S. Anti-Soviet Policies

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Is the Communist conspiracy inside the United States succeeding? The answer to this $64 question is really the most important fact to be ascertained in American life today.

Before any information on the subject — as gathered by trained investigators and undercover agents and given in testimony by former Communists — can be analyzed, it is important to sweep away the erroneous conceptions which are widely held by people throughout this country as to what are actually the Communist objectives.

First of all, it may come as a surprise to many persons to learn that the prime purpose of the Communist conspiracy is not to convert America to communism or to bring in some form of anti-capitalist totalitarianism.

This could be an ultimate purpose, but it is by no means a part of today's tactics. Nor is the aim "to promote friction and discord," as so many Americans have often expressed it. That is incidental and not at all primary.

Then what is all the shouting about? The truth is that the Communist conspiracy, with its 25,000 full-time agents concentrated in key spots throughout the United States, is aimed at influencing today—this month or this year—the negation of specific policies which, if adopted, can thwart the policies of the government of the Soviet Union.

Some of the policy objectives of the Soviet at the moment, as transmitted to its agents in America, are these:

1. To bring about a breakdown of the economic blockade of the Communist countries, especially on machinery and strategic goods.

Considerable effort is being expended through propaganda generally and through carefully placed pressure upon legislators and officials here and abroad to bring about the resumption of a wide scale of East-West trade.

2. To break down the system of congressional investigations so that the 25,000 agents and their contacts inside government will be able to operate more effectively in influencing American policy. This has been for more than three years now the basic reason for the persistent campaign against what the Communists from the start have termed "McCarthyism."

The articles and headlines in the Daily Worker are the best guide to the instructions sent to Communist agents throughout America. Long before many non-Communist organizations and persons took up the fight against congressional inquiries, the Daily Worker had manifested an almost fanatical hysteria about the Wisconsin senator.

For three years hardly a day has gone by without an attack on the congressional investigating system and on the Wisconsin senator, as well as on the chairmen of all other committees in the House and Senate involved in exposing Communist activities. It's a basic objective.

3. To disparage and perhaps cause a breakdown in the "new look," which is the latest military plan of the United States. To accomplish this, arguments have been persistently promoted to the effect that the H-bomb must be outlawed.

Yet everyone here in government familiar with the "new look" knows that if the H-bomb is outlawed the whole "new look" strategy will have to be revised. Ground armies like those of Russia would then be supreme and the draft of American boys would become more severe.

4. To discredit the "massive retaliation" policy of Secretary Dulles.

Moscow was a little slow in starting the ball rolling on this one, but now it is gathering momentum, though the primary dependence of the Communists on frustrating that policy lies in Great Britain, where, with the aid of sympathetic persons in the radical wing of the Labor Party, the subject has been successfully agitated in the hope of blocking through the London government the policy which America has proclaimed.

Only a few of the objectives of the Soviet conspiracy can be presented here today, but they are concrete illustrations of what the Communist agents are working on at the moment.

What makes the problem so baffling is that there are many loyal, sincere, patriotic Americans who have taken or may take exactly the same positions on public policy conscientiously and without having been influenced in the slightest to adopt those points of view by any known intermediaries or contacts from the Communist conspiracy.

The strategy of the Communist agents is to watch for the natural emergency of viewpoints here and there that could be helpful to them, and then to furnish the momentum and pressure to carry those policies on to greater and greater influence.

Case Records of a Psychologist

Says Platonic Marriage May Stem From Obesity

Marilyn's marriage was growing platonic. Her husband's kisses weren't fervent. Then she analyzed the situation and used the diet plan mentioned below. It had startling effects. So if your husband is growing indifferent, try this new strategy to perk him up to a more romantic pitch.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case K-381: Marilyn M., aged 32, has been married 11 years.

"Dr. Crane, I feel sure we were headed for a divorce," she began.

"My husband didn't mistreat me, but we had degenerated into a platonic type of marriage.

"He was good to me and I tried to be a tidy housekeeper. My cooking also was O.K.

"But he seldom kissed me and when he did, it was sort of a fatherly, unromantic peck on the cheek.

"Then I read your column about fatness and how it often kills romance. So I faced the bitter truth.

"On my wedding day I had weighed 115. Now I made the needle on my bathroom scales run up to 150. I did look plump and maternal.

"So I tried your diet. I sent for the bulletin 'How to Lose 10 lbs. in 10 Days.' And it worked.

"But I kept on till I dropped to 120. Meanwhile, a remarkable change came over my husband.

"Instead of falling into a chair in the living room when he got home at night, he'd now come right out to the kitchen.

"Then he'd seize me and give me a real kiss like the movie stars. He'd also hang around the kitchen till dinner was ready, instead of reading the paper or watching TV.

"And he began to suggest movie dates. Yet all I did was take off 30 pounds. So I've learned my lesson.

"If it takes slenderness to change a platonic husband into a sweetheart again, then I'm staying slender the rest of my life!"

While it is still cool weather, all of us fatties should lop off the useless fat we now carry.

This 10-day diet which Marilyn mentions is simple to follow. All you do is restrict your calories to 800 per day for women, or 1,200 for men.

Include at least 400 calories worth of protein foods, like meat, eggs, cottage cheese, etc. for your body has no storage of surplus protein. You need fresh protein every day.

"But how can I avoid feeling hungry all the time?" you may wonder.

Here's the trick. Limit your liquid intake! On the first day, take only one full glass (8 oz.) of total fluids, meaning water, soup, fruit juice, milk, etc.

On the 2nd day, you can have just two glasses of total fluids. And on the 3rd to the 10th day, you are allowed 3 glasses per day.

That dries you out and apparently reduces the gastric juice secretion, for you will then feel thirsty but not very hungry. Thus, you can stay on your 800 to 1,200 calorie input quite comfortably.

At the end of the 10 days you will be down at least 10 pounds. True, some of that may be water loss.

But it is a great tonic to your morale to make a quick initial loss. You wives can then take up your girdles. You husbands can take up a notch in your belts.

You can also see the smaller waistline. So you feel like keeping on with your dieting.

On the usual diet, however, you lost only a pound or two in the first week, and that is so discouraging, you chuck the whole affair.

After the 10 days are over, you can drink freely, but your stomach will have shrunk so you are now content on less food. By remaining on your lower calorie intake, you can then take off 1 to 2 pounds more per week till you reach your goal.

For further dieting advice, send for my bulletin "How to Lose 10 Lbs. in 10 Days" enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus a dime.

Baering Down

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

All this buzzment about slagheaping the H-bomb leaves me colder than an igloo for rent.

First from all, it's not the most lethal contribution to the gentle art of vacating the premises. The perimeter of the portable holocaust is far, wide and pernicious. Inside that impartial cremating cloud is disintegrating disaster for millions.

Neither was the A-salt-cracker man's premier contribution to donated destruction. Nor the flying fortress, the mine field, disease or earthquake.

The most deadly weapon ever devised was the club. Within the parabola of the first irritable shillelagh one-fourth of the earth's population was wiped out.

Twenty-five per cent of the census was dropped from the blue book when Cain eliminated Abel from the tournament.

It was the triumph of the blackthorn over evasive tactics. Even today five cents worth of hickory will clear the aisles.

Before scrapping the big bopp let's look back at the accumulative schedule of Yankee retaliation. Didn't a fellow named Gatling step up the ratio of lilies to the ultimate acre? Instead of relegating the Gatling gun to the limbo of the miscellaneous we kept on improving it.

That goes for the Ironclad, the submarine, the depth bomb, the guided missile and the muzzle-loading musket. At no time have we ever scrapped the convincer.

We believe with the be-diamonded dowager that them as has 'em wears 'em.

There is no reason why we cannot put the H-bomb away in our hope chest. George Washington warned us to primp for war in time of peace.

Dr. Brady Says Sweets in Diet Are Bad but Not for Same Reasons Dentists Give

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

I do not recall at the moment, and I haven't time to re-read Nutrition and Physical Degeneration to determine whether Dr. Price considered tooth-brushing of any value.

No matter whether he considered toothbrushing of value or not, he was, in my opinion, one of the great authorities of our time.

If the fat bundles of propaganda supplied to the newspapers of the country by the American Dental Association reflect the prevailing opinion and practice of the dental profession, the sugar, candy, ice cream and cake people should call their dogs of my trail for a while and go after the dentists of the country.

The dentists are urging—well, no, that's too strong a word—they are insinuating that sugar, either straight or in candy, ice cream, cake, pie, cookies, syrup, pop, is injurious to the teeth and should be "eliminated."

If my teachings about the place of refined white sugar in the diet are not quite what the sugar mills would like, this anti-sugar obsession of the dentists should infuriate them.

I regard sugar and the innumerable things sweetened with it as cheat food simply because sugar, though it yields quick energy in an emergency, does not supply the vitamins and minerals which are so essential to maintain good nutrition, growth and functional efficiency.

It hits particularly the functional efficiency of the heart and other muscles in the growing child or youth.

You see, parents, teachers and members of the board of education, when a child or youth indulges in candy, ice cream, chocolate malted, pop or other cheat foods the child or youth just doesn't want real food such as milk, eggs, meat, fruit, vegetables, cheese, bread and butter, salad.

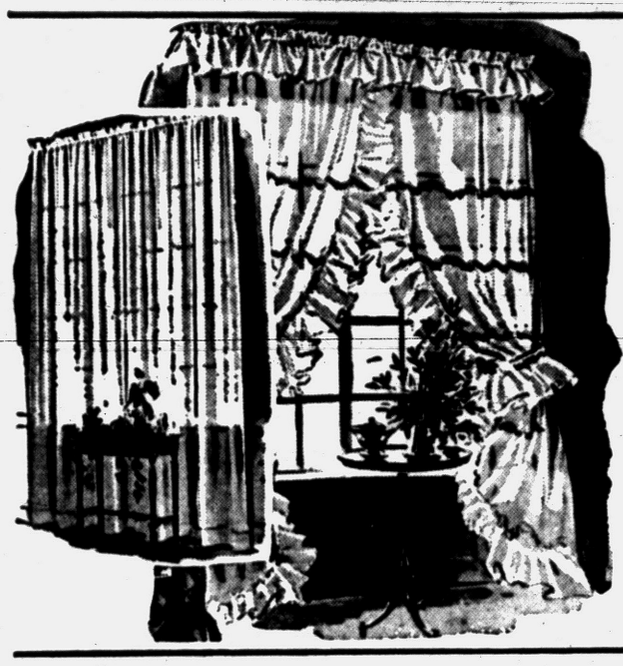

I believe, however, that a growing child who plays as hard as a normal youngster should, may profitably stow away a big hunk of pie, cake, ice cream, candy or whatever sweets he or she prefers, as dessert, even though his or her mother or father may not get enough general exercise daily to warrant such indulgence.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self addressed envelope is enclosed, etc.

Mother-in-Law Plays Right Into Gal's Hands

By BILLY ROSE

Sometimes, as Philip Wylie is fond of telling us, a mother confuses her love for her son with the love for herself. I mention this because I recently received a story from a housewife in Montreal which seems to document Mr. Wylie's anti-mom thesis . . .

For many years, according to my Canadian contributor, a widow named Caroline Haskell lived in a small house in Quebec City with her only son, George, a salesman by profession.

BILLY ROSE

As might be expected, George had run around with lot of girls, but for one reason or another he never took any of them seriously.

In each instance, it seems, the "one reason or another" was furnished by his loving mother: Viola was too flighty, Charlotte too mercenary, and as for Christine — well, the less said about that one the better. And so on and so forth.

Last year, however, George, a balding 35, began to steady-date an unusually pretty girl named Peggy, and when he started to talk about settling down, his mother realized the situation called for strong measures.

The following day she had Peggy over for lunch and a friendly chat.

"I'm so happy you like George," she told the girl. "I'm all he has and, Lord knows, I'm not getting any younger. It's time he married and had somebody like you to look after him when those attacks come on."

"What attacks?" asked Peggy.

Mrs. Haskell seemed flustered. "Oh dear," she said. "I suppose I shouldn't have mentioned them. They don't come very often. His father had the same sickness and lived until he was well past fifty."

That did it. Exit Peggy . . .

Around Christmas of last year, George brought another girl home, a pert-faced brunette named Ella he had met at a ski camp in the Lauretians. From the way she looked at George, Mrs. Haskell immediately sensed trouble.

A few days later she got the bad news she had been expecting.

"I aim to marry Ella," said George. "That is, if she'll have me."

Next afternoon the girl was in Mrs. Haskell's parlor, having tea and chatting with her.

"There's no one I'd rather have for a daughter-in-law," said George's mother. "Still, I think it's only fair you should know—if George hasn't already told you — about his attacks."

The widow went on to tell Ella, in detail, what the attacks were like and how to deal with them. She finished by assuring the girl they were nothing to worry about if someone was on hand when the seizures came . . .

"Congratulate us, mom," he said. "We just got married. Talk to Ella while I pack a bag. We're going back to the ski camp for our honeymoon."

"You did a wonderful thing when you told me the truth about George," she said. "If you hadn't, I wouldn't have dared marry him."

"I don't understand," said Mrs. Haskell.

"It wouldn't have been fair," said Ella. "You see, my mother had fits of manic depression, and my grandmother died in an asylum. When you told me about George's sickness, it was like a reprieve. He was the first man I felt I could marry because he needed me to lean on as much as I needed him."

Thief Finds Ideal Place to Ditch Car—Jail Lot

LIBERTY, Tex. (AP) — Officers, going about their business in and out of the Liberty County Jail parking lot, grumbled and griped about having to walk around the 1946 Buick. For three months they did this.

State Highway Patrolmen Dan Duggan and Perry Price became so aggravated yesterday they decided to find the owner.

Their investigation disclosed the car had been stolen in Houston, Tex., three months before. The thief had driven it onto the jail lot and left it.

Fight for Dien Bien Phu Mostly Political, but Only Rebels Stand to Gain From It

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

SINGAPORE (AP) — For 40 terrible days and nights soldiers of the French Union have been writing a new page of glory with their blood. Yet the fearful battle of Dien Bien Phu is more for political objectives than military.

Dien Bien Phu, once not even a spot on the map of northwest Indochina, suddenly became one of the best known names. When the Vietminh Communists decided to attack March 13, they brought home to the non-Communist world, with dramatic impact, the gravity of the situation in Southeast Asia.

It was to be a major military-political battle of the seven-year-old war. The Communists desperately wanted to inflict a crushing blow. The French equally needed a victory if the political line were to be held. But the French were in an unenviable position. They could lose the battle but it was difficult to see how they could win a clear-cut decision, since they were holed up and immobile behind fortifications 180 miles from the nearest French base. They might inflict frightful casualties on the enemy as long as he attacked en masse, but he remained there continuing the siege.

"We must win this one," said Gen. Rene Cogny, French commander in north Indochina. He seemed to consider the battle would be won if the all-out attack were repulsed. The monsoon rains were due soon, to bog down military operations. That would hurt Vietminh supply lines, but it also would hinder the French air force's job of supplying and reinforcing the fortress.

* * *

So badly did the Communists want it that Russian-made Molotov trucks brought in a steady stream of heavy weapons and munitions and possibly as many as 6,000 Chinese advisers and technicians were overseeing the Vietminh's transition from jungle warfare to mass attack.

If the troops of Communist Ho Chi Minh sought military victory alone, the price would be too great. Wiping out the fortress and its defenders would be a great military victory but the Communists are not exclusively concerned with that.

Capitalizing on Paris' weariness and impatience with the war, the Communists hoped to convince France that her position in Indochina was hopeless. The Communists hoped to cause the fall of the French government, to be succeeded by one eager to negotiate with Ho and get out of Indochina. The Communists also expected to make the voice of Ho heard at the Geneva conference opening Monday.

The prize sought was a negotiated agreement which would leave the Vietminh, strongest political force in the country, ready to step into the vacuum if and when the French withdrew their troops. The effect of that on all Southeast Asia would be enormous.

* * *

The how and why of Dien Bien Phu is confusing to many. Why did Gen. Henri Navarre, French commander in chief, choose such a spot to make a fateful stand? It is a plain of red dust in a sweltering valley surrounded by commanding hills which permit fire to be poured down upon it. The defenders have no rear—the nearest French forces are 180 miles east. There is no place to fall back. It was a matter of stand or be massacred.

The best explanation I could get:

Dien Bien Phu had been a cluster of mud and straw huts perched on poles. Last fall the French cleared away the villagers, cut down the trees and began building fortifications. The reason was that the French were developing among the friendly, anti-Communist Thai tribesmen a type of warfare waged by the Maquis (guerrillas) in France in World War II.

* * *

The Vietminh sent its 316th Division to clean out the Thais. The French flew more troops to Dien Bien Phu to protect guerrilla activities. The French kept reinforcing Dien Bien Phu, building strongpoints and setting up seas of barbed wire barricades, until by Jan. 1 it was a formidable complex 6 by 4 miles, encircled by thickly forested hills. The entrance was protected by eight hill strongpoints. The command post complex was made up of underground positions, well-bunkered and encircled with more barbed wire.

Two hill positions fell to the Vietminh in early assaults. The Vietminh dug in behind protecting hills and trees on the approaches to the fortifications.

Likely Navarre did not expect the Vietminh to come up with heavy artillery or shift over to mass attack tactics. His supporters say the original strategic purpose was to bar a Vietminh drive into northern Laos. The Communists, however, did send a division into northern Laos in January, bypassing Dien Bien Phu. That turned out to be a diversion. The Vietminh was not primarily interested in grabbing territory but French and Vietnamese.

It was fairly apparent in Hanoi that Navarre's views of Dien Bien Phu were not shared unanimously by his officers. Americans and even some French fretted at what they considered static defense thinking. The French gravely lack mobility.

* * *

"They go further back than a Maginot Line complex," said one observer. "They seem to have a Verdun complex."

Night and day since the battle began, transport planes, supplied by the United States, have taken off with men and American supplies. The men are dropped only by night into the lighted fortress complex. If conditions are poor too many men land outside the fortress area and face death or capture and about 40 per cent of the supplies are lost. If conditions are good, supply losses are kept to about 10 per cent.

The French say they don't have enough planes for both supply and support. But the French lack pilots in Indochina. Gen. Cogny said he could scrape up pilots for about 100 more planes, including a transport, a fighter and perhaps two bomber squadrons—but even this seemed optimistic. Where are the pilots? In Paris, the French point out they have commitments in that respect to NATO.

The enemy is suffering perhaps five times the casualties of the French at Dien Bien Phu. But French casualties in the 7½ years of war have been costly, more in quality than in quantity. The French have lost about 16,000 Frenchmen, all noncoms and officers, and about 40,000 French Union troops, including North Africans in the Foreign Legion and Vietnamese with the French Union forces.

* * *

An officer remarked: "We were beaten by the Germans in 1940 because we lost so many officers in the first world war. Now, if there is a third world war, we may be beaten because so many officers have been lost in Indochina."

Aren't you glad you use Dial Soap?

(. . . and don't you wish everybody did!)

2 Big Bath bars only . . . 37c
Regular Size 2 for 27c

When you're with others—at a party with friends, in a busy office, or wherever you may be, you never have to worry about perspiration odor when you use Dial. It's the wonderful soap that contains AT-7 (Hexachlorophene). Dial's the only leading soap that has it, and there's nothing else as good at removing skin bacteria that cause odor.

Even if you wash and wash with ordinary soaps, thousands of these bacteria are left—to cause odor. But a daily tub or shower with Dial Soap removes up to 95% of the tiny trouble-makers.

And Dial's Hexachlorophene clings to your skin for days, so its protection increases the more you use Dial. Depend on it—Dial Soap stops odor before it starts—and keeps you clean and fresh and nice to be around all day. You'll find Dial is a wonderfully mild, lightly scented soap that makes a rich lather. It's a hard-milled soap, too, so every bar of Dial lasts a long, long time.

Indians Efficient in Fire Fighting

Are Trained for Work; Extra Money Goes Into Tribal Purse

WASHINGTON — Airborne Indians are among the nation's most efficient forest-fire fighters.

They recently helped save the Mount Wilson Observatory and the $4,000,000 television transmitters in the San Gabriel Mountains near Los Angeles.

Indians were also flown to Yosemite and Yellowstone National Parks, particularly hard hit last year, says the National Geographic Society.

Lightning fires set a 25-year record in the national parks in 1953. Thirty-two blazes were touched off in Yosemite alone in a three-day period during September, and in Yellowstone lightning fires were discovered almost daily in late summer.

The government has found the southwestern Indians, "trained on their reservations, enthusiastic fire fighters—"by nature and habit suited to the job, accustomed to a rugged outdoor life, able to work long, hard hours without tiring, and courageous in the face of danger."

On their part, thousands of home-loving Apaches, Pueblos, Hopis and Navajos have learned that this well-paid seasonal work fills tribal coffers without causing them long absence from their reservations and families.

Bulldozers, airplanes and water-tank trucks are formidable weapons in the modern arsenal of forest-fire fighting. But sometimes only men, armed with no more than axes and rakes, can halt flames in remote places. Then stamina and knowledge of nature make the Indian a fire fighter without peer.

Or at times the Indians must pocket an onrushing fire by burning out a wedge-shaped strip. In this "backfiring" work they excel.

Droughts, particularly in the Southwest during 1952 and 1953, made for two of the most hazardous forest-fire seasons of recent times. If the dry weather continues, the agricultural Indians from the arid Southwest may turn to a "secret weapon" tried recently.

One Hopi crew working on a troublesome fire in southern California asked permission to stage a rain dance.

In two hours, a cloudburst had reduced the fire to a harmless cloud of smoke—and changed the amused look of forest rangers to one of awed surprise.

Two Ministers Handle Jail Work Amicably

RAVENNA, Ohio — The Rev. Robert Stockdale, a Methodist clergyman, and Pastor Harold V. Kyer of the Church of the Nazerene only seem to be working at cross purposes.

Rev. Stockdale is the Portage County sheriff who locks 'em up and Kyer is county prison chaplain who tries to assist prisoners.

Rev. Kyer claims "the reputation of spending more time in jail than any other minister in the county, but I get out more times, too."

The sheriff says it's fellow-clergyman renders an "invaluable service" to the community.

About 55 per cent of U. S. births took place in hospitals in 1940 compared to 88 per cent in 1950.

Nixon Outlines Indochina Policy

Says U.S. Aims to Hold Asian Nation Without War Involving Us

CINCINNATI (AP)—Vice President Nixon said last night the aim of the Eisenhower administration in Indochina "is to hold it without a war involving the United States if we can."

He left unanswered what the United States would do specifically if Indochina could not be held without direct American intervention.

* * *

Nixon commented last Friday that the United States might have to send armies to Indochina as a last-ditch effort in the unlikely event the French withdrew their troops. His remarks, delivered "off-the-record" to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, caused a congressional furore.

The vice president outlined the administration's foreign policy at an annual University of Cincinnati dinner.

He declared it was the administration's aim and purpose "to develop policies which will keep us from having to send American boys to fight in Indochina or anywhere else if we possibly can."

A policy of strength and of united action "has the best chance to accomplish that purpose," he said.

If Indochina falls to the Communists, he warned, "the balance of power in the world may have shifted to the Communist side sufficiently that the men in the Kremlin and Pekin may think that now the time has come when they can begin a world war and have a chance to win."

Pontiac District Scout Committee to Elect Officers

Pontiac District Committee of the Clinton Valley Boy Scout Council will elect new officers at its annual meeting tonight at 7:30 in Grace Lutheran Church.

Ovis Gidcumb, district chairman, has invited all adult scout leaders in the district to attend. Operating committee chairmen will review the past year's activities and announce future events.

Council President Ralph W. Bennett of Mount Clemens will speak. Other officials planning to attend include Pontiac District Commissioner Ralph S. Forman, Council Commissioner John W. Hunt of Farmington, Camporee Director Robert N. Webb and Scout Executive Edward H. Leland.

William J. DeGrace is program chairman. Nominating committee members are Stanley Filkins, Glenn Lackey and Harry Boorn.

Toastmasters Discuss Segregation in Schools

Otto W. Milldebrandt won the Pontiac Y Toastmasters Oscar for his speech on the table topic "Should the Supreme Court rule against Segregation in Public Schools?" when the group met last night.

Other speakers included Harold Bussey, Morris Decker, Norman O'Brien and Don Rofe. Toastmaster for the evening was Sid Siegel.

Portugal Takes Steps to Develop Her Empire

LISBON (UP)—Portugal has successfully entered the operational stage of a five-year, $240,000,000 program to develop the world's third largest colonial empire, according to the budget for 1954.

The colonial scheme will develop ports, dams, railways, roads, telecommunications, industries and health in the 2,170,276 square kilometers of an empire stretching to Timor. The 1954 budget will get the program moving at top speed.

Check Kitchen for Hazards

Room Most Dangerous in House, but It Need Not Be

The next accident in your home will most likely occur in the kitchen.

Of course, it need not happen at all. The cuts, the falls, the burns and the other distressing mishaps which make the kitchen the most dangerous room in the house could, in practically every instance, be avoided.

Better safety habits and better kitchen planning and upkeep can eliminate nearly all accidents. Safety experts suggest that you check these points to be sure that your kitchen is safe:

1. The floor: It should always be kept in good condition, since falls are the most common kitchen accident. Spilled food and grease should be cleaned up immediately, so that a slippery condition will not be created.

2. Drainboards and counter tops: Caring for worn, unsanitary drainboards and counter tops is tiring, and tiredness is an important accident factor. A good plan is to replace them with tile, which is permanent and waterproof.

3. Storage of poisons: Most fatal accidents from poisons occur in the kitchen. Be sure that lye, insecticides and poisonous cleansers are either under lock and key or stored out of reach of children.

4. Knives: Treat them with respect. Always cut away from the body, not toward it. Wash sharp knives apart from the dishes, to prevent cut hands.

5. Step ladder or stool: Most kitchens have shelves that can be reached only by standing on something. Be sure that something is a step ladder or stool.

6. Curtains: If open flames on the range are less than 18 inches from a window, see that curtains are fastened securely. Otherwise they may blow across a burner and catch fire.

7. Electric cords: Inspect the cords of toasters, waffle irons, mixers and other appliances periodically, to be sure they are not frayed.

8. Children: They should be kept out of the kitchen, particularly during meal preparation. Many burns and scaldings would be avoided if homemakers followed this rule.

ELIZABETH LAKE ESTATES HOME—At 4699 Westlawn Drive in Elizabeth Lake Estates, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn M. Rohrer built a green cedar shake one-story home. The dark green shade of the exterior is relieved by an outline of white in trim and in the white fence that faces the front walk. The house includes three bedrooms, a living room, dining ell, kitchen and a full basement. Another distinctive exterior feature is the white garage door done in carved scroll work.

Egyptians Took Exceeding Care in Tomb Painting

Egyptian painters who embellished the plastered interior walls of tombs in the years between 1500 and 1200 B. C. worked with exceeding care, according to the book "Everyday Life in Ancient Times," published by the National Geographic Society.

First, they made their initial sketches on flakes of limestone, dividing the sketch into squares of equal proportions. Then the wall area on which the large painting was to be made was marked off into proportion squares.

This was done with the aid of a cubit measuring rod and a cord, coated with red pigment. The cord was used to snap the lines onto the wall.

On the squared grid thus prepared, a full sized preliminary sketch was made in red outline, then in black.

In finishing the drawings, the painters used blue, red, yellow and green pigments, ground to powder and mixed with beeswax, albumin, gum or a similar vehicle. For paint brushes they used palm sticks, with carefully frayed ends, or bundles of grass lashed tightly together with cords of grass.

Rubber Holds Tools on Top of Stepladder

How to keep tools secure while they rest on top of a stepladder is shown in the illustration.

Also, both hands will be free when moving the ladder, and there will be no need to put down the tools every time a move is made.

Clocks Become Ultra Modern

Traditional Round-Face Timepieces Disappear From Stores

If a look at the clock counters in housewares departments across the nation reveals any one trend, it's mostly this: Time is not of the essence.

What once was a round, simple, glass-encased timepiece hanging on the wall or sitting on the mantel has given place to an object of modern design that — by the way — also tells time.

Japanese Have Perfect Word for Good Taste

Say 'Shibui' When Decorating Home

SAN FRANCISCO (INS) — Home decorators seeking a guide for translating the phrase "good taste" into purchases for the home will benefit by adding a Japanese word —"shibui"—to their vocabulary.

Roughly, it means beauty, but beauty with qualifications added.

For an item to be "shibui" it must not only be beautiful, but have usefulness, look as though it had been used and loved, be restrained and humble.

It is never flamboyant, but must have a feeling of agelessness. "Shibui" can be in the tone of the color, in the styling, in the choice of material.

Japanese importers are finding that items with "shibui" are the imports that American women are willing to buy—not the gaudy items once associated with the label "Made in Japan."

Goro Otagiri of the Otagiri Mercantile Co. in San Francisco explained.

"Importers once bought for what was the so-called American taste; but they've found that Americans like the native taste of Japanese craftsmen."

One example is in fish-shaped pans of gunmetal-colored cast iron that can be used either as baking pans or frying pans. A cast iron handle slips over the side to lift them from the oven or stove.

They're handsome dishes for shelf or wall decoration when not being used for cooking and come in three different sizes, the largest fish a little over a foot long and with a very plump tummy. They retail for approximately $3 to $4.50 each.

Cast iron teapots are also in vogue—the brown and black teapots designed to last the normal Japanese farm family several lifetimes.

They're squat-shaped with long, arched spouts but have an unfarm-like price of from $12.50 to $15.

The Hibachi, without which many a Japanese family would not eat, is also winning increasing favor in the United States. It is a cast iron pot for charcoal grilling, 15 to 18 inches across the top.

A removable steel grill with a wooden handle holds the meat for cooking and is removable for easy cleaning. The charcoal burns on an inside grill over an ash container in the bottom of the pot, and a sliding door in the side allows the ashes to be removed.

The 18-inch size retails for about $19.75, and is complete with its own wooden base so it can be used on the living room coffee table, the patio or any convenient spot.

Two Otagiri tables would make instant hits in any modern decor —they are 2-inch thick slabs of the golden-brown wood of the Keyaki tree, highly polished to display each of the year-rings. They are set on three legs of cast iron in the shape of an elongated V. The regular shape of the trunk lends interesting shape to the slabs.

Tumblers made from a length of bamboo are different and useful. They are approximately 75 cents each and come 5½ and 8 inches tall, 3 inches across.

Square flower pots, graduated from top to bottom, come in sets of three with Japanese characters on the sides or Japanese scenes, and pottery bowl sets can be used either for mixing or flower arrangements.

One exception at the Otagiri establishment to the importing of native Japanese styles are the Andon lampshades. They were conceived in San Francisco by the firm and made in Japan at the firm's order.

They are of translucent rice paper — two sheets with fern leaves pressed in between — made in round, square or oval shape and outlined with split bamboo.

Square lampshades for a ceiling fixture are outlined with black lacquered wood in shoji (Japanese sliding door) style and are about $6 each. Whole table lamps retail from $10 up.

New Appliances Really Innovations

Now you can find new electric refrigerators and ranges with full-color exteriors which will bring new life to kitchen decor.

A host of new time and labor-saving conveniences are being built into these appliances to eliminate a lot of drudgery and make the food handling task much easier.

Also, there is a trend toward larger household refrigerators, together with electric ranges with many new built-in cooking facilities and more usable oven space.

Entrance Hall Staging Comeback in New Homes

Thanks largely to the ranch style of home design, the entrance hall is staging a comeback. The lack of a porch is the reason.

Painting by Roller Is Quick and Easy

It's exceedingly easy to coat a large wall or ceiling area in a short time by using a roller.

Before starting with the roller, use a 2-inch brush to cut in around ceiling corners and woodwork. Then roll lightly and continuously back and forth. To fill in any spots you may miss, cross roll, if necessary. Always finish by rolling all strokes in one direction.

Immediately after using it, be sure to clean your roller. Use water for the purpose, if you've been working with an emulsion paint.

Use turpentine, naptha or mineral spirits, if your paint had an oil base.

White Refrigerators Touched Up With Color

If you decide to let white predominate your kitchen, you will find that white refrigerators and ranges have been glamorizd by new touches of color.

There is new rich gold, plastic and black trim on these appliances, and inside, white refrigerators have food storage compartments finished in an unusual pastel color that sometimes appears green, and sometimes blue, depending upon the lighting.

DO-IT-YOURSELF GRILLWORK—It is not uncommon today to see attention focused on the entrance of the small house by the restrained use of grillwork. The idea was imported from France and used in various sections of the country and extensively in old New Orleans and in the houses surrounding Gramercy Park in New York.

Contemporary architects are finding an excellent use for these designs borrowed from the past, when applied at the entrance of the small house. Grillwork need not be expensive and this is where the man with the power tools comes in.

The simple design shown here for a porch trim is cut from boards of medium widths. For the stairs and entrance railing an entirely different effect is obtained by combining pieces cut out in an openwork design with narrow plain strips. An endless number of combinations may be made and you are not limited to porch trim and railings.

An odd-shaped window that stands out too much may be made to look wider with grillwork at each side. Try this on a window or a door of the garage and see how it changes a box-like structure to a thing of beauty. A pattern for the basic design shown above to be traced directly on the material is available to readers. Various uses for this design combined with stock sizes of lumber are sketched in detail on the pattern.

Another project that will pay its way in comfort and good looks is the door canopy shown. The construction is simple, and the pattern gives details for both door canopy and slatted window awning. The grillwork pattern is No. 396 and the canopy is 345. Be sure to give numbers and enclose 25 cents for one or 50 cents for two.

Stand on Own Merit

Fine Paintings Don't Need to Match Colors of Room

CHICAGO — You hang a painting you don't especially like just to fill a vacant place on your living room wall.

Joseph Faulkner, Chicago art dealer, says you're among the multitudes of art hungry Americans who have acquired a taste for good art but can't satisfy it. He annually makes a European tour to get his hands on original art pieces for resale to museums and art collectors.

"The test of an enduring picture or any work of art is its universality, its appeal to many people," he says.

Faulkner attributes the new interest in art to the recent nationwide tours of famous European collections sponsored by the museums and the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D. C.

"It resulted in raising the public's taste for better art and lifting the general cultural level of everybody," Faulkner says.

The modern art controversy has Faulkner as disturbed as the public who criticize it. Most of them are only dabs of oil on canvas and don't tell a story or relay a message, he says.

"One of the questions I ask when offered the works of an artist who paints like this is: 'Is the artist doing it as an expression or can't he do anything else?'

"A good artist should be able to express any idea that comes to him. If Pablo Picasso slings a ball of mud at a canvas, I have to consider it seriously because he's a well-known artist. He is able to paint whatever he wants to do," Faulkner said.

Another pet peeve of an art dealer is the art snobs who buy a painting because it has become a fad. They soon bring it back to the dealer and ask for a refund because they have discovered they can't live with it.

But one of Faulkner's biggest headaches as an art dealer is from the buyer who comes in and says:

"I want a painting four feet long to put over a couch. It should have green to blend with the couch and brown to pick up the brown in the rug and a touch of pink to match a lamp shade."

Faulkner says a painting shouldn't be considered as a decorative accessory. If it is a fine painting it has merit of its own and deserves its own place in a home.

One who can't afford an expensive painting, and who wouldn't be satisfied with reproductions of one, can get original lithographs. They can be had for as low as $15 and are usually signed by the artist himself.

The important thing in buying a picture is not what kind but that you like it. A good painting has a personality of its own; you have to live with it so it's best to please yourself first.

Housewife Likes Sewing in Kitchen

There's a trend toward sewing in the kitchen, according to several surveys. And makers of sewing machines are making the most of the trend by redesigning their products to blend with the rest of the kitchen equipment.

A new machine by Domestic, for instance, comes in a wooden cabinet that resembles a utility cabinet. Available in several colors, the cabinet can be opened for use as an extra kitchen work surface when not needed for sewing.

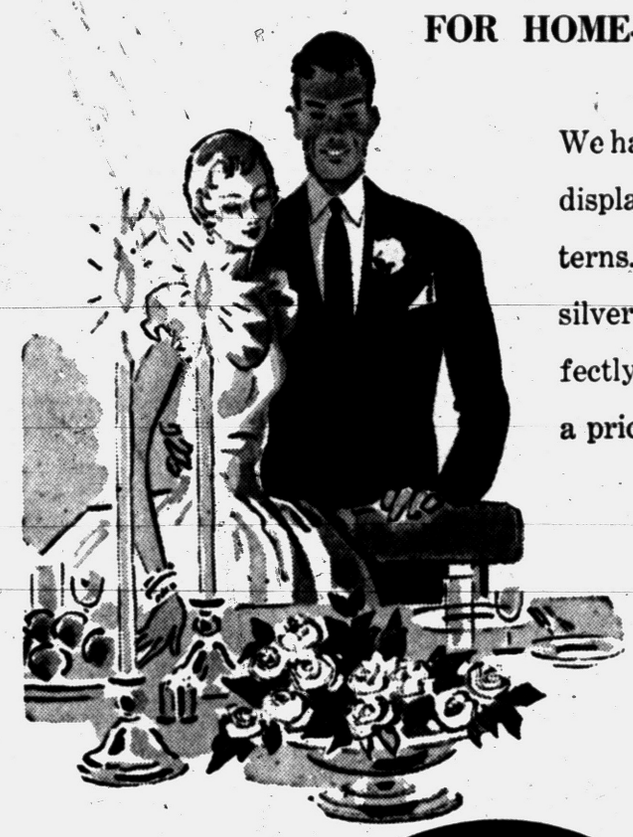

Prevent Rust Outside

For "rust measles," the best cure seems still to lie in prevention. If you are doing any new building work, or outside alterations, consider the use of aluminum nails. They can't rust.

Rochester Artisan Keeps Alive Ancient Skills in Wood Refinishing

STEP 1—APPLYING REMOVER—Herbert Winges, of the Herb Winges Studio, Rochester, believes that the amateur can refinish his own furniture if he follows the professional's advice step-by-step. His lifetime career has been in the crafts, ranging from work in the Cranbrook Art Academy to projects for the Smithsonian Institution and the Guggenheim Memorial. Winges has said that something can be done with practically any kind of wood and, with proper treatment, pine can be just as beautiful as walnut.

He now has his own studio located in one of the red barns on the L. E. Smart Sale Farm, at 330 W. Tienken Rd. In the first step, shown above, Winges is generously applying remover. He says to apply it freely, let it soak and apply a couple of more soakings before beginning Step 2.

STEP 2—SCRAPING—When old paint or varnish forms rough waves, begin to scrape, being careful not to gouge the wood. If some of the old finish is stubborn, apply another soaking of remover and then scrape clean.

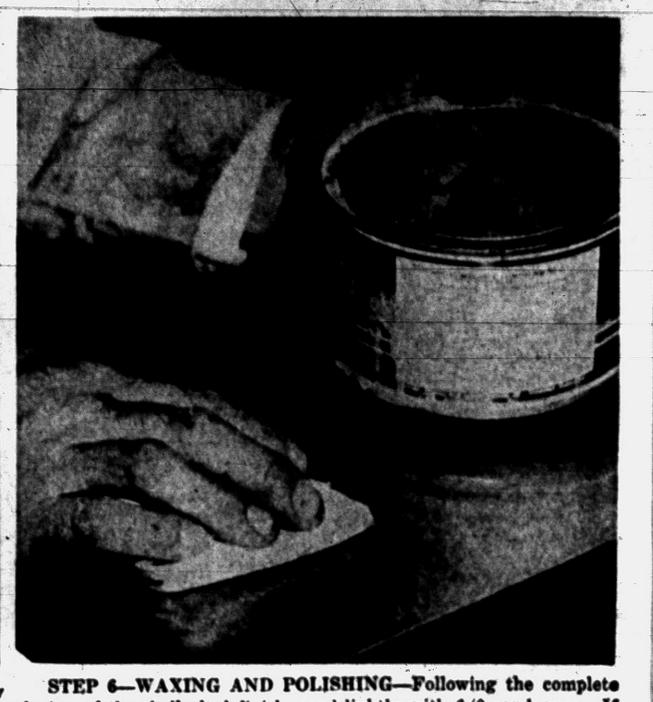

STEP 3—STEEL WOOL WASH—Wearing a rubber glove, take a piece of steel wool and soak it with alcohol to finish washing the piece to be refinished. Do this twice. The wool will remove the last trace of old paint.

STEP 4—SANDING—This is the step which requires the elbow grease. Use cabinet or garnet sand paper, starting with 3/0 and finishing with 6/0. Sand with the grain. Dust down completely.

STEP 5—SHELLACKING—Apply a coat of shellac. This should be 4-pound cut shellac diluted with one-half alcohol. Always remember that the higher-priced shellacs are good economy. They are the best in quality. Let this dry for at least four hours.

STEP 6—WAXING AND POLISHING—Following the complete drying of the shellacked finish, sand lightly with 6/0 sandpaper. If you want a higher gloss, repeat the shellacking process two or three times, sanding between each coat. The final operation should take a rubbing with 3/0 steel wool before the application of a good grade of paste wax. When slightly dry, begin to polish and your job is finished.

Wood Craftsman Laments Loss of Refinishing Art

"The amateur can do-it-himself if he follows the professional's advice," claims Herbert Winges, well-known interior craftsman who first was introduced to the art of wood refinishing by his school-teacher-father, Alvin Winges.

A lifetime career in the crafts has seen Winges doing model work at the Cranbrook Art Academy. He also has made models for the Smithsonian Institution and the Guggenheim Memorial.

Lamenting the fact that the art of refinishing is disappearing in an age of mass production, Winges said that it is hard today to find young people interested in this work.

"All of the emphasis is on quantity production. I learned from my father and he from his father before him. It was a matter of family pride and we didn't dare sacrifice perfection for production," he recalls.

"With the exception of very large pieces, both men and women can refinish," he said.

Winges says to be generous in applying both paint and varnish remover.

"Let remover do the work for you. If the first application doesn't loosen all the old finish, apply another and then another coat allowing it to soak thoroughly before scraping," he says.

Between applications, he advises giving it plenty of time to work.

Wash all the old residue off with steel wool dipped in alcohol. After two good soakings with this, let it dry for two or three hours before sanding, he says.

For sanding, he suggests using cabinet or garnet paper starting with 3/0 sandpaper and finishing with 6/0.

Dust the piece completely before applying shellac.

Pointing out that the most expensive shellacs are good economy, Winges recommends using four pound cut shellac diluting it one-half with alcohol. Let it dry four hours after applying it, sand with 6/0 paper and if a higher gloss is desired, shellac again and go through the same drying and sanding process until getting the desired finish.

Before the final step, waxing, Winges says to use a good grade of 3/0 steel wool, rub gently and then apply a good grade of paste wax.

Besides shellac, Winges says that there are many good synthetic varnishes on the market and also a brushing lacquer that can be used by the novice.

"French polish, which now is almost a lost art, is being compounded under a trade name that can be used by the amateur. This gives a beautiful wood finish."

Don't Build Bookshelves So Long They'll Collapse

When building a bookshelf remember that the maximum safe length of an adjustable bookshelf made of ¾ inch shelving should have no shelf longer than 30 inches.

Wipe Portable Appliances to Increase Life

The shining luster of your portable electric cooking appliances can grace your table for years, if you'll just give them the right soap-and-water care.

The heating mechanism will burn itself clean on any electric cooking units such as roasters, table broilers, toasters, waffle irons, or sandwich grills. However, the enamel or metal parts around the heating coils need wiping with a clean sudsy cloth.

Roasters and broilers have removable trays and racks that can be worked in the dishpan. Don't scrub the grid of a waffle-iron, but do keep the outside and edges spotless. Shake the crumbs out of your electric toaster before wiping the outside.

Sand Cedar Closet

Aside from an occasional dusting with a dry cloth, the only maintenance recommended for a cedar closet is a light sanding about once a year.

This reopens any closed pores in the wood renewing the pungency of the fragrant cedar-wood oil, so deadly to moth larvae.

Color Can Effect Your Way of Living

Color in the kitchen, or elsewhere, can effect you and your way of living. Color can enthuse, relax, cheer and stimulate.

For instance, green has the refreshing effect of ice, water and cool vegetation during the heat of summer.

Psychologists say that yellow is exhilarating, cheerful, and serves to stimulate the mental powers. Color will help you eliminate drabness in your kitchen, brighten dull corners, and ease the monotony of everyday living.

COLORFUL AND CAREFREE—This beautiful vinyl, tile floor with its smooth surface that sheds scuffs and soil, is a fitting backdrop for this modern kitchen. A friendly room, it has a special work unit faced with a circular table top of formica. A pull-down brass lamp puts the light directly over the table or up at the ceiling. A novel stove idea has been achieved with two apartment size stoves being placed together. This provides four burners and two ovens. The chairs are in maple and the pots and pans hanging over the stove are of the cast iron type covered with baked enamel.

Slide Fastens Onto Bunk Bed

Hideaway Equipment Provides Hours of Fun for Small Fry

A hideaway slide that hooks onto the children's bunk bed can provide many hours of fun, is put away in a jiffy, and is easy to make.

First, decide how long you want the slide to be. The longer the better, of course, but leave enough room between it and the wall for little legs and feet as they whiz down.

The bottom, made of hardboard 18 inches wide, is reinforced with braces of 1x2 lumber. The sides are 1x4 lumber, cut on a slant to rest against the side of bunk bed and on the floor.

Hooks for support at the top are metal strips, bent after a cardboard pattern fitted over the bed rail. Drill holes for the screws that fasten the hooks to the ends of the slide.

If you like, cut a wing-shaped hand-hold from half-inch plywood to aid the cherubs in getting set for the glide down.

To assemble, nail the hardboard to the sides, then fasten braces, driving the screws through the hardboard into the sides. The braces should be about 20 inches apart. The hand-hold is screwed to the side at the top of slide.

After assembling, sand all wooden surfaces carefully and finish with shellac or enamel to prevent splinters. Then wax the hardboard—and the show's on!

Only about two percent of Americans are said to have perfect eyesight.

Thinking Builders Master Problem of Seasonal Sun

Many people are discovering that Old Sol can be put to work to help heat their homes — with a little planning.

To get the most in living comfort and economy, with the help of natural sun heat, careful consideration should be given to the orientation and site planning before building.

The two primary factors in orienting the house are: The ascent and the descent of the sun's path as seasons change, and the direction of the prevailing summer breezes.

In this hemisphere, the sun follows a path close to the southern horizon throughout the day during the winter months. In summer, the sun is north of the equator and rides high in the sky.

Three steps to capitalize on this phenomenon are:

1—Orient the house so that large expanses of window faces south.

2—Build a roof extension or overhang above the large windows. Since the sun's path varies according to latitude, the width of the overhang should be determined by an architect or competent builder.

3—Properly insulate the roof and walls and install thermopane in all windows to guard against excessive heat loss in winter and heat gain in the summer.

In the summer the overhang acts as a visor for the house.

To take advantage of the prevailing summer breezes for additional comfort, it is recommended that ventilating windows, french doors and entranceways on the northern elevation be used. The northern side is also the best place to build a patio.

Zinc Primer Aids Painting of Galvanized

You can fight rust and check its ravages in many ways. There are new paints on the market that will stick to galvanized iron eavestroughs and downspouts as tightly as any good paint will stick to dry wood. In the past, chemical reactions were inevitable between the shiny zinc covering of galvanized iron and the vehicle used in ordinary paints. But zinc will stick to zinc, so paint makers have come up with a new trick.

You can now get galvanized metal primer in a two-compartment container—one being zinc dust, which drys readily with a specially formulated synthetic vehicle in the accompanying can of primer make the mixture stick to galvanized metal.

The laboratory technicians, who developed this primer, say that its advantage over a ready-mixed metal paint is that it can be stored successfully and you can mix just enough for the job in hand, incidentally, it makes it possible to paint galvanized garbage and trash barrels the same color as your house trim. You can use this primer on copper, too, to prevent stains.

Handy Accessories Brighten Interior

Many new home accessories, designed to help brighten the house interior at little expense, are being shown in the stores in connection with spring cleaning and decorating.

Among the handiest and most economical of these accessories is a line of plastic hooks, towel bars, toilet tissue holders, soap dishes, toothbrush and tumbler holders which can be stuck to any smooth surface without using nails, screws, or tools and without making any holes in the surface.

Terrazzo Floor Contains Marble Chips, Polished

What is a terrazzo floor? How is it laid? What is the cost, compared to other flooring?

Here are some answers to these questions. A terrazzo floor is constructed by mixing concrete with marble chips or other colored aggregates.

Such a floor is usually laid in large squares, framed by brass strips. After terrazzo has been laid, compacted and allowed to dry for several days, it's then ground and polished to a very smooth surface.

Of course, all this is easier said than done. Laying terrazzo is no job for the layman. It requires special skills and tools.

For that reason, terrazzo is more expensive than ordinary concrete.

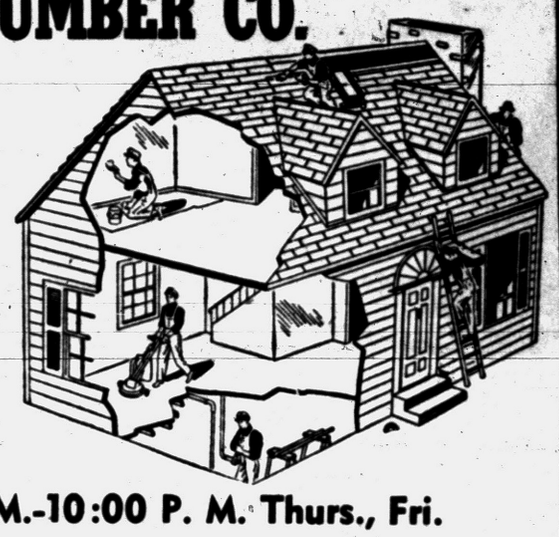

Terrazzo has a formal look that doesn't make it especially suitable for the average house. It's fine for a formal entry or a large sunporch.

BRICK MOVES INDOORS—But it really isn't brick. Makers of linoleums and tiles have come up with a brick effect in a wall covering which comes in three patterns—brick red, brick yellow and brick white. It is made with the equivalent of an eight-coat thickness of hand-applied enamel on a special felt base. It has recessed mortar lines to reproduce faithfully. It is washable with a damp cloth. This room has white shutter doors to match the white brick and black and white tiled floor. Complementing the floors and walls is the contemporary wrought iron casual furniture. Even the musical motifs on the wall are wrought iron as is the modern clock.

'Hi-Fi' Sweet Notes Await Musical Ear

Whether it's Bach or boogie, dance or drama, high fidelity record players, radios and television sets are bringing hitherto undreamed-of perfection in reproduction of sound to a growing army of devotees.

Clean Broiler After Use

Wash the broiler of your cooking range after each use, so grease won't collect and cause the pan to smoke. Pour off the grease while warm. When cool, soak pan and broiler grills in rich, hot soapsuds. Scrub wtih a stiff brush, rinse and dry.

Kitchen Needs Lots of Outlets

Provide for Installation of Timesaving Electric Equipment

If you're buiding a new home, be sure and have adequate 20-ampere outlets to take care of refrigerators, lighting, ice cream cabinets, cold tables, cleaning operations and food preparation machines.

In the kitchen, for example, you can make use of all possible space with ample outlets, because electric devices can be installed without reference to chimney or flue connections. Besides an all-electric kitchen can make cooking a pleasure.

Electrical gadgets in the kitchen save many steps, too, and cut down on "meal mileage."

Remember, the time to assure adequate wiring for cooking equipment is at the planning stage, before the plans are drawn and before the kitchen is built or remodeled.

It will save you time and expense in the long run.

Home Traffic Pattern Overlooked in Building

A feature too often overlooked by builders and home owners alike in the floor plan of a house is the dwelling's traffic pattern.

Equipment Runs $500 and Up

Hi-fi and Its High Cost Can Be Wasted on Some Listeners, Worth It to Others

By GARDNER SOULE

The answer to "What comes next after television?" may be "high-fidelity." For hi-fi—the new way to have lifelike, concert-hall music in your home—usually becomes popular in a town two to four years after TV arrives.

This may be because TV sound is FM, more realistic than the sound of AM radios or ordinary phonographs, and therefore creates a demand for still more realism.

It may be because people get interested in musical shows and symphonies they see on TV and come to want the best reproduction of music they can get. No one is quite sure. What is clear is the pattern: That hi-fi follows TV.

I thought, when I began to investigate hi-fi for households, that it was strictly for long-haired lovers of classical music.

It isn't. A lot of people buy it to listen to popular music. It's just as important to hear a little band at its best as a big symphony orchestra.

The more hi-fi people hear, as a rule, the more they want. Whether it's classical music, barber-shop ballads, or the speaking voice, hi-fi can reproduce sound almost as though the performers were in the room with you.

To get the answers about hi-fi, I talked with men in all phases of the booming hi-fi business. Here is what I learned:

What is high-fidelity? It is simply high-quality reproduction of sounds; all sounds, without distortion.

Where does the sound come from? Most often from phonograph records, but also from radio receivers or magnetic tape.

Then how is hi-fi different from other phonograph or radio music? Because ordinary phonographs and radios reproduce only some of the sounds you can hear. They omit high and low notes.

Ordinary radios and phonographs distort sounds they do reproduce. And they add noises you don't want—the rumble of a turntable, the scratch of a needle, or the hum of a radio, for example.

H-fi corrects all these? Yes, that's why you often think when listening to hi-fi, that you're right in the concert hall or in a front-row theater seat.

How much does all this cost? Although you can spend thousands of dollars on hi-fi, you can obtain equipment that gives you superbly high realism for about $500.

Sounds like a lot of money. What do I get for it? (1) A record-player, (2) an amplifier, (3) a loudspeaker, (4) an enclosure for the speaker, and (5) a tuner, or radio receiver. If you don't care to receive radio programs, omit the tuner.

You mean I buy these separately and I have to join them together myself? They have to be joined, but you do not have to do it. A radio, TV, or hi-fi man can join them for you. You can also buy complete hi-fi sets.

What are the advantages and disadvantages of buying a complete set? The big advantage, of course is that there's nothing you must do except pay for it. The big disadvantage is that reproduction may not be quite as good as a custom-built installation, planned especially for your home.

Is there much maintenance to hi-fi? Much less than there is for the average TV set. Main item is usually replacing tubes.

Is it more difficult to operate hi-fi equipment than a conventional radio or phonograph? No. The hi-fi system has only two controls not found in most conventional instruments. These are variable bass and treble controls, adjusted to receive the sound most pleasing to you.

Where can I get hi-fi? Your radio or TV store may have it; so may a music store. High fidelity specialists and sound studios are springing up in many cities. Or, order by mail.

How do I pick out a hi-fi set, or its parts? Listen to the sets or parts. Remember, you are the judge.

Beware of a salesman who tells you a set sounds good. You decide. A sound studio will have hi-fi equipment in different combinations, so you can hear one combination after another and compare them.

What do I listen for? See if the human voice over hi-fi sounds as though it's in the room with you. Are low organ notes or high piano notes clear, without raspiness? Can you hear the bass drum and the crash of the cymbals? Can you hear the separate instruments distinctly? Be sure you hear no noises, hums, distortion.

Any other tests? Yes, the manufacturer's good name is always a guide to reliability. Too, it is useful to study the specification sheets, if possible, to see what tonal range is guaranteed.

Even experts in the field disagree on what minimum range equipment should deliver to be called high fidelity. Some say from 40 to 12,000 cycles per second is enough. Others hold out for from 15 to 15,000 cps or even higher. The wider the range, of course, the higher the fidelity.

Rooms Develop Kids' Character

Pride of Possession, Tidiness, Individuality All Possible

Your child's bedroom actually can mold the character of that child, says designer-decorator Dora Brahms.

"Actually, character can be developed in the child's own room," says Mrs. Brahms, who today is decorating bedrooms for grandchildren of many of her first clients. "Without the child being aware of the fact, pride of possession, tidiness and even individuality can be instilled in the child," Mrs. Brahms points out.

Bedrooms for children must reflect today's changing standards rather than "the thinking of the parents' own youth," Mrs. Brahms says. Today's kindergarten classes encourage self-expression, she says, and the child's own background must mirror these present-day attitudes in individuality for youngsters.

"A child's earliest surroundings make a marked impression on him," she points out. "He must be able to identify himself with a setting that is without doubt his — not a room filled with cast-offs, or one that can be converted into a guest room."

Therefore, parents should study the child's tastes and tendencies closely to place him in surroundings which reflect the youngster—not themselves, she says.

Such backgrounds must neither be severe nor overly-frilled, she believes. And they must be selected for the child's growing development.

Mrs. Brahms feels that furniture must be originally "keyed to the needs of the infant, but should be so versatile, that simply with changes of color and accessories, the decor will keep pace and properly reflect the child's developing personality."

New Outdoor Furniture Features Levels in Legs

Ever feel disgruntled with life outdoors because the furniture you sat in didn't fit the uneven surfaces of nature's flooring.

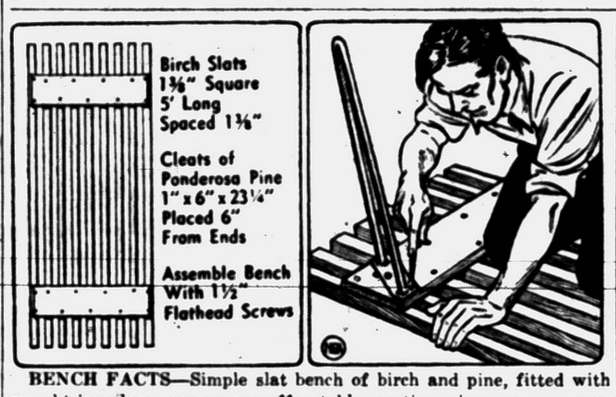

Today's out door furniture comes equipped with self-leveling tips to attain the happy medium of balance and afford happier outdoor leisure.

GRAY, WHITE AND YELLOW—An interesting exterior with three colors complimenting each other was chosen by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Freeman, 8090 Mario, Pontiac, for their new home. White clapboard paneling in the upper section of the house is joined with gray cedar shakes for the lower half of the house. For bright color note, the Freemans selected a gay yellow door with other minor trim in this shade. A car and a half garage is attached to the house with a white trellis giving it an illusion of a complete unit. Large window areas are features of this five room home.

BENCH FACTS—Simple slat bench of birch and pine, fitted with wroght-iron legs, serves as coffee table, seating piece or case support.

Slat Bench Good Example of Fine Piece at Low Cost

There's much to be said for modern furniture, if only that it is so technically simple you can build it yourself.

It might be made up of only 11 pieces of wood, and could be built for as little as $10, including all materials and finishes.

A slat bench is essentially a platform of square pieces of wood running parallel to each other for the length of the unit. The platform is supported by simple tubular-metal or black wrought-iron legs available at most department and hardware stores.

You might finish it by painting alternating slats different colors, or by lacquering or varnishing the whole works. Finished, you have a furniture piece that will serve as a coffee table, seating piece or case support.

For a birch-slat bench two feet wide by five feet long, you'll need the following materials:

Nine pieces of birch, 1⅛ inches square by five feet long; two pieces of 1x6 Ponderosa pine, 23¼ inches long; 22 1½-inch flathead wood screws; production and black waterproof sandpaper; wood sealer; varnish or lacquer, and four wrought-iron legs 14 inches high.

In constructing the bench, the slats are spaced 1⅛ inches apart (their own width), the 1x6 pine pieces are placed under the slats, at right angles to them, and six inches from each end. The unit is screwed together and legs are fastened to the pine cross pieces.

Start by marking the position of the first screw holes 11-16 of an inch from one end of each pine cross piece, and successive drill marks 2¾ inches apart. Then line up 1x6's and slats with carpenter's square, drill and countersink holes through undersides of cross braces into slats, and fit screws.

Secure the two outside slats first, using two screws at each end of slats, to keep the whole unit rigid.

Attach wrought-iron legs to undersides of the cross pieces, using one-inch screws. The completed bench can be sanded and finished as is, or disassembled and the pieces finished separately.

Use medium production sandpaper on a sanding block to rough-sand ends of slats and cross pieces. Then sand all wood surfaces with fine production sandpaper. Brush on a heavy coat of clear wood sealer.

Let stand overnight and sand thoroughly with very fine production sandpaper the next day. Sand until all bright spots are dulled. Dust and apply an even coat of varnish or lacquer. Allow varnish at least four days to dry.

Cover the surface with a thin coat of light oil, and finish sanding with extra-fine black waterproof sandpaper. Clean with cloths and a good furniture cleaner, and a lustrous finish of professional quality will greet your eyes.

NAREB to Look at Slum Picture

Conferees to Consider Elimination of Blighted Areas

Plans for neighborhood conservation and slum elimination will take a high place on the agenda of business to be taken up by the officials of the National Assn. of Real Estate Boards in their meeting in Chicago May 7-11.

This program is aimed at renewing whole urban areas. It seeks the support of business and local governments in simultaneous moves on several fronts to achieve wholesale results.

The need for furthering this objective will be considered by realtor leaders who gather in Chicago.

The directors also will receive reports on the new American Real Property Federation.

The all-day meeting of NAREB directors on May 11 will cap a series of 127 conferences of association committees during the preceding four days. The meeting will be held in the Drake and Knickerbocker Hotels.

Floors, Stairs Cause Accidents

Check by Homemaker on Things Underfoot Helps Protect Family

Statistics show that half of all home accidents annually are caused by falls. And falls are caused most often by faulty floors and stairs.

It's up to the homemaker to look her house over carefully for the obvious flaws underfoot which endanger the safety of the family, and then order remodeling and repairs. Here are some ideas to help her:

1. Either have floors which are good looking in themselves or cover major portions of them. Scatter rugs are accident-breeders.

2. The kitchen is one of the guiltiest rooms in the house from the standpoint of accident because of grease and water spillage. Falls from such sources are preventable by having the floor of easily cleaned material like tile from which spills may be wiped up in seconds.

3. Be sure all floors of the house are level. Losing one's balance is easy if the surface suddenly slopes.

4. The bathroom suffers most from water spillage. If the floor is of waterproof tile it may be wiped clear after every bath.

5. Floors of wood and substitute materials are prone to cracks, splintering and curled edges. Keep such floors in constant repair.

6. Housekeeping habits have a lot to do with falls on floors. Urge the children to play in a certain spot, preferably their own room, so that no toys clutter the main traffic lanes of the home. And be sure that cords leading to lamps and appliances are tucked under rugs or fastened to baseboards. Don't let them trail where they'll trip passersby.

Eggshell Enamel Popular

Because they have a slight sheen, semi-gloss and eggshell enamels are popular for walls and woodwork that are washed often. Usually they can be obtained in colors that match flat wall paint exactly, so it is possible to have walls painted with the flat coating, when desired, and matching woodwork in the coating with the sheen.

Summer-Type Furniture Provided for Children

The young set has been provided for in summer furniture styles. Small scaled picnic sets and wheelabouts give them the satisfaction of entertaining their friends. Their own furniture adds to the individual enjoyment of all.

CLARKSTON BRICK—Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sheldon of 6700 Princess Lane, Clarkston, built themselves a brick one-story home with three bedrooms, a living room, family den (doubles as guest room), kitchen and utility room with a bath and a half. The large, light living room has a dining area with walls painted a pale gray and ceiling in white. A formal manteled fireplace is also located in this room. The kitchen has natural birch doors with semi-circular bar arrangement covered in pastel formica. The walls of the kitchen are done in a pale pink. Bedroom wing includes two boy's rooms and a master bedroom adjacent to a coral tiled bath. The den has built-in bookcases and is paneled in California redwood. There is a separate furnace and pump room.

This Push Button Age

Device Closes Windows With First Touch of Rain

It's a little bit scary to think about, but the era of push-button living is fast approaching a point where the buttons push themselves.

If you don't believe it, you're due for a shock the first time you see a new device that closes windows at the first drop or rain — without any human help.

Just made available nationally, it works electrically. A small metal-plastic grid is the only part of the device in sight — placed inconspiciously on the window's exterior or on any external part of the building.

When a drop of water strikes the grid it closes an electric circuit and starts a small electric motor, which closes the windows.

When the weather clears and the grid dries, the circuit is broken and the windows automatically open.

All in all, the principle is simple, But it's guaranteed to jar the neighbors when they see it in operation at a time when you're absent from home.

The unit will operate any windows that are handcranked — casement, awning, jalousie-louvred and projected windows.

It sells for under $50, and is simply installed with a hand drill and a screw driver. Self-tapping screws are al lthe "extras" you need to buy.

Called "Weathermatic," the device has several accessory uses. Once the windows are electrically equipped, a remote-control switch can be applied to the system to open or close the windows accordding to roo teperatre.

Paints Still Need Air

When applying the new types of odorless paints, remember to have adequate ventilation. While the new paints are "easy-on-the-nose," they contain non-smellable ingredients that should be permitted to escape.

Builders Offer Styling Package

Homeowners Eliminate Need for Negotiating With Many Contractors

Homeowners who plan to modernize no longer need take the time or go to the trouble of dealing with five or six different contractors in order to get one job done. At least, not so far as the bathroom is concerned.

Many plumbing contractors are now offering a package deal on complete bathroom modernization.

Under the new plan, the plumbing contractor takes on the entire job of modernization and assumes responsibility for all of the carpentry, plumbing, electrical work, tile-setting, plastering and painting that may be required.

This relieves the homeowner of considerable detail work. It means that the job will be done faster and much more economically than it could be done if directed by the average individual not familiar with the types of work involved.

The plumbing contractor offering a package deal has had sufficient experience to be able to coordinate the work of the various trades scheduled to work on the project.

That is important since modern living depends to a large extent on bathroom facilities and it is essential, even in two-bath homes, that a modernization job be completed speedily.

Another advantage of the package deal is that it puts the responsibility for the entire job in the hands of one contractor. This is a protection that the average homeowner will appreciate having.

Check on Freezer Without Opening

You can now keep an accurate check on the temperature of your home freezer without having to open it. A new type thermometer hangs on the wall beside the freezer and is connected by a flexible metal capillary tube to a temperature-sensitive bulb which hangs inside the freezer.

The instrument is easily mounted on the wall by key-hole slots on the back of the case. It gives a clear view of the metal scale, which ranges from 40 degrees below zero to 70 degrees above. And for fast reading, it is divided at the zero mark into light and dark green shades.

Bricklaying Not So Hard If Reader Follows Rules

Most do-it-yourselfers are painters before ever picking up a brush, and become carpenters upon getting their hands on a hammer, a saw and a bag of nails. But bricklaying shakes their easy confidence.

Actually, the mechanics of bricklaying can be mastered in a short time. To perfect technique takes long practice, but you can do an acceptable job of bricklaying without going through all of the fancy motions.

The best advice for the would-be, do-it-at-home bricklayer is, go and watch an expert mason at work. You cannot learn technique by reading a book, or an article.

Next, try it yourself.

At your favorite building-supply yard you can buy premixed cement in bags. You may prefer this material, because it saves mixing time—all you need do is add the right amount of water to the mix—and because it saves buying several ingredients.

Then get the tools, including mixing board, mason's trowel, brick hammer, wide cold chisel, steel rule, spirit level and a white cotton line.

Before any actual bricklaying is done, establish a firm foundation. For short, decorative walls, simply dig a shallow trench and Tamp if down. Brick can be laid in the trench without the concrete footings necessary for larger walls, load-bearing walls, outdoor fireplaces, etc.

Let a fine spray from your garden hose fall on the bricks for an hour before starting the first course. Thoroughly wet, they won't draw too much water out of the cement mortar.

Now, in order to describe mechanics of bricklaying, let's take a brick wall as an example.

Take up the first few bricks and spread out a mortar bed for them. Tap bricks with the hammer handle into a level position in the bed. Finish the course, following the lines, and checking often with the spirit level.

If the wall is more than two feet high, it should be two bricks, or eight inches, thick. In this case, it is necessary to fill with mortar the joint between the two parallel tiers. Keep filling this gap as the work progresses.

Mix cement mortar in small quantities—no more than can be used in 30 minutes, for it stiffens rapidly.

After the first course is laid, begin building up brick at each end of the wall, working gradually toward the middle. For all bed joints, spread a thick layer of mortar, then run the point of the trowel through the mortar to make a furrow. Tap bricks into the mortar. With trowel, whisk away the excess mortar that oozes out of the joint. Spread mortar only two bricks at a time ahead of last brick laid.

The joints between bricks are filled as you go along. Put mortar on the end of each brick to be laid before setting it in place.

The last brick in a course is the closure brick. It must be buttered on both ends before setting.

Electric Blanket Always 'Comfy'

There are two ways to keep warm at night, no matter what the outside temperature.

The first involves keeping a large, well-stocked closet of blankets in your room, and someone willing to put them on the bed and yank them off again as temperatures change.

The second practical method is to purchase an electric sheet or blanket. Interlaced wth fine, insulated heating wires which serve as a heating element, and thermostatically controlled, your all-weather covering will keep you comfortable at all times.

MAKE DO—A saw cut in one end of a sawhorse can be used to keep your saw off the ground when not in use. The American Builder, trade publication, suggests that a wider slot in the other end will provide a holder for a square.

Slipcovers Now Made at Home

Custom Sewing Joins the Many Do-It-Yourself Home Projects

The combination of helpful hints from sewing experts plus new types of slipcover fabrics being introduced has extended "do-it-yourself" so that even slipcovers —of decorator quality—are being made at home, a survey reveals.

Fabric manufacturers are cooperating in the do-it-yourself trend by producing new easy-to care-for materials.

Typical of the new fabrics is one called Tuscany "P," produced in a wide range of light and dark solid colors, and many prints. This inexpensive fabric, a type of bark cloth, has been given a finish named "permel plus," which makes the cloth water-repellent, wrinkle and spot-resistant. Vat dyed and preshrunk, slipcovers made of this fabric will last through endless washings or dry-cleanings.

The most important step in made-at-home slipcovers is accurate pin-fitting. Careful fitting assures a professional looking job.

Welt seams are the most popular. Contrasting fabric are generally used for welting and body of the slipcover. Next in popularity as a finish for home-done slipcovers is the fringed seam—of purl cotton, wool yarns, silk and cotton floss, boucle yarn or novelty braids.

Slipcovers are easy to make if simple step-by-step procedure is followed. Steps include: Chair measurement; yardage estimates; making the muslin pattern; cutting the fabric; pin fitting; determining trimming for seam finish; making trimming; joining sections; applying slide fasteners to opening; covering cushions and pressing slipcovers.

To eliminate fatiguing backbending, sewing experts suggest placing the chair to be slipcovered on a card table.

First Glass Temperer Executed by Emperor

The art of tempering glass was discovered during the reign of the Roman Emperor Tiberius, but the inventor was put to death because the Emperor feared tempered glass would replace gold as the most precious metal and make his treasures worthless.

Cheerful Decor Will Take Blues Out of Washday

When you want more pleasant washdays, "Brighten the Corner Where Your Are.

This can be done by makin the surroundings gay and cheerful. Put some color on the walls, and check your appliances to make sure they are both efficient and attractive.

The new tubinette, a combination table and cabinet on wheels, hides the stationary tubs. When wheeled out, it can be used as a sorting table or for other tasks.

Some handymen, these days, are building cabinets to enclose their hot water heaters and painting them the color of the walls.

Fiberglas Scraps Will Clean Chrome

The tiny glass fibers, only a fraction of the thickness of a human hair, will not scratch chrome finish, but will whisk away spots, dirt, grime and rust.

RHEUMATISM MADE ME A REGULAR WEATHER VANE

"I became so crippled up before a storm that I could forcast the weather," says Mr. William Moran, Sr., 4021 Porter Street, Detroit.

"I've had rheumatism off and on for the past thirty years and could always tell when it was going to rain or storm, as rheumatism struck my back, shoulders and arms. It was especially painful in the fall and winter. The last two years I have been terribly stiff and sore and could hardly stand it. My hands got so swollen that I couldn't close them. I drive a big truck and have to load and unload it every day, so you can imagine how bad I felt. I missed a few days work, but often suffered so much I shouldn't have been working. When I came home nights, I was tired and stiff and all bushed out. Sometimes I went to work with so much liniment on me that I smelled like a walking drug store. I tried all kinds of vitamins; in fact everything that came along, without getting any relief. I kept seeing ads for O-JIB-WA BITTERS in the newspaper and thought I would try a bottle. The first four days that I used it, I seemed worse as the rheumatism moved all over my body and up under my ribs. It wasn't until I started on my second bottle that I really saw improvement. I told my doctor I was taking O-JIB-WA BITTERS and he asked to see it. After reading the ingredients from the label, he told me that if it was helping me, by all means continue to take it, as there wasn't anything in it that would hurt me. I continued using it, and I am happy to say that I am all better now. I'm full of life when I come home from work, and my wife says that there has really been a big change in me since I started using your good medicine. I don't know if O-JIB-WA BITTERS will help all who suffer like I did, but if they will stick to it, I believe they will get wonderful results. I sure recommend it highly, as by following the directions and giving O-JIB-WA BITTERS a fair trial, I received results that no other medicine ever gave me."

Parents' Efforts at Humor Often Embarrass Children

By LAURA Z. HOBSON

By International News Service

Some juvenile Emily Post ought to write a special book on etiquette just for parents titled "How to Embarrass Small Fry." It might surprise some folks who think their manners are perfect.

Most of the book's pointers would be directed at parents who thoughtlessly make their kids squirm far too often.

"What do you think happened to Jimmy yesterday?" says pop before gleefully telling how his small son got so excited pulling in his first fish that he fell smack out of the rowboat, with all his best friends watching.

What's wrong with parents like those two?

Apparently both of them feel no hold is barred when the victim is their own child. Nor do they always change their tactics as the child grows older.

"You wipe that lipstick right off," a mother orders her 13-year-old daughter, in the presence of the one boy the teenager wants to impress with her sophistication. The lipstick may come off, but the resentment against mother won't wipe away so quickly.

Wise parents know that a proper reticence and good timing are as important as proper training in bringing up children. But how often have you heard table manners taught when there are guests at the table?

I caused my younger son acute public embarrassment last June. I've never quite forgiven my lapse.

It was at his graduating day exercises. The speaker was Bert Lahr, the comedian.

At one of Lahr's milder cracks, I suddenly guffawed heartily — in the silent audience my voice rang out alone. I could see my son's small neck go crimson and rigid. I apologized to him all the way home.

In due time I received his forgiveness, but since that terrible day, I've never once found Bert Lahr amusing.

Grocery Orders Foul Up Railroad

PITTSBURG, Kan. (AP)—The Kansas City Southern Railroad's radio system finally is clear of the noises that have been bothering dispatchers and trainmen the last two weeks.

The system governs rail traffic between Pittsburg and Neosho, Mo., and mixed with train orders were sounds of telephones ringing, doors slamming, conversation and a female voice singing.

Radio experts traced the noises to a grocery in Joplin, Mo., where an intercommunication system or "squawk box" had fouled up. The squawk box was transmitting sounds from the store on the railroad's radio frequency.

The store got a new intercom system. And the engineers now don't have grocery orders mixed with train orders.

In 1870, the U. S. labor force was 14.9 per cent female and 85.2 per cent male compared to 27.5 per cent female and 72.5 per cent male in 1950.

Bob Considine Says:

Uninvited Friends Pose Problem After the Party

NEW YORK (INS)—Wouldn't it be nice to live in a town or neighborhood wherein you and your wife could have a few friends in without offending the friends you didn't have room for? Or even want for that particular little seance?

Maisie—(on phone next morning)—Hello, Daisy. I thought you were a good friend of Flossie.

Daisy—I am. We went to school together. I love her. Why?

Maisie—Oh . . . nothing. I was just wondering why you weren't at the big party she gave last night.

Daisy—We . . . ah . . . we had another date.

Maisie—(Doesn't believe her for an instant)—Really? Well, your tough luck. It was supposed to be from 6 to 8 but it lasted until 3:30. I thought I'd die when Julius LaRosa, in person, come in. And you've never seen anything more screaming in your life than when Ralph put on long gloves and gave an imitation of Hildegarde.

* * *

Flossie (at the PTA meeting)—Daisy, darling! I'm so happy to see you here. We've got to stick together on this free milk question . . . Why, what's the matter?

Daisy—How was the big party you gave from 6 to 8 the other night that lasted until 3:30 and everybody died when Julius LaRosa, in person, came in and you've never seen anything more screaming in your life than Ralph imitating Hildegarde?

Flossie—Oh, Darling, you and Steve wouldn't have liked that one. It was for one of Ralph's out-of-town buyers . . . just a Daisy—(Glacially)—You needn't explain . . .

The four blokes I know on very early morning TV — Garroway, and Charles Collingwood (never met J. F. Muggs)—are heroes of mine.

Other kids of my age swear by Mickey Mantle, record-breaking Yankee outfielder. (He threatens to break the American League record for striking out.) Me, I admire and collect autographed pictures of the aforementioned four because they prove five times a week they can get up in the morning, once a herculean feat for them.

Getting up early may sound simple to many in the audience. It isn't. At least, it isn't for these four.

They are men who had slipped into the clock-reversing or clock-ignoring life of news and of the entertainment world. Getting up with the regularity of a paper delivery boy, or altar boy (as was I, as an apple-cheeked lad when I drew the 6:30 mass out of a hat, as an assignment) must weigh heavily upon these men.

I haven't been lucky enough to see them in person since their dreadful adventure with money began, but they must be a sad lot. In my mind's eye I can see them strolling along Madison Avenur or Fifth in the blinding morning light of ten or ten thirty a.m., through work for the day, growing the equivalent of a five o'clock shadow, and perhaps looking around for a nice gay bar in which to have a martini before dinner. Nothing's open.

Dinner, I presume, is at 11 a.m., sharp, after which—if they're still the gay dogs I knew—they'll want to go out on the town. Elmer Rocco's place on 54th is pretty dull around 11:30 or 11:35, garbagemen report. So there's not much for the boys to do but hit the sack around the time they learned to have lunch, so they can get up just as everybody else goes to bed, to rehearse ad libs and other tedious chores expected of them at dawn or thereabouts.

If I didn't plan to utilize all of them as loan co-signers, I'd feel sorry for them.

Pet Dog Finds 8 Foxes to Play With Children

CHICAGO (UP) — When Theodore Rude's children asked him for a pet he brought them a terrier dog. The dog satisfied them for a while but then they began asking for another pet.

Rude was against it. Tuesday, Queenie, the terrier, took matters into her own hands. She found an abandoned nest with eight baby foxes and the children took the foxes home.

Detroit Driver Killed

DEARBORN (INS) — Joseph M. Perry, 29, of Detroit was killed last night when the auto he was driving hit a concrete viaduct on the Willow Run Expressway in Dearborn. Police said his car was traveling at the rate of 70 miles an hour at the time of impact.

JAYNE'S P-W tablets KILL PIN-WORMS

(You may have them and not know it)

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for over 100 years.

2 Groups Authorized to Meet at Center

Two new groups have been authorized to use the community center at Lakeside Homes federal housing project, according to Roy B. MacAfee, executive director.

They are a new Amvets group organizing in the Lakeside area and Loyal Temperance League of Pontiac.

The Pontiac Parks and Recreation Department carries on a year-round activity program at the center, MacAfee explained, but civic groups may be approved to use the building for meetings.

Groups previously approved include the Pontiac NAACP, Urban League, Southwest Civic Assn., Human Relations Council, VFW Post 3701, the Boy Scouts Council and the Neapolitan Club.

Windshields Hold Radioactive Traces

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—A scientist at Antioch College at nearby Yellow Springs said yesterday he found radioactive material in dirt samples taken from tops of cars whose windshields were mysteriously pockmarked.

The scientist, who asked not be be named, said the findings were "not unexpected." He said after every A or H-bomb test there may be measurable traces of fallout here or many other places.

"The fallout is measurable but not considered dangerous to humans," he explained.

No pockmarked windshield epidemic has been reported in Dayton but the public information office at nearby Wright-Patterson Air Force Base said 10 windshields on field staff cars were badly damaged by pockmarks.

Respiratory Ailment Kills 2-Headed Baby

WASHINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana's two-headed Hartley baby, which had survived an attack of pneumonia, died yesterday of a respiratory ailment. The baby was 4 months and 1 days old.

The fatal illness developed suddenly. With a temperature of 105 degrees the baby was rushed 13 miles from its home at Petersburg to the Daviess County Hospital, where it was born Dec. 12.

The hospital said both heads were blue when it was admitted. The weaker side died first, the other side 15 minutes later.

The baby, child of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hartley, had two heads, two sets of shoulders, four arms, three lungs, two hearts and two stomachs. Below the waist it had a single body.

Dryers Defy Weather

Makers of automatic tumbler dryers thought primarily of an appliance that would aid the homemaker in ignoring the weather, and were surprised to learn that many women put convenience ahead even of weather hazards. With an indoor dryer the washing can be done on any day, at any hour.

Mrs. W. H. Burlingame Pioneers in New Concept of Gardening as Occupational Therapy

(Editor's Note—This is the first in a series of articles explaining the many phases of volunteer work being done in hospitals and agencies throughout Oakland County.)

By JANET ODELL

Because one woman was looking ahead far-sightedly to her own future, a good many unusual and worthwhile things have happened.

Alice Wessels Burlingame (Mrs. William H.) of Birmingham found a new vocation; dozens of Women's National Farm and Garden Association members discovered a new way of giving service in the field where they are most accomplished; and, most important of all, many patients in mental hospitals, children in orthopedic hospitals, aged residents of the Oakland County Convalescent Home and isolated shut-ins have learned to look forward to tomorrow.

When Mrs. Burlingame moved to East Lansing some years ago, she decided to take advantage of the college courses available and prepare herself for some kind of career in her later years. Among the courses she took was one in greenhouse production in the Horticulture Department.

This course so fascinated her that it became her major interest. Following that, membership in the National Farm and Garden Club was not enough to provide an outlet for her new interest, and she became a lecturer upon the subject, "The Good Way of the Earth," sponsored by a Detroit store. But she wanted more than that.

The more she talked about and experimented with the field of horticulture, the more she realized its possibilities. It is an ideal occupation for older people, since each person can set his own tempo of living, and there is no competition.

Furthermore, there is an opportunity for such persons to become self-supporting or to supplement their pensions by selling some of the flowers or produce they raise.

Mrs. Burlingame is a vital person herself and takes a great deal of interest in her fellow men. In her earlier undergraduate days she had had some courses in occupational therapy.

Now the idea came to her: Why not combine this new interest in growing things with the older idea of occupational therapy and use it to help people who need a look into the future if they are to get well, or even to live happily at all?

Why not train community gardeners, such as the National Farm and Garden Club members, to serve?

She approached the administration of Michigan State College with her radical idea. Fired by her enthusiasm, the officials saw the possibilities of what Mrs. Burlingame was suggesting.

They offered to set up adult education courses at Michigan State for hospital personnel and interested laymen, provided Mrs. Burlingame would act as director of the workshop.

In August of 1952 the first workshop of five days' duration was offered. It was sponsored by the Department of Horticulture, in cooperation with the Department of Botany and Plant Pathology, Landscape Architecture and Psychology.

MRS. ODELL

Word-of-mouth advertising and information in national horticultural magazines brought between 20 and 30 students to this first course, half of them common gardeners and the rest occupational therapists.

Six months prior to this time Mrs. Burlingame—who was now living in Birmingham—had been putting her ideas into practice at the Pontiac State Hospital, with the blessing of the hospital personnel.

In the summer of 1953 a second five-day course was given, as well as a shorter course, with an even larger enrollment than at the original workshop.

Several interesting developments have followed.

All over the country individuals are hearing about this program of horticulture therapy, which is defined as the "application of a horticultural program as a therapeutic aid toward the goal of improving a mentally or physically ill patient's condition."

A number of attempts to do something of this nature had been made in veterans' hospitals in the past few years, with varying degrees of success.

But this is the first time that any regular training has been offered or that supervised actual testing of the program's work has been attempted. Michigan State College and Oakland County are leading the way.

Michigan State College has now set up a four-year course in horticultural therapy. At the present time, one student with an OT background is getting her master's degree in horticulture with the idea of going into this new work. Her thesis, to be read to the American Medical Association, will be a discussion of this new therapy.

The State Federation of Garden Clubs is providing a scholarship for one student in this new course at East Lansing and annually sponsors three workshops throughout the state to train and refresh workers.

Oakland County has been set up as the pilot county. Michigan State College will provide the academic and technical training, while actual work in the numerous hospitals of the county will give practical answers to the many questions that are bound to crop up.

Monthly workshops for all workers are held, at which time professional talks and practical demonstrations fill the two-hour sessions.

"Every American is a joiner," Mrs. Burlingame says. "If you can get him to join a garden club, you will add years to his life and interest to those years."

Not only patients in hospitals, but also individuals shut in at home can benefit from this program of horticulture therapy. Trained, superior community gardeners who like to grow things and to share their enthusiasm for the good earth, but who despise "pink teas," welcome this new program.

One of the best aspects of this program is that it gives opportunity for all to serve. If mental hospital work is not to their liking, individuals may work with children in orthopedic hospitals, with elderly citizens in institutions, or with that nice old lady down the street who can't get around much.

"When you're interested in plants, you're interested in tomorrow. Yesterday is bypassed and tomorrow becomes the all-important day," explains Mrs. Burlingame.

In the two years since Mrs. Burlingame started this program it has made slow but steady progress. She has had more requests to start new groups in different places than she can manage. But her aim at all times has been to proceed slowly and to get one group healthy in its functioning before another one is started.

As has been stated, the first institution to benefit was the Pontiac State Hospital. Under the direction of Mrs. C. R. Gatley, a group of Pontiac National Farm and Garden Association members and Mrs. William Hyland, representing the Birmingham National Farm and Garden group, work weekly in the occupational therapy workshop and in one of the wards.

County Convalescent Hospital out on Telegraph road enjoys the program through the efforts of St. James Episcopal Church of Birmingham. The national church organization has suggested that all members of the church become associated with senior citizens in some way.

The Women's Auxiliary took up this challenge by sending two students to the Michigan State College workshop and then by inaugurating the program at the convalescent home.

The Michigan Hospital for Crippled Children at Farmington has horticultural therapy. Just starting is a group at the Presbyterian Village (for old folks) and next on the list is the Northville Mental Hospital.

Interested individuals from the Arnold Arboretum in Boston and from Purdue University audited the course in East Lansing. Queries about the new therapy program come to Mrs. Burlingame constantly. She devotes full time to the work five days a week.

"It can be a 12-month program," Mrs. Burlingame states. ". . . the goal is to get the patient to transfer his interest from himself to plant material where he will have a 'tomorrow' outlook. His work with plants, especially outdoors, can give a physical activity under supervision.

"The core of our program encourages patients always to give away a part of whatever they design with cut flowers or grow, as this is therapy, creating a feeling of personal satisfaction and giving a 'peace of mind'."

Sample Careers Via Summer Jobs

By ANNE HEYWOOD

Helen R. was one of the many girls who have to work their way through college, and she handled it with more intelligence than any girl I know.

"When I was a sophomore in high school," she told me, "the family said that I would have to plan to work summers if I wanted to go to the university.

"At first I was heartbroken, because most of my friends wouldn't have to. But then I decided I might as well be sensible.

"I got a job that very summer, taking care of two small children at a little beach house. I had quite a lot of fun, even if it was hectic, and I saved a lot of money because I had almost no expenses.

"Then," she continued, "I arranged my schedule in junior year so I could take shorthand and typing, in addition to the necessary courses for the academic preparation.

"That following summer, even though I wasn't a really good stenographer, I did get a job where I used my stenography, improved it, and salted away a good sum of money.

"When I finished high school, my stenography was really pretty good, and I found that I could get a summer job at a really high salary.

"I still didn't know what I wanted to major in, so I decided to take temporary jobs all that summer — a week here and a week there — and take a look at a lot of different fields.

"A really good steno can get a lot of variety, taking vacation replacement jobs for secretaries who are away two weeks.

"Well," Helen concluded, "I worked in insurance, and banking, and cosmetics, and a food company, and an advertising agency, and then as temporary secretary to the promotion manager of a big department store.

"And that store job was wonderful. I knew then and there that I wanted to be in the promotion end of department store work.

"So, when I entered the university, I was much luckier than most of the freshmen. I knew what I wanted. I majored in merchandising and had a fine time.

"Now, a year after graduation, I have a good job in a modern department store. And just think, if I hadn't had to work my way through college, I never would have been so lucky!"

Summer jobs, through high school and college, can be far more than a tedious grind that you go through just for the money.

Many Bracelets Wrong for Some

For a few years now there has been quite a vogue for the wearing of several bracelets on one arm. And many have come to think that the popularity of this fad indicates that anyone can adopt it.

Actually, very few women can do so successfully. First of all, unless a woman is tall and has long arms, she's look lost in the metal adornment.

The woman of small stature should never succumb to the lure of his fad. And the tall girl should approach it with caution.

The only woman who can wear an armload of bracelets without looking as if she were in the midst of cleaning out her jewelry box is the very chic, the very dramatic, statuesque type.

This is the long-limbed girl who has a flair for looking stunning in a plain black sheath. The girl who can wear an unusual hairdo and look shart, not strange. The girl who looks terrific in slacks.

In other words, the girl who was born to be beautifully different.

Hints Given on the Use of Cement

It's Often Advisable to Spend More for Ready-Mixes

By HUBBARD COBB

It's just about impossible to keep a home in good repair without having to do some work that involves cement, so here are a few choice words on this particular subject.

Most of the cement used in this country is called Portland cement. This is not a trade name — it's just a type of cement.

Cement must be mixed with something before it can be used on a job. When you mix one part cement with three parts sand you get mortar, which is used for joining brick, stone and concrete block.

Water, of course, must be added to the mixture of cement and sand to form a workable plastic.

When you want concrete, which is what you use for repairing walks, drives, or for building pools, you add gravel to the mixture of cement and sand. The cement acts as a bonding agent and holds the mass of sand and gravel together.

When you need a small quantity of mortar or concrete it's possible to mix the stuff by hand, but you can also get it from hardware stores and lumber yards already mixed in bags. All you have to do here is to add the water.

It's a little more expensive than buying the sand and cement and doing the work yourself, but it's a lot easier on the back.

When you have a large project such as putting down a drive or a walk, you may find your best bet is to order transit mixed concrete. This is delivered to the site in a truck and when it arrives it's all mixed and ready to be used.

Here again, you are paying more for the convenience and the time saved over mixing by hand. But as is the case with the concrete and mortar that come in packages and bags, you are certain of getting good quality stuff, which is not always the case when the amateur does the mixing by hand.

Bulky Music Equipment Housed in Room Divider

By ELIZABETH HILLYER

Today's best trick in home planning is to find room for things there isn't room for.

Television sets, high fidelity sound equipment, vast collections of records, tape recorders, for example — it wasn't until homes grew too small for any kind of extras that we acquired all these and began fitting them in.

One side, finished with polished wood, faces the living room and the other faces away from it to set sight and sound apart and define an area that's the next best thing to a separate music room.

The room divider music wall must, of course, be designed and built individually for the equipment and for the room. This one was planned for RCA equipment in a model home.

Applesauce Cake Keeps Very Well

Mrs. Robert Smith Contributes Recipe for Dessert

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

We know a man who says any cake is his favorite cake so long as it's an applesauce cake. Perhaps his wife will see this recipe contributed by Mrs. Robert Smith and make her husband his very favorite cake.

Mrs. Smith confines her activities to taking care of her home and three children and to attending meetings of the Fashionette Club. She does, however, expect to garden this summer.

APPLESAUCE CAKE
By Mrs. Robert Smith

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 beaten egg
1¾ cup flour
¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
1 cup hot applesauce

Cream shortening and sugar; add beaten egg. Sift dry ingredients together and add to creamed mixture. Add hot applesauce.

Tatting Is Easy to Wash, Iron

Tatting may be washed easily by placing it on a flat hard surface and scrubbing it gently with a soapy brush. Rinse well, blot in a towel, ease to shape, and spread to dry.

Cutwork or pieces with crochet or tatting inserts deserve careful handling on the ironing board. Never let the point of the iron dig into the delicate threads.

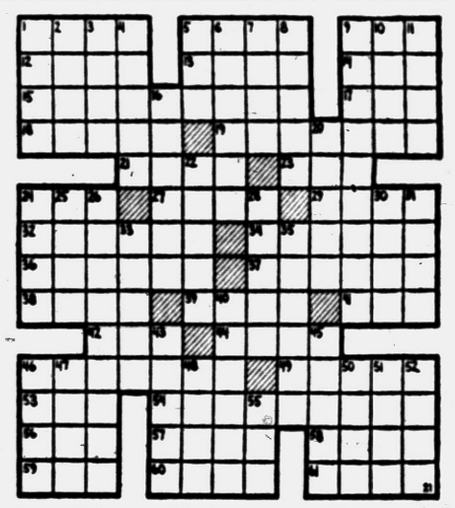

See that the broad base of the iron extends across the "fancy work" so there's no strain involved, and use a protective press cloth or even a clean sheet of tissue under the iron.

For Narrow Feet

The girl whose feet are long and narrow will look best in pumps that have a rounded toe and either a V-shaped or square throat. Decoration helps to shorten the foot's appearance.

To Compare Sculpture and Jewelry

Exhibit Is Opening Monday in de Salle Little Gallery

The long arm of influence has reached from the West Coast and the finger is pointed to Peggy de Salle's Little Gallery on East Maple avenue, Birmingham.

Modern sculpture's influence on the art of jewelry design will be shown in an exhibition called "Sculptured Jewelry" from Monday through May 29 at the gallery.

Distance seems to be no inhibitor to similarity. Six jewelry craftsmen from California will display their creations beside the work of Bloomfield Hills sculptors. The show was planned to tell the story of how artist influences artist regardless of the method of expression.

Traveling from the West Coast with unique jewelry creations will be Irena Bryner, Milton Cavagnaro, Arnold Frew, Charles Piper and Everett MacDonald. Alicia Mackie of Bloomfield Hills will show her work with these visitors.

Making up the other side of the show will be Cranbrook sculptors Morris Brose, Richard Gale, Malcolm Moran and Lyman Kipp.

Also shown will be a portfolio of photographs of contemporary art from the Museum of Modern Art. The portfolio shows the relationship of internationally known sculpture to the jewelry to be shown.

Gold, silver, ebony and teakwood, bone and ceramics are included in the media of the jewelry makers. The creations to be shown are unique in their three-dimensional quality.

Stones are not merely faceted, says Mrs. de Salle. They are cut in such a way to make them angular and the many different forms are reported to be entirely new.

All of the jewelry will be shown in this area exclusively in the Little Gallery.

Reach Entire Home With Cleaner Aids

Some homemakers believe they have no need for a vacuum cleaner if they have only one or two rugs or carpets. However, dust and dirt come into the home every day to settle on furniture, upholstered pieces, window and door frames, and on hard surface floors, as well.

The vacuum cleaner has special attachments suited to the cleaning of everything inside the house. By checking the instruction book which came with your cleaner you may be surprised to find that there is an easier and better way to keep your home clean than you have ever thought about.

Try It

Play the 'Alphabet Game'

Here is a game sent in by Timothy Gericke of Fort Atkinson, Wis. He is 14 and his hobby is raising pets.

When you write to me with your Try It idea, tell me something about yourself, for the other Try-Iteers like to know who you are and what you are interested in. An original Try It drawing goes to Timothy so that he will have it to hang in his room.

Have you sent in your idea yet? Just mail it to your paper and they will send it to me. I will write to you then.

This game is fun and can be played by groups of any age. Perhaps you will want to put this in your Try It game collection. This is the kind of game too that you can use for family gatherings on Easter, Christmas and other holidays.

This can be called the "Alphabet Game," for the alphabet is used for it. The first person starts by naming a place, something he did or something that happened, starting with the letter A.

The next person repeats this, but adds his bit using the letter B. The third person repeats the first two things, adding his letter C article.

This gets quite hard, and the people who cannot think of anything starting with their letter drop out of the game. They are out, too, if they leave one article out. Try It!

She Forgets Guests Until They Arrive

Then Skimpy Meal Has to Be Shared With Company

By EMILY POST

A most embarrassing situation is described in the following letter: "What can one do when friends arrive for dinner and you have forgotten that you invited them? This happened to me the other evening."

"My husband and I were just getting ready to have our dinner when the doorbell rang and there stood this couple whom I had invited to dine with us, and whom I had completely forgotten about until that moment.

"I said nothing to them and, while they were talking to my husband in the living room, I put two extra places at the table and shared our dinner with them . . . but it was very meager for four people.

"I am sure they must have gone away thinking me a very stingy hostess, but I was too embarrassed to tell them I had forgotten. What's done is done, but nevertheless I would like to know just what is the correct way to handle a situation of this kind."

Answer: I think you handled it the only way you could, and let us hope that you and your husband ate sparingly so that there was enough food for your guests.

Because this sort of thing can happen to any of us one time or another, it is a good idea to keep on hand a supply of canned foods that can provide a completely satisfying meal — from soup through dessert — should it ever be necessary.

Dear Mrs. Post: (1) Will you please tell me from which side guests are correctly served? (2) I also would like to know where salted nuts are put when individual nut cups are not provided, but nutmeats are passed around the table.

Answer: (1) Dishes are always presented at the left of each person at the table. (2) They are put at the left side of your plate on the table—cloth or no cloth.

Dear Mrs. Post: My son is going to be married soon and has expressed a wish to have his Dad as best man in preference to a close friend. Dad of course is flattered, but wonders if this would be correct.

Answer: It is accepted as correct, and it is not looked upon as an unusual occurrence.

Triangle Pits Girl Against Her Cousin

By ELIZABETH WOODWARD

"Dear Miss Woodward: Several weeks ago I spent the weekend with my cousin who's my age, 14, and I met her friends, especially her boy friend, Bill.

"Not realizing that Bill had taken a liking to me, I spent last weekend there. It seems I had a blind date with Bill's brother, but things got switched around a bit, and my cousin ended up with the brother.

"Bill told me that he likes me a lot and even asked me to his school dance in June. At first I thought he was giving me a line, but since then he has called me almost every night.

"I'm pretty sure he's serious. I like him a lot and would be heartbroken if I had to lose him.

"But I'm very close to my cousin and I'd never forgive myself if I caused any conflict between us. Bill refused to see my point, so what am I to do?"

One mixed-up date and a few phone calls have you dead sure Bill wants to be your boy friend?

But how is he behaving toward your cousin these days? Is he still taking her out all the time, popping over to her house, calling her on the phone?

And how is she feeling about Bill herself? She probably doesn't know about this calling you, telling you how much he likes you and all that. Does she suspect that something has happened to change his attitude toward her? Or has nothing changed that she can see? I mean, does she still consider Bill hers?

You might try to find out. Say nothing that will disturb her, or raise her doubts and suspicions. Just ask her calmly what she's been doing lately. You know full well that if she's had any dates they've been with Bill.

If she's had none, she'll probably tell you. If she's quarreled with Bill, she'll probably admit it. If all is serene, she'll tell you that, too.

Then you'll realize that it is a bit too soon to take Bill seriously yourself. It's too soon to consider her applecart upset. It's too soon to think of Bill as a possible boy friend for yourself.

That will help you forget his invitation to the dance. You're the one who will be hurt if you count on it — and he winds up taking your cousin. You're the one who will be hurt if you get to feeling possessive about a boy who still belongs to someone else.

So why not just wait until summer. By that time the score will be easier to add. Bill will have done more to convince you he wants to go with you instead of your cousin.

He'll have done definite things to break off with her. He'll have made the issue clear between them. And you won't be in the middle of the picture to hurt your cousin. You won't have done anything to break them up.

Then if you and Bill get together, that will be a brand new chapter.

Mom Ought to Guide Her to the Truth

When Confidence Is Restored, She'll Stop Suffering

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

At a recent inter-high school dance, Marge met a boy named Ed. He brought her home, kissed her and took her phone number. He did not call it. Then Marge met him again. This time, he did call her.

For two weeks he ardently dated an increasingly radiant and starry-eyed Marge. Then, without explanation he disappeared into silence once more.

As a result, Marge has lost weight and sleep. She jumps nervously whenever the telephone rings. She is preoccupied and easily irritated.

If her mother remonstrates, Marge bursts into reproachful tears and says, "You don't understand anything. I'm crazy about Ed. I love him, mother."

Her parent writes, "Is there anything I can do to allay this lovelorn suffering?"

Hate, not love makes us suffer. If Marge's mother can accept this as moral truth, she may be able to ease Marge's suffering.

But she must go gently. For her child has invested much emotional energy in the belief that she "loves" Ed. She may not be quite ready to look at the fears she hides from herself by calling her resentment of Ed "love."

We human beings often tell ourselves we "love" someone we resent because we depend on him. If we can believe that we "love" the person, we can avoid acknowledging our fear that without him we are helpless.

A child, for example, will believe that he "loves" a parent who mistreats him because he fears the parent would desert him if he knew how the child really felt. The intolerable fear that he will be deserted forces him to imagine that his hate is love.

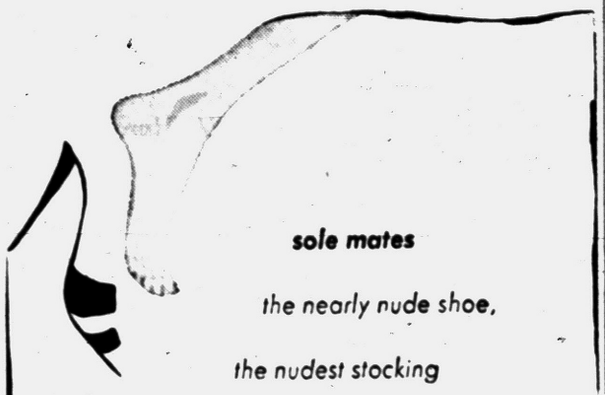

In the same way, a young girl, fearful that she is less attractive than her more popular friends, may believe that she loves a boy whom she depends on to relieve her of this fear. And when he mistreats her, she insists that her true resentment is love for him.

So what Marge needs is not sympathy with the suffering imposed by unadmitted hate of Ed, but loving and reasonable reassurance of her confidence.

If this reassurance is successful, Marge will begin to lose the tense, excited yearnings we feel for people whom we think can solve our problems for us. She will recover from the hate we feel for those same people when they disappoint us.

The magic will go out of Ed so that he is no longer seen through the glorifying lens of Marge's sense of helplessness, but is seen as what he is—an indecisive boy.

Hate is almost inevitable when we entertain magical hopes of other people who can't fulfill our expectations.

Plan Dissolution of D&C Firm

Fruehauf Group Which Took Control Informs Stockholders

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Co. may be purposely steered toward dissolution by a new group of directors who seized the company helm from Detroit financier George J. Kolowich.

Alfons Landa, Washington attorney and member of a group which won control of the company yesterday, said he had informed stockholders of the intent to dissolve D. & C. and return its estimated $7,000,000 in assets to them. Possible liquidation of the company was proposed by Landa when stockholders were asked to vote against continued Kolowich control.

A final decision on dissolving the company, however, would be up to stockholders themselves.

Landa is a member of a group headed by Roy Fruehauf, president of the Fruehauf Trailer Co., which defeated Kolowich in the annual election of the D. & C. board of directors. He also is one of three members the Fruehauf group succeeded in getting elected to the five-man board.

The other two successful Fruehauf choices for the board were Myer S. Fine, head of Associated Theaters of Cleveland, and Eugene H. Freedheim, director of the De Vorn Manufacturing Corp. of Cleveland.

Kolowich and John A. Hamilton both were re-elected.

Ups School Budget

BATTLE CREEK (AP) — Battle Creek schools will send to the county tax allocation board the biggest budget in school history — a 1954-55 tentative operating budget of $3,426,898. The new budget tops the current one by over $400,000.

But when you press the pedal of a 1954 Buick with Twin-Turbine Dynaflow,* joy reigns—and so do you.

You feel the joyous thrill of commanding instant response, the solid "take hold," the firm authority of your acceleration.

You feel a joyous exhilaration at the utter smoothness of the forward carry—a completely infinite smoothness that is there every inch of the way.

And you feel a deep and abiding joy at the simplicity of it all, the ease with which you drive, the blessed restfulness of travel with a truly automatic transmission working its wonders.

As we said, you'll find this hard to believe—until you try it yourself.

Until you try TT Dynaflow with the stepped-up V8 horsepowers of the 1954 Buicks. Until you try it with the new buoyancy and the new handling sureness of the improved Million Dollar Ride. Until you try it with the new visibility, the new luxury, the new "look of tomorrow" styling that are part and parcel of every 1954 Buick.

So, we want you to be our guest at the wheel of a 1954 Buick with Twin-Turbine Dynaflow this week.

During April, 1,500,000 people will guest-drive the 1954 Buicks, and join the Thrill Of The Month Club by doing so. We cordially invite you to join them, for a real thrill. Call us today.

Jaycees Plan Charter Night

New Unit in Waterford Schedules Program for May 3

WATERFORD TOWNSHIP — Final plans were drawn up Monday night by the newly organized Waterford Township Junior Chamber of Commerce for its charter night to be held May 3.

Date for the new unit to receive its charter was announced by Charles Pappas, newly elected president of the group, and Frank Oosterhof of Pontiac, vice president of the Michigan Jaycees.

Expected to attend the charter night ceremonies are all Jaycees and their wives of Waterford Township, a group of Pontiac Jaycees and their wives and several presidents of other units throughout the state.

Dignitaries of Waterford Township will be on hand to welcome the new Jaycees as well as several Michigan officials. Keynote speaker will be Herb Auer, president of Michigan Jaycees.

The Pontiac Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsor of the new unit. The public is invited to attend the charter night banquet to be held May 3 in the CAI Building at 7 p. m.

At its meeting Monday night the Waterford Township group made tentative plans for a teen-age rodeo in the township on May 16. It was also voted unanimously for the group to support a hospital for the area.

Showdown Seen on Farm Props

Senators Set for Fight as Wool Support Bill Spurs Policy Issue

The issue was joined on the administration's wool support bill. Farm bloc senators hoped to use the measure as a vehicle for extending present rigid high supports on the basic crops for two more years.

If the move succeeds, it would be a sharp rebuff for Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson who has gone down the line for a flexible system of price props recommended by President Eisenhower.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La) ranking Democrat on the Senate Agricultural Committee, is sponsor of the key proposed amendment. It would extend present 90 per cent of parity support on wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco, peanuts and rice. This program is scheduled to expire in December.

The administration wants the present law to die and to substitute a flexible price plan in its place. This plan would permit the agriculture secretary to adjust supports between 75 and 90 per cent of parity in line with supply and demand.

The high price support extension has powerful bi-partisan support from farm state senators. But Chairman George D. Aiken (R-Vt) of the Senate Agriculture Committee predicted the proposed "crippling" amendments would be defeated.

Home Builders Refute Charges

Group Denies Piling Up Excessive Profits, Rents Through FHA Abuses

WASHINGTON (UP)—The National Assn. of Home Builders today disputed charges that the government is millions of dollars out of pocket or that too high rents have resulted from alleged widespread abuses under the government's loan-insurance program.

The association's views were expressed by its president, R. G. Hughes, as the Senate Banking Committee turned to hear what industry spokesmen have to say about allegations that some apartment builders raked in huge and "unconscionable" profits by obtaining oversized government-backed loans either through the dishonesty or inefficiency of Federal Housing Administration (FHA) officials.

Yesterday, Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews of the Internal Revenue Service told the Senate-House Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures that builders of 1,149 apartment projects under a now-defunct "middle income" housing program piled up 65 million dollars in excessive profits by the inflated loan guarantee device.

Andrews said his agents so far have found no evidence of tax fraud.

The Senate-House group is running a simultaneous probe of the housing scandals and its chairman, Sen. Byrd (D-Va), said yesterday that overvaluation of apartment housing projects had pushed rents in them up to 25 per cent higher than they would otherwise have been. Byrd termed these thousands of renters "the first losers."

Urges Church to Help Fight Anti-Intellectualism

DETROIT (UP) — The Methodist Church should "throw its influence against any movement that seeks to arouse distrust of scholars or education leaders," the Rev. John O. Gross said today.

Dr. Gross, of Nashville, Tenn., is executive secretary of the Division of Educational Institutions of the Methodist Church's Board of Education. He expressed the view in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the board in Detroit.

"The period through which we are now passing is not an easy one for education," he said. "The right of free inquiry and free discussion is being challenged in many places."

Businesses Must Provide Parking

Waterford Ordinance Now Requires Space for Shoppers' Cars

WATERFORD TOWNSHIP—New businesses in Waterford Township must provide sufficient parking space for shoppers under an amendment to the township zoning ordinance adopted recently by the Township Board.

The ordinance now requires that businesses provide at least three square feet of parking space for each square foot of floor space in their respective buildings.

The amendment also provides that parking spaces be easily accessible. With the amendment the Township Board hopes to avoid a future parking problem such as that currently faced in numerous metropolitan areas, according to Lloyd Anderson, township supervisor.

In another amendment adopted, business frontage standards were changed. All future buildings along state or federal highways must be set back at least 50 feet from the front property line or at least 100 feet from the center of the highway.

In other commercial districts, buildings must be set back 35 feet from the property line provided that they need not be set back farther than existing buildings in the block.

Police Nab 2nd Breakin Suspect

Ralph Strahan, 29, of Auburn Heights Held for Investigation

A second suspect in a wave of breakins here was arrested early this morning shortly after a burglary at the Eagles Lodge at 289 W. Montcalm St., according to Pontiac Police.

Ralph Strahan, 29, of 3348 First St., Auburn Heights, was picked up at about 5:40 a.m. in the Baldwin-Oakland Ave., area by Patrolmen Harry Dubey Jr. and William Bailey. Two bottles of liquor found in his possession were later identified by Eagles Lodge officials.

Police also found several bottles of beer and about $7 in change in a bag Strahan was carrying. In his pockets were several burglar tools, police said. He is being held for investigation.

Another suspect, Franklin D. Lester, 18, of Pontiac, an AWOL Marine, was arrested Monday night trying to break into a telephone coin box. He and two juveniles arrested with him admitted five local burglaries, police said.

Two other breakins were reported last night, bringing the April total to 49.

Thieves, who broke in a rear window of a grocery store at 402 Central Ave., took three cases of coffee valued at $45, 40 cartons of cigarettes valued at $80, eight boxes of candy and an undetermined amount of wine.

Also entered was the First Methodist Church office at 14 Judson St. The minister's office was ransacked but nothing was determined missing. Entry was gained through an unlocked side window.

Ex-UM Coed Says She Spied for FBI

By International News Service

A 19-year-old former co-ed at the University of Michigan says she is sorry she spied on fellow students at the Ann Arbor campus. The student publication, the Michigan Daily, disclosed the story of Daphne Price yesterday and how she worked for the FBI beginning last December.

Meanwhile, Representative Kit Clardy of the House Un-American Activities Subcommittee says he never heard of Daphne Price. Clardy, recuperating at his East Lansing home from an illness, said he thought the spy story might be a stunt by a publicity seeker.

Explosion Baffles Royal Oak Police

Royal Oak Police today were unable to explain an explosion occurring between two autos at Woodward Ave. and 14-Mile Rd. last night when a New York passenger in one of the cars suffered powder burns on the face.

Louis Tullianello, 24, of the Bronx, riding with two companions, told Pontiac General Hospital authorities he was hurt when a gun fired at him by the driver of another auto. He was treated and released.

Tullianello, according to Patrolmen Max H. McGraw and Newton E. Witsman, said both autos were slowing down for a traffic light when the blast occurred. A man driving a black sedan, described as wearing a cowboy hat, sped away after the shot.

Score Music Scores High in Film Hits

By BOB THOMAS

This old saw can now be relegated to the file of outdated cliches, along with "What this country needs is a good 5-cent cigar." For years, people in Hollywood have been saying that a movie's score should be unnoticed to be effective.

"I agree with William Wyler, who has told me that the music can amount to one-third of the effectiveness of a movie," he remarked. "Consciously or unconsciously, the movie fan is aware of the music in a picture, and the emotional experience is heightened by it. I have seen pictures that could have been much more successful with more music.

"On the other hand, there are scenes with are better without scoring. I can recall in 'Smoky' there was a shot of the horse rearing and making a great deal of noise. I pleaded with the producer, Robert Bassler, that I didn't need music. But he insisted and so I wrote the loudest piece of music I could. It was so loud and keeping with the action that it wasn't noticed! That was the perfect tribute."

* * *

Raksin has just finished the score for the Hecht-Lancaster film, "Apache," and he promises it will be as sexy as any heard in films. How does he do it? With a medieval instrument called the recorder.

"It's actually obsolete," said the composer, "but it's enjoying a comeback now. I play it myself and I attend meetings of the Recorder Club every three months; sometimes 70 people show up.

"I needed some kind of instrument for a love scene in the woods with Burt Lancaster and Jean Peters. The recorder was perfect. It has a very sexy sound with an outdoorsy quality. It is also the closest thing to the Indian stone flute, so it fits right into the story, which concerns an unregenerate Indian."

Tokyo Students Answer Poll on War Attitude

About half were boys and most said they would fight. Four girls said they would join the war effort, 10 said they would kill themselves and the rest said if war came they would like to get out of Japan.

NO. 1 IN TOKYO—Kinuko Ito, Miss Japan of 1953 as well as Tokyo's number-one fashion model, will soon make her movie debut. She's due for a role in the movie titled "My All."

Scout Falls Over Dam; Rescued an Hour Later

AUBURN, Maine (AP)—Gary Gorten, a 14-year-old Boy Scout, tumbled from a 40-foot mill dam into rain-swollen Little Androscoggin River. Swept downstream, he clung to a clump of trees for more than an hour before being rescued.

A fireman and policeman failed in efforts to reach him. Then Scoutmaster Bernard Helwig Jr. and another fireman, Thomas Giberti, crawled out on a ladder and threw a line.

Hauled to shore, the boy was treated for shock and bruises at Lewiston Hospital.

No Hope Seen for Korean Unification at Geneva Talk

By CHARLES McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

"Ten-Dollar Pyun" is on his way to Geneva to demand that the Western Allies hold out for the complete unification of Korea and go to war again, if necessary, to attain it.

From the start of the Far Eastern Conference next Monday, South Korean Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai will be eyeing the Western delegates as well as the Communists with suspicion.

Pyun and his chief, President Syngman Rhee, want the Allies to insist that the Chinese Communists leave North Korea and that the two halves of the country be unified with the South Korean government in control.

Pyun and Rhee believe the Geneve Conference will end in failure insofar as a Korean settlement is concerned.

They are sure the Communists will not agree to a real peace.

Their chief fear is that the United States, Great Britain and France, eager to get peace in Indochina as well as Korea, will agree to a compromise that might leave their country divided for years.

Pyun, like Rhee, is an all-or-nothing man. He hates Communists with a fierce personal, as well as political, hatred. He never will be content until communism has been stamped out in North Korea.

Pyun has a reputation for financial honesty and austerity of living in a part of the world where the pursuit of the fast dollar is a favorite sport of politicians.

His nickname is "Ten-Dollar Pyun" stems from his reputation. He once went to the Philippines to represent the government at an official ceremony. On his return he handed back all but $10 of the expense money advanced to him.

Pyun is barely five feet tall, and wiry. He sports an oversized black mustache. He is 62.

Born in Korea and educated there and in China, Pyun was a teacher for years. He was professor of English language and literature at the University of Korea before he became foreign minister in 1951.

When his son died we were sure he would miss school at least on the day of the funeral," one of his former students recalled. "But he arrived, only a little late, furiously pedalling his bicycle.

" 'I have lost one son but I have many more in you students,' " He said."

Pyun also is popular with foreign correspondence. They can reach him not only at his office, but out of it. They telephone him at night and even drop in for a chat at his modest home.

Most asteroids have a period of revolution between 3½ and 6 years.

Urges Health Routine to Beat Nervous Tension

CHICAGO (AP) — Today's living makes tension unavoidable, but you can learn to live with it, says Dr. Joseph L. Fetterman.

Reporting in Science Digest, Dr. Fetterman says the person who follows a health routine of work, exercise, rest and nutritious food is more apt to remain composed in times of stress.

Duffy Holds Breath When Bolden Is Hit

Loss of Top Ground Gainer and Best Scorer Could Ruin MSC

By ROBERT E. VOGES

EAST LANSING (AP)—It's easy to understand why Duffy Daugherty, Michigan State football boss, nearly dropped to the ground too when he saw Leroy Bolden go down in a scrimmage session last Saturday.

Bolden just had the wind knocked out of him when two tacklers hit him during the slam-bang workout. But for a minute or two it looked as if he was really hurt.

Bolden is the only proven backfield scoring star Daugherty has returning this season.

It's yardage and touchdowns that pay off in football games and last season the little giant from Flint reeled off 691 yards and was the leading scorer with eight touchdowns.

Daugherty is convinced that Bolden has his greatest year coming up.

"He should be rated as the number one All-America prospect in the country," Daugherty said.

Billy Wells, Evan Slonac and Jimmy Ellis were leading scorers behind Bolden with six touchdowns each. All have played their last games for Michigan State.

Of the 212 points scored during the regular season, 116 were made by seniors gone with graduation.

Take away Bolden's 48 points and you'd just have 46 points — seven touchdowns and a pair of extra points.

Which accounts for the fact that the coaches are concerned about keeping Leroy healthy. They're also concerned about building up a scoring punch among the replacements for the graduates from the "pony" backfield.

Errard King Out of Derby

Quarter Crack Puts Gavegnano Horse on Sidelines

NEW YORK (AP)—Errard King, a fleet sprinter who was rated an 8-1 choice in the Kentucky Derby, today joined a half-dozen other 3-year-olds whose fond hopes of winning the run for the roses have been shattered by injuries.

* * *

Joe Gavegnano's colt suffered a serious quarter crack while working out at Jamaica—the same sort of injury that sidelined Equipoise on the eve of the 1931 derby. A quarter-crack is a split on the wall of the hoof, something like a broken finger nail. The horse must rest until it grows back.

"A groom discovered it Monday and I came up from Bowie to check," said trainer Tom Barry. "He'll probably be out about six weeks, which means that he won't go in either the Preakness or the Belmont stakes.

The bay son of Errard-Derby Dover thus takes his place on the sidelines and leaves Determine, Correlation and Fisherman the undisputed favorites in the latest call-over. Determine is 2-1 and Correlation and Fisherman 3-1.

'M' Trounces Tartars

DETROIT (UP) — Wayne University's baseball team met its 4th straight defeat Tuesday in a game with the University of Michigan.

The Michigan team trounced the Tartars, 11-1. Three Wayne pitchers gave up 11 bases on balls.

Wet grounds forced the cancellation of four games Tuesday, jamming up the already crowded spring schedule.

Clarkston at Milford and Redford Union at Southfield will try again this afternoon, while Oxford will go to Rochester Thursday. Pontiac's game at Flint Northern also was postponed.

In the lone game played, Keego Harbor collected only three hits, but bunched them all in the 5th inning to blank Holly, 2-0, in a Wayne-Oakland League contest. Lester O'Shaughnessy limited Holly to three hits in posting the shutout.

Singles by Bob Hobson and Johnny Wassell, followed by a balk and another single by the Keego pitcher accounted for the runs. Dave Huber was the loser despite his 3-hit hurling.

Keego was a loser in track, however, dropping a 58-51 verdict to Redford Union on the final event. Dennis Singleton's 11 points led the Presidents. He won the 220. Jack Borah, Gary Rogers and Walter Goetz also were Keego winners.

Cranbrook took eight firsts in downing Troy's thinclads, 63½ to 45½. Wells won the broad jump and low hurdles for the Cranes, while Fred Burnard won both dashes for Troy.

On the links, Shrine outshot Waterford, 321-360, as Lloyd Syron booked a one-over-par 75 on his father's Pontiac Country Club course in Tuesday morning's rain. Jack Reynolds had an 84 for Waterford.

Mt. Clemens defeated Berkley, 430-452, despite Ray Martin's 79 for Berkley.

Ted's Injury Mending Fast

BOSTON (AP)—Ted Williams, now ahead of schedule as his broken collarbone continues its rapid healing, starts regular batting practice tomorrow after finding he can belt the ball out of the park.

* * *

The Boston Red Sox slugger started hitting the ball a little yesterday as part of a 90 minute workout in the sun at Fenway Park and before he was through he had deposited a pitch some 385 feet into the rightfield bullpen.

Afterwards Williams said "I wasn't swinging too hard and I didn't feel any pain."

The steel pin in William's shoulder is not supposed to be removed until about May 3 and Ted says he's leaving the decision up to Dr. Russell Sullivan, who performed the operation.

* * *

But the fact remained Ted surprised even Manager Lou Boudreau, Club Owner Tom Yawkey and some of his teammates with several long drives despite his obvious handicap.

Joe in Milk Business

CHICAGO, April 21 (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Joe Louis has organized the Joe Louis Milk Co. on Chicago's South Side.

Incorporation papers filed with the Cook County recorder listed Jesse and Helen Thornton and Mayor Thornton, of Chicago, and Dr. J. A. Thornton of Ecorse, Mich., as stockholders with Louis.

The company expects to gross $150,000 in the current year, the articles said.

Tom Spencer 'A' Cage Loop's Most Valuable

Tom Spencer, leading scorer in the Pontiac Parks & Recreation Department's Class A Basketball League this past season, has been named the loop's most valuable player.

Spencer, 6-foot 194-pound forward on the Chuck's Shack team, was presented the Pontiac Press award Tuesday.

A former Pontiac High football and basketball player, Spencer played four years of football and three years of basketball with the 504th Regimental team while serving with the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

He played with General Motors in the City "A" League in the 1952-53 season after being discharged from the army.

Pontiac Speedway 'Open House' Sunday Starts Stock Car Race Season in Area

By JACK SAYLOR

Donald E. Pike, new manager of the Speedway, announces that several races will be held. Program starts at 1:30 p. m. with the public invited free of charge.

Official start of the season is Sunday, May 2, with the usual program of eight races, including Australian pursuit and 25-lap feature. Track will operate Sundays until June, when it goes on a three-night basis.

Wednesday and Sunday night races count in the Land O'Lakes Racing Association point standings for modified stocks. Saturday will be variety night with roadsters, midgets, non-Fords and motorcycle programs planned periodically.

Qualifications begin Wednesdays and Sundays at 7 p. m. with races starting at 8:30. On Sunday's, qualifying starts at 5:30 and the first race at 7 p. m.

Pontiac area drivers may be seen on television this season. A Detroit station has tentative plans to beam a half-hour of racing on Wednesday nights from the Pontiac track.

Pike reports the track, located seven miles west of Pontiac on M-59, in excellent condition. Judges stand has been moved from the infield to the top of the grandstands, and a traffic light system has been installed to keep the starter off the track.

Bud Brownell was injured at the track last year under such circumstances. He has recovered and will again serve as a starter.

Most of last year's top drivers are expected to be in competition again this season, including 1953 Land O'Lakes champion, Joy Fair of Pontiac. His closest competitors last year, Carm Ragats of Waterford and Chuck Partello of Rochester, also return.

In addition, Ken Schonschack of Lakeview, 1952 champion, is returning after spending last summer campaigning at Motor City Speedway. A large number of new cars and drivers also will be seen this season at the Pontiac Speedway.

SPEEDWAY BOSS — Donald E. Pike of Pontiac (above) is the new manager of the Pontiac Speedway. He previously was associated with the Land O'Lakes Racing Association. Pike announces an open house program at the M-59 track Sunday at 1:30 p. m. Regular racing schedule begins Sunday, May 2.

Richmond Goes 'Gooty' as IL Baseball Returns

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Milwaukee and Baltimore can move over. This old city has gone goofy, too, over baseball.

International League baseball was reborn in Richmond yesterday after an absence of 37 years, and some 12,000 spectators packed the Virginians' newly converted Parker Field to celebrate the occasion.

* * *

They consumed lots of hot dogs, bottled drinks, popcorn and peanuts and whooped and hollered until the last out. It was a pretty fair debut for the new Richmond club even though its opposition, the Rochester Red Wings, won the game 4-3.

The spectators were treated to two home runs—one by pitcher Dick Starr of Richmond, whose fifth-inning round-tripper with a mate aboard boosted the Virginians into a 3-2 lead. The other homer was by Rochester right-fielder Allie Clark off Richmond reliefer Al Epperly.

Richmond Mayor E. E. Haddock, a practicing physician who is given much of the credit for bringing international League baseball to Richmond, said a few words in pre-game ceremonies.

Theaters Get Title Bout

NEW YORK, April 21 (AP)—The heavyweight title fight between champion Rocky Marciano and Ezzard Charles at Yankee Stadium, June 17, will not be televised into your home.

The 15rounder wil be telecast into theaters over a closed circuit by Theater Network Television, Inc., only.

Playoff Victory Over Hogan May Bolster Snead's Chances for National Open Triumph at Baltusrol

By GRANTLAND RICE

* * *

Sam has always felt a bit shy in meeting Hogan in an Open. He must have known he could swing as well and hit the ball as well as any man living.

* * *

Yet he has won no Open and Hogan has won four. Now part of the tide has turned. He has met Hogan twice in playoffs and Sam has won both. Very likely Snead never did feel too elated over the first one for Ben was still badly crippled on that occasion.

* * *

This time in the final test, Ben played fine golf, his best golf of the week, and yet Snead still won.

As a rule Hogan has outconcentrated Snead just as he has every other competitor. This magic faded at Augusta. Hogan's one vital slip in concentration must have come at the short 16th hole where he had a 15-foot putt for a two. Instead he took a four.

At Augusta, Snead outdrove Hogan consistently. This is natural. Snead not only has one of golf's perfect swings but he is 20 pounds heavier than Hogan.

* * *

Length helps everywhere and at Baltusrol particularly. The longer ball will help a lot over this year's Open layout. I have played or whacked at Baltusrol since 1914, 40 years back and many is the time I have wished for that extra 30 yards.

* * *

Baltusrol is one of our best courses, a true test in every sense of the word. It isn't supposed to be a playground for only Hogan and Snead.

* * *

There are other young stars who will be better in June weather than they were in April at Augusta. The younger stars have yet to learn how to handle the tough, rough conditions and golfing know-how Hogan and Snead have picked up through the years.

Teachers Meet to Talk Plans for Big Event

Bi-Annual Test Will Be Held May 24-27 and June 2

Physical education teachers from Pontiac's elementary and junior high schools met yesterday afternoon at Pontiac High School to discuss plans for this year's Junior Olympics.

Olympics are scheduled for May 24 and 27 and June 2 at Wisner Field. Last games, held in 1952, were won by Washington (Junior High division) and Bagley (grade school section).

The colorful event was held yearly from 1939 through 1952. It was decided after the 1952 meet to hold it every other year to avoid conflict with the elementary schools' music festival, also a bi-annual affair.

Instructors at Tuesday's meeting were given entry blanks and rules, prepared under the direction of Dr. George N. Petroff, Kiwanis' chairman for this year's test.

Assisting Petroff as co-chairman will be Ed Graybiel, PHS football coach; George Balch, of the Pontiac YMCA; and William Coulacos, director of the Pontiac Boys' Club. Other officials include Schloerke, chief judge; PHS faculty manager of athletics Robert Beauchamp, clerk-of-course; Lowry, starter; and Dean Wilson, head timer.

Each school will have Kiwanis Club members as director and assistants. Kiwanis is the founding organization.

Youngsters in this year's event will have an A-1 track to help them in the usual onslaught on records. Wisner layout has been undergoing improvement work for the past two years and is expected to be completed in time for the Olympics. Plans call for a 10-lane, curbed track and improved field event facilities.

Texas Grid Coach Making Ends Meet

H. N. (Rusty) Russell is making about $24,000 a year out of it—part for coaching and the other part for not coaching.

Russell resigned as head coach of Southern Methodist University when his team didn't win. He said he couldn't coach the team and answer criticism from the alumni at the same time.

Russell coached at Schreiner Institute last season for $6,500.

Coast Critic Indicates Hack Must Get Tougher

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—A West Coast critic advises that Stan Hack will have to become a great deal tougher than he was as manager of the Los Angeles club if he is to succeed in his new job as overseer of the Chicago Cubs. Stan, he says, treated all his players as buddies out there and they loved him in return, but he doubts that such a benign policy will succeed in the majors.

* * *

The Yankees already have dropped one quick decision. They announced with the start of the season they would give each of their players $8 daily meal money while on the road, without the time-honored check signing privileges, but changed their minds in a hurry when they discovered some athletes were dining on hamburgers and pocketing the difference.

The most popular gag of the young season is pseudo-serious reference to Pittsburgh's "great $24,000 infield," the point being that each member of Branch Rickey's youthful quartet is believed to be drawing the minimum big league salary of $6,000. The Mahatma has never believed in spoiling promising young ballplayers.

* * *

No writer who interviewed Bucky Harris down South believed the popular Washington manager when he said he would play Roy Sievers in left field even if the effects of his shoulder operation forced Sievers to throw balls in sidearm to his shortstop for the relay home. But Sievers is out there now and doesn't appear to be hurting the Senators.

Sukeforth Says Pirates Will Leave Cellar

Poor Start Blamed to Facing Phils' Aces Four Times

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK (INS) — Branch Rickey's Pirates are supposed to have a new look this year and it must be admitted that any change in their appearance must be for the better because no club could possibly look worse than they did last year.

Clyde Sukeforth, former Dodger catcher now coaching the Pirates, assures us that the Pirates are improved in all departments.

"This club," says Sukeforth, "is not gong to win a pennant this year but we do expect to get out of the cellar.

"No, I'm not trying to kid anybody, I'll admit we have a lot of new youngsters and they are bound to make mistakes now and then. But they're hustling and some of them are sure to make the grade in a big way.

"There will be days when we'll look great and I figure we'll have enough of them to climb a little. I'll bet we won't finish 55 games behind as we did last year."

Sukeforth is not discouraged by a slow start, because the club had the toughest assignment of any club in either league.

"Look what we had to face in four of our first five games. Curt Simmons and Robin Roberts twice apiece and does anybody know of a tougher pitching combination in baseball? At that, we managed to beat Roberts in his first start."

Veteran Pros Favored in $35,000 Tourney of Champions

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Twenty select professional golfers took their last practice shots today before heading into formal firing in the $35,000 Tournament of Champions tomorrow, and gallery interest centered on Sam Snead and Lloyd Mangrum.

* * *

Play is over the Desert Inn country club course, which stretches 7,102 grassy yards over this converted desert country.

Par is 36-36—72, and it was not as easy as expected when the event was inaugurated a year ago. Nine of 20 contestants broke par in the first round last year, but only seven were still under par 288 at the end of the 72 hours of play.

* * *

Snead was installed as the probable favorite in this legal gambling minded resort, mainly because of his victory April 12 in the Masters in a playoff with Ben Hogan.

Mangrum, however, emerging from a slump earlier in the winter, began to play like the old Mangrum and finished up the Masters with a 69 and a tie with E. J. (Dutch) Harrison for fourth place.

* * *

Cold Finish Ends Fast Start in ABC

SEATTLE (AP)—Good starts don't always mean good finishes and Fred Annala of Butte, Mont., ran afoul of that adage last night as he rolled his first series in the American Bowling Congress.

Annala, who bowls for the Mutual of Omaha team of Butte, hit nine straight strikes in his first game to wind up with a total of 266.

He fell only slightly off that hot pace in his second game, rolling a 222.

But his third game total was a lowly 135 as he ran into five splits and committed one error. His total pin collection for the night was 623—not enough to put him among the leaders.

There were, in fact, no changes in any of the top ten standings in the ABC Tuesday.

Gray Still a 'Promise' as Chisox Beat Tigers

By JOE FALLS

DETROIT (AP) — It's understood that this is the win-or-else season for Ted Gray, puzzling lefthander of the Detroit Tigers.

The 29-year-old southpaw, a pitcher of perennial promise, is on the spot after three straight losing seasons. It's no secret that the Tiger front office expects him to be a winner this year.

Gray has had two starts so far, failing to finish each time. He lasted only three innings yesterday as the Tigers dropped a 7-2 decision to the White Sox in Briggs Stadium.

He made his first start last week in Cleveland and held the Indians to four hits in seven innings. But in both games he was plagued by wildness. He has walked eight batters so far, compared to 12 for the rest of the staff.

It could be that Gray is being extra careful this year about not making his pitches too fat. Last year, You'll recall, he and teammate Billy Hoeft each served up 24 home run balls, the most of any pitcher in the league.

Tigers are idle today and tomorrow.

After winning four of their 1st five games, Tigers had offensive and defensive lapses against the Chicagoans, who now have won four straight games.

Virgil Trucks, who toiled for 10 seasons in Briggs stadium, turned on his old mates and stopped them with a strong six-hitter to even his record at 1-1. Since the Tigers traded him away in 1952 he has beaten them five times without a loss.

White Sox rolled up a dozen hits off Gray and his three successors, Ralph Branca, Dick Donovan and Ray Herbert. L'il Nellie Fox, Chicago's pesky 2nd baseman, hit three singles and drove in two runs. Chico Carrasquel also knocked in a pair and Minnie Minoso accounted for one with a 400-foot home run, his 2nd of the season.

Fred Hatfield, playing 3rd for the ailing Ray Boone, knocked in Detroit's 1st run with a two-out single in the 5th inning. Harvey Kuenn's 6th-inning double — his 1st hit in Briggs stadium in 15 times up paved the way for the Tigers' 2nd run in the 6th inning. He scored on Walt Dropo's sacrifice fly to center.

Boone was unable to play when an arthritic condition in his knee was aggravated when he was hit by a line drive in Monday's game. He's expected to play Friday.

Frank House, Tiger Catcher, suffered two bruised fingers and had to retire from the game in the 7th inning.

Cleveland Indians will be in Detroit for a three-game series Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Tiger skipper Fred Hutchinson says he'll pitch Ned Garver, Steve Gromek and Billy Hoeft in that order against the tribe.

Gil Turner, Middleweight Again, Faces Bobby Jones

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gil Turner, the welterweight turned middleweight turned welterweight, fights in the middleweight field again tonight in a scheduled 10 rounder against Bobby Jones.

Turner and his manager, George Katz, claim they aren't interested in the middleweight war. They want to meet Carmine Basilio for the right to take on 147 pound champion Kid Gavilan. But the Philadelphia flurry puncher continues to campaign with the 160 pounders.

* * *

In fact, promoter Herman Taylor says the winner of tonight's nationally televised (CBS) fight will earn an outdoor crack at Joey Giardello, the Philadelphia tapped as Carl (Bobo) Olson's next 160 pound title opponent.

This Turner-Jones setto is a return bout. The Jones boy, a 3-1 underdog last March, won a split decision over Turner. One judge called it a draw to the amazement of all and sundry. Taylor says the crowd clamored so loud for a return bout he just had to make the match again.

Jones, a 29-year-old counter-

Pirates Used 6 Rookies in Tuesday Game

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK — (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates already have established a record that probably won't be equalled for alongtime.

* * *

Six of the nine players in the regular lineup that faced the New York Giants yesterday were rookies. Before the game was over, another first year man, pitcher Nelson King, who toiled for Denver of the Class A Western League, had joined them.

* * *

Count them. Gair Allie, shortstop. . . Bib Skinner, first base. . . Gail Henley, right field. . . Bob Shepard, catcher. . . Dick Smith, third base. . . Curtis Roberts, second base. Ever hear of any of them before? Neither did Pittsburgh Manager Fred Haney before this spring.

How did Haney feel about testing these baby Bucs under fire so soon? Has he liked what he has seen of them so far? How much farther did he expect to go with them?

* * *

"They're a fine bunch of kids and they will be established big leaguers some day," Haney explained after yesterday's 6-2 defeat by the Giants. "But I'm afraid I'm rushing them too fast.

"The kids have done about as well as I expected, though. Several have done better. Take this Roberts boy, for instance. He's going to be a real fine player some day. He's a big league fielder right now, is fast and is a fine hustler. He's not bad with the stick either.

* * *

Haney also had high hopes for such beardless newcomers as outfielder Jerry Lynch, catcher Nick Koback and pitchers Bob Purkey and George O'Donnell. He was far from discouraged over the club's 2-5 won and lost record and insists his club is better than this .286 mark indicates.

Syracuse NBA Club Interested in Bevo

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Leo Ferris, executive vice president of the Syracuse Nationals of the National Basketball Assn., was represented today as "definitely interested" in signing Clarence (Bevo) Francis.

Hialeah distributed a record $1,923,700 in purses to the horsemen during its 40 days of racing this season.

AIRBORNE—Pontiac High's Ed Ringgold clears the bar with ease as he wins the high jump event in yesterday's PHS-Hamtramck dual track meet here yesterday. Ringgold, who holds the Pontiac High School record of 6-feet 1-inch, won Tuesday's event with a 5-foot 5-inch leap. He also took 1st places in the 100-yard dash and low hurdles and ran a leg on the winning relay team as the Chiefs routed Hamtramck, 84-16.

Chiefs Win 2nd Meet

By BILL MARTIN

Pontiac High's track team won its 2nd straight victory of the outdoor season here yesterday, routing an outmanned Hamtramck squad 84-16 in a dual meet.

Chiefs slammed seven events and placed 1st in another to win with ease.

Other individual victories were taken by Freeman Watkins in the 220, John James in the half, Bill Douglas in the mile, Willie Wilson in the high hurdles and George Thrasher in the pole vault.

One Wisner field record was broken, despite the slow, soggy track. Ronnie McCrea of Hamtramck won the quarter-mile in 54.5 seconds to slice five-tenths of a second off the former mark, set in 1950 by Roch of Owosso.

Marathon Formula

Britisher Prescribes Austerity for Success

NEW YORK (AP) — The reason Americans don't hold their own in track's endurance tests, says Great Britain's wiry Jim Peters, is that "they have too many automobiles and eat too much."

* * *

The lean, 35-year-old Briton, second to Veikko Karvonen of Finland in Monday's Boston marathon, stopped over in New York and discussed training methods yesterday before enplaning for home. America's best showing at Boston was seventh.

"I have a garage, but no automobile," Peters said. "Furthermore, I wouldn't have an automobile until I am through running.

* * *

"You Americans have too many automobiles and much too much to eat. You'll never develop men of stamina and endurance that way. There is only one way to train—that is by running. If you can't run, walk."

Peters has run the fastest marathon on record, covering the fixed distance of 26 miles and 385 yards in two hours, 18 minutes, 40.2 seconds at London last June.

"I run 120 miles a week for 51 weeks of the year," the Essex optician's helper explained. "The other week I take off—my wife insists on it. I do it at 11 miles an hour. I have 12 workouts a week.

'Chillin' Charley' Loses Split Decision

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Charley Riley, once tabbed "Chillin' Charley" when he made his big bid among the featherweights, looked like he was near the end of the road last night as he lost a split decision to young Davey Moore in a 10-round feature bout.

'Big Fish Derby' for '54 Under Way Saturday

By H. GUY MOATS

"Waiting time" for the hundreds of thousands of Michigan devotees of the gentle art of angling in streams and lakes of this so greatly-blessed commonwealth is fast fading. Michigan's 1954 open season for pike, bluegills and all other panfish starts Saturday.

Fine spring weather has intensified the urge to get out on the lakes, and it is certain that the usual heavy pressure will be noted on all Oakland waters during this coming weekend.

However, there's another angle to this opening that certainly will interest most county fishermen. It's the beginning of the annual Pontiac Press "Big Fish Derby." For many years this contest—a three-way affair—has attracted many anglers, each trying for one of the $50 U. S. Savings Bond awards that go to the winners.

Until June 19, however, contestants will have to confine themselves to pike and bluegill. Bass, both large and smallmouth varieties, will not be legal prizes until June 19. Entries in the bass division will include both the large and smallmouths. Some of the largest bass entered in this venerable test have been smallmouths.

Contest ends on Labor Day.

Entries will be confined to FULL-TIME residents of Oakland County (summer residents are not eligible). Members of Pontiac Press staff or their families are also excluded.

Fish must be brought to the Press Sports Department for weighing, measurement and photographing. Where it is impossible to bring an entry immediately, weight slips, signed by a distinterested storeman, who weighs it, plus signatures of one disinterested witness, and the lucky angler, must be provided. All fish so entered must be weighed on approved, inspected scales.

Any fish, cleaned prior to entry, will be excluded.

State fishing regulations for the taking of pike (any variety) permit fishermen to take five daily, in any combination, or singly but they must be 14 inches or longer.

For bluegills, rules provide that 25 per day or in possession, may be taken, but only in combination with other panfish. Only 15 'gills alone, may be taken.

Not always, but frequently during the many years of this contest, one of Michigan's oldest, fish taken during the early period of the season have held the top spots all summer long. On many occasions, also, when the season—and the contest—closed ties have resulted. In such cases duplicate awards have been made. That procedure is still in force.

SMELT ON THE MOVE—To commercial and sport anglers alike, the prolific smelt represents an important part of Michigan's fishing scene. The little silvery fish was first introduced into Michigan waters by conservation workers in the early years of this century. Since then, populations have increased so that several million pounds have been taken commercially during each recent year. Here a commercial fisherman is scooping up his last haul of the winter through the fast-melting ice of Little Bay de Noc in Lake Michigan.

Rain May Hurt Trout Opening

By JACK PATTERSON

This probably won't come as news to fishermen, who've anxiously been awaiting the date for a good many weeks, but Saturday marks the opening date of the fishing season for trout, panfish and, in fact, all species except bass, which will open on June 19. Trout fishermen who have any influence with the weathermakers would do well to exert it. As of now northern trout streams range from fair to very good, with not-too-high and reasonably clear water the rule rather than the exception. But a few days of rain between now and Saturday could louse things up but good. Northern roads, except for the most primitive are passable, but here again dry weather is called for to keep them so.

PATTERSON

Northbound travelers should note that the Cass Ave. bridge in Bay City has been reopened. This route misses most of the city.

Opening day on the trout streams traditionally calls for bait fishing, but if warmish, dry weather holds, the worm-slingers more virtuous brother the fly-caster should get some action.

Dry flies should not be ruled out unless the opening is hopelessly wintry. Even in cold weather by this time of year there is usually some limited hatching activity around the middle of the day.

Favorite early wet flies tend toward drab patterns, with Brown Hackle, March Brown, Leadwing Coachman some personal choices, and of course squirrel tails where rainbows are known or suspected to be present.

Probably the best way to catch a really good trout on opening day, aside from using night crawlers, is with a nymph, either natural or artificial. Natural nymphs are almost impossible to keep on a hook, because they tend toward the fragile side. We have never had any success with "exact" imitation artificial nymphs, but do some business now and then with sparsely dressed creations that don't look like much to us but presumably resemble a nymph to trout. Wet fly fishermen have no doubt noticed how often a ratty bedraggled wet-fly, well-chewed and practically denuded of wings and hackle will take fish. In this writer's opinion, trout must mistake such a monstrosity for a nymph.

Things to remember in nymph fishing are that if the water is cold (as it's apt to be next weekend) fish will be holding in deeper runs and pools and it's necessary to get the fly down to them.

If fish are showing more activity and "bulging" or false-rising, then a nymph on a leader greased up to a few inches from the tip so it will drift just beneath the surface may be the ticket. Trout take nymphs very gently, as a rule, and the fisherman must be on his toes to detect a strike.

Bluegill fishermen should find their fish in the shallower reaches of lakes and ponds, and particularly in canals which run off many of the local lakes. These canals have a peculiar attraction for bluegills, particularly big ones, at this time of year. They're hungry, and in a "taking" mood at this season, and opening anglers, if they look for them in the right spots will have as much fun, almost, as the stick-wavers on the trout streams.

Special Trout Rules in State Still in Effect

Regulations to Continue on Nine Lakes Testing Present Laws

LANSING (UP) — State conservation officials have warned anglers preparing for the trout and general fishing season opening next Saturday that special regulations still will remain in effect on nine inland lakes.

The nine lakes being used to test present regulations on bass and pike include Fife Lake in Grand Traverse and Kalkaska Counties, Minnewaukon Lake in St. Joseph County, Sugarloaf Lake in Washtenaw County, Bear Lake in Manistee County, Pontiac Lake in Oakland County, Whitmore Lake in Washtenaw and Livingston Counties, Pine Lake in Barry County, Duck Lake in Calhoun County, and Big Portage Lake in Jackson County.

Statewide bass season will not open until June 19.

Conservation department's fisheries division has completed winter operations which included mapping nine Upper Peninsula and 42 Lower Peninsula lakes.

Most of the work was concentrated in St. Joseph and Livingston Counties where nine lakes were mapped in each county. Seven were mapped in Jackson County, four in Kalamazoo, and three each in Houghton and Oakland. Thus far, conservation crews have mapped about 2,200 state lakes.

Spearing Legal on County Lakes May 1

Many lakes in Oakland County have been designated as among those in which legal spearing for "rough" fish will be available May 1. List of these waters were announced today by Conservation Officer Howard Johnson.

"Spearing for carp, dogfish and garpike will be legal, May 1 to May 31, and from July 15 to Aug. 15, inclusive," the area officer reported. Spears, bow and arrows may be used, and the fish may be taken either with, or without artificial light.

Morgan Horse Assn. Selects 1954 Officers

John H. Braid of Seminole Village has just been installed as a member of the Justin Morgan Horse Association, for his 2nd term.

Other Justin association officers and directors include:

Walter E. Kane of South Lyon, president; Robert H. Dudley of Birmingham, vice president; Miss Kathryn M. Zuenen of Clarkston, secretary - treasurer. Directors are: Barthold Zeunen of Clarkston, Milo Grant Dugan of Northville and Herman F. Hicks of Detroit.

Association aims are to promote the best interests of all Morgan horses, and to affiliate with clubs sponsoring other breeds of horses, for the advancement of the horse in general.

Conservation Program Moved

LANSING — "Michigan Conservation," the conservation department's new television program now being carried by two stations, will shift to a new schedule beginning April 22.

The live version, on WKAR-TV at Michigan State College in East Lansing, switches from 4:15 p. m. Saturdays to 5:45 p. m. Thursdays commencing April 22, Charles Floyd, program producer announces.

Station WWTV at Cadillac telecasts the show via kinescope the day following the East Lansing presentation. When the time shift is made, WWTV will advance its showing to a Friday afternoon or evening hour, as yet unannounced.

Total of $7,440 Paid in Predator Bounties

LANSING — Twenty-six coyotes and 1397 foxes were bountied during March, the conservation department reports.

A total of $7,440 was paid to hunters and trappers of the predators.

In February, one wolf, 42 coyotes and 2045 foxes were reported taken and $10,225 in bounties were paid.

More Than One Million Pheasants Were Bagged

LANSING — Conservation department's post card poll of pheasant hunters indicates about 1,175,000 birds were bagged during the 1953 season.

About 664,000 persons purchased small game hunting licenses, and of this group, those who hunted pheasants bagged an average of 2.3 birds per hunter.

Lapeer Hunter Bags Leg-Banded Starling

First report in this area of banded starlings has been made by a Pontiac Press stereotype man, who lives and hunts in the section south of Elba, Lapeer county. Fred Baucom, 5209 Lippincott, RR 1, Lapeer, shot the leg-banded disturber, last Sunday. Baucom used a .22 rifle.

Band on the bird, a large specimen, apparently was placed by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, No. 512-31224. On the inside was the legend: Advise, write Fish and Wildlife Serv. Washington D. C.

Billy Burke had to play 144 holes (8 rounds) before winning the 1931 U. S. Open golf title. He beat George Von Elm in the second 36-hole playoff, 148 to 149. They tied at 149 in the first playoff.

Spring Breakup Is Under Way in Earnest in UP

LANSING — The spring breakup got under way in earnest in the upper peninsula last week, and conservation field workers now report deer moving out of winter quarters to upland feeding areas.

Snow in the peninsula's west end is reported still about a foot deep at some points, but going fast. Temperatures during the week ranged upward from about 25 degrees and the high reported was 76.

Michigan Outdoors:

Conservation Education Not Adequate in State

By MORT NEFF

A fair percentage of Michigan residents seems pretty well convinced that we live in one of the best states in the nation when it comes to the enjoyment of the outdoors. A much larger percentage indicates more than a little interest in the possibilities but is not quite sure where to start, often because of lack of proper information. The job of "selling" Michigan Outdoors can certainly stand improvement, and we can take a lesson from the state of Missouri!

NEFF

In a state with far less potential for outdoor fun than we find in Michigan, a model job of education is being done, and Missouri's Conservation Department is to be congratulated.

Missouri's Conservation Department contacts 1,650 newspapers with timely information, prepares 37 radio programs, delivers a half hour TV show, and insists that every conservation officer accept a public speaking assignment each and every week of the year!

Elaborate and dramatic exhibits for fairs and shows are always ready. An excellent library of wildlife films is available free — and every year a new 30 minute film is produced in polished form, and eagerly viewed by close to a half million people!

Tourist influx, plus active participation in hunting and fishing by an enormous number of residents percentage-wise, proves how effective this type of conservation education can be.

Here in Michigan we have a far better opportunity to do an even greater job — but it hasn't been done to date. Resistance to a higher budget for the work has kept planning on an inadequate level in our department's education division.

The present personnel are doing a fine job with the available funds, but the eyes of hundreds of thousands of outdoor "prospects" remain closed because of lack of properly presented information.

Low Water Interfered With Spawning of Pike

Lack of water in estuaries to county lakes this spring forced pike to change their spawning habits somewhat. That's what conservation officer Howard Johnson says.

"When time came for pike runs in some lakes, no water in their usual haunts forced the fish to turn back into the lakes. Presumably they spawned there, as has happened before, I'm told," Johnson reports.

Trout Plants Ready

Planting of legal sized trout in Oakland County streams has been completed, for this spring, conservation officers report.

Rainbows in the big majority, will provide the bulk of sport for trouters come Saturday when the trout season also opens.

Plants have been made in Clinton and Huron rivers, Paint and Duck creeks, all in Oakland County.

Mt. Clemens Plans Sportsmen's Fair

Mt. Clemens Exchange Club and the Huron Pointe Sportsmen's Assn. are cooking up a unique event for the week of May 29 through June 6.

It is the 1st annual sportsmans exposition and fair. In addition to 27,000 square feet of exhibits of the latest in the outdoor world, the fair will involve a big parade, grandstand acts, archery and shooting contests, log rolling, canoe tilting and casting contests.

There will even be a rodeo and auto races in what shapes up as quite an unusual event.

Loughran Outweighed

Greatest weight difference in a world championship fight occurred in a match between Primo Carnera and Tommy Loughran on March 1, 1934. Carnera weighed in at 270 pounds and Loughran's weight was just 184.

Alex Kellner Posts AL's Second 1-Hitter

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

What did the National League sluggers learn in spring training that their American League friends apparently overlooked?

* * *

This was becoming a vital question today after the second straight one-hitter in the Junior circuit while the National League was going its slug-happy way with another 26-hit donnybrook.

Lefty Alex Kellner of the Philadelphia Athletics tamed the Washington Senators on one safety—Wayne Terwilliger's lonesome single into center field with two out in the eighth inning—as the A's won 7-0.

On Monday Jim McDonald of the New York Yankees, a righthander, completely subdued Boston with the exception of a single by Harry Agganis.

A big share of the National League fireworks has involved the St. Louis Cardinals. The Red Birds absorbed a 13-6 shellacking at the hands of the Cincinnati Redlegs last night and now have been battered for 60 runs in 6 games.

The battering hasn't been all one-sided. The Cardinals have averaged almost seven runs for each of the same half dozen contests.

For years the National League has been the pitchers' league. Castoffs from American League mound staffs have gone on to big seasons in the National while the American has concentrated on hitting stars.

* * *

The two contrasting contests yesterday were part of a curtailed five-game schedule. Philadelphia whipped Brooklyn 6-3 and New York defeated Pittsburgh 6-2 in the National League and Chicago beat Detroit 7-2 in the American. Milwaukee and Chicago in the National were rained out.

Kellner was breezing along toward the first no-hitter in Griffith Stadium since 1931 when Terwilliger, a .235 hitter, rapped one back through the middle.

Alex should know. He pitched one back in 1948 for Savannah for the Sally League. But last night's game was his first one-hit performance since breaking into organized ball in 1941.

Kellner walked three and struck out six. He had retired 15 men in a row before Terwilliger broke the string.

My Greatest Shot

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first of a number of interesting stories about golf shots that were tabbed by the game's top stars as their best efforts.

Under the circumstances, I believe that the shot I made at the 10th hole at Oakland Hills in 1951 was my best.

It was a 2 iron shot to the 10th green.

I've hit a lot more just as good, but this was a most important shot.

It was the last round of the United States Open Championship and I was two strokes back of Jimmy Demaret and Bobby Locke.

After I had gone out in 1 under par, I came to the 10th, a real tough, 448-yard par 4. I reasoned that if I could get by this hole in par and could stay 1 under for the round, I would have a great chance. I did not believe that Demaret or Locke would shoot par or one over on this final round.

The pin lay on the right and short on the green. There was a big bunker and an elevated green to be considered.

I used a 2 iron and cut the ball. It "feathered" and held about five feet from the hole. The shot was about 215 yards. I continued for a 67 and the victory.

This was outstanding, I thought, because I figured this as the key hole to the tournament. Sometimes you find yourself in that position. As it developed, I was right.

So I shall always remember that shot.

Boros Takes One-Stroke Lead in Carolinas Open

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C., (AP) — Big Julius Boros of Southern Pines, seldom a visitor to the payoff window since his 1952 victories in the U. S. Open and World's Championship golf tournaments, fired a steady 67 today to take a one-stroke lead in the Carolinas Open tournament.

* * *

Only six players in the field of more than 80 broke par 71 over the rolling, 6,582-yard Hendersonville Country Club mountain course.

* * *

Boros, with 34-33, held a stroke lead over Mike Souchak, former Duke football player from Durham, and Dow Finsterwald, former Ohio amateur ace, now in the Army at Ft. Bragg.

In fourth place with 69 was Bill Young, Furman University football coach. Tied at 70 were Al Smith, Danville, Va., and Pee Wee Campbell, Charlotte driving range operator.

* * *

Approximately 150 individuals from 24 states and Hawaii are expected to take part in the event which runs Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

Others May Enter, Too

Frank Stranahan, Bob Sweeny Planning to Play in British Amateur Tournament

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Stranahan and Bob Sweeny are planning to go to Muirfield next month for another crack at the British amateur golf championship, which is the biggest title either has won.

* * *

Right after the Masters, Stranahan phoned the USGA to ask for entry forms. Then Sweeny and Chris Dunphy, who also likes to play in Britain, sent word they'd like to enter both the British and French amateurs.

With about a week to go before the closing date, 22 other American entries had been listed by the USGA, including Jimmy McHale and Frank Strafaci and a few others who have been to Britain before.

* * *

This really happened during the tune-ups for the Masters tournament. A couple of top-rank amateurs playing up the 18th hole at Augusta National noticed a thin, wiry figure up ahead on the practice green putting with a tipical Ben Hogan swing.

"There's one of Hogan's little imitators," one pointed out. "I guess its Gardner Dickinson." Every move of Dickinson, Ben's protege, makes it obvious he has modeled his game after Hogan's.

* * *

"That's Fred Wampler. He has that Hogan swing down better than Dickinson," the other amateur insisted. The argument raged all the way up the 18th fairway until the two were close enough to identify the "little imitator."

It was Hogan. Who else?

Doctors Okeh Mrs. Zaharias

But Babe Plans Long Layoff From Tourneys to Regain Strength

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)— Babe Zaharias has passed another crucial test in her fight against cancer and will return to golf when she feels she can win again.

* * *

Right now the indomitable Babe, most famous of women athletes, is taking a rest. "I don't like to lose," she explained.

Mrs. Zaharias was pronounced quite o.k. yesterday after blood and X-ray tests were studied by her physicians in a physical checkup one year after her operation for cancer.

* * *

Physicians who made the tests expressed amazement that she had been able to resume her golf in less than four months after the operation and had played the entire winter tour of the ladies PGA, winning two tournaments and finishing high in others.

Dogpatch, Famed Sire of Racers, Dies on Coast

POMONA, Calif. (AP)—Dogpatch, a son of Bull Dog out of Rose Leaves, and a famed sire of California winners, is dead.

* * *

The 14-year-old stallion died at Elwood B. Johnston's ranch Sunday after a battle with another stallion, but Walter Stark, in charge of Johnston's breeding farm, said the actual cause of death was a heart attack.

* * *

Dogpatch was a full brother to the famed Bull Lea of Calumet Farm. He won 13 races and earned $38,828 before being retired to stud. He sired such winners as Mucho Hosso, Patch, Kenton, Flitting Past, Threesome and others. Last Year Dogpatch-sired horses won 33 of 84 races and earned $137,393.

Effective Combination

Carrasquel has collected nine hits in 25 times at bat for a .375 average while Nellie has 8-for-25 and a .360 mark.

Both starred in yesterday's 5-1 victory over the Tigers. Carrasquel with three hits and Fox with two.

Senator Fans Back Kellner's No-Hitter Try

Washington Followers Switch Allegiance for Tuesday's Game

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some 5,700 Washington fans felt worse than Alex Kellner did last night when an eighth inning single robbed him of a coveted no hit, no run baseball victory.

* * *

The Washingtonians had come out to root the home town Senators to a second straight win over the Philadelphia Athletics, but they switched allegiance temporarily and pulled for Kellner to pitch his way to the first no-hitter of his career.

* * *

Kellner, a 29-year-old tobacco-chewing southpaw, was rocking along behind a 7-0 lead when Wayne Terwilliger, the Senators' second baseman, stepped up to the plate with two down in the eighth and rammed a single into centerfield.

Had he kept the Senators hitless, Kellner would have been the first hurler to turn the trick here since Bobby Burke of the Nats collared the Boston Red Sox Aug. 8, 1931.

Tiff With Umpires Costs Stanky $100

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Manager Eddie Stanky of the St. Louis Cardinals said last night he was fined $100 and utility infielder Solly Hemus $50 for their part in a wrangle with umpires at Chicago Sunday.

Half of Stanky's fine and all of the levy against Hemus was charged to misconduct when they argued about a call that changed Stan Musial's apparent run-scoring double into a foul ball. The other $50 fine against Stanky was for remaining in the runway of the dugout after being ejected from the game with Hemus.

Shoemaker Boots Home Long-Shot Magic Lamp

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Shoemaker, the jockey who rode a record 485 winners last year, scored with probably the longest shot of his career at Jamaica race track yesterday. He brought Magic Lamp up with a rush in the stretch to win the $25,000-added Jamaica handicap by three-quarters over Capeador and Eddie Arcaro.

Sparrow Is 1st Base Candidate for Titans

Sparrow, 6-5, 200-pound ex-Pontiac High School star, is one of seven Oakland County athletes on the spring squads at UD. Also on the baseball team is Jim Wagner of Royal Oak St. Mary, who lettered last year as a pitcher.

When Sam Snead won the 1946 British Open at St. Andrews, Scotland the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., pro shot a 290 to beat Johnny Bulla and Bobby Locke by four strokes.

Trautman Blasts Florida Team's Rookie Selection

St. Pete's Puts Coach, 63, on Active Playing Roster

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 21 (AP)—The president of minor league baseball Tuesday blasted a Florida team's signing of a coach, club attendant and director to the active playing roster as "a travesty on the game" and warned "they better meet the requirements of the game immediately."

* * *

George M. Trautman's warning was directed at the St. Petersburg Saints of the Class B Florida International League. That club today announced signing of Charley Rascher, 63-year-old coach with no professional playing experience; Fritz Angel, a member of the club's board of directors, and Paul Raibon, a club attendant.

"We will not stand for it," Trautman said. "It's a complete circumvention of the rules and a travesty on the game."

Some sources figured the club was seeking publicity, but Manager Rudy Laskowski said he signed the three because the club did not have the four rookies required by the league. He said he didn't see any prospect of acquiring rookies capable of Class B baseball until the college year is over.

But Trautman didn't agree. "He'd better go out and get some rookies, then," he said.

Fears Back With Rams

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Long Tom Fears, holder of two National Football League pass catching records, will be back with the Los Angeles Rams this year.

The Rams announced that Fears has signed to play his seventh year with the club.

Goyamo, With Arcaro, Top Choice in Blue Grass Test

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—The Blue Grass stakes, stepping stone to Kentucky Derby fame for half dozen 3-year-old stars, rolls around again tomorrow at Keeneland where at least 10 horses are expected to duel in a historic race dating back to 1911.

* * *

Goyamo, from the Woodvale Farm of Royce G. Martin, Toledo, Ohio, is the probable favorite for the mile and one eighth event, due primarily to the presence of jockey Eddie Arcaro in the saddle.

However, the sentimental Kentucky favorite is Timely Tip, a rugged little brown colt owned by Dr. A. L. Birch, a veterinarian from nearby Shelbyville.

NEW YORK (AP)—Most men will do anything for women.

They'll climb the highest molehill. Swim the deepest puddle—to hold an umbrella over 'em in the rain. Lift them tenderly in and out of revolving doors.

Most men will even marry women. Bring 'em a paycheck all their life. Rescue them from a strangling octopus at the beach—or a tight girdle at home. Even listen to 'em.

More and more men must have been listening to their wives lately, or how else can you explain why more and more men are busting out in pink shirts?

* * *

Stockbrokers are wearing pink shirts. So are pawnbrookers. So are wrestlers and other professional actors, bankers (although I am not sure they would lend money to a man in a pink shirt), factory hands and bus drivers.

(Boyle's note: What do you think my wife bought me for Easter—a beige sleeping bag?)

Now, mind you, I'm not denouncing pink shirts. I asked a friend of mine, who has worn them for years, what life in a pink shirt was like, and he said:

"A pink shirt gives you a happy feeling. Strange women come up to talk to you at cocktail parties, and not all of them are near-sighted—just strange.

"Street beggars, for some reason, avoid a man in a pink shirt—so you save money. Small children and prowling dogs are sometimes frightened away by my pink shirt, but that's all right with me. I like cats, and my two cats seem to prefer me in a pink shirt, particularly after twilight.

* * *

"I'll admit there was one disadvantage to my pink shirt at the start. Whenever the boss looked around the office for someone he could offload some of his own work on, there I sat—as conspicuous as the rear end of an elephant in a telephone booth. But then the boss bought a pink shirt himself, and now—wonder why?—everybody in the joint is wearing one.

"If I wanted to catch his eye now, I'd have to grow a beard."

Well, I'm reconciled to wearing a pink shirt, too, and I will—come the next blinding fog.

The point I want to make, men, is this: It is time for American men to put their foot down and say firmly: "Women, this far and no farther. Hold! Enough!"

While there is nothing wrong with pink shirts in themselves, they are another step in woman's steady march to power over the prostrate male.

A husband today rarely tells his wife what she should wear. His influence is purely negative. He usually says only, "well, dear, that is something that is nice, but it isn't for you."

But since a wife now buys most of her husband's clothing, or is the voice of decision, her influence is overwhelmingly positive. She says, "this is what I bought for you, Buster. Quit crying. Put it on. Mrs. Jones bought one just like it for her husband, and he looks real cute in it."

That is why I feel that today the average man more and more is dressing, not by his own standards, but by one of two standards:

1. By the way his wife thinks she would like to look—if she were a man.

2. By the way some neighbor's wife dresses her husband.

Since a husband can't control his own wife's opinions of what she would wear if she were his sex—and since he has even less influence over the ideas of his neighbor's wife—I think it is time men ought to make a grab to regain their old authority.

I don't say woman's place is only in the kitchen, although it is still nice to catch one by surprise there. But I do say it is high time for men's clothing stores to hang out a sign saying: "For men only."

Pickerel Sets Record

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (UP) — Mrs. James E. Martin claims to be the world's champion woman pickerel angler. She caught a pickerel in Pontooue Lake that weighed nine pounds, five ounces — said to be 5 ounces over the previous world's record.

3 Youths Hold Up Walton Dairy Bar

Three youthful bandits, one armed with a revolver and wearing a false mustache, escaped with about $75 last night in a holdup of the Walton Dairy Bar at 228 W. Walton Blvd., according to Pontiac Police.

Mrs. Annie Donelow, waitress who was alone at the time, said the trio entered the dairy bar at about 11:45 just before closing time and demanded the day's receipts.

One of the youths jumped over the counter, rifled the till and handed the money to a second holding a paper bag. The third, wearing a false mustache, kept his nickel-plated revolver "pointed at me," Mrs. Donelow said.

The waitress, who said she was "very frightened," said the youths walked out of the restaurant, but she could not tell police how they made their escape.

Two were wearing black leather gloves, gray felt hats and dungarees, but the waitress was unable to describe the third. All were between 17 and 20 years old, she said.

Stockholders Need Better Sense of Proprietorship

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

One of the unsolved problems in the realm of management is to put in the hearts and minds of the 6½ million owners of corporate stock in the United States a better sense of proprietorship.

The problem has many practical facets. The lack of an ownership awareness among small stockholders has militated against the success of specialized merchandising plans to circularize the stock holder list to sell the company products, and thus in effect convert the modern corporation into the spirit of a consumers' cooperative.

The original Henry Ford was impatient with the petty capitalist, and used to say that the stockholder is a parasite. Maybe his blunt castigation of the stockholder was a healthy offset to the pressure group effort to coddle and over-glamorize the outside shareowner.

When corporate executives take their hair down, they disclose that too many stockholders have a sense of impermanence in their role. At any given moment, they tend to be bored with anything except immediately visible dividends or an opportunity to sell out at a profit.

One uncommonly sage corporate manager, the late Edward L. Cornish, one-time president of the National Lead Co., once remarked to me that in all his management planning he considered the stockholders who intended to retain their company holdings rather than those who wanted some dramatic incident, such as a melon cutting, as an opportunity to get out.

If, in one way or another, stock ownership can be endowed with a better sense of proprietorship, it would be helpful to the survival of our free-choice economic society.

More should be made of the cooperative nature of the modern corporation, which pools the savings of many thrifty persons in order to buy better labor-aiding tools to help employes produce more and hence earn more, while providing customers with more and better goods at less cost.

The success of a corporation is measured in a consumers' plebiscite at the market place, where customers turn thumbs up or thumbs down or proferred products. Similarly, the same human beings, who are customers and workers, can simultaneously occupy the roles of capitalists. To the extent they do, corporations become akin to consumer cooperatives, and lose much of the emotional unpopularity of capitalistic engines of great wealth.

Sales of New Cars Reported Higher

The upsurge may bring 500,000-plus new car deliveries for April, the agency said.

TB Association Holds Meeting

Executive at Pittsburgh Talks at Annual Dinner of County Organization

Andrew W. Kovacs, executive secretary of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, was guest speaker at the annual meeting and dinner of the Oakland County Tuberculosis Association Tuesday evening.

He stressed complacency as a twin menace with the disease itself in the fight on tuberculosis. The greatly lessened death rate has caused many people to think it is being wiped out, and they lose interest, when as a matter of fact more cases are being found than ever before. This of course is due to a better case finding program.

The event was held at the Oakland County Tuberculosis Sanatorium and was attended by nearly 100.

Directors chosen were: Dr. J. D. Monroe, Dr. C. A. Neafie, Dr. Lynn Webber and Mrs. Joseph Panter, Pontiac; Dr. K. R. Gibson, Birmingham; Joe Hass, Holly; Frank Bartlett, South Lyon; Howard Otis, Farmington; Mrs. A. L. Mills, Milford, and Peter Hammelef, Lake Orion.

The guests were welcomed by E. F. Ferguson, president of the association, and greetings were extended by Dr. Lynn Webber, medical superintendent of the sanatorium. The annual report was presented by the association's executive secretary A. R. Musson.

At the directors' meeting which followed the dinner, the following officers were chosen for the coming year: president, Lee O. Clark, Hazel Park; vice president, Dr. A. R. Young, Pontiac; treasurer, Dr. C. P. Mehas, Birmingham; executive secretary, Musson.

McCarthy-Army Moving for Showdown; Here Are Issues and Principal Figures

Tomorrow in Washington the much-publicized battle between Senator Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis) and the Army will be climaxed in public hearings in the caucus room of the Senate office building.

Chief figures in the controversy include Sen. McCarthy; Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens Jr.; Roy M. Cohn, McCarthy's subcommittee chief counsel; John G. Adams, army general counsel; Gerard D. Schine, army private and former McCarthy subcommittee staff member; H. Struve Hensel, assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs; Francis Carr, executive director of the subcommittee; Joseph Nye Welch, special counsel for the army; and Ray H. Jenkins, special counsel for the senators probing the McCarthy-Army dispute.

The hearings, expected to last about a week, will be open to the public and sessions will be televised.

Following is a summary of the issues and the personnel of the investigating committee, as prepared by the Associated Press:

The Army Side:

An official bill of particulars, filed with the investigations subcommittee, states that "the Department of the Army alleges that Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy" as the subcommittee's chairman, Cohn as its counsel, and others "sought by improper means to obtain preferential treatment" for Schine.

The document ticks off 29 accusations the Army lawyers will try to prove. Chiefly these allege:

1. That McCarthy, Cohn and Carr sought a commission and a special assignment in New York City for Schine, and that "by innuendo and inference" they indicated that the degree to which the Army met their demands would have much to do with how tough the subcommittee would be in investigating the Army.

* * *

2. That Cohn, after hearing Schine might be assigned to duty overseas, "threatened to cause the discharge of Secretary Stevens and that he would cause the subcommittee to wreck the Army."

* * *

3. That Cohn and Carr in McCarthy's presence used "abusive and threatening language" to Army Counsel Adams in urging favors for Schine.

4. That Cohn and Carr "sought to and did" have Schine excused from KP duty at Ft. Dix, N.J., after Cohn had told a colonel and two lieutenants he would have a "long memory" for their opposition to the request.

5. That Schine was allowed to leave Ft. Dix on special passes ostensibly on subcommittee errands when in fact he did no work for the subcommittee.

McCarthy-Cohn Side:

At a news conference on March 12, McCarthy and Cohn denied the Army's accusations and fired back accusations that Stevens and Adams had resorted to "blackmail" tactics to halt subcommittee investigations of the Army.

* * *

They alleged that Adams repeatedly had referred to Schine as "our hostage" and tried to use him as "a club" against the subcommittee.

* * *

A 46-point bill of particulars outlining the charges was filed with the subcommittee yesterday. It did not use the words "blackmail" and "hostage"; renewed charges that Stevens and Adams used "threats" in efforts to halt investigation of the Army. It also alleged:

1. That Hensel, as assistant secretary of defense, had helped the Army to open up on the McCarthy group because the subcommittee was investigating Hensel "for misconduct and possible law violation." That was what Hensel termed "bare-faced lies."

2. That "Pentagon politicians" had sought to prevent exposure of Communist infiltration of the Army and shift its probes to operations of the Air Force, Navy and Defense Department staff.

All the sessions of the hearing are to be open to the public, and plans have been made to televise the hearings over the nation's major TV-networks.

The Investigators

Presiding, in McCarthy's usual place as chairman, will be Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-SD). Serving with him will be the regular subcommittee members—Senators Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill), Charles E. Potter (R-Mich), John L. McLellan (D-Ark), Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash) and Stuart Symington (D-Mo)—and, serving for this inquiry only in McCarthy's place as a member, Sen. Henry C. Dworshak (R-Idaho).

The special subcommittee staff—

A Republican, he chose a Tennessee Democrat, Thomas R. Prewitt of Memphis, as one of his assistant counsel, and Solis Horwitz of Pittsburgh, once a member of the Japanese war crimes trial staff, as the third co-counsel.

Robert A. Collier, formerly of Great Falls and Austin, Tex., a former FBI agent, works with them as special investigator. Charles A. Maner of Knoxville, Tenn., is Jenkins' personal secretary.

* * *

The place and the time—

In the Senate's biggest hearing room, the red - velvet - carpeted caucus room in the Senate Office Building near the Capitol: 10:30 a.m., EST., to 12:30 p.m., and 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., daily starting tomorrow.

Local Kiwanians Honor Principal

John Thors Jr. Cited for Service to Pontiac High School

John Thors Jr., Pontiac Senior High School principal for 24 years, was honored by Pontiac Kiwanians Tuesday noon at one of the club's "Flowers to the Living" programs. Thors will retire at the end of the 1955-56 school year when he will have reached retirement age.

Born in the Upper Peninsula, Thors taught in rural schools and later was principal of Cheboygan High School. He came here in 1921 as a junior college history teacher. He has been high school principal since 1930.

Cecil Cox, assistant superintendent of schools, was chairman of the program. Harcourt Patterson and Monroe M. Osmun, members of the school board, spoke. All are members of the Kiwanis Club.

Patterson reviewed the growth of Pontiac's High School during Thors' tenure. Enrollment in 1930 totaled 1,250 students. Later, during a period when tuition students were admitted, it reached 2,975. Today enrollment is about 2,300.

Osmun paid tribute to Thors and recounted some of the improvements he has brought about in the high school. Among these he listed the public address system, the accident and benefit association which protects high school athletes in cases of injury during competition, establishment of several scholarships in colleges and universities, activity in the state and North Central Associations through which Pontiac High has been on the accredited lists throughout his period of service.

He also noted the 1951 award the school received at Valley Forge for citizenship teaching. Pontiac being one of two schools in the United States receiving gold awards.

"Mr. Thors has had a great influence on students in the Pontiac schools for 33 years," said Osmun. "The people of Pontiac owe him a great debt for the fine service he has given."

Thors noted in his response that more than 11,500 students have been graduated from Pontiac High since he became its principal. He expressed his appreciation to the club for its tribute and said the school ranks among the best in the entire country.

Thors was presented with a traveling bag and Mrs. Thors was given a bouquet.

Village Nears Solution to Water Supply Problem

DRYDEN—This community has all but solved one of the biggest problems with which it has had to cope in some time—an adequate water supply.

For two weeks the Dunbar Drilling Co. has been working on the Dale Carter farm, just east of the village on M181. It has now brought in a flowing well which, with extra pumping, will produce an estimated 200 gallons of water per minute.

As soon as the well gets approval of the State Health Department, work will be started to bring the water into the village.

Soviet Reveals Biggest Budget

17.8 Pct. of $25 Billion Set Aside for National Defense Purposes

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government announced the biggest budget in its history tonight for 1954. It includes 100,300,000,000 rubles—17.8 per cent—for national defense.

(The Soviets set an arbitrary exchange rate of four rubles to the dollar. That would make the allotment for the armed forces $25,075,000,000.

The record budget estimated total revenue during the year at 571,800,000,000 rubles ($142,950,000,000) and expenditures at 562,700,000 ($140,675,000,000), providing an anticipated surplus of 9,100,000,000 rubles.

* * *

Western observers in Moscow pointed out that it was difficult to understand the Soviet Union's defense appropriations. For one thing, the state owns and runs the entire economy, fixing its own prices on any equipment needed for the armed forces.

(Western observers also have long been convinced that much Soviet military spending is concealed under other budget categories.)

Finance Minister Arseny G. Zverev presented the budget bill to the newly elected Supreme Soviet (parliament) at a session attended by Premier Georgi Malenkov and other top leaders. The new Soviet opened its first session last night.

The Parliament by acclamation gave Malenkov and his entire Cabinet a mandate to continue in office. This action followed the government's formal resignation earlier in today's session because a new Supreme Soviet had been elected.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY OF LT. John Birrell Jr. who passed away 9 years ago today, April 21.
'Tis sweet to remember a loved one so dear
Though absent from us he is always near Unknown to the world, he stands by our side
And whisper dear loved ones, death cannot divide.
Sadly missed by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bell and family.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF FELIX Dejager, who passed away one year ago today, April 21, 1953.
Patiently bearing your suffering, until God took you away.
To see you slowly leave us, as helpless we stood by,
And drank the cup of bitter grief, the day we saw you die.
You heard a voice we couldn't hear, which said you couldn't stay.
You saw a hand we couldn't see, which beckoned you away.
Now, Dad, since you have gone away, the ones you loved so true,
Try hard to carry on the way we know you'd want us to.

YOU'RE NOT FORGOTTEN HUSband dear,
Nor ever shall you be,
As long as life and memory lasts
I shall remember thee.
Loving wife, Anna Mamerow.
Died April 20, 1952.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF OUR son Earl Dodd
Who passed away 18 years ago today, May ...
Sadly missed by sister, father and brothers.
Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Dodd

IN LOVING REMEMBRANCE OF First Lt. John Birrell Jr., who lost his life on Okinawa, April 21, 1945
Although the years have increased in great numbers
Since you have gone to rest,
Memories of you I'll always have
And never, no never forget.
Lovingly MOM.

Frances Reid on 'Big Story'

She Is Called for Many Top Roles, Is Popular on 'Studio One'

NEW YORK — Frances Reid, seasoned and talented video performer has starred in many TV productions including the recent role of a reporter on the Big Story.

A native of Wichita Falls, Texas, Frances lived in the Lone Star State until she was seven, when her family moved to Berkeley, Calif.

There, she says, her greatest claim to fame was going to school with Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs in the days when their tennis triumphs practically obscured al the other student activities.

Frances, however, did manage to get her name on the honor plaque for good grades and to gain recognition for her dramatic ability.

Like many other theater hopefuls, Frances came to New York with lots of ambition but little money. So she settled for a job as stock girl with a dress shop.

She managed to line up a role in Pygmalion with a Maplewood, N. J. stock company which starred Eva LeGallienne.

She stayed on as a regular member of the group for several seasons, then switched to a summer stock company in Connecticut where she met the man she married, actor Philip Bourneauf.

The couple appeared on Broadway and later toured with The Rivals, starring Walter Hampden and Mary Boland. Another Broadway turn followed for Frances, as Mrs. Jefferson in The Patriots.

She won dramatic acclaim in Shakespearean roles, appearing with such notables as Maurice Evans (in The G. I. Hamlet) and Richard Whorf (in Richard III), and starring in Roger Stevens' production of Twelfth Night.

GRACIOUS LADY - Showing the quiet charm and serenity that characterizes her TV performances is this portrait of Frances Reid. The attractive actress has been seen in a variety of roles on television, all of which she finds stimulating. Miss Reid believes that TV offers the greatest challenge and the most satisfying reward to those seeking a place in the entertainment world.

Starlets Scare Police

LONE PINE, Calif. (UP)— Constable Oscar Burkhardt took one look at the 86 beautiful starlets here on a movie location set Tuesday and immediately imposed a 9 p. m. curfew and declared "a state of limited emergency." Burkhardt said he took the steps because he wanted "to avoid unduly arousing the local citizenry."

Donaldson 55th Mayor of Pontiac Since Year 1861

William W. Donaldson is the 55th man to become Pontiac's mayor since the city was incorporated in 1861, according to records in the city clerk's office.

Twenty-three of the men were elected for more than one term. Donaldson's predecessor Arthur J. Law with eight years in office holds the record for time as mayor.

Mayors were elected for one-year terms until 1939 when an amendment to the city charter changed the period to two years.

State Fruit Crop Prospects Are Good

EAST LANSING (UP)—Michigan's 1954 fruit production prospects now are rated good, according to H. D. Hootman, Michigan State College extension specialist in horticulture.

Hootman said normal production of all fruit crops is indicated unless growers encounter late frosts, poor weather during the germination period, and insect infestations.

A slightly lower peach crop may result due to a continued decrease in the number of trees, the Michigan State expert declared. The number of bearing peach trees has been steadily declining since severe wind and sleet storms of 1950-51 damaged many Michigan orchards.

Principal worry of apple growers now is rainy weather which would depreciate the size and quality of the fall crop. In addition, damp weather stimulates development of scab diseases at this time of year, Hootman observed.

Solve Cheboygan Thefts

CHEBOYGAN (UP) — State police announced a solution to a dozen cottage breakins at Blake Lake's Restmore Resort. They said John Frost, 19, of Cheboygan, arrested on a charge of breaking and entering, had admitted the robberies.

The California Bureau of Mines says salt produced by evaporation on San Francisco Bay is 99.9 per cent pure.

Officials Discuss Land Use Planning

The Detroit Regional Planning Commission has completed a preliminary land use plan for Pontiac's municipal area and is attempting to form a Development Area Council to acquaint government officials in this vicinity with details of the plan.

City Manager Walter K. Willman said he has appointed City Planner Henry C. Smith as Pontiac representative on the proposed council.

A meeting was held last night at Pontiac Township Hall at which members of the Detroit group discussed the program with officials from this area, said Smith.

A land use plan, Smith explained, designates which areas are best suited for industrial, residential or other types of development.

The Detroit group aims at coordinated planning between Detroit and outlining areas by working up an over-all plan with the aid of local officials, Smith stated.
