U.S. Moon Blasted Into Outer Space

Free World's 1st Earth Satellite Placed in Orbit

Miss Front Page for February

PATRICIA A. O'BRIEN

We are indebted to Waterford Township for our Miss Front Page for February.

She is Patricia A. O'Brien, 21, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. O'Brien of 4926 Maycrest.

She is a graduate of Waterford High School, and during her school years took an active part in dramatics, school vocal groups and athletics. She also found time to become a cheerleader. Her hobbies, naturally, run to all kinds of sports, with swimming and bowling as her favorites.

★ ★ ★

Currently she is employed by the GMC Truck & Coach Division, in the personnel department. Come May, she has plans to change her last name.

30.8-Pound 'Explorer' Zooms Off Aboard Army's Jupiter C Missile

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (INS)—A bullet-shaped satellite blasted into space by the U.S. Army's Jupiter C rocket orbits the earth today with its radios steadily signaling the American space breakthrough in answer to the challenge of the Soviet Sputniks.

The made-in-U.S.A. artificial moon spins in its path around the globe at altitudes ranging from 230 miles at the closest point to about 2,000 miles, at a speed of 18,000 miles an hour, making an egg-shaped orbit every 113 minutes.

Named by the Army "The Explorer" in recognition of its historic status as the first U. S. Satellite and designated "1958 Alpha" in international astronomical usage, the 30.8-pound space exploration vehicle was launched from the missile test center at Cape Canaveral, at 10:48 p.m. (EST) last night.

In those brief minutes, the 70-foot, four-stage "Jupiter C" rocket thundered from its launching pad, disappeared in the sky and reached the point in outer space where the Army's bullet-shaped earth satellite was "injected" into its present orbit.

And, according to estimates here, which could prove more accurate than the estimates of "several months" released in Washington, the U.S. moon will stay in its orbit more than two years — or longer than either of the Soviet Sputniks.

The firing took place in a sea of floodlights as a murky overcast swirled over the Cape Canaveral missile test center last night.

Fueled and free of its usual enclosure—the scaffolding-like "gantry" that gives men access to its length—the Jupiter C stood alone for more than two hours, ejecting a wraith - like arm of liquid oxygen mist.

The launching had been held back for three days, but there were few delays in the final "countdown." The Army fired within less than 18 minutes of its 10:30 P.M. (EST) target time.

Eleven minutes before the zero hour, the "bucket" that contains the missile's upper stages began to spin at a rapid rate. In the glare of the lights, with the 80-inch long satellite mounted on top, the container looked like an old-fashioned butter churn with an up-and-down handle.

ROCKET CLUSTERS

Officials explained that the upper stages of the missile consisted of "clusters" of small rockets, and that the rotation of the bucket was to compensate for any uneveness in their firing.

★ ★ ★

A crisis occurred with only 50 seconds to go. Dr. Kurt Debus, director of the Army's 300-man launching team, was told that a coordinating radio "pulse" from one of the missile's guidance vanes was not coming through.

"FORGET IT"

Debus, a short, vigorous ex-German, reached a quick decision. "Forget it," he shouted, and the firing went ahead.

The ignition switch was thrown at exactly 28 and one-half seconds after 10:47 p.m. The satellite missile, rising from a ball of flame and ejecting a great tail of fire, could be seen with the naked eye shooting straight up for more than a minute until it disappeared as a faint star. With powerful field glasses, it could be seen still rising for more than three minutes.

For more than two minutes, the roar of its motor continued, like the sound of a low-flying fleet of jet planes.

Explorer Rates as Chatterbox

1st American Satellite Relays Detailed Data About Space

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

★ ★ ★

All this talk is in code, telling what the Explorer is learning about cosmic rays, meteorites, and temperatures hundreds of miles above earth.

Telemetering has long been done with rockets which soar up 50 to 200 miles, then fall down again. Instruments record information, code it, and broadcast in code. Ground stations record the signals on magnetic tape, then they are translated.

GASOLINE GAUGE

In a sense, your automobile gasoline gauge could be considered a telemetering device. The needle tells you how much gas you have—you don't have to put a stick inside the tank.

★ ★ ★

In essence, here's how the little moon's system works:

It is broadcasting on two transmitters, one on 108.03 megacycles, the other at 108 megacycles.

Each one has four channels for telemetering information, from descriptions published in technical journals before the launching.

These channels operate in different ranges of cycles per second.

In one method of measuring meteors, a sensitive microphone detects pings from hits by these tiny space bullets. Signals from the microphone drive a counting circuit for continuous transmission of the cumulative number of hits.

Cosmic rays can be counted in similar fashion to meteor hits, and earthbound men can learn how serious a hazard this radiation will be to crews of future space ships.

DECODED, ANALYZED

The taped records from ground receivers are decoded and analyzed to learn what the space talk means.

How soon will we learn what the little moon is finding?

Some of the major events can probably be reported fairly quickly—such as the temperature inside the satellite, or temperatures on the skin when it passes from sunshine into darkness.

Or if it is getting slugged by really sizeable meteors.

But precise data will be longer in coming. Each pass of the satellite produces recordings, and hundreds or thousands of passes overhead can build up a sea of records to be analyzed.

It might take three to five months to get precise data, one expert said.

Alone, Without Heat or Food

Elderly Waterford Man Lies Ill in Home 2 Days

An elderly Waterford Township man suffering from exposure and possible pneumonia was found in his home Friday afternoon where he had been alone for two days without food or heat, according to Oakland County Sheriff's Deputies.

Arthur G. Seconder, 80, of 966 Voorheis Rd., told Deputy Donald Kratt that he had been too sick and weak to move about for two days.

Seconder was rushed to Pontiac General Hospital where he is reported in satisfactory condition and "showing signs of improvement."

★ ★ ★

A mailman, John Martin, of 1987 Woodland St., heard Seconder's feeble cries for help yesterday and called the deputies. Seconder was wrapped in five or six blankets when he was discovered.

★ ★ ★

A neighbor, Mrs. C. E. Lindsey Jr., of 160 Tilden St., said he lived alone and took care of himself.

He told her that he'd been calling for help for two days. There is no phone in his small three-room house.

Flath Left Post in Honolulu Over Policy Matters

(Special to The Pontiac Press)

HONOLULU (AP) — Dr. Carl I. Flath, who served Queens Hospital as director here from 1946 to 1950 was asked to resign his post because of a difference with the hospital over policies, a reliable source reported today. There also was a clash over expenditures.

Flath discovered a discrepency in funds controlled by a subordinate, and some hospital board members held him responsible for the situation. He had returned to the U. S. mainland when the board messaged him to seek another post.

In a recent review of Flath's record here the board expressed belief that he was a good administrator.

Nebraska Killer Claiming Girl Willing Companion

★ ★ ★

Lancaster County Sheriff Merle Karnopp said Starkweather, 19, has admitted orally all 11 deaths, but now claims Caril was his willing companion on the murder tour that cost nine lives in Nebraska and one in Wyoming. The 11th killing was two months ago.

★ ★ ★

Earlier, both Starkweather and the girl had insisted she was a hostage.

Both are charged with first degree murder.

As he passed through an improvised press room at the penitentiary, he sullenly ignored the battery of news cameras.

Guy Starkweather, father of Charles, talked with his son by telephone after the youthful slayer was taken to the penitentiary.

"He just said, 'Hello, dad.' He talked to me just like he used to," the elder Starkweather said. "He was pleasant, I don't think he felt too good, though."

★ ★ ★

Charles' 14-year-old girl friend waited in a patrol car outside the prison gates while Starkweather was being settled in the state prison. She smiled at photographers and might even have talked to them had she not been restrained. But by the time she reached the county jail her smile was gone and she refused to talk to a reporter.

★ ★ ★

She was taken to the Lincoln State Mental Hospital, Nebraska law prevents detention of a juvenile girl in a county jail.

★ ★ ★

Another facet of the investigation developed when two Lincoln persons reported they had given authorities descriptions following the Dec. 1 slaying of Robert G. Colvert that tended to link Starkweather with the case.

★ ★ ★

Mayor Bennet Martin said he will ask for employment of an outside investigator to check the adequacy of the Starkweather investigation.

Chrysler to Reopen All Detroit Plants

DETROIT (INS) — Chrysler prepared today for a resumption of work Monday at all its Detroit area plants, which were hit by labor unrest this week.

★ ★ ★

But two United Auto Workers locals were reported making tentative plans to strike the auto firm.

★ ★ ★

Members of UAW Chrysler Local 7, who work at the Jefferson and Kercheval plants, have been urged to attend a meeting tomorrow to consider a strike vote. If they vote to strike, there must be a waiting period and international UAW approval before a walkout can be called.

★ ★ ★

UAW Dodge Local 3 already has been authorized by the international union to strike and reportedly may call a walkout early next week.

Know the Weather

By E. H. SIMS

Is thunder more likely to be heard with the arrival of a warm or a cold front?

Thunder is most often heard as an accompaniment of a cold front. When we surprisingly hear thunder in winter, which is rare, it is often caused by the fast approach of a cold front.

The cold front is the one which most often tends to build cumulonimbus (thunderhead) clouds on its leading edge in summer. Occasionally it will produce them in winter and these formations usually feature lightning and thunder.

The warm front, without the speed, violent updrafts and radical movements, is less inclined to cause lightning, thunder or blustery winds or hard rain

U.S. Moon Greeted Worldwide

Only Russia Is Dead-Pan

LONDON (AP) — Scientists and ordinary stargazers around the Sputnik-circled globe greeted the Free World's first satellite with smiling excitement today. The first Russian reaction was poker-faced.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

The satellite's orbit extends about 35 degrees of latitude on either side of the equator, taking the 30.8-pound Explorer over southern Asia and Australia, most of Africa and Latin America, and the Southern United States.

★ ★ ★

Most Europeans got the news on breakfast-time radio newscasts, since it came too late for morning papers. Moscow radio carried the report in overseas broadcasts but made no immediate mention of it in early broadcasts to home listeners.

★ ★ ★

The Soviet news agency Tass reported the launching without comment in a terse dispatch from Cape Canaveral.

Communist East Germany's radio station said the first U.S. satellite was launched "17 weeks after the start of the Soviet Union's first Sputnik." Sputnik I was launched last Oct. 3.

"It's a fine show they have got it up at last, a very good thing," Ryle commented.

Prof. Takeo Hatanaka of Tokyo University, one of Japan's top authorities on solar physics, said in Tokyo he was "certainly glad to hear (of the launching) because the United States definitely did it by keeping its word as its project for the International Geophysical Year."

The satellite was sent up to obtain scientific data as part of the U.S. contribution to the world-wide IGY.

"I trust the American scientists will cooperate with us in its observations, unlike the Russians who failed to furnish us with enough information," Hatanaka said.

An American officer at Allied Headquarters outside Paris was relieved by the news. "I'm sure glad we got that thing up there," he said. "I've heard about all the jokes I can take" about earlier U.S. failures.

A West German government official in Bonn said: "The American people are to be congratulated on this great scientific achievement." He added hope that the launching "will introduce a new era of peaceful scientific work to serve the progress of the whole of humanity."

When the U.S. Navy Vanguard project failed to get a satellite up, the anti-Communist Vienna newspaper Neue Weltpresse carried a cartoon depicting President Eisenhower missing a golf drive at a Sputnik the size of a golf ball.

Today the same paper showed a smiling Eisenhower getting off his drive. The caption said: "Now it flies."

Explorer and Sputnik II Not Likely to Collide

"More than a billion to one," Dr. G. F. Schilling, executive assistant to the director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, said today.

"For all practical purposes, it will not happen," Dr. Schilling said. "Outer space is too vast."

Mrs. Wilcox was a member of All Saints Episcopal Church, Junior Child Study Club, the Women's Association of the Pontiac Symphony Orchestra and the Pontiac Federation of Women's Clubs. She also belonged to Beta Theta Phi Sorority.

She had served as president of Guild No. 11 of her church and in 1948 was general chairman of a bridge party to benefit the American Cancer Society sponsored by the City Federation of Women's Clubs.

Surviving besides her husband is a son, James E. Wilcox at home; two brothers and two sisters.

St. Louis Hit by 7 to 11 Inches

Hundreds Left Stranded by Surprise Snowstorm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A surprise snowstorm that continued without letup for 11 hours yesterday left hundreds stranded overnight in St. Louis factories and schools.

The snowfall was measured officially at 7 to 11 inches in various parts of the metropolitan area. It was the city's heaviest since November, 1951, when a 12-inch fall set a 36-year record.

The storm began at 8:10 a.m., less than half an hour after the weather bureau forecast light rain, possibly mixed with snow. By nightfall streets and highways were clogged.

Since the storm wasn't forecast, thousands went to work or school unprepared.

★ ★ ★

The McDonnell Aircraft Corp. dismissed 1,500 employes at its plant northwest of St. Louis early yesterday afternoon, but most had been unable to leave the plant last night. The company supplied coffee, doughnuts and movies.

More than 30 persons were stranded overnight at Monsanto Chemical Co. headquarters in St. Louis County.

★ ★ ★

Many retail stores, including the department stores, closed early — some by as much as five hours. Most public schools also closed early.

At least two persons collapsed and died while shoveling snow.

The 11-inch measurement was at the municipal airport northwest of the city. The depth in the business district was measured at 8 inches. Unofficial readings of 12 inches were reported in suburbs.

★ ★ ★

The storm lost much of its punch as it moved eastward today. After bringing severe thunderstorm and tornado warnings to the Southeast during the night, storm activity diminished to mostly rain and scattered showers from Virginia to Georgia and westward through Tennessee and southern Kentucky.

First U.S. Satellite Zooms Into Space

The moon's birth was officially timed at five seconds after 10:55 p.m. That was when Dr. Ernst Stuhlinger, research director at the Redstone Arsenal, pushed a button that released the upper stages and "injected" the satellite into its orbit.

Stuhlinger's assignment was considered the most important of the highly-technical jobs. He acted after determining by four different methods that the rocket was on a path exactly parallel to the surface of the earth at orbital altitude.

INSIDE STORY

Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, chief of the Army ballistic missile agency, and his technical chief, met later with newsmen to tell the inside story of the launching.

Medaris estimated on the basis of "preliminary data" that the satellite would stay in orbit from two and one-half to 10 years, but in Washington, Dr. Wernher Von Braun, Medaris' technical director, would go no further than "several months."

The general made it clear that the Army is ready to launch a second satellite, but would give no date. He also said that the Army has submitted to the Pentagon proposals for "more sophisticated" experiments that may include sending rockets to the moon.

'Skaters' Holiday for '58' to Be Presented Feb. 16

"Skaters' Holiday for 1958" will be staged at the rink at 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 16. Special features of the show will be a square dance, ballet, clown acts and the appearance of Olympic performers.

A cast of 500 persons will be selected mainly from among the boys and girls who have been taking skating lessons at the rink during the past year.

Patricia Husemann, supervisor at the park, said girls 12 years of age and over are needed to complete the girls' broom hockey teams. They meet each Saturday from 7 to 8 p.m.

Released on a bond of $750, David Pew, 17, of 320 Suffield Rd. stood mute in Birmingham Municipal Court yesterday to charges of attempting to extort money from a neighbor by threatening property damage to his home.

Pew, who had sent two notes, one demanding $15 and the other $20, was arrested Wednesday when he picked up a phony payoff planted by Birmingham Police.

★ ★ ★

Saturday commuter service between Birmingham and Detroit on the Grand Trunk Railroad was discontinued today, H. J. nounced.

An extensive traffic study had been made and the company feels that the regular Saturday service will be sufficient, he said.

Three early morning commuter trains have been dropped from the schedule.

Ruble Thomas, nuclear engineer for Atomic Power Development Associates, Inc., will speak and show slides on "Atomic Power at Laguna Beach" before members of the Birmingham High-12 Club at their dinner meeting Monday evening.

He will talk on his company's work in the development of an atomic reactor to be used in the production of electricity.

Edwin Kibert, executive secretary of the Birmingham YMCA, is asking early reservations for the winter conference Feb. 22 and 23 a Camp Ohiyesa. The meet for young adults will be headed by discussion leader Cliff Drury of Lansing.

Plans will be made for late spring, summer and fall activities of the group.

He and three jubilant colleagues —the German-born Von Braun himsef was totally calm — answered questions from 12:56 a.m. to 2:08 a.m.

REPORTERS APPLAUD

The more than 100 bleary-eyed reporters, alerted for days for The Big Moment, burst into applause at their appearance. The questioning was a hubbub of shouting. But the answers came as precise and orderly as the radioed musical tone of the U.S. satellite flung into orbit last night by the Jupiter-C.

With Von Braun were Dr. William H. Pickering of the California Institute of Technology and Dr. James A. Van Allen of the University of Iowa, respectively.

They had been in charge of Jupiter-C's design, final-stages propulsion, and cosmic ray recording.

They were presented to the newsmen with a flourish by Dr. Richard W. Porter, chief of the technical panel of the U.S. earth satellite program.

★ ★ ★

It was almost as if Porter were saying, "And now, fresh from a triumphant grand opening at Cape Canaveral, Fla., I give you . . . ."

The first question was, "How many stages is your rocket?"

Von Braun fielded it. "Four," he said, and went on to tell about them. In the course of his lecture he got on the subject of fuels and motorcycles.

SUBSTITUTE FUEL

He said the first stage was a modified Redstone missile. One modification, he said, was to change the fuel—keeping the original liquified oxygen but substituting something else for the alcohol.

What else?

How did they spiral the tube-shaped satellite like a football to orbiting speed?

"Electric motors," Von Braun said, "hooked up with a very simple arrangement just like a motorcycle belt on drive chain."

The vaulted gilt-and-blue hall was an ideal place for the news conference. On the wall in back of Von Braun and his colleagues was a quotation from Aeschyus' 'Prometheus Bound." It said:

Hearken to the miseries that beset mankind . . . until I taught them to discern the risings of the stars and their settings. . . ."

More Winter . . . or Early Spring

Tomorrow We Will Know

Parka or windbreaker, galoshes or loafers, leaf rake or snow shovel, tomorrow we know.

Yes, Sunday is the day when the die is cast — six more weeks of burly winter, or the first gentle zephers of spring.

★ ★ ★

For tomorrow, Mr. Quintus Q. Groundhog, known to some of his younger friends as Woody Woodchuck, makes his first appearance of the year and informs his followers on weather conditions for the next six weeks.

Mr. Groundhog, as he has every Feb. 2 since before the white man appeared in these parts, will emerge from his comfortable underground burrow, stand on his hind legs and peak over his shoulder.

What he sees, decides our fate.

★ ★ ★

While legions of anxious householders, farmers, road-salting workers, and folklorists stand with binoculars trained on the star performer, Mr. Groundhog will make his forcast.

Then he will return to his winter sleeping quarters for either another nap or to sharpen his teeth, check his grocery list and prepare for an early social season in the woods.

Burglars Bungle at Two Groceries

Burglars unsuccessfully attempted the looting of two Pontiac supermarkets but failed in both ventures.

National Food Store, 635 N. East Blvd., was entered by prying open a rear door. The thieves smashed off the handle of the office safe, but could not open it and fled.

Fire Kills 2, Routs 100

CINCINNATI, Ohio (INS)— A five-alarm fire erupted in Cincinnati's West End early today taking two lives and forcing 100 persons to scramble for doors and windows in hectic disorganized escape.

It Seems to Me . . .

City Hospital Case Will Require Complete and Detailed Trial

Charges and demands in connection with this City Hospital case continue to mount. Considering all the new and unexpected ramifications, I'm convinced that the trial should be complete, detailed and revelatory. All the facts must be uncovered. If the testimony takes days and days—let it.

Let's clear the atmosphere.

Let's make an all-out bid for peace.

★ ★ ★

This community is suffering more adverse and damaging publicity over this than it has over any happening of the past decade. There are tens of thousands of people inside the city and outside who have no clear picture of the mess. They have no way to arrive at a personal conclusion until the facts are clearly established from the mass of testimony which will be introduced.

★ ★ ★

As soon as possible, Pontiac's City Hospital should be allowed to settle back into the important and exclusive business of housing the sick, the infirm and the maimed.

★ ★ ★

The collective role of medical, political and civic football is unfortunate and deplorable. The atmosphere must be cleared, settled and a decision rendered for the best interests of the general public — not for any group, board or individual.

We, the people, come first.

Special Treatment?

BLIZZARD SWEEPS NORTH

The appearance of three dancing snowflakes in the far reaches of Minnesota is practically enough to send this sensational banner flashing eagerly all over Vacationland. There's nothing that so delights the soul of a Floridian as a "blizzard sweeping the North."

★ ★ ★

Frequently, if you read the stories beneath the headlines, you will find that a light snow is falling in Buffalo — probably transforming the area into a veritable fairyland — but, in Florida, Buffalo is doomed for the rest of the winter.

★ ★ ★

The weather hasn't been too kind to Florida this year, but there's no rejoicing in the North.

We feel sorry.

We hope it improves.

We want Florida to get the finest and the maximum sunshine. We want the area to prosper. We want the natives happy and the visitors ecstatic.

★ ★ ★

Starting December 11th, the Weather Man has dealt unkindly with Florida. He cracked 'em for a hundred million dollars worth of citrus fruit in one mighty blow and tourist trade in December and January has been at an unsatisfactory level.

★ ★ ★

Several years ago, a good friend of mine—and yours—who is now a staunch and rock-ribbed denizen of the South, dropped into this humble emporium on West Huron Street to launch a protest. It was NELS KNUDSEN and he said he decried the fact that The Pontiac PRESS printed stories about Florida's hurricanes and windstorms.

"They hurt us," sez he.

"But s'posen they're true," sez I.

"But how about 'Blizzard Sweeps North' in Florida newspapers?" I asked, a bit aggrieved.

"That," says the earnest and truthful Mr. KNUDSEN, "is a very, very different thing."

"Oh," says I nonplused.

And on this cheerful and friendly note of complete disagreement the conversation ceased. The Press still prints stories of Florida's misadventures — along with the rest of the world — including our own.

And in Conclusion . . . . . .

Little Known Facts About Well Known People: Mrs. DOROTHY WHITFIELD was born in Germany and her mother was a talented opera singer . . . . . Overheard in a Birmingham beauty shop: "It's certainly exciting to be married to one of those Lions' linemen. Every Sunday night he looks like a different person." . . . . . Who knows a grander girl—looks, ability and personality—than Mrs. EDNA GREEN?

★ ★ ★

The newest game in New York's skid row sees three bums slide into a vacant doorway, down a bottle of Sneaky Sam, and then one leaves. The game is for the other two to guess which one's gone . . . . . I don't like the latest story against Eisenhower but here it is: A Secret Service man hurries up to the foursome ahead of Ike and says: "Would you mind letting The President play through? War was just declared" . . . . . O. L. Beaudette, a lifetime native of this area and a man who "gets around" Oakland County, says that Dollar Lake at Keego Harbor is bottomless. Who'll volunteer to tell him how deep it really is?

★ ★ ★

The March of Dimes drive makes me uneasy. We ought to give and yet I refuse to contribute to the few stubborn, selfish agencies that won't come in the Community Chest. Either we believe in "united" giving or we don't. The PRESS does . . . . . CAROL CHANNING ("Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend") showed up at a party recently wearing more than a million dollars worth of diamonds—all rented.

Department of Cheers and Jeers: the C's: Coach GENE WRIGHT of St. Fred's basketball team because he put team play and fair play ahead of victories; the J's: Those ALFRED HITCHCOCK Sunday night programs that get worse weekly.

—HAROLD A. FITZGERALD

SOME are beginning to doubt that the peoples of different idealogies among the nations derive enough satisfaction and enjoyment out of hating one another to compensate for the enormous cost it entails.

MANY parents are up against the tough problem of how to control children who are too big to spank and too dumb to reason with.

AMONG many evaluations of the year 1957, nobody can disagree with this one, made by an Ohio editor: "It was the best 1957 we ever had."

The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

St. Paul's faith gave him the strength to travel from city to city throughout the eastern Mediterranean, the power to withstand trials and hardship, and the love to inspire faith among new peoples in new lands:

"For as many as are led by the spirit of God, they are the sons of God . . . And whether one member suffer, all members suffer with it . . . And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."

Days of All Faiths

Celebrate Candlemas Monday

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Candlemas, celebrated Monday normally falls on Feb. 2, but this year it was outranked by the Sunday called Septuagesima and displaced to the third.

The real name of this festival is the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary. It commemorates the time when, 40 days after the birth of her Baby, Mary went to the Temple, according to the custom of Jewish women, to go through the traditional purifying ceremony and to make a formal presentation of her Son to God.

The secondary name, Candlemas, came about in an interesting way. As the Holy Family entered the Temple, they met there an aged man named Simeon, who had been promised that he would live until he had seen the Messiah. The story is told in St. Luke's second chapter, beginning at the 25th verse.

Simeon took the Child in his arms and spoke the now - famous lines known as the Nunc Dimittis, in which Jesus is called "a light to lighten the Gentiles." Because of this reference to light, candles became an important feature of the Purification festival.

Eventually the custom arose of blessing the year's supply of candles on this day and of giving consecrated candles to the people who came to Mass. Naturally, the day was soon called Candlemas.

To many Americans Feb. 2 is merely Ground - hog Day, but this is only a secularizing of the weather prophecies originally attached to Candlemas. The European version was that a bright day today meant a continuation of winter. Some obscure poet put the matter pictorially. If the badger saw his shadow today, winter would go on.

When the "Pennsylvania Dutch" came to America, they found no badgers in their part of the new country, so they adopted the tradition to the hibernating animal most common in their area, the woodchuck, or ground-hog.

MAN'S AWE OF FIRE

Light and fire have always fascinated mankind. Candles still have for us all a charm far beyond their utilitarian use as illumination. We don't need them in church or on the dinner table — we could turn on the electric lights. But we keep them.

Is it because of some unconscious memory in us that goes all the way back to our ancestors' love and awe of fire? Fire could kill, but it could also save — from cold, from wild animals, from witches, from the terrors of the dark. Why does man still want candles at the crucial points of human experience: birth, weddings, death?

Dr. William Brady's Mailbag:

Man, Wife Get Laughs Learning to Somersault

"Almost broke my neck doing somersaults, but got my husband to try it and I laughed until I cried at the sight! We think your health teaching is wonderful. (Mrs. H. W.)"

DR. BRADY

Answer —If you break your neck or slip your innominate, it's no laughing matter. I recommend regular morning rolls before breakfast, but remember, you do 'em at your own peril. Send stamped, self - addressed envelope for pamphlet The Somersaultauqua.

"From personal experience I am satisfied that, as you have always contended, having a baby at home is far better than having a baby in hospital. And at risk of sounding old - fashioned, I believe that nursing one's offspring is the better way. After all, aren't babies old-fashioned too? (Mrs. P.R.T.)"

Answer — It is the better way, and it is another good reason for having your baby at home.

"A registered nurse for 10 years, I have found your newspaper articles refreshing and instructive and I am indebted to you for recommending Adelle Davis' books to me. However, our three small children seem to have very frequent colds . . . (W.D.T., R.N.)"

Answer — Send 35c and stamped, self-addressed envelope for booklet Call it CRI. Teach the children to do so too, and to remember why.

"Have received much help from your teachings. I used to have such hard heart beat — sometimes it felt as if it would pop out of my body, but not any more, and my blood pressure has gone down too, thanks to belly breathing . . . (W. C.)"

Answer — For instructions, send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for the pamphlet Belly Breathing.

"For 35c and stamped, self-addressed envelope enclosed, please send booklet Blood and Health. We have here an old fashioned druggist who, I'm sure, will supply the ingredients required to make the blood tonic you recommend. (S.M.C.)"

Answer — If your druggist can supply garnet red scales of iron — and ammonium — citrates, many readers would like to know about it. When I began recommending it the iron - and - ammonium - citrates in garnet red scales was official in the U.S. Pharmacopoeia.

The stuff became so popular, by the pound or ounce, that something had to be done to discourage people from preparing their own tonic, so in the course of a few years it was no longer available. Reluctantly I deleted directions for making the blood tonic and substituted my recommendation of a ready - made blood tonic, in the recent editions of Blood and Health.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Offers Suggestion to Solve Parking for City Employes

Taxpayers have read of the battle over parking of private cars of City and Police officials at City Hall and the Public Safety Building. I'm sure most feel they're doing a good job and employes of both ask only a fair place to park.

The parking lot back of the two buildings is there and a row for each will not hurt the general public's use of the lot. Another place would be two rows on the street front in the Pike Street parking lot. That wouldn't hurt the public, for during most days there's plenty of empty space.

Taxpayers think a lot of our City employes and as a taxpayer, I say let's help these people out and stop acting like children fighting over petty things.

'Millionaire Isn't the Greedy One'

Here we are again, up against the old problem of those who have and those who have not. We all have access to the same advantages such as education. As for older persons who missed out as children, courses in adult education, our wonderful libraries filled with many books are available to anyone.

We can't help but wonder why, when things get a little tough, there are those who aren't prepared for it and others who have saved a little to tide them over.

The greed belongs to those who think others owe them a living, those who want to share the profits and ignore the many costs of operations, those who want all the good and none of the bad. It must be an awfully tough job to become a millionaire, when, for some, it is a tough job just keeping a small house operating in the black.

'Some Are Wrong About Civil Service'

Since adoption of Civil Service for the Police Department, there has been much comment in the paper about the loss of power to hire or fire by the Chief of Police. Many people are obviously misinformed on this matter, as prior to Civil Service this authority was vested only in the Police Trial Board, which was in operation for years.

The only basic difference to hiring and firing between the Commission and the Trial Board is that the Commission obtains its authority from State law and and cannot be abused so conveniently.

Ask some of the older policemen how it felt to be a policeman when a Chief of Police did have that power. The only hitch in our current system is the open refusal of the present administration to accept the Civil Service as the legally expressed desire of the majority of the citizens.

Answers Letter From Ole Polly

In reference to the letter signed Ole Polly, the only thing I'm in accord with is the suitability of the pen name. It always suggests the type of a bird more commonly known as the parrot whose only two outstanding characteristics are the power of imitation and a colorful plumage. The only difference between a young polly and an Ole Polly is an increase in its ability to mimic and a fading of the plumage.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Remain Slim to Retain Romance

Wives, how do you expect your husband to love you when you look like a waddling walrus as you walk? And when you feel like a young hippopotamus if he takes you on his lap, or a baby elephant if he tries to escort you around the dance floor? Diet NOW. Then you will regain your allure and banish his growing platonic nature. Send for the diet plan below!

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case X-318: Mabel G., aged 43, is an efficient housewife and an active church worker, although she weighs 172.

★ ★ ★

DR. CRANE

"Dr. Crane, I am worried about my husband," she began. "He is the same age as I am, but our marriage is largely platonic.

"He seems to have lost his romantic interest. He is a stodgy husband who sits down with the evening paper and then watches TV till he falls asleep in his easy chair.

"Our marriage is growing listless. I don't like to think I shall spend the rest of my life as just a chief cook and laundress.

REVIVE HIS ARDOR

★ ★ ★

In such cases, a medical check-up is wise. But most men like Mabel's husband become platonic due to a reduction in the stimulating value of the wife.

For men associate romance with slenderness! So I asked Mabel how much she had weighed on her wedding day.

And she said 124 pounds, which meant she had added 48 pounds to her chassis since then.

She looked rotund and maternal. Remember, when an artist wishes to sketch a middle aged woman, he simply adds to her waist line!

★ ★ ★

So I suggested that Mabel go on a diet and see what would happen.

LOSE 10 LBS. IN 10 DAYS

Mabel agreed to reduce. I restricted her to 800 calories per day, with at least half of them in protein foods like meat, cottage cheese, beans, etc.

But to kill her appetite faster, since it was cool weather, I limited her total fluid intake to 8 ounces (one glass) the first day. She was entitled to two glasses the second day, and three glasses from the third day through the 10th day.

This dehydration plan makes your mouth dry, but it also seems to dry up the gastric juice that helps generate hunger, so you may feel thirsty but not ravenous for food.

In 10 days you will thus be down at least 10 pounds. Obviously, some of this weight loss is due to lack of fluids, but it is a great tonic to your morale.

For you men can then take up a notch in your belts and women can do the same with their girdles.

After the first 10 days, you no longer restrict your fluids and can add 50 per cent more to your calories until you finally reach your dieting goal.

PROOF OF PUDDING

When Mabel had lost 22 pounds and then weighed 150, her husband began to perk up. He would come into the kitchen and kiss her as soon as he got home from the office.

As she approached the 140 mark, he began suggesting a movie date and his platonic nature melted away.

At 135, she levelled off, for he felt she was just perfect at that figure. And their stodgy marriage again became romantic and ardent!

So send for my booklet "How to Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days," enclosing a stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents (non-profit).

It is not only good insurance for longer life, but a means of restoring your romantic allure and sex appeal.

Slender wives seldom have platonic husbands.

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 3c stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

'That's Wonderful!'--Ike's Reaction to Baby Moon

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)— "That's wonderful!" That was President Eisenhower's elated reaction early today to word that an Army Jupiter-C rocket had rammed the United States' first satellite into orbit around the earth.

★ ★ ★

Then, after waiting up for that word until nearly 1 a.m. (EST), the happy President put out the first official announcement that the baby moon was racing around the globe.

Eisenhower, here for a weekend of golf and bridge, got the orbiting information by telephone from Washington about two hours after the satellite-carrying rocket was launched at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

At a dramatic news conference, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty issued this statement by the President:

★ ★ ★

"Dr. J. Wallace Joyce, head of the International Geophysical office of the National Science Foundation, has just informed me that the United States has successfully placed a scientific earth satellite in orbit around the earth.

"The satellite was orbited by a modified Jupiter-C rocket.

"This launching is part of our country's participation in the International Geophysical Year. All information received from this satellite promptly will be made available to the scientific community of the world."

★ ★ ★

The phone message from Washington that the satellite was in orbit was given to the President at the Augusta National Golf Club by Hagerty.

"He had just two words," Hagerty reported. And then he quoted Eisenhower as having told him:

"That's wonderful!"

For old soldier Eisenhower, who spent 40 years in the Army, there was no doubt the successful launching and the orbiting amounted to a special thrill.

The Army, once just about ruled out of the missile development field, had stepped in to bolster U.S. prestige after Russia's launching of two Sputniks.

★ ★ ★

But at the Eisenhower vacation headquarters there was not even a hint of criticism of the Navy and its unsuccessful efforts to launch a Vanguard test satellite. The Navy's first attempt Dec. 6 failed, and it had to give up temporarily again last weekend.

That cleared the stage for the Army.

Eisenhower flew from Washington to Augusta yesterday afternoon, and the word when he arrived was that weather conditions for an Army launching attempt at Cape Canaveral probably would not be right before early next week.

For the first time since he suffered a minor stroke Nov. 25 the President got in a regular round of golf. He had just come off the course and was settling down to a few rubbers of bridge with friends when Hagerty received the first of several phone calls from Washington. They all came from Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, White House staff secretary and Eisenhower's liaison man with the Pentagon.

Goodpaster reported the weather was clearing at Cape Canaveral and said it was beginning to look as if the Jupiter-C could be launched during the night. The firing time target at that point was 10:34 p.m. (EST).

★ ★ ★

Hagerty, headquartered at a hotel a few miles from the President's cottage at the edge of the golf course, promptly relayed that message to Eisenhower.

At 8:30 p.m. Goodpaster called Hagerty again. The big rocket was being fueled.

Hagerty went from his hotel to Eisenhower's cottage. He called the President away from friends at the dinner table and gave him the latest information.

★ ★ ★

At 9:50 p.m. there was another call from Goodpaster to Hagerty. It then seemed virtually certain the rocket would be launched. Goodpaster left his Washington home and went to the White House to cut into a special telephone circuit linking him to Pentagon officials who—across the Potomac River — were getting phone reports from Cape Canaveral. Goodpaster opened another line to Hagerty.

★ ★ ★

At 10:25 p.m. and again a few minutes before the launching at 10:48, Goodpaster again was on the phone to Hagerty. And as the moment of launching approached, Goodpaster repeated the Cape Canaveral preparatory countdown to Hagerty — "X minus seven, X minus six. . . ."

★ ★ ★

At 10:48 the fire command was given and 16 seconds later the Jupiter-C was on its way into space.

★ ★ ★

At that point the President got on the phone to Washington and for several minutes listened to Goodpaster relay from Cape Canaveral a word picture of the rocket's flight.

★ ★ ★

Almost two hours later Goodpaster received word from the National Science Foundation the satellite was in orbit around the earth. Goodpaster phoned Hagerty a last time, Hagerty phoned Eisenhower, and the President exclaimed:

"That's wonderful!"

SATELLITE PLACED ON ROCKET — Satellite and final stage rocket, designed to orbit as one unit, are assembled by technicians at the Army's ballistic missile agency in Huntsville, Ala. Last night an Army Jupiter-C missile, carrying a satellite of this type, blasted off from Cape Canaveral, Fla. The final stage, plus the pointed cylindrical satellite case is 80 inches long and has a nominal diameter of six inches.

Moon's Mission: Check Radiation

Tiny Geiger Counter to Give Cosmic Ray Count Through Microphone

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)— Measurement of cosmic radiation is the primary mission of the first American satellite, put together in the jet propulsion laboratory at California Institute of Technology here, scientists said last night.

★ ★ ★

The satellite itself is 79 inches long and weighs 29.87 pounds, including the shell of the final stage rocket, they said. The instrument package weighs about 10 pounds and includes two miniature radio transmitters.

★ ★ ★

A tiny geiger counter will give the cosmic ray count and a miniature microphone will pick up the impact of tiny meteorites, laboratory spokesmen told a news conference.

★ ★ ★

Temperature measurements of the satellite also will be recorded. All of this data will be transmitted over the two small radios, which are part of the laboratory's microlock system. This system enables the weak signals of the two transmitters to be heard for distances up to 3,000 mile.

★ ★ ★

A high-power transmitter, broadcasting on 108.03 megacycles will send out information on the temperature inside and outside the satellite shell. A low-power transmitter will broadcast meteoritic and cosmic ray impacts.

★ ★ ★

At the base of the satellite are four flexible wire antennae about two feet long which are spread out in position by the rapid rotation of the satellite. Each of the transmitters has its own antenna.

Huntsville Celebrates U.S. Moon Launching

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (INS)—Delirously happy Huntsville residents danced in the streets into the small hours today under the magic spell of the artificial moon many of them had helped put into the heavens.

Huntsville—home of the Army ballistic missile agency which developed the satellite-launching Jupiter C rocket—whooped up the debut of "1958 Alpha" as if it were "V-J Day al lover again."

Crowds began surging into Town Hall square within minutes of the announcement that the rocket was off the ground at Cape Canaveral, and even before the post-midnight announcement that the satellite was in oribt.

Before the night was over the waving people saw such strange sights as:

—Mayor R. B. (Specs) Searcy shooting off firecrackers. There was no thought of the city's ordinance banning fireworks, and non-satellite carrying rockets sizzled into the air and one-inchers popped all about.

—The city's police cars, ambulances and fire trucks, with sirens wailing, circling the town to wake up anyone who missed the good news.

Significantly the made-in-America Sputnik whipped into the sky on the eve of the birthday of the Army ballistic missile agency.

The Army agency is two years old today and had begun its celebration of the event—without the presence of the heads of various missile branches — with an open house for employes and military and civic leaders from Huntsville yesterday.

Some 17,000 of the city's 65,000 residents are connected with Redstone Arsenal, and 5,000 of the total directly associated with the ballistic missile agency.

Huntsville came quickly alive as news spread that the rocket and its satellite were space-bound. Sirens wailed — pulling people from their homes into the streets.

Placards proclaimed that the "South Did Rise Again" and "Move Over Sputnik, Space is Ours." The crowds danced in the streets.

There still was a monstrous traffic jam at 2 a.m.

★ ★ ★

Then he added:

U. S. Teams Ready to View Explorer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Moonwatch teams throughout the world were ready today for their initial opportunity to view Explorer, the first American satellite.

★ ★ ★

Officials at Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory predicted the satellite could be visible over the United States for the first time tonight.

★ ★ ★

Leon Campbell Jr., director of Project Moonwatch, said "as a rough guess" the baby moon will enter the country over New Mexico at dusk, cross the Deep South and soar out of view off the East Coast.

Soviet News Agency Quick to Report Moon

MOSCOW (INS) — News of the American satellite launching took top priority today when the Soviet news agency Tass opened its morning service.

A New York dispatch reporting the successful launching of the Army's Jupiter-C satellite rocket was the first item in the Tass' news report.

U. S. Leaders Hail Moon

No Monopoly of Ability

WASHINGTON (INS) — Top government and congressional leaders today hailed the launching of America's first earth satellite as a step in the peaceful exploration of outer space.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon sounded the keynote of Capitol Hill and Pentagon reaction when he said the firing "proves to the world that there is no monopoly of scientific capability."

Nixon said: "This achievement with the Jupiter C emphasizes the wisdom of President Eisenhower's proposal for the development of space exploration in the cause of peace rather than the wastage of war."

★ ★ ★

Describing the feat as a joint undertaking of "American science and industry backed by the military," Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy said:

"The data the satellite will gather will be made available to all nations and will enrich the knowledge of the world."

Dr. Wernher Von Braun, the German rocket expert who created the "baby moon," said, "This is the beginning in the long range program to conquer outer space."

He added: "Satellites have many uses of great value in scientific, military and communications fields. We will move onward to more challenging missions as fast as our resources permit."

Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker said the launching means the U.S. "has demonstrated its emergence into a new scitentific and technological era."

Maj. Gen. J. B. Medaris, commander of the Army ballistic agency at Huntsville, Ala., said that success of the project represents a cooperative effort.

★ ★ ★

Retiring Army research chief Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin pledged that the U.S. will use the launching to improve "the lot of mankind everywhere."

On Capitol Hill, House majority and minority leaders John W. McCormack and Joseph W. Martin, both of Massachusetts, had words of praise for the Army.

Martin said: "It keeps us abreast, if not ahead, of the Russians in the fight for control of outer space."

McCormack said: "I am glad to hear the good news and I hope it is a complete success."

Other comments were:

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont): "It's awfully good news and I'm delighted . . . I hope it marks the beginning of a lot more."

Rep. Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex): "I feel that if the Jupiter C had been used first we would have had a satellite in orbit in 1956."

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass): "It's a good start toward our conquering space. I congratulate all concerned for a team effort."

Rep. Clarence Cannon (D-Mo): "It is very gratifying and indicates our American scientists are still the foremost in the world."

Sen. Homer Capehart (R-Ind): "I always knew we could and would do it, and I have always felt on the overall basis that we were ahead of the Russians in the missiles race."

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn): "The Army has had hardware to fire a satellite since 1956. It's a shame that they were held back . . . I think we ought to immediately urge the United Nations to develop space rules and regulations."

But News Thrills Colonel's Wife

Nickerson Mum on Moon

PANAMA (AP)—Col. John C. Nickerson, banished champion of the Army's Jupiter-C missile, heard about the U.S. satellite early today in officially imposed silence.

★ ★ ★

His wife, not inhibited by an Army court martial, fairly screamed with excitement at the news. "I think it's wonderful," she exclaimed.

"He has orders not to comment on missiles," Mrs. Nickerson said when it was suggested the colonel talk to a reporter on the phone.

"But I have no orders not to talk," she said, "and I think it's wonderful the Army has lived up to all the things it promised."

Nickerson is the 41-year-old career officer sent to Panama last August after conviction by a court martial on charges he gave secret information to unauthorized persons. The accusation grew out of his determined campaign against a Defense Department order limiting Army missile activity.

Nickerson, who had been a top officer at the Army missiles center at Huntsville, Ala., was cut off from all missile work and was relieved of holding any command position for a year.

St. Hugo Rites Held at Noon

Bloomfield Hills Pair to Reside in California

Married at noon today in St. Hugo of the Hills Catholic Church were Charlotte Donnelly Nichols and Howard E. Allen of Carmel, Calif. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the family.

★ ★ ★

Charlotte wore a princess styled floor-length gown of ivory peau de soie highlighted by a lace yoke and three-quarter length sleeves. Her full skirt swept back to form a train, and a lace cap held her shoulder-length veil of tulle. She carried an arm bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

ATTENDED BY SISTERS

Two sisters of the bride, Mrs. William P. MacEneaney of Larchmont, N. Y., and Mrs. Arthur D. Foley of Washington, D. C., served as attendants. Both were gowned in street-length frocks of blue with deeper blue velvet bandeaus worn in their hair. They carried white shattered carnations.

The newlyweds will travel to Carmel, Calif., where they will reside.

'Wild Look' Hair Styles Come Back

Gentlemen who prefer gentle, docile-looking gals have upsetting news in store for them.

★ ★ ★

Blame it on Sophia Loren, Brigitte Bardot or the other sex sirens—the "wild look" in hairdos is back.

Once more the ladies who want to be "best-tressed" as well as best-dressed will be sporting coiffures that have the "just-fell-out-of-bed" look, the kind unimaginative males refer to as the "bird's nest" or something whipped up with a mixer.

This hair-raising news was revealed when the Guild of Professional Beauticians, whose members design hair fashions the way couturieres plan new styles, announced the coiffure trend for 1958.

Without splitting hairs, the beauty operators of the nation, who claim they follow the wishes of madame in creating new hair styles, feel that 1958 is the "wild look" year. The tempestuous locks like space ships will flow free and easy. There will be a bounce to every ounce of curl.

Don't Overcrowd Your Living Room

Some hostesses pay more attention to the list of people they "owe" than to the size of their living rooms when planning a party.

Then they get so many guests into the house that there isn't room to move and the air is blue with smoke and the babble of voices is deafening.

It's a dog's life—but Duke, a beagle owned by John Hunt of West Iroquois road, doesn't mind when he can have as much fun with John as he seems to be having here. Of course, John is pretty fond of Duke, too, so they have many good times together, romping and playing.

Dear Abby:

Grandpa's Smoke Trail Is Something to Watch

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

"DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I am an old grouch but I think I have a legitimate complaint. My husband's father is close to 90 and one of the few pleasures he has left in life is smoking, so nobody is going to ask him to give it up.

ABBY

"The problem is that since 1955 he has burnt a hole in my blue davenport, ruined the finish on my dining room table in two places, burnt a hole in my husband's overcoat, burnt a hole in the upholstery of our new 1956 auto, burnt a hole in my rug in the hall. He will be the death of me yet. Can you tell me what to do?"

★ ★ ★

NERVOUS

DEAR NERVOUS: He could not only be the death of YOU, he could be the death of himself and a number of other innocent people! Someone should carry the matches and supervise his smoking. If he is going to smoke, he must be watched every minute, or the ashes he leaves could be his own.

★ ★ ★

"DEAR ABBY: I am 52 years old and have been married 17 years. My wife is 46. We are both friendly with a young man of 25. We wined and dined him. He got drafted (big hero) and letters started coming to my house from him addressed to my wife alone.

"She never lets me see them but she answers them the same day and she also sends him peanut brittle. I told her she has no business writing to this guy, but she says there is nothing to it. Do you think if there was nothing to it she would tear up his letters in little tiny pieces? What shall I do?"

SAM

DEAR SAM: You're right—she has no business writing to this guy—tell her to knock off this sweet (and nutty) relationship.

★ ★ ★

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. FORBUSH: Last year over 18 million boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 17 were NOT picked up by police for any crime whatsoever.

Keep Brows Neat for Cleaner Look

After deciding on a brow line, keep it in training, so to speak, by plucking stray hairs. And this means those stragglers that creep in over the bridge of the nose.

Eating Correctly Will Glorify Hair

What you eat invariably affects your general appearance.

For fine, lustrous hair add fresh vegetables, fresh fruit and seafood to the regular diet. These foods are rich in minerals and iodine, good for hair health.

Careless Guests Annoy Everyone

She was wearing a beautiful full-length evening dress for the first time and while standing by the buffet table a careless guest helping himself to a "dip" dribbled the cheese concoction down the side of the dress.

Moral: Careless guests are not only irritating to their hostess, but often to other guests as well.

Confident Living

Man With Inner Conflict Lacks in Focus, Strength

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

PEALE

This curious incident occurred when I was in a taxi headed for the National Broadcasting Company's studios in New York to make some radio recordings. Having been very busy, my manuscripts were not quite ready. In recording for radio, I read from a manuscript to be sure of exact timing. So, there in the taxi, I had the papers on my lap, trying to get through them before arrival at the studio.

The driver noticed me working and, stopping at a red light, looked back at me with a queer smile and remarked, "You must be one of those intellectuals."

"What makes you think I'm an intellectual," I grinned.

"Well," he said, "you wear glasses, you're working on papers, even in a taxi, and you've got that busy, concerned look on your face. What are you worrying about, the world?"

"I'm certainly not worrying," I told him. And then I explained what I was doing. "To answer your question, I don't consider myself an intellectual, but naturally I am concerned about the world, as every thoughtful person should be."

★ ★ ★

"Don't let it bother you," he advised. "You ought to be like I am."

"How's that?"

"Well," he answered, "I'll tell you. I drive that taxi eight hours every day. Then I go home and put a good meal under my belt. I sit around and look at TV until I get sleepy. Then I go to bed and let the world go to blazes. That's how I have peace of mind."

I tried to tell him as politely as possible that he did not really have peace of mind. Actually, all he had was a dull, desultory attitude, with no interest in anything except his physical comfort. Of course, that kind of stupid selfishness never gets anybody any lasting peace of mind. But people have to find that out for themselves.

★ ★ ★

In a world like that of today, such astonishing listlessness is out of date. My taxi driver didn't understand how a person can be vitally alive to things, taking an active part in the perplexing problems of our time and yet have that wonderful quality called inner peace.

SEARCH FOR PEACE

Mistaken ways of seeking peace of mind are very widespread. The tensions of modern living drive people to search for inner peace as never before. But searching for it in sound ways is another question.

★ ★ ★

On the Twentieth Century Limited an inebriated businessman flopped into a chair beside me in the club car and thickly explained that peace of mind was "what he was after." I happened to sit with him in the diner for breakfast the next morning.

"Did you find that peace of mind you were looking for last night?" I asked.

Some people don't understand what we mean when we talk about peace of mind, inner peace or serenity of spirit. Some thoughtless persons even say it is a bad thing, that it is escapism, that it is a soothing potion for people who want to lead soft, innocuous lives.

★ ★ ★

Nothing could be further from the truth. The peace that comes from God—the only kind worth having—has nothing to do with escapism or evading one's responsibilities in the world. On the contrary, it is the very source of the power we need for meeting responsibilities and meeting them effectively. Even as the cyclone derives its force from a quiet center, so a person, to have real driving power, must have inner quietness.

★ ★ ★

The man with inner conflict will be lacking in focus, strength and vigor. To have energy and force, to live with directed power, you must cultivate peace, the kind that is described in those felicitous words, "the peace of God that passeth all understanding."

Chiefs Win, 54-52; Orion Falls, 57-42

Pontiac Central Given Scare by Catholic Central

By BRUNO KEARNS

The basketball series between Pontiac Central and Detroit Catholic Central is beginning to bear some resemblance to the baseball adage which goes, "The game is never over until the last man is out."

After Pontiac's 54-52 victory over the Shamrocks last night, the basketball parallel to the baseball adage could very well go, "The game is never over till the last shot is taken."

★ ★ ★

It was a typical Pontiac Central-Catholic Central thriller, and it was never cinched until Jim Skinner came down with a rebound with only two seconds to play.

The Detroit team took the lead early in the game and Pontiac fell seven points behind 21-14 midway in the second quarter.

The Chiefs pecked away and with one minute in the half they tied the count at 22-22. Joe Olshove hit to make it 24-22 and then Charley Barge tied it 24-24 to end the half.

★ ★ ★

The third period was a nip and tuck affair. Three times it was tied and then Catholic Central took a 30-27 lead.

Junior Bill Hayward hit for three straight field goals and kept the Chiefs within one point until the two minute mark when Harrison Munson had his first goal of the night on a tip to push Pontiac ahead 33-32.

The quarter ended 38-34, and the Chiefs held the lead throughout the hectic 4th stanza. Biggest margin was 45-39, but it was short-lived as the Shamrocks got within two, 47-45.

★ ★ ★

Catholic Central played a harassing zone throughout the game and in the last two minutes the Chiefs capitalized at the free throw line with Charley Barge, Dick Whitmer and Skinner combining for eight tosses, with a field goal by Skinner sandwiched in between.

With 43 seconds to play, PCH led 54-50. Paul Bibeau hit for CC to make it 54-52 with 18 seconds to go. Whitmer failed to get rid of the ball within five seconds coming down court and CC took it out with 10 seconds left.

The Shamrocks had the screaming crowd on its feet when Bill Schwartz fired from the corner. The ball hit the rim, bounced straight up, rolled around and out and Skinner took the all-important rebound to end the game.

★ ★ ★

"It was a reversal of form from last Tuesday's game," said coach Art Van Ryzin afterward, "but we can't deny Catholic Central, they are always a hustling ball club."

Munson had a poor night. He had only two points and had 0 for 7 at the charity line. Six times he missed the first shot on 1-1 occasions.

Hayward's 10 points in the second half were big factors.

★ ★ ★

Bob Morris led CC with 14 points before fouling out in the last three minutes.

PCH reserves also won, 53-32.

Pontiac Central Mat Team Gains 3rd Win

Ernie Slade, Ray Ronquillo, Dave Payne, Mel Nosanchuk and Sam Wiscombe all had pins and Erasmo Travino, Neil Smith and John Herron took decisions to spark the Chiefs. Pontiac has a 3-4 record.

Eaglets Upset by St. James

Bens Nail SCL Title

By H. GUY MOATS

One surprise was tossed into Friday night's round of action in the Suburban Catholic League, but it wasn't in the St. Benedict-St. Michael contest at Highland Park, where the Ravens clinched the loop title, 74-28.

★ ★ ★

No one in the circuit suspected St. Mary's Eaglets of Orchard Lake were going to take a licking at the hands of Ferndale St. James. But that's what happened, 54-47. It was only the 2nd loss of the season for Eaglets and just about wiped out any hopes of even sharing in the loop title.

Only other SCL game, Friday saw RO St. Mary defeat St. Rita 56-46.

Shamrocks made a fight of it for one period in Highland Park with the count 12-10 for Ravens. After that the champions rolled out to a 32-12 count at halftime and just steamed in on a 42-point 2nd half.

Larry Gacki was the big gun. He fired 'em in from all over the scoring area for his season's top mark of 34 points and for enough counters to dump the Pontiac five all alone.

★ ★ ★

Victory gave Ravens a season's mark to this time of 11-0 overall and 9 straight in the league.

Shamrocks were allowed only two points in the 2nd period, then went scoreless for 12 minutes beginning in the 2nd frame and didn't count again until after four minutes of the 3rd session.

Eaglets trailed at halftime, 22-21, moved ahead once in the 4th, then lost their poise and let St. James catch up, 44-44, with three minutes to go. Bill Tunnicliff and Bob Martin then combined for a 8-point spurge to clinch the victory.

Troy's Balance Pays Off in 'B' Loop Showdown

Dragons' Title Chances Fizzle; Avondale Slips Past Clawson, 53-50

By BILL CORNWELL

Scoring balance and backboard control, two priceless ingredients for a winning basketball team, brought Troy a step closer to the Oakland B League championship last night.

The Colts mixed those ingredients to perfection and handed Lake Orion a decisive 57-42 setback in their league showdown before a standing - room - only crown at Orion.

The herculean efforts of Nick Neira and Jim Drake were not enough to save the Dragons as the well - balanced Troy quintet dashed their hopes for the loop title.

Lanky Dick Booth meshed 22 points and six other Troy cagers entered the scoring column to put the Colts on the threshold of the Oakland B crown. Only runnerup Avondale still has a chance to catch them.

Co-champions with Troy last season, the Yellow Jackets clung tenaciously to their flickering hopes by eking out a 53-50 victory over Clawson yesterday. They still trail the front-running Colts by two full games.

In Friday's other conference game, Bob Bush and Frank Birdwell netted 15 points apiece to spearhead Fitzgerald's 59-37 rout of Madison. Scoring honors went to Madison's Rick Moos, who tallied 17.

Troy's impressive triumph preserved its spotless record. The Colts are now untouched in 11 games, six in the Oakland B circuit.

Neira sparked the sputtering Orion attack with 18 points and Drake had 13, his lowest total of the season, when he fouled out in the 1st minute of the 4th period.

It was the Dragons' 3rd loss in eight starts and evened their league record at 3-3. The loss to Troy was their 2nd this season.

Clarkston Rolls On

It was Clarkston's 8th straight W-O triumph and 10th in a row overall.

Northville had a close call before gaining revenge for an earlier loss in a 58-55 win over Brighton, Milford had one of its better nights of the season tripping Holly 65-50 in a sad debut for the Broncos on their new court and Clarenceville romped over West Bloomfield 65-51 in other games.

Bloomfield Hills staged its outstanding scoring display yet and hit on 50 per cent of its shots but still was no match for the mighty Wolves after the opening minutes.

★ ★ ★

Clarkston trailed 10-3 before taking charge. Coach Dom Mauti's high-scoring aggregation bounced back to lead 24-16 at the end of the quarter with a 9-for-14 shooting performance and kept boosting the difference the rest of the way.

Bill Noles bagged 23, Leroy Parks 22 and Dick Lippert 20 to carry the offensive burden offsetting four Barons in double figures. Bob Elston topped the losers with 15.

Northville improved its hold on 2nd place by rallying to go ahead for the 1st time with six minutes to play and holding on. "Cap" Pethers meshed 25 points and grabbed 28 rebounds and Dick Biery caged 16 for the Mustangs. Big Brian Watson's 23 paced Brighton.

★ ★ ★

Milford took a liking to Holly's spacious new floor in a hurry romping to a 30-15 halftime advantage. A 11-point edge on free throws kept the Redskins ahead with plenty to spare in the last two periods. Terry Anderson hit 16 for Milford and Amos Bradsher 18 for Holly. The Broncos have lost five in succession after winning the 1st five.

Clarenceville, one of the loop's most improved teams, started early and kept gaining momentum as four boys reached double figures highlighted by Larry Andrews' 27. John Lucadam scored 14 in defeat.

PUTS PCH AHEAD — Harrison Munson's lone field goal last night was the one which put Pontiac ahead 33-32 as the Chiefs kept the lead to win narrowly, 54-52. Munson took the rebound and put it back up as Ed Skrzycki failed to stop him.

Berkley Routs Jays in I-L Showdown

Skippers, Walled Lake Win

Berkley just about clinched the Inter-Lakes Conference basketball crown last night by ripping Southfield, 67-47, and Waterford and Walled Lake picked up their 2nd league victories of the season.

A school scoring mark fell at Waterford as the Skippers rallied to whip Farmington, 62 - 51. Walled Lake went to Van Dyke and triumphed, 41-39, on a field goal by Dennis McClelland in the final eight seconds.

John Herrington, 6-foot-2 center, was the big gun for Waterford. John set a new individual single game scoring record at the Highland Road school with 31 points on 11 field goals and nine foul shots.

★ ★ ★

The hefty figure topped the 30-point total compiled by the graduated Chuck Gillis last season and duplicated by Herrington this season in the 1957-58 opener against Cranbrook.

Herrington collected 20 of his output in the 2nd half to send the Skippers on their way to victory after Farmington had held the upper hand throughout the first two quarters.

Waterford managed to pull even at halftime, 33-33, and the tie spurred them to peak effort after intermission. Guard Jim Devine contributed 18 points to the Skipper cause while Dave Catherman paced Farmington with 21.

★ ★ ★

McClelland scored the tying and winning baskets for Walled Lake, which was still without the services of the ailing Bill Hosley, its leading point-getter.

Van Dyke held a 39-35 edge with 1½ minutes remaining. Frank Fink's bucket set the stage for McClelland, who tied the count with 50 seconds to go and won the game on a layup shot.

McClelland and Bob Smith sparked the Vikings with 10 points each. Forwards George Mack and George Hatch were tops for Van Dyke with 17 and 11 respectively.

★ ★ ★

Southfield saw its hopes for at least a share of the Inter-Lakes title go winging out the window as Berkley's well-balanced scoring attack ground the Jays into submission.

The Jays were all square entering the 2nd period, 18-18, but Berkley pushed into a 34-27 lead at halftime and really settled the issue with a 20-6 bulge in the 4th stanza.

Berkley now enjoys a two-game edge in the I-L race in its drive to win or share the league title for the 3rd straight year. The defeat snapped a seven-game victory string for Southfield.

★ ★ ★

Oxford Loses to Millington

56-41 Defeat Is 10th in Row for Wildcats; Imlay Stays Unbeaten

Oxford went down to its 10th straight defeat and Imlay City remained unbeaten in South Central Conference basketball games Friday night.

★ ★ ★

Millington led all the way for a 56-41 triumph over winless Oxford at Millington. Imlay maintained its league supremacy with a 52-48 conquest of stubborn North Branch on the Imlay court.

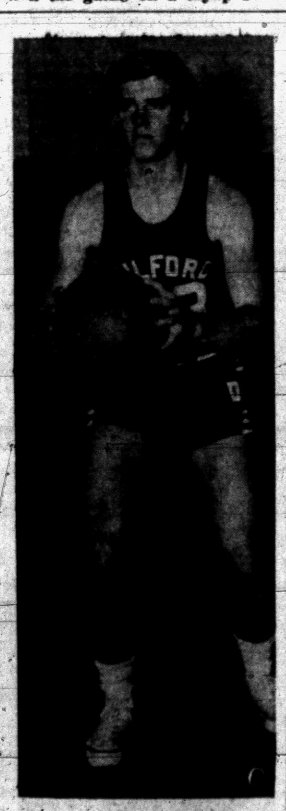

Three Millington Cagers hit double figures as the Cardinals piled up a 28-15 halftime lead and coasted from there. Lyle Kirkey paced Millington with 16 points while Oxford's best effort was 12 by Galen (Butch) Somers.

League-leading Imlay had its troubles with North Branch before claiming its 5th South Central win and 8th overall.

★ ★ ★

After leading at halftime, 28-24, the Spartans fell into a 35-33 deficit early in the 3rd quarter before fighting back to gain the edge for keeps.

Mike Ribner of North Branch took scoring honors with 22 points. Gordon Hoeksema tallied 17 and Jim Ward had 13 for Imlay.

PACES MILFORD — Milford's most consistent scorer Terry Anderson sparked the Redskins to a 65-50 whipping of previously highly-rated Holly at the Broncos' new court last night. The southpaw forward scored 16 as Holly lost its 5th straight since starting off strong.

South Lyon Bows, 47-28

Strong Manchester handed South Lyon a 47-28 defeat last night in a League of the Lakes basketball game at Manchester. The loss was South Lyon's 3rd in eight games and their 2nd at the hands of the league leaders.

Five Tank Marks Fall

Maples Grab 11th Win

Birmingham's high school swimmers last night splashed to their 11th straight victory of the season, 59-37, over a good Plymouth club in a meet that saw five pool records established for the new Maples' tank. Maples took seven firsts, six seconds.

★ ★ ★

New marks were established in the 100-yard butterfly when Pete Sintz hit 1:02.5 (old records, school 1:03.0 and pool 1:03.5); in the 200-yard freestyle by Tom Bechtel, back in action after a long layoff, 2:01.5 (old 2:09.4); 100-yard breast stroke by Dave Rider, 1:14.1 (old, 1:14.7); 200-yard freestyle relay by Birmingham (Bechtel, Pete Palmer, Dave Sintz, Bill Buick), time 1:39.9 (old 1:42.1); and 200-yard medley relay by Plymouth, 1:55.4 (old 1:57.8).

★ ★ ★

Other Maple firsts: 100-yard backstroke, Dave Smith (1:03.6); 100-yard freestyle, Bill Buick (56.1) and 150-yard indiv. medley, Pete Sintz (1:35.9).

McNeal Leads Ferndale Over Maples

By CHUCK ABAIR

A 27-point performance by classy forward Earl McNeal led Ferndale to its 6th straight season victory and 4th in league play as the Rail-splitters trounced Birmingham 54-41 in the Eastern Michigan feature last night.

East Detroit remained a game off the pace by drubbing Mt. Clemens 62-30 and Hazel Park defeated Port Huron 57-48 in other action around the loop.

McNeal hooped 12 in one half and 15 in the other while also setting up several others as Ferndale dominated the play most of the way and then held off a big last quarter Maple rally.

Birmingham led 4-3 in the opening minutes but never again. It was only 11-8 at the 1st period but the visitors romped thereafter aided considerably by 28 free throw conversions.

It was 28-13 at halftime and 42-22 at the 3rd stanza. McNeal opened the last quarter with two quick field goals putting Ferndale ahead by 24 before Birmingham suddenly started hitting the hoop from all over.

The Maples poured in 13 successive points, eight by top scorer Bob Stephenson, before McNeal returned from a rest to break the spell and settle the winners down.

Ferndale's 6-7 center Gordon Rodwan added 10 points to the cause. Stephenson finished with 15 by hitting four of his last five shots and a total of 10 points in the last quarter. Dave Ritchie had 12. It was Birmingham's 2nd EML setback in four games.

Larry Clyma and Bill Murphy combined for 15 apiece and Ron White hit 10 to pace Hazel Park. Bruce Myles scored 11 to top Port Huron which faltered after holding a 14-9 1st quarter lead.

The 1st of two weekends of the 12th annual GMC Doubles Tournament will get under way today at Motor Inn Recreation as 500 teams shoot for company honors.

Participants include GMC Truck & Coach employes and members of their family.

Women Have Just One More Week to Submit Their Entries

Last Chance for Men---Sunday Is Bowlerama Deadline

Oakland County Men Have Only One Day to Go

One of Eight Entries Will Share Long List of Prizes, Gifts

In just a matter of hours, the entry list for men bowlers entering the 2nd annual Pontiac Press Bowlerama Singles Handicap tournament will close.

At least one out of eight men entering the tournament is sure to share the long prize list which may go near or over $2,000 in money and several hundred dollars in trophies and merchandise gifts.

Then there is also the $1,000 jackpot awaiting anyone who hits the coveted "300" game in either the qualifying or the finals.

The total number of men entries is not yet determined, but the greater the list, the greater the prizes.

★ ★ ★

"No area singles tournament offers so much opportunity for bowlers to share the prizes," said Montcalm Centre proprietor Stan Mays.

"I'll be disappointed if Oakland County bowlers don't take advantage of the opportunity to get a crack at that prize list," said Joe Bonfiglio at the Huron Bowl.

"That's a great prize list to shoot for," said Barb Howe of Howe's Lanes.

And so it goes, as time runs out for men entries.

How is it possible to have such a prize list on the basis of just 400 entries?

Reason 2—Tournament manager costs have been eliminated, and after the scorers and supervisors of the qualifying and final rounds have been compensated, the remainder of the tournament expense fees go back into the purse.

Reason 3—The Pontiac Press, in an attempt to make the tournament as lucrative as possible for the bowlers, has added $400 in money and prizes.

Qualifying will take place next Saturday and Sunday for men at Montcalm and Howe's alleys. Women will qualify at Motor Inn Saturday Feb. 15th and all will go to Huron Bowl for the finals, February 22nd.

All men's entries must be in to area alleys by midnight tomorrow. Those mailed must be postmarked before noon Monday, or delivered to the Press Sports Dept. by Monday noon.

Currently in the race for the feature prize which goes to the oldest man and woman bowler, Stephen Bone, 67, and Mrs. Glenn Mason, 68, lead the list.

IN RECORD TIME — Former Pontiac Central High ace trackman, Hayes Jones, takes the high hurdles at the Michigan AAU meet (above) in record time. He won both the high and low hurdle events in University of Michigan's fieldhouse, Friday night.

Jones Sets Record in AAU Hurdles

Ex-Pontiac Ace Nipped in Dash by Murchison

High and Low Hurdles Marks Fall to City's Track Product

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Eeles Landstrom, a stocky blond pole vaulter from Finland, came within three inches of cracking the 15-foot barrier and steal the thunder from Ira Murchison and Hayes Jones in the Michigan AAU track meet.

The Michigan student from Helsinki soared over the crossbars with room to spare at 14 feet 9¼ inches. He made one try at 15 feet, but shoved the bar down with his feet.

★ ★ ★

Landstrom's leap last night broke his own meet and Yost fieldhouse record of 14 feet 5¼ inches. He set them in 1956. He had never done better than 14-6 before.

Murchison, the "speednik" from Western Michigan, nipped Jones by a yard in winning the 60-yard dash in :6.2. It was one-tenth of a second off the world mark.

Jones won two hurdle events in record time. The mercury-swift athlete from Pontiac captured the 65-yard high and low hurdles. He equalled meet and fieldhouse records in each. His high hurdle time was 7.9 seconds and he crossed the low timbers in 7.4 seconds.

★ ★ ★

It was a big night for the Finns as Landstrom and his countrymen took three events. Jorma Valkama leaped 24 feet 2⅛ inches to win the broad jump. Valkama, a third-place 1956 Olympian, is in the United States to become Finland's first athletic trainer.

Maurt Jormakka eased past a slow field to win the mile in 4:18.7. Jormakka will attend Eastern Michigan next semester.

Dave Owen, the world's fourth-ranked shotputter, won his event with a toss of 55 feet ⅜ inch. Owen, former Michigan captain, practiced only once in three months before the meet. His heave of 59 feet won the AAU last year when he was competing regularly.

Western Michigan captured three relay events and Michigan State two. The Broncos won the 200-yard shuttle hurdle in 26 seconds flat, the distance medley in 10:22.6 and the college mile in 3:26.2. The Spartans, led by Australian Dave Lean and sophomore Willie Atterbury, swept to victory in the two-mile (7:51.9) and the university mile (3:23.1).

The Detroit Track Club bettered an American indoor dirt track meet and field house record in the rarely run 880-yard club and college relay. Jim Bibbs, ex-Eastern Michigan, Irv Petross and Bill Smith, both ex-Wayne State, and Charles Rochi of the University of Detroit, made up the quartet. Their time was 1:30.2, eight seconds better than Michigan's clocking in 1952.

Lovell Rogers, a Flint Northern student, stunned a field of college runners and took the 600-yard run in 1:14.7.

★ ★ ★

Williams Talks of Baseball

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams is talking enthusiastically about all phases of baseball except the fat contract he is expected to receive for the coming season.

★ ★ ★

The Boston Red Sox outfielder will get as much as $125,000 on the strength of his remarkable .388 average in 1957 but he hasn't talked money yet with the front office.

"Joe Cronin (general manager) was too busy on this trip," Williams said under questioning at the sportsman's show here shortly after he returned from Minneapolis. "We didn't discuss any personal business," Ted added. "We'll probably get to that next week."

William, 39, says the ankle he hurt on a fishing trip last October "is just a little stiff." Ted added: "It will bother me just enough so that I am aware of it." Williams expects diathermy treatments during the next 10 days to clear up the condition.

Winter trades—"I'm inclined to think Chicago got the best of the trading in the American League. The White Sox have lost some punch but they have added more all around strength in pitching and reserves."

★ ★ ★

Milwaukee's World Series victory—"I wasn't surprised but I didn't think the Braves would win if the Yankees were 100 per cent healthy. After all, the series went the full seven games despite the Yankees' handicap. I do think it was a good thing for baseball that the Braves won."

Franchise moves—"All I know is I'm glad I'm not in the other league with all that traveling. I think Minneapolis will be the next city to get a big league team."

Red Sox outlook—"Right now I see Frank Baumann (lefthander) as the key to our pitching staff. If he can do well the staff can be 50 per cent better. Pete Runnels (infielder acquired from Washington) can handle the job. I'm sure he can hit better than last year. And I don't think we gave up too much (Norm Zauchin, Albie Pearson).

CLOSE TO RECORD — Finnish star pole-vaulter Beles Lonstrom came within three inches of 15 feet at the state AAU meet, in Ann Arbor last night, when he crossed the bar at 14 feet 9¼ inches. He broke his own fieldhouse and meet mark of 14 feet, 5¾ inches, but missed at the 15-foot mark.

Yardley Scores 36

Pistons 119, Knicks 105

BOSTON (AP) — George Yardley, playing on a sore ankle, scored 36 points and led the Detroit Pistons to a 119-105 National Basketball Assn. victory over the New York Knickerbockers last night.

Yardley, playing only part of the game Thursday night, was held to three points in Detroit's 87-83 victory over Syracuse.

Last night, Yardley snapped an 81-81 tie in the closing moments of the third period by tossing in seven straight points.

Detroit kept widening the gap and the Knickerbockers never got closer than four points in the final period.

In the third period, Yardley scored eight field goals and tied a court record for a 12 minute span.

The Philadelphia Warriors, who today held down third place in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Assn., would like nothing better than play the St. Louis Hawks and the Boston Celtics every night in the week. The results tell why.

Against the Hawks, Western Division leaders, they hold a 5-2 margin. And last night they went one up on the Celtics as they defeated the Eastern Division pacesetters 110-101 for a 5-4 margin over the season.

Cincinnati trimmed St. Louis' lead in the Western section to six games by beating the Hawks 100-92.

Nine in Scoring Column; Romeo Still Loses, 66-46

Romeo had nine players in the scoring column but there was little scoring balance as Roseville took a 66-46 decision last night.

Outscored 20-9 in the first quarter, Romeo was behind at halftime 35-24 and never was able to threaten seriously in the second half.

Duane Hussey hit 22, Walker 13 and Younce 11 for Roseville. Bill Redman had 10 for Romeo which lost its 5th game in nine starts.

Starters for the respective fives will be the same as in Friday's games, with the possibility that Bob Mineweaser may try some of his reserves.

Almont vs. Brown City in Tournament Finals

Almont will be heavily favored to defeat Brown City tonight when the two teams square off at Armada for the championship of the annual Southern Thumb League basketball tournament.

Brown City worked its way into the finals with a last second victory over Memphis Friday night at Memphis. Almont advanced to the title round with a semifinal win over Capac.

The Almont-Brown City game will start at 9 o'clock. Memphis and Capac meet at 7:30 in a consolation battle.

Shrine Loses, 61-59

A last-minute comeback fell just short of the mark as Royal Oak Shrine bowed to Detroit Holy Redeemer 61-59 last night. Four Shrine cagers scored 10 or more led by Colin Campbell with 15. Redeemer's 6-8 center Bob Chamielewski rung up 27.

Oak Park Quintet Tops Huron, 28-23

Oak Park's basketball team, completely stymied during the 1st half, finally caught up with Huron's stalling tactics to score a 28-23 victory last night in a battle of defenses at Huron.

The Redskins rallied in the 4th quarter to win after trailing at the half, 10-3. Huron held Oak Park scoreless in the 1st period by hanging on to the ball.

Chuck Miles made 11 points and Mike Detmer added 10 for Oak Park as the Redskins evened their season record at 5-5.

Utica Gains 44-41 Win

Mike Boardman and Jim Cole led Utica to a 44-41 victory over Center Line in the Bi-County league last night. Center Line led 21-20 at halftime and after three quarters it was tied 34-34. The Chieftains held the Panthers to seven in the 4th quarter while scoring 10.

THE STORY SO FAR: A blind in a train passing hers snaps up and respectable Mrs. McGillicuddy, on a prosaic trip to visit her friend, Miss Marple, fluttery old lady with a shrewd brain and a gift for solving crimes, sees a man strangling a woman. After several trips over Mrs. McGillicuddy's route, Miss Marple figures that the body must have been thrown out as the train passed the neglected park of Rutherford Hall, built by Mr. Crackenthorpe, rich manufacturer. She asks Lucy Eyelesbarrow, brilliant young woman, who has made for herself a unique profession — taking temporary charge of households and running them like magic — to get herself employed at Rutherford Hall. Emma, Crackenthorpe's daughter, engages her. In a barn, Lucy pries open a sarcophagus and finds the body of the murdered woman as that of the woman she saw in the train. Just before Christmas Martine, the girl Edmund Crackenthorpe, who was killed in the war, was going to marry, wrote Emma asking if she might visit them-but later canceled the visit. If Edmund had a son he'll interit Rutherford Hall and share in the trust. Harold and Alfred Crackenthorpe are hard up financially. Was Alfred mixed up in some shady deals and unable to come up with an alibi?

CHAPTER 27

Miss Marple continued thoughtfully, "Emma reminds me very much of Geraldine Webb—always bullied a good deal by her elderly mother. Quite a surprise to everybody when the mother died unexpectedly and Geraldine came into a nice sum of money and went and had her hair cut and permed and went off on a cruise and came back married to a very nice barrister. They had two children."

★ ★ ★

The parallel was clear enough. Lucy said, rather uneasily: "Do you think you ought to have said what you did about Emma marrying? It seemed to upset the brothers."

Miss Marple nodded.

"Yes," she said. "So like men—quite unable to see what's going on under their eyes. I don't believe you noticed yourself."

"No," admitted Lucy. "I never thought of anything of that kind. They both seemed to me—"

★ ★ ★

"So old?" said Miss Marple miling a little. "But Dr. Quimper isn't much over forty, I should say, though he's going gray on the temples, and it's obvious that he's longing for some kind of life; and Emma Crackenthorpe is under forty—not too old to marry and have a family. The doctor's wife died quite young having a baby, so I have heard."

"I believe she did. Emma said something about it one day."

"He must be lonely," said Miss Marple. "A busy hard working doctor needs a wife — someone sympathetic—not too young."

★ ★ ★

"Listen, darling," said Lucy. "Are we investigating crime, or are we matchmaking?"

Miss Marple twinkled.

"I'm afraid I am rather romantic. Because I am an old maid, perhaps. You know, dear Lucy, that as far as I am concerned, you have fulfilled your contract. If you really want a holiday abroad before taking up your next engagement, you would have time still for a short trip."

"And leave Rutherford Hall? Never! I'm the complete sleuth by now. Almost as bad as the boys. They spend their entire time looking for clues. They looked all through the dust-bins yesterday. Most unsavory—and they hadn't really the faintest idea what they were looking for. If they come to you in triumph, Inspector Craddock, bearing a torn scrap of paper with Martine — if you value your life keep away from the Long Barn! on it, you'll know that I've taken pity on them and concealed it in the pigsty!'

★ ★ ★

"Why the pigsty, dear?" asked Miss Marple with interest. Do they keep pigs?"

"Oh, no, not nowadays. It's just—I go there some times."

"Who's at the house now?" asked Craddock.

Cedric's there, and Bryan's down for the weekend. Harold and Alfred are coming down tomorrow. They rang up this morning. I somehow got the impression that you had been putting the cat among the pigeons, Inspector Craddock."

★ ★ ★

Craddock smiled.

"I shook them up a little. Asked them to account for their movements on Friday, December 20th."

"And could they?"

Harold could. Alfred couldn't —or wouldn't."

"I think alibis must be terribly difficult," said Lucy. "Times and places and dates. They must be hard to check up on, too."

"It takes time and patience—but we manage." He glanced at his watch. "I'll be coming along to Rutherford Hall presently to have a word with Cedric, but I want to get hold of Dr. Quimper first."

★ ★ ★

"You'll be just about right. He has his surgery at six and he's usually finished about half past. I must get back and deal with dinner."

"I'd like your opinion on one thing, Miss Eyelesbarrow. What's the family view about this Martine business — amongst themselves?"

Lucy replied promptly.

"They're all furious with Emma for going to you about it—and with Dr. Quimper who, it seemed, encouraged her to do so. Harold and Alfred think it was a try on and not genuine. Emma isn't sure. Cedric thinks it was phoney, too, but doesn't take it as seriously as the other two. Bryan, on the other hand, seems quite sure that it's genuine."

"Well, Bryan's rather like that. Just accepts things at their face value. He thinks it was Edmund's wife—or rather widow—and that she had suddenly to go back to France, but that they'll hear from her again sometime. The fact that she hasn't written, or anything, up to now, seems to him to be quite natural because he never writes letters himself. Bryan's rather sweet. Just like a dog that wants to be taken for a walk."

"And do you take him for a walk, dear?" asked Miss Marple. "To the pigsties, perhaps?"

Lucy shot a keen glance at her.

"So many gentlemen in the house, coming and going," mused Miss Marple.

★ ★ ★

When Miss Marple uttered the word "gentlemen" she always gave it its full Victorian flavor—an echo from an era actually before her own time. You were conscious at once of dashing fullblooded (and probably whiskered) males, sometimes wicked, but always gallant.

"You're such a handsome girl," pursued Miss Marple appraising Lucy. "I expect they pay you a good deal of attention, don't they?"

Lucy flushed slightly. Scrappy remembrances passed across her mind. Cedric, leaning against the pigsty wall. Bryan sitting disconsolately on the kitchen table. Alfred's fingers touching hers as he helped her collect the coffee cups.

★ ★ ★

"Gentlemen," said Miss Marple, in the tone of one speaking of some alien and dangerous species, "are all very much alike in some ways — even if they are quite old . . ."

★ ★ ★

"In fact," said Lucy, "they've all made what you might call advances to me in a way. Harold's was very correct — an advantageous financial position in the City. I don't think it's my attractive appearance — they must think I know something."

★ ★ ★

But Inspector Craddock did not laugh.

"Be careful," he said. "They might murder you instead of making advances to you."

"I suppose it might be simpler," Lucy agreed.

Then she gave a slight shiver.

"One forgets," she said. "The boys have been having such fun that one almost thought of it all as a game. But it's not a game."

★ ★ ★

"No," said Miss Marple. "Murder isn't a game."

She was silent for a moment or two before she said:

"Don't the boys go back to school soon?"

"Yes—next week. They go tomorrow to James Stoddart West's home for the last few days of the holidays."

"I'm glad of that," said Miss Marple gravely. "I shouldn't like anything to happen while they're there."

"You mean to old Mr. Crackenthorpe. Do you think he's going to be murdered next?"

★ ★ ★

"To the boys?"

"Well—to Alexander."

"But surely—"

★ ★ ★

"Hunting about, you know—looking for clues. Boys love that sort of thing — but it might be very dangerous."

THE BERRYS By Carl Grubert

Confirmed by 13 Years of Research

It's Fact — Headaches Can't Be Cured

NEW YORK (INS) — Medical scientists hope to cure cancer some day, but they aren't that optimistic about the most common misery of all — headaches.

Thirteen years of trail-blazing research at the nation's largest headache clinic has confirmed the fact that headaches can't be cured.

MILLIONS SUFFER

If you head pounds on an average of once a week you are in a class with 12 million Americans who have chronic headaches. Millions more have headaches about once a month.

Dr. Friedman says the person who doesn't get a headache is a medical rarity. But this doesn't mean such people are especially healthy.

Those who don't get headaches appear to be prone to ulcers.

The most common type of headache is the tension headache — a label coined by Dr. Friedman. This is the kind that Adam and Eve probably had when they were evicted from the Garden of Eden.

MOSTLY PSYCHOLOGICAL

Most tension headaches are caused by psychological factors. But even if there is no purely physical reason for the ache, the pain is very real, according to Dr. Friedman.

For different people, there are different tensions.

Some hard-working men get headaches on weekends because they can't stand being relaxed.

Others get the headaches only on Monday morning when faced with work after two days of leisure. This even happens to people who love their jobs.

BRAIN IS PAINLESS

Headaches don't mean that the brain itself is feeling pain. The grey matter inside the skull is relatively insensitive to pain.

The pain of a simple headache comes when tension tightens muscles in the neck and scalp. This sets the nerves in the area of the brain on edge and they tingle.

You might use simple aspirin for a headache and get some relief. But if you suspect your headaches are from tension, the real "relief" doesn't come in a bottle of pills. The trick is to teach yourself to relax. Slow down. Stop blowing up. Try some soothing activity now and then, like a warm bath.

Junior Editors Quiz on GROUNDHOGS

QUESTION: Does a groundhog really come out on Groundhog Day to look at the weather?

ANSWER: A legend that started with the Pennsylvania Germans says that on Feb. 2 the groundhog awakens from his long winter sleep and comes out of his burrow to observe the weather. If the sun is shining and he can see his shadow, he is frightened and crawls back into his hole for six more weeks of winter. But if the day is cloudy, he takes this as a good omen that winter is over and he remains above ground.

This story is not true, as any reporter or photographer who has crouched over a groundhog hole on Feb. 2 will testify.

Judge Chosen to Watch Hoffa

Board of 3 Approved by Judge Letts to Serve as Monitors

By JOHN H. AVERILL

WASHINGTON (AP)— The chairman of a board named to watch over the scandal-tinged Teamsters Union predicts "a job can be done that will help the public as well as the Teamsters members."

★ ★ ★

Nathan Cayton, a retired Washington judge, expressed that view yesterday after Federal District Judge F. Dickinson Letts appointed him to head the special three-man board of monitors. The board will keep an eye on the union under its new president, James R. Hoffa.

As other board members, Letts approved the nominations of New York attorney Godfrey P. Schmidt a foe of Hoffa, and Teamsters Union attorney L.N.D. (Nat) Wells of Dallas, a friend of the controversial Teamsters president.

The board was created under a compromise settlement last week of a lawsuit contesting Hoffa's right to succeed Dave Beck of Seattle as president of the mammoth truck drivers' union.

The board may complain of Teamsters activity singly or collectively at any time to Letts, who retains jurisdiction over the case. It must report to him semi-annually. The monitors will function for at least a year, or until a new election of Teamsters international officers. The election must take place within five years.

★ ★ ★

Under the compromise settlement, the watchdog group is given the job of counseling with the union executive board "to insure the enforcement and protection of all rights of the individual members." It also will draft a model code of local union bylaws and survey what added safeguards may be needed in the handling of Teamsters funds.

Part-Time Guest at Jail Given Bargain Rate

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Dan Estepp, charged with non-support of his wife, was sent to jail yesterday and ordered to pay for room and board while there. But he got a bargain rate.

Judge Bart Peak ruled Estepp could work in the day while serving a 30-day sentence. The judge said since the man would be free part-time, it wouldn't be fair to let him stay in the jail free.

But when Estepp pointed out he'd only be eating breakfast and week end meals, the judge let him off at $1.25 a day. It costs $1.75 a day to house and feed a prisoner.

Finally Organize Police

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP)—After noting that 531 ordinances governing the conduct of its citizens have been passed in the 61 years of the borough's existence, the State College Borough Council passed another ordinance formally organizing its police force of 11 men.

background for LIVING

SEPARATE DINING ROOM — Dining room and kitchen are at the front of the Bradshaw home. Molding divides the long windows into tiny panes. Above the birch dado the walls are painted sandalwood to match those in the living room. The furniture is modern in design, constructed of limed oak. The rug is a sculptured beige one.

WALL MURAL — One of Mrs. William Bardshaw's favorite parts of her new house is this Ming mural on the living room wall. There is a smaller matching one on the wall around the corner. Walls are sandalwood, the rugs beige. The half-wall and planter separate the living and dining rooms. Stone caps both this planter and the raised hearth. The sofa is brown and aqua tweed, matching an armchair at the bottom of the picture. The lamp next to this sofa has butterflies and leaves pressed into the shade.

Bradshaw Home Built on Corner Lot

By JANET ODELL,
Pontiac Press Home Editor

Tail wagging, a fat blonde cocker welcomed us at the door. He was sure we had come just to play with him. That we wanted to photograph the home of his owners, Mr. and Mrs. William Bradshaw of Long Pointe drive, was incidental.

★ ★ ★

Upper Long Lake Estates is a section of curving streets and gently rolling terrain. The lots are large. Bradshaws chose a corner lot and set their house on the diagonal.

It's a long, low ranch type house built of board and batten and nutmeg color brick. The wood is painted salmon pink. Shutters are sandalwood tone. From the road the attached double garage looks like another room in the house.

All floors are asphalt tile, covered in the living rooms with large sculptured cotton rugs. When this area is carpeted, Mrs. Bradshaw plans to use the cotton rugs in the bedrooms.

WALL MURALS

The modern fireplace is set in a Roman brick wall which divides the living room from the dining room and kitchen. In the dining room section this is but half a wall with a planter on top.

Sofa and one arm chair are aqua and brown tweed. On one side of the fireplace is a white leather lounge chair, while across from it is a brown chair with a blond wood frame. Also, blond is the long magazine table before the windows.

There is a birch dado on one wall. All walls in these two rooms are sandalwood. The furniture is limed oak with a Duncan Phyfe type table.

BEES IN CLOVER

Back of the kitchen is the utility room and a lavatory. This latter room is yellow and green. Curtains are white, striped in gold.

One wall of the family room is pale aqua; the other three are paneled in African mahogany. Curtains are rust colored. The floor is corktone tile.

One bedroom is used as a den. Walls and curtains are pale green. The room has a sofa and a maple desk in it. The floor is covered with tile in a mottled green.

Rose and pink combine to make the bathroom a feminine looking room. Above the rose wall tile the wallpaper is pink and blue in a love letter design. Curtains are white with a metallic stripe.

YELLOW AND GRAY

In the Bradshaws' bedroom the walls are yellow and the floor tan. Yellow quilted chintz spreads hang over brown skirts. The curtains at the corner windows are blue and gold on pale yellow with just a hint of salmon in the design. Twin chests of drawers and night stands are painted gray.

Sharon, the twelve-year-old daughter has a sunny room on the front of the house. The windows have birch trim on them. Draperies are white with pink, blue and purple floral pattern. Walls are pale blue.

★ ★ ★

Sherry's bed has an aqua corduroy spread. Like most young girls nowadays she collects bed animals and displays them. Over her bed there are stars on the ceiling—made of luminous paint, they glow in the dark. Her furniture is limed oak.

★ ★ ★

IN UPPER LONG LAKE ESTATES — This brick and board and batten home of the William D. Bradshaws is set at an angle on a corner lot. Bricks are nutmeg color and wood salmon pink. Shutters are sandalwood. Wrought iron columns trim the front. The brick section at the right is a double garage to be entered from Long Pointe drive. Hallmark Builders constructed the Bradshaw home from plans of Houseman-Spitzley.

HUSBAND'S RETREAT — In this informal family room there is a comfortable leather lounge chair for father to take his ease and watch television. Three walls are paneled in African mahogany, the fourth one is painted pale aqua. The floor is corktone tile. This room has an outside entrance. Notice the pass-through to the kitchen which can be closed with louvered shutters.

CORNER WINDOWS — Sherry's room has nice deep corner windows, framed in floral draperies. Outside these windows are low stone planters. Her walls are pale blue. The furniture is limed oak. Sherry displays her varied collection of bed animals on her aqua corduroy spread. This is a sunny, pleasant, little girl room.

SPLIT LEVEL RANCH—Wood shingles, board and batten and brick veneer contrast pleasingly on the exterior of this eight-room split level ranch house. If built on a sloping lot, this home would have an even more delightful lower level.

Split Level Ranch Home Welcomes 3 Generations

It has eight rooms, including three bedrooms, arranged on three different levels in such a way that the activities of a busy family present no home traffic problems.

It has a formal living room, set against a backdrop of an overhead balcony and an off-center fireplace faced with roman brick, plus an informal living room or playroom which opens through sliding glass panel doors onto a rear terrace.

The balcony, on the same upper level as the bedrooms, is no thoroughfare for getting from a bedroom to a bathroom because the master bedroom has the effect of a suite with a private bathroom — and on the other side the other two bedrooms have a separate bath and closets as a part of their area.

PRIVACY FOR PARENTS

Thus, a problem which exists in many split level ranch houses has been overcome in this plan by Architect Alfred H. Ryder and the separation of bedrooms on opposite sides of the house gives the parents the utmost in privacy.

Ryder, who studied at New York's Pratt Institute, has this to say about his plan:

"The living room can have a spread of over 29 feet from one end to the other, and yet the guest or family member coming in the front door does not need to cross the living room to go to any other room in the first, second or even third level.

"The vista from the front of the living room takes in the balcony at the back, for a distance that is almost 19 feet. In addition, it is unnecessary to cross any other room because the dining room, the kitchen, the down stairway and the up stairway can all be reached from the front passage directly.

"The house as a whole has a ranch look and will fit into almost any neighborhood. But the separation into levels is a popular feature all over the country that makes it have even a wider appeal. Also, this home can be built on a level lot and it is equally excellent for a hillside property with a drop at the back."

On the lower level at the rear, the house has the playroom or informal living room, 23 feet by 17 feet 5 inches, a hobby room and a laundry room.

Should a fourth bedroom be needed, the laundry room with its two exposures could easily be adapted to a comfortable bedroom and the lower level lavatory could be converted into a full bathroom.

Adding this third, lower-level bathroom, the architect says, would be particularly practical for an older member of the family, giving complete privacy, especially since the play room is adjacent and might double as a senior living room.

EXTRA CLOSET SPACE

Interior details include a full vestibule with coat closet-dividers poles which give a center hall effect; fireplaces in both the living room and the playroom; the dining room has access to the terrace; the kitchen has abundant work space and a corner for a dinette.

Realtor Asks Change in Home Sale Tax

An amendment to the federal tax code to recognize capital losses on the sale of residences was among proposed legislation recommended to Congress today by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

★ ★ ★

Spokesman for the 62,000 realtors who make up the association, was David Scribner, New York, chairman of the Subcommitte of Federal Taxation of NAREB's Realtors' Washington Committee. He testified before the House Ways and Means Committee.

Citing the federal tax code's recognition of a taxable capital gain on the sale of a taxpayer's residence, Mr. Scribner noted that a loss on the sale of a house is considered non-deductible. He said the association felt this was an inequality which should be remedied.

"Investment in a home represents the largest financial undertaking of the overwhelming majority of American families," he told the legislators, pointing out to them that 60 per cent of U. S. families are now home owners. "We fear that the stability of such investment is undermined by the inability to take a capital loss where the home owner may be forced to leave his residence for employment or other reasons."

Grandma Wouldn't Know Modern Laundry Tub

With the current popularity of basementless houses—where space in utility rooms is often at a premium—the fiberglas laundry tub has come into its own. These modern tubs put utility into the utility room. Their slim, trim lines, both in deluxe cabinet models and sturdy stand models, harmonize with today's gleaming appliances.

Fiberglas laundry tubs, after years of testing, have proved to be durable, impervious to soaps and detergents. They will not stain, chip or craze.

Protect Mementos

Some persons like to decorate homes with old mementos — restaurant menus, sheet music or play programs. Either framed or pasted on recreation or den walls, these need to be protected. A coat of shellac will prevent curling as well as darkening by dust.

Pontiac Press Photos by Ed Vanderwerp

Hardboard Serves as Bed Headboard

It's quite simple to transform an ordinary bedroom into a room "fit for a queen." An attractive headboard, canopy, valance or cabinet will please the "queen" of any home.

Headboards of ¼" hardboard are especially popular because they are sturdy and may be painted to fit the room's decor. Many planners select Leatherwood, the hardboard that looks and feels like rich Spanish-grain leather, for a headboard that lends a distinctive flair to a bedroom.

Vent New Gas Heater Directly Through Wall

A problem often arising in the wake of home remodeling jobs is how to heat built-on rooms, or porches and breezeways which have been converted into living areas.

They do not require vent pipes or chimneys. Venting is achieved through a built - in duct which projects directly through the wall behind the heater. The duct is not visible from inside the room and is inconspicuous on the outside wall.

Because no chimney is required, the installation is simple and often can be completed in three hours or less. The job requires an extension of the gas line connection, the cutting of a small hole through the wall structure and, in some cases, the cutting out of a section of the inside wall.

Room air is drawn through the lower part of the heater. Some warmed, and then flows out into the dwelling area through the upper portion of the heater. Some models use an electric - powered circulating fan but this is an optional accessory.

Models now being manufactured include a power-vented heater that can be used in windows as well as in walls. Where electricty is required for power models, 115-volt house current is sufficient and no special wiring is required.

The heaters can be installed at any floor level and in any type of wall. Models are available for utility gas as well as for liquefied petroleum gas in input capacities varying from 14,00 to 45,000 b.t.u.'s units. They are equipped with either manual or thermostatic controls.

Dream House Can Go Up Now

This year of 1958 will be a good year to build that house you've been planning for these reasons:

1. Prices of building materials on the whole will be lower—some quite a lot lower—than in 1957 or 1956.

2. Any rise in labor cost is likely to be much more moderate than in past years.

3. Builders and subcontractors will be bidding more closely.

4. Mortgage money will be more plentiful and interest rates may be a shade under the high level reached in 1957.

Basically, the reason for this is that the stiff competition offered by commercial and industrial construction during the last few years for materials, men and money will be lessened. Home building will have a freer field than it has had—at least since 1954.

During 1957, mortgage loans were very hard to get, even when the borrower was willing to pay what used to be looked on as a high rate of interest. In 1958, mortgage-lending institutions will be in a better position to make home loans. This will be true of both FHA - insured and non - insured mortgages.

Don't expect to get a veteran's guaranteed loan. As the statute now stands, the legal availability of this kind of financing will end in June for veterans of World War II. While the program remains in existence for Korean War veterans until 1965, it has been so hedged about with interest rate restrictions that it is virtually out of the picture.

Propet Glue Will Do Job of Holding

Hide and fish glues, which once had to be heated long and carefully, can now be used directly from their containers and have tremendous holding strength.

Use powdered casein glue when you want a strong, heavy-duty adhesive, but work carefully with it to prevent getting any of on the surface of the materials being joined.

Wall Paneling Should Suit Type of Room

There are an infinite number of paneling patterns, but because the contemporary home has lower ceilings than older homes, installing the panels vertically to give the illusion of height is proving the most popular. If a perfectly smooth wall is desired, panel boards should be selected which have been cut with a tongue and groove so that they fit together without a break, but panels cut with a slight V joint enjoy equal popularity.

Another pattern fast becoming a favorite is the board-and-inverted-batten installed vertically. This type of paneling gives added dimension and texture to a wall and seems to be especially complimentary to a room which features other rugged textures, such as natural stone in the fireplace and hearth.

Most Homes Are Wood

Probably 95 per cent of the homes in the United States are made largely of wood, famed New York architect Ralph T. Walker reported recently. He urged fellow architects to use wood with feeling and understanding in home design to give people delight and pleasure in their daily living.

Remove Snow With Heat

For automatic now melting, a system of piping or tubing can be embedded in walks and driveways of your home and supplied with hot water from the main heating boiler.

HOME OWNERS' QUESTION BOX

Q—We need a new roof and understand it can be applied in winter. But if it rains or snows while the job is being done, wouldn't water get inside and cause damage?

A—Not necessarily, if you re-roof with asphalt shingles. In most cases, these can be applied directly over the old roofing material. Even if a blizzard interrupts the job, the area that hasn't yet been reroofed still has the same protection it had before the work was started. Another advantage of this method is that there's little mess during the work or afterward, since the old roofing remains.

Q—What causes dry rot? Is it heat, dampness, or both?

A—Take up the old linoleum with a floor chisel, one with a blade about 3 inches wide. Drive it under the linoleum at a shallow angle and pry up, without gouging the floor. After removal, use a commercial solvent to loosen cement and paper under-layer.

Q—The plasterboard ceilings in my house have been painted over many times and now have hairline cracks all over them. Even when repainted, the cracks show. What can I do?

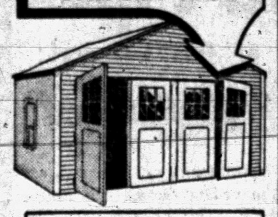

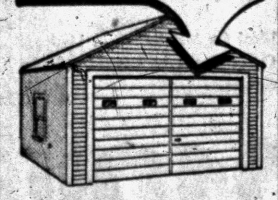

A—Try painting the ceiling with a special "texture" paint. It goes on thickly, and is especially designed to hide blemishes. Most paint and building material dealers can supply it.

SPLIT LEVEL RANCH—Wood shingles, board and batten and brick veneer contrast pleasingly on the exterior of this eight-room split level ranch house. If built on a sloping lot, this home would have an even more delightful lower level.

MAIN LIVING LEVELS — The main living levels of the house are shown on this floor plan. The terrace elvel, not shown, includes an informal living room or playroom, a hobby room and a laundry room.

Split Level Ranch Home Welcomes 3 Generations

What constitutes an ideal family house? For one answer, study the design of this unusual, front-to-back split level ranch home with readily adaptable facilities for grandparents.

★ ★ ★

It has eight rooms, including three bedrooms, arranged on three different levels in such a way that the activities of a busy family present no home traffic problems.

The center hall provides excellent "circulation," yet does not create a corridor effect which often spoils the first impression of a house.

It has a formal living room, set against a backdrop of an overhead balcony and an off-center fireplace faced with roman brick, plus an informal living room or playroom which opens through sliding glass panel doors onto a rear terrace.

The balcony, on the same upper level as the bedrooms, is no thoroughfare for getting from a bedroom to a bathroom because the master bedroom has the effect of a suite with a private bathroom — and on the other side the other two bedrooms have a separate bath and closets as a part of their area.

PRIVACY FOR PARENTS

Thus, a problem which exists in many split level ranch houses has been overcome in this plan by Architect Alfred H. Ryder and the separation of bedrooms on opposite sides of the house gives the parents the utmost in privacy.

Ryder, who studied at New York's Pratt Institute, has this to say about his plan:

"The living room can have a spread of over 29 feet from one end to the other, and yet the guest or family member coming in the front door does not need to cross the living room to go to any other room in the first, second or even third level.

"The vista from the front of the living room takes in the balcony at the back, for a distance that is almost 19 feet. In addition, it is unnecessary to cross any other room because the dining room, the kitchen, the down stairway and the up stairway can all be reached from the front passage directly.

"The house as a whole has a ranch look and will fit into almost any neighborhood. But the separation into levels is a popular feature all over the country that makes it have even a wider appeal. Also, this home can be built on a level lot and it is equally excellent for a hillside property with a drop at the back."

On the lower level at the rear, the house has the playroom or informal living room, 23 feet by 17 feet 5 inches, a hobby room and a laundry room.

Should a fourth bedroom be needed, the laundry room with its two exposures could easily be adapted to a comfortable bedroom and the lower level lavatory could be converted into a full bathroom.

Adding this third, lower-level bathroom, the architect says, would be particularly practical for an older member of the family, giving complete privacy, especially since the play room is adjacent and might double as a senior living room.

EXTRA CLOSET SPACE

Even without the fourth bedroom, the three bedrooms above are large and could accomodate a family of five or six.

Statistics

The overall dimensions of the house are 65 feet 8 inches by 39 feet 9 inches, including the garage but excluding the two terraces. Estimated plot required, 80 feet by 100 feet.

Grandma Wouldn't Know Modern Laundry Tub

With the current popularity of basementless houses—where space in utility rooms is often at a premium—the fiberglas laundry tub has come into its own. These modern tubs put utility into the utility room. Their slim, trim lines, both in deluxe cabinet models and sturdy stand models, harmonize with today's gleaming appliances.

Fiberglas laundry tubs, after years of testing, have proved to be durable, impervious to soaps and detergents. They will not stain, chip or craze.

Protect Mementos

Some persons like to decorate homes with old mementos — restaurant menus, sheet music or play programs. Either framed or pasted on recreation or den walls, these need to be protected. A coat of shellac will prevent curling as well as darkening by dust.

Hardboard Serves as Bed Headboard

It's quite simple to transform an ordinary bedroom into a room "fit for a queen." An attractive headboard, canopy, valance or cabinet will please the "queen" of any home.

Headboards of ¼" hardboard are especially popular because they are sturdy and may be painted to fit the room's decor. Many planners select Leatherwood, the hardboard that looks and feels like rich Spanish-grain leather, for a headboard that lends a distinctive flair to a bedroom.

An extra high headboard of "Peg-Board" enables the decorator to hang a lamp, picture, clock radio, plant, book rack or tissues within easy reach.

Vent New Gas Heater Directly Through Wall

A problem often arising in the wake of home remodeling jobs is how to heat built-on rooms, or porches and breezeways which have been converted into living areas.

Major changes in heating installations can be expensive. A more economical way can be found in gas heaters that are vented directly through a wall.

They do not require vent pipes or chimneys. Venting is achieved through a built - in duct which projects directly through the wall behind the heater. The duct is not visible from inside the room and is inconspicuous on the outside wall.

Because no chimney is required, the installation is simple and often can be completed in three hours or less. The job requires an extension of the gas line connection, the cutting of a small hole through the wall structure and, in some cases, the cutting out of a section of the inside wall.

Combustion takes place inside a sealed chamber. The built-in venting duct draws in air for combustion directly from outdoors and expels waste gases through a second, separate duct. Room air is not used for combustion.

Room air is drawn through the lower part of the heater. Some warmed, and then flows out into the dwelling area through the upper portion of the heater. Some models use an electric - powered circulating fan but this is an optional accessory.

Models now being manufactured include a power-vented heater that can be used in windows as well as in walls. Where electricty is required for power models, 115-volt house current is sufficient and no special wiring is required.

The heaters can be installed at any floor level and in any type of wall. Models are available for utilify gas as well as for liquefied petroleum gas in input capacities varying from 14,00 to 45,000 b.t.u.'s units. They are equipped with either manual or thermostatic controls.

Proper Glue Will Do Job of Holding

Hide and fish glues, which once had to be heated long and carefully, can now be used directly from their containers and have tremendous holding strength.

Use powdered resin glue when you want a water-resistant, non-staining adhesive.

Use powdered casein glue when you want a strong, heavy-duty adhesive, but work carefully with it to prevent getting any of on the surface of the materials being joined.

Most Homes Are Wood

Probably 95 per cent of the homes in the United States are made largely of wood, famed New York architect Ralph T. Walker reported recently. He urged fellow architects to use wood with feeling and understanding in home design to give people delight and pleasure in their daily living.

Dream House Can Go Up Now

This year of 1958 will be a good year to build that house you've been planning for these reasons:

1. Prices of building materials on the whole will be lower—some quite a lot lower—than in 1957 or 1956.

2. Any rise in labor cost is likely to be much more moderate than in past years.

3. Builders and subcontractors will be bidding more closely.

4. Mortgage money will be more plentiful and interest rates may be a shade under the high level reached in 1957.

Basically, the reason for this is that the stiff competition offered by commercial and industrial construction during the last few years for materials, men and money will be lessened. Home building will have a freer field than it has had—at least since 1954.

During 1957, mortgage loans were very hard to get, even when the borrower was willing to pay what used to be looked on as a high rate of interest. In 1958, mortgage-lending institutions will be in a better position to make home loans. This will be true of both FHA - insured and non - insured mortgages.

★ ★ ★

Don't expect to get a veteran's guaranteed loan. As the statute now stands, the legal availability of this kind of financing will end in June for veterans of World War II. While the program remains in existence for Korean War veterans until 1965, it has been so hedged about with interest rate restrictions that it is virtually out of the picture.

Wall Paneling Should Suit Type of Room

There are an infinite number of paneling patterns, but because the contemporary home has lower ceilings than older homes, installing the panels vertically to give the illusion of height is proving the most popular. If a perfectly smooth wall is desired, panel boards should be selected which have been cut with a tongue and groove so that they fit together without a break, but panels cut with a slight V joint enjoy equal popularity.

Another pattern fast becoming a favorite is the board-and-inverted-batten installed vertically. This type of paneling gives added dimension and texture to a wall and seems to be especially complimentary to a room which features other rugged textures, such as natural stone in the fireplace and hearth.

Remove Snow With Heat

For automatic now melting, a system of piping or tubing can be embedded in walks and driveways of your home and supplied with hot water from the main heating boiler.

HOME OWNERS' QUESTION BOX

Q—We need a new roof and understand it can be applied in winter. But if it rains or snows while the job is being done, wouldn't water get inside and cause damage?

A—Not necessarily, if you reroof with asphalt shingles. In most cases, these can be applied directly over the old roofing material. Even if a blizzard interrupts the job, the area that hasn't yet been reroofed still has the same protection it had before the work was started. Another advantage of this method is that there's little mess during the work or afterward, since the old roofing remains.

Q—What causes dry rot? Is it heat, dampness, or both?

A—Dry rot is caused by a fungus that grows best in conditions of alternate drying and excess moisture. It is frequently found in improperly ventilated attics.

A—Take up the old linoleum with a floor chisel, one with a blade about 3 inches wide. Drive it under the linoleum at a shallow angle and pry up, without gouging the floor. After removal, use a commercial solvent to loosen cement and paper underlayer.

Q—The plasterboard ceilings in my house have been painted over many times and now have hairline cracks all over them. Even when repainted, the cracks show. What can I do?

A—Try painting the ceiling with a special "texture" paint. It goes on thickly, and is especially designed to hide blemishes. Most paint and building material dealers can supply it.

Mothers Are Grateful

The "mudroom" — a common appendage to a farm home—has its place in city living, too. During periods of slush, snow or mud a special place for raincoats, boots, rubber or overshoes saves wear and tear on the rugs and eliminates endless mopping jobs. An enclosed breezeway or back porch can easily be turned into a mudroom, particularly if the floors are surfaced with waterproof, easy-to-clean ceramic tile.

NEWS VIEWS

Looks like the U. S. Mailman is getting tired of serving as a teething ring for the nation's pooches. Just the other day Postmaster General Summerfield announced that from now on whenever a dog bites a mail carrier it will also be snapping off the delivery service.

If your dog decides to make a snack bar out of your local carrier . . . then you'll have to go pick up your own mail. And there are no free samples . . . the first time Fido forgets himself, you and the U. S. Mail are as far apart as your house and the Post Office. Every year the nation's mail maestros collect about 6,000 bites. That's a pretty snappy record. It's tough enough to carry the mail through rain, snow and fog . . . without being hounded every step of the way.

General Herbert Powell says the foot soldier is still needed "until a B-52 bomber can occupy a city or a submarine can get to a hill." Or till they get automatic potato peelers.

It may not be a large army, but our task force of 12 live-wire salesmen is trained and equipped to make a powerful attack on your real estate problem, whatever it may be. Slotted Hampers Hold Clothes

A convenient hamper for soiled clothes and linens may be placed beneath a laundry chute or near a washing machine and items to be cleaned can be collected and stored until laundry day. If desired, a bag can be hung on the inside of the hamper for convenience in removing the contents.

The box is easily made with a few tools and 1 by 6, 1 by 12, and 2 by 2-inch lumber. Before assembling the pieces, bevel all edges to prevent the clothing from snagging.

Cut the legs, made of 2 by 2-inch lumber, to a length of 33 inches. Draw diagonal lines on one end of each leg locating a center point and drill holes for the casters. The sides are made of 1 by 6-inch lumber. Cut ten pieces to a length of 36 inches.

Fasten five each to a pair of legs providing an overhang on each end of the side boards for the end boards to be fitted between them. Cut the end boards to fit so that the overall width is 23 inches and attach them in place. Use 6-penny finishing nails. When assembling the box, fasten the first board flush with the top of the leg. The other pieces are spaced 1 inch apart.

Make the bottom and top by edge-gluing two pieces of 1 by 12-inch lumber, cut 36 inches long. Cut out the corners of the bottom deep enough so that when the bottom is fitted around the legs the outer edges will be flush with the face of the 1 by 6s.

Invert the box and fasten the bottom to the 1 by 6s and legs. Use 8-penny finishing nails. Cleats fastened from beneath will provide added support. The top is also fitted with three 17-inch cleats to prevent sliding. The outer cleats are 3 inches from the ends.

UNCLUTTERED BATHROOM — A full wall installation of built-ins can solve many a bathroom traffic problem, especially if two wash basins are separated. Made of lovely grained woods like durable Douglas fir, finished with plastic lacquer, there is storage for all bathroom linens and supplies. There is even room for a vanity table built into a short wall of the same material.

Architect Wright Lashes at Look-Alike Housing

PHOENIX, Ariz. (INS) — Don't be in a hurry to lay that down payment on a new house, advises Frank Lloyd Wright, and make sure you're buying some privacy.

The 88-year-old world-famed architect, interviewed at his isolated desert workshop northeast of Phoenix, had sharp words for what he called the "thousands of little housing communities lined up picture window to picture window" across the United States.

"Refuse to buy a home that doesn't please you," he declared. "Wait, wait, wait and wait until you find a house that has some space around it and you are in a position to buy it. Don't buy until you get to that point."

★ ★ ★

"The most precious and valuable thing in human life," he stressed, "is privacy and if you are not defended against intrusion where you live, you haven't got a home."

Wright, always the champion of individuality and a bitter critic of conformity in modern-day living, lashed out at homes "lined up picture window to picture window where you can hear papa spanking the baby next door and mother bawling out her husband on the other side."

★ ★ ★

Wright explained:

"Once upon a time the big city was the great necessity. In the middle ages, the city served a good purpose. It was the only way you could have culture. It was the only way you could have contact man with man.

"This is not so now. The city is in the way, and gradually the flock is moving out into the country. The big freeways take them into the city and the big freeways take them out again, and this to-and-fro movement takes up most of the energy and life of the citizens.

"Gradually, this to-and-fro movement will decrease. As people go more and more to the country, the department stores and factories will move in the same direction until perhaps eventually the whole country will become one great city."

Commenting further on the home situation, Wright said, "These little housing communities are really a hangover and a disgrace to the advantages that we enjoy — the automobile, the telephone, flight and other benefits provided by modern science."

Astronomical Figures

To build the 1,000,000 new one-family homes estimated for 1958, a volume of material almost beyond belief is needed. For example, builders will need 14 million window units, 19 million gallons of paint, almost 10 billion feet of lumber, over a million bath tubs, 24 million sacks of cement, 12 million doors, 2 million tons of steel, and last but not last, over 60,000,000 feet of clay pipe for house sewers.

HANGING WALL DESK—You can have a desk even in the smallest living room. Just design one to hang from the wall, like this. It is compact and adequate and easy to decorate around. It can be made of lovely blond west coast hemlock and finished naturally like the choicest piece of furniture.

Office in Home Ends Contest for Kitchen Table

Does the man of the house bring home work from the office and take it back flecked with peanut butter and jam? Has he filed fragments of Junior's lollipop along with Tax Form 1040?

These symptoms are part of the amiliar ailment known as the battle for the kitchen or family room table, and they help explain why the office-in-the home rates high in plans for many new dwellings and also in modernization projects.

The kitchen table may be popular for the simple reason that there isn't any other place in the house where one can spread out. But it may also be because this is the only place with adequate heat and light — factors that make it preferred to other spots even with the noise and interruptions.

Although the office-in-the-home may well prove over a period of time to be one of the most useful areas of the house, it is relatively easy to achieve. Good heating is a "must" because of the lack of physical activity in doing paperwork — and the fact that comfort at the desk spot helps end the postponements and procrastinations so common with various jobs. Furnishings need not be expensive, and some of them often can be taken from less-used areas of the home.

Quiet, automatic operation of gas furnaces and boilers, and improved facilities for distributing heat make easier the establishment of such facilities in the home. Controls to permit maintaining different temperatures in various sections of the dwelling are especially helpful.

Architect's Job Not Over Until House Is Done

1. Through his intensive and specialized training he can help you plan and design a home to meet your specific needs.

2. The architect should supervise all phases of construction work to assure that the specifications are carefully followed, including the use throughout of quality materials.

3. As a businessman, he should administer construction and financing details, guard against over-stepping cost limitations and obtain estimates and advice of contractors.

4. From start to finish, the architect should act as the owner's adviser on all phases of planning and construction — he is insurance that you get what you pay for.

5. He should act as coordinator on lighting, heating, plumbing, decorating, air conditioning and other specialties.

Paint Does Wonders!

Everybody likes to paint. It's a satisfying outlet for creative talent. Transferring a color from a can to a wall gives one a sense of achievement. It's good to know that you can make your own wishes come true. Anyone can have a "pink palace" if he wants it. Even the most usual type of house can be transformed to a thing of beauty with the wise selection of paint colors. Whether you do the actual work yourself, or entrust it to an expert, it's the color that is important.

Shellac Seals Surface

The painting you do around the home can't be expected to look like a professional job. However, if you are plagued with bleeding of old paint or stain which streaks through a new paint job, try shellac as a sealer. Before applying a new color, shellac over the old.

New Life Begins for Parquet Floor

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Hardwood floors evidently don't wear out. They just outlive their building and then are re-installed in another for a second life of service.

★ ★ ★

That's what happened with the exquisite parquet floor in the sumptuous Fifth Avenue Rovensky House. The 25 x 40-foot floor, its ornate forms and patterns mirroring those of the decorated ceiling, was the talk of the flooring business when laid originally in 1916, according to a flooring trade publication.

Recently W. J. Erbe Co., specialists in artistic hardwood floors, was engaged to "pick it up" and re-lay it in a Washington, D. C. mansion.

★ ★ ★

The small individual pieces composing the elaborately designed floor were pulled up piece by piece and numbered so that they could be reassembled in exactly the same pattern.

Exterior Tile Popular

Keep this in mind when you're planning to polish furniture and floors: A surface buffed with a power tool gives you a high-gloss finish that simply can't be compared with the results of hand polishing. It is far easier to keep furniture clean when it is polished in this fashion.

Holds Up Bank 1st Night Opened; Makes Getaway

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Farmers Bank inaugurated nighttime business hours last night—and was promptly robbed at gunpoint.

Bank officials said a bandit got from $5,000 to $10,000 from a teller's cage.

★ ★ ★

Bill Cullen's Home Life Works in Split Shifts

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Bill Cullen's pretty wife Ann hops out of bed at 4:30 a.m., five days a week and makes him some coffee.

★ ★ ★

WILSON

As he departs to do "Pulse" radio show starting at 6, the former Ann Reemheld, ex-model, returns to bed. "When the key goes clink, she goes clunk," Bill says.

Though he's chattering away until 10, she sleeps through most of it—waking up around 9 or later. By now she's ready to watch him on his daily TV show, "The Price Is Right," which begins at 11.

★ ★ ★

Bill comes home (an apartment on East End Av.) at noon and goes back to bed for four hours.

"I sleep two shifts of four hours," he says. "I break it up so Ann and I can have dinner and a little bit of life together."

But on Wednesday night he's a panel-sitter on "I've Got a Secret" and on Thursday night he m.c.'s the nighttime version of "The Price Is Right." Bill's getting to be one of the busiest and richest young men in television.

"Luckily for me," Bill told me the other day, "it isn't hard to do 'Secret.' You don't have to do anything but show up."

★ ★ ★

But "The Price Is Right" has become such a success that Bill could almost keep busy telling people he can't get them tickets.

"I don't even get tickets any more for that reason," he said. When NBC publicists point out that he gets the heaviest mail in TV—close to 3,000,000 cards a week for the two "Price" shows—Bill says:

"But they're not writing to me—they're writing for the prizes."

State Tax Collections in December Down

LANSING (AP)—The State Revenue Department has reported a slump of three per cent in state sales and use tax collections for December. December collections for 1957 totalled $32,987,306, a drop of $982,000 from the previous year, the record showed.

Car sales and general business both slumped almost equally to account for the drop, the department said.

Thief Displays Thoughtfulness in Light Touch

"Dear friends:

"We are so indeed grateful of the fact that you were kind enough to let us borrow your tree lights this Christmas. Our tree sure sparkled. Sorry we are so late in returning your lights; but just be thankful that you got them back!

(signed) Grateful"

By BOB THOMAS

That is a question I explored with Dale Robertson, who should know. After all, the guy is the star of "Wells Fargo," which has had fabulous success in the audience ratings. It scores regularly in the top 10, often in the upper half.

"Maybe it's because people get to know that ours is a real Western," he observed. "We don't go in for all that psychological business that some of the others do.

★ ★ ★

"Our bad guys are mean because they like to be mean, not because they saw their mothers beat ther dogs when they were kids. And our good guys are good guys because—I don't know, maybe because they aren't smart enough to be bad guys."

Another item: the Wells Fargo title.

"I think it's the best title in the business," the cowpoke said. "Everybody knows what it stands for. And we've got enough real stories to last us for years and years. We're just getting started; I think in our third or fourth year we'll start to hit our stride.

"Of course, you can't just take stories right out of the book and film them. They have to be changed a little to fit into 26 minutes. But people realize they are basically authentic."

"You can sometimes fool the people in little things," he said. "But when you put a guy on a saddle and he goes bouncing through the scene, you aren't going to fool many people."

Dale was born in Oklahoma City and has spent his life around horses, unlike some TV cowpokes who have been no closer to the nags than the Saturday matinee. He owns 37 horses of his own.

A famous TV comic said he's going on the air and present a spectacle — his wife — — Terrible tragedy befell one of the new boy singers. Lost all his popularity when he forgot himself and got a haircut. A small town is a place where you can park anywhere you want to but you don't want to.

Union Members Called Enslaved

Racket Probers Invite Officials to Clamp Down on Operating Engineers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate racket probers today invited state and federal officials to move in on the Operating Engineers Union. They accused officials of looting union funds and enslaving its members.

★ ★ ★

Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy said the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee has "a good deal more information" — particularly about the union's affairs in San Francisco and Chicago—than was aired in its public hearings. He said the hearings prompted a flow of information that is still coming in.

Chairman McClellan (D - Ark) wound up two weeks of hearings yesterday with a formal statement charging that the union's 74-year-old president, William E. Maloney, and a gorup of other union bosses have looted the union's funds.

Kennedy told reporters the publicly aired evidence on which McClellan based this statement should be studied by the Justice Department, income tax investigators and law enforcement officials in some of the areas mentioned.

Kennedy also said the AFL-CIO should take cognizance of this evidence. The AFL-CIO already has said it is taking a close look at what went on in the big union, whose members run steam shovels and other heavy machinery in the construction industry.

Kennedy said the contents of 10 bank safety deposit boxes held in the name of Maloney and his wife in various cities should interest the income tax authorities. The committee has been denied access to the boxes.

Staff investigators have testified Maloney took many thousands of dollars in illegitimate expense money from union funds and that he failed to declare this money in his income tax returns. There also has been testimony that union money was used to pay for limousines, a yacht and other luxuries for Maloney and other union officials.

★ ★ ★

Maloney is in a Miami Beach hospital, but McClellan said he will be required to appear as soon as his health permits.

Knife Fight Fatal to Ferndale Boy

Dead on arrival at Mt. Carmel Hospital, Detroit, at 2 a.m. was William Johnson 17, of 8112 Cloverdale, Ferndale. Taken to the same hospital in critical condition were Archie Cook, 17, of 21055 Mendota St., and Leonard Spencer, 15, of 21350 Conover Lane. Both live in Royal Oak Township.

Cook later was moved to the Pontiac General Hospital where he is under police custody.

The fight started about 11:15 p.m. during the regular Friday evening dance at the building, according to Detective Robert Hawkins of the Township Police Department.

POLICE CALLED

He said his department was called after the Spencer youth was stabbed by Cook, who also was knifed.

While police were taking the pair to the hospital, friends of the two youths took up the argument, Hawkins said.

★ ★ ★

Hawkins said his department had complained of the lack of supervision at the dances in the Community Building. They are sponsored by various civic groups.

★ ★ ★

The dances now have been discontinued, he said.

Seventeen members of the Men's Club of Temple Beth Jacob met recently with Rabbi Nathan Hershfield for a two-day retreat at Haven Hill Lodge.

Discussion analyzed man and his destiny as found in the Bible books of "Job" and "Ecclesiastes." Also studied was "Ethics of the Fathers."

The laymen conducted the religious services with all participating in prayer. "How Can Modern Man Observe the Sabbath" was of major interest in which everyone was free to discuss and ask questions.

Included in the group were Dr. Marvin Thom, president of the club; Jacob Meyer, general chairman; James and Arthur Rosenthal, George Agree, Rudolph LoPatin, Dr. Sam Chafets, and Dr. Jerome Peters.

Seek to Share Welfare Costs

County Representatives in Lansing Ask State to Match Funds

Some optimism prevailed today that the state may resume its past share of welfare costs on a state-county matching basis.

Several representatives of Oakland County appeared this week before the Social Aid and Welfare Committee of the House of Representatives in Lansing to plead for a return to a 50-50 ratio.

As of last September, the state has narrowed its load to 30 per cent, putting an additional burden on all counties of 70 per cent of a soaring number of welfare cases.

It is reported that this cutback will cost Oakland County $337,000 this year over and above what it cost with the greater state aid.

"I feel quite optimistic about it," said Royal Oak Supervisor William C. Hudson, about House Bill 30 to restore the old scale. Hudson is a member of the Welfare Committee and chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Board of Supervisors.

Not sharing such an optimistic tone in the light of current state financial problems, was George Burt, vice chairman of the Social Welfare Board.

"We may not get the full fifty-fifty," he said, "but we'll get some consideration, I'm sure."

The bill is presently before the House committee. If it receives favorable reaction there it is slated to go to the financial or Ways and Means Committee.

State costs will go up $6,000,000 if the 50-50 agreement returns, it came out in the meeting in Lansing.

Says Khrushchev OKs Summit Delay

LONDON (AP)— Nikita Khrushchev is reported willing to delay a summit meeting if the West prefers, but the Soviet Communist boss doesn't like the idea of a foreign ministers' parley first.

★ ★ ★

Khrushchev's views on a top-level meeting were reported today by Iverach McDonald, foreign editor of the Times of London.

The West has contended that preliminary negotiations, including perhaps a foreign ministers' session, should set up any top-level parley.

★ ★ ★

Khrushchev has proposed that the East and West should tackle disarmament in gradual stages, "proving to each other that we are not man-eaters."

Valentine Collectors Learn Hearts Are Always in Style

By LEE WINBORN
Press Romeo Correspondent

"I love you, Dear, and forever
My dearest wish will be,
To call you mine—my very own
For all eternity."

This greeting card is one of many in the collection of 12-year-old Phoebe McGuire and her sister, Susie, 10, that show the evolution of Valentines from 1820 to the present day.

★ ★ ★

The girls are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. McGuire, 264 N. Main St. Their interest in things as they used to be is only natural. Their parents are antique dealers whose interests range from old books, china, furniture and paintings to modern architecture and craftmanship.

As Feb. 14 approaches each year, the McGuire sisters again rediscover the changes in Valentine greetings from their great-grandparents' day until now.

Valentines of more than a century ago varied from the tiny calling - card size to the more magnificent three - dimensional, box - style greetings. Then, as now, sweethearts could make their own cards with materials available or send the more elaborate and expensive commercial kinds.

★ ★ ★

"During the Civil War period, children collected sentimental verse from newspapers, then bought sheets of embossed paper covered with hearts, flowers and birds for a penny," McGuire said.

FRAMED IN LACE

After cutting out and pasting the verse on a card, the frame of hand - cut lace paper — artistically embossed with fountains, tree,, a gallant swain on horseback and even his lady on the balcony — was added. Then the cutout birds, flowers and other embellishments provided the final touch of color.

★ ★ ★

One interesting Valentine, sent during the Civil War, was mailed by a Union soldier stationed in Washington, D. C., to his sweetheart in upstate New York.

It was a white embossed card with a tent made of flags which opened to reveal a picture of a Union soldier writing to his love. The sentimental verse entitled "Faithful in Death" read:

The foeman rage like waves at sea;
If cruel fate should bid me fall,
My last fond thought shall be of thee.

"Both then and now, Valentines remain essentially the same," Mcsy, sentimental, animated and Guire said. "They used to be sas-three - dimensional — just as they are today."

★ ★ ★

"The basic difference," he added, is in quality — particularly of the lace paper and artwork. And in addition to stressing quality, old-time greeting card designers weren't afraid to make them pretty."

MAKE OWN CARDS

The young McGuire girls enjoy making their own cards — they do it for every holiday. But they have one advantage over their great - grandmother. Where she had to look around for each piece to use in making her Valentine, the girls can buy do-it-yourself kits with all essential parts provided in one box.

★ ★ ★

Despite the passing years, the idea behind the first known Valentine, which dates back to the 15th Century, remains the same — that of friendship and love.

Devotion to Duty Leads to Arrests

Trooper and Township Officer Enable Clearing Up 50 Burglaries

Off - duty activities of a State Trooper from the Pontiac Post and a West Bloomfield Township Police Sergeant led to the arrest Thursday night of two break-in suspects and clearing up over 50 burglaries today.

Trooper Alfred Strilecky and Sgt. Glen Helgemo began a stakeout on their own time Monday night in the Inkster-15 Mile Rd. area.

Five large homes in that area had been burglarized since Jan. 9, while the occupants were away on vacations. The officers noticed a suspicious car Thursday night and stopped in on 14 Mile Rd. just east of Telegraph Rd.

The two men in the car, Charles O. Biroth, 20, of Royal Oak, and Gerald G. Norman, 21, of Warren, were booked at the Oakland County Jail.

Detectives report the men have confessed that they pulled from 50 to 60 breakins in the W. Bloomfield Township area in recent months. Both are on probation for previous breaking and entering charges.

Bovine Tastes Run to Waltzes, Not Rock 'n' Roll

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Walter Faeth of St. Charles, Mo., played soothing music such as Strauss waltzes to his cows for a month. Milk production jumped 227 pounds over the corresponding period a year ago.

★ ★ ★

Both farmers stopped the music for eight milkings. No change in milk production, Hitz reported. But without the aid of Strauss, Faeth's cows gave 40 pounds less milk.

The experiment was promoted by disc jockey Jim Butler of station KMOX of St. Louis and the Sanitary Milk Producers.

J. L. VOORHEES

ACORNS

Like the acorns of the mighty oak many wonderful things grew from tiny seeds of thoughtfulness. A nephew and a niece of a lonely, feeble, tight - fisted, austere school teacher were discussing the wisdom of inviting this old lady to share their home or save the money to send their daughter Janet to college. Compassion dictated their decision. She was invited.

M. E. SIPLE

She duly arrived in castoff clothing, hair in strings, eyes sharp as spear points and lips as thin as a razor edge. It was the 10 year old grand niece who melted her heart as she put her arms around her aunt's neck and asked, "Please tell me a story?" Love grew and blossomed as the old aunt became a needed person in that home.

She died a very happy person. When her will was read the niece and nephew heard: ". . . . and to Janet Anderson I bequeath $25,000." This was her way of showing appreciation for a beautiful ending to a long, lonely life.

TV Credited With Making Bowling Into Big Industry

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Bowling has had a phenomenal growth in recent years. The bowling industry — and it has become a very big industry — says that four years ago there were an estimated 20 million regular bowlers in the country. Today there are 22 million.

Why has the number grown so fast? Because of television, industry sources believe. The increase in bowlers has coincided with the appearance and increasing popularity of bowling on the home screen.

While the industry can easily measure the number of active bowlers, it has no way of measuring the number of inactive — or armchair — bowlers.

"Strike or spare me, I wouldn't be caught dead in an alley. Why should I when, by watching it on television, better men than I can work off my frustrations for me? Because bowling is the greatest release for the frustrated devised by man since — well, you can't print that.

"It's my theory that the fact a bowling ball is usually black is highly significant. It represents the ill will that a man — or woman — expels toward a job, a boss, a mate.
