Nation Begins Final Tribute to Ike

BODY TAKEN TO CATHEDRAL — The body of former President Eisenhower is taken from a Washington funeral home for the trip to Washington National Cathedral today. The body will lie in repose at the cathedral until tomorrow.

Body Borne to Cathedral

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pageantry of state farewell blended with the private goodbye of family and friends today as the nation began a majestic final tribute to Dwight D. Eisenhower.

With military pomp, the body of the soldier and president was borne to Washington National Cathedral, where it will lie until tomorrow.

But before the public tribute, the widow, family and friends of the man the nation called Ike gathered in a cloistered chapel for a brief and private service.

At the outset of a ceremonial journey which will last for five days—and end on the plains of Kansas—Eisenhower's body was carried in a hearse from a private funeral home to the cathedral.

WATCH IN SILENCE

There the Marine Band, brass glinting in the springtime sun, played Hail to the Chief, then God of Our Fathers, as military pallbearers carried the coffin into the soaring, vaulted cathedral.

Severe hundred people gathered at the funeral home and at the cathedral, watching in silence.

The flag, draped over the casket, fluttered in the wind as the honor guard carried it to the chapel, passing beneath an inscription which reads "The Way of Peace."

Mrs. Eisenhower, clinging to the arm of her son, John, followed the casket down a short flight of steps into Bethlehem Chapel for the private services.

KEY MOURNERS

Among the mourners there were: grandson David and Julie Nixon Eisenhower; brothers Milton and Edgar, granddaughter Barbara Anne and her husband.

M. Sgt. John Mooney, long-time valet to Eisenhower, was there. So was Brig. Gen. Robert Schultz, for years his military aide.

The privacy of that ceremony was a preface to the public corteges and rites, which Eisenhower himself had helped to plan.

Eisenhower, who led history's mightiest Army to victory in Europe in World War II and his nation through eight years of shaky but unbroken peace, died yesterday after an epic 11-month siege of repeated heart attacks.

President Nixon, whom Eisenhower lived to see in the White House, went into the seclusion of his Camp David, Md. retreat after saying, "We have lost a great leader, a great friend and a great man."

TO LIE IN STATE

Nixon will return tomorrow, when the body is borne by horse-drawn caisson through the streets of Washington to lie in state beneath the dome of the U.S. Capitol.

"A giant of our age is gone," said Lyndon B. Johnson, now one of two surviving ex-presidents.

The other, Harry S. Truman, now 84 and in frail health, said despite his political feuds with Eisenhower after World War II, "We were comrades in arms and I cannot forget his services to his country and Western civilization."

FOR FUNERAL USE

Blair House, where Truman had lived as president, was being prepared for possible use by the two former chief executives during the funeral.

Through all the praise for Eisenhower man the common refrain — victor in war, man of peace.

By DIANNE DUROCHER

A cold rain was falling yesterday afternoon as Pontiac-area residents learned of the death of the 34th president of the United States.

Official word was released from Walter Reed Army Hospital, and the nation learned that Dwight D. Eisenhower died yesterday morning after a "long and heroic struggle."

"I cried," said Mrs. Lee Hill of 28 Stone, Pontiac, "I thought he was such a wonderful man and he had been having so much trouble recently."

"Abraham Lincoln is my favorite president, but I admired Eisenhower because he was such a great general during World War II and he wasn't a politician. That's why I admired him most," she added.

SIMPLE ELOQUENCE

There was a simple eloquence about Eisenhower that touched people all over the world. His grin and folksy nickname were his hallmarks. He devoted his entire life to the service of his country, and Pontiac-area residents pensively recalled these things as they spoke about him yesterday.

"When he said something, he carried it through and he has done a lot for this country both as a general and as president," said Robert Tibbitts of 25 Ensley, Oxford.

Daniel Arnold, an Oakland University freshman who was in grade school during Eisenhower's administration, said, "I really respected him because he was in the war and he actually fought for his country in the field, not behind a desk."

Doug Hefty, also an Oakland University freshman, echoed the words of his friend, adding, "He seemed to be liked for himself as a man, not just a politician."

"I'm sorry to hear of his death, though it seemed imminent this morning," said Willie Terry of 587 Wyoming, Pontiac, "I thought he was a fine president and a fine gentleman."

"He was my boss during World War II," said Warren Chaitre of 2091 S. Hammond Lake, Bloomfield Township.

Two Pontiac Men Die in City Crash

Two Pontiac men were killed late yesterday when their car ran off the road and smashed into a tree.

Dead on arrival at Pontiac General Hospital about 11:15 p.m. were Maryland R. Brumfield, 22, of 960 LaSalle and Kelly R. Eastham, 23, of 66 S. Sanford, according to city police.

Officers said the car, driven by Brumfield, was traveling at an estimated 70 miles per hour on Auburn when it veered off the road just west of South Anderson about 11 p.m.

Winter Having One Last Fling

Old Man Winter is having one last fling. He will treat the Pontiac area to a freezing weekend before mild temperatures move in.

Here is the day by day official forecast of the U.S. Weather Bureau:

TODAY — Variable cloudiness with occasional periods of snow flurries. Much colder. High in the upper 20s. Very cold tonight, the low 7 to 12.

Winds northeasterly 15 to 25 miles per hour through Sunday.

TOMORROW — Cold with possible snow flurries, high in upper 20s.

MONDAY — Chance of snow flurries, cold.

Probabilities of precipitation are 30 per cent today, tonight and tomorrow.

A breezy 18 was the low temperature in downtown Pontiac before 8 a.m. The mercury recorded 29 at 2 p.m.

D.C. Embassy Seized

County Panel Juggles Funds

The finance committee of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors cut the county's 1970 tentative budget $338,200 yesterday — and then added $433,200 to it.

There was a net gain of $95,000 to a new $31-million figure. The 1969 county budget is $25.8 million.

No attempt was made to ban the public or the press from the committee meeting, earlier slated as an executive session.

The largest slice of additional monies put in the budget is a $400,000 appropriation to the County Road Commission. It would permit a shared program between the county, local communities and the commission to finance new road construction.

BIGGEST SLASH

The department to feel the biggest slash yesterday was welfare-general relief, with some $160,000 pared from a proposed $1.9 million budget. A total of $228,200 was cut from auditors' recommendations regarding county department requests.

Nondepartmental budgets had been pared $110,000 on Thursday, the largest slice of $50,000 coming from the contingency fund. A total of $700,000 still remains in the fund.

The budget, yet to be approved by the full board of supervisors, will serve as a working basis for the County Allocation Board when it divides up the 15-mill gonvoted tax between county, schools and townships.

As presented in tentative form, the budget calls for a county allocation of 3.85 mills compared to last year's 5.28 mills.

A final budget will not be adopted until October.

To retain the same allocation figure, O'Brien suggested keeping salaries at present levels and hiring no new employees.

He suggested that schools get the money which resulted when the county's state equalized valuation increased from $3.4 billion to $4 billion.

O'Brien was charged with seeking "a good press" by Christian Powell, R-West Bloomfield, who stated that much of the salary increases included in this year's budget are union-negotiated.

Courts and Federal Offices Will Be Closed on Monday

Pontiac financial institutions, federal offices and courts will close Monday in commemoration of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Community National Bank, Pontiac State Bank and First Federal Savings of Oakland will close at 1 p.m. Monday, a national day of mourning.

Although mailboxes around the city will be emptied and special deliveries will be made, the Pontiac Post Office will remain closed on Monday, and regular deliveries will not be made.

The Internal Revenue Service office in Pontiac will also be closed on Monday.

ALL STATE COURTS TO CLOSE

The Michigan Supreme Court has ordered all state courts to close Monday in memory of the former president.

In Pontiac District Court, all cases scheduled for that day will be adjourned to the same time on Tuesday.

The Oakland County Courts will also close Monday and the 150 jurors scheduled to report then should report instead at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Pontiac City and Oakland County offices, Pontiac and Waterford Township Schools, Oakland University and Oakland Community College plan to remain open on Monday.

Many area merchants indicated they would remain open for business throughout the day.

City Gave Welcome In Campaign of '52

Months of grueling campaigning were near an end when Dwight David Eisenhower, still vigorous, determined and enthusiastic, visited Pontiac in 1952 on his way to the presidency.

He was only days away from winning the nation's highest position when his special 18-car train arrived at the Grand Trunk Western Railroad station the morning of Oct. 25.

A crowd estimated at 4,000 was on hand to greet the general, who through the years had come to be known affectionately as "Ike."

It was with this genuine feeling that the thousands lining the route roared a thunderous ovation as Eisenhower stepped briskly on to the back platform, smiling and waving.

FULL OF ENERGY

He appeared "full of energy," an observer noted.

It was the same energy that he showed when he officially entered the political scene 10 months earlier, later bolstered by a victory over Sen. Robert A. Taft at the 1952 Republican convention in July.

With that, it was an optimistic Eisenhower who came to Pontiac. Eisenhower's war record long had been considered by Republican and Democrats alike when measuring the potential of a presidential candidate to draw votes.

In fact, at the Potsdam Peace Conference in 1945, President Harry S. Truman told Eisenhower, "General, there is nothing that you may want that I won't try to help you get. That definitely and specifically includes the presidency."

Arriving in Pontiac seven years later, Eisenhower had not lost the respect that he had gained over the years in a nation often criticized for its short memory.

With this in mind, the late con-

Final Tribute to Eisenhower Begins

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield compared him to George Washington. And perhaps Eisenhower, with his landslide victories, may well have been the most popular president since the birth of the nation.

Public opinion polls still rank him as the most admired American.

News Scene at a Glance

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Police officials say they have discounted as a prime suspect in the killings of two girls a former mental patient once questioned in the "Boston Strangler" killings. The Detroit News reported yesterday that the 28-year-old man now a student at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, had drawn official attention because of his background.

251 Reds Die in Battles

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and government forces fought 10 battles across South Vietnam — one the closest to Saigon since the Vietcong launched their spring offensive — and three American aircraft were shot down, military spokesmen said today. The fighting left 251 Vietcong and North Vietnamese dead at a cost of seven Americans and 10 South Vietnamese killed and 74 Americans and 30 government soldiers wounded.

Indicted Exec Sought

LANSING (AP) — The grand jury probing alleged corruption in the State Highway Department moved yesterday to return an Ohio businessman to Michigan to face conspiracy charges. William J. Miller, 52, president of the York Realty and Decorating Co., Inc. of Columbus, Ohio, declined an informal invitation to return to Michigan voluntarily for arraignment, authorities said.

Three Buildings Burned

PRAIRIE VIEW, Tex. (AP) — State police reported three buildings were set on fire today at Prairie View A&M College in a disturbance which broke out after a student was stabbed and killed. Texas Rangers and state highway patrolmen were summoned to reinforce sheriff's officers after the trouble broke out between 2 and 3 a.m.

'No Request for Probe'

LANSING (AP) — A spokesman for the attorney general's office said yesterday the agency had not been requested to investigate the Department of Mental Health. Deputy Atty. Gen. Leon Cohan made the statement after Senate Majority Leader Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis, said an audit revealed "the department is extremely inefficient, extremely mismanaged and has improperly spent thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money."

U.N. Debate Continues

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.N. Security Council began a third day of debate today on Israel's air raid against Jordan, trying to finish before Big Four talks on the Middle East expected to start next week. Diplomatic sources said Soviet, U.S., British and French U.N. ambassadors would meet in New York Thursday to start talks on how to settle the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. But in Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram said Egypt has already rejected a U.S. proposal for peace submitted to the other three powers in preparation for the meeting.

Police Disperse Youths

MONTREAL (UPI) — Riot and motorcycle police last night dispersed a crowd of 8,000 French-Canadian youths from the gates of McGill University, a 141-year-old school the demonstrators want to make a French institution.

The protest was followed by three hours of scattered incidents in which more persons were injured and arrested than in the protest itself.

Loss Is Mourned by Area Residents

He and his wife Nancy said they were surprised and shocked when they heard the news that Eisenhower had died even though they were half expecting it because of his weakened condition.

"I'm terribly sorry. He went through a great deal," said Mrs. Calvin Warner of 888 Sunny Beach, White Lake Township.

Mrs. Josephine Williams of 46 Howard said, "I was hoping he would pull through, but he had suffered so long."

"We all come to an end," said Ken Harper of 3443 Nichols, Pontiac Township, who voted for Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956. "And he lived a rich, full life."

Unknown to the nation when World War II began, Eisenhower rose to command the nightiest armies ever assembled in battle through the invasion of Europe to his personal acceptance of the German surrender.

Elected president in 1952 and again in 1956 — the only Republican in this century to win successive terms — Eisenhower, with his warm smile and simple words, brought reassuring confidence to a nation beset with Cold War crises and won as just plain "Ike" a place in the hearts of millions.

Stricken by his first heart attack while still in his first term in 1955, Eisenhower survived that and eventually six more before congestive heart failure eroded his iron strength and he slid gently into death at 12:25 p.m. yesterday.

His wife of more than half a century, Mamie Doud Eisenhower, was nearby when death came as were most other members of his family.

DAY OF MOURNING

Nixon, who rushed to Walter Reed Army Hospital after the announcement, proclaimed Monday as a national day of mourning and ordered the American flag flown at half-staff around the world for 30 days.

Nixon, in his presidential proclamation of mourning, said, "Even in death he has left us a great spirit that will never die."

In one of the ironies of the age, Eisenhower reached his greatness in a career in two professions he openly disliked — war and politics.

"This damnable thing of war," Eisenhower once called it. And, even in the White House, he admitted he didn't like politics or politicians.

NEVER LOST CONFIDENCE

Eisenhower's era as president was pocked with crisis, but the public never lost its confidence in the grandfatherly golfer and leader it loved.

When Eisenhower died, he was once again among the trappings of war, a patient in a military hospital caring for wounded veterans of Vietnam.

Bandit Sought in $8,000 Area Bank Robbery

Birmingham police today are seeking a lone armed bandit who took over $8,000 from the Birmingham-Bloomfield Bank, 101 S. Woodward, at about 2:10 p.m. yesterday.

Police were told the gunman entered the bank carrying a manila envelope, from which he pulled what is believed to be a 45-caliber automatic pistol. He told a teller to "Take it easy and give me all your money."

When the teller complied, the gunman asked for more money, so she gave him more. The bandit then told another teller to turn around, and when a third teller came to the scene he told them to all lay down on the floor, police were told.

The bandit then walked out of the bank, and the tellers pressed the alarm. No getaway car was seen and police said they presently have no suspects.

Several customers in the bank were unaware of the robbery, police said.

Red Maneuvers Start

PRAGUE (UPI) — Troops from four of the seven Warsaw Pact nations have begun joint military maneuvers in Poland, East Germany and Czechoslovakia, the Czechoslovakia CTK News Agency reported today.

The agency said the unannounced exercises, called "Vesna 69," began "in the last days of March" and involved units from the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia and East Germany.

Drug Expert to Talk on LSD

BIRMINGHAM (AP) — LSD will be discussed by Dr. Sidney Cohen as part of Oakland Community College's Contrast Series at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday at Seaholm High School, 2436 W. Lincoln.

Dr. Cohen, author of many articles and books about LSD and other drugs currently in use, describes the mind-expanding experience produced by chemical compounds as "the beyond within."

He became a doctor of medicine at Bonn University in Germany and earned his Ph.D. from Columbia University. Dr. Cohen is chief of psychosomatic medicine at Veterans Administration Hospital in Los Angeles and associate clinical professor of medicine at the University of California.

FOR 1 YEAR

The author of "Mind: Psychiatry in General Practice," his research activities have extended into all classes of drugs which affect the mind.

For 10 years he has investigated many problems of LSD and the other hallucinogens and has contributed some of the basic information in this field.

His research on LSD, on which he has lectured both here and abroad, is currently directed toward measuring the changes of values, attitudes and originality.

Alfred J. Rosborough Jr. has been promoted to the senior position of sales associate at Uniroyal Corp.'s Detroit office.

Rosborough of 878 Fairfax, Birmingham, will assist management in sales forecasting, the drafting of policy proposals and working with special national accounts. He joined Uniroyal in 1960.

Firemen Halted by Automation

LANSING (UPI) — Sometimes automation can be more of a hindrance than a help, the Michigan Senate has discovered.

Like when a fire truck answers a call at the 90-year-old State Capitol and finds it can't get into the parking lot because of an electronic gate.

The call occurred Thursday after smoke was reported on the fourth floor of the statehouse.

Firemen couldn't get into the lot because they didn't have a plastic card to activate the gate.

The smoke turned out to be nothing more than a cigarette butt in a lawmaker's ashtray, but the Senate agreed yesterday to issue parking passes to Lansing fire and police officials to avoid a similar problem in the future.

House Unit Hears Divergent School-Aid Views

LANSING (UPI)—The House Education Committee was on the horns of a dilemma today following yesterday's 3½-hour session — studded hearing on parochialism.

Newly Elected MEA Exec Favors Strikes

LANSING (AP) — A 30-year-old educator who views teacher strikes as moral and ethical has been named chief administrator for the 68,000-member Michigan Education Association.

Terry L. Herndon, a former Warren teacher, will assume his duties July 1, succeeding Dr. E. Dale Kennedy, 66, who is retiring.

Herndon says he hopes to see legal restraints on teacher walk-outs — such as Michigan's Hutchinson Act, which prohibits strikes by public employees — removed.

Teacher salaries, he says, may be increasing rapidly — but they still aren't high enough.

NOT ADEQUATE

"Compared to the investment, the progress still is not adequate," Herndon says. "Teachers are not yet achieving their proper share of an affluent society."

A native of Kentucky, Herndon moved to Michigan as a child and received bachelor's and master's degrees at Wayne State University. He currently is a doctoral candidate at the University of Michigan.

Herndon taught in Warren two years ago, playing an active role in MEA work as chief negotiator for his local union.

He now serves as assistant director of field services for the National Education Association, parent group of the MEA. In that post, Herndon guides the efforts of seven negotiators and assists in supervising 30-40 other NEA staff members.

HIGHWAY RESPECTED

Kennedy, highly respected in education circles across the country, joined the MEA 18 years ago and was named executive secretary in 1958.

The MEA representative assembly, meanwhile, was scheduled to elect new officers today as the 400 delegates concluded a three-day session at Lansing.

Among those to be named were a president-elect and two NEA directors for Michigan. The president-elect will take office in 1970, but will serve on the MEA board of directors for the coming year.

Douglas Ward, science consultant for Warren Consolidated Schools, took over as MEA president Friday, succeeding Gene Duckworth. Duckworth also is to serve on the MEA board through the coming year.

Dodge Trucks Are Recalled

DETROIT (AP) — Owners of 9,201 1969 Dodge trucks are being asked to take their vehicles to dealers "for inspection and possible correction of a steering column or shift linkage deficiency," Chrysler Corp. announced Friday.

Models involved are D100, D200, D300, P200 and P300 light-duty trucks, Chrysler said. The firm said the National Highway Traffic Safety Bureau was notified this week that on the P100 and P200 models, inadequate clamping force of a set screw in the steering column could lead to interference in steering.

On the D100, D200 and D300 a malfunction might result in a transmission shifting into neutral during acceleration, Chrysler said.

Peace Was Part of His Heritage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower's mother belonged to a pacifist religious sect and wept when he received his appointment to the U.S. Military Academy.

Peace was part of his heritage, and he said once while in the Army that he wanted only to see "people in my profession permanently out of a job."

ing of private schools if tax funds were not forthcoming to help them.

Opponents said that if state money was diverted to parochial schools, many public schools would be forced to shut down.

The hearing was held in the high-ceilinged House chamber before one of the biggest audiences ever assembled in the Capitol.

ACTION EXPECTED

The committee, headed by Rep. Lucille McCollough, D-Deerborn, is expected to act on the legislation — which seeks to appropriate $40 million to parochial schools for teaching non-religious subjects — early next month.

Speaker William A. Ryan, D-

De facto segregation in public and nonpublic schools was at the center of most of the testimony.

Antiparochial witnesses said the bill would encourage further separation of blacks and whites in the classrooms.

But Dr. Jesse Goodwin, vice president of the Catholic School Board of Detroit, said that city's nonpublic schools were making "significant progress" in integrating schools.

35 PCT. BLACK

"Just four short years ago, only 18 per cent of our Catholic school enrollment in our inner city schools were black children," he said. "Today 35 per cent are black."

However, Sen. Coleman Young, D-Detroit, said that in all of Michigan only 3.5 per cent of the nonpublic students are black.

"There are only 9,953 black students in nonpublic schools in the state," he said. "The Education Committee will only be adding to segregation if you let this bill out of committee," he said.

Other speakers said nonpublic schools were aimed at educating the white middle classes to the exclusion of the poor.

SHUTDOWNS FEARED

Supporters of the bill claimed that hundreds of religious schools would be forced to shut down with the students being sent to public schools if aid wasn't forthcoming.

"In one inner-city segment of Detroit with notoriously crowded, ill-housed public education, we are aware that at least four Catholic high schools cannot survive without assistance," said the Most Rev. Thomas J. Gumbelton, auxiliary bishop of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit.

"We may be financially forced to lose as much as 70 per cent of our enrollment unless we get some immediate assistance. This means handing the taxpayers an annual tax statement for $30 million," he said.

However, Maurice Geary, spokesman for Catholics for Public Education, said it was time the church used some of its own money to save its schools.

SAVING MONEY

"It (the church) is interested in saving money for the church at the taxpayers' expense. It has enough money of its own to spend on education."

Dr. Edward B. Fort, superintendent of Inster, public schools, said the state needs "a massive overhaul in the means of financing public schools" before it looks to aiding nonpublic schools.

"Until the State of Michigan promulgates a concerted effort designed to improve the fiscal status of the public schools there is no conceivable way that it can adequately, and morally, support schools which are not public. Those parents who send their youngsters to private schools do so on the basis of free choice," he said.

Inster was granted a 10-year $705,000 loan from the state last year to keep its school system from going bankrupt.

Chicken Broth Use Is General Practice

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — During the taxable year of 1968, it was my good fortune not to have been attended by a single physician.

I have, however, a wife and two children who were afflicted by an assortment of maladies, all minor and mostly of the type that any good quack could handle.

In compiling their medical expenses the other day for purposes of income tax evasion, I was pained to note that the three of them were treated by a total of eight different kinds of doctors.

"Holy mustard plaster" muttered. "I wonder what the total would have been if one of us had been really sick."

Pretty soon, I suppose, I'll have to try to find a doctor who can cure me of muttering. It was the staggering variety of medical examination they received that caused me to take typewriter in hand and nostalgically lament the scarcity of general practitioners — the storied medics of yore who were all-purpose healers — who ran the gamut from hangnails to hernias.

Well, as you travel along life's highway, you quickly learn that one man's nostalgia is another man's throwback to the Dark Ages.

The ink was hardly dry on my peroration before I received a letter from the wife of an orthopedic surgeon defending the advent and proliferation of medical specialists.

NO ARGUMENT
It is the specialist, she avowed, who is largely responsible for medical progress. But for specialists, she averred, patients would still be treated with "chicken broth and hot water bottles."

A salient point certainly, and one that will draw no argument from me. I'm as thankful as anyone for the development of modern "miracle" drugs, such as Bromo Seltzer and Menhaden.

The fact remains, however, that a vast number of ailments respond very well to chicken broth and hot water bottles. This, I might add, is not just a layman's opinion.

I mentioned the matter this week to Dr. Maynard I. Shapiro, president of the American Association of General Practice, who was in town to testify at a Senate hearing.

SOME RELEVANCE
He agreed with me that chicken broth and hot water bottles still have some relevancy in therapeutics.

Dr. Shapiro, by the way, also is concerned over the scarcity of family physicians. In a subsequent dispatch, I shall relate how he hopes to solve the problem.

Meanwhile, take two aspirins and get lots of bed rest.

SOFTER TERMS

Orders instead went to Japan, France, United Kingdom and Puerto Rico, apparently because those nations were somewhat softer, Broomfield claims.

Broomfield urged support for Wesley Haralson, U.S. Aid for International Development Mission chief, who was reported in the Manila Times as being "bolling mad" about the situation.

"This is a two-way street," said Broomfield. Under the United States sugar act, the Philippines each year earns a large benefit in foreign exchange.

"I would hope the U.S. Congress as well as U.S. officials administering the act might consider this fact in the allocation or reallocation of future quotas."

Filipino Move Is Criticized

Congressman William S. Broomfield, R-18th District, said today Congress should re-evaluate Philippine sugar quotas in light of a Philippine decision to purchase sugar-milling equipment from other nations.

Broomfield, the ranking Republican in the House Foreign Affairs Committee, pointed out that preferential payments to Philippine sugar producers net that country an annual subsidy of about $67.5 million.

Chiefly in order to process enough sugar to take advantage of the U.S. quotas, the Philippines has contracted to build 15 new sugar mills at an estimated total cost of $300 million.

United States suppliers got none of the contracts, although their equipment is price competitive, he said.

Yesterday, we were just a couple of old Pontiac area lumber companies.

Today, we're the newest lumber company in Oakland County.

We got together because we have faith in the future growth of this community. By merging, we become one of the largest lumber and builder supply companies in Pontiac and north Oakland County. That means we can buy in bigger volume than ever before. And that can result in better values for you, whether you're a master builder or a do-it-yourselfer. It also means faster deliveries, because we now have 12 trucks under one dispatcher. Our merger also enables us to offer you an even more complete line of hardware, work tools, paint and most other items you need to remodel or maintain your property. And with 35 experienced people in our two locations, we can answer most any question you have, and advise you on how to best proceed on your project, whether it's replacing a washer in a faucet or building an addition on your present home. Finally, if you've lived in Pontiac or this part of the county very long, you know that our two companies, Poole and Dickie, have been in business 73 and 45 years, respectively. And that makes us the oldest new lumber company around these parts, which isn't bad at all.

This Protest We Cheer

We have become so accustomed to protests with disruptive motivation that characterizes so many assemblages of youths, that it is a pleasure to note a protest of a different color.

Thirty thousand teen-agers gathered in Miami's Orange Bowl in a "Crusade for Decency in Entertainment" following an act of indecent exposure by a male member of a concert group earlier in the month. Six warrants were issued for his arrest.

Participating in the crusade was another singing group which drove all night after a performance in Jacksonville to be present. Said one of them: "We wanted to take part in bringing back the good will that entertainment groups should have and which was damaged by the indecency that led to the rally."

During the mass meeting, teenage speakers gave three-minute talks on God, parents, patriotism, brotherhood, and sex.

We warmly commend the young people of Miami on the action they took and hope, as do its leaders, that it will find emulation on a broad scale.

Firemen Again Hot Issue

It appears that the public is to be forced to sit through a rerun of the old featherbedding issue on the Nation's railroads. This is the conclusion to be drawn from the new drive of certain rail unions where there are no fires to tend.

Six years ago, congressional action was needed to avert a national rail strike over the featherbedding issue, an issue studied by various impartial boards and commissions and on which agreement was reached that firemen are unnecessary on modern freight and yard diesel locomotives.

Specifically, the current dispute centers around an effort by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers to force the railroads to hire new men to fill 18,000 firemen jobs which have been eliminated, principally through job attrition over the past few years.

And once again, the Nation stands on the brink of a rail strike because of necessity the railroads must resist the reimposition of archaic work rules. To put 18,000 unneeded firemen back on the "job" would cost the rail industry more than $200 million a year. And this would ultimately have to be paid by the public.

It can be logically suggested that if places are to be made for firemen on fireless locomotives, car manufacturers should be required to resurrect the proverbial buggy whip makers and add them to their payrolls.

Motorists Scorn 'Infosites'

The Federal government pays a bonus to states that ban billboards along the Interstate freeways. Iowa is one of them.

Some 16 months ago, to close the "information gap" that was expected to develop because of the absence of signs advertising eating and sleeping facilities, the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads and the Iowa State Highway Commission opened two "Infosites" along Interstate 80 near Iowa City.

The Infosites are large buildings adjacent to rest areas, well-lighted, heated and air conditioned with numerous panels for commercials. It was expected that advertisers would welcome the opportunity to display their messages at the Infosites and that travelers would flock to them for information.

What happened was quite different, reports Highway User Magazine. The advertisers simply moved their signs back of the legal limit and made them that much bigger.

Only 20 percent of the advertising space in the Infosites was sold, and of 4,000 travelers interviewed in a survey, 80 to 90 percent said they got all the information they needed from the billboards.

So much for one battle in the campaign to beautify America.

States Establish Monday Holidays

By EVERETT DIRKSEN

It probably won't be long before all of the 50 states will have followed the lead of the federal government and established Monday as the day of the week when most national holidays will be observed. Congress passed the new holiday law last June, and a number of state legislatures have already followed with their own holiday law.

So, on Jan. 1, 1971, when the federal law goes into effect, the calendars will show that Veterans Day and George Washington's Birthday, for example, will be observed on Mondays instead of whatever day of the week the actual dates coincide with. Christmas, New Year's Day, Lincoln's Birthday and Independence Day (Fourth of July) will not be affected.

The Monday holiday proposal generally was supported by industry and the labor organizations because work weeks split by holidays falling on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday were something nobody wanted.

Here are the new Monday holidays created by the federal law that it is hoped the states will likewise adopt:

Washington's Birthday — third Monday in February.

Memorial Day — last Monday in May.

Labor Day — first Monday in September.

Columbus Day — second Monday in October.

Veterans Day — fourth Monday in October.

Thanksgiving Day will be observed on the fourth Thursday in November.

There were many interesting reasons given for establishing the Monday holidays besides the one of convenience for people who like a long weekend.

Although Americans have been celebrating Washington's birthday on Feb. 22, our first President, actually was born on Feb. 11. It was during his lifetime that the Gregorian calendar was introduced to the American colonies. He was 20 years old. The new calendar advanced all days for 11 days, and this is why we have celebrated Washington's Birthday on Feb. 22.

Memorial Day was commemorated by the "Grand Army of the Republic" on May 30 to decorate graves of soldiers who had fallen in the Civil War, although it is still not a legal holiday in all of the States.

Our expanding population, with its increasing per capita income, is more and more indulging its leisure time in travel. The ability of Americans to travel will expand our economy further, as they find more time to do so. The Monday holidays will create a number of long weekends that will help to foster more travel.

Another reason to welcome the Monday holidays is the advantage to be gained by continuity of operation in commerce and industry. Production will not be interrupted and momentum will not be lost because of midweek holidays and the absenteeism that accompanies them.

There has been plenty of time given for the state legislatures to follow the lead of the federal government. Calendar manufacturers will need the time in order to make the necessary changes. Labor-management contracts may require some adjustments commensurate with the new holiday dates.

I think we can look forward to Monday holidays all over the nation by 1971, and then we will all wonder, no doubt, why we hadn't arranged for them many years ago.

PALM SUNDAY

"And many spread their garments in the way; and others cut down branches off the trees, and strawed them in the way. And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord: Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord, Hosanna in the highest. And Jesus entered into Jerusalem . . . St. Mark 11:8, 11

It was a day of triumph for Jesus and his followers that first Palm Sunday. May this Palm Sunday be a day of triumph throughout the world.

Confident Living:

Develop a Relaxed Spirit Within

By NORMAN VINCENT
PEALE

The general idea of relaxation seems to be to get away from it all to some quiet place and there to sit, sleep, eat and play. Well, this writer lives about as busy a life as the next one and we are inclined to challenge that "get away to a quiet place" technique.

DR. PEALE

I'm writing this column on an airplane returning to New York and my various jobs. I've just come from one of the quietest and most secluded resort hotels in the world. And I couldn't be happier than to be headed for home and all the crowding, pressing responsibilities that make up my lot in life.

The particular retreat to which I fled from hecticness is an incredibly beautiful hotel situated on a soft sandy beach in a golden sunny climate where balmy breezes are wafted, where stars stream through the heavens at night and a full moon sends a long silvery shaft across the rippling ocean. Palm trees bend gracefully in the wind and all nature is decked out, its best foot forward "day after day." As for rain, nary a drop — only sunshine.

The hotel is open in its center with palm trees growing up to the sleeping rooms. A dream, crossed by artistic little bridges, meanders through the Japanese gardens. And all this in the hotel itself! Lobby and corridors, exposed to the outside which is brought inside, are washed by fresh winds off the sea.

The hotel is a dream of the architect's art, and the service is impeccable. Smiling young men and women in Oriental costume cater to your every whim. From a scrumptious breakfast on your balcony, watching the sparkling sea, through dinner on an exotic terrace where shaded lights and soft haunting music lend an air of the South Seas, every effort is made to relax you — to slow you down. The hotel is so vast that only rarely does one guest spot another. It is the epitome of quietness and peace.

And I wouldn't have missed spending a week there for anything. But do you know something? After being there for two peace-packed days, I was glad to accept a speaking engagement in a nearby city, thus getting back into the old routine. Returning for more days, I was tickled to death to accept an invitation to visit a nearby territory and attend a big dinner party in my honor.

And now I'm winging my way home on this big jet aircraft and I've got a schedule that could make some people jitter just to look at it. But believe me, I couldn't be happier to stop isolated relaxing and get back on the job.

Now maybe a full getaway is just what some people need. But I'll take my relaxing another way, sort of like the way the heart does it — a hub, dab, a beat and a rest. The heart, which has realms of energy, simply rests between each effort and its style of relaxation keeps it, and you going way up into old age.

Perhaps the best technique of relaxation is to commingle it with the daily work process. After pushing it all day, don't push it more in the evening. Stay home, put your feet up and read a good book. And be leary of television. If you're like me, it gets on the nerves so that a little of that goes a long way. Top off the evening with a brisk walk. Make it a mile or two and don't stroll. Really walk — head high, stomach in, breathing deeply. You'll sleep like a baby. Talk about relaxation; you will be raring to go the next morning.

Take minute vacation during the day. Sit back in your office chair. Close the eyes and in memory go away to some place that means a lot to you such as where you like to fish or where you play golf now and then. Letting the mind go away, if only for a moment, will tone up the body with an infusion of fresh energy.

You really do not need to take a trip and suffer through all the rigmarole of travel. Just set your mind on a mental vacation. You'll be surprised at how refreshed and reinvigorated you will be.

Now don't get me wrong. I am not against go-away vacations. It's good to see new places, make new friends and break the routine. But often people wear themselves out just running around and then have to come home to rest up.

The best relaxation is to develop the relaxed spirit right within yourself. Quietness at the center is the idea. Out of it comes the energy that puts drive into you. And with that you can work and like it.

Work at State Hospital Commended by Anderson

Last Saturday I again went to the Pontiac State Hospital. The now-famous "Paint Slingers" who are up there are an extremely dedicated group of women and they tell me they intend to keep up the good work. I explained to them that they are more than putting paint on the walls—they are making a case in point.

I think the effectiveness of this effort, combined with efforts of some of the other members here in Lansing, will bring an end result of good to the patients in the Pontiac State Hospital as well as Fort Custer, Caro and many other state installations. The members are thinking along these lines and, as I explained to the women at the hospital, they are doing more than they realize.

I visit with them every Saturday when I go home and tell them how grateful I am and how grateful the patients are. The patients recognize this and are most friendly to these people because they know they are trying to help them.

'Readers Comment on Recent Poland Article'

I am an American student in Poland and have taught for two years in the recent past in a Pontiac high school. The title of an AP news item in The Pontiac Press around January 16 read "Poland Hotel Really Swings," with the sub-title, "Prostitutes Abound at Resort." I'm certain if you were sincerely interested in exposing prostitution in the world and not in just smearing Poles, that you could do plenty of uncovering in your own city and home territory.

Whoever slapped together this piece of journalistic garbage must have looked and dug long, far and hard to get it. There are hundreds of other facts on Poland of a nonpolitical nature which must be difficult to plow over and through to get to the earnest and burning issue of positioning Poland and Poles among the dregs of the earth. When was the last time that you printed anything that wasn't derogatory about Poland, Poles or Polish-Americans?

ROBERT RATKE

I read an article from The Pontiac Press entitled "Poland Really Swings" which I received from someone who lives in Poland. It is most refreshing to know that at a time when most people are striving to better relations among nations, there are still those dedicated individuals who enjoy destroying. Poland recently celebrated 1,000 years of existence as a Christian state. Has your Warsaw correspondent ever taken the trouble to look into the Country's rich cultural heritage?

Prostitution exists in every larger city on earth. It takes no writing ability to prove its existence. I commend the author of the article for using Aleksei Rowinski's notes, picturing "the greasy environs of the hotel bustling with an abundance of variety of prostitutes," as the basis of his masterpiece.

'Use Cigarette Tax to Support Schools'

In the March 24th issue of The Pontiac Press an article stated that Rep. J. Robert R. Traxler suggests raising cigarette tax to help support parochial schools. Knowing that state aid to nonpublic schools is unconstitutional, I suggest raising the tax on cigarettes and giving the funds to the public schools where it is badly needed. With the public school systems struggling year by year it is sheer folly to suggest that the State help support parochial schools. I suggest that we abide by the laws that require separation of church and state and leave it up to private institutions to support themselves.

Question and Answer

The question, "Can a man legally serve as City Commissioner and President of AFL-CIO Council (a fireman on leave of absence)?" was raised during the Primary election. The court passed over it, saying it wasn't an issue since the candidate wasn't elected. Well, now he is, and he's determining City policy and setting municipal salaries while bargaining for firemen and representing other labor unions. It's time the City legal department pursued this—what is the answer?

Politics Said Sirhan Motive

Psychiatrist at Odds
With Other Testimony

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan did not go into childhood trances and "his assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was motivated by political reasons," says a psychiatrist who spent 200 hours studying the young Jordanian and his background.

The testimony Friday by Dr. Seymour Pollack was at odds with what was previously said at Sirhan's murder trial.

Pollack, a professor of psychiatry at the University of Southern California, was testifying for the state in rebuttal when the trial recessed until Tuesday out of respect to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Another state rebuttal witness, handwriting expert Laurence Sloan, disputed a defense contention that Sirhan was in a self-induced state of hypnosis when he wrote repeatedly in his diaries that Kennedy must die.

'PARANOID PERSONALITY'

"I believe Sirhan developed into a young man with what is called a paranoid personality," said Pollack in agreement with defense psychiatrists and psychologists.

But although Sirhan was mentally ill to that extent, Pollack said, the assassination was for political reasons "which were highly emotionally charged."

Sirhan's mother and a brother, Adel, had testified that during the strife that preceded the partition of their native Palestine in 1948, Sirhan went into trances at times after seeing scenes of war.

"Sirhan recalled all of these to me quite clearly—all of these were conscious experiences," said Pollack.

'FRIGHTENED'

"At no time did I obtain any evidence of what I consider a traumatic trance. There were no posttraumatic trance states—he only gave evidence of being a frightened young man... I haven't any material that he was exposed to more and severe emotional experiences than any other family members or any other Arabs."

Pollack said Sirhan developed into a much stronger person than others believed him to be, although he is tense, insecure, fearful and superstitious.

"Had I as a psychiatrist met Sirhan" before the assassination last June, 5 Pollack said, "I would not have been able to detect any serious psychopathic disturbances. I would have been unable to forecast prior to the time of the shooting that Sirhan would have done what he did."

Sirhan considered himself to be a displaced Arab in this country and felt himself "socially isolated," Pollack said. "He identified mostly with minority groups."

HIS HANDWRITING

Sloan compared handwriting Sirhan did in his jail cell under hypnosis with several pages of the diary in which the young Jordanian had written "my obsession is becoming more and more to assassinate Kennedy." "It is my opinion that these writings were not done under a state of hypnosis," Sloan said.

Sirhan's mother, Mary, was absent from the courtroom for the first time since the trial began Jan. 7. She was at the bedside of a 36-year-old son, Saidallah, struck by a car and seriously injured Thursday night.

Ruth A. Stillman, an insurance company adjuster and one of the six jury alternates, took the place of Lawrence K. Morgan, changing the name of the panel that will decide Sirhan's fate to seven men and five women. Morgan was hospitalized with an ulcer.

Czechs Ransack Russian Office

VIENNA (AP) — Eyewitnesses reported angry Czechoslovak ransacked the office of the Soviet airline Aeroflot on Wenceslas Square in Prague early this morning chanting "Russians, go home."

The informants said documents and pieces of furniture were thrown out of the office and burned. Czechoslovak police at first took no action but later demanded that the demonstrators disperse. There were no reports of any arrests.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The reason many cancer victims—perhaps up to 80 per cent—are stricken could be chemicals they eat, breathe or otherwise live with, a scientist said today.

And if that is true, Dr. Samuel S. Epstein said, then most cancers someday could be prevented.

Epstein described delicate new methods to test whether common or unusual or yet unsuspected chemicals are or might be culprits in human cancers or in other health troubles. Epstein, a research associate at Children's Cancer Research Foundation in Boston, told an American Cancer Society seminar for science writers that the suspect chemicals include pollutants in air and water, fuel combustion products, smoking, chemicals added to foods, some drugs, pesticides and a host of different agents.

INJECTS MICE

In one method to detect potential chemical hazards, Dr. Epstein injects newborn mice with test materials during the first three weeks of life, then checks a year later whether they develop tumors.

Tiny amounts of extracts from solid particles taken from polluted city air produced a high incidence of tumors in the liver, lymph glands and lung, he said, and "such amounts would be inhaled in about three to four months" by people living in cities with polluted air.

A weed-killer, Malec Hydrozide, under this test caused liver tumors. People eat enough from potatoes alone during 20 years time to get about the same dose given to the newborn mice, he said.

SHOW EFFECTS

An antifungal drug, Griseofulvin, caused liver tumors in mice at lesser dosages than people might take orally over a long period of time to cure stubborn skin infections, Dr. Epstein said.

He finds also that some normally inert chemicals show intensifying effects when combined with other chemical agents.

Whether these findings and other tests actually apply to humans is not proven, Dr. Epstein said.

He said it is an approach toward simple, sensitive and practical tests to answer the growing and gnawing questions about man's exposure to an increasing amount of chemicals of various kinds.

Face Loses Top Billing

Newest 'Helen of Troy' Nude

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD—Was this the face that launched a thousand ships and burnt the topless towers of Ilium?
When Maggie Wright walks onstage as Helen of Troy in the Royal Shakespeare Company's production of "Dr. Faustus," it is not her face that audiences watch. She appears on the well-lighted stage nude. Completely.

THOMAS

"There is always the same sound when I enter," says the well-formed 36-24-36 English beauty. "It is a sort of mass sucking in of breath, like this: 'Ooohhhhh!'"

The famed English acting company is now in Detroit and will visit Baltimore and New Haven to finish its American tour. That is, if the police don't intervene.

NO COMPLAINTS YET

"That's always a consideration," Miss Wright admits. "We were actually breaking the law in London when the play opened there; that was when the Lord Chamberlain was still censoring the theater. I believe we are also breaking the law here. But so far nobody has complained."

Maggie may be the only method nude in show business. Like Marlon Brando, Rod Steiger and other method actors, she prepares for her role by contemplating the character's motivations.

"I'm just as nervous now as I was the first time I stood with my clothes off before an audience," she remarked. "If it ever comes easy to me, I'll know it's time to quit."

"I go through an entire ritual in my dressing room, starting with makeup on my feet. Then I carry on a conversation with Helen herself, trying to figure out what kind of a woman she was. You're not a whore, no matter what people say," she told her.

WELL-SCHOOLED

Maggie Wright at 24 is well-schooled in the entertainment world. She danced for a year and a half in Japan with England's famed Bluebell Girls, appeared on the stage and television in England, and in such films as "Goldfinger," in which she played one of the girl pilots. Nothing in her background prepared her for the unclad Helen in Christopher Marlowe's Elizabethan classic.

She didn't think it odd when she received a call to audition for the Royal Shakespeare Company, even though she had no classical training. Nor did she take seriously the proposal by the director, Clifford Williams, that she play her speechless scene sans clothing—"After all, Liz Taylor had just played the role with Richard Burton on the stage and in a film fully clothed. Besides, there was the Lord Chamberlain."

Maggie went through her scene in rehearsals and tryouts wearing filmy costumes.

"But it just wasn't working," she related. "The audience didn't react the way it should have. Finally, just before the opening, I said, 'Oh, hell, I'll do it in the nude. I did it and the scene was just right. There were no sniggers or laughs; that would have ruined the whole thing.'"

OWN DECISION

"The director had done just the right thing: he let me make up my own mind." She doesn't intend to make the undressing bit a habit.

It's Travelers' Duty to Heed Import of U.S. Customs Rules

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you were thinking of bringing back something different from your holiday abroad to impress your friends, such as a wild bird or untanned lion skin, forget it.

And don't snap at any bargains in cigars made in Cuba or anything from Communist China, North Vietnam, or North Korea.

The importation of such items into the United States is prohibited by federal laws and they will be confiscated by customs officials.

That's the warning contained in the booklet "Customs Hints for returning U.S. residents" published by the Bureau of Customs.

The booklet not only informs the American what he cannot bring in but also what and how much he may. It provides other helpful information on customs, agricultural and other regulations, too.

Ignorance of the laws is no excuse and violations could result in the loss of the article as well as fines and penalties. The booklet notes that more than $1 million in fines and penalties were assessed against travelers who failed to make proper declarations in one year. And it adds, flagrant violators are subject to criminal prosecution.

Under current regulations, Americans may bring back up to $100 worth of nonprohibited or nonrestricted goods from abroad without paying duty provided they were out of the United States at least 48 hours and had not used the exemption in full or in part within the preceding 30-day period. There is no minimum time limit on visits to Mexico, however.

In addition, travelers returning from or via the U.S. Virgin Islands, American Samoa or Guam are granted an extra $100 exemption, or a total of $200. This can include one gallon of alcoholic beverages, compared to the one quart allowed adults otherwise.

There is no limit on the number of cigarettes brought in for personal use. Cuban cigars are prohibited but each returning traveler, regardless of age, may bring in duty free up to 100 made elsewhere.

The booklet stresses that the customs exemptions are applied only to those articles in the possession of the traveler on his return to the United States. Purchases made abroad and shipped home are subject to regular duties and taxes.

However, Americans overseas may send gifts totaling up to $10 to friends and relatives at home without payment of duty or tax provided the recipient does not receive packages totaling more than $10 in any one day. Write "gift enclosed" and mark the price of the contents on each package.

Americans are cautioned against trying to outsmart the customs officers. The booklet notes that some merchants abroad will offer to provide bills of sale showing "false or understated values" which could not only delay clearing through customs but result in confiscation of the article and a fine. Inspectors generally know the value of the most popular foreign-made goods and also have an up-to-date listing of prices for checking when in doubt.

Except for prohibited or restricted items, there is virtually no limit on what the American can purchase abroad for personal or household use. But duties and taxes must be paid on everything above the duty-free exemptions.

A family traveling together may pool their exemptions. For instance, a family of four may bring in up to $400 in purchases duty free since children are entitled to the same exemption as adults, except on liquor.

Copies of the booklet can be obtained for 10 cents each by writing to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

World's Tributes to Eisenhower Have Theme of Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — his contributions to world peace, not for his command of the armed forces that liberated Europe in World War II.

“He fought as a general,” said Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., “who understood the hopelessness of war—and brought the hope of a lasting peace.”

“As long as men cherish their freedom,” said President Nixon, “Dwight Eisenhower will stand with them, as he stood during war and peace: strong, confident and courageous.”

“Even in death he has left us a great spirit that will never die.”

Eisenhower’s military and political leadership for a quarter century was marked, Nixon said, by “a moral authority seldom equaled in American life.”

SOLDIER, STATESMAN

“I salute him,” said the President, “as soldier, statesman and peacemaker.”

“America will be a lonely land without him,” said former President Lyndon B. Johnson, calling Eisenhower a “crusader for peace.”

“But America,” Johnson said, “will always be a better nation—stronger, safer, more conscious of its heritage, more certain of its destiny—because like us with him when America needed him.”

Eisenhower once said he wanted to be remembered for of every American and the course of the world.

“Indeed,” Rockefeller said, “we owe our freedom and future opportunities to his leadership, to his unique capacity to bring people together in common cause and to his deep faith and confidence in mankind.”

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., remembered Eisenhower as the leader who ended the fighting in Korea and warned against a military-industrial complex.

“Time has confirmed his judgment in a most dramatic way and again we honor him,” Fulbright said.

STRENGTHENED EUROPE

Former President Harry S. Truman counted among Eisenhower’s greatest achievements his role in helping strengthen postwar Europe.

“Gen. Eisenhower and I became political opponents,” Truman said in a statement, “but before that we were comrades in arms, and I cannot forget his services to his country and to Western civilization.”

“He led the greatest military crusade that freed Western Europe from Nazi bondage, and then commanded the allied forces that stood guard over liberated lands while they regained their strength and self-reliance.”

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said Eisenhower profoundly influenced the lives of every American and the course of the world.

George Kiesinger also noted Eisenhower’s postwar efforts.

“We honor the memory of this great American who after World War II worked unflinchingly for safeguarding peace and freedom in the world and who, in the pursuit of these great aims, promoted a close and trusted cooperation between our two peoples.”

Pope Paul VI conveyed to President Nixon “our heartfelt condolences on the loss of this, your dear friend and mentor, and our sympathy to the nation.”

TRULY GREAT HERO

South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu said “Eisenhower was a truly great hero of the Free World. His passing is mourned by all free men.”

In Tokyo, Prime Minister Eisaku Satō said he was deeply distressed to learn of the death of the leader “who loved peace.”

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau said Eisenhower was particularly understanding of Canadian problems and Canadians “will long remember the leadership he gave.”

Mexican President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz cabled Mrs. Eisenhower that her husband’s name “will always be bonded to the struggles for the best causes of humanity.”

President Tito of Yugoslavia said he was “greatly grieved

over hearing of the death.”

But Communist Cuba’s Havana Radio had no praise. It said Eisenhower’s administration “was distinguished by an increase of the warmonger hysteria in the United States.”

The Havana broadcast called him the organizer of the Bay of Pigs invasion carried out during the subsequent administration of John F. Kennedy.

The leaders of Russia, a country allied with America in the Second World War II but its antagonist in the Eisenhower years, were silent. Moscow radio reported the death in a sentence item without comment.

SENSE OF HUMOR

In America, it was the smile and sense of humor that Comedian Bob Hope remembered best.

“He was a great leader, a great patriot—and a great audience,” said Hope.

Many said Eisenhower’s heroic struggle to survive severe heart attacks and surgery showed another facet of the general’s character.

“He couldn’t go on forever beating the Grim Reaper but he fought back like the typical hero that he was,” said J. Earl En-

Cannons Boom a Final Salute

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Cannons boomed in final salute to Dwight D. Eisenhower every half-hour today at U.S. military posts across Europe.

At Frankfurt’s U.S. Army 5th Corps Headquarters, which Gen. Eisenhower occupied as commander of victorious allied troops in World War II, a howitzer thundered mournfully throughout the day.

American military commanders ordered social activities curtailed until after Wednesday’s burial, and the Armed Forces Radio Network played solemn music to honor the five-star general.

The cannons will fire a 21-gun salute when Eisenhower’s funeral begins Monday and later will thunder a 50-gun salute, one salvo for each state in the union, as taps are sounded.

Chapel in Abilene, Kan., Will Be Final Resting Place

Wind Chills Abilene, Kan., Site of Wednesday Burial

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — The swords to a 3,000-year-old Egyptian wine cask.

Across the street to the south is a similar structure of two floors, the library where some 16 million pages of documents trace Eisenhower’s youth, military career and years in the White House.

ALL-FAITHS CHAPEL

About 100 yards west of the library at the end of a broad sidewalk stands the tiny all-faiths chapel where Eisenhower will be buried.

Constructed of the same light-colored limestone as the other buildings, the chapel is topped by a slender spire containing an electric carillon which customarily plays recorded music three times a day. The chimes, however, are silenced until Wednesday.

Tall, narrow stained-glass windows pierce sides of the long-shaped chapel, and another larger stained window looks westward above a simple wood altar.

About 15 feet inside the two glass front doors is a sunken crypt flanked on three sides by a marble wall and on the other side by a wrought iron railing.

Ordeal Ended, Mamie Grieves in Seclusion

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the long vigil over, Mamie Eisenhower quickly slipped away to grieve in private.

“She’s been a real soldier through it all,” said an officer at Walter Reed Army Hospital after former President Dwight D. Eisenhower died yesterday.

“Looking after Ike,” she once said, was her first job. “I only live from day to day.”

Bulletins from the hospital in the final days mentioned constantly that “Mrs. Eisenhower stays close by his bedside.”

FAMILY ‘NEARBY’

The official death announcement said only that she and other members of the family were “nearby” at the end.

After death was announced, Mrs. Eisenhower left the third-floor suite where she spent most of the past 11 months as her husband fought to survive repeated heart attacks, surgery and pneumonia.

Unnoticed, she was driven from the hospital to some undisclosed haven away from the limelight that she had known and detested so long.

Two years ago she said she didn’t miss the excitement of earlier years.

“No one who has ever been in that terrible limelight would ever seek it again,” she said.

With her when she left the hospital was her son, John, 46, only living child of the Eisenhowers and newly named ambassador to Belgium. Their first son, Dwight, died in 1920 of scarlet fever when he was 3.

Other members of the family at the hospital were John’s wife, Barbara; David, their son who is married to Julie Nixon; Mrs. G. Gordon Moore, sister of Mamie Eisenhower; and Dr. Milton Eisenhower of Baltimore, president emeritus of Johns Hopkins University, a brother of the general.

One other brother who survives is Edgar Eisenhower, 80, a Tacoma, Wash., attorney.

FLEW FROM ECUADOR

One granddaughter, Barbara Anne, 19, flew in Friday night from Ecuador. It could not be determined if the other Eisenhower grandchildren, Susan, 17, and Mary Jean, 13, were at the hospital.

The Eisenhowers were married July 1, 1916, when he was an Army second lieutenant. He was 25, she was 19.

Most of their nearly 53 years of marriage was spent in rented houses on Army bases except of course — for eight years — in the White House.

In 1949 they bought a stone and frame farmhouse in Gettysburg, Pa. It was the first home they ever owned.

From time to time during the long ordeal of her husband’s illness she was able to slip away for a day or two when he seemed to be recovering. But it was never for very long.

“How I wish we could go back to the farm,” she said wistfully just last week.

Honor Guard Salutes As Hearse Carries Ike’s Body From Hospital

Tomorrow’s Cortège D.C.’s 4th in 5 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the fourth time in five years a private funeral home escorted only a motorcycle policeman and a military police car bearing enlisted representatives of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

TO NATIONAL CATHEDRAL

It was taken from the private funeral home today without ceremony to Washington National Cathedral, which sits on the highest point of land on the northwest quadrant.

Eisenhower was a Presbyterian and although the Cathedral is Episcopal, it contains the tomb of another Presbyterian president—Woodrow Wilson—and is a capital landmark.

The plans called for brief military and religious ceremonies for relatives and friends in the Cathedral’s Bethlehem Chapel, where the casket will remain with a military honor guard until tomorrow morning.

A motorcycle will carry Eisenhower’s body from the cathedral at 3 p.m. to a spot about midway between the White House and the Washington Monument.

After transfer of the flag-draped casket to a horse-drawn caisson, at about 3:30 p.m., the funeral procession will move up Constitution Avenue to the Capitol.

Muffled drums will provide the cadence for companies from each of the armed services, the military academies, the National Guard, the reserves and for the national commanders of 32 veterans organizations.

The caisson and the riderless horse will come in the middle of the somber procession, trailed by the family, President Nixon, foreign heads of state, the vice president, speaker of the House, Supreme Court justices, the President’s Cabinet, the dean of the diplomatic corps and state and territorial governors.

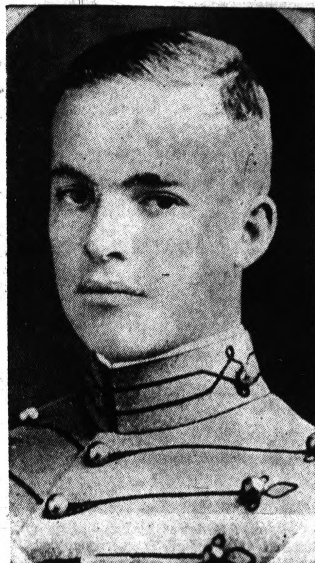

The procession will pass between servicemen in dress uni-

WIDOW AT CATHEDRAL — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, widow of the former president, is escorted by her son, John, to Washington’s National Cathedral today where her late husband is lying in repose.

Ike: A Leader in War, Peace

In a career almost too true to the American tradition to be true, Dwight David Eisenhower, born at Denison, Tex., Oct. 14, 1890, rose from modest beginnings to the highest office and honors his nation could bestow. The family later moved to Abilene, Kan. In this 1902 family photo, the future president is at extreme left. Others, standing at back left to right, are brothers Edgar, Earl, Arthur and Roy; front, father David, brother Milton and mother Ida.

In 1911, he entered the United States Military Academy at West Point, beginning a military career which was to span five decades.

Triumphal parades and the cheers of millions of his countrymen welcomed the hero home in 1945. With the nation at peace and the end of a three-year tour as Army chief of staff in 1948, his official career, so it seemed, was at a close.

On July 1, 1916, the young Army officer married Mamie Geneva Doud of Denver, Colo.

In a succession of posts at home and abroad, he developed a reputation as a brilliant strategist. In 1942, President Roosevelt bypassed higher-ranking officers to name him Supreme Allied Commander for the North African landings, a warmup for the invasion of Nazi-held Europe to come. Bundled against the winter cold, he toured the Tunisian front in 1943.

D-Day Plus Nine. On June 15, the Supreme Commander cruised off the coast of Normandy where Allied forces had stormed ashore nine days earlier, launching the long-awaited assault on Festung Europa. Britain's Gen. Bernard Montgomery came aboard to confer. At left is British Adm. Bertram Ramsay.

The military hero came home again in 1952, this time to seek the presidency. Swept into office on a wave of popular enthusiasm, he scored an even larger victory four years later.

Illness marked both Eisenhower terms in the White House. The nation, stunned when he suffered a heart attack in 1955, took a later operation more calmly.

He donned academic robes as president of Columbia University in 1948, out of military uniform for the first time in 47 years. But not for long.

The call to the colors came once more in 1950. President Truman asked him to take command of the newly organized North Atlantic Treaty Organization's military forces. Here, on NATO maneuvers in Germany in 1951, he hears of the firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, a development in the growing public dissatisfaction with the Korean war which was to influence his own future.

Leaving the White House in 1961, the Eisenhowers settled at their Gettysburg, Pa., farm. Retirement was marked by frequent golfing vacations in California and Georgia, memoir writing and occasional forays into the political arena.

And Washington continued to value the advice and support of the elder statesman. Here he discusses Viet Nam with President Johnson at a 1965 White House meeting. Retirement had not ended a career of service to the nation.

Christian Dior Head Planning to Slice High Fashion Prices

By LOUISE COOK
PARIS (AP) — The high price of high fashion may be going down soon if the head of the house of Christian Dior has his way.
Jacques Rouet, general manager of the 22-year-old couture house, says he expects to announce within the next two weeks a major "restructuring of haute couture."
"If haute couture prices could be lowered by about 20 per cent, that would change many things," Rouet said in an interview in his office on the Avenue Montaigne.

QUALITY KEPT
Although Rouet refused to give any clues, he said the price cut would be achieved "without changing the principle of quality."
Prices for Dior couture dresses — made to measure for each customer, with several fittings included — start at about $1,000. Ready-to-wear models sell for about a third of that.
Admitting that "in a way the prices have diminished the number of clients in haute couture," Rouet indicated that unlike some other high fashion houses, Dior does not intend to abandon custom clothes for ready-to-wear.

"Haute couture is not only the prestige of the house," said Rouet, "but also the heart of the whole enterprise. It is in that department that the biggest creative effort goes on."
The customer for haute couture, said Rouet, looks for exclusivity and a dress to transform her personality, "not something like a school uniform."

EXTREME STYLES
Asked if the current vogue for extreme styles made customers reluctant to purchase a custom-made dress that is likely to be out of fashion within one season, Rouet replied that although the Dior collection, designed by Marc Bohan, does include some far-out clothes, it is the classic items that sell.
Professional buyers and private clients like to look at the booky styles, he added, and "the contrast gives value to what's conservative."

New York Pace Is Quiet for Jackie and Aristotle

EDITOR'S NOTE — It may have been the world's most publicized marriage. She, the widow of an assassinated president and probably one of the most admired women anywhere. He, one of the wealthiest of men. Here's a look at the five-month-old marriage of the former Jacqueline Kennedy and Aristotle Onassis.

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor
Jackie and Aristotle Onassis, the world's most famous newlyweds, have been married nearly five months and, as tends to happen in even the most celebrated alliances, they have settled down to a kind of unobtrusive domesticity.

The 62-year-old Greek shipowner may be one of the world's richest men and his beautiful bride one of its most admired women, but their family life in New York at the moment seems remarkably unpublicized.

They quietly entertain friends, wave her children off to school every day and nibble cheeseburgers at a neighborhood pub on Sunday nights, even as folks with second mortgages do.

What sets them apart, of course, is the ambience of affluence that surrounds them. Their friends are entertained in the 15-room, $200,000 Fifth Avenue apartment overlooking Central Park that Mrs. Onassis, when she was the bereaved widow of John F. Kennedy, assassinated 35th president of the United States, had bought in 1964.

The children go to private schools — John Jr., 8, in the third grade at Collegiate School, and Caroline, 11, in the sixth grade at the Convent of the Sacred Heart.

For the cheeseburgers, Onassis is said to have a $10 tip.

"We are very happy," the glowing bride told reporters on the island of Scorpions in the Ionian Sea at her wedding there last Oct. 20.

She has not been that communicative since with the press, but she is still looking happy in the newphotos snapped on the street or at airports.

TIME FACTOR

Time has tempered the shock and dismay many Americans felt last fall when it was announced that Jacqueline Kennedy would marry the stocky, gray-haired, fabulously wealthy jetsetter who was at least 23 years older and two inches shorter.

With her marriage, the former First Lady officially ceased as president's widow and she — but not her children — lost U.S. Secret Service protection and eligibility to be buried in Arlington National Cemetery where John F. Kennedy is entombed. She also gave up her presidential widow's pension.

Her privacy has been both respected and enforced to a degree that Mrs. Onassis has not known for years. In the absence of real news, however, rumors have thrived: that his servants aren't getting along with her servants; that they are buying properties here and there; that Onassis is backing Valentino, his wife's favorite Italian couturier, in various ventures.

NEW YORK BASE

The famous pair will live primarily in New York to be with her children, Mrs. Onassis has said. On weekends they often go to her rented country retreat at Peapack, N.J., 50 miles from Manhattan.

Like any wife, however, the 38-year-old bride will have to spend part of her time at her husband's digs.

Sure to turn a few heads your way this spring is this softened Gaucho brim in natural beige straw by Mr. John.

With Detroit Symphony

Van Cliburn, Birgit Nilsson Lead Season

Van Cliburn, Birgit Nilsson, Gina Bachauer, Aaron Copland, and Thomas Schippers are among the many music notables who will be appearing with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra next season.

Guest artists and programs for the Symphony's 1969-70 Thursday and Saturday concert series in Ford Auditorium were announced by Symphony General Manager Howard Harrington.

Season tickets are now on sale at the Symphony.

At total of 40 concerts will be performed on the Thursday-Saturday series between Sept. 11, 1969 and April 24, 1970. The concerts are divided into smaller "packages," or series, however. Series ticket purchasers are given the same seats for as many as 22 or as few as six concerts, among a variety of series plans. Such plans are a substantial bargain for music lovers, since the cost per concert is much lower than if tickets were purchased separately for individual concerts.

A free brochure outlining all of the musical attractions and series plans is available from the Symphony office, phone 961-6700.

Tickets for individual performances will not go on sale until after Labor Day.

FIRST TIME

Many of the guest artists on the 1969-70 series will be visiting the Symphony for the first time. They include Alicia Delarocha, Ivan Davis, and Bruno Leonardo Gelber, pianists. Also Birgit Finnila, contralto; Lois LaFlamme, soprano; Justino Diaz, basso; and Birgit Nilsson, soprano. Also Wanda Wilkomirski and Ivry Gitlis, violinists; and Lawrence Foster, a 15-year-old cellist.

The winning pianist of the 1969 International Leventritt Competition, to be held in New York later this year, also will appear as a soloist.

Alexander Gibson, conductor of the Scottish National Orchestra, will make his U.S. debut during a four-week guest conducting engagement with the Symphony. Aaron Copland also will make his first appearance with the Symphony here during a one-week visit as guest conductor.

Thomas Schippers will be guest conductor for four weeks of the season. Sixteen Ehrlich, the Symphony's music director and conductor, will conduct 12 of the 22 weeks of subscription concerts. Symphony associate conductor Valter Poole will conduct one week.

Other soloists, all of whom previously appeared with the Symphony, include Van Cliburn, Gina Bachauer, and Leonard Pennario, pianists; Leslie Guinn, baritone; and Itzhak Perlman and Jerome Rosen, violinists.

Symphony members Nine de Veritch, cellist; Robert Gladstone, principal bass player; Al Belnap, trumpeter; and Salvatore Rabbio, timpanist, will be featured in a "Concerto Night" program under Ehrlich's direction.

The Rachmaninoff Symphony Choir, Maynard Klein, conductor, and the Kenneth Jewell Choral also will appear on the series.

Noted French Artist to Exhibit Works

Well-known painter in gouaches, Raymond Bloch-Wy of France, is self-taught, having turned to painting after World War II. His works have been exhibited at La Seyne and Toulon's National and Naval Museum and are included in many

He has residences in South America, Paris and Athens, but for years he has ruled his far-flung business and shipping empire from his yacht, the Christina, named after his daughter by his first marriage to Tina Livanos, now Marquess of Blandford.

The Christina, a former Canadian frigate luxuriously outfitted with real El Greco and lashed-down art treasures, is berthed at Scorpions. Onassis bought Scorpions five years ago and plans to build a mansion on the island soon.

Former Prelate to Pope Paul Married Today

ROME (AP) — Former Mgr. Giovanni Musante, the closest prelate to the Pope to quit the priesthood, was married today in a Rome church.

Musante, 49, formerly 11th ranked in the papal household, left the priesthood after more than 25 years as a prelate. His bride was Giovanna Carlevaro, 37.

CEREMONY

The ceremony was performed in Rome's 15th Century Santa Maria Della Pace church which was quietly reopened for the occasion. The church is usually closed to the public.

Musante's case caused a furor in the Vatican.

When the news was leaked out to the press one month ago, Vatican prelates claimed he was mentally unbalanced and accused him of "sexual delirium."

REMAINS CATHOLIC

Musante, a stocky, ruddy-faced man, denied the accusations, saying he was a normal man. In a recent interview with The Associated Press, he stressed he was remaining in the Roman Catholic faith.

"I am a Catholic and so is my fiancée. I have left the priesthood, but my faith is unchanged," he said.

Musante also denied he left the priesthood to marry, saying he took the decision months before he met his bride. He said his meeting with Miss Carlevaro merely speeded up his request.

Pope Paul VI himself released Musante from the priesthood after the Vatican tried vainly to convince him to stay.

Although the closest man to the Pope to quit the priesthood and marry, Musante is not the highest-ranked prelate to do so. Earlier this week, it was announced that a former auxiliary bishop of Lima, Peru, had married an Argentine policeman in Buenos Aires.

collections here and abroad.

An exhibition of his paintings will be open to viewing at Galerie de Boicourt, March 30 to April 30. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Young Son Can't Get Along; Fights and Keeps Losing

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I have an 8-year-old son who comes home crying nearly every day. Somebody "hit" him. I tell him he shouldn't hit back, but he says he doesn't like to fight.
I have talked to other mothers on the block, and they say a boy has to learn how to protect himself, and if he does the other boys won't bully him so much.
I am not crazy about the idea of my kid getting beaten up all the time, so I tell him to stay by himself. He doesn't listen to me. He goes where the other kids are, knowing he can't get along with them and is going to end up getting hit and crying. So what is your opinion, Abby?

HIS MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: I think every boy should learn how to defend himself, but you may also have to learn how to get along better with the other kids.

DEAR ABBY: A cousin of mine made the mistake of jotting a footnote on her Christmas card to the effect that they "miss their two children who are away at college this year." My husband is the world's easiest free-loader, and he immediately figured that they had some spare room, so we could go there for our vacation!

I can just see the role I am going to have to play to compensate for the free rooms. I'm sure my cousin wouldn't expect me to do all the cooking and housework, but what woman can move in on two people and not offer to do some work?

We have an eight-room house and, frankly, I'd like to get away from household chores on my vacation.

What do you suggest?

JUST THE HOUSEKEEPER
DEAR JUST: If you let your husband rope you into this kind of a "vacation" you'll deserve it.

DEAR ABBY: I hope this doesn't sound like I am bragging, because I'm not.

I married when I was 16, and now, 19 years later, we have as happy a home as anyone could find anywhere.

These are some of the things I've done to make it so:

In the morning I wake my husband with a cup of fresh coffee and the morning paper. I've done this for years, but he always thanks me as though it is the first time.

When he comes home in the evening, I again have fresh coffee made and the afternoon paper. Regardless of what they are doing, the children always run to the door to greet him.

Before he gets home I make sure I have a fresh dress on, and that my face is nicely made-up, my hair combed, and when he comes in I leave all my problems of the day until he has had his dinner and had time to relax. And then I only bring them up if they are important.

Finally, after our evening meal, we read some passages of the Bible together and pray as a family.

When so many marriages are going on the rocks I simply offer these things as suggestions for a happy home.

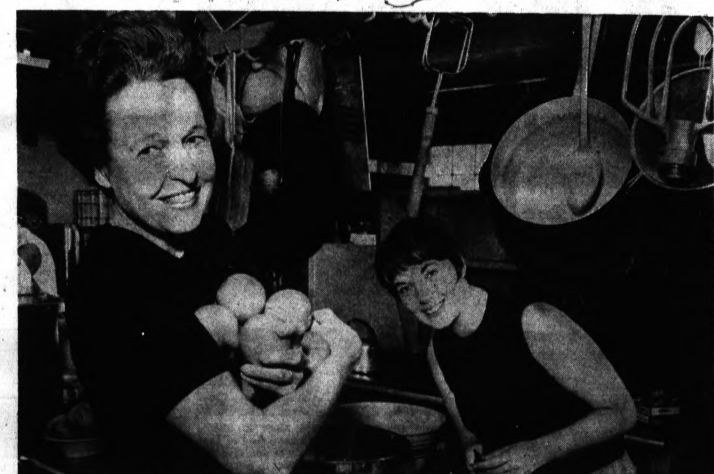

MRS. R. S., SAN ANGELO, TEX.
DEAR MRS. S.: What a beautiful life you have. May it ever be thus. I'll print your letter as an inspiration to others.

Why Grow Old?
By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I have not mentioned least 15 pounds. But my measurements recently. Those of you who have been exercising regularly for a few weeks do not have to be told what wonderful things it can do for your figure. I am sure that many women who have been dieting have discovered that they have lost even more in inches than in pounds.
The inches are what count. They can be used to measure the perfection of a figure. I have just received this interesting letter.

Dear Mrs. Lowman,
I have been following your progress for several weeks. I am thrilled, and amazed, I too. I am thrilled because I have lost 10 pounds and amazed because I do not seem to need any more. I had thought that I would have to lose at least 15 pounds. But my measurements recently. Those of you who have been exercising regularly for a few weeks do not have to be told what wonderful things it can do for your figure. I am sure that many women who have been dieting have discovered that they have lost even more in inches than in pounds.

The inches are what count. They can be used to measure the perfection of a figure. I have just received this interesting letter.
I love hearing about it! I am sincerely interested in the progress my readers make. By the way, when you have finished your eight weeks, I wish all of you would write to tell me about your success and what it has meant to you. I will publish some of your letters later. They will be an inspiration to overweights and I get a kick from your accomplishments as well as you.
What happened to the reader who wrote is not unusual. As a matter of fact, it is to be expected if a woman exercises as faithfully as she does. Exercise distributes her weight more attractively. She may even gain a few pounds (not fat pounds) when her muscle tone increases.
Also, there is no doubt that (within the individual's capacity) exercise delays aging, increases energy, is preventive to chronic disease and banishes many minor physical problems and discomforts.
What about your measurements? Consider them as well as the number of pounds you have lost.

From the Press Box

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

LAKELAND, Fla. — A person would be safe in saying that Nick Kerbawy has that Midas touch.

Everything he touches seems to have a successful ending. Unfortunately, for the Pontiac bidders on the much discussed stadium site, Kerbawy is part of the Detroit Commerce Committee which is striving to get the stadium on the river front in downtown Detroit.

TALKS WITH FEITZER

Kerbawy was in Lakeland for a couple days and before he left he was having quite an ear session with Detroit Tigers' owner John Fetzer.

"I would say that downtown and the Pontiac site are the best for the stadium," says Kerbawy. The fairgrounds is the poorest and the Southfield situation is just a big publicity scheme."

DOWNTOWN WINS?

"I'd venture to say that it will be built downtown. It will come down to the power of downtown Detroit, politics and business which will be the determining factors," he added.

"I'll say one thing, if downtown Detroit doesn't get the stadium, it should be built at the I-75 and M-59 Pontiac site and I'll be the first one to back that site."

It's really too bad that Kerbawy, a Bloomfield Hills resident, is not on the Pontiac side of the site controversy at this time.

MAYOR RECRUITS

It so happened that when Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh realized that other sites were really serious about their bids for the stadium, he recruited some of the top names in sports and business to be his apostles, and Kerbawy committed himself to be part of that big committee.

Kerbawy doesn't deny that downtown Detroit wants the stadium for downtown's sake, and not for what it means to the Tigers, Lions or the fans of Michigan.

'NEEDED DOWNTOWN'

"There's no denying what the stadium will do for downtown with its shopping, hotel space and business climate. I know the Pontiac site offers a good argument for accessibility, parking and land availability, but I've committed myself and right now I feel it's needed downtown."

This stand of supporting a specific site just for the good of that site seems to be contrary to the old Kerbawy philosophy which made him such a popular figure in the State of Michigan.

From the time he was a Spanish teacher at Hillsdale, to public relations at Michigan State, to general manager of the Lions and Pistons and now as head of the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame, all of Kerbawy's efforts have been pinpointed to the State of Michigan and not any one city or locale.

WIDER OUTLOOK

When at MSU, Kerbawy initiated the attitude that the Spartans belonged to the state and not to the city of East Lansing. This philosophy has continued with Fred Staley and this is why Michigan State has had such public relations success in the state and why Staley has to be one of the best in his business.

While with the Lions, Kerbawy followed this same philosophy and it was in his era that the Lions became a team that belonged to the fans of Michigan and not just to the City of Detroit.

Another tribute to Kerbawy and his history of successful endeavors is the Michigan Hall of Fame which has become a national model for those states now in the process of establishing their own "Halls."

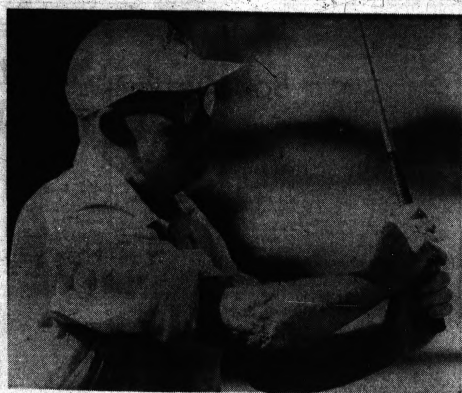

TOUGH DECISION

Now, for one of the rare times in his sports life, Kerbawy finds himself torn between the decision of supporting a stadium site which would be best for the sports fans of Michigan or one which would be good for the business community of downtown Detroit.

"One thing I know for sure . . . a stadium is going to be built. Downtown is the No. 1 contender and what it really boils down to is who is going to come up with the money, the mostest and the fastest."

Because he committed himself to the downtown group as a member of the stadium committee, there's no doubt Kerbawy will give his fullest effort to get the stadium on the riverfront.

We can only wish that logic would tend to cause the downtown Detroit bid to fizzle so that we could bring Kerbawy into our camp to put the structure out in the wide open spaces of I-75 and M-59, where it belongs.

Area Athletes Sharp in First '69 Track Test

Area athletes claimed a big share of the honors last night in the Class B division of the 15th annual Huron Relays at Eastern Michigan University that signaled the opening of the 1969 track season.

Pontiac Central's Chiefs figure as the team to beat today when the Class A squads move onto the track.

TWO MARKS FALL

Two records fell by the wayside in yesterday's activity as Ecorse claimed the crown for the second time in three years by rolling up 60 points.

Northville was sixth with 26 points and Bloomfield Hills Lahser came in eighth with 21.

A team from Steele High School in Amherst broke the meetley relay record with a time of 10:57.5, while the top four finishers in the two-mile run erased the old standard of 10:12.4. Winner was Ralph Popko of St. Louis in 9:55.4. Running third was Jim Goodfellow of Oxford (9:33.2) and Jim Scharr of West Bloomfield placed fourth.

FIRST PLACE

Bloomfield Hills Lahser captured the two-mile relay in 8:27.4 with Jeff Shanks, Rich Craig, Mike Oviatt and Jim Stewart doing the running.

Northville's John Stuyvenberg won the long jump with a leap of 20-feet-5 1/2 inches. Northville also claimed a third in the sprint medley.

TAKE THIRD

Roger Downing of Holly was clocked in 3.6 seconds to place third in the 65-yard high hurdles. Another third-place finisher was Bruce Clifton (4:39.8) of Waterford Mott in the mile.

Terry Urquhart of West Bloomfield flipped the shot 49-feet-2 1/2 inches to take third place.

Celts, Warriors Shocking Playoff Foes

Boston Romps Past 76ers

'Frisco Pins 107-101
Loss on Los Angeles'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Boston Celtics and San Francisco Warriors, who failed to answer when opportunity knocked during the regular season, have the door wide open today after being given a second chance in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The Celtics and Warriors, fourth and third place finishers, respectively, in their divisions during the regular season, have answered the call by jumping out to stunning 20 leads in their semifinal series against Philadelphia and Los Angeles.

The Celtics after beating second place Philadelphia on the road, routed the 76ers 134-103 Friday night at home in their best-of-seven Eastern Division set. The Warriors followed with a 107-101 shocker over first place Los Angeles in West.

The other series resume today when the host New York Knicks hope to continue the surprising trend by beating first place Baltimore in the second game of their East semi, and tonight when favored Atlanta tries to win the two straight against visiting San Diego.

ABA SCORES
In the American Basketball Association regular season play, Kentucky nipped Miami 113-112, New Orleans edged Minnesota 106-104, Dallas cruised by Denver 134-123 and Oakland beat Houston 133-118.

Epithets were being written about the once powerful Celts, tired and aging team by the end of the regular season, but the playoffs have lit that old spark and carried them through a 79-point second half to bury the 76ers.

Boston took a 55-54 halftime lead despite the burden of four fouls on Bill Russell and the ejection of Sam Jones, General Manager Red Auerbach and publicist Howie McHugh during a first period argument.

But Larry Siegfried, Emmett Bryant and Satch Sanders, pressed into extra duty, spurred a 37-25 third period surge that wrapped up the contest.

San Francisco's two upsets were still more startling because both came at Los Angeles. Nate Thurmond made the difference Friday night, out-playing Wilt Chamberlain by scoring 27 points and grabbing 20 rebounds. Teammate Rudy LaRusso, an ex-Laker, scored 20 points.

Thurmond's play also put Chamberlain in foul trouble and big Wilt was sidelined temporarily with five fouls, with 8:51 left. He finished with 10 points while Jerry West had 36 and Elgin Baylor 20.

The Warriors led most of the way and held a 64-53 halftime advantage as the Lakers never caught up.

Portly Pro Bob Murphy in Golf Lead

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A tightly-bunched pack of par wreckers set out in pursuit of pudgy Bob Murphy and his blast hot putter today in the second round of the $200,000 National Airlines Open Golf Tournament, but Jack Nicklaus and Bob Gaulty weren't among them.

Nicklaus, who will be the favorite in the Masters Tournament April 10-13, can't seem to find the range with his big war club, the driver. He shot 73-73-148 here and missed the cut.

Gaulty, defending champion in the Masters, is in the throes of one of the most atrocious and frustrating slumps that have ever plagued a big time golfer. He had 74-73-147, missing by a stroke.

Both went out to try to find a solution to their woes while the game's great and near-great took dead aim at the $40,000 first prize here, one of the sport's richest.

The 25-year-old Brooklyn-born Murphy, a brash, cocky but very personable young man of great grit, forged to the front of the pack Friday by shooting a course record-equaling 66 over the 9,927-yard, par 72 Country Club of Miami course for 135, nine under par.

Thais Gear for New Stage in Guerrilla War

BANGKOK (AP)—The Thai government has some 10,000 troops deployed against Communist guerrillas, is gearing for a new stage in the three-year-old campaign.

Senior military officers say they expect the guerrillas to step up their attacks against army and police units in the coming months.

"The terrorist war has cost the government more than 1,000 dead, either killed in action or assassinated since January 1966.

The guerrillas have lost 500 dead by body count; others presumably died of wounds in the jungle.

DEALT A SETBACK

Gen. Saiyud Kerdphol, commander of a special anti-Communist task force headquarters, believes the government has dealt the rebels' timetable a setback.

"We have moved into the jungle after them," he said. "They know they cannot rely on the jungle base any more."

"We expect their next activity might be to concentrate their armed element on bigger actions against Thai units."

The strength of the terrorist force is estimated at about 3,000 nationwide. They are split into at least 115 groups known to be operating in at least 20 of Thailand's 71 provinces.

LIKELY TO PULL BACK

Saiyud, widely regarded by senior American officers as one of the most competent staff of officers in the Thai Army, said that Thai intelligence officers believe many terrorists now operating in northeast Thailand will be withdrawn to neighboring Laos as the pressure on them gets hotter.

They would or southern Burma near the Thai province of Prachuab.

The most active and successful guerrilla movement has been operating in the latter area.

The leader of the squad, and perhaps the movement, is thought to be a former Thai Communist-led Pathet Lao army colonel named Payom Chuanon, once a member of some 10,000 Meo hill tribesmen.

Parliament for the area. He defected to Communist China in 1959.

30 VICTIMS

This group has killed more than 30 police and army men in 18 months.

It is in Thailand's mountainous northern provinces that the government is finding the going toughest, however.

Government forces now are locked in bitter fighting with and steal their lands — as Communist propaganda has been saying.

The Meo are expert hunters and marksmen. With training provided by Communist cadres, they have developed a series of well-stated ambushes which have hurt the Thais.

WOONG HILL TRIBES

The army plans to set up centers to educate and make contact with the remote people. Officials hope that by assistance and friendly relations the hill tribes will realize that the Thais are not out to exterminate them.

"A Meo can walk further in one hour in that jungle than a Thai can walk in a day," one army officer says.

The Meo like to grow opium. They call no man master.

Mounting Race Tensions Menace Fiji, Thriving on Tourism

SUVA, FIJI (UPI) — Fiji has estimated $17.5 million last year, only $5 million less than was earned by the sugar industry.

Both are British crown colonies, both are islands, both are duty-free ports, and the major segments of both populations have caused trouble and rioting — the Chinese in Hong Kong, the Indians in Fiji.

With its 361 islands and islets, and 10 months of near-perfect weather, Fiji is the host to more visitors than any other spot in the South Seas. Its cheap prices and taxless imports attracted more than 66,000 tourists last year, and an even greater number are estimated to be en route this year.

"Fiji is where the Hawaiians come for their holidays," boasted Rory Scott, head of the Visitor's Bureau.

BIGGEST HEADACHE

The first visitors, who were brought in as indentured laborers from India 90 years ago, have become the biggest headache for the government. They were enticed here to work the cotton fields, and were a ready-made labor force when sugar cane became the number one crop in the islands.

Today the Indians comprise the largest segment of the population, the most powerful voting bloc, the majority of shopkeepers, and — equally important — the cane producers.

The agitation for independence comes from the Indian-dominated Federation party whose grass root politicking among the Indian farmers has welded the growers into a solid front against the sugar mills.

Government and industry leaders agree that there is every prospect of a long and costly sugar strike next year when the current grower-miller agreement ends.

BASIC TROUBLE

"But the basic trouble with the Indians is a horribly British trait," explained one government official. "They don't assimilate any more than we do."

Intermarriage between the Fijians and the Indians is rare, mostly because of religious differences. The devoutly Christian Fijians want no non-Christian sons- or daughters-in-law in their families.

Even the Christian Indians have trouble getting Fijian wives. One Methodist family turned down an Episcopalian Indian lad because "His family builds boats on Sunday."

Tourism is doing in Fiji exactly what it did in Hawaii. It is eliminating sugar as the foundation of the economy. The people with the funny hats, crazy clothes and bulging pocketbooks brought in an Australian and New Zealanders who pour off the cruise ships at Suva, or use their layover time at Nadi International Airport to load up with goodies at one-third the prices back home.

FREE PORT

There are more transistor radios, cameras, tape recorders, perfumes, binoculars and typewriters per capita in Suva than in any other town in the world, and they are all for sale. Fiji has been a limited free port for six years and the number of taxless items is to be increased. Most of the spenders are

"There is all the beauty, all the comforts and everything essential here for a good life for everyone," said an old island resident. "If trouble comes, it will be mad-made."

ECONOMIC FRICTION

An Illinois Jesuit is credited by all factions as having eliminated much of the economic friction between the Fijians and Indians by establishing the Fiji Credit Union League, which removed the Fijians from the domination of the Indian money lenders and British banks.

The Rev. Marion Ganey, S.J. of Gillespie, Ill., was brought to Fiji 18 years ago from British Honduras by Sir Ronald Garvey, who arranged for him to be temporarily separated from the church to organize the credit unions.

No one has any money problems in Fiji today.

There is plenty of work for anyone wanting to work. Sugar prices are high; the last cane harvest was the biggest in recent history and this year's yield looks even bigger. More money is being taken from more tourists who get more of their dollars than in any other resort area in the Pacific.

INCREASING TENSION

"We're good for at least another year," observed one Suva-born businessman. "After that I don't know. There's increasing tension building up between the Indians and the Fijians, and don't think we Europeans are going to escape if there is another 1959 riot.

"We didn't last time, and we won't again. There's too much deep-seated anti-British resentment that could explode if it were exploited by a few hot-headed local leaders."

"And," he concluded bitterly, "if there's one thing we have in abundance, it's hot-headed local leaders."

Hart May Back Nixon on Call to Continue Surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., may support President Nixon's call to continue the 10 per cent income surtax, due to expire June 30.

Hart told a Washington news conference this week he voted against the surtax last year because it was attached to a condition that spending be reduced by $6 billion. The cut, Hart said, was to have affected mostly domestic programs.

If the legislative approach were to be the same as last year, he said, he was not sure what he would do. But if it should be a separate proposition as an anti-inflation device, "I would be inclined to support it."

'Upward Bound' Grant Awarded

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grant totaling $106,000 has been awarded for an "Upward Bound" program at Lake Superior State College at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

The program is designed to motivate disadvantaged 10th and 11th grade high school students through a full-time residential program on the college campus.

As early as the Fourth Century, the celebration of Palm Sunday was held.

Traditions of Palm Sunday have come down to us through the centuries.

From the branches strewn in the path of Jesus comes the custom of distributing palm leaves to people attending church the Sunday before Easter.

Most of the palm fronds come from Florida and California.

Fronds are usually prepared on Saturday by altar boys and women of altar guilds. Palm buds come something like a stalk of celery. The end is sliced off and fronds separated.

Fronds are given to worshippers to carry or bent in the shape of a cross.

Palms left over are saved by some churches until the next year, then burned on the evening before the first day of Lent.

The ashes are used to mark foreheads of worshippers as they kneel at the altar on Ash Wednesday.

Spanish Americans Problem Solved

"Ford tiene una idea mejor" is Spanish for "Ford has a better idea."

This was the announcement made by Tomas Chavez Jr. to his Sunday morning Bible Class in reference to the transportation problem of getting people to and from church, and Bible and English classes.

Chavez is director of Spanish American Outreach.

About a month ago Chavez was asked by Henry Ford II to serve on a special committee to study problems of minority groups. Ford discovered one of the problems faced by Spanish Americans was transportation.

DONATES CAR

A few weeks later he donated a 1969 Ford Custom Club Wagon for 12 passengers to the Spanish American Outreach group in Pontiac.

Then there was the problem of insurance and license plates. John McAniff, a local Ford dealer, decided to participate. He donated money necessary for the insurance and plates. Several groups from Oakland University made donations toward maintenance and fuel.

Spanish American Outreach is a non-profit organization run on a non-denominational basis.

The State of Michigan also made a contribution by granting the organization its request to be recognized as a tax exempt group.

PASSOVER MEAL — Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Mandel of 2611 Colrain, Waterford Township, and children pose for a typical Seder dinner. This is the way the table and family will be arranged Wednesday evening as the Mandels celebrate the first evening of Passover. (From left are Ross, Scott, Dana, Mr.

Mandel, Adam and Mrs. Scott. Adam will ask his father the four questions concerning the customs of Passover. Dana will celebrate her first birthday. She was born on Passover eve last year.

Jews Celebrate Passover Holiday

Passover, the most ancient of as an emblem of the paschal Egyptian pharaohs during their mind Jews that despite the bitterness of exile, there is sweetness in the Word of God and His teachings.

Orthodox Jews.

For more than 2,000 years (Pesach) has been considered by Jews everywhere to be the great holiday, the festival of redemption. It is also the Jewish holiday richest in symbolism. No other holiday in the Jewish calendar abounds in so many ritualistic objects, foods and ceremonies.

Jews everywhere celebrate Passover with a ceremonial meal called the Seder which means order of service. This takes place in most homes and in some synagogues.

During the Seder the story of the Exodus is recited, songs, and prayers performed and symbolic foods of Passover are eaten.

MATZOT

The most important food is matzot, unleavened bread, called by Jews the "bread of affliction." It is a reminder of the haste with which the Jewish people fled from Egypt. There was no time for the bread to rise.

During the Seder ceremony, Jews also eat bitter herbs which recall the bitterness of the years of oppression under the Pharaoh. A sprig of parsley on the table is a survival of the prehistoric days when Passover was a festival of spring.

Plan Program

The congregation of OAC Community Baptist Church, Detroit, will be guests at the 3:30 program in Springfield Missionary Baptist Church, 407 S. Sanford, tomorrow. Mrs. Jesse Jones will be in charge of the program sponsored by the Missionary Department of the church.

SEDER

The Last Supper of the New Testament was a Seder meal and the Passover matzot and wine were precursors of the Communion wafer and wine.

The Passover Seder ceremony follows a special Hebrew prayerbook, the Haggadah, which tells the story of the Exodus in prayer, song and oarable. Many of the Haggadahs in use today, date back to the Middle Ages.

Need Funds, Personnel

Lifeline Seeks to Expand

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is obvious a separate organization was needed. That was Lifeline, in the process now of organizing a nine-month training program for any college graduate who is interested. This program will be started at Wheaton College. After the training period, a worker will be assigned to a city with an existing Lifeline program and work as an intern.)

Well-adjusted teen-agers are likely to become well-adjusted adults.

That's the premise for Lifeline, part of YFC that works with courts and other social agencies to meet the needs of delinquent teens.

NOT WITHOUT PROBLEMS

Aiding these teens is a task that's not without problems. There are a couple of major ones.

One is money. The other is an organization such as Lifeline — namely money. The other is personnel to staff the growing number of Lifeline chapters around the country.

"Our biggest problem is finding qualified personnel," says Charles Roost, 32, the international program director of Lifeline who is now working on a doctorate in the field of counseling psychology and personnel development at Michigan State University.

"We'll never have enough qualified professionals in the field," says Roost "so we have to look for persons capable of training volunteer help. We have to tap the ranks of lay people to accomplish what we feel needs to be done."

IN 32 STATES

Lifeline now operates 22 chapters in the state of Michigan and there are chapters in 32 states. There are six full-time Lifeline directors in Michigan. One is the Rev. Bill Ballard who heads the Oakland County program.

"As far as the expansion of the program is concerned, we have an open door," says Roost who is in his first year as international director after serving 10 years as a YFC official in Lansing.

DEVELOPMENT

Lifeline is an outgrowth of additional tasks taken on by YFC beginning in the early 1950s. With YFC's move to the area of camps, homes and court Beth 16; Tammy 11; and Ann assistance for teens, it became nearly 2.

Roost continued with "We're in the process now of organizing a nine-month training program for any college graduate who is interested. This program will be started at Wheaton College. After the training period, a worker will be assigned to a city with an existing Lifeline program and work as an intern."

"How about financing?"

"Money—it's a chore—it's a continual job. I would say it has been better in the past two years. It improves when we do a quality job of presenting Lifeline to the people," said Roost.

Funds to sponsor Lifeline come from service clubs, churches and individuals.

"Churches are conscious of Lifeline's goal," says Roost. "Their cooperation has been quite good. Most are extremely interested in the troubled teens, but the churches have a tough time adapting to these kids. They're glad to have someone come along to meet their needs."

WARM RESPONSE

"We're dealing with teen-agers the normal club or social agency doesn't reach... most aren't welcome at other youth clubs. When the churches are aware of this, there's a warm response."

Locally, Ballard has the nearly impossible task of directing the program in populous Oakland County.

LOCAL TIMETABLE

If funds are available, Ballard says three full-time workers will be added each year for the next six years.

"That will give us a staff of 18. We plan then to add four women. Over-all it would give us one worker in each township," said Ballard.

"There'll be at least one worker in each township and in ones with higher population there will be two. Having them live and work in each township will eliminate a lot of travel such as we have now. And it's our hope that these workers will be supported by persons within the township."

A campaign to raise funds to expand the local program is now under way, Ballard said.

The new minister at Elizabeth Lake Church of Christ, 183 S. Winding, comes to the Pontiac area from Greenwich, Ohio. He preached his first sermon here last Sunday.

A graduate of Cincinnati Bible Seminary in 1955, he served churches in Winchester and Dayton, Ohio prior to his arrival here.

Korean Choir Gives Concert Monday Eve

The Yonsei University Choir from Seoul, Korea will sing in concert in First Presbyterian Church, Birmingham at 8 p.m. Monday.

Yonsei University is supported by the United Methodist and United Presbyterian churches as well as the churches in Korea.

The choir is one of three choruses from Asia that came to the United States to sing at the Second International University Choral Festival sponsored by the Lincoln Center in New York.

The 38 young singers have two concerts planned for Metropolitan Detroit. Besides their Birmingham appearance, the Korean singers will perform at Grosse Pointe Memorial Presbyterian Church Tuesday evening.

An offering will be taken at each concert and given to the young people to help defray their expenses.

During their Detroit-Birmingham stay, the concert group will have members of the Southfield United Presbyterian Church serving as hosts.

Confirms Class

The Rt. Rev. Archie Crowley, a suffragan bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan, will conduct the order of confirmation at the 11 a.m. service tomorrow in St. Mary's-in-the-Hills Episcopal Church, 2512 Joselyn, Lake Orion. Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8 a.m.

The boys attend the Sacred Heart School shown in the background.

REDEDICATED — Newly decorated sanctuary of St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church was rededicated Sunday. The oldest Catholic Church in Pontiac, the congregation has extended the chancel area and replaced the floor of the Missionary to Burundi Gives Talk

The total library in the native language of Burundi, Central Africa would fill only one book shelf is the report of Betty E. Cox, literature missionary to Burundi for the past 24 years. She will speak at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Free Methodist Church, 285 S. Squirrel, Auburn Heights.

During the past two years Miss Cox has given her time to producing Christian literature in the Kirundi language spoken throughout the country. She reports that Communist literature is her greatest competitor.

One of her tasks is to provide help for the growing church.

She helped prepare a set of Sunday School quarterlies for three years, and the first Kirundi translation of the Old Testament for the press.

Soon after arriving in Burundi, Miss Cox was requested to prepare a Kirundi grammar for new missionaries. She also prepared arithmetic and geography texts, and assisted Dr. Frank Laubach in preparing literacy charts.

The Burundi people are showing a great interest in the Christian church, Miss Cox says. In both 1966 and 1967 there was a 27 per cent gain.

Sometimes 1330 bidding could look scary to anyone who has read any bridge book of the last 30 years.

Today's hand was played in a match between the Culbertson team that had just won the American Bridge League championship, and an English team that had done nothing to distinguish itself but that was captained by Lt. Colonel Walter Buller (Ret.).

Buller advocated a common sense system. Needless to say, the Culbertsons won handily but the common sense system showed up well on some hands.

The bidding in the box is that of Culbertson and Lightner. We don't know exactly what Ely's three-spade bid meant and we doubt if Lightner did. But Ted-

Many MDs Hazy on Psychosomatics

NEW YORK (UPI) — A professor of medicine is not bothered because some lay people, as "the elevator operator, the housewife, the cabdriver and the teacher" are confused with psychosomatics. They have an excuse, said Dr.

David T. Graham of the University of Wisconsin. They're uninformed about the intricate inner-workings of mind (the psyche) and the body (the soma) in producing body ails.

He is bothered because a considerable number of doctors are also confused in the same way. They have no excuse, he said. They're not uninformed.

In his view, psychosomatics are now so confused by the professionals, psychosomatic medicine needs "a new start."

SEPARATE ENTITIES

The trouble is that so many doctors join lay people in attributing a duality to human beings — in thinking their minds and their bodies are separate entities.

A layman will say, after his doctor has told him there is no organic basis for his ails, "It's psychosomatic. I'm as healthy as an ox. It's all in my mind!"

A lot of doctors give off with the same nonsense, "only thinly veiled by more sophisticated language," Graham continued. Whether doctors or laymen are saying it, it is "a common and massive misstatement of the psychosomatic concept."

The fact is that no dualism exists in the human being. "We are dealing with one organism, a human being manifesting a response to a stimulus," said Graham, and the response is not in "mind" or "body" separately.

'A MISUNDERSTANDING'

With the confused doctors "much of the problem has to do with a misunderstanding concerning etiology (cause), a misunderstanding fortified as much by those who believe themselves champions of psychosomatic concepts as by those who consider themselves antagonists.

"The defenders of the faith consider it their task to prove that emotions cause disease; the debunkers consider their triumphs to lie in proof that disease causes emotions. To prove either assertion would require knowing whether diseases or emotions develop first."

"I do not believe that either case can be demonstrated with techniques now available. Does anger cause ulcers, or do ulcers cause anger?"

Some doctors now think in a physical "language" while other doctors think in a "psychologic language." Thus "a dualism exists and it may be impossible to erase. But it must be understood that it exists not in the patient but in the languages used to describe him."

'BROADER SPECTRUM'

"With such comprehension of the human mind it may be possible for physicians to achieve richer descriptions of the symptoms, greater knowledge of the nature of disease, fuller and more appreciation of the mind-body complex, and a broader spectrum of therapeutic resources."

"This will, of course, require greater bilingual versatility among doctors in both the psychologic and physiologic languages."

Graham aired his controversial views in the medical journal, "Hospital Practice."

Death in Dorm

KALAMAZOO (AP) — An autopsy was performed on a 23-year-old Western Michigan University student who was found dead in a dormitory lobby. Results have not been released.

Authorities said Bruce Biggers, a business administration junior from Haverhill, Pa., had been seen exercising Thursday shortly before he was found dead.

Area Meeting Set by State Senate Unit

A special meeting of the State Senate Judiciary Committee will be held at the Oakland County Courthouse Auditorium starting at 7 p.m., Wednesday.

On the agenda will be presentations of testimony concerning proposed legislation involving grand juries, the new criminal code and court fees.

Presiding at the meeting will be State Sen. L. Harvey Lodge, Waterford Township. Lodge is vice chairman of the judiciary committee. He said the proceedings should be of interest to local attorneys and judges and those interested in state laws concerning criminal cases.

Representatives of the State Supreme Court, Appeals Court and the state attorney general's office are expected to be among the legal minds present, Lodge said.

Evidence collected at the meeting will be used in consideration of bills slated to go before the State Legislature in coming months.

Lodge said the public is invited to attend the meeting. However, those testifying must be on the committee's agenda.

Boat Safety Course to Start Tuesday Night

If you're 12 to 16 years old and want to drive a boat with more than a six-horsepower motor by yourself, you must have a boating safety certificate.

This is the state law, points out Lt. Donald Kratt of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Kratt, who heads the department's safety division, announces that a course leading to the certificate will begin Tuesday. The course will also be held later dates.

Youths must attend the 7-30 to 10 p.m. course on Tuesday and April 8 to earn the certificate. Kratt says.

The course will be given in the Supervisors Auditorium at the Oakland County Courthouse on Telegraph Road in Pontiac.

Youths 12 to 16 years old may operate a boat themselves if it is powered by less than a six-horsepower motor, according to the law.

They may operate a more than six-horsepower motor if they are accompanied by someone older than 16 or if they have a certificate.

U.S. Aid Money Supports a Luxury Market in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Thanks largely to American aid millions, Laotian merchants stock a wide variety of luxury goods from all over the world at bargain prices.

Surprisingly few of them are stamped, "Made in U.S.A."

After 10 years of insurgency, Laos has found a way to have guns with butter—imported French butter, together with delicacies like caviar, pate de foie gras with truffles, Danish sausage, Napoleon brandy and even perfumed British cigarettes. The latter are slightly higher than the 27 cents a pack that premium British and American cigarettes command.

The luxury goods and the other items such as the estimated $4.3 million worth of autos, motorcycles, whisky and beer imported during the last reported year were not destined for the common Lao people or to build the Lao economy, the two major interests of the $52-million U.S. aid program here.

Instead they go to Chinese and North Vietnamese who dominate the country's business scene, foreigners and those Laotians in official positions who have amassed what passes for fortunes in this country.

Wandering through the unimposing shops of Vientiane, it is difficult to believe it is the capital of an impoverished country torn by a Communist-directed civil war that has been going on intermittently since 1948. The per capita income in Laos is some $70 a year, the lowest in Southeast Asia and thus one of the lowest in the world.

Some 2,000 tons of gold arrive in Vientiane monthly, mostly for reexport and smuggling into neighboring countries. But a lot of it stays to adorn the necks and wrists of the wives of what are called "important personages" here.

Statistics tell a much different story of the lives of those through the rest of the country. The war and incessant U.S. bombing of contested areas, aside, the rural Laotians live in an abject poverty that often dips just below the survival point.

FAR FROM HAPPY

U.S. officials are far from happy that U.S. aid money directly and indirectly supports such a luxury market in Vientiane and to a lesser extent in other major cities here. They are pressing the government to drive up import duties that would help cut the budget deficits the United States is pledged to make up. Prices up for nonessential luxuries. Neither Lao nor U.S. officials will estimate the total amount of luxury goods imported.

Rice is the biggest import item, followed closely by gasoline for all those autos and the fewer essential trucks and buses. Then come alcoholic beverages and automobiles, a customs official said. Over-all the Laotians import about $26 million annually.

Of the $52-million aid budget, the United States will contribute $16 million to $17 million to support the kip, Laotian currency. This has made the kip as hard as the U.S. dollar. Any one with enough kip in his possession can change it for dollars and import pretty much what he wants.

Other countries use stiff import taxes to hold down luxury imports and keep their balance payments in line. So far these fiscal controls are virtually unknown in Laos.

European autos generally are far cheaper here than in the United States. Large portable radios sell for about $200 and the shopkeeper will show advertisements from U.S. magazines to make the sales point that in America the same radio sells for $325.

The total U.S. share of Laos' market is $2.8 million, and most of this is essential commodities. American luxury goods, a U.S. official said, arrive with a too-high price tag and are driven out of the market by Japanese and European goods.

The French, who pay about $1.5 million in direct aid to the Laotian economy, send about $1.6 million in goods. Red China sends about $50,000 worth a year and is the key backer of the Communist-led insurgents.

An American expert said that far larger tax revenues come in now per U.S. aid dollar spent than in previous years. The hope is that the ratio will rise.

Some tax measures have been enacted recently or are proposed. Three months ago all those renting houses were ordered to pay one month's rent each year to the government instead of the landlord. These mostly are officials or important businessmen who simply refuse to pay the tax themselves, law or no law.

Purse Found; Winner Inside

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — While fishing at Lake Cumberland in May 1966, Mrs. Jack Fitzwater dropped her billfold. The water was deep and the search futile.

In June 1968, she and Pil. Jack Fitzwater were married and returned to the lake. Dam repairs had necessitated lowering the water level some. Fitzwater made another search for the wallet. No luck.

Recently she received a package from Dr. H. P. Thrasher, a veterinarian living near the lake, who found the billfold almost buried in mud at the lake.

Among the contents was a ticket on horse No. 8 in the seventh race at Churchill Downs May 7, 1966.

That was the Kentucky Derby and the Horse was Kausal King. In addition to recovering her purse, Mrs. Fitzwater was $6.80 richer after cashing the ticket.

LANSING (AP) — The House and Senate chambers were taken over by some 200 members of the Michigan Junior Chamber of Commerce for a mock legislative session today. The Jaycees planned to introduce, debate and pass bills as a means of understanding the legislative process.

Motivation Spurs Man in Matterhorn Climb

Homemaker, Los Angeles,
California

It all started when our son Mark was going through the "I-can't" stage. He was about 5 and becoming aware that the world was filled with people who expected him to go to school, learn to read and write and to do new things that were not always easy.

All this wasn't nearly as much fun as playing with his toys or simple family games. And then one day his Uncle Shimmin came to call.

My mother's brother, Uncle Shimmin, had been a small, odd-looking child. He barely reached five feet height, and 100 pounds when full grown. During the depression years his wife died, leaving five little children whom he would not give up although the going was rough.

A jewelry mechanic by trade, Uncle Shimmin found that the years were lean, and the bodies of his children thin. They grew up, as children have a way of doing, without even the frosting on the cake, and then one day new life began to unfold for Uncle Shimmin.

NO FORMAL SCHOOLING
A man without formal schooling, he became interested in the wisdom of the ages. Books, became his constant companion. Religions especially fascinated him and for 10 years he studied the Bible and the teachings of Buddhism and Confucianism.

Then Uncle Shimmin found a dream stirring within him. It was a strange one for a man who had been searching for truth. He wanted to climb the Matterhorn! There, he felt, he would find the answer to the why of his existence.

Books were put aside and Uncle Shimmin devoted his days to climbing. In the next few years we kept getting reports from all the mountains he had climbed in the California area.

Those who wish to climb the Matterhorn must get a permit from the Guide's Union in Zermatt, Switzerland, before they are even allowed to prepare for the actual climb. Somehow Uncle Shimmin raised the fare to Switzerland for his interview. The men at the Guide's Union

Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam.

Curb Weed Woe With Sand Cover

Building a deck close to the ground? Weeds won't grow underneath if a two-inch deep layer of sand or gravel is spread over the ground.
That, with the deep shade cast by the deck, effectively inhibits plant growth while allowing good drainage.

Slim Shelves
Most libraries need shelving 9 1/2 or 11 1/2 inches wide. But an interesting effect can be achieved by adding one or two rows of paperbacks on six-inch-wide shelves.

look one look at Uncle Shimmin's slight frame, his obvious naivete, and tactfully began to discourage him.

He listened and then, in his quiet way, he told the men one shouldn't judge man's strength and courage from his physical form.

"Man's ability to overcome danger, his courage and power, come from inner qualities," Uncle Shimmin said.

Impressed by his determination and faith in himself, the men of the Guide's Union agreed to let Uncle Shimmin climb Mt. Zermatt, a smaller peak, to prove his prowess. If this went all right, then perhaps he could tackle the Matterhorn.

MET EVERY CHALLENGE
He passed with flying colors and on July 27, 1948, Uncle Shimmin started the laborious and dangerous climb up the Matterhorn. Finally he reached the summit. His guide, Victor Biner of Zermatt, still talks of the miraculous ease with which Uncle Shimmin met every frustration, every challenge.

There was quite a bit of publicity at the time and when Uncle Shimmin came back to visit us he showed Mark some of the clippings.

Impressed by Uncle Shimmin and excited about his climb, Mark flung question after question at him.

Gen. Bradley Only 5-Star General Left

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only Gen. Omar Bradley is left of the nine men who have worn the five stars of the nation's top military rank.

Bradley, 76, won his fifth star during the Korean War, although he was a top military commander during World War II when most of the others were accorded the rank. He now lives in Beverly Hills, Calif., and said Friday he plans to attend Eisenhower's funeral.

Besides Bradley and Dwight D. Eisenhower, the circle of stars was worn by Douglas MacArthur and George C. Marshall of the Army; Henry H. "Hap" Arnold, commander of the Army Air Corps in World War II; and Navy admirals Chester W. Nimitz, Ernest J. King, William D. Leahy and William F. (Bull) Halsey.

"But don't you want to know what I found on top of that great mountain?" Uncle Shimmin asked. Naturally Mark wanted to know.

Uncle Shimmin told him that far from the bustle-bustle of worldly things, he realized that way up there, close to the sky, God had no special place He called home. The magic wasn't up there of the mountain as Uncle Shimmin had dreamed, but within your heart. Wherever you are, there lives God.

Uncle Shimmin concluded with this statement: "Throughout your life, Mark, there will be a Matterhorn to climb, perhaps in your own back yard, and always there will be those people who doubt your ability to climb it. But as long as you know you can, no mountain of any kind will be too difficult."

So now when people, young or old, doubt their ability to cope with any situation, our wise little son, with Uncle Shimmin's story still fresh in his mind and heart, pokes me and says, "Mommy, tell them about Uncle Shimmin!"

Room Divider for Pictures

Does a teenage daughter have a room divider that doubles as a picture gallery? Dad can provide one at small expenditure of money or time.

A 4x4 filigree hardwood panel can shield her dressing table from the room entrance and at the same time make an ideal spot for hanging snapshots, engravings, framed pictures or a variety of souvenirs, says the bureau.

Available at lumber and building supply dealers, the hardwood panels can be readily framed in pre-grooved lumber, sold as an accessory.

ANCHOR

Plungers for completing the room divider make it simple to anchor the framed panel between floor and ceiling. Dad or daughter can paint the divider to suit her wants.

As hangers, used perforated board hooks or make your own out of wire coat hangers being sure to paint them, too.

Since the filigree panels are smooth on both sides, they present an attractive appearance wherever located.

Scientists have found bacteria, a fungus and a kind of algae that can help control mosquitoes biologically without use of pesticides.

City Cemetery Head Retires From Position

Kenneth Anthony, superintendent of Pontiac's municipal cemeteries, retired yesterday after 42 years in the city's employ.

He started as a gravedigger with the city in 1924. Except for a few years trying something else, he has been working with the city ever since.

He recalls he was 19 when he first started cemetery work.

Kuhn Seeks Limit on Filing for Job Injury Benefits

LANSING (AP) — Sen. George Kuhn, R-West Bloomfield, reports he plans to introduce a bill placing a two-year limitation on filing of workmen's compensation claims.

"It is high time we recognize we cannot continue to milk the business community in this matter of having unlimited time to claim medical assistance under this act," Kuhn said.

"It is evident that the lack for filing claims has caused serious abuses and a scandalous situation," he said, referring to recent exposures of alleged fraudulent claims in Detroit.

Kuhn further said he hoped the attorney general would be active in prosecuting and convicting those guilty of unethical practices, such as "ambulance chasing" of potential clients.

Way to Give Information on City Killing Explained

The Andrew A. McCaskill Reward Committee has announced confidential procedures that can be used by anyone with information about the murder who wishes to remain anonymous and still collect the reward money.

McCaskill, a former city commissioner, and his son, Aubrey, were found shot to death in their apartment at 47 Orion last Friday night.

Thus far Pontiac police have made no arrests in the case. Community members are assembling a reward they hope will bring forth evidence.

Yesterday $1,000 was available. Under procedures announced by the committee, a witness could, if he desired, present information without ever being identified. Before payment, arrest and conviction must be obtained, the committee announced.

Those wishing to donate to increase the reward fund should contact any of the following: City Commissioner T. Warren Fowler Jr.; Charles M. Tucker, 903 Pontiac State Bank Building; Al Mullan, Pontiac Black Cultural Center; or Sam Whiters of 391 Orchard Lake.

Home and Sport Show, now through Sunday evening, CBI Building, Williams Lake Road, Waterford. Over 1 acre of exhibits. Door prizes galore! —Adv.

Charles Feltz, formerly of Gillingville, is now the owner of Leo's Barber Shop on Walton, 1 block East of Baldwin. —Adv.

Procedure is as follows: "Address information to Reward, PO Box 602, Pontiac, Mich. 48063. Information should be clearly written out. Insert a three-digit number in the upper right-hand corner and the same number on the bottom of the page. Tear off and retain the top right-hand corner number."

Tree Espalier Garden Joy

As an eye-delighting accent in the garden, nothing beats a beautifully formed espalier set against a simply designed wall or screen of rough, weathered silvered boards.

But to train an espalier often takes years, and the garden wall it adorns should be built to last a lifetime without refinishing or major repair.

For that reason, it's smart to use pressure-treated framing lumber and fence boards, whether fir, cedar or pine.

Americans spend about $250 million a year on baby food.

Youth Is Arraigned on Dope Charge

A Bloomfield Township youth, Thomas Darling, was arraigned yesterday before District Court Judge Carl Ingraham for possession of marijuana.

Darling, 18, of 5675 Woodland Pass was arrested Thursday night by West Bloomfield Township police, who discovered him in a parked car on Mac Nichol in Pine Lake Estates subdivision.

According to police, Darling demanded examination and was released on $1,000 personal bond. Examination was scheduled for Thursday.

Computerized Cars Are on Road Today

DETROIT (UPI) — Computer systems, although primitive cars are on the road today, a primitive start to what one day will be nearly total computerization of a car's operation.

Two manufacturers, Ford Motor Co. and Volkswagen of Germany, have developed

Zambia Stand May Backfire

Province Threatens to Follow Biafra Lead

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — President Kenneth Kaunda's recognition of secessionist Biafra threatens to boomerang on his government. Tribal restlessness and mistrust of the central government, akin to that in Nigeria before Biafra broke away, are widespread in at least one Zambian province.

A secessionist movement has existed in Barotseland province since Zambia became independent in 1964. Lozi tribesmen in the region may think that what is good enough for Biafra—with Kaunda's blessing—should be good enough for them.

The area is especially sensitive. It is near Rhodesia and Botswana and borders Portuguese Angola and the Caprivi Strip of South-West Africa, which is controlled by South Africa. Other Lozi (pronounced "low-zee") live just across the frontier in Botswana and Angola.

SPECIAL STATUS

Barotseland enjoyed a special status in colonial days. It became a British protectorate "in perpetuity" in 1890 with the litunga, or paramount chief, retaining autocratic powers over the tribe.

Each year the litunga and his people move from the summer capital, Lealui, when the Zambezi floods the Barotseland Plain, to high ground at the edge of the forest at the winter capital of Limulunga.

The chief steps aboard his candy-striped royal barge for a 30-mile journey that takes four hours. The barge is paddled by 60 tribal dignitaries dressed in red skirts and lion mane head-dresses while other tribesmen follow in smaller boats.

Some of the 300,000 Lozis resist losing their identity when Barotseland was welded to Northern Rhodesia as the new republic of Zambia. Special provisions were written into Zambia's constitution to safeguard certain powers and laws of the litunga.

FIRST ELECTION

Selection of a new litunga and Zambia's first general election since independence brought some of the simmering discontent to a boil.

Instead of choosing a supporter of Kaunda's ruling United National Independence party as the new paramount chief on the death of the old litunga, tribal elders picked Godwin M. Lwanga, 63.

Com-puter systems, although they have taken different directions.

Ford is equipping some of its high-priced Mark Three specialty cars and Thunderbirds with an antiskid braking system that has its own "brain."

Volkswagen has developed a device which automatically controls the injection of fuel into the cylinders for best performance of the engine under all conditions.

IT'S SMALL

In both cases, the computer which is the "brain" of the system is no larger than a cigar box.

With the Ford antiskid system, sensors detect the loss of rear-wheel traction when the brake is applied, and the computer orders release of braking on that wheel until it begins to turn. The automatic brain orders the brake reapplied until it begins to stop again, etc.

In the Volkswagen, the computer controls the amount of gasoline fed into each cylinder for optimum performance under whatever condition exists at the moment. The computer, for example, takes note of a car idling, under acceleration, or climbing hill or engine-braking downhill.

It not only produces the maximum engine performance, but also makes for the cleanest possible emissions in the exhaust, a big pollution control plus.

200 ELECTRONIC PARTS
The handy artificial brain consists of 200 electronic parts, such as transistors, resistors, diodes and condensers.

But this is only the beginning in the ideas of automotive engineers for computerizing cars.

Looking ahead, they see any number of electronic controls for autos. For instance, the electronic brain can be used to control speed on open highways without keeping one's foot on the accelerator. Devices for this already exist, but they're mechanical.

Then, speed and frequency of windshield wipers can be controlled according to the amount of rain falling; high and low beam lights might be automatically adjusted; temperatures inside the car could be automatically regulated; monitors might keep tabs on virtually the entire driving environment of a motorist.

Tire pressures, oil pressures, engine temperatures, and many other factors could be regularly monitored by a computer system.

Further down the road, even outside elements also can be monitored. The computer, theoretically can warn of obstructions ahead, such as the fact that you're gaining too fast on the car ahead of you, or there's a sharp turn ahead. These factors might be especially important in night driving where the computer could see beyond your headlights.

Apartment Home Of Irving Levinson Located In White Lake Township

Close Up Of Hand-Made Chess Set On Copper-And-Pewter-On-Leather Board

Arc Welding Creates Texture On 'Chicken With Egg' Sculpture By Levinson

OCC Dean Makes Furniture

By JODY HEADLEE
Home Editor, The Pontiac Press

Relaxation to Irving Levinson, dean of instruction at Oakland Community College, means one thing — rolling up his sleeves and going to work.

Levinson, a registered professional engineer, irons out the kinks of a busy day by creating furniture, lamps and art objects.

FISH PAINTING

Picking up the vibrant tones is the acrylic fish painting mounted on authentic barn board above the sofa.

The steam pipe chess set on the stained rough sawn coffee table was also created by the talented Levinson.

"I achieved the dull finish on one set by rubbing in pigment and the polish on the other by wire brushing," he said. He also made the matching lighter.

The lamp on the square rough-sawn cedar table was created of a larger steam pipe, its design achieved by an acetylene cutting torch. A white silk shade banded in gold tops the fixture.

BAR CART

Under the ball-fringed draperies stands Levinson's bar cart. "I made the wheels," he said, "by welding steel into circles."

A jolly fat steam man with his arms hugging his middle stands on a polished limestone base on the cart's top.

"I enjoy creative things," said Levinson. "I like to write too, and have had four books published and am working on a fifth."

He also enjoys creative cookery and has written a book, "The Completely

The abstract painting mounted on barn board above the stereo is another of his creations.

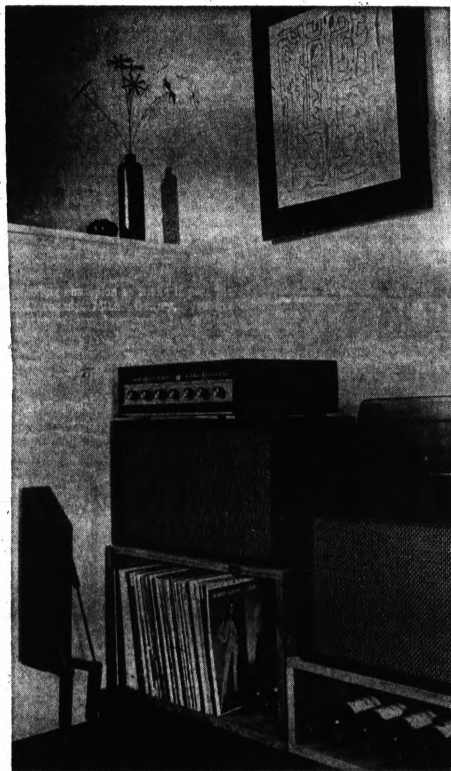

"I painted the gold background," he said. "After letting it dry, I dribbled rubber cement over it in the pattern."

"When it was set, I then painted the whole thing white. After another drying, I pulled off the rubber cement leaving the gold pattern showing through."

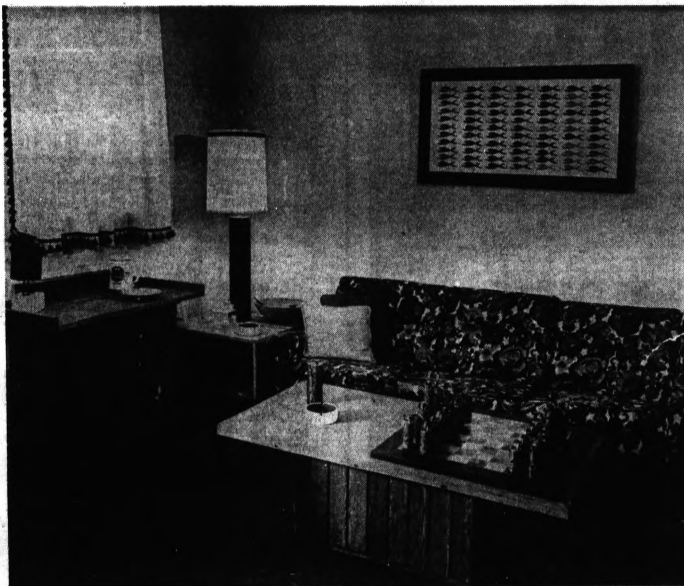

"If you're careful, the cement will come off in one piece."

CONTEMPORARY STYLING utilizes wood shingles to give an appearance of warmth to this raised ranch, a type of architecture in which the main floor is slightly above ground level, permitting the basement to be higher than usual and thus more livable.

'High Ranch' Has Contemporary Style

The so-called high ranch is a design evolved from the postwar split level and can best be described as new in concept and different in construction.

Architect Herman H. York believes that this kind of house delivers more habitable area per dollar invested, due to a layout which utilizes all of the space often lost in an oversized basement.

This is because the basement is lifted out of the ground enough to permit the windows to provide complete light and ventilation, thus making the available space more attractive and livable than it ordinarily would be.

During the past 10 years, the high ranch, sometimes called a "split foyer," has been a proven favorite among those who need as much room as possible at as low a cost as possible and yet can afford more than a minimum house.

In this case, note how it has been possible to include a two-car garage within the perimeter of a house with a basic main floor area of about 1300 square feet and dimensions of 43'8" by 31'8".

There are several layout features in Design Z-86 which warrant mention. They include:

1 — A coat closet at foyer level. In many high ranch houses, there is no coat closet near the front door.

2 — The foyer is of generous size. This area, in the earlier high ranch models, was often little more than a stair landing.

3 — The stair to the lower family room leads directly into that room, making access to the rear yard convenient.

FOURTH BEDROOM
5 — A fourth bedroom, which doubles as a den or hobby room with its bathroom, is located on the lower level.

6 — A family room, with a fireplace and a pair of sliding glass doors, each 8' high, is at the rear of the house, the most desirable place to create indoor-outdoor living.

The outdoor living area is in the form of a covered patio, made possible by the dining deck above.

7 — On the upper level, the open relationship of the entrance stairway to the living and dining rooms creates an immediate climate of spaciousness.

8 — Cafe doors are used to cut off a direct view of the kitchen, but even on passing through them, one sees beyond the eating area through sliding

Z-86 STATISTICS

Design Z-86 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, three bedrooms, two baths and a foyer on the main level, totaling 1,395 square feet. The lower level adds 797 square feet, including the laundry and storage area. Over-all dimensions are 43' 8" by 31' 8", including the two-car garage. A dining deck on the main level also serves as a roof for the patio below, which is reached by sliding glass doors from a fireplace family room.

glass doors to a large open deck.

9 — The three bedrooms, grouped together, have the convenient hall bathroom and the owners' private bath arranged to minimize plumbing costs. The downstairs laundry is directly below these two bedrooms.

EXTRA CLOSET
10 — An extra hall closet for a vacuum cleaner and interior storage.

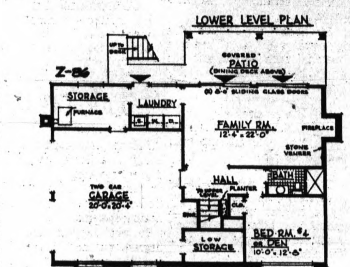

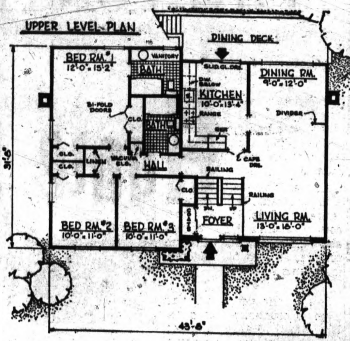

On the outside, areas of stone complement the sidewalk surfaces of wood shingles. In regions where stone may be too costly, the substitution of brick will not adversely affect the design.

A rough textured brick would be preferable to retain the scale now shown in stone.

This house, as with most raised ranches, is best suited for construction on a plot which slopes down toward the rear and also down toward the garage side.

If the lower floor can be finished about 16" above finished grade, with the patio within 8" of the slab floor, a good relationship will have been established between the indoor and outdoor areas.

The masonry wall shown near the garage can be built as long as needed to serve as a retainer for the soil along the front.

FLOOR PLANS—Living comfort for a fairly large family within modest dimensions is made possible by complete utilization of both levels, a bonus of the high ranch design. The architect has done a good job of providing a free flow of traffic on both levels.

Closet Holds Home Office

If you need office space in the house, consider converting a clothes closet to meet the need.

Any six-foot-long closet will work if it has full-width bi-fold doors or standard hinged doors.

The desk is run the length and width of the closet and can be made of a plank of edged lumber laid over a pair of drawer units.

RIGHT SPOT

Hang the reference library on the side walls above the desk top to leave a wide, uncluttered work surface in the center. For shelves, use 1x10 or 1x12-inch Douglas fir boards supported on metal wall standards and shelf brackets.

As many as five two-foot-long shelves can be built on each side wall providing 20 feet of book shelving.

Bacterial pneumonia kills 25,000 Americans a year.

Instrument for Weather

Finding a handsome, lasting gift to please a man can be quite a problem.

A stately 18th Century English style weather instrument might be the answer.

The banjo-shaped instrument in fruitwood finish measures 9x20 inches and contains an aneroid barometer to predict weather changes; a hygrometer to record relative humidity; and a thermometer.

Adequate Space Necessary for Your Kitchen

If you're in the market for a new home, it will pay you to take a close look at the kitchen. Does it offer real efficiency? Are there some hidden "sore thumbs"?

An oven door that opens into a through-traffic lane can cause tempers to flare. So can a window that isn't high enough above the sink to keep sills and curtains, shades or shutters from being splashed.

Careful attention should be given to countertops, says the Tile Council of America, trade association of the leading domestic ceramic tile manufacturers.

It's best to surface the counters with a durable material such as ceramic tile that's heat-proof and scratch-proof.

Real tile requires a minimum of maintenance — an occasional quick wipe with a damp cloth will do the job.

The cooking top should be separated from the wall oven by a counter of at least 24 inches. An 18-inch counter should be on the opening side of the refrigerator door.

The clean-up area needs 36 inches to the right of the sink and at least 30 inches to the left.

OUTDOOR LIVING — The warm months are coming and Americans will soon make their annual exodus to the outdoors and patio dining. Consumers Power Co.'s display at the Lawn, Garden and Flower Show accents the back yard scene with a display of gas grills and lights. The show will close tonight at 9.

Condition Air for Summer

Few people would put up with living in a house that was 20 degrees too cold — it would be unreasonable to allow such discomfort. That's why we have heating systems.

But what happens when it's 20 degrees too hot? Many of us just sit and suffer and lose sleep.

It doesn't really make much sense — discomfort is discomfort whether it's from being too cold or too hot. In other words, if you have a heating system to keep you comfortable in winter, why not a cooling system to keep you comfortable in summer?

One of the most effective cooling systems today is the chilled water type. With this system, the mechanical refrigeration apparatus is not placed in the rooms, but is remotely located in a central water chiller.

The chiller is often installed alongside the heating boiler in the basement or utility room.

COLD WATER

Cold water from the water chiller is pumped by a circulator through small insulated pipes to a compact fan coil unit in each room. These units cool and circulate room air, removing moisture at the same time.

Like a heating system, the operation of a cooling system is best controlled by a thermostat. When the temperature in the rooms reaches a certain point, this device automatically switches on the circulating pump and room blowers.

Before summer heat melts

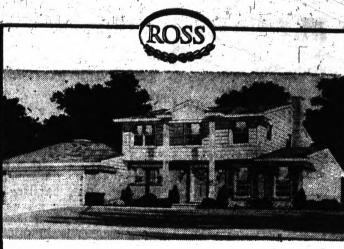

Tiles and Styles

Ceramic tiles are available today to blend with any decorative style, says the Tile Council of America, and can create walls and floors that will enhance a Spanish bedroom, Early American kitchen, country recreation room, contemporary dining room, modern living room or Victorian entrance.

Siding Favorite

Boards and battens are a favorite for exterior house siding, but they make a great wall surface in dens and family rooms, too.

Living Space Can Be Added

There are ways a novice home remodeler can add to the living space of a house without making structural changes in it. Basement, attic or garage are easy to convert. Often times little more than installing a good floor, finishing the walls and ceiling and adding proper lighting fixtures is all that is necessary.

But The Better Floors Council cautions a amateur home remodelers on two points: First, be sure the floor covering is suitable for do-it-yourself installation. The Council believes that the most practical flooring for nonprofessional installers to handle is vinyl asbestos tile.

Figuring the amount of square feet needed — even when using several colors and feature strips — is easy. The adhesives are almost foolproof. And the installation procedure is so simple women do it with no trouble.

Since vinyl asbestos in residential use generally lasts from 20 to 25 years, it adds considerably to the value — current and resale — of the home.

BUILDING PERMIT

Second, before you buy any materials for the project, check your local building code to see if permits are needed. Codes vary according to the community but generally a building permit is needed wherever structural work is involved or where storage space is converted to living space.

If you are converting the garage and adding a carport, be sure the latter is the right distance from the street and sidewalk or you may be forced to tear it down because it violates off-street parking regulations.

Hardboard Art

With painting becoming a national pastime, a amateur artists in many instances are following the lead of professionals who paint on grainless hardboard, which has no splinters, knots or other imperfections.

TOUCH OF THE ORIENT — Auburn Oaks Nursery of 3820 W. Auburn, Pontiac Township, created a free-form mound garden at the Lawn, Garden and Flower Show, sponsored by The Pontiac Press, at the Pontiac Mall. White sand and Japanese stone lanterns give the garden an oriental flavor. Bright yellow daffodils and pink fibrous begonias add color to the setting.

Dream Kitchen May Be Just Over Horizon

FIRESIDE WALL BOXES

Such as these were found near the fireplace in houses of more than a century ago. The tall box at the left held pipes or twisted paper tapers used to light the fire. The candle box may be used today for its original purpose or it will hold a carton of cigarettes. Matches fit into the third box as shown. Pattern 363, which gives bill of materials, dimensions and illustrated steps for making these boxes of solid stock, is 50c. It is also one of four patterns in Old Time Furnishings Packet No. 65 — all for $1.50. The Pontiac Press Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 50, New Windsor, N. Y. 12550.

A dream kitchen that will take care of everything automatically may be here sooner than you think.

It will combine very new ideas — such as devices that will do everything but serve and eat the food — with one of the oldest of all building materials.

The ancient material that figures so prominently in the dream kitchen is ceramic tile, which will be prefabricated to countertop and wall panel size. The tiles will be joined together with stainproof grouting that is practically as tough, colorful and easy to clean as the tile itself.

Among the new gadgets modern home planners are contemplating will be a "program cooker" that will combine food freezer and oven. A push on a button will send a full-course meal along a conveyor from the freezer to the oven.

FAST MEAL

In less than 30 minutes everything from appetizer to dessert emerges from a handy serving window.

Then there will be a plastic dishwasher. Here you'll merely dial for a plate, bowl, cup or glass — press another button — and in short order out it will pop, pressed from a sheet of plastic.

Another item that will please tomorrow's homemaker will be the ultrasonic dishwasher that will wash dishes with sound waves.

SPRING CLEANING TIME—Spring cleaning is getting easier with the growing popularity of easy-care plywood and hardboard wood-grained finish wall paneling, covered with a protective layer of plastic or vinyl. The low gloss film effectively shields the wall panels from mars, scratches, scuffs, fading, and burns. Wall paneling should be cleaned every six months, usually in the spring and fall with your regular top-to-bottom house cleaning. Hardboard and plywood panels should be washed with the same care you give your fine furniture and woodwork.

Grey Glass
Cuts Glare

Picture windows or window walls of grey-tinted polished plate glass can be blended with interior partitions of grey patterned glass for pleasing color coordination.

Grey stippled patterned glass in room dividers and panels gives a translucent effect, permitting privacy yet allowing light to pass through.

When grey patterned glass is used in exterior areas, it reduces glare and absorbs some sun heat just as the grey plate glass does.

MARTIN HOUSES mounted on a pipe to form a twelve-cabin colony will please these sociable birds. The backs of cabins are removable for cleaning. Pattern 454, which shows each step in making and mounting, will be mailed for 50c. This pattern also is included in the Bird House and Feeder Packet No. 32 which contains four popular patterns all for $1.50. The Pontiac Press Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 50, New Windsor, N.Y. 12550.

Fence Varieties

Looking for design ideas for a back yard fence? A patio privacy screen? A sound barrier for front yard? A baffle between houses? A windscreen? A swimming pool wall?

You may find just what you need in "Fences," an eight-page booklet containing 36 color photos. Nearly every type of fence and screen imaginable is illustrated — from stately, white-painted Colonials to airy moderns.

Photos show how fencing can be used to enhance the planting plan in a garden and how climbers can be trained against a screen for a handsome accent in the yard.

For a copy of "Fences," write to Dept. 514-P, Western Wood Products Assn., 700 Yeon Bldg., Portland Ore., 97204, enclosing 10c to cover handling.

Tree farms are privately owned, taxpaying forest lands dedicated to growing trees as a crop. In 1967, there were 2,378 tree farms in the 12 western states containing 16 million acres.

Entry Alters Splitlevel Plan

An impressive yet practical answer has been provided by Herman H. York, A.I.A.

This New York architect has designed a double-door entry with twin open stairways leading up to the living room. They flank a six-foot wide stairway, leading down to the recreation room.

York is also the designer of the Worksaver House, so-called "York's latest plan helped sell because its layout and use of out an 83-house splitlevel sub-low-maintenance materials such division in just four months.

as ceramic tile were intended to minimize chores for everyone.

IDEAL MATERIAL

This famous architect agrees that quarry tile and ceramic mosaics are ideal for his splitlevel entry. These materials never need to be painted or polished. They can be counted on to last the life of a home with no care other than an occasional quick wipe with a damp cloth.

Airport in Lake Planned for Cleveland

Terminal Would Go Three Stories Below Flight Deck

Plans were developed by NASA's Lewis Research Center, located at Cleveland.

Runways for the proposed lake port would be two miles long. All approach and take-off patterns would be over water, eliminating noise from flights over populated areas.

The terminal would be connected with a downtown transportation center by an electric bus system, rapid transit trains and a high-speed railway.

Bangkok, Congested and Growing, Choking on Prosperity

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Bangkok is choking on its own prosperity. Traffic, never much of a problem until five years ago, is now so bad that many travelers consider it the worst in Asia.

Despite import duties of 100 per cent or more, automobiles remain Thailand's largest import item. In 1962 Bangkok had 80,000 vehicles registered. Today the number exceeds 200,000, and with a growth of 50,000 a year, there will be almost 500,000 by 1975.

While the figures may seem small to Americans, the traffic jams they cause are up to world standard. Bangkok was never designed for the automobile. It was built on a mud flat in the delta of the Chao Phya River and the main transport was by boat on a series of interlocking canals.

POOR SUBSTITUTE

Most of the canals have been filled in and paved, but the result is a poor substitute for a road system. Matters are not helped by drivers who double or triple park in congested streets. Also contributing to the traffic problem is the rapid growth of the city from fewer than half a million at the end of World War II to more than three million.

Most of these people transport themselves on bicycles, motorcycles, buses, jeeps or a three-wheeled motorscooter taxi called a samlor. Recent surveys show that the average person spends at least 9 minutes a day in a traffic jam.

In other ways, too, Bangkok is bursting at the seams, its growth far outstripping the government's ability to cope with such problems as water supply, sewerage, telephones and power.

PHONE BLACK MARKET

The telephone authority has warned residents clamoring for phones that it will take six years to clear the present backlog although 10,000 new lines are going in each month.

The shortage has created a black market in telephones, with prices reaching as high as $1,500 for a line. The telephone company demands a $750 down payment to put you on the waiting list.

A furious building boom has added dozens of office buildings, apartment houses and hotels in five years. This has completely changed the city's old appearance as a pleasant, graceful and green place.

Bangkok boasts only two public parks, including the zoo. Lush tropical trees that once bordered the canals and streets have been hacked away.

BAD SIDE EFFECT

miles of drab shop-houses, mainly owned by Chinese.

The filling of the canals, which made Bangkok known as "the Venice of the East," has had an unfortunate side effect. The loss of trees coupled with the heat from the tropical sun on miles of asphalt and concrete has made the city even hotter than it was.

Bangkok's port, 27 twisting miles upriver from the Gulf of Thailand, is also a victim of unbridled expansion. It often takes goods three months to clear the wharf. Military supply shipments destined for U.S. Air Force bases in northeast Thailand have added to the congestion.

Port tonnage has grown from two million tons in 1960 to five million, but there are only 10 berths for ships to discharge cargo. Some ships unload in midstream onto lighters but this is slow and there is room for only five vessels in the river.

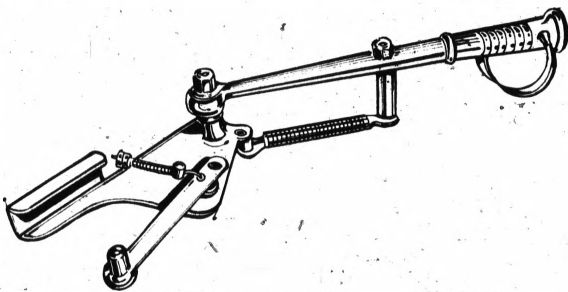

LONG WAIT
Not long ago a British freighter made a record 18-day passage from England to the mouth of the river. It sat there 10 days waiting for a berth.

The airline business has the same problem of too much business and too few facilities. With this city an aerial crossroads between Asia and Europe, 26 airlines fly regularly into Don Muang Airport. Work has begun on extensions to accommodate Boeing 747s. A new terminal building is being planned to ease congestion and another airport may be built.

Although the country is still experiencing a tourist boom—400,000 visitors came last year—many Thais are worried that it will not last. They fear that businessmen, anxious for quick returns from property development, have killed Bangkok's charm.

Town-Owned Combo Likely a Sound Buy

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP)—Teenagers here are going slightly daft over a community-owned corporation. The kids yell until you'd think the Beatles were in town.

The corporation is disraeli—plain, uncapitalized disraeli—whose principal asset is a group of six young men 19 to 21 who bang drums, blow the saxophone, strum the guitar and sing.

The disraeli members grew up in Astoria, played and sang together because it was fun, and decided a couple of years ago they'd make a business of it.

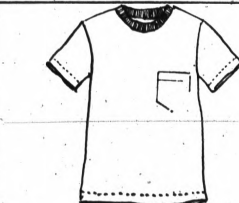

Chris Stangland, older brother of one of them, was impressed by the way they got across to their audiences and considered how to lower the odds on failure.

LOTS OF WORK

"If I'd realized how much work it would be I'd probably never have have done it," he says now. It has become his full-time occupation.

First he got disraeli incorporated, then sold $25,000 worth of stock to make it a community-owned corporation.

"You've heard about the generation gap but middle-aged residents of Astoria invested in these young men and were glad to do it," he said. "We haven't shown earnings yet but we will."

Millions Mourn Eisenhower's Death

Majestic Tribute Begins

AP Wirephoto

IN MOURNING—President and Mrs. Richard Nixon and daughter Tricia leave Walter Reed Army Hospital yesterday after extending sympathies to the family of the late Dwight D. Eisenhower. Behind them are Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird (between Nixon and his daughter) and Secretary of State William Rogers (behind Mrs. Nixon).

WASHINGTON (AP)—Millions mourned the passing of Dwight D. Eisenhower today as the beginning of a majestic final tribute before a train carries him slowly home to the Kansas plains.

Private services for the family were planned in a cloistered chapel of the Washington National Cathedral as a personal prelude to the ceremonial farewell that will last five days.

Eisenhower, who led history's mightiest Army to victory in Europe in World War II and his nation through eight years of shaky but unbroken peace, died yesterday after an epic 11-month siege of repeated heart attacks.

President Nixon, whom Eisenhower lived to see in the White House, went into the seclusion of his Camp David, Md. retreat after saying, "We have lost a great leader, a great friend and a great man."

TO LIE IN STATE

Nixon will return when the body is borne by horse-drawn caisson through the streets of Washington to lie in state beneath the dome of the U.S. Capitol.

"A giant of our age is gone," said

Lyndon B. Johnson, now one of two surviving ex-Presidents.

The other, Harry S. Truman, now 84 and in frail health, said despite his political feuds with Eisenhower after World War II, "We were comrades in arms and I cannot forget his services to his country and Western civilization."

FOR FUNERAL USE

Blair House, where Truman had lived as President, was being prepared for possible use of the two former chief executives during the funeral.

Through all the praise for Eisenhower ran the common refrain—victor in war, man of peace.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield compared him to George Washington. And perhaps Eisenhower, with his landslide victories, may well have been the most popular President since the birth of the nation.

Public opinion polls still rank him as the most admired American.

MIGHTIEST ARMIES

Unknown to the nation when World War II began, Eisenhower rose to command the mightiest armies ever assembled in battle through the invasion of Europe to his personal acceptance of the German surrender.

Elected President in 1952 and again in 1956—the only Republican in this century to win successive terms—Eisenhower, with his warm smile and simple words, brought reassuring confidence to a nation beset with Cold War crises and won as just plain "Ike" a place in the hearts of millions.

Stricken by his first heart attack while still in his first term in 1955, Eisenhower survived that and eventually six more before congestive heart failure eroded his iron strength and he slid gently into death at 12:25 p.m. Friday.

His wife of more than half a century, Mamie Doud Eisenhower, was nearby when death came as were most other members of his family.

DAY OF MOURNING

Nixon, who rushed to Walter Reed Army Hospital after the announcement, proclaimed a national day of mourning Monday and ordered the American flag

County Panel Juggles Funds

The finance committee of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors cut the county's 1970 tentative budget $338,200 yesterday—and then added $433,200 to it.

There was a net gain of $95,000 to a new $31-million figure. The 1969 county budget is $25.8 million.

No attempt was made to ban the meeting, earlier slated as an executive session.

The largest slice of additional monies put in the budget is a $400,000 appropriation to the County Road Commission. It would permit a shared program between the county, local communities and the commission to finance new road construction.

BIGGEST SLASH

The department to feel the biggest slash yesterday was welfare-general relief, with some $100,000 pared from a proposed $1.9 million budget. A total of $228,200 was cut from auditors' recommendations regarding county department requests.

Nondepartmental budgets had been pared $110,000 on Thursday, the largest slice of $50,000 coming from the contingency fund. A total of $700,000 still remains in the fund.

The budget, yet to be approved by the full board of supervisors, will serve as a working basis for the County Allocation Board when it divides up the 15-mill nonvoted tax between county, schools and townships.

As presented in tentative form, the budget calls for a county allocation of 5.85 mills compared to last year's 5.28 mills.

A final budget will not be adopted until October.

No public hearings on the budget are permitted under statute until June after the allocation board meets, according to Corporation Counsel Robert Allen.

A brief flurry developed at the start of the meeting as Carl O'Brien, D-Pontiac, moved but got no support for retaining the county millage levy at last year's 5.28 level.

To retain the same allocation figure, O'Brien suggested keeping salaries at present levels and hiring no new employees.

He suggested that schools get the money which resulted when the county's state equalized valuation increased from $3.4 billion to $4 billion.

Loss Mourned in Pontiac Area

By DIANNE DUROCHER

A cold rain was falling yesterday afternoon as Pontiac-area residents learned of the death of the 34th president of the United States.

Official word was released from Walter Reed Army Hospital, and the nation learned that Dwight D. Eisenhower died yesterday morning after a "long and heroic struggle."

"I cried," said Mrs. Lee Hill of 28 Stone, Pontiac. "I thought he was such a wonderful man and he had been having so much trouble recently."

"Abraham Lincoln is my favorite president, but I admired Eisenhower because he was such a great general during World War II and he wasn't a politician. That's why I admired him most," she added.

SIMPLE ELOQUENCE

There was a simple eloquence about Eisenhower that touched people all over the world. His grin and folksy nickname were his hallmarks. He devoted his entire life to the service of his country, and Pontiac-area residents pensively recalled these things as they spoke about him yesterday.

"When he said something, he carried it through and he has done a lot for this country both as a general and as president," said Robert Tibbitts of 25 Ensley, Oxford.

Daniel Arnold, an Oakland University freshman who was in grade school during Eisenhower's administration, said, "I really respected him because he was in the war and he actually fought for his country in the field, not behind a desk."

Doug Hefly, also an Oakland University freshman, echoed the words of his friend, adding, "He seemed to be liked for himself as a man, not just a politician."

'FINE GENTLEMEN'

"I'm sorry to hear of his death, though it seemed imminent this morning," said Willie Terry of 587 Wyoming, Pontiac. "I thought he was a fine president and a fine gentleman."

"He was my boss during World War II," said Warren Chaltre of 2091 S. Hammond Lake, Bloomfield Township.

Pontiac City and Oakland County offices, Pontiac and Waterford Township Schools, Oakland University and Oakland Community College plan to remain open on Monday.

Many area merchants indicated they would remain open for business throughout the day.

The rebels left peacefully when confronted by 50 riot-equipped policemen. No arrests were made.

City Gave Welcome In Campaign of '52

Months of grueling campaigning were near an end when Dwight David Eisenhower, still vigorous, determined and enthusiastic, visited Pontiac in 1952 on his way to the presidency.

He was only days away from winning the nation's highest position when his special 18-car train arrived at the Grand Trunk Western Railroad Station the morning of Oct. 25.

A crowd estimated at 4,000 was on hand to greet the general, who through the years had come to be known affectionately as "Ike."

It was with this genuine feeling that the thousands lining the route roared a thunderous ovation as Eisenhower stepped briskly on to the back platform, smiling and waving.

FULL OF ENERGY

He appeared "full of energy," an observer noted.

It was the same energy that he showed when he officially entered the political scene 10 months earlier, later bolstered by a victory over Sen. Robert A. Taft at the 1952 Republican convention in July.

With that, it was an optimistic Eisenhower who came to Pontiac.

Eisenhower's war record long had been considered by Republican and Democrats alike when measuring the potential of a presidential candidate to draw votes.

In fact, at the Potsdam Peace Conference in 1945, President Harry S. Truman told Eisenhower, "General, there is nothing that you may want that I won't try to help you get. That definitely and specifically includes the presidency."

Arriving in Pontiac seven years later, Eisenhower had not lost the respect that he had gained over the years in a nation often criticized for its short memory.

News Scene at a Glance

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Police officials say they have discounted as a prime suspect in the killings of two girls a former mental patient once questioned in the "Boston Strangler" killings. The Detroit News reported yesterday that the 28-year-old man now a student at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, had drawn official attention because of his background.

251 Reds Die in Battles

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and government forces fought 10 battles across South Vietnam — one the closest to Saigon since the Vietcong launched their spring offensive — and three American aircraft were shot down, military spokesmen said today. The fighting left 251 Vietcong and North Vietnamese dead at a cost of seven Americans and 10 South Vietnamese killed and 74 Americans and 30 government soldiers wounded.

Indicted Exec Sought

LANSING (AP) — The grand jury probing alleged corruption in the State Highway Department moved yesterday to return an Ohio businessman to Michigan to face conspiracy charges. William J. Miller, 52, president of the York Realty and Decorating Co., Inc. of Columbus, Ohio, declined an informal invitation to return to Michigan voluntarily for arraignment, authorities said.

Three Buildings Burned

PRAIRIE VIEW, Tex. (AP) — State police reported three buildings were set on fire today at Prairie View A&M College in a disturbance which broke out after a student was stabbed and killed. Texas Rangers and state highway patrolmen were summoned to reinforce sheriff's officers after the trouble broke out between 2 and 3 a.m.

No Request for Probe

LANSING (AP) — A spokesman for the attorney general's office said yesterday the agency had not been requested to investigate the Department of Mental Health. Deputy Atty. Gen. Leon Cohan made the statement after Senate Majority Leader Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis, said an audit revealed "the department is extremely inefficient, extremely mismanaged and has improperly spent thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money."

U.N. Debate Continues

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.N. Security Council began a third day of debate today on Israel's air raid against Jordan, trying to finish before Big Four talks on the Middle East expected to start next week. Diplomatic sources said Soviet, U.S., British and French U.N. ambassadors would meet in New York Thursday to start talks on how to settle the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. But in Cairo, the semiofficial newspaper Al-Ahram said Egypt has already rejected a U.S. proposal for peace submitted to the other three powers in preparation for the meeting.

Police Disperse Youths

MONTREAL (UPI) — Riot and motorcycle police last night dispersed a crowd of 8,000 French-Canadian youths from the gates of McGill University, a 141-year-old school the demonstrators want to make a French institution.

The protest was followed by three hours of scattered incidents in which more persons were injured and arrested than in the protest itself.

Loss Is Mourned by Area Residents

He and his wife Nancy said they were surprised and shocked when they heard the news that Eisenhower had died even though they were half expecting it because of his weakened condition.

"I'm terribly sorry. He went through a great deal," said Mrs. Calvin Warner of 868 Sunny Beach, White Lake Township. Mrs. Josephine Williams of 46 Howard said, "I was hoping he would pull through, but he had suffered so long."

"We all come to an end," said Ken Harper of 343 Nichols, Pontiac Township, who played for Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956. "And he lived a rich, full life."

In one of the ironies of the age, Eisenhower reached his greatness in a career in two professions he openly disliked — war and politics.

"This damned thing of war," Eisenhower once called it. And, even in the White House, he admitted he didn't like politics or politicians.

NEVER LOST CONFIDENCE

Eisenhower's era as president was pocked with crisis, but the public never lost its confidence in the grandfatherly golfer and leader it loved.

When Eisenhower died, he was once again among the trappings of war, a patient in a military hospital caring for wounded veterans of Vietnam.

A heart attack on a golf vacation in California felled him almost a year ago and Eisenhower was flown May 14 to Walter Reed Army Hospital, never to go home again.

Almost miraculously, he survived his fifth, sixth and seventh heart attacks in the hospital last summer and lived on to see Nixon, his vice president, win the nomination again and complete a legendary comeback in November.

STRENGTH EBBED

But with each new battle, his strength ebbed. He underwent abdominal surgery in February, then fought off pneumonia.

Finally the word came of congestive heart failure two weeks ago.

The Michigan Legislature is expected to meet briefly Monday to honor Eisenhower.

No other business will be conducted at that night session, leaders said. Announcement of the death of the late president brought quick adjournment yesterday.

Gov. William Milliken issued an eulogy to the late President-yesterday, saying "few men deserve our gratitude as much as Dwight Eisenhower."

"When leadership was needed, he responded. We are fortunate that he lived a full and meaningful life," Milliken said.

Dr. Cohen, author of many articles and books about LSD and other drugs currently in use, describes the mind-expanding experience produced by chemical compounds as "the beyond within."

He became a doctor of medicine at Bonn University in Germany and earned his Ph.D. from Columbia University.

Dr. Cohen is chief of psychosomatic medicine at Veterans Administration Hospital in Los Angeles and associate clinical professor of medicine at the University of California.

The author of "Mind: Psychiatry in General Practice," his research activities have extended into all classes of drugs which affect the mind.

For 10 years he has investigated many problems of LSD and the other hallucinogens and has contributed some of the basic information in this field.

His research on LSD, on which he has lectured both here and abroad, is currently directed toward measuring the changes of values, attitudes and originality.

Firemen Halted by Automation

LANSING (UPI) — Sometimes automation can be more of a hindrance than a help, the Michigan Senate has discovered.

Like when a fire truck answers a call at the 90-year-old State Capitol and finds it can't get into the parking lot because of an electronic gate.

The call occurred Thursday after smoke was reported on the fourth floor of the statehouse.

Firemen couldn't get into the lot because they didn't have a plastic card to activate the gate.

The smoke turned out to be nothing more than a cigarette butt in a lawmaker's ash tray, but the Senate agreed yesterday to issue parking passes to Lansing fire and police officials to avoid a similar problem in the future.

Pontiac Roared Welcome in Ike Campaign of 1952

gressman George A. Dondero of Royal Oak introduced Eisenhower, saying, "I give you the world's greatest hero, a man who has done so much for a world agonized by war."

Eisenhower then greeted Republican state and county candidates, and told the crowd that they were part of his "crusade team." At his side was his wife, Mamie.

Turning to politics, Eisenhower told the predominantly young crowd:

"I made a promise on Labor Day that no matter what position I ever held in public or private life, the nation could always say of me: 'He was fair, he was just and he was friendly.'"

Eisenhower said that he would not indulge in any contest of promises, "but I do promise that I will treat every problem with the question, 'What is good for America?' When the general finished speaking, he turned his attention to admirers pressing him for autographs.

TWO BANDS PLAYED

Then the Pontiac and Rochester High School bands began to play as the campaign train pulled slowly southward to more crowds waiting in Birmingham, Royal Oak and Detroit.

On the train, he told a Pontiac Press reporter that the crowd in Pontiac was one of the most attentive of the campaign.

He was impressed. So was Pontiac.

World's Tributes to Eisenhower Have Theme of Peace

THE PONTIAC PRESS, SATURDAY, MARCH 29, 1969

WASHINGTON (AP) — His contributions to world peace, not for his command of the allied armies that liberated Europe in World War II.

"He fought as a general," said Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., "who understood the hopelessness of war—and brought the hope of a lasting peace."

WORTHY GOALS

Said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.: "The causes for which he crusaded—the freedom of men and the peaceful alliance of nations—are still worthy goals of free people."

U.N. Secretary General U Thant paid this tribute: "He was a strong and practical supporter of the United Nations, where he is remembered especially for his initiative in promoting international cooperation in the peaceful uses of atomic energy."

Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said Eisenhower unified the free world's efforts to end World War II and recognized early that the Cold War must give way to peaceful coexistence.

"Though trained as a warrior," Humphrey said, "he was one of our nation's greatest peacekeepers."

'PROFOUND INFLUENCE'

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said Eisenhower profoundly influenced the lives of every American and the course of the world.

"Indeed," Rockefeller said, "we owe our freedom and future opportunities to his leadership, to his unique capacity to bring people together in common cause and to his deep faith and confidence in mankind."

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., remembered Eisenhower as the leader who ended the fighting in Korea and warned against a military-industrial complex.

"Time has confirmed his judgment in a most dramatic way and again we honor him," Fulbright said.

STRENGTHENED EUROPE

Former President Harry S. Truman counted among Eisenhower's greatest achievements his role in helping strengthen postwar Europe.

"Gen. Eisenhower and I became political opponents," Truman said in a statement, "but before that we were comrades in arms, and I cannot forget his services to his country and to Western civilization."

"He led the greatest military crusade that freed Western Europe from Nazi bondage, and then commanded the allied forces that stood guard over liberated lands while they regained their strength and self-reliance."

Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, supreme commander of allied forces in Europe added:

"The past 20 years of European security are a fitting tribute to the magnificence of his efforts."

HAILED BY DE GAULLE

French President Charles de Gaulle extolled Eisenhower's military leadership while other European heads of state remembered his efforts to strengthen postwar ties.

"The name of Gen. Eisenhower remains gloriously tied to the victory of 1945, to which he contributed in a striking manner," De Gaulle said. "For me, I see disappear with much sadness a dear companion in arms and a friend."

Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, the often-criticized British ground commander under Eisenhower, said, "I am very distressed. I want to be left alone now."

Queen Elizabeth II said the general's death will be keenly felt in the British Commonwealth as well as in America.

WARMLY REMEMBERED

"He will always be warmly remembered here," she said, "for his presence among us in the war years as a great soldier and leader of the allied forces and later... for his statesmanship which did much to further the cause of understanding between our two countries."

West German Chancellor Kurt

George Kiesinger also noted Eisenhower's postwar efforts.

"We honor the memory of this great American who after World War II worked untiringly for safeguarding peace and freedom in the world and who in the pursuit of these great aims, promoted a close and trustful cooperation between our two peoples."

Pope Paul VI conveyed to President Nixon "our heartfelt condolences on the loss of this dear friend and mentor, and our sympathy to the nation."

TRULY GREAT HERO

South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu said "Eisenhower was a truly great hero of the Free World. His passing is mourned by all free men."

In Tokyo, Prime Minister Eisaku Sato said he was deeply distressed to learn of the death of the leader "who loved peace."

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau said Eisenhower was particularly understanding of Canadian problems and Canadians "will long remember the leadership he gave."

Mexican President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz called Mrs. Eisenhower that her husband's name "will always be bonded to the struggles for the best causes of humanity."

President Tito of Yugoslavia said he was "greatly grieved

over hearing of the death."

But Communist Cuba's Havana Radio had no praise. It said Eisenhower's administration "was distinguished by an increase of the warmonger hysteria in the United States."

The Havana broadcast called him the organizer of the Bay of Pigs invasion carried out during the subsequent administration of John F. Kennedy.

The leaders of Russia, a country allied with America in the Second World War II but its antagonist in the Eisenhower years, were silent. Moscow radio reported the death in a one-sentence item without comment.

SENSE OF HUMOR

In America, it was the smile and sense of humor that comedian Bob Hope remembered best.

"He was a great leader, a great patriot—and a great audience," said Hope.

Many said Eisenhower's heroic struggle to survive seven heart attacks and surgery showed another facet of the general's character.

"He couldn't go on forever beating the Grim Reaper but he fought back like the typical hero that he was," said J. Earl Endicott of Abilene, Tex., a longtime personal friend.

Added Democratic National Chairman Fred Harris: "The bravery and unflinching good humor that he displayed in his last days was a reflection of the great courage and dedication that marked his entire life."

Earl Warren, whom Eisenhower appointed chief justice, said the Supreme Court will meet Monday morning but immediately adjourn out of respect.

"The passing of Gen. Eisenhower closes an illustrious chapter of world history," Warren said. "His accomplishments in war and peace distinguish him as one of the great men of this century."

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said, "His moments will be what he has done for his country and his countrymen will forever remember him for what he did because, like George Washington, he left his imprint in the fields of peace and war."

A RARE INDIVIDUAL

Said Henry Ford II: "He was more than a great statesman and soldier—he was one of those rare individuals who could inspire the hope and win the respect of people everywhere."

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said Eisenhower was "good for America and the world because of the goodness of his character."

"History will record his love for mankind," Scott said, "and mankind's love for him."

Continual Clutter Can Be Eliminated

A simple shelf system called the Catch-All works like magic.

Economical lower grades of Douglas fir, hemlock or pine are used for the Catch-All. No finish is needed, but bright-colored shelves can do nice things for a drab storage corner.

Ordeal Ended, Mamie Grieves in Seclusion

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the long vigil over, Mamie Eisenhower quickly slipped away to grieve in private.

"She's been a real soldier through it all," said an officer at Walter Reed Army Hospital after former President Dwight D. Eisenhower died yesterday.

"Looking after Ike," she once said, was her first job. "I only live from day to day."

Bullens from the hospital in the final days mentioned constantly that "Mrs. Eisenhower stays close by his bedside."

FAMILY 'NEARBY'

The official death announcement said only that she and other members of the family were "nearby" at the end.

After death was announced, Mrs. Eisenhower left the third-floor suite where she spent most of the past 11 months as her husband fought to survive repeated heart attacks, surgery and pneumonia.

Unnoticed, she was driven from the hospital to some unlit house where she had known and detested so long.

Two years ago she said she didn't miss the excitement of earlier years.

"No one who has ever been in that terrible limelight would ever seek it again," she said.

With her when she left the hospital was her son, John, 46, only living child of the Eisenhowers and newly named ambassador to Belgium. Their first son, Dwight, died in 1929 of scarlet fever when he was 3.

Other members of the family at the hospital were John's wife, Barbara; David, their son who is married to Julie Nixon; Mrs. G. Gordon Moore, sister of

Tomorrow's Cortège D.C.'s 4th in 5 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the fourth time in five years a funeral procession escorted only by two motorcycle policemen and a military police car bearing enlisted representatives of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

TO NATIONAL CATHEDRAL

It was taken from the private funeral home today without ceremony to Washington National Cathedral, which sits on the highest point of land on the northwest quadrant.

Eisenhower was a Presbyterian and although the Cathedral is Episcopal, it contains the tomb of another Presbyterian president—Woodrow Wilson—and is a capital landmark.

The plans called for brief military and religious ceremonies for relatives and friends in the Cathedral's Bethlehem Chapel, where the casket will remain with a military honor guard until tomorrow morning.

A motorcade will carry Eisenhower's body from the cathedral at 3 p.m. to a spot about midway between the White House and the Washington Monument.

FINAL RESTING PLACE

Final resting place for the president will be in a small chapel at the Eisenhower Center in Abilene—furthest point west that any president has yet been buried.

The plans for ceremonies in Washington were laid out in military precision by the Army and approved by Eisenhower himself in 1966.

The timetable begins with D-Day—the day of his death which was yesterday. The D-Day label, a common military symbol, was also used to designate June 6, 1944, the day Eisenhower-led Allied forces invaded Normandy.
