Possible Sewage Project Will Highlight Heavy City Commission Agenda

From Our Birmingham Bureau
BIRMINGHAM — Little chance is seen for a 50-minute meeting tonight as was held last week by the City Commission; since a jam-packed agenda awaits the lawmakers.

One of tonight's highlights will be a discussion on the outcome of a meeting attended last week by

City Manager Donald C. Egbert, to hear possible financing methods for a proposed joint sewage interceptor project.

The interceptor here would serve that area tributary to the Acacia and Bloomfield Village drains.

A possible interim agreement with Bloomfield Township to process sewage from the township, will also be taken up.

Tonight's meeting finds the city involved in a suit brought by Mrs. Susan Gardner, of 607 Hawthorne, her bill of complaint, also against Mr. and Mrs. John H. Rosso and the Birmingham Park Improvement Assn., revolves around her charge that because of an error in land surveys, property supposedly owned by the Rosso's is actually hers.

Other items under consideration will be a revised sign ordinance, a traffic survey made of the Oakland - Willets - Woodward intersection, and paving and sidewalks on Eton and Gracefield roads, preparatory to the fall opening of Pembroke School, north of the area.

A letter from residents of the area bounded by Forest, Adams, Bowers and Elms requests that the commission consider acquiring for park purposes the property on the north side of Bowers from Adams to Elm.

Three Birmingham college students were among 128 from the University of Michigan to achieve all A records in ten of the university's 15 schools and colleges during the spring semester. All of the students earned at least 12 hours of academic credit.

Those from Birmingham are: Colin R. Fisher, 3465 John R., College of Engineering; Iris M. Leja, 4165 Beach, School of Education; and Robert J. Schoenhals, 27673 Lahser, College of Engineering.

Tomorrow's YMCA Da-Y program will be a day at a salt water pool, where youngsters will receive swimming instruction. Leaving the Y at 9:30 a.m. the group will return at 4 p.m.

The first fatalities since a gas explosion cost the lives of five persons in December, 1949, was reported by Fire Chief Vernon W. Griffith in his list of fire department activities during June.

Mrs. Maureen Couper and her two young sons, Danny and Larry, died in a flash fire at their home at 1189 Brookwood on June 11, while Mrs. Couper's father was rescued by firemen.

Builders Called in Housing Quiz

Senate Group Summons Air Project Constructors, Studies Wherry Act

WASHINGTON (U) — The Senate Banking Committee today turned to the 1950 military housing law in its hunt for irregularities in the government's many-sided housing program.

The committee, headed by Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.), summoned three builders who shared in a reported one-million-dollar profit in construction of the Page Manor project near the Air Force base at Wright Field in Dayton, Ohio.

The builders were identified as Link Cowan, Shawnee, Okla.; David M. Mues, San Antonio, Tex.; and Norman K. Winston, New York City.

The military housing program, commonly known as "Wherry Act" housing after its author, the late Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry (R-Nebr.), was designed to stimulate construction near military centers. It operated in much the same manner as the much-probed general postwar apartment program, which provided government insurance for loans to builders, with one significant exception:

Builders of military rental housing worked under a provision which required them to certify to the Federal Housing Administration that their costs of construction were more than the amount of their FHA-insured mortgage. The mortgage was supposedly available on 90 per cent of building costs.

Under the general program, now expired, no certification was required. Capehart estimates that under this section of the law builders reaped up to half a billion dollars in "windfall" profits by pocketing the difference between the loan amounts and actual lower construction costs.

Accidents in County Cause Three Deaths about three hours after he sustained a skull fracture in a crash on Lake Angelus road, about a half-mile east of Joslyn road.

Oakland County Sheriff's Deputy Steve Hubbell said the car, driven by William K. Kinsey, 18, of Dodd's Trailer Court on Taylor road, Pontiac Township, turned over twice. Kinsey said he lost control near the top of a hill, when the auto struck a jutting rock in the gravel roadway.

Strzalkowski was pronounced dead of a heart attack by Oakland County Deputy Coroner Isaac C. Prevette after he fell from a boat at about 4 p.m. Sunday on Lake Orion. He was boating with two grandchildren, Ralph Dolenga, 9, and Susan Dolenga, 7, when he suddenly fell from the 14-foot metal craft.

The children told Sheriff's Deputies Melvin Glover and Herbert Cross that they threw life jackets to the victim but they fell short. A witness, Valentine Perkins of Detroit, said he recovered the body with a garden rake he had in his boat just as it began to sink.

The deputies said the tragedy took place about 400 yards from shore in about 80 feet of water. The body is at Allen's Funeral Home, Lake Orion.

Shirley Salagyl, 17, Owosso, fell into eight feet of water while playing on the Shiawassee River dam four miles south of Corunna. The girl grabbed a fishing line thrown her by Darwin Underwood, 16, but the line broke and she went under.

Kenneth Wiersman, 34, Grand Rapids, drowned Saturday when he fell from a boat while fishing in the Thornapple River near Ada in Kent County. Shirley Theisen, 33, St. Clair, fell from a boat and drowned in the St. Clair River off St. Clair's Palmer Park.

John A. Bigg, 28, Inkster, drowned Sunday while swimming in a Romulus Township quarry. The body of John J. Sipper, 69, Detroit, was recovered Sunday from the Detroit River.

A 21-year-old Bay City girl, Shirley Fisher, died Saturday at Monroe Mercy Hospital of injuries she suffered earlier in the day north of Monroe on U.S. 34. She was a passenger in a car driven by John S. McLaren, 30, Bay City, who deputies said lost control of the auto while trying to pass another car.

Oakland County chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will receive and additional $8,100 in emergency aid, state polio headquarters said today in Lansing.

Four other county chapters will receive a total of $7,485. Additional amounts sent out were Kalkaska, $285; Lenawee, $1,750; Muskegon, $3,200 and Wexford, $2,250.

The foundation said 39 Michigan chapters now have been sent a total of $555,060 from the epidemic aid fund, the second largest amount in the nation. California is first with $793,600.

Pontiac Pair Attending Annual Hospital Institute

Mrs. Elva F. Templeton and Miss Mary A. Johnson of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital are attending the Twelfth Annual Institute on Hospital Accounting at Indiana University this week.

Dr. Basil C. MacLean, New York City's hospital commissioner, gave the institute's keynote address today to 253 hospital accountants from 33 states, Canada and Iran.

The institute, which ends Friday, deals with "Achieving the Objectives of Hospital Accounting."

They stuck to the job as if they were free men," Bacon said.

With the aid of prison farm inmates, firemen from the prison and surrounding townships fought the Saturday night blaze nearly an hour. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined. No injuries were reported.

Drawer Yields Body of Girl, 18

Police Across Nation Alerted for Indianapolis Hotel Slay

INDIANAPOLIS (U) — Police watching automobile licenses over a third of the nation and technicians with microscopes studying body tissues sought today to solve the death of an 18-year-old small-town girl in a downtown hotel room.

The body of the girl, Dorothy Poore, was found Sunday in a Claypool Hotel room, stuffed in a dresser drawer 4 feet long, 2 feet wide and 10 inches deep. An autopsy failed to establish the cause of death, and Deputy Coroner William J. Pierce said decomposition may have concealed injuries.

Vital organs from the body were sent to the Indiana University Medical Center for examination. Dr. Pierce said the girl may have been strangled or suffocated.

The hotel manager said the room was occupied last by a man who registered as Jack O'Shea and gave a nonexistent New York City address.

Police broadcast the man's description and the description and New York license number of a car he was believed to be driving.

The girl, a 1954 high school graduate, had come to Indianapolis from her home in Clinton, a western Indiana town, to look for work.

Her mother, Mrs. Hazel Poore of Clinton, said she had taken a Civil Service examination for a typist's job Thursday.

O'Shea had said in registering Thursday at the hotel that he represented a finance company. He paid rent through Friday. He did not check out, and maids did not enter the room until Sunday.

The maids noticed an odor coming from the dresser and called a houseboy. He opened the drawer and found the body, which was clad in a slip, brassiere and panties. Coroner Roy R. Storms estimated the girl had been dead 36 hours.

The girl's blue jeans and slippers and a shopping bag were found hidden in an air vent closet in the room.

Miss Poore was registered at the Lorraine Hotel, a block from Claypool. She had planned to return to Clinton Saturday night and then to come back here this week to look for work again.

Mrs. Poore said her daughter had told of being annoyed by two men during an earlier job-hunting stay in this city.

Golfer Lays Quitting to Housing Switch

ST. PAUL (U) — Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the golfing dentist, said here Sunday he walked out on the Mankato Open tournament at Cleveland last week because another golf professional was put in a room reserved for him and he was moved to a "flea bag."

The chairman of the tournament had called Middlecoff's sudden departure "a lousy trick."

"Sure, I walked out of the tournament," said Middlecoff, here for the National Professional Golfers Association tournament.

"I had a room reservation confirmed and had it for 10 days. Then I show up and they put me some place else."

"It was a flea bag. It was in a motel and the room was upstairs. It was 107 degrees in the room. There was a three-quarter bed for me and my wife. I had to carry all my stuff up and had to pay in advance."

"That's when I decided to leave. It made me mad and I think it would have made anybody else mad."

Middlecoff did not name the man given the room he had reserved.

Lauds Jackson Felons for Fighting Barn Fire

JACKSON (UP) — Deputy Warden George Bacon today commended inmates who helped fight a $40,000 fire which destroyed a barn at Southern Michigan Prison's north farm.

"They stuck to the job as if they were free men," Bacon said.

With the aid of prison farm inmates, firemen from the prison and surrounding townships fought the Saturday night blaze nearly an hour. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined. No injuries were reported.

Detective Subs for Custodian Till Help Arrives

"Nothing succeeds like hard work," quipped Detective Sgt. John A. DePauw this morning as he guided a push-broom around desks and chairs in the Pontiac Police detective bureau.

"Think of it fellows, if the captain or the chief should walk in and find the floors all messy with cigarette butts," DePauw, recently promoted to his present rank, told fellow detectives.

Following DePauw's conscientious cleanup, Winfield Boyd, 31, of 465 Cameron Ave., walked into the station and reported he is to take the place of Frank H. Hart, 58, of 261 Stanley St., the department's regular custodian who started his two-week vacation today.

Superiors immediately gave DePauw the further task to "break in" the new custodian.

County Given OK for Collecting Tax

Approval for the countywide collection of one-half mill tax for the education of the handicapped was granted this morning by the Oakland County Tax Allocation Board.

The tax was endorsed by the voters of the county by a more than three-to-one vote at two elections, June 14 and July 12, making Oakland County the first county to locally finance and control its own special education program.

Raised annually with the half-mill tax will be between $50,000 and $500,000. The program will be under the direction of the Oakland County Board of Education and the county superintendent's office, but will be locally administered.

In August the county board will announce its plans for the coming school year's program.

Nearing Showdown on Indochina Peace

here kept to themselves.

One high conference source said Mendes-France had pushed away one obstacle to peace in a tentative fashion — the long debated question of the International Commission to police the armistice.

This source said the French and the Communists seem to have settled the composition of the commission with Canada, India, and Poland as the members. There would be last minute changes, it was emphasized.

The British, it was reported, will support Mendes-France on this composition. The position of the United States has not been made known.

In the past the United States has opposed the inclusion of any Communist states on the commission because of the unhappy record in Korea, where Czechoslovakia and Poland hampered operations of the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission with their veto power.

Under the tentative agreement reached by Mendes-France and the Communists, decisions would have to be taken by unanimous vote on any issues which might lead to the resumption of hostilities. Otherwise a simple majority would decide. The conference source emphasized that the agreement was not in its final form.

Progress also was reported unofficially on the question of elections in Viet Nam after the armistice.

There were reports the Communists were ready to accept a delay of 18 months. Earlier they had asked for a vote on a new government within six months. The French originally asked for a two-year delay.

There was little doubt that Viet Nam was going to be partitioned somewhere between the 14th and 18th parallels.

A Vietnamese spokesman said sadly today "there will be a partition and we realize we cannot avoid it."

He said his government still clung to its demand for U. N. supervision of the armistice, but that the issue would be decided "over our heads."

Twins' 'Mother' Fails to Appear

Woman Phoned 3 Times Claiming to Be Parent of Abandoned Babies

An unidentified woman who claims she is the mother of the twin girls abandoned Thursday night on the steps of a Rochester church failed to appear at police headquarters Saturday.

Rochester Police Chief Sam Howlett said the woman phoned three times last week and promised to give herself up.

She gave police a Detroit address and description of herself, but a check of the address failed to reveal anyone answering the description, said Howlett.

The babies, christened Mary and Maurine by the Rev. Harry Paul of St. Andrew's Catholic Church on whose steps the twins were found wrapped in an old army blanket, are in incubators at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital here.

Hospital authorities said the babies had lost the customary few ounces. At birth they weighed four pounds and six ounces, and four pounds and one ounce. Today they tipped the scales at four pounds and three ounces and the smaller one weighed three pounds and 15 1/2 ounces.

They said they were eating well, and in probably another day would begin to put on weight.

Although calls continue to be received at both the Oakland County Juvenile Court (now wards of the twins until their parentage is established) and the hospital offering to adopt the children, it will be some time before a decision is made as to their future.

Rochester police are still looking for a late model blue Plymouth with a middle aged driver who was reported seen late last Thursday afternoon stopping at the St. Andrew's Church entrance. Seen by a workman on a nearby church, the blue car is the strongest clue to the abandonment case.

lonely, but she can always go back. It has been tough on her being separated from her four sisters with whom she had lived since they were babies.

The Dionne home in Callander could not be reached by telephone last night.

When she took her vows last May, her father said Marie appeared genuinely happy in the convent.

The order requires candidates for nunhood to serve two years as novices.

Life at the convent was described as "not difficult or hard," but it was among austere lines. With other white-garbed nuns, Marie spent her days in prayer and silent work on priests' vestments, altar clothes and similar duties.

Suit Brazenly Stolen

KIEL, Germany (INS)—Passers-by thought it was a publicity stunt when a man stepped into a store's show window and dressed himself in a new suit from the window display. But the store's management called police to report that a thief had stolen a new suit in full view of the shopping crowd.

Chemical Sprays Killing Wildlife, Naturalist Warns

A Cranbrook Institute of Science naturalist warned today that careless use of chemical insect sprays poses a threat to wildlife and even domestic pets.

Dr. Marion T. Hall said autopsies on numerous creatures that have died in this general area show dangerous concentrations of DDT in their digestive tracts. Birds seem to be the chief victims.

Spray concentrations of DDT exceeding two pounds per acre in oil solution are dangerous to all kinds of animals, Dr. Hall said. Concentrations exceeding one fifth pound per acre are harmful to fish.

Dr. Hall suggested that the householder seek advice from his city forester, city parks department technical staff of county agricultural agent before spraying.

Begin Rubber Talks to End 11-Day Strike

CLEVELAND (U) — Talks begin today between representatives of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and the CIO United Rubber Workers in an effort to end the nationwide strike which began 11 days ago.

The union represents Goodyear's 23,000 production workers who walked off their jobs in 10 plants across the country following a wage discussion breakdown.

A settlement could set a pattern for union contracts with other large rubber companies, all of which are currently engaged in talks with the union.

Frenchmen Fear to Sleep
as Terror Stalks TunisiaBy CHARLES M. McCANN United Press Staff CorrespondentFrance moves these days from one crisis to another.As the Indochina issue approaches its climax in the Geneva
Conference and in the Hanoi

North Africa is entering the crisis stage.The Protectorate of Tunisia is being swept by a wave of stark terror.No Frenchman in the country-from the fear that his home will be attacked and he and his family slaughtered in their sleep.No Frenchman—and no Tunisian from a passing motor car.The situation in the Protectorate of Morocco, where the United States has important bomber moment. There could be a new explosion of violence there at any time.In Indochina, France can blame the Communists for its troubles—

Indochinese Communists aided by Red China and Red Russia. The rebellion in Indochina started, however, as a Nationalist movement.There is little of communism so far in the Nationalist movements in Tunisia and Morocco. Thereis no doubt communism would like to move in if it can.France has tried every method to deal with the situations in North Africa. Repression, conciliation, promise of reforms, ousting of officials, imprisonment and banishment of Nationalist leaders, alike have failed.The center of the Nationalist movement in Tunisia is the Neo nisia was started by a band of outlaws, the Fellagah Bandits.

They operate in the countryside.
They now call themselves "the national army of liberation" and appear in khaki uniforms.Violence has spread recently into the cities. The French suspect a link between the Fellationalists.There are indications France may try again to do business with slender, handsome Habib Bourguiba, the Neo Destour leader.Bourguiba and his chief aides were arrested in January 1952.

For more than two years, Bourguiba was held in "protective custody" on the little island of Gallie off the Tunisian Coast. Last May he was transferred to the island of Grox off the West Coast of France.Now Bourguiba has been taken "somewhere in the interior of France to live. It is reported that the French may try to induce him to return to Tunisia and take part in a radically altered ministry, with the promise of a greater degree of independence. If so, it is likely that France will have to bid

Japan, Philippines Out as A or H-Plane Bases

TOKYO (AP)—Top U. S. Air Force sources said today the United States has no present plans to use either Japan or the Philippines as a base for atom or hydrogen bomb-carrying planes.

Japan was eliminated as a direct result of pressure from the Japanese government, which did not want atomic weapons or H-bomb carrying planes based here, the sources said.

Safe-Crackers Get $300 as Gas Bomb Fizzles

Yeggs cracked open a safe in the Ed William's Tire Co. at 451 S. Saginaw St. early Sunday morning and stripped it of $300 when a built-in tear gas bomb failed to go off.

Pontiac Police said the safe-crackers entered the building through a rear window and piled tires against it before smashing the 2 x 4-foot safe with an ax. They said the safe had a tear gas bomb built into its door, but it didn't explode.

Idle Bosses Form Club to Find High-Paying Jobs

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — "Forty Plus" is probably the only club in the world devoted exclusively to getting rid of its own members. It is made up of executives past the age of 40 who have one thing in common. They have lost their jobs. "Forty Plus" tries to get them new ones.

The staff and members, all unemployed, pool their efforts in an organized search to find each other good-paying jobs that make use of their experience and ability.

Phil Culklin, currently heading the club's public relations committee, has been out of a job for three months. Under "Forty Plus" rules he spends two and a half days a week working for the club, which is not at all easy to get into. "Our requirements are stiff," Culklin said. "An applicant must have been earning at least $6,000 a year in a top position. Our 10-man screening board rejects 92 per cent of all applicants."

The non-profit organization was started 15 years ago by Henry Simler, a Boston business executive. His firm merged with another company and four executives who were friends of his suddenly found themselves out of a job.

Simler organized the four into a job-hunting task force, each man looking out for the interests of the other three. All four soon were back at work. Since then "Forty Plus" has spread across the country, with the most active chapters in Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Montreal, Cleveland, Detroit and New York.

In New York, the biggest center of "Forty Plus" activity, membership hovers around 80 and job placements average about one every two days. In one extraordinary month, however, the club lost 50 per cent of its members.

"No member is permitted to take a job which he turned up himself. He turns it over to our placement committee which picks a man it thinks is best qualified," Culklin said.

When a new member passes the screening board he pays the club a $20 fee plus $1 a week for every week he remains a member. The average stay is about three months, but there have been cases when a member was happily kicked out after one day on the rolls.

"One fellow waited a year before accepting an offer," Culklin said. "He was an accountant with lots of experience and he wanted something special. The club finally got him a job at $15,000 a year."

Club records show the average age of members is around 53, and their average annual salary, before unemployment, was $10,000 a year. Most of the jobless executives have had backgrounds as sales managers, credit managers, administrative assistants or plant managers, but occasionally an off-beat job-hunter joins the ranks.

"Forty Plus" has found jobs for two admirals, several colonels, a former judge, a newspaper editor and a bacteriologist. It has found jobs as far away as Arabia and jobs paying as much as $40,000 a year.

Members are not required to pay any fee when "Forty Plus" lands them a job. But grateful members usually kick in $50 to help pay the club's expenses. One donated a typewriter and another endowed the club with a bell.

"We hung it in the office and ring it every time someone gets a job," Culklin said.

Before the French entered Indochina, there were three kingdoms Annam which included the present territories of Tonkin, Annam and Cochinchina; Laos and Cambodia.

MEMBER OF AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MONDAY, JULY 19, 1954

The U. S. Is Growing

President EISENHOWER electrified the Governors Conference by proposing as a "mere start" a $50,000,000 ten-year road-building program to prepare for a population of 200,000,000 by 1970.

Those ciphers are almost meaningless. What the President was telling the Governors was that the United States is growing, and growing so fast that all levels of Government are going to have to lift their sights to new horizons.

Pontiac school electors testified to their understanding of this growth by voting last month for a school construction program. Oakland County voters are being challenged to stretch their imaginations and prepare for the future by approving a courthouse building proposal in the August 3 primary.

One difficulty in all this expansive looking ahead right now arises from the fact that growth in population is something totally new in America. Today kids are graduating from high school and entering college who were born in the depression. And the depression produced the lowest birth-rate of any period in our history.

But just after depression came World War II. And it shot the birth-rate to astronomical levels. The significant thing, however, is that after the "war marriages" and "war babies" the birth-rate didn't taper off. America is in a phenomenal population expansion era with a birth-rate now at about 4,000,000 new babies a year, that gives this country one of the highest growth factors in the world.

In Michigan the new babies arrive at the rate of 200,000 a year. Projecting this ahead, Michigan will have about 100,000 students in college next year, and about 200,000 in 1970.

By 1970 educators look for a national college enrollment of 4,500,000, almost twice the record campus population in 1948 at the height of the GI Bill.

That may seem fantastic, but as of June, 1954, there were only about one-third as many engineering graduates in all the U. S. colleges as were needed to fill jobs.

President EISENHOWER may have set his sights high on a road-building program costing multiple ciphers for 1970. He had a deliberate purpose, however. It was to alert the 48 Governors and the people to the necessity for planning now to meet the needs of a rapidly growing United States.

Trade Marks Protect You

You may never have heard of the United States Trade Mark Association. Recently it held its seventy-sixth annual meeting, and was appropriately addressed by Mrs. DAPHNE R. LEEDS. Mrs. LEEDS is assistant U. S. Commissioner of Patents, and is the first woman to hold so high a post in the Patent Office.

Addressing the organization dedicated to the preservation of identifying trade marks, Mrs. LEEDS told the members:

"Our American business concept is based on competition. Free enterprise envisages competition — and trade marks are the very essence of competition. Trade marks — those little brand names which bridge the gap between producer and consumer — provide freedom of choice in the market place."

Think of the trade mark as your protection as a consumer the next time you shop. It means that the manufacturer is proud of his product, and wants you to be able to identify it as a warranty of good value.

Incidentally, Mrs. LEEDS had more good news for the association. Since the new Administration took over in 1953, she reported an annual savings of $124,000 in administration of the trademark laws.

Twins to Have a Home

Spontaneous and widespread response to the need of two twin girl babies for a home followed publication of their pictures in Friday's Pontiac Press.

The newborn babies had been left on the steps of a Rochester church Thursday night without any trace of the identity of their parents. They were brought immediately to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac where they were placed in incubators.

Offers of home care and adoption were received from some 90 people within a few hours. Telephone calls poured into the hospital.

Such a response shows the warm, generous impulse which still rules human hearts where children are concerned. Regardless of the reasons which may have led their mother to give them up, these babies are wanted and are assured of a good home in which they will have loving care.

There may be much of violence and hatred and cruelty in the world, but underneath in the vast majority of human hearts there is friendliness and love and a willingness to share.

The Man About Town

Low Pollen Count

Hay Fever Sufferers Will Welcome This Good News

Surprise: What the girl got who was tired of working, so got married.

Local hay fever sufferers will be glad to learn that the Pontiac area is given a rather low pollen count this year, under 4,000 to the cubic yard of air. This appears to be in spite of the thriving growth of ragweed and slow development of golden rod blossoms. By the way, my hay fever pollen expert tells me that golden rod now is considered to be a lesser offender than before it was better understood.

Pontiac roller skaters of the 1920s are preparing for a reunion which will include a picnic and games of several kinds—but no roller skating "without cushions."

One of the first to patronize Pontiac's first municipal parking lot was

George Varion of Lake Orion, who phones, "It is a start on solving your city's only drawback."

The raspberry crop now is being picked, and Oakland County's largest grower, Jay A. Toles, has 30 odd pickers at work at his acreage at 3890 Gregory Road, harvesting a good crop. Incidentally, Mr. Toles has served as one of the three persons on our county's election board for as many years as he now has berry pickers.

Back from several months in Florida and a hospital siege,

John R. Taylor says he again is OK after obeying his doctor's orders to stop worrying.

"I want to commend the Pontiac Press on its handling of crime news," phones

Mrs. Edna Northrup of Birmingham, who continues, "The big city papers forgot most everything else after that Allegan murder trial started."

The family cat in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hills of Bloomfield Hills was killed by an automobile. The neighborhood children placed the body in a little box, and were to join in a burial ceremony—but somebody stole the box.

In answer to several inquiries, the court house clock does not strike any more. Its jarring sound threatened the foundation of the statue of justice, just above it. Bet you hadn't missed it.

Early potatoes that weigh close to a pound apiece are reported by

Harry Dale of Auburn Heights, who says they've grown "in spite of weeds, drouth, too much rain, backache, blistered hands, bugs, dirty hands, advice, hot weather, cold weather, flies and mosquitoes."

Portraits

By JAMES J. METCALFE

The formula is something that... Prescribes a certain course... Like medicine, a way to live... Or betting on a horse... It is supposed to guide your mind... And help you to survive... And yet sometimes without it you... Are so much more alive... The formula is handy when... There is no other way... And by some chance of circumstance... It still could save the day... But sometimes you are better off... When you are on your own... Without a method tried and true... Just by yourself—alone... And as you try your fledgling wings... It may turn out that you... Have found a special formula... Quite wonderful and new.

Case Records of a Psychologist

Principle of Good Editing Is Inclusion of Local Names, Pictures and Stories

Craig has been promoted to a most interesting job, for he is to conduct a monthly "house organ" for his firm. Editorial psychology is fascinating and should be better understood by the staffs and school newspapers, church mimeographed magazines and even you writers of love letters.

By DR. GEORGE W. CANE
 Case L-361: Craig K., aged 32, is to take over a new job soon.

"Dr. Crane, my new position involves editing a house organ for our small factory," he began.

"I'm new at this sort of thing, although I've done a little writing in the past."

"So could you give me some psychological pointers to make our monthly magazine of maximum interest to all the employees?"

When you have your picture taken with a group and later get to see the proofs, where do you look first?

To find yourself! Then you look at those friends you know best, but only casually glance at the total strangers.

That is the principle of good editing, whether of a factory house organ or a high school newspaper, or a mimeographed monthly church magazine.

People are most interested in seeing their own names in print and their own personal problems discussed.

Aunt Het

Jim ain't had any tragic past. He's just had a few sorrows that don't trouble him when he's sober but start breakin' his heart when he gets a few drinks.

of Pontiac's older business places has closed and wonder how many others will miss the "Haddad Sweet Shop" on South Saginaw.

Mr. Haddad can spin some wonderful tales of Pontiac in the old days and I always enjoyed a chat with him over one of his delicious chocolate sundaes.

"Old Timer"

High Time the U. S. Quit Financing Her 'Friends'

Sure, we give billions to nations in want and then when we ask them to vote with us on Red China they give Uncle Sam the ha-ha and vote against us. Isn't it time to stop financing our "friends"?

Teacher

Now He Knows

The circus strong man rode out on horseback to challenge a farmer whose great strength had gained him a reputation. The circus man tied his horse in the farmyard and approached the farmer.

"Hey!" he called. "I've heard a lot about you, and I thought I'd see which is the better man."

Without answering, the farmer seized the intruder, hurled him bodily over the fence into the road, and returned to work.

When the loser had recovered his breath, the farmer growled, "Got anything else to say to me?"

"No," the circus man panted, "just throw me my horse."

Modern

Mother: "Isn't this a rather complicated toy for a small child?"

Clerk: "It's an educational toy, madam, designed to adjust a child to live in the world of today. Any way he puts it together, it's wrong."

Also, if the "censure" idea is carried to its logical conclusion, then there can be offered a resolution of "condemnation" any time a group of senators from certain states dislike what the people of other states do in electing certain men to the Senate.

Thus the Senate might find itself asked to resolve solemnly that the people of the state of Wisconsin—or even the people of Vermont—are to be censured for sending to the Senate anybody who doesn't accept the political concepts of the other senators or their attitude toward the best ways of getting rid of spies and subversives in our government.

Much has been said about Sen. McCarthy's "methods"—as if his procedures are materially different from those of other chairmen of investigating committees during the last 30 years.

Certainly he is guilty of interperate outbursts at times and occasional unfairness due to overzealousness, but former President Truman was often as intemperate and unfair and yet "Trumanism" was never the subject of a movement to impeach.

Indeed, it's strange how much time and energy and news space are being used up in trying to

for a "Personals" column and many names.

A good church mimeographed paper can list 25 people per page, which means the editor can cover 100 families in a 4-page issue.

And whenever you name people, they think the magazine is good. So they begin to root for it. They take extra copies home, and pass them around and talk it up.

In this column, obviously I can't name individuals, so I do the next best thing and list actual cases out of my office files which parallel those that millions of you experience in your own homes.

"Dr. Crane, your cases certainly strike home," thousands of you will write to me. "They sound exactly like my wife's (or husband's) problem."

So be sure to name people and discuss their personal problems. For further advice, send for my bulletin "How to Write Salable Copy," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus a dime. It also has a section of prize contesting.

New York Yankees, with the various pros and cons concerning the chances any other team would ever be able to defeat the Yankees.

There wasn't any mention of the local high school students who were to pay their money for the paper! There wasn't even a box score account of a recent school game where they could see the names of all the local players and their record.

No, that teen-age reporter had simply tried to show off his literary cleverness in discussing a far-away sports problem, namely, the Yankees.

The same discussion would not be amiss in a large city newspaper, but the local high school boys and girls pay their money primarily to see their own names in print, plus those of their close friends and classmates.

Then they will take the newspaper home and show it to relatives and neighbors. Papa beams! And glowing Mamma then urges the son or daughter to buy another copy to mail to Grandma.

Craig should thus remember that the employees in his company also want to see familiar names of people in print, and especially their own.

A liberal sprinkling of pictures, too, of workers in the various departments, will perk up the readership of the house organ.

David Lawrence Says:

Extremely Bad Phrasing Deflates Flanders' Attack

WASHINGTON — What is "conduct unbecoming a member of the United States Senate" and what is meant by "conduct to Senate traditions" and what is "conduct that tends to bring the Senate into disrepute"?

These phrases, contained in a resolution sponsored by Sen. Flanders of Vermont, Republican, could, if properly investigated, take many weeks of hearings because hardly a member of the Senate could satisfy any other member as to what is or is not "unbecoming."

This is true especially if grabbing headlines and publicity is hereafter to be regarded as taboo.

Sen. Flanders, who has proposed the condemnation of Sen. McCarthy of Wisconsin, Republican, for his "conduct" as chairman of the subcommittee on government investigations, has been getting a lot of publicity himself in recent days by his personal attacks on and innuendoes about the Wisconsin senator.

Flanders, as a senator, has a right to do this and anybody introducing a resolution to censure the Vermontor for these stunts on radio and television would be acting "contrary to Senate traditions" because there is no limitation on a senator's efforts to try to get publicity or to smear anyone or to discuss any subject whether or not it is pertinent.

The Vermont senator is quoted, for example, as saying that it is no business of the Senate Committee on Government Operations to investigate the presence of foreign spies in private industry as that has nothing to do with governmental operations.

It must have been a misquotation because just a couple days ago the secretary of defense was telling the Senate Armed Services Committee that the Defense Department was badly in need of legislation on this very point as many contractors, engaged in defense projects, couldn't fire employees suspected of espionage without involving themselves in all sorts of legal complications.

As for the "conduct" of a senator, many things might be covered by that vague phrase. The core of the issue, however, is the expression of views or opinions that are unpalatable to other senators. It is the essence of good liberalism that a man should not be punished merely for the expression of his political views.

If the "censure" resolution technique is to become customary, then every time a senator doesn't like the views expressed by a chairman of a committee he can introduce a resolution and presumably get a vote on whether the "conduct" of that chairman is or is not "unbecoming."

Also, if the "censure" idea is carried to its logical conclusion, then there can be offered a resolution of "condemnation" any time a group of senators from certain states dislike what the people of other states do in electing certain men to the Senate.

Thus the Senate might find itself asked to resolve solemnly that the people of the state of Wisconsin—or even the people of Vermont—are to be censured for sending to the Senate anybody who doesn't accept the political concepts of the other senators or their attitude toward the best ways of getting rid of spies and subversives in our government.

Much has been said about Sen. McCarthy's "methods"—as if his procedures are materially different from those of other chairmen of investigating committees during the last 30 years.

Certainly he is guilty of interperate outbursts at times and occasional unfairness due to overzealousness, but former President Truman was often as intemperate and unfair and yet "Trumanism" was never the subject of a movement to impeach.

Indeed, it's strange how much time and energy and news space are being used up in trying to

for a "Personals" column and many names.

A good church mimeographed paper can list 25 people per page, which means the editor can cover 100 families in a 4-page issue.

And whenever you name people, they think the magazine is good. So they begin to root for it. They take extra copies home, and pass them around and talk it up.

In this column, obviously I can't name individuals, so I do the next best thing and list actual cases out of my office files which parallel those that millions of you experience in your own homes.

"Dr. Crane, your cases certainly strike home," thousands of you will write to me. "They sound exactly like my wife's (or husband's) problem."

censure Sen. McCarthy and yet not a single resolution has been introduced to censure the Truman administration for having continued in its employ Harry Dexter White after J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, had warned against such a course.

Speaking of unwillingness to reply to questions propounded by a congressional committee, Truman refused on technical grounds to answer any questions by a House committee last year and hence has never explained why, after the FBI evidence was given him, he wrote in subsequent months two separate letters highly commending White for his services.

Was this "conduct unbecoming a President of the United States?" or are some senators interested only in attacking the conduct of a man who is vehemently fighting the continuance of Communist operations in America and who is exposing especially the abuse of the Fifth Amendment privilege?

This provision of the Constitution was never intended to permit wrongdoers to conceal the knowledge they may have of the guilty acts of others. The FBI cannot prosecute such persons but congressional committees can uncover publicly certain facts on which prosecutions can often be based. That's how Alger Hiss was caught and sent to jail.

 No historian has ever approached Prescott's, "That laboratory of discontent the empty stomach."

It's the story of John Ball's Rebellion, it's the story of the Jacquerie of the Dark Ages, it's the story of the Rice Bowl of Indochina.

When Napoleon said an army traveled on its stomach he said more than a mouthful. It was a bellyful. Three times a day.

Probably a more certain recipe for trouble in the world pantries is the jaded appetite. At present we are having trouble with our bananas in Central America and our coffee in Brazil.

We also seem to be suffering from a surplus of wheat, corn and rye. We are proud to state the still-billies of Kentucky are doing their uphull best to balance the books.

Against Prescott's resentful scarcity we have America's over-lodged vast area. It begins to appear as if Hank Wallace's ever normal granary was a well-balanced diet for damming the flood of national digestive juices.

In order to keep the prices up here we are giving our groceries away in Europe. Why not give 'em away here and keep the prices up over there?

That's just a thought that occurred while the chef was giving the hotfoot to a crepes suzette. We still fail to comprehend why a surplus is a threat to our economy. We have never been to a picnic where there were enough rolls to house the hot dogs.

Not since Joseph predicted the triple whammy for Egypt has there been a standardized silo. It's either feast or famine and no seconds.

Back in 1917 we wrote: "Egg on the chin used to be carelessness. Now it's boasting."

Let's hope that kind of nutritious braggadocio doesn't shorten the firing range of our pop-up toasters.

THOUGHTS FOR TODAY

This is suggested in the pamphlet on Hay Fever, available on written, signed request if you provide stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Now, don't tell me you are allergic to milk.

But if you insist you are, I've already given my advice. While the advice applies to hay fever, I might say here that it applies to hay fever only secondarily.

Primarily I recommend Ca and D as the best prophylactic and corrective for any kind of allergic manifestation, such as hay fever, asthma, eczema, urticaria (hives), angio-neurotic edema (giant hives), migraine (periodic sick headache), "nervous" or neuralgic headache, hyperesthetic rhinitis (temperamental coryza) or what have you.

Sign your letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed, etc.

Dr. Brady Recommends Calcium and D for Hay Fever, or 'What Have You!'

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

That hay fever is the manifestation of allergic sensitivity to one or another kind of pollen is the belief of most medical authorities.

In the past five or ten years I have devoted a good deal of study to the problem of allergy.

I think that the best prophylactic or corrective remedy for child or adult who is subject to hay fever is an optimal daily ration of calcium and vitamin D, not for a few weeks or for the hay fever season but the year around.

Optimal daily ration means more than nutrition authorities deem adequate to prevent manifestations of nutritional deficiency. It's essential food, not medicine.

It is fair to assume that the growing child will get an optimal daily ration of calcium if he or she takes a quart of milk every day—or the equivalent in milk products, egg yolk, cheese, peas, beans, greens, nuts and peanuts. These are the best food sources of calcium.

Every child requires not less than 1 1/4 pints—three glasses—of whole milk or skim milk if the child prefers it to whole milk—every day to maintain normal growth, health and vite. There's no substitute.

The child or adult who can and does enjoy sufficient exposure to direct sunlight or diffuse daylight every day may manufacture his own vitamin D, which is necessary to insure normal utilization of calcium in the body.

If this is not practical, then a suitable amount of vitamin D should be taken by mouth daily.

If the hay fever sufferer will not or cannot drink milk or eat yogurt or cheese, then the next best thing, so far as susceptibility to hay fever is concerned, is a suitable daily ration of dicalcium phosphate and calcium gluconate combined with vitamin D.

The Caine Mutiny

CHAPTER 17

The steward Rasselas went searching the ship for the communicator and found him flat on his face on the flying bridge, asleep in the sun. "Suh, Mistuh Keith, suh, Cap'n wants you, suh."

"Oh, God. Thanks, Rasselas." Queeg looked up from his jigsaw puzzle with a remarkably pleasant, youthful smile when Willie came into his cabin. It brought back forcibly to Willie that he had liked Queeg at their first hand shake so long, long ago.

"Well, Mr. Keith, here's something for you," Queeg took several clipped sheets from an overflowing wire basket and gave them to the communicator. They were Willie's appointment to lieutenant junior grade, Queeg stood, and offered his hand. "Congratulations, Lieutenant."

Willie had been comforting himself for months with a dark fantasy. He had resolved that if ever a moment came when Queeg offered to shake hands with him, he would refuse.

With that one gesture he would tell the captain once for all what the world of gentlemen, in the person of Willie Keith, thought of people like Queeg.

Now it had suddenly come, the chance to make the daydream real—but the sad fact is, Willie mockingly took the captain's hand and said, "Thank you, sir."

"Not at all, Willie. We have our little differences, naturally, but as an officer you measure up very well—very well, on the whole."

Queeg was sitting on his bed in his shorts, reading the poems of T. S. Eliot.

"Say, Tom! It was the voice of Maryk from across the passageway. 'How about coming in here for a second if you're not busy?'"

"Sure."

Maryk, also in shorts, sat at his desk, fingering a pile of Navy letters. "Pull the curtain, Tom."

"Now, just for the hell of it, tell me this. Can you figure what it is the captain has against Stilwell?"

"Sure, Steve, I know, but you'll just brush me off—"

"Let me hear."

"Okay, He hates Stilwell for being handsome, healthy, young, competent, and naturally popular and attractive—all the things that Queeg is not.

"Ever read Billy Budd, by Melville? Read it. That's the whole story. Stilwell is a symbol of all the things he would like to smash because he can't have them, like a child wanting to break another child's toys."

"Infantilism is very strong in our captain. I'm leaving out a conjectural element which I also think is important, maybe even decisive—the sexual—"

Maryk made a disgusted grimace.

"I know, we start wading in slime at this point. But repressed desire can turn to hate, and all of the captain's raptures could fall into a pattern on the theory of an unconscious, violently repressed inversion which fits in beautifully with—"

"Okay, Tom, I've heard enough. Thanks." The exec got up and hoisted himself onto his bunk. He sat at the edge, his thick bare legs dangling. "Now, would you really like to know why the captain has it in for Stilwell?"

"Sure," said Keefer. "No doubt you have a much more profound theory, and I—"

"I don't know any theories. I'm just a dumb comic-book reader who made a straight C-minus at college. But I know a fact or two that you don't."

"The captain is out to get Stilwell because he blames him for the time we cut our own towline. He thinks Stilwell deliberately didn't warn him, just to get him in trouble."

Keefer was startled. "How do you know? We don't even know that he realizes we did cut the towline—"

"He realizes. He told me in San Francisco what I just told you."

"I'm damned!"

"And the captain feels that all his trouble with ComServPac and for that matter with the Caine officers and crew, stems from that incident. He knows what an idiot that made him out to be. Don't underestimate the captain, Tom."

The novelist shook his head in wonder. "You know, that's the first backstage glimpse I've been allowed into that strange mind. Imagine, blaming Stilwell! When he himself—"

"How about all those theories of yours now, Tom? Frustration, Billy Budd, infantilism, inversion, and all that—"

Keefer said, with an embarrassed grin, "You think you've caught me, don't you? Not necessarily. What he told you may still be just a surface symptom of my diagnosis—"

"Okay, Tom. How about this? Will you come up with me tomorrow morning to the medical officer of the Pluto, and tell him what you think of the captain?"

Keefer took a long pause before answering. "Not me," he said. "You can go. It's your place, not mine."

"I can't explain all that psychological stuff. That's your line."

"Did you ever hear of a thing called conspiracy to undermine authority?" said the novelist.

"But if he's crazy—"

"I never said he was crazy. I said he was teetering on the edge. That kind is almost impossible to nail. Once you accuse them, they shrink back into the most convincing g-d-d-n normal attitudes you ever saw."

"They're as cunning as acrobats at treading that thin line between being a bastard and being a lunatic. It would take a state-side civilian clinic to see into Queeg. Here we'd just hang ourselves."

"All right, Tom." The executive officer jumped off his bunk and faced the gangling novelist, looking up into his eyes. "That was a request to put up or shut up. You won't put up. Then shut up this talk about the captain being crazy. It's like running around in a powder magazine with a g-d-d-n blowtorch. You understand?"

I swear to Ch— I'll report to the captain any further statements you make along that line. Friendship, on this point, no longer means anything to me. That's the straight dope."

Keefer listened with a grave tense face; only there was a tinge of mockery in the wrinkling of his eyes. "Aye aye, Steve," he said quietly, and went out through the drawn curtain.

It became known among the officers, shortly after the ship left Funafuti in a convoy to Noumea, that Steve Maryk had taken to writing late at night.

Actually, he had begun a record of the captain's eccentricities and oppressions, labeled "Medical Log on Lieutenant Commander Queeg." He kept it locked in his desk safe.

Aware that the captain possessed a record of the combination, Maryk quietly opened the lock late one night and reset the dials. He gave a sealed envelope containing the new combination to Willie Keith with instructions to open it only in case of his own death or disappearance.

During the months that followed the log swelled to a voluminous record. By being sent to Funafuti the Caine had fallen into the clutches of the Southwest Pacific command, the Seventh Fleet, and it began a grinding, nerve-rasping tour of monotonous escort duty.

During this captivity Capt Queeg became more irascible, secluded, and strange. When he emerged from his cabin he usually performed some minor outrage that was written down in Maryk's log.

He incarcerated sailors and put officers under back; he cut off water, he cut off coffee, and when the movie operator neglected to send him word that a performance was starting he cut off movies for the entire crew for six months.

He made endless demands for written reports and investigations. Once he kept all the officers sitting in session for 48 hours, trying to find out which mess boy had burned out a Silex (they never found out, and he announced a 20-point cut in everybody's fitness rating).

He developed a settled habit of summoning officers for conferences in the middle of the night. The equilibrium of declared hostility between himself and the wardroom, came to seem the normal way of life for the officers. They averaged 4 or 5 broken hours of sleep each night.

A gray mist of fatigue settled over their minds. They were jumpy, easily moved to quarrel, and more, scared and sickened, with every passing week, by the everlasting buzz of the wardroom phone and the message, "Captain wants to see you in his cabin."

And all the time Maryk doggedly kept adding to his secret log.

Boy, 13, Thwarts Own Kidnaping by Fighting Men

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—A 13-year-old boy's fight against two men was credited today with thwarting a kidnaping.

The two men attempted to take Kenneth Ogle from his home Saturday night. Even after the abduction failed, a man telephoned the boy's father at a grocery store he manages and demanded $4,000.

The caller warned that unless the money was paid "we're going to get you or your family." The father, Dennis D. Ogle, contacted police.

The police had Ogle carry out the caller's instructions, using a fake payoff package. Ogle took the package to a street intersection as instructed, while police watched, but no one turned up for the payoff.

The men lured Kenneth from his home on a ruse.

When they attempted to force him into their car, Kenneth, who is 5 feet 8 and weighs 125 pounds, fought them. Screams of his mother and a 15-year-old sister frightened the men away.

Police have made no arrests.

Guatemala to Oust Red Labor Leaders

GUATEMALA (AP)—Guatemala's anti-Communist junta took steps today to lop off the Communist leadership of the country's labor unions and give the rank and file a chance to choose leaders free of Red ties.

Guatemalan labor leaders, who have been conferring on the issue the past two days with AFL and CIO emissaries from the United States, have agreed to accept a government decree outlawing their executive and national committees.

Ruben Villatoro, 28-year-old labor leader who led the small band of anti-Communist workers during Arbenz' regime, was named chairman of the committee. Rodolfo Madrid, another anti-Communist, was named secretary.

The committee plans to hold elections within the next three months.

One Million Try to Stem Record Flood Waters

HONG KONG (AP)—Communist Radio Hupch at Hankow said today more than a million volunteers are working day and night to stem flood waters of the Han and Yangtze Rivers in Hupch Province.

The radio said the flood disaster was "far over all previous historical records."

Will Try to Improve U. S. - British Bond

LONDON (AP)—Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express announced today it will set up study groups throughout Britain in an attempt to better this country's relations with the United States.

The Express has a circulation of more than four million. Much of the British press has recently voiced concern that relations with the United States have struck a new low, largely over differences in the two countries' views on relations with Communist China.

France produced about 60 million tons of coal in 1953—about what U. S. mines produced in two months.

Lathrup Mulls Fire Contract

Proposal by Southfield Board Would Provide Protection for 3 Years

LATHRUP VILLAGE — City Council members will consider tonight the proposed fire protection contract offered by the Southfield Township Board. The contract was approved by the Southfield board at its meeting last week.

Under the proposal, Lathrup would pay the township $15,000 for the May, 1953-May, 1954, period. A day-to-day charge of $45.42 would be made for the May 22, 1954-June 30, 1954, period.

Beginning July 1, 1954, and continuing through June 30, 1957, the charge would be based on an assessment of 2.7 mills per dollar of assessed valuation of buildings and personal property as equalized by Oakland County.

Use of hydrants would remain under township control, with all rules and laws pertaining to their operation in the township applying.

The proffered contract states that the township expects to make no profit on the arrangement.

1,042 Automotive Engineers report on NEW BLUE SUNOCO

1,042 automotive engineers tried the New Blue Sunoco in their own cars... compared it with other gasolines.

Of those who had formerly used premium-priced gasolines, 95% report New Blue Sunoco equals or excels those premium-priced gasolines for over-all performance. Yet New Blue Sunoco still sells at regular gasoline price.

PERHAPS no gasoline ever faced a tougher jury than the men who design and build America's cars. Following the introduction of New Blue Sunoco we invited these automotive engineers to try this new gasoline in their own cars. Then we asked them for their reactions. Of the original 1,384 who tried New Blue Sunoco, we received answers from 1,042. This is strong evidence of the great interest these men have in improvements in their field.

9 out of 10 say New Blue Sunoco equals or excels "Premiums" for power and pick-up

To us, a very significant group were those who had previously used a premium-priced gasoline. These engineers, many of whom drive high compression cars, were—and had every right to be—super-critical. They compared New Blue Sunoco, selling at regular gas price, with premium-priced brands costing up to 3¢ more per gallon. 93% said New Blue Sunoco equals or excels "premiums" for power and pick-up.

8 out of 10 say New Blue Sunoco equals or excels "Premiums" for Anti-Knock Performance

Of those who compared New Blue Sunoco against premium-priced brands, 80% said it was equal or superior to the "premiums" for anti-knock performance. These engineers, a cross-section of the automotive industry, are specialists on everything from spark plugs to high compression engines.

42% already users of Blue Sunoco

We were pleased, but not surprised, to discover that 42% of the engineers who answered our request for their opinions reported they were already users of Blue Sunoco. This was a far greater number than reported using all other premium gasolines combined.

High-Test at regular gas price

There's a good reason for the enviable record of New Blue Sunoco. Sun Oil Company produces only one grade of gasoline. This policy saves on storage tanks, trucks, pumps. These savings are invested in research and new improved refining processes which enable us to produce a gasoline with high anti-knock power especially designed for high compression engines and sell it at regular gas price.

That's why, if you have been instructed by your car dealer or owner's manual to use a "premium" (or "High-Test") gasoline, you can get it in New Blue Sunoco at regular gas price.

Follow the lead of automotive engineers, the men who know most about cars—use New Blue Sunoco in your car.

Hal Boyle Says:

Careless Smokers Destroy 9 Million Forest Acres

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Leaves from an oddy almanac:

It is only people who are mentally half-dead themselves who complain, "opportunity is dead."
Opportunity is timeless.

Take the case of Mrs. Annabelle McIntyre of Ligonier, Ind., who decided at 82 she ought to have a new hobby, and learned to make braided rugs. Ten years and 200 handmade rugs later she has turned her hobby into a tidy business, and at 92 she does her own shopping, cooking and housework, and is sturdily determined to go on doing these things "as long as I live." How many teen-age girls in your neighborhood are that independent?

Almanac Conservation Department: What smokers do to themselves is one thing, but what they do to the forests remains a national disgrace. Forest fires last year dropped to a record low but still 154,160 forest fires burned over 9 million acres, and more than one out of every seven fires were started by careless smokers.

Bet You Didn't Know That: one way to lose weight is to go to the Equator, because of slightly lowered gravity a man who weighs 190 pounds at the north pole will be a pound lighter at the equator.
The British have discovered a "paint of death" that will rid ships of cockroaches for as long as two years. Many schizophrenic (split personality) children often show a preference for toys that can be rotated or spun. But if that were the only test of a schizophrenic, every kid in town would have a split personality.

Time-Marches-On Dept: "Nothing ever changes," people say—in a world that is changing as swiftly as they are. But look back just 20 years at a few things the world lacked that are now commonplace:
Jet planes, nylon, television, penicillin. Our idea of a real old-timer is a guy who can remember when aspirin was a wonder drug.

Almanac Editorial: We have been informed by what we take to be a reliable source that the Sahara desert is creeping northward at the rate of 20 miles a year.
(Or maybe it is 20 miles every century—we have mislaid the clipping.)

In any event we demand to know what Congress intends to do about this creeping African menace. Are our statesmen asleep at the switch?
We pause for reply.

It's-A-Woman's-World Dept: The effort to relieve ladies from the strain of 20th century civilization never ceases. The latest feat of gallantry that has come to our attention involves a department store—Thalhimer Brothers, Inc., of Richmond, Va. It is now offering free showers to weary out-of-town lady shoppers.

The pipe industry also is courting millady with dozens of new feminine styled pipes. The one that fascinates us most is a long curved clay pipe, to be worn with lounging pajamas of a matching color, that is said to be ideal for puffing purposes while watching television.
Somehow we had never thought that watching television required any particular style of pipe, and intend ourselves to go right on puffing a cigar.

But the pipe tycoons aren't altogether forgetting the male trade.

They have come out with a new chirrester model for men with false or weak teeth. It has a specially curved stem that puts weight on the chin.

Of course, if you have a receding chin, as well as weak teeth, here is another smoking gadget on the market. It is called a cigarette.

In a single season one aphid multiplying with no deaths could produce progeny equal to the number 156 with 22 zeroes after it.

Addition Is Taxing

HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—One and one sometimes equal more than two. A glass of milk is tax free, as is a scoop of ice cream, but mix them together and you have a taxable milkshake.

Pledging, Installation Held at Haven Hill

It's May in July at Zonta Breakfast

By WILMA GREENWAY
Pontiac Zonta Club waited until yesterday morning to hold its May Breakfast, but new members who were welcomed into the group agreed that the club is "strictly on the beam" when it comes to planning "a perfect setting and a thoroughly interesting program" for the annual get-together.

The members met Sunday morning at Haven Hill Lodge, the former country estate of Edsel Ford now part of Highland State Recreation Area. Following breakfast, a nursing scholarship was awarded, new members were pledged and 1954 officers installed.

Vocal selections by Kenneth Ish, son of Zonta President Mrs. Adrian C. Ish, comprised the musical portion of the program. He was accompanied at the piano by Deanna Mielke of Watkins Lake.

Touring northern Michigan are Betty Lou Rendleman and Archiel Roy Jr. who were married Saturday evening in Grace Lutheran Church. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ruth Rendleman of Detroit and he is the son of A. J. Roy of Kimball street.

MRS. ARCHIELL JOSEPH ROY JR.

Rite Solemnized Saturday for Betty Lou Rendleman

Candles and white satin bows marked the pews and white gladioli graced the altar of Grace Lutheran Church Saturday evening when Betty Lou Rendleman became the bride of Archiel Joseph Roy Jr.

The bride, who resides on Peggy avenue, is the daughter of Mrs. Ruth Rendleman of Detroit and Archiel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Roy of Kimball street.

The Rev. Otto G. Schultz performed the 8 o'clock ceremony before 125 guests.

The bride, given in marriage by William Price, was wearing a floor-length gown of white nylon tulle. The gown was fashioned with an off-the-shoulder neckline and short sleeves. The bodice was trimmed with Chantilly lace.

A tiara trimmed with iridescent sequins in the shape of flowers and pearls secured her fingertip veil and she wore gauntlets of nylon tulle. She carried a white orchid with streamers fastened to a white prayerbook and her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls.

The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. B. E. Wyatt of Birmingham, was matron of honor wearing a lavender off-the-shoulder, ballerina-length gown of cotton voile in princess style.

Other attendants were Betty Felice and Dorothy Stayton of Orionville wearing gowns similar to the honor matron's in yellow and mint green, respectively. The attendants each wore white eyelet nylon gloves and a single strand of pearls. They carried bouquets of roses and fuchsia chrysanthemums in contrast with their gowns and wore matching headpieces.

B. E. Wyatt of Birmingham was his brother-in-law's best man and R. J. Parker and the bridegroom's brother, Charles Woodruff of Lansing, seated the guests.

The bride's mother wore a light gray dress with white accessories and an orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother chose a powder blue lace dress with pink accessories and an orchid corsage.

Following a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church, the new Mrs. Roy changed to a pink cord suit with white accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

After their honeymoon, the bridegroom will return to Boston where he is stationed with the United States Navy. The bride will return to Chicago in the fall for her senior year at Walther Memorial School of Nursing.

Barbara Zoch Reveals Plans for August Rite

Barbara Jo Zoch, who will speak her vows with Robert A. Bell Aug. 14 at First Congregational Church, was honored Thursday at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Lloyd Mayo and Mrs. Richard Radtke in Drayton Plains.

Barbara chose the occasion to announce their attendants. Shirley Whitney of Richmond, a roommate from Michigan State Normal College, will be maid of honor. Bridesmaids will include Marjorie Shell of Drayton Plains, Jayne Frank of Newcastles, Pa., and Mrs. Radtke of Clarkston.

Carol Moore, a cousin of the bride-elect, will be a junior bridesmaid and Mary Ellen Hollibaugh will be flower girl.

Attending the bridegroom will be Leo Wessinger of Highland Park. Ushers will include Robert Webb, Melvin Bernia of Ann Arbor and Charles Dawson of Detroit, and the bride's uncles, Alex and Gerald Rosin.

Guests at the shower were Kathy Shields, Mrs. Lynn Wyckoff, Mrs. Nancy DeWees, Mrs. Ben Bundo, Betty Clark, Nancy Upham, Mrs. Gordon Booker, Beverly Bugg, Mrs. Arthur Lawson, Mrs. Earl Lamberton, Mrs. Charlotte Adams and Shirley Taylor.

Others were Miss Shell, Betty Vaughan, Pat Boyer, Penny Mendez, Mrs. James Smith, Barbara White, Bonnie Miller, Mrs. Joyce Selberg, Phyllis Berry and Barbara's mother, Mrs. Sonya R. Zoch of Linabury drive. Robert is the son of the Robert D. Bells of Detroit.

Thelma Schlink Becomes Bride of Eugene C. Folk

St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church in Rochester was the setting for the Saturday evening wedding of Thelma Arlene Schlink and Eugene Charles Folk.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schlink of Devondale drive and he is the son of Mrs. Leroy Folk of Berwick, Pa., and the late Mr. Folk.

Arlene approached the altar wearing a gown of nylon tulle over satin. The gown, accented with lace insets, featured a cathedral-length train. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion net and carried a bouquet of orchids with shattered carnations on a white prayerbook.

An orchid net dress was worn by honor maid Inadel Anderson. Other attendants included Joann Hermann and Mary Parker of Auburn Heights and Sandra Scribner of Rochester, wearing mint green gowns. All attendants carried bouquets of yellow carnations.

Sally Tompkins, as flower girl, wore a yellow dress and carried a basket of flower petals.

The bridegroom's brother, Richard Folk, was best man. Seating the guests were Robert Folk of Berwick, Pa., another brother, Charles Miller of Auburn Heights and David Schlink, the bride's brother.

A pink lace dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses was worn by Mrs. Schlink for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Folk wore a beige dress with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

After a reception held in the home of her parents, the bride changed to a blue and white checked suit with the orchid from her bridal bouquet for a wedding trip to northern Michigan.

Shirley Craig of Milwaukee attended the bride as maid of honor and Nancy Howe and Anne Patterson of Birmingham were other attendants. They wore light blue organdy gowns and carried bouquets of blue and white delphinium and pink sweetheart roses.

Robert Kerns of Utica was best man for William and Steve Eggleston of Royal Oak and Richard BeGole of Bloomfield Hills seated the guests.

Requires very little care. You'll love its simplicity. Styled by all of Betty LeCornu's artists.

A scholarship award of $550 toward her first year's nursing tuition at the University of Michigan was presented to Connie Ann Davies of Spokane, Wash. Mrs. Russell Evans made the presentation. Miss Davies, who is a PHS June graduate, received the scholarship with a simply worded speech of gratitude.

Mrs. Homer Tinney introduced and pledged the nine new members and six others received into membership last December, and Mrs. Ish gave the address of welcome. New members are Mrs. Leland A. Clemence, Mrs. Irving Diem, Mrs. George Richman, Mrs. L. Raymond Sampson, Mrs. Hiram H. Smith, Mrs. Ruth Mills Kennedy, Emily Marion Holden, Florence Reuter and Mary Ellen Wyngarden.

December entrants welcomed Sunday were Mrs. Gerald Craig, Mrs. Norman DeBoe, Mrs. Harold Owen, Mrs. William Long (formerly Grace Olsen), Mrs. Robert Ewles and Mrs. Lois Ellis.

Zonta pins and talisman roses were presented to the newcomers. Harriett E. Ratliff explained the significance of the 25-year-old Pontiac club, describing it as "a worldwide service organization of business, executive and professional women pledged to perform acts of social welfare, especially among women and young girls." She called upon members to exercise honesty and trustworthiness, and to observe the Golden Rule which is part of the Zontian code.

Mary Ellen Wyngarden spoke for incoming members on the topic, "What Zonta Means to Me." Mrs. Harvey Lodge installed new officers, Mrs. Ish, president; Mrs. Owen, treasurer; Mrs. Ellis, recording secretary, and Mrs. Thomas Horwitz, corresponding secretary. Mrs. Charles Waite, first vice president, and Mrs. Edward Van-Tassel, second vice president, were unable to be present.

Press Readers to Learn Beauty Tips

Pontiac Press women readers will have a chance to become more beautiful at no expense! For starting Wednesday, the Pontiac Press will present an explicit, practical home beauty course by famed Anita Colby, the Nation's No. 1 beauty authority.

The course is designed for housewives, career girls, maids and matrons.

And, as Anita says, "I do not expect you to spend 24 hours a day on your beauty course. I know that like millions of American women, you may have to get in your makeup lesson while the baby is asleep, do your stretching exercises while the coffee's percolating, shampoo your hair when you get home from the office, or, do your spot exercises the last thing at night."

"But," she says, "if you will make yourself a daily schedule and follow it scrupulously through the four weeks of this course, get rid of your bad habits and replace them with good ones for these 28 days, you will look like — act like — feel like — a beauty."

No other woman is better equipped to write such an important series on beauty than Anita Colby. During her fabulous career as the nation's top cover girl, a motion picture actress, charm consultant, and writer on beauty and fashion, she has made a point of studying glamor and the factors that go to make it possible in every woman.

In Hollywood, she was feminine director for David O. Selznick, working with such stars as Jennifer Jones, Shirley Temple, Ingrid Bergman, Dorothy McGuire, Ann Todd, Rhonda Fleming and Valli. "Time" called her "Selznick's one-woman charm school."

"At Paramount I worked with Paulette Goddard, Barbara Stanley, Mona Freeman, Diana Lynn, Florence Mary and a wonderful group of starlets," she says. "And you can take it from me — perfect as they appear on the screen, each had their little problems."

"You don't need a face like Hedy Lamarr's or a Betty Grable figure to begin with. A helping hand (which this series gives you) and your own determination can do for you what it did for them."

"It has been my good fortune to learn these tricks and techniques in a career devoted to beauty. And now I'd like to pass them along to you."

"Whatever your problem, I can help, as these articles will prove. For here I've given you all you need for a lovelier, more charming, happier you."

The series starts Wednesday in the Pontiac Press.

How to Keep Pesky Ants Out of Home

By HUBBARD COBB

All ants have homes of their own. When you find ants in your home you can be sure that the ant doesn't want the place, all he or she is interested in is getting a little food from your kitchen or dining room floor.

Once more, he or she won't eat the food right there. The ant will take it back to the nest for the rest of the tribe.

In fact, the ant that brings a crumb from your kitchen back to the nest isn't even sure he'll get any of that crumb he's worked so hard to bring home.

Anyways, ants are a great nuisance and should be kept out of the kitchen.

Keeping all foodstuff in ant-proof containers helps but an ant is satisfied with so little that even a small particle of a crumb will make his visit to your kitchen worthwhile. And if you kill one ant there are usually plenty more to take his place.

The best way to get rid of ants is to try and follow one of the ants back to the nest and then eliminate the entire bunch by pouring a little boiling water down the nest.

If you can't locate the nest yourself, put some ant poison in the kitchen—the type that is carried back to the nest by the ant worker. This will eliminate a large group of ants, which is quicker than trying to get them one at a time.

Another remedy that often helps is to use a small piece of sugar or candy to attract a whole group of ants and then toss the candy, ants and all into boiling water or kerosene.

Speaking of kerosene, if you squirt this into the cracks in the woodwork that ants use as a means of entering the house, it will help to keep them away.

foreign extraction, but who speaks English perfectly well, has a habit of saying things to my husband in her native tongue.

"Whenever she does this I can't help but feel that she is talking about me or saying something that she doesn't want me to hear. I resent this very much and think she is very rude since she knows I do not understand her language. What is your advice?"

Answer: There is no reason for you to believe she is talking about you. It is merely a case of her being able to talk more easily in her own language.

If I were you I would do my best to learn the language as soon as possible. Although it will take some time to speak it well, you will be surprised how quickly you will be able to understand.

Dear Mrs. Post: Are grandparents ever their grandchild's godparents? My husband would like his grandmother and grandfather to be godparents to our first child. I never before have heard of this and do not think it suitable. What is your opinion?

Answer: It is really unsuitable because the object of godparents is to take the place of father and mother in spiritual guidance should they die before the child has been confirmed. The chances are the child will outlive his great-grandparents.

Dear Mrs. Post: When staying in someone's house, is it proper to come to the breakfast table with a bathrobe or housecoat over one's nightgown or pajamas, or must one be fully dressed?

Housewife Absorbed in Creative Projects

"I have a hobby which I thought your readers might like hearing about," a young woman writes from New Jersey. "I don't make any money out of it, but it has made my whole life far more exciting."

"I've always loved the theater, and, as a child, wrote plays."

"After I left school, I was working hard in my job; then I married and had two babies, and there was no time for it."

"But now, with the kids in kindergarten and nursery school, I've taken it up in a big way, and you have no idea how much it has done for me."

"I've always been interested in people and how they tick, and sometimes after seeing a play or a movie, I'd have a vague feeling that it wasn't very good, or very exciting, but I couldn't put my finger on the reason."

"I started to write a play of my own, and found that it wasn't very good either."

"Then I got hold of a wonderful book called 'The Art of Dramatic Writing.'"

"It's all about characterization and motives, and how to bring your characters to life. The author feels that the characters make the play, and that if they are properly figured out, all is well."

"It isn't a little how to book at all, but a sound, philosophical treatment of human motivation. The chapter on conflict is especially interesting."

"Well, I simply devoured the book, and have read it many times since. It helped me tremendously with my play, but it has done more than that."

"It has greatly increased my understanding of people, made me find out many more things about them than I ever did, and made my personal relationships much happier."

"And it has doubled my pleasure in plays and movies and television dramas. I really know now why one is good and another is not, and it makes life so much more interesting."

"There's also a good chapter on 'How to Market Your Play,' and a whole section in which the author analyzes plays that have been successful."

"I know I'm not yet ready to think in terms of finding a market for my plays, but I bet in the long run I will! In the meantime, it's wonderful to have a project that absorbs me and heightens my awareness of life in general."

"My friends, who have no such interest, seem so tired and irritable with the housework and the children, but I get a big kick out of everything, because of my absorbing hobby."

If you, as a homemaker, get tired and irritable, maybe it isn't overwork. Maybe it's your lack of a real enthusiasm.

Matrimony for profit is one career in which women, far from being discriminated against, seem to have everything their own way. I mean, of course, the females who marry millionaires in order to collect.

Manners MAKE FRIENDS

When friends are together, there is nothing wrong with a silence now and then. Some people—particularly women—think it is necessary to talk continually.

Talking when you haven't anything to say may seem necessary when with strangers, but should not when you are with friends.

One of the pleasures of old age is looking back on the people you didn't marry.

Tot's Will Begins to Clash With Mother's Authority

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

One lunchtime when Philip was about 10 months old, his mother left him to get his dish of applesauce. She returned to find him drinking from his milk mug in contented self-service.

She rushed to him with cries of tenderness and pride. Snuggling kisses into his neck, she said, "Oh, what a big boy! Drinking his milk all by himself! Just wait till Daddy hears what a great big boy he has."

She gave this same admiring wonder to him the day he first used a spoon. And the morning she discovered him teetering on his own feet beside the piano bench, she couldn't contain her delight.

She telephoned his Grandma—and that evening when Philip took his first tentative step from the piano bench to his mother's waiting arms, Daddy and Grandma added their admiring wonder to hers.

Not long after, however, Philip's mother began to withdraw her admiring wonder from him. For his efforts to help himself were no longer limited to his crib, tray and playpen.

While she found it easy to approve his desire to satisfy his thirst for milk, she found his desires to satisfy his curiosity about lamp cords, ashtrays and sewing baskets very inconvenient.

When his newly found dexterity carried Philip to the sewing basket and its fascinating contents, she did not rush to him with cries of tenderness and pride. Instead, she rushed at him with sharp ones: "No, no, leave it alone. Don't touch!"

Thus, toddlerhood ushered in a most confusing experience to Philip.

For of course he could see no difference between lifting his milk mug to his mouth and reaching for mother's sewing basket. It shocked him to receive sharpness from the person from whom he'd learned to expect admiring wonder.

This inconsistency of response to his efforts to serve himself so scared and angered Philip that he began to defy his mother. He would push and kick at her when she removed her property from him.

My own feeling is that a baby's first step initiates a most critical period of childhood. His new power of locomotion inevitably involves him in collisions with us.

These clashes introduce him to authority that cannot always support his impulses to action. How gently we remove him from the sewing baskets, lamp cords and ashtray may well determine our child's later acceptance and trust of our controls.

It establishes his expectations of understanding or the refusal to understand.

Girl Blows Top Without Just Cause

2nd Apology Might Restore Friendship

By ELIZABETH WOODWARD

"Dear Miss Woodward: I've been going almost steady with Jackie since last March. Two weeks ago I had to babysit so I asked him over to keep me company."

"He said he couldn't come because he had to go to a cousin's birthday party. It happened that I didn't have to babysit, after all, so my girl friend and I went to the drugstore and there we found Jackie."

"I asked him about the party and he said it had been called off and added that he'd only said he might go to it."

He said he'd try to get away from the boys he was with and join us, and I told him not to bother and not to bother phoning me any more because I didn't believe him and didn't want to talk to him.

"When I found out later that he had told me the truth, I phoned him and apologized and we were friends again."

"Now I see him every night at the drugstore and he ignores me. His friends say he likes me as much as ever but his attitude doesn't prove it. How can I break the ice and regain his interest without chasing him?"

Jackie will have to get over the unpleasant memories of the very starchy performance you put on before he'll thaw out. Another apology from you might help the process along. And your apology had better go further than the matter of not believing him.

You let your disappointment show for one thing. You were so miffed that you were ready to pick a quarrel with him on the slightest pretext.

Instead of questioning his excuse, you should have accepted it at face value. That would have kept you from all the ruckus about not wanting to see him any more. Such words are always hard to take back—but that's what you'll have to do.

But the drugstore's no place to get this thing patched up. Too much audience. See if you can't coax him to leave with you so you can talk the thing over in private.

Eating very humble pie won't give you permanent indigestion!

"Dear Miss Woodward: I have been going with Bill for 11 months; recently it was steady. But I broke off with him when I found out he was writing to one of my best friends."

"The letters concerned a boy she was going with, I think. Do you think I was wrong and should I ask for an explanation, or what?"

It's too late to ask for any explanations. You didn't wait to find out anything, just blew your top. But you're sorry, and you might as well say so.

Admit that you were upset over something that might not even be true—something that may have a perfectly logical explanation. But whatever and however, you are sorry you broke off—and how about it?

Girl Blows Top Without Just Cause

2nd Apology Might Restore Friendship

By ELIZABETH WOODWARD

"Dear Miss Woodward: I've been going almost steady with Jackie since last March. Two weeks ago I had to babysit so I asked him over to keep me company."

"He said he couldn't come because he had to go to a cousin's birthday party. It happened that I didn't have to babysit, after all, so my girl friend and I went to the drugstore and there we found Jackie."

"I asked him about the party and he said it had been called off and added that he'd only said he might go to it."

He said he'd try to get away from the boys he was with and join us, and I told him not to bother and not to bother phoning me any more because I didn't believe him and didn't want to talk to him.

"When I found out later that he had told me the truth, I phoned him and apologized and we were friends again."

"Now I see him every night at the drugstore and he ignores me. His friends say he likes me as much as ever but his attitude doesn't prove it. How can I break the ice and regain his interest without chasing him?"

Jackie will have to get over the unpleasant memories of the very starchy performance you put on before he'll thaw out. Another apology from you might help the process along. And your apology had better go further than the matter of not believing him.

You let your disappointment show for one thing. You were so miffed that you were ready to pick a quarrel with him on the slightest pretext.

Instead of questioning his excuse, you should have accepted it at face value. That would have kept you from all the ruckus about not wanting to see him any more. Such words are always hard to take back—but that's what you'll have to do.

But the drugstore's no place to get this thing patched up. Too much audience. See if you can't coax him to leave with you so you can talk the thing over in private.

Eating very humble pie won't give you permanent indigestion!

"Dear Miss Woodward: I have been going with Bill for 11 months; recently it was steady. But I broke off with him when I found out he was writing to one of my best friends."

"The letters concerned a boy she was going with, I think. Do you think I was wrong and should I ask for an explanation, or what?"

It's too late to ask for any explanations. You didn't wait to find out anything, just blew your top. But you're sorry, and you might as well say so.

Admit that you were upset over something that might not even be true—something that may have a perfectly logical explanation. But whatever and however, you are sorry you broke off—and how about it?

Men will eventually take care of this situation if women don't. And they might do such a thorough job of it that there would be no chance of fair treatment for the misused young wife with small children or the deserted older one who has helped build up community property and ought to be protected.

The shirt-tail pajamas at left are made with a gay multi-color dot on solid ground and solid chambray. They're fun for lounging or sleeping and shed wrinkles.

City Camp Fire Girls Are Winding Up Their Summer Day Program

"It won't be long now," hungry campers are assured by Magdalen Daily of Berkley avenue (left, above) and Shirley Brindley of Dick avenue as they take their turn at the reflector oven. Just plain beachcombing is fun for (left to right, below) Patty Schuster of Osmun street, Mary Jo Freeman of South Marshall street, Janet Knapp of Doris road and Carol Purch of First avenue.

Site Near Clarkston Greatly Improved

A private lake and 120 acres of land near Clarkston have taken a big step toward becoming a children's paradise as the final week of day camp for the Pontiac Council of Camp Fire Girls begins.

Last year 70 girls participated in the three-week day camp program operated for the first time on the newly purchased campsite. This year, with more facilities and growing interest, 140 girls started their camping on July 6 and will close with their council fire on Thursday.

Camp officials point out that the number of campers is not the only sign of growth. In June the Kiwanis Club built another cabin. What was once a densely wooded lakefront is now becoming a fine sand beach, thanks to the Civitan Club and Dr. Clarence Wills and Felix Anderson of the beach development committee of the club.

As for activities, Bluebirds find there's nothing more fun than building sand castles on that new beach, and when one tires of that, there's time for finger painting and spatter painting. Natural materials can be used for so many creative projects, according to the girls.

Being in the out-of-doors all day is enough to make anyone twice as hungry as usual. Just try hiking through fields and woods while studying the flowers and birds about you, chopping wood and playing group games if you don't think so. Appetites really grow, making biscuits and gingerbread baked on a reflector oven taste better than ever.

Leaders, as well as children, gain a great deal from the camp experience. It's fun for them to work with the children, to relax outdoors and make new friends. Without their time and efforts, the camp program could not succeed.

A big "thank you" this season goes to Mrs. Charles Schreiber, Mrs. Rita Turner, Mrs. William Graves, Mrs. Reon K. Baldwin, Mrs. Evergrace Seay, Mrs. Edward Simpson, Mrs. Dorena Lyons and Mrs. Earl Luchenbach. Others are Mrs. Edmund Hadden, Mrs. Timothy Daily, Mrs. Paul Bennett, Mrs. F. L. Eastman, Mrs. Michael Koren, Peggy Humphries, Mrs. Alta Hogg and Mrs. Buddy McBride.

Shaggy Styles Are Out

Fall Hairdos Previewed

A preview of the new fall and winter hair styles for fashion-conscious women has been revealed by Mrs. Harry Randall, a member of the official hair fashion committee of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

These experts attended the association's 34th annual convention in Los Angeles recently.

"The Italian boy cut and other shaggy hairdos falling over the face are really out," explains Mrs. Randall. "The temple line is the high line with hair away from the face, covering the ears from the back instead of a line movement from the front."

The new style features a flatter tip, resembling a plateau, which might have many variations with the trend. The flatness of the back of the head is to be more feminine.

From Heat to BaksheeshIndia Has More Problems Than a Cat Chasing Mice

By ROBERT W. BROWN

India has less than half the area of the United States and more than twice its population; only two seasons — hot and torrid — and more problems than a one-legged cat in a mousery.

A visit there will disabuse you of many misconceptions, but you are likely to leave even more confused. You will have the strange feeling that everything you had read of India was untrue, and that also it didn't tell you the half of it.

Americans and Europeans there have a popular saying, and all of them are likely to say it to you: "When in India three days, you want to write a book about it; three weeks, you decide you don't know enough about the subject; three years, it's too late."

My impressions of this strange land may differ from those of others because I (1) was never victimized by a dacoit or pilder (2) didn't contract even a "touch" of any of several common agonizing ailments and didn't permit the "baksheesh" nuisance to bother me — too much.

In a hotel in Bangalore, the management hangs a card in your room reading:

"Warning: Please do not leave your room, even for short periods, unlocked. Bangalore is infested with cadgers who make off with any article within reach of an open door."

While I was there the newspapers reported a Massachusetts school teacher's claim that she had been robbed of $8,000 in gems and cash during the night on an Indian train.

Accounts of dacoits swooping on a village and making off with valuables are not unusual. And a police official in Calcutta disclosed his concern over a steep increase among the larcenously inclined thereabouts.

But I didn't lose a single rupee through theft or dishonesty — not counting those extracted by the bargainners in the bazaars and the ubiquitous and insistent fortune tellers — and for all I know all Indians are as honest as the days are hot.

The visitor is cautioned not to drink water or eat fresh vegetables, else risk the ailment which is said to set up the fear (1) that you are going to die and (2) the fear that you are not.

Milk also is suspect, not for the product itself, but for the water that likely was added somewhere along the way.

The tourist, however, will stay at a comfortable, not to say luxurious, hotel that will be found in all of the major cities. Here the water has been boiled and the source and history of vegetables and milk known to and endorsed by the management.

On the average, the hotel accommodations will include a bed-sitting room only slightly smaller than a hangar, a dressing room and a bathroom sometimes large enough for a square dance, for those who wouldn't mind dancing in a bathroom.

The size and loft of the rooms make more and more sense as the day gets hotter.

The hotel food is served in abundance and usually is tasty. Meat will be served at every meal, contrary to what the visitor might have expected, and except in the legally dry states alcoholic beverages may be had.

There are two menus — European and Indian. It is recommended that the latter be approached cautiously, unless one has had experience with it before or has an asbestos-coated palate.

Occasionally, it will be evident that the chef forgot to tear a page off the calendar and everything will taste like mutton. If the cooking fat hasn't been changed, the fish will taste like sheep dip.

The beds will be small in width and length and the "mattress" an unyielding pad no thicker than your Sunday newspaper, without the comics and magazine section.

Usually, there will be an old-fashioned mosquito net which might not be ornamental but is of unquestioned utility.

All in all, the accommodations in the large cities will be satisfactory. But never leave your hotel room door unlocked, else a "bearer" will awaken you at 6 a.m. for a cup of tea you don't want, and again at 6:30 for a shoeshine you don't need.

The baksheesh problem is something else. Step out of your hotel and you are surrounded by an alleged fortune teller who knows of wonderful things about to occur, several small fry rubbing their tummies and pointing to their mouths, a woman or two whose babies are said to be starving and numerous other free lance beggars with special and sometimes unique approaches.

A shoeshine boy, his service refused, will assure you that the shine is on him because he likes your looks. But if the shine is taken you don't get away free: He wants no pay for his work, but shouldn't you give him a little baksheesh?

In Bombay it is against the law not to beg, but to give to a beggar. The law is not enforced, as meritorious as it is.

A young man in Calcutta informed me that I should give him baksheesh and offered to let me inspect a couple of textbooks he held, to prove that he was a student and not a beggar.

"Why should I give you anything?" I inquired.

"Because," he answered, "you are rich."

PICNIC JAM — Shown above is part of the 30,000 persons who jammed Walled Lake Park Saturday for General Motors Truck and Coach Division's annual family picnic. This marks the 18th year the family affair has been presented by GM. One of the features of the affair was the recently completed Greyhound Scenicruiser which was on display with the division's other products.

CONTENTED — Enjoying his share of the 2½ tons of ice cream distributed at the picnic is the young son of Henry Cooper, GMC Engine Division employee. The youngsters, who helped consume 36,000 servings of ice cream, also enjoyed free rides on the park's amusements.

HOBBY DISPLAY — An elaborate display of skin diving equipment was exhibited by GMC Truck and Coach employees Charles Dill and Fred Draneier in the hobby show.

PLENTY FOR ALL — First in line for ice cream are Gary Whitehead, son of Earl Whitehead of the Truck division, and Gary's brothers, Ronnie and Buddie, and sister, Delores.

FAMILY PICNIC — Taking time out for a picnic dinner are the William Proffitt family and Howard Ewin family. Proffitt is a maintenance employee and Ewin works in the coach division.

WHATT A WHOPPER — This was Paul Gaber's exclamation as he measured the foot of a contestant before the men's foot race. This was part of the new feature "Sportorama" which saw men and youths taking part in various athletic feats such as track events, basketball and shot putting.

DISPLAYS PETS — Amos and Andy, Ken Crisp's pet raccoons, perch on his shoulder during the hobby show. Ken also brought two fox, peacocks, doves and a woodchuck. Other hobbies on display at the park roller rink included wood carving, radio controlled model airplanes, oil paintings, black light art, ceramics, floral arrangements, photography displays and many others. The day-long picnic also featured rides, golf chipping, horseshoes and other contests of skill. Officials stated that 36,000 servings of ice cream were consumed.

TRUCK DISPLAY — Two professional models, on hand to enhance the truck exhibit, look over a GMC Suburban parked in the outdoor display area.

Donors Aid Bleeding Boy

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Townfolk formed a blood brigade today to save the life of 6-year-old Eddie Phillips, who has been bleeding steadily since his tonsils were removed 13 days ago. His unnamed disease, a certain deficiency in the blood, prevents the blood from clotting. He needs fresh blood and direct transfusions. Stored blood will not do. This industrial city of 34,000 in southwest Ohio has responded with hundreds of offers of transfusions. More than 40 pints of blood have been pumped into the youngster already. Eddie's physician said the boy was in critical condition but his spirits were good. The bleeding is centered in the throat and a tube has been inserted below it to allow him to take in oxygen.

Iran Rejects Objections of Reds to Alliances

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Iran has firmly rejected Soviet objections to her joining U. S.-sponsored military alliances. In a blunt note, the Iranians told the Kremlin they have sovereign right to take any measures necessary to safeguard Iran's "security, defense, independence and integrity."

Foreign Minister Abolmohammad Ezzat delivered the memorandum yesterday to Soviet Ambassador Anatoli Lavrentiev. After receiving it, the red-faced Russian swept angrily out of the office, brushed reporters aside and drove off without comment.

Lost Emerson Poem Now Published

HANOVER, N. H. (UP)—A long-lost and forgotten poem written 132 years ago by Ralph Waldo Emerson has been published for the first time by the Friends of Dartmouth Library.

The poem, "Indian Superstition," is subject to critical analysis by Kenneth W. Cameron, assistant professor of English at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.

The poem is published in a limited edition of 450 copies.

According to Professor Cameron, it opens up an early and previously unexplored chapter in the life of Emerson. It was written while the poet was a 17-year-old Harvard undergraduate.

The poem, which was once believed lost, is owned by a private book collector in New York City.

Prepare Film of Delinquent Stradivarius

By DOROTHY MANNERS
HOLLYWOOD (INS)—The case of the stolen $50,000 Stradivarius, and its recovery by an insurance firm, which made sensational headlines a few weeks ago, is to be filmed.

Ramon Romero has acquired the screen rights from violinist Elliot Fisher who figured as the owner of the fabulous fiddle—and here's something:

If Romero's current negotiations with Ralph Bellamy go through as expected, handsome Ralph—long AWOL from Hollywood—will play the role of the insurance adjuster.

Using actual and factual records out of the files of the adventurous cloak-and-dagger chase of the insurance man on the trail of the valuable Stradivarius, it is planned as a real cops and robbers melodrama with a background of classical music.

Ursula Thiess retiring to be just Mrs. Bob Taylor? Not this season, chillun.

The bride, via another loanout from RKO, stays at Universal-International to star in "The Cult of the Serpent," which is just what it sounds like—a horror thriller, only more so.

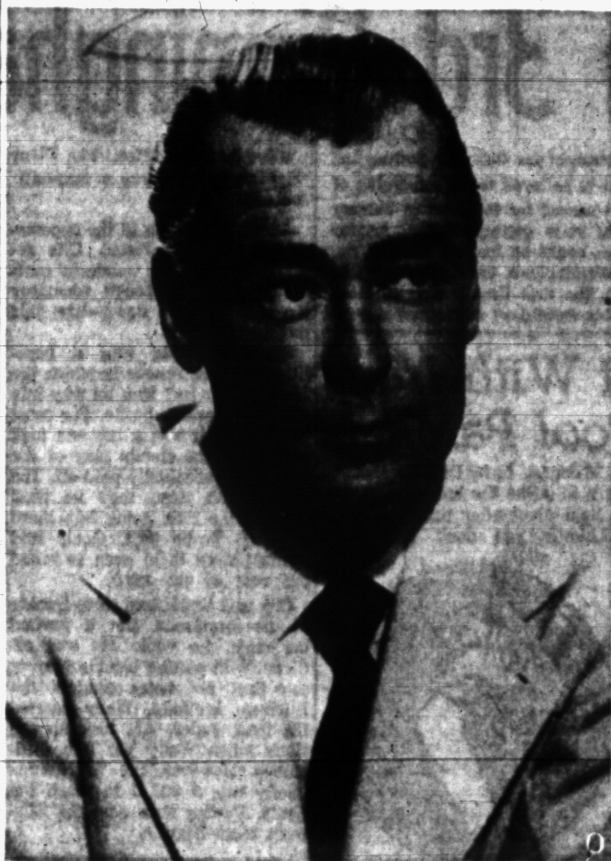

It's about a high priestess of a modern cult with the power to turn herself into a serpent—a cobra—and her trek to the USA to do in some local infidels for their sacrileges against her "faith."

William Alland, who has produced a lot of money-makers of this type for U-I, handles the Thiess film, which follows her recently completed "Bengal Brigade" for the same studio.

All day tomorrow the test stage on "The Frogdial" will be closed to visitors because Missy Lana Turner is doing the $15,000 goddess of love gown for the first time for camera tests to see if it's too naked for the censors!

Those who have had a fitting-room peek report Lana's love gown makes the dress worn by Marlene Dietrich in Las Vegas look like a cover-all.

Transparent on top (except for a few opals and semi-precious beads scattered here and there), the entire skirt is encrusted with vidid, flashing jewels. Lana has shed 20 pounds, and I hear what she doesn't do to this gown just can't be done!

P.S. Only producer Charlie Schnee and the cameramen will be present for the tests!

Hollywood in Shorts: Byron Palmer has been offered the Chicago or London run of "Pajama Game" by Freddie Brisson and Freddie couldn't get himself a better guy or a better singer.

Latest budget figure on "A Star Is Born" is five million dollars!

And that does seem to be about as sensible a solution as possible for Donna Lee Hickey May Wynn, who has the distinction of being the only woman principal in one of Hollywood's big pictures of the year, "The Caine Mutiny."

It's like this.

Donna Lee Hickey, a New York product, was perhaps the best known of all the showgirls of the famous lines at the Copacabana night club.

She stayed there two and a half years, gaining experience—and saving her money. She had a goal—Hollywood.

"Oh, I had a lot of screen test offers while I was at the club," she said, "but that sort of test seldom ever pans out. They're given to a lot of attractive girls just because they're attractive and might get a long shot bid from a studio."

"They're never given with anything definite in view. I felt that the only thing to do was to get to Hollywood and try it from that end. So I saved up $4,000 and went out in August 1951."

In less than six months she had a contract with a studio that paid her for a year and did little else for her. She got free of that when she thought she had a good chance to get an important role in Columbia's "From Here to Eternity."

"She studied hard, but the part was given to another. However, Columbia moguls were impressed with her beauty and talent, and it wasn't too long afterwards that she was the lucky girl among scores who coveted the role in "The Caine Mutiny."

"The name of the character in the movie is May Wynn," Donna (or May) said, "and when there was some studio dissatisfaction expressed about my real name, I asked if I could change it to May Wynn. No one objected, so I did."

No Blackout Curtains in Future Emergencies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The blackout curtains that became a costly and cumbersome fixture in many American homes during World War II will be abandoned in any future emergency.

Military and civil defense officials announced Saturday night that window shades and venetian blinds will do an adequate job of controlling "sky glow" in the event of enemy attack.

Has Bad Time but Climbs Up

Herb Patterson Plays Golden Windows' Hero, Daytime Serial

NEW YORK — The young man rang the doorbell and the housewife opened the door. "Madam," the young man began, "I am selling brushes and . . ."

"Oh, no you're not," the lady said emphatically.

"Yes, I am," the young man said firmly. "I'm new to the territory, but I assure you, it is my territory."

"Oh, no you're not," the lady insisted. "I saw you in a play last night."

Such are the tribulations in the life of a young actor . . . and the young actor of the above story, Herb Patterson, who is playing Tom Anderson, the hero of the TV daytime serial Golden Windows, is thankful for all of them.

Patterson's Golden Window role is his first daytime serial. But he has a wealth of experience in the theater, movies, radio and television.

Born in Stockton, Calif., Jan. 3, 1922, Patterson attended a dramatic school in Hollywood on a scholarship. When he finished, he made a movie, Ten Gentlemen From West Point in 1942 and then proceeded East to make his fortune.

After the war, he toured with the Theater Guild production of Merry Wives of Windsor.

When it closed, he found himself jobless, and went to work outside the theater as a trainee at an advertising agency. By 1948, he was an assistant copywriter . . . and then the agency lost its biggest account, and with it went Patterson's services.

Returning to New York in 1950, his star began to shine. Since then, he has played in almost every major television drama and appeared in stock in his spare time.

Single, Patterson lives in Manhattan with his two cats—prize short-haired domestics.

Mackinac Gets New Monument

Beaumont Memorial Gift Dedicated to Pioneer Medical Researcher

MACKINAC ISLAND — Another monument now stands among the many honoring the pioneer days of historic Mackinac Island.

The Beaumont Memorial, a replica of a fur trading post where a wilderness physician won medical world fame, was dedicated Saturday and presented as a gift to the state.

The ceremony honoring the early medical researcher also brought first public word of a possible advancement in treating an ailment centuries old—epilepsy.

Dr. Leonard Scheele, surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service and principal speaker at the dedication, said a new substance known as glutamine gives promise of correcting deficiencies found in the brain in epilepsy.

The new agent was developed by scientists at the National Institute of Health.

The memorial is in recognition of the work of Dr. William Beaumont, Army physician at Fort Mackinac. A trapper, wounded in the stomach by gunfire, came to him for treatment. The hole refused to close. Through it Dr. Beaumont made studies which form the basis for what now is known of the digestive process.

The replica of the trading post contains many mementoes of Beaumont's day. It is stocked with original manuscripts and journals, many in Beaumont's own hand.

The gift of the memorial to the state was made by Dr. L. W. Hull of Detroit, president of the Michigan State Medical Society. It was accepted by W. F. Doyle, resident commissioner of the Mackinac Island state park commission.

Lengthy Closing Faces Congress

Fear Disputes Over Ike's Housing, Farm, Atomic and Tax Programs

WASHINGTON — Plans for congressional leaders to wind up the present session within two weeks today faced a threat of foundering on four disputed items in President Eisenhower's program: tax and Atomic Energy Act revision, housing and farm programs.

A belief was growing that it might require at least a week of August to clear the decks for adjournment which would free members to concentrate on the election campaign.

The Senate spent four long days last week debating the administration bill to revise the Atomic Energy Act. It was called back two hours early today with the end not yet in sight.

The major issue: Should Congress act to cancel an Eisenhower directive for the Atomic Energy Commission to contract with a private utility group for power in the Tennessee Valley Authority area. A small band of Democrats, with the support of several Republicans, is leading a fight for such a move.

A tax revision bill which Eisenhower calls the keystone of his program is still in a conference committee. The group made remarkable progress last week in resolving differences, but the knot issue remains. It involves proposed tax reductions to be given shareholders on their dividends from stock.

Chairman Aiken (R-Vt.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee announced last night he will seek Senate approval of a compromise farm bill which would authorize flexible price supports between 80 and 90 per cent of parity.

Only two years ago the Soviet government finally published a Moscow telephone directory.

The cutoff was ordered when citizens were found watering their lawns despite an ordinance prohibiting it.

The city was without water from 1 to 4 p.m.

"It's going to be unpopular," said Mayor Virgil Goodman. "But if that's what it takes, we're going to do it."

The magnet for the world's most powerful atom smasher at the Brookhaven laboratory of the Atomic Energy Commission contains 2,500 tons of steel.

French Mop Up Guerrilla Base

In Another Action, 215 Rebels Are Killed While Attacking Gunners

HANOI, Indochina (AP) — Some 5,000 French Union troops, spearheaded by tanks, pushed mopup operations today against a Viet-minh guerrilla base only 18 miles northwest of Hanoi. The French reported 28 rebels killed and 13 captured in the push, which met only slight opposition.

A spokesman said 215 rebels were killed early yesterday when a rebel battalion charged into French tanks, machine gun and rifle fire north Hung Yen while attacking a small village.

French gunners had been expecting the attack. They opened fire when the rebels were less than 10 yards away, forcing the enemy to flee.

French losses were described as "very light."

Night-flying B26 bombers raged the northern and southwestern borders of the Red River delta last night, pounding Vietminh bases and ammunition dumps.

A French spokesman said more than 70 tons of explosives were unloaded on bases stretching from Yen Bay, 75 miles northwest of Hanoi, to Phun Hoquan, 45 miles south of Hanoi, and on a string of small munition dumps between Tuyen Quang and Thai Nguyen, 50 miles northwest of the war capital.

Trees Need Nitrogen

KENT, Ohio (INS)—Trees should be given special tree food high in nitrogen content in late winter or early spring, just before active growth begins, advises Martin L. Davey, Jr., tree expert. This provides added vim and vigor and richer foliage in the days ahead.
