Hopes Riding on Surveyor Soft-Landing System

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor 1, streaking toward a landing on the moon tomorrow morning, carries not only a camera but this nation's hopes of making the first touchdown gentle enough for men to survive.

Surveyor is due to settle on a broad equatorial plain at 1:17 a.m. EST and begin radioing pictures which will help scientists pick the safest areas for Apollo astronaut landings later in this decade.

If everything works, Surveyor will fire retro-rockets to break its approach speed from 6,100 miles an hour to 3½ miles an hour, then drop gently the final 14 feet with less impact than a parachute feels on earth.

The Soviet Union's ball-shaped Luna 9, which radioed the first pictures from the lunar surface last Feb. 3, apparently was ejected from a carrier vehicle at a height of several hundred feet.

"Information and pictures recently released in Moscow indicate the fall probably would have been fatal to an unprotected human," said Dr. Thomas Vrebalovich of Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which is guiding Surveyor on its quarter-million-mile flight.

Dr. Vrebalovich, a Surveyor project scientist, said in an interview that the Luna 9 technique was similar to one abandoned by the U.S. space agency years ago.

He referred to the early Ranger shots, originally planned to drop instruments imbedded in balsa wood balls just before they crashed into the moon.

The balls later were left off the spacecraft to allow more room for television cameras which radiated back history's first close-ups of the moon as they plunged to destruction.

The Soviets have never disclosed just how Luna 9 was landed, but Dr. Vrebalovich said it was obvious the 200-pound ball carried no retro-rockets.

Monitoring of Soviet signals indicated that the carrier vehicle fired a retro-rocket about 40 miles above the lunar surface and shortly afterwards ejected the crushproof ball, which popped open on impact and started a camera, he said.

The 2,200-pound Surveyor, however, carries both cameras and retro-rockets on its spindly three-legged frame.

County Dems Hear Senate Candidates

By JIM LONG

The Oakland County Democratic Committee last night voted officially against endorsing any of the three party candidates for U.S. senator, but it was clear that members unofficially support former Gov. G. Mennen Williams.

Williams, his major opponent Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh, and admitted underdog James L. Elmsman, a Birmingham attorney, appeared before the committee to discuss issues.

County Democratic Chairman George Googasian called the meeting after receiving a request from Cavanagh in March for endorsement from the committee.

Elmsman did not seek endorsement, and Williams, according to Googasian, simply said "The committee should do what's best for Oakland County."

As expected, the committee decided to follow its traditional, noncommittal policy in a primary and voted 51 to 22 to continue its stand.

But if there was any doubt about who they favored, it disappeared when the committee voted 51 to 22 to continue its stand.

June Makes Debut With Sunny Skies

June breezed in with skies sunny even if the weatherman said temperatures tumbling again into the 30s.

The mercury registered 39 at 5 a.m. today, equaling the record for the same date in 1910.

Fair and not so cool with lows near 49 is tonight's forecast. Generally fair and warmer with highs 70 to 76 is tomorrow's prediction.

At 2 p.m. the thermometer reading was 64.

Kresge Hospital Gift Hailed

Announcement is made today of a $100,000 contribution to the St. Joseph Hospital drive by the Kresge Foundation. General Chairman Elliott M. Estes asserted that the committee was especially happy to announce this large gift in the light of the success that has greeted the drive in general.

"The Kresge Foundation has been very liberal in this area," declared the general chairman, "and we especially appreciate its support and good will. With this section of Michigan growing as rapidly as it is, providing enough additional hospital service is a very difficult and costly problem."

"St. Joseph Mercy has been making a major effort to face the issues squarely and we are gratified at the response on the part of the local residents and organizations. The Kresge people are loyal citizens."

City Businessmen Urged to Boost Downtown Area

Pontiac business leaders were urged to band together to stimulate the downtown area yesterday by John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors Corp. vice president and general manager of Pontiac Motor Division.

The advice was offered by DeLorean in a speech before 350 persons attending an interservice club luncheon at the Pontiac Elks Temple.

DeLorean was introduced by Harold A. Fitzgerald, publisher of The Pontiac Press.

"We are not the model community we should be," said DeLorean.

"Pontiac has everything going for it — full employment, an extremely high average family income, and GM pays much of the taxes — but in spite of this I think you would agree it does not have the appeal it should have."

CHANGE IMAGE

The city, he said, could change its image through aggressive action, much like Pontiac Motor executives did for the Pontiac car ten years ago.

DeLorean credited former Pontiac general manager Semon Knudsen, with making the Pontiac a prestige car with youthful appeal.

Other major cities have undergone successful transformations, DeLorean said, and Pontiac could do the same, with little trouble if its master plan was implemented.

"To get the job done, however, petty bickering and minor differences of opinion must be eliminated," he added.

"My business experience tells me that it's better to get behind a good program and get the job done, even if it isn't 100 per cent your own way, than waste time arguing about some slight difference and lose the whole thing."

The program needs leadership from the business community because the City Commission cannot and should not have to do the whole job, said DeLorean.

"Hopefully, the chamber of commerce could supply this leadership."

"In every successful program of this nature in the country, a small group of businessmen rose as leaders to organize, push and implement the program," said DeLorean.

"Who are these giants in Pontiac?"

City Tax Bills Expected to Rise

Pontiac taxpayers will likely pay $1.20 more per $1,000 of assessed property value this year over 1965 in city, school and community college taxes.

The city tax rate has dropped 12 cents per $1,000 of assessed value from 1965, while the combined school rate has been hiked $1.32 per $1,000 assessed value.

City Assessor James E. Kephart last night unveiled the probable 1966 tax rate in a report to the City Commission.

Kephart said the rate was tentative until final figures were submitted by the Pontiac School Board.

Kephart estimated the combined tax rate this year would total $45.90 per $1,000 assessed value, compared to $44.70 last year—an increase of $1.20.

Thus, the owner of a home assessed at $5,000 will pay $46 more in taxes this year than in 1965. The total bill will jump from last year's $223.50 to $229.50 on the same house.

The 1966 increase is still less than the jump last year of $1.14 per $1,000 assessed value.

down on the tax rate for last year and the current year will be mailed with each taxpayer's bill.

The Pontiac District tax rate increase is about $1.30 per $1,000, according to Kephart.

Meantime, the community college tax rate has increased two cents per $1,000 assessed value from last year's $1.25 levy.

FINAL FIGURE

Kephart reported last night that Pontiac's total equalized value had been finalized at $401,047,416—an increase of $14, 731,768 over 1965, but $5 million under the total tax base estimated for the 1966 budget.

The total drop in city taxes results primarily from taking off the increase in the waste collection tax, used last year to finance purchase of a sanitary land-fill site.

GENERAL FUND

An increase in the city's 1966 equalizing factor increased the charter-limited general fund levy by 17 cents per $1,000 assessed value from last year's $12.56 levy.

City Housing Plan OK'd

Plans for the construction of public housing units for Pontiac senior citizens moved a giant step forward yesterday.

City officials received word that Pontiac has been approved for 250 units of public housing designed for the elderly.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. said the Public Housing Administration has reserved the units for Pontiac and the next step would be to apply for a planning grant.

City officials have estimated the planning funds would total $42,500.

Taylor said the federal government would supply the grant application documents.

However, he indicated the city's 1966 workable program for community improvement must be certified before the city receives any federal aid.

After being returned by regional officers of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the workable program was re-submitted April 6 with six to eight weeks the time estimated to secure the program's approval.

In the interim, city officials were to report any progress made in conjunction with the workable program.

City officials indicated last night that the workable program, which must be recertified annually, has just about cleared the regional office of HUD and would then be sent to Washington for final approval.

Securing federal approval for 250 apartment units does not mean the city would build that many. City officials said the request for 250 units was made with the full expectation that federal authorities would cut it by as much as 100 units.

The proposed senior citizen housing would be public housing paid for by the federal government.

Riots Continue; More Sacrifices Threatened

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Viet Nam's military government and its Buddhist opponents agreed today on a temporary formula for a political compromise.

Buddhist splinter groups, however, continued rioting, and there were threats of further human sacrifices.

After two meetings with representatives of the Buddhist United Church, the regime agreed to add 10 civilians to the existing 10-man military directorate.

"Unruly crowds in the Buddhist Institute roared protests about the compromise, and 20 monks and nuns were prevented from setting themselves afire."

The militant branch of Viet Nam's Buddhism was clearly divided. Their division easily could hamper the efforts to solve the nation's explosive crisis.

TARGET DATE

June 5 was set as the target date for the formation of the new body, which would elect its chairman the following day.

The present chairman of the directorate is Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, the chief of state. Maj. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky is premier.

It is their leadership that would be at stake in the enlarged National Leadership Council.

Rampaging student mobs had sacked and burned the deserted U.S. Consulate, and at least three other buildings in the rebellious Buddhist stronghold of Hue.

Guildsmen in NY Favor News Union

NEW YORK (UPI)—A group of New York Newspaper Guild members, "disgusted" by the 38-day newspaper strike, called yesterday for the formation of a new union to represent the interests of editorial personnel.

An announcement of plans to form the union claimed that 75 per cent of the editorial workers on New York papers backed the idea "before we even start."

Representatives of the striking guild and the World Journal Tribune Inc. met again yesterday to discuss the number of jobs to be exempt from union jurisdiction in the newly merged newspaper firm.

An organizing group of seven, including columnists Dick Schaap and Jimmy Breslin and cartoonist Walt Kelly, called a meeting to set up a union "which will stop out and get reporters some real money instead of shutting down papers over the right of two typists in accounting."

"Editorial people want to work on newspapers, not have them shut down while the guild negotiates ways for phone clerks to leave the business," the announcement said. "We look forward to the future when editorial people will withdraw from the guild."

Exec Is Named by Red Cross

Kenneth A. Winter has been named manager of the Oakland regional office of the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American National Red Cross.

Winter's appointment, effective today, was announced by chapter chairman Sylvester F. Leahy of Orchard Lake.

The regional office is located at 118 Franklin Blvd.

Leahy noted Winter has been a field representative in the chapter's downriver office for several years.

Winter has been on a number of national disaster assignments including the 1963 Kentucky-Virginia floods, Chesapeake-Towamoc tornado of 1964 and two months on duty in Louisiana following disastrous Hurricane Betsy in 1965.

He succeeds Donald M. Miller who joined the Pontiac United Fund staff this week as an associate director in charge of UF campaign activities.

Gemini 9 Fight Put Off 2 Days

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The hard-luck Gemini 9 flight was postponed two days today because of last-minute problems that prevented the Titan 2 rocket from being launched.

The space had been rescheduled for 8:39 a.m. EST Friday.

The flight was called off at 11:40 a.m. as the astronauts, Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene A. Cernan, waited out the countdown while sealed in their cramped Gemini 9 spacecraft atop a nine-story-tall Titan 2 rocket.

The target satellite which the astronauts were to chase across the sky had been fired into space at 10 a.m. from another launching pad 6,000 feet away.

"I just can't believe it," said Cernan, 32, a space rookie disappointed for the second straight time in his goal to take the longest space walk in history.

HINT OF TROUBLE

There also was a hint of trouble with the target satellite, even though it had entered a near-perfect circular orbit. Ground stations were unable to confirm that a shroud covering the docking collar had fallen away as planned.

If the shroud did not come off, the astronauts will not be able to link up with the target but will be able to carry out rendezvous missions.

Until they get within eyesight of the target, they will not know whether the shroud is off.

The guidance problem in the Gemini 9 spacecraft was not discovered until less than two minutes before it was to blast off on a three-day mission.

SUDDEN HALT

The countdown on the Titan 2 proceeded smoothly down to 1 minute, 40 seconds before liftoff. Then a hold was called, and the count was recycled to 3 minutes and holding when a new signal was rejected by a computer in the spacecraft.

The guidance signal was designed to adjust the computer so that it would steer the Titan 2 into the proper path to begin the pursuit of the target.

The count was resumed twice in the hope of sending the signal through, but each time it was rejected.

MADE DECISION

When it became apparent the condition could not be corrected in time, Mission Director William C. Schneider called the launch off for two days. The reason is that the target satellite will not be in position for a pursuit until Friday morning.

REACH VIEL ACCORD

For Stafford and Cernan it was the second postponement in 15 days. On July 17, their flight was scrubbed when an Agena target satellite failed to go into orbit.

For Stafford, it was the fifth trip up to a spacecraft cabin to wait a launch and the fourth time he had been frustrated.

HAPPY EARLY

Earlier, when test conductor Len Schirra informed the astronauts in the spacecraft of the successful orbit of the target, Stafford said: "Good show, Len."

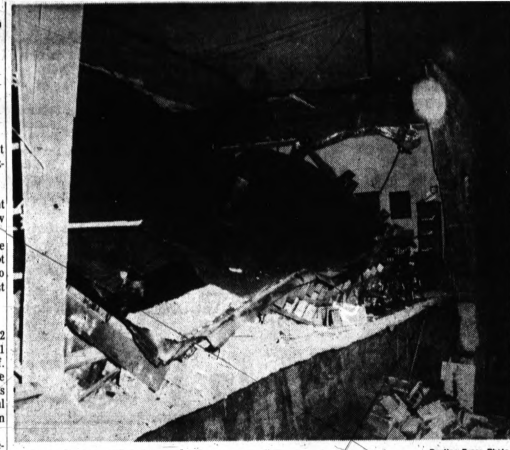

Schirra replied: "We knew if you stuck there long enough we would get you a good one."

After an on-time launch of the target ship at 10 a.m. EST, a light blinked on, indicating that the shroud had separated as planned with the cutoff of the Atlas booster engines. The light should have remained on, but blinked out shortly afterward.

LOST TARGET

The Gemini 6 flight plan of Stafford and astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. was postponed last night when the Agena target exploded in space.

On Dec. 12 another attempt to launch Gemini 6 was wiped out when the Titan 2 engines misfired. Three days later Gemini 6 took off and executed the rendezvous with Gemini 7.

BUILDING COLLAPSES — Contractors for the Davidson Dress Shop being built in Birmingham are still confused as to why this building next door, Clyde E. Hornung Shoe Store, 245 Pierce, collapsed into the new basement at 7 p.m. last night. The amount of damage was undetermined today as workers continued to sift through the wreckage. No one was in the building when it collapsed.

City Issue on Ballot; 2nd Due More Study

unlucky crowd of about 500 youths burned an effigy of President Johnson. The flaming paper figure was left in the middle of the street.

In the institute's muddy compound, 20 monks and nuns poured gasoline over each other and threatened to burn themselves to death, as five Buddhists have done since last Saturday.

Other monks pulled them away and emptied the rest of the gasoline from the containers into the ground. A loudspeaker in the main pagoda beamed appeals for calm and an end to self-sacrifice.

Girl Stops Sneezing After Three Weeks

ANN ARBOR (AP)—Twelve-year-old Carol Ryckman has stopped sneezing.

For nearly three weeks, the sixth-grader sneezed day after day. At first the sneezes came one every 10 seconds, then increased to three every five seconds.

Carol was taken to the University of Michigan Hospital by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ryckman of Southfield. But doctors could not immediately diagnose the problem. Mrs. Ryckman says doctors have not told her why the sneezing spell came on or whether Carol might start again, but the girl is expected to leave the hospital this week.

City Issue on Ballot; 2nd Due More Study

Commissioners were critical of the local bench for not "communicating" with them.

The commission did approve a ballot proposal to ask voters to amend the City Charter to permit "full-time elected officials" to come under the city's pension plan.

Municipal Judges Cecil B. McCallum and Maurice E. Finnegan, both reelected to six-year terms this spring, are the city's only full-time elected officials.

City officials were unable to state what the cost would be if the judges joined the pension plan retroactive to their respective starting dates.

PLANS MEETING

In reference to the proposed third municipal judge, Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. said he would attempt to set up a meeting with both judges and the commission.

"It's unfortunate but communication is not too speedy," added Taylor, "this letter came in May 25 and we've seen it tonight for the first time."

City Manager Joseph A. Warren claimed the communication from the judges arrived at City Hall two hours after a story on the "imperative" need for a third judge appeared in The Pontiac Press.

Commissioner Leslie H. Hudson said the judges' proposal should be given full consideration, but that he was interested in the "other minor" changes the letter alluded to.

Commissioner Robert C. Irwin, meantime, suggested that practicing attorneys be consulted on what changes should be made in the operation of the municipal bench.

The municipal judges claimed the addition of a third judge would not cost the city anything and, in fact, could be paid for with an increase in filing fees and added court revenue.

They estimated $8,000 to $9,000 civil cases that should be heard by the local bench are now heard in justice courts in nearby townships.

Moon Treaty Prospect Good

U. S. Is Optimistic Soviets Will Agree

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON — U.S. officials said today the prospects for negotiating a treaty with the Soviet Union to ban use of the moon and other heavenly bodies for military purposes appear to be good — in spite of tension between Moscow and Washington over the Viet Nam war.

The two countries are in agreement on the need for such a treaty, which also would provide for international cooperation in exploring the moon and other celestial bodies.

President Johnson had proposed May 7 that the United Nations should start early discussions of a moon treaty. The Soviet Union had seemed to be a legal proposal to U.N. Secretary General U. Thant Monday. It was disclosed in New York Tuesday by Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko.

WELCOMES CALL

The Johnson administration welcomed the Soviet call for action and said the subject is so important that work on it should begin "without delay."

In the first comment here on the Fedorenko disclosure, White House deputy press secretary Robert H. Fleming said: "It appears to support the stand taken by the President in the May 7 statement."

A State Department spokesman said "we are encouraged by the apparently affirmative interest shown by the Soviet government in President Johnson's proposal. We believe that work on a celestial bodies treaty should begin without delay, and it is for that reason that we asked for an early meeting of the United Nations Outer Space Committee."

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey added: "We note that the Soviet letter to the secretary general speaks of having this put on the agenda of the General Assembly next fall. We see no reason to wait until then to begin this important work."

Birmingham Area News

Leaders Join in Airing of Downtown Problems

BIRMINGHAM — Problems connected with improving and promoting Birmingham's downtown business district were discussed by business and government leaders here last night.

City commissioners adjourned their public meeting, early in order to attend the session at the Baldwin Public Library.

There they held a three-hour informal conversation with 40 to 50 merchants.

Aim of the meeting was to open a channel of effective communications between the commission and business community, according to Mayor Robert W. Page.

Heading the list of topics were traffic control and parking, the two perennial problems of merchants and their neighbors.

FIRST IN SERIES

Page said he hoped last night's session would be the first in a series of meetings with all interested groups — "residents as well as merchants."

The mayor, earlier in the evening, had been taken to task in the commission chambers on his recent appointment of a committee to promote commercial development in downtown Birmingham.

Commissioner Mrs. Ruth McNamee said she thought commercial development more properly was the concern of the chamber of commerce.

The commission should have been given the opportunity to vote on establishment of the committee, she said.

NO OBLIGATION

Page said the committee had no official relationship to the commission and that its formation implied "no obligation on the part of the city."

The mayor criticized "commissioners who have not taken the time to keep themselves fully informed on competition in this city."

Commissioner Carl Ingraham said there have been "several items in the last year we have learned of after they are pretty well-established fact."

Ingraham said he would lead no more commission meetings not open to the public.

Page said today he thought last night's session with the merchants had "cleared the air" in the commission disagreement.

Press Publisher to Be Honored

Pontiac Press Publisher Harold A. Fitzgerald will be honored for civic leadership at the 18th Anniversary of the State of Israel testimonial dinner June 12, at Congregation B'nai Israel.

The State of Israel Bond Issue, whose Pontiac committee is sponsoring the dinner, is the central source of investment capital for Israel's program of economic development.

Proceeds from the sale of Israel bonds make possible the building of homes, growth of industry and agriculture, construction of roads, harbors and railways, increase of electric power, and exploitation of natural resources.

Elm Cohen, humorist and vocalist, will appear as guest entertainer.

Cohen presents a program finding its origins in both American and Yiddish culture. Tickets for the dinner are still available.

City Druggist Found Guilty

Convicted for Illegal Prescription Pill Sale

Pontiac pharmacist Louis Pongiat was convicted by a Municipal Court jury yesterday on a charge of illegally dispensing a prescription drug.

The guilty verdict came after 30 minutes of deliberation and ended a three-day trial before Judge Cecil B. McCallum.

Finegold, owner of Lou's Drugs & Hardware, 493 S. Sanford, is to be sentenced Monday. Conviction on the charge, a state law misdemeanor, carries up to 90 days in jail and $500 fine.

Finegold was arrested April 2 on a warrant charging him with selling prescription tablets — later determined to be penicillin — to a police informer who had no prescription.

The informer, Samuel Adams, of 173 Elm, testified during the trial that he obtained the tablets Feb. 21 by walking into the store and asking Finegold for "some pills."

May Brought Flowers, Frost

Bouquets and a big boutonniere to the weatherman for May!

Having given us ample showers in April, he fulfilled the rest of the rhyme with a May brimful of flowers.

But he nearly ruined it with some unseasonably cold weather and a frosty night.

The low of 27 degrees was recorded May 10, compared to a low of 42 degrees for May of 1965.

The high last month was 83 degrees, a full five degrees below the high for May 1965.

BELOW AVERAGE

The mean temperature for May was $3.5. This is 2.6 degrees below the normal average for the month. Last year, the mean temperature for May was 62.9 degrees.

The ingredient which opened the buds was sunshine — plenty of it.

There were only seven days on which the sun failed to make an appearance.

RAINFALL

Most of the rain — 1.2 inches fell on May 11. Other recordable rainfalls were May 12, 17, 18 and 20.

On three of these occasions, the showers waited until afternoon or night before dampening outdoor plans and spirits.

May was a good month for hanging out the wash, airing the bedding and the like—for winds were prevalent.

All of the traditional Monday washdays were sunny to some extent, with gusts of wind thrown in for good measure on most.

CLOUDY ON WEEKENDS

Weekends did not fare so well. Although it never actually rained on a Saturday or Sunday, four of the seven cloudy days for the month were during weekends.

Pontiac was able to get through another month without a tornado alert. Although none made an appearance last year, there was an alert May 28.

factor to the revitalization of downtown Pontiac is a regional enclosed shopping center now being considered by a land developer, Alfred Taubman.

DeLorean said that recently he had visited a shopping center developed by Taubman near San Francisco, "and I must say that I was particularly impressed by the magnificent center. It was one of the finest structures of this type that I've seen. It was well built and well planned."

If such a development becomes a reality in Pontiac, surrounding land values would increase, said DeLorean, and in time apartments would rise in downtown Pontiac.

"For the first time in many years, you would find families moving into Pontiac," he said.

SERVE AS MAGNET
"I am confident that if you decide to go ahead with such a project it will serve as a magnet. It will prove to be a most important stimulus."

DeLorean cautioned, however, that the shopping would serve only as a nucleus.

There should be a further revitalization, he said, based on "a strong coordinated program" that includes a civic center for cultural, social and educational activities, the planting of trees and shrubs, some simple rules to eliminate unsightly signs, posters and overhead lines and programs to provide low, medium, upper income and senior citizens housing.

"The shopping center will be the hub, but don't overlook all the other pieces which complete the transformation," said DeLorean. "I don't think you'll find downtown rejuvenation will be as difficult as it sounds."

DYNAMIC CHANGE
In addition to the local economy's strength, all of Oakland County is undergoing a dynamic change and growth," said DeLorean.

"Culturally our growth is even more dramatic — with several new colleges and, of course, Meadow Brook Festival which already has attained national fame."

"These dynamic population and cultural activities are like a boiling plasma looking for a nucleus and with the least effort, downtown Pontiac could become this center."

Suggestion Is Meant as a Flu Cure-All

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — While a mild influenza epidemic was making the rounds here, Rev. L. A. Felling, in his weekly bulletin to members of the Lutheran Memorial Church, gave what he thought was a good suggestion for remaining clear of the "flu bugs."

His recipe: "Avoid crowds — attend church."

Young Brothers Injured When Struck by Auto

Two Pontiac brothers remained in satisfactory condition today after being struck by an automobile last Thursday.

Willie Washington, 12, and his brother, Michael, 2 sons of J. C. Washington of 132 Elm, were injured when hit near the intersection of Paddock and Elm.

Pontiac police said the car apparently went out of control, striking a store front and careening into the two boys.

Composer Recovering

MOSCOW (UPI) — Composer Dmitri Shostakovich, 59, who suffered a heart attack in Leningrad yesterday is much improved, The Tass news agency reported today.

City to Seek 2 Storm Sewers

Pontiac will petition the Oakland County Drain Commissioner for the construction of two storm sewers at an estimated cost of nearly $400,000, according to City Commission action last night.

The commission agreed to petition for the storm drains as two additional neighborhood projects to help combat the city's estimated $30 million storm drain problem.

Petitioning the county drain commissioner would put the cost of the two new storm sewers to city residents on the county tax bill at an estimated ten cents per $1,000 assessed valuation on a 30-year bond issue.

City Engineer Joseph E. Nepling said the two drains would solve drainage problems in sections on the north and east sides of Pontiac.

Construction of a relief sewer in the area of the Grand Trunk Belt Line Railroad and Featherstone on the east side would cost an estimated $382,100, said Nepling.

The second project would give relief to street flooding along Brooklyn, both east and west of Baldwin. Further consideration could also be given to street improvements in the area once the storm line is in place.

The Featherstone sewer would resolve storm water flooding south of Mount Clemens on Kenilworth, Cameron and Emerson, according to the city engineer.

In addition, street improvements could be made once the storm water is taken care of, added Nepling.

The city engineer said the east side storm sewer would correct deficiencies in the existing storm drainage in Herring Hills Subdivision and provide an outlet for the area immediately north of the subdivision.

He said acreage north of the subdivision could then be developed.

Workers Picketing at Training School

LAPER — Off-duty workers were picketing the Laper State Home and Training School this morning to protest alleged poor working conditions and low wage rates.

Robert C. Grosvener, director of the State Employees Union, said the employees are protesting "undesirable working conditions, shortage of personnel, overloads of work, low wages and inadequate fringe benefit programs."

In addition to a wage increase, the employees want a four weeks of vacation after 20 years, time-and-a-half pay for overtime, 11 paid holidays instead of seven days and two hours, night work differentials, a reduction in the probation period and seniority rights with job classifications.

Dr. Anthony Abruzzo, medical superintendent of the home, said that to his knowledge only five or six of the home's 1,000 employees were picketing. He said there has been no work slowdown because of it.

"I'm in accord with the idea that there should be some wage adjustments," he said, "but I have no jurisdiction over it."

HARD TO RECRUIT

"It's hard to recruit attendants because of outside competition from industry."

"I wish them all the luck in the world," he added.

Dr. Abruzzo said negotiations have been going on with the Civil Service Commission and the State Health Department.

A special independent union representation election will also be held this week to determine a representative for collective bargaining.

Grosvener said that "through this method we hope to demonstrate once and for all that the employees do want to be represented by the union for the purpose of collective bargaining."

The Michigan Labor Mediation Board is barred from conducting a representative election at the hospital because of a lack of constitutional jurisdiction over classified state civil service employees.

Wixom Okays Lower Budget

WIXOM — The city council has approved a balanced budget of $220,244, a decrease of $28,718 from the present budget of $248,962.

The property tax levy will be 6.0373 plus three additional mills to finance a sewer program.

Present millage totals 7.038.

The additional levy will bring in $79,800, to be spent for engineering contracts, land acquisition and other sewer contract obligations.

The new budget also provides $25,000 for general land acquisition and $14,000 for a Department of Public Works garage.

A DECREASE

Operating allocations will decrease to $160,784 from the present levy of $183,295. Administrative salaries will total $20,200 compared to the present $15,632, with general operating expenses increasing to $27,350 from the present $19,900.

Police expenditures will increase to $37,140 from the present $33,688 while fire department expenditures will decrease slightly to $5,330 from the present $5,358.

Police salaries, which now total $18,850, will be raised to $18,700. Fire department salaries will decrease from the present $5,636 to $5,330.

OEO, Retailers Eye Jobs for Poor

Employment of low income persons will be the discussion topic at a June 9 meeting of officials of the Oakland County Commission on Economic Opportunity (OCEO) and a group of county retailers.

Employment prospects for high school dropouts and women will receive particular attention in the 3 to 4:30 p.m. session at Kingsley Inn.

Mrs. Yolande H. Chambers, vice president and personnel director for Federal Department Stores, will discuss, "Employing the Culturally Deprived."

The meeting also will include reports by Carl F. Ingraham and James M. McNeely, OCEO chairman and executive director respectively.

McNeely will discuss the supportive services the commission can offer through its opportunity centers in Pontiac and Royal Oak Township to aid the potential employee and the business man.

SOME SERVICES

The services include corrective medical and dental care, aptitude testing, individual and group counseling, remedial training and consultative services to employers.

McNeely said he believes that retailers will be willing to ease traditional entry requirements if these supportive services are available.

During the meeting, the commission staff will present a profile of the OCEO clients and their employment problems.

Alvin Davis, director of the Pontiac opportunity center, will comment on those served by the commission.

Alan E. Schwarz, president of Federal Department Stores, will open the meeting. A total of 30 leading retailers have been invited.

Fulbright's Views Make Dull News

During the life of our Republic but one public figure has worn the undisputed crown of the Great Dissenter. He was Justice OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES of the U. S. Supreme Court. He racked up his dissents against the Court's decisions invalidating state laws between 1905 and 1932. The Justice hit 43 for 171 in the dissent league.

But signs now point to an impressive challenger for the dissenter title in the person of Arkansas' Democrat Senator J. WILLIAM FULBRIGHT.

Whereas Holmes confined his dissenting to the legal area, Fulbright's scope is broader. He dissents to all fields; but his special dish of dissent is presidents and their policies.

The Senator, appointed to the Foreign Relations Committee, began criticizing American foreign policy with his maiden speech in the Senate in 1945.

When Republicans gained control of Congress the following year, Fulbright really shook up his colleagues when he suggested that President TRUMAN, who then had no vice president, should resign and appoint a Republican to the office.

Fulbright found nothing good about DWIGHT EISENHOWER's foreign policy and was less than enthusiastic about JOHN F. KENNEDY's.

But he has really unlimbered the guns of dissent on President Johnson. Now the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Fulbright has filled the air with attacks on U.S. foreign policy — with particular emphasis on our Viet Nam involvement.

There are a lot of things about LBJ and his works that don't move us to wild acclaim. But we think he is getting a bum rap when the chairman of one of the Government's most prestigious committees exerts himself to impede a course of action that right or wrong has the support not only of Congress but the majority of Americans.

Power Company Facing U.S. Short Circuit

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ruled in favor of the $257 million Mountain Sheep Dam to be built by the Pacific Northwest Power Company formed by four investor-owned, taxpaying power companies.

Instead of being a monument to tax-exemption, tax-subsidies, special privileges and political control, the venture would be a financial benefit to all taxpayers of the Nation. Its rates would, of course, be regulated by state and Federal agencies.

But a week after the decision, the project ran into a roadblock when public power groups, who had already delayed it by ten years, announced their intention to appeal the decision to the U. S. Supreme Court on the grounds that Federal laws give preference to public agencies where there is competition for dam sites. So, taxpayers beware!

We can't think of a worse time for the Federal government to add a further burden on the bent backs of taxpayers by seeking to build a tax-exempt power plant that taxpaying industry is ready to provide. Politicians who promote such projects serve only to increase the menacing national deficit.

Trend: Government by Census - Census by Mail

Come 1970, something new will be added to the duty of your friendly mailman—that of census taker. In urban areas, census forms will be mailed to residents. After completion, the forms will be returned by the same route.

For rural sections, the traditional "enumerators" will still be used, but even so, there should be a tremendous saving over the $45 million it cost in 1960 to send 170,000 temporary workers into the field. There will be no saving, however, in the cost of compiling the data and printing the statistics that amounted to $60 million for the last one count.

The Census Bureau is tooling up to deal with a 1970 population of more than 200 million, though a decreasing birth rate is foreseen. Indications also point to continued westward migration and a further decline in the rural population.

For Mr. Average Citizen who maybe thinks his identity is being swallowed in the vastness of the Federal establishment, census time offers a bit of reassurance. He really counts then.

Top Buddhists Let Little Guy Die

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — The extremist Buddhist leaders in Viet Nam stay away from the gasoline can themselves. It's the minor, unheard-of Buddhists who are committing suicide by setting themselves afire.

There can be no doubt that the reported suicides in the past few days were committed with the approval of the leadership. Unknown is this part of what happened: did these people volunteer to kill themselves or were they asked to?

These deaths, intended to force the overthrow of the military government led by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, are aimed at world opinion but particularly at American opinion. The United States has supported Ky's regime.

But such self-immolation by the Buddhists is based on a plea for pity — to see things the Buddhists' way and give them what they want — and not on an appeal to reason or what is right.

The hope is that the suicides will so horrify President Johnson and the American government — or so shame them before the world — that the United States will abandon Ky.

steps down and lets a civilian government take over.

Chau said "we will continue this struggle in the spirit of nonviolence of Buddhism." Asked if he considered suicide nonviolence, he said: "I see no contradiction, no contradiction whatsoever."

Then he committed a perfect contradiction.

This struggle between the Buddhists and Ky's government is political and not at all religious since Ky, a Buddhist himself, is not repressing or persecuting any religious group for religious reasons.

BRING IN RELIGION
But Chau said, "We Buddhists are not involved in a political struggle. We are defending our religion."

And Tri Quang, perhaps the most militant Buddhist leader, said there might be more suicides unless Johnson dropped his support of Ky. He talked after one of the burnings and, the New York Times reported, "was smiling impulsively."

In view of all this there can be no doubt that these suicides are not spontaneous acts by emotional individuals but are prearranged, with the blessing of the leaders, who let the minor people die to further their cause.

This is one of the most cruel, cold-blooded performances in history. It is extremism at its worst. Yet these same Buddhist leaders want a hand in running the government.

With Hat In Hand—Again!

U.N. Entry in Viet Only Answer

WASHINGTON — The United States has only one way out of the Viet Nam dilemma — only one way that is honorable and consistent with the unselfish effort to save a small nation from the loss of its independence. That way is through the United Nations.

The same principles which prompted the U.N. to send in their own auspices an allied army to repel aggression in Korea can be reaffirmed now.

What is blocking such a course? The answer is: A confident belief by the Communists — derived from reports of internal dissension in the United States — that if the war is prolonged this country will abjectly surrender.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk in a speech last Saturday at Williamsburg, Va., deplored the misconceptions that are being spread abroad about American policy. He added:

"The paramount issue of our time is whether or not the world is to be organized on the principles of freedom, peace and genuine co-existence sketched out in the preamble and articles one and two of the United Nations Charter. To that end, the American people have exerted large and unremitting efforts during the last 20 years."

Many people will wonder why the U.N. has not stepped in already to stop the war in Viet Nam. All sorts of excuses have been made by the secretary general. There was no hesitation, however, by the U.N. in helping out in Africa a few years ago or in intervening recently in the Rhodesian controversy.

PRIMARY FUNCTION

"Peace-keeping" has been heralded as one of the primary functions of the U.N. But today, while the principles are the same as they were when "peace-keeping" was carried on in the Congo, the situation in international politics is different.

The Communists now have lined up enough countries to block U.N. intervention. The free world is helplessly split.

Only by discussion and open criticism of the United Nations for its failure to solve the Viet Nam problem can any progress really be made.

The objective of such a crusade would be to secure acceptance of a plan whereby the U.N. would demand assurances from both Red China and the Soviet Union that they would cease their aid to the aggressors in North Viet Nam.

U.N. PLEDGE

If this were done, the U.N. could pledge itself to arrange for the withdrawal of American troops. The whole settlement could then be supervised under international auspices for an indefinite period.

This procedure has been followed many times in recent history, and it can be tried again if world opinion insists upon it.

The United States has an opportunity to mobilize the free world in order to utilize the U.N.'s "peace-keeping" powers in Viet Nam. (Copyright, 1966, Publishers Newspaper Syndicate)

They Can't Hold Candle to Jim Farley on Birthday

NEW YORK — People ... places ... things ...

Jim Farley is in great shape for a man of 78. At his birthday press conference the other day at the Waldorf the manager sent him in a three-tiered cake ablaze with 78 rather masculine-sized candles.

"Okay, Jim, blow 'em out," a group of photographers ordered. Jim blew them out, every last one of them. It was an effort that would have deflated the Graf Zeppelin.

About five minutes later a new crop of photographers arrived and expressed great chagrin over having missed the blowing-out picture. The candles were re-lighted and once more Jim obliged.

"Would you take it from the top for the newscasts," a motion picture fellow asked. His picture had been spoiled by a still-cameraman's head. Once again the merry blaze, the gargantuan "woosh" and semidarkness.

Jim thought he was finished, but the TV networks showed up about that time. All three of them.

Jim blew those 73 candles out six times. But his step was firm and his wind sound as he bounded out of the suite to pack for a business trip that will take him to Hawaii, New Zealand, Australia, the Philippines, Japan and back to Hawaii before June 18.

Robert McNamara isn't all slide rule, he proved in his commencement address at his daughter's school, Chatham College, Pittsburgh, Pa. He said, among other things:

"Children, today, are just too soft; they have bad manners, contempt for authority, disrespect for their elders; talk too much, and work too little.

"Rather than helping out around the house, they give everybody orders. They have not even the courtesy to stand up when their elders enter the room."

"They contradict their parents, monopolize the conversation in front of guests, have miserable table manners, a slovenly posture and they tyrannize their teachers."

The Secretary of Defense paused and added, happily, "That was written by Plato in the fifth century, B.C."

Believes Protest Letters Would Not Influence LBJ

I sincerely agree with the writer who hasn't met one person who thinks we should be in Viet Nam and asked that everyone in Pontiac who feels this way write to ask President Johnson to take our boys out of Viet Nam. I note that he was reluctant to sign his name just as many good Americans would be reluctant to sign their names to a letter of this nature to Johnson.

Because of the Gestapo-type government we have in power at present, we might have the FBI, the Un-American Activities Committee, etc. asking our friends, neighbors and relatives questions about us, trying to link us with the Communies.

No one tells President Johnson anything. He tells Congress, the American people and about seventy per cent of the rest of the world in foreign countries we support. We are like puppets on a string. If you voted for Johnson, you will have to suffer along with those of us who didn't, at least until the next election for President, when we hope the American people will open their eyes to the truth of what is really taking place.

Inquires About Prosecutor's Procedures

I had occasion recently to call on the Prosecutor's office to plead for someone to telephone a local Justice of the Peace for a delay on a case until we could find an attorney who would help an elderly gentleman on Social Security to collect a debt. The legal aid said they couldn't help and eight attorneys said either the case wasn't worthwhile or it would be hard to get judgment if defendant denied the debt. The Prosecutor's office said this was out of their line as they only handle criminal cases.

I know that a day or so prior to my call for help a certain assistant prosecutor was out for several hours in an official car on an appraisal for a Probate Court estate. Since when is appraising for Probate Court a criminal procedure?

Recently there was a letter in 'The Press' regarding construction of Pontiac Northern's senior lounge. It was signed by a student who was unaware of the great demands of our maintenance staff.

Our lounge was completed last Thursday and it beautifies our lobby. The News recently ran a vivid three-part feature entitled "Sexplosion on the Campus," by George Nobbe.

Described in detail were recent upsurges in various colleges of movements for absolute freedom of use of four-letter words, freedom of sex in all possible respects, freedom of use of even the most dangerous drugs by immature students without medical or other guidance, and so on and so forth. Heaven is our witness!

ness that The News never has been a puritanical or holier-than-thou newspaper. We believe in living and letting live, within limits of common sense, and in using plain English to express one's thoughts.

But these didoes on many a campus are something else again, as we see them. They seem to us to raise the highest important question: Who is learning what at these institutions which cost so much to keep going?

When more than 50 per cent of Hobart College's students boycott classes to show their disapproval of rules against gentlemen students keeping liquor and entertaining ladies in their (the gentlemen's) bedrooms, what happens to the boys' regular studies?

It seems a little early to conclude that the majority of U.S. colleges and universities and their students are going to hades in a hick.

But it does seem about time to ask that a lot of these institutions' management take a firm stand for providing education first in the halls of Ivy and things unconnected with education definitely second. And if police or the military or both have to be called on occasionally to help enforce this reform, we expect few complaints from the public, or even from a majority of college and university students.

Stalls Will House Safety Equipment

Bids on Hangar Addition Reported

A report on bids for an addition to a hangar at Pontiac Municipal Airport were received last night by the City Commission.

Alternate bids were received on a two-stall and three-stall addition to house airport safety and fire-fighting equipment.

The bids were taken last week by the State Department of Aeronautics.

The low bid for a two-stall addition was $37,333 by Leon Blachura of Pontiac with the city share to total $12,066 while the low bid for a three-stall addition was $48,073 by the same firm.

Federal participation has not yet been finally determined, according to City Manager Joseph A. Warren, but the federal government has indicated that it would provide funds for a share of the costs for two stalls. The city seeks three stalls.

50 PER CENT

Such projects are normally financed by 50 per cent federal funds, and 25 per cent each by the city and state.

Warren added that federal participation might be held up because of the city's failure to meet requirements in a 1962 contract for the purchase of land to be added to the airport site.

In still other business, the commission approved the sale of a vacant lot for $650 on the west side of Douglas, opposite the Pontiac Townhouse Apartment Cooperative, to be used as parking lot for the apartment tenants.

The commission last night approved the sale of a lot in the R44 urban renewal project. The lot is located north of the Dayton Tire Store on West Wide Track. The sale price was $9,500.

HEARING SET

A public hearing was set for June 21 on proposed commercial rezoning for a lot on the southeast side of Monticello east of 710 Monticello, near Oakland.

Two rezoning proposals were given final approval last night by the commission, while a third rezoning was denied.

The commission approved commercial and residential (R-3) rezoning for property bounded by Orchard Lake Avenue, the Airline Railroad, the Clinton River and Washington Park Subdivision. Residents protested letting traffic from the projected commercial-apartment development enter onto subdivision streets.

R-3 ZONING

The second rezoning proposal approved last night set R-3 zoning for property on the south side of Yale for 300 feet west of 37 Yale.

Creation of a parking district on land on the east side of Tasmania at Auburn was denied when the rezoning motion lost for lack of support.

After separate public hearings, the commission approved the preparation of special as-essment rolls for the construction of two water mains; one on the east side of Woodward from South Boulevard to a point about 450 feet south, and one on Pershing from Oakland to Durant.

In still other business, a proposal by Commissioner Robert C. Irwin was approved, calling for a study of the city's cost in workmen's compensation claims.

A 12-month comparative study is to be made on the present self-insurance basis and the cost of buying appropriate insurance.

To Committees

Commission Names 4

Four Pontiac residents last night were named to committees by the City Commission.

Daniel R. Veasey and F. Keith

Hills were reappointed to three-year terms on the City Planning Commission.

Veasey of 18 Illinois has served on the planning board since 1949, while Hills of 38 Newberry was first appointed in 1964.

Their new terms expire March 31, 1969.

In other appointments, Arthur Heaton, 74 Forest, was named to the Minority Group Housing Subcommittee of the Civic Improvement Advisory Committee.

INDEFINITE TERM

Heaton's appointment for an indefinite term was recommended by Mayor William H. Taylor Jr.

Frederick C. Smith of 463 Bloomfield was named last night to a four-year term on the board of the city's General Employees Retirement System.

He succeeds Clifford J. Offenberg who resigned.

State Tax Take Up 52nd Time

LANSING (AP)—State sales and use tax collections in May showed a gain over the same period one year ago for the 52nd consecutive month, reports Revenue Commissioner Clarence Lock.

The $56.07 million total for the month was an increase of $2.75 million over the month a year ago.

Lock said the rate of increase, down to 5.2 per cent, has slackened over the last few months.

Collections from motor vehicle sales were down $1.6 million for the month from last year.

LOSS OFFSET
"The tax from other than automobiles offset the loss, which indicates a continuation of an economy strong enough to take a temporary lull in auto sales in stride," Lock commented.

If the present trend continues, Lock said, sales and use tax collections for the fiscal year should be about $597 million compared to $537 million last fiscal year.

Fans Blow in Cornfields

URBANA, Ill. (AP)—University of Illinois researchers are trying to determine if fans in a cornfield will boost the harvest yield.

Last season, researchers turned the fans on when the corn tasseled and ran them day and night during the critical ear-filling period. No conclusions yet.

Present Estimates on Paving Projects

Engineer's estimates for six street paving projects with a total cost of more than $18,520 were presented to the City Commission last night.

Public hearings on each of the paving projects was set for June 14.

Construction of asphaltic paving on Cottage from East Boulevard to Clifford was estimated at $4,730 with the assessed cost $2,397 and the city's share $2,332. The cost for a 147-foot lot was put at $202.

The estimated cost of paving on Madison from Emerson to Kettering was presented at $1,540 with the assessed cost $620, the city share $919 and the cost for a 100-foot lot $230.

Paving for Spruce, Mount Clemens to Bigham, was estimated at $1,360 with the assessed cost $636, the city share $693 and the cost for a 100-foot lot $230.

Construction of paving on University, Walton to Colgate was put at $1,380 with an assessed cost of $636, the city share $743 and the cost for a 122-foot lot $112.

Estimated cost of paving on Linda Vista, Joslyn to the west line of the Pontiac Knolls Subdivision was estimated at $1,420 with an assessed cost of $575, the city share $844 and the cost for a 250-foot lot $575.

The engineer's estimate for pavement on Ariene, Madison to Perry, was $9,090 with an assessed cost of $2,438 and the city share $6,651.

The cost for a 500-foot lot was estimated at $1,150.

Farmland Revolution in Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenya is in the throes of an infant farming revolution which aims to put cash in the pockets of millions of Africans and restore productivity lost when the Africans took over European holdings.

Principal elements of the revolution are consolidation of small plots into farms that can be worked with greater efficiency, government credit and education of the Africans in modern techniques.

Nearly seven million of Kenya's nine million people live off the land. Farm products make up 62.5 per cent of Kenya's exports.

A recent survey showed that many African farmers worked their plots between 2½ and 4½ hours a day.

LAND WASTED

Because of traditional tribal systems of tenure, much of Kenya's arable land is divided into a patchwork of tiny, uneconomic plots. Land is wasted on unnecessary paths and borders. Isolated plots often are neglected.

To remedy this situation, the government is pressing a program of land consolidation — lumping all a farmer's holdings into one big plot — and legal registration of his property.

The government will negotiate a loan with the World Bank for re-lending to some 30,000 farmers. The money will be used to boost the output of dairy products, beef, cotton, peanuts, hybrid corn, beans, pineapples and potatoes.

The total yearly output of these 30,000 farms is currently estimated at $5.8 million. The credit program, together with supervision, is expected to increase that to $42 million.

NOW SETTLED

About 35,000 landless African families have been settled in areas formerly the exclusive preserve of Kenya's white settlers. Most of the Europeans' highly productive farms have been broken up into holdings of 25-35 acres.

The government acknowledges that the politically inspired take-over, financed by British loans, has not been an unqualified success.

Output from this land last year was substantially less than the 1961-62 production. The government expresses confidence that the trend eventually will be reversed.

On many farms, production is estimated at only 20 per cent of what it was.

A report blames inexperience of the new owners plus the fact that many sank all their savings into buying the farms, leaving little working capital to operate them.

American, British and West German experts are instructing the farmers how to get the best out of their land.

HEADS OR TAILS—Members of the Christian Flying Club (from left on the ground) Donald Kahler, secretary; Kenneth Wigton, president; and Keith Cadman, vice president, flip coins to decide who will accompany Frank Dils (left), treasurer, on the next trip up. The club's Cessna 150 has only two seats.

12 Members Like Flying Club

If all 12 members of the Christian Flying Club somehow squeezed into the club's lone airplane, a two-seat Cessna 150, the riveted seams would pop.

The plane is "community" property, owned in common by the club members.

Stationed at the county-owned Allen Airport in Orion Township, the airplane makes flying "cheaper by the dozen" for the club members.

After the initial outlay of $300 for a "share" in the airplane, a club member can fly for four hours a month for a cost of about $28. A monthly club meeting is included in the price.

As the price of hobbies goes, this is relatively cheap.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT

...and flying is something different that not many do," added Donald Kahler, 44, club secretary.

Started in 1958, the club members share only one common experience — flying, although the club's four officers all happen to work for GMC Truck & Coach Division.

For example, there is 20 years separating the balding head of Frank Dils, 46, and that of crew-cut Keith Cadman, 26, treasurer and vice president respectively.

However, they have a common feeling for the cab of their Cessna 150.

FLYING 23 YEARS
Dils, of course, has been at this flying business longer — 23 years, or an estimated 2,500 hours, while Cadman has logged 70 flying hours in about 3½ years.

Pleasure flying and short trips are the principal uses of the airplane.

The Cessna 150 is the third airplane for the eight-year-old club. It was acquired last November. The cost was about $6,000.

Of the club's 12 members, seven are accomplished pilots and five are students.

ONE GIRL

One club member is a 19-year-old girl, who inherited her brother's membership when he moved on to fly Navy jets.

Kenneth Wigton, 45, of 505 W. Third, Rochester, is club president. Wigton has logged about 225 flying hours. He has been flying since 1947.

Kahler of 2349 Colorado, Avon Township, claims 225 hours in three years.

Male Nurses Face Life as Draftees

KINGS PARK, N.Y. (AP) — What do you do when you're a 34-year-old male nurse with a wife and family and you suddenly find out you've been drafted?

That description happens to fit two Kings Park, Long Island men — who also happen to be lifelong friends — and they have different answers.

Calvin M. Cunningham says he'll leave his wife and three children in their home when he reports for induction July 8.

James J. Girvan and his wife plan to put their house up for rent and take their five children along with them.

NOT BITTER

Neither man is bitter about his forthcoming service. "It's my turn and I don't intend to burn my draft card in any sort of a protest," says Cunningham.

A Selective Service system spokesman said the call went out to draft male nurses because there weren't enough female nurses volunteering and "we can't draft women."

Girvan and Cunningham expect they'll receive eight weeks of orientation at an Army medical center in Texas before they're commissioned.

They are not expecting assignment to Viet Nam, they said, because "they'll probably send those who presently work as nurses first."

NOT NURSING NOW

Although Cunningham worked as a male nurse for two years, he is currently superintendent in a local water district. Girvan is assistant supervisor of nursing at Kings Park State Hospital.

Discovered Bones Reported Human

Negro Gets Dem Sheriff Bid

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The first Negro nominated for sheriff in Alabama since Reconstruction days held out a jubilant promise today of fair and efficient law enforcement.

Despite a split in the ranks of Negro voters, Lucius A. Amerson won the Democratic nomination in Macon County Tuesday in a runoff primary in which three other Negro candidates triumphed over white opponents.

In the remaining 22 white vs. Negro contests which highlighted an otherwise uneventful statewide party election, the Negro candidates went down to defeat, including one of the state's best known civil rights attorneys, Fred D. Gray.

Significantly, none of the eight Negroes who sought seats in the legislature was successful. Thus until there is a vacancy or until a new legislature is chosen in 1970, the state's lawmaking assembly will be composed of 141 white members.

GAVE UP JOB

Amerson, 32, a former postal employee who gave up his job to campaign for sheriff, faces possible Republican opposition in the November general election. But there appears to be little likelihood that another candidate would succeed where the incumbent sheriff, Harvey Sadler, failed.

Negroes, who until five years ago had difficulty registering in Macon County, now have a 2-1 margin which nominated Amerson for tax collector and Harold Webb, 67, a retired teacher, for a seat on the county governing body, the Board of Revenue.

The other successful candidate was the Rev. Peter Kirksey, 60, a civil rights leader in Macon County who ran for a place on the county school board.

BREAKTHROUGH

The breakthrough in the sheriff's race held out to the Negro nominees the prospect of authority never before entrusted to one of his race by Alabama voters. The sheriff is the chief law enforcement officer of the county.

Macon County, however, already had four Negro officials, elected two years ago, and Tuskegee has two Negroes on its City Council.

In Greene County, it was the first time a Negro was able to penetrate the traditional barrier of white political supremacy.

Negro candidates for sheriff and for other county offices ran behind white opponents in Bullock, Hale and Perry counties even though Negroes there also have a voting majority.

Victorious white officials generally attributed their success to the failure of newly registered Negro voters to turn out in full force or to join together in a bloc vote.

Bill Would End Toll on Big Mac

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to permit use of interstate highway funds to retire bonds used to finance construction of any toll bridge, tunnel or road on any part of the interstate system was introduced yesterday by Rep. Raymond Clevenger, D-Mich.

He said the bill, if passed, would allow Michigan to use interstate funds to free the Mackinac Bridge in Michigan.

"Congress must now provide additional funds to complete the planned interstate system," Clevenger said.

"My bill will permit the system to be a free system. There is no reason why the interstate system should be part toll and part free."

The Mackinac Bridge was opened to traffic in 1957. The cost was an estimated $100 million and most of the bonds are still outstanding, a Clevenger aide said.

Senate Dems Push 2 Laws to Hurt GOP in State Election

LANSING (AP) — Two Senate Democrats are pushing for a pair of election law changes that could hurt Republicans in November.

They tried their plans out for size Tuesday night, won a preliminary skirmish and then retreated to wait for a better opportunity in the closing two weeks of the Legislature.

Sen. Edward Robinson, D-Dearborn, wants the U.S. Senate race to head the ballot this year instead of the gubernatorial contest.

And Sen. Jerome Hart, D-Saginaw, wants to rule out use of any living person on political party vignettes which appear on ballots.

Bill to Halt Blue Cross Bias Is Dead

LANSING (AP) — A bill prohibiting Blue Cross from discriminating against podiatrists, hospitals or podiatrists (physicians of the foot) was killed, revived and buried in the House Tuesday.

The controversial measure fell three votes short of the necessary majority for passage. The vote was 33-34. It was later reconsidered and placed on the calendar for June 7—the second last day for action on Senate bills.

The move could swamp the bill in a last-minute rush; it also could give backers enough time to line up new support.

The bill would prohibit the hospital insurance plan from imposing "unlawful, unreasonable or discriminatory rules, regulations or restrictions on types of hospitals—medical, osteopathic or podiatric."

INTERFERENCE

The organization also would be prohibited from "interfering with the right of any hospital to grant or deny privileges to such physicians." The House earlier struck a provision making violations of the law a misdemeanor.

Rep. Robert Dingwell, D-Lansing, said the bill would cost Blue Cross subscribers $9 million a year.

Rep. Dale Kildee, D-Flint, called the $9 million figure "ridiculous — and you know it is."

Kildee said earlier only six Michigan hospitals now grant staff privileges to podiatrists "largely because of Blue Cross pressure."

RIVERTON, Wyo. (AP) — The Wyoming Beer wholesalers held a convention in Riverton recently.

A short time later, the Wyoming Alcoholic Anonymous decided to have a state conference in Riverton, of course.

OU Confab Set by Osteopaths

DOs From 3 States to Air Cancer Detection

Osteopathic physicians and surgeons from three states Saturday will attend a postgraduate conference at Oakland University.

Entitled "Cancer Detection in the Asymptomatic Patient," the conference will be sponsored by the Michigan College of Osteopathic Medicine (MCOM) and OU's Division of Continuing Education.

Delegates from Michigan, Indiana and Ohio will be welcomed at 9 a.m. by Dr. Stuart Harkness, professor of medicine and administrative dean for the osteopathic college which is to start its first classes in 1970.

Moderator for the morning session will be Dr. Clifford W. Harding, professor and chairman of OU's department of biology.

The afternoon program will be moderated by Dr. Myron S. Magen, MCOM professor of pediatrics.

FACULTY PARTICIPANTS

Other MCOM faculty members participating will include Dr. George E. Himes, professor of pathology; Dr. Donald W. Hendrickson, associate professor of pathology; Dr. Charles Karbo, associate professor of radiology; and Dr. Patricia Spurgeon, associate professor of pathology.

The one-day program has been approved by the American College of General Practitioners of Osteopathic Medicine and Surgery for four postgraduate credit hours.

The conference is designed to improve the individual physician's ability to detect malignant disease before it becomes symptom-producing and, possibly, when it is still curable.

Reservations and further information can be obtained by contacting OU's conference department.

4 Convicted in Congo Plot are Ordered Hanged

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Four ex-cabinet ministers convicted of plotting to overthrow the government and murder their president will be hanged in public tomorrow, it was announced today.

Last-minute appeals to save the lives of former Premier Evariste Kimba, ex-Defense Minister Jerome Anani and two lesser ministers apparently failed.

The official radio Leopoldville said tomorrow had been declared a public holiday and tens of thousands of persons were expected to cram the public square to watch the hanging.

The four plotters were found guilty yesterday at a circus-like public trial of planning to assassinate Lt. Gen. Joseph Mobutu and overthrow his government.

They were accused of receiving financial backing for their plot from two non-African foreign embassies here.

An assertion during the trial led from a nearby military camp as thousands of Congolese chanted in French, "Mort, Mort (Death, Death)."

The government did not say when the execution would take place, but the official radio station said on Monday before the trial that they possibly would be hanged in public.

Yesterday, the government ordered the expulsion of Alan Rens, first secretary at the Belgian Embassy, for alleged involvement in the plot.

The government's demand would leave.

that Rens leave the country within 24 hours marked another low point in the continuing anti-Belgian campaign of the official radio and the press during recent weeks.

It was not known when Rens would leave.

BERKLEY (UPI) — The Berkley City Council last night appointed William R. Judy, advertising executive and councilman, to the office of mayor to fill the unexpired term of Mayor George W. Kuhn.

A replacement for Judy on the City Council will be named later this month.

Adventists Get Training for Military

GRAND LEDGE (AP) — More than 200 young Seventh Day Adventist men, including one who walked about 135 miles from Ludington, began training Tuesday in how to serve the Army without carrying a gun.

The religious group, which claims about 365,000 adult members in the United States and Canada, opposes bearing arms. Its members customarily serve in medical divisions of the Army.

Wayne Leque, 17, of Two Rivers, Wis., walked from Ludington after his money was lost or stolen on the boat from Manitowish, Wis. He said he had a lift from a motorist for about 25 of the 160 miles.

His 14-day walk completed, Leque suffered a knee injury playing football with other young men in the camp and now is on crutches.

An Adventist spokesman said the young men, at their own expense, receive 10 days of training similar to the Army's basic medical training.

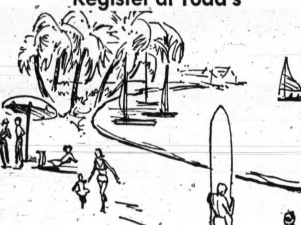

About 300 Adventists currently are serving in the Armed Forces in Viet Nam, he said, some of them as medics.

Seventy-one per cent of the persons who read a newspaper read it page by page; twenty-seven per cent read by scanning.

GIs Found Cool Drink Was a Lifesaver

By TOM TIEDE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
AP GO CAO, Viet Nam — Who says money can't buy happiness?

A patrol of GIs spent a couple of hours at a soft drink stand here the other day and they're exceedingly happy about it.

They should be, too. The money probably saved their lives.

They were on a search and clear mission at the time, part of a larger 25th Division operation.

Their area of responsibility was a stretch of open field laid out on both sides of a yellow road.

HOT AS FEVER

It was hot as fever, of course. At shoulder level, the air was 100 degrees. And on the ground, inside leather combat boots, it more approached the temperature of a sun spot.

The men had been walking much of the morning and each was dry. Canine water was either warm or gone. Tongues worked around in mouths full of dust and thick saliva.

Then they saw the soft drink stand.

"You buy?" the owner asked with a grin.

Every soldier swallowed his spit.

"You buy? You buy?"

It was risky, of course. A palm hut stuck out in the middle of nothing with a giddy woman selling soda water. Why?

ENEMY FRONTS

Other guys on other roads had paid more than money for just such a moment's pleasure. Oftentimes, the oasis stalls were enemy fronts and thirsty Yanks bought their drinks with their lives.

Capt. Bill Gavan rubbed his chin. He looked at the bottles and then at his men. Tough to walk away. He decided to take a chance.

"You drink first," he told the hut owner.

She did. Half a bottle. She smiled. No acid in the mixture, apparently. No crushed glass no urine, no poison, no drug grenade.

"What the...?"

OFF INTO FIELD

She pointed frantically at the grenade and then off into the field. She repeated this several times.

At first, somebody laughed. Then there was confused silence. Then at last they understood.

Gavan ordered one man off the road. He searched the grassy strand by hand before spotting a wire... and another... and another.

On the end of each, of course, was a grenade.

NINE FOUND

They found nine in a few minutes... each capable of blowing a man's legs off. Small steel eggs stuffed with yellow explosives and saw-tooth shrapnel. Man killers every one.

Then, the way cleared, the patrol hunkered up again and began to shuffle down the road. The last guy past the soft drink stand touched his helmet with a finger. "Thanks, old woman."

"Let's go," the captain said.

The woman, not smiling now, watched. Her brow creased.

She frowned.

Then, suddenly, she ran up money.

Copper Price Dip in '67 Seen

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chile, which rocked the economic world in April by raising the price of export copper 40 cents per pound, will begin cutting the price early in 1967, a majority of industry and government officials believe.

The big questions are when the price will begin to drop and how far it will fall.

There is nothing resembling unanimous agreement on either point. But the nearest thing to a consensus would seem to be along these lines:

—The world copper shortage will begin to ease early next year, although copper will remain in fairly short supply until at least 1968 and it probably will be 1970 before production catches up with demand.

PRICE TO FALL

—As the shortage becomes less severe, the price will begin to fall slowly... as slowly as the Chilean government can go and still hold its share of the market.

—The price could begin to decline as early as the last quarter of 1966 or as late as mid-1967, but most observers say they believe the first quarter of 1967 is a likely time for the drop to start.

—The decline probably will level off somewhere between 40 and 50 cents a pound. This is the area of least agreement, with some officials saying they think the price may drop into the high 30s and others talking confidently of 50-cent copper.

All predictions were heavily qualified. Everyone contacted said the Viet Nam war, unrest in the African countries which produce copper and the health of the U.S. and European economies will have major impacts on the copper price situation.

Major cutbacks in auto production in the United States would reduce the demand for copper and cause the price to drop, one observer said, while a step-up in the war in Viet Nam would aggravate the current shortage. Any African development which halted the flow of copper from Zambia or the Congo would have a major effect on the market.

Barring something unforeseen, officials say, they do not believe the Chilean government will move the price above the 62-cent level to which it was raised in April.

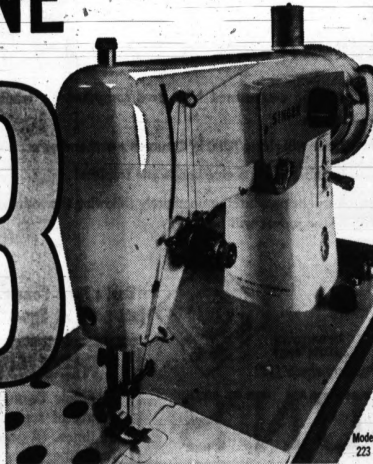

Any move to hike the price again would be certain to meet strong opposition from the copper producers, who are known to have counseled against the 20-cent increase on grounds that it would make customers turn to substitutes such as aluminum and plastic.

Teacher Strikes Loom in State

DETROIT (UPI) — The possibility of strikes by schoolteachers loomed throughout the Detroit area today as the Michigan Federation of Teachers threatened to take action if demands are not met.

Tom Hill, administrative assistant to the MFT president and Harold Ash, chief contract negotiator for the American Federation of Teachers, scheduled a news conference for today to announce final strike plans to the teachers.

Hill said strikes have been authorized by teachers "in Taylor Township, Ecorse, Melvindale and North Dearborn Heights."

"Unless negotiations speed up and bring an end to the current impasse," Hill said, "Teachers strikes will be inevitable."

Problems appeared especially touchy at Melvindale where teachers scheduled two picket lines "in an attempt to avert a final crisis" tomorrow.

TO SET UP LINE

The teachers planned to set up a line in front of the board of education headquarters tonight and another tomorrow morning in front of Melvindale High School.

The Melvindale federation charged its competition, the Melvindale Education Association of "an attempt to smear the federation and break the impending teacher strike."

A spokesman for the federation said a representative of the association presented a list of charges against the federation at the board's meeting last night.

The education association charged in the list that federation representatives intimidated teachers, made obscene phone calls and threatened physical violence on teachers who would not strike.

Cost Is Estimated in British Sea Strike

LONDON (AP) — Britain's National Institute of Economic and Social Research said today that the national seamen's strike will cost the British economy $56 million a month in trade and other earnings if it continues.

The institute, a private non-profit organization, said the 17-day-old strike could endanger seriously Britain's balance of payments if it lasts two more weeks.

It was the first independent estimate of the impact of the strike on the economy.

Romania Official Fired After Train Disaster

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Transport Minister Dumitru Simulescu was fired yesterday after a train wreck east of Bucharest in which 38 persons were killed and 65 others injured.

A government announcement after the accident accused Simulescu of "repeated cases of indiscipline."

De Valera Favored in Eire Vote

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Eamon de Valera was a strong sentimental and political favorite today to win a second term as president of the Irish Republic in a "kid gloves" election.

The 83-year-old statesman virtually sat out the campaign and let his supporters take the stump making "Dev the man" the sole issue to cap a career that began with his fight against the British to help found the republic.

Challenger Thomas Francis Kevin O'Higgins, a 49-year-old Dublin lawyer and member of a distinguished family in Ireland's war of independence, wound up a barnstorming campaign in what his wife described as a "very hopeful" mood.

De Valera was rated a 6 to 1 favorite by the bookmakers.

FEAR SMALL TURNOUT — The one concern by his campaign managers was a small turnout among the 1 1/2 million eligible voters that could lead to an upset.

"We are afraid of complacency among our supporters," said a spokesman for the ruling Fianna Fail — Soldiers of Destiny — party that De Valera heads.

O'Higgins is the nominee of the Fine Gael party which has waged a running fight with De Valera over a half century on the road to independence — with clashes on tactics.

De Valera had one strong ally on his side. This is the 50th anniversary of the Easter rising that set off the spark in the march to freedom. He is the last surviving commandant of that heroic 1916 rebellion.

THEME SONG — While De Valera stood on the sidelines, his supporters sounded this theme song: "It would be the height of ingratitude if the people of Ireland if 'the chief' is not elected."

O'Higgins directed his campaign at the Irish government's run by De Valera's proteges rather than at the aging president himself. O'Higgins, with his wife by his side, went into the towns and villages offering himself as a man to whom the people owe nothing, but one who can do a better administrative job at home and in selling Ireland abroad.

Cool Weather Continues East of the Mississippi

By The Associated Press
Below freezing temperatures were logged at Bradford, Pa., for the third day in a row today as a late spring cool spell continued over most of the nation east of the Mississippi.

Temperatures in the 30s were reported early this morning in parts of northern New England, New York State and Pennsylvania. The coolness dipped into the South with some readings in the upper 40s in northern Alabama, but southerly winds ushered warm weather onto the Great Plains.

Generally clear weather prevailed across most of the country. However, lightning caused numerous small forest fires in eastern Arizona and western New Mexico. In Clovis, N.M., a lightning bolt struck near a Little League baseball game and stunned several spectators.

This morning's low for the nation was 30 at Pellston, Mich., and the high 81 at Orlando, Fla.

CLELL L. MORSE

Water Wonderland Post No. 1008, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has installed Clell L. Morse as post commander for the coming year.

Morse, 5274 Cooley Lake, Waterford Township, earned a life membership in the VFW by coming out on top in a recent membership drive.

He has gone through the VFW chairs and completed a service school course. Other officers recently installed were John Gaves, senior vice commander; Robert G. Almas, junior vice commander; Ayers Miller, quartermaster; Edward Sorenson, adjutant; Michael Blancy, post advocate; and Albert Bonasse, chaplain.

Voter Sign-Up Deadline Set in Waterford

Voter registration deadline has been set at 8 p.m. July 5 for Waterford Township's Aug. 2 primary election.

Registrations will be accepted at the township clerk's office.

According to an official count taken in April, there are 21,628 registered voters living in the township.

This compares with 20,219 registered voters in March 1964.

Deadline for candidates to file nominating petitions for the Aug. 2 primary is 4 p.m. June 14. A minimum of 100 signatures is required.

To be voted on in the primary are supervisor, clerk and treasurer — all two-year posts — and two trusteeships, both four-year terms.

The election will be held Nov. 8.

'Big Brothers' Sought in Area

The director of Big Brothers of Oakland County said today that attempts are being made to match at least 60 men with fatherless boys, most of them in Pontiac.

"The summer months are particularly crucial," said Floyd Metz, head of the United Foundation organization. "There is a lot of outdoor activity and it's important that these youngsters have a companion."

There are about 140 Big Brothers presently assigned to boys in Oakland County, according to Metz.

Of these, 51 are in Pontiac.

DESPERATE NEED
"But we're still in desperate need of 49 more in Pontiac alone," Metz added.

"The boys are not delinquent; just without a father in the home."

Men interested in participating in the program can obtain information by contacting the nonprofit organization in the Community Services Building, 122 Franklin.

The boys range in age from 8 to 15 years, and according to Metz, the Big Brother is asked if he has a preference to the age of the boy.

In addition, attempts are made to match up the interests and personality of the Big Brother and the boy, Metz said.

A rapid test may be used to screen newborn children for cystic fibrosis, which affects one baby in a thousand. If discovered early, life expectancy can be increased tenfold. The disease is detected in an analysis of the infants' sweat.

Feud in Background

Military Bill in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a feud between Congress and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara as a backdrop, the House starts action today on a budget-busting $17.8-billion military authorization bill for research and equipment.

Four hours of debate were to precede a final vote on the bill, which exceeds the administration request by $931 million.

When it added the funds the administration didn't want, the House Armed Services Committee sharply criticized McNamara and proclaimed a "new era," saying Congress must share in decision-making on military matters.

"No longer must Congress be a who-body, something halfway between a nobody and a somebody," Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., said in the committee's unanimous report.

$600 MILLION HIGHER
The House's authorization figure is $600 million higher than that approved by the Senate. Any differences will have to be settled in a conference.

There is no assurance the Defense Department will spend any extra money, if it is voted, although the House bill includes language Rivers says will make this mandatory.

The committee and McNamara are at odds over spending in three areas: nuclear-powered surface ships for the Navy, a new, manned bomber and an antimissile missile system.

The bill before the House includes funds for two atomic-powered frigates for the Navy, research on the manned bomber and the missile system.

OPPOSES INCREASE
McNamara refused last year to spend money voted for a nuclear frigate. He also has opposed increased funding for the new missile system and the manned bomber.

The bill includes about $10.5 billion for procurement and about $7.2 billion for research and development.

Another section authorizes a 3.2 per cent pay increase for uniformed military personnel. The administration did not oppose this $356 million item.

U.S., Gasoline Industry Plan Pollution Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government-industry program to determine what kinds of gasoline would produce the least air pollution when burned under varying conditions was announced Tuesday by the Interior Department.

The American Petroleum Institute will contribute $480,000 to the three-year program. Interior's Bureau of Mines will furnish research personnel and facilities, with most of the work to be done at the Bartlesville (Okla.) Petroleum Research Center.

BATTLE CREEK (UPI) — Brian Wendorf, 8, was in serious condition today with a shotgun wound accidentally inflicted by his 5-year-old brother.

Joe's in the Doghouse

Call Local Animal Shelter

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a 170-pound problem, and it's not my husband. (He's over 200!) It's a lovely St. Bernard who crept into my affections when she was a mere puppy of 66 pounds. She "surprised" me with her because HE'S always wanted a St. Bernard.

ABBY

There are small children in our neighborhood and I must keep the dog chained constantly or, in the spirit of playfulness, she could knock a child down and break both his legs! We live in Minnesota and it's too cold to keep her out of doors all winter, so she sleeps on our service porch. If we don't keep all the bathroom doors closed, she drinks out of the "johns." We are growing more attached to her every day, but it's like keeping a horse in the house! She has a fine pedigree, and Joe paid a good price for her, but I'm ready to GIVE her away. Abby, do you want a St. Bernard?

MARGE D.

DEAR MARGE: Thanks a lot, but no thanks. They won't let us keep livestock in our apartment. Large dogs need room to run and romp. Ask around. Perhaps someone with a ranch or farm would appreciate her. Inquire, too, at your animal shelter. They are in touch with people who want pets; and all prospects are thoroughly investigated. Your husband may be a good Joe, but HE belongs in the doghouse.

DEAR ABBY: I am almost 17 and my boy friend is 19. He got me a pair of shoes for my birthday and my daddy made me give them back because he said it wasn't proper for a girl to accept a present like shoes from a fellow. I have been going with this boy going on five months, and I can't see why it's wrong to accept a pair of shoes from him.

Lots of girls get sweaters from their boy friends. I know it wouldn't be proper to let a guy buy you underwear, but what's wrong with shoes?

NO SHOES

DEAR NO SHOES: Wearing apparel which can be classified as "necessities" (and shoes fall into that category) are an improper gift from a boy to his girl friend. Your daddy is right. Put your best foot forward, honey, and let your daddy buy your shoes.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to have a nice plump girl to call my own. I am not some kind of nut, either. I am a normal, fairly intelligent, college-educated man, 32 years of age. Every girl I know either mixes a powder with water and calls it "lunch," or else she skips lunch entirely and eats a dry cracker that looks like a dog biscuit.

I long for the good old days when you could take a girl out BETWEEN meals and buy her a hot fudge sundae or a malted. Most girls who are "watching their figures" are the only ones who are "watching" them because they are skin and bones and not worth looking at.

If you run into a nice hefty gal between 22 and 32 years of age who likes to eat, but has trouble getting dates because she's so well padded, send me her name and address. It would be a pleasure to meet her. Sign this. "Stick of scarecrows."

"READY!" IN SAN ANTONIO

Mrs. Roush, Hostess

Members of the Maple Leaf Club gathered for a luncheon and card meeting recently in the West Iroquois Road home of Mrs. B. B. Roush. Guests were Mrs. Robert Tomalty of Hamilton, Ont. and Mrs. A. G. Coleman.

An open house Sunday from 3 to 6 p.m. in the Ambvets Hall on Oakland Avenue will mark the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gaffney of Charlotte Street. Their children who are hosting the event are Mrs. Coleman Lee, Mrs. John Donley, Mrs. Harold Anderson of Azusa, Calif., Martin and Basil. The pair has 20 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Ronald Schultzes Repeat Vows, Head for North

Betty May Bell and Ronald Lee Schultz of Davison were wed Saturday in the Baldwin Avenue Evangelical United Brethren Church.

A reception in the First Federal Savings of Oakland Building followed the rite performed by Rev. Dwight Reibling. Their parents are the Russel

C. Bells of Hudson Avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Milford Schultz of Buchanan.

WATTEAU TRAIN

A Watteau train and lace bodice highlighted the bride's Empire gown of white organza over taffeta. She donned an illusion veil and carried yellow roses, white carnations and greens.

With Mrs. Robert Streit of Mount Clemens, her sister's honor matron, were bridesmaids Carol Schultz, Joyce Kohlhoff, South Haven, and Nancy Schultz, the bridegroom's sister.

Robert Lewis of Augusta was best man. Robert Streit ushered with Thomas Schultz of Buchanan and John Beatty of Niles.

Tamarika and Jon Swartz were flower girl and ring bearer.

The couple, who left for a trip in Upper Michigan and Canada will reside in Davison. She is an alumna of Western Michigan University and he holds a master's degree from Indiana University.

MRS. RONALD LEE SCHULTZ

Betty May Bell, daughter of the Russel C. Bells of Hudson Avenue and Ronald Lee Schultz of Davison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milford Schultz of Buchanan, were wed Saturday in the Baldwin Avenue Evangelical United Brethren Church.

To Introduce New Librarian on Saturday

The Waterford Township Board and the Library Advisory Board will sponsor a day-long open house Saturday to introduce the new librarian, Jean Andrews, to area residents.

The affair will be at the main library on Tubbs Road with library service as usual.

Board members of the Friends of the Library will preside at the refreshment table.

Members of sponsoring groups are: Robert Dieball, advisory board chairman; Mrs. Dorothy Olson, township board chairman; and Mrs. John Naz, Frank Richardson, Mrs. William Crommett, Loren Anderson, Elmer Fangbner, Carroll Appel, William Dean and Roger Ranelje.

Others are Ruby Mansfield, James Shell and Mrs. William Shuck.

On the arrangements committee are Dieball, Anderson and Mrs. Shuck, chairman.

Dale Cheal Plays in Honors Band

Dale Cheal, son of the William Cheals of Cherokee Road, was selected to participate in the Michigan Honors Band at Interlochen Saturday evening.

This honor for the Pontiac Central High School tenth grader was a result of his performance in the recent-Solo and Ensemble Festival, where he received first ratings in both baritone horn and trombone solos.

Dale has also been asked to be baritone horn soloist with the Canadian Bandmasters' Symphonic Band. He will go to Brantford, Ont. for this performance.

Political Program Slated for State Women at MSU

July brings Independence Day, picnics, swimming, vacations and College Week for women at Michigan State University.

College Week, a special adult educational program specially designed for Michigan's women, attracts 1,000 homemakers each summer for four days of study, lectures, special assemblies and speakers.

This year it will be held July 26-29, according to Mrs. Carol C. Kurth, extension home economist in Oakland, Wayne and Macomb counties.

The 1966 program will emphasize woman's role in government. Featured speaker will be Mrs. Martha Griffiths, Michigan's congresswoman.

At another evening assembly a panel discussion by legislators, lobbyists and news reporters will be presented.

Some classes offered at College Week are aimed at helping women understand their government.

"An Overview of State and Local Government in Michigan" and "You CAN Beat City Hall" are two examples.

Others closely related deal with the history of Michigan, citizenship and international developments.

The over-all program of classes is designed to present information for Michigan women concerning home and family life, leadership training, personal development and enrichment, community improvement and internal understanding says Mrs. Kurth.

The week's program includes special tours of campus also. As in the past, homemakers attending the entire program can stay on campus in one of the dormitories if they cannot commute.

Thursday has been designated visitors' day for those who can attend only one day.

Any interested woman can obtain additional information by writing to the county Cooperative Extension Service, located at 155 North Saginaw Street.

Down With High Hem! and Designers' Spirits

LONDON — Down go skirts.

Those three words from Paris and New York caused surprise, gloom and defiance in London, original home of the high-high hemline.

"I just don't believe it," said Alice Pollock, a respected young designer. "It's all a terrible mistake."

In Paris a spokesman at Jean Patou said:

"Skirts are going to lengthen in the autumn. The short-skirt is as dead as mutton."

RESPECTABILITY

British fashion writers reported that Yves St. Laurent too is hinting at the death of the shortie.

They quoted him as saying that fashion must be both elegant and respectable.

In New York, Jacques Tiffeau, a French designer who is celebrating 15 years in the United States, is showing tweed skirts for autumn several inches below the knee.

Said Jean Rook, one of London's brightest fashion writers:

"It's more than a drop. It's an avalanche."

If there is going to be a return to Dior's old new look, it won't catch Miss Rook napping. A year ago she predicted long, long skirts were coming.

If milday does embrace the long-long skirt for autumn and winter it could cause chaos here where many designers are banking on skirts going even higher.

"It would be fatal if hemlines would drop," said Miss Pollock, "but I don't believe British girls would accept it. Every girl I know is either wearing mini-skirts or doting to get in them."

James W'd'g'g who does a flourishing business in the way-above-the-knee skirt reacted: "The long skirt report is terrible. I won't accept it. I shall go on selling short skirts."

Writers to Meet

There will be a regular meeting of the Oakland Writers' Workshop on Thursday at 1 p.m. in the YWCA.

A foursome on a five-day safari through Kenya and Tanzania included the Walter Noffsingers of Highland Road and their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Harold Wells who are training teachers in Mogadishu, capital of the Republic of Somali, East Africa.

The Noffsingers flew by jet to Portugal and Rome for the five-week vacation and returned by way of Greece, Denmark, Switzerland, England and Ireland.

Children Fear
White Attire
in Hospitals?

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Children are less anxious and frightened when nurses wear regular street clothes rather than white uniforms, reports the Gainesville Hospital and Clinic.

In a study made by the hospital, it was learned that children from 6 months to 5 years "cried less, ate better, could be held for physical examination, and seemed more eager to be held" by nurses wearing colored dresses in place of white uniforms. School-age children were also more at ease.

One mother told the hospital that her child had such a fear of white clothing that he refused to go to the supermarket where clerks wore white jackets.

Looking for Job? Jot Down Capabilities

By MARY FEELEY,
Consultant in Money Management

Dear Miss Feeley: My son, who will be a senior in high school next year, wants to work this summer.

He plans to go to college as soon as he graduates. Do you have any suggestions as to what he might do besides a service station job or grocery? And how soon should he apply? School will be out the last of May. Mrs. M. W. Birmingham, Ala.

Dear Mrs. W.: You ask me what your son might do. I ask you: What can he contribute in his community?

A summer job is an important part of a young man's development — both in responsibility and wage-earning. I think the best way to approach job-hunting is for him to analyze his abilities at this stage — actually write them down on paper. And I'm serious about this.

What's his most saleable product — mind or muscle? The very fact that he does write down the contributions he feels he can offer makes him think. When he looks at what he believes are his capabilities, then he automatically begins to try to fit them into his environment.

I realize both of you are concerned with how much money he can make toward his college education. But the satisfaction and experience he gets out of his summer job are important, too.

If the service station and the grocery are already overflowing with applicants, has he thought about these:

Construction work. Can the local contractor or the State Highway department use short-term help — assuming he has the proper work papers? Coaching. Can he coach lower grade students who failed a course?

Is there any opportunity for counter work or bus-boy jobs in a restaurant? What about messenger service or clerking in a store? Can he use a typewriter? Is there a summer camp counseling job in your area?

Has he considered making a list of business concerns to call on or write to — finding out in advance who the personnel managers are. This can

His Colored Shirt
Is Always Stylish

According to the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear, there hasn't ever been a time when well-dressed American men haven't worn colored shirts with white collars and cuffs.

Now there are variations on such shirts available — attributed to the Mod influence — with patterned, even flowery, bodies and higher white collars. Both styles are being accepted — the more conventional — the adult man, and the more vivid styles to the youngsters.

be done by telephone. It never does any harm to know the name of the man or woman to whom you want to talk.

And let me repeat — your son had better get going right now if he hopes to land any kind of job for the summer. I wish him good-bunting.

Dear Miss Feeley: We bought a home about two years ago. We are in our 50's.

We carry mortgage insurance, so in case anything should happen to my husband, the house would be free and clear and I could continue to live there.

My health has fared in the meantime and I have reason to expect to die before my husband does. We have a 26-year mortgage. Is there some other way we could prepare for the future, instead of the mortgage insurance? It is costing us more than $300 yearly.

We have some savings, bonds, and life insurance. C. T., San Diego, Calif.

Dear C. T.: You should think twice about your conviction that you may die before your husband. Your health may be poor, but life is always an uncertain thing. There is always the chance that you will outlive him and still need that mortgage insurance.

Now — if this decision doesn't satisfy you in your anxiety, then consider putting that $300-plus into mutual funds and dropping the mortgage insurance. The reason I mention mutual funds is because, according to your letter, all your other money is in savings, bonds, and insurance.

These are fixed dollar investments. So it would seem a good idea to put these extra funds into investments which would keep pace with the "cost-of-living" dollar.

Why Grow Old?

by JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. What are we to do? We really have no choice of short or long skirts, except to pay for alterations for a too-large size. I am 5 feet, 7 inches tall and weigh 130 pounds. I have worn a size 12 for many years. This spring I have to have a size 14 so I can get my knees covered and must pay to have the seams taken in to fit the rest of me.

We really aren't boss. We can no more change this than we could change pointed toes and slacks without pockets.

A. I disagree. I believe this will change much sooner than the pointed toes did because it is the women and not the teen-agers who have the money. I don't think that the designers and manufacturers want to design and manufacture themselves out of business.

Q. How do I know what size frames I should have when I buy sunglasses? I have read that you shouldn't wear round frames with a very small face or very small frames with a very large face, but aren't there some general rules for those of us who aren't extreme either way?

A. As a general rule the frames should extend about two-thirds of the way down your nose and should extend to the outer contour of your face at cheekbone level.

CALCIUM
Q. I hear about how important calcium is. In what foods do I get this? I am afraid I will be calcium-poor.

A. Calcium is widely distributed in the food world. However, milk is one of the richest sources and many nutritionists feel that all adults should have two glasses a day unless there is some reason for not drinking milk, such as an allergy or some other special individual problem. Green leafy vegetables and meat also are good sources.

If you eat a varied diet you need not worry. However, if you wish to have extra protection have two glasses of milk. If you have an overweight problem or a high cholesterol blood level, drink skim milk or powdered, fat-free milk. You will get just as much calcium as if you drank whole milk.

Q. I hope you can help me with my problem. My face is very full. Is there any way I can lose weight just in my face?

A. The only way is by losing weight generally. You can make your face appear slimmer with the proper application of makeup and with the right hair style.

Q. I am a girl who is too young to wear much makeup and I have a problem which I hope you can help me, and many other girls, solve. My problem is a mustache.

I have a very light complexion and this "thing" shows up. It is very embarrassing.

A. Try bleaching it with peroxide several times a week. Apply the peroxide and let it dry and remain for a little longer. Then rinse.

If this doesn't work, use one of the depilatories designed especially for facial hair, not just a usual one. Follow directions carefully.

Giving Textiles a 'Shield' Finish

COLLEGE STATION, TEX. (UPI) — A new stain-resistant finish added at many textile mills to clothes has proved a good "invisible shield" to guard against oil and water stains, report the Texas A&M University research division.

The finishes, which now are available in spray cans also, do not allow stains to penetrate the clothing fibers. Stain can be easily wiped off or, if allowed to dry, can be removed with laundering or spot cleaning.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A newly formed Cuban exile group says it took part in last weekend's unsuccessful attempt to infiltrate Cuba and plans to step up its activities against the regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The Cuban Exile Representation — RECE — announced Tuesday it has joined with two anti-Castro groups as a coordinated movement seemed to be gathering momentum among the divided exile front.

Intensive negotiations were reported for a wide-ranging alliance that would include at least four other militant anti-Castro groups.

"Instead of going it alone, exile groups now are going to coordinate efforts," said RECE spokesman Ernesto Freyre. "Together we can accomplish our aim."

WAR NOT LOST
"Losing one battle does not mean you have lost the war," he said of the six anti-Castro revolutionaries who attempted to infiltrate Cuba by launch last weekend. Two were killed, two were wounded and captured and two are presumed drowned.

Freyre and other spokesmen for the new federation — composed of RECE, Commandos 1 and 4 faction of the 30th of November Movement — refused to discuss launching sites or any specifics of the weekend raid.

The Cuban government has charged that the six men intended to assassinate Castro and said the U.S. government's Central Intelligence Agency was connected with the plot.

The Cubans also charged that the launch carrying the six embarked from Marathon Key, Fla., despite a U.S. moratorium on such attacks.

INQUIRY STARTED
The Cuban government charges touched off an intensive inquiry in Washington. State Department officials said Tuesday night they had received no reports either from government agencies here or in Florida with direct information on the revolutionaries' takeoff point.

Officials stressed that the United States long has sought to discourage such raids and that a number of such expeditions have been halted in waters off Florida.

Despite the increasing activity by exile organizations, officials emphasized that there has been no change whatever in U.S. policy toward such raids.

"Hit-and-run raids have no value and on the contrary they are harmful," one State Department official said. "They cause the Cuban government to take precautions that would not be taken otherwise."

U.S. spokesmen also said they were not aware of any basis for Cuba's charge that the CIA was connected with the alleged plot against Castro. Some officials described the accusation as absurd.

Officials speculated that the launch might have been on a mission to rescue Cubans who wish to flee their homeland.

But a spokesman for the new federation said the mission was commanded by Tony Cuesta, a seasoned warrior of Commandos 1 who was captured in the raid.

The allied organizations issued a statement affirming, "in the face of the adversity of this occurrence, their decision to intensify the fight for Cuba's freedom." They also denied any CIA link with their infiltration attempt and said the operation "was executed with Cuban resources and equipment, provided by exiles."

Another exile leader, Dr. Orlando Bosch, head of the militant Insurreccional Movement for Revolutionary Recovery, said "our movement is working very hard with the underground and very soon will have good results."

Exiles who have made repeated trips to Cuba claim the odds favor infiltration.

Graham Opens Rally Tonight

British TV Will Carry Crusade From London

LONDON (AP) — American evangelist Billy Graham opens a month-long crusade in London tonight under the admiring gaze of his many supporters and close scrutiny of clerics.

The crusade is being held in the Earls Court indoor stadium, which seats 25,000 persons, and is being carried to most of Britain's major cities by closed-circuit television.

For the duration of the crusade, Graham told a meeting of his aides Tuesday night, the auditorium "is going to be a cathedral, a sacred place." He predicted it would be remembered "as a place that God visited in 1966 and began a work that perhaps could teach and influence people in other parts of the world."

Thousands of stewards, counselors and advisers have been lined up to help in the crusade, and a choir of 2,000 will sing. The cost is estimated at $840,000.

'DESTRUCTIVE GENIUS'
Graham told his followers: "During this month, every one of you is going to be watched by your neighbors and the people you work with. You are going to be watched by the world."

Author James Mitchell wrote in the Guardian, a liberal daily, that Graham used a "deadly and destructive genius" in seeking converts and retaining their loyalty.

However, a Cambridge student's letter to the Guardian said "any message that can do anything to remedy the desperate apathy of this nation is to be received with open arms."

The Rev. W. Cecil Northcott, writing in the Anglican Church Times, called the crusade, Graham's second in Britain, a "redundant anachronism" and said it was "a kind of soft-sell in a supermarket which lacks the lasting qualities of the genuine article."

Over 90 Pct. of Eligibles Sign Up for Extra Medicare Benefits as Deadline Passes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security Administration reported today that more than 17 million Americans — 90 per cent of those eligible — paid $3 each to sign up for extra medicare benefits. The deadline for enrolling was midnight Tuesday.

Commissioner Robert M. Ball credited the high enrollment to a massive campaign to inform all people who were 65 by last Jan. 1 of their rights to become eligible for doctor bill benefits, in addition to hospital benefits, on July 1.

Ball, who said he had expected about 80 per cent of those eligible would enroll, termed the 90 per cent turnout remarkable.

DEADLINE EXTENDED

The deadline was extended two months to midnight May 31 by Congress at the request of President Johnson.

The commissioner said it would be a week or two before a figure will be available on the enrollment, but he said he thinks it may be around 17.3 million.

“The total was 16.8 million as of March 31,” he said. “The two-month extension of the deadline gave us the opportunity to enroll another 400,000 to 500,000.”

EFFECTIVE JULY 1

The benefits of both the medical care insurance and the basic hospital insurance under medicare became effective July 1 and the monthly medical care insurance fee of $3 per person also begins to apply on that date.

For persons who became 65 since March 1, an enrollment period of seven months is provided. It begins three months before a person turns 65.

If a person fails to enroll as soon as he is eligible, the monthly insurance fee is increased 10 per cent for each full year that passes after the end of the initial period and before enrollment.

Before international standardization of mail services, there were about 1,200 postage rates for international mail.

For Film About Neo-Naziism Jewish Actor in Unlikely City

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

BERLIN — When an actor named Segal makes a movie about neo-Naziism in Berlin, how does he feel?

Segal, "Very strange indeed."

The fast-rising young actor is the sole American in the international cast of "The Quiller Memorandum."

The story depicts the rise of Nazi feeling in today's Germany. The film subject is reported to have stirred some concern among the Germans, ever-conscious of their image to the world.

Since he is Jewish, Segal remarked, "I never expected to be in Berlin; I never expected to be in this country."

GOOD SCRIPT

But the lure of a good script overcame his feelings, and he is here now playing a secret agent who investigates an outbreak of violence caused by latter-day Nazis.

"Of course this is a mythical movement, according to all the Germans you meet," the actor said dubiously. "They all claim that they had Jewish grandmothers; that at least I have heard that several times. It is 'impossible to find a Nazi or ex-Nazi.'"

Lansing Man Faces Trial in 'Hotel Blaze'

LANSING (AP) — A Lansing man faces trial June 2 on charges of negligently setting the Lansing hotel fire in which a fleeing state senator died of a heart attack.

James McDaniel, 24, pleaded innocent at his arraignment Tuesday before Municipal Judge Charles Murphy. He was held in lieu of $50 bond.

Lansing Fire Marshal Phillip Aber attributed the fire last Friday to a hotel guest falling asleep while smoking.

Sen. William Romano, D-Warren, 55, collapsed on the street outside the Roosevelt Hotel after fleeing the fire.

SERIOUS CONDITION

Miss Margaret Sawaya, 45, of Toledo, Ohio, a guest in the room next to where the fire started is still in serious condition with injuries suffered in a leap from a fifth-floor window.

McDaniel was treated for smoke inhalation and released Friday. Officers said he surrendered to police Tuesday on a warrant charging that he negligently set fire to a hotel room.

School Board Explains Stand

Issues Statement on Discipline Procedures

The Pontiac Board of Education released the following statement today:

The Board of Education is cognizant of the many questions which have been raised in the minds of parents and staff members because of the pupil demonstration at Eastern Junior High School on May 27, 1966. This official statement by the Board of Education has been prepared to answer these questions.

The Board of Education has established a framework of policy within which schools operate. Administrators and teachers are required and expected to take appropriate action with pupils to maintain good discipline and pupil control as provided in board policy. Administrators and teachers will receive full support from the Board of Education in properly discharging these duties.

Board policy provides channels through which decisions by administrators and teachers can be appealed. The board strongly urges all parents and citizens to utilize existing appeal procedures rather than to register appeals through public demonstrations by students or adults.

The board and the superintendent have been, and will continue to be, available to all citizens of the school district to hear appeals, and discuss problems. But the board will discharge its obligation to the electorate by reaching decisions which are based on the general welfare of the school district and thus reserves decisions to itself following deliberation on all points of view which have been expressed.

The first power-driven printing press was constructed in 1811 by a Saxon called Frederick Koenig. The first cylinder presses were erected in the Times, London, to print the November 28, 1814, issue.

Rule Home Is Public Nuisance

Circuit Judge James S. Thornburn ruled yesterday that a Pontiac home, formerly rented by a woman convicted of accepting the earnings of a prostitute, is a public nuisance and ordered that any illegal activity there be ended.

Thornburn also ordered the owners, V. K. Archer, 724 Lonsbury, and Basil Verrier, 185 Beach, to put up a $5,000 bond, which they would forfeit if the decree is violated in the next year.

The prosecutor's office was asked to initiate the proceedings to padlock the house following vice raids by Pontiac police on several occasions.

The tenant, Mrs. Marie Mayes, 41, was found guilty by a jury last Friday of accepting the earnings of a prostitute and will be sentenced June 14 by Circuit Judge Frederick C. Ziem.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department also was directed by Thornburn to make an inventory of the furnishings in the house and then sell them to pay any liens against the items.

The prosecutor's office learned in April while investigating the case that Mrs. Mayes' rent was being paid with money she received from the county welfare department.

Mrs. Mayes recently was charged with maintaining a house of prostitution at the Chapman address and soliciting an act of prostitution but was acquitted in Pontiac Municipal Court.

Suspect Is Bound Over in Gas Station Break-In

A 17-year-old Waterford Township youth, charged with breaking and entering Bill's Marathon Service, 3861 Elizabeth Lake Sunday, waived examination yesterday at his arraignment before Township Justice Patrick K. Daly.

Bound over to Circuit Court was Paul E. Potter of 3865 Shelby. He will appear before Judge Arthur E. Moore for arraignment at 9 a.m. June 9.

Potter is being held in Oakland County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Potter and two juvenile companions were apprehended by township police at about 2 a.m. Sunday in the parking lot at Joe's M59 and Edgewater Sunoco Service, 3083 W. Huron, after they had attempted to escape.

Police said the trio was in a stolen car, which reportedly belonged to Potter's grandmother.

Potter admitted breaking into a cigarette machine at Bill's Marathon Service just prior to his arrest and several other recent burglaries, according to police.

In his possession, according to police, was $19.25 in change. Also found in the car was three packs of cigarettes, an air pump, a transistor radio, a pair of roller skates and a screwdriver.

The juveniles, who weren't charged, told police they were not involved in any other crimes.

Looking at rings?
Now's the time to start thinking about the best source of credit a young couple can have...

Half the fun of marriage is setting up housekeeping. Buying furniture, dishes, rugs, drapes. Renting an apartment. Buying a house. Maybe a car. But all this takes money. And few young couples have that much cash.

The answer? A source of credit that's fast, friendly, and not expensive. That last one's the joker. This kind of credit is often very expensive — unless you join a credit union.

Credit unions are not in business to make money. They're in business to help their members — with low cost loans, with generous dividends on savings and life insurance to all qualified members as an added benefit at no extra cost. There are more than a million C.U. members in Michigan.

Yes, credit unions make marriages run smoother. Shouldn't you belong?

For full details, contact the C.U. where you work — or the one in your parish or neighborhood — or write Michigan Credit Union League, 13235 Woodward Wilson, Detroit, Michigan 48238.

Computer Aids in Hunt for Comet

By Science Service

WASHINGTON — Calculations made by a speedy computer have helped scientists rediscover the long-lost comet responsible for one of the most spectacular displays of "shooting stars" seen each year.

The Leonid meteor showers sprinkle the sky with bright shafts of light every November, reaching their height on Nov. 18 when some 25 to 35 meteor streaks can be seen each hour, not counting the usual average of seven visible by a single observer any night of the year.

The comet strewn in its path the debris that results in the brilliant display is known as Tempel-Tuttle. It was found a hundred years ago and was not seen again until computations on a German computer showed astronomers where to look for it last summer.

The calculations concerning Comet Tempel-Tuttle are reported in Science Journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. They were made by Joachim Schabert of the Astronomisches Rechen Institut, Heidelberg, Germany, and Yale University Observatory, New Haven, Conn., using an International Business Machines Corp. 7090 computer.

The Leonid meteor shower is so named because the shooting stars appear to radiate from the constellation of Leo, the lion. The heavenly show produced by the Leonids is expected to be spectacular this year since it comes close to the time of the return of Comet Tempel-Tuttle. The shower could well rival the one in 1833, when so many shooting stars fell that they were reported to resemble a storm of snowflakes falling from the sky.

ON WAY BACK
Comet Tempel-Tuttle is now on its way back to the far reaches of the solar system; as its highly elliptical journey around the sun. When it returns again in 33 years for another visit to the vicinity of the sun and earth, its orbital path will be sufficiently well known so that this comet should never be lost again.

'Holiday Toll a Forerunner'

State Traffic Expert Cites Multiple Deaths

EAST LANSING (AP) — A State Police traffic analyst has termed the 40 deaths in Michigan over the Memorial Day weekend "a forerunner of things to come."

"The mess of multiple death fatalities helped run up the total," State Police expert Orin Lucas reported.

The toll compared with 27 fatalities over the weekend last year and the high of 58 killed over the 1941 Memorial Day holiday.

Lucas noted that 25 of the 40 died in multiple death accidents. These included one crash killing four, three with three deaths each and six with two deaths each.

MAY GO HIGHER

He said the holiday total probably still will go higher because of delayed accident reports and possible deaths among the injured.

"The same things that cause accidents day in and day out also cause them on holidays," Lucas said. "But if you make a mistake on a holiday, somebody else is more likely to be there."

"If you run a stoplight, pass on a hill or drive at high speed when the highway is crowded, the toll is likely to be more serious. It's a matter of more people being exposed to accidents."

The high death count over the first heavy traffic weekend of the summer, he said, is a forerunner of what is to come.

TO CONTINUE:

"If the economy stays strong," he predicted, "and more cars are driving more miles of highways, we can expect the high rate to continue unless drivers go all-out for safety."

The State Highway Department, meanwhile, estimated that motorists travelled a total of 436.44 billion miles on Michigan's streets and highways over the 78-hour weekend.

The department said the safety of its interstate system was reaffirmed by the weekend toll. There was only one fatal accident on an interstate highway over the weekend. But three were killed in the crash on I-75 in Monroe County.

Record Broken as 542 Are Killed Across Nation

CHICAGO (AP) — A total of 542 persons died in traffic accidents during the 78-hour Memorial Day weekend, shattering the record for three- and four-day observances of the period.

The total surpassed the previous record for Memorial Day of 525 in 1963, a four-day weekend.

The death count began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and ended at midnight Monday.

California, led with 55 deaths followed by Michigan with 40, Pennsylvania 32, New York 29 and Florida 26.

Prison Chief May Get Raise

LANSING (AP)—Acting Corrections Director Gus Harrison, who stepped down to a higher paying job, would get a $4,000-a-year pay raise under House committee amendments to a Senate appropriations bill.

The House Ways and Means Committee raised the annual salary to $24,000 before it reported out the $21.5 million Corrections Department appropriations bill Tuesday. Last year Harrison quit his post as director because a lower civil service position in the department offered fringe benefits that in effect raised his salary above the $20,000 he was getting.

Gov. George Romney and the State Civil Service Commission have recommended raising the salary to $24,000 a year. Romney has complained that in several departments the civil service protected subordinate positions offered better salaries than those received by department heads.

State Bill Will Give $4 Million in Taxes to Counties Unless War Costs Rise

LANSING (AP) — Michigan counties now have a $4-million stake in the length and cost of the conflict in Viet Nam. The House agreed to Senate amendments to a state "stamp act" and sent it to Gov. George

Romney, who has indicated he would sign it, said sponsor George F. Montgomery, D-Detroit. The bill would impose a real estate transfer tax of 55 cents per $500 of the sale price in each transaction — if the identical federal tax is repealed on schedule, Jan. 1, 1968. "If Congress rescinds its action of last year in repealing the tax or postpones the effective date because of the cost of the war," Montgomery said, "the state tax would automatically be postponed." The tax was one of several President Johnson urged Congress to rescind or reduce last year. He since has urged reimposition of two of them — on automobiles and telephone services — as costs of the conflict in Viet Nam and poverty programs increased. The bill, once part of a fiscal reform package, originally would have given the state half the revenues — or $3 million a year. The Senate amended the bill to allow the funds to remain in the county in which they were collected.

Graduation Parties Star Punch, Snacks

By JANET ODELL

Pontiac Press Food Editor

Part of graduating from high school is the reception—that takes place after the ceremonies or even on a different day of graduation week.

Because many of the teenagers go from house to house, no one needs to serve a great deal. But the youngsters will want to eat at every party. So be prepared.

Punch, of course, is the order of the day. It can get very hot in June and partying is thirsty work. I think you should plan on at least 2 servings of punch for each guest.

Would you like to try a recipe with grape juice as the base?

GRADUATION PARTY PUNCH
4 cups grape juice
2 cups orange juice
½ cup sugar
6 tablespoons lemon juice
2 28-oz. bottles grapefruit carbonated beverage

Combine all ingredients over ice in punch bowl and stir gently. Garnish with very thin fruit slices, if desired. Yield: 20 punch-cup servings.

Maybe you don't want a dark punch and would prefer this one which is on the pink side. Even the ice is made with punch mixture.

ORANGE CRANBERRY JUICE PUNCH

2½ quarts cold water
4 cans (9 oz. each) frozen concentrate for imitation orange juice
4 bottles (1 pt. each) cranberry juice cocktail
2 bottles (1 pt. 12 oz. each) ginger ale, chilled

Combine cold water, concentrate, and cranberry juice cocktail. Stir until well blended. Chill. Just before serving, add ginger ale and Orange Ice Fruit Rings. Serve in punch cups. Makes about 7 quarts or 56 servings.

Orange Ice Fruit Rings
3 cups cold water
3 tablespoons frozen concentrate for imitation orange juice

15 canned pineapple chunks
6 red maraschino cherries
6 green maraschino cherries
Combine water and concentrate. Stir until well blended. Cut lemon slices in half. Combine fruits with blended concentrate and pour into 8 individual or a 1-quart ring mold. Freeze until firm—about 4 hours for individual molds, or 8 hours for quart mold.

To unmold, place rings in a pan of hot water. When ice begins to loosen, invert rings into punch bowl. Pour in chilled punch.

Makes about 4 cups mixture or enough to fill eight ½-cup molds or a 1-quart mold.

Of course the easiest punch of all is the combination of sherbet and dry gingerale. One quart of sherbet and three quarts of gingerale will make three quarts of punch.

Young people like dips. In addition to crackers, put some potato chips and pretzels on the tray for scooping.

SOUR CREAM HAM DIP
1 cup dairy sour cream (½ pint)
2¼-ounce cans deviled ham
½ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon garlic salt
Few drops liquid smoke, optional
Combine all ingredients; mix

SOUR CREAM CHUTNEY DIP
1 3-ounce package cream cheese, room temperature
1 cup dairy sour cream (½ pint)
¼ cup chopped chutney
½ teaspoon curry powder

Beat cream cheese until smooth. Stir in remaining ingredients. Chill thoroughly before serving. Makes 1½ cups dip.

Just in case anyone wants something sweet, have a popcorn caramel log on hand for quick slicing. It's good finger food.

POPCORN CARAMEL LOG
1 foil package ready-to-pop corn

1 cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
½ cup evaporated milk
2 tablespoons light corn sirup
½ cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
½ cup butterscotch pieces
1 cup dry toasted peanuts, finely chopped
3 tablespoons water
1 lb. packaged caramels

Pop corn according to package directions. Set aside. Mix sugar, milk, sirup together. Heat, stirring constantly until sugar has dissolved.

Bring to boil and continue to cook, stirring constantly, for 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Add chocolate and butterscotch pieces and stir until candy melts. Stir in nuts. Cool.

Then shape into a roll 14" long. Wrap in waxed paper and chill in refrigerator for an hour. Meanwhile, add water to caramels and melt over hot water. Remove from heat and cool to lukewarm. Put the popped corn into a large bowl. Add the cooled melted caramels and mix well.

On a piece of aluminum foil shape the popcorn-caramel mixture into a 14"x3" rectangle. Place chilled candy roll in center of popped corn-caramel mixture.

Pull up popped corn mixture around the roll and press together on top so candy is completely covered. Let stand for about an hour. Cut into ¼" slices. Makes about 30 slices.

CREAMY DIPS

Combine all ingredients over ice in punch bowl and stir gently. Garnish with very thin fruit slices, if desired. Yield: 20 punch-cup servings.

Maybe you don't want a dark punch and would prefer this one which is on the pink side. Even the ice is made with punch mixture.

ORANGE CRANBERRY JUICE PUNCH

2½ quarts cold water
4 cans (9 oz. each) frozen concentrate for imitation orange juice

GRADUATION PARTY

Quick Cooking Fine for White Turnips

White turnips cooked this way take on different flavor.

Shredded Turnips
1½ pounds (about) white turnips (about 5 medium)
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon salt

Pare turnips; shred on a coarse grater; there should be about 4½ cups. Into a 9- or 10-inch skillet, turn the turnips, water, butter and salt. Cook, covered, over moderate heat—stirring a few times—for about 10 minutes or until they are tender-crisp. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Before peeling an onion, cut a thin slice from each end. This makes the skin easy to remove.

Smoked Butt Is Boneless

Include a smoked boneless pork shoulder roll (smoked butt) on your menu soon. This delicately flavored, cured meat is a boneless portion of the pork shoulder and weighs from one to four pounds.

It may be baked, simmered in water, or sliced and pan-fried or broiled. Follow the helpful directions on the label. If no directions are available, cover the meat with water and simmer over low heat until fork tender about 50 minutes per pound. Or bake the meat in a degree oven to an internal temperature of 170 degrees (between 40 and 45 minutes per pound).

Add a diced ripe but firm avocado to French dressing and spoon over sliced tomatoes for a great salad.

Shrimp Crackers Are Served Hot

Shrimp Crackers
1 can (4½ ounces) shrimp
½ cup mayonnaise
Dash of salt and white pepper
¼ cup finely grated cheddar cheese
Round buttery crackers

Drain shrimp and rinse in cold water. Mash shrimp with mayonnaise, salt and pepper. Spread about 1 teaspoon of the mixture on each cracker; sprinkle with cheese. Broil until cheese melts and browns slightly.

Serve at once; crackers will re-crisp during the time they are taken from the broiler and served. Makes 2 dozen or more.

Potato Bread Dotted With Ripe Olives

The mission padres may have planted the ripe olive trees, but the hungry miners reaped the fruits, judging from the salvaged "receipts." One, this ripe olive skillet bread, is heavy with potato, coarse with little kneading and moist with plenty of ripe olives; truly one of the best breads of its kind.

RIPE OLIVE SKILLET BREAD

- 1 clove garlic
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 package or cake yeast, active dry or compressed
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup warm potato water
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 tablespoon sugar
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup warm, freshly cooked, sieved potato
- 1 beaten egg
- 4 cups sifted flour
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cups canned pitted ripe olives

Mash garlic with salt to smooth paste. Soften yeast in warm water in large warm bowl. Add garlic-salt paste, oil, sugar and potato; beat until blended. Add $\frac{1}{4}$ cups flour and beat well. Cover and let rise 1 hour.

Add egg, remaining $\frac{1}{4}$ cups flour and olives, cut into wedges. Turn out on floured board and knead gently a few minutes to round up and smooth out dough. Turn into a well greased skillet (about 8-inches diameter). Brush top of dough with oil.

Let rise in warm place until dough fills pan and is rounded and double in bulk, about 50 to 60 minutes. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) 45 to 50 minutes until loaf is a deep rich brown and tests done.

Let cool in pan 10 minutes, then turn out on rack. Makes 1 large loaf.

Crumbled Bacon Is

Toothsome Tidbit

Crunchy golden bits of bacon top your favorite vegetables. Cook a few extra slices at breakfast, crumble and sprinkle over creamed onions, cauliflower in cheese sauce or creamed peas.

Bacon adds color and flavor to many vegetables, and is especially elegant with those that come frozen with their own sauce. A half-pound package of fresh bacon will yield about $\frac{1}{4}$ cup crumbled bacon.

Cubes of Canned Meat Cook With Vegetables

Open the door to flavorful new worlds with the key to a hearty canned luncheon meat. This skillet meal is as easy as opening a can.

In a short time a well-balanced dinner can be on the table ready to satisfy hungry family members. The tantalizing aroma of the luncheon meat with the hearty lean beef flavor will fill the kitchen with a marvelous bouquet and bring on cries of, "How soon is supper?"

Possibilities for creativity are unlimited — she may fry it, dice it, bake it, or slice it. For a quick and easy skillet meal this canned luncheon meat is cut into $\frac{1}{2}$ inch cubes and carefully blended with a variety of canned vegetables.

Mushrooms, peas, and whole Irish potatoes perfectly seasoned with a hint of rosemary, and salt and pepper result in a skillet meal to please even the fussiest of eaters.

LUNCHEON MEAT SKILLET MEAL

- 12 ounce can luncheon meat
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped onion
- 4 ounce can mushrooms, drained
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon rosemary
- 1 pound can whole potatoes, drained
- 8 ounce can peas, drained
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper

Melt butter in skillet. Cut luncheon meat into $\frac{1}{2}$ inch cubes. Stir meat, onion, mushrooms, and rosemary into butter in skillet. Cook for about 5 minutes. Blend in potatoes, peas, salt and pepper. Cover and cook for 10 minutes. Serve hot.

Simple Drop Cooky Nutritionally Good

Everyday Cookies

- $\frac{1}{4}$ cups sifted regular flour
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon each baking soda and salt
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup wheat germ
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter or margarine
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla
- 1 large egg
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup buttermilk

On wax paper, sift together the flour, baking soda and salt; stir in wheat germ. In a medium mixing bowl, cream the butter, brown sugar and vanilla; beat in egg thoroughly. Add flour mixture and buttermilk; stir thoroughly.

Drop level tablespoonfuls of the mixture, 2 inches apart, on lightly buttered cookie sheets. Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven until lightly browned — 8 to 10 minutes. Makes about 4 dozen.

Beef Strips Make Salad Hearty One

Cooked beef from the day before can make a delicious return engagement. Try serving it cold, thinly sliced, with an assortment of relishes, plus potatoes or spaghetti and a vegetable or, for a change, try this julienne beef salad.

Julienne Beef Salad

- 3 cups cooked roast beef, cut julienne-style
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas, cooked and drained
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 2 tablespoons capers
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup diced Cheddar cheese, if desired
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup salad oil
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- $\frac{3}{4}$ teaspoon salt
- 3 hard-cooked eggs
- 1 tablespoon finely sliced green onion
- Lettuce
- 6 pitted, ripe olives
- 6 2-inch-long carrot strips

Combine roast beef, peas, celery, capers and cheese. Chill. Mix together oil, vinegar, mustard and salt. Chop eggs finely and add to oil-vinegar mixture. Add onion. Chill.

Just before serving toss meat mixture with vinegar-oil mixture. Spoon into individual lettuce-lined salad bowls or plates. Garnish with carrot strips inserted in ripe olives.

LUNCHEON MEAT SKILLET — With a can of luncheon meat, you're set, even if you don't get home much before the dinner hour. This recipe which makes use of a number of canned foods and results in an interesting main course.

PIMIENTO STUFFED VEAL — Each slice of this roast is a colorful pinwheel, made by combining bright red pimientos with a delicately seasoned stuffing and rolling the meat jelly-roll fashion.

Roll Pimiento, Stuffing in Veal Roast

Want a change from the usual roast, ham or baked chicken? Then try this stuffed and rolled veal roast. Each slice is a colorful pinwheel, made by a layer of bright red pimientos, a layer of delicately seasoned stuffing and the meat rolled jelly-roll fashion and tied with strings.

Prepared in this way, the mild zesty-flavored pimientos blend with the stuffing, to season the meat just the way you want it.

PIMIENTO STUFFED VEAL ROAST

4 or 5 lb. veal shoulder roast, boned
1 jar or can (7 oz.) whole pimientos, drained
3 to 4 cups stuffing
¼ cup salad oil
1 tablespoon soy sauce

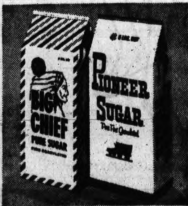

Give 'em the taste they deserve ...sugar!

MICHIGAN MADE PURE SUGAR

Half a Cake Is Just Enough for Newlyweds

There will be plenty for the groom — and a few of his friends.

Half a Chocolate Cake

½ cup un sifted regular flour
¼ teaspoon baking soda
Dash of salt
1 large egg
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 square (1 ounce) unsweetened chocolate
¼ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup milk

On a piece of wax paper, stir together the flour, baking soda and salt. Beat egg until thick and ivory color; add sugar and beat to blend.

Add melted butter, then chocolate and vanilla, beating to blend after each addition. Add flour mixture in three additions, alternately with milk, stirring just until smooth each time.

Turn into an 8-inch round layer-cake pan that has been greased, the bottom lined with wax paper and the paper greased. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 20 to 25 minutes.

Turn out; remove paper; cool. Cut in half vertically and put halves one on top of the other with a filling; cover with frosting.

Stuffing: 1 cup packaged seasoned stuffing mix, 2 cups crumbled cornbread, ¼ cup minced celery, ¼ cup minced onion, 1 chicken bouillon cube dissolved in 1 cup warm water. Thoroughly mix all ingredients and season with salt and pepper to taste. Add enough additional warm water to make a moist stuffing for easy spreading and rolling. About 4 cups.

With Ginger

Ever add silvered candied or syrup-preserved ginger to mayonnaise or sour-cream dressing to serve with a fruit salad? Nice for a ladies lunch.

Beat Egg, Milk With Fruit Juice

Do you have a breakfast skipper at your house? Often it's the teenage girl who is watching weight so closely that she's starving her body and skin for the essential nutrients of good health. One of the ways of helping her to good nutrition is to introduce at least one egg a day in her diet.

Few teenage girls have time to eat a good breakfast after spending precious moments on their beauty care, yet it is breakfast that means so much to their well being. A simple breakfast is the answer. Breakfast in a glass is the quickest and easiest way to see that the teenage Miss gets the essential protein, minerals and vitamins for beauty and good looks, as well as alertness in school.

Why not whip up a "Tropic-nog" which blends citrus juices with milk and an egg for a nutritious, quick and easy breakfast. "Tropic-nog" is also a nice pick-up for in-between-meals.

After you get your family in the breakfast habit, you'll find they will be happier and healthier, no matter what age.

To make sure your family stays healthy, energetic and alert — just keep an extra dozen of eggs on hand and serve this delicious "Tropic-nog" any time of the day as a quick boost for all. Eggs are so high in protein, low in calories and, "EGGonomical" too.

TROPIC-NOG

1 egg
¾ cup milk, chilled
2 tablespoons frozen orange-grapefruit concentrate

Combine all ingredients in shaker, glass jar, blender, or mixing bowl. Shake or beat to a froth or blend well at low speed. Pour into tall glass. Serve immediately. Makes one serving.

Carrots Top Sardine Mix

Raw grated carrot combines surprisingly well with sardines.

Open Sardine Sandwiches

1 can (3½ ounces) bristling sardines
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 scallion, minced (green part included)
8 thin slices whole-wheat bread, buttered

Lift sardines from their oil into a bowl; mash with mayonnaise and scallion; stir in ¼ cup grated carrot.

Spread all the slices of the bread with the mixture; at sprinkle with grated carrot. Makes 4 servings — 2 slices per portion.

For a Grate Job

Small rotary graters with hand-operated cranks are widely available and inexpensive; it is worth having one on hand for "grating" nuts for torten and other desserts.

GLENWOOD PLAZA CORNER NORTH PERRY AT GLENWOOD

Apricots Are Main Part of Dessert

If you like the tart-sweet taste of apricots, you'll go for this dessert in a big way. It's a heavenly combination of angel food cake and apricots, made whimsy light with instant nonfat dry milk.

To enhance the flavor, the recipe uses three kinds of apricots. There are canned apricot halves, apricot preserves and apricot nectar to really intensify that refreshing fruit tang.

Light and airy, Apricot Angel Mold is designed to satisfy those who long for dessert at the end of a meal, but worry about the calories. Never heavy, it's always cool and refreshing after a substantial dinner. This molded dessert could be — and should be — made up hours before serving time so that it will be firmly set.

An important part of this luscious dessert is angel food cake, whether it's homemade or store-bought, fresh baked or left from another meal.

Starting with a base layer of lemon gelatin and apricot nectar spiked with lemon juice, scatter angel food cake pieces in the mold. Next comes the airy part! Whip instant nonfat dry milk with the thickened gelatin mixture and a cup of apricot preserves.

Here's a convenience feature of nonfat. It whips with gelatin and egg whites making it unnecessary to whip each separately. It's a simple matter to whip instant nonfat dry milk so that it's fluffy and billowy. Just beat at high speed in your mixer with a liquid gelatin or egg white.

APRICOT ANGEL MOLD

1 package (3 oz.) lemon flavor gelatin
1½ cups (12-oz. can) apricot nectar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 can (1 lb.) peeled apricot halves, drained
½ cup instant nonfat dry milk
2 cup apricot preserves
2 cups angel food cake pieces, (about ½-inch size)
Sweetened whipped cream

In a bowl pour 1 cup boiling nectar over gelatin; stir until dissolved. Stir in remaining nectar and lemon juice. Set aside 6 apricot halves for garnish.

Arrange remaining apricot halves cut, side up in bottom of 9x9x3-inch loaf pan. Pour 1 cup gelatin mixture over apricots. Chill until partially set. Chill remaining gelatin until thickened but not firm.

Place thickened gelatin in small mixing bowl; add non-fat dry milk and preserves. Whip at medium speed about 5 minutes then whip at high speed until light and fluffy (about 10 minutes).

Scatter pieces of cake over set portion of gelatin in mold. Pour nonfat mixture over cake. Shake down so all spaces around cake are filled. Chill until firm.

To serve: Unmold onto chilled plate; garnish top and base of mold with remaining apricot halves and puffs of whipped cream. Makes 8-10 servings.

Cook, Then Chill

Salad Is Medley of Vegetables

An artfully prepared salad boasts an unequalled touch of freshness at any meal. Whether molded, tossed or frozen, salads are proudly displayed in menus from the appetizer course to desserts.

Now is just the time to try a new salad combination. Vegetable Bouquet Salad is a delightful mixture of fresh vegetables and plump canned sweet peas. The tangy oil and vinegar dressing is a perfect complement.

Refrigerate your salad until it is completely chilled. Then, add crisp bits of lettuce just before serving.

This make-ahead salad is a dandy buffet item. Offer a choice of buttered toasted croutons or crumbled blue cheese for a tasty topper.

Vegetable Bouquet Salad
½ head cauliflower
One 17-oz. can sweet peas, drained
½ cup diced carrots
¼ cup diced pimientos
¼ cup sliced green onions

3 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup wine vinegar
2 tablespoons salad oil
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
¼ cup sliced radishes
½ head lettuce, chopped

Separate cauliflower into florets; combine with peas, carrots, pimiento and onions.

Place sugar and vinegar in jar with tight-fitting cover. Shake until sugar is dissolved. Add oil, salt and pepper; shake until well mixed. Pour over vegetables.

Don't Peel First

Ever see "parsley potatoes" called for on a menu? To make them, cook small potatoes in their jackets in salted water and drain; remove the skins and reheat in melted butter. Strew with lots of minced fresh parsley and serve up the spuds.

APRICOT ANGEL MOLD—Keep cool at dessert time with this do-ahead dessert. Apricot Angel Mold. Chunks of angel food cake blended with apricot halves, and instant nonfat dry milk whipped with apricot preserves go into a tangy gelatin mixture with lots of flavor.

Oswald asks, "What is the first thing you do in timing your play of a no-trump contract?"

Jim: "I sort of reverse the word 'ARCH' and ask myself, 'How can I make this hand?'"

"I study the opening lead to see if my opponents have led against my weakest suit. They usually seem to do that nasty thing. Then I check to see if I can collect enough tricks to make my contract before they set up their suit and cash enough tricks to beat me."

Oswald: "Today's hand illustrates this. South has the four top hearts but unfortunately has his peace of mind and general well-being these four cards can only take two tricks. He misses two aces and if his opponents set up their suit they will make at least three heart tricks and set him. It is up to South to find a way to get nine tricks without giving up the lead more than once."

Jim: "A quick check would show me that I had three suits to work on. I could knock out the ace of spades and wind up with three spades and two hearts and two diamonds but that would be only seven tricks. I could go after diamonds and set up my long diamonds right away assuming that suit broke but that would also leave me only seven tricks before the roof fell in."

Oswald: "That leaves the club suit. You can attack that by winning the first heart with your queen and leading the nine of clubs from your hand. You plan to let it ride if West plays low. If East produces the queen you will have to reconcile yourself to going down at least two tricks but if it turns out that West holds the queen of clubs you have a chance to establish five club tricks for yourself. Five clubs plus two hearts plus two diamonds gives you the nine tricks you need."

Millions Shun 'Propaganda' on Drinking

LONDON (AP) — More than half of Britain's seven million drivers see nothing wrong in having "a drink or two" despite government propaganda to the contrary, says an Automobile Association club report just issued.

The AA, which has more than three million members, reports that a survey shows that about 13 per cent of British drivers don't drink because they are abstainers and 37 per cent make a point of abstaining when driving.

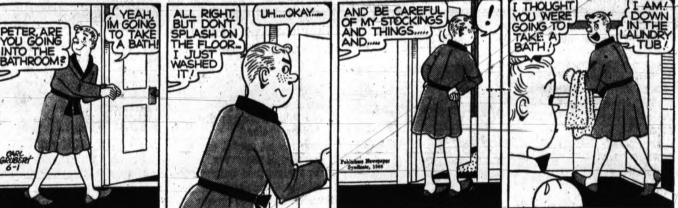

Of those who do drink and drive, says the survey, a third estimate that three drinks is a safe consumption, one in 10 do not know and the remainder reckon that up to six drinks is reasonable.

Nearly half of all car owners consider that the "rule of three" — three half pints of beer or three single whiskies — is reasonable, one fifth think drivers should not drink at all, while most of the remainder believe individuals vary too much for rules to apply.

Junior Editors Quiz on ROCKS

QUESTION: Can rocks breathe?

ANSWER: This question may not seem to make sense. We all know that breathing is what living things do in order to bring life-giving oxygen into their bodies.

But rocks are dead, nonliving materials. Obviously they can't breathe, since to breathe implies having life.

Our questioner, however, probably asked this question because he knew a remarkable fact about rocks—that even though they look so solid and are not alive, they have a great deal of oxygen gas in their composition.

The diagram at upper left shows that the element oxygen makes up about two-thirds of the material in a human being.

With every heart beat, we are sending fresh supplies of vital oxygen throughout our bodies.

But it is surprising to learn that the solid rock ball of the earth is composed of about 50 per cent of this oxygen gas which floats around so freely in the air.

Smaller amounts of oxygen and water constantly work their way into rock from the outside, too.

They combine in a chemical reaction which tends to break down the rock and is one of the ways in which soil is formed.

FOR YOU TO DO: Become a "rock hound" and learn more about this fascinating subject. You will need the material Jack has in the picture: a rock hammer, cold chisel, notebook, magnifying glass. Also, some kind of book about minerals or geology. Then go out and keep your eyes open for interesting rocks. You'll find them almost everywhere.

Current Books

EIGHT BELLS, AND ALL'S WELL, by Daniel V. Gallery (Norton $4.95): The autobiography of retired Rear Adm. Gallery, the only U.S. naval commander since 1815 who has captured an enemy vessel by boarding.

World War I was over by the time Gallery graduated from the Naval Academy, and his early career suffered from the stagnation of the "long armistice."

He pioneered night carrier operations and proved them practicable — some planes were lost but no one was hurt.

Then, in 1944, a far-out part of his worked. His people captured a U-boat intact, with code books and equipment. It was an exploit that took a lot of guts; the first man down the hatch of the sinking submarine got the (Congressional) Medal of Honor, and he deserved it.

Gallery is a tough-minded man with a Puckish sense of humor. He is also a professional writer, with three previous books and a number of magazine articles to his credit.

IS THE UNITED STATES READY FOR SELF-GOVERNMENT? by Robert Saffron (Tribune $4.95): The query in the title is rhetorical. It has nothing directly to do with the subject matter of the book, which is a comical novel about Washington. The hero of the novel is Peter Van Wyckler.

Having fribbled away most of the dwindling remnant of his family fortune, Van Wyckler has become at the outset of the story a minor bureaucrat concerned with the disposal of military surplus.

His efforts to get rid of 100 World War I cavalry saddles form the core of the plot. The idiocies of government procedure are Saffron's chief target, but he also gets in some telling whacks at congressional investigations and Civil War memorial observances.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, PHILOSOPHER AND MAN, by Alfred Owen Aldridge (Lippincott $7.95): In this biography the reader is likely to feel he is reading about an old friend. Franklin was an innovator in many things, possibly a genius, but his life stands chiefly as an example of the full man—responsible, kindly, generous and wise, taking joy in normal heart.

being what he was without envy of anyone else's station in life. Scarcely any field in which he took an interest — and he seemed interested in everything — was not illuminated by his observations.

His aphorisms and advice for the good life were many times borrowed and reworded — and Franklin often enough did not practice what he preached.

Pacemaker Lets Heart Take Over

By Science Service
CHICAGO — A new electronic pacemaker shuts itself off whenever the heart is working normally.

Generally good results for 17 patients are detailed in the Journal of the American Medical Association by investigators at Beth Israel Hospital, New York, N.J.

Five persons have had standby pacemakers permanently implanted, and three of the devices have been working for up to four months. Only the first patient treated had a "partial failure."

The 12 other patients used external, temporary units for brief periods — one of them for three months.

The others used external pacemakers for only a few days while awaiting implantation of other types of permanent units. The new pacemaker overcomes one difficulty of electronic heart stimulators, that is, the "competition between the heart's regular pulse and the pulse induced by a pacemaker operating at another rate."

The standby pacer keeps a heart beating at a steady 60 beats a minute, approximately, then shuts itself off when it senses that the heart is capable of maintaining its own rhythm.

It also lets the heart take over when the body needs a faster pulse rate.

A sensing circuit "listens" for the closing of the heart's ventricles. It is this electrical impulse that produces the so-called R wave, the highest rising wave on an electrocardiogram of a normal heart.

Cafe Swingiest Place in Armenian Capital

YEREVAN, Soviet Armenia now but still available for any 11,600 square miles and borders (AP)—The Araks Cafe has the policy change on allowing foreign stations to be heard.

MAN BAND
Another student said they have their own six-man band for the kind of modern Western youth music that Soviet authorities frowned upon. They call themselves Svetlyaky — the Glow Worms.

"We have gangsters here," a student volunteered brightly. "Little ones, not like American ones. They sell opium from Tashkent," in Soviet central Asia.

OPIMUM-RICH
Opium-rich poppies grow on the rugged hills around Yerevan, the capital of Soviet Armenia. The smallest republic in the Soviet Union, Armenia has Yerevan on three sides.

As in the rest of the Soviet Union, there is a housing shortage here. One young man reports a three-year wait for an apartment. Meanwhile he lives with his wife and baby in one room of his parents' small apartment.

Some Armenians build their own homes with government help, although problems like heating and transportation make suburbs of single-family houses less attractive than apartments for many. The houses straggling across the bleaker parts of the hills look little better than suburban slums.

Towering over these hills is the black stone base some 60 feet high from which a statue, once dominated the Yerevan skyline, it was a 54-foot figure.

of Joseph V. Stalin. In 1957 the statue was pulled down.

STALIN'S HEIRS
The local agents for Stalin's heirs, leaders of the Armenian Communist party, still occupy a prominent place. Their magnificent building on a grassy hill behind formal gardens is the kind of home that the richest man in Armenia might have built if Armenia had remained a free-enterprise area.

Armenians say the richest man might have been Anastas Mikoyan. But he put his Armenian talents to work for Stalin, outlived him and was president of the Soviet Union before retiring last December.

For the first time in many years, Mikoyan's portrait was out: meals are served on the balcony, not among those of Soviet Communist leaders prominently displayed for May Day in this city where he is a local hero. But one building on the edge of town found room for him around the corner from the main street. End ADY PMs Wed. June 1

2nd Double Hypernucleus Is Discovered

By Science Service
LOS ANGELES — The first double hypernucleus discovered in the United States — and the second anywhere in the world — has been detected by Dr. Derek J. Prowse.

The discoverer, appropriately enough, is a man who holds a double academic position — being both professor of physics at the University of California at Los Angeles and chairman of the department of physics at the University of Wyoming.

Dr. Prowse's double hypernucleus is the first known example of a lambda helium nucleus with an atomic weight of six.

A normal nucleus consists of neutrons and protons. In the case of the helium nucleus, which has an atomic weight of four, it consists of two neutrons and two protons.

The helium double hypernucleus has, in addition, two strange particles called lambda hyperons.

LIKE A NEUTRON

A lambda hyperon is a particle that behaves much like a neutron but is slightly heavier and quite unstable, having a lifespan of only one-billionth of a second.

The new find, Dr. Prowse says, may foreshadow the development of a complete periodic table of chemical elements with double, and possibly triple, hypernuclei.

Of more immediate importance to elementary particle physicists is the additional insight shed by the discovery of the powerful nuclear forces that bind together the two lambda hyperons as well as other particles in an atomic nucleus.

The world's first double hypernucleus, that of a beryllium atom, was discovered three years ago by Profs. Marion Danysz and J. Pniewski of the University of Warsaw.

Canada Tax Inflation Curb

OTTAWA (AP) — Slightly higher income taxes for all but the lowest paid workers became effective in Canada today in an effort to rein in inflationary pressures.

This is the second tax change in a year. As an example, a married man with two children, minimum deductions and a salary of $150 a week was paying $19.10 of his income prior to last July 1. Then the withholding was cut to $17.45. Today it was raised to $18.75.

There are variations by provinces, depending on how they and the national government share tax funds.

Another anti-inflation move: corporations are paying in monthly a new refundable tax amounting to 5 per cent of cash profits.

After 18 months this money will be repaid with interest, over an extended period.

The idea is to drain off money now with the hope that pressures will be easier later on.

For Navy, Air Force

'Instant' Airstrips or Copters Tested

By Science Service
WASHINGTON — Two new "instant" airstrips — an aluminum one that floats on rice paddies and one made of fiberglass that can be sprayed on bare ground from a helicopter — are being developed for the U.S. Navy and Air Force.

The Navy's version, made in eight-by-three-foot sections, consists of aluminum sandwiches filled with buoyant blocks of plastic foam.

A 13,000-pound UH-34D helicopter has already landed on the floating mat in tests at the U.S. Army Waterways Experiment Station, Vicksburg, Miss.

The helicopter produced landing forces of up to 26,000 pounds and taxied to within two feet of the mat's edge without damaging the mat or causing it to dip dangerously.

Field tests in Viet Nam are scheduled soon. The Aluminum Co. of America, manufacturer of the mat, claims a two-year life-span on either water or marshy surfaces.

Liver Cancer Is Blamed on Viruses

By Science Service
DENVER — Viruses have been implicated as a cause of cancer of the liver for the first time in experiments reported here.

Dr. Joseph W. Beard, director of the virus-cancer research laboratories and professor of surgery and virology at Duke University, Durham, N.C., reported to a meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research on results of a series of experiments in which chickens were inoculated with a strain of virus called MC29.

About half the animals examined, he said, developed liver tumors.

"So far as I know," he said in an interview prior to his speech, "no one has ever seen a virus-induced tumor of the liver."

He added that the experiments also represented the first time a chicken tumor virus had induced cancer in any endodermal tissue, which includes the pancreas, stomach and intestines as well as the liver.

UNTIL THIS TIME
Until this time, the viruses had been able to induce tumors only in blood-forming tissues and mesodermal tissues which include connective tissue and bone, he said.

Associated with him in the current study were Dr. Zahary Mladenov of Sofia, Bulgaria, formerly with the Duke laboratories, Dr. Ursula Heine and Mrs. Dorothy Beard.

Dr. Beard pointed out that a high incidence of liver cancer is associated with certain geographical areas, suggestive of a possible viral origin of the disease.

Although it is relatively rare in the United States, in certain parts of Africa, India and China, it accounts for as much as 20 per cent of all cancers.

For use on land, the Air Force is testing a mixture of fiberglass and polyester resin, which is ready for use an hour after being sprayed from a tank aboard a hovering helicopter.

The substance is only one of 15 resin materials being tested for such related tasks as rapid repair of bombed runways and landing sites for vertical take-off jets.

In one recent test, the fiber-glass-polyester mixture was sprayed over soft desert sand near Dallas, Tex. Spraying took 30 minutes and the coating had set within an hour.

The floor neither broke nor bent after being successively tested with two 3,000-pound cars and a 7,000-pound UH-1 helicopter, a 9,000-pound fork lift truck, a 10,500-pound S-58 helicopter and a 17,500-pound fire engine.

TOOK BEATING

An identical pad laid over bare earth was tested by a 31,000-pound CH-37 helicopter, which rolled, skidded and bounced over the entire surface, including the edges. The only damage to the pad was some scratches and tire skid marks.

Later this year, an entire hangar floor will be made from the mixture, which is being developed by LTV Aerospace Corporation, Dallas, Tex.

Transplanting Aim Hit by Prof

See Specter of Senile Population on Earth

By Science Service
NEW YORK — The specter of senile people overrunning the earth as a result of lives prolonged by receiving somebody else's heart or liver or arteries was presented here as a "terrifying prospect" by Sir George White Pickering, Oxford University professor of medicine.

Medicine, battling toward an indefinite life — span through transplants, meets its Waterloo at the brain — an inaccessible pinnacle, Dr. Pickering believes.

"Its connections are so complicated, and regeneration of severed nerves so imperfect and so slow, that it seems unlikely that transplantation will ever be technically possible," the English physician said at a symposium at Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons.

"Reflections on Research and the Future of Medicine" was the title of the discussion conducted jointly by the College and Merck Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories.

The brain as an adult organ owes much of its usefulness to the material stored away in its delicate, and as yet unrevealed, mechanism, said Dr. Pickering, pointing out that even Aldous Huxley in his "Brave New World" did not attempt to foretell the bizarre consequences of transplanting the brain.

ASKS QUESTION
The catastrophe of indefinite life has led Dr. Pickering to ask whether it is not time to halt the program of research and development that will make such a thing possible.

"The hint of such an idea by a man who has spent the bulk of his adult life in research of this kind savors of intellectual treason," he said.

"It is inhuman. It is at variance with the age-old ideas and ideals of the medical profession. Nevertheless, we must face up to the probable consequences of our ideas and ideals and be prepared to revise them."

"This is something which thoughtful folk should be expected to do, and have not yet done. It is time we did."

Kiddies Dig Space Talk

WICHITA, Kan. — Space age language is being picked up by the toddler set.

A little girl laid a dime on a concession stand counter and asked the operator:

"May I have a nose cone?" She got what she really wanted — a nose cone, which is a cup filled with crushed ice and sprinkled with a flavoring.

and it tells the date
as well as the minute

Gravity...the most constant source of power...keeps the Omega Seamaster running while you wear it. Every motion of your wrist is converted to power by an ingenious pendulum-like rotor which constantly winds the mainspring to peak efficiency. No hand-winding...no power cells to replace. Just wear your Seamaster each day...and on its own power...it will run indefinitely. The added convenience of knowing the exact date is also yours with a date-dial Seamaster. Each midnight the date changes automatically...only 5 times a year, in months with less than 31 days, need you change the date manually.

He'll Try Selling Gaullism--U.S.A. Style

By TOM A. CULLEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
PARIS — Drum majorettes soon may be prancing up the Champ Elysees in aid of President de Gaulle, if Michel Bongrand has his way.

Bongrand is a 44-year-old publicist who has just been hired by President de Gaulle's party to sell Gaullism to the nation in the 1967 election campaign.

"His job will be to market 483 Gaullist candidates much as he would market a new brand of toothpaste, and he will use the latest American techniques, if given the chance."

A short, stocky Frenchman who wears gold-rimmed glasses, Bongrand speaks English with an American accent.

"He thinks American. He even prefers bourbon whisky."

TAKE DEGREE
"My great ambition," he confides, "is to take a degree in psychology at Columbia University."

Certainly, Bongrand's methods are the closest yet France has come to Madison Avenue.

It was Bongrand who launched Jean Lecanuet as the "French Kennedy" in the presidential elections last December, boosting him from oblivion to third place in 23 days.

Before that, Bongrand piloted a James Bond sales campaign in France which was so successful it was adopted in America.

VIRILITY SYMBOL
Bongrand's contribution was to present Bond as a virility symbol. On this basis, over $15 million worth of James Bond shirts, shoes, hats and suitcases were sold in France.

It is as the man who tried to paint Paris green that Bongrand is best known, however.

"Many people have painted Paris red," he says, having his little joke. "But I am the only one who ever tried to paint it green."

"Green," he explains, cutting the end off an enormous cigar, "is the color of Europe. So we thought of using green as the symbol of Lecanuet, who is very European-minded, backs the Common Market and all that."

LABELLED UNTRUE

"But it's absolutely untrue that we planned to hoist green flags over every public building in Paris on G (for Green) Day. Nor did we plan to have Lecanuet and his wife dress up in streets of Paris. These stories are absolute nonsense."

Bongrand and his associates did plan, however, on G Day to put green transparencies over the floodlights that light the Eiffel Tower.

And they did think of putting green dye in the Seine.

"Lecanuet was against it," afraid that the dye would pollute the water, and that would cost us the fishermen's vote.

Other election gimmicks which Lecanuet vetoed include the distribution of roses to Renault workers by pin-up girls, an election film showing Lecanuet in pajamas and having his morning shave.

In fact, one gets the impression that Lecanuet spent more time dampening down the enthusiasm of his press agent than he did in electioneering.

"We also had the idea of hiring a couple of 'plate' radio ships and anchoring them off the French coast so that Lecanuet could address the nation," the ash from his cigar.

"But Lecanuet turned it down. He argued, and quite rightly, that it would never do to broadcast to the French people from outside the nation. The psychology was all wrong."

PSYCHOLOGY

Bongrand is a great believer in psychology. In fact, he was studying this subject when the war broke out and he found himself first in the resistance, then joining forces with the Free French in Algiers.

After the war, the thickest doze-to-doz, then scraped enough money together to form his own agency.

In 1949 France was at least 10 years behind America in advertising techniques, so the field was wide open for a young man of Bongrand's ambition.

BOND CAMPAIGN
The James Bond campaign three years later put it on the map.

The youthful ad man insists that the campaign he will stage for the 483 Gaullist candidates will be dignified, though he will make full use of depth psychology and of market research techniques.

"There is no question of manipulating General de Gaulle's way."

ideas," he says. "We are here merely to suggest ways in which these ideas can be put over to the masses."

The only slogan which Bongrand has come up with so far, is "De Gaulle is more certain." Bongrand won't say of what — just more certain.

He's Confined for Short Rest

MT. VERNON, Ill. — A weary truck driver passing through Mt. Vernon decided to go to a movie, fell asleep and got locked in the theater.

At 12:49 a.m. Redford Cherry of Bowling Green, Ky., called police for help to get out. Police called Ralph Pavitt, a theater employee who used a key to unlock the theater. Cherry thanked everyone and, then refreshed, went on his way.

Construction at Mall

Sounds Herald New Looks for Firms

Progress is much in evidence at Pontiac Mall this week as the shopping center marks the fourth year of its existence.

The sounds made by construction workers, busy at their trade, will be heard as the Mall's two largest stores — Montgomery Ward and Co. and J. L. Hudson Co. Budget Store — begin new phases of far-reaching programs.

CHARLES H. ALFORD

New Head Is Named at Ward's Store

Montgomery Ward and Co. has named Charles H. Alford of Grosse Pointe Farms as manager of the firm's store at Pontiac Mall.

Alford, 47, replaces Fred D. Schunck, store manager the past two years, who has been promoted to company merchandise manager for the Detroit metropolitan district.

A native of Harrodsburg, Ky., Alford has been with Montgomery Ward and Co. 27 years, having served as manager of seven other company stores.

Alford comes to the Mall facility from the 7 Mile and Gratiot store where he served as manager the past three years. He also served as a Ward store manager at Alpena in the early 1950s.

He also has worked out of Ward's home office in Chicago, has been zone merchandiser for southern Illinois and southern Indiana and has been regional merchandiser for the north central region with offices in Chicago.

3RD MANAGER

The third manager of the Pontiac store, Alford is a long-time associate of the store's first manager, Les Gillian.

Gillian now manages Ward's store at 12 Mile Road and Dequindre in Warren.

A graduate of Harrodsburg, Ky., High School, Alford attended business school for one year in addition to several company training schools.

Alford and his wife, Myrtle, do not have any children.

At Ward's, workers were scheduled to begin tearing down the wall at the north end of the store yesterday or today to construct a large addition to the auto service center.

According to new store manager Charles Alford, 15 car stalls will be added to the existing 10, more than doubling the space in the auto service center.

"It will be the largest auto service center we (Ward's) have in the Detroit area," said Alford, who noted there are 10 company stores in the metropolitan Detroit area.

When construction is completed, Ward's will offer complete services to Pontiac area residents, according to Alford.

Construction will not interfere with shoppers in the main store or customers at the auto service center, Alford said.

The service station expansion will amount to 13,000 square feet. Also planned is a 60,000-square-foot main store addition.

Company officials claim that the additions will add about 60 per cent to the size of the store.

When construction is completed, it is estimated that the store's current work force of 450 will be expanded to about 650.

At Hudson's, the second phase of the firm's $2.4-million Mall expansion program is under way. Two entrances are being relocated, and exterior walls are being converted from gray precast material to white brick.

Also, new display windows are being installed, according to store manager Robert Greening.

During the first phase of construction, 10,000-square-feet of the existing structure was torn down to provide for the expansion.

Upon completion of construction — scheduled for 1967 — the J. L. Hudson Co. Mall facility will be a full-line department store. Some 200,000-square-feet of floor space will have been added.

New Shopping Center Office for Pontiac Travel Service

A local travel bureau will open a new office this week at Pontiac Mall Shopping Center, Elizabeth Lake and Telegraph, in Waterford Township.

Pontiac Travel Service will move from its present facility at 702 W. Huron to 106 Pontiac Mall Office Building next to the Community National Bank Mall branch office.

Located at the West Huron address since its founding 10 years ago, Pontiac Travel Service deals with international and domestic travel arrangements.

Owner Russell Gustavson said he expects the business to be moved to its new location either today or tomorrow.

Regular store hours will be 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The store will be closed Saturday and Sunday.

In addition, Pontiac Travel maintains a booth on the Mall concourse. Booth hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 9:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Fridays and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays.

Six persons are employed at Pontiac Travel, according to Gustavson.

Quebec 18-Year-Olds Vote for 1st Time Next Sunday

MONTREAL (AP) — Quebec's election Sunday will give 18-year-olds a chance to vote for the first time. It also will provide the first formal test of strength for the so-called separatists — those who advocate Quebec's secession from Canada.

The outcome of the provincial election is not in doubt, however. Premier Jean Lesage's Liberal party is expected to return to power with a substantial majority despite the opposition of the separatists, another new party advocating a partnership arrangement and the established National Union party.

The main opposition still is the National Union, which is fighting an uphill battle to regain some of the glory it knew under the late Maurice Duplessis.

Political analysts say the two new parties will win only a few seats at best, but the premier, now 53, is giving them a lot of attention in his intensive airborne campaign.

AMONG STUDENTS

It is not certain whether any party will benefit by the vote of the thousands of youths under 21. The separatists have been popular among student groups, but some Quebec observers believe the new voters will be divided about the same way as the older voters.

This will be the first provincial election ever held on a Sunday. The object is to get a larger turnout than on a weekday. Many European and Latin American countries usually vote on a Sunday.

The election is for 108 seats in the Legislature. Lesage is seeking a solid majority to strengthen his hand in his struggle with the federal government for greater autonomy for Quebec.

Leader of the National Union party is Daniel Johnson, 51. Despite his English name, Johnson is in some ways more French than Lesage. Actually, Johnson's mother tongue is French. He is urging that French be given a legal status as the "national" language of Quebec.

NEW PARTIES

The new parties are the Ralliement Nationale (RN) and the Rassemblement Indépendance Nationale (RIN). They could have an effect on the outcome in districts where the major parties are evenly matched.

The RN is basically a right-wing group backed by Creditiste leaders who up to now have taken part only in federal politics.

The leader is Laurent Legault, 46, who comes from the town of Rouyn, home town of Creditiste leader René Caouette. Legault, president of a trucking company, formerly was president of the Creditiste organization.

The RN does not advocate secession of Quebec but is campaigning to make the province an associate state in a partnership with English Canada.

OUTRIGHT SEPARATION

The RIN seeks outright separation and the formation of an independent Quebec. This group is headed by Pierre Bourgault, 32, a former reporter for Montreal's La Presse.

In Rouyn, home base of the RN, Lesage assailed those who, he said, would like to have the country descend into anarchy.

"They are the weak and timid ones," he said.

"Separatism is not independence. Many countries like Algeria have tried to separate, but it has led them only to catastrophe and economic trouble." Lesage seeks greater autonomy for the province but is trying to preserve the 99-year-old Canadian confederation.

Johnson Maintains that French Canada is a nation with a "natural inalienable right to self-determination." If there were no other way, he said recently, he would go along with the separatists because "I have always placed the future of Quebec and of French Canada ahead of everything else."

He added, however, that he thought "before turning to such a radical solution... we first try to reach a new agreement, a new pact of alliance."

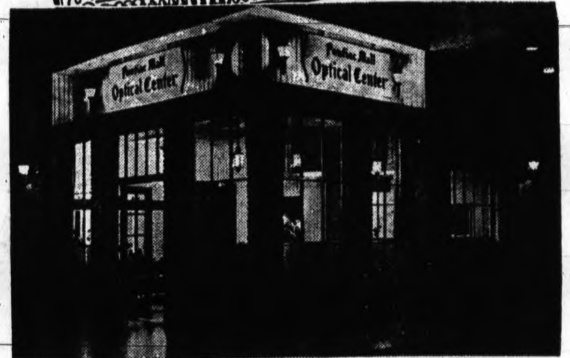

Ex-Law Officer Faces Obscene Photo Charge

STANTON (AP) — Harold Kesselring, 44, a former Stanton police chief and Montcalm County undersheriff, waived examination Tuesday in Justice Court on a charge of possessing obscene and lewd photographs for lending.

Justice Benjamin Franklin bound him over to Circuit Court, but ordered him released on personal recognizance bond to await arraignment.

Kesselring was arrested Tuesday by State Police Detective Ed Goss of the Ionia Post after an investigation with postal inspectors. Goss said Kesselring, now a resident of Greenville, had been receiving the photographs through the mails.

Aeroflot, the Soviet Union's airline, is expected to carry more than 48 million passengers during 1966, Moscow reports.

CHICAGO-BOUND — Consuelo Lopez Martinez, 49, (second from right) leaves Miami with seven of her offspring after being airlifted from Cuba. The family stayed at Freedom House temporarily and then moved to Chicago to join two other members of the family.

Costs U. S. $10 Million

Cuba Airlift Has Rescued 25,000

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The airlift from Cuba, six months old today, has brought nearly 25,000 voluntary exiles to the United States. It has cost American taxpayers nearly $10 million.

Almost unnoticed, Cubans arrive at the rate of 1,000 weekly. Nearly two-thirds of them fly on to other U.S. cities to start life anew. The others join the Miami exile colony of more than 100,000.

Attractive Angela Benitez Escaluna, 36, waiting at Freedom House, where refugees live until their resettlement airplane comes, said she would join two sons, 17 and 14, in New York.

"I haven't seen them in four years," said the mother, cradling another son, 4 months old, in her arms.

FLIGHTS STOPPED

"I sent them to the United States so they would not become Communists. I was going to follow, and then flights from Cuba stopped."

There has been no U.S.-Cuban commercial airline traffic since the 1962 missile crisis.

Mrs. Escaluna said her husband had remained in Cuba "so he wouldn't lose his job while he had to support the baby, but we hope to get him here."

Cubans usually are fired after they ask to leave the country and often must wait a long time for their turn to leave, refugees report. When Cubans depart, they must leave behind all belongings.

HAPPY PARENT

Also at bustling Freedom House, Zaida del Toro, 7½ months pregnant, beamed: "My child will be an American citizen."

With her were her husband, Reinaldo, 42, and their three sons, 6, 7 and 13. The family headed for New York, where relatives live.

Del Toro's explanation of why he had left Cuba was typical of the refugee stream: "We didn't want our children to become Communists. There is no freedom in Cuba. Aslo, there isn't much to eat. Except for three-fourths pound of meat a week, we had been living mostly on sweet potatoes and peas."

U.S. officials estimated the airlift had cost at nearly $400 per exile. This includes chartering the plane and getting the newcomers settled. Normally there are two flights each week day.

$36,000 Tax Lien Filed Against Singer

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — The federal government filed today in Monterey County Superior Court a $36,083.97 tax lien against folk singer Joan Baez.

Miss Baez annually refuses to pay 60 per cent of her tax bill because she says she does not wish to support the nation's war efforts.

Solid-Jade Jaguar Head

Unearthed in Guatemala

PHILADELPHIA — The largest single piece of carved jade ever found in Middle America, was recently unearthed in an ancient Mayan tomb at Tikal, Guatemala.

The solid jade piece — in the shape of a jaguar's head — weighing three pounds, 11 ounces, was one of many objects found in the 1,200-year-old tomb, said Dr. William R. Coe of the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania.

Other pieces found in this and a second tomb included jade bracelets, necklaces and other such ornaments.

Beautifully painted plates, wooden figures and pots were also discovered during the final year of the 11-year Tikal Project undertaken by the University Museum and the Government of Guatemala.

All archaeological pieces belong to the Guatemalan government and will be put into the museum there, said Dr. Coe, who will return to Tikal in August for the final excavation before the autumn rains descend and the jungle once again moves in on still buried treasure. The project is ending because of lack of funds.

A GREAT CENTER

Tikal was once the cultural capital and greatest ceremonial center of the lowland Maya civilization, which had its most creative and productive period from about 200 B.C. to 900 A.D.

No one knows exactly why the great civilization declined, said Dr. Coe. It may have been because of factors such as overpopulation, shortage of food and a series of social revolutions.

Gum Disease Is Cheating Teeth Out of Americans

NEW YORK (AP) — "Your gums should be as tough as a callus on your hand," said the dentist. "But most people don't know that yet."

Partly for that reason, Americans are victimized by a galloping, costly epidemic of gum disease, made all the more woe-ful because it can be stopped, and it can be prevented.

Second only perhaps to the common cold in the millions of victims claimed, this saboteur is periodontal disease, meaning an affliction of the gums and bone and other tissues around the teeth.

One national survey estimates conservatively that 75 per cent of Americans — who still have at least one permanent tooth left — have or had this disease. And 25 per cent had it in its destructive form.

After age 35, periodontal disease causes greater loss of teeth than tooth decay. The lost teeth often are quite healthy. And it is a major reason for needing false teeth or dentures.

DISEASE GROWS

In its major form, periodontal disease begins as gingivitis — inflammation of the gums — but then can progress to destructive periodontitis, sometimes called pyorrhea.

A red-streaked toothbrush may be one early sign of gingivitis. Irritated gums become swollen and red, and retreat a bit from the teeth. Gums bleed easily. But they usually do not hurt, so it's easy to ignore this beginning of an insidious process.

As the disease progresses, little open pockets form between gums and teeth. They fill with food particles, with calculus or "tartar," and with germs.

Inflammation spreads, reaching down to the roots of teeth. Gums recede. Tiny fibers of tissue anchoring the teeth break down, and bony tissue clamping the roots of teeth dissolves away.

TAKING TOLL

Teeth loosen, and periodontitis is taking its full toll.

But the dentist can intervene before this all happens, and can act sooner if people are aware of danger signals, of what is happening.

Calculus forming just under the gum line is one major irritant triggering off gingivitis. Unchecked, it can spread deeper toward teeth roots. Only a dentist or hygienist can remove the offending, crusty material.

Other irritants may be involved, such as sharp edges in cavities of decaying teeth, or worn-out fillings and crowns. And little blobs of food, especially soft foods so common today, becoming impacted between teeth and gums or in pockets promote the process, acting as chemical incubators for spread of infection.

UNEVEN TEETH

Teeth that fail to meet evenly when food is chewed set up uneven pressures and shocks adding to the injurious process.

In early stages, removal of the calculus and treatment of minor inflammation, polishing of teeth and adjustment of the "bite" can halt the process.

With more advanced disease, the dentist must remove the pockets of infection. He may have to recontour the gumline surgically, reforming it to fit the teeth more snugly.

He may have to operate on bone tissue itself, correcting pockets stretching into the bony area, correcting bone deformities to reestablish healthy conditions between gums, teeth and supporting structures.

Then — as every person who has undergone corrective steps knows so well — prevention lies mainly with the individual, through good habits of oral hygiene.

Some of the newer devices to aid in maintaining healthy teeth and gums include water sprays, attached to the faucet or operating independently by electricity.

Big Change of NATO Is Unlikely

LONDON (UPI) — Hesitations and differences among the Allies are likely to slow down the much-advertised plans for a major revamping of NATO following France's pullout from its military command.

The remaining 14 partners have spent several weeks in close consultation in search of a new cloak for the defense alliance.

Plans called for a blueprint for a "streamlined" organization minus France, for presentation to NATO's ministerial council meeting in Brussels June 6.

But what was to have been major surgery now looks like a mere holding operation, to gain time before new important commitments are pledged by the 14.

The advocates of a new, bold design for NATO appear to have been overruled by the protagonists of a go-easy-on-France policy.

ALMOST CERTAINLY

Hence, the NATO Council in Brussels will almost certainly put off a decision on moving NATO's political headquarters from Paris to another site outside France.

It is also expected to go slow on plans to telescope NATO's major military planning bodies.

President Charles de Gaulle served notice on NATO to remove its military headquarters—SHAPE—from France which is pulling out French forces from the integrated Allied command starting July 1.

This has left the remaining 14 partners with no choice. The military command will consequently be shifted, probably to a site in Belgium near Brussels.

DIFFICULT OPERATION

The operation is as difficult as it is costly. The alliance invested about $1 billion in building up pipelines, communications, airfields, arms depots and the like.

The inevitable shift of SHAPE caused some Allied planners to suggest that if the military headquarters must go from France, its political headquarters also should be shifted, because it would be chancy — or "crazy" as one top diplomat put it — to separate the two especially in the event of an emergency.

It was further argued that once this is done, the various organs of NATO should be combined and the military planning groups of the alliance brought over from Washington to the site of NATO's new headquarters.

Since then, second thoughts apparently have entered Allied deliberations.

COUNTERING ARGUMENTS

Suggestions to shift NATO to London were countered with the argument that it would lend support to de Gaulle's charges that the "Anglo-Saxons" dominate the alliance.

Men Can Beat Their Wives in the Wig-Wearing Game

NEW YORK (AP) — Keep your eye on modern George. He's as changeable as a cham-eleon.

Like his wife, he can be a blond trailblazer by morning, a red-haired riot at noon, and by sundown a raven-haired homme fatale. And for the same reasons — a change of wigs.

Unlike his wife, he can be bald when he goes to bed.

Yet Mark Traynor, inventor of full-sized wigs, not toupees, for men, claims he has as many satisfied customers with a full head of hair as he does mature gentlemen with glabrous craniums.

HAVE MORE FUN

Not only do blonds have more fun. Traynor says any man does who changes the color of his tresses once in a while, especially if nature is beginning to brush up his real crop with gray.

Furthermore, wigs are a saving. Busy men who match theirs to their own current hair color can go under cover for a while, and thereby postpone trips to the barbershop.

Long-haired musicians — the rock 'n' roll kind — are also among Traynor's faithfuls. For a group of gyrating guitar strummers who consider a mop in motion essential to their image, and yet find curls during the daylight hours strictly for girls, Traynor grew a few wigs to shoulder-length that swing with the beat.

Actually, Traynor, a spare young man with a burgeoning supply of blond hair grown on his own, is a makeup artist who did the wigs for men as a gag on Johnny Carson's television show. The response was so overwhelming from the long-haired, short-haired and no-haired men around the world that he was suddenly in a new business.

WIGS ARE SLICK

Depilated gentlemen flock to Traynor's shop for curly locks because wigs are easier to put on, are light, pourous and more comfortable to wear, and not as easily detected. A toupee, or hairpiece, Traynor says, must be glued to certain shaved spots on the head, and even then it reveals itself as a fraud.

Scarce-haired Joe Cunningham, an artist from Scarsdale, wig-tested Traynor's product by debuting an ash blond number at a formal dinner recently. Not only was he and it a hit, his wife who tried it on found the style becoming to her, too.

"We're thinking of ordering 'his and her' wigs," says Joe, and Traynor is mulling over the possibility of this new marketing concept.

Trinidad Seeks Entry Into OAS

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (AP)—The Trinidad and Tobago government, independent from Britain since 1962, is moving toward membership in the Organization of American States in search of trade and aid from the alliance for progress.

"We need an outlet," Foreign Minister Patrick Solomon told an interviewer. "We must increase productivity, educate our people, and find new markets."

The government of the two Caribbean islands hopes OAS membership will clear the way for entry into the Latin American Free Trade Association—IAFTA—a potential customer for its oil. Trinidad refineries face increasing world competition. Prospects are also poor for its second product, sugar.

Solomon told a recent meeting of Caribbean leaders that if the West Indies form an economic bloc, they could join the OAS as a unit. But they are watching the OAS discussions of charter changes.

FUND ACCESS

"The greatest single advantage in membership of the OAS is access to funds of the Alliance for Progress," Solomon said. The government of Prime Minister Eric Williams has indicated irritation at the lack of a U.S. aid program in Trinidad, although its $550 per capita income is higher than any other Latin-American country except Venezuela.

Trinidad is receiving $30 million from the United States for leasing air and missile bases. The bulk of its $20 million annual tourist business is from U.S. travelers. The gross national product is $600 million.

But unemployment is nearly 15 per cent, and the government is struggling to train teachers and build schools for the thousands who annually swell the population of nearly one million. Negroes make up Trinidad and Tobago's largest ethnic group—44 per cent.

Tax benefits are attracting new manufacturers, ranging from auto assembly plants to a Japanese zipper factory, but construction, fishing and agriculture are only starting to develop. Imports of beef and dairy products contribute to a $115-million trade deficit. Eighty-three per cent of investments are owned in Britain, Canada and the United States.

Rice is the staple diet of about 1,100,000,000 people, about a third of the world's population.

Cute Names for Catastrophe

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Alma visits, she may raise the roof. Literally. And Becky and Celia could rip your house apart.

Have faith when Faith comes calling. Better yet, batten down the hatches.

The girls are among the hurricanes and tropical cyclones expected sometime between June and November. The Weather Bureau disclosed recently the names by which they'll be known.

In the east, storms will be known as Alma, Becky, Celia, Dorothy, Ella, Faith, Greta, Hallie, Inez, Judith, Kendra, Lois, Marsha, Noreen, Orpha, Patty, Rena, Sherry, Thora, Vicky and Wilma.

In the west they'll be called Adele, Blanca, Connie, Dolores, Eileen, Francesca, Gretchen, Helga, Ione, Joyce, Kirsten, Lorraine, Maggie, Norma, Orlene, Patricia, Rosalie, Selma, Toni, Vivian and Winona.

The Weather Bureau said the practice of calling hurricanes by girls' names was begun in 1953 to provide easy-to-remember identification and hints no similarity between real girls and storms.

Rusk Will Stress Peace Role of NATO

By PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In the fuss and fury over the French withdrawal from NATO and concern for the organization's future, it frequently is overlooked that NATO is more than a simple defense pact.

One of its most important provisions is contained in Article 2:

"The parties will contribute toward the further development of peaceful and friendly international relations by strengthening their free institutions, by bringing about a better understanding of the principles upon which these institutions are founded, and by promoting conditions of stability and well-being."

As it labors to preserve NATO as a strong alliance despite the absence of France, the United States is stressing this side of NATO's character.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, in Brussels for the June 7-8 meeting of the NATO council, will argue that NATO remains the best instrument for settling East-West differences, including trade.

Thus he would rule out French President Charles de Gaulle's determination to work out his own accommodations with the Communist world and would insist that any agreement be worked out by NATO as a whole.

INITIATIVE

Within this framework, there remains room for individual initiative.

One example is a proposal by Denmark that the 15 NATO nations consider a conference on European security with the seven nations of the Warsaw Pact headed by the Soviet Union.

Another was a West German proposal which, in effect, offered the Soviet Union a non-aggression pact and sought to settle differences with Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Linked also is President Johnson's determination to "build bridges" to Eastern Europe and his proposal to Congress that it undertake legislation to liberalize trade with Communist nations, with certain exceptions such as Red China, North Korea, East Germany and North Viet Nam.

WILL NOT ACT

The fact that Congress apparently will not act on the proposal this year drew a rebuke from Secretary Rusk last week.

As the East European Communist bloc moves toward a certain independence of Moscow, U.S. trade restrictions remain a formidable barrier to good relations.

countries a little more than a year ago, this correspondent heard it repeatedly.

The Poles reminded me that they owed the U.S. around $750-million and would be repaying it in dollars beginning next year and running through the year 2,000. But they complained U.S. trade restrictions made it difficult to expand the low level of trade between the two countries.

LIKE DIFFICULTIES

Alluding to similar difficulties, a Bulgarian shrugged, "you can't force beauty." The Czechs, hoping to build a tourist trade, said they also wanted to send Czech tourists to the United States. But, they said, a planned tour had to be canceled because of U.S. visa restrictions.

But with or without the U.S. and with or without Congress, the United States' NATO partners are building their bridges to the East.

A notable example is the disclosure that Italian Fiat and French Renault soon will be in the automobile-making business in Soviet Russia.

Romania Rocks in Freer Air

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — A pig-tailed singer twangs out "Come on boy, let's do the shake." Outside the iron fence of the Cina restaurant, a dozen youngsters respond with enthusiastic gyrations in an open-street jam session under the eyes of a stern-faced militiaman.

Those who can afford to pay 80 lei — $4.40 at the tourist exchange rate — for a bottle of wine live it up in the nearby Melody bar, one of the swinging night spots in East Europe.

The Twist, still frowned upon in some Communist countries, already is outdated among the sophisticated Bucharest set.

Their knowledge of things Western comes from a carefully dosed step-up of cultural imports from the United States and West Europe, from listening to the Voice of America and devouring stacks of Western newspapers and magazines that every visitor is obliged to bring in for his Romanian friends.

The regime has begun to unlock the minds of its people in a cautious move toward liberalization. Tourist travel to the West still is restricted but the regime has promised to ease restrictions once sufficient hard-currency funds are available.

"The Communists have realized that the average Romanian is too much of a Mediterranean individualist to stand forever this kind of heavy-handed treatment," a seasoned Western observer explained. "So they are trying to make themselves more popular by giving the people a safety valve to let off the accumulated steam."

The trend, shrewdly manipulated by Communist party chief Nicolae Ceausescu, is reflected by developments in Romanian literature. Romanian writers and artists long have been chafing under rigid party controls. Controls are relaxing, but they are still there.

Many writers who had fallen into disgrace for refusing to abide to "Socialist realism" — meaning glorification of Communist rule — are back on the literary scene. They are allowed to publish nonpolitical works. The safest way still is to stick to the party's guidelines — emphasis on patriotic themes. Patriotism and nationalism, once condemned as heresy, now are openly encouraged by the regime in its Romania-for-Romanians attitude of independence from the Soviet Union.

The party still is immune to criticism. Romanian authors may point up mistakes in carrying out the party's directives — but never write critically about the party or its leaders.

One of the literary sensations of the 1960s, Dumitru Radu Popescu's best-selling novel "Blue Lion," has received the green light for stage production. He was lauded by the party organ

Popescu studied his book with acid references to Stalinism and veiled allusions to Stalinist leftovers in contemporary writings.

Another stage hit "St. Mitica the Meak" by Aurel Balanga, reportedly written with Ceausescu's express approval pictures the brainless party functionary type in the person of a factory manager who creates eternal confusion by constantly reshuffling his staff to weed out politically unreliable elements.

So Relax, America

British Are Coming

LONDON (AP) — Watch out how you spend your leisure this summer. The British have an eye on you.

Specifically, one Briton named Ian Crichton, pronounced, cry-ton. He is starting out to study leisure in the United States, and he's serious about it.

He is a columnist for the London Daily Telegraph, a onetime army parachutist and a Cambridge graduate in geography.

When he found out that the Winston Churchill Memorial Trust was awarding 66 traveling fellowships, he became one of 200 British newspapermen to apply.

Crichton got one of the places and said he wanted to study something he admittedly knows very little about — leisure.

BIG PROBLEM

"With more and more leisure coming our way, I think this is one of the most important problems of our day," he says.

He began to think seriously about the problem when a young and pretty girl told him in some distress:

"What am I to do with myself from Friday evening until next Monday morning?"

To this Crichton says: "As I was busy with someone else at the time there wasn't much I could do about this, but on reflection it seemed that here was a real tragedy. "Call it lack of imagination, lack of will, laziness, shyness or what you like, but what disturbs me is that there may be many people all over the civilized world who feels like this."

Crichton flies to Washington today and plans to return Sept. 7.

"In 14 weeks in America," he said, "I hope to see a cross-section of American ways of spending leisure — and in particular, how the state and local authorities can help by providing funds or facilities."

He is particularly interested in Kensington Park outside Detroit, where five counties have combined to produce open-air facilities.

HOLD INTERVIEWS

He hopes to talk to federal and state officers, sociologists, chambers of commerce, newspaper editors and personnel managers of large American companies.

He wants to visit Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Cambridge, Mass., Boston, Concord, N.H., Rockland, Maine, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, South Bend, Chicago, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City, Portland, Ore., San Francisco, Los Angeles, Las Vegas, Albuquerque, Tulsa, Houston, New Orleans, Miami, Key West, Tampa, Atlanta, Richmond.

Crichton plans to see America by bus, airplane and train.

How does he usually spend his leisure?

He writes plays and short stories, paints, reads, attends the opera, goes gliding and dates girls. He is 40.

New Process Can Make Ceramics 8 Times Stronger

By Science Service

LOS ANGELES — A new process that can make ordinary ceramics eight times as strong has been developed in a University of California, Los Angeles, engineering laboratory.

The research by Profs. Francis R. Shanley and William J. Knapp points to a host of likely new uses for ceramics, ranging from nose cones for missiles to prefabricated ceramic houses.

In a series of tests using a compression process called "prestressing," the scientists applied 10,000 pounds of pressure per square inch along the width and length of an ordinary brittle tile.

For laboratory purposes, the compression force was furnished by two hydraulic jacks, each of which exerted 30 tons of pressure against the edge of the six-inch-square tile.

A third jack, pushing from below, tested the load-bearing strength of the compressed tile. HEAVIER LOADS

Results of the experiment showed that brittle ceramics are eight to 10 times stronger under compression than in tension that is, they can support much heavier loads without cracking when their particles are pushed together.

The same process also keeps ceramics from cracking under the thermal shock of sudden heating and from shattering into pieces, even if loaded beyond capacity.

Ceramics could be used to make strong, lightweight, decorative, fire-proof and earthquake-resistant buildings, as well as bridges, roadpaving and airport runways.

The high heat resistance of ceramics is already making them useful in jet and rocket engines and for space vehicles exposed to extreme temperatures during reentry into the atmosphere.

Efforts on State Campus Play Role

Leukemia Research 'Looks Promising'

(EDITOR'S NOTE — At Michigan's two largest universities thousands of dollars and man hours are spent in the search for virus that may be the cause of the killer disease leukemia. This is the first of a two-part series summing up leukemia research in Michigan.)

By GENE SCHROEDER
Associated Press Writer

ANN ARBOR — Research on Michigan campuses may some day mean the difference between life and death for thousands of victims of leukemia, commonly known as cancer of the blood.

Test tubes and electron microscopes, drugs and vaccines, newborn puppies and mice all play a role in the search for a virus which may cause human leukemia, a so-far incurable and usually fatal disease.

"Things look very promising," says Dr. William Murphy of the University of Michigan Medical School's Department of Microbiology. His research dates back to 1954, and he believes it may not be completed for another 10 years.

Dr. Murphy's work, along with experiments at Michigan State University in East Lansing, fits into a nationwide leukemia jigsaw puzzle scientists are trying to put together under the sponsorship of the National Institute of Health.

ALL-OUT ASSAULT

Ten million dollars of a $23 million federal cancer research program has been earmarked for an all-out assault on leukemia. In addition, grants from private groups such as the American Cancer Society help underwrite some of the costs.

Dr. Murphy doesn't say that leukemia — characterized by a wild growth of white blood cells — always is caused by a virus.

"Unquestionably," he says, "there are other causes of the disease. Radiation, for instance, may activate the cells."

But cancers in many animals are known to be caused by viruses, and Dr. Murphy sees no reason why this should not be true with humans as well.

PROBABILITIES

"We are working with probabilities, not just possibilities," he explained in an interview.

Dr. Murphy says the problem now is to determine if a commonplace virus causes leukemia in humans.

Once it has been established that a virus — or the combination of a virus and other organisms — does cause leukemia, the discovery may be used as the basis of a vaccine to prevent the disease, or antisera to treat it.

The U. of M. research specifically is an attempt to isolate a pathogen from the bone marrows of leukemia patients, then to characterize the pathogen and confirm it is responsible for human leukemia.

ON THE INCREASE

Leukemia today is about as prevalent as polio was during the days before Salk vaccine was developed. Statistics indicate it is on the increase with the latest figures showing five cases per 100,000 persons.

Dr. Murphy believes some people may have cancer or leukemia and never know it because they fight it off like the body fights off the common cold.

"Other people may have a 90 per cent capacity to fight off the disease but need help to provide the extra 10 per cent," he observed. "This help may come in the form of a vaccine, antibiotics or drugs."

Research by Dr. Murphy and his associates has turned up oddball micro-organisms called "mycoplasma" in some samples of leukemic bone marrow.

SOMEWHERE IN BETWEEN

Over the years, other scientists probing leukemic samples also have detected mycoplasma — germs which can be classified as being somewhere between viruses and bacteria in their characteristics and possessing features of each.

There has been some speculation that mycoplasma alone or in combination with viruses might be the cause of leukemia and other human cancers, but Dr. Murphy has his doubts. He feels the mycoplasma probably contribute to, rather than cause, leukemia.

On another corner of the Michigan campus, Dr. Chris J. D. Zarafonitis wonders about mycoplasma, too.

Dr. Zarafonitis is director of the Thomas Henry Simpson Memorial Institute for Medical Research, and he has been working with Dr. Murphy in trying to find evidence the cause of human leukemia is a virus.

MAY BE LATENT

He raises the thought that a leukemia virus may be latent from generation to generation and then suddenly come to life, touching off the abnormal growth of white blood cells.

In dealing with leukemia victims over the years, Dr. Zarafonitis has treated many patients with drugs, oftentimes with gratifying results.

"In that work, we are seeking long-term control rather than a cure," he explained. "Like victims of pernicious anemia, leukemia patients might be able to lead normal lives with periodic injections."

"What we are looking for are compounds that will normalize cell action and stabilize cell metabolism."

War on Hunger Is Tangled in Congress

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Congress is finding it tough these days to keep track of all the things on which President Johnson has declared "war."

Take the War on Hunger, which recently got all tangled up with the war in Viet Nam.

It all began when the House Agriculture Committee tacked an amendment onto the Food for Freedom Act (designed to replace PL 480 which expires Dec. 31).

The amendment rules out as a recipient of food diplomacy any country engaged in trade with North Viet Nam.

"God knows we'd like to stop Free World trade with Ho Chi Minh," fumes one administration source.

LOST SIGHT?

"If only it were that easy. The House seems to have lost sight of the forest for looking at the trees."

The State Department has been successful in persuading friendly countries to eliminate Haiphong as a port of call by quietly applying diplomatic pressure through appropriate channels.

Last year, some 21 Free World nations either sold or shipped goods to North Viet Nam. Less than half of them still do.

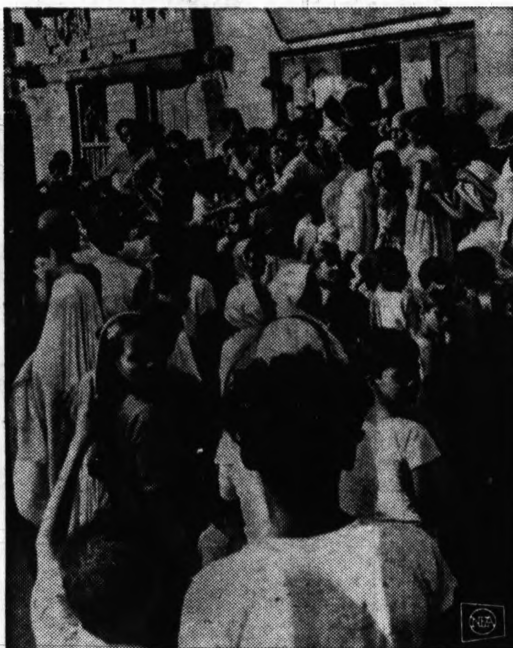

The basic purpose of the Food for Freedom Act, according to President Johnson, is that the "United States lead the world in a war against hunger."

What the President envisions is that every "have" nation join together to provide the "have-nots" with the necessary technological advice and tools to produce enough food on their own land—until then—with sufficient food to tide them over.

Population experts now estimate that one billion people—a third of the world's population—are slowly starving to death.

Humanitarian reasons aside, the United States cannot af-

HUNGRY HORDES — Population experts estimate that one-third of the people in the world are slowly starving. In India, for example, there are critical shortages of staples rice and wheat. Here, Calcutta citizens gather for the weekly rice dole.

But solving the problem, say administration officials, must be a joint venture governed by flexibility—and to them, the House amendment is noteworthy only for its rigidity.

SEARCH IS ON

"We're searching for ways to build bridges," says one. "We can't afford to make hungry people tools of American foreign policy."

"It's kind of like 'Animal Farm,'" says another. "We'll lead the world in helping out the hungry nations. Unless they're Communist... or unless they trade with the Communists... or unless..."

"We should not limit our foreign aid to countries which agree with us 100 per cent down the line."

Several U.S. allies, including West Germany, are looking for ways to cut back on their own aid programs.

DOOR OPEN?

A U.S. decision to eliminate food aid to countries trading with North Viet Nam, in the opinion of several administration sources, might be the excuse these countries have been searching for.

The basic issue in this case is what one high government official calls "the desire of Congress to enforce foreign policy as forcefully as possible."

Sometimes, he notes, a forceful program in one area can cut the legs from under successful programs in a dozen other areas.

"For example," he explains, "we've been walking on eggs diplomatically between Pakistan and India, continuing aid to each. We don't have the ability—as Russia seems to have—of being able to pick one side over the other."

AIR SERVICE

"Pakistan has regularly scheduled air service between Karachi and Peking. Suppose they open a stop at Hanoi. Under the House amendment, bang! They're our enemies."

"Or, take Liberia. It seems like we've been supporting them for 100 years. One Liberian ship stops at Haiphong, and we throw all those years out the window."

PL 480 went into effect in 1954 with a provision that excluded any country which shipped goods to Cuba.

But this restriction did not apply to food donations.

About a third of the present PL 480 commodities are given away free, generally in cases of emergency (like the Yugoslav earthquake).

The other two-thirds are sold for local currency or dollar credits.
