

Nixon Sparks Upturn in GOP Hopes

BULLETIN

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Angelo Giuseppe Cardinal Roncalli was chosen Pope today. He will reign as John 23rd.

The Sacred College of Cardinals elected the 262nd Pope of the Roman Catholic Church today after three days of balloting.

A short, thin wisp of white smoke curled up from the chimney over the Sistine Chapel at 5:07 P. M. (11:07 A. M. EST), giving the first indication that the world's half billion Catholics had a new spiritual leader.

Vatican Radio announced in a Portuguese language broadcast at 5:23 P. M. (11:23 A. M. EST) that "the church has a new Pope."

Just four minutes before that, at 5:19 P. M. (11:19 A. M. EST), the lights came on behind the main balcony door overlooking St. Peter's Square where a newly-elected Pope first appears to the crowd below.

The smoke signal was a short and light puff. It left the 60,000 persons gathered before St. Peter's in tense anticipation.

Probers Enter Shaft of Mine Where 22 Died

Hunt Cause of Second Blast in 21 Months as 5,000 Look On BISHOP, Va. (AP)—Investigators descend 300 feet into an explosion-racked tunnel at the Pocahontas Fuel Co. coal mine today, probing for the cause of the second disastrous blast at the site within 21 months.

Twenty-two miners were killed Monday, in the same section where 37 miners met death in a gas explosion Feb. 4, 1957.

Crawford Wilson, chief of the West Virginia Bureau of Mines, called it a shocking disaster and said: "We will uncover the cause." A formal public hearing will get under way Wednesday.

Some 5,000 persons milled near the mine shaft entrance in this southwest Virginia mountain community while four rescue teams worked in relays to reach the missing men.

There were 188 miners in the underground chambers when the blast shook the area at 8:28 a. m.

Wilson was in a party of workers groping through the gaseous, dense tunnel towards the blast scene at mid-afternoon.

It was his call by special telephone hookup that brought the word to mine offices. "I want to report that 22 men are dead. It is definite there has been a gas explosion."

His report spread quickly across the hillside where the surviving miners, their families and friends of the victims were waiting in a daze.

Red Cross and Salvation Army workers passed out cups of coffee. It was 5:43 p. m. when the shaft elevator reached ground level, bearing two bodies.

Howard Richardson, a veteran miner, said the bodies were scattered over an area of about 200 feet.

Wilson said it appeared the miners were in the act of running when they were felled.

By 6:15 p. m. all 22 victims had been brought out.

Most of the underground confines of the sprawling mine is located in West Virginia, although the entrance is in Virginia. Thus Wilson and the West Virginia mine office has jurisdiction over operations.

Vice President Visits School for Deaf

WELCOMED BY STUDENTS — Swarming around Vice President Richard M. Nixon, students at the Michigan School for the Deaf squeeze in to shake his hand. Nixon made the stop on his way to a Republican dinner in Flint last night. One of the students, Sandra Clack, a senior, had written Nixon asking him to visit the school when he came to Flint. Sandra was first to get hand shake.

Whirlwind Tour of State Ends With Flint Talk

Asserts Michigan Dems Have Been Captured by Party's Radical Wing

From Our Wire Services

FLINT — Vice President Richard M. Nixon ran the gauntlet of campaign issues during 10 hours of barnstorming in Michigan yesterday.

Nixon returned to Washington last night after a statewide radio and television appearance from Flint.

The radio-TV appearance was one of four in which Nixon repeated Republican claims that the Eisenhower administration has maintained peace abroad and prosperity at home.

He also told Republicans in Michigan—the state where Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams is asking for an unprecedented sixth term—there is a "dramatic upsurge in Republican strength and a sharp recession in Democratic strength."

Nixon left four impressions during his whirlwind tour of Michigan by car and plane:

— "Not one American boy is fighting and dying in the world today."

— "1959 will be 'the best year in history' if economic policies of the present administration are continued."

— "Northern Democrats have 'good intentions' toward civil rights but minorities look to the Republicans for 'action.'"

— "The Democratic Party in Michigan has become 'a captive of the radical wing of that party.'"

Nixon left it up to another administration spokesman, Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield to deal with labor bossism.

Summerfield, toastmaster at the $100 a plate dinner, warned that labor bosses have given unions a "soulless dictatorship, interested only in the exploitation of the workman and political power."

Nixon arrived nearly an hour and a half after the dinner of baked beans and brown bread started. He sipped tea and ate a Swiss cheese sandwich as he prepared his speech in a hotel room and didn't get to the dinner until long after the crockery was cleared from the tables.

Nixon had a few kind words for former President Truman. "We've got to give him credit." (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Ike Assails Dems' 'Phony Doctrines, Reckless Spending'

NEW YORK (AP)—President Eisenhower wheeled up his campaign siege guns for fresh attacks on the Democrats today after assailing them as reckless spenders, thrifths and promoters of hare-brained schemes.

The President moved onto the New York state political battleground from Pennsylvania where Monday night he called again for election of a Republican Congress a week from today to assure sound, sane and progressive government.

In a Pittsburgh speech at a party rally, Eisenhower said his administration has won spectacular gains for America since he took office, and added:

"These are the finest six years of progress in our country's history."

The President said further that under Republican direction "the promise of American life has no limit."

In advance of the Pittsburgh talk, which was carried on television and radio over an 18-state Eastern and Midwestern network, Eisenhower told a cheering airport crowd at Charleston, W. Va., in a swat at the Democrats:

The voters should "repudiate with our whole strength, with our whole souls, these phony doctrines,

Regular Production Car Averages 21.7 Miles per Gallon

$35.79 to Drive '59 Pontiac Coast-to-Coast

A 1959 Pontiac Catalina sport sedan has just completed a 2,442.7 mile coast-to-coast trip at a cost of $35.79, averaging 21.7 miles per gallon with an average speed of 40.2 miles per hour for the entire trip.

Driven by Tom McCall, famous automotive writer and noted car tester and under the supervision of NASCAR officials, the 1959 car was equipped with a regular production, 215-horsepower Tempest 420-E economy engine designed to use regular grade gasoline.

The use of regular fuel, coupled with higher gasoline mileage, gave the 1959 Pontiac a savings in operational costs of well over 20 per cent.

McCall drove the car under normal conditions from San Diego, California, to Savannah, Georgia. On some portions of the trip Pontiac's Tempest 420-E engine turned in an amazing 23.3 miles per gallon.

Traveling over U.S. Highway 80 the Catalina sport sedan encountered all types of terrain: mountains, deserts with temperatures up to 110 degrees, rolling plains, roads under construction and crowded streets of large, busy cities like Fort Worth and Dallas, Texas.

Strong head winds were encountered on several days and on one long afternoon a drizzling rain cut deep into the car's mileage performance. In order to maintain an average speed above 40 miles per hour it was often necessary to drive at a rate of speed upwards of 60 miles per hour.

An average speed was maintained each day of the trip by checking miles traveled against elapsed time. A clock in the car was set in motion by starting the engine, and continued to operate as long as the ignition switch was on, whether the car was in motion or not. All driving was done during daylight hours.

The $35.79 spent on gas and oil for the 2,442.7 miles of travel represents a cost of 1 1/2 cents per mile to operate the car from coast to coast under conditions experienced by the average driver. Regular grade gasoline purchased from major oil companies without the benefit of any type of discount advantage.

Developed to provide a high level of economy without any significant loss in Pontiac's famous flash V-8 performance, the special low-compression engine is available as a no-additional-cost option on all Hydramatic equipped Pontiac cars.

The 389 cubic inch engine, rated at 215 horsepower, has a compression ratio of 8.6 to 1 and is designed specifically for regular grade gas. The result of 18 million miles of actual testing, the special power plant has a smaller carburetor, special manifold and camshaft and a low axle ratio of 2.87 to 1.

DEMONSTRATES ECONOMY ENGINE — This 1959 Pontiac Catalina sport sedan was used in the coast-to-coast demonstration of the new optional Pontiac economy engine. The engine, a 215-horsepower Tempest 420-E, runs on regular grade gasoline.

New Sewage Plant Desperately Needed

Healthier Pontiac Up to Voters

Editors' Note: This is the second in a series of six articles on Pontiac's sewage treatment plant and the need for expansion of said facilities. A $3,300,000 bond issue for a new plant and expansion of the present one will be decided Tuesday when Pontiac property owners will go to the polls.

By PETE LOCHBILER
Pontiac's present sewage treatment plant is in sad shape.

The new superintendent, John Hennessey, is inclined to feel some optimism about the plant, figuring how increased efficiency and planning can improve it.

Even Hennessey, who took over the job this summer as a sort of a "challenge," has to admit, though, that improvements are limited both by money and space.

Hennessey will also take over supervision of the new sewage treatment plant, if Pontiac property owners approve $3,300,000 in general obligation bonds to construct it Nov. 4.

The casual observer, touring the old plant with Hennessey, is not inclined to share his optimism.

There are discouraging sights, such as the old 1919 Imhoff settling tank, a wooden affair which contrasts sadly with the modern, concrete tanks erected nearby in 1939.

Thirty-feet deep, the Imhoff tank was built for a much smaller town than the Pontiac of today. Its design calls for sludge to settle to the bottom, there to decompose.

Adapted for modern use, the sludge must be pumped out nowadays to make way for new sewage. Grease and oil scum floating to the top must be removed by hand.

Worse yet are the old, overloaded final settling tanks. Here, sewage is supposed to sit for awhile while chlorine treatment provides disinfection. On a busy day, sewage is whipped through the tanks, giving the chlorine little chance to work before the flow is turned loose into the Clinton River.

Reason for the speed? The old plant has to handle too much sewage to do the job properly.

Not so much of an eyesore as a source of smell on winter days are the eight open filters, into which sewage flow is funneled by devices resembling giant lawn sprinklers.

The flow then trickles down through six feet of crushed rock, with natural organisms working on it before it is sent out to the river. The smell comes when the natural downward flow of air reverses itself on chilly days.

The filters are antiquated, compared with the modern aeration treatment which the 1939 installation provides.

Hart Challenges Nixon's Claims

Senate Candidate Hits 'GOP Progress' in Talk at Flint

By The Associated Press

U. S. Sen. Philip A. Hart, Democratic candidate for the U. S. Senate last night and took sharp issue with visiting Vice President Nixon, where Nixon addressed a Republican money-raising and get-out-the-vote dinner rally.

Speaking at the Courthouse at the same time as Nixon spoke at the GOP banquet, Hart warned against last-minute campaign charges. He said that in the final week before the Nov. 4 election, any "new political charges will be purely hog wash."

Following the vice president on television and radio, Hart disputed Nixon's claim that the Eisenhower administration brought unprecedented progress and prosperity to the United States.

"In the last six years there have been two major recessions," he said, "and the cost of living is going up."

He criticized Nixon for using "labels with emotional overtones" in referring to Michigan Democrats as radicals.

Democratic Gov. Williams, Bagwell's opponent, caught up with state business correspondence and campaigned in Macomb County.

Evidence Points to Suicide in City Man's Fiery Death

According to Oakland County Sheriff Frank W. Irons, the strange fire death of 26-year-old Robert Lee Payne yesterday "appears to be suicide, judging from the evidence gathered thus far."

Payne, of 251 W. Cornell Ave., was burned to death when an explosion and fire destroyed his father's auto shortly after 10 a. m. yesterday.

Irons and his detectives base their opinion of suicide on several factors, including an autopsy report by St. Joseph Mercy Hospital pathologist Dr. Richard E. Olsen.

In a final report Monday afternoon, Dr. Olsen said that "death was due to burning." He asserted that Payne was alive when the explosion occurred and that no evidence of violence upon Payne's body was discovered by the post mortem.

Payne's charred body was found yesterday by Pontiac Township firemen, summoned to a Pontiac township gravel and sand pit where the death car was blazing.

The front and rear windows of the auto were blown out by the force of the explosion. Two gasoline cans were found in the front seat of the car along with a (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Groom Faints Twice, Has to Be Hospitalized

ROME (UPI)—Giuseppe Magni is a married man today, but he found the wedding service such a strain that he may have to spend his whole "honeymoon" in a hospital.

The 26-year-old Italian fainted twice during the ceremony in a church in suburban Centocelle, once just as he should have been saying "I do" and again just after the priest had pronounced him married.

He was hospitalized for treatment of "severe nervous exhaustion."

Nixon Visits Deaf Girl; GOP Dinner Nets $125,000

From Our Wire Services

FLINT — Vice President Richard Nixon made a special stop during his Michigan visit yesterday to talk to a girl not old enough to vote and unable to hear a word he said.

It was dusk when the Vice President and the 12-car caravan stopped at the Michigan School for the Deaf on the way downtown from the airport. Some 435 deaf students were assembled near the pillars beneath the large porch.

Nixon's talk was brief. He said he had received a letter from Sandra Clack of Clinton, inviting him to stop at the school if he visited.

Flint, Sandra, 19, has been at the school five years, and deaf since she was three.

Using sign language, dean of students Michael Henkes interpreted Nixon's remarks.

"I certainly would like to meet Sandra," Nixon said. "I hope she's here."

Sandra stepped from the crowd. The Vice President strode forward to meet her. They shook hands and smiled. Nixon wished the football team good luck and recalled that he "never was much" at football himself. The students laughed and applauded. Nixon and the caravan moved on.

That was one sidelight to Nixon's busy day of campaigning for the Republican Party in Michigan with election only a week away.

Kierdorf, Fleisher Cases Not Linked, Says Ziem

The Frank Kierdorf case was the subject of discussion again today as the result of the arrest of Louis Fleisher, 52, of Oak Park, former head of Detroit's Purple Gang, former brother of Sam and Harry Fleisher, leaders of the 1944 armed robbery of the Aristocrat Club in Pontiac.

Fleisher and three owners of Detroit dry cleaning shops, two of them ex-convicts, were held today for investigation in a series of eight bombings at dry cleaners and auto wash racks earlier this year.

These bombings had once been tentatively linked to the arson of a Flint dry cleaning pickup station where Kierdorf is believed to have suffered his fatal burns.

No link between Kierdorf and Fleisher was seen today, however, by Prosecutor Frederick C. Ziem, who was in charge of the Oakland County side of the unsuccessful Kierdorf probe.

Ziem also said he knew of "no connection" between the Fleisher case and the arson of a Pontiac apartment house last August.

A grand jury was unsuccessfully sought here to probe an alleged conspiracy surrounding the Flint and Pontiac arsons.

Kierdorf was the Flint Teamster business agent who staggered into St. Joseph Mercy Hospital early Aug. 4 with burns covering 85 per cent of his body.

Fleisher, of 3711 W. Nine Mile Rd., was seized early Monday with a companion after police said they caught them pouring gasoline into a hole in the two had bored in the roof of an east side Detroit dry cleaning branch.

The owner, Gerald Steel, of 22121 Colgate, Farmington, told police he knew nothing about the bombing attempt, which police figured was part of a price war.

Arrested with Fleisher in a rooftop chase during which a detective fired one shot was Joseph Anielak, 40. Arrested later at their homes were Chester Tuttha, 51, owner of Town Cleaners; Stanley Sobo, 40, owner of Sobo Cleaners; Alexander Jendryke, 35, owner of Alexander's Cleaners; and Ben Seifman, 45.

Anielak, Tuttha and Sobo all have prison records.

Fleisher, an old-time Detroit hoodlum, had been paroled 11 months ago from Alcatraz Prison. He's served a total of 19 years in various prisons.

Fleisher headed the Detroit Purple Gang for 10 years. It terrorized merchants in the Detroit area by threats of bombings and beatings.

The name of Louis Fleisher's brothers are linked to several infamous Pontiac crimes.

Sam and Harry Fleisher are serving 25-50 year terms for the Aristocrat Club robbery. Both were also convicted of conspiracy to murder the late State Sen. Warren G. Hooper in 1945, just before he was to appear as a graft grand jury witness.

The robbery of the Aristocrat Club, a gambling joint at 69 1/2 S. Saginaw St., never was reported to police, but came out during a grand jury probe of Sen. Hooper's death.

When Harry and another defendant in the robbery, Myron Selik, jumped $25,000 bonds another Pontiac crime made the headlines.

Adolph Netzel, bondsman for Selik, was shot to death in a scuffle at his Pontiac home.

Guy Carter and Carmen Mitchell, also local bondsmen, told Pontiac police Netzel was killed in a struggle after he had held them captive in his home for more than two hours. Carter, bondsman for Fleisher, had to forfeit his $25,000.

Nov. 4 Vote to Decide Sewage Problem

tanks and open filters are all part of the old system, which could be discarded except that the new system is not large enough to handle Pontiac's sewage alone.

The new system was enlarged upon in 1952, but the $800,000 worth of improvements accomplished then still do not allow the treatment plant to keep up with Pontiac's sewage flow.

Together the two systems can handle up to an average 15 million gallons of flow a day, with a maximum of 20 to 25 million gallons during busy hours.

Since the new aeration-chlorination installation handles only 14 million gallons a day, anything more must be funneled through the old system, which has a capacity of 6 to 8 million gallons a day.

Sludge treatment, which is part of the old installation, is geared to handle only one-eighth of the present load.

On stormy days, the city's combined storm and sanitary sewers funnel up to 60 million gallons of flow into the treatment plant.

What happens then?

Simple. The excess that the plant can't handle is drained off the top and sent straight into the Clinton Sewage particles are carried along into the river and the next day, Pontiac's pollution rate has soared.

The new sewage treatment plant will not allow Pontiac to abandon its old installations. Hennessey warns. However, new facilities will allow the city to use the older system less on normal days.

This is important because the new plant, like the 1939 installation at the present plant, will be 95 per cent effective. The older installations are only 80 per cent effective. And the state Water Resources Commission demands 95 per cent effectiveness.

There's very little room left for expansion at the old plant. But if voters approve the bond issue, one improvement will be the construction of a final settling tank, 90 feet in circumference, which will help relieve the three existing settling tanks, Hennessey said.

The latter can then be used strictly for the slow process of chlorination.

Another improvement is under way now, financed independently of the bond issue. That is rehabilitation of one of the plant's two digester tanks.

At present, digested sludge is laid out in open beds to dry, later to be spaded up and dumped in nearby fields.

But if the bond issue is passed, dried sludge from both old and new plants will be turned into sterile ash at a new incinerator, which will be financed at the site of the new plant.

This will eliminate the spreading of yet another eye-sore at the present plant — the huge mounds of sludge.

WORST OF ALL

The final eye-sore is the worst of all, and it is a sober reminder of what happens when treatment facilities are inadequate.

This is the lake of sludge that fills the half-mile long gravel pit east of the plant. How did the sludge get there? There was no where else to put it back in the days when facilities were hopelessly inadequate or when machinery broke down and the sewage continued to flow, despite the city's temporary inability to treat it.

The city is determined never to dispose of sludge again this way. But its ability to carry out this determination may depend upon whether Pontiac property owners approve plant expansion at the polls Nov. 4.

GM Strikes Settled at All but 2 Plants

DETROIT (U)—Only two General Motors plants remained on the United Auto Workers union's strike list today.

Three more local disputes were settled yesterday, bringing to about 270,000 the number of UAW members ready to return to their jobs at 122 GM plants across the country. At full operation GM has about 275,000 UAW members employed at 124 plants.

The three agreements were at Chevrolet Forge at Tonawanda, N. Y., where GM employs 550 UAW members, Willow Run Transmission, 6,000, and Detroit Fleetwood, 3,500.

Strikes continued at Fisher Body at Tarrytown, N. Y., and Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac at Atlanta.

The wave of local strikes completely shut down GM's car-making empire earlier this month. The walkouts followed a 12-hour companywide strike and GM-UAW agreement on a new national contract. The UAW backed up local units that wanted to stay on strike until plant grievances were settled.

Nixon's Day in Michigan Gives GOP Renewed Hope

He did carry his fight (in 1948) and he won," he said.

Nixon made the point to show Republicans still had a chance to carry the election, despite pollsters' predictions that Democrats were headed for a landslide victory.

The Vice President said he enjoyed Truman as a "fighter but I believe in fighting back."

But Nixon indicated he was as far apart as ever from Truman on basic policies. He said about all he had in common with the former President was that they both played the piano.

Nixon appeared earlier in the day at a meeting of top party workers in Kalamazoo and addressed nearly 5,000 persons—most of them students—at the Western Michigan University fieldhouse in Kalamazoo.

Nixon's aides said his television appearance was significant in that he spoke without notes or teleprompter—something he has done only once before.

Toward the end of Nixon's one-day tour of the state yesterday, Republican U. S. Sen. Charles E. Potter, seeking re-election, told a reporter:

"Three weeks ago things looked damn dark. But now it's picking up rapidly, and I think I'm going to win."

Also obviously heartened, Paul D. Bagwell, GOP gubernatorial nominee, listened with relish as Nixon gave a cheering audience of 3,000 Republicans his version of the cause of economic distress in Michigan.

"A major part of the blame must be placed squarely on the state administration (of Democratic Gov. Williams) which has created an unfavorable climate for new investment," Nixon declared.

It was what Bagwell has been saying right along.

Tel-Huron to Hold 'Mad Midnight' Sale

The Tel-Huron Merchants Assn. has announced a "Mad Midnight Sale," from 9 p.m. to midnight Thursday evening.

According to chairman Fred J. Niedelson, all 14 Tel-Huron stores will be open their regular hours, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

But at 9 p.m., special sale merchandise will be uncovered for the three-hour pre-Halloween special event.

New Grinnell Store Graces Birmingham

Birmingham's business district has been graced by a new, attractive shop — the Grinnell Brothers branch music store at the corner of W. Maple avenue and Bates street.

The opening this Friday of the new store coincides with the 79th anniversary celebration of the firm, J. J. Wainger, president, announced.

Replacing the former branch store at Woodward and Maple, the new shop is the first retail store in the country to feature a three-dimensional mural sculpture.

Designed by Laszlo Ispanky, eminent Hungarian sculptor, who has been studying at Cranbrook Institute, the sculpture depicts a musical theme in four nine-foot figures mounted on a spacious two-story wall.

A complete array of china, glassware, gift items and silverware.

Two huge brass chandeliers, purchased in France, illuminate the display area. In their original state, the fixtures once graced the ceiling of a French chateau.

At the top of a beautiful staircase an electrified double brass gas fixture from an old Chicago "Gold Coast" mansion is suspended from the ceiling.

Among the famous brand names carried by Grinnell's, many exclusively, are the Hammond Organs, Steinway, Knabe, Steck, and their own Grinnell make piano.

Others are Magnavox, Ampex, Fisher, RCA Hi-Fi sets, and Conn brand instruments.

Robert Faulkner, manager of the former Birmingham branch store, will continue in the same capacity at the new location.

Area United Fund Report Luncheon Tomorrow Noon

The Pontiac Area United Fund will hold its first report luncheon for this year's tenth anniversary appeal tomorrow noon at the Elks Temple.

With roughly one-third of the campaign completed — this year's drive runs from Oct. 21 through Nov. 11, Wednesday's report is expected to serve as an indicator of how well the drive is progressing.

This year's $501,000 goal represents the minimum amount needed to keep our vital health, welfare, child care and other community services going, U.F. officials said.

Pontiac is the birthplace of united giving, an idea which has spread to more than 1,100 communities throughout the nation. The spotlight is on our city, as those who have followed Pontiac's lead await the outcome of this year's campaign in this a troubled year, they noted.

More than 4,500 men and women are donating their time and energy to insure that the drive doesn't fail. Nevertheless, only a complete victory will enable the 55 agencies to maintain their services to the crippled, the sick and the helpless at their present level, officials said.

Mourners Pause to Pay Last Respects at Bier of Cardinal Mooney in Detroit

DETROIT (UPI) — Members of the flock he served for 21 years as their first archbishop and cardinal today began filing past to pay their last respects to Edward Cardinal Mooney.

Few had ever been in the Cardinal's residence but he was widely known throughout the eight-county Archdiocese of Southeastern Michigan for his presence at innumerable ground-breaking ceremonies, confirmations and other duties in the United States' seventh largest archdiocese.

Cardinal Mooney was stricken Saturday by a heart attack in the North American College in Rome just 70 minutes before he was to go into a conclave with 51 other cardinals to elect a successor to Pope Pius XII.

His body was returned to Detroit yesterday and met at Willow Run Airport by high-ranking church officials and a crowd of 300 persons, including clergymen, seminarians, schoolchildren and church fraternal orders.

The body of the 76-year-old prince of the Roman Catholic Church was to lie in state from noon to 10 p.m. today at his residence (at 1880 Wellesley, Palmer Woods) and from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. tomorrow before being moved to the Cathedral of the Most Blessed Sacrament tomorrow afternoon.

A Pontifical Requiem Mass will be sung Friday (at 11 a.m.) in the cathedral. The cardinal will be buried in a crypt before a small chapel in St. John Seminary in suburban Plymouth.

The Most Rev. Alexander W. Zaleski, auxiliary bishop of Detroit, blessed the wooden coffin bearing the body of the 76-year-old prince of the Roman Catholic Church.

Bishops John A. Donovan and Henry E. Donnelly were with Bishop Zaleski at the airport where the simple services were held in an empty hangar to the north of the main waiting rooms.

"Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, wearing their uniforms and colorful hats, drew their swords and stood at attention as the coffin with the bronze cross was taken from the plane and into the hangar for Bishop Zaleski's blessing.

His body was returned to Detroit yesterday and met at Willow Run Airport by high-ranking church officials and a crowd of 300 persons, including clergymen, seminarians, schoolchildren and church fraternal orders.

The body of the 76-year-old prince of the Roman Catholic Church was to lie in state from noon to 10 p.m. today at his residence (at 1880 Wellesley, Palmer Woods) and from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. tomorrow before being moved to the Cathedral of the Most Blessed Sacrament tomorrow afternoon.

A Pontifical Requiem Mass will be sung Friday (at 11 a.m.) in the cathedral. The cardinal will be buried in a crypt before a small chapel in St. John Seminary in suburban Plymouth.

The Most Rev. Alexander W. Zaleski, auxiliary bishop of Detroit, blessed the wooden coffin bearing the body of the 76-year-old prince of the Roman Catholic Church.

Bishops John A. Donovan and Henry E. Donnelly were with Bishop Zaleski at the airport where the simple services were held in an empty hangar to the north of the main waiting rooms.

"Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, wearing their uniforms and colorful hats, drew their swords and stood at attention as the coffin with the bronze cross was taken from the plane and into the hangar for Bishop Zaleski's blessing.

DETROIT (UPI) — Members of the flock he served for 21 years as their first archbishop and cardinal today began filing past to pay their last respects to Edward Cardinal Mooney.

Few had ever been in the Cardinal's residence but he was widely known throughout the eight-county Archdiocese of Southeastern Michigan for his presence at innumerable ground-breaking ceremonies, confirmations and other duties in the United States' seventh largest archdiocese.

Cardinal Mooney was stricken Saturday by a heart attack in the North American College in Rome just 70 minutes before he was to go into a conclave with 51 other cardinals to elect a successor to Pope Pius XII.

Bob Considine Says:

Americans Expect Another Italian Pope

ROME—"Who do the Americans believe will be the new Pope? A high ranking Italian prelate asked in a guarded whisper in front of St. Peter's the other day.

"An Italian, somebody who looks like a pope—let's say Cardinal Ruffini of Palermo," we guessed. "But what about an American?" he asked.

"Nobody in our country seems to think an American can be elected."

The Italian shook his head. "Too bad," he said sadly.

The myriad and dramatic details attending the return of Edward Cardinal Mooney's body to Detroit were automatically handled by a vigorous Waterbury, Conn., Paulist named James Cunningham, pastor of Rome's jewel-like American church—Santa Susanna.

While the dying cardinal's aide, Rt. Rev. Monsignor Joseph Breitenbeck, was summoning the dean of the North American College, Scranton, Pa., Bishop Martin O'Connor, to administer the Last Rites of the Catholic Church, Father Cunningham was already about the task of arranging for the embalming and transit home of the body.

In short order the job of embalming had been assigned to Pier Mattel, director of the Campo Verano Cemetery, a Roman graveyard reserved for "strangers." The priest called U.S. Ambassador Zellerbach and, switching to his masterful Italian, informed the Italian government.

Slashing through the red tape involved in the death of an American or any other non-national in Italy, Father Cunningham gained the necessary papers from the Italians, arranged with Pan American World Airways to accept the body on its Flight No. 67 leaving Rome at 7 p.m. Sunday, followed through with a connection on Northwestern Airlines flight leaving Idlewild shortly before noon Monday. Also there was contact with Bishop Bryan J. McEntegart of Brooklyn to receive the body at Idlewild.

It was a poignant duty for Father Cunningham, but just another day's work which had begun that morning when, against the background of the Cardinal Snorosis Mass to the Holy Ghost in St. Peter's, he married two happy American couples at a side chapel.

If the coronation of the new pope is moved up to Sunday, Nov. 2, as well it may have been by the time this is printed, it will be largely because of the requests of non-Italian cardinals who have much to attend to in their own areas.

'Y' Invites Children to Halloween Party

An annual Halloween party for youngsters will be given by the YMCA from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday night at the 'Y' building, 131 Mt. Clemens St.

All 'Y' members interested in attending have been urged to sign up in advance for the event.

Prizes will be awarded for the best boy's and girl's costumes at the affair. Other features of the evening will include the traditional appearance of "Wacky—the 'Y's' Witch," a spook house, and ghost stories.

Refreshments will be served.

Spellman of New York and 72-year-old James Francis Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles want to get home to America, too.

Cardinal Spellman has not been back in New York for weeks. He led 600 pilgrims to Lourdes and Rome by slow boat through the last stages of the summer and was on his way back to New York when he learned of the death of his friend Pius XII and had the ship detour to the Azores, where he debarbed and planed into Rome. The hardest task of the Papal Conclave must have been that of Cardinals Spellman and McIntyre. They had a pleasant luncheon with their great good friend Cardinal

Mooney at the North American College at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, saw him off to take his siesta at 2 o'clock and made a date to see him shortly before 3:30 at the front door of the college. There, three Vatican cars awaited to take the American Cardinals down the hill to the conclave. Shortly before 3 o'clock Cardinals Spellman and McIntyre were informed that Cardinal Mooney had died. They hardly had time to say a Hail Mary over their longtime friend, before they had to rush off to the cloistered voting for the new pope. They entered the Vatican with tears in their eyes.

Add Insult to Injury

VALPARAISO, Ind. (AP)—Walter Janowsky was plenty sore when he found thieves had stolen $200 worth of radiators from his auto parts lot, despite the watchdog he had placed on guard. Janowsky couldn't even scold the dog. The burglars had stolen it too.

Dumas' Classic Full of Drama

Hurd Hatfield Starring as 'Dantes' in Story of Vengeance in 1844

HOLLYWOOD — What do you like best? Adventure? Romance? Mystery? Revenge?

Whichever it is, you'll be able to see it this evening when the CBS Television Network presents Alexander Dumas' "The Count of Monte Cristo" as its second Du Pont "Show of the Month" of the season (7:30 p.m., EST).

Says producer David Susskind, "I like all four of these elements of drama, and I think most other people do, too. That's why we chose 'The Count of Monte Cristo' as our next Du Pont 'Show of the Month.' It has everything — and please note that it will be seen at an hour when the entire family can tune in the excitement."

Revenge is the key to "The Count of Monte Cristo," says Susskind, "and wherever there's revenge there's inevitably either adventure, romance or mystery. The fact that Alexander Dumas' novel boasts all four of these rare-in-combination qualities is what makes this story such a masterpiece."

"The Count of Monte Cristo" has indeed enjoyed enormous popularity with readers the world over, decade after decade, ever since it was published in 1844.

Set in France in the first half of the last century, the story centers around the revenge which Edmond Dantes carefully plots against the three men responsible for his 18-year imprisonment on a false charge, for the loss of his fiancée, his reputation and his rising good fortune as captain of a merchant ship.

Romance? At the beginning of the story, Dantes makes love to the beautiful Mercedes. Later, while taking revenge on his enemies, he falls in love with a slave girl.

Says Susskind, "The mystery in the drama comes from the gnawing question viewers will ask themselves: how is Dantes plotting his revenge? Will he, indeed, succeed at all?"

The adventure element, the producer points out, "crops up in Dantes' exciting escape from prison when he takes a dead man's place in a gunny sack and is thrown into the sea for burial. On the heels of this comes Dantes' rescue from the sea by fishermen, his discovery of a fortune in treasure on the island of Monte Cristo and his relentless pursuit of his betrayers in locales ranging from Greece to Amsterdam."

Hurd Hatfield stars as Edmond Dantes, the Count of Monte Cristo. Other starring roles are played by Elizabeth Sellars (Mercedes), Torin Thatcher, Douglas Campbell and John Colicos (Dantes' betrayers, respectively, de Villefort, Danglars and Mondego), Max Adrian (Morell, a ship owner and friend of Dantes), Ina Ballin (Haydee, the slave girl) and George Voskovec (Abbe Faria, a fellow prisoner of Dantes who is responsible for Dantes' escape, wealth and title).

Sydney Lumet directs the Talent Associates Ltd. production from an adaptation by Sumner Locke Elliott. The 90-minute program will originate "live" in New York.

The policemen rushed inside and found Andrew Sampson, 46, and Calvin Baker, 22. They were stripping the house to get money for wine, the bathtub tappers announced.

Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson sentenced Sampson to 90 days in jail and Baker to 60 after they pleaded guilty to charges of larceny.

Flying Bathtub Tips Off Police to Winos at Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Patrolmen A. G. Eger and W. J. Futer, walking their beat at night, glanced up at a condemned building's third floor window. Out flew a bathtub. Then came a radiator.

The policemen rushed inside and found Andrew Sampson, 46, and Calvin Baker, 22. They were stripping the house to get money for wine, the bathtub tappers announced.

Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson sentenced Sampson to 90 days in jail and Baker to 60 after they pleaded guilty to charges of larceny.

Metropolitan Opera Opens for 75th Year

NEW YORK (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera celebrated its 75th anniversary Monday night — and probably one of the last few opening nights in the old Broadway opera house—with an air of nostalgia and tradition hanging over it all.

The Met, which hopes to open its 1961 season uptown in a big modern auditorium in the Lincoln Center of Performing Arts, went way back for its 1958-59 opener.

The opening night opera was Puccini's "Tosca," first performed at the Met in 1901 and having its third airing at an opening night. Old-timers could remember Farrar, Caruso and Scotti as the stars of the opening night "Tosca" in 1919, or Jeritza, Martinelli and Scotti in 1922's opening night performance.

Monday night it was Tebaldi, Del Monaco and London, no novices at helping the opera company put on a good show for the opening of its season.

Equally traditional was the performance of the opening night audience.

It was composed of diplomats, stars and former stars of the opera world, the rich and the aristocratic, and the usual sprinkling of celebrities from other parts of Broadway.

Sinatra Informs Queen, Others He Won't Wed

LONDON (AP)—Frank Sinatra told Queen Elizabeth II and 2,000 other first nighters Monday night that he didn't come to London to get married.

The singer made his declaration in obvious answer to newspaper speculation about him and Lady Beatty, the American-born divorcee with whom he has been gadding about London.

Sinatra spoke out as master of ceremonies at the premiere of Danny Kaye's movie "Me and the Colonel."

"I came to England to introduce the stars of this movie, and for no other reason," he told the audience. "I didn't come here to get married. Some people would have me married as often as Farouk."

The Queen and Prince Philip smiled. Most of the audience cheered. Lady Beatty wasn't present.

Farouk, ex-king of Egypt, and Sinatra have each been married twice. So has Lady Beatty.

Later Sinatra told reporters he was flying back to the United States "immediately to start work."

Will Yielding to Yogi Help Earl Be Taller?

By EARL WILSON
PARIS—Now that I'm in the Jet Set, I'm going to become two inches taller.

Girls are taller nowadays, planes fly higher; stubby, shrimpy, little sawed-off Wilson's shooting up from 5-5 to 5-7.

It may take me all of a couple of weeks.

Here in the hotel on the Champs Elysees, I'm doing Yoga exercises. I wouldn't do them back home because the wife would say I'm crazy. But with her not on this trip, I'm trying to work my way up toward Gregory Peck's height, and there's nobody peeking in at me but the Eiffel Tower.

Being short never bothered me. But about three years ago when I saw an ad in an Australian magazine saying, "You can gain two inches in two weeks," I was intrigued.

"Mail two pounds today!" it commanded.

Off went my $5.40 and back came six mimeographed pages of the "Yoga-Guru" system—part of which was holding up an imaginary wall, lifting an imaginary weight, sitting cross-legged on the floor trying to rise, and gazing intently at a piece of white paper.

I ducked my duty until Dr. Roman Ostojka, the Polish-born Yogi, arrived in New York to appear at Carnegie Hall the next week.

Dr. Ostojka came to our apartment. I began reading him the Australian instructions. "Stop! I have my own method!" He scowled under his cream-colored turban. Producing what looked like a baby's rubber nipple—although he said a cigarette holder would do—he said:

"After you inhale silently, you puff out your cheeks and then exhale through this while..."

And he showed me the exercises: shooting my hands out, blowing with my head pointed down, bending, and lying on my back with my shoulders on a pillow and head on the floor.

"How about holding up an imaginary wall?" I said. "Thinking?"

It got very dark under his turban again. "You can think till doomsday and nothing will happen unless you exercise!"

And so, believe it or not, that's what I'm doing in Paris without my wife; taking Yoga exercises.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL IN N.Y.

Roberto Rossellini's Hindu girl friend is rumored in hiding in France but reportedly will be shown to the world for the first time on film as a gimmick for his next picture, which was made in India... George de Witt took two of Elvis Presley's girl friends to dinner and complained, "All night I listened to them agree how wonderful Elvis is." Rita Hayworth says she'll do only one film a year... Pretty Claire Kelly's the star of the new film, "Party Girl."

The switchboard girls at the Hotel Blackstone were told to address Douglas Fairbanks—due soon—as "Sir Douglas"... Farley Granger's dating dancer Tybee Affra... Frank Sinatra conducted the orchestra for Dean Martin's next album.

Millionaire Doris Duke, a jazz pianist, says she'll join the musicians' union... The "voice" of Brigitte Bardot in radio commercials for her film, "The Night Heaven Fell," is her sister Mijanou's... Diana Barrymore's South American beau gave her a diamond ring set in gold; he had it reset in platinum after she told him: "Gold is for sorority dances."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: The honeymoon's really over when he stops wearing his toupe around the house... That's Earl brother.

'Invisible Man' Deplores Today's Grim Monsters

By BOB THOMAS
AP Motion Picture Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of the earliest of the movie monsters deplores the current humorless crop of boogiemans. The speaker is Claude Rains, back in Hollywood after a seven-year absence. The suave British-born actor wasn't a monster, really. Matter of fact, you didn't even see him. He played "The Invisible Man."

Rains was reminded of his invisible past because he was back on the Universal lot playing the wine tycoon in "This Earth Is Mine." This is where he made his unseen film debut 25 years ago. Comparing "The Invisible Man" to the present-day horror films, the actor commented: "These new monsters have no sense of humor. They're just out for pure fright, and I think they miss a trick. 'The Invisible Man' was the kind of fellow who would ride a bicycle down a country lane singing 'here we go gathering nuts in May.' He got sympathy because of his humor and because he was a poor laboratory chap who had gotten himself into a pickle he couldn't get out of. There's no sympathy at all for these modern monsters."

Rains recalled vividly how he was chosen for the unique role. A longtime stage actor, he had been tested in the east by Fox for a film contract.

"When I saw the test, I was horrified," he said. "I stank, I knew immediately that I hadn't the slightest chance for a film career."

Fox felt the same way. But at the time, Universal was searching everywhere for an actor to play "The Invisible Man." Rains' test was among those reviewed. Said Director James Whale: "I don't care what he looks like; that's the voice I want."

So Rains was signed. I have long wondered exactly how much work he did in the picture. He explained that he did all the scenes which showed him clothed. He was seen for a brief flash at the end when he died and materialized.

The invisible stuff was done by the movie trick makers, and it required some fantastic planning.

The invisible man went on to many sequels until he finally met his end at the hands of Abbott and Costello. But Rains never played him again — "they never asked me."

Naturally, I can hear the producers saying, "Why should we pay Rains' salary when we can't even see him?"

Q. I was told that I am farsighted, yet I see clearly at far and near. I don't wear my glasses because they don't improve my sight. Do you think I was misled about my condition? E. J. M.

A. If the farsighted condition isn't too extreme and you are under 40 years of age, then your vision could very well be 20/20. With this condition, however, you are using up excess energy to see at distant points and even more energy when looking up close. If you have headaches, eye-strain or feel tired quite a bit of the time, then you should be wearing your correction.

Q. I've wanted to get contact lenses but have noticed that my friend who wears them, has bulging eyes when they are on. Is that because she has a very high correction? J. E. S.

A. It is probably because your friend is wearing the old fashion contact lens that cover the entire eye. The latest style contact lens are so small (regardless of the correction) that they are practically invisible in the eye. They can usually be worn all day long whereas the old style could only be worn about four hours.

Q. I am planning on getting a driver's license but my vision isn't too good. What vision does the State of Michigan require in order to get a license? J. E. S.

A. The State of Michigan requires that you have 20/40 or better with or without glasses. If you are in doubt about your vision it is best to have it corrected before you apply for your license.
