

Egypt Attacked on 70-Mile Front, Israeli Troops Push Toward Suez

U. N. to Act in Israeli Crisis

Israeli Force Drives Into Heart of Egypt

TROOPS ON MOVE—Troops from Israel with trucks and armored cars halt "somewhere in the desert" en route to an unknown destination in Egypt. Egyptian and Israeli forces are reported to be locked in battle today in the sandy wastes of the Sinai Peninsula. Egypt claimed her army had stopped a drive by enemy forces short of the Suez Canal.

Security Council Meets to Avert Mideast War

U.S. May Ask Sanctions
Against Israel If Nation
Keeps Troops in Egypt

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (INS)—The U. N. Security Council takes up the new Middle East crisis today in an effort to prevent Israel's invasion of Egypt from erupting into all-out war.

President Eisenhower called for an urgent meeting of the 11-nation body to consider the Israeli drive deep into Egyptian territory toward the Suez Canal.

There was a possibility that at the 11 a.m. session the U. S. would urge diplomatic and economic sanctions against Israel if the Israelis did not heed a call to withdraw their troops from Egypt.

The council already had been scheduled to meet at 3 p.m. to resume debate on Jordanian demands for U. N. sanctions against Israel for her Oct. 11 reprisal raid on Jordan.

U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld decided to intervene in the council discussion on Palestine after Israeli launched yesterday's invasion.

BIG THREE CONFERENCE

Meanwhile, the Western Big Three conferred on drafting a resolution to the council apparently calling for a cease-fire in Hungary and the withdrawal of Soviet troops.

The American, British and French ambassadors, along with other council delegates, also are considering possible "steps" to give fresh courage to the Hungarian freedom fighters and increase pressure on Russia to withdraw her troops.

As rumors spread through U. N. headquarters of an impending war in Palestine, Hammarskjöld and Israeli representatives and with U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, British delegate Sir Pierson Dixon and French representative (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

Nasser Orders Full Mobilization; Fighting Looks Like All-Out War

Air Forces, Armies Join in Gigantic Battle,
Egyptians Say Counterattack Stopping Foes,
Israeli Planes Shot Down

CAIRO (AP)—Egyptian and Israeli troops and airmen clashed deep within Egypt's Sinai Peninsula today. Egyptian President Nasser was reported to have ordered a general mobilization as the fighting looked more and more like war. Israel went on a war footing over the weekend.

Eye New World Crisis

Military spokesmen at Tel Aviv announced the capture of the Egyptian position of Qusaila, about 10 miles inside the Egyptian border and about 15 miles southwest of the El Auja demilitarized border area.

This action indicated the Israelis had struck at points scattered over a 70-mile front in their invasion of Egypt yesterday.

Earlier, a two-pronged attack from Kuntilla and the head of the Gulf of Suez, far to the south, had been reported without confirmation to have driven almost across the peninsula to within 10 1/2 miles of the Suez Canal.

A communique here said Egypt's counterattack "stopped completely" the Israeli advance. Military sources in Tel Aviv placed the Israeli columns at 30 to 60 miles from the canal.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today canceled his scheduled campaign trip to Dallas, Oklahoma City and Memphis tomorrow because of the Middle East crisis.

A Cairo communique said the Egyptian air force shot down two Israeli aircraft, destroyed 12 Israeli armored cars and strafed Israeli troops.

These attacks were said to have taken place at El Themed, 30 miles inside Egypt from the Kuntilla jump-off point, and against Israeli troops "before the Egyptian position at Qusaila."

The communique claimed Egyptians were engaged in "mopping up" operations in the Sinai Peninsula.

Tel Aviv military spokesmen announced that the Israeli air force also had gone into action and had attacked Egyptian convoys.

Earlier, neutral diplomats in Israel had expressed the fear that if the fighting got into the air it would tip the balance toward all-out war. The Egyptian air force lately has been reinforced by the arrival of Soviet jet fighters and bombers. The Israeli air force has French jets.

Israel's 1,800,000 population faced a blackout tonight.

It was the Cairo newspaper Al Messaa which reported Nasser had ordered general mobilization. There was no government confirmation.

Washington estimates are that 150,000 to 200,000 Israelis had been called up. Israel is believed to (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Politics Reflect Crisis Reports on UF Due Tomorrow

Stevenson Hits Ike for Hiding 'Whole Truth'

BOSTON (AP)—Adlai Stevenson contended today that President Eisenhower has endangered the peace by withholding "the whole truth" about tragic developments abroad.

Stevenson cited the new crisis in the Middle East as an example.

He pursued this theme as he carried forward his final week's drive for votes with scheduled speeches in Maryland, New Jersey and Pennsylvania after a roaring reception last night in Boston's Mechanics Hall.

There, taking note of news that Israeli's military forces had struck across the Egyptian frontier toward the Suez Canal, the Democratic standard bearer said it was hard to speak "about today's ominous and confusing developments in the Middle East."

"But I must say this — and it is only to repeat what I have been saying throughout this campaign," he said. "The government in Washington has been telling us that all is well in the world, that there is peace, that there is — as the President announced only a few days ago — 'good news' from the Middle East."

"These reassurances — as today's news confirms — have been tragically less than the truth. The world we walk on is mined with trouble from Korea to the Straits of Gibraltar, and we're entitled to be trusted. 'We've got to be trusted. We've got to be ready to meet our problems, to face them squarely and make the right decisions. How can we unless we are told the whole truth?'"

"Instead, during four years of critical history, we've been patting on the back and patting on the head and told that everything's all right. This is dangerous — dangerous to our very survival in a troubled world."

Americans Flee Hot War Area

But Many Are Stopped as Cairo Airport Is Closed to Traffic

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Fear of war in the Middle East today brought the hurried evacuation of hundreds of Americans from cities in the seething area.

Many poured into Beirut. Others arrived in Athens. They were expected to sit it out a few days to await developments following Israel's sudden strike into Egypt.

If the border situation goes back to normal, many are likely to return to their foreign residences. Otherwise, they probably will move on to places outside the Middle East.

The U. S. State Department urged Americans in nonessential positions to get out of Israel, Syria, Jordan and Egypt. They have not yet been advised to leave Lebanon. There are some 8,000 Americans in the four countries.

Some 400 American women and children were moving into Beirut from Syria and Jordan. Mostly families of men with U. S. diplomatic and relief missions, they were rushed from those areas by planes and automobiles.

A group of 61 American citizens landed at Athens aboard a U. S. military transport from Tel Aviv. They are relatives of U. S. operations missions members. A second group was expected later today.

Cairo's airport was closed to international traffic but U. S. authorities there pushed ahead with preparations to airlift American wives and children out of the Egyptian capital to Rome.

U. S. Embassy spokesmen in Tel Aviv said the American freighter Exermond had been ordered to stand by in Haifa Harbor for possible evacuation of Americans from Israel.

Israeli Attack Likely to Curtail Ike's Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Israeli thrust into Egypt left President Eisenhower's campaign travel plans clouded in uncertainty today.

With the election a week from today, there appeared to be a chance the stretch drive Eisenhower had charted might be curtailed.

Up in the air, for example, was the matter of whether Eisenhower will go ahead with plans for a flying sortie tomorrow into Texas, Oklahoma and Tennessee.

"I just don't know, I can't tell yet," White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said last night.

There was uncertainty also on plans for Eisenhower to travel to Philadelphia Thursday evening for a major campaign address on nationwide television and radio. Eisenhower got the news of the Israeli attack yesterday at the airport in Jacksonville, Fla., just after a campaign speech.

In that address he said America must remain militarily strong and at the same time must "give to our pursuit of peace our entire dedication." He alluded to efforts in Poland and Hungary to throw off Soviet domination, and added:

"At this particular stage of the world's history, where we see a once-proud people being trampled down by marching regiments, this is no time to stop the (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

Division Heads to List Results at Luncheon; $91,767 Now Pledged

Campaign leaders will get a clear idea of how the Pontiac Area United Fund drive is proceeding during a report luncheon being held for all UF workers Wednesday.

The luncheon will take place at noon in the Elks Temple. United Fund divisional chairmen will reveal the total amount of pledges gathered by their solicitors during the first eight days of this community-wide campaign for $612,202.

Reports already turned in to United Fund Campaign Headquarters total $91,767.74 this morning.

H. Wayne Gabert will report Commercial Division results for chairman James F. Nye, who is in Atlantic City, N. J., on business.

REPORT HOME SOLICITATION
Mrs. Ralph G. Bump will tell of the success of her volunteer workers in the Pontiac, Pontiac Township and Waterford Township door-to-door solicitation.

Earl Maxwell, personnel director of General Motors Truck and Coach Division, will summarize the progress of the United Fund Industrial Division which is seeking to raise $414,000 of the overall campaign goal.

Principal speaker on the Wednesday noon's United Fund program will be Dean McCarthy, former dean of the Notre Dame University School of Business Administration and at present a vice president of the Gerity Broadcasting Co.

Gerity is the parent company of Pontiac's WPON radio station.

The Impact of Growth

Walled Lake is enjoying a phenomenal growth. The second in a series of articles describing its development appears on Page 34 today. How the increasing population affects housing, the city government, schools, churches, amusement centers, business and industry will be discussed. Read these articles if you want to keep informed regarding one of the fastest growing areas in all of Oakland County.

Clouds to Dim Skies, Warmth to Linger

There will be partly cloudy skies tonight and tomorrow in the Pontiac area, with little change in temperatures.

A low of 52 to 56 is predicted for tonight. Tomorrow's high will be near 70.

In downtown Pontiac last night the temperature dropped to 47, it rose to 71 at 1 p.m. today.

19 Debate Issues in State, County Contests

By LAWRENCE S. MARTZ JR.

Nineteen candidates in next week's election traded verbal blows last night at a sparsely-attended political rally held by the League of Women Voters in Pontiac's Lincoln Junior High School.

The infighting, growing sharper as the election nears, climaxed last night in sharp exchanges between congressional candidates William S. Broomfield and Paul Sutton and Attorney General Thomas M. Kavanaugh and his opponent, Richard C. Van Dusen.

Sutton, a Democrat, lashed out at U. S. foreign policy before an audience of 75, and called the current situation in Israel "the sputtering fuse of World War III."

"We can only pray that something will put out the fuse," Sutton said. But he implied such a happy

Black Cats Blame Druids for Their First Black Eye

Pity the poor ole black cat! What have these little, dark creatures done that they become the source of superstition on tomorrow's celebration of Halloween? And for that matter, the year round.

Why are they different from the grey and white or furry angora that adorns many a family home?

Well, Blacky, if you're still puzzled why all the world jumps to stay out of your path, blame it on the Druids, members of a Celtic religious order in France, England, and Ireland back in the medieval days.

They had you tagged as a desirable abode to deposit the souls of wicked sinners as they hoped to atone for their sins in this superstition ritual.

Because of this, the Druids believed that black cats were human beings who were transferred into animals for some misdeed.

They had you tagged as a de-ending would not be due to the Republican administration, which he said has made "an inconceivable mess" in the Middle East and "vacated moral principle" in its handling of Cyprus and the Suez crisis.

CITES CLASSROOM SHORTAGE

In a direct attack on Broomfield's federal aid position, Sutton said there is a current shortage of 375,000 classrooms in the United States.

"My opponent says we shouldn't ask for federal aid for education until we have found out we can't do the job ourselves."

"The time is long gone when we should realize that local and state agencies can't construct the school rooms we need."

Broomfield, speaking in rebuttal, told the audience:

"If you believe in federal aid as the answer to all our problems, don't vote for Bill Broomfield."

Plane Crashes Tree in Takeoff on Farm

A Livonia man escaped injury when he crashed his small plane into a tree while attempting to take off from a Troy Township farm field this morning.

Barney Robb, of 11700 Arcola St., reportedly struck the limb of a tree just as he was leaving the ground, causing considerable damage to the aircraft.

He had landed in the field, which is part of the Edward E. Wilson farm at 19 Mile and Coolidge roads, the night before when he apparently got lost while returning to his Beaver Airport at 15 Mile and John R roads.

Robb told investigators he was leaving to go back to the airport when the crash occurred.

Schedule Talk on Safety Group

Step Toward Formation Will Be Taken Nov. 8 at Birmingham

First step towards creation of an Oakland County Safety Council will be taken at 8:30 p.m., Nov. 8, at the Birmingham Community House.

Over 350 leaders from county communities have been invited to meet to start formation of such a group.

The invitations were issued by Gerald W. Shipman, executive secretary of the Michigan State Safety Commission, whose organization is campaigning all over the state for citizens' safety councils.

According to Clyde R. Haskill, chairman of the Pontiac Chamber of Commerce Safety Committee, plans for a county council have been in the making over a year.

The need for action on the local level is evident from the 140 Oakland County traffic deaths last year, Shipman stated.

Greater effectiveness locally in the fields of safety engineering, education and enforcement result from such organizations, he said.

Shipman asked representatives to form committees in each county village, city and township for safety purposes.

The committees, in turn, would be helped by the county council, if formed, he explained.

Chairman of the formation meeting will be Mayor Howard K. Kelly of Royal Oak.

Doctor Tells Why Housewives Tire Faster Than Men

CINCINNATI (U) — Housewives burn up more energy than most husbands do on their jobs, a Cleveland heart specialist says.

Dr. Herman K. Hellerstein of Western Reserve University's School of Medicine said the average housewife burns from three to five calories of energy per minute.

This, he said, is more than is burned up by men on most jobs, except such occupations as "foundry workers, farmers, jobs entailing heavy handling of materials and dock workers."

drafting is no time to stop perfecting our weapons."

That clearly was another crack at proposals by his Democratic rival for the presidency, Adlai E. Stevenson, that (1) the United States take the lead in seeking world agreement to ban hydrogen bomb testing, and (2) thought be given to ending the military draft under conditions consistent with national security.

After receiving news of the Israeli thrust, Eisenhower flew to Richmond, Va., for his final campaign talk of the day. He told an airport crowd there the word from the Middle East was "not good."

Then he recalled that last weekend he sent two urgent messages to Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion cautioning against any action that would "endanger the peace."

The White House announcement said: "The question of whether and when the President will call a special session of the Congress will be decided in the light of the unfolding situation."

Social Worker Appointed Managing Director of UF

ROBERT LANGER

Appointment of Robert Langer, 27, former Army psychiatric social worker, as assistant director of the Pontiac Area United Fund and managing director of the Pontiac Community Chest was announced today by William B. Hartman, UF president.

Viennese-born, Langer fled with his parents from Austria in 1939 to Shanghai, where he lived until 1948. During the postwar period, he worked in China with the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee assisting in refugee resettlement.

He came to this country in 1948, graduating from Brooklyn College in 1952 and earning a master's degree in social work at the Columbia University School of Social Work.

Langer worked with United Hias Services and the Stanford (Conn.) Community Council before entering the Army. He recently was separated from active duty at Ft. Gordon, Ga.

Langer is a member of the National Assn. of Social Workers and was a delegate to the association's first assembly.

He plans to live in Pontiac.

Nagy Promises 2-Party System

Calls on Russian Army to Get Out of Budapest Right Away

VIENNA (U) — Premier Imre Nagy told the revolution-torn Hungarian nation today the one-party system imposed on the nation by the Communists has been abolished.

Nagy announced to the nation over Radio Budapest that he was calling on the Soviet army command in Budapest to begin the immediate evacuation of Russian troops from the city.

The announcement was broadcast throughout most of the morning. Radio Budapest had remained silent about developments in the capital. From other sources it was reported that fighting was continuing there, with the rebels seeking to evict the Russian troops.

Nagy said the Hungarian government would start at the earliest possible moment to negotiate with the Soviet government for complete withdrawal of the Russian army from Hungary.

A rebel-held radio at Miskolc said the street fighting erupted this morning. Reports from correspondents in the capital last night said some revolutionaries still were refusing to surrender their arms until the Russians leave.

Radio Budapest appealed to the capital's population "to be helpful" to the Russians in the promised withdrawal.

An earlier broadcast said the defiant young rebels in Budapest had reached an agreement with Premier Imre Nagy's government to lay down their arms by 9 a.m. and the Russians would leave within 24 hours.

Later the radio said "those armed groups which still are carrying out resistance should participate from 9 a.m. on, simultaneously with the cease-fire, in the re-establishment of calm and order."

Stevenson Hits Ike for Hiding 'Truth'

Baltimore, Camden, N.J., and Philadelphia.

He winds up the day with a major address at 9:30 p.m. on the University of Pennsylvania campus.

He found a receptive audience in Boston in the jam-packed hall where Democratic Sen. John F. Kennedy shared the platform with him along with Foster Furcolo, the party's candidate for governor.

Stevenson roused the party workers to cheers, whistling and foot-stamping with such criticism as his point that the Republicans are basing their campaign on the theme, "Don't Worry — Just Trust Ike."

He complained again that Eisenhower's administration is made up of rich businessmen and declared: "Nowadays Abraham Lincoln wouldn't even rate a job in the Cabinet."

That remark brought a storm of applause and laughter.

Meanwhile, Stevenson revised his campaign schedule to include another trip to hotly contested Minnesota, where 11 electoral voters are at stake. He dropped plans to spend Sunday at Bloomington, Ill., his boyhood home, in favor of a Monday morning speech in either St. Paul or Minneapolis at a breakfast rally. He will fly from Chicago Sunday afternoon and return there Monday.

In his Boston speech he continued to argue that Eisenhower has virtually abdicated his leadership, but conceded his campaigning ability.

Departing from his prepared address, he said of Eisenhower: "As a campaigning politician, there is none better, but it is as a president who knows how to control his party, who knows how to grasp the reins of government that I believe he fails."

After he concluded his formal talk over nationwide TV, the audience called for more and he continued for another five to ten minutes.

pable of mobilizing an army of about 250,000.

Egypt, according to the estimates of outsiders, might be able to mobilize 500,000 men.

So far neither side had published any casualties in the fighting.

In a diplomatic aside to the general situation Egypt protested to Britain against the flight of two Canberra jet bombers over the Suez Canal area.

The protest followed reports from Port Said that Egyptian anti-aircraft guns had opened fire on unidentified planes, high over the seaport.

Two mechanized Israeli columns crossed the border last night and advanced at least 75 miles into Egyptian territory. Israel said the expedition's purpose was to clean out bases of Egyptian commandos who have been raiding into Israel.

Iraq, Egypt's rival for leadership of the Arab world, offered troops to help the Egyptians. Iraqi forces already on the Jordan border could strike at Israel's north-east frontier at the opposite end of the country from the Egyptian front.

Pontiac Deaths

George H. Dennis

George H. Dennis, 64, of 154 Wall St. died yesterday afternoon after a four years' illness.

Mr. Dennis, who was a retired landscape gardener, was born in Caro, the son of Hiram and Sarah Berry Dennis. He married Caroline Dolby, now deceased, and has lived in Pontiac for about 35 years.

He is survived by a daughter, Doris Dennis of Algonac, and a son, Forrest, of Pontiac. Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Harry Rideout of White Lake and Mrs. I. B. Getz of Pontiac, and a brother, Fred Dennis of Pontiac.

Service will be at 1 p.m. Thursday at the Voorhes-Siple Chapel, with Rev. Alfred H. Mullins of the Columbia Ave. Baptist Church officiating. Burial will be in the Almont Cemetery in Almont.

Maurice H. Stack

Maurice H. Stack, aged 67, of 114 E. Howard St. died at Pontiac General Hospital on Monday morning, after a long illness.

He was born in Cleveland and married Florence Jones there. He has been in Pontiac for about 25 years, and was last employed at the General Motors Truck & Coach Division.

He is survived by daughters Mrs. Gladys Wright and Catherine Stack, and sons Maurice Jr. and Norman Lillyman, all of Pontiac. Also surviving are a sister Mrs. Andrew Hamilton of Ohio, and a brother Frank of Cleveland, Ohio.

Service will be at 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday from the Hunton Funeral Home with Rev. Lewis Towler of All Saints Episcopal Church officiating.

Commsion to Alter Zoning Map

Another step will be taken by the Pontiac Commission tonight to amend the city's zoning map by adding "personal service district" classifications to 64 lots in the Franklin boulevard area.

Last Tuesday, commissioners agreed to a Planning Commission recommendation to add this ninth type zone to Pontiac's zoning scale. It falls between Residential 3 and Commercial 1.

Registered Voters Total 43,641 in City

There are 43,641 registered voters in Pontiac qualified to vote in the Nov. 6 election.

Pontiac City Clerk Ada R. Evans revealed this finalized figure yesterday after her office counted some 2,000 cancellations of registration.

The cancellations come in from other townships and voting areas where former Pontiac residents have moved, she said.

There were 43,006 registered for the general election in 1953.

The Day in Birmingham Redding Zone Discussion Turns to Terrace Plan

BIRMINGHAM — A zoning dispute that brought an overflow crowd to the city commission room last night dissolved with only short discussion when one builder indicated his willingness to switch plans from commercial to terrace buildings.

Samuel Frankel's communication indicated his withdrawing of the request for commercial zoning at Redding and Woodward, while A. L. Kassaban indicated he would return to the planning commission for talk on other plans.

Reasoning to business of a triangle at Eton Road and the railroad was approved by commissioners.

Retirement of Willard M. Brown after 31½ years of service with the city brought a recognition exercise at the start of last night's meeting.

Brown has been foreman of the street department at DPW.

Approvals were granted to the jury award of $36,000 for land at Ferndale; and on printing a pamphlet to inform voters on the forthcoming ballot on selling the sewage treatment sale.

Also okayed were the purchase of an air raid warning siren, acquisition of several lots along the Rouge River for flood plain area; and a new amendment in the rubbish ordinance.

The latter calls for a contractor picking up items placed at the curb. He may enter property to pick up things at the householder's request, but does it in private capacity and not as agent of the city.

The library budget request for an additional $5,000 was tabled to await study of the quarterly statement on Nov. 13.

Britain Sends Fleet to Mideast

Joins France and U.S. in Emergency Talks on Israel-Arab Crisis

LONDON (U) — Britain sent a massive fleet churning through the eastern Mediterranean today and began emergency talks with the United States and France on the new fighting in the Middle East.

Both Prime Minister Eden and French Premier Mollet held special Cabinet meetings, and Mollet and Foreign Minister Christian Pineau arranged flights to London today to meet with Eden and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

Eden was expected to discuss the Middle East crisis in Parliament later today.

Both governments were in frequent contact with the State Department in Washington. Informants said an early meeting of Lloyd and Pineau with U.S. Secretary of State Dulles was possible, to seek agreement on a Western approach to the crisis produced by Israel's lightning stab into Egypt toward the vital Suez Canal.

While the diplomats conferred, a huge British fleet steamed through the eastern Mediterranean toward the trouble zone. An admiralty spokesman said it was engaged in "a full-scale replenishment and communications exercise."

The fleet left Malta yesterday. It included two cruisers, two fleet aircraft carriers, destroyer and frigate squadrons, submarines, marine transports and supply ships.

Two French warships were understood to be sailing with the British vessels.

Dispatches from Cyprus said Britain's 16th Independent Parachute Brigade—the rock-hard "Red Devils"—have been withdrawn from hunting Cypriot underground fighters barracks in Nicosia to be made ready for other possible assignments.

Jersey City, N.J. (U) — The head of the International Longshoremen's Assn. says that starting at noon today members will handle no cargoes bound to or from Russia until Soviet troops leave Hungary.

Dockers to Snub Reds

There was general concern that the situation might have reached the breaking point and that the long-feared Arab-Israeli war was at hand.

An Israeli spokesman said the attack was in reprisal for Egyptian commando attacks which, he said, endangered Israeli land and sea communications.

U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge rushed out of the opening night of the Metropolitan Opera last night after receipt of the emergency message.

THE BLONDE DIED DANCING

by KELLEY ROOS

SYNOPSIS
Connie Barton's husband of almost five happy years has made her suspicious lately by his Wednesday night absences. His alibi for going out these evenings have been thin. So Connie concludes Steve must be having blonde trouble. She resolves to fight fire with fire. She has her jet black hair dyed the blondest blonde and seeks to allure him into staying home. But Steve laughs at her new hair-do and goes out again. Furious, Connie follows him covertly. The trail leads to the fourteenth floor of an office building.

Chapter 1
The first thing I saw when my feet hit the soft, luxurious carpeting of the fourteenth floor was an incredibly beautiful blonde talking to an incredibly svelte brunette with glamorous eyeglasses. The first thing I heard was muted, dreamy music. It was more than I could stand.

I turned back toward the elevator bank and, out of the corner of my eye, I saw Steve bouncing jubilantly down a corridor. He opened a door and disappeared. A down car stopped beside me and I stepped into it. Then I stepped back out again.

Gritting my teeth, I walked through the room, on into the corridor, on toward the door. I put my hand gently on its knob to ease it open just an inch, and I found myself staring through a square glassed peephole into the room beyond.

Standing in the center of the room was Steve. His back was to me and he was facing a tall, willowy, ravishing female. Her wide blue eyes were flustering Steve with a heated welcome. Her luscious bright red mouth was not only generous, it was inviting.

Her figure couldn't have been real, but I was afraid it was. . . and she was a blonde! Very blonde, very, very. But not as blonde as I! My woman's intuition had led me to victory on that point. Otherwise I could see, I was not doing well at all.

Steve moved closer to her, put his arms around her. She shook her flamboyant head at him and he held her tighter. She freed herself and stepped back; she spoke to him with her lips and with her eyes. He held out his arms and she moved expertly into them. They swayed together and Steve stepped on her foot.

I almost cried aloud. I shut my eyes and leaned my forehead against the door. Steve Barton was taking dancing lessons.

He was doing this for me. He was learning to dance for me. When he took me to the Rosewood Room for our anniversary party we wouldn't sit out the evening like a pair of bumps on a log. We would dance!

I opened my eyes and looked again. Steve and the sensational young lady were gliding around the room. His jaw was set with a fierce determination, his forehead was wrinkled in a scowl. He wasn't having fun; he wasn't even enjoying being in the arms of a female like that. He was having a lousy time, he was having a dancing lesson . . . because of me.

He loved me.

I watched the two figures whirl across the floor, and then my heart sank. Steve was waltzing, he was learning to waltz . . . and perhaps that was all he was learning. Perhaps he had insisted on that, not realizing that the number of waltzes a dance band played was next to nil. As a favor to him I would stick around and speak to his teacher after school. I wanted his surprise for me to be perfect.

And then, it wouldn't hurt to let the blonde know that Steve had a wife, also blonde. Just in case she was getting any ideas about him, I'd let her see what long fingernails I had.

I went back to the reception room and sat quietly in a corner. I didn't want the receptionist to notice me and make it necessary for me to explain why I was here. She had enough to do without listening to a lengthy, embarrassed explanation from a suspicious wife. I lit a cigarette and watched this smoothie with the hopped-up spectacles go about her business. She assigned studios to teachers and pupils, directed new students to the head of the school, answered the phone and made entries in the appointment book on her desk.

The girl was not only the most efficient receptionist in town, but it was a good bet she was the most charming. She was a big sister to all the women, but she wasn't that to any of the men.

I could see that she made each man feel that this business was being run solely for him. She had a touch, a very personal touch. She made me wonder if I, in spite of my 20-20 vision, shouldn't invest in a pair of those gold-bedeked odd-shaped glasses.

Looking at her, thinking of Steve's teacher and the other gorgeous faculty members I had spied upon, I realize that my husband certainly knew how to pick a dancing school.

The pupils for the eight o'clock classes were beginning to swarm in now. They were young and old, fat and lean, tall and short. Dancing, it seemed, was here to stay. Suddenly there was nothing in the world I wanted to do so much as dance. Steve was still that way about me.

It was just about eight. I put down the elaborate brochure that made it quite clear that the Crescent School of Dancing was something terrific and watched the reception room fill up with the next period's pupils. I watched a shy, awkward newcomer taken in tow by the receptionist. She led him down one of the three corridors that opened from the waiting room, led him toward the processing that would make him, too, socially acceptable. And then it was eight o'clock.

In a moment I saw Steve come out of his room and hurry up the corridor. I lost sight of him as he moved into the crowd headed for the elevators. I kept my eye on the door of his studio; I didn't want his teacher to elude me. I waited until I was sure Steve had left the reception room before I started on my errand. I opened the door marked Studio K and went in.

The room was filled with music, a gay, lilting waltz. It was old Vienna, bright uniforms and flashing sabres, long swirling dresses and arch smiles. Steve's teacher had neglected to turn off the music.

She lay still, as still as death.

He wasn't, and hadn't been, at dead girl's eyes still staring into mine. Beneath me the big desk seemed to roll, the telephones, the stacks of papers, the open register.

It was seeing the name in black and white that snapped me out of it. The letters swam, then straightened themselves.

Steven Barton, they said 7:00—

8:00, Anita Farrell, Studio K.

It was there in front of me, on the records . . . the name of Anita Farrell's last pupil, the name of Anita Farrell's murder-

I glanced around. No one was paying me any attention. I reached for the book. My fingers still clutched the cardboard silhouette that I had taken from the teacher's hand, I tucked it between two pages and closed the book. I slipped it under my coat and folded my arms across it. I moved away from the desk and, being unobtrusive, got into an elevator that was headed down.

It was nearly eight-thirty when I reached home. The apartment was empty, but Steve had been there. He had changed into an old pair of more comfortable shoes and gone out again, possibly to look for me. I slid the register under a love seat cushion in the living room and started out to look for him.

He wasn't, and hadn't been, at

because they think you're the killer."

He stood up. He was wide awake now. "Did you say Anita Farrell was murdered?" That I . . . I'm the murderer?"

I handed him the newspaper, waited until he had read the story. Then I told him my story, starting with my trailing him downtown, ending with my reading in the paper that only he could be the Walter. I showed him the silhouette I had taken from the dead girl's hand. I listened silently to it all.

"The police," he said, "don't know yet that I'm the Walter."

"No, because I stole the appointment book."

"But they'll soon know. There must be other records at the school."

"Yes, I said. 'It's only a question of time. They'll know . . . and they'll be coming after you, Steve?'"

"Yeah?"

"I know you didn't kill her."

"Thanks."

"Deep down in my heart I know you're not a murderer."

"Thanks again."

"But . . ."

"But what?"

Suddenly it was all too much for me. I collapsed into a blub-bing heap.

My eyes were streaming tears, my shoulders shaking, my hands trembling as I implored my husband to assure me, though it wasn't at all necessary . . . but just for the records, to please say out loud for me to hear that he had not killed Anita Farrell.

"Connie," he said and sat down beside me on the love seat. "Connie," he said, "I went through grade school, high school and a certain amount of Sunday school without rubbing out any of my teachers. With an enviable record like that how can there be any doubt that I could do the same with dancing school?"

He dried his tears. He got up and walked around the room, then sat down again, this time on the arm of a love seat. He was thoughtful, wondering, and mostly worried.

"She was alive when I left her," he said. "Somebody got into that studio between the time I left and when you went in and found her dead."

"No," I said dismally, "nobody did. I was watching all the time."

"Connie, somebody . . . somehow, got in there and put a bullet in her back."

"How, Steve? There's only one door, no windows."

"Could anyone possibly have got through that door without your seeing him? Couldn't you possibly be wrong about that? Think hard, Connie!"

I thought hard; I prayed that I could be wrong about it. I said, "I never took my eyes off that door. Nobody opened it between the times you and I did."

"Well," Steve said, "that's that."

"No, there's an answer to this. We've got to find it."

Steve roamed the room as though he were physically searching for that answer. I stayed where I was. Neither of us was using the right method. The silence of our frustration lengthened into minutes. At last Steve dropped desperately into the love seat opposite me. He looked at the silhouette on the coffee table. He picked it up, studied it.

"Yes," I said, "and what about that?"

"The killer probably put it in her hand after he shot her."

"But why, Steve?"

"I don't know . . ."

"Steve," I said, "and what I was thinking sent chill through me. 'Steve, it's like voodoo, isn't it? That needle through her silhouette is like a needle through a doll's heart . . . a hex."

Maybe the murder handed it to her before he killed her, let her get the significance of it. Maybe he wanted her to suffer for a horrible moment before she died."

A policeman is knocking at Steve's door as "The Blonde Died Dancing" continues tomorrow.

Navy Cancels Visit, Sails for Secret Point

THE HAGUE (AP)—An American naval force today was ordered to break off a visit to the Netherlands and leave at noon for a secret destination, a U.S. Embassy spokesman announced.

The ships are those of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet's Hunter-Killer Group No. 2. They include the aircraft carrier Antietam, six destroyers, two submarines and a tanker.

Because of the current Middle East crisis, there was immediate speculation that the ships had been ordered to join the U.S. 6th Fleet in the eastern Mediterranean.

The photographer, rancher Palmer M. Federson, waited patiently for the cat to close the gap, clicked his shutter as the animal leaped, and then set out to talk the puss out of it. The shot recently won an award in a national contest sponsored by a national photography magazine.

Four Candidates From Area State Election Qualifications

Editor's Note: This is the first of three articles outlining the qualifications and policies of Oakland County candidates for local, state and national offices. Future articles will include candidates for the Michigan legislature and for county offices.

William S. Broomfield, Republican, opposes Democrat Paul Sutton for election to the U.S. House of Representatives from Oakland County, Michigan's 18th Congressional District.

Republican L. Harvey Lodge faces Fred Elias in the Oakland County race for election as State Senator from the 12th Senatorial District.

WILLIAM S. BROOMFIELD
Now State Senator, Broomfield, 34, of Royal Oak, seeks election to replace retiring Rep. George A. Dondero, Oakland County's Representative for 24 years.

Broomfield, who carries Dondero's endorsement, has served three terms in the Legislature and one term as senator. He was the youngest man in Michigan's history to serve as speaker pro tem of the House.

An Air Force veteran, Broomfield attended Royal Oak schools and Michigan State University. He is married and has two children.

His statement: "I pledge my fullest support to President Eisenhower and the policies of his administration. I support the President's proposal for a tax cut for small businessmen, and I pledge fair consideration for all proposed legislation which would affect the working man."

"I will seek federal assistance in working out Oakland County's water, road and drain problems, but I believe we should not ask for financial aid until we have exhausted our own resources. In the long run, federal aid is too exorbitant."

"I believe the same policy should apply to education. I will support federal aid to schools in needy areas if local control of the schools is assured."

"If elected, I will maintain two offices to better serve my constituents in the north and south ends of Oakland County, providing direct contact with my Washington office."

PAUL SUTTON
Paul Sutton, 45, of Royal Oak, fleet sales director for a trucking firm, won the Democratic primary in 1954 but lost to Rep. George A. Dondero.

Sutton, active in the party since 1927, is a past chairman of the Royal Oak City Democratic Committee.

Born in New Mexico, Sutton served in the Army during World War II and has lived in Oakland County since 1951. His professional experience has included radio, television, newspaper and motion picture industries.

A past commander in the American Legion, Sutton is married and has two children.

His statement:

"In Washington, I will work to the limits of my ability to bring back to Oakland County a fair share in the return of our taxpayers' dollars."

"We have never gotten our share of the federal tax dollar; instead, our money has gone to pay for projects in other states."

"Local projects, such as the Twelve Town Drain, cannot be completed without federal aid. The current deadlock in the Twelve Town Drain illustrates the intolerable tax burden imposed on local communities if they are forced to carry the whole load."

"I will also work to take foreign policy out of politics, and restore the bipartisan approach to our relations with other countries. At present, we have no foreign policy."

"The present shortage of 375,000 classrooms is a national disgrace. We must have federal aid to education, and I pledge myself to try to get it."

L. HARVEY LODGE
Seeking election as state senator from Oakland County, Republican L. Harvey Lodge, 43, of Drayton Plains, is a Pontiac attorney and former Michigan assistant attorney general.

Lodge has been Oakland County Prosecutor, Pontiac's state representative, and director and twice president of the Michigan Children's Aid Society. He has also served on the Pontiac Housing Commission, and been a board member for the Clinton Valley Council of Boy Scouts of America.

His statement:

"I support Governor Williams' efforts to 'build Michigan,' and I am anxious to get results on such important issues as highways, taxes, unemployment, fair employment practices, old age needs, water problems, schools, civil defense and the many other pertinent affairs of the people of Oakland County."

"My main objective in seeking election as state senator is to fairly represent all of the people of Oakland County, and not just giant corporations and or special interests."

"I feel it is everybody's right to have a good home, a good job, a family, individual liberty and security."

A graduate of the University of Michigan, Lodge took his legal training at the University's law school.

He is a member of the local, state and national bar associations, Elks, Masons, and the Michigan Union, and holds honorary memberships from Lake Orion Lions Club and the Railroad Cooperative League of Michigan.

Married, Lodge is a lifetime resident of Oakland County.

His statement:

"I will use my extensive education and experience to secure legislation to help Oakland County solve its many problems. I am particularly concerned with those including roads, water supply, drains and sewers, and education."

"We need not only four-lane divided highways, but improvements, in our woefully neglected secondary roads."

"We must have plentiful water at a minimum cost, and we must control the supply and the cost without interference from other government units."

"Drainage and sewage disposal, essential to public health and welfare, must be provided on the same terms."

"Suitable educational facilities and personnel must be provided for our children and for a more advanced system of adult education."

FRED ELIAS

Hazel Park restaurateur Fred Elias, 42, also seeks election as Oakland County state senator.

Part owner of six drive-in restaurants in the Detroit suburban area, Elias was the Democratic nominee for the post in 1954.

A member of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors, Elias serves on the board of directors of the Michigan Restaurant and Caterers' Association. He is a past president of the Michigan Drive In Assn. and the Hazel Park Businessmen's Association.

A county resident for 15 years, Elias is married and has three children.

His statement:

"I support Governor Williams' efforts to 'build Michigan,' and I am anxious to get results on such important issues as highways, taxes, unemployment, fair employment practices, old age needs, water problems, schools, civil defense and the many other pertinent affairs of the people of Oakland County."

"My main objective in seeking election as state senator is to fairly represent all of the people of Oakland County, and not just giant corporations and or special interests."

"I feel it is everybody's right to have a good home, a good job, a family, individual liberty and security."

County Teachers Attending Institute

Oakland County teachers finished their two-day session of Fall Institute at Madison Junior High School in Detroit today. Top speakers at the two sessions were St. Clair and included Clair L. Taylor, state superintendent of public instruction; Adm. Ellis Zacharias, retired from the U.S. Navy; The Rev. William H. Alexander, minister of the First Christian Church, Oklahoma City, Okla., and Francis W. Beedon, president of the Michigan Education Assn.

Over 350 Oakland County teachers attended the luncheon meeting yesterday at Madison Junior High School, which was interspersed between some 50 small group meetings scattered in schools throughout the city.

Beedon addressed teachers at the luncheon, telling them of the National Education Assn. plans for its centennial celebration scheduled for April, 1957.

Beedon said the Association would seek a special stamp to be issued by the Postal Department to honor teachers and educators in the United States and "the hundred years of service of NEA."

Beedon stressed NEA life membership to the Oakland County teachers and explained the dues of the group.

Presiding over the session was Bonita Wentland, Ferndale teacher at Lincoln High School, and NEA director from Region 7.

President of the county group is Mrs. Mildred Williams, homebound teacher for the Oakland County school system.

Moms Back in School

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Teachers at Valley High School don't have to send notes home to at least two parents. They can tell them right at school. Mrs. George A. Altman, 32, and Mrs. Willie B. Ricketts, 37, enrolled as freshmen. Mrs. Ricketts has twins in the school's ninth grade and Mrs. Altman has a daughter in the eighth.

Bullets Riddle Meeting

RANGOON — Reports reached Rangoon today that two unknown persons sprayed a Communist-organized mass meeting in western Burma with Sten gun bullets, killing four persons and wounding many others. The gunmen escaped.

Diphtheria Emergency

DETROIT — City officials ordered an emergency inoculation program at a Detroit elementary school today to halt the spread of an outbreak of diphtheria. Seventeen persons from the school area have been admitted to a hospital.

So intricate are the mechanisms of a modern military torpedo that some of the tiny parts could be hidden under the fingernail of an adult person.

U.S. Demands Recall of Russian U.N. Aide

UNITED NATIONS — The United States has accused the second secretary of the Soviet U. N. delegation of helping to spirit little Tanya Chwastov out of America and has demanded his recall.

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief U. S. delegate to the U. N., delivered a note to the Russian delegation saying that the actions of Second Secretary Konstantin P. Eklmov "constitute an abuse of the privilege of his residence in the United States."

The note continued that Eklmov's actions "were outside the scope of his official capacity."

... and therefore in violation of the provisions of the headquarters agreements between the United States and the United Nations."

Russia in the past has complied promptly with such requests.

Tanya, 2½ years old and born in America, was taken to England Oct. 3 by her Russian-born father Alexei Chwastov over the protests of her mother, Mrs. George Dieczok of Detroit. Chwastov was trying to take the child to Russia, but a custody suit brought in England by Mrs. Dieczok halted the flight in London. The child is being held there as a ward of the court until the suit is decided.

A large houseboat will form India's border post at Bihari-Khal on the West Bengal, East Pakistan border. The post is 36 hours' trip from Calcutta.

Late Hymn Singing Headed for Legal Test

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Nighttime hymn-singing appears headed for a circuit court test.

Householders told a county prosecutor their rest was disturbed by singing up to 11:30 p.m., and sometimes till midnight, three times a week, in a West Hollywood church.

The Rev. E. M. Muncy, pastor of the West Hollywood Church of God, said group singing was the manner in which the rites of his church are conducted "throughout the world." Asst. County Solicitor Richard Cory said he would recommend a suit for a temporary injunction be filed "to stop the singing or bring about some measure of relief for the neighbors."

Reconditioned for performance

That's just one of the six important reasons why our OK Used Cars are better all-around buys

Quiet, quick, and safe response is what every prospect looks for when he shops for a used car. Experienced buyers will tell you that you'll find that kind of performance—and a whole lot more—where you see the sign of the red OK. There you will find a wider selection to choose from because more cars of every make and model are being traded in on the top-selling new Chevrolet (world's fastest selling new car). Volume trading like that means that we Chevrolet dealers can offer volume savings, too! Stop in and see for yourself!

Only franchised Chevrolet dealers display these famous trademarks

First step to an OK—and passed only by cars that satisfy our experts.

We rebuild that "like new" feeling of safety into OK Used Cars.

Restored so beautifully—you'd think they'd have to cost much more!

Our cars live up to what we say about them. Our reputation depends on it.

I went back to the reception room and sat quietly in a corner. I didn't want the receptionist to notice me and make it necessary for me to explain why I was here. She had enough to do without listening to a lengthy, embarrassed explanation from a suspicious wife. I lit a cigarette and watched this smoothie with the hopped-up spectacles go about her business. She assigned studios to teachers and pupils, directed new students to the head of the school, answered the phone and made entries in the appointment book on her desk.

The girl was not only the most efficient receptionist in town, but it was a good bet she was the most charming. She was a big sister to all the women, but she wasn't that to any of the men.

I could see that she made each man feel that this business was being run solely for him. She had a touch, a very personal touch. She made me wonder if I, in spite of my 20-20 vision, shouldn't invest in a pair of those gold-becked odd-shaped glasses.

Looking at her, thinking of Steve's teacher and the other gorgeous faculty members I had spied upon, I realize that my husband certainly knew how to pick a dancing school.

The pupils for the eight o'clock classes were beginning to swarm in now. They were young and old, fat and lean, tall and short. Dancing, it seemed, was here to stay. Suddenly there was nothing in the world I wanted to do so much as dance. Steve was still that way about me. It was just about eight. I put down the elaborate brochure that made it quite clear that the Crescent School of Dancing was something terrific and watched the reception room fill up with the next period's pupils. I watched a shy, awkward newcomer taken in tow by the receptionist. She led him down one of the three corridors that spoke from the waiting room, led him toward the processing that would make him, too, socially acceptable. And then it was eight o'clock.

In a moment I saw Steve come out of his room and hurry up the corridor. I lost sight of him as he moved into the crowd headed for the elevators. I kept my eye on the door of his studio; I didn't want his teacher to elude me. I waited until I was sure Steve had left the reception room before I started on my errand. I opened the door marked Studio K and went in.

The room was filled with music, a gay, lilting waltz. It was old Vienna, bright uniforms and flashing sabres, long swirling dresses and arch smiles. Steve's teacher had neglected to turn off the music. She lay still, as still as death.

He wasn't, and hadn't been, at dead girl's eyes still staring into mine. Beneath me the big desk seemed to roll, the telephones, the stacks of papers, the open register. It was seeing the name in black and white that snapped me out of it. The letters swam, then straightened themselves.

Steven Barton, they said 7:00-8:00, Anita Farrell, Studio K. It was there in front of me, on the records... the name of Anita Farrell's last pupil, the name of Anita Farrell's murderer.

I glanced around. No one was paying me any attention. I reached for the book. My fingers still clutched the cardboard silhouette that I had taken from the teacher's hand. I tucked it between two pages and closed the book. I slipped it under my coat and folded my arms across it. I moved away from the desk and, being unobtrusive, got into an elevator that was headed down.

It was nearly eight-thirty when I reached home. The apartment was empty, but Steve had been there. He had changed into an old pair of more comfortable shoes and gone out again, possibly to look for me. I slid the register under a love seat cushion in the living room and started out to look for him.

I reached home. The apartment was empty, but Steve had been there. He had changed into an old pair of more comfortable shoes and gone out again, possibly to look for me. I slid the register under a love seat cushion in the living room and started out to look for him.

He wasn't, and hadn't been, at sprawling grotesquely on the smooth shining floor. In her back just below her left shoulder was a small round hole. Her white blouse was slowly turning crimson.

I dropped to my knees beside her, reaching for her wrist. The fingers of her hand were curled around a small, curiously shaped piece of heavy black paper. Her arm was extended almost as if she were handing the paper to me. I took it from her.

It was a cut-out, a silhouette of a beautiful girl's profile... and her head was twice pierced by a large, big-eyed darning needle. The needle gleamed wickedly against the black of the silhouette. There was no mistaking the macabre artist's subject. It was the girl who lay sprawled on the floor, her eyes glassy with the horror of sudden death.

I stumbled to my feet and started out of the room. Her murderer was somewhere near, very near. There had only been a minute's time since Steve had left this studio and I had entered it. There had been only a minute for the murderer to slip in through the door and...

My legs stopped moving and I stood facing the door, afraid to open it, afraid to turn from it. I had watched that door from the reception room. I had seen Steve come through it, close it behind him. It had not been opened or closed again until I had turned the knob.

I forced myself to turn around, to find the other entrance through which the killer had come, through which he had made his escape.

Four mirrored walls, shining, solid, met my eyes. There was only one means of entrance to this room... the door behind me, the door that Steve had used.

I had seen Steve with this girl, and she had been alive. No one but Steve had been in this room with her... and now she was dead, murdered.

Chapter 4
Then I was standing in the still crowded reception room, grasping at the edge of the desk for support. The waltzing music was still ringing in my ears, the any of the places where we ate and drank.

At nine-thirty I phoned home. There was no answer. Buy ten-thirty I had been in every bar and restaurant in our neighborhood at least once. I had phoned all of Steve's better friends; I had done everything I could think of to find him. At ten I saw the headlines on the papers:

DANCING TEACHER SLAIN
POLICE SEEK WALTZER

By the light of a street lamp I read the story. The body of beautiful Anita Farrell had been discovered a minute or two after eight o'clock by her eight o'clock pupil at the Crescent School of Dancing. The music for the victim's last lesson, a waltz, was still playing.

The engagement book was missing, but it would only be a question of time before the murderer's identity was discovered. The fact that he had stolen the book proved conclusively that Miss Farrell's killer was her last pupil, the waltzer.

I tucked the newspaper under my arm and started slowly for Lexington Avenue and home. I unlocked the door and went into the living room. Folded up on the love seat lay the waltzer. He was sound asleep.

I shook him.

"Steve," I said, "Steve, wake up!"

Without opening his eyes he smiled at me. "Hiya, Blondie, where you been? When you weren't home I went to a movie."

"Steve," I said, trying to keep my voice steady, "Steve, you're in trouble... terrible trouble."

He opened one eye. "Huh?"

"Your dancing teacher... Anita Farrell... the Crescent School, Steve..."

"Oh." He was still smiling sleepily at me, amused by my new color scheme. "You know about me dancing. Well, I'll tell you, I can explain everything..."

"Steve, wake up! There's been a murder! And the police are looking for you!"

"The police... looking for me?"

"It was your teacher who was murdered. The police think you did it. They're looking for you because they think you're the killer."

He stood up. He was wide awake now. "Did you say Anita Farrell was murdered? That I... I'm the murderer?"

I handed him the newspaper, waited until he had read the story. Then I told him my story, starting with my trailing him downtown, ending with my reading in the paper that only he could be the waltzer. I showed him the silhouette I had taken from the dead girl's hand. I listened silently to it all.

"The police," he said, "don't know yet that I'm the waltzer." "No, because I stole the appointment book."

"But they'll soon know. There must be other records at the school."

"Yes, I said. 'It's only a question of time. They'll know... and they'll be coming after you, Steve!'"

"Yeah?"

"I know you didn't kill her."

"Thanks."

"Deep down in my heart I know you're not a murderer."

"Thanks again."

"But..."

"But what?"

Suddenly it was all too much for me. I collapsed into a blubbing heap.

My eyes were streaming tears, my shoulders shaking, my hands trembling as I implored my husband to assure me, though it wasn't at all necessary... but just for the records, to please say out loud for me to hear that he had not killed Anita Farrell.

"Connie," he said and sat down beside me on the love seat. "Connie," he said, "I went through grade school, high school and a certain amount of Sunday school without rubbing out any of my teachers. With an enviable record like that how can there be any doubt that I could do the same with dancing school?"

He dried his tears. He got up and walked around the room, then sat down again, this time on the arm of a love seat. He was thoughtful, wondering, and mostly worried.

"She was alive when I left her," he said. "Somebody got into that studio between the time I left and when you went in and found her dead."

"No," I said dismally, "nobody did. I was watching all the time."

"Connie, somebody... somehow, got in there and put a bullet in her back."

"How, Steve? There's only one door, no windows."

"Could anyone possibly have got through that door without your seeing him? Couldn't you possibly be wrong about that? Think hard, Connie!"

I thought hard; I prayed that I could be wrong about it. I said, "I never took my eyes off that door. Nobody opened it between the times you and I did."

"Well," Steve said, "that's that."

"No, there's an answer to this. We've got to find it."

Steve roamed the room as though he were physically searching for that answer. I stayed where I was. Neither of us was using the right method. The silence of our frustration lengthened into minutes. At last Steve dropped desperately into the love seat opposite me. He looked at the silhouette on the coffee table. He picked it up, studied it.

"Yes," I said, "and what about that?"

"The killer probably put it in her hand after he shot her."

"But why, Steve?"

"I don't know..."

"Steve," I said, and what I was thinking sent chill through me. "Steve, it's like voodoo, isn't it? That needle through her silhouette is like a needle through a doll's heart... a hex."

Maybe the murder handed it to her before he killed her, let her get the significance of it. Maybe he wanted her to suffer for a horrible moment before she died.

A policeman is knocking at Steve's door as "The Blonde Died Dancing" continues tomorrow.

Navy Cancels Visit, Sails for Secret Point

THE HAGUE (AP)—An American naval force today was ordered to break off a visit to the Netherlands and leave at noon for a secret destination, a U.S. Embassy spokesman announced.

The ships are those of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet's Hunter Killer Group No. 2. They include the aircraft carrier Antietam, six destroyers, two submarines and a tanker.

Because of the current Middle East crisis, there was immediate speculation that the ships had been ordered to join the U.S. 6th Fleet in the eastern Mediterranean.

Four Candidates From Area State Election Qualifications

(Editor's Note: This is the first of three articles outlining the qualifications and policies of Oakland County candidates for local, state and national offices. Future articles will include candidates for the Michigan legislature and for county offices.)

William S. Broomfield, Republican, opposes Democrat Paul Sutton for election to the U.S. House of Representatives from Oakland County, Michigan's 18th Congressional District.

Republican L. Harvey Lodge faces Fred Elias in the Oakland County race for election as State Senator from the 12th Senatorial District.

WILLIAM S. BROOMFIELD
Now State Senator, Broomfield, 34, of Royal Oak, seeks election to replace retiring Rep. George A. Dondero, Oakland County's Representative for 24 years.

Broomfield, who carries Dondero's endorsement, has served three terms in the Legislature and one term as senator. He was the youngest man in Michigan's history to serve as speaker pro tem of the House.

An Air Force veteran, Broomfield attended Royal Oak schools and Michigan State University. He is married and has two children.

His statement:
"I pledge my fullest support to President Eisenhower and the policies of his administration. I support the President's proposal for a tax cut for small businessmen, and I pledge fair consideration for all proposed legislation which would affect the working man."

"I will seek federal assistance in working out Oakland County's water, road and drain problems, but I believe we should not ask for financial aid until we have examined and exhausted our own resources. In the long run, federal aid is too exorbitant."

"I believe the same policy should apply to education. I will support federal aid to schools in needy areas if local control of the schools is assured."

"If elected, I will maintain two offices to better serve my constituents in the north and south ends of Oakland County, providing direct contact with my Washington office."

PAUL SUTTON

Paul Sutton, 45, of Royal Oak, fleet sales director for a trucking firm, won the Democratic primary in 1934, but lost to Rep. George A. Dondero.

Sutton, active in the party since 1927, is a past chairman of the Royal Oak City Democratic Committee.

Born in New Mexico, Sutton served in the Army during World War II and has lived in Oakland County since 1951. His professional experience has in-

FRED ELIAS

A graduate of the University of Michigan, Lodge took his legal training at the University's law school.

He is a member of the local, state and national bar associations, Elks, Masons, and the Michigan Union, and holds honorary memberships from Lake Orion Lions Club and the Railroad Cooperative League of Michigan.

Married, Lodge is a lifetime resident of Oakland County.

His statement:

"I will use my extensive education and experience to secure legislation to help Oakland County solve its many problems. I am particularly concerned with those including roads, water supply, drains and sewers, and education. We need not only four-lane divided highways, but improvements in our woefully neglected secondary roads."

"We must have plentiful water at a minimum cost, and we must control the supply and the cost without interference from other government units."

"Drainage and sewage disposal, essential to public health and welfare, must be provided on the same terms."

"Suitable educational facilities and personnel must be provided for our children and for a more advanced system of adult education."

FRED ELIAS

Hazel Park restaurateur Fred Elias, 42, also seeks election as Oakland County state senator.

Part owner of six drive-in restaurants in the Detroit suburban area, Elias was the Democratic nominee for the post in 1934.

A member of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors, Elias serves on the board of directors of the Michigan Restaurant and Caterers' Association. He is a past president of the Michigan Drive-In Assn. and the Hazel Park Businessmen's Association.

A county resident for 15 years, Elias is married and has three children.

His statement:

"I support Governor Williams efforts to 'build Michigan,' and I am anxious to get results on such important issues as highways, taxes, unemployment, fair employment practices, old age needs, water problems, schools, civil defense and the many other pertinent affairs of the people of Oakland County."

"My main objective in seeking election as state senator is to fairly represent all of the people of Oakland County, and not just giant corporations and or special interests."

"I feel it is everybody's right to have a good home, a good job, a family, individual liberty and security."

Water Plans Bubble Toward Million Dollar Mark

Troy Voting on Water Aid

Retake on Procedure Required; Vote Taken Is Unanimous

TROY—Forced to go through legal procedures that initially took all summer, city commissioners last night took one major step toward arranging for water main installations that may cost close to $375,000.

There will be 21 special assessment districts in the new plan, instead of a lumped-together plan or originally used.

Totalling the figure made bonding attorneys balk early this month, throwing out the lengthy hearings and readying for bonding for the plan to provide water for residents now using individual wells or building new homes.

"I'm afraid we won't have the work started this fall," said Lawson Lockhart, city clerk, but he expressed optimism on progress to have the project underway by spring.

Last night's step was a hearing of necessity, with all 21 units carried with no objections. Some units are for streets, others for subdivisions.

The city is asking bids for Nov. 7 at 10 a.m., when they will be opened, for tap service from residences to water mains, for the next six month term.

Low bid of $2,225 plus three trade ins was accepted for two new cars, one for police and the other for city use, from Paul Riemenschneider, Pontiac auto dealer. The cars, Plymouths, are one eight, and one six cylinder vehicles.

100 Attend Thomas Fete for Newlyweds

THOMAS — Over 100 guests attended a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Denton Childers, newlyweds, at the Thomas Community Hall on Saturday evening.

Children is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Childers and his bride, the former Barbara Lee Diamond, is the daughter of Mrs. Lena Kennard and Charles Diamond of LaPeer.

They were married on Oct. 17 at Batesville, Ky., and were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Lendal King.

The couple plans to live at Rochester.

Freed From Jail to Vote for Dems

DETROIT (AP)—Eddie Brown, 40, of Midland, serving 30 days for drunkenness, won a reduction of sentence from a Detroit judge. He said he wanted to vote for the Democrats again.

Recorder's Judge Joseph A. Gillis said in suspending sentence: "Far be it from me to stand in the way of a Democratic vote."

Brown had written Judge Gillis a penciled note saying, "Please, Your Honor, will you be kind enough to reduce my sentence and let me out of prison in time to vote in Midland Nov. 6."

Ordered back to court, Brown told Gillis that he voted for Stevenson and Michigan Gov. Williams in 1952. He said he would do it again, if released. Gillis had sentenced Brown to 30 days for drunkenness, Oct. 20.

A Novice at Halloween

Pumpkins, Broomsticks Puzzling Japanese Girl

By REBA HEINTZELMAN

MILFORD Correspondent

"What is Halloween?"—that is the question that Toshiko Okitsu, Milford's first Japanese exchange student, would like to know. She is sponsored by the American Field Service.

For weeks she has been completely baffled by all the preparation that goes to make up this one gala night in the year, especially for youngsters.

Every store window on Main street in Milford is completely covered with grotesque goblins, ghosts, witches on broomsticks and spooky owls sitting in front of pale moons. Elementary school children painted the windows Monday, and prizes were awarded for the best.

This year a bumper crop of bright pumpkins are for sale along the highways and the various faces that are cut in the vegetable make Toshi more curious than ever.

Orange and black decorations fill the stores and there seems to be no limit as to the "trick or treat" business. All this is very confusing to the pretty teenager from "the land of the setting sun."

Toshi is a quiet-spoken student who was born and raised in Tokyo, Japan, 17 years ago. She has three sisters and a brother and her father is the factory superintendent of one of the largest automobile assembly plants in the Far East.

Although she speaks the English language very well, Toshi has trouble understanding Americans. She studied English for nine years of her schooling from a nun at a private Mission in Japan. "English—not American," she stressed. "They are quite different, you know."

Tomorrow night Main street will be closed and children of all ages will parade through the town in every conceivable costume.

Hundreds of youngsters from all over Oakland County are expected to be on hand for the free cider, apples and prizes for all.

A big dance at the Teen Canteen will climax the evening, and when it is all over, Toshi will be able to say, "Now I know what this American Halloween is—and it's FUN!"

Slate Meeting in New Church

St. Andrew Men Plan to Hear Finance Talk at Williams Lake

WATERFORD TOWNSHIP — The Rev. L. C. Johnson, rector of St. John's Church of Detroit and finance chairman of the Michigan diocese, will speak tonight at 8, to a gathering of men of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Drayton Plains, at the Williams Lake School, at Airport and Hatchery Roads.

The meeting will be adjourned to the new building, and will be the first men's gathering there, at 5301 Hatchery Rd. The building, practically completed, is having its piano and stove moved in today.

St. Monica's guild, new social service group, will serve a dessert at 7:30 p.m.

The session is in preparation for the annual, every-member, canvas set for Sunday. Carl H. Methner and F. J. Mansfield are co-chairmen of the drive.

The Rev. Mr. Johnson will be introduced by the Rev. Waldo R. Hunt, vicar of the church, as well as possibly Dr. Paul Rusch of Japan, a missionary.

GOP Coffee Slated for Addison Township

ADDISON TOWNSHIP — A Republican coffee will be served Friday morning at 10:30 at Rowland Hall in Leonard to give Republicans of Addison Township a chance to meet the candidates on the ticket for election on Nov. 6.

Oak Park Plans Bonding Half Million for Water

OAK PARK—Tentative approval to borrow $500,000 in bonds to help finance a water works project was given at an executive session of council here last night.

Water Supt. Joseph Johnson said this morning that approval was also given to use approximately $100,000 of service funds from the water department for the project.

Improvements will include a 4-million gallon reservoir and two pumping stations.

Mysore State, India, will have a second cement plant (100,000 tons) employing 500.

School Parties Precede Parade in Metamora

METAMORA — There will be Halloween parties at the Metamora school for each of the several rooms tomorrow afternoon, and all will gather in one group for the showing of a film.

Also there will be the usual street parade in the evening, sponsored by the Lions Club, with prizes for costumes, and refreshments.

But Walled Lake Ironing Them Out

Rapid Growth Brings Many Problems

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles describing the rapid growth of Walled Lake and its surrounding area.

George A. Shaw, city manager, came to Walled Lake only a little more than a month ago. He had previously been assistant manager at Mexico, Mo. He admits frankly that Walled Lake's rapid growth has brought many problems.

"One of our big tasks is to get the city's new municipal organization established and functioning properly," he pointed out.

"Probably our biggest single problem is a badly needed sewage disposal system," he added. "Everyone in Walled Lake is served by septic tanks. Novi township is now working on a project to provide for sewage disposal there, and there is a possibility that we may join with them."

"We have our own police department with three officers including Chief James Decker. We have two police cars, which are radio controlled through the sheriff's department."

"We have a volunteer fire department in charge of Acting Chief Ray Price and Assistant Chief Art Graham. We took over the fire hall from Novi Township and bought a 750-gallon pumper. We are remodeling the fire station and plan to move some of our municipal offices there when that work is completed."

"We are working on a new zoning ordinance to replace the Commerce Township ordinance which we worked under temporarily."

"We are working on a program to blacktop three major streets and one subdivision street, but the actual blacktopping will have to wait until next spring. That program will be financed by special assessments, with the city bearing part of the cost."

"We look forward to the time when the city may have a central water system. Thus far public water is provided in two subdivisions. These two water supplies have been turned over to the city by the developers of the subdivisions."

"One of our big problems of course is that the rapid growth of our population means more people to serve, with the inevitable lag between the need for municipal services and the receipt of the additional tax funds."

"Another problem we now are discussing is the revaluation of all the property in the city to reduce the present high equalization factor. Our total valuation for 1956 was $2,574,270, including both real and personal; but our equalized valuation was over five million dollars. Our tax rate is $15 a thousand."

Walled Lake's rapid growth is pinpointed by the increase in the number of registered voters. Only 600 registered to vote on the first attempt at incorporation in 1952. Today 1,383 voters are registered. This is an increase of 401 over the special election only a year and a half ago when incorporation was approved.

Clare Riley, president of the Walled Lake Chamber of Commerce, doesn't have to use any superlatives to describe the area's growth.

"Our surveys showed we had 62 business firms in Walled Lake seven years ago," he said. "Today we have 85 in the city alone and some 142 counting all of Commerce Township."

"We are seeking to promote better relations and improved conditions in the city and the surrounding area. We joined in a University of Michigan survey and are trying to carry out its recommendations. We are cooperating with the city to make this a better place in which to live."

"We are trying to eliminate scavenger organizations from coming in to fleece the public, people with no licenses and no local business establishments."

"We are proud of the Midwest Ski Meet we put on last summer. We had competitors from 13 states. It was the biggest such event ever held in this whole section of the country."

"We have 45 members in our chamber at present without any real campaign for new members this year. We keep in mind that

Troy PTSA Sets Teenager Party

2nd Halloween Event at 7 P.M. Wednesday in Gymnasium

TROY—The Troy High School PTSA will present its second annual Halloween party Wednesday, from 7 until 9:45 p.m., in the high school gymnasium for all Troy High students.

General chairman in charge of the affair is again Lawrence Lage. "There is no charge for admission or refreshments," Lage said. "Everything is free. In addition, a wide variety of games and prizes will be offered."

"This is PTSA's way of keeping our kids off the streets where they can get into mischief," Lage explained.

"The cooperating sponsorship of local merchants and industries through their donations of merchandise and cash makes this sort of activity possible," he continued. Last year's party was a great success, with more than 400 young people in attendance. The PTSA expects an even more successful affair this year, according to Lage.

Helping with games, prizes and refreshments at the high school Wednesday will be Mrs. Barbara Hammond, Ann Radwanski, Mrs. Sally Morrow, Mrs. Jean Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilcock, William Decker, Robert Nyquist, Donald Hill, Noble Culp and Jack Muir.

Student entertainment committee, under the direction of Rev. Robert Ward, chairman, includes Jeff Osborne, Betty Kajala, Adda Mae Akin, Lucille Koehler, Connie Kramerich and Bonnie Pirkle. Clark Gill is chairman of the collections committee; assisting him have been Mrs. Jean Osborne, Mrs. Libby Ford and Mrs. Lorraine Halsey.

Scouts Tour Detroit

WATERFORD TOWNSHIP — Eighteen members of Jayno Adams Girl Scout Troop 229 are visiting the Detroit Library today and will tour the Detroit Institute of Art this afternoon, accompanied by their leader, Mrs. Clifford Ouellette, and Mrs. Rex Oakley, Mrs. Robert Bowman, Mrs. Kenneth Huffman and Mrs. John Harrington.

Orion Center Awaits Sketch by Architect

LAKE ORION — When the new board of directors of the Orion Community Center held its first meeting, they arranged for an architect to present sketches at the public meeting on Nov. 8, and elected several new directors.

Mrs. David Eraldson, secretary, was named to the board, along with Gilbert Woodcock and Robert Hauxwell. Woodcock was named treasurer.

Memberships are being taken, with dollar fees, by mail to Box 265, Lake Orion.

Committees, which will have five members each, will be headed by Fred Ruge, site; Charles Starrs, building and architecture; James Sheldon, finance; Mrs. Martin Carlson, membership, and Eraldson, publicity.

No Terror, but Terrific Is the Modern Halloween

Halloween, once a terror for householders worried about children's pranks, has become terrific, say the parents who are guiding their offspring in taking up UNICEF pennies.

The collection for the United Nations Children's Fund, successful in many areas in other years, has been taken up in numerous locales in southeastern Michigan.

Marlette The Marlette Methodist Youth Fellowship are planning another "Trick or Treat" night to collect funds for "UNICEF" encouraged by their reception last year, but hope to do much more this year, and will be calling from 6:30-9:30.

Waterford Y-teens have slated a clothing drive for UNICEF for tomorrow night, with contacts throughout the townships from 3 until 9 p.m. Mrs. Edwina Isaacson is advisor for the group of senior high teenagers who'll be asking donations of any wearable clothes, shoes, and toys for shipping abroad.

Dryden The WSCS of the Dryden Methodist Church is sponsoring a UNICEF drive for the youngsters on Halloween, with children wanting to take part reporting to the church at 6:30 p.m. for tags and instructions.

Westacres Ringing doorbells for the UNICEF tomorrow night will be members of the Junior High Westminister Fellowship of the Orchard Lake Community Church.

Last year this group collected over $180, and hopes for more this time.

The young people will be calling early in the evening, for a 7:30 session of games and refreshments is planned for them.

SING FOR SERENITY—Movie and television star Gordon MacRae prescribes warbling as a sure cure for nervous tension. He claims that his "singing for serenity" formula always works.

MacRae Claims Singing Defeats Nervous Tension

By BOB THOMAS
 HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Gordon MacRae has his own prescription for release from nervous tension: Sing!

It's as simple as that. Forget the tranquilizers and self-help books. Just sing. MacRae realizes his formula sounds revoltingly simple and even a little Pollyanna-ish. But he claims it has worked for him.

"I'll never forget one day when I was a kid, I was singing on my way home," he recalled. "My dad was on the porch and he heard me singing all the way down the block. He told me, 'Son, as long as you can sing like that, nothing can ever bother you.'"

"I've always remembered that. When I work too hard and things start getting tense, I start singing. It seems to clear my mind and give me strength."

"Most people sing in the bathtub or the shower. Why? Because they feel good; they're getting a fresh, clean start on the day. If they would sing at other times too I think they could retain that attitude."

He cited his idol Bing Crosby as an example of the therapeutic value of song. One of Hollywood's most relaxed men, Bing is always bursting into song, largely for his own amusement. Another off-stage singer is Perry Como. You can't get much more relaxed than Perry and remain conscious.

But you don't need the vocal talent of a Crosby or Como, MacRae agreed. Anybody can do it. "The trouble is that we've gotten out of the habit of singing," he said. "I suppose that's because we have so much radio and television to listen to. There isn't enough quiet in the house to provide time to sing."

Plan Children's Home

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—A $1,250,000, five-year expansion program has been announced for Pine Rest Christian Assn. Nursing Home and Sanatorium facilities at nearby Cutlerville. C. A. Van Hattem of Chicago, newly elected president of the facility's board of trustees, said the first project will be children's retreat school building for 120 children.

Deborah KERR and John KERR in
"TEA and SYMPATHY"

Oakland ★ Starts Thursday!

Almost any story, even the most daring, can be brought to the screen with honesty and good taste.

M-G-M has filmed the famed stage sensation "Tea and Sympathy," about a young student and the housemaster's wife who knew he was more of a man than any of those who called him "Sister Boy" ... even before she helped him prove it!

Deborah Kerr, John Kerr and Leif Erickson play the roles they created on Broadway. And the greater fluidity of the screen medium has enabled them to attain an even more powerful crescendo as each of these intimately interlocked characters moves toward the most talked-about dramatic climax of our day. Those who said Robert Anderson's astounding play couldn't—even shouldn't—be filmed will probably be the first to cheer the stars' delicate yet passionate portrayals.

"Years from now," Laura was saying softly, "when you talk about this—and you will—be kind ..."

Everybody knows a Tom Lee, but not every Tom Lee is lucky enough to know a Laura Reynolds. Shining with the radiance of Miss Kerr, she is a woman quick to sense the sensitivities of others, one who will find it difficult to adhere to the other faculty wives' advice: "Don't get emotionally involved with the boys' problems; all you need give them is a little tea and sympathy."

At first Laura is amused and touched by Tom's puppy-love for her. But what is Laura to do when her attempts to escape his dependence on her are interpreted by Tom as betrayal? Does she do right? Every viewer must decide this in the solitude of his own heart.

Producer Pandro S. Berman and director Vincente Minnelli capture every rapture, every stinging and compassionate observation in the best imaginable taste. Now filmed in CinemaScope and Metrocolor, Anderson's script faithfully preserves, and often enhances, every sudden turn and turning-point of his own long-run play.

And M-G-M has made certain that the electric tingle that ran down Broadway on opening night now runs down your spine when you see "Tea and Sympathy!"

Hoover Cites Nation's Needs

Voters to Be Happier If They Support GOP, Says Ex-President

NEW YORK (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover says the nation's voters will be "happier" if they vote for President Eisenhower, Vice President Nixon and a Republican Congress.

In a five-minute national television speech last night in behalf of the GOP, Hoover said the American people have six basic needs. He said the Eisenhower administration "has already succeeded or is driving toward these objectives."

Hoover listed the six needs as: "Advancement of peace in the world and preparedness for defense in the meantime."

"Maximum employment and an ascending standard of living. "Economy in government, reduction of taxes, a balanced budget and, therefore, protection of the purchasing power of the government."

"The care of the sick, the disabled veterans, the aged, the children, and public improvements which the people or the states cannot accomplish for themselves."

"Integrity in government—both financial and intellectual."

"Among the great issues of mankind today is the encroachment of governments in the mastery of men's lives. This issue has many fronts. Vital to free men is free enterprise in social and economic life, which, of course, must be regulated to prevent abuse."

a policy-making State Department position under the Democratic administration.

"I don't claim to know all the answers to our foreign policy problems," Broomfield said. "The men in Washington who have studied the problem for years don't claim to know all the answers."

"I will support the Eisenhower administration in foreign policy, which is primarily the job of the President and the State Department, America is at peace now."

Broomfield proposed a federal coordinating program for medical research on deadly diseases like leukemia and cystic fibrosis.

KAVANAGH LAUDS GOVERNOR

Kavanagh, Democratic attorney general of Michigan, reviewed his accomplishments in office and lauded Gov. G. Mennen Williams, who he said "got the highway bill not because of, but over the heads of, almost every Republican in the Legislature."

Williams, he said, has repeatedly quarreled with Republican Highway Commissioner Charles Ziegler. He pointed out Williams has the power to remove Ziegler from office.

"But he has preferred to keep him—whether because of his qualifications as a highway commissioner, or his qualifications as a scapegoat, I do not know."

'HOSTILE TO BUSINESS'

Van Dusen said although Williams "claims he is a friend of the working man, actually he has only been hostile to business."

Pointing to the recent closing of Michigan plants of Packard Motor Co., Hudson Motors and Philco Radio, Van Dusen said as a result of Williams' "hostility" "he has driven jobs out of Michigan and destroyed the confidence of Michigan businessmen."

Other candidates who spoke included L. Harvey Lodge (R) and Fred Elias (D) running for state senator; Lynn D. Allen (R) and Odie H. Johnson (D), for county clerk; Wallace E. Rice (D), for drain commissioner; B. Jack Habel (D) and Daniel T. Murphy Jr. (R) for register of deeds.

Others were David E. Utley (D) and Frederick C. Ziem (R) for prosecuting attorney; George D. Hicks (D) and Frank W. Irons (R), for sheriff; Steven J. Kolar (D), for representative from district 1; Leslie H. Hudson (D) and Robert C. Miller (R), for representative from district 2.

Theodore F. Koella spoke for County Treasurer Charles A. Sparks, a Republican.

Smash Pillars, Light Over Past Weekend

Several pillars of concrete and a flood light in front of the Knights of Columbus Hall at 295 S. Saginaw St. were broken sometime during the past weekend, Pontiac police said today.

Caretaker Al Huserau discovered the damage yesterday. No estimate has been set on the destroyed property.

Lyon School Voters Approve Bond Issue

SOUTH LYON—With 440 votes cast, a bond issue for $225,000 to provide funds for school buildings carried by 306 to 110 and on a special levy of 2 1/2 mills for five years for new sites and general fund reimbursement was passed 287 to 129, in Lyon Township School District.

In a vote on increasing the 15-mill, residents voted 299 to 140.

The district includes parts of Oakland, Washtenaw and Livingston counties.

Goblins Aid UNICEF

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Trick or treat Halloween excursions by more than 1,000 Grand Rapids children tomorrow night are expected to result in funds for the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF). A similar effort last year collected $1,000 for the fund which aids needy children throughout the world.

Other candidates of GOP's stripe but they'll ignore Duff. A successful ticket cutting operation would be disastrous to Duff if Mr. Eisenhower fails to take the state handily. There are some Republicans who believe Eisenhower may do even better this year than the 269,000 margin polled in 1952.

Democrats freely predict Duff's political demise. They have hammered Senate roll calls and called him the advocate of big business.

Duff denies the allegations and then reminds voters that Clark is on the Executive Board of the Americans for Democratic Action which is regarded in some circles as a left wing organization.

They'll go to the polls, the reports insist, and vote for Ike and

Navy Set to Go on A-Carrier

Largest Warship Ever Awaiting Appropriation From Congress

NEW YORK (INS)—Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas revealed last night the United States has completed plans for a giant atomic-powered aircraft carrier that will be by far the largest warship ever built.

The 85,000-ton vessel, expected to cost more than 400 million dollars, is to have a top speed of 33 knots (38 m.p.h.) and an almost unlimited cruising range.

Thomas made clear that the plans have been approved by the administration. He said: "The next fiscal year will see the commencement of its construction if Congress appropriates the funds."

Thomas, in a speech loaded with information about Navy preparations for a completely atomic-powered war fleet, also unveiled plans for a mammoth nuclear submarine that will be able to fire guided missiles against targets 1,200 to 1,500 miles away.

NO PLACE IS SAFE—This submarine will have a missile hangar which, by itself, is nearly as large as an entire submarine of World War I," Thomas said. "There is virtually no place in the world that it couldn't hit." Thomas gave no figure for the cost of the "super-sub" aircraft carrier, but the Defense Department said the cost of the hull without powerplants will be close to the price tag of the 60,000-ton carriers already built—about 200 million dollars.

Truman Charges Foreign Policy Confusing Allies

SALEM, Mo. (AP)—Former President Truman says the leaders of other nations don't know what the United States foreign policy is and the present government "has broken up every friendship the U.S. ever had."

"We ought to know where we are going and explain it to our allies," he said last night at a campaign rally.

The Republicans say they are for the little man and have brought 50 antitrust suits to prove it, but to this day, not one has been prosecuted," Truman declared.

He contended more persons have gone broke under the Eisenhower administration than in his entire eight years in office. He charged the GOP with "giving away enough offshore oil to support our school system a long time."

Police Seek Thieves of $1,000 in Items

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP—Police here are employing a fingerprint check and other means in hopes of locating the thieves of about $1,000 worth of housewares and money from the Paul Baughan home, 1955 Squirrel, last weekend.

The family have totalled losses, which police chief Clark Green says indicate that another family might be setting up housekeeping with the stolen items. He says also, that small tracks indicate that one of the two who broke into the home was a woman.

Thefts of items included blankets, babywear, jewelry, a toaster and bedding and towels.

More Light on Detroit

DETROIT (INS)—The Detroit Public Lighting Commission today recommended a program calling for the outlay of nearly $5 million in fiscal 1957-58 to improve the system. The proposed capital improvement budget was adopted yesterday.

India will enter the World Team Chess Championship to be played in Moscow this year.

Bloomfield Chief Stresses, 'No Hunting'

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP—Stressing that hunting is outlawed in this township, Chief of Police Clark Green today said his staff is watching closely for offenders.

One man, caught hunting with one squirrel already bagged, the Chief says, is Herbert C. Hicks, 25, of Detroit.

The no-hunting ruling became law with a legislature measure last year, but the township had the year previously already banned it.

Walled Lake Youth Tossed Off Scooter

Robert O'Connor, 13, of 3067 Brookline Rd., Walled Lake, is in critical condition at Pontiac General Hospital today with injuries received Monday when he was thrown off his powerless motor scooter landing headon against a passing car.

The youth is under treatment for multiple bruises, cuts of the head and left leg, and possible internal injuries. The car involved was operated by Mable Bisbing, 69, of 3292 Mandrake St., Commerce Township.

According to Oakland County Sheriff's deputies, O'Connor was being towed by a motor scooter operated by George Marks, 14, of 9405 Commerce St., Commerce Township, when the incident occurred at the intersection of Maple and Pittsfield roads in Commerce Township.

Officers Gordon Misenar told the Press the scooter operator saw the car approaching and made a sharp turn off the gravel road which apparently pulled O'Connor's scooter out from under him and sent him flying into the side of the Bisbing car.
