

Vote Allowing Office in Each State Senate District Is Reaffirmed

LANSING (AP)—Reaffirming a decision to allow individual senators to set up home district offices, the State Senate Thursday refused to vote on a proposal to repeal the law.

House Weighs Motorist Bill

Nine Violation Points Could Take License

LANSING (AP) — The House is considering a bill which would permit the Secretary of State's office to revoke or suspend the driving license of anyone compiling nine points—instead of the present 12—in two years under Michigan's violation point system.

The measure, advocated by Secretary James Hare, was debated Thursday but no action was taken. The bill, however, remains in position for further debate.

As amended in House committee, it would also allow revocation if the driver were involved in an auto accident resulting in death, or in three mishaps during two years which involved property damage or injury.

Anyone who had "driven a motor vehicle in a reckless or negligent manner" or endangered persons or property with his driving could be called in for "examination and his license could be revoked or suspended by the department."

PASSAGE URGED

Rep. George Edwards, D-Detroit, attacked the idea of lowering the point total which could lead to suspension. "I hate to say it," Edwards said, "but this is already a great harassment of the citizens who are called in after accumulating 12 points."

Rep. Hal Ziegler, R-Jackson, opposed widening the powers of an administrative agency to take away licenses of persons not convicted in court of driving offenses.

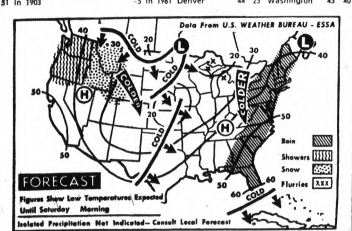

"Fortunately we still have courts of law and judges or juries to determine who was at fault in an accident," Ziegler said.

S. Viet Rangers Serve Up Breakfast of Bullets to VC

SAIGON (AP) — A group of Vietcong troops were eating breakfast at a sidewalk Chinese restaurant in Saigon this morning when the South Vietnamese rangers caught them.

"The restaurant was their base of operations. We caught them at breakfast," said a ranger officer with a grin.

U.S. Spy Ship 'Off Korea'

TOKYO (AP) — The Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri said one of its staffers photographed another U.S. spy ship, the Banner, cruising off the Korean peninsula in the Sea of Japan today near the U.S. aircraft carrier Ranger.

The paper said the ship was the same type as the Pueblo, which was seized by North Korea Jan. 23. Jane's Fighting Ships lists the Banner as a light cargo ship converted in 1965 for special projects.

Yomiuri said the photographer flying over the Sea of Japan spotted the Banner about 90 miles northeast of Mi Shima Island. This is about 100 miles east of South Korea.

2 Gunmen Elude Dragnet Fleeing Through Rockies

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Two 300-mile trail through the Rocky Mountains.

A widespread alert on suspicion of assault, robbery and kidnapping was out for Charles Edward Hardin, 25, and Earl Wayne Sanders, 21, sought on murder charges in the slaying of a tavern owner in Fort Worth, Tex., last Dec. 21.

Police also were looking for Theo Ray Thames, 20, wanted on the same charge and reported to be in Colorado with Hardin and Sanders.

The latest episode was the second spectacular getaway attempt in Colorado in four days and both began with bungled stickups that left the bandit with more hostages than loot.

The latest spree started in Vail, Colo., a ski resort in the Rockies. Monday's chase started with a fouled-up robbery at a Denver supermarket.

The supermarket bandit shot two of his seven hostages in a 300-mile flight across the plains, with more than 100 officers in pursuit. The Vail gunmen released all their hostages unharmed.

The Denver stickup man abducted a police sergeant and finally surrendered to him. The Vail gunmen took the village police chief and handcuffed him to a tree.

FDA Seeks Ban on Diet Drugs

Thyroid-Digitalis Use in Pills Is Target

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration disclosed today it is moving to halt the manufacture and distribution of thyroid-digitalis preparations used as diet pills.

Dr. James L. Gaddard, FDA commissioner, told Senate investigators the agency feels it now has sufficient evidence to prove the drugs constitute a danger to health.

He said adverse actions recently were taken against three manufacturers and additional seizures from other firms are anticipated momentarily.

Goddard testified at the wind-up of a two-week hearing by the Senate antitrust subcommittee on the multimillion-dollar diet pill industry.

NO SAFE CONTROL

At the outset of his testimony, Goddard said the drug can safely control the problem of obesity.

"At the very best," he said, "their potential is secondary to the elimination of the cause of overeating."

"There is no easy painless way for an overweight person to eat what he or she wants and to melt off the excess fat by taking one or a dozen drugs a day," he emphasized.

The subcommittee has received testimony that thyroid-digitalis combination drugs are among those widely used by some doctors specializing in the treatment of overweight persons.

Goddard said the drugs have been marketed for over 30 years but it was not until recently the FDA felt it had sufficient evidence to take them off the market.

Lake Michigan Cleanup by 2068 Called Optimistic

CHICAGO (UPI) — A clean Lake Michigan within 100 years is a very optimistic thought, a federal water pollution expert said yesterday at the second day of a five-day conference considering the problem.

The state of Illinois presents its view of the Lake Michigan pollution situation today.

Donald J. Baumgartner of the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration disagreed with a scientist who earlier estimated it would take 100 years to reduce the pollution concentration in the lake by 90 per cent.

Baumgartner said the task would take much longer, since the scientists no doubt were expecting 100 per cent effectiveness from control measures.

Orion Man, 31, Shot in Chest

An Orion Township man is in serious condition today at Pontiac General Hospital after being shot in the chest yesterday.

Sheriff's deputies said that LeRoy W. Proper, 31, of 2465 Baldwin was wounded when a rifle fired by his cousin, Donald L. Proper, went off.

Proper, 28, of 1340 Philatha, Troy, was being questioned today about "inconsistent" stories of the 10:30 a.m. shooting.

Investigators were first told that the caliber rifle fired as LeRoy placed it on the table at which he was sitting.

Merrillwood to Get Jewelers

BIRMINGHAM — Wright Kay, jewelers with three stores in the Detroit metropolitan area, have announced that a fourth will be located in the Merrillwood building in this city.

Merrillwood, which will contain both luxury apartments and specialty shops, is presently under construction at the corner of Merrill and Woodward.

Wright Kay, established in Detroit in 1961 under the name of Roehm and Wright, also operates jewelry stores in Northland shopping center and Grosse Pointe.

The firm is currently owned by American Music Stores, Inc., which purchased it in 1965.

The Merrillwood store, to be completed by early summer, will include a circular stairway leading to the building's second-floor mall.

Merrillwood is being constructed under the new concept of "horizontal zoning," with commercial businesses on the lower floors and residents on the upper. It is designed to increase the convenience of apartment dwelling.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — Roper City & Country Store, 2190 N. Woodward, will hold its annual theater party Feb. 25 at the Fisher Theater in Detroit.

This year the annual benefit affair will feature "George M!" — a new musical based on the life of George M. Cohan, song-and-dance entertainer of the early 1920s.

Joel Grey, who previously starred in "Cabaret," will have the lead role in the performance, funds from which will go to Roper's scholarship program.

For Criminal Sexual Psychopaths

House Unit Urges Law Repeal

LANSING (AP) — A special House committee created to study Michigan's Criminal Sexual Psychopath Law recommended Thursday that the controversial statute be repealed.

The seven-member committee said the 1939 law has been amended and interpreted into a form that offer many accused criminals, including murderers, an "escape hatch" which no other state provides.

It pointed to two recent cases in which confessed slayers made use of the law to put themselves beyond the reach of criminal prosecution—although liable for commitments of undetermined length to Ionia State Hospital.

The two were Ralph C. Nuss, accused of killing two teen-aged boys in Washenaw County, and Theodore Glen Williams, who the committee said admitted the slayings of two girls, aged 11 and 7, in Allegan County.

CAN'T BE PROSECUTED

"Neither man, even if released from mental health department custody within a few months could ever be prosecuted on those charges," the committee said in its final report.

The Criminal Sexual Psychopath (CSP) Law provides that an accused or convicted criminal "who is suffering from a mental disorder ... coupled with criminal propensities to the commission of sex offenses" may be declared a CSP.

Once that declaration is made, the person is placed in the custody of the State Mental Health Department—rather than in a prison—and all criminal charges against him are dropped.

The Mental Health Department then is given discretion over how long to keep the man and when to release him.

PSYCHOPATH HEARING

"Michigan ... is presently the only state where a charged or convicted person can himself demand, through his attorney, a sexual psychopath hearing and, if found to fit the statutory definition, escape prosecution or sentencing and remove himself permanently from the jurisdiction of any court," the committee said.

The committee said it had taken testimony from psychiatrists, prosecutors, judges and law enforcement officers. It said no one had advocated retaining the CSP law.

Repeal of the law would still permit, under another statute, a prosecutor to petition for commitment of "persons whose sexual behavior is characterized by repetitive or compulsive acts which indicate a disregard of consequences or the recognized rights of others," the committee said.

Rep. Roy Smith R-Ypsilanti, was chairman of the special committee, which the House created last year. Other members were Reps. David Serotkin, R-Mount Clemens; Raymond Hood, D-Detroit; Peter Kok, R-Grand Rapids; Thomas Brown, R-Lansing; James O'Neill, D-Saginaw; and Joyce Symons, D-Allen Park.

Avon Twp. Fire Believed Caused by Two Children

A fire believed caused by two young children playing with matches gutted one bedroom and smoked up another Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Mildred Anderson, 3078 Bathurst, Avon Township.

Mrs. Anderson was reportedly not home at the time of the blaze, said Avondale Fire Chief William Richards.

The fire chief said the two children, aged 6 and 7, were seen running back and forth between the bedroom and bathroom for glasses of water. An uncle, upon investigation, discovered the fire and tried to douse it with a wet sheet, said Richardson. By that time, the chief said, papers under the bed had ignited.

No estimate was available on damage to the one-and-a-half story brick building.

The fire department was in action from 6:40 to 9:05 p.m.

Save-the-Capitol Effort Is Approved

LANSING (UPI) — The Michigan Historical Commission yesterday unanimously approved a resolution to save the 89-year-old State Capitol from destruction.

Several state legislators are backing a plan to tear down the Capitol and replace it with a new structure more suitable for the expanding needs of government.

"It is the conviction of the Michigan Historical Commission that with proper planning this historic structure can successfully function as the seat of government . . . and continue to serve as a unique and viable link between the progress of the past and the challenge of the future," the resolution said.

Some lawmakers have charged the Capitol is a firetrap and should be torn down.

The commission said the Capitol "has been judged by competent authority to be structurally sound."

The dome-shaped Capitol is viewed as architecturally impressive and of great interest to tourists and history enthusiasts.

Drivers Feel Impact of Rain on Roads

The groundhog would have had to swim for it today had he been brave enough to poke his nose above ground.

A total of 2.22 inches of rainfall since the first of the week was recorded by the official U.S. weather bureau reporting station at the CMC Proving Ground in Milford. Recorded rainfall yesterday was 1.56 inches.

Suffering the most were the county's roads and the motorists who traveled on them.

Said Oscar Loomis, general superintendent of the Oakland County Road Commission, "You can hardly go on any road in the county without finding some damage."

Some of the worst spots pointed out by Loomis were Dequindre

Warnings of open water and thin ice on the county's lakes were issued today by Lt. Donald Kratt, head of the Oakland County Sheriff Department's water safety division.

Ice fishermen and skaters were further told that a minimum of seven days of freezing temperatures would be needed to make the ice safe again.

Kensington Metropolitan Park near Milford and Stony Creek Metropolitan Park near Utica reported dangerous conditions on Kent and Stony Creek lakes and that skating and tobogganing activities had been canceled.

Road, flooded in three places; Livernois; Long Lake in Bloomfield Hills, where the pavement was in danger of being undermined near the Grand Trunk Railroad viaduct;

Dixie Highway in Waterford Township; and Williams Lake Road.

MORE TROUBLE SPOTS

Motorists pointed out further spots such as Haggerty Road north of Pontiac Trail, some side streets in Lake Orion, and Woodward just south of the Pontiac City limits.

Rochester police said the Clinton River was receding from the Third Street bridge, but that at one time it was flowing over the structure.

In some cases water was to a depth of better than a foot.

Said Loomis, who is more often beset by snow problems this time of year, "We generally have a January thaw, but this is unusual."

He reported his crews were working primarily on areas where the roads were in danger of being washed away, but they were also opening up catch basins and attempting to get the water off other roads.

Many basements were reported flooded in the heavy rains.

Wixom's 73-Year-Old Assessor Known as Mr. Promoter

By BETTY ANN SCHULTZ

WIXOM — John C. Finlayson, 73, lost everything in the Depression.

He then begged himself into a job as a time-study man at an auto company by showing his card from Bradstreet, where he had just lost his job as financial reporter.

Recalling the incident with his Bradstreet passport, he says, "I thought I'd get kicked out right there." But he didn't.

Finlayson, city assessor since 1959, has a reputation here for being just as persistent a promoter of projects as he was when getting that job in hard times.

He's an expert when it comes to raising funds for an individual or an organization in need, his friends attest.

KNOWS EVERYONE

"Why, he knows everyone around," explained the president of Wixom's

Negro Leader Charges WSU Only for Whites

DETROIT (AP)—A militant Negro leader, speaking at Wayne State University at a "black symposium" yesterday told nearly 1,000 persons, most of them Negro, "This is not your university but take what you can use from it."

The Rev. Albert Cleage Jr. charged that the university's purpose was only to serve industry and the white community.

Also speaking at the symposium, sponsored by the Association of Black Students, was Floyd McKissick, leader of the Congress of Racial Equality, who criticized white social workers as being irrelevant and only working to keep the Negro quiet.

Chamber of Commerce, Richard Mitchell.

One of Finlayson's latest efforts was filling a request for $600 to provide speech correction for an area youngster. When he began his pleas, he heard no's.

But he ended up with $1,200 in donations after further urgings to six area organizations.

Through other connections, Finlayson got $1,500 worth of dirt for some animals at the Proud Lake Recreation Area. He also helped procure stuffed animals for display at the recreation center.

CIVIC LEADER

The man who is one of 6,000

Americans in the 1967 edition of the Outstanding Civic Leaders of America is reluctant to bestow credit on himself.

He is further always ready to share his moralistic philosophies.

Although he often touches on religion in conversations, he says, "I don't belong to any religion. I'm just a first sergeant."

He's referring to his two-year stint in World War I teaching machine gunners in the U.S.

BECAME A CITIZEN

During that time, Finlayson, a native of St. Thomas, Ont., became a citizen.

He came to the States in 1913, after being raised on a farm, working as a carriage upholsterer and selling novelties on home ground.

Thus Finlayson proceeded to compile quite a list of endeavors. He began as a file clerk for Burroughs office machines, then was a time-study man for an auto company, and payroll keeper for Detroit United Railroads.

His 14 years after the war as a financial reporter for Bradstreet are unforgettable to him.

THOUGHT OF BOOK

"He well recounts his acquaintance with R. E. Olds, Edison, Henry Ford, and Firestone. 'It was once going to write a book about them,'" he says.

He fought for his second job as a time-study man when Dunn took over Bradstreet and his job disappeared.

Finlayson of 48733 Pontiac Trail got to know the county when he moved into assessment work with the State Tax Commission from 1939 to 1941.

NEXT POSITION

The next position sent him around the state promoting a new salad dressing, which led him into the frozen pie business with his wife, Bernice.

He boasts the pies were in almost every store in the Detroit and Flint area. It was his own sales work. His wife managed the factory.

Competition sent Finlayson back to local government, this time as village administrator of Wolverine Lake from 1956 to 1959.

He then moved to Wixom.

School Millage Discussion Attended by 350 in Troy

TROY — A crowd of about 350 residents of this school district jammed the Troy High School cafeteria last night to hear board of education members and administrators discuss the district's need for operating millage.

A lengthy controversy over finances has focused attention on the millage election Feb. 19, at which voters will consider a proposed two-year 6-mill increase.

Earlier requests for seven mills for one year, in June and September, were rejected. After the second defeat, a number of program cuts were made by the board, including junior high school art and music. In addition, the scheduled opening of Smith Junior High School last fall was postponed.

The board's informal presentation was divided into two major parts, explanation of the financial projections for the next two years and discussion of the district's high expenditure per pupil.

Supt. of Schools Dr. Rex B. Smith presented the budget figures and projections. His study, recently revised to allow for increased equalized valuation of the district, pegs the millage need at just over 6 mills for two years.

ANOTHER DEFICIT

If the program cuts are added to the budget for next year, Smith said, another deficit in the neighborhood of $600,000 can be expected.

This estimate, he said, is based on projections of increased enrollment and added cost per pupil. The superintendent's study figures on 350 new students and an additional cost of $190 per pupil.

Of the $190 increase, which would bring the district's total cost per pupil to about $900, $70 would be from reinstated cuts and $120 would be new cost, Smith said.

The projected budget for next year, he continued, is about $4.8 million. Even with the district's increased valuation, Smith projects income from taxes, state aid and other sources at $4.2 million.

OPERATING COST

The $600,000 deficit resulting, added to this year's deficit, would leave the district $1.2 million in the red.

Assistant Supt. Boyd L. Larson addressed the crowd on the subject of Troy's relatively high operating cost per pupil.

He first cited statistics showing Troy's percentage of experienced teachers to be greater than either of two neighboring districts Clawson and Lamphre.

Also, Larson said, Troy has a higher percentage of secondary (junior and senior high) students than either district.

COST MORE

Secondary students, he explained, cost more to educate than elementary students because of the necessity of added teacher training, more textbooks and equipment and more teachers.

Other factors named by Larson as contributing to the high cost per pupil were a relatively high number of special education personnel, special advanced courses due to modular scheduling, free textbooks, and a number of special programs not available in many districts.

These extra programs, Larson said, total $122.90 per pupil. Though much of the expense is reimbursed by the state or Oakland County, it nevertheless adds to the listed cost per pupil, he said.

Residents' Questions Mirror Unrest on District Finances

TROY — Unrest over the financial shape of this school district was mirrored in questions raised by residents at last night's open meeting on operating millage.

Though the audience applauded statements by citizens in favor of the millage request, several residents raised troubling questions, referring directly or indirectly to the recent conflict between board of education member Harold Jones and other board members and administrators.

Jones, who has clashed with the board on millage needs, announced early this week that he had conferred with state officials on "possible misuse of funds" in the district.

Asked about the charges last night by citizens and by Troy Education Association Executive Secretary Dale Robinson, Supt. of Schools Dr. Rex B. Smith replied that the board had not been told what the exact charges were.

Another resident asked if members of the board had seen Jones' millage study. Smith and Lloyd A. Stage, board secretary, said that Jones had presented the study to the board Jan. 2 but had collected copies after the meeting and had not made them available to the board thereafter.

DOUBT ON HONESTY

In response to the statement of a third citizen, who felt "the board hadn't been completely honest with the people," board members Alex Tunstall and Richard Snod stated categorically that the board had not attempted to deceive residents on the use of funds.

Tunstall added, "We advertised a public hearing on the budget, and the night that we held it, how many questions do you think we had from citizens? Not one question."

Jones, who said yesterday that he had had previous appointments, was not present at last night's meeting.

MAC May Halt Suit Against Troy Company

TROY — A civil suit brought against Beaver Precision Products Inc., 1970 E. Big Beaver, by the Michigan Aeronautics Commission (MAC) may be dropped, a spokesman for the state agency said yesterday.

The suit, pending in Ingham County Circuit Court, requests an injunction prohibiting the manufacturing firm from constructing a factory at the southwest corner of John R. and Big Beaver, immediately east of the Big Beaver Airport.

The MAC contended that the proposed building was in violation of state statutes governing the height of buildings in runway approach zones.

However, the spokesman said, under a revision of the regulations recently adopted by the state, the structure would no longer be in violation.

Presently, the "tall structures" statute says buildings in a runway approach zone must be 20 feet from the runway end for every 100 feet of height.

The new regulation, which will go into effect in November 1969, permits buildings up to 15 feet in height at the boundary line of an airport.

Under the present 20-to-1 ratio, if a runway extended to the property line such a building would have to be located 300 feet away.

Although the MAC spokesman indicated the agency would drop the pending court action, he said the structure would have to have approved obstruction warning lights.

River Ice Jam Floods Section of Monroe

MONROE — A half-mile-long ice jam in the River Raisin has caused flooding in the eastern section of Monroe.

Water backed up by the jam overflowed the river banks and forced at least one family to evacuate its home. About 10 other families have moved out because of the flood threat.

An ice jam west of the city Wednesday night resulted in the flooding night resulted in the flooding of two homes, but the jam broke up later. Water at the nearby Dundee filtration plant was reported to be about seven feet above the average level.

LBJ, Meany Unite for Labor Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and AFL-CIO President George Meany launched today a political road show aimed at lining up the 14 million-member labor organization behind the Democratic ticket.

They were in back-patting rapport on Vietnam and a wide sweep of domestic programs and problems.

And they were in total agreement Congress should enact job housing programs, additional education and health measures and, as Johnson put it, "at the same time protect freedom."

Johnson dismissed the idea that domestic problems can't be tackled while the Vietnam conflict rages.

"It's just the same as saying you can take care of one child and you can't take care of the other," he said.

This was in a conversation filmed at the White House Jan. 15, for a premier Saturday in New Orleans and showings from then on at union meetings and regional sessions of labor's Committee on Political Education.

Veteran political rail birds could recall no parallel to the movie.

In it, Johnson and Meany spent considerable time on mutual compliments without ever questioning that the President is going to run for another term and that Meany is going all the way with LBJ on both foreign and domestic policy.

CALL FOR ACTION

In a bit of political whip cracking at the end, Meany said elections are won back home by leaders of the labor movement and they should start now getting registration drives under way and collecting cash for COPE.

The President nodded appreciatively to labor, mothers and teachers for giving a helping hand with "a massive educational measure" supplemented by more than 20 other education bills.

He also thanked the AFL-CIO for helping to pass the Medicare and Medicaid bills.

Johnson had 17 kind words for businessmen.

"I am happy to say that the businessmen generally have tried to listen and to be cooperative," the President said.

Meany assured the President that "we are convinced that you are on the right track" in Vietnam. Johnson agreed with him that America is big enough to battle for freedom and independence while improving the home front.

"I am the father of two daughters," the President said. "When I hear this argument that we can't protect freedom in Europe, in Asia, or in our own hemisphere and still meet our domestic problems, I think it is a phony argument."

"It is just like saying that I can't take care of Luce because I have Lynda Bird. We have to take care of both of them and we have to meet them head on," going."

Meany said he would like to ask advocates of an end to bombing. "How many American lives do we have to lose before we start bombing again in case the Communists don't come to the conference table?"

HAUNTING PROBLEM

Johnson said he lives with this problem every day and is going to continue searching for peace with honor. The best road to peace, he said, is to remain strong and firm and to stand on principle.

So-called offers from the other side, Johnson said, must be pursued and explored "so that we don't buy a pig in a poke ... we don't let the Communists lead us down a road that we don't know where we are going."

ACLU Splits With 4 Units on Draft Protester Issue

NEW YORK (AP) — The statement was "a real effort to clarify a complex and confusing has split openly with four of its largest affiliates and said it once in civil liberties terms."

A nuclear-powered fleet for shipping purposes is proposed that will use ships more than 1,000 feet in length, each capable of carrying 1,500 containers and operating at speeds of 30 knots.

The union said Thursday in a formal statement on civil disobedience: "We have assumed that the laws are constitutional, regardless of how unwise or unjust they may be from the viewpoint of the individual who violates them."

Four of the union's affiliates — the Civil Liberties Union of New York, Southern California, Massachusetts and New Jersey — do not consider the draft laws constitutional and have offered to defend persons challenging them.

Disagreements between the union and its 42 affiliates are not uncommon, but one official said: "It's unfortunate the split came out in the open ... The national's statement will be prejudicial to clients of the four affiliates."

STATEMENT

The formal statement said: "Freedom to say what one believes, not to do what one wishes, is what is protected by the First Amendment ... The ACLU believes that the way to correct injustice in a free society is to change valid laws by persuasion, not by their violation."

The national board said in civil disobedience cases, "the ACLU believes that no civil liberties issue is presented if the violators are arrested, prosecuted, and punished, bearing in mind that due process must be recognized."

Abitibi Solves Pollution Problem

Significant success in water pollution prevention is reported by the Abitibi Paper Company from control measures instituted at its Ontario mills at Port Arthur and Fort William.

As a result of $2.3 million spent since 1960 on reduction of waste discharge into Lake Superior, the manager of the Port Arthur operation, S. L. DOUGLAS, reports that surveys of adjacent waters have proved the effectiveness of the company's pollution-control measures.

Justin C. Jordan, manager of the Fort William facility, points to similar success there, where

$1 million was invested to meet the pollution challenge.

At both mills, the degree of water contamination has been sharply reduced and aquatic-life environment appreciably improved as the result of Abitibi's enlightened waste-disposal program.

It could well serve as an example — indeed a warning — to industries that are shirking their responsibilities for the preservation of the Great Lakes. Their failure to act voluntarily will only hasten the day of enforced action by State and Federal mandate.

David Lawrence Says:

Prayer Meeting Draws Bigwigs

WASHINGTON — It didn't make big headlines. It wasn't on television. It was just a meeting yesterday morning of 1,000 persons—mostly from the government — all praying together for God's help and guidance.

Among them were the President and members of his LAWRENCE Cabinet, the vice president, the governors of seven states, a justice of the Supreme Court, the speaker of the House, numerous senators and representatives, and high-ranking military officers.

The function, known as the "Presidential Prayer Breakfast," is held under the auspices of the breakfast groups of the Senate and House, which meet weekly. Persons of all faiths have attended these private prayer meetings as well as the annual event.

Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas presided. There were brief remarks by Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, leader of the Senate breakfast group, and by Rep. Ben Reifel of South Dakota, leader of the House breakfast group.

Vice President Humphrey read some passages from the Bible. Gen. Harold K. Johnson, chief of staff of the Army, delivered the principal address of the occasion. He said:

"There is a solution to the problems of this world — turn to God. There is a solution to the conflicts between nations — turn to God. There is a solution to the problems of our cities and of our streets — turn to God.

"Not in a superficial way, but in a human and compassionate way — as man to man and friend to friend. There is a solution to the problem of our young — together with them, turn to God."

President Johnson spoke briefly. He declared in part: "America needs to grow on the strength of our many faiths. The nights are very long, the winds are chill, our spirits grow restive. For such seasons man was given the saving strength of faith which we summon when we pray.

"It is not my right to tell other citizens of this free land how or when or what they should worship. But I can tell you that on these long nights, your President prays."

There are some observers who may wonder whether participation by high government officials in a prayer meeting impinges in any way on the doctrine of separation of church and state.

The Supreme Court of the United States, however, has not banned prayers outside the classroom or other school property. It has merely declared that prayer directed by any governmental agency is unconstitutional.

So it is significant that voluntary prayers and meetings of private breakfast groups have increased in recent years in and around the federal government itself as well as in state governments.

While clergymen sometimes attend as guests, they do not direct or conduct the prayer breakfasts. It is left to laymen to choose from their own membership a leader each week. Guests are permitted to attend, but the prayer service is private and, as a rule, is not given any publicity.

Bob Considine Says:

Program Eyed to Assist Negro Back From Viet

NEW YORK — Col. Tex McCrary, USAF (ret.), a man of many accomplishments in war, editing, TV, and public relations, has been quietly rounding up the support of New York congressmen for a plan that could be a turning point in the future of race relations.

In short, the program would "do something" about the young Negro returning from war in Vietnam.

Wherever that youth is mustered out of uniform in the United States he will be standing in the center of an emotional crossroads.

In action overseas against a foe that couldn't tell the difference between him and the white man fighting next to him, the only thing that mattered to the Negro and to his buddies was how he fought, how he endured, how he fended for those around him.

His color, his speech, his point of origin, his education or lack of it all disappeared in the face of the gutty facts of life and death.

SUPERIOR SOLDIER

The Negro serviceman in Vietnam has shown himself to be a superior soldier. He is there in a slightly greater proportion, per capita, than his white buddies — and much is made of this by the Rap Browns and Stokely Carmichaels of the simmering revolution. But in six trips to Vietnam I've never heard a gripe from a Negro, or about a Negro.

What the Browns and Carmichaels invariably fail to mention is that the enlistment rate among Negroes in Vietnam is discernibly higher than that of their fellow servicemen — and the rate among their fellow servicemen, notably the Marines, can run as high as 17 per cent.

There is no segregation among the forces in Vietnam, as in World War II and, to a degree, in the Korean war. It is what is inside a man that counts, over there.

BEST BAROMETER

The best barometer of that is the rate of promotions, the impartiality of awards, and, above all, the respect and affection of fellow troops.

The point has been made that more Negroes are killed and wounded, proportionately, than whites. True. But the reason for that is more Negroes, proportionately, volunteer for service with units that go in for the hairiest acts of war — paratroopers, rangers and the like. Their courage gives them new status.

The Negro in Vietnam lives for a year and more on an exact level with his white counterpart, in many cases, the first time in his young life.

But no gain has been noted in the past two generations, according to Dr. Stanley M. Garn of the Fels Research Institute for the Study of Human Development.

Good nutrition and access to medical care apparently have made the middle class in this country about as tall as it can get under present conditions. Voice of the People:

'Intent of Constitution to Protect Law-Abiding'

It is time for the Constitution of the United States to be interpreted as it was justly written, to protect and give rights to the law-abiding citizen. In the face of a continually rising crime rate, the Supreme Court has made unjust decisions to lend a hand to lawlessness.

It would seem reasonable, in an effort to deter crime, to make the regulations more restrictive toward the use, purchase and registration requirements for weapons. However, the Supreme Court has seen fit to lift restrictions and registration requirements on weapons such as sawed-off shotguns and machine guns. In what way does this decision deter the rising crime rate?

Now is the time for our lawmakers to act to correct these misinterpretations and make it possible for decent citizens to walk down a street without constant fear. If present lawmakers cannot remedy this situation, it is time to replace them.

Comments on Future of Lake in Clarkston

In my opinion it's a shame that because of the greed of a few men an area as lovely as Deer Lake in Clarkston will soon be ruined. This lake is just not large enough to accommodate the large development planned for its shores. Within a few years Deer Lake will be just another mud hole. Money will be made by some but another natural beauty spot will be lost for everyone. Sad, isn't it?

'Compare History With Our Current Events'

Isn't the push-button automation way of living working or is it the ones who are operating those expensive contraptions? On April 30, 1898, Commodore George Dewey took six U.S. war vessels into Manila Bay in the Spanish-held Philippine Islands with orders to capture or destroy the Spanish fleet. Within a few hours Dewey destroyed the enemy ships, silenced the Spanish land batteries and captured the chief port. Not one ship or man was lost.

In those days the United States didn't take orders. We gave them. We were not fighting the wars of all foreign countries or feeding and clothing the people of those countries. Read your history books of those wonderful days when our administrations had authority.

Something is wrong. This is our country and all of us taxpayers should be able to do something. I'm worried about our boys and our ships. If losses are permitted to continue, all we will have left at home will be the criminals and the mentally unsound.

Smoking Smog

The Christian Science Monitor

Smokers, concerned with the growing issue of air pollution, have long been aware that, so far as their own air is concerned, they carry a private, do-it-yourself air-polluter right in their pocket.

It's called a package of cigarettes.

But here is something else, of which many smokers, on present behavioral evidence, do not seem aware.

Namely, that cigarette smokers, playing away in a poorly ventilated room, create an air-pollution situation for nonsmokers.

So says Dr. Philip H. Abelson of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, editor of Science magazine and a physical chemist. He calls cigarettes a real source of air pollution.

With a major political year at hand, and some presidential choices traditionally made in the "smoke-filled room," politicians now have been warned.

They may draft proposed legislation for air pollution abatement, but they are creating their own smoke nuisance.

Well, perhaps they're accustomed to the "smoke-filled room." But smokers should remember that nonsmokers in other public places, do reasonably prefer to breathe air which is as little polluted as today's city smog will permit.

Mere Man Trapped in Supermarket Traffic

A man who doesn't frequent supermarkets because his wife has this feeling that he, well, he—well, frankly she thinks he's a big, fat nuisance when he shops with her and a big, fat flop when he shops alone—insisted on tagging along the other day.

Although there is nothing to indicate that his presence changed his wife's convictions, it did much to change his whole outlook on driving.

Up to then our man had regarded coping with congested traffic as quite a deal. Now he thinks it's kid stuff.

Supermarket shoppers, he reports, do everything automobile drivers do, and go on from there.

He claims they cut in and out on you. They tailgate you from the rear and slow-poke you crazy from in front. They turn without signaling, stop on a dime-to-be-saved, and even back up without warning.

They speed and they swerve. They block your path as they pause to ponder and meditate and compute. They squeeze oranges and lemons and tomatoes and pinch cucumbers. They laboriously check one can against a bigger one to determine the cost per ounce.

They outmaneuver you in getting to the checkout counter, even if they are carrying a week's supply and you have one item. And they bury their checkbook in the bottom of their purse. And by the time they have found it, and a pen, your frozen food is thawing and your oven-fresh bread is turning stale.

All this, you understand, is just one man's version. The ladies we know would no more act like this in a supermarket than they would on the highway. No, sir, not one bit more.

End Traffic Woes With Famed Bridge

By DICK SAUNDERS

I would like to take this opportunity to announce that I have come up with the answer to our long standing problem of traffic hang-ups at the West Huron Grand Trunk Railroad crossing.

London Bridge is for sale.

The going price is $300,000.

That's not bad considering the Queen Mary recently sold to Long Beach, Calif., for a cool $24-million. However, you'd have to figure some hefty costs for dismantling and moving the structure from London to Pontiac.

There is one stipulation placed on the deal by its owners, the London Corporation. They won't sell it piece by piece.

It has to be purchased in one intact chunk. It would also help, they say, if the buyer were someone who has "a conscience for British history," according to the British Travel Association.

The bridge has to be sold or taken down in the next four years before it falls down into the Thames. It was built in 1831 and is the fourth bridge built on that site.

City fathers, with all their new found income tax revenue, are bound to be looking around for places to spend it.

What better cause than much-needed grade separations to once and for all solve the eternal battle between rail and vehicular traffic?

Maybe, we could split it up, using half at the Huron crossing and half at the North Johnson crossing. That would really solve our problems.

If, by chance, a piece were left over, we could use it across Orchard Lake Avenue to help bridge the gap in racial understanding.

Maybe, the British would concede to throwing in Big Ben which the City, in turn, could sell to Pontiac State Bank as competition for Community National Bank's carillon.

But just the bridge alone would really be enough.

Just think. People would flock from miles around to walk or drive across two street-rail intersections that are presently avoided like the plague.

It's a great little opportunity to turn two hated hotspots into loved and cherished monuments of our fair city.

And think what it would do for downtown redevelopment. Why, what developer in his right mind could shun urban renewal so close to one of the world's most famous structures.

True, we'd probably be cut off from all federal aid for spending money abroad, but what's a little dirty politics to a dynamic city like Pontiac.

Someone might even write a nursery rhyme about it. One word of caution, though. If I were you, I wouldn't expect any quick action on this. It is an election year, you know.

Great Lakes Weather Warning Terminology Revised

By The Associated Press
Mariners who sail the Great Lakes and along the coasts no longer will be warned about "whole gales" after March 1.

The changes are being made to make weather bureau terminology conform to that used internationally, it was explained.
The term "storm" also will be applied to the flag and light signals formerly called "whole gale" signals which are displayed through "storm warnings" played at coastal locations.

Storm warnings and displays will indicate when winds of 40 knots—55 miles an hour—or more are expected, the weather bureau said.

Small-craft warnings will be issued to indicate winds as high as 33 knots—38 miles an hour—and (or) sea conditions considered dangerous to small-craft operations are forecast for the area.

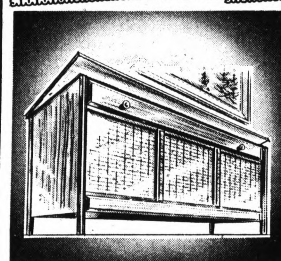

The weather bureau said small-craft warnings cover a wide range of wind speeds and (or) sea conditions and include boats of many designs and sizes.
Gale warnings will be issued to indicate winds within a range of 34 to 47 knots—39 to 54 miles an hour.

Radar Process Issued Patent

By Science Service

Chips of a metallic element called gallium arsenide — about the size of the period at the end of this sentence — are expected to bring about a revolution in radar and other microwave systems similar to that caused by the transistor now used in everything from computers to pocket radios.

The process promises low-cost radar sets for cars, boats and small aircraft, and the possibility of a handcarried device for the use of the blind.

The chips can be made to emit radar waves by the application of electricity; the result is called the Gunn effect.

The U.S. Patent Office last week granted a patent covering this phenomenon to John B. Gunn of Yorktown Heights, N.Y., who assigned rights to IBM.

The tiny chips can be used to generate microwaves having frequencies as high as 50,000 megacycles per second. By speeding up the reaction so that a new cycle starts before the first has completely traversed the crystal, frequencies as high as 100,000 megacycles can be attained.

Jewell Chorale Concert Slated by Federation

The Kenneth Jewell Chorale will present its first Pontiac concert Feb. 17 at Pontiac Northern High School.

Sponsor of this famed Michigan singing group is the Pontiac Area Federation of Women's Clubs.

It is the first time the Federation has sponsored a cultural event for its money raising. Proceeds will help the various philanthropies the Federation supports.

The Michigan State Council for the Arts is underwriting part of the cost of the concert.

For the past two years, the 40-voice Chorale has been featured at the "Bach at Cranbrook" festival. Kenneth Ish, son of Mrs. Adrian Ish of Woodbine Drive, sings with the chorus.

COMMUTER

Kenneth Jewell, a music educator in Michigan for more than 30 years, is currently personnel director at the Interlochen Arts Academy. He commutes every Friday evening for Chorale rehearsals, a distance of 600 miles.

Mrs. Ish is chairman of the concert committee. Serving with her are Mesdames Ivan Schram, Herbert McBride and William Shepard and Miss JoAnn Smith.

Others working on arrangements are Mrs. Joseph Bennett, Mrs. George F. Brinkman and Luliah McCully.

Student, regular and patron tickets are available from members of the Federation. Concert time is 8:30 p.m.

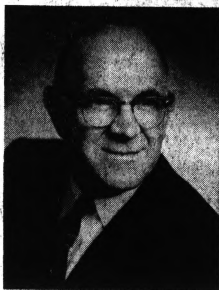

John Fernald to Talk on 'King Lear' at OU

"King Lear" will be the subject of guest speaker John Fernald when he appears before the Feb. 12 meeting of Friends of the Kresge Library, at Oakland University.

Fernald will direct this Shakespearean tragedy in the next offering of the Meadow Brook Theatre, Feb. 23-March 24. Beginning at 8 p.m., the meeting is open to the public.

A pouf of a plaid is Cinderella's voile tent dress of 65 per cent Fortrel, 35 per cent cotton. Smocking borders the puff sleeves and ruffled neckline.

KENNETH JEWELL

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you make of a man who buries his wife on a Friday and asks you for a date for the following Wednesday? I accepted, thinking he needed someone to console him, but I got the surprise of my life. He acted like a sailor on shore leave after eight months on a ship.

His wife and I were very good friends and I realize that she had been sick for a year, but I can't see any excuse for the rush this man was in to make up for lost time. When he asked me out for the next night I told him I didn't think we should be seen in public together because people might talk, so he's been parking himself over here every night telling me how lonesome he is, and how much he needs "female companionship."

Abby, I'm a widow and I am lonesome too, but I'm not THAT lonesome. How long do you think I should wait before I let him court me? I know lots of women in this town who would be glad to have him.

ENCINO WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: The man shows a shocking lack of respect for the memory of his wife. Put him on ice for about a year. He could use some cooling off.

DEAR ABBY: I am 26, very happily married and have two adorable children, but I have one big sorrow in my life. I have always been as flat-chested as a 10-year-old boy.

I suppose now that I'm married it really shouldn't bother me so much, but it does. Abby, I have always felt so cheated. No one will ever know how I envied girls with voluptuous bosoms.

I've always worn padded bras, but now I hear there are silicone "shots" available that will fill a girl out like a miracle. They say most girls who work in topless clubs get these shots regularly. What kind of doctor gives them?

Please answer this in your column because my husband sometimes gets the mail before I do, and if he knew this still bothered me so much he'd have a fit.

NAMELESS IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR NAMELESS: I have been advised that silicone (for breast injections) has not been approved by the Food and Drug Administration, so to seek such shots (assuming they were available) could be taking a foolish risk. In this regard, I advise you to do nothing without first talking it over with your husband. He just may like you the way you are.

DEAR ABBY: I have a relative who is so afraid she'll die of germs that she has people thinking she is off her nut. She carries a big bottle of disinfectant around in her purse to clean off the rim of a glass or cup before she will drink from it. She also cleans the silverware in this manner before using it.

Now I'm not talking about taking such precautions in a restaurant—she does this right in someone's home when she is a guest. Pretty insulting, isn't it? She is a nice lady, but people are beginning to talk about her.

My husband says to forget it, that everyone is a little peculiar about something. I would like your opinion.

GERM-FIGHTER'S RELATIVE

DEAR RELATIVE: If this is the only "peculiarity" the lady has, I would say

Mrs. Francis to Host

Mrs. Webster S. Francis of Orchard Lake Road will host Monday's meeting of Chapter AW, PEO Sisterhood at 8 p.m. In charge of the program will be Mrs. Edward Lewis.

Today's Woman

Her Interests Are Wide

By JEANNE NELSON

Thelma Fisher, whose husband Lee is an IBM executive, is representative of our modern area homemakers who refuse to let the role of wife and mother become a humdrum existence.

An ex-advertising agency market researcher and editor of a gun magazine, this tiny bundle of energy leads one of the busiest lives in her Beverly Hills neighborhood.

Her deepest involvement, outside the home, is with the Birmingham League of Women Voters in which she has served as a board member for five years.

While working on national items for the League, she discovered the South Oakland County United Nations Association and shortly thereafter became its secretary.

Her major duty for the League now is acting as observer at the Beverly Hills Council meetings where she once was chairman of the study committee.

While her interest in both foreign and domestic policies for the League is consuming, Thelma finds ample time for other interests too.

At present she is leading a Junior Great Books program throughout the Birmingham School System. Being a compulsive reader herself, she finds the stimulation of helping young people understand the classics, a rewarding experience.

Within the artistic realm, Mrs. Fisher has become an enthusiastic maker of French beaded afghans.

She also loves to knit afghans (and has for several relatives and friends) and fools around with felt-trimmed gifts.

Refinishing furniture is another hobby that led to the unusual old dentist's chest that graces her dining room.

"It holds lots of tiny treasures and the best part is that the kids (Dan, 10, and Andrew, 7) haven't learned the secret-lock system yet.

Her membership in Baldwin Friends Library stemmed from past experience of library cataloging in Temple Beth Jacob's facilities in Pontiac. Here she also has served as a program committee member for the women's study group.

She and her husband, both University of Michigan graduates, love the camping life, although she admits it took some doing in the beginning for this big city bred gal. Now "the men" agree she's one of the best.

In between mapping out the next trip she also haunts likely sources for Oriental rugs and passes out her special recipe for chicken soup and matzo balls.

MRS. LEE FISHER

Remain Firm if Man Offers to Pay Bill

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a single girl and I would like to know if it is proper to take a married couple out to lunch or dinner and pay the check myself, or must the man always pay?—Rose A.

Dear Rose: You may certainly invite a married couple out to dine, but make sure you make it clear that it's your party. You can do this by saying when you invite them, "I'd like to take you to dinner..."

If the man offers to pay, as he probably will, be firm—"No, this was my invitation and I really want it to be my party."

ORDER OF NAMES

Dear Mrs. Post: When two married couples correspond with each other and use both first names in all letters, is there any set rule which dictates whose name should be placed first, both in the salutation and the signature?

Would this be governed by who is writing the letter? Or, is the wife's name placed first in all cases out of deference to the fair sex?—Al F.

Dear Mr. F.: The salutation should most courteously name the wife first. When both names are used in the signature, there is no rule. Some people believe that the woman's name should be first, but many women, when they are the writers, feel it most courteous to write their husband's name first. Either way is correct.

I prefer that the writer sign only his, or her, own name and include the other by writing "Bill just came in wishing you..." or "Joe sends his best."

TIPPING

Dear Mrs. Post: Many of us who read your column would like you to discuss tipping the owner in a small beauty shop. I do not feel it is necessary to tip the owner.

Prices keep going up in beauty work and I feel a gift at Christmas time is adequate. But some say, even if you know the operator is the owner, offer a tip the first time you go there and if the tip is accepted, continue to tip. I disagree. Does this make me a miser?—Ellen Conway.

Dear Ellen: The owner of any establishment should not expect to be tipped. On occasion, if a special service has been rendered or extra time devoted to your needs, a tip might be offered (possibly in the form of a gift), but for everyday services, it is not necessary.

Who do you tip? When, and how much? You will find the answers to these questions in Elizabeth L. Post's booklet, "The Etiquette of Tipping." To get a copy send twenty-five cents in coin to cover booklet and mailing expenses, to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of The Pontiac Press, Dept. E-600, P.O. Box 9, Pontiac, Mich. 48066.

Altrusa Club Sets Benefit at Fisher

The Altrusa Club of Greater Birmingham is sponsoring a night at the Fisher Theatre for a performance of the new musical "George M." based on the life of one of America's most beloved theatrical figures, the late George M. Cohan.

Proceeds from ticket sales and patron donations will enable the club to continue its services to the children at the Oakland County Children's Center; the Kennedy Rehabilitation Center at Pontiac General Hospital; to needy foreign women students enrolled in United States Universities and to deserving women attempting to rehabilitate themselves for the labor market.

AREA MAN

"George M." will have a special interest for local theater-goers, since one of the producers is Konrad Matthaei of this area.

Valerie Harvey of Lakeview Street, Birmingham and Mrs. Cyril B. Lewis, also of Birmingham, are heading the project under chairmanship of Mrs. Letha Fraum Cook of Oak Park.

Tickets for the Feb. 11 performance may be obtained from Miss Harvey. Mrs. Cook is in charge of patron donations. Curtain time is 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. McNamee Schedules Talk

Mrs. William McNamee will be guest speaker at the Feb. 12 meeting of Birmingham branch of Women's National Farm and Garden Association at the Birmingham Community House.

Mrs. McNamee is a member of the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women. She is a member of the Birmingham City Commission, the Youth Assistance Committee and is chairman of the Beauty Birmingham Committee. Her topic will be "Beautify Birmingham." She is a mother of two children and her hobby is gardening.

TEA

A Valentine tea will precede the program and meeting. Twenty-seven new members will be honored by the group. Contributions of members to the "Pennies for Friendship Fund" will be taken which will help support the work of the Associated Country Women of the World.

This organization promotes better understanding and good will among the women of the world as well as literacy, better child care and nutrition.

Mrs. E. Robert Leeder is chairman of the tea. She will be assisted by Mrs. Richard Kaltz and Mrs. William H. Bagley, Jr. The event begins at 12:30 p.m.

MSU Group to Bowl

An evening of bowling is slated for the annual midwinter all-star member gathering of the Michigan State University Alumni Club of Oakland County Feb. 10.

Reservations for the 8:00 p.m. event may be made by contacting the chairman, Robert Egan, or the club on South Bates, Birmingham.

she is harmless. But if I were you, I'd watch her for other symptoms.

DEAR ABBY: On a recent visit to the home of my husband's sister (we live in different towns) she turned to my nine-year-old daughter and said, "I want you to know that you ruined our Christmas this year because you told Cindy (their eight-year-old) there wasn't any Santa Claus."

Our daughter had no answer other than, "Cindy asked me if I believed in Santa Claus and I said 'No, not since I was in first grade.'"

My sister-in-law pursued the subject with a vengeance saying it was a terrible thing for my daughter to have done, etc.

We have always had a good relationship with this family, and now I feel a definite rift, although I said nothing and didn't enter into it.

I have never encountered a problem such as this. Just how long should a child be encouraged to go along with the Santa Claus bit? Isn't eight a little too old? How great a sin did my child commit? I would appreciate your opinion.

INJURED FEELINGS

DEAR INJURED: Shame on your sister-in-law. Your child committed no "crime." Her younger cousin must have suspected that there was no Santa Claus, otherwise why would she have asked?

To deliberately destroy a child's beliefs in fairy tales and Santa Claus is unkind, but with a child suspects that something is only "make believe," it's

Public Questionnaires to Help Plan Council

Women in the area who are interested in filling out the questionnaire, "How to make Pontiac a Better City in Which to Live and Work" may obtain them, even though they were unable to attend Wednesday night's meeting on city planning.

Replies to these questionnaires will help the Pontiac Area Planning Council in its work. Questionnaires may be picked up from the city manager's office in City Hall.

Marian Anderson Will Narrate

Marian Anderson will appear as narrator at the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's next Kresge Concert Feb. 13 at Ford Auditorium. The internationally famous contralto will narrate Aaron Copland's "A Lincoln Portrait."

During her long career, Miss Anderson was winner of the $10,000 Bok award, the Springer Medal, 24 honorary doctorates of music, has sung three times in the White House and received medals and recognition from Sweden, Japan, Finland, Haiti, Liberia, France and the Philippines, as well as countless other honors.

OTHER WORKS

Also on the program will be Rossini's overture to "La Gazza Ladra," Tchaikovsky's "Serenade for Strings," Enescu's "Rumanian Rhapsody No. 2," and Hindemith's "Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Weber." Music director and conductor Sixten Ehrling will be on the podium.

Carrying out the Lincoln theme in commemoration of his birthday, Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum have plans for a special exhibit in the auditorium lobby that evening. The exhibit will include original photographs, lithographs and other Lincoln memorabilia.

time to draw the curtain and let in the light of truth. Your sister-in-law needs to grow up.

DEAR ABBY: We are three girls with a problem. There is this creepy girl at school who is real queer. She dresses funny, is very homely, and has no friends. Well, she just won't leave us alone. She hangs around my locker and tries to eat lunch with me and my friends.

She is causing us to lose all our friends because people are beginning to think we are a friend of hers. We hate to hurt her feelings, but we don't want to let her go around with us. How can we get rid of her? We are all in the eighth grade.

TROUBLED TRIO

DEAR TROUBLED: Be kind to her. She needs it. To treat this unfortunate friendless girl with common courtesy will do your reputation no harm. (It might even improve it.)

You needn't cultivate her friendship outside of school, but when she seeks you out in school, treat her as you would like to be treated if you were in her unhappy shoes.

DEAR ABBY: I have several Japanese girl friends who are married to their native custom of taking their shoes off in the house (against my wishes) and they expect us to do likewise when we visit them.

Abby, I wasn't brought up to take my shoes off in the house. The last time I went along with this custom I came home with feet feeling like ice cubes, followed by a sore throat and cold. I do not like this shoes-off custom, but these girls are insistent. What is your thinking?

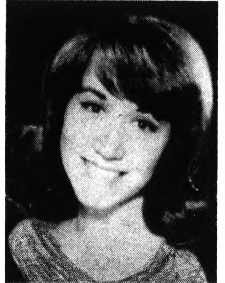

STRICTLY AMERICAN

DEAR AMERICAN: When in Rome (or Japan) do as the natives do. And when in their homes, respect their customs. But common sense overrules both custom and courtesy. If you actually catch cold at the drop of a shoe, keep it on. But be aware that you've already put your foot in it.

Investigate Insurance for a Traveler

Consultant in Money Management

Dear Miss Feeley: As a sales representative I do a considerable amount of travel—much of it by plane. I fly on an average of once a month. I'm familiar with all the statistics that tell me I'm more secure in a plane than crossing the street. Nevertheless, before each flight I take out $50.00 worth of flight insurance.

The snag here, of course, is that one day I'll be running late and may skip taking out the insurance. So maybe there's a better way of handling such coverage? And a more economical way? I'm 35 and in good health.

C. V., New York City
Dear C. V.: Have you talked to your life insurance agent about adding an accidental death benefit clause to the policy you already carry, if it wasn't included when you bought it originally?

While rates vary among the different companies, to cite one example: triple indemnity, at 91 cents per $1,000, would cost an additional $22.75 annually on an ordinary life policy of $5,000 with a mutual company, for a man 35 years old. And the benefit clause is broader than that of a flight insurance policy. While you're now paying about $20 annually for your 12 flights, at a rate of 25 cents per $7,500 per flight, an extra $2.75 a year added to a regular insurance premium would guarantee peace of mind.

While those figures may not exactly fit your particular situation, at least find out what you could do with your existing life policy.

If you find it more advantageous to take out a common-carrier accident insurance policy, this would also provide life insurance protection in the event of your death in any common carrier — plane, train, bus, subway, taxi, air taxi or helicopter.

Typical rates are about 60 cents per $1,000 per year, regardless of age. A $50,000 policy would cost you a flat $30 a year — $10 more than you're now putting out. But it wouldn't "forget" and it wouldn't be rushed at flight time.

Dear Miss Feeley: My son is getting married in March, and it will be a formal wedding. While the bride-to-be's family are well able to afford a fairly lavish affair, I'm wondering how the groom's family will come out! His salary at this point is modest. Will you please tell me what items he must be prepared to pay for — so I'll know how to plan?

Mrs. R. T. D., Madison, Wis.
Dear Mrs. D.: There's quite a list:

Marriage license; wedding ring; blood tests; gift to the bride; gifts also to the best man and ushers; ties and gloves for best man and ushers; rehearsal dinner; bridal bouquet; bride's going-away flowers; corsages for the two mothers and boutonnières for the wedding for himself and best man; clergyman's fee. And let's hope you have something leftover for the honeymoon.

Dear Miss Feeley: After a lot of looking around for a house, my husband and I have found exactly what we want. But at this point we can only make a down payment — we haven't done any "mortgage shopping" yet.

What will happen if we find we can't get the mortgage in the amount we'll need? Will we get our down payment back? The house is such attractive

Mrs. Martha L., Riverside, Calif.
Dear Mrs. L.: Let a lawyer advise you about a "binder" — a written agreement that states the seller will refund your money if you're unable to arrange for a mortgage. Don't settle for any verbal agreement.

Pair Weds Wednesday, Goes West

Attired in a beau do sole ensemble, highlighted at the bodice and skirt with Alencon lace, Sandra M. Smith became the bride of Larry Merlyn Mathews Wednesday evening in St. Trinity Lutheran Church.

To complement the bride's A-line gown, she chose a detachable chapel train. A matching double tiered lace crown, frosted with pearls and crystal, held her bouffant veil.

The bridal bouquet was made up of carnations and baby roses fashioned in a cascading arrangement.

Honor attendants for the couple were Nancy Fetter and William K. Smith with Richard Gastin and Gerald Mathews as ushers.

Before departing for a honeymoon trip to Palm Springs, Calif., the newlyweds were honored with a reception at Fortino's.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. Smith of East Boulevard. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn D. Mathews of Clive Street.

SHOULD FURNITURE BE MIXED OR MATCHED?

Many years ago, furniture stores featured six, seven and even eight-piece living room sets all in the same wood finishes. This finish usually was either mahogany, walnut or maple. Very often the fabric and color on the upholstered pieces were all identical.

Although many people still prefer to use the same wood finishes throughout the living room, the trend through the years has been to get away from room furniture by using many different finishes in the same room very effectively.

As a matter of fact, many leading decorators prefer to use different wood finishes and even different periods in the same room.

One of the loveliest living rooms I have seen had a mahogany piano, a modern sofa, two Early American maple chairs, a white marble top cocktail table with black base, and a fruitwood French Provincial breakfast. However, all the colors and textures of the floor coverings, fabrics, lamps, draperies and walls were beautifully blended.

So whether you like to mix or match, our decorators are at your service without cost or obligation.

I'm not the only decorator. Friend member of our staff at Coleman's Furniture Mart. Everyone you'll meet on our display floor is similarly trained to give you helpful tips and suggestions on how to achieve the lovely rooms you want. Then, make your selections from our outstanding stocks from the nation's leading makers. Whether you want a colonial chair, a Danish modern bedroom or a French provincial dining room, we have a picture for your walls, we're ready, willing and able to help. Stop in at 536 North Perry and see how friendly and helpful a store can be. We're open every night till 9 P.M. for your convenience.

Now Put All That Reliance in Yourself

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Four years ago, when my husband died under surgery, my brother told me that I was not to worry about getting my son through college. He told me this at the funeral.

But now that the boy is ready to apply to a university, he says he never promised to pay his tuition. This is his wife's doing. Mrs. Lawrence, my brother is a very well-to-do man and has always seemed the embodiment of responsibility to me. Is there nobody to trust in this world?

ANSWER: See your son's high school principal. Ask him to tell you what other arrangements can be made to get the boy through college.

And now, regarding this brother of yours, I remind you of how much we need affection when we have lost a loved person to death. We need it so terribly we tell ourselves that we have received it when what we've received is just talk about it.

We'll tell ourselves, for example, that the brother whose arm is supporting us during a husband's funeral is a veritable pillar of strength. And to then have to know that he's just another self-interested human is very harsh knowledge. Indeed, But if we refuse to collapse under it, we discover that we are our own pillar of strength. That's why I want you to pull out of this shocked disillusion by exploring other ways to finance your son's college costs.

DeLand Plaque Is Presented

Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. DeLand of Willow Road, Avon Township were presented recently with the Robert D. DeLand Memorial of Theta Chi Fraternity at Eastern Michigan University.

The first recipient of the award, Frank Boynton of Crosse Pointe, was presented with the plaque by the DeLands following the memorial ceremonies.

Not that I don't feel sympathy for it. I do. Only too well do I know how we humans in our times of helplessness, in times of weakness like that which overwhelmed you at your husband's funeral, will glorify the strength of anyone who is kind to us.

In our weakness the fact that a comfort-talking brother is the bespeckled victim of a jealous wife will quite disappear for us. We'll forget all we know about his actual weakness exactly as a drowning person will ignore

So move into these new moments. See the boy's principal. And stop this self-disparaging business of "nobody" to trust in this world.

Ex-Mental Patient Jailed on 2 Charges

A former mental patient who allegedly held a woman and her children hostage at gunpoint in Waterford Township was arrested yesterday on two charges stemming from the incident.

Chairmen Set for State Dem Fund-Raiser

LANSING (AP)—Detroiters John C. O'Meara and Aubrey V. McCutcheon Jr. have been named co-chairmen of the Democratic party's annual Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner by State Chairman Sander Levin.

The dinner, the party's traditional big fund-raising affair, will be held March 23 at Detroit's Cobo Hall with tickets selling for $30 for singles and $40 for couples.

Principal speaker, a prominent national party figure, will be announced later. Levin said.

The chairman described O'Meara and McCutcheon, both in their mid-thirties, as representative of a large group of younger Democrats who have shown themselves eager and capable to work for the party.

The two described this year's fund raising effort as "critical" if the party is to meet the needs of the fall elections.

They said proceeds from the dinner will go to the Michigan Democratic party to reduce the disparity between the Republicans' $1.25 million budget and the Democrats' $250,000 budget.

Nearly $600 Stolen From Safe in City

Nearly $600 was stolen yesterday from a safe in the Clark Gas Station, 157 Auburn, it was reported to Pontiac police yesterday.

The manager, Robert Wilson, 59, of 60 Douglas, told police that the safe had been locked when he discovered the money missing.

He said that someone apparently had knowledge of where the key to safe was hidden, and used it while the attendant on duty was busy with customers.

Hospital Theft Entry Still Puzzles Police

Pontiac police today were still uncertain how thieves gained entrance to the Pontiac State Hospital credit union office and stole $60,000 in cash.

No evidence of forcible entry was found after the theft was reported shortly after 7 a.m. yesterday, leading police to believe that the thieves may have had a passkey.

Another theory is that the thieves may have entered through an unlocked window, 12 to 15 feet off the ground, and once inside replaced a screen. After the robbery they then left through the front door.

The theft was discovered by an employee when she arrived at work.

The door was found unlocked, though it was checked by a security guard some five hours earlier and found to be secure.

The money was taken from a metal filing cabinet after it had been pried open. The cabinet had a combination lock on it.

Because the amount of money taken was more than $5,000, the FBI entered the investigation under the interstate transportation of stolen property act.

Police said that the money was wrapped in four bundles, each containing $15,000.

Charles R. Dowling, 38, the manager of the credit union, said that the large amount of funds was on hand to cash payroll checks of hospital employees yesterday.

Two crowbars were found to force open the cabinet were found at the scene.

He Disregards Induction Notice

KEESEVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—Michael Ran of this northeastern New York village says he recently received an induction notice, but cites two reasons why he should not go into the Army.

Ryan explains that he was turned down by draft officials during World War II "because I had heart trouble." Besides, he adds, he is now 63 years old.

2 Long-Time Employees Leave Waterford Schools

A teacher and a secretary have left their jobs with the Waterford Township School District after a combined 41½ years service.

Mrs. Harriet Noe, a kindergarten teacher at Waterford Village School, retired after 27 years service in the system.

Mrs. Olive Gustafson recently resigned her post at the board of education office as secretary to M. Barrett Vorce, associate superintendent for instruction and personnel. She had been employed in the district for 14½ years.

MRS. NOE Mrs. Gustafson

Mrs. Noe began teaching as an 18 year old at Covert School when all eight grades were housed in one room.

A graduate of Pontiac High School, she took classes at Wayne State University and Eastern Michigan University where she earned her bachelor's degree.

ACTIVE IN WEA

Mrs. Noe, who estimates she has taught 1,240 pupils, was active in the Waterford Education Association and with PTA groups.

Mrs. Gustafson was hired by the system as Cray Junior High School's first secretary.

When Pierce Junior High School opened in 1958, Mrs. Gustafson was transferred there and worked for Principals Paul O'Neill and later William Abersold.

She had been Vorce's secretary since June 1965.

California U. Students Hold Nude Session

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — University of California officials say 14 students, male and female, met last week in a nude "sensory awareness" session that lasted several hours.

Their instructor, Assistant Prof. Jerry Friedberg, told officials he was not at the class meeting, held last week at an off-campus house, and learned of it only Monday.

Friedberg, 29, said five of the 14 students undressed, and all sat in a semicircle and held hands.

The administration at U-C's Davis campus made it plain today it would seek to disband the experimental course.

NO ACTION PLANNED
Chancellor Emil Mrak said he would take no disciplinary action against the students because only five were taking the course for academic credit, and they have since dropped the credits.

Friedberg, who holds a political science doctorate from Harvard, said the students conducted a general discussion on sensory awareness, perception and insight into a person's own needs and needs of others.

The session was likened by Friedberg to avant-garde teaching methods in which the students, for example, feel the texture of a table or describe the feeling of peeling an avocado.

Friedberg and Robert Bynum, university public affairs director, said the students apparently did not have sexual relations.

Lincoln Love Legend Challenged

It's a common misconception that Abraham Lincoln had but one real love in his life, that he lost that love with the death of Ann Rutledge and never really felt deeply about any woman afterward.

"He was not very fond of girls," Abe's stepmother remarked. But the fact is that Lincoln had plenty of girlfriends and came close to matrimony more than once in his younger days. His nearest approach to the altar involved the almost-forgotten Mary Owens.

Lincoln's first romantic dalliance came in his early teens. The girl was Ann Roby, a school chum in Indiana.

She'd listen by the hour while young Abe spoke of what he had read in books. But the farm boy had no tongue for sweet phrases, so their romance cooled.

In later years, Ann admitted that when they met Abe spoke to her not so eloquently of love as of algebra. At 18, Ann was married to a rival of Lincoln, who knew better how to woo a mate.

SUCCESSFUL DEFENSE

Abe went off to run a ferry on the Ohio River between Indiana and Kentucky. Rural boatmen had the ragged youth arrested for ferrying passengers without a license. But young Lincoln stood up in court and defended himself successfully before the backwoods judge.

The judge, incidentally, had a niece who sat in on the trial. Afterward, she congratulated Lincoln and another romance flowered. Caroline Meeker saw young Lincoln often in the weeks following the trial.

The Meekers were a proud, successful family. Soon they forbade Caroline to encourage the lanky farmer. Conscious of his poverty and ignorance, Lincoln ended his ferry trips over the river to the Meeker home.

To Macon County, Ill., the Lincolns came by oxcart in 1830. Abe was 21 and hard as the point of his plow. He got a job splitting rails for the county sheriff, Major William Warnick.

UNSUITABLE SUTOR

The sheriff liked the way Lincoln attacked the wood pile but frowned on Abe's growing friendship with his daughter, Polly. Unschooled Lincoln seemed hardly a suitable sutor for Polly's hand. Polly listened to her father, and gradually Abe stopped calling.

In 1831, Lincoln got a job ferrying a bargeload of goods down the Sangamon River. The boat became stuck on a milldam at New Salem, Ill., and there young Abe met Ann Rutledge, daughter of a local tavern-keeper.

There was to be a romance emphasized out of all proportion to the facts. Lincoln came to the river that day to see Lincoln's stranded boat. Lincoln saw her blue eyes and pleasing face, learned her name and vowed to return to New Salem.

He did return after delivering the cargo and got a job in a store across the road from the Rutledge tavern. Soon, he was introduced to the auburn-haired, 18-year-old girl.

A WALK BY THE RIVER

When Lincoln was alone at the store and Ann could leave the tavern, they walked together by the river.

So far as we know, Lincoln never spoke to Ann of marriage. He left New Salem to take a seat in the Illinois Legislature. Meanwhile, Ann became engaged to an Easterner. In the spring of 1835, Abe returned but there is no proof he and Ann planned to marry.

That summer heavy rains swept Illinois and there was an epidemic of malaria. In August, Ann became ill while Abe was out surveying some land a few miles from town. Surely, if he and Ann were engaged, he would have come to her bedside, but he did not.

Peruvian bark, boneset tea and calomel failed to help Ann. She died on Aug. 25.

Without doubt, Ann Rutledge and Abraham Lincoln were good friends. But the time-honored legend that her death broke Abe's spirit and made him forever a brooding melancholic is plain nonsense.

Proof that he was not in love with Ann is the fact that a year after her death, Lincoln was having a light-hearted affair with a girl named Mary Owens. He was even considering asking her to be his wife.

Lincoln met Miss Owens when she came from Kentucky to visit her sister in New Salem. To Lincoln, she seemed "intelligent and agreeable" and he said he saw "no good objection to plodding through life hand in hand with her."

Miss Owens returned to Kentucky but Lincoln told her sister that if she ever returned to New Salem he would "catch, tie and marry" her.

LUKEWARM OFFER

Back came Miss Owens not long afterward. Abe courted her for four months and offered to marry her, although the offer wasn't too enthusiastic.

The reason Lincoln's ardor cooled is difficult to say. He was sad, of course, over Ann's death; he was disappointed with a stumbling political career, and he was alarmed by Miss Owens' increasing plumpness.

Lincoln's final letter to Mary Owens ended their romance. If further meetings, he wrote, "would contribute nothing to your happiness, I am sure it would not to mine. If it suits you best not to answer this, farewell. A long life and a merry one attend you."

Another visitor from Kentucky was Mary Todd. Lincoln was in the legislature in Springfield, Ill., when she first came there in 1837. She was 19, and Lincoln 23. Abe was immediately captivated by Miss Todd's energy and intelligence.

LITTLE TO OFFER

Mary Todd spoke French, knew the topics of the day, and was a sprightly dancer. But Lincoln felt he had little to offer so remarkable a woman. After a round of dances and receptions, Miss Todd returned to Kentucky.

At this point, a Sarah Rickard entered Lincoln's romantic life. She and Abe went frequently to parties and dances. Actually, the rail-splitter proposed to her, but he did it in such an offhand way she didn't take the proposal seriously.

Mary Todd came back to Springfield in 1840, frankly to cast her eyes over the eligible bachelors. Asked which one she'd set her cap for, Mary replied, "The one that has the best chance of being president."

Some say he and Mary were to be married on New Year's Day, 1841. Lincoln answered roll call in the legislature that day and there was no wedding. The romance was apparently shattered, at least temporarily.

GIFT FOR A GIRL

Now Lincoln's name becomes connected with two more women: Matilda Edwards of Springfield, and Mary Curtis of Louisville, Ky. It is thought that Lincoln gave Miss Curtis a gold watch which he originally had intended as Mary Todd's wedding gift.

Months later, he and Miss Todd were reunited. Their peacemaker was a Springfield woman. Lincoln renewed his courtship.

The morning of Nov. 4, 1842, Abe and Mary suddenly announced they would be married the same evening. There were few guests at the ceremony. Mary wore a white dress, but no veil or flowers.

A week after the wedding, Lincoln wrote to a friend: "Nothing new here, except my marrying, which is to me a matter of profound wonder."

To Mary Todd, Lincoln became a faithful, patient husband. Such he would remain until the spring evening his wife persuaded him to see the play at Ford's Theatre.

Abraham Lincoln

His Immortal Words Add Meaning Today

By ROBERT STEARNS

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

More than 150 years have passed since Abraham Lincoln's birth in 1809, but with each passing year his knags grows brighter, a beacon in the dark of adversity.

It is often instructive to reflect on how history's giants would have dealt with current crises. Some clue to Lincoln's reactions may be found in the words he left behind.

Of all the Lincoln speeches — and there were many — it is generally conceded that the 16th president rose to the greatest oratorical heights with his Gettysburg Address.

So brief that a photographer on hand for the occasion couldn't get his camera adjusted in time and missed the shot, the speech, given at the dedication of the Gettysburg (Pa.) military cemetery nevertheless holds a cherished niche in the archives of great documents.

The timeless quality of Lincoln's words has caused them to take on new meaning with the passing of more than 100 years.

The times have been few when we were not engaged in a struggle "testing whether that nation or any nation... can long endure." And isn't it still true that "it is for us, the living... to be dedicated... to the unfinished work which they who fought... have thus far so nobly advanced... that these dead shall not have died in vain?"

It is always interesting to speculate on how great men in history would have come to grips with today's problems. Following are some topics of current interest with Lincoln quotes which might apply:

● On Vietnam: "A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free."

● On civil rights: "When... you have succeeded in dehumanizing the Negro; when you have put him down and made it impossible for him to be but as the beasts of the field; when you have extinguished his soul in this world and placed him where the ray of hope is blown out as in the darkness of the damned, are you quite sure that the demon you have roused will not turn and rend you?"

● On redress by mob law: "There is no grievance that is a fit object of redress by mob law."

● On the limits of freedom: "The world has never had a good definition of the word liberty, and the American people, just now, are much in want of one."

In one instance, however, Lincoln has been proved wrong, or perhaps it was modesty that prompted him to say, in the Gettysburg Address, "The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here..."

GI's Duty Call Never Arrived

Picked Up by MPs After 10-Month Wait

FT. MCLELLAN, Ala. (UPI)—

The army said yesterday an Alabama soldier volunteered for Vietnam service and then spent 10 months at home awaiting a "port call" that never came.

What did finally appear at the Sheffield, Ala., door of Pfc. Berry A. Moore, 22, were military policemen. They picked up the soldier Tuesday and confined him for 24 hours. Then he was transferred to headquarters company at Ft. McClellan.

Moore will stay there while the army tries to puzzle out the Snafu which caused him to send a stream of letters and telegrams asking—in vain—about his departure date for Vietnam while he stayed at home for 10 months. During that time, he married and worked with his father, a plumber.

Lt. Col. Lane Carlson, information officer here, said Moore's documents "seem to back up" his story of a soldier who wanted to fight for his country, but ran into a "missing link" in army red tape.

As related by Carlson and Moore's relatives, this is his tale of frustration:

Moore enlisted March 15, 1966, and went in August to Germany. He volunteered there for duty in Vietnam and returned home last March 28 with orders to await a "port call" for shipment to Vietnam.

Moore's orders said he would get the call within 30 days.

When it didn't come by the end of April, Moore contacted the Florence, Ala., recruiting office. He was told he was not in an absent without leave (AWOL) status, but that he should telegraph for instructions from Oakland Army Base, Calif.

A telegram sent at the end of May and a letter sent in early June brought no reply. He wrote again in December, and this time Oakland said a port call could not be issued for him because it had no records of his orders.

He was told to write to the army support services at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. He did so on Jan. 19, and, as a result, the adjutant general's office had him picked up by the MPs.

Body Found Near Monroe

MONROE (AP) — A 14-year-old Ohio girl whose body was found near Monroe this week died from strangulation, the Monroe County Coroner's Office reported Thursday.

An autopsy on the body of Eileen Adams of Sylvania, Ohio who disappeared last Dec. 18, disclosed that she probably was strangled to death with a lamp cord found wrapped around her neck.

A pathologist's examination also disclosed that a 3½-inch nail had been driven into the back of the victim's head and there also was a deep puncture wound in her forehead.

The girl vanished after telling friends she was going Christmas shopping as she left school.

Reds Hold Much of Hue; Allied Troops Fight On

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer

HUE, Vietnam — Four battalions of Communist troops control most of the streets of Hue, Vietnam's ancient imperial capital. They are resisting allied forces with machine guns, mortars and rockets.

The enemy's fire was so intense today that two U.S. helicopters attempting to run the gauntlet to collect wounded were shot down over the city.

U.S. Marines and infantrymen and South Vietnamese troops are battling more to maintain their positions than to oust the enemy.

The Vietcong-North Vietnamese force deployed through the city holds a major part of the old walled citadel, formerly the seat of kings but now a pile of ruins, and the headquarters of the South Vietnamese army's 1st Infantry Division.

South Vietnamese troops hold a small part of the citadel. The Americans are fighting from a half-block square compound that houses U.S. advisory headquarters.

The city is now in its fourth day of virtual siege. Refugees have poured in, swelling the normal 40,000 population enormously. Civilian casualties are believed to be extremely high.

The allies also control the bridges across the Perfume River that joins the city.

The Communists burst upon Hue four days ago, and both the province chief, Lt. Col. Tham Van Khoa, and a senior American civilian adviser for pacification may be in enemy hands. Americans at this compound believe.

There is concern about nine other American civilians in the city.

BUILDING SURROUNDED

A platoon of U.S. Marines fought its way to within sight of the American adviser's house three days ago, but Vietcong soldiers were surrounding the building.

American and South Vietnamese planes strafed and rocketed Communist positions in the heart of Hue today. There were reports they had been ordered not to drop bombs because of the civilians.

At one point during the afternoon, American Marines and U.S. Army advisers were directing huge volumes of fire onto the street from this three-story building on the western edge of the town. They were trying to cover the dash of four armored trucks to evacuate wounded.

Americans at a boat ramp at the edge of the Perfume River.

HEAVY CASUALTIES

Some of the U.S. Marine companies have reportedly suffered heavy casualties. At least 10 Marines are known to have died; and another 108 have been wounded.

There have been heavier casualties among the South Vietnamese troops, U.S. advisers say.

No one really controls the city. There are islands of government resistance and islands of Vietcong strength.

The South Vietnamese battalions are fighting in the northwest portion of the city where the old imperial city is located.

Only Coffin Makers' Shops Open in Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — The only shop open in Saigon today were the coffin makers. Business was brisk.

Watchful Vietnamese soldiers stood guard as the artisans worked busily to meet the demand resulting from the devastating battles that have swept across the suburbs of South Vietnam's capital this week.

All other shops and businesses in the city of three million people have been ordered closed during the crisis. The population was told to stay indoors under a 24-hour curfew.

Vietnamese police and soldiers fired into the air to break up knots of curious bystanders that gathered on some streets. Roads leading to many government and U.S. buildings in the heart of the city were blocked off.

COFFINS LOADED

Cars and trucks pulled up at the half dozen coffin shops. Fearful relatives loaded the brown varnished boxes, decorated with highly colored religious symbols.

No official count has been given of the number of civilians killed in the fighting. The three main public hospitals reported more than 100 dead in their morgues. Scores more were known to be inside the blocks of squatters' shacks and refugee houses devastated by mortar and helicopter fire on the northwestern and southwestern outskirts of the city.

Hundreds of dead Vietnamese lay in the city's alleys. There were no coffins for them, only communal graves outside the city.

Hundreds of civilians have been wounded in the fighting. The medical director of the Seventh-day Adventist Hospital on one edge of Saigon, Dr. Jess C. Holm, said: "We have 40 beds for 75 patients. We haven't turned anyone away. We've put them in the chapel at the back of the hospital if we have to."

BATTLE AT HOSPITAL

Most of the wounded civilians were being taken to the two public hospitals still open. At noon today fighting raged around the largest public hospital, Cho Ray in Cholan, the Chinese quarter, and patients could not be moved inside.

Military and civilian ambulances began to move into some of the devastated slum areas to seek out civilians wounded as long as two days ago.

The Air Force Stratocresuer, Ready To Bring Men Of The 305th Air Rescue Squadron To Any Spot On The Globe

PICTURES AND STORY
By ED BLUNDEN

About 20 Pontiac area Ready Reserve Air Force men are among those called out by Presidential order in the crisis over the seized U.S. ship, Pueblo.

They belong to a highly specialized unit — the 305th Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron — dedicated to saving lives rather than warlike missions.

They are now on full-time status based at Selfridge Air Force Base in Macomb County. A company officer said the group, 184 men including 39 officers, will take their place alongside regular Air Force units. He was not able to predict how long they would stay on duty or where they would go, however.

Since the call-up order came on Jan. 26, shortly after the Pueblo was captured at sea by North Korean ships, the unit has been working day and night to put their unit on a completely operational basis, the officer reported.

Because of the sudden nature of their active duty status, some passes are being granted so the men can take care of their personal business.

The 305th is an unusual outfit and the men are having no problems adjusting to times of peril.

These are the parascue into fire, the sea, mountains and polar regions to the aid of the troubled or injured. It was this type of outfit that dropped men to aid astronauts in their ocean landings.

From the ground crews, to the air crews and the men who jump, they are highly trained and dedicated.

Though the 305th was a Ready Reserve unit, it was not an ordinary one. The "weekend warrior" designation would not be applicable as the unit trains much more intensively than time. Area employers have been extended the thanks of the Air Force for their cooperation.

Key to the operations of the 305th is its nine four-engine rescue planes. These are modified versions of the Boeing Stratocresuer, redesignated the HC-97 and renamed Stratocresuer. This bubble-bodied craft is reliable enough and slow (compared to newer large planes) and maneuverable enough to perform a variety of rescue missions. It has a range of over 5,000 miles.

Most of them, however, have the sort of job in which they can be absent for periods of time. Area employers have few hours, can be dropping supplies, equipment or aidmen to almost any spot on the globe. Central figures in the operation are the parascue men.

One of them, Sgt. James D. Scott of 616 Valencia, Pontiac Township, detailed some of the training he has taken. He has been to survival school, medical school, jump school and other training operations for duty in deserts, mountains or polar regions.

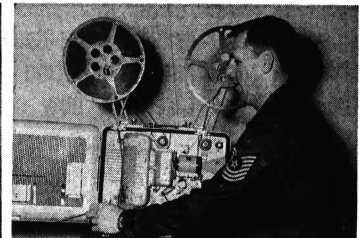

"We drop anywhere," he said. Sgt. Scott said he had needed.

been trained as a paratrooper prior to serving with the rescue unit. "They trained me to kill, but now I'm trying to save lives," he said.

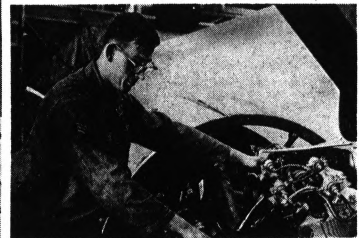

Much of what the 305th Air Rescue Squadron is doing since being called to active duty is a secret. They are, however, in preparation for playing a full role alongside regular Air Force units for as long as they are needed.

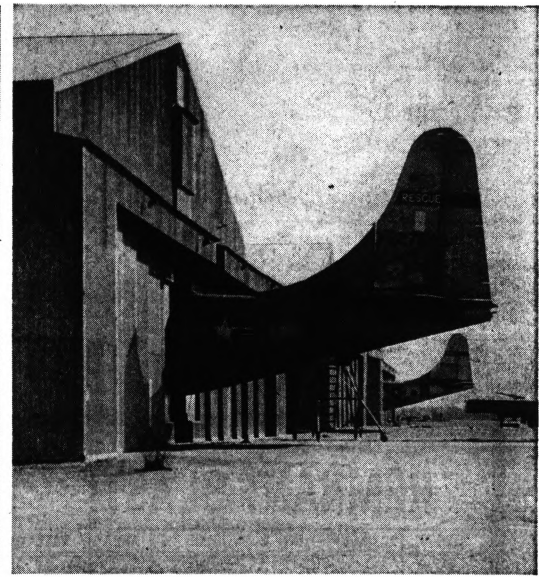

BIG WHEELS ON THE GROUND—Landing gear of the Stratocresuer craft get a thorough checking by ground crewmen. Checking them are S.Sgt. John Turner (left)

TRAINING LEADER — M. Sgt. Gordon Trayer prepares a training film for men of the unit. Trayer of 3754 Pontiac Lake, Waterford Township, conducts classes in maintenance, an activity related to his civilian job as teacher in the Birmingham School District.

LOTS OF HORSES — Working on a 4,350-horsepower engine of the four-engine Stratocresuer airplane is Sgt. Vincent Trzanski of 2511 Patrick Henry, Pontiac Township. He is a laboratory tester in the engineering plant of General Motors Truck and Coach Division as a civilian.

THIS IS CAMOUFLAGE???—These giant Stratocresuers aren't very well hidden in their Selfridge Field hangars. Actually, the all-weather craft don't really need shelter but are tucked into the building so that ground crews can work on their more vital parts in comfort.

PARACHUTE CARE — Handling one of the parachutes that may carry him to earth on a rescue mission is T.Sgt. James D. Scott of 616 Valencia, Pontiac Township. Scott is a foreman at General Motors Truck and Coach Division in civilian life.

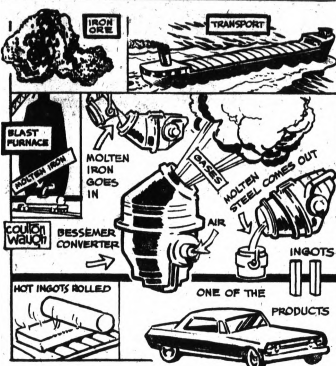

RADIO CONTROL — Keeping the 305th in contact with Air Force operations are radio operators S.Sgt. Perry C. Knox (left) of 5755 Hunter Creek, Imlay City, and S.Sgt. Carl E. Husted of 5018 Ridgeway, Waterford Township. In civilian life Knox is a sales engineer for General Motors Truck and Coach Division, and Husted is a radio technician working with the Air Force on Civil Service status.

COMMUNICATOR — Lt. James C. Purdy of 4341 W. Orchard Hill, Bloomfield Township, talks with ground crews from headquarters of the 305th. Purdy is supply officer for the outfit. In civilian life he is a representative for Motorola Communications and Electronics.

Junior Editors Quiz on— STEEL

QUESTION: How is steel made?

ANSWER: To make steel, iron ore is taken from vast deposits, such as those near Lake Superior. The ore is carried by steamer to various plants where iron is extracted from it. This is done in a blast furnace.

Ore is loaded in from the top, then coke and limestone are added. A blast of hot air makes the coke burn, which melts the ore while the limestone carries off many impurities. Molten or liquid iron trickles down to the bottom and is drawn off.

This may be allowed to harden into bars of pig iron, some of which may be melted down again as cast iron, or in a process using silicate or melted sand, made into wrought iron.

But most of the molten iron is used in nearby steel-making furnaces, to produce the tremendously important material steel, which is iron with more impurities taken out and certain substances added.

The main picture shows molten iron going into a Bessemer converter, and, after having its final impurities burned out under high pressure, being poured out in the form of molten steel. This is cooled into ingots, later to be used in many ways.

Common Antacid Seen as Radioactivity Inhibitor

By Science Service While strontium-85, harmless in the dosages used for testing, found to inhibit absorption of the radio-active strontium in the human body, even if taken after exposure to the dangerous byproduct of nuclear explosions.

Aluminum phosphate gel, widely used in the treatment of peptic ulcers, is well tolerated in the body. When taken just before administration of strontium-85, it cuts the amount of absorption by 87 per cent.

A lesser, but still high percentage of absorption is blocked when the gel is taken a half hour to an hour after exposure to the strontium.

Strontium-90 has a long half-life and is especially hazardous because of its tendency to concentrate in bones, where it can seriously damage the blood-forming marrow.

'Today, Psychiatry Faces Choice: Patient or Nation'

NEW YORK (UPI) — This turbulent age of turbulent people (acid-heads, hippies and draft-card burners) confronts psychiatrists with a dilemma, said Dr. Joseph Lerner, a psychiatrist who was speaking in a personal unsentimental way psychiatrists usually avoid.

He and his brethren, he said, are being compelled to choose between the best interests of some of their patients, from psychiatry's traditional viewpoint, and the best interest of the country and its way of life. His own choice was country over the individual patient.

Many psychiatrists would consider the choice improper. His justification was that many of the age's turbulent characters should be psychiatric patients, if they are not, because they are exhibiting a "lack of loyalty to one's country and one's way of life."

Such a lack, he said, is a common psychiatric symptom. "Rejection of the father and/or mother figure closely parallels rejection of our country as an object of our concern and respect. We see symptoms of 'disloyalty' or 'rejection' in the person who develops patterns of behavior which are disturbing to his parents, his family, his community or his culture," Lerner said.

In his professional opinion, "disloyalty of whatever nature" goes with psychiatric illness or with "opportunistic attempts to achieve status, notoriety and power" or with "the illusion that such activities will ameliorate personal, social and economic status."

But "the much more important group, the people who are really the greatest problem in terms of the difficulties they cause, are those who espouse such activities as a direct result of emotional or psychiatric illness."

Fire Program Enlists 1,500 City Children

Curtailed three years ago teachers will select a fire because of a lack of money, marshal and a captain in each class. The Junior Fire Marshal Program conducted by the Pontiac Fire Department will be revived in Pontiac elementary schools starting Monday.

Participating in the four-month-long program will be some 1,500 children in 48 sixth grade classes in schools within the city limits.

The purposes of the program are twofold: to educate youngsters to the dangers of fire and to assist the department in ridding homes of hazardous materials.

"You'd be surprised at how much junk kids clean out of the house," said Pontiac Fire Chief Charles Marion. "It's a proven fact that they can make a home safer from fire."

Marion said that the department is able to resume the program because of the financial support of independent insurance agents in Pontiac.

MATERIALS

The funds have been used to purchase instructional material, and metal badges which will be distributed among the students who have successfully completed the program.

The department has received the full cooperation of the Pontiac Board of Education and school officials, said Marion. "They like the program and understand its importance."

At the outset of the program,

At a meeting the first month, a firefighter — one of 11 who have volunteered to direct the program — will meet with two young officials, explaining their responsibilities.

RELAYED INSTRUCTIONS

It will be up to the fire marshal and the captain in each class to give instructions to their classmates, such as clipping newspapers for fire stories.

During the second visit, the firefighter will review the progress of the class and pinpoint particular fires that a youngster might have prevented.

A true-and-false test on fire safety will be given by the teacher before the third visit.

Following a graduation program on the fourth session, the youngster will be invited to a theater party.

CONTINUATION HOPED

Marion said that he hopes that the program, instituted in Pontiac in 1957, will continue in succeeding years so that all schoolchildren eventually will have the benefit of the experience.

Weather studies are being conducted at present in the least known area — the equator from which typhoons and hurricanes originate.

THE VERY BEST SERVICE IN THE WORLD

Spanish War Vets Back Viet War, Rap Draft Protests

WASHINGTON (AP) — They were all volunteers in their war back in 1898 and they don't cotton to the antics of young men who don't want to serve in today's war in Vietnam.

As James H. McElroy, adjutant general of the United Spanish War Veterans, will tell you, the 9,000 living veterans of the Spanish-American War rank patriotism, Americanism and respect for the flag high among the virtues.

"I'll tell you, we're all behind Gen. Hershey. He's right," McElroy volunteered in a telephone interview, referring to Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey, who has suggested speedy induction of youths who violate the law while opposing the draft.

"There'll be a day of reckoning," McElroy continued. "I our day, it was 'My country, right or wrong.' We were all volunteers in the Spanish-American War. Now young fellows are trying to get out of serving their country and are forming belligerent groups.

CAN'T PULL OUT

"We can't pull out of Vietnam," he said. "And I'm talking for the whole damn organization when I say that. We fought that out at our last convention."

McElroy, 86, heads an organization whose members are, on the average, slightly older than he is.

The average would be a little higher, he explained, except some members were only 14 when they entered the Navy as apprentices in 1898, and they're only 83 now.

As might be expected, their main concerns now revolve around pensions and medical benefits for themselves and the widows of their departed comrades.

PENSION BILL

A pension bill Congress passed last year was a great victory, McElroy said, and the battle for it took far longer than the Spanish-American War.

"We worked, oh gosh, three years on that one, getting resolutions and so on," he said.

"The main benefits go to the widows," he said. "Oh, that was wonderful! The poor devils. They're at the age now just about all of them have something wrong with them."

"I got more cards and letters after that bill was passed—people sending congratulations and thanks, saying novenas for us—

I'm almost sprouting wings," McElroy added.

VETS CLAIM

The Spanish War Vets claim to have the oldest active veterans organization, but McElroy concedes some merit to the Jewish War Veterans' claim to seniority on the basis of ties with a Civil War organization.

The Spanish-American War broke out in April 1898, about two months after an explosion sank the U.S. battleship Maine in Havana Harbor, where it had been sent to protect Americans during Cuba's rebellion against Spain.

The war lasted only three months. Spain abandoned Cuba and ceded Puerto Rico, Guam and the Philippines to the United States.

Some 450,000 Americans served in the war. Those still living are almost the oldest American veterans, predating only by two veterans of the Indian wars—Frederick Fraske, 96, of Chicago and Reginald Bradley, 100, of Oakland, Calif.

CIVIL WAR VET

The last veteran of the Civil War died in 1959.

The Spanish-American brotherhood is in its twilight.

"Its lines are steadily growing thinner, and the tramp of its column is with ever-lessening tread," says an anonymous tribute circulated by the organization.

But thousands of them have lived to see the Cuba whose independence they helped to se-

Severe Quake Forecast for Central California

ANN ARBOR (AP)—A university of Michigan professor predicts that central California is in for a catastrophic earthquake as severe as the 1906 temblor that leveled San Francisco.

The prediction was made by Prof. Peter Franken of the university's physics department, who said the quake would come "sometime in the next 10 to 20 years, possibly even tomorrow."

Franken said in an interview that an enormous amount of stress has built up along the San Andreas fault, which runs along the California coastline and was responsible for the 1906 disaster.

"The region probably is more dangerous now than it was in 1906," he said. "Most geophysicists agree that the epicenter for the next quake probably will be in the region between San Francisco and Los Angeles."

SHOCK WAVES

"This quake shock waves, which usually do more damage than the actual slippage of land, would extend to both cities, quite possibly wiping them out."

Franken said San Francisco is particularly vulnerable, since there is a good chance that a severe earthquake would destroy both the Golden Gate and Oakland Bay bridges.

Despite the imminent danger, Franken added, residents of the area are doing "pathetically little about it."

He said people should be trained to stay inside during an earthquake.

"There should be earthquake drills, just like fire drills, in school," the professor added.

"Food and medicine should be stockpiled, the first aid courses should be required."

TRAUMATIC EFFECT

Franken said he believed one reason such precautions are being ignored is that any emphasis on the probability of such a catastrophe "could have a traumatic effect on California's economy, especially with regard to real estate and industrial activities."

Until recently, Franken was on leave of absence from the university to serve as deputy director and acting director of the Advanced Research Project Agency at the Pentagon.

Gov. Romney in Wisconsin

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP)—Michigan Gov. George Romney returned to Wisconsin Thursday night for two days of campaigning for the Republican nomination.

On his arrival at Oshkosh he told newsmen at his hotel the American people should know all details about the seizure of the USS Pueblo by North Korea.

"The American people should be forthrightly told what's going on so as to better judge whether the United States is getting out of a dangerous situation or into a more dangerous one," he said.

Grill Blaze Blamed on Air-Conditioner

Pontiac Fire Marshal Charles Metz has attributed Wednesday night's $13,000 fire at Griff's Grill, 49 N. Saginaw, to an air-conditioning unit.

Originally, firemen believed a kitchen grease duct may have been responsible for the blaze which caused a large, primarily, to the second floor, roof and ceiling of the restaurant.

Using pieces of equipment, firemen had the fire under control in about 20 minutes despite intense flames. No one was hurt.

Egypt Halts Attempts to Free Trapped Ships

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt will resume attempts to free foreign ships trapped in the Suez canal until the Middle East crisis is solved and the canal reopened to international navigation, the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram said today.

An operation to free 15 merchant ships was halted Tuesday, said Egypt's foreign minister, U Thant, who said Egypt would not reverse its latest decision even if Israel pledged not to interfere in the future.

"Freeing the trapped ships is no longer a subject for discussion in any way," the paper declared.

Al-Ahram, which often speaks for President Gamal Abdel Nasser, said Egypt would not let Israel survey the northern sector. Thant said he and Lt. Gen. Odd Bull, chief of the U.N. Truce Supervision Organization, agreed the survey proposed by the Egyptians was "reasonable and acceptable" and involved no threat to Israel's security or political position.

Egyptian Ambassador Mohamed A. El-Kony charged at the U.N. that Israeli military authorities were subjecting Arab residents of the Gaza Strip to "extreme physical torture" and that 50 persons died in mid-January as a result.

Israel denied the charges, and a government spokesman in Jerusalem said "no harsh methods of investigation" were being used. Arabs suspected of sabotage are in solitary confinement, he said.

Los Angeles Kings Make Paupers Out of Red Wings, 8-6

Detroit (AP) — Manager-Coach Sid Abel of the Detroit Red Wings would be perfectly happy if he never sees Bill Flett again—or for that matter the Los Angeles Kings.

Flett overshadowed a sensational four-goal spree by Detroit's Floyd Smith, scoring three goals himself, as the Kings outlasted the Red Wings 8-6 in a National Hockey League game Thursday night.

In other NHL games the highlylighty Montreal Canadiens won their 11th straight with a 5-2 victory over New York, Boston tied Chicago 4-4, Pittsburgh blanked St. Louis 2-0 and Philadelphia tied Oakland 3-3.

Flett's hat trick was the second of his rookie NHL season. Both were against Detroit, the first last Nov. 5 when LA beat the Wings 6-4.

The Kings built up a near insurmountable lead with five second period goals, four within a three-minute and five-second span.

"The puck had eyes," said Abel. "I never saw so many deflections in my life. One off (Norm) Ullman, two off (Gary Bergman); Bergie and (Jim) Watson gave them one goal."

CHANGED GOALIES

In an effort to stop the LA onslaught, Abel pulled starting goalie Roy Edwards, who gave up five goals, at the 10:07 mark of the second period, inserting Roger Crozier.

"Shots were going in at all different angles," said Abel. "It was nothing against Roy, but I thought he would be a little down after so many goals and figured I'd try another goalie."

Crozier gave up three goals including the clincher by Flett after Detroit had cut the margin to 6-5 in the third period on two goals 30 seconds apart by Gordie Howe and Smith.

"Roger didn't see the first one they got off him either," said Abel. "It was one of those nights."

Detroit outshot Los Angeles 47 to 27, but the Kings cashed in on five of 11 second-period shots and Detroit never recovered.

Smith's fourth goal of the game and 15th of the season came at the 16:09 mark of the third period and cut LA's lead to 7-6.

With Detroit short-handed, Ullman got control of the puck and flipped a back-hand pass to Smith, who beat the Kings' goalie Wayne Rutledge from close in.

But LA's Real Lemieux iced the victory with his second goal of the game in the final minute of play. He fired the puck into an empty Detroit net after the Wings had pulled Crozier to get an extra forward on the ice.

Smith's hat trick was the second of his NHL career and it was the first time he ever scored four goals in one game. He had seven shots on goal in the game.

"Smith had the best night he ever had in his life," said Abel. "He could have had six goals with a little luck."

Detroit took a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Alex Delvecchio, his 15th, and Smith's first tally. Flett's first goal made it 2-1 going into the second period. Howie Hughes, Flett and Ted Irvine followed with quick goals, sandwiched between Smith's second goal and Bill White made it 6-3 for the Kings with another tally at the 12:20 mark.

Flett who also had an assist, scored his hat trick goal at 18:17 of the third period after Detroit had cut the gap to 6-5 on Howe's 23rd goal and Smith's third tally. Smith's fourth goal made it 7-6 better. Lemieux wrapped up the game for LA with his eighth goal of the season.

The victory moved the Kings into sole possession of third place in the Western Division, one point behind idle Minnesota.

The loss was Detroit's second in a row. The Wings, last in the East, next play Minnesota in Detroit Saturday night.

AAU-NCAA War Continues

Amateur Athletic Truce Fails

WASHINGTON (AP) — A peace between the two battling, major regulatory bodies in amateur athletics has failed to materialize, despite a formula devised by a federal sports arbitration board which spent the past 26 months mediating the feud.

Just 5 1/2 hours after the board—headed by labor mediator Theodore Kheel—made its recommendations public, one of the organization issued a statement saying it would continue to operate as it had in the past.

The board established in its 29-page report three categories of track meets in this country—with varying sanctions. And it proposed a five-year binding arrangement in an effort to settle the dispute between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The NCAA and the AAU have been feuding for the past half century but the battle has become increasingly heated during the past few years. If anything, it has worsened during recent weeks.

The nation's track and field performers, who will carry American prestige into the Olympic Games at Mexico City this fall, are the key issue in the dispute.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said his panel might have to consider legislation to solve the dispute if all the factions involved did not accept the findings of the arbitration board.

Despite the threat, however, the U.S. Track and Field Federation, an arm of the NCAA, issued a statement Thursday night in which it said it "will conduct meets for its members without obtaining AAU sanction."

In its report, the board gave the AAU the sole sanctioning right for all open meets—those involving athletes from other countries and nonstudents.

It gave the USTFF the right to run closed meets, without AAU sanction, as long as they are confined to full-time students.

A third category of meets also was established by the board—open domestic competition. The USTFF could sponsor these meets but would need the sanction of the AAU, which would be automatic if the collegiate federation satisfied all the union's international requirements.

Kheel had said the board would assist during the changeover period in clarifying its ruling but "we are not about to renegotiate this decision."

The Rev. Wilfred Crowley, USTFF president, said he is elated that the arbitration board recognized the need for a single purpose.

Top Ranked Houston Five Corral Marshall's Herd

NEW YORK (AP) — Houston's Elvin Hayes was not satisfied with his performance in New York's Madison Square Garden, but neither was opposing Marshall, so the Big E must have done something right.

Whatever he did, it got him 39 points and 19 rebounds, enough to run the top-ranked Cougars past the Thundering Herd 102-83 Thursday night in their 20th college basketball victory without a loss.

Houston although in command from the early moments, never could shake hustling Marshall, but still had an easier time than third-ranked North Carolina, which came from behind twice in the last half to beat visiting Florida State 86-80.

The only other ranking team in action, Duke, No. 9, also had its hands full before subduing Virginia 90-78 in Charlottesville.

Hayes, a 6-foot-8, 235-pound All-American, connected on 16 of 29 shots from the field, but most of them were short jumpers or rebounds as he seldom moved outcourt against the smaller Thundering Herd.

"I was looking forward to playing in the Garden," he said. "I had 22 points here two years ago, but I didn't think I had a good night."

"I think I played well tonight but I could have played better. I don't think we were as up tonight as we were for UCLA. How could we be?"

DOUBLEHEADER

The game was the opener of a doubleheader in which Army trounced New York U, 75-51 in the nightcap for its eighth straight victory and a 14-3 record.

North Carolina, winning for the 13th time in 14 starts, led 46-40 at the half, but had to make up 63-61 and 76-75 deficits. Four consecutive points gave the Tar Heels a 79-76 lead they never gave up.

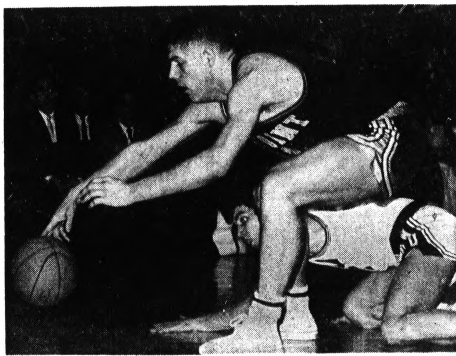

Larry Miller had 24 points for North Carolina.

Duke, upset Tuesday night by South Carolina, had trouble again as Virginia held a 72-70 edge before Mike Lewis hit a basket and Steve Vandenberg dropped four straight free throws. Then with the score 80-78, Duke scored the last 10 points of the game.

Lewis finished with 26 points. Tulsa pulled away from a North Texas State press in the second half for a 70-57 victory in Denton, Tex. Rob Donmay had 23 points for Tulsa.

Don may notched 31 points in lead Dayton to a 96-60 rout over visiting Miami of Florida.

Oklahoma City, playing at home and led by Ardel England's 30 points, pulled away early to a 127-99 cruise over Wisconsin.

Spartan Hears of Draft Pick Serving Time

By MILTON RICHMOND
NEW YORK (UPI)—Jess Phillips is sure he can make it with the pros. He has a right to feel that way.

One of the reasons he does is because he's making it now in prison where he's doing 15 months to 14 years for forgery and after a fall like that, what's so tough about playing pro football?

Jess Phillips, 20, is a former star defensive halfback for Michigan State who was sentenced last Nov. 13 and could be eligible for parole by October.

At approximately 4 p.m. last Wednesday, some of Phillips' fellow inmates returned from conservation assignments to Camp Waterloo at Grass Lake.

"Hey, did you hear?" one of them said to Jess Phillips.

"Hear what?" inquired the six-foot, 200-pound Phillips.

"You been drafted to play pro football by Cincinnati. We all heard it on the radio."

EX-TEAMMATES

Jess Phillips played together with such men who have already made it big in the pros as Bubba Smith and George Webster and pro scouts have a way of remembering little things like that.

The Green Bay Packers thought so much of Jess Phillips they rated him among the top five players in the country. But they passed him up in the draft just completed.

Same with the Dallas Cowboys. The Cowboys were interested enough in him, however, to make inquiries at Southern Michigan Prison where he originally was assigned.

Only Paul Brown, coach and general manager of the AFL's brand new Cincinnati Bengals, wasn't afraid to take a shot.

He drafted Jess Phillips on the fourth round and then said "no comment" when people asked about him. It was no random pick by Brown. He had checked a few things out beforehand.

"We looked into the circumstances prior to the draft," says Peter Rozelle, the pro football commissioner, "and as long as there is no further problem we see no reason why he (Phillips) can't play when he comes out."

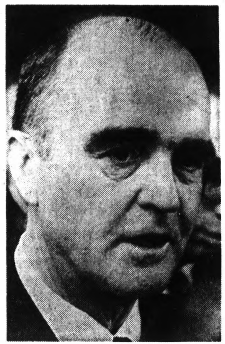

Jess Phillips tries to keep in shape in prison by working out as best he can.

FIRST AID MAN

He is the camp first aid man and also assists in promoting an indoor recreational program which includes billiards, table tennis and some weight lifting.

"I wasn't surprised about being drafted," Jess Phillips said. "I didn't know who would draft me, but I thought somebody would. I'm sure I can make it as a pro."

NBA Team Picks Ex-Local Prep Ace

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Charles (Bud) Acton left Michigan Thursday for what could be a permanent spot with the San Diego Rockets.

Acton, one of the great scorers in small — college basketball in Michigan and a former Troy High School star, joined the Rockets in a loan from the North American Basketball League's Battle Creek Braves.

Battle Creek Coach Dave McCarthy said the Rockets would decide whether to purchase the 6-foot-6 forward after he plays in two games.

Acton played the first game Thursday night, dumping in four points, but Rudy LaRusso tallied 40 to lead the San Francisco Warriors to a 128-114 victory over the Rockets.

Acton was the second leading rebounder in the North American League this season and was averaging 17.1 points a game.

Sports Cars Qualify for 24 Hour Race Slated at Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A turbine-powered race car entered with hopes of improving on Parnelli Jones' near victory in the Indianapolis 500 with a similar but bigger turbine, was still in the updating process as qualifying began today for the 24 hours of Daytona sports car race.

Ray Heppenstall, project engineer for the experimental car, was supervising mechanics transferring an elaborate $25,000 braking system from a newer version which burned out an engine bearing late Wednesday.

Replacing a turbine engine requires machinery for balancing not available here, so Heppenstall began preparing the older model to race.

Brake transfer was the big job. The older car—actually only six months out of the factory itself—had brake pads good for about two hours around the 3.81-mile course with six tortuous turns.

It was the first time Lombardi, absolute ruler of Green Bay football as coach and general manager, ever delegated a major share of his authority.

Bengton was sure Lombardi would not interfere with the running of the team.

"Our relationship has been very close and there's been a very real understanding between us as long as we've been together," Bengton said.

"I'm sure that there will be no crossing over and no interference. I'm sure he's going to have his hands full with the general manager's duties."

INNER TOUGHNESS

Bengton, a tall balding man with inner toughness and patrician manners, didn't pretend his new job would be easy.

"I realize I will be succeeding a remarkable man as coach of a team with a record probably unequalled in the history of football," Bengton said. "I hope we will be able to continue the winning tradition of the Packers."

The one-time Minnesota star, who admitted having turned down previous head coaching offers, spoke immediately after Lombardi told Packer directors and newsmen of his decision Thursday night.

He had made up his mind, Lombardi said, "only after a great deal of thought and study."

Speaking from a written text, Lombardi apologized, saying he had to because of the emotion involved. "I felt I could not trust myself to say what I must say unless it is written," he explained.

"Because of the nature and growth of the business and the corporate structure of the Packers, I believe it is impractical for me to try to do both jobs. I feel I must relinquish one of them."

Lombardi's emotion showed only momentarily during his three-minute talk. When it was over, tears were noticeable in his eyes.

The indomitable Lombardi, the only man ever to coach a team to three straight titles since the NFL adopted the playoff system in 1933, said he was flattered by the number of people who attended his news conference and dinner. "This started out as a routine press release, believe me," he said to the gathering of more than 100 persons.

MARK OF WINNER

Lombardi, who took over a team that had won only one game in 1958 and turned it into a contender almost overnight and a champion within three years, leaves after nine straight winning seasons.

His Packer teams won 89 regular season games, lost only 29 and tied four. The Packers captured six Western Conference titles as well as five league titles and for the past two seasons have won world titles by beating the American Football League champions in the Super Bowl.

Lombardi, who bows out as the closest thing to an all-winning coach that the NFL has ever seen, turns over to Bengton a solid team blended carefully with veterans and newcomers.

Bengton, believed close to Lombardi in football outlook, said he planned no major departures from traditional Packer patterns.

Packer players don't expect any changes either. Bengton indicated he would, at least for the time being, continue to be the defense. For the past nine seasons he has called all the Packer defensive signals.

Critical of Present Ring Officiation

OAKLAND (AP) — Don Chargin promoter of the Thad Spencer-Jerry Quarry heavyweight elimination series fight Saturday, would like to see new officials in the ring, and at ringside. "We need a new set of officials to improve the scoring," he told newsmen, "and I'd like to see a school for referees. An ex-fighter doesn't always make the best referee."

Quarry fought a disputed 10-round draw with former champion Floyd Patterson in their first fight and then scored a close 12-round decision over Patterson in their second meeting.

Yank Trying to Outpace Cold, Aussie

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Medical Association may not recommend a brisk half-mile run as the best method for getting rid of a cold, but that's the medicine Preston Davis has prescribed for himself.

Davis will run the 880 against Australian Ralph Doubell in the New York Knights of Columbus indoor track meet tonight. For a New York grad, though he'd run rather be in the 1,000, where the competition isn't quite as keen, because of a cold.

But Davis showed up in New York Thursday, claiming he felt better and wanted another crack at Doubell, who has beaten him twice at 1,000 yards. Those are the only losses suffered this season by Davis, who won three straight mile races.

Another good competitive matchup will be in the 600 where Tom Farrell of the Army tries to stretch his comeback string to two victories. He won the 600 in Boston, sneaking past rather be in the wire in a thrilling race, both runners timed in 1:11.1.

But his main opponent this time will be Martin McGrady of the Santa Clara Valley Youth Village, world indoor record holder in the event with a 1:09.0 clocking, winner of four straight 600s this winter and a victor over Farrell in the three races they've run against each other.

Sam Bait of Kent State, whose 4:01.9 in Boston is the fastest indoor mile of the season, tries to get under four minutes. Josef Odzil of Czechoslovakia is the top competitor.

Bob Seagren of Southern California will make another attempt to raise his world indoor pole vault mark of 17-4 1/2.

BOWLING

Reports from the West Side Lanes and Huron Bowl classic leagues jumbled the listing for team high scores this season with outstanding performances by three units.

The Atlas Market squad shot to the top of the local team high game listing (as reported to the Press) with a rousing 1191 Monday night at West Side while rolling a 3204 series (the third best total).

Pacing the onslaught were Stan Kurzman (256-241-706), Jerry Harnack (265-689) and Jerry Perna (255-654).

Jim Gable of Colonial Lounge just missed the 700 list with a 697. The Coca Cola team had a 1043-3028 effort.

SECOND HIGH

Jim's hit the local season second high game with an 1152 output in the middle game of a 3196, the fourth best series total. Merv Weber had 672, Ray Keith 265-687, Bill Pittman 245-636, Bill Landry 614 and Jim Joyce 607 in the spree.

Herks' outburst included an 1131 (the area's fifth best) and 3193 (also fifth best) as Doug Swords led off with 257-695. Bud Mulholland had 246-676; Arnie Osta a 618, Bill Smith a 606 and Pat Sweeney 598.

Huron coowner Joe Bonfiglio shook off his bad back in a 268 for Hartford Roofing. Tom Augello had a 256-677 for Pontac Janitor Supply. Jay Lovett posted a 265 for Veterans Disposal and Cooley Lanes' Bob Chamberlain hit a 255.

Sylvan Lanes recorded its season high game for a woman when Gert Murphy rolled a 246 last Saturday in the Jacks and Jills circuit. It is the ninth best women's game reported locally.

Joining the list of 700 bowlers at Airway Lanes the same night was Curt Gossett with a 253-259-702 in the Columbia Avenue Baptist Mixed League. Mary Wood's 541 topped the women.

Houston Nips Colonels in Pro Game, 109-107

By The Associated Press
The game meant as little as the one coast, but Kentucky and Houston acted as if it were for a championship.

Houston, in last place in the American Basketball Association's Western Division, beat Kentucky, similarly situated in the Eastern Division, 109-107 Thursday night. And the Mavericks had to fight to the bitter end.

The Colonels outscored them 31-19 in the last period—and 59-43 in the second half—only to bow by the two-point margin.

In other games, Minnesota beat Dallas 116-99 and Oakland dented New Orleans 131-124.

In the NBA, New York took Chicago 112-105, San Francisco beat San Diego 128-114 and St. Louis edged Seattle 113-110.

LEADING SCORER

Wilbert Frazier led the scoring for Houston, 15½ games out of first place, with 30 points. Darrel Carrier paced Kentucky, 15½ games out, with 26 points.

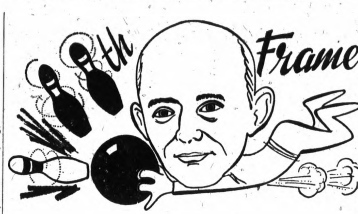

Minnesota moved to within a half-game of idle Pittsburgh in the Eastern Division with its victory. Sam Smith led the way for the Muskies with 29 points, 14 in the second quarter. Cincy Powell led the Chaparrals with 18.

Barry Leibowitz, recently acquired by Oakland in a trade with New Jersey, collected seven points in the final two minutes to thwart a New Orleans comeback. Doug Moe topped the Saints with 37 points and Jim Hadnot was high for the Oaks with 30.

Challenge Given Italian Boxer

BUENOS AIRES (U)—Alberto Lovell has officially challenged Oscar "Ringo" Bonavena for the Argentine heavyweight boxing crown.

Bonavena's scheduled March 6 bout with Peruvian Roberto Avila was canceled Thursday. The Argentine champion was beaten by Jimmy Ellis of Louisville, Ky., last Dec. 2 in the semifinals of the World Boxing Association heavyweight title tournament.

A man—who spent many a summer around Watkins Lake and still has descendants living there—has been elected posthumously to the Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame.

Robert Menninger Sr., who has been labeled the "Father of Bowling" in the Detroit area, is one of three new members who will be enshrined Mar. 9 at the Bowling Proprietors' Association of Greater Detroit's niche at the Detroit Historical Museum. Anita Cantaline and Charles Roberts are the living selections who will be added.

Menninger was an Easterner (raised in Brooklyn) who came to Detroit to roll match games against Detroit "palm-ball" bowlers at private clubs.

Noting the interest in the ten-pin sport, he chose to stay and opened the city's first public bowling establishment (The Columbia) at Clinton and Beaubien in 1898. He stayed in the business 10 years before turning it over to his son Robert, Jr.

Menninger died in 1948 at age 77.

SPARE PINS
Detroit Bob Kwolek won the GDBA's Masters Tournament last weekend, with Steve Vargo finishing second.

Among the Pontiac area keglers in the final rollofs, George (Chico) Chiochsky placed eighth and won $150. Dick Viles, coowner of Cooley Lanes, was 16th and won $80; while Airway Lanes pro Jim Rutkowski earned $35 for the 25th spot.

Teen-ager Bob Finkle, the pride of the Airway Majors League, will be watching his league mates on crutches awhile. The 17-year-old strikemaker is hobbled with a bad knee as the result of injuries in basketball.

A junior, Finkle had moved into a starting berth at Waterford Township High School before his most recent injury last Friday. A WTHS tennis prospect too, Bob now is awaiting a decision next week regarding surgery.

He had a 290 game this season while building a 182 average at Airway.

Chapter 21

Dan Briscoe lifted the child on the horse. The woman, who said her name was Mrs. Hallie Barnes, raced along in her high heels to the shack, where he began removing the mud as best he could.

"Your husband is out working on your claim, I take it?" he remarked.

She uttered a sniff. "More likely he's in Flat Butte, hangin' around a saloon."

A blanket served as a door for the shack, but it was held back. Dan had a view of the interior, which was in disorder.

Dan saw that Hallie Barnes was watching him. "Where are you folks from?" he asked.

She shrugged indifferently. "Here an' there. We been in Kansas an' Colorado. We was headin' for California when we heard there was free land to be had down here."

She glared around, uttering another sniff. "Free land! No wonder it's free. Nobody but fools like my man would listen to such soft soap."

"It doesn't look like you're starving," Dan observed. "I smell beef cooking. Nor going without clothes to wear."

She bridled. "I reckon a boob's got a right to decent grub an' clothes if it's offered."

"Offered?"

She subsided abruptly. She peered at his horse. "You're a cowboy from that ranch down the river, aren't you?"

"I hired out there today," Dan said.

"Today?" She studied him uneasily, torn between gratitude for helping the child, and some inner caution. He believed the fact he was unmarried allayed whatever fears she entertained.

"Why stay here, if there's no future?" he asked.

"Well, there just might be something to all this talk about irrigation an' buildin' a dam," she said. "Anyway, as long as Tom Smith an' his partner an' the bank want to pay us free board, we'd be fools not to stay. We kin move on to California any time."

"Tom Smith? What's he got to do with it?"

Caution went out with Hallie Barnes. "He runs the store here," she said. "Now, I think you, mister, for savin' my—"

Dan refused to let her end the conversation. "Irrigation? Say, maybe I better stake out a claim myself. I've never used my homestead right."

"Maybe," she said dubiously. "To tell the truth, we ain't filed either. My man don't want to use his right 'til he's sure it won't be wasted. Ain't many of the others that have filed either. But, I reckon you could get free grub, too, if you wanted to hang around a while."

"How do I go about that?"

"I really ain't supposed to talk about it," she said, "but everybody in Shaktown knows it. All you have to do is go talk to Mr. Kain at the bank in town. He'll fix things for you."

"He'll show you where to stake your quarter, an' he'll give you grub an' clothes to get along. A little money, too."

"Why would he do that?"

"He walks it an' invests. Says settlers will flood the country when the word gets around, an' everybody will get rich, includin' the bank."

Her voice had suddenly trailed off. Her face had lost color.

Dan turned. Shep Sand was standing a few yards away. He had approached quietly from the opposite side of the shack, and had probably been listening before stepping into view.

Sand spoke. "What was it you said your name was, mister?"

"You can call me Driscoll," Dan said.

"I reckon that's as good a handle as any," Sand said. "You came down from Flag on the same stage I was riding a few days ago, as I recollect."

And now you're workin' for Spanish Bell?"

"I took a job there," Dan said. "But I might change to homesteadin'."

"Yeah? Why?"

"Sounds like it might be a better deal," Dan said. He walked past Sand and mounted his horse. As he rode away, he heard the woman chattering an explanation of the child's rescue. She sounded as though she was in mortal fear.

It was late afternoon when Dan unsaddled at the livery, and saw to it his horse was watered and fed. Despite the hour, the bank was still open.

The names of the bank's officers were lettered in gilt on the door. Obie Willit was listed as president and Sidney Kain as cashier.

There was only a single window in the iron grill, back of which stood an open roll-top desk and a big steel safe which was bolted to rings in the floor.

A thin-necked man in a stiff collar and dust jacket was playing solitaire at the desk. He looked up indifferently and said, "What can I do for you?"

"I hear there's land for fillin' down in the basin," Dan said. "I was told that a Mr. Kain at the bank could give me information about stakin' a claim."

The man came to his feet, the violence gone. "I'm Sidney Kain," he said. "Who told you to see me?"

"I happened to talk to a fellow named Tom Smith," Dan said. "I was told there might be money to be made in the basin. I'm a man got in on the ground floor."

Sidney Kain studied him for a moment. "Why, certainly," the man said. "I'll see what I can do. Your name, please."

He scribbled the name Dan gave him, and looked at the clock. "Why, it's past closing time," he said. "I'll attend to this in the morning. See me then."

Dan nodded. He walked to the hotel, got his belongings and carried them to the livery. He left them there, telling the hostler he would be back shortly.

He strolled to Mack's Place.

a feminine customer. A male clerk was waiting on a woman who had a market basket on her arm.

Obie Willit was closing the door of a cubbyhole office at the rear, and Dan glimpsed Sidney Kain seating himself in the visitor's chair at Obie's desk.

Dan returned to Mack's Place, ordered another glass of beer and waited. A quarter of an hour passed before Sidney Kain emerged from the mercantile.

He was moving fast, with the air of a man with something very important on his mind.

Color-TV Radiation Bill Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of the House Health subcommittee expressed conviction today that legislation is needed to deal with an "industrywide" problem of radiation from color television sets.

The panel received reports yesterday of two surveys, one by the U.S. Public Health Service and the other by the Pinellas County Health Department in Florida, each disclosing that a number of color sets of various makes and models had been found to leak radiation above recommended levels.

Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., acting chairman of the subcommittee, said the reports disclosed that the radiation problem, previously found in certain General Electric sets, was "industrywide."

Rogers said he expected the panel to approve legislation, similar to the bill it has under consideration, which would empower the Public Health Service to regulate television sets, medical X-ray equipment and other devices that could pose a radiation hazard.

Summing up expert testimony, Rogers said that in the majority of cases the hazard did not appear to be great. But, he said, because little is known about the long-range effects of various doses of radiation, legislation is imperative.

GOP members Reps. Anchor Nelsen of Minnesota and Tim Lee Carter of Kentucky and Democrat Peter N. Kyros of Maine also said they felt the need for a bill had been shown.

Nelsen cited testimony that television set manufacturers were working closely with the government to attack the problem.

He said he felt this cooperation removed the main obstacle to a bill.

James G. Terrill Jr., head of the Public Health Service's National Center for Radiological Health, said measurement of radiation from some 1,200 color sets of various makes and models showed that "a number of models" emitted radiation above the recommended level of five-tenths of a milliroentgen per hour 2 inches from the set.

He said the U.S. surgeon general was advising viewers to sit 6 to 10 feet away from their sets and to turn the sets off or go elsewhere to avoid exposure when they were not watching.

survey was still being analyzed, radiation was great were "very said cases where the excessive much the exception."

The Pinellas County survey of 110 sets showed 18 above recommended levels — made by Admiral, General Electric, Philco, RCA, Satchel-Carlson, Wards Airline, Westinghouse and Zenith.

However, except for Satchel-Carlson, which only had one set tested, the same firms had more sets meeting the recommended level than exceeding it.

Terrill, who said data from the Public Health Service

Senator Boosts 'Dial-a-Vote'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Russell B. Long proposes a dual-a-vote system to speed decision making in the Senate.

"I'm just quietly trying to do a little behind-the-scenes work,"

His objective: A system which would permit senators who are away from the floor to vote by telephone on bills and have their votes counted. He suggested the Senate secretary could handle the telephone balloting.

Long said in an interview the Senate wastes the equivalent of 200 days a year delaying votes to accommodate absent members or waiting for people to show up for roll calls.

COULD GET ON
 "If you just let a guy call up and say 'I want to be recorded this way or that way,' then we could get on with the business," said Long, the assistant Demo-

"We just waste a world of time because a senator wants to protect his absenteeism record," he added.

Q — My wife and I are approaching our 50s, with no pension. We have cash assets, but no stocks or bonds, which are erty has risen steadily in price since World War II and has been a sound inflation hedge. The rise in most instances has not been as sensational as with some of the best growth stocks.

In my experience, though, rental property has been relatively free from the fairly wide price variations that we have seen in securities over the past two decades. I concur wholeheartedly.

Favorable Results for Learning Center

Only in its third year of operation, the Waterford Township School District's Learning Improvement Center for elementary pupils experiencing learning difficulties already has achieved favorable results.

The federal-state financed project was explained to the board of education last night by program director John R. Heckler.

Objectives of the center, according to Heckler, are to identify, diagnose and provide from families with annual incomes of less than $2,000, according to the 1960 Census.

During the regular school year, pupils from 12 buildings identified as target areas—receive special instruction through the center.

The selected pupils receive from 30 to 45 minutes small group and individual instruction a day.

Each reading specialist (teacher) is assigned to two schools and has a workload of about 30 pupils a day.

BENEFITTING SCHOOLS

The 12 benefiting schools are Beaumont, Burt, Covert, Donelson, Drayton Plains, Four Towns, Haviland, Lotus Lake, Manley, Pontiac Lake, Riverside and Williams Lake.

"For our summer program, we bring in children from other schools," Heckler said.

The children can be referred to the center through the school district's special services department.

Heckler said that the children who had small-group instruction during the 1966-67 school year were rated by teachers from the center and by their classroom teachers. Ratings were made of behaviors observed in the school environment.

POSITIVE CHANGES

The results showed that both boys and girls, on the average, showed positive changes in behavior in that they were less attention seeking, less hesitant and subdued, more confident, less negative about their own work, more interested in reading and more able to concentrate on school work.

Heckler listed the following characteristics of the child with a learning disability:

- Possesses average or above average intelligence.
- Progresses very slowly academically.
- Has great difficulty in learning to read.

- Frequently acts out behaviorally in the classroom because of frustration and self-evident lack of success.
- May remain virtually illiterate despite efforts of the most conscientious classroom teacher.
- Difficulty in learning is not simply a matter of a slower rate of learning as with many children.
- Usually has difficulty with visual or auditory memory and discrimination.

Heckler said that the following characteristics of the child with a learning disability:

- Accounts for about 10 per cent of the student population in all schools.

SERVICES

Provided services consist of educational evaluations, psychological evaluations, social work service, psychiatric consultation, various medical consultations, small group education therapy, consultation and planning with classroom teachers and specialized materials.

Questionnaires submitted to parents of the benefiting pupils were extremely favorable. For elementary children with some 195 of the 197 parents severe learning problems.

13 Building Projects Reported Completed

Thirteen construction projects, approved by Waterford Township School District voters in 1966, have been completed, except for minor details, school officials said last night.

The completed projects include additions to Lutes, Beaumont, Houghton, Four Towns, Burt, Sandburg, Pontiac Lake, Schoolcraft and Lotus Lake elementary schools.

Projects at Cray and Pierce Junior High schools and Waterford Township and Waterford Kettering high schools also have been completed.

Construction is progressing on 15 other building projects, including the new Crescent Lake Elementary School and Waterford Mott High School, school officials said.

A report on professional staff improvements indicated that all but five of the district's 810 staff members own college degrees.

PERCENTAGE CLIMBS

M. Barrett Vorce, associate superintendent for instruction and personnel, said that 571 staff members have bachelor's degrees and that 228 hold advanced degrees.

The report showed that the percentage of district teachers with advanced degrees has climbed steadily since the 1962-63 school year.

This year, 780 of the 810 staff members have regular certificates, Vorce said.

Cut Own Taxes—11

Dividend Exemption Eyed

By RAY DE CRANE
NEA Publications

Dividends receive special treatment on your income tax return.

This results from the fact that they represent corporate profits which have already been taxed once by the company paying them.

The first $100 in dividends received from qualified corporations (generally all U.S. corporations) is exempt from tax.

On a joint return this exclusion applies to the first $100 in dividends received by each husband and the wife.

This does not mean that a husband and wife are automatically entitled to a $200 dividend exclusion.

IN ONE NAME

If the stock upon which the dividends are paid are all held in the name of one spouse only $100 in dividends is excludable.

And if one partner does not have enough stock in his or her name to use up the full $100 the other partner may not claim any of the unclaimed exclusion.

People who own mutual funds will frequently note on their annual report that they have been credited with capital gains dividends.

Together with the first $100 in dividends, these are subtracted from gross dividends in determining the taxable dividends. The capital gains dividends are then accounted for on Schedule D where only half the dividends will be found taxable.

FULLY DEDUCTIBLE

Contributions to any recognized charity are fully deductible on your tax returns. However contributions worthy the cause might be — to individuals — no matter how are never deductible.

Generally, contributions will include your church, Red Cross, United Appeal, a college or hospital building fund drive, or a similar agency.

In addition to cash contributions you may also have a deduction for works of art, clothing, furniture or home appliances to a recognized charitable group.

In such cases the fair market value of the item (what you could have sold it for on the open market) determines your allowable deduction. Explain how you arrived at the figure in a statement attached to your return.

PERSONAL SERVICES

There never can be a deduction for the value of your personal services in behalf of charity.

But in some instances, out-of-pocket expenses while performing as a delegate to a church convention, attending meeting as a choir member, serving as a Gray Lady, hospital volunteer or as a den mother to Cub Scouts or a Brownie troop, or, similar organizations, are deductible.

Such expenses might include transportation (you may charge five cents a mile for the use of your own car), the cost of required uniforms which are not adaptable to ordinary wear and, if you were away overnight, the cost of meals and lodging while performing such voluntary work.

(NEXT: Deductions for Interest and Taxes.)

Auditions Held at Walled Lake

BY JOANNE SANDERSON
Troupers for the annual talent show at Walled Lake High School were held Wednesday and Thursday with the auditions being judged by Pat Elwood, Student Council vice-president, and Alexander Zerber director of vocal music.

The talent show will be held Wednesday. Students or groups wishing to show their talents are eligible for the show.

Participants in the show may go on to the Inter-Lakes talent show on March 6. All schools in the league take part.

Feb. 6, WLH will host six visiting Student Council representatives from Livonia, Stevenson. They will attend classes with members of our student council.

At a later date, students from WLH will return the visit.

The annual magazine, "Variety," is in the planning stages. Karen Popek and Eric Holmquist are coeditors.

STAFF

"Variety" incorporates the senior class prophecy, roll-call, mock elections and candid pictures of the seniors.

Reading Program Cited

Avondale Students REAP

By JAN MALANE
An addition to the curriculum at Avondale High School this year is the Reading Enrichment and Progress program. This program is under Title III of the National Defense and Education Act.

Avondale's REAP program is under the direction of Gary Durst of the faculty. Durst attended a training session last summer to head this program.

Under REAP, AHS received 1,500 paperback books, a tape recorder, an overhead projector, a record player and the necessary materials for the equipment.

Purpose of the program is to develop reading habits that will stay with students after they have completed their formal schooling.

The students have a wide variety of books to choose from. The paperback library includes everything from the classics to light modern literature.

The room in which the REAP classes are held is more than just a room. The students from the three REAP classes have created an atmosphere that is reflective of the teen-age thinking.

ALBUM COVERS

On one wall of the room are posters, album covers and original oil paintings on display. The informal tone of the room is enhanced by mosaic art on the windows resembling stained glass. Also there are upholstered chairs and a rug on the floor to make it more home-like.

The relaxed atmosphere is stressed in the classroom discussions as well.

After participating in the program, students in the REAP classes saw a need to expand it so that they could share what they experienced in class. This resulted in an organization called the Key Club.

KEY TO LEARNING

Motto of the Key Club is "Reading is the Key to Learning."

Headed by Marcia Connors and Marty Gerloff, the club has devised a plan that allows any student to use the paperback library.

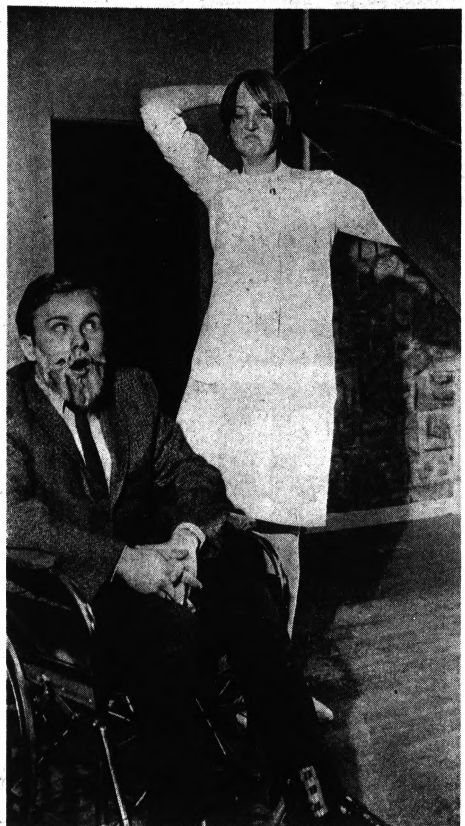

An initial fee to cover the cost of replacing and purchasing books is the only prerequisite.

After being in existence only three weeks the Key Club has a membership of over 200 students.

Durst said, "I'm overwhelmed by the response to the club especially since it's an academic organization."

The club hopes to sponsor a paperback fair to raise money for more books and furnishings for the REAP room and to start a film series.

Homecoming Is Tonight at Emmanuel Christian

By JOHN SINER
White tissue carnations, chicken wire and blue spotlights will set the scene for tonight's "Winter Extravaganza," Emmanuel Christian High School's first basketball homecoming.

Student Government, established the winter theme and all decorations are centered on Nature's wintertime beauty.

Massive paper snowflakes adorn the walls of halls, classrooms and the gym. Posters of tissue igloos have been placed on the bulletin boards.

Student Government officers attempted to construct a snow castle in the north court; however, recent warm temperatures made it impossible for anyone to visualize the structure as a castle.

Undoubtedly, the sculptors changed their monstrosity's title to, "See it as you like it." This caused dozens of new names to come pouring in, ranging from "Trees of the Forest" to "A White Rabbit."

SNOWFLAKE THRONE

With the assistance of junior high pupils, the Student Government built a gigantic tissue snowflake to be used as the background of the Snow Queen's throne.

Queen candidates are seniors Beverly Gamble, Judy Vanaman and Sandra Adams.

Elected during the pregame pep assembly held during the seventh period today, the queen will be announced tonight during the varsity game halftime.

She will be crowned by Emmanuel's 1967 Football Queen, Faith McCormick. The new queen will then be escorted to her royal Ice Palace by basketball captain, Clyde Murphy.

'LOVE IS BLUE'

Homecoming colors are blue and white. The hit instrumental, "Love Is Blue" by Paul Mauriat and his orchestra will be used as background music at the halftime festivities. Ralph Wingate, 1964 ECHS graduate, will act as master of ceremonies.

Ice princesses have been chosen in their respective home rooms. High school representatives include Phyllis Eaton, ninth grade; Denise Tucker, 10th; and Pamela Baslock and Claudine Powell, 11th.

This week was designated as spirit week at ECHS.

Monday, students wore homemade booster pins; Tuesday, crazy hats; Wednesday, colorful clashing attire; Thursday, casual clothes; and Friday, the school colors of maroon and white.

The junior high game begins at 6:30 this evening with varsity action getting into full swing at 8 as the Lancers play the Chargers of Inter-City Christian High School of Dearborn.

TIME OUT—

Marcia Connors, Avondale High School junior and co-chairman of the Key Club, spends her free hours in the REAP room. REAP stands for the school's new Reading Enrichment and Progress program underwritten by the National Defense and Education Act. Faculty director of the program is Gary Durst.

4 Foreign Students Arrive at Pontiac Northern High

By BETTY ATWELL
Four foreign exchange students have arrived at Pontiac Northern High School. Sara Ratnof from Chile, who was able to come to Northern through the International Student Exchange program, will attend PNH until March.

The three students from the Michigan Council of Church Youth for Understanding are Inez Sienra from Uruguay; Beatrice Levene, Argentina; and Antonio Moreira, Brazil.

Sara, who lives with senior Brenda Drake, has discovered that the food of North America does not agree with her, but Pontiac Northern does. She enjoys swimming, dancing and basketball. Inez is staying with senior Linda Hill, and Antonio is living with senior Alan Hilty and her family.

The students are sponsored by the International Club. Recently an open house was held in the cafeteria to acquaint the foreign visitors with the Northern student body.

As the final semester of this school year opens the Avalanche staff, under the direction of Kenneth Ferguson, prepares the 1967-68 edition of the yearbook.

Karen Zoch is the editor-in-chief of this year's issue. Terrie Lamberson is photographer and responsible for the senior section.

Margaret Frank is in charge of the junior pictures and Lorna Anderson, the sophomores.

Nancy Mihay covers sports events; Linda Harris the faculty department; and Kathy Curtis and Charlene Depper, organizations.

Others include Jeanne Rayner in charge of the theme and writing; and Terry Kay, special events.

The theme will tie-in with Northern's 10th anniversary and the yearbook cover will be the school colors of red and white.

The Pontiac Northern-Central-Madison Jr. High School faculty Paddle Ball Tournament is in full swing.

Faculty participants competing in the after-school match for Northern are Dale Fussman and Warren Stephens on Team 1 and Art Thomas and Ron Smith on Team 2.

Team 3 consists of Donald Balzarini and Gary Wright. Walter Kowalczyk and Harlan Green make up Team 4.

Other teams from PNH are Hercules Renda and Donald Friebe, John Maturo and David Schmidt, Tony Pizza and Fred Störmer, John Osler and Stanley Rogell.

Eldon Johnson and Vern Duffy are administrators in the competition.

OLL Nursing Club in Third Year

By DIANNE REED
The Lourdette Club of Our Lady of the Lakes High School is in its third year of existence.

This future nurses' club offers girls the chance to spend their time in a worthwhile way.

Each Lourdette spends three hours a week at Lourdes Nursing Home in Drayton Plains. She learns not only the duties of nursing but also about human life.

The duties of Lourdettes are to deliver and read mail, provide fresh water, transport patients, feed patients unable to feed themselves, and any other hard task that might help someone in need.

The club was started three years ago through the efforts of Sister Raymond and Marie Hickey, head of nurses at Lourdes.

About 30 girls worked on bake sales and other money raising activities to buy uniforms, a blue and white striped jumper, white blouse and striped cap.

Pat Conlon and Nancy Flynn, president and vice president, are both three-year members. Sister Richard is moderator.

Groves Ski Club Is Back

By KIM SEROTA
The second semester began this week at Wylie E. Groves, and with it came many of the things that were missing during the first half of the school year.

Due to the teachers' contract dispute, many clubs and activities were unable to get off the ground. When a settlement was reached, Jan. 19, clubs rapidly began to revive.

One of the most prominent activities is the Groves Ski Club. Although a segment of the club—members taking the Colorado trip—has been meeting since October, the main body of the club was unable to function.

When it became generally accepted that a settlement was not in sight and that the Ski Club could not form, the annual organizational meeting was postponed.

But because the club had worked for the past four years to plan the Colorado trip during Easter vacation, the trip was scheduled for this year.

With meetings resumed, the Colorado group and the main body of the club have united under coadvisers Russ Harvey, Marvin Parent and Doug Shields.

The club was unable to make reservations for the usual four northern trips but two weekend excursions to the Potoskey area have been planned. They are tentatively scheduled for the last weekend in February and the first in March.

The trip to Arapahoe Basin near Dillon Colo. will be made during Easter vacation from April 11 to the 16th. The group will fly out this year because of the shortened holiday.

The Groves chapter of the Future Teachers of America (PTA), which was also adviserless, is back in business. The PTA met Tuesday in preparation for the resumption of its cadet teaching program.

SCHOOL NEWS ROUNDUP

By CYNDI WYZGOSKI

Report cards were given out Tuesday at Dominican Academy, and instead of the traditional "card" teachers are giving individual class slips.

"This way, each teacher gives the girls a grade in the subject plus a grade in conduct and industry."

Tuesday, girls from the English classes went to see "And People All Around," an American drama by George S. Sklar based on the killing of three civil rights workers near Philadelphia, Miss.

It was the first time an OHS Ski Club made a trip to the Upper Peninsula.

Holly

By MARCIA CLARK

"Where have they moved my class? What have they done with my teacher? Where am I supposed to be?" These and many other questions were asked at Holly High School Monday as semester class and schedule changes took effect.

Confusion reigned not only in the halls but on the buses, too with new routes being established to relieve crowded conditions.

Round-up reporters are busy writing. Not articles for the upcoming edition of the paper, but clues for a treasure hunt they are sponsoring.

Valentine Day will find some student in possession of the "treasure," a certificate redeemable for $10 at the Round-Up room.

Also, lucky papers will be sold featuring redeemable $1 certificates.

Pontiac Catholic

By DEBBIE ROCHON

Although the scheduled opening of Pontiac Catholic High School has been postponed until Monday, students remain interested in the progress of the construction of the new building.

Several members of the drafting class — Joe Smothers, Pierre Miller, Tom Richards, Ron Hudson, Pat Hope and Mark Ardelen — made drawings of the floor plans of the new school.

Father Kurmanik, principal, showed these drawings to the student body to acquaint them with the design of the new building, as well as to arouse enthusiasm about the pending move.

A friendship week will be sponsored by the Student Council to help freshmen and sophomores, who have been separated because of the split-campus system, become better acquainted when they are united with upperclassmen in the new building.

West Bloomfield

By BOB BROWNE

The annual student-faculty game at West Bloomfield High School will be played, Feb. 24 in the Abbott Junior High School Gymnasium.

This year, the Pedagogues will attempt to maintain their unbroken string of victories against their student opposition.

Wednesday the members of the English literature classes traveled to Wayne State University to view the Shakespearean tragedy, "Hamlet."

The American Field Service will hold its annual swimming party tomorrow night at Oakland University.

Tonight the Laker basketball team entertains the Milford Redskins, hoping to maintain its grasp on first place which it now shares with Northville.

Brandon

By MICHAEL COOPER

The challenge has been set at Brandon High School, and the showdown will occur Monday at 8 p.m. in the gym.

The Contemporary History Club is sponsoring a basketball game between the elementary faculty, the animals, and the high school faculty, the monsters.

Mrs. Scott French, home economics teacher, announced that Carol Wudarski is the winner of the Betty Crocker Future Homemakers of the Year Award.

Soloists from Brandon at the District solo and ensemble contest tomorrow will include Beryl Austin, Linda Chippelli, Yvonne Lanfer, Sharon Lundquist and Bruce Bandy. A duet will be sung by Caren Kapsos and Pam Greenwald. The High School Girls Octet will also perform.

Troy

By LINDA SWEET

Troy High School's student government will sponsor a snow festival dance during the last week of February. The different classes will cooperate and the profits will be divided among them.

Sophomores are in charge of refreshments, table decorations and locating a band.

Juniors are responsible for a major part of the decorations including the difficult task of disguising the bleachers in the gym where the dance will be held. Seniors also will contribute to the decorations.

A government committee has been set up to insure the completion of the work.

Novi

By THOM HOLMES

The Novi High Student Council has acquired personal identification cards for the senior high school students.

Each card has the individual's photograph, as well as a place for the name and grade.

The ID card will identify persons entering any school activity.

The "Mr. Pretty Legs" contest, sponsored by the junior class, is over.

Five winners were chosen. The prettiest legs in town are owned by Mark Gilbert, Tim Bowman, Dennis Diem, Gary Boyer and Levon Tafraian.

For first place Levon was awarded a pair of nylon hose. Levon, Mark and Gary are presently members of the varsity basketball team. Dennis and Tim are members of the junior varsity team.

The N Club student-faculty game will be held March 15.

By DIANE CHAMBERLIN

Four new student teachers from Michigan State University are assisting at Lake Orion High School.

They are George and Ann James, Jacquelyn Cross and Dennis Roberts.

The 1968 basketball king and queen are Diane Chamberlin, a varsity cheerleader, and Bill Foss, a member of the varsity basketball team.

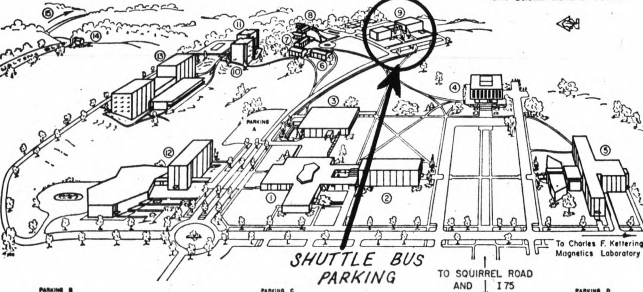

The high school yearbook, the Dragon is trying out a new approach this year. Instead of grouping seniors in categories, 10 seniors are chosen on the basis of their contributions to class and school.

By OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

One of our readers is quite bitter about today's hand. It seems that in a team match he sat West and opened the six of hearts against the diamonds slam.

His partner won with the ace, and since our correspondent made his king of trumps later on, they scored what should have been a nice profitable 100 points.

JACOBY

He felt that North and South had overbid, and we have to agree with him. South had a tough choice of bids at this second turn.

Two diamonds would be an underbid, three diamonds or anything else an overbid, so South had overbid when he went to three diamonds. After that overbid, South should have contented himself with merely going to five diamonds.

His four spade club suggested a slam, and while North might have bid only five diamonds, North assumed that his partner was demanding a slam if North could take the second heart lead.

In any event, the slam wasn't too bad a contract. We have bid and made many worse ones.

Why was our friend bitter? It seems that the South player on his team chose the underbid of two diamonds. North might have passed but saw no reason not to raise to three diamonds.

Then this South corrected his previous underbid in the worst possible way. He went to three no-trump.

West made his normal opening of the fourth best heart, and the defense opened up with five heart tricks. They still had to make either the king of diamonds or queen of clubs, so plus 100 for beating six diamonds turned out to be a

Q—The bidding has been:
West North East South
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠
Pass 4 ♠ Pass 4 ♠
Pass 5 ♠ Pass ?
You, South, hold:
♦ A K 7 6 5 2 ♠ K Q 6 5 4 ♣ 7 5 4

What do you do now?
A—Bid six clubs. We wouldn't really criticize a pass, but your three clubs and one heart are just encouraging enough to warrant going to the slam.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding five clubs, your partner goes to four no-trump over your four spades. You bid five diamonds to show one ace, and he bids five no-trump. What do you do now?

ONE COLOR Vietcong Battle Fiercely Despite Big Losses

MADE OVER RACES

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese officials said today their forces were crushing the biggest Communist offensive of the war with skyrocketing losses to the enemy. But Red troops were reported in control of much of Hue, the ancient imperial capital, and South Vietnamese dive-bombers still roared over the streets of Saigon attacking Viet Cong holdouts.

VIETCONG EXECUTED — A Viet Cong officer, captured during yesterday's fighting in Saigon, rolls in the street after being shot point-blank by Brig. Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan (left), South Vietnamese national police chief. The shooting took place near the An Quang pagoda. Loan is replacing his pistol.

Shadow of Doubt Is Cast by 2 Tales of Groundhog

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Did the groundhog see his shadow today? Will there be six more weeks of winter, or is spring just around the corner? Pennsylvania's two famous furry weather animals, forecasting in opposite ends of the state, made opposite predictions.

Punxsutawney Phil, out in western Pennsylvania, sneaked out of his favorite burrow on Gobbler's Knob as the damp night turned into a rainy dawning.

"He saw his shadow during one brief instant of blinding sunlight at exactly 7:29 this morning and was frightened back inside," observed Sam Light, the happy, go-go president of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club. He noted that Phil—could it be the same woodchuck?—had seen his shadow for the 80th time in 81 years.

"It's certain, winter's here for six more weeks," Light told some 400 gum soggy watchers.

It wasn't exactly the same performance at rival Octorara Creek, near Quarryville in the east. There the veteran weather-animal—he doesn't even have a name—poked his head out of a hole, shook off the dampness and started sniffing around above ground. He didn't scurry back.

"Maybe he was wearing sunglasses," said a slightly happy member of the Slumbering Groundhog Lodge of Quarryville.

Associated Press correspondent John Lengel reported from Hue, 50 miles south of the demilitarized zone, that four battalions of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese controlled most of the streets in the coastal city.

Lengel said U.S. Marines and Infantrymen and South Vietnamese troops were battling more to maintain their positions than to oust the enemy.

Ellsworth Bunker went on television to assert that the Communists were being defeated with unparalleled losses.

The U.S. Command said 10,553 of the enemy had been killed in the four-day countrywide assaults on the cities and towns of South Vietnam.

Thieu said, "The back of the Vietcong attack has been broken." He said there is still Communist resistance "in a few provincial capitals . . . but we can consider they have been totally defeated."

But as Thieu and Bunker broadcast, South Vietnamese bombers were strafing a block of houses near the racetrack in the southwestern end of Saigon to clear out Communist troops.

There was fighting in at least half a dozen other spots in Saigon. Marauding bands of guerrillas roved the capital's streets, sniping at helicopters approaching the top of the six-story U.S. Embassy building.

Lengel reported the Communists in Hue were attacking with machine guns, mortars and rockets. He said the enemy fire was so intense that two U.S. helicopters were shot down as they tried to run the gauntlet to collect wounded.

Inflation in '67 Took Biggest Bite in 7 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation took the biggest percentage bite in seven years from pay increases and other income gains won by Americans during 1967, the federal government reports.

The after-tax income average per person in the nation last year rose by $151 to $2,735, the government said today, but adjusted after inflation, the gain was only $74. When figured at 1958 price level, the per-capita income would be $2,381.

The report came in the newest compilation of data prepared for the Senate-House Economic Committee by the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

President Johnson's key argument in his fight for congressional approval of his 10 per cent income tax surcharge proposal is that it would help stem inflation. There is strong opposition on Capitol Hill and increasing indications the administration would settle for less than a 10 per cent hike.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler recently referred to the tax bill "as proposed or in amended form" and it has been learned the phrase was used deliberately to show the administration isn't taking an all-or-nothing stand.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson reported today that the military phases of the Communist offensives in Vietnam have failed but he avoided saying that the war is being won.

MEETING WITH GROUNDHOG — Slumbering Groundhog Lodge member Robert Book and a hippie friend hold an early morning rendezvous with their furry weathered cohort at Quarrytown, Pa., where it was reported the groundhog failed for the first time in the lodge's 60-year history to see his shadow.

AMPHIBIANS? — No, just motorists making their way to work along the northbound lane of Woodward Avenue at Hadsell Pond in Bloomfield Township. The scene was duplicated in many areas of the county as roads failed to drain after about two inches of rain recorded here this week.

Call-Up Is Unlikely for Ground Troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military officials say they don't foresee any imminent call-up of ground force reservists as the United States readies today a second bid to recover the USS Pueblo through direct talks with her North Korean captors.

These were the other major developments in the ongoing Asia crisis:

Arkansas Convict Is Given Transfer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A prisoner who led authorities to the unmarked graves of three men at Cummins Prison Farm has been transferred to another prison because of reported threats on his life.

Prison Supt. Thomas O. Murton said yesterday the "indications of threats" against Reuben Johnson, 59, gave credence to Johnson's story that murdered inmates were buried on the prison grounds.

Johnson pointed out the pasture at the prison where the skeletons of three men were exhumed Monday, touching off speculation that more bodies were buried in a clandestine graveyard for murdered convicts. Johnson says he helped bury 10 or 12 slain inmates.

Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller was skeptical about reports from some state officials that the bones came from a paupers graveyard.

Murton related details of the alleged threat against Johnson at a joint news conference with the governor.

Murton, who became superintendent Jan. 1, said he had transferred Johnson to the smaller Tucker Prison Farm 30 miles southeast of Little Rock Wednesday.

Murton said information had drifted to him from the white inmate population at Cummins that "several of them were going to wipe him (Johnson) out."

Thursday U.S. willingness to engage in face-to-face talks with North Korea aimed at gaining return of the Pueblo and her 83-man crew.

The action followed a broadcast hint by North Korea that a settlement might be possible through new talks at Panmunjom, the Korean War truce site.

President Johnson said U.S. bombing of North Vietnam will continue until the enemy gives "some better sign" that a halt would not result in stepped-up terrorism and aggression against South Vietnam.

Military sources at the Pentagon indicated the heat is off, at least for now, on any call-up of Army Reserve or National Guard ground units.

The Communist attacks in South Vietnam—along with last week's call-up of some 14,000 air reservists in response to the Pueblo crisis—had generated Capitol Hill speculation of a major muster of reserve ground forces.

Roads Flooded by Rain, Thaw

Unusually heavy rainfall on top of melting snow in Southeastern Michigan this week washed out some roads and flooded many areas.

According to the rain recorder at the Oakland County drain commissioner's office about two inches of rain fell in the Pontiac area this week.

If precipitation had been snow instead of rain, Oakland County residents would be trudging through 15 to 20 inches of new snow.

Temperatures in Pontiac have dropped from a record high yesterday of 52, which topped the previous high of 51 set in 1903. It was 36 at 8 a.m. today. The 2 p.m. mercury reading was 34.

The outlook for tonight is windy and colder weather with rain changing to snow or snow flurries. Temperatures will dip to 25 or 30.

It will be cold with partial clearing tomorrow. Sunday will be partly sunny and warmer.

Precipitation probabilities in per cent are: 90 today, 30 tonight, 10 tomorrow.

For Local Candidates

Deadline Is Nearing

Political candidates for all seven City Commission seats can be expected to make themselves known in less than two weeks.

The deadline for filing nominating petitions for the March 4 primary election is Feb. 13.

No candidate has filed petitions yet.

A number of persons have taken out nominating forms. City Clerk Olga Berkeley said.

Voters in each district will go to the polls in March to narrow the number of candidates to two for each district.

2-YEAR TERMS
The general election is to be held

April 15. Seven city commissioners will be chosen for two-year terms. The selection of the seven-member commission is the only issue facing voters.

If no more than two persons file as candidates in a district, then, under the City Charter, primary elections will not be held in that district.

To qualify as a candidate, a person must be at least 30 years old, a citizen of the U.S., a resident of Pontiac for the past five years, and a resident of the district he is seeking to be nominated from for the past two years.

Nominating petitions require from 25 to 50 signatures of qualified residents.

House Weighs Motorist Bill

Nine Violation Points Could Take License

LANSING (AP)—The House is considering a bill which would permit the Secretary of State's office to revoke or suspend the driving license of anyone compiling nine points—instead of the present 12—in two years under Michigan's violation point system.

The measure, advocated by Secretary James Hare, was debated Thursday but no action was taken. The bill, however, remains in position for further debate.

As amended in House committee, it would also allow revocation if the driver were involved in an auto accident resulting in death, or in three mishaps during two years which involved property damage or injury.

Anyone who had "driven a motor vehicle in a reckless or negligent manner" or endangered persons or property with his driving could be called in for examination and his license could be revoked or suspended by the department.

PASSAGE URGED
Hare has urged passage of such legislation to help deal with "accident prone" drivers who "show a flagrant disregard for law or for the safety of themselves or others."

Rep. George Edwards, D-Detroit, attacked the idea of lowering the point total which could lead to suspension. "I hate to say it," Edwards said, "but this is already a great harassment of the citizens who are called in after accumulating 12 points."

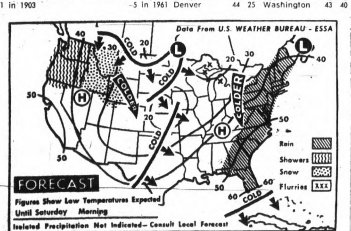

Rep. Hal Ziegler, R-Jackson, opposed widening the powers of an administrative agency to take away licenses of persons not convicted of crime of driving offenses.

"Fortunately we still have courts of law and judges or juries to determine who was at fault in an accident," Ziegler said.

The paper said the ship was the same type as the Pueblo, which was seized by North Korea Jan. 23. Jane's Fighting Ships lists the Banner as a light cargo ship converted in 1965 for special projects.

Yomiuri said the photographer flying over the Sea of Japan spotted the Banner about 90 miles northeast of Mi Shima Island. This is about 100 miles east of South Korea.

2 Gunmen Elude Dragnet, Fleeing Through Rockies

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Two gunmen—identified by police as men wanted for murder in Texas—avoided a police dragnet today after leaving hostages, frightened witnesses and abandoned cars scattered along a 300-mile trail through the Rocky Mountains.

A widespread alert on suspicion of assault, robbery and kidnapping was out for Charles Edward Hardin, 25, and Earl Wayne Sanders, 21, sought on murder charges in the slaying of a tavern owner in Fort Worth, Tex., last Dec. 21.

Police also were looking for Theo Ray Thames, 20, wanted on the same charge and reported to be in Colorado with Hardin and Sanders.

The latest episode was the second spectacular getaway attempt in Colorado in four days, and both began with bungled stickups that left the bandit with more hostages than loot.

FDA Seeks Ban on Diet Drugs

Thyroid-Digitalis Use in Pills Is Target

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration disclosed today it is moving to end the manufacture and distribution of thyroid-digitalis preparations used as diet pills.

Dr. James L. Goddard, FDA commissioner, told Senate investigators the agency feels it now has sufficient evidence to prove the drugs constitute danger to health.

He said seizure actions recently were taken against three manufacturers and additional seizures from other firms are anticipated momentarily.

Goddard testified at the wind-up of a two-week hearing by the Senate antitrust subcommittee on the multimillion-dollar diet pill industry.

NO SAFE CONTROL

At the outset of his testimony, Goddard said no drug can safely control the problem of obesity.

"At the very best," he said, "their potential is secondary to the elimination of the cause of overeating."

"There is no easy painless way of an overweight person to eat what he or she wants and to melt off the excess fat by taking one or a dozen drugs a day," he emphasized.

The subcommittee has received testimony that thyroid-digitalis combination drugs are among those widely used by some doctors specializing in the treatment of overweight persons.

Goddard said the drugs have been marketed for over 30 years but it was not until recently the FDA felt it had sufficient evidence to take them off the market.

Lake Michigan Cleanup by 2068 Called Optimistic

CHICAGO (UPI)—A clean Lake Michigan within 100 years is a very optimistic thought, a federal water pollution expert said yesterday at the second day of a five-day conference considering the problem.

The state of Illinois presents its view of the Lake Michigan pollution situation today.

Donald J. Baumgartner of the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration disagreed with a scientist who earlier estimated it would take 100 years to reduce the pollution concentration in the lake by 90 per cent.

Baumgartner said the task would take much longer, since the scientists no doubt were expecting 100 per cent effectiveness from control measures.

Orion Man, 31, Shot in Chest

An Orion Township man is in serious condition today at Pontiac General Hospital after being shot in the chest yesterday.

Sheriff's deputies said that LeRoy W. Proper, 31, of 2465 Baldwin was wounded when a rifle fired by his cousin, Donald L. Proper, went off.

Proper, 28, of 1340 Philatha, Troy, was being questioned today about "inconsistent" stories of the 10:30 a.m. shooting.

Investigators were first told that the 22-caliber rifle fired as LeRoy placed it on the table at which he was sitting.

Merrillwood to Get Jewelers

BIRMINGHAM — Wright Kay, jewelers with three stores in the Detroit, metropolitan area, have announced that a fourth will be located in the Merrillwood building in this city.

Merrillwood, which will contain both luxury apartments and specialty shops, is presently under construction at the corner of Merrill and Woodward.

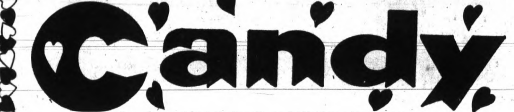

Wright Kay, established in Detroit in 1861 under the name of Roehm and Wright, also operates jewelry stores in the Northland shopping center and Grosse Pointe.

The firm is currently owned by American Music Stores, Inc., which purchased it in 1955.

The Merrillwood store, to be completed by early summer, will include a circular stairway leading to the building's second-floor mall.

Merrillwood is being constructed under the new concept of "horizontal zoning," with commercial businesses on the lower floors and residents on the upper. It is designed to increase the convenience of apartment dwelling.

Abitibi Solves Pollution Problem

Significant success in water pollution prevention is reported by the Abitibi Paper Company from control measures instituted at its Ontario mills at Port Arthur and Fort William.

As a result of $2.3 million spent since 1960 on reduction of waste discharge into Lake Superior, the manager of the Port Arthur operation, S. L. DOUGLAS, reports that surveys of adjacent waters have proved the effectiveness of the company's pollution-control measures.

Justin C. Jordan, manager of the Port William facility, points to similar success there, where

$1 million was invested to meet the pollution challenge.

At both mills, the degree of water contamination has been sharply reduced and aquatic-life environment appreciably improved as the result of Abitibi's enlightened waste-disposal program.

It could well serve as an example — indeed a warning — to industries that are shirking their responsibilities for the preservation of the Great Lakes. Their failure to act voluntarily will only hasten the day of enforced action by State and Federal mandate.

Farmers Planted Into Corner of Overabundance

Farmers are individualists. People can eat just so much food, no matter how much money they have.

These two facts explain why attempts to boost farm prices by collectively withholding commodities from the market invariably fail. Nevertheless, the militant National Farmers Organization recently began a nationwide grain-holding campaign. Later, the NFO will ask farmers to withhold also their meat and dairy products.

Holdback operations have been tried before. The price of the affected commodity rises as the supply shrinks. At some point, certain farmers cannot resist the temptation to market their produce at the higher prices. More resolute farmers eventually follow suit. And then the market boycott is broken.

As in the past, farmers last year were victimized by their own efficiency as agricultural producers. The 1967 harvest in this Country broke all records, with soybean and grain-sorghum production showing gains of more than 40 per cent above the average 1961-65 yield. These gains were achieved despite a steadily dwindling number of people actively engaged in farming.

Falling farm prices in a presidential election year always add up to trouble for the party in power. The Johnson administration has reduced Federally subsidized grain acreage for 1968, and higher feed-grain subsidies should add about $1 billion to over-all farm income. But inflation is expected to offset this increase.

Mere Man Trapped in Supermarket Traffic

A man who doesn't frequent supermarkets because his wife has this feeling that he, well, he—well, frankly she thinks he's a big fat nuisance when he shops with her and a big fat flop when he shops alone—insisted on tagging along the other day.

Although there is nothing to indicate that his presence changed his wife's convictions, it did much to change his whole outlook on driving.

Up to then our man had regarded coping with congested traffic as quite a deal. Now he thinks it's kid stuff.

Supermarket shoppers, he reports, do everything automobile drivers do, and go on from there.

He claims they cut in and out on you. They tailgate you from the rear and slow-poke you crazy from in front. They turn without signaling, stop on a dime-to-be-saved, and even back up without warning.

They speed and they swerve. They block your path as they pause to ponder and meditate and compute. They squeeze oranges and lemons and to-matoes and pinch cucumbers. They laboriously check one can against a bigger one to determine the cost per ounce.

They outmaneuver you in getting to the checkout counter, even if they are carrying a week's supply and you have one item. And they bury their checkbook in the bottom of their purse. And by the time they have found it, and a pen, your frozen food is thawing and your oven-fresh bread is turning stale.

All this, you understand, is just one man's version. The ladies we know would no more act like this in a supermarket than they would on the highway. No, sir, not one bit more.

Prayer Meeting Draws Bigwigs

WASHINGTON — It didn't make big headlines. It wasn't on television. It was just a meeting yesterday morning of 1,000 persons—mostly from the government—all praying together for God's help and guidance.

Among them were the President and members of the President's Cabinet, the vice president, the governors of seven states, a justice of the Supreme Court, the speaker of the House, numerous senators and representatives, and high-ranking military officers.

The function, known as the "Presidential Prayer Breakfast," is held under the auspices of the Senate and House, which meet weekly. Persons of all faiths have attended these private prayer meetings as well as the annual event.

Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas presided. There were brief remarks by Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, leader of the Senate breakfast group, and by Rep. Ben Rayburn of South Dakota, leader of the House breakfast group.

Vice President Humphrey read some passages from the Bible. Gen. Harold K. Johnson, chief of staff of the Army, delivered the principal address of the occasion. He said:

"There is a solution to the problems of this world — turn to God. There is a solution to the conflicts between nations — turn to God. There is a solution to the problems of our cities and of our streets — turn to God.

"Not in a superficial way, but in a human and compassionate way — as man and friend to friend. There is a solution to the problem of our young — together with them, turn to God."

President Johnson spoke briefly. He declared in part: "America needs to grow on the strength of our many faiths. The nights are very long, the winds are chill, our spirits grow restive. For such seasons man was given the saving strength of faith which we summon when we pray.

"It is not my right to tell other citizens of this free land how or when or what they should worship. But I can tell you that on these long nights, your President prays."

There are some observers who may wonder whether participation by high government officials to a prayer meeting impinges in any way on the doctrine of separation of church and state.

The Supreme Court of the United States, however, has not banned prayers outside the classroom or other school property. It has merely declared that prayer directed by any governmental agency is unconstitutional.

So it is significant that voluntary prayers and meetings of private breakfast groups have increased in recent years in and around the federal government itself as well as in state governments.

While clergymen sometimes attend as guests, they do not direct or conduct the prayer breakfasts. It is left to laymen to choose from their own membership a leader each week. Guests are permitted to attend, but the prayer service is private and, as a rule, is not given any publicity.

Bob Considine Says:

Program Eyed to Assist Negro Back From Viet

NEW YORK — Col. Tex McCrary, USAF (ret.), a man of many accomplishments in war, editing

TV and public relations, has been quietly rounding up the support of New York Congressmen for a plan that could be a turning point in the future of race relations.

In short, the program would "do something" about the young Negro returning from war in Vietnam.

Wherever that youth is mustered out of uniform in the United States he will be standing in the center of an emotional crossroads.

In action overseas against a foe that couldn't tell the difference between him and the white man fighting next to him, the only thing that mattered to the Negro and to his buddies was how he fought, how he endured, how he fended for those around him.

His color, his speech, his point of origin, his education or lack of it all disappeared in the face of the gutty facts of life and death.

SUPERIOR SOLDIER

The Negro serviceman in Vietnam has shown himself to be a superior soldier.

He is there in a slightly greater proportion, per capita, than his white buddies — and much is made of this by the Rap Browns and the Stokely Carmichaels of the simmering revolution. But in six trips to Vietnam I've never heard a gripe from a Negro, or about a Negro.

What the Browns and Carmichaels invariably fail to mention is that the enlistment rate among Negroes in Vietnam is discernibly higher than that of their fellow servicemen — and the rate among their fellow servicemen, notably the Marines, can run as high as 17 per cent.

There is no segregation among the forces in Vietnam, as in World War II and, to a degree, in the Korean war. It is what is inside a man that counts, over there.

BEST BAROMETER

The best barometer of that is the rate of promotions, the impartiality of awards, and, above all, the respect and affection of fellow troops.

The point has been made that more Negroes are killed and wounded, proportionately, than whites. True. But the reason for that is more Negroes, proportionately, volunteer for service with units that go in for the hairier acts of war — paratroopers, rangers and the like. Their courage gives them new status.

The Negro in Vietnam lives for a year and more on an exact level with his white counterpart for, in many cases, the first time in his young life.

Slowdown

The Portland Oregonian

Despite the apparent abundance during basketball season of young men pushing the seven-foot level, a researcher in human growth says he thinks a plateau has been reached in the upward thrust of children.

For about 100 years, an average increase in height of one inch was observed in successive generations.

No gain has been noted in the past two generations, according to Dr. Stanley M. Garn of the Fels Research Institute for the Study of Human Development.

Good nutrition and access to medical care apparently have made the middle class in this country about as tall as it can get under present conditions.

The underprivileged, however, may have more room to grow, and Dr. Garn says he doesn't know how much bigger human beings generally could become in a "disease-free, injury-free, pollution-free, ideal environment."

Voice of the People:

'Intent of Constitution to Protect Law-Abiding'

It is time for the Constitution of the United States to be interpreted as it was justly written, to protect and give rights to the law-abiding citizen. In the face of a continually rising crime rate, the Supreme Court has made unjust decisions to lend a hand to lawlessness.

It would seem reasonable, in an effort to deter crime, to make the regulations more restrictive toward the use, purchase and registration requirements for weapons. However, the Supreme Court has seen fit to lift restrictions and registration requirements on weapons such as sawed-off shotguns and machine guns. In what way does this decision deter the rising crime rate?

Now is the time for our lawmakers to act to correct these misinterpretations and make it possible for decent citizens to walk down a street without constant fear. If present lawmakers cannot remedy this situation, it is time to replace them.

Comments on Future of Lake in Clarkson

In my opinion it's a shame that because of the greed of a few men an area as lovely as Deer Lake in Clarkson will soon be ruined. This lake is just not large enough to accommodate the large development planned for its shores. Within a few years Deer Lake will be just another mud hole. Money will be made by some but another natural beauty spot will be lost for everyone. Sad, isn't it?

'Compare History With Our Current Events'

Isn't the push-button automation way of living working or is it the ones who are operating those expensive contraptions? On April 30, 1898, Commodore George Dewey took six U.S. war vessels into Manila Bay in the Spanish-held Philippine Islands with orders to capture or destroy the Spanish fleet. Within a few hours Dewey destroyed the enemy ships, silenced the Spanish land batteries and captured the chief port. Not one ship or man was lost.

In those days the United States didn't take orders. We gave them. We were not fighting the war of all foreign countries or feeding and clothing the people of those countries. Read your history books of those wonderful days when our administrations had authority.

Something is wrong. This is our country and all of us taxpayers should be able to do something. I'm worried about our boys and our ships. If laws are permitted to continue, all we will have left at home will be the criminals and the mentally unsound.

Question and Answer

After checking with six sources, I'm still unable to find a list of what papers, documents, etc., are irreplaceable or essential to keeping in a safety deposit box. Could you find out for me and other safety deposit box crammers?

The answer would vary so much with individual we couldn't give a list that would have much meaning. We suggest you check with your attorney, who could examine your valuable papers and give you a better indication.

End Traffic Woes With Famed Bridge

By DICK SAUNDERS

I would like to take this opportunity to announce that I have come up with the answer to our long standing problem of traffic hang-ups at the West Huron Grand Trunk Railroad crossing.

London Bridge is for sale.

SAUNDERS

The going price is $300,000. That's not bad considering the Queen Mary recently sold to Long Beach, Calif., for a cool $4.5-million. However, you'd have to figure some hefty costs for dismantling and moving the structure from London to Pontiac.

There is one stipulation placed on the deal by its owners, the London Corporation. They won't sell it piece by piece.

It has to be purchased in one intact chunk. It would also help, they say, if the buyer were someone who has "a conscience for British history," according to the British Travel Association.

The bridge has to be sold or taken down in the next four years before it falls down into the Thames. It was built in 1831 and is the fourth bridge built on that site.

City fathers, with all their new found income tax revenue, are bound to be looking around for places to spend it.

What better cause than much-needed grade separations to once and for all solve the eternal battle between rail and vehicular traffic?

Maybe, we could split it up, using half at the Huron crossing and half at the North Johnson crossing. That would really solve our problems.

If, by chance, a piece were left over, we could use it across Orchard Lake Avenue to help bridge the gap in racial understanding.

Maybe, the British would concede to throwing in Big Ben which the city, in turn, could sell to Pontiac State action on this. It is an election year, you know.

community National Bank's carillon.

But just the bridge alone would really be enough.

Just think. People would flock from miles around to walk or drive across two street-rail intersections that are presently avoided like the plague.

It's a great little opportunity to turn two hated hotspots into loved and cherished monuments of our fair city.

And think what it would do for downtown redevelopment. Why, what developer in his right mind could shun urban renewal land so close to one of the world's most famous structures.

True, we'd probably be cut off from all federal aid for spending money abroad, but what's a little dirty politics to a dynamic city like Pontiac.

Someone might even write a nursery rhyme about us...

One word of caution, though. If I were you, I wouldn't expect any quick action on this. It is an election year, you know.
