"The Metro," a weekly feature supplement published through the combined efforts of fourteen Detroit area colleges, will now be distributed free each Thursday by the Observer. The paper prints articles dealing with issues pertinent to college students and features a "Phenomena" section which lists events and activities around Detroit.

The University Senate has tentatively approved having non-Senate members attend their meetings. At the February 20 meeting, the Senate approved students and faculty attending, except when Executive Meetings are declared. Final vote on the proposal will be taken at the Senate's March 19 meeting.

"The Bash," Oakland's first all-night party, will take place tonight from midnight until 7 a.m. tomorrow morning. The party features a jazz band, two folk singing groups, professional entertainers, many activities, and the film "Inn of the Sixth Happiness."

The capture of the radar ship Pueblo will be the subject of an open discussion held by the Historical Society next week. The discussion will take place on Monday, March 11, at 3:00 p.m. in Room 190, Science Building and will feature Professor Quincy Wright of the University of Michigan. Professor Wright is a world renowned authority on international law, author of A Study of War, and was a consultant at the Nuremberg Trials. Leonard Bushkoff and Patrick Strauss of the Oakland University History Department will also be present.

The Oakland Singers will tour Michigan next week giving 11 concerts in seven days. The 32 vocalists and three instrumentalists, headed by John Dvaras, will give concerts featuring Mozart's "Missa Brevis in F major" and works by Copeland, Poulenc, and Brahms. The troupe's final performance will be at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, March 16, in St. John Fisher Chapel.

Today's Observer is printed using the new IBM Selectric Composer purchased by our printer, Cathedral Publishers, of Royal Oak. There are only two of these computerized units in Michigan. This machine will allow the Observer to offer many new variations in its type styles.

The draft law, its implications, and the alternatives to military service will be discussed today at 3:00 p.m. in the Gold Room. Dennis James, Detroit attorney and draft counselor, and Reverend Morrison, a Detroit minister active in the draft resistance movement, will be featured speakers.

The University Art Gallery presents an exhibition of the best creative work by students enrolled in studio art courses beginning March 11 and running until April 7. The works on display are available for purchase.

"Overture to Opera," a joint production of the Continuing Education Department and the Detroit Grand Opera Association, will present The Medium, a two-act work of Gian Carlo Menotti, on Friday night, March 15, at Pontiac Northern High School. The production is directed by John Broome of the Meadow Brook Theatre, who also plays one of the roles.

The Department of Public Safety has published and distributed the Oakland University Ordinances. With these ordinances, the Department can now issue tickets to all students, faculty, staff, and visitors for either moving or parking violations. Copies of the Ordinances can be obtained from the Department of Public Safety, the Dean of Students office, or at the Activities Center in the basement of Oakland Center.

State Senate Slices Budget By $200,000

Last week the Senate Appropriations Committee of the Michigan Legislature further cut Oakland's budget for the next fiscal year. The Committee recommended that Governor Romney's original appropriation for O.U. be cut $200 thousand and the projected enrollment be reduced by 228 students.

The new appropriation cut was part of a $7 million reduction of the Governor's education budget. The Committee's new budget has been approved by the Senate and will now go to the House of Representatives. In its present form, the budget provides Oakland with an increase of $307 thousand over last year's appropriation. The Governor originally recommended an increase of $500 thousand which he later upped to $800 thousand.

The reduction in projected enrollment, while it will increase the per student appropriations, will not really benefit the University. Fewer students will mean less in tuition fees and Oakland has already contracted twenty new professors at a cost of $10 thousand apiece. Beside this, there is the unavoidable increase in staff salaries and inflationary costs. All told, the minimum unavoidable cost of maintaining the University is approximately $1 million, as opposed to the $307 thousand recommended by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

From the Senate, the budget next goes to the House of Representatives where Oakland's appropriation is expected to be increased. If it is increased, a joint Senate-House committee will determine the final budget. Chancellor D.B. Varner feels that one factor working in Oakland's favor is Governor Romney's return to Michigan. "I believe the Governor is serious in trying to get his original budget recommendation restored," Varner commented. "Practically speaking, I think that's the best we can ask the House to do."

Even if the Governor's original appropriation is restored, Oakland will still face grave financial problems. The new Health Center, now under construction, may be closed for a year due to prohibitive maintenance and equipment costs. Department budgets will have to be reduced, and expenditures for science equipment and the Library will also be cut.

Most painful of all, it is possible there will be another tuition increase. The Board of Trustees has the power to increase Oakland's tuition without raising Michigan State's, which was not hit as hard by the Governor's budget. But the Board is not inclined toward tuition hikes and they have not officially considered one.

Marsha Guerrein, the new Miss Oakland University, crowned at the pageant on February 24.

Larson On Policy

Dr. Arthur Larson, Director of the Law Research Center at Duke University and consultant to the State Department and the President on international affairs, will give the final lecture in the University Speakers Series. Larson will speak at 11:00 a.m. Wednesday, March 11, in the Wilson Lecture Hall.

His address will deal with approaches to the resolution of difficulties in Vietnam, Korea, Germany, and other troubled areas of the world and he will comment on the foundations of lasting world peace.

Larson has served as Director of the U.S. Information Agency, special consultant to President Eisenhower, and Under-secretary of Labor. He is presently a consultant to the State Department on United Nations matters and consultant to President Johnson on international affairs. He attended Oxford University as a Rhodes Scholar and is widely known as an author.

150,000 Graduate Students To Leave For Vietnam

On February 17, graduate deferments were abolished for all college students except for those in medicine, dentistry and allied fields, osteopathy, optometry and veterinary medicine. These fields of study at the graduate level are the only ones now officially recognized by the Selective Service as "essential for the maintenance of the national health, safety and interest." Graduate students who will have completed two years of graduate work this June are also deferred until graduation.

The new ruling on grad deferments was made by Selective Service Director, Lewis Hershey, at the urging of the Johnson Administration. In a telegram sent by Hershey to the local draft boards, he stated that, at the urging of the National Security Council, he was suspending the lists of "critical occupations" and

"essential activities," leaving "each local board with the discretion to grant, in individual cases, occupational deferments based on a showing of essential community need."

What this means is that if a draft-age male can get his employer to request a deferment for him, and if his local board can match its manpower quota each month without having to draft him, he may get deferred by his draft board.

Such deferments given at the discretion of the local boards account for about one half of occupational deferments now granted. Graduate deferments, now suspended, had accounted for the other half of the 339,474 occupational deferments given by Selective Service.

Because of the new ruling, it is expected that over 150,000 students will be drafted in 1968. Only 14,000 were drafted last year.

Editorials

Disgust Discussed

The problems facing Oakland Student Publications have been present for years. At the beginning of this semester, hope was high that the new publications Committee of the University Senate would be concerned enough to take action. This has not been the case. Since its formation as an arm of the University Senate, the Committee has been debating its policies and what should come under its jurisdiction. While the Committee may be satisfying the philosophical needs of its members, it has done little to solve the urgent problems confronting OU student publications.

At the last meeting, February 26, a discussion about what the Committee should be concerned with continued. Letters have even been sent to other publications boards and committees in colleges and universities all over the country to learn how they are structured and what their policies are. But the semester is half over and if the Committee continues to move at the slow pace it has so far, it seems possible that this research and debating could go on indefinitely.

Our question is: What happens to student publications while these philosophical ideals are debated? If necessities such as worrying about the problems facing OU student publications, are too mundane and tedious to the liking of the Committee, then it should make rulings as to who or what will be concerned with this. For example: At last week's meeting, Frank Richter, editor of the Student Review of Faculty, Oakland Undiapered, came to the Publications Committee requesting funds for the publication's printing costs. Although not an official student publication, it is a publication that deserves consideration. The minutes of the meeting read, "...the Committee felt that primarily because of the legal complications and the fact that they could not pass judgement at this time because it would require much more extensive deliberation, they are unprepared to support the allocation of funds to the Oakland Undiapered staff to publish their review." Richter's printing deadline is this month. It was suggested by the Committee that he try the Allocations Board for help. If Oakland Undiapered is not published, the Publications Committee can be considered guilty of censorship because of inaction.

At this same meeting, members of the Observer staff discussed with the Committee problems it is facing such as the lack of staff, and the inability to keep editors on the staff longer than one or two semesters. We stated the problems, gave some possible solutions, and asked the Committee to aid in solving them. The minutes of that meeting state, "The Publications Committee felt that some very important issues were presented and that these issues should be discussed in greater length at a later date." Again, not today, but some tomorrow.

The Publications Board of the University Senate could help structure the student publications so that they could attempt far more than is possible now. An editor can only work within the financial and staff framework available to him. Until the time that the Committee decides to act and not discuss at future dates, the problems will only increase. If these problems are at present unsolvable, the Committee may find future problems insurmountable.

Guest Editorial

by Mike Honey

General Hershey's suspension of graduate deferments was termed a "disaster" by Nathan Pusey, President of Harvard. The president of the Council of Graduate Schools stated that he was "appalled" by it. President Johnson said that it was the only fair and wise procedure that could be followed.

President Johnson was right. The new ruling may ruin graduate schools. It will cause a severe shortage of teaching assistants working on graduate degrees. The new ruling will not be in the "national health, safety or interest". But given the war, it is the only "fair" ruling possible. If it were to be even more fair, undergraduate deferments would be abolished as well.

The effect of the new ruling will be that now not only the economically deprived or the intellectually unmotivated will be dying in Vietnam; now the intellectual elite, the prospective leaders of the nation will be killing and killed 10,000 miles from home. This year for the first time, massive numbers of college students will graduate from four to seven to nine years of college only to be sucked into the military apparatus.

What is going to start happening to college graduates will be brutal. It is exactly what has been happening to the draftees who never went to college or grad school. What will happen to them is not nearly so brutal as what is happening to the Vietnamese.

War is now something which affects almost the total number of draft-age men in the United States. There are very few outs left in the system for the middle class man who would like to pretend that the war has no relation to him. The student no longer has a sanctuary from the realities of a strident American foreign policy.

Panic has not yet set in. A majority of draftable students are apparently unconcerned; this can only be considered the result of having been lulled by the college experience into believing that they really don't have to face responsibility for what is going on in Vietnam. This is the attitude which the government has been able to count on in the last four years of deeper involvement in the war. The draft confrontation makes it painfully obvious that there is no way to absolve oneself from the war: one must support it, tacitly or actively, or one must deny its legitimacy by dissenting, leaving the country, or playing freak-out games with the draft boards.

The draft is only one manifestation of a system which is manhandling its own people as well as people abroad. This is becoming more obvious as confrontation with the draft increases for the majority of America's young men. It will be particularly obvious that this year's commencement will be a "Vietnam Graduation": what the seniors will be "commencing" is a fight for their ethical beliefs, their morality and their lives.

It is becoming more and more impossible for draft-age men to shirk responsibility for what is being done in the name of the country. Soon they will be either fighting the war or dissenting, openly or quietly, from it. It is with them that a large share of responsibility for its continuance or its end must rest.

If you don't agree that business destroys individuality, maybe it's because you're an individual.

There's certain campus talk that claims individuality is dead in the business world. That big business is a big brother destroying initiative.

But freedom of thought and action, when backed with reason and conviction's courage, will keep and nurture individuality whatever the scene: in the arts, the sciences, and in business.

Scoffers to the contrary, the red corpuscles of individuality pay off. No mistake.

Encouraging individuality rather than suppressing it is policy in a business like Western Electric—where we make and provide things Bell telephone companies need. Because communications are changing fast, these needs are great and diverse.

Being involved with a system that helps keep people in touch, lets doctors send cardiograms across country for quick analysis, helps transmit news instantly, is demanding. Demanding of individuals.

If your ambition is strong and your abilities commensurate, you'll never be truly happy with the status quo. You'll seek ways to change it and—wonderful feeling!—some of them will work.

Could be at Western Electric.

Lear: Back To Milk And Honey

by Courtney Clara

After clearing his conscience with an intense statement of contemporary bigotry, in "And People All Around," John Fernald has returned to the land of milk and honey, where his contributors will again pay his bills and fill his house.

Fernald, a firm grasp of his audience in one hand, and a red pencil in the other, has taken Shakespeare's tragic masterpiece "King Lear" and adapted it to the modern theatre goer.

He has removed five complete scenes and severely shortened several of the play's longer speeches. In doing so, he has removed almost completely the interaction of Edgar and Edmund, sons of Gloucester, in the sub-plot which underlies Lear's main theme. Fernald has taken a new approach to the Fool. Conventionally presented as a young man, he is now in his late 50's or 60's, making a more definite contrast with Lear feasible.

Frank Masi's set is also a change from the more traditional Shakespearian mode. He suggests a primitive setting, fret with rock and ominous shadows.

Lear has all the potential of a great production, had Fernald but one female actress to complement his strong male contingent. Lorna Lewis plays Cordelia with an unequaled lack of feeling. Jill Tanner, as Goneril, and Barbara Caruso, as Regan, seem as yet unaccustomed to the stage.

Special mention should be made of George Guidall's performance as the Earl of Gloucester and Richard Curnock's as Lear's Fool. Curnock handles the subtle and difficult role in perfect counterpoint to Lear.

As for Lear himself, Eric Berry's familiarity with Shakespearian heroes allows him to portray the King with the arrogance and impact of a man who has never heard of wisdom.

The production runs through March 24, with tickets available at the Meadow Brook box office, in Wilson Hall.

The "Fearless" IM Predictions

As regular play ends in the OU IM basketball league five teams show enough strength to win the league championship.

First is the Faculty-Staff team. The big blow to the team was the loss of John Scovil for the rest of the year due to a back injury. Still, big Marshall Bishop (6'7") could be enough to bring the bacon home for his team.

The "Fox"-VW no. 4 fields a well balanced team led by Mike Bishop and Ralph Pierce. This team also has many good players, possibly the best bench in the league.

Vandenberg no. 2 has the smallest number of people to draw from for a team, but still fields as a contender. Led by Howard Bell (6'3") and Don Main (6'5"), this team has enough muscle to take it all.

Unbeaten Southwest Commuters suffered a great loss when captain Jim Nyberg transferred to Ferris. Without him, though, Tim Marsac and the rest of the team swamped VB no. 2 by 30 points. This team has beaten all the contenders.

This reporter's choice to win the championship is the Southeast Commuters led by Greg Ranney (6'5"). Even though they lost 73-71 to Southwest, Ranney, Bob Papak (6'3"), and Kim Hillstrom should be able to handle whatever any other team will throw at them. Mark Angell leads an agile backcourt along with Mike Vosburg and Gary Yapo.

Note: Last year's champions VB no. 7 stand an outside chance if Dave Thomas, Bruce Neumer, and Dave Holmberg can put something together, but they will need a great deal to challenge the fine teams this year. — Steve Gaynor

Swim Team Travels To Motor City Invitational

Mike Mellen

Preparing for the Motor City Invitational Championships, March 8-9, Oakland's team can look back over their finest season in their short four year history. The team swam to a 11-4 record.

The season closed with a repeat victory over Central Michigan University, 64-39. The University's status as a swim power can be clearly seen in the history of this yearly meet. Three years ago we were defeated by Central Michigan's Freshmen, 44-54. However, we have easily dominated Central Michigan the last two years of our annual meet.

It must also be mentioned that Oakland has a strong chance of placing high in the Invationals and could conceivably win. More important, these factors point the way for what will be an even better season next year.

The Motor City Invitational Championships will begin Friday, March 8 at 12:00 noon.
