

Soviets Drop Instrument Package on Venus

MOSCOW (AP) — The unmanned Soviet spacecraft Venus 4 flew into the atmosphere of cloud-shrouded Venus today and dropped an instrument package that transmitted data showing a temperature range from 104 to 336 degrees Fahrenheit, an announcement said. It reported the package made a soft landing by parachute.

The planet's atmospheric pressure varied from the equivalent of that of the earth to about 15 times as great, the announcement said.

"The measurements have shown that the atmosphere consists almost exclusively of carbon dioxide," it was added. "Hydrogen and vapors account for about 1 1/2 per cent, and no noticeable traces of nitrogen were detected."

Signals from the spacecraft's instruments were monitored in Britain for an hour and a half after they apparently landed on Venus.

Radio transmissions from Venus 4 monitored at Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory stopped at 12:38 a.m. EDT, believed the moment when the craft hit the planet's surface. Fifteen seconds later, the observatory picked up new signals, fainter and different in tone.

"This is tremendous, amazing," Sir Bernard Lovell, Jodrell Bank's director said. "The signals we are now receiving are coming from the surface of the planet Venus. It seems that the Russians know for the first time what the surface of Venus is like."

The signals ceased at 2:14 a.m. EDT, after more than one and a half hours, and Lovell said the instruments might have been switched off.

Soviet scientists made no immediate announcement. In fact, Lovell said he got a telephone call from a man at the Communist party newspaper Pravda in Moscow who had heard nothing from Soviet sources and wanted to find out what happened to Venus 4.

But it seemed that the Soviet Union had successfully sent a 2,438-pound package on a curving, 213-million-mile, four-month course in an effort to unlock some of the secrets of earth's cloud-covered sister planet 43 million miles away.

U.S. sources said 10 previous Venus shots and seven Mars shots, not all of them reported by the Russians, had failed.

The 546-pound U.S. Mariner 5 space craft is due to fly past Venus at a distance of 2,500 miles tomorrow morning, carrying instruments to measure the planet's diameter and aspects of its atmosphere. The United States has launched two probes toward Mars and three toward Venus, with one of each termed successful.

He said he believed the instruments were transmitting data of "inconceivable value" and added: "Quite apart from the technical achievements, which are amazing, one cannot overlook the tremendous scientific importance of this experiment."

Mstislav V. Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, told a news conference in Moscow yesterday that Venus 4's main task was to study the Venutian atmosphere and that it would take no pictures. He said all the craft's equipment was working well as it neared the planet.

IKE HOSPITALIZED—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and his wife, Mamie, presented this study four days ago at a cornerstone-laying ceremony in Washington. It was Eisenhower's 77th birthday. Yesterday he was admitted to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington suffering from a noncancerous enlargement of the prostate gland. His condition is described as good.

Benign Prostate Growth

Ike III With Tumor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army doctors reported today that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has a "benign non-cancerous enlargement of the prostate gland," but that surgery is not indicated at this time.

Doctors at Walter Reed Army Hospital said that Eisenhower had symptoms indicating a partial obstruction within his urinary tract system.

But they said his spirits are good and that he is "up and around and out of bed."

The statements were given as answers to questions submitted last night by an Associated Press reporter, not in a formal medical bulletin.

The doctors also said that it has not yet been determined how long Eisenhower will remain in the hospital. He was admitted to the hospital Tuesday with his third illness in five months.

Eisenhower, who turned 77 last Saturday, developed symptoms Monday at his home in Gettysburg, Pa.

Since September 1965 he has suffered two heart attacks, a stroke, an intestinal ailment which required surgery and has had his gallbladder removed.

He was flown by helicopter to the hospital Tuesday. Mrs. Eisenhower arrived later by auto.

Taubman Exits, Leaving Door Open for Future

Developer A. Alfred Taubman yesterday acknowledged the defeat of his plan for a redeveloped downtown Pontiac.

In a letter to Mayor William H. Taylor Jr., received yesterday, Taubman said he received word from Sears Roebuck & Co. that the company did not wish to locate a new downtown store in the urban renewal area with "deep regret."

Taubman, however, did not entirely rule himself out of future redevelopment plans.

"We appreciate the confidence the city and staff has shown in us. Any time we can be of further assistance do not hesitate to call on us," the Oak Park developer wrote.

Although the City Commission last night agreed to pass a resolution next week, formally ending the year-long working agreement with Taubman, Taylor indicated he has not entirely given up on the idea of Taubman as a developer of the downtown area.

In an exchange last night with Donald R. Frayer, president of the Citizens Committee for Pontiac's Positive Progress, Taylor said Taubman is one of the few persons able to bring together a real estate development of the magnitude required in the downtown area.

Frayer had different thoughts, however, and called Taubman a "developer who has failed." He asked the commission to put up the downtown urban renewal land for sale to interested qualified developers.

Although Frayer said he was pledging the support of the CCPPP, Taylor seemed to take a dim view of Frayer's proposals.

"You've had a whole year to fire remarks at this commission and Taubman," Taylor said.

"Now that it's over (the agreement with Taubman), where are your developers?" Taylor asked.

Frayer said developers can be found who would be able to build in the downtown area. He requested that the city give the CCPPP authority, in writing, to act as an appointed city agent in finding a developer.

He said such an authorization "put in writing" would enable the CCPPP "to go out and do the proper job."

Blackout Hits London

LONDON (UPI) — Sections of central London were blacked out today for one hour by a switch gear fault at an electricity board substation. Hardest hit was London's newspaper district of Fleet Street.

The weatherman promises fair and warmer tomorrow after bringing soaking rains for the past week.

Showers started falling on Oct. 8 then continued on and off every day except Oct. 11 and Oct. 14 when skies were overcast.

The outlook for tonight is clear and colder with the low dipping into the 30s.

Rainfall measured 2.85 inches in downtown Pontiac so far this month.

Partly cloudy and warmer is the outlook for Friday.

TURNING WARMER

Today's morning winds at 10 to 20 miles per hour are expected to continue northwesterly.

The low recording prior to 8 a.m. was 42. By 2 p.m. the mercury had warmed up to 48.

Precipitation probabilities in per cent are: today 30, tomorrow 20 and Friday 10.

No Rights Link in Unrest—Hanger

By ED BLUNDEN

Pontiac Police Chief William K. Hanger said last night recent civil disturbances had nothing to do with civil rights.

Addressing the Oakland County Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers, Hanger termed the disturbances a confrontation of "the lawful and the lawless." He spoke at Devon Gables on Telegraph and Long Lake Road, Bloomfield Township.

He said he was giving his personal evaluation and lashed out at "black power" advocates and the clergy and their roles in recent disturbances.

"Sniping and looting," he said, had racial and political overtones, but had "nothing to do with civil rights."

The persons caught looting, both Negro and white, and selling the stolen goods on the black market were those with past criminal records, he said.

'FOR PERSONAL GAIN'

"They were only interested in personal gain," he said.

In discussing the clergy, Hanger said in the last 10 years they have greatly altered their role from "administering the churches and giving guidance and wisdom."

He cited two recent reports from Milwaukee where on one hand a Catholic priest was urging parents to keep their children out of school to bring pressure for an open-housing act and on the other hand another Catholic priest was fighting integration of his parish by Negro families.

WILLIAM K. HANGER

"These men degrade religion," Hanger added.

The police chief indicated he expected more civil disturbances in the future and predicted they would continue until the "law-abiding element stops it with concerted action."

He said the "lawful element" must demand action by officials and then give active support.

'NO COMPROMISE'

"There can be no compromise with the integrity of the law," he said.

A contributing factor to the larger disturbances, he claimed, has been participation in "civil disobedience" by many public officials. Hanger terms this practice of "breaking little laws for a good cause" a dangerous course that such men as FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover have warned against.

Hanger said it was ironic and tragic that the principal victims of the recent disturbances in metropolitan areas has been minority groups such as Negroes and Jews, who have been most active in civil rights.

A second speaker, Carl Heffernan, inspector in the Citizens Complaint Bureau of Detroit, said "a new spirit has picked up" in the stricken Detroit areas.

ON PRECINCT LEVEL

One of his jobs is to conduct police-community meetings where citizens and young persons meet with police on precinct problems. This program was hailed as solving many ghetto conflicts until the July riots.

"After that, everyone was pretty downhearted, but now it has picked up again. They don't want to just throw in the sponge," Heffernan said.

Dissident Dems Organizing

NEW YORK (AP) — Groups of Democrats who oppose President Johnson's policies in Vietnam are organizing in a number of states to drop him in 1968 and to nominate a Democrat pledged to end the war.

Senate Critic of LBJ Said Best Bet for '68

LANSING (AP) — The most likely candidate to replace President Johnson at the head of the Democratic ticket in 1968 would be one of his Senate critics, Michigan State Party Chairman Zoltan Ferency believes.

"But at present we have no possibilities on the horizon," added Ferency, who warned yesterday that Johnson's unpopularity could spell trouble for the entire ticket in next year's elections.

Ford and UAW Resume Talks

Reuther Is Present at Today's Session

DETROIT (AP) — Bargaining teams from Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers met anew today following two days of sessions which stretched far into the night and during at least one of which company chairman Henry Ford II stood in his headquarters offices.

Both UAW President Walter P. Reuther and Ford Vice President of Labor Relations Malcolm L. Denise, the company's chief negotiator, were on hand at today's session.

The resumption of the meetings followed a 48-hour session Tuesday. They met for 16 hours Monday.

A bargaining source who said earlier Tuesday he was "pessimistic" that Tuesday's session would bring new contract agreement and end a 42-day strike, told a reporter today: "I feel the same way about today. I doubt we can put it together today but we accidentally might."

He added, he was "not optimistic" but decided to expand on his remarks.

Following Tuesday's session, the 57th spent at the table by the full bargaining team since negotiations opened July 11, neither side would comment officially on developments, both observing a news blackout put into effect a week earlier.

Here's A Real 'MOVING' Story.....

Friends, as you know, everyone in their lifetime has a moving event. Sometimes it's a wedding. Sometimes it's the birth of your first child. And sometimes it's when the mother-in-law goes back home. Well, it's finally happened to SIMMS. After 34 years, Simms is 'MOVING' into our own new warehouse. And this is what's making this such a 'Moving' story. After getting estimates on packing, moving and unpacking the goods from our old warehouse we said: "What-the-hay, why don't we save this expense and just bring the goods over to our downtown store and let our good customers help us by taking this merchandise off our hands. Why we'll make the prices so ridiculous, the people will move the goods for us." So friends, here they are: wanted items, unwanted items, some useful items, some useless items, plenty of some, few of others . . . but Remember, YOU'LL be moved to buy because of the ridiculous prices!

CHECKING PETITIONS—Four Independence Township residents, active in obtaining 475 signatures on petitions objecting to proposed annexation by the village of Clarkston, view their efforts. Wallace C. Mayer (standing), 6864 Bluegrass, points out the results to (from left) Mrs. Harold Herner, 6958 W. Church; Mrs. Watson Siecinski, 7117 Glenburnie; and John Christie, 6725 Laureleton.

Second Round of Petitions

Clarkston Annexation Is Hit

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP—Some 250 families living outside the current Clarkston village limits — in an area which has been proposed for inclusion via annexation — have for the second time stated their objections.

A second round of petitions — these bearing 475 signatures — have been collected from the affected area and from residents living within the village.

"We . . . are strongly opposed to the annexation proposal as outlined by the Village Council in a public meeting Monday, Sept. 18," read the new petitions.

Criticized by the village for gathering the first petitions before both sides of the issue had been heard, the residents have based the new signatures on the result of facts made known at both township and village public meetings on Sept. 14 and 18.

"We believe about 96 per cent of the people whose property would be involved in annexation are presented," said Wallace C. Mayer, 6864 Bluegrass, one of the signature collectors.

OPPOSE GROWTH

He revealed that 438 of the signatures are those of township residents with the remainder being those of village residents who have no desire for their village to grow.

The petitions will either be sent by registered mail to the Village Council or presented to members at their next regular meeting, he added.

The village has estimated that approximately 250 homes would be annexed under the proposed plan which would about triple the current size of Clarkston.

New boundaries would extend from 1-75 on the north to the Dixie Highway on the south, and from the township line on the west to Perry Lake Road on the east, excluding the Clarkston Community Schools property and the commercial area at the foot of M15 along the Dixie Highway.

Because the village is governed by the general law statutes, no election is necessary to annex. The procedure requires only the approval of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors.

Spokesmen for the affected property holders say preparations are already being made to petition the county board should it be necessary in an attempt to defeat the annexation attempt.

Elmwood PTA to Host Open House Tomorrow

Elmwood School PTA will host a school open house at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the school, 2751 Auburn, Avon Township. Parents will have an opportunity to visit their child's room and to see a display of school work. Refreshments will follow a short business meeting.

Pumpkin Sale Oct. 28

CLARKSTON — A door-to-door pumpkin sale has been planned by Clarkston Area Jaycees for Oct. 28.

Gerald A. Hennig, project chairman, expects to sell two truckloads of pumpkins. Proceeds to be used for various Jaycee community activities.

State OKs Bond Sale for Clarkston Schools

CLARKSTON — A nine-month delay in Clarkston Community Schools construction program was brought to a halt yesterday with approval by the Michigan Municipal Finance Commission for the sale of $2.5 million in bonds.

The bonds were okayed by voters of the district in June 1966. Their purpose was to build a second junior high school on the present North Sashabaw Elementary School site, Sashabaw and Maybee, Independence Township.

The long-sought approval brought one final condition. Dr. L. F. Greene, schools superintendent, said approval is contingent upon receipt of a letter from the Clarkston School Board that a transfer of funds will be made.

"They want us to take $2,000 from the $2,500 set aside for the advertising and sale of the bonds and add it to the $178,000 allotted for site procurement," Greene said.

He reported the letter was on the way. 'PAPER WAR'

Irrked at what he termed a paper war fought since last January to win approval for the bond sale, Greene considered the final condition one more indication of the state commission's "nit-picking" attitude.

"We have no idea how many times it will be necessary to advertise the bonds or what it will cost," he said.

Greene had earlier charged that the delay in approval had already cost the district $300,000 in increased construction costs.

He had said, "I have to assume . . . the state wants to control everything, or the men making the decisions (members

MONEY ON HAND

The district was ready to begin construction of the second junior high school last February and had money on hand with which to start construction.

A state ruling that no work could be started until all the money was on hand and then delays on approval to sell the bonds has held up the project until now.

"We hope to start construction next spring," said an elated Greene this morning.

Planned at a total cost of $2,524,800,

FALL OF 1969

When completed — and that date has now been moved back a year to the fall of 1969 — it would allow the district to once again house its ninth graders in the junior high school. Ninth graders currently attend classes at the senior high school for space reasons.

"It has taken us nearly as long to get approval for the sale of the bonds as it would have to build the school," said Greene.

Novi Councilman Quits Post Over Graduated Sewer Fee

NOVI — The Village Council has unanimously accepted the resignation of Councilman Joseph Crupi, a former village president.

According to Village Manager Harold Ackley, Crupi resigned because he opposed a recently approved ordinance amending for a graduated sewer availability connection fee.

Crupi was not at Monday's meeting.

Before the rest of the council approved the amendment at the Oct. 2 meeting, Crupi said he would resign and walked out.

Resignations aren't effective, however, until they are submitted to the village clerk and acted upon by the council.

SAME REASONS

Crupi had been on the council since 1960 and had served as president until last year. He resigned the presidency at that time "for the same reason I resigned as councilman," Crupi said.

"I thought I could do a better job from the side than the chair," he explained. The former president works in the public relations department of Ford Motor Co., Dearborn.

Village President J. Philip Anderson said the resignation was regrettable because Crupi had been with the village government the several years and had been a good councilman, reported Ackley.

At the Oct. 2 council meeting, Crupi reportedly criticized Village Attorney Howard I. Bond's wording of the graduated sewer fee ordinance.

'COUNCIL FAILURE'

He also objected to "the failure of the council to uniformly apply the original ordinance" which set a flat $300 fee per property owner.

There is much more to these objections which "would take several hours to explain," Crupi said when asked for details on his objections.

Village Manager Ackley claimed that he "never found out what Crupi wants despite a good many discussions about the ordinance."

The council also heard that the citizens committee for cityhood of the village has filed an appeal of Circuit Court Judge William J. Beer's recent decision with the State Court of Appeals.

Beer had ruled Sept. 19 that the village could not hold an election on its incorporation as a home rule city.

Beer said he was upholding the first ruling in the case by Circuit Court Judge Arthur E. Moore in early 1966 that the petitions asking the election were faulty.

The citizens committee is appealing only another part of Beer's decision which reverses a decision by Circuit Court Judge James S. Thorburn.

Thorburn ruled early this year that an already incorporated entity, the village is not bound by a state statute requiring 500 persons per square mile to incorporate as a home rule city.

Ackley expects the case to come up within two or four months.

The council also accepted the resignation of Don Walters as department of public works superintendent. Walters, 55, resigned for financial security reasons, said Ackley. The village has no pension plan.

Walters had been employed by the village since 1959 and was superintendent for the past two years.

The village as yet has no replacement for Walters.

New 80-Acre Cemetery Will Open Tomorrow in Springfield Twp.

SPRINGFIELD TOWNSHIP—Ceremonies for the opening of the 80-acre Hillview Memorial Gardens cemetery here will be tomorrow at 10 a.m.

Approximately five acres will be developed initially and termed the Four Apostles Garden. The property is located at Anderson and Edgar with a local office at 6573 S. Dixie Highway in Clarkston.

Hillview owner Peter G. Buterakos, who also owns six other cemeteries in Michigan, said the land was purchased last February and eventually will contain a chapel and a lake with from 8-12 gardens. He added that four hand-carved marble statues were being constructed in Italy. A fountain is being constructed at the entrance.

West Bloomfield to Air COG Link

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP—The Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (COG) will be considered at tonight's Township Board meeting at 8 at the Township Hall.

Discussion from the audience will be limited to two minutes per person and to 20 minutes for the entire audience participation, said a township official.

The Township Board passed a resolution of intent of joining COG last May. The board is considering joining formally. Membership fee for the township would be $400 per year.

Also at the meeting tonight, the board will consider plans for a special assessment sewer district for Knollwood Heights subdivision and a water service district for Bel Air subdivision.

$1.5-Million Expansion at Nursing Home Is Completed

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The Bloomfield Hills Nursing Home, Square Lake Road and Woodward, recently completed a $1.5-million expansion of its extended care facilities, increasing its capacity fourfold with 300 new beds.

Located on the same property just to the east is the aging but still majestic white frame Grecian-columned Bloomfield Hospital, formerly the mansion of the late William Wallace Collier, farm equipment magnate, which has been abandoned since Sept. 1.

The owners of Bloomfield Complex, Inc., of both the nursing home and the mansion, said the unused structure will be torn down in the near future.

The modern nursing home under Administrator Mrs. Grace Christianson now has 381 beds, and contained within the complex are a physical therapy room, exam room, day room, dental suite and beauty shop. A large paved parking lot has been finished for visitors.

According to Mrs. Christianson, ground was broken for the new additions in October 1966. The property was purchased from Clyde Marshbanks a year earlier.

PART OF ESTATE

In contrast to the modern gray brick home, the old "hospital" formerly on the Collier Estate stands proudly overlooking Woodward and waits to step aside for progress.

Built in the late 1890's the structure was one of the most splendid residences of its era.

It was part of the Collier estate which bounded Woodward, Square Lake, and Franklin and included apple and oak trees on its rolling hills.

The huge estate also had a large paddock and stables.

LAND DEVELOPED

Most of the land has now been taken over by residential development. The site of the Bloomfield Township Fire Department on Franklin Road was once the western boundary.

The mansion itself was designed by Mrs. Collier, formerly of the Wright-Kay family, noted Detroit jewelers.

It included four stories, 17 rooms, and even a "little theater" for home entertaining on the fourth floor.

A long-time friend of Wright Collier, the only surviving son who lives in Detroit, Everett E. Harris of 163 Berkshire said that the Detroit Opera House during its existence used to perform in the theater frequently.

TO BE RAZED—The Bloomfield Hospital, now abandoned and formerly a state-ly mansion, is slated to be torn down.

Soviet Craft on Venus—Briton

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A top British space scientist says a Soviet space probe apparently reached Venus today, ending a four-month, 213-million-mile race with the United States to seek clues to life on earth's mysterious "sister planet."

Signals from the Soviet Union's Venus 4 being read by the Jodrell Bank Observatory in England stopped at 4:38 a.m. Greenwich Mean Time — 12:38 a.m. EDT — and were replaced in 20 minutes by signals of a different type.

The director of the British tracking station, Sir Bernard Lovell, said a possible explanation was that capsules had been ejected from the main Russian rocket casing onto the surface of Venus and were now transmitting.

DESIGNED TO LAND

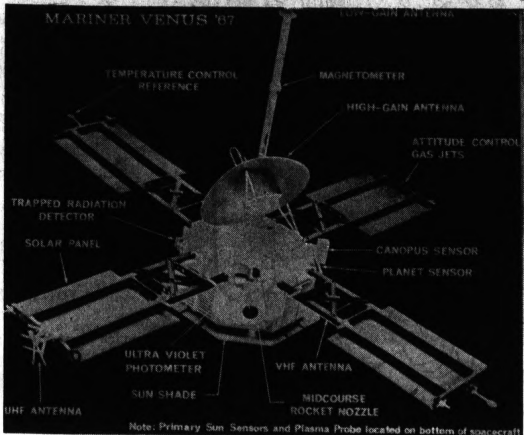

The 2,438-pound Soviet Venus 4 apparently had been designed to make a landing whereas Mariner 5, the smaller U.S. vehicle, was built to fly by Venus and take close-up measurements of the planet and its atmosphere. The U.S. vehicle is expected to arrive some 24 hours after Venus 4.

A Texas news agency article last month said the Russian vehicle had been sterilized "to prevent any terrestrial microorganisms from being carried to the Venus surface."

The American entry, the 540-pound U.S. Mariner 5, equipped with an umbrella and venetian blinds to shield it against intense solar heat, will fly past Venus at a distance of 2,500 miles Thursday morning. The Soviet craft was launched June 12, Mariner 5 on June 14. Each responded properly to radio commands in steering maneuvers far out in space.

NO FULL EXPLANATION

Venus 4's mission has not been fully explained, but the Tass article said: "It is only automatic stations coming into contact with the planet or speeding near it that can directly study physical conditions on the planet and processes taking place in its atmosphere and on its surface."

MARINER 5 — This is the U.S. entry in the race to Venus. The Mariner 5, launched

June 14, has an umbrella and venetian blinds to shield it from solar heat.

An earlier Soviet craft, Venus 3, was designed to send a sphere filled with experiments to the surface, but the vehicle itself crashed on the planet in March 1966.

Mariner 5 was not sterilized because it was aimed to fly past Venus, not land on its surface.

INSTRUMENT APPROACH

The U.S. craft is a modification of Mariner 4, which snapped 22 pictures of almost airless Mars from 6,200 miles in July 1965. Mariner 5 carries no camera, however — its target is obscured by clouds. Instead, it has instruments to measure the diameter of Venus and the height, density, temperature and makeup of its atmosphere.

Virtually all that is known about Venus, the third brightest body in earth's sky, has come from earth-based telescopes and radar, and from Mariner 2, the only successful Venus probe to date.

Mariner 2 flew within 21,700 miles in 1962 and made readings indicating Venus' surface is not water clouds, that there is no liquid water on the planet's surface, and that the heat—even on the highest mountains—is so great it would disintegrate the most elementary life form.

TO SETTLE DISPUTE

Mariner 5 carries instruments which will go a long way toward settling scientific dispute. Among them are an ultraviolet photometer to measure any hydrogen and oxygen that may exist in Venus' atmosphere.

It works this way: atoms of hydrogen and oxygen are excited by solar energy and give off radiation in the ultraviolet range. The photometer measures the amount of this radiation at various altitudes, giving an indication of the density of the atmosphere at each level.

Since dense air is warmer than thin air, the readings also will show the temperature at different altitudes.

Dr. Lewis Kaplan, planetary meteorologist at Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which is controlling the Mariner 5 flight, does not share such views. "Almost certainly, there is no possibility that life exists on Venus," he said in an interview. "I am convinced that the

Congress Cool to LBJ Proposal

If additional evidence is needed that President Johnson's honeymoon with the voters and the Congress is over, a look at the legislative box score of this 90th Congress will provide it.

Whereas the 89th Congress passed a flood of White House-sponsored laws as though they were going out of style, moving LBJ to term it "the best Congress ever assembled... my Congress," the current one has passed only 67 of his 172 legislative requests. Worse, the lawmakers seem inclined to call it a session and go home.

age between the executive and legislative branches of the national Government unmistakable signs that the lawmakers are hearing and heeding the disaffected voices of constituents against our deepening Vietnam morass, the faulty conception and utter waste of many Great Society programs and the wave of lawlessness engulfing the Country.

Moreover, although the Democrats still control both branches of Congress, their loss of 47 House seats in last year's elections seriously affected the party's balance of power. Consequently a formidable bloc of new and independent Republicans couldn't care less for the man in the White House while thinking in positive terms along party lines in anticipation of next year's presidential election.

In politics, events frequently conspire to put the "outs" in the driver's seat, and such a paradox seems now developing.

A historical parallel is readily found in Franklin Roosevelt's famed "rubber stamp Congress" that supinely passed the heap of New Deal legislation during his first term in office and the slow-motion tempo that characterized consideration of FDR's subsequent legislative programs.

David Lawrence Says:

Indochina Surrender Felt Now

WASHINGTON — Memories are short — and what happened 13 years ago at the Geneva conference which tried to bring peace to Indochina is pertinent to today. For almost everything that has since occurred in Vietnam was envisaged by many observers in 1954.

LAWRENCE

This correspondent spent several weeks in Geneva and witnessed the chagrin of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and his associates as the representatives of Great Britain and France, listening to the appeasers back home, accepted a patched-up agreement that wasn't worth the paper on which it was written. The day of reckoning now has come, and another surrender is actually being advocated.

In order to understand what occurred in 1954, it may be informative to take an excerpt from a dispatch which this correspondent wrote at that time:

"GENEVA, July, 1954 — There are some folks in the world who naively believe the Indochina War is just a natural movement by the people there to gain independence and that the rebels are merely persons who have embraced communism as a political philosophy. The evidence shows clearly that Red China has been guilty of aggression in neighboring countries.

"Here are the words of Secretary Dulles bearing on this point, taken from a confidential session with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of just a few weeks ago, as officially released now for publication:

"The situation in Indochina is fraught with danger, not only to the immediate area, but to the security of the United States and its allies in the Pacific area. That area is one which is vital to the peace and safety of the United States.

'GRAVE THREAT'

"The plan is not only to take over Indochina but to dominate all of Southeast Asia. The struggle thus carries a grave threat not only to Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, but also to such friendly neighboring countries as Thailand, Malaya, Burma, Indonesia, the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand."

This writer, on returning to Washington from Geneva, wrote a dispatch on July 21, 1954, from which the following is an excerpt:

"Plainly the trend in Europe on the part of America's allies is toward further surrender to Communist imperialism. This is ominous because some day the allies will wake up to the imperative need of taking a stand. The Communists will think it is a bluff, as they have regarded every action of recent months.

"In the end, a third world war can come because there will be no way to avoid a showdown of arms. The Indochina truce, like the so-called peace at Munich, may not prove a harbinger of peace but a precursor of war. It is an hour of great tragedy for the free world."

Bob Considine Asks:

S. Viet Peace Gesture? Who's Fighting War?

NEW YORK — People... places...

President-elect Thieu of South Vietnam says that immediately after his inauguration late this month he'll make a peace overture to Hanoi. He'll offer to stop bombing North Vietnam for a week, while Ho Chi Minh holds the bid to talk turkey.

CONSIDINE

The problem here is that South Vietnam is not bombing North Vietnam. The United States is bombing North Vietnam and has specifically ruled out the bombing of North Vietnam by South Vietnam.

There has been no official reason given for this. Last month in Vietnam Premier Ky told the writer that South Vietnam would use its new wing of supersonic F5 fighter-bombers against North Vietnamese targets "if necessary."

The probable truth of the matter is that we're afraid that if we turned Ky's kids loose in the air war against the North they'd go, or try to do, the very things which some of America's hawks are demanding that we "knock out the port of Haiphong, all the enemy jet fields, SAM sites, hydroelectric plants, dams, and give Hanoi itself a good-overn."

'NOT DISCIPLINED'

In the course of an interview with Bill Hearst, Mitt Kaplan and this writer last December, Ky raised an eyebrow when one of us wondered about how the Vietcong could command enough discipline to send a suicidal wave against our gun positions guarding Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport.

We had seen their riddled bodies a few hours after the hopeless charge.

"That's not really difficult," Ky said. "I could ask for and immediately get a hundred of our men to parachute into Hanoi today."

Which is certainly one of the reasons why only the Americans fly against North Vietnam.

NO AD LIBS

Americans don't ad-lib, nor are they burning over some outrage North Vietnamese troops or the VC committed on their kith and kin in South Vietnam.

They carry out their assignments, hit the targets they have been ordered to hit, and try to get back home.

They overfly targets which would have been fair game in any other war in which we have engaged: fat Russian oil tankers anchored off Haiphong, fields of grounded MIGs. On orders.

That's the way it's going to be. It won't be President Thieu who calls the shots on the bombing. It will be his friend and protector, Lyndon Baines Johnson.

Voice of the People:

'Ask Your Congressman to Give Citizens a Voice'

Resolution H.J.R. 396, passed by the House Judiciary Committee, provides for congressional representation for the District of Columbia. By late October this resolution may reach the House where a two-thirds vote is required for passage. H.J.R. 396 gives D.C. citizens a voice in Congress equal to that of other citizens. It provides two senators for the District and the number of representatives to which it is entitled by population.

A voice in Congress for citizens who pay federal taxes, but are still disenfranchised, is long overdue. Write your Congressman to help pass this legislation.

'America Must Stop Spread of Communism'

Does this paper and Mrs. M. B. think that Americans and LBJ are concerned about "sammans and wooden carts?" If this country doesn't stop the Reds where they are, maybe LBJ could get permission from Mrs. M. B. to make our last stand in her backyard. I challenge The Pontiac Press and Mrs. M. B. to show what was "Red Country" in 1945 and what is "Red Country" in 1967. Maybe that will show why America and President Johnson are trying to stop communism where it is today.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk has told a select group of New York executives that Communists control the Vietnam protest movement in America, but "we haven't made public the extent of our knowledge." This information should be made public now so no one can later pretend he was duped by the liberals and intellectuals Rusk has blasted. Exposing the Communists and their sympathizers in our society is the only thing which may save this country from the same fate as Vietnam.

We keep reading about the suicide rate going up. Can you tell me if men or women are more prone to suicide? About the only ones I know about are unhappy celebrities, and most of them seem to be women.

CUNIOUS

REPLY

Fair more men than women kill themselves. Until 1965, figures show more than three times as many men committed suicide, but now women are catching up a little, with only two and a half times as many men doing away with themselves.

Dying Lakes

Hartford Courant

If such large bodies of water as Lake Erie and a part of Lake Michigan are becoming so polluted that they are threatened with destruction, what chance can smaller lakes have of survival?

The same industrial wastes, untreated sewage, and agricultural runoff flows into them, causing the growth of algae and destruction of fish. Their size makes them less able to resist pollution.

Once they were attractions for swimmers and week-end cottage owners. But soon, if our environment is not given greater protection, 100,000 of them may become unfit for use.

The meeting to be held in Hartford to discuss pollution control of the Connecticut River is an example of what can be done to protect water in the country.

Rivers are better able to rid themselves of contamination because their waters flow to the sea. They are constantly renewed, if pollution is not too severe upstream.

But the nearly quiescent water of lakes is particularly vulnerable to man's carelessness in waste disposal.

The nation is watching Lake Erie slowly dying because of pollution, principally from a river flowing through Cleveland.

More than 2,000 square miles of lake bottom have lost all oxygen. Without oxygen to destroy bacteria, a lake cannot cleanse itself. It becomes dead, choked with algae.

Lower Lake Michigan is threatened with the same fate, unless the federal government steps in to protect the Great Lakes area, where 30 million people live.

Small lakes deserve equal consideration in pollution-control efforts.

Planners Say 'Keep 'Em Down on the Farm'

The United States envisioned by THOMAS JEFFERSON was a nation of small, independent farmers, for he believed that "those who labor in the earth are the chosen people of God, if ever He had a chosen people, whose breasts He has made His peculiar deposit for substantial and genuine virtue."

JEFFERSON's crystal ball has proved cloudy. Today, 70 per cent of the United States' nearly 200 million people live in cities and towns comprising only 1 per cent of the Country's land area. The farm population is down to around 12 million persons, and it's declining by about 4 per cent a year.

Federal officials, preoccupied in recent years with urban problems, have belatedly recognized that many of these problems are rural imports. The slums of the big cities are inhabited by large numbers of uprooted and unadjusted country people with little capacity to cope with the stresses of urban life. It would seem to follow that city problems would be more manageable if country people could be persuaded to stay where they are.

Mrs. LYNDON B. JOHNSON attempted to put this idea across to small-town audiences during a tour of seven midwestern states in late September. If rural communities offered more, the First Lady said at one point, "perhaps the young people would come back home."

A National Outlook Conference for Rural Youth, scheduled to open in Washington on Oct. 23 will attempt to encourage state and local efforts to meet the needs of young people still on the farm.

In certain respects, of course, rural areas need no help at all. As Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman told a Madison, Wis., audience recently, "Life on the farm offers almost everything the big cities can provide — except the congestion, confusion, grind, ghettos, unemployment, unrest, polluted air and dirty water that besmirch the typical American metropolis today."

Hong Kong Thieves Defend Their Reputation

The Hong Kong Travel Tourist Association reports this story:

Police recently stopped a car in the British colony and found a number of iron bars in the trunk. Not unnaturally, they immediately suspected that the occupants were Communist terrorists, whose activities have lately been a problem for the Crown (not to mention the travel people).

The men in the car were most indignant at the allegation, however. They were not Communists, they protested. They were absolutely loyal burglars.

Dumps Are Unpopular Neighbors

By L. GARY THORNE
Asst. City Editor-Suburban
The popularity of dumps can be demonstrated by a comparison with an onion, if you follow the illustration.

An eater of onions enjoys the pungent taste, but his neighbor may take offense at the odor. Thus, you have the short history of the county-owned dump in Commerce Township.

THORNE

Oakland County, represented by the road commission, has held title to some 65 acres at Benstein and Steeth roads for some 40 years.

For three decades, the County has made spasmodic use of the area for refuse. Seemingly, such use has at least been tolerated by the adjacent neighborhood, which is relatively rural in character.

Apparently deciding some good use could be made of the property, the County — again, through the road commission — sought state health department approval to operate a sanitary land-fill there.

Actually, two different types of land-fill operation were sought. First, a land-fill for county use only was asked. Secondly, a "public" land-fill (so you and I could use the area) was also sought.

No doubt the road commission's action was influenced considerably by recent state legislation which banned "open air" dumps.

In any event, the road commission's intentions were shot down by protesting township residents.

The township's board of appeals rejected the request for a special use permit for ten acres of the area. Road administrators have retreated to await a policy decision on the area's fate, expected soon.

Meanwhile, the area is still used to receive refuse. A road commission spokesman indicates that Commerce residents could get a dump regardless of the prevailing popular opinion.

State approval of a sanitary land-fill license is sufficient for the County to operate its so-called "nonpublic" dump, at least, this appears to be the preliminary indication.

The big benefit of the sanitary legislation is that refuse is not held above ground more than 24 hours, although a county spokesman indicated modifications of the State's stipulations are to be implemented.

The current waste is not garbage, but probably more properly qualifies as litter. Most of the items are junk left alongside highways.

The type of cover, when and how, are to depend on the modifications expected from the state health department, according to the road spokesman.

While the County spokesman allowed as how the requirements for the road commission to obtain a land-fill license would be the same as for anyone else, he indicated modifications were anticipated.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, township residents still do not want a dump, but it appears that they are going to get one, at least a little one.

Teacher's Attitude Hurts the Slum School Student

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.
Executive Director
National Urban League

One of the scandals of public education is the way schools actually retard the performance of Negro and other minority group children. Although they are only a little behind other children in the earliest grades, by the time they are in junior high school, these children are several years behind in performance.

This proves that the schools are failing in their responsibility to educate all children.

Educators often say that they have no control over the home environment of children, or over other factors which influence learning. But they do have control over teachers, teaching materials and supervisors, and it is about time that they took drastic steps to reverse the inferior education minority children are getting.

Just changing teacher attitudes can have tremendous results. Too often teachers are prejudiced themselves, or they have been brainwashed into believing that Negro children don't have the same potential other students have.

Sometimes these attitudes affect their teaching; expecting failure, they encourage it.

EXPERIMENT

An experiment at a San Francisco elementary school with a large proportion of Mexican-American students showed how teacher attitudes influence children. A psychologist gave all students in the school an I.Q. test. He told the teachers that the results would tell which pupils were ready to "spurt ahead" in their learning.

He then selected the names of about 20 per cent of the student body at random and told the teachers that these students would greatly improve their achievement levels in the coming year. This wasn't true of course, but the teachers believed him.

A year later the students were tested again. Their I.Q. scores dramatically showed how their teacher's attitudes towards them were affected by what the psychologist told them.

In the earliest grades, the students who were picked had an I.Q. gain of more than double that for other children.

CHILDREN ENCOURAGED

It's not that they were smarter or different in any way from their classmates. What happened was that their teachers were led to believe they would improve, and so they did.

In hundreds of little ways that year, teachers encouraged the children to do better, but other children in the same room, with the same family backgrounds and basic intelligence, weren't expected to improve as much so their teachers didn't ask that little extra from them.

Some sidelights to this experiment are also interesting. The most improvement was by two groups—the average students who were neither at the top or the bottom of the school's ranking system, and those Mexican-American children who looked most like Anglo-Saxons.

The boys who looked most Mexican showed the least improvement, reflecting the teacher's prejudices.

ATTITUDE THE DIFFERENCE

All of this shows how the teacher's attitude toward children is often the difference between academic success and failure. America's affluent suburbs don't have this problem.

Fish Production Periled

ROME (AP) — While the important because total food world's lands are growing less production is lagging behind the food than mankind needs, production from the seas is steadily increasing. But experts warn that within 20 years there may be no more unexploited fishing waters left.

The present rate of fishery expansion probably cannot be maintained for more than 10 or 15 years, the United Nations' Food and Agriculture Organization said in its 1967 report.

"The estimated world production of fish has more than doubled in the last two decades, from less than 20 million tons in 1948 to more than 50 million tons in 1965," FAO said. Last year, the fish catch increased by five per cent.

FAO estimated that fish now provide 10 per cent of the animal protein consumed in the world. But it said such controls are difficult, at best, to enforce.

Of about 30 major species considered underfished 20 years ago, it said, about half are now threatened with exhaustion. The agency noted that various regulatory methods have been attempted or studied, including quotas and taxes on fish catches and bans on small-mesh nets to reduce catches of young fish. But it said such controls are difficult, at best, to enforce.

which one owns a CREDIT UNION?

Answer: They all do.

Credit unions are made of all kinds of people . . . housewives, businessmen, stenographers, blue collar workers, teachers . . . you name it. They OWN the credit union. And their ownership gives them benefits they can find nowhere else.

Take savings, for example: Only in a credit union do all dividends go back to the members, with life insurance as an extra dividend. Borrowers get a break, too, with loans insured at no extra cost, and often a year-end interest refund. These are just a few C.U. advantages.

More than 1-1/3 million people in Michigan are now credit union members. Isn't it time YOU joined?

Svetlana Loses Place in Soviet History

GORI, U.S.S.R. (UPI) Svetlana Alliluyeva's defection to the United States has cost Josef Stalin's daughter her one place in official Soviet history.

All trace of Svetlana has been removed from the Stalin museum, the only memorial left to the late Soviet dictator. Officials also have erased, temporarily, references to her brothers, Yakov Dzugashvili and Vasilii Stalin.

Six months ago, they had honored places in the museum in Gori, Stalin's birthplace. Officials make no bones about the fact that Svetlana's flight to the United States brought about 30 years of bloody, violent history.

Photos of the brothers will be returned to the museum as soon as a composite photo of all three together is redone to eliminate Svetlana.

The museum has nothing against Yakov, who died a prisoner of the Nazis or Vasilii, a lieutenant general, who died of alcoholism.

LETTERS TO SVETLANA

And it has nothing against Stalin, himself, obviously. For this is his; the mementoes, the photos, the physical objects of boasted elaborate exhibits of family photographs and eight letters from Stalin to Svetlana when she was a schoolgirl.

The letters betrayed a tenderness hard to believe possible in one of history's most brutal despots.

He referred to his daughter as "my housekeeper" and signed off "your secretary," or "your poor Stalin."

Now the only sign that Stalin had any kind of family life is a portrait taken in 1931 showing him with his wife Nadezhda, who committed suicide in 1932, and with former Defense-Commissar Kliment Voroshilov and his wife.

The photographs and letters were donated by Svetlana in the early 1950s and removed a few weeks ago.

Many Russians who listened to American broadcasts about Svetlana's autobiography said they did not understand why so much fuss was made about it abroad.

They said the book might even have been published in this country with some modification.

Battered N. Viet Troops Regain Fighting Posture

SAIGON (AP) — On the basis of available information, North Vietnam has fed enough troops and equipment down the Ho Chi Minh Trail to flesh out most of her regiments deployed in South Vietnam, challenging allied hopes that Communist resistance would start cracking this year.

American intelligence sees these Communist units, battered into the hills in heavy fighting earlier this year, bouncing back in fighting stance in half a dozen areas. More indecisive fighting is forecast for the months ahead, not only at the battered Marine strongpoints near the Demilitarized Zone but also down Vietnam's jungled mountain spine and along the central coast.

A lull in much of the country has provided only slim pickings for U.S. Army combat units. This lull is being viewed now as a Communist tactic to gain time to build their units back to fighting pitch.

By avoiding contact, the Communists have checkmated temporarily at least the tactics of the American commander, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, who seeks to wear down the enemy by attrition.

BEST POSITION YET

North Vietnam appears to be in a better fighting posture than in the past in South Vietnam, despite previous heavy losses and the tremendous logistic problem of supplying its forces under U.S. air attack.

Major combat units have been moved into key areas. Three North Vietnamese combat divisions are deployed in the central coast provinces that stretch south from Da Nang to Nha Trang.

Many Communist troop replacements are available to support fighting units. American intelligence reports show that major infiltration took place into the central highlands from January to June. Some battalions from the North Vietnamese 5th Division have been back in action two weeks after being bloodied—evidence, intelligence men say, that replacements are readily available.

New Communist headquarters units are being sent in, providing for greater control over the war. Headquarters elements of 10 North Vietnamese divisions have been identified, including five in the 2nd Corps region that includes the central

2 Americans, Swede Share Nobel Physiology Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The 1967 Nobel prize for physiology or medicine was awarded jointly today to Ragnar Granit of Sweden, Haldan Keffer Hartline of Boston, Mass., and George Wald of Harvard University. The prize sum this year amounts to $62,000, to be shared equally among the trio.

Hartline, 64, who studied medicine at Johns Hopkins University of Baltimore, currently works at the Rockefeller University of New York City. He was head of the Johns Hopkins department of biophysics 1949-53 before joining the Rockefeller Institute of New York.

Wald, 61, who is one of the world's greatest authorities on the biochemistry of perception, has been professor of biology at Harvard since 1948. Earlier he studied at Columbia University in New York and, like Hartline, in Germany before the war. He received the Lasker Prize in 1953 and the Rumford Medal in 1959 for his biochemical researches.

Wald is married to the former Ruth Hubbard who has been his collaborator at various experiments in the field of visual perception physiology.

Blueprint for Consolidating National Budget Unveiled

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major face-lifting in the way the government submits its annual budget would take years to implement.

A 16-man commission unveiled Tuesday night its blueprint for a unified summary budget to replace the three present competing concepts—the administrative, the consolidated cash and the national income accounts budgets.

It said its plan would end public confusion over budget figures, make the budget more understandable and end practices which led to charges of budget gimmickry.

The plan calls for comprehensive reporting of government income and outgo, including that of trust funds such as Social Security and highways. It would be figured on an accrual basis—when payments are due rather than when they are made.

HIGHER FIGURES

Had the concept been used last January, spending and deficit figures would be higher than under any of the three existing systems.

The report emphasized the economic impact of the federal budget and said too much attention has been focused on the surplus or deficit figure. This has led to confusion, the proliferation of budget concepts and charges of gimmickry, the commission added.

Some features of the plan could be incorporated into the budget President Johnson is scheduled to present to Congress in January for the fiscal year which begins July 1, 1968.

Others will take longer, the commission indicated, while still others might be rejected.

NO DECISIONS

The Budget Bureau said it is looking into the 108-page report and that no decisions have been made for incorporating any recommendations into the next budget.

Bureau Director Charles L. Schultze was a commission member and concurred in the over-all report.

But he and Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler dissented on one point—the treatment of participation certificates which Republicans have labeled budget gimmicks.

The commission said the certificates help finance the deficit rather than offset spending.

LEGITIMATE OFFSET

Schultze and Fowler said they consider the certificates a legitimate offset. The certificates are much like stocks or bonds and are backed by pools of government-owned mortgages and loans. They now appear on the government's books as reductions in spending.

Three factors work against quick adoption of all recommendations:

- The Budget Bureau began last January to prepare the budget Johnson will submit to Congress next year;
- The heavy work load the bureau now faces is whipping the new budget into shape;
- The many appropriation bills for the current year which Congress has not yet passed.

But David M. Kennedy, board chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago and commission chairman, predicted at a news conference the administration will accept the recommendations enthusiastically.

The report said the new budget concept will make such terms as administrative, cash and national income accounts budgets obsolete and use of these terms should be discouraged.

The President, himself, however, has emphasized a potential administrative budget deficit of up to $29 billion in an effort over the past two months to push his plan for higher taxes through Congress.

Probe of State's Pact-Letting Asked

LANSING (AP) — State Sen. Coleman Young says he will seek a grand jury probe of the state's contract letting system, charging that the present bidding process is "a travesty and a fraud."

The Detroit Democrat said Tuesday he plans to present a petition for a grand jury investigation, plus what he called evidence supporting the need for one to the Ingham County Circuit Court "before the end of the week."

He said he was making no charges against individuals, adding that "it's the system that's at fault."

He said the system requires that contracts for work on state projects be let to the lowest bidders. But, he said, the contractors can come back anytime and ask for additional money in the form of overrides.

"What point is there in having contracts let to the lowest bidder when it doesn't mean anything?" Young said. "He can come back and ask anything he wants. This can lead to manipulation."

Young said the evidence he would present deals with a partially completed, multimillion-dollar complex across from the Capitol.

Some 25 overrides and additional expenditures concerning the complex have been approved, Young said.

"There are reports that contractors did not live up to standards," he said. "I don't think the state should be in the position to pay for mistakes."

"We have to find out what we have to do legislatively to strengthen the law," he added.

INTEREST AROUSED

Young said his interest was aroused by an exchange between Gov. George Romney and Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley two weeks ago over proposed regulations governing the letting of contracts by the State Highway Department.

The rules, calling for State Administrative Board approval of all agreements by the Highway Department to pay for extra or changed work calling for a different price than that specified in the contract, were approved by the board Tuesday.

Romney had favored rules which would not bind the Administrative Board to action on each contract and extension called for by the Highway Department. Kelley called the rules "necessary safeguards."

PROBE CALLED

Romney and Kelley also later called for a grand jury investigation of the Highway Department based on Kelley's July report of previous department activities and additional information Kelley said he has uncovered.

In his July report, the attorney general said he found evidence of overpayments to certain contractors.

Young criticized an override of $39,470 requested to repair water leaks in the state's new underground garage across from the Capitol.

CRACKS IN DESK

The Administrative Board Tuesday approved a contract to repair cracks in the almost 10-acre upper level concrete deck.

Secretary of State James Hare had asked Romney to expand the proposed grand jury investigation of the Highway Department to include all contracts approved by the State Administrative Board.

Romney pointed out that expansion of the grand jury would necessitate evidence of wrongdoing. He suggested that if Hare had such evidence he should petition for an investigation.

Move to Hike Light Car Tax Before House

LANSING (AP)—The so-called "Volkswagen Amendment" to the Legislature's gasoline and weight-tax package is back before lawmakers again.

A six-bill package, designed to raise motor fuel and vehicle registration fees by $65 million a year, increase cities' share of road funds and slash tolls on the Mackinac Bridge, was reported from House committee Tuesday. The Senate passed it last week.

Recommended by the House committee was a provision, deleted by the Senate, that would levy a minimum annual registration fee of $12 on passenger cars.

As passed by the Senate, the bill would merely raise the weight tax on autos from 35 to 55 cents per 100 pounds. Thus cars weighing less than about 2,100 pounds would be charged less than $12.

Those lighter cars are the target of the proposed $12 minimum.

Creation of Hospital Building Authority OK'd

City commissioners last night approved the original terms, would be for six years.

City manager Joseph A. Warren, in recommending creation of the authority said such a corporate body is able to issue revenue bonds for new construction with lower interest payments than the city could.

The authority actually is a legal device which enables more to be appointed by the mayor to run the authority. Terms easier and at a more favorable interest rate than under the old method of financing construction, which is to have the city sell general obligation bonds pledging the city's full faith and credit to pay them off.

CREDIT BACKING

The authority would sell bonds with its credit backing being a long-term rental agreement between the city and the authority guaranteeing that the city will pay rent on new facilities.

City commissioners last night also directed a rezoning resolution be prepared for next week's meeting so that a 53-acre site in the northeast section of the city can be zoned for a $20-million apartment shopping complex.

Dr. John R. Ylvisaker of Bloomfield Hills told commissioners he intends to begin construction this year.

His plans call for 1,000 multiple units including 300 in high-rise buildings of 10 to 12 stories located on the site, west of Perry and south of Walton.

APARTMENT COMPLEX

The complex would also contain specialty and convenience stores clustered in the center of the apartment complex.

Commissioners also authorized securing cost estimates for construction of city-owned parking at the rear of commercial stores on West Huron just east of Tel-Huron Shopping Center.

Director of planning and Urban Renewal James Bates said he had been able to work out a plan for development of strip parking behind the stores which is compatible with store owners and home owners on Oriole who would own property abutting the parking strip.

Commissioners Robert C. Irwin and Leslie H. Hudson spoke approvingly of plans as developed so far.

'TIME IS COMING'

"The time is coming," Hudson said, "when we are going to have to think of banning all street parking."

He said development of strip parking for commercial stores and businesses is a necessity.

In other action, the commission authorized engaging Giffels-Webster Engineers, Inc., to provide engineering services for expansion at Pontiac General Hospital.

Hospital requirements for miscellaneous engineering work had always been assumed by the city engineering staff, Director of Public Works and Service Joseph E. Neiping said.

A 75 per cent reduction in personnel makes it no longer possible to perform this service, he said.

Pacts to Be Eyed for Mott Equipment

The Waterford Township Board of Education tomorrow night will consider awarding contracts for the purchase of equipment for Charles S. Mott High School.

The bids for food service and supplemental equipment were opened at the board's Oct. 5 meeting.

In other business, reports on summer study programs in the district will be presented.

City Affairs

Commissioners Act on 2 Traffic Problems

City commissioners last night took steps to relieve two continuing traffic problems by authorizing paving East Boulevard from Woodward to Charles Lane and giving preliminary approval to extending Columbia from Cloverlawn to the Belt Line Railroad.

The first project is an extension of East Boulevard and will tie it in with Woodward. Estimated cost is $6,600.

A hearing of necessity will be held before construction of Columbia is started.

Director of Public Works and Service Joseph E. Neiping recommended that Columbia be extended eventually to Telegraph.

He said an initial step would be to provide a graded and gravelled road up to the railway line.

OCT. 31 HEARINGS

Commissioners also set Oct. 31 public hearings for proposals to install sanitary sewers in Bay and Locke streets, a water main on Perry from Giddings to northern city limit and a sanitary sewer in Columbia.

Official Again to Head Metro Planning Unit

R. J. Alexander, director of the Oakland County Public Works Department has been re-elected to his sixth consecutive term as chairman of the Detroit Metropolitan Area Regional Planning Commission.

Alexander first took the ALEXANDER post as an appointee of the governor in 1959.

Elected to the commission's executive committee was another county official, Paul VanRoekel, highway engineer.

The commission is a 72-member, four-county general planning agency to guide economic, social and physical aspects of the Detroit metropolitan region.

Latin Leader Invited to Event

Tom Chavez Jr., 122 W. Fairmount, is one of more than 50 prominent Mexican Americans who has been invited to attend a national conference on Mexican-American problems this month.

Chavez is presently state chairman of the Political Association of Spanish Speaking Organizations of Michigan. The conference will be held Oct. 26-28 in El Paso, Tex.

Scheduled to take part in the conference are Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John W. Gardner, and Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Robert C. Weaver.

President Johnson is scheduled to be at the conference Oct. 28 to sign a treaty, along with President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz of Mexico, which will transfer a parcel of land along the Rio Grande to Mexican jurisdiction.

Fire Dept. Pact to Be Continued

City commissioners last night voted to continue the City Fire Department's participation in a mutual aid agreement involving six Oakland County communities.

Agreeing to help each other in the event of catastrophic fires in their communities are Pontiac, Birmingham, Royal Oak, Madison Heights, Ferndale and Hazel Park.

JPs, By and Large, Back Court Reorganization Bill

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's justices of the peace, by and large, are happy with the proposed court reorganization bill, their president testified Tuesday.

But Justice Lyle Hall of Jackson, president of the Michigan Justices of the Peace Association, said JPs would like to see some changes in the part of the bill which likely would affect them most.

That section would provide for nonlawyer magistrates, mandatory in small counties, accepting guilty pleas in minor matters and performing some other legal duties.

Many of Michigan's JPs presumably will run for the magistrate positions when their current jobs are abolished by the State Constitution at the end of 1968.

MORE POWERS

Hall recommended giving the new magistrates more powers and more money than the present bill, proposed by a House judiciary subcommittee, would provide.

He said magistrates should be allowed to hold trial in traffic cases and to preside over a planned small claims court now in the House bill.

Hall also told the committee that the proposed minimum salaries for magistrates—$6,000 a year or $25 a day, at the county's option—should be raised to attract more qualified people.

"You can make $6,000 in just about any factory in the lower part of the state," he said.

Several committee members opposed Hall's suggestion that the nonlawyer magistrates hear trials and make findings of guilt in any types of cases.

"A rose is a rose and a skunk is a skunk," said Rep. J. Bob Traxler, D-Bay City. "What you're suggesting is that we revive the JP system under a different name."

OPPOSES IDEA

Earlier Tuesday, State Court administrator William Hart told the committee he opposed the whole magistrate idea.

"The provision for nonlawyer magistrates, in my opinion, would dilute the image of the court," Hart said.

He said district judges should appoint a staff of clerks to issue warrants, set bail, and accept guilty pleas in minor offenses using a set schedule of fines.

Ingham County Prosecutor Donald Reisig, head of the Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan, said he did not oppose the magistrate system, but because that would make it harder for the district judges to supervise them.

'NO CONTINUITY'

"Ultimately, administrative authority means the power to hire or fire," Reisig said.

Reisig also suggested that the new district judges should take office Dec. 1, 1968, a month before the lower courts they replace are abolished. Under the present bill, their terms start Jan. 1, 1969.

"Otherwise," he said, "there might be no continuity. A district judge would still be closing out his law practice and trying to set up his staff—and there he'd be with all those New Year's drunks to face."

Wide-Tracking is performance.
Wide-Tracking is handling.

Wide-Tracking is one of the great American sports.

Just about everybody's first reaction upon appraising the new Le Mans is to slip behind the wheel and preen. A most respectable reaction.

But the Le Mans's nobility of design extends right through the machinery of the car to the wheels that clutch the pavement in Wide-Track confidence.

Which is why driving a new Le Mans may be even more satisfying than looking at one. The standard engine is an Overhead Cam that delivers 175 hp from regular gas. You can order a 215-hp high-compression version. Or go up to 265- or 320-horsepower V-8s.

So look beyond the standard safety features, the elegant interiors and endless comfort options which Le Mans offers in unsurpassed profusion. See your Pontiac dealer for a test drive, and learn the difference between Wide-Tracking and plain ordinary driving. Beautifully.

Determined Bride Stirs Up Waves

TAMPA, Fla. — Never underestimate the power of a woman—particularly one headed for the altar.

Gayle Brostrom wouldn't even let the U. S. Coast Guard stand in her way.

Miss Brostrom's fiancé, Seaman George L. Dippman, 23, was called out Monday for what was expected to be a short tour of emergency duty aboard the Coast Guard buoy tender Juniper sent to mark a sunken ship.

Miss Brostrom and Dippman were scheduled to be married Friday, and Tuesday was the last day to obtain a marriage license to make the date and comply with Florida's three-day waiting period.

HEAD MAN

When Dippman didn't return Tuesday, Miss Brostrom, 20, went to see Capt. Norman Miley, commander of the Coast Guard station in St. Petersburg, the home port of the Juniper.

A short time later a helicopter was whirling out to the Juniper to pick up Dippman and a telephone call was being made to the county courthouse.

The chopper brought Dippman back, the courthouse license department stayed open 10 extra minutes and the wedding is all set for Friday.

Mrs. Harold W. Cooper of Oxford, who will play Maria, and Cecelia McWilliams, as Gretl, also of Oxford, run through dress rehearsal for this week-end's performance of "The Sound of Music," which will be presented by members of the Oxford Music Club. Proceeds from the musical, which will be presented at the Oxford High School, will go to a scholarship fund for music students.

Dad Plasters Walls, Pictures Confuse Kids

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are friends with another couple and we visit back and forth in each other's houses all the time.

Please understand, they are very nice people, but something puzzles us. This man has the walls of his den covered with "Playmates of the Month." (You know, those big-busted girls from Playboy magazine.)

His wife doesn't seem to mind, but how about the children? (They have three, the oldest is six.) Those youngsters go in and out of the den all the time. I know it's nature and all of that, but it seems so vulgar to me.

Do you think it could do the children any harm?

FORT WAYNE

DEAR FORT WAYNE: It won't do the children any harm, but it might confuse them when they're told to go out and find themselves some "playmates."

DEAR ABBY: After repeated invitations, my husband and I decided to visit my sister and her husband. Before starting out on the trip, we telephoned to let them know when to expect us. After driving 1,200 miles, we arrived to find the lights on in their home, the door wide open, and a note saying they were out, but we should help ourselves to whatever we found in the refrigerator, and if we didn't want to wait up for them to get to bed.

My husband wanted to turn around and walk out right then and there, but I persuaded him to take me out to dinner. We returned two hours later, and they still weren't home. The phone rang several times, but since it wasn't our home, we let it ring. At midnight my sister and her husband appeared.

They weren't in the least apologetic, in fact they were rude, bawling us out for being so dumb as to let the phone ring. We stayed a week, during which time they had three pre-scheduled social engagements, which they kept, leaving us home alone to shift for ourselves.

What kind of treatment would you call this? And how should we behave toward them in the future?

INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: The treatment was shabby. And if you maintain more than a distant, polite relationship with these people they will have every reason to assume that either you enjoy being insulted, or are too insensitive to recognize a snub when you get one.

Plan the Fun at Tots' Parties

Children's parties are more fun if you have some planned entertainment.

Here is a bit of unusual fun if you have a tape recorder.

Before the party record as many different hard-to-guess sounds as you can think of. For a starter try closing a window, switching on a light, biting into an apple and so on.

Put In Towels

By POLLY CARMER

DEAR POLLY — I recently returned from Vietnam and I can testify to the dirt and grime that covers everything over there. Why not enclose one or two of those packaged cleansing towels in each letter so your GI can read your letter refreshed and with a clean face? This does not add to the postage and will really give him a lift. — K. M. H.

DEAR POLLY — I would like to clean that rough, scaly stuff off some beautiful clam shells. The ones I have seen in gift shops are as beautiful as mother-of-pearl. One is a killer clam and the two shells weight about 25 pounds. — N. G.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell L. L., who has stains on her glass fiber curtains, that I soak mine in the bathtub in warm, sudsy ammonia water and then rinse them, one by one, being careful not to wring them but to gently squeeze the water out.

I hang them on the line, by the tops, stretch the hems and let them drip dry. The come out nice and clean and I hang them without any pressing. Do be careful not to wring them. The column has helped me so much I do hope this helps someone else. — MRS. A. H. B.

GIRLS — A one per cent ratio of ammonia to water must be adhered to when washing such curtains. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I thought those who sew might like to start a cardboard scrapbook similar to the one I made. I sew onto a page an extra button and a piece of material from every garment I make. I also record the pattern number and

Attired in a traditional wedding gown, the former Doralene Evangeline Cooper, daughter of the Lloyd Coopers of Oxford, became the bride of Tyrus Raymond Menzel Jr. Saturday in St. Joseph's Catholic Church. Honor attendants were Mrs. Robert Cooper, the bride's sister-in-law, with the bridegroom's brother, Michael, as best man. Rosemary Cooper was bridesmaid with ushers Bruce Lewis, John Skellern and Robert Cooner Jr. Following a reception at Wertz Hall, the newlyweds left for a Niagara Falls honeymoon. Took Time for Living

WEST SHEFFORD, Quebec — Mrs. Toussaint Thibodeau, 100 years old last August, still finds it difficult to remain idle.

Now living with one of her daughters she helps with the housework and spends many hours weaving rugs for her nine children and their families.

Asked what allowed her to reach her centennial year, she replied: "We always took the time to live. I have always had good health and always worked with my husband. It doesn't seem to me that I am as old as this; life has passed so quickly."

Teacher Salaries Up

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Do you remember the story of the tourist who asked the old man, "To what do you attribute your great age, sir?" and received this reply: "I really don't know yet. I'm dickerin' with two or three patent medicine concerns."

This is an apt illustration of the centuries-old wish of mankind for perpetual life and youth. He have seen it in fact and fiction, whether it was Ponce de Leon's quest for the Fountain of Youth, or a reference to a lama in a Tibetan monastery who had exceeded the two-century mark.

The quest for perpetual life and youth lags at the heart of each one of us, although, as yet, we have no definite rules to which we may cling. We have all seen persons who seem to break most of the rules and yet live to old age and sometimes this is hard to understand.

On the other hand, science has learned some things about longevity and records show that a larger percentage of both men and women are living to a greater age than they did a generation ago.

If you would like to live to a vital old age eagerly, you can do a good deal to achieve your aim. There are certain things which play an important part in longevity and vitality past middle life.

Of course, heredity cannot be discounted. If you have long-lived parents and grandparents, you have a running start toward your goal. On the other hand, if you do not have these, don't feel discouraged for there are other factors which can overcome the handicap of short-lived ancestors.

HAPPY TEMPERAMENT

A happy temperament, a calm and controlled spirit and an optimistic outlook are a great help, and we cannot underestimate their importance. Many of those who have achieved advanced years have been hard workers. Many of them haven't worked hard at all.

What we do see, however, is that in both groups, persons have learned to sidestep the pitfalls created by tensions and destructive mental habits and have learned to shrug off the irritations of life.

Some of those who have lived longest and most vitally are people who found their selves to be at physical low ebb in middle life and who then outlined a plan of living best suited to them and stuck to it. It might be said that a physical disability of a mild form can actually add years provided the victim assumes an intelligent attitude toward it.

Danger signals tend to pull us up short and stop abuse where it might otherwise have continued. Most of us tend to eat too much. Smaller food intake will keep us more vital and eliminate hazards which overeating may cause. A proper amount of outdoor life and exercise, a vitamin and protein rich diet, positive thinking, a happy disposition and a plan for life from middle age on, are the antidotes for early aging and preventative against a short life.

New U.S.-Egypt Ties Hinted

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Informed sources said today that talks at the United Nations between the United States and Egypt are partly aimed at reestablishing relations between the two governments as a step toward a Middle East settlement.

The informants stressed, however, that overtures for revival of diplomatic ties are coming from the Egyptians and that the United States is taking a "dead-pan" approach.

Goldberg and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov met separately Tuesday morning between U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg no plans to see each other.

Goldberg told newsmen he hoped "that in the normal Tuesday morning and the new Kuznetsov, considered one of the Soviet Union's most able negotiators. He has dealt with the Middle East in the past.

Western critics expressed hope that Kuznetsov's arrival in New York Monday indicated the Soviet Union might be getting ready to adopt a more flexible approach to the Middle East stalemate.

The Russians have given strong support to the Arab stand that there can be no movement toward a settlement unless Israel withdraws its forces from the territory it captured from Egypt, Jordan and Syria.

BASIC UNDERSTANDING

A U.S. spokesman said Goldberg had nearly 12 hours of ap- last June in exchange for an armistice on Tuesday. The end to the 20-year Arab state of talks were reported aimed at reaching an understanding among delegates directly concerned on basic principles for a settlement in the Middle East, whether they could work out Goldberg met with Israeli some Middle East formula.

Saucy Aussie Sandra Hilder, who once tried to stow away under an admiral's bed so she could sail to America and see her boyfriend, was married yesterday in Sydney, Australia—to another man.

The groom was Richard Armitage, a former Mr. America. He planned to fly to New York today and his 22-year-old bride was to follow in a few days.

Last April Sandra tried unsuccessfully to hide on the U. S. cruiser Long Beach so she could visit Bernard "Bud" Brewer, 23, a seaman, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Hillary to Climb Antarctic Peak

Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mt. Everest and leader of a transatlantic expedition, returned to the Antarctic today with a seven-man party.

He left Christchurch, N. Z., by air on his way to Cape Hallett where his party hopes to climb the 11,700-foot peak of Mt. Herschel.

Hillary said the area contained some magnificent mountains which had not yet been attempted by climbers. His party hoped to climb some unnamed peaks as well as carrying out a geological and survey program.

Tightrope Performer Injured in Fall

A 30-year-old tightrope performer with the Moscow Circus suffered bruises when she fell about 10 feet from a pedestal during her act in Boston last night.

Nina Logatseva, who specializes in performing ballet on the tightrope, was treated at a hospital and discharged.

A circus spokesman said a belt supporting one of two stands used to hold the rope sheared in two, causing it to collapse. Some 10,000 persons in the opening night audience at Boston Garden witnessed the accident.

The circus is on a 13-city tour of the United States.

X15 Pilot Reaches Astronaut Heights

Maj. William J. Knight is qualified for an Air Force astronaut rating today after flying the X15 rocket plane to an altitude of 27,000 feet, more than 50 miles.

Knight became the seventh X15 pilot to fly higher than 50 miles with his flight yesterday. His top speed was 3,818 miles an hour, well below the 4,324 m.p.h. he flew the X15 Oct. 3 while establishing a record for manned, winged aircraft.

Thais to Add to Small Force in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say Thailand will be the next nation increasing its troop contributions to the allied war effort in Vietnam. But the bulk of an expected 115,000 fresh troops will come from South Vietnam and the United States. Officials say they expect South Vietnam to add 65,000 men to its popular forces guarding the hamlets and villages, thus freeing more Vietnamese regular troops for combat.

The United States has announced it will add 45,000 more men to its force levels in Vietnam, bringing the total to 525,000 by next July 30. There are approximately 490,000 in Vietnam now.

Thailand has sent 2,200 men to South Vietnam, and a 150-man Thai naval group and a small air transport contingent has been committed.

UNDER STUDY

The additions are not expected to exceed 1,500 men. Thai officials have said the increase is under study while U.S. authorities arrange necessary equipment and logistic support.

The White House expressed gratification Tuesday that Australia announced it was upping its 6,300-man force to 8,000 and that New Zealand was adding 170 men to the 370-man artillery detachment fighting with the Australians.

U.S. authorities say they have been assured by President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky that top priority is being given to the reorganization of the Vietnam armed forces.

South Vietnamese combat forces now total 730,000.

Cavanagh Asks Funding for Police Arms

DETROIT (UPI) — Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh has asked the Common Council to borrow $9 million so the city can buy equipment to make its police department combat-ready and help pay off costs of the July riot.

Cavanagh said more than $3.7 million would be used to buy machine guns, 500,000 rounds of ammunition, 8,000 gas grenades, a helicopter, an airplane and military hardware.

The remainder of the funds would be used to pay riot overtime wages and cover the cost of revenue lost by the city because of the riot. The money would be raised through sale of general obligation bonds.

Councilmen yesterday said they would take up Cavanagh's proposal at a special meeting Friday. Several expressed some doubt over the requests.

The Problem of Tuberculosis—1

Once-Dreaded Killer No Longer Feared

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first in a three-part series on the problem of tuberculosis and its significance locally. This virulent disease was once mankind's biggest killer. Now it is mostly under control in the U.S. due to extensive programs.)

By ED BLUNDEN

In 1900, tuberculosis was the chief cause of death in Michigan as well as the rest of the nation. Now, thanks to miracle drugs and public health programs, the death rate is no longer of significance. In Oakland County not a single person is expected to die this year directly from TB, according to Dr. Bernard D. Berman, Oakland County health director.

As recently as 1947, according to a 1948 state report, 50 died in the county. The report heralded this as a great advance in which state TB deaths had been reduced 400 per cent since 1908. In the county in 1927, 92 died at a time the population was much smaller (116,000) than today (800,000).

In the past, tuberculosis, sometimes called consumption, used to strike fear into the hearts of all.

The wracking cough, bloody sputum, weakening of the body and the hopeless look on the face of the victim—all these were almost commonplace as recently as the 1940s.

GRIM CERTAINTY

Catching the disease meant many years in the hospital, estrangement from families and friends and early death a fairly grim certainty, either from the ravages of TB germs themselves or from another disease attacking the weakened body.

TB is spread from person to person and is most prevalent where people live close together. Slums are ideal breeding places. Large families in small quarters are most susceptible. In some communities TB was almost taken for granted.

Early programs of prevention seem almost futile in this age, Dr. Berman relates. He keeps at his desk an old inscription, "Don't Spit on the Sidewalk." This was about the extent of early public programs to stop the spread of TB and other diseases.

In the years before 1940 there was no real "treatment." Victims were hospitalized in remote sanatoriums. There the disease ran its course. Some recovered. Others recovered, but had recurrences. Mostly doctors were limited to observing the gradual decline of the patient.

TRIP LITTLE HELP

Dr. Berman said in the light of modern studies the old practice of sending a victim to Arizona had little effect. If it worked at all in some cases, it was due to a change in environment more than to the benefit of "fresh air," he said.

GREETINGS—A patient arriving at the TB sanatorium in the Oakland County Center can be assured of receiving the best possible treatment. The county's cure rate is one of the best in the state. An average patient is returned to society in approximately three months. Complete cure is almost a certainty. Holding open the door is Mrs. Mary Thomas, director of nurses.

In the late 1930s and into the 40s some success was found in surgery involving collapsing or extraction of a lung. The drugs streptomycin and later PAS (para amino salicylic acid) came into use with some success despite unfortunate side-effects.

Public health programs which brought about more early detection greatly improved the problem of cure after World War II.

Then in 1952 the "miracle" drug Isoniazid was discovered and "revolutionized" the treatment of TB, according to Dr. Berman who labeled it "one of the most powerful ever devised."

He said in early experiments at a New York hospital patients considered "hopeless" were given the drug and within a few weeks were "dancing in the aisles."

USED UNIVERSALLY

After the initial discovery a long period of testing was carried on by such groups as the armed forces to determine exact dosage, time needed for complete cure, how related therapy should be used, etc.

Isoniazid is now in universal use and is considered safer than aspirin, Dr. Berman said.

He said he does not wish to give the impression TB has been beaten, however, and about 125 cases are expected to come to light this year in the county as they have in the last 10-year period.

The big difference now is that a cure is virtually certain, hospital care not lengthy, if needed at all, and families and individuals can be restored to society in short order.

Dr. Berman warns that anyone can still catch tuberculosis, pro football players or auto executives, laborers or housewives.

Regarding the general nature of the disease health studies show the rate rises as economic conditions are lower. A racial factor is involved with Indians, Eskimos and Negroes more susceptible.

Controlled studies show prior generations' exposure to the germ brings about subsequent higher immunity.

(NEXT—How county care and prevention are handled.)

The careful man believes you can't be too careful where you buy your clothes. That's what Osmun's believes, too. That's why Osmun's is careful about things like the best name brands (Eagle, Petrocchi, Botany 500, Dobbs, Van Heusen, etc.). Stuff Green Peppers for a Colorful Entree

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

When you don't have a lot of meat to use, you have to be ingenious and make it appear more important.

There's always the casserole, but few families are satisfied with this kind of dinner night after night.

One colorful way of stretching meat is to fill green pepper cups. There are beautiful peppers available now. Take your choice of the filling suggestions given below.

In all cases you will parboil the peppers before filling them. This means to cook them briefly in boiling water.

Ham 'n' Cheese Peppers

- 6 large green peppers
- 4 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
- ½ teaspoon powdered marjoram
- ¾ cups bite-size toasted corn cereal crushed to 1¾ cups
- ¾ cup finely chopped onion
- ¼ cup chopped celery leaves
- 2 cups ground ham
- ¾ cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese
- ½ cup shredded mozzarella cheese
- 2 eggs, beaten

Heat oven to moderate (375 degrees). Butter shallow baking pan.

Remove tops and seeds from peppers and cut in half lengthwise. Cover with boiling water. Boil gently for 8 minutes. Drain.

Combine 2 tablespoons butter and ¼ teaspoon marjoram. Add cereal crumbs. Stir to coat crumbs evenly. Cook onion and celery in 2 tablespoons butter until onion is tender.

Mix ham, ¼ cups cereal crumbs, onion mixture, ¼ teaspoon marjoram, ½ cup cheddar cheese, mozzarella cheese and eggs. Spoon into peppers. Place in buttered pan. Bake 20 minutes.

Combine ½ cup cheddar cheese and ½ cup cereal crumbs. Top peppers. Bake 10 minutes or until peppers are tender and cheese is melted. Yield: 6 servings.

Fiesta Stuffed Peppers

- 6 medium green peppers
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ¼ cup chopped celery
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- 1 teaspoon dried basil
- 2½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
- 1½ pounds ground beef
- 2 cups seasoned croutons
- 2 cans tomato sauce with mushrooms
- ¾ cup crumbled American blue cheese (about 4 ounces)

Cut off tops of peppers; remove ribs and seeds. Chop edible portion of tops, set aside. Wash peppers.

Place peppers in salted boiling water and simmer for 5 minutes. Drain peppers and set aside.

In hot butter, saute chopped green pepper, onion, and celery until tender. Add garlic, oregano, basil, salt and pepper. Mix well.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine egg, worcestershire sauce, beef, croutons and ¾ cup tomato sauce. Stir in American blue cheese. Add green pepper mixture and seasonings. Mix well.

Stuff peppers with mixture. Pour remaining tomato sauce over peppers and bake uncovered for 1 hour.

Lamb prepared with rice and seasonings in green peppers is economical, giving you a fair share of nutrition for your money.

LAMB STUFFED PEPPERS

- 6 large green peppers
- Boiling water
- Salt
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup sliced onion
- 2 cups diced cooked lamb
- 1 cup cooked rice
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- ½ teaspoon seasoned salt
- Dash pepper
- ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Cut thin slice from stem end of peppers, remove seeds and cook covered in small amount of boiling water, 3 to 5 minutes. Drain; sprinkle inside with salt. Cool.

Melt 2 tablespoons butter, saute onion until lightly browned. Combine with lamb, rice, parsley, seasoned salt and pepper. Stuff green peppers with mixture.

Melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter and combine with bread crumbs and Parmesan cheese; sprinkle over top of each pepper.

Bake in 375 degree (moderate) oven 25 to 30 minutes. Serve with sauce, if desired.

Soak Your Beans

When soaking whole peas or dried beans, boil them two minutes in soaking water first to help prevent fermentation and hardening of skins. An hour of soaking is enough after boiling, but overnight may be more convenient.

Soaking cuts down the cooking time of these foods. Cook beans in soaking water for best flavor and high nutritive value. Split peas do not need soaking.

Canned baked beans are base of the stuffing

Bean Stuffed Peppers

- 2 tablespoons fat or oil
- 1 pound ground chuck beef
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 can (1-lb. 12 oz.) pork and beans in tomato sauce
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- ½ teaspoon sage
- 6 green peppers
- 1 can tomato soup
- ½ can water

Heat oil in skillet. Add beef, onion and salt. Brown lightly, stirring to keep meat in separate particles. Stir in beans, Worcestershire and sage.

Wash peppers, cut off tops and remove seeds leaving a clean shell. Place peppers in boiling salted water 3 minutes. Drain and stuff with the bean-beef filling. Place in casserole.

Mix soup with the water and pour over casserole. Bake covered in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 1 hour. Remove cover last 15 minutes to brown. Serves 6.

Thicken Syrup

With Cornstarch

One to two tablespoons of cornstarch will thicken the syrup (plus water to make one cup) from a one-pound can of fruit. The amount of cornstarch you use will depend on how thick you want the sauce; also on how much sugar is added.

Ground beef is always good in green pepper cases

New! Hot Turkey for 2 in 10 minutes.

Bite-size cereal with ground ham and cheese is different

Stuffed Peppers Italiano

- 6 large green peppers
- ¼ cup Italian dressing
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1½ pounds ground beef
- 1 cup cooked rice
- ½ cup dry bread crumbs
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 2 eggs well beaten
- 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
- ¾ cup water

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Wash peppers, remove stems and seeds; parboil in salted water. Drain.

In large skillet, heat ¼ cup Italian dressing and saute onion until transparent. Add meat and brown well. Stir in rice and allow mixture to cool slightly.

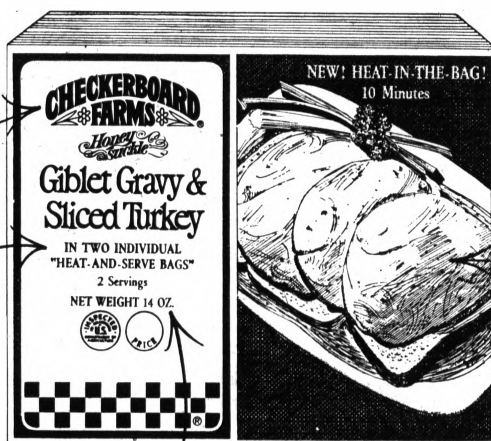

Stir bread crumbs, cheese, parsley, and eggs into meat mixture. Stuff the peppers with mixture.

Place peppers in a greased baking dish. In small bowl, combine remaining Italian dressing with tomato sauce and water. Pour over peppers. Bake 20 minutes or until peppers are tender. Makes about 6 servings.

Oranges Add Special Touch to Salad

There may be many seasonal foods, but salads are a year-around favorite. Whether they are the main dish at a luncheon, or the side accompaniment for dinner, greens — in many shapes and forms — are almost an American staple.

But a salad is really only as tasty as the dressing on it; and one-time Russian, French and Italian toppings were the only ones popular. Nowadays, with many people choosing a more gourmet approach, other dressings are gaining staunch supporters.

One of the most delicious ways to dress up a salad is by combining Japanese Mandarin orange segments with compatible ingredients resulting in really unusual taste sensations.

If you're making coleslaw, add a pinch of curry and drained Mandarin orange segments for a very different twist to this long-time favorite.

For any fruit salad combinations, try preparing a Blue Cheese mixture and then adding little seedless, rindless Mandarin oranges; then top it all off with some fresh crumbled Blue Cheese.

Or if you are having lettuce wedges, you can add sour cream and Mandarin oranges to mayonnaise or salad dressing.

In each of these suggestions,

it's the positioning of the spicy or salty dressings with the succulent sweetness of the little

Mandarin oranges that gives a unique and gourmet aura to your salad.

Since the eyes as well as the palate are part of the culinary experience, it's nice to know that the Japanese Mandarin oranges, pretty and colorful as they are, will add much visual pleasure to any salad recipe.

Why serve greens plain, when with a little extra ingredient they can be "dressed up" fan-

ACLU Hits Draft Probe of Viet Protesters

DETROIT (AP)—The American Civil Liberties Union Tuesday lodged a strong objection to a proposed investigation which could lead to possible criminal action and induction against 17 young demonstrators who staged a Vietnam War protest by turning in their draft cards.

Col. Arthur A. Holmes, director of the Michigan Selective Service, said he would order the investigation.

Hours later, Ernest Mazzy, executive director of the Michigan ACLU, said his organization "objects strenuously to the effort to use the Selective Service system to punish dissenters."

Holmes, who said he did not believe there was much to the demonstration, said his investigation would hinge on the youths' intent to violate the law.

YOUNG GENTLEMEN

"I'm very well pleased that the demonstrators conducted themselves as young gentlemen and did not disrupt or impede the board's operation," said Holmes. "This incident does not create the same situation that developed in Ann Arbor."

Two years ago, Holmes attempted to force induction of 16 youths, including several University of Michigan students, who were arrested in a sit-in at the Ann Arbor Draft Board.

No convictions have resulted to date. The accused were represented by ACLU attorneys.

However, Holmes noted that failure to carry a draft card carries a penalty of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine, on conviction.

SHOCKED AT STATEMENT

Holmes said "depending on the circumstances in each case," he would "recommend to the local board that the individual be deprived of any privileges of deferment...and that he be processed for induction as a delinquent."

Mazzy said he was shocked at Holmes statement and added that he was "confident if he proceeds in his indicated reckless fashion, his new effort will be no more successful than in the past."

Mazzy said deferments were restored in all of the Ann Arbor cases that have come to decision, and that six cases still await disposition in U.S. District Court in Detroit.

Steinbeck Son Arrested in Drug Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Novelist John Steinbeck's son, John Steinbeck IV, has been arrested for maintaining an apartment where police say they found a large quantity of marijuana and other narcotics paraphernalia.

Twenty pounds of "pot" was found in a suitcase belonging to Steinbeck, police said.

The 21-year-old Steinbeck, who is assigned by the Army to duty at the Naval Weapons Plant here, pleaded innocent

Tuesday night to possession of marijuana and maintaining "a common nuisance."

His trial in the Court of General Sessions was scheduled for Nov. 15.

"I certainly hope this business doesn't upset him," he said of his father, "because I am afraid he is in serious condition."

The elder Steinbeck, winner of the Nobel Prize for his writings, is in a New York City hospital for an exploratory operation for a tumor, his son said.

Young Steinbeck, a specialist fourth class, recently returned from service in Vietnam. In his present assignment he is a writer and announcer in a publications unit.

In his spare time, he said, he has been preparing an article for "The Washingtonian" magazine on narcotics use by American servicemen in Vietnam.

The magazine's publisher, Laughlin Phillips, confirmed that Steinbeck was preparing "a couple" of articles.

Steinbeck's apartment at 1737 F St. was raided Monday by narcotics detectives. He was not present at the time of the raid but was there when police made a return visit Tuesday.

After entering his plea in night court, Steinbeck was released to military authorities. They said he would be freed to return to duty after a routine overnight stay at the military detention barracks at the Naval Weapons Plant.

Willing to Share, He Gets Surprise

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — A hotel manager asked Steve Collins, a Marine on rest and recreation leave, if he would mind sharing his hotel room with a Navy man due to crowded conditions.

Collins replied that it would be all right with him.

Crime Lab Need Studied

A representative group of Pleasant Ridge, discussed several possibilities including a crime lab as an entirely separate agency.

The study was requested yesterday by the board of supervisors' law enforcement committee.

The group is studying requirements for the proposed $4.6-million jail to be built at the county center. Also being considered is a mortgage to be located at the proposed jail.

Members of the committee, chaired by John Slavens of completed, he pointed out.

'55 Army Grid Hero Dies in Viet Combat

SAIGON (AP) — Maj. Donald W. Hollender, the West Point football star who switched from end to quarterback before Army's 1955 upset of Navy, died with 57 other Americans Tuesday during a fierce battle with Vietcong force about 40 miles northwest of Saigon.

Hollender shortly before had replaced a 1st Infantry Division battalion commander killed in the first stage of the battle. He was Lt. Col. Terry Allen Jr., son of Maj. Gen. Terry Allen who led the 1st Division in its drives through North Africa and Sicily in World War II.

Hollender, a brigade operations officer, had been flown to the front early Tuesday to take command of Allen's battalion. Fellow officers said the former football star was moving forward when he was hit by a burst of small arms fire.

No other details were immediately available.

FATHER OF 4

Hollender, 32 and the father of four children, was in the West Point class of 1956. He was the son of Mrs. Irving A. Cowles of Webster, N.Y., a village near Rochester. His widow, Carolyn, and the four children live in Alexandria, Va.

Hollender was the principal in a surprise switch by Col. Earl Blaik, then Army football coach, that was credited as the main reason for Army's upset 14-6 victory over Navy in 1955.

Hollender was regarded as one of the finest ends in collegiate football in 1954 but midway in the 1955 season was shifted to quarterback by Blaik.

At the time the move was called "Blaik's folly" but Hollender quickly developed as a passer. After the victory over Navy he said he was happy over the switch and felt he had made a contribution to Army's triumph.

'UNFORGETTABLE'

Blaik was more outspoken. "He gave an unforgettable demonstration. An aggressive leader is priceless," said the Army coach.

Hollender was named on the All-East 1955 team by the Associated Press.

His play that year gained him the Nils V. "Swede" Nelson sportsmanship award from the Gridiron Club of Boston. The award goes to the player who by his conduct on the gridiron demonstrates a high esteem for the football code and exemplifies sportsmanship to an outstanding degree.

Hollender also received the Hughes Award as the most valuable player of the 1955 Army team.

In September 1954, Hollender was charged with walking five yards off his post during summer training at Ft. Benning, Ga. to make a phone call to a friend. He was confined to quarters at West Point for one month and allowed no visitors, no movies and no football.

When he returned to the field his rise to fame started.

'NEVER LOST'

Lt. Col. Allen, 38, followed his father into the 1st Division. Gen. Allen led the division through Tunisia and Sicily and said it "never lost a round."

Gen. Allen retired in 1946 and now lives in El Paso, Tex. So does his son's widow.

Road Contract-Letting Rules Okayed

LANSING (AP) — The State Highway Department today prepared to carry out provisions of new contract-letting approved after much debate by the State Administrative Board.

The board Tuesday quietly adopted the rules which had turned a previous meeting into an angry debate between Gov. George Romney and Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley.

Romney was attending the National Governors' Conference and Kelley was in northern Michigan on a speaking trip Tuesday.

The board also heard Tuesday from representatives of Teamsters Local 214 of Detroit which seeks to represent guards at the State Prison of Southern Michigan.

AD BOARD APPROVAL

The regulations governing Highway Department contract-letting call for Administrative Board approval of all agreements by the department to pay for extra or changed work.

"No payments for overruns in contract quantities shall be made by the department unless prior approval for such payments," the rules state. Exemplified overruns payments not to exceed specified percentages of the total contract amount.

The rules also call for the department to assess damages against any contractor who fails to have the job open to traffic or completed by the dates specified in the contract — unless excused by the department.

"There was reluctance to agree on the rules," said acting Gov. William G. Milliken. "And that reluctance was on the part of the Highway Department because of the restrictive nature of the rules."

"GENERAL AGREEMENT" The department and the attorney general's office "reached general agreement," Milliken said.

100 at West Point Burial of '65 Class's Top Leader

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — About 100 mourners attended a graveside funeral service at the U.S. Military Academy yesterday for a West Pointer who graduated in the top leadership position of his class in June 1965.

Capt. C. Robert Arvin, who was cadet first captain and brigade commander in the class of '65 and led the school's 3,000 cadets, was killed in Vietnam Oct. 8.

He was 24 years old.

Among the mourners were Arvin's widow, the former Merry Montoye, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Arvin of Ypsilanti, Mich., a younger brother, David, friends; and West Point personnel.

A spokesman for the academy said Arvin, an adviser to the South Vietnamese airborne battalion, had served in Vietnam for the past 14 months.

Arvin, the 123rd West Point graduate to die in Vietnam, was

Every time someone tells us that he just played a perfect game we know that he is going to follow up by complaining about his bad luck.

Actually, you can't expect to win in tough competition unless you step out of line occasionally.

Bill Root's vulnerable double of Pietro Forquet's nonvulnerable one spade bid represents one of these gambles. If his partner held a bad hand with mostly black cards the double might lead to a large penalty, if his partner held a good hand they might get too high.

This is just what happened. Benito Garozzo jumped right to three spades. He wanted to make it hard for Al Roth to get into the bidding but Al was not going to be shut out.

He was sure that Bill had hearts and a stronger hand for his takeout double. Later Bill admitted that he wanted a better hand but no one had dealt it to him.

Forquet had pretty good defense against four hearts. On the other hand his opponents had bid confidently and Forquet did not expect spades to go around twice. He decided to take a small loss at four spades.

If he had passed Roth would have been down one trick. Doubled, it would have cost 200 points.

♣ CARD Sense ♣

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	2♥	Pass	2♠
Pass	2NT	Pass	7

You, South, hold:

♠ K Q 10 8 ♣ A Q J 5 4 ♠ K 6 5

What do you do?

A—Bid three hearts. This tells partner that you were a little too strong to bid three hearts directly but just too weak to jump to game.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two hearts your partner bids one no-trump over your double. What do you bid now?

Suggestion Award to Jonesville Man

LANSING (AP) — Logan A. Bechwith of Jonesville, Mich., got rid of one of the guards at Southern Michigan State Prison and was paid $800 by the state for his work.

Bechwith, a former employee at the prison in Jackson and now a meat inspector with the Michigan Department of Agriculture, won the $800 for his suggestion in the Civil Service awards program.

He recommended the state do away with one $8,000-a-year guard post at Jackson.

Bridge to 'Retire'

LOWELL (AP) — The one-lane bridge carrying M91 across the Grand River, said to be one of the oldest steel bridges in Michigan, is being retired after 82 years of service. The bridge will be replaced Friday by a concrete and steel structure. The old bridge was built for horse-and-buggy use. It was financed under provisions of the 1850 Swampland Road Act. The contractor got 4,000 acres of so-called swampland for building the Hastings-Lowell road which included the bridge.

Money spent on new private construction in the United States in 1966 totaled $5.4 billion compared with $23.2 billion for new public construction.

Canada Cited for Seaway Job

U.S. Hit for 'Dragging Feet' on Big Project

CLEVELAND (AP)—An official of the International Association of Great Lakes Ports (IAGLP) said Tuesday he was "much impressed with the initiative the Canadians are showing" on a $5-million project intended to lengthen the navigation season on the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Directors of the IAGLP inspected the project at Montreal over the weekend.

"I believe the work they (the Canadians) are doing will permit a further extension of the navigation season in a year or two," said Col. Earle B. Butler, chairman of the American section of the IAGLP.

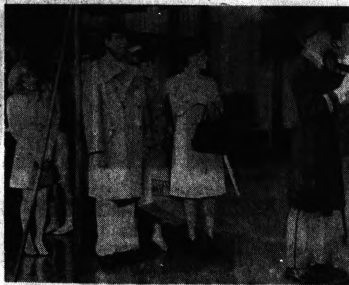

While the Canadian Department of Transport is busy on the project, the U.S. government has been dragging its feet, Butler said.

FUNDS FURNISHED

The U.S. Bureau of the Budget has held up for two years a $30,000 appropriation voted by Congress for a study on the subject of extending the length of the seaway navigational season, he declared.

"Even if the bureau of the budget released the money this week," said Col. Butler, "it would still be two years before we could complete the study on the extension of the navigation season."

"It should have been started a long time ago." The big problem on the seaway, Butler said, has been ice which gets into the locks at the Montreal end of the system, particularly at the St. Lambert and Cote Ste. Catherine locks.

Antipoverty Bill Drive Cools Laughter

WASHINGTON (AP) — They laughed when Chairman Carl D. Perkins said the House Education and Labor Committee would meet morning, noon and night to get out an antipoverty bill. But at 11:30 Tuesday night no one was even smiling.

The Kentucky Democrat kept the committee in session until then and promised more of the same tonight in a drive to meet a committee-imposed Thursday deadline for a final vote on the legislation.

The session, open to the public, provided a parliamentary vaudeville show of vast amusement to everyone in the crowded committee room except the official reporter trying to keep up with the proceedings.

The members made a shambles of parliamentary procedure as they juggled amendments, amendments to amendments, points of order and parliamentary inquiries throughout the long meeting.

A motion that carried without objection gave Perkins unlimited authority to edit the official transcript of the meeting as he saw fit.

When one amendment was called up, Rep. William D. Ford, D-Mich., objected. "We considered that two days ago," he said.

"That was this morning," said Rep. James H. Scheuer.

This is the classic rationale of the mob. The public interest, as we have said before, covers a multitude of sins, from the venial to the deadly. Smoking may be a minor issue, but contempt for due process of law looms large. Cigarette advertising, however disagreeable, constitutes an exercise in freedom of speech. Big Brother doesn't take over all at once, he closes in step by step. There's a chance to draw the line.

From the Press Box

BY BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

If Neanderthal man was still on earth, Wrigley Field in Chicago would probably be considered a magnificent show place for the long-haired loon-skin athletes.

The national sport of the time would probably be the 100-yard dash with dinosaur eggs.

In this age, however, with new stadiums being built across the land, even the Hippies would probably refuse to hold their happenings at Wrigley Field.

But for the Bears and Cubs of Chicago, there is no choice but to call that ancient field their home.

The Football Writers of America recently rated press boxes across the country and they omitted Wrigley Field from the list probably because they didn't have a rating as low as "Z."

MSU FINEST

The beautiful facilities at Michigan and Michigan State are AA all the way. Even old Tiger Stadium can be given an "A" rating compared to places like Wrigley Field, Forbes Field in Pittsburgh, Shibe Park in Philadelphia among others.

The facility at Wrigley is so bad it's unbelievable.

For years the closest rest room from the press box was three levels down at the ground floor, but a couple years ago Wrigley Field modernized.

A canvas covered lavatory, measuring about 4x4 and 6 feet high with zippered canvas, was built to the extreme end of the press deck.

To get to this facility, one has to tip-toe sideways past a half dozen booths of radio and TV crews and then apologize to the football coach on the bench phones for crawling over him.

Jim Martin was the unfortunate Lions' assistant coach on the bench phones last Sunday.

SWING AND SWAY

On a windy day, this quaint rest room high atop Wrigley Field sways and waves like the flag in center field. The thought of this canvas covered lavatory dropping into the box seats below must drive everyone's mind.

What an embarrassing way it would be to die.

At any rate it's a relief to get out there and thanks to a press box attendant with a flashlight one can make his way back over the coach, past the camera and radio crews and to the writer's press box.

After getting comfortably seated in the sun-heated press box, the big problem is trying to see the game through the pigeon spotted glass.

At one time someone yelled "it's a fumble," but a n o t h e r writer replied, "You're crazy, some pigeon just hit the window."

The happy thought is that the trip to Wrigley Field with the Lions is only once a year.

There's a report that the baseball writers who cover the Cubs for 81 home games must take pre-season kidney tests, or carry their own flashlights.

Davey Retaining State's Top Spot on Athletic Board

LANSING (AP) — One-time water-wrestling contender Charles (Chuck) Davey has been reappointed chairman of the State Athletic Board of Control by Gov. George Romney.

Romney also reappointed Richard D. Lette of Lansing as a member of the board.

The appointments are for four-year terms and are subject to Senate approval.

Davey, 42, of Birmingham, won NCAA boxing titles in 1943, 1947, 1948 and 1949 at Michigan State University.

After an appearance with the 1948 Olympic team he turned professional and won 36 consecutive bouts before losing a title bid in 1953.

Spurns Tournament

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Heavyweight contender Joe Frazier, a surprisingly easy TKO victor over big Tony Doyle of Salt Lake City, spurned today any participation in the World Boxing Association heavyweight championship elimination tournament.

"We're not interested in the elimination tournament," trainer-adviser Yank Durham said. "We want the No. 1 man in the tournament when it is over. We'll wait."

Frazier ran his string of victories to 18 Tuesday night when he scored a technical knockout over the 17½ pound Doyle in 1:04 of the second round in their scheduled 10-round bout at the Spectrum, the newly-built sports arena in south Philadelphia.

TWIN THREAT—Quarterback Larry Froede, a 6-0, 180-pound senior three-year regular at Pontiac Central—hopes to put some spark into the Chiefs' offense with his passes Friday afternoon. To date he has completed 13 aeriels for 225 yards. Additionally, he is the regular safetyman in the PCH secondary.

Pistons Belt Royals in Opener, 131-108

BY JERE CRAIG

DETROIT — The best of the old and the best of the new led the super-charged Detroit Pistons to a 131-108 National Basketball Association season-opening victory over Cincinnati Tuesday night at Cobo Arena.

Nearly 7,000 fans roared their glee as the Pistons blasted the Royals off the floor with a 73-point second half that lifted the Detroiters (one night at least) on a par with the Boston Celtics and ahead of the yet-to-play Philadelphia 76ers.

Detroit has been switched to the NBA's tough Eastern Division. Last night's opening victory tied the winners with Boston and New York for first place at one win apiece.

The Celtics won Saturday in their opener, and the Knickerbockers edged San Francisco last night before 15,000 fans at New York as Cazzie Russell sank a bucket with one second to play for a 124-122 decision.

St. Louis remained unbeaten after three starts in the Western Division with a 124-105 conquest at San Diego — one of two new teams in the NBA. Los Angeles stayed one game behind the Hawks by staving off Chicago, 107-105.

Friday Afternoon Contest Slated

PCH Tries Daylight to End Grid Gloom

Pontiac Central has hope that daylight and a rest will cast away the gloom of a none-too-bright football campaign Friday when the Chiefs entertain Flint Southwestern in a Saginaw Valley Conference matinee.

Central will meet Southwestern's Colts at 4 p.m. on the Wisner Stadium turf in a rare daylight encounter necessitated by a school system ruling following the destructive disturbances after the last Pontiac home game.

The only regularly scheduled daytime game on the SVC schedule is the annual Thanksgiving Day Flint Central - Flint Northern clash.

Central's last daylight outing was a rescheduled visit to Ferndale in 1958. The Chiefs won that one, 19-13, as Harrison Munson scored three touchdowns.

PCH coach Paul Dellerba isn't asking for a three-touchdown performance from anyone but he does hope the expected sunshine will put some warmth into the Chiefs' attack.

After a 21-0 romp in their opener with Midland, his orange - and - black clad charges haven't tasted victory and only once in the three following outings did they score twice.

Boosting the veteran coach's spirits is a two-week respite from formal competition.

"We're in good shape. We went back to basic fundamentals (during the break) to iron things out," explained Dellerba. Fumbles and missed assignments hurt the Central eleven badly in the three unsuccessful outings.

Dellerba plans to use Hardman Jones, Walter Terry and Willie Ramsey as the principal running backs Friday. Quarterback Larry Froede will call the signals.

The offense will have to be sharp. Flint Southwestern's strongest weapon appears to be its defense.

Despite losing three times, the Colts haven't been beaten by more than six points and haven't allowed more than two six-pointers in any game.

They did well against Flint-Northern (losing only 3-0, while the Vikings stung PCH, 25-7).

Shifty 5-8 halfback Ed Watkins has scored three of their touchdowns, including the only one in the 6-0 victory last week over Saginaw, which defeated Pontiac Central, 20-13.

Vaulter Eying World Record

Greek Captures Jumping Medal in Pre-Olympics

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Chris Papanikolaou of Greece, who won the gold medal in the pole vault Tuesday in Mexico's Pre-Olympic Games, predicts he will break the world record in the actual Olympics next October.

Papanikolaou, a student at San Jose, Calif., State, beat Dick Railsback of UCLA with a vault of 17-4½, then failed three times in an attempt to break Bob Seagrave's listed world record of 17-7½.

The attempt of the 26-year-old Greek to break the record drew the most attention of the 12,000 in the Olympic Stadium after John Carlos, a New Yorker who attends East Texas State, had won the 200 meters in 20.5 seconds.

"I was sure I could do it," Papanikolaou said. "I think I could have, but I need a special pole. This one is too soft. I'll practice indoors this winter and I'm sure I can break the world record here next year."

Carlos led all the way in the 200 meters to give the United States its third gold medal.

Waldemar Baszanowski of Poland set three world weightlifting records in the lightweight class. He snatched 299 pounds, jerked 375 pounds and had a total of 768 pounds on three styles.

The Soviet Union led in gold medals with five after the first three days with the United States second with three.

Today's schedule was a busy one with eight finals in track and field and the start of the decathlon. Rowers had finals in seven events, male gymnasts one.

Red Wings' Abel Sticking With Sub-Goalie Gardner

TORONTO (AP) — Coach Sid Abel plans to go with second string goalie George Gardner tonight when his Detroit Red Wings take on the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Gardner, who went all the way in the nets when Detroit beat New York 3-2 Sunday, drew praise from Abel in his substitute roll for Roger Crozier.

Crozier was injured in the season opener against Boston and was victim of a 6-2 loss to Montreal in the second game of the season.

"Gardner certainly played well against the Rangers and I have no intention of taking him off," said Abel.

Heavy fog and rain cancelled the Wings flight to Toronto Tuesday, and the team had to take a chartered bus, a four-hour trip, today.

New Pontiac Pro '5' Gets Piston Hopeful

Rebounds are a vital part of a successful basketball team and Pontiac Tomahawks' coach Bob Duffy has bolstered the North American Basketball League team's backboard strength thanks to his friendship with Detroit Pistons mentor Dennis Butcher.

Lacking significant height on the Tomahawks' early roster, Duffy jumped at Butcher's suggestion that 6-7 Jim Patterson of Hamilton, Ohio, be given a tryout in Pontiac.

The former Miami of Ohio star rebounder has signed a contract with the Tomahawks — newest members of the eight-team NABL pro circuit—after impressing with his jump shooting and minus under the boards.

Butcher recommended Patterson to Duffy after seeing his potential in the Pistons' early camp at Marysville last month.

Patterson thus joins 6-5 Joe Maddrey of Grand Rapids as signed players with the new Pontiac pros. Maddrey has been a strong performer for several seasons with Muskegon of the NABL.

Patterson led Miami's Redskins in scoring and rebounding during his senior season (1965-66), and is one of the leading retrieve artists in the Ohio school's cage history.

ALL-STATE

He was an All-State center on the 1962 state championship Hamilton High School team, and his displayed sharp enough outside shooting to play at a forward slot.

The Tomahawks have been reduced to their basic 15 players and Duffy, former All-America guard at Colgate University where he also coached the varsity for three years, now is developing the offensive and defensive routines needed to instill team unity.

The squad will have team pictures taken this Saturday at its Madison JHS workout, then have a regular scrimmage session that afternoon at Pontiac Northern High School.

Season tickets orders are being taken at the Pontiac Football Company office downtown, Griff's Grill, Osmun's Men Store and the VFW Post on South Saginaw.

Adult season tickets are $15 for the 12 games and student ticket packages are $7.50. They are the only reserved seats that will be sold for Tomahawk games.

Regular season unserved tickets will be $2 and $1 per game.

Elliott May Try New QB to Lift Sagging Wolverines

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Michigan Coach Bump Elliott, trying to untangle his Wolverines from under a three-game losing streak, said Tuesday he may start junior Dennis Brown at quarterback in place of senior Dick Vidmer against unbeaten Indiana Saturday.

"We may start Brown," said Elliott, who put his club through the second straight day of heavy contact work in a steady drizzle. "He looked pretty good in the second half against Michigan State, and he runs better than Vidmer."

Vidmer, starting quarterback since his junior year, tied a Big Ten record with 10 touchdown passes last season while completing 117 of 226 aeriels for 1,611 yards.

But with All-American end Jack Clancy gone, the big senior from Greensburg, Pa., has failed to regain his 1966 form.

In Michigan's first four games, Vidmer has hit on only 37 of 84 passes for 364 yards and has yet to throw a touchdown pass. He has six interceptions already, compared with seven all last year.

TOUGH TIME

"Vidmer has had a tough year," said Elliott. "A lot of his passes have been dropped, including a couple that might have gone for touchdowns against Michigan State."

Vidmer managed only five completions in 15 tries in the first half of the 34-0 loss to MSU last Saturday.

Brown took over in the second half and hit on six of 17 aeriels for 48 yards, and had a promising scoring drive halted with an interception.

SPARTANS INDOORS

EAST LANSING (AP) — Heavy rain forced Michigan State University football team to work indoors Tuesday at Jensen Fieldhouse in preparation for Saturday's Big Ten game with Minneapolis.

The Spartans are seeking their 17th straight conference victory which would tie them with Ohio State for the Big Ten record for the longest conference winning streak.

Spartans, Michigan Top Grid Attraction

NEW YORK (AP) — The 103,216 fans who watched Michigan State beat Michigan 39-0 last Saturday made up the second largest college football crowd in the 20 years that records have been kept, the NCAA announced today.

The record is 103,235—just 25 spectators more—and was set in 1959 in Ann Arbor, Mich., also for the Michigan-Michigan State game.

In all, the 10 best-attended games last weekend drew 643,789 fans, fourth largest total in history.

The top 10's four-week total is 2,535,337, far ahead of last year's record pace of 2,344,170.

Service Clubs Gather

Rah, Rah F-Birds

That fraternity spirit, post-college day style, will prevail at Wisner Stadium Saturday night when the Pontiac Firebirds face the Lansing All-Stars in a key Midwest Football League game.

Nearly 1,000 members from Pontiac area service clubs and fraternal organizations will attend the game to engage in some college-style "rah rah" competition.

"This is a good time and place to let loose," said Tom Kennedy, president of the Pontiac Optimist Club, "which expects a 100-man section at the game. Six other groups have also reserved sections.

"I think we should be favored to win the cheering competition, we've got the loudest vocal cords around," he said in jest.

The Firebirds will rule as 10 point favorites over the Lansing squad, but coach Tom Tracy is concerned over his offensive backfield which may have its top two runners out.

Larry Goldsworthy is out for the season with a fractured ankle, and fullback Bill Apala is also hobbled with a pulled hamstring.

Marty Maltin, the star of last week's 26-0 win over Detroit may start at running back.

Maltin, along with linebackers Jon Izer and Dale Fry are Ohio gridders and they will have a cheering section of their own as a large contingent of Ohioans from the Mansfield area have purchased a block of tickets for the contest.

The largest Firebird crowd of the season, possibly 5,000, is expected for the 7:30 p.m. kickoff at Wisner Stadium.

Can you imagine a pro football game in which a team threw NO passes? ... Surprisingly, there have been five different games in National Football League history in which a team didn't throw any passes. ... Last time it happened was in 1950 when the Cleveland Browns threw no passes in a game against Philadelphia.

Here's a boxing oddity ... Did you know there is one record in boxing history when there was a new heavyweight champ every year for 5 straight years? ... The heavy-weight champion of the world in 1931 was Max Schmeling ... In 1932 Schmeling lost the title to Jack Dempsey ... In 1933 Schmeling lost it to Primo Carnera ... In 1934 Carnera lost it to Max Baer ... And in 1935 Baer lost it to Jim Braddock.

Every football team in the country has a nickname, but do you know which team had the first nickname in football history? ... It was Princeton, which began calling its teams "Tigers" in the 1880s.

Toronto Losing Baseball Club

International League to Auction Franchise

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Professional baseball in Toronto, Canada, died here Tuesday afternoon, at the ripe old age of 83.

The death certificate was a telegram sent by the president of the Maple Leafs, Bob Hunter, to the head of the once-sprawling International League, George Sisler Jr.

In the message, Hunter authorized the league to act as an agent to sell the Toronto ball club for a price upwards of $60,000.

Sisler then appointed Harold M. Cooper, general manager of the Columbus Jets, to act as the auctioneer.

Trojans' Ace Simpson Tops Yard Gainers

NEW YORK (AP) — A decisive factor in the rise of the nation's top two college football teams, Southern California and Purdue, can be traced to the remarkable showing of O. J. Simpson and Mike Phipps, according to statistics released today by the NCAA's National Collegiate Sports Service.

Simpson of USC, remains the major college rushing leader with 752 yards in five games. The junior halfback, who sparked the No. 1 ranked Trojans to their 24-7 victory over Notre Dame last Saturday, carried 38 times for 150 yards and all three touchdowns in the win over the Irish.

Phipps, a sophomore quarterback, is the nation's No. 2 offensive leader with 1,067 yards rushing and passing. Last Saturday, Phipps gained 250 yards in 29 plays in Purdue's 41-6 defeat of Ohio State. The leader in this category is Terry Stone of New Mexico, only 29 yards ahead of Phipps.

Dodger Flavor on Mets' Staff

Gil Hodges Bringing Coaches From Nats

NEW YORK (AP) — There will be a distinctly Dodger touch about the New York Mets' braintrust next season.

New Manager Gil Hodges, a longtime Dodger great who is in Brooklyn and Los Angeles, announced his coaching staff at a press conference Tuesday.

Hodges is bringing with him his entire staff from Washington, where he managed the Senators to a sixth-place tie with Baltimore last season. Joe Pignatano and Ruben Walker, two former Dodger catchers, who coached under him in Washington, are following Gil to New York.

The other Met coaches will be Eddie Yost, a New York native who played over 2,000 games at third base for Washington, and halodover Yogi Berra, the lone survivor from last year's coaching staff.

Yost will coach at first, Berra will continue at first and Pignatano and Walker will work in the bullpen, Hodges said.

Teams Dueling in Ryder Play

Small Ball Gains Players' Approval

HOUSTON (AP) — Top U.S. golfers indicated today they prefer the smaller British ball which this country's players may use in the Ryder Cup matches.

Ben Hogan, the nonplaying captain of the U.S. team, said he will leave it up to each player to determine whether he will use the larger U.S. ball or the smaller British ball.

Both balls weigh the same 1.68 ounces but the British ball has a circumference of 1.62 compared to 1.68 for the American ball.

The 16-man British team spent its first full day on the 7,118-yard par 71 Cypress Creek layout at the swank champions Golf Club course Tuesday where the three days of international competition gets under way Friday.

Some members of the U.S. team still were arriving while the Britishers practiced in the bright sunshine.

The aged, gray horse, who helped win the United States silver medal in the 1964 Olympics, hurdled a wall one inch higher than the previous record established last year by Canadian rider of the Canadian Equestrian team, and Sam Lucas of the U.S. team.

Canadian Club, again competing with Jim Day of King, Ont., in the saddle, equalled the old mark but failed to clear the wall after it had been raised to 6-10 on the fifth jump off. The chestnut gelding finished second, wall after it had been raised to chestnut gelding finished second.

1966 Planting Triggered Coho Fever in State

Salmon May Be Answer to Revitalized Fishing on Great Lakes

(This is the first of a three-part series on salmon fishing in Michigan.)

By DON VOGEL
It started 18 months ago when $50,000 rainbow trout-like fish, 5 to 7 inches long, were planted in three Michigan streams.
The overall result of this attempt to revitalize sport and commercial fishing in the upper Great Lakes and bring under control the huge population of alewives will not be known for a number of years.

But one part of the experiment has proved to be a smashing success.
Coho salmon fishing along the northwestern Lower Peninsula shoreline of Lake Michigan has exploded beyond the wildest dream of even the most optimistic.

Manistee, for instance, was caught flatfooted Labor Day weekend. Restaurants ran out of food, gasoline tanks in service stations and marinas were pumped dry; empty motel, hotel and resort rooms were nonexistent and anglers waited for hours to launch their boats.
Coho Fever continued to rage unabated from Manistee north to Pointe Betsie near Frankfort. Anglers swarmed onto Lake Michigan in everything from rafts to yachts in an attempt to catch these fish that had grown to 20 pounds since being released in the Platte River and Bear Creek.

Over 2,000 boats of varying size were observed on the lake one September weekend. The inevitable happened in mid-September. Lake Michigan can become nasty in a hurry.
It is a noted graveyard of lake going freighters and ore carriers. Anglers, ignoring storm warnings and Coast Guard advice, and many being ill equipped, were caught by a wind-blown storm. Seven died.
How did this Coho Fever start?

Many factors are involved, but two top the list — the sea lamprey and alewife. Both entered the Great Lakes via the St. Lawrence River.
The 1967 pheasant season may open on a sour note — because of a lack of ringneck pheasant contest will make at least two nimrod happy.
Gunning for the wily ringneck and his small game brethren, the grouse, rabbit and squirrel, opens Friday in Southern Michigan. All hunting is prohibited in the Lower Peninsula the first day until 11 a.m. This is one hour later than in previous years.

For many years the lake laker was almost eliminated from Lake Michigan.
Conservation Department fish experts, alarmed by the near collapse of sport and commercial fishing on lakes Michigan, Huron and Superior decided that a fast growing predator fish that spawned in streams away from egg and fry-eating alewives and chubs was the answer.
They were able to do this because a selective poison had been developed in the early 1950s that was to eventually cut the high mark of the lamprey in Superior and Michigan by 90 per cent, thus giving fish a chance to survive without fighting a losing struggle against these blood-sucking eels. Treatment of Lake Huron lamprey spawning streams started last spring.
Because they are a fast grower, Coho salmon were ideal for the experiment. They would glut themselves on alewives, department experts hope — if they survived in fresh water.

Survive they did and skin divers report observing salmon tearing large schools of alewives to shreds.
First experiments dealt with Kokanee salmon, a fish that grows to a maximum of 18 inches and has proved successful on inland lakes in other states. These were stocked in Higgins and Torch lakes in 1965, but apparently have failed to take hold.
BIG MOVE
But the big move was aimed at the Great Lakes. One million Coho eggs were obtained from Oregon in the fall of 1964 and 850,000 survived when hatched the following spring. These small Coho were raised in the hatchery for over a year before being stocked in April 1966.
The Bear is a tributary of the Manistee and the Platte flows into Lake Michigan just north of Frankfort. The other planting was made in the Big Huron River which flows into Lake Superior.
An additional planting was made last spring with the Little Manistee and the Upper Peninsula's Thompson Creek being added to the Coho list.
In addition, one million fingerling Chinook salmon were divided between the Muskegon and Little Manistee. These "kings" average twice the size of Coho and take four years, more than the Coho, to mature.
Both Cohos and Chinooks die after spawning. This is why Michigan is continuing to obtain eggs from Oregon, Washington and Alaska. Salmon must be stocked each year until mature fish run each fall.
This will enable Michigan to collect its own eggs and keep the annual cycle going so that sports fishermen will benefit, business will prosper in salmon towns, commercial angling may get a shot in the arm and the pesky alewife will no longer be the scourge of the lakes.

Sky-Busters Blasting Away

Hunting at Flats May Change

Sky-busting at high flying ducks is becoming a way of hunting on the St. Clair Flats this fall and Conservation Department game experts don't like it.
They are becoming so chagrined at this method that there is strong sentiment for restricting future hunting around the refuges. Currently, any number of nimrods can hunt there.

three-inches, and when they can't get them, they settle for the short magnums."
TWO PROBLEMS
Shooting at ducks just barely within range and completely out of reach causes two problems, according to waterfowl experts. The ducks are spooked away from hunters with decoy sets who might get good shooting if the ducks were permitted to "come down."

Many ducks are wounded and fly away to agonizing deaths.
Shooting at high fliers isn't restricted to Lake St. Clair.
Saginaw Bay, Pointe Mouillee, Houghton Lake and other popular spots are becoming crowded with sky shooters. Even the better inland lakes, such as Pontiac, have too many for good decoy shooting.

The number of violations is up, too, this season, according to District Law Supervisor George Brusco.
"We've made 54 arrests so far in the district (Oakland, Wayne, Macomb and part of St. Clair counties)," he pointed out. Most of them are for shooting too early and not having the gun plugged to limit it to a three-shot capacity.
"The late shooting hasn't been too bad, although there is some."
Justices of the peace are handing out fines and costs of up to $30 each for violating the shooting time (sunset to sunrise) regulation.
"Any ducks shot while violating the time rules also cost the hunter," said the supervisor. "This additional fine averages $5 to $10 per duck, depending on the species."

Hunting pressure remains strong on the Flats, but the high shooters are keeping results below average. Good hunting for geese continues on Saginaw Bay and northern flights of divers are now appearing.

Cleaning Job Is Too Good

A number of hunters re-entering the United States after shooting ducks and geese in Canada are being arrested at customs check points for game violations.
Indians working for guides are doing too good a job of cleaning the fowl.
Federal regulations state that at least one wing of migratory waterfowl must still have all its feathers when being transported in the United States.
The Indians are plucking all feathers before packaging the birds for transportation. When the hunters drive up to customs on the American side of the line, U.S. Fish and Game men check the packages.
Those having ducks and geese plucked are being ticketed.

"It's getting so that even the fellows down in the marshes are shooting at ducks out of range," said Leo Pospichal, manager of the Flats game area.
"The pathetic part is that the ducks want to get into the marsh. It used to be that only those on the edges and dikes shot at the high fliers.
"But with those in the marshes doing the same, the ducks aren't about to drop in."
Howard Greene, district game biologist, indicates that a recommendation to place the southern half of Harsen's Island and other areas around the refuges on a limited hunting basis may be in the works.
"Something has to be done," said Greene. "It isn't duck hunting any more over there. Possibly going to one blind every 25 acres will help."

"This won't necessarily cut out the sky busters, but it will give the ducks a better chance to get into the marshes and this will mean better shooting. The way it is now, the ducks fly over one firing line after another.
Pospichal turned up another point while talking with a local sporting goods dealer near the Flats.
"He told me the same hunters are coming in every other day — some every day — and purchasing magnum shotgun shells. They want magnums,

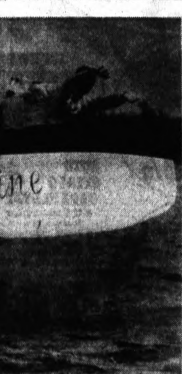

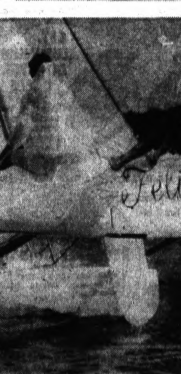

There are pheasants in good numbers in certain areas, say Conservation Department game experts, but they also admit that these "spots" are few and far between.
"The hunting definitely will be spotty," said Howard Greene, district game biologist for the Pontiac Lake office. "I do know that good dogs are going to be a must this year."
Harsen's Island, which has been an above average opening day site, is down this year, according to the supervisor.
"It is disastrous that this should occur at the very time Michigan is on the threshold of tremendous economic expansion stemming from recent developments in sport salmon fishing and related outdoor recreational programs," Cawthorne said in a letter to Romney.
He said the extra money should go for construction and operation of fish hatcheries, state park expansion, acquisition of hunting lands, and state matching funds which would allow Michigan to take full advantage of federal aid for recreational development.

They are becoming so chagrined at this method that there is strong sentiment for restricting future hunting around the refuges. Currently, any number of nimrods can hunt there.

Prospects may be a little better in the large corn and sugar beet fields of southern Monroe and Emmet counties. Southwestern Michigan's pheasant numbers, high the last couple of years, have declined considerably.

With the pheasant cycle continuing on the downhill side, more hunters are turning to the elusive ruffed grouse in Southern Michigan. The "pat" population is expected to be about the same as a year ago.
Some of the better grouse spots in the area are around Holdridge lake in the Holly recreation area, the Ortonville recreation area and adjacent farms, north of Hadley, the Mayville and Tuscola game areas and the Minden City game area.
More farms are being opened to hunting this year under the federal sponsored Agricultural Conservation Program. Permits must be picked up at the farmer's house. Signs posted on the farms indicate which ones are participating in the program.

Not all of a farm has to be open to hunting; only that part placed in the program. And the farm's representative reserves the right to refuse admission if those seeking it act unruly or have been drinking.

They are becoming so chagrined at this method that there is strong sentiment for restricting future hunting around the refuges. Currently, any number of nimrods can hunt there.

three-inches, and when they can't get them, they settle for the short magnums."
TWO PROBLEMS
Shooting at ducks just barely within range and completely out of reach causes two problems, according to waterfowl experts. The ducks are spooked away from hunters with decoy sets who might get good shooting if the ducks were permitted to "come down."

Many ducks are wounded and fly away to agonizing deaths.
Shooting at high fliers isn't restricted to Lake St. Clair.
Saginaw Bay, Pointe Mouillee, Houghton Lake and other popular spots are becoming crowded with sky shooters. Even the better inland lakes, such as Pontiac, have too many for good decoy shooting.

The number of violations is up, too, this season, according to District Law Supervisor George Brusco.
"We've made 54 arrests so far in the district (Oakland, Wayne, Macomb and part of St. Clair counties)," he pointed out. Most of them are for shooting too early and not having the gun plugged to limit it to a three-shot capacity.
"The late shooting hasn't been too bad, although there is some."
Justices of the peace are handing out fines and costs of up to $30 each for violating the shooting time (sunset to sunrise) regulation.
"Any ducks shot while violating the time rules also cost the hunter," said the supervisor. "This additional fine averages $5 to $10 per duck, depending on the species."

Hunting pressure remains strong on the Flats, but the high shooters are keeping results below average. Good hunting for geese continues on Saginaw Bay and northern flights of divers are now appearing.

At Imlay City Site

District Office Going Up

Ground has been broken for the new $130,000 Imlay City headquarters building of the Conservation Department.
Imlay City is the center of the Eleventh Conservation District which serves all or parts of six surrounding counties — Lapeer, Genesee, St. Clair, Sanilac, Tuscola and Huron.
The new modern structure will be located on the east side of M53 north of Borland and is expected to be completed by Aug. 1, 1968. The general contractor is McCormick Building Supply Co. of Lapeer.

The building is to be one story with 3,500 square feet of space allocated for 10 offices for district supervisors of game, fish, parks, geology, forestry, law enforcement and fire. Also to be included are lounges, a radio room and a conference room.
The new district office for Pontiac Lake is nearing completion and may be ready in November. It is located at Gale and Williams Lake in the Pontiac Lake recreation area.

Lawmaker Urges Additional Funds for Conservation

LANSING (AP)—A freshman Republican from northern Michigan is urging that Gov. Romney include a $4.5 million Conservation Department appropriation on the Legislature's fall agenda.
Rep. Dennis Cawthorne, R-Manistee, said the department "is currently facing a severely restrictive budget that threatens to cripple nearly every phase of the state's game, fish and parks management."
"It is disastrous that this should occur at the very time Michigan is on the threshold of tremendous economic expansion stemming from recent developments in sport salmon fishing and related outdoor recreational programs," Cawthorne said in a letter to Romney.
He said the extra money should go for construction and operation of fish hatcheries, state park expansion, acquisition of hunting lands, and state matching funds which would allow Michigan to take full advantage of federal aid for recreational development.

Utica Nimrods Collect Moose

UTICA — Five lucky Utica hunters returned this week from a week-long trip into northern Ontario bush country each bringing a moose carcass home weighing from 500-1,000 pounds. The lucky sportsmen are Larry and Keith Brantley, Ken Spry, Bill Unison, and Albert D. Brantley.

The link-and-link stitched cardigan sweater shown here has comfortable bell sleeves... and is color-keyed to complement the mock turtleneck knit shirt with short sleeves. The shirt is in the new textured tones with a contrasting solid collar. Both the sweater and shirt are styled in pure wash-and-wearable Orlon® in shades of wheat, olive, light blue, gold or rust. S, M, L, EX. Sweater is $16; the shirt is $11.

Books, Smiles in Soviet Store

Moscow Clerks Take Page From the West

MOSCOW (AP) — Muscovites, long accustomed to dark, cramped stores staffed by surly clerks, now throw to a book store where salesclerks offer a friendly smile.

At the new, block-long Moskovsky Dom Knigi—Moscow House of the Book—one customer struggling with a load of books was amazed to hear a sales clerk offer to tie them together.

"That way, they'll be easier to carry," the pretty blonde salesclerk said.

On the counter was a sign: "We thank you for your purchase, come more often."

NEW BEHAVIOR

In the Soviet Union, where most stores act as if the customer is always wrong, such behavior is almost unheard of.

In addition to smiles and helpfulness, customers in the two-story building were greeted by soothing recorded music, clean and roomy aisles, good lighting, a snack bar and a selection of 35,000 book titles.

The store itself, with a handsome black-glass-and-steel facade, is part of a booming downtown shopping center under construction on Kalinin Street, once the site of crumbling yellow slums.

CONSTRUCTION HURRIED

Although progress at the construction site has been slow, it is being hurried to completion, possibly in time for the Nov. 7 celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The book store—and other modern buildings—are being billed in anniversary-year propaganda as proof of the Communist party's concern for consumers.

Concern for the consumer is mixed with party ideology in the book store.

PROFANE

Seven corners offer obvious Communist propaganda. Others have books with a more indirect party message.

The fiction department is well stocked with works by the militant conservative novelist Mikhail A. Solokhov but lacks works by the liberal writer Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn, who has criticized censorship here.

Elsewhere in the store, customers do a brisk business in illustrated art books, science manuals, English textbooks for language students and photo albums of movie stars. One long corner specializes in stamps for collectors.

Defendant Wed in Court Recess

CHICO, Calif. (AP) — A judge recessed a hearing for a young man charged with armed robbery, officiated at the man's wedding, then resumed the hearing and ordered him to spend his honeymoon in jail.

James Blake Miller, 21, was brought into court Tuesday for a preliminary hearing on charges of robbing a liquor store. Moments later, a girl entered the courtroom, presented judicial District Court Judge Eldred E. Wolford with a marriage license and asked if he would do the honors.

Welford ordered a 10-minute recess, joined Miller and Clara Rebecca Brown, 19, in holy matrimony, resumed the hearing and then ordered the groom back to jail to await further legal proceedings.

Mom Arms Self for Visit to Jail

BOSTON (AP) — Mrs. Tina Martin, 47, was about to enter Charles Street Jail Tuesday to visit her son John, awaiting trial on a morals charge, when the jail's metal detector went off.

She was grabbed by two guards who found a loaded revolver in her handbag, jail officials said.

Mrs. Martin was charged with illegal possession of a firearm.

A computer is being developed to teach Americans Chinese.

Factory Discotheque 'In' Thing in LA

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Mod couples writhe to the blasts of a rock band called the Gordian Knot.

Members' felt-pen scrawls ornament the men's room: "Sophia Loren wasn't built in a day." "Love thy neighbor—but don't get caught."

You ride the freight elevator up to this new, second-floor discotheque, "The Factory." And what other can boast that it's the birthplace of World War II's famous nuclear bombings?

The factory—which is what it really used to be—produces a new private hangout for nightly fun until 4 a.m. Open six weeks, it has left their posher but smaller former rendezvous, the Daisy, seeming like a dull night at the county morgue.

STAR-STUDDED CROWD

It has had capacity crowds of 1,700. Regulars include Frank and Mia Sinatra, Barbra Streisand, Omar Sharif, Michael Caine, Tony Curtis and Gregory Peck. Johnny Carson relaxed there nightly after his shows during a recent two-week stand in Hollywood.

The three-story steel building with wire-reinforced windows is on an old West Hollywood street. Almost next door are a lumber yard and a blacksmith shop.

The place was long vacant, with most of its windows boarded, when leased by nine vivacious, including Sammy Davis Jr., Peter Lawford, Anthony Newley, Paul Newman and Pierre Salinger. They spent $200,000 on renovation and decoration.

There are two bars, 90 tables and countless black leather seats, illuminated stained-glass panels, wood-and-brick archways, carved recesses from Hearst's San Simeon warehouse, and three massive chandeliers from Chicago's old Palmer House hotel. In the back room are four pool tables and two barber chairs and several church pews for spectators.

AMMAN, Jordan, (AP) — About 1,000 people were made homeless Tuesday by floods that swept through a refugee camp at Souf. Thirteen thousand live in the camp.

Synthetic Proteins Gain

STATUES MOCK PROPAGANDA—The East German Communists say there is no such thing as an all-German culture. It is a difficult slogan to sell since, for example, the great German poets Goethe (left) and Schiller lie buried in Weimar, East Germany, where this statue stands, but they were born in what is now West Germany.

Hope for Communication via ESP May Be Phone-y

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—It has been announced that a mentalist named Kreskin plans to set up a coast-to-coast telephonic work over which messages will be transmitted by extra-sensory perception (ESP).

Although brainwaves will be the main carrier, Kreskin said his research indicated that "certain vestigial organs in the body, like ear muscles, could possibly be used in ESP transmission."

Oh, my! I do hate to see things like this happen. For it inevitably means that ESP will eventually be operated in the same fashion as AT&T.

SCENE I

It is 2 a.m. You are peacefully slumbering in your room while visions of sugar plums dance through your head. Suddenly you become aware that your ears are twitching. Someone is trying to reach you via ESP.

You fight your way to consciousness and force yourself to concentrate in order to receive the message. Finally it comes through.

"Hello. Is Charlie there?"

"Charlie who?"

"Charlie Flingball."

"You must have the wrong brainwave."

By now, of course, you are wide awake and it takes two cups of warm milk to send you back to the land of nod.

SCENE II

It is 6 p.m. This time you are in the shower when the ear-twitching starts. At first you ignore it. Then you become concerned that it might be something important. You turn off the water and give an answering flex of the ear muscles.

SCENE III

The next day you apply to Kreskin for an unlisted brainwave.

SCENE IV

You are out of town on a business trip and urgently need to contact your home. You try to reach your wife by ESP. You can't remember the area code.

SCENE V

You need to get in touch with the deputy assistant secretary of a government agency. Your brainwave is intercepted by his secretary who asks you to hold. Thirty minutes later you are still holding. Then your brainwave is disconnected.

SCENE VI

A clinic for junior high school cheerleaders will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday at Waterford Township's Mason Junior High School, 3835 W. Walton.

Sponsored by the Michigan Division of Girls' and Women's Sports (DGWS), the clinic is open to all junior high school cheerleaders.

Soviet Spacecraft Lands on Venus

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today its unmanned spacecraft Venus 4 made a soft landing on cloud-shrouded Venus and transmitted data showing a temperature range from 104 to 465 degrees Fahrenheit.

The planet's atmospheric pressure varied from the equivalent of that of the earth to about 15 times as great, the announcement said.

"The measurements have shown that the atmosphere consists almost exclusively of carbon dioxide," it was added. "Hydrogen and vapors account for about 1 1/2 per cent, and no noticeable traces of nitrogen were detected."

Signals from the spacecraft's instruments were monitored in Britain for an hour and a half after they apparently landed on Venus.

Related Story, Page A-5

believed the moment when the craft hit the planet's surface. Fifteen seconds later, the observatory picked up new signals, fainter and different in tone.

"The is tremendous, amazing," Sir Bernard Lovell, Jodrell Bank's director said. "The signals we are now receiving are coming from the surface of the planet Venus. It seems that the Russians know for the first time what the surface of Venus is like."

The signals ceased at 2:14 a.m. EDT, after more than one and a half hours, and Lovell said the instruments might have been switched off.

Soviet scientists made no immediate announcement. In fact, Lovell said he got a telephone call from a man at the Communist party newspaper Pravda in Moscow who had heard nothing from Soviet sources and wanted to find out what happened to Venus 4.

But it seemed that the Soviet Union had successfully sent a 2,438-million-mile four-month course in an effort to unlock some of the secrets of earth's cloud-covered sister planet 43 million miles away.

10 PREVIOUS SHOTS

U.S. sources said 10 previous Venus shots and seven Mars shots, not all of them reported by the Russians, had failed.

The 540-pound U.S. Mariner 5 space craft is due to fly past Venus at a distance of 2,500 miles tomorrow morning, carrying instruments to measure the planet's diameter and aspects of its atmosphere. The United States has launched two probes toward Mars and three toward Venus, with one of each termed successful.

He said he believed the instruments were transmitting data of "inconceivable value" and added: "Quite apart from the technical achievements, which are amazing, one cannot overlook the tremendous scientific importance of this experiment."

Mstislav V. Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, told a news conference in Moscow yesterday that Venus 4's main task was to study the Venutian atmosphere and that it would take no pictures. He said all the craft's equipment was working well as it neared the planet.

Fair, Warmer Is Prediction for Tomorrow

The weatherman promises fair and warmer tomorrow after bringing soaking rains for the past week.

Showers started falling on Oct. 8 then continued on and off every day except Oct. 11 and Oct. 14 when skies were overcast.

The outlook for tonight is clear and colder with the low dipping into the 30s. Rainfall measured 2.85 inches in downtown Pontiac so far this month.

Partly cloudy and warmer is the outlook for Friday.

Clouded skies gave viewers little chance of seeing the eclipse forecast for early this morning.

Today's morning winds at 10 to 20 miles per hour are expected to continue northwesterly.

The low recording prior to 8 a.m. was 42. By 1 p.m. the mercury had warmed up to 51.

Blackout Hits London

LONDON (UPI) — Sections of central London were blacked out today for one hour by a switch gear fault at an electricity board substation. Hardest hit was London's newspaper district of Fleet Street.

Taubman Exits, Leaving Door Open for Future

Developer A. Alfred Taubman yesterday acknowledged the defeat of his plan for a redeveloped downtown Pontiac.

In a letter to Mayor William H. Taylor Jr., received yesterday, Taubman said he received word from Sears Roebuck & Co. that the company did not wish to locate a new downtown store in the Urban renewal area with "deep regret."

Taubman, however, did not entirely rule himself out of future redevelopment plans.

"We appreciate the confidence the city and staff has shown in us. Any time we can be of further assistance do not hesitate to call on us," the Oak Park developer wrote.

Although the City Commission last night agreed to pass a resolution next week formally ending the year-long working agreement with Taubman, Taylor indicated he has not entirely given up on the idea of Taubman as a developer of the downtown area.

In an exchange last night with Donald R. Frayer, president of the Citizens Committee for Pontiac's Positive Progress, Taylor said Taubman is one of the few persons able to bring together a real estate development of the magnitude required in the downtown area.

Frayer had different thoughts, however, and called Taubman a "developer who has failed." He asked the commission to put up the downtown urban renewal land for sale to interested qualified developers.

Although Frayer said he was pledging the support of the CCPPP, Taylor seemed to take a dim view of Frayer's proposals.

"You've had a whole year to fire remarks at this commission and Taubman," Taylor said.

"Now that it's over (the agreement with Taubman), where are your developers?" Taylor asked.

Frayer said developers can be found who would be able to build in the downtown area. He requested that the city give the CCPPP authority, in writing, to act as an appointed city agent in finding a developer.

He said such an authorization "put in writing" would enable the CCPPP "to go out and do the proper job."

Ford Talks Resume

DETROIT (AP) — As Board Chairman Henry Ford II stood by only a few floors above, negotiators for the United Auto Workers and the Ford Motor Co. spent another long night bargaining yesterday, then adjourned until today.

Neither side had any comment, after the 13-hour session, in keeping with a news blackout that has curtailed talks for more than a week.

Reached by the Associated Press, however, and asked about his presence in the Ford headquarters near midnight, the board chairman said "I am up here quite often at night."

"You will have to ask Walter Reuther about that," he said when asked if settlement in the 42-day strike was near.

Despite a marathon session—first yet —that ended at 3:15 a.m. yesterday and the fact that bargainers hastened back to the tangle only a few hours later, a source close to the talks said yesterday that he was "pessimistic" a settlement was close, even if bargaining held to its present pace through today.

UNCONFIRMED REPORTS

There have been reports, unconfirmed, that both sides were about three or four cents apart on a contract that would increase benefits by some 90 cents an hour in three years.

According to these reports, issues of principle such as contracting out work to employees other than the company's were blocking settlement.

No Rights Link in Unrest—Hanger

By ED BLUNDEN

Pontiac Police Chief William K. Hanger said last night recent civil disturbances had nothing to do with civil rights.

Addressing the Oakland County Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers, Hanger termed the disturbances a confrontation of "the lawful and the lawless." He spoke at Devon Gables on Telegraph and Long Lake Road, Bloomfield Township.

He said he was giving his personal evaluation and lashed out at "black power" advocates and the clergy and their roles in recent disturbances.

"Sniping and looting," he said, had racial and political overtones, but had "nothing to do with civil rights."

The persons caught looting, both Negro and white, and selling the stolen goods on the black market were those with past criminal records, he said.

'FOR PERSONAL GAIN'

"They were only interested in personal gain," he said.

In discussing the clergy, Hanger said in the last 10 years they have greatly altered their role from "administering the churches and giving guidance and wisdom."

He cited two recent reports from Milwaukee where on one hand a Catholic priest was urging parents to keep their children out of school to bring pressure for an open-housing act and on the other hand another Catholic priest was fighting integration of his parish by Negro families.

WILLIAM K. HANGER

"These men degrade religion," Hanger added.

The police chief indicated he expected more civil disturbances in the future and predicted they would continue until the "law-abiding element stops it with concerted action."

He said the "lawful element" must demand action by officials and then give active support.

'NO COMPROMISE'

"There can be no compromise with the integrity of the law," he said.

A contributing factor to the larger disturbances, he claimed, has been participation in "civil disobedience" by many public officials. Hanger terms this practice of "breaking little laws for a good cause" a dangerous course that such men as FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover have warned against.

Hanger said it was ironic and tragic that the principal victims of the recent disturbances in metropolitan areas has been minority groups such as Negroes and Jews, who have been most active in civil rights.

A second speaker, Carl Heffernan, inspector in the Citizens Complaint Bureau of Detroit, said "a new spirit has picked up" in the stricken Detroit areas.

ON PRECINCT LEVEL

One of his jobs is to conduct police-community meetings where citizens and young persons meet with police on precinct problems. This program was hailed as solving many ghetto conflicts until the July riots.

"After that, everyone was pretty downhearted, but now it has picked up again. They don't want to just throw in the sponge," Heffernan said.

Honorary attendants were Mrs. Robert Cooper, the bride's sister-in-law, with the bridegroom's brother, Michael, as best man. Took Time for Living

WEST SHEFFORD, Quebec — Mrs. Toussaint Thibodeau, 100 years old last August, still finds it difficult to remain idle.

Now living with one of her daughters she helps with the housework and spends many hours weaving rugs for her nine children and their families.

Asked what allowed her to reach her centennial year, she replied: "We always took the time to live. I have always had good health and always worked with my husband. It doesn't seem to me that I am as old as this; life has passed so quickly."

Teacher Salaries Up

Why Grow Old?

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Do you remember the story of the tourist who asked the old man, "To what do you attribute your great age, sir?" and received this reply: "I really don't know yet; I'm dicker with two or three patent medicine concerns."

This is an apt illustration of the centuries-old wish of mankind for perpetual life and youth. He have seen it in fact and fiction, whether it was Ponce de Leon's quest for the Fountain of Youth, or a reference to a lama in a Tibetan monastery who had exceeded the two-century mark.

The quest for perpetual life and youth tugs at the heart of each one of us, although, as yet, we have no definite rules to which we may cling. We have all seen persons who seem to break most of the rules and yet live to old age and sometimes this is hard to understand.

On the other hand, science has learned some things about longevity and records show that a larger percentage of both men and women are living to a greater age than they did a generation ago.

If you would like to live to a vital old age eagerly, you can do a good deal to achieve your aim. There are certain things which play an important part in longevity and vitality past middle life.

Of course, heredity cannot be discounted. If you have long-lived parents and grandparents, you have a running start toward your goal. On the other hand, if you do not have these, don't get discouraged for there are other factors which can overcome the handicap of short-lived ancestors.

HAPPY TEMPERAMENT
A happy temperament, a calm and controlled spirit and an optimistic outlook are a great help, and we cannot underestimate their importance. Many of those who have achieved advanced years have been hard workers. Many of them haven't worked hard at all.

What we do see, however, is that in both groups, persons have learned to sidestep the pitfalls created by tensions and destructive mental habits and have learned to shrug off the irritations of life.

Some of those who have lived longest and most vitally are people who found them selves to be at physical low ebb in middle life and who then outlined a plan of living, beat suit to them and stuck to it. It might be said that a physical disability of a mild form can actually add years provided the victim assumes an intelligent attitude toward it.

Danger signals tend to pull us up short and stop abuse where it might otherwise have continued.

Most of us tend to eat too much. Smaller food intake will keep us more vital and eliminate hazards which overeating may cause. A proper amount of outdoor life and exercise, a vitamin and protein rich diet, positive thinking, a happy disposition and a plan for life from middle age on, are the antidotes for early aging and preventives against a short life.

Connie Vanderlind, daughter of the John H. Vanderlinds of Hammond Lake Drive, was recently elected to the Queen's Court during homecoming festivities at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti. Connie is a sophomore.

EASY PECAN RING — A sticky, gooey, oh-so-good Easy Pecan Ring will be a sure fire hit with your family for breakfast next Sunday morning. Serve it with whipped butter and lots of coffee.

Two Quick Breads Add Pleasure to Breakfast

American families are busy now with school and fall activities. Eating habits change, too. . . . Sunday breakfasts are apt to be a little heartier and more lingered over.

Treat your family to something special this next Sunday morning: a fresh homemade bread along with their bacon and eggs.

Biscuits are one of the easiest and quickest hot breads to make and an added extra to two turns them into a special treat with very little work.

EASY PECAN RING

½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup firmly-packed light brown sugar
1 tablespoon corn syrup
½ cup chopped nuts
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon double acting baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 ½ cup solid all-vegetable shortening
¾ cup milk

Combine butter, sugar and corn syrup in small saucepan. Bring to a full boil, stirring constantly. Pour into 5½ cup ring mold tilting pan to cover sides and bottom. Sprinkle chopped nuts evenly over bottom.

Mix flour, baking powder and salt in a bowl. Cut in shortening with a pastry blender, two knives or fork until mixture looks like coarse meal. Add milk and stir until blended.

Transfer dough to floured board. Knead lightly about 10 times. Roll dough ½ inch thick. Cut with 2½ inch floured biscuit cutter.

Stand biscuits on sides in ring pan. Bake in 375 degree (moderate) oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Invert pan onto serving plate, let stand 5 minutes, then remove pan. Serve warm. Makes one ring.

Another quick and easy hot bread is made with sesame seeds.

Sesame Sticks

¾ cup solid all-vegetable shortening
¾ cup butter or margarine
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup solid all-vegetable shortening

¾ cup milk
¾ cup sesame seed
Melt ½ cup shortening and the butter in 8-inch square pan in 400 degree (hot) oven.
Combine flour, salt and baking powder in bowl. Cut in ½ cup shortening until mixture looks like coarse meal. Add milk, stirring just enough to hold dough together.

Roll out on lightly floured surface to a rectangular 6x8-inches and ¼-inch thick. Cut into 4x½-inch strips. Roll in melted butter-shortening mixture and arrange in the same pan. Sprinkle generously with sesame seeds.

Bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes. Serve warm.

Tasty Biscuits Are Made With Two Flours

Here's an everyday biscuit, this time made with wholewheat flour.

4 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup powdered dry milk
½ cup vegetable shortening
¾ cup (about) cold water

In a mixing bowl, stir together thoroughly the flour, the wholewheat flour, baking powder, salt and powdered milk. Cut in shortening until particles are fine.

Gradually stir in enough water to make a soft dough. Roll out on prepared pastry cloth about ½ inch thick. Cut out with a doughnut cutter (with hole part removed) or another, 2½ inch cutter.

Bake in a hot (450-degree) oven for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 10 to 12 biscuits.

Add Fresh Fruit

Make up lemon gelatin (from scratch) and when it begins to thicken fold in a combination of cantaloupe balls and seedless green grapes for a delicious salad or dessert.

58 Americans Killed in Vietnam Ambush

SAIGON (AP) — A veteran while U.S. planes flew close to the Communist regiment ambushed Red China Tuesday to attack two companies of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division in canopied jungles 41 miles north of Saigon Tuesday. After a day of fierce fighting, 58 Americans and at least 100 Communists had been killed and 61 Americans were wounded.

The battle took a costly toll of U.S. officers. Among them were Maj. Don W. Hollender, voted most valuable player on Army's 1965 football team, and Lt. Col. Terry Allen Jr., whose father commanded the 1st Division in Tunisia and Sicily in World War II.

Hollender, a brigade operations officer, had replaced Allen in command of a battalion after the latter was killed. A battalion intelligence officer and a platoon commander also were killed and two company commanders were wounded.

A fresh battalion was sent into the jungle area this morning but made no contact with the enemy.

Only the inevitable field trials with humans remain to prove conclusively that the new vaccine will prevent widespread suffering among countless humans around the world.

Laboratory evaluation and testing with animals indicate the cholera vaccine will work, and Prof. Preter is convinced of its effectiveness, but drug firms won't market a product until public consent after the field trials.

BEHIND STORY

However, a very interesting and seldom told story lurks behind every newspaper headline announcing the development of a new drug or procedure to alleviate human suffering.

This behind-the-scenes story of science involves the long hours, weeks, months, and even years of testing and experimentation — a story of blind alleys which led to discouraging blank walls in many cases.

It is the story in which the courageous scientist on reaching a dead end makes a complete about-face and starts anew, while others give up and go on to something else. Sometimes it is a story of a lifetime.

UNEXPLORED ROAD

Unlike the manufacturer who knows what the end product is going to be, what materials he needs and how to put them together to achieve that end, the researcher is traveling a road that has never been traveled before. Like any explorer, he is traveling a road without the aid of a road map.

This too, is the story behind the development of a vaccine to prevent the scourge of cholera which afflicts people throughout the world, particularly in tropical lands.

Cholera is caused by a short, curved, motile gram-negative bacterium which produces a powerful enterotoxin which is retained within the bacterial cell until the cell disintegrates. Many U.S. soldiers in Vietnam have encountered the ravages of this disease.

CALLED IMPOSSIBLE

Many medical scientists have said in the past, however, that a vaccine for cholera couldn't be developed because there were no antibodies the substance produced by the body to combat a disease, because a method for finding cholera antibodies in the intestine had not been discovered. This belief led to the conclusion that a really effective and reliable vaccine was impossible to produce.

Now, however, U-M researchers have worked out a method of detecting intestinal antibodies in human volunteers. This ability to find antibodies made development of effective cholera vaccine seemingly possible — a blank wall preventing scientific progress had been broken through.

Medical scientists have used an injectable vaccine for many years, but it has not proved very effective. It is believed that it failed to achieve results because the infection in cholera is limited to the intestine and does not spread to other parts of the body.

BLIND ALLEY

Another discouraging blind alley in medical science had been encountered. The organisms were not where the physician immunized with his injection.

But now with the development of an oral vaccine by U-M researchers in the department of microbiology — one that goes directly to the site of the infection — there is new hope, the best yet, for people who live in areas where cholera is rampant.

Since drinking of polluted water is one of the ways in which cholera is spread, pollution control is another preventive measure against this disease. But in countries where cholera is most widespread pollution control is practiced little.

The U.S. Public Health Service, the U.S. Army, and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization are interested in combating this disease and have supported U-M research in this area.

SUMMARY OF BATTLE

This is a brief summary of the battle of science against the dread disease of cholera, and the success of Prof. Preter and his coworkers in apparently developing the most effective weapon yet against its ravages.

But it still does not tell all of the small victories which led to the big one, such as the development by U-M researchers of a method of handling highly oxygen-sensitive bacteria normally found in the intestine.

Panel to Meet on Vocational School Plans

Fifteen businessmen will hold their first meeting tomorrow to advise the Oakland Schools Board of Education on a curriculum for four voter-approved vocational education centers.

Oakland County voters approved a half-mile (50 cents per $1,000 of equalized property valuations) tax in June which is expected to provide about $1.5 million annually to build and operate the centers for public and parochial high school juniors and seniors.

A summary of the development in vocational education will be explained at the initial meeting of the Vocational Advisory Committee by local authorities.

It has been said the centers, on sites to be determined, could be built by spring 1970. Costs of neighborhood environments and human relations are other areas which present challenges to the operation at more than $900,000 school district, Osmon remarked a year.

Get Youth Involved, Educators Are Told

Youth involvement in school programs is needed to reduce the alienation of a large number of youths who sometimes become juvenile delinquents, a group of Pontiac educators were told last night.

Dr. Leonard S. Demak, director of a Wayne County Intermediate School District program called Recapture, Educate, Motivate, Innovate for the Development of Youth (REMIDIY), addressed some 120 Pontiac teachers, administrators and guests in Pontiac.

Demak was substituting for the Dr. Leonard Sain, principal of Detroit's Northern High School, who was to speak to the group at the preconference dinner of the 17th Annual Pontiac Educators' Conference.

About 160 persons are expected to attend the three-day conference in Samaria, Ont., this weekend, according to General Chairman Daniel Hutchens. Theme of the conference is "Social Revolution and Student Behavior."

"Schools can't solve the problems of (alienated and hostile youth) by themselves," Demak said. "But because of the functions expected in society, schools have to tackle cultural and educational problems."

In citing studies on problem students, he suggested that "state" school curriculums need change to provide meaningful learning experiences for the delinquent, malperforming and vulnerable youth.

2 Are Fined for Hunting Birds Early

Two pre-season pheasant hunters have paid fines and costs totaling $95 each for shooting birds Oct. 16 in Richmond Township.

Romeo Conservation Officer Rex Glidden said Randall J. Russ, 6703 Doric, Uica, and Robert A. Schroeder, 33190 School Township, Richmond Township, pleaded guilty before Judge James Schokke in Romeo to shooting, killing and possession of pheasants during the closed season.

Each of the men paid a $75 fine plus $10 in court costs and $100 liquidation fee — the latter, the maximum charge per bird shot out of season as provided by recent state legislation.

Glidden said he was assisted by Michigan State Trooper James Rupp in the arrest.

Memorial Set for Churchill

NEW YORK (AP) — Proceeding from a $100-a-plate publishing industry dinner to night will go to a Winston Churchill memorial being held at Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., where he gave his historic Iron Curtain speech.

Shelton Fisher, dinner chairman, announcing the plan Tuesday, said, "It is fitting that the publishers of America and their associates in the many fields of communications pay homage to this man, who above all others, used words to keep men free."
