MEMORIAL DAY, 1965

Much of Holiday Attention Is on Arlington Ceremonies

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — At each of the 130,000 graves in Arlington National Cemetery, a tiny specially placed American flag flutters for Memorial Day. People come by the hundreds to lay wreaths — at the grave of a relative, a friend or an admired hero — most among groups taking turns conducting brief ceremonies at the Tomb of the Unknowns.

So it has been on Memorial Day year after year, in somewhat similar fashion since 1868. Observances are held at the nation's other 84 national cemeteries, but the Memorial Day focus is on Arlington.

That's because its rolling hills contain the bodies of more noted Americans than any other. They lie among the thousands who won no acclaim nor medals.

A book published on this Memorial Day, "Arlington, Monument to Heroes," recites the names and deeds of many of the most illustrious dead. And it gives in up-to-date detail the history of the hallowed cemetery, taking the reader on a kind of walking tour.

RETIRED COLONEL

The book is by John V. Hinkel, a native of Washington and retired Army Reserve colonel who has long been a student of the lore of the city.

This Memorial Day will attract visitors to the grave of President John F. Kennedy. And Hinkel has a special chapter on this most recent major addition to the cemetery. He describes the daily line of "reverent pilgrims" which flow past "like a river."

Not far away is the grave of Pvt. J. F. Kennedy, who died May 16, 1964 and one of the first buried in Arlington.

Hinkel writes it is ironic that this most revered of cemeteries for American fighting men became a burial place because of an act of spite.

It involved the Custis-Lee mansion which overlooks President Kennedy's grave. That imposing home and land George Washington once owned was built in 1802 by his adopted son, George Washington Parke Custis, to house the first president's relics.

Mary Anne Custis, his daughter, married Robert E. Lee and lived with him there until Lee went off to command the Confederate forces in the Civil War.

The Army quartermaster general in 1862 was Montgomery Meigs, a former Southerner who, Hinkel writes, "kept his most violent diatribes for his own previous commander—Robert E. Lee."

Meigs arranged for the Army to take over the mansion and its sprawling acres and he set out to make uninhabitable the house where Lee had lived. Meigs ordered its rose garden turned into a burial ground for soldiers.

REMEMINDER

The L-shaped row of graves Meigs ordered still remains. So do two other Meigs creations—the tomb of the unknown dead of the War Between the States with the remains of 2,111 unidentified Union soldiers and the Temple of Fame, a memorial to George Washington and to 11 Union leaders.

Meigs himself is buried at Arlington.

The government had seized the mansion and its grounds for $26,800 because neither Lee nor his wife could come forth to pay the taxes on it personally as required by law. The Supreme Court 20 years later voided this.

Thundershowers Will Accompany Warmer Weather

The weatherman reports scattered thundershowers are headed this way, due to arrive tomorrow afternoon or night with temperatures a little warmer. Showers may be expected again Wednesday and near the weekend.

Lows will be near 46 to 54 tonight. High temperatures tomorrow will range from 72 to 80.

This morning's light and variable winds will become southeasterly at 5 to 12 miles this afternoon increasing to 8 to 16 m.p.h. tonight.

Forty-eight was today's low recording prior to 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac. At 11 a.m. the reading was 69.

Traffic Count Moving Closer to Record Toll

Highway Fatalities 40 Per Cent Ahead of 1964 Holiday

By The Associated Press

Deaths in groups of five and even six were rocketing the Memorial Day weekend auto accident toll toward a grim record at the beginning of the last day of the three-day holiday period.

Lives were being snuffed out at the average rate of more than six an hour before the after midnight lull.

Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council, said, "It is conceivable that it could be the worst Memorial Day weekend on record unless motorists change their driving pattern."

With fatalities running 40 per cent ahead of last year's pace, Pyle said, "the toll looks certain to be on the upper end of our estimate."

The council had estimated traffic deaths for the 78-hour weekend, 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight tonight at 430 to 510.

At 9 a.m. EST today the nationwide total was 369.

MANY TRAGEDIES

Among the more spectacular tragedies:

A head-on collision on a desert highway near Needles, Calif., Saturday killed six persons. The only survivor was a 12-year-old girl.

An almost identical crash in the High Sierra foothills near Lane Pine, Calif., killed five persons, among them the parents of the only survivor, an 8-year-old girl.

A collision on a freeway north of San Jose, Calif., killed three men and two women.

Another head-on smashup near Abbeville, La., yesterday took the lives of five teenagers and critically injured two other persons.

5 YOUTHS DIE

Five boys of high school age were killed in a collision outside Gallatin, Tenn.

Three 16-year-old boys and a 26-year-old truck driver died in a crash at an intersection near Grand Island, Neb.

Two boys were killed yesterday near Terre Haute, Ind., when they and their mother stepped out of their stalled car and were run down by another car. The mother was seriously hurt.

A young couple engaged to be married next month was among five persons killed Saturday night in a collision near Upper Sandusky, Ohio. The couple was John Hayman, 20, of Carey, Ohio, and Judith Lucius, 18, of Tiffin, Ohio.

The record number of traffic deaths for a three-day Memorial Day weekend was 431 set last year. The lowest total was 204 in 1948. The record high for any three-day holiday period was 609 during the 1955 Christmas season.

RECORD NUMBER

An Associated Press survey of highway fatalities during 6 p.m. Friday, May 14 to midnight Monday, May 17, tallied 387. In the first three months of 1965, traffic deaths averaged about 100 a day.

No Reports of Injuries

TOKYO (UPI) — A sharp earthquake rocked Tokyo this afternoon. There were no immediate reports of injuries or damage.

The quake hit at 5:38 p.m. (4:38 a.m. EDT).

Official Denies Report Red Chinese Leader Ill

TOKYO (AP) — A Red Chinese official in Peking today denied reports that Mao Tse-tung is seriously ill.

"Chairman Mao is in excellent health. I just saw him yesterday," Liao Cheng-chih, a member of the Chinese Communist party's Central Committee, told a correspondent of the Japanese news agency Kyodo.

The Kyodo correspondent reported that other authoritative sources in the Chinese capital said Mao is in good health and attended a high party meeting yesterday.

Mao, 71, has not been seen in public since April 13 when he received Heng Hui, an associate of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt.

The British government said yesterday it has received reports from Peking that the Chinese Communist leader may have suffered a stroke. The British statement, however, stressed that the reports were speculative and were being treated as such.

Oakland Schools to Seek Half-Mill Tax Hike June 14

By JOE MULLEN

Oakland Schools will seek a half-mill tax increase for special education on the June 14 school election ballot.

One major reason for the millage hike, according to Oakland Schools' officials, is a pressing need to expand its perceptual development and adjusted study programs.

The county school system's special education program was forced to abolish expansion plans in February, 1964 due to a lack of funds.

Since this curtailment date, school superintendents in the county have requested that 17 more perceptual development and nine adjusted study classes be established as soon as funds are available.

The origin and purpose of these phases of special education might best be illustrated by tracing the experiences of a fictional first grader. His name could be Billy.

Pontiac and Cadillac-Reed City, however, have filed for a court order of the Feb. 15 CAB ruling that would permit NCA to drop service to these cities.

The review application would hold off action on the CAB ruling pending a court finding.

The CAB ruled none of the three stops had generated sufficient traffic to justify continuance of NCA service.

Meantime, Pontiac has a second petition before the CAB for southbound air service to Chicago and Cleveland.

Escape Artist Finally Captured

Prison farm escapee Clifford West, captured Saturday after holding a state trooper captive while fleeing police, was demonstrated his will to escape from the moment he walked away from Camp Pontiac in White Lake Township May 7.

State Police figured West, 19, of Monroe, had stolen three cars and a bicycle in his first few hours of freedom early this month.

The two-wheel bike was reported stolen near Lapeer where police found a smashed-up car they suspected the fugitive had stolen.

West was captured Saturday after a wild, 50-mile police chase in Michigan and Ohio. Meantime, the wife of Richard Perry, 35, was tending the family ranch and two young sons while her state trooper-husband was held captive by the armed convict during the high-speed chase.

'NO CHANCE'

"I guess I never had a chance to be worried," said the 29-year-old housewife. "The best thing about this is that I didn't know... until I knew he was safe."

Her husband spent a harrowing hour in the front seat of a stolen car. At the wheel was 19-year-old West.

When Perry stopped West's car near Monroe Saturday, Perry says West pulled a gun and kidnapped him.

ENDS IN CRASH

The chase ended in a crash at Fremont, Ohio, as Perry sought to disarm West. Neither man was seriously injured.

West is held in lieu of $25,000 bond awaiting examination June 8 on charges of kidnapping and assault with intent to murder.

Mrs. Perry said she first learned of her husband's experience when a fellow officer (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Area Man Crushed by Hit-Run Car

A 25-year-old Bloomfield Township man was in critical condition this morning after being struck by a hit-and-run car while he was changing a flat tire.

Arthur W. Landry, 271 Concord, was being treated at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital for severe chest, back and abdominal injuries.

Bloomfield Township police said Landry was changing a left rear tire on the shoulder of West Maple east of Franklin when another vehicle swerved off the road and crushed him against his car.

The five persons in Landry's car said the other vehicle, possibly a light-colored car, continued east on Maple after the 1:56 a.m. incident.

School Loan OK'd for Clarenceville

The State Department of Public Instruction Saturday announced approval of Clarenceville Schools borrowing $100,000 against anticipated state aid.

Similar authorization also was given to several other school districts throughout the state. Highest borrowing authorization was $180,000 for Adrian Schools.

500 Casualties Claimed Over Outpost Clash

Two Americans Listed Among Dead; Planes Hammer Enemy Units

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Air Force and Marine Corps jets struck at Communist positions in Quang Ngai Province today after three days of hard fighting in which an estimated 500 government troops were killed, wounded or missing.

Unofficial reports said two U.S. Army men were killed in the action west of the provincial capital, and that a U.S. airman was wounded.

U.S. officials also reported 155 other government casualties — 35 killed, 20 wounded and 100 missing — at the Khe Tri outpost near the border with North Viet Nam. The Viet Cong overran the post Friday night. A government relief force retook it Saturday.

The Viet Cong struck back, dispersed the relief force and escaped before a second relief force arrived.

In Quang Ngai, 65 miles southeast of the big Da Nang air base, U.S. officials said the Viet Cong appeared to be pulling back.

The government rushed in reinforcements, but a counter-attack was delayed apparently because of bad weather.

2 BATTALIONS

Senior U.S. military sources said they had confirmed the presence of two battalions of North Vietnamese troops in the area 15 miles west of Quang Ngai. They said they were believed to have taken part in an attack on a special forces camp at Ha Tranh. No details were immediately available.

Tiny Texas Town Oasis of Alcohol

IMPACT, Tex. (UPI) — No map shows Impact, and it has no post office, no church, no school. It is a thriving community.

What does Impact have, then? Impact has legal booze, the only legal booze for 40 miles around.

It is an oasis in dry territory, stuck on the edge of the city of Abilene. Impact has been referred to as an "Impact molar."

The Baptist and Methodist churches and Church of Christ operate three colleges in Abilene. It is a dry city of 109,000 residents. The stream of traffic to and from Impact indicates they are either curious or thirsty.

The mayor of Impact — population 20-25 families; size 47 acres — is Dallas Perkins, 39, a former traveling salesman and public relations man.

AVID AD READER
Perkins graduated from selling aspirin into public relations. He formed a public relations firm in Abilene called Impact, Inc. Mrs. Perkins, according to her husband, is an avid reader of classified advertising.

Thus began Impact, Tex., the incorporation of which dry groups and the city of Abilene fought all the way through the State Supreme Court.

The advertisement Mrs. Perkins saw for a two-story house and 20 acres on the north edge of Abilene. The property could be had for very little down and low monthly payments. Perkins decided to buy it.

He said that as he became acquainted with his neighbors, they impressed him with their complaints about unpaved roads, mosquitoes, lack of street lights and having to haul their own garbage.

Perkins got in touch with Dan Sorrells, an old school friend and

Mafia Target of New Attack

Police Given Hand by Italian Republic

ROME (UPI) — Sociologists have called it a way of life. Benito Mussolini tried but failed to stamp it out. Individuals who try to fight it disappear or turn up dead.

It is the Mafia, the Sicilian "honored society" of crime, whose power has stretched from Palermo to New York.

The Italian republic decided last week to launch a new attack against the organization.

The chamber justice and in some committees voted into law a measure to increase the number of unpleasant things police and the judiciary can do to suspected Mafia types.

"Lack of evidence" has been the most frustrating stumbling block in the decades-long battle against the Mafia. There are no witnesses to crime. No one in Sicily has ever seen anything.

TRADEMARK

Sicilians who turn against the Mafia are killed with the "la-papa" — a sawed-off shotgun that has become the society's trademark. No business can be started, no job found, no road built, no politician elected in Sicily without Mafia approval.

The new law, however, increases court powers. The judiciary now can:

- Place suspects under special surveillance, bar them from given areas or confine them to certain areas in any part of Italy. The law applies to suspects with no previous Mafia record.
- Jail those who break confinement for terms of six months to two years.
- Bar the suspected Mafia members from working as merchants, wholesalers, public works contractors or grantees of irrigation rights.
- Lift their driver's license and send them to jail for six months to three years if they are caught driving without a license.

In addition, the penalties for criminal association are doubled if suspected crimes are committed by a Mafia suspect.

Hot Springs a 'Truce City'

Gangsters' Era Ends at Resort

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — The death of Owney Madden, one of the last of the prohibition days racketeers, ended an era in this little hill country resort.

It was a period that saw the big names of gangsterdom gather here to talk business or relax without their guns.

Hot Springs was a truce town, an "open city" to the generation of tough operators who moved to the top in beer and rackets during prohibition and later days.

Madden, who was one of them, died here April 24. He was buried here, where he had lived for 30 years in quiet retirement after two decades of violence in New York and New Jersey.

In making Hot Springs his permanent residence, Madden differed from the others.

UNDERWORLD FIGURES

But underworld figures have always had a home near the warm, bubbling mineral springs of this city of 27,000, nestled in the foothills of the Ouachita Mountains.

During the reign of the city's most colorful politician, Mayor Lee P. McLaughlin, Hot Springs was declared sanctuary for opposing forces in the underworld. Local officials and the kliegins of crime agreed that Hot Springs would be a "no guns" land. The mobsters abided by the understanding.

The big names in national crime came here, bathed in the hot springs, fished on a 100-mile chain of lakes, relaxed in the mountain air and sunshine, or gambled in the plush casinos, which operated openly and flourished for a century although they were, and still are, illegal under Arkansas law.

In Hot Springs, those who did not put their guns away when they came to town were ushered out by local authorities.

LAW OFFICIALS

State and federal law enforcement officials did not observe the sanctuary "understanding."

It was here, in the middle 1930s, that

Alfred Lamb, wanted for three bank robberies and murder, was machine-gunned to death in a cabin in which he had taken refuge.

— Lucky Luciano was arrested by FBI agents on a New

Meteorologists Believe Man May Be Able to Limit Destruction of Future Twisters

WASHINGTON — Meteorologists believe that man may someday be able to thwart tornadoes, the destructive and freakish storms that have caused heavy loss of life this year.

The current twisters have driven planks like spears through solid masonry walls. A blacktop road in Michigan was rolled back as if it were a rug.

Ordinary wind-measuring devices are smashed by tornado winds moving perhaps 100 or more miles an hour, the National Geographic Society says.

But a new type of radar called the Doppler system will soon enable research scientists to measure for the first time the fantastic speed of particles caught up in the dark, rotating funnels of the storms.

Weathermen cannot yet predict exactly when or where a deadly cone of wind will burst from the clouds and scythe across the countryside.

CERTAIN CONDITIONS

However, a certain combination of conditions appears indispensable for a tornado's formation: moist, warm air at low levels and cool, dry air at high er levels, a southerly wind at the surface and a strong wind blowing over it from a different direction.

During the past few years, meteorologists have had increasing success in detecting tornadoes and following their progress on radar screens.

To collect data about tornadoes, weathermen attached to the Bureau's Severe Storms Laboratory at the University of Oklahoma campus at Norman are flying into the violent thunderstorms with which tornadoes are associated.

Another problem being studied by the Weather Bureau is to develop an early warning and communication system to alert the public.

Weathermen were once forbidden to mention tornadoes for fear of causing a panic. Now they can say that a tornado is likely to form in a certain 20, 000 square mile area; their current task is to whittle down the forecast area.

Eventually, when weathermen know the exact causes of a tornado, they may be able to prevent its formation, possibly by a cloud seeding technique.

Spirit of Heroes Is Ageless

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In keeping with our policy of running guest editorials from time to time, our Memorial Day message has been written by Circuit Court Judge Philip Pratt.)

By CIRCUIT JUDGE PHILIP PRATT

Mixed with the soil of a hundred lands are the dust and ashes of thousands of Americans. For many of these Americans there are well tended graves, acres of green meadow with line upon line of crosses and stars. For many, loving hands loosen the soil and water the spring flowers. For some, the graves lie behind impassable barriers, unmarked, unmarked, and never have been — except as the sea and the earth are the universal graveyard of man's mortal remains.

JUDGE PRATT

Many of the graves are aged now and the dust and ashes have filtered through the soil and only the markers bear testament to what had been. Some are fresh, the ground still mounding. Some, at this moment, are dug but unfilled, and the bugler is just pursuing his lips.

Today, across this gracious land all Americans stop for a moment to remember why these graves had to be. Memorial Day is not the only day we remember, the only day we rededicate ourselves, that we give thanks — it is the day we do these things together, at the same time, as a nation. We honor our heroes for their selfless devotion, thank them for their total sacrifice and pledge them, in return, our dedication to the invaluable, immeasurable inheritance they bequeathed.

There is a softness on the land today, a softness only the strong can afford and our strength comes from our united remembrances and our collective faith.

And as my faith tells me that the soul is immortal and unafraid, so it tells me that my comrades in arms, and those before them, look upon us today and hear us. They know we remember, that we are grateful and they know that freedom and justice abide in increasing scope in the land.

One thing more we owe to them, and that is to make them proud. This we can do by defending and perpetuating what they died to build America.

Does De Gaulle Have Pattern?

By LEON DENNEN

PARIS (MEA) — I came to France to ask: "What does President De Gaulle want?"

I put the question to one of France's top military experts who knows Charles de Gaulle intimately.

"I doubt whether De Gaulle himself knows," the general replied. "He has illusions about restoring France's old glory. He is consistent in his dislike of America. But he seems to have lost all touch with political reality."

The officer added: "President Johnson and the United States are our last hope not only in Europe but also in Viet Nam and South-east Asia."

There is little doubt that if elections were held in France today, De Gaulle could win another term as president. Ordinary Frenchmen love nothing better than to be reminded of their country's past glory, and De Gaulle has been feeding them doses of nationalism since he came to power in 1958. France also has benefited, despite the threat of inflation, from West Europe's economic recovery sparked by massive American aid after World War II.

TOP COMBINATION
Rabid nationalism and economic prosperity are a political combination that is not easy to beat.

Because he obviously aims to weaken NATO by forcing the United States out of Europe, De Gaulle has also gained the backing — or benevolent neutrality — of the French Reds and their Russian masters.

Nevertheless, there are increasing signs that De Gaulle's popularity has reached its climax and is already on the decline. Anything is thus liable to happen between now and December when the French presidential elections are scheduled to be held.

There are even wishful thinkers in Paris who hope against hope that the 74-year-old president is too ill to run for reelection.

FOREIGN ROLE
However, it is not domestic politics but De Gaulle's erratic foreign policies that have brought about the decline in his prestige. Even his strongest backers are increasingly worried by France's isolation in the ranks of NATO.

"He will never gain the support of the Russians and their East European satellites," but he has already lost the confidence of France's traditional Western allies," said a prominent French political commentator.

It is a measure of De Gaulle's isolation that on the 20th anniversary of Hitler's defeat the only message of congratulations he received was from Walter Ulbricht, Russia's East German puppet and the most despised man even behind the Iron Curtain.

On the other hand, Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson, in an obvious dig at De Gaulle's oddman-out nationalism, warned at the NATO meeting in London that "there is no greater delusion than the feeling that the West can solve common problems on the basis of adventures in nationalism."

And The End Not Yet

Communists Confused

Dominican Red Threat Is Faded

By WILLIAM RYAN

LIMA, Peru (AP) — As of now, any Communist Castroist threat to capitalize on the Dominican Republic crisis seems to have collapsed in Latin America like a punctured balloon.

Danger that extremists still will try remains, but there is no indication they are ready to take full advantage of what ordinarily would be an attractive opportunity for them.

Their confusion seems to stem from the split in the world Communist movement, with its incessant warfare between pro-Chinese and pro-Moscow elements.

In this country, as in others in Latin America, the two wings are industriously beating one another over the head with words.

The danger stems from a likelihood that the Dominican crisis will impel the two Communist wings to compete in taking advantage of it.

COMPLETE SURPRISE
The failure of the extreme left to spark widespread violence in the wake of the Dominican situation leads the experienced observer in Latin America to suspect that what happened in Santo Domingo on April 24, when "constitutionalist" officers staged their revolt, was as much a surprise to Castro's clients in this area as to any one else.

There have been reports in Santo Domingo and elsewhere that the revolt was part of a carefully considered plot, and these persist, on the assumption that the Communists are lying low waiting for the next phase of a long-range plan.

But in the present state of Castroism and the world Communist movement's confusion, it seems difficult to credit anything so Machiavellian.

Attempts in other countries to spark violence in response to the Dominican events seemed uncoordinated, improvised and poorly executed. The extremist elements appeared to have been unready for this crisis.

PUNCH IS SLIPPING
Even in the universities, ordinarily hotbeds of Castro Communist agitation, extremists seem to be starting to lose some of their punch.

These days something new appears to be developing in the universities. Many students now are truly students, anxious to catch up with the 20th century, spurred by their countries' future prospects.

The superabundance of students in law and humanities, preparing for careers of politics, is beginning to decline. Prospects are that this downward trend will develop and have a profound impact on Latin American politics.

It can produce resistance to interminable student turmoil among young men with no place to go except into politics and no way to get to the top save through demagoguery.

INDIFFERENT ATTITUDE

Here in Peru, the public attitude toward the Dominican crisis has developed from an initial sort of shocked surprise at the U.S. action to something closely approaching apathy, despite public denunciations of Washington emanating daily from Peruvian leaders.

The politicians evidently consider denouncing Washington a political necessity. But even these outbursts are tapering off, and the U.S. side of the story gradually is making its way into the press.

A leftist magazine, for instance, polled public opinion what it called "the cross-section" and came up with results which surprised the magazine's editors themselves, who concluded: "The revolution has not been to the extent we thought."

Of these polled, more than 25 per cent thought the U.S. action in Santo Domingo justified, a third would say only that it might have been hasty and only a third would say outright it was wrong. The remaining few had no opinion.

GAINING SUPPORT
It appears that in the northern tier of South America, the Dominican policy fared better than might have been expected. The action has been widely lamented, but it also has been receiving a fair amount of support from more conservative elements who felt there was danger of a Castro take-over and no time for consultation with members of the Organization of American States.

It is for this reason that they are asking Congress to appropriate a $20 million research fund to get the ball rolling.

Instead, the new secretary is planning a dynamic forward thrust to give America the world's most up-to-date transportation system — especially by rail.

As usual with Johnson and Connor, the emphasis will be on government-private partnership.

A successful businessman rather than a dreamer, Connor is championing a $20 million research program destined to meet the future transport problems as our population soars toward the 200 million mark two years hence.

He visualizes sleek trains racing through the night at 150 miles an hour.

MORE EFFICIENT
Connor is particularly anxious to speed up railroads and reduce rate costs because he believes they make more efficient use of scarce high-priced land near metropolitan areas than do the highways on which cars roll into cities.

He points out that on the same width of land, rails carry five times as many passengers as cars and buses. The same is true of rail-hauled freight versus trucking.

Like the President, Connor champions a high-speed rail service from Washington to Boston, the nation's highest density population corridor.

Both think private enterprise will meet the challenge, but that private capital cannot finance expensive preliminary research because of the large risks involved in developing systems which must depend on government decisions for adoption.

Voice of the People:

A Taxpayer Comments on Representatives' Pay

The State representatives, so-called, because they only represent themselves, failed to pass many bills vitally important to the welfare of the State. As far as they were concerned it wasn't a complete failure since they managed to steamroller a $5,000 a year raise in pay for themselves.

It's too bad the taxpayers are powerless to do anything about it. It doesn't seem to matter which political party is in office—the abuses continue year after year.

To my way of thinking they ought to be stripped of the power to set their own salaries. If their pay could be determined by the amount of work they accomplish on behalf of the state they are supposed to represent, they would be forced to take a $5,000 year cut in salary.

ANOTHER TIRED TAXPAYER

I understand there was only one dissenting vote against the move to raise our legislators' pay. We should find out who was brave enough to object and give him our full support. We are taxed now until we can't see daylight.

Views Avon Township Zoning Ordinance

My alarm and anger at the new zoning ordinance proposal governing materials, machinery and autos on residential property leads me to apologize for the spirit in which I spoke at the meeting of Avon Township Board.

Government controls should be only in the amount needed to achieve legitimate ends. Communist and officials have the responsibility to consider all whom they serve, for a failure to appraise the view of one citizen is a denial of a constitutional right and makes a mockery of our freedom.

One member of the zoning board stated he felt that tractors, boats and other possession not under cover were detracting from the beauty of the neighborhood and degrade the property around it. An effective clean-up was accomplished by the ordinance how in the statute, but some irrational citations have been issued also.

Is an ordinance designed to give inspectors authority beyond reasonable limits an infringement upon personal liberty and the guarantee of justice for all? If the board can honestly say that this ordinance is enacted in the ideal of our democracy, I will withdraw my objection in favor of right.

'Disillusioned by Action of Legislature'

The 1965 session of the State's Democratic legislature has been about as potent as a defective firecracker. Its inescapable for the five months of legislative agony is No Runs-No Hits-Many Errors.

It booted its last chance to partly redeem itself by killing the compulsory vehicle inspection bill.

Since a sizeable number of highway casualties are traceable to automobile components that have become impaired, our legislature may well claim an assist in the future killing of an indefinite number of motorists.

Bold Attempt Life Lines

William Z. Foster, former head of the Communist Party, USA, predicted in his book, "From capitalism to communism, through the intermediary state of socialism, is the way American society is headed."

At the 21st Communist Party Congress Nikita Khrushchev said: "Society cannot leap into communism without going through a Socialist state of development." Two years later, he observed that "socialism is the first stage of communism."

Almost four years ago Herbert Aptheker, U.S. Communist editor and writer, prophesied: "The majority of the American people will want communism. Right now, they want socialism, and socialism becomes communism."

Thus, the difference between the two systems is largely one of timing.

Suppose the United States became Socialist or Communist. What would life be like in America?

We turn to Walter Mikelson, publisher of the New Ulm, Minnesota Daily Journal. After returning from a 60-day trip to Russia and satellite countries, he stated that under socialism in America:

Every industry, railroad, airline, business, bank, newspaper, television and radio station, school and university, and factory would be taken over by government.

Every farm, creamery, cheese factory and condensation would be seized. Every mine, pinery, lumber factory and yard would be snatched by the state. Everyone would work for the government. His earnings and his job would be stipulated by some bureaucrat.

There would be one television station in every big city. There probably would be only one radio station.

What would we read would be speeches of the government heads and department heads and special articles from the government. Most all news, advertising and personal items about individuals would disappear from the columns.

Newspapers would shrink to four and eight page news. Comic strips would disappear.

Real estate agents? There would be no such persons. Churches would become state property and many would be converted museums. The younger generation would be discouraged from going to church.

What would happen to our pay scale? In Russia, the farmers make $5 a week in cash, and $5 a week in meats and vegetables. They get about an acre and a half of land to raise flocks to sell. Workers get $18 to $20 a week.

The church is the highlight of civilization, directing the progress of the human race toward a higher standard of morality and greater efficiency. The church is the stabilizing power in society that makes for the safety of life, security of property and the enforcement of laws. Without the church in the community none of these could be guaranteed.

The church is the lighthouse which guides us over storm-swept seas to the safe harbor on the eternal shore. Why not accept the invitation and go to church next Sunday?

Sail Days Recalled by N-Ships

WASHINGTON—Nuclear ships have achieved a curious step backwards in sea travel.

The revolutionary vessels are dazzling throwbacks to the age of sail when a captain never had to seek land for fuel.

Just as the old, wind-driven, men-of-war spent months in distant oceans, so a nuclear aircraft carrier can circle the globe for years without fuel stops, the National Geographic Society says.

In contrast, coal- and oil-powered ships must make frequent refueling stops.

The United States aircraft carrier Enterprise, largest and most powerful ship ever built, can roam the seas for years without refueling. Its eight atomic furnaces develop more than 200,000 horsepower to drive the 83,350-ton ship at more than 25 knots. There is no need for huge fuel tanks.

SUBMARINE TRIPS

Submarines, first to use nuclear propulsion, not only knife under the North Pole but can circle the globe without surfacing.

The first atomic icebreaker, Russia's Lenin, has been battling Arctic ice five years. The 440-horsepower icebreaker roams the polar seas all winter without refueling. Its nuclear engine generates enough steam to melt extra-thick ice.

The Lenin has been so successful that the Russians plan to build a fleet to keep the Arctic waters open to shipping year-round.

The N.S. Savannah, first nuclear cargo-passenger ship, previews future merchant fleets. Launched in 1962, the sleek, 600-foot vessel cruises three days on a teaspoonful of uranium oxide pellets.

14 GLOBAL TRIPS

The fuel load of just 110 pounds of uranium 235 can drive the ship 300,000 miles, or 14 times around the world. A conventional ship the same size would require 100,000 tons of fuel.

Harnessing atomic energy on the high seas may bring more than bigger, faster, longer-ranging ships for peace and war.

Specialized vessels such as fish-processing factories, research laboratories, and mining ships will be able to operate at sea for months without returning to fueling ports.

Nuclear shipping experts enthusiastically predict giant submarine tankers that will operate like crewless guided missiles between ports of call.

A nuclear-powered hydrofoil liner may whisk hundreds of tourists to Europe at 70 miles an hour.

Thunderstorms Hit Southwest

Southern Plains Felt
Winds, Hail, Rain

By The Associated Press
Thunderstorms buffeted the Southwest and the southern Plains today with damaging winds and hail and scattered torrential falls of rain.

Severe storm warnings were still up for western and central Texas.

The stormy weather area included parts of New Mexico, Oklahoma and Kansas.

A flash flood following an official 2.75 inches of rain Sunday night, southwest of Carlsbad, N.M. swept a car off the highway and Irene Nettles, 56, to her death. The Pasadena, Tex. woman's husband and two other passengers escaped.

Fanned, clouds were sighted along the New Mexico-Texas border, east of Albuquerque, and 30 miles northwest of Lubbock, Tex. Apparently they caused no major damage.

TREES UPROOTED
High winds uprooted trees at El Paso, Tex. Hail and windphone rain knocked out telephone service at Dell City and Sierra Blanca.

In Kansas, a twister destroyed a barn near Road 50, miles northwest of Dodge City, Neb. A reported hail stones the size of golf balls fell along with 3.40 inches of rain in two and one-half hours.

Most other sections of the nation had fair weather. Unseasonable coolness persisted from the Great Lakes to New England.

Police Battle 1,000 Youths in Utah Riot

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Police used dogs, tear gas and night sticks to break up a disturbance by an estimated 1,000 teen-agers in a City Park Memorial Day gathering.

Capt. E. G. Geisler said the disturbance began when the teen-agers threw bottles at officers attempting to stop two unidentified persons from fighting.

Two policemen were injured, neither seriously, and officers said two youths were hospitalized with head injuries. A number of automobiles parked in the area were damaged.

Eight youths, police said, were held on charges ranging from assaulting a police officer to use of abusive language and failure to disperse.

Police, assisted by off-duty officers, sheriff's deputies and highway patrol troopers, took about two hours to disperse the youths.

Former Judge Expires

RUMSON, N.J. (AP)—Thomas J. Brogan, 76, former chief justice of the New Jersey Supreme Court, died Sunday in a nursing home where he had lived since a serious illness in 1961. He resigned from the bench in 1946, after serving 14 years, to return to private law practice.

Weather Boosts Record Turnout at World's Fair

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York World's Fair, beset by falling attendance since its second season started last month, Sunday had a crowd of 265,548, the largest for any day in its history.

The turnout was unofficially attributed to a combination of fine weather Sunday and Saturday's rain, which caused many persons to postpone their visit for a day.

The attendance was 1,016 over the old record of 264,552, set on Sunday, Oct. 11, 1964.

The previous high during the current fall season was 177,200 on Saturday, May 15. Total attendance during the first 40 days of this season is 3,770,520. This is 1,863,351 behind the 5,633,871 at the same time last year.

Erhard Leaves for Visit in U.S., Talks With LBJ

BRONX, N.Y. (AP)—Chancellor Ludwig Erhard left today to see President Johnson on a four-day visit to the United States. Foreign Minister Gerhard Schröder accompanied him.

Erhard will receive an honorary degree from Columbia University tomorrow and see the President on Friday.

203 Bodies Recovered at Mine Blast Scene

NEW DELHI (AP)—Rescue teams have recovered 203 burned bodies from the Bhoi coal mine in eastern India.

The mine was devastated by an explosion and fire Friday. Estimates of the dead ranged between 250 and 400, and the search for bodies is continuing.

O'Brien Seeks Committee to 'Clear Bills'

LANSING (AP)—Sen. Carl W. O'Brien, D-Pontiac, Saturday called for creation of a rules committee in both the Senate and House to clear the legislative calendar of special interest bills.

"Dozens and dozens of bills for specific interests of railroad judges, municipal judges, circuit court judges, appeals courts judges, and Supreme Court judges clutter our calendar."

"Nearly all of them called for expanding the power of these judges, increasing judgeships and increasing the pay," he said.

WONT VOTE
"I refuse at this point to vote for any more of these special interest bills unless we have some committee to sort out the good from the bad," O'Brien said.

"The current committees have speeded these bills out without consideration for the public or the senators."

Freighter in Straits Crash Heads Home

DETROIT (AP)—The Norwegian freighter Topalsfjord, which rammed and sank the limestone carrier Cedarville in a Straits of Mackinac fog May 7, is en route home via the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Ten Cedarville crewmen died in the straits collision and 25 were rescued. The Topalsfjord's bow, which hit the Cedarville broadside, suffered only minor damage.

The Norwegian vessel loaded a cargo of automobiles, refrigerator motors and tobacco in Detroit Saturday.

Believe 124-Year-Old Ex-Slave Oldest, Lone Civil War Veteran

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A Jackson Civil War historian believes that Sylvester Magee, a former slave who claims to be 124 years old, is the only surviving veteran of the Civil War.

"He is actually the oldest Civil War soldier," A. P. Andrews, founder of the Jackson Civil War Round Table, said today, "but there are no official records."

"He fought for the Union at the siege of Vicksburg in 1863—before they were supposed to put slaves into the army—but when word got back to President Lincoln of the slaves fighting then, he put a stop to it."

Magee's case came to light when Arlington Jones, a Hattiesburg attorney, had Andrews question him. Magee lives alone in a rundown shack in Hattiesburg without plumbing or electricity.

2 State Youths on Honor List

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—Two Michigan youngsters were among 12 outstanding secondary school graduates named Sunday by President Johnson as Presidential Scholars of 1965.

Marie Kathleen Carr of Flint and Roland Wagner Sherman of Grosse Pointe Shores are among those invited to a White House reception June 8. Each will receive a bronze medal.

The awards carry no financial aid, but White House aids said those needing it were almost certain to get scholarship grants.

The parents of the young scholars also will be invited to the White House, but the government will pay expenses only for the youngsters.

News in Brief

John J. Jones of 1758 Torrey, Birmingham, Saturday reported the theft of a 14-foot aluminum boat at Voorhees Lake, Orion Township, according to sheriff's deputies.

Beverly Roberts, 3092 Adams, Avon Township, Saturday night reported the theft of a coat valued at $59 at the Community Activities Inc. building, 5640 Williams Lake, Waterford Township, according to town-ship police.

draws, founder of the Jackson Civil War Round Table, said today, "but there are no official records."

"He fought for the Union at the siege of Vicksburg in 1863—before they were supposed to put slaves into the army—but when word got back to President Lincoln of the slaves fighting then, he put a stop to it."

Magee's case came to light when Arlington Jones, a Hattiesburg attorney, had Andrews question him. Magee lives alone in a rundown shack in Hattiesburg without plumbing or electricity.

TWO HOUR QUIZ

Andrews, 54, who has written a number of unpublished theses on various phases of the Civil War and plans a Reconstruction book, said he was extremely sceptical before a two-hour quiz session with Magee.

Andrews has memorized numerous details of the Mississippi campaign, from soldiers' paraphernalia to down to the minute times Union forces entered Jackson. He found the illiterate Magee knew those things, too.

"It nearly floored me," he said. "It looked like for a long time."

"He described the fortifications at Vicksburg, how they were built, how they buried the soldiers. He would have had to have seen Jackson then, to have seen Vicksburg, and the battle of Champion's Hill."

Andrews said he was positive of the truth of Magee's story of joining the Union forces at Jackson in May 1863 and serving at Vicksburg in the siege, being wounded twice there.

Suggest 2 Pesticides Be Banned on Food

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration has tentatively proposed that two pesticides—aldrin and dieldrin—be prohibited from use on 55 vegetables and other food commodities.

The agency Friday called for a reevaluation of the use of the two insecticides within three years.

Fun-Seekers?

New Breeds in Grandparents

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are new breeds in grandparents, a University of Chicago social scientist reports. Among them she included the "fun-seeker" and the "intermittent St. Nicholas."

Dr. Bernice L. Neugarten made her observations at a U.S. Public Health Service conference on research in aging.

She said the fact that grandparenthood now occurs at earlier ages is responsible for the change in the traditional concept of grandparents as rather authoritarian patriarchs and matriarchs who ruled the roost over both younger generations.

"The fun-seeker," she related, "is the grandparent whose relation to the child is characterized by informality and playfulness, who joins the child in specific activities for the specific purpose of having fun, somewhat as if he were the child's playmate. Grandchildren are viewed by these grandparents as a source of leisure activity and as a source of self-indulgence."

FLEETING CONTACT

Then, there's the intermittent St. Nicholas — also known as "the distant figure."

"This," Dr. Neugarten said, "is the grandparent who emerges from the shadows on holidays and on special ritual occasions such as Christmas and birthdays. Contact with the grandchild is fleeting and infrequent."

Both the fun-seekers and the part-time St. Nicholas tend to support any authority relationship, she indicated.

She said a study of 115 middle-class grandparents of both sexes, including 81 under age 65, showed both the fun-seekers and the St. Nicholas were much more frequent among the younger group.

British Criminals Turning to Tougher American Methods

LONDON (UPI) — Crime and the criminal are changing in London.

Until fairly recently, crime had been very conservative here, and criminals were mainly the rugged individualists they were in the days and books of Charles Dickens.

They rarely used guns. They spent years perfecting skills "like picking pockets. Their sources of income were mainly nonviolent crimes: robbery, gambling and the "protection" of bookmakers.

Unlike the rest of the country, the underworld resisted the new ideas from America. But this is true no longer.

The British criminal has now accepted that slugging a man with a gun butt and taking away his wallet eliminates a long apprenticeship in picking pockets.

The time-hallowed weapons of the British criminal — straight razor, meat chopper, bicycle chain, axe handle and blackjack — are being pushed out by such American refinements as sawed-off shotguns and pistols.

Last December — "Black December" as a newspaper named it — there were a record number of killings and wounding in Britain, most of them by guns.

Five gangs of bank bandits carried shotguns or pistols. Bank tellers were given instructions not to argue with armed robbers, some of whom are trigger-happy.

The old organization of the underworld in which most criminals operated on their own, punting goings only for specific jobs, had been breaking down.

It is dividing into two groups: the planners and the performers.

TRIGGERMEN — A few years ago a gang chief had to lead his men personally in any quarrel with another group. Nowadays, with the successful examples of their American counterparts before them, they hire razor-men or trigger-men, depending on how severely they want an opponent punished.

The razor can sometimes be more cruel than the gun — maiming for life by cutting the tendons behind the knee or other mutilations are not uncommon.

Not long ago one gang leader threatened to "crucify" an enemy. He got as far as having him nailed to the floor through his knees before he relented.

One missing gangster recently had the honor, according to underworld reports, of being buried in cement, apparently the first time this little Mafia innovation has been used here.

The American ideas are disturbing enough, and police are countering them with such new methods as secret closed circuit television cameras surveying crime spots. The new Scotland Yard building now nearing completion will be an electronic arsenal against criminals.

But what really worries the Yard are the planners. These men may have no contact with crime other than to think out the plan and pass it to a confederate who organizes the operation.

When the actual raid is carried out the planner is generally out of the country summing himself on a beach or sitting in his legitimate business office.

He gets his payoff later and indirectly. A planner may have been behind the great train robbery of $7.3 million two years ago. About $4.4 million of the cash is still missing.

Under this setup Scotland Yard may arrest an entire gang and yet not nab its most important member — the planner, who is free to think up another of the brilliantly organized high value raids on banks, diamond merchants, and mail trucks, which have been so successful in the past few years.

Cancer Victim Fund to Aid Tot

ASHVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Patrick James, a 13-month-old cancer victim, will go to New York for treatment now that more than $3,000 has been raised by Asheville residents.

Patrick's doctor said the boy has cancer in his chest and a chance for survival rests in treatment by an unidentified specialist at Manhattan's Memorial hospital for cancer and allied diseases.

Fans and stock car race drivers contributed more than $900 recently at an Asheville track. The Asheville newspapers made a public appeal and someone contributed a round trip airline ticket.

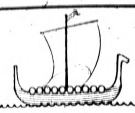

Patrick's father is unemployed and his mother works in a drug store.

Controversial Bomber Unveiled on West Coast

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — A new model of the controversial triple-some X-107 reconnaissance bomber was unveiled Saturday when the plane's first engine test runs after a public introduction to about 4,000 spectators.

The spectators, mostly North American Aviation Inc. employees and newsmen, were on hand Saturday when the plane was rolled out of its hangar here for the first time. Its maiden flight is scheduled for July.

Colbert Vows Spoken in Philadelphia

Off on a honeymoon in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands are the Nicholas Colberts who were wed Saturday in St. Peter's Church, Philadelphia.

Parents of the former Jacquenette Cummings Chesley are Mrs. Alfred J. Ostheimer III and Castleman de Tolly Chesley of Whitford, Pa.

The bridegroom is the son of the Lester L. Colberts of Bloomfield Hills.

FAMILY VEIL
A veil of heirloom Duchesse lace belonging to Mrs. Colbert complemented the bride's gown and train of silk-faded beau de soie and ivory Alencon lace.

She held a prayer book covered with white orchids, Stephanotis, miniature ivy and Verona fern.

Honor attendants, Mrs. Scott J. Cummings of Wayne, Pa. and Martha Pitman of Philadelphia, wore Empire gowns of melon linen. In ice pink linen were bridesmaids Priscilla Morris, Williamsburg, Va.; Mrs. Sarah Colbert Noble, Battle Creek; Cheryl Caldwell, Calexico, Calif. and Marilyn Pottera, Essex Fells, N.J.

Four-year-old Margaret Ostheimer and Sarah Noble were flower-girls.

BROTHER
Lester L. Colbert Jr. of New York City assisted his brother as best man. Ushers were Lee R. Abernathy, Denver; Richard F. Gilman, Santa Rosa, Calif.; Donald H. Haugh, Charleston, W. Va.; Donald Gill, Battle Creek and Scott J. Cummings.

A reception in The Barclay followed the late afternoon ceremony performed by Joseph Koci Jr.

The bride attended the University of Denver. Mr. Colbert attended Williams College and the University of Denver.

The couple will reside in Denver.

All He Spends Is Energy

He Walks and He Talks

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I've known this guy practically all my life. We grew up together. He's sort of like one of the family, but sometimes I get the idea that it could be serious between us.

About four times a year he asks me out. But the rest of the time (about twice a week) he calls and says, "How about meeting me after work? I haven't got any money, but I can walk you home and we could talk."

Now you know when we get home we at least have to have a snack and, a lot of times, it's a complete dinner. Abby, I don't expect him to take me out to dinner twice a week, but it bothers me that he should tell me he has no money, as though, if he had money he'd be somewhere else.

After all these years I wonder if I really know him. Any advice?

N.Y.
DEAR N.Y.: You "know" him all right, but you don't "no" him enough. Next time he pulls the "no money, but I'll walk you home" routine, tell him you're busy.

After three months of this treatment, if he doesn't ask you "the" question, you'll have the answer.

DEAR ABBY: I live in a small town in Indiana but I read your column in the Chicago American every day. You are the only one I can turn to, Abby. I am 19 and am in love with a guy who is 20. We aren't engaged yet and here's the problem.

My parents like him all right, but my two older sisters are married to his two older brothers. My parents say that it would be too much of a mix-up with all the double cousins this family feels the same way about it. They say that two from the same family is enough.

We love each other, Abby, and it doesn't make any difference to us that we are already related through marriage. There isn't a law against our marrying, is there? Please help us.

TWO IN LOVE
DEAR TWO: There's no law against your marrying and I can't see why you shouldn't be married if you love each other.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to reply to the man who signed himself "VET OF TWO WARS." He disapproved of hunting animals for sport, and in his letter he stated: "If you want to kill don't be a piker — go after the big game. Join the Army and ask for front line duty in Viet Nam."

It's people like Mr. "VET OF TWO WARS" who place human life on the same level with animal life — who are responsible for the rising crime and murder rate in this country today. We have many soldiers in Vietnam.

Many of them are volunteers, risking their lives not because they like to kill, but because they believe in our country, its ideals and the very principles on which America was founded. Sign me up.

Miss Moser for 15 years has been tuned to the wedding march, as manager of the banquet department for the Tavern on the Green, the 100-year-old restaurant in Central Park.

She's helped plan the menus, the flowers, the other decor, the liquid refreshments, music, gratuities, seating arrangements, wedding cakes and other details for families from nearly every state including Alaska and Hawaii.

For the comfort of couples about to take the vows, Miss Moser said that most weddings go off without a hitch. Brides don't faint, best men remember wedding rings, bridegrooms do show up.

HE WENT THATAWAY
The night before the wedding was scheduled, a distraught father called the restaurant's then co-owner, Julius Berman. Cancel the works. The bridegroom, said Miss Moser, had "taken a powder."

She said Berman, who has three daughters, tried to calm the broken-up father, saying there would be no charge other than the initial deposit and adding, "you tell your daughter how lucky she is. He wasn't worth it."

Why did the bridegroom abscond? Miss Moser said they never found out; he wasn't heard from again.

WOMEN'S SECTION

There's a Dynamo Behind New Center

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Women's Editor
Shakespeare wrote about the seven stages of man. Priscilla Jackson talks about the seven stages of a woman's life.

Mrs. Jackson has engineered three successful conferences on women.

She is the originator of the new Continuum Center for Women to be established under a three-year grant of $150,000 from the Kellogg Foundation.

What sort of person is Priscilla Jackson? How has she achieved the success she has when five years ago, she was a homemaker with her three children in school?

This small brunette packs more energy than many a football player. And sometimes you can almost hear her computer-like brain clicking as she gets an idea and goes to work on it.

Chancellor D. B. Varner

Mrs. Jackson and Dr. Eklund began to formulate plans for a permanent center for women on the OU campus. It was obvious that the problems of modern women were here to stay.

FORERUNNER
A pilot course in testing and counseling last fall attracted 82 women. This proved the two were on the right track.

Priscilla presented her plans to the Kellogg Foundation which just a few weeks ago gave its approval. Formal announcement of the grant was made last Thursday.

Priscilla is firm in her conviction that the peculiar nature of Oakland University is responsible for what she has been able to do.

The fact that it is a small, new school devoted to pioneer projects in education is important, she says.

That she is an outstanding success is evidenced by the tribute paid her by Lowell Eklund.

"Mrs. Jackson personifies that significant dimension of our society — the great reservoir of talent and versatility of our mature women who are interested in returning to a previous, or undertaking a new career."

"She was a most fortuitous discovery for the university in adult education. She combined a comprehensive knowledge of the community with which she is working, an outstanding ability to evoke interest and enthusiasm on the part of those with whom she works, and perhaps, uppermost, an almost intuitive intellect that enables her to grasp the subtleties and artistry of planning and developing learning experience for adults."

"I have watched dozens of conference developers or 'engineers' as we sometimes call them, and I have seen none, even those who have advanced degrees in the field, who can do as competent and as high quality a job as does Priscilla."

After the 1964 conference, Mrs. Merrell D. Petrie, Women's Division chairman of the Pontiac United Fund, has named Mrs. William J. Keller of Ledgestone Drive, chairman of the Motor Auto Corps of that organization.

Mrs. Keller joined the program as a volunteer driver after moving into the area a year ago.

Her duties will include directing the activities of the transportation program for blind and handicapped to treatment and training centers.

The Kellers have three children and 10 grandchildren.

Newwed, Germany, near Cologne, came to the United States with her parents before World War II "By Hitler's choice."

In private life, she is Mrs. Charles Brenauer, wife of an insurance broker.

She studied hotel and restaurant work formally at Cornell University, informally during the summer working as waitress, hostess, switch-board operator.

ALL KINDS
She estimated that she's helped arrange 25,000 parties, and those 4,000 weddings, some so elaborately staged the father of the bride can foot a bill for $90 per guest.

That figure means gourmet foods, the best of champagne, reception, dinner, orchestra, dancing and other trimmings. A more average figure would be $11 per person, she said.

Miss Moser said headhaches in the business are rare — "Most people are genuinely nice." But she still remembers the case of the bride with the most unusual request for a wedding cake.

The bride arrived at the office carrying a briefcase which turned out to hold photographic copies of pictures of the Parthenon.

The girl was of Greek stock and she wanted her cake shaped like the many-columned relic of Athens.

TRUTH IN ADS
"I told her," said Miss Moser, "that our man was a pastry chef, not an architect."

The bride pointed to a section in a restaurant brochure that said cakes would be baked to a bride's specification.

Miss Moser tried to explain that the specifications dealt with color, filling, the decoration atop the cake. The bride was adamant.

"We baked the Parthenon," said Miss Moser. "I must say it turned out beautifully."

calls her "The greatest pursuer of an idea I know."

Born in Canton, China, the daughter of a medical missionary and surgeon, she came back to the United States three months before Pearl Harbor.

Priscilla, a graduate of Oberlin College, was married while she was still a student and "settled down" to raise a family.

In the spring of 1960, she chaired an area meeting of the League of Women Voters at Oakland University. She had approached Dr. Lowell Eklund of the Department of Continuing Education for help.

TAKES JOB AT OU
Impressed with her work on this occasion, Dr. Eklund offered her a job in his department and she became its first coordinator, the first paying job she ever held.

Her initial conference was one on leadership; a second was a writers' conference.

Late in 1962, Dr. Eklund asked her almost facetiously, "Why don't you have a conference on women?"

"Women? No one wants to talk about women. What would they talk about?" Priscilla was skeptical.

But from the beginning, she used one of the most successful techniques of adult education; she asked the people most involved to help her plan conferences.

Early in 1963, she called in about a dozen women from the metropolitan area to talk over the possibility of a conference on women.

Would it have any value? Were there any problems? Would women come to talk about themselves?

It would. There were. And they came, 300 strong, to the first conference in May 1963, "Woman's Place in This perplexing Century."

They came back a year later for a second conference, "Women's Choices in This Confusing Century."

After the 1964 conference,

Mrs. Jackson and Dr. Eklund began to formulate plans for a permanent center for women on the OU campus. It was obvious that the problems of modern women were here to stay.

Mrs. Jackson, who is director of conferences at OU and assistant director of the Mott Center, engineered the idea for the Continuum Center for Women which the grant will help establish.

Cranbrook Gardeners Fete Their Husbands

The Robert M. Nelsons will open their Bloomfield Hills home on Sunday to members of Cranbrook branch, Woman's National Farm and Garden Association and their husbands.

Following a buffet supper, the husbands will be challenged to demonstrate their skill in designing chapeaux for their wives.

Untrimmed hails and an assortment of flowers will be provided.

WILL SHE WEAR IT?
To the designer of the most artful creation will go a prize. The real challenge, however, is whether the wife will wear the hat designed by her husband.

Completing arrangements are Mrs. Walter F. Kucklerman, Mrs. George H. Glover, Mrs. Donald K. Tyler, Mrs. James M. Tenney, Mrs. Norman C. Fry and Mrs. Earle S. MacPherson.

Mrs. Lester W. Childs was chairman of the recent scholarship bridge luncheon in the Orchard Lake Country Club. Mrs. Dean K. Johnson planned table decor and prizes.

Winners of this year's tournament were Mrs. Laurence T. Herman and Mrs. Tenney.

Musicians Can Study

Pontiac students from the sixth through the 12th grade will have an opportunity this summer to participate in an enrichment and musical development program.

Daily sessions will be held at Madison Junior High School from June 28 through August 6. There will be a minimum of 18-hour-long lessons in each division.

There will be classes for individual instruments, including the harp and piano and ensemble and band work.

Pontiac school music instructors will do the teaching. More information may be had from the music office in the Board of Education Building.

Plan Awards Tea

The Women's Division of the Pontiac Area United Fund will hold its annual "Awards Tea" at 1:15 p.m. Wednesday at Pine Knob Resort.

Are You Bride-to-Be?

Are you planning a wedding in 1965? We are interested in having your engagement and wedding news. But we need your cooperation.

The Pontiac Press has printed forms for both engagement and wedding announcements. But you may send in the details, giving full names and addresses (husband's names for a married woman) and other pertinent details.

Please include a telephone number so that we may check if necessary.

TIME LAPSE
There must be two months between engagement and wedding stories, if there is to be a picture with both. No engagements are announced less than a month before the wedding date.

We prefer to receive wedding stories and pictures before the ceremony.

If pictures are taken at the wedding, we must have them no later than two days after the ceremony (that is, by noon Tuesday for Saturday weddings).

If the wedding takes place out of town, this deadline is extended.

BEST PICTURES
Pictures should be black and white, preferably glossy prints. Snapshots cannot be used. Color and tinted prints are not acceptable.

While The Pontiac Press makes no promise to use every picture submitted, some printed mention of the event will be made.

There is no charge for editorial space, but it cannot be reserved nor can we promise the size of picture or its position.

Engagement and wedding pictures are kept for two months, then discarded. They may be called for any time after publication.

One-hundred and forty gaily embroidered, brightly printed and frosty-white Swiss lace handkerchiefs animate and shape a ball-dress created by Couture Marianne of St. Gall, Switzerland. From a low décolletage and high waist, the flared skirt sweeps wide and low at the back, then rises beautifully exposing the leg. This Swiss Handkerchief Dress will be displayed in major department stores throughout the United States during the 1965 season.

Cheryl Bryan, 13, of Kohler Street (left) and Mary Ellen Keefer, 12, Poplar Street, were a bit shy about posing. But they're not at all shy about appearing in the world's largest piano recital. They are among the more than 800 pianists who will perform in the 22nd annual Michigan Music Festival Sunday at Cobo Arena. They are students of Mrs. Carl Clifford.

Practical Knowledge

Good Skills Are Essential

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE V-488: Al W., aged 34, is the efficient manager of a big radio station.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I have a gripe which I think might be of benefit to many teenagers."

"So I wonder if you'd present my problem to your newspaper readers?"

"For example, we needed a couple of secretaries, to do typing and other office routine."

"So we hired two girls who looked attractive."

"But they can hardly beat me at their typing speed though I use only one finger on each hand!"

"And their spelling is atrocious. I'm not kidding! They don't even know how to use a dictionary." So they can't even check on their own errors!

"They don't have a fifth grader's knowledge of English words, yet they passed themselves off as experienced office secretaries!"

JOB INSURANCE

Probably the very best ONE YEAR of education you can obtain is in a first rate Business College.

Even if you plan to become a teacher, preacher, lawyer, doctor or engineer, you will profit remarkably from first receiving a one-year or two-year diploma from a Business College.

And I'm not joking, for I have had experience at various Liberal Arts colleges, such as Yale, Northwestern, Smith College, George Washington University and a YMCA School of Commerce.

In Business College you gain specific, practical training that will equip you for a good job after you get your diploma.

In fact, the usual Business College can't supply the demand for secretaries (legal, medical, engineering as well as business types).

It also is swamped with requests for accountants, bookkeepers, etc.

For a Business College will offer students not only short-hand and typing, but Business Law, Public Speaking, Applied Psychology, Accounting, Bookkeeping and even Charm Courses for office hostesses or airplane stewardesses.

After that diploma from a Business College, you can land a good job at once.

HIGHER EDUCATION

Then you can finance your later Liberal Arts education out of your own pay checks, as by working by day and taking half-time courses in the Extension University of your state.

Mrs. Crane took a one-year diploma course in a Business

College and she has been of far more value to me for the superb practical training she obtained there, than from all her other courses at Northwestern, Indiana University and New York University.

The more I have observed Liberal Arts students, the more positive I am that they would derive far more benefits from such campus courses if they had first obtained a Business College diploma.

Since many students never finish the four years at Liberal Arts, anyway, but drop out after a year or two, they have little "leverage" for trying loose a good job.

For their smattering of history, foreign language and sociology has slight practical value.

In high school, therefore, you students better pay more heed to your English courses, since correct grammar, spelling and typing are great assets, whether in medicine, law or business!

So send for my "Vocational Guidance" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Women Let Men Choose Hi-Fi Set

Men wear the pants in the family when it comes to selecting hi-fi and stereo equipment.

According to Karl Jensen, president of Jensen Industries, leading phonograph needle manufacturer, men select more than 80 per cent of phonograph equipment, excluding the records themselves.

"Many people think that the woman plays a big part in selecting hi-fi," Jensen says, "but it just isn't true. Of course, she'll want a say in the style and color of the cabinets, record racks and the like, but that is usually where her opinion ends."

"After that, she's content to let her husband do the choosing of components because she feels he knows more about the technical aspects of hi-fi."

"The average woman just doesn't comprehend all the equipment that goes into a stereo set, and she really doesn't want to take the time to understand it, either. She feels that hi-fi is her husband's department, as it were."

Readers Develop Many Pet Economies

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

I'm convinced there's a little of the squirrel in all of us. We say cheerfully that we're just born extravagant and can't seem to save a dime. But with or without encouragement, we think up the darndest ways to economize.

Squirreling something away must be a basic protective instinct. May be the way we go about saving doesn't actually add up to much at the end of the year. Nevertheless, we try. We save string, paper cups, old tea bags, and sometimes even money.

It's a commendable instinct and I go on record as encouraging it.

I must say, however, that some of the ways readers approach balancing the budget comes as a surprise. And I'm an old hand at cutting corners. So just in case you're missing out on a good thing, I pass along the following quotes.

Just keep in mind that every single contributor is sincere in the conviction that his or her pet economy is significant!

"I always bring home the oil cans after I have oil put in my car at the service station. I figure there's bound to be a few drops left in the can, as they're pretty busy taking care of the customers and you can't sit around all day while the can drains completely. Then when I get home, I up-end the cans into a barrel I keep in my garage. This way I get all the oil I pay for."

"I decided to stop putting out from $3 to $5 each time I need to have my hair tinted. Now I do it myself and save that money."

"When my social security deduction is finished for the year — after I've earned $4000 — I go to the bank each payday and put the same amount into a savings account. I've been doing this for years, and it's growing."

"I cut down on hors d'oeuvres every time my husband is out of work. He loves them before dinner, and we usually have them. But I always stop serving them the minute we have to economize."

"My brother is a great tea drinker — drinks it all day long. But he's economizing now and saves his tea bags. He lifts each one out of the cup, lays it on paper, and uses it over and over. It works."

"A friend of mine was left a widow with not much of an income to live on. She always liked to entertain a lot, but her friends were always using the telephone. Now she has installed a payphone in the foyer, and her phone bills are practically nothing. She figures she saves quite a bit every month this way."

"I'm always taking my car to the garage, to keep it in tip-top condition. My husband says I spend a lot of money this way. But I could prove that taking care of it has saved us plenty."

"I always have the plastic bags things come in — from the dry cleaner, you know, and the food wrappings. I use the cleaner bags to pack clothes away in. And the food bags for storing other foods in the refrigerator — especially bread. It really does save money."

"I plan an economy meal at least once a week and sometimes twice, if I have big bills that month. I have dried peas or beans with greens, or spaghetti with leftovers for sauce."

"I economize on paper cups. I have to buy them for the children, of course, because they're always bringing friends home and drinking something. But when I use one, I'm very careful to put into the bread box after each use, so it's right there handy when I need it again. I get more mileage out of a paper cup than anybody."

"I may be a little extravagant on some food items, but I figure I make up for it. One way I save money is by making good use of left over dried bread. I save every piece of toast, biscuit, or roll and put them in a plastic bag. Then I make stuffing for fish or meat, or combine the bread with apples for a sort of Apple Betty."

"My 14-year-old daughter is learning how to economize. She gets 20 cents a day for bus fare, but when she wants some thing utterly essential, like nail polish remover, she walks to school and saves the money until it adds up."

Well, there you may have thought of. I realize this list is just a token account of how Mr. and Mrs. America — and their children — keep the budget under control. So it may have some pet economies of your own not mentioned here, let's hear about them.

(You can write to Mary Feeley in care of The Pontiac Press. Subjects of general interest will be discussed.)

Spoon hot creamed crabmeat into baking shells; top with crushed cracker crumbs mixed with melted butter and brown the topping under the broiler. This dish makes a delightful luncheon course when served with a green salad.

Polly's Pointers

Save Battered Bumpers

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer saves both the garage wall and the auto. When we built a second garage I placed a 3-by-6-inch plank, 8 feet long, on the floor two feet from the front of the garage.

The length of this heavy plank prevents members of the family from driving too close to the front wall of the garage. From one on the masculine side, M. O. E.

FRIENDS — The other day I passed an open garage that had two automobile tires fastened flat against the end garage wall to serve as a cushion if one drove in too far. I think these are both good ideas. —POLLY

DEAR POLLY — A plastic rug protector, cut to size, makes excellent shelving for your kitchen cabinet.

I use the rough side up so that damp things put on the shelf do not stick. This is a real time saver and so handy and economical as it seems to never need changing, just wiping off. —MAJORY

DEAR POLLY — Remove the cartridge from an old ballpoint pen and save the pen for your husband to use as a holder for his fishing license.

Roll it up and stick in the pen case which can be clipped to a shirt pocket to stay dry but easily available. —ANN

DEAR POLLY — When altering a garment you are making, put it on wrong side out and all the pins will not have to be moved when changes are made in its fit.

If chalk is used, the marks can be easily seen and you do not run the risk of marking a permanent line on the right side of the garment.

If this idea is used and I receive a Polly Dollar it will be framed as a conversation piece. It would be interesting to know how others have displayed their dollars. —BARBARA

One of our readers sent us her picture wearing a locket her husband had made from her dollar. —POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Your Pointer that suggested putting a cup hook behind a table to hold the lamp cord out of sight should have added that a rubber band should be wrapped around the cord to keep it from coming in contact with the metal hook. Our fire inspector looks at an electrical cord touching metal as potential danger. —CAROL

GIRLS — She is right, but most of my lamp cords are encased in rubber. —POLLY

GRIP FIRMLY for SOLID CHIPPING

SOME PLAYERS FEEL THEY SHOULD HOLD THE CLUB MORE TIGHTLY FOR CHIPPING. OTHERS THINK A LOOSE GRIP IS BEST. JACK NICKLAUS IS RIGHT.

THE GRIP MUST BE EXACTLY THE SAME AS FOR FULL SWINGS. FIRM, BUT NOT TIGHT. LIKE TO ACHIEVE A SMOOTH, EVEN SWING AND CRISP CONTACT.

THE MOST IMPORTANT THING IS THAT A CHIP MUST BE STRUCK SOLIDLY. THIS CANNOT BE ACHIEVED WITH A TIGHT GRIP AND A LOOSE SWING OR A LOOSE GRIP AND A TIGHT SWING.

'Big Four' in Buick Open Golf Field

By FLETCHER SPEARS

This year's edition of the Buick Open at Warwick Hills near Grand Blanc, shapes up as the most exciting one in the tournament's seven-year history.

One big item that makes the 8th annual Buick Open more attractive, at least to the touring professionals, is the size of the purse $100,000 a hefty jump from last year's $66,000 money bag.

And there's also something for the golf fans.

Included in the 147-man field will be the nation's so-called 'Big Four' along with the seven past champions of the Buick Open.

Heading the 'Big Four' is champion Tony Lema, who is defending champion, followed by Masters titleists Jack Nicklaus; PGA king Bobby Nichols and ailing Ken Venturi, the U. S. Open champ.

ARNIE HERE

Not among the 'Big Four' but one who'll probably walk off with a big share of the prize money is Arnold Palmer, the Latrobe, Pa., slugger whose appearance here is almost certain to bring fans out in record numbers.

The other six former Buick champions in the field are Billy Casper (1959), Art Wall (1958), Mike Souchak (1960), Jack Burke Jr. (1961), Bill Collins (1962) and Julius Boros (1963), who set the course record of 274 for 72 holes in the '63 outing.

The field will be completed tomorrow following the qualifying round, which is scheduled for the 6,633-yard Ficht Golf Course.

Switching of the qualifying round from Warwick's 7,280 yards of turf to the Flint course was made because of a PGA rule requiring the tournament course to be available for two full days' practice.

Players exempt from qualifying were touring the course to day. A pro-am is slated for Wednesday and the 72-hole battle for the Buick Open title opens on Thursday with 18 holes.

OTHER ROUNDS

Other rounds will be played Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Venturi, suffering from heat exhaustion, stirred the sports world last summer with his dramatic victory in the U.S. Open at the Congressional Country Club in Maryland.

A circulation ailment in his hands forced him to leave the tour last winter, but his recuperation has been successful enough that he decided to try the Buick Open before defending his U.S. Open title June 17-20 at Belvidere Country Club in St. Louis, Mo.

Two other names familiar in the golf world will also be on hand 55-year old Slammin' Sammy Snead, who has won every major tournament, but the U.S. Open, and Dow Fusterwald, a Buick Open perennial

Crampton Wins Third Tourney

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Australian Bruce Crampton, only three-time winner on the PGA circuit this season, headed to top for Grand Blanc, where double-winners Jack Nicklaus and Doug Sanders will be awaiting him in the Buick Open.

Crampton moved close to pace-setting Nicklaus and ahead of Sanders in 1965 money winnings as he edged Lionel Hebert and Jacky Cupit by one stroke Sunday to win the "500" Special Open Golf Tournament.

The victory was worth $15,200 to Crampton and boosted his season's winnings to $43,095.17. Nicklaus, who did not play here, leads at $47,000. Sanders, who withdrew because of an injury during the first round, is third at $37,166.11.

The handsome Aussie shot 71-70-67-71-279 over Greentree Country Club's 7,002-yard par 71 course. His third round gave him a two-stroke lead going into the final 18, and he stood off the challenges of Hebert and Cupit in a spectacular finish.

Sixteen players were under par for the final round. Best was Don January, who shot 33-65 and set a course record.

Home Training Prepares Child for School

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed.D.
Twentieth century living can make home just a place in which to sleep, eat and change clothing, instead of a place for the exertion of family influence. Family influence has been at the root of our social system and is still the most important factor in the training of young people.

Assured that they are loved and accepted as members of the family, children are free and unafraid to meet the new situations which each school day presents. A youngster's behavior at school is partially controlled by what he realizes he should, and must, do as a representative member of his family.

The family as a unit gives opportunities for training that are difficult to achieve on an individual basis. The Rowe family makes excellent use of this principle. Mr. and Mrs. Rowe are determined their children will gain early many of the social customs and graces they achieved only after marriage.

When guests are entertained they may be greeted at the door by the 12-year-old daughter. She already has acquired the knack of making guests feel welcome.

They are quickly made comfortable because preparations for the evening have obviously been made by the father and mother, with each of the three children contributing to the plan.

For a short time the children are included in the activities. During the meal they take part in serving, table clearing and looking after the guests. They are included from time to time in the conversation. Their success in school and projects about the home receives mention.

All in all it is obvious that they are important members of a proud family.

Mr. and Mrs. Rowe take every opportunity to train their children because, as they say, "The time is so short in which we are allowed this privilege."

That this training carries over into school is obvious. The Rowe children are all happy and successful in school. The parents are assured of this since they both take an active interest in PTA.

Parents should make a conscious effort to build their family into a unit that provides opportunities for training. (You can write Prof. Nason in care of the Pontiac Press.)

Opening lead—♥ Q.

By JACOB AND SON

This week's columns will deal with the jump to game and its significance.

Today's hand would be bid as shown in the box by almost any group of four bridge players and played just about the same way by all declarers. South would win the opening heart and draw trumps with three leads. Then he would go after clubs and when the suit failed to break he would make a contract on the nose provided that West did not foul up the defense and let him gather in an overtrick.

JACOB

Why would the bidding be the same by almost everyone? Because this particular jump to game has the same meaning in all bridge circles.

It says, "Partner you have told me that you have a minimum type opening bid with spade support. Based on that information I want to play in game so I am bidding it. If I were doubtful about playing game I would only have bid three spades. If I were interested in a slam I would have either bid some other suit of game past game myself."

Would anyone get higher? Yes. Some North players (not experts) would jump from one spade to three spades whereupon some South players would move to five or even six. Or some North player (no an expert) might revalue his hand after the jump to game and bid again.

He shouldn't. This particular jump to game by South absolutely precludes any slam interests at all. North should respect his partner's judgement and pass.

♥+CARD Sense♦

Q—The bidding has been:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♠ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
1 ♠ Pass 3 ♥ Pass

You, South, hold
♠ K Q J 10 ♠ A 10 8 4 3 2 ♠ A 6 5 4
What do you do?
A—Bid four hearts. You would like to make a slightly stronger bid if you could do so without going past game.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Your partner bids five diamonds. What do you do now?

Astrological Forecast

By SIDNEY OMARR

Tuesday

"The wise man controls his destiny."

Astrology points the way.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Time when you learn to "let go." Be ready to fulfill promises. Tendency to delay, but procrastination could be costly. Capricorn, be true.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Gift for one close to you is indicated. Be flexible. Avoid undue formality. Day to give and receive. Be in good ahead in cooperation with associates.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20): Meeting conditions at home or office are only temporary. React accordingly. Maintain steady pace. Avoid the emotional effect with the tired and/or.

CANCER (June 21 to July 21): Cycle moves on. Be careful of new contacts. Welcome changes. Obtain hint from today's GEMINI message. Wonderful evening for association with stimulating friends.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 22): Read and write. See and be seen. Key is PERCEPTION. Be observant look beyond surface indications. Family member could prove helpful. Strive for greater HARMONY.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Announcement from superior could prove helpful to your cause. See through as if! Discipline emotions. Make your imagination work for you. Be in good ahead in cooperation with associates.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Not wise to depend upon friends now. Be in good ahead in cooperation with associates.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Finish what you start. Be aware of possessions and care of instruction. Avoid carelessness. Good lunar aspect accents progress. You attract FAVORABLE attention.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Your imagination is "fired up." Do not make known your views. You can prevent ideas, format, campaigns. But you must exude confidence and say what you mean.

Art of Espionage—I

Modern Spying Has More Drudgery Than Glamor

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Contrary to popular notion, the art of spying is short on glamor and long on drudgery. Nothing could have been more drudgery than one Soviet agent, UPI national reporter Harry Ferguson explores the craft in a three-part series.)

By HARRY FERGUSON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Almost all of the glamor has gone out of the craft of spying. Today it is a nuts-and-bolts, assembly-line operation and some of the nuts involved are human.

Female spies these days bear small resemblance to Mata Hari, the dancer who was executed for espionage in World War I. They are likely to be either fat and 40 or thin and frustrated.

They are suckers for sweet talking men who love 'em and leave 'em as soon as they have served their purpose.

Most spies lead full lives. Harry Gold, a Russian agent involved in the Klaus Fuchs case, complained about his dreary routine to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

"There is difficulty in raising money for trips. The weary hours of waiting on street corners in strange towns, where I had no business to be. The killing of time in cheap movies and to my friends to explain my supposed whereabouts (Mom was certain I was carrying on a series of clandestine love affairs). It was drudgery."

"Anyone who has an idea this work is glamorous and exciting is very wrong indeed. Nothing could have been more dreary."

LITTLE EXCITEMENT
There is a general impression that FBI agents, who are charged with the duty of fighting Communist subversion inside the United States, lead exciting lives. Sometimes they do, but more often their activity consists of tramping from garage to garage in large cities searching for automobiles that may have been involved in a crime.

With a few exceptions, spies are underpaid, considering the risks they take. One exception was Col. Stig Wennerstrom of the Swedish Air Force who used his position as air attaché in Washington to send secret information to Moscow.

He was sentenced to life imprisonment and at his trial it was brought out that the Russians had paid him $100,000 over 15 years.

Another exception was Col. Rudolf Abel, who may have been the ablest Russian spy of our generation.

$6,500 IN CASH
When he was arrested, he had $6,500 in cash. He had $1,386 on deposit in the East River Savings Bank in New York and $15,000 in a safe deposit box.

Abel deserves our attention because he is an example of the new type of international spy. He had contempt for agents who engaged in spectacular feats of derring-do.

He was a master of blending quietly into all sorts of conditions and environments. He was fluent in several languages and accents, and had passed successfully as a Jew, a German, a Pole and a resident of Brooklyn.

He had a deep and wide interest in scientific matters and for relaxation, art, light reading he turned to Einstein's treatises on relativity. He knew enough about law to make valuable contributions to his own defense while he was in jail awaiting trial.

Abel probably never would have been caught had not one of his subordinates turned into an alcoholic and, in a moment of depression, went to the FBI and told his story.

ABEL, EXCHANGE

The result was that Abel was sentenced to prison and then was exchanged for Gary Powers, the American U2 pilot who was shot down over Russia.

Moscow obviously held Abel in high regard and just the other day it was announced he had been awarded a medal. The full extent of the damage he did to the national security of the United States probably will never be known to anybody except Abel and his superiors in Moscow.

Gary Powers, too, is typical of the new scientific, mechanized technique of spying.

James Bond, agent 007 of Ian Fleming's novels, doubtless would consider Powers to be a dull fellow who led a boring life.

GOURMET MEALS

Powers never got a chance to consort with cuties and order gourmet meals in the best European restaurants. All he did was to take an exceptional airplane high into the Russian skies. The only thing he ever shot was pictures.

Photo reconnaissance is one of the major weapons of modern espionage, and that was what Powers was engaged in when he was shot down.

Cameras have been developed that can perform incredible feats from almost impossible distances. Experts can fit the pictures together like a child working a jigsaw puzzle and then describe a factory or a military installation in detail what it houses or produces, how many people work in it and what the weekly production rate is likely to be.

It was pictures taken from the air that spoiled Russia's plans to install rockets in Cuba.

And it is safe to say that somewhere in the secret files of the Central Intelligence Agency there is a detailed, illustrated description of Red China's nuclear installation. We know all about it and the Chinese know we know.

Bachelors Cool to Cook School Without Coeds

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Pretoria Technical College has given up its crash program of trying to teach bachelors how to cook.

Worried by a nutritionalist's advice that the many bachelors in the town were eating their way out of baked bean cans into an ulcer-ridden middle age, the college started a special cooking course. The first one was most successful, says V. Serfontein, head of adult education at the college.

The second flopped for lack of support, however.

The problem of bachelors living out of cans is being taken seriously in this administrative capital of South Africa. To get the men interested, Serfontein has proposed that the college should start coeducational cooking courses.

For Modern Facility

MGM Studying Studio Plan

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD — The will-o-wisp of a truly modern movie studio for Hollywood has not yet gone glimmering.

Last year the town was startled by a bold proposal: a brand-new studio complex to be built in the Malibu Mountains and operated jointly by THOMAS land within the city, combining facilities would cut down overhead and eliminate slack periods.

Not the least consideration was that the new studio should be outside Los Angeles' smog belt.

But Hollywood wasn't ready for a revolution, and the studio plan died in company committees.

DID STIMULATE
The proposal did stimulate the thinking of MGM executives on modernization matters, and the company is now toying with the idea of going it alone with a new studio. MGM has acquired from the James Corp. a two-year option on the purchase of a 1,500-acre plot at Thousand Oaks, 30 miles northwest of Hollywood.

The reasoning behind the plan seemed simple enough: the studios' physical plants were aging; a completely new studio should introduce more modern methods of filmmaking with consequent savings; the present studios occupy highly taxable though a bit warmish in summer. There is plenty of flatland for offices, stages and street sets, plus rolling hills and wooded canyons for outdoor locations. The studio would be easily reached via freeways.

MGM is moving ahead with its study. A feasibility study will be handed over to planners who will create designs for the new studio and estimate costs. Their findings will be presented to the board of directors in late fall. The estimate for new construction is hopefully set at $30 million; if the planners' figures go too far beyond that mark, the project might be abandoned.

Most of the studios of Hollywood, meaning Culver City, Westwood, the San Fernando Valley as well, date back to the early 1920s or before. Some of the stages were built in that era, although most went up during the talkies boom of the early 1930s.

The MGM lot came into existence in 1929, when the founder of Culver City offered 40 free acres to any movie makers who would establish studios there. Canny Sam Goldwyn knew a bargain when he saw one; he put up his studio there.

MGM flourished for the next 25 years, adding back lots that brought its total property to 187 acres. The last six of the 32 stages were built in 1938.

SAME EQUIPMENT
Technology has advanced, yet movies are still made with the same bulky equipment of 30-odd years ago. Introduction of new methods was delayed in the past 15 years as the film industry fought for its very survival.

Now, it appears, the film companies will make it. But will they also adopt modern methods? The surveys now being made at Thousand Oaks may well determine that.

Former Portuguese
Flagship to Be Sold

BOMBAY, India (AP) — The former flagship of the Portuguese navy in India is to be auctioned next month after lying at anchor here for three years.

The frigate Alfonso Albuquerque was run aground by the Indian navy in 1961 during the takeover of the Portuguese enclave of Goa. Later it was re-floated and taken to Bombay.

Italy Peace Corps?
ROME (AP) — Twenty-five Christian Democrat members of Parliament have asked the government to set up an Italian peace corps. Their plan would exempt corps volunteers from military service.

Collegians Aid Patients in Project

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — On a quiet street near Harvard is a crowded house called Wellmet. Eight college students live there with eight mental patients.

Some patients, says Dave Kantor, Wellmet Project president, are "the people everybody has given up on."

Wellmet is a place to live for those who have no place else except the wards of mental hospitals. It is meant to be an alternative to endless days of custodial care.

In Wellmet the patient finds a family. His fellow patients and the students who, says Kantor, "bring to the house zeal, enthusiasm, flexibility, a set of ideals of personal" and expectations, a great tolerance for deviation, a consciousness of the human dignity of the patient.

CAN BE CHANGED
"The student," he says, "thinks the world can be changed. Precisely the kind of climate that is best for the chronically sick patient."

From Wellmet, the patients go out to look for jobs and to begin their return to society.

"The idea is to have," says Dr. Victor G. M. Macdonald, director of the unit in drug addiction and Wellmet project director, "a staff of one."

Wellmet Project runs the house with a small board of directors, a psychiatrist and a staff of one.

BEGAN IN 1960
Sponsored by a Harvard student service organization, Wellmet began in 1960. Some 25 patients have lived in the project in the five years. Half have returned to mental institutions.

The others are living "back in the matrix of the community," says Dr. Gelineau.

They are not necessarily fully productive members in the popular sense: most hold jobs such as file clerk, stock boy, aide in a nursing home. Some simply live off pensions.

"We feel," says Dr. Gelineau, "that the community should have more give. That it should be willing to keep people who are not hot-shots at productivity. The whole idea is to have one community, not one community of sick people and another of well people."

Earl Finds U.S. Burgers Beefed Up by Europeans

BY EARL WILSON

COPENHAGEN — This is a secret . . . just between us Americans . . . O.K.?

Though the Europeans pretend to scorn our cuisine, and insist that French cooking is superior to everything in the world, they really, down deep in their stomachs, believe that American food is the best . . . why else do they try so hard to imitate it?

I was studying a menu here on the broad, sometimes sunny, sometimes chilly, terrace of the Anglerter Hotel and was struck by the magic words:

"American Hamburger."

I was enchanted by the foreign atmosphere. There was a New Jersey accent at the next table, then there was my own Ohio dialect, and behind me I heard a Texan saying:

"Ah think we'll have foah Blooky Marys to stah with, and a little ole refill after that, then we'll ordah somethin' to drank, and then we'll get around to the maynew . . ."

So I ordered the American Hamburger, and at length the waiter man brought me a hamburger which America should have but doesn't, at least not in the part of America I frequent.

It was beautiful, it was artistic, it was a joy, and it was also delicious. It was a creation, it had obviously been "fashioned" by a soda fountain wizard who'd got bored with making sundaes and had been let loose with the chopped meat.

How tall the hamburger! Probably eight inches, topped by a mushroom, the whole creation pierced and held together by an elongated plastic siletta much more elegant than the toothpicks we use at home. The hamburger rolls were burnished gold in color, and within the several layers that I peeped into, I discovered peppers, tomato, mustard, butter patties, relishes, pickles, and, I think, an anchovy . . . and, of course, minutely diced onion.

Have I been going to the wrong places in America that I haven't eaten an American Hamburger in America? Wandering away from this eating revelry, I encountered two girls from New Jersey who exclaimed:

"Oh, we just had the best American hot dogs down the street!" "What made them so good?" "I wasn't interested too much in food at this instant."

"French fried onion rings!" one gal said.

American hot dogs, American hamburgers, you're really becoming works of art . . . in Europe. Congratulations!

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "A small town is a place where, when you get a wrong number, you only call for about an hour"—Joey Adams.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "An expert is an ordinary man a hundred miles from home."

EARL'S PEARLS: When a woman says she won't be a minute, She's usually right.

"Just take a look at your wife's purse (says the English Digest) if you want proof that money isn't everything" . . . That's Earl, brother.

Don't Have to Hump

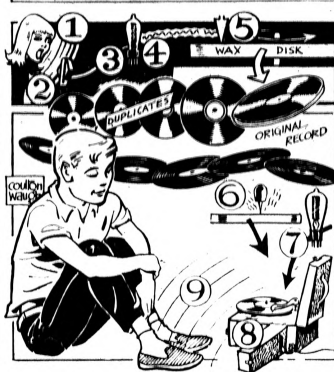

DUDLEY, England (UPI) —

George the Camel, who has provided rides for almost 100,000 children at the local zoo, is being retired to plush paddock at Flamingo Park Zoo near Malton.

Police said the knife was swung playfully by Thomas Casan, 15, South Bend, accidentally striking the Christian boy.

Roman Catholics on Taiwan number 285,564 out of a total population of about 12 million.

Junior Editors Quiz on RECORDINGS

QUESTION: How can sound be put on a record and then come out of it?

ANSWER: Sounds start by vibrations or sound waves in the air. We don't see sound waves, but our artist has symbolized them by lines (2) being pushed away from the mouth of a singer (1).

As these travel into a microphone (3), they are converted into electrical vibrations or signals, which can then move along a wire. Through the use of an amplifying tube (4), these signals are made much stronger.

They move to a small magnet which sets a cutting needle vibrating (5). As a wax disk revolves below the needle point, the needle cuts grooves into the wax.

The various back-and-forth or up-and-down vibrations it makes are registered on the record. A metal form is then made from the wax, and from this thousands of duplicates can be pressed. These are the records you buy.

When you start playing one of these, the needle of your machine (6) is set vibrating in exactly the same way the cutting needle vibrates in the first place (5).

These pulsations are turned into electric signals, amplified (7) and made to vibrate a loud speaker (8). Sound waves resulting from this (9) reach your ears and duplicate the singer's voice.

FOR YOU TO DO: Find out about the high fidelity system, or Hi-Fi, in which there are two speakers, one of which the woofer reproduces low tones and another (the tweeter) the high ones. Then learn what stereophonic recording means.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A few years ago, Sen. Carl T. Curtis proposed that paintings be hung along the walls of the Senate subway so that passengers could view them as they rode by in the little electric cars.

Knife 'Horseplay' Results in Death

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) —

The teenaged son of a University of Notre Dame professor died Sunday of stab wounds suffered in what police termed horseplay.

Authorities said Paul Christin, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Christin Jr., was stabbed in the chest with his own pocketknife Saturday night while playing in a basement bedroom with a classmate.

Police said the knife was swung playfully by Thomas Casan, 15, South Bend, accidentally striking the Christian boy.

Roman Catholics on Taiwan number 285,564 out of a total population of about 12 million.

Retired General Dies;

Veteran of 3 Wars

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Retired Maj. Gen. Harold Richards Baker, 73, veteran of three wars who entered the Army as a buck private in the Mexican border conflict, died Sunday. He commanded the 43rd Artillery Division in World War I and flew 73 combat reconnaissance missions, earning two Silver Stars, a Bronze Star, the Air Medal and Legion of Merit. A bank executive in private life, he retired nine years ago.

Must Vacate Plush Hotel

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge has ruled that Mrs. Harry A. Leeb must vacate a $1,750-a-month hotel suite providing her millionaire husband allows her $350 monthly extra for other quarters.

The couple was married last June at El Morocco nightclub amid great publicity, and later took some of the wedding guests along on their European honeymoon.

State Supreme Court Justice Thomas A. Aurelio noted recently that Leeb now is giving his estranged wife $750 in monthly support payments.

He ruled Mrs. Leeb must leave the suite by today is she is to get the extra $350. Leeb wants her out because he is footing the hotel bill.

Leeb is seeking an annulment on grounds that an Alabama divorce previously obtained by his wife is illegal.

Mrs. Leeb, in a countersuit for separation, accuses Leeb of abandonment and cruel and inhuman treatment.

MEMORIAL DAY, 1965

Much of Holiday Attention Is on Arlington Ceremonies

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — At each of the 130,000 graves in Arlington National Cemetery, a tiny specially placed American flag flutters for Memorial Day. People come by the hundreds to a relative, a friend or an admired hero — most among groups taking turns conducting brief ceremonies at the Tomb of the Unknowns.

So it has been on Memorial Day year after year, in somewhat similar fashion since 1868. Observances are held at the nation's other 84 national cemeteries, but the Memorial Day focus is on Arlington.

That's because its rolling hills contain the bodies of more noted Americans than any other. They lie among the thousands who won no acclaim nor medals. A book published on this Memorial Day, "Arlington, Monument to Heroes," recites the names and deeds of many of the most illustrious dead. And it gives in up-to-date detail the history of the hallowed cemetery, taking the reader on a kind of walking tour.

RETIREE COLONEL

The book is by John V. Hinkel, a native of Washington and a retired Army Reserve colonel who has long been a student of the lore of the city.

This Memorial Day will attract visitors to the grave of President John F. Kennedy. And Hinkel has a special chapter on this most recent major addition to the cemetery. He describes the daily line of "reverent pilgrims" which flow past "like a river."

Not far away is the grave of Pvt. J. P. Kennedy, who died May 16, 1964 and one of the first buried in Arlington.

Hinkel writes it is ironic that this most revered of cemeteries for American fighting men became a burial place because of an act of spite.

MANSSION INVOLVED

It involved the Custis-Lee mansion which overlooks President Kennedy's grave. That imposing home and land George Washington once owned was built in 1823 by his adopted son, George Washington Parke Custis, to house the first president's relics.

Mary Anne Custis, his daughter, married Robert E. Lee and lived with him there until Lee went off to command the Confederate forces in the Civil War.

The Army quartermaster general in 1862 was Montgomery Meigs, a former Southern who, Hinkel writes, "kept his most violent distastes for his own previous commander—Robert E. Lee."

Meigs arranged for the Army to take over the mansion and its sprawling acres and he set out to make uninhabitable the house where Lee had lived. Meigs ordered its rose garden turned into a burial ground for soldiers.

REMINDER

The L-shaped row of graves Meigs ordered still remains. So do two other Meigs creations—the tomb of the unknown dead of the War Between the States with the remains of 2,111 unidentified Union soldiers and the Temple of Fame, a memorial to George Washington and 10 11 Union leaders.

Meigs himself is buried at Arlington.

The government had seized the mansion and its grounds for $26,800 because neither Lee nor his wife could come forth to pay the taxes on it personally as required by law. The Supreme Court 20 years later voided this (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

Thundershowers Will Accompany Warmer Weather

The weatherman reports scattered thundershowers are headed this way, due to arrive tomorrow afternoon or night with temperatures a little warmer.

Showers may be expected again Wednesday and near the weekend.

Lows will be near 46 to 54 tonight. High temperatures tomorrow will range from 72 to 80.

This morning's light and variable winds will become southerly at 3 to 12 miles this afternoon increasing to 8 to 18 m.p.h. tonight.

Forty-eight was today's low recording prior to 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac. At 11 a.m. the reading was 69.

Traffic Count Moving Closer to Record Toll

Highway Fatalities 40 Per Cent Ahead of 1964 Holiday

By The Associated Press
Deaths in groups of five and even six were rocketing the Memorial Day weekend auto accident toll toward a grim record at the beginning of the last day of the three-day holiday period.

Lives were being snuffed out at the average rate of more than six an hour before the after midnight lull.

Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council, said, "It is conceivable that it could be the worst Memorial Day weekend on record unless motorists change their driving pattern."

With fatalities running 40 per cent ahead of last year's pace, Pyle said, "the toll looks certain to be on the upper end of our estimate."

The council has estimated traffic deaths for the 78-hour weekend, 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight tonight at 430 to 510.

At 9 a.m. EST today the nationwide toll was 369.

MANY TRAGEDIES

Among the more spectacular tragedies:

A head-on collision on a desert highway near Needles, Calif. Saturday killed six persons. The only survivor was a 12-year-old girl.

An almost identical crash in the High Sierra foothills near Lone Pine, Calif. killed five persons, among them the parents of the only survivor, an 8-year-old girl.

A collision on a freeway north of San Jose, Calif. killed three men and two women.

Another head-on smashup near Abbeville, La. yesterday took the lives of five teenagers and critically injured two other persons.

5 YOUTHS DIE

Five boys of high school age were killed in a collision outside Gallatin, Tenn.

Three 16-year-old boys and a 26-year-old truck driver died in a crash at an intersection near Grand Island, Neb.

Two boys were killed yesterday near Terre Haute, Ind. when they and their mother stepped out of their stalled car and were run down by another car. The mother was seriously hurt.

A young couple engaged to be married next month were among five persons killed Saturday night in a collision near Upper Sandusky, Ohio. The couple was John Hayman, 20, of Carey, Ohio, and Judith Lucius, 18, of Tiffin, Ohio.

The record number of traffic deaths for a three-day Memorial Day weekend was 431 last year. The lowest total was 294 in 1948. The record high for any three-day holiday period was 609 during the 1955 Christmas season.

RECORD NUMBER

An Associated Press survey of highway fatalities during 5 p.m. Friday, May 14 to midnight Monday, May 17, tallied 387. In the first three months of 1965, traffic deaths averaged about 100 a day.

No Reports of Injuries

TOKYO (UPI) — A sharp earthquake rocked Tokyo this afternoon. There were no immediate reports of injuries or damage. The quake hit at 5:38 p.m. (4:38 a.m. EDT).

Official Denies Report Red Chinese Leader Ill

TOKYO (AP) — A Red Chinese official in Peking today denied reports that Mao Tse-tung is seriously ill.

"Chairman Mao is in excellent health. I just saw him yesterday," Liao Cheng-chih, a member of the Chinese Communist party's Central Committee, told a correspondent of the Japanese news agency Kyodo.

The Kyodo correspondent reported that other authoritative sources in the Chinese capital said Mao is in good health and attended a high party meeting yesterday.

Mao, 71, has not been seen in public since April 13 when he received Wing Cmdr. Ali Sabry, an associate of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt.

The British government said yesterday it has received reports from Peking that the Chinese Communist leader may have suffered a stroke. The British statement, however, stressed that the reports were speculative and were being treated as such.

Oakland Schools to Seek Half-Mill Tax Hike June 14

By JOE MULLEN

Oakland Schools will seek a half-mill tax increase for special education on the June 14 school election ballot.

One major reason for the millage hike, according to Oakland Schools' officials, is a pressing need to expand its perceptual development and adjusted study programs.

Port Huron Drops Out of Airline Battle

North Central Airlines (NCA), which has sought to drop service to three Michigan communities, has won one battle.

Port Huron has given up trying to keep NCA service. City officials there have said filing a petition for judicial review of a Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) ruling would be too expensive.

Pontiac and Cadillac-Reed City, however, have filed for a court review of the Feb. 15 CAB order that would permit NCA to drop service to these cities.

The review application would hold off action on the CAB ruling pending a court finding.

The CAB ruled none of the three shops had generated sufficient traffic to justify continuance of NCA service.

Meantime, Pontiac has a second petition before the CAB for southbound air service to Chicago and Cleveland.

Area Man Crushed by Hit-Run Car

A 25-year-old Bloomfield Township man was in critical condition this morning after being struck by a hit-and-run car while he was changing a flat tire.

Arthur W. Landry, 271 Concord, was being treated at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital for severe chest, back and abdominal injuries.

Bloomfield Township police said Landry was changing a left rear tire on the shoulder of West Maple east of Franklin when another vehicle swerved off the road and crushed him against his car.

The five persons in Landry's car said the other vehicle, possibly a light-colored car, continued east on Maple after the 1:36 a.m. incident.

School Loan OK'd for Clarenceville

The State Department of Public Instruction Saturday announced approval of Clarenceville Schools borrowing $100,000 against anticipated state aid.

Similar authorization also was given to several other school districts throughout the state.

Highest borrowing authorization was $180,000 for Adrian Schools.

500 Casualties Claimed Over Outpost Clash

Two Americans Listed Among Dead; Planes Hammer Enemy Units

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Air Force and Marine Corps jets struck at Communist positions in Quang Ngai Province today after three days of hard fighting in which an estimated 500 government troops were killed, wounded or missing.

Unofficial reports said two U.S. Army men were killed in the action west of the provincial capital, and that a U.S. airman was wounded.

U.S. officials also reported 155 other government casualties — 35 killed, 20 wounded and 100 missing — at the Khe Tri outpost near the border with North Viet Nam. The Viet Cong overran the post Friday night. A government relief force retook it Saturday.

The Viet Cong struck back, dispersed the relief force and escaped before a second relief force arrived.

In Quang Ngai, 65 miles southeast of the big Da Nang air base, U.S. officials said the Viet Cong appeared to be pulling back.

The government rushed in reinforcements, but a counterattack was delayed, apparently because of bad weather.

2 BATTALIONS
Senior U.S. military sources said they had confirmed the presence of two battalions of North Vietnamese troops in the area 15 miles west of Quang Ngai. They said they were believed to have taken part in an attack on a special forces camp at Ha Trah. No details were immediately available.

An estimated two regiments of Communist fighters battled the government forces before breaking off the action at noon.

Initial reports said the heaviest losses were suffered by the 39th Ranger Battalion and the 3rd Vietnamese Marine Battalion. The marine unit was said to (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Escape Artist Finally Captured

Prison farm escapee Clifford West, captured Saturday after holding a state trooper captive while fleeing police demonstrated his will to escape from the moment he walked away from Camp Pontiac in White Lake Township May 7.

State Police figured West, 19, of Monroe, had stolen three cars and a bicycle in his first few hours of freedom early this month.

The two-wheel bike was reported stolen near Lapeer where police found a smashed-up car they suspected the fugitive had stolen.

West was captured Saturday after a wild 50-mile police chase in Michigan and Ohio. Meantime, the wife of Richard Perry, 35, was tending the family radish patch and two young sons while her state trooper-husband was held captive by the armed convict during the high-speed chase.

"NO CHANCE"

"I guess I never had a chance to be worried," said the 29-year-old housewife. "The best thing about this is that I didn't know until I knew he was safe."

Her husband spent a harrowing hour in the front seat of a stolen car. At the wheel was 19-year-old West.

When Perry stopped West's car near Monroe Saturday, Perry says West pulled a gun and kidnapped him.

ENDS IN CRASH
The chase ended in a crash at Fremont, Ohio, as Perry insisted June 8 on charges of kidnapping and assault with intent to murder.

'Success' Reported in Race With Moon

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—A jet transport, loaded with delicate instruments and racing with the moon across the South Pacific, has given scientists the longest probe in man's history into the conditions of a solar eclipse.

The moon won the race, but during the 9 minutes and 42 seconds the airplane was cloaked in its shadow Sunday, instruments mounted in 13 viewing ports on the plane's fuselage recorded mountains of data which will take months to analyze.

A spokesman for the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration said it appeared the NASA-sponsored mission was a 100 per cent success.

Rights Ruling to Set Pace?

Area Builder Tries to Halt Commission

PONTIAC (AP)—The State Civil Rights Commission says a pending lawsuit "very well could be a landmark case concerning our jurisdiction in housing matters."

The suit involves a Negro schoolteacher from Inkster and Birmingham builder William J. Pulte.

The teacher, Freeman M. Moore, made a telephone negotiation with Pulte's firm and sent a $1,000 deposit to build a home in Beverly Hills, between Birmingham and Southfield.

Pulte has asked Oakland County Circuit Judge Frederick C. Ziern for an injunction to keep the Civil Rights Commission from taking jurisdiction in the dispute.

BRIEF FILED

In a brief filed by Pulte and his attorney, Dean G. Beier said:

Representatives of the plaintiffs met with Freeman M. Moore and associated him with a Negro. Prior to making the Moore deposit check for $1,000, William J. Pulte, Inc., determined not to enter into any contract for the construction of a dwelling in the North Georgia town of Gresham, without any person not of the white race, whereupon the $1,000 deposit check was returned to Mr. Moore.

The brief added: "It appears almost elementary that the commission is without authority to assume jurisdiction in the area of private property rights. Legislation may some day establish that jurisdiction, but it has not as yet."

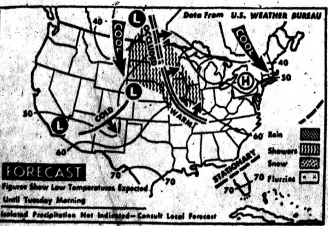

Pulte and Beier declined to comment outside the record. Moore was not available for comment.

Correct Leak in Spacecraft

Gemini Preparations Return to Schedule

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Preparations moved forward today for the nation's most ambitious space flight after technicians ran down and corrected a water leakage problem in the Gemini 4 spacecraft.

The leak, discovered early Sunday, had threatened to delay the scheduled launch Thursday of astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II on their four-day space journey.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said that a life support system package damaged by the leaking water had been replaced. The package is used to remove carbon dioxide from the capsule.

Nine miles south of the Bahamian island of San Salvador, the tiny cable ship Omega waited for high winds and seas to subside so it can grapple for the broken ends of an undersea cable used in the Gemini program. The cable runs 1,500 miles from Cape Kennedy to Antigua, and has several Bahamian tracking stations connected to it.

VITAL FUNCTION

Space agency officials said they hoped it could be repaired in time for the landing of Gemini 4—the point where it serves its most vital function. But if it isn't, they added, radio communications could be used.

Between Saturday night and Sunday morning, 32 pounds of water leaked into the spacecraft's lithium hydroxide container. The device, in addition to removing carbon dioxide from the spacecraft, also supplies drinking water for the astronauts, and provides a coolant.

McDivitt and White are scheduled for the longest flight yet in the U.S. space effort—a 28-day tour. He will approach earth's orbit and then the second stage of the Titan 2 rocket which is to boost the Air Force major into space.

White plans to venture out from the spacecraft, held to the craft by a 25-foot tether. He will approach another orbiting satellite—the second stage of the Titan 2 rocket which is to boost the Air Force major into space.

came to her home after it was over.

"I want you to know, first of all, that he is all right," the officer said. "Before I say anything else, I want you to understand that."

'WASN'T SURE'

But she wasn't sure until her husband came home from his job that night.

"Thank God, thank God," she murmured as her sons pressed noses against the front window.

Perry took his wife and sons, Douglas, 5, and David, 3, to Monroe's St. Paul's Methodist Church Sunday. The Rev. Charles Beynon talked about how happy he was to see the Perrys there, together.

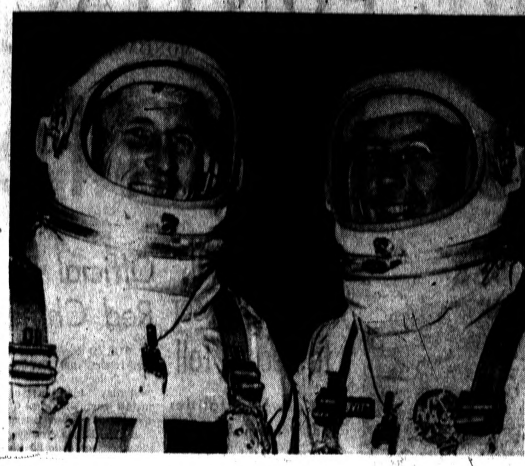

"You try not to worry," said Mrs. Perry. "But the thought is always there. If you keep thinking about it, you become a nervous wreck."

U.S. Treasurer Still 'Serious'

DARBY, Pa. (AP)—The Treasurer of the United States, Mrs. Kathryn O'Leary Granahan, remained in serious condition at Fitzgerald-Mercy Hospital today following brain surgery.

Mrs. Granahan, 69, a former congresswoman, had a blood clot removed from her brain last Thursday night. She was stricken last Tuesday at Atlantic City, N. J., where she was to have addressed a convention of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey bankers associations.

The hospital reported Mrs. Granahan showing some improvement but her condition remained serious because of the severity of the operation.

Police Arrest 13 Persons in Georgia Protest Marches

By The Associated Press

Authorities arrested 13 persons in Crawfordsville, Ga., over the weekend as Negroes attempted unsuccessfully to integrate two white Baptist churches and held another series of protest marches.

Negroes then marched around the courthouse in protest to the arrests and later about 200 held a rally there.

The Negroes also picketed the residence of Lola H. Williams, county school superintendent, until they were told that a resident was ill and ordered to leave.

The picketing was in protest to the failure of the school board to renew contracts of six Negro teachers, an action which touched off the demonstrations last Wednesday.

FIELD WORKER

Willie Bolden, a field worker for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said refusal of school authorities to renew the contracts meant that "we are going for everything, including the public accommodations and the churches."

Elsewhere, civil rights workers at Bogalusa, La., called off plans for a march on city hall and said they will go to court to seek adequate protection for picketers and civil rights demonstrators.

Ronnie Moore, a field secretary for the Congress of Racial Equality, said picketing of downtown stores would continue while a suit is filed in U.S. District Court seeking to have city, parish and state law enforcement officers protect demonstrators.

He said leaders also would seek a ruling on the constitutionality of a Bogalusa ordinance requiring a 48-hour notice prior to a parade.

TEMPERS FLARE

Temper flared Sunday night as two Klux Klan rally on a farm near Lebanon, Ohio, for allegedly making pro-Negro remarks during a speech favoring white supremacy.

Both were hustled to their car. When the auto was caught in a traffic jam, many of the 300 spectators gathered around it, cursing, kicking and shaking their fists.

Music, impromptu speeches and chatting under the maple trees had highlighted the day's program in the four-day rally which winds up today.

At Tuscaloosa, Ala., Vivian J. Malone made history when she became the first Negro ever to graduate from the University of Alabama. "It feels great, it really does," she said.

PICKET CATHEDRAL

An integrated group of about 30 clergymen and others picketed the Episcopal Cathedral of St. Philip in Atlanta, Ga., where a segregated private school held baccalaureate exercises. Two years ago, the school refused to enroll the son of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The pickets, organized by the Episcopal Society for Cultural and Racial Unity, protested use of the church for the school and called on the church to desegregate the school. School officials say the church and school severed their ties more than a year ago.

Hinkel notes another irony of Arlington history:

On the first Memorial Day in 1868—it was called Decoration Day—Southern women were curiously refused permission to place flowers on Confederate graves. Union graves were covered with flowers.

BLASTERY WIND

"That night there was a blustery wind—and in the report, as report has it," Hinkel wrote, "the sentries found the Confederate graves buried under flowers blown from the Union graves."

Hinkel recounts in capsule the deeds of many of the noted men and women who lie among the "series ranks on the quiet green slopes of Arlington."

He said in addition to the unknowns at the tomb, there are nearly 5,000 other unknowns buried in Arlington.

The call of famous generals and admirals who lie in Arlington stretches back through all of America's wars to Revolutionary days, and several generations of some noted Army and Navy families rest together.

There are names: Gen. H. H. (Hap) Arnold, Gen. Clair L. Chennault, Field Marshal Sir John Dill, Maj. Gen. W. J. (Wild Bill) Donovan, Maj. Gen. Merritt A. Edson, G. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, G. Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Adm. William Leahy, Lt. Gen. John A. Lejeune, Gen. Peyton C. March, Adm. David Nixon Porter, Gen. Philip Sheridan, Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright and Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of American Expeditionary Forces in World War I, who at his own request got "a plain GI headstone."

ton, D.C. The new queen will be crowned Friday in Miami Beach, Fla., and will represent the United States in the Miss Universe Pageant in July.

April Road Deaths

More Than in 1964
EAST LANSING (AP) — April brought an increase in highway fatalities over last year, the first up after five straight months of reductions from a year ago, late police report.

The 148 traffic deaths in April this year were four more than for the month a year ago.

The April fatality figure represented the first monthly in-crease since last November, but to November, the death toll had increased in 20 of 22 months.

Police charges made on the 1.5 million credit cards lost or stolen each year exceed $2 million annually, according to the Journal of American Insurance.

Commercial Bingo Banned in Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — A ban on commercial bingo throughout Ireland has been announced by Justice Minister Brian Lenihan on the basis of court rulings.

Charity fund-raising bingo may continue under court li-cense, he said, but prizes must be limited and there can be no bingo advertising.

Ex-Alabama Chief Dies

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former Alabama Gov. Gordon Persons, 83, died Sunday after a stroke May 17. During his 1951-1955 tenure as governor, he put Phenix City and Russell County under martial law following the 1954 slaying of anti-vice crusader Albert Pat-

This Fish Story Is Quite a Tale

SOUTHEAST, England (AP) — Anglers casting for fish 10 miles out to sea caught two monkeys. This latest fish story was told today by G. B. Warren and fellow anglers aboard the Lady Iris which came to shore after several days at sea.

The monkeys, named Bongo and Tina, were rescued as they drifted in a box off Southeast. In the box was a letter saying Bongo and Tina should be taken to the London Zoo "where they would make the kids laugh."

At present, Warren is looking after the monkeys at his home.
