As Big 3 Backs West Berlin

NATO Set to Huddle

PARIS (AP) — Reassured that the Western Big Three will stand fast against Soviet pressure on West Berlin, the North Atlantic Allies turned today to critical disputes within the alliance.

The agreement Sunday on Berlin by the foreign ministers of Britain, France and the United States led off a week of formal conferences vital to Western Europe's future.

A communique said the Big Three foreign ministers "reaffirmed the determination of their governments to maintain their position and their rights with respect to Berlin, including the right of free access."

The statement rejected the Soviet proposal to give the East German Communist regime control of Allied traffic with West Berlin. In effect, the ministers ruled out suggestions that the West deal with the East Germans as agents of the Russians.

The three ministers — U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd — gave no indication of what counter-proposals they would make in reply to the Soviet note of Nov. 27.

But they said they were agreed on the basic issues to be covered in their replies. They said they would consult with the other NATO allies in the NATO Council meeting beginning Tuesday and then would formulate their notes to the Soviets.

Today's big program of diplomatic meetings included the following:

9:30 a.m. (3:30 EST) — U.S.-Canadian defense talks.

10 a.m. (5 a.m. EST) — Meeting of six European Common Market countries.

11 a.m. (5 a.m.) — Meeting of OEEC Council at Chateau de la Muette.

11 a.m. (5 a.m.) — Meeting of Council of Europe at Palais de Jena.

1 p.m. (7 a.m.) — Lunch given by Lloyd to Council of Europe foreign ministers.

3 p.m. (9 a.m.) — Meeting of West European Union Council.

4 p.m. (10 a.m.) — Resumed meetings of OEEC Council.

4:30 p.m. (10:30 a.m.) — Dulles calls on De Gaulle.

6:45 p.m. (12:45 p.m.) — Italian Premier Amintore Fanfani calls on De Gaulle.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev, in the Soviet note, said the Soviets were withdrawing from the four-power occupation of Berlin. He

Frigid Weather Ups Accidents

No Sign of Change
From Cold Spell Here;
Snow Tonight

A light snowfall and continued frigid temperatures kept area police and sheriff's deputies busy this weekend handling a rash of accident reports.

Area highways were slippery Sunday evening and this morning due to a light snow, and the Weather Bureau predicted today that the snow and cold shows no signs of letting up.

Mostly cloudy and continued cold with a few snow flurries is the outlook for the Pontiac area.

It will be cloudy and cold with snow tonight, continuing through tomorrow when the snow will diminish to flurries.

Today's predicted high is 20 with a low tonight of 10 and tomorrow's high about 16. Winds will be westerly at 14-22 m.p.h. today, becoming southwesterly this afternoon and tonight, and northwesterly tomorrow morning.

proposed that West Berlin, 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain, be made a demilitarized free city.

The Russians said regardless of what was worked out for West Berlin, they were giving the East Germans control of all communications within the city in six months.

The Western refusal to deal with the East Germans apparently left no alternative but force to insure access to the city if the Russians go ahead with the transfer of communication controls.

1- to 6-Inch Snow Slams Dixie, Eastern States

By United Press International

Fresh snows swept out of the Southland and the Northeast today. Weathermen foresaw no major break in the bitter weather cloak-ing much of the nation. The brunt of the eastern storm moved out into the Atlantic Ocean last night, but deposited moderate snowfall amounts along its flanks from northern New Jersey to southern New England.

Earlier, the storm slammed into Dixie, dumping six inches of snow at Richmond, Va. It left one to four inches from northern South Carolina to southeastern New England.

As the cold snap stretched well into its second week, readings plunged to zero or below as far south as Fayetteville, Ark., during the night, and sub-freezing temperatures ranged through Georgia and northern Florida.

The northern New York community of Oswego measured a full winter's snowfall today, six days before the official beginning of that season.

A U.S. Weather Bureau observer said 88 inches of snow had fallen there this month. The snowfall for all of last winter was 88 inches.

Hunt Knife as Link in Gaca Case

Detectives from the Redford State Police Post and Army personnel from Fort Wayne today put a mine detector to use in hopes of discovering a knife which police believe might be used to kill Barbara Gaca more than three years ago.

A field just south of the Walled Lake Amusement Park was being combed as police moved ahead with their investigation of a possible link with the unsolved murder of the 7-year-old Detroit girl and the arrest of a Berkeley man for pistol-whipping a Ferndale woman last week.

Lt. Howard Whaley, of the Redford post, said Walter H. Budry, 25, of 3665 Oakshire Rd., "definitely is a good suspect" in the Gaca slaying.

The Gaca girl's body was discovered wrapped in an Army blanket in a wooded area near Halsted road and Pontiac Trail in West Bloomfield Township in May of 1955.

Budry became a suspect when he suddenly mentioned to detectives that he had tossed away a knife with the gun with which he admitted beating Mrs. Marguerite Baker, 37, a clerk at the Piggy (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Envision MSUO as Trail Blazer

Strong Winds Pushing Blaze Near Mission

1,000 Men Fight Fire
Close to California's
San Juan Capistrano

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP) — An estimated 1,000 men, hampered by turbulent winds, struggled today to check a fast-moving brush fire raging in mountain country eight miles northeast of this historic mission town.

The blaze broke out Sunday and quickly consumed 10,000 acres of tall brush some of it as high as 15 feet.

Hopes of easy control of the fire were dashed when it jumped the Ortega highway, a scenic route linking San Juan Capistrano and Lake Elsinore.

Firemen had sought vainly to make a stand at the highway. The area, dotted with resort cabins and a few ranches, is part of the Cleveland National Forest.

Cabins in the community of San Juan Hot Springs were endangered but firefighters were optimistic that most of them would be saved. Inhabitants were evacuated.

U.S. Forest Service men were joined by prison camp crews and county and state units. Sixty pump-trucks and 15 bulldozers were in use.

When flames leaped the highway, Orange County sheriff's officers put out an emergency call for patrol cars to order out ranchers in the area.

Police from virtually every city in Orange County rushed to the area.

Residents in the northeast side of San Juan Capistrano were alerted, in case evacuation of the area was needed. The city's famed mission is in this district.

Drifting Balloonists Cover 700 Miles

SANTA CRUZ, Tenerife, Canary Island (UPI) — The drifting balloon "The Small World" was believed today to have covered about 700 miles on its flight across the Atlantic.

The Small World left here shortly after midnight on the morning of Dec. 12 with a crew of four and seemed to be trying to project his doubts, his uneasiness across the desk. "But I have been at pains throughout this interview to make you see that we are not to be classed as a mere Travel Agency, and that our young men are emphatically not couriers."

"The duties, sir," Angus could not help pointing out, "are those of a courier."

"Perhaps." The old man shifted forward in his seat and seemed to be trying to project his doubts, his uneasiness across the desk. "But I have been at pains throughout this interview to make you see that we are not to be classed as a mere Travel Agency, and that our young men are emphatically not couriers."

"They accompany our travelers, they are at hand to point out, if required, points of interest on the journey, and they are prepared to help or to advise."

"They act as liaison officers between our clients and... Yes, that is the term, they are liaison officers. They are not, definitely not couriers."

With an effort, Angus injected a note of solemnity into his voice. "A liaison officer. I quite see that there is more than a shade of difference, sir," he said.

He saw the instant relief and pleasure in the old man's face and reproached himself for not having put him at his ease earlier. He had known what was lacking in his own manner, but he had been reluctant to repair the omission.

Smoking Aftermath

SMOLDERING RUINS — Remains of Mountainville Hotel at Allentown, Pa. are shown where six persons lost their lives and a score were injured as a result of a gas explosion and fire.

Spectators Die in Blast at Pennsylvania Hotel

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A darkroom technician who wanted to be a newspaper photographer stopped on his way home from work to take pictures of a gas main explosion.

Minutes later, he and five other curious spectators lost their lives in a second blast.

Lester S. Kraft Jr. 29, a camera bug hired last September by the Allentown Call-Chronicle, was driving home late Saturday night after work.

As he reached the outskirts of this southeastern Pennsylvania city, he saw a huge jet of flaming gas shoot up through the street paving from a broken main.

He parked and ran with his camera to the front porch of the 120-year-old Mountainville Hotel, a good spot from which to see the spectacular fire. Others also had gathered on the porch, or near it, to watch.

Minutes later the second explosion ripped the building apart. Tons of brick and stone buried the six victims. Twenty-three others were injured, two critically.

The second blast was followed by a series of lesser explosions as leaking gas ignited in the streets around the hotel.

The operators of the hotel, actually a tavern with living quarters on the second floor, were Mr. and Mrs. George Andresack. Mrs. Andresack's timely warning to some 50 patrons probably kept the death toll down.

"I went to the cellar door after I smelled gas and when I opened it, the odor was very heavy," she said.

"I yelled to the patrons to put out their cigarettes and get out because I was afraid of an explosion."

Moments after the bar patrons left, the hotel was destroyed. In addition to Kraft, the dead were William Gruber and Perry Miller, both 16, had just left a nearby roller skating rink; William MacLean; Walter Leitger, 37, and Maynard Haebner, 39, all of Allentown.

Top Educators in U.S. Help Plan Curriculum

Panel of 5 Sees College
as Pioneer to Develop
New Concepts

By MAX E. SIMON

American colleges are placing too much emphasis on irrelevant liberal arts courses which are not meaningful to students.

That was one of the major conclusions reached by an panel of five nationally known persons who came to Michigan State University Oakland Saturday to help in planning the liberal arts curriculum for the new institution.

Because MSUO is not bound by tradition and is starting with a clean slate, the panel saw an "unparalleled opportunity" for the school to lead in developing new educational concepts.

Taking part in the liberal arts seminar were Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University; Dr. Sarah G. Blanding, president of Vassar College; Dr. Henry Steele Commager, noted historian at Amherst College; Henry R. Luce, editor-in-chief of Time, Inc., and Dr. Ralph W. Tyler, director of the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford, Calif.

Moderator for the panel was James C. Zeder, vice president of Chrysler Corp. and of the MSUO Foundation.

MASTER USELESS MATERIAL — Many brilliant students become discouraged because they are forced to master useless material, the panelists agreed.

They also found fault with the idea that the teacher is the key cog in the educational system.

The importance of teaching is being exaggerated, the panel felt.

Student learning is what really counts, they emphasized, and students should be encouraged to consider the libraries and laboratories as the center of their educational experience.

It was agreed by the panelists that:

1. Liberally educated students (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

Introducing a New Adventure Series: 'The Green Empress'

He Seemed Right for the Job... but Why the Calm Air?

By ELIZABETH CADELL

"Do you," asked Sir Claud finally, "feel confident to undertake the work?"

There was anxiety in his voice, but there was anguish in the look he directed towards the large young man seated at the other side of the bare, highly-polished desk.

The young man returned the gaze politely, but with unruffled calm, and Sir Claud, running a distracted hand over his sparse gray hairs, leaned back in his chair and tried to discover what was making him hesitate on the brink of decision.

He had done all he could. He had granted the rare privilege of a personal interview, and at the beginning of it had put the candidate through a stiff verbal examination. He had found him alert, well-informed and intelligent.

He also fulfilled the other requirements of the Company; his background was impeccable, his looks pleasant, his voice and bearing good.

SOMETHING MISSING

But in the later stages of the interview when Sir Claud had spoken at some length of the heavy responsibility involved in working for the Company, when he had stressed the necessity of upholding its high standards, he had felt that something was missing in the young man's manner.

Something was missing, but he could not decide, he could not define exactly what it was. There was polite attention. The young man had listened to what was being said to him with a quietness and ease of manner and—

And that was it! There, Sir Claud told himself, there was the flaw. There was the fault, elusive, intangible, that he had sensed but failed to identify. It was this that had worried him, this ease, this calm, almost this coolness of manner.

It could spring only from a conviction that a thorough knowledge of detail was sufficient qualification for the post. This young man, satisfactory in all other respects, obviously considered that efficiency was enough.

Efficiency was not enough. Sir Claud, in a last effort to drive this fact home, leaned forward and spoke earnestly. "You fully understand, Mr. Graham, what you are undertaking?"

"Perfectly, sir," said Angus, and marveled at his own self-control. For forty minutes he had been fighting a strong impulse to rise and inform this tedious old man that there was no need to go on droning out instructions.

GRASPS DETAILS

He had grasped the details and he could do the job on his head. If he couldn't conduct a busload of travelers across country that he knew like the palm of his hand, if he was incapable of acting for a short time as combined courier, steward and nursemaid to a collection of mobile millionaires, he must indeed be as weakwitted as this old man appeared to find him.

Attention, Angus, he warned himself. The old gentleman's off again.

"You do understand" — Sir Claud enunciated each word slowly and clearly — "you do understand that you are not—let me repeat this emphatically—you are not a courier?"

"The duties, sir," Angus could not help pointing out, "are those of a courier."

"Perhaps." The old man shifted forward in his seat and seemed to be trying to project his doubts, his uneasiness across the desk. "But I have been at pains throughout this interview to make you see that we are not to be classed as a mere Travel Agency, and that our young men are emphatically not couriers."

"They accompany our travelers, they are at hand to point out, if required, points of interest on the journey, and they are prepared to help or to advise."

"They act as liaison officers between our clients and... Yes, that is the term, they are liaison officers. They are not, definitely not couriers."

With an effort, Angus injected a note of solemnity into his voice. "A liaison officer. I quite see that there is more than a shade of difference, sir," he said.

He saw the instant relief and pleasure in the old man's face and reproached himself for not having put him at his ease earlier. He had known what was lacking in his own manner, but he had been reluctant to repair the omission.

What Sir Claud had expected, had awaited, was respect amounting to awe for the Company, and this Angus had been unwilling to grant.

MOBILE WET-NURSE

It was, in his opinion, no more than a firm that specialized in giving rich travelers rich treatment, and he himself was nothing more, he considered, than a mobile wet-nurse.

But if getting the job meant humoring the Company's head and founder, he was prepared to humor him.

He needed the job, he reminded himself. He needed it badly. It would fill in more than a month, a week going, a week or two there, a week returning. It would pay him well and it would give him a look, perhaps a last look, at the Europe he loved so much.

He wanted the job. If getting it meant putting on this I-hope-I-am-worthy act, he was prepared to put it on. "I understand perfectly, sir," he said.

Sir Claud smiled.

"I am glad. Our Company is, in many respects, an unusual organization. In the first place, we are Government-sponsored. We do not arrange travel for the ordinary tourist, and we do not take people on sight-seeing tours. Our passengers, as you now know, are very often people high in the service of this or other nations. "You asked, with some point, why, if they are going on

Panel Urges MSUO to Blaze New Trail

1. They should be able to communicate with others at a level of profundity.
2. They should be capable of creative thinking.
3. They should have a broad comprehension of various fields other than those in which they specialize.
4. They should be able to think critically about problems varying in nature.
5. They should be able to think in global terms.
6. They should be fluent in at least one foreign language.

Dr. Blanding said that students are forced to do too much in college. "Let us not try to cover the earth in four years," she said.

COURSES DAZZLING

The concept of students taking a certain number of "courses" to graduate was attacked by Dr. Commager.

"Americans are dazzled by them," he said. "You take a course in marriage and you're supposed to live in perpetual ecstasy. Take one on death and you're supposed to be a brilliant conversationalist."

"Many subjects offered undergraduates have no places in a university program," Dr. Commager said.

"Things like remedial reading and beginning language courses should be taken care of in high school," he declared.

"The study of other cultures and people should be stressed in the liberal arts curriculum," Dr. Tyler said.

"Without understanding other people, we can't find an answer to world problems," he said. "We must think in broad, global terms."

HISTORY VALUABLE

The knowledge of past civilizations still offers many important lessons to today's students, Luce said.

"It is vital that we study the histories of Rome and Greece, which contain the background of the Western liberal tradition. For unless we carry this tradition forward, we must collapse and fall."

Luce, publisher of Time, Life and Fortune magazines, said no one is educated who is not familiar with the thought of the classical world.

All panelists felt that many students would gain little from studying traditional subjects such as Greek and Latin, unless there was a specific relationship between the languages and their interests.

What a student takes in college should be determined by the needs of his interests and inquiries, Dr. Eisenhower said.

"It would be wonderful if everyone could study everything," he said. "But college students don't have the time."

FINAL SEMINAR

The seminar was the last of a series between Michigan State University President Dr. John A. Hannah and his administrative staff and experts in various fields.

Previously seminars were held on the engineering, teacher education, and business administration curriculums.

All the seminars were held at Meadow Brook Hall on the former Alfred G. Wilson estate, site of the new university.

ENGINE STALLED — From two hundred feet in the air, this sports plane plunged to the earth at Pontiac Municipal Airport Saturday afternoon when its engine failed shortly after takeoff. The pilot, Donald Conner, 53, of 4150 Pontiac Trail, Orchard Lake, is in fair condition at Pontiac General Hospital with head and neck injuries. The single-engine Cessna 172 careened to the ground next to the east-west runway near Williams Lake road.

temperatures averaging 8 to 12 degrees below the normal high of 35 and low of 22. With continued cold throughout the area, snow will average two to five-tenths of an inch intermittently throughout the five-day period.

Lowest temperature in downtown Pontiac preceding 8 a.m. was 5 above. At 1 p.m. downtown temp. was 19.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department investigated eight injury accidents over the weekend, plus numerous property damage smashups.

Five of the injury accidents occurred since 4 p.m. Sunday.

A three-car smashup at 1803 Haggerty Rd., West Bloomfield Township, at 10:15 p.m. Sunday sent a Milford man, Joseph L. Thibault, 48, of 8512 Cascade St., to the hospital.

Thibault was listed in fair condition with rib and head injuries at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital today. His car went out of control striking a tree, deputies said.

The drivers of the other two autos involved were uninjured.

The Rev. Joseph Francis O'Connor, 43, of Grosse Pointe's St. Clair Catholic Church, was in poor condition at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital today with chest, back and rib injuries.

The Rev. O'Connor, whose home is in Flint, was driving south on U.S. 10 early this morning when another auto forced him off the road, deputies said.

His car went out of control, struck three trees and overturned.

In another early morning accident today Curtis Wright, 22, of Flint, was also sent to the same hospital where he is reported in poor condition with internal, chest and facial injuries.

Wright was riding in an auto driven by Major Terry Jr., 30, also of Flint. Terry, who was going north on U.S. 10, told deputies he lost control of his car on slippery pavement at a curve at Hatchery road in Drayton Plains.

The auto went off the highway and smashed into a utility pole, deputies said. The driver was uninjured.

A hit-and-run accident at 189 Commerce Rd., Commerce Township, Sunday afternoon resulted in injury to a Milford housewife.

Mrs. Clarissa Breitenbeck, 60, of 1275 Van Stone Rd., was reported in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital today with neck and head injuries.

She was riding in an auto driven by her husband, Howard, 61, who told deputies he had stopped to make a left turn when an auto struck him from the rear.

Breitenbeck told deputies he got out of his car and walked back to the other auto, and that the other driver began cursing at him. Breitenbeck said he then left to call deputies and when he returned the other car had left the scene.

Two passengers in an auto driven by David R. Luoma, 23, of Detroit, were injured Sunday evening when the Luoma car went out of control on Cooley Lake road at Sarvis street, Waterford Township, and overturned.

The passengers, David E. Barkkarie, 27, of 6878 Brightwood Court, and Judy Barkkarie, 18, of Detroit, were treated at Pontiac General Hospital and released.

A Drayton Plains man, Vernon

Lawson, 31, was admitted to Pontiac General Hospital where he is reported in fair condition with head and leg injuries.

Deputies said Lawson, of 2720 Deland St., apparently was driving east on M87 about a mile east of Holly Saturday night when he lost control of his car.

Lawson was found unconscious about eight feet from his smashed auto. Tire marks indicated the car skidded 330 feet, crashed into a utility pole, and traveled 45 feet before coming to a stop, deputies said.

State Police at the Pontiac and Redford posts reported a rash of minor accidents. None resulted in serious personal injuries.

Hunt Knife as Link in Gaca Slaying

SUSPICIONS AROUSED
Whaley said he became suspicious why Budry would mention the knife which he said did not enter into the Baker beating.

In order to make their search easier, a flame-thrower has been used to melt the snow away from the field near the park's parking lot just off 13-Mile road where Budry said he tossed the gun and the knife. Police found his smashed glasses there Friday.

Police doubt Budry's story that a second man, whom he said forced him into beating Mrs. Baker, assaulted him following the beating. Police theorize Budry smashed his glasses and ripped his trousers with the knife to make it look like he had been beaten by this second man.

A check was still being made today by police and owners of the Brown Creamery Co., 538 W. Seven Mile Rd., Royal Oak, to find Budry's work records to see whether he was at work there as a bottle washer when the Gaca girl was killed. Payrolls and pay checks also are being examined.

"We won't discount Budry until we know for sure he is or isn't our man," said Whaley.

Budry, who has no criminal record as an adult, was scheduled to be arraigned this afternoon on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Budry is confined to the county jail, unable to post a $20,000 bond.

TAIPEI (P)—Chinese Nationalist sources predict that Gen. Chu Teh will take over as head of the Red Chinese government from chairman Mao Tse-tung. The Nationalists also say that a face-saving way has been found to ease Mao out as head of the Communist party.

Two passengers in an auto driven by David R. Luoma, 23, of Detroit, were injured Sunday evening when the Luoma car went out of control on Cooley Lake road at Sarvis street, Waterford Township, and overturned.

Victim of a freak skiing accident, David Williams, 17, of 1716 N. Wixom Rd., Commerce Township, was in good condition in Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital today after undergoing five hours of surgery Saturday night.

While skiing on a hill near his home Saturday afternoon, Williams took a tumble in which the sharp point of his ski pole entered the base of his skull through his mouth, the hospital said.

Pontiac Sailor Hurt in Indiana Accident

A hitchhiking sailor from Pontiac was injured and one from Detroit was killed when the truck in which they were riding overturned in Indiana last night.

Edwain Ostrander Jr., 1257 Durtrain St., and the truck driver, Robert Pengell, 26, of Allen, Mich., were both hospitalized in La Porte, Ind. Their injuries were not serious.

Reginald F. Guyer, 18, of Detroit was killed when pinned within the cab. Pengell said he lost control when snow thrown by a passing truck blinded him.

Raid Disperses 200 Waiting for Obscene Film
Seventeen police officers from three law agencies raided the Keego Harbor VFW Hall Saturday night, dispersing 200 persons at a meeting where an obscene film was about to be shown, and arresting three on charges of loitering.

Described by police as the organizers of the meeting, Kenneth C. Hackett, 4114 Meigs St., Drayton Plains; Mario A. Giglio, 441 N. Perry St.; and Joseph S. Czewski, 163 Westway St., pleaded guilty before West Bloomfield Township Justice Elmer C. Dieterle.

Each paid a fine of $25 and $10 costs.

The arraignments took place immediately after the 9 p.m. raid, in which police from Keego Harbor, Orchard Lake, Sylvan Lake and Oakland County sheriff's deputies took part under the direction of James Sisk, Keego Harbor police chief.

Police said the hall was rented for the occasion and an admission price of $4 per person was charged.

The November traffic report of Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley shows a drop of about 25 per cent last month compared to a corresponding period last year.

The 46 accidents which injured 11 persons had estimated damages of $8,683. Last year November accidents totaled 62 with a $20,337 damage estimate.

Moxley warned that Birmingham is adopting a policy of strict enforcement on any drunk driving violations.

The Day in Birmingham

Commission to Discuss Lake Park Sewer Job

BIRMINGHAM — For the first time in several weeks public hearings are scheduled for tonight's City Commission meeting.

The controversial Lake Park Drive storm sewer will be taken from the table and a hearing on necessity will be held. A project discussed early last spring was sidetracked while a study was made for a complete job including the sewer and street paving.

Objections from residents on the paving program brought about tabling of the action.

In the second hearing the opening of Fairway drive will be discussed to give access to privately owned land now cut off from any city street.

The only alternative to permit the owner to build will be the construction of a driveway across a city-owned well site. The engineering department has said that the opening of Fairway drive is the more practical solution.

Four persons were injured late Saturday afternoon in a two car crash at Lincoln Ave. and Bates St.

Beverly F. Sayed, 44, of 7172 Trapham Ct., driver of one of the vehicles suffered injuries to her left side. Jean Milroy, 50, 33300 Bingham Rd., received bruises on her right side, and Wilma Hogarth, 46, of 1734 Kirkshire Rd., was bruised about the left arm and chest.

The driver of the second car, Gladston T. Cook, 48, of 21605 Mayfair Lane, received slight head and shoulder injuries. They were all treated at William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak, and released shortly after.

Police said Cook was ticketed after he ran the stop sign on Bates street and struck the front of the other car.

The November traffic report of Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley shows a drop of about 25 per cent last month compared to a corresponding period last year.

The 46 accidents which injured 11 persons had estimated damages of $8,683. Last year November accidents totaled 62 with a $20,337 damage estimate.

Moxley warned that Birmingham is adopting a policy of strict enforcement on any drunk driving violations.

New Mideast Crisis Feared

Possible Revolt in Iraq Led by Reds Could Trigger Peril

LONDON (UPI) — Reports today from Baghdad said there was imminent danger of a Communist-led revolt which might place Iraq in the Soviet camp and bring the Middle East to crisis point again.

William C. Rountree, assistant U.S. secretary of state, leaves Cairo today for Baghdad. Cairo reports said Iraqi Communists were organizing major demonstrations against him.

Travelers coming out of Bagdad said the situation there was tense and that an explosion could come at any time between the once outlawed Communists and Arab nationalists.

A traveler who arrived in Ankara, Turkey, said the atmosphere in Iraq is similar to that in mid July when King Faisal was slain and Brig. Gen. Abdul Kerim Kassem seized power.

Tension has built up inside the country since the government announced last week it has foiled a plot aimed at overthrowing the Kassem government. Since then there has been a major crackdown on pro-Nasser, anti-Communist elements in Iraq.

Pictures of animals on early Roman coins gave us the word, pecuniary — meaning money — from the Latin, pecus, meaning cattle.

Clarence Budington Kelland Says:

GOP Losses in Election All Eisenhower's Fault

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Clarence Budington Kelland, author and former executive director of the Republican National Committee, blames President Eisenhower for the Republican losses in nationwide elections last month.

Kelland, in a letter to Republican National Chairman Meade Adams, said Eisenhower's pursuit of "a thing called New Republicanism" has betrayed every principle of the GOP.

"The blame for the disgraceful Republican defeat on election day should be placed squarely where it belongs—on the lap of President Dwight Eisenhower," Kelland wrote.

He said neither of Eisenhower's two presidential victories was a victory for the Republican Party. He termed each as "a curious phenomenon resulting from an unreasoning hallucination that he possessed qualities of leadership which would lift us out of the slough of socialism and statism into which we had been plunged by Roosevelt and Truman."

"As a matter of tragic fact," Kelland said, "Dwight Eisenhower was a facade with no solid structure behind it. Like a stage set on a motion picture lot he presented an attractive and impressive picture; but you opened any door in the scenery and found yourself in a vacant lot."

"The public, for a time, was in the grip of hysterical infatuation for an idealized personage who never existed, save in its hopeful imagination."

Kelland characterized Eisenhower as a military man who, after six years in office, still does not know whether he is a Republican or Democrat.

He charged that under the regime of former White House assistant "cold, austere, self-righteous" Sherman Adams, the Republican Party all but ceased to exist. He accused Eisenhower of delegating his theoretical political thinking to "his devious, dangerous, left wing brother Milton and others of that subversive ilk."

Kelland said Eisenhower had made "incredibly stupid appointments, chief of which was that of Earl Warren as Chief Justice of the United States."

"He placed in the highest judicial position in the world a man who did not know the difference between a law book and the Farmers Almanac," Kelland said.

All that can save the Republican Party now, Kelland said, is the elimination of Eisenhowerism.

Pope John Elevates 23 to Cardinal Posts

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII today formally elevated the archbishops of Philadelphia and Boston and 21 other Roman Catholic prelates to the rank of cardinal.

Twenty-three of the 51 other princes of the church, meeting in secret consistory at the Vatican, gave their silent assent to the Pope's action, confirming the choices he had announced Nov. 17.

The pontiff, himself crowned supreme ruler of the church only last month, increased the membership of the Sacred College to 74 and gave the world's half-billion members of the church their broadest representation ever in the high senate body.

Elevation of the new cardinals broke the limit of 70 set for the college by Pope Sixtus V in 1586.

Family Brings Hobby—Caves—Into Basement

CLOSTER, N. J. (AP) — It's taken a lot of digging but the Russell Gurnees have managed to bring their hobby right into their basement. Their hobby—exploring caves.

For 18 months the Gurnees have been digging away in the basement to build their own cave. They've furnished it with casts of rock formations taken during exploring jaunts throughout North America.

Paint Factory Closes

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — The Navy yard paint factory here, long a target of private industry, has closed its doors. Hereafter Navy paint will be bought from private firms.

London Tower Guards Called Beekeepers

LONDON — No prisoners are locked in the Tower of London now, but the Resident Governor estimates that some 400 soldiers, warders and officials live inside the Tower with their families.

The most colorful men on the staff are the yeoman warders or Beekeepers, those jovial old gentlemen-guides in red-breasted tunics and black band-box hats.

Recruited in 1485, the warders first served Henry VII as his personal bodyguard. They earned their "Beekeeper" title in 1669, when the Grand Duke of Tuscany wrote: "They are great eaters of beef . . . They might be called beekeepers . . ."

Diet for Teenagers

Clear Skin Is Reward for Wise Choice of Foods

By RUTH WEST

Are you persecuted by frequent outbreaks of pimples, blackheads, skin eruptions?

The medical name for it is acne vulgaris. Nine out of ten adults have had it at some time or other in their lives.

It is important to distinguish between its cause and its symptoms. Its cause: a glandular imbalance, often related to the physical process of growing up. So far there's no known cure for this glandular imbalance—except growing up.

BE WARY

If anyone suggests hormones, be skeptical. Dr. Harold Schwartz, says of hormone therapy for adolescent skin: "It would be like using an elephant gun to kill a fly."

However, the pimples, blackheads, and skin eruptions are not the cause of acne, but the symptoms. And a lot can be done about clearing up the symptoms.

The most desirable first step is to see a doctor. But even after that, success or failure depends on you.

Clearing your skin depends on two things: what you do or don't put in your mouth; what you do or don't put on your face.

The third factor: you can get yourself into quite a state between your hunger for things you think you shouldn't eat, such as chocolate, and the fear of what it will do to your face. Often being in a state aggravates your disturbed skin far more than the chocolate would. The "in your mouth" villains are fat and iodine.

As for iodine, you can easily by-pass this, largely by avoiding shell-fish (lobster, crab, shrimps, clams, oysters, etc.). Also, watch out for iodine in bromides and medicines.

AVOID FATS

Once you know that it's not the chocolate but the fat in the chocolate that is the villain, you can have your chocolate and keep your clear skin and your figure too. In drinks, in recipes, use cocoa. Cocoa is virtually defatted chocolate.

The amount of fat in chocolate lifesavers could be put in a needle's eye. Also, you'll find lots of almost fatless chocolate candies in health-food stores and in the dietetic section of big supermarkets or department stores.

Chocolate ice-milk (which could be called ice cream for all the difference there is in the taste and texture) is practically fatless.

You can eat angel cake and sponge cake (no fat in these cakes), with as thick a frosting of Choc-Low as you like.

You can have whipped-cream topping made of evaporated skim milk to your heart's content.

You see? Once you know who the villain is, all it takes is ingenuity to lick that satistically long list of forbidden foods itemized for you by scare articles in magazines—and also, sometimes by over-cautious doctors.

You'll even find carbonated drink on some lists. Also "all Schwartz says he knows of no reason why fatless sweets (boiled frostings, for instance, as against the butter-cream variety) should stir up the oil glands. Or why carbonated drinks should do it either.

USE YOUR HEAD

But be your own detective; if you notice that some food seems to make your skin worse, omit it.

It's good to know that foods rich in vitamins A and C can do a good deal to "tranquelize" your skin against upsets, as well as fill you up without calories.

Yes, there are such things as special skin-health foods. Nibble at them while you're studying; crunchy raw carrots, an apple, quarters of a crisp green pepper, celery.

SKIN HEALTH DO'S

1. Do clean your face at least twice a day.
2. Do shampoo often.
3. Do use the kind of flesh-colored cover cream or lotion that is specifically indicated for disturbed skin.
4. Do stock up on the two skin-clearing vitamins, A and C, via green peppers and carrots, for instance.
5. Do use a good cleansing formula and "cover cream." Try different ones till you find one that's compatible with your skin.

6. Do stay away from super-fatted soap or any oily cream.

7. Do refrain from picking or squeezing your skin.

8. Do avoid touching your face with anything that isn't scrupulously clean—including your hands.

9. Do be patient—and stick with the routines. Get lots of sleep, drink plenty of water, and exercise.

In a survey made among men students in John Marshall College, 99 per cent rated an attractive body as more important than a pretty face; 93 per cent rated personality and sincerity over beauty.

(Condensed from "The Teen-age Diet Book," copyright 1958 by Ruth West, published by Julian Messner, Inc.)

Fad Diets Damage Health

One of the most irresistible and potentially dangerous health heresies of our time is the doctrine that you can lose weight effortlessly, and with lasting results, by means of a no-hunger, crash reducing program.

The heresy, according to a national magazine, is promoted by the diet faddists and the no-diet wonder-drug sharks.

Another danger of the fad diets is that, while you lose weight on them, you also gain it right back when you revert to your former eating habits.

SANE WAY

The only sane way to reduce or lose weight is to eat an absolutely balanced diet, getting all the foods you need, BUT COUNT CALORIES. This is a necessity from which there is no escape.

Overweight is the result of an acquired habit of eating more food than the body needs for energy, more than it needs to maintain its weight. If you overfeed your body, the tiny appetite regulator at the base of the brain will become conditioned to expect more than a normal amount of food.

Whatever method you use, a normal weight level achieved through proper eating habits is well worth striving for.

Don't Panic!

Here Are Late Shopping Hints

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I have said that it takes the emotional push of Christmas to make us spend money on others and go in the red. It is a wonderful spirit and a lot of fun, but I am glad that it happens only once a year or it really would be disastrous for most of us.

I think that people would love to give things to those they love or like all year long. I always am seeing something I want to give somebody, as no doubt you are, but we just can't swing it. Christmas acts as a great purge for our emotions as well as for our pocketbooks.

DON'T PANIC

The main thing now is not to panic but to keep calm — those of us who have waited this late to do our shopping. A list of those to whom you are going to give a present, the advertisements in your local newspaper and the telephone must now be your first line of defense.

Of course the list comes first. For some of the names on your list you already have an answer. For suggestions for the others study the newspaper ads carefully.

For gift suggestions study the newspaper ads carefully.

fully. These will help you with your holiday shopping as much as going to a super market does when planning meals.

The telephone is a great help. You will walk many more miles than necessary unless you take advantages of it now. The use of this aid also will save you many hours. So often you know what you want to give someone and dash to buy it only to find that the store is out of the article or may not have carried it in the first place.

After making your list and looking over the advertisements and telephoning when it seems the thing to do, comes the last step in my routine for survival in last minute shopping. Make a list of the stores to which you are going and then list under each name the gifts you are going to buy in that store. This saves a lot of backtracking.

It is a terrific help, too, if you will make out cards to be enclosed with your gifts and have the presents gift wrapped, then mailed or delivered by the stores.

Tomorrow: "More Help With Last Minute Christmas Shopping."

A perfect stocking gift to please any lady is a purse size container of perfume. Some kinds are even spray-type.

Top of Layered Cookies Contains Black Walnuts

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor

For the next ten days we're going to concentrate on recipes for Christmas goodies. Just remember to keep enough of the proper body-building foods in your family's diet during this festive season too.

Today's cook is Edith Hartz of Holly. She shares with us an easy-to-make bar cookie made with black walnuts. A business woman, Mrs. Hartz belongs to several business clubs as well as the Eastern Star. Her hobby is home decorating.

COCOANUT WALNUT BARS

By Edith Hartz
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup confectioners sugar
1 cup flour, sifted
1 1/2 cups brown sugar
1/2 cup coconut
1 cup black walnut meats
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
2 eggs
Mix butter or margarine, confectioners sugar and 1 cup flour thoroughly. Spread on bottom of 8x8 pan. Mix together brown sugar, coconut, black walnuts, 2 tablespoons flour, baking powder and eggs. Spread this mixture on top of first mixture and bake at 375 degrees for about 30 minutes, or until brown. Cut into bars for serving.

These days, a woman can't be well-dressed unless she coordinates hose with clothes.

New stockings offer a wide range of color, patterns and styles. There are stockings designed just for daytime wear in suburbia—a cotton and nylon combination in a smart jacquard pattern that defies snags.

And there are stockings designed just for that pair of evening sandals with thongs—the nylons feature separate toes.

Clock patterns, rhinestone and hand-painted designs, as well as lace, mesh and net are some of the other hosiery innovations.

Naturally, legs come into sharp focus with such pretty trappings. That's why it makes sense to take extra care with the grooming of legs and feet. Beauty aids come to the rescue this season... designed to glorify legs. One is an electric shaver for women.

Other beauty aids include frou-frou garters... worn just above the knee and meant to show discreetly when a lady alights from a taxi. You can also buy beauty spots, formerly worn on the face, to adorn the corner of your knee... or run in a row along the side of the instep. The spots, in the shape of tiny dots, stars, triangles and moon crescents, have a gummed surface on one side. When moistened, they adhere to the leg.

Leg makeup is back in full force, too, to remedy the pale

First Methodist Women Hold Yule Program

Theme of the Christmas meeting of The Woman's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist Church was "I Would Celebrate My Lord." The meeting was held Thursday at the Church.

Taking part in the program were Mrs. E. L. Buddenbaum, Mrs. Clayton Rule, Mrs. Norman Legge and Mrs. Benjamin Church. Special music was provided by the "Song Spinners," of Pontiac Central High School.

Mrs. LaVerne Cox and Mrs. Legge sang solos. Carol singing was led by Mrs. Lewis Butler and Mrs. Legge, accompanied by Mrs. Paul T. Hart.

Sculptors Use Soap on Hands While Working

Soap is an important "tool" to young sculptors.

Soaping the hands makes it easier to work with paper mache, clay and sawdust starch modeling.

It smooths, protects and makes for easier performance during such artwork projects—and speeds the clean-up afterwards.

Home economists suggest that you include sticks of parsnips, turnips and rutabagas on your relish tray.

England Streamlines Royal Customs
Elizabeth 2nd Utilizes Fast Travel, TV

LONDON (AP) — Thanks to television, Queen Elizabeth II was seen in 1958 by a far greater number of people than was her great-grandmother, Queen Victoria, in her reign lasting 63 years.

Millions more will have the opportunity of seeing her in person during 1959 when the Queen and Prince Philip visit the Commonwealth's oldest and youngest dominions—Canada and Ghana.

The use of television and modern high-speed travel is part of a policy which the Queen, encouraged by her husband, has initiated to make herself known to her subjects in a manner undreamed of by her predecessors.

A less spectacular but equally important aspect of the same policy is the gradual breaking away from traditional court functions and routine that is bringing a new and invigorating atmosphere to Buckingham Palace.

During the six-week royal visit to Canada starting in mid-June, the Queen and Prince will travel up the St. Lawrence in the royal yacht Britannia to open the St. Lawrence Seaway. They will cross Canada from coast to coast and probably spend some of their time in the country's northern regions.

Much of the detailed planning for the tour has been handled by Esmond Butler, Manitoba-born assistant press secretary to the Queen. When he took office early in 1958, it was the first time an appointment to the Queen's personal staff had gone to anyone outside the United Kingdom.

Following the royal couple's return to Britain, they will begin preparing for a late-autumn visit to Ghana, Sierra Leone and Gambia.

The Prince will also make a round-the-world tour in January and February, visiting India, Pakistan and other Asian countries. British possessions in the Pacific, Bermuda and the Bahamas.

The Canadian tour marks the third straight year that Canada has entertained royal guests. In 1957, the Queen went to Ottawa to open the Canadian Parliament. In 1958, Princess Margaret attended British Columbia's centennial celebrations and made brief stops in other parts of the country. In October, the Prince attended a conference of the English-speaking Union at Ottawa, making a side-trip to Springfield, N.S., to visit survivors of the mining disaster that cost 75 lives.

Mother Gives Up Outdoor Sitdown

NORTON, Va. (AP)—A "defrosted" but still defiant widow enjoyed a reunion with her sailor son today after ending a six-day sitdown protest against the sale of her home by public auction.

Mrs. Ella Williams, 56, said she had heeded a friendly warning her 20-year-old son Lowell had telephoned Saturday from Great Lakes Naval Training Station in Illinois.

"Mom, I'm leaving now to fly home. When I get there I'd better not catch you outside," his son told her.

He didn't. Several hours before he arrived, Mrs. Williams had accepted shelter in the home of Roda and Octavia Sldham, spinster sisters and lifelong friends of Mrs. Williams.

But the sisters had to talk, plead and cry before the stubborn widow would leave her snow-swept post outside the family home, which the county had sold to pay off debts.

The tent where Mrs. Williams had remained for six days was covered with four inches of snow. Her possessions were scattered about the yard under the snow.

In her last hours outdoors, Mrs. Williams had been reported "weak and pale." A doctor said she could not live through many more bitter cold nights.

But after a hot bath, some dinner and a long sleep, she said she was feeling chipper.

"I don't have a temperature or even a cold," she told her son.

Mrs. Williams admitted the futility of another outdoor siege — "I was only hurting my health"—but she hasn't conceded that the county was right in selling her house.

"I realize that I was going about it the wrong way," she said. "However, I'm just as determined as ever to go back into that house, and legally, too."

Just how she would go about dissolving a court-ordered public sale remained to be seen.

Hollywood Headlines
Pappy Boyington's Life Will Be Brought to Screen

HOLLYWOOD—Some of Freddie Kohlmar's enthusiasm rubbed off on me when he sat down at Chasen's a few nights ago and outlined his plans for "Baa Baa Black Sheep," Pappy Boyington's autobiography. He wants Robert Mitchum and if I know Mitchum he'll jump at the chance to bring "Pappy" to the screen.

Pappy, retired Marine colonel and great ace during the war, was taken captive by the Japanese. When he came out he became an alcoholic, but he cured himself of this and in the picture the truth will be shown.

"Baa Baa Black Sheep" is on the best seller lists. Freddie bought the motion picture rights and of course will produce for his independent company with a Columbia release, following "The Devil at Four O'Clock" with Spencer Tracy.

The way Universal-International beats the tom-toms for John Saxon, their popular young player, I was surprised that Burt Lancaster and John Huston were able to pry him loose for "The Unforgiven."

Young Saxon has just finished "The Big Fisherman," and joins the cast of Burt, Audrey Hepburn and Richard Burton in Mexico.

The surprise of this loan-out is that Universal-International has given Hecht-Hill-Lancaster an option for two more pictures with John. Usually, you can't pry successful young players away from their home lot.

John leaves early in January for the Mexican location.

Frank Sinatra and Edward G. Robinson, who are both appearing in "Hole in the Head," had birthdays on Friday. So Frank Capra, their director, gave them a joint surprise party. Neither Frankie nor Eddie knew a thing about it. Capra invited them into his office for a birthday drink and the whole cast, plus their buddies, were there to say happy birthday.

There's no denying Alec Guinness is a great artist, an intellectual, and a man with an overwhelming sense of humor. He'd have to have all these attributes to write, produce and star in "The Horse's Mouth," which is different from any picture I have ever seen. At moments it's so hilarious it borders on the old-time slapstick. Then again there's real pathos.

Guinness plays a great artist who sinks to the very depths, even to spending a month in prison for threatening a rich benefactor. He's mischievous, unscrupulous, and would steal from his best friend to get the necessary paint for his murals.

Some may feel the picture is a little exaggerated, but anything can happen to Guinness, the most versatile actor I know. Kay Walsh, as Coker, a maid in the local pub, is another reason for liking "The Horse's Mouth."

The friends of Joan Fontaine are seriously concerned about her health. Collier Young says she is not responding as doctors had hoped, from her mononucleosis, and if she doesn't show greater improvement by the beginning of the year Collier will take her to the UCLA clinic to get a more exact diagnosis.

Her doctor had hoped that by going to a higher altitude free from smog, she would get relief, but she is in a general state of lassitude.

Most of the time Joan doesn't seem to care that she has shown no improvement, and her husband is terribly worried because he can only be with her in Arrowhead on weekends.

Blood for Baby Stirs Conflict

GIRL IS TAKEN FROM PARENTS AFTER REFUSAL TO ALLOW TRANSFUSIONS

TORONTO, Ont. (AP) — Given life-sustaining blood transfusions as the result of a court order, Lori Lynn Campbell entered her eighth day of life today. A precedent-setting legal battle was erupting around her.

Authorities at the Sick Children's Hospital, where Lori was made a legal ward of the Toronto Children's Aid Society Saturday night, said her condition "seemed satisfactory."

The society had secured custody of the baby after her Jehovah's witness parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Campbell, refused to allow transfusions on religious grounds. Lori is suffering from an Rh negative blood condition.

Glen How, lawyer for the baby's parents, served notice he will battle in the courts the validity of the Child Welfare Act Children's Aid Society taking custody. He claimed that the section of the act used was beyond the power of the Provincial Legislature.

The act permits children to be taken away from their parents if, among other things, proper medical care or treatment is not given.

A special court convened at the hospital Saturday night and Judge Lorne Stewart ordered the child taken from the parents' custody after doctors told him Lori would die without transfusions.

How is expected to ask the Supreme Court of Ontario to reverse Judge Stewart's action.

Officers found Stuart Fause, 45, and his wife Virginia, 40, dead in their home. They had been overcome by fumes from a fire in a bedroom fireplace which had smothered out as they slept.

The officers were met by the couple's daughters, Paula, 5, and Jan, 4. The girls said they had been asleep in another room. They said that they had tried to wake their parents but were unable to do so.

Officers said the girls were not overcome because the fumes were confined to the parents' room and had dissipated by the time the children entered.

Paula and Jan were placed temporarily in their grandmother's care.

5-Year Turncoat Ready for Home

HONG KONG (AP) — American turncoat Richard G. Corden of East Providence, R.I., is reported ready to go home after nearly five years voluntary exile in Red China.

Red Cross sources said Corden, who was the ringleader of the 21 Korean War turncoats, was expected to arrive at the Hong Kong border Friday.

The U.S. consulate general and the Hong Kong government said they had no official confirmation of the report.

Corden, now 31, was captured in Korea Nov. 20, 1950, and was described by American prisoners as the "big wheel" in the POW camps.

In September 1957 he told a group of visiting American youths he liked Red China and planned to stay indefinitely except perhaps for "a brief trip home sometime."

Of the original 21 turncoats, nine have come out and one died.

Officers said the girls were not overcome because the fumes were confined to the parents' room and had dissipated by the time the children entered.

Paula and Jan were placed temporarily in their grandmother's care.
