Miss Phyllis Pope Named New Librarian for Pontiac

Adah Shelly, city librarian for more than 30 years, bowed out yesterday at a surprise party at City Hall.

With more than a score of city employees looking on, City Manager Walter K. Willman presented Miss Shelly with a gold wrist watch and a leather writing kit employees and officials had purchased.

Willman then introduced the city's new librarian, Phyllis Pope, who will assume her duties Monday.

Miss Pope, born in Oshkosh, Wis., comes to the post after serving eight years as director of the city library in Jamestown, N.Y.

She is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and holds degrees in comparative literature and library science.

Her library career began in a small North Dakota town. After 2 1/2 years, she joined the staff of the Cincinnati Library. Later, she became head of the Jamestown Library.

A member of the American and New York Library Assns., Miss Pope writes book reviews for the Library Journal, a professional publication.

Miss Shelly, 67, said she plans to travel for several months, then return to Pontiac.

Showers Will End Brisk Fall Weather

Cloudy skies and scattered showers tomorrow will put a slight damper on the perfect football and hunting weather Pontiac area residents enjoyed today.

The weatherman predicted a high of 58 to 62 today, a rise over yesterday's peak 48-degree temperature. Low tonight is forecast at 45 to 49 degrees.

Warm weather is expected to continue tomorrow, with a high of 60 to 64 predicted.

Last night's low of 32 brought frosts throughout the area, but by 1 p.m. today the mercury had climbed to 52 in downtown Pontiac.

North of Pontiac, it was colder. Flint had a 27-degree reading this morning. Most cities north of that had readings in the 20s, with the lowest at Gladwin and Pellston, each with 24.

More Airline Cities

GRAND RAPIDS — Paul N. Pfeiffer, a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing examiner, has recommended that North Central Airlines receive authority to serve 26 cities, including Grand Rapids.

Other states include Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota. The CAB proposed a month ago that the carrier receive permanent certification on its service to those points.

BARBOURVILLE, Ky. — Porkpie hats should be the rage among Union College's freshmen class. It includes a Pigg, a Hogz, a Bacon and two Hamms.

Democratic candidates won endorsement from Henry A. Wallace yesterday, however. Wallace, a one-time New Deal Cabinet member and vice president under President Roosevelt, who now calls himself an independent, said in South Salem, N.Y., he favors President Eisenhower for president again next year "to further the cause of world peace."

Wallace, the Progressive party nominee for president in 1948, said he had "the greatest admiration and respect" for Stevenson, Kefauver and Hagrman. But Eisenhower "represents more than any other man the world's hope for peace," Wallace said, and "this outweighs all other considerations."

One exception: In New York, California's Gov. Goodwin Knight said he would be a "favorite son" candidate for the 1956 GOP nomination if Eisenhower does not seek reelection.

Stevenson's support of the 90 per cent of parity program, telegraphed to the Midwest Democratic farm conference meeting at Des Moines, Iowa, prompted some of the party leaders to say Stevenson forces had gained the initiative at the conference. Others were said to be supporting Harriman for president and Kefauver for vice president.

"THE" MAJOR ISSUE — The farm question is shaping up as a major issue in the 1956 campaign. Democrats have been plugging for rigid, high level supports to bolster sagging farm prices, while the Eisenhower administration has abandoned this in favor of a sliding, flexible scale of federal price supports.

Parity is the price said to be fair to farmers in relation to their costs.

Kefauver, in his first appearance at a Democratic rally since returning from a round-the-world tour, said at Erie, Pa., that Ezra T. Benson "has been a failure as a secretary of agriculture."

The senator offered a solution of his own to what he said were the price declines and mounting surpluses during Benson's tenure: Higher price supports for the output from smaller farms, with the subsidy rate to go down as a farm's output goes up.

Kefauver, who unsuccessfully sought the Democratic presidential nomination in 1952, predicted the Republicans will conduct a "desperate" campaign next year if forced to run without Eisenhower at the head of their ticket.

The Tennesseean, like Stevenson and Harriman so far, would not say yet whether he would seek the Democratic nomination again in 1956.

Yesterday another British beauty, Phillida Stephens, swooped down to visit Freddie, Mutesa's aide-de-camp and a swarm of police and immigration officials descended on her hotel. A royal hint said Miss Stephens may have gone to Dakar in French West Africa.

Dragnet Spread to Nab Escapee of State Prison

Convicts Stab Guard in Break; One Captured After Auto Chase

COLDWATER — Two Southern Michigan Prison Farm convicts escaped after stabbing a guard last night, but one was recaptured several hours later a mile east of Coldwater.

The men fled from the Vandercook farm near Jackson.

Branch county sheriff's deputies nabbed John Bugis, 25, of Detroit, after he and Clarence Gallagher, also 25 of Detroit, drove a stolen car through a road block on U.S. 112 and crashed in a ditch.

Police continued the search for Gallagher who fled the wreck on foot. Bugis offered no resistance, officers said.

Gallagher fled into a nearby woods after the car, stolen in Albion, missed a curve to climax a seven-mile chase. Some 25 state police and sheriff's officers believe they have him surrounded.

The two fled the prison farm last night after attacking Guard Roger Thompson, 35, and locking him in a storeroom. They made their getaway in Thompson's car. The farm is five miles north of Southern Michigan Prison.

Thompson was taken to Foot Hospital in Jackson where his condition was described as good.

Road blocks, thrown up when Thompson was found in the storeroom 20 minutes after the break, cut off escape routes.

Bugis was serving 1 to 5 years for auto theft in Livingston County. Gallagher was serving 5 to 20 years for armed robbery.

Ike's Physician Will Reappraise Chief's Progress

DENVER (INS)—President Eisenhower awaited a significant reappraisal today of his progress in recovering from the heart attack which hospitalized him 23 days ago.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, prominent Boston heart specialist who has been the chief consultant in the President's case, was scheduled to visit Eisenhower today.

He was expected to take another look at his forecast that President Eisenhower will be back on his feet next week and on his way to Gettysburg, Pa., in another two or three weeks.

Yesterday, the President spent an hour and 50 minutes sitting up out of bed—his longest period out of bed since he was hospitalized Sept. 24.

Earlier, the President met with Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr., and approved a proposed 1956 Justice Department program including legislation to bar so-called jury "bugging."

Air-Sea Search on for Lost Trio

Two Hunters Are Killed, 40 Wounded as Season Opens on Small Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — An air-sea search was resumed today for three young duck hunters missing and feared lost in Saginaw Bay.

Two other hunters have been killed by gunfire and more than 40 wounded in Michigan's small game and pheasant hunting season, now in its third day. Three hunters have died of heart attacks.

The latest heart attack victim was Virgil Byrne, 54, of Pleasanton. He collapsed and died in a field while hunting 15 miles north of Bay City.

The missing duck hunters are Albert Spencer, 22, Norma Jean Eisenzimmer, 18, and her brother, John, 16, all of Flint. Their empty 14-foot aluminum boat was swept ashore yesterday at Grindstone City.

The three set out early Wednesday for Charity Island, at the mouth of Saginaw Bay. Small craft warnings were up at the time.

Others had told of seeing an old blue car in the forest preserve earlier Tuesday.

Police said a lie detector test confirmed Rohlfes' report.

Seek Radar Network OK

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense Wilson has renewed his assurance that the Pentagon will ask Congress for specific approval of a $2,400,000 project for a semi-automatic radar warning network.

WASHINGTON — Authorities, who have watched one possible clue after another fade as worthless, made a new bid to the general public today for help in solving the murders of three boys.

In issuing the plea, State's Atty. John K. Gutknecht promised to "protect" anyone supplying information.

Also, he warned that, by having and withholding a lead to the crime, a person "may be an accessory for or after the fact."

The prosecutor said persons with information "may dislike or fear the publicity that may result in their disclosures, but I will be able to protect them."

Law enforcement officials and private citizens have posted rewards totaling $6,500 for clues leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer or killers of Robert Peterson, 14, and the Schaeffer brothers, John, 13, and Anton Jr., 11.

The boys were strangled sometime Sunday night after visiting at least two northwest side bowling establishments in search of an alley on which they could bowl.

After four days of one of Chicago's biggest investigations, the hottest lead appeared to be an old blue automobile.

Several witnesses have reported seeing such a car in a wooded area northwest of the city at various times Tuesday before the boys' naked bodies were found in a ditch there.

But no one got the car's license number. Some said it was a Ford; others a Plymouth.

Edward Rohlfes, 47, an unemployed laborer, and his daughter, Mrs. Joan Malecke, 19, said they were driving through the forest preserve about two hours before the bodies were found. They said they saw three hatless young men in a weather-beaten blue car near the ditch.

Greyhound Hit by Passing Auto Outside Monroe

Car Driver, 16, Killed; Albert Cecil of Pontiac Among Injured

MONROE — A Greyhound bus and an automobile collided on U.S. 24, in pre-dawn darkness today. A 16-year-old Detroit-er was killed in the automobile; the double-decker bus went careening down a 50-foot embankment into a water-filled bog.

Nine of 31 bus passengers were injured; two of them hospitalized.

Killed was Jack R. Hutchinson. Critically injured was his uncle, Orlie Van Dosen, 41, of Van Dyke.

The bus smashed through guard rails and carried its screaming passengers down the embankment but did not overturn, although it snapped off several poplar saplings before burying its nose in the bog. It was en route from Pittsburgh to Detroit.

Passengers said only the remarkable skill of the bus driver, Vance Owen, of Akron, Ohio, kept it upright and avoided a worse tragedy. Owen told state police the automobile sideswiped a truck ahead of him and then careened into his bus. Owen escaped injury.

The embankment and an overpass carry U. S. 24 across the bog and a railroad track at the scene, four miles north of Monroe. The collision happened at 1:40 a.m.

ROARING OVER CREST — "I was about halfway up the grade," Owen told police. "There was a truck in front of me. I saw the automobile come roaring over the crest of the overpass from the north. When it was almost abreast of the truck, it went over the centerline and hit the truck at an angle."

"It swerved over to the other side, then ever again and crashed into the left corner of my coach just as I started to swing to the right, hoping, somehow, that it wouldn't hit."

The two hit with such terrific impact that the automobile's motor was ripped out and flung 150 yards. The wreckage of the car's body, however, remained on the highway.

King Freddie 'Exiles' Pretty British Misses

KAMPALA, Uganda — King Mutesa II of Buganda, better known to his friends as "Freddie," doesn't plan open house for the London beauties he met during his British exile. Two who followed him to his royal capital in three days were given the air.

Mutesa, 31-year-old Kabaka or native King of Buganda Province in the Uganda protectorate, British East Africa, was exiled to England for two years. He had demanded a definite date for independence within the British Commonwealth for his 500,000 subjects and also opposed a British plan for a federation of East African territories.

THE GALS FOLLOW — Earlier this week he was permitted to return to his throne, wife, and young son. Then embarrassing things started happening.

Marcelle Parker, 28, a statuesque beauty who appears as a nude in London's edition of the Folies Bergere, flew in on a one-way ticket Wednesday and announced she was "Freddie's guest."

A palace delegation got her aboard a London-bound plane.

Yesterday another British beauty, Phillida Stephens, swooped down to visit Freddie, Mutesa's aide-de-camp and a swarm of police and immigration officials descended on her hotel. A royal hint said Miss Stephens may have gone to Dakar in French West Africa.

Democrats Open Simultaneous Attack on Farm Issue

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Adlai E. Stevenson stirred political talk among Midwest Democratic leaders yesterday with a strong endorsement of 90 per cent of parity price supports for basic farm crops.

Sen. Kefauver (Tenn.), another prominent possibility for the Democratic presidential nomination next year, also hit heavily on the farm problem in his first major political speech of the fall. And New York's Gov. Averell Harriman, likewise talked of for the Democratic nomination, was billed for a major address on farm matters tonight.

None of the three possible

Democratic candidates won endorsement from Henry A. Wallace yesterday, however. Wallace, a one-time New Deal Cabinet member and vice president under President Roosevelt, who now calls himself an independent, said in South Salem, N.Y., he favors President Eisenhower for president again next year "to further the cause of world peace."

Wallace, the Progressive party nominee for president in 1948, said he had "the greatest admiration and respect" for Stevenson, Kefauver and Hagrman. But Eisenhower "represents more than any other man the world's hope for peace," Wallace said, and "this outweighs all other considerations."

Benson Claims Farm Woes End

Agriculture Head Says Most Postwar Problems Have Been Solved

BELLEVILLE, Mo., Oct. 21 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Charles Benson said today most of the American farmer's postwar adjustment problems are "now behind him."

"The farmer has faith in the future," Benson said in a speech prepared for a farm-city week luncheon at the Agriculture Department's research center, here. "He has reason to believe that another 25 million customers will be added to his list in the next 10 years."

"He has reason to believe that his present troubles will be resolved."

FARMER IN SERVICE

Benson made only brief mention of the "severe cost-price squeeze" and an "overproduction jam" in which he said the farmer is caught. He devoted most of his talk to a discussion of the great progress, technological and otherwise, which he said American agriculture has made in recent years. He also sought to show how city dwellers and farmers are interdependent.

Benson said the farmer's "present difficulties stem in part from the miracles of production he was inspired to achieve during World War II and the years immediately following when much of the free world depended on him for food and clothing."

"He said the American farmer is making the war-to-peace adjustment 'with less hardship than ever before,' adding: 'Most of that adjustment is now behind him.'"

Faure Faces Battle on New Election Plan

PARIS (AP)—Premier Edgar Faure is certain to face a bitter fight on his plan to call for a dissolution of the French National Assembly and hold new national elections early in December.

The premier announced the plan last night after it had been approved by the Cabinet. He reserved the right to step in with a demand for a vote of confidence if the Assembly does not readily agree to its own dissolution.

Never in French history has a legislature hastened its own end, and this one under the normal five-year term of its office has a lease on life until the regular elections in June, 1956.

The premier said "very grave decisions" must be made soon and the deputies should not have to vote on these questions with one eye on impending elections.

MacLadden Won't Leave Money to 3 Ex-Wives

JERSEY CITY, N. J. — The will of the late Bernard MacLadden makes no mention of his first two wives and cuts off his third wife because "she has unjustifiably abandoned me."

The famous physical culturist and publisher who died last week at the age of 87 left specific bequests totaling $12,000 — $1,000 each to nine nieces and nephews and to three executors of his estate in lieu of commissions.

In his will, filed in Hudson County probate office, MacLadden said there was no provision for his 48-year-old third wife, Jonnie Lee MacLadden, because she "has left my home without my consent."

He ignored his first two wives, Marguerite Kelly and Mary Williamson, completely.

At one time MacLadden's estate was estimated at 30 million dollars. But his donations to health and physical culture centers were numerous and just before his death he listed his annual income at about $8,400. The actual size of the estate was not known.

TV Ban on MSU Game Appealed

Station Asks Brownell to Reverse 'No Telecast' Decision by NCAA

LANSING (AP)—Station WJIM-TV has appealed to the U.S. Department of Justice to override the NCAA's refusal to let it telecast today's sellout Michigan State-Illinois football game at East Lansing.

Station President Harold F. Gross telegraphed a complaint and request for action to Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr.

Brownell was in Denver yesterday conferring with President Eisenhower. Justice Department officials in Washington said the protest was received late after closing hours and that there was nothing that could be done about today's game.

Gross accused the National Collegiate Athletic Association and its President, Asa Bushnell, of "arbitrary" action in refusing to allow the game to be telecast. The NCAA has authority to allow special telecasts of football games if they are sellouts and do not conflict with other collegiate games within a 90-mile radius.

The NCAA turned down MSU's request to permit the telecast on the grounds there were three smaller college games Saturday in a 90-mile radius of East Lansing.

Gross said the NCAA rejection is "without any plausible excuse and is injurious to the television industry and the public it serves."

"Only immediate action by the Department of Justice will forestall these deliberately conceived injuries."

Further revisions will be made before the Planning Board intro-

Shake Romance to Start It Popping

By ELIZABETH WOODWARD

Shake, rattle and swiggle that popper over a hot fire and things will begin to happen. The corn will pop like crazy.

And a girl can make things pop around a boy who shows interest but is lackadaisical. If she wants to wait forever and a day for him to do something, she can. But if he's shy—or she's shy—it takes a hearty shake to get things popping.

In this case, he's the timid one. Too bashful to ask a girl for a date. Yet, he's been impressed and has shown it. Must she wait for more evidence? I think she ought to get things popping. But here's what she writes:

"Dear Miss Woodward: This summer he took me home from a show and ever since I've wanted to go with him. I'm sure he likes me, too, but he's 18 and has had only one date in his life.

"He's too shy to ask a girl for a date. But he went to the fair this summer and bought me a bracelet. The guys who were with him have teased him ever since.

"He avoids me around school, yet he tells my friends that I'm his girl. How can I be sure of that? And how can I get him to talk to me when he's with friends? I'd like to get some dates with him, too, of course."

Answer: He tells your friends that you're his girl, but he's too scared of you—and of his teasing friends—to do anything much about it. The plot, as I see it, is for you to rid him of his fears of you without his friends knowing anything about it. Take the first part first.

Assuming that he does like you (proof is the bracelet) figure out a way to get him over to your house some weekend evening. A very informal Sunday night supper, for instance. Or a Friday night to watch television together. Make it an easy, comfortable thing, so he won't freeze up with nervousness, but will enjoy being there with you.

Get acquainted with him. Let him see that you're impressed. Feel at home. And while he's in an easy frame of mind, make arrangements for next week for more of the same.

As he gets to know you and feel comfortable with you, he'll stop being afraid and shy with you. He'll find the courage to take some note of you around school.

As his relationship with you gets stronger and deeper, he'll begin to care less how his boy friends tease. He'll speak to you when he's with them. He'll even leave them on occasion to come to join you.

When they see that you really are his girl, they'll leave him to it without further comment.

In this case, it's the girl who's shy. She had a chance, but she wasn't sure she wanted a second, so she turned him down. And now she's changed her mind. How can she let him know?

"Dear Miss Woodward: I'd like very much to go out with him, but I'm the shy type. We went out together once and I enjoyed it very much; although I didn't realize it at the time, I really liked him a lot.

"But when he asked me to go out again I didn't accept because I didn't think I would care to. Now I wish I hadn't turned him down.

"I'd like to go with him again. I've seen him twice since then at his aunt's house, but nothing has come of it. Please tell me what to do."

Answer: Since you're the shy type, you undoubtedly were a bit short and unenthusiastic with him when you turned down his second date bid. At the moment you didn't think you'd care to go, and it probably showed.

The poor guy took it personally. He thought you didn't care to go with him, so it's now your turn to show him that you've thought better of the matter.

There's enough foundation to your friendship to permit you to invite him to something. If there's a party coming up to which you can take a boy, call him and ask him.

One more evening together will convince him that you really do enjoy being with him, and will encourage him to think up other excuses for getting together.

So far, and at this point, nothing much is stirring between you. It will go on that way unless you start things popping.

Versatile Costume Aimed at Flattering the Wearer

When Mollie Parnis designs a dress, she allows herself only those flights of fancy which have to do with decoration for she firmly believes that the first and prime purpose of a dress is to flatter the wearer.

Evidence of this particular philosophy is in today's late-day, into-night ensemble. In faultless taste with its abbreviated, drawstring jacket for daylight hours.

Utterly simple so far as body lines are concerned, the "flight of fancy" detail—a ribbon run through braid—is an important bit of fashion business.

The elongated bodice is darted in front for special emphasis of that sleek area; the skirt is gored and then gathered onto the swagged hipline treatment.

For a stunning effect, make it in taffeta, peau de soie, faille, shantung or even novelty cotton. Match the braid and ribbon for urban appearances; use a little imagination if you make it for resort wear.

This pattern is cut to designer measurements, not standard pattern measurements.

Size 12 requires 6 1/2 yards of 36-inch material for dress and a half yard of 35-inch material for interfacing. To order Pattern 1236, address Spadea Syndicate, Inc., P. O. Box 535, G.P.O., Dept. P-6, New York 1, N. Y. State size. Send $1. Airmail handling 25 cents extra.

New 144-Page Pattern Booklet XII available for 50 cents. If paying by check, make it payable to Spadea Syndicate, Inc., and add 4 cents for handling.

Man Asks About Aiding Strangers

May Help Women Who Are Trying to Don Coats

By EMILY POST

"Very often I go to the theater alone and sometimes find myself sitting beside a woman who is also alone. When it comes time for putting on wraps to leave the theater, sometimes a woman seems to have a very difficult time getting into her coat.

"I hesitate to offer to hold her coat for her, but wonder if my interpretation of proper behavior would entitle a gentleman to assist a stranger under the circumstances."

Answer: This is difficult to answer because it depends upon how it is done. Naturally, if a woman standing next to you is groping for the sleeve of her coat or looking for something she has lost, it would be instinctive for any gentleman to help her.

I take it for granted that he will not consider her unavoidable acceptance of this courtesy as an introduction nor that he will proffer unneeded assistance.

"Dear Mrs. Post: I have relatives living in many parts of this country, and sometimes I do not get news of their deaths for weeks after. Is it proper, so long after the funeral, to send flowers for the grave?"

Answer: You simply write a note of sympathy and explain that you have just heard of the death. You only send some flowers to the relative you write to, but not to be placed on the grave.

"Dear Mrs. Post: If something is needed during a meal at a restaurant, how may one get the waiter's attention?"

Answer: If you can't attract the eye of a waiter or make one hear you by calling "waiter" in a low voice, then about the only way is to clap your hands.

All in a rush come a bewildering variety of skills, all designed to drive Baby's parents wild: opening doors, turning knobs, pulling cabinet drawers open, climbing up and down stairs and sliding under furniture. Fortunately, he gets good and tired and will nap while Mother collapses.

Helps Others Regain Trim Figures

By ANNE HEYWOOD

Mary T. was a physical education teacher for years before she married.

"And what a nice figure I had then," she told me, "when I was exercising all the time! Then after my marriage and having the three children, I kind of let myself go. I ate too much, and while I did all the housework, I didn't take the special exercises I used to do when I was teaching.

"One day I looked in the mirror and was downright ashamed of myself—dowdy, fat, hippy—nothing like the nice figure I had before. All my muscles were flabby, so I decided then and there to do something about it."

The first thing Mary did was to check with her doctor.

She was healthy, all right, the doctor said. He told her to do all the exercising she wanted and recommended a simple basic diet—nothing "fatty."

"I really went to work," said Mary. "I spent an hour a day doing all my exercises. I fixed up a place in the basement and, no matter how busy I was, I fitted in that hour."

OLD ROUTINES

"Little by little I remembered my old routines. My muscles were sore as anything for a while but, eventually, I got back into trim.

"Before long, I not only had lost weight but had my trim figure back again. Everybody complimented me and I felt wonderful.

"Some of my friends asked if I would teach them the exercises. "At first I thought it would be too much trouble, but then I began thinking about it. Maybe I could have a weekly Slimming Class and charge a small fee.

"Then I would have money enough to buy some new dresses, since I was rapidly getting too thin for my old ones. I was nervous about asking for money, but I made it just 50 cents per class.

SUCCESS WAS PROOF

"The girls were delighted. After all, as they said, my own success was proof that I knew what I was doing and actually they felt better paying a small fee.

"I hold my classes twice a week, now. So many women have wanted to join and, I must say, they really do get results!"

Hand Plane Now Popular With Power Tool Hobbyists

It doesn't take a lot of brain-power to figure out why home workshop enthusiasts are going overboard for power tools. Frankly, one reason is the hand plane.

This instrument, though indispensable in anybody's tool box, is inclined to turn temperamental in the hands of "Saturday craftsmen." It refuses to obey orders—it bucks and gouges and, like a spirited horse, seems to know when a dude is in the saddle.

That partially explains the growing popularity of an inexpensive power tool known as the "jointer," or "planer." Although it's still one of the least-known power tools, it is among the nicest to have around a home workshop—a real sweat and time saver.

The jointer alone is not likely ever to supplant the hand plane. But each will perform some of the operations of the other, and some the other won't perform.

ADJUST DEPTH

Primarily the jointer is used to plane smooth, even surfaces on lumber. This is done by passing the wood over cutter knives which are turned at high speed by an electric motor. (Often jointers are set up so that their power source is the same motor that powers a circular saw. Hence, lower initial cost.)

Depth of the cut made by the revolving knives can be adjusted by raising or lowering the front table of the jointer, on which the lumber rests as it is fed into the knives.

The jointer is most frequently called upon to plane the edges of boards. Here there are three points to remember: plane the work with the grain, always maintain side pressure to keep the work in contact with the guide fence, and take a cut no deeper than 1/8 inch.

USE WOOD BLOCK

When jointing the end grain of lumber, form the surface with a series of light cuts. Power tool experts point out that a single heavy cut will invariably tear the grain at the end of the cut unless the jointer knives are very sharp. A second method is to plane half the distance across the end of the board, and then reverse the work until the two cuts blend into a single true edge.

Surfacing, or planing the wide face of a board, is the most difficult standard jointer operation. For safe operation, the experts recommend use of a block of wood equipped with a handle to hold down the work, particularly when surfacing thin stock.

Two lumber defects are often encountered in surfacing. They are warp—the lumber is dishd from side to side across the board—and wind—the board is twisted throughout its length. It not too severe, both conditions can be corrected with the jointer.

The jointer can perform numerous additional functions which add to its usefulness. Among them are: RABBETING—This consists of cutting a uniform depression or step along edges and ends of boards. It is useful for a wide variety of work.

BEVELING—This is easily accomplished by tilting the guide fence to the desired angle of the bevel, and holding the work flush against the fence. The fence can be tilted toward or away from the cutter knives, and several planes are usually required to arrive at a full shape.

TAPER CUTTING—One of the most useful jointer operations, it can be used to advantage in making tapered legs for furniture, whether round or square, and on many another workshop project.

The Firestone Rubber Co. of Akron, O., is making a new snow tire which it says is the first silent-running tubeless snow tire on the market.

Now Gas Stoves Are Controlled

NEW YORK (INS)—A new cooking development that can prevent a housewife from burning the vegetables will appear on new gas stoves at the end of this month.

The gas range industry announced today new automatic controls for gas burners which permit temperatures to be set for burners exactly the way temperatures are set for ovens—by the twist of a dial.

The new device, called the "thermal eye," was put into manufacture by two firms after testing by the American Gas Association. It is said to make it possible for a housewife to cook any food on a top burner at correct temperature and with automatically constant heat by the set of a dial.

According to the Robertshaw-Fulton Controls company, which developed the "thermal eye," the device consists of a metal disc which protrudes slightly up from the center of a burner. The disc touches the cooking pot, and automatically controls the height of the flame under the pot to correct heat.

The concern claimed this practically eliminates the chances of burning or overcooking, and said one test showed that mashed potatoes heat-controlled by the "thermal eye" stayed fluffy in spite of being on a flame for more than one hour.

No price was announced for the new gas burner control, which also can be set for warming, searing and deep-fat frying.

2 Firms Seeking Federal Control

Debt Overseer Heads Favoring Government Regulation Laws

DETROIT (U)—Officials of two debt-management firms told a state Senate subcommittee yesterday that they favor government regulation of their business.

Morris C. Purdy, of the Credit Adjustment Co. of Detroit, said 80 per cent of the "reputable firms in the state are in favor of regulatory laws."

The state group, headed by Sen. William S. Broomfield (R-Royal Oak), is looking into fees charged by debt-management firms and garnishments against clients for the fees.

Some such firms have been accused of "fraud conspiracy in the operation of a scheme for procuring clients' pay checks among creditors for a fee."

Purdy told the senators that "some sort of minimum-maximum fee system should be worked out... there should be a code of standards under which debt-management firms would be required to operate."

Purdy said about 70 per cent of those who seek his company's assistance are turned away. He said his firm never has sued to collect fees.

Another witness was Adolph Levy, of the Credit Aid Assn. of Detroit. He said a more rigid garnishment law would halt abuses by certain "easy credit" firms and prevent financial difficulties for many consumers.

Trouble-Ridden Man Welcomes Quiet Cell

GALESBURG, Ill. (U)—A cot in a prison cell looked mighty restful yesterday to Clarence E. Byerly, 31. Here's what happened Thursday:

Byerly underwent minor surgery. Mrs. Helen Byerly divorced him in Knox County Circuit Court. He married Mrs. Ruth I. Jolley, 42, rooming house operator, in a civil ceremony in which his ex-wife was an attendant.

Yesterday Byerly was taken to the state penitentiary in Vandalia to serve a six months sentence for driving his car after his license had been revoked.

Shopping Up During Week Facts Indicate

NEW YORK (U)—Americans stepped up their purchases of clothing, home furnishings and automobiles this week according to Dun & Bradstreet.

Although rain and floods put a damper on retail activity in some eastern business centers, total store sales for the week ended Wednesday were moderately higher than a year ago.

Women shoppers increased their purchases of cloth coats and dresses, blouses, hats, hosiery and sportswear. Men bought more suits, sports jackets and raincoats than in a year ago.

Shoes sold well. Merchants reported continued strong demand for men's and women's footwear.

There was a noticeable gain in purchases of towels and linens. Dun & Bradstreet said, and increased call for paints and hardware. Furniture shoppers sought maple bedroom suites and wrought iron dinette sets. Best sellers in the appliance field were TV sets, radios and automatic dryers.

Connecticut Buys 89 GMC Trucks

An order for 89 heavy-duty GMC dump trucks that will be used in the maintenance of Connecticut's elaborate network of state highways has been received by GMC Truck and Coach Division of General Motors.

A. S. McEvoy, GMC fleet division manager, said the $537,000 order brings the total dollar volume of GMC trucks sold to Connecticut during the past 24 months to more than $1,000,000.

He said the trucks will be equipped with snowplows in the winter so that they can be used for year-around maintenance operations.

Twenty-four of the vehicles have GMC Hydra-matic transmissions and all are powered by 175-horsepower V-8 engines introduced this year. The Hydra-matic models are M653s and the remainder are 653s.

The order will bring the number of new GMCs put into operation by Connecticut in the past two years to 184. All of the newly ordered vehicles are scheduled to be delivered to the Connecticut State Highway Department this year.

Michener's Romance in Actual Life Parallels Fiction Plot Given in Novel

CHICAGO (INS)—Pulitzer prize-winning author James A. Michener's life is "striking a parallel with his fiction—except that his has a happier ending."

Michener once wrote a best-selling novel about an American flier who fell in love with a Japanese dancer but the author didn't allow the couple to marry.

Now, in real life, Michener is in love with an Oriental beauty and is faring much better than the characters in his fictional romance entitled "Sayonara."

The 47-year-old author of the prize-winning book "Tales of the South Pacific" will be married in Chicago Sunday to Mari Sabusawa, an American-born Japanese.

Life has dealt Michener and his bride-to-be a rosier set of circumstances than those he gave the lovers he dreamed up in his imagination.

GAP TOO GREAT

In the book, the dancer came to her poignant decision against marrying the pilot because she felt she could never live happily in the American's world. To her, the cultural gap between the East and West was too great for love to overcome.

In his own romance, Michener is marrying a woman who was born, reared and educated in the United States and who is as concerned as he is with narrowing the cultural gap between the East and West.

Miss Sabusawa is a chic, 35-year-old career woman. She is the assistant editor of the American Library Association Bulletin and has taken several graduate courses in international relations and political science at the University of Chicago.

Salk Shots for State May End Next Week

LANSING (U)—The State Health Department said today it expects to have enough Salk polio vaccine on hand by next week to complete vaccination of the five-through-nine priority age group.

Dr. F. S. Leeder, director of the department's bureau of disease control, said that the state had received another shipment of 100,000 doses and expects an equal amount next week.

Coupled with 225,000 doses already distributed to local health agencies, the new shipments will provide enough vaccine for all the priority group. Dr. Leeder said.

Some of the available supply already is being used for the second priority group, one-through-14 years, in areas where there has been insufficient demand by the first group.

Dr. Leeder said the new 100,000-dose shipment will be held until the second allocation is received next week and then it will be shipped to the counties.

School Districts Told to Cancel Bus Loans

LANSING (U)—The State Municipal Finance Commission today told public school districts to get rid of chattel mortgages which they may owe for school bus purchases.

The use of chattel mortgages by school districts is illegal, the commission said.

It declared the majority of buses bought by schools have been financed with chattel mortgages.

The commission told the districts to wipe out the chattel mortgages within 60 days or run the risk of having future loan applications rejected by the state.
