Dems Sound the Cry for Tax Reform Move

State Unit Also Hits Draft Status Switch for Viet Protesters

EAST LANSING (AP) — The Democratic State Central Committee yesterday urged passage of a fiscal reform program by the 1966 legislature.

The committee, meeting at Michigan State University, also objected to "the arbitrary use by local draft boards of draft status reclassification as a means of punishment and control" of anti-Viet Nam policy demonstrators.

The committee's resolution on fiscal reform follows failure of a tax revamping plan in the 1965 legislature.

In September, the Democrat-dominated House voted 55-47 against putting a bipartisan tax reform plan on the fall legislative agenda.

In that vote, 13 of the 73 Democrats joined 34 of 37 Republican representatives in voting to place the item on the agenda. Eight House members did not vote.

VOTE UNANIMOUS
The committee unanimously adopted a "resolution on draft policy and free speech."

Gerhard Weinberg, University of Michigan professor of history, and chairman of the state's resolutions and platform committee, said the resolution was not intended as a comment on U.S. Viet Nam policy or on acts of demonstrators.

"We just feel that the mere discussion of changing a student's draft status because of his actions is a subtle form of control," Weinberg said. "We're not talking about the merits of any particular case."

"If demonstrators break the law," the resolution said, "they should be prosecuted under the law; but the draft status of the student demonstrators should not be used as an instrument of thought control."

'FREE TO ARGUE'
Neil Staebler, a Democratic national committeeman, said, "People should be free to argue. We don't want to force them by way of punishment to change their minds."

The resolution was adopted after a lively debate in which one participant argued that "if you pass this resolution, it will be a disgrace to the party."

The resolution was presented to the platform committee by Mrs. Susan Brody of Royal Oak.

International Hunt Ends

Runaway Is Safe in Bangkok

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A news dispatch from the United States and a newsmen's memoiry reunited a worried American mother and her runaway 16-year-old daughter in Bangkok today.

MARY WILSON

The girl, Mary Wilson, had slipped away from her home in Encino, Calif., home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. George Wilson, on Nov. 19. They believed she had gone to Bangkok to work for an orphanage.

Mrs. Wilson arrived in Bangkok early today to try to pick up her daughter's trail. Meanwhile Alan Darby, a newsmen at the English-language Bangkok Post read an Associated Press dispatch about the girl's disappearance and recalled a recent article about the Peirra Foundation, a Bangkok orphanage.

Crash Takes Life of Area Motorist, 19

A 19-year-old Lake Orion youth died Saturday afternoon after his car collided with two heavy cement trucks at an intersection in Avon Township.

The victim, Russell S. Smith, 608 N. Axford, was pronounced dead from internal injuries at St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital just after 3:30 p.m.

Oakland County Sheriff's deputies said one truck driver, Stuart E. Terry of 3083 Avalon, Avon Township, reported Smith's car ran a stop sign, colliding with the other truck and driving it into Terry's.

Terry and Richard W. Ehle of 875 Keith, Oxford, driver of the other truck, were treated at St. Joseph's and released.

Deputies said the three vehicles were nearly demolished.

602 Killed on U.S. Roads During Holiday Weekend

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The nation's Thanksgiving weekend traffic toll reached 602 today, the highest death tally for the period in eight years of record-keeping.

Until this year, the highest count was 554 in 1964. With some states still to verify final figures, it appeared this year's record for the 102-hour period, which ended at midnight, local time, might go higher.

Forty traffic deaths were reported in New York State, 39 in California and 36 in Texas. Ohio counted 33 deaths. Michigan had 25 fatalities.

State Traffic Story, Page A-4

recorded for the four-day Thanksgiving weekend period since 1958.

The Associated Press tally started at 8 p.m. Wednesday. Although most of the traffic deaths were single fatalities, scattered multiple-death accidents helped boost the final count.

A collision yesterday resulted in the death of three members of a Norman, Okla., family and a teen-age girl riding in their auto as they drove to church. Three persons were seriously injured in the mishap.

A collision Saturday near Radcliff, Ky., killed two brothers and their sister on their way to the funeral of a relative.

Three persons lost their lives Thanksgiving night near Punta Gorda, Fla., in a head-on collision. The same day near Dayton, Tex., five persons were killed in a crash.

Snow made driving conditions hazardous in some parts of the nation over the weekend. Traffic fatalities over a four-day Thanksgiving weekend have ranged from a low of 442 in 1960 to this year's new high.

To Send Men Needed to Win ---McNamara

We Have Stopped Losing War, Declares Defense Secretary

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara ended his visit to Viet Nam today by declaring that the United States would throw in as many fighting men as needed to wage the war against the Communists.

McNamara declined to speculate on the total U.S. forces that will be required but his comments heightened speculation that he will advise President Johnson to increase American ground forces in Viet Nam from 165,000 to 300,000 men and step up air attacks on the North Vietnamese jungle supply routes.

These were believed to be the minimum requests of U.S. military commanders during their talks with McNamara during his whirlwind visit.

McNamara told newsmen at the airport after his fact-finding tour that his most dramatic impression is that "We have stopped losing the war."

He added, however, that the increased ferocity of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese attacks in recent weeks indicated "a clear decision by Hanoi to escalate infiltration and raise the level of the conflict."

'MUST COUNTER ACTS'
He said these acts must be countered, adding: "The South Vietnamese government will further increase its military strength."

On the eve of McNamara's arrival, four Viet Cong battalions with North Vietnamese support troops handed the South Vietnamese one of their worst setbacks of the war.

In an attack on troops holding an abandoned rubber plantation miles northwest of Saigon, the Communists knocked out the South Vietnamese one of their worst setbacks of the war.

It was feared the casualties, when finally totaled, might be the highest of the war to date.

QUICK TRIP

DEAD LIE IN HIS WAKE — The eyes of a Vietnamese litter bearer tell a sad tale as he walks down a road crowded with corpses of American and South Viet soldiers at the Michelin Rubber Plantation.

The area — 45 miles northwest of Saigon — was retaken yesterday by a Ranger battalion after it was overrun by the Cong. The Vietnamese is wearing a kerchief to cut down on the stench.

2 Yanks Freed by Viet Cong

Captured in 1963; Now in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Two American servicemen captured by the Viet Cong two years ago were released as promised by the Communists and are in Cambodia, the government announced today.

A communique said the two were being allowed to travel through the country, which does not maintain diplomatic relations with the United States, as "a humanitarian gesture."

The freed war prisoners were identified as Sgt. George Smith of Chester, W. Va., and Spec. 4 Claude McClure of Chattanooga, Tenn., both attached to the U. S. Army Special Forces.

They were captured Nov. 24, 1963, when Communist troops overran the Hiep Hoa Special Forces outpost southwest of Saigon. A Viet Cong radio broadcast last Saturday announced they were being freed in honor of the current antiwar demonstrations in the United States.

FLIGHT REHEARSAL
The trouble developed Saturday during a flight rehearsal when a stray electrical signal called a "voltage spike" appeared in the spacecraft guidance system. The source was traced to the power unit which supplies the system.

It happened as the launch team switched to a secondary guidance system while practicing an emergency procedure.

Expect Power Snag Won't Delay Launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The space agency said today that an electrical problem with a spacecraft power unit was not expected to delay Saturday's Gemini 7 launching.

A spokesman made the statement after engineers wrestled through the night with the trouble.

First they installed a new power unit in the spacecraft, discovered it probably would cause the same difficulty, yanked it out and replaced it with the original unit.

"The problem is not completely solved at this time," the spokesman said. "Evaluation is continuing. But the situation looks good and we don't expect it will delay the launching."

Astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. are to ride Gemini 7 into space for a 14-day endurance mission.

Nine days later, Gemini 6 astronauts Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Thomas P. Stafford are to take off in an attempt to rendezvous within a few feet of Gemini 7.

Christmas shoppers, dress warmly. According to the weatherman's forecast, the Pontiac area will remain in winter's icy grip through tomorrow.

Snow flurries and gusty winds are predicted to punctuate the cold. Tonight's lows will range between 10 and 20 with tomorrow's highs, 26 to 32.

Slightly warmer temperatures are promised for Wednesday. The lowest thermometer reading in downtown Pontiac prior to 8 a.m. was 26. By 2 p.m. the mercury inched to a brisk 31.

Lawyer Suing Chemical Firm

The parent company of the former Baldwin Rubber Division 366 E. South Boulevard, has been taken into federal district court in New York.

According to east coast reports, a stockholder of Baldwin-Montrose Chemical Co., a New York dentist, owner of 200 preferred shares of stock, filed a suit concerned with Baldwin-Montrose's interest in Paramount.

Brought by Harry Lewis, a Brooklyn, N.Y., lawyer, the suit was filed in State Supreme Court for New York County.

It is the second stockholder suit filed against Baldwin-Montrose. Earlier this year, a New York dentist, owner of 200 preferred shares of stock, filed a suit concerned with Baldwin-Montrose's interest in Paramount.

In early 1964, Baldwin-Montrose closed the Baldwin Rubber plant, stating it was running at a deficit.

Today's Toys Are 'Living End'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of toy and gift suggestions available to Pontiac area shoppers.)

By JEANNE NELSON
Toys no longer require an imaginative mind to bring them to life. They are alive. Or so it would seem judging from this year's selection.

They walk, talk, sing, cry and make miraculous changes.

Pull a string and a talking lion roars and claims he scares himself.

In the doll line is Chatty Cathie (Do you remember her from last year?). She used to talk a mile a minute. Currently she's singing.

Baby First Step, all dressed up in her Sunday-best garb with bows in her hair, walks and talks and sings. In fact she doesn't stop until you lay her down.

cries until some fond little mother picks her up.

She can become rather a nuisance, for she cries when she's cold and simply won't stop unless someone makes her comfortable.

The 007 and 009 toys are geared to some pretty fast action. Take for example, the Super Helmet. This comes equipped with front and rear brilliant reflectors, protective goggles, adjustable ear flaps and a safety warning buzzer.

A-GO-GO DOLLY
The A-Go-Go Dolly is a four-footer, complete with rollers in her hair, sunglasses, and a Mod dress.

If you're not bothered by noise, you can okay the request to Santa for the Kookle

Last but not least is the handy little toy called the Pretzel-Jetzel.

Relax and let junior fix meals from now on. All you'll get is a diet of instant-miss pretzels but it keeps the kids happy and busy.

Aims Pressure at Lenders

LBJ Eyes Action on Interest Rate Profit

By JACK BELL

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson hopes to bring pressure to bear against what he believes are unjustified profits being rung up by the nation's lenders from overly high interest rates.

If he has found no way to curb the money changers in the marketplace of economic stability, the President is ready to give them a hard time about the mounting interest rates they are charging the government when it is forced, as it is continually, to borrow more and more money.

At his airport news conference, McNamara said the results of the cavalry division's action in South Viet Nam will lead to the formation of another airborne division.

But he said that although it will not necessarily be intended for Viet Nam, it could be used there.

The air cavalry's 16,000 men rely on the division's more than 450 helicopters for speedy transport into combat.

No significant ground action was reported today, but U.S. Air Force and Navy planes hammered Communist targets from the tip of South Viet Nam to north of Hanoi. A spokesman said they knocked out railroads and supply installations.

NATIONAL FORECAST—Snow flurries are forecast tonight from the Lakes area and the Ohio Valley into New England with rain expected over the south Atlantic Coast states, the central and northern Pacific Coast and the northern Rockies. It will be warmer in the Plains states and colder over the Mississippi Valley to the Appalachians and south Atlantic Coast.

His first move in the direction of easier money could come in the naming of a new member to replace C. Canby Balderston, expected to retire about Jan. 1 from the Federal Reserve Board of Governors.

However, William McChesney Martin, Federal Reserve Board chairman, whom critics have blamed for high interest rates, still has more than four years to go on his present 14-year term. A proposal by the late President John F. Kennedy to make the chairman's term coincide with a presidential term went nowhere in Congress, and the Johnson administration has no plans to revive it.

The board is maintaining a 4 per cent rediscount rate at this point which tends to boost interest charged by banks and other lending institutions.

The White House has figured out that the cost of short-term borrowing by the Treasury has gone up 72 per cent since 1961. In that year the Treasury was renting money for an average of 2.37 per cent interest; this month, the rate has been 4.097 per cent.

Long-term Treasury bonds cost the government about 12 per cent more than in 1961, because of an increase in the average interest rate from 3.90 per cent to 4.35 per cent.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, in a speech at New Orleans Sunday night, said any further increase in interest rates, as a brake against possible inflation growing out of the long economic boom would be "premature and unwise."

LBJ IN BACKGROUND
As he did in the controversy over aluminum and copper prices, Johnson is staying in the background of the campaign to ease the increased borrowing costs which Budget Bureau experts say will add about $400 million this year to the $100-billion estimate of $1.6 billion interest charges on the national debt.

This is one of several reasons given by White House officials to explain why the new budget Johnson will send to Congress Jan. 17 will go over the $100-billion mark—and possibly to $105 billion or more. It is also a factor in the administration's estimate that the deficit for the current year will range from $7 to $8 billion.

The others were Sgt. Isaac Camacho of El Paso, Tex., and Sgt. Kenneth M. Roraback, also from Smith's hometown of Chester, W. Va.

Camacho made a daring escape last week, becoming the first U.S. war prisoner in Viet Nam to successfully flee a Viet Cong prison camp.

Roraback, however, was executed by the Communist in retaliation for the execution in Saigon of Viet Cong terrorist agents.

HAVE REPENTED
Saturday's broadcast by the Viet Cong "liberation radio" said Smith and McClure had "proven that they have repented of their crimes," which the radio characterized as "minor."

The Reds said: "In response to the Nov. 27 American movement (anti-Viet Nam demonstration in Washington), and to mark both the fifth anniversary of the liberation front and Christmas, the liberation front has ordered the release of two U.S. soldiers."

McClure and Smith were the first prisoners of war freed by the Viet Cong since 1962. U.S. military headquarters in Saigon said Nov. 21 that U.S. servicemen were in Viet Cong hands.

Red Spot on Lake Brings Help to Teen Canoeists
Two unidentified teen-agers are alive today thanks to a rescue by a Chevrolet Motor Division engineer and a Pontiac insurance executive.

Angelo Brancetti of 2920 Lake Avenue Shores and Max Kerns of 1330 S. Lake Avenue Shores dragged a numb boy and girl from the cold waters of Lake Michigan Saturday after the couple's canoe overturned in high winds.

Kerns said Brancetti's wife first noticed a tiny red spot bobbing in the high waves.

The men then set out in a boat, reached the capsized canoe, and managed to haul the girl out of the chilling water.

off to their home and refused to allow newsmen to see them.

"They're both distraught and need some rest and quiet," said Mrs. Shope.

Mrs. Wilson and Mary are expected to remain in Bangkok several days before turning to California.

A spokesman at the Pierra Foundation said Mary came to the institute last Tuesday inquiring about adoption of a child.

ASKED TO WAIT
She was asked to wait until an official of the foundation could be located but left before the official arrived.

She returned the next day with her luggage and after a conference with Dr. Pierra Vejnbau, head of the orphanage, moved into the establishment.

Newsman could not contact Dr. Pierra immediately today.

"Thank God she's safe," said Dr. Wilson in Enchico. "I prayed she would be all right."

HELP IN SEARCH
Saturday, Mrs. Wilson flew to Bangkok to help in the search.

"She just couldn't sit around home any longer," Wilson said.

"She had to fly out to try and pick up the trail," he said.

Mary, a brown-haired, brown-eyed high school senior, disappeared after telling her parents she was going to a girl friend's home after school and would not be back until late.

She took a suitcase with her.

NOT WITH FRIEND
Shortly after midnight, the Wilsons called the girlfriend's home only to discover that Mary had not visited there, nor had she attended school that day.

After questioning her friends, the Wilsons learned from a travel agency that the girl had made inquiries last May about flying to Cambodia.

Other clues included a duplicate from the credit card purchase of tickets to Bangkok and a passport application showing Mary had used her older sister's birth certificate to get a passport.

Then a letter and a cable arrived from Tokyo, adding to the mystery.

Results of Traffic Study to Be Revealed Tomorrow

Battle lines in a fight against death on the highway are expected to be drawn tomorrow at a 3 p.m. meeting of the board of directors of the Oakland County Traffic Safety Committee.

A seven-area study group will present results of an intensive survey carried out over the past several months aimed at the county's "acute traffic problems."

KEY TRENDS
(1) Oakland County hit an all-time high of over 200 people killed in traffic accidents last year.

(2) The increase in fatalities in the two-year period of 1963-64 was twice as great in Oakland County as in the rest of the state.

James O. Wright, chairman of the board of directors of the traffic safety committee, described the record as "especially tragic because Oakland County has the resources and the ability to cut down this needless toll."

Wright said the studies just completed were directed at identifying needs in traffic safety and proposing "concerted action" in meeting these needs.

Basic needs highlighted by the study, according to Wright, include public awareness of the problem, strengthening of enforcement and increased public support for official action.

Assisting the study project financially were General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., and the Chrysler Corp.

Birmingham Area News

To Present Traffic Report on the Northeast Section

BIRMINGHAM—An in-depth traffic study aimed at preserving the residential character of the northeast section of the city will be presented to the City Commission tonight.

The report, prepared by John J. Dobeck, the city's traffic consultant, concerns the area bounded by Maple, Hunter, 16 Mile and Adams.

The information will be accompanied by several recommendations of Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley.

Dobeck's report also covers a citizens' committee proposal to close several streets to through traffic in the area, including Lawndale between Hunter and Oakland.

Dobeck states he has no objection to the closing of Lawndale.

REMAIN OPEN
Moxley, however, said Lawndale should not be closed as long as Oakland is open at Hunter.

If Lawndale was closed, Moxley said, northbound vehicles would be unable to cross Hunter with the traffic signal.

"With Lawndale open, we can eliminate the northbound left turn within the intersection, if volumes become high enough to make this necessary," said Moxley.

Nine city firemen have asked that an election be held to determine if the Birmingham Fire Fighters Association (BFFA) will be the bargaining agent for the department.

The BFFA, at the City Commission meeting last week, had requested that the organization be recognized without calling for an election.

The commission postponed action for one week so it could consider the proposal tonight.

Since then, a letter has been received by City Manager Robert S. Kenning from a note wanting an election to be conducted by the State Labor Mediation Board.

The BFFA, according to its president, C. Nelson, represents 37 of the 37 employees in the fire department.

In a report to be submitted to the commission this evening, Kenning says that the mediation board has advised him that an election could be scheduled prior to Christmas, providing the election was not contested.

Kenning recommended last Monday that an election be conducted because it is the fairest method of determining if the BFFA should have exclusive bargaining rights for the department.

In the past, the BFFA has presented its point of view regarding employee request to the city administration, but has not been officially recognized as the sole representative for fire department personnel.

Quiz Schools on Prospects
Medical Educators at Detroit Hearings
Admission prospects at Michigan medical schools, including the projected Pontiac osteopathic college, will be explored by state legislators at hearings today and tomorrow in Detroit.

Staged by the House State Affairs Committee, the public hearings were to convene at 10 a.m. today in the McGreggor Auditorium, Wayne State University.

Chairman of the state affairs committee is John J. Fitzpatrick, D-Detroit.

Appearing before the committee today were representatives of Wayne State, the University of Michigan and Michigan State University.

Scheduled tomorrow are the Michigan State Medical Society, 10 a.m. to noon and the Michigan College of Osteopathic Medicine (MCOM) 1 to 3:30 p.m.

FALL OF 1970
The osteopathic institution, slated for a 16-acre site at Auburn and Opdyke, is to admit its first medical students in the fall of 1970.

College officials expect to answer questions from state legislators on how many doctors it will graduate, how many students are to be admitted and other planned admission practices.

Osteopaths have sought state operating funds for their projected school but, to date, have received only the promise of early consideration in the winter session of the legislature.

Earlier this fall, the House State Affairs Committee voted 8 to 2 to keep the legislation in committee, stating the bill would be reintroduced in January.

The committee shelved a bill in the last legislative session to create a 10-member osteopathic college authority to govern the pending institution and give state operating and maintenance funds.

Meanwhile, MCOM will receive some state monies for planning the college. The Pontiac school will share with 23 other institutions a $2.8 million state appropriation for planning.

The local college plans to use these funds to prepare an application for federal aid. The exact amount of state funds is still to be determined.

Johnson Advised to Seek Moon Code

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson was advised today to seek international agreement on "a code for human activity on the moon" to prevent the earth satellite from becoming a military base for any nation.

The proposal for a moon code, made by a citizens committee of scientists, space experts and educators, was one of several put before a White House Conference on International Cooperation opening here today.

Another panel proposed that the United States undertake a three-year program costing up to $100 million a year to help other nations develop and carry out birth control programs to check population expansion.

In a related proposal, another group said world food production must be tripled by the year 2000 to feed an expected seven billion people on earth. It urged the United States to assist other countries in increasing food production as rapidly as possible.

RACE IN SPACE

In proposing a moon pact, the committee took note of the space race between the United States and the Soviet Union and said that "with multiple manned landings on the moon in prospect within the next several years," rules for its use could be negotiated through the United Nations Committee for Peaceful Uses of Outer Space.

Essential provisions of such a treaty, the committee said, would be "suspension of sovereignty claims, free access by all for scientific purposes, exclusion of military maneuvers and weaponry and a verification procedure."

"Such a convention," the committee report said, "would give substance to the principle, already adopted by the U.N. General Assembly, that celestial bodies are not subject to national appropriation. It would become, in effect, a code for human activity on the moon."

In a speech prepared for the opening session, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey told the conference, composed of some 5,000 distinguished Americans, that in the search for world peace and international cooperation "we need big blueprints and ideas."

Humphrey, who is conference chairman, urged early action to bring the nuclear arms race under control and applauded a United Nations call last week for a world disarmament conference to be held by 1967.

"Although the hour is now late," he declared, "it is never too late to face frankly the risks of continued nuclear competition. Although there is no certainty that all nations will respond (to the disarmament conference proposal), there is certainty about the validity of the initiative."

"For every day the arms race proceeds, man not only increases his risk of annihilation, but decreases his possibilities for a more satisfying life on earth," the vice president said. Humphrey revived a proposal advanced in 1959 by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower that resources in industry, agriculture, science and social development to rally all nations to the cause of raising living standards and securing peace throughout the world and shall use that capacity."

The conference has been in preparation for many months through the efforts of a National Citizens Commission which was broken down into 30 committees.

CATHY'S A CANDIDATE — Brunette, blue-eyed Cathy Lessard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lessard, 6431 Havlock, Clarkston, was named Clarkston Junior Miss in the Jaycee Junior Miss Pageant Saturday night. The 17-year-old winner will go on to compete in the Michigan Junior Miss Pageant Jan. 29 and 30 at Pontiac Northern High School. She competed against 22 other contestants Saturday night.

Farmington, Clarkston

2 Areas Pick Junior Miss

A blonde and a brunette were picked in separate Jaycee Junior Miss Pageants Saturday night to represent their respective communities in the state Junior Miss Contest Jan. 29 and 30 at Pontiac Northern High School.

Chosen to represent Farmington was 17-year-old Bonnie Britton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Britton, 3423 Northwick, Farmington Township.

The Clarkston Jaycees picked Cathy Lessard, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lessard, of 6431 Havlock, Clarkston.

A senior at North Farmington High School, Bonnie plans to attend the University of Michigan. The 5-foot-3 blonde is a member of the Farmington Players and has had the lead in several high school plays.

She sang and danced her way to victory Saturday night with a rendition of "Wouldn't It Be Lovely" from "My Fair Lady."

EXCHANGE STUDENT
Bonnie, who speaks both French and Portuguese, was an exchange student to Brazil this summer.

Runner-up in the Farmington contest was Sheila Stegbauer, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stegbauer, 34136 Courtland, Farmington.

Machines Moving In

State's Fruit Harvest 'Shaky'

EAST LANSING (AP) — Machines are beginning to shake up the harvesting of fruit in Michigan.

More exactly, the machines shake up the trees or vines and the fruit falls into nets or cushions especially designed to minimize bruising.

Prof. Everett D. Markwardt of Cornell University in New York State estimates a cherry-picking machine with a four-man crew can do the job of about 35 hand pickers.

He says an apple-picking machine can do the job of at least 15 men.

Another Cornell professor, E. Stanley Shephardson, says a grape-picking machine can do the job of 25 men.

EXPERIMENTS

Michigan agricutrists have been experimenting with cherry-picking machines since 1959.

Carl Hall, chairman of Michigan State University's Agricultural Engineering Department, says about 18 per cent of the 1965 cherry crop was harvested by machines and the figure probably will be 20 per cent next year.

About 100 of the machines were in the field this year, Hall said.

Agricutrists report a great deal of interest in harvesting machines, especially because of problems this year in finding farm hands for the fruit harvest.

The Michigan Farm Bureau has estimated grower losses of about $2 million resulted primarily from apples left un-picked because of a labor shortage.

Engineers at MSU still are experimenting with cushioning materials for the catching frames.

They report machines usually cause more damage to cherries than hand pickers do.

And Hall said engineers also still are afraid of tree damage from the shaking machines, especially if they are not attached carefully to the tree.

But agriculturists say machines have special advantages for harvesting of cherries.

Water Main Work Ahead

Construction is scheduled to start in mid-December on a project to extend Detroit water service in Oakland County, according to the Detroit Department of Water Supply (DWS).

Gerald J. Remus, DWS general manager, said a 60-inch water main on Inkster Road will be extended from 11 Mile to 14 Mile.

The project is part of a DWS plan to link the storage and pumping facilities at its City of Southfield service center to a proposed storage and pumping station at Inkster and 14 Mile.

Remus said the pipeline extension will improve DWS service to Farmington and Bloomfield townships and Southfield.

Back School Merger for 2 Area Districts

In a complete turnaround, it has been recommended that the Dublin School District merge with Waterford Township Schools instead of Wallied Lake.

The suggestion came at a recent meeting of the Oakland County School District Reorganization Committee, with seven of eight members present favoring the proposal.

Mrs. Georgia Larson, a member of the Novi Board of Education, cast the lone dissenting vote.

Formal action on the proposed Dublin-Waterford Township Schools merger will be taken Dec. 9 by the reorganization committee.

Previously, the committee urged annexation of the Dublin School District by the Wallied Lake district, where Dublin's high school students presently attend classes on a tuition basis.

Both school boards gave their consent to the merger.

However, the reorganization committee decided there would be less financial impact on Waterford Township than on Wallied Lake in event of merger with Dublin.

Oakland School officials point out that the Wallied Lake district's tax base would drop from the present $10,536 per pupil to $9,784 with a merger, while Waterford Township's figure would be lowered from $7,526 to $7,350.

The Dublin district, with a total state equalized property valuation of $5 million, has a $4,781 tax base behind each of its students, Oakland School officials noted.

Woman Hurt in Area Crash

WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP — A Township woman is in fair condition at Mount Clemens General Hospital today following an accident yesterday in Shelby Township.

Police said Agatha Kleinow, 32, of 7691 Granite was injured when the car in which she was riding was struck by a second car which spun out of control on slippery pavement.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Jessie Stanfill, 59, of Tennessee.

Police said the driver of the second car, Jerry Bugenski, 19, of 11210 26 Mile, was traveling north on Van Dyke when his car skidded on icy pavement and hit Stanfill's car.

They emphasize the cherry season is short, and a harvesting machine can be operated around the clock, rain or shine.

Markwardt adds that machine costs are about 1.5 cents a pound, compared with the 3 cents usually paid to hand pickers.

MSU scientists have found they can minimize the effect of bruising by transporting the harvested cherries in cold water, which retards skin discoloration in bruised cherries.

White Lake Inn Is Hit by Blaze

WHITE LAKE TOWNSHIP — Defective wiring was blamed by firemen for a blaze that damaged the White Lake Inn, 3655 Jackson, early yesterday.

he fire started about 5:30 a.m. in the kitchen and was confined mostly to that area, although the three-story frame building did suffer extensive smoke and water damage, according to firemen.

The White Lake Township fire department was assisted by units from Commerce, and Milford townships and Union Lake. Firemen said they were hampered by the lack of water even though the inn is on the shore of White Lake. The lake level is so low and mucky that it was impossible to take advantage of the water without plugging hose valves.

The American National Red Cross had an income last year of more than $101.8 million. Expenditures exceeded $7.6 million.

It Seems to Me....

Chinese Papers Describe United States Imperialists

You should be interested in what Chinese newspapers are saying about us in Viet Nam.

Here's an excerpt from China Reconstructs (Peking):

"The people of the world deeply hate the U.S. imperialists for their dirty war in South Viet Nam. They cheer jubilantly as the heroic South Vietnamese continue to defeat the invaders. The JOHNSON administration is bringing in large reinforcements and bombing the sacred territory of Viet Nam. This has only stirred up greater anger in the Vietnamese people, the Chinese and the peoples of the world.

"When the world is strongly condemning U.S. imperialist aggression, letters from South Viet Nam are translated and 4,000,000 copies are reprinted in China. Writers and radio stations tell heroic stories. They bring tears of sorrow and indignation. What tortures our brothers and sisters are enduring! The aggressors will not escape their shame and defeat!

"The U. S. imperialists have committed indescribable crimes. Listen to a father's letter: 'My son, for eight years no day has passed without blood being shed in our homeland on the very soil where you were born. In Binh Hung the enemies have cut out the livers of hundreds of our own people, gouged out their eyes... even put our people into jars, pouring boiling water over them and eating their flesh. From peasants already half dead from starvation they tried to squeeze more. Women were stripped and thrown naked into the men's section.' One woman wrote: 'The scheme was to use us women to break the spirit of our brothers.... They tried to compel our men to violate us, but our men resisted.' 'Many were killed on the spot.

"Blood drips from these accusations. And, wallowing in that blood, is U.S. imperialism the most vicious enemy of the people of the world. A peasant from Ca Mau and his young wife were seized and given the crucifixion of Maria—tied to a wooden cross and raped. Then they cut her open, tore out her liver, cooked it and ate it!

"Some U.S. imperialists say that they are in the wrong war at the wrong time. Yet they bare their fangs and unsheth their claws, roar and shout, and try to scare and beat back the people. But the Vietnamese continue to punch holes in the faces of the U.S. paper tiger."

One of two things is palpably obvious. Either the Chinese are telling the truth—or we are. Their people believe what they're told. It's that simple. YOU decide.

First of All....

One of our severest critics, General CHARLES DE GAULLE, just clasped hands with the Russians and "demanded" the termination of hostilities in Viet Nam. Shooting should end with "no more outside interference in the internal affairs of both Red North and South Viet Nam."

Big deal! Red China would scoop up the pieces and probably the balance of Southeast Asia.

Gen. DE GAULLE knows this. But he doesn't care.

It's time the United States started nudging this French poobah into paying us the billions his country has owed us for two decades. And when he ever makes good on France's dismal and past due debts to us, he should be courteously invited to mind his own business.

Letter Home....

Read this letter home from Army Pfc. DOMINIC DE ANGELIS, 19 years old:

"Those creepy draft-card burners back in the States who are protesting about Viet Nam ought to be shot on sight. It's a real disgrace what they are doing and the United States ought to be ashamed of it."

Shortly after he wrote, DOMINIC was killed in action. He gave his life—at 19.

What have the beatniks given? The ten cent creeps should crawl in a deep hole and beg God for mercy.

And in Conclusion....

Jottings from the well-thumbed notebook of your peripatetic reporter:

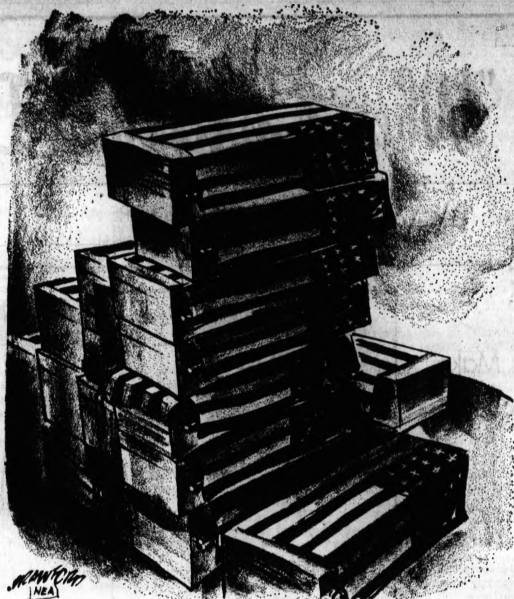

Belgium is elated over DE GAULLE'S hostility towards the U.S. Several big American industries have placed European expansions in Belgium instead of France.... The first ten TV shows currently: "Bonanza" ANDY GRIFFITH, GOMER PYLE, The Lucy Show, "Farmer's Daughter," RED SKELTON, DICK VAN DYKE, "Beverly Hill Billies," WALT DISNEY and "Bewitched." Ed SULLIVAN is 28th, JACKIE GLEASON 29th, DEAN MARTIN 61st, and STEVE LAWRENCE 94th.

Purely personal nomination for a synthetic "lo-cal girl" who's especially attractive: ELAINE Stritch. Elaine Stritch. Very active in the theater and on TV Saturday nights, she has a sister in Birmingham.... Teen-ager at Drive-in: "Don't look so scared. The 16 hamburgers aren't all for me. I have three pals outside.".... Overheard: Vice President Humphrey believes in the two party system: the Democratic Party and the Boston Tea Party."

According to JACK NICKLAUS, DICK MARSHALL, Indianapolis, is the longest hitter in golf today.... Help! Hong Kong kids are working into long hair, drainpipe trousers and beatnik shoes.... A new supermarket in France sends busses for the customers and takes them home. Saves parking area.... Dept. of Cheers and Jeers: the C's—the Michigan State football team; the J's—that Gotham fashion publication that was sharply critical of Princess MARGARET's clothes over here. The U.S. leads the globe in many things but often qualifies for the world's worst manners.

—HAROLD A. FITZGERALD

It seems our booming prosperity is based upon people's spending more than they earn for things which aren't worth what they cost. Many of which they don't need.

Escalation

David Lawrence Says:

Overcaution Prolongs Viet War

WASHINGTON — Wishful thinking — a policy of drifting on the brink of disaster and yet hoping that somehow fateful decisions can be avoided — is what's blocking the road to victory in Viet Nam. Without a compass to steer by, a ship of state cannot find the harbor of safety.

The United States today is prolonging the war in Viet Nam by supercaution and indecisiveness — a hesitancy to bomb military targets wherever they may be, and a reluctance to adopt the severe measures that alone can win a war.

The United States isn't, of course, using maximum power. It is applying diplomacy's tactics of backing and filling. This is utterly at variance with the military rule that in a war the goal is victory.

Over the weekend, Lt. Gen. Joseph H. Moore, commander of the U. S. Second Air Division in Viet Nam, was quoted as saying:

"Our targets come straight out of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. What they tell us to hit, we hit."

MILITARY TARGETS

"We've been striking strictly military targets and if we expand the air war in North Viet Nam, we would hit military targets we have not hit yet. I do not mean industrial targets. I would imagine they would continue to be strictly military targets."

"This is not an all-out military action here. It's designed to convince North Viet Nam that it's not in its best interests to continue supporting the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam....

"I assume any military commander considers himself tied down too much if he does not have complete freedom of military action."

"However, this is not an all-out application of military power and all our operations are being directed from Washington. They are based upon political decisions being made there."

UNDERSTANDS CURBS

"I understand fully the requirements for us to exercise restraint and be discriminate in our military actions because we are agents of an important part of our nation's foreign policy."

The foregoing is the frank expression of a conscientious general in the field. But is the policy at home right?

Is it the purpose of war to win, or to wobble like a diplomatic dialogue does?

Will not more Americans be killed because of intermittent attacks over a long period of time than would be the case if the war against the enemy were concentrated and fought with maximum power in the air, on the ground and at sea?

'STATE OF WAR'

What is logical today is a legal declaration of "a state of war," and an embargo on trade with all countries assisting the North Vietnamese.

Drastic measures are, therefore, necessary, and the sooner they are applied, the quicker will the clouds on the horizon be cleared. It's the way to peace in Southeast Asia.

Bob Considine Says:

Public's Ambivalence Toward Bobby Is Cited

NEW YORK — Looking for Christmas gift books?

"Robert Kennedy at 40," by

Nick Thimmesch and William Johnson, two fine newsmen, is a clinical study of an explosively individualistic man whose hand was in most of the progress of his CONSIDINE brother's administration but who still looks like a boy and still answers to "Bobby" as he enters middle life.

The book, published by W. W. Norton & Co., contains the deepest account yet of the relations between RFK and LBJ.

The showdown that sidetracked his vice presidential ambitions reads like something out of High Noon.

The authors chart a kind of course for their subject:

"As Americans consider Bobby Kennedy for the presidency now, many will have a feeling of ambivalence, of uncertainty."

MANY TRAITS

"They will see many of the traits they demand of a president and many they could not allow."

"They do not want a weakling, and Bobby is not one, neither do they want a man who shoves people around, and Bobby has done that."

"They want a leader, and Bobby is. But they do not want a man who takes his followers for granted, and Bobby has done that, too."

They want a man who understands the anatomy of crisis and can make decisions without personal involvement. Bobby can do that. But they do not want a man who is impetuous and easily angered. And Bobby has been that, too."

Sukarno may not be your dish of tea, but that doesn't deny our bookshelves to him. After all, Karl Marx's Das Kapital and Adolf Hitler's Tugend Meins Kampf still are read by those who prefer to have the man himself preside over his erratic dreams.

In this frame of reference, "Sukarno — an Autobiography," as told to Cindy Adams, rates a reading.

The recently shaken but still secure leader of the world's sixth largest country and fifth largest in population unburdens himself down to his complicated bones.

SOMETIMES BEGUILING

He has positive and sometimes beguiling opinions on women, religion, his mission, the U. S., China, the Dutch who jailed him, and just about everything else.

Mrs. Adams, a good listener, gives Sukarno his head. It's quite a head. Bobbs-Merrill publishes.

The New York Times

Along with some disturbingly authoritarian tendencies in Brazil, President Castelo Branco is going ahead with his program of economic austerity. His revolutionary regime has devalued the Brazilian cruzeiro by almost 18 per cent as the first stage in a comprehensive monetary reform that provides for introduction of a new "strong" cruzeiro in January.

The devaluation has been accompanied by tax incentives to companies that pursue anti-inflationary pricing policies and by other steps to encourage foreign investment.

This continued belt-tightening is and has been all along the most promising feature of the Brazilian revolution. The effort to stem inflation and promote a sounder base from which to grow has been a slow and painful process for all classes in Brazil.

But improvements are now evident. Mr. Castelo Branco and his technical aides predict that the rate of inflation will be down to 10 to 15 per cent next year

Voice of the People:

Not Absolved From Guilt by Humanitarian Concern

Representatives of the American Friends Service Committee recently returned from an extended visit through South Viet Nam report that the villagers of Viet Nam suffer and die unaware of being liberated by anyone. Their voiceless agony has extended for the past 25 years through three wars, and they feel no promise in the outcome of this war for a better future.

There are now more than 600,000 uprooted persons in South Viet Nam who have fled their homes to escape violence from both sides and each day the war continues the unknown numbers of victims of United States bombing in the North increases.

The American Friends Service Committee feels that human need has no frontiers, and together with other public and private agencies is now appealing for funds to relieve the suffering of these war victims in North and South Viet Nam. Such humanitarian concern, commendable as it is, does not absolve Americans from the guilt of contributing to and encouraging an economy based on war expenditures.

Asks for Press Definition of 'Conservatism'

After the recent elections in the City of New York and elsewhere, an editorial in The Pontiac Press indicated that conservatism is dead or is a dead issue as far as future elections are concerned. Would your editor be kind enough to publish his definition of conservatism or conservatives so that his reading public will know exactly what it is that is dead?

From the field reports coming in on the deer hunting, could it be that our so-called experts are wrong and they have gone too far with the kill on does? It seems that we don't have any deer left.

This seems to be the policy of our game experts in Michigan. It is a shame to see our game and clean up the perspective of the states, and halting its drift toward a national state based on paternalism and social and economic control.

compared to about 50 per cent this year and a rate of almost 100 per cent when they took power.

Brazil's Government is counting heavily on foreign support in combating the inflation which has hitherto been the great deterrent to its economic recovery. But there is rising hope that the economic discipline being rigorously applied will provide a workable solution for Brazil's problems and enable the government to relax its present tough political stance, reversing the increasing non-democratic tendencies of the Castelo Branco regime.

Who certified them and what is required to qualify as one are unexplained. But these are unimportant points. If a rose by any other name would smell as sweet, would the reverse be true of a garbage truck?

That's the real question, and all these inventors of beguiling new titles keep evading it.

Gls Blast Antiwar Leaflets

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — "That's really bad as when you have to fight an enemy behind your back," said Lt. Roy Hensley, a Seabee in Viet Nam who received an "Oppose the War" leaflet.

"Even an animal don't turn on his own kind," Hensley said. "Them people, the head of the organization, they're a real enemy."

Californians in two Seabee companies received pacifist leaflets over the weekend issued by an organization known as the Vietnam Day Committee at Berkeley, Calif. A member of the committee in Berkeley acknowledged that the group issued the leaflets but said the committee didn't mail them to U.S. troops in Viet Nam.

Windrim Smith Jr. said the committee printed about 30,000 of the leaflets, which call on all military personnel to oppose the war as "criminal and immoral."

DISTRIBUTION

Smith said the leaflets were distributed to peace organizations and various individuals in the United States, but not as far as he knew to servicemen, either at home or abroad.

"I got three of them in one envelope," said Hensley, 21, of Lodi, Calif. "I told the fellows, 'I got me one of them goofy letters. Anybody want to read one and have a good laugh?'"

But when Ronald Fuscello, 23, of Brooklyn, N.Y., read the leaflet, he didn't laugh.

"It made me mad," Fuscello said. "We got to stop communism here. People that write stuff like that don't know what they are talking about. Maybe they ought to come over here and give us a hand."

CAMP ATTACK

Fuscello was wounded Oct. 27 when the Seabee camp was attacked by Communist guerrillas.

Rick Hubmann, 18, of Phoenix City, Ala., also was wounded in the attack. Commenting on the authors of the leaflets, Hubmann said, "Most of them are already refused to fight in Viet Nam and have been court-martialed. They figure that if we all quit, there wouldn't be any war over here."

Said Paul Weingardt, 33, of Sterling, Colo., another Seabee: some fighting — but don't do any more than you have to.

"I was pretty well perturbed when I read it. I feel they're trying to undermine the military service."

Lt. Walt Pierce of Devon, Pa., commander of D Company of the 9th Mobile Construction Battalion, said: "The men in general think these guys are chicken and don't want to come over here."

COUNT UNKNOWN

It is not known how many U.S. servicemen have received the leaflets.

Printed on a white sheet of paper about letter size, the leaflet bears the inscription: "Attention All Military Personnel."

Medical Method Is Reported to Prevent Excessive Tallness

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A California doctor today described development of a medical method to prevent excessive tallness in children who are genetically destined for such an unwanted abnormality.

Dr. M. James Whitlaw reported to the 19th clinical convention of the American Medical Association that the technique involves use of steroid — that is, cortisone-like drugs to induce puberty before it would otherwise occur.

Presenting a scientific exhibit on the subject, Dr. Whitlaw described use of the technique in 50 girls. He said it produced a saving of two to six inches in height, depending on when the treatment was started. The girls, at the time treatment began, ranged in age from 8½ to 12 years.

Dr. Whitlaw, of Santa Clara County Hospital, said in his report:

"The permanent psychic trauma induced by excessive tallness in both sexes, but especially in girls, has received little attention from the medical profession, but is a constant worry to parents, who themselves are exceedingly tall."

"It is unfortunately assumed by most physicians that little or nothing can be done to alter the eventual height of children, who are, by hereditary tendency, destined to be abnormally tall."

He said that the drug therapy telescoped into a year's time the growth pattern that otherwise would have occurred over a 30-month period. That is, there was a speeding up of the normal process of bone growth, for example, but with a reduction in over-all body height as compared with what the final height would have been at the rate of growth before treatment.

He said there was no evidence of adverse emotional or physical side effects due to the treatment itself.

Abortion Laws Eyed by AMA

Contraception Policy, Sterilization Viewed

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A proposal to seek more liberal laws on abortion, contraception and sterilization was being considered today by the American Medical Association (AMA).

A report on the proposal was submitted yesterday to the AMA's House of Delegates, its 236-member policy-making body, when AMA opened its four-day 19th annual clinical convention here.

The report recommended amendments to state laws "so as to reflect medical conscience and public opinion." It noted that "disparities exist between state laws and indicated medical practices regarding contraception, abortion, and sterilization."

Under the proposal, a doctor would be permitted to perform an abortion if the pregnancy would gravely impair the physical or mental health of the mother, if there was substantial risk the child would be born with a grave physical or mental defect or if the pregnancy resulted from incest or rape.

Abortions would be performed only in licensed hospitals and only after two physicians other than the one to perform the operation certified in writing that it was justified.

STERILIZATION
The report asked the AMA to support legislation to permit sterilization of any adult who requested it but the physician who wanted it to act in collaboration or consultation with at least one other physician.

If married, the patient would be required to get his or her spouse to co-sign the written request. The doctor would be required to give the patient and the spouse an explanation of the meaning and consequences of sterilization.

Proposed legislation on contraceptives would permit doctors to give contraceptive information to any patient who requested it.

The report was drawn up by the committee on human reproduction. The house, which must approve all proposals before they become official AMA policy, was expected to vote on the report Wednesday.

Tug, Icebreaker Free Freighter in Joint Effort

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (AP) — The British freighter Ramon de Larrinaga, grounded off St. Joseph Island 35 miles southeast of here in a storm Friday night, was freed about noon Sunday.

The 463-foot vessel drifted out of the shipping channel at the lower end of the St. Marys River after a steering-gear failure and went aground on a sandbank.

It was freed by the U.S. Coast Guard icebreaker Mackinaw and the tug John Purvis from Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

The de Larrinaga was carrying grain from the lakehead to Sarnia, Ont. Cmdr. J. J. Brunk of the Coast Guard at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., said the vessel was never in any serious danger.

Poverty War Progress - 1

Transition Seen From Slogan to Massive Program

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a five-part series.)

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International
WASHINGTON — A year ago, the war against poverty was little more than a slogan. Today, it is a massive program pumping federal money into 2,000 American communities at a rate of $50 million a week.

As it begins its second year, Sargent Shriver's Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) finds itself under growing fire from critics who see widespread waste, incompetence and political skulduggery in the poverty program.

Shriver acknowledges some local problems. But he contends they have been grossly exaggerated by hostile politicians and the press.

Over-all, he says, "I am pleased with our progress and success."

In quest of an objective judgment, United Press International assigned reporters in all parts of the nation to conduct the most comprehensive investigation yet of the poverty program.

They were asked to bring in "a fair and balanced report of achievements and failures" in the war against poverty.

Their findings, which will be set forth in this and four subsequent dispatches, do not bear out charges that the program is a vast boondoggle, riddled with corruption.

Neither do they support Shriver's claim that everything's coming up roses.

UPI's reporters found some community antipovetry programs which have gotten off to a smooth start and which seem to be yielding real benefits.

Detroit, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, New Haven, Conn.; Cincinnati, Ohio; Atlanta, Ga.; and Oakland, Calif., were outstanding examples in this category.

But in some other cities—examples are Boston, New York, and Kansas City—poverty projects have been rocked by scandals or embroiled in political controversy.

Newsmen saw some well-run Job Corps installations—such as Camp Parks, Calif.—at which high school dropouts are learning vocational skills that will enable them to become useful citizens instead of juvenile delinquents.

They also saw installations—such as Camp Breckenridge, Ky.—which have had serious disciplinary and morale problems traceable, in part at least, to poor management and inadequate training facilities.

The most generally admired OEO programs, the survey revealed, are Project Head Start and Vista. Head Start is designed to give a preschool boost to youngsters from poverty-blighted homes.

Except for a few places in the south where Head Start projects got involved in segregation controversies, this program appears to be almost universally regarded as worthwhile.

Vista is a domestic version of the overseas Peace Corps. It enlists volunteers to serve in slums, backwoods communities and other areas of America where poverty has laid its deadening hand on human lives and spirits.

The number of Vista volunteers in the field has not grown as rapidly as originally hoped, but otherwise the program has been free of criticism and commands wide public support.

In many communities, UPI reporters also heard high praise for the Neighborhood Youth Corps, which provides part-time employment for older boys and girls to encourage them to continue their high school education.

In several cities, police credited the Youth Corps with helping to bring about a significant drop in juvenile crime and rioting.

But in other cities, public confidence in this program has been shaken by disclosures that some of its beneficiaries were chosen not on the basis of need but for their political connections.

Politics also has emerged in another way. In Los Angeles, San Francisco and some other cities, antipovetry programs have become political issues because of a clause in the Economic Opportunity Act.

It says representatives of the poor must be given an important voice—"maximum feasible participation" as the law puts it—on policy boards planning local programs.

Some disgruntled mayors contended that OEO has been altogether too strict in applying this rule. They argue it has insisted on creation of local antipovetry boards totally independent of and even hostile to elected municipal government.

But there also are complaints of the opposite nature from civil rights organizations and liberal groups. They contend OEO has settled for "token representation" of the poor.

Partly because of local rows over the composition of planning boards, a sizeable number of communities have been very slow in qualifying for OEO grants.

One of the striking aspects of the UPI survey was the large number of instances in which reporters found there is not enough of an antipovetry program now in being to stir up much reaction one way or the other.

"The trenches have not yet been dug for the war on poverty here," said UPI correspondent Paul Freeman in Houston.

"The war on poverty in Vermont is at present a small-scale skirmish," said reporter John Mahoney for Montpelier.

"We've had little controversy over the program since relatively few projects are in operation," said Carl A. Vines Jr. in Columbia, S.C.

There were similar reports from many other areas.

In some cases, local authorities asserted that red tape and bureaucratic delays in OEO have held up poverty grants for inordinate periods. Such complaints came, for example, from Idaho and Wisconsin.

In some other areas, dismay was expressed because OEO grants turned out to be smaller than expected.

"Tucson's Neighborhood Youth Corps has been plagued with lack of funds since the start of the summer," said UPI reporter Ronald S. Supinski. On the other side of the ledger were reports like these:

Emile Heller, Detroit: "A beneficial set of circumstances has given Detroit an anti-poverty program brimming with the laurels of success. Although less than one year old, it has managed to involve more than 110,000 poor persons in 32 varied activities."

Nicholas S. Ludington, Charleston, W. Va. — "There is no evidence that antipovetry funds in West Virginia are being wasted or misused."

Thomas M. Brown, San Francisco — "I was a lot more impressed with the operation (the Job Corps installation at Camp Parks) than I expected I would be."

GOOD BEGINNING

Leonard Adams, St. Louis: "In general, the war on poverty in St. Louis has gotten off to a good beginning . . . there is no evidence of corruption or serious mismanagement."

In summary, the UPI survey showed that sweeping judgments about the poverty program — whether favorable or unfavorable — are apt to be misleading.

The answer to the question, "How goes the war against poverty?" depends on which front you happen to be looking at.

Pits Governor Against LBJ, Senate Hopesfuls

DETROIT (AP) — A professional poll speaking opinions of Gov. George Romney's political possibilities is being conducted, financed in part by party funds, the Detroit Free Press said Sunday.

The questionnaire pits Romney against President Johnson and against potential Democratic candidates in the 1966 U.S. Senate and Michigan gubernatorial races.

"A party spokesman said Saturday it is being taken with Romney's knowledge and consent," the paper said.

The poll listed as possible Democratic contenders in the gubernatorial race former Gov. G. Mennen Williams and Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh. Michigan State University president John Hannah was pitted against Romney in the Republican ticket.

In the U.S. Senate race, Williams and incumbent Patrick McNamara are listed as Democratic choices, with Romney and astronaut James McDivitt as choices on the GOP ticket.

Granted, at the beginning, this type of insurance might call for a somewhat higher rate than usual . . . BUT, the policy carries provision for yearly premium reduction merited by a good driving record.

We write all forms of INSURANCE and are qualified to plan a complete program of Insurance Protection.

Our 50 years — three generations — in the insurance business in this area qualifies us for dedicated, personalized service to our clients.

Let's talk it over . . . we'll gladly work out a plan which might be the answer to your problem.

We go to all the trouble of redesigning our interiors, improving our handling, and refining our Wide-Track ride, and some people buy us just for our looks.

Our new Executive Hardtop Coupe. Like all 1966 Pontiacs it includes outside mirror, padded dash and visors, backup lights, front and rear seat belts, dual-speed windshield wipers, and washers to clean your windshield for better visibility.

Just once we'd like to have people fall in love with the inside of our cars before they flip for the outside. We spend so much time and effort in there.

Why, this year alone we've made available brand-new wraparound buckets and profile bench seats. Not to mention extending our use of rich, genuine walnut paneling. And plushier carpets, better color schemes or nicer instrument clusters you've never seen.

We've had our engineers take our test cars apart piece by piece to see if they can make them smoother, quieter, and more luxurious. And they came up with improvements that, incredibly enough, make our Pontiacs even more enjoyable to drive.

Really, though—we don't care which one of our features gets you inside one of our new Pontiacs, just as long as it gets you there. And it will. At least judging by the number of Pontiacs you see on the road.

WOMEN'S SECTION

She'll Not Be a Carbon Copy

NEW YORK (AP)—When Mala Rubinstein's doughty aunt died at age 94 last April leaving the vast cosmetic empire in her hands, someone said, "so you're going to be Helena Rubinstein the second!"

"I'm going to be Mala Rubinstein the first," she snapped. Mala's reply is indicative of her determination to have her own personality — this woman who for more than 30 years had trained for the day last spring when she was to step out of the shadows of the legendary Helena Rubinstein and into her own.

Mala, the niece, has the same erect carriage. She pulls her dark silky hair into a knot at the nape of her neck as her dynamic aunt would have done. She has expressive Rubinstein hands; she now has a marvelous milk white complexion—the kind that aided the shrewd Helena to parlay a few jars of face cream into a multi-million dollar beauty aid empire.

But she is emphatically no carbon copy. Her indomitable aunt who thwarted great thieves in her apartment at age 93, always appreciated her spunky independence, friends say.

Actually, teen-age complexion problems which she cleared up after advice in letters from her aunt, inspired Mala to leave Cracow, Poland, and join the then already renowned businesswoman in Paris 30 years ago. There she worked long hours in the laboratories in the sales division—anywhere she could learn.

"My aunt believed in hard work," she says. Eventually, she came to America, and became before Helena Rubinstein died, not only her right hand, but her left hand, too.

Somewhere there was time in the beginning to meet handsome, courtly Victor Silson, an industrial designer and to be won by him.

Today he is in charge of creative packaging for the many cosmetic preparations which she, as head of the company, oversees today.

Once the day's tasks are done, they return to their tastefully opulent mid-town apartment where art treasures from their travels occupy every nook and cranny and nearly every patch of wall.

Theirs is a typically cultivated city life. They give intimate parties at home and limited to a dozen guests, and regularly attend the theater, musical performances, and the art museums.

On week ends, as long as the weather is nice, they hurry to their seaside home in West Hampton, L. I., where both love swimming in the chilly waters.

Although they are childless, the Silson household is a standard listening post for the troubles of nieces and nephews on both sides of the family.

Youth fascinated Helena Rubinstein, who miraculously preserved its quality within herself until her death. Youth also fascinates Mala Rubinstein.

For many years she has been interested in a variety of programs directed at teaching young women proper make-up manners.

Now she is fascinated with the idea of teaching middle-aged women the tricks the young people may already know, cosmetic techniques that would erase years from their appearance.

Youth-preserving vitamins and hormones are being pumped into face creams at a rapid rate. Is there a chance that women may permanently overcome their wrinkles?

SHOW CHARACTER

Mala Rubinstein is sure of it, although she does not believe that all wrinkles deserve to be conquered. Some are a woman's friend, she insists. They add character to what might otherwise be uninteresting countenances.

Isn't there an old adage somewhere that real beauty always comes from within?

CO Wants First Crack at Him

The Chain of Command

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: "SKIP MY NAME" advised the wives of servicemen who were "on their honor" to send support money home but failed to do so, to write to the Adjutant General's office, and send copies to her husband's Commanding Officer, chaplain, her husband and heaven knows who else.

And you told her she could accomplish the same results with only one letter — to her Congressman!

Abby, no matter to whom this woman writes, her letter will eventually end up on the desk of her husband's Commanding Officer.

I am the C. O. for over 4,000 troops, and I assure you, I would not react any faster to a letter from the Adjutant General's office, or from a Congressman, than from one written by the wife of a serviceman in financial difficulty.

I wish you would have told her to give the Commanding Officer a chance to act first.

L. D. MARLOWE JR. (COL.)
C. O. INFANTRY CENTER
FORT BENNING, GA.

DEAR ABBY: About that woman who griped because the government no longer sent allotment checks to wives of men in the service, but put them on their "honor" to send support money home:

She said that unfortunately some men didn't have much honor, and she included her husband.

I would like to point out that in cases where the allotment check automatically went to the wife, plenty of G. I.'s got a dirty deal, and cutting it out was one of the best things that ever happened to servicemen.

Women used to marry a G. I. just to get her hands on his allotment check regularly, and she'd refuse to even go to where he was stationed.

Now she has to either live with the guy or take it up with the civil courts. Believe me, it's better this way.

IN THE SERVICE

DEAR ABBY: I read that letter from "SKIP MY NAME" in which she stated that servicemen are "on their honor" to support their families since the old allotment system has been discontinued?

Is she talking about AMERICAN servicemen, Abby? She must be nuts or something. My husband has been in the Infantry of the U. S. A. for almost a year now. I started getting an allotment right from the beginning, and I still get it. Please explain this.

BAFFLED IN VIRGINIA
DEAR BAFFLED: There are "grades" (rank) in the military. Men in the higher grades who have reached a certain rank are not required to submit allotments for their dependents.

They are "on their honor" to support their families, and it's the rare bird who doesn't meet this responsibility. Allotment checks are sent to dependents of servicemen in the "lower" grades, however.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, care of The Pontiac Press.

Pontiac Artist Is Slated for Two Man Show

An exhibition of recent works by Peter Kerr, chairman of the arts department of Cranbrook School, and his associate, Mack Goodwin, will be on view in Cranbrook School from Sunday through Dec. 10.

Kerr, who is also head of the Kerr School of Art in Nantucket, Mass., will exhibit oils and watercolors, while Goodwin will show drawings and watercolors.

The exhibition opens with an invitational tea and thereafter will be open to the public without charge from 1 to 5 p.m. Kerr, who has taught at Cranbrook School for 8 years, has had group shows in the Corcoran Gallery, Washington, D.C. and the Toledo Museum of Art. He is represented in the permanent collections of the Phillips Gallery in Washington and the Kenneth Taylor Gallery, Nantucket.

Born and reared in Pontiac, Goodwin was an electrical engineer until he determined that art was his field. Following training at Wayne State University, he came to teach at Cranbrook School four years ago. This is his first show.

The couple was wed at Duluth, Minn. on Dec. 4, 1915.

The Pryors have six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

David Wears an Heirloom Dress From Denmark for His Baptism

By MADELEINE DOEREN

Four-month-old David Scott Jorgensen wore a 43-year-old dress made in Denmark for his baptism Sunday in the First Congregational Church.

He is the son of the Mogens Jorgensens of Manzano Drive, Wolverine Lake.

The names of 24 members of Mr. Jorgensen's father's side of the family are embroidered on the white silk dress bordered and trimmed with fine lace hand-woven in Denmark.

Parents' names appear in the center panel with their children's names opposite.

The dress which buttons in the back has a full-length cotton slip bordered with lace.

"The dress was made by my husband's aunt, Mrs. William Nielsen who lives in Skive, Denmark. She and her sister are the only ones to blunder and embroider the names on the dress," explained Mrs. Jorgensen.

GOES PLACES

"It really is a good computer" she added, having been sent to Paris, France, on two occasions when cousins were baptized. Most recently, it was worn by a cousin in Massapequa, Long Island."

We asked "Is it christening or baptism in Denmark?" It is "christening" in Denmark, a Lutheran country with government-supported churches. The christening dates are recorded by the government in lieu of the birth certificates used in America.

Bertel Hansen's christening on March 30, 1923, was the first to be embroidered on the dress.

FATHER'S NAME

Mogens Jorgensen's christening on Nov. 11, 1934, was the eighth to appear.

The dress will be returned to Denmark to receive the names of David and Mrs. Jorgensen's daughter, Dori Lynn.

Mrs. Jorgensen, the former Ann Gillies, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Gillies of Mohawk Road. Her father calls the Jorgensen home "Little Denmark" because there are so many lovely things from the Old World in it.

A bi-level of the Georgian colonial type, the house is furnished in Danish modern which contrasts with the soft blue walls.

Danish Christmas plates in a wall grouping hang near the imported teakwood dining table with chairs upholstered in blue.

MET IN CALIFORNIA

The Jorgensens met while working in a bank in Hawthorne, Calif. "Still handling money," we thought, only now it's their own money. She makes many of her household linens and sews for herself, her daughter and David.

Her husband has recently completed a pen-and-ink drawing of an ancient schooner and plans to do one of the Detroit waterfront skyline. We are sure it will include the City National Bank where he is employed.

The family deferred Thanksgiving dinner until after the christening.

Smiling as if he's happy about the whole thing is four-month-old David Scott Jorgensen, son of the Mogens Jorgensens of Wolverine Lake at his christening, Sunday, in the First Congregational Church. His dress of white silk and hand-woven lace was made 43 years ago in Denmark. Twenty-four names of children on his father's side of the family are embroidered on the dress.

Here's an Idea for Tot Party

Next time you give your child a birthday party, let it be something different. Work up a clever invitation in which you tell the children in which you tell the children to come dressed in "grown up" clothes. Stage a fashion show on the stairway or somewhere else in the home.

POMONA, Calif. (U) — Harried husbands are hailing the announcement by Wilson H. Adel, president of the Inland Bank of Pomona. He invites any woman who is having trouble balancing accounts in her checkbook to come to his bank where an officer will help her find her difficulties—free of charge.

Sex and the College Student—1

What Is Moral Obligation of College?

(EDITOR'S NOTE—A number of recent occurrences once again have made front page copy of that very constant problem—sex and the college student. In a three-part series which begins here, a widely read columnist suggests there is an "adult" answer to it.

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Several unmarried girls, students at Pembroke College,

Brown University's women's ties of the contemporary campus. It certainly does. It also patently documents the now urgent obligation of college authorities to get together on this whole question of "Do we co-operate with students' sex experience—or don't we?" These authorities ought to come up with some unified decision that will spare us the kind of sentimental statement attributed to Brown's health director: "Do we want to feel that I am contributing to a solid relationship."

Commenting upon this tacit admission that erotic experience has been officially included in the academic experience of Brown's students, its chaplain says: "This situation patently documents the moral ambiguity of the contemporary campus."

It certainly does.

It also patently documents the now urgent obligation of college authorities to get together on this whole question of "Do we co-operate with students' sex experience—or don't we?" These authorities ought to come up with some unified decision that will spare us the kind of sentimental statement attributed to Brown's health director: "Do we want to feel that I am contributing to a solid relationship."

Solidifying the sexual relationship of two young people is not the responsibility of anyone but themselves.

It's a statement typical of college authorities' confused and widely differing policies toward student sex experience. These policies clearly expose the grownups' unresolved conflicts between loyalty to traditional academic obligations to young people and loyalty to the new, often overconscientious sympathy for young people's sexuality.

This latter is the American adult's response to the theories of Dr. Sigmund Freud and his misinterpreters. Young people are indeed sexual beings. And the task of their colleges—the task of educating young minds brought to them in many different stages of emotional maturity—is one whose difficulties can't be minimized.

However, the fact that we can appreciate its difficulties is no excuse for the emotional immaturity of college authorities themselves. It is no excuse for so much adult irresolution on a subject about which their students are also irresolute and confused.

We owe young people decision on moral opinions, in spite of the always present possibility that we may be wrong.

I've discussed the moral obligation of colleges to students in this matter of co-operation or non-cooperation with their sex activity with a person whose opinion I respect. She is Mary S. Calderone, M. D., M. P. H., and executive director of the Sex Information and Education Council of the United States.

What we discussed is the subject of my next column.

Double-Ring Ceremony for Glenn H. Hurleys

Linda Sue Doolin became Mrs. Glenn Hunter Hurley Jr. in a double-ring candlelight ceremony, Saturday, in the First Christian Church.

Parents of the couple are the Morris C. Doolins of LaSalle Street and the senior Hurleys of Forrest Drive.

With her chapel-length gown of white Chantilly lace over tulle, the bride wore a mantilla-type veil of lace and illusion, also an heirloom pendant, her father's gift.

A white orchid centered her bouquet of carnations for the rite performed by Rev. Jack H. C. Clark.

Attendees were Mrs. James LaRees, honor matron, with bridesmaids Mrs. Gill Padilla and Boots Hloros; Colleen Wern, flower girl and Mark A. Doolin, ring-bearer.

With Jerry Dietrich, best man were the ushers Jerry Wern and Timothy Hurley.

After the reception in the VFW Hall on Walton Boulevard the couple left for a honeymoon at Shanty Creek Lodge in Bellaire.

REDS PARADE IN MILAN — A display depicting an American cowboy riding a replica of a bomb was carried by "marchers for peace in Viet Nam" in Milan yesterday. The parade was Communist-organized.

Stubborn Reds Mail and Gifts Flood Yanks in Viet Nam

Cong and N. Viets Stand Up and Fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top State Department official said the decision of Viet Cong and Communist North Vietnamese units to stand and fight in recent battles has "surprised" U.S. strategists.

Deputy Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson pointed out, however, that such battles are still relatively small scale actions. But, he said, "there was some thinking that, as in the past, they would try to refuse battle or avoid battle."

He said yesterday in a television interview that Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara was surprised, "as I think many of us are surprised, that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese units have chosen to stand and fight." Citing the recent heavy fighting around Plei Me in the Ia Drang Valley, Johnson said he could only speculate as to why the Reds chose to stand up to the U.S. offensive.

"I have always thought that as we penetrated into their base areas, that at some point they would have to stand and fight or retire from the scene," Johnson said.

"Perhaps this is happening sooner than some of us thought. Perhaps we are reaching sensitive points in their base areas which require them to stand and defend themselves rather than avoid battle which would eventually require them to retire from the scene."

FORMER DEPUTY

Johnson, a former deputy U.S. Ambassador in Saigon, agreed that the war was moving "toward some intensification in the South."

"But," he added, "it raises the question as to whether or not they will be able to maintain the intensity of the effort that they are now mounting. I personally don't think they can indefinitely. However, I do recognize that if they can maintain the morale of their forces, the struggle could go on for a long time."

"Our problem is to convince them that this is 'no go' as far as they are concerned."

Johnson supported increased U.S. bombing raids in efforts to stem a growing infiltration of men and supplies into South Viet Nam from the North.

He acknowledged that the infiltration is "substantial and probably increasing" along routes including the Ho Chi Minh Trail through Laos and the northern tip of Cambodia.

But he said it would be a "military judgment" whether to continue to concentrate on bombing staging areas in North Viet Nam or to hit harder at points in Laos.

Police Put D.C. Turnout at 25,000

More Viet Demonstrations Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leader of the weekend peace march on Washington, in which thousands protested American involvement in the Viet Nam war, said today that "a demonstration doesn't convince anybody."

Despite this, Sanford Gottlieb said in a telephone interview, more demonstrations are being considered by the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy — SANE.

Gottlieb is political action director of SANE, which sponsored Saturday's march and picketing of the White House in protest of U.S. policies in Viet Nam. March officials estimated the turnout at 40,000 to 50,000; police placed it at 25,000.

"We were definitely pleased with the turnout," Gottlieb said, "despite the bus drivers who wouldn't drive people from New York and also from Baltimore."

CARRIED SIGNS

The SANE marchers carried signs urging an end to bombing in Viet Nam and negotiated settlement of the war. They were joined by more dissident groups, including one carrying the gold-starred flag of the Viet Cong Communist guerrillas.

March leaders had arranged for protesters carrying American flags to quickly surround the Viet Cong banners. Despite this, some of the 13 arrests during the march were prompted by the Communist flags.

At one point, two men were arrested by police after waving a Viet Cong flag to the ground. "There are people flying over there and you let them fly that thing," said one police lie detector.

The bulk of the protesters, however, were well-dressed, quiet and good-humored.

YOUNG PEOPLE

"This movement is not controlled by beatniks and extremists," Gottlieb said. "But a lot of young people of a more radical view than my own were not present."

"But a demonstration doesn't convince anybody," Gottlieb said.

Future marches are being considered, he said, because "at a time when a dramatic event is needed to publicize your point of view, there's nothing like a large demonstration."

"None of us has any illusions about the effect of any single march or even about marches as a form of action," Gottlieb said. To get results, recommendations such as offered in

DRAMATIC EVENT

March leaders issued a leaflet during the protest titled "What to Do Next." SANE advised protesters to write letters to newspapers, support politicians who favor a peaceful solution to the war and urge clergymen to discuss the moral issues of the Viet Nam battle.

"None of us has any illusions about the effect of any single march or even about marches as a form of action," Gottlieb said. To get results, recommendations such as offered in

RAILROADS HELP

A radio station in Ashland, Ohio, conducted a drive and filled a boxcar with gifts. The New York Central and Santa Fe railroads immediately offered to transport the car free of charge to San Francisco.

In Chicago, the gift crush was so great, the United Service Organizations (USO) has stopped accepting packages for Viet Nam. Its three warehouses are crammed with gifts.

A USO spokesman said, "I tell people to wait until the end of January before sending us any more. By that time the boys will need things and the ones who remember us at Christmas usually forget about us the rest of the year."

Has Reason for Failure to Retrieve Lost Safe

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Toll collector Allen Davis thought it was funny Sunday when a truck driver paid his quarter on the Bay Bridge, then sped off without stopping for the safe which fell out the end of his meat truck.

Today Davis knows why. Police said the still-locked safe was stolen, as was the meat.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time, science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations. Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place. And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months. In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dynex®) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dynex is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form under Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

Cuban Alcoholic Cure: Work

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba's Communist regime is hoping to wipe out alcoholism — by keeping everyone busy and happy.

That's the viewpoint expressed in an article about the Department for Rehabilitation of Alcoholics.

The writer, Ramon Becali, said it would work like this:

"A people which proscribes vagrancy, loves work and builds a better future gives us the hope of a generation which will be sound and clean of body and soul."

GIVES DATA

He cited statistics showing that 86,000 men and 3,000 women in Cuba are alcoholics. That's about 1 per cent of the island's approximate population of 7 million.

"A great part of the absenteeism in our work centers has its origin in alcoholism," the article said.

Most treatment for the alcoholics is given on an outpatient basis because of a lack of facilities for hospitalizing them.

END FOREVER

"The social revindications, the revolutionary actuation, the dawn of the creative forces of the country, will wipe out forever the unfruitful mark of these misled persons."

Briton's Moscow Talks Seen as Futile

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart arrives in Moscow this week on what diplomatic observers already are dismissing as an exercise in futility.

The Russians consider British foreign policy so closely aligned with the United States that they openly are saying that if there is anything to talk about, why not take it up with the principal, according to no less an authority than Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, recently have tended to freeze.

Stewart's visit was arranged last spring in exchange for Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's trip to London.

It also was agreed in principle that Kosygin would visit Britain. That's been canceled for the foreseeable future, with Kosygin having said blandly that he doesn't believe in "mere tourism."

Accordingly, a cool reception awaits Stewart, similar to that of the five American senators led by Mike Mansfield earlier in the month.

If Stewart tries to introduce any new initiatives in East-West relations, he is not likely to succeed.

Viet Nam and the project for sharing nuclear weapons with Germany have cast a heavy pall over the East-West climate and, according to diplomatic observers, all Stewart can achieve is to keep the channels of communications open.

Indonesian Moves: The Malaysian government in Kuala Lumpur has intelligence reports that Indonesia soon will step up its attacks on Malaysia despite continuing unsettled conditions at home.

The Malaysians regard as accurate the reports which predict renewed landings on the Malaysia mainland and more infiltration by armed bands in Malaysian Borneo.

The Favorite: President Charles de Gaulle still is the favorite in the Dec. 5 French presidential race.

The latest straw polls give him 13 million votes to 11 million for the five opposition candidates combined.

However, both leftist Francois Mitterrand and Catholic Jean Lecanuet are thought to have made substantial headway and some politicians doubt de Gaulle will get the 50 per cent-plus vote needed for election on the first go-round.

In that case there is serious risk of his quitting rather than facing a runoff.

Johnson Visit: There is quiet talk in Paris again of a European visit by President Johnson in the spring, during which he would get together with President de Gaulle.

The possibility reportedly was mentioned during U.S. Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield's recent Paris meeting with de Gaulle.

Mart-Type Crash Predicted by Veteran Stamp Collector

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Stamp collecting, a favorite hobby, has developed into a "miniature stock market" in West Germany.

That is the description of a Frankfurt expert who warns of an impending "crash" for thousands of investors.

Some stamps have increased in value up to 60,000 per cent within a few years, says Arnold Ebel, a man who has been in the business for 45 years.

Ebel, who recently held a $750,000 stamp auction here, says short-term speculators with considerable stockpiles soon will try to cash their profits, and the market will not be able to stand it.

POSTWAR ISSUE

"Part of the postwar issue is in a very dangerous price bracket," he comments. He predicts that postage stamps issued in the last five years will be first hit in the crash, as speculators have been buying up new issues by the sheet since 1960.

The situation has been aggravated by stamp firms that advertise philately as a worthwhile capital investment and "a hobby that relaxes and brings in big profits," he says.

Ebel says children who take up stamp-collecting are more interested in the profits they can make than in the fascination of the stamps themselves. Trading of stamps is a regular business at schools throughout West Germany.

The children — and probably a good number of adults — are under some illusions as to the real value of stamps, says Ebel.

For dealers are not always interested in increasing their stocks at the market prices, unless the stamps have a particular worth.

Ebel maintains that the predicted crash will hit postwar European issues as well as other stamps that happen to be in fashion. Stamps from less "fashionable" countries, especially old overseas dominions, are a safer investment in his view.

He estimates that millions of West Germans dabble in the philately business, but only a small percentage are genuine collectors, with specialized knowledge and the necessary finance to support them.

Stamps are always a good investment for people who study the market cautiously, and genuine collectors have nothing to fear from falling prices, Ebel says.

But to people who invest their savings in stamps in preference to normal stocks and shares, Ebel issues a warning:

"There is simply no room for short-term speculation."

Mental Patient Plunges to Death From Hotel

DETROIT (AP) — A woman patient on convalescent leave from mental treatment at Ypsilanti State Hospital was injured fatally in a plunge from her sixth-floor hotel room window Sunday.

Police said Miss Ruth Ensign, 55, apparently jumped from the window of a midtown hotel. She fell to a second story courtyard. She died of injuries in Detroit General Hospital three hours later.

Old 'Great Ape' Fossils Are Found in the Sahara

By Science Service

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Fossil fragments of the jaws and limbs of the "oldest undoubted great ape" and a gibbonlike creature, both about 33 million years old, have been uncovered at the eastern edge of Egypt's Sahara Desert.

The bone fragments, which included the first relatively complete upper jaw of an ancient ape, will shed new light on ancestors of monkeys, apes and men, said Dr. Elwyn L. Simons of Yale University's Peabody Museum of Natural History.

Fossilized upper jaws are more difficult to find than lower jaws, mainly because they are less compactly constructed and less resistant to damage and destruction.

The bones belonged to two primates recently named by Dr. Simons — Aegyptopithecus, an ape, and Aelopithecus, a smaller animal somewhat like a gibbon. These animals form a connecting link between the more modern Miocene monkeys and apes, who lived about 25 million years ago and the primitive primates of the early Tertiary period, about 70 million years ago.

JET AGE TREE HOUSE — A West German architect has come up with this model for a hotel along the lines of an ultramodern tree house. Designed to be transportable and quickly put together, it could be set up wherever there is a temporary shortage of accommodations for travelers. Individual units also could be converted into three-room apartments.

Texas had led the U.S. in the production of cotton, cattle and mohair for more than half a century.

Decorations Come From Around Globe

The Christmas decorations and ornaments used in millions of American homes each year are gathered from all four corners of the globe in a search that goes on the year-round.

One of the men responsible for a lot of those decorations is Ray Grenier, import buyer for Woolworths.

Last September Grenier traveled to Europe on a six-week buying trip—for Christmas 1966.

By the middle of July, Grenier has all his ornaments for the coming Christmas lined up and already is beginning to worry about the next year.

His scouts abroad keep him posted throughout the year on the latest in Christmas ornaments.

LOOKS OVER WORK

Then, he looks over the work of 50 or 60 manufacturers and begins his selections.

Certain countries are noted for certain types of decorations.

Germany is particularly well-known for Christmas-tree ornaments which are carefully hand-crafted.

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS

Hong Kong is popular for artificial flowers. Many of the so-called Italian holly wreaths are made in Hong Kong.

Another country which is beginning to enter the Christmas market in a big way is Japan.

Grenier notes that many of the Japanese articles used to lack quality, but says that today they are producing some of the finest decorations and ornaments on the market.

Grenier also notes that Santa Claus is even popular in Japan — except he is skinny and has a wispy white goatee instead of flowing beard.

OLD-FASHIONED As for Christmas 1966, Grenier expects a return to the old-fashioned decorations with green trees.

He says that several years ago, people would go overboard for one color—particularly gold or silver, in ornaments and artificial trees.

Now they want the standard green tree with multi-colored ornaments which reflect individual taste.

New Meaning to Painting Fun

Such unglamorous articles as macaroni and noodles and dried jars around the home will be transformed into lovely metallic decorations when junior artists get down to creative enterprises with the newest Yule paints.

Silk Tone is a formation of poster paint by Milton Bradley which dries to a silken finish. It comes in red, green and blue hues and adheres well to any surface.

Glitter tone in gold and silver and multicolor shades, use just like conventional poster paint, makes it easy for the junior brush wielder to achieve unusual 3D effect decorations.

There are extra dimensions of fun in Melt 'N Color kits which include easy guides to new ways to use crayons in 3D effects.

The young artist uses a pre-flow brush that melts and applies the crayon color in one operation.

Lamps Light Up Yule

High-intensity lamps shine as Christmas gifts, with the accent on practicality. Pleasing, too, are the equally practical scaled-down table lamps.

Acapulco Holiday Ends for Lynda Bird

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) — Lynda Bird Johnson became a coed again today after a jet set weekend at Acapulco, Mex., with movie star George Hamilton.

The president's 21-year-old daughter returned to Austin last night to resume classes at the University of Texas after a whirlwind chaperoned holiday at the plush Mexican resort.

Her sister Luci, 18, was expected to return to Washington this morning. She had a sentimental parting last night with her boyfriend, Patrick J. Nugent, who entered the military service.

Nugent, 22, of Waukegan, Ill., arrived at Lackland Air Force Base near San Antonio, Tex., close to midnight after spending the long holiday weekend at the LBJ Ranch with Luci.

A spokesman at the base said he understood Nugent had enlisted in the Air National Guard for a six-month stint in the service.

The Marquette University graduate was expected to remain at Lackland for six weeks basic training before being transferred to his unit.

Lynda caused a stir at Acapulco when she went with wealthy Hamilton to a night-spot "Tequila a Go Go" wearing a blonde wig.

She was easily spotted. It was not much of a disguise but it was reminiscent of a similar try for anonymity by Luci last spring when she spent a week-end in Milwaukee and tried to dodge reporters by wearing a platinum wig.

When she got back to Washington, Luci, a straight from the shoulder girl, admitted she had worn a wig to the Marquette University prom. Nugent was her date.

Both girls protest that the White House limelight is hard on their romantic life. On the campus at Georgetown, Luci goes about her classes like any other student.

Lynda lives at the Zeta Tau Alpha house at Texas and, except for the presence of the agents accompanying her to classes and waiting outside for her, she, too, is accepted as another coed.

The other students, however, are very aware she is the President's daughter.

Both Lynda and Luci took the stump for their father in the last presidential campaign with his blessing.

They politicked for him throughout the country and, through such exposure, have become prominent personalities, easily recognized.

Prune Juice Idea Is Peachy

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — At the next meeting of the Capitol Press Investment Club, I intend to propose a change in the by-laws.

The club was formed by a group of newspapermen who planned to pool their resources ($10 a month per member) and use the capital to bring Wall Street to its knees.

At last report, Wall Street was still on its feet but the club was prostrate. Which leads me to believe that we should switch tactics.

As soon as the surviving shareholders have the strength to reassemble, I will recommend that we stop playing the supermarket.

I got this idea from a fellow I know who occasionally does the grocery shopping for his family.

For reasons that need not be discussed here, he has recently been buying a lot of prune juice. About two quarts a week. And he has noticed that the price tends to fluctuate.

"Some weeks it's 45 cents a quart; others as high as 50 cents," he said. So he has begun speculating in prune juice.

One week he may buy as many as four or five quarts, taking a chance that the price will rise the following week, thus giving him a neat capital gain. On paper.

"A shrewd prune juice operator, buying by the case, should be able to make a killing," my friend said.

The only trouble is, a case of prune juice is pretty heavy. Therefore, my friend is trying to make arrangements with the supermarket manager to deal in prune juice futures.

"The store could station a prune juice broker at one of the check-out counters," he explained.

"Let us say that prune juice is selling that week for 51 cents. Rather than buy four quarts, the customer takes an option through the broker to buy two more quarts at the same price next week. That is, he doesn't have to lug so much of the stuff home.

"He is gambling that by next week the price will be up to 53 cents. If it drops to 49 cents, he is, of course, wiped out."

My friend believes that if supermarkets offered a brokerage service it would pep up trading even more than business stamps.

"Grocery shopping is a dreary chore," he pointed out.

"This would make it exciting. Prune juice could be included in the Dow-Jones Average."

Peace-Keeping Wrangle Splits Ministers at Inter-American Conference

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The Inter-American Foreign Ministers' Conference turns to economics today after a wrangle over peace-keeping divided the 19 ministers.

Meeting far into Sunday night, the ministers approved the "Act of Rio de Janeiro" recommending sweeping changes in the structure of the 17-year-old Organization of American States after heated debate and involved parliamentary maneuvering.

The ministers' recommendations included:

- A call for a new conference next July to amend the OAS charter;
- Establishment of a committee to draft the amendments;
- Provision for annual inter-

American conferences under the amended charter, and

- Creation of three councils of equal status to serve as the organization's political, social and economic, and educational and cultural arms.

DIVIDED ON CLAUSE

Division came over a clause instructing the committee on charter amendments to consider giving the political council peace-keeping responsibilities.

To some of this appeared a step toward abridgment of the principle of noninterference in affairs of other nations, a key point in every Latin-American nation's foreign policy. Chile and Uruguay objected to the section, and Brazil supported them.

The United States defended its inclusion. Chief U.S. delegate Averell Harriman said no country should be opposed to the idea of the appropriate OAS agency being able to act to maintain peace. He said that the conference would be "weakening the whole paper" by removing the clause.

The clause was upheld by a vote of 10-8 with the Dominican Republic abstaining.

VOTE ON DOCUMENT

When the entire document was voted on article by article, all but the article with the peace-keeping clause were accepted unanimously. Chile voted against the article. Uruguay, Brazil, Peru, Haiti, Colombia and the Dominican Republic abstained.

Chilean Foreign Minister Gabriel Valdes said support for the peace-keeping clause provided "a very concrete indication that there is some thought of giving the council powers which the OAS does not now possess."

The dissension was in sharp contrast to the quiet search for consensus that had characterized the conference since it began Nov. 17.

There were 431,041 active airplane pilots in the nation at mid-1965. More than 400,000 were private fliers.

Soldier Wins Return to Viet

Letter to President Proves Key Factor

SIoux CITY, Iowa (UPI)—It took a bit of determination, a sacrificing wife and the help of the President of the United States, but Platoon Sgt. Richard Levering is going back to Viet Nam.

Levering, 42, had repeatedly asked to be reassigned to Viet Nam since completing a year's tour of duty there in 1964.

His requests always were turned down. His wife, Lois, finally wrote a letter directly to President Johnson.

"In my letter I told President Johnson that my husband wanted to serve over there but he was getting nowhere with his request," Mrs. Levering said.

"Shortly afterward, I got a reply from a general who said my husband's request was being investigated."

Mrs. Levering sent the letter after seeing the President in a television appearance. "It was the time he explained how a mother in the Midwest didn't understand why her son had to serve in Viet Nam," she said.

Levering, who has been stationed at Fort Carson, Colo., since returning from Viet Nam, will ship out for his second tour of duty Dec. 11.

While he is away, his wife will live with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Nearman, in Sioux City.

"Being away from my family will be lonesome for all of us," Levering said.

"But if you are in the service of our country and you believe in its ideals, I think you should be wherever your country needs you."

Dr. King's Wife Not Sure U.S. Wants Viet Talks

DETROIT (AP)—Mrs. Martin Luther King said Sunday she is not sure American policymakers want a negotiated peace in Viet Nam.

The wife of the civil rights leader, here for a church talk, told a news conference she thought some "are sincere in feeling we can win the war with military might and I'm not sure they want it to end in any other way."

Mrs. King came to Detroit after taking part in the demonstration Saturday in Washington against American policy.

Sandburg Presented With NAACP Award

FLAT ROCK, N.C. (UPI)—Carl Sandburg, poet and Lincoln biographer, is the first non-Negro recipient of the silver plaque award of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

The award, presented to the aging poet Saturday in behalf of NAACP executive secretary Roy Wilkins, proclaims Sandburg as "a major prophet of civil rights in our time."

DeGaulle Presidential Foes Sketched

PARIS (UPI) — The president-elect hopefuls seeking to unseat Charles de Gaulle in the Dec. 5 election represent almost every political interest in France from the Communists to the extreme rightwing.

Here are the men, their policies and their backgrounds:

Francois Mitterrand, a 49-year-old moderate left-wing figure, is front-runner among the opposition candidates and had been considered a possible winner if de Gaulle dropped out of the race.

A burly, dynamic former cabinet minister with a pretty wife and two teen-aged sons, Mitterrand's political base is the small Democratic Rally party.

But he has been endorsed by the Socialists, radicals and the powerful Communist Party, which regularly polls just over 20 per cent of the vote in French elections.

While accepting Communist support, Mitterrand, however, made it clear they could expect no favors from him.

20 PER CENT
Even running against de Gaulle Mitterrand is held capable of winning up to 20 per cent of all votes cast.

Mitterrand says if he is elected he will dissolve parliament and call new general elections. He would try to revamp France's constitutional setup, he says, and try to establish a midway system between de Gaulle's "strong man" rule and the unruly parliamentary regime of the Fourth Republic.

Early in the campaign he managed to touch off the hottest issue — before de Gaulle's candidacy.

With women making up 54 per cent of the voters, Mitterrand announced himself in favor of repealing France's anti-birth control laws.

MAJOR ISSUE
This became a major issue and Mitterrand had the satisfaction of seeing his rivals — including the government itself — take up the issue belatedly.

AUTOMATION NO THREAT TO MEN WHO LOOK AHEAD

Electronics Know-How is Key To Real Job Opportunities For Men 18-45

CHICAGO (Special). — Thousands of people worried about automation's effect on their jobs can put their minds at ease, said the head of one of the nation's largest educational centers in electronics.

T. J. Lefebvre, president of the DeVry Technical Institute, Chicago, stated that automation has created more jobs and that these new jobs are far more challenging and offer better pay and working conditions.

"To get the most from automation," Lefebvre said, "a person need only train himself in the skills required. This is much easier than one might think, through spare time or full time educational programs such as offered by DeVry Tech. Previous technical experience or an advanced education are not needed to get started in one of our programs," he pointed out.

"The skilled shop man who sees an electronic control device about to wipe out his job, the semi-skilled person who may be replaced by a machine, the office worker in a dull, routine job, and the experienced young man just out of high school — all these people can benefit from automation if they plan and prepare properly," Lefebvre said.

He said that since electronics is such an important part of automation, many employers want to hire electronic technicians. But good electronics men are often hard to find. They are in scarce supply. Competition for them is keen in many areas.

Send For Free Facts
"I urge factory workers, office or store workers, and others 18 to 45, to look into the opportunities that electronics offers, not just in automation but also in other industries. The facts are revealing and very promising," he said.

"Just write a postcard to DeVry with your name, age and address, saying: 'Tell me about electronics.' Send it to 4145 Belmont Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60641 and you'll see that you get some most interesting information."

opposition of powerful colleagues with saving the life of army Gen. Raoul Salan in his trial for attacking the security of the state. Salan was one of the four French generals stationed in Algiers who revolted against de Gaulle's Algeria policy in 1961.

He resigned his post as party president to become, at 45, the youngest candidate.

A strong critic of de Gaulle's "personal" government, he says his main aim is to establish a "truly democratic" rule in France.

Economically he speaks in favor of spending more money on social services but is also a strong believer in private enterprise. Abroad he wants a completely united Europe working closely with the United States.

RIGHT-WING DEPUTY
Born in Paris 58 years ago, he was elected right-wing deputy for the Basen-Pyrenees department in 1958.

After holding a junior cabinet job in the Vichy government he quit France for Tunisia shortly after the German occupation and remained out of politics for 10 years after his return to France.

But in 1956 he sought — and won — reelection to the Basen-keep Algeria French" platform. Today his platform is basically an all-out attack on every aspect of de Gaulle's policies at home or abroad.

WITH CIRCUS TENT
Off and running since early this year, he toured the crowded beaches and resorts of France with a circus tent to bring his message to vacationing voters.

Marcel Barbu, 58, father of 11 children, was the surprise last minute candidate. He squeaked in with his nomination papers just 30 minutes before the deadline of midnight on Nov. 16.

Before World War II Barbu ran a prosperous watch and clock factory on a profit-sharing basis with his workers. He was arrested and deported to Buchenwald concentration camp during the Nazi occupation. After the liberation he founded a plant for manufacturing watch cases.

He was a member of the Communist Party in 1945 on an independent ticket.

In 1957 he set up an association for building and running apartment houses on a non-profit basis.

Pierre Marcilhacy, a senator and lawyer, admits with a grin that "I'm the candidate everybody says they've never heard of."

He has no organized party support and runs his campaign out of a borrowed office in central Paris. His principals are liberal and he bills himself as the satisfaction candidate.

Marcilhacy, 55, has been a member of the Senate — now a bastion of anti-Gaullism — since 1948.

He sees the function of the head of state as that of an arbiter between the contestants in the political arena.

Thank You America

for making Chevrolet your first choice again this year

With the enthusiastic reception of our 1966 cars, more people are buying Chevrolets this year than ever before in history—more people than ever bought any other make in a single year.

Already this year, Chevrolet's first-place lead exceeds 340,000 cars—and the lead is growing greater every day.

This continues Chevrolet's great record of leadership. Leadership that's been earned year after year after year.

It's been earned with such 1966 advances as these that you can order: Tilt-telescopic (or tilt only) steering wheels; Comforton automatic heating and cooling; AM-FM Stereo radio; the very newest in comfort, Strato-bucket seats.

And it's been earned with all these Chevrolet advantages: a. Body by Fisher with luxurious, tasteful interiors. b. Long-luster Magic-Mirror acrylic lacquer finish. c. Rocker panels that clean themselves of road salt and other corrosives. d. Bonded brake linings. A traditionally higher resale value at trade-in time.

It's been earned with such engineering innovations as the new Turbo-Jet V8 engines that are now available in five different versions up to 425 horsepower.

We're grateful for your overwhelming preference for our products. Our dealers are grateful. And both of us aim to do everything we possibly can to maintain and enhance the leadership you have given us.

Cuban Refugee Influx Begins 800 Per-Week Pace

MIAMI (AP) — About 800 Cuban refugees will be added to the U.S. population every week starting Wednesday and possibly continuing for years. From Miami, they will scatter throughout the nation.

The Cuban Refugee Center, which will coordinate the vast distribution program, will steer refugees to relatives who preceded them.

Otherwise, the program for jobs in areas where they have relatives.

TO RECEIVE MORE

That means populous areas such as New York, Chicago and Los Angeles, where refugees already are concentrated, will receive more, a center spokesman said. It does not mean, however, that points now without a Cuban population will be left out.

A community wishing to attract refugees, or employers with job openings for some, of Cubans already in the United States will be flown from Varadero, Cuba, to Miami. There will be nine flights weekly, with Uncle Sam paying the fares.

TEMPORARY SITE

From "Freedom House," temporary quarters near Miami International Airport, most of the arrivals are to be transported to points where relatives await them. Then they will be on their own.

"Should they be unable to find work, and be in need, they can go to a welfare office and present their case," Lyford said. "The federal government would reimburse state welfare offices."

Caribbean Freedom League represents a problem to employers, a refugee center spokesman said. "It is being met by including an English-speaking Cuban when a group is employed," he said. "He can serve as interpreter."

About 30,000 Cuban exiles are employed in the Miami area, and 50,000 others live here. Community leaders, feeling the Miami economy would be strained by further heavy refugee concentration, have organized to help speed resettlement elsewhere.

Getting Lost a Bit Contagious

PORT HARDY, B.C. (AP) — Bud Ditto got lost. Pat Taylor helped find him. Then Taylor got lost. Ditto helped find him.

This started last Wednesday when Ditto, 49, a prospector, was reported missing in the woods near this northern Vancouver Island community.

He was found the next day. Then Taylor, 21, a member of the search party, was reported missing.

Taylor was found Saturday after he had spent two days in eight inches of snow, wearing only rubber boots, blue jeans, a shirt and windbreaker. Ditto helped organize the 100-man party that searched for Taylor.

Big Strides for Soviets

Survey Sees Close Aerospace Race

LONDON (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union are locked in an air and space race that is producing remarkable achievements, the world's most authoritative air survey showed today.

The 1965-1966 edition of Jane's "All the World's Aircraft" published here said other nations in the world can not match the national effort and resources of the Americans and Russians and are already forming consortiums to keep in the running.

In the sea-air and space contest between Moscow and Washington, Jane's suggested, Russia may attempt to land a man on the moon before the United States and could well have its supersonic airliner flying ahead of American or British versions.

"The past year in aviation and space, the publication said, presents 'a pattern of adventure and frustration, success and disappointment, progress and disaster.'

"The adventure is easy to find, with both Soviet and U.S. astronauts venturing outside their spacecraft in orbit for the first time, the official air speed record raised above 2,000 miles per hour by the Lockheed YF-12A, the beginning of automatic touch-downs on scheduled airline services by British European Airways Trident."

STOLE SHOW
Jane's said that Russia "stole the show" at the Paris air exhibition this summer by unexpectedly presenting its giant AN-22 turbo-prop transport and announcing that a 720-passenger "air bus" commercial version is under development.

"One can only wonder," said Jane's, "what new achievements may be planned for 1967, to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the revolution. Is it too much to expect the TU-144 supersonic airliner to fly over Le Bourget (in Paris) that year, or even see the first attempt to put a man on the moon?"

The survey noted that the United States is now apparently trailing in the Supersonic Transport (SST) project with the Russians and an Anglo-French combine actually building prototype.

American designs are still on the drawing board awaiting approval and the production go ahead.

DESIGN STUDY
"While the Anglo-French concord continues to take shape, Boeing and Lockheed have to be content with contracts for another 18 months of design study and component and model tests," Jane's said.

"With Russia also cutting metal on the Mach 2.35 TU-144 airliner, the prospect is hardly pleasing for the American industry which regards itself, with justification, as a pace-maker in commercial aviation."

Anglo-French cooperation pointed the way, Jane's said, to arrangements among other countries because of the high cost of unilateral development of aircraft.

Britain, for one, was becoming "deeply involved" in the "Europeanization" of the aircraft industry, it said.

More than 50 international design, development and production programs are being undertaken by the aircraft companies of western Europe alone, it said.

Employer Puts Ban on Smoking

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A no-smoking ban goes into effect today for the 3,000 employees at the Samsonite Corp. plant here. It means no smoking anywhere in the plant at anytime, lunch breaks included.

"I don't know what's going to happen," said Charles Griffin, president of United Rubber Workers Local 724 and a smoker. "We're going to present a grievance and see what happens."

The order came from Jesse Shwayder, 83, founder, chairman of the board and a non-smoker for the past 15 years. It applies to coffee breaks and lunch hour in the plant's cafeteria.

"It's for the benefit of the employees," Shwayder said. "I know it's going to make me unpopular."

Shwayder cited insurance company statistics saying that $10 billion is lost to American families annually because of the premature deaths of wage earners as a result of smoking. He said he hopes the regulation will help employees break the smoking habit.

Griffin said his members are angry and the union will file grievances if dismissals are made because of the new rule. He wouldn't say whether he was taking a pack of cigarettes to work with him.

"It's unfair, unjust and discriminatory policy, alien to this country's tradition. Next we will be told what we can eat or drink. If he wants to protect his health by not smoking, that's his prerogative," Griffin said. "But we feel he has gone overboard in protecting the health of the employees."

Shwayder said in his letter announcing the rule that there would be no exceptions and that the rule would be strictly enforced.

Sift Utah Plane Crash Debris

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Investigators raked through the wreckage of a DC3, a search party was to recover snow-capped mountains today in the wake of airplane disasters that have claimed 61 lives in Utah in 18 days.

Civil Aeronautics Board investigators probed the wreckage of a twin-engine DC3 that crashed minutes after takeoff from Salt Lake Airport Saturday, killing all 13 persons aboard.

It was the second commercial airliner tragedy in the state this month. On Nov. 11, a United Airlines 727 trijet crashed and burst into flames at the airport, killing 43 of the 91 persons aboard.

In south-central Utah, a ground party was to bring down the bodies of four Minneapolis residents who perished when their light plane crashed near the peak of 11,139-foot Mt. Belnap.

LOST IN SNOWSTORM
The Minnesota plane disappeared in a snowstorm Nov. 14. The same night a private plane piloted by a Phoenix, Ariz., minister disappeared. He was found dead in the wreckage the next day.

Some 20 other passengers were waiting to board at Provo. It was a "football special" carrying members of a Brigham Young University football team.

plane that vanished with an Air Force sergeant on a flight from Salt Lake City to Denver.

The plane which crashed Saturday was operated by Eddies Airlines, a charter service. On board were nine passengers and four crew members. It took off at dawn. Two hours later the smoldering wreckage was found in the Traverse Mountains 20 miles south of the airport.

"It's just coincidence," said Charles Sheets, a CAB official, when asked about the rash of accidents.

Glenn Adams, chairman of Utah State Aeronautics Commission, said "the three (small) aircraft crashes were directly attributable to adverse weather. People were attempting to fly when they were not accustomed to flying in this area's weather."

ball game with New Mexico at Albuquerque.

CAB investigators say the plane clipped the top of one hill and bounced over the peak smashing against the next hillside.

"It's just coincidence," said Charles Sheets, a CAB official, when asked about the rash of accidents.

Racial Harmony Is Sought After Charlotte Bombings

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — About 2,000 Negroes and whites, taking every seat in the City Auditorium, have pledged themselves to strive harder for racial harmony in the wake of four bombings that damaged Negro homes in Charlotte.

"Charlotte should be commended for her reaction thus far — the instantaneous demonstration of outrage," said Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People at Sunday night's mass meeting.

Mayor Tom Brookshire, another speaker, vowed that Charlotte would recommit itself to making racial progress and would give its Negro citizens "the opportunities, rights and encouragement" they deserve.

"The bombings were a rude awakening to the potential danger that hangs over all cities and towns," said Brookshire, "but this is no consolation or excuse."

STAND TOGETHER

"We stand together. This is our challenge, this is our goal, and we will not be deterred."

Sharing the platform with Wilkins and the mayor were the four Negroes whose homes were bombed: City Councilman Fred Alexander, his brother, Kelly Alexander, state president of the NAACP; Dr. Reginald Hawkins, a dentist, and U.S. Commissioner J. LeVonne Chambers. Fourteen other church, civic and club leaders also sat on the stage.

The bombings were the first incidents of racial violence in Charlotte, a city of 250,000 and the largest in North Carolina. No one was injured by the bombings.

Immediately after the bombings a week ago today, public campaigns were started for money to repair the homes, and to post rewards for the bombers. More than $10,000 has been collected. There have been no Sunday night's meeting was arranged by Kelly Alexander and Mayor Brookshire after the mayor learned that Wilkins was to speak to a NAACP meeting in a Charlotte church. The meeting was switched to the auditorium and opened to the public.

Wilkins said he had no desire "to rub Charlotte's nose in the dirt" because of the bombings.

"Law and order is the only path to solid progress and respect," he added, as the crowd applauded.

Speaker after speaker, both white and Negro, pledged commitments to better race relations. They represented the business community, teachers, the Parent-Teachers Association, churches, and city and county government.

CITY'S IMAGE
Many speakers expressed concern for the city's "image," but Mrs. Martin Cannon Jr., urged "work on her physical body as well as her image."

Mrs. Cannon, who is white and the chairman of the Charlotte Council on Human Relations, drew applause when she called on city leaders to come up with a plan for "integration that is not just taken out."

The crowd also applauded the Rev. George Leake who listed Negro objectives yet to be won in Charlotte: paved streets in all Negro sections; Negro police detectives; a dispatcher at police headquarters who doesn't use the word "nigger"; and more white collar jobs for Negroes.

Kathleen Crosby, a Negro teacher, told of having to answer the questions of her pupils and her own children on why the homes were bombed.

Her voice breaking, she said: "I'm glad I was taught not to hate. This city could have been another Los Angeles if our leaders had capitalized on hate. But they chose reason and trust."

Bid for African Strike in Rhodesia Fails

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Another underground attempt by African workers failed today. Authorities said absenteeism was at the normal rate despite a broadcast from neighboring Zambia which urged Africans to stay home today in protest against the white-ruled secessionist government of Premier Ian Smith.

Zambia earlier officially requested that Britain send troops to its border to guard the strategic Kariba hydroelectric dam on the border with Rhodesia. The request was being considered in London by British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Police riot squads guarded most African districts of Salisbury and other officers rode buses and stationed themselves at bus stops in anticipation of a strike. Workers streamed with their jobs and no incidents were reported.

Ten Africans were being held by police in connection with two factory fires last night touched off by Molotov cocktail explosions. Extensive damage was reported at a flooring company hit by terrorists. The other plant, a paper company, was slightly damaged.

The Roman Catholic Church in Rhodesia yesterday condemned the Smith government in its first official statement since the Premier broke with Britain Nov. 11.

The statement was in a pastoral letter signed by the five Rhodesian bishops, including the Most Rev. Francis W. Mark-

"We cannot go on as things are at the moment, with two different authorities claiming to be the lawful government," the bishops told the country's estimated 330,000 Catholics.

Meg's Trip Cost Annoys British

LONDON (UPI) — Buckingham Palace adopted its usual air of resignation today to complaints that the American trip of Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, cost too much of the taxpayer's money.

Labor M. P. William Hamilton said he and another member of the party planned to raise the matter in the House of Commons. He said it was "outrageous" to spend so much at a time when workers were being urged to curb wage demands.

British newspapers estimated the 20-day trip cost between $50,000 and $60,000. One published a "Whitehall rumormongers" that it might be as high as $500,000.

West Berliners Seek Passes

BERLIN (AP) — West Berliners began applying today for passes to cross through the Berlin wall to visit relatives in the Communist half of the divided city over the Christmas holidays.

People began lining up at 4 a.m. at the 16 offices set up to handle the applications. The doors opened six hours later.

East German and West Berlin representatives reached a pass agreement last Thursday.

The East German news agency ADN said West Berliners could make two one-day visits from Dec. 18 to Jan. 2 — one on a holiday and one on a week day.

This is the third year of the holiday visits since the Communists built the wall in 1961. Last year, there were 825,118 visits by West Berliners during the holiday period.

New Fighting Reported From Laotian Sector

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — The Communists appear to have launched their long-awaited attack against the royal Laotian army in south central Laos, a military spokesman said today.

He reported successive waves of attacks were made Nov. 26, 27 and 28 on army positions at Nong Boua Lao, 80 miles east of the city of Savannakhet. Nong Boua Lao is a small town located on Route 9 which leads from Vinh, in North Viet Nam, to Savannakhet, on the shore of the Mekong River.

The spokesman said an estimated two battalions of Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese troops were facing one battalion of royal army soldiers.

Death of Jesus Is Questioned

'He May Have Been Drugged on Cross'

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Jesus may not have died on the cross at all, but rather may have been fed a drug that put him into a trance and fooled his Roman guards, a leading research anthropologist said yesterday.

Dr. Michael J. Harner, assistant director of the University of California's Lowie Museum of Anthropology, said it was "certainly possible" Christ was fed a drug that would make him appear to be dead for as long as three days.

For eight years the scientist has done research on the world-wide use of such drugs throughout history.

"There is some evidence that during the period of Roman rule in Palestine, Jewish women would administer a so-called death wine made from the mandrake plant," Harner said.

He said the death wine was "intended to put a person who was being crucified into a death-like state — with the expectation that the appearance of death would cause the Roman soldiers to lower the person from the cross."

PASSED ON?

Mandrake wine or a similar substance "may have been the so-called vinegar passed onto Jesus on the cross," he added.

The scientist said the mandrake plant belongs to the solanaceae family, included in this group are the drug datura and other hallucinogenic plants used "in a number of cultures in the world to effect death-like states during which the individual has visions."

"Mandrake is mentioned in the Book of Genesis because of its reported aphrodisiac qualities, but there is much other evidence that the Jews used it," Dr. Harner said.

Harner, an Episcopalian by upbringing, said he was disclosing his research because of a book just published in England by Dr. Hugh J. Schonfield. The London scholar suggested the vinegar passed to Jesus on a sponge may really have been just such a drug.

Reaction from leading area clergymen was immediate and highly critical.

"There is no reason to believe Jesus had anything to drink but straight wine," said the Right Rev. J. Richard Millard, acting Episcopal bishop of California. "The type of person the disciples saw after the resurrection was a different kind of person who walked through doorways and appeared and disappeared."

"This would hardly indicate he could have been out for three days on some kind of drug," he added.

U.S., Canadian Satellites Orbit by Single Booster

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Two new West Coast base indicated that the satellites reached a near perfect orbit.

The spokesman said the satellites will circle the earth once every two hours and four minutes, reaching an apogee or high point of 1,900 miles and a perigee or low point of 315 miles above the earth.

The double launch went off at 8:48 p.m. atop a Thor-Agena B rocket combination.

SECOND IN SERIES

The satellites were the second in a series of five Alouette satellite vehicles developed by the Canadian Defense Board and NASA's Direct Measurements Explorer.

The program, first of a two-country effort, called International Satellites for Ionospheric Studies, has been dubbed ISIS-X for short.

Scientists are hopeful that the Lake Ladoga is the largest lake in Europe.

State Dept. Hit by Schlesinger

'Diplomats Tried to Block JFK Programs'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Historian Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. contends that State Department bureaucrats would have blocked the Kennedy administration's Alliance for Progress program, even the nuclear test-ban treaty, if they had been left to the diplomats alone to work out.

Schlesinger accused the department yesterday of trying to prevent presidents from exercising their own foreign policy wishes because of two basic problems:

"One, within the State Department bureaucracy, a sense that presidents come and presidents go, but they go on forever and that the foreign policy of the United States is their personal property to be preserved against interference and meddling from the White House.

The other, he said, was the department's "deep commitment to past policies whether good or bad, with a kind of concealed feeling that if you change a past policy it is implying that the policy was wrong."

Schlesinger, author of a newly published book on the Kennedy era, "A Thousand Days," praised individual members of the State Department during a television interview, but he said, based on State Department attitudes:

BOOST TO RUSK?

"We would not have had the Alliance for Progress; we would not have had the American University speech; we would not have had the partial test ban; we would not have handled the Cuban missile crisis the way it was handled if these matters had been left to the Department of State."

The former Harvard professor, who served as a White House adviser to Kennedy, was questioned about his controversial story that the late president had planned to ask Secretary of State Dean Rusk to resign if elected to a second term.

Schlesinger said he may have made a mistake in mentioning Kennedy's intention, but doubted that the story had harmed Rusk.

In fact, the article may have helped rather than hindered Rusk, Schlesinger said.

"For a time, it made him something of a martyr in Washington; editors were written about him, congressmen applauded when he entered the room," he said.

Dodge Yacht, Mansion Sale Is Reported

DETROIT (AP) — Mrs. Anna Thompson Dodge has purchased the suburban Grosse Pointe mansion and luxury yacht Delphine from the estate of her late son, Horace E. Dodge Jr. Attorney Douglas Leo Paterson, executor of the Dodge's estate, said Mrs. Dodge paid the estate $200,000 for the yacht and $325,000 for the 28-room mansion. The yacht once was valued at $2.25 million. The mansion was a gift of Mrs. Dodge to her son.

The balance of the $600,000 transaction covered other properties, Paterson said.

Mrs. Dodge expressed a sentimental interest in the yacht at a 1964 court hearing on her son's holdings. Dodge, playboy sportsman son of the late auto pioneer Horace E. Dodge, died in 1963. He was in his 60s.

IN RHODE ISLAND
The Delphine, once a magnificent 257-foot vessel called the largest steam yacht in the nation, now is berthed at East Mattumuck, R.I. In her prime, she carried a crew of 46 and facilities for 16 passengers.

Paterson said the agreement with Mrs. Dodge permits her to pay the $600,000 partly in cash and partly by reduction of a $10.4 million debt which her son owed her at the time of his death.

Jacoby on Bridge

By JACOBY AND SON

Undoubtedly the team-of-four match with International Match Point scoring is the greatest test of bridge skill, but there sure is opportunity for a lot of good luck also.

At the first table in a recent match the bidding proceeded as shown in the box.

West had to make a lead and decided that a heart opening would be likely to cost an important trick. Hence he opened a safe club. Declarer won in his hand and took the spade finesse successfully. Then he proceeded to run off all thirteen tricks when East ungarded his queen of diamonds.

We don't think much of the bidding. South probably should

Probe Is Resumed Into Ship Disaster

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Coast Guard investigators, fresh from a tour of a sister ship of the Yarmouth Castle, resume their inquiry today into the sinking of the cruise liner with the loss of 89 lives.

Hearing sessions were suspended last week so that Rear Adm. Louis M. Thayer and his panel could resume the moves that Capt. Byron Voutsinas testified he had made at the time of the sinking Nov. 13 in the Bahamas.

Thayer, heading the three-man inquiry panel, declined to say after touring the S.S. Yarmouth, whether Voutsinas would be recalled to testify.

Egg Timer to Help Cut British Phone Grips

ALDERSHOT, England (UPI) — One of Britain's much criticized telephone exchanges added a secret device today to cut down complaints from callers seeking information.

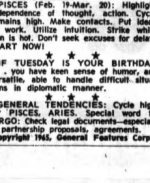

From now on operators taking information calls here will use an egg timer — a small hour whose hands run out in 90 seconds. If the information isn't ready by the time the operator will call back instead of having the caller hold the line.

A Young GI Finds Time to Pursue His Thoughts

By TOM TIEDE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
PLEI ME, Viet Nam — The boy got as close as he dared to the enemy's body and watched, wrinkle-nosed, as huge flies swarmed on it.

"That's the first dead guy I'd ever seen," he whispered.

And he tried to grin but failed.

The corpse lay facing away from the line of fire, obviously in futile retreat. It was totally black.

It had been hit by napalm flame. It had been hit again and again by small-arms fire. COUNTS HOLES

The boy counted the holes. "Dozens," he said. "It sure got killed a lot of times."

And then he slumped to the ground and wiped his face with a sleeve.

The dead one was the other side, the boy knew, the Viet Cong. But he felt bad regardless.

He had not had time in his short life to hate many things. Certainly not people, VC or otherwise.

STILL A SOLDIER

He was a soldier, of course, and, if necessary, he would kill. But hate? Not yet.

Dead people were only to be pitied and prayed for.

The boy removed his oversized helmet and his black hair began to loosen where it was matted smooth around the crown of his head.

He was small, maybe 140 pounds. Alongside others in the First Cavalry Division, he looked as if he were standing in a hole.

WONDERS WHERE

"Where are we?" he asked. "In mountain country," he was told, "close to Cambodia."

"Cambodia? Oh, yeah, Cambodia."

He looked at the body again. INQUIRES OF AGE

"Wonder how old he was," he reflected. "I understand they got a lot of young kids on their side. Guys my age. I suppose. I'm just 18. Enlisted when I was 17, three weeks out of high school."

"Me and a buddy joined together but he's still in the states, the lucky guy. I never thought I'd be over here, but in my class—there were 230 of us altogether—20 guys were picked for Viet Nam. How about that? I was one of only 28."

The boy slapped his leg and bit his lip. His large teeth were bright against tanned skin. He looked Vietnamese.

"I'm not," he said. "I'm Indian. My people were Mexican Indians."

CUSTER'S OUTFIT

An Indian in the First Cavalry, Gen. George Custer's old outfit. "He," said the boy, "was in the last fight my side won."

Except this one. For Pfc. Craig Smith is on the cowboy's side in a conflict where there are more similarities to the Indian wars than the commitment of Custer's failed colors.

Throughout this land, outposts such as forts dot the war picture. Cut off from the outside, they are ripe targets for the VC today as their families were for the Apache and Sioux in the American West.

The Viet Cong use spears at times, advance with the sun at their back, and their booty traps and guerrilla strategy are not unlike those used in the 1800s by Indians.

TREE TO TREE

They fight tree to tree here. They assault, inflict casualties, retreat, regroup and assault again.

They outwait their target's water supply. They ambush on so many fronts at once that many troop convoys circle their helmets when attacked, as the pioneers did their wagons.

"They are," agreed the boy silently, "a lot like Indians."

And he surveyed the corpse still another time.

Builders someday may rely more on plastic than steel for structural uses. A strong new plastic called PPO withstands high and low temperature extremes, can be machined and can be formed as rods, slabs, sheets and pipes.

A PAUSE — Craig Smith, a First Cavalry Division trooper in South Viet Nam, pauses in battle and reflects on the miseries of war in a foreign land.

More Snow Hits Along Great Lakes

By The Associated Press

Snow continued piling up today along the eastern and southeastern shores of the Great Lakes while freezing temperatures were reported from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachians.

At Conneaut, Ohio, 60 miles northwest of Cleveland, nearly a foot of snow had fallen. Other cities with heavy accumulations were Erie, Pa., and Buffalo, N.Y., both with eight inches, and Grand Rapids and Traverse City, Mich., with seven inches.

The U.S. Weather Bureau described the snowfall as a seasonal phenomenon, resulting from arctic air passing over the warmer lake waters.

The northern Plains again today experienced morning temperatures near the zero mark. Aberdeen, S.D., reported the early morning low, 3 degrees.

The early morning high was 72 at Key West, Fla.

Parts of the Gulf states were dampened by rain showers. The Far West had mostly clear skies.

"I'm not," he said. "I'm Indian. My people were Mexican Indians."

British Bakers Union

Stops Strike for Week

LONDON — Britain's bakers union called off its guerrilla bread strikes today but only for a week.

The union said that unless the bakers by Dec. 7 give an interim wage increase of £2.50 a week and a promise to discuss its bigger claim, it will call out all of its 32,000 members.

Priest Opposes Nudist

DARLSTON, England (UPI) — The local parish priest is firmly opposed to a nudist club within the town baths one night a week.

"It is rather like the decline of the Roman Empire," said the Rev. Brynmor Jones.

Browns Clinch Eastern Crown

CLEVELAND (AP) — "Now we've got to win the big one," said a smiling Blanton Collier as he led the Cleveland Browns through a happy crowd of 1,000 at Cleveland Hopkins International Airport Sunday night.

The Browns had wrapped up their ninth Eastern Conference title in the National Football League earlier with a 42-21 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers. The fans turned out to welcome them home.

"Now our aim is to complete the job—the championship game," said Collier, who took over as coach in 1963 and led the Browns to the NFL title last year.

It was their fourth since entering the NFL in 1950.

The Browns, 9-3 in the East, were boosted into the championship game when St. Louis lost to Philadelphia and Chicago beat New York.

It appears Cleveland's likely opponent for the title will be Jack Nicklaus hit his second shot to the green on the 18th hole at Oakbourne Country Club course and left himself a 12-foot putt for a birdie, which carried over a given him a 58 for the final of the $32,000 Cajun Classic, final PGA tourney of 1965.

The Golden Bear, a slight smile on his face, walked to the scorer's table to check the results of earlier finishes.

"Who?" asked the Masters champ. Then he laughed and said, "I'm only kidding."

The 25-year-old Ohio strong-bow's putt slid two feet past the cup and he had to settle for a 69.

The three-year-old par score on the 6,555-yard course meant big Jack was one stroke shy of the lead after the regulation 72 holes.

FAST PUTT

Babe Hisey and Dudley Wysong did have it, and Hisey, who was born on the edge of an Idaho golf course, cannot a first putt from 20 feet out to win the title on the second hole of the sudden death.

Nicklaus knew who Wysong was. He had beaten the St. Louis Methodist graduate in the finals of the U.S. Amateur in 1961. He'd seen Hisey's name near the bottom of the list of also-rans in other tournaments.

Record Golf Victory for Miss Whitworth

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A couple of bogies back to back made Kathy Whitworth of San Antonio, Tex., mad and sparked a surge of birdies which carried her to a record as she won the Women's Titleholders Golf tournament Sunday.

She finished with a one-under 71 to knock two strokes off the tournament record of 269 set by Marilyn Smith last year.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ask assistant coach Monk Bailey of the St. Louis Cardinals where the action is and he'll tell you to stick with Pete Retzlaff — if you can.

Bailey spoke from experience after trying in vain to keep up with the Philadelphia right and left after Sunday afternoon. From a distance, Bailey saw Retzlaff catch nine passes for 148 yards and three touchdowns that sparked the Eagles to a 28-24 National Football League victory over the Cardinals.

"I hear he was playing with a bum ankle and he still beat the heck out of me," said a stunned Bailey, a second-year man making his first start of the Cardinals.

"One time he twisted me around so fast I didn't have time to put my hand down to catch myself and my face mask stuck in the mud. I took my eyes off him several times to see where the ball was and he was gone."

TIP THE HAT — Golfer Babe Hisey of Pocatello, Idaho tips his hat to the crowd after sinking a 20-foot birdie putt to win the Cajun Classic in a "sudden death" playoff with Dudley Wysong of Casper, Wyoming. Hisey took top money of $4,350 in making the birdie on the second playoff hole.

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus hit his second shot to the green on the 18th hole at Oakbourne Country Club course and left himself a 12-foot putt for a birdie, which carried over a given him a 58 for the final of the $32,000 Cajun Classic, final PGA tourney of 1965.

Rams Surprise Packers, 21-10

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Rams had to beat somebody sooner or later and it had to be us."

The remark came from Vince Lombardi, whose highly favored Green Bay Packers bowed to Los Angeles in their National Football League game Sunday, 21-10.

It very well summed up the Rams and their disastrous season. They stand 2-9 in the Western Division.

But, glory for the long suffering Rams and their dwindling band of faithful, the horrendous eight-game losing streak was finally over.

It was hard for the 39,733 gathered in Memorial Coliseum Sunday to believe it, but the Rams not only won, they dominated the game, both offensively and defensively.

NEW YORK (AP) — Gale Sayers, the whiz kid from Kansas, and Dick Butkus, the Illinois blockbuster, threaten to make the Rookie of the Year race an all-Chicago Bears' battle.

Seldom-Used End Sparks Chiefs

By The Associated Press
The Kansas City Chiefs have forgotten about the trouble Fred Arbanas had with his eye. The only trouble was Arbanas was beginning to suspect the Chiefs also had forgotten about him.

"They just haven't been throwing to me as far as I'm concerned," Arbanas said recently in discussing the loss of sight in his left eye. "As far as I'm concerned they don't have confidence in me. My right eye does all the work but as long as they throw it near me I can catch it."

The Chiefs threw it near him Sunday and the big tight end who made the all-American don't throw to everybody it's like using 10 or nine men."

There was no doubt the Chiefs used 11 men against the Oilers and Arbanas was one of the keys, doubling his entire touchdown output for the season by grabbing a five-yard pass from Len Dawson for one score and snaring a 27-yarder from Pete Beathard for the other.

In the only other game scheduled, Boston upended New York 27-23 and enabled idle Buffalo to clinch the Eastern Division title.

WALKING ALONG
Arbanas was walking down a Kansas City street last December when "the next thing I knew I was hit."

"What had happened was that he had taken a blind-side punch from an unknown assailant."

"If he hit a normal man like that he might have killed him," Arbanas explained. "The police and the doctors said he had to hit me with brass knuckles the way I was cut around the eye. I had two operations but I haven't had any real trouble."

"I'd just like to be used a little more," said Arbanas, a former Michigan State star. "If we

Dull Pistons Beaten as LA Shows Punch

DETROIT (AP) — It wasn't much of a basketball game, but for a while it was a heck of a fight.

The Detroit Pistons remained tied for last place in the National Basketball Association after bowing 128-110 Sunday to a Los Angeles club playing without star Elgin Baylor.

Detroit's Eddie Miles was the loser in the melee which exploded in front of the Pistons bench in the last 2½ minutes of play. That was because Leroy Ellis mistook him for Joe Caldwell.

Ellis and Caldwell got involved in an exchange of elbows which triggered the brawl. In the middle of everything, Miles tripped and fell across the hoop. That's when LA's Ellis mistook him for Caldwell and let fly.

Walter Brennan Playing Dual Role

Veteran Character Actor Is Still Going Strong at 72

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Walter Brennan, one of the last of a great generation of character actors, is still going strong enough at 72 to play a dual role as tycoon and 900-old gnome.

"This is the toughest job of my career," said Brennan of his roles in "The Gnomes." "It was utterly clear that he was enjoying every minute. Brennan arrived for lunch in his guise as tycoon, and he was elegantly tailored and springy of step. His gnome garb is something else again. He is laden with aging makeup that requires an hour to apply. Camera magic reduces him to one-third his normal size. Obviously there is plenty of life in the man who won three of the first five Academy Awards for supporting actor ("Come and Get It," 1936; "Kentucky," 1938; "The Westerner," 1940). He and Donald Crisp survive among the character men who have won the Oscar: Joseph Schildkraut, Thomas Mitchell, Charles Coburn, Barry Fitzgerald, Edmund Gwenn and others are gone.

"Yes there's no doubt that character acting ain't what it used to be," admitted Brennan. "A lot of the great ones are gone, and there aren't many to take their places."

"You can't expect to find them in former stars. A leading man is always a leading man. And the young actors aren't willing to put in the time to study their craft. They want instant success."

It was not so for Brennan. He started in films right after the first world war, hustling the sets with a makeup kit that provided a variety of disguises. "I worked under three names," he recalled. "If they paid me $10 a day, I was Walter Brennan. If the check was $7.50, they got Walter Andrews, my first two names. For anything less than that, my billing was Philip Space."

Brennan hit his stride as a contract player for Samuel Goldwyn. During that period he made eight films for Goldwyn and 40 loans.

His long experience paid off in gold with "The Real McCoy," which ran on television for six years. Last season he attempted another series, "Tycoon," but it didn't survive.

"Don't ask me why," said Brennan. "A lot of people like that show, myself included. Our rating was high when the powers that be took us off."

Undaunted, he has filmed a pilot for another series, making it for his own company. The thought of the television wind doesn't faze him.

"Shucks, work is my hobby," he reasoned. "Without it, I'd die."

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese Crown Princess Michiko, who is expecting her second child, entered the imperial household hospital today for an examination, a palace spokesman said.

The spokesman said the result of the examination will determine whether the princess will stay at the hospital or return to Crown Prince Akihito's Tokyo residence.

Durante Given Top Billing as Kind-Hearted Performer

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Who's Our Most Beloved Entertainer? Jimmy Durante's close to No. 1.

Jimmy's new cross-country to entertain—free—at the Motion Picture Players' tribute to President Bob O'Brien of MGM at the Americana. And when I told Jimmy that I might have to miss his act due to a previous date, he said:

"G'wan, Oil, and see mumpin' good. You see me work a millyun times!"

"Mr. O'Brien"—said Jan Murray, the m.c.—"I'm not asking you to cast me in pictures. But Roddy McDowall's not getting any younger, and Keefe Brasseur's not too easy to find..."

"Whatever people may say about Frank Sinatra," added Murray, "you gotta admit, he keeps the kids off the streets."

Beautiful Joan Diener, a Cleveland girl, now a brunet, is bringing well-rounded femininity back to the stage in "The Man From La Mancha." She makes Mamie Van Doren look like a flatterer. Honoring her, Richard Kiley, Ray Middleton and Irving Jacobson, producers gave a party for 1,000 people in a banquet room at No. 1 5th, so like a wedding that the gag was "Are you for the bride or the groom?"

Arthur Godfrey at the Explorers' salute to Lowell Thomas said: "Executives of Consolidated Edison are here... at that table with the candles." Concerning Thomas' wealth, Godfrey said: "If money were really filthy here, we'd be here tonight honoring one of the dirtiest old men in America."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL...

Frank Sinatra lost a bundle on the Clay victory... N.Y.C. Mayor-elect Lindsay lost Lionel Hampton to organize five bands—one for each borough—for Inauguration Day galas... Veteran actor Don De Le's in M.L. Sinal Hosp... Tony Newley and Robert Morse are "leprechaun" candidates for a "Finian's Rainbow" film... The will of a famed promoter reportedly shows he owed more than $100,000.

Walter Matthau, who left "Odd Couple" to make a movie, gave the cast watches with Hebrew letters... Lillian Roth and Marilyn Michaels (of the touring "Funny Girl") patched up a backstage feud... Steve Lawrence'll headline at the Copa March 17 (minus Eydie).

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: With actor Ronald Reagan entering politics, Joan Griffiths wonders if he'll run for Acting Governor.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: One of the new cars is so advanced it doesn't have buttons on the dashboard—it has zippers.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Praise is like seasoning. A little bit is better than a lot."—Business Management.

CONNIE LUTES

Editor of Paper Teen of Week

Named teen of the week is Connie Lutes, a ninth grader at Madison Junior High School.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lutes of 487 Bay, Connie has maintained a "B plus" average throughout junior high school.

Vice president of the Student Council, editor of the school newspaper and secretary of the cheerleaders, Connie still finds time to be active in the Teen Club and the Ski Club. Though planning to attend college upon her graduation from high school, Connie's career plans are indefinite.

"Because of the fast-changing society in which we live," says Connie, "it is important for a young person to consider the future when deciding on a career."

"We need to be aware of our present society and alert to changes which directly affect our planning for the future."

New housing starts are expected to rise to 2 million annually in the 1970s compared with the current rate of about 1.5 million, according to forecasts by the National Association of Home Builders.

'Art's Only a Hobby With Me,' Asserts Precocious Painter, 14

LONDON (AP) — "Painting's modern art, has called it all right," says Senaka Senanayake, 14, "but it's only a hobby with me."

"When I grow up I want to do something serious. I would like to be a doctor and that's what I think I'll do."

He was speaking at an exhibition of his paintings. He can't be certain if this show is his 37th, 38th, 39th or 40th.

"I know I've had an awful lot of them," he said. "I've exhibited in America, Russia, Germany, Australia — many places."

His paintings sell for as much as $500.

"I'm always being told how good I am," he said, "and this gets embarrassing."

Sir Herbert Read, one of Britain's foremost authorities on art, observed: "At first we thought all this to be a modest boy."

BEGAN AT 6 Senaka began painting when he was six. He has never had a lesson.

He is a nephew of Ceylon's prime minister, Dudley Senanayake.

Admitting to reporters that he has already earned a small fortune from the sale of his paintings, Senaka said with a twinkle: "My dad is pretty mean with money. He only allows me two rupees (about 45 cents) a week. I spend that on going to the movies and on buying sweets. I love chocolate more than any thing else."

Asked what he objected to most about painting, he replied: "Having to wash all those brushes."

Says Retina Tumor Now Is Curable

By Science Service
ARLINGTON, Va. — The malignant tumor of the retina called retinoblastoma can now be cured in 85 per cent to 90 per cent of cases that are discovered early and treated by combinations of X ray and drugs.

Dr. Richard B. Lyons, a geneticist at the University of Oregon, told Science Service that the outlook for this tumor, which mainly affects babies and children, has improved greatly during the past 20 years.

The untreated tumor eventually brings about a protrusion of the globe of the eye, with a resulting "puffy" appearance.

Fortunately it is a rare disease, occurring only in one out of 14,000 live births.

Dr. Lyons and his team found an abnormal chromosome in cells from a 1-year-old boy who later died of retinoblastoma. The geneticist warned, however, that this does not mean that the abnormality is present in all patients who have the tumor.

What he found was that a chromosome of the D group, one of seven groupings based on size and shape, was missing and was replaced by a much smaller fragment that was probably the remnant left after breakage or deletion of the original D chromosome.

A similar finding had been reported in London in one of six patients at the Galton Laboratory.

Dr. Lyons' patient was born with numerous congenital abnormalities, including a small eye and a keyhole-shaped defect in the iris, which caused the physician to make chromosome studies when the boy was just a year old.

This child was the only one of a 19-year-old mother and a 20-year-old father, who had to withdraw from college to take care of the medical expenses of their son.

Wirtz Remains Confident

By NEIL GILBRIDE
WASHINGTON (AP) — This was the year "The Grapes of Wrath" revisited American agriculture.

But unlike John Steinbeck's 1939 novel about the tragic plight of the U.S. migrant worker, most of the 1965 wrath descended on the head of Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, who was carrying out a policy laid down by Congress.

Also in contrast with 1939, the welcome mat was out in 1965 for American migrant harvesters. This year, when Wirtz forced big farm interests to slash their imports of foreign farm laborers from 200,000 to 37,000, American workers never had it so good.

And his future looks even better as growers who him with better wages, housing and working conditions to replace the flood of Mexicans, British West Indians and other foreigners who used to pour in to harvest the nation's crops.

SHOUTS HEARD

The wrath came from big agricultural interests and their spokesmen in Congress, whose protests could be heard all the way from the tomato fields to the White House.

"Tremendous" crop losses due to labor shortages were reported by Ruth Wedgeworth, one of Florida's biggest growers. "Disaster," cried Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., chief spokesman in Washington for California's farm interests. The Labor Department denied any crop losses due to labor shortages.

PRICES DECLINED

"We got the crops in with fewer workers than ever before," said a department spokesman. And prices actually declined despite higher labor costs, he added.

Steinbeck's fictional 1939 farm migrant chugged from state to state in a rattletrap jalopy, barely earning enough to feed his carload of hungry children.

But in 1965, U.S. workers averaged about $2.25 per hour in the fields, and in some cases as high as $3.50 where piece rates are paid. Mexican braceros last year averaged only $1.37.

Many growers argued that Americans would not stoop to the backbreaking labor of harvesting such crops as lettuce, tomatoes, strawberries, potatoes — and the grapes of Steinbeck's novel title.

SOUGHT RECRUITS

But Wirtz, pushing an all-out drive to recruit U.S. farm workers, was equally adamant in his argument that Americans would do the work if they are paid enough.

Although Wirtz authorized some foreign workers in emergency situations this year, he generally held fast against pressure to reopen the gates wide to foreign laborers.

TEXAS, WHICH USED MORE THAN 15,000 BRACEROS AT THE PEAK OF THE COTTON SEASON LAST YEAR, USED NONE THIS YEAR.

Michigan growers, whose big cucumber crop provides most of the nation's pickles, voiced warnings they would lose most of their crops.

Wirtz dispatched some hastily organized "A-teams" — high school youths with adult supervisors — but the Michigan growers turned them down, finding local labor to do the job.

California tomato growers sharply reduced plantings at the prospect of crop losses.

But, the Labor Department said, the cutback was made liberally to prevent an oversupply and bid up prices.

California's processing tomato crop in 1965 had a value of almost $11 million more than the 1964 crop although 27,000 fewer acres were planted," a Labor Department report said.

Although labor costs went up from $9 to $15 a ton for tomatoes, retail prices increased no more than a penny a can, it said.

A September price check showed retail prices down for grapes, apples, oranges, potatoes, celery and peppers compared with last year. There were increases for strawberries, onions, asparagus and cucumbers, the Labor Department said.

WIRTZ BLAMED

The Council of California Growers, reporting multimillion-dollar losses in tomatoes, blamed Wirtz even though he finally authorized bringing in some 18,000 Mexicans.

"If they had arrived three weeks earlier there would have been fewer if any losses," said Leslie V. Hubbard, a council spokesman.

But the Labor Department said any delay in the arrival of the Mexicans was due to the time it took the growers to work out a deal with the Mexican government.

While trouble spots remain, particularly in Florida sugar cane, Wirtz believes he has proved his point that American crops can be harvested largely by American workers at decent wages.

EYE ELIMINATION

The Labor Department has made clear it will try to eliminate the use of foreign labor altogether if it can.

While Wirtz has borne the brunt of the attack from farm interests, Congress started it all last Dec. 31 by allowing the Mexican labor import law to expire after 14 years.

All foreign workers now must enter the nation under the Immigration Act, and only after Wirtz declares they are needed and will not hurt the wages or working conditions of Americans.

While Wirtz appears to have won the battle, farm interests still are fighting a rearguard action.

TO HOLD TALKS

Wirtz recently announced he would meet every month with some of the nation's biggest farm employers to discuss their labor problems.

In perhaps the understatement of the year, Wirtz said: "Our experience this year in the rapidly changing farm labor situation has shown a need for better communication between the nation's farm employers and the Department of Labor."

Runaway Is Safe in Bangkok

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A news dispatch from the United States and a newsman's memoir reunited a worried American and her runaway 16-year-old daughter in Bangkok today.

The girl, Mary Wilson, had slipped away from the Encino, Calif., home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. George Wilson, on Nov. 19. They believed she had gone to Bangkok to work for an orphanage.

Mrs. Wilson arrived in Bangkok early today to try to pick up her daughter's trail. Meanwhile Alan Darby, a newsman at the English-language Bangkok Post read an Associated Press dispatch about the girl's disappearance and recalled a recent article about the Peira Foundation, a Bangkok orphanage.

Darby called the orphanage and learned that Mary had been working there for a week. He called the U.S. Embassy, by chance found Mrs. Wilson there and told the embassy where Mary was.

"I'm so thankful that she's safe and sound," said Mrs. Wilson after the reunion with her daughter. "She's a do-gooder and rather religious girl."

State Unit Also Hits Draft Status Switch for Viet Protesters

EAST LANSING (AP) — The Democratic State Central Committee yesterday urged passage of a fiscal reform program by the 1966 legislature.

The committee, meeting at Michigan State University, also objected to "the arbitrary use by local draft boards of draft status reclassification as a means of punishment and control" of anti-Viet Nam policy demonstrators.

The committee's resolution on fiscal reform follows failure of a tax revamping plan in the 1965 legislature.

In September, the Democratic-dominated House voted 55-47 against putting a bipartisan tax reform plan on the fall legislative agenda.

In that vote, 13 of the 73 Democrats joined 34 of 37 Republican representatives in voting to place the item on the agenda. Eight House members did not vote.

VOTE UNANIMOUS

The committee unanimously adopted a resolution on draft policy and free speech.

Gerard Weinberg, University of Michigan professor of history, and chairman of the party's resolutions and platform committee, said the resolution was not intended as a comment on U.S. Viet Nam policy or on acts of demonstrators.

"We just feel that the mere discussion of changing a student's draft status because of his actions is a subtle form of control," Weinberg said. "We're not talking about the merits of any particular case."

"If demonstrators break the law," the resolution said, "they should be prosecuted under the law; but the draft status of the student demonstrators should not be used as an instrument of thought control."

'FREE TO ARGUE'

Neil Staebler, a Democratic national committeeman, said, "People should be free to argue. We don't want to force them by any punishment to change their minds."

The resolution was adopted after a lively debate in which one participant argued that "if you pass this resolution, it will be a disgrace to the party."

The resolution was presented to the platform committee by Mrs. Susan Brody of Royal Oak.

The fiscal reform resolution was based on a September statement by the Democratic Advisory Council which criticized Republican Gov. George Romney for what it called his "failure to deal fairly, equitably and humanely with the needs of those in the lower income group and consumers."

LONDON (UPI) — Britain decided today to send Royal Air Force units to Zambia to patrol the frontier with Rhodesia, well-informed sources reported.

The move followed an urgent request from President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia for a British defense force to bolster his own army and protect the key Kariba hydro-electric dam on the Zambia-Rhodesia border.

U.S. May Hike Ground Total to 300,000 Men

We Have Stopped Losing War, Says Defense Secretary

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara ended his visit to Viet Nam today by declaring that the United States would throw in as many fighting men as needed to wage the war against the Communists.

McNamara declined to speculate on the total U.S. forces that will be required but his comments heightened speculation that he will advise President Johnson to increase American ground forces in Viet Nam from 165,000 to 300,000 men and step up air attacks on the North Vietnamese jungle supply routes.

These were believed to be the minimum requests of U.S. military commanders during their talks with McNamara during his whirlwind visit.

McNamara told newsmen at the airport after his fact-finding tour that his most dramatic impression is that "We have stopped losing the war."

He added, however, that the increased ferocity of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese attacks in recent weeks indicated "a clear decision by Hanoi to escalate infiltration and raise the level of the conflict."

'MOST COUNTER ACTS'
He said these acts must be countered, adding: "The South Vietnamese government will further increase its military strength."

On the eve of McNamara's arrival, four Viet Cong battalions north of North Vietnamese support troops handed the South Vietnamese one of their worst setbacks of the war.

In an attack on troops holding an abandoned rubber plantation 45 miles northwest of Saigon, the Communists knocked out an entire government regiment as an effective fighting force. American advisers also perished.

It was feared the casualties, when finally totaled, might be the highest of the war to date.

QUICK TRIP

Before heading back to Washington, McNamara made a quick trip to U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airborne, Division headquarters, in the central highlands 260 miles north of Saigon. He met some of the men who fought the Communists in the bitter La Drang Valley battle two weeks

Power Unit Change May Delay Gemini 7

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Experts replace today a power unit in the Gemini 7 spacecraft guidance system, hoping the move will not delay Saturday's scheduled launching.

Testing of the new unit could cause postponement for a day or two. A decision was expected later today after initial tests.

Astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. will ride Gemini 7 into space for a 14-day endurance flight.

Nine days later, Gemini 6 astronauts Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Thomas P. Stafford will take off in pursuit in an attempt to rendezvous within a few feet of Gemini 7.

The trouble cropped up Saturday during a daylong flight rehearsal when a surge of unexplained electrical current appeared in the Gemini 7 spacecraft computer, preventing it from receiving accurate commands.

Technicians spent yesterday trying to isolate the source of the current, called a "voltage spike."

AUXILIARY UNIT
They traced it to an auxiliary power unit associated with the inertial guidance system in the spacecraft.

A space agency spokesman noted that similar trouble occurred a few days before the Gemini 5 launching in August. The unit was replaced without delaying the firing.

The prosecutor's office and Pontiac Police began the investigation last Monday afternoon after learning that two children and a mother of two had died after being injected with ether.

ETHER IN BOTTLE

The ether was in a bottle marked with the name of another anesthetic, Surital.

On Wednesday, an investigator revealed to The Pontiac Press that Dr. Stanley Abrams, 42, of 7127 Brookridge, West Bloomfield Township, had told him that he had drained the ether from an anesthetic machine into a bottle "but doesn't remember what kind of bottle he used or if he disposed of it."

No official statement has been made by the prosecutor's office or the hospital as to who was responsible.

Harry H. Whitlow, hospital administrator, did disclose that the doctor had drained the contents of the machine into a bottle, but has not revealed the name.

The victims of the mix-up were Kimberly Ann Brunel, 8, 2599 Ivanhoe, West Bloomfield Township; William M. Ketchum, 12, of 250 W. Webster, Ferndale; and Mrs. Gerald Covington, 28, Roland.

Slightly warmer temperatures are promised for Wednesday.

The lowest thermometer reading in downtown Pontiac prior to 8 a.m. was 28. By 1 p.m. the mercury inched to a brisk 31.

2 Yanks Freed by Viet Cong

Captured in 1963; Now in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia

(UPI) — Two American servicemen captured by the Viet Cong two years ago were released as promised by the Communists and are in Cambodia, the government announced today.

A communiqué said the two were being allowed to travel through the country, which does not maintain diplomatic relations with the United States, as "a humanitarian gesture."

The freed war prisoners were identified as Sgt. George Smith of Chester, W. Va., and Spec. 4 Claude McClure of Chattanooga, Tenn., both attached to the U. S. Army Special Forces.

They were captured Nov. 24, 1963, when Communist troops overran the Hiep Hoa Special Forces outpost southwest of Saigon. A Viet Cong radio broadcast last Saturday announced they were being freed in honor of the current antiwar demonstrations in the United States.

The Cambodian government statement said Smith and McClure turned up on the border last night and asked authorities for permission to cross Cambodia en route to the United States. No other details were given immediately.

A 19-year-old Lake Orion youth died Saturday afternoon after his car collided with two heavy trucks at an intersection in Avon Township.

The victim, Russell S. Smith of 606 N. Axford, was pronounced dead from internal injuries at St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital just after 3:30 p.m.

Oakland County Sheriff's deputies said one truck driver, Stuart E. Terry of 3863 Avalon, Avon Township, reported Smith's car ran a stop sign, colliding with the other truck and driving it into Terry's.

602 Killed on U.S. Roads During Holiday Weekend

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation's Thanksgiving weekend traffic toll reached 602 today, the highest death tally for the period in eight years of record-keeping.

Until this year, the highest count was 554 in 1964. With some states still to verify final figures, it appeared this year's record for the 102-hour period which ended at midnight, local time, might go higher.

Forty traffic deaths were reported in New York State, 39 in California and 36 in Texas. Ohio counted 25 deaths. Michigan had 25 fatalities.

recorded for the four-day Thanksgiving weekend period since 1958.

The Associated Press tally started at 6 p.m. Wednesday. Although most of the traffic deaths were single fatalities, scattered multiple-death accidents helped boost the final count.

A collision yesterday resulted in the death of three members of a Norman, Okla., family and a teen-age girl riding in their auto as they drove to church. Three persons were seriously injured in the mishap.

A collision Saturday near Radcliff, Ky., killed two brothers and their sister on their way to the funeral of a relative.

Three persons lost their lives Thanksgiving night near Punta Gorda, Fla., in a head-on collision. The same day near Dayton, Tex., five persons were killed in a crash.

Snow made driving conditions hazardous in some parts of the nation over the weekend.

Traffic fatalities over a four-day Thanksgiving weekend have ranged from a low of 442 in 1960 to this year's new high.

Today's Toys Are 'Living End'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of toy and gift suggestions available to Pontiac area shoppers.)

BY JEANNE NELSON

Toys no longer require an imaginative mind to bring them to life. They are alive. Or so it would seem judging from the way their selection.

They walk, talk, sing, cry and make miraculous changes.

Pull a string and a talking lion roars and claims he scares himself.

In the doll line is Chatty Cathie (Do you remember her from last year?). She used to talk a mile a minute. Currently she's singing.

Baby First Step, all dressed up in her Sunday-best organ dress with bows in her hair, walks and walks and walks. In fact she doesn't stop until lay her down.

Then there's Baby Boo, who cries until some fond little mother picks her up.

She can become rather a nuisance for she cries when she's cold and simply won't stop unless someone makes her comfortable.

The 007 and 009 toys are geared to some pretty fast action. Take for example, the Super Helme. This comes equipped with front and rear brilliant reflectors, protective goggles, adjustable ear flaps and a safety warning buzzer.

A-GO-GO DOLLY
The A-Go-Go Dolly is a four-footer, complete with rollers in her hair, sunglasses, and a Mod dress.

If you're not bothered by noise, you can Okay the request to Santa for the Kookie

Kombo. This one-man show resembles the late Spike Jones.

Last but not least is the handy little toy called the Pretzel-Jetzel.

Relax and let junior fix the meals from now on. All you'll get is a diet of instant-mix pretzels but it keeps the kids happy and busy.

LBJ Eyes Action on Interest Rate Profit

By JACK BELL
JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson hopes to bring pressure to bear against what he believes are unwise profits being run up by the nation's lenders from overly high interest rates.

If he has found no way to curb the money changers in his temple of economic stability, the President is ready to give them a hard time about the mounting interest rates they are charging the government when it is forced, as it is continually, to borrow more and more money.

His first move in the direction of easing money could come in the naming of a new member to replace C. Canby Balderston, expected to retire about Jan. 1 from the Federal Reserve Board of Governors.

However, William McChesney Martin, the Federal Reserve Board chairman whom critics have blamed for high interest rates, still has more than four years to go on his present 14-year term. A proposal by the late President John F. Kennedy to make the chairman's term coincide with a presidential term went nowhere in Congress, and the Johnson administration has no plans to revive it.

The board is maintaining a 4 per cent discount rate at this point which tends to boost interest charged by banks and other lending institutions.

The White House has figured out that the cost of short-term borrowing by the Treasury has gone up 72 per cent since 1961. In that year the Treasury was renting money for an average of 2.378 per cent interest; this month, the rate has been 4.097 per cent.

Long-term Treasury bonds cost the government about 12 per cent more than in 1961, because of an increase in the average interest rate from 3.90 per cent to 4.35 per cent.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, in a speech at New Orleans Sunday night, said any further increase in interest rates as a brake against possible inflation growing out of the long economic boom would be "premature and unwise."

May Up Viet Force

The Communists captured another American yesterday, the pilot of a Navy F4C Crusader shot down over North Vietnam about 15 miles north of Thanh Hoa on an armed reconnaissance mission.

The pilot ejected and was seen landing in an open field near a small village.

Search and rescue aircraft failed to find him, and he was presumed to have been captured. Another Crusader was shot down in the same area earlier yesterday. But the pilot was rescued.

An Air Force F4C went down near Pleiku, in South Vietnam's central highlands, apparently because of Viet Cong gunners. The two crewmen ejected and were picked up.

DESPERATE FIGHT

In the desperate fighting for the French-owned Michelin rubber plantation, a four-battalion force of 1,200 to 2,000 Communists overwhelmed 1,200 government troops.

The Reds split the 7th Regiment in two with a withering barrage. The Vietnamese regimental commander died early in the battle.

Survivors said the Communists machine-gunned government troops who scrambled out of foxholes with their hands in the air in response to a loudspeaker appeal to surrender.

The Communist attack came at dawn. The regiment was dug in around a road inside the plantation which had been abandoned by its French owners last month.

Soapy Hedges on 1966 Race

DETROIT (AP) — Former Democratic Gov. George Williams hedged a little Sunday on the chance of his running for governor in 1966.

But while declaring this "highly unlikely," he added "It's not necessary for me to give an flat yes or no to that possibility."

Williams repeated to interviewers he would run for the U.S. Senate next year if Sen. Patrick V. McNamara retires. He said, however, he would do nothing to put "pressure" on McNamara.

"As long as Pat McNamara is in the race, I'm for him," Williams said.

Williams said the same at an appearance in Battle Creek Saturday night.

The former governor, who is assistant secretary for African affairs, said at Battle Creek that Red China and Soviet Russia have accomplished little in trying to win favor among African nations.

LBJ IN BACKGROUND

As he did in the controversy over aluminum and copper prices, Johnson is staying in the background of the campaign to ease the increased borrowing costs which Budget Bureau experts say will add about $400 million this year to the January estimate of $116 billion interest charges on the national debt.

This is one of several reasons given by White House officials to explain why the new budget Johnson will send to Congress Jan. 17 will go over the $100-billion mark — and possibly to $105 billion or more. It is also a factor in the administration's estimate that the deficit for the current year will range from $7 to $8 billion.

The bankers and money managers, who ordinarily expect trouble from a Democratic national administration and bask contentedly when the Republicans are in power, have got about as surprised well with Johnson.

But this relationship may have reached a turning point in the President's displeasure, expressed through subordinates, that the money lenders are doing too well by themselves.

The President took time out Sunday from a weekend spent working on his budget to study documents prepared for a series of meetings with heads of state in mid-December and to make a personal appearance at Dr. Billy Graham's evangelical crusade in the Houston, Tex., Astrodome.

This was Johnson's personal observation of a national day of dedication and prayer for U.S. forces and their allies in South Vietnam.

COMMUNIST FIRE

"The initial Communist fire sounded like a volley of a huge firing squad," a U.S. ranger adviser said.

Sweeping in from three sides, the Communists cut through the regiment, overwhelming the headquarters unit and two center battalions.

Spec. 4 W. M. Wissman of Dayton, Ohio, said he could hear the shouts of the enemy.

The Reds split the 7th Regiment in two with a withering barrage. The Vietnamese regimental commander died early in the battle.

Survivors said the Communists machine-gunned government troops who scrambled out of foxholes with their hands in the air in response to a loudspeaker appeal to surrender.

The Communist attack came at dawn. The regiment was dug in around a road inside the plantation which had been abandoned by its French owners last month.

CATHY'S A CANDIDATE — Brunette, blue-eyed Cathy Lessard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lessard, 6431 Have-lock, Clarkston, was named Clarkston Junior Miss in the Jaycee Junior Miss Pageant Saturday night. The 17-year-old winner will go on to compete in the Michigan Junior Miss Pageant Jan. 29 and 30 at Pontiac Northern High School. She competed against 22 other contestants Saturday night.

Farmington, Clarkston

2 Areas Pick Junior Miss

A blonde and a brunette were picked in separate Jaycee Junior Miss Pageants Saturday night to represent their respective communities in the state Junior Miss Contest Jan. 29 and 30 at Pontiac Northern High School.

Chosen to represent Farmington was 17-year-old Bonnie Britton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Britton, 34234 Northwick, Farmington Township.

The Clarkston Jaycees picked Cathy Lessard, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lessard, of 6431 Have-lock, Clarkston.

A senior at North Farmington High School, Bonnie plans to attend the University of Michigan. The 5-foot-3 blonde is a member of the Farmington Players and has had the lead in several high school plays.

She sang and danced her way to victory Saturday night with a rendition of "Wouldn't It Be Lovely" from "My Fair Lady."

EXCHANGE STUDENT

Bonnie, who speaks both French and Portuguese, was an exchange student to Brazil this summer.

Runner-up in the Farmington contest was Sheila Stegauer, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stegauer, 34130 Courtland, Farmington.

Machines Moving In

State's Fruit Harvest 'Shaky'

EAST LANSING — Machines are beginning to shake up the harvesting of fruit in Michigan.

More exactly, the machines shake up the trees or vines and the fruit falls into nets or cushions especially designed to minimize bruising.

Prof. Everett D. Markwardt of Cornell University in New York State estimates a cherry-picking machine with a four-man crew can do the job of about 35 hand pickers.

He says an apple-picking machine can do the job of at least 15 men.

Another Cornell professor, E. Stanley Shephardson, says a grape-picking machine can do the job of 25 men.

EXPERIMENTS

Michigan agriculturists have been experimenting with cherry-picking machines since 1959.

Carl Hall, chairman of Michigan State University's Agricultural Engineering Department, says about 10 per cent of the 1965 cherry crop was harvested by machines and the figure probably will be 20 per cent next year.

About 100 of the machines were in the field this year, Hall said.

Agriculturists report a great deal of interest in harvesting machines, especially because of problems this year in finding farm hands for the fruit harvest.

The Michigan Farm Bureau has estimated grower losses of about $2 million resulted primarily from apples left un-

She is a senior at Our Lady of Sorrows High School. Cathy, the brunette blue-eyed Clarkston winner, is a senior at Clarkston High School. She plans to attend Michigan State University and major in political science.

In the talent portion of Saturday night's contest, Cathy sang "I'm In Love With A Wonderful Guy" from "South Pacific."

RUNNER-UP

Runner-up in the Clarkston contest was Sue Peters, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Peters, 6396 Church, Clarkston. She is a senior at Clarkston High School.

Judging the Clarkston contest were Julie O'Brien, a secretary at Pontiac Motor Division; W. Cadman Prout, Oakland County Friend of the Court; and Daniel Murphy, chairman of the Oakland County Board of Auditors.

Farmington judges were John Diman, Farmington city manager; Harvey Goldberg of Harvey's Suburban Casuals; and Mrs. Evelyn Kreson of the Kreson Dance Studios.

The girls were judged on scholastic achievement, mental alertness, creative and performing arts and youth fitness.

In the state contest, Chevrolet Motor Division will make awards totaling $3,000 to the top five contestants.

Back School Merger for 2 Area Districts

In a complete turnaround, the Schools Board of Education, in has been recommended that the Dublin School District merge with Waterford Township Schools instead of Walled Lake.

The suggestion came at a recent meeting of the Oakland County School District Reorganization Committee, with seven of eight members present favoring the proposal.

Mrs. Georgia Larson, a member of the Novi Board of Education, cast the lone dissenting vote.

Formal action on the proposed Dublin-Waterford Township Schools merger will be taken Dec. 9 by the reorganization committee.

Previously, the committee had recommended the Dublin School District by the Walled Lake district, where Dublin's high school students presently attend classes on a tuition basis.

Both school boards gave their consent to the merger.

However, the reorganization committee decided there would be less financial impact on Waterford Township than on Walled Lake in event of merger with Dublin.

Oakland School officials point out that the Walled Lake district's tax base would drop from the present $10,526 per pupil to $9,784 with a merger, while Waterford Township's figure would be lowered from $7,526 to $7,350.

The Dublin district, with a total state equalized property valuation of $5 million, has a $4,781 tax base behind each of its students, Oakland School officials noted.

Herbert Sillman of Oak Park, a member of the Oakland

Schools Board of Education, introduced the proposal for a blaze that damaged the White Lake Inn, 3955 Jackson, early yesterday.

Although a quorum was not realized at the meeting (only eight of the 18 members were present), the group acted as a committee of the whole.

Raymond Hoffman, a member of the Dublin Board of Education, was one of the seven who voted in favor of the proposed Dublin-Waterford Township merger.

Seven residents of a small portion of White Lake Township, west of Williams Lake Road, attended the meeting, protesting the proposed Dublin-Walled Lake merger.

SMALL SECTION

Children of the small section presently attend Waterford Township Schools. However, it was hinted that if Walled Lake annexed the Dublin district, this section would be included in the "package."

The parents brought a petition with 65 signatures in opposition to the Walled Lake Dublin movement.

A public hearing will be conducted Dec. 22 by the reorganization committee on a total plan involving Dublin, Novi and North Oxford, with a final meeting to endorse the plan set for Dec. 30.

White Lake Inn Is Hit by Blaze

WHITE LAKE TOWNSHIP — Defective wiring was blamed by the firemen for a blaze that damaged the White Lake Inn, 3955 Jackson, early yesterday.

He fired started about 5:30 a.m. in the kitchen and was confined mostly to that area, although the three-story frame building did suffer extensive smoke and water damage, according to firemen.

The White Lake Township fire department was assisted by units from Commerce, and Milford townships and Union Lake.

Firemen said they were hampered by the lack of water even though the inn is on the shore of White Lake. The lake level is so low and mucky that it was impossible to take advantage of the water without plugging hose valves.

The American National Red Cross had an income last year of more than $101.8 million. Expenditures exceeded $7.6 million.

Chinese Papers Describe United States Imperialists

You should be interested in what Chinese newspapers are saying about us in Viet Nam.

Here's an excerpt from China Reconstructs (Peking):

"The people of the world deeply hate the U.S. imperialists for their dirty war in South Viet Nam. They cheer jubilantly as the heroic South Vietnamese continue to defeat the invaders. The Johnson administration is bringing in large reinforcements and bombing the sacred territory of Viet Nam. This has only stirred up greater anger in the Vietnamese people, the Chinese and the peoples of the world.

"When the world is strongly condemning U.S. imperialist aggression, letters from South Viet Nam are translated and 4,000,000 copies were reprinted in China. Writers and radio stations tell heroic stories. They bring tears of sorrow and indignation. What tortures our brothers and sisters are enduring! The aggressors will not escape their shame and defeat!

"The U. S. imperialists have committed indescribable crimes. Listen to a father's letter: 'My son, for eight years no day has passed without blood being shed in our homeland on the very soil where you were born. In Binh Hung the enemies have cut out the livers of hundreds of our own people, gouged out their eyes... even put our people into jars, pouring boiling water over them and eating their flesh. From peasants already half dead from starvation they tried to squeeze more. Women were stripped and thrown naked into the men's section.' One woman wrote: 'The scheme was to use us women to break the spirit of our brothers.... They tried to compel our men to violate us, but our men resisted.' 'Many were killed on the spot.

"Blood drips from these accusations. And, wallowing in that blood, is U.S. imperialism the most vicious enemy of the people of the world. A peasant from Ca Mau and his young wife were seized and given the crucifixion of Maria—tied to a wooden cross and raped. Then they cut her open, tore out her liver, cooked it and ate it!

"Some U.S. imperialists say that they are in the wrong war at the wrong time. Yet they bare their fangs and unheath their claws, roar and shout, and try to scare and beat back the people. But the Vietnamese continue to punch holes in the faces of the U.S. paper tiger."

One of two things is palpably obvious. Either the Chinese are telling the truth — or we are. Their people believe what they're told.

It's that simple. YOU decide.

First of All....

One of our severest critics, General CHARLES DE GAULLE, just clasped hands with the Russians and "demanded" the termination of hostilities in Viet Nam. Shooting should end with "no more outside interference in the internal affairs of both Red North and South Viet Nam."

Big deal! Red China would scoop up the pieces and probably the balance of Southeast Asia.

Gen. DE GAULLE knows this. But he doesn't care.

It's time the United States started nudging this French poobah into paying us the billions his country has owed us for two decades. And when he ever makes good on France's dismal and past due debts to us, he should be courteously invited to mind his own business.

Letter Home....

Read this letter home from Army Pfc. DOMINIC DE ANGELIS, 19 years old:

"Those creepy draft-card burners back in the States who are protesting about Viet Nam ought to be shot on sight. It's a real disgrace what they are doing and the United States ought to be ashamed of it."

Shortly after he wrote, DOMINIC was killed in action.

He gave his life—at 19. What have the beatniks given? The ten cent creeps should crawl in a deep hole and beg God for mercy.

And in Conclusion....

Jottings from the well-thumbed notebook of your peripatetic reporter:

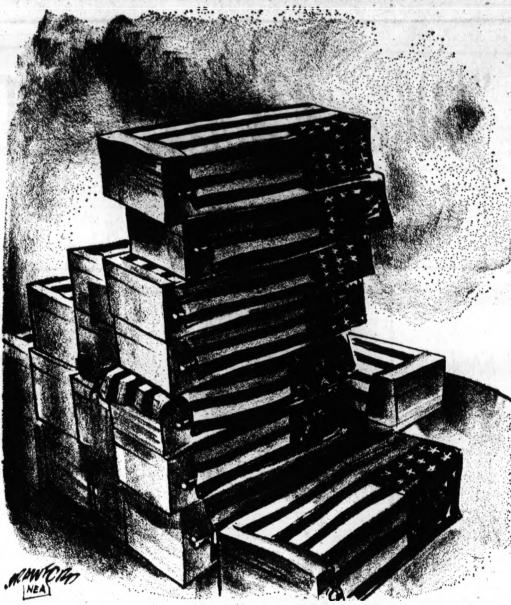

Belgium is elated over DE GAULLE's hostility towards the U.S. Several big American industries have placed European expansions in Belgium instead of France. The first ten TV shows currently: "Bonanza" ANDY GRIFFITH, GOMER PYLE, The Lucy Show, "Father's Daughter," RED SKELTON, DICK VAN DYKE, "Beverly Hill Billies," WALT DISNEY and "Bewitched." Ed SULLIVAN is 28th, JACKIE GLEASON 29th, DEAN MARTIN 61st, and STEVE LAWRENCE 94th.

Purely personal nomination for a synthetic "local girl" who's especially attractive: ELAINE STRITCH. Very active in the theater and on TV Saturday nights, she has a sister in Birmingham. Teen-ager at Drive-in: "Don't look so scared. The 16 hamburgers aren't all for me. I have three pals outside." Overheard: Vice President Humphrey believes in the two party system; the Democratic Party and the Boston Tea Party."

According to JACK NICKLAUS, DICK MARSHALL, Indianapolis, is the longest hitter in golf today. Help! Hong Kong kids are working into long hair, drainpipe trousers and beatnik shoes. A new supermarket in France sends busses for the customers and takes them home. Saves parking area. Dept. of Cheers and Jeers: The C's—the Michigan State football team; the J's—that Gotham fashion publication that was sharply critical of Princess MARGARET's clothes over here. The U.S. leads the globe in many things but often qualifies for the world's worst manners.

David Lawrence Says:

Overcaution Prolongs Viet War

WASHINGTON — Wishful thinking — a policy of drifting on the brink of disaster and yet hoping that somehow fateful decisions can be avoided — is what's blocking the road to victory in Viet Nam.

LAWRENCE

The United States today is prolonging the war in Viet Nam by supercaution and indecisiveness — a hesitancy to bomb military targets wherever they may be, and a reluctance to adopt the severe measures that alone can win a war.

The United States isn't, of course, using maximum power. It is applying diplomacy's tactics of backing and filling. This is utterly at variance with the military rule that in a war the goal is victory.

Over the weekend, Lt. Gen. Joseph H. Moore, commander of the U.S. Second Air Division in Viet Nam, was quoted as saying: "Our targets come straight out of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. What they tell us to hit, we hit."

MILITARY TARGETS

"We've been striking strictly military targets and if we expand the air war in North Viet Nam, we would hit military targets we have not hit yet. I do not mean industrial targets. I would imagine they would continue to be strictly military targets."

"This is not an all-out military action here. It's designed to convince North Viet Nam that it's not in its best interests to continue supporting the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam."

"I assume any military commander considers himself tied down too much if he does not have complete freedom of military action."

"However, this is not an all-out application of military power and all our operations are being directed from Washington. They are based upon political decisions being made there."

UNDERSTAND CURBS

"I understand fully the requirements for us to exercise restraint and be discriminate in our military actions because we are agents of an important part of our nation's foreign policy."

The foregoing is the frank expression of a conscientious general in the field. But is the policy at home right?

Is it the purpose of war to win, or to wobble like a diplomatic dialogue does?

Will not more Americans be killed because of intermittent attacks over a long period of time than would be the case if the war against the enemy were concentrated and fought with maximum power in the air, on the ground and at sea? 'STATE OF WAR'

What is logical today is a legal declaration of "a state of war," and an embargo on trade with all countries assisting the North Vietnamese.

NEW YORK — Looking for Christmas gift books?

"Robert Kennedy at 40," by

Nick Thimmesch and William Johnson, two fine newsmen, is a clinical study of an explosively individualistic man whose hand was in most of the progress of his CONSIDINE brother's administration but who still looks like a boy and still answers to "Bobby" as he enters middle life.

The book, published by W. W. Norton & Co., contains the deepest account yet of the relations between RFK and LBJ.

The show down that side-tracked his vice presidential ambitions reads like something out of High Noon.

The authors chart a kind of course for their subject: "As Americans consider Bobby Kennedy for the presidency now, many will have a feeling of ambivalence, of uncertainty."

MANY TRAITS

"They will see many of the traits they demand of a president and many they could not allow."

"They do not want a weakling, and Bobby is not one, neither do they want a man who shoves people around, and Bobby has done that."

"They want a leader, and Bobby is. But they do not want a man who takes his followers for granted, and Bobby has done that, too."

"They want a man who understands the anatomy of crisis and can make decisions without personal involvement. Bobby can do that. But they do not want a man who is impetuous and easily angered. And Bobby has been that, too."

Sukarno may not be your dish of tea, but that doesn't deny our bookshelves to him.

After all, Karl Marx's Das Kapital and Adolf Hitler's turgid Mein Kampf still are read by those who prefer to have the man himself preside over his erratic dreams.

Voice of the People:

Not Absolved From Guilt by Humanitarian Concern

Representatives of the American Friends Service Committee recently returned from an extended visit through South Viet Nam report that the villagers of Viet Nam suffer and die unaware of being liberated by anyone. Their voiceless agony has extended for the past 25 years through three wars, and they feel no promise in the outcome of this war for a better future.

There are now more than 600,000 uprooted persons in South Viet Nam who have fled their homes to escape violence from both sides and each day the war continues the unknown numbers of victims of United States bombing in the North increases.

The American Friends Service Committee feels that human need has no frontiers, and together with other public and private agencies is now appealing for funds to relieve the suffering of these war victims in North and South Viet Nam. Such humanitarian concern, commendable as it is, does not absolve Americans from the guilt of contributing to and encouraging an economy based on war expenditures.

Economic Discipline

The New York Times

Along with some disturbingly authoritarian tendencies in Brazil, President Castelo Branco is going ahead with his program of economic austerity. His revolutionary regime has devalued the Brazilian cruzeiro by almost 19 per cent as the first stage in a comprehensive monetary reform that provides for introduction of a new "strong" cruzeiro in January.

The devaluation has been accompanied by tax incentives to companies that pursue anti-inflationary pricing policies and by other steps to encourage foreign investment.

This continued belt-tightening is and has been all along the most promising feature of the Brazilian revolution. The effort to stem inflation and promote a sounder base from which to grow has been a slow and painful process for all classes in Brazil.

But improvements are now evident. Mr. Castelo Branco and his technical aides predict that the rate of inflation will be down to 10 to 15 per cent next year.

compared to about 50 per cent this year and a rate of almost 100 per cent when they took power.

Brazil's Government is counting heavily on foreign support in combating the inflation which had hitherto been the great deterrent to investment.

But there is rising hope that the economic discipline being rigorously applied will provide a workable solution for Brazil's problems and enable the government to relax its present tough political stance, reversing the increasing non-democratic tendencies of the Castelo Branco regime.

Beguiling Titles

The Grand Rapids Press

Since most people seem intent on upgrading their jobs and lifting their social standing a notch or two, it is not surprising that garbage collectors aspire to be known by some less undignified title. In England they now are calling themselves refuse disposal officers or refuse collectors.

Both terms are misleading because they suggest that something other than garbage is being collected.

A private firm that collects garbage in Hartford, Conn., has its own title for its employees and has been carrying on a newspaper campaign in the East to get it generally accepted. It refers to its men as "your friendly garbologists." And what's more, says one of the firm's co-owners, "they are certified garbologists."

Who certified them and what is required to qualify as one are unexplained. But these are unimportant points. If a rose by any other name would smell as sweet, would the reverse be true of a garbage truck?

That's the real question, and all these inventors of beguiling new titles keep evading it.

Contraception Policy, Sterilization Viewed

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A proposal to seek more liberal laws on abortion, contraception and sterilization was being considered today by the American Medical Association (AMA).

A report on the proposal was submitted yesterday to the AMA's House of Delegates, its 236-member policy-making body, when AMA opened its four-day 19th annual clinical convention here.

The report recommended amendments to state laws "so as to reflect medical conscience and public opinion." It noted that "disparities exist between state laws and indicated medical practices regarding contraception, abortion, and sterilization."

Under the proposal, a doctor would be permitted to perform an abortion if the pregnancy would gravely impair the physical or mental health of the mother, if there was substantial risk the child would be born with a grave physical or mental defect or if the pregnancy resulted from incest or rape.

Abortions would be performed only in licensed hospitals and only after two physicians other than the one performing the operation certified in writing that it was justified.

STERILIZATION

The report asked the AMA to support legislation to permit sterilization of any adult who requested it but the physician would have to act in collaboration or consultation with at least one other physician.

If married, the patient would be required to get his or her spouse to co-sign the written request. The doctor would be required to give the patient and the spouse an explanation of the meaning and consequences of sterilization.

Proposed legislation on contraceptives would permit doctors to give contraceptive information to any patient who requested it.

The report was drawn up by the committee on human reproduction. The house, which must approve all proposals before they become official AMA policy, was expected to vote on the report Wednesday.

Tug, Icebreaker Free Freighter in Joint Effort

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (AP) — The British freighter Ramon de Larrinaga, off St. Joseph Island 35 miles southeast of here in a storm Friday night, was freed about noon Sunday.

The 443-foot vessel drifted out of the shipping channel at the lower end of the St. Marys River after a steering gear failure and went aground on a sandbank.

It was freed by the U.S. Coast Guard icebreaker Mackinac and the tug John Purvis from Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

The de Larrinaga was carrying grain from the lakehead to Sarnia, Ont. Cmdr. J. J. Brunk of the Coast Guard at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., said the vessel was never in any serious danger.

Briton's Moscow Talks Seen as Futile

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart arrives in Moscow this week on what diplomatic observers already are dismissing as an exercise in futility.

The Russians consider British foreign policy so closely aligned with the United States that they openly are saying that if there is anything to talk about, why not take it up with the principal.

And relations with Washington, according to no less an authority than Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, recently have tended to freeze.

Stewart's visit was arranged last spring in exchange for Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's trip to London.

It also was agreed in principle that Kosygin would visit Britain. That's been canceled for the foreseeable future, with Kosygin having said blandly that he doesn't believe in "mere tourism."

Accordingly, a cool reception awaits Stewart, similar to that of the five American senators led by Mike Mansfield earlier in the month.

If Stewart tries to introduce any new initiatives in East-West relations, he is not likely to succeed.

Viet Nam and the project for sharing nuclear weapons with Germany have cast a heavy pall over the East-West climate and, according to diplomatic observers, all Stewart can achieve is to keep the channels of communications open.

Indonesian Moves: The Malaysian government in Kuala Lumpur has intelligence reports that Indonesia soon will step up its attacks on Malaysia despite continuing unsettled conditions at home.

The Malaysians regard as accurate the reports which predict renewed landings on the Malay peninsula and more infiltration by armed bands in Malaysia.

The Favorite: President Charles de Gaulle still is the favorite in the Dec. 5 French presidential race.

The latest straw polls give him 12 million votes to 11 million for the five opposition candidates combined.

However, both leftist Francois Mitterrand and Catholic Jean Lecanuet are thought to have made substantial headway and some politicians doubt de Gaulle will get the 50 per cent-plus vote needed for election on the first go-round.

In that case there is serious risk of his quitting rather than facing a runoff.

Johnson Visit: There is quiet talk in Paris again of a European visit by President Johnson in the spring, during which he would get together with President de Gaulle.

The possibility reportedly was mentioned during U.S. Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield's recent Paris meeting with de Gaulle.

CHURCHILL Commemorative CROWN COIN

By Royal Proclamation a commemorative crown piece (five shillings) has been issued in honor of the late Sir Winston Churchill. The coins are legal currency in the United Kingdom.

The face of the new coin bears the head of H.M. Queen Elizabeth with the royal style and titles and the date, 1965. The reverse, designed by Mr. Oscar Nemon, will bear the image of Sir Winston Churchill and the word "Churchill".

This is the first time the head of a commoner in addition to that of the sovereign will have been placed on a United Kingdom coin of the realm. It is also the first time since at least the twelfth century that the head of a commoner (Cromwell excepted) will have appeared on a United Kingdom coin.

These coins were issued in a limited quantity and are now available at all offices of

Mart-Type Crash Predicted by Veteran Stamp Collector

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Stamp collecting, a favorite hobby, has developed into a "miniature stock market" in West Germany.

That is the description of a Frankfurt expert who warns of an impending "crash" for thousands of investors.

Some stamps have increased in value up to 60,000 per cent within a few years, says Arnold Ebel, a man who has been in the business for 48 years.

Ebel, who recently held a $750,000 stamp auction here, says short-term speculators with considerable stockpiles soon will try to cash their profits, and the market will not be able to stand it.

POSTWAR ISSUE

"Part of the postwar issue is in a very dangerous price bracket," he comments. He predicts that postage stamps issued in the last five years will be first hit in the crash, as speculators have been buying up new issues by the sheet since 1960.

The situation has been aggravated by stamp firms that advertise philately as a worthwhile capital investment and "a hobby that relaxes and brings in big profits," he says.

Ebel says children who take up stamp-collecting are more interested in the profits they can make than in the fascination of the stamps themselves. Trading of stamps is a regular business at schools throughout West Germany.

The children — and probably a good number of adults — are under some illusions as to the real value of stamps, says Ebel.

For dealers are not always interested in increasing their stocks at the market prices, unless the stamps have a particular worth.

Ebel maintains that the predicted crash will hit postwar European issues as well as older stamps that happen to be in fashion.

Stamps from less "fashionable" countries, especially old overseas dominions, are a safer investment in his view.

He estimates that millions of West Germans dabble in the philately business, but only a small percentage are genuine collectors, with specialized knowledge and the necessary finance to support them.

Stamps are always a good investment for people who study the market cautiously, and genuine collectors have nothing to fear from falling prices, Ebel says.

But to people who invest their savings in stamps in preference to normal stocks and shares, Ebel issues a warning:

"There is simply no room for short-term speculation."

Mental Patient Plunges to Death From Hotel

DETROIT (AP) — A woman patient on convalescent leave from mental treatment at Ypsilanti State Hospital was injured fatally in a plunge from her sixth-floor hotel room window Sunday.

Police said Miss Ruth Ensign, 55, apparently jumped from the window of a midtown hotel. She fell to a second story courtyard. She died of injuries in Detroit General Hospital three hours later.

3 Klansmen on Trial Today

Secondary Charges From Luzzo Case

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Federal prosecutors put three Ku Klux Klansmen on trial today on charges resulting from the killing of a white civil rights worker, Viola Gregg Luizzo.

Each of the Klansmen — one of them already acquitted in state court, the others still awaiting trial — could be sentenced to 10 years in prison and fined $5,000 under the indictment based on an old law, mostly in the past to safeguard voting and property rights.

Nowhere in the indictment is there any mention of the slaying of Mrs. Luizzo, a Detroit housewife, which touched off the prosecutions in both federal and state courts.

The Klansmen — Collier Lee Wilkins Jr., 22, of Fairfield, Ala., and Eugene Thomas, 41, of Birmingham, Ala., are charged with conspiring to injure, oppress, threaten and intimidate U.S. citizens during the civil rights march from Selma to Montgomery last spring.

SHOT TO DEATH Mrs. Luizzo, mother of five children and wife of Anthony Luizzo, a Teamsters Union official, was shot to death the night of March 25.

The three Klansmen were indicted on state murder charges in addition to the federal charges. But Wilkins, the only one tried, was acquitted by an all-white jury at nearby Hayneville. The other two are to be tried on the murder indictments next spring.

Although the federal charge against any member of Mrs. Luizzo's name, testimony before the federal jury is expected to center around her death.

Market Is Hesitant, Views Uncertainties

By SAM DAWSON AP Business News Analyst NEW YORK—The stock market has ignored all the golden profit reports and the predictions of a big boom ahead to end up November about the middle of October.

That is, the ups and downs of the popular stock averages have about canceled themselves out. But a number of individual companies and some industries have held the public's faith and staged considerable price gains.

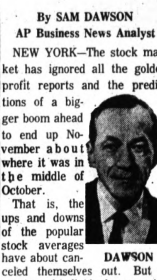

Others apparently are still the unconvinced that the economy is going to expand smartly next year. They see auto sales set-backs that plagued the summer and sure they can get much better. But, as usual, some of them are too sure this won't mean excess.

Example: A big damper on productive facilities. A plant general speculative enthusiasm construction boom in 1966 and had been the buildup of the war 1957 meant a surplus of idle in Viet Nam. Traders charge equipment in the recession of their mind from week to week.

As to whether this might get even though to put a pump in some civilian goods production and payments are running some 11 sales. Yet in one sector of the market, aerospace and aeronautics, the year ahead extras are becoming a reality. But all this is not to be taken as a sign of optimism.

Western Union is not a developing company. It is now developing specialized communications systems for government and industry. But these involve a considerable time lag between installation and earnings. Western Union is a reasonably good long-term holding with moderate growth prospects.

I know of no more dangerous practice than investing with a time limit. This all too frequently involves selling in a declining market, with subsequent good loss of capital. I advise you to leave your money in a savings institution, where the principal will always be intact when you need it.

bothered some industries in the last few weeks. Standard & Poor's compilation of stock prices shows these groups doing better than the market as a whole: makers of television and radio sets, railroads, coal companies, machine tools, electronics, aerospace, electrical equipment, publishing and metal fabricating.

The government's clamp down on price increases in aluminum, copper and high grade wheat also worries some traders. They are trying to figure what this may mean to the boom — and more specifically to the profit prospects of business in general. Investors, like corporate executives, get skittish at signs of government control.

Baldwin Rubber Parent Firm Sued by NY Lawyer

The parent company of the former Baldwin Rubber Division 366 E. South Boulevard, has been taken into federal district court in New York.

According to east coast reports, a stockholder of Baldwin-Montrose Chemical Co. filed suit against the company and its directors.

The suit reportedly challenges Baldwin-Montrose's purchase of Paramount Pictures Corp. stock.

Brought by Harry Lewis, a Brooklyn, N.Y., lawyer, the suit was filed in State Supreme Court for New York County.

It is the second stockholder suit filed against Baldwin-Montrose. Earlier this year, a New York district, owner of 200 Prospect Ave., filed a suit concerned with Baldwin's interest in Paramount.

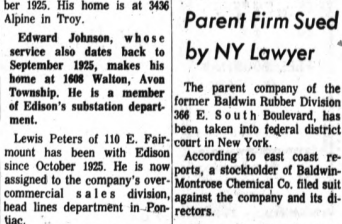

In early 1964, Baldwin-Montrose closed the Baldwin Rubber plant, stating it was running at a deficit.
