3 Arrested, 4 Hurt in PCH Outbreak

By JIM LONG, ED BLUNDEN, JEAN SAILE and KINGSLEY COTTEN

Racial tension sparked outbreaks at Pontiac Central High School this morning, forcing the closing of the school, the arrest of three persons and the treatment of four students for minor injuries.

★ ★ ★

The demonstration began about 8:30 a.m. when approximately 200 black students began milling outside the school on West Huron and State.

The unrest continued until after 11 a.m. when leaders from the black community urged the black students to disperse and meet later at the Hayes Jones Recreation Center to discuss their problems.

Students—black and white —and many of the black leaders and school officials were unable to explain the reason for the demonstration which spilled out onto West Huron, blocking traffic when several fights broke out between blacks and whites in the street.

POLICE AT SCENE

Pontiac police were at the scene shortly after 8 a.m., making no arrests until after the bulk of the students were dismissed from classes shortly before 11 a.m.

Arrested and charged with disorderly conduct were James Northern, 17, of 261 W. Wilson, and Philip Johnson, 19, of 58 Wall. A juvenile also was taken into custody and then released to his parents pending a hearing. Johnson was released after posting bond.

After leaving the school many of the students headed for the downtown district, where police, including those from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, and the Michigan State Police patrolled the streets.

Almost all the stores stayed open. Some store owners stood outside their shops. One jewelry store owner took all his merchandise from the display window.

4 INJURED STUDENTS

The four students taken to Pontiac General Hospital for observation of injuries were Aaron Alspaugh, 17, of 113 Osceola, Robert Williams, 15, of 382 Branch, Bruce Irwin, 16, of 2155 E. Hammond Lake, and Cheryl Harris, 17, of 58 Wall. Alspaugh and Irwin are white.

Garth Errington, principal of Central, said he believed the demonstration may have been touched off by outsiders.

He said about 8:15 a.m. he saw five

School Package to Call for 20-Mill State Levy

By BARBARA CRANHAM

LANSING (UPI) — Gov. William G. Milliken will propose replacing the local property tax with a 20- to 24-mill statewide levy and hiking the income tax by 2 to 3 per cent to finance his educational reform package, a legislative leader says.

★ ★ ★

Milliken will also request a "significant appropriation" for nonpublic schools and a "major" shift in the state's role in education, the official said yesterday.

Democratic Senate leader Sander M. Levin said he received a briefing Wednesday on the package, to be announced next week. David Dykhouse, the governor's legal adviser and one of the main writers of the reform program, outlined the details, Levin said.

"They wouldn't completely wipe out the local property tax, but they would wipe out the voted millage for school operation altogether," the Berkley Democrat said.

ADDITIONAL MILLAGE?

"They still haven't decided if local districts will be allowed to exceed the state property tax and vote in a tax beyond the 20 mills," Levin said.

He said a change in the property tax would require a constitutional amendment which could not be ratified before the 1970 election.

The Senate Education Committee chairman, Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo, has already said legislators will resist any attempt to fund the new school system with a statewide property tax. He is calling for lawmakers to support a 5-6 per cent hike in the income tax to be earmarked for education.

★ ★ ★

Senate Appropriations Chairman Charles O. Zollar warned yesterday that any tax increase to finance an educational reform program will also have to cover an expected $140-million deficit in the state's fiscal 1969-70 budget.

PAROCHIAID DEFINITE

Levin said, "There is no doubt the governor will propose parochiaid in some form. My impression is they haven't decided yet how much, but it's not going to be a nominal sum."

Milliken will recommend that the State Board of Education be abolished, Levin said.

The governor would appoint the state superintendent of education, he said.

★ ★ ★

Milliken also has a "regional plan" for school districts, Levin said, that will consolidate the intermediate districts into 10 or 15 regions with a superintendent for each. The regional superintendents will be appointed by the state superintendent. This will place all education officials under the supervision of the governor's office.

Parents Hit on School Strife

By MARY SUNDSTROM

Blame for yesterday's racial conflict at Pontiac Northern and Madison Junior high school was placed primarily on parents by parents, students and teachers meeting this morning at Northern to discuss the situation.

The gist of about 40 speakers' comments was that parents do not teach their children respect for others, nor do they teach them discipline.

★ ★ ★

Several blasts were directed at the schools and central administrators and at teachers' attitudes.

No conclusions were reached by the general audience of about 450 persons in the Northern auditorium this morning, but after three hours of discussion, tension seemed to have been reduced somewhat.

'NOT PREJUDICED'

The speakers, all of who indicated they were "not prejudiced," asked that black and white, young and old, parents, teachers and administrators "get together to try to solve our problems."

Students who spoke said all they wanted was an education, and asked if they could safely attend school Monday.

★ ★ ★

Northern High School teachers and administrators were to meet with district administrators this afternoon to investigate more deeply yesterday's violence and disorder and to try to decide how to handle school Monday.

This morning's meeting was smoothly handled and tempers flared only once when a speaker spoke against the American flag.

At least two white students yesterday received medical attention as a result of fisticuffs with black students at Northern as school closed an hour early. Other reports indicated there were several minor fights between black and white students throughout the day.

The board met in executive session last evening with administrators of the schools and concurred with their requests to have the schools closed. Board action was unofficial because of state law which requires that no action be taken during informal sessions.

The board met—following a 90-minute closed door session last night—with about 80 parents, mostly white, to inform them of its decision, and to discuss yesterday's incident.

Board President Russell L. Brown told the parents that he had been made aware of plans to disrupt the school yesterday by black students between 3 and 4 p.m. Wednesday. He said he notified Assistant Supts. William Lacy and Richard Fell and Pontiac Police Chief William Hanger.

The two school administrators were also notified of the plans and proposed time schedule of events, Brown said.

Only about five plainclothes police officers plus the school's police counselors were stationed in the buildings yesterday. Less than a half-dozen uniformed police officers were outside during the day.

Brown refused to identify the source of his information concerning yesterday's events at the two schools.

★ ★ ★

Parents at last night's meeting were concerned about the safety of their children as they attended school. School officials said they plan to make every effort to protect youngsters.

The disturbance yesterday apparently stemmed from a fight at Northern between a black student and a white student shortly before school began at 8:30 a.m.

PUSHED THROUGH WINDOW

School officials said a white youth was pushed or thrown through a large window and received numerous head cuts. A 16-year-old white youngster, Dennis Dow of 844 Brooks, was treated and released at Pontiac General Hospital, according to hospital officials. The black youngster involved has not yet been identified publicly.

★ ★ ★

Another white Northern student, David Newport, 360 Linda Vista, suffered a fractured shoulder when a black student struck him with a hammer.

★ ★ ★

Just as school was commencing, Northern's fire alarm system was tripped and all of the students left the building. Apparently, when they returned to the school, a number of black students refused to return to class.

Other students were kept in their

Want to Settle War by '71, Says Nixon

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON — President Nixon said today he is trying to settle the war in Vietnam before the end of 1970, and declared that proposals to set a deadline for U.S. troop withdrawal destroy and undercut his efforts.

He said the proposition to establish such a time limit for withdrawal of all American forces also represents "a defeatist attitude" that would hinder obtaining peace earlier.

★ ★

Nixon thus took a stand in flat opposition to Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., and the new Senate Republican leader, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, both of whom favor a termination date.

Goodell called for total withdrawal by Dec. 1, 1970 and Scott by the end of 1972.

STILL SUPPORTS HAYNSWORTH

The President also said:

● He stands strongly behind his nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth and believes the South Carolinian will be "a great credit to the Supreme Court."

●The United States expects a positive answer shortly from Russia setting a date for the start of long-planned strategic arms limitation talks.

●He had favored the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance throughout his 22 years of politics but described himself as "a political realist" whose primary concern was to get a tax reform bill from Congress and indicated he would sign a bill to reduce the allowance.

●There are no American combat forces in Laos.

●He hopes to steer a "middle course" on school desegregation between the extremes "that want instant integration and those that want segregation forever. I don't consider it a victory for integration when the federal government cuts off funds for a school . . . That's a defeat for education."

★ ★ ★

Nixon also declared that administration efforts to curb inflation "have begun to work."

He said budget cuts and other economic steps are taking effect. "I'm not jawboning," said the President.

'SOME PROGRESS'

Back on the subject of Vietnam, Nixon said his administration has achieved "some progress" toward a settlement, and has made a comprehensive peace offer which seeks withdrawal of all foreign forces.

The only item not negotiable, Nixon said, is the right of South Vietnam to determine its own destiny, free of outside interference.

Nixon called this a firm and steady course, then sounded this appeal for national backing:

"If we can stay on this course and have some more support in the nation . . . we have a lot of support but if we can have even more in the nation for this steady course, then the enemy will have some incentive to negotiate, recognizing that . . .it is not going to win its objective by waiting us out, then the enemy will negotiate and we will end this war before the end of 1970."

Pleasant Weekend Forecast for Area

It looks like Pontiac-area residents will have another pleasant weekend.

Here is the U.S. Weather Bureau's official day-by-day forecast:

TODAY Partly sunny this afternoon, high 62 to 67. Fair tonight and cooler, the low 42 to 47.

★ ★ ★

Winds southerly at five to 15 miles per hour becoming westerly under 10 miles tonight.

TOMORROW — Mostly sunny and mild, the high 60 to 66.

SUNDAY — Fair and cool.

Probabilities of precipitation are 20 per cent today, 10 per cent both tonight and tomorrow.

Fifty-two was the low thermometer reading in downtown Pontiac before 8 a.m. By 2 p.m. the mercury had climbed to 73.

2nd Is Cleared in Brutality Case

The police brutality case involving two city patrolmen and two black community workers is closed as far as the Pontiac Police Trial Board is concerned. The board last night dismissed all charges and complaints against Patrolman Raymond Hawks.

The charges against codefendant Carl Yuill similarly were dismissed by the six-member civilian board last month.

The complaint against Hawks and Yuill had been leveled by Elick Shorter, 25, and Kenneth Walker, 27, following a July 10 incident at Hayes Jones Community Center.

The two community workers were charged with creating a disturbance and resisting arrest in a scuffle which followed a goodwill visit to the center by the two officers.

103 Arrested at U-M Building

From Our News Wires

ANN ARBOR — A force of 400 state and local police pushed into the Literature, Science and Arts Building on the University of Michigan campus before dawn today and arrested 103 demonstrators who had held the building for 12 hours.

Sympathizers outside, who earlier ripped up a court order to leave the building, made way when the huge police force moved on the building.

Those arrested, including the president and vice president of the school's student government, were charged with "contention," a misdemeanor that charges contending to create a disturbance. They were being held on an interim bond of $25 pending arraignment later today.

Sympathizers of the demonstrators, who were protesting establishment of a university-run bookstore in the five-story building, began a collection to raise money for bond. At least 43 of those arrested were identified as university students.

FOUR BUSLOADS

Four busloads of Michigan State Police were brought to the rear of the building at 3:35 a.m. to augment a force composed of Washtenaw and nearby Oakland County sheriff's deputies and Ann Arbor city police.

Some 1,500 sympathizers, who had been ringing the building in the chill night, were shoved aside and offered no resistance to the onrushing police as they entered the building.

The police entered at the request of university President Robben W. Fleming, a university spokesman said.

The arrests were made with only shoving and pushing. A helicopter circled overhead, playing a spotlight on the scene, and demonstrators chanted, "The whole world is watching."

7 STUDENTS INJURED

At least seven students and two officers were injured, none seriously.

William Haber, assistant to Fleming, said damage to the building was one door kicked in and one window broken.

A march on the university's Administration Building was called for noon today by protesters.

Green Beret Lawyer: Was Anybody Killed?

From Our News Wires

BOSTON — F. Lee Bailey, who will defend a Green Beret officer charged in the alleged execution of a double agent in Vietnam, said today the U.S. Army will be asked first to prove someone indeed was killed.

Bailey, who got his start as a lawyer while a counsel in the Marine Corps in the 1950s, declined comment on whether the controversial case involving the murder of a reported double agent was "typical" of clandestine intelligence operations throughout Southeast Asia.

"The question here is was anybody killed?" That may be the first issue the Army has to confront," said Bailey, who will defend Capt. Robert Marasco of Bloomfield, N.J.

Extensive dragging operations in Nha Trang harbor and off the coast of South Vietnam earlier this year failed to uncover any sign of the body of a Vietnamese identified as Thai Khac Chuyen, who reportedly was executed June 20 when U.S. authorities learned he was spying for both sides in the Vietnam War.

In South Vietnam today, attorneys for three of the accused Green Beret officers appealed to President Nixon today to dismiss the charges.

Claiming that the case had been "irreparably tainted by command influence," the motion asked Nixon to dismiss all charges against three of the six officers and "in the alternative to issue a new series of charges."

The petition to the President was filed on behalf of Col. Robert B. Rheault, 43, of Vineyard Haven, Mass., the former commander of all Green Beret forces in Vietnam; Maj. David E. Crew, 33, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Capt. Leland J. Brumley, 27, Duncan, Okla.

In a story yesterday by Newsday columnist Flora Lewis, the dead spy was called a triple agent owing allegiance to South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Miss Lewis said she learned the new information in a report from Vietnam. She did not elaborate on her source.

She said the spy was working with the Special Forces on orders from Thieu, who wanted to see what U.S. troops were doing across the border in Cambodia and Laos. Thieu did not trust American explanations he received, she said.

The Central Intelligence Agency found out he also was working for the North Vietnamese. The CIA recommendation for Chuyen was to "terminate with extreme prejudice," she said.

When Thieu learned of the slaying he rushed to Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, according to Miss Lewis, and demanded to know "why you are killing my people."

"Only then, with Chuyen dead," she wrote, "did any American know the answer to the riddle of the agent's loyalty. It was to Saigon."

ALFREDO OVANDO CANDIA

Military Coup in Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivia became today the fifth South American government to come under military rule. A movement headed by Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia, commander in chief of the armed forces, overthrew the civilian government of President Luis Siles Salinas.

The new regime seems more left-leaning than most military governments. The Cabinet is made up of young dissident leftist politicians from the Christian Democratic party and the Nationalist Revolutionary party, plus independents and young military men.

This trend opens a new chapter in this nation, which has been independent for 14 years and has undergone 185 coups or quick changes of government in that time.

In a message directed to the peasants, Gen. Ovando declared the new government will "defend the rights of the peasants, bringing into realization action that will make more profound the Bolivian agrarian reform" of 1953. Through its history the Bolivian economy has depended almost entirely on tin.

"The revolutionary government is on your side," Ovando told the peasants.

A message given out at Government Palace said the government "will fulfill the mandate which the people in its great majorities have been demanding." Among other things, Ovando promised to carry out a plan of "heavy industrialization."

The decree naming the new Cabinet said that "in accordance with the guidelines of the great transformation which the country needs," the government has chosen "persons whose political backgrounds are really revolutionary."

In one post there was no change. Foreign Minister Gustavo Medeiros was retained. He now is in New York attending the U.N. General Assembly.

Bolivia thus joined Argentina, Paraguay, Brazil and Peru among South American governments under military rule. Elsewhere in the hemisphere, Panama, El Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua are under direct or indirect military control.

A communique issued by the commanders of the three armed forces of Bolivia said they took action "to avoid the danger of anarchy, capitulation and disorder."

Country Club Announces New Officers

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — R. C. VanderKloot of 1200 Lone Pine has been elected president of the Bloomfield Hills Country Club, succeeding George Russell.

Other new officers include Benjamin Mills, vice president; R. S. Bright, treasurer; R. C. Fisher, secretary; and A. G. DeLorenzo, board of directors member.

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The Bloomfield Art Association (BAA) for the first time this fall is offering two courses it feels are designed to meet the needs of the community.

The courses include "Art in Action," a three-hour tour each Saturday for 10 weeks, and a framing and matting seminar.

★ ★ ★

The tour course, for children aged 10-12, will include visits to museums, galleries and studios of working artists, weavers, potters, sculptors and glass sculptors.

The children will carry their own sketch pads to record their impressions. The class is limited to 10 students.

SEMINAR TEACHER

The framing and matting seminar will be taught by John McKinney of the Birmingham Gallery. He will teach students how to select proper matting and framing as well as how to do much of the work themselves.

Registration for the BAA's fall term of studio classes will continue through Oct. 11 at the gallery.

BIRMINGHAM — Artist Tom Costa will present an exhibition of contemporary oils from noon to 8 p.m. Oct. 4 and 5, at the Birmingham House, 145 S. Hunter.

Costa, a native Detroiter, has been painting in oils for more than 20 years, specializing in clowns and still lifes.

An organ concert featuring "Music You Know" will be presented by Dennis Awe at the Unity Center of Birmingham, 1152 Bennaville, next Thursday at 8 p.m.

Awe has been a church organist for the past 10 years in Commack, N.Y. He conducted the orchestra for "The Music Man" on Broadway.

Rogers, Gromyko to Discuss Mideast Tonight

From Our News Wires

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The Middle East is up for Big Two discussion tonight at a private dinner meeting between Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Gromyko will be host for the session at the headquarters of the Soviet mission to the United Nations. Rogers had Gromyko to dinner Monday night.

★ ★ ★

The meeting tonight is the final conference scheduled between the two men during their attendance at the U.N. General Assembly, and U.S. officials said the Nixon administration has not decided whether to invite Gromyko to Washington to see the President. Neither side has raised the matter, they added.

The Middle East, disarmament and Germany-Berlin were discussed at the meeting Monday.

IN WASHINGTON

Rogers met in Washington yesterday with Israeli Premier Golda Meir and intends to pursue with Gromyko tonight the discussion on ways to settle the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Today Mrs. Meir is briefing President Nixon on the full array of her nation's economic and military needs.

★ ★ ★

The White House said Nixon was considering the Israeli request for more military equipment but there was no need for "an immediate decision."

At the White House state dinner for Mrs. Meir last night, however, Nixon was asked by reporters what he thought about the arms request.

"Well, she makes quite a case," the President responded.

★ ★ ★

The U.S. strategy in the talks with Gromyko is to stake out areas of agreement with the Soviets, put new life into the Big Four efforts toward a settlement, and induce Arab-Israeli negotiation through U.N. mediator Gunnar Jarring.

Meanwhile, in Moscow, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda charged that "those who direct Western propaganda" fabricated the report that the Soviet Union was attempting to overthrow Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Among lesser items, Rogers was prepared to talk with Gromyko about maritime trade.

★ ★ ★

The Soviets want their commercial vessels to be able to call at eastern U.S. ports as they have done on the West Coast. U.S. officials said the government doesn't bar Soviet ships from East Coast ports, but the unions have prevented their docking.

★ ★ ★

Vietnam has not figured in the Rogers-Gromyko talks to date. But Belgium, a U.S. ally, urged the United Nations yesterday to underwrite peace in Southeast Asia by a joint renunciation of force.

Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel expressed regret that Nixon and Gromyko had failed to find common ground on Vietnam in their speeches to the assembly. He said any treaty ending the Vietnam war should be supported by a regional security pact to which the world powers would subscribe.

Harmel said Red China should be among these powers and should have seats both in the Security Council and in the General Assembly. But Peking's admission should not be at the cost of expelling Nationalist China, he said.

Shorter's attorney William Waterman, said the decision was symptomatic of conditions and attitudes existing in Pontiac.

"It reflects the total disregard for the feelings and rights of minority people on the part of public agencies and social organizations in this city."

Meanwhile, the decision on the preliminary examination proceedings of Walker and Shorter will be announced Thursday by District Court Judge Cecil B. McCallum.

Clashes Halt Classes at PCH youths run past his office and moments later two white students reported that they had been attacked in the hall.

He said he had never seen the five youths before, whom he described as in their early 20s, and he never saw them again after the demonstration started.

Errington was criticized by Asst. Police Chief Harry Nye for dismissing classes about the time the crowd outside the school had thinned out and police thought the demonstration had subsided.

Errington later explained that he had made the decision earlier to release all classes before noon and was under the impression that all the halls were cleared and everything was quiet.

"We dismissed one floor at a time in hopes that nothing would happen. They just didn't go home like we had told them."

Errington said he thought that many of the students were from Northern where a similar outbreak yesterday resulted in the cancellation of classes today.

★ ★ ★

During today's demonstration, a number of parents, both black and white, arrived at the school to accompany their children home.

Some walked into the crowd of demonstrators, took their children by the arm and led them away.

classrooms and many of the classroom doors were locked from the outside, Northern Principal Philip Wargelin told parents last night, however, students were not locked into the rooms since the doors open from the inside.

Several white students also left their classrooms and some of the students roaming the halls left the building and were not permitted back in, according to normal procedure, unless they had passes.

Assistant Supt. Lacy who arrived at the Northern at 8:30 p.m. for a previously planned meeting with department heads, called for a school bus to transport some 70 black students to the Pontiac Black Cultural Center about 11:30 a.m. He said another school bus took about 20 more students to the center a while later.

He said that he and school administrators felt some tensions in the school were relieved when this delegation of black students left the school.

He said that they voluntarily went to the center, they were not ordered or requested to leave.

Black and white parents arrived at both schools during the day to bring their children home. Other students left the school without checking out.

A delegation of white students from Northern and the adjacent Madison Junior High marched to the school board offices in the afternoon to speak with central administrators.

"The colored want equal rights, and so do we. But they're getting more than we are. We want peace and equality and we're not going back to school until we get it," a young girl screamed.

The white students marching to the board offices said that black students in both schools were harassing them and had threatened them during the day with knives and guns.

4th School Aide Position Urged

The Pontiac Area Urban League yesterday recommended to the Pontiac School Board that the board create a new position of assistant superintendent to handle race relations.

The school board has already created a new position for a third assistant superintendent and Sept. 4 offered it to a man from Virginia.

★ ★ ★

This decision brought criticism of the board because groups of citizens and the school's human relations committee felt a man already on the staff, John Perdue, director of school-community and human relations, should be named to the post.

The Urban League desires a fourth assistant superintendent, apparently Perdue, although he is not named in the resolution.

'FURTHER UNREST'

The resolution states the board's decision on hiring the Virginia man, Dr. William Edmonds, an official at Virginia State College, "has precipitated further unrest, frustration, turmoil and polarity." Dr. Edmonds has not yet accepted the post.

Urban League Director William Clark said that the new post still leaves the school district without an official operating specifically in the field of civil rights.

Clark said the job description in the recently created post does not include the role recommended by the school's committee nor in a study of the district made by the Michigan Civic Rights Commission (MCRC).

Clark placed a similar resolution before the Pontiac Area Planning Council (PAPC) on Sept. 11 but the issue was voted down with firm opposition from two school board members on the PAPC, Russell Brown and John K. Irwin Jr.

Rail Unions Oppose Nixon Entry in Strike

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Railroad union leaders sought today to head off White House intervention in a threatened strike against six major railroads next week.

William W. Winpisinger, vice president of the AFL-CIO Machinists Union and chief strike strategist for four railroad shopcraft unions, said he told Asst. Secretary of Labor William J. Usery that the strike scheduled Oct. 4 would not create a national emergency by shutting down all U.S. railroads like the two-day walkout of the same unions two years ago.

"There may be some minor discomfort, but it couldn't be called a national emergency, not by the wildest fantasy," Winpisinger said in an interview.

Nixon could halt the strike for 60 days under the Railway Labor Act by declaring a national emergency. The dispute has dragged on for nine months under delaying provisions of the law.

WON'T BARGAIN

The four unions, representing 60,000 shopcraft workers on 76 major railroads, argue that the railroads will never bargain with them realistically as long as there is hope for federal intervention to halt a strike.

The union leaders want the White House to let them fight it out with a few railroads at a time so as not to tie up the nation's entire rail system.

Winpisinger said he gave this word to Usery, who returned to Washington from a labor convention here to confer with Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz on the dispute. Winpisinger hopes Shultz will advise Nixon not to declare a national emergency.

The unions singled out the six railroads to try to avoid the kind of White House and congressional intervention that swiftly halted the 1967 nationwide strike. Congress imposed a wage settlement for the first time in peacetime history in that dispute.

MEDIATION FAILED

Chairman Francis A. O'Neill of the National Mediation Board advised the White House Wednesday that attempts to settle the wage dispute through mediation had failed and that a strike would cause a national emergency.

The White House and Congress have stepped in to halt every nationwide rail strike threat. The brief walkout in 1967 was the first nationwide rail strike in 45 years.

The four unions—machinists, sheet metal workers, electricians and boilermakers—have scheduled strikes at 12:01 a.m. Oct. 4 against the Santa Fe, Great Northern C&O-B&O, Southern, Illinois Central and Erie-Lakawanna.

The shopcraft workers now earn $3.59 per hour, which the unions claim is at least 50 cents below comparable skilled workers in other industries.

SEEK 10 PCT. HIKE

The unions seek a 10 per cent per year wage increase, plus additional pay hikes for higher skilled men, extra pay for some work shifts and a cost-of-living escalator clause.

Winpisinger said the railroads have offered a 2 per cent pay hike retroactive to last Jan. 1 and another 3 per cent retroactive to July 1. The wage settlement imposed by Congress in 1967 expired last Jan. 1.

Winpisinger said the railroads have offered to increase this money offer if the unions agree to wipe out job seniority, eliminate job craft lines, give up the 40-hour week, do away with consecutive days off and abolish daily overtime pay.

EASY DOES IT—Two Chicago policemen remove parts of a bomb from the Civic Center in Chicago last night after the device was discovered by a telephone repairman on the 30th floor of the building. The bomb was disarmed before it was removed.

Bomb Found in Chicago Near Scene of Protest

CHICAGO (AP) — Investigators made an hours-long search of the Civic Center last night after a bomb of 17 sticks of dynamite was found on an upper floor of the 31-story downtown building.

A telephone company coin collector found the device two hours before it was set to explode. The dynamite, wired to a battery pack and an alarm clock, was in a telephone booth outside a courtroom on the 30th floor of the building which houses courts and government offices.

If it had exploded, "it would have blown off part of the roof and most of the north wall" of the three top floors of the glass-and-steel structure, a member of the city's bomb and arson unit said.

The Civic Center was the scene earlier yesterday of a demonstration by about 1,000 white construction workers who were concerned over Labor Department hearings into charges of racial discrimination in hiring of workers on government-financed projects.

Some of the construction workers drifted over to another demonstration at the Federal Building — where protesters were objecting to the trial of eight persons charged with conspiring to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention (See page B-10).

'Mood' Worries Collins' Lawyer

Trial Site Move to Be Sought

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — The attorney for the accused slayer of an Eastern Michigan University coed plans to ask that the trial be moved to another city because he is bothered by the "mood" in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area where seven young women have met violent deaths in the last two years.

Richard W. Ryan, court-appointed attorney for John Norman Collins, said he would probably file the motion for a change of venue sometime after Oct. 1—the day that Washtenaw County Circuit Court Judge John W. Conlin is scheduled to rule on a motion by Ryan that much of the state's evidence be suppressed.

★ ★ ★

The handsome 22-year-old Eastern Michigan University senior is accused of first-degree murder in the death of Karen Sue Beineman of Grand Rapids in July.

Collins has only been charged in her death and not in any of the other six slayings in the area.

Ryan said he would like the trial switched to a city similar to Ann Arbor and agreed that Kalamazoo and Lansing would be good possibilities.

He said te did not want the trial switched to northern lower Michigan or the Upper Peninsula.

Ryan also confirmed that California authorities had tried to question Collins about the slaying of a young woman in June, but he refused their request.

Cincinnati Murder Suspects Reported Seen in Kentucky

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The search for two of three men charged with murdering four women in a savings and loan office robbery extended through Kentucky today.

Police said Watterson Johnson, 22, and John Leigh, 20, spent Wednesday night at a motel in Whitley City, Ky., about 200 miles south of Cincinnati.

They also were spotted Thursday morning in Pine Knot, Ky., six miles from Whitley City, police reported.

Authorities filed four counts of first-degree murder against Johnson, Leigh, and Raymond Kassow, 24, who was jailed here. All are from Cincinnati.

They were accused of shooting four women at the Cabinet-Supreme Savings and Loan office Wednesday during a holdup which netted $275.

Kassow, arrested late Wednesday, was charged earlier Thursday with receiving stolen goods in connection with the case. The nature of the goods was not specified. Victims in the shooting were Helen Huebner, 46, Henrietta Stitzel, 59, and her sister-in-law, Luella Stitzel, 61, all patrons of the loan office, and Lillian DeWald, a secretary for the firm.

Kassow lived on the same street as the Stitzlers.

Police theorized that the women might have been shot because they recognized the holdup men, who fled in a car.

He'll Pay if Robber Killed

SEATTLE (AP) — David J. Williams, 72, founder and director of the Highline Savings & Loan Association, has offered to pay for the killing or wounding of a robber in any of the association's three suburban offices.

Williams said Thursday he would pay $1,000 for the killing and $500 for the wounding of a robber. He said his action was prompted by the $275 robbery of a savings and loan office in Cincinnati Wednesday during which four women were shot and killed.

★ ★ ★

"I feel very deeply about this," Williams said. "Force is the only way to stop it. In the long run, it would save innocent people from being killed."

COMMUNICATORS COMMUNICATE — Wednesday, The Press featured the University Christian House moral message campaign. Yesterday, the guys posted this little boast. Officials at the church are pleased with the response to their signs —"Rochester, Congratulations on 100 Years of Racism," for example — and are particularly pleased with the expressions of outrage. To the men of University Christian House, the outrage only proves that they have captured some attention.

Change the 'System' to Help Poor—Craig

'If We Are Going To Let The Poor Starve, Then Let's Get On With It . . . If We Don't Want Them To Starve, Then We Should Quit Talking And Come Up With Some Solutions'

Sen. Roger Craig

By NED ADAMSON

BIRMINGHAM — State Sen. Roger Craig, D-Dearborn, said last night that a complete restructuring of the "system" is necessary if the problems of the American poor are ever to be fully rectified.

Speaking before a forum on "ADC (Aid to Dependent Children) Mothers — Their Problems and Goals" at the Birmingham Community House, Sen. Craig said it is the prime responsibility of the first-class citizens to do something about the plight of nearly 30 per cent of the American public living below the poverty line.

* * *

This responsibility can be carried out, the senator said by bringing political pressure to bear that will revamp governmental spending priorities and recognize the plight of the poor.

"We obviously have a controlled economy in this country and it seems only a matter of common sense that the people who receive the ill effects of this controlled economy should have some participation at the controls of it," Sen. Craig declared.

QUICK DECISIONS

"The time has come when we have to quickly decide to do something about our poor people.

"If we are going to let the poor starve, then let's get on with it.

* * *

"If we don't want them to starve, we should quit talking and come up with some solutions," Sen. Craig asserted.

"We are all familiar with the perpetual cries — 'I worked myself up from nothing!' 'Nobody helped me!' 'We came over on the boat with pennies in our pockets and made ourselves into something!'

INEFFECTIVE SYSTEM

"The people object to having their tax money used for welfare, yet they don't realize how ineffective that welfare system is and what is happening to the money that is appropriated for welfare purposes," the Senator added.

Declaring that politicians usually react to pressure and the thinking of their constituency, Sen. Craig said there are few politicans who trembel in fear of the political pressure of the ADC mother.

* * *

"It becomes your responsibility to represent the needs of the ADC mothers and all poor people," he said.

The senator added that the welfare appropriations problem becomes a problem at the local level simply because administrators don't have the funds to operate due to the financial vaccuum created by the federal and state governments.

'DOESN'T HAVE MONEY'

"The state says it doesn't have the money to help the poor, yet the conservative-dominated legislature approves $500,000 of legislation concerning the plight of antlerless deer while the local politicans and ADC mothers have to fight for the bare-bones amount they do get," Craig complained.

Craig, an announced candidate for governor, said "Gov. Milliken maintains he just can't help the ADC mothers. If he admits it, then why can't we get someone who can."

* * *

The senator's remarks followed opening statements by Mrs. Joyce Hubbard of Pontiac, a former ADC mother and now an active spokesman on behalf of ADC mothers.

"The system," Mrs. Hubbard said, "Has got to be changed from the top level right down to the bottom, even if it means hurting each of you to do that.

'WON'T SIT IDLY BY'

"The young black children today are not going to sit idly by like the older generation of the poor. They have shown every indication that they will not stand for a continuation of social inequities," Mrs. Hubbard warned.

"The people on welfare do not enjoy living with that indignity. The only way that the need for welfare will be erased is for the affluent people to assume the responsibility to change the priorities of Government spending," Mrs. Hubbard declared.

* * *

Mrs. Hubbard referred to herself as a traveling sideshow in Oakland County. "You know, I constantly get invited to all types of groups to present the ADC mother-welfare problem. After we assault you, the tendency has been to feel guilty about it and then do nothing about it," she said.

Mrs. Hubbard's advice was heeded by committee member who moved to form a liaison group with the National Welfare Rights Organization of Oakland County. Liaison personnel will work with the ADC mothers in an attempt to develop welfare reform.

With Birmingham Teachers

New Talks Are Near

BIRMINGHAM — Negotiations should resume between the Board of Education and the Birmingham Education Association (BEA) next week, BEA spokesman said.

The BEA is assembling a new negotiating team following a decision by the teachers this week to appoint new negotiators rather than hold a strike vote.

* * *

Donald Cameron, BEA executive secretary, said the progress of the new negotiations would be reviewed at BEA meeting Oct. 14.

"That date is not to be inferred as an ultimatum date for a strike vote if the bargaining units have not come up with a settlement by that time.

"We will simply evaluate the results of the new negotiation sessions and probably hold another mass meeting to decide where to go from there," Cameron said.

Birmingham teachers struck two years ago before agreement was reached on the two-year contract that expired in June. Cameron said any likelihood of a future strike vote would depend strictly on the progress of negotiations.

* * *

Principal differences between the Board and BEA on a contract settlement include salary levels in the second through ninth "middle steps" of the salary scale.

Teachers rejected the board contract offer approved by the BEA bargaining team on the grounds that the middle range of the wage scale was not competitive with scales in surrounding districts.

Classes have met regularly throughout the district since the fall term started Sept. 4.

The board of education openly expressed a desire to reopen negotiations immediately yesterday, despite statements that their bargaining position has been restricted this year due to a failure of a millage increase proposal last spring. The approval would have given the board considerably more funds.

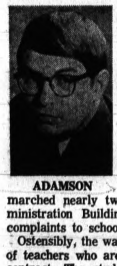
* * *

The salary package rejected by the BEA would have cost the school district more than $750,000.

Protest Can Lead to Better School

By NED ADAMSON

BIRMINGHAM — The calm and effective manner in which the Birmingham School District administration handled a walkout by 300 Groves High School students is noteworthy because it indicated that a calm reaction to student protest can well pave the way for better communication.



ADAMSON

Students walked out of classes at Groves 8:20 a.m. yesterday and marched nearly two miles to the Administration Building to present their complaints to school district officials.

Ostensibly, the walkout was in support of teachers who are working without a contract. The students had contended that an "apathetic mood" was beginning to prevail at Groves and other schools on the part of both teachers and students.

* * *

However, once the students began conferring with Deputy Supt. of Schools Daniel Nesbitt, board of education members and other school district officials, other reasons for the demonstration were cited.

Students are apparently unhappy with the ineffectiveness of student government and poor communication with the administration. "The teachers' situation gave the students an ideal opportunity to let themselves be heard considering issues that relate to them," said one school official.

Yesterday's demonstration brought the student unrest problem to light and immediately opened up channels of communication.

It has been proven time and again in all factions of our society that the outward protest or demonstration is often the quickest road to resolution of a problem.

The protest, however, often tends to alienate the powers that be. It brings the problem to the forefront, but it does not necessarily solve anything because of the ensuing alienation.

* * *

Yesterday's protest could be termed effective because neither side was alienated. The students were not disorderly, did not disrupt traffic and did not smash windows.

Administrators, on the other hand, didn't practice policies that alienate or agitate youth. They did not ring the building with policemen and did not bar the doors. These are the seeds of discontent and a sure way to erase a healthy tone from a demonstration.

News Analysis

By maintaining a friendly atmosphere and keeping communication channels open, the administration was able to immediately and directly learn about student problems.

Students remarked that they didn't like going the protest route, but they at the same time acknowledged that it can be the quickest means to an end these days, particularly if that protest is conducted in level-headed manner.

* * *

As one school official put it — "You know, we are constantly preaching self-direction and independence to our kids and urging them to think for themselves.

"Now we have seen a good example of that independence. This type of self-direction is healthy and shows that youth are alert and conscious of their surroundings."

Huron Valley Audit Shows '68-69 Deficit Was Pared

An official audit of the Huron Valley School books for the 1968-69 school year showed a deficit of $238,000, which was $188,000 less than the planned deficit.

The investment program earned $23,000, auditors Plante & Moran told the school board last night.

* * *

Wages and salaries accounted for 83.8 per cent of last year's $4.2-million operating budget.

* * *

No deficit financing is planned for this school year since voters approved a 6-mill tax hike last June.

BUILDING NEEDS

In other business, the citizens committee told trustees that a building for secondary students would be needed by 1973. Currently, there are 6,902 students in the district, more than 2,500 of whom are in the secondary grades. Growth rate last year was 363 students, with similar increases expected in the next few years.

The school already owns land on Bogey Lake Road in White Lake Township, in one of the high growth-rate areas.

* * *

Specific recommendations for a possible bond issue were held for more study and will be presented at the next board meeting.

The board also liberalized the high school dress code. Under the new general policy, girls will not be prohibited from wearing slacks but will not be encouraged either.

Clarkston Board Rejects Part of Fact-Finding Data

CLARKSTON — The Clarkston Board of Education has rejected some of the recommendations in a state fact-finder's report on the stalemated contract negotiations between the school board and the Clarkston Education Association (CEA).

The CEA, which had earlier approved all of the fact-finder's recommendations, was scheduled to meet this afternoon to discuss a counterproposal from the board and to decide on a course of action.

* * *

A school district official said the board of education had entered deficit financing far more than he had anticipated in its counter proposal. "The contract appears quite generous but at this time we don't know how the teachers will react to it," the spokesman said.

Contract negotiations had been at an impasse for nearly seven weeks, with economic differences considered the primary obstacle to settlement.

County Reschedules Hearing on Budget

The public hearing on Oakland County's proposed $30-million budget has been set back from 9:30 a.m. next Thursday to 9:30 a.m. Oct. 9, according to an announcement from the committee clerk's office.

Newlyweds' Trip Across U.S. Is Not Without Hitches

NEW YORK (AP) — Sandy and Keith Hancox, a hitch-hiking Australian couple who have crisscrossed much of the United States and are aiming at the world, stood on a ramp leading to the New Jersey Turnpike and crossed New Jersey—state No. 40—off their list.

"We average 10 minutes in getting a ride," Keith said Thursday as they put down their knapsacks by a sign reading: "Picking up or discharging passengers is forbidden."

Sure enough, 10 minutes later a car came to a halt and Sandy and Keith piled their knapsacks and themselves into the back seat—bound for Washington and points west.

Hancox, a 25-year-old art teacher from Brisbane, and his bride of three months, a 20-year-old former typist, hadn't even planned to come this way around the world when they first outlined their grand tour.

But a couple of weeks before they left, which was one day after their marriage, they suddenly decided to see America first.

"We never really plan ahead," said Hancox. "We take a ride and go as far as it's going, and then decide where we're going from there."

"The only things we've really planned to do were to see the Grand Canyon and the moon shot," put in Sandy, "and we saw them both."

"They told us hitchhiking was illegal in most states," said Sandy, "but everybody has been very nice, even the police in most places.

★ ★ ★

"A New Hampshire policeman told us hitchhiking was illegal in his state but then he looked it up in the book, and found out we were all right if we stayed off the pavement. 'And I've been telling people it was illegal for 10 years,' he said."

Most people who pick them up are kind and generous, they said, and frequently they get a night's lodging and a meal as well. If they don't, they roll out the sleeping bags along the road, under a tree or bush.

Sandy says Keith has the courage for both—"I never had it before but he is so confident in himself"—but she is unconcerned about taking baths in gas station washrooms and eating hot dogs and hamburgers most of the time, the only way they can keep to their $1 a day food budget.

"For about two weeks we were hungry all the time," she said, "but then we got so we could go all day without eating and not feel it."

When the couple arrived in New York to stay with friends for about a week, they had just "done" New England, and New York was the 39th state.

It almost became the low spot in their trip when a knife-wielding thief took all their cash, $15, in an uptown park.

But several New Yorkers who read of the incident in a newspaper responded so generously the bad taste turned into a sweet one.

The visit over, the Hancoxes hitched a ride with a newsman —"It's no good trying to get a ride in a city," explained Keith —and got a last look at Manhattan from the Staten Island ferry.

A few minutes of rolling past the oil tanks on the New Jersey flats and they were ready to get out and start thumbing.

THUMBS UP—Keith and Sandy Hancox, newlyweds from Australia, hitchhike yesterday near the entrance tothe New Jersey Turnpike just across the Hudson River from New York City. The two have crisscrossed much of the U.S. on a small budget and plan to see the world. In spite of the sign at the right, it only took about 10 minutes to get a ride.

How to Give Black Man an Afro

He Tells It to the Marines

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — The Marine Corps wrestled today with a heady problem: Will its young blacks be allowed to have bushier haircuts?

Willie Lee Morrow, a successful Negro barber, says it's not only possible but can be done within the tight, traditional restrictions of the Marine Corps.

Camp Pendleton officials spent $140 to bring Morrow and four male models from San Diego, where he operates a hair-styling parlor for Negroes, for a three-hour demonstration before Marine photographers. The pictures, before and after, now are being studied.

★ ★ ★

"I showed it can be done," Morrow said Thursday. "I showed them four different Afro haircuts, and did them in 10 to 12 minutes each."

LOOKED NEAT

Marines tried headgear of all types on moon-molded hair of the models. Morrow, 29, says they fit, and the hair looked neat.

The pictures won't be made public, a Camp Pendleton spokesman said.

★ ★ ★

Gen. Leonard F. Chapman Jr. earlier this month granted black Marines permission to wear limited Afro haircuts. The move by the Marine Corps commandant was aimed at cooling racial friction.

No sideburns or "eccentric cuts" are permitted.

CULTURAL HERITAGE

Many young Negroes in the Marines as elsewhere have turned to African-style haircuts in expression of cultural heritage.

Morrow says black men and women have 14 kinds of hair, ranging from "kinky coarse" to "curly wavy." "A coarse type of hair which grows to the right side," he says by way of example, "should be cut with a 1½-inch blade, cutting up to the three-quarters crown and in the direction in which the hair grows."

A special cut in Morrow's shop costs $25. A service haircut usually costs less than $1.

AP Wirephoto

GOING BY THE BOOK — Hair stylist Willie Lee Morrow stands over a customer with a book written by Morrow outlining the principles of cutting and styling Negro hair. Morrow has shown Marine authorities how Black Leathernecks can wear Afro haircuts while conforming to regulations.

Giant Snails Peril Miami Area

MIAMI (AP) — A lush area in north Miami is infested with fist-sized snails that are eating about everything in sight—even the paint on houses.

"They're giant African snails," said Art Calvert, area administrator for the Florida Agriculture Department. He estimated there were up to 20,000 of them in a 13-square-block area.

Calvert said the snails thrive on foliage and calcium and present a threat to South Florida's cash crops if they aren't contained. The infestation is unique in the United States, he added.

Calvert and a dozen agriculture experts—including state Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner — visited the area Thursday in the Miami Shores section and collected hundreds of the large, brownish colored snails.

A FOOT LONG

"I saw some shells bigger than my fist," said Calvert. "Inside, the snails were almost a foot long."

Calvert said the snails were introduced to the neighborhood three years ago by a young boy returning from a trip to Hawaii. "He brought three of them as a present to his grandmother . . . now there are thousands out there."

★ ★ ★

The snails, capable of producing 600 offspring each year, chomp on the lush foliage and eat paint from the houses to get calcium.

"We found them on roofs, clinging to walls and hiding beneath eaves," Calvert said. "They were everywhere."

'CRUNCH CRUNCH'

Bessie Parkhurst lives in the heart of the infested area.

"I've picked up a pail of snails each night," she said. "When you walk across your lawn, you hear 'crunch, crunch, crunch.'"

Calvert said the snails can't be sprayed from a plane because they are in a populated area. "So we're going to put a granular substance on the lawns," he said. "Conventional poisons don't bother them."

★ ★ ★

And, he said, area trash dumps—where many snails had been taken by residents—have been quarantined.

"One solution could be to eat them. I understand they are eaten in some countries," Calvert said. "They look like those giant escargots the moon people eat in Dick Tracy."

Hijack Check Evolved

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) is cautiously optimistic that a long-awaited detection procedure against potential hijackers of airliners has been evolved.

The preventive technique consists of a magnetic detector of ferrous metal (either on the person or in baggage) at detection stations which boarding passengers pass, coupled with appraisal of behavior and psychological patterns of suspects in the light of those revealed by the hijackers of 43 U.S. airlines since 1961. Significantly, the U.S. Department of Justice has declared that the two-pronged method relieves airlines of previous fear of lawsuits in cases where suspicion led to unjustified search of passengers' baggage.

In nine major airports where field trials of the preventive design were introduced, the generality of passengers were unaware of its employment. Moreover, despite wide publicity given adoption of the innovation, not a single letter of protest was received, says the FAA.

★ ★ ★

Although it is not claimed to be infallible in the detection of potential hijackers, the deterrent will render it extremely difficult for one to board a plane undetected. What now remains to be blueprinted is an effective means of dealing with a hijacker on board the aircraft who has escaped early detection.

Walkers Swell Road Deaths

By all means, look out for the crazy driver—but keep an eye on that careless pedestrian, too.

Pedestrian deaths account for a sizable 18 per cent of the more than 50,000 traffic fatalities in the United States each year.

According to a report by the University of Michigan Highway Safety Research Institute, accidents involving pedestrians are most likely to occur at night, in clear weather, under artificial lighting and on a dry, straight asphalt road.

★ ★ ★

The institute studied 286 pedestrian deaths in Detroit and suburban Wayne County. It was found that 106 of the victims were crossing a street outside a crosswalk or in the middle of the block. Another 102 were crossing at intersections. The rest were walking or standing in the roadway.

★ ★ ★

Alcohol was the single factor most commonly associated with these fatalities. Of 195 victims over 12 years of age tested for alcohol, 61 per cent had been drinking—and half of these showed over one-tenth per cent alcohol level in the blood, the Federal standard for intoxication.

★ ★ ★

From which it may be concluded that alcohol is a hazard whether driving or striding.

Consumer Protection 'Hot'

The consumer protection movement has reached tidal wave proportions. According to late reports, in the last three years the number of Federal consumer protection programs has jumped from 250 to an estimated 400.

And the political popularity of protecting the consumer shows no signs of waning. One hundred and ten bills to protect buyers have been introduced in the 91st Congress. A proposal to set up a Cabinet-level Department of Consumers Affairs has been sponsored by more than 100 Congressmen. Eleven senators support a similar proposal.

★ ★ ★

There are so many laws to protect consumers that government agencies appear to be stumbling over each other in trying to enforce them. And Congress is now setting out to investigate the enforcement agencies.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, the flood of new laws continues to grow. So far there has been little concern over whether free enterprise—the great producer—can carry the load of laws and still produce.

★ ★ ★

Are we nearing the day when proliferation of laws and implementation of them will become an end in itself and the Nation's No. 1 industry?

Three Mile Limit

Arizona Republic

The three-mile limit is heading toward the junk heap of international law, along with the Open Door to China and the freedom of the seas.

Mexico has joined the nations that now claim sovereignty as far out as 12 miles from the shore line. Some other nations, including Peru, claim everything up to 200 miles from shore as part of their territorial waters. And then there are some countries, including ours, that stand on the old three-mile limit.

★ ★ ★

The United States undoubtedly will protest Mexico's encroachment on international waters. There is no reason why Mexican ships should be allowed to fish right up to three miles from an American shore, while American fishing ships will be taken into custody if they go within 12 miles of the Mexican shore.

★ ★ ★

Nor is fishing the only thing involved. Oil deposits don't stop at the three-mile limit. Suppose a Mexican company begins putting down an oil well five miles off the Santa Barbara coast — can the United States be expected to ignore it?

But even if these differences are reconciled, what happens to the treasures that undoubtedly lie on or near the bottom of the oceans but are hundreds of miles from the nearest coast line? Would squatters' rights prevail? Or should the products of these distant ocean areas go to the United Nations, as some internationalists claim?

★ ★ ★

It is obvious that a whole new body of international law will have to be agreed upon. The sooner the United States decides what its policy will be, the better.

No Utopia

San Diego Union

One of the favorite arguments advanced by those who would see us abandon Vietnam is that peace automatically would free billions of dollars for domestic programs, somehow transforming our country into a Utopia overnight.

But recently, with refreshing candor and no small amount of political courage, President Nixon's chief urban affairs adviser, Daniel P. Moynihan, has told the country that this is simply not so.

★ ★ ★

Even if the war were to end tomorrow, substantial expenditures would be required to rebuild our military inventories depleted by the war, to overcome block obsolescence in military equipment, to produce new weapons systems to counter those our adversaries already are prepared to use against us, and to conduct a minimal research program.

★ ★ ★

Inflation will increase the cost of these programs as well as the costs of many non-military programs to which the government already is committed.

Mr. Moynihan has done a notable public service by warning us that the next budget "undoubtedly will be the most difficult the President will face in his first administration."

★ ★ ★

While it will entail considerable sacrifice of many things politically more popular, a realistic appraisal of the situation will show that we have no choice but to rebuild our own readiness to the point we can handle anything our enemies can bring to bear against us. And there is no time to waste.

David Lawrence Says:

Parents Look to Private Schools

WASHINGTON — Probably the most vexatious problem which is bothering the American people today in many parts of the country is how to make sure that their children get a good education.

LAWRENCE

In some areas, the quality of the public schools has deteriorated, and in other instances the race question has led parents to seek out private schools. The number of such institutions has grown rapidly in recent years.

There are some observers who think that the public schools will lose a lot of teachers and children in the next decade as private schools are opened.

★ ★ ★

At present a controversy is going on as to the power of the states to pass laws making tuition grants to the parents of children who would be sent to private schools.

Court decisions thus far have blocked such grants to parents, but these decisions may be superseded later on if the states rewrite their laws so as not be in the position of endorsing any institutions where segregation may be practiced but which may be chosen by the parents themselves.

NO INTERFERENCE

Under the "GI Bill of Rights," the United States government furnishes funds to veterans for education in colleges of their choice.

There has never been any attempt to interfere with the process by barring the use of such tuition money for attendance in schools or colleges that may be wholly or partially segregated by race or religion.

★ ★ ★

A dispute has been in progress for many months now over the power of the federal government to cut off funds from public schools, and recently even money for lunch programs has been withheld.

The use of federal funds to coerce school authorities into conformity with the federal government's idea of what constitutes "desegregation" is a form of punishment that has not been sanctioned by the Civil Rights Act itself, which specifically forbids governmental action to correct "racial imbalance."

INTENSE PRESSURE

Evidently the pressure from civil-rights groups has been so intense that the withholding of federal funds continues under the Nixon administration just as it did under the Johnson administration.

Unfortunately, at no time have there been any explicit regulations approved by the President — as required by law — defining exactly what the schools must do. Instead, general declarations have been made that by a certain time schools must be "desegregated."

Some officials in the present administration believe that racial quotas are unlawful and that the federal government has no right to insist that a certain number of whites or blacks shall attend each school.

Even the lawyers in the Department of Justice are in disagreement about what are the powers of the federal government in dealing with racial differences in the schools.

HIGHLY CONTROVERSIAL

Meanwhile, another matter — busing children for the purpose of "integrating" schools — has developed highly controversial aspects. There is a question whether the federal government has the right to furnish money to bus students from one school district to another or whether a state may grant school authorities the privilege of admitting only actual residents of a school district.

It is when the government steps in and transfers students from one part of the city to another or from one area to another that the real friction starts.

★ ★ ★

The problem has been dragging on for a long time now, with no solution in sight largely because there is no clear definition of what are the rights of the citizen, what are the obligations of the states, and what are the duties of the federal government.

Bob Considine Says:

Ex-LBJ Aide Discovers the Magic of History

NEW YORK — A Cabinet officer during the Johnson administration (he'd prefer not to be named) has had some time on his hands of late and has spent some of it deep in the magic of Herbert J. Muller's "The Loom of History":

CONSIDINE

"Business, as we know it today, was imported into America from Europe but it originated largely in the Near East. Many of the inventions and discoveries in what is now a part of Turkey, Iran, Iraq and Greece took a thousand or more years to reach Europe and be adopted here.

"Bagdad was thronged with poets, scholars and wits while Charlemagne (742-814) and his court were still dabbling in the art of writing their names.

"The 4th millennium before Christ was one of the most creative periods in human history. Men of the Near East then invented the wheel, the plow, the loom, the potter's wheel, brick and the sail. They learned also to work in metals.

BIG BUSINESS

"The Sumerians were the first to systematize large-scale business. They invented writing. They introduced standard weights and measures and time-keeping. They first used credit to support commerce. They had the first system of formal education. They laid foundations for mathematics and astronomy.

Later Sumerian kings (circa 2300 B. C.) made the first known efforts to establish international law; suggesting arbitration as a substitute for war.

"Thirteen centuries before Christ, the Achaeans discovered the principles of mass-production.

"Miletus was the first Greek city to issue coinage, and to produce maps and writings on navigation. That was in the 4th century B. C.

EARLY TAX COLLECTORS

"Tax collectors were damned as early as 200 B. C. It was written 'Apamea suffered from the rapacity of the Roman publicans, the tax collectors.'

"We didn't institute the first wage and price controls. Diocletian (A. D. 245-313) did.

★ ★ ★

"The cost of the Crusades led to new forms of taxation, on personal property as well as land . . . Suleiman the Magnificent (1496-1566) was the first 'influence peddler.' He sold public offices, making venality nearly obligatory . . . The inventor of the decimal system, Simon Stevin (1548-1620) said of it, 'It is not a great invention, but it is extremely interesting and is useful to everyone.' "

The British are about to agree, after due consideration.

Voice of the People:

'Many Gave Assistance During Recent Fire'

Many people gave our fire department and men help during the bad fire we had last week. The Pontiac fire department recharged our air packs, the Avondale fire department supplied a truck and men, the Sheriff's department sent cars and men to direct traffic. Our own fire department worked tirelessly to control a bad fire. The girls who served coffee and food to these men throughout the night and the merchants who opened up to provide food, gas and coffee so the women could serve it also helped.

More Voices Heard on Waterford Schools

As a parent of four children attending Waterford Township schools, and an 18-year employe of the school district, I am deeply concerned about the present cutback in program. I am equally concerned about the apparent lack of faith certain segments of our community have in our school board. Our board is now being placed in a position of being involved with possibly costly and lengthy litigation when finances and energy should be directed toward providing the best education possible for our children.

★ ★ ★

It seems that many residents of Waterford are unaware of the high caliber of school board personnel this district has had. Without the conscientious, capable people we have had, Waterford, with its low-assessed valuation per child, would never have attained the high educational status we have enjoyed. I believe we should continue to place our confidence in our school board and work together to improve the education of our children.

PAUL O'NEILL

I think the half-day sessions are wrong because the children who go to those schools don't learn as much as they would in a whole day. I think the board of education should raise some more money and not spend it on unnecessary things.

Former Teacher Discusses Today's Schools

It seems that schools aren't for the good of the children anymore. They are an arena—a place for the teachers and the board to fight. I recall when not later than the middle of May every teacher who was re-elected or chose to stay had a contract signed for the coming year. Children from grade one to 12 were in school all day. They knew why they were there. They felt secure in their homes and their schools. They weren't roaming the streets, causing riots. Mothers were at home and fathers were seeing that the sons and daughters were toeing the mark. No one can work under such conditions as half days for all those little folks, and the big ones, too. Of course, we used to consider teaching a profession.

Answers Complaint About Students' Sign

Daniel Arnold's letter of complaint that the students associated with the University Christian House are all talk and no action reveals little effort to learn the facts. Some of these students have joined members of St. Luke's United Methodist Church to engage in assisting disadvantaged families of Oakland County to break out of the helpless cycle of poverty. These students and church people are presently raising money to adopt one of the poor families now being evicted from one of the condemned buildings in the old Crystal Beach housing project in Pontiac, making the down payment on a more adequate home and assisting that family in the relocation and adjustment period.

★ ★ ★

Granted, this doesn't solve the problem of poverty in an affluent society, nor does it undo the effects of American racism, but it is a small step in the right direction. These students don't end their concern for a better world by posting comments on their road sign, and I hope Mr. Arnold's concern doesn't end with writing letters to the Voice of the People.

'Commend Action of Officers in Arrest'

Recently I was arrested by two officers, G. Colling and J. Malcolm, of the Pontiac police force. Both men are a great asset to Pontiac. I don't like being arrested, but if it must be, I want their type to do the job. From the initial arrest, through the time they made out their reports and on into court they kept their cool, were perfect gentlemen and treated me as a citizn with a problem.

★ ★ ★

Not once did I hear a harsh word, not once was I pushed or shoved. I was treated with respect. As an ordinary citizen, this means much. I know these men are with me, not an organized group to keep me in line. As to the charge, sorry to say, I was guilty, but the officers did their job and did it properly. Keep up the good work.

Question and Answer

My son came home Aug. 18 after serving a year with the Army in Vietnam. After filing his state income tax, he was told he wouldn't get credit for city income tax because he didn't file six months after the end of the tax year. The Federal government allows a serviceman to file within a month of his return to the U.S. Why does the State of Michigan penalize a young man fighting for his country because he wasn't in the U.S. at tax time?

WONDERING MOTHER

REPLY

He is entitled to credit for city income tax. The Michigan income tax office in Detroit, assured us he is allowed the same time for filing Michigan tax returns as the Federal government allows. They also said military pay is not taxable for the State of Michigan. If he has already filed, he can file an amended return.

City Denies Trees Cut Indiscriminately

Trees on Pontiac's far west side are not being cut down indiscriminately or without reason, according to city forester Floyd Roberts.

Roberts said all the trees being removed in connection with a sidewalk replacement program are rotten or in a stage of deterioration.

* * *

There are some residents who thought the city was cutting down all the trees along certain streets, said Roberts.

"This just isn't true," explained Roberts. "Only those trees that are a hazard are being removed."

REPLACEMENTS

Roberts said that every tree being removed will be replaced this fall or next spring with a variety of Norway Maple.

About 99 per cent of the trees being removed — there are about 20 in the area bounded by Ottawa, Voorhels, Telegraph and Huron — are Silver Maple, a weed tree, Roberts said.

* * *

There were a few instances where tree roots were cut inadvertently by the sidewalk contractor and it was necessary for the trees to be removed, said Roberts.

However, it was later discovered that those trees were decaying and would have had to be removed eventually, he said.

TOO DANGEROUS

"Personnally, I don't want to cut down any trees, but there are cases where its just too dangerous to let them stand," Roberts said.

The replacements will be one to two inches in diameter and from 10 to 14 feet high, according to Roberts.

* * *

In a few cases where there were two trees next to each other in the past there will be only one, Robert said. He explained it is policy to place trees at least 40 feet apart.

* * *

Robert said some trees that may be marked for removal won't be cut down. "A sidewalk inspector marked some of the trees and our department just doesn't agree that they have to go."

Death Takes Insurance Exec in City

Jacob L. VanWagoner, who organized the J. L. VanWagoner Insurance Agency of Pontiac nearly 60 years ago, died yesterday. He was 78.

Service will be 2 p.m. Monday at the First Congregational Church of Pontiac with burial in Ottawa Park Cemetery. Arrangements are by the Sparks-Griffin Funeral Home

* * *

Surviving are his wife, Ora; two daughters, Mrs. Arnold Kambly Jr. of Ann Arbor and Mrs. Edward E. Andrews of Birmingham; five grandchildren; one greatgrandchild; one sister; and one brother, Murray D. of Birmingham.

Active in many civic affairs, Van Wagoner, of 6545 Andersonville, Independence Township, came to Pontiac in 1900 and began his career in the insurance business at the age of 19.

MEMBER OF C. OF C.

A longtime member of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce, he served as treasurer of that organization. He was past president of the Pontiac Association of Insurance Agents and had an instrumental role in the founding of the Association.

Other offices he held include president of the Pontiac Lions Club, chancellor commander of the Knights of Pythias and treasurer of the Pontiac Elks Lodge.

Police said only one of the children was injured and his injuries were not serious.

Family of 10 Homeless After Fire, Aid Offered

A 10-member Pontiac family whose house was destroyed by fire is looking for a new home today.

Fire flashed through and gutted the residence of William Barnes at 202 Clifford at about 7 p.m. Wednesday. Damage on the uninsured home was estimated at $15,000 by the city fire department.

* * *

At home were Mrs. Jo Ann Barnes, two young children, Bill's brother, Roy, and his four preschool children.

Cause of the blaze was "defective wiring," according to the fire department.

COLLECTION POINT

All Saints Episcopal Church, 171 W. Pike, is now serving as a collection point for food, clothes and furniture donated for the family.

The family temporarily is living with the family of Mrs. Barnes' sister, Mrs. William Burnett of Pontiac.

Fire Destroys Frisco Pier and Ferryboat

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fire turned 490-foot-long Pier 14 into charred ruins alongside the famed Ferry Building on the central San Francisco waterfront Thursday night.

The ferryboat San Leandro, tied to the pier, was destroyed, and a hulking warehouse covering much of the dock was burned to a skeleton of blackened steel frames.

* * *

No serious injuries were reported.

The flames spread very rapidly, said Assistant Fire Chief Keith Calden, adding: "It was a holocaust, almost impossible to fight. All we could do was keep it from spreading."

NAMES CONFINED

A flat zone north of the pier prevented the sweeping flames from reaching the Ferry Building.

All available fireboats poured water on the blazing pier and 160 firemen with hoses from some 40 engines battled the flames.

Cause of the fire was being investigated.

Calden said damage could not be estimated immediately.

Hearing Is Slated

LANSING (AP) — The State Highway Department will hold a public hearing Oct. 16 at Mottville on the proposed relocation of 2.3 miles of U.S. 12 in the vicinity of Mottville in Cass and St. Joseph counties. Bids are scheduled to be taken on the project in mid-1973. The estimated cost is $852,000.

Trio Turning Farm Into a 'Rock' Garden

By YOLANDA BENAVIDES

With 80 acres of land as insulation, keeping the noise down on the farm is one problem that won't crop up for a trio of gentleman farmers in Farmington Township.

Actually it's more of a battle keeping the roof from blowing off the little yellow farmhouse at 29050 Haggerty.

★ ★ ★

The three, members of an area rock group called the Third Power have, been eating, sleeping and jamming in their Farmington Township habitat since March.

★ ★ ★

The two-story, eight-room dwelling is also home for their manager, two equipment men and an artist friend.

RECORDING STUDIO

For that "home sweet home" feeling their country estate (which also harbors 11 horses, two dogs and some recent additions — six ducks) has been converted into a $20,000 recording studio.

★ ★ ★

Weekends, the farmhouse is the 'in' scene for hoedown rock-style with local names and visiting rock groups converging on the studio until the we hours of the morning.

★ ★ ★

Like the decor — early conglomeration — the three musicians and company are an amiable mixture of personalities housed together in hopes of making their niche in rock history.

★ ★ ★

However, the real scene of the brainstorm took place some two years ago on the Aurubrn Heights campus of Oakland Community College where Drew Abbott, Jem Targal and Jim Craig were studying.

DECIDE ON CAREER

Drew, lead guitar, was majoring in philosophy and minoring in music when he and Jem, an art major, decided to jam on a professional basis.

★ ★ ★

Although his talents as a violinist were not in demand, fortunately Jem could hold his own as a vocalist while Drew gave him the ground rules for playing bass guitar.

★ ★ ★

Jim Craig, who joined the group several months later, backs both on the drums.

★ ★ ★

"Unlike some musicians who were eating, sleeping, and thinking rock 'n roll at age 13, we came into it rather late on a trial and error basis," remarked 22-year-old Drew.

'STRAIGHT HOMES'

All three are from relatively 'straight' uppermiddle class homes.

For a while it even looked like Jim Craig would follow in the family footsteps as the All-American son.

★ ★ ★

As images go he was right in front, wearing the Princeton haircut, driving a '65 Corvette and already doing his thing in the business world as a computer programmer.

However, when the rock bug hit, the Princeton took a shaggy turn and the boss said cut it or leave. Jim chose the latter.

'OLD WHITE WHALE'

He also sold the vette, trading for the "Old White Whale," a '63 Ford Econoline Van which was used to transport equipment for appearances.

The Old White Whale, purchased from a motorcycle gang, came complete with bullet holes and required a ready supply of water because of a tendency to overheat.

★ ★ ★

In Jem's case, his change in interest and appearance — long-hair, bell bottoms, and black boots — went over like an iron balloon with the family.

★ ★ ★

After months of arguments with the head of the household, Jem moved in with Drew.

'GROOVY' PARENTS

Drew, on the other hand, says his parents are "rather groovy," and he found them understanding about his off-the-beaten-path career. He chose to move, however, so that he could give the band his full attention.

★ ★ ★

With the transition, the group, formerly known as the Blewsies, is beginning to find its place in the respected rock community.

★ ★ ★

"When we started we were what is known in the business as a bar band, which plays the top 10 tunes at places like the Coral Gables in Berkley," said Drew.

Working as a bar band is low on the rock totem pole, however, because the band

'To Make It, You've Got To Be Different . . .

gains as much prominence as a jukebox.

NAME OF THE GAME

But the name of the game is "making a living" and the Blewsies took the bar band route like other aspiring groups, including appearances at Elks Club dances, fraternity parties and OCC frosh mixers.

★ ★ ★

If a group can pass the initiation and hit enough spots to get the crowd's attention, the second time around the fans will be doing the following.

★ ★ ★

"More and more you'll find young people are moving away from bars and flocking to non-drinking and now nondancing spots where the band is the main attraction," said Jem.

★ ★ ★

According to Jem, groups like the Cream, the Rationals and the MC-5 made it big in the area.

SECOND GROUP

Today there's a second group of national unknowns who are taking over the vacant local scene. The new group includes the Third Power, Savage Grace and all The Lonely People.

★ ★ ★

And with this local concentration of rock groups, Michigan has taken precedence as the mecca of the established rock community.

★ ★ ★

"It's not uncommon for a local group to knock out a national on a Michigan stage because the competition is so high around here, the group agreed.

★ ★ ★

In fact, nothing kills a national group, whose heavy vibrations are nursed with sound effects during record sessions, than a live performance minus their electric aids.

★ ★ ★

On the other hand, a local group has got to be good because the live stage is the one place where they can make a name for themselve .

★ ★ ★

"To make it you've got to be different, but you've got to be darn good at it — on stage as well as on the album," said Drew.

Colorful Centennial Celebration

Rochester's Birthday Party Was a Dilly

By T. LARRY ADCOCK

As Rolf Winter's nine photographs testify, Rochester is hard to beat for a colorful centennial celebration.

The Sept. 7-14 observance of 100 years of Rochester's incorporation — a village for 98 years and a city two years — brought out a city full of people with enough energy to produce a festival worthy of a once-in-a-century event.

The Rochester Centennial Commission, formed months before the celebration, planned every event with concern for maximum appreciation by the current population for their forebears.

An enthusiastic publicity campaign under the urging of Centennial Commission chairman John Boeberitz began early last spring.

* * *

In "turning back the clock," the people of Rochester discovered a bit of the satisfaction of bygone eras. The Friday night promenades through town reminded some old-timers of the pre-air-conditioner and pre-television days when a walk about the village was both cooling and sociable.

To the younger set, the promenades were wonderful hand-holding experiences.

* * *

People like the "Brothers of the Brush" and the "Centennial Belles" kept the centennial spirit alive for the months-long anticipation of the big event.

Best Solution Is to Attend Wedding Only

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: One year ago Mary died at a young age leaving behind two small children. Now her husband is remarrying. Mary's parents received an invitation to the wedding which her mother isn't quite up to yet. Her father said he wants to go (and he will) with his teen-age daughter. The poor woman is in a quandary. She feels it will look very bad if he goes and she doesn't.

Would it be socially acceptable to attend just the church and not the reception—regardless of what her husband does? And then explain in a note to the girl or the son-in-law that she gives them her best wishes, but just can't bring herself to join in the festivities at this time?—Perplexed

★ ★ ★

Dear "Perplexed": Your own solution is the best I can imagine. By attending the church ceremony, Mary's mother will publicly show her approval of the marriage, and her personal note to the bride will take care of any questions about her reluctance to be at the reception. It is most important that she do her best to foster a close relationship with her son-in-law, his wife and the children, and I feel that with this procedure, they will be off to a good start.

Queen Elizabeth II Is Chic and Thrifty

LONDON (UPI) — For a woman who requires an uncommon number of new clothes, Queen Elizabeth II is extraordinarily thrifty.

She buys a new outfit for important occasions at home and absolutely every engagement, big or little, when she goes visiting abroad — as a sort of compliment to her hosts. That's public life.

But her clothes for private life, kept in a completely separate wardrobe on the opposite side of her big dressing room adjoining her blue bedroom at Buckingham Palace, show no signs of such lavishness.

★ ★ ★

With her liking for country pursuits whenever she is off duty, the queen is most likely to be found relaxing in a comfortable suit. She does not need many new ones because she has an unchanging favorite style: box-pleated skirt touching the knees, figure-fitting jacket.

Her thrift falls by the wayside when she has to get new outfits for public appearances because she is, and must look, her role. Her couture designers, Norman Hartnell and Hardy Amies, are working right now on a particularly big order.

The queen will be touring New Zealand most of March and Australia from March 30 to May 3. She will wear a new dress for every engagement, which means several for each day.

At fairly regular intervals, the queen is accused of dressing badly. Hollywood designer Robert Blackwell, who concocts an annual list of the world's worst dressed women, took aim when he visited London recently. The queen looks "dowdy and quite old . . . far, far too traditional," he said.

The queen, who is 43, does not dress to look younger than her age. She goes to traditional designers; Hartnell is 68, Amies is 60, and feels she ought to follow certain rules. She wears gloves and loose sleeves because she shakes so many hands. She wears her skirts to the knee because she does not want to show an ungainly amount of leg climbing into or out of cars. She chooses shoes for comfort when standing up rather than for fashion.

Twice a year she goes through her wardrobes to update them. Her state gowns are destroyed so that no one else can wear them, but her other clothes are sent to charity organizations. All labels and identifying marks are removed so the recipient will never know she is going around in clothes once worn by a queen.

Michigan Grapes Free of Pesticides

LANSING (AP) — Michigan Agriculture Department officials today reassured consumers that grapes sold in the state are not tainted by pesticides.

B. Dale Ball, department director, said continuing analysis by the department laboratory at East Lansing never has shown unsafe pesticide levels of Michigan grapes or any other grapes.

Cesar Chavez, organizer of the United Farm Workers, has charged that pesticides are a danger to the health of farm workers.

★ ★ ★

Chavez also has been promoting a boycott of table grapes in an effort to force growers to negotiate with his union.

"Michigan housewives can be sure grapes they buy in this state are within Food and Drug Administration tolerance levels for pesticide residues," Ball said.

"As with any other commodity, if found unsafe, the Department of Agriculture would seize and remove from the market any grapes which contained higher than allowable pesticide residues," Ball said.

Ball said food inspectors regularly purchase products from throughout the state for analysis. Grapes are among the products randomly sampled to insure that they meet state and federal standards.

Don't Give Nasty Remark a Chance to Bother You

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband was recently elected president of his lodge. A woman I know came up to me and said, "congratulations. So Morris accepted the presidency of the lodge. That was real nice of him. I heard nobody else would take it."

What answer would you have given her to put her in her place?

MORRIS' WIFE

DEAR WIFE: If she really didn't know better, her "place" is in the corner with the rest of the dunces. But if she actually meant it as a dig, the most effective reaction would have been a warm "thank you" — as though her knife had missed its target.

DEAR ABBY: I was told that in order to be a bridesmaid in a church wedding, you have to be a virgin. Is that true? MUST KNOW

DEAR MUST: No. (Fortunately.)

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: Please print this. I want to clip it out and send it to my boss's wife when it appears:

Dear Mrs. ——:

Welcome home! You went away for most of the summer and left your husband all alone saying your children needed a vacation. What did you expect your husband to do? Go home to an empty house every night, heat up a TV dinner, and curl up with a good book?

I work for him. He was lonesome. He asked me to have dinner with him and I said yes. I also asked him to have dinner with me and he said yes. I cooked for him at HIS house, and mine, too. We had a ball.

★ ★ ★

But you don't have to worry. Nothing serious happened. I'm not the type to steal another woman's husband, although it wouldn't have been too hard.

And now I am going to give you a tip you really don't deserve. You have a wonderful husband. STAY HOME AND TAKE CARE OF HIM. He needs you more than your children need the mountain air. The next girl may want to play for keeps.

SQUARE SHOOTER

DEAR SQUARE SHOOTER: Thanks for your letter. A word to the wise . . .!

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: I have a relative who loves to play gin rummy. When HE wins he says it's 85 per cent skill and 15 per cent luck. When the other fellow wins he says it's 85 per cent luck and 15 per cent skill.

The problem is that he is a very poor loser and when the game is over and he has lost he always wants to play one more hand, "double or nothing."

I don't like this, but I don't want to look like a poor sport so I go along with it.

What can a person do when he's put on the spot this way?

NO GAMBLER

DEAR NO: Get off the spot by saying "no dice."

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: Isn't it bad manners to say abruptly, "Let's change the subject?" A friend of mine is always doing this.

I know you can't keep discussing the same subject all the time, but isn't there a more tactful way of steering the conversation to some other subject?

For one thing, after a point-blank order like that it's awfully hard to say something that sounds natural.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Yes, it is rude to abruptly say, "Let's change the subject." But it sometimes is necessary in order to let the other party know that you have nothing more to say about a particular subject and do not care to discuss it further.

Regular gallery hours will be 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

Lives There a Wife Who Hasn't Muttered—Wish He . . .

NEW YORK (UPI) — There is only one kind of woman who has never said, "I wish husbands didn't . . ."

She's single.

To give married women the comfort of misery-loves-company, and warn the single ones what's in store, here is an informal survey of New York area wives' complaints about husbands.

★ ★ ★

The supermarket is a major point of irritation, whether the family hero goes alone or accompanies the little woman to handle the heavy carry chores.

He likes to buy things. Queer things. Things such as filleted frogs legs in vegetables (one tin equals three days food budget) marrons glace (he didn't realize they were chestnuts) and a giant pack of chocolate covered Marzipan (put that on your calorie counter and watch it go over the top).

GETS EVEN

The husband of one highly skilled cook slid six TV dinners into her cart when she wasn't looking. She got even by serving them on six successive nights.

When he shops alone, he not only brings back edible erotica, he also forgets what he was sent for—such as baby's milk—or brings back drip grind when the list specifies percolator coffee.

"I wish he would remember to close doors," is another common complaint. Doors mentioned include kitchen cupboard (on which wife bangs head), refrigerator (turning freezer compartment into ice cave) and front door (no joke these days).

OTHER COMPLAINTS

Other complaints that receive a chorus of assenting sighs:

- The man who insists he doesn't like a certain dish, curry, perhaps, until someone else's wife serves it to him.
- "Mr. Clean," who goes dirty into a gleaming bathroom and comes out spotless, but with the bathroom looking like a leftover from the flood.

★ ★ ★

- The antique collector, who collects antique magazines, Sunday newspapers and other odd bits of paper. Throw them out and he cries a lot.
- The volunteer. He's always offering to help, as in "Can I help with the dishes?" after he knows they are washed, wiped and put away.

A Vietnamese youngster gives his full attention to repairing his clothes on the family sewing machine in Cu Lac. The residents of this isolated village, 15 miles north of Hue, make their own clothing.

This diamond-encrusted rosewood bracelet watch has a base of Brazilian rosewood, and 177 diamonds set in 18-karat white gold. It was designed by the late Micheline Wolf for the Companies des Montres Longines in St. Imier, Switzerland. It is one of 30 jewelry pieces which received Diamonds-International awards in New York this week.

Diamonds seem to be colliding with a square sheet of pearls in this brooch designed by Yuji Takahashi of Tokyo. Pear-shaped diamonds are set on rods of yellow gold that run at right angles to each other. When the brooch is turned so that the diamonds shoot upward, or from either side, it gives a completely different appearance.

A brooch is just the thing for a pony tail. Designed by A. Julia-Plana of Bern, Switzerland, it has angular pieces of brown tiger eye surrounded by white gold and interspersed with round diamonds.

This beautiful piece was created by Susan Barfield of Norwich, England. It is constructed of 18-karat gold with 122 diamonds set in platinum. Miss Barfield was presented with one of the Diamonds-International Awards presented annually since 1954, and called the "Oscars" of the jewelry industry.

Chili Theft Is in Court

DETROIT (UPI) — A court has been asked to decide whether a chili recipe is worth $100,000 to its creator.

One chili czar has sued another for that amount, charging that he stole his recipe while an employe then stole away to form his own chili company.

★ ★ ★

Anthony Keros, president of the National Coney Island Chili Co. Inc., is seeking the damages against Detroit Coney Island Co. Inc.

★ ★ ★

In Detroit, the Coney Island sandwich is king. It's a concoction of hot dog, smothered in chili and as much mustard and onions as you can stand.

Keros filed the suit in Wayne County Circuit Court, and no date has yet been set for it.

Keros said George Demopoulos went to work for him in November, 1966, then left two years later, taking the recipe with him.

★ ★ ★

After obtaining the secret recipe "by looking through files and making inquires," Keros charged that Demopoulos formed a partnership with Stephen G. Manos and founded Detroit Coney Island.

Self-Employed Make Use of Keogh Act

By ANNE TAYLOR
AP News Feature

It is well known among financial advisers that some of the most successful self-employed professionals and businessmen are less than adept at protecting their own personal affairs.

Sometimes the mismanagement doesn't show up immediately, so long as the earning power remains high. But when the peak is reached, perhaps in the late 50s, the day of reckoning may not be far beyond.

That's why the self-employed — doctors, lawyers, farmers, artists, writers, plumbers — need continual reminders about Keogh Act retirement plans, which permit up to 10 per cent of income a year to be set aside tax free.

★ ★ ★

The act, passed in 1962, applies also to the part-time self-employed. If a classroom teacher earns $1,500 a year by outside tutoring, for example, he or she may deduct as much as $150 from taxable income.

These are the rules:

● Up to 10 per cent of income, or to a maximum of $2,500 a year, may be deducted. The same percentage also must be contributed to a plan for fulltime employes who have worked at least three years for the individual.

● The money must go into a formal retirement plan acceptable to the Internal Revenue Service and the money must not be withdrawn until the individual is six months beyond age 59.

During this time, the interest and dividends earned by the retirement fund accumulate free of taxes. Taxes must be paid when the fund is "distributed," or the money used, but by then the retiree might be in a rather low tax bracket.

OPTIONS

A great many self-employed persons invest in mutual funds. The advantage is that the money is likely to grow with the expanding economy. The disadvantage is that stocks sometimes go nowhere and, in fact, even drop sharply at times.

Many others fund their retirement plans with annual deposits with a bank that agrees to act as trustee. The bank then invests the money in stocks, bonds, annuities, life insurance or combinations.

★ ★ ★

U.S. Savings Bonds offer another route to retirement. In fact, bonds have the built-in tax deferral advantage with or without the Keogh plan, for interest need not be paid until the bonds mature or are redeemed.

INSURANCE

One of the most popular options is life insurance, perhaps combined with stocks in order to provide the possibility of swifter growth.

The life insurers say that at the end of 1968 some 112,290 self-employed persons had Keogh plans with insurance companies, a figure double that for 1967 — which was double the figure for 1966.

The advantage of an insurance plan is that death benefits exist from the very beginning, and that an annuity income or retirement is guaranteed for life. Inflation can, however, tend to erode the value of the fund.

★ ★ ★

Whichever plan you choose should be discussed and understood thoroughly because there are perhaps fewer shocks more alarming than to discover on retirement that things aren't what they seemed.

Your accountant and lawyer are good men to put the question to. If not them, then the trust officer of your bank or maybe your insurance agent. And remember, in all probability the decision is for life.

Case No. L-503

Use That Feeling Tone

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE L-503: Norma L., aged 25, is a charming feminine type of wife.

"We hope to have six kids," she laughingly announced as I dined with her and her husband.

Apparently, I must have raised my eyebrows.

DR. CRANE

"Did I say something wrong?" she queried.

"Norma," I replied, "your desire for six children is laudable.

"But you violated a basic rule of advertising psychology when you referred to your future babies as 'kids.'

"That's definitely a masculine term and thus it violates what advertisers call 'feeling tone.'

"A man may call babies 'kids' or even 'brats' and so might a rough, tough woman who hangs around saloons and wharfs.

"But a cultured, beautiful woman like you who radiates typical feminine charm, should refer to her offspring as 'babies' or 'infants.'"

WORDS

Then I illustrated this fact that words possess definite personalities due to their chronic use by one sex vs. the other.

"She was a skinny maiden," thus violates "feeling tone," for that term "skinny" suggests dirty, sweaty, freckled urchins playing sandlot baseball.

"Maiden," on the contrary, has a semi-poetical connotation and thus the feeling tone is discordant or jarring on a cultured person's ears.

"She was a slender maiden," would fulfill the advertiser's stress on "feeling tone."

"He was a skinny kid," would also be O. K., for "skinny" and "kid" have a masculine flavor.

Alas, most of our modern teen-ager girls have never fully analyzed this crucial problem of sexual "feeling tone."

★ ★ ★

Oh, they abhor any extra fuzz or hair on their upper lip, lest it suggest they have a mustache and thus are not completely feminine.

Thus, I've had women patients who were almost a nervous wreck because they happened to have a few hairs on their breasts and thus feared their bridegrooms would be revolted at their masculine appearance.

Yet these same girls were sucking on cigarettes, swilling down hard liquor and adopting other masculinizing habits that were far more disastrous to their feminine "image" than a few hairs.

Some modern women also have a belligerent desire for "equal rights!" Malarky!

This is still a double-standard world, and smart girls realize they must live up to the "image" of the cultured, feminine sterotype or they will lose much of their appeal to men.

But millions of girls don't seem to give this matter a single thought, so they meekly stampede, like silly sheep, according to whatever the advertising pace-setters dictate.

Girls with knock-knees and bowlegs would thus avidly adopt the most extreme of the miniskirt craze, thus advertising their own flaws.

Smart women adapt fashions to enhance their own feminine charm but not to flaunt their disadvantages!

Presoften Soil

When hands are soiled, try applying hand cream before washing them. The cream helps get dirt out of the cracks.

Turn an ordinary scrub brush into a handier brush by fastening a discarded drawer knob to the wooden back of the scrub brush with a screw.

If you think all members of the Welfare Rights Organization are loud, violent individuals, you're mistaken. Sure, there are bound to be some of these in an organization of this type.

But the woman they elected recently to be the Michigan representative to the national coordinating committee is a soft-spoken disclaimant of violence.

Kathyrina Simms, 49, the mother of 16 children, widow of a minister, has the same determination to change the system that I saw recently in Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm. Both like to upset the apple cart and buck tradition.

★ ★ ★

What does the Welfare Rights Organization want? On this point, Mrs. Simms is specific. The group wants to change the system in the community, the state and the country.

The group wants better living for all citizens, better housing and education for everyone, better opportunity for low-income families and more money for raising families. They want to have what Mrs. Simms calls "a space in society."

This eloquent woman doesn't talk about dignity as such; but dignity of the individual is what she's discussing.

REACH PARENTS

The only way the community will become better, she says, is to reach the parents who control the children.

While some just don't care, most parents in the socio-economic group she works with are well aware of what their children need in order to get along in today's world.

★ ★ ★

"We want to be part of this democratic society. You are teaching our children. After being taught, those who are fit should have space to express what you taught."

★ ★ ★

A student of Martin Luther King's, when she lived in Memphis, Mrs. Simms believes in his philosophy of non-violence.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Simms believes also that most blacks don't want to tear down the system. She lashes out at those who try to get their way with violence. Her method is what she calls "table-level discussion," or personal confrontation.

She does not approve of the action of those ADC mothers who sat-in, disrupted, badgered and threatened officials in Detroit social welfare offices.

GETS RESULTS

Mrs. Simms' way may be less violent, but she has a good batting average. She didn't admit it, but red tape exists only to be cut.

★ ★ ★

Established ways of doing things should be tossed out if they hamper efforts to help people. She has tangled with Oakland County welfare officials in the past and will probably continue to do so.

But she's sincere and she is trying to help people get a better deal.

Born in Arkansas, Kathyrina Simms went through the eighth grade. By the time she was nine, she was keeping house for 13 persons. Her mother died when she was seven. At 14, she went out to work.

For 20 years, she worked as a nurse's aide for 57 cents an hour and "did all the work, including catching babies while the regular nurses sat and smoked cigarettes."

★ ★ ★

Four years ago she moved to Pontiac. By then, she was a widow with a second family to raise, five of them still at home. Her older children had come here because there were better work opportunities.

"I thought my telephone bill would be less if I moved where they were," she laughingly says.

★ ★ ★

The family has fared much better in Michigan. Her children are having opportunities she never had; the ones who are married have good homes, cars and better living conditions.

Mrs. Simms scoffs about talk of Uncle Toms in the black community. That's nonsense to her. She explains that white individuals have helped her and many of them are on her side. She sees no reason for hating the white race and makes no secret of her feelings. "We've got to live together and work together."

This doesn't stop her from pushing for every advantage she can. "You gotta push a bit," she says calmly. "You gotta make the other fellow show his colors." Then she can get her table-level discussion going.

To Attend Convention

Nine area women are among a Michigan delegation which will number close to 100 for this weekend's national convention of the National Federation of Republican Women in Washington, D.C.

★ ★ ★

They include two alternate Delegates-At-Large, Mrs. Amos Grover of Birmingham and Mrs. Eugene Griffin of Pontiac. Mrs. Donald Somers and Mrs. Lillian Moffitt, both of Birmingham, are the delegate and the alternate, respectively, of the Bloomfield Republican Women's Club; Mrs. Robson Eames of Troy, delegate of the Birmingham-Troy Republican Women's Club.

Mrs. Watson Stringer and Mrs. Earl Thornton, both of Orchard Lake, are the delegate and alternate of the West Bloomfield Republican Women's Club, Inc.; and Margaret Scott and Mary Chummings, both of Pontiac, the delegate and alternate of the Pontiac Republican Women's Club.

★ ★ ★

Delegates to the convention, for which over 4,000 clubs across the country are qualified to send representatives, will tour the White House, attend and conduct an awards luncheon. In addition, a dutch-treat cocktail buffet will be held at the Senate Office Building for the Michigan contingent.

Copper Tarnishes Faster Than Silver

Copper tarnishes almost 20 times as quickly as silver. Winter months are hardest on metals since heating systems contribute to smoke and gases in the air.

★ ★ ★

The new tarnish preventative spray is a wife-saver because it lessens the time spent polishing each year. Other members of the family will find it useful to keep buttons, buckles and jewelry shiny and protected.

Liven Up Home Decor With Framed Signature Scarves

NEW YORK — With the invasion of signature scarves — fashion's number one accessory — from every name designer, it's truly a challenge to use them in an individualistic way. Anyone can wear one, but some prints are so beautiful that they should be displayed on their own.

The newest innovation is to put a printed signature scarf in your favorite frame, or, under glass.

The easiest way to display your scarf is to cut a piece of cardboard the shape of the frame, (measuring the inside of the frame) and appiy double-face tape completely around the border. The next step is to take your scarf and carefully place it face-down on the double-face tape.

If you have any excess material, fold it back and secure it firmly in the back of the cardboard with tape. You then insert scarf-covered cardboard in the frame, hang it on the wall and voila, instant painting!

With the variety of printed signature scarves available today, you can change your decor as often as you change your mood.

If you have a square "Parsons" table, your work will be easier. All you will have to do is place the scarf on top of the table and add a piece of glass cut to size.

In any event, it really doesn't matter if you have a square table for any small table will do with a little imagination.

GLASS

Purchase one or two pieces of glass the size of your table. One piece is used for the bottom of the "sandwich." Cardboard cut the shape of your table will do just as well, however. The second piece of glass goes over the scarf. The glass doesn't necessarily have to be expensive; a thin cut will do fine.

Applying the same technique as used in the picture framing, tape the glass (or cardboard) with double-face tape around the entire border and place the scarf on top. In this case, it will be important to get your printed scarf the size of the table. Now that you have the scarf secured, just place the top piece of glass over the scarf.

★ ★ ★

If your table is rectangular and you find the oblong scarves too narrow, you can have a mat specially made to size at any frame store, and this will provide a border for your scarf.

Whether you decide to frame it or put it under glass, printed scarves are the perfect home accessory.

Let's Revitalize Poor, Old Mom

By BETTY CANARY
NEA Writer

I was pondering over the white hairs that had mysteriously appeared on my head when my daughter came into the room and asked, "Mother, when are you getting a shawl?"

"This is a bad time to make jokes," I snarled.

"I'm not joking. Get one with fringe, sort of Spanish," she said.

★ ★ ★

"In China they used to throw baby girls over cliffs," I said. (What I did not say was, "I'm beginning to understand why.")

"You never do anything I want," she pouted.

"Oh, I know what YOU want," I said. "Well, I'll be old and senile soon enough."

"You never listen to me."

"Yes, I can see what it's going to be like, all right," I whined. "You just can't wait, can you?"

"Are you crying?"

★ ★ ★

"Of course, I'm crying," I cried. "My hair turns white and the very first thing you want me to get is a shawl. Next it's going to be a rocking chair. Then telling all your friends about being tied down to an aging mother."

"Why don't you wipe the flour out of your bangs?" she asked.

"You'll not be satisfied until I'm locked up in an old people's home!" I sobbed. "Just think, a little 11-year-old girl turning on her mother. To think that I'd live to see this day!"

"The flour must be from the pie crust you were making," she said, as she scrubbed my forehead with a napkin.

"Yes, I bake, I slave . . ." I looked in the mirror. "Flour?" I asked.

"Flour," she said.

"Oh."

★ ★ ★

"Now, when are you getting a shawl?"

"Don't start that again!" I cried.

"Shawls are pretty," she said.

"Eleven years old! What do you know?"

"Just listen," she said. "I saw them in Vogue. Get one with fringe. You'd look beautiful. Beautiful!"

"That sounds like flattery."

"Oh, no," she said. "You really would."

"Really?"

"I think you would," she said.

★ ★ ★

"Well, that's different," I said. "After all, I do think you have good taste," I said. "Why, my goodness, if EVERY mother could have such a thoughtful, observant, intelligent 11-year-old daughter . . ."

Centennial Gear for 100th Year

GENESEO, Ill. (AP)—Women in ankle-length dresses and flowered bonnets were escorted to church by bearded men driving horse-drawn wagons as St. John's Lutheran Church turned back the clock to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the church founded by German immigrants.

★ ★ ★

In German tradition, the men sat in pews to the left of the aisle, while women were on the right. Services were conduced in German as they were when the church was founded. An old-time picnic with food served on handmade wooden tables supported by bales of hay was prepared by members of the Ladies Aid Society.

Fund-Shy Viets May Up Tax on Luxuries First

SAIGON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese government probably will start its new austerity program by raising taxes on imported luxuries, according to economic sources in Saigon.

Faced with a $40 million budget deficit and a 30 per cent yearly increase in inflation over the past three years, the new cabinet will have to take some unpopular measures to strengthen the economic situation, the sources said.

★ ★ ★

The sources said a broader income tax program also might be considered. The Vietnamese wage and salary earner cannot easily evade income tax, but professionals like doctors and lawyers often go scot free.

As far as the devaluation scare that hits this capital on an average of once a month, the sources said they were unable to make any predictions on this score.

VIETS LEERY

"The Vietnamese are extremely leery about devaluation. If there was one, it would be fixed so as to pull down the price of essential goods," the sources said.

Devaluation is an unpopular measure in Vietnam. It could cause sharp increases in the prices of imported goods, including some basic necessities.

★ ★ ★

The last devaluation was in June, 1968, when the piaster was devalued from 60 to 118 to the U.S. dollar. The dollar today, however, fetches over 200 piasters on the black market.

The sources say the current American troop withdrawals will not have much effect on the economy in these early phases.

NUMBER COULD RISE

They said the number of Vietnamese employed by American military installations, government offices and American contractors — now estimated at around 200,000 — could even rise as the troops left.

★ ★ ★

"Some of the outgoing troops could be replaced by local civilians in jobs around the bases, for example truck driving," the sources said.

The withdrawals are not likely to affect the country's dollar earnings. The sources said. Actual spending by GIs in Vietnam never has been encouraged. The pressure is put on the individual to save his money or to spend it on durable goods like cameras.

The United States brings in perishables from outside the country and has restricted its buying in Vietnam to such items as gravel, rock, sand and fresh vegetables.

★ ★ ★

On the bright side of the current economic situation, three basic commodities have dropped in priced in Saigon — rice by one per cent, sugar by 14 and sweetened condensed milk by six.

It decided to take up the "question of the elderly and aged" twelfth on the schedule and devote only one meeting to that.

Lawn and Garden News

SPRING'S COMING—Fall planting of rose bushes can put you one step ahead in the Spring. As long as you plant them far enough away from big shrubs or trees, roses can prosper in virtually any locale which provides them with about six hours of sunlight per day.

Do Most for Home

Trees Are Ignored

Trees, the plants that do the most for the appearance of the home, are probably the most neglected plants in the garden.

Too often feeding and spraying are designed for other plants in the garden, not trees. Older trees need a good diet to keep their limbs sound and to outgrow pest and storm damage.

The easiest way to feed trees is with your lawn spreader. After giving your lawn its fall feeding, just make an extra pass over the lawn under the spread of the tree's canopy, and a little past the dripline of the branches. The same fertilizer that you use for the lawn will help the tree.

The tree will make use of the nutrients from this fall feeding until it goes dormant. The remainder of the nutrients will leach down into the root zone to be available next spring when the roots start seeking food even before the top growth emerges.

REPEAT APPLICATION

Repeat this double application in the spring when you apply your regular lawn fertilizer.

Deep feeding trees, of course, is preferred. This puts the plant food down to a depth of 8 to 10 inches in evenly spaced, inch-wide holes punched or augured into the soil.

The holes are dug throughout the area under the spread of the tree's branches. Then a little plant food for trees is placed in the bottom of each. The holes are then filled with a mixture of peatmoss and sand to allow easy penetration of water and air deep into the soil.

The amount of plant food needed for each tree depends on the diameter of the main trunk. Amount of plant food in each hole will still be proportionately small.

LOCAL DEALERS

Fall is also an ideal time for planting trees. Don't hesitate to visit your dealer and let him help you select one or more. It is always wise to choose trees from local dealers because you can be sure their stock is acclimated to your area.

Your dealer will also help you spot your shade tree so that you will get the most benefit from it. The best location is usually a little south and west of the spot where you want protection from hot afternoon sun.

Be sure to plant large trees at least 15 feet from any structure to avoid possible damage to the building. Big, spreading trees need more room — sometimes 60 feet apart. Your dealer will give you more specific instructions.

SOME PICKLE! — Budd Orvis of 525 Emerson is mighty proud of the size of his cucumbers. Last year he grew some that reached 23-inches in length. Saving seed from the mother plants, he tried his luck again this year but the top size is 21 inches, though some are still growing and may beat his previous record if not killed by an early frost.

Mum Show at Tel-Twelve

"Autumn in Detroit," the ninth annual chrysanthemum flower show, will be presented at the Tel-Twelve Shopping Mall, 28600 Telegraph at 12 Mile, Southfield Oct. 4 and Oct. 5.

Hours on Saturday will be from 2-9 p.m. and Sunday from noon-6 p.m.

Many specimen varieties will be on display as well as colorful floral arrangements.

For people interested in developing a mum bed in their garden, this would be a good opportunity to actually see the varieties in full bloom and make notes for next season's garden list.

The show is sponsored by the Greater Detroit Chrysanthemum Society.

Clay Pot for Living Plants

Modern business offices, like well-kept modern homes, achieve a fresh-year-round outdoor look with living plants.

Some practical plants for renovating both homes and offices for fall include Philodendrons in large 14- or 16-inch clay pots with matching clay saucers; tall Sansevierias, used in combination with ferns or trailing ivy; Dieffenbachia, and such readily avilable flowering plants as compact clay-potted chrysanthemums and azaleas.

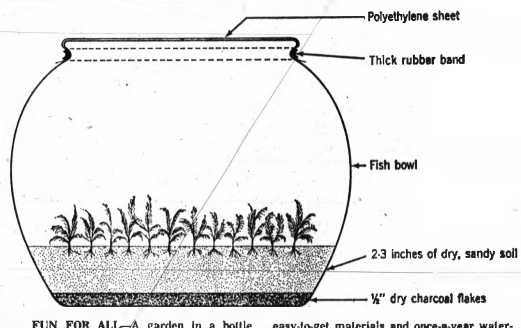
Clay-Potted Plants for Window Boxes

As fall approaches, window boxes often begin to drift into the annual summer doldrums. Give them an instantaneous lift by buying fresh clay-potted wax begonias for shaded window boxes, or early mums for sunny ones.

Set the plants in the soil, complete with pots, up to their rims.

No begonias or mums available? Then any clay-potted plants will do, the more colorful, the better.

Make sure each plant is in a porous clay pot so its roots will be able to breathe when you sink it into the soil.



FUN FOR ALL—A garden in a bottle can provide hours of gardening enjoyment during the long winter months. Virtually any bottle shape will do; and with a few easy-to-get materials and once-a-year watering, this miniature "terrarium" will thrive in its own moisture-producing atmosphere.

Important to Growers

What Is Good Garden Earth?

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

How do you tell the good earth from bad, as concerns your garden?

What is soil? Soil is a mixture of tiny particles of stone with organic matter, or humus, plant foods water, air and microscopic organisms.

★ ★ ★

The soil is sand or gravel, with little humus or food, if the particles are large. Water runs through, generally removing the small amount of nutrients present.

The soil is clay if the particles are fine. Drainage and humus are problems and air is scarce.

WOODS SOIL

Woods soil is largely organic matter and not fertile. Crops do not grow well. The same is true for peaty soils.

In between are loams of moderate-sized particles, frequently in varied sizes and adequate amounts of air, water, nutrients, humus and soil life. These are productive soils.

★ ★ ★

Coarse soils are sandy loams; solid, sticy loams are clay. Make a test. Put a pint of soil in a quart bottle, fill with water, shake and let it stand. The components will settle into layers.

In speaking of soil structure, this means not the proportionate amounts of sand, clay, humus and other parts, but their arrangements.

SAND

The single grain type is sand or gravel. Cultivation here is easy, but such soils dry out rapidly. In spring they are workable, but in summer they are difficult.

In clay, the tiny particles stick together, crust over and prevent rain from draining through, or penetrating. Circulation of air is poor, and the soil becomes lumpy and hard to dig or till when wet.

★ ★ ★

A mixture is the solution. It should be a crumbly structure with large, individual particles and small ones clustered together.

This provides good drainage, proper aeration and a place for water, humus and nutrients between particles.

SOLUTION

What to do? Spade sands and humus into heavy and clay soils and humus into sandy soils.

Hoeing in ground-limestone tends to make the soil crumbly.

★ ★ ★

Limestone also will correct excessive acidity, but a soil test should be made to determine whether there is acidity.

Collecting Leaves Causes Problems

Leaves make good, mineral-rich compost, but when they come tumbling down in the fall there are too many.

Ordinances forbid burning them in many areas because this adds to the serious problem of air pollution.

★ ★ ★

So the problem of disposing of them falls, too.

Collecting them is not easy. The wind blows dry leaves about. Wet leaves pack down. Cold and ice freeze them to the ground. They become slippery hazards to pedestrians and vehicles. They plug sewers.

BULKY, LOOSE

They are bulky and loose and moving them is a time and labor consuming problem.

Prof. Wesley W. Gunkel of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University says most cities and institutions have no specialized method of leaf handling.

"The equipment now in use is usually not very well-suited for the job," he says.

An idea born at the college developed into an automatic leaf baler that works on streets and golf courses much as the farm hay baler.

TIGHT PACKAGES

Two graduate students, L. J. Dominessy and T. E. Short, determined that dead leaves can be compressed into tight packages with relatively little manpower.

Their machine will collect, pick up, bale, tie and eject the bundles for transport.

A cylindrical sweeper funnels the leaves into a pickup unit equipped with rotating fingers and brush that feed them into a vertical compression chamber. There a plunger compresses them to reduce the volume.

A hydraulic ram presses the bale and another ram pushes them to a tying frame. Then they are ejected into a bin with an inclined bottom from which they slip off.

ENCLOSED

The vehicle will have three wheels for easy maneuverability. The baling operation will be enclosed, except for the front brushes, to minimize dust.

The device would have to be used before leaves are frozen solidly.

Returning to leaves as compost, there are mechanical sweepers that will tear thin leaves to tiny bits and disburse them along the lawn, where they will disintegrate and help enrich the soil.

Thick leaves should be raked into a compost heap.

OAK LEAVES

Oak leaves are acid and make good compost to spread around laurel, rhododendron, azalea, andromeda and evergreens.

Build leaf compost in layers. Over each layer sprinkle plant food, lime and soil. Water each layer.

Turn over the whole pile occasionally to speed the composting.

What It Takes

"A thin layer of earth, a few inches of rain, and a blanket of air makes human life possible on our planet . . . These essential resources must be available to provide the good life for our children and future generations." — John F. Kennedy.

"Our soil is our country — to save the one is to save the other." — Anonymous.

Love of Earth

"He who knows what sweets and virtues are in the ground, the water, the plants, the heavens, and how to come at these enchantments, is the rich and royal man."—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Overlooked Area Becomes Outdoor Recreation Room

If outdoor living fun passed you by this year because you don't have enough backyard area for a patio, now is the time to take a new look at your house.

Chances are, according to Robert Jacobsen, patio awning specialist for the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company, that there is an overlooked area that can be converted into an outdoor recreation room.

Jacobsen suggests five possibilities:

★ ★ ★

The front porch: There are approximately 20 million of them throughout the country, the Flexalum specialist points out. Modern aluminum awnings can be installed to provide daylong shade and the porch screened in for privacy and to keep out insects.

★ ★ ★

The front lawn: If you have no front porch, a covered front patio might be the answer. High hedges or fencing can supply the needed privacy.

★ ★ ★

The breezeway: By shading this area with an awning and enclosing the front and back with screening, this area can serve as your outdoor haven. Side entrance to house can be replaced by sliding glass doors to connect indoors more closely with the outside.

A carport: Special aluminum patio awnings can be easily adapted to carport installations to provide outdoor shade for the family, keep the inside of the house cooler and protect the family car during inclement weather.

The garage: A new trend in older homes that do not have the space for a needed playroom is to convert the garage into a recreation room with sliding glass doors opening onto a covered patio.

INDOOR BEAUTY—Indoor plants such as these can be chosen to complement the lines of a room. Various leaf forms and plant types can accent a living area or increase or decrease the apparent height of a room. Fall and winter months are great for indoor gardening, but from time to time you should moisten the air with a fine spray.

Plan, Plant Today for Future Beauty

Both home and community beauty are not built overnight, especially if these aspects of modern living have been neglected in the past.

With good planning, however, many communities can become their own little "garden of the world." The same is true of the home garden that is well-planned.

Thousands of small cities and towns can become much more worthwhile places to live if care is used in planting for beauty.

Here are some of the things that make a community beautiful.

CLUB EFFORTS

They can be accomplished through efforts by civic and service clubs:

First make a survey of the community. What streets need more trees? What about the business section — is it attractive? Are home owners proud enough of their properties to make them more beautiful?

Are public officials apathetic or enthusiastic about landscaping public buildings for more beauty? Are the entrances to the community beautiful or ugly?

Lovely street trees help make communities beautiful.

TOWN SQUARE

A town square well-planted becomes attractive.

School grounds can be made beautiful.

The community can have selected "town trees," one, or more, and a community flower — why not the rose, camellia, azalea, flowering crabapple, or cherry, dogwood, or others?

Most of all, whether a community is beautiful or ugly depends upon its leaders and citizens. Perhaps a meeting is all that is needed to start the community on the road to planning and eventually becoming the "Garden of the State," or even a "Garden of the World."

Club to Present Home Tour

Low heels will keep you in step Oct. 4 for a Fall Home Tour of Oxford Area Homes. Presented by the Oxford Junior Women's Club, it will be from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Tickets are available at the individual homes on the day of the tour.

★ ★ ★

The old farm house of Mr. and Mrs. Carl P. Seufert at 5631 Metamora, Oxford Township, has been remodeled into the 18th Century style. Furnished completely in authentic American antiques, the dining and living rooms are elegant, while the bedrooms are done in a more simple country style.

Mr. and Mrs. Troy W. Maschmeyer's love of horses is obvious to visitors to their home at 5551 Delano, Oxford Township. A hunt theme is carried out in the stables and newly constructed building which includes an indoor swimming pool and show ring.

WEDGEWOOD COLLECTION

Antiques from all over the world fill the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marc J. Parsons of 850 S. Lapeer, Oxford Township. The kitchen-family area contains a Wedgewood collection and Franklin stove.

An especially interesting piece is the piano which was made for a great-great-grandfather who was captain of a Clipper ship.

★ ★ ★

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Kroninger at 1344 W. Drahner, Oxford Township, was formerly owned by Brace Beemer of Lone Ranger fame. This old farm house with a recreational yard centered around family activities overlooks the fields Silver once roamed.

Furnished in traditional and early American style the home includes an authentic Tiffany lampshade.

GREEK REVIVAL

The Orion Township home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Beatty at 1200 S. Coats is built in the Greek Revival style. Overlooking Pine Lake, it is a new home with the grace of a bygone century.

★ ★ ★

The family room features rough sawn pine paneling and a walk-in fireplace of fieldstone.

★ ★ ★

Mediterranean furniture in a contemporary home at 526 Broadmeadow, Oxford Township, spells pure elegance. The suspended staircase lends a special look to the entrance foyer. A skylight in the master bath with its built-in closets adds a touch of luxury. Mr. and Mrs. George A. Wait are the owners.

Tea will be served from 12 noon to 3 p.m. at the Dominican Sisters' in the Residence Hall of DeLima College, 755 W. Drahner, Oxford Township. The chapel, DeLima College and the grounds of the Motherhouse will be open to visitors.

Burst of Color

For a burst of autumn color, try clay-potted golden and russet mums on your doorstep. Horticultural scientists have produced short-stemmed, compact chrysanthemum plants, without unattractive "legginess," but with a maximum of flowering buds. Mum plants, complete with clay saucers, can't be topped as fall's favorite flowers.

Autumn Planting Time Right for Roses Say the Experts

There's a springtime sort of pleasure this season of the year for gardeners who discover that autumn is a good time to begin growing roses.

Wherever winter temperatures rarely go below zero, fall planting is right for roses of most types.

★ ★ ★

Some suggestions on the subject which will contribute to the success of the planting and the future beauty of the plants.

Choose the location of the rose bed with care, advise the nurserymen.

PLACEMENT

Put the roses where you can see them frequently, enjoy them intimately, and care for them conveniently. Plant them as far as possible from any big shrubs or trees.

Roses need privacy, because they just can't compete with other roots for the moisture and food they need to survive.

Roses like the sunlight for about six hours — at least for half the day. Morning sun seems best, and some types of roses burn or bleach under hot afternoon sun.

★ ★ ★

The planting hole should be 15 to 18 inches wide for each rose plant, even if the roots don't look as though they require that much space.

PLANTING HOLE

The depth of the hole should be just enough to bring the bud union (the bulge where the main stem starts) about level with the surface soil.

In the center of the bottom of the hole there should be a mound of soil over which the roots of the plant will be spread.

★ ★ ★

Hold the bush in the center of the hole and spread the roots out, then work in fine soil until the hole is about half full and press it down firmly.

Pour in half a bucket of water around each bush, and when it settles replace the rest of the soil.

CARE REQUIRED

The continuing care required by roses is mainly food and water. "complete" plant food, high in phosphorus, is recommended.

Lawn fertilizers, with their high nitrogen content results in tender wood and short-lived blooms.

★ ★ ★

The water is even more important than food. Ideally, roses should get about an inch of rainfall a week, and if nature doesn't do the job be sure that you do.

Later this year you'll want to "winterize" your roses. In the case of bushes, that means preparing a hill of soil banked against the base of the plant to a height of 8 to 10 inches.

TREE ROSES

If you have tree roses, wrap the top in burlap and the trunk in heavy paper.

Plant your roses now for the fun of it, then watch beauty happen next spring.

Fight Against Winter Burn

The falling leaves that will be drifting by your window this fall can help protect your evergreens from "winter burn." They can help, that is, if you make the proper use of them.

"Winter burn" is actually damage that occurs when roots imprisoned in hard, cold soil are unable to replace the moisture lost through the foliage during periods of warm winter weather.

★ ★ ★

A blanket of loosely piled leaves, brush, and dry grass around the base of the tree or shrub provides just the simple and effective protection needed.

The winter mulch you create when you rake your lawn should be deep enough to store moisture and warmth, but at the same time it must be airy.

ARRANGING MULCH

If the leaves tend to mat down (as maple leaves will, for instance), arrange the mulch in thin layers with bits of brush between them.

A depth of from four to twelve inches is indicated, depending on how cold you think it will be this winter.

★ ★ ★

Speaking of evergreens, the nurserymen point out that this is a good time of year to plant them, and since they keep their good looks all year around they'll be especially welcome in the season that's on its way.

Plan to plant the shrubs or trees where you can see them from your window for a touch of cold-weather cheer. As entrance plantings they'll add a special note of welcome.

TRANSPLANTING

And if you've been planning to move some of your evergreens, perhaps to provide a screen or border for a special area of the yard, this is a safe season for transplanting.

Be sure to dig holes of really ample size, and pack the best soil available around the roots in their new location.

★ ★ ★

With more time this season for special garden activities, the care you give your evergreens — mulching, planting, or transplanting — will pay happy rewards.

Flowering Plants for Hostess Gifts

If you're buying a foliage or flowering plant as a home or hostess gift, here are a few suggestions. Remove any paper or foil that has been wrapped around the porous clay container.

Tight wrappings will stop the healthy flow of needed oxygen through porous pot walls. Choose a plant that will last.

★ ★ ★

Most green plants are extremely durable when given proper care, and some flowering plants can be planted outdoors when indoor blooming periods are over.

Another helpful touch is to include a simple plant care card with your gift — simplified watering instructions, and basic temperature and light requirements.

Keep Thumb Green, Grow Indoor Plants in Winter

Millions of gardeners everywhere share the joy of raising attractive, healthy plants inside their homes or greenhouses. Fall is an ideal time to try your hand at this indoor sport.

When you are choosing the plants you'll want, plan to complement the lines of the room you have selected. If you need vertical lines to increase the height of the room, you may want a Schefflera or a Dracaena.

* * *

Or if you should deemphasize the height, a bushy variety like the Spider Plant or a Begonia, or Croton, er even a viney plant like Pelionia or one of the types of ivys would be a wise choice. For added interest include different leaf forms and types.

Since most house plants prefer high humidity, select a place where several plants can be grouped together. The plants give off water vapor from the soil and leaves, and create a more natural enviromnent in which they will thrive.

MOISTEN AIR

From time to time it's a good idea to moisten the air with a fine spray of water.

The proper amount of light is important to the comfort of your plants, and it is useful to keep in mind the conditions of their original home. Most common house plants come from the shady, humid forest floors of the tropics where the light is diffused through several leafy plants above, protecting them from the intense heat.

* * *

Stimulating these conditions in your home is difficult but certainly not impossible with some small effort on your part. Remember that your plant will prefer semi-shade with light nearby in the summer. Don't over expose the plant to the sun. In fall and winter, the slowest growing period, the plant can be moved a bit nearer the light source.

DRAINAGE

Good drainage for a container-bound plant is a must. Again, the condition for your house plant should be similar to its natural environment. Proper drainage can be achieved by using a porous soil which allows water as well as air to reach the plant.

A basic recipe to follow for home-mixed soil is one-third loam, one-third sand, and one-third peat or perlite. Mixed soil can be purchased at your garden center.

* * *

The amount of water required by plants will vary. In their period of most active growth they usually need more: in fall and winter months they are dormant and the soil should be kept drier.

A general rule is to water house plants until the entire soil base is wet. Then wait until the soil on the top is dry before watering again.

FOOD

Plant foods or fertilizers are suggested by the nurserymen for the active growth period, but take care not to over-feed the plant.

The fall and winter months are great for gardening indoors. The selection of house plants is really endless, so pick the ones you like, learn what their needs are, and enjoy living with them.

Red Clay Pots Help Decorate

Red clay flower pots, in addition to being the most suitable containers for living plants, are growing in favor as decorative accessories.

For a summer luncheon, your entire theme can be built around clay pots — with or without plants inside.

* * *

You can serve the first course of a "garden-look" luncheon in a low clay pot bulb pan or clay saucer lined with aluminum foil to contain your favorite salad.

Or serve the dessert in a clay bulb pan lined with a glass dish that just fits inside.

TABLE DECORATIONS

For table decorations set clay-potted azaleas, geraniums or small foliage plants at each place, with matching clay saucers.

Your center of attraction can be a tray filled with individual plants, or one of the larger professionally grown combination plants.

* * *

If it's a bridge party of house plant enthusiasts, your prizes can be sets of the most popular sizes of clay pots and accompanying clay saucers.

Most house plants are kept in clay pots from 3 to eight inches in diameter.

HABACHIS

If your luncheon or dinner guests are barbecue fans, supply them with individual habachis and let each do his own steak, ribs, hamburgers or frankfurters with individual wire barbecue racks.

To make "quickie" habachis, simply line a number of 8-inch or larger clay pots with a double thickness of aluminum foil, set them on clay saucers and fill with started charcoal briquettes.

* * *

For children's party decorations, baloons on wooden sticks can be stuck into small clay pots filled with pebbles or candy.

Small clay pots or saucers lined with colorful papers also make good individual nut or candy dishes.

Plants Replace Pavement Desert

Ever since Juan Cabrillo sailed north from Mexico to California and called it "very close to terrestrial paradise," Californians have boasted of their "Garden of the World." Floridians have done the same, New Jersey is the "Garden State."

* * *

Plants provide much of the beauty of all areas. Without them, whether in built-up or rural areas, America becomes a desert, sometimes a desert of pavement.

Three Guards at NY School After Ruckus

NEW YORK (AP) — Three security guards are on duty today at Brooklyn's Erasmus High School where a gang of opponents of U.S. policy in Vietnam invaded two classrooms Wednesday, tied up the teachers and urged the students to go to Chicago for demonstrations.

The board of education assigned the guards Thursday at the request of Mayor John V. Lindsay, who also asked a special detail of detectives to investigate the incident.

The gang, about 17 in number, entered the huge school unnoticed and marched into two adjacent classrooms on the third floor, chanting "Ho Chi Minh lives—on to Chicago!" As they harangued the students, the teachers objected.

The radicals tied the teachers to their chairs, taped their mouths and continued the polemic. Then they slipped back out of the school.

Police later arrested two men and a woman outside the school as they distributed pamphlets from Students for a Democratic Society. The three pleaded guilty to loitering and two were sentenced to 10 days in jail. The other man received a 15-day sentence.

Sympathizers of Vietcong Raid Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A score of youthful Viet Cong sympathizers assaulted staff members and broke windows in a 10-minute raid Thursday on Harvard University's Center for International Affairs.

University officials said four persons were injured by the gang, which left before police reached the scene.

The youths entered the building shouting, "We're going to close this place down!" and "We are SDS," an apparent reference to the antiwar Students for a Democratic Society.

Ronald Brunner, a research fellow conducting a seminar on political participation, was pushed to the floor and kicked in the groin.

Dr. Benjamin H. Brown, an adviser, was cut on the ear when one of the group hit him on the head and pushed him down a flight of stairs.

Maury Feld, a librarian, was wrestled down a stairway when he tried to call police. His telephone was ripped out.

An elderly secretary was treated for a bruised hip.

Asst. Prof. James Kurth said he was punched repeatedly in the face.

Outside the building, other members of the gang pelted windows with rocks and used red paint to stencil slogans on the walls, including, "NLF will win."

Witnesses said no Harvard students were recognized among the gang members and police said there was no evidence any were involved.

Suspect, 34, Sought in Fatal Texas Fight

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Police pressed their search today for a man they said had a fight with Dykes Askew Simmons shortly before he was found dead.

Simmons, 40, escaped last April from a Mexican prison where he had served 10 years of a life sentence for three murders he said he did not commit.

His body, battered and bloody, was found Wednesday outside the home of the owner of a liquor store where police said the fight started.

Police identified the man sought as Paul Wayne Howell, 34. "We'd like to talk to him," said Detective V. T. Sommers, "but he has not been charged in the case."

8 Charged in Convention 'Plot'

Jury Is Seated for Chicago Riot Trial

CHICAGO (AP) — Attorneys present their opening arguments today in the trial of eight men charged with conspiracy to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

A jury of two men and 10 women was seated Thursday. Two of the women jurors are Negroes. Most of those chosen are housewives. Four women alternate jurors also were agreed to by the prosecution and defense.

The defendants are charged with conspiracy to violate the antiriot provisions of the Civil Rights Act by:

● Traveling across state lines with the intention of inciting a riot.

● Teaching the use of incendiary devices with the intention they be employed in a riot.

★ ★ ★

● Obstructing firemen and law enforcement officials in the performance of their duties during a riot.

Hippie supporters of the defendants who clashed with police Wednesday at the opening of the trial refrained from further confrontations on its second day.

Defendants are Bobby G. Seale, 32, of Oakland, Calif., chairman of the Black Panther party; Jerry C. Rubin, 31, and Abbie Hoffman, 31, both of New York and leaders of the Youth International party—Yippies. David T. Dellinger, 53, New York, editor of Liberation magazine; Rennie Davis, 29, Chicago, an antiwar organizer; John R. Froines, 30, Eugene, Ore., a University of Oregon chemistry professor; Thomas E. Hayden, 30, a founder of the Students for a Democratic Society, and Lee Weiner, 29, of Chicago, a Northwestern University research assistant in sociology.

In the selection of jurors, defense attorneys exercised 10 of their permissible 17 peremptory challenges. U.S. Atty. Thomas A. Foran and his assistant, Richard G. Schultz, challenged only two veniremen.

William M. Kunstler of New York, one of the defense lawyers, argued that one of the women in the venire, Judith A. Sage, daughter of a policeman, should be dismissed for cause.

When U.S. Dist. Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman denied the ruling, the defense exercised a peremptory challenge.

Kunstler also objected that Hoffman, in reading the indictment to the jurors, had sounded like "Orson Wells reading the Declaration of Independence."

"I've never been so complimented as to be compared with a great actor such as Orson Wells . . . and I overrule the objection," the judge replied.

'Miracle Rice' Is Only So-so, Critics Contend

By JUAN L. MERCADO
London Financial Times — UPI

MANILA — A short, stiff-strawed plant hailed as "miracle rice" a year or two ago is turning out to be not quite as miraculous as was at first thought.

The problems that the plant is meeting in 1969 are a far cry from those of 1962. At that time, the worries of scientists working at the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI) in the Philippines were simpler: How would the seeds — formed from the pollen of rice flowers from Taiwan and Indonesia — turn out?

* * *

The new seeds tripled, even quadrupled, harvests. Unemotional scientists christened the seed IR8-288-3. This breakthrough, however, excited the volatile and free-swinging Filipino press. The enthusiastic reports on "miracle rice" filtered soon enough to the world press.

"While IRRI produced IP8-288-3, 'miracle rice' was created and propagated by the press," a University of the Philippines study said.

LAVISH PRAISE

"Press treatment has been so lavish with its praise for IR8, the variety has acquired almost human qualities . . . Spectacular and often wildly conflicting claims have been made for — or against — IR8 by Filipino and other Asian journalists."

Buoyed by this acclaim, IR8 and later, IR5, seeds, were sown all over Asia, where the grain shortages were all too real.

* * *

By the end of 1968, IR8 seeds covered 4.8 million hectares (about 12 million acres) of Asian farmland. By this time, the bumper harvests were, of course, coming in. So were a clutch of second- and even third-generation problems.

Dazzled by the prospect of solving, almost overnight, the ancient problem of perennial rice shortages, many Asian leaders adapted, unconsciously, a "domino theory" on rice.

"It is surprising to note the number of scientists and policy makers who apparently believed when self-sufficiency was achieved in rice production, all other development problems could resolve themselves in due time," IRRI agricultural economist Randolph Barker told an Asian Development Bank seminar.

As initial press acclaim waned, the limitations of IR8 and IR5 came to the fore.

* * *

Miracle rice does not produce the clean, hard, flinty grain that allows high recovery of head rice on milling. Its cooking quality also does not quite accord with Asian tastebuds.

Thus, resistance to IR8 and IR5 began to crop up, even as pressure for acceptable food grains continued to mount due to population growth. In mid-1969, population in Asia already stood at 1.9 billion.

TASK FOR SCIENTISTS

The job for the scientists at IRRI and elsewhere is to draw from their test tubes palatable grains that are, at the same time, resistant to the major disease of the rice plant.

Bacterial blight and streak continue to take a heavy toll of production. Virus diseases — tungro and grassy stunt — are spreading rapidly throughout Asia. The spread has been so swift that they are now considered a major threat to rice.

* * *

Scientists today believe research over the next decade should concentrate on one area: How to develop varieties that are resistant to the disease while losing nothing of IR8 and IR5's proven capability to triple harvests.

Junior Editors Quiz on RAWHIDE

QUESTION: How does rawhide differ from leather?

* * *

ANSWER: The Indians and pioneers of the early days of this country made great use of the hides of the large animals they hunted. Hides were used in two main ways: as leather or as rawhide.

When dressed or treated, they became some kind of leather. One kind was made by rubbing in the brains, liver and fat of the animal to make the skin soft and pliable. This was the method used to produce the beautiful deerskins and buffalo hides which were made into clothes by Indians and pioneers alike.

* * *

Sturdy, strong leather, suitable for horse gear, was and still is made by treating hides with the vegetable material called "tannin."

* * *

The other main use of hides is for making rawhide — the skin being untreated except for the removal of extra meat and hair. Soft at first, rawhide shrinks and hardens upon drying.

The Indians stretched it over the wood bases of their saddles and made soles for their mocassins. It was used for the short horse whips called quirts and in many other ways as well.

(You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

There were just 15 united states when Jacob Beam started making this Bourbon.

The U.S.A. was a tall, strong, heady child in 1795. That's when Jacob Beam, a pioneer Kentucky grain farmer with muscled hands and smiling eyes, gave it a Bourbon whiskey to call its own. Beam. A straight Kentucky Bourbon so smooth and fine and light-tasting we haven't seen cause to change it, not even a little bit, in 175 years. Not the formula. Not the process. Not the taste. Why heck, to some of us, that's the American way. "World's finest Bourbon since 1795."

Bonn Political Marriage Is on Rocks

BONN (UPI) — The political supremacy in the parliamentary marriage of convenience celebrated in West Germany 35 months ago is ripping at the seams, with the two partners in government fighting bitterly for election on Sunday.

At stake is the leadership of the government for the next four years.

★ ★ ★

That leadership has been held by the Christian Democrats since the late Konrad Adenauer became the first chancellor of the Federal Republic of West Germany in 1949.

This year, the Christian Democrats are running scared.

For the first time, they admit that the Social Democrats and the small Free Democratic party together may corner enough votes to form a government.

"Our first aim is to prevent those two parties forming a government," says an aide to Kurt Georg Kiesinger, the white-haired Christian Democrat with the regal manners who has been chancellor since the end of 1966.

★ ★ ★

Kiesinger became head of the Christian Democratic party and its candidate for chancellor three years ago because he was the only one of its leaders acceptable to the Social Democrats, whose support was necessary to keep the Christian Democrats in office.

Social Democratic Chairman Willy Brandt, who acquired international renown as mayor of West Berlin, became foreign minister and deputy chancellor. The cabinet seats were divided, 11 going to the Christian Democrats and nine to the Social Democrats.

90 PCT. OF SEATS

Together, the two parties controlled 90 per cent of the seats in the lower house of parliament.

The Free Democratic party, a liberal group controlling only 10 per cent of the seats, found itself alone in opposition.

The unusual partnership worked well for a time. But strains began to show during 1968. One of the first was differences over the nuclear weapons nonproliferation treaty. Brandt thought the government ought to sign it, while Kiesinger and his aides did not.

★ ★ ★

Another was the international demand for Germany to revalue its currency upward. Economics Minister Karl Schiller, a Social Democrat, favored upward revaluation. Kiesinger and finance minister Franz Strauss opposed it.

★ ★ ★

By the time parliament recessed this summer, members of the two government parties were spending most of their public appearances in criticizing each other.

Facts Listed About Key German Vote

BONN (UPI) — The West German election at a glance:

Polling Day: Sunday.

Being elected: 496 members of the Bundestag, or lower house of parliament. The Bundestag chooses the government.

Eligible voters: 38.6 million. 17.5 million men, 21.1 million women.

Thirteen parties are on the ballot, but most of them are splinter groups. The principal parties are listed below with the percentages of the vote they won four years ago and the numbers of their seats in the outgoing Bundestag.

Christian Democratic Union 47.6-245.

Social Democratic party of Germany 39.2-202.

Free Democratic party 9.5-49.

National Democratic party of Germany 2.0-none.

The republic is divided into 248 election districts. One deputy is elected directly from each. The other 248 deputies are drawn from lists of candidates nominated by the parties at state level.

Teen Is Charged in $50,000 Fire

COVERT (AP)—State Police have charged a 16-year-old Covert boy with starting a $50,000 blaze which destroyed three buildings here Aug. 20.

Troopers said the youth told them he lit the wick of a gasoline-filled bottle and threw it into a window of the Covert Lumber Supply Co. The fire destroyed the company's two buildings and a nearby hardware store warehouse.

He Says New York Beggars Give Trade a Light Touch

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—In Paris, they call them "clochards," or bums. They sleep under the bridges in summer, and over the sidewalk gratings in winter, and they beg.

WILSON

There are more mendicants on the streets of New York now than there are in Paris (there are more sidewalk prostitutes, too)—and some people claim the new ones, including many who are just kids, are more sophisticated than the beggars we used to have.

I deny that and offer a story to prove I'm right.

We had quality beggars in the days gone by.

There's such quantity that you have to do broken field zig-zagging to get past them now. I was tackled by five in one block between 21 and Toots Shor's on W. 52nd.

★ ★ ★

But their happiest begging ground now is probably W. 57th, one of our most fascinating streets, where hastening pedestrians are generous and kind.

★ ★ ★

I saw one young beggar, who looked like a college student, approach four people. He got money from three. The fourth, who didn't give, was me. I was out of change from giving to others earlier.

Their approach may be slick.

"I'm so embarrassed. Somebody picked my pocket at 'I Am Curious (Yellow).' Could you lend me $5? I'll mail it to you as soon as I get back to Scarsdale."

★ ★ ★

A humorous type says he's from Hartford and needs $25 to make a down payment on a Countess Mara tie or a suit by Dimitri of Italy. However, he makes clear he'll accept 25 cents.

Seafood has long been a favorite of people all over the world. And perhaps the place most famous for seafood is New England. Maine lobsters are enjoyed everywhere. All of the Maine lobsters are edible except for the bony shell structure, the small crop or craw in the head of the lobster, and the dark vein running down the back of the body meat. The green is the liver or tomalley. It is excellent eating, as is the red or coral, the lobster's undeveloped spawn. Occasionally the coral may be dark before cooking, but it is still good eating. So put on your bib, get out the nut crackers, and enjoy lobster cooked in your favorite way.

PTA Month Set

LANSING (AP — Gov. William Milliken has proclaimed October as PTA Membership Enrollment Month in Michigan to mark the 52nd anniversary of the Michigan Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Trustee Chief Chides Colleagues

Acting MSU Prexy Gets Plug

EAST LANSING (UPI) — Don Stevens, chairman of the Michigan State University Board of Trustees, chided his colleagues yesterday for bickering over a new MSU president — and put in an indirect plug for acting President Walter Adams to get the job permanently.

Stevens' remarks, before the Michigan Agricultural Conference emphasized his rumored support for the popular, cigar chewing Adams.

* * *

"I would be remiss if I did not tell you . . . that I am heartened by the way in which Dr. Walter Adams has handled the duties of the presidency in the last six months," Stevens said.

"He has accepted and met these new and unsought tasks during a very trying period for campus administrators across the nation.

'RELATIVELY UNTROUBLED'

"The fact that Michigan State has remained relatively untroubled by currents of unrest is a tribute to his leadership, dedication, wisdom and ability."

Adams, an economics professor and a staunch Democrat, was picked by the Democratic-dominated board to fill in as president until a permanent successor to John A. Hannah could be found.

* * *

Hannah resigned last spring after 28 years at MSU to become foreign aid director in the Nixon administration.

The search for his successor has been marked by bitter bickering among the eight has said he does not want the job permanently. But insiders say he appears to be weakening.

A special committee of faculty, students and alumni was set up to screen possible trustees, five of them Democrats. Reportedly, Democrat Warren Huff has joined the Republicans in opposing Adams' selection despite pressure from faculty and students.

WEAKENING?

Adams, from the beginning, candidates. After recommending four men to the trustees, the board asked the committee for more names.

* * *

"There was a time not too long ago when you could publicly ask for advice, but ignore it, when it was forthcoming," Stevens said. "Not any more . . .

"Each trustee must consider the interests of all the people of the state in making this individual decision. Each trustee is, or should be, conscious of the fact that he has no individual authority or power."

PRESSURE FOR SOAPY?

Democrat Stevens, education director for the Michigan AFL-CIO, is reportedly under heavy pressure by union leaders to deliver the MSU presidency to G. Mennen Williams, a University of Michigan graduate and former six-term Democratic governor of Michigan.

Stevens has denied these reports, saying he will be guided by the special committee. Known on campus as the "Search and Seizure Committee," it reportedly rejected Williams as a possibility.

* * *

"I will not propose a candidate who comes to the board without the support of the search and selection committee," Stevens said.

"To do otherwise would be to reject both the efforts of the committee and, more importantly, the principle of involvement inherent in the formation of the committee in the first place."

* * *

In its first issue of the fall term, the Michigan State News, MSU student newspaper, editorially endorsed Adams. Faculty members opposed to Williams as president also announced they had 700 signatures in support of Adams.

State Attorney Is Cleared in Client's Death

DETROIT (AP) — The Wayne County prosecutor's office has announced that no charges will be brought against a Plymouth attorney in the fatal shooting of a client.

Cleared Thursday was Robert Greenstein, 52, whose gun shot Martin B. Hexham, 38, of Livonia Tuesday in downtown Detroit.

Greenstein told police he and Hexham had walked to a parking lot to pick up the client's car.

As Hexham slapped the attorney on the back to thank him for representing him in court Greenstein said his gun fell from a shoulder holster, hit the ground and fired one shot into Hexham.

Police said Greenstein had a gun permit and the gun was registered with police.

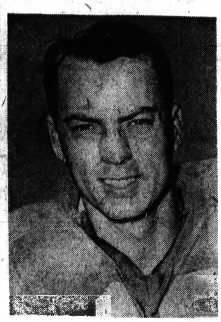
Starts Against Lions

Bruce Maher Little Giant of Giants



MILT PLUM

BRUCE MAHER

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

A couple of familiar names will take the field Sunday when the Detroit Lions and New York Giants tangle in the home opener at Tiger Stadium.

Milt Plum and Bruce Maher often heard boos as much as they heard cheers when they played with the Lions. Now they will be playing against the Lions who will be trying to come back on the right track after their dismal showing in Pittsburgh last Sunday.

* * *

The Giants under new head coach Alex Webster won an "emotional" victory over the powerful Minnesota Vikings, 24-23, as quarterback Fran Tarkenton scrambled his former teammates to death.

"We certainly don't have the strength of the Vikings," said publicity director Don Smith, "but we were emotionally high for the game, playing at home under a new coach."

Plum, who went to Los Angeles from Detroit in the deal involving Bill Munson, was traded earlier this season to the Giants. He did not play in the opener against the Vikings.

TONGUE-LASHING

Maher, however, has been the regular tight safety for the Giants since being traded two years ago and last week the fiery little defensive back gave his teammates a tongue-lashing which helped fire them up for the last quarter victory.

Smith said, "The Vikings, of course, took the lead and we were dejected when we went into the locker room at halftime."

"Maher came into the locker room, slammed his helmet into the locker and yelled, 'You . . . . ., what are you going to do quit. We can beat them. Let's play ball.' "

As it happened the Giants scored 14 points in the last five minutes and carried their new coach Webster off the field on their shoulders.

"You can believe one thing," said Smith, "when Maher came to us, he showed our defensive backs how to play tough. He's small and often gets beat because the big receivers can take the ball over his head, but when it comes to tackling and contact he's as tough as they come."

Smith wasn't telling Lions' fans anything new. The fiery Maher always made up his lack of size with his competitive spirit.

Early in camp this season he suffered a shoulder separation and as Smith tells it, "He'd come out to the field and start running around with his arm in a sling. The coaches had to tell him to get off the field."

Passing Game in Spotlight at M, MSU

TAGGING A SENATOR — Dick Smith of the Washington Senators is tagged at home plate by Detroit catcher Bill Freehan in the second inning of their game at Tiger Stadium yesterday. Smith attempted to score on a fielder's choice. It was the last home game for the Tigers and the Senators won it, 7-2.

Spartans Must Guard Against SMU Aerials

EAST LANSING (AP) — The Southern Methodist-Michigan State game Saturday should help decide a classic football argument -- if a powerful passing attack can whip a strong running team.

Mustang quarterback Chuck Hixson was the top passer of the collegiate ranks last season. He hit an amazing 265 completions in 468 attempts for 3,103 yards and 21 touchdowns.

So far this season Hixson has completed 59 of an even 100 tries for 599 yards and five touchdowns.

* * *

Southern Methodist still lost its first two games, 26-22 to Air Force and 24-21 to Georgia Tech.

Before the season, Michigan State coach Duffy Daugherty went way out on a limb, declaring: "Bill Triplett could be the greatest quarterback in our history."

Triplett did score two touchdowns in the 27-11 comeback win over Washington. But he threw more to the opposition than the green and white receivers, completing only two of a dozen pass tries and allowing three interceptions.

HARD WAY

When the air arm broke down, Michigan State had to grind it out the hard way. The Spartans netted 280 yards rushing to 133 for the opposition.

Senior Don Highsmith was the bull of the offense with his 148 yards net on the ground. Sophomore Eric Allen, a breakaway back, carried for 113 yards.

Allen was given the ball for 28 carries — topped for individual effort in this department only by the 31 carries by fullback Frank Waters in 1947 against Santa Clara.

Daugherty says Triplett should improve and notes he has been passing well in practice.

The strategy, meanwhile, is obvious. The Spartans have been drilled on pass defense all week. Daugherty also hopes to hold on to the ball so Hixson won't have a chance to throw to such fine receivers as ends Gary Hammond and Ken Fleming.

"We hope to avoid the long bombs," Daugherty said, "pick off a few, capitalize on their mistakes and hold their scoring to a minimum."

Linebacker Don Law, who speared a Washington pass and ran 70 yards for an MSU touchdown, could be one of the MSU lifesavers.

Daugherty has a theory teams make their greatest improvement between their first and second games.

* * *

This also will be tested in Spartan Stadium. The visiting Mustangs had a 8-3 won and lost season, including a bowl win over Oklahoma last fall. They are bound to be eager and angry.

Michigan State was 5-5 won and lost. Last year all the losses came in Big Ten play.

Michigan Will Try to Improve Passing Attack

From Our News Wires

ANN ARBOR — Glenn "Bo" Schembechler is worried about his passing attack — so he intends for his University of Michigan football team to brush it up against the University of Washington Saturday.

"We're probably going to pass more against Washington than we did against Vanderbilt last week because of Washington's bigger line," said Schembechler, whose team toppled the Comodores, 42-14, mostly on the ground.

* * *

"Our receivers still can't catch the ball and the problem is all fundamental. All they have to do is look at the ball, grab it and pull it into their gut.

* * *

"There's nothing to the pass patterns or plays that makes it hard but it seems that we want to run with the ball before we catch it," Michigan's rookie coach said.

INSIDE ATTACK

"Our quarterbacks also have problems of getting the ball to the receivers and now is not the time to start making mistakes," Schembechler said, adding, "it doesn't mean we've disregarded our inside attack."

The Wolverines only had 36 net yards passing against Vanderbilt while rolling up 367 yards on the ground.

Defensive end Phil Seymour will be the only player not in uniform for the Wolverines.

* * *

Seymour, who injured his leg several weeks ago, will not be ready to play until the Purdue game Oct. 11, reported Schembechler after Thursday's practice session.

Schembechler also said that although Billy Taylor has completely recovered from a shoulder injury, the sophomore halfback has been having trouble with his timing and may not play on Saturday.

* * *

Taylor practiced Monday for the first time in three weeks.

* * *

The Wolverines ran through a brief one-hour practice Thursday, in which they emphasized all aspects of their offensive and defensive game.

2 Tons of Linemen in Firebirds' Clash

When the Pontiac Firebirds and Lackawanna Lancers meet Saturday night in the key game of the Midwest Football League, the opposing offensive and defensive lines could be as big as any in pro football.

* * *

Pontiac's defensive front four of tackles Jerry Thick (300) and Ed Gillespie (270) and ends Dan LaRose (255) and Joe Carter (290) will pit their 1,115 pounds against the 1,040 offensive pounds of the Lancers, including guards Jim Smallwood (270) and Ted Gibbons (270) and tackles Ken Muir (240) and Harry Sugg (260).

* * *

On other hand, the Lackawanna front four of tackles Barry Connors (280) and John Troglaur (270) and ends John Valvo (245) and Russ Dispartil (265) with a total of 1,010 pounds will match strength against the Firebirds offense totalling 1,000 pounds with tackles Joe Russell (250) and Bill Troy (235) and guards Don Barrick (275) and Al Popenhager (235).

EX-ROCHESTER GRIDDER

Barrick, a former Rochester High School football player, is the veteran of the Firebirds' offensive line, having played five years in the MFL, starting with the Mt. Clemens Arrows before that team came to Pontiac for couple years.

* * *

A resident of Ferndale, Barrick played football in the U.S. Marines for four years, and he has been one of the reasons why Doug Holcomb, has been one of the least touched quarterbacks in the league.

* * *

The Firebird offensive line has held off the big defensive lines as indicated by the statistics. While the Firebirds have thrown opposing quarterbacks for losses 21 times this year, Holcomb has been knocked on his seat attempting to pass 11 times.

FIRST GAME

In their first meeting, led by DaRose, the Firebirds smeared Lackawanna quarterback Butch VanRemmen four times, but an interception, fumble and bad snap on a punt were the big breaks which helped the Lancers to a 24-6 triumph.

The game Saturday night will be the fourth meeting in the all time series between the teams and Lackawanna has won all three previous encounters.

* * *

The Lancers have been installed as seven point favorites.

Game time is 7:30 p.m. Firebird officials have announced that all reserved seats are gone, however $2 general admission tickets will be available at advance agencies, Osmun's Grill, Bob-Ken's, VFW Post 1370, Firebirds Lounge and Coleman's Furniture.

* * *

Ticket windows will open at 6:00 p.m. at the Stadium.

The Pontiac Central band will perform at halftime of the game.

Cannon Bandits Hit Princeton

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A band of Rutgers University students apparently staged a predawn raid Thursday and made off with a Revolutionary War cannon belonging to Princeton University.

The cannon, which weighs a half-ton, was encased in concrete.

* * *

The cannon bandits left a mound of dirt, a four-foot hole, and a note in red paint, reading. "Thanks! Love, Rutgers '72."

The raid took place two days before the centennial football game between Princeton and Rutgers Saturday.

* * *

Princeton University officials discovered the theft when an unidentified caller telephoned officials wanting confirmation the cannon was gone.

Columbus Ace Volmar Signs With Detroit

DETROIT (UPI) — Doug Volmar, 24, a right wing who scored 63 goals at Columbus last season, has signed with the Detroit Red Wings, Detroit General Manager Sid Abel announced Thursday.

* * *

Volmar, of Clvieveland, Ohio, will be assigned to either the Fort Worth Wings in the Central Hockey League or Cleveland Barons in the American Hockey League.

First Exhibition Set for Pistons and New Coach

MARYSVILLE (AP)—The Detroit Pistons leave their training camp today with new coach Bill van Breda Kolff saying cautiously:

"We've improved from the start of the camp, but I don't know if it's good enough to go against other teams."

The Pistons find out Saturday when they open an 11-game exhibition schedule against the New York Knickerbockers in Grand Rapids.

Only 14 players, including the ailing Dave Bing, are left on the club's roster.

Forward Steve Vandenberg, a 6-foot-7 draft pick from Duke, received his walking papers after a Blue team whipped the Whites, 92-77, Thursday in an intra-squad game which attracted 400 fans.

If Tigers Ever Look Back, They'll See Bosox Up Close

DETROIT (AP) — That immortal quote: 'Don't look back, someone may be gaining on you," is attributed to pitching legend Satchel Paige. But Detroit Tiger Manager Mayo Smith apparently goes along with it.

Detroit lost 7-2 to the Washington Senators Thursday to give the Nats a three-game series sweep and give the Tigers their sixth loss in eight games.

Meanwhile Boston, which seemed doomed for third place in the American League East just a week ago, moved to within a game of the second-place Tigers by beating New York 4-3. The financial difference between the finishes is $800 a player.

Detroit and the Red Sox were to open their critical three game series in Boston tonight with Joe Sparma, 6-8, making his first start in a month and a half for the Tigers. Mike Garman, 1-0, was the scheduled Boston starter.

"I'm not keeping a close eye on them," Smith said of the Sox. "We'll just try to finish second, that's all."

Mayo admitted the Tiger have been flat lately. Thursday's game, which drew only 4,589 for the smallest crowd since Oct. 1, 1966, was the last at home this season. It gave Detroit a final attendance figure of 1,577,481.

Detroit only got three hits: a single by Norm Cash and his 21st homer of the years, plus a solo home run by Mickey Stanley in the ninth inning. The Senators collected 22 runs in the series, with Ken McMullen knocking in eight of them, including three Thursday.

Motta Signs New Pact

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jake Motta, coach of the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association, was given a new three-year contract it was announced Thursday.

Rebuilding Job Ahead

Phillies Name Lucchesi

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frank Lucchesi, a minor league manager for the past 19 years, has been signed to a two-year contract as manager of the National League's Philadelphia Phillies.

Lucchesi succeeds interim manager George Myatt, who took over the club after Bob Skinner quit in a huff last Aug. 7.

* * *

Skinner resigned and blasted the Phillies' front office for lack of support, especially in the handling of controversial slugger Rich Allen.

Lucchesi managed at Eugene, Ore., in the Pacific Coast League this year, directing the Phillies farm club to the regular season pennant. Eugene lost the PCL playoffs to Tacoma.

The 42-year-old Lucchesi has been in the Phillies system for 14 of his 19 years. He posted 11 winning seasons and won six championships. His overall record shows 1,106 victories against 901 losses for .531 percentage.

Five times Lucchesi was a minor league manager of the year—in 1955 at Pocatello of the Pioneer League, 1960 with Williamsport in the Eastern League, 1961 at Chattanooga of the South Atlantic League, again at Williamsport in 1962, and with Little Rock of the PCL in 1964.

Lucchesi takes over the job of rebuilding a team which will finish next to last in the eastern division, beating out only the expansion Montreal Expos. He becomes the 27th Phillies manager since 1900.

* * *

Appointment of Lucchesi was announced at a news conference by Phillies owner Bob Carpenter and General Manager John Quinn.

Lucchesi brings to the job a thorough knowledge of the farm system from which the Phillies are expected to draw heavily for their 1970 team. He will join with Quinn in a reported housecleaning of the team.

There was no immediate indication of Lucchesi's views on Allen, who has said he won't play another season in Philadelphia.

No. 1 Touted OSU Starts Orbit With TCU

Buckeyes Set to Launch '69 Grid Campaign

Horned Frogs to Face Powerful Ohio State Veteran Squad

By the Associated Press

Ohio State launches its football season Saturday—and it's not expected to take very long for Coach Woody Hayes' veteran national champs to reach orbit.

The Buckeyes are overwhelming favorities to brush aside Texas Christian and extend their nation's longest winning streak to 16 games.

* * *

"It'll be a high scoring game," predicted Hayes, but with the mass of talent available, it will probably be the No. 1 ranked Buckeyes doing most of the scoring.

Hayes has 18 of 22 regulars back from last year's squad which rolled past 10 straight foes, including Southern California in the Rose Bowl.

STRONG BENCH

And, the Bucks boast excellent depth at every position, particularly the backfield headed by quarterbacks Ron Maciejowski and Rex Kern, fullback Jim Otis and halfbacks Larry Zelina, Ray Gillian, John Brockington and Leo Hayden.

The Horned Frogs, behind Steve Judy's four touchdown passes, rallied from a 35-7 deficit in their opener last week before losing to Purdue 42-35.

* * *

But TCU surrendered 583 yards in that game—and the Horned Frogs should have even more trouble containing Ohio State's potent, versatile attack.

Meanwhile, explosive Penn State, ranked No. 2, is favored to beat Colorado, although the Buffs have an excellent quarterback in Bob Anderson. Penn State opened with a 45-22 trouncing of Navy last week, scoring three touchdowns during a 3½-minute burst in the third quarter, while Colorado mauled Tulsa 35-14.

No. 3 Arkansas should have an easy time of it with Tulsa. The Razorbacks got a three-touchdown performance out of quarterback Bill Montgomery, while holding Oklahoma State to minute 19 yards rushing, in a 39-0 opening success.

LOOP GAME

Fourth-ranked Texas, which shot down California 17-0 in its opener, plays host to Southwest Conference rival Texas Tech in a night game, while No. 5 Southern California, 31-21 winner over Nebraska in its opener, entertains Northwestern at night.

In other games, it's Pittsburgh at No. 6 Oklahoma, No. 7 Georgia at Clemson, No. 8 Mississippi at Kentucky at night, No. 9 Notre Dame at No. 16 Purdue and California at No. 10 Indiana.

* * *

Other games ring No. 11 Missouri vs. Illinois at So. Louis, No. 12 Florida vs. Mississippi State at Jackson, Miss., at night, Southern Methodist at No. 13 Michigan State, No. 14 UCLA at Wisconsin, Southern Mississippi at No. 15 Alabama, No. 17 Auburn at No. 19 Tennessee, Oregon State at No. 18 Arizona State and Washington at No. 20 Michigan.

* * *

Also on tap is the Princeton-Rugers game at New Brunswick, N.J., the 100th anniversary meeting of the two teams who met in the first college football game on Nov. 6, 1869.

Florida State plays Miami in the Orange Bowl in tonight's only major game.

No Knee Surgery for Len Dawson

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Quarterback Len Dawson will not have knee surgery to repair a partially torn knee ligament but will be lost to the Kansas City Chiefs for at least six weeks of the American Football League season.

Dawson said Thursday that upon the recommendation of a St. Louis specialist, the second one to examine him, he will not have surgery.

Cincinnati Hopes Dim

Astros Topple Redlegs, 4-3

By the Associated Press

The pesky Houston Astros dimmed Cincinnati's hopes Thursday night of picking up ground on the National League West Division leader and turned the Reds' locker room into a morgue.

"We've got to play each game like we were never going to play again," said Cincinnati Manager Dave Bristol after Houston edged the Reds 4-3.

* * *

The victory, which halted a five-game winning skein, dropped Cincinnati 3½ games off the pace of idle Atlanta and the Reds face the Astros in a twi-night doubleheader today.

In the only other National League game Thursday, Pittsburgh swept a doubleheader from Philadelphia 5-3 and 9-7.

In the American League, Baltimore downed Cleveland 4 - 1, Chicago nipped Kansas City 2-1 in 10 innings, Oakland whipped California 7-6, Seattle trimmed Minnesota 5-1 and Washington downed Detroit 7-2.

The Astros now have won eight of 14 games against the Reds this year. The clubs play again Saturday and Sunday.

CLINCHING BLOW

Houston took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning on Jim Wynn's 33rd homer and former Cincinnati Reds catcher John Edwards delivered the actual clinching blow on a solo homer in the ninth—his sixth.

Cincinnati knotted the game 1-1 in the fifth as Ted Savage raced from third to home on Denny Lemaster's wild pitch.

* * *

But the Astros struck for two runs on four hits in the seventh with Doug Rader's single snapping the tie. Then Lemaster batted Rader in with a double.

Jim Bouton relieved Lemaster in the bottom of the inning and then after Cincinnati had stroked three straight singles in the eighth to come within one run at 3-2, Fred Gladding spelled Bouton and quelled the threat.

Cincinnati added a final run in the ninth as Tommy Helms singled home Pete Rose, who had doubled.

With the four hits in five at bats, Rose grabbed the batting lead in the National League with a .347 mark over Cleon Jones of New York, who stands at .343.

The Red Sox closed in on Detroit, beating the Yankees for the fourth straight time. Mike Nagy won his 12th game with late help from Sparkly Lyle while George Scott and Gerry Moses supplied the offense with home runs.

Horace Clarke homered for the Yankees.

Dave Johnson slugged a two-run homer, breaking a sixth inning tie for Baltimore and Dave McNally beat Cleveland for his 20th victory of the season.

The triumph left the Orioles just three victories away from Cleveland's record 111 set in 1954. The Birds have six games remaining.

HEADACHE — Groundskeeper John McCarthy holds his head in dismay as he rakes an area in Centerfield of Shea Stadium where thousands of fans celebrated the Mets' victory over the Cardinals two days ago. The areas were skinned by souvenir hunting fans who stole almost 1,500 feet of sod.

Metsomania Reigning at Shea Stadium

NEW YORK (AP) — While the groundskeepers tried to put Shea Stadium back together again, while the Mets sang for their lunch, while Tom Seaver and Cleon Jones laughed it up on national television, young Mark Cohen waited in line for playoff tickets.

"I wouldn't miss this opportunity for anything in the world," the 17-year-old student from Brooklyn said today. So determined was he to get his playoff tickets that he started the line at 6 p.m. Wednesday three hours before the New York Mets clinched the National League's East Division title.

* * *

There were more than 300 other Metsomaniacs waiting behind Cohen, but it was appropriate that he should lead them. After all, his father, Ruby, was third in line when the tickets went on sale for the subway World Series between the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees in 1941.

Although he did miss the clincher and the Metsomania that followed, Mark did not come out of the evening empty-handed. one of the departing players gave him a bottle of champagne.

It's been a long time since New York baseball fans had anything to wait in line for. It's the first time ever for Mets fans, and Yankee fans haven't come up with a winner since 1964.

While Mark waited in line and Mayor John Lindsay declared next week as Mets Week, the Mets still were loudly celebrating. By Thursday afternoon, they were toasting in a recording studio in midtown Manhattan where they cut an album. They play baseball better than they sing.

* * *

And Thursday night, Seaver and Jones won over a national television audience as they cut up with Johnny Carson.

And this promises to be just the beginning for the Mets, baseball's greatest fairy tale.

"Now we gotta beat them other guys," says Casey Stengel.

And should the Mets get into the world Series and cap it all by winning it for the fank like Mark Cohen . . . well, you ain't seen nothing yet.

Dan Sikes Leading Alcan Despite 8 on Par-4 Hole

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — What would you do if you shot an 8, four over par, while leading the first round of the Alcan Golfer of the Year Tournament?

Dan Sikes, the golfing lawyer from Jacksonville, Fla., recovered with an eagle and a birdie, tying for first with a three-under-par 69 over the 6,541-yard Portland Golf Club course. Lou Graham of Nashville, Tenn., also had a 69.

* * *

Sikes' quick recovery was in contrast to an 8 which Sam Snead, one of golf's all time greats, took on the 18th hole of the U.S. Open in 1939. Snead never did win a U.S. Open.

Sikes was four under par and far ahead of the 24-man field when he hit his tee shot on the 13th hole into a fir tree.

The ball went beneath a tree. Sikes chipped out, then put the ball into the trap. He two-putted for the 8.

Sikes had a par on the next hole, then on the 511-yard, par 5 15th hole, Sikes sank a 15-foot putt for an eagle. He birdied the 16th hole.

Sikes got another shock just after he walked off the course when a section of bleachers near the 18th green collapsed. Nine persons were hospitalized with minor injuries.

* * *

Fourteen golfers matched par or better and there was general agreement that scores will be lower if it doesn't rain.

Gay Brewer, winner of the two previous Alcan tournaments played in Great Britain, was two strokes back at 71 and said he was pleased with his position after the first day.

* * *

Six players tied for second place with 70s. They are Billy Casper, Lee Trevino, Bert Greene, Deane Beman, Grier Jones and Kel Nagel, the veteran Australian.

Goalby Leads First Round of Tourney

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP) — Bob Goalby, although admittedly having a poor year following his 1968 Masters championship, held a three-stroke lead going into today's second round of the $75,000 Robinson Open Golf Tournament after a opening 10-under-par 62.

Goalby, who has played in 450 PGA tournaments, matched his career low score with a 31-31 Thursday and set a Crawford County Country Club course record. The old mark of 63 was by Earl Greenwill.

* * *

Despite his sparkling performance, Goalby was only three strokes ahead of Homero Blancas and Richard Martinez in a par-smashing assault on the 6,700-yard course by the field of 144 players.

Seventh-seven broke par and 16 equalled it in the first round frolic. Two players scored aces.

* * *

Goalby had 10 birdies, Martinez eight and Blancas seven.

Tied at 66, were Jerry Heard and veteran Billy Maxwell.

Decision Made for Playoffs in N. L.'s West

CINCINNATI (AP — Atlanta was guaranteed a spot Thursday in the final playoff game for the National League's West Division championship in the event the Braves, San Francisco and Cincinnati wind up in a three-way tie.

The decision was made at a meeting in the office of league President Warren Giles, who flipped a half dollar several times to help work out a playoff system.

* * *

Entering today's action, Atlanta was on top by 1½ games over the Giants and 3½ over the Reds.

If all three deadlock, Atlanta, which drew a bye, will meet the victor of the Cincinnati-San Francisco game in the winner's park.

If Atlanta and San Francisco tie, the sudden-death contest will be held at Atlanta on Oct. 3. If the Braves and Reds tie, the game will be played at Cincinnati. And if the Giants and Cincinnati tie, the affair will be played in San Francisco.

Western Michigan 11 Faces MAC Favorite

KALAMAZOO (AP) — Three starters may be sidelined with injuries Saturday when Western Michigan clashes with mighty Miami University and the Redskins' football version of the super substitute.

Miami, a pre-season pick as a probable Mid-American Conference power, was jolted when senior quarterback Kent Thompson broke two fingers on his passing hand this summer.

Thompson hasn't played a game this season but his substitute, Jim Bengala, has guided the Redskins to a 2-0 record while wrapping up the conference lead in total offense for himself.

Bengala has rolled up 378 yards total offense, including 353 yards in the air, while completing 24 of 36 aerial attempts. The junior's accuracy has boosted Miami's ends, Mike Palija and Gary Arthur, atop the league's receiving statistics.

Palija has caught 10 passes in two games while Arthur has plucked nine from the air for 167 yards and three touchdowns.

BIG FULLBACK

In addition, the Redskins have a burly fullback in 220-pound Cleveland Dickerson and obtain outside running speed from tailback Walter Barnes. Arthur leads the blocking for both runners.

Miami has 28 lettermen back from a 1968 squad which was 7-3 and mauled the Broncos 28-0. The figure includes Thompson, who is expected to be ready for action Saturday.

* * *

Western counters with an improved passing attack and the power running of fullback Bob Ezelle.

But halfback Roger Lawson won't play because of internal bleeding and knee injuries make guard Jim Prichett and linebacker Rosie Thomas doubtful starters.

The Broncos will fill in with Kent Watson at halfback where he has averaged 3.6 yards per carry in limited action. If Prichett cannot play tackle Dick Lawson will shift to guard. Sophomore Tom Elias subbed for Thomas last week and made nine individual tackles.

PASSING DRILLS

Western concentrated on the passing game during drills this week and coach Bill Doolittle said it seems to have improved. Doolittle said he believes the Broncos "aren't that far from putting it all together."

However, Doolittle warned before the season began that injuries could thwart his bid to make Western into a contender for the conference crown.

Saturday's clash is the first conference outing of the season for both squads. Western is 1-1 after losing to College of the Pacific and beating small college rival, Central Michigan.

Lasher Seeking Trade in '70

Pitched Relief Role for 43 Innings

DETROIT (AP)—The organist played "Auld Land Syne" Thursday as the sparse crowd of 4,589 filed out of Tiger Stadium.

Detroit had just lost to Washington 7-2.

In the Tiger locker room few players were showering. Instead, most were sitting around eating a buffet supper.

"Is this the routine every year after the final home game?" someone asked relief pitcher Fred Lasher.

"I don't know, but whether it is or not makes no difference to me," he said. "This'll be the last I see of this locker room."

He bit into a piece of chicken and said: "I asked to be traded."

LITTLE WORK

The 28-year-old sidearmer, who has been with the Tigers 2½ seasons since being called up from the minors, has only pitched 43 innings for the Tigers this season. He has a 2-1 won-lost record and an earned-run mark of 3.14, all in relief.

"I had a talk with No. 10 (Manager Mayo Smith) and told him I wanted to be traded," Lasher said. "What the heck, I don't want to pitch 40 innings every year and make what I'm making. I want to be able to pitch more and make more."

Later Smith talked about possible trades and said he wouldn't mention any names.

No. 2 Seeded Doubles Falls to Veterans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The aging pair of Pancho Gonzales and Ron Holmberg, darting like youngsters, stunned the second seeded doubles team of Rod Laver and Roy Emerson 7-5, 13-11 Thursday in the Pacific Southwest Tennis Championships.

Gonzales, the 41-year-old explosive Malibu, Calif., professional, played some of his best tennis in recent years. Backed by the steadiness of Holmberg, 31, Brooklyn, N.Y., the unseeded pair moved into the semifinals at the Los Angeles Tennis Club.

Top amateur Arthur Ashe started slowly but rallied to crush Marty Riessen, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 in singles play. Ashe, Richmond, Va., was in command early in the second set and was never threatened again by his Evanston, Ill., foe.

In an important night singles match, Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., a U.S. Davis Cup team member, came back from a poor start to upset the No. 2 seeded player in the tourney, Australia's John Newcombe. The scores were 3-6, 9-7, 6-0.

Thomas Koch of Brazil bet Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif. 6-1, 8-10, 6-1. Ralston was ill prior to the match and was ready to pull out but decided to give it a go.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Services will be held here Saturday for Benny Marshall, sports editor of the Birmingham News since 1959, who died at his home Thursday at the age of 49.

Avondale Looks Up

Slugfest Grid Card in O-A

A few choice slugfests in the Oakland A League highlight a packed schedule tonight that kicks off a busy weekend of prep football.

The O-A lineup finds Avondale (1-1) at Romeo (0-2), Troy (1-1) at Rochester (1-1), Clawson (2-0) at Madison (1-0-1), Madison Lamphere (1-1) at Bloomfield Hills Lahser (0-2) and Rochester Adams (1-1) at Oxford (1-0-1).

While it's early, things are looking pretty fair for coach Tom Wheatley and Avondale's Yellow Jackets.

UPSET TROY

After falling to Milford in a non-league opener, Wheatley and the Jackets came back to upend Troy's Colts in a surprise, 12-6, and Avondale should get past the winless Romeo crew.

* * *

Rochester, after patching a few holes caused by injuries, pounced on Romeo last week, 25-12, and the Falcons are a good bet to pin loss No. 2 on visiting Troy.

STILL GOING

The bubble still hasn't burst for Oxford's Wildcats who figure to improve their record against Adams.

* * *

In the Inter-Lakes League tonight, Pontiac Northern visits Southfield Lathrup, Livonia Stevenson is at Waterford and Farmington at Walled Lake Central.

Walled Lake Western (2-0) will be looking for its third straight win in a visit to Edsel Ford. Waterford Mott, which will be a member of a new league along with WL Western, is visiting Swartz Creek.

OTHER GAMES

In the Wayne-Oakland, West Bloomfield is at Clarenceville, Bloomfield Hills Andover was entertaining Waterford Kettering in an afternoon game, Milford travels to Northville and Clarkston goes to Brithton.

In the Southeastern Michigan Association, Berkley plays host to Ferndale, Hazel Park is at Royal Oak Kimball and Southfield has a date at Birmingham Seaholm.

KEY O-A TILT

On the Saturday schedule, Lake Orion entertains Utica at 2 p.m. in a key Oakland A contest, while Detroit Country Day takes on tough Cranbrook.

* * *

In other games tomorrow, Birmingham Groves is at Detroit Thurston, Wayne Glenn at North Farmington, Livonia Franklin at Oak Park, U. of D. High at Brother Rice, Bishop Gallagher at Royal Oak Shrine and Royal Oak St. Mary at Detroit St. Rita.

On Sunday, Waterford Our Lady visits Farmington Our Lady of Sorrows in a key Northwest Catholic League game, while OL St. Mary has a league date at Hamtramck St. Florian.

Pontiac Catholic goes (1-1) after its second victory in a game at Acquinas.

Big Game Saturday

'Stop Phipps,' Irish

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame gets its last look at Purdue quarterback Mike Phipps, coming off the greatest game of his career, in Saturday's 41st renewal of the Irish-Boilermaker football rivalry.

"I've seen Phipps too often," Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian said as he discussed the prospects of trying to stop the Phipps-directed two-game winning streak against Notre Dame.

★ ★ ★

The game between the ninth-ranked Irish and 16th-ranked Purdue has been a sellout since last spring.

Boilermaker Coach Jack Mollenkopf has a 9-4 record against Notre Dame and admits, "We've had more than our share of breaks in this series."

Parseghian has lost only seven games since his arrival at Notre Dame in 1964, three of them to Purdue.

Phipps, who set a Purdue total offense record of 390 yards in last week's 42-35 victory over Texas Christian, killed Notre Dame's chances for a second straight national championship when he passed the Boilermakers to a 28-21 upset victory in 1967.

HE REMEMBERS

Notre Dame tackle Mike McCoy, the 6-foot-5, 274-pound tackle who was one of the defensive stars of last week's 35-10 opening game victory over Northwestern, remembers that game well.

Phipps killed us. It made him nationally famous," he said.

Last season, Phipps and Leroy Keyes led the Boilermakers to a 37-22 win in a nationally televised contest.

Parseghian said his scouts' reports on the TCU-Purdue game were that "Phipps could do anything he wanted to do."

★ ★ ★

But Notre Dame's defense, led by McCoy and linebacker Bob Olson, doesn't figure to be so permissive. It nailed Northwestern quarterback Dave Shellbourne 10 times behind the line of scrimmage last Saturday.

VETERAN UNIT

Purdue's defense is also a veteran unit, while both teams have mostly new faces on offense.

Tackle Jim Reilly is the only Notre Dame offensive regular back from last season, although guard Larry DiNardo started before being injured in midseason and quarterback Joe Theismann filled in for the injured Terry Hanratty at the end of the season.

★ ★ ★

The new Irish running backs include senior Ed Ziegler, who ran for 112 yards last week. Junior Bill Barz has taken over at fullback, since a kidney condition ended the career of senior Jeff Zimmerman before the season started.

Phipps' new offensive teammates include halfback Randy Cooper, who gained 117 yards rushing against TCU, and sophomore tight end Ashley Bell, who caught four passes for 58 yards and did a good job blocking.

4th Straight Win for N.Y. Rangers

KITCHENER, Ont. (AP) — The unbeaten New York Rangers jumped to an early lead and rolled to their fourth straight exhibition victory, a 4-2 decision over the Chicago Black Hawks in a National Hockey League match Thursday night.

Dave Balon and Walt Tkaczuk put the Rangers ahead 2-1 in the first period and Rod Gilbert added the clincher in the second before Don Marshall scored with 20 seconds left.

Stan Mikita and Howie Menard scored for the Black Hawks, 1-2. 9

Maher, Plum With Giants to Play Lions

Lions after leaving U. of D. went all the way against the Vikings and as Smith pointed out, "Believe it if you will, our defensive secondary is improved in attitude alone with Bruce in there. He really has helped the younger players."

★ ★ ★

Another player who was once counted on as a top rookie who will be starting at guard opposite Alex Karras is Doug Van Horn, the No. 3 choice from Ohio State in 1966.

★ ★ ★

"Doug is playing well and he's aware of the job he has to do opposite Karras on Sunday," said Smith.

Kickoff is 1:15 p.m. Sunday and gates will open at 11 a.m. with 20,000 general admission and bleacher seats going on sale.

Rozelle No Help in Diagnosis

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Patriots have lost an appeal to Pete Rozelle, pro football commissioner, and linebacker John Bramlett will be on the sidelines for Sunday's American Football League game with the Oakland Raiders.

★ ★ ★

The Patriots put Bramlett on the move list, requiring him to miss at least two games, when a doctor diagnosed swollen glands as mumps last weekend. The diagnosis was wrong, but Rozelle refused Thursday to waive the rules.

1-2 Punch of Captains Clips Western

Kettering's 1-2 cross country punch Kevin Reabe and Dave Meyerhafer led the way as the Captains defeated Walled Lake Western 25-29 yestrday.

Western took 3-4-5 spots led by Steve Floto.

★ ★ ★

Farmington nipped Pontiac Northern in an Inter-Lakes meet, 26-29.

George Pickering of PNH won the individual honors in 9:57.5, but was fellowed by three Farmington runners, John Donohoe. Kim Hilderbrandt and Mike McGlothin. Bill Turnbull was fifth for Northern.

★ ★ ★

In another Inter-Lakes meet Waterford grabed four of the first five places in routing Southfield Lathrup, 19-41. Steve Moffat of Waterford set the pace with a new course record of 10:13. Steve Wilmoth of Southfield was second.

Jim Goodfellow led Oxford to its second victory over Madison yesterday at the Oxford course. Goodfellow's time was good for a new course record of 10:16.5. Following the winner was two more from Oxford, Dennis Clack and Steve Brill. Mark Fusco of Madison finished fourth.

Niners Elect Officers Slate

Mrs. Hewitt Winner of Final Event

Mrs. Robert Hefty of Birmingham was elected chairman for 1970 of the Pine Lake Country Club Niners at the group's final '69 meeting this week.

Also acknowledged at the meeting were winners of the various tournaments during the season.

TOP PLAYERS

In the Niners Championship event, Mrs. Ernest Hewitt of Bloomfield Hills reigned as champion, with Mrs. Richard Kroph of Birmingham taking the top spot in the first flight. Mrs. Royce Beers of Birmingham led the second flight.

★ ★ ★

In the Elmer Prieskorn event, Mrs. Sheldon Pederson of Orchard Lake claimed top honors, with Mrs. Arley Lowe of Pontiac taking first-flight honors and Mrs. Terrence Sweeney of Birmingham winning the second flight.

The Mixmatch title went to Mrs. Louis Raden of Orchard Lake. Also honored was Mrs. Harry Pearce on her 80th birthday. Mrs. Pearce also plays golf, taking second in the first flight of the Prieskorn event.

Kings' Skater Leaves Again

BARRIE, Ont. (AP) — Defenseman Bill White walked out of the Los Angeles Kings' camp for the second straight day Thursday and general manager Larry Regan said he didn't think White would return.

The 30-year-old White, from Toronto, who played in the NHL's All-Star game last year, has been trying to renogtiate a four-year contract with the Kings which extends through 1972.

Family Squabble Settled in Chisox Front Office

CHICAGO (AP) — Apparently settling a family squabble and keeping the Chicago White Sox rooted here, John Allyn announced Thursday he has replaced his older brother, Art, as the club's top man.

John, 52, who previously tinkered with the Chicago Mustangs soccer team while Art, 55, ran the White Sox since 1961, disclosed at a news conference that Art will quit his club presidency Sept. 30.

★ ★ ★

At that time, John will become Sox president and chairman of the Artnell Company in which the ball club is one of several affiliated divisions. Art will be "redeemed" as a 50 per cent stockholder with a cash and property settlement. John holds the other 50 per cent and served as a silent Sox vice president.

BLOCKED SALE

Flanked by Sox manager Don Gutteridge and other Sox brass, John Allyn disclosed he had blocked an attempt by Art to sell the club to the Milwaukee Brewers, Inc., and intends to keep the Sox in Chicago indefinitely.

A notable absentee at the news conference was Art Allyn, who earlier this week said he wished to sever Sox and Artnell connections and enter semiretirement.

★ ★ ★

John Allyn said he planned no shakeup of the present Sox front office and that the Sox could succeed in Comiskey Park.

"I don't envision any financial or team failure continuing for, say, three years, or any given number of years," he said.

"We'll do the best damn job we can do. We'll try to win. With a winning team and the support the press gave the Cubs this season, I think we can draw well over one million attendance."

Gutteridge is contracted through the 1970 seson and John Allyn said Leo Breen and Ed Short would be retained as top Sox executives. Art Allyn in midseason named Breen general manager, supplanting Short, who remains director of player personnel.

Closing Zipper Big EMU Task

The scoreboard at Eastern Michigan University's new Rynearson Stadium could get quite a workout in its first test under game conditions Saturday.

High-scoring Akron will be the Hurons' initial foe in the 15,500-seat facility. It will be Band Day and game time is 1:30 p.m.

* * *

The Zippers have brushed aside Butler, 52-0, and Tampa, 40-0, in their first two games while EMU's offensive potential appears strong even though the Hurons dropped their opener, 28-20, to Murray State.

Other action Saturday involving Michigan colleges will have strong Hillsdale traveling to Olivet, Northern Michigan going to Weber State, Central Michigan opening at home against Wisconsin - Milwaukee, Michigan Tech at Winona State and Wayne State going to Coast Guard.

OUT OF STATE

MIAA teams are still a week away from league play, but all will be in action out of the state Saturday.

Kalamazoo opens its season at Lake Forest, Hope plays Wheaton, Alma will try to rebound at tough Defiance, Adrian tackles Bluffton and Albion plays Wooster.

* * *

Northwood plays Milton at home and University of Detroit takes on New Jersey St. Peter in a club game at St. Peter.

Eastern Michigan's pass defense will be tested by Akron freshman quarterback Mike Hutton who has completed 22 of 45 passes for 462 yards and six touchdowns. His favorite receiver is split end Dan Ruff who has hauled down eight aerials, three for TDs.

Junior halfback Jack Beidleman has picked up where he left off last season when he was Akron's top ball carrier and is being strongly supported by freshman Calvin Pierce.

LARGE CROWD

The ease of Akron's win over Tampa was not expected by the 40,000 who watched the game in the Rubber City.

Most of EMU's fireworks in its loss to Murray was generated by sophomore defensive back Chip Gooden who returned a punt 85 yards for a touchdown, ran 38 yards with an intercepted pass to setup another and returned a kickoff 56 yards to the Murray 19. The Hurons then drove to one, but couldn't get over in two plays and the game ended.

* * *

Pontiac freshman Bob Hunt has earned a starting berth at defensive tackle for Michigan Tech. He penetrated the Minnesota - Morris backfield several times for tackles last Saturday as the Huskies dropped a 6-3 decision.

Mike Scally of Rochester also made a brief appearance at quarterback. The Huskies will be underdogs in the Northern Intercollegiate game.

Local Golfer Enters Senior Tournament

Mrs. William L. Mosher Jr. of Bloomfield Hills is in the starting lineup for the U.S.G.A. Senior Women's Amateur Championship which opens next week in Fort Worth, Tex.

The 54-hole event is slated to open Wednesday at the Ridglea Country Club, with 18 holes slated daily through Friday.

FOUR EX-CHAMPS

Since it was organized in 1962 five ladies have shared the seven championships and four of the gals have entered the '69 event.

* * *

They are Mrs. Phillip J. Cudone of Myrtle Beach, S.C., the defending champion; Mrs. Marge Mason of West Englewood, N.J., winner in 1967; Miss Maureen Orcutt of Englewood, N. J., who took the 1963 and 1966 titles; and Mrs. Allison Choate of Rye, N.Y., the 1963 titlist.

Not entered this year is Mrs. Hulet P. Smith of Pebble Beach, Calif., winner in 1964-65.

The tournament is open to women amateur golfers who will have reached their 50th birthday by Oct. 1.

See us at the show, 'cause that's where it's at!

MOTO-SKI CREATES ROCKET POWER AND THE SPORTY GRAND PRIX: THE GOLD ONE

After we worked out the specs for the Grand Prix, we decided, in addition to everything else, that this baby should be gold. It's that different. You'll never drive a tougher snowmobile ... nor a livelier one! From its fast-back racing seat to the stuff we call rocket power, this is an exceptional machine. We teamed a series of exclusive MOTO-SKI power features ... and carefully matched each to the output of a new engine. Then we tested the whole thing as if we hated it. Results: rocket power ... and a gloriously golden, Grand Prix for 1970!

Arizona Trip Awaits 10 State PGA Players

A trip to sunny Arizona awaits the 10 low shooters in Monday's 36-hole qualifying round for the National PGA Club Championship.

A field of 53 Michigan Section professionals will go after the 10 spots in competition at Midland Country Club.

Those 10, along with Michigan Section PGA champion Glenn Stuart of Battle Creek, who is exempt from the qualifying, will join qualifiers from across the nation in the national tournament Nov. 13-16 in Scottsdale, Ariz.

The sectional qualifying will produce 200 contestants and that figure is expected to swell to more than 240 with the addition of the 26 sectional champions and former PGA titlists

* * *

Winner of the 1968 event, Howell Fraser of West Caldwell, N.J., forfeited his right to defend the title when he became a full-time touring professional. The PGA Club championship is limited to resident club professionals who play in not more than 12 regular PGA cosponsored or approved tournaments.

Among those in the qualifying Monday are Pontiac's Gene Bone, who participated last year, and Ronald C. Alehs, assistant at Tam O'Shanter who was second in this year's Michigan PGA.

Oakland Hills' head pro Mike Souchak, a former tour regular, will also be on hand as will Bob Cupic, head pro at Forest Lake, Bill Matison, head pro at Shenandoah, and Casmere Jawor, assistant pro at Glen Oaks who was well up among the leaders in the recent Michigan Golf Classic.

Salmon Run Under Way in Tawas Bay

By United Press International

A good-sized salmon run has materialized in Lake Huron, but it is not as large or is it drawing the crowds of fishermen as the one still going on along Lake Michigan.

Schools of salmon have been forming just off the mouth of the Tawas River. These fish have provided anglers with good success from 1,000 to 2,000 feet from shore.

Last weekend, the average was one salmon for every five boats. Results have improved slightly although Lake Huron has been rough much of the week.

With salmon fishing slowing at Ludington and Manistee, Platte Bay has become the best location for both coho and chinook. The bay was jammed with boats last weekend with fishermen having very good results.

The best fishing is in 5 to 30 feet of water less than 2,000 feet from shore with coho running 8 to 16 pounds and chinook 12 to 20 pounds. Salmon fishing has shifted from Lake Michigan to Manistee Lake at Manistee.

Some chinook are being taken from the Big Manistee River. Salmon activity has slowed at Muskegon while the fish have moved to deeper water a Traverse City.

* * *

Quite a few coho from 10 to 12 pounds are being taken off Thompson Creek in Schoolcraft County in the Upper Peninsula. Coho results are expected to pick up in St. Martin's Bay in Mackinac County and in Pendills Creek.

Fair to good brook trout fishing is reported on all trout streams in the Gaylord area. Some bass, panfish, walleyes and northern pike also are being taken.

Perch are biting off Charity Island in Saginaw Bay in 18 to 20 feet of water. Largemouth bass are hitting closer to shore near Bay Port. Lake Huron in the Thumb region has been rough and not too many fishermen have been out.

In the Upper Peninsula, the Escanaba River is producing nice catches of trout. Some trout also are being taken from the Sturgeon River. Fishing for brook trout has been fair in the Carp River, and Davenport Creek in Mackinac County and in the east branch of the Tahquamenon River on Chippewa County.

Senators Assured of .500 Season

DETROIT (AP)—Anyone who doesn't think Ted Williams has done wonders for the Washington Senators should talk with Ken McMullen and check the records.

The Senators, who finished last in the 10-team American League last year with a 65-96 record, crushed the flat Detroit Tigers 7-2 Thursday to assure Washington of its first .500 season since 1963.

The win gave Washington an 81-75 record for fourth place in the AL East with six games to play.

* * *

"I didn't know what to expect. I hadn't seen any baseball games, or anything," said Nats Manager Ted Williams of how he thought the team would do this season. Williams became manager before the season started after coming out of retirement.

McMullen, who drove in five runs as the Senators swept a doubleheader from Detroit Wednesday, knocked in three more Thursday to increase his runs-batted-in total to 87 and his batting average to .279.

Best previous RBI total for the 27-year-old third baseman was 67 in 1967 and his best batting average was .263 in 1965.

* * *

"I think Ted Williams has gotten me thinking right again," McMullen said. "I look for the right pitch. . . . He's got everyone looking for a certain pitch."

Although he is from Oxnard, Calif., McMullen's wife Roberta is from the Detroit suburb of Redford Township.

"Maybe I was just trying to impress the home folks," he jokes of his fine series. "I always hit good against Chicago, Detroit and Boston but the rest of the clubs get me out."

"If he's hitting .280 now he must be hitting .310 since the All-Star game," Williams said of McMullen. "He has a little more of an upright swing."

How quality conscious are you when it comes to whiskey?
Here's the check list.
1. My brand never varies. I know that each bottle will taste just as smooth and pleasing as the last one. yes ☐ no ☐
2. It mixes well. But it also tastes fine straight. Or on the rocks. yes ☐ no ☐
3. My friends enjoy it. It's the kind of whiskey I can serve with pride. yes ☐ no ☐
If you've answered an unqualified yes to all these questions, you're a quality-conscious buyer.
And probably another person who has made Seagram's 7 Crown the most-bought brand of whiskey in the whole wide world.

In the good old days when men were men, cue bids were cue bids and always showed first-round control of the suit bid.

We have no intention of discussing what men are today but cue bids have become nothing but nondescript forcing bids designed either to get information from partner or just to show a general good hand.

These modern cue bids are complicated but they work mighty well in expert hands. Cliff Russell of Miami, who sat North, held an old-fashioned cue bid and made it over West's two-diamond overcall. East interposed a four-diamond nuisance bid which gave bridge teacher Edith Kemp a chance to pass and give Cliff an opportunity to define his cue bid further.

★ ★ ★

Cliff was delighted with the opportunity. He made his second cue bid. Now Edith was ready to show she had a good hand that included the ace of clubs among its souvenirs. She bid six clubs!

★ ★ ★

They were now up to the six level but Cliff was interested in going further. With an ordinary partner, Cliff would almost surely have gone right to seven hearts. With Edith, who is one of two women to have won both the Vanderbilt and Spingold Cups (the other is Helen Sobel Smith), Cliff felt that he could ask her to make the final decision.

★ ★ ★

He bid six diamonds — his third successive cue bid. The reason he did not bid the grand slam was that Edith could hold a very sound opening bid and not have both the ace and king of hearts.

The third cue bid gave Edith no problem at all. Cliff was interested in a grand slam and she had the cards to bid it.

CARD Sense

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
			1♣
Pass	1♦	Pass	2♥
Pass	2♣	Pass	3♥
Pass	3 N.T.	Pass	7

You, South, hold:

♠2 ♥AK1098 ♦4 ♣AKJ854

What do you do now?

A—Pass. The hand is evidently a misfit. Stop at the lowest game contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three no-trump, your partner has jumped to five diamonds over your three hearts. What do you do now?

After 30 Volkswagens, Father Bittman still believes.

In the beginning, Father Aloysius Bittman bought a bug.

That was in 1957 when he joined the staff of St. Anthony's Indian Mission in Mandaree, North Dakota.

Since then, Father Bittman has gone a long way. In 30 Volkswagens.

Owning two or three at a time, the Bittman staff travels 600 miles per week in each. Over dirt and gravel roads and in temperatures that go to 55 below.

A few VWs ago, Father Bittman's '65 broke through the Garrison Reservoir ice.

"It was a good time for praying," he said.

Luckily, one 255 pound priest and one 1808 pound bug floated to safety. After the ice was chopped away and a quick oil change, the good father and his faithful companion were on their way.

He was a bit peeved about the oil change though.

"It set the Mission back $1.80," complained Father Aloysius Bittman.

Pompidou Changing French Priorities

By STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer

PARIS — Nearly two years ago a headline in a Gaullist newspaper trumpeted, "The dollar is against the wall."

The paper's editors apparently believed that De Gaulle's France had put the dollar there, and had emerged the winner of a great monetary battle.

* * *

This week Georges Pompidou, De Gaulle's successor, pleaded with French housewives to man the front-line trenches to save the devalued franc.

"Each time a housewife argues about a price, or refuses to pay an unjustified price rise, she is defending the franc," he said.

FORCING DISCOUNTS

Not only had the franc been devalued, but public pessimism about its prospects was forcing exchange dealers to discount the currency in foreign markets.

What happened in the meantime?

* * *

Even members of the government now concede that De Gaulle had his priorities mixed up, that he embarked on an ambitious foreign policy in the name of national grandeur without first assuring himself that he had the means to make a success of it.

Without a strong, stable industrial economy, he couldn't hope to succeed, these men say. He perpetually postponed the hard economic decisions which could have made his policy work. Neglected, the national power base eroded under pressure from international competition and domestic social unrest.

TO CHANGE PRIORITIES

In his first 100 days as president, Pompidou has demonstrated he intends to change the priorities, and this means an inward-looking France.

Pompidou's first major policy decision was to devalue the franc, and to devise a series of measures to restore the health of the national economy. As a long-term goal, his government is pledged to thrust France into "the front rank of industrial nations." The dominant theme is industrial reform and development.

* * *

If the pursuit of grandeur has not been renounced, French leaders have at least chosen another path for attaining it.

Recovery and reform will not be easy tasks. In addition to economic and social concerns, politically Pompidou is caught between two fires.

News Analysis

The big trade unions—whose support any recovery requires—blame the nation's plight on De Gaulle's mismanagement, and point out that Pompidou was De Gaulle's chief minister for six years.

THREATEN REVOLT

Yet each time Pompidou—or one of his ministers—has hinted the fault was not his but De Gaulle's, the old guard wing of the Gaullist party in Parliament has threatened revolt.

The measure of the president's success may be how well he succeeds in creating popular confidence in his leadership. As one French official observed: "Pompidou is the heir, and prisoner, of a consensus formed by De Gaulle. He needs one of his own to govern effectively."

* * *

Following the style imposed on him by domestic conditions, the president has settled for a modest foreign policy. Though he has not dismantled his predecessor's policy, he is carrying it out in a much lower key.

U.S. officials are pleased with Pompidou's interest in improving relations with the United States. Both sides point to Pompidou's scheduled visit to America next February as an important step in that direction.

EMBARGO MAINTAINED

On the Middle East, Pompidou is maintaining De Gaulle's embargo on the French Mirage warplanes Israel bought but is quietly allowing shipments of arms and spare parts to the Israelis.

Several Oil Issues Sag

Stock Mart Continues to Lose

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks continued their two-day losing performance in moderate trading this afternoon, as declines, paced by several sagging oil issues, outdistanced advances by a near 2-to-1 margin.

The Dow Jones industrial average, on the wane for two sessions, dropped off 4.55 at 825.37 at noon.

Analysts said that investors, awaiting any type of news, moved to the sidelines temporarily to await today's announcement by President Nixon on the Vietnam troop withdrawals.

Still hanging over the Vietnam war and the progress of inflation, plus the market's inability to break through the 840 DJI level.

SWITCHING STILL PRESENT

Funds switching large blocks to dress up their portfolios was still present, as it has been the whole week, analysts say.

"We could very well see a testing of the 800 DJI level again," commented one analyst. "When a market cannot break out on the upward side it will often break down."

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon slid off .4 to 289.6, with industrials off .6, rails off .5, and utilities unchanged.

Twelve of the American Stock Exchange's most-active issues were on the decline, while 8 advanced.

Nursing-Home Boom Stirs Critics

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The nation's nursing homes have come a long way in the past decade, and more progress is in the offing. This is the last of five articles on nursing homes.)

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — In 10-below-zero weather, the sick and old patients huddled close to the single small-bellied stove in a railroad boxcar that had been turned into a nursing home.

The Minnesota inspector remembers that shock vividly, even though it was 10 years ago. It is a measure of how far nursing homes have come today.

★ ★ ★

"The day of the old urine-soaked outhouse is gone forever," said Edward Walker, president of the American Nursing Home Association who owns three Oklahoma homes.

Nearly half of all nursing home facilities have been built in the last five years. Private rooms are replacing crowded wards. Fire, once the greatest fear, is fading in the past. And medical care is improving.

FEDERAL DOORSTEP

"With all of our faults today, we've made tremendous progress," said Walker.

Both the faults and the progress come to rest on the federal doorstep.

★ ★ ★

The $1.6-billion annual flood in federal money that has made the government the greatest sole supporter of the nation's nursing homes has brought care to thousands of old persons and has triggered the explosive building boom in new facilities.

CRITICS' QUESTION

But critics question whether payments have been put ahead of patients.

Medicaid, the vast federal program of health care for the poor, and Medicare, the federal insurance plan for the elderly, have paid for the bulk of nursing homes' spectacular spurt in growth.

★ ★ ★

Taxpayer support for nursing homes has tripled in the past three years. Nursing home revenue has shot up by $1 billion, all from the government.

More than 50 nursing home chains have burst upon the stock market, where their prices have skyrocketed. Four Seasons, one of the most modern and fastest-growing chains, is making profits nine times as high as it was two years ago. And its stock, now selling at about $70, is worth almost 13 times as much.

FEDERAL MONEY

Extendicare, another major chain, gets 82 per cent of all its money for a large group of Oakland, Calif., area nursing homes from federal programs, according to records on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The Healthcare chain's homes in Massachusetts get 78 per cent of their revenue from the same sources.

★ ★ ★

The head of Medicare operations for the firm that handles New England payments, Travelers Insurance, was serving on the board of directors of another Massachusetts chain, Gerl-Care Nursing Centers, until warned by federal officials of what one senator called an open and blatant conflict of interest.

Medicare not only pays for daily care for limited stays but also helps bankroll construction by paying depreciation and interest costs, too. Another government agency, the Federal Housing Administration, helps by backing most of the mortgage amounts on private nursing homes.

SIEGE OF SCANDALS

One doctor in an Ohio suburb has reported more than $140,000 annual profits on the nursing home he owns.

High payments have brought a siege of scandals for Medicare. But the revolutionary health plan, fought hard by doctors only a few years ago, has succeeded in pioneering the tough new standards needed badly by many nursing homes.

VISITS DEMANDED

Medicare demands doctors' visits to each patient each month. It requires around-the-clock supervision by trained nurses. It sets stringent rules for drug usage. And, under Senate prodding, its officials have been patrolling the program closely in recent months.

But Medicaid has moved more slowly. Not until the last few weeks did Medicaid finally match Medicare's standards on doctors and drugs. The regulations are still temporary, and enforcement remains flimsy.

★ ★ ★

Medicaid is the major money program for the nation's nursing homes. Medicare pays for only a brief stay for the elderly after they leave a hospital. But because the old are also often poor, the lesser-known Medicaid program pours $1.1 billion a year into nursing homes for their patients.

Medicaid funnels the funds through the states, which pay for a share of the costs and handle all the enforcement. The latter often has been lax.

LACKED INSPECTION

In Wisconsin, a 317-bed home in Milwaukee went without a regular state inspection for more than 2½ years even though the last checkup in early 1967 resulted in a four-page list of alleged violations.

In Nashville, hospital administrator C. David Stringfield said, "If the state of Tennessee would be as firm as it could be, I would wager that 30 to 50 per cent of the long-term care facilities in this state would be closed down overnight."

★ ★ ★

Action, when it does come, is often taken quietly, without public knowledge. A Minnesota inspector told of an 87-year-old woman who died after being pushed off balance against a bed by an angry nursing aide. Officials used the coroner's photographs, she said, to close the home and force its sale to another firm, but no prosecution was attempted.

Many states' inspection procedures concentrate on obvious violations, like food and fire and few really probe the question of adequate medical care.

DOCTORS RARE

Doctors are still rare visitors to nursing homes—and some states, like California and Pennsylvania, don't specify how often should see patients.

Drugs are prescribed freely over the telephone by absentee physicians. And the mentally ill often turned away by crowded state hospitals, are mingled among other patients and kept subdued by sedatives or restraining straps.

★ ★ ★

Telling the difference between a good nursing home and a bad one can be bewildering for a relative.

★ ★ ★

A modern new facility may lack frequent doctor's visits, especially if it is on the outskirts of a city. An older home may be spotless inside with kind nurses and conscientious care. One home may scrimp on food, and another may be careless with drugs, and still another may have a shortage of nurses.

ON THRESHOLD

But Medicaid stands now on the threshold of opportunity for dramatic improvement. From interviews with state and federal officials and nursing home operators emerges this consensus on what can be done:

● Medicaid has on paper the requirement of a minimum of one doctor's visit a month. Now it has to enforce it, with the full threat of ending payments to nursing homes that lack the care. And the American Medical Association can help by following the example of the Knox County, Ind., Medical Society which checks to make certain nursing home patients are visited regularly by its member physicians.

● Medicaid can write into its future regulations a minimum number of nurses, according to the size of the home, to assure adequate care of patients. It requires only one nurse a shift now, even for a 120-patient home. State laws vary widely, but most require more than Medicaid.

● Medicaid has written in its new regulations a set of tighter standards on drugs and telephone prescriptions by doctors. One section requires a monthly review by doctors of all drugs used by patients. But this, too, will need enforcement at the state level that is not being carried out so far.

● Medicaid can add needed policies on mental patients. For example, Minnesota's state regulations define any patient who requires restraining straps to be mentally disturbed and forbid keeping such persons in nursing homes. Unfortunately, this also is enforced spottily even there. And Medicaid has no national policy at all.

Walker, the ANHA president, said current Medicaid and Medicare standards already are weeding out the poorer facilities and predicted, "In the next three years you are going to see a dramatic change in nursing homes in America."

Grand Rapids Firm to Discontinue Tires

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Corduroy Rubber Co., a tire maker for more than 40 years, is getting out of the business because of what was termed "the extreme competition of the major companies, which have become giants in the industry."

★ ★ ★

Roy C. Murphy, board chairman, and Charles E. Mills, president, made the announcement Thursday, saying Corduroy would stop making and selling tires "by the end of the year."

★ ★ ★

However, the firm said it will expand its molded and extruded rubber parts making for the automotive and appliance industries with no cutbacks in employment. Most of its production is rubber gaskets.

Explosions Rip Wisconsin Buildings

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — A bomb exploded in a second-floor stairwell of the Federal Building in downtown Milwaukee about 2:30 a.m., today. There were no injuries or fire but authorities reported considerable damage.

And in Madison, 80 miles to the West of Milwaukee, an explosion, believed by police to have been caused by dynamite, blew out steel doors to a drill area of the National Guard armory. No one was injured and the damage was estimated at $25,000.

The blast that damaged the Federal Building in Milwaukee occurred in an elevator lobby on the west side of the structure. It buckled the wall and ceiling of the lobby, shattered windows and put two elevators out of commission.

The FBI, which has offices in the building took charge of the investigation.

3 WERE INSIDE

At the time of the explosion, two guards and an FBI clerk were in the building. One of the guards narrowly escaped being struck by falling debris.

The FBI said it had not been able to determine what type of explosive was used.

★ ★ ★

The bomb apparently was set on the stairs or against an iron gate closing off the upper floors of the building.

Presque Isle County Coroner Charged in Arson

ALPENA (AP)—The Presque Isle County coroner and another man have been charged with three counts of arson in the July 4th burning of their hunting cabin in Presque Isle County.

Both are free on $1,000 bond awaiting arraignment on the charge Oct. 2 in district court.

Robert Gatzke, 29, the county coroner, was arrested Wednesday night at his home in Rogers City. Ernest Blake, 43, also of Rogers City, was arrested at his home Thursday.

The arrests ended a 2½-month investigation by the Presque Isle County Sheriff's Department and detectives from the State Police fire marshal's office.

Hearings on Haynsworth Wrapping Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee, after calling a flurry of witnesses hostile to the Supreme Court appointment of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth, sought today to wrap up its lengthy hearings on the nomination.

With all signs pointing to confirmation, Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., told some supporting witnesses they need not return to Washington from distant points to testify at the hearing.

Although the committee intended to finish hearing testimony today, the chances remained remote that the Senate would confirm Haynsworth by Oct. 6 when the Supreme Court begins its new term.

During two weeks of hearings witnesses and some senators have questioned Haynsworth's stock holdings, and his rulings on civil rights and labor issues.

None of the testimony has changed the mind of Lawrence E. Walsh, a spokesman for the influential American Bar Association, who testified in favor of Haynsworth last Thursday.

"If the facts are as they've been made public, I don't anticipate any change," Walsh said last night in a telephone interview.

★ ★ ★

Even Senate opponents of Haynsworth have conceded repeatedly their chances of blocking confirmation seem dim.

★ ★ ★

Civil rights spokesmen presented formally yesterday the objections they had been raising publicly ever since President Nixon nominated the 56-year-old jurist.

20-Mill State School Levy Seen

MAKE OVER PAGES

By BARBARA CRANHAM

LANSING (UPI) — Gov. William G. Milliken will propose replacing the local property tax with a 20-to-24-mill statewide levy and hiking the income tax by 2 to 3 percent to finance his educational reform package, a legislative leader says.

★ ★ ★

Milliken will also request a "significant appropriation" for nonpublic schools and a "major" shift in the state's role in education, the official said yesterday.

Democratic Senate leader Sander M. Levin said he received a briefing Wednesday on the package, to be announced next week. David Dykhouse, the governor's legal advisor and one of the main writers of the reform program, outlined the details, Levin said.

"They wouldn't completely wipe out the local property tax, but they would wipe out the voted millage for school operation altogether," the Berkley Democrat said.

ADDITIONAL MILLAGE?

"They still haven't decided if local districts will be allowed to exceed the state property tax and vote in a tax beyond the 20 mills," Levin said.

He said a change in the property tax would require a constitutional amendment which could not be ratified before the 1970 election.

The Senate Education Committee chairman, Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo, has already said legislators will resist any attempt to fund the new school system with a statewide property tax. He is calling for lawmakers to support a 5-6 per cent hike in the income tax to be earmarked for education.

Senate Appropriations Chairman Charles O. Zollar warned yesterday that any tax increase to finance an educational reform program will also have to cover an expected $140-million deficit in the state's fiscal 1969-70 budget.

PAROCHIAID DEFINITE

Levin said, "There is no doubt the governor will propose parochiaid in some form. My impression is they haven't decided yet how much, but it's not going to be a nominal sum."

Milliken will recommend that the State Board of Education be abolished, Levin said.

The governor would appoint the state superintendent of education, he said.

★ ★ ★

Milliken also has a "regional plan" for school districts, Levin said, that will consolidate the intermediate districts into 10 or 15 regions with a superintendent for each. The regional superintendents will be appointed by the state superintendent. This will place all education officials under the supervision of the governor's office.

Black-White Fighting Halts Classes at PCH

By JIM LONG & MARY SUNDSTROM

Fist fights broke out between black and white students shortly before 11 a.m. today at Pontiac Central High School.

One angry police officer said he thought the demonstration had quieted down when all of a sudden school officials decided to dismiss classes.

"It was a bad move, said Assistant Police Chief Harry Nye.

Police in helmets and riot gear hauled one fighter away, but it was not known if an arrest was made.

STARTED AT 10:30 a.m.

The fights broke out around 10:30 a.m. in front of the school on West Huron, blocking east and west traffic.

Similiar disturbances yesterday caused class cancellations at Pontiac Northern High and Madison Junior High today.

By 10 a.m. approximately 200 black students were milling around Central. Several scuffles between black and white students were reported and a brick was tossed through a first-floor window.

Meanwhile, at PNH, parents and student representatives were meeting with school officials this morning following racial upsets which disrupted the two predominantly white schools yesterday.

'STUDENTS FROM PNH'

A number of students congregating outside PCH reportedly were from Northern.

At 10:30 this morning Central school officials announced over the public address system that those students in class who wanted to go home had permission and those who wanted to could stay.

There were no parraent leaders among the demonstrators this morning. Students questioned outside the building were unable to give any reason for demonstrating.

Shortly after 10 a.m. several leaders from the black community and school officials attempted to have the young demonstrators meet at the Hayes Jones Community Center.

2 STUDENTS TREATED

It was not immediately known if and when the meeting would be held.

At least two white students yesterday received medical attention as a result of fisticuffs with black students at Northern as school closed an hour early. Other reports indicated there were several minor fights between black and white students throughout the day.

Today's meetings between administrators, teachers and selected parents and students at Northern and Madison were to discuss yesterday's incidents and to attempt to find causes behind the black-white student confrontations.

All other schools in tpe city were to remain open today.

MEETS WITH ADMINISTRATORS

The board met in executive session last evening with administrators of the schools and concurred with their requests to have the schools closed. Board action was unofficial because of state law which requires that no action be taken during informal sessions.

The board met following a 90-minute closed door session last night with about 80 parents, mostly white, to inform them of its decision, and to discusss yesterday's incident.

★ ★ ★

Board President Russell L. Brown told the parents that he had been made aware of plans to disrupt the school yesterday by black students between 3 and 4 p.m. Wednesday. He said he notified Assistant Supts. William Lacy and Richard Fell and Pontiac Police Chief William Hanger.

The two school administrators were also notified of the plans and proposed time schedule of events, Brown said.

HEADING FOR HOOSEGOW—Police frisk students at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor early today prior to putting them on buses to take them to the Washtenaw County Jail. The demonstrators were taken from a classroom building where they had spent the night. Nearly 100 were arrested. The protest stemmed from a dispute over who should control a proposed book store.

103 in U-M Building Arrested

From Our News Wires

ANN ARBOR — Aforce of 400 state and local police pushed into the Literature, Science and Arts Building on the University of Michigan campus before dawn today and arrested 103 demonstrators who had held the building for 12 hours.

Sympathizers outside, who earlier riped up a court order to leave the building, made way when the huge police force moved on the building.

★ ★ ★

Those arrested, including the president and vice president of the school's student government, were charged with "contention," a misdemeanor that charges contending to create a disturbance. They were being held on an interim bond of $25 pending arraignment later today.

Sympathizers of the demonstrators, who were protesting establishment of a university-run bookstore in the five-story building, began a collection to raise money for bond. At least 43 of those arrested were identified as university students.

FOUR BUSLOADS

Four busloads of Michigan State Police were brought to the rear of the building at 3:35 a.m. to augment a force composed of Washtenaw and nearby Oakland County sheriff's deputies and Ann Arbor city police.

Some 1,500 sympathizers, who had been ringing the building in the chill night, were shoved aside and offered no resistance to the onrushing police as they entered the building.

★ ★ ★

The police entered at the request of university President Robben W. Fleming, a university spokesman said.

The arrests were made with only shoving and pushing. A hellcopter circled overhead, playing a spotlight on the scene, and demonstrators chanted, "the whole world is watching."

7 STUDENTS INJURED

At least seven students and two officers were injured, none seriously.

William Haber, assistant to Fleming, said damage to the building was one door kicked in and one window broken.

A march on the university's Administration Building was called for noon by protesters.

City and university authorities were rebuffed in two earlier attempts to serve an injunction ordering the students out.

About 400 students left the building after the university obtained the injunction but the others stayed put.

Police Chief Walter Krasny and university attorney Peter Forsythe were turned back in separate attempts to enter the building to serve the injunction.

Cong Bases Found; Saigon Terror Seen

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. paratroopers found two Vietcong sapper bases less than 15 miles from Saigon in the past 24 hours, and the commander of the U.S. 2nd Field Force said the enemy "is doing his damndest" to infiltrate the demolition and sabotage experts into the South Vietnamese capital.

Saigon may be in for a "flurry of terror," said Lt. Gen. Julian Ewell. He reported that captured documents indicate the Vietcong and North Vietnamese will rely heavily on sapper attacks in the winter-spring campaign which the U.S. Command expects to start in November.

★ ★ ★

Troops of the 82nd Airborne Division's 3rd Brigade found the first sapper camp late yesterday afternoon 12 miles northwest of Saigon. Its store of munitions included 30 pounds of plastic explosive, 550 blasting caps and 30 feet of detonating wire.

The base was hidden in the high elephant grass of a swamp and consisted of about 25 camouflaged huts. It apparently was abandoned just before the Americans, acting on intelligence information, swept into the area. Food found in pots was still warm.

Another patrolling paratrooper unit found the second jungle base this afternoon eight miles west of the capital.

The sappers were caught in their bunkers, and first reports said seven of them were killed.

★ ★ ★

The two camps were the closest enemy bases to Saigon found in more than seven months by the 3rd Brigade. It defends the capital's western and northwest flanks but is one of the major units to be withdrawn from Vietnam in the next three months.

The U.S. Command belatedly announced today that the second round of U.S. troop withdrawals began five days ago.

The first unit to leave the country was the 238th Combat Support Company, an Army Reserve unit from Texas. The 90-man company left Sunday.

Pleasant Weekend Forecast for Area

It looks like Pontiac-area residents will have another pleasant weekend.

Here is the U.S. Weather Bureau's official day-by-day forecast:

TODAY Partly sunny this afternoon, high 62 to 67. Fair tonight and cooler, the low 42 to 47.

★ ★ ★

Winds southerly at five to 15 miles per hour becoming westerly under 10 miles tonight.

TOMORROW — Mostly sunny and mild, the high 60 to 66.

SUNDAY — Fair and cool.

Probabilities of precipitation are 30 per cent today, 10 per cent both tonight and tomorrow.

Fifty-two was the low thermometer reading in downtown Pontiac before 8 a.m. By 12:30 p.m. the mercury had climbed to 66.

2nd Is Cleared in Brutality Case

The police brutality case involving two city patrolmen and two black community workers is closed as far as the Pontiac Police Trial Board is concerned. The board last night dismissed all charges and complaints against Patrolman Raymond Hawks.

★ ★ ★

The charges against codefendant Carl Yuill similarly were dismissed by the six-member civilian board last month.

The complaint against Hawks and Yuill had been leveled by Eilck Shorter, 25, and Kenneth Walker, 27, following a July 10 incident at Hayes Jones Community Center.

The two community workers were charged with creating a disturbance and resisting arrest in a scuffle which followed a goodwill visit to the center by the two officers.

5 TO 1 VOTE

The dismissal decision was five to one with the dissenting vote being cast by the board's only black member, Sam Morgan.

Shorter's attorney William Waterman, said the decision was symptomatic of conditions and attitudes existing in Pontiac.

★ ★ ★

"It reflects the total disregard for the feelings and rights of minority people on the part of public agencies and social organizations in this city."

Meanwhile, the decision on the preliminary examination proceedings of Walker and Shorter will be announced Thursday by District Court Judge Cecil B. McCallum.

Has Cost-of-Living Clause

Social Security Plan Told

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has proposed $4.25-billion hikes in social Security reforms and benefits plus a new, automatic locking of the system to cost-of-living increases.

The President outlined his unexpectedly broad proposals for Social Security change yesterday to a Congress apparently eager to go him one better on liberalization.

★ ★ ★

Beneficiaries have seen inflation whittle almost 8 per cent from their Social Security checks since the last increase in March 1968. Accordingly, the chief executive asked a catch-up, 10 per cent, across-the-board benefit hike effective for payments in April 1970.

To meet the cost, President Nixon recommended an increase in the maximum earnings subject to Social Security levies from $7,800 today to $9,000 beginning Jan. 1, 1972.

PARING OF CONTRIBUTIONS

He also asked that legislated contributions for both employers and employes be pared between 1971 and 1976.

However, despite the proposal for a levy rollback, a workers making the wage maximum would pay $54 more a year under the President's proposal in 1972 — $459 versus $405.

★ ★ ★

Middle-income Americans will be asked to pay most of the bill.

The average family benefit for an aged couple, both of them recipients, would rise from $170 to $188 a month, the White House said.

FOR RETIRING INDIVIDUAL

For a man or woman retiring next year at 65, the minimum benefit would increase from $55 to $61 a month and the maximum from $165 to $181.50.

For a married couple where the husband is retiring next year, the minimum monthly benefit would rise from $82.50 to $91.50 and the maximum from $247.50 to $272.30.

★ ★ ★

Legislation to put the increases into effect is expected next week.

Green Beret Lawyer: Was Anybody Killed?

From Our News Wires

BOSTON — F. Lee Bailey, who will defend a Green Beret officer charged in the alleged execution of a double agent in Vietnam, said today the U.S. Army will be asked first to prove someone indeed was killed.

Bailey, who got his start as a lawyer while a counsel in the Marine Corps in the 1950s, declined comment on whether the controversial case involving the murder of a reported double agent was "typical" of clandestine intelligence operations throughout Southeast Asia.

"The question here is was anybody killed?" That may be the first issue the Army has to confront," said Bailey, who will defent Capt. Robert Marasco of Bloomfield, N.J.

Extensive dragging operations in Nha Trang harbor and off the coast of South Vietnam earlier this year failed to uncover any sign of the body of a Vietnamese identified as Thai Khac Chuyen, who reportedly was executed June 20 when U.S. authorities learned he was spying for both sides in the Vietnam War.

In South Vietnam today, attorneys for three of the accused Green Beret officers appealed to President Nixon today to dismiss the charges.

Claiming that the case had been "irreparably tainted by command influence," the motion asked Nixon to dismiss all charges against three of the six officers and "in the alternative to issue a new series of charges."

The petition to the President was filed on behalf of Col. Robert B. Rheault, 43, of Vineyard Haven, Mass., the former commander of all Green Beret forces in Vietnam; Maj. David E. Crew, 33, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Capt. Leland J. Brumley, 27, Duncan, Okla.

In a story yesterday by Newsday columnist Flora Lewis, the dead spy was called a triple agent owing allegiance to South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

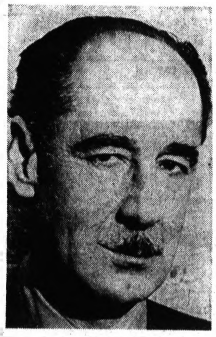
Miss Lewis said she learned the new information in a report from Vietnam. She did not elaborate on her source.

She said the spy was working with the Special Forces on orders from Thieu, who wanted to see what U.S. troops were doing across the border in Cambodia and Laos. Thieu did not trust American explanations he received, she said.

The Central Intelligence Agency found out he also was working for the North Vietnamese. The CIA recommendation for Chuyen was to "terminate with extreme prejudice," she said.

When Thieu learned of the slaying he rushed to Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, according to Miss Lewis, and demanded to know "why you are killing my people."

"Only then, with Chuyen dead," she wrote, "did any American know the answer to the riddle of the agent's loyalty. It was to Saigon."



ALFREDO OVANDO CANDIA

Military Coup in Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivia became today the fifth South American government to come under military rule. A movement headed by Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia, commander in chief of the armed forces, overthrew the civilian government of President Luis Siles Salinas.

The new regime seems more left-leaning than most military governments. The Cabinet is made up of young dissident leftist politicians from the Christian Democratic party and the Nationalist Revolutionary party, plus independents and young military men.

This trend opens a new chapter in this nation, which has been independent for 14 years and has undergone 185 coups or quick changes of government in that time.

In a message directed to the peasants, Gen. Ovando declared the new government will "defend the rights of the peasants, bringing into realization action that will make more profound the olivian agrarian reform" of 1953. Through its history the Bolivian economy has depended almost entirely on tin.

"The revolutionary government is on your side," Ovando told the peasants.

A message given out at Government Palace said the government "will fulfill the mandate which the people in its great majorities have been demanding." Among other things, Ovando promised to carry out a plan of "heavy industrialization."

The decree naming the new Cabinet said that "in accordance with the guidelines of the great transformation which the country needs," the government has chosen "persons whose political background are really revolutionary."

In one post there was no change. Foreign Minister Gustavo Medeiros was retained. He now is in New York attending the U.N. General Assembly.

Bolivia thus joined Argentina, Paraguay, Brazil and Peru among South American governments under military rule. Elsewhere in the hemisphere, Panama, El Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua are under direct or indirect military control.

A communique issued by the commanders of the three armed forces of Bolivia said they took action "to avoid the danger of anarchy, capitulation and disorder."

Rogers, Gromyko to Discuss Mideast Tonight

From Our News Wires

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The Middle East is up for Big Two discussion tonight at a private dinner meeting between Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Gromyko will be host for the session at the headquarters of the Soviet mission to the United Nations. Rogers had Gromyko to dinner Monday night.

★ ★ ★

The meeting tonight is the final conference scheduled between the two men during their attendance at the U.N. General Assembly, and U.S. officials said the Nixon administration has not decided whether to invite Gromyko to Washington to see the President. Neither side has raised the matter, they added.

The Middle East, disarmament and Germany-Berlin were discussed at the meeting Monday.

IN WASHINGTON

Rogers met in Washington yesterday with Israeli Premier Golda Meir and intends to pursue with Gromyko tonight the discussion on ways to settle the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Today Mrs. Meir is briefing President Nixon on the full array of her nation's economic and military needs.

★ ★ ★

The White House said Nixon was considering the Israeli request for more military equipment but there was no need for "an immediate decision."

At the White House state dinner for Mrs. Meir last night, however, Nixon was asked by reporters what he thought about the arms request.

"Well, she makes quite a case," the President responded.

★ ★ ★

The U.S. strategy in the talks with Gromyko is to stake out areas of agreement with the Soviets, put new life into the Big Four efforts toward a settlement, and induce Arab-Israeli negotiation through U.N. mediator Gunnar Jarring.

Meanwhile, in Moscow, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda charged that "those who direct Western propaganda" fabricated the report that the Soviet Union was attempting to overthrow Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Among lesser items, Rogers was prepared to talk with Gromyko about maritime trade.

★ ★ ★

The Soviets want their commercial vessels to be able to call at eastern U.S. ports as they have done on the West Coast. U.S. officials said the government doesn't bar Soviet ships from East Coast ports, but the unions have prevented their docking.

★ ★ ★

Vietnam has not figured in the Rogers-Gromyko talks to date. But Belgium, a U.S. ally, urged the United Nations yesterday to underwrite peace in Southeast Asia by a joint renunciation of force.

Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel expressed regret that Nixon and Gromyko had failed to find common ground on Vietnam in their speeches to the assembly. He said any treaty ending the Vietnam war should be supported by a regional security pact to which the world powers would subscribe.

Harmel said Red China should be among these powers and should have seats both in the Security Council and in the General Assembly. But Peking's admission should not be at the cost of expelling Nationalist China, he said.

Black-White Fights Halt Classes at PCH

were stationed in the buildings yesterday. Less than a half-dozen uniformed police officers were outside during the day.

Brown refused to identify the source of his information concerning yesterday's events at the two schools.

★ ★ ★

Parents at last night's meeting were concerned about the safety of their children as they attended school. School officials said they plan to make every effort to protect youngsters.

The disturbance yesterday apparently stemmed from a fight at Northern between a black student and a white student shortly before school began at 8:30 a.m.

PUSHED THROUGH WINDOW

School officials said a white youngster was pushed or thrown through a large window and received numerous head cuts. A 16-year-old white youngster, Dennis Dow of 644 Brooks, was treated and released at Pontiac General Hospital, according to hospital officials. The black youngster involved has not yet been identified publicly.

★ ★ ★

Another white Northern student David Newport, 360 Linda Vista reportedly suffered a fractured shoulder when a black student struck him with a hammer.

★ ★ ★

Just as school was commencing, Northern's fire alarm system was tripped and all of the students left the building. Apparently, when they returned to the school, a number of black students refused to return to class.

Other students were kept in their classrooms and many of the classroom doors were locked from the outside. Northern Principal Philip Wargelin told parents last night, however, students were not locked into the rooms since the doors open from the inside.

★ ★ ★

Several white students also left their classrooms and some of the students roaming the halls left the building and were not permitted back in, according to normal procedure, unless they had passes.

Schools Assistant Supt. William Lacy, who arrived at the Northern at 8:30 a.m. for a previously planned meeting with department heads, called for a school bus to transport some 70 black students to the Pontiac Black Cultural Center about 11:30 a.m. He said another school bus took about 20 more students to the center a while later.

'TENSIONS RELIEVED'

He said that he and school administrators felt some tensions in the school were relieved when this delegation of black students left the school.

He said that they voluntarily went to the center, they were not ordered or requested to leave.

★ ★ ★

Black and white parents arrived at both schools during the day to bring their children home. Other students left the school without checking out.

A delegation of white students from Northern and the adjacent Madison Junior High marched to the school board offices in the afternoon to speak with central administrators.

★ ★ ★

"The colored want equal rights, and so do we. But they're getting more than we are. We want peace and equality and we're not going back to school until we get it," a young girl screamed.

The white students marching to the board offices said that black students in both schools were harassing them and had threatened them during the day with knives and guns.

RIOT 'PLOT' DEFENDANTS—Two of the eight men charged with conspiracy to incite riots at the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention arrived at the federal building in Chicago today. In foreground is John R. Froines, and turning a handspring is Abbie Hoffman. (Story, page B-10)

Shooting Suspect Dead

CHAMPLAIN, N.Y. (AP) — A man who police said shot and wounded two border patrolmen and a customs agent at a Canadian border crossing point today was found dead in Canada after he apparently committed suicide, police report.

State police said the man, Jesus Mark White, 22, of Brooklyn, N.Y., had been charged on a federal warrant with three counts of felonious assault upon federal officers.

Fire Kills 6 in Family

WILMINGTON, Mass. (AP) — Six members of a Wilmington family were killed early today and three were hospitalized when fire swept their home.

Mrs. Nancy Landers, 36, and five of her eight children perished in the blaze that gutted their 2½-story wooden house.

Birmingham Area

Country Club Announces New Officers

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — R. C. VanderKloot of 1200 Lone Pine has been elected president of the Bloomfield Hills Country Club, succeeding George Russell.

Other new officers include Benjamin Mills, vice president; R. S. Bright, treasurer; R. C. Fisher, secretary; and A. G. DeLorenzo, board of directors member.

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The Bloomfield Art Association (BAA) for the first time this fall is offering two courses it feels are designed to meet the needs of the community.

The courses include "Art in Action," a three-hour tour each Saturday for 10 weeks, and a framing and matting seminar.

★ ★ ★

The tour course, for children aged 10-12, will include visits to museums, galleries and studios of working artists, weavers, potters, sculptors and glass sculptors.

The children will carry their own sketch pads to record their impressions. The class is limited to 10 students.

SEMINAR TEACHER

The framing and matting seminar will be taught by John McKinney of the Birmingham Gallery. He will teach students how to select proper matting and framing as well as how to do much of the work themselves.

Registration for the BAA's fall term of studio classes will continue through Oct. 11 at the gallery.

BIRMINGHAM — Artist Tom Costa will present an exhibition of contemporary oils from noon to 8 p.m. Oct. 4 and 5, at the Birmingham House, 145 S. Hunter.

Costa, a native Detroiter, has been painting in oils for more than 20 years, specializing in clowns and still lifes.

An organ concert featuring "Music You Know" will be presented by Dennis Awe at the Unity Center of Birmingham, 1153 Bennaville, next Thursday at 8 p.m.

Awe has been a church organist for the past 10 years in Commack, N.Y. He conducted the orchestra for "The Music Man" on Broadway.

4th School Aide Position Urged

The Pontiac Area Urban League yesterday recommended to the Pontiac School Board that the board create a new position of assistant superintendent to handle race relations.

The school board has already created a new position for a third assistant superintendent and Sept. 4 offered it to a man from Virginia.

★ ★ ★

This decision brought criticism of the board because groups of citizens and the school's human relations committee felt a man already on the staff, John Perdue, director of school-community and human relations, should be named to the post.

The Urban League desires a fourth assistant superintendent, apparently Perdue, although he is not named in the resolution.

'FURTHER UNREST'

The resolution states the board's decision on hiring the Virginia man, Dr. William Edmonds, an official at Virginia State College, "has precipitated further unrest, frustration, turmoil and polarity." Dr. Edmonds has not yet accepted the post.

Urban League Director William Clark said that the new post still leaves the school district without an official operating specifically in the field of civil rights.

★ ★ ★

Clark said the job description in the recently created post does not include the role recommended by the school's committee nor in a study of the district made by the Michigan Civic Rights Commission (MCRC).

Clark placed a similar resolution before the Pontiac Area Planning Council (PAPC) on Sept. 11 but the issue was voted down with firm opposition from two school board members on the PAPC, Russell Brown and John K. Irwin Jr.

Best Solution Is to Attend Wedding Only

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: One year ago Mary died at a young age leaving behind two small children. Now her husband is remarrying. Mary's parents received an invitation to the wedding which her mother isn't quite up to yet. Her father said he wants to go (and he will) with his teen-age daughter. The poor woman is in a quandary. She feels it will look very bad if he goes and she doesn't.

Would it be socially acceptable to attend just the church and not the reception—regardless of what her husband does? And then explain in a note to the girl or the son-in-law that she gives them her best wishes, but just can't bring herself to join in the festivities at this time?—Perplexed

* * *

Dear "Perplexed": Your own solution is the best I can imagine. By attending the church ceremony, Mary's mother will publicly show her approval of the marriage, and her personal note to the bride will take care of any questions about her reluctance to be at the reception. It is most important that she do her best to foster a close relationship with her son-in-law, his wife and the children, and I feel that with this procedure, they will be off to a good start.

Queen Elizabeth II Is Chic and Thrifty

LONDON (UPI) — For a woman who requires an uncommon number of new clothes, Queen Elizabeth II is extraordinarily thrifty.

She buys a new outfit for important occasions at home and absolutely every engagement, big or little, when she goes visiting abroad — as a sort of compliment to her hosts. That's public life.

But her clothes for private life, kept in a completely separate wardrobe on the opposite side of her big dressing room adjoining her blue bedroom at Buckingham Palace, show no signs of such lavishness.

* * *

With her liking for country pursuits whenever she is off duty, the queen is most likely to be found relaxing in a comfortable suit. She does not need many new ones because she has an unchanging favorite style: box-pleated skirt touching the knees, figure-fitting jacket.

Her thrift falls by the wayside when she has to get new outfits for public appearances because she is, and must look, her role. Her couture designers, Norman Hartnell and Hardy Amies, are working right now on a particularly big order.

The queen will be touring New Zealand most of March and Australia from March 30 to May 3. She will wear a new dress for every engagement, which means several for each day.

At fairly regular intervals, the queen is accused of dressing badly. Hollywood designer Robert Blackwell, who concocts an annual list of the world's worst dressed women, took aim when he visited London recently. The queen looks "dowdy and quite old . . . far, far too traditional," he said.

The queen, who is 43, does not dress to look younger than her age. She goes to traditional designers; Hartnell is 68, Amies is 60, and feels she ought to follow certain rules. She wears gloves and loose sleeves because she shakes so many hands. She wears her skirts to the knee because she does not want to show an ungainly amount of leg climbing into or out of cars. She chooses shoes for comfort when standing up rather than for fashion.

Twice a year she goes through her wardrobes to update them. Her state gowns are destroyed so that no one else can wear them, but her other clothes are sent to charity organizations. All labels and identifying marks are removed so the recipient will never know she is going around in clothes once worn by a queen.

Michigan Grapes Free of Pesticides

LANSING (UPI) — Michigan Agriculture Department officials today reassured consumers that grapes sold in the state are not tainted by pesticides.

B. Dale Ball, department director, said continuing analysis by the department laboratory at East Lansing never has shown unsafe pesticide levels of Michigan grapes or any other grapes.

Cesar Chavez, organizer of the United Farm Workers, has charged that pesticides are a danger to the health of farm workers.

* * *

Chavez also has been promoting a boycott of table grapes in an effort to force growers to negotiate with his union.

"Michigan housewives can be sure grapes they buy in this state are within Food and Drug Administration tolerance levels for pesticide residues," Ball said.

"As with any other commodity, if found unsafe, the Department of Agriculture would seize and remove from the market any grapes which contained higher than allowable pesticide residues," Ball said.

Ball said food inspectors regularly purchase products from throughout the state for analysis. Grapes are among the products randomly sampled to insure that they meet state and federal standards.

Don't Give Nasty Remark a Chance to Bother You

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband was recently elected president of his lodge. A woman I know came up to me and said, "congratulations. So Morris accepted the presidency of the lodge. That was real nice of him. I heard nobody else would take it."

What answer would you have given her to put her in her place?

MORRIS' WIFE

DEAR WIFE: If she really didn't know better, her "place" is in the corner with the rest of the dunces. But if she actually meant it as a dig, the most effective reaction would have been a warm "thank you" — as though her knife had missed its target.

DEAR ABBY: I was told that in order to be a bridesmaid in a church wedding, you have to be a virgin. Is that true? MUST KNOW

DEAR MUST: No. (Fortunately.)

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Please print this. I want to clip it out and send it to my boss's wife when it appears:

Dear Mrs. ——:

Welcome home! You went away for most of the summer and left your husband all alone saying your children needed a vacation. What did you expect your husband to do? Go home to an empty house every night, heat up a TV dinner, and curl up with a good book?

I work for him. He was lonesome. He asked me to have dinner with him and I said yes. I also asked him to have dinner with me and he said yes. I cooked for him at HIS house, and mine, too. We had a ball.

* * *

But you don't have to worry. Nothing serious happened. I'm not the type to steal another woman's husband, although it wouldn't have been too hard.

And now I am going to give you a tip you really don't deserve. You have a wonderful husband. STAY HOME AND TAKE CARE OF HIM. He needs you more than your children need the mountain air. The next girl may want to play for keeps.

SQUARE SHOOTER

DEAR SQUARE SHOOTER: Thanks for your letter. A word to the wise . . .!

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have a relative who loves to play gin rummy. When HE wins he says it's 85 per cent skill and 15 per cent luck. When the other fellow wins he says it's 85 per cent luck and 15 per cent skill.

The problem is that he is a very poor loser and when the game is over and he has lost he always wants to play one more hand, "double or nothing."

I don't like this, but I don't want to look like a poor sport so I go along with it.

What can a person do when he's put on the spot this way?

NO GAMBLER

DEAR NO: Get off the spot by saying "no dice."

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Isn't it bad manners to say abruptly, "Let's change the subject?" A friend of mine is always doing this.

I know you can't keep discussing the same subject all the time, but isn't there a more tactful way of steering the conversation to some other subject?

For one thing, after a point-blank order like that it's awfully hard to say something that sounds natural.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Yes, it is rude to abruptly say, "Let's change the subject." But it sometimes is necessary in order to let the other party know that you have nothing more to say about a particular subject and do not care to discuss it further.

Lives There a Wife Who Hasn't Muttered—Wish He . . .

NEW YORK (UPI) — There is only one kind of woman who has never said, "I wish husbands didn't . . ."

She's single.

To give married women the comfort of misery-loves-company, and warn the single ones what's in store, here is an informal survey of New York area wives' complaints about husbands.

* * *

The supermarket is a major point of irritation, whether the family hero goes alone or accompanies the little woman to handle the heavy carry chores.

He likes to buy things. Queer things. Things such as filleted frogs legs in vegetables (one tin equals three days food budget) marrons glace (he didn't realize they were chestnuts) and a giant pack of chocolate covered Marzipan (put that on your calorie counter and watch it go over the top).

GETS EVEN

The husband of one highly skilled cook slid six TV dinners into her cart when she wasn't looking. She got even by serving them on six successive nights.

When he shops alone, he not only brings back edible erotica, he also forgets what he was sent for—such as baby's milk—or brings back drip grind when the list specifies percolator coffee.

"I wish he would remember to close doors," is another common complaint. Doors mentioned include kitchen cupboard (on which wife bangs head), refrigerator (turning freezer compartment into ice cave) and front door (no joke these days).

OTHER COMPLAINTS

Other complaints that receive a chorus of assenting sighs:

- The man who insists he doesn't like a certain dish, curry, perhaps, until someone else's wife serves it to him.
- "Mr. Clean," who goes dirty into a gleaming bathroom and comes out spotless, but with the bathroom looking like a leftover from the flood.

* * *

- The antique collector, who collects antique magazines, Sunday newspapers and other odd bits of paper. Throw them out and he cries a lot.
- The volunteer. He's always offering to help, as in "Can I help with the dishes?" after he knows they are washed, wiped and put away.

This diamond-encrusted rosewood bracelet watch has a base of Brazilian rosewood, and 177 diamonds set in 18-karat white gold. It was designed by the late Micheline Wolf for the Companies des Montres Longines in St. Imier, Switzerland. It is one of 30 jewelry pieces which received Diamonds-International awards in New York this week.

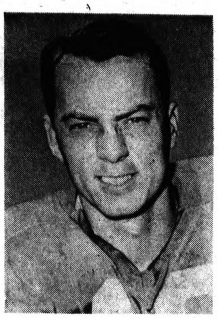
Diamonds seem to be colliding with a square sheet of pearls in this brooch designed by Yuji Takahashi of Tokyo. Pear-shaped diamonds are set on rods of yellow gold that run at right angles to each other. When the brooch is turned so that the diamonds shoot upward, or from either side, it gives a completely different appearance.

A brooch is just the thing for a pony tail. Designed by A. Julia-Plana of Bern, Switzerland, it has angular pieces of brown tiger eye surrounded by white gold and interspersed with round diamonds.

This beautiful piece was created by Susan Barfield of Norwich, England. It is constructed of 18-karat gold with 122 diamonds set in platinum. Miss Barfield was presented with one of the Diamonds-International Awards presented annually since 1954, and called the "Oscars" of the jewelry industry.

Bruce Starts Against Lions

Maher Little Giant of Giants



MILT PLUM

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

A couple of familiar names will take the field Sunday when the Detroit Lions and New York Giants tangle in the home opener at Tiger Stadium.

Milt Plum and Bruce Maher often heard boos as much as they heard cheers when they played with the Lions. Now they will be playing against the Lions who will be trying to come back on the right track after their dismal showing in Pittsburgh last Sunday.

* * *

The Giants under new head coach Alex Webster won an "emotional" victory over the powerful Minnesota Vikings, 24-23, as quarterback Fran Tarkenton scrambled his former teammates to death.

"We certainly don't have the strength of the Vikings," said publicity director Don Smith, "but we were emotionally high for the game, playing at home under a new coach."

Plum, who went to Los Angeles from Detroit in the deal involving Bill Munson, was traded earlier this season to the Giants. He did not play in the opener against the Vikings.

TONGUE-LASHING

Maher, however, has been the regular tight safety for the Giants since being traded two years ago and last week the fiery little defensive back gave his teammates a tongue-lashing which helped fire them up for the last quarter victory.

Smith said, "The Vikings, of course, took the lead and we were dejected when we went into the locker room at halftime."

"Maher came into the locker room, slammed his helmet into the locker and yelled, 'You. . . . , what are you going to do quit. We can beat them. Let's play ball.' "

As it happened the Giants scored 14 points in the last five minutes and carried their new coach Webster off the field on their shoulders.

"You can believe one thing," said Smith, "when Maher came to us, he showed our defensive backs how to play tough. He's small and often gets beat because the big receivers can take the ball over his head, but when it comes to tackling and contact he's as tough as they come."

Smith wasn't telling Lions' fans anything new. The fiery Maher always made up his lack of size with his competitive spirit.

Early in camp this season he suffered a shoulder separation and as Smith tells it, "He'd come out to the field and start running around with his arm in a sling. The coaches had to tell him to get off the field."

Passing Game in Spotlight at M, MSU

Spartans Must Guard Against SMU Aerials

EAST LANSING (AP) — The Southern Methodist-Michigan State game Saturday should help decide a classic football argument — if a powerful passing attack can whip a strong running team.

Mustang quarterback Chuck Nixson was the top passer of the collegiate ranks last season. He hit an amazing 265 completions in 468 attempts for 3,103 yards and 21 touchdowns.

So far this season Hixson has completed 59 of an even 100 tries for 599 yards and five touchdowns.

Southern Methodist still lost its first two games, 26-22 to Air Force and 24-21 to Georgia Tech.

Before the season, Michigan State coach Duffy Daugherty went way out on a limb, declaring: "Bill Triplett could be the greatest quarterback in our history."

Triplett did score two touchdowns in the 27-11 comeback win over Washington. But he threw more to the opposition than the green and white receivers, completing only two of a dozen pass tries and allowing three interceptions.

HARD WAY

When the air arm broke down, Michigan State had to grind it out the hard way. The Spartans netted 280 yards rushing to 133 for the opposition.

Senior Don Highsmith was the bull of the offense with his 148 yards net on the ground. Sophomore Eric Allen, a breakaway back, carried for 113 yards.

Allen was given the ball for 28 carries — topped for individual effort in this department only by the 31 carries by fullback Frank Waters in 1947 against Santa Clara.

Daugherty says Triplett should improve and notes he has been passing well in practice.

The strategy, meanwhile, is obvious. The Spartans have been drilled on pass defense all week. Daugherty also hopes to hold on to the ball so Hixson won't have a chance to throw to such fine receivers as ends Gary Hammond and Ken Fleming.

"We hope to avoid the long bombs," Daugherty said, "pick off a few, capitalize on their mistakes and hold their scoring to a minimum."

Linebacker Don Law, who speared a Washington pass and ran 70 yards for an MSU touchdown, could be one of the MSU lifesavers.

Daugherty has a theory teams make their greatest improvement between their first and second games.

* * *

This also will be tested in Spartan Stadium. The visiting Mustangs had a 8-3 won and lost season, including a bowl win over Oklahoma last fall. They are bound to be eager and angry.

Michigan State was 5-5 won and lost. Last year all the losses came in Big Ten play.

Michigan Will Try to Improve Passing Attack

From Our News Wires

ANN ARBOR — Glenn "Bo" Schembechler is worried about his passing attack — so he intends for his University of Michigan football team to brush it up against the University of Washington Saturday.

"We're probably going to pass more against Washington than we did against Vanderbilt last week because of Washington's bigger line," said Schembechler, whose team toppled the Comodores, 42-14, mostly on the ground.

* * *

"Our receivers still can't catch the ball and the problem is all fundamental. All they have to do is look at the ball, grab it and pull it into their gut.

* * *

"There's nothing to the pass patterns or plays that makes it hard but it seems that we want to run with the ball before we catch it," Michigan's rookie coach said.

INSIDE ATTACK

"Our quarterbacks also have problems of getting the ball to the receivers and now is not the time to start making mistakes," Schembechler said, adding, "It doesn't mean we've disregarded our inside attack."

The Wolverines only had 56 net yards passing against Vanderbilt while rolling up 367 yards on the ground.

Defensive end Phil Seymour will be the only player not in uniform for the Wolverines.

* * *

Seymour, who injured his leg several weeks ago, will not be ready to play until the Purdue game Oct. 11, reported Schembechler after Thursday's practice session.

Schembechler also said that although Billy Taylor has completely recovered from a shoulder injury, the sophomore halfback has been having trouble with his timing and may not play on Saturday.

* * *

Taylor practiced Monday for the first time in three weeks.

* * *

The Wolverines ran through a brief one-hour practice Thursday, in which they emphasized all aspects of their offensive and defensive game.

2 Tons of Linemen in Firebirds' Clash

When the Pontiac Firebirds and Lackawanna Lancers meet Saturday night in the key game of the Midwest Football League, the opposing offensive and defensive lines could be as big as any in pro football.

* * *

Pontiac's defensive front four of tackles Jerry Thick (300) and Ed Gillespie (270) and ends Dan LaRose (255) and Joe Carter (290) will pit their 1,115 pounds against the 1,040 offensive pounds of the Lancers, including guards Jim Smallwood (270) and Ted Gibbons (270) and tackles Ken Muir (240) and Harry Sugg (260).

* * *

On other hand, the Lackawanna front four of tackles Barry Connors (280) and John Troglaur (270) and ends John Valvo (245) and Russ Disparti (265) with a total of 1,010 pounds will match strength against the Firebirds offense totalling 1,000 pounds with tackles Joe Russell (250) and Bill Troy (235) and guards Don Barrick (275) and Al Popenhager (235).

EX-ROCHESTER GRIDDER

Barrick, a former Rochester High School football player, is the veteran of the Firebirds' offensive line, having played five years in the MFL, starting with the Mt. Clemens Arrows before that team came to Pontiac for couple years.

* * *

A resident of Ferndale, Barrick played football in the U.S. Marines for four years, and he has been one of the reasons why Doug Holcomb, has been one of the least touched quarterbacks in the league.

* * *

The Firebird offensive line has held off the big defensive lines as indicated by the statistics. While the Firebirds have thrown opposing quarterbacks for losses 21 times this year, Holcomb has been knocked on his seat attempting to pass 11 times.

FIRST GAME

In their first meeting, led by DaRose, the Firebirds smeared Lackawanna quarterback Butch VanRemmen four times, but an interception, fumble and bad snap on a punt were the big breaks which helped the Lancers to a 24-6 triumph.

The game Saturday night will be the fourth meeting in the all time series between the teams and Lackawanna has won all three previous encounters.

* * *

The Lancers have been installed as seven point favorites.

Game time is 7:30 p.m. Firebird officials have announced that all reserved seats are gone, however $2 general admission tickets will be available at advance agencies, Osmun's Grill, Bob-Ken's, VFW Post 1970, Firebirds Lounge and Coleman's Furniture.

* * *

Ticket windows will open at 6:00 p.m. at the Stadium.

The Pontiac Central band will perform at halftime of the game.

Cannon Bandits Hit Princeton

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A band of Rutgers University students apparently staged a predawn raid Thursday and made off with a Revolutionary War cannon belonging to Princeton University.

The cannon, which weighs a half-ton, was encased in concrete.

* * *

The cannon bandits left a mound of dirt, a four-foot hole, and a note in red paint, reading. "Thanks! Love, Rutgers '72."

The raid took place two days before the centennial football game between Princeton and Rutgers Saturday.

* * *

Princeton University officials discovered the theft when an unidentified caller telephoned officials wanting confirmation the cannon was gone.

Columbus Ace Volmar Signs With Detroit

DETROIT (UPI) — Doug Volmar, 24, a right wing who scored 63 goals at Columbus last season, has signed with the Detroit Red Wings, Detroit General Manager Sid Abel announced Thursday.

* * *

Volmar, of Civleveland, Ohio, will be assigned to either the Fort Worth Wings in the Central Hockey League or Cleveland Barons in the American Hockey League.

Hydro Boosts One-Lap Mark in Qualifying

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Leif Borgersen pushed the unlimited hydroplane Notre Dame to 115.336 miles an hour Thursday to boost the one - lap qualifying speed for Sunday's 61st annual Gold Cup race.

Notre Dame's effort topped the 113.066 m.p.h. posted on the 2½-mile Mission Bay course on Wednesday by Bill Muncey with Miss U.S., another Detroit entry.

In another practice run, Bill Sterett toured the course in Miss Budweiser at 110.382 mph. Sterett went back out just before the course closed to try to top Notre Dame's time, but had to pull back into the pits when debris drifted on to the course.

Jim Mc Cormick had Atlas Van Lines out also and posted a top lap of 100.800 mph, and Dean Chenoweth hit 105.882 with Myra's Special.

If Tigers Ever Look Back, They'll See Bosox Up Close

DETROIT (AP) — That immortal quote: 'Don't look back, someone may be gaining on you," is attributed to pitching legend Satchel Paige. But Detroit Tiger Manager Mayo Smith apparently goes along with it.

Detroit lost 7-3 to the Washington Senators Thursday to give the Nats a three-game series sweep and give the Tigers their sixth loss in eight games.

Meanwhile Boston, which seemed doomed for third place in the American League East just a week ago, moved to within a game of the second-place Tigers by beating New York 4-3. The financial difference between the finishes is $800 a player.

Detroit and the Red Sox were to open their critical three game series in Boston tonight with Joe Sparma, 6-8, making his first start in a month and a half for the Tigers. Mike Garman, 1-0, was the scheduled Boston starter.

"I'm not keeping a close eye on them," Smith said of the Sox. "We'll just try to finish second, that's all."

Mayo admitted the Tiger have been flat lately. Thursday's game, which drew only 4,589 for the smallest crowd since Oct. 1, 1966, was the last at home this season. It gave Detroit a final attendance figure of 1,577,481.

Detroit only got three hits: a single by Norm Cash and his 21st homer of the years, plus a solo home run by Mickey Stanley in the ninth inning. The Senators collected 22 runs in the series, with Ken McMullen knocking in eight of them, including three Thursday.

Sports Editor Wins Biggest Track Payoff

SALEM, N.H. (AP) — Sports Editor, a 4-year-old pacer, owned by Ron and Pres Hobson, won the second race at odds of 97-1 Thursday night at Rockingham Park.

In the biggest payoff in the track's 10-year harness history, Sports Editor returned $195.80 to win.

Owner Pres Hobson is sports editor of the Quincy, Mass., Patriot-Ledger. Co-owner Ron, his son, is a member of the sports staff.

Boom Sonics

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain scored 31 points and Jerry West scored 21 and added 15 assists as the Los Angeles Lakers beat Seattle's SuperSonics 134-107 in the first exhibition game for both National Basketball Association teams.

The Sonics were led by Bob Rule with 28 points.

Motta Signs New Pact

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jake Motta, coach of the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association, was given a new three-year contract it was announced Thursday.

First Exhibition Set for Pistons and New Coach

MARYSVILLE (AP)—The Detroit Pistons leave their training camp today with new coach Bill van Breda Kolff saying cautiously:

"We've improved from the start of the camp, but I don't know if it's good enough to go against other teams."

The Pistons find out Saturday when they open an 11-game exhibition schedule against the New York Knickerbockers in Grand Rapids.

Only 14 players, including the ailing Dave Bing, are left on the club's roster.

Forward Steve Vandenberg, a 6-foot-7 draft pick from Duke, received his walking papers after a Blue team whipped the Whites, 92-77, Thursday in an intra-squad game which attracted 400 fans.

Giving Up Coaching

CHICAGO (UPI) — Pete Reiser, who had served on the Chicago Cubs coaching staff since 1966, announced his resignation Thursday "to spend more time with my family."

Declines Shade Advances

Stock Market Continues Dip

NEW YORK (AP) — Declines quickly overcame advances in early trading today to take a slim lead as the stock market continued its losing performance of the last two sessions.

The Dow Jones industrial average at 10:30 a.m. slid to 828.60, off 1.32.

Early block trades included:

Occidental Petroleum 14,300 shares at 26, up ¼; Atlantic Richfield, 6,000 shares at 103, off ⅛; Union Carbide, 4,100 at 41★, up ¼; General Electric, 3,100 shares at 85¾, up ¼; and Mobil Oil, 3,900 shares at 55⅝, up ⅜.

Opening prices included:

American Telephone 51½, off ¼; Standard Oil New Jersey 69⅛, off ⅝; Polaroid 128 off ⅝; Gillette Co. 41¼, off ¼; Penn Central 36, up ⅜; Transamerica 24⅝ up ⅝; and Chrysler 38¾ off ⅛.

The market Thursday drifted to its second straight setback, as the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 4.76 points to 929.92, its worst showing in the last week. The Associated Press 60-stock average finished off 1.3 at 290.0.

Several analysts say investors have become discouraged because of the market's inability to break the 840 DJI level, and the uncertainty over the Vietnam War and efforts to dampen inflation.

Vietnam fears were further heightened Thursday by Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge's comment in Paris that Hanoi's representatives seemed more rigid than they have been in many months.

Market support was seen in two economists' statements Thursday. Tilford C. Gaines, vice president of Manufacturer Hanover Trust Co. said interest rates were "at or close to their highs."
