Holiday Road Toll May Wind Up Worst Ever

State Count Stands at 18 for Weekend; Drownings Claim 8

By The Associated Press

Motorists by the millions streamed home today as what could be the most fatal Fourth of July holiday weekend drew to a close.

The Associated Press tabulated 385 traffic deaths since 6 p.m. local time Friday.

The national Safety Council said the count has been running about 10 to 15 per cent higher than the Memorial Day weekend when 490 persons died on the highways.

If the trend continues, the council added, this could be the worst Independence Day weekend in history—exceeding the 566 fatalities in 1963, a four-day holiday observance.

* * *

The council had predicted between 470 and 570 traffic deaths this weekend.

510 LOST LIVES

Last year, 510 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents over the Fourth of July. It was a three-day weekend like this one.

Eighteen persons have been killed on Michigan roads over the holiday weekend. In addition, at least eight persons have drowned in state waters.

The 78-hour holiday weekend period ends at midnight local time. The council estimates motorists will have driven a total of nine billion miles by then.

MAKE COMPARISON

A total of 435 deaths were reported on the nation's streets and highways over a corresponding 78-hour summer weekend period not involving a holiday.

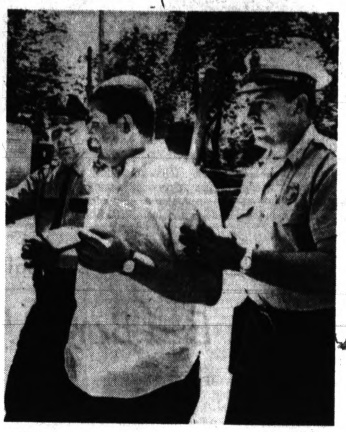

The Associated Press, for its own comparison, made a count of traffic deaths for the non-holiday period from 6 p.m. Friday, June 18 through midnight Monday, June 21. The total was 363.

The current count includes a number of accidents resulting in multiple family deaths.

Four members of one family were killed in a three-car collision near Donalds, S.C.

TRAIN-CAR CRASH

Four members of another family, and two relatives, died near Sallisaw, Okla., when a freight train slammed into their car.

RIOT AFTERMATH — Officers lead away Thomas M. Fitzgerald, 21, of Fort Dodge, Ia., arrested in Arnolds Park, Iowa, yesterday a few hours after a predawn riot by an estimated 500 youths resulted in 60 arrests. He was fined $5 and $3 court costs on a charge of consuming liquor in a public place.

Mass Arrests Follow Brawls; Many Injured

Call National Guard in Ohio Disturbance; Iowa Units on Alert

By The Associated Press

Beer-drinking, carousing youths staged riots and disturbances in five resort towns in Ohio, Missouri, Iowa and New York this Fourth of July weekend, resulting in more than 700 arrests with heavy property damage and a number of minor injuries.

The youths, teen-agers and college students, battled officers with fists, bottles, fireworks and rocks.

At Geneva-on-the-Lake, Ohio, a second straight night of rioting was put down early today by local police before the arrival of National Guardsmen ordered out by Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Rhodes earlier sent the National Guard into Russells Point, in western Ohio.

At Arnolds Park, Iowa, the National Guard stood ready to move in at the request of local authorities.

* * *

Early yesterday at the north Iowa lakes resort, more than 500 beer-drinking youths rioted. At least 60 were arrested. A city ban was placed on the sale of alcohol beverages through this evening.

UNITS ALERTED

National Guard units were alerted in seven Iowa communities in case of renewed outbreaks.

Dickinson County Sheriff Bob Baker said officers found maps indicating the Arnolds Park riot "was completely planned."

It broke out as a mob gathered Saturday night when taverns began to close and shouted, "We want beer. We want booze."

Until they were dispersed with tear gas and fire hoses, Baker said, the youths "acted like a bunch of wild men."

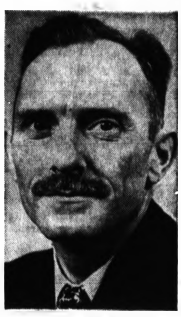

BATTLE POLICE

At Rockaway Beach, Mo., an Ozark Mountain resort, thousands of beer-drinking youths battled officers and smashed windows. The serious rioting erupted just before midnight yesterday. A total of 175 youths were jailed. An estimated 8,000 youngsters jammed the resort.

Police said the rioting was touched off when they arrested three youths riding on a motorcycle. The crowd protested and began manhandling the officers.

Authorities said the youths brought cases of beer into town

ROBERT W. HODGE

Ex-County GOP Head Dead at 62

Former Oakland County Republican Chairman Robert W. Hodge died yesterday after a brief illness. He was 62.

Hodge, a prominent attorney and long term Lake Angelus official, lived at 650 Lake Angelus Shores.

Service will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow at All Saints Episcopal Church following cremation.

A native of Detroit, Hodge was a long-time resident of Oakland County, and practiced law in Pontiac and Royal Oak for 29 years.

* * *

He was a graduate of the University of Michigan Engineering School and the Detroit College of Law. He was a member of the Oakland County, State and United States Supreme Court Bar Associations.

CLERK 29 YEARS

Clerk of the Village of Lake Angelus for 20 years, Hodge had been president of the Oakland Citizens League and a trustee of Civic Research, Inc.

A member of the Gridiron Club of Pontiac, he was a member of the All Saints Church in Pontiac, and a former reserve officer of the Corps of Engineers.

During the war, he served with the Detroit Ordnance District of the War Department, purchasing tanks and other material.

Second B52 Attack Hits Viet Cong Area

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U. S. officials said that "about 25" B52 jet bombers from the Strategic Air Command took part in a raid today on Viet Cong positions. They came from Guam 2,200 miles away.

The raid was staggered, with three planes in each flight moving over the target at intervals of ten minutes, a spokesman said.

The attack on a big tract of jungle 35 miles northeast of Saigon began about 1 a.m. and continued intermittently until 5 a.m., he said.

The planes dropped about 500 tons of general purpose bombs into the jungle, the spokesman said, and the pilots, reportedly felt their bombing patterns had been good.

The spokesman said there were no reports of any of the big planes missing on the return flight to Guam.

* * *

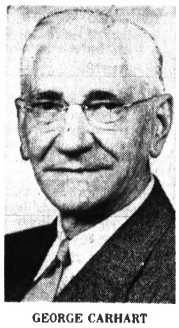

He said it would be several days before authorities could assess the effect of the latest raid.

DIFFERENT AREA

No ground operation went into the jungle after the raid, and the spokesman said he did not know if any such operation was planned.

The spokesman said the area hit by B52s today was not the same one hit by B52s June 18.

However, both the June 18 raid and today's raid were in a large, jungled area northeast of Saigon known as "D Zone."

GEORGE CARHART

Veteran YMCA Official Dead

Parents Were Among 1st County Settlers

George Carhart, son of early settlers of Oakland County and former state secretary for the YMCA of Michigan, died Friday of a heart attack after a brief illness.

He was 83.

Mr. Carhart of 40 Hadsell, Bloomfield Township, had given his body to Wayne State University for research work. A family memorial service will be held at a later date.

Mr. Carhart's father, owner of Carhart's Jewelry for 40 years, was born in Pontiac. His mother was born in a log house on Voorheis Lake, Orion Township.

Grafuating from Pontiac High School in 1900, he was a member of the class founding the Pontiac High School Quiver. Carhart gave the yearbook its name.

20 Hurt in Aerial Bomb Burst

DETROIT (UPI) — An aerial bomb came down at a fireworks display last night on the grounds of a Roman Catholic school and exploded, injuring 20 persons.

Police said Edward Kaplan, 18, Detroit, took the bomb from the lap of his girl friend, Frances Bigman, 17, Detroit, and tried to get it away from the crowd when it exploded, nearly blowing off parts of his left hand.

Five other persons were injured in nearby Redford Township in another fireworks explosion in the pit area used to shoot aerial bombs skyward.

Thomas Demski, 39, a professional fireworks exhibitor, was seriously burned over most of his body in the pit accident when a rocket launching mechanism exploded next to him.

Police said the explosion also injured Demski's 17-year-old son Thomas, and three young girls who were near the roped off pit area.

Nearly 3,000 persons had gathered to witness the fireworks display sponsored by the Dad's Club of the Precious Blood Roman Catholic Church. About 18 persons in the crowd received minor injuries from the explosion.

Kaplan, police said, started to run with the aerial bomb in an attempt to get it away

PORFIRIO RUBIROSA

Noted Playboy Dies in Crash

Car Careens Into Tree After Hitting Auto

PARIS (AP)—Porfirio Rubirosa, former Dominican diplomat and international playboy, was fatally injured this morning in an automobile accident.

* * *

Police said Rubirosa died while being taken to a hospital. The accident occurred in the famed Bois de Boulogne on the western edge of Paris.

Police reported that the Ferrari automobile he was driving left the road and crashed into a tree after colliding with another car.

MARRIAGES

Rubirosa was the former husband of Flor de oro Trujillo, daughter of the assassinated President Trujillo; Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton; Doris Duke and French actress Danielle Darrieux.

Rubirosa married Odile Rodin Oct. 27, 1956. They made their home outside Paris.

* * *

Rubirosa, 56, was the second international playboy to die in a Paris automobile accident. On May 14, 1960, Prince Aly Khan, a close friend of Rubirosa, was killed in an automobile collision not far from the Bois de Boulogne.

Holiday Windup Will Be Partly Cloudy, Pleasant

The weatherman may celebrate the holiday with a thunderbolt or two today, but mostly skies will be partly cloudy with pleasant temperatures expected.

A low of 47 to 56 is forecast for tonight, following today's high of 73 to 80. Skies this evening will be fair.

Tomorrow mostly sunny weather is scheduled with a high in the 70s.

Sixty-six was the low mercury reading early this morning. The thermometer registered 74 at 10 a.m.

Calls Luci's Rebaptism 'Sacrilegious'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike has described Luci Johnson's rebaptism as a Roman Catholic as "sacrilegious" and a "direct slap" at the Episcopal Church.

Bishop Pike's statements, made from his Grace Cathedral pulpit in San Francisco yesterday, drew no comment from the White House or Catholic diocesan spokesmen in Washington, D.C.

Bishop Pike, in his sermon, asked for apologies from the President's younger daughter and the Rev. James A. Montgomery, who rebaptized her in the Catholic faith Friday on her 18th birthday.

Pike said both the Episcopal and Catholic churches teach that baptism is "an unrepeatable sacrament."

He said Miss Johnson was baptized in the Episcopal Church as an infant.

Killed on Drag Strip

UBLY (AP) — Leon Hamel, 26, of Detroit was killed Sunday while operating a so-called "rail dragster on the Ubly Dragway. Hamel's machine overshot the drag strip when the vehicle's braking parachute failed to open, police said.

Drownings Top '64 Rate

County Road Toll Is Down

Traffic fatalities in Oakland County at the close of the first six months of this year were running 13 per cent below 1964.

Drownings, however, are occurring at a rate 50 per cent above 1964.

Unofficial figures indicate that 78 persons died in motor vehicle accidents from Jan. 1 through June 30.

Last year during the same six months, 90 persons lost their lives.

* * *

SAME NUMBER

The same number of lives were claimed during February of 1964.

The county's worst traffic accident in the first six months of the year occurred on Jan. 16 when four teen-agers died in a two car head-on collision in Birmingham.

Fifteen persons drowned during the first half of 1965; only 10 drowned during the same period last year.

* * *

In 1964 the county recorded its first water fatality on March 31. This year a drowning occurred on Jan. 25.

FREAK ACCIDENTS

Three persons have died in freak water accidents this year.

* * *

Drownings took place in a water hole on a golf course, an amusement ride at a park and in a mud hole on a road in West Bloomfield Township.

Got Only Silence, Rebuffs on Viet Peace Bids---Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk says the United States has received only silence or rebuffs from the Communists in its efforts to bring peace to Viet Nam.

Repeatedly, Rusk said, the Communists have been approached about their reaction to a U.S. halt in the bombing of North Viet Nam.

* * *

"And we have never had any reply," he said. "As a matter of fact there have been public statements from Peking that if we stopped bombing North Viet Nam they still would not enter into negotiations for a peaceful settlement."

* * *

Rusk said the Communists were given advance notice of last May's five-day break in bombing raids, and the ultimate replies were "very harsh, very harsh."

NO DISCLOSURE

He did not disclose how the overtures were made, nor did he say what sort of a reply might lead to an end in the bombing.

Rusk spoke in a U.S. Information Agency television-radio interview recorded June 24 for broadcast on overseas stations Sunday night.

* * *

The secretary also repeated the U.S. stand to hold peace discussions only with governments, and not the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

But he said the North Vietnamese could include anyone they wanted in a peace delegation, including the Viet Cong.

WALK RIGHT IN

Rusk said North Viet Nam has sent most of the guerrillas into the south, and that those of the Viet Cong who are natives of South Viet Nam "can walk into the capital (Saigon) tomorrow and say 'we are prepared to be like other South Vietnamese and discuss problems of South Viet Nam on a political basis, rather than by arms."

Meanwhile, Ambassador-at-large W. Averell Harriman has described Viet Nam as "the toughest nut to crack" in the Communist offensive.

* * *

In a copyright interview in "U.S. News & World Report," Harriman said the Communists have been losing ground in Laos in America and Africa, but that Viet Nam represents "the final expression of Communist methods."

"If they can succeed with this guerrilla war," he said, "they believe they will be able to do it anywhere in the world."

ONCE CONVINCED

Once they are convinced they can't take South Viet Nam by force, he said, "then they'll come to a conference as President Johnson proposes."

Other Viet Nam comment during the weekend:

—Sir Patrick Dean, Britain's ambassador to the United States, said it is too soon to consider referring the Viet Nam war to the United Nations.

* * *

Asked on ABC's television-radio program "Issues and Answers" about U.N. involvement, he replied:

"I am afraid it is premature. I think that it is very desirable to see it get there in the end. But unless there is some general willingness on behalf of the parties concerned to do so, I doubt if the United Nations is in a position to contribute very much."

* * *

—Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., said he believes the Congress and the nation generally agree with administration policy in Viet Nam.

Speaking on a television-radio program taped for use in New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania, Case said it took him some time, but he now agrees generally with the administration policy.

Report China Girds City for Air Attack

HONG KONG (AP) — Red China today was reported installing guided missiles around its southern city of Canton and moving the major executive offices of that city 200 miles inland.

* * *

The reports came from Chinese travelers arriving aboard the Canton-Hong Kong train. They said Canton officials and residents appeared convinced the city would be attacked by U.S. planes.

* * *

Western intelligence sources in Hong Kong said information available to them indicated considerable movement in the Canton area but they had no confirmation of either the missile installation or city office movement reports.

The travelers crossing the Red China border into Hong Kong also said a number of heavy industries were being moved to Chungking, 700 miles northwest of Canton.

Sign Documents After 3-Day Stall

Reds End Barge Permit Test

BONN, Germany (AP) — Seven Communist East German barge captains, who for three days refused to sign Allied travel documents, have backed down and were allowed to sail into West Germany.

The West German Transport Ministry said the skippers signed Sunday after being held up at the border since Friday. They were on their way from Berlin.

* * *

By signing, the captains in effect recognized the validity of the documents which have been required for 19 years under a four-power agreement regulating barge traffic to and from Berlin.

The East German regime declared them invalid as of July 1 and replaced them with permits of its own. These are valid for one year and cost $50. The allied permits are free.

UNDER PROTEST

West German barge captains are buying the Communist permits under protest. The new East German regulations so far have not affected West Berlin, which receives 36 per cent of all freight on the 150 to 200 barges that ply the waterways. The city is 110 miles inside Communist territory.

Four of the East German barges had been held up at the Schnackenburg border control point on the Elbe River. The other three were tied up at Ruehen, the control point on the Mittleland Canal.

* * *

Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin said in Cologne Sunday the East German barge regulation "must be taken seriously."

Brandt also called again on the United States, Britain and France to force down East German aircraft that fly over West Berlin.

The East Germans, he noted, had not sent aircraft over West Berlin since June 21, when an armed Communist helicopter flew over the American sector.

* * *

"Should such a provocation be repeated," he said, "then our defending powers would have to be told again that helicopters can be forced to land."

GI Enters Third Week of Fasting

FORT MONMOUTH, N. J. (UPI) — Declaring "I only seek justice," Pvt. David Ovall entered his third week of fasting today to protest the Army's refusal to discharge him as a conscientious objector.

The 23-year-old draftee from Los Angeles said his parents have sent a telegram to Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas asking for help.

Ovall tried unsuccessfully to meet with a physician-friend from the University of Pennsylvania yesterday to get a civilian diagnosis of his condition.

He said his friend, Dr. Ameer Dixit of India, was a believer in conscientious objection and a supporter of his cause.

Dixie last night said he was unable to examine Ovall outside of the University of Pennsylvania Medical Center where he is a resident. But he said he intended to visit the reluctant soldier as a friend.

'SOUNDED TIRED'

"He sounded pretty tired over the phone when I spoke to him" Dixit said. "I guess I haven't been much help to him but I wish I could."

Ovall said doctors at the Patterson Army Hospital here confirmed through a urine analysis that he hasn't eaten in two weeks.

Ovall asked for his discharge because he is "against killing my fellow man or contributing to the killing of any man."

He said he could get out of the army in 10 days if "I accept an 'unsuitable for military service' discharge they have offered to me.

"I won't accept it though. I will only take a conscientious objector discharge. That is my belief and I will die for it."

Blaze at Inkster

INKSTER (AP) — A fire in which flames leaped 100 feet high, destroyed offices and a storage shed at the Inkster Lumber Co. Saturday night. There were no injuries.

and crowded into cottages and cabins. Besides shattering windows of nine business places and automobiles, a police car was overturned. Six injured persons were treated at a hospital.

* * *

Police estimated some 2,000 to 3,000 persons took part in the Rockaway Beach rioting. Fines of $15 to $60 were assessed.

29 ARRESTED

The National Guard was ordered into Geneva-on-the-Lake, Ohio, to prevent a recurrence of rioting Saturday night and early yesterday in which 29 persons were arrested at the resort on Lake Erie.

Four hundred National Guardsmen sealed off Russells Point all day yesterday and there was no further outbreak.

More than 100 youngsters — mostly college students — were seized and 72 jailed there early yesterday as the result of rioting involving some 1,500 persons.

Sixty-four persons were treated at hospitals, at least half being cut by flying glass and bottles. Some were cut by firecrackers exploded inside beer bottles.

ADDED ORDER

Accompanying Gov. Rhodes' order sending in the guard was an edict that all establishments selling beer and wine must stay closed today and tonight.

At Geneva-on-the-Lake, at least 14 persons were counted as injured — one a policeman hit on the head by a flying rock. A Russells Point policeman also was injured.

At Lake George, N.Y., more than 350 youths were arrested during three nights of rowdyism that started Friday evening and drew to a close today as the youngsters headed home.

* * *

During the height of the week-end — Saturday and last night —an estimated 15,000 persons, mostly youths, jammed the lake resort.

NO RIOT CALL

Despite the number of arrests, Mayor Robert Caldwell said there was "never any semblance of a riot" and that "an adequate number of police handled the situation very nicely."

Saturday night, Lake George bars and other drinking establishments closed about 1½ hours earlier. Last night, however, bars remained open until 3 a.m., their normal closing hour.

Most of the arrests were for intoxication, disorderly conduct and carrying open containers of alcoholic beverages in public.

At Bass Lake, Calif., about 125 members of a motorcycle club invaded the Sierra resort yesterday but — forewarned that disorder would not be tolerated — behaved themselves.

* * *

At Fort Worth, Tex., police and sheriff's units staged an amphibious commando raid yesterday morning to quiet a celebration on Goat Island.

Officers in two boats moved in after reports of a gang fight among 75 to 100 persons at an all-night party on the island. Two men were arrested for fighting. No injuries were reported.

Cab Drivers Back to Work in New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thousands of New York City taxi drivers returned to their jobs today, ending a seven-day strike for union representation.

In Chicago, a similar strike continued.

The settlement, pending a National Labor Relations Board election, was announced last night by City Council President Paul R. Screvane following a meeting with representatives of drivers and taxi fleet owners.

Screvane, who is acting mayor while Robert F. Wagner is visiting Denmark, told newsmen: "I have just secured a settlement in the taxi strike."

* * *

Under the agreement, some 15,000 cabbies go back to work without any immediate gains, but a temporary arbitrator, former Mayor and Judge Vincent R. Impellitteri, will rule on any discharges or suspensions sought by owners.

MARKED BY VIOLENCE

The representation dispute, marked during the walkout by frequent acts of violence and vandalism, will not be fully settled until NLRB election July 21.

On that date, about 10,000 drivers at 38 fleet garages will vote on whether they want to be represented by the TDOC, the Teamsters union, or have no representation at all.

No Market Page Today

The Pontiac Press will not contain a market page today due to the closing of the stock exchanges on the holiday. The regular market page will be resumed tomorrow.

Hawaii Sniper Held in Slaying

Shots Kill Officer; Three Tourists Hit

HONOLULU (AP)—A shy, soft-spoken man, trapped in dense underbrush near a lookout point in the mountains behind Honolulu, is charged with first-degree murder in the sniper slaying of a policeman and accused of wounding three bus-riding tourists from a perch on a ridge.

He is Michael Patrick Moeller, 23, a television repairman released from Hawaii's mental hospital four months ago. He had been committed after his indictment by a grand jury in connection with a sniping incident last December in which one person was wounded.

* * *

Saturday, a tour bus carrying 45 passengers was fired on as it made a hairpin turn in mountainous country near the famed Pali lookout point in the Koolau Mountains five miles northeast of Honolulu.

Mrs. Peter Montoya, 51, of Denver, Colo. was wounded in the abdomen. Her husband, also 51, suffered a thigh wound. He said he believed he was hit by the bullet that passed through his wife's body.

WOUNDED IN LEG

Forty minutes later, a bus carrying 31 was shot at. This time the victim was Edith Hendrick, 65, of South Weymouth, Mass., wounded in a leg.

Soon, at least 100 policemen had converged at the scene, a sharp curve in the highway.

As they worked upward through brush and trees, more shots rang out and Patrolman Bradley Kaanana, 25, fell with bullet wounds in his chest and his left leg. He lived 40 minutes.

Officer Steven Burke suffered a leg wound. Patrolman Andrew Uramoto was grazed on the head by a bullet.

SURRENDER FLAG

As the police pressed on, Moeller rose from the brush waving a rifle to which he had tied his white T-shirt as a surrender flag.

Later, wearing manacles, Moeller took police on a tour of the shooting area. Police picked up shells from a .30-caliber rifle and found a box that had contained a new rifle.

* * *

Homicide Lt. Dan Lee said Moeller had purchased a rifle and 200 rounds of ammunition Friday night.

The lieutenant said Moeller then took an auto from a used car lot on trial, went to the mountains and camped overnight. Lee said Moeller hiked through the mountains Saturday morning, shooting at trees and stumps, and in the next several hours, fired at three buses and one auto.

FOND OF GUNS

Moeller said after the December sniping that he loves guns.

"It's like an alcoholic," he said then. "I guess guns do something for me."

from the crowd before it could explode.

Many parents shielded their children with their bodies to protect them from flying fragments.

* * *

Kaplan and the young woman were seriously injured. His girl friend suffered burns to the legs, body and face as well as cuts from the flying fragments.

MINOR BURNS

Beth Hamway, 14, of Southfield, and Katherine Kastle, 13, of Redford Township, received minor burns from the pit explosion at the Redford Township fireworks display accident.

About 8,000 persons had attended the fireworks display Demski was setting off.

In another Michigan fireworks mishap, a University of Illinois student, David Hoffman, 21, of Chicago, was seriously injured when a homemade bomb he was making exploded.

He reportedly blew off his left hand at the wrist and suffered two broken legs and burns, police said.

State Police said Hoffman was making the bomb by stuffing gunpowder into a pipe at his cottage near the village of Glenn along Lake Michigan in Allegan County.

Birmingham Area News

Trip Films Scheduled at Cranbrook Institute

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — Birmingham resident Art Erickson, who left the area several years ago to travel around the world, will show films of his trip next week at the Cranbrook Institute of Science.

Erickson, 24, spent three years abroad, accumulating some 12,000 feet of color film.

He traveled as a crew member of the brigantine Yankee, working as a dishwasher and cook.

During his tour, he spent a year each in Europe, the Pacific and Australia.

* * *

His illustrated lecture, "Windjammer to Australia," is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. July 14 in the institute auditorium.

OPEN TO PUBLIC

The lecture is open to the public without charge.

From little-known islands of the Pacific to the Out Back areas of Australia, the film covers a journey halfway around the world.

There are scenes of the isolated Galapagos, Pitcairn Island and virtually unexplored Central Australia where the aborigines live.

* * *

Erickson, who lives with his parents at 293 Berwyn, Birmingham, recently presented to the institute of science a 17-foot canoe from the Florida Islands.

The canoe was used by head hunters and fishermen of the area, located across the bay from Tulagi.

W. Scribner Jelliffe has been named head of the history department at Cranbrook School for Boys.

Jelliffe, who also will assist in college counseling, replaces W. Robert Usellis.

His predecessor has joined the staff of the Athenian School in Diablo, Calif., as head of the history department.

Jelliffe comes to Cranbrook from the Charlotte (N.C.) Country Day School.

He holds a bachelor's degree from Dartmouth College and a master's from New York University.

Besides holding memberships in various professional and scientific societies, he was twice president of the Michigan Federation of Cooperatives and a past president of the Royal Oak Kiwanis Club.

Surviving are his wife Virginia; a daughter, Esther of Seattle, Wash.; a son, John, a YMCA secretary in Berkeley, Calif.; two grandchildren; and a sister Ruth Carhart of Los Angeles.

His daughter asks that friends making memorials might send CARE food packages to needy children overseas.

Britons Guard U.S. Buildings

Action Follows Blast at Express Company

LONDON (AP)—Scotland Yard placed heavy police guards around U.S. government and American business buildings in London today after the explosion of a mystery bomb at the American Express Co.

* * *

The blast occurred Sunday night in the heart of London's West End. The building frequently is used as a meeting place by American tourists. There were no injuries.

'WATCHING SITUATION'

"We are watching the situation very carefully," said a Scotland Yard spokesman.

Police ringed U.S. Ambassador David Bruce's Regent Park residence as the envoy gave a morning Independence Day reception.

* * *

"We haven't asked for any extra police," said an American spokesman.

Sunday night's bomb—believed to have been a gas pipe packed with explosives—blasted the back door of the express company's office.

Scotland Yard spokesmen speculated the bombing probably was done by extremists who have a grudge against the United States.

FIND BOX

A cardboard box with the words, Dominica danger, written on it was found near pieces of the bomb.

Only the door of the company's office was damaged, but several windows and windshields shattered.

* * *

Thomas Ryan, 40, a British chauffeur who was in the neighborhood, told police the bomb appeared to have been tossed from a passing car by a teenager.

Several hours before the bomb exploded, about 500 persons took part in an open-air meeting in Trafalgar Square. They said they were protesting United States action in Viet Nam.

GREETINGS — President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson extend greetings to well-wishers as they leave the First Christian Church in Johnson City, Tex., yesterday after attending morning services. A large crowd gathered outside the frame church, where the President is a member, to greet the Johnsons.

Controversy Dying

Mexico Profit-Sharing Success Grows

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The assembly line worker wiped his brow, turned to his friend and said:

"Have you heard the good news? Sales are up 10 per cent so far this year. Looks like I'll get that new television set after all."

* * *

This worker's connection of the company's sales and his plans for a television set reflect growing success of Mexico's once controversial compulsory profit-sharing plan.

Greeted with cries of protest and dire warnings that it would mean a sharp cutback in new business investment, the plan is now in its second year and the cries and warnings have all but ceased.

PRAISE PLAN

Businessmen praise the plan and the few protests that are heard come from the ranks of labor, where some workers complain when they feel the profits to be shared are too small.

This year, about two million workers are dividing profits estimated at between $80 million and $120 million, up from about $72 million divided last year among about the same number of workers.

* * *

Most of those who take part in the plan are union members in urban areas. Mexico's labor force is composed of something over 11 million persons, of which about six million are agricultural workers.

The profit-sharing is required by national law and affects about 80 per cent of the business and financial organizations in Mexico, both Mexican and foreign-owned. The largest foreign investment in Mexico comes from the United States, with a total of more than a billion dollars.

Exceptions to the profit-sharing law generally are small operations with few employes, or new industries exempted in their first stages.

Mexican officials point with pride to figures which they say show that compulsory profit-sharing caused no cutback in economic activity. Business in general was so good last year that Mexico's gross national product increased 10 per cent, the biggest increase in a decade.

So far this year, says the minister of industry and commerce, Octaviano Campos Salas, 20 major new industrial projects have been approved by his office, all involving foreign capital representing an estimated $58.4 million. Twenty other projects, representing an investment of about $48 million, await approval.

Under the profit-sharing plan, an estimated average of 14 per cent of total company profits are distributed among employes.

EACH FIGURES

The plan works like this:

Each company figures its profits for the year, then deducts 30 per cent for dividends to investors and reinvestment, and a variable percentage based on a sliding scale.

This scale allows deductions of from 10 to 80 per cent, based on a relationship between total investment, number of employes and production.

Thus, owners of a soap factory, where profits depend primarily on production by the work force, share a greater percentage of their profits than owners of an office building, where profit depends primarily on the owner's investment. After the allowable deductions are made and taxes are paid, the companies divide 20 per cent of the remainder among employes.

The amounts received by the workers vary widely. Employes at some companies which enjoyed good years are collecting between $240 and $320. Others are getting only a few dollars.

Policemen Rough on Standard Shift

RENO (AP) — Husbands traditionally cringe when their wives and children grind the gears on the family auto. Reno City Vehicle Supt. Jess Stephens had somewhat the same problem with his "family."

He recommend the city begin using automatic transmissions in police patrol cars.

* * *

Stephens explained to the city council: "The officers get to shifting down into lower gears without using the clutch. I don't know how many standard transmissions I've had to replace."

Greeks Check Closer on Missing Whisky

ATHENS (AP) — Greek customs officials are checking closely into whisky imports. The investigation was started when British export figures showed Greece had imported 40,000 cases of whisky last year but Greek customs records showed only 22,000 cases listed as entering the country.

Study Planned of Hurricanes

U.S. Weather Bureau, Navy Join in Project

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. weather bureau and the Navy are cooperating in an ambitious project to see if hurricanes can be tamed by upsetting the balance of forces which drives them.

Called Project Storm Fury, the operation will run between July 28 and Oct. 1 and involve as many as 17 airplanes which will seed clouds in the storms with silver iodide crystals.

The object is to trigger self-destructive forces that would render the storm harmless.

The clouds that will be seeded are called rainbands, or curved rings of clouds that produce heavy precipitation.

* * *

Rainbands normally are found some distance from the hurricane's center, or eye. Scientists believe they may be a vital link in the processes which cause relatively simple cumulus cloud forces to develop into mature hurricanes.

SILVER IODIDE

Silver iodide particles are similar in structure to ice crystals and act as condensation nuclei which encourage supercooled water to freeze and fall. This releases heat energy latent in the clouds.

Scientists believe that a towering but relatively narrow cloud chimney near the eye serves as a hurricane's major energy machine. It is "the main connection between the lower inflow and the upper outflow of the storm."

Thus, it appears reasonable to suppose, the weather bureau said, that "the balance of forces in a hurricane might be altered by seeding in a small area near the eye and causing the conversion of liquid water to ice crystals."

* * *

In the experiments, small airborne generators developed by the Navy will impregnate the cloud wall around the hurricane's eye with silver iodide "smoke" five times at two-hour intervals.

* * *

Flying at levels from 1,000 to 40,000 feet, other planes will monitor the area from three hours before the first seeding until six hours after the last one to record any changes in the storm.

Court Reporter Wins Acquittal for Himself

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — For five years Jim Johnson, Tucson Daily Citizen court reporter, has been watching from a spectator's seat in courtrooms.

Then he moved to the defense table and, acting as his own attorney, won acquittal on a traffic charge in City Court.

'Monsters' Called On for Big Viet Moves

By HAL BOYLE

QUI NHON, South Viet Nam (AP) — They look like huge metal monsters from another planet as they wheel from ships offshore and then trundle in awesome power across the sands.

They are two new giant amphibious vehicles which the U.S. Army is using in a hasty and massive buildup of a base here in the central Vietnamese lowlands where a desperate, all-out attack by the enemy conceivably could cut the country in two.

BOYLE

* * *

The lumbering vehicles are called the Larc and the Barc. They can ferry quickly ashore vast quantities of cargo or large numbers of troops.

"This is the first time Americans have used them in a combat area," said Capt. Thomas O'Donovan, 29, of Boston, Mass., commander of an Army transportation company.

POTENTIAL LOAD

The aluminum-hulled Larc measures 11x35 feet, weighs 21,000 pounds and can carry a load of six tons. But it looks like a pygmy alongside the Barc. The Barc is 19 feet tall, 27 feet wide and 62½ feet long. It weighs nearly 100 tons and can haul from 60 to 100 tons in quiet seas.

"It can land a fully equipped company of 225 men with their combat gear," said Capt. O'Donovan. "It can also bring ashore a medium tank, or any piece of heavy engineering equipment used by an Army division."

CLASSIFIED DATA

The number of Larcs and Barcs being used here is classified.

Praising the job they are doing, Lt. Col. Alvin H. Bowles, 45, of Griffin, Ga., said: "These vehicles can unload deep-water vessels at sea, then drive right across the beach to where the cargo is to be employed. That saves an entire loading operation. They don't need roads. They make their own roads as they go."

* * *

Col. Bowles was closemouthed as to the purpose of the base. "It is to give logistic support to the Vietnamese war effort," he said, and declined further commen. It is obvious, however, that this logistic support could soon supply a U.S. Army division.

There is an air of feverish urgency to the work. Hundreds of troops work bare-chested around the clock. Others stand guard, for the city is ringed only a few miles away by guerrilla forces. The province of Bing Dinh, in which Qui Nhon lies, long has been a hotbed of Viet Cong strength.

PATROLS AREA

"The Vietnamese junk fleet patrols the area to protect us from any sea attack," said Capt. O'Donovan. "They stop and search any suspicious-looking vessels. They're quite good — very thorough.

"They have never caught an armed sampan here, but have intercepted some carrying war contraband."

* * *

To Lt. John Lyons, 22, of Green Bay, Wis., boss of the Barcs, his craft are things of beauty and majesty. He treats them almost as if they were pets.

Reaching up and patting the side of one, he said pridefully:

"There is a separate engine for each of the four wheels.

"The tires are more than 9½ feet tall and each weighs 3,000 pounds. Boy, think of all the Jeep tires that would make! It takes six to eight men a full day to change a tire, but that doesn't have to be done very often. A tire will last from six months to a year.

"These are really wonderful vehicles. They'll do anything you call on them to do."

Applicant Has 'Smarts'

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — The manager of the Salina firm was taking written applications for a job in his organization when he ran across a very definite reply. To the question, "What qualifications do you have for the job?" the applicant answered: "I have a high Eye Q."

A practical way of irradiating a person's total blood supply while hardly exposing his body to any radiation is being used experimentally to treat leukemia patients.

Park's Tourist Decline Blamed on Everything

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — Everything from the stock market decline to late closing of California schools has been blamed by the Carlsbad Caverns National Park superintendent, Paul Webb, for the decline in tourist attendance at the park.

Webb said publicity of recent New Mexico floods also may have scared away some tourists. He said January attendance was above last year's, but a decline began in February and has continued.

Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt Says:

Complicated Reaction Causes Clotting

Q. What causes blood clots and why do they kill some persons while others recover?

A. When the lining of a blood vessel is injured a complicated chemical reaction that leads to clotting occurs.

BRANDSTADT

When you cut your finger this protective mechanism prevents your bleeding to death.

If, on the other hand, the clotting occurs because of a severe arterial disease rather than a cut, the blood supply to the part supplied by the diseased artery is cut off.

How serious this is depends on the size of the artery occluded, whether the artery is supplying a vital organ, whether other arteries in the region can supply the affected part and the general condition of the victim.

* * *

Sometimes other arteries establish collateral circulation almost at once and sometimes it requires weeks or months.

If a large clot occurs in the brain (stroke) it may cause death or it may cause paralysis from which the victim may eventually recover.

Q. My knee fills up with water and has to be drained about once a month.

My doctor tells me that if he removes the tissues that secrete the excess fluid my knee would become stiff. What do you advise?

* * *

A. In some persons, predominantly young adults, fluid may collect in a joint, usually on one side only, every 7 to 11 days.

The cause is not known, but in some victims it appears to be a food allergy because, when the offending food is eliminated from the diet, the condition clears up.

Unlike other forms of allergy, however, antihistamines are of no value.

* * *

In other victims this collection of fluid is a part of their arthritis.

STIFF KNEE

Your doctor is right not to want to perform an operation that would leave you with a stiff knee.

* * *

Injections of hydrocortisone into the joint have helped many victims.

Q. I have heard that chocolate is bad for persons with sinus trouble. Is this true?

A. Not unless you have an allergy caused by chocolate.

Q. Would the oil turpentine, for medicinal use, cause permanent albumin in the urine.

* * *

A. Although oil of turpentine has been used in the past for worms and to relieve abdominal cramps, this preparation has been discarded because it damages the kidneys. The resulting albuminuria would be expected to clear up only if it was discovered before much damage has been done.

Aid to Helpless Test of Society

Romney Speaks at Dedication of Center

YPSILANTI (AP) — The real test of a society is "how well it helps the helpless," Gov. George Romney said today at dedication of a center to help emotionally disturbed children.

"To the extent that we serve their needs, we are an enlightened civilization," Romney said. "To the extent that we ignore them, we are still on the edge of the shadow of barbarism.

* * *

"I see it as a tribute to the enlightenment of American society that we care as well as we do for those who in other times or other places would have been the outcasts and the downtrodden of society: the dispossessed, the impoverished, the delinquent, the retarded and the disturbed," he added.

Observing dedication of the York Woods Children's Center, the governor noted that the major portion of construction funds was appropriated three years ago and planning began even before that.

PARTIAL NEGLECT

"Because we are living in the aftermath of a long period of partial neglect, we must expand our services faster than our needs are expanding — and believe me, that's fast," Romney said.

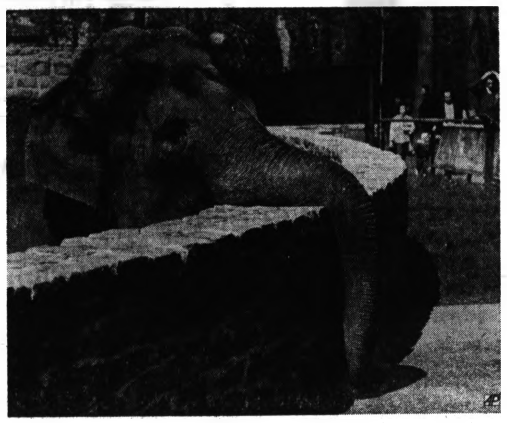

"This is why our state appropriations in support of mental health programs increased by over 10 per cent both last year and again this year, to a record high of over $110 million," he added.

* * *

He said plans call for a chain of six centers such as York Woods at state hospitals across the state.

Romney also urged community leaders to build a community climate which will help patients at the center readjust after their release.

Five-month immunity to viral hepatitis, an infectious liver disease, appears to be offered by inoculation with gamma globulin.

PLEA FOR PEANUTS—A stone enclosure bars this pachyderm from the public at the Bronx Park Zoo in New York City but it doesn't prevent a plea for its favorite food.

'Declaration' Ideals City Need

By MAYOR WILLIAM H. TAYLOR JR.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In keeping with our policy of publishing guest editorials from time to time, today's article has been written by Mayor William H. Taylor Jr.)

Independence Day brings to focus each year the pride we all have in our Nation, particularly in these times when we are engaged in the preservation of freedom abroad and the extension of freedom to all of our citizens here at home.

TAYLOR

Independence Day might be a good time to think not only of our responsibilities to the Nation but also of our responsibilities to our City and to ourselves. I do not think we are able to be truly proud of our Country, our State or our City unless we first are proud of ourselves and realize that we are all dependent upon one another.

There would have been no Independence Day if the citizens of the Thirteen States had not shared dependence and moved in concert to achieve a common goal. States were hacked out of the wilderness by pioneers who were united by both purpose and peril — who depended upon their fellows and whose dependence was justified.

Cities, too, were created and are preserved not by personal independence but upon personal teamwork, which is another word for mutual dependence upon one another.

★ ★ ★

As BENJAMIN FRANKLIN declared: "We must all hang together or we shall hang separately." And inasmuch as FRANKLIN did not mention race, color, creed or financial condition, we must presume that he meant everybody.

Nations, states, cities, families can never be greater than the sum total of pride of their people and the determination of those people to make that pride both personal and meaningful.

Here in Pontiac we have many reasons for pride and for continuing mutual dependence — for teamwork. We are seeing the rebirth of our City and I think we all can feel a rebirth of pride, too, in what we are accomplishing, despite the inevitable birth pains.

★ ★ ★

And I know that our collective pride in the emerging new Pontiac will and must be accompanied by a growing personal pride and sense of brotherhood and dependency among all our people.

There must be personal pride in the manner in which we conduct ourselves as we go about our daily rounds without benefit of bands, orations and fireworks. We must reflect pride in the manner in which we do our jobs, wherever and whatever they may be — that we give measure for measure. The manufacturer, the clerk, the businessman, the laborer are all interdependent — and our city, in turn, is dependent upon us.

The shirker, the arrogant, the something-for-nothing people, the discourteous, the goof-off are small in every sense of the word. Yet collectively their "independence" can cause a manufacturer to move a plant, a retail business to fail, and make shabby our brightest dreams.

Loss of personal pride and lack of a sense of mutual dependency can bring set-backs. But not here, I hope.

Week of Safe Boating Observed Nationally

Pursuant to a Congressional resolution of June 4, 1958, and now a proclamation by President JOHNSON, this is National Safe Boating Week.

Few forms of outdoor sport have swept America as has boating.

Michigan's 5,000 lakes literally vibrate with more than half a million pleasure craft as their owners seek the peace and exhilaration found only on the water.

★ ★ ★

But as with so many other boons, boating can hold threat of danger unless boat operators faithfully observe safety regulations and the courtesy rules of the road.

Statistics indicate that, although inexperienced boat operators are responsible for many mishaps, a majority of water accidents are caused by thoughtlessness on the part of seasoned skippers.

As a refresher for veteran pilots and a bit of coaching for rookies, the Committee for National Safe Boating Week offers simple safety rules and dictates of waterway conduct that will appear in PRESS sports pages during the week.

★ ★ ★

To give emphasis to the significance of Safe Boating Week, more than 1,000 local organizations will unite in sponsorship of parades, regattas, water shows and safe boating demonstrations.

We render a hearty nautical salute to our myriad of fresh-water mariners and wish them a summerful of happy and safe sailing.

Algeria Making Move to Right

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

ALGIERS (AP)—The new Algerian regime, in the opinion of Western diplomats here, is moving toward a more neutral position in world affairs coupled with an anti-Communist policy at home.

Cherif Belkacem, minister of education and information in the new regime, served notice of the switch in domestic policy in an interview with the official newspaper.

Belkacem put it this way:

"We have known strange professors who, incapable of achieving the revolution in their own countries, pretend to be doing it here, according to plans which have nothing to do with Algeria.

"We have put them aside. We do not want them as guides. They are free to go where they wish, but not to indoctrinate our youth."

Col. Houari Boumedienne's regime has expelled a number of Frence, Chinese and Egyptian Communists who acted as advisers to deposed President Ahmed Ben Bella.

Two correspondents of the Paris Communist paper L'Humanite also have been expelled.

On the other hand, Fidel Castro in Cuba and Sekou Toure in Guinea have issued statements attacking Boumedienne.

Boumedienne's military regime ordered Prensa Latina, the Cuban news agency, to close its Algiers office Thursday because it distributed copies of Castro's speech.

This points to closer relations with French-speaking states of "black Africa" which refused to atend the Afro-Asian session as originally scheduled here June 29.

It also points to better relations with Algeria's neighbors in the Arab world, Tunisia to the east and Morocco to the west.

The new regime is expected to tread a careful course between East and West, much in the manner of Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser.

If Boumedienne and his colleagues take an actively anti-Communist line at home, it is difficult to see how Red China can persist in its campaign to stage an Afro-Asian summit conference here.

Having recognized Boumedienne themselves, the Chinese can hardly urge the Africans to withhold recognition.

Boumedienne is searching for a representative civilian foundation for his military regime.

Some people say he prefers to play the backstage role. Others depict him as a wispy mystical advocate of constitutional legality who wants only what he believes best for the country.

Belkacem's interview hinted at this when he said that the day of individuals had passed and that now is the era of institutions in an Algeria founded on laws and not on personalities.

Dems Like Legislative Driver Seat

By AL SANDNER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING — It never hurts to be in the driver's seat, Democratic legislators said today.

As proof, they point to what they consider better than 80 per cent success in getting what they wanted out of their first legislative session as the majority party.

Major goals accomplished, they say, include property tax relief for senior citizens, repeal of the penalty provisions of the Hutchinson Act, and increased workmen's compensation and unemployment benefits.

Democrats plan to turn to consumer protection in the 1966 session, said Gerald Faye, administrative assistant to House Speaker Joseph Kowalski, D-Detroit.

★ ★ ★

"We were lucky — we didn't lose too many bills," Faye said. "The only major casualties were the incentive scholarship program, county home rule, the legislative council and a bill authorizing local day-care centers for preschool children."

BROKE TIE

The incentive scholarship bill lost when Republican Lt. Gov. William Milliken broke a 16-16 vote tie in the senate, sending the bill back to committee in the last days of the session.

Even Kowalski could not shake the county home rule bill out of the House Committee on Towns and Counties, because two Democrats sided with four Republicans in saying the subject needed further study.

Only one Democratic program bill has been vetoed by Gov. George Romney — a four-year voter registration measure.

★ ★ ★

Democrats as a party favor four-year registration and Republicans favor registration every two years.

SOCIAL LEGISLATION

"We don't expect the governor to veto too many of our bills," Faye said. "They're not that kind of legislation. They're not just party-line bills, but social legislation."

Other major Democratic victories listed by Kowalski's office included:

● Mental Health — An increase of state participation in community programs to 75 per cent of the cost. Authorization for Michigan to enter interstate compacts which would permit treatment of Michigan residents in other states. A mandatory test to detect one form of potential mental retardation in infants.

● Education — the largest single increase in state school aid on record — $71 million.

● Senior Citizens — A bill to prohibit age as the sole criterion in hiring. An institute of gerontology run by the University of Michigan and Wayne State University. Removal of "liens" on the property of old folks on public medical assistance (although the bills were sponsored by Romney's office).

● Conservation — Air and water pollution control. Restrictions on control of dredging and filling of inland lakes and streams.

● Agriculture — Statewide meat and grade "A" milk inspection.

● Migrant Labor — State registration for migrant labor crew chiefs. Setting health and sanitation standards for labor camps. Transportation, health and safety regulations.

★ ★ ★

Among the consumer protection bills under study are measures to require legible posting of gasoline prices in front of filling stations, require legible listing on the basic element on a drug label, set up general packaging and trade regulations and give a clear indication of all the costs in mortgages.

ON AGENDA

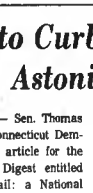

Other legislation on the agenda includes the incentive scholarship program, integrated social welfare programs, public disclosure of lobbying activities and spending, and a change in the sales tax brackets favoring the consumer.

Also on tap is the remainder of the community mental health bill which was passed in part.

Bob Considine Says:

Bill to Curb Gun Sales Stirs Astonishing Abuse

NEW YORK — Sen. Thomas E. Dodd, the Connecticut Democrat, wrote an article for the June Reader's Digest entitled "Guns by Mail: a National Scandal."

CONSIDINE

It and certain interviews he has since given in support of his bill to clamp down on indiscriminate traffic in mail-order weapons have subjected him to astonishing abuse.

The National Rifle Association and similar organizations have aroused hundreds of their members to cry out against such legislation.

The members of Sen. Dodd's juvenile delinquncy subcommittee who favor the bill have been immersed in mail.

★ ★ ★

Some of it is abusive and much of it parrots the distorted propaganda line laid down by NRA and other pressure groups.

DID JUST THAT

All that Sen. Dodd is trying to get across to the public is that in this country today, as he pointed out so ably in his article, a criminal who couldn't very well buy a gun in any weapons store without alerting the local police can send to Chicago or Los Angeles, let's say, and buy anything he wants and have it shipped to him through the U.S. mails.

Man named Lee Harvey Oswald did just that. With one gun he killed a Dallas cop named Tippit. With the other he killed the President of the United States.

Police chiefs are overwhelmingly in favor of the Dodd bill. Only eight out of 144 reached in a national study oppose the legislation.

★ ★ ★

Thomas J. Cahill, chief of police of San Francisco, believes that the incidence of crimes of violence increases in almost direct proportion with how easy it is to acquire guns, particularly among minors.

HIGHEST RATE

Phoenix has the highest rate of gun use in assault in the U.S., 73 per cent as compared with New York City's 23 per cent.

★ ★ ★

However, Chief Paul E. Blubaum is in the vanguard of the chiefs opposing Dodd.

"I don't feel that the need for such legislation exists," he replied. "We have no statutes regulating mail-order guns, but I see no problem in this locale due to a lack of such control."

Aside from the 73 per cent, of course.

Voice of the People:

'Unseasonable Weather Brought Frost in July'

I would never believe it had I not seen it with my own eyes and scraped it with my own hands! I had frost all over the top of my car on the morning of July 1, and it stayed until the sun was high enough to melt it. In my 55 years in Michigan I have known chilly weather into July, but never a frost.

Gives Advice for Middle-Age Happiness

Awake all you happily married middle-aged women! Don't you realize your husbands are out committing adultery, or on the brink of it? But wait, Dr. Crane's column says "lose ten pounds, get a new hairdo, buy a new sexy nightgown, play the role of the playful sexy kitten and hubby will realize what a prize he has."

★ ★ ★

Forget it girls, according to the expert on the "middle generation," he's going to commit adultery whether you like it or not. The nightgown routine will make you look ridiculous, cry, and plead, but you'll be ignored. Be a good girl, if you don't want to spend your later years all by your lonesome. Pick up your knitting needles and paint brushes, keep busy but be real sweet, within four years hubby will come running back to your forgiving arms and you can take care of him in his old age.

★ ★ ★

I say let's send the writer of such bunk a get-well card. I'm no expert but any intelligent couple knows the more love and happiness you put into a marriage, the more you'll get out of it.

'Nothing to Gain'

LBJ Shunning NY Race

By RUTH MONTGOMERY

WASHINGTON—One big reason President Johnson has decided to keep hands-off the explosive New York mayoralty race is the belief that he would have "nothing to gain and a lot to lose."

This is the word from some White House insiders, who view the decision as a possible "entrapment" for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, if he hopes to capture control of New York's political machinery with a Kennedy-backed candidate, as a springboard to the presidency.

"Patronage is the only thing that counts in New York politics, and Bobby Kennedy neither has any nor will be getting any," an informed source said. "When Mayor Wagner's term ends, what federal patronage he's been getting will thereafter be channeled through National Committeeman Ed Weisl, the President's close friend who is already handling it for the remainder of the state."

He said the White House reasoning is that if a Kennedy-backed candidate loses to GOP candidate John Lindsay, "Bobby will be blamed; and if his candidate wins, it won't help him much because the patronage will not be dispensed through him."

★ ★

President Johnson reportedly feels that he has far less to fear from a Lindsay presidential threat two years hence if he becomes mayor, than he would if Bobby Kennedy captured control of the New York political machinery.

POLITICAL FATE

One reason for LBJ's reluctance to give Kennedy any patronage is said to be his long memory of Estes Kefauver's political fate.

By handshaking his way around the country, the late Tennessee senator had lined up a far larger number of pledged delegates than any other candidate, but the big-city bosses blitzkrieged him at the convention in favor of Adlai Stevenson.

Johnson, who was not pleased by Robert Kennedy's recent foreign policy speech in the senate, reportedly wants to give Kennedy no opportunity to line up the big-city machines against LBJ in 1968, if setbacks in the foreign field should cause his own popularity rating to drop in the public opinion polls.

Strike!

Wall Street Journal

In its last term, the Supreme Court dropped a few hints that perhaps it's time for courts and regulators to stop rubber-stamping nearly any demand by a labor union. Naturally unions do not take kindly to the possibility of less affable regulation; not so logically, some appear to think the strike weapon is the appropriate answer.

Anyway, that's how it looks from the current walkout by thousands of New York City taxi drivers. To the extent the strike concerns an issue at all, it is not so much against management as against the courts and the National Labor Relations Board.

The city's Central Labor Council, with the connivance of the city government, is trying to organize taxi drivers. It wants one mammoth election for nearly everyone who steers a hack.

The reason is that the union may fail to get a majority vote from drivers of some individual companies. It wants the city-wide vote to force itself on those companies against the will of the majority of their employes.

★ ★ ★

Such a plan happens to violat NLRB standing policy, which calls for separate elections for separate companies. So the union got the city to sponsor its own purportedly non-binding labor election, but courts impounded the ballots in view of the patent trespass on NLRB jurisdiction.

The union therefore called the strike — because the NLRB and courts wouldn't change the rules to suit its pangs for power.

The NLRB subsequently ruled definitely for company - by-company elections, and the ruling can't be appealed until the election is completed. Yet the strike rolls on at great inconvenience to the public, at this point for no discernible purpose other than to vent the union's spleen.

We imagine such juvenile destructiveness will mount if court and regulatory decisions do start to turn a bit less rosy for organized labor, as perhaps indicated by the Supreme Court's ruling that unions have no blanket exemption from antitrust laws.

A Possibility!

Wouldn't it be great, Mr. President, if the country could do as well on earth as it does in space?

Water Shortage

New York Herald Tribune

The water shortage becomes more complicated. Governor Hughes of New Jersey says New York City is taking more than its share out of the Delaware River headwaters.

The rule laid down by the Supreme Court years ago is that the city is entitled to 480 million gallons a day, but in return must release enough water to keep the lower Delaware up to a certain level.

This isn't being done, for the simple reason that the supply is lacking. And while no one is accusing anybody of stealing water or yet calling on the Supreme Court for help, the Delaware River Basin Commission (which includes New York State) has called a meeting to consider declaring an emergency.

★ ★ ★

Certainly the city, in all good grace, would be obliged to cooperate in rationing Delaware water. This, clearly enough, indicates more trouble for the city.

What's to be done? Well, our Commissioner D'Angelo is hammering hard on conservation, but the resevoir levels are still sinking, D'Angelo has mentioned going to the Hudson River for additional water.

★ ★ ★

There was actually an emergency stand-by plant ready for action at upstate Chelsea in the 1950 drought. Certainly it's high time to take similar precaution now. Why the delay?

Mom?—Missus?—Hey You?

What to Call Mother-in-Law?

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Not long ago, my mother-in-law confided to some friends that whenever she was visiting in my home she sometimes got the impression that I was stalking her.

WEST

I would, she reported, silently approach her from the rear and then suddenly circle around in front of her to ask a question or impart some information in which she might be interested.

* * *

She said she found this behavior both curious and not a little disconcerting. It made her wonder whether I might be getting a bit flakey with the onset of middle age.

If so, she felt my wife and children should be alerted.

When the report got back to me, I knew at once to what she was referring. Briefly stated, the situation is this:

Despite having been married some 15 years, I have never been able to devise a suitable means of addressing my mother-in-law.

USES MANEUVERS

As a result, I resort to certain maneuvers to get her attention so that I do not have to call her by name.

I had not previously mentioned this problem because I figured that it stemmed from a personality quirk that was uniquely my own and that nobody else could understand.

But the other evening at a dinner party the conversation somehow touched on his point and I was relieved to discover that a lot of other people apparently have the same mental block.

* * *

Four of the six guests present confessed that they, too, are at a loss as to what to call their parents-in-law and consequently do not call them anything. At least not to their faces.

TOO FORMAL

The consensus was that "Mr." and "Mrs." sound too formal for such a relationship. Given names are too informal. "Mom" and "dad" are too intimate, and "Hey, you" lacks respect.

Nicknames and pet names, such as children and grandchildren might bestow, generally congeal on the lips of children-in-law.

The nomenclature hang-up does not necessarily stem from hostility, as one might suppose from all of the mother-in-law jokes in circulation.

* * *

SOCIAL PROBLEM

If the average of this group is anything like national in scope, then no-name-calling is obviously a social problem of the first dimension, ranking with transvestitism and athlete's foot.

* * *

I urge you to write your congressman and demand that he do something about it.

This stalking of mothers-in-law has got to stop.

Meat Industry Buildup Seen

New Law Would Aid Packers, Producers

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's legislature has decided to impose new inspection measures on the state's meat industry—but the move is designed not as a crackdown, but as a buildup.

Sponsors say the measure, to cost an estimated $1.2 million a year, should:

—create, by expansion, new wealth in the agricultural industry.

—create employment in the packing industry.

—provide new uses for surplus Michigan grain crops.

—place Michigan meat packers in competition with out-of-state packers now supplying 40 per cent of the meat consumed in Michigan.

NEEDS SIGNATURE

The bill still needs one more okay on it—Gov. George Romney's signature. But Romney called in his State of the State message for a uniform statewide meat inspection law.

Agriculture sources estimate that about 24 per cent of the meat slaughtered and consumed in Michigan never is inspected anywhere.

* * *

But, in addition, farmers were concerned because federal institutions and military installations are not permitted to purchase meat from states which don't have a statewide compulsory meat inspection program.

And the purchasing division of Michigan's Department of Administration requires federal inspection and federal grading for all purchases of primal cuts of meat made for the state.

QUALIFIES

Meat which comes into Michigan from other states already has gone through federal inspection — and qualifies for sale to establishments in Michigan which will not buy Michigan meat.

The new law, sponsors say, should remedy this and boost Michigan meat sales.

Kick Habit by Phone

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Rev. Herbert Davis, who says he used to sneak a couple of puffs of corn silk on the way to elementary school, advises Charlotte folks daily how to kick the cigarette habit.

The Rev. Mr. Davis, a Seventh-day Adventist, installed a "smoker's dial" telephone service in his home.

You can dial the number and get a one-minute lesson on how to stop smoking.

Surveys show roses are the most popular flower in the United States, by an 18-to-1 margin.

Cold War Hampers Have-Not Aid—Thant

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary General U Thant said today the East-West political crisis is threatening U.N. efforts for the developing countries at a crucial time in their struggle against "progressive misery."

He made the statement in a report on the U.N. development decade at its midpoint, submitted to the U.N. Economic and Social Counil at its session in Geneva that opened on June 30.

The aim of the development decade is to improve the lot of the developing countries in overcoming problems of poverty, health, and housing.

Thant told the council these problems, combined with the steady growth of population add up to a "progressive misery" which "threatens to become worse in the second half of the decade."

He warned that, in the last analysis, " governmental decisions will determine the tempo of activities of U.N. member countries in the last half of the decade.

"One of the chief reasons for today's uncertainty is that it reflects a general crisis in the world's political relationships," Thant said.

"It is true that this has not yet impaired directly the United Nations work of development. But it has impaired the atmosphere. It has lessened good will and confidence.

"Yet the paradoxical truth is that the United Nations development work can be one of the world's chief instruments in lessing political friction."

He said abstract figures do little to convey the realities in the gap between annual incomes in the advanced countries and the developing countries, ranging from $2,485 in North American down to $136 in the developing countries.

In particular, he said, the death of children weighs far more heavily on the developing lands. In the most highly developed countries the mortality rate of children up to 5 years of age varies from 4.5 to 6.3 per 1,000.

New Albums Are Handy

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photography spreads maximum pleasure when it is shared with others.

The pictures that we take should not be hidden — not should they be shown in frayed and frazzled shape. It is so easy today to put our best photo foot forward by displaying the pictures we are proud of in attractive albums.

It used to be quite a chore to work on an album. There was a choice of photo corners, library paste, rubber cement or dry mount tissue.

Lining up photo corners was a tedious job coupled with the knowledge that most of them would fall off eventually.

* * *

THIN COATING

Both the back of the photo and the album page area had to get a thin coating of rubber cement, then be left to dry.

When put into place, the photo was flat. However, rubber cement affects some paper and discolors it in time and, after some years, it dries out and some photos come loose.

Dry mount tissue required a press or a hot iron and was too troublesome to use on albums.

* * *

Albums today are designed to be easy to use and attractive to look at. The newest ones have rigid pages with an invisible adhesive coated surface protected by a plastic cover. Photos can be placed anywhere and will adhere to that area yet can be lifted off or shifted to another spot.

INTERESTING LAYOUTS

Camera fans can thus make interesting page layouts of their pictures which can be rearranged at any time. This flexibility of picture juxtaposition is an advantage not possible with permanently mounted picture albums.

Another type of easy-handling album has acetate pages. Photos are slipped inside and positioned. Some have a hidden adhesive strip which locks the picture into place; others require a dab of adhesive to remain fixed.

Many of the albums serve a double purpose: they have a pocket for storing negatives of the pictures displayed. In some albums, the negatives may be filed behind the print so there is not time lost looking for a negative when duplicate prints on an enlagement is wanted.

* * *

The latest family and wedding albums come with large square pages so that vertical and horizonatl pictures can be put in for the vewer to look at without having to turn the book sideways periodically.

LARGER ALBUMS

Besides the larger family albums, there is a large variety of small "picture-saver" pocket packs for different sizes of wallet or jumbo prints.

Each of them has acetate pages to protect the prints and are spiral-bound for easy flipping.

They are handy to have for showing the latest batch of pictures before they are edited and transferred to a larger permanent album.

* * *

"With more camera fans making more color pictures, there is greater need for better protection of the photos," summed up Mel Holson of Norwalk, Conn.

"Albums not only protect the pictures but display them conveniently and effectively. And that's why we take pictures — so others can see them. To paraphrase a song: 'Albums are a photographer's best friend!' "

* *

Holson may be prejudiced — his family has been making albums for several decades — but there is no easier or better way to preserve and exhibit all your photos in the home.

Little Evidence Europe Has Lost Faith in U.S.

HELPING HAND—Some 75,000 American troops are now stationed in South Viet Nam. Many Europeans think the U. S. had no other choice but to send them there. They fear the consequences of a Chinese victory in Southeast Asia.

(Editor's Note—Following is the first of two reports by Leon Dennen, NEA'S foreign news analyst, written after a two-month tour of European capitals.)

By LEON DENNEN

NEW YORK (NEA) — A traveler returning to the United States is amazed, even shocked, by reports of some politicians, commentators and news media that American policy is a "failure" in Europe.

* * *

To be sure, President Johnson is not as admired by Europeans as was President Kennedy.

Johnson, a Texan, is regarded as an America-firster. Kennedy was admired not only because he was a young and "romantic" President but also because he was considered a "good European."

But during two months in Bonn, Paris, London and other European capitals, I found little evidence that President Johnson's policies in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic have undermined "confidence in the wisdom and competence of American leadership."

* * *

This was reported, among others, by columnist Walter Lippmann who spent several weeks in London and Paris talking with officials, reporters and editors.

TALKED TO EDITORS

Lippman scrupulously avoided interviews "with taxi-drivers and waiters" and other ordinary Europeans.

But did he discuss President Johnson's policy in Viet Nam with, for instance, the editors of Die Welt, West Germany's leading liberal newspaper, or with the editors of London's conservative Daily Telegraph?

"An American withdrawal from Viet Nam will spur the aggressiveness of the Communist powers," said an editorial in Die Welt.

"It will encourage revolutionary parties to foment new wars of national liberation by means of terror and guerrilla warfare. In Asia it would be taken as an American capitulation and in Latin America as a signal for new unrest."

Said the Daily Telegraph of London: "There is a military and political crisis in Viet Nam, but no real crisis of decision for the United States. Being at war, America has no choice but to fight on until the Communists realize that they cannot win and must negotiate."

This does not support Lippmann's sweeping assertion that "in Europe today, there is a swelling tide of dissent and doubt and anxiety about the wisdom and competence with which United States policy is being conducted."

Even Britain's Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson has recognized — reluctantly, to be sure — that President Johnson's decision to give American troops an offensive role in Viet Nam was inevitable.

Wilson is even willing to face a new outcry from the Labor party's vocal left wing because of his support of the President's policy in Viet Nam.

Of course Europeans are anxious about escalating the conflict in Southeast Asia. Twenty years after Hitler's defeat, which left Europe in ruins, they have achieved a large measure of economic prosperity and they fear the outbreak of a nuclear conflict.

FEAR RED VICTORY

But a majority of Europeans who are not leftists, intellectuals or Communists fear even more the consequences of Red China's total victory in Viet Nam.

To be sure, even the strongest supporters of the United States are dismayed by President Johnson's "isolationism" and his failure to work closer with the Western allies.

They also feel that the President, as the leader of the Western alliance, has failed to take advantage of the present breathing spell in Europe to rebuild NATO.

* * *

Many vital changes have taken place in Europe since NATO was organized in 1949 as a defensive alliance against Russian aggression.

The balance of strength between the United States and Europe within NATO has shifted. The threat from Russia has temporarily receded. There are even signs of a new loosening of ties that bind Moscow's satellities in East Europe.

Under the circumstances, the Europeans feel that they should be given a greater share in the defense of their interests — especially since the United States is expending men and resources in the conflict against Red China.

The structure of NATO must be adopted to meet the new balance of forces within the alliance and face the changing political, economic and military situation in Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America.

* * *

In the view of leading Western statesmen, it is particularly important for the United States and Europe that NATO should have a more active role in the growing strategic problems in Southeast Asia and Latin America.

Urban Renewal Project Planned by Church

BOSTON (AP) — Directors of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, have disclosed plans for a $71-million private urban renewal project on church land in the Back Bay section.

* * *

The proposal covers 31 acres. Plans call for an administration center, a seven-acre park, a 600-car underground garage and a 22-story administration building.

Providence Ordinance Limits Skateboard Use

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — An ordinance banning skateboards on public streets and sidewalks in Providence has been passed by City Council.

The measure, if it is signed by the mayor, provides for fines up to $200, or jail terms of up to 30 days, for use of skateboards "on any street, highway, sidewalk or pedestrian mall."

Soviet Cafes on Profit System

MOSCOW (AP) — Moscow cafes have been told to serve what people want, and be neat about it, instead of pushing out the kind of food some distant planner ordered.

The cafes, and other types of eating houses in the capital and some other parts of the Soviet Union, will be rated by their profits rather than by fulfilment of tightly centralized plans.

The Soviet government also has announced that four food factories will begin producing what shops think they can sell, not what central planners think might sell.

These announcements, made in recent days in economic publications, are an expansion into the food industry of a Soviet experiment with profits in consumer and industrial goods.

* * *

The experiment is generally associated with the name of Yevsey G. Liberman, an economics professor at Kharkov State University. His suggestions are along lines of liberalizing a Communist economy pioneered earlier in Eastern Europe.

PUT ON NEW BASIS

Beginning this week, restaurants, cafes, canteens and similar eating places in Moscow, Estonia, Moldavia and some parts of the Ukraine and the Russian federation were put on the new basis.

* * *

Announcements of this in Economiskaya Gazetta (Economic Gazette) implied that all eating places in the specified areas were involved.

Instead of having their performances judged by a number of complicated devices, they will now be rated on turnover and profits.

Junior Editors Quiz on NIAGARA FALLS

QUESTION: Why does so much water go roaring over Niagara Falls?

* * *

ANSWER: Study the little diagram on the upper right and you will get the answer. You will see the water spills over from four of the Great Lakes—Superior, Michigan, Huron and Erie—then runs downhill into Lake Ontario, from there to the Saint Lawrence River and finally to the sea.

Water must always flow downhill, following the attraction of gravitation. Lake Superior is the highest of the Great Lakes, being 602 feet above sea level.

Since Lakes Michigan and Huron are lower, 581 feet above sea level, the Lake Superior water spills into them, and from Huron it falls to the level of Lake Erie, 573 feet.

From Erie the spillover lake water flows, as the Niagara River, 35 miles toward the lower level of Lake Ontario, which is 247 feet.

In passing this 35 miles, the water comes to the sudden drop of Niagara Falls and thunders over it in a world-famous white cascade, 500,000 tons of water plunging down every minute.

This great volume cuts and breaks away the rock over which it falls so that Niagara is slowing moving upstream toward Lake Erie. At one part, Horseshoe Falls, the rock ledge is being cut back about three feet each year.

* * *

FOR YOU TO DO: After the Great Lakes water flows through Lake Ontario it moves down the Saint Lawrence River. Once, obstacles prevented ships from passing through to the sea. Look up Saint Lawrence Seaway in an encyclopedia to see how these obstacles were overcome through the cooperation of two great friendly nations.

Her Note Is Sufficient to Ask Guest

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: We have a cottage at the seashore and my daughter would like to invite a young man she met several months ago to come and spend the weekend with us.

Is it necessary as my daughter seems to think, for me to write and invite him so that he will know he is welcome, or is an invitation from my daughter sufficient?

A: Your daughter's invitation is sufficient. If it were the other way around and your son was inviting a young woman to come and spend the weekend at your house, a note from you seconding the invitation would be necessary.

MOTHER OF THE BRIDE

Q: Will you please tell me if it is in good taste for the mother of the bride to wear a print dress, or must she wear a solid color?

I have never seen the mothers in anything but a solid color and wondered if perhaps it was not proper.

A: At a summer country wedding, a print dress would be quite all right, but for a city wedding, a solid color is in best taste.

How and when to introduce people seems to trouble many. The Emily Post Institute booklet entitled, "Introductions," gives helpful information on this subject.

Meadow Brook Music Festival to Begin

Sixten Ehrling (left), conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, is greeted by James Hicks upon his arrival in the United States recently. Hicks is manager of the Meadow Brook Music Festival which will have its opening this week. Ehrling who is also director of the new Meadow Brook School of Music this summer has been conducting concerts in Europe since April.

The Meadow Brook Music Festival opens its second season Thursday at 8:30 p.m. with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Isaac Stern, violinist.

There are more concerts scheduled for this year.

★ ★ ★

The Howard C. Baldwin Pavilion has 2,138 permanent seats.

Parking space is more ample.

★ ★ ★

And the new Trumbull Terrace offers facilities for eating, more rest rooms, festival offices, a first aid room and a home for the Scholar Shop.

★ ★ ★

Sixten Ehrling, conductor of the Detroit Symphony which will present 18 concerts, arrived in Detroit last week after a guest conducting tour in Europe.

SOLOIST

Violinist Isaac Stern will play the Dvorak Concerto in A minor on the Thursday-Friday program and the Brahms Concerto in D major Saturday night.

★ ★ ★

The orchestral program Thursday and Friday will include Beethoven's Overture "Leonore" No. 3; Mozart's Symphony No. 39 in E Flat major (K 543); and Ravel's Suite No. 2 from the Ballet "Daphnis et Chloe."

Saturday, the orchestra will include Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6 in B Minor (The "Pathetique").

FOOD SERVICE

Concert goers will be able to enjoy buffet service in the newly finished Trumbull Terrace, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Trumbull of Bloomfield Hills.

Food will be served from 6:30 p.m. Picnickers may bring their own food and eat at tables on the grounds.

Starting July 14, a noon buffet will also be available in Trumbull Terrace.

★ ★ ★

The permanent seats in the Baldwin Pavilion have been installed with a grant from The Kresge Foundation.

Grounds admission tickets for the Festival's opening concerts are available at Oakland University at $1. A few Pavilion seats at $3 are also on sale.

ISAAC STERN

OU Scholar Shop in New Quarters

The Scholar Shop at Oakland University has moved for the summer to Trumbull Terrace on the grounds of the Meadow Brook Music Festival.

Hours will be 6:30 to 11:00 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays for six weeks and noon to 4 p.m. on Wednesdays (starting July 14).

All proceeds from the shop go into the scholarship fund.

Women's Section

Paula Pope Is Showered

Paula Patricia Pope of West Huron Street will open gifts of kitchenware, Thursday evening, in the home of Mrs. Terry VanOrmon on Arlington Road.

The July 23 bride-elect is the daughter of the E. V. Wigleys of Marietta, Ga. Her fiance, Ross E. Ostrander, is the son of the Marvin T. Ostranders of Union Lake Road.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Clifford French and Joyce Huddleston were cohostesses at a shower Thursday in Fellowship Hall of the Emmanuel Baptist Church.

★ ★ ★

Sue Robinson gave a recent trousseau shower in the bride's home.

Visits Sister

Eugene Engelhard, son of the Ludwig F. Engelhards of Whittemore Street flew to New York City on Saturday for a week's visit with his sister Mariann. She is a pediatric nurse at the Columbia University Medical Center.

WNFG Unit to Tour Members' Gardens

A brunch, visits to six gardens and a luncheon will be the order of the day on Thursday when the Waterford branch of Woman's National Farm and Garden Association meets.

Beginning at 10:30 a.m., members will view the gardens of Mrs. Arthur Arnold of Williams Lake where the hostess will serve juice, rolls and coffee.

★ ★ ★

Before leaving the neighborhood, they will visit the gardens of newest member, Mrs. Edna Henry, next door to the Arnolds.

★ ★ ★

A stop at the John Harmon home on Orange Grove will precede the viewing of the CAI Building landscaping. Robert Tallman, scholarship student, has supervised these plantings.

★ ★ ★

A visit to the home of Mrs. Gordon Parker on Meinrad Street will be followed by luncheon at the home of Mrs. E. D. Windeler on Hatchery Road.

The hostess here has arranged a gardening contest for members.

A whimsical version of "monkey on a chain" . . . a tongue-in-cheek design by Leo Ritter for Ritter Brothers Fall '65 Ready-to-Wear Collection. The streak-slim dress of black Gold Coast monkey fur blouses over a chain belt with a frosty cape of white monkey fur. (Animals by F. A. O. Schwarz).

GOP Women Schedule Meeting

The Bloomfield Republican Women's Club will meet at 1 p.m., July 13, in the home of Mrs. Verne Hampton on Brookside Drive.

★ ★ ★

William Hampton, representative from the 65th District, will review the legislative record of this past year.

She Likes It That Way

Golden Egg Is Her Meat

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Maybe it's none of my business, but I am concerned, so please tell me if I should do something about it or just get lost.

ABBY

My 53-year-old divorcee sister is very attractive, and has a good job. But ever since her divorce 15 years ago, she's had this boy friend — or, should I say, "sugar daddy."

He won't marry her and it doesn't seem to bother her. He's very wealthy, but stingy. He pays all her bills, and hands her money besides, which is still cheaper than buying a home and everything else marriage involves.

She dresses like a million dollars, and has gone practically all over the world on flying vacations with this man. He has a key to her apartment and spends more time there than my husband spends at our place.

He drives her to work in the morning, goes to the stock market, and then picks her up after work. Almost every night she fixes his dinner at her apartment and they watch television until it signs off.

People make remarks like, "When are they going to make it legal?" I love my sister, but I don't like the reputation she's getting.

How can I convince her to make him marry her or throw him out? She's no spring chicken, but she could still get a decent man and live right.

HER SISTER

DEAR SISTER: She may be no "spring chicken" but she apparently likes being cooped up with a goose who lays golden eggs.

It's HER life and HER reputation, so don't waste your energy trying to change a way of life with which she's satisfied.

Is the Fear of Debt Old Fashioned?

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

It has been some weeks now since you looked over all those records you unearthed in order to make out your income tax. You've had time to digest the personal statistics that showed you where your money went in 1964.

MARY FEELEY

The question is: have you learned anything from last year's spending? Did you wonder not only how, but why, in the world you stacked up so many time-payments, so many loans? And did you decide to play it smarter this year?

* * *

This letter in today's mail may nudge you into some good resolutions:

Dear Miss Feeley:

Your recent column saying that it might be a good idea to change the arithmetic books Johnny studies in school prompted this letter.

I work part-time for a bookkeeping service, doing income taxes. Before I started this job five years ago, I never would have believed the large number of people who have themselves so hopelessly in debt.

When they come in to have their taxes figured, most of them bring along a box or envelopes stuffed with payment books so that the interest can be figured and used as a deduction.

While some of them have payments to finance companies which may have been necessitated by some real emergency, I wonder if most of the people who come here will ever get out from under, because it's so easy to keep borrowing more.

* * *

Most of them don't realize how much interest they are paying until we add it up for the year. It's heart-breaking, all right.

* * *

Many of the payments aren't for necessary things — they're for things such as boats, motors and trailers, or electric organs! In these cases, I don't find the debts heart-breaking!

One woman who had filed for bankruptcy a couple of years before (with her husband) had several little children who needed shoes and a number of other things, judging by their appearance. Yet she had one payment book after the other. Among the things they had gone in debt for this time were a tent, a guitar, and a set of drums.

Evidently the bankruptcy proceedings hadn't scared them or taught them anything. And they aren't yet 30 years old. It made me wonder if credit departments check as carefully as they might—or if schedules of the bankruptcy courts are overcrowded!

What possesses a couple faced with large unpaid medical bills —in addition to others—to go out and take on more payments for merchandise, they don't need?

My husband and I often discuss these things and are trying to teach our children our values, old-fashioned or not.

S. B., Three Rivers, Mich.

Dear Miss Feeley:

I would appreciate your advice on this matter of insurance:

We have two life insurance policies, also a mortgage insurance policy. Would it be to my advantage to leave the dividends in or apply them toward the premiums?

E. B., Skokie, Ill.

* * *

Dear E. B.:

If your insurance payments are cutting too deeply into your current income, then it might be to your advantage to apply the dividends to reduce the premiums. Dividends can also be used to shorten the lifetime of the policy.

* * *

If your present insurance won't meet your expected needs in later years, considering any other income you can expect, then you might consider purchasing additional paid-up insurance with the dividends.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

Pretty shoulders and a pretty back are two of the loveliest physical attributes a woman can have, and they are within the reach of most women. Of course, the way you hold yourself has a direct effect on the beauty of your back.

If your posture is good you are much less likely to have lines on the back of your neck, round shoulders or a dowager's hump.

However the back often is treated like a black sheep when compared to the care and attention which the face and neck get. The middle of the back frequently is marred by blackheads and pimples.

This is due to the fact that this area is almost impossible to reach for adequate cleansing without a long handled bath brush.

OILIER

Also, the nose, chin and the middle of the back are all spots which are oilier than other portions of the body. Therefore they need more soap and water. Either ask some kind soul to wash your back for you or use a long handled bath brush and do a good job yourself.

After careful toweling a drying antiseptic lotion is helpful.

* * *

Many teen - agers, and grown-ups for that matter, who are harassed by acne find that the condition improves during the summer months. This is also true of pimples on the back. This is no doubt due in part to the drying effect of the sun. The skin is not so oily.

You can help rid yourself of these if you will treat your back to regular sunning. Do not be extreme and acquire a burn. Just 10 or 15 minutes a day will be fine.

USE MAKE-UP

Also treat your back to real make-up jobs. When it is to be in full view, which it is much of the summer, use the same base and powder you apply to your face.

If you are going swimming use one of the waterproof products.

The following exercise is corrective to round shoulders.

Stand tall. Raise your arms forward to shoulder height and clap your hands. Swing your arms down and back and cross them behind your back. Continue.

Keep your arms straight throughout this exercise and keep your chin up slightly.

DOOMED HOTEL—Once the mecca for kings, magnates, diplomats and celebrities, the 30-story, 1,000-room Savoy Plaza Hotel in New York is now virtually a ghost hotel, awaiting demolition to make way for a 50-story General Motors office building. Only seven guests and a staff of 50 remain. Furnishing are being sold in the chandeliered lobby, once the center of genteel living.

Cong Using Ears to Help Even Up Battle Odds

(Editor's Note—How is the Viet Cong able to do it? How can a guerrilla force survive the onslaught of modern weapons and go on to fight another day? Here is a study of guerrilla methods in Viet Nam.)

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — You can pretty well reconstruct the way the Viet Cong operates:

A small brown man squats underground in an improvised echo chamber, straining his ears for the slightest sound.

* * *

Naked except for black shorts, a long rice pouch over one shoulder and a belt slung with hand grenades, he has been squatting patiently for hours.

It is nearly dark in the chamber, except for daylight streaming through the sound slots around the top. Through these slots, the first sounds come, reflecting from the curved sides of the chamber and amplifying at the man's ears. Then the distant thudding of helicopter rotor blades.

YELL ALARM

The man, wriggling through a short tunnel to the surface, can yell an alarm. Instantly, shadowy men lounging or cooking at the bases of the tall trees are on their feet and moving fast. The heavy equipment from last night's battle has been stowed for future use in deep, camouflaged holes. The bodies have been buried.

The men move rapidly, scattering in many directions in twos and threes. This is their base area, and they know every feature of the dense jungle in the area — the hidden trails, the camouflaged bunkers and tunnels, the gun emplacements, the mines and booby traps.

* * *

Viet Cong positions were first prepared here years ago and with each month the positions have been improved. The Viet Cong guerrilla spends much of his day digging, even when there is no immediate need for it.

The entrance to a tunnel might be under a heavy rock, it might be under the hearth of a peasant's hut, it might be under water in the bank of a mountain stream. Only by sheer luck would a government soldier find one, and if he did, he probably would kill only a few Viet Cong. The rest would be elsewhere.

NAPALM'S OOZE

In an air raid, some of the tunnels and bunkers would be crushed. A jellied furnace of napalm would ooze down into some of the air holes. But many of the bunkers would be deep enough to survive even direct hits by heavy bombs, and their galleries of men and weapons would survive. At nightfall, it would be safe to move around again.

The government soldier might find just empty space here, or his battalions might walk into a jungle trap, a devastating mortar barrage from prepared positions, followed by a regimental guerrilla onslaught. He would have to thread his way carefully through the jungle, and take a series of casualties from mantraps and snipers.

Most of all he would have to move in large groups because uniformed stragglers do not live long in the jungle. Big groups on the other hand always betray their presence. The guerrillas could choose to slip away or fight, on their own terms.

Nearly always, the Viet Cong will know what to expect, long in advance.

GET WARNING

The warning may come from the echo chamber. It may come in a radio message from a comrade miles away. It may come from peasants in the area, who either fear the Viet Cong or are more or less on the Viet Cong side. It may come from a bar girl who was drinking with government or American troops the night before.

The tip may come from the strike force itself. If it is to be an air strike, there always will be a light reconnaissance plane cruising over the area hours or perhaps days in advance. The prolonged presence of a light plane anywhere in Viet Nam is a sure sign of an impending government air strike or assault.

* * *

The South Vietnamese haul men and cannon and gear in trucks as far as they can, or use helicopters that may be limited in their landing zones to a few clear patches in the jungle. The guerrilla almost always will move overland, toting everything he needs on his back, and skirting the roads, unless he wants to ambush them.

When the government forces are finished for the day, they probably will move to some safer area before nightfall. Night belongs to the guerrilla. If government forces decide to stay overnight, they often bivouac in a small area, setting up a perimeter defense. Undisciplined solders even using lanterns. They can become sitting ducks for a mortar barrage.

BEST FRIEND

In the jungle, the wilderness itself is the guerrilla's best friend. In the cities and towns, the guerrillas' best camouflage is people. A guerrilla terrorist in a crowded city looks no different than hundreds of thousands of other youths.

He is likely to be wearing dark trousers and a sport shirt, and he probably has a bicycle, motor scooter or even automobile. Only by luck will an unusually conscientious policeman stop him to check the bundle on his scooter.

* * *

He may even be dressed in Vietnamese army uniform. Two bogus Vietnamese army officers drove into the courtyard of the U.S. officers' Brink Hotel last Christmas Eve, parked a Jeep and walked away. Within an hour half the hotel was a blazing, bomb-blasted pile of rubble.

The terrorist may be working in a cell infiltrated by a government informer. He may be caught, and end up before a firing squad in Saigon's central market. He probably is a fanatically anti-American youth who will yell anti-American and Communist slogans before the bullets cut him down.

NO STOP

The half-dozen other terrorists who share his cell also may be arrested and shot.

But smashing one cell does not stop the terror. The cells are built into a tight system of conspiratorial secrecy. Members rarely know anyone in the terror network outside their own immediate cells.

* * *

"We have yet to develop a machine that could tell at a glance whether or not a man is a Viet Cong. If we could do that, this battle would be won," a U.S. counterintelligence operative said recently.

So far, the powerful weapons of the 20th century have had little more effect on the Viet Cong guerrillas than did the British Redcoats, with their superior musketry, on the American guerrillas of two centuries ago.

* * *

It is a hard tactic to beat.

AP Photofax

SQUATTING GUERRILLAS—A group of Viet Cong prisoners squat on the ground after their capture during a clash in the Mekong Delta area south of Saigon. They wear the typical uniform of the guerrilla—shorts and tattered shirts. But despite their appearance, they provide a tough match for the better-equipped government troops.

Most Peace Corpsmen Not Unhappy After Return

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 3,000 Peace Corps volunteers have returned to the United States after two years' service abroad.

What are they doing now? How are they readjusting to American life? Do they feel their Peace Corps experience was worthwhile?

Seeking answers to these questions, UPI reporters interviewed 30 Peace Corps returnees in all parts of the country. Their names were drawn at random from Peace Corps files to insure a fair cross section.

Thirty people out of 3,000 is one per cent — a bigger sample than public opinion polls normally use in making projections of national attitudes.

Nearly half of the ex-volunteers — 13 out of the 30 interviewed — have returned to colleges or universities to continue their education.

POSTGRAD STUDIES

Some are taking postgraduate studies in preparations for careers in teaching, law, social work or other fields. But others indicated that they went back to school because they haven't really made up their minds what to do with their lives.

Like many young people, they are clinging to the role of student until they can settle on some other career.

The 17 ex-volunteers who are not in school display a strong bent toward professions which directly serve human needs.

Five are teachers, four are social workers, two are nurses. Three are working for the Peace Corps itself — as salaried staff members in training centers. One is an engineer, one a home economist, and one returned to a pre-Corps job in advertising.

Last March 5-7, the Peace Corps held a conference in Washington at which some 300 returnees aired their problems about finding suitable jobs and making a "reentry" into American life.

Some of the publicity which followed gave rise to a widespread impression that the typical returnee is a disgruntled misfit who can't find a job, doesn't like America, and feels badly put upon.

The Peace Corps veterans interviewed by UPI were well aware of this image. Several went out of their way to repudiate it as inaccurate and unfair.

"Most of the returned volunteers I know are in great shape," said David McDowell, 27, who has been working toward his Ph.D. in physics at Columbia University in New York since returning from Nigeria.

FEW MALCONTENTS

"I think it's unfortunate that a few malcontents have been so widely quoted in the press," he said.

"I would say that the majority of volunteers are quite happy to return to American society and have no trouble fitting back in."

"I think the ex-volunteers who have expressed disappointment, disillusionment or bitterness are in the minority, but they happen to be more vocal than the rest of us," said Jim Portman, 27, of Columbus, Ohio.

Margaret Ahern, a 44-year-old public health nurse in Springfield, Ill., said she had little difficulty resuming a career in which she was already well-established before leaving for Peace Corps service in Chile.

"I think that a lot of the readjustment difficulties you hear about involve young people who went directly from school into the Peace Corps, and who were faced on their return with the problem of choosing and getting started in a career," she said.

REVERSE SHOCK

Other returnees said, however, that finding a job was not their only "reentry" problem. After enduring hardships in undeveloped countries, they experienced a kind of reverse "cultural shock" in coming home to this land of overflowing abundance.

"I am still overwhelmed every time I go into an American supermarket," said David Fleishbacker, 28, of San Francisco, who returned last fall from Afghanistan.

Sarah Anne Patterson, 27, a Wilmette, Ill. schoolteacher, said that when she came home from Chile "it was kind of hard to take all of this emphasis on material comforts."

Over Viet, Domestic Issues

Johnson Facing Long Summer

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is heading into a long summer likely to be marked by continued congressional bickering over his Viet Nam policies and stiffened resistance to his domestic programs.

Prospective further acceleration in the Southeast Asia fighting seems certain to keep the fires of debate burning in both the Senate and House. But while the legislators are arguing over foreign affairs, they also will be acting on some of the President's most controversial domestic proposals.

* * *

Johnson is virtually assured of enactment of measures largely meeting his requests on Negro voting rights, Social Security and health care, an urban affairs cabinet department, antipoverty, housing and higher education, plus a proposed constitutional amendment on presidential disability.

* * *

Combined with excise tax reduction, federal aid to secondary schools and Appalachia aid already approved, these measures will add up to a program such as few presidents ever have been able to get enacted in one session of Congress.

NOT SATISFIED

But Johnson has made it clear he will not be satisfied to let some of his more controversial proposals go over until the election-year session of 1966.

Under this circumstance, administration leaders are girding for some tough battles over five proposals the President has laid down and one on which he has declined to take a public stand — a proposed constitutional amendment to permit state voters to determine whether one house of their legislature may be apportioned on other than on a population basis.

* * *

High on the list of the most disputed measures is a bill to extend and revise federal farm programs. As it stands now, the measure doesn't even cover cotton and dairy products. A donnybrook lies ahead when it hits the Senate floor.

Johnson is pushing also for action on a bill to amend the Taft-Hartley Act to eliminate state authority to outlaw union shop labor contracts. Senate opponents will be ready when this comes up with a mountain of amendments restricting union activities.

TROUBLE AHEAD

There is trouble ahead for Johnson's proposal to expand the coverage of the minimum-wage law. Lobbying against the inclusion of laundry workers, retail store clerks and others has been intensive. On the other side, organized labor has been campaigning for an increase in the present $1.25-an-hour level, an action which Johnson didn't recommend.

* * *

The President's proposal for abolishing the national origins quotas of the immigration law has run into stiff opposition in committee hearings and its fate remains in doubt.

While Johnson may get action — not always pleasing to him — on these measures, his recommendation to increase benefits and set up federal standards on unemployment compensation seems likely to be shelved for this year.

* * *

Most controversial of all may be the proposed constitutional amendment on legislative apportionment. Unless they can get the votes — and they don't have them yet — to defeat a proposal which requires a two-thirds majority for passage, Senate liberals have threatened to filibuster.

MORE WORK YET?

The President seems likely to come up with additional recommendations for a Congress already well-supplied with work. His announcement in New York last week of plans for a national teachers' corps indicates the administration is not running out of new ideas for programs.

Thus far, Johnson has been able to win approval of major administration measures in just about the form he originally recommended.

Listed Serious After Shooting

A Pontiac man is in serious condition at Pontiac General Hospital after being shot during a fight in Pontiac Township Saturday night.

The sheriff's department said Ray L. Wilkins, 33, of 121 E. Fairmount was wounded in the stomach when he attacked Charles D. Cox, 151 Collier.

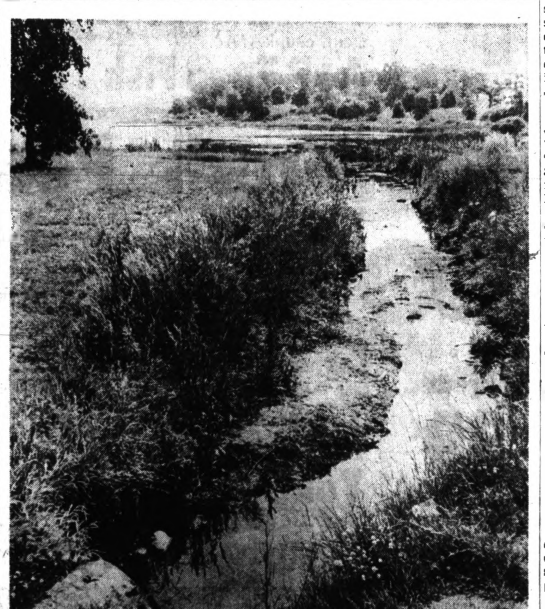

Cox, who admitted the shooting, was released yesterday after making a statement to the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office that he had fired in self-defense. He was not charged.

Wilkins, according to sheriff's deputies, had broken down the door to Cox's apartment and threatened him. Cox said Wilkins was lunging at him when he grabbed a 22-caliber rifle from against the wall and fired.

* * *

Deputies said Wilkins and two companions had gone to the address to see Wilkins' stepfather Edward E. Boyd, who also has an apartment in the house.

Wilkins had been drinking before the 11:45 p.m. incident, according to deputies.

DRAIN PROBLEM — The storm drain ditch that cuts across this field in the Washington Park-Crystal Lake area has residents complaining about the pollution and smell. City officials say the ditch, located near the foot of Berwick, was left some years ago to carry storm water across the private property to the lake. The problem results from the water standing stagnant in periods between rainstorms.

Shocked Fish Are Used to Feed Starving Gators

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Florida conservation officials are using electric shocks to catch fish for starving alligators in Everglades National Park.

* * *

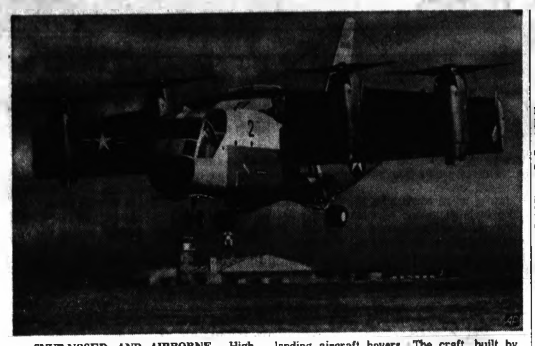

Millions of fish died in the park when a drought dried up ponds and waterholes. Hungry alligators are beginning to eat their own young.

State wildlife officers, using lines, a net and an electric generator, send a shock that stuns the fish. When they float to the surface they are netted.

* * *

Trucks covered with wet blankets carry the fish to the park for the alligators.

SNUB-NOSED AND AIRBORNE — High camera speed makes the propellors appear stopped as this vertical short takeoff and landing aircraft hovers. The craft, built by Ling-Temco-Vought under military contract, is undergoing tests.

Airlines Endure Ground Woes, Too

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A meticulous and thrifty — albeit bountiful — housekeeper in New York throws away $10,000 worth of food every month from just one kitchen.

That's just part of the organized chaos that puts millions of passengers in the air on summer vacations.

All sorts of other things are mixed up in the process at Kennedy International Airport on Long Island. Such as billy goats, electronic computers to determine flight routes, 53 languages and the like.

Kennedy is one of the larger airports (4,900 acres, equivalent to all of Manhattan Island from 42nd Street to the Battery) and takes care of around 15 million passengers a year.

* * *

What goes on there during the mass migration of summer tourists is typical of the action at scores of other air terminals.

HIGHLY DEPLORED

The food waste is by American Airlines, which prepares its own in-flight meals at the airport. Throwing this much in the garbage can is highly deplored, but nobody can figure out what to do about it.

"We undercook slightly because food continues to simmer in the heated containers we pack it in," said Ernest Kanes, who keeps a watchful eye on the kitchen for the company.

"Meals should be served not more than three hours after they are prepared or they become stale or over cooked."

* * *

Careful tab is kept and one meal for each passenger is placed aboard.

TOTAL LOSS

"Meals prepared for last minute dropouts become a total loss," lamented Kanes, "and must be thrown away."

The billy goat is a permanent fixture at the SPCA'S animalport, as a playmate and tranquilizer to high-strung horses in transit.

The animalport is run by George Bauer, a former New York City mounted cop. The Bauers, who are the only people who live at the huge airport, are housed atop the two-story building which is equipped with everything needed to care for 80,000 animals a year.

Pets that have not been cleared for health or claimed by their owners and those awaiting shipment comprise the bulk of the guests at the animalport, but there are always exotic creatures for zoos and medical laboratories.

"At last count, we had handled 131 species," said Bauer. "Everything from scimitar-billed hoopoes (South African birds) to aardvarks (they habitate crossword puzzles)."

A spot check disclosed cloud rats — huge rodents — from Manila, English hedgehogs and a beautiful collie, wearing a bib.

"Won't eat except out of a dog food can," explained Bauer, "and we try to cater to their whims. The bib is to keep his coat clean."

* * *

There was one mutt that had been unclaimed for 10 days, but Bauer was unconcerned.

Copter-Type Plane Showing Its Worth

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — The airman's — and civilian's-dream of a non-conventional airplane that requires no expensive runway is so far advanced that the military is testing the craft to see how many uses it has.

The helicopter also needs no runway. But the makers of the new plane, Ling-Temco-Vought of Dallas, say their craft can fly more than twice as fast and is safer.

The plane is the XC142A, so new no one has given it a name.

Many vertical short take off and landing planes have been made. Company spokesmen say, however, that they were put together only to prove that it can be done. The XC142, they say, provides a practical workhorse.

Dr. Walter Hesse, program head of the $125 million project, swears the XC142 is not designed to supplant the helicopter.

* * *

He said that it is designed, at least for civilian use, to fly from downtown in one city to downtown in another at great speed.

Dr. Hesse repeats, "It is a big plane" — presumably to contrast it with earlier experimental models built by several companies.

LOOKS LIKE BOX

The aircraft looks more like a box with propellers than an airplane or helicopter.

"The Army said it wanted a box," explained Dr. Hesse. "The Navy needed a plane that would fit on an aircraft carrier elevator."

The XC142 turns its wings with its four fixed engines upward and actually leaps into the air.

The pilot rotates the wings-engines forward when he reaches a convenient height and then possesses a conventional appearing aircraft.

At this point, the pilot cuts two engines to save fuel. The plane still will scoot through the air at 430 miles per hour. Cruising speed is 300.

* * *

The plane hovers so well it appears suspended on a rope.

The XC142 can carry 33 servicemen with their 60-pounds-plus of gear per man. With added fuel tanks it can carry 12,000 pounds of cargo.

LONG RANGE

Its range is 480 miles but this can be boosted to 3,800 miles if needed.

The military contracted for five machines and three have been built.

The services are testing one at the moment. Another is being checked after its wing tips touched ground in an unexpected backlash of air from the propellors. The third is being disassembled for rountine inspection after test flights.

Commercial airlines show interest in the plane but not at $25 million each.

"A large order of 300 aircraft by the military could cut the cost to $2 million each," estimated Dr. Hesse.

1,000 Do Swabbing for Disease Fight

BOSTON (AP) — A thousand New England children and adults are swabbing their throats once a month and mailing the cultures to Children's Hospital Medical Center.

It's a do-it-yourself program among rheumatic fever patients treated at the center's House of Good Samaritan. The aim is to avoid recurrence of the disease.

* * *

Dr. Benedict F. Massell, director of the hospital's rheumatic fever research unit, said former victims remain susceptible. Early recognition and prompt treatment lessen the frequency of serious recurrences, he added.

Surgical Teams Face Huge Odds in Viet

By RONALD I. DEUTSCH

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — Covered with massive, red napalm burns, the boy whimpered in pain as the nurse removed the bandages from his skinny, scorched body. He would die.

A pretty girl dozed in a twilight state of semiconsciousness with a bullet wound in her chest. She had also been shot in the thigh eight months earlier.

* * *

Another boy, suffering deep shock, looked into space with an expressionless stare. He had seen his mother, father and two sisters killed in their peasant village.

These are victims of the Vietnamese war. They are Vietnamese children with no future and a past filled with horror. They were brought to Da Nang's only civilian hospital where a skilled team of American doctors and nurses try to practice 20th century medicine under 19th century conditions.

SPREAD GOOD WILL

The U.S. surgical team — one of two such civilian teams in South Viet Nam on loan from the U.S. Public Health Service — has been here since early 1963. Its function under the U.S. Operations Mission, an overseas aid program, is to help counter Communist insurgency and spread American good will.

* * *

One U.S. aid official calls the program an enormous success, on balance, but adds that it faces overwhelming odds in a land where the practice of modern medicine is virtually impossible.

"Our main purpose is to pay our bills and to save as many people from dying as possible," said Louis M. Wahrmund of Fredericksburg, Tex., a regional director.

The medical experiment started off with four civilian teams but dwindled to half this number because of lack of recruits from the United States. The American doctors, who volunteer their services, wind up frustrated and embittered, victims of what they call cultural shock.

NO HOT WATER

Dr. Vernon Fitchett, 37, of Newell, Iowa, the chief medical officer, describes the condition this way:

"You come here thinking you're going to change things. Then you find out the hospital has no hot water, no sewage system and often no electricity.

"The files in our wards wouldn't be tolerated in a pig sty. Hospitals in the states have semiprivate rooms, but we have semiprivate cots, two or three patients to a cot.

"You perform a five-hour operation, but the patient dies because no blood is available, or there's a lack of trained nurses.

NO MIRACLES

"So you come to accept that you cannot transfer the miracle of modern medicine from our culture to one that is ill-prepared for it. So you adopt another set of standards over here."

* * *

The city of Da Nang, with a population of about 160,000, has only four Vietnamese doctors. The only hospital of its kind in central Viet Nam, it attracts patients from 50 miles away.

* * *

Another surgeon here, Dr. Thomas Humphrey, 40, of Los Angeles, believes it is a tragedy that more American doctors do not come to Viet Nam.

Wahrmund feels a greater contribution could be made if doctors were available to teach medicine to the Vietnamese as well as practice it.

Controversy Stirred Up by Prince

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip is the center of a controversy over how outspoken a member of the British royalty can be on political issues.

The husband of Queen Elizabeth II in a speech at Edinburgh Friday night, called for patience in dealing with the issue of Rhodesian independence rather than "risk a blood bath."

The issue is a touchy one since African prime ministers of commonwealth nations have been urging Prime Minister Harold Wilson for immediate action to ensure Rhodesia's colored population of a full voice in government.

Wilson and Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia have been negotiating the constitutional future of the British dependency, where 225,000 whites rule 3½ million Africans.

* * *

Hugh Jenkins, a Laborite legislator, said he intended to bring the matter before Parliament.

PLANS MOTION

He said he would introduce a motion saying that "this house believes that it is a condition of constitutional monarchy that royalty shall not give public expression to contentious political opinions."

Philip's speech, Jenkins said, was "particularly ill-advised at the present time."

Another Laborite member of parliament, Lord Brockway, chairman of the Movement for Colonial Freedom, forecast that Philip's speech would have "a very unfortunate effect upon Africa and the unity of the commonwealth "by encouraging Rhodesia's white government to resist African nationalism.

* * *

Swooping Sea Gull Likes That Chicken

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)— There's a sea gull with a lot of gall—and a full stomach.

The gull swooped into a family barbecue Sunday and made off with a piece of chicken being cooked on an outdoor grill. The bird made the choice so quickly none of the John J. Murphy family could counter the raid.

Authority Prefers Two Rails to One

BOSTON (AP) — Directors of the Massachusetts Bay Transport Authority have rejected a monorail proposal for an extension of rapid transit to the Massachusetts South Shore and have approved the use of a conventional two-rail system.

A report prepared by the chief planner for the authority said the two-rail system was chosen for speed and acceleration, riding quality and comfort, reliability and switching and braking on ice, and cost of operation.

New Models Torn Down, Piece by Piece

GM's Proving Ground at Milford Takes Out Kinks

Remember when you used to hear this line:

"I'm not buying a new car yet. I'll wait 'til they get the bugs out of new models!"

That was the expression frequently heard when the new car models were introduced.

But not any more.

New car buyers just naturally expect the "bugs" to be taken out before the new cars are introduced—and they are.

* * *

The answer is a proving ground.

Today's and tomorrow's GM models are tested long before they ever reach the customer—tested for just about everything that could possibly go wrong with the car, the engine, the finish, the body, performance, riding quality, and noise.

All General Motors models are tested right here in the area—at the Milford Proving Ground.

You can't visit it. Everything is "top secret." The GM people don't want you or their competitors to see what's going on.

Entire fleets and models are constantly being given the most ruggest tests an automobile could ever experience in regular use.

Entire cars are torn down to find possible trouble or wear spots.

Hundreds of cars are driven hundreds of miles almost every day, winter and summer over all kinds of roads and in all kinds of weather, either manmade or normal.

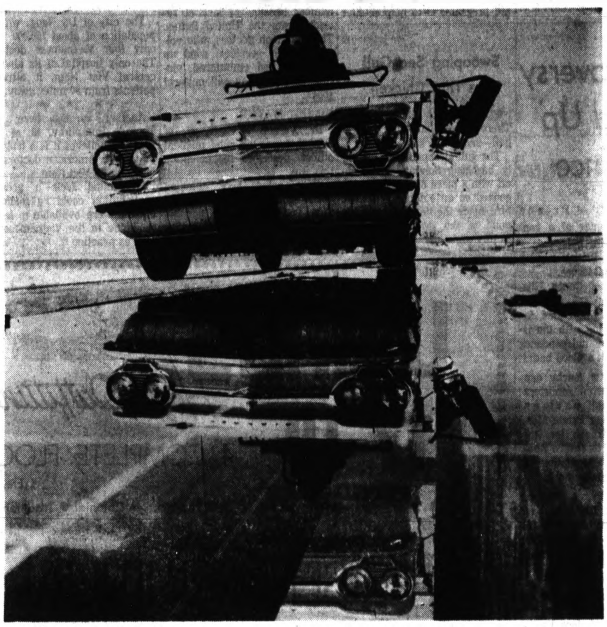

They are submitted to "cold rooms" where temperatures soar to almost unbearable heights.

* * *

Additional tests are conducted all over the country and around the world, but the main grilling is given the future models at the Milford Proving Ground.

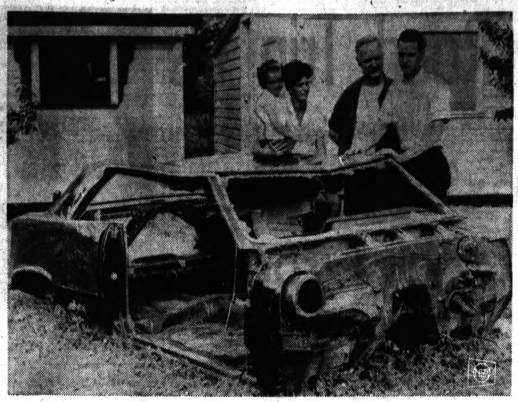

PRIVATE ROAD SYSTEM — A new 4.5-mile circular track at GM's Milford Proving Ground arcs through the right portion of this aerial view showing part of the 4,011-acre test area. The new banked circular track completely surrounds the older "ride-and-handling loop." Modern bridge-overpasses (center) incorporating the latest highway safety engineering concepts, connect the circular track and others.

DONE WITH MIRRORS—Over this "glass road" rolls a test car with photo floodlamps and camera focused on a mirror beneath the glass surface. The mirror reflects the tire's "footprint" which is photographed at the rate of up to 2,200 frames per second at speeds as high as 60 m. p. h. The high speed photos show what tire action occurs during experimentally induced "shimmy," severe braking or acceleration.

USED PARTS — After a gruelling test of 36,000 miles, each of 45 cars was taken apart, piece by piece, and the parts examined for excess wear. All this takes place before the new models are put on the market. GM works far in advance of the yearly models. Your 1968 model probably is being tested at the GM Proving Ground right now. Part by part, your model car will be tested far in advance to provide years of trouble-free maximum performance.

THOROUGH JOB — A Cleveland, Ohio family looks over what remains of its late-model car after thieves stripped it, leaving no bolt untouched. Making off with everything movable, they also smashed the windshield for good measure.

LBJ Is Betting Extra Care on Superliner Will Pay Off

(Editor's Note: President Johnson's action in ordering another 18 months of research on the U.S. entry in the supersonic airliner derby is a calculated risk of time in order to get a better product. But some industry people are not so sure the United States needs to play it that way. In the following dispatch, UPI Aviation Editor Robert J. Serling explores the situation.)

* * *

By ROBERT J. SERLING
UPI Aviation Editor

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has taken a calculated risk in ordering 18 months of additional research before giving the supersonic airliner program a final green light.

He is betting that the extra year and a half of development work will produce a plane so far superior to the British-French "Concorde" that the Concorde's far earlier introduction will mean little in terms of sales.

The President described the new SST schedule as a "substantial increase in the tempo of the program." It could be defined that way in terms of money.

He is asking Congress for $140 million to finance the next 18 months of research, which is three times current SST expenditures. But aircraft industry spokesmen, and some officials in the government itself, cannot interpret this as any speedup.

* * *

The original SST project called for five separate phases of development:

- Phase I—Preliminary designs by competing airframe and engine manufacturers, followed by airline and government evaluation.
- Phase II—Revised designs and evaluation.
- Phase III—A final decision to build a prototype and selection of the winning airframe and engine manufacturers.
- Phase IV—Construction of the prototype and a test program.
- Phase V—Introduction of the SST into regular airline service.

NOT FAR BEHIND

The hoped-for timetable would have completed Phase III no later than last January. This would have meant the first test flight of a prototype by the end of 1969 and a passenger-carrying SST sometime in 1972.

That schedule would have put the U.S. not too far behind the Concorde, which has a first-flight target date of late 1968 and passenger service by 1970.

But from President Johnson's announcement last week, it is apparent that the United States isn't even through Phase II yet.

As for Phase III—selection of a manufacturer—Lockheed and Boeing (airframe) and General Electric and Pratt & Whitney (engines) still will be competing over the additional year and a half of Phase II.

MOST PRACTICAL

The most practical target date now for a first flight is 1972 and an in-service SST is not likely before 1974 or 1975.

Officials have been emphasizing that we are not in any race with the British and French.

* * *

This is true from the standpoint of being the first to put an SST into the skies.

The Concorde's designers already are cutting metal while the U.S. still is cutting paper. There is no race as such.

TIME GAP

But there is a sales race. And its outcome could depend on the amount of the time gap between the Concorde and the U.S. entry.

* * *

This is the basis for describing Johnson's decision as a calculated risk. One top U.S. aviation figure told UPI:

"If the Concorde turns out to be a better plane than we think it will be, we're in trouble."

Practically No Defense

Car Theft Like Taking Candy From Baby

NORTH BERGEN, N.J. (NEA) — Any thief who can't steal an American automobile in 3½ minutes—without keys — ought to be arrested, according to a practicing professional.

"The auto manufacturers make theft easy," says private detective Ed Wallis. "There is one make on which you can unlock the door by merely slamming your fist against it."

"But on any car there is practically no defense against a pro or clever amateur," continued Wallis, who operates his own business in North Bergen and specializes in "stealing back" cars from all over the continental United States for delinquent finance payments.

"Nothing is being done about it except by one manufacturer, whose 1965 models have double-tumbler ignition locks. This makes them more difficult, but not impossible, to pick — and the ignition wiring can still be jumped."

* * *

In some European countries auto theft insurance is not valid unless wheels are locked by special devices on parked cars. Wallis believes this might be a good idea over here.

ARMOR-PLATING

He also advocates armor-plating all electrical wiring that can be jiggered to start a car, "the way they do cords on public telephones in neighborhoods where people steal receivers just for practice."

Steering wheel locks and stamping identification numbers on car bodies instead of putting them on serial plates which can easily be removed also would help, he believes.

"Most thefts are by amateurs who just want a ride," Wallis said. "About 75 per cent of vehicles are found abandoned, usually not far from where they were stolen.

"Most professional thefts are not for resale, but for parts.

WILL PASS WORD

"A crooked garage man will pass the word that he wants fenders for a blue '65 Caddy. The pros will wait until they spot such a car, steal it and deliver it to the garage where not only the fenders, but everything else that isn't serialized is removed."

Wallis admits that manufacturers stamp hidden marks on certain parts of their cars for identification, but refuses to say what or where they are.

Greatest losses are in commercial trailers, which are heisted not for the vehicle, but for the load.

* * *

"These are grabbed on order," said Wallis. "Advance arrangements have been made, especially when the load is perishable, such as eggs or shrimp."

WORTH $5,000

Under federal law, the FBI can go after any stolen motor vehicle — whatever its value— that crosses a state line. But trailer and its contents must be worth $5,000 or more before the G-men can take hold.

Wallis, who operates with full legal authority, learned his trade from automotive engineers and policemen.

The tools he uses were made by the widow of one of the slickest car thieves in the business.

* * *

Wallis is licensed to carry a gun, but has only once been forced to use it. He shot it out with a delinquent payee who thought Wallis an illegal thief and opened fire from a window.

2,323 RECOVERIES

In 1964 Wallis and his assistant recovered 2,323 units, including small craft and yachts, which are becoming big items.

He belongs to two co-operative organizations — Allied Finance Adjusters Conference and National Finance Adjusters—which blanket the United States, Canada and Mexico.

While being interviewed, Wallis completed recovery of a car purchased in California, from where it had disappeared.

* * *

Operatives had discovered the purchaser had a girlfriend from New Jersey. Wallis was tipped off to be on the lookout. Somehow he learned the girl had an illness that required medication.

* * *

He had operatives telephone every drugstore in the New Jersey area where the girl lived, to ask if the prescription in her name was ready.

* * *

The prescription was finally located and picked up — and it gave the address at which the car recovery was made. The man from whom the car was "stolen back" still doesn't know how it happened.

Leaving 'Mainstream' a Habit With Lindsay

By LYLE WILSON
United Press International

Republican Rep. John V. Lindsay, who bolted his party's 1964 presidential nominees, has just taken another long stride away from his fellow Republicans.

This stride came in last week's House vote on President Johnson's $6 billion housing bill. This bill contained a provision for rent subsidies which originally likely would have extended to income brackets well above $5,000 annually.

Conservative opposition finally got this scaled down to limit such rent subsidies to persons eligible for public housing.

Lindsay was one of four New York Republicans who joined 204 Democrats to keep the controversial rent subsidy program in the housing bill. The vote was 208 to 202.

* * *

Voting for a Republican motion to kill the rent subsidy were 130 Republicans and 72 Democrats.

LEAVE MAINSTREAM

Thus, Lindsay and his three associates in supporting this major "Great Society" proposal obviously were far outside the mainstream of Republican policy. The House thereafter passed the bill by a vote of 245 to 269.

This incident scarcely is news because Lindsay often votes with the "Great Society" and against the Republican leadership.

It is an important incident, however, because Lindsay will be this year's Republican nominee for mayor of New York.

* * *

He has been nominated also by New York's left wing Liberal Party, having appeared before the Liberal selection committee last month with a plea for support and a promise of performance.

FUSION CANDIDATE

Lindsay will be a Fusion mayoralty candidate. He will run teamed for citywide office with a Liberal party representative and a Democrat.

Lindsay will be the first Republican mayoralty candidate endorsed by the Liberals since the days of Fiorello La Guardia. Liberal endorsement of Lindsay, however, is not a basic shift from the Liberal's normal Democratic allegiance.

In a report from its Washington bureau, the New York Times said on May 30 that in his three House terms, Lindsay had voted less and less frequently with the conservative combination of House Republicans and southern Democrats.

A United Press International story of May 26 reported: "Rep. John V. Lindsay (R-N.Y.) said today he is running for mayor of New York without a Republican label. He also turned down any offers of campaign help from Republicans outside the city of New York."

The Conservative Americans for Constitutional Action rated Lindsay's 1964 voting record as 21 per cent satisfactory. The AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education 1963-64 rated Lindsay 73 per cent good. Americans for Democratic Action 1964 marked him 85 percent.

Tigers Seek Home-Cooking Cure for Road Trip Ills

Senators Send Bengals Home 6-3 Losers

NY Invades Detroit for Big Five Tilts, Expect 100,000

DETROIT (AP)—For a team that flopped on the road the circumstances of the Detroit Tigers' homecoming today were little short of sensational.

A crowd totaling possibly 100,000 is anticipated for the five games starting with today's doubleheader in Tiger Stadium.

★ ★ ★

The New York Yankees are the opposition. That's the reason. After today's twin bill, the Tigers and Yanks play three more games here.

The downtrodden, sixth-place Yanks and the Tigers, also currently downtrodden, always draw big houses.

For today's two games with the Yanks the Tigers figured on a holiday crowd of 35,000 to 40,000. With the next three the 100,000 total might be reached. All are night games on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Joe Sparma (5-3) and Mickey Lolich (8-3) were due to pitch for Detroit against Whitey Ford (9-7) and Bill Stafford (3-4) today.

With Dave Wickersham losing his eighth straight game and failing in his 13th try for a second victory this season, the Tigers' road excursion petered out Sunday in a 6-3 defeat by the Washington Senators at Washington.

Even Willie Horton's 18th home run could give the Tigers little cheer, considering the way the game went.

OPENED GATES

Dick McAuliffe's error on a doubleplay ball in the first inning set up two unearned runs for Washington.

Don Lock's two-run homer queered things just about completely for Wickersham in the fourth and he bowed out for a pinch-hitter in the next inning.

★ ★ ★

The Senators' victory gave them the series, 2 to 1, and left the Tigers with a 4-6 record for a trip on which they had counted for a fight toward the top of the American League.

If, by chance, the Yankees should sweep five from Detroit, the teams would be tied.

The Wickersham defeat was rough for him. His last three losses were by one run each, including two defeats charged to his relief.

SEVEN HITS

The Senators won the game on only seven hits while the Tigers got nine off starter Buster Narum and two relief men.

Horton's home run in the fifth, which tied him with Cleveland's Rocky Colavito for the American League lead, and Jim Northrup's three singles were Detroit's main offensive gestures.

★ ★ ★

Lock, breaking out of a slump, added two singles to his homer.

Golfer Posts Rochester Ace

John Case of Warren aced the 10th hole at Rochester Country Club Saturday with a three-wood, 231-yard drive.

It was the second hole-in-one for Case, whose other also came on a 10th hole (at Genesee Hills in 1951). He had 80 for the 18 holes.

Witnessing the ace were Detroiters Bernard and Jack Burns, and George Grunow of Royal Oak.

TIGERS DOUBLED UP—Detroit's Jim Northrup (30) starts a slide in an effort to break up a double play against Washington in the opening inning yesterday, but he was too late as shortstop Ed Brinkman got the ball away in time to nail Don Wert at first. Second baseman Don Blasingame is moving out of Brinkman's way as umpire Cal Drummon watches the play. Senators won, 6-3.

Phillies' 'Slugger' Thomas on Waivers

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Frank Thomas, 36-year-old infielder - outfielder slugger dismissed by the Philadelphia Phillies after a pre-game fight with teammate Richie Allen, regrets the incident but says placing him on the waiver list was unfair.

The much traveled Thomas who came to the Phils from the Mets last August was put on the National League waiver list "irrevocably" five hours after the batting practice fracas last Saturday night.

Thomas said he told Manager Gene Mauch that if he was placed on the list because of the incident at the batting cage, then the Phils were being unfair.

Allen, All-Star third baseman, has refused to talk about it.

Approached for comment on the brawl, Allen merely answered: "What fight?"

Early arrivals at Connie Mack Stadium before the Cincinnati game, which the Reds won 10-8 after Thomas' game tying home run, saw Allen punch Thomas and Thomas swing a bat which struck Allen on the shoulder.

STRUCK, TOO

Shortstop Ruben Amaro, one of half a dozen players who jumped into separate the two, was struck in the face by an Allen punch.

According to Thomas, the fight was the result of long standing needling and name calling between him and Allen.

The 205-pound Thomas said that during batting practice before the game, Allen referred to him as 'Lurch' — alluding to the Frankenstein monster-type character on a television show.

Thomas said he didn't mind it because "I'm a great agitator. Then I called him Mohammed Cassius Clay, and it hit him the wrong way."

"He said 'come up here and call me that' and I said 'if you want me come down here'," Thomas said.

"About 10 or 15 minutes elapsed and then he came up and shoved me and said 'what did you say?' and I answered 'if I hurt your feelings, I'm sorry and said I was going in to hit.

★ ★ ★

"I got up and turned toward him. He threw the first punch. My swinging the bat was a reflex," he said.

"It cost me my job, but I have no ill feelings," he said.

Thomas said he was wrong to swing the bat at Allen "but I would have gone after him with my fists if I didn't have the bat."

Hurlers Star in Wins by H-A, Clipper '9s'

The return of Don Sackett to the mound for Huron-Airway and the continued fine hurling of John Billesdon for the R. T. Clippers against Talbott Lumber marked Sunday's Class A baseball at Jaycee Park.

Billesdon hurled five hitless innings as the Clippers romped past Talbott, 12-0, in a contest halted by the 10-run-lead rule.

Sackett relieved unbeaten Tom Walters with one out and tying run on first base in the sixth inning against M. G. Collision, and saved a 2-0 win, Walters's fifth straight.

Billesdon (3-1) gained his second win over Talbott. In 12 innings, the ex-Cranbrook right-hander has yielded only one run, four hits and has fanned 16 lumbermen. The losers (1-8) last night helped the Clippers (5-3) cause with seven errors and seven walks.

MVP RETURNS

Huron-Airway (7-3) scored once in the fifth on a catcher's error, and again in the sixth on a sacrifice fly. Sackett, who was the league's most valuable player last year, had been hospitalized recently but returned strong yesterday afternoon.

He faced six men and retired five of them. Walters fanned nine before leaving after consecutive singles in the sixth.

Today at 3 p.m., Talbott plays CIO No. 594. The 8 p.m. tilt features Cranbrook against The Clippers.

Red Sox's Crooner Overcomes Groans

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

By The Associated Press

Instead of singing to the shrieks and stomps of rock and roll fans, Tony Conigliaro has been stinging from the boos and hisses of Boston's right field fans.

Conigliaro, a rookie sensation last season, has been one of the primary targets of the fans' dissatisfaction with the floundering Red Sox this year.

★ ★ ★

Nevertheless, the 20-year-old right fielder continued his home run hitting Sunday, powering the Red Sox past New York 5-3 with a two-run homer.

The victory halted Boston's losing streak at five games and prevented the Yankees from reaching the .500 level for the first time since May 1 when they were 7-7.

The home run was Conigliaro's 16th, putting him behind only Rocky Colavito and Willie Horton in the American League. He hit 24 last year when he played only 111 games because of injuries.

ALSO SINGS

Besides hitting home runs, Conigliaro also sings — but not during baseball season.

"I make naturally beautiful music," he explains. "I really just happened into it. I was doing some singing at a party, and there were some people there from RCA Victor, Mercury and Columbia who expressed interest. They bid just like in baseball, and I signed for the best deal."

Conigliaro currently has two rock and roll records in the music stores. His first record consists of "Playing the Field" and "Why Don't They Understand?"

while the second has "Little Red Scooter" and "I Can't Get Over You."

★ ★ ★

The Red Sox only hope that Conigliaro gets over the hometown fans.

In other AL action Sunday, Cleveland and Minnesota remained tied for first place. The Indians trimmed Baltimore 4-2 while the Twins stopped Kansas City 5-2. Chicago edged Los Angles.

Conigliaro's homer in the fourth inning erased a 3-2 Yankee lead and sent Jim Bouton to his eighth loss against four victories. Lee Thomas doubled home two Boston runs in the first while Hector Lopez drove in two runs with a single in New York's half of the inning.

NINTH VICTORY

The Indians downed Baltimore on Leon Wagner's two-run homer off Milt Pappas with two out in the eighth inning. The blow gave Ralph Terry, who pitched a six-hitter, his ninth triumph in 12 decisions. Rocky Colavito's two-run single had tied the game for Cleveland in the sixth.

Tony Oliva's three-run homer and a two-run blast by Harmon Killebrew gave the Twins their runs. Kansas City scored in the fourth on a single by Jim Landis, Ed Charles' triple and a squeeze bunt by Mike Hershberger. John Klippstein held the Athletics hitless in the last four innings.

★ ★ ★

Ken Berry homered off George Brunet in the fifth for the White Sox victory over Los Angeles, Tommy John allowed the Angels six hits until Eddie Fisher took over in the ninth.

Aussies Dominate Wimbledon Tennis

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — If the Wimbledon results indicate a trend, Australia will defend its Davis Cup crown this year with ease but faces a definite threat in the near future — from Russia, not the United States.

★ ★ ★

Margaret Smith completed the Aussies' sweep of the singles title Saturday, beating defending women's champion Maria Bueno of Brazil 6-4, 7-5 after Roy Emerson successfully defended his men's crown Friday by whipping fellow Australian Fred Stolle in straight sets.

Russia, however, which has an intensive program under way to become a leading tennis power, captured both junior events with impressive performances, while the best the U.S. could do was a victory in the veterans event and a share of the women's doubles title.

Long-Driving Blonde Takes Open Crown

NORTHFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Carol Mann, an attractive 5-foot-3 blonde belter from Towson, Md., is the heir apparent to power-hitting Mickey Wright's title of queen of golf.

Miss Mann, winning her second tournament in as many weeks, beat Kathy Cornelius by two strokes Sunday to take the National Women's Open Golf championship.

★ ★ ★

The former University of North Carolina coed fired an even par 72 on the final round of the four-day tournament for a 290 total, which brought her $4,000 and made her the second leading money winner on the women's tour.

"I've never been under so much pressure in my life," she said. "I found out that Kathy was three under after I finished the 11th and knew I had to get some pars to keep my one stroke lead.

WANTED BIRDIE

"My throat was dry. I couldn't talk and I was smoking two cigarettes at each hole. I prayed for a birdie — I finally got it on the 18th."

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Cornelius, a 32-year-old Rancho Sante Fe, Calif., housewife who led through the first two rounds, rallied with a 69 for 292, finishing a few moments before Miss Mann.

The 24-year-old Miss Mann, who escaped from trouble on the 16th and 17th holes, broke into tears after she sank a four-foot putt for a birdie on 18.

★ ★ ★

Winning the Open after topping the field in the Lady Carling in Baltimore last week, Miss Mann appeared a top contender for the throne now belonging to Miss Wright, who withdrew from the Open Wednesday because of an injured left hand.

Ex-Fat Man Casper Grabs Western Title

CHICAGO (AP) — Buffalo Billy Casper charged across the plains of Tam O'Shanter with a closing 64 Sunday to win the Western Open Golf Championship with a four-round total of 270, 14 under par.

The 34-year-old former fat man who prefers such delicacies as Buffalo steaks, venison and pheasant, shot a seven-under-par 30-34 in the final round to win first money of $11,000.

Casper's first nine 30—six under par—included an eagle two and five birdies and enabled him to sit in the clubhouse and watch defending champion Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez and Jack McGowan finish two strokes behind in a tie for second place.

Rodriguez finished with a 68 for 272. McGowan, the third round leader with Al Geiberger, had 68 for 272. Geiberger blew to a 73 — 277 and tied for eighth.

DROVE GREEN

Casper, whose eagle came on the 305-yard No. 5-where he drove and then dropped an eight-foot putt-licked his weight problem through an allergist.

After learning through tests that he is allergic to certain meats, fruits and vegetables Casper dropped from 220 pounds last August and reached his 180 level in April.

Cardinals Not So Bad Off

By The Associated Press

Remember the St. Louis Cardinals?

World champions last year, St. Louis has been bogged down in the second division this season virtually overlooked in the battle for the National League pennant.

★ ★ ★

But suddenly the Cardinals have started to push forward, extending their winning streak to five games with a 6-2 victory over the New York Mets Sunday and projecting themselves back into the pennant picture.

Still under .500 with a 38-41 record, the Cardinals nevertheless are better off this year than they were at the July 4 break last season. They're currently in seventh place, eight games off the pace. Last year at this stage they were 10 games out with an almost identical 38-40 record.

While the Cardinals were moving up, the Houston Astros' trimmed Los Angeles' lead to one game over Cincinnati by beating the first-place Dodgers 3-1 while the Reds were advancing with a 4-1 victory over Philadelphia.

Elsewhere, San Francisco closed to within 3½ games off the top by belting the Chicago Cubs 7-4 and Milwaukee snapped a four-game losing streak by downing Pittsburgh 5-2.

★ ★ ★

Tim McCarver, who has hit at a .349 clip for the Cardinals the past month, led the attack against the Mets with four singles and helped load the bases in the second inning as St. Louis struck for three runs against Galen Cisco.

Jerry Buchek, who later homered, singled across the first run, pitcher Bob Purkey squeezed another home and Dick Groat wrapped up the rally with a run-scoring single. Purkey, tagged for a homer by Johnny Lewis, got the victory for a 6-6 record.

DODGERS CHECKED

Claude Raymond, 5-3, checked the Dodgers on six hits, allowing a first inning run on a single by Willie Davis and Ron Fairly's double, then pitching shut out ball the rest of the way.

Raymond walked and scored the first Astro run in the third on Joe Gaines' double. Houston then moved ahead to stay in the fourth against Claude Osteen, 6-10, when Walt Bond reached base on Jim Gilliam's error and came around on Bob Aspromonte's single and an infield out.

Joe Nuxhall stifled the Phillies on five hits while Tommy Harper hit a two-run homer and Pete Rose slammed a two-run double, accounting for all the Reds' runs.

Nuxhall, recording his first complete game of the season, struck out nine and boosted his record to 3-2. The loss was tagged on Bo Belinsky, his fifth against three victories.

Jesus Alou and Jim Hart provided the key hits for the Giants, Alou with two triples and a pair of singles and Hart with a homer and double. The two combined to snap a 4-4 tie in the seventh inning. Alou lashing his second triple after Hart connected for a two-out double.

MOVES AROUND

Willie Mays, bothered by a groin injury, started the game in left field — the first time in his major league career he has started a game anywhere except center field.

Funnyman Foyt Posts Easy Win in Stock Race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A. J. Foyt, leading by a lap in the Firecracker 400 stock car race, pulled into the pits Sunday 15 laps from the finish for an unscheduled stop that panicked his mechanics.

An instant later, his 1965 Ford was back on the track, and went on to win the $58,000 race for the second consecutive year.

"I just went in joking with the crew," the husky Texan explained his last pit stop.

"I was just cutting up with them. I asked if everything was all right. They told me to get going."

No Cardinals or Yanks to Start for All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Series winners and losers of 1964 can hold an oldtimers reunion while the All-Star Game is played. Not a single St. Louis Cardinal or New York Yankee was named to start in the July 13 game at Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Of course, there will be world champion Cards and Yanks on the list when the managers name the pitchers and the reserves to fill out the 25-man squads later in the week. But unless Gene Mauch picks a Card pitcher or Al Lopez names a Yankee starter, the Series heroes will be dugout or home TV spectators.

* * *

Willie Mays of San Francisco and Joe Torre of Milwaukee were the only repeaters from 1964 who were voted to the National League team by the players, coaches and managers. Brooks Robinson, Baltimore third baseman, was the only American League repeater.

The National League's 7-4 victory on Johnny Callison's three-run homer in the ninth at Shea Stadium last year evened the long series for the first time. Each team has won 17 with one tie. The National, outdistanced in the early days of the competition, has won six of the last eight games, with 1961 game at Boston ending in a tie.

WON EASILY

Mays, a hardy perennial in center field, easily won a berth for the 12th time with 250 votes to 17 for Vada Pinson of Cincinnati. Actually, Willie got all but five of the potential ballots because players on the Giants, or any other club, were not permitted to vote for teammates.

Torre also won in a breeze, missing on only nine ballots. With the help of Torre's Milwaukee mates, second place Johnny Edwards of Cincinnati finished second with a final score of 246-24.

* * *

Ernie Banks, the Chicago Cubs' slugging veteran, was an easy winner in the first base competition 164-33 over Cincinnati's Gordy Coleman. Pete Rose of Cincinnati edged Frank Bolling, Milwaukee veteran, for second base, 110-100 in the closest competition. Maury Wills of Los Angeles won over Cincinnati's Leo Cardenas for shortstop 141-87 and Richie Allen of the Phillies took third base over Ron Santo of Chicago 137-85.

Left field went to Willie Stargell, Pittsburgh's home run hitter, by a 194-61 margin over the Cubs' Billy Williams and Hank Aaron of Milwaukee piled up a 204-28 landslide margin over Callison of the Phils for right field.

CASUALTY LIST

Among the missing were Ken Boyer, St. Louis third baseman who was the league's most valuable player last year, and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, the 1964 batting champ.

The 1964 National League team had Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco at first, Ron Hunt of New York at second, Dick Groat of St. Louis at short and Boyer at third. Williams was the left fielder with Mays in center and Clemente in right.

U.S. Pins Hopes Against Russians on Youth, Vets

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The AAU women's track and field squad that will represent the United States in Russia, Poland and West Germany this summer blends youth with experience.

Several high school girls are on the 18-member team selected by the Amateur Athletic Union on the basis of performances in last weekend's national AAU outdoor meet.

But there also are plenty of veteran international competitors, although some are still teen-agers. They range from 15-year-old Marie Mulder of Sacramento, Calif., the 880-yard and 1-500-meter champion, to 27-year-old Sandra Knott, Cleveland nurse who last-lap rallies almost overtook Marie in both distance runs.

In field events, at one extreme there is a 17-year-old high school entry, Lynn Graham of Los Angeles, in the shot put and discus and at the other there is long jumper Willye White of Chicago, 25, and an Olympic performer as far back as 1956.

State Golfer 32nd

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) —Sharon Miller of Battle Creek, Mich., finished in a tie for 32nd place in the 1965 Women's Open Golf Championship with a four-round total of 315.

Sam Snead Keeps Seniors' Golf Title

FORMBY, England (AP) — Sammy Snead is still the World Senior Golf champion today but he needed a conveniently located spectator to retain his title.

Snead, 53, defeated Britain's Charlie Ward 1-up for the Senior crown Sunday in a match that went 37 holes — the first overtime in the 11-year history of the Seniors.

On the 427-yard par four first hole — 37th of the match — Ward got stuck in the rough and needed three strokes to reach the side of the green. Snead's second shot on the playoff hole headed straight for a bunker but hit a a spectator and took a good bounce for the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., pro, leaving him with an easy chip for his four and the victory.

Golf Figures Die in Blaze

SOUTHGATE (AP)—A Florida golf professional and his host died in a fire at the home of the latter Sunday. Firemen said both suffocated while asleep.

Dead on arrival at Wyandotte General Hospital in nearby Wyandotte were James Sullivan, 55, golf pro of Miami Shores, Fla., and John Orlick, 48, Southgate golf range operator.

Firemen said the blaze apparently started from a cigarette butt left in the living room.

U.S. Crews' Hopes Drubbed on Thames

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP) — Once again the high hopes of America's best crews have been laid low on the quiet waters of the gentle River Thames.

Olympic champions Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia and the vaunted Harvard University eight both were shattered on an old, narrow course where ducks cruise beside the banks.

* * *

Vesper knocked out Harvard when the two met in a heat at the Henley Royal regatta.

Then, Saturday, eight giant Germans crushed Vesper in the final of the regatta's top contest, the Grand Challenge Cup. They were European champions Fatzeburger Ruderclub of West Germany.

RECORD SET

The 6:23 record for the one mile and 550-yard course of only two lanes went flying in the process. Vesper passed the mark set by Russia last year and finished in 6:18 in its victory over Harvard, who also clipped three seconds off the Soviet time. The Germans did it in 6:16.

* * *

Almost unnoticed, nine more records tumbled during the four days, and Americans captured three trophies.

A 6-foot-2 physics student at Columbia, Don Spero of New York Athletic Club, won the Diamond Sculls in a record 7:42.

Melvindale, Hazel Park Drivers Post Auto Wins

DETROIT (UPI) — Danny Bird of Melvindale and Wayne Bennett of Hazel Park each won 50 mile stock car races at the State Fairgrounds Sunday.

* * *

Bird, driving a 1961 Ford, won the first race in 43 minutes. Second in that contest was Bennett, in a 1958 Ford, while Jim Ruttman of Dearborn was third and Joy Fair of Pontiac was fourth.

Detroit Tiger hitters have won 20 batting crowns, more than any club.

Several Techniques Help Slow Starter

By Leslie J. Nason, Ed. D.

If the teacher could press a button that would start every pupil learning on the first day of school there would be no slow starters.

Unfortunately, there are children in every class who spend the first few days thinking about swimming, vacation trips and all the wonderful things they did during the summer. They are a long way from being ready to start learning!

Learning is an active thing —not passive. The student who enters school with the attitude, "Here I am, now teach me," and leaves the rest up to the teacher is automatically a slow starter.

Teachers are aware of this problem and through special effort gain the attention of the majority of their students in the first day or two. In every school-room, however, there are pupils who have formed persistent slow-starting habits.

For example, when the teacher directs the class to copy material from the blackboard those who start promptly may have half the work copied before the habitual slow starter makes the first mark on his paper.

Mr. B, an instructor in mechanical drawing, used this device to help the slow starters break their habit: He had everyone in the room sketch a series of drawings on scratch paper. Each drawing could be completed in one to three minutes. He insisted upon prompt beginnings; thus, in the course of the class period, 20 or 30 starts were made.

After a full class period of practice he held prompt starting drills for the first five minutes of each class period for three weeks. By then, every student was ready to start work promptly as a matter of routine.

At the beginning of school, boys especially are slow to start written assignments. During summer vacation they have been using large muscles in strenuous exercises, such as rowing, hiking, swimming and sandlot baseball. Their writing muscles have been neglected.

★

Parents can give them a head start in school by following a plan patterned after that of Mr. B, using short sentences instead of sketches. This combination of handwriting practice and prompt starting drills will prepare them to start written assignments without delay.

CHILD'S RESPONSIBILITY

Parents can help children realize that it is their responsibility to learn. One father used this scheme: He said, "John, last year it took you six weeks to get started in school; this year you will start two weeks before school opens so that you will be ready to begin learning the first day with the rest of your class. Get a copy of at least one textbook you are going to use and start studying."

★ ★ ★

John obtained a copy of a physiology text from a library. He studied the table of contents so that he could report to his father the general ideas of what he was to learn in the course.

Then, at his father's insistence, he studied the introduction and first chapter of the text, being careful not only to learn the meaning of new words but to practice their pronunciation and correct spelling.

John entered his classes as a self-starter instead of a slow starter.

By JACOBY & SON

The Gerber convention, invented by John Gerber of Houston, Texas, uses four clubs as a demand that partner show aces in accordance with this formula

JACOBY

Four diamonds — no aces or four.

Four hearts—one ace.

Four spades —two aces.

Four no-trump—three aces.

The convention has never reached general popularity because there are too many natural uses for a four club bid, but every expert keeps it in his bidding kit and uses it when it is obvious.

One place it is obvious is the immediate four club response to an opening no-trump so that North's four no-trump call with today's hand was a strong no-trump raise.

North and South were playing a 15-17 point no - trump so that when North added his 16 points to his partner's maximum and minimum he reached a 31-33 point total.

With the maximum 17 South went right to the slam and West opened the jack of spades.

South won in his own hand and laid down the ace of clubs only to get the bad news about that suit. He continued with the jack and let East take his queen. East led back a spade and South could only count 11 sure tricks. You readers can see that the jack of hearts is guarded in back of the king-ten but South had no trouble making the rest of the tricks anyway.

He simply ran off dummy's two remaining clubs and discarded a diamond from his own hand. Then he cashed the last high spade and West was squeezed in hearts and diamonds and had to unguard either the diamond queen or the heart jack.

Yemen Has Complex Caste Plan

SANAA, Yemen (AP) — Yemen has a caste system which makes India's look downright simple. A man's social status is determined not only by his tribal origins — some tribes being more warlike and noble than others — but by his occupation.

* * *

The most respected job in this remote country is that of shepherd, because Yemenis have a vague, if mistaken, belief that most of the prophets, like Mohammed and Moses, were shepherds.

The second is farming. Warriors, of which there are many in this rough and ready country, follow next in social esteem.

A barber, greengrocer, water carrier or blacksmith, on the other hand, is considered to be very low on the social ladder.

* * *

In the mountain tribes of the north, the system is so rigidly observed that the female members of a tribe are not allowed to marry butchers, barbers or others of similar castes.

TRIBE KILLS HIM

If a tribesman marries a greengrocer's daughter, for instance, the tribe kills him. His son, brother or father is the one usually selected to avenge the tribe's "honor."

* * *

Those whose jobs are considered lowly are so despised that even their teeth are believed to be inferior.

Most men who occupy these jobs are descendants of slaves or are of non-Arab origin.

Crowd Attacks India Students

Louisiana Capitol Scene of Beatings

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Four dark-skinned students from India were attacked Sunday by a crowd at a "We, the White People" rally as they toured the Capitol.

Two of the Indians were beaten. Police Chief David Kyser said that although all four wore the distinctive turbans of their homeland, the crowd mistook them for Negroes.

* * *

Seven Louisiana State University white students who attended the rally on the Capitol lawn to pass out critical leaflets were roughed up.

* * *

The Indians, also LSU students, were being conducted on an official tour of the Capitol when they were attacked. They fled down a side street. One was treated at a hospital for a laceration.

NO ARRESTS

No arrests were made. The Indians had paused to listen to a speech by former Army Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker of Dallas when they were set upon.

Identities of the four were withheld.

* * *

The rally, held in front of the 34-story Capitol, drew from 4,500 to 6,500 persons, by police estimate. They waved Confederate flags, wore rebel hats, held placards criticizing President Johnson and Gov. John J. McKeithen, and stood through about three hours of oratory.

* * *

Walker told the crowd that President Johnson has, in effect, a segregationist policy because "Negroes are becoming wards of the state and it's just an out-and-out segregation program."

BLAST REPORT

The Warren Committee report on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy was false propaganda, Walker added.

Of the seven white students, one—Bill Green—was treated at a hospital for lacerations of the face. He said he was clubbed with an umbrella.

* * *

The seven said they had asked for police protection and were told there were not sufficient officers present for the job and that they had better leave.

* * *

Leaflets distributed by the students said Walker and colleagues had a record which "is a spotted catalogue of vitriolic and intemperate attacks."

* * *

Rally speakers included Judge John Rarick of Louisiana's 20th Judicial District. He called integration sacrilegious and blasphemous, "a tool of the Communist conspiracy."

Albanian Says Soviets Regard Aid as 'Alms'

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Abaz Laze, chief of an Albanian trade union delegation back in Tirana from a visit to Hanoi, says all the aid Moscow has given North Viet Nam consists of medicines, 200 bicycles and five accordions.

* * *

In a broadcast on the official radio of pro-Peking, anti-Moscow Albania, Laze added that the Russians "are the only great power chauvinists who regard aid as alms and not as their international duty."

'A Good Woman'

Tears, Toil at End

CLAIRTON, Pa. (UPI)—They were married 53 years, William and Rose Webb.

* * *

"She was the finest woman God ever made," Webb said softly as he talked to police. "She was a good woman."

Mrs. Webb, 74, contracted diabetes about 10 years ago. Her condition became increasingly worse in the past four years and her mind was slipping away. Nor could she control her body functions.

A hearing was to have been held Wednesday to declare her incompetent as the first step toward commitment to an institution.

* * *

"They couldn't give her the care she deserved," said Webb, who is 82.

* * *

The Webbs had been living recently with a daughter, Mrs. Iva Dinkle, and her family.

Mrs. Dinkle, her husband, Harry, and their children went shopping Saturday night. When they returned home, Webb met them at the front door and said:

"Don't let the children go into the bathroom. I don't want them to see her like that."

* * *

The toil and the tears had taken their toll. Webb was bathing his wife as usual. Suddenly, he eased her head under the water and held it there. To make certain she was dead, he placed a towel around her mouth.

"This was the only way out," he murmured.

Detectives said Webb will be charged with murder.

River Holiday Reaches End for Kennedys

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy finished a river-running holiday along the Utah-Colorado border Sunday with a kayak sprint through rapids on the Green River.

"He looked magnificent," said Denver University's ski coach, Willie Schaeffler, who lent the senator the 15-foot kayak.

* * *

Five of his children and Mrs. Kennedy watched from three rubber rafts as they shot School Boy Rapid, just six miles from where their three-day, 83-mile journey ended at Donosaur Quarry near Donosaur National Monument in eastern Utah.

* * *

Bobby, 11, the senator's son, stepped ashore at the end of the trip and said, "I hope we go again."

Mrs. Kennedy called "too short" the trip through winding canyons with cliffs reaching as high as 2,000 feet above the water.

Mountain climber James Whittaker, his wife and two of their children accompanied the Kennedys. Schaeffler joined the party, which included five of the nine Kennedy children and two of their friends, at the half-way point Saturday where the Yampa River flows into the Green.

He is an expert with a kayak and said the senator looked like a veteran and "gets the golden paddle" for the performance.

* * *

Toon said he thought the girls were in the camper and occasionally talked to them through a window. He discovered the daughters were missing and headed back.

He was met halfway by a sheriff's deputy and his daughters.

Scientist May Have Photo

Mystery Object Sighted in Sea

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP) — A marine scientist planning to explore the Gulf Stream's depths says he detected and may have photographed a fast-moving, unidentified object on the bottom of the warm-water stream that flows from the Florida Keys north to Newfoundland and thence to northern Europe.

* * *

Capt. L. Jacques Nicholas, project coordinator, said Dr. Dmitri Rebikoff of Chicago conducted one-man submarine operations for 10 days gathering data at 90- to 100-foot depths for Dr. Jacques Piccard's projected cruise under the Gulf Stream.

Nicholas said Rebikoff told him:

"Beneath the various schools of fish moving at approximately the same speed as the stream (3½ knots) there loomed a pear-shaped object.

'NO SIGNALS'

"At first from its size we thought to be some form of shark. However its direction and speed were too constant. It may have been running on a robot pilot. We received no signal (from it) and therefore do not know what it was."

Efforts were made to take pictures. The film was not processed immediately.

* * *

Nicholas said Rebikoff told him he was aware the area was a frequent route of heavily instrumented Russian fishing and hydrographic vessels.

The "man-in-ocean space" program of Piccard and associates, headquartered at Fort Pierce, said Piccard has reported construction will start this week at Montaye, near Lausanne, Switzerland, on a five-man 31-foot submarine to explore the Gulf depths and the continental shelf.

Piccard said in April that one objective would be to see whether the Soviets have installations along the continental shelf.

Police Battle Rowdy Teens

14 Jailed, 3 Hurt in Detroit Suburb

SOUTHGATE (AP) — Three police officers were injured and 14 teen-agers were jailed early Sunday after police broke up a beer-and-watermelon rock 'n' roll party.

Some 40 policemen were ordered to the scene in a backyard in this Detroit suburb where about 80 youths had shown up.

* * *

The parents of the host, identified by police as Albert Scoble, 18, were away for the Fourth of July weekend.

Officers said the youths were warned twice late Saturday to quiet down. When police returned a third time, one youngster knocked a Southgate officer to the ground. Neighbors, who had complained earlier, phoned for reinforcements. The latter police came from several neighboring communities.

CUTS ON FACE

One officer suffered face cuts when his glasses were broken. Another's bridgework was smashed. A third officer suffered a broken nose.

One youth struck an officer on the head with a guitar, police said.

* * *

A neighbor, Mrs. Leo Boc, said the party started around 9 p.m. and was pretty quiet at the start.

She added that later a three-man band came and "they were playing outdoors with a microphone. It was really noisy then. They were dancing and drinking beer and eating watermelon."

DRUMS SMASHED

A set of drums worth $500 was smashed in the later melee.

Police charged Gregory Kidd, 18, with aggravated assault. He pleaded innocent. Ten other teen-agers were arrested for disorderly conduct and three were turned over to their parents.

* * *

Young Scobie was one of seven pleading guilty before Municipal Judge Jerry D'Avanzo and who were fined $50 or five days in jail.

Police said Scobie's parents, contacted in Houghton Lake, a resort area in northern Lower Michigan, told them to leave their son in jail.

'Poor Fish' in Trout Ponds

BRYSON CITY, N. C. (AP)—A trout pond manager knows that bad luck—like lightning—can strike twice in the same place.

A year ago a flash flood swept several thousand rainbow trout out of L. C. Barnes' ponds into nearby Fontana Lake.

Barnes rebuilt the ponds.

This week a tank truck loaded with acid overturned on a highway a quarter of a mile from the ponds. The spilled acid ran into a small stream and on to the ponds.

* * *

Barnes said he lost 18,000 trout. Wildlife officials said he may not be able to use the ponds again for five years.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY OF ROSE V. Donaldson, who passed away July 10, 1962.
The death of sorrow we cannot tell.
Of the loss of one we loved so well;
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep.
Sadly missed by her family.

Theft Force Police to Start 'Key' Club

WESTFIELD, Mass. (AP) — It is like the prince looking for Cinderella and trying to fit glass slippers on 200 feet.

Police have more than 200 keys to try to fit in their proper locks — in homes, stores, schools and public buildings.

Police say three boys stole the keys, then used them to steal cars and merchandise from the buildings. The boys were brought before Juvenile Court.

Roberta Shore Quits 'Virginian'

Religion Key to Actress' Move

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Why would an actress give up a costarring role in a television series to become a housewife?

"Because my religion has taught me that being a wife and mother is a more important role," explains Roberta Shore, cast member of NBC's 90-minute Western, "The Virginian."

THOMAS

Because of her beliefs, Roberta is doing her last season in "The Virginian," although the series, which also stars Lee J. Cobb, James Drury, Doug McClure and Randy Boone, has been renewed for next year.

* * *

In fact, Roberta has been absent from the show since her marriage last Dec. 19 to Kent K. Christensen, a student at Brigham Young University.

Miss Shore is 20. Her husband's age is unavailable.

MARRIED OFF

"I'll be back next month," she said via telephone from her apartment near the campus at Provo, Utah. "I'll shoot a couple of shows, including one in which I'll be married off, to explain why I'll be gone from the show."

Roberta is quitting a job that might have assured her a healthy salary for years to come, plus an ascending career as an actress. Her decision is more remarkable when you consider her early start in acting; child performers seldom quit show business, at least not voluntarily.

"I started when I was 8," Roberta remarked. "I wasn't pushed by my parents; acting was simply something I enjoyed."

Born in suburban Monterey Park, she began performing on a Los Angeles television show, later joined the Pinky Lee show as dancer and singer. At 14 she was making her dramatic debut with Jane Wyman on a "Fireside Theater," and she continued with appearances on "Playhouse 90", "Studio One," "father knows Best" and other shows. Her films included "The Shaggy Dog," "The Young Savages" and "Blue Denim."

HIGH PROMISE

A contract with Revue Productions led to her casting in "The Virginian," and she seemed headed for a career of high promise. Then she met Kent Christensen. He was here on a two-year missionary assignment for the Mormon Church, of which she is also a member.

After he returned to college at B.Y.U., their romance continued by letters, phone calls and occasional visits. They were married here and returned to Provo together.

"Kent wanted a wife, not an actress," she said, "and that was the role I wanted. I went in and told the studio people my decision. They were very nice about it — I think they were more stunned than upset.

"I've been going to the university myself, and I've enjoyed that; I never was able to go beyond high school because I was working. My husband will be going to graduate school at Harvard for two years, and I plan to go to school back there, too."

Communists Linked With Power Grab

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Officials report a document found in the Darjeeling border area discloses pro-Peking Communists of West Bengal State are plotting to seize power. They said it calls for setting up cells for guerrilla training, acquirement of arms and preparation to overthrow the ruling Congress party in the state by "active war."

* * *

More than 200 pro-Peking Bengalis are in jail off charges of subversion.

A 'Dry' Convention

TORONTO (AP) — Toronto at last has a convention without hangovers — the 10,000 or so members and spouses attending the international conference of Alcoholics Anonymous. One speaker reported a local tavern has a sign welcoming AA delegates.

Soviet Births on Downtrend?

Russians Concerned, U.S. Report Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet birth rate is declining—and one reason is the high proportion of working mothers.

This conclusion is among the "Current Economic Indicators for the U.S.S.R.", compiled for the Senate - House Economic Committee by its staff and published recently.

Under the heading "Family Versus Work," the book-length study reports that the Soviet government "has become increasingly concerned about the heavy burden of housework borne by working wives and mothers."

The burden in increased, the study said, by the relative scarcity, not only of such household aids as vacuum cleaners and washing machines, but of such things as hot or even running water and of refrigeration that makes infrequent food shopping possible.

* * *

"Heavy household burdens, combined with the demands of a career, cause many professional women to have only one, or at most, two children," the study said. "There seems little doubt that one of the unintended effects of the high proportion of married women working in the Soviet Union is a reduced birth rate."

ANOTHER FACTOR

Another factor contributing to a 21 per cent decline in the birth rate since the early 1950s, the study said, is the relatively small number of women reaching childbearing age, because of low birth rates during World War II.

The study said the college age population has been declining and the group of primary school age is expected to decline during the 1970s. (Over-all projections of the Soviet population, now about 229 million, are for 245 million to 261 million by 1975 and 259 million to 299 million by 1985.

* * *

As for the status of women, the study said they make up about 52 per cent of all professionals, including a majority of physicians and 31 per cent of engineers.

LOWER RATIO

However, the proportion of women in the highest professional posts is much smaller — 5 per cent to 12 per cent in some categories — suggesting that most women get stuck at intermediate grades in their careers.

The Soviet government continues to favor military programs and agriculture in its allocation of capital resources, the study said.

Latin Programs Being Readied

MIDLAND (UPI) — Latin American instructors are hitting the books at Northwood Institute this summer, preparing to help kick off specialized business education programs in their home countries this fall.

Northwood Vice President Gary Stauffer said Peruvian and Ecuadorian instructors trained in Midland this summer will assist Northwood professors in setting up extension centers in Lima and Quito to drill nationals in much-needed specialized business skills.

The 6-year-old institute is a private, unaffiliated college offering background in the arts and sciences as well as specialized programs designed to meet the needs of the business community.

According to Stauffer, success with domestic programs in advertising, automotive marketing, banking and retailing has prompted business leaders to urge Northwood to attempt the same approach on an international scale.

★ ★ ★

The programs, developed in cooperation with business groups throughout Michigan, are "aimed at making the student as productive as possible when he begins employment," and at "eliminating some of the time spent in management training of new employes," Stauffer said.

50 STUDENTS

The Lima program, which begins Sept. 27, and the Quito center, which opens Oct. 11, will each enroll about 50 students who have had little formal higher education, but who could hold down better jobs with Latin American firms if they had technical training.

The 50-student figure is what Stauffer called "a conservative estimate." He claimed Latin American officials working to set up the program expect enrollment to grow rapidly to about 200 at each center.

The North American instructors, one at each center, will speak both Spanish and English, but the Midland-trained Latin American instructors will help conduct classes on a bilingual basis.

★ ★ ★

The new centers have sparked the interest of the international business community, and Stauffer said what was planned as a Latin American program will involve students from Germany, Italy, and Belgium as well as Peru and Ecuador.

Several other Latin American countries have requested Northwood extension centers, but Stauffer said the institute will wait to judge results of the first two before setting up any more. "We feel it's best to learn how to walk before we try to run," he said.

Cafe Entertainer Takes a Record-Breaking Dive

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — In New York, where everything happens, we have had an unusual Show Business situation wherein John Gary, a professional diver who holds the world's endurance record in fresh water (78 hours, 45 minutes), has also been breaking records for the crowds he's drawn at the Plaza Persian Room where he's shown himself a tremendous ballad singer.

WILSON

He has, in fact, pulled off what's become known as "the hat trick."

"The hat trick" is a hockey expression meaning to make three goals, but the term's also getting known in the night club world.

"If you play the Palmer House in Chicago, the Persian Room at the Plaza in New York, and the Cocoanut Grove at the Ambassador in Los Angeles, in the same season, you've pulled off the hat trick," so Gary explained to me.

Gary's accomplishing it this year . . . quite astonishing when you consider that he's been a professional salvage diver who probably could have endured under water for 100 hours—as was his intention—but for an electrical storm which made him fear he might be electrocuted under water.

"What a way to die!" he says. "In those three days under water I lost 14 pounds."

★ ★ ★

Gary, who's from Binghamton, N.Y., but got to New Orleans, then to Chicago and Indianapolis, kept saying he could easily better the world's underwater fresh-water record—and one day somebody said:

"Why don't you do it then?"

He was in Indianapolis, having been singing in a club, and he decided to try it—making the boast that he'd stay 100 hours.

Some Air Forcers took tests and kept charts.

★ ★ ★

"Even though I broke the record, some of the papers thought I'd failed because I didn't stay the 100 hours," he said.

★ ★ ★

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "What do you think of nudity in the movies?" they asked Les Crane on ABC-TV. "I'm against it," he said. "I feel more comfortable when fully dressed."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: We heard it in Glasgow. A Scot asked a cable office for the rates. "A shilling a word and your signature counts only one word," he was told.

He then handed in this cable:

Cross-Burning Blamed on Youthful Pranksters

DEARBORN HEIGHTS (UPI) — Police today blamed youthful pranksters for another cross-burning in this Detroit suburb.

Authorities said a crude cross made of a piece of wood and a chunk of plastic was found on the lawn of a Dearborn Heights home yesterday.

DRY SPELL — Fire hydrants, long a child's best friend during hot summer days when they were opened to gush cool water over hot pavements, have a new look in New York this summer. New locking devices prevent unauthorized persons from opening them and wasting water during the East's increasingly critical drought.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Human Error in Driving Spurs Safety Unit Program

CHICAGO (UPI) — In these days of high-powered cars and crowded highways, it's still the human error that causes most traffic accidents.

The causes may vary slightly from town to country and from multi-fatal tragedies to fender-benders, but nine out of 10 times, according to the National Safety Council, some kind of improper driving is involved in an accident.

Speed and failure to yield right of way are the two big mistakes. Mechanical difficulties, and even drinking, are far, far down the list.

Because of this, the safety council has embarked on a vast "defensive driving" program it hopes will eventually reach all of the nation's 90 million drivers.

"It's sort of like a Red Cross life-saving course," Harry Porter Jr., manager of the safety council's traffic department, said.

DEFENSIVE POSITIONS

The safety council tries to teach drivers what "defensive positions" to take in six specific situations — when another vehicle is in front, when a vehicle is behind, when a vehicle is on the right, when a vehicle is on the left, when a vehicle is attempting to pass, and when they themselves are trying to pass.

So far, industry and other driver training programs have taken a big interest in the eight-hour course, Porter said.

"And anyone who takes the course can go out and teach others," he said.

★ ★ ★

The safety council's latest conclusions on why cars crack up is based on the 1964 traffic accident record. The council's urban reports came from 213 cities. Twenty-three states offered figures for rural accidents.

In urban areas, the safety council said, failure to yield was the main kind of improper driving. Following too closely and speed ranked second and third.

In rural areas, speed was the principal cause of accidents. Failure to yield followed.

In fatal accidents, speed, driving in the wrong lane, and failure to yield were the main causes of improper driving. In injury accidents, speed, failure to yield and following too closely, in order, were most to blame.

Over all, failure to yield, speed and following too closely were the 1-2-3 contributing circumstances.

In only one accident in 13 was drinking a contributing factor. And in only one accident in 50 were bad brakes or bad lights a factor.

Even though impersonal factors rank behind the human elements in the statistics, the safety council is not ignoring them.

"Cars must be in good condition these days," Porter said. "We're traveling faster and greater distances."

Porter said that cars nowa days are built better and with such safety features as four-wheel brakes, seat belts, and windshield washers. There are automatic chokes and lights, and power brakes and steering.

ONE QUESTION

"But the question is whether these safety features are being added as quickly as the increase in drivers' speed and traveling distance," Porter said.

Some experts have questioned the wisdom of building high-powered cars that will go 120 miles an hour. However, Porter said he felt extra horsepower is an asset, because it permits drivers to pass more quickly and is needed for the additional equipment.

"It can be misused," Porter said.

The safety council also is taking another look at the matter of drinking and accidents.

HOW REALISTIC?

"We used to say, 'If you drink, don't drive'," Porter said, "but now we're asking ourselves how realistic this is.

"We're asking ourselves, 'Will one drink hurt your driving?'" Porter said. "We don't know."

"Would it be better to say, 'Drink, if you wish, but wait before driving'?"

In its figures on accidents, the safety council used the phrase "contributing circumstances" in stating its conclusions. It said these had replaced driver violations in standard reporting procedures.

U.S., S. Korea Agree on Status of Forces

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The United States and South Korea have agreed to sign a status-of-forces agreement in mid-July, informed government sources said today.

The two countries have been negotiating since 1960 to conclude an agreement to govern the status of about 60,000 American troops stationed in Korea.

Holiday Road Toll May Wind Up Worst Ever

State Count Stands at 18 for Weekend; Drownings Claim 8

By The Associated Press

Motorists by the millions streamed home today as what could be the most fatal Fourth of July holiday weekend drew to a close.

The Associated Press tabulated 385 traffic deaths since 6 p.m. local time Friday.

The national Safety Council said the count has been running about 10 to 15 per cent higher than the Memorial Day weekend when 490 persons died on the highways.

If the trend continues, the council added, this could be the worst Independence Day weekend in history—exceeding the 566 fatalities in 1963, a four-day holiday observance.

* * *

The council had predicted between 470 and 570 traffic deaths this weekend.

510 LOST LIVES

Last year, 510 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents over the Fourth of July. It was a three-day weekend like this one.

Eighteen persons have been killed on Michigan roads over the holiday weekend. In addition, at least eight persons have drowned in state waters.

The 78-hour holiday weekend period ends at midnight local time. The council estimates motorists will have driven a total of nine billion miles by then.

MAKE COMPARISON

A total of 435 deaths were reported on the nation's streets and highways over a corresponding 78-hour summer weekend period not involving a holiday.

The Associated Press, for its own comparison, made a count of traffic deaths for the non-holiday period from 6 p.m. Friday, June 18 through midnight Monday, June 21. The total was 383.

The current count includes a number of accidents resulting in multiple family deaths.

Four members of one family were killed in a three-car collision near Donalds, S.C.

TRAIN-CAR CRASH

Four members of another family, and two relatives, died near Sallisaw, Okla., when a freight train slammed into their car.

RIOT AFTERMATH — Officers lead away Thomas M. Fitzgerald, 21, of Fort Dodge, Ia., arrested in Arnolds Park, Iowa, yesterday a few hours after a predawn riot by an estimated 500 youths resulted in 60 arrests. He was fined $5 and $3 court costs on a charge of consuming liquor in a public place.

Mass Arrests Follow Brawls; Many Injured

Call National Guard in Ohio Disturbance; Iowa Units on Alert

By The Associated Press

Beer-drinking, carousing youths staged riots and disturbances in five resort towns in Ohio, Missouri, Iowa and New York this Fourth of July weekend, resulting in more than 700 arrests with heavy property damage and a number of minor injuries.

The youths, teen-agers and college students, battled officers with fists, bottles, fireworks and rocks.

At Geneva-on-the-Lake, Ohio, a second straight night of rioting was put down early today by local police before the arrival of National Guardsmen ordered out by Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Rhodes earlier sent the National Guard into Russells Point, in western Ohio.

At Arnolds Park, Iowa, the National Guard stood ready to move in at the request of local authorities.

* * *

Early yesterday at the north Iowa lakes resort, more than 500 beer-drinking youths rioted. At least 60 were arrested. A city ban was placed on the sale of alcohol beverages through this evening.

UNITS ALERTED

National Guard units were alerted in seven Iowa communities in case of renewed outbreaks.

Dickinson County Sheriff Bob Baker said officers found maps indicating the Arnolds Park riot "was completely planned."

It broke out as a mob gathered Saturday night when taverns began to close and shouted, "We want beer. We want booze."

Until they were dispersed with tear gas and fire hoses, Baker said, the youths "acted like a bunch of wild men."

BATTLE POLICE

At Rockaway Beach, Mo., an Ozark Mountain resort, thousands of beer-drinking youths battled officers and smashed windows. The serious rioting erupted just before midnight yesterday. A total of 175 youths were jailed. An estimated 8,000 youngsters jammed the resort.

Police said the rioting was touched off when they arrested three youths riding on a motorcycle. The crowd protested and began manhandling the officers.

Authorities said the youths brought cases of beer into town

ROBERT W. HODGE

Ex-County GOP Head Dead at 62

Former Oakland County Republican Chairman Robert W. Hodge died yesterday after a brief illness. He was 62.

Hodge, a prominent attorney and long term Lake Angelus official, lived at 650 Lake Angelus Shores.

Service will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow at All Saints Episcopal Church following cremation.

A native of Detroit, Hodge was a long-time resident of Oakland County, and practiced law in Pontiac and Royal Oak for 29 years.

* * *

He was a graduate of the University of Michigan Engineering School and the Detroit College of Law. He was a member of the Oakland County, State and United States Supreme Court Bar Associations.

CLERK 29 YEARS

Clerk of the Village of Lake Angelus for 29 years, Hodge had been president of the Oakland Citizens League and a trustee of Civic Research, Inc.

A member of the Gridiron Club of Pontiac, he was a member of the All Saints Church in Pontiac, and a former reserve officer of the Corps of Engineers.

During the war, he served with the Detroit Ordnance District of the War Department, purchasing tanks and other material.

Second B52 Attack Hits Viet Cong Area

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U. S. officials said that "about 25" B52 jet bombers from the Strategic Air Command took part in a raid today on Viet Cong positions. They came from Guam 2,200 miles away.

The raid was staggered, with three planes in each flight moving over the target at intervals of ten minutes, a spokesman said.

The attack on a big tract of jungle 35 miles northeast of Saigon began about 1 a.m. and continued intermittently until 5 a.m., he said.

The planes dropped about 500 tons of general purpose bombs into the jungle, the spokesman said, and the pilots, reportedly felt their bombing patterns had been good.

The spokesman said there were no reports of any of the big planes missing on the return flight to Guam.

* * *

He said it would be several days before authorities could assess the effect of the latest raid.

DIFFERENT AREA

No ground operation went into the jungle after the raid, and the spokesman said he did not know if any such operation was planned.

The spokesman said the area hit by B52s today was not the same one hit by B52s June 18.

However, both the June 18 raid and today's raid were in a large, jungled area northeast of Saigon known as "D Zone."

20 Hurt in Aerial Bomb Burst

DETROIT (UPI) — An aerial bomb came down at a fireworks display last night on the grounds of a Roman Catholic school and exploded, injuring 20 persons.

Police said Edward Kaplan, 16, Detroit, took the bomb from the lap of his girl friend, Frances Bigman, 17, Detroit, and tried to get it away from the crowd when it exploded, nearly blowing off parts of his left hand.

Five other persons were injured in nearby Redford Township in another fireworks explosion in the pit area used to shoot aerial bombs skyward.

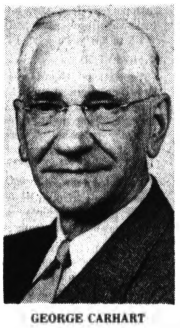

Thomas Demski, 39, a professional fireworks exhibitor, was seriously burned over most of his body in the pit accident when a rocket launching mechanism exploded next to him.

Police said the explosion also injured Demski's 17-year-old son Thomas, and three young girls who were near the roped off pit area.

Nearly 3,000 persons had gathered to witness the fireworks display sponsored by the Dad's Club of the Precious Blood Roman Catholic Church. About 18 persons in the crowd received minor injuries from the explosion.

Kaplan, police said, started to run with the aerial bomb in an attempt to get it away

PORFIRIO RUBIROSA

Noted Playboy Dies in Crash

Car Careens Into Tree After Hitting Auto

PARIS (AP)—Porfirio Rubirosa, former Dominican diplomat and international playboy, was fatally injured this morning in an automobile accident.

* * *

Police said Rubirosa died while being taken to a hospital. The accident occurred in the famed Bois de Boulogne on the western edge of Paris.

Police reported that the Ferrari automobile he was driving left the road and crashed into a tree after colliding with another car.

MARRIAGES

Rubirosa was the former husband of Flor de oro Trujillo, daughter of the assassinated President Trujillo; Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton; Doris Duke and French actress Danielle Darrieux.

Rubirosa married Odile Rodin Oct. 27, 1956. They made their home outside Paris.

* * *

Rubirosa, 56, was the second international playboy to die in a Paris automobile accident. On May 14, 1960, Prince Aly Khan, a close friend of Rubirosa, was killed in an automobile collision not far from the Bois de Boulogne.

Calls Luci's Rebaptism 'Sacrilegious'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike has described Luci Johnson's rebaptism as a Roman Catholic as "sacrilegious" and a "direct slap" at the Episcopal Church.

Bishop Pike's statements, made from his Grace Cathedral pulpit in San Francisco yesterday, drew no comment from the White House or Catholic diocesan spokesmen in Washington, D.C.

Bishop Pike, in his sermon, asked for apologies from the President's younger daughter and the Rev. James A. Montgomery, who rebaptized her in the Catholic faith Friday on her 18th birthday.

Pike said both the Episcopal and Catholic churches teach that baptism is "an unrepeatable sacrament."

He said Miss Johnson was baptized in the Episcopal Church as an infant.

Holiday Windup Will Be Partly Cloudy, Pleasant

The weatherman may celebrate the holiday with a thunderbolt or two today, but mostly skies will be partly cloudy with pleasant temperatures expected.

A low of 47 to 56 is forecast for tonight, following today's high of 73 to 80. Skies this evening will be fair.

Tomorrow mostly sunny weather is scheduled with a high in the 70s.

Drownings Top '64 Rate

County Road Toll Is Down

Traffic fatalities in Oakland County at the close of the first six months of this year were running 13 per cent below 1964.

Drownings, however, are occurring at a rate 50 per cent above 1964.

Unofficial figures indicate that 78 persons died in motor vehicle accidents from Jan. 1 through June 30.

Last year during the same six months, 90 persons lost their lives.

* * *

The month with the highest death total thus far in 1965 is March, with 23 deaths.

SAME NUMBER

The same number of lives were claimed during February of 1964.

The county's worst traffic accident in the first six months of the year occurred on Jan. 16 when four teen-agers died in a two car head-on collision in Birmingham.

Fifteen persons drowned during the first half of 1965; only 10 drowned during the same period last year.

* * *

In 1964 the county recorded its first water fatality on March 31. This year a drowning occurred on Jan. 25.

FREAK ACCIDENTS

Three persons have died in freak water accidents this year.

* * *

Drownings took place in a water hole or a golf course, an amusement ride at a park and in a mud hole on a road in West Bloomfield Township.

Killed on Drag Strip

UBLY (AP) — Leon Hamel, 26, of Detroit was killed Sunday while operating a so-called "rail dragster on the Ubly Dragway. Hamel's machine overshot the drag strip when the vehicle's braking parachute failed to open, police said.

Several Techniques Help Slow Starter

By Leslie J. Nason, Ed. D.

If the teacher could press a button that would start every pupil learning on the first day of school there would be no slow starters.

Unfortunately, there are children in every class who spend the first few days thinking about swimming, vacation trips and all the wonderful things they did during the summer. They are a long way from being ready to start learning!

Learning is an active thing —not passive. The student who enters school with the attitude, "Here I am, now teach me," and leaves the rest up to the teacher is automatically a slow starter.

Teachers are aware of this problem and through special effort gain the attention of the majority of their students in the first day or two. In every schoolroom, however, there are pupils who have formed persistent slow-starting habits.

For exampie, when the teacher directs the class to copy material from the blackboard those who start promptly may have half the work copied before the habitual slow starter makes the first mark on his paper.

Mr. B, an instructor in mechanical drawing, used this device to help the slow starters break their habit: He had everyone in the room sketch a series of drawings on scratch paper. Each drawing could be completed in one to three minutes. He insisted upon prompt beginnings; thus, in the course of the class period, 20 or 30 starts were made.

After a full class period of practice he held prompt starting drills for the first five minutes of each class period for three weeks. By then, every student was ready to start work promptly as a matter of routine.

At the beginning of school, boys especially are slow to start written assignments. During summer vacation they have been using large muscles in strenuous exercises, such as rowing, hiking, swimming and sandlot baseball. Their writing muscles have been neglected.

★ ★ ★

Parents can give them a head start in school by following a plan patterned after that of Mr. B, using short sentences instead of sketches. This combination of handwriting practice and prompt starting drills will prepare them to start written assignments without delay.

CHILD'S RESPONSIBILITY

Parents can help children realize that it is their responsibility to learn. One father used this scheme: He said, "John, last year it took you six weeks to get started in school; this year you will start two weeks before school opens so that you will be ready to begin learning the first day with the rest of your class. Get a copy of at least one textbook you are going to use and start studying."

★ ★ ★

John obtained a copy of a physiology text from a library. He studied the table of contents so that he could report to his father the general ideas of what he was to learn in the course.

Then, at his father's insistence, he studied the introduction and first chapter of the text, being careful not only to learn the meaning of new words but to practice their pronunciation and correct spelling.

John entered his classes as a self-starter instead of a slow starter.

Jacoby on Bridge

By JACOBY & SON

The Gerber convention, invented by John Gerber of Houston, Texas, uses four clubs as a demand that partner show aces in accordance with this formula:

JACOBY

Four diamonds — no aces or four.

Four hearts—one ace.

Four spades—two aces.

Four no-trump—three aces.

The convention has never reached general popularity because there are too many natural uses for a four club bid, but every expert keeps it in his bidding kit and uses it when it is obvious.

One place it is obvious is the immediate four club response to an opening no-trump so that North's four no-trump call with today's hand was a strong no-trump raise.

North and South were playing a 15-17 point no - trump so that when North added his 18 points to his partner's maximum and minimum he reached a 31-33 point total.

With the maximum 17 South went right to the slam and West opened the jack of spades.

South won in his own hand and laid down the ace of clubs only to get the bad news about that suit. He continued with the jack and let East take his queen. East led back a spade and South could only count 11 sure tricks. You readers can see that the jack of hearts is guarded in back of the king-ten but South had no trouble making the rest of the tricks anyway.

He simply ran off dummy's two remaining clubs and discarded a diamond from his own hand. Then he cashed the last high spade and West was squeezed in hearts and diamonds and had to unguard either the diamond queen or the heart jack.

CARD Sense

Q—The bidding has been:
