Sane Driving Keeps Highways Safe

Beware Point of No Escape

By HILBERT BLACK
NEA Service Writer

Before every traffic mishap there is a moment when the accident becomes unavoidable . . . the moment when the marked victims may become aware of impending danger — too late to do anything about it.

To police and safety experts who study the causes of highway and street slaughter this is known as "The Point of No Escape."

For Motorist A it was a day of sunshine and fishing, grass stains on trousers and hot dogs roasted over charcoal. A beautiful summer holiday.

Next year, he tells himself, he'll remember not to drive so far from home for the picnic. Now it is almost 6 p. m. and the roads are crowded with other homeward-bound merry-makers.

There's a heavy date ahead for Motorist B this holiday evening. He's tired after the all-afternoon ballgame. The fellows from the shop sure showed up the gang from the front office.

Now it is almost 6 p. m. His girl friend expects him to pick her up at 7:30, and she's the type who doesn't have to wait for anybody.

Motorist B has to shower and shave, and it's a good 20-minute ride to her house. C'mon traffic, let's get moving.

At exactly 6:05 p. m. Motorist A and Motorist B are both within 150 feet of the intersection, one coming from the east, the other from the south. They can't see each other because of the building at the corner.

If there is a stop sign or a traffic light, it will be ignored, because Motorist A is day-dreaming and Motorist B is thinking about his date. Both are driving a little too fast for road conditions.

Then each glimpses the other—but they have reached "The Point of No Escape."

There is a screeching of brakes and two children are hurled violently toward the front of the car. Metal meshes with metal. Two cars overturn, mangling five humans. For them there may never be another date, another picnic.

★ ★ ★

This year's Fourth of July provides for many another "long" weekend. It's a time that can be filled with fun and excitement.

Police hope that all those enjoying the holiday will make special efforts to steer clear of "The Point of No Escape."

Home Down Payments Slashed by Congress

Bill Now Awaits Final Approval of Eisenhower

Cuts Up to 50 Per Cent on U.S.-Insured Homes OK'd by Lawmakers

FROM OUR WIRE SERVICES

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower had under consideration today a compromise bill to permit sharp reductions in the minimum down payment on government-insured houses.

The bill, passed in the Senate Monday by voice vote, would provide $1,990,000,000 in new federal authority to help take up the slack in home-building.

The bill was considerably higher than the President's housing request of about one billion dollars this year, but represents a concession by liberal Democrats who were plugging for a much more vigorous program.

The measure would give the administration authority to reduce FHA down payments to three per cent on the first $10,000 evaluation; 15 per cent on the next $6,000 and 30 per cent above that figure. The present schedule calls for five per cent on the first $9,000 and 25 per cent above.

On cheaper homes, the down payment could be reduced by as much as 50 per cent.

REDUCED BY FHA

The FHA last fall reduced required down payments to the present minimums — 5 per cent on the first $9,000 of a house's appraised value, plus 25 per cent of the rest.

Despite overwhelming Senate approval of the final bill, Senator Clark (D-Pa) said he has grave reservations about going along with the compromise.

He said the bill has a "glaring defect" in that it failed to increase the present "completely inadequate" Government program for the construction of 35,000 public housing units each year.

The new bill would peg the minimum at 3 per cent of the first $10,000, 15 per cent of the next $6,000, and 30 per cent on the rest.

The bill also would authorize the use of 640 million dollars more than the $1,100,000,000 the Eisenhower Administration requested for mortgage financing aids and housing grants and loans.

Action Needed, Say Citizens

Support Police Survey

Five prominent Pontiac citizens favor an investigation of the current local police situation.

The Press yesterday in an editorial recommended the hiring of Donald S. Leonard, former State Police Commissioner, to perform such an investigation.

Several of those interviewed yesterday endorsed Leonard as an ideal choice, while others were non-committal on the selection of the investigator, while favoring such a study.

Some criticized the Civil Service act under which city policemen fell after voters approved a change last April.

They expressed, as did the Press editorial, that Chief Herbert W. Straley should have the power to hire and fire.

The local police situation has been brewing since the Pontiac Police Officers Assn. took steps to oust the chief from office based on alleged charges against him.

Fred V. Haggard, president of the Oakland County CIO Council said: "Since we see that there is dissention in the ranks, an investigation by an impartial person probably is the best answer."

"I'd leave the selection of the individual up to the City Commission. The quicker this investigation is performed and the facts brought out in the open, the better it will be for the whole city."

Alfred C. Girard, president of the Downtown Pontiac Assn. and Community National Bank, had this to say about the proposed investigation:

★ ★ ★

"I think an independent investigation is necessary so the facts in this matter can be known by everyone. And it will certainly help the city tremendously the sooner this is done."

★ ★ ★

"I concur with the recommendations of The Press one hundred per cent, but with one reservation," said Frank S. Lyndall, manager of Sears Roebuck & Co. here.

"I believe that the diplomacy of Chief Straley has improved with his tenure in office. I favor the suggestion too that Chief Straley should have the power to hire and fire."

"As to who should come in for this much-needed investigation," Lyndall continued, "I would say that Mr. Leonard is a very competent man in his field."

★ ★ ★

"I would endorse the suggestion wholeheartedly. It seems to me that such a study by Mr. Leonard is needed to look into what is going on in this dispute."

"Because of Mr. Leonard's past experience as police commissioner and similar investigations, I think he is well qualified to conduct the same here," Mrs. King said.

John W. Hirlinger, manager of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce, said: "The time will undoubtedly come when a man of Leonard's character should come in for this investigation.

"I question the timely nature of this because I hear that still no formal charges have been presented to the Civil Service Commission.

"But if this is going to be a continuous case of pot-shot shooting, there seems to be no other recourse. I too agree that the existing law leaves a great deal to be desired."

Police Striving for Safe Holiday

State, County Officers to Work Overtime on July 4th Weekend

As hundreds of thousands prepare to end their regular workweek tomorrow afternoon for a long carefree Independence Day weekend, law enforcement officials throughout the state and Oakland County will do just the opposite, doubling their efforts to make it a safe weekend.

An estimated 4,500 law enforcers will begin the four-day vigil on state highways at noon Wednesday. More than two thirds of the force will be made up of county sheriffs and their regular and special deputies.

In many cases detectives will man the desks permitting deputies to join the state highway force, which will also include about 1,000 state troopers and 300 national guardsmen.

In following the same program as for the four-day Memorial Day weekend, all State Police passes have been canceled from noon Wednesday to midnight Sunday.

Officers Elected by Oakland CIO

Fred Haggard Named Council President for Fifth Time

Elected to his fifth term as president of the Oakland County CIO Council last night was Fred V. Haggard of 6909 Terrell Rd., Drayton Plains.

Haggard, 53, and president since 1951, defeated William O. Medlock, officer of Fisher Body Local 596, UAW, by more than 14,000 votes. Medlock received 8,398 votes to Haggard's 22,680.

Haggard and eight other officers will serve out a "short term" until the proposed Dec. 5 merger of the CIO and AFL.

Elected as vice president was Matthew Hammond of Detroit Local 157, UAW Amalgamated. Bill Lindsey, former recording secretary of Pontiac Motor Local 653, UAW, was elected last evening to the same post with the council.

3 Americans Reach Semifinal Round

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Top-seeded Althea Gibson of New York defeated Sandra Reynolds of South Africa 6-3, 6-4 today to lead three American women into the semi-finals of the Wimbledon tennis championships.

Other U.S. winners were 21-year-old Darlene Hard of California, who upset Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, and Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode of Forest Hills, N. Y., who won over Rosa Maria Reyes of Mexico.

An all-American women's sweep was prevented by a 16-year-old British lass, Christine Truman, who defeated Mrs. Betty Pratt of Jamaica, B.W.I.

Gardnar Mulloy of Denver and Budge Patty of Los Angeles and Paris upset Ashley Cooper and Mal Anderson of Australia, in the quarter finals of the men's doubles.

Pontiac Girl Will Marry Raft-Traveling African

Red bearded Jerry Trowbridge, who has sailed his 36-foot ketch 21,000 miles since he left his native South Africa four years ago, plans to take on a permanent crew member from Michigan in early August.

She is Miss Marie Hickey, a physical therapist at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. Trowbridge announced in Sault Ste. Marie and she confirmed here they plan to be married early next month.

DOWN MISSISSIPPI

They plan a honeymoon from Chicago down the Mississippi and to Cuba, and then possibly they will tackle the Pacific together.

The couple met last winter at Huntsville, Ont., where both had gone on separate skiing expeditions.

News of the engagement came out as Trowbridge, headed back from a trip into Lake Superior, told Soo newsmen he now is en route for Boyne City.

"Why?" they wanted to know.

"To meet my fiancee," he replied.

Further questioning brought out the engagement and that he and Miss Hickey planned to spend the July 4th weekend at Boyne City.

4-YEAR TRIP

Trowbridge is a mechanical engineer, but has financed his wandering sea journeys from Durban to Sault Ste. Marie over four years by working as plumber and pipefitter.

When he accumulates enough to fill his ship and financial larders here and there, he's off on a new adventure. So far he has touched England, Europe, South America, Canada and the United States. He left Durban in 1953.

When he's married, Trowbridge said he intends to keep right on living his leisurely pace—sailing hither and yon.

And at Pontiac, where she came from Detroit's rehabilitation institute two years ago, Miss Hickey told newsmen: "That suits me just fine. I was born in the Panama Canal Zone and I've done quite a bit of sailing."

Thomson Qualifies, Draper Misses Out

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Peter Thomson of Australia, British Open champion for the last three years, today qualified for the current golf tourney with a 71 to go with his 71 of yesterday for a 142 total. He joined Americans Cary Middlecoff who had 148, Frank Stranahan (141), Gene Andrews (148) in the list of 100 low scorers in the two days test.

Tom Draper (Red Run GC, Royal Oak, Mich.) failed to get in, although he fired a fine 35-38—73 over the old course. He had 153.

Rochester Pair Missing on Trip

State Police continued searching today for the bodies of an Avon Township engaged couple and their companion, who were believed drowned late yesterday while fishing in Green Lake near Traverse City.

Identified as missing were Wallace Harrington, 27, a factory worker of 2481 Gerald Rd.; Mrs. Dorothy Brown, 26, of the same address, and Harrington's cousin, Melvin Gill, 33, of Mesick, northwest of Cadillac.

ON FISHING TRIP

Harrington has three young children by a previous marriage and Mrs. Brown, one. They had left the area for the fishing trip last Saturday night and were expected to return tomorrow night.

The search began when a resident of Green Lake reported seeing a boat carrying three persons overturn in what sheriff's deputies described as "50 feet of very black, cold muddy water."

The boat was recovered and identification made by tracing an automobile found parked at the lake side. Recovery of the bodies was hampered, however, by the murky water.

Hot Weather Guess Wins $100 Bond

LUCKY HUNCH — Mrs. William R. Scott, of 4365 England Beach Rd., Milford, receives a $100 savings bond awarded for being only three minutes away from guessing June's hottest moment. Presenting the bond is Press Advertising Director H. F. Brodie. Her guess of June 17, 2:17 p. m. was the exact time and date of her baptism. "I just played a hunch," she said. With the July entries all in, you'll be seeing another lucky winner on next month's front page. It could be you, if your entry was in before the 2 p. m. deadline last Saturday.

But 'Found Dept.' Locates Girl, 2 Couples, Airliner

Lost: Child, 5; Flying Newlyweds

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — A heavy rain fell in a wooded area west of here last night as some 1,200 volunteers turned out with lights to look for a 5-year-old girl missing since Saturday evening.

The girl, Cheryl Lea Johnston, was barefoot and clad only in a swimming suit when she disappeared from a children's picnic at Finley Bend on the Rogue River in Matson State Park.

LITTLETON, Mass. (AP) — A 14-year-old girl who spent four frightening nights in dense woods was safe at home today after being tracked down by a young bloodhound. Kristen Siemen was found unharmed except for scratches and insect bites last night in a thick growth of tall bushes off Newtown road.

Kristen, tired, hungry and her clothing tattered, had been sought by some 300 persons, including 50 soldiers from nearby Ft. Devens.

MANCHESTER, Vt. (INS)— State Police headed scores of searchers today in an intensive land and air search in the Stratton Mountain area for a honeymooning New York couple, feared to have been forced down in their single-engined plane.

Object of the hunt were Mark Larue of Hudson Falls, N. Y., and his bride of 10 days, the former Joan Whiting of Glens Falls, N. Y. They were flying home from a wedding trip at Nantucket, Mass., and were believed to have met gusty winds across New England Sunday evening.

ARLINGTON, Va. (INS) — Two West Point cadets and two 17-year-old girls, missing since yesterday afternoon, were found safe today when their 16-foot motor launch drifted ashore at West Moreland Park, Va.

The cadets are Robert Toppen and James Kane, and the girls are Jane Doherty and Lynn Wienecke, daughter of Maj. Gen. Robert H. Wienecke, all of Arlington, Va. Two Coast Guard boats searched the Potomac River and Chesapeake Bay all night when the four failed to return.

KARACHI (INS) — All 24 persons aboard a Pakistani airliner, feared lost in the Bay of Bengal, were found alive and well today when the DC-3 was sighted in the Delta area of the Brahmaputra River.

The plane vanished Sunday on a short flight from the bay port of Chittagong to Dacca, capital of East Pakistan. Engine trouble caused a forced landing.

Girard's Bride Target of Shakedown Attempt by Japanese 'Friend'

CAMP WHITTINGTON, Japan (AP)—William S. Girard and his Japanese fiancee were married today—and promptly found themselves the target of a shakedown attempt by a shopkeeper who had posed as their friend.

Fukuju Shimizu, 34, promoter of a "forgive Girard" campaign and identified by police as a paroled extortioner, demanded two million yen ($5,500) as "condolence money" for the family of the Japanese woman the 21-year-old GI is accused of killing Jan. 30.

Looking forward to their real marriage Friday when they kneel at the white chapel in this U. S. Army base, Candy found Shimizu waiting for her when she returned from Tokyo to her home village.

Know the Weather

By E. H. SIMS

Have you ever noticed the effect of temperature on animals and insects outside your house? Certain patterns are followed faithfully by these creatures.

★ ★ ★

Birds, of course, start south when the temperature begins to drop. How they know just when to leave is a question, and whether they know a winter will be severe or mild one cannot say. But there are many who think they do.

★ ★ ★

Other creatures follow a definite pattern. Bees, for example, are vicious at less than fifty degrees and ants will stay home at a slightly higher temperature. The calls of the Katydid can be translated into a temperature reading, depending upon the length of the call.

Some people believe that the cricket's chirp will give you a temperature reading — the black field cricket — and swear by this formula. At 70 degrees the cricket chirps 129 times and the number of chirps decrease as the temperature drops.

So nature has many tricks concerning the weather, and temperature greatly affects many of her creatures, in definite patterns you can learn to recognize.

She Used 'Positive Thinking, 23rd Psalm' for Courage

Save Woman From Texas Desert

ALPINE, Tex. (AP) — A sturdy blonde woman who said she used positive thinking and the 23rd Psalm to keep her courage up was found yesterday after six days of struggling for survival in the burning jumble of rock and sand south of here.

"I got so hot I was frothing at the mouth," Mrs. Wilma White, 46, of Houston, Tex., said of part of her struggle through the Big Bend National Park of West Texas. "I kept repeating the 23rd Psalm: 'Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death . . .'

"It made me feel a little cooler," she said.

She was spotted yesterday from the air and reached later by horsemen at the tiny cave and trickling spring which sheltered her from temperatures as high as 115 degrees.

Her husband had died in what appeared to be a vain attempt to find her after she set out for help when their station wagon bogged in the sand near the Rio Grande. They had gone into the rugged Punta de la Sierra range last Tuesday to gather cactus for their garden.

The tall, blue-eyed blonde was badly sunburned and scratched, but not in serious condition.

POSITIVE THINKING

"I always felt someone would find me," she told relatives.

"You know, I am a believer in positive thinking . . . at a time like this you cannot lose your head and get frantic. When I saw I was in a fix I figured the best thing to do was stay with the water, and that's what I did."

She said she found the cave and tiny water hole the second day she was lost and decided to stay until someone found her. She said she used rocks to keep her nails pared and combed her blonde hair by using the pool as a mirror. She said she kept track of the days by placing rocks on a ledge.

She ate only a few cactus berries during her ordeal, but said she didn't feel very hungry most of the time.

Yesterday morning was the first time she had heard any of the dozens of search planes which scoured the isolated area along the Mexican border.

"I heard the plane and took off my blouse and waved it," she said.

Civil Air Patrol pilot Herbert Ogle, who said he flew into the dangerous canyon on impulse after deciding "a man could only die once," waggled his wings to let her know he had spotted her and flew back to arrange the rescue.

Footprints had kept the search going, but authorities had given up all hope of finding her alive. Her 51-year-old husband Clifford, a fixture store owner, apparently had died from heat and exhaustion.

Mrs. White, her blue pedal-pushers, white blouse and walking shoes still in good condition, was met at the Alpine airport by her brother Lewis Schindler of Memphis, Tenn., and her brother-in-law Carl White of Columbia, Tenn. She was flown here from the Johnson Ranch, search headquarters set up about 10 miles from where she was found.

Mrs. White said they decided she should try to get help because her husband suffered from stomach ulcers and she felt she was stronger.

She said she thought she could find her way, but got lost.

Bartlett, Mackie Lambaste GOP Rule

Dems Jubilant at Inaugural Luncheon, Mark New Era of Executive Control

Quoting from an old hymn, Williams declaimed:

"Oh joy for which creation and all her tribes were made,

Thus Michigan Democrats started off on a new era yesterday, taking over complete control of the executive branch of government for the first time in history.

More than 400 of the party faithful celebrated the occasion at an inaugural luncheon for Dr. Lynn M. Bartlett, superintendent of public instruction; Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie, and Chris H. Magnussen, the Democrats' only representative on the three-member Board of Education.

Addressing the gathering, Bartlett lambasted the Republican-controlled Legislature for what he said was their failure to provide adequate revenue for support of public education, especially on the higher education level.

MAKES ME SICK

Bartlett said "It just makes me a little sick" to consider the Legislature's refusal to appropriate any money for new construction at colleges and universities.

"We know," he said, "that Michigan State University has had to limit its enrollment for the next year, that Eastern Michigan College limited its enrollment this past year, and that many more of our state institutions of higher learning will have to do likewise in the next few years unless a reasonable and logical capital improvement program is maintained."

"How can we allow such actions to take place when we know that the need for trained manpower in all fields of endeavor is greater in our country today than ever before in the history of our nation," he declared. "To me, it is absolutely incomprehensible that such action can take place."

HITS INADEQUATE AID

Bartlett also assailed the $190 per pupil state aid formula for primary and secondary schools as inadequate—

★ ★ ★

"In terms of my own department," he added, "there will be less money on which to operate next year than there was this year—even though there will be an increase of some 70,000 pupils in the public schools of our state."

Mackie said his men already had started to correct highway deficiencies which he said "have too often been underestimated or minimized."

"Michigan will require over 3,000 miles of four-lane divided highways to meet future needs and presently less than 200 of these miles are up to standard," he said. "Of the 1,000 miles of express type highways needed on our vital interstate highway system, less than 100 are up to standard and open to traffic."

Young Republicans Ask Williams' Aide to Speak

LANSING (AP) — In what they described as "a startling departure from accepted policy" Ingham County Young Republicans have invited a Democrat to be the principal speaker at their July meeting.

Alfred B. Fitt, legal adviser to Gov. Williams, has accepted an invitation to address a July 17 meeting.

"We believe sincerely that the Republican approach to our state problems is the better one," said Nita Martin, Young GOP president. "But that doesn't mean we are afraid to listen to the Democratic viewpoint."

'Big 3' Auto Makers Exceed '56 Output

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry's "Big Three" of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler built 3,279,716 passenger cars in this year's January-June period. The total compared with 3,072,119 cars built in the like period of 1956.

GM's output for the year's first six months came to 1,543,323 units compared with 1,729,362 in January-June of 1956.

Ford reported 1,015,311 car assemblies in the first half of the year, compared with 868,848 in like 1956, and Chrysler accounted for 721,082 cars compared with 473,909 in the same part of 1956.

Pontiac Division showed an increase for June over the same month a year ago and an increase for the first six months over the first half of 1956.

June production was 26,267 as against 22,929 a year ago. For six months it was 198,672 as against 191,582 for the first half of '56.

Schone Raps Cobo 'Snub' to Regional Planning Unit

The Metropolitan Area Regional Planning Commission has been snubbed by Detroit Mayor Albert E. Cobo, a Birmingham executive member said today.

Birmingham City Manager Harold K. Schone said the plan commission had not been told in advance of Cobo's recently announced plans for a co-ordinated metropolitan area transportation system.

Schone, an Oakland County supervisor and a member of the commission's executive board, said the planning group should take "a major role" in the proposed study.

"Although we've been invited to attend the first meeting next Tuesday," he said, "we have yet to be told what part we have to play."

Schone said he was "disturbed" over Cobo's preliminary moves to put a major transportation study into action.

STORY IN NEWSPAPERS

"We were not even aware there was going to be a study until we read about it in the newspapers," Schone said.

Cobo wants Detroit to be the pilot city for the nation in planning a modern, functional transport system. A staff of Detroit City workers, has been working several weeks on the project.

Schone said that the commission's recent "Origin-Destination" survey of metropolitan area travel should provide important information on which to base any transportation system.

"That survey took a lot of time and a lot of money," Schone observed. "It should prove invaluable to a transportation study, unless the mayor thinks for some reason it is necesary to duplicate it with another survey."

The commission's survey is of highway use and highway needs, and from it, Schone pointed out, can be gathered information on the financial feasibility of providing transportation systems along major routes, many of them in Oakland County.

Next week's meeting will be the first phase of a plan that eventually will seek help from federal, state and county organizations.

Kalamazoo Moms Find Answer

Babysitting No Problem!

KALAMAZOO (AP) — A perplexing problem in babysitting has been solved to the satisfaction of the mothers in suburban Milwood.

It's working so well they are recommending it to their friends in other parts of the city and even in other parts of Michigan.

They have formed a "corporation" and struck off paper money in two denominations — one calling for a half hour's service and the other a full hour's. They would have a hard time buying groceries with their "coins," but it's a fine medium of exchange in the Milwood circle for mothers needing the services of a baby sitter.

To begin with, one of the mothers cut out paper pieces and marked each with its value. Then the lot was equally divided among the charter members. There's a strict ban against borrowing or "counterfeiting," of course.

When a mother wants to go shopping, get her hair fixed or visit the doctor's office, she gets one of her fellow members to babysit for her and pays her in coins of the corporation's mintage. If she accumulates a surplus, as she does whenever she goes through a considerable period of time without using a baby sitter, she is supposed to "speed up" her demands on her fellow members. If, on the other hand, she begins running short, she stays at home long enough to "balance her budget."

OK Predicted on Defense Bill

Senators See Approval Today on Biggest Sum of Session

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders predicted passage today of the biggest appropriations bill of the session — the $34,534,229,000 defense money measure.

Leaders said they expect passage in just the form the bill came from the senate appropriations committee.

That group put back into the bill $971,504,000 of the $2,565,275,000 in reductions voted by the House. Differences will be worked out in a conference.

President Eisenhower asked restoration of only about $1,200,000,000 of the House cuts. The administration regarded the remainder as largely bookkeeping transactions which would not affect spending in the year ahead.

One Democrat, Sen. Douglas of Illinois, urged the Senate to accept the House cuts. He announced he would offer an amendment to have the Senate take these reductions, but then add 500 million dollars to the measure for Army and Marine combat troops.

He read from dozens of contracts which he said showed money was spent for swimming pools, diaper service, golf courses and other items he described as luxuries.

Policemen Striving for Safe Weekend

The State Police have predicted that traffic accidents over the four-day period may kill 35 persons or more in Michigan.

'MUST BE ALERT'

Joseph A. Childs, State Police commissioner, said today that in order to hold down the anticipated highway death count "drivers must remember that in the heavy holiday period traffic they must be unusually alert."

Childs urged motorists to watch weather conditions, obey traffic regulations, and to guard against the mistakes of others.

In 1956, a total of 23 persons was killed during a three-day Independence Day weekend. However, Oakland County officials and motorists are shooting at much more—they have a clean record to maintain.

No one has died in accidents over the July 4 holiday for the past two years in the county, and furthermore, no one was killed last Labor Day weekend nor on the recent four-day Memorial Day holiday.

County officials are hoping to maintain this outstanding safety record, but they realize the biggest job lies in the hands of the motorist.

'PLENTY OF TIME'

"Be sure to leave early enough to give yourself plenty of time to reach your destination at safe speeds," said Oakland County Sheriff Frank Irons. "Being late is the major excuse of speeders, and a poor one when lives are at stake."

★ ★ ★

"One of the major causes of accidents is following the car ahead too closely," he continued. "Be sure to allow yourself enough room to come to a safe stop."

He also added that "fatigued drivers are a constant hazard. Don't drive if you're overtired."

Detroit Airman Killed in Jersey Accident

FT. DIX, N. J. (AP) — Two airmen were hurled from a car and killed early today when it failed to make a curve and rolled over.

A third airman, passenger in another car which grazed the upset auto, was slightly injured.

State police identified the dead as Airmen Thomas H. Woodard, 29, of Enid, Okla., owner and believed to be the driver of the car, and Eugene J. Black, 29, of Detroit. Both were members of the 1611th Supply Squadron at nearby McGuire Air Force Base.

State Police said the victims' car apparently was going at high speed when it ran off a curve near Springfield Township. The vehicle crossed to the left of the road and turned over several times, ending up on its wheels.

The troopers said the second car, driven by Airman 3.C. Orville G. Swedlund, 17, of Hastings, Neb., rounded the curve about that time and apparently ran over the injured Woodard lying on the road.

$41 in Traffic Tickets Brings Man to Court

Noah Henry Lee, 31, of 269 Orchard Lake Ave., will appear in Municipal Court July 11 to face tickets.

charges on $41 worth of traffic

Lee pleaded innocent yesterday after he was arrested on four traffic warrants. Two were for disregarding a stop sign, one for driving with an expired operators license and one for driving without brake lights.

He is free on a personal bond granted by Municipal Judge Cecil B. McCallum until trial.

Senate OKs Anderson

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate confirmed by voice vote today the nomination of Robert B. Anderson to succeed George M. Humphrey as secretary of the Treasury.

Haggard Elected to 5th CIO Term

Hugh Ritter, Local 83, United Dairy Workers, financial secretary; Walter Eberle, president of the Royal Oak Government Workers' Local 270, sergeant-at-arms; Norman Mallory, GMC Truck & Coach Local 594, UAW, guide.

★ ★ ★

Elected as trustees for the 1957 term were Albert Wilkinson, Local 125, United Rubber Workers; Richard Crowner, Local 771, UAW, of the National Twist Drill & Tool Co. at Rochester, and Earl Anderson, Local 105 of the Consumers Power Utility Workers.

Of the 41,000 ballots possible, 31,078 were cast by delegates.

Jailed in Gun Violation

Ervin B. Burton, of 393 Bloomfield Ave., was ordered committed to the Oakland County Jail for 35 days Monday by Municipal Judge Cecil B. McCallum after he pleaded guilty to the charge of possessing an unregistered .38 caliber revolver.

He was given the longer jail sentence after he failed to pay a $100 fine plus 15 days in jail.

The Day in Birmingham

Pool Fee Problem Sent to the Recreation Board

BIRMINGHAM — City commissioners last night refused to become involved in the swimming pool fee problem between protesting residents and the recreation board.

Commissioners told the group that all recreation charges are levied by that body and that any changes should necessarily come from them.

A petition signed by nearly 300 residents was referred by commissioners to the recreation board. The board's next meeting is scheduled for July 11 at which time the question will probably be taken up.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Goode led the discussion in behalf of petitioners in asking the fee adjustment. Mrs. Goode pointed out that should they go to the recreation board and then be referred to the board of Education, which also participates in the program, the swimming season will be ended before any action can be taken.

Mayor William Roberts said that even though this may be the case the city commission has no power to make decisions on recreation. It was pointed out that the city and the school are participating and supporting members of the recreation board but that the latter is an independent authorized group whose sole responsibility is recreation.

John Webster representing a group of people in the central part of the city protested the fact that Barnum pool is not open this summer. He pointed out that many children are unable to get swimming facilities because of lack of transportation.

Webster was told that in spite of this pool's closing, swimming facilities are double their former number through the use of the junior and senior high school pools.

Commissioners reminded him that during the years when only Barnum was available children in the outlying sections faced the same transportation problem but managed to get their share of swimming.

The city has authorized the purchase of a truck for the Forestry and Parks Dept. with Rice O'Green as the successful bidder.

Additional truck purchases saw successful bid from Floyd Rice Sales and Service for three dump trucks for a purchase of $3,150 per unit.

A public hearing has been scheduled for July 15 for the installation of a sidewalk along Derby road from Eton to the Grand Trunk line.

It was pointed out that the city has the authority to order this sidewalk in, without a public hearing.

The hearing is being granted purely because so many people in the area have expressed keen interest in the sidewalk installation.

Van Atta Not Mentioned at Area Board Meeting

All was quiet in the case of dismissed Waterford Township Police Chief Frank J. Van Atta at last night's weekly board meeting.

PACKED TO CAPACITY

The town hall was packed to capacity, as it has been the last several weeks, but no mention of the chief's dismissal was made.

He was released from the force June 21 because of budget reductions. However, his supporters have circulated petitions asking for a trial board hearing.

Those opposed to his reinstatement are also circulating petitions. This was the recommendation of Trustee Charles Pappas in order to determine "the pulse of the public" on this matter.

REZONE LAND

Of major interest to those attending last evening's session was the rezoning of Williams Lake road property from residential to commercial. Board members turned thumbs down on the project on the strength of the Oakland County Zoning board's disapproval due to "ribbon-type" zoning in the township.

The property is in the Burlingham Lake Park Subdivision extended from the railroad tracks to Coventry avenue.

The board approved the low bid of the Howell Construction Co. for paving of Crescent Lake road from M59 to Hatchery road.

The bid for the one mile stretch of road was $13,953.38. The township pays $6,976.69 as its share. The Oakland County Road Commission matches this figure.

Payroll saving bonds for township employes were approved by the board and Treasurer Dorothy Olson was authorized to deduct bond payments for those desiring such service.

The State Legislature has approved the referendum for hunting in the area. Supervisor Elmer Johnson told the group that it now can be voted on by the people at the next regular election.

According to the treasurer's report there is $10,000 less in the township funds this month than last. Balance to July 1 is $74,302.14. There was $35,029.28 dispersed and $24,583.95 received during the month of June.

As soon as applications for Civil Defense Auxiliary Police are filled out and screened, a training course for those selected will begin, township officials said.

Forty men have volunteered to boost the police protection in the township. Those that qualify will be issued guns, badges, and uniforms.

★ ★ ★

Due to very little business on Saturday mornings, the board voted to close township offices each Saturday during months of July and August on a "trial basis." They are open until 8 p.m. each Monday.

County Puts Brakes on Slow Vehicles

Heavy, slow-moving vehicular equipment will not be allowed on Oakland County highways over the long Fourth of July weekend.

This is one traffic hazard that the county road commission has barred, in line with State Highway Department policy.

The commission will hold up all overweight and oversized moving permits from noon tomorrow until Monday morning.

"This is being done to facilitate the rapid and safe movement of traffic," the commission said.

Road authorities also directed all its contractors to cease operations during the same period of time. They want to keep as much truck traffic as possible off the highways during the crowded, dangerous holiday.

Faisal Arrives for Treatment

Saudi Arabia Prince to Visit Mayo Clinic for Stomach Ulcers

NEW YORK (AP) — Prince Faisal al Saud of Saudi Arabia arrived here yesterday for medical treatment of stomach ulcers—which he soothed with caviar and milk on the way.

With him was a regal entourage of 25 persons, who occupied 17 staterooms on the liner Independence. They brought 104 pieces of luggage and four automobiles.

★ ★ ★

The 52-year-old prince, brother of Saudi Arabia's King Saud, said he planned to get medical examinations and treatment at New York Hospital and at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.

He was greeted by State Department representatives, including Asst. Secretary of State William Manning Rountree. But as on a recent visit by his brother, no New York City officials were out to welcome him.

In a brief shipboard interview, a reporter showed him a newspaper clipping saying that King Saud was not greeted officially by the city because of his alleged anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic sentiments. He glanced at the article, but declined to discuss it.

Like his brother, he was a liberal tipper, passing out $400 Swiss watches to some porters and waiters, and cash tips totaling $3,500.

3 More Bomb Blasts Mark Cuban Unrest

Two of the blasts occurred in the center of the city and the third in a suburb. Two automobile agencies, a furniture store and a house were damaged.

★ ★ ★

In tense Santiago de Cuba, the island's second largest city, some 20,000 persons poured into the streets yesterday to pay homage to a slain young revolutionary.

Attending funeral services for Jose Pais, a young follower of rebel chieftain Fidel Castro, the demonstrators shouted "Long live free Cuba" and "Down with Batists." Their numbers provided a marked contrast to the boycott that greeted a progovernment rally staged in the eastern city Sunday.

Pais and two other Castro supporters were killed Sunday night in a fight with an army patrol. Two soldiers also died in the clash.

Police Nab Convict Hiding Under Floor

MANCHESTER, England (AP)—Police last night captured an escaped convict who hid for three weeks in a coffin-sized hole beneath the floorboards of his mother's kitchen.

★ ★ ★

Detectives said the fugitive, Eric Chambers, 23, was found in a hole 7 feet long, 2½ feet wide and 18 inches deep.

Mrs. Charlotte Chambers, his mother, told newsmen:

"I found Eric on Saturday. He promised he would give himself up, but before he did the police came.

"He said he had been slipping out to eat and wash when the house was empty."

Chambers is serving four years for robbery with violence. He eluded guards June 5 while being taken to an eye hospital for treatment.

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Lutheran Church will hold its 1960 constituting convention in Minneapolis.

It will be an historic organizing session for the new two-million-member church body.

British Newsman Sees U. S. on $280

LONDON (AP)—A British newsman returned from a $280 tour of the U. S. East Coast today with 90 cents in his pocket and a chip on his shoulder.

"Steak-crazed businessmen go home to Britain raving about the efficiency of this streamlined empire," wrote Keith Waterhouse of the Daily Mirror.

"On 100 pounds—$280—you can see it from the other side of the tracks and from there is does not seem as efficient or as streamlined—and its people are not as insufferably perfect."

He went on:

"Their postwar housing projects—or the two or three I have seen—are not a patch on our new towns.

"Their women are nowhere near as well dressed as ours.

Waterhouse said his trip, using only the $280 tourist allowance recently put into effect by the British treasury, took him to New York, Atlantic City, Washington, Richmond, Augusta, Orangeburg, S. C., and Lake City, Jacksonville and Miami Beach in Florida.

★ ★ ★

He said the saddest city he saw was Washington, "for Washington, with 200,000 girls in government service, is a city of lonely women."

"I sat a few nights ago in the popular Cafe of All Nations on 13th Street and watched those lonely girls who are known cruelly there as Washington's spare tire," he wrote.

"Perhaps 40 or 50 girls, all dressed up with nowhere to go, eating solitary meals, drinking solitary martinis to put some kick into a dull life, and then going home to depressing 5-pound ($14) a week rooms to write to their friends about how great life is."

But Waterhouse declared the trip wasn't a total loss.

"I am relieved to find an America as wonky (tacky) as we sometimes find ourselves," he said. "An America of cracked cups and leaky taps and sorry-only-baked-beans-left. An America where nobody has succeeded in turning out an airconditioned, centrally-heated, pushbutton human being.

"This America I like—the sideshows in the greatest show on earth."

It's a Daughter at Last for Auditor General

DETROIT (AP) — Aud. Gen. and Mrs. Frank S. Szymanski, who have four sons, became the parents of a seven-pound, nine-ounce daughter yesterday.

Mother and daughter were reported "doing fine" at Providence Hospital.

St. Louis Mayor Quits

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The resignation of Dr. C. J. Bender from the council means a new mayor for this central Michigan city. Dr. Bender early this year moved to a rural residence but maintained living quarters in his office so he could retain the job of mayor until the end of the fiscal year. Councilmen will choose a new mayor July 11.

Old Ship Explodes Killing 32 Okinawans

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—A sunken World War II ammunition ship blew up seven miles off Okinawa last night, killing at least 32 Okinawans carrying on a prohibited salvage operation.

It was believed ammunition aboard the wreck had been touched off by an underwater cutting torch.

Eyewitnesses on shore said between 32 and 40 men were diving to the ship 150 feet down when the blast occurred.

★ ★ ★

The witnesses were unable to say exactly how many men were under water or in five small boats supporting the divers. All the boats were blown to bits. One official pointed out that operat ons of this nature are illegal, and survivors of mishaps usually make themselves scarce.

Mom Flies to Europe but Son's Already Dead

BITBURG, Germany (AP)—A saddened Michigan mother made plans today to return home, her race with death lost.

She is Mrs. Mary McIsaac of Detroit, whose son, S.Sgt. Donald J. McIsaac, 23, died as she raced to his bedside across the Atlantic Sunday.

McIsaac was critically injured June 24 in the head-on crash of a German automobile and a military car in which he was riding near Preum. His mother was flown to Bitburg by the Air Force to be with her only son, but he died hours before her plane arrived.

The young sergeant is survived by seven sisters, in addition to his mother.

Ohio's Governor Happy About Michigan Taxes

Governor C. WILLIAM O'NEILL of Ohio declares flatly that Ohio will be the center of the automobile industry in another 10 or 15 years.

He attributes Michigan's ultimate loss of leadership to the high taxes which G. MENNEN WILLIAMS has been imposing steadily since his 10-year occupancy of the top Michigan role.

★ ★ ★

The Michigan executive replies that the Ohio man is merely "trying to take advantage of a family argument in Michigan." Certainly Michigan has echoed from lake to lake with the charge that Williams is steadily and constantly driving more and more jobs to other states by virtue of his taxation programs.

★ ★ ★

Corporations operating in Michigan and other states find the tax burden in other states generally less than those in Michigan by wide margins. Only this year, WILLIAMS once again proposed a new corporation tax. He did this in spite of the fact that he was on the defense in his last campaign over the question of driving employment out of the state.

★ ★ ★

Opponents were steadily accusing him of forcing expansion programs in other states, even though the main offices did not move.

"Our economic and governmental climate is more favorable than Michigan's," says the Ohio Executive, and he went on to cite the number of Michigan manufacturers who were steadily doing their expanding in Ohio.

In spite of his charges, we believe Governor O'NEILL is too optimistic. We refuse to believe that even though we've been saddled with WILLIAMS for 10 years that industry is losing heart. Of course, each year he starts anew with a program to add new and greater taxes to industry.

★ ★ ★

We grant that Ohio seems to have benefited by an abnormally large number of Michigan plant expansions, but there may be other reasons that are not too apparent. We refuse to concede the automobile to Ohio, today, tomorrow or in 1999.

Atoms for Peace Pact to Get U.S. Approval

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee finally has approved a treaty setting up the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA).

This proposal has passed the Senate with a "qualification" tacked on by Senators KNOWLAND and HICKENLOOPER. It specifies that any amendment to the statute be submitted to the Senate and that if the Senate rejected the amendment, the U.S. would automatically withdraw from the agency.

However, a provision of the statute says that although amendments can be made when two-thirds of the nations approve them, any nation unwilling to go along may withdraw. The statute itself sanctions such withdrawal so the "qualification" merely reaffirms one of its provisions.

Back in 1945 President TRUMAN, Prime Minister ATTLEE and Prime Minister MACKENZIE KING issued a declaration calling for international action to make the atom safe for humanity. But specific proposals were not made until December 8, 1953, when President EISENHOWER addressed the United Nations Assembly.

At that time he asked that governments begin now and continue to make joint contributions from their stockpiles of uranium and fissionable materials for such an agency. His proposal led to a world conference of 12 nations in Washington to draw up articles of incorporation. Last fall 82 nations accepted those articles at U.N. headquarters.

IAEA itself is simply a clearing house of knowledge, technic and raw materials made available by nuclear powers to other nations unable by themselves to develop atomic energy for peaceful purposes. Stringent safeguards against military use are incorporated in the treaty.

It is expected that the agency will lead to better understanding through a common meeting ground and in President EISENHOWER's words:

"Through shared work and hope the world will come to realize the immense possibilities of the atom for the benefit of all."

Over Half Million

Crowds at Recreational Spots Should Set Record

With good weather, over a half million people will visit Oakland County recreational spots on July 4. Topping the list is Kent Lake, where preparations are being made to handle 150,000. Cass Lake state park should crowd the 100,000 mark.

Then comes Pontiac Lake with almost as many, followed by Rochester state park, Bald Mountain, Proud Lake and Holly recreational areas, Ortonville state park, Marshbank and other public spots. Walled Lake and numerous other commercial areas will have record breaking crowds.

Then comes the numerous roadside parks, picnic tables and private parties galore. Perhaps a half million is too modest. Wonder if this isn't a nation beater? Also wonder if it isn't a good day for the home folks to stay at home?

My farmer readers will be interested in the following from

David Lawrence Says:

High Court Justices Can Be Ousted

WASHINGTON — What can be done about a Supreme Court that ignores the rights of Congress and the Executive and, in effect, nullifies various provisions of the Constitution itself?

LAWRENCE

This question has arisen lately because of the extreme nature of some of the decisions of the high court which substantially impair the investigative operations of Congress and the prosecution of criminals and traitors.

It may come as a surprise to many people to find that justices of the Supreme Court of the United States are not assured of life tenure and that nowhere in the Constitution are the words "life tenure" used. Actually the Constitution simply says that justices of the high court shall hold office only "during good behavior."

The Constitution provides for "impeachment" of judges, but solely for "treason, bribery and other high crimes and misdemeanors." In the event, however, that the justices do not commit any such crimes but go beyond their proper judicial functions and actually destroy the right of the nation to protect itself against subversion, can anything be done about it?

Strangely enough, in the entire history of the Supreme Court there never has been a case involving a definition of the words "good behavior" in connection with any Supreme Court justice. Nor has there been any case in which the power of removal of high court justices has been ruled upon.

RECALLS STIR

This correspondent the other day recalled the stir made by the famous Myers case in October, 1926, and took occasion to reread the decision because in its 50,000 words is given the most exhaustive discussion of the removal powers of Congress ever presented by the Supreme Court.

But this case and the decision in the Humphrey case in 1935—repudiating the President's removal of a member of the Federal Trade Commission—are confined largely to the question of how far Congress may by law restrict the removal powers of the chief executive with respect to executive and quasi-judicial posts.

It is clear that the President can remove an official for the causes specified by Congress when fixing the term of office and also for other causes not mentioned by Congress when the post is purely administrative. The decisions are vague and contradictory where no term is specified by Congress—as, for instance, in the case of lower court judges.

It is plain from a reading of the Myers case that most of the discussions in the early days of the Republic and since then have related primarily to whether the Senate has to be consulted about removals.

It seems to be an established fact that for many years the Congress asserted its right to participate in the removal power. Describing this early history, the Supreme Court in an opinion in 1839 said:

"No one denied the power of the President and the Senate, jointly to remove, where the tenure of the office was not fixed by the Constitution, which was a full recognition of the principle that the power of removal was incident to the power of appointment."

Often quoted in these decisions and rebutted is an argument made in "The Federalist" by Alexander Hamilton, who wrote: "It has been mentioned as one of the advantages to be expected from the cooperation of the Senate in the business of appointments, that it would contribute to the stability of the administration. The consent of that body would be necessary to displace as well as to appoint."

It seems logical to conclude—as Justices Brandeis, Holmes and McReynolds plainly asserted in their dissent in the Myers case—that the power resides in Congress to control removals by stipulating in a law the basis for such removal.

Hence, if Congress chose to define "good behavior" and provided by law that the President and the Senate could jointly decide on the removal of any or all of the Supreme Court justices and then other justices were nominated and confirmed to replace them, there is enough legislative power vested in Congress to make the action stick despite any attempt by the courts to interfere.

Dr. William Brady Says:

Chew Food, Avoid Rush—You'll Get Along Better

My brother, says a Virginia reader, is subject to hay fever. At the beginning of the hay fever season last summer he had pain in his left shoulder, diagnosed as bursitis, which it wasn't — just an acid condition. The M.D. gave him "shots" for it and he developed asthma and has been miserable ever since. Thanking you ..... (Signed) .....

DR. BRADY

Don't thank me. I was a thousand miles away from Virginia all last winter, spring and summer.

Besides, I haven't the faintest idea what "an acid condition" means.

In a few instances the trouble may be peptic ulcer. In others it is just smokers' duodenal ulcer complex—symptoms suggesting ulcer but no X-ray evidence of ulcer. In most instances the trouble is due to overeating.

AVOID GULPING

Overeating means not just eating more than one needs. Usually it means gulping food down hurriedly, without mastication.

★ ★ ★

If you're in a great hurry it is far better to carry a handful of peanuts or nuts in your pocket and chew one at a time on the way than it is to wolf down anything you haven't time to masticate.

Even in Yankeeland, where we are all in such a haste, the digestion of starch still takes place, or should take place, largely in the mouth while the food is being chewed. That so much of the starch in food goes almost directly to the duodenum unchewed, on account of the national hurry and ignorance of physiology, is in my opinion a contributing cause of diabetes.

Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for the pamphlet Yankee Stomach.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Representative Broomfield Defends Flood Insurance

Letters will be condensed when necessary because of lack of space. Full name, address and telephone number of the writer must accompany letters but these will not be published if the writer so requests unless the letter is critical in its nature.

I have just read the editorial in The Pontiac Press on June 25 concerning the denial of Federal backing for flood insurance by the House.

I certainly agree that the $14,000,000 is needed to help provide adequate insurance for those living in areas subject to flooding. We will be practicing false economy indeed if we do not provide realistic protection to those who are unable to purchase insurance from private firms without Federal underwriting of the policies. The plan should at least have been given a decent trial.

As a member of the House, I voted in favor of the flood insurance plan. But we were not able to rally enough support to carry the measure. In the light of the heavy flood losses being experienced in various parts of the nation again this year, it seems very short-sighted indeed that the House failed to take favorable action on this worthy piece of legislation.

'Summer Session for Basic Study?'

If we had summer school sessions, maybe the entire time could be devoted to the basic studies for which we send our children to school. A survey just completed in Connecticut shows 49 high schools there offer 407 different courses. There are 66 in "social studies." Many, many Michigan businessmen are aghast at the educational voids in the most important studies of all.

Quotes Passages of Potter's Speech

I just read a speech of Senator Potter's which I would like to quote in part:

"For nine years Williams has confused the worker into viewing business as his enemy. He has triggered a class war, pitting one segment of the economy against another. He has tried to make 'business' a dirty word. Business is as vital to the worker as the worker is to business. They cannot exist without each other. By driving business from our State, High-Tax Williams is strangling Michigan's once-thriving economy. Industry has begun an exodus, leaving behind hundreds of thousands of jobless.

"A company would pay exactly twice as much in taxes in Detroit as in Indianapolis or Cleveland. In Chicago you save 40 per cent of the taxes here. Even in Pittsburgh—one of the highest tax cities in the nation—you would save 22 per cent over Detroit.

"An Indiana official sent me a list of plants newly located in his state. It was heartbreaking to see the familiar names on that list, each one tagged 'formerly Michigan.' Here they are: Michigan Warehousing, Bohn Aluminum, Ex-Cell-O Corporation, Seeger-Whirlpool, Ford Motor, Chrysler, General Motors, Anderson Bolting, Dearborn Fabricating, Nylon Craft, Dairy Equipment, Kasle Steel, Spartan Design, Reynolds Spring and McCord Corporation.

"Plants are being located elsewhere because the tax cost per job is less than half that of Michigan. Ohio's are lighter and Ohio is setting the pace for industrial growth. High-Tax Williams is waiting until Michigan becomes another New England—deserted by its factories, populated by jobless and plagued by a sinking standard of living."

Mothers-in-Law Provoke Wrath

It sounds to me like Disgruntled Mother-in-Law is starting out in fine fashion. Her son just got married and already she's finding fault with his wife.

How does she expect a young, newly-married to cook, sew and keep house as well as one who's been doing it for 20 years or more? And what's wrong with a young man taking his new bride out for a good time at least once a week? She'll have plenty of time to stay home and wash diapers later on.

These jealous, bossy mothers-in-law make me sick. If they would keep their big noses out of their children's marriages, there wouldn't be so many divorces. When they have open season on mothers-in-law, I'll be the first in line to get my license, and I'll bet I'd have to get there mighty early.

Waterford Student Defends Teachers

I must write in defense of school teachers. For almost 10 months every year, students like me and my friends make it hard for Waterford teachers. Mr. Taxpayer, how would you take care of a smart guy in the back of the room who's always wisecracking and talking? Or would you like to correct test papers until all hours of the night? How are you at lecturing? Teachers do an awful lot of this. How would you control a class of almost 40 kids? You can't watch them all at once. Mr. Taxpayer, check the facts about school teachers. Ask any student—they'll tell you teachers have it rough.

Suggests Sending Child to Camp

If George IV were still alive, he'd be backing a crowd of teen-agers for attendance at a church summer camp. You can all act as "foster parents" for youth by making such an investment in trained moral leaders for the future. No other religious influence pays as rich dividends nowadays as these church summer camps. So prod your youth so you will have double representation at camp this year.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case V-326: George IV, aged 26, was our oldest child, who crashed in his jet plane last July.

★ ★ ★

DR. CRANE

During the four years he served in the Marine Air Corps, he always sent home 10 per cent of his pay checks to be given to churches, for he was a tither.

And he scattered his contributions among several denominations. Since he and our four other children had grown up in our neighborhood Presbyterian Church he sent $100 for its young people's work.

And when Rev. Alfred C. Crouch, its pastor, asked if George would be willing to have the money used for sending teenagers to church summer camps, George immediately wrote that that was a fine idea.

For George IV had attended summer church camps at Battle Ground, Indiana, during his seventh and eighth grade vacation periods, and all through high school.

He thus knew from first-hand experience the unique advantages which teenagers procure from such camps.

If any of you adult readers have no children at all, or if your own youngsters have grown up and left the home nest, then become a glorified "foster parent" to at least one teenager in your community.

Help send that young person to a church summer camp for at least one week.

For many years Mrs. Crane has paid half the summer camp expenses for as many teenagers as wish to attend, from the little church in Indiana where we spend our summers.

As I recall, as high as 15 boys and girls have gone to this church camp per season. And it is one of the finest investments in personality development which you can ever procure.

WHAT CAMP DOES

The attendance at this church summer camp offers the teeangers a more cosmopolitan outlook, for they meet boys and girls from all over the state.

★ ★ ★

This wider social outlook is also one of the main advantages when young folks enter college later on.

So a week at a church camp should be a MUST for all teenagers who will NOT go on to college.

Since it helps cushion the shock on homesickness which the college freshmen suffer when they begin living on the campus, it is also excellent preparation for college.

The young people thus obtain a wider Christian outlook. They learn many helpful ideas which they can later employ when they get back home and are called upon to lead their own local church meetings on Sunday night.

At the little Indiana church which we attend during the summer, these returning campers make a full report on their first Sunday back from camp.

A different camper will report on each class that was offered. And then we get a final comment on the athletic contests, games and even the food.

But the highlight is the summary of the camp fire meeting on Friday night, when the climax of the week's religious inspiration is attained.

Lives are changed and these returning campers have a larger

So please try to double the attendance of your church teenagers at such summer camps this year.

It is the best insurance that you can invest in guaranteeing future consecrated leadership for churches of all denominations.

A week at camp costs from $15 to $25 per teenager, but it is our best guarantee of future moral leadership in America.

So "foster parent" as many youth as possible at such camps, preferably meeting half their expenses, while they earn the other half.

Bob Considine Says:

Bullfighting Anthology Thrilling, Appalling

NEW YORK (INS) — To pick up Rex Smith's anthology of Spanish bullfighting, Biography of the Bulls (Rinehart), is to be transported into a strange, breath-taking, appalling, thrilling and enormously engrossing way of life.

Smith is a Yankee baseball fan, was a former editor of Newsweek and the Chicago Sun, a wire service correspondent in Spain, an Air Force colonel, and now is a vise president of American Airlines.

But the great, driving avocation of his life for years has been bullfighting, and the book he has put together on the subject must be the ultimate word and picture available.

In the big, nearly 400-page book, the reader will find all the dedicated ones — Hemingway, Barnaby Conrad, Steinbeck, Lord Byron, Frank Harris, Blasco-Ibanez, Cervantes, Romans, Carthaginians, Robert Rtark and many others who have been transfixed through the years by this ferociously uncompromising contest between man and beast.

"The bull came into recorded history as a god. The ancient Persians believed this creature contained the life forces of plants, animals and men. The first man, according to their legend, came out of the right shoulder of the bull, and the animals came out of the left shoulder. It was the symbol of procreation and power.

"The bull was worshiped in early Israel . . . Babylonia . . . Phoenicia . . . in Cappadocia the Hittites worshiped the bull and sacrificed to it. Similarly, the Greeks conceived the wine-god Dionysus in the form of a bull . . . bulls were bred in the times of the Pharoahs for ceremonial fighting purposes.

"Rameses II participated in these events. Archaeological discoveries in Crete record the hunting of bulls and the killing in tournaments. The savage animals were caught, placed in strong cages, and transported to the cities. It was a rite rather than a circus display."

The matador doesn't always get off free. Here's the end of the great Manolete, as written by the brilliantly versatile Conrad:

"He stood in front of the Miura (an especially villainous strain of bull), sighted down the blade, rose on the toes of one foot, and as the bull lunged forward Manolete hurled himself straight over the lowered right horn. The sword was sinking in, the horn cutting by him.

"But suddenly the bull wrenched its head to the right and drove the horn deep into the man's groin. Manolete was flung high into the air, trying to fight the horn out of his body, and then was slammed to the sand. The bull spiked at him twice on the ground and then staggered, choked, and flopped over dead, the sword up to the red hilt between its shoulder blades."

In the Matador's death room later he complained that the judges had ignored his performance.

Conrad wrote:

"They gave you everything, Matador," said a banderillero, putting his cigaret between the wounded man's lips. "Everything — both ears and tail."

He smiled and lay back (and died).

An old banderillero, staring at the corpse, said dully, "They kept demanding more and more of him, and more was his life, so he gave it to them."

Smith's book takes one out of the dog days and makes one care not a whit whether the Dodgers move westward as far as Guam.

PIKEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Girl squirrels in City Park don't have to worry about becoming old maids.

The park now has 13 boy squirrels, the gift of Col. Lee Harr of Mountain Home, Tenn. He sent them after reading a news item that listed the park's bushy-tail population as strictly female.

Way to Tragic Fourth: Smuggle In Fireworks

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeature Writer

Fireworks are not toys. They are dangerous explosives and should not be in the hands of children or even of inexperienced adults. Every year many children and adults suffer painful injuries or blindness because of fireworks.

A federal law passed in 1954 makes it illegal to ship fireworks into 33 states and the District of Columbia, except for controlled public exhibitions.

However, in spite of this law there exists a prosperous black market in bootlegged fireworks which again will spell needless tragedy for some Americans this Fourth of July.

There is one family who won't have fireworks this year, and Joe Sparks would like to shout his experience from the housetops to prevent other families from suffering as he has suffered.

PLANNED TO CELEBRATE

Last year the Sparks family planned a big celebration in their backyard for the Fourth. Joe knew where he could get the fireworks that to him meant the grand and glorious Fourth.

They couldn't be bought in his state, but by driving 20 miles he could reach another state where fireworks were sold. He knew he was not supposed to carry them across a state line but he felt quite sure he would never be searched. So he made the trip and put in a good supply.

He bought firecrackers, pinwheels, Roman candles and a few skyrockets. He planned carefully.

After the picnic supper the children all sat around in a circle while he placed and lighted the fireworks. All went well until almost the end. Joe lighted a Roman candle and nothing happened. He left it in place and finished up with all the rest of the fireworks.

Young Jackie had his eye on that Roman candle that didn't go off, so when the party was about over he ran up to the apparently dead candle.

Just as he peered down into the barrel the thing exploded right into his face. Jackie was knocked over and when his terrified father picked him up his little face was a blackened mass.

He was rushed to the hospital but not all of the skill of the best doctors could save Jackie's eyes. Both eyes were so badly damaged that Jackie must go through the rest of life without the blessing of sight.

Such tragedies are completely unnecessary. Good times can be just as good without the use of dangerous explosives for amusement.

There are, of course, sparklers and other types of special Fourth of July celebrations that are safe and fun.

In addition big public displays of fireworks are beautiful to see and are managed by experienced operators who protect themselves and the spectators from injury.

In addition to the danger of such terrible tragedies as happened to Jackie Sparks, it's not too good for the children to take part in any bootlegged activity.

We want our children to respect the law of the land and to obey it and not to feel it's smart to hoodwink the authorities.

Playgoers Are Amused by 'Janus'

Will-O-Way Show Will Be Presented Through July 14.

Imagine making hundreds of thousands of dollars over a period of seven years and not being able to use it — then having both income tax and husband troubles at the same time!

"Janus", by Carolyn Green, opened Monday night at the Will-O-Way Playhouse on West Long Lake road.

In private life Martha Craig is the wife of the Will-O-Way director, William Merrill. Before her marriage she studied drama under Maude Adams at Stephens College. Since she became Mrs. Merrill she has pinch-hit any number of times on the summer theater stage and has done all kinds of the jobs backstage.

Jessica and Denny Rousseau (Robert Bryson) write "lusty, busty" novels together each summer, using historical figures. They have been fabulously successful. But since neither one's mate knows of the relationship they have been unable to use the money they earn; they merely keep it in a shoe box!

Jessica's husband, Gil (played by disk jockey Joe Van), suddenly and unexpectedly appears on the scene. So does an income tax investigator, aptly portrayed by Richard Davies. The resulting tangle is funny, frustrating and entertaining.

The only other member of the cast is Minnie Jo Curtis who this week plays a literary agent. Minnie Jo always has a good time on stage; her enthusiasm is catching. Both players and audience respond.

As usual, the current Will-O-Way production is a polished performance. Director and actors are proud of the rating given their theater — one of the 10 leading playhouses in the straw-hat league.

"Janus" will run through July 14. On July 15 the curtain will go up on "Bus Stop" by William Inge.

Tip on Cleaning White Shoes

The first step in cleaning white canvas or linen shoes is to scrub off mud and surface dirt with thickly beaten soap or detergent suds.

Rinse with a cloth wrung from clean warm water. Then apply a whitening polish intended for fabric shoes and allow to dry away from heat.

Exercise Alone Will Solve This Problem

Shelf-Like Hipline Mars Silhouette

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

She walked into the room
Just like a lovely dream.
She turned her side to us.
And was SHE off the beam!

★ ★ ★

But she is fate of man,
To hope and never find
The perfect silhouette
Until he's lost his mind.

Even the woman whose weight is ideal for her height and build may, and often does, have one measurement which is out of proportion and therefore spoils an otherwise beautiful silhouette.

The back hipline is often the offender. You can have very slim hips, front and backview, but still have that shelf-like appearance, sideview. This CAN be reduced if you do the right exercises regularly. Exercise is the only answer to this problem.

The following exercise is a good one for this figure fault. Sit on the floor with your legs stretched out in front of you. Hands are on the floor at your sides. Bend both knees up close to the tummy, lifting the heels from the floor. Lean back slightly, just far enough for the weight of the body to fall directly over the largest part of your hips.

Now roll from side to side (keeping the legs in the same position). Catch yourself with your hands (with your right hand as you roll to the right, with the left hand when you roll to the left).

If you do this exercise on the bare floor it may be too uncomfortable. It is still effective when done on a mat or carpet.

Another: Lie on the floor on your left side. Brace yourself by placing your right hand on the floor in front of you. Swing the right leg forward as you swing your left leg backward. Swing your left leg forward as your right swings backward. Continue.

This is like a scissors, legs moving in opposite directions. Do this vigorously. You will be more comfortable if you place a little pad under your hips. After a while turn onto your right side and continue.

If you would like to have my tested, hip-slimming exercises, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 3 to Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press.

Tomorrow: "Fight for Domination Bad for Couple and Children."

Asks About Invitations to Funerals

BY EMILY POST

"Dear Mrs. Post: In a recent answer to a question concerning funerals, you told one of your readers that 'unless a funeral's private, nearest friends of the family are supposed to go to the funeral without waiting to be asked.' I do not agree with you on this score as the family may not be in a position to have a large funeral and may want to the limit it to the nearest relatives.

"If all the friends of the family decided to go it would mean hiring extra funeral cars to accommodate them, and as you know these cars are quite expensive. Won't you please reconsider your answer?"

Answer: I meant that all may go to the church, not to the interment. Also those who have their own cars may drive to the cemetery if they want to and take as many friends as their cars will seat.

"Dar Mrs. Post: Recently I was invited out to dinner and when I arrived my host greeted me, my hostess being late getting dressed. When my hostess apeared she told me not to get up. Frankly, I hadn't intended to, but since she said that to me I wondered if one is expected to rise to greet a tardy hostess."

Answer: Yes, you should have risen to greet your hostess unless you are much older than she.

Shur 'n' Erin's Sons Are Sly at Dodgin' Cupid's Shillelagh

(Ireland's males have not disowned wedlock, but their reluctance to trek to the altar would make you believe they had. Here's a report on this unusual situation by an Irishman who was corralled by a charming colleen 10 long years ago.)

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WEXFORD, Ireland (AP) — There is a creeping social paralysis abroad in this green and lovely land that may be called, for want of a more scientific explanation, middle aisle rickets.

It affects able bodied males between the ages of 19 and 45 and renders them incapable of taking any kind of decisive step that might eventually lead them to the altar.

Mention of "company keeping," let alone marriage, is usually enough to send an Irishman scurrying off to the farthest available hills.

Nearly 70 per cent of Ireland's males are afflicted with this strange malady, making them the most prudent playboys in all the Western World—a nation of confirmed and contented bachelors without serious competition in modern civilization.

LOWEST MARRIAGE RATE

Ireland has the lowest marriage rate of any country in the world, and the oldest marrying age of any in Europe. Her 1946 census showed that of the males in the 20-29-year-old group, only 1 in 10 is married. Even in the next 10-year age group, the figure climbs only to less than 3 in 10.

The average marrying age, for the few who do get married, is 34.9 for men and 29.1 for women. In the United States, the average man of 25 and wife of 22 already have their first child.

What have the Irish got against marriage? What has become of the gay and romantic gossoon of so many Irish songs and stories, the bold, handsome lover-boy who poured out his heart in profuse passion for the likes of Molly Malone, the Rose of Tralee, Kathleen Mavourneen and other lovely colleens?

Poets, priests, sociologists, economists, bankrupt marriage brokers and a whole generation of condemned spinsters join in wondering just what has happened.

In a country where divorce is almost non-existent, sex crimes exceedingly rare and the virtue of purity scrupulously practiced, there is a strong suspicion that somebody stole the wedding ring from the belfry of every church from Cork to Derry.

Ireland has reason to be worried. After losing more than half her sons and daughters in a century of unparalleled emigration and cruel famine, she now is faced with the prospect of surrendering what's left of her 3½ million population to this curious brand of racial suicide.

Various explanations have been offered.

The living is too harsh. The rents too high. The pay too low. The churches too strict. The girls too sharp tongued and independent—"The bite of her tongue would shave the scales off a serpent," as I heard one village belle described.

The mothers too insistent of their sons acquiring a good dowry along with a good mate, or too domineering to allow another woman into the house. The fathers too reluctant to pass on the old homestead or parcel of their land to a married son.

MEN HAVE FAULTS, TOO

And, finally, the boys too addicted to hunting, fishing, horse racing and the conviviality of the local public house; too reluctant to take on the responsibilities of raising a family in a land where famine has left its scars; and at times too demanding of a wife, seeking as one irate spinster complained, "A fine, fat truck horse and not a wife at all."

All of these explanations hold a grain of truth. But none of them individually suffices to explain the peculiar reluctance of the Irish male to settle down.

"Other countries are just as poor, just as religious and have an equally strong family tradition," commented an old Irish priest who has to double as matchmaker in his little rural parish, with less than spectacular success. "But other countries don't have what we have—a profusion, a plague of the most cantakerous bachelors that ever walked free on the face of this earth."

What do Irish bachelors themselves think of the situation?

"I've nothing against it, mind you, and I mean to do it one of these days," said a 36-year-old garage worker. "It's just that I'm not quite ready. There's time enough, you know. No need to jump on any train that comes along and get off at the first station."

It all adds up to the fact that the Irish have nothing at all against marrying. Everyone you meet is talking about doing it some day, but they talk about it the way we would talk about some day getting a yacht or a summer home.

"You know, it's not like American baseball," explained an Irish tourist official, "where they give you three strikes before you're out. Ireland is a Catholic country, which means no divorce, and the first strike counts dearly."

Then too, Ireland is a man's country with man's sports and man's politics and man's occupations. You seldom find a married woman working, except on the farm. Women seldom play golf, attend the hunt, flick a trout rod or enter politics.

They sit on the opposite side of the church and, sometimes, on the opposite side of the dance hall. Few schools are co-educational. Most pubs do not welcome female customers.

THE SLOW APPROACH

In such a tweedy, tobacco-saturated atmosphere, untinged by even the faintest traces of perfume, the Irish bachelor thrives and slowly, ever so slowly, comes to marriageable maturity.

Even when the time for decision does arrive, he need not bother his head about selecting a mate. Quite often the family will take care of that, selecting the bride-to-be with one eye on her dowry and the other on her family background.

There is a story told of one not-so-young bachelor who complained to his father about the mate selected for him. "You didn't tell me, dad," he said, "that she was lame."

"Sure now," answered the father, "you weren't planning on racing her, were you?"

Youth has a beauty of its own but bony spots are wisely veiled in one of the new sheer summer fabrics.

Chiffon this summer makes an ethereal veil of flattery to the new fashions for sports through formals. Whether too thin or too plump, it's smart to veil rather than reveal the less perfect spots of the figure.

Potato Salad Is Good Hot or Chilled

Mrs. Allen Mixes Egg With Vinegar for Tangy Dressing

By JANET ODELL

This is the season for potato salad. If you're planning it for the Fourth of July, try Mrs. Charles H. Allen's recipe. We think you'll like this different taste of the dressing.

Formerly a teacher at Wisner school, Mrs. Allen is now a homemaker with one small son. She belongs to Tuesday Musicale, to the Pontiac General Hospital Auxiliary and Pan Hellenic. This summer she is doing some tutoring. Music and cooking are her hobbies.

POTATO SALAD
By Mrs. Charles H. Allen

6 potatoes
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped onion
4 slices bacon, diced
⅓ cup bacon drippings
⅔ cup vinegar
1½ teaspoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon sugar
1 beaten egg

Cook, peel and slice potatoes. Fry bacon crisp, saving the drippings. Add bacon bits, green pepper and onions to potatoes. Beat egg well and add to rest of dressing ingredients. Pour over vegetables.

This salad is delicious served warm or cold. Serves six.

DSR Ends Up in Red

DETROIT (AP) — The Department of Street Railways ended its fiscal year June 30 in the red an estimated $125,000 to $150,000. General Manager Leo J. Nowicki said the income of city buses was nearly $500,000 below that of the preceding year.

Despite His 3 Missing Babies

Doctor Works in Cameron

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—When the people of Cameron head back to their destroyed town, they will find Dr. Cecil Clark ready to tend their needs in his cleaned-out clinic and hospital.

★ ★ ★

Searchers still have not found his three babies. His wife spends most of her time in bed, recovering from the beating she received when she floated 18 hours in the raging flood water of Hurricane Audrey. His oldest son suffers from nightmares. And their home—once the showplace of Cameron—is gone.

★ ★ ★

But Dr. Clark is determined he will be able to serve a useful function when Cameron residents start rebuilding. His clinic will be ready for them.

The 32-year-old Clark sat in his friend's home here in the muddy khaki slacks he wore when he cleaned out his clinic today. He was barefooted and wore an old blue shirt.

His wife sat in bed reading.

Clark left his home during the height of the hurricane Thursday to take care of his patients. The storm prevented him from returning and three of his five children died when the house collapsed. The two boys who survived were out fo town visiting their grandparents.

"I've been going back every day trying to clean up the place, get the mud and water out of the hospital," he said.

His large house was completed last October, Clark said. He recalled the bedroom was his favorite place where "we sat at night and watched television after the kids had gone to bed. They had a playroom on the other side of the house."

"I plan to build the house in the same place," but he added slowly, "the house won't be as big."

Killed by the hurricane were Jack, 3 months old, who was torn from Mrs. Clark's arms by the storm; Cecily Marie, 1½; and Elizabeth Diane, 3. Eight-year-old John David and 6-year-old Cecil Joseph were saved because they visited their grandparents in another town.

Tradition in Legislature

LANSING (AP) — The House of the Michigan Legislature has a tradition of putting on a celebration when the first 100 bills have been introduced. But it's not a wild one. The legislator offering the 100th bill has to foot the bill for a round of ice cream in paper cups for all the lawmakers.

Count to Four for Good Diet

Teenagers in the know should be aware of the importance of diet to their health and good looks. Surprisingly, after all the words that have been spoken and written on the subject of diet, scientists still find that many youngsters are "starving."

That, of course, does not mean that teenagers are going hungry in most cases, but that they are not getting enough of the foods that contain all the nutrients they require. Besides being a time of phenomenal growth, the years between twelve and twenty are years of tremendous physical activity both in and out of school. And most youngsters are anxious to be "in" on all the fun that's an integral part of these activities.

A good daily diet that supplies the vitamins and minerals as well as energy to grow and "go" on is easy to check—as easy as counting to four, in fact.

Drink at least one quart of milk. Some of the milk may be skimmed if overweight is a problem. Cheese or ice cream may take the place of some of the milk.

Eat two servings of meat, poultry, fish, eggs, nuts or legumes. At least one portion should be in the form of meat, fish or poultry.

Eat three servings of enriched-raised bread or cereal.

Eat four servings of fruit and vegetables. At least one serving should be a yellow or green leafy vegetable and one a citrus fruit such as orange or grapefruit.

Other foods such as sweets, pasta, butter or margarine may be added to the diet for extra calories, variety and interest but should not replace the required food.

Crime in the U.S. costs about $15 billion a year, authorities estimate.

Prepare for Youth Festival

Reds Refurbish Buildings

MOSCOW (AP) — The crumbling, tumbledown churches of Moscow are being whitewashed in preparation for the sixth world festival of youth and students.

It's part of the sweeping face lifting job this Soviet capital has been undergoing for weeks. About 30,000 youths from abroad are expected to attend the festival July 28-Aug. 11. Every hotel, restaurant and public building in Moscow is being refurbished to welcome and impress them.

There is little doubt the bulk of Soviet youth has been looking forward to the festival with genuine eagerness. The question most frequently asked by young Russians is: "How many Americans are coming?"

No one seems to know. The festival committee says it's ready to handle 2,500 Americans, but so far only 96 have officially registered their intention to attend.

The U.S. government opposes American participation on the ground that previous festivals have been used as a forum for attacks against the United States.

The Russians have been booming this year's festival as a strictly nonpolitical celebration of international "friendship for friendship's sake."

That is the spirit in which most young Russians, hungry for foreign contacts and devoured with curiosity about the outside world, are looking forward to it.

"It'll be years before we get another chance like this to meet foreigners," one young Russian said.

The crowded calendar will include sports, workers' discussions and lectures.

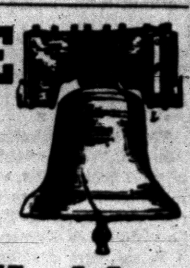

Parent-Teacher associations in the U.S. have 10 million members.

Diagnosis by X-ray —year 1900

Compare the early x-ray equipment in this 1900 print from the Bettmann Archive with the modern x-ray equipment used in today's Blue Cross participating hospitals, and you have an idea of how far medical care has advanced in the last 57 years.

...thank goodness times have changed!

The early x-ray machine . . . medical marvel of its time . . . was a crude looking affair that was of little or no help to doctors in delicate diagnosis. It was used primarily to confirm major bone fractures and could detect little else.

This, thank goodness, is no longer true.

Today's x-ray machine is a remarkably precise instrument. So sensitive it can reveal the smallest bone fracture . . . show up irregularities in skin tissue . . . detect lung and intestinal diseases in the early stages, when prompt treatment is so vitally important.

Every new development in life-saving equipment like the modern x-ray machine means better hospital care for all of us. Costly, precision equipment like this . . . and the skilled hands it takes to operate it . . . quite naturally mean higher hospital bills, too.

But isn't the cost of living worth it?

If you are a member of Michigan Blue Cross (and half the people in Michigan are), then you need never worry about increased hospital costs at the time of your illness. Bilked Antique Lover Gets Revenge

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

OLD STURBRIDGE, Mass. (INS) —Most people, at one time or a-worser in their lives, get skunked, bilked, film-flammed on a business deal. It makes them mad as all get out.

★ ★ ★

Later they usually can laugh a little and cry a little and drop the incident into that dark, nasty niche of the mind created by whatever Pollyanna it was who said, "Experience is the best teacher."

Not so, though, with antique collectors.

The student of aged goods, like the enthusiast of aged whiskys, considers himself a notch above the merchant, not to mention mankind in general. To be sold a bill of fake goods is a personal affront to the integrity.

This is the position in which Albert B. Wells might have found himself back in 1930, when he tried to overcome his restlessness by collecting antiques. The first shop he visited, as a novice, gave him a rather bum deal on a piece of alleged "Americana"—which just wasn't quite.

Instead of barking back at his bilker, or retiring his "beef" to his brain cells, Mr. Wells spent the rest of his life getting even. He became the best goldurn Americana collector in Massachusetts and, eventually, built an entire New England village—full of antiques for all the world to see.

It's called "Old Sturbridge Village," and is a recreation of life among the young and ambitious Americans of the year 1700. To stroll through it (at $1.75 the curious head) takes a day; to study its many lessons in early American life possibly would require years.

AMBULANCE CHASING, ANYONE? — This tiny ambulance makes you think some circus midgets might have been in an accident. Actually, it is one of a number of miniature vehicles that took part in a recent traffic contest for Italian high school students, held in St. Peter's Square, Rome.

The village must be entered on foot across a quick and angry stream, through a covered bridge full of pierced heart carvings. The initials therein are from 20th Century lovers—in the early 18th Century, the courting practices were less vandalistic.

But the stream was there 250 years ago, and so were many of the ancient buildings beyond, which Mr. Wells moved, tenderly, from other parts of New England into this village, plank by plank and nail by nail.

There is the grist mill, the tavern, the smithy's and the wheelwright's. The boot shop, the church and the meeting house.

The herb garden beside the herb barn still grows the stuffs that killed colds every bit as effectively as modern science can, and cured witch curses as well. There is columbine for irregularity, anise for fighting nausea, and catnip for grippe.

PRINTING OFFICE

And, near the church, there's Isaiah Thomas' printing office where an elderly gentleman, dressed to resemble the late—quite late—Isaiah is rolling off broadsides on a venerable hand press. Titled, "A Warning to Tippiers."

★ ★ ★

Hundreds of thousands of antiques, all as genuine as the wide eyes of those who stroll through Old Sturbridge each year, are collected here.

Of them all, the most popular with man and boy are the stocks and pillory, 18th Century instruments of punishment before which no 20th Century tourist can help but feel lucky—and pose for photographs.

Mr. Wells no doubt would like to have relegated his first antique dealer to this section of the village for occasional flogging.

To the delight of 100,000 people a year, he got even another way.

Hollowed Cake Golden Filled

Especially appealing for any special occasion dessert, it will not take too much of your time. The basis is a sponge or angel food cake mix. (You can use a freshly baked basic cake or one that is previously baked and frozen.) The center is hollowed out and filled with a luscious tropical ice cream sundae combination consisting of vanilla ice cream, golden pineapple, marshmallows, dates and pecans.

Tropical Sundae Cake

1 package sponge or angel cake mix
2 cups crushed pineapple, drained
6 marshmallows, cut into pieces
1 quart vanilla ice cream
½ cup finely cut dates
½ cup chopped pecans
¼ cup pecan halves

Warm pineapple slightly. Stir in marshmallows. Let stand till cold. With a fork, quickly swirl pineapple into slightly softened ice cream. Do not blend completely, but rather sort of streak it in. Gently stir in dates and chopped pecans.

Mother-in-Law Pushes His Car to Its Destruction

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—"My car wouldn't start," Clarence L. Liles, 18, told police, "so I asked my mother-in-law to give me a push with her car.

"She agreed, and soon she was pushing me. Before long the rear axle on my car broke. I told my mother-in-law to keep on pushing. A block farther on, the left wheel fell off.

"I started down the street to use a telephone to call a tow truck. I wasn't very far down the street when my mother-in-law called to tell me a train was coming.

"Then I realized the front end of my car was on the railroad tracks. I started running to flag down the train.

"I waved at the engineer, but he just smiled and kept going."

The engineer, W. J. Schroeder, told police he thought the boy was joking.

Schroeder said he thought the locomotive had room to miss the car and didn't realize his mistake until he heard the crash.

Man, 73, Plans to Hike Across United States

Patrick P. Thienes, a retired railroadman, said he'll follow Route 66 to Tulsa and hopes to reach New York by Sept. 5.

Students Dive Into Big Business

Floating Lunch Counter Launched

It's a floating lunch counter, motorized with a 16-horsepower engine to propel it around to customers at nearby Clark Lake.

Their 12-by-15 foot raft will carry food and beverages to lake residents at docks, rafts or boats.

The white-painted platform floats on 14 barrels, edged by a three-foot canvas railing. It will have a fringed striped canopy in gray, white and yellow and carries official running lights at port, starboard and stern.

SOFT DRINKS, ETC.

"We want to provide a center of interest for teenagers at the lake," the boys said. "We'll serve ready-made sandwiches from a restaurant, soft drinks, gum and candy."

For example, they had to buy a sales tax license, insurance and get permission to operate from the Columbia Township Board and Jackson County Board of Health.

To meet health requirements, they installed running water to wash their hands, a barrel for used water which must be emptied ashore, and all three got chest X-rays.

An airtight motor box protects food from fumes; a waste barrel protects the premises from litter. A small power unit provides electricity for two iceboxes and a soft drink cooler.

The boys figure they've invested about $500 so far in their "Raft-A-Teria." It will patrol the lake on weekends and the trio hopes to get in full operation in time for the Fourth of July holiday.

"We hope to make some profit," the young partners admit. "Otherwise the business experience will be valuable."

Henry is majoring in hotel management at Michigan State University where Mitchell is a pre-law student. Arthur attends Howe Military Academy.

Scientists have found 150 different chemicals in the orange and they believe there are at least 100 more yet to be found.

Security for You

Visions of Summer Lead to Payments

By RAY HENRY
Associated Press Writer

But, last January in St. Joseph, Mo., an air conditioner prompted a 64-year-old woman to make a decision about her Social Security payments.

The woman had stopped by her Social Security office to ask some questions. She explained that she would be 65 in June and that she would be drawing payments based on her husband's Social Security record. He was already getting monthly payments.

She got this information:

Congress had recently lowered the Social Security retirement age for women from 65 to 62. She was already eligible for payments back to November.

SLIGHTLY LOWER

But, if she accepted the payments now they would be slightly lower than if she waited until she reached 65 to draw them. Her payments now would be $41.40 a month. Her payments if she waited until 65 would be $43.40 a month. If she took the lower payments, they would remain at that level even after she reached 65.

She told the Social Security representative she'd wait.

Then she spotted an air conditioner in the office.

"How much did you pay for that?" she asked.

"About $300," was the answer.

When she heard this, she asked the representative to figure out how much money she'd have by June if she accepted her payments now. It turned out to be $289.90.

The woman changed her mind, decided to take her payments now and buy an air conditioner in June.

Perhaps, this is an unusual way to make a decision about Social Security payments. But, the mathematics of the woman's case do illustrate whether the average wife would be better off taking her payments before she reaches 65.

(Questions on Social Security problems may be addressed to "Social Security," in care of The Pontiac Press. Questions will be answered by mail from the Pontiac office of the Social Security Administration. There is no charge for this service.)

Nuclear Plant Insurance Bill Passed by House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government insurance against heavy damage from accidents in privately run nuclear power plants would be provided in a bill passed by the House yesterday. The measure now goes to the Senate.

The bill would provide government insurance up to 500 million dollars. Under its terms, the government would assume liability for damages bigger than coverage available from private insurance firms. Operators would pay premiums based on the capacity of their plants.

Luck of Irish? Jewish Mayor Loses in Draw

DUBLIN (AP)—The luck of the draw has cost Dublin's only Jewish lord mayor in history, Robert Briscoe, the job it won for him a year ago.

Members of the Dublin City Council balloted last night to fill the top municipal post for the coming year. Briscoe and independent Alderman James Carroll tied with 21 votes each. Following tradition, their names went into a hat — and Carroll's came out first.

Briscoe, who captured Americans' hearts during a seven-week tour of the United States this year, took his defeat in stride.

"I have had a very hectic year," he told the Council. "Though I said last year I would only accept one term, I was prevailed upon to go forward again. I wish the new lord mayor every success in his office."

At the new mayor's request, the Council gave Briscoe a rising vote of thanks for the good will he won for Ireland during his recent American tour.

Briscoe, veteran member of Minister Eamon De Valera's Fianna Fail party, tied Lord Mayor Denis Larkin in the Council vote a year ago. That time he won the resulting draw.

Junior Editors Quiz on AN ARTIST

ANSWER: The artist was Michaelangelo, who was born in 1475 and grew up in Florence, Italy, the great art center of his time.

By the time he was 20 years old, he was known for his paintings in many of the churches of Florence. He carved the statues of David and Moses that became very famous. In later years, he drew the plans for the huge dome of St. Peters in Rome.

One of his greatest, most amazing works was a painting of the story of the creation on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel. To paint it he had to lay on his back on a scaffold high above the floor, and work at top speed for four and a half years. He was often cold, ill and hungry, but he finished the work that covers over 5,000 square feet, and still ranks as one of the world's great art masterpieces.

FOR YOU TO DO: Would you like to learn how the great artists first learned to master their colors? They mixed their own from various materials. Mix two of yours together to form another color. Red and yellow, for instance, make orange while blue and yellow make green. What other colors can you mix?

Not in terms of food, of course. But will they be denied the mental and spiritual nourishment of a good college education?

This is a real danger, faced by you, your family and the nation. The pressure of college applications is mounting fast. It will double by 1967. And though our colleges and universities are trying valiantly to meet the challenge, they need your help—to increase capacity, raise faculty salaries, assure a sound education for all the boys and girls who should have it.

A free America needs educated people. Help the colleges or universities of your choice—now! The returns will be greater than you think.

Consider Food Cost in Relation to Wages

In actual dollars and cents, food costs more than it did before World War II, but when you measure costs in terms of an hour's labor, prices are not so high.

★ ★ ★

In 1939, the average hour's pay for a factory worker would buy eight loaves of bread; today an hour's pay buys 11 loaves. In pre-war days, an hour's pay would buy 1.8 pounds of steak; today it will buy 2.2 pounds.

★ ★ ★

That same hourly wage 17 years ago would buy a little over 10 quarts of milk; today it buys 16 quarts. It used to buy two pounds of bacon or two dozen eggs. Today it buys three-and-a-half pounds of bacon or three-and-a-third dozen eggs.

★ ★ ★

Name any important food, and an hour of today's wages will buy from one-fifth to one-half more than in 1939.

Food Bill Can Be Cut Down if You Try

How can you make the grocery bill smaller? It takes a bit of "doing." These are suggestions from the MSU Marketing Information Agent, Mrs. Josephine Lawyer.

★ ★ ★

Foods in season are usually your best bet for bargains. Top quality beef, veal and poultry are summer meat offerings with more pork in fall and winter.

★ ★ ★

Fresh fruits and vegetables are not the seasonal problem they once were. Frozen foods keep them in season all year 'round. In fact, frozen foods are sometimes less expensive than fresh during the fresh season.

★ ★ ★

A poor growing season in one part of the country affects the price of fresh produce everywhere. It always pays to compare while you shop and check food ads before you shop.

★ ★ ★

Another rule that may go astray is that bigger packages mean bigger savings. This is true most of the time, but don't take it for granted. Check weights and prices before deciding to buy one big package or two small ones.

City's 703rd Tank Battalion 'Battles' at Camp McCoy Exercises

By JOE SINGLETON

CAMP McCOY, Wis. — Pontiac and the rest of the United States can be proud of divisions like the 70th Infantry Division, which includes Pontiac's 703rd tank battalion.

★ ★ ★

This U.S. Army reserve division, which moved en mass to this training area last week for two weeks of field training, gave an impressive demonstration of its power last Saturday morning in a giant parade with Gen. C. E. Dougherty, commanding general of the 70th division, reviewing the troops.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

To top off the two weeks of training here, the entire 70th division, a part of the Fifth Army, will stage a simulated "attack" during an overnight bivouac, with the 703rd lending tank support to the operation.

★ ★ ★

During this important phase of the two-week training period, each battalion has to put into practice all that it has learned during the weekly classes back home, plus the training it received during the summer field training exercises.

★ ★ ★

This will be as close to the "real thing" as the division will come short of actual combat.

Every man in the outfit looks forward to this demonstration of power. Lt. William H. Anderson Jr., a Walled Lake resident and company commander of "D" company, puts it this way:

"This mass demonstration gives each man a whole picture of all the units working together as a team and it shows every soldier why it is so important to practice over and over on one phase of training, for one mistake on the part of a man might someday mean life or death, victory or defeat."

★ ★ ★

The troops will return from the fields Thursday afternoon and will make ready to clean and store the equipment Friday in order to depart from camp Saturday afternoon.

Members of the 703rd are expected back in Pontiac sometime Sunday morning.

TANKS IN FIRING LINE — These tanks are lined up on the firing range to practice use of the 30-caliber machine gun, with crews of the 703rd Tank Battalion, of Pontiac, manning the weapons. The members of the battalion are in the second week of their training trip to Camp McCoy, Wisconsin, where they are training as part of the 70th Infantry Division.

AMMUNITION SUPPLY—Sgt.1.C. Leo Nicholson, 2175 Lotus Dr., Waterford, assists the loading 30-caliber machine gun ammunition with Pvt. Charles J. Gabrieu, 456 S. Broadway, Lake Orion, and Pfc. Kenneth Deneweth, 36 Fessenden St., Mt. Clemens handing up the ammo. Each tank has machine guns mounted for ground support and air defense.

Crews Man 16-Ton Tanks Like the One in Pontiac

While on the two-week maneuver, the 703rd is utilizing M-47 tanks similar to the tank it uses for training purposes in Pontiac.

★ ★ ★

The 16-ton vehicle is equipped with a 90-millimeter cannon, a .50 caliber machine gun for air defense and two .30 caliber machine guns for ground fire.

NO LOCAL RANGE

The Pontiac reservists don't get to fire the guns except in Wisconsin, due to the lack of a local range big enough to accommodate the cannon, with a two-mile range.

★ ★ ★

Tests and contests in the firing of both tank weapons and small arms are held during the two-week exercise.

CREW READY — Prepared for action in a tank maneuver are Pfc. Robert Anderson, 722 N. Long Lake Rd., Lake Orion; Pvt. Curtis Webb, 205 Cedardale, Pontiac; Lt. John Brink, 3820 Valley Hills Rd., Bloomfield Hills; Pfc. Ray Thompson, 28 Portage St., Pontiac; and M.Sgt. Dale Morse, 5208 Drayton Rd., Clarkston.

COMMANDERS TAKE A LOOK — Lt. Col. Lloyd A. Gabler, 18700 Autumn Lane, Birmingham, (middle) climbs into a tank with Maj. Gen. C. E. Dougherty, commanding general of the 70th Infantry Division. Col. Gabler is battalion commander of the 703rd Tank Battalion of Pontiac. The enlisted man is Roosevelt Blackmon, of 381 Ditmar, Pontiac.

REPAIR JOB — Each crew member of a tank is supposed to be able to make minor repairs on the vehicle, just as PFC Roosevelt Blackmon, 381 Ditmar, and Pfc. Warren E. Carlen, 11055 River Rd., Utica, are doing here.

Pennsylvania Dutch Welcome World to Dine With Them at Folk Festival

KUTZTOWN, Pa. (NEA) — "Koom essa" is the traditional mealtime call in the Pennsylvania Dutch country and it means mountains of delicious foods are ready and waiting.

For the eighth consecutive year, the Pennsylvania Dutch will welcome the whole world to dine with them at their folk festival at the Kutztown fairgrounds from Wednesday through Sunday. Kutztown is halfway between Reading and Allentown on U.S. 222.

TASTY DISHES

Tasty dishes which have made the Pennsylvania Dutch (Pennsylfawnische Dietch) famous for generations will be prepared by farm women as well as church and grange folks.

Last year some 50,000 persons from all parts of the nation and 11 foreign lands whetted their appetites at the fairgrounds. An even greater number are expected to converge on the fairgrounds this year.

Such unique Pennsylfawnische Dietch foods as gawrdawaigle, hubba beer, balsam tea, puppli, oier and balle kase will be in plentiful supply. Apple butter will be made in large old-fashioned kettles by women using long wooden spoons for stirring. Many ancient farm implements will be on exhibit.

SATISFY APPETITES

Visitors will also be able to satisfy their appetites on schnit un gnepp, butt boi, snavely sticks, rivvel soup, shoo-fly pie and schmear kase.

And for the first time visitors will be able to take home such treats as homemade kannebrote (bread); pepper cabbage (pefper grauts); pickled red eggs, (rote reva oier); fresh sausage and many other delicious items made by Titus Sensenig and his wife, along with other "Plain" folks of Ephrata, Lancaster County.

Among the highlights at the festival will be a two-hour pageant depicting Pennsylvania Dutch farm life. It will be presented July 4, 6 and 7. A two-day seminar on all phases of the region's folklore will be held July 3 and 5.

SNAKE FENCES

Persons interested in farming methods of early Pennsylvania Dutch settlers will be able to watch demonstrations of threshing, snake and post fence construction, quilting, butter churning, butchering and milking.

Some 50 craftsmen including many old-timers will demonstrate their skills. There will be a coppersmith, blacksmith, wheelwright, potter, weaver, glassblower and even a "hex" sign painter.

A "calico corner" will be set up so housewives will be able to purchase yarns from more than a score of patterns traditional to the Pennsylvania Dutch.

A large section of the festival will be devoted to antiques, including heirlooms which have descended in families since the original Pennsylvania Dutch immigrants arrived from Germany in the 17th Century; and to the work of modern local artisans in the decoraitve arts.

One of the features of the festival will be evening jigging and hoedowning contests to select champion square-dancing teams of the Pennsylvania Dutch country.

A decorative motif which will be prominently displayed is the brightly painted Distelfink, a stylized bird which has become to be something of the symbol of the Pennsylvania Dutch.

Tells of Slaying Spouse, Sawing Man in Sections

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (INS) — Arraignment proceedings will be held in Memphis City court today for a 28-year-old woman who confessed she smashed her husband's head with a claw hammer and then sawed the body into three sections which were dumped in a creek.

Mrs. Mary Imogene Spout, a Memphis factory worker, admitted last night to the June 20 murder of her husband, Floyd, 33, and gave a detailed statement of the night of horror.

"Sawing him was the most terrible experience any human being ever went through," she said.

Police said Mrs. Spout blamed her husband's snoring and arguments over finances for the murder and she asserted that had she not killed him that night, he would have killed her.

Police quoted her as saying she had argued with her husband the night of June 19, before going to bed. She added:

"I woke him up a little after midnight and we started arguing again. We were in the hall and I hit him in the head with a claw hammer. My temper got the best of me, I guess.

"I examined him and decided he was dead. If there had been any way on earth to save his life, I would have called a doctor. But I saw it was useless."

Mrs. Spout said she placed an oil cloth under the body and got out the hacksaw. She related:

"I'm sure he was dead when I started to saw him because he made no movements. I was completely numb at the time, like a dead person myself."

SECTIONED BODY

Mrs. Spout, whose factory job it was to package sanitary paper napkins, told of sawing the body into three sections, the head, the torso and the legs, and bundling them up separately to put them in a car.

"The bundles were heavy," she said, "and it was hard for me to do. It will be hard on me to the end."

She then drove to her hometown of Dyersburg, Tenn., 70 miles from Memphis and deposited the remains of her husband in a creek which runs into the Twin River.

When police asked her how well she had been sleeping since the murder, she answered:

"I slept as well since as I did before when I had to be in the house with him."

He 'Cross-Examines' Kremlin

CLEVELAND — (NEA) — Dick Kuehn wants to be a lawyer — and he's certainly got a tough witness on the stand in a big "case."

Dick's been questioning Moscow radio on the lives, thoughts and intentions of the Russian people. He has no intention of letting them "step down."

Actually, a practical joke led to the 18-year-old high school senior's quizzing the Kremlin. A friend, Bruce Straits, was behind it all, Dick disclosed.

Posing as Dick, Bruce wrote Radio Moscow and said he was an avid listener. That was in July, 1956. Dick received a reply last January.

As an obvious part of a form, the reply asked whether Dick had any questions. He did.

He composed a set of 10 questions and airmailed them to Moscow. He received a cablegram in February that told him he would get his answers on 10 consecutive nights over Moscow radio.

Dick located two short-wave receivers whose owners would cooperate. Then he began to hear the case for the defense.

ASKS QUESTIONS

Moscow announced each night that it was answering a given question in a series asked by Dick, gave his address and launched into the answer.

"Most of it was propaganda," he said. "However, they did make sense sometimes."

"After all," he said, "they're like a lawyer doing what he can to present a good case for his client. You can't blame them for that."

★ ★ ★

Typical questions Dick asked include what ordinary Russians think of President Eisenhower (they "respect him"); and whether the USSR plans greater participation in world trade (they might).

Dick is busy compiling more questions, and he has what appears to be the perfect contrast in background with which to stand up to Moscow and fire away.

He lives in a comfortable two-story home in a better-than-average section of Cleveland. His father, a salesman of dictating machines, is firmly Republican, also the party of Dick's choice. The rest of his family includes his mother and 14-year-old brother.

Lake Plan Backfires, 10,000 Fish Smother

READING, Pa. (AP)—A chemical intended to eliminate a thick scum from Carsonia Lake had an entirely unexpected result — it killed practically all the fish.

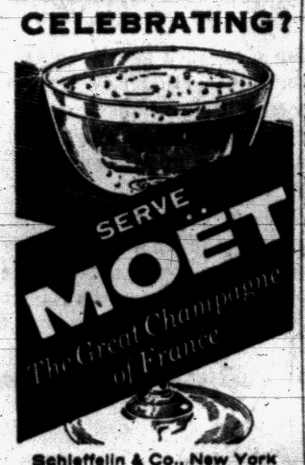

Officials put the chemical in the water to get rid of algae, tiny marine plants that caused the scum.

The algae were destroyed but some 10,000 dead fish floated in the two-block long lake, used chiefly for fishing and boating.

The chemical was believed to have been used when the water being too warm, causing the fish to smother.

Agent Charged With Larceny

Realty Man Accused of Converting $3,000 in Birmingham

A Birmingham real estate agent's business activities will be investigated by the Oakland County Prosecutor's office.

Chief Assisant Prosecutor George F. Taylor said he will make the probe into the business affairs of Tom Elston, who is charged with converting to his private use a prospective home purchaser's $3,000 deposit.

Taylor said Elston is suspected of swindling "possibly as much as $10,000" from a number of customers over the past eight months.

Elston, arraigned in Circuit Court Monday, stood mute to a charge of larceny by conversion and was returned to Oakland County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Specifically, Elston is accused by a Bloomfield Hills man, J. Denton Anderson, 760 Lone Pine Rd., with mishandling a $3,000 check he gave Elston as a deposit on a home last April 17.

Anderson, who said at pre-trial examination last week that he was acting for his father in the purchase, testified that after he gave Elston the check, the seller decided not to go through with the deal.

CHAPTER 33

Some things a man never forgets; some scenes are so deeply burned into his consciousness by the white-hot iron of danger that they linger in his memory until his death. So it was now. Gene Dillingham stood in the middle of the room, his .45 in his hand, the same gun he had laid on the porch the day I, Will Beeson, fought him.

Sarah Pardee sat in the wheel chair behind Dillingham, her face pale, her hands gripping the arms of her chair, but in the quick glance I gave her I saw she wasn't panicky, and that gave me hope.

All I could think of to say was, "Well, Gene, I haven't seen you for a long time."

I stomped snow from my boots; I took off my hat and beat it against my legs, then threw it on the couch. It was all the bravado I could muster, but it was enough to impress Dillingham.

"By God, you're a cool one!" he said.

"Cool!" I said. "I'm cold. It must be twenty below outside."

I took off my coat and tossed it after the hat. Still Dillingham stood as motionless as if he and the gun were carved out of granite. I was doing the only thing I could. If I ignored the gun in his hand, there was a chance he would get rattled, a chance Sarah could produce a miracle, a chance if either Maria or Dogbone was alive and free one of them could do something. But once I provoked him into action, there was no chance at all.

He stood there looking at me, the cocked gun lined on my belly. The sheer unexpectedness of my behavior left him confused and uncertain.

Then Sarah said the wrong thing: "Don't be facetious, Will. He's here to murder us. He said that you'd be along before morning, and that he'd wait that long for you if he had to."

Dillingham said: "Yeah, I've been waitin'. Take off your gun belt and lay it on the table—slow."

I obeyed him. "Kathy's all right," I said as calmly as I could. "She tells me you got away with more than $4,000."

"That ain't all," Dillingham said with satisfaction. "Me'n Turner done purty well with Anchor cows this summer." He motioned me back from the table. "I'm goin' away a rich man, Beeson. I'm gonna be as big on some other range as Joe Pardee was on this one. That's why I'm cleanin' the widow out. Joe always had some dinero on hand. I reckon she has, too. Where is it?"

For the first time I felt that I had a chance; he presented me with the handle I'd been looking for. "When you find it, will you kill us, Gene?" I asked. "Is that the way we stand? Is it?"

He nodded, his heavy lips pressed together tightly.

"Why should I tell you?" I said.

"You can get it quick and easy," he said, "or slow and hard." He motioned with his left hand toward Sarah's wheel chair. "You've always been sweet on her. If you want to save her some misery, you better talk up."

Dillingham was looking intently at me, paying no attention to Sarah. To him I was the one who represented possible danger, not a paralyzed woman in a wheel chair, and in his judgment I was the one who would lead him to Sarah's money.

"She's got a little, Gene," I said. "I'd find it for you if I knew you'd keep your word."

I had trouble keeping my voice steady. Sarah had stepped out of her chair and was walking toward the desk set against the far wall. I had to keep my eyes on Dillingham, had to keep him looking at me.

I caught little more than a blur from the edge of my vision, but I saw enough to shock me almost as much as Dillingham would have been shocked if he had seen her. She moved with the grace and speed of a woman who had been walking all the time, not with the labored, painful effort I had seen just before she had fallen that day weeks ago.

Dillingham said: "Maybe you don't know I'm gonna keep my word, but if you're smart you'll take a chance I will."

He started to turn his head. I said quickly: "Gene, if I have to beg for my life, I will."

"Getting down on your knees ain't gonna do you no good," he said. "I'm done waitin'. Where is it?"

Sarah was at the desk pulling the top drawer open. I said: "In the couch. Sarah ripped a seam open — "

"All right, all right." He pulled a knife out of his pocket and tossed it on the couch. "Slice it open and give it to me. If you got a gun over there you're tryin' to get your hands on, you're a goner."

I didn't want to go to the couch. If I did, I'd be ten feet farther from the table than I was now, ten feet that would cost me seconds. Sarah was fumbling in the drawer. Sweat poured out of me and dripped down my body.

Dillingham laughed. "Come on, come on!"

I shook my head at him. "Use your head, Gene. There isn't much money. Just the $500 I brought from Canon City—"

"Drop your gun, Gene!"

Sarah's voice did not come from where she had been sitting in her wheel chair. She had moved a good twenty feet. He must have been aware of that at once, for he remained motionless a second or so, too surprised to turn. When he did, I lunged toward the table.

Shefired, and I heard him yell in pain, heard his gun strike the floor; then I grabbed my holster in one hand and my gun in the other and yanked it free. When I got my eyes on Dillingham, he was bending over, reaching for his .45 with his left hand. I shot him. He fell, and I fired again.

I went to him and turned him over with my boot. He was dead. I laid my gun on the table, and swung around to face Sarah, who was walking toward me. She clutched a small single-shot pistol in her right hand, a gun she had used for target shooting before she'd had her accident.

"I shot him in the hand; I shot him in the hand and made him drop his gun!" she said shrilly. "I couldn't make myself kill him, Will. I couldn't."

She was near me, then, her arms reaching for me, and I caught her as she started to fall.

She whimpered: "The cooler, Will. He locked Maria and Dogbone in there."

She fainted, her head rolling sideways grotesquely. I laid her on the couch and ran through the kitchen to the heavy sawdust-filled door that opened into the cooler. Maria rushed out, screaming something in Spanish.

Dogbone lay on the floor on his back. I picked him up and felt his head. He'd been knocked cold, just as Kathy Morgan had been. I carried him into a bedroom. When I went into the front room, Maria was on her knees beside the couch, talking to Sarah in Spanish.

I told Maria to take care of both of them. Then I put on my coat and hat and, dragging Dillingham's body behind me, went back into the storm. When I reached the barn, I searched him and found a money belt buckled around his middle just as Turner's had been. I covered the body with a piece of canvas, went to the bunkhouse, and lighted a lamp and built a fire.

I left the money belt on the bunk and took care of my horse. I found Dillingham's horse and put him in the barn, then carried the heavy saddlebags into the bunkhouse. Kathy's money, I thought—money she would have used to buy the Box P if she'd had her way.

I sat down beside the stove and held out my hands to it. Though it was hot, so hot I had to move back, I was still cold and shivering. I wondered if I would ever be really warm again.

"I kept on, driven by the knowledge that this was the last job to be done. Our future depended upon it." Follow Will Beeson's story as it reaches a climax here tomorrow.

Dies in California

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP)—Court Smith, 81, former warden at both San Quetin and Folsom Prisons, died Sunday night.

He resigned as warden at San Quentin in 1940 after a career of nearly four decades. He was outspoken in his criticism of the gas chamber. All of California's legal executions are by gas, at San Quentin.

"Hanging is bad enough," he said, "but this — it's terrible."

Medics Study Flu Outbreak

200 Afflicted in Iowa but Officials Regard It as 'Very Mild'

GRINNELL, Iowa (AP)—Iowa and federal health officers today studied an epidemic of influenza here which afflicted 200 persons at a national Presbyterian youth assembly.

The Westminster Fellowship National Assembly, sponsored by the Presbyterian Church of the U.S.A. was attended by 1,800 persons. It was adjourned one day early yesterday because of the outbreak.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Edmund G. Zimmerer, state health commissioner, referred to it as an "epidemic," but a U. S. Public Health Service physician said the cases were "very mild."

★ ★ ★

One of the first reactions was whether the outbreak was Asian influenza which has spread out of China to other parts of the world.

Although this type flu is believed to have reached the West Coast, Dr. Zimmerer said no cases have yet definitely been diagnosed in this country.

★ ★ ★

Nineteen of the first 22 cases reported beginning last Friday were delegates from California. A Nevada youth who traveled with the Californians also became ill.

Many of those who were stricken had roomed with the Californians.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Tom Chin of the U. S. Public Health Service's communicable disease center at Kansas City said the illness "is not serious, it runs about two days."

Assembly officials said parents of all those taken ill were to be notified.

★ ★ ★

Hoping to Save Life of Toscanini's Kin

SAN REMO, Italy (AP) — Sonia Horowitz, injured granddaughter of the late Arturo Toscanini, was reported "slightly improved" this morning.

Hospital attendants said she was still unconscious, but they quoted one of her doctors as saying, "At least now there is hope she can be saved."

The 22-year-old girl, daughter of pianist Vladimir Horowitz and Wanda Toscanini, fractured her skull Sunday night when she crashed into a light pole after losing control of a motor scooter she was riding.

★ ★ ★

City Resident Arrested on Desertion Charge

Charles W. Brown, special agent in charge of the Detroit FBI office, said yesterday bureau agents had arrested Ochmar Rhienhartt Kipfer at 231 Osmun St., Pontiac, charged with being a deserter from the Army.

Kipfer, who was using the name Fred Stevens, deserted the Army at Fort Hood, Texas, on Jan. 24, 1955, Brown said.

Since his desertion he has been in Pensacola, Fla., Bay City and Flint.

He is married and has a child. He will be turned over to military authorities, Brown said.

Amelia Earhart Lost 20 Years Ago Today

Her disappearance was a shock and a mystery to an America which had come to love the tom-boy-like character of this girl in the sky.

The daring fliers had neared the end of a 2,550-mile overwater hop from Lae, New Guinea, to Howland Island.

The first indication of trouble, a radio message at 7:42 a. m. July 2, 1937, said:

"We must be on you but cannot see you. Gas is running low. Been unable to reach you by radio."

★ ★ ★

The Coast Guard cutter Itasca, stationed near the island, tried frantically to bring Miss Earhart's twin engine plane to a safe landing. It broadcast directions, but at 7:58 a. m. came this message from the unseen plane:

"We are circling but cannot hear you."

Forty-eight minutes later — at 8:46 a. m. — came a brief, flickering, final radio signal.

There followed one of history's greatest sea searches in the vicinity of Howland Island, 1,660 nautical miles southwest of the Hawaiian Islands.

The search involved more than 3,000 men, 10 ships, 100 American planes and many Japanese navy aircraft. It cost the American government more than a million dollars.

No trace of the fliers or plane ever was found.

"I just fly because I want too," Miss Earhart often said in her efforts to prove planes could fly anywhere, and women could pilot them.

She took her first flying lessons at Los Angeles in 1918, when she was 20 and a student at University of Southern California. She soloed after only 10 hours instruction, and two years later went up to 14,000 feet, an altitude record for women at that time.

Ten years later the world's horizons stretched before her.

The first woman to cross the Atlantic by plane became a new and shy heroine.

"That landing is something I'll never forget," she told a dinner in her honor. "It is in the diary of my heart. It has made Oakland my favorite airport and one of my favorite cities."

She and Noonan took off quietly from Oakland on May 20, 1937, on their world flight, going first to Miami. They made history, traveling 22,000 miles before they reached New Guinea June 29.

Also waiting anxiously were her mother, Mrs. Amy Otis Earhart, who said she wanted to be present "when my child comes home," and Noonan's bride of only three months, Mary.

★ ★ ★

There were rumors that the Japanese had imprisoned Miss Earhart and Noonan, perhaps because they had flown over island fortifications.

These stories persisted for many years — perhaps because people wanted to believe Miss Earhart and her navigator were still alive.

But today all such hopes of survival have vanished.

Asks Congress to Help Algeria

Sen. Kennedy Blasts 'French Empire Myth,' U.S. Support of It

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass) asked Congress today to put pressure on the Eisenhower administration to use its influence "in shaping a course toward political independence for Algeria."

Kennedy, chairman of a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on United Nations affairs, said the United States must abandon what he called its "head-in-the-sands" policy and "the myth of a French empire."

★ ★ ★

"The problem is to save the French nation as well as free Africa," he said.

In a speech prepared for the Senate, Kennedy voiced a sweeping indictment of French policies in Algeria and United States support of them.

He offered a resolution calling on the Senate and House to authorize President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles to act promptly to:

1. Apply United States influence to "achieve a solution which will recognize the independent personality of Algeria and establish the basis for a settlement interdependent with France and the neighboring nations."

2. Undertake to exert this influence either through the North Atlantic Treaty Organization or through the "good offices" of the Prime Minister of Tunisia and the Sultan of Morocco.

★ ★ ★

3. "Support an international effort to derive for Algeria the basis for an orderly achievement of independence" when the United Nations General Assembly meets in the fall, if earlier efforts fail to achieve "substantial progress" by then.

Kennedy said Algeria "is no longer a problem for the French alone — nor will it ever be again."

He said the United States position on Algeria has been marked by "tepid encouragement and moralizations to both sides" and an obvious desire "not to become involved."

★ ★ ★

"We have thus deceived ourselves into believing that we have thus pleased both sides and displeased no one with this head-in-the-sands policy — when, in truth, we have earned the suspicion of all," he added.

It's Time for Divorce, so North Goes South

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Actress Sheree North has filed for a divorce from screen writer Bud Freeman.

The suit, filed yesterday in Civil Court at Juarez, Mexico, charged incompatibility and mental cruelty. In Hollywood, Miss North's attorney said the Freemans have signed a property settlement, and that Freeman isn't expected to contest the divorce.

Miss North and Freeman were married Feb. 20, 1955, and separated last March. They do not have any children.

Actor Wants Freedom, Wife Gives It to Him

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Gerald Mohr, star of the "Foreign Intrigue" television series, has been divorced on his wife's testimony that he "just wanted his freedom."

Mrs. Rita Mohr charged cruelty and told Superior Court Mohr, 42, wouldn't accept emotional responsibilities of a family. They had been married nearly 20 years.

Governor to Crown Queen

Pick Miss Utica at 11th Event

Fourth of July Festival and Parade Expected to Draw Thousands

UTICA — Gov. G. Mennen Williams will have a two-fold job here July 4 when he crowns "Miss Utica" and acts as marshal for the Utica Lions' 11th annual Fourth of July parade.

It will be the eighth straight year Gov. Williams has led the Utica parade that brings up to 25,000 spectators to this little town of 2,000 residents.

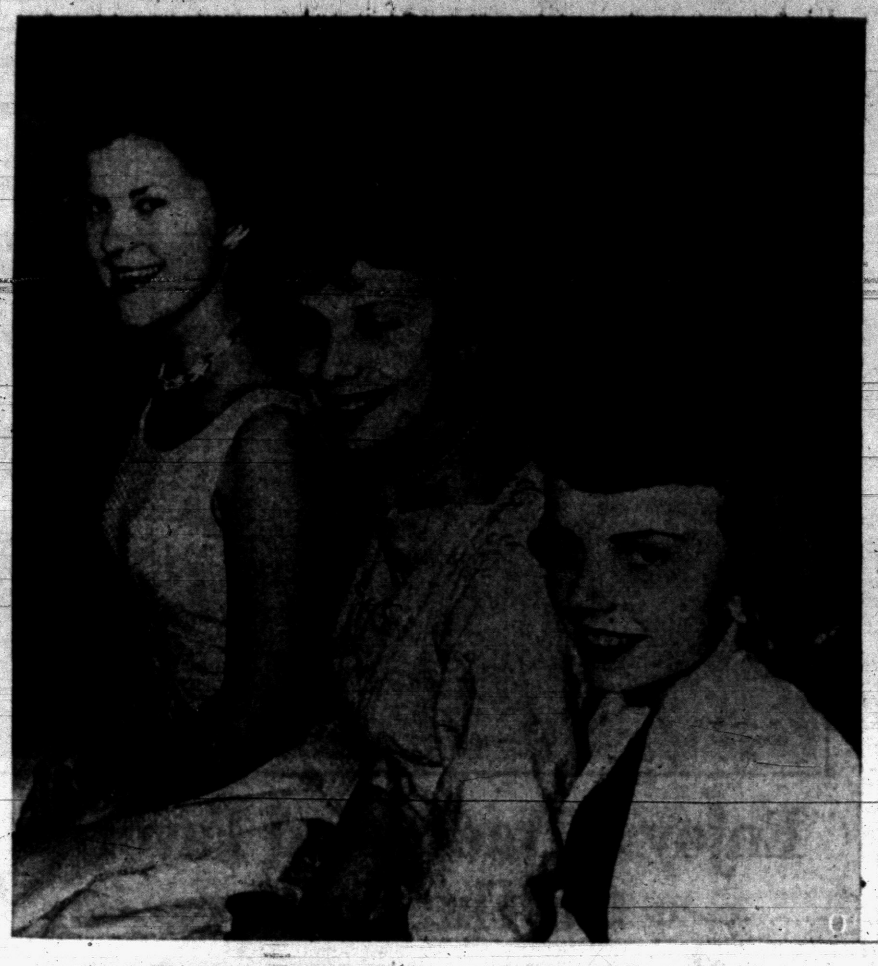

Accompanying the Governor will be Lt. Gov. Phillip Hart. Gov. Williams will crown "Miss Utica" at 9:30 a.m. in downtown Utica. "Miss Utica" will be one of the three top contestants of a beauty contest held last month, Carol Parrott, Charlotte Haupt or Bette Zale.

After the queen-crowning ceremony, Gov. Williams will lead a parade of some 20 floats, high school bands, marching units and horse entries from Utica to Ramona park. The parade will get under way at 10 a.m.

Following the parade, there will be an all-day celebration at the park, climaxed by a giant fireworks display at 10 p.m.

Games and entertainment are planned for both children and adults at the park located on M59 at the western city limits of Utica. Highlighting the entertainment will be helicopter rides over the Utica area.

MISS UTICA CONTEST FINALISTS — One of these three pretty Utica misses will reign over the Utica Lions' 11th annual Fourth of July celebration. Contest winner will be named at 9:30 Thursday morning and be crowned by Gov. G. Mennen Williams. The three are (left to right) Bette Zale, Charlotte Haupt and Carol Parrott.

Seek to Avoid Partisan Bias

Special Citizens Group Will Be Given Hand in State Tax Research

LANSING (AP) — Rep. Rollo G. Conlin (R-Tipton) says the Citizens' Advisory Committee for his study of the state's tax structure will be given a hand in directing research.

This will be done, Conlin said yesterday, "so no one can charge partisan bias or motivation."

Conlin's statement followed one from Gov. Williams who said he was "thoroughly disappointed" that the legislature rejected his idea for putting the study entirely in the hands of a 'blue ribbon' citizens group.

"Instead, the legislature has two committees in progress, both of them under Republican partisan control," the Democratic governor said.

"Does anybody think they will find they were wrong in adopting the business activities tax and the new taxes on cigarettes a liquor over my protest?" he asked.

"What we need is a truly impartial study by a group which is not beholden to anyone in public office — a group of citizens who can approach this question from the viewpoint of economics and not politics."

Conlin, who has a date with Williams tomorrow on the tax stdy matter, said he considered the Citizens' Advisory Committee he has in mind as one that would measure up to Williams' prescription.

Hells Canyon Dam Bill Suffers Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP)—The controversial Hells Canyon Dam bill apparently was killed today by a House interior subcommittee.

Republican members forced a vote and told newsmen after the closed meeting that the bill to authorize a high federal dam in the Hells Canyon reach of the Snake River was killed.

The proposed federal dam would flood the sites of three dams planned by the Idaho Power Co.

Waterford Twp. Youth Injured While Bicycling

James M. Major, 14, of 359 Hickory Lane, Waterford Township, was injured while riding his bicycle through the intersection of Crescent Lake road and Pheasant street at 6:30 last night.

★ ★ ★

He was hit by a car driven by Mrs. Edith C. Lewis, 42, of 150 N. Avery St., Waterford Township.

Mrs. Lewis told township police she swerved to miss the boy, but he seemed to lose control of his bike and rode in front of her car.

Mayflower Crew Gets Traditional Broadway Hello

NEW YORK (AP)—Capt. Allan Villiers and his doughty crew of the Mayflower II sail up Broadway today for the city's traditional ticker-tape greeting.

Tomorrow the tiny replica of the Pilgrim ship will lower her gangplank to take on landlubbers. Swarms of visitors are expected to plunk down a fee for a chance to inspect the wooden vessel during her summer-long stay.

The 190-ton bark started up the harbor under sail. But modern witchcraft in the form of a helicopter blew the wind out of her sails. She had to accept a tow the rest of the way.

On the pier a group of gaudily painted "Indians" — normally paleface Boy Scouts — presented Villiers with gifts of corn, gourds, a wampum belt and a squawking turkey.

Priscella Alden Kiefer, 22, Montclair, N.J., a direct descendent of the Pilgrim couple John and Priscilla Alden, made a pretty speech of welcome.

Detroit-Chicago Highway Offers Outdoor Gallery

KALAMAZOO (AP) — A unique outdoor art display is open to motorists any day along U.S.-12, main highway between Detroit and Chicago.

★ ★ ★

The "gallery" is the highway side of the barn owned by Miss Ola Killefer, secretary of the Paw Paw school system, who says it proves barn sides are good for something else besides holding up the roof and advertising chewing tobacco.

The exhibit includes paintings of everything from butterflies to bulls. In between are chickens, a pig rooting among painted begonias, tall cornflowers reaching all the way up to the roof.

The artist, Stanley Phillips, assistant professor of art at Western Michigan University, was assisted by members of his art classes. Phillips, a fellow resident of Miss Killefer's in Paw Paw, is teaching art this summer at the University of Vermont.

West to Tell Terms for Arms 'Truce'

★ ★ ★

American, British and French delegates met this morning in an air of mounting urgency to chart tactics for the crucial afternoon session of the U.N. disarmament subcommittee.

★ ★ ★

The nub of the Western plan is likely to be an American proposal for a 10-month trial suspension of testing atomic and hydrogen weapons—but under conditions.

★ ★ ★

U.S. delegate Harold E. Stassen made plain that any East-West standstill agreement on testing and producing nuclear arms must form part of wider arrangements for cutting the conventional arms and armies of the big powers.

Hoffa's Lawyer Picks at Details

Says Cheasty Altered His Testimony Twice at Teamster's Trial

★ ★ ★

The attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, got the witness, John Cye Cheasty, to change his testimony on two points. But Cheasty insisted his memory on "material facts" was sharp.

★ ★ ★

Hoffa, Midwest boss of the Teamsters Union, and Hyman I. Fischbach, Miami attorney, are jointly accused of planting Cheasty as a "spy" on the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee staff. Cheasty says he secretly let authorities in on the plan and cooperated with them throughout.

★ ★ ★

At a closed session of the rackets committee last Feb. 15 Cheasty testified he gave part of Mrs. Cheasty to buy shoes for two Cheasty children, Robert and Jack.

Today Cheasty conceded he hadn't given his wife the money but had passed by the shoe store in New York himself and picked up the shoes, which he said his wife had previously selected.

Williams wanted to know whether Cheasty's recollection is better now than it was in mid-January, two days after he allegedly received the $1,000 from Hoffa.

★ ★ ★

"My recollection of material facts was sharp that day," Cheasty said. "It may have been about the shoes. It didn't seem important at the time."

Cheasty also conceded that where he had told the rackets committee Hoffa made a single plane reservation for him and Fischbach, actually there were two reservations on separate planes. This was on Feb. 13 in Detroit, after Hoffa allegedly made the arrangement to pay Cheasty a total of $18,000 to be an informant.

★ ★ ★

Williams took Cheasty over detailed questioning about disposition of the nine $100 bills and two $50 bills which Cheasty said made up the $1,000 received from Hoffa.

Jet Pilot, Down in High Sierras, Survives Grim 54-Day Ordeal

CASTLE AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Air Force Lt. David A. Steeves grinned through his eight-week beard today and told how he lived 54 days in the night-frozen High Sierra after parachuting from his plane May 9.

"I feel pretty good now," he said. "I had a lot of pain in my legs most of the time. I was just trying to live."

Three weeks ago the Air Force had reported him dead.

Down 50 or 60 pounds from his normal 195, the 23-year-old pilot from Trumbull, Conn., was brought here today from Sequoia-Kings Canyon National Park, where he had stumbled onto a pack party.

"I wasn't religious when I went in there, but it was faith in the Lord that brought me out," he said.

In Trumbull, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Steeves, said the family had never given up hope although the Air Force had sent them a death certificate and reported their son could not have survived in an area where there was still eight feet of snow.

"I put my faith and trust in God and He certainly did a good job of it," Mrs. Steeves said.

Steeves' wife Rita, also in Trumbull, exulted: "It's true! It's true! It's marvelously true! I don't know what to. . . It certainly is marvelous! I'm not making much sense, am I?"

Steeves' grim story began shortly after he left May 9 from Hamilton Air Force Base, near San Francisco, for Luke AFB, Ariz., en route to his home base at Craig AFB, Selma, Ala.

EXPLODED IN AIR

He said he never knew what happened to the T33 jet trainer he was flying solo.

"It just exploded," he told his mother over the telephone.

He said he was knocked out briefly and bailed out when he came to.

He landed at the 11,000-foot level, where there was still much ice and snow.

"I banged up both my ankles pretty bad," he said. "For about a day I couldn't move. Then I was able to crawl." He had his flight jacket to wear over his summer uniform, and wrapped himself in his parachute at night.

"I was cold without the 'chute. I was cold with it. I was cold the whole time I was there," he said. "It's a miracle I didn't get frostbite."

DID 'IMPOSSIBLE'

Steeves said he crawled, hobbled and slid about 12 miles in 15 days until he found a ranger's emergency log cabin tool shed at Simpson Meadows. He crossed an 11,000-foot pass regarded as almost impassable and then descended to the 6,000-foot level.

He said he had nothing to eat during these 15 days, "but I had no trouble with water."

He said he didn't have a survival kit, as first reported. And as for survival training: "I had very little — wasn't even a Boy Scout."

In the cabin he found canned hash and canned beans, and some sugar. After two days he tried to travel again, but spring thaws had swollen the Kings River and he was forced to turn back.

★ ★ ★

He lost all sense of time, he said, but found two rusty fish hooks on the ground and "on some days I was able to catch fish, baiting the hooks with grubs."

ATE SNAKES

He found some garden snakes which he cooked and ate — but couldn't find any rattlesnakes, which he was hunting. They're larger and much meatier.

Last Sunday the water had gone down and he started out again, his ankles much improved.

★ ★ ★

'FELT' PRAYERS

"Do you have any idea of all the prayers that went out for you?" his mother asked.

"Yes, I felt every one of them," he replied.

★ ★ ★

After talking to his wife and his 14-month-old daughter, Lisa, Steeves reported to the Air Force, which sent a car from Castle Air Force Base to bring him in for a physical checkup.

CONSTIPATED?

New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, bloat or gripe

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thrifty" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be remoistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to S-T-R-E-T-C-H STIMULATE it to action; to a normal urge to purge.

And, of all laxatives, only COLONAID, the amazing new laxative discovery possesses COLONAID'S great moisturizing capacity, plus COLONAID'S stretch-stimulating bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONAID is yet so smooth, so gentle it has proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy.

Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONAID neither gags, bloats nor gripes; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions.

It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONAID exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONAID, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! Only 98¢ for the 60 tablet package, brings positive relief at less than 2¢ per tablet.

Senate Holds Up Renomination

Return of FPC Chief Still Delayed by Critics of Kuykendall

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Eisenhower's renomination of Jerome K. Kuykendall, FPC Chairman, which has been pending before a Senate committee for two months, faced further delays today.

The Federal Power Commission head has come under sharp criticism from some Democratic senators and from public power advocates for some of his official actions. His first term expired June 22, and he has been out of office since that date.

★ ★ ★

predicted both the Commerce predicte both the Commerce Committee he heads and later the Senate will approve confirmation of Kuykendall, although the senator said he himself will vote against it.

★ ★ ★

The committee had been expected to act this week, but Sen. Morse (D-Ore) asked yesterday that a vote be delayed until he can appear later to protest confirmation. Magnuson said Morse will be heard, probably sometime after July 10.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont), acting Democratic leader, said Senate Democrats have no intention of making a party fight as such against reappointment of Kuykendall.

Kuykenall has been criticized by some Democrats for his actions in connection with the now defunct Dixon-Yates power contract, and with the commission's approval of the Idaho Power Co.'s application to build low-level dams at Hells Canyon.

On the other hand, his support for efforts to relieve some natural gas producers from federal regulation has attracted the backing of oil state Democrats, although some consumer groups have protested.

$2 Million Estate Left by Recluse to Five Agencies

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Five agencies will share equally in a two-million-dollar estate left by an aged recluse who weighed about 70 pounds when she died.

One of the beneficiaries revealed that Georgia Stafford Stone, 80, created a voluntary trust agreement in 1931 bequeathing the net income from the trust to the Community Chest, Salvation Army, Christ Church Cathedral, Connecticut Institute for the Blind and the Connecticut Humane Society.

★ ★ ★

The Greater Hartford Community Chest made the announcement.

The body of the West Hartford woman was found in her home June 20. She had been dead about 24 hours.

Neighbors said she hadn't had any visitors for more than 20 years. The windows in her house were reinforced with small metal bars—fastened behind the molding between each pane. Police had to cut through the bars of one window to enter the house.

Miss Stone drew her income from the trust fund. Her bank could not say how she made the money, nor could it furnish any details about her life.

According to her death certificate, she was born in December 1876, in Cleveland, Ohio, the daughter of Silas and Lillie Hart Stone.

Zippers have been manufactured commercially since 1913.

Sift Union Files for Clues to Big-Time Racketeering

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate rackets probers sought in a mound of subpoenaed records today evidence to show whether big-time racketeers reaped a fortune by seizing command of some New York City labor unions.

Joseph Curcio, who succeeded gangster John (Johnny Dio) Dioguardi as district head of the Allied Industrial Workers Union in New York, surrendered files from that union and its predecessor, the now defunct United Auto Workers (AFL), at a public hearing yesterday.

★ ★ ★

But in a pleasant voice in strange contrast to his frequent scowl, Curcio invoked the Fifth Amendment as to whether anything is missing from the files, and whether he knows the whereabout of other documentary evidence.

★ ★ ★

Now secretary-treasurer of the New York Teamsters Union Local 269, Curcio refused to tell whether he or other top men in that union "cheat" rank-and-file union dues payers and misuse union funds. Answers, he pleaded, "might incriminate me."

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) asked whether Curcio used "force and violence" to recruit members into the local and whether "you cheat them of funds and misappropriate and misuse union money."

Curcio, who invoked the Fifth Amendment 61 times in an hour's testimony, refused to answer both questions. He also refused to tell whether the union's members know or are entitled to know about the money he draws as salary and expenses.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said the committee seeks to establish "who controlled the money" paid in as dues by members of the Allied Industrial Workers and the former UAW-AFL in the period from 1950 until last Feb. 28. He said the hearings will cover the period both before and after Dio "is alleged to have stepped out" as the union's New York district director in mid-1954.

Dio is under indictment on charges growing out of the acid blinding of labor columnist Victor Riesel.

Mom Tips Off Police, Son, 1 Other Captured

CHICAGO (AP) — Two prison trustees who fled 160 miles to Chicago after walking from the Jackson, Mich., state prison were captured last night when the mother of one of them tipped off police.

Detectives arrested Douglas Richards, 30, and Gordon Gerlacher, 24, of Rural Route 1, Alto, Mich., when they stepped into the Hotel Sherman telegraph room to pick up some money.

Police said Gerlacher had telephoned his mother, who lives in Chicago, and asked her to wire him some funds. Instead she called Michigan State Police who notified Chicago authorities.

Police said they did not know immediately how the escapees got to Chicago or for what crimes they were sentenced to prison. The two are being held for Michigan authorities.

Boom Lowered on Safety Gates

Group Vetoes Request by City for Protection at Rail Crossings

The city of Pontiac must do without safety gates at the South Saginaw and Wilson street crossing—at least for the time being.

City Traffic Engineer Theodore M. Vanderstempel made this report yesterday after hearing that the Michigan Public Service Commission had rejected a city request for the gates.

This was a reversal of a Jan. 25, 1956 order by the commission that the gates be installed.

After several often-postponed hearings and one on-the-spot inspection, state officials, according to Vanderstempel, determined that traffic at the crossing was not heavy enough to warrant the project.

★ ★ ★

Vandeestempel has been fighting for the increased vehicular protection, while Grand Trunk Western Railroad has continually opposed the move. The railroad, as well as the state and the city, would have had to share the expense.

★ ★ ★

The city official said he would re-petition for the gates, if and when traffic increases to the point to warrant demanding them.

GI, Japanese Fiancee Plan Chapel Rites, Too

Girard, 'Candy' Now Man and Wife

By KAY TATEISHI

CAMP WHITTINGTON, Japan, (AP)—William S. Girard and his Japanese fiancee became husband and wife today under Japan's laws. But for them the real marriage won't be until Friday when they kneel in the white chapel at this U. S. Army base.

★ ★ ★

The 21-year-old soldier of Ottawa, Ill., was jubilant, however, after signing the marriage papers which legally united him with Haru (Candy) Sueyama, 27. Their original plans to marry in March were disrupted by the international dispute which developed over his killing of a Japanese woman scrap scavenger on a firing range.

★ ★ ★

"I feel just wonderful," a friend quoted him as saying. "I just can't express how precious being married to Candy is to me. It would take me a long time to tell you how much we are looking forward to all those good things we expect as man and wife."

★ ★ ★

Girard, as a noncommissioned officer with four years' service, is entitled to housing here on the base when he marries. But an Army spokesman said no quarters are available at present and the couple probably face a long wait.

The couple may spend their wedding evening at the home of a sergeant friend on the base, but later he will return to his barracks. The bride will go back to the small apartment she has near the camp.

Candy, pert in a flowered yellow-tan dress with white shoes, white necklace and earrings, was brought to Camp Whittington to sign the papers.

★ ★ ★

Later, harassed by newsmen and photographers, she wailed, "This should be something to be happy about, but how can I be if I'm not permitted a moment to myself."

She left the camp immediately after the ceremony and registered the documents at the U. S. Embassy in Tokyo, 60 miles away, validating the marriage in the United States. The papers were deposited with the Akasaka ward office, completing the process.

★ ★ ★

Both Girard and Candy said they would not consider themselves married until after the religious ceremony Friday afternoon. The service will be read by a Methodist chaplain, Maj. Harry C. Rickard of Winchester, Va.

Sgt. Gilbert Saylor, New Market, Va., a friend of Girard, will be best man. Miss Kesa Oado, a dressmaker who lives just outside Camp Whittington, will be Candy's attendant.

"We're talking about it," said Saylor, in whose home Girard and Candy spent their evenings together since he was confined to the camp pending disposition of his case.

★ ★ ★

Girard won Army permission to marry just a week before the U. S. Supreme Court hears arguments in the legal battle over whether the Japanese can try him for shooting the Japanese woman while guarding equipment on the firing range.

★ ★ ★

Newsmen and photographers were barred from the signing ceremony which legally united the two. Girard's legal adviser Maj. Stanley Levin said the soldier "wants no pictures taken, not even of his girl friend. He said she's already confused enough."

Algerian Gunmen Kill 3 Countrymen in France

PARIS (AP)—Algerian gunmen in France killed three of their countrymen and wounded three others seriously last night in a new outbreak of terrorism stemming from the rebellion in North Africa.

The gunmen escaped after each of the three attacks, in the northern industrial city of Roubais, at Longwy, west of Paris, and in the French capital.

ONLY GOEBEL IS BREWED WITH CRYSTILLED WATER

taste the difference "crystilling" makes

GOEBEL GOES NATURE ONE BETTER! All beers begin with water. But wonderful as our Michigan water is, it still contains elements harmful to the quality and flavor of beer. To solve this problem, Goebel installed their revolutionary "crystilling" equipment. It produces water that is purer, more refreshing than the finest mountain spring water . . . purer than nature's best!

YOU CAN TASTE THE DIFFERENCE! Thanks to "crystilled" water—a Goebel exclusive—the Goebel Private Stock 22 beer you find at your dealer's is the lightest, most uniformly flavorful Goebel ever. Taste the difference "crystilling" makes. Ask for Goebel—the beer with the bright blue label—the beer that's better to begin with.

ONLY GOEBEL HAS IT! The equipment shown here "crystills" water. It's a Goebel exclusive! No other brewery in Michigan or the entire U.S.A. has anything to compare with it. Bear in mind, this is not just an ordinary water-filtering device. It's a patented purifying system. That's why no other brewer in our nation can produce a beer that is so delightful in taste, or of such uniform excellence, as Goebel Private Stock 22.

We have no sympathies for James D. Norris and the International Boxing Club.

The organization was born when the late Harry Mendel approached Norris in 1949 about gaining exclusive rights to the services of heavyweight champ Joe Louis and the four leading contenders at that time Ezzard Charles, Joe Walcott, Lee Savold and Gus Lesnevich.

Norris and the IBC have had control of all the leading arenas in the country including the New York arenas, the Chicago Stadium, Detroit Olympia and the St. Louis Arena.

The small time promoter has had no chance, and hence the government charged Norris and company with monopoly.

Federal Judge Sylvester Ryan showed as much sympathy for Norris as he had shown to the small time promoter. Norris and the IBC were found guilty of violation of anti-trust laws.

Boxing has on the national level been on the downgrade. The Federal Court decision may have been its savior.

Bunning Sick? He Makes Sox III, 5-2

DETROIT (UP) — A 102-degree fever and an upset stomach could't stop Jim Bunning, and neither could the Chicago White Sox.

The tall Detroit righthander, who kept his sudden illness to himself until after he had vanquished the Sox 5-2 last night, explained that "I have to feel worse than that before I'll pass up a chance to start. It was rough enough getting a job in the majors and I'm not about to pass up my turns now."

Bunning's razor-sharp effectiveness and the lusty hitting of Charlie Maxwell and Al Kaline revived the downtrodden Tigers who had lost four straight and 10 of their last 13 encounters.

The successful opening at Briggs Stadium after a back-breaking road trip permitted the Tigers to gain back some valuable ground in the American League race.

They now are in 5th place, one and one-half games behind Boston and Cleveland, and one and one-half lengths ahead of 6th-place Baltimore.

Bunning, one of Casey Stengel's All-Star pitchers, strengthened his chances of becoming the starter in the midsummer classic next week in St. Louis when he scattered eight Chicago safeties and hiked his record to 9-2 — one of the top marks in the league.

Bunning looked like anything but a sick man as he fanned seven batters, getting Luis Aparicio and Jim Rivera twice each. The Sox, who fell two games behind the pace-setting New York Yankees, managed a run in the second and another in the fourth on Minnie Minoso's upper deck home run.

Those two runs matched two Tiger scores in the 1st inning that came on Bill Tuttle's infield single and Maxwell's 16th home run into the upper deck in right field.

It was Kaline — shut out in the home run department since June 10 — who dissolved the 2-2 tie in the 6th inning. He led off with his 4th home run and his teammates promptly continued to batter White Sox starter Jim Wilson for four singles and two more runs. Frank House, Frank Bolling, Bunning and Harvey Kuenn got the base hits.

Rookie Jim Derrington, a 17-year-old bonus southpaw, and veterans Gerry Staley and Paul LaPalme blanked the Tigers rest of the way but the damage —though not a fearsome display of hitting — was already done to the delight of 40,933 spectators.

The two teams were to meet again today, with ex-Tiger Billy Pierce trying — for the 5th time — for victory No. 11. Frank Lary, who has won only four times in 13 decisions, was to oppose the slick southpaw.

Locke Tops Early Qualifiers

Middlecoff, Stranahan May Be 'In'

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UP) — Cary Middlecoff, two-time American Open champion, shot a second round of 73 over the St. Andrews Old Course today and apparently qualified for the British Open golf championship with a 36-hole total of 148.

Middlecoff had a 75 yesterday over the shorter, easier new course. His 148 appeared to be well within the qualifying limit, which is expected to be about 150. The low scoring 100 players in the starting field of 290 will qualify for the 72-hole tournament proper, starting tomorrow.

Middlecoff's 72, one over par for the 6,996-yard, par 36-36—72 old course, was made just after Harold Henning of South Africa had equalled the course record with a round of 33-34—67 and a 139 total. Bobby Locke of South Africa, three-time British Open champion, led the early finishers after 36 holes with 57-70—137. He played his second round today on the old course.

Middlecoff said he had trouble with his putting today but otherwise everything was fine.

"I could not get the speed of the greens on the old course," he said. "I was either short or long every time and took 37 putts for the round. I was hitting the green in regulation all the way.

Dai Rees of Wales, captain of Britain's 1955 Ryder Cup team, played the new course in 69 for a 139 total. Norman Sutton, 48-year-old English pro who led the field on the old course yesterday with a near-record 68, took a 73 on the easier new course for a 141 total.

Players who shot their first rounds on the 6,996-yard, par 36-36—72 old course yesterday, played the second today on the new course, a 6,526-yard layout with a par of 36-35—71. Another half of the field of 390 reversed this order.

Frank Stranahan, wealthy Toledo, Ohio, professional who won the British Amateur title twice before turning pro, shot the old course in 38-32—70 today for a 141 total that assured him of qualifying.

Olympic Site Threatened

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Attorneys for land owner Wayne Poulsen said they heard "with shocked surprise" that the California Olympic Commission may condemn Squaw Valley property the commission wants for the 1960 Winter Games.

Commission chairman Charles R. Blyth threatened such action yesterday concerning 32 acres of Poulsen land which would be used for a ski jump outrun, parking, flood control and sewage facilities.

Poulsen's attorneys, Samuel C. Shenk and Archibald McDougall, issued a statement saying they were advising him to fight any condemnation action and "to test their legality . . . before the highest courts in the land."

They asserted that a contract drawn up by the commission "is full of jokers' and would tie up all of Poulsen's land "within and without Squaw Valley until June, 1960.

New England Jockey Rides Four Winners

Football Helmets to Have 3-Inch Number on Sides

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UP) — The National Assn. of Collegiate Commissioners urged yesterday that numerals two to three inches high be painted on the sides of football helmets.

The recommendation was one of six approved by 18 representatives of 11 major conferences in a two-day meeting that ended last night. The standardized, larger numerals are sought by press photographers as a means of better identification.

Thomas lashed out with its heaviest attack of the season, collecting 10 hits for an easy decision at Wisner Field. Jim Moore and Bob Uhan each made three safeties and Rocky Forton pitched the distance for the winners.

Duffy, Staley, Wofford in List of 3-Day Contenders

NEW YORK (UP)—Brig. Gen. John Tupper Cole, USA Ret., said today about 25 riders would compete Sept. 6-7-8 in the three-day competition for the John W. Wofford Trophy at Colorado Springs, Colo., and a chance to later qualify for a place on the United States Olympic team.

Cole, an old cavalryman and former competitor when the Army had championship teams, is manager of the U. S. Equestrian team, and spent April in Colorado laying out the tough course for the cross country phase of the competition.

Two members of the 1956 Olympic team, and one alternate, who represented the United States at Stockholm are expected at Colorado Springs. They are Frank Duffy, Birmingham, Mich., Walter Staley, Jr., of Mexico, Mo., and Bill Haggard of Nashville, Tenn., the alternate. Maj. Jonathan Burton, Ft. Hood, Tex., the third member of the three-day team, is in Korea and will be unable to compete.

"We hope to get the nucleus of a team from the Colorado event," said Cole, although he emphasized that a rider winning in the Wofford trophy competition didn't automatically qualify for a place on the team.

Frank Duffy, named today as a contender for the 1960 3-day-Olympic riding tests at Colorado Springs, is doing summer-school work at University of Michigan. However, there was a possibility that he may make the trip. He has done little riding this spring.

★ ★ ★

Walter Staley, member of the Olympic team, with Duffy, last year, and Jeb Wofford, will be in the field seeking places on the team. Both Staley and Wofford rode in a number of events in last week's big Detroit Horse Show, including the tough 3-day-event.

All-American Windup Looms in Henley Race

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England — (UP) — The possibility of an all-American final - Yale vs. Cornell — in competition for the Henley Royal Regatta Senior Trophy was a major worry of British rowing enthusiasts today.

★ ★ ★

Both American eights are entered in the six crew competition for the Grand Challenge Cup, esteemed here as rowing's most glamorous trophy. The regatta, which is 118 years old, starts tomorrow.

★ ★ ★

The draw made an all-American final possible. Yale and Cornell are at opposite ends of it. If they survive their heats, the Americans could continue here a sporting feud which had its origin in the United States.

Yale comes as the respected winner of the Olympic test last year, although there are only four of the Olympic rowers in the shell. But Cornell upset Yale twice this season over mile nad a quarter courses roughly equal to the distance of one mile, 550-yards of the Henley course.

★ ★ ★

The Soviet Krasnoe Znamia Club mystifies rowing fans. Its practice runs have been impressive, but it does not seem to be overwhelming.

The club meets the Thames Rowing Club and the winner will take on Cornell which drew a bye.

May Be Costly 'Warmup'

NEW YORK (UP) — Germinal Ballarin, newly arrived Frenchman intended to use last night's bout with Bob Provizzi merely as a warmup for an important July 19 meeting with Rory Calhoun.

Instead, it may have cost him the Calhoun match.

"We were all set to sign the papers," said International Boxing Club matchmaker Billy Brown today. "But now we're not so sure. That Provizzi is a spoiler."

Provizzi, who fights out of Freeland, Pa., not only spoiled Ballarin's American debut, but he could have spoiled the fight completely had not the Frenchman been willing to chase him all around the ring.

That the fight produced little action was not Ballarin's fault. He tried to the extent that he was overanxious to show the St. Nicholas Arena and television crowd he was a puncher.

As it turned out, the officials had it too close for comfort. Referee Harry Ebbets gave the fight to Ballarin 6-3-1. Both judges, Lee Birnbaum and Bill Recht had it 6-4. The Associated Press card had Ballarin ahead 7-3, giving Provizzi the first three rounds.

"I am satisfied with myself," said Ballarin, who sports a magnificently trimmed mustache, through an interpreter. "But I thought I had the fight won by a wider margin.

But What Got Away?

Ford, Grim Wrap It Up

Mantle's Homer Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Whitey Ford's back and, while the New York Yankees have yet to approach that anticipated American League runaway, it might be significant they reached their biggest lead of the season on the day the ace left-hander returned.

Ford, AL leader last season in winning percentage (19-6 for .760) and earned run average (2.47) and an 83-29 lifetime pitcher, ended a six-week layoff caused by arm trouble last night and picked up a victory in relief as the Yankees edged Baltimore 3-2 on Mickey Mantle's 10th-inning homer.

St. Louis, capitalizing on four Milwaukee errors, defeated the first-place Braves 9-5 in one of three night games after second-place Cincinnati, half a game back had been stopped in the afternoon by the Chicago Cubs' Dick Drott 6-0.

Brooklyn, behind Don Drysdale's five-hitter, blanked the New York Giants 3-0, and Philadelphia rallied for five runs in the eighth to end a five-game losing streak 5-4 over Pittsburgh.

Kansas City's string of 11 losses ended with a 10-3 win over Cleveland, and Washington edged Boston 5-4 in other AL activity.

Mantle's home run, running the Yankee win streak to five, was his 22nd of the season and was hit off George Zuverink after Billy Gardner's two-out single had scored the tying run for the Orioles in the ninth. Ford worked two innings and allowed two hits and one run, giving way to Bob Grim, who wrapped it up in the last of the 10th.

Kansas City scored five times in the first to rout Early Wynn, three on Tim Thompson's homer. Tom Gorman won in relief for the A's, as did Pete Ramos for the Senators against the Red Sox. Mike Fornieles was the Boston loser but his successor, Ike Delock, forced in the winning run with a bases-loaded walk to Bob Usher in the seventh.

Area Golfers Lead Juniors

Three Oakland County teenagers were among the 12 youths who made the grade for the Michigan section of the National Junior golf tournament in 18-hole qualifying rounds yesterday at Detroit Golf Club's north course.

Tom Grace from Southfield Township fired a par 71 to share medalist honors with Joe Brisson of Grosse Pte. Grace had rounds of 36-35 while Brisson carded 34-37.

Trotters Back at Goshen Oval

Week of Grand Circuit Racing Set for Famed Harness Track

GOSHEN, N. Y. (AP) — The trotters were back in Goshen today for a week of grand circuit racing at the 103-year old Historic track, but whether the famed Hambletonian ever returns is anybody's guess.

This tiny Orange county village is loaded with horses eligible for the great 3-year old trotting classic, but the Hambletonian is to be raced for the next two years, at least, in Duquoin, Ill. Many trotters are training here, and later will be shipped west for the $100,000 classic Aug. 27.

The Hambletonian came to Goshen in 1930 after four years at Syracuse, N. Y., and Lexington, Ky., and the late William H. Cane built it up to become the world's most famous harness race. Historic is a half mile oval, and the Hambletonian had been raced at nearby Good Time mile track, where many horses now are training.

Chicago, Cleveland and Baltimore Place Three Each on Squad

CHICAGO (AP) — Eight members of the world champion New York Yankees yesterday were named to the 1957 American League All-Star team which will be directed by Yankee Manager Casey Stengel.

The American Leaguers, presenting an all - veteran starting lineup, meet the National League All Stars at St. Louis next Tuesday.

Stengel, who named the team with the exception of the starting lineup, selected six Yankees in addition to catcher Yogi Berra and centerfielder Mickey Mantle who were selected in a public poll.

Detroit placed four players while Chicago, Cleveland and Baltimore had three each, Boston two and Kansas City and Washington one each.

Stengel, who also will select the starting pitcher, named three lefthanders and four righthanders to his staff. They include southpaws Billy Pierce, Chicago; Bobby Shantz, New York; Don Mossi Cleveland; and righthanders Bob Grim, New York; Billy Loes, Baltimore; Early Wynn, Cleveland; and Jim Bunning, Detroit.

Elston Howard of New York and Gus Triandos of Baltimore were the reserve catchers selected by Stengel. Backing up the starting infield, will be Joe DeMaestri, Kansas City; Frank Malzone, Boston; and Gil McDougald, Bobby Richardson and Bill Skowron, all of New York.

Stengel's reserve outfielders will be Minnie Minoso of Chicago, Charley Maxwell, Detroit, and Roy Sievers, Washington.

Williams will be making his 13th All Star appearance while Berra has played in eight previous classics.

Malzone and Richardson are the only rookies on the team. Bunning, Grim, Loes, Mossi, Howard, Triandos, DeMaestri and Skowron are all new to the All Star game.

CHOSEN — Tigers Harvey Kuenn (left) and Al Kaline were among the starters chosen for the American League All-Stars who will meet the National Leaguers next week in St. Louis.

Cubs Sign Prep Star

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs today announced the signing of Jim Woods, 17, an infielder-outfielder from Chicago's Lane Tech High School. Woods was signed to a non-bonus major league contract and will join the Cubs today.

Drobac Named Head Spartan Net Coach

EAST LANSING (AP) — Advancement of Stan Drobac from assistant to head tennis coach was announced today by Clarence (Biggie) Munn, Michigan State University athleic director.

Heretofore, H. Frank Beeman has served as director of intramural athletics and tennis coach, with Drobac his assistant in the latter capacity. Munn said the intra-mural program has grown to the place where its direction now requires Beemans full attention.

Charlotte Man Wins Trapshooting Title

U. of M. Netter Wins First Tri-State Test

CINCINNATI (AP) — Fifth-seeded Barry Mackay of the University of Michigan had to work hard yesterday to win his first round match in the 58th annual Tri-State tennis tournament.

Mackay defeated Rawdon Myers of Cincinnati, 6-2, 10-8.

American Netters Ousted From Wimbledon Tourney

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Gardnar Mulloy, 42, believes a new training approach is needed to bring the United States back to the top in lawn tennis.

The Denver, Colo., attorney, here for his 11th Wimbledon championship, saw the tournament move into the men's singles semifinals yesterday without a single United States representative. It is the first time that has happened since the end of World War II.

"They approach the game differently in Australia," Mulloy said. "There is more hard training such as road work to make the players wonderfully fit. Our players will have to think along similar lines."

Wimbledon has proved one thing —the United States has little chance of taking the Davis Cup from Australia this year.

★ ★ ★

Communist Ban May Cost U.S. 1960 Olympics

CHICAGO (INS) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, last night asserted the Squaw Valley, Calif., will lose the 1960 winter games unless the U. S. State Department alters its policy concerning admission of athletes from communist nations.

Brundage, who lives in Chicago, said: "If our state department refuses to let certain athletes come here, then the International Olympic committee will have no alternative but to hold the games elsewhere."

Brundage said the committee had heard nothing from the state department about making it possible for red nations to send competitors to Squaw Valley.

Hoad May Turn Pro Next Year

Denies Any Intention of Joining Kramer's Troupe Soon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Lew Hoad, Australian Davis Cup ace, today denied reports he would join Jack Kramer's professional tennis troupe in New York next week.

Hoad, however, did not rule out the possibility he will turn pro after playing for Australia in the Davis Cup challenge round in December.

"This talk of my turning professional immediately is nonsense and embarrassing to me," said Hoad on being advised of the reports from Sydney. "I have signed with the rest of the Australian team to play for my country until the end of the year. I do not intend to break that agreement."

In Melbourne, Australian Lawn Tennis Assn. President Donald Ferguson also pointed out that Hoad had signed a contract to play for his country in the Davis Cup competition.

★ ★ ★

"We are becoming tired of these reports which always arise about the time of the Wimbledon and Davis Cup matches," Ferguson added.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

BATTING — Mickey Mantle, Yankees, hit his 22nd home run in 10th inning to beat Baltimore 3-2 and stretch Yanks' AL lead to two games over Chicago.

Pete Green, Birmingham High School ace, divided runner - up honors with Bob Holzer of San Diego, Calif. Green shot 35-40-75 while Holzer made his 75 in reverse order.

Bud Badger of Bloomfield Hills carded 38-39-77. Detroit's Calvin Cooke and Chuck Mitchell of Saginaw also shot 77's to round out the list of qualifiers.

There's No Peace at Yonkers Track

YONKERS, N.Y. (INS) — An exodus by some of the top harness racng horsemen threatens to halt racing horsemen threatens to halt the week.

Only 40 horses reportedly were entered for Friday night's program. This is the normal number for four races.

The exodus occurred despite a temporary restraining order issued in federal court forbidding the horsemen from "failing in concert to enter their horses."

Boston Coach Has New Pact

BOSTON (AP)—Milt Schmidt, who carried Boston to the finals of the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoff series, today owns a new three-year contract to coach the Bruins.

Financial terms were not announced.

Schmidt molded a winning team out of the Bruins in the 1956-57 season after the club was the pre-to finish last in the NHL. They season choice of hockey writters came in third after injuries dropped them out of the lead.

★ ★ ★

It was his second year as the Bruins pilot.

Chicago Cub Mound Staff Goes on Strikeout Binge

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cub pitchers are on a strikeout binge for which Manager Bob Scheffing has no explanation other than "some of these kids have real good stuff."

Drott fanned eight Redlegs to give Cub pitchers a total of 35 in the last three games. In splitting a doubleheader with Brooklyn Sunday, Cub pitchers fanned 27 Dodgers to set a new major league doubleheader mark.

For the season, the Cub staff has a total of 345 strikeouts. Drott, who has a 7-7 record and owns both of Chicago's shutout victories, leads the whiff parade with 86 and is second in the league to Jack Sanford of Philadelphia who has 88.

Drott limited the hard-hitting Redlegs to four singles yesterday and issued two walks. He had Cincy popping up so much that the Cub infield registered only two assists.

2 Midgets Hurl No-Hitters

High scoring was the order of the day around the various city baseball leagues with the teams scoring such totals as 24, 22 and 17 but the pitchers also had their share of fun yesterday.

Two no-hitters occurred in Midget League play. Mike Marion of the Senators flipped one against the Athletics in the National League winning 24-0. He had 12 strikeouts and walked six while his mates poured it combining 19 hits and 14 A's errors. Marion had four of the safeties.

The other hitless effort was turned in by American loop chucker Rudy Ranson of the Tigers. He defeated the White Sox 17-1 fanning 13 of a possible 21 batters.

Bill Bennet and Dave Moczarski divided the mound chores in a one-hit performance as the Pontiac Boys' Club Class F team walloped Pontiac Auto Sales 22-0 in another combination good pitching and high scoring game.

Film Colony Thrives

Millions Can Still Be Made Despite Hollywood Gloom

By BOB THOMAS

The film industry can make and sustain millionaires even in these times when movie makers are moaning about the "lost audience." Perhaps in no other place is it possible to earn such wealth with no capital investment—only talent.

★ ★ ★

Here are the talented people who rank as runners-up to the top 10 millionaires of Hollywood, as chosen with the aid of expert observers of the movie scene:

★ ★ ★

1. Cecil B. DeMille. His pictures have earned more than those of any other producer-director.

2. Jules Stein. Unknown to the general public, the publicity-shy head of the MCA agency is one of the town's biggest powers. His agency handles dozens of top stars and also produces many TV films.

★ ★ ★

3. Herbert Yates. The frugal boss of Republic Studios has made horse operas and hokum pay off handsomely for himself.

★ ★ ★

4. Norma Shearer. She was a top-earning star until her retirement and inherited vast holdings from her husband, Irving Thalberg.

5. Hal Wallis. Long a top film executive, he has had great success with his own film company.

6. Harold Lloyd. He struck it rich as a silent comedy star and had the wisdom to establish his own company.

8 Persons Die in 2-Car Wreck

Five Killed in Accident Identified as Soldiers Apparently on Leave

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (AP) — A two-car collision killed eight persons late last night and left two others in serious condition.

They were identified as James L. Steen, 23, Pensacola, Fla.; Donnie Reason, about 25; Hubert Goessman, 22; William Brown, 21; and William Irwin, about 25, all believed to have been from Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Coroner Hugh Thomas said the soldiers' eastbound car "may have been on the wrong side of the road." He said an inquest probably will be held tomorrow.

The other dead passengers in the westbound car were identified as Conrad Miller, 21, of nearby Green River; his recent bride, Karen, 18, a telephone operator in that city; and Mrs. Barbara Whittlesey, about 19, also of Green River.

★ ★ ★

Forrest Whittlesey, her husband and a man as yet unidentified but believed to have been in the soldiers' car were rushed to Sweetwater Memorial Hospital here in serious condition.

Firemen Given Service

Operation Alert Under Way

4th National Exercise on Civil Defense Ideas Has 3 Phases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first phase of Operation Alert 1957 already is under way.

The fourth nationwide civil defense exercise is scheduled to be in full swing in mid-July.

But White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen yesterday that for two weeks, certain key officials have been at work manning and equipping secret relocation centers. From these centers, picked government teams will direct simulated reconstruction and a mock war effort in the wake of an assumed nuclear attack on the United States.

At one stage of the exercise, Hagerty said, President Eisenhower and his staff will be flown to a secret command post. They will be carried there by a fleet of 14 helicopters.

Hagerty said Eisenhower probably will spend less than a day at the emergency White House before returning to Washington. The day and hour of his trip have not yet been determined.

BOMBERS STRIKE JULY 12

The simulated attack by "enemy" bombers is set for July 12. On that day, Washington and scores of other cities will be "destroyed." This will begin phase 2 of the operation — a three-day period of pretended rescue, relief and evacuation. This phase will involve chiefly civil defense organizations on the local, state and federal level.

On July 15, about 7,500 government workers will scatter to about 30 relocation centers in a half-dozen Eastern states. This Phase 3 of the exercise will last through July 19.

During this period, federal officials will deal with problems of restoring production, re-establishing transportation and communications, administering wage, price and other economic controls and supporting an all-out military effort.

Find 2 Missing Children Beaten to Death, Buried

BRISTOL, England (AP) — Two children missing since June 20 were found beaten to death and buried in a shallow grave near a mental hospital last night.

Ransom notes sent to Bristol newspapers last week said the children would be returned on payment of 200 pounds ($560). Detectives called them a hoax.

Department Picks 2 for New Positions

LANSING (AP) — Dr. G. D. Cummings and Dr. J. K. Altland have been named to the newly-created posts of associate commissioners in the State Health Department.

Dr. Cummings will continue as director of the department's laboratories program, but Dr. Altland will give up his job as head of the division of local health administration to coordinate the department's medical programs. His replacement is Dr. Douglas H. Fryer.

Waterford Takes Civil Defense Applications

Johnson said that more than 40 men have volunteered to work with the police department, which has been cut from 17 to five members because of recent budget reductions.

The volunteers have been notified that application forms are available, Johnson said, and those who want to aid the police department are urged to fill out the forms as soon as possible.

The volunteers would be trained by state police, he said. A schedule then would be set up for whatever hours the volunteers could work.

Skidding Wheat Declines Again

More favorable weather for harvesting, hedging sales and a lack of export or flour business caused weakness in wheat, which dipped more than a cent in some cases on top of yesterday's losses.

Near the end of the first hour, new style wheat was ½ to one cent lower, July $2.12; corn was ⅛ to ⅝ lower, July $1.29⅛; oats were unchanged to ⅛ lower, July 66¼; rye was unchanged to one cent lower, July $1.21¼; soybeans were one cent lower to ⅛ higher, July $2.35¼; and lard was five to 17 cents a hundred pounds lower, July $13.20.

Reasons to Be Sifted in Romeos Case

Reasons for the recent suspension of a Pontiac patrolman will be questioned tonight by the local Civil Service Commission during a public hearing.

Theodore Carlson, chairman of the three man commission, said testimony would be heard to determine the affirmation or denial of the suspension or if the cause and circumstances were premeditated or provoked.

The hearing was demanded by Louis Romeos, who, within a period of five days, was illegally suspended by Police Chief Herbert W. Straley, reinstated by City Manager Walter K. Willman and then suspended legally by Willman.

Romeos is scheduled to protest the insubordination and disorderly conduct charges made by his superior officers, Sgts. Frederick J. Wirth and Telton E. Rogg.

If the hearing is not completed tonight, the second session will be put over until Monday night due to the long holiday weekend.

Stock Market Moves Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved higher on balance in fairly active trading early today.

Key stocks advanced from fractions to about a point or more. There were some losers.

Rails, chemicals, oils, radio-televisions and selected issues moved ahead. Aircrafts were lower, oils, steels and non-ferrous metals irregular.

Steel production was at its lowest ebb since the nationwide steel strike last August and there were price cuts for zinc and copper.

Haveg Industries, which raced ahead 14¼ yesterday, dropped around eight points on profit-taking. The firm, which has been advancing on reports of its new plastic material for use in rockets, announced after the close yesterday that it was acquiring Reinhold Engineering & Plastics Co. of Norwalk.

AVCO, boosted by its good earnings report and news of a big defense contract, was again very actively traded. It rose a major fraction.

Curtiss-Wright gained a good fraction following a report that its shipments for the first half will exceed 300 million dollars.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY OF MY dead mother Una A. Warren who passed away July 2, 1951.
Remembrance is a golden chain,
That binds us till we meet again;
To have, to love, and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never;
The memories of those happy days,
When we were all together.
Daughter Verna.

Prince Charlie Enjoys Ranger

Gisele May Switch to Film After Her First 13 Programs

By JACK O'BRIAN

Queen Liz' son, Bonnie Prince Charlie, is a "Lone Ranger" fan on London TV, the lad's tutor, Michael Farebrother, reports . . .

"The Lone Ranger" will be celebrating its Hi-yo Silver anniversary next February after one of broadcasting's most fabulous long-run success stories. Texas oilman-aircaster Jack Wrather (Bonita Granville's husband) now owns the show, Tonto and all.

First 13 of Gisele MacKenzie's fall shows will be "live" and the rest may switch to film, sorry to relate.

Sen. Jack Kennedy's "Profiles in Courage" will become a TV series, probably RKO-filmed; suitable, inasmuch as Jack's dad, Joseph P. Kennedy, once owned RKO . . .

MAY RETITLE SERIES

Eve Arden may change the title of her "It Gives Me Great Pleasure," situation comedy about a lady lecturer, to "Liza," her name in the series, and also the name of her elder girl.

Howard Duff and Ida Lupino's "Mr. Adams and Eve" series was renewed for another season despite the critics . . .

Barry Sullivan's now filmed TV series "Harbormaster" has changed its title to "Scott Island." Someone else owned the other title . . .

SHOWS TO SHRINK?

"Wire Service" and "Lux Theater" may switch to 30 minutes each . . .

Nasser Stars on British TV

Egypt's Leader Defends Accepting Red Arms in Filmed Interview

LONDON (AP)—Britain's commercial television network last night featured a 20-minute interview with President Nasser of Egypt.

The Egyptian leader defended his country's acceptance of Soviet arms, expressed hope that Egypt and Britain will be friends again and warned that U.S. policy will turn nationalists into Communists.

★ ★ ★

The interview was filmed last Friday in the garden of Nasser's Cairo home. Speaking in English, Nasser appeared nervous when the questions began but gained poise as the interview went along.

He said Britain and Egypt "have to return to normal relations."

"I'm sorry about the period of bad relations between Britain and Egypt," he continued, "and I hope both countries will work for good relations in order to be friendly again."

★ ★ ★

Nasser described Egypt's foreign policy as one of "nonalignment," similar to India's. He said Egypt purchased Communist arms to defend itself "against aggression."

Asked about Egypt's recent acquisition of three Soviet submarines, Nasser said, "We want to build up our navy as we build our army and our air force . . . Why not have submarines?"

★ ★ ★

Commission to View City Improvement

Placed on the table for city commission consideration tonight will be a 27-point agenda consisting mostly of routine public improvement items.

Scheduled for action are submissfrom the assessor's office, and confirmation or payments to be set for 14 street improvement projects in Pontiac.

City Attorney William A. Ewart will present two leases received for sections of South Saginaw street property.

Slated to be made into law tonight will be an ordinance to increase water tapping rates in the city from $75 to $125.

★ ★ ★

A petition has been submitted to the clerk's office requesting sidewalks for both sides of High street from Blaine avenue to Summit street. It has been signed by 24 per cent of residents in that area.

Jimmy Walker Fans Object to Movie Story

By EARL WILSON

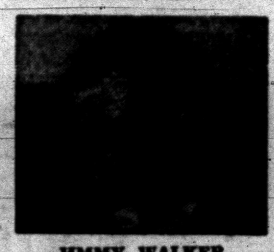

NEW YORK—Jimmy Walker, dead these 10 years, has the Stay-Up Set all stirred up again . . . over him . . . defending him . . . as it did when he lived.

★ ★ ★

They resent their Jimmy being found drunk on a bench outside a night club. It's an insult to his capacity! When Jimmy says, "I'll match my private life against any man's," they don't like a press aide topping him by retorting, "Any man? Henry VIII, for example?"

The black-tie-and-champagne premiere crowd loved Bob Hope but screamed about it being "too destructive."

JIMMY WALKER

"It should've proved he wasn't a thief — I had to pay his insurance before he died," said a celebrated actor.

The Catholic Church gave it an "objectionable in part" rating.

With "Miss America" and "Miss Universe" contests due soon and never quite deciding who's the loveliest gal, my wife suggests we start a new contest — "Miss Out of This World." Nominated right now: Hollywood model Joan Bradshaw. Any others?

JOAN BRADSHAW

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

His studio won't let Tab Hunter make more recordings 'cause he turned down a movie script . . . Red Skelton's making a private record of his censored TV bits for friends; calls it "An Evening With a Nasty Old Man" . . . Mike Wallace is filming an interview with Leopold (of Leopold and Loeb) in Joliet prison . . .

WISH I'D SAID THAT: There's one nice thing to be said for noisy kids — at least they don't smoke smelly cigars.

★ ★ ★

TODAY'S WORST PUN: The police should use helicopters to chase criminals, 'cause it's the whirlybird that catches the worm.

"There's nothing new to the four-minute mile," sighs Rusty Draper. "The horses I bet on do it all the time." That's earl, brother.

Pays to Be Farmer? FFA Head Not Sure

DETROIT (AP) — The president of the Michigan Future Farmers of America says he plans to develop non-farming skills because "I'd like to have some occupation to fall back on if farming doesn't work out."

This view, expressed by Gerald Neill, 18, of Williamston, was echoed by a number of other of the 32 FFA officers from Michigan, Ohio and Indiana attending a three-day leadership training conference which began here yesterday.

Gerald runs a 120-acre dairy farm but said he plans to branch out into other occupations because he doesn't think his farm is large enough "to provide a comfortable living."

Stanley Augustus, 17, of Springfield, Ohio, was raised on a farm but said he planned to become either a minister or a vocational agricultural instrucor. His reason was the same as Gerald's — not enough money.

Mackie to Use Big Axe on Ziegler Road Plans

LANSING (AP) — Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie says he may junk up to 20 million dollars in road building plans inherited from his predecessor.

Mackie, coming up with the figure at a news conference yesterday, said it was little more than a guess, but that he intended to get busy without delay in a review of work in the planning stage.

He emphasized that he did not refer to projects already in the construction stage.

Mackie was inaugurated for a four-year term yesterday, ending 14 consecutive years of highway department rule by Republican Charles M. Ziegler.

In deciding on cancellations, he said he would compare specific road construction proposals being moulded now into a five-year construction program with what Ziegler left behind, and abandon Ziegler projects that did not coincide.

Mackie disclosed that he already has made inquiries about Michigan's chances of picking up road mileage on the interstate system in the event Congress approves its enlargement from 40,000 to 48,000 miles.

U.S. PAYS 90 PCT.

State spending on federal interstate routes within its borders is reimbursable on the attractive 90-10 basis. In other words, the federal government foots 90 per cent of the bill.

★ ★ ★

When he was in Washington recently, Mackie said, he asked about the possibility of getting an interstate route designation for a new highway bisecting the Upper Peninsula from east to west.

★ ★ ★

The commissioner said he was informed there was little ground for optimism that Congress will agree to adding 8,000 miles to the interstate system.

★ ★ ★

Several Michigan shipping concerns, and some Canadian, have expressed an interest in purchasing the Vacationland when ferry service across the Mackinac Straits is discontinued this fall.

SURVEY STARTED

A survey is being undertaken to discover how many legislators, state officials, former state officials and legislators and other persons have been extended pass privileges for trips across the straits.

The commissioner plans to push work on U.S. 16 from Muskegon to Detroit, U.S. 27 from Indiana border to the Straits and on U.S. 12 running across the southern part of the state.

Whether the project of the Michigan Turnpike Authority for a toll road from Rockwood to Clio will get his support is still an unresolved question, contingent on several factors.

The attorney general has been asked whether 25 million dollars in bonds sold for extension of the Northwest Expressway out of Detroit can be used for other projects.

★ ★ ★

A review of the state trunkline system is contemplated, with a view to ascertaining whether any elements now included should be dropped from it or any road not on the system should be added to it.

★ ★ ★

The new commissioner is opposed to diversion of road building money for such purposes as paying state police salaries, bailing out financially straitened local bus companies and paying right-of-way costs heretofore borne by public utilities.

Dulles Faces A-Test Queries

Newsmen Seek Answer to Arms Confusion at Weekly Conference

WASHINGTON (INS) — The delicate subject of disarmament topped the list of questions confronting Secretary of State John Foster Dulles at his weekly news conference today.

Dulles was expected to be asked to clear up confusion concerning the U.S. position on halting nuclear tests.

—The published report that he has decided to stay in the cabinet for the duration of President Eisenhower's second term.

—Yugoslav President Tito's statement in a television interview that he and Red Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung have almost identical views that there are different paths to communism.

—East-West exchanges.

U.S. POLICY

—The entire U.S. policy toward Red China, particularly as concerns the U.S. ban on trade with the Communist nation and the continued ban on American newsmen entering the country.

The uncertainty about the U.S. position on nuclear testing arose last week when a group of scientists told President Eisenhower that if testing continued the U.S. could develop a 100 per cent "clean" nuclear bomb in four or five years.

Eisenhower, who had previously put the administration on the side of halting nuclear tests, appeared at his news conference the following day to be wavering in his position although he stated that the U.S. would continue to seek an end to testing of A-weapons if certain conditions were met.

Sinatra Won't Protest Ava Gardner's Divorce

MEXICO CITY (INS) — A final decision on actress Ava Gardner's petition for divorce from singer Frank Sinatra is expected to be handed down by a Mexican court next week.

★ ★ ★

A final hurdle was cleared yesterday when Sinatra's lawyer, Antonio Valenzuela, appeared before a civil judge in Mexico City to say that the singer will not contest the divorce.

Note to His Milkman Brings $905.65 Loss

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Leaving a note for the milkman may be the reason Dewey Cassady is out $905.65. He told police that when he left for work he put $5.65 on the kitchen table and pinned this note to his backdoor:

Cassady said when he got home he discovered the $5.65 was gone—along with $900 he had chanced under a bedroom rug.

To top it off, he said, "I forgot the milkman didn't even come today."

Tallulah Imparts Her Knowledge on U.S. Morals

Writing in a new issue of a national magazine, in an article titled "The Trouble with American Morals," Miss Bankhead said: "Sex is the American obsession. We have it on the brain too much. That's no place for it."

Miss Bankhead appealed to her countrymen to lose their curiosity for the details of the sex lives of other people. "One man's morals is another man's poison," said the actress.

She did not mean, however, that sex should be repressed entirely. "Why be frightened or ashamed of it?" she said. "We cannot deny its pleasures. Sex won't be straitjacketed!"

In her article, Miss Bankhead also had something to say about other areas of American morals:

—On Drinking: "Let us not spit on alcoholism."

—On Chastity: "Just another evasion."

In 1951 Miss Bankhead was involved in one of the most widely covered court trials of the decade, in which her ex-maid accused her of spending money for "marijuana, cocaine, booze and gigolos."

Ex-Official's Fate Rests With Jury

DETROIT (INS) — The extortion-bribery trial of former Taylor Township Supervisor Harold Rippe was expected to go to a jury of four men and eight women today.

Rippe's attorney, Joseph W. Louisell, rested his case yesterday after Rippe testified all he ever got from Taylor Township builder Calvin Shubow was a two-bit cigar.

Shubow testified he paid the money to Rippe to save $30,000 on the installation in 1955.

Navy Fires IGY Rocket

Can Send Out Another Quickly

SAN NICOLAS ISLAND, Calif. (AP)—Scientific personnel on this bleak Navy-controlled island have fired the first rocket of the International Geophysical Year — and are ready to fire another at a moment's notice.

The 14-rocket program is part of the IGY study of solar flares, those unexplained disturbances on the sun which cause radio fadeouts.

Devices in the nose of the projectiles will relay data picked up high in the sky back to the island via radio signals.

Largely a "shakedown" for the rocket and equipment, the initial firing yesterday was termed highly successful by the scientists in charge. The next firing will take place at once when a flare is confirmed.

Rockets used are the 10-year-old Deacon type with a booster section from a Nike guided missile. With the detector instruments in the nose, the rocket proper in the center and the Nike booster at the rear, the projectile is 20 feet long and weighs 1,500 pounds.

Yesterday's rocket rose 75 miles at a maximum speed of 5,000 feet a second. The Nike pack dropped off 2.9 seconds after the launching.

Thereafter the Deacon coasted for 13 seconds before its own fuel supply cut in, carrying it the rest of the way to the 75-mile height in 2.85 seconds. Then the spent rocket plunged into the ocean some 25 miles to the seaward side of this island, 60 miles off the coast of the Navy's air missile test center at Point Mugu, Calif., which is approximately 50 miles north of Los Angeles.

A major purpose of the program here is to study the intensity of electrification in the ionosphere caused by solar flares. The ionosphere is the upper atmosphere 50 to 65 miles from the earth. When the lower ionosphere takes on a high charge, short-wave radio reception is blacked out.

'Who's Counting?' Asks Producer

Todd Dishes Out $200,000 at London Party for 1,700

LONDON (AP)—Film producer Mike Todd is throwing a party for 1,700 people tonight which may set him back as much as $200,000.

And here's one for the tax collector. Even if the festivities are launching Mike's movie, "Around the World in 80 Days," he's not writing the party off as advertising and business expense. A spokesman said the fun and games after the film are "purely a private affair . . . so the tax question doesn't arise there."

★ ★ ★

The big binge will begin with the film premiere — for charity— at the Astoria Theater. That will cost Todd 30,000 pounds—$84,000.

★ ★ ★

After the show the guests will cross the Thames River on five bar-equipped steamboats and take over the Battersea Festival Gardens.

Todd wouldn't say how much the Battersea party would cost but newspaper estimates ranged up to 45,000 pounds ($126,000).

★ ★ ★

"I'm an artist," the cigar-smoking impresario told a reporter. "I never think in terms of money. But you can figure out about how much it's going to cost.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

"Some people may think it's extravagant," he commented, "but my conscience don't bother me."

He grabbed the phone again and ordered three more bands.

"How many bands does that make?" the reporter asked.

★ ★ ★

"Who's counting?" he shot back. "I like music. Lotsa music.

"Now about money. If you have money, you gotta spread a little sunshine with it. I don't care about money whem I'm giving a party for my friends."

★ ★ ★

Mike's guest list is headed by the Duchess of Kent and her daughter Princess Alexandra. They accepted the invitation to the premiere although not to the party.

Also scheduled to attend were a big slice of Debrett's Peerage, the roster of British nobility, several Cabinet ministers and a flock of ambassadors.

2 County Men Work at Surveying Camp

A pair of Oakland County men are spending their summer combining business with pleasure at a University of Michigan surveying camp in the Grand Teton Mountains of Wyoming.

Harlan A. Davis, of 6190 Franklin, Birmingham, and Timothy C. Flanagan, of 1515 Sunset, Royal Oak, will spend eight weeks at the camp.

June graduates of the university, they will be eligible for immediate employment with the State Highway Department after completing the camp work. The camp is sponsored by the highway department.

WSU Student Faces Assault Examination

A 21-year-old Wayne State University student, re-arrested Friday on a warrant accusing him of assault with intent to murder in the beating of two men May 18, will be examined in Municipal Court July 10.

★ ★ ★

Merlin J. Doran Jr., 16 Euclid St., demanded examination Saturday before Municipal Judge Maurice E. Finnegan when arraigned on the charge. He is free on a $1,000 bond until examination.

Doran is the third man who has been arrested and charged in the case.

Doran had been arrested the morning of the beating and released two days later pending further investigation.

Anthony F. Schnieder, 22, 1257 Cherrylawn St., and Robert C. Bridson, 23, 161 Oliver St., had demanded examination Thursday when arraigned on the same charge before Finnegan and were freed on $1,000 bonds Friday.

★ ★ ★

French Prince, Duchess to Marry

Wedding Attracts Royalty

PARIS (AP)—A galaxy of European royalty—most of it throneless—was converging on the little town of Dreux today for the wedding of the oldest son of the pretender to the long-abolished French throne.

Prince Henri, 24-year-old heir of the Count of Paris, and Duchess Maria Theresa of Wurttemberg, 22, will be married there, 40 miles west of Paris, on Friday. The chance to look at such an assemblage is expected to triple the town's normal population of 15,000.

Already on hand for the nuptials were King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece, who indirectly played cupid for the romance, former King Umberto of Italy, and Duke Durate of Braganza, the pretender to the Portuguese throne.

Missing from the throng will be members of the British royal family, presumably because they had other business to tend to.

The couple already have received more than 5,000 gifts, including two thoroughbred Arabian horses from the Sultan of Morocco.

With more than 3,500 guests invited, fewer than 300 will be able to squeeze in for the religious ceremony, to be held in the chapel at the Count of Paris' chateau at Louveciennes. Before the religious rites Friday, the mayor of Dreux will perform the civil ceremony required by French law.

Both bride and groom are descendants of the Bourbon line, which last reigned in France in 1848. Through the family's many branches, they are kin to most of Europe's royalty and nobility.

King Paul, who had said he hoped the cruise would spawn some royal romances, will be one of the groom's witnesses for the civil ceremony.
