New Duties, Merger Announced

Editor's note—Recent administrative changes and a merge of the Center for General and Career Studies and other units into the Division of Continuing Education are reported in this issue of the OU News.

Four Oakland University administrators have been appointed assistant vice presidents and a fifth named executive assistant to the president as part of an administrative reorganization of the university.

The moves were approved by the OU Board of Trustees at the July 15 monthly meeting on campus.

Robert H. Bunger, assistant vice president for academic affairs, was promoted and transferred to the Office of the President as executive assistant to the president and director of institutional planning and analysis.

Ray T. Harris, budget director, was promoted to the position of associate vice president for administrative affairs.

Richard A. Light, assistant vice president for business affairs and administration, was appointed to the position of assistant vice president for administrative services and risk management.

Jerry Dahlmann, assistant director of general and career studies, was appointed assistant vice president for development.

Robert A. Dearth, special assistant to the president, was transferred to the position of assistant vice president and director of cultural affairs in the Division of Development.

In addition, the president is permitted to designate a person to fill the position of assistant vice president for computer and information systems, a new position in the Division of Administrative Affairs.

In the interest of improved effectiveness, efficiency and economy, several units of Oakland University have been merged into a single division. The unit will function under a familiar name, the Division of Continuing Education. Dean Lowell Eklund heads the division. The merge became effective July 1, 1981.

Operations and AP personnel in the merged units will be located in the specified locations as soon as the physical move is completed.

The Continuum Center for Adult Counseling and Leadership Training, formerly in the Division of Continuing Education, was transferred to the School of Human and Educational Services.

University departments desiring conferences services, beyond facilities arrangements should direct an inquiry to the Course Department which will provide services, formerly provided by the Conference Department, on a fee-for-service basis. Only a limited number of conferences can be serviced due to limitations of time and staff.

Since 1959 the fortunes of Oakland University have been in the hands of one of these four men. Together for the July 17 dedication of Jan and Don O'Dowd Hall were D.B. "Woody" Varner, Donald D. O'Dowd, George T. Matthews, and President Joseph E. Champagne.

At the May Board meeting, the trustees of Oakland University unanimously approved a reaffirmation of the policy on equal opportunity. The policy is printed in its entirety below:

Oakland University reaffirms its unwavering commitment to equality of opportunity for all persons. In a society that relies on an informed, educated citizenry, no one should be denied the opportunity to attain his or her fullest potential. It is therefore the policy of Oakland University that no person shall be discriminated against on the basis of race, sex, age, handicap, color, religion, creed, national origin or ancestry, marital status, or veteran status. The university shall strive to build a community that welcomes and honors all persons and that provides equality of opportunity in education and employment. The university shall affirmatively follow the provisions of applicable state and federal anti-discrimination legislation in all of its activities in this area and so reaffirms its policy at this time.

We pride our selves on our diversity and our flexibility. Our diversity and flexibility

Matthews Honored By Board

Oakland University's new $1.8 million married student housing complex has been named George T. Matthews Court in honor of Matthews, charter member of the OU faculty.

The OU Board of Trustees approved the action as part of the July 15 resolution honoring Matthews. The Avon Township resident has served the university as a professor, dean, vice provost, and most recently as interim president (1979-81) while the university searched for a replacement of Donald D. O'Dowd.

Joseph E. Champagne was installed as OU president early this winter. Matthews will now take a sabbatical leave before returning to the university.

The 48 units of married student housing are OU's first such units, intended in part to help attract additional highly qualified graduate students to the institution. The complex will be open for renting shortly. It is located just east of the regular residence hall complex and south of Walton Boulevard.

The OU Board of Trustees approved a two-year contract with UAW/CT Local 1925 and gave an OK to a new classification and salary system for excluded clerical technical positions. In addition, the board established a B.A. in Area Studies, a new degree program building on the university's traditional strengths in area studies.

Three new faculty appointments were approved by the OU Board of Trustees at the July 15 meeting on campus.

The new faculty, all assistant professors, are Virginia Blankenship, psychology, Lucinda Hart-Gonzalez, linguistics and sociology/anthropology, and Hoda A. Zohdy, engineering. The appointments are effective Aug. 15.

Preprimary Has Openings

The Preprimary Program at Oakland University's Lowry Early Childhood Center has a limited number of openings left for enrollment in the 1981-82 school year. The Preprimary is a full-day kindergarten program for five-year-olds. Children attend from 9:15 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. daily, following the university schedule for fall, winter and spring terms. Additional child care is available at the preschool before and after the full-day kindergarten.

The preprimary enrollment is limited to twelve children. This enables teachers to meet the individual educational needs of each child. Children work independently at learning centers as well as learning in group settings.

Our ability to attract and retain highly qualified faculty, staff, and students with a wide variety of skills and backgrounds is enhanced by a forthright articulation of and commitment to equality opportunity.

We must be certain as we go through difficult times ahead that we do not forget the need to maintain and enhance our representative character. In this period of moderation, we must not relent in our commitment to provide a rich multicultural environment that consciously strives to include a variety of viewpoints and models for us all.
