

Pulitzer winner gives lectures

Gary Snyder, winner of the 1975 Pulitzer Prize for Poetry, will give two free public lectures here Nov. 7 and 8 as the second of seven speakers in the President's Club Lecture Series.

Snyder will talk on "Poetry in a Whole Culture" at 8 p.m. on Nov. 7 and on "The New Age and the Old Ways" at 1 p.m. on Nov. 8. Both programs are in Varner Recital Hall.

The lecturer is a 1951 graduate of Reed College where he received degrees in anthropology and literature. He later studied Japanese and Chinese civilization at the University of California at Berkeley.

Snyder won the Pulitzer Prize in 1975 for his work entitled Turtle Island. His latest book, The Old Ways, was published this year. The poet has worked at various jobs as seaman, forest lookout, logger, and laborer. He says the rhythms of his poems seem to follow the rhythm of the physical work he happens to be doing at the time.

Following Snyder will be Elvis Stahr, president of the National Audubon Society, who will speak on Dec. 1 on "The Environment, the Economy, and Our National Heritage." The lectures are supported by a grant from the President's Club, an organization of approximately 100 area citizens who support the university and its programs. In addition to the public talks, the speakers also meet with OU students, faculty, and staff.

Professors give child abuse presentation

Mary Otto, education, and David G. Smith, formerly on the faculty of the School of Education and now teaching at the University of Tulsa, were selected to make a presentation to the National Council on Family Relations which met in San Diego on October 12-15.

The title of their address was "The Child Abuse Consultant: A Cognitive/Behavioral Consulting Model." In the presentation, Otto and Smith presented a six-step consultation model designed to interrupt the cycle of child abuse. Their plan stressed immediate intervention and provided for the restructuring of parenting style to increase the probability of permanent change.

More than 1,000 specialists on various phases of family life were expected to attend the meeting, which featured more than 200 programs, seminars, research reports and speeches. The theme of the annual meeting was "Values, Morals, Ethics, and the American Family."

OC sponsors art sale

The Oakland Center will sponsor an exhibit and sale of approximately 1,000 original prints from the Ferdinand Rotten Galleries Collection on Wednesday, November 2. The event will be held in the Exhibit Lounge of the Oakland Center from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Works spanning six centuries will be featured in the show, including prints by artists Rouault, Hogarth, Goya, Miro and Picasso.

Prices range from $10 to the thousands, but most prints are under $100.

Baron and Caffone attend conference

Richard Barron and Harold Caffone of the Reading Area in Education were invited to a conference sponsored by the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities. Their presentation, "Instructional Miscues in the Teaching of Reading: Teaching Disabilities Versus Learning Disability," was presented at the meeting Oct. 14-15 in Lansing.

Preschool director receives honors

Stephanie C. Riley, director of the preschool program at Oakland's Lowry Early Childhood Center, has been notified of two recent honors.

Riley has been chosen outstanding educator by her alma mater, the University of Northern Colorado, and she has published her case study of a handicapped Rochester child in the September issue of Early Years magazine.

Riley was honored as part of the Oct. 21-22 homecoming festivities at Northern Colorado. The award was based on professional and community service. Her magazine article details how a handicapped youth was helped through the OU Lowry Early Childhood Center.

Applications being accepted for grants

The National Science Foundation has announced a closing date of Dec. 16 for applications for science faculty professional development awards. About 130 fellowship awards will be announced in mid-April, 1978.

The grants are salary-matching and also include allowances for travel and other purposes. The program is designed to help college-level science teachers increase their competency in order to improve their students chances of meeting current employment requirements.

Those interested in applying should write the Science Faculty Professional Development Program, National Science Foundation, Washington, D.C. 20550, 202-282-7795.

Dance theater to tour schools

Members of the Oakland Dance Theater have been hired with CETA funds to tour Oakland County schools during the 1977-78 school year. They are presenting "Dancing Pants and Other Things," a musical adaptation of Shel Silverstein's poetry.

Carol Halsted, director of the Oakland Dance Theater, conceived the show and the music was written by Darien Martus with additions to the original show by Dan O'Connor. Students participating in the production are Beth Taylor, Jill Johnson, Dan O'Connor, and David Allen, guest artist at Oakland. The group also give workshops in the classroom on integrating the arts into the classroom setting.

Alumni telefund grows

More than $14,500 has been raised by the Alumni Association in the first two weeks of its 1977 telefund. Approximately 160 volunteers have obtained pledges from 1,200 donors in the first six nights of calling.

The success of the telefund assures that the 1977 fund drive will exceed last year's record-breaking totals by several thousand dollars. The total raised by the alumni association in 1971 was $31,000.

Effective November 1, 1977 the reimbursement rate for the use of privately owned automobiles while on authorized university business will be increased from 14¢ to 17¢ per mile. Faculty traveling under terms of the AAUP contract will continue to be reimbursed at the contractually prescribed rate of 15¢.

Also, the Motor Pool mileage charge for automobiles will be increased from 14¢ to 16¢.

These increases are being made to keep our rates more in line with increased costs of owning and operating automobiles. The Federal, State and County governments reimburse at the 17¢ rate.

Administrators speak in San Diego

Two Oakland University administrators were invited to share their insights on "How To Implement a Senior Citizen's Volunteer Program" with other professionals at a national conference Oct. 13 in San Diego.

Anne C. Frey and Harvey A. Hohausser of the Urban Affairs Center addressed the joint conference of the Association of Voluntary Action Scholars, the Association for Administration of Volunteer Services, and the Association of Volunteer Bureaus.

Frey and Hohausser developed and participated in a February, 1977 conference given by the State of Michigan Office of Services to the Aging. Many of the Frey-Hohausser techniques presented at that conference have already been implemented by local aging programs throughout the state.

The two covered planning volunteer programs, utilization of community resources, recruitment techniques, record keeping, program evaluation, and other topics at the San Diego conference.

Meadow Brook lecture series begins

Four nationally prominent doctors have been selected to address physicians in the new Meadow Brook Lecture Series in Medicine and Surgery which opens Nov. 16.

The opening speaker will be Dr. John J. Bergan, Mag-erstadt Professor of Surgery and Chief, Division of Vascular Surgery, Northwestern University Medical School. The lecture series is aimed at some 4,000 area internists, surgeons, and other physicians in southeastern Michigan. It is a collaboration between the university, Meadow Brook Hall, and the Oakland Health Education Program (OHEP). Each of the programs offers a reception and 7 p.m. dinner at Meadow Brook preceding the 8:30 p.m. lecture.

Admission to the program is $20 per person per lecture. Additional information on the series can be obtained by calling Ernie Hammel, OHEP, 377-4360.
