OU students featured during 9/11 TV tribute

A number of Oakland University students will be featured during a tribute in remembrance of the terrorist attacks on Sept. 11, 2001. The story will air during the 11 p.m. news tonight on WDIV-TV4 Detroit (Channel 4).

Mike Lewis, interim director of the university's journalism program and news anchor for Channel 4, interviewed students during Oakland's "Day of Understanding," which took place in the classrooms and around campus soon after the events of Sept. 11.

"Tonight's story looks at how 9/11 affected tomorrow's leaders, much in the same way their parents and grandparents faced historic challenges like World War II and the civil rights movement," Lewis says. "How young people face the ongoing challenges presented by 9/11 will be the legacy that they pass on to future generations."

For more information on the program, contact Lewis at (248) 370-2105 or lewis@oakland.edu.
