Office of the President Web site launched

Visit the Office of the President without leaving your home or office. Through a new Web site, students, faculty, staff, alumni and the OU community can learn about Oakland directly from OU President Gary Russi.

"The Web site gives me an opportunity to communicate how we are moving toward our 2010 goal to be a university of distinction," Russi said.

The site includes Russi's recent letters and speeches, including his remarks from President Bush's visit, and a Vision 2010 update shared with OU employees.

The site also introduces the President's Cabinet and staff and provides links to the Board of Trustees, University Senate and Student Congress. There's also a section about the OU Foundation and the benefits of charitable donations.

"The Web site is a great way to keep our students, faculty and constituents informed about our successes and milestones as we evolve to our 2010 vision," Russi said.
