Workshop offered on finding, winning grants

Oakland University's School of Education and Human Services (SEHS) is offering "How to Find and Win Federal, Foundation and Corporate Grants," a step-by-step workshop on successfully writing grants, on Thursday, Oct. 10, from 8:30 a.m.- 4 p.m.

Participants will learn how to research government grant opportunities, develop fundable project ideas, write a compelling letter proposal, and use Webbing and linkages to increase funding success.

David Bauer, who will lead the workshop, is one of the nation's leading experts on fund-raising and grant-seeking techniques. He has authored eight books on the topic and has produced three video series and two software programs.

The cost of the workshop is $49, which includes materials and lunch. Additional information is available online at the Department of Professional Development and Education Outreach Web site.

To enroll, contact Professional Development at (248) 370-3033 or pro-development@oakland.edu. The deadline to register is Friday, Oct. 4.
