

Thursday, January 16, 2003

OU celebrates 'The Souls of Black Folk'

Oakland University will mark African-American Celebration Month Jan. 20 through Feb. 20 with a variety of educational and cultural activities to celebrate "The Souls of Black Folk." A number of lectures, discussions, films, art exhibits and many other events will fill the month with opportunities for students and the public to learn more about our culturally diverse world.

The opening event is Monday, Jan. 20, in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday. An all-day celebration will take place as the OU community participates in events that promote the unification of all cultures. The closing event is the Keeper of the Dream scholarship award banquet, with keynote speaker Edsel B. Ford II, board director of Ford Motor Company.

See the African-American Celebration Month Schedule for a complete list of activities.

SUMMARY

Oakland University will mark African-American Celebration Month Jan. 20 through Feb. 20 with a variety of educational and cultural activities to celebrate "The Souls of Black Folk."

Created by CareTech Administrator (webservices@caretechsolutions.com) on Thursday, January 16, 2003

Modified by CareTech Administrator (webservices@caretechsolutions.com) on Thursday, January 16, 2003

Article Start Date: Wednesday, October 8, 2003