OU to host guests in honor of Women's History Month

In celebration of Women's History Month, Oakland University will host Ellen Ross, professor of History and Women's Studies at Ramapo College in New Jersey and Reginald McKnight, Pushcart Prize-Winner.

Ross will discuss Lady Philanthropists in the Slums of Late Victorian London. The lecture will be held Wednesday, March 21, from 4-5:15 p.m. in the Oakland Room of the Oakland Center on the university's campus.

McKnight will perform a fictional reading from his short story works on Wednesday, March 14, from 4-5 p.m. in the Oakland Room of the Oakland Center. With his insight and humor, McKnight reveals the pain and pride of racial identity in his short stories and novels.

The Women's History Month programs are sponsored by Oakland University's Women's Studies, English, Political Science, Modern Language & Literatures, Art and Art History departments and the Provost.
